Twin Falls High School pursues new school status

District redraws elementary school boundaries

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

Twin Falls School District administrators will head to Boise on Monday to present their request for "new school" status for Twin Falls High School.

Principal Ben Allen said the action is part of school restructuring which will, if approved by the Idaho Department of Education, provide a better picture of the school's success in meeting Adequate Yearly Progress, a measure of student development mandated by the federal No Child Left Behind Act.

Allen presented the restructuring plan to the district's school board during its Monday meeting.

For 2008-09, the school failed to meet AYP in reading and math. The school is "on alert" for reading, in which it has failed to meet AYP for six years.

Twin Falls High School is still a high-performing school, according to testing required under the federal law, but is still deemed as a school needing improvement.

"Overall, the school is performing very well in math and reading," Allen said. "We surpassed testing goals."

However, TFHS wants the fresh start it would receive with "new school" status, which would essentially reset the school's

Buhl man sentenced for hitting troopers with pickup

The Associated Press

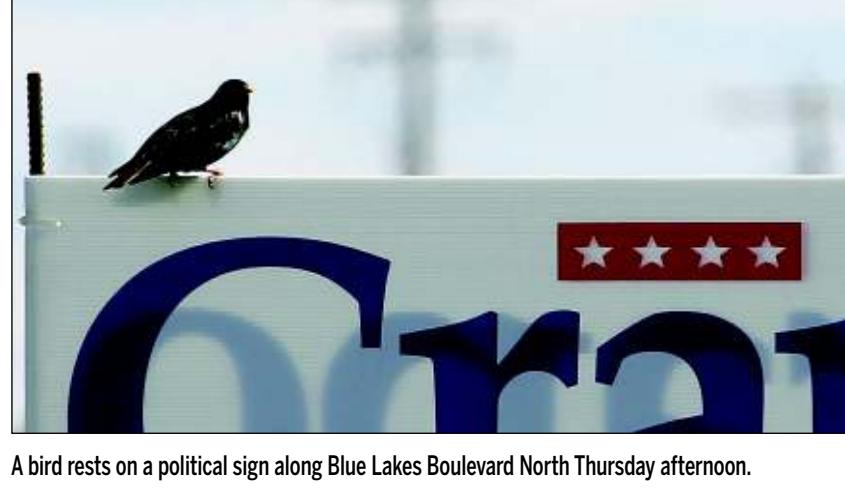

BOISE — A 30-year-old Buhl man has been sentenced to at least 40 years in prison for intentionally hitting two motorcycle officers with his pickup truck.

David Turnovec was sentenced Thursday by 4th District Judge Darla Williamson on two counts of aggravated battery on a law enforcement officer along with a weapon enhancement. He was given a 60-year term with the possibility of parole after 40.

Police say Turnovec was speeding on Oct. 22, 2009, when he drove into two Idaho State Police troopers parked along the Interstate 84 median in east Boise. Prosecutors say he was mad because a Boise motorcycle officer had cited him for speeding earlier that day.

One officer is still recovering while another is back at work.

Turnovec has been diagnosed with paranoid schizophrenia, but was found competent to stand trial.

Road to election includes campaign signage rules

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

Whether your political blood runs red or blue, the rules for posting campaign signs are the same either way.

In general, political signs cannot be posted in the rights of way of roads — a rule that applies in Twin Falls, within the Twin Falls Highway District and on the major roads that the Idaho Transportation Department tends.

Beyond that rule — chiefly concerned with maintaining traffic safety — there's another one that applies within Twin Falls city limits. If you post a campaign sign on city property, it can be taken down and there's a cost to get it back: $25.

Aside from a couple cases, there haven't been many violations during this primary political season, a city official said.

"There's been a couple that were put in the city right of way and they were more of a sight obstruction than anything," said Sean Standley, the city's code enforcement officer. "They were put up at an intersection."

There have been a couple cases of improperly placed signs at City Park and the intersection of Blue Lakes Boulevard and Addison Avenue.

"They're pretty good at complying with our sign code," Standley said of residents' cooperation.

When factoring in the right of way distance from the edge of a road, placing a sign 10 feet from the pavement is a good starting point, Standley said, adding that it's important to get permission from private property owners before posting signs.

In Twin Falls, political signs can go up 60 days before an election and need to be taken down two days after an election. That means motorists and walkers will get a break from political signage in Twin Falls between the May 25 primaries and September, when signs can pop

GOP commission candidates spur post-Mikesell campaigning in forum

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

Twin Falls County Republicans got a closer, albeit brief, glimpse Wednesday night into the views of the three candidates seeking their party's nomination for District 2 Twin Falls County commissioner.

Incumbent Tom Mikesell's May 3 withdrawal from his bid for re-election altered the landscape of the May 25 primary election. At Wednesday's Twin Falls Republican Central Committee forum, contenders Leon Mills, Jim Schouten and Roger Ursenbach Sr., were given three minutes to present their platforms and another few minutes to answer questions.

Mills, a longtime Twin Falls resident, said he's running because he's "into service and making the community better."

Heyburn mink farm opposes planned commercial development

By Laurie Welch
Times-News writer

HEYBURN — Potential concessions made for the private lives of mink may delay a proposed Heyburn commercial development.

Developers seeking the rezoning of 71.5 acres north of Heyburn's 21st Street met opposition from a Moyle Mink and Tannery representative during a Wednesday public hearing on the rezoning request in front of the Heyburn City Council.

Developers, including

Alfresco LLC, are seeking a change from agricultural low zoning to commercial general zoning for the parcel along 21st street between the mink farm and the McBride addition to the east. They are also seeking city approval of a preliminary plat for the project.

They plan to market the project as Alfresco Parkway, which may eventually house up to two hotels, several restaurants, a movie theater, commercial and retail space and parking.

"With the development of hotels and a theater there will be a lot of ambient light," said Moyle Mink's attorney, Lance Loveland. "The light in a hotel on 24 hours a day is going to affect the animals significantly."

He said the mink company produces 30,000 to 60,000 pelts a year, and mink are very sensitive to light, which can affect their molting and breeding patterns.

Loveland said Moyle Mink was established in 1939 and during the last 30 years has contributed up to $90 million to the Mini-Cassia economy. The company employs between 50 and 60

'Napoleon Dynamite 2'? Not freakin' likely Heck! In some of the worst flippin' news for small-town Idaho in years, movie director Jared Hess says he's not much interested in making a sequel to "Napoleon Dynamite."

"When sequels are an afterthought, they usually end up being bad but when they were originally intended to have multiple films made of the same story, when they're conceived that way, I think it works," Hess told the online entertainment news website starpulse.com. "But often times when sequels are done just because the first one was successful and they do it for that, I don't know."

Gosh!

"Napoleon Dynamite," the 2004 film starring Preston, Idaho, made $46 million. And it absolutely nailed what it's like to live in rural southern Idaho.

Napoleon plays tetherball. Dotes on Tater Tots. Wears vintage T-shirts tucked into waist-high beltless jeans, and sports black moon boots and steel-rimmed glasses. He's active in the FFA.

And he joined Preston High's sign-language club "cause I didn't have a freakin' choice. All the other sweet clubs were filled up."

Sweet!

Understand? Smashing in the face of a piñata that resembles (the most popular girl at the school) is a disgrace to you, me, and the entire Gem State."

Jon Heder, the actor who played Napoleon, and Efren Sanchez, who was Pedro, have both said they're ready to re-up for the sequel. But Hess isn't sure it would be the same.

"...it'd be interesting to see how it would be received doing it but I don't know if people would ask for too much money to do it and that definitely would taint the creative process, people getting a real big paycheck just to do a sequel!"

back up again prior to Election Day.

Idaho Transportation Department crews pull political signs in right-of-way areas of highways when going about their maintenance work, said Nathan Jerke, ITD spokesman. Rights of way vary along the highway, so it's necessary to be familiar with your property boundaries, Jerke said.

By law, ITD keeps signs for owners to claim until 10 days after the election before pitching them. There's no fee for sign retrieval.

In the Twin Falls Highway District, rights of way extend 25 feet from the center line of the road.

Karen Dalton, administrator of the Twin Falls Highway District, said the district is alerted to signs improperly posted in rights of way by the public and political opponents.

"We'll pull it and usually try to get a hold of them," she said of the signs and their owners.

AYP scorecard.

Allen said TFHS is an entirely different school than last year due to the opening of Canyon Ridge High School.

Allen said half of faculty members are new to the school, as are nearly 70 percent of administrators.

"Our goal is to become a Blue Ribbon school, where we are meeting goals across the board," Allen said. "We need to make sure we don't slip back but only continue moving forward and making the gains we have. We anticipate that we will be granted the status but will have to wait until June to find out."

According to the school's AYP report card, 81.91 percent of students are proficient in math, while 90.69 percent are proficient in reading. Goals for the subjects are 70 percent and 78 percent, respectively.

This year, the school's "Students With Disabilities" subgroup failed to meet AYP proficiency and didn't meet a goal for the number of students tested. The Hispanic subgroup failed to reach AYP with 65.88 percent proficiency in math.

"We want parents to see the accomplishments the school has made and we see these indicators as a positive thing," Allen said. "It's made us dig into the data and focus in on students who may need a little help."

Mary Lu Barry, secondary programs director, said the school's AYP standing shows many academic gains, and doesn't think it will worry parents.

"The numbers actually validate the school's improved efforts and student achievement," Barry said.

In other district news, the board approved a plan to change the boundaries of its elementary schools. The redistricting will ease enrollment at I.B. Perrine Elementary School, which has nearly 710 students, far more than any other elementary school within the district.

The approval means 70 Perrine students will attend Morningside, Lincoln or Harrison elementary schools next year.

"The consensus is that we don't particularly like this, but even the families affected by this understand that Perrine was crowded," said Elementary Education Director Ted Popplewell.

Interim St. Luke's CEO eager to tackle position

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

The interim head of St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center says he's eager to tackle the job and leave a legacy of employee development during his year at the helm.

St. Luke's officials said late last month that Mike Reno, a consultant helping the Twin Falls hospital adopt the "Lean" production system used by Toyota Motor Corp., will now head the medical facility as it searches for a new CEO. Former CEO Mark Schwartz's resignation was announced April 19; a nationwide search is planned for his successor.

In a conversation with the Times-News on Tuesday, Reno said he wants to do more than just fill in during his time at the hospital, and is excited to aggressively tackle the issues before him, including a May 21, 2011, move to the hospital's new facility across town. He noted the good timing that allowed St. Luke's Health System CEO Dr. David Pate, a past associate, to tab him for the job after Reno had spent a couple months getting to know hospital staff in his consultant role.

"Timing is everything," said Reno, who worked for hospital systems in Texas and Pennsylvania before joining RWD Technologies of Baltimore, Md. "I can't imagine walking in here last week without the opportunity to meet (everyone)."

Reno had hoped to one day serve in a CEO position over a hospital, he said; he joined RWD in part to round out his skill set.

While managing the complex hospital move, revising its strategic plan and dealing with industry-wide issues of health care, he said he also hopes to "re-engineer" how hospital employees do their work, pushing for a higher quality of work while respecting "staff's time and effort."

Both the hospital's board of directors, who met him at a retreat this weekend, and administrators welcomed Reno to the job and said they're confident of where they're going. The board, largely comprised of area residents, approved Reno's appointment unanimously, said board chairman and retired doctor Russ Newcomb.

"This has been ... probably as smooth a transition as we could have hoped for," said John Groesbeck, the hospital's chief financial officer.

Blaine Co. teachers propose high school switch to semester system

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — Blaine County School District trustees want more information before they consider scheduling classes at Wood River High School through a system similar to that of many U.S. colleges.

Wood River High School Principal John Blackman approached the school board Tuesday night with a proposal to ditch the school's current trimester system, in hopes that the board will take action at next month's meeting.

"We've outgrown the trimester system," Blackman said.

The school adopted the trimester system, which divides the school year into three parts, more than 15 years ago to allow students to take more elective classes, Blackman said.

Blackman said as class requirements have changed and enrollment in advanced placement courses has increased, the planned implementation of the district's dual immersion and international baccalaureate classes will become a problem in the trimester system.

Blackman said scheduling difficulties with the system force students to forgo electives for required classes, and have led to scheduling gaps leading some students to go up to six months without taking a math class.

gotta tell you," said Trustee Steve Guthrie.

Trustee Mari Beth Matthews questioned how many teachers were behind the proposal, to which Blackman replied "most of the staff."

Blackman said the academic council would like permission to receive training necessary to begin constructing a flex schedule, and asked trustees to move quickly to prepare for the start of the 2010-11 school year.

Board President Julie Dahlgren said she wanted to proceed cautiously, as she's concerned with how the community might react when they hear about the "free time" the schedule could provide students.

Trustee Paul Bates suggested a workshop to study the proposal. And Superintendent Lonnie Barber proposed that the committee work out a sample schedule to present to the board.

Blackman said Wednesday that he understood the board's reluctance to act right away since the information he'd presented was new.

"It's a big decision to change the entire infrastructure, and you don't do that on a whim," he said. "I fully understand where they're coming from."

The proposal caught the board off guard.

Murtaugh School District passes supplemental levy

Times-News

Voters in the Murtaugh School District on Thursday night passed a two-year supplemental levy by a strong 72 percent approval rating.

Murtaugh School District Superintendent Michelle Capps said Thursday evening the supplemental levy that will garner the district a total of $300,000 over two years, passed with 114 votes in favor and 45 votes in opposition.

The levy carries a tax rate of $131.40 per $100,000 of assessed property value in the school district.

The supplemental levy will help offset state cuts to public education, said Capps, adding the school district hasn't had to run a levy in more than 15 years.

Statewide, public schools will receive $128 million less state funding in fiscal year 2011, which begins in July, than they received this year.

The levy will allow the Murtaugh School District to "basically maintain business as usual," and provide funding for salaries, benefits and school supplies that would otherwise be cut, Capps said.

On Tuesday night, voters in Kimberly and Dietrich also passed supplemental levies for their respective districts.

Elgee has repeatedly second-guessed the Idaho legislature and local governments in passing laws. After Elgee struck down the felony domestic battery statute, he was reversed by the Idaho Supreme Court which said courts "are obligated to seek an interpretation of a statute that upholds its constitutionality." Elgee's decisions dismissing nearly a dozen DUI cases on double jeopardy grounds were similarly rejected. Elgee has struck down countless ordinances of local governments. Recently, the Idaho Supreme Court found that Elgee exceeded his jurisdiction in yet another land use case. And Elgee claims not to be a judicial activist.

Ward: McCain campaign kept him from voting in '08

By Jessie L. Bonner
Associated Press writer

BOISE — U.S. House hopeful Vaughn Ward worked on Sen. John McCain's bid for the presidency two years ago, but he didn't vote for him — or anyone else — in the 2008 general election.

Ward told The Associated Press on Thursday that his job as Nevada director for McCain's presidential bid made it difficult to break away from the frenzied pace that defined the final days in a key battleground state.

"I was managing the entire operation, and it became apparent I was not going to be able to fly home to vote," Ward said. "The important point is I was out there fighting for the campaign."

Ward also said the window for requesting an absentee ballot had closed by the time he realized he wouldn't be able to return as planned to cast his ballot in Idaho.

Ward registered to vote in the May 2008 primary with an Ada County address, a residence that belongs to his campaign treasurer Lowell Bengoechea, according to public records. Ward and his wife, Kristen, had lived with Bengoechea while they were shopping for a home in Eagle, he said. The couple now rents a home about a mile from Bengoechea's house. Ward also has a listed property in Cascade, Idaho, and a home in Virginia.

The U.S. Marine major is running in this month's GOP primary against state Rep. Raul Labrador, an attorney who voted both in the 2008 primary and general election, according to Ada County election records.

"Mr. Ward's use of a house that was not his residence as a registered place to vote is so clearly a part of a pattern of parachuting into a land that's not his," said Labrador spokesman Dennis Mansfield. "He's a homeowner in Virginia who slept on a couch in Idaho and didn't even bother to vote."

Ward has not endorsed McCain, who helped him launch his political career and now faces a strong primary challenge in Arizona from former Rep. J.D. Hayworth. McCain and former vice presidential candidate Sarah Palin have endorsed Ward.

During a live televised debate Tuesday, Ward pointed out that he and McCain differ on several issues, including global warming, immigration and not drilling in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge.

"I'm proud of the opportunity that I had to be a part of my party in our effort to try to gain control of the presidency," Ward said, "but that doesn't necessarily mean that I'm going to back anybody who was part of that effort." About 77 percent of Idaho's then 863,538 registered voters cast ballots in the 2008 presidential race, and 61 percent of voters chose Republican McCain as the candidate best equipped to manage the economic turmoil nationwide, an issue that was listed as their chief concern in an Associated Press exit poll.

While Ward didn't vote in the last general election, he emphasized that there are many ways to participate in the political process, such as working on a campaign or attending debates and volunteering.

Other border states shun Arizona's immigration law

By Elliot Spagat
Associated Press writer

SAN DIEGO — New Mexico's governor says it is a step backward. Texas isn't touching it. And California? Never again.

Arizona's sweeping new law empowering police to question and arrest anyone they suspect is in the U.S. illegally is finding little support in the other states along the Mexican border.

Among the reasons given: California, New Mexico and Texas have long-established, politically powerful Hispanic communities; they have deeper cultural ties to Mexico that influence their attitudes toward immigrants; and they have little appetite for a polarizing battle over immigration like one that played out in California in the 1990s.

But perhaps the biggest reason of all is that the illegal flow of people across the border is seen as a more acute problem, and a more dangerous one, in Arizona.

In the 1990s, the U.S. government added fences, stadium lights and more agents to the border in Southern California and Texas, forcing a shift in the flow of illegal immigrants that has now turned Arizona into the single biggest gateway for people sneaking into the country from Mexico. The influx has Hispanic populations.

California and Texas were forced to deal with illegal immigration decades ago. Both states saw surges in the 1980s because of Mexico's shaky economy and the civil wars that wracked Central America. But many who entered illegally became voters under a 1986 federal law that granted amnesty to 2.7 million people.

That political clout is evident today, with city councils from Oakland to San Diego condemning the Arizona law and 50,000 people demonstrating in Los Angeles on May 1 in support of immigrants. On Wednesday, Los Angeles became the nation's largest city to boycott Arizona over the law, when the City Council voted 13-1 for sanctions that could include canceling some $8 million in contracts.

The New Mexico Legislature is 44 percent Hispanic, followed by California at 23 percent, Texas at 20 percent and Arizona at 16 percent, according to the National Association of Latino Elected and Appointed Officials.

