That Palin touch

ASHLEY SMITH/Times-News
Sarah Palin greets people at the Qwest Arena in Boise on Friday after making a campaign speech for Vaughn Ward, a candidate for the Republican nomination for Idaho's District 1 seat in the U.S. House of Representatives.

Sarah Palin visits Boise to help U.S. House hopeful Vaughn Ward in Idaho primary

By Jessie L. Bonner
Associated Press writer

BOISE — Former Alaska Gov. Sarah Palin called Republican congressional hopeful Vaughn Ward one of the most promising new voices in the conservative movement, saying veterans like him bring a unique perspective to public office.

Palin also lashed out at the media and critics that have tried to characterize Ward as an opportunist with little political experience, during her stop in Idaho on Friday to energize voters and raise money for Ward's campaign.

Ward was born in Idaho and attended Boise State University, but he has been criticized by his opponent for being away from the state for 15 years and returning with ambitions to run for public office.

A Marine reservist who served in Iraq, Ward is a first-time candidate for office in Idaho. He and his wife have rented a home in Eagle since 2008, when he served as Nevada director for Sen. John McCain's presidential campaign.

"He represents four generations of Idaho, so it's kind of cracked me up to see some of the criticism," Palin said. "You know those false charges of, 'Oh, you've got a carpet-bagger here!'"

Palin, who was McCain's running mate in 2008, touted Ward's service in the military and told the crowd: "Vaughn will fight for you in Congress just as honorably as he fought for you in uniform!"

Sprawling solar farm proposed in Jerome Co.

By Joshua Palmer
Times-News writer

South-central Idaho may soon commercially produce all five forms of renewable energy, after developers announced plans on Friday to build a sprawling solar farm in Jerome County.

Mid Point Energy, a Jerome-based LLC founded by Steve and Mary Marshall and outgoing Twin Falls County Commissioner Tom Mikesell, will ask the Jerome County Planning & Zoning Commission on Monday to approve a special use permit to build a solar panel farm south of Shoshone.

The company hopes to construct 150,000 solar panels on 405 acres near a swath of land that was previously a proposed site for the Semptra coal-fired power plant. The property is owned by Steve and Mary Marshall of Jerome.

"This new renewable energy solar project in Jerome will be the first commercial producing solar facility in southern Idaho," Mikesell said. "The Marshalls, as well as myself, believe that expanding southern Idaho's renewable energy sources with a Jerome solar plant will be an economic boost to this region."

Elgee, Werth vie for 5th District judgeship

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

They both want to be judge, but first you may judge them on May 25.

Judge Robert Elgee is campaigning to keep his job based in Blaine County as the 5th District Court judge, in a heated race against Doug Werth, a lawyer with a private practice in Hailey. Elgee highlights his 18 years of judicial experience as a reason why voters should choose him and questions what kind of judge Werth would be.

Doug Werth: www.doug-werth.com

Werth, an Idaho attorney of 25 years, says it's time for a change and calls himself independent, honest and fair. Both are campaigning with quarter-page ads critiquing each other as primary election day nears. Werth's campaign claims that Elgee is wrong 70 percent of the time — with the Idaho Supreme Court reversing or finding that Elgee erroneously applied the law in seven of his last 10 cases reviewed.

Elgee says that Werth has "widely distorted" Elgee's appeal record. Over six years, out of all his cases that have been appealed to the Idaho Supreme Court and the Idaho Court of Appeals, Elgee said that two-thirds of them have been affirmed.

"I think that I have a judicial philosophy that better reflects the 5th Judicial District," said Werth. "I will be a strong judge that will follow the law, not make the law!"

Werth said he believes a judge should be independent and told the Times-News Friday that he has decided not to seek endorsements in the election.

Elgee said endorsements show support for the job he has done, and points to numerous lawyers in the area, including a group of female attorneys, who have shown him support.

"If I was doing something wrong they would not endorse my campaign," Elgee said.

Though he doesn't share a list of endorsements like Elgee does on his campaign Web site, Werth has support from Twin Falls County Prosecutor Grant Loebbs. Loebbs in recent years has disqualified Elgee as an alternate judge on his cases when one is needed.

If approved it would also complete the "full-house" of renewable energy — namely, hydroelectric, wind, biomass, geothermal and solar.

Regional economic development officials say energy production using all five methods would be a first for Idaho.

"We're going to be the only region in the state and probably the nation that can make that claim," said Jan Rogers, executive director of the Southern Idaho Economic Development Organization, or SIEDO. "That's a big thing because it can help us attract other renewable energy producers and manufacturers."

She said SIEDO is in discussions with other renewable energy companies, including a manufacturer of parts for wind turbines. She did not provide further details, citing confidentiality agreements with the businesses.

Mikesell said Mid Point's facility will have the potential to produce up to 75 megawatts, which Idaho Power officials say is enough to power 45,000 homes. Mid Point is working with Boise-based Edgewood Green Technologies to develop the project.

The site of the proposed solar farm is located near Idaho Power's Mid Point substation, which the solar farm plans to use to connect to the power grid. Mid Point Energy plans to submit a connection request to Idaho Power after it receives approval for a special use permit. The next step would be for Idaho Power and Mid Point to determine the cost of connecting the project to the grid.

Dan Olmstead, public relations coordinator for Idaho Power, said Mid Point is one of five developers in Idaho that plans to sell solar energy to Idaho Power.

He added that solar energy is largely uncharted territory in Idaho.

"We certainly are encouraging renewable energy," Olmstead said. "But we have never worked with a solar project this size, so it is too soon to say what will happen. We will all be learning as we go — both the developers and Idaho Power."

He said Idaho Power typically sees demand peak during the summer months, which is generally when solar provides its maximum output.

Joshua Palmer may be reached at jpalm@magicvalley.com or 735-3231.

Judge

"My office doesn't utilize Judge Elgee at all," Loeb said Friday, declining to offer specific reasons why, but said numerous past disqualifications were not just about one case.

Elgee said he no longer faces a similar string of disqualifications from Blaine County Prosecutor Jim Thomas.

Elgee has been removed from the alternate judge list in Twin Falls, though he still handles older cases he had been assigned in Twin Falls, he said.

Werth was a prosecuting attorney in Blaine County, and has been in private practice since 2000, he said. A deputy prosecutor from his office, K. Jill Bolton, sued him and Blaine County in June of 2000 asserting sexual discrimination issues and retaliatory treatment.

Attorney Cynthia Woolley represented Bolton in the case and said a confidential settlement was reached in 2001, but would not elaborate this week when asked by the Times-News.

Werth said the suit was dismissed and he would not disclose the settlement Friday, nor would Elgee give any comments about that case.

Werth said the allegations in the complaint "were never proven" and added that he has "never discriminated against women."

The position both men seek is paid $112,043 annually.

Sarah Palin greets people before giving a campaign speech for Vaughn Ward, Friday at Qwest Arena in Boise.

ASHLEY SMITH/
Times-News

Palin

Her visit, which drew about 1,500 to the 5,000-seat Qwest Arena, comes just five days before Tuesday's primary and Ward's showdown with rival state Rep. Raul Labrador for the GOP nomination for Idaho's 1st Congressional District.

Palin endorsed Ward's campaign in March on her Facebook page, but bringing her to Idaho for a rally so close to Tuesday's contest appears to be an attempt to put him over the primary hump.

"It can't hurt," said Lewis Work, a 73-year-old forester from Eagle who attended the rally with his wife as Ward supporters. "I take it as a badge of honor when the media bad mouths him; that's a good thing."

Palin was not paid for her visit, which the campaign has been planning since her endorsement in March, said Ward spokesman Mike Tracy. Her appearance could have a big influence next week and beyond for Ward's cash-strapped campaign, which has been tripped up in the past month by a series of missteps reported in Idaho media.

The Ward campaign made its latest flub last week when it was reported that position statements on his website appeared to have been cut and pasted from other GOP candidates' websites and writings. Before that, Ward suffered a rebuke from the Pentagon over an online campaign ad and mailer showing him decked out in camouflage and body armor.

Ward also came under criticism for his admission that although he worked on the McCain-Palin presidential campaign two years ago, he did not vote in the 2008 general election.

To coincide with Palin's visit, Ada County Democrats created the "I Didn't Vote For Sarah Palin, Either" page on Facebook. The page, which had more than 530 online friends Friday, says: "Vaughn Ward didn't vote for Sarah Palin in 2008, but she's coming to Boise to support him. What's up with that?"

The winner of Tuesday's primary will take on first-term Democrat Walt Minnick, who doesn't have a primary challenger and continues to rake in campaign donations.

Minnick raised more than $117,000 between April 1 and May 5, reporting more than $935,000 in cash on hand. Ward brought in more than $55,000 during the same period, giving him $125,700 cash on hand.

Register by Monday for Fossil Days parade

Times-News

Instead of waiting until the morning of the Fossil Days parade, event organizers hope that requiring parade entries to pre-register will relieve some of the chaos.

The Hagerman Fossil Days parade is May 29. The registration deadline is Monday.

"We've always had people fill out cards that were taken to the parade announcer but many times what was on the card didn't match up with float going by," said parade Chairwoman Monique Salazar.

Salazar called many other cities to find out how they organized their parades and found out many require registration information beforehand.

"We're hoping to better represent the people who take the time to be a part of our parade," Salazar said. "I'm sure many people have been a part but never returned because of the chaos."

People will still be allowed into the parade if they haven't pre-registered but their float won't be announced. Like always, entering the parade is free.

To register call the Hagerman Valley Chamber of Commerce, 837-4733.

Candidates in Gooding, Lincoln counties report modest campaign contributions

Times-News

Gooding County and Lincoln County candidates running for public office in Tuesday's primaries reported modest campaign contributions.

The pre-primary reports, required of all county and state candidates, cover the period between Jan. 1 and May 9. Candidates filed for county office from March 8 to 19; all of whom in both counties' contested races are Republicans.

Lincoln County incumbent Commissioner Jerry Nance and Assessor Linda Jones led the contribution race among the 10 candidates on the Republican primary ballot.

Nance, who faces GOP challengers Carol Boudreau and Gary Russell, reported both contributions and expenditures of $1,068.62.

Boudreau reported equal contributions and expenditures of $441.28, while Russell reported no campaign contributions or expenditures.

Jones, who faces Brian Cheney in her bid to keep her assessor post, raised $1,173.64, the most of any Lincoln County candidate. She reported expenditures equal to her contributions. Cheney reported contributions of $370, expenditures of $350, and a cash balance of $20.

Clerk hopeful Suzanne McConnell outpaced incumbent Liz Kime in contributions, receiving $325, while Kime reported no contributions. McConnell reported expenditures of $301.53 and an ending cash balance of $23.47. Kime reported expenditures of $78.85 and an equal negative cash balance. It's unclear from the report where that money came from.

Uncontested treasurer Cathy Gilbert reported no contributions or expenditures, while the Times-News didn't receive reports from the county for unopposed incumbent Commissioner Marsha Hiatt or Coroner Keith Davis.

Gooding County features only one contested race in Tuesday's Republican primary, as incumbent Assessor Patty Bauscher faces challenger Mary Norman.

Bauscher reported both contributions and expenditures of $825.91, with most of that money going to campaign promotions.

Norman reported no contributions but expenditures of $854.95, most of which went to campaign advertising. It's unclear from the report where that money came from.

Unopposed Clerk Denise Gill, Treasurer Christina Wines, and commissioners Tom Faulkner and Terrell Williams each reported zero contributions or expenses.

Magic Valley needs Coiner in the state Senate

There are many reasons why we're supporting Twin Falls Republican Chuck Coiner for re-election to a fourth term in the Idaho Senate, but one is more urgent than the others:

Water. The future of the Comprehensive Aquifer Management Plan, the long-term deal for sharing the resources and maintaining the health of the Lake Erie-sized Eastern Snake River Plain Aquifer, is in question. The parties involved have signed off on a funding mechanism, but so far the state's pledged contribution hasn't materialized.

That's a problem, because some stakeholders are growing nervous about their previous commitments, wondering if they'll be required to pay for more than their fair share.

CAMP is a complex, delicately balanced agreement among parties who share mutual suspicions. It wouldn't take many of the major stakeholders pulling out to wreck the whole process.

What's that got to do with Coiner? Plenty.

The former Twin Falls Canal Company board member is a trusted representative of one of the critical partners in CAMP. He's also one of perhaps a half-dozen legislators — state Reps. Dell Raybould, R-Rexburg; Bert Stevenson, R-Rupert, and Jim Patrick, R-Twin Falls, are some of the others — with the professional standing and political skills to keep the CAMP process going.

If Coiner is defeated in Tuesday's primary, there will be surface-water users wondering if they still have a stake in CAMP.

CAMP's failure would mean simply this: The courts, not the parties involved, will decide who gets the water from the aquifer. We don't want to go down that road, do you?

Twin Falls Vice Mayor Lee Heider, Coiner's primary opponent, is a capable man with a bright future in south-central Idaho politics. But the clock is ticking on CAMP. There simply isn't enough time for him to learn what Coiner already knows about water.

Coiner represents the best tradition of Twin Falls County politics: principled, pragmatic Republicans who believe that ideology detracts from serving the taxpayers. Former Sens. Laird Noh, Dick High, John Barker, Joyce McRoberts, Darrel McRoberts and ex-Reps. Bill Roberts, Celia Gould, Bill Lanting and Doug Jones did what was right first and checked the political winds later.

Doing just that has gotten Coiner in political trouble in the current campaign. The senator doesn't think the state has any business spending upwards of $100,000 of the taxpayers' money in what's likely to be a futile lawsuit to stop federal health care reform at a time when Idaho teachers are getting their salaries slashed and kids are having classes cut.

And he believes a new law giving health caregivers and pharmacists veto power over medical decisions by individuals is a recipe for needless agony by dying patients and their families.

Idaho Chooses Life, the Boise-based anti-abortion lobby, has been campaigning hard against Coiner, and it hasn't always told the truth.

One ICL flier, for example, takes Coiner to task for a 2005 vote on a bill that the organization describes as “a move to give some $15 million in additional state funding for Planned Parenthood to provide more 'family planning.'”

Trouble is, the legislation did no such thing. The bill's text and proposed financial details on the Legislature's website make no mention of Planned Parenthood or anything close to $15 million.

The legislation, which died in the House, was intended to expand family planning health care services to low-income women and eventually save the state money because of fewer unplanned pregnancies.

