Gov. Otter takes on feds over wilderness filming

IPTV wants to film in Frank Church River of No Return Wilderness

By John Miller
Associated Press Writer

BOISE — Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter on Wednesday chastised the U.S. Forest Service for forbidding the state’s educational broadcasting network from sending a cameraman into a central Idaho wilderness area.

Idaho Public Television,

licensed by the federal government as a noncommercial TV station, wanted to film students doing conservation work in the 2.3-million-acre Frank Church River of No Return Wilderness Area for its “Outdoor Idaho” show, which has filmed in wilderness areas in the past.

But Frank Guzman, the Salmon-Challis National Forest supervisor, told the station this month that “this sort of filming is commercial, and thus not allowed in the wilderness.”

Otter urged Guzman to reconsider what he termed an “ill-advised decision.”

“The claim that IPTV is a commercial entity is patently absurd and defies common sense,” Otter wrote Guzman. “IPTV is owned by the state of Idaho and is an agency of the State Board of Education. IPTV is a noncommercial entity.”

Confronting federal agencies that Otter believes have overstepped their authority is familiar ground for Idaho’s Republican governor.

Under his administration, the Department of Fish and Game in 2009 landed helicopters in the

Schouten, Ursenbach have raised most money in T.F. races

By Nate Poppino

Two candidates seeking a Twin Falls County Commission seat have raised more than $2,000 each this spring, largely thanks to loans each took out.

District 2 commission candidate Jim Schouten, a Republican, led the fundraising for all contested races in the county, according to campaign finance reports due Tuesday to the county clerk’s office. He raised about $2,861, including $1,800 in loans and a $500 donation from Bill Price. Schouten spent all but $300 on campaign signs and other advertisements.

Jerome’s school board OKs contract with teachers

Combination of cuts will drop teachers’
salaries by 6.2 percent

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

JEROME — Jerome School District’s board unanimously approved on Wednesday its contract with teachers that will cut the budget for salaries by about 6.2 percent.

The reductions are happening in response to decreased state funding and reflect similar steps that districts across the state have taken to deal with budget shortfalls for the upcoming school year.

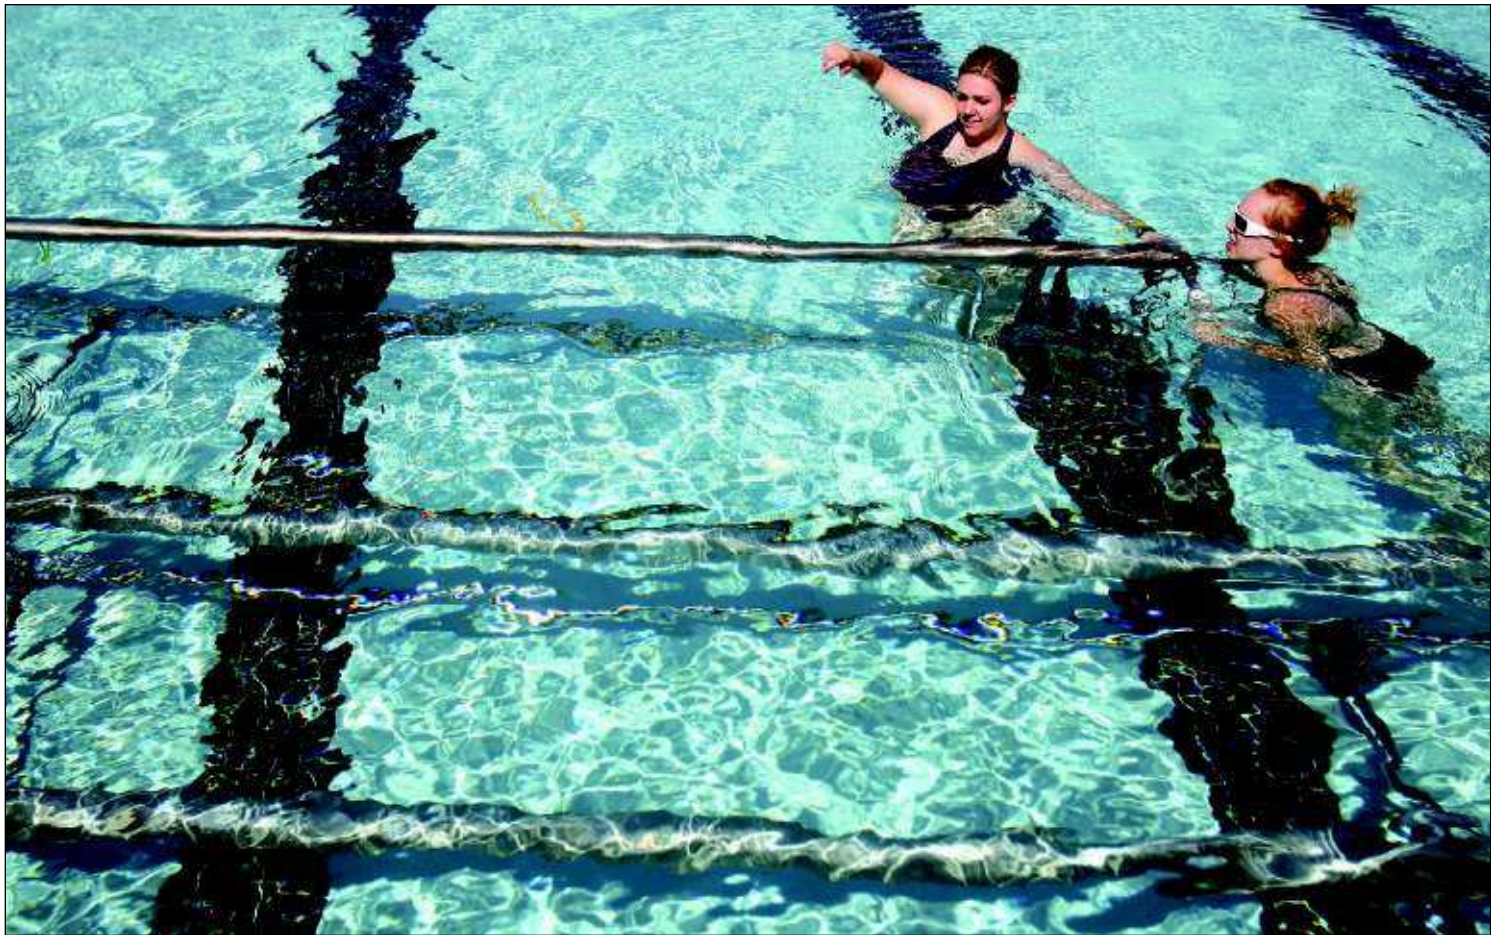

In response to declining revenues, the Legislature cut $128.5 million — 7.5 percent — from the public schools budget statewide for the upcoming fiscal year, which begins in July.

For the school district, the cut is happening through a combination of changes.

The salary schedule, which is used to determine pay based on experience and education of employees, is being reduced by 1 percent. In addition, the number of Another sign that summertime is right around the corner emerged Wednesday, when the “bubble” — the removable dome that covers the Twin Falls YMCA City Pool — came down.

This year the pool will serve a dual purpose: keeping up with the trend of pools also serving as mini-water parks, and offering enough options so families who can’t go on vacation in the economic downturn still have a place to turn for summer activities.

When the pool kicks off its summer season, it will have a new addition called “the iceberg.” An inflatable, 14-foot-tall device

“We are going to bring in the iceberg, which is going to allow us to have some new, innovative activities,” said John Pauley, the aquatics director.

The addition will add another element of fun activity to the pool, but not take away from the traditional swimming and fitness at

BASE jumper puzzled by pilfered flag at Perrine Bridge jump site

By Eric Larsen
Times-News writer

Jess Neuger just wants to know where the American flags are going.

The red, white and blue adornment to the Snake River Canyon floor east of the bridge has stood for years in conspicuous contrast to the green — or brown — landing zone BASE jumpers aim for when plunging from the span above.

Recently, however, it’s just been conspicuous in its absence.

Neuger, a skydiving instructor who said he’s lived in Twin Falls since 1992 after first coming to jump from the bridge in 1989, said the flag has served as both wind indicator for jumpers and tribute to America’s armed forces.

But in the last month, jumpers have replaced the flag three times after it stood in the canyon untouched during the winter, Neuger said.

“We use it as a wind indicator and it means something to a lot of people,” Neuger said. “We wanted to get together with (Veterans of Foreign Wars) to put a plaque down there.”

Neuger said jumpers didn’t ponder too long the first time the flag had to be replaced, but after that replacement lasted only a week, reinforcements were brought in.

There are also events like "Midnight Splash," which offers a late-night experience with games and prizes from 9:30 to 11:30 p.m. on three Saturdays — June 19, July 17 and Aug. 21.

YMCA officials want the pool to fill a void, including for those looking for an inexpensive alternative to traveling on a summer vacation.

"We know that it's going to be difficult for some of our families to take vacations this summer," said Gary Ettenger, chief executive officer of the YMCA of Twin Falls.

Financially, the pool isn't a big money-maker for the YMCA. In 2009, it lost $18,972.51, with a gross profit of $208,268.36 and expenses of $227,240.87.

That's a change for 2008, when its net income after expenses was $5,942.42. But 2008 was a transitional time for the pool, and the aquatics director position was vacant for part of that year after former YMCA director Karen Jachimowski's March departure. Professional salaries that year were $13,276.13 less — a 41 percent decrease — than 2009 when the pool had an aquatics director for the full year.

Looking at the YMCA as a whole, it's typical to have some programs that end with a surplus and others that are subsidized a little, provided that everything breaks even, Ettenger said.

Frank Church wilderness to dart wolves, without Forest Service permission. And this year, Otter helped lead states suing the federal government over health care reform.

The federal 1964 Wilderness Act forbids most motorized and mechanized transportation inside wilderness preserves, aiming to keep them pristine as possible.

According to Forest Service rules, however, camera crews aren't excluded during breaking news events, in order to protect 1st Amendment free-speech rights. But National Forest managers are instructed not to issue authorization for commercial filming "unless clearly necessary for realizing wilderness purposes," according to Forest Service guidelines.

Idaho Public Television

wanted to send a lone cameraman down a wilderness trail for several hours on Monday to film 15 participants in a Student Conservation Association program meant to train future land managers.

It had to scuttle the shoot due to Guzman's decision.

"If Ansel Adams were alive today and wanted to bring his camera into the Frank Church wilderness, would the Forest Service let him?" asked Peter Morrill, Idaho Public Television general manager.

Bruce Reichert, the "Outdoor Idaho" host, disputed Guzman's depiction of his show as "commercial."

The station does offer "Outdoor Idaho" videos for sale but only to help recoup production costs, he said.

Guzman's ban bodes ill for future productions aiming to showcase Idaho's rugged wilderness areas, including a planned documentary on the 517,000-acre Owhyee Canyon wilderness in southwestern Idaho created by Congress in 2009, Reichert said.

"We're feeling a little upset and concerned that maybe the stories that we used to just take for granted, that we would be able to do with Forest Service personnel helping us out, are not going to be available to us," he said.

Erin O'Connor, a regional Forest Service spokeswoman in Ogden, Utah, didn't immediately respond to requests for comment.

But in his letter to Idaho Public Television, Guzman contends he didn't have a choice.

"Our experts in Special Uses and Wilderness Management in the Regional Office all agree that this sort of filming is commercial, and thus not allowed in the wilderness," Guzman wrote. "There really seems to be no gray area on this topic."

Still, interpretation of access questions appears to differ depending on which National Forest manager is making the call and from state to state. For instance, the Oregon Public Broadcasting System's "Oregon Field Guide" program sent a camera crew in 2009 on a three-day trip into the Eagle Cap Wilderness of northeastern Oregon to document an ancient tree.

Steve Amen, who hosts "Oregon Field Guide," said he encountered questions years ago from some forest managers over access, but the matter was resolved quickly.

"The people in the main offices love what we're doing. They were surprised that we were getting resistance," Amen said. "They want us on their land."

Fundraising

from March 8 to 19.

The only candidate to come close to Schouten's contribution total was one of his GOP competitors for the District 2 seat, Roger Urnsbach Sr. Though he only received $200 in donations from other people, Urnsbach took out $2,027 in loans for a total of $2,227 in reported contributions.

About $1,500 of his money also went to graphic and printing costs, along with $182 to the National Center for Constitutional Studies in Malta — which prints history books and pocket copies of the Constitution and ships them all over the world — and about $120 to attend a non-partisan "campaign school" workshop put on by the Utah Farm Bureau in April.

Leon Mills, the third District 2 candidate in the GOP primary, reported $550 in contributions, including $200 from himself. Incumbent County Commissioner Tom Mikesell, who said he's pulled out of the race but who will still be on the ballot, raised $50.

Fundraising totals were largely less in the other primary races. Bill Shropshire, one of two Democrats also seeking Mikesell's seat, reported just $10.60. His Democratic challenger, Gary Eller, raised nothing.

Incumbent District 3 Commissioner George Urie also did not report any contributions. But his GOP challenger, Brandon J. Jones, secured $445, including $282 from himself and $137 in in-kind donations.

George Haney III, running for assessor as a Republican, did not submit his report until Wednesday afternoon and did not explain how $343 in campaign expenses were paid for. The rest of his reported $916 in expenditures came as in-kind donations from family members. Sitting Assessor Gerry Bowden reported $260, at least $190 of which was his own money.

County clerks can choose to fine candidates $50 a day for not turning their reports in, said Larry Haycock, Twin Falls County elections director. But his county rarely chooses to do so, he said, as candidates usually get their reports in right away after a phone call.

The reduction in days combined with the 1 percent cut brings the total impact to about 6.2 percent. Other employee groups, such as classified staff and administrators, face pay cuts too.

"In essence, in pay it's a reduction of just over 6 percent," Superintendent Dale Layne said.

On Sunday night, the pole and its foundation remained, though Old Glory had been clipped off at the wires that held it to the pole.

Neuger said jumpers were at the bridge at 9 p.m.

Layne said that while nobody's happy with the situation, it's one that the district has addressed by being open with employees. He said the district and employees have a good relationship, adding that he appreciates workers' support of the district.

The shortened 2010-11 school year keeps classes between Labor Day and Memorial Day, which will help employees that need day care services to avoid paying a month's fee from working in late August, Layne said.

In other business, the board approved hiring Brian Bridwell from Buhl School District as the new business manager. The current business manager, Clark Muscat, will become curriculum/federal programs director.

Filer wastewater project on schedule

By John E. Swayze
Times-News correspondent

FILER — One month after breaking ground, the initial site work for a $15 million sewer treatment facility in the city of Filer is on schedule.

The membrane bioreactor, expected to be completed and brought on line within the next two years, will consist of an expandable 5- to 15-acre footprint on Filer's north side, and use a series of filters and ultraviolet light to remove impurities from wastewater, leaving behind water suitable for irrigation and aquifer recharge.

"Last week we were able to start blasting rock, and excavation work is going on in the hole," Rob Hegstrom of Twin Falls-based J-U-B Engineers told the Filer City Council on Tuesday. "Steel will begin arriving next week, so things are moving right along."

City residents passed a $12.5 million bond levy in November 2006 to replace the city's current settling ponds, originally built in the 1950s and upgraded again 20 years later, with a more modern system that can keep pace with Environmental Protection Agency regulations and the demands of city growth. The old ponds will remain in use as backup when the new system needs to be shut down for repairs.

Components for the project were purchased in 2009 from General Electric Corp.'s Zenon Environmental. And city officials awarded the roughly $10 million construction contract to Record Steel Construction Inc. of Meridian.

Five state and federal agencies have earmarked funding for the project. The Idaho Department of Environmental Quality has committed to $7 million in grants and loans, and USDA Rural Development is contributing $5.5 million in grants and loans. Approximately $2 million will come from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, along with $500,000 from the Idaho Department of Commerce. Loan portions of the financing will come in at no more than 3.75 percent interest and the city is expected to contribute between $400,000 and $600,000 in cash that is already available.

"The city hasn't had to turn toward bank loans," Filer Mayor Bob Templeman said. "We're grateful to see this money turned our direction."

Elmore Co. Commission candidates highlight economy, water, land issues

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

A longtime Elmore County commissioner will seek to defend his seat next week, with the winner unopposed in this fall's general election.

Larry Rose and Wes Wootan, both of King Hill, seek the District 2 commission seat in Tuesday's Republican primary.

Elmore County commissioners oversee a budget of about $15 million. They're paid a little less than $36,800 annually and meet officially once a week, on top of other duties.

Wootan, 59, the challenger, is a farmer who owns an auto-repair shop and has served on both the county Planning and Zoning Commission and the Idaho

Potato Commission in the past. He said friends encouraged him to run for the county job.