"The flow has moved east, and the debate has moved east as well," said Dan Schnur, director of the University of Southern California's Jesse M. Unruh Institute of Politics.

Arizona's population of illegal immigrants has increased fivefold since 1990 to around 500,000. The Tucson region replaced San Diego as the top place for Border Patrol arrests in 1998 and accounts for nearly half the total. And Phoenix has been dubbed the kidnapping capital of the U.S., with an average of one abduction per day in recent years.

The other border states have older, larger and more culturally entrenched and politically connected

FEC: Minnick rakes in cash ahead of May 25 primary

BOISE (AP) — Democratic U.S. Rep. Walt Minnick collected more than $100,000 in the last reporting period, topping the combined total raised by his two potential Republican rivals and stretching his significant lead in cash available for the general election in November.

From April 1 to May 5, the first-term congressman raised more than $117,000 and reports more than $935,000 in cash on hand. During the same period, Republican candidate Vaughn Ward brought in more than $55,000, mostly from individual donors, giving him $125,700 cash on hand. Ward's challenger in the May 25 primary, state Rep. Raul Labrador, collected $14,800 in donations and reported $35,900 in available cash.

Federal election rules require candidates to file financial reports for the five-week period. The deadline for those reports was Thursday. They are the last major campaign finance reports filed before the primary and give the most accurate snapshot of how the candidates are raising and spending money heading into the final push before a primary.

Minnick, who does not face a primary challenge, has continued to raise money in big chunks over the last week, according to a series of separate reports.

In the last seven days, Minnick has reported at least $17,500 in campaign donations of $1,000 or more. Under federal election law, candidates must report any contributions exceeding that amount or more within 48 hours inside the last 20 days of an election.

So far, neither Ward nor Labrador has reported any similar large contributions.

Last month, Ward's campaign reported having nearly $290,000 cash on hand for the period between Jan. 1 and April 1. But his campaign checkbook has been spent down in recent weeks in large part to pay for a second television ad now being broadcast in Idaho's 1st Congressional District's television markets, including Boise, Lewiston and Coeur d'Alene.

International curriculum blasted in North Idaho

COEUR d'ALENE (AP) — Foes of an internationally focused curriculum offered in some northern Idaho schools have been taking to the streets to publicize their fears that the program spreads anti-American ideology.

Kootenai County sheriff's deputies had to be called to keep protesters of the International Baccalaureate program at Hayden Meadows Elementary School from snarling traffic.

The protesters fear the advanced studies program, offered at the public school in Hayden Lake, as well as Lake City High School in Coeur d'Alene, is too closely linked to the United Nations.

Similar controversies emerged in Utah in 2008 and in Michigan in 2005. As a result, the International Baccalaureate organization has developed what it calls "a playbook" to counter opposition, emphasizing that the program isn't anti-American but focuses on providing a global education and critical-thinking skills.

In an event Monday at the Coeur d'Alene Public Library that attracted 100 people, foes of the program denied they were "members of any radical right-wing organizations, or left-wing for that matter."

Luke Sommer worries the program aims to undermine American values — and promote anti-American ideology.

"They want to change the way your child thinks, not feed your child's mind with information, and information about our history, heritage and why we believe what we believe," Sommer said.

The International Baccalaureate offers three programs for students through the age of 19 to "help develop the intellectual, personal, emotional and social skills to live, learn and work in a rapidly globalizing world," according to its website.

In a statement, the International Baccalaureate said the protesters' concerns are unfounded.

Man's identity still a mystery after Ore. court appearance

By William McCall
Associated Press writer

PORLAND, Ore. — A man accused of assuming the identity of a murdered Ohio boy refused to reveal his true name in his latest court appearance Thursday, leading a federal prosecutor to argue there's "a very serious reason why he's hiding it."

The Oregon man — who had claimed his name is Jason Robert Evers, a 3-year-old boy kidnapped and murdered in Cincinnati in 1982 — made an initial appearance Thursday in U.S. District Court in Portland following his extradition from Idaho.

Listed as John Doe in court documents, the man was arrested last month in Idaho on a charge of providing false information on a passport application.

"At this point in time the government does not know who this person is," said Stacie Beckerman, the assistant U.S. attorney prosecuting the case.

The man's attorney said one reason he has given for not disclosing his true name is safety, but she declined to elaborate.

For the last eight years, he worked as an Oregon Liquor Control Commission investigator, going through a state police background check that turned up nothing to stop him from being hired. His attorney said he has been placed on administrative leave from the OLCC pending the outcome of his case.

Susan Russell, the federal public defender assigned as his lawyer, told U.S. Magistrate Judge Dennis Hubel that federal prosecutors agreed there was no link to the murdered boy and "it was simply a name that was available publicly."

Russell asked that man be released for home detention with electronic monitoring

"At this point in time the government does not know who this person is."

— Stacie Beckerman, the assistant U.S. attorney prosecuting the fraud case against 'John Doe'

at his house near Bend, citing his community ties to Central Oregon, where he has worked for the state for years.

Beckerman, who raised concerns as to why the man is hiding his identity, requested that he be held in jail as a flight risk.

The judge agreed to hold him until the court could resolve questions about whether the man's refusal to reveal his true identity could lead to potential violations of the law while he is awaiting trial, such as driving with a license obtained with a false name or paying bills that could amount to fraud.

Beckerman argued that avoiding potential violations would be impossible because "his entire existence right now is fraudulent."

She said he has already caused problems for the liquor commission because he was falsely sworn as a law enforcement officer.

Beckerman said the case is being investigated by the U.S. State Department's Diplomatic Security Service because it began with the passport application charge.

She said after the court hearing that the agency is using "every investigative resource" but efforts to match the man's fingerprints have been unsuccessful so far.

Russell said the man has led "an otherwise law-abiding life" and moved to Oregon from Colorado to be near a woman Russell described as his "surrogate grandmother."

Haiti prosecutors seek six months in prison for Idaho missionary

By Jonathan M. Katz
Associated Press writer

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — A U.S. missionary should spend six months in prison for her failed attempt to remove 33 children from Haiti following the Jan. 12 earthquake, a prosecutor said Thursday on the first day of her trial.

Prosecutor Sonel Jean-Francois told the court that Laura Silsby knew she was breaking the law by trying to take the children without proper documents to an orphanage she was starting in the neighboring Dominican Republic.

"Laura recognized she violated the law," Jean-Francois said as lawyers and a small group of spectators crowded into a stifling hot tent in the parking lot of the quake-damaged courthouse.

He spoke after the Idaho woman testified. Silsby, who was leader of a group of Baptists detained by authorities, was the only person to testify on the first day of the trial. She spent much of the rest of the session reading the Bible.

The 40-year-old businesswoman told the court she thought the children were orphans whose homes were destroyed in the earthquake. An Associated Press investigation later revealed all the children had at least one living parent, who had turned their children over to the group in hopes of securing better lives for them.

"One week after the earthquake I left my family and my home to help children that had been orphaned in the earthquake," Silsby said. "We came here with a heart to help."

Silsby was originally charged with kidnapping and criminal association. She now faces one count of arranging illegal travel under a 1980 statute restricting travel out of Haiti signed by then-dictator Jean-Claude Duvalier.

A six-month sentence is the minimum jail time recommended under the law. She would receive credit for time served if convicted and sentenced to prison, prosecutors told the AP.

Silsby has been in custody since Jan. 29, when she and nine other Americans were detained at the Dominican border. The other missionaries have all been released and charges against them dismissed.

A defense request for her to be released immediately was denied.

Stennett is Democrats' best bet in District 25

Clint Stennett is a tough act to follow. In his 20 years in the Legislature, he not only became the Senate Democratic leader but earned a reputation as a natural resources specialist and a conciliator who could work with conservative Republicans.

But his pedigree extends back further, to when John Peavey — Stennett's predecessor in the Senate — was first elected 40 years ago. There have only been three senators from what's now District 25 since.

Peavey is a sheep rancher who, like Clint Stennett, has deep ties to the land. Stennett shares some of Peavey's political philosophy.

That legacy of public policy knowledge is one reason why we think Stennett's wife, Michelle, is the best choice for District 25 Democrats in the May 25 primary election.

Michelle Stennett, who served during this year's Legislature while her husband was recovering from brain cancer, hit the ground running when she got to Boise.

"She hasn't been a placeholder," Sen. Bert Brackett, R-Rogerson, told the Times-News in March. "She's been a full senator and has done the job remarkably well."

We especially admired Stennett's principled opposition to a bill — passed by the Senate and the House of Representatives and allowed to become law without Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter's signature — that gives pharmacists and caregivers the right to deny any medical treatments which conflict with their personal beliefs.

"I understand completely what end-of-life care is on a personal level, and it is a family matter," she told the Senate shortly after her father's death.

Like longtime Rep. Wendy Jaquet of Ketchum, Stennett is a free-market Democrat who knows small business. Perhaps better than many of her conservative Republican colleagues in the Senate, she understands the real-world impact of taxes and government regulation.

And Stennett is likely to be a strong voice for green energy, which Idaho will need in the future.

Frankly, this race was a close call for us. We admired the unsuccessful campaign that Hagerman Democrat David Maestas conducted against Republican Gooding County Commissioner Tom Faulker two years ago, and he's run an equally strong race this year.

As a member of the Gooding County Planning and Zoning Commission, Maestas was part of the process that resulted in the county's tough CAFO ordinance which passed muster with the Idaho Supreme Court recently. And with his background in farming and the dairy industry, he's a Democrat who could have a future in Magic Valley politics.

It's time for root canal politics

Sitting in America, it's hard to grasp the importance of the British elections and the Greek riots. Nothing to do with us, right? Well, I'd pay attention to the drama playing out here. It may be coming to a theater near you.

The meta-story behind the British election, the Greek meltdown and our own Tea Party is this: Our parents were "The Greatest Generation," and they earned that title by making enormous sacrifices and investments to build us a world of abundance. My generation, "The Baby Boomers," turned out to be what the writer Kurt Andersen called "The Grasshopper Generation." We've eaten through all that abundance like hungry locusts.

Now we and our kids together need to become "The Regeneration" — one that raises incomes anew but in a way that is financially and ecologically sustainable. It will take a big adjustment.

We baby boomers in America and Western Europe were raised to believe there really was a Tooth Fairy, whose magic would allow conservatives to cut taxes without cutting services and liberals to expand services without raising taxes. The Tooth Fairy did it by printing money, by bogus accounting and by deluding us into thinking that by borrowing from China or Germany, or against our rising home values, or by creating exotic financial instruments to trade with each other, we were actually creating wealth.

Greece, for instance, became the General Motors of countries. Like G.M.'s management, Greek politicians used the easy money and subsidies that came with European Union membership not to make themselves more competitive in a flat world, but more corrupt, less willing to collect taxes and uncompetitive.

David Willetts, a British Conservative candidate and the author of a new book, "The Pinch: How the Baby

Under Greek law, anyone in certain "hazardous" jobs could retire with full pension at 50 for women and 55 for men — including hairdressers who use a lot of chemical dyes and shampoos. In Britain, everyone over 60 gets an annual allowance to pay heating bills and can ride any local bus for free. That's really sweet — if you can afford it. But Britain, where 25 percent of the government's budget is now borrowed, can't afford it.

Britain and Greece are today's poster children for the wrenching new post-Tooth Fairy politics, where baby boomers will have to accept deep cuts to their benefits and pensions today so their kids can have jobs and not be saddled with debts tomorrow. Otherwise, we're headed for intergenerational conflict throughout the West.

After 65 years in which politics in the West was,

Boomers Took Their Children's Future — and How They Can Give It Back," told me that the Tories' most effective campaign ad was a poster showing a newborn baby under the headline: "Dad's eyes, Mum's nose, Gordon Brown's debt." Beneath was the caption: "Labour's debt crisis: Every child in Britain is born owing £17,000. They deserve better."

What is most striking about the British election, said John Micklethwait, editor in chief of The Economist, was that it may be the first Western election "based on pain." All the leading candidates warned voters that "cuts are coming," but none were even close to honest about how deep.

Here is how The Financial Times described it on April 26: "The next government will have to cut public sector pay, freeze benefits, slash jobs, abolish a range of welfare entitlements and take the ax to programs such as school building and road maintenance." Too bad no party won a majority mandate in the British elections to do this job.

My takeaway is that U.S. and European politicians — please don't laugh — are going to have to get a lot smarter and more honest.

To be the Regeneration, they'll have to figure out how to raise some taxes to increase revenues, while cutting other taxes to stimulate growth; they'll have to cut some services to save money, while investing in new infrastructure to grow economic capacity. We have got to use every dollar wisely now. Because we've eaten through our reserves — and because that Tooth Fairy, she be dead.

Why was convicted sex offender released?

David Knutson was found guilty on four counts of sexual abuse, felonies that carry a maximum of up to 100 years in prison.

This convicted felon, already a registered sex offender, was released after conviction.

In the article, "the court" let the convicted felon back on the streets after his conviction with Knutson a felon, knowing he would be sentenced up to 100 years in prison when he returned in July for sentencing.

Who was the judge that released this convicted predator back into society? I know the convicted felon gave his word to return to the court the next day to have a security ankle monitor "re-fitted," but does it surprise anyone that a man looking at spending the rest of his life in prison might lie and run?

When he was apprehended out of state, he was arrested for trying to kill a peace officer with the use of a deadly weapon, possession of a firearm by a

Also, I hope the prosecutor, Grant Loeks, feels he did his best to keep this convicted felon behind bars after his conviction, but the "court" let him go.

Will Times-News do follow-up journalism and advise our community on who the judge was and why a convicted felon looking at 100 years in prison wasn't held in jail after his conviction? The jail is overcrowded, but someone dropped the ball, either the prosecutor or the judge who wasn't named — or was he protected?

I wasn't in the courtroom, but there are a few questions the taxpayers need

Allred can provide direction for Idaho

I am writing in support of Keith Allred's bid for governor.

I have known Keith for about six years. I first admired his work with the people in north Idaho who wanted to get the Aryan Nations out of their community. Keith also worked as a mediator between the Nez Perce Tribe and local towns and earned the respect of both sides. He then trained elected officials who needed to develop skills and an open attitude toward working with the growing Latino community.

Keith and I have worked together on The Common Interest, a citizens' group that works to put the needs of everyday Idahoans ahead of special interests. With his leadership, The Common Interest helped reduce private property taxes for homeowners, fight huge tax increases proposed by Gov. Otter and protected our right to vote in whatever primary we choose.

I was delighted to learn that Keith wanted to serve Idaho. Keith and Christine Allred are personable, well-informed and care deeply about our state and its people. They are committed to good public policy that benefits all of us. Most importantly, Keith has a vision for Idaho — something we seriously lack.

Keith understands that quality education is our most important economic development tool. He knows how to grow our economy and put Idahoans back to work. And as a sportsman, he supports protection of Idaho's special places.

I'm pleased to support Keith Allred for governor.

This is a crucial primary election for law enforcement, victims of crime and all citizens interested in law and order. I am proud to support Roger Burdick's re-election to the Idaho Supreme Court.

As the prosecuting attorney in Twin Falls County, I worked closely with Justice Burdick for many years while he served as a district judge in Twin Falls. I know Justice Burdick to be serious and passionate about justice and the role of the judiciary in ensuring it.

In a judiciary often seen as aloof and arrogant, Roger Burdick is uniquely regular. He has an approachable, commonsense style which keeps him connected to the real world and to real people and their real problems. Most importantly, he takes very seriously his duty to protect the community and the rights of its citizens, and he has a sincere and deep concern about the impact his decisions have on the victims of crime.

As a district judge, Roger Burdick was not afraid to give criminals bad news. As a Supreme Court justice, he has taken the lead in turning down frivolous appeals. Roger Burdick is a tough, fair and compassionate judge with a wealth of common sense and experience. He has been an asset to Idaho and to our highest court. It is crucial to law enforcement and crime victims in Idaho that Roger Burdick be re-elected to the Supreme Court.

Liability concerns make new Jerome jail a necessity

Jerome County needs a new detention facility. The aging current Jerome County jail has a 34-bed capacity. On average over the last 10 years, Jerome County has housed 75 inmates per day. The overcrowding alone is enough to force another federal lawsuit such as the suit filed in 1992 for overcrowding among other issues. To comply with this mandate, Jerome County has been housing inmates in other county jails at the average rate of $45 per day. Over the last 10 years we have spent $1.6 million to other counties for these inmates.

Jerome County can keep the taxpayers' money in Jerome County by building a new larger, safer detention facility. To deal with the overcrowding, we have taken steps to expedite sentencing, incorporate more community service programs and to no longer enforce immigration laws on non-violent misdemeanor offenders.

The ballot question limits the amount of money that Jerome County can spend on the new jail. The project will be put out to bid once we are approved to enter a lease/purchase contract. The facility will be paid, in part, with our current budget including savings from out of county housing and with jail bed rentals.

This project will not raise your taxes right away but as Jerome County needs more beds for our own inmates, taxes will have to be raised gradually. The current jail has not passed a jail inspection for years and will not be able to pass one in the future. The current facility fails to meet National Fire and Life Safety standards as well as the Idaho Jail Minimum Standards.

The liability increases every year continue to operate this facility. We could remodel; however, the square footage of the current building will not accommodate the amount of bed space needed. The project will bring approximately 100 to 200 construction jobs to Jerome as well as 16-20 permanent deputy positions. The preferred building site is on

Godless people won't be near God

A man asked me the other day what is cold? And I said when water freezes, that is cold. And he said to me, no, cold is the absence of heat. So I said then darkness is the absence of light, and he said that's right. So I said then hell must be the absence of God; he said that's right.

So I got to thinking all these people that don't believe in God and don't want God's name mentioned really don't have to worry very long about the name of God because as soon as they pass from this world, they will be in a place wherever that's at where God will not be.

So I don't understand all the moaning and groaning about God's name on our money, in our Pledge of Allegiance, etc. I wonder if those people will be in the same place along with all other persons that said they didn't believe in God, like Hitler, Stalin and Manson, but no matter it is for sure they will be where God is not.

I suppose we could also say that hate is the absence of love. So I guess that those people that hate one another are lacking love. So it stands to reason that envy is the lack of charity, etc. I suppose the reader could probably think of a lot more. Just something to think about.

Judical system sometimes sends wrong message

Our prosecutors need to stop thinking of what it looks like on them when a person is charged with a crime. What is the system doing for us? We send people to prison, offer no help.

A crime is a crime. There is a right and wrong way for punishment. People can change; they need to acknowledge the wrong and accept it.

