Otter visits C3, praises regional collaboration

Gov. C.L. 'Butch' Otter shares a laugh with leaders of C3, a Florida-based call center, at a meeting with representatives of the company, the city of Twin Falls, the Southern Idaho Economic Development Organization, the College of Southern Idaho and the Twin Falls Urban Renewal Agency at the site of the former Dell call center in Twin Falls.

Company raises initial employee figure to 900 workers

The senior vice president of business development for C3 told Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter on Wednesday that the company is happy to be in Idaho and is "looking into" opening another call center — possibly in the same state.

The announcement was made during a tour of the company's sprawling call center located at 851 Pole Line Road in Twin Falls, which gave state, regional and local officials an opportunity to meet with some of the company's top executives and to learn more about the collaborative process used to attract the firm.

The process was a complicated agreement, which in its simplest form called on the Twin Falls Urban Renewal Agency to provide the building, Southern Idaho Economic Development Organization to market the Members of a drug search task force made up of sheriff's officials from Gooding, Twin Falls and Lincoln counties follow an Idaho Army National Guard helicopter Wednesday that located a marijuana crop north of Buhl, near the former Camp Roach along the Snake River Canyon.

Sheriffs seize $282K in pot plants

By Bradley Guire

BUHL — These drug busts carried a bit of irony.

Not far from the old Camp Roach site in the Snake River Canyon, law enforcement officers from Gooding, Lincoln and Twin Falls counties seized 141 marijuana plants on Wednesday. Gooding County Sheriff Shaun Gough said the plants have a street value of $282,000 — or $2,000 per plant.

One location where marijuana was found was an Idaho Department of Fish and Game wildlife area at the bottom of the Clear Lakes Grade.

Some of the 141 marijuana plants found Wednesday. The drugs have an estimated street value of $282,000.

"It's a shame that people do this in places where families come," Gough said. "Families go there to fish, not to look at marijuana plants."

Growers apparently thought areas like that would be the perfect hideaway spots. Perfect, if not for the deputies working as spotters from above in an Idaho Army National Guard helicopter.

Flying within 100 feet of the canyon floor in the small chopper, a pair of spotters kept a sharp eye out and radioed the ground crew when they found a crop. Gough and nine officers from the various agencies rode ATVs down dusty trails and foraged through trees, weeds, foliage and runoff water deep in the canyon to find their target.

TFHS meets AYP, starts with clean slate

Twin Falls High School is getting a new start.

The high school's status has been changed to "new school," which gives it a fresh start at making adequate yearly progress in annual tests mandated under the provisions of the federal No Child Left Behind Act. Also, for the first year, TFHS made AYP on the tests given to students during the 2009-10 school year.

The combined developments for TFHS give school officials a two-edged sense of vindication that the school is on the right path.

Here's how it works:

After six consecutive years of failing to reach AYP, schools can apply for "new school" status with the Idaho State Board of Education's subcommittee on restructuring. In the case of TFHS, its application process involved submitting a 73-page portfolio with details that include restructuring actions, data and profile information to show that teachers and

Twin Falls unveils 5-year planning tool

By Nick Coltrain
Times-News writer

For the first time, the city of Twin Falls is taking a comprehensive look past the coming fiscal year.

City staff spent several months creating a detailed Microsoft Excel spreadsheet that allows budgeters a peek at where the budget may be in five years and how changes made today will affect the future, Assistant City Manager Travis Rothweiler said.

"We have lots of planning documents, but we never linked them together to see how we're going to fund our plans," Rothweiler said.

The tool, which still needs formal City Council approval, is already making waves: City budgeters are using it to cinch up this year's proposed budget and help the heads of city departments prepare for similarly tight budgets for years to come. With the economy still shaky, the city is leaving its projected income flat for five years so as not to overbudget. This leaves projected revenues and expenditures within 1 percent of each other for the next five years.

URA pledges to be proactive, not reactive

Five-year plan includes downtown revitalization, business targeting

By Nick Coltrain
Times-News writer

Between January 2007 and mid-2008, Twin Falls Economic Development Director Melinda Anderson said her department "literally had no time to sit and think about what we should be working on."

"The economy was red-hot," she said. "All we were doing was reacting to leads coming through."

But then the Great

Recession came to Twin Falls. Interested businesses stopped calling. So, the Urban Renewal Agency started looking at being proactive instead of reactive. That pledge began to take form this week with the unveiling of its five-year plan.

"We said, let's not wait for the economy to turn around. Let's start being proactive as an agency," Anderson said. "It's unfortunately taken us a while to get to this point."

Anderson said the URA hopes to hire a consultant to identify target business sectors for Twin Falls — it has set aside $25,000 for it in its preliminary budget — and is thinking about hiring another consultant to help with Old Towne revitalization. It has $20,000 set aside in its budget for that idea,

Man busted for child porn

Times-News

A former Air Force and National Guard service member faces charges of possessing child pornography.