If elected, he said, he'd focus on bringing jobs to the county that are healthy for the area — he supports nuclear power but is skeptical of a proposal to build a nuclear power plant five miles west of Hammett, outside the county's heavy-industrial zone.

Wootan's also concerned about water issues, especially conditions around Mountain Home, a region the state has designated as a critical groundwater area. He said he wants to help study options for more city water resources — should it buy out farmers, he asked, or look at longer-term solutions such as aquifer recharge?

Water is also on the radar of Rose, 62, a commissioner for 14 years who owns a hardware store. He said he wants to continue work on a range of issues, from keeping the county's budget stable to stopping the rising cost of indigent medical care, and that his experience is vital to the commission. Someone needs that "institutional memory about the mistakes that you made along the way and why you don't want to make them again," he said.

Rose declined to weigh in on the nuclear plant, as the issue is eventually headed to the commission. But he said land-use questions involving that, transmission lines and other energy projects will be an important focus. He said he's proud of how he and his fellow commissioners have budgeted, including setting aside $5 million in federal land payments over the years in case property taxes start to drop more sharply.

Two other Elmore races are contested in the primary: County Clerk Marsa Plummer faces challenger Barbara Steele, and Ronald F. Fisher and Mark Russell are the only two candidates for the assessor's job currently held by Jo Gridley. All four candidates are Republicans.

District 3 Commissioner Connie Crusier, a Democrat, will face Republican Albert Hofer in the Nov. 2 election.

Times-News

Ketchum City Hall will close at noon Friday to all business and activities.

The closure is to facilitate building repairs, which require

Normal city business hours will resume Monday.

Services held for Va. boy slain in Utah

RICHLANDS, Va. (AP) — The father of a slain 4-year-old boy reflected on the good times, and the good in people, at his son's funeral Wednesday in southwest Virginia.

Joe Stacy, his family and friends paid final tribute to Ethan Stacy, whose disfigured body was found on a Utah mountain last week. Utah authorities allege Ethan died of abuse and neglect by his mother, Stephanie Sloop, and stepfather, Nathanael Sloop. They've been jailed on suspicion of aggravated murder but have not been charged.

"I'm remembering all the good times," Joe Stacy said, without mentioning his son's violent death. "There were no bad times at all."

He also commented on the national outpouring of sympathy, the Bristol Herald Courier reported.

"You never realize how many good people are out there until something bad happens," Stacy said.

Stacy, 35, said he reluctantly agreed to send Ethan to visit his mother and stepfather in Utah on May 1. Ethan was found dead 10 days later.

Pastor Mike Rife compared Ethan's death to a stone breaks the surface of still water, sending ripples and touching the lives of people across the country. Some in the crowd of about 100 at the funeral did not know the family.

Mourners viewed a DVD chronicling Ethan's life in photos: In a diaper, relaxing in a swing, posing with his father in front of a Christmas tree, in a bathtub with soap-spiked hair.

Some mourners wore pins with a navy and yellow ribbon. Tammy Childress of Princeton, W.Va., the sister of Joe Stacy's fiancée and creator of the ribbons, said the navy symbolizes child abuse and the yellow is for remembrance, so that whenever someone asks, she will tell Ethan's story.

"I didn't want another child to die the way he did," a tearful Childress told the Bristol newspaper. "I don't want them to forget. They forget about these things. It gets out of the news."

Obama clamors for federal fix to immigration woes

By Ben Feller
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Confronting soaring frustration over illegal immigration, President Obama on Wednesday condemned Arizona’s crackdown and pushed instead for a federal fix the nation could embrace. He said that will never happen without Republican support, pleading: “I need some help.”

In asking anew for an immigration overhaul, Obama showed solidarity with his guest of honor, Mexican President Felipe Calderon, who called Arizona’s law discriminatory and warned Mexico would reject any effort to “criminalize migration.” The United States and Mexico share a significant economic and political relationship that stands to be damaged the more the nations are at odds over immigration, which affects millions of people on both sides of the border.

Obama sought to show that he, too, is fed up with his own government’s failure to fix a system widely seen as broken. He said that would require solving border security, employment and citizenship issues all at once — the kind of effort that collapsed in Congress just three years ago.

The president’s stand underscored the forces working against him in this election year: the need for help from Republican critics, the impatience of states like Arizona after federal inaction, the pressure to show movement on a campaign promise, and the mood of the public disgusted by porous borders.

The Arizona law requires police to question people about their immigration status if there’s reason to suspect they’re in the country illegally, and it makes it a state crime to be in the U.S. illegally. People may be questioned about their status if they’ve been stopped by police who are in the process of enforcing another law.

The law will take effect July 29 unless legal challenges are successful. Almost twice as many people support it as those who oppose it, according to an Associated Press-GfK poll this month. It found that 42 percent favored it, 24 percent opposed it and another 29 percent said they were neutral.

Yet in a Rose Garden appearance with Calderon, Obama called the Arizona law “a misdirected expression of frustration.” He expects to announce soon what action his government may take about it, once the Justice Department finishes reviewing whether the law violates civil rights.

Increase in health tests raises costs in frugal Utah

By Jordan Rau
Special to The Washington Post

PROVO, Utah — If there is any place that should have medical spending under control, this is it. Residents of Provo, many of them Mormons who don’t smoke or drink, are among the healthiest in the country. The city’s biggest hospital is run by Intermountain Healthcare, which President Obama has lauded for providing high-quality care while restraining costs.

Until recently, Provo seemed to be a model for the nation. But spending on Medicare patients here has accelerated rapidly, as it has in many other areas of the country that are known for cost-efficient care.

The culprit: a swift increase in the number of procedures and tests being performed — a trend that has coincided with the additions of new surgical and cancer treatment suites and diagnostic machines at hospitals and clinics throughout the growing region.

“It’s very discouraging to see costs increasing rapidly in those low-cost areas we believe to have good care,” said Paul B. Ginsburg, president of the Center for Studying Health System Change, a Washington-based research group. “They appear to be succumbing to the same forces that have led to high costs elsewhere.”

This transformation calls into question initiatives — including some in the new health-care law — to encourage more profligate regions to learn from their frugal counterparts.

Medicare spending trends often parallel those in the country’s overall health system, experts say. In 2007, average Medicare spending per person in the greater Provo hospital market was $8,064. That was below the national average of $8,682, but far higher than it had been a few years earlier.

Between 2000 and 2007, Medicare spending in the Provo region rose on average 8.6 percent a year, nearly double the average national rate of 4.7 percent, according to the Dartmouth Atlas of Health Care, which analyzes geographic variations in medical spending. Provo’s growth occurred as Medicare beneficiaries underwent surgeries more frequently and spent more of their dying days in intensive care units.

Provo’s spending increases aren’t an aberration. Annual average spending grew 7 percent or more in other traditionally low-cost areas, including Oxford, Miss.; Wausau, Wis.; and Durham, N.C. Even in Rochester, Minn., home of the highly regarded Mayo Clinic, and Salt Lake City, where Intermountain is headquartered, Medicare costs grew faster than the national average, according to Dartmouth.

Logan man sentenced in animal torture case

LOGAN, Utah (AP) — A Logan man who pleaded guilty to felony animal torture for shooting a dog several times with an airsoft gun has been sentenced to six months in jail.

Emilio Deshun Hoy received credit for the 88 days he’s already spent in the Cache County Jail. He was sentenced in Logan’s 1st District Court Tuesday. The 22-year-old pleaded guilty last month.

Hoy was arrested Feb. 5 after investigators say they obtained video of him holding the Jack Russell terrier, Bean, upside down by its tail and shooting it in the face, body and testicles at close range on Christmas Eve.

Prosecutor Barbara Lachmar says she won’t oppose requests by defense attorneys to reduce the count from a felony to a class A misdemeanor after Hoy successfully completes a probationary sentence.

Bean, a Jack Russell Terrier, is seen in Logan, Utah, on Feb. 9. Emilio Deshun Hoy, who pleaded guilty to felony animal torture for shooting the dog with an airsoft gun, was sentenced Tuesday to six months in jail.

Doctors’ Discovery Helps Diabetics

PHILADELPHIA — A team of doctors has found that a new formulation of exotic sounding ingredients gives new hope to diabetic patients.

The formula, called Cinnatrol™ promotes healthy blood sugar levels by effectively metabolizing glucose into energy. In a research study, all patients taking just one capful of the liquid (1 oz) daily, dramatically lowered their blood sugar levels compared to a placebo group. Another scientific study found that an ingredient in Cinnatrol made insulin 20 times more capable of converting blood sugar to energy.

While individual results vary, one patient in the study lowered his blood sugar from 220-245 to the 100-130 range in only 28 days, despite being instructed not to change his dietary habits or physical activity. Some patients, under their doctors care, have been able to reduce or eliminate their need for diabetic drugs. Scientists say that Cinnatrol helps diabetic drugs to work more efficiently.

Cinnatrol is available without a prescription at pharmacies and nutrition stores or call 1-800-339-3301. Now at:

“I decided to go back to college after raising my family and being out of school for 35 years. Choosing to go to CSI was probably one of the easiest decisions I’ve ever made. With their staff being so vested in providing top quality education and their professors being so helpful, I was able to easily transition through my college classes and earn my degree. Teen killer’s ex-boyfriend arrested for meth

BOISE (AP) — The former boyfriend of an Idaho teen who murdered her parents in 2003 has been arrested after law enforcement officials say he sold a half-pound of methamphetamine to an undercover detective.

Bruno Antonio Santos-Dominguez, the former boyfriend of Sarah Johnson, is in Blaine County Jail in Hailey following his arrest.

Santos, who is now 25, was once a suspect in the 2003 slayings of Alan and Diane Johnson but was cleared.

Sarah Johnson, 16 at the time, was subsequently convicted of two counts of first-degree murder and is serving two life prison sentences without parole.

Santos was arrested last week along with Jose Guadalupe Benitez-Diaz, a 27-year-old who was also charged Monday in 5th District Court with trafficking.

The Idaho Mountain Express reports both men may be in the United States illegally.

Santos was allowed to be in the United States during Johnson’s 2005 trial under the supervision of local law enforcement, but was deported to Mexico shortly after the trial.

Blaine County Prosecuting Attorney Jim Thomas described Santos as an “undocumented alien” and said he had been deported several times, most recently in March.

During the trial, prosecutors said Johnson killed her parents after fighting with them over her relationship with Santos, who at the time of the slaying was a 19-year-old undocumented Mexican immigrant living in the region.

They had forbidden her to see Santos and planned to pursue the filing of statutory rape charges against him.

Prosecutors said Johnson first fired a .264-caliber rifle at her mother as she lay in bed early on Sept. 3, 2003, and then turned the weapon on her father as he left the show-er in their Bellevue home.

Thomas says he doesn’t think Santos’ arrest will have any bearing on Johnson’s case, which she is still contesting from prison.

“I do not believe his participation in the trial is undermined in any way as a result of these current charges,” Thomas said. “His testimony played a minor role in the Johnson case and these recent charges are completely unrelated to the murders of Alan and Diane Johnson that occurred over six years ago.”

Octomom puts pet birth control sign on her door

LA HABRA, Calif. (AP) — It’s official. Octomom Nadya Suleman doesn’t want your dog or cat following in her footsteps.

As a front yard full of paparazzi cheered her on, Suleman unveiled a 3-foot-by-4-foot plastic sign Wednesday that reads: “Don’t Let Your Dog or Cat Become an Octomom. Always Spay or Neuter.”

A few curious onlookers stopped to watch as a People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals mascot (a person in a dog suit) gave her a hug.

PETA is paying Suleman $5,000 to keep the sign on her front door until June 9, the deadline when city officials say it must be removed. The organization is also throwing in a month’s supply of veggie hot dogs and burgers for her and her 14 children.

Suleman, 34, acknowledged she put the sign on her door partly for the money but added her support of PETA is sincere.

“I love animals and I do believe they should be spayed or neutered,” she said. “Humans of course are much different.”

Her children, the oldest of whom is 9, want a dog, Suleman said. She told them they can have one when they are old enough to care for it.

Suleman already had six children when she gave birth 16 months ago to octuplets conceived by in vitro fertilization.

Since then she has struggled to pay her bills and was in danger of losing her home earlier this year. Her lawyer has since negotiated an extension on a $450,000 mortgage payment that had been due in March.

“It’s really a win-win situation for everyone,” PETA campaign coordinator Amanda Fortino said of the sign.

Fortino said the agreement allowed PETA to do its part to help Suleman financially while also spreading word that more than 7 million cats and dogs enter shelters every year, where more than half are put to death.

Palin to join Vaughn Ward rally Friday at Qwest Arena

BOISE (AP) — Former Alaska Gov. Sarah Palin will stump for Republican congressional hopeful Vaughn Ward during a rally at the Qwest Arena in downtown Boise.

Ward campaign spokesman Mike Tracy told The Associated Press Palin will also hold two fundraising events before Friday’s 11 a.m. rally at the 5,000-seat facility.

Ward is running against state Rep. Raul Labrador to compete in November against Democrat Walt Minnick in Idaho’s 1st Congressional District.

Palin’s visit comes five days before Tuesday’s primary and could help Ward raise much needed general election cash.

Tracy said supporters can pay $1,000 to have their picture taken with Palin, the 2008 Republican vice presidential nominee. Supporters can also pay $250 to attend an hour-long reception before the rally.

Tracy said she is not charging the campaign for her efforts.

Transient arrested after wallet found near crime scene

BOISE (AP) — Boise police say a 22-year-old transient has been arrested on suspicion of breaking a car window and stealing a purse after his wallet was found near the damaged vehicle.

Tyson J. Anderson and his girlfriend, 18-year-old Kelsey A. Tweedt of Boise, are being held in the Ada County jail. Anderson is charged with vehicle burglary, theft and malicious injury to property. Tweedt is charged with grand theft by possession and theft.

The burglary was reported at about 11:30 p.m. Tuesday. While police were investigating, someone found the wallet a short distance away and turned it over to officers.

DOUG WERTH

FOR FIFTH DISTRICT JUDGE

IT’S TIME FOR A CHANGE.

— Experienced, Fair and Independent —

Doug Werth believes that judges should follow law, not make law. Doug has been an Idaho attorney for nearly 25 years, served as deputy attorney general and county prosecutor. Doug lets his record speak for itself. He does not accept endorsements because as judge, he does not want to be beholden to any special interest groups. He will serve the public.

Judge Elgee Wrong 70% of the Time.

The Idaho Supreme Court has reversed or found that Elgee erroneously applied the law in 7 of the last 10 of his cases the high court reviewed.

Judge Elgee Disqualified.

The Blaine County and Twin Falls County prosecutors have repeatedly disqualified Elgee from important felony criminal cases. Elgee has been disqualified more than 100 times in Twin Falls County alone and Elgee is the only district judge the Twin Falls prosecutor has disqualified. The prosecutors said they had to disqualify Elgee “to guarantee justice for citizens and crime victims in our counties.”

Judge Elgee and Judicial Activism.

Judicial activism occurs when judges second-guess the Legislature and strike down laws unnecessarily. The Idaho Supreme Court said Elgee did just that when he wrongly struck down Idaho’s felony domestic battery statute. Judicial activism occurs when a judge adds words to a statute that aren’t there. The Idaho Supreme Court found that Elgee did just that in a recent case. The Supreme Court has repeatedly criticized Elgee for going “too far” and not basing his decision on the law. Judge Elgee has exceeded his power as a judge repeatedly. These are facts.

Most T.F. residents don't want fireworks on July 5

The Twin Falls City Council's effort to respect religious sensibilities by allowing organizers of this year's Fourth of July fireworks to conduct their show at the College of Southern Idaho on Monday, July 5 — instead of Sunday, July 4 — was laudable.

But the idea has fallen flat with the public. Through Wednesday afternoon on the Times-News reader-comment blog, opposition was running 19-to-1.

When next the council meets it should quietly reverse its unanimous decision of earlier this week. And we should celebrate Independence Day, as a community, on July 4.

The event is sponsored by Southern Idaho Fireworks, and organizers had requested the change from a Sunday, a day of religious significance for many in Twin Falls.

Trouble is, the Fourth of July is a day of even greater secular significance for most residents.

Here's what 41-year-old John T. Bonnett of Twin Falls wrote on the Times-News website:

“As a 10-year veteran of the armed services who served with honor, this really offends me. Is this about church? What about separation of church and state? Everybody has their right to religion but it cannot effect a national holiday. Don't do this.”

Bonnett's right: The council overreached in rescheduling a national holiday.

It should have listened to former Mayor Lance Clow, who said he was concerned that some might not be pleased with this move, as the Fourth of July is considered a “sacred” day — though not in a religious sense.

