State grants Luna $22M for education

Land board gives schools chief less than half of what he requested

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

BOISE — In this depressed economic climate, getting any state money is better than receiving nothing at all. That was the lesson State Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Luna learned Wednesday, when he ended up getting $22 million to offset budget cuts instead of his requested $52.8 million from the Public Schools Earnings Reserve Account, an offshoot of the state's lands endowment that provides money to schools.

The State Land Board, which Luna sits on, voted 3-2 on the measure at the end of a meeting that lasted more than two hours. Luna had sought the money to help patch a fiscal year 2011 budget shortfall he estimated has grown from $135 million to $160 million.

The $22 million won't fix what ails the public schools budget. But Luna isn't turning up his nose to it, either.

"I came walking in here figuring we were going to get somewhere between zero and $52.8 million," Luna said after the meeting. "Quite frankly for a few minutes there, I thought it was going to be zero?"

Besides Luna, Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter and Secretary of State Ben Ysursa voted for the $22 million. Voting against the proposal were land board members State Controller Donna Jones and Attorney General Lawrence Wasden, who requested a detailed analysis of the decision's long-term impact on the reserve account.

Twin Falls School District Superintendent Wiley Dobbs said the funding has the potential to keep overall cuts down, adding he wasn't sure what outcome to expect.

"It was kind of tough to guess on," he said, and voiced his pleasure with the vote.

The $22 million is a good compromise, said Sen. Bert Brackett, R-Rogerson.

"That was a land-board decision and I accept that," said Rep. Maxine Bell, R-Jerome and co-chairwoman of the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee.

Luna's full request had the support of Rep. Wendy Jaquet, D-Ketchum, but she said meeting about halfway can pass muster more easily in the budget-making process. "I'm just gratified that the land board made that decision," she said.

T.F. POLICE TO AUCTION GUNS

91 guns in evidence vault to be sold, not needed for police purposes

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

The Twin Falls Police Department is planning to lose some unwanted firepower later this month and pick up a good chunk of change in return.

The department plans to sell an estimated 91 firearms that are no longer needed for criminal justice purposes, and revenue is slated to go into the city's general fund.

The private auction will be held by city police for dealers only — at 6 p.m. Feb. 27, at the Hunt Bros. Auto and Estate Auctions at 165 Eastland Drive in Twin Falls.

Bidders carrying a federal firearms permit, which is required to operate a gun business, are invited, said Sgt. Mark Marvin.

These firearms have come into police custody in different ways, Marvin said. Some were forfeited, never recovered by their owners, or were at one time evidence of a crime. But any guns involved in criminal cases have cleared court, he said.

The department's property rooms receive nearly 6,000 new items every year, Marvin said, adding the last firearms auction was in 2005 when 260 guns sold, generating $27,000.

Marvin said handguns are usually the most sold items at auction, and only safe, legal firearms will continue to be auctioned. "We conduct an ATF trace on all firearms coming into the department," said Marvin.

Police noted that most of the guns have not been test-fired and firearms considered to be illegal will not be included in the auction. The list of guns to be auctioned includes at least four with unknown serial numbers, according to a listing on the Hunt Bros. Web site, though Marvin said in some cases only parts are being sold and guns with obliterated serial numbers will not be auctioned.

An official with the Twin Falls Sportsman's Warehouse, which carries a federal firearms license to sell new firearms, said Wednesday that the store cannot sell any used firearms without a special permit from the city.

Twin Falls Police Capt. Matt Hicks confirmed that a city license appears to be required for businesses interested in selling used firearms in Twin Falls.

The same background checks and procedures apply for individuals buying a used gun as with a new gun from dealers, Marvin said.

In order to receive a bidding number and participate in the auction, current identification, dealer numbers and a working phone number are required.

Tracy Perreira, a Twin Falls Police Department community service officer, stands in the department's evidence locker on Wednesday. "We have to do our best attempt to contact the owner and get the gun back to the rightful owner," Perreira said. Some guns collected as evidence will be auctioned by the department on Feb. 27, with proceeds returning to the city general fund.

Two cougars killed by hunters in Wood River Valley

By Ariel Hansen
Times-News writer

HAILEY — Following a rash of cougar attacks on dogs in Bellevue and Hailey, hunters have killed two of the large cats, according to Idaho Department of Fish and Game.

"Cougars are part of the fabric of where we live," said Lee Garwood, senior conservation officer for the department in Hailey. He said this year there have been more attacks on pets than are usually reported. "Generally we might have one encounter of some kind in a year."

The incidents began about two weeks ago, with four attacks during a three-day span in the Broadford Road neighborhood near Bellevue. The addresses and identities of the dogs' owners have not been released.

In the first case, a dog was let out of the house in the morning. Garwood surmises a cougar was passing by, and the two animals got into a confrontation.

On the same day, two dogs were roaming the neighborhood when, Garwood believes, they found a cougar. "These things will use a little snow cave under some heavy brush," he said, describing where the dogs might have roamed the big cat.

Two days later, an incident similar to the first one took place, with dogs let out in the morning scuffling with a passing cougar.

how Fish and Game was becoming concerned they were looking for a particularly dangerous cougar. "We thought we might have had one that was strictly targeting dogs."

Examining tracks found near the neighborhood, Garwood said they were able to identify the area cougars as likely to be an adult male, and an adult female accompanied by a yearling cat.

On Saturday, hunters tracked and killed two cougars, an adult male of

Hearing officer: Pipeline plan adequate

Clear Springs Foods marketing concern not enough to stop it, Schroeder writes

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

A proposal to pipe water into the Snake River Canyon to make up for a fish farm's shortages is fundamentally sound, but should not be formally approved until several more issues are resolved, a hearing officer suggested Tuesday.

The recommendation by former Idaho Chief Justice Gerald Schroeder now goes to Gary Spackman, interim director of the Idaho Department of Water Resources, who will make a final decision regarding the plan.

Two Magic Valley groundwater districts first formally broached the idea of the pipeline nearly a year ago as a way to make up a decline in springs that feed a trout farm owned by Clear Springs Foods of Buhl. Former IDWR Director Dave Tuthill ruled in 2008 that groundwater pumping has harmed the canyon springs, though that decision has now been appealed to the Idaho Supreme Court.

Clear Springs has objected to the pipeline concept ever since it was proposed. But Schroeder in his opinion dismissed one of the company's main arguments, that raising fish with water from a source besides the springs will hurt Clear Springs' marketing image.

Noting that the groundwater would be the same temperature and quality as the spring water — it comes from the same aquifer, after all — he wrote that "reality

MORNING BRIEFING

Pat's Picks

Three things to do today

Pat Marcantonio

● Laugh with comedian and magician Derek Hughes at 7 p.m., at the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Center Auditorium. There's no cost for CSI students with ID, but it costs $15 or, for the general public, $5 with a donation of three canned-food items.

● Tonight is open gym night for high school students at the Boys and Girls Club of the Magic Valley, 999 Frontier Road, Twin Falls. The open gym runs from 8 to 10 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays.

● Pick up the book "Cold Mountain" and join the book talks at the Buhl Public Library, starting at 7 p.m. Tuesday. Other books included in the discussion are "The Book Thief," "The Absolutely True Diary of a Part-Time Indian" and "Harry Potter and the Half-Blood Prince." What a lineup. Information: 543-6500.

Money

Rep. Stephen Hartgen, R-Twin Falls, agreed that pulling more out would have raised concerns in the Legislature about the long-term viability of the reserve account.

"To raid it any more than that would have been politically impossible in the Legislature," Hartgen said. "Even this amount, it's still going to have to undergo some scrutiny but I think it's a lot closer to reality."

During the budget discussion, Otter pointed out that the original $135 million shortfall wasn't from his budget recommendation. Most represents a large decrease in federal stimulus funding.

Otter said only $29 million of the $135 million was general-fund money he has control over.

The decision didn't come without some board member wrangling. Luna's first motion for the $52.8 million died because it failed to be seconded.

Yursa moved for a one-time distribution of $22 million, which would leave two years of reserves in the fund instead of the one year under Luna's proposal. Luna counted with a motion for $42.3 million, which also died for a lack of a second.

Wadsen motioned to wait and seek a detailed analysis of the decision's long-term impact, which failed in a 2-3 vote, with only Jones supporting Wadsen.

Pipeline

already undercuts the Clear Springs marketing strategy," as the company promotes its spring water as coming from snow in the Pioneer Mountains.

"In fact the majority of the water that pours from the springs comes from points east, and much of it has entered the aquifer after being spread on the ground by surface water irrigation on crops treated with fertilizer and pesticides, entering the aquifer as incidental recharge water," Schroeder wrote, adding that it is not the state's role to approve marketing policy. "Clear Springs has built a reputation and perception which is arguably a little askew from scientific reality."

The pipeline plan was the last of several attempts by the districts to get the company its water. In December, a district judge put the final stake in a past idea, ruling that IDWR cannot force a senior water user such as Clear Springs to accept money or fish instead of replacement water.

Schroeder concluded no other viable plans are in the record as of now. But the state must require several things before accepting the pipeline plan, he wrote, including approved water-right transfers for the water that will be used and a detailed maintenance and emergency-response plan.

Lynn Carlquist, chairman of the North Snake Ground Water District, said Wednesday that the districts are "fairly pleased" with how the opinion turned out. But a Clear Springs official said the company still disagrees on the marketing issue and wishes Schroeder had backed up his opinions more. "He doesn't give any factual analysis that we can get our hands around," said Randy MacMillan, vice president for research and environmental affairs.

Both the company and the pumpers are working together on ways to more broadly address the decline of the aquifer, including what is basically the pipeline in reverse — pumping water that has already gone through the fish farm up out of the canyon for farmers to use. MacMillan and Carlquist said the talks have potential.

"We're fairly positive about the meetings that we've had," Carlquist said.

Idaho-Wyo. transmission line presented to Jerome Co.

By John Plestina
Times-News writer

JEROME — The developer of a transmission line proposed to cut an east-to-west swath through Wyoming and Idaho presented an early version of the plan to Jerome County commissioners on Tuesday.

Jade Energy Associates, an affiliate of LS Power of East Brunswick, N.J., an independent developer of transmission lines and power plants, is proposing the Overland Transmission Line (OTL), an overhead, direct-current line with a maximum transfer capacity of 3,000 megawatts. While its exact routing is not determined, it would run about 560 miles from Chugwater, located north of Cheyenne, Wyo., to the Midpoint Substation in Jerome County.

Associate Project

Manager Luke Papez told the commissioners that OTL and the Southwest Intertie Project (SWIP) would share an endpoint at Midpoint Substation located off U.S. Highway 93 in Jerome County near the Lincoln County line. SWIP construction is slated to begin in Nevada this year.

SWIP is a planned 500-mile, 500-kilovolt merchant transmission line project intended to tie NV Energy's northern and southern Nevada transmission systems together for the first time and link NV Energy and Idaho Power's systems. It would run from NV Energy's Harry Allen Substation 20 miles north of Las Vegas through eastern Nevada, with the endpoint in Jerome County. Original plans had SWIP ending at a substation near Burley.

Papez touted potential tax benefits for Jerome and other Idaho counties, likely to include Cassia and Minidoka counties, with a possible routing through portions of Twin Falls County.

The developer is seeking public input and says an open public process is planned. A permitting process estimated to take about three years would also begin this year, with construction starting in 2013 and completion by 2015.

Papez said the Jerome County Commission visit is one of several to public officials in Idaho and Wyoming to introduce the project and answer project questions constituents may have. Next, he said, would be to assemble community working groups for input and to gather information about potential routing.

"The transmission side of the equation is one that is lacking," Papez said.

He explained that southeastern Wyoming has some of the highest potential wind-energy capacity in the nation but the region has limited access to markets.

"They are looking forward to a pathway out for their wind energy," Papez said.

He also said Midpoint Substation could become a hub for future transmission to Oregon and the desert southwest.

Project Engineer Ryan Miller said Jade Energy wants to be a good neighbor by engaging stakeholders. He said the company would consider alternative routing for the line.

"We want to reach out to as many people as we can," Miller said.

about 110 pounds, and an adult female of about 80 pounds, near Starweather Lane north of Hailey. Its unclear whether these are the same cats whose tracks were previously identified.

"It's certainly not outside the realm that one of those could have been the ones, but it would be speculation on our part to say that it was," Garwood said.

The killings were legal, as the cats were properly tagged during cougar hunting season, which runs until the end of March. However, one of the cats may have been killed too close to a residential neighborhood, violating county codes, said Garwood, who is investigating the hunt. Garwood said it's impossible to accurately estimate the number of cougars in Blaine County, but noted that males have individual territories of up to 400 square miles, and that five to seven cougars are killed by hunters each year.

In other Fish and Game news, there has been little elk or wolf activity in the area because the winter has been so mild, Garwood said, although he recently put up signs advising awareness of a moose and her calf in the Lake Creek area.

Residents prepare for Washington St. work

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

Idaho Transportation Department representatives and the contractors remodeling part of Washington Street North in Twin Falls assured locals Wednesday they're pushing for a quick, easy project.

Slated to start Tuesday, phase one of the work will widen the road to five lanes and install a storm drain and an irrigation culvert. It will tear up Washington roughly between Shoup and Dubois avenues until around June 14, assuming there are no delays. Civil Science Inc., a Utah company with an office in Twin Falls, is supervising the project for ITD, with Twin Falls-based Gordon Paving doing the work.

The project comes on the heels of last summer's reconstruction of Blue Lakes Boulevard North, and many questions centered on ways to avoid the business angst and calls to city officials the larger Blue Lakes undertaking provoked.

"With Washington, we shouldn't see so much compared to what went on with Blue Lakes," said Brian Hansen with Gordon Paving. Questions were largely asked by a couple members of the Twin Falls City Council, though a few business owners and residents showed up for the half-hour discussion.

Robbie Hansen, with Gordon Paving, pledged to maintain access for businesses and residents. Some, such as Ben Swensen of Swensen's Markets, won't really be affected by the work, he said.

At least one lane of travel will be maintained in each direction throughout the project.

"We can't just shut you off, and we won't do that," Hansen said.

Councilmen Will Kezele asked what lessons ITD and contractors learned from Blue Lakes. Councilman Lance Clow wondered if ITD could notify GPS systems used by some drivers about the road construction.

Businesses and homes along the route were given flyers Tuesday with information about the project, as were some delivery-truck drivers who happened to be in the area, said Rob Ramsey with Civil Science.

Idaho Power plans T.F. outage

Times-News

Idaho Power customers along Falls Avenue West and in the area around Robert Stuart Middle School will not have power from 5 to 7 a.m. Friday morning, Idaho Power announced Wednesday.

The planned outage is related to the ongoing widening of Falls Avenue, according to information from the electric utility.

Latham Jr. charged with domestic battery again

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

A former owner of the shuttered Latham Motors in Twin Falls was arrested early Wednesday morning on a felony domestic battery charge, less than one year after coming off probation for misdemeanor domestic battery against the same woman.

Robert A. Latham Jr., 50, was arrested shortly after midnight at 3259 Woodridge Drive in Twin Falls County, the same address for his prior domestic battery case on Jan. 20, 2008, according to court records.

In the case filed Wednesday, Latham is additionally accused of interfering with a 911 call, and two counts of destruction of a telecommunication line. His bond was set at $250,000 Wednesday afternoon, which Latham had posted by 6:15 p.m., according to the jail. He could not immediately be reached for comment Wednesday night by the Times-News.

Latham Motors closed a year ago, before its owners, Latham and his father, Robert Latham Sr., were sued by KeyBank for $6.4 million. The pending lawsuit is set for a June pretrial conference.

After sentencing Latham Jr. to a year of unsupervised probation in July 2008 for misdemeanor domestic violence, Twin Falls County Magistrate Judge Thomas Kershaw told Latham "I hope there won't be any more problems in the next year."

According to court records, law enforcement from the county and Twin Falls city went to Latham's home on Wednesday after two incomplete 911 calls for assistance were placed.

There, police found a woman who lives with Latham, with blood on her lips and mouth, ripped clothes, along with new and older bruises on her neck, arms and chest, according to a police report filed in court.

The woman told police in court records that Latham became angry, grabbed her by her shirt, and struck her repeatedly with a closed fist in the mouth and head. The woman allegedly tried to get away by hiding in a bathroom, but told police that Latham kicked in the door. She told police she went to a bedroom and locked the door to call 911, but Latham allegedly kicked in that door also and took the phone from her, according to court records.

The woman allegedly got to the phone again, but Latham disconnected her 911 call. Police say in court records that three doors in question were damaged.

Latham, however, told authorities in court records that the woman tried to swing at him during an argument, during which he grabbed her shirt to keep from getting struck, and she lost her balance and fell to the ground.

"He said that he attempted to hold her up by holding onto her shirt and that it ripped," police wrote in court records.

Authorities were unconvinced, though, by Latham's story, saying "this statement was inconsistent with all the physical evidence at the residence."

Four children were sleeping in the home during the domestic situation, police said in the report. Latham was ordered Wednesday to have no contact with the woman.

Christensen to run for Cassia Co. assessor

By Laurie Welch
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Longtime Cassia County Commissioner Paul Christensen announced plans Wednesday to run for the office of Cassia County assessor.

Christensen, 55, of Burley, has served as county commissioner for 16 years.

Christensen will run as a Republican candidate in the May primary election for the office now held by Martell Holland, who plans to retire.

The assessor position pays $49,976 yearly.

"I enjoy local government and this is an opportunity to serve full-time," Christensen said.

Christensen said many of his duties as a commissioner, as well as sitting on the county's board of equalization, have given him a good overview of the office. The county assessor is charged with responsibility of physically assessing 17,000 parcels of properties every five years. The assessments must come within 10 percent above or below audits made by the state tax commission.

"As an assessor you can't play favorites," Christensen said.

Job duties also include overseeing the licensing and registration of all motor vehicles.

Christensen said he is prepared to help the office transition to the new county digital mapping system. He said one of his priorities if elected will be to integrate other technology into the department as well. Christensen said he has many resources inside and outside the county to draw upon in his new position if he is elected.

"I feel as a commissioner I've had a fair and balanced approach although we've had some tough decisions to make," Christensen said.

Christensen is in the middle of a four-year term as commissioner. If he is elected assessor, the Republican Central Committee will select three commission candidates and Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter will appoint a replacement for the duration of Christensen's term.

Christensen said as a commissioner he has been conservative and worked to set money aside for the county.

"That's the way I operate my business, my household and the way I plan to work as the assessor," Christensen said.

Judge gives T.F. man 34 months for gun possession

BOISE (AP) — A federal judge has sentenced a south-central Idaho man to nearly three years in prison for unlawful possession of a firearm.

The U.S. Attorney's Office in Boise says 33-year-old Clifford Velasquez, of Twin Falls, pleaded guilty to the charge last November and was sentenced late last week.

Authorities say Velasquez was found in possession of a Winchester .22 rifle in April 2009, which was barred under federal law because of his previous aggravated assault conviction in Twin Falls County.

Disaster program enters new phase

By Damon Hunzeker
Times-News writer

Twin Falls has never been attacked by terrorists or flattened by a hurricane, but it doesn't hurt to be prepared.

The Map Your Neighborhood (MYN) program, coordinated by volunteers and Twin Falls County Emergency Services, is intended to provide residents with information about how to mitigate disasters and to supply the government with a contact list from organized neighborhood units.

"Beginning next week, volunteers will be going door to door providing nine strategies to support your neighborhood following a disaster," said Jackie Frey, the county's emergency services coordinator.

The project began about a year and a half ago. So far, Frey said, 5,000 handouts have been distributed, a third of Twin Falls has been mapped, and 160 volunteers have been recruited to work with six Community Emergency Response Teams.

During the first phase, pamphlets will be distributed to 4,900 households in Twin Falls, followed eventually by the rest of the county.

Frey said emergency preparation under MYN encompasses a broad range of contingencies.