When asked where the $15 million figure came from, ICL Executive Director David Ripley pointed to a letter to the editor signed by then-state Rep. Bill Sali — later Idaho's trouble-prone, single-term 1st District congressman — that ran in the Times-News.

“You'll just have to read the letter and make up your mind,” Ripley said.

We have, and we don't find Sali — or his facts — credible.

Far from parroting that ICL untruth, Heider's supporters should have denounced it.

In the course of the campaign, Heider has said legislators should be “true to the brand you ride for.”

We couldn't agree more.

Other politicians make noise; Smith just gets the job done

Republican legislative candidates Randy Satterwhite and Mark Goodman are right to be angry that government is overstaffed, underachieving and doesn't represent the people the way it should.

Trouble is, they're running for the wrong office.

In contrast with the vast, history-shifting issues on the national stage — health care insurance reform, cap-and-trade, federal spending, Wall Street reform — state government isn't nearly as sexy. It deals with mundane stuff like making sure there are enough buses to get kids to school, finding enough money so that rural highway districts can fill potholes once in awhile, and hiring enough corrections officers to keep killers and rapists in the state penitentiary — and doing it all under the absolute requirement for balancing the budget every year.

The man who Goodman and Satterwhite are seeking to replace in Tuesday's Republican primary — six-term District 24 state Rep. Leon Smith — excels at the workaday business of close-to-home government. As well he should: He's been the Twin Falls County prosecutor, a Twin Falls city councilman and mayor before being elected to the Legislature.

In our judgment, Smith embodies the very best in a state legislator:

- He isn't an ideologue, which means he doesn't waste the taxpayer's ers' money jousting at windmills.

- He's an outcomes-based — not a process-based — lawmaker. That means he doesn't care who gets the credit as long as the people get the benefit.
- He knows more about transportation issues that anybody in state government.

- Many in the current batch of Idaho legislators bristle at the suggestion that they should work with another lawmaker with whom they disagree politically. Smith can — and does — work with anybody.
- And if you're looking for a fiscal conservative, this is your guy: Smith is a longstanding and vocal opponent of the biggest public-spending boondoggle in recent Idaho history, the Connecting Idaho project. Using

Larsen has the right skills

You want a dog that will hunt, don't get a poodle. You want a darn good cow dog, don't expect positive results from an Irish setter. So it is with politicians. A good bark or throaty growl doesn't say much about the results one can expect when the critter is unleashed.

People of principle make good government. People of experience create fewer problems and provide foundations for greater competency in systems management, offer more effective people skills and ensure enhanced stability in office efficiency and personnel productivity.

Here is what I look for in a public servant:

Proficiency: Transparency, punctuality, organizational efficiency, communication clarity;

Technical expertise: Systems management, computer systems management and data control;

Managerial integrity and ability: Facilitation and able coordination of people and programs;

Professionalism: Competency based on experience, excellent interface with clients and public;

Vigorous insight: An enabler who listens and encourages subordinates and co-workers;

Tolerance: Amiable, considerate, one who elevates other's self-expectations and performance;

Honest: Well informed, a truth teller, dependable prompt.

Joe Larsen for county clerk is a man with professionalism and experience in business. He has successfully demonstrated competence in financial management, personnel relations and public service. He has owned and operated his family mortuary business, owned a computer retail and repair business and has cooperated with Hewlett-Packard in testing new product lines. Beyond his practical training and experience, he has continued the pursuit of his master's in business administration and systems management. These skills are essential to success as county clerk.

Casting your vote for Joseph Larsen will bring a man of uncommon skills to the office of county clerk. We will vote for Joe Larsen for county clerk because he meets the criteria of the most qualified candidate. He can fix things that are broken, improve working systems and properly put to rest that which has lived beyond its usefulness. Your vote will count for all the right reasons.

Werth advertisely falsey describes court decision

In considering which judicial candidate to vote for, the public should be aware that the paid advertisement for Doug Werth falsely described a decision by Judge Elgee as being reversed for lack of jurisdiction.

I was one of the attorneys of record in the case involving a completely justified reward of $44,000 against Blaine County for attorney's fees. The underlying decision by Judge Elgee in that case was subsequently vacated by the Idaho Supreme Court for reasons never asserted by Blaine County. A lack of jurisdiction was, however, not a reason given by the Supreme Court for its decision. As a matter of fact, the term “jurisdiction” is not to be found in the decision by the Supreme Court. Accordingly, any inference from the advertisement that Judge Elgee decided the case without the power or authority to do so is neither fair nor otherwise warranted.

Some questions for Coiner

Mr. Coiner, I'm not quite sure where you stand. Could you clarify whether you are a Democrat running on the Republican ticket or a Republican that supports core left issues?

Could you please explain why you won't participate in the public debates? In a recent radio interview, you stated that you weren't going to participate in the Republican Women's debate because you couldn't set the “ground rules” and Grant Anticipation Revenue Vehicle bonds to fund big-ticket highway construction projects — most of them in the Boise area — the Legislature has done an impressive job of running up the state's credit card in the past six years. GARVEE debt service now eats up nearly $1 out of every $3 that Idaho has to spend on fixing roads.

Smith is one of the go-to-guys who other legislators — and governors — seek out when they can't figure out how to unravel complex political problems. That's happened at least twice with transportation issues and again with urban renewal this past Legislature.

Smith chaired a subcommittee of the House Revenue and Taxation Committee charged with sorting through seven urban renewal proposals and coming up with comprehensive reform legislation. His partners in that process included perhaps the most conservative member of the House, state Rep. Phil Hart, R-ATHol, and liberal urban Democrats from Boise.

We were struck by the fact that a recent Smith political ad published in the Times-News included the endorsement of Rep. Maxine Bell, R-Jerome, the chairwoman of the House Appropriations Committee. Bell, a conservative who differs with Smith on some issues, is passionate about the accountability of government in general and the Legislature in particular.

And she understands that's what Smith is all about.

because the “other” party wasn't invited to attend. What “other” party? It's a Republican debate. Some associated with the debate say you won't attend because the commentator is “too conservative.” It's Kelly Klass of News Talk 1320.

At a visit to a local high school you stated, “I'm not pro-life.” But in the radio interview, you stated that you voted against “life” only because it “cost too much to defend.” So your position is: I'm only for life if it doesn't “cost” anything? Or, I support abortions but won't say that. Please clarify.

Your advertising states that you're a “business man!” But you've stated your “business” is “ski instructor in Sun Valley for the last 30 years.” Again, could you please clarify what “business” you run or have run or is ski instructor to be understood as your core business experience?

You state that you're here to protect Idaho's water, yet you sponsored and passed Bill S1002 that proposed the “selling” of Idaho water to Washington. The House struck it down because it was illegal. Please clarify.

More than ever, primary voter turnout will be critical this May 25. If Idaho conservatives don't get out and vote in the primary, the left will. And once again, they'll slant the vote toward the most left-looking candidates on the Republican ticket. The power is within us. Please take the time to vote.

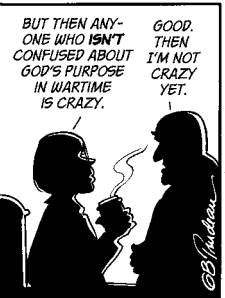

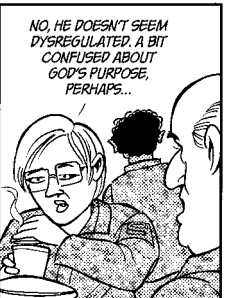

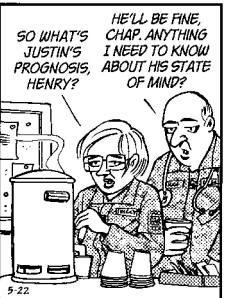

WILLIAM KEZELE
Twin Falls

(Editor's note: William Kezele is a Twin Falls City Council member.

Senate Bill 1002, which was passed unanimously by the Idaho Senate on Feb. 11, 2009, did not propose selling Idaho water to Washington. It was legislation sponsored by state Sen. Gary Schroeder, R-Moscow, that sought to clarify the definition of municipal water service areas to include areas outside the state that are adjacent to an Idaho municipality. Moscow's water service area includes small areas of Washington since the city sits astride the Idaho-Washington border.)

Jobless rates drop in 34 states and D.C.

The Associated Press

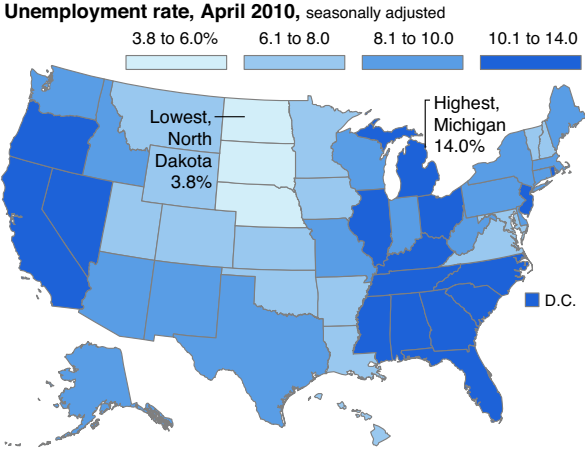

WASHINGTON — Unemployment rates fell in a majority of states including Idaho last month as improved economic conditions spurred hiring. The Labor Department said Friday that 34 states and the District of Columbia reported lower jobless rates in April. Six states reported higher rates, while 10 saw unemployment hold steady. That marked an improvement from March when 16 states and D.C. reported declines in unemployment, 22 states saw increases, and 12 had no change, according to revised figures. South Carolina's rate fell to 11.6 percent in April, from 12.2 percent in March. That marked the largest monthly drop of any state. After cutting their work forces to the bone during the recession, companies are starting to boost hiring as their sales and profits improve. Nationwide, employers added a net 290,000 job in April, the most in four years, the department reported earlier this month. The U.S. unemployment rate, though, rose to 9.9 percent as hundreds of thousands of job hunters — feeling more confident about their prospects — resumed or started searches. Even as the employment picture is less bleak in many states, and the nation as a whole, many economists predict it will take years for the job market to get back to normal. A normal nationwide unemployment rate typically hovers around 5.5 to 6 percent. It's going to be a long slog because economic growth isn't robust enough for companies to ramp up hiring and quickly drive down the jobless rate. Michigan, whose manufacturing base was clobbered by the recession, once again recorded the highest unemployment rate of any state — 14 percent. The rate dipped from 14.1 percent in March. Nevada was close behind. It's rate rose to 13.7

Nevada and California — states at the heart of the housing boom — have been slammed by the market's bust and have been swamped by a wave of foreclosures. North Dakota again had the lowest jobless rate — 3.8 percent. That's down from 4 percent in March. It was followed by South Dakota, whose rate dipped to 4.7 percent in April, from 4.8 percent in March, and Nebraska at 5 percent, unchanged from the previous month. Friday's report also said that a majority of states saw employers boost jobs in April. The top three gainers: Ohio, with saw payrolls grow by 37,300 in April, from March; Pennsylvania, with 34,000 net new jobs; and New York with 32,700.

Twin Falls assisted living facility gets high marks from state survey

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

While getting surveyed by the Department of Health and Welfare is to be expected by all Idaho assisted living facilities, passing those surveys without any deficiencies is not very common. But that is exactly what an unannounced survey given to Stoney Creek Living Center, just west of Twin Falls, over May 10-11 found: nothing. The facility is owned by David and Jennifer Weigt, who purchased the center in 2007. When a team showed up earlier this month he expected, as is industry standard, for the state to find a few issues. “The ‘core’ deficiencies are those things that could result in losing your license. We didn't expect them to find any core deficiencies but you kind of expect them to find a few ‘punch list’ deficiencies, like paperwork issues or other minor things you have to address,” David Weigt told the Times-News on Friday. “To have no deficiencies found and to be told by the state that you're doing a good job is refreshing. It felt pretty good.” Karen Anderson a nurse and health facility surveyor with IDHW's Residential Assisted Living Facility Program said “it's pretty darn rare,” for surveys to come back without identifying deficiencies. Anderson was part of the two-person team who surveyed Stoney Creek and said “As administrators, (the Weights) are very involved, the caregivers are very involved. ...They are giving great care and it shows.” She said surveys look at many facets in the facility, including nursing systems in place, interaction with caregivers and residents, resident's activities and livelihoods, staff training, kitchen cleanliness, nutrition and menus and the overall inside and outside environment. “It's pretty hard not to find anything that needs addressed because there are so many areas we look at and the survey is really involved — so to not find anything is great,” Anderson said. Jennifer Weigt, a nurse who is obtaining administration licensure through the state, said the survey results show how dedicated they are to their residents. David Weigt said a survey was conducted by the state when facility ownership changed hands. That survey found a few “non-core,” or “punch list” deficiencies that were quickly resolved, like making sure fire drills were being conducted quarterly for every shift and making sure the dishwasher was running at a higher temperature. David Weigt said the surveys can be useful for facility owners and operators. “The rules are in place because they are the best standards of quality care and that is what we are here for,” he said. “Some people get into this industry because they see it as lucrative and that is the only thing they are concerned with, but both my wife and I are concerned and committed to the care of our residents.” Blair Koch may be reached at 316-2607 or blairkoch@gmail.com

First Recovery Zone Facility Bond issued in Gem State

Times-News

Zions Bank has issued the first Recovery Zone Facility Bond in Idaho, assisting Commercial Tire in financing construction of a new $1.5 million store in Meridian. The Recovery Zone Facility Bonds, which were created through the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act in 2009, are a tax-exempt bond that may be used by private businesses in designated recovery zones to finance capital projects. The benefit of the bonds to the private sector is a lower cost of financing than traditional methods. The bonds, which must be issued prior to Jan 1, 2011, can be used for the construction of new or expanded buildings and for the purchase of equipment used in the business. Through the Recovery Zone Facility Bond program, Zions Bank helped Commercial Tire reduce financing costs on a new auto service center located in Meridian at 100 Penwood St. The 15,000-square-foot facility will be the company's first location in Meridian and will offer customers automotive products and services. “The Recovery Zone Facility Bond program is great for businesses and communities in the designated areas of impact,” Mike Hampton, Commercial Tire's vice president of administration, said in a written statement. “It is going to save us a tremendous amount in interest cost over the life of the loan.” Commercial Tire has started construction of the new building and hopes to complete the project by August 2010. The company anticipates hiring 10 more employees to work in the service center once construction is complete.