James Patrick Touchette, 28, of Twin Falls, was charged with eight counts of possession of sexually exploitative material on June 24 and made his first appearance in 5th District Court in Twin Falls on Tuesday. He was released, and a preliminary hearing was set for July 23.

According to a police report, an FBI lab in Boise found nearly 5,000 pictures it described as “child pornography or child erotica” on Touchette’s personal computer in early January. Twin Falls police seized the computer following a December interview with Touchette, in which he told police that he had looked at child pornography for more than eight years and that he was addicted to it.

According to police, Touchette was also a youth mentor at St. Edward’s Catholic Church and an instructor at Success Martial Arts, both located in Twin Falls.

administrators are addressing areas of need.

The new status removes the “corrective action” status that schools are placed in after their fifth and sixth consecutive years of not making AYP. The state approved the school’s application for the change in status before test results showed that TFHS met AYP requirements in its 2009-10 tests.

Principal Ben Allen credited the school’s staff and the school’s building leadership team, which had a hand in the application, with the accomplishments.

“It’s a nice thing and to me it just shows that we were always doing a lot of good things,” Allen said.

Allen said the school could have waited to see how it did on AYP tests before applying for the change in status, but decided to move forward with it in advance.

“Going through the exercise was very good for us,” he said. “... It showed the staff we’ve done a lot of things.”

Gala Bortz, a math teacher at the school, is on the school’s building leadership team.

She said things that have helped the school include the switch from a block schedule to a slate of daily classes. The school district made that change for the 2009-10 school year in response to state budget cuts.

Also, she said, TFHS has had success with 25-minute advisory periods, during which teachers meet with groups of about 20 students to see how they’re doing in their classes.

To make AYP, a school must pass in all of up to 41 different categories that break down test scores and student groups by factors such as ethnicity, economic status and disabilities.

Hart denies ethics allegations

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

A north Idaho lawmaker on Wednesday denied allegations in a complaint that is under investigation by a House ethics committee.

State Rep. Phil Hart, R-Athol, denied both allegations in the complaint filed against him by House Minority Leader John Rusche of Lewiston. The complaint alleges he used his public office to get special treatment while trying to avoid paying taxes, and raises conflict-of-interest questions about Hart’s fight over unpaid taxes.

Hart, a member of the House Revenue and Taxation Committee, faces nearly $300,000 in tax liens from the Internal Revenue Service, while also owing the Idaho Tax Commission another $53,000 in state income taxes and accumulated interest and penalties.

In his dealings with the commission, Hart has tried to argue that his status as a lawmaker exempted him from the deadline for filing an appeal contesting the amount he owes, an assertion that state attorneys have disputed.

In a letter accompanying the response to the ethics committee, Hart wrote that he supports the process, but is “concerned that anyone would choose to base an ethics complaint from what ‘appears’ from ‘recent news accounts.’”

“If the legislature were to convene an ethics committee each time a news account infers, implies, or even accuses one of its members of some inappropriate action we would literally have no time to attend to the peoples’ business,” Hart wrote.

All rulings regarding Hart in all proceedings before the tax commission were in Hart’s “individual capacity and not as a member of the House,” Starr Kelso, Hart’s attorney, wrote in the response.

Kelso added that Hart has not voted on anything of “sole personal interest to him.”

The ethics committee meets next on July 29.

Judge to weigh halting wild horse roundups

By Laura Lundquist
Times-News writer

Just one month after the U.S. Bureau of Land Management asked for public input on improving wild horse and burro management, 12 horses have died during a planned roundup in Elko County, Nev.

The BLM suspended the Tuscarora operation on Monday, and wild horse advocates want all roundups suspended until better methods are established.

Today, a federal judge in Reno will consider a temporary restraining order on roundups requested Tuesday by the Humane Society of the United States (HSUS) and other groups.

The protesting groups questioned the wisdom of scheduling roundups during the hottest months of the year, and HSUS wants them limited during extreme temperatures or over long distances.

BLM veterinarians determined that the Tuscarora mustangs died of dehydration, water intoxication from drinking too much water following the roundup, and injuries sustained during the roundup.

In the two days before the roundup, temperatures in northeastern Nevada had reached into the 90s. Although the roundup was complete by 9 a.m. Saturday, helicopters forced the heat-stressed horses to run.

Heather Emmons, spokesman for the BLM’s Elko District Office, said the horses looked healthy when they arrived, one group traveling one mile and the other eight miles to the corrals. Two groups remain on the range, with crews trucking water to them.

In Idaho, recent roundups have included one near Challis in July 2009 and another near Emmett that October.

Doro Lohmann, founder of Silent Voices Equine Rescue in Bellevue, said regardless of the heat, July is still too early to be subjecting horses to a roundup. Younger colts don’t have the lung capacity to keep up, she said, and foals can run their soft hooves off.

Peak foaling season is mid-April to mid-May. So, the BLM doesn’t conduct helicopter roundups from March 1 to June 30, a long-standing policy with input from an advisory committee, said BLM program specialist Susie Stokes.