"We're mainly focused on severe weather issues or chemical spills — even a gas leak, anything that happens in a neighborhood that causes an issue," she said. "It can be anything."

The pamphlets provide various disaster-related suggestions — such as wearing a helmet in case of falling debris, turning off gas to prevent a fire, turning off water to reduce exposure to pollutants, and developing an inventory of equipment and skills available in the neighborhood. If somebody has tents and chainsaws, write it down. If somebody knows how to plumb, write it down.

The last page is a double-sided sign to hang on your door with the instructions direct, "two bandaids." The sign provides basic, easy-to-understand information. One side reads "OK," and the other side reads "HELP."

Blaine County ponders hillside zoning issues

By Ariel Hansen
Times-News writer

HAILEY — In Blaine County, residents are pretty protective of their hillsides. They don't want houses inching up into their slopes or perched atop their rises, interrupting the horizon.

So the county has a mountain overlay district, designed to keep homes in the valleys. The district's map was set primarily with a geographical information system which has its issues, county officials said, as it sometimes provides an insufficient level of detail or interprets the slope of a road as the slope of a hill.

Landowners of hillside district property want an easier way to correct map errors which might restrict their ability to develop. Currently, they must apply for rezoning, which involves fees and a long public process.

"There is a problem when you walk out to a perfectly flat site, and then looking at a map and seeing it's in the MOD (mountain overlay district)," said John Gaeddert, a former county planning and zoning commissioner, testifying at a public hearing before county commissioners on Tuesday.

"The rules have made the maps a little funky."

The Blaine County Planning and Zoning Commission recently looked at one solution: Within certain tight parameters, the administrative staff at the county could essentially rewrite the maps for a property owner without a public hearing. However, the P&Z rejected that idea, partially on the recommendation of county attorney Tim Graves.

Graves said only county commissioners can approve such a map change under current laws. He suggested commissioners instead tweak the rules that dictate how the maps are made — mandating a greater scale of detail, for example — and change criteria for rezoning.

Commissioner Tom Bowman agreed with that analysis. "If we're going to change a line on a map, we have to go through a public hearing," he said.

County staff and counsel will now review options available to the commissioners to help solve this problem, and are expected to return with them at an upcoming meeting.

Wetlands addition delays Idaho 75 project

Times-News

SHOSHONE — Lincoln County commissioners on Monday discussed an expected one-year delay to the proposed replacement of eight miles of Idaho Highway 75.

The Idaho Transportation Department notified the county of the postponement due to what is believed to be seven-tenths of an acre of additional wetlands that were not included in an environmental assessment done five or six years ago during the replacement's planning process, said Commission Chairman Jerry Nance.

"They will do some more analysis," Nance said.

The project includes replacement of roadway and bridges that cross the Little Wood River and a canal north of Shoshone.

Nance said ITD has acquired the necessary easements from landowners.

In other business, commissioners discussed the progress of the proposed Notch Butte

Wind Park, a 21-megawatt generating station, which would include nine wind turbines on private land about four miles southeast of Dietrich.

The commission also discussed holding a meeting later this month for landowners to discuss a grasshopper spraying program.

Otter to support more cuts as Idaho revenue tanks

By John Miller
Associated Press writer

BOISE — Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter will support deeper cuts to Idaho's 2010 and 2011 budgets than he proposed in January after the state missed its tax revenue collection targets by a combined $25 million over the last two months.

Otter's budget chief, Wayne Hammon, said Wednesday the governor is increasingly convinced a more pessimistic revenue forecast is warranted.

Based on his original forecast, Otter had proposed cutting an additional $40 million from the fiscal year 2010 budget, including $28 million from public schools.

However, lawmakers on a forecasting committee on Jan. 20 decided millions more in cuts would be necessary in order to fulfill the Idaho Constitution's requirement that lawmakers balance spending. Otter now agrees with them.

"The governor believes it's more prudent to budget to the lower number," Hammon said. "Even if we miss it by a little, that little has real consequences."

Last month, the 18-member Economic Outlook and Revenue Assessment Committee recommended setting a 2010 spending package based on just $2.28 billion in tax revenue, $69 million less than the Republican governor's original proposal.

For 2011, the forecasting panel recommended a revenue target of $2.29 billion, about $60 million less than Otter's January recommendation.

Hammon said he doesn't plan on issuing a revised budget proposal to reflect Otter's change of heart, but said the Republican governor's office is working with the Joint Finance Appropriations budget-writing committee members and legislative leaders to establish new spending priorities under a more pessimistic scenario.

Members of the joint budget panel plan to adopt target 2010 and 2011 revenue figures this Friday.

Rep. Maxine Bell, R-Jerome and the panel's co-chair, said its 16 GOP members agree with Otter: The more-conservative forecast of lawmakers makes the most sense.

"We're pretty much united," Bell told The Associated Press. "That's the reality of it. That's what we've chosen to work toward."

Minority Democrats make up only a quarter of the Legislature and have again been relegated to a largely observer role.

Still, they insist policy changes driven by Republicans in recent years have boxed Idaho into making deeper cuts to programs than otherwise would be warranted.

For instance, GOP lawmakers during a 2006 special session voted to eliminate a $260 million property tax levy for public schools, covering that share of school funding instead by hiking Idaho's sales tax rate from 5 to 6 percent.

Idaho woman faced financial woes before Haiti trip

Adoption fiasco follows predictable pattern for 40-year-old businesswoman

By Rebecca Boone
Associated Press writer

BOISE — In the days after the Haiti earthquake, Laura Silsby made a series of calls around the country to mobilize a trip to rescue orphaned children from the disaster.

She enlisted members of her Baptist church and told them she had all the necessary paperwork. She even found a Kentucky couple, Richard and Malinda Pickett, who had been trying to adopt three siblings from Haiti and told them she could get the children out.

The Picketts say they politely declined, figuring the youngsters were safe and would soon be evacuated to their new home.

"My wife told her that under no conditions should she try to move the kids — that would just interfere with our plans. But she called two more times, and the last time she called, on the 25th, she said she was getting on a flight and would like to pick up our kids," Richard Pickett said. "My wife, for the third time, told her no way — stay away from them."

A few days later, Silsby and nine other Americans were charged in Haiti with kidnapping for trying to take 33 children out of the country without proper documentation. The 10 defendants remain in jail in Haiti.

The Haitian and U.S. governments are investigating Silsby and her group, trying to determine why they were rounding up children, many of whom were not orphans. Silsby and her supporters say they just wanted to save youngsters from the chaos, disease and uncertainty of quake-ravaged Haiti. Others, like the Picketts, aren't convinced.

A closer look at Silsby shows that the adoption fiasco followed a certain pattern seen in her life. The 40-year-old businesswoman and mother of three has been known to make big promises and big plans that often give way to questionable behavior and legal action.

Court records show she has a habit of failing to pay employees, creditors and taxes. In the last year alone saw her home go into foreclosure and watched a number of legal proceedings against her and her business wind their way through Idaho's courts.

All of this happened as she became highly passionate about helping kids in the

ATTORNEY: JUDGE TO DECIDE TODAY ON JAILED MISSIONARIES

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — An attorney representing one of 10 U.S. missionaries jailed for trying to take a busload of children out of Haiti says a judge's decision is imminent on whether they will go to trial.

Attorney Gary Lassade tells The Associated Press that he expects Judge Bernard Saint-Vil to issue his recommendation today to the prosecutor in the case.

The prosecutor has the right to appeal if the judge recommends charges be dropped, but the judge has the final say.

Dominican Republic, according to those who know her.

"She had explained that she felt absolutely driven in her heart to open an orphanage in the Dominican Republic," said Nancy Batteen, owner of a children's second-hand clothing store in Boise where Silsby shopped.

Silsby showed her knack for achievement early, earning a high school diploma at 15, according to an old news release from her company. She went on to study business administration and accounting at Washington State University, graduating summa cum laude in 1991.

She took a job with Hewlett Packard in Boise, working for six years in financing and Internet marketing positions.

In 2000, Silsby and a man named James Hammons patented a method for creating and operating a personalized Internet store. She used the method to found a company that would do business under the name Avenue Me. The goal, Silsby told associates, was to create an online personalized shopping experience for those too busy to dig through several stores or Web sites.

She hired Boise multimedia marketing company Wirestone to build her Web site, but soon stopped paying the bills, said Mark Salow, a former Wirestone manager. Wirestone ultimately sued after Silsby fell tens of thousands of dollars behind in paying for the work, Salow said.

"She was always telling us, 'We had this great meeting, and you'll be paid soon,'" Salow said. "There was always some investor that was going to come in and save the day."

Those promises didn't sway a judge, who ruled in Wirestone's favor. The business seized computers and office furniture from Avenue Me to settle the debt in a pennies-on-the-dollar deal.

In 2004, Silsby filed for divorce from her husband, Terry Silsby. The divorce became final in 2007, but the two sides are still fighting in court.

In 2008, she bought a newly built five-bedroom home on a half-acre lot in Meridian — which the bank foreclosed on last December.

At the same time, several employees of her company — now called Personal Shopper after a trademark dispute — were filing claims against Silsby over unpaid wages. One former employee, Robin Oliver, said she was hired for $110,000 a year and sued after Silsby fell five paychecks behind.

Oliver said Silsby kept telling her that new investors had agreed to fund the company, but the cash never showed up. Oliver's attorney said Silsby claimed at various times that potential investors included NBC, a private equity firm and a high-powered public relations expert.

Silsby contended that Oliver drastically cut her own hours and was working ineffectively and had to be fired. Silsby also noted that although she had faced a series of other wage claims, all those cases had been settled. Oliver's lawsuit is set to go to trial Feb. 22.

"She was always telling us, 'We had this great meeting, and you'll be paid soon.'"

State Land Board shortchanges Idaho schoolkids

The state Land Board failed Idahoans on Wednesday. The board voted to give public schools only $22 million of the $52.8 million that Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Luna had requested from the state school endowment funds. That means, in effect, deeper cuts in teacher salaries, the math initiative and transportation.

In short, your kids will be making do with less next year as a result of Wednesday's Land Board's decision.

Luna had staked his political career on finding more money to stave off the deep cuts in education funding pending in the Legislature. Instead, he got less than half a loaf.

That just isn't good enough this year.

Luna, who is a member of the Land Board, didn't get the $52.8 million he sought. Attorney General Lawrence Wasden and Controller Donna Jones voted to give the schools nothing extra from the endowment funds, and Secretary of State Ben Yursa and Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter backed the reduced amount.

So it was a sad day for Idaho's kids.

It's remarkable to us that the state's top elected officials are so unwilling to save Idaho education in extreme circumstances.

The superintendent, on the other hand, emerges as the hero of this episode. Unwilling to shortchange Idaho students, he sought to tap the state endowment fund, which manages state lands for the benefit of public education. He was right doing so.

The money could have helped Idaho's K-12 public education system offset a $135 million loss in the next fiscal year.

We're especially disappointed in Luna's predecessor, Marilyn Howard, who argued Wednesday against the Land Board giving Luna anything from the reserve fund. "If I were on the board today, I'd vote no," she said Wednesday. The endowment, she said, is a "sacred trust." "You've established a course — I think you should stay the course," she told the Land Board. "You have a responsibility to today's schoolchildren, but I think you're meeting that responsibility."

She said the board also has a responsibility to future Idaho schoolchildren. Howard said, "The reality is the Legislature has a responsibility to provide for our system of thorough education," and if the Land Board steps in, she said, "you're removing the Legislature's responsibility to do its job. ... It's their job, and I think they should let 'em do it."

With respect to Howard, the Legislature isn't going to step in this year. That's why Luna took the extraordinary step of trying to tap the endowment funds.

When teachers are laid off in the next year and your school district can't afford to buy textbooks, perhaps you should contact the governor, the attorney general, the secretary of state and the state controller and ask why.

For Luna's part, we appreciate him standing up for Idaho's kids.

Our view:

The Idaho Land Board could have found a way to help public schools more on Wednesday. Instead, it punted on the issue.

What do you think?

We welcome viewpoints from readers on this and other issues.

The White House isn't panicking

During the presidential campaign, Barack Obama and Joe Biden had a Felix and Oscar air about them. Obama was disciplined and professorial while Biden was tactile and approachable. Biden would make an off-color joke, while Obama would put on a contemptuous grimace. Biden would bound friskily onstage to the roar of the crowd. Obama would glide gracefully and even ask Joe to hold his coat.

David Brooks

It was not automatic that the two men would work well together once in office. When advisers from the Obama campaign interviewed Biden as a potential running mate and asked him why he wanted to be vice president, he told them that, in fact, he didn't want the job. He'd do it. But he didn't want it.

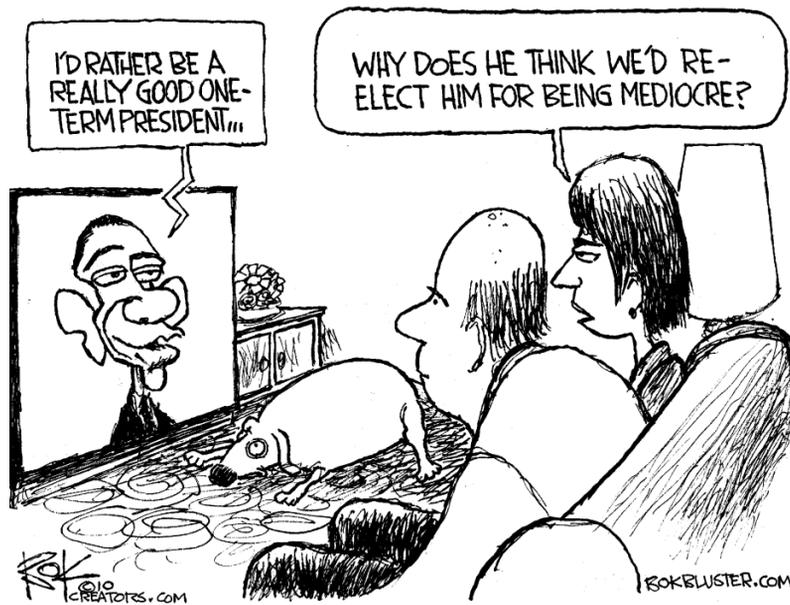

And, indeed, Biden's first few months on the job were not entirely happy. He went off on one of his gaffe sprees, angering White House aides.

It was common to hear Democratic senators say, "Joe is miserable. He's doing this for the country, but he's miserable."

It was odd to interview him then. Normally a verbal gusher, his word rate diminished to a trickle. He paused and hemmed, like a man crossing a minefield.

But in recent months, Obama has found a way to use Biden's skills, while Biden has found ways to be of use.

A big moment came when the subject of Iraq came up at a security meeting. Obama casually asked Biden to take the lead on Iraqi policy. This was a potentially dangerous moment, in which the vice president could be tromping over ground occupied by the secretaries of state and defense. But Biden seems to know every player in Iraq down to the alderman level — and, so far, he seems to have done the job without stepping on too many toes.

Biden was also asked to oversee the stimulus spending, a job that occupies 20 percent of his time. He has spoken to 49 governors and 100 mayors successfully policing the spending splurge and heading off potentially damaging stimulus projects, like a Napa wine train that would have shepherded tipplers from one vineyard to another.

Finally, Biden was asked to come up with a middle-class agenda. This is a surprisingly difficult job, because many of these programs — credits for college affordability and child care — fairly reek of small-bore Clintonism. This is an administration that is staffed by Clintonites but does not want to appear Clintonian in any way.

Biden, for his part, has become the country's leading Obama-ologist. Dick Cheney never spoke at meetings. Biden has his weekly presidential lunches, as Cheney did, but he does speak at meetings, depending on the president's body language.

There are times when the president is leaning back when he seems to relish Biden's interventions. During the Afghan debate, the president clearly used the vice president to push the skeptic's case.

On other occasions, when the president doesn't seem to have made up his mind, or when he is leaning forward, Biden holds back, letting the arguments play.

Inside the administration, in other words, Biden doesn't have the class-clown reputation he has on the late-night comedy shows. White House aides speak of him respectfully, and regularly mention his role when decisions are made.

The surprisingly smooth relationship between the administration's top two officers is part of the broader White House culture. This is a fraught political climate. Liberals are furious. Moderates are running for their lives. Republicans believe, with much evidence, that an unprecedented wave of public rage is breaking across the land, directed at Washington. The uninformed float rumors that Rahm Emanuel is on the outs.

Yet the atmosphere in the White House appears surprisingly tranquil. Emanuel is serving as a lightning rod for the president but remains crisply confident in his role as chief of staff. It's true that several top administration officials did not want to attempt comprehensive health care reform this year. But they are not opening recrimination campaigns. It's no secret that many think the president needs to be more assertive with Congress, yet administration officials still talk about Obama in awestruck tones, even in private.

Some would say the administration is underreacting to the incredible shift in the public mood. Some would say they need more voices from the great unwashed. But no one could accuse them of panicking, or of scrambling about incoherently. In their first winter of discontent, they are offering continuity and comity. Whatever their relations with the country might be, inside they seem unruffled. The bonds of association, from the top down, seem healthy — especially for a bunch of Democrats.

Some clear definitions to save the republic

Time is short and the stakes are high. If we are to save the republic, leave a planet worth living on to our children, then we need some clarity. We need to have some set definitions, not the vagaries we have been operating under. Like are forefathers, we need to acknowledge some self-evident truths:

A corporation is not a person. Greed is not a virtue. Trickle-down economics was really sucked-up economics. Corporate bailouts don't stimulate the economy, they reward greed and incompetence. Inalienable rights come with undeniable responsibilities. CAFOs (livestock concentration camps) are not agriculture, they are industrial ag.

There is a difference between a Republican and a Republican. The first come from a proud tradition of those that stood with the people and against greedy corporations, think Lincoln and Teddy Roosevelt. The Republican is much like its Afghanistan counterpart, the Taliban, a bunch of religious zealots, more interested in power than the well-being of their people and their country.

Nuclear energy is not clean and green. Recreational killing is neither sport nor manly, nor the honorable feeding of one's family. There will be no viable health care system if we don't start taking care of our health.

Foggy notions make navigating the uncharted water we now sail risky business. It is time to clear away the intentional fog of confusion and chart a course based on clear ideas and ideals. Nothing less will get us through the daze.

CSI rodeo team put on an outstanding smoker

On Saturday, Jan. 30, the College of Southern Idaho rodeo team held its annual boxing smoker.

We are writing this to commend them on the outstanding work that was done to make this event possible.

Many do not realize the work that goes into putting an event like this on. There are months and months of hard work, not to mention the countless late nights spent at the Expo Center putting everything together to make this an enjoyable experience for all.

On that day, the crowd was fantastic and the house was packed. Thank you to the coaches, Steve Burney and Brian Tubbs, and the rodeo team for putting on yet another outstanding smoker.

Stop U.N. from taking away our gun rights

We do need health care reform no doubt! What we don't need is all the earmarks that are in the current form. Why can't we just make a bill that will not take away our rights that are hid in this unreadable junk!

We also need to cut back on government spending. A great place to start is to eliminate the federal Fish and Wildlife and give the responsibility to the states. Most or all of the state-run programs are self-funded through hunting, fishing, etc. This would save the taxpayer millions of dollars and follow the true path that government was meant to follow. Let the states do their job. After all, they know best what works in their state.

Also, it is time for all sportsmen, not just hunters to stand up for our rights. Stop the government and the United Nations from taking away our right to bear arms. Don't think it's not happening. It is. Write your congressman; be heard. While we face the tough times ahead due to too much big government spending, we need to stand together as one nation under God and take a stand.

Remember this: A government for the people and by the people. Not the other way around.

Movie makers out to prove world isn't flat

How much does Phil McNally love 3-D? So much that he legally listed his name on his British driver's license, and later on his Social Security card and American license, as "Phil Captain III D McNally."

"Apparently you can't have numbers in your name in the U.K., so I had to do Roman numerals," the DreamWorks global stereoscopic supervisor told me.