This dispute echoes the long-running tension between members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, who hold a conservative view about what secular activities should be undertaken on Sundays, and Twin Falls' non-Mormon majority.

That's a shame. Independence Day is about our collective heritage. It shouldn't have degenerated into a church-vs.-state or a Mormon-vs.-gentile spat.

We respect the right of those with a traditional opinion of Sunday activities to adhere to their beliefs. But this issue is about what the wider community thinks.

And we, most of us, believe in celebrating the rockets' red glare on the nation's birthday.

Did CSI rodeo coaches make right decision?

Should it come down to earned points or coaches' discretion? Seriously — there's an option?

An athlete legitimately qualifies to go to a Intercollegiate National Finals Event and then the ultimate decision is left up to the coaches. What doesn't spell wrong all over the place with this? Four-person points team, picked by coaches, team qualifies for nationals, person with second highest points on the team, again picked by coaches, doesn't get chosen to go to nationals.

I just want to know how this happens, a clear legitimate answer as to how this happens and how it's not completely wrong on every level.

I hope the CSI rodeo coaches can look people in the eye and honestly say they did the right thing.

The Court needs more moms

Yes, we know the Supreme Court is stacked with Catholics, Ivy Leaguers, New Yorkers, judicial monks and opera fans. And no, the cohort of nine justices doesn't much resemble the whole of America. So President Barack Obama set out to at least add one more woman to the mix.

His nomination last week of Elena Kagan to the court, Obama declared, would make the body “more inclusive, more representative, more reflective of us as a people than ever before.”

Ann Gerhart

The grumblings came quickly: He should have chosen a black woman, some said, or an Asian-American, or someone with a law degree from a public university. But in selecting Kagan, Obama ensured that one key demographic would lose representation on the court, compared with its membership just a few years ago: mothers, a category in which 80 percent of American women eventually land.

It's not like we've never had moms in black robes. The flinty rancher and the feminist firebrand who blazed the trail for female justices both are mothers, with five children between them. Sandra Day O'Connor and Ruth Bader Ginsburg, who joined the bench in 1981 and 1993, respectively, benefited from high-achieving husbands who held the Bible for them as they were sworn in, supported their aspirations and sacrificed for their careers.

Now 80 and 77, respectively, O'Connor and Ginsburg never had to talk much about balance in their own lives; they just made it work.

The women of a younger generation who stand on their shoulders, Sonia Sotomayor and, if confirmed, Kagan, are single and have no children. That's not a judgment, just a fact, a line or two not found on their extraordinary bios. If Ginsburg is the next justice to step down, the court could be transformed into a body with no mothers — otherwise known as people who may have to come home from work and spend a night picking lice out of a kid's hair.

For women and their climb toward social and economic parity, is this a sign of progress or setback? And for the country and its Constitution, would more mothers on the bench change the law of the land?

“Personal experiences are important, and they shape people's backgrounds, but there are a range of ways you can inform understanding without living it,” says Deborah Rhode, a Stanford University law professor and a leading scholar of legal ethics and gender. “Do we want to suggest that men can't understand ... the challenges facing working mothers and related issues?”

Well, no, we don't, certainly not out loud.

The memories of the distinguished gentlemen from Arizona, Utah and South Carolina haranguing Sotomayor at her Senate confirmation hearing last summer are too fresh. I, for one, am grateful that no one has turned up any record of a Supreme Court nominee saying, “I would hope that a wise working mother of three, with the richness of her experiences, would more often than not reach a better conclusion than a white male who hasn't lived that life.” The howling would be deafening.

Women in general are more “socially compassionate” than men, says Northwestern University social psychology professor Alice Eagly, according to her analysis of decades of research on gender difference in decision-making. As legislators, lawyers and judges, women are somewhat more likely than men to favor what we call, irritatingly, “women's issues,” generally child care, reproductive rights, sex discrimination in the workplace, education and health care.

But differences between mothers and non-mothers? “Interesting question,” Eagly said in an e-mail. “I don't know of any studies on this question of motherhood and decision-making.”

It seems sensible to imagine that a woman who has juggled it all — the full-time job, the kids, the housework, the aging parents — has a deeper and more instinctual grasp of the challenges facing similar women. Michelle Obama, a Princeton and Harvard Law grad like Kagan, now living in the White House with a guy who watches “SportsCenter” to chill, frequently tells her audiences of women various versions of “Look, I get it,” to loud cheers.

Perception bias bedevils us in all kinds of ways, so it's too bad there is no data to examine whether a mother is a better judge for other mothers. But it's hardly surprising. Examining mothers vs. non-mothers would open a whole new front in the mommy wars; the PhDs who conduct research on gender difference are often women themselves, with little appetite to pick that fight.

Motherhood offers a one-word verifier. It signals a woman with an intensity of life experiences, jammed with joys and fears, unpredictable and intimacy, all outside the workplace. Much of the time, it's the opposite of being strategic and assiduously prepared.

It's a story we understand without needing all the details.

You can rely on Elgee to be attentive

I've been there many times: couples arguing over child custody; people with mental illness; victims of abuse; men and women pleading their cases, wanting to be heard, needing to be understood; everyone claiming to be the innocent party deserving of the ultimate granting of favor. Regardless of the circumstances that brought me to his courtroom, however, I could rely on Judge Elgee to be attentive, to ask intelligent, thoughtful questions, to listen without prejudice and to make a considered judgment after careful review of all of the information he had received.

That kind of integrity is impressive anywhere and, fairly or not, feels particularly precious in Idaho. Caring about the people who appear before you can't be the easiest way to perform one's duties as a judge, but Robert Elgee makes that effort while remaining fair and impartial. For example, when I was actively directing the local domestic violence treatment program, he took the extra steps to contact me personally several times to make sure the program was up to date with all state requirements and to stay fully informed about our progress.

It goes without saying that I haven't agreed with every one of Judge Elgee's decisions, but every judge will make rulings that upset someone at least half of the time. More importantly, I have always been grateful that, in Robert Elgee, we have a judge who truly believes in the principle of justice and who works very hard to apply it fairly to all of the citizens of this district. As judges, after all, are human, we cannot ask for more.

New judge needed: vote for Werth

As a former Blaine

County commissioner, I have worked closely with Doug Werth who has served as county prosecutor, as a planning commissioner and a public defender. I also have first-hand knowledge of Judge Robert Elgee's work and judicial decisions as our district court judge. From this experience, I strongly urge voters to support Doug Werth.

During my tenure on the Blaine County Commission, I found there were few land developers that Elgee didn't support. When Judge Elgee allowed one rich developer's attorney to subpoena the e-mails of our volunteer planning and zoning members and private citizens in a land use dispute, Elgee encouraged the tactics of intimidation. Members of planning and zoning asked if they had to hire an attorney; citizens told me that they were now afraid to get involved because Elgee might allow these out-of-state developers' attorneys to go after them.

Blaine County has been challenged in district court before, but developers never had the support of an activist judge. Voters also need to look at the number of times that Judge Elgee has been disqualified in criminal cases. Twin Falls County Prosecutor Grant Loebes doesn't want Elgee to sit on cases in the county, and he supports Werth.

Take a look at Elgee's record in Blaine County allowing probation for repeat offenders. Elgee's decisions have also been overturned or found erroneous 70 percent of the time when taken to the Supreme Court. Not a record that I can support.

Doug Werth knows the law. He has been an effective county prosecutor, public defender, victim's advocate, and has served with distinction on the Blaine County Planning and Zoning Commission. I trust him and urge you to vote for Werth on Tuesday, May 25.

Dedicated educators remain at Hansen Elementary School

I am writing as a parent who volunteers at the Hansen Elementary School. I have talked with other parents who are concerned about the quality of their children's education following the failure of the supplemental levy. They ask, "What can we do now?"

You can start by leaving your children enrolled in the Hansen School District. Despite claims by levy opponents that the budget deficit could be closed with more "belt tightening," the shortfall was too great. Yes, positions have been eliminated and some wonderful educators will not be at Hansen next fall. However, many dedicated educators remain and even with the cuts, most classroom sizes will still be smaller than those at other districts which are dealing with their own budget cutbacks. Smaller classrooms are associated with higher academic achievement.

So yes, students at Hansen can still get a good education despite the levy failure. And they will get that high quality education, but it's going to take the support of parents, grandparents, aunts, uncles, friends and neighbors. Here's what we can all do:

Help with homework. Yes, we should be doing it even when budgets are good but it's going to be critical now that the school calendar will be shortened by about two weeks.

Volunteer. You don't have to be a parent to volunteer at the school. Adults are always needed to listen to beginning readers. Give an hour a week and you'll be amazed at how rewarding the experience is and what a difference you can make to a student.

Support fundraisers and other activities at the school.

Help keep music in the elementary school and possibly schoolwide. A music fund has been established at the district in hopes of providing at least a part-time music program for next year. But the extent of the program will be determined by the amount of financial support from the community.

The patrons of the Hansen School District have spoken and the "no" vote seems to imply that education isn't valued in our community. Now is the time for patrons — from parents to neighbors — to demonstrate by giving their time and money that providing a high quality education does matter.

Hope to see you at school soon.

What are we teaching our kids?

Last Wednesday (May 12), I was at the district track meet at the Twin Falls High School. During the boy's 4-by-100 relay, a judge penalized Minico's team and disqualified it from going to state because he thought the boys had stepped over the line before exchanging hands of the baton. A parent had taped the race and was able to prove that the handoff was within the boundaries and was just a mistake in what the judge saw. However, not this judge nor any other official would take the time to even look at this tape and make things right.

So what are we teaching our children? We're teaching them that: (1) mistakes don't have to be addressed; if we don't see them a second time, they just go away. (2) Mistakes can cause disappointment, pride, discouragement, hard feelings and even ruin possible advancements, but if it's not your mistake, don't bother with it.

Our kids need to be shown that human errors do happen in life but with a little bit of compassion, humility, and courage, we can cover a multitude of mistakes in life and actually make a difference in our community and the following generations. Our kids need to know that hard work and discipline does pay off. Let's encourage our kids to strive to do their very best and achieve; then let's be the examples we are called to be as adults and authoritative figures in our kids lives, humble ourselves, admit when we've made a mistake, and make the appropriate corrections.

Norman does more than expected

I would like to share a few thoughts about why I believe Mary Norman would be the best choice for Gooding County assessor.

Throughout Mary's four years as chief deputy assessor, her intelligence and drive has made her learn her job quickly and extensively. She has taken every opportunity presented to her for education and believes so strongly in it that it will be ongoing in her career.

Furthermore, she has always taken the initiative to learn beyond expectations of her. Continuing education is key to success as assessor. Another thing that sets Mary apart is her comfort and ease with modern technologies.

With more than 20 years of experience in computers and networking, she has helped make accessing information easier and more comfortable for the public. She has also brought awareness to the office through networking on Facebook.

I have worked closely with Mary for two years, during which she has never failed to impress me with her abilities and her open and friendly manner.

Please vote for Mary Norman for Gooding County assessor on May 25.

Hayden-Bush gets things done

I am writing this letter in support of Donna Hayden-Bush for Minidoka County clerk.

I have known Donna for the past few years and worked with her on various projects. She is a person of integrity, she is dependable, ethical, and hard-working. I have found her comfortable and pleasant to work with. She gets things done in a timely manner. She has high standards, and I've never known her to compromise them. She has 20 years of experience in accounting, 10 years of experience in government, which includes elections, accounting, interdepartmental audits, recorder's office, inventory control, county budgets and levies. She understands the importance of transparency in government. She recognizes the importance of looking for ways to save taxpayers' dollars, and still runs the office with the upmost efficiency.

I think she would be a great addition to the elected officials of Minidoka County. Please join me in voting for Donna Hayden Bush for Minidoka County clerk on May 25. Thank you.

Heider will truly listen to concerns

We are writing in support of Lee Heider in his run for the state Senate seat.

We have known Lee Heider for more than 25 years and vouch for his character and credibility. He is a people person and will truly listen to our concerns. Lee has deep roots in the Magic Valley and the Heider name has a great reputation. We appreciate Lee's ability to make moral and conscious decisions as we have watched him serve on the Twin Falls City Council and as vice mayor of our great community.

Lee Heider has great leadership abilities. He is knowledgeable and he studies the issues and votes for what he believes are true principles that will benefit all of us. We agree with his stand against underage abortion without parental consent. We also agree that marriage should be between a man and a woman.

Our state Senate should be made up of people like Lee Heider.

Our very form of government allows us to send the right people to represent us and to vote on issues as we ourselves would vote. Lee Heider will be a great state senator for the people in District 24.

We will be in good hands. Vote Lee Heider on May 25!

Mills has spent lifetime serving others

I am writing to tell you about one of the candidates for District 2 county commissioner. He is a person who has spent his life giving to others without expecting anything in return.

My dad, Leon Mills, has always taught me to care for others by his example. His willingness to help out wherever he can is evident to all who know him. While growing up, my dad showed me the importance of volunteering and a lot of our time together was spent participating in local community projects such as Johnny Horizon and Paint Magic. Even today, my dad and I still volunteer together with the Lamb Weston fry booth, raising money for local schools and with InterFaith Volunteers assisting the elderly and disabled members of our community with household chores and repairs when I am home from medical school.

For the past 12 years, my dad has served as a precinct leader in the Republican Party, and he works hard to ensure that conservative values are upheld. His humility often prevents others from knowing how much he has done; however, I can tell you that, throughout my life, he has been a great example of what it means to serve others. He continually puts others' interests and well-being above his own. He is thoughtful in his actions and when making decisions. The kindness and respect he shows to others reminds me to have grace for each person I meet regardless of the differences in perspective or opinions that we may have. His example of leadership and generosity encourages me to be involved in serving my community wherever I am.

If given the opportunity, I know my dad, Leon Mills, will serve the people of Twin Falls well as the District 2 county commissioner. Please vote May 25.

We wouldn't be in such a mess if amendment hadn't passed

A recent editorial discussed the issue of repealing the Seventeenth Amendment and what a bad idea that would be for this country. I disagree.

The founding fathers designed the federal government to balance power. The Congress represented the people and the Senate represented the various states. The Tenth Amendment clearly states the powers not granted to the federal government nor prohibited to the states by the Constitution are reserved to the states or the people. How could this be accomplished if both the people and the states were not equally represented to keep the executive and judicial branches in check?

Their system was brilliant and, for years, it kept the federal government small and America was able to prosper under the free enterprise system. 1913 was a very bad year for our amendments and the Federal Reserve Act were passed. Each one has dramatically changed the economic landscape of our country. The federal government overshadows us with massive regulations, taxation and debt and has caught each state in a huge web of complicated programs and funding regarding education, farming, health care and a myriad of other aspects of American life.

We wouldn't be in such mess had the Seventeenth Amendment never been passed. The Senate voice representing the states would have prevented much of the abusive growth of regulatory (unconstitutional) government. It is always our duty to vote the rascals out if they abuse their office. It is time we turn our hearts and vote to support our foundation — the U.S. Constitution. There are some true constitutionalists on the ballot on May 25 — Chick Heilesen for U.S. Congress 2nd District, Roger Ursenbach for county commissioner and Rusty Satterwhite for Idaho State

Rep. 24A.

I encourage you to vote for these good men and all other constitutionalists!

In this election, think fresh and new

Fear, uncertainty, doubt — FUD.

Soon, the inhabitants of Twin Falls will read letters and paid advertisements sponsored by the local Republican Central Committee incumbents. In these writings, they will try to sow FUD in the minds of the readers and plead with them to re-elect nearly every incumbent politician. They will use FUD as a tool to malign the very persons who can and will turn this country around, if elected.

These fresh and new, politically minded individuals are seeking restoration of conservative Republican values. They promise adherence to the Idaho Republican Party platform and obedience to the Constitution. They are the Liberty candidates, the Tea Party participants and are those who love your liberty as much as they love their own.

However, the incumbents, for the most part, have been in office far too long. It has been on their watch that this economic recession occurred. It is their own works, whether actively working or passively allowing, that ripped apart our economy and put so many out of work and in dire financial straights. They will plead with you voters to keep them on, to allow them to continue and to let them "fix" the mess they've gotten all of us into.

They will fling FUD to confuse you about their challengers, trying to scare you into not voting for real change. They will write a list of candidates that they think you should vote for. In reality, every name on that list will be people to vote against. Take their list to your voting place, and do not vote for anyone on it. This is your chance to clean house, start over and throw out the politicians you cannot trust.

Why vote yes just because time is running out for jail?

Jerome needs a new jail. If we vote for this leased jail, everything I can find out, it looks like our taxes will go up sometime down the road. The Times-News believes running a bond issue proposal for a new jail is the best way to go. Then it turns around and suggests that Jerome has no more time, that the voters should vote yes for this jail/lease option.