But Cody Martin, BLM program lead for Idaho, said he expects the six-week buffer on either side of peak foaling season will increase when the new BLM management plan comes out.

Other federal agencies have policies that give young animals plenty of time before a roundup. Pat Jameson of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service National Bison Range said range biologists always plan their roundup for early October to ensure calves are big enough.

“We can’t do it too much earlier because it’s too hot and we don’t want to lose any to heat stress,” Jameson said.

BLM wild horse managers picked July 6-31 for the Tuscarora roundup through an environmental assessment.

Lohmann said the best time to round up horses is in the late summer when horses are hungry and feed traps can be set out to lead them in.

“We have the knowledge to do this better,” Lohmann said. “We’re too busy blaming and that doesn’t help the horses.”

T.F. County deputy injured in crash

Twin Falls County Sheriff’s Deputy Kelly Hassani, 49, was injured Wednesday after being wrecked at an intersection west of Kimberly.

Kyle Benson, 35, of Buhl, hit Hassani’s patrol car at the intersection of Kimberly Road and 3300 East Road with his 2010 Volkswagen Jetta around 11:45 a.m. Benson was heading east on U.S. Highway 30 as Hassani was northbound on 3300 East while responding to another motor-vehicle accident, according to an Idaho State Police release.

Also involved in the crash was Paula Salsgiver, 47, of Buhl, whose 2005 Chevrolet Equinox was also hit by Benson.

Butts attempts to change plea

Christopher Butts, who was charged in March with five counts of grand theft by possession of stolen property and possession of a controlled substance, attempted to change his plea Monday in 5th District Court in Jerome, but the state wasn’t interested.

Butts wanted to plead guilty to two counts of grand theft and one count of possession of a controlled substance in exchange for receiving a nine-year sentence, plus restitution and fines. He asked the state to dismiss three counts of grand theft by possession. The state didn’t agree to those terms, and a new trial date was set for Aug. 18.

Butts is the owner of a salvage yard in northwestern Jerome County, where authorities said they found at least five stolen vehicles in March.

S.C. man found dead near Idaho-Utah border according to Idaho State Police.

Leonard Cichon, 53, of Cowpens, S.C., was found at 5 a.m. in a 2010 International semitrailer along westbound Interstate 84 at milepost 275, an ISP release stated.

Cichon died of an unknown medical condition and his semitrailer left the road for unknown reasons.

His death remains under investigation.

Cichon was believed to be wearing his seat belt and alcohol was not a factor in the crash, the ISP release stated.

The death is under investigation by ISP Trooper Tyler Barrett with assistance by the Utah Highway Control.

INL fire spreads to 170 square miles

By Laura Lundquist
Times-News writer

A wildfire that created a 39-mile diagonal scar across Idaho National Laboratory property continued to burn Wednesday, causing managers to tell some employees to stay home.

The Jefferson Fire, which started at 2 p.m. Tuesday north of the junction of U.S. highways 20 and 26, was whipped to the northeast by gusts of up to 40 mph. By the time the winds calmed Wednesday morning, the fire had grown to 47 square miles. INL managers told some “essential” employees of the Materials and Fuel Complex to still report to work today, but advised the rest of the 700 employees working at that complex and the Critical Infrastructure Test Range Complex not to come to work for the rest of the week.

Meanwhile, INL fire units teamed up with those from the U.S. Bureau of Land Management to cover four fronts with 300 firefighters. Fire crews used nine bulldozers, five belonging to the BLM, to build containment lines along U.S. Interstate 15 on the east side and north from U.S. 20 along the west side. The BLM also dispatched 21 fire engines, a helicopter, five air tankers and an air attack plane. The INL had five fire engines already on scene and fire lines and suppression systems surround areas of hazardous waste.

The fire had spread to 170 square miles by Wednesday afternoon, a third of which was on BLM property, but caused minimal damage to a few sheds and small outbuildings. One power pole was destroyed and several INL power lines were downed. Power crews have begun work on the southernmost lines.

“We were aware of the fire as soon as it started, so we were able to shut down the activities at the Materials and Fuel Complex before we could lose power,” said INL Emergency Director Riley Chase. Generators are providing backup power.

The fire was 60 percent contained on Wednesday evening, and both BLM and INL fire managers pulled three of their four crews off of it for the night. Chase said the crews may have the blaze contained by late this afternoon.

The Eastern Idaho Interagency Fire Center website lists the fire as “human-caused under investigation.”

“We know exactly where it started, and some people were doing work nearby in the Critical Infrastructure Test Range,” Chase said. “When things settle down, we can start talking to people.”

The Materials and Fuel Complex handles spent nuclear fuel and radioactive waste, along with using plutonium to charge space-exploration power units. The Critical Infrastructure Test Range Complex contains large equipment workshops and electronic substations for testing infrastructure technologies.

though Anderson emphasized that number does not mean the URA is dead-set on hiring a downtown consultant.