Captain 3-D, a 42-year-old Northern Ireland native, is also known as the resident "hurl-o-meter" at DreamWorks, the guy who goes through every frame to adjust the amount of depth, dial the intensity up or down, and fix the right-eye/left-eye camera settings so that moviegoers can enjoy dragons skydiving past them without having to turn their popcorn bags into motion-sickness bags.

"I am certain that it is not good to be in a business in which the result of what you do is to make people hurl," says Jeffrey Katzenberg, the CEO of

Maureen Dowd

DreamWorks Animation.

Because 3-D gels in the brain, the Captain spends his time seeking an equipoise where objects can fly around without making you dizzy — a synchronicity that has a technical name that sounds like a spy thriller: "the zero parallax setting."

As we realized watching James Cameron's "Avatar" explode into the highest-grossing film of all time, 3-D technology has come a long way since it was the butt of jokes on "I Love Lucy" and a gimmick with polarized glasses in the '50s horror classics "House of Wax" and "Creature From the Black Lagoon."

"I've always referred to it as my father's 3-D," Katzenberg says with a grin, "where we used to wear those goofy red-and-blue glasses that you didn't want to actually turn and have somebody that you know, care about, or lust after look at you because you would be deeply humiliated, right?"

Ever since he was "blown away" by seeing "The Polar Express" in an Imax theater, Katzenberg has emerged as one of his industry's biggest 3-D boosters, even when it meant rooting for Cameron's blockbuster for another studio.

He knows that a 3-D revolution would be great for his business by spurring people to desert their home entertainment centers and actually go into theaters. It's rare in this economy, he notes, for people to opt for "the more expensive, higher-end experience first."

Echoing the King of the World, Captain 3-D observes that "the struggle of movies has always been to transport viewers to a virtual world." Directors simply have to get past their denial. "They've spent their whole lives eliminating 3-D to make theatrical 2-D," he said, "and now they've got to go from real-life 3-D into theatrical 3-D."

Katzenberg says that "if you look at the history of film, there have now been three great revolutions. The first was silent to talkies. The second was black-and-white to color, 70 years ago. And this is the third great revolution, a quantum leap. We're at the top of the waterfall with 3-D. And this is going to cascade down into virtually every facet of our lives where we are encountering video imagery or even photography."

The 3-D market is popping. Studios are fighting over 3-D theater space and are well aware that the handful of new 3-D movies made in the last year represented a disproportionate chunk of the box office. Burberry is planning to live-stream a catwalk from London in 3-D. ESPN and Discovery Channel both plan on beaming 3-D into homes, and the porn industry is nuzzling the new technology. Tinto Brass, the 76-year-old Italian director of "Caligula," said he wants to overhaul his original and make the first 3-D porn feature.

Katzenberg envisions a world where you can process so many pixels into space that we'll all be watching 3-D TVs (without glasses in 10 to 20 years) and seeing every big-scale movie — not to mention every poster or painting you walk by on a wall — in 3-D.

Even Sandra Bullock comedies or dramas like "The Godfather"?

"Absolutely," he replied.

But both Katzenberg and the Captain concede that some movies may be too action-packed or intense — yes, they're talking about you, Michael Bay and Martin Scorsese — to be experienced in 3-D because, as McNally says, "carrying that much data into the brain is not an enjoyable situation."

Like his boss, the Captain thinks we are on the cusp of being immersed in a virtual world akin to lucid dreaming or the Star Trek holodeck, "where you start with a blank room and you are transported to a whole world of all the senses."

Just as we had to be dragged into acknowledging that sound and color made movies more realistic, now we must get accustomed to films where, with apologies to a colleague, the world is not flat.

Main Street bankers sullied by Wall Street

Bankers by nature aren't the most jocular bunch.

Nowadays, however, they can have the haggard look of a refugee.

Bankers have taken a beating in their communities, in the media and from the nation's bully pulpit in D.C.

Darryl Harmon, ensconced now for a year in Atlanta, told the Southeastern Bank Management and Directors Conference to make known to all their constituents the difference between community bankers and Wall Street. "There is a difference," he said, between Main Street bankers and those high-flying Wall Street investment types.

In other words, it's Wall Street's fault.

It is something of the same difference Paul Volcker, the former chairman of the Federal Reserve, would like to see made more distinct by law.

The Volcker Plan would

attempt to put the genie back in the bottle by restricting banks from operating hedge funds and making other investments with depositors' money. It would stop them from playing Wall Street's favorite game of gambling with investors' money.

Only a handful of the largest would be affected: Bank America, Goldman Sachs, JP Morgan, Citigroup and Morgan Stanley.

But not Wells Fargo. So far Harmon, the Volcker Plan is a non-issue.

Not so with the Obama's plan to tax those banks that took TARP funding. Harmon said taxing banks isn't the best way to help the economy if you want banks to lend more.

The tax is doubly ironic for Wells Fargo, which was the one bank that had to be threatened by then Treasury Secretary Henry Paulson to take TARP funding. Perhaps executives knew all too well that dealing with Washington is hardly ever what it seems or what the politicians say it is. Payback is never simply paying the bill. The piper must also be compensated.

One of the results of the Financial Panic of '08 was that Wells Fargo snatched Wachovia from the jaws of Citigroup, which had been anointed by the FDIC to take over the Charlotte-based bank. Wachovia shareholders cheered.

As such Wells Fargo now claims a 19 percent market share in metro Atlanta, behind No. 1 SunTrust, with one in three households having a primary banking relationship with the San Francisco-based holding company.

Harmon says it is a myth that bankers aren't making loans, though the latest report from the Federal Reserve would indicate that credit is still tight, as it has been for two years.

Of greater concern might be that "demand from both businesses and households for all major categories of loans weakened further, on net, over the past three months," according to the January survey of senior loan officers.

Harmon said a lot of Wells Fargo's best customers he would like to lend more to are "waiting on the sidelines."

Waiting, as we all are, to see how new taxes and regulations are going to affect their business.

Not to mention the escalating size of government that requires an ever increasing budget that creates a deficit for all time.

Thomas Oliver writes for The Atlanta Journal-Constitution. Readers may write to him at toliver.writeright@gmail.com.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Missionaries in Haiti obviously didn't think

I know Steve McMullen, 56, presently in the custody of the Haitian police. I also believe he is guilty of nothing more than extreme naivety. Even in the United States, it is illegal to transport a minor across any state line unless there is the proper custodial paperwork or the minor is emancipated. Why would the accused think it would be different in another country? Obviously, somebody wasn't thinking.

It should have also been understood that with the magnitude of this disaster, some form of martial law would probably be in place. In the Third World, that means every two-bit government dirt bag down to street gang hustler will exploit the conditions to fatten their own pocket. This is probably the case here.

I wish them all well and hope they all get home soon. But understand, folks, it will only happen after this issue in Haiti has been milked for all it is worth. And then when they do get home, the American system of injustice, orchestrated by the "new priesthood" of America, the lawyers, will get their piece of the action — and milk it for all it's worth.

Web site gives voice to many Sun Valley people

Residents in the Wood River Valley and elsewhere who've never visited www.sunvalleyonline.com — or else haven't been there recently, anyway — will be in for some very nice surprises when they do!

SVO, about two weeks ago, switched operating platforms, and it's now a lot easier to post your own articles, download videos and photos, etc., there.

In addition, SVO is now interacting with Twitter and other media outlets, which came in very handy recently after that fatal avalanche on Baldy; skiers on the mountain at the time were quickly able to warn and give info to other skiers about the unstable area and give regular updates about what was happening on the mountain.

SVO gives a "voice" to a myriad of people here who might not otherwise be heard (but who definitely have something worth listening to!), and that's something we should all be proud and supportive of!

Bus tunnel guards watch as girl is beaten, robbed

By Gene Johnson
Associated Press writer

SEATTLE.— A 15-year-old girl who was badly beaten and robbed in a Seattle bus tunnel as three unarmed security guards looked on told investigators that she thought the men would protect her.

The statements were revealed in court papers filed Wednesday against the teen girl accused of attacking her and the three young men accused of stealing her purse, phone and iPod. The four were all charged with first-degree robbery.

The victim told a King County sheriff's detective that the group followed her from a nearby department store into the bus tunnel at Westlake Station on Jan. 28, and she deliberately stood next to the three guards.

The guards didn't intervene, though. They have standing orders to "observe and report" so they called police but did nothing else as another 15-year-old girl punched and repeatedly kicked the victim in the head.

Government officials as well as executives at Olympic Security Services Inc., which employs the guards, are reviewing that protocol after the guards' response was caught on surveillance video.

"I went to the security and told them that these kids were trying to jump me," the girl said. "I know that I am about to get jumped and I am hanging around the guards to try and get protection. ... I thought the security guards would defend me."

The girl, who is black, also told the detective that the altercation began at a nearby department store, where some in the group made threatening comments that she had "nice things" and that she acts "white."

Two Seattle police officers noticed the escalating situation and kicked the group out of the Macy's, then brought the girl and her friend to another exit, the victim said. She reported that she asked the officers for an escort to the bus tunnel, just below the department store, but the officers refused.

"Had these officers known what was to transpire, they probably would have paid for a cab for this victim to be taken safely to her home, but they didn't know. They broke up a couple of disturbances and provided the victim an opportunity to leave the area via bus," said Sgt. Sean Whitcomb, a Seattle police spokesman.

One of the defendants, Dominique Whitaker, told detectives that earlier in the evening the victim had pepper-sprayed another person in the group.

New Northwest power plan calls for no coal, only wind, gas, efficiency

By William McCall
Associated Press writer

PORTLAND, Ore. — Regional energy planners say improved efficiency, conservation, wind power and gas will help the Pacific Northwest meet electricity demand over the next 20 years without adding an extra lump of coal.

The Northwest Power and Conservation Council unanimously adopted a regional energy plan Wednesday that avoids any new coal-fired plants for Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana through 2030.

Instead, the council says the region can save 5,900 average megawatts of electricity over the next two decades — enough power for about five cities the size of Seattle — by investing in energy-efficient equipment, buildings and products.

"It sets a clear path for the region," said Melinda Eden, one of the Oregon members of the four-state council and chairman of its power committee.

The council revises its 20-year plan every five years to guide the Bonneville Power Administration on managing and developing the energy supply for the region while balancing fish and wildlife conservation programs.

Utilities also use the plan as a reference for deciding how to manage their services and resources while meeting regional goals.

The plan said that 85 percent of the new demand for electricity over the next 20 years can be met through efficiency and conservation, while additional wind power development and natural gas plants can make up the rest.

In addition to reducing greenhouse gas emissions by about 17 million tons per year by 2030, the council estimates that energy efficiency investments outlined in the plan could create as many as 47,000 new jobs in the Northwest.

"Whether it's to reduce carbon dioxide or create more jobs and reduce costs, the greatest source of opportunities is conservation," said Michael Carrier, natural resources policy director for Oregon Gov. Ted Kulongoski.

Tom Karier, a Washington state council member, said that conservation, combined with the existing hydropower system and new wind power, will help the Northwest maintain "one of the cleanest power systems in the country."

The plan was welcomed by a number of environmental and industry groups.

"It's a significant step toward a coal-free region," said Cesia Kearns, an Oregon spokeswoman for the Sierra Club.

Coal provides more than a fifth of the energy in a region dominated by clean hydropower from a system made up of 31 federal dams that produce electricity marketed by Bonneville, based in Portland.

Bernanke: Discount rate may rise 'before long'

Rate increase would be first in more than a year

By Scott Lanman and Craig Torres
Bloomberg News writers

WASHINGTON — The Federal Reserve may raise the key interest rate "before long" as part of the "normalization" of Fed lending, a move that won't signal any change in the outlook for monetary policy, Chairman Ben Bernanke said.

Bernanke repeated the Federal Open Market Committee statement that low rates are warranted "for an extended period" in testimony prepared for the House Financial Services Committee. The Fed may also temporarily replace the federal funds rate as a policy guide with interest it pays on banks' deposits should fed funds become a "less reliable indicator than usual," Bernanke said.

Bernanke, who this month started his second four-year term as Fed chief, previewed what would be the first interest-rate move in more than a year while giving more details on several tools that may be used to tighten credit "at some point." Bernanke and his fellow policy makers are preparing to remove unprecedented monetary stimulus as the economy is forecast to grow at the fastest pace since 2006.

"Before long, we expect to consider a modest increase in the spread between the discount rate and the target federal funds rate," Bernanke said in the testimony for a hearing originally scheduled for Wednesday and postponed because of a snowstorm. A new date hasn't been announced.

The changes "are not expected to lead to tighter financial conditions for households and businesses and should not be interpreted as signaling any change in the outlook for monetary policy, which remains about as it was at the time of the January meeting of the FOMC," Bernanke said.

In December 2008, the Fed cut the discount rate, charged on direct loans to commercial banks, to 0.5 percent as it lowered the separate federal funds rate, which banks use for overnight loans to each other, to a range of zero to 0.25 percent. Both rates have been unchanged since then.

"Although at present the U.S. economy continues to require the support of highly

High fashion at low prices

Liyah Babayan says she is happy to be a vender of local goods and products. This array of lip balm, bath soaps and hand soaps from Soap Excellence is made locally by Patty Button and sold at Ooh La La! in downtown Twin Falls.

Ooh La La! This unique downtown boutique offers consignment clothing as well as jewelry, and crafts made by northwestern and area artists. Shop creator and owner Liyah Babayan, with Matilda 'the store yorkie' and co-worker Tiffany Eager, poses Aug. 19 at their new spot two weeks after the local store's move to Main Avenue in downtown Twin Falls. The store has since moved across the street.

Business model and image key to boutique's success

By Joshua Palmer
Times-News writer

A young entrepreneur who started a fashion consignment boutique shop in Twin Falls nearly four years ago is enjoying strong sales growth despite a dour economy.

Liyah Babayan, owner of Ooh La La! Fashion Boutique in downtown Twin Falls, said sales have increased more than 40 percent in the past two years, as more people flocked to the store, shopping for discount designer clothing and selling some of their own for extra cash. The store specializes in pampering women, both young and old, who want designer clothing and accessories.

The store's clothes and accessories range from $26 shirts and skirts to $500 mink coats and dresses.

"As the economy gradually grew worse, we started seeing more people put higher priced things on consignment," Babayan said. "I think that under better financial circumstances, most people would just let them linger in their closets."

The boutique charges a 60 percent consignment fee for the sale, with the remaining 40 percent going to the seller.

It also sells locally made products such as all-natural soaps made in Jerome and custom made jewelry from Twin Falls.

Everything is carefully selected and displayed with

M.V. Rehab announces new director

By Joshua Palmer
Times-News writer

John Bodden has been hired as the new executive director of Magic Valley Rehabilitation Services, Inc., the non-profit announced Wednesday.

A transition committee appointed by the Board of Directors of Magic Valley Rehabilitation Services, Inc. conducted the search for an executive director after Jeff Crumrine, the current executive director, announced he planned to retire after 37 years as chief executive.

"I just felt like it was time for someone else to have all the fun I was having," Crumrine said.

Bodden has a Bachelor of Science degree in Psychology and a Masters of Science degree in Education, both from the University of Wisconsin, Platteville. He has more than 33 years experience in human services, including four years providing mental health services and 29 years managing rehabilitation services provided through community rehabilitation programs.

Bodden was the director of MVRS's Rehabilitation Division for 19 years.

Bodden

"John's education, work experience and familiarity with MVRS's organizational structure and operating policies and procedures make him very qualified for his new responsibilities," said the non-profit's board of directors in a written statement.

Bodden will assume the position of executive director on July 1.

MVRS is a private non-profit organization that provides training, employment, personal development and psychosocial rehabilitation programs for people with disabilities who reside in south-central Idaho.

Corn surplus estimate reduced

By Jeff Wilson
Bloomberg News writer

CHICAGO — Unsold supplies of corn before next year's harvest will be 2.6 percent smaller than estimated a month ago, as demand for the grain to produce ethanol rises to a record, the government said Wednesday.

The corn surplus on Aug. 31, the end of the marketing year, will be 1.719 billion bushels, down from 1.764 billion forecast in January and up from 1.673 billion a year earlier, the Department of Agriculture said Tuesday in a report. Analysts surveyed by Bloomberg News expected inventories of 1.747 billion bushels, on average.

"Corn used to make ethanol has been underestimated," said Jerry Gidel, a market analyst for North American Risk Management Services in Chicago. "Rising sugar prices are reducing Brazil's excess supplies of ethanol," potentially increasing U.S. exports, Gidel said before the report.

The amount of corn to be used to produce ethanol will be 4.3 billion bushels, up from the January estimate of 4.2 billion. A year earlier, a record 3.677 billion bushels were used for the biofuel. Smaller inventories may raise costs for processors of corn-based ethanol such as Archer Daniels Midland and for meat companies including Smithfield Foods and Tyson Foods, which say corn-based animal feed is their biggest expense.

The USDA's estimate of 13.151 billion bushels for the 2009 crop was unchanged from last month and up 8.8 percent from 12.092 billion bushels in 2008. The government is scheduled to release its final estimate for last year's harvest on March 10 and its first forecast for this year's crop later this month.

Business entertainment deductions fun but complex

Taking a client out for lunch is one of the most basic business activities there is. And it's one that can run a small business owner afoul of the IRS.

There has been a tug of war for years between the government and businesses over entertainment expenses. The agency is on the lookout for companies that take excessive deductions, or that try to bundle together personal and business expenses.

Barbara Weltman, a tax

SMALL TALK
Joyce M. Rosenberg

attorney in Millwood, N.Y., and author of "J.K. Lasser's Small Business Taxes" said this has been one of the most litigated areas in tax law.

What follows is a basic look at the deduction for entertainment expenses. Anyone who wants to claim the deduction should read IRS Publication 463, Travel, Entertainment, Gift and Car Expenses. And it's a good idea to go over these expenses with a tax professional.

WHAT'S ENTERTAINMENT?

Most commonly, people think of business lunches or dinners, or taking clients to the theater, a sporting event or a nightclub. Anyone who has a business and plays golf is also likely to take a client out for a round at a country club. Renting a room and holding a party can constitute a business expense.

But the IRS has rules that can limit the deductions a business owner can take for most forms of entertainment. For example, you can probably deduct the costs of playing golf with your client. But you can't deduct your membership fees at the club.

Reading the rules before

Iraq expels all Blackwater employees, past and present

By Jane Arraf and Warren P. Strobel
The Christian Science Monitor and McClatchy Newspapers

BAGHDAD — Iraq has ordered more than 200 current and former employees of the private security company formerly known as Blackwater, which still plays a role in guarding U.S. diplomats, to leave the country within the next four days.

Interior Minister Jawad al-Bolani told The Associated Press that the order is directed at security contractors who worked for Blackwater in the fall of 2007, when a security detail protecting an American convoy opened fire on a crowded square, killing 17 Iraqi civilians. The company, based in Moyock, N.C., has since changed its name to Xe.

A senior State Department official in Washington said the U.S.

Embassy in Baghdad had been formally notified of the Iraqi Interior Ministry's decision.

"We will discuss this with the Iraqi government," said the official, who requested anonymity because of the issue's sensitivity. "None of the former Blackwater employees now providing aviation services as part of the new contract (for U.S. diplomats' security) were involved in the Nisour Square incident."

The State Department no longer has contracts in Iraq with Xe or its air services arm, Presidential Airways.

A contract with Presidential Airways ended on Jan. 3.

The move follows Prime Minister Nouri al-Malaki's promises to families of the victims that his government would seek justice after a U.S. court on Dec. 31 dismissed manslaughter charges against five former Blackwater security guards. It also follows the kidnapping of an Iraqi-American military contractor in Baghdad, who appeared in a video this week by a radical Iranian-backed group calling for the conviction of Blackwater employees.

Al-Bolani said the Blackwater personnel were notified three days ago of the order, which gave them a week to leave or have their authorization to remain in the country revoked.

Rep. Charlie Wilson, D-Texas, holds a British Enfield rifle in his Capitol Hill office in October 1988.