Looking into cases, we let out a man who has done major harm to a child. This child went to court; he got a bond reduction. A grand jury indicted him on five counts, lewd conduct with a minor. Months later, this man offered a deal. He pled to felony battery with intent. He can't admit his wrong. He thinks he is innocent. There can't be help for him now. This man now has a girlfriend who is a victim's mom. They are harassing his victim and family with text messages, calls, the Net; nothing is done.

This is our justice system. We have sent them a message. They showed our system, pulling the strings. Our system just sent the wrong message. Never meeting each other; two cases are tied together. One man can't accept the wrong he did. Now he is free.

The other who is still in jail accepted his wrong; he wants, seeks the help he needs to become a changed man.

These men are being sentenced in May. Do we help ones who accept their wrong or send them to our prisons with no help. Let the ones go that can't accept. Will our justice system show justice to mankind?

Rammell understands Idaho's problems

I support Rex Rammell for governor. I believe that he understands the problems Idaho state is facing and will honestly work to fix these problems. He is an honest family man who has earned his living in the private sector, which means he understands that you can't spend money when there is no money to spend.

Please send the career politicians home this November. This would include our own Gov. Butch Otter. I am Mary Bello, and I organized the Tea Party of 2009 in Twin Falls.

Also, I support Pat Bello for Precinct Committee Twin Falls district 17. I have been married to him for more than 30 years, and he is an honest and principled man. He will work to uphold core values of the Republican Party.

Pat believes in the constitution of the United States and will work to protect it. Please vote Pat Bello on May 25.

It's time for Crapo, Simpson to go

I strongly disagree with the Times-News' endorsement of the re-election of Sen. Crapo and Rep. Simpson. The paper's recommendation is based mainly on the fact these two gentlemen have been in Washington a long time and sit on important committees which could be useful to Idaho. This is the very reason why voters should vote against these two men.

The committee system and the power politics it creates are what are ruining our country.

Incumbent legislators on important committees are targets for lobbyists because they can be easily swayed with campaign contributions to pass legislation favoring business. For example, drug makers maintain the largest lobby in Washington and as a reward we as citizens pay the highest prices for drugs in the world. We also have the lowest fuel mileage standards in the world and our military buys planes we don't need.

These and other wasteful expenditures are the result of lobby pressured legislation.

Further, a ranking congressman can ram through earmarks with reckless abandon which further waste precious funds.

What is happening in Greece is not a sideshow; it is waiting for us just down the road and we are heading there full speed under or lobby loving legislators.

The way to defeat the lobbyist is to defeat the incumbents. You are the real power in politics but you have to vote with your head and not out of habit. Vote against Crapo and Simpson and save America.

The Supreme Court nominee we'll never really know

About a decade ago, one began to notice a profusion of Organization Kids at elite college campuses. These were bright students who had been formed by the meritocratic system placed in front of them. They had great grades, perfect teacher recommendations, broad extracurricular interests, admirable self-confidence and winning personalities. If they had any flaw, it was that they often had a professional and strategic attitude toward life. They were not intellectual risk-takers. They regarded professors as bosses to be pleased rather than authorities to be challenged. As one admissions director told me at the time, they were prudential rather than poetic.

If you listen to people talk about Elena Kagan, it is striking how closely their descriptions hew to this personality type.

So far, I haven't met anybody who is not an admirer. She is apparently smart, deft and friendly. She was a superb teacher. She has the ability to process many points of view and to mediate between different factions.

Yet she also is apparently prudential, deliberate and cautious. She does not seem to be one who leaps into a fray when the consequences might be unpredictable.

"She was one of the most strategic people I've ever met, and that's true across lots of aspects of her life," John Palfrey, a Harvard law professor, told The New York Times. "She is very effective at playing her cards in every setting I've seen."

Tom Goldstein, the publisher of the highly influential SCOTUSblog, has described Kagan as "extraordinarily – almost artistically – careful. I don't know anyone who has had a conversation with her in which she expressed a personal conviction on a question of constitutional law in the past decade."

Kagan has apparently wanted to be a judge or justice since adolescence (she posed in judicial robes for her high school yearbook). There was a brief period, in her early 20s, when she expressed opinions on legal and political matters. But that seems to have ended pretty quickly.

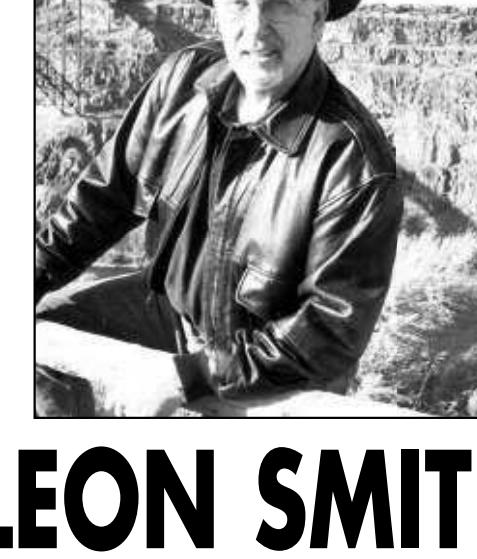

She has become a legal scholar without the interest scholars normally have in the contest of ideas. She's shown relatively little interest in coming up with new theories or influencing public debate.

What we have is a person whose career has dovetailed with the incentives presented by the confirmation system, a system that punishes creativity and rewards cagginess. Arguments are already being made for and against her nomination, but most of this is speculation because she has been too careful to let her actual positions leak out.

There's about to be a backlash against the Ivy League lock on the court. I have to confess my first impression of Kagan is a lot like my first impression of many Organization Kids. She seems to be smart, impressive and honest – and in her willingness to suppress so much of her mind for the sake of her career, kind of disturbing.

Montana aims to reduce wolf numbers

By Matt Volz
Associated Press writer

HELENA, Mont. — Montana wildlife commissioners approved a plan Thursday that aims to reduce the gray wolf population for the first time since the once-endangered animal was reintroduced to the region 15 years ago.

The proposal approved by the Montana Fish, Wildlife and Parks Commission calls for at least doubling the number of wolves that hunters can kill and introducing an archery season to go with the rifle season.

The population of wolves in the northern Rockies has increased every year since they were reintroduced to the region in 1995 after being nearly wiped out in the last century due to conflicts with humans and loss of habitat.

There were at least 524 wolves in Montana at the end of last year, and 1,706 wolves in the combined northern Rockies region of Montana, Idaho, Wyoming and parts of Washington and Oregon, wildlife officials estimate.

Ranchers and hunters say the wolf population has now grown too high, which has led to more attacks on livestock and game.

Montana commissioners will decide in July after a public comment period whether the final quota for the 2010 hunt will be 150, 186 or 216 wolves. The quota was 75 in last year's inaugural hunt.

If hunters hit one of those targets, it would represent a drop in wolf numbers between 8 percent and 20 percent compared with last year's estimated population.

"We fully support the idea that it is time to decrease the population in Montana," commission chairman Bob Ream said. The question now is how far to go and how fast to get there, he added.

The gray wolf was listed as an endangered species in 1973, but the population growth allowed the removal of those federal protections last year in Montana and Idaho. Federal protections remain in force in Wyoming, because state law there is considered hostile to the species' survival.

After wolf management in Montana and Idaho reverted to those states, they held their first hunting seasons. Montana's hunt ended with 73 wolves killed and Idaho's with 185 killed, short of the quota of 220.

Wildlife officials in Idaho also are considering a higher quota for this year's hunt.

But a pending federal lawsuit could block states' wolf seasons this year. Environmentalists filed suit to overturn the loss of federal protections for wolves in Montana and Idaho, and oral arguments are expected to be heard in that case in June.

Montana's wolf management plan calls for a population of at least 150 wolves and 15 breeding pairs, which would affect the ability of the species to reproduce. If the number of breeding pairs falls below 10, federal protections would once more be imposed on the state's wolf population.

In 2009, there were at least

Idaho first quarter exports increase in 1Q

Exports up 54%, led by tech, agriculture

Export sales by Idaho companies grew more than 8.5 percent in the first quarter of 2010 compared to the previous year, totaling $1.22 billion during the first three months of the year, according to a report by Idaho Department of Commerce. Nationally, exports for the same period were nearly flat, at less than 1 percent growth. Compared to the same period of 2009, the most current quarters' results for Idaho are up more than 54 percent.

The top Idaho export category continues to be semiconductors, but exports of aircraft, office machinery, vegetables and seeds, precious metals and paper products remained strong.

"Idaho's export results for the first quarter of 2010 show positive signs the economy is improving," said Damien Bard, administrator of the International Business Division of the Idaho Department of Commerce. "Exports in Idaho and across the United States still are a key piece to helping drive the U.S. economy."

The top export destinations for Idaho goods during the first quarter of 2010 were Canada, Singapore, Taiwan, China and Korea. Idaho companies export products to more than 115 countries.

Products ranging from integrated circuits to agricultural machinery to wood and forest products are exported from Idaho. Idaho maintains trade offices in Taiwan, Mexico and China.

Energy issues

Organizations in Blaine County to address sustainable energy

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — An energy institute of sorts is taking shape in Ketchum.

Organizers call it part think tank, part resource center and, hopefully, an upcoming mover and shaker.

The new impetus is the result of a collaboration between Ketchum's Environmental Resource Center and DESI, or Dynamic Energy Systems Institute.

Members of both organizations believe that successfully addressing local energy issues is a key part of the valley's long-term sustainability and can be best addressed by joining forces, said ERC Director Craig Barry.

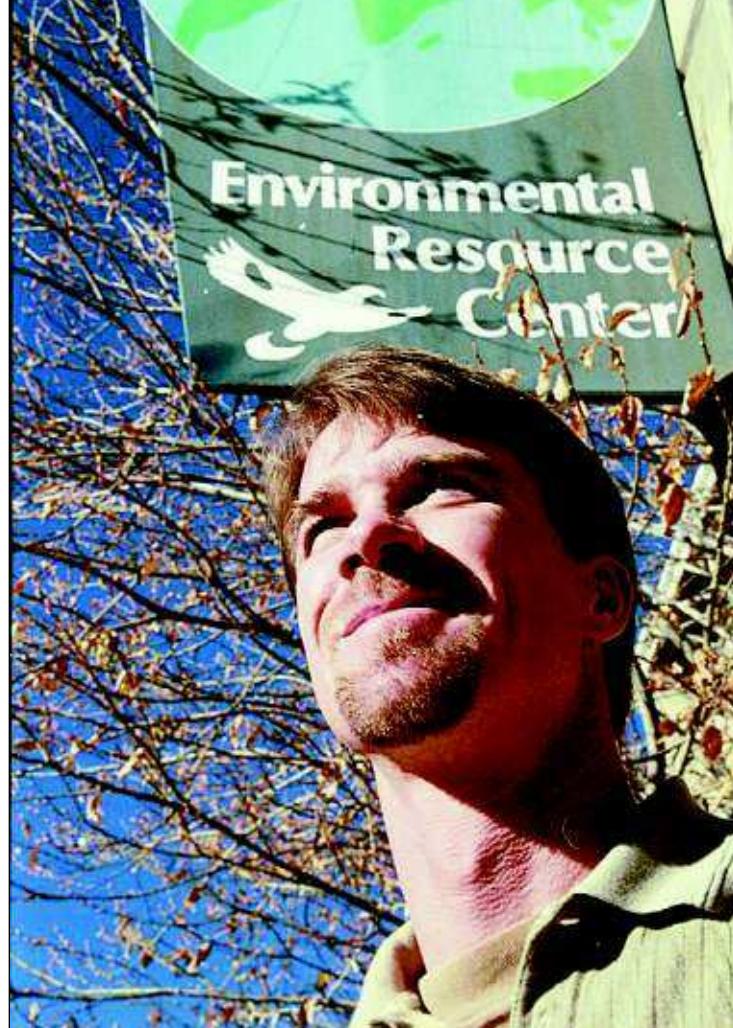

"We're going to have to get energy from somewhere — and preferably not from coal-fired plants," said Deb Bohrer, a co-founder of DESI, along with Wendy Pabich, John Sofro, Frank Halverson and Peter Schmidt. "We want to look at what's possible and what isn't. Our goal is to find out just exactly what the facts are."

One of the first steps is to complete a comprehensive website, said Barry.

The site will provide a one-stop source of energy-related information, including information about energy incentives that now exist, such as the Energy Efficient Appliance Rebate program.

Organizers also want to put together a "substantial" energy conference that would bring in nationally known speakers — ideally, as early as this fall.

"We want to look at everything — wind, solar, geothermal, biomass and all the new technological innovations," said Bohrer. "They're building a solar-powered city in Florida right now. If Florida can do that, why can't we with all our sunshine?"

Conservation will also be a big topic, she said. "If you conserve 30 percent, you reduce your need so you can start to look at sustainable types of energy more viably."

Bohrer became interested in energy issues early in life when her oil industry family was among the first to clean up leaks from underground storage tanks. Now her fam-

Bohrer has long worked with the local Snake River Alliance chapter to find clean energy solutions.

Given that, she's frustrated with the way the Sun Valley area and Idaho lag behind others on energy measures.

The valley, with its wind, sun and geothermal, is an ideal setting for sustainable energy research, she says.

And Sun Valley could trade on its name.

"I could see us partnering with Nissan, filming its new electric car going from the south end of the valley to the top of Baldy where it plugs into a huge solar panel shaped like the sun," she said. "Not only does it help Nissan but it would help Sun Valley because tourists are making decisions about where to go based on sustainability."

Ketchum artist Karen McCall said she's enthused about the effort.

"I have a passion for what's happening to the earth. And even if the climate change theory is proven wrong, what's wrong with embracing green technology to help us live better?" she said.

Small business owners get SBA loans after oil spill, storms housands of small business owners across the South are turning to the federal government for financial help following the oil spill in the Gulf and last month's devastating tornadoes and floods.

The Small Business Administration's disaster loans are aimed at helping companies recover from uninsured losses suffered during natural or man-made disasters. They also help companies cover their expenses when disaster prevents them from operating. Companies of any size can get disaster loans. There are two types: One covers physical damage from a disaster, while the second, called an economic injury disaster loan, is available to companies that have suffered substantial economic harm from a disaster.

The loans carry lower interest rates than a borrower would have to pay for a traditional loan. The rate for businesses unable to get credit elsewhere was 4 percent as of April 12. Those that could get credit elsewhere would pay 6 percent. The maximum term for a loan is 30 years.

Owners can learn about SBA disaster loans at the agency's website, www.sba.gov/services/disasterassistance/index.html.

Here is a quick guide to the loans:

Physical disaster loans

These loans provide money to replace or repair damaged property owned by a business that is located within a federally declared disaster area. So businesses in Alabama devastated by tornadoes or those in Tennessee that suffered damage during last month's storms are eligible.

Damaged property includes buildings, equipment, vehicles, inventory and supplies. The loans are for companies that have no insurance or whose losses

Shopping may be cheaper under new debit card rules

By Jim Kuhnhenn
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Striking at a lucrative bank business, the Senate on Thursday voted to force credit card companies to reduce fees for debit card transactions and permit merchants to offer customer discounts based on their payment method.

The 64-33 vote inserted the fee requirement in a package of new financial rules the Senate is considering to ward off a repeat of the financial crisis.

The vote was a major defeat for banks, which lobbied hard against it. But the measure attracted heavy bipartisan support and surpassed a 60-vote threshold for passage. Seventeen Republicans voted for the amendment; 10 Democrats voted against it.

The measure from Sen. Richard Durbin, D-Ill., would force credit card companies to charge businesses less for debit card transactions than for credit card payments.

Under current practice, a business that accepts major credit cards signs agreements with the card companies to pay a percentage of each transaction, usually about 2 percent to 3 percent. But credit card charges cost more to process than swipes with a debit card.

The measure still needs to survive negotiations with the House, which has already passed its version of regulations on Wall Street. The House bill does not contain the debit card provision.

The change could represent the most direct and tangible consumer benefit of the regulatory overhaul and would amount to a triumph for Durbin, who failed to get a similar proposal attached to an overhaul of credit card regulations last year.

"Left alone, this is going to get worse for small businesses that face higher fees, for consumers who face higher prices, and for everyone but banks and credit card networks," Durbin said moments before the vote.

The Electronic Payments Coalition, an industry group whose members include Visa, MasterCard and American Express, said the Durbin plan would harm many small banks and credit unions that already lose or barely break even in their card operations.

The credit card companies said the change would force consumers to pay more for their cards and result in higher profits to large retailers. In a statement, MasterCard argued that similar regulations in Australia did not result in savings to retail customers.

"This amendment helps big merchants, but consumers will pay the price," MasterCard said.

Three Pakistanis arrested in Times Square bomb probe

The Associated Press

WATERTOWN, Mass. — Three Pakistani men who authorities say supplied funds to Times Square car bomb suspect Faisal Shahzad were arrested Thursday in a series of raids across the Northeast as the FBI followed the money trail in the failed attack.

Investigators said it was not yet clear whether the three men knew how the money was going to be used.

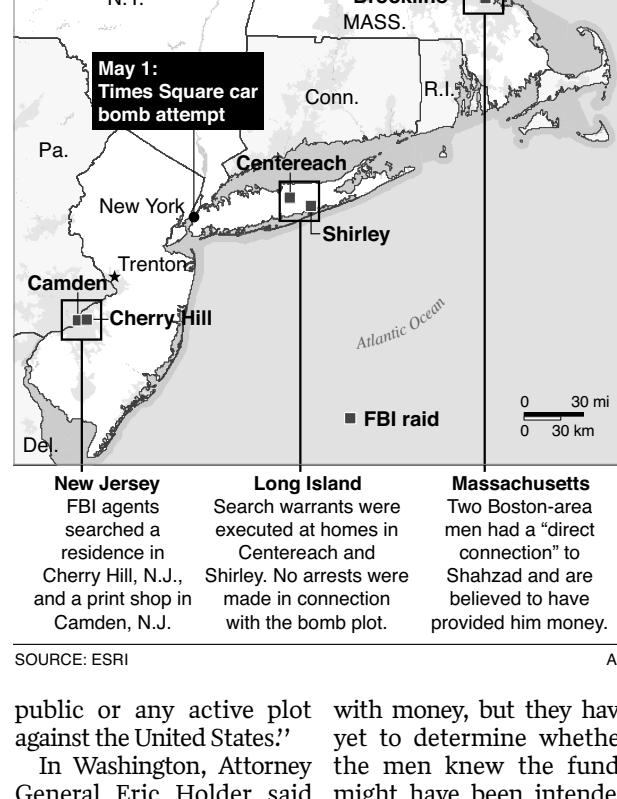

The men — two seized in the Boston area, one in Maine — were arrested as federal authorities searched homes and businesses in a coordinated series of raids centered in the Boston suburbs, on New York's Long Island and in New Jersey.