Lower bailout estimate assumes higher stock prices

By Daniel Wagner
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — The Treasury Department indicated Friday it expects taxpayers will lose billions less from the financial bailouts than earlier estimated. The problem is, its revised forecast assumes Treasury's shares of bailed-out companies are gaining value despite this week's plunge in stock prices. Treasury predicts the bailouts will cost taxpayers $105.4 billion, according to a letter to lawmakers ers from Assistant Secretary Herb Allison. That's down $11.4 billion from a February projection by the Obama administration. Most of the expected cost savings depend on Treasury's ability to profit once it sells its stakes in Citigroup Inc., General Motors and Chrysler, Allison wrote. Treasury received those investments in exchange for pumping billions into the companies to rescue them. Treasury's analysis is based on

FTC clears Google $750 million AdMob purchase

By Jeff Bliss
Bloomberg News writer

WASHINGTON — The Federal Trade Commission on Friday unanimously approved Google's $750 million acquisition of AdMob, rejecting claims the purchase would reduce competition in the fledgling market for advertising on mobile devices. The deal “is unlikely to harm competition in the emerging market for mobile advertising networks,” the FTC said in a the market conditions as of March 31. That was weeks before a European debt crisis roiled global markets. The broad tumble in stock prices makes Treasury's projected gains appear far less likely.

For example, Allison notes that Treasury's shares of Citigroup were worth $4.05 on March 31 – 80 cents more than Treasury paid for them. But by Thursday's close, Citigroup shares were trading at $3.63. At that price, Treasury's gain is only 38 cents per share.

If Treasury sold all its shares at Thursday's price, its estimate would undercount the cost of the bailouts by $924 million.

Treasury is one of several agencies that have produced conflicting estimates of the bailouts' cost. The Congressional Budget Office said in March that the final cost would be $109 billion. That was well below the White House budget office's number.

The new forecast assumes Treasury's stakes in the automakers will be worth more than earlier estimates because the auto industry has begun to recover. Still, the biggest bailout losses will come from the rescues of the automakers and insurance giant American International Group Inc. Administration programs to help homeowners avoid foreclosure also will cost billions.

Treasury has made more money than it expected on dividends, fees and other proceeds from banks that took bailout money.

statement on its website.

Google, owner of the world's most popular web search engine, is the leader in Internet advertising. With San Mateo, Calif.-based AdMob, it would form the largest mobile- advertising company.

The FTC said its decision was influenced by Apple's recent inroads in the market, indicating there may be more competition than originally thought. Regulators' concerns were allayed by the introduction of iAd, a program that generates revenue from ads placed on Apple's handheld devices.

Google and AdMob combined had 21 percent of the market in 2009 – a market that has been doubling in size annually – according to Karsten Weide, an analyst with researcher IDC in San Mateo.

In recent weeks, the FTC delayed its decision on the deal to examine the developments involving Apple, said two people familiar with the matter. The FTC was concerned with conditions Apple is placing on software developers and advertisers for the iAd system, the two people said.

"As a result of Apple's entry into the market, AdMob's success to date on the iPhone platform is unlikely to be an accurate predictor of AdMob's competitive significance," the FTC statement said Friday.

Minico journalism brings home another award

Minico High School's 2009-10 journalism class has earned a first-place award from The American Scholastic Press Association for The Spartan Chronicle, the school's newspaper. This is the 17th year Minico has entered this competition, and the 15th time the school has received top honors.

According to a letter from the ASPA judge, "The facets of newspaper work are varied and difficult to master. The Spartan Chronicle staff has been able to overcome the difficulties and produce a publication of which Minico High School's administration and colleagues should be proud."

The ASPA rates 2,000 college, high school, and junior high school publications annually in categories such as school size, grade levels, and frequency of production.

Minico competed among high schools of 1,000 to 1,700 students in grades 9-12, which produce five to eight newspaper editions per school year.

The ASPA evaluated The Spartan Chronicle based on content coverage, page design, general plan, art/advertising/illustra-

CART ready to respond for missing children

This week I'm coming to you from Saint Louis, Mo. — or Missura, as it's called here by some.

Now I know you're wondering why I'm here, so I'll tell you. I'm here for training with the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children. What I'm learning about is CART. Some of you out there — you know who you are — might be saying that I'm giving code words for the cart that's pulled by Clydesdale horses, considering where I am. The truth is that CART is an anagram for Child Abduction Response Team.

CART is a team of individuals from various agencies, jurisdictions, and disciplines who are trained to respond to missing, endangered or abducted children. What CART does is leverage participating agencies so the resources of each can be used to assist the lead law enforcement agency in finding missing, endangered or abducted children. This gets more tools and more people working to help these children.

You might wonder why CART is a big deal. The simple answer is that the first three hours after a child goes missing are some of the most important times in locating a child. The longer it takes to get trained people on the case, the more likely it becomes that the end result could be sad.

The other factor here is that most police agencies don't have the manpower to initiate a broad search and rescue mission.

If you're wondering what agencies comprise CART, there are many, and they share equal input. The team boasts agencies from law enforcement, prosecutors, probation officers, firefighters, social workers, victim advocates, school personnel, search and rescue and volunteers, to name a few.

Volunteers are mainly used in support roles, such as helping with a search, answering tip-line phones or helping keep searchers stocked with necessary supplies.

With CART fully in place, the hope is that there will never be a time CART has to be used. But if your son or daughter goes missing, is endangered or abducted, there will be a slew of agencies coming together to find that child, and we'll be called

CART.

I want to end this by telling my readers that Tuesday is National Missing Children Awareness day. It wouldn't break my heart to one day be able to cancel this day.

Is it possible migraines can be controlled by smoking?

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am a 44-year-old female with migraines. I am otherwise healthy with no other medical problems, but I'm about 30 pounds overweight. I was diagnosed with migraines at age 12 and was put on medication, but because of the side effects, my parents chose to take me off it, and until recently, I haven't had any trouble.

After smoking for 15 years, I finally quit when my mother passed away from lung cancer. Almost immediately after quitting smoking, my migraines came back and were so bad that I couldn't function. With three active children, this was not an option for me, so I started smoking again, and the headaches went away.

I am scared of what my future holds if I continue to smoke, and I truly want to quit. I went to my family doctor and a neurologist. I have tried several different medications, such as antidepressants, antiseizures and migraine-specific drugs, which didn't work. I was on a blood-pressure medication briefly that worked well for the headaches, but after a while it caused my blood pressure to drop too much, and I ended up in the hospital being monitored.

ASK DR. GOTT

I don't know what the connection is with smoking and migraines, but I'm guessing it involves stress. Can you offer any suggestions on what to do so that my children don't grow up without a mother? I don't take any medicines except an occasional over-the-counter ibuprofen or naproxen for minor aches and pains.

DEAR READER: I am not aware of any connection between smoking and migraines. However, in your instance, this is clearly the case. I cannot recommend you continue smoking in order to control the headaches. I can, however, try to offer you some advice and recommendations that you may not have tried.

First, migraines are a type of headache that can be disabling when they occur. They typically cause severe one-sided head pain, may present with a visual aura (flashing lights, blind spots, etc.) and cause sensitivity to light and/or sound. Vomiting and nausea are also common symptoms. They can run in families, and those with a family history are at higher risk of developing migraines.

Each sufferer usually has specific triggers that, when a person is exposed to them, can result in a migraine. Triggers can include hunger, fatigue, hormonal changes, certain medications, stress, head trauma, changes in environment, sensory stimuli (such as bright lights or unusual smells) and certain foods, especially those with preservatives (nitrates), MSG or aged cheeses and wines.

If possible, retreat to a quiet, comfortable place at the first sign of a migraine. Turn off the lights, apply heat or ice to your head and neck, and gently massage the painful areas. For some, taking an aspirin or other OTC pain reliever with a caffeinated beverage such as a soda or coffee can boost the pain-relieving effects of the medication. Too much caffeine, however, may worsen the pain or lead to a withdrawal headache when the caffeine intake is stopped.

Typical prescription medications include antidepressants, antiseizure drugs and migraine-specific medications such as those you have tried. For some people, certain blood-pressure medications and other cardiovascular drugs may also be beneficial. However, because you have tried this without success, I recommend one of the following alternative treatments. Be sure that you have physician approval first because not all these treatments may be appropriate for your case.

Acupuncture may provide positive results, even though it is not routinely recommended because scientific studies have failed to show strong beneficial evidence. Because you have taken the conservative, modern-medicine route, now may be the time to try this ancient therapy.

Biofeedback is a relaxation technique that utilizes special equipment to monitor and control certain physical responses. By understanding the body's response to certain stimuli such as tension, a person may be able to learn how to control and alter those responses.

The herbs feverfew and butterbur have shown some positive results in preventing or reducing the severity of migraines. High doses of vitamin B2 may also act as a preventive. Still others have had success with coenzyme Q10.

Finally, some migraine sufferers have had success with cervical manipulation; however, there is no scientific proof that chiropractic or spinal manipulation will help migraines. This treatment also carries the risk of arterial damage that may result in stroke or death. When performed by a qualified professional with experience, this is very rare.

I suggest you return to your primary-care physician or neurologist to discuss these options.

In the meantime, you should quit smoking. Substitute over-the-counter nicotine patches or gum to reduce the severity of your migraine symptoms during this stressful period.

BOISE — Brooke Wagner set the Class 4A state record and coolly won the first of her two gold medals in the 100 meters Friday night on the Ed Jacoby Track in Boise. What’s better? Her Bruins (66.5 points) took second place at the 2010 Idaho State Track and Field Championships.

“Our whole entire team was split right in half for Canyon Ridge,” Wagner said. “To lose two of our best sprinters and Madi Worst to a knee injury, for our team to be able to pull together the last couple months and decide we can be a competitive state team, it’s just awesome what people will do for a team.”

Jerome took third (62 points) and Minico placed fourth (56.5) in the team standings.

Wagner finished the 100 in 12.4 seconds, beating the former record of 12.47) held by Nataucha Lowry of Vallivue.

Wagner’s gold in the 200 in 25.32 seconds was only four hundredths off the state record. In both sprints, Wagner edged out Alex Van Halder of Columbia.

“Yesterday (Van Halder) had a better time than me,” Wagner said. “I felt I had a great start. I had her out of the blocks. It felt good just to finish it ... and to break the classification record on top of that? It’s pretty fantastic.”

Wagner also took second in the 400 with a personal best of 57.32 seconds, but did not defend her title, the only disappointment for the junior on Friday. She said Mercedes Blackwood, a

Twin Falls gold medalist from last season and current Utah State runner, came into town last week and helped Wagner prepare for state.

“She helped me a lot on blocks, staying down, digging,” Wagner said.

Wagner also ran the anchor leg of the 4x400 to a silver medal. Kaitlyn Fischer, Isabel von Zastrow and Claire Goss set Wagner up in third place and she passed the Minico team almost instantly.

Bruins come up short against B.K.

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

NAMPA — Ryan Petersen stepped to the plate with two outs in the bottom of the seventh inning with the tying run standing on first base, a spot in the Class 4A state championship game on the line.

Petersen got a huge piece of Bishop Kelly pitcher Dan Greenway’s offering, rocking a shot to left field. But it fell in the waiting glove of Nic Buich, ending Twin Falls’ title dreams at Rodeo Park.

“I should have hit it over the fence,” shrugged Petersen after the game, disappointed yet holding the game in perspective. “We’d love to be playing the late game Saturday, but only two teams get to be there and we’re the odd man out.”

Instead of the 4 p.m. championship game today,

Twin Falls (26-5) will face a familiar foe in Great Basin Conference rival Minico for third place at 1 p.m. The Bruins took four of five games against the Spartans this year.

“It’s the last game I’m wearing the Bruins blue,” said Petersen, who is one of five seniors. “I’m going to go out there and have a great time. I mean, you play baseball for fun and if you can’t have a good time then you shouldn’t be here. Going to go out with the guys, have one last shot at it, have some pride and go out a winner.”

Twin Falls nearly went out a winner on Friday, but after trailing 6-2, the Bruins’ comeback bid fell short.

Bishop Kelly (21-4) batted through its order in the first inning against Twin Falls sophomore Eric Harr, driving four hits to grab a BOISE — The Minico Spartans took home second place while a pair of District IV distance runners captured gold as the boys Class 4A state track meet concluded Friday night at Boise State University.

Minico had hoped to best Rigby, but trailed by 30 points after the first day. They cut into the deficit, but came up short — 91 points to 76.25 points — for the second straight year.

“It was epic, we did all we could but things didn’t go exactly as we wanted them to. We got a trophy and came out on top in the last race,” said senior David Griffin.

Twin Falls finished eighth with 32 points, Wood River was 12th with 28, Jerome tallied 11 and Canyon Ridge collected 6.5.

Bruin sophomore Erik Harris won the 800 meters. He took the lead after the first lap only to see Zach Burney of Columbia right on his tail with 100 yards left. In the final meters Harris was able to hold him off at the tape by six-hundredths of a second.

The last hundred just killed me,” said Harris. “He pushed me to do a lot better than I would have. It was a really good race.”

Harris finished second to Wood River’s Chase Caulkins in the 3,200.

Leckenby, bats carry Buhl baseball to title game

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

ONTARIO, Ore. — Matt Hamilton cornered J.D. Leckenby down in the hotel Friday before Buhl’s Class 3A semifinal game against Fruitland and told him, “You’ll pitch a good game today.”

Leckenby countered: “You’ll hit a good game today.”

Both standards were met,

and Buhl found itself seven innings from immortality.

Hamilton doubled twice and drove in four and Leckenby allowed one earned run and struck out 10 as the Indians reached the Class 3A title game with a 10-4 win at Treasure Valley Community College.

Buhl (23-5) jumped all over Fruitland ace Daulton Blackwell, chasing him from the game in the fourth inning after tagging him with nine runs, eight of them earned.

“This is the best we’ve hit the ball all season,” Hamilton said. “We were putting it in play and applying pressure to their defense. It’s a big confidence booster. It’s great to see it all coming together at the right time.”

Leckenby led off the scoring with a two-run double in the first inning, which was followed by an RBI single by Dylan Brooks. He then intentionally got himself in a rundown between first and second, distracting Blackwell long enough for Cader Owen to steal home.

Hamilton hit the first of his two two-run doubles in the top of the second to stake the Indians to a 6-0 lead, and they were off to the races.

Errors pile up as Pilots fall in 2A semis

By Bradley Guire
Times-News writer

GLENN'S FERRY — Fielding errors, errant throws and a lack of timely hitting.