Former Texas Rep. Charlie Wilson dies

By Jamie Stengle
Associated Press writer

DALLAS — Charlie Wilson, the fun-loving Texas congressman whose backroom dealmaking funneled millions of dollars in weapons to Afghanistan, allowing the country's underdog mujahedeen rebels to beat back the mighty Soviet Red Army, died Wednesday. He was 76.

Wilson died at Memorial Medical Center-Lufkin after having difficulty breathing after attending a meeting in the eastern Texas town where he lived, said hospital spokeswoman Yana Ogletree. Wilson was pronounced dead on arrival, and the preliminary cause of death was cardiopulmonary arrest, she said.

Wilson represented Texas' 2nd Congressional District in the U.S. House from 1973 to 1996 and was known in Washington as "Good Time Charlie" for his reputation as a hard-drinking womanizer.

He once called former congresswoman Pat Schroeder "Babycakes," and tried to take a beauty queen with him on a government trip to Afghanistan.

Wilson, a Democrat, was considered both a progressive and a defense hawk. While his efforts to arm the mujahedeen in the 1980s were a success — spurring a victory that helped speed the downfall of the Soviet Union — he was unable to keep the money flowing after the Soviets left. Afghanistan plunged into chaos, creating an opening eventually filled by the Taliban, which harbored al-Qaida terrorists.

After the Sept. 11 attacks — carried out by al-Qaida terrorists trained in Afghanistan — the U.S. ended up invading the country it had once helped liberate.

"People like me didn't fulfill our responsibilities once the war was over," Wilson said in a September 2001 interview with The Associated Press. "We allowed this vacuum to occur in Afghanistan and Pakistan, which enraged a lot of people. That was as much my fault as it was a lot of others."

His efforts to help the Afghan rebels — as well as his partying ways — were portrayed in the movie and book "Charlie Wilson's War." In an interview with The Associated Press after the book was published in 2003, he said he wasn't worried about details of his wild side being portrayed.

"I would remind you that I was not married at the time. I'm in a different place than I was in at the time and I don't apologize about that," Wilson said.

U.N. atomic agency: Iran's enrichment program modest

By George Jahn
Associated Press writer

VIENNA — Iran expects to produce its first batch of higher enriched uranium in a few days but its initial effort is modest, using only a small amount of feedstock and a fraction of its capacities, according to a confidential document shared Wednesday with AP.

But the document also indicated that Iran was keeping silent on whether or not it would ramp up production, which would bring it closer to the ability to produce the fissile core of nuclear weapons.

The internal International Atomic Energy Agency document was significant in being the first glimpse at Iran's plan to enrich uranium to 20 percent that did not rely on statements from Iranian officials.

Iran says it wants to enrich only up to that grade — substantially below the 90 percent level used in the fissile core of nuclear warheads — as a part of a plan to fuel its research reactor that provides medical isotopes to hundreds of thousands of Iranians undergoing cancer treatment.

But the West says Tehran is not capable of turning the material into the fuel rods needed by the reactor. Instead it fears that Iran wants to enrich the uranium to make nuclear weapons.

Iran denies such aspirations. But its move is viewed with concern internationally because it would create material that could then be processed into weapons-grade uranium more quickly and with less effort than Iran's present stockpile of 3.5 percent enriched uranium.

On Wednesday, Iranian

Vice President Ali Akhbar Salehi said the process of higher enrichment was going smoothly, a day after Iranian officials announced the start of the operation, but gave no details. The restricted IAEA document, however, indicated that, for now at least, they were modest in scale.

Report says hundreds forced into labor and sex in Ohio

By Matt Leingang
Associated Press writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio — About 1,000 American-born children are forced into the sex trade in Ohio every year and about 800 immigrants are sexually exploited and pushed into sweatshop-type jobs, a new report on human trafficking in the state said Wednesday.

Ohio's weak laws on human trafficking, its growing demand for cheap labor and its proximity to the Canadian border are key contributors to the illegal activity, according to a report by the Trafficking in Persons Study Commission.

"Ohio is not only a destination place for foreign-born trafficking victims, but it's also a recruitment place," said Celia Williamson, an associate professor at the University of Toledo who led the research.

Formed last year by Ohio

Attorney General Richard Cordray, the commission also found that hundreds more in the state are at risk of being forced into sex trafficking or to work against their will in fields, restaurants, sweatshops or construction.

Nationwide, between 45,000 and 50,000 people are trafficked into the United States, according to a 2001 report by the U.S. State Department. But Williamson noted that the problem is hard to quantify because of the underground nature of human trafficking, and studies often rely on estimates. Even the Ohio study, which analyzed law enforcement and government databases, is limited, she said.

Cordray said the report establishes the scope of the problem in Ohio as authorities discuss ways to combat it.

From 1990 to 2000, Ohio's foreign-born population increased 30 percent, and the state has a growing pool of legal and illegal immigrants who draw victims or hide victims, Williamson said. These networks are highly organized, with brothels fronting as legitimate businesses.

Also, Toronto's airport is an arrival destination for international victims who are trafficked in Canada and transported to other cities, helping make Toledo, about 55 miles southwest of Windsor, Ontario, rank fourth in the U.S. in terms of arrests, investigations and rescue of domestic child-sex victims, the report said.

Only Miami, Portland, Ore., and Las Vegas had more.

A federal investigation into a child prostitution ring in Harrisburg, Pa., exposed Toledo as a center for the trade in 2005. Nine local girls were sold as sex slaves as part of the ring, and at least 12 of the 31 people charged had ties to Toledo.

Scientists uncover genetic link to stuttering

Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Government researchers have discovered the first genes linked to stuttering — a complex of three mutated genes that may be responsible for one in every 11 stuttering cases, especially in people of Asian descent.

Studies of stuttering in both families and twins had long suggested that stuttering has a significant genetic component. But until now, scientists had not been able to identify specific genes that might cause the disorder.

The finding is important, experts said, because it shows that stuttering, which affects as many as 1 percent of all adults worldwide, is biological in origin and not the result of poor parenting, emotional distress or other nebulous factors that many physicians have cited as causes.

"We hear every day from parents worried that they have caused their child's stuttering," Jane Fraser, president of the Stuttering Foundation said in a statement. "Parents don't cause stuttering, and this research could lift the burden of guilt from their shoulders."

Surprisingly, the newly identified genes play a role in clearing metabolic wastes out of brain cells, and when a person has two mutated copies of them, they cause a lethal disease.

Enough already: Snow breaks mid-Atlantic records

By Nafesa Syeed Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Worst winter ever? The second blizzard in less than a week buried the most populous stretch of the East Coast under nearly a foot of snow Wednesday, breaking records for the snowiest winter and demoralizing millions of people still trying to dig out from the previous storm.

Conditions in the nation's capital were so bad that even plows were advised to get off the roads, and forecasters were eyeing a third storm that could be brewing for next week.

For many families, the first storm was a fun weekend diversion. People even went skiing past Washington's monuments. But Wednesday's blizzard quickly became a serious safety concern. The Pennsylvania governor shut down some highways and warned that people who drove were risking their lives.

'I've seen enough,' said Bill Daly, 57, as gusts of wind and snow lashed his face in Arlington, Va., where streets were nearly empty just a few days after people had been playing in the snow.

'It's scary and beautiful at the same time. I wanted to shovel but thought if I had a heart attack it could be a while before anybody found me in this kind of weather.'

Old-timers talk about a storm that blew through Washington in 1922, collapsing the roof on the Knickerbocker theater and killing more than 90 people. Their great-great-grandchildren will be able to describe the back-to-back blizzards of 2010, which were not nearly as deadly but set records for the snowiest winters ever in Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia.

Up to 16 inches fell in parts of western Maryland. Reagan National Airport outside Washington had nearly 10 inches by 2 p.m., and Baltimore got nearly a foot. That was on top of totals up to 3 feet in some places from the weekend storm.

'I have never in my lifetime seen or heard anything quite like this,' said D.C. Fire Chief Dennis L. Rubin, who was born and raised in the District.

The previous records for snowiest winters were 62.5 inches in Baltimore in 1995-96; 54.4 inches in Washington in 1898-99; and 65.5 inches in Philadelphia in 1995-96.

On Wednesday, Baltimore had 72.3 inches so far this winter, the Washington area had 54.9 inches and Philadelphia had 70.3 inches.

Heavy snow also fell in New York and New Jersey. Airlines canceled hundreds of flights, and New York City's 1.1 million schoolchildren enjoyed only their third snow day in six years. The Washington area's two airports had no flights coming or going Wednesday.

Icicles hang from the front porch of a home in Bethesda, Md., outside of Washington, Wednesday, as another snow storm hit the Washington area.

SHIFT IN SEASONS

Silver Creek meanders through the scenic landscape, which by October is painted in tan, yellow, orange and red. It is covered in snow by mid-January.

Photos by MIKE COTHERN/For the Times-News

An angler casts his line in Silver Creek, a popular place for fly fishermen to test their skills.

Silver Creek – a study in contrast

By Mike Cothorn
Times-News correspondent

The shift in seasons, often unnoticed from one day to the next, is often quite striking when one point in the cycle is contrasted with another.

Favored by a rich mix of vegetation, wildlife and water, the changing landscape at the Silver Creek Preserve is no exception.

Boundless energy and optimism define late June. Thanks to an abundant rainfall, a lush grassy carpet sweeps down the foothills and across the flatlands. Vibrant leaves hanging in bunches from woody plants add to the green hue, which is offset only by a cloudless sky reflecting off the stream's glassy water.

Most wildlife lies hidden by all the growth, but red- and yellow-winged blackbirds seem to seek attention via sight or song. Swallows ceaselessly work the air space near the creek, feeding off an abundance of insects that thrive in the unique ecosystem. Fly fishers also utilize the latest hatch, using imitations in an attempt to entice well-educated trout.

By late October the color green is hard to recall; the landscape is now painted in tan, yellow, orange and red.

An elk bugle pierces the dawn's quiet near a large aspen grove, but a search reveals only fresh hoof prints that lead across a Silver Creek tributary. A half-dozen deer cavort in an open field, however, including several fawns no longer concerned about lying low.

As the rising sun warms the air and melts away the snow, the landscape is now painted in tan, yellow, orange and red. See CONTRAST, Outdoors 2

VISITING THE PRESERVE

Besides fly fishing, visitors can hike a self-guided nature trail and explore other paths, search for up to 150 species of birds, photograph, canoe, and even hunt ducks (several restrictions apply) at the Silver Creek Preserve.

To find the visitor center, drive east from the Highway 20/75 intersection on Highway 20 for 7.1 miles. At the Kilpatrick Bridge Road turn right, cross the bridge, and follow the dirt road. For more information: Dayna Gross at 788-7910.

Fishing in February

Area country club hosts fly-fishing derby

BUHL — February is typically one of the coldest months of the year, but the Snake River-fed pond and streams at Clear Lake Country Club never freeze.

The waterways stay between 55 and 60 degrees, providing perfect conditions for fly fishing.

On Saturday anglers have a chance to cast their lines into the waters at the country club for a fly-fishing derby.

For $25 you'll have the chance to reel in feisty, nice sized trout (catch and release) and win prizes.

"We've had a lot of interest in the derby," said Club Assistant Golf Pro Al Rohweder. "It's open to non-members and members alike and we've had calls from people in Paul to Boise, Jerome to Ketchum and even Ogden, Utah."

Anglers can bring waders, cast from the shore or bring out their kick-boats, but motorized boats and floaters are not allowed.

The country club was a destination fishing hole many years ago, but trout numbers have diminished mainly due to pelicans and predators.

Small trout were easy prey so the club has restocked the waters with fish from neighboring Clear Springs trout farm, weighing no less than 3 pounds.

"Bigger fish strike harder, they play harder and jump," said board member Don Campbell. "Bigger fish are a kick to catch."

Campbell, in charge of fish and wildlife for the club, said the derby will showcase the club's features for sportsmen. Over the past couple of years the club has stocked its waters with more than 10,000 pounds of trout.

For the derby, another 3,000 pounds — or about 800 more trout have been added to the mix.

"We're trying to generate fishing opportunities at Clear Lake again. Although we've had some problems in the past the fishing is excellent once again," Campbell said.

Participants won't be taking any trout home but they may walk away with one of many prizes, including a handcrafted fly rod, reels, kick-boat, free fishing and golf at the club and many other awards donated by area sporting goods shops.

"Some of the fish will be tagged with numbers. Those numbers coincide with prizes," said event volunteer Phil Smith. "If none of the tagged fish are caught then we'll just conduct a drawing for the prizes."

The odds of winning a prize are better than going to Jackpot, and fishing is a lot more fun, Smith said.

Manage your camera on hikes with hands-free harness

Managing a large camera on a hike can be a pain. To be sure, big SLR cameras with long lenses are such a hassle that I often opt to leave them behind when heading outdoors.

The KEYHOLE Hands-Free

Camera Harness, a $30 item made by Backcountry Solutions LLC (www.backcountryolutions.com), offers a remedy. The system creates a simple attachment point that allows a hiker to prop a camera facing down on their chest.

The product, made for hiking, snowshoeing and careful biking, includes a nylon webbing harness and a "keyhole" plate. To set it up, weave the harness' plastic buckles into your backpack shoulder straps. Then screw the small knob into your camera's tripod mount.

THE GEAR JUNKIE Stephen Regenold

That knob fits in a slot on the harness plate, positioning your SLR hanging free and pointing down.

In my test, a camera sat securely on my chest ready for quick use on a hike. When the moment struck, my camera was easily removed and righted to eye level for taking a shot.

As opposed to slinging a camera strap over my shoulder — as I usually do — the KEYHOLE product made my camera more manageable. Clipping the harness to your backpack straps is a small hassle. But once in place, the setup is solid.

A bonus: Because it's connected to your backpack, the KEYHOLE can take some camera weight off your neck and distribute it to your shoulders.

The one issue I had was with a bigger lens. When mounted on the harness, the large lens made my camera swing sideways so that the lens would not point straight down. The solution was in shortening the camera neck strap, which is left in place as you hike, to keep the camera body from rotating.

Backcountry Solutions touts accessibility, camera protection, comfort and simplicity with its KEYHOLE design. For hikers facing the common what-to-do-with-my-camera problem, the company's low-cost product is worth investigation.

For some outdoor lovers, vacation is work

By Scott Richardson
The (Bloomington) Pantagraph

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. — Barry Brenneman has a different idea about how to spend a vacation.

He works outdoors for free.

Brenneman, 60, leads a volunteer work crew at Isle Royale National Park in Lake Superior off the coast of Michigan.

They rise early from sleeping bags, eat breakfast cooked over camp stoves and trek through the forest with loppers and pulaskis in hand to clear brush from the island's trails. Brenneman has spent about 10 days a year since 2000 doing the chore for the U.S. Park Service as part of a volunteer project sponsored by the Sierra Club. He's led the crew for five years.

Why work on vacation? What happened to sightseeing or just loafing?

"It's so different from my day job," said Brenneman, whose day job is at State Farm Insurance Cos. "Even though it's work, it's relaxing, and you get more immediate satisfaction. You work away from the camp site and walk home over trails you've cleaned and you say, 'Oh, this is nice!'"

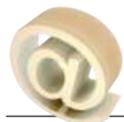

Brenneman's connection with natural areas began as a boy growing up on a farm near Minier.

"I spent a lot of time wandering along creeks," he recalled. "I love to be outdoors. Every time you walk in the woods you see something, a track, a flower. It's so relaxing. It's peaceful. It's at your own pace."

He started working in conservation after joining the ParkLands Foundation a few years ago. The non-profit organization based in McLean County sponsors routine workdays when volunteers restore several parcels along the Mackinaw River to the way they were before European settlers altered the landscape for agriculture. Brenneman is secretary and a past president of the group.

This photo made in August 2007 by Barry Brenneman shows the Isle Royale National Park, a more than 132,000-acre wilderness on Lake Superior off the coast of Michigan. Brenneman has spent about 10 days a year since 2000 working on his vacation for the U.S. Park Service as part of a volunteer project sponsored by the Sierra Club. He's led the crew for five years.

"ParkLands' goal is so important. There is so little of it (nature as it once was.) People have limited opportunities to take a walk in the woods. That's the main thing, the scarcity," he said.

Brenneman first heard of Isle Royale when he read an article in high school about wolves and moose that live on the rocky island. The story recounted the detail that scientists thought wolves living there descended from animals that crossed the lake on ice from the mainland during the winter of 1948-1949. The date stuck in his mind because he was born early in 1949.

Isle Royale National Park encompasses more than 132,000 acres, or 850 square miles on the main island and 400 smaller ones. Though Isle Royale has fewer visitors a year than Yellowstone National Park has in a day, the National Park Service says the island's per-acre backcountry use is the highest of all the national parks in the United States.

While the island is huge, the park staff is small, so there are ample opportunities for volunteers to help.

The 2009 group ranged from a 35-year-old man from Portland, Maine, to a 73-year-old man from Vancouver B.C., Canada. Half typically hail from the Midwest. The gender split is usually 50/50. This year's crew included six women and four men.

After a six-hour boat ride, Brenneman leads the volunteers on a hike to a camp site. Volunteers bring their own camping gear and pay about $675 for food. A cook is provided.

"It's pretty rustic," he said.

They focus mainly on clearing brush for the next several days. No power tools are allowed. Tourists don't travel that far only to have a peaceful vacation interrupted by the buzz of a chainsaw.

Quantifying the solar system's terra incognita

There aren't many unexplored places left on Earth. The few remaining frontiers are inaccessible realms like caves, ocean depths or areas where the greatest barriers to getting there are political, not technological. To environments too inhospitable for us, we send our robotic emissaries.

The only human footprints not on our home planet lie, of course, on the moon. Robotic landers have only reached five worlds (the moon, Venus, Mars, the asteroid Eros and Saturn's largest moon, Titan), and rovers have only crawled along on two (the moon and Mars).

Much of the solar system's unexplored real estate lies on the rocky planets nearest the Sun, with the remainder scattered about on the planetary moons, the so-called dwarf planets (asteroids large enough to be spherical), and the asteroids. The giant planets Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus and Neptune lack a solid surface, so it's an oxymoron to speak of "boots (or wheels) on the ground" there.

Earth's dry land comprises about 57.5 million square miles. Because Venus, Earth's near-twin in size, lacks oceans, it has three times as much dry land. But Venus's volcanic plains will likely be among the last to be explored due to the planet's crushing atmosphere and hellish temperatures. Mars, a frozen desert world half as wide as earth, has almost exactly as much dry land as earth does.

Mercury's scorched surface encompasses an area a

Upcoming outdoor events in south-central Idaho

Learn how to use your new telescope

Haven't figured out how to work your new telescope yet? Enter the Magic Valley Astronomical Society.

The annual "So, I Got A New Telescope For Christmas. Now What?" event will be 7 p.m. Saturday at the Herrett Center's Rick Allen Community Room. Society members will be on hand to assist with learning how to operate telescopes of all kinds. Owners are encouraged to bring their telescopes and instruction manuals.

The event is free and open to everyone. Membership in the MVAS also will be discussed.

Get more with Nordic ski lessons

Take your Nordic skiing to the next level with ski lessons, which began Monday at the BCRD Quigley Nordic Winter Park, located just minutes from downtown Hailey.

Learn to skate ski or improve your skills or join the VAMPS and BCRD coaches in a women's-only skate or classic group.

Classes are offered Mondays, Wednesdays and Sundays and private lessons are available for classic or skate technique. A professional lesson can make all the difference to learn the skills you need to be an efficient skier. You'll be taught by BCRD's top-notch instructors.

For more information: Janelle at 788-9142. To download a registration form: www.bcrd.org.

Annual trip auction coming up

The Idaho Fish and Wildlife Foundation's annual On-Line Trip Auction begins 9 a.m. Feb. 19. The event offers trips and opportunities to get outside and learn more about Idaho's fish, birds and wildlife.