So we vote for a bad deal just because time is running out? I try not to vote that way. The Jerome County commissioners screwed up, that is nothing new, but we don't need to rush into a bad deal and screw up more. I think we can wait until November, develop a sound plan and go for a bond that will show us what we will get, how much it will cost and we'll own this jail, not some leasing outfit from Ketchum.

If we show the Idaho Counties Risk Management Program that we are putting together a sound plan and have the support of the county citizens, I really don't think they will close down the present jail. They may want some upgrades until the new jail is built, but shut it down, I don't think so. Vote no on May 25, and let's do it right and put together a sound plan for November voters.

RE-ELECT ROBERT J. ELGEE

IF YOU WANT TO BE A JUDGE, MR. WERTH, YOU'D BETTER LEARN HOW TO BE HONEST WITH THE FACTS.

- The Idaho Supreme Court has never ruled that Judge Elgee exceeded his jurisdiction.
- Judge Elgee has upheld and struck down a handful of ordinances. Werth's "countless ordinances" claim is totally false.
- Judge Elgee has been upheld in his decisions by the Idaho Supreme Court and the Idaho Court of Appeals in two-thirds of the cases that have been appealed. (See www.re-elect-elgee-2010.com)
- Virtually all of the disqualifications of Judge Elgee have come from just two attorneys, one of whom stopped a year ago.
- Judge Elgee is supported by nearly every single attorney and by top law enforcement officials in Blaine County. Mr. Werth has yet to obtain the public support of any attorney or law enforcement official other than the Twin Falls County Prosecutor.
- Judge Elgee has 18 years of judicial experience, Mr. Werth has none.
- Mr. Werth's "experience" includes:
 - Being the only Blaine County Prosecuting Attorney in more than fifty years to lose a first degree murder trial.
 - Being the only Blaine County Prosecuting Attorney to be sued for Sexual Discrimination – and leaving someone else holding the bag for settlement of the case.
 - Being a Public Defender with a reputation for never trying a case.

IF YOU AREN'T HONEST WITH THE FACTS AS A CANDIDATE, MR. WERTH, JUST WHAT KIND OF JUDGE WOULD YOU BE?

A dragonfly tries to clean itself after landing on marsh grass covered in oil from the Deepwater Horizon oil spill, Tuesday in Garden Island Bay near Venice, La.

Inventors say BP ignoring their ideas to clean up spill

By Michael Kunzelman and Mike Baker
Associated Press writers

NEW ORLEANS — A suggestion box or publicity stunt? BP has received thousands of ideas from the public on how to stop a blown oil well in the Gulf of Mexico, but some inventors are complaining that their efforts are getting ignored.

Oil-eating bacteria, bombs and a device that resembles a giant shower curtain are among the 10,000 fixes people have proposed to counter the growing environmental threat. BP is taking a closer look at 700 of the ideas, but the oil company has yet to use any of them nearly a month after the deadly explosion that caused the leak.

"They're clearly out of ideas, and there's a whole world of people willing to do this free of charge," said Dwayne Spradlin, CEO of InnoCentive Inc., which has created an online network of experts to solve problems.

BP spokesman Mark Salt said the company wants the public's help, but that considering proposed fixes takes time.

"They're taking bits of ideas from lots of places," Salt said. "This is not just a PR stunt."

BP said Wednesday it hopes to begin shooting a mixture known as drilling mud into the blown-out well in the Gulf by Sunday. The "top kill" method involves shooting heavy mud into crippled equipment on top of the well, then aiming cement at the well to permanently keep down the oil. Even if it works it could take several weeks to complete.

"This is all being done at a depth of 5,000 feet and it's never been done at these depths before," said Doug Suttles of BP PLC, which leased the rig that exploded April 20 off the coast of Louisiana.

If the top kill effort fails,

BP is considering a "junk shot," which involves shooting knotted rope, pieces of tires and golf balls into the blowout preventer. Crews hope they will lodge into the nooks and crannies of the device to plug it.

About 70 BP workers are taking more suggestions at a tip line center in Houston. The company plans to test one idea from actor Kevin Costner — a centrifuge device to vacuum up the oil — but that was not delivered through the suggestion-box system.

Thousands of barrels of oil are still pouring into open waters each day, and some of it has washed ashore as far east as Alabama. Tar balls found in the Florida Keys were not from the spill, the Coast Guard said Wednesday.

National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration scientists said a small portion of the oil slick from the blown-out well has reached a powerful current that could take it to Florida. They said diluted oil could appear in isolated locations in Florida if persistent winds push the current toward it, but that oil also could evaporate before reaching the coast.

In Louisiana, a chocolate-brown blanket of oil about as thick as latex paint has invaded reedy freshwater wetlands at the state's southeastern tip.

Gov. Bobby Jindal and Plaquemines Parish President Billy Nungesser led a flotilla of media to inspect the oil encroaching on remote wetlands lining Pass a Loutre, near where the mouth of the Mississippi River empties into the Gulf of Mexico.

Jindal, sitting at the edge of an airboat, swept a handheld fishing net through the mess and held it up. It was coated with brown sludge, which had stained the lower shafts of the leafy green reeds sticking up to eight feet out of the water.

DUI suspect taken away in tractor bucket

GLENVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Police say a Maryland man was so drunk after driving into a central Pennsylvania field that a farmer had to carry the handcuffed suspect out in the bucket of his tractor.

Southwestern Regional police Chief Greg Bean says 36-year-old Shawn Anthony Hott, of Boonsboro, Md., had to be pulled to safety after he was nearly run over by his own truck.

Bean said Wednesday that Hott was driving through fields Sunday night and fled police before nearly hitting a herd of cows in Glenville, about 30 miles south of Harrisburg.

Bean says Hott surrendered and collapsed behind his truck, which started to drift back toward him. Officer Bryn Lindenmuth pulled Hott away then needed the farmer to carry them back to his patrol car.

A phone listing for Hott could not be located Wednesday.

Group: Sun Valley needs to do more, differently

Marketing study shows most people in U.S. don't know about resort

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

SUN VALLEY — Sun Valley needs to target more marketing toward its second home owners, attract 3,000 more visitors this year and play up its 75th anniversary big time, a marketing committee told more than a 100 people crowded into Sun Valley's Limelight Room Tuesday night.

Just a 5 percent increase in the number of visitors — or, 3,000 people — would add $6.5 million to the economy over the next year. A 5 percent increase, or $20 a day, in the amount visitors spend would bring in $6.5 million. A 5 percent increase in spending by second homeowners would bring in nearly $10 million. And adding just a hundred full-time residents would add $4 million to the economy, Sun Valley-Ketchum Region Marketing Committee Chair Jim Knight said.

Knight's committee was formed by Sun Valley Councilman Bob Youngman to diagnose why Sun Valley lags behind both the U.S. economy and most other resorts.

Part of the problem, Knight said, is that people don't know about Sun Valley. Only 28 percent of Americans have heard of Sun Valley and only 15 percent of those under 35 have heard of it.

In addition, Sun Valley doesn't have enough hotel rooms, nor does it have the ski-in, ski-out lodging and the four- and five-star hotels that attract high end clientele. What's more, rental condos are deteriorating and in oversupply.

The number of flights into the valley lag behind comparable resorts and most flights come from Salt Lake City, limiting travel options. There are not enough seats to support meaningful group travel, nor is there regular quality bus service to support the 30 percent who fly into Boise.

Knight said the community must "start tonight" to make changes.

Reason for optimism?

Federal Reserve sees slightly better 2010 economy

By Martin Crutsinger
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Federal Reserve officials have a brighter view of the economy than they did at the start of the year.

Fed officials say in an updated forecast that they think the economy can grow between 3.2 percent and 3.7 percent this year. That's an upward revision from a growth range of 2.8 percent to 3.5 percent in their January forecast.

The Fed's latest forecast sees the unemployment rate, now at 9.9 percent, dipping to between 9.1 percent and 9.5 percent by year's end. In the January forecast, the Fed didn't think unemployment would dip below 9.5 percent this year. The Fed prepared the latest forecast for its late-April meeting.

The Fed predicts an inflation gauge tied to consumer spending — excluding volatile food and energy costs — will rise just 0.9 percent to 1.2 percent this year. In January, the officials forecast an increase in prices of 1.1 percent to 1.7 percent.

The Fed's updated outlook was prepared at its last meeting, April 27-28, and released Wednesday. It's roughly in line with an Associated Press survey of leading economists done about a month earlier. According to the AP's survey, the economy will grow 3 percent this year, and the unemployment rate will inch down to 9.3 percent by year's end.

The Fed's new outlook represents the middle range of forecasts of officials on the Federal Open Market Committee. That's the group of Fed board members and central bank presidents who meet eight times a year to set interest rates.

At four of those meetings, including the April session, the central bank updates its economic outlook.

The Fed left its forecasts for next year and 2011 and the longer-run expectations mainly unchanged from January.

The Fed described the changes in economic growth in 2010 as a "modest" upward revision. The minutes said the figures available for the April meeting on consumer spending and business outlays were "broadly consistent with a moderate pace of economic recovery."

But the Fed stressed that the economic recovery is expected to remain moderate, with the unemployment rate falling only gradually.

"Participants continued to expect the pace of the economic recovery to be restrained by household and business uncertainty, only gradual improvement in labor market conditions and slow easing of credit conditions in the banking sector," the Fed minutes said.

Subdivision opens in Rupert

Sisters offer housing options

By Judy Albertson
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Not everyone is spooked by the economy and the housing crisis.

Two sisters, Tammy Jansen and Karla Jensen, and their husbands, thought Rupert had a need for more housing options and stepped up to fulfill that need.

"It is all about the desire to give back to the community and give to Rupert something new and exciting," Jensen said.

Their grandparents, Albert and Lela Plocher, acquired 40 acres in 1943 on H Street. Part of that land was donated to build Rupert's East Minico Middle School.

"Albert was a farmer and a carpenter, and it was his hope to one day develop the rest of the farm into a subdivision," Jensen said. "The last large subdivision in the Rupert area was built in 1973 — Sharon Heights."

Hawk's Landing, on the corner of H Street and Woodland Street, offers a breath of fresh air with all of the amenities, Jensen said. It features wide streets, curb and gutters, underground sprinkler systems, city services, gas hook-ups, all underground services, design standards and a home owners association, and in the future a community RV storage facility with a private RV dump station.

"We have a vision," said Jansen.

Hawk's Landing is designed for custom homes and townhomes. There will be 12 townhome units and 30 single family home lots.

"A townhome is unique in the sense that they have large open floor plans, spacious garages, front and back porches, and landscaping that's fully maintained by the homeowners association. This is great for those who are too busy to do the yard work, don't enjoy yard work and those who want to just come home and enjoy the beautiful yards. The first townhome is completed and one is for sale," Jensen said.

The developers call their company Jae Company, LTD., taken from their two last names which are similar. Jansen currently lives in Wisconsin and Jensen lives in Washington, but their parents, Marvin and Luedean Reichert, still live in the area.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

St. Luke's opens new office building in Old Towne

The city of Twin Falls and the Twin Falls Urban Renewal Agency welcomed St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center Patient Financial Services office to Old Towne.

St. Luke's remodeled a former warehouse into a modern, attractive financial services facility for up to 110 workers located at 212 Third Ave. S.

Twin Falls Economic Director Melinda Anderson said Region IV Development Corporation and the city of Twin Falls was awarded a community development block grant of $498,100, which will be used to construct a paved parking lot, install a larger water line, create curb/gutter and sidewalk and new landscaping, and install street lighting around the block of the facility. It will also pay for paving an alley in the 200 block of Third Avenue South.

The Twin Falls Urban Renewal Agency has contributed more than $500,000 to the project by acquiring property, demolishing structures, and designing the CDBG project.

Railroad to study shipping center

BOISE — The city of Boise and a local railroad say they're looking into building a shipping facility to boost commerce between the northern Rocky Mountain region and other areas, including ports in California and Washington state.

Officials from Idaho's capital city and Boise Valley Railroad say they'll study the feasibility of such a project, slated to cost between $2 million and $5 million, in coming months.

Boise may spend about $20,000 on the study.

Glanbia Foods, is touting the benefits of an inter-modal facility in southwestern Idaho. Glanbia now ships its foreign-bound whey to Salt Lake City, before it's sent on to ports in Seattle or Los Angeles.

That adds about 800 miles to the trip.

Consumer inflation vanishes, a boon for borrowers

By Martin Crutsinger
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Consumer prices fell in April for the first time in 13 months, giving the Federal Reserve more room to keep interest rates at historic lows to aid the economy.

The 0.1 percent decrease in overall prices last month was pulled down by gas prices, which are expected to drop further this summer.

Core inflation, which excludes volatile food and energy prices, was flat in April, according to the Labor Department report Wednesday. Over the past 12 months, core inflation has risen just 0.9 percent — the smallest increase in 44 years.

The recession in 2007 and 2008 has kept inflation so low that some economists worry about the possibility of deflation — a destabilizing period of falling prices and wages.

"With the unemployment rate so close to 10 percent, it is entirely understandable that the Fed wants to stick with its commitment to leave rates at near-zero," said Paul Ashworth, senior U.S. economist at Capital Economics.

Utah-based call center company pays back wages

The Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — A top federal regulator says a Salt Lake City-based call center company has paid nearly $2 million to settle complaints it failed to pay workers for overtime.

Secretary of Labor Hilda L. Solis says Teleperformance USA workers are receiving the back wages they deserved.

The U.S. Labor Department says the company failed to pay for short breaks or when employees were on the clock but waiting for work stations to open. Other workers were misclassified as salaried.

There was no immediate response from Teleperformance USA, where an executive said Wednesday he planned to have a public-relations firm return a call from The Associated Press.

The settlement covers nearly 16,000 people who worked at Teleperformance USA in Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, New Mexico, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Texas and Utah.

Sun Valley

Suggestions included:

- Replace a marketing campaign that isn't meeting expectations.
- Focus marketing on the Sun Valley experience in all seasons.
- Create a new marketing body.
- Set goals, such as attracting 3,000 new visitors over the next year. Measure success and demand accountability.
- Enlist the entire community in creating a culture of 100 percent customer satisfaction.

Knight also said the community should immediately start promoting the 75th anniversary of Sun Valley Resort.

Sun Valley Mayor Wayne Willich said his council will begin addressing the recommendations at its Thursday meeting. "The bottom line: This effort is going to take a couple dollars to get done," he said.

Nicola Potts, owner of The Coffee Grinder in Ketchum, said she was glad to see the sense of urgency in getting started making changes.

"We've spent hundreds of thousands of dollars on marketing consultants in the past without doing anything," she said. "We definitely need a new marketing campaign. We need to be authentic and talk about our quaintness, about how we're a gateway to the largest wilderness in the Lower 48. And we need to improve the shuttles from Twin Falls and Boise so that the vacation starts when guests land at those airports."

Senate fails to end debate on bank regulation

By Jim Kuhnhehn

Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Senate Republicans voted Wednesday to delay final action on a sweeping financial regulation bill, raising an obstacle to the legislation as it approached the home stretch.

The vote was 57-42, three votes shy of the 60 needed to pass. Three Democrats joined 39 Republicans in voting against the measure. Among them was Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid, who switched his vote from yes for procedural reasons. Reid said he'd seek a new vote Thursday.

With Sen. Arlen Specter, D-Pa., absent, Democrats needed one more vote to demonstrate to Republicans that they would eventually prevail and set the stage to pass the biggest rewrite of financial regulations since the Great Depression.

The legislation would set

It also would create a new consumer protection agency, a key point for President Obama.

Republicans this week have escalated their attacks on the legislation, arguing the bill had grown worse and did not address root causes of the 2008 financial meltdown.

Walmart pulls jewelry line containing cadmium

By Justin Pritchard
Associated Press writer

LOS ANGELES — Walmart said Wednesday it is pulling an entire line of Miley Cyrus-brand necklaces and bracelets from its shelves after tests performed for The Associated Press found the jewelry contained high levels of the toxic metal cadmium.

In a statement issued three hours after AP's initial report of its findings, Walmart said it would remove the jewelry, made exclusively for the world's largest retailer, while it investigates. The company issued the statement along with Cyrus and Max Azria, the designer who developed the jewelry for the 17-year-old "Hannah Montana" star.

Walmart Stores Inc. had learned of cadmium in the Miley Cyrus jewelry, as well as in an unrelated line of bracelet charms, back in February, based on an earlier round of testing conducted at AP's request, but had continued selling the items. It said as recently as last month that it would be too difficult to test products already on its shelves.

In its statement, Walmart did not say whether it would also remove the bracelet charms.

Exactly how many of the items have been sold was unclear. The charms — also available exclusively at Walmart stores — were sold under the name "Fashion Accessories," though Walmart has not said when they began appearing on shelves.