Add it all up, and it spelled doom for Glenns Ferry and its dream of a Class 2A state baseball championship. The Pilots fell 8-1 to defending champion Nampa Christian Friday at Pilot Field and will face Parma, which fell 20-4 to New Plymouth, for third place today.

The Trojans took a slim 2-1 lead before claiming five more runs in the bottom of the fourth, but of all those runs, only one was earned. The Pilots struggled on the diamond with pickoff attempts and routine plays, often throwing the ball away to allow Trojan runners to cross the plate.

“The defense let us down a bit and cost us runs,” said Glenns Ferry coach Denis Uhl.

Disciplined base running helped Nampa Christian take advantage of those mistakes as the team claimed 13 extra bases on wild pitches, passed balls or errors in addition to two stolen bases.

“It was a huge part of the game,” said Trojan James McDonald

He and Nate Forseth were the only Trojans with more than one hit — McDonald went 2-for-3 with a pair of RBIs and Forseth hit 2-for-2 with a double and one RBI.

Glenns Ferry came up short in the battle with Nampa Christian pitcher Mike Meservy, who struck out 13 Pilots.

“We weren’t aggressive or ready,” Acord said. “It messed us up, and when we did hit, we couldn’t keep it going.”

Despite the disappointment of a semifinal loss, the Pilots still have some hard-ware they want to claim.

“Any time you can play for a trophy is exciting,” Uhl said. “I want to play for that and bring it home. I’ve stressed having pride and finishing the season. I want the boys to show it.”

They face Parma at 1 p.m. in the third-place game, while Nampa Christian has a shot to defend its state title when it meets New Plymouth right after. Kendrick and Malad kick things off at 10 a.m. in the consolation final.

NEW PLYMOUTH 20, PARMA 4

The New Plymouth Pilgrams advanced to the championship game by ripping Parma 20-4 in a five-inning run-rule victory.

Matt York did a lot of damage at the plate for the Pilgrams, going 3-for-4 with two doubles and a home run for four RBIs and two runs scored. Casey Pfeifer also hit 3-for-4 with a pair of RBIs and two runs.

KENDRICK 12, SODA SPRINGS 9

Kendrick eliminated Soda Springs 12-9 after scoring 11 runs across the fourth and fifth innings, coming back from a five-run deficit.

Matt Brown hit 2-for-4 with one RBI for the Kendrick Tigers, who will play Malad for the consolation trophy today.

MALAD 11, GRANGEVILLE 0

The Malad Dragons shut out Grangeville 11-0 for a spot in the consolation final.

Dragon pitcher Bracken Gibbs threw a complete game shutout on the strength of 16 strikeouts. He also contributed at the plate, batting 3-for-3 with a double, two RBIs and two runs. Jeremy McClellan batted in four runs.

quick 3-0 lead. It wasn’t disastrous, but it was by far Harr’s worst inning as he settled in and battled later on.

“On the mound, I don’t think Eric had his best stuff today, but he competed hard for seven innings,” said Twin Falls coach Tim Stadelmeir. “He’s a sophomore and we’re putting him in a huge game and I thought he competed real hard. The only thing that hurt him was two-out walks, and he hasn’t done that all year.”

Ryan Fuchs got Twin Falls on the board with an RBI single in the second, and Tyler Wolters scored on a Knight error in the third.

The momentum began to shift to the Bruins in the fourth inning, as Jared Jordan roped a leadoff double and Zayne Slotten blasted a two-run homer to make it 6-4.

Subsequently, Harr pitched exceptionally the rest of the way, retiring the final nine batters he faced in order.

Petersen’s RBI single in the bottom of the fifth got Twin Falls within a run at 6-5, but the rally stalled there as Bishop Kelly showed why it’s deserving of a shot at a state title with clutch pitching and solid defense.

“That’s what baseball is all about,” Stadelmeir said. “You’ve got two teams that are playing the game the way it should be played, playing all the way to the last pitch.”

freshman starting pitcher Shay Chandler and insert reliever Nate Hanks. But no matter who the Spartans had on the mound, they weren’t going to provide near enough run support against McGuire.

“Like I told the guys, they were just better than us today,” said Minico coach Ben Frank. “If you just look at paper, we’re definitely underdogs. We’re starting a freshman against one of the better teams in the state. I don’t want to say underdogs, because you always have a chance. But talent-wise, we weren’t on par with them.”

Dakota Rupard broke up McGuire’s perfect game with a single to lead off the sixth, followed by a base hit by Dylan Winnmill.

Now the Spartans’ focus turns to the Twin Falls Bruins, to whom they have lost four out of five this season.

“We always talk about playing the game the same way no matter what,” Frank said. “Hopefully when we step between the lines we play the game the same way at 1:00 as we would at 4:00. Our goal is to always play the game the right way.”

Buhl upsets Kimberly, falls to Fruitland

Times-News

They meet again. For the eighth time this season.

Buhl and Kimberly will face off at 11 a.m. (MDT) today in Coeur d’Alene for the right to face Fruitland for the Class 3A state softball championship in Coeur d’Alene.

Buhl (24-9) handed Kimberly (27-1) its first loss of the season Friday as Buhl won 4-0 in the championship quarterfinal round of the Class 3A state softball tournament in Coeur d’Alene. But Buhl’s elation was short-lived as it suffered a 18-2 loss against Fruitland Friday evening.

Mercedes Pearson swung the bat well for Buhl in the win over Kimberly, notching a double and a home run. Indians head coach Shelly Hart said the team overcame a mental hump against the District IV champion.

“When we played them in the district championship and only lost by two (runs), the kids believed they could play with them,” Hart said. “We didn’t have that before. (Friday), there was no hesitation.”

Kimberly stranded 11 runners in the game and left the bases loaded on two occasions, said coach Rich Bishop.

“Just didn’t get the hits when we needed them, but Buhl played well,” said Bishop.

Kimberly bounced back to stay alive, beating Kellogg 12-0 in five innings as Makings struck out seven and recorded seven RBIs. She had a three-run home run and a three-run double to go with a sacrifice fly.

Makings struck out 10 batters in Kimberly’s final game Friday, a 7-0 win over Sugar-Salem.

“We did a good job coming back,” Bishop said.

“To get after them right away was huge. The bats put up six runs and I can just go out there and throw,” Leckenby said. “I know if I don’t give up any earned runs we’re going to win. If my team’s got me, I’ve got them.”

All season long Buhl’s mantra was “three more,” in reference to the three games it takes to win a state championship. Before Fruitland it was two more.

Now it’s one more: Payette, today at 4 p.m.

While the ace can’t go for Buhl, the Indians are confident in whoever takes the mound and know the bats will have that person’s back.

“We’ve been talking about it all year,” Hamilton said.

Class 4A
POCATELLO 10, JEROME 0

Jerome’s softball season came to a close with a 10-0 loss to Pocatello in a Class 4A elimination game Friday morning in Pocatello. Pocatello pitcher Sam Nalley shut out the Tigers and limited them to two hits. Jerome showed its youth, committing a handful of errors in the loss.

“Five errors isn’t going to win a game at state,” said Jerome coach Adam Reynolds.

Pocatello’s Taylor Thomas hit a double and a home run and knocked in multiple runs. Teammate Bailey Contant capped the game with a walk-off homer in the sixth inning to invoke the mercy rule.

Jerome (17-14) loses only four seniors from this year’s squad, which featured six underclassmen.

“It was a good learning experience for us,” said Reynolds. “Hopefully we can make it back next year.”

Wood River went toe-to-toe with Blackfoot through four innings. Then the wheels came off. The Wolverines (10-19) suffered a season-ending 15-3 loss to Blackfoot in a Class 4A elimination game in Pocatello. Wood River led 2-1 and the game was tied 2-2 before Blackfoot scored four runs in the fifth and five in the sixth to take charge. That offensive explosion was aided by the Wolverines’ eight errors.

Wood River’s Madison Gove went 3-for-4 with two doubles, while Josie Dawson was 2-for-3 with a double and a triple. Alex Lindbloom went 2-for-4 with a double and a triple.

Wood River coach Dale Martin said his young team often struggles once it gets behind and that was case Friday. With only one senior in the starting lineup, the Wolverines are excited for the future, though.

John Morris stroked a two-run single with two outs in the bottom of the seventh to cap a six-run rally and give Timberlake a 7-6 win that ended Kimberly’s season.

Kimberly (14-14) chased Timberlake starter Derek Tymesen after just a third of an inning, touching him up for five runs. But the Bulldogs, who stretched the lead to 6-1 in the third, got just one hit in the final four innings, while the Tigers scored six times in the last two innings, plating all of those runs with two outs.

DECLO ELIMINATED BY WEST JEFFERSON

Declo pounded Kamiah 22-4 Friday morning, but came up short against West Jefferson 5-3 in an elimination game at the Class 2A state softball tournament in Homedale.

Declo jumped on Kamiah early and never looked back as Daliss Pickup smashed a home run and teammates Kylee Matthews and Chancey Knopp had doubles.

“The girls played fearless against Kamiah,” said Declo head coach Kari Osterhout. “We really took over at the plate. We had three girls that went 3-for-4.”

The Hornets could not find their rhythm against West Jefferson, striking out 12 times. Declo’s Mellissa Carson had a triple and Kylee Matthews and Chancey Knopp doubled in the loss.

“It was a really good game against West Jefferson,” said Osterhout. “Their pitcher was really good. ... We had a problem with officiating but there is nothing you can do about that. Things just did not go our way.”

the first three innings, but Conner Peery, who came on to relieve Tymesen, shackled the Bulldogs’ bats and gave the Tigers a chance to win it while Kimberly simply imploded.

Timberlake scored three unearned runs in the bottom of the sixth after Dally Charters had trouble coming up with a throw on a ground ball and a flare into right field evaded a diving Parker Champlin.

Charters came in the seventh to try and close it out in relief of a tiring Sam Bourgeois, but quickly ran into trouble. Two pop ups to catcher Nick Dame got the Bulldogs to within one out of the consolation final, but a bases-loaded walk put the winning run in scoring who almost shut out Rocky Mountain as she recorded 16 strikeouts and gave up just one hit. “Winning the championship would be the cherry on top.”

Rocky Mountain will have to beat Timberline at 10 a.m. today to earn a shot at Post Falls in the noon championship game. The undefeated Trojans will have the advantage as they will have to be beaten twice by their opponent to lose the championship.

“It is a comfort to have the advantage,” said Ashburn. “But we want to take it in the first game. We don’t want to rely on that second game.”

The second day of the tournament started out with Highland eliminating Mountain View 10-0 and Lake City eliminating Eagle 8-7. Post Falls defeated Timberline 12-2, while Rocky Mountain topped Capital 10-6. Highland then defeated Capital 13-0, Timberline bested Lake City 4-3 and Timberline ousted Highland 12-8.

Powers and Ottley float Raft River into second place

By Dustin Lapray
Times-News correspondent

BOISE — Raft River's Cade Powers cleared 6-foot-4 in the high jump to wrangle gold in his final track season. The senior nearly cleared 6-6, but his back heel caught the bar.

"I'd got over it before and I just really wanted to tie the state record of 6-foot-6," Powers said. "I knew (Kendrick's Adrian Free) already missed before that, so I didn't even need to make it to win."

Powers talked about the dynamic athleticism required for the high jump, an event he's done since seventh grade.

"You've got to have speed, form, strength, technique, to bend your back over the bar," Powers said.

Braden Ottley gave the Trojan boys another 10 points with a gold medal in the discus (155 feet, 2 inches). Raft River is in second place with 28 points in the Class 1A boys race. He beat his previous personal record by nine feet.

"I started clear back in December with my coach, working on it and lifting all through the winter," Ottley said. "My two goals were to break the school record and win the state track meet and I've done both now."

Ottley isn't the biggest of the throwers, but he is strong and his technique is superb.

"Technique is everything we do," Ottley said. "It's the main thing that gets the disc out there. You're nothing without technique. You can be brute strong, just throw it out there and you have nothing."

Camas County placed three in the triple jump as Derek Walker took second (41-7.5), Mickenzie Boggs fifth and Carlos Robles sixth.

Manuel Pacheco (Murtaugh) and Ethan Tverdy (Cadtelford) finished sixth in the discus and shot put, respectively.

PETERSON POUNCES ON GOLD, SILVER

Katelyn Peterson of Camas County won gold Friday at Bronco Stadium in the triple jump and took second in the high jump.

Last week was the first time Peterson jumped farther than 33 feet, but she triple jumped 35-0 on Friday.

Peterson tied the state record with her final high jump, but so did Kyanne Hemenway from Council, who took the gold due to fewer attempts, leaving Peterson with silver.

"I'm happy with it, because it's a (personal record) and that's my goal from early in the year," Peterson said. "She just had less scratches, so there was nothing I can do."

Peterson hit 5-4 and 5-6 on her final attempts to raise the bar to 5-8 and push Hemenway. Both were close to clearing 5-8, which would have set a new 1A girls record.

Micaela Adamson of Carey and Allison Rogers of Castleford, finished second and fourth, respectively, in the triple jump. Sasha Kent of Richfield placed second in the 3,200 meters, while Vicky Vaught took fifth in the discus for Shoshone.

Ormond, Basterrechea leap for gold

By Dustin Lapray
Times-News correspondent

BOISE — State track isn't just about winning gold medals. The vital goal for most track and field athletes is to set personal bests. If those bests earn first place, it creates a totality of success.

Wendell's Nathan Ormond and Gooding's Austin Basterrechea experienced that Friday at the 2010 Idaho State Track and Field Championships.

Ormond won by a full foot in the Class 3A boys triple jump (44 feet, 5.25 inches). The senior thought he had the event wrapped up until Homedale's Trent Acree took a 1-inch lead.

"I came up and just thought, 'Let's beat your best,'" Ormond said. "So I did. I broke my school record I set my sophomore year by four inches. Now I've got the state title."

Ormond won every triple jump competition he entered his senior season.

"I've mostly been competing against myself," Ormond said. "I wasn't focused on him, I just wanted to do my best. This is my last jump ever."

Ormond also took third in the high jump, the event Basterrechea won over Travis Porter of Timberlake based on the number of missed attempts. Both Basterrechea and Porter cleared 6-foot-6.

In the middle of the high jump competition, Basterrechea had to run off and compete in the 400-meter preliminaries, in which he also set a personal record (49.68 seconds, qualifying first for today's final). Porter forced Basterrechea to clear 6-2, 6-4 and 6-6, hitting all three heights on his final jumps.