Full trip descriptions and step-by-step instructions for bidding are available at www.ifwfauktion.cmarket.com.

This year's auction benefits Idaho's "Watchable Wildlife" programs, designed to support activities in which people enjoy the state's wildlife. Educational and recreational activities. Bird watching, outdoor photography and wildflower walks.

The auction closes at 9 p.m. Feb. 28.

MV Fly Fishers schedule banquet

The Magic Valley Fly Fishers will host its 41st annual banquet and membership drive starting at 5 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 20 at the Turf Club, 734 Falls Ave., Twin Falls.

The banquet will feature a no-host bar and catered dinner. There will be a number of raffles, prize drawings and silent auctions throughout the night. Proceeds help support Trout in the Classroom, the College of Southern Idaho's Fisheries Program Scholarship and restoration projects.

Frank Smethurst, host of Trout Unlimited's "On the Rise" television show, will be the keynote speaker. Smethurst also will conduct a special fly-tying seminar from 9 a.m.-noon the same day at CSI's Desert Building, Room No. 119. The seminar is free and open to the public.

Contrast

frost, insects and anglers emerge from their hiding spots, but now in far fewer numbers.

Mallards congregating on the stream noisily denounce the encroaching humans and the sky soon becomes filled with wings.

A blanket of snow covers the entire countryside by mid-January. For the remaining residents at Silver Creek, along with outsiders who fly in for the winter, it's the season for conserving energy and enduring. Tracks in the snow provide evidence of those survivors such as muskrats, mice, an assortment of small birds, and a coyote. A conglomeration of ducks represented by several species float quietly on the water, sharing space with a pair of geese and a half-dozen swans.

The preserve offers stillness, solitude, and a chance to ponder what appears to be a slight pause in the seasonal cycle. While the aspens and other woody plants now stand exposed and seemingly static, they're only dormant; the energy within continues to flow, albeit slowly. The spring-fed creeks remain as the most obvious constant — as long as the Big Wood River to the north continues to partially sink into the ground, water will rise to the surface here and meander through the landscape.

Silver Creek has also been defined by change over the long term. The area's rich biodiversity undoubtedly attracted Native Americans long ago. By the late 1800s the first ranches appeared, utilizing the land's productive forage. Recreational use at the creek increased throughout the 20th century, made famous by high-profile sportsmen such as Ernest Hemingway and those drawn to its world-renowned fishery.

In 1975, the Nature Conservancy purchased the 479-acre Sun Valley Ranch and the Silver Creek Preserve was effectively born. The acquisition was funded by private donors and instigated by concerned people such as Hemingway's son, Jack, an avid fly fisherman and later Idaho Fish and Game Commission chairman.

The preserve's current manager, Dayna Gross, refers to the purchase as the first act in a three-phase effort to protect the valuable community resource. The Conservancy now owns nearly 900 acres and acquired conservation easements during the next step, beginning in 1983, on around 10,000 nearby acres. Essentially blocking much further development on the landscape, these permanent easements were first donated by landowners but now come with a price tag. Presently only half the money has been raised, for example, to fund the most recent easement that protects more than 300 critical acres bordering the preserve on its southern boundary.

With outright purchases and the increasing individualized and complicated easements becoming more cost-prohibitive, the Nature Conservancy is presently concentrating on its third phase. This effort includes activities like stream restoration work that is achieved by assisting to fence cattle off creeks and planting native vegetation.

Gross says that while these high-desert spring creek ecosystems are diverse and rich, they don't repair themselves very quickly. Work over the last two decades, however, has resulted in many observable benefits.

The Nature Conservancy anticipates that future endeavors on the Silver Creek Preserve and beyond will continue with the same vision that originally fostered landowner cooperation, monetary donations, and volunteerism. And except for its dramatic seasonal cycle, the unique community resource may no longer be marked by change, but rather be preserved in its present state for the enjoyment of future generations.

Lake trout lure anglers to wilderness ice

By Sam Cook
Duluth News Tribune

ON KNIFE LAKE NEAR ELY, Minn. — The raven called gloop, gloop. He came flying over the island on Knife Lake and looked down upon the three of us.

Nobody knows for sure what a particular raven call means, but this raven had to be optimistic. Already, a couple of lake trout were lying on the ice near our fishing holes. Each of them was in the 3-pound range, one by the hole of Al Schroeter, the other alongside Kelly Murphy's. Both anglers are from Ely, and they had driven two teams of Murphy's Alaskan huskies 12 miles on this January morning to get here.

They were fishing one of their favorite spots on Knife. The dogs were staked out on the ice along shore, resting in the balmy 30-degree air, sleeping until it was time for the late-afternoon run home.

We were giving the trout plenty of options, all of which involved dead ciscoes. Murphy, 54, jigged a Smoothie jigging spoon, silver and blue, and Schroeter, 48, was using a Trout Teaser Jr., an airplane jig that resembled a silver Stealth bomber. Schroeter tipped his with a small piece of cisco, and Murphy was using all but the head of a cisco on his Smoothie. Murphy had harvested a winter's supply of ciscoes from Basswood Lake last November.

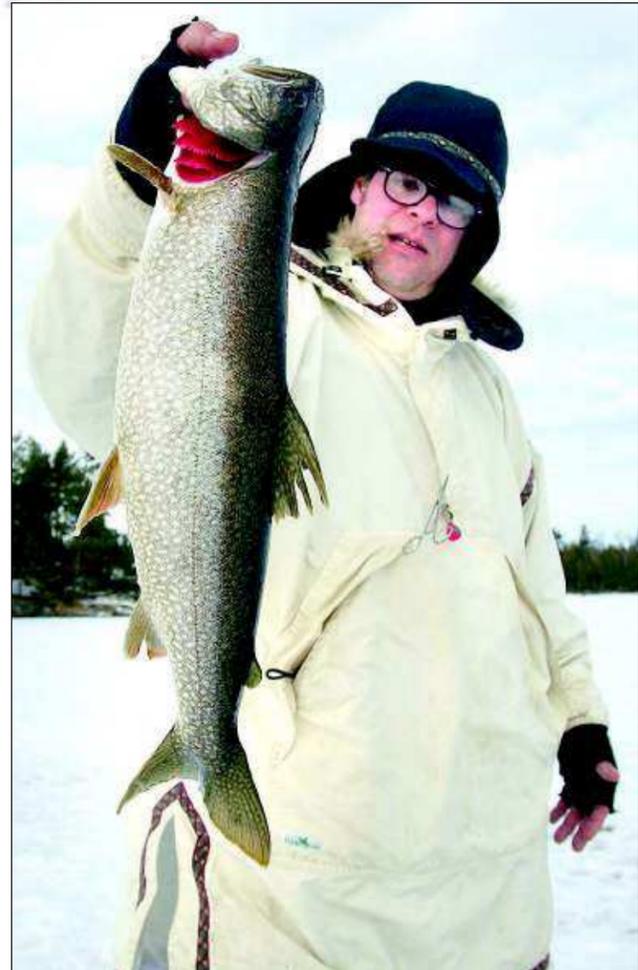

Our second lines were all tip-ups, each dangling a whole cisco somewhere near the bottom in about 40 feet of water.

We were a day ahead of a forecast snowstorm, and the barometer was dropping.

"I think fish are like people," Murphy said as we jigged. "Before a storm, they all go to the grocery store and stock up. I'm hoping they come to my grocery store and eat my Basswood ciscoes."

In a few minutes, he was cackling a fiendish cackle, and his stiff ice-fishing rod was wearing a nice bend. Schroeter and I went running to his hole, as ice anglers always do, just to watch Murphy's fish come up. This was another laker from the 3-pound mold.

Murphy leaned back and hauled it flipping and twisting into daylight it had never seen before. It was darker than Murphy's first lake trout, almost black between its creamy spots, and this one had a blush of orange on its fins. Handsome.

Another raven flew over, gargling a guttural bra-awk, bra-awk. None of us knew what that meant, either.

What we knew was that it was excellent to be the only ones in sight on Knife Lake, which stretches for seven miles along the Minnesota-Ontario border. No motors are permitted on the Minnesota side of the lake, which is in the Boundary Waters Canoe Area Wilderness. The north side is in Ontario's Quetico Provincial Park, also a non-motorized area.

You can find lake trout in some drive-to lakes in the Ely area, but the fishing is especially dependable on wilderness lakes, where fishing pressure is light. It's well worth the two-hour dogsled ride to Knife, where we hand-augered holes through 18 inches of ice and fished without shelters.

Lots of history

Even when the lake trout are biting, the fishing is just one more pleasant aspect of being on Knife Lake. It is good to study the Norway pines on the island where the late Dorothy Molter once sold her root beer. It is good to think about what it must have been like to live here year-around, with prospector Benny Ambrose your nearest neighbor up on Ottertrack.

It is good to put your trust in Murphy's huskies — Juanita and Boro and Bone and all the rest — whose entire souls are bound up in pulling sleds. It is good listening to the stories that Schroeter and Murphy tell about other days, other lake trout and other sled dogs.

One senses that Murphy and Schroeter live a very good life here, close to the land. They know how to read overflow on the ice and when to harvest ciscoes in the fall. They know it's best to replace the treble hooks that come on trout lures with single hooks.

A raven called gloop, gloop. The call sounded like the resonant dripping of water.

"One time, I had a raven follow me all the way across Ensign Lake," Murphy said. "Right at eye-level. He was flying into a strong wind."

Nobody knew what that meant, either. But it's been reported that ravens will follow a pack of wolves, knowing that if a kill is made, they will eat when the wolves are finished. It is not far-fetched to think that Knife Lake's ravens have come to associate dogsleds with lake trout carcasses.

Trout keep coming

We hauled up another lake trout from a wildly spinning tip-up line. Gleaming. Powerful. Lovely. Then Schroeter hooked one on his Trout Teaser, and Murphy simultaneously coaxed another from a tip-up line. That made six, a three-person limit, all of them on one side of 3 pounds or the other. Enough.

At 3 p.m., Murphy and Schroeter hitched dogs. The huskies raised a din along the shoreline, mad to run. The mushers pulled their snow hooks from the ice, freeing the teams. All barking ceased, replaced by soft panting.

"Haw, haw," Murphy growled.

Boro and Juanita understood the command. They veered left, hauling the other eight dogs with them. They intersected the well-packed trail on which we had come in.

"Trail!" Murphy shouted. The dogs were happy to oblige. They knew the trail would take them home to a hot meal, a straw-filled bunk and rest.

Race to the Sky sled dog race begins Friday

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP) — The annual 350-mile Race to the Sky sled dog competition in west-central Montana is set to begin Friday — and this year, organizers have made some changes to the 25-year-old event.

Race spokeswoman Pam Beckstrom says it was high time to add a junior competition in which 13- to 18-year-olds will race about 100 miles from Lincoln to the Seeley Lake Community Center. That event begins Sunday.

The addition of a junior race is just one change as the Race to the Sky celebrates its silver anniversary. This year, each musher will carry a GPS locator, and fans will be able to track the progress in real time at the race's Web site.

17-year-old Utahn conquers seven summits

By Brett Prettyman
The Salt Lake Tribune

JOHNNY AND HIS SUMMITS

SALT LAKE CITY — Johnny Collinson set out a year ago to conquer the highest points on each continent, but along the way the 17-year-old discovered the peaks were not nearly as important as the cultures he encountered and the people who helped him get to the top.

Collinson, who lives at Snowbird in Little Cottonwood Canyon, became the youngest climber to summit the top of each continent last week after stepping on the top of Antarctica's 16,067-foot Vinson Massif.

"Physically, none of them were that demanding," said the teenager. "I learned so much about the cultures of the different places I went.

It was a great education and was really eye opening to see all those places in the world and to take a look at how people use their environment and look at how we treat our environment."

Collinson arrived in Salt Lake City late Tuesday morning and he heads to Washington state to compete in a ski competition Thursday.

Jim and Deb Collinson, who largely funded the trip around the world, haven't seen much of their only son in the past year, but what they have seen has pleased them.

"He was being a typical teenager before the idea to try and make the Seven Summits came along. You know, not wanting to go on family vacations and not really focused on anything," said Jim Collinson. "He sure has changed. He became a man in the last year."

Realizing they weren't going to be able to tag along with their son, the Collinsons ensured he was in good hands.

Collinson made the five middle summits, including Everest, with Damian Benegas and the first and last with his Damian's twin brother Willie.

The brothers, recognized as among the world's best mountaineers, run Patagonian Brothers Expeditions. The twins have worked at Snowbird Ski and Summer Resort and became friends with Jim Collinson, who works in the Johnny Collinson, 17, reached the highest point in Antarctica last week to become the youngest climber to reach the top of each of the seven continents. Here's his list with summit dates: Jan. 18, 2010 — Vinson Massif (16,067 feet), Antarctica; Aug. 20, 2009 — Carstenz Pyramid (16,023 feet), Oceania; July 21, 2009 — Kilimanjaro (19,340 feet), Africa; July 8, 2009 — Elbrus (18,510 feet), Eurasia; June 26, 2009 — Denali (20,320 feet), North America; May 19, 2009 — Mount Everest (29,030 feet), Asia; Jan. 16, 2009 — Aconcagua (22,841 feet), South America snow safety department. "I couldn't have done it without them," Johnny Collinson said. "They are great guys. They are uncle Willie and uncle Damian."

Collinson said none of the summits was more difficult than the others, but that logistically Vinson Massif was the hardest to cross off the list.

His favorite summit was Denali in Alaska, but not because of the climb.

"There was a lot of snow and I liked it a lot because we were skiing," he said. "It was awesome."

Somehow, Collinson found time with his worldly schedule to take his ACT test and work on keeping up with his friends at Brighton High School. He plans on graduating with them later this spring and expects to enroll at the University of Utah.

No matter where he goes, Collinson said he is glad his family helped him make the last-minute decision to make an attempt at the Seven Summits a reality.

"This was the right time for it to happen. If we waited until I started college it could have affected how did it," he said. "I'm really glad we put so much effort into doing it this year. I am a little disappointed about having finished the goal, but I can really move forward with what I have learned this past year and integrate it into my future and into my life."

Sale to benefit Idaho Art Archives nears

FILER — The Idaho Art Archives and Research Center will hold a tag sale from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. March 5-6 at Lion's Gate Gallery, 229 Main St., Filer.

Donated sale items will be accepted at the Lion's Gate Gallery or the Filer Public Library, 219 Main St.

Funds generated during the sale will be used to continue research center operations. The center's archive, located in the Filer Public Library's history room, was established in 1991 to collect, preserve and publish cultural information of unique historical value to Idaho.

The archive includes a catalogue of approximately 700 Basque music recordings and sheet music samples, extending from the 18th century to the present, amassed through the work of Buhl resident and Lion's Gate owner Teddy Khteian-Keeton.

"We've been able to transfer much of the recorded music to compact disc but some of it still remains in tape form," Khteian-Keeton said. "This is a unique opportunity, because money we are able to raise will help the research center republish about 100 copies of the Guide to Basque Music we first put out in 1994. And also continue presenting the $25 Ray Keeton Photography Award each year at the Twin Falls County Fair."

Sale information: Filer Public Library, 326-4143. ok-el: 2/12

Dr. Gott enters the 21st century with new Web site

DEAR DR. GOTT: Do you have an archive online or otherwise of past columns? In the past month or two, I think you had a column entry that discussed the condition known as trigger finger. In the past two weeks, my husband has had a flare-up of this condition. He is 47, and his 78-year-old mother also suffers with trigger finger.

Any advice or experience from you or my fellow readers/writers would be welcomed. Thank you.

DEAR READER: First, let me discuss your husband's condition, and I'll expand on your inquiry

ASK

As you are aware, trigger finger is a condition in which a finger joint catches in a bent position. The joint appears as though the person has pulled the trigger of a gun. When the finger unlocks, it pops back suddenly, as if releasing that trigger, thus the name. Accompanying pain can often be controlled by icing and splinting or over-the-counter Advil, Aleve, Motrin and similar products. When OTCs fail to provide satisfactory results, it's time to consult a physician to determine the next step, which might be a cortisone injection or surgical release under local anesthesia. The procedure is relatively common, and your primary-care physician should be able to direct you to a local surgeon who can provide relief to your husband.

In terms of his mother, she should weigh the degree of impact on her life. If she is truly troubled by the condition, her physician can review any other possible medical conditions that might have an impact on potential surgery and point her in the right direction for relief.

Now, for the second part of your inquiry. I have been holding on to your letter for a number of months, awaiting my entry into the 21st century. I must confess yet again that I've been rather proud all these years to be a member of the Lead Pencil Club and a technophobe, as well. I began my column with a pad of paper in front of me, answering every question that has appeared in my column.

And, believe it or not, I still do just that. Medicine is my field of expertise, not machinery. My office staff, which does some research on my behalf, has backed me against a wall and demanded my entry into the computer age. After what has seemed like an excessively long period of preparation, I am pleased to announce that my column is now available at www.AskDrGottMD.com. I am aware of my name and material appearing on several other sites; however, this is the only "official" site.

Taking on the format of a newspaper column, it will contain new material and columns from the past. You can search for information on specific diseases and illnesses through dates of publication and can follow what my guest columnists have to say on a variety of medical topics. My initial plan is to run guest columns weekly, beginning on Sundays. Health Reports can be reviewed by title with readers being directed to download and print out an order blank for forwarding to the fulfillment center's address in Ohio.

Georgia Mullikin

BURLEY — Longtime Burley resident, Georgia Scott Mullikin, 91, died Sunday, Feb. 7, 2010, at Grace Assisted Living in Meridian, Idaho.

to enrich that organization until the past couple years. A dream of the family had always been for there to be a nice fine arts center in Burley. Therefore, when the Mount Harrison Fine Arts Center became a possibility, she was involved in the planning and fruition of it. Once it was opened, she created, organized and led the Fine Arts Auxiliary for several years.

Having a great interest in health and nutrition, Georgia opened The Nutrition Center in 1960, starting in a back corner of the music store where it grew beyond the space available and was moved to its own location where it still is a thriving business. She was very interested in helping people to feel better and make the most of their lives. Georgia was a member of PEO since 1967, acting as treasurer and many other committees and programs. She was also a member of Iris Better Homes Extension Club.

She was a member of Burley United Methodist Church since she was a young girl, participating in choir and many committees. At the same time that she was always reaching for new goals, she was a great homemaker. Georgia was very artistic with painting pictures, sewing, designing and gardening. She loved to ride horses and enjoy the outdoors with many camping trips. She has been an inspiration to many and has set an amazing example.

Georgia is survived by her son and daughter-in-law, Scott and Joyce Mullikin; her daughter, Sherry Mullikin Georgeff; six grandchildren; and 12 great-grandchildren. She was preceded in death by her husband, Clifford; and her parents.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 13, at the Burley United Methodist Church, 450 E. 27th St. in Burley, with Pastor Karen Puckett officiating. Burial will follow in the Pleasant View Cemetery. Friends may call from 10 until 10:45 a.m. prior to the funeral Saturday at the church. The family suggests that memorials be made to the United Methodist Church of Burley or to the Mount Harrison Heritage Foundation. Arrangements are under the direction of Morrison Funeral Home and Crematory in Rupert.

CHILLING AERIAL PHOTOS OF 9/11 ATTACK RELEASED

By Ula Ilnytsky and Colleen Long
Associated Press writers

NEW YORK — A trove of aerial photographs of the collapsing World Trade Center was widely released this week, offering a rare and chilling view from the heavens of the burning twin towers and the apocalyptic shroud of smoke and dust that settled over the city.

The images were taken from a police helicopter — the only photographers allowed in the airspace near the skyscrapers on Sept. 11, 2001. They were obtained by ABC after it filed a Freedom of Information Act request last year with the National Institute of Standards and Technology, the federal agency that investigated the collapse.

The chief curator of the planned Sept. 11 museum pronounced the pictures “a phenomenal body of work.”