They were arrested on immigration violations — administrative, not criminal, charges. They were not charged with any terrorism-related crimes. Their names were not released.

The raids resulted from evidence gathered in the investigation into the Times Square bomb attempt two weeks ago. FBI spokeswoman Gail Marcinkiewicz gave assurances Thursday that there was "no known immediate threat to the anonymity because the investigation is still going on, said investigators are not sure whether the two Boston-area men were willing accomplices or simply moving funds, as is common among people from the Middle East and Central Asia who live in the U.S.

"These people might be completely innocent and not know what they were providing money for," the official cautioned, "but it's clear there's a connection."

U.S. Sen. Susan Collins, R-Maine, said there was "not a direct tie" between the man arrested in South Portland, Maine, and the Times Square car bomb suspect.

Authorities have been investigating whether Shahzad — who authorities say needed only a few thousand dollars to buy the used SUV and the bomb components used in the attempted May 1 attack — was financed from overseas.

In Washington, a senior military official said Pakistani authorities had arrested a man claiming to be an accomplice of Shahzad. The official was unable to say what information the suspect may have provided.

Part of the first 'Little Orphan Annie' strip that appeared Aug. 5, 1924.

'Annie' skips off into sunset after 85 years

CHICAGO (AP) — Come this summer there will be no more tomorrows for "Annie."

After 85 years, Tribune Media Services announced Thursday it will cease syndication of the comic strip featuring the iconic redheaded orphan on Sunday, June 13. Instead, the company will bring Annie into the Internet age by pursuing new audiences for her in digital media and entertainment, like mobile readers and graphic novels.

"I'm going to miss the girl a lot," Jay Maeder, the strip's writer, said Thursday. "I wrote her for 10 years. She was a fairly large part of my everyday life."

"Little Orphan Annie" made its newspaper debut on August 5, 1924, first written and illustrated by creator Harold Gray. The strip later was renamed simply "Annie," telling tales of the spunky orphan adopted by Daddy Warbucks and joined by her lovable dog, Sandy.

Annie was famous for wearing a red dress with white collar and cuffs. Over the decades she became the center of the 1930s radio program "Adventure Time with Orphan Annie," a 1977 Broadway musical and several movies.

"It is no longer a great marketplace for adventure comic strips in the daily newspapers," said Maeder, of Houston. "It's not surprising to me that at some point the strip would come to an end."

Less than 20 newspapers in the United States currently take the comic strip, and Tribune Media Services vice president of licensing Steve Tippie said the cost of creating the strip started to outweigh its revenue. Tippie said the company is considering future live-action and animated television and film projects for the character.

who they are before the second log-in goes through.

Users will also be able to check where the latest log-ins have come from. This is similar to a feature Google Inc. offers on its Gmail service, where users can view the date, time and location of the most recent log-ins to their account.

Gmail also states whether the account is open on another computer at the same time.

Some of these changes are already available, while others are still being tested and will launch over the next few weeks. Facebook typically rolls out changes over several days, if not weeks, so not all users will see them at the same time.

The new features come as Facebook faces growing criticism over the way it handles users' privacy. It has been pushing them to share more about themselves with one another and with the outside world.

A fourth-grade Honor Choir performed the Character Tango at Wendell Elementary School's April PeaceBuilder assembly.

Chris McNaught and student Armando Madera did a skit using helium balloons depicting "put ups" or positive comments and "put downs" or negative comments.

When McNaught read a put-up that was printed on a balloon, Madera released the helium balloon into the air in the gymnasium. When McNaught read a put-down, Madera popped the balloon. This was a way to teach children the difference between positive and negative comments.

Is Canadian company a reputable place to get prescriptions?

DEAR DR. GOTTL: I saw a written advertisement from BTM (Better Than Medicine) that sells medications at far lower prices than I can currently buy them. They state I can save up to 85 percent on my prescriptions, the program is free, there are no deductibles or restrictions on who can join, and the program can be used along with Medicare at no cost to me. What's your opinion? It kind of sounds too good to be true.

DEAR READER: There's an old expression that says, "If it sounds too good to be true, it probably is."

ASK DR. GOTTL

have reviewed their ad and can certainly see how some people might be swayed to join the plan. And, for all I know, it may be legitimate. The company is based out of Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada. The website is impressive, there are no co-pays, no deductibles and the prices are inviting. They do indicate that all drugs shipped are generic equivalents and not brand-name drugs. Unfortunately, there are some medications that do not yet have generic equivalents. I guess those would either be unavailable through BTM or would be shipped at a higher price.

I must say I was put off by the fact that I can make inquiries through the same site to purchase airline tickets, car insurance and inquire about foreclosures as well. Call me naive, but personally, I'd like to know that my pharmaceutical supplier is just that — my pharmaceutical supplier. When I choose to purchase auto insurance, I'll go to my local agent.

When I attempted to run BTM through the Better Business Bureau, I came up empty. Giving them the benefit of the doubt, perhaps I didn't follow through correctly.

The U.S. federal government issued a statement some 3-1/2 years ago indicating it was generally illegal for individuals to import prescription drugs into the United States, but Customs had largely ignored small shipments for personal use. Since then, our government has taken an almost hands-off approach and allowed the trafficking to continue.

If you happen to have a Walmart in your area, a one-month supply of many medications is available for $4, a three-month supply for $10. And they ship for free. Target has $4 prescriptions as well, with the added bonus of free flavoring on liquid medications. Perhaps both sources of supply cross borders, but I would feel more comfortable purchasing locally. The choice has to remain with you. Speak with your physician for his or her guidance.

To provide related information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Consumer Tips on Medicines." Nile had many happy memories while living in Mill Canyon, Nev.; Oakley, Albion and finally Burley, where they settled and raised their family.

Nile was a member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. He served in the High Priests group in various callings. He lost the love of his life, Rachel, Aug. 18, 2008, and life was never quite the same without her. She was his biggest fan. Nile and Rachel served in the Boise LDS Temple for 14 years, where they made many new, wonderful friends.

During World War II, he served in the Anti-Aircraft Division of the U.S. Army. He was a member of the Elks and Lions Clubs for many years, and was on the Albion Normal School Alumni Committee until the time of his passing.

Nile is survived by his children, David Hale (Marilyn) of Draper, Utah, Nylene Budge (Steve) of Orem, Utah, Kaye Shelley (Dennis) of Highland, Utah, Mary Jo Carlile (Stephen), Lorna Coombs (Carl) all of West Valley City, Utah and Fred Gorringe (Darla) of Caldwell; 27 grandchildren; 40 great-grandchildren and two great-great-grandchildren. He was preceded in death by his wife, Rachel; his parents; his brother, Kermit Gorringe; sister, Hilma Gorringe Butler; two grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Iris Nelson Angus

ALBION — Iris Nelson Angus, age 86, died Tuesday, May 11, 2010, in Clearfield, Utah.

She was born March 7, 1924, to Taylor Nelson and Susie Hawkes Nelson in Preston, Idaho. She married John Reid Angus on Feb. 5, 1952, in the Logan LDS Temple. Iris and Reid made their home in Blythe, Calif., where they farmed until 1956, when they bought a farm in View, Idaho. In 1970, they again set out for a new venture in a move to Malta, where they farmed for the following 19 years. In 1989, they retired to Albion, where they resided until 2000 when, for health reasons, they moved to Lyman, Wyo., to live with their eldest daughter.

Iris was a lifelong active member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, serving a mission in the California Mission. During her lifetime, Iris faithfully served in the Primary, Young Women's and Relief Society organizations. She was also a ward librarian and canning specialist for many years and, until her later years, she was an active visiting teacher. After retirement, Iris and Reid were called as temple workers in the Logan LDS Temple, where they enjoyed a wonderful two years of service. Iris loved gathering together with her family, reading, crocheting afghans for her grandchildren, tatting and going for a drive. Iris will be lovingly missed by her family.

Iris leaves on this side of the veil, her children, Mary Alice (Joel) Ewell of Lyman, Wyo., John (Jac) Angus of Fallon, Nev., Douglas (Patti)

Angus of Avondale, Ariz., Eric (Sheree) Angus of Greeley, Colo., Glen (Aleah) Angus of Fernley, Nev., Nancy (Glen) Morrell of Kaysville, Utah, Lori (Scott) Bluemel of Windsor, Colo., and Susie (Clay) Anderson of Albion. She is also survived by two sisters, Carmen Miskin of Idaho Falls and Faye (Dell) Price of Eagle; 34 grandchildren; and 23 great-grandchildren.

She was preceded in death by her parents; her eternal sweetheart, Reid; two grandsons, Nathan Paul Angus and Michael Alan Angus; three sisters; and three brothers.

As her family, we are grateful for the kindness and loving care given by nurses and staff members at Rocky Mountain Care Center in Clearfield, Utah.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Monday, May 17, at the Albion LDS Church, with Bishop Randy Brackenbury officiating. Burial will be in the View Cemetery. Friends and family may call from 6 until 8 p.m. Sunday, May 16, at the Rasmussen Funeral Home, 1350 E. 16th St. in Burley, and 10 until 10:45 a.m. Monday at the church.

Judy Gail Reeves Schaer

KIMBERLY — Judy Schaer died peacefully at her home in Kimberly, Idaho, on Tuesday, May 11, 2010, after an almost yearlong battle with cancer. The disease took our beautiful mother far too soon, but not before she graced us with her legacy and life lessons.

Mom was born in Humboldt, Neb., on June 28, 1944, to Edgar and Lillie Reeves. When Mom was 2, the family moved to Idaho. Mom graduated from Castleford High School in 1962. She worked at the Magic Valley Memorial Hospital in various positions until she met Robert Schaer, our dad. They were married Oct. 8, 1967, in Buhl and were married until Dad's passing in December 1998.

Angela was born in 1969 and Rob in 1971. Mom and Dad had a dairy and a farm in the Castleford area until the mid-'70s. At that time, they sold the dairy component of their business but continued to farm and raise beef cattle. They worked as partners on the farm, with Mom keeping the books, feeding calves, cutting hay (which she really loved!) and, most of all, being a wonderful wife and mother. Mom began driving bus for the Clover Trinity Lutheran School and drove for several years. In 1983, Mom began working for Green Giant (later Seneca Foods) and held several positions there. She worked until October 2009.

Mom was an extremely hard-working woman, setting an example for everyone. She rarely missed work, even throughout her chemotherapy treatments. She had a quiet but strong and sure faith, which she shared with her family. While she would not have talked unless invited about her faith, she was a willing and wonderful witness to those who were receptive. She was a member of Clover Trinity Lutheran Church.

Mom lived for her family and, eventually, for her grandchildren, who were her light. She loved nothing more than the times playing with the grandkids — talking with Bryant, having tea with Brooke and Tristian, playing with Payne and cuddling with Grace. More recently, she met and fell in love with Karli, Kassidi and Jake. She loved to read, crochet and talk to family and friends. Roses were her favorite flower, and no one could go wrong by bringing her a bouquet of roses, a card with roses or anything else graced by that beautiful flower.

In May 2009, Mom was diagnosed with lung cancer, a very unexpected disease she fought with grace, dignity, humor and an amazing amount of openness, given her private nature. When she found out in January that the cancer had spread, she continued to live her life in the manner she wanted. We spent a lot of time laughing with Mom — what a gift! She was able to spend her last weekend with her kids, and the day before she died, she was surrounded by her dear sisters, having the ultimate "girl's night." She demonstrated the trademark Reeves women stubbornness and opinionated nature to the end.

She is survived by her daughter, Angela Schaer Kaufmann (Tim) and their children, Payne and Grace of Boise; and by her son, Rob and his sweetheart, Tricia and their children, Bryant, Brooke, Tristian, Karli, Kassidi and Jake of Utah; her sisters, Rita Thomas, Jeannie (Ralph) Crowley and Rosita Crowley; several nieces, nephews and grandnieces and nephews. She is also survived by her brothers and sisters-in-law, John and Jean Schaer and Fred and Sandra Schaer and their respective children. Mack Reeves has been a lifelong special cousin.

Mom was preceded in death by her husband, Bob; her parents; her brother, Gary; her mother-in-law and father-in-law, John and Winnifred Schaer and her brother-in-law, John Crowley.

Rob and Angie want to thank Aunt Rita and Aunt Rosita for all they did, and Mack Reeves and Jean Schaer for their willingness to transport Mom to appointments and help in so many other ways. We want to extend a special thanks to the nurses, aides and staff of Idaho Home Health and Hospice, who demonstrated the utmost in caring and respect to Mom in her last days. Special thanks go to Debbie. We also want to thank Dr. Miranda, Dr. Smith and the incomparable, caring nurses (especially Anne and Kathy) at MSTI. You meant the world to Mom.

In accordance with Mom's wishes, there will be no viewing and a private family burial will be held. However, we invite friends and family to a celebration of life at 11 a.m. Saturday, May 15, at the Clover Trinity Lutheran Church. Services are under the direction of Serenity Funeral Chapel in Twin Falls.

Tube, which will suck crude to a ship on the surface, will be surrounded by a stopper to keep oil from leaking into the water.

BP said it wasn't sure how much of the roughly 210,000 gallons leaking daily would be captured by the improvised device.

If that doesn't work, engineers can still attempt to use a "top hat" box now on the sea floor to cover the leak and siphon the oil to the surface. They also might plug the leak with golf balls and other debris – a "junk shot."

Missing data stalls investigation of oil rig disaster

The Associated Press

A "black box" can reveal why an airplane crashed or how fast a car was going in the instant before an accident. Yet there are no records of a critical safety test supposedly performed during the fateful hours before the Deepwater Horizon oil rig exploded in the Gulf of Mexico.

They went down with the rig.

While some data were being transmitted to shore for safekeeping right up until the April 20 blast, officials from Transocean, the rig owner, told Congress that the last seven hours of its data are missing and that all written logs were lost in the explosion.

The gap poses a mystery for investigators: What decisions were made — and what warnings might have been ignored? Earlier tests, which suggested that explosive gas was leaking from the mile-deep well, were preserved.

"There is some delay in the replication of our data, so our operational data, our sequence of events ends at 3 o'clock in the afternoon on the 20th," Steven Newman, president and CEO of Transocean Ltd., told a Senate panel. The rig blew up at 10 p.m., killing 11 workers and unleashing a gusher that has spewed millions of gallons of oil into the Gulf.

Houston attorney Tony Buzbee, who represents several rig workers involved in the accident, questioned whether what he called "the phantom test" was even performed.

"I can just tell you that the Halliburton hands were scratching their heads," said Buzbee, whose clients include one of the Halliburton crew members responsible for cementing the well to prepare for moving the drilling rig to another site.

Buzbee said that when Halliburton showed BP PLC and Transocean officials the results of the pressure tests that suggested gas was leaking, the rig workers were put on "standby." BP is the rig operator and leaseholder.

Buzbee said one of his clients told him the "Transocean and BP company people got their heads together," and 40 minutes later gave the green light. The attorney said the Halliburton crew members were not shown any new test results.

"They said they did their own tests, and they came out OK," he said. "But with the phantom test that Transocean and BP allegedly did, there was no real record or real-time recordation of that test."

Buzbee suggested that BP and Transocean had monetary reasons for ignoring the earlier tests.

"The facts are as they are,"

he said. "The rig is $500,000 a day. There are bonuses for finishing early."

None of the three companies would comment Thursday on whether any data or test results were purposely not sent to shore, or on exactly who made the final decision to continue the operations that day.

Meanwhile, out in the Gulf, BP settled on its next attempt to cut down on the spill: Undersea robots will try to thread a small tube into the jagged pipe that's leaking on the sea floor. The

Rising global temperatures cooking lots of lizards

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sometimes it can be too darn hot even for a lizard.

Cold-blooded creatures that have to soak up the rays to get going might seem like the last animals you would expect to be threatened by global warming.

Well, you would be wrong, researchers say.

It turns out lizards are going extinct in many places, and scientists who have studied them say it's because of rising temperatures. The heats affects reproduction.

"The results were clear. These lizards need to bask in the sun to warm up, but if it gets too hot they have to retreat into the shade, and then they can't hunt for food," said Barry Sinervo of the Department of Ecology and Evolutionary Biology at the University of California, Santa Cruz.

Movie night in a small town

Photos by ARIEL HANSEN/Times-News

An old projector at The Magic Lantern in Ketchum now serves as a lobby decoration, but much of the equipment upstairs isn't far removed technologically. Although owner Rick Kessler would like to convert his whole theater to digital, he says if Thomas Edison were to walk in today, the inventor could likely figure out all Kessler's film projectors with ease.

Independent owners struggle, but love showing films

By Ariel Hansen
Times-News writer

BURLEY — To own a small, independent movie theater these days can feel a bit like you're David, going up against the Goliath of an industry. Patrons are asking for the latest, expensive technology (most recently 3D), film distributors can't hear your voice in the din coming from chain theaters, and studios ignore you completely.

But for three theater operators in south-central Idaho, there's nothing they'd rather be doing. Bob Harris, who owns two theaters in Burley, Rick Kessler, who owns Magic Lantern in Ketchum, and Terry and Gayla Zech, who own Shoshone Showhouse, all describe their love for movies and their communities. It's why they continue to show cinema in the face of these challenges.

"We get to put people in a dark room and tell them stories. It's really primal," Kessler said. "I love seeing people converse as they're getting ready to sit down, or gather afterward to talk. That's your night at the movies."

Like any small business

All three have owned their theaters for decades and have learned, sometimes painfully, what their audiences will and won't pay to see, and where they can eke out that dollar that puts them into the black.

"No matter what the (small) business is, you can knuckle under and go out of business, or you can do your best," Harris said. For example, he recently invested in 3D projection technology. "The hardest thing is to commit the funds when you're not sure whether you'll be around the next year or not."

As Kessler put it, a third of the years you break even, a third of the years you make a profit, and the remaining third? "They're 'What am I doing in this business?'" he said with a laugh.

Even the days with lines around the block aren't necessarily proof that a theater is doing well.

People who see the lines "think we're making a lot of money, they think we must be rich," Terry Zech said, noting the overhead it takes merely to open the theater's doors.

"Over 50 percent of the gross goes to the movie company ... and we have to pay sales tax on every ticket we sell."