"I got pushed," Basterrechea said. "I ran the 400 and tried to come back from it and jump, but then I finally got to relax. It got me warmed up."

Ormond plans to attend BYU-Hawaii, but first will spend two years on an LDS mission. Basterrechea plans to run and jump at the College of Idaho. He competes today in the 400 final, the medley relay and the long jump.

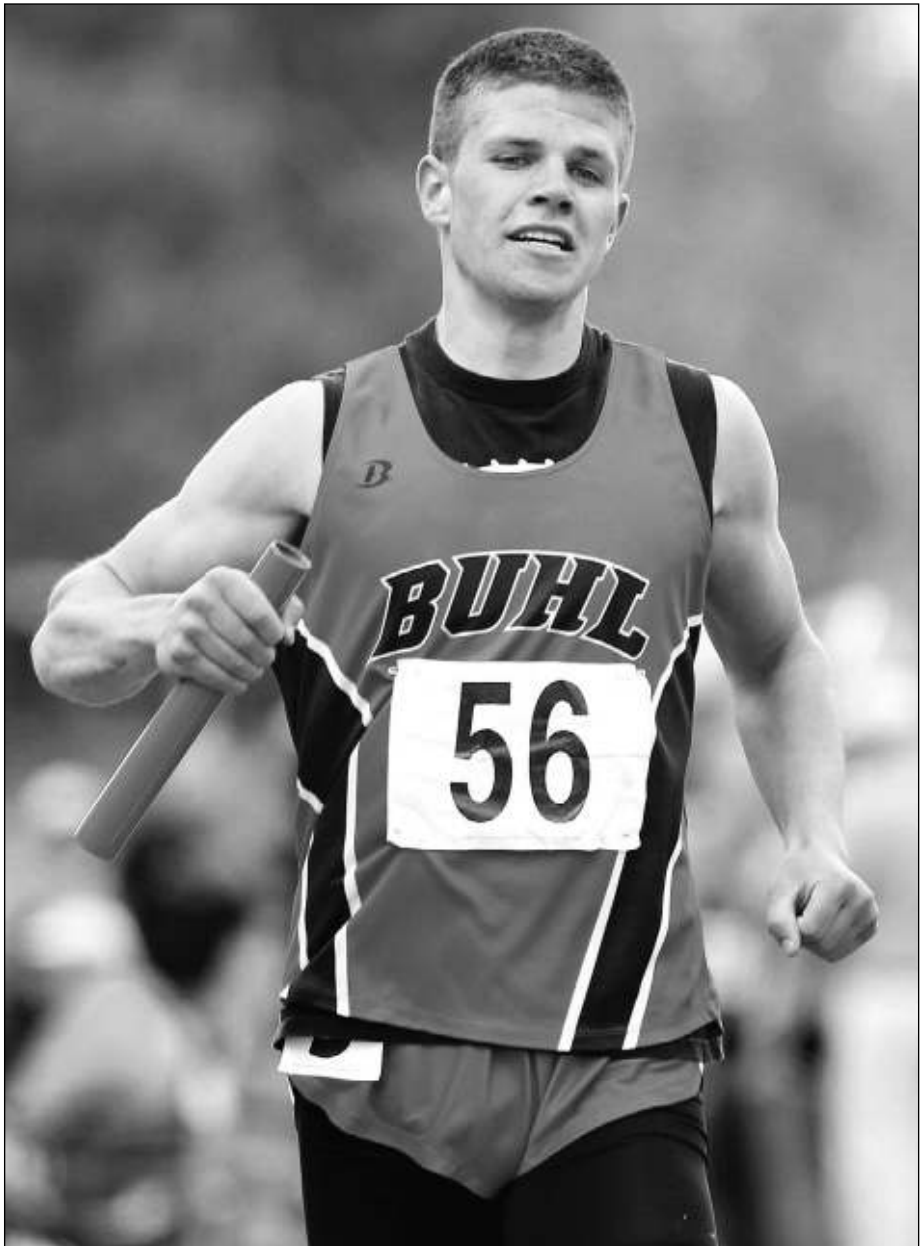

The Buhl boys won gold in the medley relay. The team of David Murdoch, Jessie Flinn, Alex Verduzco and Brian Schofield, spouted what it takes to win in a relay, besides speed and good handoffs.

"Practice, heart, teamwork, gotta want it, being best friends, baby," they said, hugging trackside. Schofield took the anchor leg in second position but owned the lead after 500 meters.

"(Fruitland) had me, but you don't want to let these guys down," Schofield said.

Gooding's Mike McHan took second in the 3200, barely losing out to Ryan Jaggi of Weiser.

"I knew he was going to go out hard," McHan said. "I just wanted to sit behind him. At 1,000 meters to go, I felt pretty good, so I decided to make my move and push it. I went a little too hard. I tried to leave him behind and I should have just picked it up a little bit. He just got me at the end."

McHan, a junior, and his Gooding teammates drop to 2A next year.

"There might be some more competition down there," McHan said. "It will push me harder, make me get some better times, maybe get into a better college if I run faster."

Kimberly's Ethan Richmond qualified second in the 110 hurdles. Marcos Eccles and Alan Cazeau qualified in the 100 meters.

Tevan Brady cleared 12 feet in the pole vault to take fourth place for Kimberly.

KELLER AND AMOTH GOLDEN; BUHL TAKES FIRST-DAY LEAD

Kaitlin Keller of Kimberly became a three-time triple jump state champion Friday with a jump of 35-9.75, three inches short of her qualifying jump and two feet below her title distance in 2009.

"It's my third time, so there was a lot of pressure," Keller said. "You just gotta go for your best mark each year. If you focus on that, then that's all you have to worry about and it's not as stressful."

Keller isn't complaining about gold, but she didn't jump her best and she said that is what track is all about. Her success at meets makes it hard to stay motivated by competition, so she just does it herself.

"It really helps me to push myself at practice, at meets, because if you're always wanting to PR, you're always working to do your best," Keller said.

Keller also qualified first for the 100-meter final

Buhl's Whitney Amoth grabbed gold in the shot put to defend her title. Her throw (43-02.75) was seven feet farther than last year's title throw.

"It confirmed that I didn't do it on accident; I did do this legitimately," Amoth said. "I went into the shot thinking I was just going to throw it, because in discus I was kind of disappointed how it turned out."

Amoth took second in discus with a throw of 118-8, a full 20 feet shorter than her district-winning distance. She said nerves got the best of her.

"I knew (state champion Nickole D'Alesio). I've been trying to catch up to her and trying to catch up to her and finally beat her, so there was a lot of pressure on me and I just kind of crumbled," Amoth said.

Amoth threw the discus 87 feet last year and didn't even qualify for district. Her best throw this season was 138 feet. She broke school records in both throws this year, then beat her own records three times. Her success led to a leadership role on the Buhl team, which leads the 3A classification after the first day.

"Everybody comes to me now even though I've only been here for a year and a half," Amoth said. "I give them my honest opinion and try to help as much as I can."

Liz Comer took third in the shot put to score more Buhl points. Natalie Hughes took fifth for Filer.

Audrey Youren cleared 5-feet to take third in the high jump.

Danielle Baker, Gooding, qualified second in the 200, with Kimberly's Heller right behind her.

Slylar Barger placed fifth for Buhl in the 3,200.

CLASS 2A

Friday was a quiet day for District IV's Class 2A squads. Larson Webb took sixth in the pole vault for Declo, while Matt Ivey placed fifth for Valley in the triple jump at 39-04.5.

The Declo boys and girls teams both placed sixth in the sprint medley relay.

Myca Birch qualified in fourth position for today's 400-meter dash final.

Class 3A

Tim Kanellitsas and Hunter Weaver were both a win away from facing each other for the Class 3A state boys singles championship. Instead, the Community School players will face off for third place today in Caldwell.

Philadelphia Phillies' Jayson Werth, right, greets third base coach Sam Perlozzo after hitting a two-run home run off Boston Red Sox pitcher John Lackey in the fifth inning Friday in Philadelphia. Philadelphia won 5-1.

Phillies best Red Sox in Interleague play

PHILADELPHIA — Cole Hamels pitched seven innings, Ryan Howard and Jayson Werth homered, and Philadelphia beat Boston 5-1 on Friday night.

The NL East-leading Phillies (26-15) are back to a season-high 11 games over .500, but it may have been a costly victory. Jimmy Rollins left the game in the sixth inning with a mild right calf strain, and he's day to day. The three-time All-Star shortstop missed 29 games with an injured right calf before returning to the lineup Monday.

Hamels (5-2) outdueled John Lackey (4-3). Hamels allowed one run and three hits, striking out eight. J.C. Romero got the last two outs to earn his second save in three tries.

ORIOLES 5, NATIONALS 3

WASHINGTON — David Hernandez ended a run of 16 straight starts without a victory and Adam Jones broke out of a lengthy home run drought for Baltimore.

Backup catcher Craig Tatum had two hits and two RBIs for the Orioles, who improved to 6-17 on the road. Baltimore took an early 4-0 lead and made it stand up.

REDS 7, INDIANS 4

CLEVELAND — Laynce Nix had three hits, including a tiebreaking double in the sixth inning, to lead Cincinnati.

The Reds bounced back from a stunning defeat in Atlanta on Thursday when they failed to hold a seven-run lead in the ninth inning and closer Francisco Cordero gave up a game-ending, pinch-hit grand slam to Brooks Conrad in a 10-9 loss. The homer deflected off Nix's glove as he reached over the top of the wall.

YANKEES 2, METS 1

NEW YORK — Javier Vazquez pitched one-hit ball for six innings as the Yankees snapped a three-game losing streak.

Skipped twice in the rotation this month and making his first start in nine days, Vazquez (3-4) didn't allow a hit until Angel Pagan looped a single to center with one out in the fifth. He left after he was hit on the finger laying down a sacrifice bunt in the two-run seventh.

RANGERS 2, CUBS 1

ARLINGTON, Texas — Colby Lewis labored through six innings for his first victory in five starts and Nelson Cruz drove in the tiebreaking run for Texas.

The AL West-leading Rangers have a five-game winning streak, their longest of the season coming since being swept in a three-game series at Toronto last weekend.

ASTROS 2, RAYS 1

HOUSTON — Brett Myers didn't allow an earned run in seven innings and Houston snapped Tampa Bay's six-game winning streak.

The worst team in the National League beat the best in baseball, handing the Rays just their 12th loss in 42 games.

ROYALS 9, ROCKIES 2

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Jose Guillen hit two home runs and drove in three runs for Kansas City.

The Royals are 6-2 since Ned Yost replaced Trey Hillman as manager, who was fired May 13. Kansas City has won three straight for the first time since Sept. 20-22.

TWINS 15, BREWERS 3

MINNEAPOLIS — Jason Kubel and Minnesota battered a frustrated Dave Bush for seven first-inning runs.

Kubel drove in four runs and drew one of eight walks handed out by the Brewers. Bush was in strong disagreement about the second one, yelling at home plate umpire Ed Rapuano for calling ball four on a close pitch to Michael

CARDINALS 9, ANGELS 5

ST. LOUIS — St. Louis right-hander Brad Penny hit a grand slam in the third inning, apparently injuring his back on the swing.

Penny lasted only a few warmup pitches in the top of the fourth inning before leaving.

WHITE SOX 8, MARLINS 0

CHICAGO — Mark Buehrle pitched eight scoreless innings to win for the first time in six decisions, Alexei Ramirez drove in five runs and the Chicago White Sox defeated Florida.

NATIONAL LEAGUE BRAVES 7, PIRATES 0

PITTSBURGH — Jason Heyward homered and drove in three runs to support Tim Hudson's eight dominating innings and Atlanta won its fourth straight.

The Braves had won three consecutive games in their final at-bat, including a 10-9 win over Cincinnati on Thursday in which they scored seven runs during the best ninth-inning comeback in franchise history. They have won nine of 11 overall.

Armstrong fires back again at Landis

By Tim Reynolds
Associated Press writer

Floyd Landis ignored desperate pleas from his sponsor to avoid a public fight with Lance Armstrong, according to e-mails the seven-time Tour de France champion released in trying to prove the disgraced cyclist has "zero credibility."

Armstrong released the messages Friday in a second day of attacks on Landis, who accused cycling's biggest star of doping, teaching other riders to cheat and paying off a top cycling official after allegedly testing positive in 2002.

Armstrong has denied those allegations.

"Even a superficial review reveals a troubling, angry and misplaced effort at retribution by Landis for his perceived slights," said a statement posted on Armstrong's RadioShack team website. "While these types of repeated, tired and baseless accusations against Lance have been proven false in the past, it is quite regrettable, but telling, that so many in cycling are now attacked."

Landis did not respond to an e-mail from The Associated Press. His long-time sponsor, Dr. Brent Kay, also did not return a request for comment.

Perhaps the most telling exchange was a long e-mail from Kay, a cycling enthusiast and one of Landis' most ardent supporters, financially and otherwise. Kay has steadfastly said he believes Landis wasn't guilty of doping when he won cycling's most famous race in 2006.

Kay, while reaffirming to Landis that he would support him no matter what, asked him to call a truce with Armstrong and suggested he ride on the star's team.

"If either side does not like this idea just throw this in the trash and be done with it, have the press conference and get it over with. But, once again, I'm asking you to do this for me and my family so we can move on with our lives and leave all the anger, hatred and bitterness behind," Kay wrote in an April 28 e-mail to Landis that he forwarded to Armstrong on May 3.

Less than a month later, Landis went public with his e-mails, not only targeting Armstrong but Tour of California officials, too, for not inviting his team to participate in the race.

"I certainly understand that my revealing that Lance Armstrong has relied on blood doping, EPO, and anabolics to win the three Tours de France in which I helped him will jeopardize your substantial investment in facilitating his appearance so from a business point of view I understand fully," Landis wrote to Andrew Messick, the race director.

In his e-mail response, Messick said the accusation did not dignify a response, and reminded Landis that the California race welcomed him in 2009. Messick said he didn't believe Landis' current team could handle the challenge of an 800-mile stage race.

Federer has 'no complex whatsoever' about Nadal

PARIS (AP) — Plenty of tennis tournaments, big and small, ask Roger Federer to participate in their draw ceremonies — show up, shake some hands, pose for a few photos, lend prestige. He has a ready response.

"I always say, 'No,'" the 16-time major champion explained, "just because I don't want to be a part of it."

At this year's French Open, Federer did not have a choice in the matter. The French Open, you see, always invites the previous year's male and female champions to help determine the brackets by reaching into the tournament's silver trophies, randomly selecting numbers assigned to players. Finally, Federer was eligible.