The photos are “absolutely core to understanding the visual phenomena of what was happening,” said Jan Ramirez of the National September 11 Memorial & Museum. They are “some of the most exceptional images in the world, I think, of this event.”

In some of the pictures, the tops of the nearby Woolworth Building and other skyscrapers can just be seen above the enormous cloud of debris, gray against a clear blue sky. Gray clouds billow through the streets of the financial district and shroud the 16 acres where the towers had stood just moments before.

Buildings can hardly be seen at all in one image — just dust clouds hanging over the Hudson River at the southern tip of Manhattan.

One close-up shows orange flames and black smoke pouring from the upper floors of the north tower, the first hit by a hijacked plane.

“I almost didn’t realize what I was seeing that day,” Greg Semendinger, the former New York Police Department detective who took the pictures posted on ABC’s site, told The Associated Press. “Looking at it now it’s amazing I took those pictures. The images are ... stunning.”

The attack and the collapse of the World Trade Center were well documented on live TV and amateur video. But more than eight years after the nation’s deadliest terror attack, the images still had the power to shock and disturb. They were an instant sensation on the Internet.

“Some survivors may find these pictures too painful to look at,” said Richard Zimble, president of the WTC Survivors Network. “But they are an important part of the historical record.”

ABC said NIST gave the network 2,779 pictures on nine CDs. The network posted 12 pictures on its Web site Monday and an additional 12 on Wednesday, including another close-up of the burning north tower and photos of rescue boats and commuter ferries docking in the Hudson River to pick up survivors.

ABC initially said some of the photographs posted had never been seen before, but later backed off that assertion.

Semendinger — who took all the photos posted by ABC — said Wednesday that he had previously e-mailed some of the pictures to friends who later posted them on the Internet. Also, nine of the images were published in a book called “Above Hallowed Ground: A Photographic Record of Sept. 11” without his consent. The book was a tribute to the officers who were killed that day.

Semendinger was first in the air in a search for survivors on the rooftop. He said he and his pilot watched the second plane hit the south tower from the helicopter.

“We didn’t find one single person. It was surreal,” he said. “There was no sound. No sound whatsoever, but the noise of the radio and the helicopter. I just kept taking pictures.”

He took three rolls of film with his Minolta camera, plus 245 digital shots. Semendinger said that he gave the digital images to the 9/11 Commission that investigated the attack, and that the commission evidently released the pictures to NIST.

Smoke and ash engulf the area around the World Trade Center in New York on Sept. 11, 2001.

One of the towers of the World Trade Center in New York begins to crumble on Sept. 11, 2001.

The family wishes to thank the medical staff of Minidoka Memorial Hospital and Huntsman Cancer Institute as well as Hansen Mortuary for their support and care.

Joan Rose Allen

UMATILLA, Ore. — Joan Rose Allen passed away at her home in Umatilla, Ore., in the presence of her loving family on Saturday, Jan. 23, 2010, at the age of 73.

Joan was born July 7, 1936, at Rupert, Idaho, to parents, Robert Vernal "Code" Sheen and Clara Drucilla (Hymas) Sheen. Joan was raised in the Rupert/Oakley area. She moved to Hermiston in 1981. Joan worked at the Simplot potato plant in Hermiston for more than 20 years as a lab technician. After retirement from Simplot, Joan worked at Walmart and at numerous group homes caring for the developmentally disabled.

For many years, Joan and her late husband, Harley Allen, sold watermelons, tomatoes and raspberries from their home on Joy Lane north of Hermiston. Many members of the community benefited from their green thumbs. Joan enjoyed playing bingo and was a regular on the Hermiston bingo circuit for nearly 30 years. Joan loved camping at Anson Wright Park and fishing at the McNary Ponds. Joan was a member of the VFW Ladies Auxiliary.

She is survived by sons, Peter "Sid" Nelson of Oakley, John "Ed" Nelson of Umatilla, Ore., James Nelson of Hardieville, S.C., Jody Allen of Hermiston, Ore., and Jimmy Allen of Hermiston, Ore.; daughters, Patricia Sorenson of American Falls, Idaho, and Rose Pearce of Ontario, Ore.; brother, Vernal Sheen of Buhl, Idaho; sisters, Arpha Noble of Rupert and Leota Crisp of Clarkston, Wash.; 22 grandchildren; and 18 great-grandchildren. She was preceded in death by her husband, Harley Allen in 2003; daughter, Melissa Allen; sister, Cleo Gochmour; and parents, Robert and Clara Sheen.

Joan had a loving heart and compassionate spirit and many people not related called her "Mom" or "Grandma Joan."

A celebration of life will be held for family and friends at 1 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 13, at The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, 850 SW 11th St., Hermiston, OR 97838. Friends and family are asked to bring a potluck dessert. Interment and a separate family service will be held this summer in Rupert. Disposition was by cremation.

Memorial contributions may be made to Vange John Memorial Hospice, 1050 W. Elm Ave., Suite 220, Hermiston, OR 97838.

Please sign the condolence book at www.burnsmortuaryhermiston.com. Burns Mortuary of Hermiston, Ore., is in care of arrangements.

Gerald Ben Harding

HEYBURN — Gerald Ben Harding, 77, of Heyburn, passed away Tuesday, Feb. 9, 2010, at his home of natural causes.

Gerald was born April 2, 1932, in Malad, Idaho, to Benjamin William and June Yearsley Harding. He has been married to Ann Bailey Harding for 57 years. He grew up and attended schools in Malad. He served in the U.S. Army from 1953 to 1955 during the Korean War. He attended Washington State University and Utah State University, graduating with a bachelor's degree from the University of Idaho. He began his teaching and coaching career in Bellevue, Idaho, then moved to Oakley, Buhl and then Minidoka County, where he taught math and coached for 32 years. He also farmed and worked in construction. As a member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, he served in Young Men's, Scouts, a bishopric, high council and Sunday school. He enjoyed hunting and fishing with his boys and grandsons, athletics, coaching and summer basketball camps with family. He also loved to draw and sing to his family.

Gerald is survived by his wife, Ann Harding; children, Toby (Diane) Harding, Teri (L. Jay) Mitchell, Dean (Julie) Harding, Cindy (Mike) Mickelsen, Bob Harding and Diane (Dave) Long; 40 grandchildren; 41 great-grandchildren; brother, Merrill Harding; and sisters, Gay Scott, Pauline Meyerhoeffer and Tamra Arthur. He is preceded in death by his parents, one brother, one sister, one grandchild and one great-grandchild.

The funeral will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 13, at the Heyburn LDS 2nd Ward chapel, 530 Villa Drive. Burial will follow at the Riverside Cemetery in Heyburn. Visitation for family and friends will be from 6 to 8 p.m. Friday, Feb. 12, at Hansen Mortuary Rupert Chapel, 710 Sixth St., and one hour prior to the service Saturday at the church.

The family would like to thank Intermountain Health Care Hospice. Gerald loved the community and the people he lived around.

Clarence Powell Gibson (Junior)

BLACKFOOT — Clarence Powell Gibson (Junior) peacefully passed away Tuesday, Feb. 9, 2010, at his home in Blackfoot, Idaho.

Junior was born Jan. 17, 1929, in Caldwell, Idaho, the third son of John Clarence and Ada Gertrude Powell Gibson.

Junior spent the first seven years of his life in Caldwell while his father worked for the government in the Department of Navy and while his mother worked as a nurse in the Caldwell hospital. The family returned to Rupert, Idaho, about 1937 to farm the original homestead east of town. The family still continues to farm this land. They also farmed other land that had been purchased while they lived in Caldwell.

Junior attended all 12 years of his education in the Rupert schools, where he excelled in sports, especially basketball under the direction of George Hayes. Junior played in the East-West All-Stars Basketball game in 1948 and, in that same year, graduated from Rupert High School. He received many scholarship offers from Purdue, Kentucky, Indiana, Alabama, Idaho, Utah, Wyoming and Washington universities.

On Jan. 14, 1951, he married his high school sweetheart, Evelyn Vernice Whittaker, at the Whittaker's Elkhorn Ranch in Heyburn, Idaho. To this union, three children blessed their lives, Steven Powell, Charles Scott and Julee Keleen. Vernice passed away Nov. 14, 1985. On April 4, 1987, Junior married Patricia Jeanne Jones Denney in Blackfoot, Idaho. This is where he has resided since.

Also in January of 1951, he answered the call to serve his country. He was called to serve in Austria and Germany as a tank commander. In 1956, he received his honorable discharge from the Army and returned home to Rupert to farm with his father and older brother, Oris. He loved the land and the caring of his crops. Many wonderful years were spent farming with family and neighbors. Junior also worked many years as an inspector and assistant supervisor for the Department of Agriculture in the fresh fruit and vegetable division. When Junior retired from the State of Idaho, he became a buyer for various potato plants in south-central and south-eastern Idaho. He enjoyed his association with many of the potato growers and formed many lasting relationships with them. Junior worked at this job until just a few months before his passing.

life, family fishing trips, family outings and a good day's work. He liked horseback riding and going on cattle drives with his brother, Oris, nephews and sons. The branding trips to Gannett were also something he enjoyed. He loved caring for and breaking horses. One of his favorite pastimes was either going to or watching sporting events, particularly football and basketball. Family was important to Junior and he always loved being with his grandchildren. He looked forward to visiting with the many people he knew through the potato business. When he moved to Blackfoot, he developed many lasting relationships and enjoyed all those he associated with.

He is survived by his wife, Pat of Blackfoot; sons, Steven (Bavia) of Rupert and Scott (Becky) of Boise; daughter Julee (Jeff) Denney of Pocatello; stepdaughters, Debbie (Barry) Jones, Kathy (Alan) Peterson, Terry (Chris) Chapman; 11 grandchildren, Cortney (Chase) Camberlango, Whitney (Cameron) Clark, Kassidee Denney, Jase Denney, Kaylee Denney, Brittney Gibson, Powell Gibson, Jared Gibson and Brinlee Denney; and two great-grandchildren, Tegan Camberlango and Burke Camberlango; sister, Deloris Balch; and brother, Dr. Jarl (Shirley) Gibson, both of Boise; several step grandchildren; and many nieces and nephews. Junior was preceded in death by his first wife, Vernice Whittaker and Gibson; parents, Clarence and Ada Powell Gibson; brother, Oris; sister, Betty Gibson Johnson; sister-in-law, Jean MacRae Gibson; brother-in-law, Glenn Johnson; and stepson, Chris Chapman.

The family would like to thank Blackfoot Home Health and Hospice. Special thanks and appreciation to those who gave Junior special care, Kathi, Carrie, Selize, Sheila, Frank and Newell. Junior's family would like to thank all of Dad's many family and friends who took time out of their busy lives to call or visit him these last few years; those times were very special to him.

A graveside service will be held at 10:30 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 13, at the Rupert Cemetery, 450 N. Meridian in Rupert under the direction of Hansen Mortuary Rupert Chapel.

Dollie Ann Henry Oneida

SHOSHONE — Dollie Ann Henry Oneida, age 86, died at the Gooding County Memorial Hospital on Monday, Feb. 8, 2010.

She was born Oct. 7, 1923, in Twin Falls, Idaho, the youngest child of Alton and Maude Henry. Dollie was raised in Berger, Idaho, and graduated from Jerome High School. She married Pete Oneida in Elko, Nev., in 1944. They would have observed their 66th wedding anniversary on Feb. 10. They lived in Shoshone the greater part of their marriage and were in the sheep business with Pete's family and later farmed and ranched until Pete's retirement. Pete and Dollie also took over the operation of the Oneida's Basque Boarding House in Shoshone in the late '60s until the mid-'90s. Dollie enjoyed her family, especially her grandchildren. Visiting with friends was a favorite pastime, and Dollie always tried to be helpful to others as much as she could.

Survivors include her husband, Pete of Shoshone, Idaho; their children, Raymond (Kathy) of Buckley, Wash., Linda (Don) Board of Hailey, Idaho, Mike (Debbie) and Rick, all of Shoshone; 12 grandchildren; and numerous great-grandchildren. Dollie was preceded in death by two brothers and two sisters.

The family would like to thank those at Lincoln County Care Center of Shoshone, Hospice Visions of Twin Falls and Gooding County Memorial Hospital for their kindness and treatment of Dollie.

A memorial service will be announced at a later date. Cremation was under the direction of Demaray Funeral Service, Shoshone Chapel.

Karen Wills

LAS VEGAS — Karen Kay Wills, 69-year-old Las Vegas, Nev., and former Paul resident, died Saturday, Feb. 6, 2010, at Odyssey Healthcare and Harbor House in Las Vegas from an extended illness.

She was born May 18, 1940, in Paul, Idaho, the daughter of Vern and Bert Munsee. Karen grew up and attended school in Paul. After high school, she completed a dentistry course in Hollywood, Calif. Later in life, she returned to school and completed the LPN course at the College of Southern Idaho.

As a child, she had a talent for music and dance. On April 3, 1959, she appeared on the "Art Linkletter House Part," a network television show. Karen married Maurice Woods on Feb. 9, 1963, and they had two daughters. They were later divorced. On July 19, 1991, she married Ron Wills.

She is survived by her two daughters, Pam Martini of Las Vegas, Nev., and Danya Woods of Twin Falls; one sister, Patty Bent of Boston, Mass.; six grandchildren; and three great-grandchildren. She was preceded in death by her parents, one brother and a nephew.

The funeral will be held at 2 p.m. Friday, Feb. 12, at the Morrison Funeral Home, 188 S. Highway 24 in Rupert. Friends may call from 1 until 1:45 p.m. prior to the service Friday at the funeral home. Services under the direction of Morrison Funeral Home and Crematory in Rupert.

Bruins top Riverhawks again

By Bradley Guire
Times-News writer

Twin Falls High School's dominance in basketball was firmly established Wednesday.

The Bruin boys took to the paint for points and pressed on defense early against cross-town rival Canyon Ridge, defeating the Riverhawks 74-36 at Canyon Ridge Gymnasium.

and girls teams swept the Riverhawks in this rivalry's inaugural season.

The Bruins doubled up the Riverhawks early in the game and continued to expand on their lead through a balanced inside-outside attack.

On defense, the Bruins stole three times and Jon Pulsifer blocked a shot as they once again kept Canyon Ridge from hitting 40.

"We weren't settling for them scoring a lot on us," Pulsifer said.

Ryan Petersen, Pulsifer and Justin Pedersen owned the inside, scoring 16 of their 40 points on layups and put-backs as they combined for 14 rebounds.

Pulsifer even managed a dunk during the third quarter, the result of a Riverhawks turnover.

Pedersen, Petersen and Eric Harr also attacked from the arc, scoring 24 points on 3-pointers. Pedersen led with 15 points, Petersen scored 14, and Harr and Pulsifer each finished with 11.

In spite of another run-away victory, the Twin Falls players pointed out mistakes made early on that need correcting.

"We weren't playing in rhythm," Petersen said, "our spacing wasn't good, and we were doing too much off the dribble."

The Riverhawks had their opportunities at the basket, but shot after shot refused to fall. Casey Petty led in scoring, pouring in 11 points on three treys and a jump shot. The team admittedly still has a long way to go as the Riverhawks continue to build a program, but there are bright spots.

"One thing that helped was rebounds," Riverhawk guard Alex Ridgeway said. "It was a lot better. They got a lot of offensive boards, but it seemed like we got a lot of defensive boards."

"We were less panicky," he continued. "We came out more relaxed."

Both teams are back on the

Kimberly girls claim third straight SCIC title

WATCH game highlights and player interviews from Wednesday's SCIC championship game.

Gooding found out just how hard it is to wrest the Sawtooth Central Idaho Conference title away from its holder.

After being frustrated and harried for more than a quarter by Gooding's pack-the-lane zone defense, Kimberly found a way to get into transition in the second and third quarters and never looked back for a 48-36 win Wednesday at the College of Southern Idaho that gave the Bulldogs their third consecutive SCIC tournament championship.

Alex Pfefferle scored a game-high 22 for the Bulldogs (19-2) but it was the third-quarter burst from Kaitlyn Goetz that spurred the Bulldogs on for victory.

"The coaches told us we needed to play Bulldog basketball, and we weren't playing nearly as well as we know how to," said Goetz, who scored eight of her 10 points in a third period that saw Kimberly extend its lead from eight to 21.

"Gooding battled, and I think we were more keyed up for this one because it was a district championship and we could go to state if we won, and we got a little out of control at times," Goetz said.

The Senators (13-10) scored the first six points of the game and led 8-7 after one quarter of play, before Kimberly outscored them 29-14 over the next two quarters.

Brittany Wirth led Gooding with 20 points in the loss.

"The girls stuck with the game plan really well. I think we just got a little tired, and then you're not thinking as clearly and we made some mistakes," said Gooding coach Luanne Axelson. "Sometimes we're our own worst enemy, and you can't give the ball away against a good team like this."

The win netted Kimberly a berth in the Class 3A state tournament for the third straight season. The Bulldogs will open up

Hot shooting Minico blows past Burley

By Ryan Howe

BURLEY — Although his team had a nine-point half-time lead over Burley, Minico senior guard Mark Leon wasn't pleased with how the Spartans were playing.

"The first half we were just playing one-on-one basketball and there was no team effort," Leon said. "We came out in the second half and started passing the ball and doing our thing."

Doing their thing meant blistering the nets for 52-percent shooting from the field and blowing by their cross-river rivals 66-43 in front of a standing-room-only crowd at Burley High on Wednesday night.

Minico, which has won five in a row, moved to 14-5 overall and finished its Great Basin Conference schedule 9-1. The Spartans will have the No. 2 seed heading into the District IV tournament next week unless Twin Falls loses to

Dietrich dethrones Richfield in title tilt

Carey beats Camas County to stay alive

By John Derr
Times-News writer

CAREY — The Blue Devils are back on top.

After second-place finishes at both district and state last year, Dietrich wasn't going to settle this time around.

With key shots late and dominance in the paint, the Blue Devils topped defending Class 1A Division II state champion Richfield 42-29 Wednesday night in Carey to claim the Northside Conference Tournament championship.

"I am happy we won. We played hard against a good team," said Dietrich senior Nakia Norman, who tallied a game-high 12 points and grabbed 10 rebounds.

Richfield falls into today's 7 p.m. second-place game against Carey for the conference's second automatic berth to state. Tonight's loser lands in a state play-in game against District III's Garden Valley at 1 p.m. Saturday in Glens Ferry.

Up by two at the start of the final period Wednesday, Norman drained the 3-pointer to give Dietrich a little breathing room.

Richfield, which started cold and was shut out in the first quarter, put on the press. That led to a handful of steals and pair of layups by Teenie Kent to cut the deficit to a single point early in the fourth.

The press continued to play dividends as Kent, who was held scoreless in the first half, made an old-fashioned three-point play and tied the game at 29-29 with just over four minutes left. But the Tigers would not score again and the Devils regained the lead for good when Ellie Dalton found Norman wide open at the other end.

"I kind of sneaked by them and got open," said Norman. "This is my last year, I just wanted to give it all I had."

CSI softball earns sweep over CNCC

Times-News

The College of Southern Idaho softball team let a three-run seventh-inning lead slip away against Colorado Northwestern. Luckily, the Golden Eagles had the home half and Brittany Gonzales put out the fire.

Gonzales clubbed a two-run walk-off home run, her second of the game, to give CSI a 6-4 win over CNCC in the second game of a Scenic West Athletic Conference doubleheader in St. George, Utah, Wednesday.

Lateshia Webster's three-run double in the top of the seventh inning tied the game at 4-4, setting up Gonzales' heroics, which came with two outs after Kelsey Bryant worked a walk.

Generra Nielson picked up her second win of the day by finishing off the seventh inning for Brie Dimond, allowing the tying run on Webster's double.

"Brie threw really well. In the seventh inning we had one out, but it was the fourth time through the lineup. When they've seen her that many times through, they're going to make their adjustments," said CSI coach Nick Baumert. "It's a situation we're able to get out of ... we did make it interesting, that's for sure."