The Miley Cyrus jewelry hit stores in December.

Long-term exposure to cadmium can lead to bone softening and kidney failure. It is also a known carcinogen, and research suggests that it can, like lead, hinder brain development in the very young.

Cadmium in jewelry is not known to be dangerous if the items are simply worn. Concerns come when youngsters bite or suck on the jewelry, as many children are apt to do.

Walmart said that while the jewelry is not intended for children, "it is possible that a few younger consumers may seek it out in stores."

"We are removing all of the jewelry from sale while we investigate its compliance with our children's jewelry standard," Walmart said.

That was a reference to a policy Walmart voluntarily implemented last month, under which suppliers are required to prove their products contain little cadmium, or else Walmart would not accept them.

The company's policy of not checking products already on the shelves appears to have changed: In its statement, Walmart said it reviewed children's jewelry and pulled "the few products that did not" comply with its new testing regimen.

Cadmium in children's jewelry became a public concern in January when the AP published the results of an investigation that showed items at WalMart's and other large chains were as much as 91 percent of the toxic metal by weight.

A rocky history

From history lessons to bird watching, Massacre Rocks offers a little of everything

By Andrew Weeks
Times-News writer

AMERICAN FALLS — An image: knives and axes striking death blows through the air, the sharp points felling their victims.

The attack came without warning, and when it ended four people were dead. The next day, when the immigrants had regrouped and decided to fight back, five more people were struck down by Indian blows.

Life as a pioneer wasn't always that tough, but it was hard enough.

So are the rocks, like the twisted, tormented ones at Massacre Rocks State Park, still there today as iconic witnesses to the bloody crime that befell a group of immigrants Aug. 9, 1862, as they walked the Oregon Trail.

The haunting story of the skirmish that left several people dead, their blood soaked into the ground, is retold at the park today.

But it's easy to forget the historic tragedy, especially on a sunny day when the area looks almost happy in its aloneness and which makes an artistic contrast between the blue sky and rock-infested landscape.

The park, which has a visitors center, really isn't alone. A number of kiosks are located through the trail system. They begin at the visitors center, which displays a map of the Oregon Trail. The trail itself is located in the area and is fun to walk to.

Group buys sternwheeler for Snake River

By Jayson Jacoby
Baker City Herald

HUNTINGTON, Ore. — A Huntington nonprofit group that wants to revive the tradition of sternwheeler voyages on the Snake River has acquired a vital component.

The boat.

The Snake River Rose LLC, a group of investors working with the nonprofit, bought the sternwheeler, christened Li'l Millie, for $20,000 from an amusement park in Marshall, Wis., said Bill Burley of Huntington.

Burley is founder of the Snake River Sternwheeler Association, the nonprofit that plans to lease and eventually acquire the 40-foot-long Li'l Millie from the Snake River Rose LLC and carry passengers on tours of Brownlee Reservoir.

The sternwheeler, which is being hauled west on a truck at a cost of $8,800, is supposed to arrive Saturday, Burley said in a telephone interview from Wisconsin, where he's overseeing the transport operation.

Although the sternwheeler needs some work, which Burley hopes to accomplish with a combination of volunteers and donations, he'd like to have the Li'l Millie back in the water and carrying passengers by next spring.

"I'm just excited about getting her to Huntington," he said.

"I want to make this little boat shine like the top of the Chrysler Building and get some tours going"

The double-deck sternwheeler, which was built in Hamburg, N.Y., in 1995, was at one time approved by the U.S. Coast Guard to carry 43 passengers and two crew, Burley said.

He said he has talked with officials from Farewell Bend State Park, a few miles from Huntington, about using the park's boat ramp to board passengers.

Burley said the sternwheeler will operate along the 58-mile-long Brownlee Reservoir, including the Powder River arm near Richland.

He envisions the Li'l Millie as a sort of floating advertisement for Eastern Oregon.

"We're not only going to promote our boat, we're going to use the boat to promote our region," Burley said. "Eastern Oregon is the biggest amusement park in the state. There are so many attractions here. We just need to get people to stop instead of driving straight through on the freeway."

Cabin owners appeal Forest Service fee proposal

By Andrew Weeks
Times-News writer

Cabin owners are appealing the Forest Service's decision on increased permit fees in the Sawtooths.

A number of people presented their oral appeals to regional forest officials this week at the Sawtooth National Forest office in Twin Falls. The informal hearings, which began Tuesday, wraps up today.

"We just want to hear what you presented in your (written) appeals," Claire Huking, regional appeals and litigation coordinator, told participants at the informal hearing Tuesday afternoon.

The Forest Service conducted land appraisals in 2007, and based cabin fee increases on property value. Not satisfied with the appraisals, about 80 cabin owners in the Sawtooths hired a second appraiser, which appraised properties lower than the Forest Service had.

Cabin owners are required to pay 5 percent of the accepted appraisal value. They want fees based on the lower estimate, not the Forest Service's higher value.

David Mead, president of the Sawtooth Forest Cabin Owner's Association, said the Forest Service's proposal is high enough that it would force some permit holders out of their cabins.

Recreational permit holders own their cabins, but the Forest Service owns the land.

Mead said his cabin, which he's owned since the 1960s in the Valley View track near Sun Valley, went from a 1996 estimated value of $35,000 to $124,000, according to the first appraisal, increasing the annual fee from $1,750 to $6,200 — a 254 percent increase.

The Valley View track includes 34 cabins. The fees would increase incrementally every year until about 2013, he said, then remain steady after that.

Ray Strolberg, president of the Rock Creek Cabin Owners Association, said prior to 1997 he paid $467 a year, but with the proposed increase he'd be expected to pay $2,200. In January he paid $880.

"They're charging incrementally until they get us up to the $2,200," he said, noting that the Forest Service so far has averaged the two appraisals to come up with a 5 percent rate. But they're starting to feel the crunch. "That's why we're petitioning now. It's getting beyond anybody's capability for funding."

He didn't give any numbers, but said the increase would put a major strain on a number of cabin owners in the Balsam and Deadline tracks of the South Hills.

"We don't feel like we are asking a lot from the Forest Service," said Ellis Robertson, who owns a cabin in the Balsam track.

He said cabin owners are a boon to the Forest Service, because they keep an eye out for illicit activity, but the higher fees will likely turn many owners away.

"We are an extra set of eyes and ears up there," he said. "We've been able to catch poachers and turn them over to (Idaho Department of) Fish and Game. We've also caught people up there destroying federal lands."

Robertson said it's ironic that people, often with disregard to their surroundings, can camp in areas of the Sawtooths without a permit, but cabin owners, who generally take good care of the land, are forced to pay extreme prices.

He said, however, he's grateful for the officials who are considerate and willing to listen to the cabin owners.

"We want this to be a win-win for both of us," he said.

Melissa Hearst, special use program manager for the Forest Service, said the Sawtooths are a unique study. The office has not had so many appeals at one time, she said.

Permit holders filed their written appeals early this year. They will receive a response from the Forest Service by June 28, Huking said, after which they will have 20 days to respond. A final response from the Forest Service would likely be available by early fall.

The last of the three-day hearings end today. Actor Bruce Willis, who owns property in the Sawtooths, is listed as one of the cabin owners.

Coeur d'Alene man's wooden boat making waves

By David Cole
Coeur d'Alene Press

COEUR D'ALENE — Jerry Gilbreath swears his boat “Jefe” actually runs better than it looks.

And Gilbreath, 61, made every effort to make sure Jefe, Spanish for chief or leader, looks perfect.

“For the last 40 years I’ve made my living designing, building and racing offshore power boats,” said Gilbreath, owner of Gilbreath Marine Technology, and a champion offshore powerboat racer. “In the back of my mind, when I retired, I always wanted to build the ultimate boat.”

Gilbreath, of Coeur d’Alene, said for people who know boats, and know them well, it’s the detail that’s gone into building the ultra-custom runabout that awes them.

“They recognize the time that it took and the detail that we put into this boat,” Gilbreath said.

The 34-foot boat was cold-molded with African mahogany and western red cedar, and is powered by twin 400-horsepower Mercury engines.

“This is truly a Coeur d’Alene-built boat,” Gilbreath said. “We have wonderful craftsmen here.”

The fit and finish of the wood is what stands out to wooden boat aficionados, Gilbreath said.

The boat was built by The Resort Boat Shop. Gilbreath designed it.

Tapley Cabinet Works and Mountain Upholstery, both of Coeur d’Alene, did work on the boat.

Along with mahogany and cedar, the boat also has some teak wood, mostly on the flooring. All the wood was purchased from Aagesen Millworks in Post Falls.

Gilbreath bought thousands of feet of wood to ensure the grains match.

Every detail of the boat’s design and construction has received his full attention. Every part was designed and crafted only for Jefe, including the half-inch-thick safety glass windshield.

“I want someone to come in and tell me what I did wrong, because I’ll change it,” Gilbreath said. “I absolutely will. This is the most perfect detailed boat they’ve ever seen.”

Which is what he set out to make.

His design of Jefe was inspired by Italian Riva boats. The interior design was inspired by luxury car maker Bentley.

He said the cost of the boat approaches $1 million. He’ll be keeping the boat at The Coeur d’Alene Resort, depending on the weather, he said.

The boat was finished one year ago this month, after two years of work, and already has 40 operating hours on it, Gilbreath said.

Since the boat was finished, it has received awards at the five boat shows in which it has been entered.

It won awards at the Coeur d’Alene Regional Wooden Boat Show, at a similar show in Sandpoint, and another at Payette Lake in McCall. He’s done similarly well outside the state, at Lake Tahoe, on the California-Nevada border, and at the 2010 Desert Storm powerboat event at Lake Havasu City, Ariz.

Craig Brosenne, general manager of The Resort Boat Shop, said, “We’re very fortunate that he picked our shop to build his dream boat. Having the owner so involved was fun. The outcome because of that was a better built boat.”

The shop mostly builds custom wood boats.

Building using the cold-molded process takes twice as long as building a plank boat, which would require the use of plugs and screws, he said.

Gilbreath’s boat has 30 coats of finish on it.

“That requires a lot of patience,” he said. “The end result was a perfect boat.”

OUTDOOR SNAPSHOTS

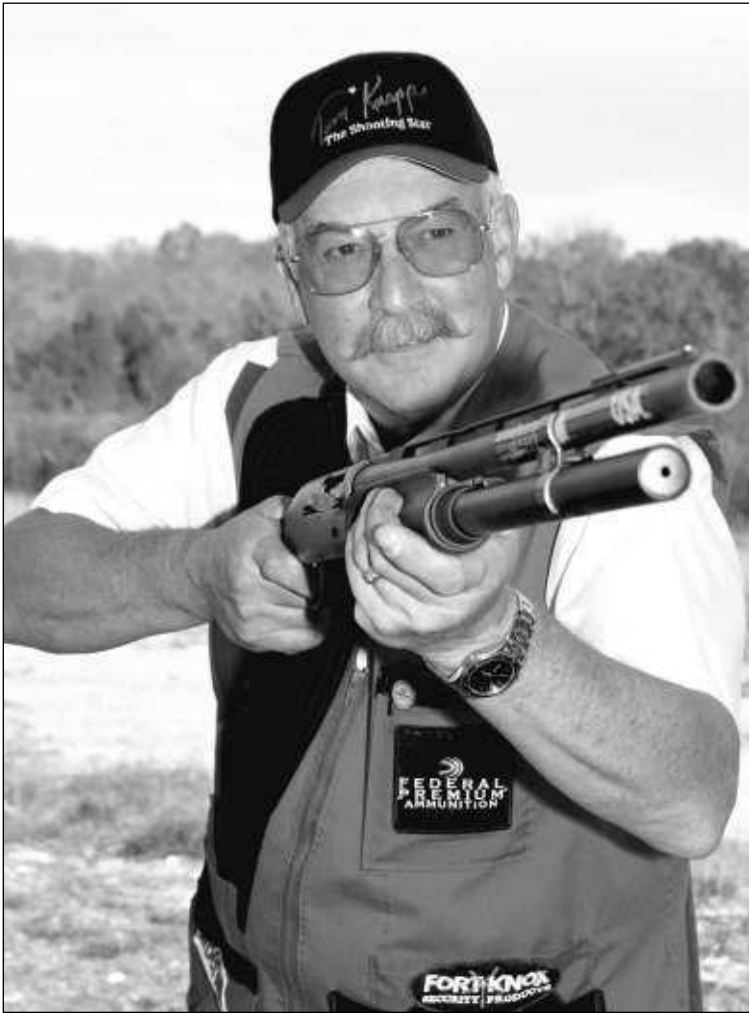

Bob Donnelley, of Twin Falls, submitted these Outdoor Snapshots. The first is of a mother bear, who had two cubs with her in a tree.

“They invaded our campsite on the Middle Fork of the Salmon River during a float trip last summer,” Donnelley wrote in an e-mail to the Times-News.

“She nursed the cubs in the tree, it was an amazing experience. The second picture was taken on the Lower Salmon River below Riggins, Idaho, during a family float trip ... As you can see, the kids were having a big time.”

World-renowned shotgun shooter Tom Knapp, also known as ‘Benelli’s American Birdhunter’ on the Outdoors Channel, recently visited Twin Falls.

No nodding off during Knapp time

I was among hundreds of sportsmen who this past weekend visited the Pocatello and Twin Falls trap clubs to be entertained and inspired by Benelli exhibition shooter Tom Knapp.

As the current holder of three world records, Tom is considered the best freestyle target shooter of modern times. He’s been wooing audiences worldwide with more than 100 live shows a year since 1987.

Though white-haired and approaching 60, Tom shows no sign of slowing down. To put things mildly, Tom’s skill with a shotgun is unearthly. To date, his most noteworthy accomplishment has been to break nine hand-thrown clay targets with as many shots.

Millions of fans welcome him into their living rooms each week as Benelli’s American Birdhunter and Benelli’s American Safari’s genial hunter host. When I met him in person, what immediately impressed me was his approachability and down-to-earth manner.

For several hours while setting up his show, Tom shook hands, signed autographs and joked with anyone and everyone who went up to meet him. As a proud grandfather, he took special interest in the youngsters and included about a dozen kids in his show.

While warming up the audience just before the shooting started, Tom announced he had recently been asked to provide guns and memorabilia for a Tom Knapp display in the Cody Firearms Museum at the Buffalo Bill Historical Center in Cody, Wyo.

“A considerable honor,” he said, “since this privilege is usually offered posthumously and I’m not quite dead yet.”

He said the greatest distinction was the honor of having his display placed right next to that of his inspirational hero, famed Winchester exhibition shooter of the 1950s, Herb Parsons.

Throughout the show, Tom furiously worked his Benelli pump and semiautos on a mixed bag of stationary, hand-tossed and audience-thrown targets. Though very few targets escaped unscathed, Tom reminded us that he would miss once in a while to keep himself from getting bored by the 40,000-plus targets he shoots each year.

During the show, Tom promoted the Federal Premium Gold Medal target loads and Benelli shotguns his sponsors pay him to shoot. He demonstrated how the internal components of Gold Medal loads (3 drams of powder, 1 1/8 oz. of shot) provided full power with markedly reduced recoil, an obvious asset for high-volume clay shooters.

Benelli’s flawless functioning through the firing of hundreds of rapid-fire rounds demonstrated why hunters and competitive shooters are willing to pay the premium prices demanded by these Italian scatterguns.

When engaging targets, Tom admonished us to resist the temptation to shoot instinctively, but rather to “keep your face on the stock and align the front sight, with your hard focus on each individual target.” For sights, Tom relies solely on Champion’s low-profile, high-visibility EasyHit models. After shouldering one of Tom’s guns at the end of the day’s show, I have to agree with that choice.

Interested in meeting Gentleman Tom yourself? Check out his website at www.tomknapp.net.

Good shooting!

Rocks

A board outside the center allows visitors to write down the animals they see on their hikes. The area is home to beaver, coyote, muskrat, rabbits and more than 200 species of birds and 300 species of plants, according to the Idaho Parks and Recreation website.

“There are a lot of birds and waterfowl,” said Alberta Zimmerman, seasonal office manger with the park. “A lot of people come here for bird watching, and they love to walk the trails. They find it peaceful. We have people who come back every year.”

I didn’t see any animals on my visit to the area May 13, except for a few lizards that scurried nearby. I did see fishermen and their boats on the Snake River, though, which travels through the area and adds another element of beauty to the otherwise desert landscape. There also were a number of campers interspersed throughout the 40-unit park.

There are four cabins, a self-guided nature trail, and boat launches.

Massacre Rocks — called “Gate of Death” or “Devil’s Gate” by the pioneers — was formed millions of years ago by a now-extinct volcano in the area. The Bonneville Flood helped shape the landscape, “rolling and polishing the huge boulders found throughout the park,” according to the Parks and Rec website.