The Zechs, who offer three showings of a film each week during the warmer months of the year, have rarely made money, often subsidizing the theater with profits from their other businesses.

"We call it our nonprofit theater," Zech joked. But they have owned it primarily to teach a good work ethic to their children, who all worked there, and to provide family entertainment for the community.

"I don't regret it one bit; I think that's one of the best investments we've made."

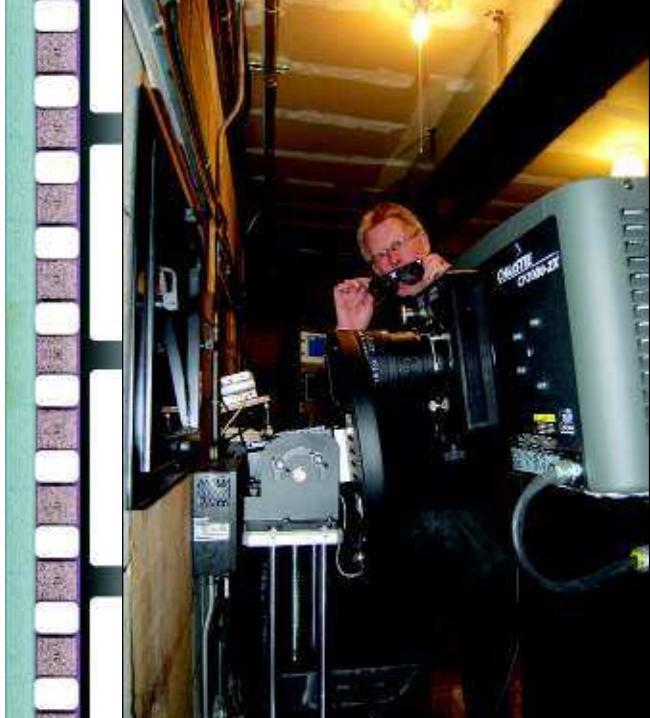

Kessler and Harris have a different goal when it comes red versus black on the ledger, but they have similar overhead costs.

"We're in the candy and popcorn business," Kessler said, describing how he might break even on tickets and see a profit on a particular film only because of concessions.

Photos from top: Bob Harris shows off the new 3D equipment at Century Cinemas in Burley, including a digital projector and polarized glasses.

Old analog projectors are falling by the wayside for many movie theater owners, although it is fun to look at their parts and think about theater history. One projector at Century Cinemas that is still set up to show movies used to be the primary projector for the Sundance Film Festival.

Digital equipment has changed how movies are shown across the country, and some small-town theaters — like Bob Harris' Century Cinemas, in operation since 1921 — are keeping up with the times. He gets a hard drive containing a film from the studios then downloads a password to make it operational for the weeks he has paid to show that movie, a less cumbersome system than switching out large reels of film.

Shoshone woman publishes first novel

By John E. Swayze
Times-News correspondent

SHOSHONE — Jennifer DeNaughel compares the creative process to a parent watching a child grow from infancy into adulthood.

The Shoshone writer has spent 20 years nurturing the seed of an idea for her first novel, "Face the Rain," from manuscript to an April publication with Misty Peak Publishing in Filer.

"I started working on the basis for this book during my sophomore year at Minico High School," DeNaughel said. "I've been writing a long time but didn't feel I had the life experience to finish it the way I wanted to until now."

The author's own Burley childhood was filled with happy memories of family and friends. In contrast, her novel opens by introducing Jenna Kendrick, whose maternal instincts shield her two children from the trauma of domestic violence and lead to court testimony that sends her ex-husband to prison. Returning to the home of her youth on the Oregon coast, Jenna uncovers a twisting storyline filled with family secrets, murder and the search for redemption.

"There's a lot in there that's not necessarily from first-hand experience, but comes from family and friends who have dealt with physical and emotional problems or situations like the rape I put in the book," DeNaughel said. "I love the ocean and have always been drawn to the coast, so Oregon was a natural setting."

In much the same way the story's main character took action to protect her children, DeNaughel wanted to protect the integrity of her novel.

"I honestly didn't think I'd ever get it published, but everything fell into place," she said. "I had this fear of going with a major publisher and having it pulled out of my hands. This way, by going with an independent publisher, you keep control and they can't turn it into something you don't recognize."

Last July, she met Misty Peak publisher Cliff Johnson. Misty Peak was established seven years ago as a way for Johnson to get his own work to the public and help other aspiring authors.

"At first, I didn't want to publish Jennifer's book, but Sandra Heptinstall, who has Whispering Wind Book Review, told me I was crazy if I didn't and she knew some that would," Johnson said. "It's a great story that could have easily gone with a mainstream publisher, but I'm glad I could help Jennifer realize her dream."

A book release party for "Face the Rain" ($15.95) will be 3-7 p.m. Saturday in the Lincoln County Community Center, 201 S. Beverly St. in Shoshone. Copies are available from Amazon.com, Barnes & Noble and www.mistypeak.com.

Planetarium graphics pump up U2 songs

Times-News

"Feel the music, ride the light" is the slogan for the Faulkner Planetarium's newest entertainment show, simply titled "U2." Featuring the music of one of the most successful rock groups of all time, "U2" joins other music-oriented programs the Twin Falls planetarium has produced, including hits from Led Zeppelin, Pink Floyd and Lynyrd Skynyrd.

"I enjoyed working on this show very much," Faulkner manager Rick Greenawald said in a press release. "I don't think there's a weak song in the bunch, either in terms of how big a hit it was or the visual treatment we've given it for the program."

Greenawald said the program was produced completely with in-house computer graphic talent of Herrett Center for Arts and Science staff members and a College of Southern Idaho graphic arts student. There are 10 U2 songs in the show, including "New Year's Day," "Beautiful Day," "Desire," "With or Without You," "Elevation" and "Where the Streets Have No Name."

"U2" will debut at 8:15 p.m.

May 28, then show at 8:15 p.m. each Friday, Saturday and Tuesday evening through the summer. Admission to entertainment shows at the Faulkner Planetarium is $4.50.

Getting the movie to you

Complicating the issue is how the theaters actually buy their movies. When an owner belongs to a larger consortium — like the Hailey theater's association with Metropolitan Theaters, or Interstate Amusements' half-dozen theaters in Twin Falls and Jerome — it is easier to negotiate with movie studios to get a film. Only a certain number of prints are made of each movie, and they tend to go to big cities and theater conglomerates first.

Some owners, like Kessler and Harris, contract with a distribution company that negotiates on behalf of many theaters.

"That helps, somebody with a little bit of clout," Harris said, noting that the biggest names in directing often write into their contracts where and when their film will be distributed, and there's nothing the distribution companies can do about it.

"We're just a little guy," Kessler said. "Distribution is supposedly our partner in this, but sometimes you feel like you're not getting treated well by your partner."

That's especially true for his Ketchum audience, which tends to choose independent or award-winning films rather than the latest blockbusters promoted by studios. "The shoe doesn't fit, but we're stuck with it," Kessler said. "I can't give away tickets to certain films."

Harris has the same problem, but with different movies. "Nightmare on Elm Street," which Kessler said wouldn't sell in Ketchum, had the kind of teen appeal to be popular in Burley. On the other hand, Harris didn't book "Oceans," based on past experience. "We played 'Earth' when it came out, but we couldn't pay people to go see it."

Harris' investment in the equipment to play 3D movies has proved a good one so far, drawing viewers from across the region, but it will be years before it pays itself off. Kessler is skeptical of the longevity of the 3D craze, but he would like to get digital projectors.

"If I could pay for it, I would convert the whole place to digital tomorrow," he said. That would make it easier to get the films he wants to show, because it's so much cheaper for a studio to copy a hard drive than to make a film print. "As the medium turns over to electronic, it's going to do nothing but help the art and independent market."

For the love of it

Although every advance in moving pictures has been heralded as "the end of movies in the theater," television, VCRs and Netflix have not significantly affected the numbers of people who go see movies, Kessler said.

"We always survive, but attendance is not really increasing," he said, calling the greater availability of on-demand movies a double-edged sword. Being able to see nearly any movie at nearly any time at home allows people to enjoy films that are no longer in theaters, including old classics, which creates a greater interest in movies in general.

In Shoshone, perhaps because the Zeche's are so selective about what they show and when, they often sell out their 350-seat theater, even in a town of 1,300. They won't be able to convert to digital in that not-too-distant future when production companies stop making film, but they hope to continue to be able to provide entertainment and a community experience in some way, perhaps even the theater productions their 1911 opera house was built for.

"That's what's fun about an audience; when they respond to a movie it's so different than when you watch a movie at home. It's infectious," Zech said. And the family has fun meeting that community as they sell tickets and popcorn.

Harris said the best moments he has had running a theater are those he spends with his employees.

"Generally speaking, it's their first job, so it's neat to see them grow and mature," he said. "You know them, you know their parents. I've actually had grandkids, a third generation, work for me."

Offering subsidized tickets to school kids and running food drives and illness-related fundraisers is another way Harris said he is committed to not only providing entertainment, but also support, to his Mini-Cassia neighbors. "You need to give back and make sure you thank people for being customers," he said.

No matter what medium comes along to compete with a movie theater, people will always want that primal experience of a story in a dark room surrounded by their neighbors.

"All a movie should do is entertain you, captivate you and maybe enlighten you," Kessler said. "All you should expect is to get an interesting story, well told."

Dance students follow the yellow brick road

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — Hilarie Neely always looked forward to the annual airing of "The Wizard of Oz" on TV when she was growing up.

But Neely fears that many of today's youngsters are not as familiar with the story, what with videos and video games crowding their time. That's why the Footlight Dance Centre director can't wait to restage "The Wizard of Oz" Saturday and Sunday — a dozen years after her dance students first performed it.

"It's such an amazing story," she said. "We did it 12 years ago, and I've been waiting ever since for the right cast. All four of the dancers who play the leads are so talented."

Frank Baum's classic story of following the yellow brick road will come to life through ballet, modern dance, jazz, hip-hop, tap dance and mime, courtesy of Neely's 160 dance students.

The show, which features familiar music such as "Ding Dong, the Witch is Dead," starts at 7 p.m. Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday. The Wood River Community Orchestra will play a half-hour of pre-show music at 6:30 p.m. Saturday and 1:30 p.m. Sunday. The orchestra also will provide live music for the overture.

Graduating senior Brita Gaeddert will dance the role of Dorothy, who gets knocked unconscious by a Kansas tornado and has a dream in which she tries to find her way home with the help of some fanciful characters. She will be joined by Mariah Davis as the Scarecrow, Alexandra Haupt as the Cowardly Lion, Dylan Peterson as the Tin Man, Tori Poole as Glinda the Good Witch and Sierra Brand as the Wicked Witch.

Gaeddert said the role of Dorothy dovetails with all the emotions she's experiencing as she prepares to graduate from high school and go to college.

"Dorothy is a character I know every little girl has grown up with," she said.

"The story is about her dream, about finding new friends and wanting to explore the big world out there. And that's me, too, as I'm looking to go off to college and explore the world and look for adventure."

Gaeddert's father, John Gaeddert, said the lead roles have been cast perfectly, right down to Mariah Davis whose "fluidity of movement is just fantastic."

"I'm a real flexible person and I like playing goofy roles. The sloppier the better," Davis said.

The story is one about family and friends, Neely said. "Ultimately, of course, Dorothy does get home by thinking about how much she misses home. The story teaches us that home is where we belong."

A woman's dignity, a people's destiny

Xavier Charter School theater students rehearse for the Twin Falls school's production of 'Aida,' opening Thursday. Here, Meg Wormsbaker plays the title role during the 'Dance of the Robe,' where the Nubian princess is taken as a slave, along with her people, to Egypt.

Xavier tackles 'Aida' musical

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

Join the adventures of Nubian princess Aida, taken captive and brought to neighboring Egypt to live the rest of her life as a slave.

With masterful music by Elton John and Tim Rice, audiences will be on the edge of their seats during a ride filled with love and jealousy, patriotism and treason, fate and reincarnation. Xavier Charter School's production of "Aida" opens Thursday in Twin Falls.

"It's very much a tale like Esther, from the Bible, a powerful woman who cares for her people's destiny," said Kim Kokx, Xavier music and theater production instructor. "I first saw 'Aida' on Broadway and fell in love. This show has not been done in the valley, giving local audiences the opportunity to look forward to seeing something unique."

More than 100 students, from seventh- to 12th-graders, are involved.

"The challenge is that they all want in the class and they want to be in the show, so we all strive to make sure every student feels they have an important part even if they aren't playing one of the major roles," Kokx said. "Even if you're in the chorus and seven rows back, you matter. We all help others be aware that every part is needed, from stage managers to props and actors and singers and dancers."

Stage manager Matt Thrall, 14, said it's tough to handle so many roles.

"We have a small room, but we make do," Thrall said.

Dance ensemble member Natalie Sumsion said it's a challenge the entire class works around. "We all take turns dancing our parts and then coming together. On the (College of Southern Idaho) theater stage, the movements will be much bigger."

Dance plays a major role throughout "Aida," often portraying themes like despair and hope.

"In 'Dance of the Robe,' we all dance around Aida, who is our princess, cast into slavery like the rest of the Nubians. In the beginning of the dance our movements are slower, smaller, representing Aida's worrying about what to tell her people and about not telling the Egyptians who she really is," Sumsion said. "The dancing gets bigger and inspirational as Aida gets stronger and the people are filled with hope."

Aida, played by student Meg Wormsbaker, is a woman of strong dignity and a powerful voice who gives her people hope. Her plight is complicated when Egyptian commander Radames must choose between loyalty for country and love for Aida. A further twist: Pharaoh's daughter Amneris loves Radames, although he does not share her feelings.

Katie Clark, 16, plays Nehebka, a friend and slave of Aida who sacrifices herself, helping Aida's destiny to be fulfilled.

"This is just a powerful play. I hope that it moves people," Clark said.

Swamp fiddler, country singer headline August folk festival

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — Lisa Haley and the Zydekats, who received a Grammy nomination for best zydeco album, will headline the 33rd Northern Rockies Folk Festival in early August.

Her group will be joined by new traditionalist Kelly Willis. The festival is Aug. 6-7 at Hop Porter Park in Hailey.

Haley, touted as having a "one-of-a-kind cornbread voice," is the fourth generation in a family of fiddlers dedicated to SwampDance. She and the Zydekats have performed from the Netherlands to Japan and headlined a number of U.S. festivals, including the Maine Lobster Fest and the Palm Springs Jazz Fest.

Country music singer Willis is an Austin, Texas, gal whose country music album "What I Deserve" was labeled by Time magazine as "the smartest, most consistently worthwhile country CD" released in 1999.

"We're as excited about this show as we've ever been about any show," said folk festival organizer Pete Kramer. "Not only are both headliners female, but one of the featured acts leading up to the headliners is female. Lisa Haley has been bugging me for two years to come here because she's heard so many good things about the festival. And Kelly stands all alone at the top of her game."

The two acts will be surrounded by a plethora of talent with connections to the Wood River Valley.

The Aug. 6 lineup, from 5 to 10 p.m., features Michael White, Quailfish, Olin and the Moon and Lisa Haley and the Zydekats. The Aug. 7 lineup, from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m., features Piers Lamb, Tom Archie, Scott Fairfax and Friends, Gypsy River Haunts, FourStroke Bus, Joe Paisley, No Cheap Horses, Leslie and The Badgers, Joshua Tree with Johnny Shoes and Kelly Willis.

Wristbands are $12 for Aug. 6 only, and $18 for Aug. 7 only. A wristband good for both days is $25. Wristbands must be bought in advance at Chapter One bookstore or Sun Valley-Ketchum Chamber and Visitors Bureau in Ketchum, or at Notes Music in Hailey. Or purchase online at the folk festival's website, www.nrff.net, which is being redone and should be up by mid-May.

Wristbands will be available in early June, Kramer said.

Costumed mini-golf in a pub?

It's got to be Ketchum

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — Aim for the whale's hole. Or any number of other creative holes, for that matter, at Saturday's Ketchum Wide Open.

Downtown Ketchum will turn into a mega mini-golf course as fun-lovers putt their way through Ketchum's bars and restaurants.

Costumes are encouraged. Last year's golfers showed up as cows, pirates, Raggedy Ann and Andy and even a bunch of golfers who looked as though they'd stepped off a green in the 1940s.

"We had more than 100 teams of two show up last year, and we expect even more this year," said Stefany Mahoney, visitor services director for the Sun Valley/Ketchum Chamber and Visitors Bureau. "People really like dressing up and going around the various holes."

This year's tournament will wind through 11 establishments, including the recently reopened Whiskey Jacques, The Sawtooth Club, The Roosevelt Grille, The Casino Club, Grumpy's, Lefty's, Papa Hemi's Hideaway, Rico's Pizza and Pasta, The Cellar Pub, Smoky Mountain Pizza and Sushi on Second.

Prizes will be awarded for Best Costumes, Best Overall Score and Worst Score. Prizes include Golf at Bigwood Golf Course, dinner for two with wine at Bigwood Grill, cases of PBR and Chamber Choice gift certificates.

Tee-off starts at noon. Players must sign up at the Ketchum Town Plaza across from Atkinsons' Market.

Entry fee is $20 for a team of two. Proceeds go to future events such as the new Sun Valley Celtic Faire, which will be held June 5-6.

String trio plays Idaho composer's take on Rockwell paintings

Times-News

"Two Plumbers and a Dog," "The Horseshoe Forging Contest," "Jester."

They're movements in a new work by Boise composer David Alan Earnest that The Langroise Trio will perform in Sun Valley on Monday night.

The Trio will perform the piece, which was inspired by Norman Rockwell paintings, during a free concert at 8 p.m. Monday at St. Thomas Episcopal Church, 101 Sun Valley Road. The Langroise Trio will also perform music by Dvorak and Beethoven.

Earnest, who also composed the music for the Caritas Chorale's "Immense Ranges of High Mountains," commemorating Lewis and Clark's passage through Idaho, said he has always admired Rockwell's work.

When asked to put music to the paintings of Rockwell, he set comic, bustling music to one titled "No Swimming," which shows undressed boys fleeing the scene of their crime. Sad but expectant music depicts "Breaking Home Ties," which shows a boy saying goodbye to his father and dog as he heads off to school. And a sense of aspiration characterizes a movement set to Rockwell's "Golden Rule," which depicts people of all religions and ethnic backgrounds worshipping together.

The Langroise Trio was established in 1991. As artists in residence, they form the string faculty at The College of Idaho in Caldwell.