Nielson had eight strikeouts in a complete-game win in the opener, an 8-0 victory that lasted the minimum five innings on account of the run rule. "It's a good day. We didn't have any errors, and that's a big plus for us because we had quite a few last week in Yuma (Ariz.)," Baumert said. "Taking a couple days off, then a travel day, we had a feeling it'd be a little rocky."

CSI (11-5, 2-0 SWAC) is back at it for a doubleheader with CNCC today. Salt Lake Community College treks south to play CSI for a set of doubleheaders this weekend.

this case, Twin Falls swept court Friday. Canyon Ridge is finished with Great Basin Conference play (4-14, 1-9) and travels east to face Snake River. Twin Falls (17-2, 8-1) hosts Jerome at Baun Gymnasium.

A victory over the Tigers gives the Bruins a share of the conference regular-season championship as Minico finished 9-1. Despite the series split, Twin Falls would claim the No. 1 seed in the district tournament as the second tie-breaker is common Class 4A opponents. In twins, who will be the No. 6 seed for the Great Basin Tournament, are at Hillcrest Friday.

Jerome (11-8, 5-4), which clinched the No. 3 seed with the win and Burley's loss to Minico, is at Twin Falls on Friday to close the regular season.

Late run keys Cutthroat boys' win over Devils

Times-News

Paul Davis hit two fourth-quarter 3-pointers to help the Community School open up a tight game and take a 51-43 win over Murtaugh Wednesday night in Sun Valley.

Davis scored 14 points for the Cutthroats (13-5, 8-4 Northside Conference), while Senegalese forward Daniel Gomis scored 19.

Murtaugh got 17 points from Manuel Pacheco, but struggled late after trailing 36-35 entering the final quarter.

The Community School visits Richfield on Friday to conclude its regular season. Murtaugh trips to Dietrich on Friday.

JEROME 60, WOOD RIVER 28
Nolan McDonald, Gus Callen, Chace Capps and Jake Hollifield all had 10 points to pace Jerome past Wood River 60-28 in Hailey on Wednesday.

"We got great post play," said Jerome coach Joe Messick. "The kids did a nice job going to the boards and playing inside."

Pedro Contreras led Wood River (2-15, 1-9 Great Basin) with eight points. The Wolverines, who will be the No. 6 seed for the Great Basin Tournament, are at Hillcrest Friday.

Jerome (11-8, 5-4), which clinched the No. 3 seed with the win and Burley's loss to Minico, is at Twin Falls on Friday to close the regular season.

The two teams will play again Tuesday in Jerome.

Gasol's double-double helps Lakers top Jazz

SALT LAKE CITY — Pau Gasol had 22 points and 19 rebounds and the Los Angeles Lakers won their third straight without Kobe Bryant, beating Utah 96-81 on Wednesday night and ending the Jazz's nine-game winning streak.

Bryant rested his sore left ankle and the Lakers fared just fine without their superstar, getting 25 points and 11 rebounds from Lamar Odom and 18 points from Jordan Farmar. Gasol added five blocks as he and Odom shut down the lane and forced the Jazz outside.

HEAT 94, HAWKS 76

ATLANTA — Jermaine O'Neal scored 19 points, Dwyane Wade had 18 and the Miami Heat took advantage of Atlanta's thin bench and pulled away with a 10-0 run in the final period to beat the Hawks.

Daequan Cook led the Heat reserves with 17 points and Udonis Haslem added 14 as Miami's backups outscored their Hawks counterparts 45-8. The Heat have won two straight heading into the All-Star break.

RAPTORS 104, 76ERS 93

TORONTO — Chris Bosh had 23 points and 10 rebounds, Jose Calderon converted a go-ahead four-point play and Toronto extended its home winning streak to eight games.

Andrea Bargnani scored 16

Kimberly 39, Wendell 33
103 pound: Jacob Herman, Kimberly, won by forfeit;

The Timberwolves outscored the Bobcats 22-13 in the fourth quarter and took a three-point lead with less than a minute to play. But after Boris Diaw missed a shot with less than 10 seconds left and the Bobcats trailing by a point, Timberwolves forward Corey Brewer saved the ball under his own basket. The ball caromed off Al Jefferson and into the hands of Mohammed, who slammed the ball for the winning points.

KINGS 103, PISTONS 97
AUBURN HILLS, Mich. — Kevin Martin scored 26 points and Beno Udrih added 22 to lead Sacramento.

The Kings have won back-to-back road games after winning just three of their first 25 away from home. Andres Nocioni added 13 for Sacramento, while Tyreke Evans scored seven of his 13 in the final 5 minutes.

MAGIC 107, BULLS 87
CHICAGO — Dwight Howard had 18 points and 14 rebounds, and Orlando pulled away early for its 10th win in 12 games.

The Magic led 41-17 through the first quarter and didn't have to contend with All-Star point guard Derrick Rose after he left with a bruised right hip following a hard foul by Howard in the opening minutes. That was a chilling sight on a night when little looked good for the Bulls, and the Magic could do no wrong.

HORNETS 93, CELTICS 85
NEW ORLEANS — Darren Collison scored 13 of his 25 points in the fourth quarter to help New Orleans hold on against Boston.

Peja Stojakovic scored 20 for the Hornets and Morris Peterson had 16 points and 10 rebounds for his first double-double in more than two seasons. David West added 15 points to help the Hornets go into the All-Star break with two wins in their last three games.

TRAIL BLAZERS 108, SUNS 101
PHOENIX — Steve Blake had 20 points and 12 assists, both season highs, and the depleted Portland Trail Blazers held off a late rally by Phoenix to snap the Suns' five-game winning streak.

The Blazers, who led by as many as 22 in the third quarter and 17 in the fourth, shot 58 percent, the highest the Suns have allowed this season. Portland made 71 percent of their first-half shots while ending a 10-game losing streak in Phoenix.

Scheyer, No. 8 Duke pull away to top Tar Heels

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — Jon Scheyer scored 24 points and Duke pulled away in the final minutes to beat rival North Carolina 64-54 Wednesday, the Blue Devils second win over the Tar Heels in the past eight meetings.

Kyle Singler added 19 points for the Blue Devils (20-4, 8-2 Atlantic Coast Conference), who shot poorly all night and couldn't make much of anything in close. But boasting a bigger and tougher front line than in years past, Duke dominated the boards and got plenty of extra looks to make up for all those misses.

Duke hit nine 3-pointers, but shot 32 percent overall and went 13 for 51 (25 percent) from inside the arc.

The loss only added to the defending national champions' misery in a season that is slipping away. North Carolina (13-11, 2-7) has lost eight of 10 since the start of 2010, including four in a row overall to fall near the bottom of the league standings.

Will Graves scored 13 points to lead the Tar Heels, who retired the No. 50 jersey of former star Tyler Hansbrough in a halftime ceremony.

NO. 2 SYRACUSE 72, CONNECTICUT 67
SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Wes Johnson and Kris Joseph combined to make six straight free throws in the final 33 seconds, and No. 2 Syracuse held off Connecticut 72-67 on Wednesday night after squandering a 16-point lead in the second half.

Jerome Dyson's 3-pointer for the Huskies tied it at 65 with 2:33 left, but Johnson put the Orange back in front by hitting two foul shots with 30.4 seconds to go.

NO. 13 OHIO ST. 69, INDIANA 52
BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — William Buford scored 21 points and Kyle Madsen had a career-high 11, leading Ohio State over Indiana. The game was so lopsided that Hoosiers fans started leaving with approximately 11 minutes left — with about 5 minutes to go, many of the seats were empty.

NO. 19 NORTHERN IOWA 57, DRAKE 48
DES MOINES, Iowa — Adam Koch scored 12 points and Northern Iowa clinched at least a share of the Missouri Valley title by beating Drake.

Ali Farokhmanesh and Johnny Moran each added 10 points for the Panthers (22-2, 13-1), who can lock up the top seed in next month's conference tournament with a win at Bradley on Saturday.

MIAMI 64, NO. 20 GEORGIA TECH 62
CORAL GABLES, Fla. — After

missing a key free throw, James Dews made a 15-footer at the buzzer to give Miami a victory over Georgia Tech before a sparse crowd.

NO. 24 BAYLOR 55, NEBRASKA 53
LINCOLN, Neb. — Ekpe Udoh scored the go-ahead basket with 25 seconds left and Quincy Acy made two big defensive plays at the end to give Baylor a victory over Nebraska.

LaceDarius Dunn scored 19 points to lead the Bears (18-5, 5-4 Big 12), and Udoh had six blocks to go with eight points and nine rebounds.

Weir, U.S. team make Vancouver feel like home

RICHMOND, British Columbia (AP) — Johnny Weir brought his blankie, his favorite brand of fabric softener, and the picture of Lady Gaga.

The figure skater learned from his first Olympics how to make the athletes' village feel like home. Weir was surprised by the spartan accommodations in Turin in 2006. This time, he intends to be totally comfortable.

"I definitely can make any village work now," Weir said. "I'm in a place where every room can work — especially if you have a giant Lady Gaga picture, anywhere can work."

Weir and other American athletes went through team processing by the U.S. Olympic Committee on Wednesday, a big step in getting settled in Vancouver. After filling a giant rolling bin with U.S. gear, Weir planned to move into his room — and decorate it.

He brought three 70-pound suitcases stuffed with everything from candles to his teddy bear. Weir has all the details covered, down to ensuring that his clothes will smell of a familiar scent if he does laundry.

Weir is sharing a room with American ice dancer Tanith Belbin, which will feature "our icon," Lady Gaga, on the wall.

"She needs to be there watching over us, protecting us," Weir said.

Weir's favorite piece of U.S. gear was a white puffy vest from Ralph Lauren — but they didn't have one in his size. So his coach will wear it in his stead. Weir also liked the stretchy, fitted white pants American athletes will wear at the opening ceremony.

"They're very slimming and sucks in everything you don't want the world to see," he said.

Leading to the Olympics, people kept asking him, "How excited are you?" Weir would say, "You know, it's coming. It's a competition; I'm ready. I'm going to do it."

"I didn't really get those butterflies and the excitement until I stepped foot out of the airplane last night," he said.

The reality of his first Olympics started to hit teammate Jeremy Abbott, the two-time defending U.S. champ, as he picked up the red, white and blue gear.

"To get all this stuff that has USA across my chest or across my back, it's a really proud moment," the 24-year-old Abbott said.

The first Olympics he remember was 1992, when he was 7. He cheered American Paul Wylie, who had an exhilarating silver-medal performance. Now, Wylie is Abbott's mentor.

"It just reminds you that you're representing your whole country and that you have the support of a whole nation behind you," Abbott said. "This competition is unlike any other. It's more than just your family and your friends and your coaches. It's the whole country."

Vonn questions whether she will race in Vancouver

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — Lindsey Vonn took a deep breath, and her words trickled forth slowly, as she began to discuss the badly bruised and swollen right shin she fears could sideline her at an Olympics many predicted would become her personal showcase.

Indeed, almost anyone with any interest in the Vancouver Games — fans and competitors, yes, but also Vonn's sponsors and NBC — must have been taken aback Wednesday when the U.S. star said: "I'm sitting here today questioning whether, you know, I'll be even able to ski."

Vonn revealed the injury publicly two days before the opening ceremony, and about a week after hurting herself during a slalom training run in Austria, cutting short her preparation.

As a two-time reigning overall World Cup champion, Vonn is considered a contender to win multiple medals and an overwhelming favorite in the downhill and super-G. And as an outgoing, autograph-signing, product-pitching American, she has been positioned as Vancouver's answer to Beijing's Michael Phelps.

For a day, at least, that all was thrown into doubt.

As it is, Vonn sought to distance herself from such comparisons, saying: "I'm not trying to be Michael Phelps. I'm just trying to be Lindsey Vonn, trying to do the best I can every day. Obviously with this injury, it's going to be even more difficult than I was anticipating, but I'm just going to go out there and fight. That's all I can do."

The women have their first official training run at Whistler Mountain on Thursday, and Vonn is expected to try to test her leg then — perhaps, her husband said, with the help of painkillers or a local anesthetic to numb the affected area.

"We honestly don't know how it's going to respond," said Thomas Vonn, a former U.S. Olympic skier who acts as a coach and adviser to his wife. "We're going to go up and see tomorrow. We potentially could get up there and she could say, 'OK. This works. I can do this.' And it could be not that big of a problem. Or she could get out there with the painkillers and she could say, 'There's just no chance.'"

The first women's Alpine race is Sunday's super-combined. Those who have been around Vonn for years expect her to be in the starting gate, setting aside the agony the way she's done so many times before.

"Knowing her — her competitive drive — if anyone could be ready to go when the gun goes off, it will be Lindsey Vonn," U.S. Ski and Snowboard Association CEO Bill Marolt said.

Thomas Vonn thinks his wife might wind up sitting out a race or two before healing enough to be able to participate in later events.

"It is entirely possible that she could race in all five events and be fine. It is possible, for sure. I would be very, very surprised if she didn't race in anything," he told The Associated Press.

Still, he called the time since the injury "one of the more stressful weeks we've had ever in our lives ... and we still don't know what the outcome will be."

His wife did her best to smile through all of the camera clicks at Wednesday's news conference, but she also paused and sighed occasionally while talking about the pain in her leg and the possibility of needing to pull out of one — or all — of her five events. She described herself as "very emotional, very scared."

"It's hard to stay positive, you know," said the 25-year-old Vonn, who lives and trains in Vail, Colo. "A week ago ... I was feeling great, I was feeling healthy, I had no problems. And now I'm sitting here today questioning whether I'll be even able to ski. So it's not where I want to be, by any means."

She was in a far better place Jan. 31, when she won a World Cup super-G at St. Moritz, Switzerland, to clinch that discipline title and extend her lead in the overall standings heading into the Olympics. Two days later, Vonn was taking some extra slalom training when she jammed a ski tip, toppled over and slammed her right boot against her leg.

It was the first run of what was supposed to be a three-day pre-Olympics camp. She hasn't skied since getting hurt Feb. 2, and said it's even been arduous to simply put on a ski boot in her hotel room to test the leg. Vonn said the bruising covers about a 6-inch swath — starting from where the top of a boot rests against her body — but she refused to have an X-ray done to check whether she broke a bone because she didn't want to know.

Twitter time: Getting the message out in 140 characters or less

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — What if the Miracle on Ice players had Twitter accounts?

Or if the sprinters who raised their gloved fists on the medal stand could have shared their thoughts on Facebook?

Thanks to laptops, cell phones and other new technology, social networking could be the route the next transformative Olympian uses to get the word out.

Skaters, skiers, hockey players and the reporters who cover them now have almost instant access to their fans and readers at what has long been, for better and worse, one of the most grandiose stages for message-sending.

When the torch is lit Friday, it will mark the beginning of the Twitter Olympics era — the first games where social networking and sports collide on a global platform that only the Olympics can provide.

"I'm sure I'll be flooding tons of photos and tons of stories and glimpses from behind the scenes," said Shaun White, the defending Olympic halfpipe gold medalist. "Because, really, what an interesting and cool time to be sharing with everyone."

White is among the hundreds of athletes who have Twitter and Facebook accounts — or spaces on similar sites — with plans to use them over the 17-day sports festival.

Meanwhile, the traditional media is using social networking to try to build audiences that have been fragmenting of late. Reporters from The Associated Press, for instance, will be tweeting from venues and using those posts to link readers to stories on hundreds of customers' Web sites. The AP also has a Winter Olympics Facebook page that includes a mix of stories from its traditional wire service and short blog entries from on-site reporters.

"Like many media companies, we are trying new methods to disseminate and gather information — in this case from athletes and others attending the Olympics," said Lou Ferrara, AP's managing editor for sports, entertainment and interactive media. "We want to give the audience what it wants and where they want it."

Of course, with technology comes confusion, and there's already been some of that.

Knowing the social networking craze was coming, the International Olympic Committee put out a four-page blogging guideline that supplements Rule 49 of the Olympic charter, which essentially states that only journalists can act as journalists at the games, while athletes and coaches cannot.

The addendum says blogs are permitted, so long as they are diary-like in nature, don't include live action or ceremonies and don't give "newsy" updates, such as injury reports or information about rivaling countries.

Bob Condron, spokesman at the U.S. Olympic Committee, said Twitter posts — with their abbreviation-inducing 140-character limits — are considered allowable by the IOC, which didn't specifically mention that site in its rules.

"The IOC considers blogging, in accordance with these Guidelines, as a legitimate form of personal expression and not as a form of journalism," the rule states.

Prohibited in that personal form of expression, however, are any attempts to promote non-Olympic sponsors — a sticking point between the Olympic powers and the athletes who often struggle to cash in on the success of their Olympic journeys.

Oh, and there is the ever-present reminder not to use the Olympics as a political stage — a rule that has long been the crux of a sticky debate about whether the Olympics are just a simple sports festival, or something much more.

"It was pretty crazy to see what we are not allowed to do or supposed to say," said short-track speedskater J.R. Celski, a frequent tweeter. "No advertising and just making sure you are positive, but it's understandable."

Lindsey Vonn recently told her 35,000-plus followers that she would not be posting Twitter updates because of Olympic blackout rules — then came back a day later and said she would.

"Contrary to what I was told it turns out that I am allowed to continue to tweet and facebook during the Olympics!" she wrote on Facebook. "Yay!! I have to follow very specific rules though: (Did you guys really think you were going to get rid of me that easily?! I'm back baby!!"

But when news of her injured shin broke — an update that could not only impact her, but the entire tenor of the Olympics — there was no mention of it on her Twitter feed. Instead, Vonn revealed the news in an interview with NBC, which bankrolls the Olympic movement to the tune of $2 billion over four years.

While Vonn graces the cover of Sports Illustrated and has sponsors aplenty, athletes such as Jeret "Speedy" Peterson are always looking for ways to get the word out. Peterson, the aerials skier whose trademark "Hurricane" jump could give him his 15 minutes of fame come Feb. 22, is at 2,000 fans and climbing on Facebook — and knows the Olympics could be his last, best chance to augment the fan base.

"It's free, it's instantaneous and it's real," he said. "It's my message and it's not filtered. That kind of convenience is a huge thing for people."

What has yet to be seen is whether the information will spark something transformative — think sprinters John Carlos and Tommie Smith raising their fists on the podium in the pre-cell-phone days of 1968 — or wind up only as more noise in the machine.

"I guess they have the opportunity to express their feelings and emotions on the computer," Carlos said. "That in itself would be a statement made. But my thing was very clear. I don't know if they could express the statement we made in Mexico on the computer."

Waltrip not approaching Daytona 500 as last race

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — As Michael Waltrip prepared for what could be the final Daytona 500 of his career, he took exception when someone described him as "a pretty good driver."

Pretty good drivers don't last 25 years at NASCAR's top level.

Pretty good drivers don't get two different opportunities to drive for Dale Earnhardt.

Pretty good drivers don't win two Daytona 500s.

"I haven't been able to let that go in my brain because I think I am at least a good driver," Waltrip said Wednesday. "I'm better than pretty good. I think what says a lot about my character and attitude is that when I lined up to run the 2001 Daytona 500 I was 0 for 462, that's what the record said."

"But I was convinced that I was going to win that race. I believed in my heart that I had the tools, and I knew I had the ability to win that race. And I don't know of very many people in this sport who could have lost NASCAR driver Michael Waltrip walks through the garage area during practice at the Daytona International Speedway in Daytona Beach, Fla., Thursday.

462 races and lined up in a car and driven to a win in their 463rd race."

The record book shows that Waltrip is 4 for 759, and it's not totally clear just how many races will be added to that total. Faced with a decision to prolong his driving career or focus on the continued growth of Michael Waltrip Racing, he had to think of the betterment of his race team.

It meant turning his car over to free agent Martin Truex Jr., and scaling back into a much more limited schedule. Only sponsorship didn't develop the way Waltrip had hoped, and he headed into the season with only the season-opening Daytona 500 secure on his schedule.