So there he was Friday morning at the French tennis federation's museum on the Roland Garros grounds, wearing a dark blazer, crisp collared shirt and jeans. Smiling for the cameras. Pulling numbers out of a trophy. Performing, at long last, the duties of the French Open's defending champion.

A few hours later and a short stroll away, Federer donned a gray T-shirt, black shorts and aqua headband and worked up a sweat while practicing in the main stadium, on the very court where a year ago he shed tears while kissing the one major trophy that previously was missing from his collection.

Arriving on site this year "felt different because I have so many great memories from this court now, whereas in the past, I mean, I played good matches, but I couldn't come back and think, 'This is where I've had my most emotional wins in my career.' I didn't. They were all at Wimbledon or U.S. Open or other places," Federer said Friday.

Stepping on Court Philippe Chatrier this week has allowed him to relive what happened in 2009 — the nerves that nearly overwhelmed him before serving for the last time in the final against Robin Soderling, for example, or the sensation of dropping to his knees after winning match point.

And he is thrilled to never be asked again the sorts of questions he was pelted with countless times before last year: Why haven't you won the French Open? Will you ever win the French Open?

"If anything, I feel a little less pressure because I've proven it to myself — and maybe to many other people," Federer said. "I feel like I'm entering the tournament in the right spirit."

Only one man has managed to beat Federer at Roland Garros during the past five years: his chief rival, Rafael Nadal. The Spaniard has won the French Open four times, and each journey to the title required a victory against Federer — in the 2005 semifinals, and the 2006-08 finals. A year ago, though, Nadal was upset in the fourth round, dropping his career mark at Roland Garros to 31-1.

Wie routs Park to advance at Hamilton Farm

GLADSTONE, N.J. — Michelle Wie easily advanced to the round of 16 in the Sybase Match Play Championship on Friday, beating Hee Young Park 5 and 4 on a warm, humid afternoon at hilly Hamilton Farm.

The eighth-seeded Wie will face 57th-seeded Karine Icher on Saturday morning, with the winner advancing to the afternoon quarterfinals.

"I'm just trying to hit fairways and greens and make some putts," Wie said. "It's definitely a grind out there."

Icher, from France, beat Eun-Hee Ji 2 and 1.

With by far the largest gallery following Wie, the 20-year-old Stanford student took a 4-up lead on the front nine and ended the match with a par on No. 14.

Wie won the Lorena Ochoa Invitational in Mexico in November for her first LPGA Tour title and has two top-six finishes in six events this year.

Japanese star Ai Miyazato, a three-time winner in the first six events of the season, dropped a 1-up decision to M.J. Hur.

BECKMAN, ADAMS LEAD NELSON; 16-YEAR-OLD MAKES CUT

IRVING, Texas — Cameron Beckman arrived at the Byron Nelson Championship this morning in jeopardy of missing the cut. He left in first place.

Beckman turned around his delayed opening round with a pair of birdies for a 69, then tied the TPC Four Seasons course record — and set a personal best — with a 61 in the second round.

He's at 10-under 130, tied for the lead with PGA Tour rookie Blake Adams. First round co-leader Jason Day is alone at 131.

The rest of the leaderboard includes something for all ages — from 16-year-old Jordan Spieth to 47-year-old Steve Elkington.

Doug Collins hired as 76ers' coach

The Associated Press

The Philadelphia 76ers made Doug Collins their top choice for a second time.

Collins was hired Friday by the Sixers, charged with reviving a franchise that went 27-55 last season and has the No. 2 overall pick in next month's draft.

A person familiar with the negotiations told The Associated Press on condition of anonymity that Collins agreed to a four-year deal.

Collins was selected among seven candidates, the second time the organization chose him above all others. The Sixers made him the No. 1 overall pick in the 1973 draft.

This is Collins' fourth stint as an NBA coach. He's worked as an analyst for TNT since leaving the Washington Wizards in 2003.

"We are excited to hire a head coach with the level of experience, knowledge and passion for the game that Doug Collins has," team president Ed Stefanski. "He has been around basketball his entire life, has experienced success at every step throughout his career and we are confident in his ability to lead our team."

Collins could not immediately be reached for comment. The Sixers have scheduled a news conference for Monday.

Collins played eight seasons with the 76ers and was a four-time All-Star in a career shortened by injuries. He went 332-287 in coaching stints with Chicago, Detroit and Washington. He led the Bulls to the Eastern Conference Finals in 1989.

Stefanski interviewed Collins on May 1, and he quickly became the No. 1 option to replace the fired Eddie Jordan. Among the other candidates who interviewed were former NBA coaches Avery Johnson and Sam Mitchell.

"The past week has provided us with a series of events that we believe will be a turning point for the Philadelphia 76ers," Comcast-Spectacor chairman Ed Snider said.

GREGG MIDDLEKAUFF'S QUOTE OF THE DAY

"When you are clear, what you want will show up in your life, and only to the extent you are clear."

Janet Attwood, Author of "The Passion Test"

MIDDLEKAUFF

ASHLEY SMITH/Times-News

Minico senior Hayli Worthington, left, clears the last hurdle on her way to victory in the 4A 300-meter hurdles at during the Idaho High School Track and Field Championships at Bronco Stadium in Boise.

Girls

Minico senior Hayli Worthington kept her team in the hunt for the title with gold in the 300 hurdles (44.25) and silver in the 100 high hurdles (15.16). Twin Falls freshman Claire Goss took third in the 300 hurdles.

For Worthington, who just started hurdles this season, winning is a newborn feeling.

"I've never known what it's like to be on top," Worthington said. "I'm so elated right now."

She said she likes the 300 more than the 100 hurdles, because the extra time between hurdles lets her make up ground on her opponents. The 100 hurdles is all about rhythm.

"When you're running against someone and you're that close, you feel their intensity the whole time and it's so much fun, even if you don't win," Worthington said. "I'm so thankful that I can even be here. Getting to go to state is huge, even just qualifying."

Worthington later lead the Minico 4x400 relay team (Kelcy Hamilton, Kendra Bailey and Marlee Chandler) to bronze.

Canyon Ridge and Jerome finished second and third in the 4x200 relay. It was the first time the Riverhawks (Morgan Jones, Kayla Lee, Danielle Bowcut and Brianna Bowcut) beat the Tigers (Haylee Burnham, Ashley Yagla, Makenzie Martens and Jasmine Branch) this season in the event.

"We haven't beat Jerome," Brianna Bowcut said. "Coming down the final stretch I was telling myself I can't slow down. When I crossed the finish line it was like breaking ice, now we got it lucky and got second."

Canyon Ridge topped Jerome by six-hundredths of a second for third place, but Bishop Kelly was disqualified for a lane violation and both teams moved up a spot.

The Bowcut twins had almost identical times in the 200 meters, while Breanna took fourth in the 400 and Danielle tied for seventh in the 100. They have set and broken records all season for the first-year Riverhawk program, which finished 10th.

"We have to break our own records next year," Danielle said. "It's like a written goal. If I could do that last year, then I have to do better this year. You don't want anyone to beat the records, so you keep pushing to keep it smaller."

Jerome's Mackenzie Chojnacki took third (2:21.10) in the 800 and fourth in the 1,600. Amanda Ward of Twin Falls took fifth in the 1,600.

Marlee Chandler of Minico placed fourth in the 100 and third in the 400.

Boys

The junior hurdler had, by his own admission, a less than stellar performance in the 110 high hurdles. He was leading the 300 hurdles when he clipped the third from the last hurdle and placed third.

But redemption with a win in the 4x400 relay. Teammates Moi Rice, David Griffins and Michael Sunderland placed the Spartans second heading into the final lap, about 20 meters back of Kuna.

"It was the most scared I have even been, we are usually leading," said Owen. "The first 250 I thought there was no way I would catch him. The final 150 he started dying and I said, 'Oh yeah! This is just icing on the cake.'" Minico's 4x200 relay team was on its way to a gold medal before handoff trouble derailed them. Zach Brown was forced to slow up in the final leg while Nampa passed him for the top spot. But the Spartans recovered to get second.

"He wasn't coming as fast as I thought so I had to stop," said Zach Brown, who chipped in an eighth-place finish in the 200.

Brother Tyler Brown was edged out for second by three-thousandths of a second in the 100-meter dash. "I felt I could have come out harder," said Brown, despite suffering from a leg injury.

Those shin fractures came back with a vengeance as Brown took fourth in the 200 before limping off the

Celebrating the Holy Spirit

Buhl partakes in Portuguese festival

By Andrew Weeks
Times-News writer

BUHL — The aroma of fresh-baked bread filled the air as about a dozen women bustled in the kitchen, making sweet bread Thursday afternoon at Immaculate Conception Catholic Church.

They had been there since early morning. Others were decorating inside the church, the men moving tables. A number of them were from Portugal, or had Portugal roots — fitting, since they were preparing for a 756-year-old Portuguese religious festival held at the church today and Sunday.

This is the 27th year the Portuguese Holy Spirit Festival, or Festa, has been held at the church.

“It’s basically a celebration of the Holy Spirit,” said Mal Machado, president of the IDES, which stands for Irmandade do Divino Espirito Santo or, in English, Brotherhood of the Divine Holy Spirit. “It’s also to celebrate St. Isabel, a Portugal

A number of festivities are planned for Festa today and Sunday at Immaculate Conception Church, 1701 Poplar St., Buhl.
Today: A steak and oysters lunch will be served at noon, followed by traditional folk dancing, blessing of the cattle and cattle auction, a celebration of the rosary, and presentation of the queens.
Sunday: A parade starts at 11 a.m. at the church, followed by Mass and the traditional crowning of the queens, traditional sopas and meat lunch, auction and bazaar, dinner and traditional Grand March, dance by Chico Avila.

There are plenty of things for people to participate in today and Sunday, he said, including dinners, cattle auction, parade and a visit

TEACHING THE CHILDREN

St. Paul professor visits T.F. church, school

Children laughed under the cross inside the worship center at Immanuel Lutheran Church Thursday morning in Twin Falls. They weren’t being irreverent, but were rehearsing a play they had planned to perform on Friday.

The chuckles came easily as they worked with Jeffrey E. Burkart, an outspoken, friendly gentleman who was at Immanuel Lutheran School this week as part of its artist in residence program.

On Sunday, Burkart, an emeritus professor at Concordia University in St. Paul, Minn., will take part in the church’s worship program, demonstrating its newly refurbished organ.

“We wanted to do something different,” said Music Director Cherry Willie. “He’s a phenomenal organist.”

Burkart said he’ll conduct a miniature hymn festival between services.

“It’s kind of the reintroduction of the newly refurbished organ,” he said. “For about 30 to 45 minutes we’ll sing hymns, improvise hymn tunes. It should be fun.”

For Sunday, he’s also written music for a series of dramatic interpretations of the Day of Pentecost.

The main reason for his visit, however, was for the kids, kindergartners through fifth grade.

“Stand here,” he’d tell them, or “raise your arms out like this.” At one time he had a boy and girl hold hands, which sparked laughter amongst the 31 third- and fourth-graders practicing Thursday morning.

It wasn’t the only time giggles broke from the children, who were rehearsing a Japanese folk tale called “The Mouse’s Marriage.” Other per-

Church warns cell scientists not to play God

By Alessandra Rizzo
Associated Press writer

ROME — Catholic Church officials said Friday that the recently created first synthetic cell could be a positive development if correctly used, but warned scientists that only God can create life.

Vatican and Italian church officials were mostly cautious in their first reaction to the announcement from the United States that researchers had produced a living cell containing man-made DNA. They warned scientists of the ethical responsibility of scientific progress and said that the manner in which the innovation is applied in the future will be crucial.

“It’s a great scientific discovery. Now we have to understand how it will be implemented in the future,” Monsignor Rino Fisichella, the Vatican’s top bioethics official, told Associated Press

Television News.

“If we ascertain that it is for the good of all, of the environment and man in it, we’ll keep the same judgment,” he said. “If, on the other hand, the use of this discovery should turn against the dignity of and respect for human life, then our judgment would change.”

Fisichella, who heads Vatican’s Pontifical Academy for Life, stressed there is no necessary clash between science and faith.

“We look at science with great interest. But we think above all about the meaning that must be given to life,” Fisichella told state-run RAI television. “We can only reach the conclusion that we need God, the origin of life.”

Catholic Church teaching holds that human life is God’s gift, created through natural procreation between a man and woman.

New website offers review of churches across the country

By Manya A. Brachear
Chicago Tribune

CHICAGO — A graduate student at DePaul University, atheist activist Hemant Mehta avoided being a church hater by becoming a church rater.

Enlisted four years ago on a lark to attend about a dozen Chicago-area churches and honestly rate his experience, Mehta's beliefs did not change, but his attitude toward organized religion did.

His journey inspired an interreligious group of entrepreneurs to recently launch ChurchRater, a new approach to church shopping modeled after Yelp, a popular website where users rate local businesses. By inviting ordinary worshippers to post reviews from the pews, the website aims to help Christians navigate the more than 330,000 churches across the U.S. to find where they fit on Sunday morning.

The Rev. Jim Henderson, an evangelical pastor from Seattle and one of the site's founders, insists that Sunday morning worship is when most churches choose to open their doors to the public and hence invite critique. Churches should welcome the evaluations at churchrater.com, he added.

While Henderson and his staff work to filter unnecessarily vile material to keep reviews useful, he said hard truths can hurt and help.

"We're helping the church see themselves through the eyes of outsiders," Henderson said. "This is the phenomenon that's going on around churches and institutions. For a long time, lawyers and doctors didn't want to be rated. ... Churches are not immune to this ... It's an institution in our country, and consequently the church is going to be subject to being reviewed by people."

Some say the site could cure a weariness among the faithful who, faced with a plethora of choices, increasingly reject religious affiliation. But several pastors in the Chicago area said they worry that the system fails to recognize the complexity of relationships within congregations and instead serves as a place to air dirty laundry and settle scores.

"Superficially, it appeals to how we do things," said the Rev. Sean Wicks, pastor of Lakeview Church of Christ in Chicago's Uptown neighborhood. His church received a positive review earlier this year.

"For people who are looking for a church, that's a good way of sorting through the good and the bad. But to go deeper, I'm against that consumerism when it comes to community," Wicks said. "People ought to choose to be part of a community and embrace the flaws of that community and work to fix them."