The trio features Geoffrey Trabichoff, violinist and concertmaster of the Boise Philharmonic, as well as former concertmaster with the BBC Scottish Symphony and two German symphonies and guest concertmaster for the royal Philharmonic and London Symphony. Others are David Johnson, principal violist of the Iceland Symphony and the Fort Wayne Philharmonic, and Samuel Smith, principal cellist of the Fort Wayne Philharmonic.

The Langroise Trio performance will be preceded by a free harpsichord recital at 8 p.m. Sunday at the church, featuring Boise musician David Tacher performing music by Handel and Scarlatti.

Tacher fascinated viewers with a similar performance last year, during which he educated the audience about the harpsichord, said Dick Brown, music director for St. Thomas Episcopal Church.

Both concerts are free, but donations are welcomed, Brown said.

Minico boys claim long-awaited 4A district track title

By Mike Christensen
Times-News writer

It hadn't happened in more than 30 years, but that doesn't mean it wasn't expected.

The Minico boys dominated their way to the Class 4A District IV Track and Field Championship Thursday at the Jerry Kleinkopf Track Complex at Twin Falls High School. The Spartans earned 170 points, 40 better than second-place Jerome, to win their first district crown since 1978.

"We were pretty confident," said Minico coach Steve Haugeberg. "This has been one of the strongest teams I've seen."

"We were very pleased with how the kids performed," said Haugeberg. "They worked hard, stayed together and got it done."

The Spartan boys weren't the only standouts.

Twin sisters Brianna and Danielle Bowcut engineered an amazing comeback to help Canyon Ridge win the 4x200 relay team. Jerome's girls built a 20-meter lead on the second leg, but Danielle made that disappear in the third leg and Brianna sprinted out the final 200 meters for a time of 1 minute, 46.5 seconds.

Asked how they overcame the deficit, Brianna said, "By running fast."

That they did.

"When I watched Danielle I knew she was going to catch them because that's what she always does," said Brianna.

Minico's Hayli Worthington made her day memorable, sweeping the 100 and 300 hurdles. Her win in the 100 came by nearly 10 meters.

"I really like to get kind of a quiet time before I go and today I just felt like I got a good connection there and had time to relax," said Worthington. As for next week's Class 4A state meet at Bronco Stadium in Boise, Worthington said, "I'll be thankful wherever I place."

The Jerome girls had few first-place winners but used their depth to win the girls team title with 209 points.

Bruins cruise to Great Basin golf titles

RUPERT — It was worth the wait.

Postponed two days due to rainy weather, the Class 4A District IV state golf qualifier was played Thursday in pristine conditions at Rupert Country Club, much to the delight of Twin Falls' Brennon Lancaster and Katherine Reed.

"I'm so glad we played today, the weather was absolutely gorgeous," Reed said.

Lancaster shot his lowest round of the season, carding a 4-under-par 67 to earn boys medalist honors. Reed shot a season-best 76 to lead the girls field.

"All of our tournament days this year have been so nasty and windy," Lancaster said. "It's nice to get a nice day."

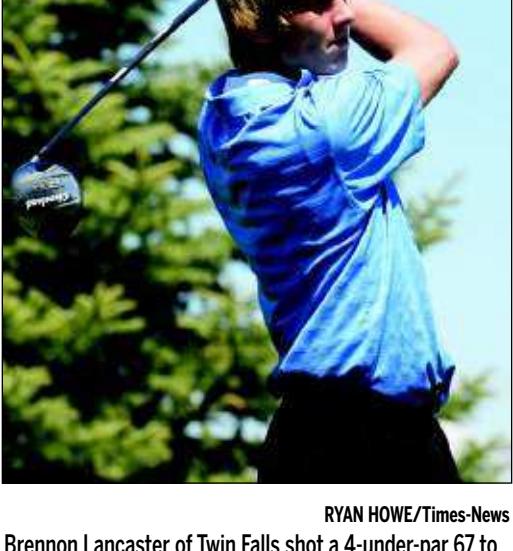

It was an especially nice day to be a Bruin. The Twin Falls boys (302) and girls (326) won the team titles and will move on to the Class 4A state golf tournament, held Monday and Tuesday at Twin Lakes Village Golf Course in Rathdrum.

On the boys side, Wood River also earned a state berth by shooting 316, barely edging out Canyon Ridge, which shot 322. While the Riverhawks won't be headed to state as a team, Derek Cook and Sawyer McMillen, along with Jerome's Jordan Roberts, qualified individually by placing in the top six.

For the girls, Burley, which was led by Shauna Pace's 88, was the second team to qualify for state.

TIGER TITLE

Jerome claims GBC crown after Wood River upsets Twin Falls in semis

By Diane Philbin
Times-News writer

With Jerome and Wood River already in next week's Class 4A state tournament, the Tigers and Wolverines looked like a pair of tired teams without much to play for in the Great Basin Conference Tournament championship game.

The Tigers had only five hits, but combined those with three errors by the Wood River defense to scratch out a 6-0 win in the title game at Twin Falls High School. It was an impressive triumph for a youthful Jerome team that struggled much of the season before blitzing through the tournament bracket as the No. 3 seed.

"I just can't wait for state," said Jerome's senior left fielder Amanda Wensveen. "This team has really bonded. We have a Thursday bonding night like going out for dinner together. We all get along really well. We have gotten past all the dramatics and we all pick each other up instead of putting anybody down. And sometimes we can be frustrating to the other teams."

Jerome (17-12) jumped out to a 4-0 lead in the bottom of the first as Jenna Seamons and Paige Jackman drew consecutive opening walks followed by RBI singles from T.J. Surrage and Shelby Bozzuto. Surrage came around to score on a groundout by Colby Argyle and Bozzuto came home on an error by the Wolverine defense on a Crystal Luna groundball to the right side of the infield.

"We were fired up in the first inning," said Jerome coach Adam Reynolds. "Then we relaxed too much. Our defense played well. When we play good defense, we are good. Our inexperience makes me a little nervous for state but it might help us out too."

Jerome tacked on two more runs in the fourth. An errant throw by the Wood River defense on a groundball by Wensveen resulted in the Tiger left fielder ending up at second base. Wensveen moved to third on an Alexis McClure single and McClure advanced on a passed ball.

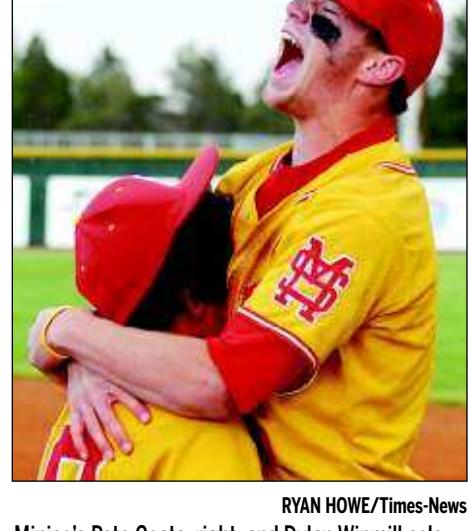

Surrage followed with a two-out two-run single back through the middle as Wensveen and McClure both came home.

Argyle pitched a complete game, allowing only five hits and one walk. After the rocky first inning, Wolverine starter Madison Gove settled down, facing only three Jerome batters in the second inning. But after hitting Surrage to lead off the third inning, she was replaced by Ali Levy.

"We did run out of gas," said Wood River coach Dale Martin, whose 10-17 team played five games in two days and eliminated top seed Twin Falls in the opening game Thursday. "The girls didn't give up and they battled to the end. I'm just so proud of them. They are coming together as a team and doing what it takes."

Minico rallies to top Jerome to make championship game

Spartans face Bruins today for GBC title

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

RUPERT — The reigning Class 4A state champs will return to defend their crown.

The Minico Spartans rallied from five runs down to beat Jerome 6-5 on Thursday at Warburton Field. The win gives Minico (21-10) a berth in the state tournament, to be held May 20-22 at Rodeo Park in Nampa. It also places the Spartans in the District IV Great Basin Conference Tournament championship game at 3 p.m. today at Twin Falls. Minico needs to beat the Bruins twice to earn the district title.

"It feels great to go back to state," said Minico senior Nick Salvi. "We feel like that's where we belong and we knew the whole year that we would get there."

In the sixth inning, Casey Christiansen stepped to the plate with bases loaded and two outs. After working to a full count against Jerome reliever Jordy Garrard, Christiansen hacked an infield dribbler and beat third baseman D.J. Worthington's throw as the tying run crossed. Moments later, Pete Coats drove in the go-ahead run.

Although Minico provided late dramatics, head coaches in both dugouts agreed the game was won and lost in the second and third innings when Jerome loaded the bases but came away with just one run each time.

"What we didn't do well today is execute offensively," said Jerome coach Tom Bobrowski.

"This game should not have even been close. We squandered runs early and should have had more than five."

Christiansen struggled early on the mound for Minico, but got stronger as the game wore on. The junior pitcher gave up nine hits in the first three innings, but allowed only two the rest of the way. He finished with 11 strikeouts.

"Once we were down 5-0, only the people in our dugout probably thought we had a chance of winning, and luckily those are the only people who matter," said Christiansen.

An RBI double by Richard Gibson, followed by a two-run base hit by Worthington put Jerome up 3-0 in the first. Nolan McDonald drove in a run in the second, and Tyler Powell had an RBI in the third.

College of Southern Idaho right fielder MeChel Hunt (21) celebrates with teammate Brittany Gonzales Thursday after Hunt hit a three-run home run against the College of Southern Nevada in the bottom of the second inning. The Eagles defeated CSN 8-0 in the second round of the Region 18 Tournament in Salt Lake City.

CSI's Hunt hammers Coyotes at tournament

By Bradley Guire

Times-News writer

SALT LAKE CITY — MeChel Hunt was due, and she took it out of the Coyotes' hides.

After a dismal series against the College of Southern Nevada last week in which she went 0-for-12, the College of Southern Idaho's sophomore right fielder took the Coyote pitchers to the wood shed in the Golden Eagles' 8-0 run-rule victory Thursday at the Region 18 Tournament. Hunt hit 2-for-3 with five RBIs to help her team advance to today's championship semifinal against Salt Lake Community College.

"Last week, I hit the ball, but I hit it at people every time," Hunt said. "I thought to myself that I had to put the ball in play (Thursday)."

She did that and more in her at-bats. Hunt put the ball out of play her first time up — to be more exact, she put it out of play over the left-field fence during the bottom of the second inning. The home run scored Marina Groenewegen and Chelsea Nix to open a 3-0 lead. Later in the inning, Mikkel Griffin also homered to drive in Jessica Albertson, who was hit by a pitch to reach base, and make it 5-0.

"(MeChel) has been swinging it that well, but over the course of the season, she's either catching up or getting herself in a position to have a game like that," Baumert.

Needless to say, CSN pitcher Jesslyn Bley was pulled for Samantha Powell, who didn't fare much better in the long run. Kelsey Bryant connected for a one-run single in the fourth, and Hunt crushed one of Powell's pitches to left field in the bottom of the fifth with Groenewegen and Nix on base again. They scored easily to end the game.

"I think we had our heads in the game," Groenewegen said. "It all worked out."

The Eagles had 11 hits as Griffin went 3-for-3 with a pair of runs scored and two RBIs, Bryant hit 2-for-3, Nix went 1-for-2 with a walk and two runs and Groenewegen was 2-for-2 with a walk and two runs scored.

CSI pitcher Generra Nielson allowed no runs on three hits with one walk and five strikeouts.

The Golden Eagles (46-18) face Salt Lake at 2:30 p.m., today with a shot at advancing to the tournament championship game on Saturday. A loss will force the Eagles to win three straight on the final day to claim the championship and a berth to the NJCAA National Tournament next week in St. George, Utah. The Bruins (57-3) defeated Snow College 4-3 after trailing most of the game.

"In a tournament, it's important to win the first game and win a bad game," Baumert said. "Hopefully, that wasn't Salt Lake's bad game. They'll be a better team (today)."

CSI baseball stumbles, bounces back at Region 18 Tournament

By Justin Lawson
Times-News correspondent

HENDERSON, Nev. — After tasting defeat in the first game of the day, Southern Idaho came out aggressive on the mound at the plate to hold a 7-0 lead through five innings at press time.

The game was scheduled for nine innings, with a 10-run rule after five innings and an 8-run rule after seven.

With a win, the Golden Eagles will advance in the loser's bracket in the Region 18 baseball tournament to face Western Nevada at 5 p.m., MDT today, while the loser will be eliminated.

Starting pitcher Preston Olson opened the game by striking out the side.

Olson had eight strikeouts through five innings and have up two hits.

The offense got off to a slow start in the first two innings, but caught fire in third. Remington Pullin hit a one-out single and two batters later came in after the Spartans' left fielder over-ran Ryan Lay's single to put CSI up 1-0. Lay moved to third on the play.

After Michael Wesner and Parker Morin walked, Blake Lively drove in two runs on a single up the middle to give CSI a 3-0 lead.

The Golden Eagles added to the onslaught on the fourth with a sac-fly from Lay and an RBI triple from Wesner. Wesner made it home on the play after the throw to third hit him and rolled to the fence.

CSI ran into No. 1 seeded Southern Nevada in the first game of the day and that meant the stingiest pitching staff in the Scenic West Athletic Conference.

The Golden Eagles put up a pair runs through the first two innings and held a 2-0 lead going into the bottom of the second, but between Coyote pitcher Donn Roach and five Golden Eagles' errors, CSI couldn't hold on to the lead.

"He was good, and when you look at it realistically, when that guy's throwing like that we're not going to beat him," CSI coach Walker said. "But obviously we didn't play good. I'm not saying if we would have played better we would have won, but I'll tell you what, that guy's tough. He was probably as good or better in the eighth and ninth (innings) as he was in the first and second."

Roach pitched a complete-game five-hitter and struck out 12 batters. CSI picked up an unearned

Lindy's tabs BSU No. 2, names Moore All-American

Broncos to open 2011 season at Ole Miss

Times-News

BOISE — The Broncos aren't No. 1 yet, but they may get their chance this season.

The 2010 Lindy's Football Preview put Boise State No. 2 in its preseason rankings, the school announced in a press release Thursday.

Lindy's also named BSU junior quarterback Kellen Moore a first-team All-American.

Alabama tops the magazines' rankings. Both Alabama and BSU enter the season on 14-game winning streaks. Ohio State, Texas and Florida round out Lindy's Top 5. TCU, the team the Broncos beat in the Fiesta Bowl, is ranked No. 7. Utah is No. 25.

Moore has led the Broncos to consecutive undefeated regular seasons and completed 65 percent of his passes for 3,325 yards and 39 touchdowns last season. He set the single-season school record for passing touchdowns while tossing only three interceptions.

BSU opens the season Monday, Sept. 6, facing Lindy's No. 8 team, Virginia Tech, at FedEx Field in Landover, Md.

In a separate press release issued Thursday, Boise State announced it will open the 20011 season with Sept. 3 game at Mississippi. No game time has been set, but the game is expected to be televised nationally.

The game will be played at Vaught-Hemingway Stadium (60,580) in Oxford, Miss.

"This will be a great game to start the 2011 season," said Boise State athletics director Gene Bleymaier. "Playing a team coached by Houston Nutt will add to the fun and excitement."

Nutt was BSU's head coach in 1997 before taking the head coaching position at the University of Arkansas in 1998. This will mark the third time Nutt has faced his old Boise State team.

While Nutt was the head coach at Arkansas, the Broncos traveled to Little Rock (2000) and Fayetteville (2002) to face the Razorbacks. Nutt is beginning his third year at Ole Miss.

"Diane and I had a wonderful experience there, and we're glad they're coming to Oxford," Nutt said. "Boise State is one of the top programs now, and we have an awesome respect for them. It really takes our schedule to another level."

This will mark the first time Boise State and Ole Miss have met on the football field.

"We're excited for the matchup against Ole Miss," Boise State head coach Chris Petersen said. "It will be great for Bronco Nation and the Boise State program to open the 2011 season against an opponent of that caliber."

The Broncos will play five non-conference games in 2011, including three home games. The games at Bronco Stadium include Wyoming on Sept. 10 (Saturday), Tulsa on Sept. 24 (Saturday) and Utah on Oct. 1 (Saturday). The other non-conference road game is a Sept. 17 date at Toledo.

Celtics advance, eliminate LeBron, Cavs in 6 games

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics sent LeBron James and the Cavaliers back to Cleveland to admire all of their regular-season accomplishments.

It's the Celtics who are still in the chase for an NBA title.

Kevin Garnett scored 22 points and added 12 rebounds, and Rondo had 21 points and 12 assists to beat Cleveland 94-85 in Game 6 on Thursday night. Boston advanced to the Eastern Conference finals, which begin Sunday in Orlando against the Magic, who are 8-0 in the playoffs after sweeping the Charlotte Bobcats and the Atlanta Hawks in the opening rounds.

James had a triple-double but he's headed for another early offseason after winning a second MVP award, leading the Cavs to an NBA-best 61 wins and a home-court advantage they never got to use.

This one is destined to define the future of the franchise — and the rest of the NBA, too.

The LeBron watch began at 10:53 p.m., when Rondo dribbled out the last 14 seconds and the Celtics began celebrating. James is eligible to opt out of his contract this summer, a move that would make the two-time MVP — and zero-time NBA champion — a free agent and set off a scramble for his services from New York to Miami to Los Angeles and, of course, back in Cleveland.

"Well we know their team is fueled by one guy," Garnett said. "If we could somehow, some way, control the supporting cast we had a chance."

James scored 27 points and had 10 assists and a career playoff-high 19 rebounds. He also had nine turnovers.

"I just told him, 'Keep your head up, man. I've been there,'" said Garnett, who toiled as a star without a title in Minnesota for more than a decade before winning one with Boston in 2008. "You have a very, very, very bright future. Continue to work and make decisions based on you and your family. Best advice I can give him."

Mo Williams scored 20 of his 22 points in the first half for the Cavaliers.

"Just never had a rhythm to the game, and give Boston credit for it," Cavaliers coach Mike Brown said of his team.

Boston's Paul Pierce scored 11 of his 13 points in the second half after playing just nine minutes — and shooting 1-for-5 — in the first with foul trouble. The Celtics had missed their first eight 3-point attempts when Pierce hit a 3 that gave them a 65-58 lead with 4:06 left in the third.

It was 67-61 when Rasheed Wallace hit a 3-pointer, and then Ray Allen stole James' pass and got the ball to Pierce for another 3 that completed a 16-4 run.