He's since put together a deal that will likely allow him to race at Talladega Superspeedway in April, but Waltrip feels confident this is likely his final 500.

And his participation in Sunday's season-opener isn't even guaranteed.

Waltrip must earn his way into the starting lineup via one of Thursday's qualifying races. He can win a spot in the 43-car field by either claiming one of the two "transfer" spots in his race, or, if Bill Elliott, Scott Speed or Bobby Labonte should claim a transfer spot, Waltrip would make the race based on his speed from qualifying.

He's not worried, even though he joked about the three spins he's had down the back straightaway this Speedweeks.

"I've gone down it three times backward, and it's the only straight part of the entire track, so I can't figure that out," he said. "But I'm actually really encouraged, and I don't think making the race is going to be a problem."

Even if it was, Waltrip would likely find a way to overcome it.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

On May 20, 2010, at the hour of 11:00 o'clock AM of said day, at First American Title Co., 199 Country Lane, Jerome, Idaho, JUST LAW, INC., as Successor Trustee, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder, for cash, in lawful money of the United States, all payable at the time of sale, the following described real property, situated in the County of Jerome, State of Idaho, and described as follows to wit:

Lot 14 in Block 5, Hillcrest Subdivision to the City of Jerome, Jerome County, Idaho, as the same is platted in the official plat thereof, now of record in the office of the recorder of said County.

The Trustee has no knowledge of a more particular description of the above referenced real property, but for purposes of compliance with Section 60-113 Idaho Code, the Trustee has been informed the address of 246 Mountain View Dr., Jerome, ID, is sometimes associated with the said real property.

This Trustee's Sale is subject to a bankruptcy filing, a payoff, a reinstatement or any other conditions of which the Trustee is not aware that would cause the cancellation of this sale. Further, if any of these conditions exist, this sale may be null and void, and the successful bidder's funds shall be returned, and the Trustee and the Beneficiary shall not be liable to the successful bidder for any damages.

Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, possessions or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the Deed of Trust executed by Ellen Shepherd, a married person as her sole and separate property, as Grantor(s) with Mortgage Electronic Registration Systems, Inc. as the Beneficiary, under the Deed of Trust recorded September 29, 2006, as Instrument No. 2066025, in the records of Jerome County, Idaho. The Beneficial interest of said Deed of Trust was subsequently assigned to Midfirst Bank, recorded December 30, 2009, as Instrument No. 2096389, in the records of said County. THE ABOVE GRANTORS ARE NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506(4)(a), IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THEY ARE, OR ARE NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION.

The default for which this sale is to be made is the failure to pay the amount due under the certain Promissory Note and Deed of Trust, in the amounts called for thereunder as follows: Monthly payments in the amount of $665.92 for the months of September 2009 through and including to the date of sale, together with late charges and monthly payments accruing. The sum owing on the obligation secured by said Deed of Trust is $94,396.45 as principal, plus service charges, attorney's fees, costs of this foreclosure, any and all funds expended by Beneficiary to protect their security interest, and interest accruing at the rate of 7.25% from August 1, 2009, together with delinquent taxes plus penalties and interest to the date of sale.

The Beneficiary elects to sell or cause the trust property to be sold to satisfy said obligation.

Dated this 12th day of January, 2010.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

On June 3, 2010, at the hour of 12:00 o'clock PM of said day, at Land Title and Escrow, Inc., 706 Main Street, Gooding, Idaho, JUST LAW, INC., as Successor Trustee, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder, for cash, in lawful money of the United States, all payable at the time of sale, the following described real property, situated in the County of Gooding, State of Idaho, and described as follows to wit:

Lots 23 and 24 in Block 19, Gooding Townsite, Gooding County, Idaho, as the same is platted in the official plat thereof, now of record in the office of the Recorder of said County.

The Trustee has no knowledge of a more particular description of the above referenced real property, but for purposes of compliance with Section 60-113 Idaho Code, the Trustee has been informed the address of 445 Montana St., Gooding, ID, is sometimes associated with the said real property.

This Trustee's Sale is subject to a bankruptcy filing, a payoff, a reinstatement or any other conditions of which the Trustee is not aware that would cause the cancellation of this sale. Further, if any of these conditions exist, this sale may be null and void, the successful bidder's funds shall be returned, and the Trustee and the Beneficiary shall not be liable to the successful bidder for any damages.

Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, possessions or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the Deed of Trust executed by Patty A Suesz, an unmarried woman, as Grantor(s) with Nationstar Mortgage LLC fka Centex Home Equity Company, LLC as the Beneficiary, under the Deed of Trust recorded May 15, 2002, as Instrument No. 195297, in the records of Gooding County, Idaho.

THE ABOVE GRANTORS ARE NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506(4)(a), IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THEY ARE, OR ARE NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION.

The default for which this sale is to be made is the failure to pay the amount due under the certain Promissory Note and Deed of Trust, in the amounts called for thereunder as follows:

Monthly payments in the amount of $326.86 for the months of September 2009 through and including to the date of sale, together with late charges and monthly payments accruing. The sum owing on the obligation secured by said Deed of Trust is $34,999.84 as principal, plus service charges, attorney's fees, costs of this foreclosure, any and all funds expended by Beneficiary to protect their security interest, and interest accruing at the rate of 5.0% from August 1, 2009, together with delinquent taxes plus penalties and interest to the date of sale.

The Beneficiary elects to sell or cause the trust property to be sold to satisfy said obligation.

Dated this 28th day of January, 2010.

LEGAL NOTICE*U.S. FISH AND WILDLIFE SERVICE PROPOSED DESIGNATION OF CRITICAL HABITAT FOR BULL TROUT
REGIONWIDE OPEN HOUSES AND PUBLIC HEARING IN BOISE, IDAHO

On January 14, 2010, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (Service) published in the Federal Register (FR 75.9. 2270-2431) a proposed rule designating critical habitat for bull trout (Salvelinus confluentus) throughout its range in the lower 48 states, which includes Idaho, Oregon, Washington, Montana and Nevada.

PUBLIC PARTICIPATION: Informed and active public participation in this process is encouraged through public comment and public hearing opportunities, and is vital to the decision to be made by the Service.

BOISE, IDAHO OPEN HOUSE: The Service will hold an Open House to provide information about the proposed rule, and staff will be available to answer questions from the public. The Open House will be held on February 25, 2010, at the Boise Centre on the Grove, 850 W. Front St., Boise, Idaho, from 4 to 6 p.m. The Service will also accept written comments at this meeting. The Service will host the following Open Houses in Oregon, Washington, Montana and Nevada:

- February 2, 2010, 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.: Bend, Oregon: Hollingshead Bam, 1235 NE Jones Road
- February 3, 2010, 6 p.m. to 8 p.m.: Chiloquin, Oregon: Chiloquin Community Center, 140 S. 1st Street
- February 4, 2010, 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.: LaGrande, Oregon: Blue Mountain Conference Center, 404 12th Street

- February 23, 2010, 6 p.m. to 8 p.m.: Wenatchee, Washington: Wenatchee-Okanogon National Forest Headquarters, 215 Melody Lane
- February 25, 2010, 4 p.m. to 6 p.m.: Boise, Idaho: Boise Centre on the Grove, 850 W. Front Street.

PUBLIC HEARING: A public hearing will be held the same day as the Open House, February 25, 2010, at the Boise Centre on the Grove, 850 W. Front St., Boise, Idaho. The public hearing will be from 7 to 9 p.m. The Service will accept formal oral testimony from the public at this hearing.

ORAL TESTIMONY AT A PUBLIC HEARING: Testimony will be accepted between 7 and 9 p.m. Oral testimony will be recorded, and all testimony will be part of the public record. Oral comments will be limited in length to accommodate all speakers. Anyone wishing to make oral comments for the record at the public hearing is encouraged to also provide a written copy of their statement and present it at the hearing.

WRITTEN COMMENTS: There are no limits to the length of written comments presented at the hearing or mailed to the Service. Written and oral comments are given the same consideration.

Comments must be received by March 15, 2010. Written comments on the proposed critical habitat revision and on the draft economic analysis can be submitted by one of the following methods:

- Federal eRulemaking Portal: <http://www.regulations.gov>. In the box that reads "Enter Keyword or ID," enter the docket number for this proposed rule, which is FWS-R1-ES-2009-0085. Check the box that reads "Open for Comment/Submission," and then click the Search button. You should then see an icon that reads "Submit a Comment." Please ensure that you have found the correct rulemaking before submitting your comment.
- U.S. mail or hand-delivery: Public Comments Processing, Attn: RIN 1018-AW88; Division of Policy and Directives Management; U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service; 4401 N. Fairfax Drive, Suite 222; Arlington, VA 22203.
- Hand deliver written comments at an Open House public informational meeting.

We will post all comments on <http://www.regulations.gov>. This generally means that we will post any personal information you provide.

BACKGROUND:

The Service proposes to designate approximately 22,679 miles of streams and 533,426 acres of lakes and reservoirs in Idaho, Oregon, Washington, Montana and Nevada as critical habitat for the wide-ranging fish. The proposal includes 985 miles of marine shoreline in Washington.

If finalized, the proposal would increase the amount of stream miles designated as bull trout critical habitat in the five states by 18,851 miles and the amount of lakes and reservoirs designated as critical habitat by 390,208 acres. This includes approximately 166 miles of critical habitat proposed in the Jarbidge River basin, where no critical habitat was designated in 2005. No change is proposed in the 985 miles of marine shoreline in Washington that were designated in 2005.

State-by-state descriptions of the critical habitat units, maps, photographs, general biological information and other materials may be found at <http://www.fws.gov/pacific/bulltrout>

NOTICE OF PROPOSED CHANGE TO WATER RIGHTS

THE CITY OF PAUL, PO BOX 130,152 S 600 W; PAUL ID 83347 has filed Application No. 75971 for changes to water Right Nos. 36-4083, 36-7206, 36-7899, & 36-8763 within MINIDOKA County. The transfer proposes to add existing wells as additional authorized points of diversion to the City of Paul groundwater Municipal rights, allowing any of the rights to be diverted from any of three existing wells for the diversion of up to 5.26 cfs. The points of diversion are located within the City of Paul Municipal service area.*** DONALD JOHN AARDEMA, 2306 E 3600 S, WENDELL, ID 83355 has filed Application No. 75846 for changes to the water Right Nos. 36-2726C, 36-2726D, 36-15258C, 36-15256D, & 36-8169 within GOODING County. This application proposes to dry up land along the canyon rim to provide additional water for an existing dairy about 1 NE of the current place of use. No new wells will be drilled as a result of this transfer. The existing water rights for the dairy are also included in the transfer so that the points of diversion and place of use can be described correctly. The dairy is located 6 1/2 miles south and 2 3/8 miles east of the Wendell city center and on the north side of the 3600 South Road.*** PEREIRA DAIRY LLC, 1235 EAST 1220 NORTH, RICHFIELD, ID 83301 has filed Application No. 76139 for changes to water Right Nos. 36-16380, 36-16674, & 36-16676 within JEROME County. Transfer proposes converting an 8.33 acre portion of two irrigation rights currently diverted from two wells located on a farm approximately 6.4-7.4 miles north and 7.3-8.3 miles west of Paul to uses associated with the expansion of an existing dairy operation located approximately 4.3 miles north of Richfield. Transfer proposes diverting 0.16 cfs and 25 AFA from an existing well for use at the dairy facility.*** WYNN DEWSNUP FAMILY REVOCABLE TRUST, PO BOX 767, RUPERT, ID 83350 has filed Application No. 76133 for changes to Water Right Nos. 43-116, 43-117, 43-118, 43-119, 43-2509B, 43-2299B, 43-2387, 43-2285B, 43-82A, 43-2386A, 43-2554B, 43-10517, 43-13103, & 43-13656 within CASSIA County. This application proposes to dry up irrigated land to provide water for a new dairy to be built on the same land. One new well will be drilled, and some existing irrigation wells may also provide water for the dairy as needed. The dairy will be located about 1 1/2 miles east and 13 1/2 miles south of Malta.***To see a full description of these rights and the proposed transfers, please see www.idwr.idaho.gov/apps/ExtSearch/WRF/IDWR/IDWR.asp. Protests may be submitted based on the criteria of Idaho Code Sec. 42-222. Any protest against a proposed change must be filed with the Department of Water Resources, Southern Region, 1341 Fillmore St, Suite 200, Twin Falls ID 83301 together with a protest fee of $25.00 for each application on or before February 22, 2010. # SUDOKU

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Concepts Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

Today is Thursday, Feb. 11, the 42nd day of 2010. There are 323 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On Feb. 11, 1960, "Tonight Show" host Jack Paar stunned his audience by walking off the program in a dispute with NBC over its decision to censor an anecdote he'd quoted the night before having to do with a misunderstanding over the British term "W.C." (short for "water closet," or bathroom). Despite his very public resignation, Paar returned to the Tonight Show less than a month later.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1812, Massachusetts Gov. Elbridge Gerry signed a re-districting law favoring his party — giving rise to the term "gerrymandering."

In 1858, a French girl, Bernadette Soubirous (soo-bee-ROO'), reported the first of 18 visions of a lady dressed in white in a grotto near Lourdes. (The Catholic Church later accepted that the visions were of the Virgin Mary.)

In 1861, President-elect Abraham Lincoln departed Springfield, Ill. for Washington.

In 1929, the Lateran Treaty was signed, with Italy recognizing the independence and sovereignty of Vatican City.

In 1937, a six-week-old sit-down strike against General Motors ended, with the company agreeing to recognize the United Automobile Workers Union.

In 1945, President Franklin D. Roosevelt, British Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Soviet leader Josef Stalin signed the Yalta Agreement during World War II.

In 1975, Margaret Thatcher was elected leader of Britain's opposition Conservative Party.

In 1979, followers of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini (hoh-MAY'-nee) seized power in Iran.

In 1989, Reverend Barbara C. Harris became the first woman consecrated as a bishop in the Episcopal Church, in a ceremony held in Boston.

In 1990, South African black activist Nelson Mandela was freed after 27 years in captivity.

Ten years ago: The space shuttle Endeavour thundered away from Cape Canaveral on a mission to map the world as never before. Britain stripped Northern Ireland's Protestant-Catholic government of power in a bid to prevent its collapse over the IRA's refusal to disarm. French movie director Roger Vadim (roh-ZHAY' vah-DEEM') died in Paris at age 72.

Five years ago: Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld made an unannounced visit to Iraq, where he observed Iraqi security forces and declared "there's no question progress has been made" in preparing the nation for building a new government. CNN chief news executive Eason Jordan quit amid a furor over remarks he'd made about journalists being targeted by the U.S. military in Iraq. Samuel W. Alderson, inventor of crash test dummies, died in Marina Del Rey, Calif. at age 90.

One year ago: The nation's top bankers went before the House Financial Services Committee, pledging to build public trust with greater lending and fewer perks. Stewart Parnell, owner of Peanut Corp. of America, repeatedly invoked his right not to incriminate himself at a House Energy and Commerce subcommittee hearing on a salmonella outbreak that had sickened hundreds. All-Star shortstop Miguel Tejada pleaded guilty to lying to Congress about steroids in baseball. (He was sentenced to a year's probation.) President Robert Mugabe (moo-GAH'-bay) swore in long-time rival Morgan Tsvangirai (SVAHNG'-ur-eye) as Zimbabwe's prime minister. Estelle Bennett, 67, one of the singing trio Ronettes, was found dead in her home in Englewood, N.J.

DEAR ABBY: My husband, "Kent," and I enjoy entertaining. We often throw birthday parties for friends, as well as holiday parties and dinners and barbecues during the summer. The problem is, whenever we receive an invitation to attend a gathering at someone else's home, Kent responds with, "Ask them to come here." I think this is rude because our friends are just reciprocating.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

This issue came up twice last week. When I asked Kent why he doesn't like to go to our friends' homes, he says he prefers to entertain in his own house. I don't think it is good manners to ask a host to move the party to our home.

Incidentally, when we do go, Kent always enjoys himself, so it's not social anxiety, and he's definitely not shy. Would you tell me if I'm making too much of this?

— EMBARRASSED
IN ALASKA

DEAR EMBARRASSED: I don't think so. While your husband's impulse to host the party might seem generous the first few times the offer is extended — after a while the burden of gratitude can hang heavy and destroy friendships. That's why it is important for people to be able to reciprocate — and for others to allow them to.

DEAR ABBY: I have been dating a man for four years. I told him I am ready to end our relationship if he isn't ready to get married within the next year.

Two months ago, he gave me a beautiful 2 1/2-carat diamond ring and announced to family and friends that we are engaged. He has not discussed any wedding plans, but he says the wedding will be within the time frame I am asking for.

I went to a jeweler today to have the band on my ring enlarged a bit and was told that my stone is not a real diamond. Abby, this man owns his own business and is wealthy! He spends thousands on golf trips every year and just spent a great deal of money on high-end house furnishings.

My head is spinning. I am embarrassed to tell anyone of this fraud. What is your take on this? Do I confront him? Am I fooling myself thinking that this man truly wants to marry me?

— DUMBFUNDED OR JUST DUMB? IN FLORIDA

DEAR DUMBFUNDED: My "take" on this is that your fiancé was trying to pull a fast one. If he would behave this way about your engagement ring, what else would he be less than honest about in the future?

Whether you "confront" him or not depends upon how you define the word. If it were me, I'd remain calm, tell him what I'd learned and how, listen to what he had to say and take my cue from that.

DEAR ABBY: Please remind your readers that a nice thing to do on Valentine's Day is to go to a veteran's hospital to visit the veterans who are there — especially those from World War II, whose numbers are dwindling. The wards generally have parties going on for them. Try to attend. You'll find a group of very appreciative people there.

— SERVICE OFFICER
AMERICAN LEGION
POST IN MAINE

DEAR OFFICER: Thank you for a terrific suggestion. Valentine's Day — with all the marketing that goes with it — can be one of the most depressing days of the year for singles. A sure way to keep the blues away is to do something nice for someone else. What you're proposing not only fits that category, but also provides a way to meet other generous-hearted people. What better way to spend this coming Sunday afternoon?

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"Henceforth take warning by the fall Of cruel Barbara Allen." — Ballads

When opponents have confidently bid unopposed to game and you have an unpleasant surprise waiting for them, it is a bad idea to warn them.

West doubled today's final contract of four hearts and led the club 10 to the queen, king and ace. South appreciated that West's double must be based on a trump stack, so set about trying to score his trumps singly.

Declarer led his singleton diamond to dummy's ace, then ran the spade queen, which held. A diamond was ruffed back to hand, then came the spade ace, a spade ruff with dummy's heart two, and another diamond ruffed in hand. With seven tricks in the bag, South next played a low club, on which West made the natural move of discarding his last spade, leaving himself with just his five trumps.

East won the trick, but there was no longer any defense to the contract. Whether East played a club or a spade, West could do no better than ruff low. Declarer could overruff in dummy, ruff a diamond with the heart ace, and ruff a club with the heart queen for the 10th trick.

The defenders had missed their chance. When declarer plays a low club at trick eight, West must ruff his partner's winner rather than discard, then continue with the heart king! (A low heart would not be good enough.) Now declarer ends up a trick short.

ANSWER: Two spades is an "impossible" bid. Since your partner denied four spades at his first turn, the call is not natural. Instead, it should logically be played as a good raise to three clubs — the direct club raise would suggest more trumps and fewer high cards. You do have aces, but also a minimum. Bid three clubs now and wait to see if your partner can produce a further call.

WARNING
When purchasing a vehicle, make sure that the title is in the name of the seller. Under Idaho motor vehicle code a vehicle cannot be sold unless the title is in the name of the seller (exception: Idaho licensed dealer). The seller shall provide the new purchaser a signed bill of sale showing the following: Full description of the vehicle, vehicle identification number, amount paid and name(s) and address of the new purchaser. The bill of sale must be signed, dated and show actual mileage at the time of sale. If you have any questions, please contact your local assessor's office.