People are surprised on their first visit to the park, Zimmerman said, because “what you see from the freeway isn’t really what you see when you get here.”

Catch hybrid trout

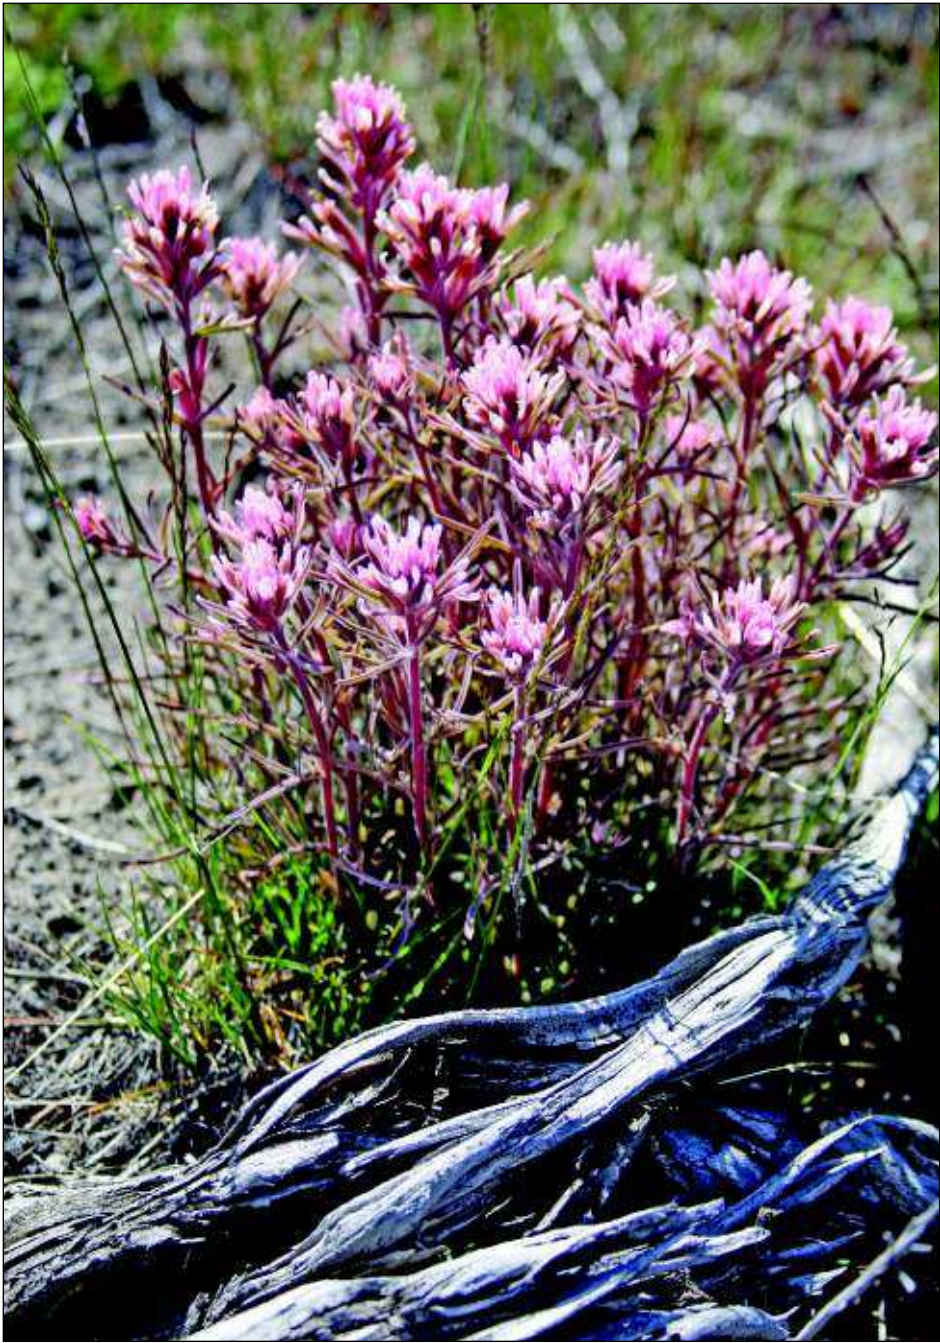

Though Henry’s Lake will be open in a few weeks, and you’ll be able to try your luck at catching one of its fabled hybrid cutthroats, why not challenge yourself to see if you can net the same hybrid at Salmon Falls Creek Reservoir?

As a result of a cooperative project between the Magic Valley office of the Idaho Department of Fish and Game, the University of Idaho Fish Research Station at Hagerman, and the Magic Valley Fly Fishermen, Henry’s Lake hybrid fingerlings were planted at Salmon Falls Creek Reservoir starting in 2006 and the following three years.

The first- and second-class of fingerlings are now showing up as trophy trout ranging from 18 to 23 inches, with some weighing more than 4 pounds.

Henry’s hybrid cutthroats have tell-tale orange slash marks on their throats. A boat will improve your odds of landing because of the size of the reservoir. Even if you don’t succeed in netting a hybrid, there’s also rainbow, bass and walleye in the reservoir. Give it a try!

Tips for controlled hunt application period

Question: “Last year I had a problem with my controlled hunt application. I thought I put in for one unit and it showed up different on the application receipt I received from the vendor. What should I do different this year?”

Answer: The controlled hunt application period is usually the most chaotic time of the year for many vendors and eager hunters. Many hunters have found it difficult and frustrating to deal with the application period, most often because of miscommunication with the vendor entering the application.

Here are a few suggestions to help sportsmen with the upcoming application period:

1. Read the regulation brochures. This sounds so simple but many individuals don’t realize there are changes that can occur from year to year. Hunt numbers, season dates and exceptions can vary from year to year. Doing a little homework before you show up at your local vendor can make your application for that prized controlled hunt a lot smoother.

2. Use the Controlled Hunt Worksheet. This worksheet can be found in the Big Game Regulations brochure. Use this worksheet to speed up the application process. Fill in the blanks with your hunting license and controlled hunt number and take this to your local vendor so they can accurately and efficiently enter your application.

3. Double-check your application. While at the vendor make sure the clerk clearly understands which hunt you are applying for. When they hand you your application receipt double-check the hunt number, big game unit, hunting dates and your hunting license number before you leave that establishment. Ensure the applicant or applicants are all correct on the application as a transposed number may result in application for someone else.

If there is a mistake the vendor can immediately cancel the application and make changes. If you notice errors at a later time or wait to make changes, you must go to your local regional office to cancel the original application. At this time you will be charged again an application fee of $6.25. Ultimately, it is your responsibility to make sure your application is correct.

4. Don’t Wait. Procrastination is a human condition that many people suffer. Every year the rush at the end of the application period is especially chaotic. If possible, don’t wait until the last few days to put in for your application.

Grandma wonders about childhood growing pains

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 5-year-old grandson sometimes awakens in the night with pain in his legs, ankles or wrists. My daughter says he has growing pains. Is this true?
DEAR READER: Yes, it is, sort of. Up to 40 percent of children experience "growing pains" during two periods — from the ages of 3 to 5 and 8 to 12. There is no evidence to substantiate that bone growth causes pain.

ASK DR. GOTT
Dr. Peter Gott

What is experienced is likely caused by activities such as running, jumping, climbing on a jungle gym, and being extremely active during the day. Most of the pain is concentrated in muscles behind the knees, in the calves and on the front portion of the thighs. It is often severe enough to awaken a child in the middle of the night, leaving a parent unsure of what to do. When any unusual symptom such as fever, fatigue, rash, loss of appetite or weakness occurs, a pediatrician should be involved. There may be something going on that truly needs to be addressed. In the case of a serious medical condition, a child will prefer not to be touched, because movement commonly increases pain; however, if the child has growing pains, massage, stretching, the use of a heating pad and general comforting techniques will be welcomed. Keep in mind that your grandson can awaken refreshed and free of pain. This does not imply he is seeking attention or faking an illness. It's simply the way the condition presents. DEAR DR. GOTT: I had a bout with plantar fasciitis several years ago. The treatment at that time was cortisone shots in my feet to help ease the pain until it went away. I have developed another case, but this time my doctor will not do the shots. He has given me exercises to do and pain medication to ease the pain. However, it is not working, and I do not understand why he cannot give me the shots, which were like a miracle last time. I am on my feet on concrete most of the day. Do you know of any other remedies to help with this so I don't have to miss work?

DEAR READER: Plantar fasciitis is a painful foot condition marked by inflammation of the band of tissue running from the heel along the arch of the foot. It is seen in middle-aged men and women and is common in athletes and runners. Symptoms are typically worse early in the morning, when first awakening, but once a person is walking and the foot is stretched and the ligaments loose, the pain generally subsides. The pain can be worse with prolonged periods of walking or standing.

Your physician is appropriately declining more cortisone injections, because there are potentially serious problems injecting the heel area with cortisone. Fat-pad atrophy and plantar-fascial rupture can occur. The possibility of either occurrence is small but could result in a worsening of symptoms.

Recommendations for care include ice packs, stretching exercises, over-the-counter anti-inflammatory medications, shoe inserts, properly fitting shoes and rest. A new treatment known as extracorporeal shockwave therapy is being investigated. This uses pulses of energy to induce micro-trauma to the tissue of the plantar fascia. The treatment is believed to encourage repair of the tissue and is recommended for patients who fail to get relief from other methods, despite reports of conflicting results. Then there is tarsal-tunnel release, which is about 80 percent effective in relieving pain in patients who don't experience relief with conservative measures.

Peter H. Gott is a retired physician and the author of several books.

BLISS — Beautiful baby Scout, 3-month-old infant daughter of Rory and Stephanie Caudill of Bliss, passed away peacefully in the arms of her family Saturday, May 15, 2010, at Primary Children's Hospital in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Although Scout's time on earth was short, every moment was cherished by her loved ones that surrounded this precious little angel.

Scout was born at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center in Twin Falls on Feb. 9, 2010. Scout's hopes and dreams were to be the sweet little sister of Dakota, Coltan and Madelyn. Scout's brother and sisters took advantage of every moment that they could to hold her and play with her. Scout also loved being spoiled by her extra special grandparents, Steve and Kris Quigley of Bliss.

Scout was the loving niece of Jenifer Quigley of Gooding, Darcy and Karen Herrington of Bliss, Jason Durfee of Boise, Don and Betty Clemmons of Bliss, and Dean Caudill of Adams of Jerome, Elden and Mayvis Thompson of Bliss, Dutch and LaDonna Wilkins of Bliss, and Janet Quigley of Texas. Scout also has many great-aunts, uncles and second cousins. Scout was preceded in death by her baby cousin, Alexis Herrington; grandfather, Samuel Caudill; great-grandmother, Irene Adams; and great-grandfather, Galen Quigley.

The Caudill family would like to thank all of the nurses and doctors from Twin Falls, Boise and Salt Lake City that took extra special care of their angel. Scout taught all of us that "Life isn't about waiting for the storms to pass. It's about learning to dance in the rain."

The funeral will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday, May 22, at the Hagerman Christian Center. The burial will follow at the Hagerman Cemetery.

Oley D. Jacobsen

HEYBURN — Oley D. Jacobsen, age 68, of Heyburn, passed away Tuesday, May 18, 2010, at his home following a courageous and valiant battle with cancer.

He was born May 25, 1941, in Driggs, Idaho, the son of Herman and Ruth Gwen (Hatt) Jacobsen. He received and completed his education in Jerome. He served in the United States Marine Corps for four years. He married Carolyn Sue Bartholomew on Dec. 20, 1963, in Jerome. Together, they had three children, Darryl, DeeAnn and Dennis.

Oley and Sue moved to the Mini-Cassia area in 1964. Oley worked several years for Bunting Tractor in Burley. He later worked for and retired from United Electric in Heyburn. Sarah Mae Johnson SHOSHONE — Sarah Mae Johnson, 98, passed away early morning Tuesday, May 18, 2010, as she slept peacefully without pain in her own home and her own bed. This is the way she always said she wanted to go.

Our mother was born in Herbert, Idaho (does not exist any longer), on Aug. 20, 1911, to Lorinda Barber and Nicolas Newby Jr. She was the eldest daughter in a family of 11 children.

She is survived by three sisters, June Nielson, Edna Conner and Della (Gene) Hansen. She is preceded in death by her husband, Aaron; daughter, Ardyth; and several grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Mom and Dad had nine children. Alan (Helen) Johnson, Eldon (Joanne) Johnson, Janice (Kenneth) Walden, Lyn (Sandra) Johnson, Norma Flores, Linda (Ralph) Madsen, Bruce (Mary) Johnson, Bob (Nancy) Johnson and Ardyth Martin/Zaring (deceased). There are currently nearly 200 direct descendants and still counting. Not only did Mom raise her own nine children but, as the eldest daughter in her family, she was tasked with caring for her younger siblings.

Mother was a grand woman. She raised much of her family during the Great Depression, sent sons off to serve and fight for their country and almost died during her last child delivery. Dad was often gone working out of town so the family could survive. Mom worked hard at keeping a good home and a well-cared-for lawn and vegetable garden while raising her large family. She loved flowers and was most fond of pink roses. She volunteered many hours in service to her church. Through all of this, she had a sweet smile and gentle nature punctuated by a determined spirit. This strong spirit kept her going for 98 years; the last 33 she lived alone in her own home.

Our Mom loved to play pinochle and spent wonderful hours at the senior center. She was a very good card player and also most lucky. Mom could always be counted on the have a hand full of aces. Mom finally gave up driving her old blue Chevy Citation when she was 97. Lots of folks around Shoshone would say she drove better than many of her 70-year-old contemporaries.

The family extends a special thanks to James Irwin MD, Alice Trabert PA, and the staff at Family Care Physicians in Jerome for the great care they gave our loving mother over the years.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be sent to Visions Hospice, 201 Shoup Ave., Twin Falls, ID 83301, or the Shoshone Golden Years Senior Center, 218 N. Rail St. W., Shoshone, ID 83352.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Monday, May 24, at The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, 505 N. Greenwood in Shoshone. Burial will follow at the Shoshone Cemetery. Visitation and viewing for family and friends will be from 4 to 6 p.m. Sunday, May 23, at Demaray Funeral Service, Shoshone Chapel, and from 10 to 11 a.m. Monday at the church.

Wallace (Wally) Lee Norris Jr.

Wallace (Wally) Lee Norris Jr., age 49, of Filer, passed away at his home in Filer on Sunday, May 16, 2010, with his loving family by his side.

Wally was born March 4, 1961, in Marysville, Calif. He started his career right out of high school as an electrical engineer at Cactus Petes in Jackpot, Nev., with Marty and Lyle Poole. He later worked with Steve Green and then went back to Cactus Petes.

Wally had lots of friends, one of which, Sandy Greco, he married on Jan. 20, 1995. To this union came a stepson, Michael (Misty) Greco and his children, Brandon and Ashley; and a daughter, Jessica Norris and her daughter, Kilha Fetterly, all of Twin Falls. The first "angel" Wally saw before his passing was his granddaughter, Kilha.

Wally's favorite pastime was hunting, fishing and four-wheeling with his buddies, Ron and Casey Cole. He never met a stranger.

It's not "goodbye"; it's "see ya later, Tool Man."

"Wally, we've had a special bond up until the day you passed away. I will always love you and I will miss you." (Sandy)

Edward G. Uhl, co-inventor of M1 bazooka during WWII, dies at 92

By Frederick Rasmussen
The Baltimore Sun

BALTIMORE — Edward G. Uhl, an aerospace executive who was a former president of Fairchild Industries and co-inventor of the M1 bazooka during World War II, died May 9 of heart failure at an assisted living facility in Easton, Md. He was 92.

Uhl, pronounced "Yule," served as a regular officer in the Army's Ordnance Corps from 1941 until 1946. In 1942, while assigned to Ordnance Corps headquarters at the Pentagon, he helped develop the first U.S. shoulder-launched bazooka, originally named the M1 Rocket Launcher, with Col. Leslie A. Skinner.

"When I met with Skinner, he was working on rockets. We really had no anti-tank weapon. You can't believe how inept our military was at that point in time," Uhl said in a 2007 interview with Maryland Cracker Barrel Magazine.

"Skinner said, 'I'm going to be working on rockets to be located on aircraft, and I want you to take this rocket grenade. I think we can probably make a rocket out of this grenade and have it be an effective weapon, so that's your job,'" Uhl recalled.

"The weapon that I was working on finally developed into what was known as the bazooka."

Uhl faced two immediate problems: How would a soldier aim the weapon and how would the burning powder be kept from coming into contact with his face?