Els six shots back at Texas Open

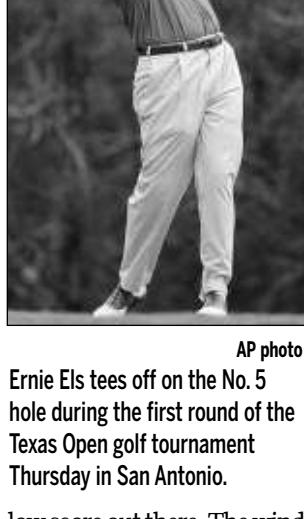

SAN ANTONIO — Matt Jones eagled the par-5 14th hole and finished with a 6-under 66 to take a one-stroke lead Thursday after the first round of the Texas Open.

Jones, the 30-year-old Australian who played at Arizona State, also had four birdies in a back-nine 30 on the Greg Norman-designed Oaks Course at TPC San Antonio, the tournament's new site after 15 years at La Cantera.

Paul Stankowski opened with a 67, and J.B. Holmes, Matt Weibring, Charley Hoffman and Steve Lowery had 68s.

Ernie Els, a two-time winner this year, had a 72. He was 3 under on the final five holes, making a tap-in eagle on 14 after a 293-yard second shot.

"Obviously, this golf course is a little bit different than we play week in and week out, and I think to some of the players it's a little bit of a shock," Els said. "Back to even par, but I feel like, you know, it could have been a low score out there. The wind dropped for us."

Els' playing partner, Vijay Singh, left several putts just short, but finished with a birdie for a 73. Zach Johnson, the two-time defending champion, made a 7 on the par-3 13th and ended up with an 8-over 80.

Jones rebounded after making a double bogey on the first hole.

"A double wasn't the start we wanted, but the first hole is not an easy starting tee shot there at all," Jones said. "It's very narrow."

"After that, it was just a battle to get back to even par on the front nine, and then I made about a 30-footer for par on 11, which kind of kept me going. And from there on, we had six birdies and an eagle."

MUNOZ LEADS BELL MICRO LPGA CLASSIC

MOBILE, Ala. — Azahara Munoz shot a 7-under 65 to take a one-stroke lead over Katherine Hull and Jee Young Lee in the Bell Micro LPGA Classic, the LPGA Tour's first event since Erica Blasberg was found dead.

Munoz, the former Spanish amateur star who won the 2008 NCAA individual title to lead Arizona State to the team championship, had a bogey-free round on The Crossings course at the Robert Trent Jones Golf Trail's Magnolia Grove complex.

Blasberg died Sunday in suburban Las Vegas and her agent said she had been all set to attempt to qualify for the field at Magnolia Grove. Police have not said if they suspect foul play. The coroner said a ruling on a cause of death was pending blood and tissue tests that could take four to six weeks to complete. She was 25.

Cristie Kerr, Meena Lee, Janice Moodie and Hye Jung Choi shot 67s.

Jiyai Shin, No. 1 in the world ranking following Lorena Ochoa's retirement two weeks ago after the Tres Marias Championship in Mexico, had a 70.

Japanese star Ai Miyazato, the Tres Marias winner for her third victory in the first five events this season, also opened with a 70. Michelle Wie shot a 72.

Baffert looking, finding, hope in Preakness

BALTIMORE (AP) — Bob Baffert is looking for good omens anywhere he can.

So it wasn't lost on the Hall of Fame trainer that he won two races at Hollywood Park the other day from the No. 7 hole. That's the same spot in the starting gate Lookin At Lucky drew for Saturday's Preakness.

Baffert hopes things may be looking up for the colt who's had anything but luck in his last three races, including a sixth-place finish as the beaten favorite in the Kentucky Derby. Nearly two weeks ago, Lookin At Lucky drew the No. 1 post and got shuffled back coming out of the gate in the 20-horse field.

An improved post position isn't the only thing different for Lookin At Lucky in the Preakness, where he's the 3-1 second choice behind Derby winner Super Saver in the 12-horse field. He's getting a new rider, too, in Martin Garcia.

Baffert parted company with veteran Garrett Gomez in favor of Garcia, a 25-year-old from Mexico who has been riding since 2005. He's only exercised the colt in the morning and will be riding him in a race for the first time.

"Everywhere I send him, he wins for me," Baffert said Thursday. "He's a kid who's progressed quickly. He's got raw talent."

The idea of changing riders came up in a conversation between Baffert and Mike Pegram, his longtime buddy who co-owns Lookin At Lucky, last year's 2-year-old champion.

"He was like, 'We need to change our luck,'" Baffert said, leaning back on a white fence outside the stakes barn at Pimlico. "Our mojo wasn't working."

Gomez has ridden Lookin At Lucky in all nine of his starts, and Baffert said the parting was amicable.

On Saturday, Gomez will be aboard 10-1 shot Dublin, trying to win a sixth Preakness for trainer D. Wayne Lukas. Dublin was seventh under Terry Thompson in the Derby.

"I talked to Garrett and said, 'You guys find another horse. If I do decide to run, I may make a switch to change my luck,'" said Baffert, who waited a week after the Derby to announce Lookin At Lucky would try the Preakness. "Sometimes a horse and rider just aren't in sync. If I'm going to come here, I want to do something different."

A year ago, the Preakness was the scene of an unprecedented jockey switch. Calvin Borel did the unthinkable, getting off Derby winner Mine That Bird to ride filly Rachel Alexandra, who beat the boys. Mine That Bird finished second with Mike Smith.

Borel switched back to Mine That Bird for the Belmont, finishing third in the final leg of the Triple Crown.

This time, Borel is sticking with the horse that got him to Pimlico. He's even boasted that Super Saver will win the Triple Crown.

"He's a really, really good fit for this colt," trainer Todd Pletcher said. "He's got a light touch and it seems the colt relaxes well for him. There is a lot of good chemistry between the two of them."

Borel's rail-hugging ride in the Derby — his third win in four years using his patented style — caught Baffert's attention.

"My focus changed on Calvin," he said. "It's amazing what he's done."

He said that after failing the test, he was told HCG can get in your body from injecting it or because of tumors. He said this information led him to believe he had tumors. He did not say what kind of tumors.

"I personally know I'm not injecting myself with anything," he said. "I

BALTIMORE — Luke Scott hit a grand slam to cap a five-run eighth inning against reliever Brandon League, and the Baltimore Orioles rallied to beat the Seattle Mariners 6-5 Thursday.

The Orioles held on to win when left fielder Corey Patterson nailed Josh Wilson at the plate for the final out. Wilson tried to score from second on Ichiro Suzuki's single.

Held to five hits over seven innings by Seattle starter Felix Hernandez, the Orioles promptly broke loose against League (3-3).

Patterson, promoted from Triple-A earlier this week, hit a leadoff homer in the eighth to start the comeback from a 5-1 deficit.

Royals 6, Indians 4

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The Kansas City Royals fired manager Trey Hillman immediately after Zack Greinke earned his first win in eight starts, 6-4 over the Cleveland Indians on Thursday.

Alberto Callaspo hit a three-run homer and the Royals snapped a seven-game skid by roughing up Cleveland starter David Huff (1-5) and giving Greinke (1-4) his most run support of the season. The hard-luck right-hander made the most of it, winning for the first time since September by allowing up three runs in six innings.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

PADRES 1, GIANTS 0

SAN FRANCISCO — Mat Latos pitched a one-hitter, allowing just a sixth-inning single that deflected off him, and also drove in the lone run to lead San Diego over San Francisco for a three-game sweep.

Latos (3-3) retired the first 15 batters. Eli Whiteside opened the sixth with a one hopper that hit off Latos' glove hand and bounced toward shortstop. Third baseman Chase Headley's throw to first wasn't in time.

ASTROS 4, CARDINALS 1

ST. LOUIS — Bud Norris shut down St. Louis for the fourth straight time, Hunter Pence hit a three-run homer after a testy exchange and Houston wrapped up a three-game sweep of the Cardinals.

The Cardinals have lost seven of nine.

MARLINS 2, METS 1

MIAMI — Cody Ross scored from third base on a wild pitch by Fernando Nieve with one out in the ninth inning, and Florida beat the New York Mets.

Ross walked with one out off Nieve (1-2) and took third on a single by Ronny Paulino. Nieve's first pitch to pinch-hitter Dan Uggla was a breaking ball in the dirt that bounced away from catcher Rod Barajas, and Ross slid across home plate with the winning run.

Texans LB Cushing denies drug use

HOUSTON — Houston Texans linebacker Brian Cushing said Thursday he never used any banned substances even though he tested positive for a performance-enhancing drug.

Cushing was suspended for four games without pay last week for violating the NFL's drug policy. His appeal was denied.

Cushing confirmed he tested positive for HCG, a fertility drug that is on the league's banned substance list.

"The question of how it got into my body is still unclear," he said. "It's something that I'm very personally concerned about, just the fact that how it's there and what's going to determine it from happening again, and that's something we're going to have to medically investigate."

He said that after failing the test, he was told HCG can get in your body from injecting it or because of tumors. He said this information led him to believe he had tumors. He did not say what kind of tumors.

"I personally know I'm not injecting myself with anything," he said. "I played the whole season thinking this could not only be my last season, but my last year."

Cushing added he is concerned about his health and plans to undergo tests to see "how this got into my body" and to try to make sure it doesn't happen again.

SAINTS LAWSUIT GOING TO ARBITRATION

GRETNA, La. — Former New Orleans Saints security director Geoffrey Santini withdrew his lawsuit against the club on Thursday because the team's lawyers are sending the matter to arbitration.

Santini's motion to dismiss the lawsuit stated that Saints attorneys waited more than a week after the lawsuit was initially filed to advise Santini they intended to invoke an arbitration clause in his employment contract rather than fight his civil lawsuit in district court.

In the lawsuit, which was filed April 30, Santini claimed the Saints attempted to cover up both the theft and improper distribution of prescription Vicodin pills at the team's facility.

NFL APPEALING STARCAPS CASE TO US SUPREME COURT

MINNEAPOLIS — The NFL is asking the U.S. Supreme Court to overturn a decision that allowed Minnesota Vikings defensive linemen Kevin and Pat Williams to challenge their four-game suspensions for violating the league's anti-drug policy.

The NFL cited the National Labor Relations Act in its filing on Thursday, saying its collective bargaining agreement with the players' union protects its drug policy from lawsuits in state courts.

The Williamses, no relation, tested positive in 2008 for a banned diuretic, bumetanide, that was not listed as an ingredient on the label for the weight-loss supplement StarCaps. The diuretic is not a steroid, but the league said it can be used as a masking agent for performance-enhancing drugs and therefore is not allowed.

Thai general who aided protesters shot in head

By Vijay Joshi and Jocelyn Gecker
Associated Press writers

BANGKOK — A rogue army general working with anti-government protesters was shot in the head Thursday while talking to reporters in downtown Bangkok, triggering more clashes that left one demonstrator dead and worsening Thailand's political chaos.

Gunfire crackled well into the night after the government declared it will blockade 10,000 Red Shirt demonstrators who have occupied and paralyzed the center of the capital for two months.

The developments further eroded chances of re-establishing peace in this deeply divided Southeast Asian nation where the mostly rural, poor protesters are seeking to topple the government and hold new elections that they hope will give them

Maj. Gen. Khattiya Sawasdiphol, center, is flanked by security guards during an interview at the anti-government protesters' encampment Thursday in Bangkok, Thailand. The renegade army officer, accused of marshaling a paramilitary force to defend the protesters, was shot in the head Thursday, apparently by a sniper.

The Red Shirts have turned a 1-square-mile area in the posh Rajprasong area into a sprawling camp, with portable bathrooms, free food and a stage from which their leaders deliver daily anti-government diatribes.

The streets around it turned into a virtual war zone following the shooting of Maj. Gen. Khattiya Sawasdiphol. Protesters stopped police trucks and forced them to turn back; they hurled rocks at soldiers, who responded by firing live ammunition, said Associated Press cameraman Raul Gallego.

Killed in the shooting was Chartchai Bualao, 25, who was hit in the eye, according to the government's medical emergency center. Soldiers resumed firing after an ambulance took his body away. At least seven other people were injured.

Khattiya was shot in the head while talking to a New York Times journalist near the Silom subway station on the edge of the occupation zone. The station entrance is surrounded by tall office buildings, leading to suspicions a sniper fired the shot.

Times reporter Thomas Fuller, answering questions on the newspaper's website, said he was about a half-hour into the interview when he asked the general, "Do you think the military is going to launch a crackdown, and do you think they'll be able to penetrate the barricades here?"

"And there was a bang as he was answering it, and I think his last words that I heard were, 'The military cannot get in here.' And then immediately (he) just fell, just collapsed," Fuller said. "He was looking right at me. I think the bullet went over my head and hit him in the forehead."

Wearing his trademark camouflage uniform, Khattiya slumped to the ground and one person cradled his head for a while. Moments later, others dragged him by the legs, his head sliding on the ground and leaving a trail of blood.

The emergency center said Khattiya was shot in the head and admitted to a hospital's intensive care unit.

Asked if troops shot Khattiya, government spokesman Panitan Wattanayagorn refused to give a direct answer. "The operation by authorities was according to international standards and law. So far, we have not found any actions by the authorities that went beyond that," he told the AP.

Clinton: U.S. won't abandon Afghan women

WASHINGTON (AP) — Women's rights will not be sacrificed in any settlement between the government of Afghan President Hamid Karzai and Taliban militants, Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton said Thursday.

Clinton ruled out U.S. support, or at least her own, for negotiations with anyone who would roll back advances for Afghan women achieved since a U.S.-led invasion ousted the militant Islamic Taliban movement from power in 2001.

"There are certain conditions that have to be met" to hold talks with insurgents about laying down arms, Clinton said during an appearance with Karzai. Karzai and a large delegation of government ministers and advisers, including several women, were finishing four days of talks in Washington.

Among the conditions for peace talks, midlevel Taliban leaders would have to renounce violence, cut ties with al-Qaida and its affiliates, and abide by Afghanistan's laws and constitution, Clinton said.

"And on a personal note, they must respect women's rights."

Karzai nodded beside her but did not address the women's rights aspect of possible talks with the Taliban. The other conditions apply, he said.

The Taliban regime forced women to wear a traditional head-to-toe covering called a burqa, forbade school for girls and beat women seen walking outside the company of a man.

The Taliban has rebounded over the past several years to become a persistent insurgency seeking Karzai's overthrow. Insurgents and their sympathizers routinely intimidate or attack women who work outside the home, wear Western dress or try to attend school.

Safari ends in tragedy for lone crash survivor

By Tarek El-Tablawy
Associated Press writer

TRIPOLI, Libya — The Dutch family — mom, dad and two young sons — were headed home from a dream safari in South Africa when their plane plunged to the ground in Libya. Rescuers found a single passenger alive: 9-year-old Ruben, still strapped in his seat.

The sole survivor slept peacefully Thursday, a stuffed orange Tigger tucked under his arm in a hospital room filled with bouquets of flowers. His left eye, forehead and slim torso were marked with bruises and scrapes; his left leg was immobilized in a blue and white cast.

Ruben smiled and spoke briefly to an aunt and uncle who rushed to his bedside from Holland, but has yet to be told his parents and 11-year-old brother are dead.

"He's awake. He's talking. He is listening," a Dutch Foreign Ministry official, Ed Kronenburg, told The Associated Press after visiting the boy. "Of course he also sleeps quite a lot because he got anesthesia yesterday and is still a bit dizzy."

The child was recovering well after 4½ hours of surgery to repair multiple fractures to his legs, Kronenburg said.

Ruben, his brother Enzo and their parents Trudy and Patrick van Assouw had gone to South Africa during the boys' spring school vacation to celebrate the couple's 12½-year wedding anniversary, a Dutch tradition.

In his travel blog, Patrick Van Assouw, wrote about the camping trip that took them through some of the world's most spectacular natural wonders — South Africa's Mac Mac Falls, the Kruger National Park game reserve and across the border into Swaziland and on to Lesotho.

Ruben van Assouw, 9, is seen in El Khadra hospital, in Tripoli, Libya, Thursday. The Dutch boy was the only survivor of an Afriqiyah Airways plane with 104 people aboard that crash-landed Wednesday at the airport in the Libyan capital.

Pictures he posted included one showing Ruben and Enzo posing in front of the waterfalls.

"We ran into a very large number of impalas, which we nicknamed deer," he wrote. "Enzo's second find was the elephant. Also saw buffalo, gnu, fox, zebra, more deer, ostrich, a lot of birds, turtle, giraffe, apes, boar, more deer."

The following day the family encountered two rhinos, and later in the trip they saw a hippo, he wrote in the entry posted Monday — the day before the family boarded the ill-fated return flight.

Their Libyan-owned jet-liner was minutes from landing in Tripoli on Wednesday after a more than seven-hour journey across Africa when it crashed into a sandy field at the edge of the runway, killing 103 people.

Ruben was found still strapped in his seat by rescuers who noticed the boy was breathing, said a Libyan safety official, Col. Baloul al-Khoja. The bodies of three crash victims were nearby.

The child was semiconscious and unresponsive, bleeding from wounds to his legs, al-Khoja said. As rescuers moved him, he grimaced in pain.

Kronenburg said the child was discovered about half a mile from the tail section of the Airbus A330-200, indicating he may have been sitting in the front of the aircraft when it broke into pieces.

Aside from the tail, little was left of the Afriqiyah Airways plane. A trail of wreckage more than 150 yards long lay scattered Thursday in the sand.

Among the bits of fuselage were a romance novel,

"Zoete Tranen," — Dutch for "Sweet Tears" — open to page 225. A charred boot, black high-heeled shoe and a motorcycle jacket with Marlboro and Ferrari logos were nearby. The carcass of a dog buzzed with flies; trees were shredded to chunks of wood.

The walls of a house just yards from the site were pockmarked by debris. The 54-year-old owner, Ramadan al-Seid, said he and his family heard the crash and when they looked out the window they saw a massive cloud of smoke and dust, with an overwhelming smell of fuel. Then they heard the ambulances coming.

"Thank God it didn't strike the house," said the shaken al-Seid, a school administrator.

Obama submits Russia nuclear treaty to Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Obama administration has submitted to the Senate a nuclear arms treaty reached with Russia last month.

President Obama and Russian counterpart Dmitry Medvedev signed the deal to replace the 1991 Strategic Arms Control Treaty. If ratified by both countries, the deal would slash the former Cold War rivals' warhead arsenals by nearly one-third.

Ratification in the Senate will require 67 of the 100 possible votes. That means Obama will need support from Republicans, something he has found hard to come by on other issues.