In addition to inviting amateur reviews, ChurchRater also offers a consulting component. Churches can hire secret shoppers to parachute into the pews and generate a report based on their observations and interaction. Churches may choose to publicize the reports or keep them private.

Bryan Hartman, 26, a member of Lakeview Church of Christ who posted a review in February, said he wishes ChurchRater had been up and running when he and his wife, Chelsea, started church shopping more than a year ago.

After ChurchRater launched last fall, Hartman posted an honest description of the congregation and a worship service. "The songs at the beginning of church are accompanied by children laughing and crying until they are dismissed for Sunday school," he wrote.

Hartman said users of similar Web sites know to read reviews with a grain of salt. He personally would exercise caution when posting reviews about churches he doesn't like, knowing it has a lot to do with personal preference.

How can people of one religion justify killing those of another?

McClatchy Newspapers

All humans are equal

Rabbi Mark Levin of Congregation Beth Torah, Overland Park, Kan.: The Bible states clearly in Genesis 1:27 that all humans are created as equals in the divine image. Nonetheless, we continue to maim and murder that image.

Part of this flows from biblical misinterpretation. The Good Book brims with admonitions against transgressions. Some biblically forbidden capital crimes are high-minded, like the prohibition of murder, obviously universally outlawed by all religions regarding their own believers. Others, like collecting sticks on the Sabbath, appear less serious in our modern, global society. But they are both biblically punishable by death. That execution may either be by God's judgment or by a human court of justice, depending upon the biblical law. Onan and Achan in the Bible died for their sins.

Tragically, some humans appoint themselves as God's agents to mete out God's punishment with their own hands. Nowhere in the Bible are such rights delegated to mere individuals. Nonetheless, too often people presumptuously designate themselves divine judge and in their rebellious temerity transgress God's prohibition against murder.

The hallmark of modernity has been the willingness to accept all people as possessing "inalienable rights, among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." We gain these from the simple fact of our common humanity. To murder because others believe differently returns us to a medieval world that denies the essential equality of all humans, created in God's image.

Turn the other cheek

The Rev. Fran T. Cary, pastor of Trinity A.M.E. Church, Kansas City, Kan.: From the time of Malachi, there was always war. People were struggling for pecking order, which brought about a lot of division and chaos. However, with Christ, there is no pecking order. As the founder of Christianity, Jesus was not a violent man at all.

According to Scripture, there is no justification for killing under any circumstance. As a matter of fact, Jesus teaches us in Matthew 5:44, "But I say to you, love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which spitefully use you, and persecute you."

By telling us not to retaliate, Jesus is saying that by loving and praying for our enemies, we can overcome evil with good. As Christians, this act of love will show that Jesus is Lord of our life.

I am reminded of the Scripture that says, But I say, do not resist an evil person! If someone slaps you on the right cheek, offer the other cheek also. When we are wronged, often our first reaction is to get even. Instead, Jesus said we should do good to those who wrong us. Our desire should not be to keep score, but to love and forgive.

Christ also teaches us, "The second most important commandment is this: 'Love your neighbor as you love yourself.'" (Mark 12:31). No other commandment is greater than these. In love we can seek to love others as completely as Christ loves us. What a wonderful world this would be.

The Vatican newspaper, L'Osservatore Romano, called the synthetic cell "an interesting result" but stressed that it "must have rules, like all the things that touch on the heart of life."

The paper said genetic engineering can do good but acts on "a very fragile terrain."

"It's all about combining courage with caution," it said.

The inventors said the world's first synthetic cell is more a re-creation of existing life — changing one simple type of bacterium into another — than a built-from-scratch kind. But genome-mapping pioneer J. Craig Venter said his team's project paves the way for designing organisms that work differently from the way nature intended for a wide range of uses.

A top Italian cardinal, Angelo Bagnasco, said the invention is "further sign of intelligence, God's gift to understand creation and be able to better govern it," according to Apcom and ANSA news agencies.

"On the other hand, intelligence can never be without responsibility," said Bagnasco, the head of the Italian bishops' conference. "Any form of intelligence and any scientific acquisition ... must always be measured against the ethical dimension, which has at its heart the true dignity of every person."

Another official with the Italian bishops' conference, Bishop Domenico Mogavero, expressed concern that scientists might be tempted to play God.

"Pretending to be God and parroting his power of creation is an enormous risk that can plunge men into a barbarity," Mogavero told newspaper La Stampa in an interview. Scientists "should never forget that there is only one creator: God."

"In the wrong hands, today's development can lead tomorrow to a devastating leap in the dark," said Mogavero, who heads the conference's legal affairs department.

FAITH, feminism & abortion

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Below is an excerpt from On Faith, a daily online religion section produced by The Washington Post and Newsweek. Figures from the world of faith engage in a conversation about an aspect of religion. This week, panel members discussed the intersection of faith, feminism and abortion.

Sarah Palin called herself a “frontier feminist,” saying, “Choosing life may not be the easiest path, but it’s always the right path. Meanwhile, an Arizona nun was excommunicated for agreeing with a Catholic hospital’s decision to allow an abortion to save a mother’s life.

On Faith asked: Can you be a feminist and oppose abortion in all circumstances? Can you be a person of faith and support abortion in some circumstances?

Herb Silverman, president, Secular Coalition for America: “Palin calls herself a ‘frontier feminist,’ but she sounds more like a ‘Pat Robertson feminist.’ The two of them are guided solely by their unshakeable certainty about what God wants. The good news, in this regard, is an equality of the sexes; the bad news is that both sexes can be sadly and dangerously mistaken.”

“Speaking to members of the Susan B. Anthony List, Palin described how she’d had doubts about whether she would be able to handle

For me, freedom is the ability to make a choice which best suits the circumstances.

I support the nun’s choice to save a life.”

a baby with Down syndrome. She ‘chose’ to have the baby because of her certainty that ‘God will never give us something we can’t handle.’ Similarly, Sarah Palin said of her unwed and pregnant teenage daughter, ‘For Bristol, choosing life was not an easy decision.’ Note the implication that both members of this advantaged family had the choice on whether to have an abortion, and chose not to. Sarah Palin claims that her God made sure these choices worked out well for her family, and she would like to see other families prevented from making a different choice. However, ‘One choice’ is an oxymoron.

“Palin failed to mention the countless deaths of women who knew their lives would be in danger unless they had an abortion, or the women who wanted to prevent their hopelessly deformed fetuses from being brought to term only to suffer and die soon afterward. Palin may sincerely believe that those dead pregnant women and deformed babies pleased God and today are frolicking in heaven, but that does not give her the right to feel morally superior to other women with very different theological views.”

Susan Brooks Thistlethwaite professor, Chicago Theological Seminary: “Those who would deny women the right to moral autonomy, the ability to engage in moral reasoning about whether to continue a pregnancy to term or to have an abortion, develop their arguments based on assumptions of women’s moral ineptitude.”

Anju Bhargava, consultant, Hindu American community leader: “As a Hindu, I believe the Soul is eternal and immortal, while the body is subject to birth and death. In the context of abortion, what is important to me is the intent behind the decision. In the overall cosmic balance, was the act life-enhancing or -diminishing? ... For me, freedom is the ability to make a choice which best suits the circumstances. I support the nun’s choice to save a life.”

Colleen Carroll Campbell, columnist and TV/radio show host for EWTN: “For many American women, the feminism that once attracted them with its lofty goal of promoting respect for women’s dignity has morphed into something antithetical to that dignity: a movement that equates a woman’s liberation with her license to kill her unborn child, marginalizes people of faith if they support even modest restrictions on abortion, and colludes with a sexist culture eager to convince a woman in crisis that dealing with her unplanned pregnancy is her choice and, therefore, her problem. Many women are not buying it. ... And they reject the false dichotomy of abortion-centric feminism that says respect for human dignity is a zero-sum game in which a woman can win only if her unborn child loses.”

Susan K. Smith, senior pastor, Advent United Church of Christ in Columbus, Ohio: “One of the lessons we all learn early on (or should) is that we should stay away from absolutes. And yet, pro-life advocates maintain an absolute — that abortions should never be allowed.

“It is the absolutism of the pro-life position which is most troublesome, coupled with the fact that ‘life’ seems to be precious only if it is a fetus. How is it that a fetus is more important than the woman who is giving it birth, who might be a mother of other children, or who does not want to die for the sake of honoring church doctrine? ...

“The problem with absolutes, and especially absolutes that use God as their justification, is that they impose on us ideology disguised as theology. I truly wonder if God would sanction letting a mother die to save an unborn fetus.”

Some clergy may have higher obesity and chronic disease rates than their congregations

By Jeannine Stein
Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Being a member of the clergy has its responsibilities, but the demands of the job may take a bigger toll than most people think.

A new study found that some clergy members had higher rates of obesity and chronic diseases than their non-clergy counterparts.

The study, published online recently in the journal Obesity, surveyed 1,726 male and female members of the United Methodist clergy in North Carolina, asking their height and weight and if they’d ever been diagnosed with conditions such as high blood pressure, diabetes, coronary heart disease and asthma. The clergy members were predominately male (75 percent), white (91 percent), married (87 percent), older (average age 52) and highly educated.

Researchers from the Duke University Center for Health Policy found that obesity rates among all clergy ages 35 to 64 was 39.7 percent, about 10 percent higher than the general population of North Carolina. Obesity rates among male clergy ages 45 to 54 was 14.2 percent higher than North Carolinian men. However, fewer clergy were overweight compared to the general population — 34.9 percent compared to 40.3 percent.

Clergy members also had significantly higher incidences of being diagnosed with certain chronic diseases, including diabetes, arthritis, high blood pressure and asthma.

In the paper, the authors wrote: “Unfortunately, clergy face numerous challenges to exercise and healthy eating habits. These challenges include a vocation that is sedentary, with an average of four evenings per week away from home, and frequent work weeks of (more than 50 hours) with little schedule predictability.” They added, “We can only speculate as to why self-reported disease rates were higher for clergy. Obesity is likely one contributing factor. Another reason may be a tendency among clergy to put the needs of others before their own, in their work to serve God.”

celebration of the rosary will be 7 p.m. today.

On Sunday, a procession will start at 11 a.m. at the church, followed by Mass, in Portuguese, celebrated by Oliveira. The traditional crowning of the queens will take place during Mass.

“It’s a tradition that’s been carried on for hundreds of years,” Machado said.

Festa (pronounced “fesh-ta”) dates back to 1354, when devout Portuguese queen Isabel prayed for peace between her warring husband and son. She said if her prayer was answered she’d hold a celebration in honor of the Holy Spirit. Keeping her promise once peace had prevailed, she held a celebration at which she crowned a peasant girl and fed the community.

She gave up her wealth to feed the poor, Machado said. The celebrations, which died out in mainland Portugal but stayed alive in the Azores, have continued since then.

The festival kicked up in the United States in about 1950, said Anna Avelar, one of the women who baked bread Thursday. What started locally with three families has grown into several hundred. There are about 200 Portuguese families in the Magic Valley, most from the Azores, according to Avelar, herself Portuguese.

Kathryn Weiss, a church member who’s been helping with the celebrations for the past four years, said the festa is a positive thing for the area.

“I don’t speak Portuguese, but I always come out to help,” Weiss said. “I think it’s a good thing for them to share their Portuguese heritage with the community.”

Machado said the church expects about 1,000 people over the free, two-day celebration.

A number of area businesses have donated their goods for the event, for which the church is grateful. Money raised at the auction help fund the event as well as other charitable programs throughout the year, he said.

A similar festival will be held in Wendell next weekend, Machado said.

“What does a flower sing?” Answer, “A plant chant.”

The exercise helps the students to use not only their right-brain skills but to think outside the box.

“They’re not only logical but intuitive,” he said.

During his lessons, there’s also plenty of teaching and explaining about the gospel.

During his stay, Burkart visited Shoshone Falls and noticed something — the profile of a face in the rocks.

It inspired within him a poem, which he calls “I Am the Face in the Falls.”

*I am the Face in the Falls.
Can you hear
My voice in the Thunderous waters?
Can you see me?
Do you know
Where I am?
Will I be here tomorrow
Or simply disappear
As water turns me
Into sand?*

“There is a face in the falls. Or at least there was when I was there,” he said, noting that the flow of the water is what made it appear like a face. “It might not be there now.”

Burkart has written a number of poems. He’s a well-known author, dramatist, musician, speaker and teacher who’s authored 10 books, a number of articles, chancel dramas, Christian musicals, hymns, CD recordings, videos and films.

“It’s been a wonderful experience for our students,” said principal Michelle Jund. “They have learned a lot this week from him. We are very excited to have him here, and the energy he’s brought with him.”

This is the first year the school has hosted the artist in residence program, but Jund said it’s something she’d like to continue.

“It’s been a very positive thing,” she said.

Burkart, a friend of Pastor Larry Vedder, said he enjoyed his visit to Twin Falls.

“Working with the kids here at Immanuel Lutheran School this week has been a real treat for me, because whenever you work with kids they give you more than you give them. ... It’s been my privilege to be with them and see them grow over the past week ... It’s been a great deal of fun and also a great learning experience, not only for the kids but for me.”

Santiago Leyba

Santiago Leyba, 67, peacefully passed away Wednesday, May 19, 2010, surrounded by his family and loved ones.

Santiago was born July 25, 1942, in Canjilon, N.M., the son of Jose and Fidelia Leyba. He was raised in Clearfield, Utah, and then served his country in the U.S. Navy. Santiago moved to Twin Falls in the spring of 1977. He purchased his little house on the canyon and settled down to raise a family. Santiago worked for the Idaho Migrant Council for 15 years as a recreational youth coordinator and housing manager. Santiago always lived life the way he wanted to, on his own terms, doing what made him happy. He enjoyed telling jokes and stories, fishing, camping and going for drives in the country. He loved oldies and country music, working in his yard, doing taxidermy, and especially spending time with his family. Santiago loved to drink beer with his friends, and he turned that passion into an occupation as a bar owner at The Cellar and Salmon Dam Saloon.

Santiago was our beloved father, grandfather, brother, uncle, cousin and dear friend. He will be greatly missed by all who knew and loved him. He is survived by his children, Patricio, Karmella, Michelle, Sugaree and Salina; his grandchildren, Skyler J., Dori, Rhianna, Sarah, Dustin, Skyler, Jeanina, Aalyah and Kevin; his great-grandchildren, Karina, Mercy, Gino, Sophia, Genessa, Isaiah, Alex, Anthony, Ashton, and Aden. He was preceded in death by his parents; brother, Louie; sister, Laura; son, Himó; brothers-in-law, Blaine and Willy; and nephews, Rubel, Eddy and Matthew.