"One day I was walking by this scrap pile, and there was a tube that was 5 feet long and 60 millimeters in diameter, which happened to be the same size as the grenade that we were turning into a rocket," Uhl said in the interview. "I said, 'That's the answer! Put the tube on a soldier's shoulder with the rocket inside and away it goes.'"

During field trials at the Aberdeen Proving Ground in Maryland, the M1 rocket launcher successfully blew the turret off a tank, and its M6 rocket penetrated armor plate that was more than 4 inches thick.

Later during World War II, Uhl joined the staff of Gen. Douglas MacArthur in the Pacific. After resigning his commission in 1946 with the rank of lieutenant colonel, he went to work for the old Glenn L. Martin Co. in Middle River, Md., where he was a member of a team that was directing the company's move into the new field of rockets.

In 1949, he was named head of "pilotless aircraft" — what are now known as guided missiles — and helped design the Viking high-altitude research rocket and the Air Force Matador.

Rising through the ranks, Uhl was named vice president of engineering in 1952 and later became vice president and general manager of Martin's plant in Orlando, Fla. During his years in Orlando, Uhl oversaw the development and manufacture of the LaCrosse, Bullpup and Pershing missiles.

After leaving Martin in 1959, he was general manager and vice president of technical administration for two years at Ryan Aeronautical Co. in San Diego.

In 1961, he was named president of Fairchild Engine and Airplane Corp., later Fairchild Industries Inc., in Hagerstown, Md.

During Uhl's years at Fairchild, one of his great successes was the building of what was called a "close air support aircraft" — later the A-10 Warthog — which featured jet engines rather than turbo props. Beating out the competition, Fairchild got a $40 million contract from the Defense Department to build the new planes. Uhl retired in 1985.

Uhl's survivors include his wife of 44 years, the former Mary Stuart Brugh; two sons; a daughter; two stepsons; four grandchildren; and five step-grandchildren.

Bangkok in flames after army storms protest camp

By Denis D. Gray
Associated Press writer

BANGKOK — Buildings blazed across central Bangkok early Thursday, torched by rioters after army troops routed anti-government protesters to end a two-month siege — Thailand’s deadliest political violence in nearly 20 years.

The government quelled most of the violence in Bangkok but not the underlying political divisions that caused it, and unrest spread to northern parts of Thailand.

Prime Minister Abhisit Vejjajiva imposed a nighttime curfew in the capital and 23 other provinces and said his government would restore calm. Although leaders of the Red Shirt demonstrators surrendered, sporadic clashes between troops and remaining protesters continued well after dark.

Bangkok’s skyline was blotted by black smoke from more than two dozen buildings set ablaze — including Thailand’s stock exchange, main power company, banks, a movie theater and one of Asia’s largest shopping malls.

At least six people were killed in clashes that followed the army’s storming of the protest camp Wednesday. Witnesses said another six to eight bodies were in a temple where hundreds of demonstrators, including women and children, had sought sanctuary.

Since the Red Shirts began their protest in mid-March, at least 74 people — mostly civilians — have been killed and nearly 1,800 wounded. Of those, 45 people have died in clashes that started May 13 after the army tried to blockade their 1-square-mile camp.

While many of the rioters were believed to be members of the Red Shirts and their sympathizers, there was also an element of criminals and young hoodlums involved in the mayhem in the city of 10 million people.

The protest and violence in one of Southeast Asia’s most stable countries has damaged its economy and tourism industry.

With the top Red Shirt leaders in custody, it was unclear what the next move would be for the protesters who had demanded the ouster of the prime minister’s government, the dissolution of parliament and new elections. The protesters, many of them poor farmers or members of the urban underclass, say Abhisit came to power illegitimately and is oblivious to their plight.

The crackdown should silence the large number of government supporters who were urging a harder line, and the rioting that followed may extinguish the widespread sympathy many had for the protesters’ cause.

But that same violence also showed a serious intelligence lapse by the military, and the failure to secure areas of the capital raised doubt over how any unrest in the protesters’ heartland of the north and northeast can be stilled.

Many Thais feel that any short-term peace may have been purchased at the price of further polarization that will lead to years of bitter, cyclical conflict.

“The Reds rampaged and committed to armed resistance,” said Thitinan Pongsudhirak, a political scientist from Bangkok’s Chulalongkorn University. “Right now, they are just burning buildings, but later on, what if they picked up arms to fight the bureaucrats, security forces in other parts of Bangkok, and especially in the countryside? So this is just the beginning. The crackdown didn’t make them retreat fully. Things will get much worse still.”

Thitinan said the government will need to seek a political settlement. “The problem now is that who does the government talk to?” he said.

Some point to former Prime Minister Thaksin Shinawatra, who was ousted in a 2006 military coup and fled into exile before being sentenced to two years in prison for corruption. The government has accused him of bankrolling the protests and refuses to make any deals with him until he comes back to serve his sentence.

The crackdown began soon after dawn Wednesday, as hundreds of troops with M-16s converged on the Red Shirts’ camp, where nearby high-end malls and hotels have been shuttered by the prolonged protest.

Thai soldiers storm the anti-government protesters' camp Wednesday in downtown Bangkok, Thailand.

Thai Red Cross workers remove the body of an anti-government protester who was killed during the military crackdown in Bangkok.

Armored vehicles crashed through barricades of piled tires and bamboo stakes, and soldiers then gradually moved toward the protesters’ hub, opening fire with live ammunition and drawing return fire from militant Red Shirts, according to Associated Press reporters at the scene.

Bullets flew and several grenades exploded near the soldiers, forcing them to pull back briefly before pushing forward.

Among the dead was an Italian photographer. A Canadian freelance reporter was wounded by shrapnel and a reporter for the British newspaper The Independent was shot in the leg. Two other journalists were wounded earlier — one Dutchman and an American documentary filmmaker.

The unrest spread outside Bangkok, with Thai media reporting that protesters set fire to government offices in the city of Udon Thani and vandalized a city building in Khon Kaen. Udon Thani’s governor asked the military to intervene.

TV reports also showed troops retreating after being attacked by mobs in Ubon Ratchathani, and more unrest was reported in the northern city of Chiang Mai, Thailand’s third-largest.

After protest leaders surrendered, their enraged followers scattered to other parts of the city to set fires, and some looting was reported.

One of the most striking images was gray smoke pouring from Bangkok’s landmark CentralWorld shopping mall. One of Southeast Asia’s largest shopping complexes, it measured 5.9 million square feet and its total retail area was 11 million square feet — about twice as big as the giant Mall of America in Minnesota.

Firefighters trying to douse the flames at some of the buildings were forced to retreat for several hours because of gunfire.

Dynamic duo: Bruin doubles tandem takes aim at title

By Mike Christensen
Times-News writer

Andrew Bortz and Daniel Olsen don't exchange many words in the midst of their doubles tennis matches. They don't have to. "We're really good at reading each other, knowing what we're supposed to do on the court," said Olsen. "Most teams you'll hear talking like 'switch' or 'mine.' We hardly ever talk, we just know what the other person's going to do and just go for it," said Bortz. So far, so good. The Twin Falls High School duo hasn't lost a match in 2010, going 17-0 in the regular season and winning three more matches on the way to a District IV championship last week. Now their sights are set on a Class 4A state championship as they head to Boise for play Friday and Saturday. Said Olsen: "If we play well, we've got a really good chance." Friends since Olsen moved to Twin Falls as a sophomore, the two seniors often hang out or double date together. But that's in their spare time after the 15 or more hours a week they spend on the tennis court. "They're just excellent boys," said Twin Falls coach Ann Vogt, "A class act. I can't say enough good things about them." Vogt said the chemistry between Bortz and Olsen is what makes them so tough to beat. "The doubles game is a lot about keeping your partner up and they do that very well," she said. Their athletic abilities are also the perfect complement. Bortz uses his

Twin Falls junior Madi Worst rebounded from knee surgery to qualify for three events at this week's Class 4A state track and field championships.

Worst comes back from knee surgery to qualify for 4A state meet

By Mike Christensen
Times-News writer

Madi Worst knows what it's like to finish first. That made the first few weeks of her comeback from October knee surgery all the more painful. "It made me really sad to watch people I used to beat kill me," said Worst, a junior on Twin Falls High School track team.

On Oct. 15, 2009, Worst severed the ACL in her left knee and tore her meniscus as the Bruins battled Wood River for the Great Basin Conference girls soccer championship. Six days later, she endured 5 1/2 hours of surgery to repair the damage. It wasn't until March that she returned to the track, but the speed and form she used to help the Bruins win Class 5A gold in the 4x100 and 4x200 relays last year didn't come back with her. "It didn't go well early," said Twin Falls track coach Marty Grindstaff. "She'd get done with her races, look at her time and cry. It was really tough on her to remember what she ran like last year." Worst also medaled in both hurdles events at the state meet in 2009 after medaling in the 300 hurdles as a freshman. Doctors nixed the hurdles for this season, so Worst focused on the sprints, where she found her times lagging by 2 or 3 seconds compared to last year. Jerry Kleinkopf, who began coaching track at Twin Falls in 1952 and coached Madi's father Tug Worst in the mid 1980s, took

Lakers hold off Suns, take 2-game West finals lead

By Greg Beacham
Associated Press writer

LOS ANGELES — The Los Angeles Lakers are halfway to another NBA finals, and their fans already know who they want their dominant defending champions to play next. Pau Gasol scored 14 of his 29 points in the fourth quarter, Kobe Bryant had 21 points and 13 assists, and the Lakers roared away in the final minutes for a 124-112 victory over the Phoenix Suns on Wednesday night to claim a 2-0 lead in the Western Conference finals. Ron Artest scored 18 points for the Lakers, who won their eighth straight playoff game and moved within striking distance of a tantalizing NBA finals showdown with the Boston Celtics, who lead Orlando 2-0 in the East. For the second straight game, the chants rained down from the Staples Center crowd in the final minutes: "We want Boston!" The Lakers remained unbeaten at home in the postseason despite a much-improved effort from the Suns, who lost the opener by 21 points. Phoenix tied it at 90-all heading to the final period of Game 2, but Gasol and Bryant flawlessly led the Lakers to another high-scoring victory. "We've been able to play both styles of basketball," Lakers coach Phil Jackson said. "We like to control the pace, but we feel comfortable if it's an accelerated pace." The Lakers certainly seem to be accelerating the Suns' exit from the playoffs after hitting better than 57 percent of their shots and scoring a jaw-dropping 252 points in the first two games. Game 3 is Sunday night in Phoenix. But unless the Suns figure out a way to stop Los Angeles' versatile, poised offense, Beantown and Hollywood could be just a few days away from another chapter in their storied rivalry. "We can't slow them down," Phoenix coach Alvin Gentry said. "I thought we played well offensively, but every time we tried to make an adjustment to slow them down offensively, they would go somewhere else. There's a good reason they're the world champs, but we'll keep plugging away, keep trying." The Lakers have lost only one best-of-seven playoff series in franchise history after taking a 2-0 lead, winning the other 41. The 15-time champions haven't won eight straight games in the same postseason since their famous one-loss run through the 2001 playoffs.

4A Boys

Karl Lundgren, Twin Falls

Twin Falls miler Erik Harris is seeded first in the event, and by matching his district meet time would break the Class 4A state meet record. Harris also anchors the Bruins' medley relay, which could claim gold. On the strength of Tyler Brown (100 and 200 meters), Cade Owen (110 and 300 hurdles) and Coltin Johnson (high, long and triple jumps), Minico's boys look set to pose the biggest District IV threat in the team standings. The Spartans are strong in the 4x200 and 4x400 relays, which should aid their quest for points. Jerome was second at districts and has the depth to score points as well.

4A Girls

Marlee Chandler, Minico

After coming out of nowhere at the district tournament, Minico's Linsey Bair is seeded second in the discus and hopes to perform well at the shot put as well. After sweeping the sprints at districts, Twin Falls' Brooke Wagner looks for a big week in Boise and is seeded second in the 100, 200 and 400 meters. The Bruins' 4x400 relay team could also be in line for a state record, while Cheltzie Williams (high jump, triple jump) and Amanda Ward (1,600 and 3,200) should score points. Jerome dominated the district meet, but whether sheer numbers will translate to a state championship is another story.

Wolverines, Cutthroats aim for titles

Times-News

The Wood River tennis team heads to the Class 4A state tournament looking to better fourth-place finishes by its boys and girls a year ago.

The Wolverines' district champions include Karl Wilander in boys singles, Ellen Davis in girls singles, Jessica Hamilton and Morgan Pike in mixed doubles and Lauren and Margaret Ruetter in girls doubles. With the most participants of any District IV school, Wood River should be in position to pile up team points.

Twin Falls takes seven players to state, including boys doubles district champions Andrew Bortz and Daniel Olsen. The 4A meet will be played at three locations in Boise, including Timberline High School, Julia Davis Park and the Appleton Tennis Complex at Boise State University.

The Community School dominated the Class 3A district meet and will send 17 players to the state meet Friday and Saturday in Caldwell.

The Cutthroat boys and girls each finished second at state in 2009, with the girls missing out on a state title by 0.5 points.

The Community School's swept all five district championships, with winners including Hunter Weaver (boys singles), Jamie Jameson and Tanner Flanigan (boys doubles), Julianna Lamb (girls singles), Morgan Atkinson and Gabi Perinchio (girls doubles) and Melissa Becker and Torin Tucker (mixed doubles).

Class 3A play will take place at Vallivue and Caldwell high schools.

Mike McHan, Gooding 3A boys

Austin Basterrechea of Gooding is seeded highly in his three events and looks to reprise his longstanding high-jump duel with Wendell's Nathan Ormond. Kimberly is the defending team champion and qualified a bunch of athletes, but there is concern as to whether the Bulldogs have the horses to repeat.

3A girls

Buhl thrower Whitney Amoth is seeded first in the shot put and discus and, more importantly, is throwing consistently at her best at the right time. Elsewhere, Kimberly junior Kaitlin Keller tries to reclaim the triple jump title she won as a freshman. Buhl's girls will be in the mix to defend their team championship.

2A boys

State championship contenders are few and far between, but Declo's Justin Jenkins (high jump) and Calum Webb (long jump) are among the best bets.

2A girls

Glens Ferry's Rebecca Woody takes to the track for three events, while Declo's Sierra Zollinger (high jump) appears to be the district's best chance for an individual winner. None of the three teams is expected to make a serious push for a team trophy.

Braden Ottley, Raft River 1A boys

The high-hurdle event could turn into a District IV extravaganza, as the district has the top three seeds in Oakley teammates Weston Cooper and Jonathan Hale, and Murtaugh's Humberto Pacheco. Raft River and Oakley figure to be among those making noise in a wide-open team title race.

1A girls

Camas County sophomore Katelyn Peterson is seeded no worse than fourth in any of her four events, and is in the top two in three of them. Raft River looks like the best bet to trophy out of District IV, and if results break the Trojans' way a defense of their state title could be in the cards.

Worst

her under his wing. Slowly, day-by-day, they made progress at the track complex that bears Kleinkopf's name.

Limited to walking and jogging at first, Worst battled swelling in her knee. She also felt weak with a leaner frame following the surgery.

But the disappointments of March gave way to elation in May when Worst qualified for the Class 4A state meet in three events.

"It was amazing," she said of qualifying in the 100 and 200 meters and the 4x100 relay.

Kleinkopf said he's "surprised and delighted" to see Worst going to state.

He had planned to have Worst help set up and run the state meet, where he serves as referee. Now she'll be too busy competing.

"She just wouldn't give up," Kleinkopf said from Boise. "She probably won't win anything (at state) and I think she's aware of that. But the fact that she made it here is the real accomplishment."

In the last week alone, Worst shaved two seconds off her time in the 200 and took a second off her 100 clocking. But she knows she's not all the way back.

"It doesn't look like the finals or a medal are in sight, but I didn't think I was going to make it to finals in regionals either, so I guess anything's possible," said Worst.

Each year, Kleinkopf thinks he's in his last year of coaching. And "then somebody like Madi comes along."

The feeling is mutual.

"He's been amazing. He's taken care of me this whole time," Worst said of Kleinkopf. "When I'm sad, he makes me feel better. He's making sure I'm getting coached even though I'm not at the top level anymore. ... This year he's really showed me that he doesn't just care about what I can do, he cares about me as a person."

Her father has played a big role as well, helping her improve her starts.

Duo

height at the net, while Olsen backs him up with speed. Bortz is right-handed, while Olsen is a lefty.

"Once they figure out his lefty spin, then I spin it the next way for the next service game," said Bortz. "Just being really diverse throws people off."

Olsen and Bortz both played singles last year, with Olsen advancing to state. He went 0-2 as a No. 4 seed, but expects more favorable results with the duo's top seeding this year.