The Old Towne plans include building on the 2007 strategy developed by the Portland-based Leland Consulting Group, which cost the city and the URA a combined $350,000. So far, St. Luke’s Magic Valley Medical Center moving its financial offices to the area is all they have to show for it.

Another aspect of the plan is “economic gardening,” which Anderson described as “business retention on steroids.” She said the URA will focus on helping existing businesses find new markets and ways to expand in the community.

Ideas being bounced around include hiring a research librarian to help sift through data so local businesses have an idea of where fertile markets are.

“Local business assistance is as important — if not more important — than bringing new business,” she said. “Some of our best growth opportunities come from local business.”

Aggressive practices are what lead to recent success in Twin Falls, said Jan Rogers, executive director of the Southern Idaho Economic Development Organization.

“We would not have the announcement of C3 and the creation of 600-800 jobs before Christmas if it wasn’t for the URA,” she said.

It’s not quite the bust from Camas County last year, which netted more than 75,000 plants, officers said, but it’s a good haul from the area around the river.

“That’s pretty good for an outdoor grow,” Gough said.

Officers will continue to scour Gooding and Lincoln counties this week for more illegal grows, along with Camas County and other areas. The U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency funds the project, including use of the helicopter and overtime so the work doesn’t come at site and the College of Southern Idaho to train workers for C3.

Kenneth Epstein, the company’s senior vice president of business development, credited the collaborative effort for C3’s decision to set up operations in Twin Falls.

“I don’t know that we have experienced anything like this in the other states where we operate,” he said. “What you have done here is truly unique with the college and urban renewal.”

Otter also acknowledged the regional effort, quipping that Idahoans are “really good at under-promising and over-delivering.”

In a surprise announcement, the company increased the number of employees it will initially need from an estimated 600 to about 900.

Kerry Carstairs, senior vice president of operations, said the Twin Falls location will need about 800 agents and 100 managers, supervisors and trainers.

She added that the workers will need to be hired, trained and working within “the next few days.”

“It’s an ambitious timeline, but we have had a lot of experience doing this and we have a lot of help from the Department of Labor and CSI,” she said.

The facility itself is ready to begin operation.

The lights are on, the phones and computers are ready and the first employees are being trained. Company policy posters decorate the walls, and an altered picture in a conference room even shows the building with a future C3 sign on the front.

“I wish we could find more buildings like this one that are ready to go,” Carstairs said.

Her comment was followed by Epstein saying the company was “looking into” opening another call center — possibly in Idaho. He did not provide further details, but city, state and regional officials began evaluating options for the company almost immediately.

Otter called the new company “fresh hope” for Twin Falls and his Project 60, an initiative to grow Idaho’s gross domestic product from $51 billion to $60 billion.

cult” he said. “But I think we are on the right track. Where other states have raised business taxes, making themselves less attractive to business like (C3), we have found ways to operate more efficiently.”

Out for a walk

Justin, right, and Kelley Call of Twin Falls wait on the Perrine Bridge for a search and rescue team to help them Wednesday.

Deputies help two off of bridge catwalk

Times-News

Two Twin Falls residents may face charges after law enforcement had to help them off of catwalks under the Perrine Bridge on Wednesday evening. Officials said friends of siblings Justin and Kelley Call, both of Twin Falls, had apparently told them they could follow a south-side Snake River Canyon trail used by BASE jumpers to a bridge pillar, then onto a catwalk and across the bridge. The pair followed catwalks under the bridge from the south side all the way north, where Jerome County and Twin Falls County sheriff's deputies told them to stay put, Jerome County Sheriff Doug McFall said. Twin Falls County Search and Rescue members rappelled down to the ledge the two ended up on to review the situation. Then, McFall said, the Idaho Transportation Department closed the left northbound lane of the bridge while deputies went down onto the catwalk through a manhole and escorted the two back up.

Idaho State Police, who also responded, will determine if any trespassing or other charges should be filed against the pair, McFall said. "At one time, there was a no-trespassing sign down there," he said, but officials weren't sure Wednesday evening if it was still in place. ISP Trooper Chris Pohanka said later that charges are pending against the siblings, though he was relieved the incident didn't turn out worse. "No safety equipment — it was a dangerous situation," he said.

Idaho’s charter schools process needs second look

Eleven years into Idaho’s public charter school experience, what lessons did we learn from the crash this summer of the Nampa Classical Academy?

On June 24, the Idaho Charter School Commission revoked the charter of the 500-student, year-old school, meaning it can no longer receive public funds.

School leaders have appealed.

Financial problems led to NCA’s fall. In May, the school’s board of trustees abruptly decided to end the academic year 13 days early to help make up for a $166,290 shortfall in anticipated federal funds.

The Idaho Department of Education had ruled that NCA does not have a Title I program and therefore isn’t entitled to the money. Title I is a federal enterprise that provides special help to low-income students.