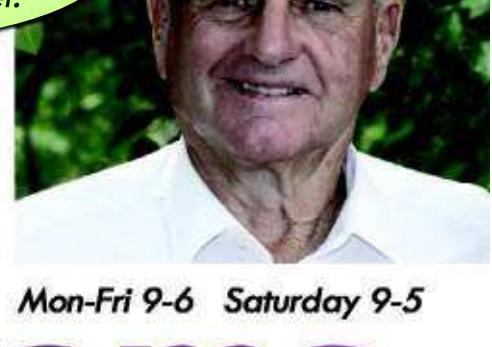

The deal has been held up as improvement in U.S.-Russian relations and failure to ratify it would be a setback.

Obama and Medvedev discussed the treaty and other issues in a telephone call Thursday.

Avail. for Adoption:
If you would like to make a donation to the shelter, please give us a call. All donations go towards feeding and medicating our furry friends.

Duke is a young adult Rottweiler mix male. He is very handsome and loves to romp around with his sister Melody. He does well with children and other dogs. Come meet Duke today!

Melody looks like a blue heeler mix. She came to the shelter with her brother Duke who looks like a Rottweiler mix, so who knows what breed they really are. Melody is very pretty with white markings and patches on her eyes. She does well with other dogs and children.

Bear is a very handsome adult Lab mix. He has medium length shiny black hair with a white stripe on his chest. Bear has a really unique tail that curls up and around like a Chow. He does well with children and would make a great family pet.

The adoption fee is $75 and includes spaying/neutering and the first set of vaccinations.

IF MAY 14 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Enjoy improved status and a release from pressures in the months to come. Refrain from being overly competitive or self centered during the next few weeks. Between late June and early August much can be accomplished especially if you act like a model of industry and concentrate on study, learning, travel, and participating in community affairs. The best time to launch important plans is during late July when you will be wiser than usual and people are more apt to give you a boost up the ladder of success so you can reap the rewards you deserve.

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Money is power, but that doesn't mean you should squander it. Cast a critical eye on your piggy bank before you spend too much to accomplish your plans. Romantic interludes get a big thumbs-up this evening.

TAURUS (April 20-May 19): You might hijack someone else's good habits or winning ways. Imitation is the sincerest form of flattery, so find a role model to emulate. Study what makes this paragon of virtue such a success.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Watching the world from an ivory tower won't put the money in the bank. You will need to employ both inspiration and a realistic appraisal of situations in order to emerge at the top of the ladder.

CANCER (June 21-July 20): Others may add their very valuable two cents — and every penny counts. Thoughts are definitely things, so bring them out into the open and discuss your most precious objectives and goals.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Preserve the mystery. Sort out secrets and longstanding fantasies that have baffled or intrigued your sensitive mind. An existing love relationship can move to new heights of ecstasy or understanding.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Feel the ground beneath your feet. Remain grounded and avoid flights of imagination this weekend. You could imagine that a certain significant hookup is better, or worse, than it really is.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Listen and learn. There may be important information in the news. Resist being paired up with an overly dramatic and emotional work partner. Someone could try to drag you down to his or her level.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): An understanding of the facts may be more important than the facts themselves. A little piece of irrelevant news could persuade you to make a fateful change that could affect your financial situation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): If you can't stand the heat, get out of the kitchen. Competition might actually be beneficial for you because it will show you things about yourself that need to be changed or improved.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You are wiser than your years. Speak up if called upon to offer an expert opinion or assistance, as this could place you in a flattering light. Don't make mere changes; strive to make improvements.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): The power to attract can't control who or what is attracted. You are dynamically fascinating to people lurking on the outside of your social circle. Someone new might only be a fling.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): If you snooze, you lose. There is nothing wrong with being guarded about an offer that seems too good to be true. But when opportunity knocks you had best run to the door since it won't knock twice.

RUPERT Clean 2 bdm apt, stove, refrig, W/D,

DEAR ABBY: I overheard my boss talking about something that sounded like a cover-up for an "accident" involving some people he doesn't like. I would like to report him to the police, but he knows I heard him and I'm afraid if the police question him, my little girl or I could wind up having an "accident," too.

What should I do? Several people are already in the hospital.

— WORRIED SICK

DEAR WORRIED: Because you are afraid you or your child could be in danger, find another job and put as much distance between you and your sociopathic boss as possible. And, as "insurance," discuss not only what you heard — but also your concerns — with your religious adviser before contacting the authorities "confidentially." All it takes for evil to flourish is for men (and women) of good conscience to remain silent.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I am a hospitalist, a physician who cares for hospitalized patients. When I enter a patient's room, I invariably find the television blaring. Usually the patient or family members will make no effort to mute the TV, and I must turn it off myself. Because they are paying me to communicate, I would assume they would want to hear what I have to say.

Occasionally patients have expressed irritation at having their TV turned off (they can turn it back on using the bedside control). It seems to me that good manners require one to turn off the television or radio or hang up the phone when the physician makes rounds. Am I wrong?

— HOSPITALIST

IN THE NORTHEAST
DEAR HOSPITALIST: You have my sympathy. Dr. Oz, Ellen and "The View" are stiff competition.

No, you are not wrong. Not only is it good manners, it makes good sense to give full attention to everything the doctor has to say, as well as be able to answer any questions free of distraction.

However, because your patients may not be thinking clearly — if they were they would use better manners — you are absolutely right to turn off the set after a brief explanation why.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married to my wife, "Leigh," for seven years. We have two sons, ages 4 and 2. I love Leigh and our sons very much.

Over the years I became increasingly dependent on drinking (beer). I have never been abusive, but Leigh expressed concern about it. I didn't think the problem was anything we couldn't deal with.

A little over a year ago, Leigh's mother died of cancer. It has been an extremely emotional time for her, and she has now decided she can no longer tolerate my behavior. She's not even sure she's in love with me anymore.

Hearing her say it made me realize how big a deal my drinking is, and I am committed to changing. But after a month of trying, Leigh still says she would be better off alone. She is starting counseling soon. I told her I'd go with her.

This is a painful period for us, and I can't imagine my life without her and the kids. Is it too late?

— SCARED SOBER

IN AUSTIN

DEAR SCARED: That remains to be seen. One month of sobriety isn't enough to make up for years of being emotionally absent because you had a "buzz" going. Counseling may help you both, but you need more than that. If you are sincere about kicking the habit, you will join an alcohol rehab program. A listing for Alcoholics Anonymous is as near as your telephone directory — and so is Al-Anon, which could help your wife, who may still be grieving the loss of her mother.

YOU ARE NOTIFIED THAT:

A Petition, a copy of which is attached, has been filed in the above-entitled matter in the Magistrate's Division of the District Court of Twin Falls County, Idaho, by the Prosecuting Attorney, alleging the above-named children come within the Court's jurisdiction under the Child Protective Act.

You are hereby directed to appear personally for a Review Hearing at the Twin Falls County Courthouse, 425 Shoshone Street, Twin Falls, Idaho, on July 29, 2010 at 9:30 AM.

You are notified that service of the attached Petition upon you, as the parent(s), guardian, or custodian of these children, confers personal jurisdiction of the court upon you and subjects you to the provisions of the Child Protective Act.

You are notified that if you fail to appear without reasonable cause, the Court may proceed in your absence or you may be proceeded against for contempt of Court.

You are notified that the parent(s), guardian, or custodian may be financially liable for the support and/or treatment of the children.

You are further notified that the children and parent(s), guardian, or custodian have the right to be represented by an attorney of your choosing, or if financially unable to pay, have the right to have an attorney appointed by the Court to represent the children or the parent(s), guardian, or custodian at county expense.

If you request to have an attorney appointed at county expense, you must appear before the date of the hearing given above, at which time the Court shall consider appointment of an attorney for the children and inquire whether the parent(s), guardian, or custodian require the separate appointment of an attorney.

You are further notified that there shall be a rebuttable presumption that if a child is placed in the custody of the IDHW and was also placed in out of the home care for a period not less than fifteen (15) out of the last twenty-two (22) months from the date of Adjudication, the IDHW shall initiate a Petition for Termination of Parental Rights. This presumption may be rebutted by a finding of the court that the filing of a Petition for Termination of Parental Rights would not be in the best interest of the child and their family, or that the child is placed permanently with a relative.

WITNESS MY HAND AND SEAL of said Magistrate Court this 3rd day of May, 2010.

Notice of Realty Action: Proposed Sale of Public Land, Idaho and Termination of a Multiple Use Classification on a portion of these lands

SUMMARY: The following described public land in Jerome County, Idaho, has been found suitable for disposal by direct sale to Todd Buschhom, under the authority of Sections 203 and 209 of the Federal Land Policy Management Act of 1976 (FLPMA), at no less than the appraised fair market value: Boise Meridian, T. 10 S., R. 19 E., Section 25; Lot 10. The area described contains 7.45 acres in Jerome County. The 1985 BLM Monument Resource Management Plan, as amended, by the 2003 Amendments to Shoshone Field Office Land Use Plans for Land Tenure Adjustment and Areas of Critical Environmental Concern identifies this parcel of land to be within the adjustment area of land tenure Zone 4. The general management philosophy of Zone 4 is to allow disposal of public lands through sale or exchange. Revenues generated from the sale or disposal of lands will be deposited within the general treasury. Conveyance of any mineral interests pursuant to Section 209 of the FLPMA will be analyzed during processing of the proposed sale.

The patent, when issued, will contain a right-of-way thereon for all ditches and canals constructed by the authority of the United States under the Act of August 30, 1890, 43 U.S.C. 945. On the date of publication of the Notice of Realty Action in the Federal Register the above-described land will be segregated from appropriation under the public land laws, including the mining laws, except the sale provisions of the FLPMA. Until completion of the sale, the BLM is no longer accepting land use applications affecting the identified public land, except applications for the amendment of previously-filed right-of-way applications or existing authorizations to increase the term of the grants in accordance with 43 CFR 2807.15 and 2886.15. The segregative effect will terminate upon issuance of a patent, publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER of a termination of the segregation, or 2 years after date of publication in the Federal Register unless extended by the BLM State Director in accordance with 43 CFR 2711.1-2(d) prior to the termination date.

The land will not be offered for sale until at least 60 days after the date of this notice. For a period of 45 days from April 29, 2010, interested parties may submit comments.

COMMENTS: Interested parties and the general public may submit in writing any comments concerning the land being considered for sale to Lisa Claxton, Natural Resource Specialist, BLM Shoshone Field Office, at the following address. Ward: McCain campaign kept him from voting in '08

Associated Press writer

BOISE — U.S. House hopeful Vaughn Ward worked on Sen. John McCain's bid for the presidency two years ago, but he didn't vote for him — or anyone else — in the 2008 general election.

Ward told The Associated Press on Thursday that his job as Nevada director for McCain's presidential bid made it difficult to break away from the frenzied pace that defined the final days in a key battleground state.

"I was managing the entire operation, and it became

Ward also said the window for requesting an absentee ballot had closed by the time he realized he wouldn't be able to return as planned to cast his ballot in Idaho.

Ward registered to vote in the May 2008 primary with an Ada County address, a residence that belongs to his campaign treasurer Lowell Bengoechea, according to public records. Ward and his wife, Kristen, had lived with Bengoechea while they were shopping for a home in Eagle, he said. The couple now rents a home about a mile from Bengoechea's house. Ward also has a listed property in Cascade, Idaho, and a home in Virginia.

The U.S. Marine major is running in this month's GOP primary against state Rep. Raul Labrador, an attorney who voted both in the 2008 primary and general election, according to Ada County election records.

"Mr. Ward's use of a house that was not his residence as a

now faces a strong primary challenge in Arizona from former Rep. J.D. Hayworth. McCain and former vice presidential candidate Sarah Palin have endorsed Ward.

During a live televised debate Tuesday, Ward pointed out that he and McCain differ on several issues, including global warming, immigration and not drilling in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge.

"I'm proud of the opportunity that I had to be a part of my party in our effort to try to gain control of the presidency," Ward said, "but that doesn't necessarily mean that I'm going to back anybody who was part of that effort." About 77 percent of Idaho's then 863,538 registered voters cast ballots in the 2008 presidential race, and 61 percent of voters chose Republican McCain as the candidate best equipped to manage the economic turmoil nationwide, an issue that was listed as their chief concern in an Associated Press exit poll.

While Ward didn't vote in the last general election, he emphasized that there are many ways to participate in the political process, such as working on a campaign or attending debates and volunteering.

Other border states shun Arizona's immigration law

By Elliot Spagat
Associated Press writer

SAN DIEGO — New Mexico's governor says it is a step backward. Texas isn't touching it. And California? Never again.

Arizona's sweeping new law empowering police to question and arrest anyone they suspect is in the U.S. illegally is finding little support in the other states along the Mexican border.

Among the reasons given: California, New Mexico and Texas have long-established, politically powerful Hispanic communities; they have deeper cultural ties to Mexico that influence their attitudes toward immigrants; and they have little appetite for a polarizing battle over immigration like one that played out in California in the 1990s.

But perhaps the biggest reason of all is that the illegal flow of people across the border is seen as a more acute problem, and a more dangerous one, in Arizona.

In the 1990s, the U.S. government added fences, stadium lights and more agents to the border in Southern California and Texas, forcing a shift in the flow of illegal immigrants that has now turned Arizona into the single biggest gateway for people sneaking into the country from Mexico. The influx has led to a sharp increase in kidnappings, home invasions and other violence tied to drugs and human smuggling.

"The flow has moved east, and the debate has moved east as well," said Dan Schnur, director of the University of Southern California's Jesse M. Unruh Institute of Politics.

Arizona's population of illegal immigrants has increased fivefold since 1990 to around 500,000. The Tucson region replaced San Diego as the top place for Border Patrol arrests in 1998 and accounts for nearly half the total. And Phoenix has been dubbed the kidnapping capital of the U.S., with an average of one abduction per day in recent years.

The other border states have older, larger and more culturally entrenched and politically connected Hispanic populations.

California and Texas were forced to deal with illegal immigration decades ago. Both states saw surges in the 1980s because of Mexico's shaky economy and the civil wars that wracked Central America. But many who entered illegally became voters under a 1986 federal law that granted amnesty to 2.7 million people.

That political clout is evident today, with city councils from Oakland to San Diego condemning the Arizona law and 50,000 people demonstrating in Los Angeles on May 1 in support of immigrants. On Wednesday, Los Angeles became the nation's largest city to boycott Arizona over the law, when the City Council voted 13-1 for sanctions that could include canceling some $8 million in contracts.

The New Mexico Legislature is 44 percent Hispanic, followed by California at 23 percent, Texas at 20 percent and Arizona at 16 percent, according to the National Association of Latino Elected and Appointed Officials.

registered place to vote is so clearly a part of a pattern of parachuting into a land that's not his," said Labrador spokesman Dennis Mansfield. "He's a homeowner in Virginia who slept on a couch in Idaho and didn't even bother to vote."

Ward has not endorsed McCain, who helped him launch his political career and the candidates are raising and spending money heading into the final push before a primary.

Minnick, who does not face a primary challenge, has continued to raise money in big chunks over the last week, according to a series of separate reports.

From April 1 to May 5, the first-term congressman raised more than $117,000 and reports more than $935,000 in cash on hand.

During the same period, Republican candidate Vaughn Ward brought in more than $55,000, mostly from individual donors, giving him $125,700 cash on hand. Ward's challenger in the May 25 primary, state Rep. Raul Labrador, collected $14,800 in donations and reported $35,900 in available cash.

Federal election rules require candidates to file financial reports for the five-week period. The deadline for those reports was Thursday. They are the last major campaign finance reports filed before the primary and give the most accurate snapshot of how campaign checkbook has been spent down in recent weeks in large part to pay for a second television ad now being broadcast in Idaho's 1st Congressional District's television markets, including Boise, Lewiston and Coeur d'Alene.

During the April-May reporting period, Ward spent more than $221,000, compared to $70,000 for Minnick. Labrador spent more than $62,000 during the five-week span, but $30,000 of that was used to repay himself part of the $50,000 he loaned his campaign.

Labrador told The Associated Press Thursday he isn't certain if he'll spend his remaining personal loan before the primary or pay it back to himself but said the campaign is scheduled to launch radio ads Friday.

International school curriculum in N. Idaho blasted as un-American

COEUR d'ALENE (AP) — Foes of an internationally focused curriculum offered in some northern Idaho schools have been taking to the streets to publicize their fears that the program spreads anti-American ideology.

Kootenai County sheriff's deputies had to be called to keep protesters of the International Baccalaureate program at Hayden Meadows Elementary School from snarling traffic.

The protesters fear the advanced studies program, offered at the public school in Hayden Lake, as well as Lake City High School in Coeur d'Alene, is too closely linked to the United Nations.

Similar controversies emerged in Utah in 2008 and in Michigan in 2005. As a result, the International Baccalaureate organization has developed what it calls "a playbook" to counter opposition, emphasizing that the program isn't anti-American but focuses on providing a global education and critical-thinking skills.

In an event Monday at the Coeur d'Alene Public Library that attracted 100 people, foes of the program denied they were "members of any radical right-wing organizations, or left-wing for that matter."

Luke Sommer worries the program aims to undermine American values — and promote anti-American ideology.

"They want to change the way your child thinks, not feed your child's mind with information, and information about our history, heritage and why we believe what we believe," Sommer said.

The International Baccalaureate offers three programs for students through the age of 19 to "help develop the intellectual, personal, emotional and social skills to live, learn and work in a rapidly globalizing world," according to its website. It says it has 812,000 students at 2,935 schools in 139 countries.

Drew Deutsch, director of the International Baccalaureate Americas program in New York, said his program's curriculum "isn't anti-anything."

"It's a program that approaches education from a global perspective and it reinforces a rigorous curriculum with high standards," Deutsch told The Associated Press. "The emphasis is on critical-thinking skills."

Though some private schools such as Riverstone International School in Boise offer students a so-called "IB curriculum," Deutsch said about 90 percent of U.S. schools that offer his organization's curriculum are publicly funded.

Idaho State Department of Education spokeswoman Melissa McGrath estimated only two public school districts in Idaho — Coeur d'Alene and Meridian, near Boise — have adopted or are considering the International Baccalaureate curriculum for some of their schools. Such decisions are left up to local boards, McGrath said.

At the two Hayden Meadows Elementary School protests — one last Friday, another Monday — officers had to keep people out of the street, but there weren't any altercations. On one occasion, deputies warned a person standing on the road opposite the school, handing flyers to drivers.