They nearly tasted defeat against Burley in their second match of the season, surviving numerous match points before rallying for the win.

Since then, they've been dominant. But with few area doubles teams capable of pushing them, the talented pair often practices by playing singles against each other. It's all in the name of claiming a pre-graduation prize: a state championship.

Both Bortz and Olsen hope to play tennis beyond high school.

Olsen plans to serve an LDS mission after he turns 19 next February, but hopes to attend Brigham Young University, possibly walking on to the tennis team.

Bortz plans to double or triple major at Whitworth University in Spokane, Wash. While he'll be busy pursuing degrees in music composition and music performance, Bortz hopes to find time to play with the Whitworth tennis team, at least in home matches.

The friends share a talent and love for music — Bortz plays a laundry list of instruments including the piano, violin, French horn and tuba — and on Saturday night in Boise they may just be performing "We Are the Champions."

Inside-the-park home run, triple play not enough for Mets

WASHINGTON — Angel Pagan hit an inside-the-park home run and started a triple play Wednesday night, but that wasn't enough for the New York Mets in a 5-3 loss to the Washington Nationals.

Pagan became the first player in 55 years to take part in both feats in the same game.

Pinch-hitter Adam Kennedy's sacrifice fly broke a 2-all tie in the seventh.

Rookie Drew Storen (1-0) got two outs for his first major league victory. Matt Capps closed for his major league-leading 15th save.

Phillies shortstop Ted Kazanski was the last player to do both, on Sept. 25, 1955, for Philadelphia against the New York Giants, the Elias Sports Bureau said. That was also the last time a team pulled a triple play and hit an inside-the-parker in the same game, Elias said.

MARLINS 5, CARDINALS 1

ST. LOUIS — Hanley Ramirez returned to the Marlins' lineup with three hits and Anibal Sanchez threw seven impressive innings in a victory over the Cardinals.

Ramirez was yanked from Monday's game for loafing and benched Tuesday after criticizing manager Fredi Gonzalez and teammates. The two-time All-Star apologized individually to the Marlins before the game.

CUBS 4, PHILLIES 1

PHILADELPHIA — Tom Gorzelanny threw 6 2-3 shutout innings and Starlin Castro and Jeff Baker had RBI singles to lead the Cubs to their fourth straight win with a victory over the Phillies.

PIRATES 6, BREWERS 4

PITTSBURGH — Ryan Doumit drove in the go-ahead run and Steve Pearce added his third hit during Pittsburgh's three-run seventh inning, and the Pirates ran the Brewers' losing streak to nine.

New York Mets second baseman Luis Castillo (1) throws to first over a sliding Josh Willingham of the Washington Nationals to complete a double play Wednesday in Washington.

BRAVES 5, REDS 4

ATLANTA — Jason Heyward hit an RBI double with two outs in the ninth inning, giving the Braves their answer to another Cincinnati comeback. Heyward doubled twice and also hit his first major league triple.

ASTROS 7, ROCKIES 3

HOUSTON — Cory Sullivan hit a go-ahead single in the eighth inning, Jeff Keppinger drove in a career-high four runs and the Astros snapped a five-game losing streak with a win over the Rockies.

AMERICAN LEAGUE RANGERS 4, ORIOLES 3

ARLINGTON, Texas — Nelson Cruz hit a sacrifice fly in the bottom of the ninth inning to end a game in which Josh Hamilton hit a ball over the fence that wasn't a home run.

Hamilton homered in the second, then led off the fourth with an opposite-field shot that clearly sailed over the 14-foot fence in left and ricocheted back into play. The umpires didn't come together to discuss it and didn't go to a replay, leaving Hamilton with a double.

RED SOX 3, TWINS 2

BOSTON — Clay Buchholz gave Boston's struggling rotation a lift and David Ortiz hit a two-run homer for the Red Sox.

Buchholz (5-3) allowed two runs and five hits in eight-plus innings five days after giving up one run and three hits in 6 1-3 innings in a 7-2 win at Detroit. In between, four other Boston starters allowed at least four runs in their outings.

RAVS 10, YANKEES 6

NEW YORK — Jason Bartlett hit a leadoff homer for Tampa Bay in the opener of a two-game series between baseball's top two teams.

ROYALS 8, INDIANS 4

CLEVELAND — Yuniesky Betancourt hit a three-run double off closer Kerry Wood in Kansas City's five-run ninth inning.

ANGELS 3, WHITE SOX 2

CHICAGO — Torii Hunter hit a two-run homer and Joe Saunders pitched 7 2-3 strong innings to lead Los Angeles.

Jets first-round pick Wilson quiet — for now

NEW YORK — Kyle Wilson is keeping his mouth shut — for now — and trying to quickly learn the New York Jets' defense.

Known as a chatty presence on the field during his time in college at Boise State, the Jets' first-round draft pick realizes he has lots to work on before he can show his swagger.

"There's time for that," the rookie cornerback told The Associated Press. "It's all still a learning experience and I'm trying to get my feet wet, but it's been pretty good so far."

Wilson appeared with several teammates at a charity event in East Hanover, N.J., on Tuesday night, serving as waiters for fans to raise money for wide receiver David Clowney's trip to Ghana in July to help needy children.

"This was a cool thing to be a part of," Wilson said, "and be with all the guys and be a part of something like this."

The Jets drafted Wilson with the hope he would be part of something big on the field for a defense that already ranked No. 1 against the pass last season. Coach Rex Ryan has said the plan is to have Wilson start out as the team's nickel back, and he'll likely mix in with Darrelle Revis, Antonio Cromartie and Dwight Lowery in the secondary at cornerback.

Wilson, from nearby Piscataway, N.J., got on the field with his new teammates for the first time Monday and Tuesday for the team's first organized team activities of the offseason.

"I'm just working on getting better at my technique," Wilson said. "I'm learning what I need to do, trying to soak everything up and get to know things like the back of my hand. You need to set a foundation first."

NFL UNION CHIEF WOOING EX-PLAYERS FOR CBA FIGHT

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — DeMaurice Smith has a difficult fight ahead with owners on a new labor deal, and the NFL Players Association chief wants to stack his side with as many supporters as he can find.

Retired players, especially.

Hoping to win them over before the NFL owners can, the union's executive director spent much of his speech at the Charlotte Touchdown Club luncheon on Wednesday wooing the handful of ex-players sprinkled in the crowd of mostly business executives.

REDSKIN PLAYERS 'WONDER WHO IT IS' IN DRUG CASE

ASHBURN, Va. — With the Washington Redskins caught up in a serious case involving banned substances and a Canadian doctor facing criminal charges, Phillip Daniels tried to break the tension with a bit of humor.

"I've been telling everybody it's me," the veteran defensive end said. "Just joking around. But guys talk about it in the locker room, and they wonder who it is."

Not everybody knew the details about the charges levied Tuesday against Dr. Anthony Galea of Toronto, but most were aware of one key fact: According to an affidavit, Galea's assistant said a professional football player from Washington called to request a session with Galea at a Washington-area hotel last September.

SEAHAWKS SIGN FORMER BILLS QB LOSMAN

RENTON, Wash. — The Seahawks have signed former Buffalo Bills starting quarterback J.P. Losman and waived third-string quarterback Mike Teel.

The 29-year-old Losman threw one pass for Oakland last season after five years with the Bills, plus time in the United Football League. He will back up Matt Hasselbeck and Charlie Whitehurst in Seattle.

RECALL BALLOT
FILER SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 413
TWIN FALLS COUNTY, IDAHO
TRUSTEE ZONE 2

Recall Statement

- 1) She continually tries to undermine the authority of the school administrators and personnel.
- 2) She has not supported most of the special programs or educational opportunities that have been proposed to the board.
- 3) She is in direct conflict with herself by voicing her support of certain things, then taking the opposite stance with her negative vote.
- 4) She always brings in the negative aspect when discussing any topic during meetings.
- 5) She initiated the animosity toward the new school building and appears to be leading a crusade to stop/delay construction of the new school project, costing the school district more money, and is doing this for her own personal gain.
- 6) She doesn't have the ability to focus on the main points of the topic of discussion and translate it into terms of how this will benefit the quality of education being offered in the Filer School District - as of yet, I have not heard her approve of anything for the benefit of the students.

Trustee's Response

- 1) Filer School Trustees act as legislative/judicial authorities of the School District. The Trustees empower the superintendent, as their agent, in executive, supervisory, and instructional decisions. The superintendent, only, has authority over district personnel. Trustee Smith has no direct authority over district personnel. Her Trustee authority is set by Idaho Statutes.
- 2) Trustee Smith supports all district programs including Special Services. Her support is documented in board minutes.
- 3) Trustee Smith is an informed decision-maker adapting as relevant information becomes known. Questioning, reasoning directs her problem-solving. Blanket approval of all requests does not benefit anyone.
- 4) Trustee Smith responded to Zone 2 Patrons living across from Intermediate School, listening to concerns, informing administrative staff, and Trustees. Trustees, by majority vote, worked with W. 6th Street Patrons to achieve productive outcomes.

Trustee Smith didn't attempt to close the Intermediate School. No construction time was lost, district lost no money, and the Trustees, by majority vote, responded affirmatively to W. 6th Street Patrons.

Trustee Smith cannot receive money or benefit personally.

- 5) Trustee Smith works to support all of Filer Students. Proudest support act, paying student's PSAT fee to open future opportunities.

Recommended Filer School District Complaint/Grievance Policy was not followed in Trustee Smith's recall attempt.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"The end of man is an action and not a thought, though it were the noblest."
— Thomas Carlyle

A piece of advice that recurs in bridge columns is that if you reach a contract that you can see is excellent, you should go out of your way to consider what might go wrong, then protect yourself against that eventuality.
Today's deal (surprise!) provides one such example. You play in six hearts on a diamond lead, which you win. You test trumps, protecting yourself against East's having the length by leading to the heart king, but they break 2-2. Then you lead out your three top spades, discarding your diamond loser, and note that East turns up with six spades while West has only two. You ruff the last diamond to hand and now know that West is the only defender who can hold long clubs. If the suit is 3-2, you are home, of course, but what if the suit is 4-1?

You should lead a low club from hand and duck West's card — a line that will ensure your slam unless West holds Q-J-10-8, in which case you were doomed anyway. If West plays his low club, then East must win the first club and give you a ruff and discard. If West plays a high club on the first round, then he can do no better than exit with a high club. You win in hand and are left with the 9-7 of clubs with the K-5 on the board and can finesse West out of his remaining honor.

Today is Thursday, May 20, the 140th day of 2010. There are 225 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On May 20, 1961, a white mob attacked a busload of Freedom Riders in Montgomery, Ala., prompting the federal government to send in U.S. marshals to restore order.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1506, explorer Christopher Columbus died in Spain.

In 1861, North Carolina voted to secede from the Union.

In 1902, the United States ended a three-year military presence in Cuba as the Republic of Cuba was established under its first elected president, Tomas Estrada Palma.

In 1927, Charles Lindbergh took off from Roosevelt Field in Long Island, N.Y., aboard the Spirit of St. Louis on his historic solo flight to France.

In 1932, Amelia Earhart took off from Newfoundland to become the first woman to fly solo across the Atlantic. (Because of weather and equipment problems, Earhart set down in Northern Ireland instead of her intended destination, France.)

In 1939, regular trans-Atlantic mail service began as a Pan American Airways plane, the Yankee Clipper, took off from Port Washington, N.Y., bound for Marseille, France.

In 1959, nearly 5,000 Japanese-Americans had their citizenship restored after renouncing it during World War II.

In 1969, U.S. and South Vietnamese forces captured Ap Bia Mountain, referred to as "Hamburger Hill" by the Americans, following one of the bloodiest battles of the Vietnam War.

In 1970, some 100,000 people demonstrated in New York's Wall Street district in support of U.S. policy in Vietnam and Cambodia.

DEAR ABBY: I can empathize with "Deeply Hurt in Arizona" (March 16), who travels back to her hometown to see her large extended family and struggles to make time for her longtime friend "Judith," who nonetheless feels slighted.

My husband and I grew up in the Northeast but now live out of state. We have flown hundreds of miles with our children to visit our families back there. Once we arrived, it seemed we were expected to continue traveling from town to town to do all the visiting. It became very stressful.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

These people made little effort to visit us in our state or even come to our "base" while we were in their area. While "Hurt" visits her elderly parents, Judith appears to be sitting around waiting for her and making little effort. Why doesn't Judith go to the parents' home? Or, better yet, have a girls' weekend in Arizona or somewhere in between?

We have gotten past our irritation with family and friends and do two things: 1. We tell people in advance when we're coming so they can make plans. Groups — especially friends — can double up, and see us and see each other. 2. We use our time the way we want and not the way we feel we are obligated to.

"Hurt" should urge Judith to try to come to her. The road goes both ways.

— WORKED IT OUT IN ALPHARETTA, GA.

DEAR WORKED IT OUT: Thank you for writing. The scenario in "Hurt's" letter hit a nerve with a number of readers. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: When my kids visit from out of state, I have an open house so the family can come to one place and spend time with them. This gives my kids more time to visit with me and any special friends they may want to see. It also lessens the guilt of not being able to see everyone. This has worked well for us, and now the family expects me to do it every time the kids come back.

— DIANA IN OHIO

DEAR ABBY: I agree that Judith is selfish and immature. I have friends all over the U.S., and when they come to visit, I understand that most of their time will be spent with family.

Judith needs to grow up and realize that not everything revolves around her. Instead of complaining about the lack of time "Hurt" has for her, Judith should make the most of the time she does get to spend.

— SHELLIE IN INDIANA

DEAR ABBY: There may be a crisis in Judith's life that she is displacing onto "Hurt." When the emotions around that crisis calm, she will need her old friend. Is there anyone in town who could find out what is going on?

I knew a woman who cut everyone out of her life in a rage after the betrayal of an assault by a loved one. Another person did the same thing after a cancer diagnosis. Once the shock faded and they began to deal with their issues, they confided in their old friends about what was really happening and were able to reconnect.

IN CENTERVILLE, OHIO

DEAR ABBY: Our family moved two hours away to make a better life for our kids. With a newborn in tow, we spent the entire first summer traveling home to visit family and friends.

My best friend came to see us once in the first year after our move. Recently she told me that because I moved away, we no longer have anything in common and that "maybe we would cross paths again — someday."

It hit me like a ton of bricks, but I have chosen to move on. If our paths were meant to cross again, they would not have split in the first place.

IF MAY 20 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Your focus and ambitions may undergo a subtle shift between now and mid-July. Because you will be laboring to prove your worth in the outer world, you might not be in the mood for a fun-filled vacation or a romantic fling until August. Let your imagination go wild, and in September you may receive a chance to fulfill your dreams. In September or early October you might be offered an opportunity to do something — it might be a job, a learning experience or a trip — that will somehow improve your overall well being and the direction of your life. That is a very good time to ask for favors or solid advice.

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You don't need to pretend to be someone you aren't. Some performers merely mouth the words of others and give their thoughts form. If you want others to listen to you then try to think for yourself today.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Accept the homage you deserve. When you are the king or queen of your castle you will find plenty of willing subjects on hand to wait on you, hand and foot. Enjoy being in charge of family fun.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Happiness is a warm puppy with a wagging tail. You can play like a kid or bring a stray home to be petted and nurtured. You might get a chance to buy something that reflects popular tastes as well as your wallet.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): People love you when they know they can trust you. It isn't enough to be beautiful, charming and attractive. You need to show the ones you love that you are true blue under all circumstances.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Put away the smoke and mirrors. You do not need to hide your intentions or your desires. Be earnest and sincere with others and you will be surprised at how quickly you can earn trust and attention.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You could become the plaything of popularity. Whatever you purchase should be something that gets rave reviews or sits at the top of the hit parade. A friend might prove to be committed to your success.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A gamble might pay off. A significant other could egg you on and encourage you to have faith in yourself. A developing seductive scenario with a special someone can get publicity and boost your reputation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Play Dr. Do Something. While you can't guarantee a cure, you might calm a situation or make someone more comfortable. A spoonful of sugar helps the medicine go down in a most delightful way.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Count your blessings. When everyone is in a positive mood, it is easy to extract promises and assurances or make a quick sale. You can make commitments knowing there is a long future ahead.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Optimism always makes fears and worries flee the scene. Delegate your bean-counting attitudes to the task of balancing the checkbook and be an enthusiastic supporter of your companion or mate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Act the part. If you dream of being the star of your local universe, then study for the role and roll out the wardrobe and props. This might be a good time to pick purchases that suit your ideals.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Love them but don't leave them. You might yearn for closer intimacy with someone and this might be the right time to prove just how committed you are to having a permanent relationship.