Bill Goesling, chairman of the charter commission, told the Idaho Statesman that school leaders have known since November that they likely wouldn’t meet the Title I requirements, but they continued to carry the funding in their budget.

NCA has a long history of run-ins with the charter commission, and sued the state after the commission ruled it couldn’t use the Bible in its classes. The school has been buffeted by controversy, dissension and turnover since it opened.

The other 35 Idaho charter schools have avoided NCA’s problems, but the issue is serious enough to do what Twin Falls Superintendent of Schools Wiley Dobbs has suggested: a top-to-bottom review of how Idaho charters are — or aren’t — working.

That would be timely now because some school districts, including Twin Falls, are considering applying for permission to convert traditional schools to charters because the funding is better.

On top of that, there’s a long line of private-sector interests and non-profit groups looking to start charter schools in Idaho. The increase in the number of charters is capped at six per year under state law.

What went wrong at NCA? Just about everything, although parents and students insist the quality of education remained high. But at the very least it’s worth asking whether the charter school commission and its staff have the legal authority and the resources to reign in a rogue charter before it’s too late.

These schools are, after all, using the taxpayers’ money. Good intentions abound but aren’t enough.

Forever looking for the door

Cleveland fans who’d assumed that LeBron James would remain unfaithfully devoted to the Cavaliers are mortified that he’s packing his bags for Miami. But his move simply puts him in step with others of his generation.

Rick Wartzman

If younger workers have displayed anything as employees, it’s that they prize mobility more than they do fidelity to their employers.

“Stability and company loyalty are high values for ... those whose world views were shaped by experiencing the Great Depression in their formative years,” Chip Espinoza, Mick Ukleja and Craig Rusch write in their new book, “Managing the Millennials.” “But the work world has changed.”

Much of this attitude is being driven, of course, by the behavior of those doing the hiring. Rock-solid pensions, generous health benefits and job security — all staples of the social contract between employer and employee from the mid-1940s through the late 1970s — have evaporated as companies have braced for global competition and as a pernicious shareholder-is-all mentality has taken root.

A recent analysis by Princeton economist Henry Farber shows that the percentage of private-sector male workers who’ve been with the same employer for at least 10 years fell from 50 percent in 1973 to just 35 percent in 2006, and the proportion of those with 20-year tenures dropped from 35 percent to 20 percent over the period.

GARY TRUDEAU
 THE WASHINGTON POST
 6/29/09 CR-2009-06-29

But the erosion in loyalty is not merely a function of corporations being greedy or girding for the rough-and-tumble of today’s marketplace. On the flip side, numerous studies have concluded that younger people, in particular, don’t have as much allegiance to their employers as do baby boomers or even Gen X’ers.

One survey, released in 2004 by Harris Interactive, found that only 47 percent of those 18 to 34 years old “really care about the fate” of the enterprise for which they work. That compares with 64 percent of those 55 and older.

In any case, these younger workers don’t imagine they’ll stick around very long. In his book, “The Trophy Kids Grow Up: How the Millennial Generation Is Shaking Up the Workplace,” Ron Alsop cites a study in which two-thirds of 18- to 28-year-olds said they plan to “surf” from one job to the next. And 44 percent, he reports, go so far as to say that they’d renege after having accepted a job if a better offer came along.

To be sure, the recession and a stubbornly high unemployment rate have dampened the ability of many young people to be so desultory. But at some point, the downturn will pass, and evidence suggests that Gen Y workers — especially those who are college educated — remain eager to job hop when they can.

“Just because we’re experiencing an economic meltdown for the first time does not mean that we’re going to hide in the corner,” Rebecca Thorman, who gives career advice to fellow Gen Yers, declared on her blog, Modite, earlier this year. “We’re not going to settle.”

Thorman went on to encourage young workers to “get paid what you’re worth,” explaining that the best way to realize a salary boost is to leave one employer for another with some regularity. You can’t expect to see your income rise sharply “by staying at the same job unless you’re there for a very long time,” Thorman asserted. “You just can’t.”

For employers, there are few issues that are as difficult as coping with this mindset. In their frustration, many gripe about their younger workers, labeling them entitled, arrogant and egocentric. But it’s not quite that simple. This same age group, after all, is also team oriented, technologically savvy and committed to tackling some of the world’s most pressing problems. There are many positives to tap into for those employers willing to learn and to try.

Indeed, companies have a shot at attracting and retaining top talent if they exhibit a strong, and genuine, sense of social responsibility, challenge employees by offering them opportunities to take on new roles, give workers a chance to find fulfillment by sending them abroad, are sensitive to people’s work-life balance and provide excellent training and development programs (something sought by millennials even more than cash bonuses, according to PricewaterhouseCoopers).

Still, even the best employers shouldn’t count on much fealty in the end. The trend is inescapable: More and more, the labor force will find itself chock-full of free agents, unabashedly looking for a better deal.