A memorial service will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday, May 22, at Reynolds Funeral Chapel in Twin Falls. To offer condolences to Santiago's family or to share a memory of Santiago, please visit www.reynoldschapel.com.

BP delays attempt to stop Gulf oil by shooting mud

By Greg Bluestein
Associated Press writer

ROBERT, La. — It will be at least Tuesday before engineers can shoot mud into a blown-out well at the bottom of the Gulf of Mexico, BP said Friday in yet another delay in the month-long effort to stop the oil that is now washing into wetlands and onto at least one public beach.

A so-called "top kill" has been tried on land but never 5,000 feet underwater, so scientists and engineers have spent the past week preparing and taking measurements to make sure it will stop the oil that has been spewing into the sea for a month. They originally hoped to try it as early as this weekend.

BP spokesman Tom Mueller said there was no snag in the preparations, but that the company must get equipment in place and finish tests before the procedure can begin. BP already has three deepwater rigs and other equipment near the blown-out well.

"It's taking time to get everything set up," he said. "They're taking their time. It's never been done before. We've got to make sure everything is right."

Crews will shoot heavy mud into a crippled piece of equipment atop the well, which started spewing after Shrimp boats carrying oil collection booms anchor for the night in Gulf of Mexico off the Mississippi River delta south of Venice, La. Thursday. One month after the Deepwater Horizon oil rig explosion, oil continues to leak into the Gulf of Mexico and has begun washing onto Louisiana coastline.

the drilling rig Deepwater Horizon exploded April 20 off the coast of Louisiana, killing 11 workers. Then engineers will direct cement at the well to permanently stop the oil.

BP PLC, which was leasing the rig and is responsible for the cleanup, has tried and failed several times to halt the oil.

Chief Operating Officer Doug Suttles said Friday that a mile-long tube inserted into the leaking pipe is sucking about 92,400 gallons of oil a day to the surface, a figure much lower than the 210,000 gallons a day the company said the tube was sucking up Thursday. Suttles said the higher number is the most the tube has been sucking up at any one time, while the lower number is the average.

The company has conceded that more oil is leaking than its initial estimate of 210,000 gallons a day total, and a government team is working to get a handle on exactly how much is flowing. Even under the most conservative estimate, about 6 million gallons have leaked so far, more than half the amount spilled by the Exxon Valdez in 1989.

Anger has grown as oil has started washing into delicate coastal wetlands in Louisiana. A deep, stagnant ooze sat in the middle of a particularly devastated marsh off the Louisiana coast.

In Grand Isle, south of New Orleans, officials were forced to close a public beach as globs of oil that resembled melted chocolate washed up.

Oil was hitting in various forms — light sheens, orange-colored splotches and heavier brown sheets — said Chris Roberts, a local official who surveyed the area Friday morning.

Embassy caterer among six arrested in New York bomb plot

The Associated Press

ISLAMABAD — The co-owner of a catering company that organized events for the U.S. Embassy is among six men detained by Pakistan for allegedly helping the failed Times Square bombing suspect, a senior Pakistani intelligence official said Friday.

In a statement on its website, the U.S. Embassy warned that the catering company was suspected of ties to terrorist groups and said American diplomats had been instructed to stop using the firm.

Like Faisal Shahzad, the Pakistani-American accused in the failed New York bombing, the six Pakistani detainees were all members of their country's urban elite, including several who were educated in the United States. One was a former army major.

The suspects were part of a loose network motivated by hatred of America and the West, the Pakistani official told The Associated Press. He spoke on condition of anonymity because of the sensitive nature of the investigation.

One of the men often traveled to the tribal areas close to the Afghan border where U.S. officials have said Shahzad received explosives training under the Pakistani Taliban, the official said.

At least two allegedly helped Shahzad with funding, the official and another

The Hanif Rajput catering services office in Islamabad, Pakistan on Friday. The U.S. Embassy warned Friday that terrorist groups may have 'established links' to a high-class catering company in Pakistan that a security official said is owned by a suspect arrested over the failed car bombing in Times Square.

Pakistani security officer said, although the exact nature of their link to the Times Square bombing suspect was still being investigated.

The co-owner of the Hanif Rajput Catering Service, Salman Ashraf Khan, was recruited because two other suspects "wanted him to help bomb a big gathering of foreigners" whose event his company was catering, the Pakistani intelligence officer said.

He said a U.S. tip led to the first arrest — a computer engineer, Shoaib Mughal, who runs a large computer dealership in Islamabad.

Mughal is accused of telephoning Shahzad soon after the failed May 1 bombing in New York's Times Square and urging him to return to Pakistan. He also visited the Afghan border region several times to meet with top Taliban commanders, including Hakimullah Mehsud, and give them money, the official said.

In New York, two U.S. law enforcement officials close to the Times Square probe said Friday that Shahzad told U.S. investigators he received financial support from the Pakistani Taliban for the failed bombing.

U.S. authorities believe money in the U.S. was channeled through an underground money transfer network known as "hawala." However, investigators don't believe anyone in the U.S. who provided money knew what it was for, said the officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity because the investigation is still under way.

Snubbed in land sale, man sues Idaho foundation

BOISE (AP) — A Washington state man has filed a lawsuit against the University of Idaho Foundation following the rejection of his bid for a 120-acre piece of property on northern Idaho's Craig Mountain that instead went to the Idaho Department of Fish and Game.

Steve Heitstuman of Clarkston recently filed the lawsuit in 2nd District Court claiming he put in the high bid and asking the court to force the private trust to sell the land to him and cover his court costs.

The sale of the land to Fish and Game was set to close Thursday, but that has been put on hold with the lawsuit.

In March, Heitstuman bid $126,000 plus closing costs for the

"We are aware of the complaint and are confident that all laws and procedures were followed in this matter and as result the allegations have no merit."

— Nancy McDaniel, executive director of the University of Idaho Foundation property on the northwestern edge of Craig Mountain.

But the foundation took a $122,000 offer from the Department of Fish and Game, noting that agency's offer to allow the University of Idaho to use the land increased the value of the bid.

Heitstuman's lawsuit claims the foundation serves as the "alter ego" of the Moscow-based university, so it should follow public bidding requirements that mandate sales go to the highest bidder.

"I think he has a beef coming," said Danny Radakovich, Heitstuman's attorney. "Whether they grant him relief or not, we will just have to wait and see. I just asked them to convey the land to us and get this over with. I don't know if they are going to do that or not."

The foundation contends it is a nonprofit and is not a state agency, meaning it isn't bound by rules governing state agency bids and has the right to reject any bid at its discretion.

"We are aware of the complaint and are confident that all laws and procedures were followed in this matter and as result the allegations have no merit," Nancy McDaniel, executive director of the foundation at Boise, told the Lewiston Tribune.

Fish and Game already owns about 78,000 acres south of Lewiston that make up its Craig Mountain Wildlife Management Area, where it aims to preserve wildlife and fish habitat along the lower Snake and Salmon rivers.

Special hunting tags for the mountain's bighorn sheep bring in tens of thousands of dollars at auction.

Alfalfa sprouts recalled after 22 sickened

By Mary Clare Jalonick
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Salmonella found in raw alfalfa sprouts appears to have sickened 22 people in 10 states, including one infant in Oregon, prompting a nationwide recall of the product.

Caldwell Fresh Foods of Maywood, Calif., announced the recall Friday. According to the Oregon Department of Human Services, which also announced the recall Friday, Caldwell's product was sold in 18 states in the West, Midwest and South.

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, 11 people were sickened in California, two were sickened in Nevada and two were sickened in Wisconsin. Arizona, Oregon, Idaho, Illinois, Missouri, New Mexico and Colorado each had one person sickened. Six people were hospitalized.

A representative for Caldwell did not return a call Friday and a release issued by the company did not list the states to which the company sold the sprouts. The company did say the sprouts were sold at restaurants, delicatessens and retailers nationwide, including many in California. Those California stores include Trader Joe's, Wal-Mart, Kings Super Markets, Numero Uno, Cardenas Markets, Gonzales Northgate Markets, Jons Markets and Canton Foods.

The company said the recalled sprouts were sold in plastic cups and plastic bags under the Caldwell Fresh Foods brand, plastic cups under the Nature's Choice brand and plastic containers under the California Fresh Exotics brand.

William E. Keene, a senior epidemiologist at the Oregon health department, said Caldwell Fresh Foods is cooperating with an investigation.

Salmonella is an organism that can cause serious and sometimes fatal infections in young children and others with weakened immune systems. It can cause diarrhea, fever and vomiting.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"So many worlds, so much to do,
So little done, such things to be."
— Alfred, Lord Tennyson

It is not normally a good idea to bid a grand slam with only 12 top tricks, but today's declarer found two extra chances without taking a finesse. The substantial extra chance did not materialize, but at the end South was able to claim victory.

When North heard his partner show extras and six hearts, he found out about the key-cards and the diamond king and knew that his partner ought to have at least one other honor for his jump-response. His leap to the heart grand slam was a little sporting, but he figured the contract had to have play and might be cold.

The defenders led a trump — always sensible against a grand slam reached via Key-Card Blackwood, since declarer is unlikely to be off a finessible trump honor. Declarer won in hand, cashed the spade ace, then played three top clubs, discarding spades from hand. He crossed to the heart jack to ruff a spade high, then went back to the heart queen to ruff another spade.

Had spades split, he would have had his 13th trick, but as it was, he simply cashed his last trump, pitching a diamond from dummy. In the three-card ending, he led a diamond to his ace, and (knowing that East's last two cards included the spade king) led a diamond back to his king, playing for his only remaining chance that West had started life with a doubleton diamond queen. When the queen appeared, the slam had come home.

DEAR ABBY: I have been in a relationship with my college boyfriend for 2 1/2 years. We have had our share of struggles, but worked through most of them over time.

Lately, our polar opposite political views have driven a wedge between us. I feel we are losing respect for each other as well as our sense of intimacy and love.

How can we learn to have a mutual respect for our different political opinions while not compromising what each truly believes?

— RIDING A SEESAW IN MIAMI

DEAR ABBY Jeanne Phillips

DEAR RIDING A SEESAW: Begin by accepting that not all couples are in lockstep when it comes to their political beliefs. It is easier when you have respect for each other in other areas of your relationship. Then remember that when it comes to voting, individuals are not joined at the hip. And if that doesn't work, follow the example set by James Carville and Mary Matalin, a high-profile, politically disparate couple whose differences haven't driven them apart.

DEAR ABBY: Every time I go out with a man who says he wants a woman who treats him well and doesn't play around, I get burned. I'm not a game player, and I end up tripping over my feelings every single time. I give every guy the benefit of the doubt, and I'm the one who is always disappointed! At 29, I am contemplating life with eight cats and a set of knitting needles because I have finally had it with dating. Aren't there any men who actually mean what they say anymore?

— STEPHANIE IN HOUSTON

DEAR STEPHANIE: I'm tempted to say no, that all the good ones are married off — but it wouldn't be true. So here's what I'm recommending: Start asking your friends of both sexes what you may be doing to attract men who hurt you or flake out. When a woman is repeatedly hurt because she gives every guy "the benefit of the doubt," it's because she's attracting the wrong people.

DEAR ABBY: A few years ago my husband and I took in a family member's infant daughter until a time when her mother could get back on her feet. That time never came, and we went through the process of adoption. We have been a happy family ever since.

I am now pregnant for the first time. Several friends and relatives have offered to throw us a shower. I am unsure of the proper etiquette since this is our second child (but our first biological child). My husband and I don't want to seem to be asking for anything, especially if having a shower for a second baby is considered improper. But we have never had a chance to experience the fun side of a pregnancy. I would appreciate your thoughts.

— FIRST-TIME PREGNANT,

SECOND-TIME MOM

DEAR FIRST-TIME PREGNANT: I see no reason why there shouldn't be a shower for your baby. It's a lovely way to celebrate the new life you are bringing into the world. However, according to Emily Post: "Mothers and sisters of the mother-to-be should NOT give the shower. Naturally, mothers and sisters should be invited, but as with any other gift-giving event, they should not initiate an invitation that bears an obligation on the part of the recipient to provide a present to direct relatives."

IF MAY 22 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You might be wise to get your vacation time in this month, while you are in a romantic mood or can better enjoy fun, or at least before the beginning of August. During August you will be at your best if you remain organized and concise. That is a time to tread water, to avoid beginning anything of importance — but what you do to prove your competency is important. Late September and very early September is the best time to put your most significant plans into motion. That is a time when people who are good for you grow closer.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Keep your money in your pocket and wear your heart anywhere but your sleeve. Like a cat, you might prepare to pounce on the object of your affection only to find that he or she flies away with ease.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Parties could turn into the pits. Celestial conditions are shifting away from care-free frolics. Make an effort to spread good will, especially within your neighborhood, but don't start anything new.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Forgive and forget makes a great motto this weekend. A turn-the-other-cheek attitude might keep you out of hot water with opinionated relatives or disagreeable neighbors. Avoid all conflicts.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Here today might mean gone tomorrow. Fascinating new people can brighten your weekend, but a sudden passion could fizzle before you can count to ten. Don't count on a new romance lasting.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Don't be such a couch potato. A little glamour and fun can brighten your weekend. Try something new and exciting. A day trip to the beach or a night on the town can offer a break from the ordinary.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Handle sensitive subjects with kid gloves. You might not receive the reaction you had hoped for if you delve into politics, religion, or philosophy so hold off on making important proposals or suggestions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Love conquers all. Your kindness and generosity will melt even the coldest heart. Don't make any important purchases or promises under these stars. Things will turn out for the best if you stand pat.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Pushy people might get their buttons pushed. The big "turn on" that gets you so excited and has you breathlessly anticipating magnificent results might turn out to be a "turn off" or just a major dud.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Will power might win, but the cost might be too great. Over the next several days making headway with financial plans could be like trying to move the Brooklyn Bridge with a tow truck.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your optimism could be misguided. Right now your judgment could be off center, and you may have a tendency to ignore lessons from the past. Keep your credit card in your pocket this weekend.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Too much, too soon — or too little, too late. A lack of cash may bar you from the mall. Too much chitchat can interfere with true understanding. It is a day when a lot may be said about nothing.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Don't waste time or money trying to keep up with the latest fads and fashions. Trying to impress others can be costly and has the added disadvantage of emphasizing fundamental differences of opinion.