Ruling liberals are dragging marriage down

A federal judge in Boston has ruled that the Defense of Marriage Act passed by Congress (427 members voted in favor) and signed into law by President Clinton in 1996 cannot take precedence over a Massachusetts law allowing same-sex marriage. The ruling again raises serious questions about the origin and purpose of law. But before we get to that larger question, the “logic” of Judge Joseph L. Tauro’s ruling should first be examined.

Judge Tauro’s decision flies in the face of what the federal government has claimed and is claiming in at least two other significant cases. In 1973, the Supreme Court struck down all state laws restricting a woman’s right to have an abortion. In its lawsuit against Arizona’s new immigration law, the Department of Justice claims federal law (which the feds are not enforcing) trumps state law.

So let’s see: State laws are fine when they promote the interests of the ruling liberal and cultural elites, but they are to be ignored, or overturned, when they do not promote the objectives of the ruling liberal and cultural elites. Is that it? How can the federal government have it both ways?

A New York Times editorial says of DOMA “There is no rational basis for discriminating against same-sex couples.” Really? Has the newspaper forgotten the federal government’s “discrimination” against Utah when it forbade the territory from entering the Union until it outlawed polygamy? In 1878, the Supreme Court declared in Reynolds v. United States that polygamy was not protected by the Constitution. If the federal government could reject polygamy then as a means of promoting the general welfare, why can’t it block attempts to redefine marriage now? If marriage is re-defined by courts, what is to stop anyone from declaring a “right” to any relationship they wish to enter and demanding “equal protection” under the Constitution?

Now to the larger question of law, which is also being re-defined. During her confirmation hearings, Elena Kagan said she loved the law. Too bad no one asked her which law she loves and what is law’s purpose? Law is meant to conform humans to a standard that preserves the cultural and moral order. The purpose of government is to “secure” unalienable pre-existing rights about which Thomas Jefferson wrote in the Declaration of Independence (a document Kagan dismissed as irrelevant to the Constitution, though it is the Constitution’s moral and philosophical foundation). Government is not supposed to create new rights like national health care, or same-sex marriage.

The Times editorial dismisses the overwhelming approval for DOMA as a “wedge issue” during an election year. In fact, it reflected the principled position not only of a vast majority of members of Congress, but also the position of the public, which has almost universally rejected attempts to legalize same-sex marriage. In 2004, 11 states had ballot measures preserving marriage as between opposite sex couples. All passed. In 2008, three states had gay marriage ballot initiatives. Two passed. In California, a measure to overturn the State Supreme Court’s earlier 4-3 decision upholding the constitutionality of a legislative ban on same-sex marriage was approved by 400,000 votes, or 52 percent of those voting.

Marriage re-definers demand acceptance for their position that morality, as well as right and wrong, are to be determined by polls. If polls show the public disapproving of behavior the elites favor, the elites ignore majority opinion and seek to shove it down our throats anyway, because, you see, only they can be right. The rest of us have the equivalent standing of 1950s segregationists. Anyone arguing for tradition is branded a bigot, a label that is supposed to end all discussion, while the labeled one is exhausted trying to prove a negative.

Judge Tauro’s ruling will likely be overturned on appeal, but that won’t stop the marriage re-definers. In a morally exhausted society, they just might succeed. Polygamists were 130 years before their time.

THE LIGHTER SIDE OF POLITICS

Doonesbury

By Garry Trudeau

Mallard Fillmore

By Bruce Tinsley

Know-Nothings' ghost haunts immigration debate

In an America full of irresolution, one certainty: The immigration situation will be worse a year from now.

The politicians have no intention of addressing this issue in this election year; President Barack Obama's recent call for action was about politics, not legislating; his Justice Department's suit against Arizona's anti-immigrant measure, however sound, ends any slim hope for bipartisan action. Most Republicans are pandering to an anti-immigrant base and opposing the president on everything.

Two interesting new books, "A Country for All," by Jorge Ramos, and "Brain Gain," by Darrell West, chronicle what a debacle this situation is.

Ramos, the anchor of Univision Communications, the country's largest Spanish-language television network, conveys the rage many Hispanics feel over the debate and the portrayal of undocumented workers as "illegal aliens."

"They accept working conditions that no legal citizen can imagine," he writes. "They clean up after us in public bathrooms," and "they are the nannies" nurturing future presidents and actors and athletes.

West, a former university professor now at the Brookings Institution in Washington, offers a scholarly critique and innovative suggestions for a new policy focused more on economic and employment considerations.

"Practically no one is happy with the administration of the country's immigration laws," he says. The current policy is a disaster. There are about 12 million undocumented workers in the United States, up 40 percent from 10 years ago and triple the number in 1990. The U.S. is deporting about 300,000 people a year; more than that enter illegally. The Center for American Progress, a Washington research group, estimates it would cost $300 billion to deport those who are here illegally, not to mention the logistical and emotional agony.

It's gotten worse since the Sept. 11 attacks caused officials to try to crack down. The number of visas for high-skilled workers is less than half what it was in 2001, and every year there are promising students from abroad admitted to U.S. universities who can't come because of the bureaucratic hurdles. Those who do often aren't allowed to stay after graduation.

The immigration debate always has been affected by economic insecurities and nativist fears; terrorist threats have been added, although none of the Sept. 11 perpetrators entered the country illegally. This is cited by opponents of the plan to build a fence along the 1,925-mile border with Mexico, a proposal that no one thinks will work.

"If you build a 12-foot fence," New Mexico Gov. Bill Richardson has said, "you'll get a lot of 13-foot ladders." In the unlikely event it works, Ramos writes, "we would quickly enter the age of the Mexican balsero, or boat person." The 12,383-mile U.S. coastline and 5,525-mile border with Canada dwarf the Mexican border. Any terrorist is certainly aware of the Canadian border and the coastline.

Another canard that Ramos and West expose is the immigrant crime scare. Illegal immigrants actually commit fewer crimes than U.S. citizens, as they often "make an effort to avoid any sort of legal situation," says Ramos. "A sad consequence of this is that they will even let abuses or crime against them go unreported."

The same misperception persists on the economic impact. Almost every reputable study — The National Science Foundation, the Rand Corporation, the CATO Institute and numerous academic efforts — suggest that immigrants contribute more to economic output and taxes than they cost in services.

Four of the handful of the most recognizable high-tech companies in America — Google, Yahoo, Intel and eBay — were founded by immigrants. Citing Sergey Brin, a Russian immigrant who cofounded Google in 1998, West asks, "How would we feel if Google had been invented in Russia, which would then be the world leader in search engines?"

Despite such success stories, experts such as West acknowledge that nothing's likely to happen soon. There is no political will or consensus to deal with a pathway to citizenship for most of the undocumented immigrants here now, and the problem will only get worse.

This is welcome news for the immigration bashers, who have well-known predecessors: 19th century organizations such as the Know-Nothing Party and the Supreme Order of Caucasians, the architects of the 1882 Chinese Exclusion Act, or the 1921 measure setting immigration quotas by national origin, the employers who flaunted "IRISH NEED NOT APPLY" signs, those who interred Japanese-Americans after Pearl Harbor, or who used the Sept. 11 attack as a blanket excuse to assail immigrants.

There's one other certainty: History is never kind to these nativists.

Here's what Idaho newspapers are saying about ...

... honoring Borglum

Idaho State Journal, Pocatello

The Idaho Hall of Fame folks have a tarnished record in selecting some of the people it chooses to honor. The private group based in Boise named U.S. Sen. Larry Craig to its "Idaho Hall of Fame" roster in 2007, soon after his sex-sting arrest in a Minneapolis men's room.

The organization appeared to be on safe ground this year in choosing Bear Lake County native Gutzon Borglum to its 2010 class of honorees. Borglum is the Mount Rushmore sculptor who created the likenesses of Presidents George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt in the granite of South Dakota's Black Hills.

Borglum's birthplace was the village of St. Charles, which belatedly created a monument to him which is prominently displayed near the highway though town.

Borglum was chosen by the Hall of Fame board as part of its effort to honor people from all 44 Idaho counties. Dallas Cox, president, said Bear Lake County, where Borglum was born to Mormon pioneers in 1867, had not previously been represented.

But now it has been learned that Borglum had a relationship during the 1920s with the Ku Klux Klan, and was a friend of Grand Dragon D.C. Stephenson, a convicted murderer. Howard and Audrey Shaff, historians at the Gutzon Borglum Historical Center in South Dakota, wrote that Borglum's immediate concern during the 1920s was securing millions of dollars to create the Confederate monument at Stone Mountain near Atlanta — "and the KKK was offering to help raise the money." ...

Cox is unperturbed by the knowledge that Borglum once was involved with the KKK.

"Well, I'll bet if we sat down and took every one of the inductees since 1995, you could find something on every one of them.... As far as I'm concerned, we are focusing on the accomplishments," she said ...

So, who's next for the Hall of Fame? Richard Butler, founder of the Aryan Nations in north Idaho, or Claude Dallas, one of the state's best-known outlaws who shot two Fish and Game officers to death and later escaped from the Idaho penitentiary before being recaptured? Of course not. But more due diligence on those who are selected would be appropriate.

... Gov. Otter's vulnerability

Lewiston Tribune

No, the Boulder-White Clouds is not the game-changer in 2010 that it was in 1970, when it helped Democrat Cecil Andrus oust Republican Gov. Don Samuelson. But it does feed an unflattering narrative at a time when Otter has less margin for error than he should.

Privately, some Republicans will acknowledge they are anxious. They see the public mood souring. Last month, the right track-wrong track question turned negative in Idaho. That means political winds may be blowing against incumbents of all stripes rather than just the federal government or even the Democratic Party.

Otter's still ahead of Democratic challenger Keith Allred. But his support is eroding. Should the trend continue, Allred's camp says, the race could be tied in September.

In ruby red-Idaho, that sounds like a stretch. But throughout the year, Allred has raised more money than the incumbent. There's been a trickle of respected moderate Republicans — starting with former state Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly — joining the Allred campaign.

None of this changes the contours of the race. It's Otter's to lose. Allred still has to make the compelling case to voters and the days are ticking away.

For Otter, however, pulling the props out from under a bill that was popular with the political center was a self-inflicted wound. Not a big one, but not the first one, either. At some point, these wounds add up.

NOTICE OF A PROPOSED ACTIVITY IN A 100-YEAR FLOODPLAIN

The City of Shoshone is considering handicapped accessible improvements by repairing and constructing sidewalks at the Mary L. Gooding Park (Shoshone City Park). The improvements will be partially funded by an Idaho Community Development Block Grant. The project is located in the 100-year flood plain. The city is interested in discussing alternatives to this project and securing public perceptions of possible adverse impacts that could result from the project and possible minimization measures. Comments will be received until July 30, 2010.

EPA shifts focus of N. Idaho cleanup

COEUR d'ALENE (AP) — Federal environmental officials are getting ready to focus their attention to cleaning up fisheries, habitat and wetlands contaminated by mining waste in northern Idaho.

The Environmental Protection Agency this week released its draft plans for the next phase of its Superfund mining waste project for the Upper Coeur d'Alene River Basin.

The region is contaminated with lead, cadmium, arsenic and other toxins from decades of silver and lead mining. Early phases of the project have targeted removal of tainted soils from residential yards and other measures to address the priority of reducing risk to human health.

Now, state and federal environmental officials intend to shift the focus to the region's ecology, according to the Coeur d'Alene Press.

"Some people think we just do the human health (remedies) and leave," Terry Harwood, executive director of the Basin Environmental Improvement Commission that oversees federal cleanup in the region. "But there's other environmental issues we need to deal with as well."

For example, the next phase of the cleanup seeks to address high levels of zinc lakes and streams that have damaged spawning habitat for fish. It also includes treating groundwater and reducing metal concentrations in soil and sediments in regional wetlands.

"The water in the lake is OK from a human health standpoint, but humans are much more tolerant of these things (contaminants) in the water than the critters are," he said.

An American Airlines sign at Seattle-Tacoma International Airport in Seattle lists the fees for checked baggage. The Government Accountability Office recommended in a report released Tuesday that the government improve the disclosure of airline fees, not only by airlines, but also by travel booking services.

Airline fees make it hard to shop for best deal

By Joan Lowy
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Finding the best deal on a flight has become a lot more difficult, thanks to hefty baggage and service fees that consumers often don't know about until they show up at the airline counter, congressional investigators say.

Those fees are not part of the ticket price, meaning they can easily go unseen until it's too late for the consumer to shop around. The fees, amounting to billions of dollars for the airlines, also go untaxed, and some lawmakers want to reclaim that money for the treasury.

Airlines, travel agents, online travel services and other ticket distribution channels should be required to disclose fees for checked baggage, changed reservations and other services in a clear and consistent manner, the Government Accountability Office said in a report out Wednesday.

The office is Congress' financial watchdog and its report preceded a congressional hearing into the matter Wednesday.

Since 2007, many airlines have been charging for services that were traditionally included in the price of a ticket. That's improved airline bottom lines in a tough economy but raised the ire of travelers who find themselves nicked and dimed to substantially higher costs.

Besides checked bags, some airlines charge fees for seat selection, extra leg room, prime spots in boarding lines, blankets, pillows, drinks and meals. "Those fees can be an unexpected shock totaling hundreds of dollars," said Charles Leocha, director of the Consumer Travel Alliance.

In the last budget year, 10 U.S. airlines collected $7.8 billion in such fees, congressional accountants say.

The leader was Delta Air Lines, the world's largest airline, with $1.6 billion.

Airlines say fees benefit passengers because they allow airlines to keep ticket prices down and consumers pay only for services they use.

"This is a deregulated industry and this is an industry that should be able to charge whatever it opts to charge for services," said David Castelveter, a spokesman for the Air Transport Association, which represents major airlines.

Companies spending more on technology but still cautious

By Jordan Robertson
Associated Press writer

SAN FRANCISCO — Companies finally appear to be muscling up their spending on the most expensive kinds of computers after slashing budgets during the recession, but fears of more economic uncertainty are proving tough for the technology industry to shake.

Intel Corp., which makes the brains for 80 percent of the world's personal computers, turned in blowout quarterly financial numbers on Tuesday, a sign to the rest of the industry that better times are on the way.

But analysts caution that Americans are still expected to be cautious with their spending for the rest of the year. So companies may just be upgrading their technology to boost productivity, not necessarily expecting a sudden, huge increase in demand. Economic shakiness in Europe could hurt demand, too.

Intel's results were the best in its 42-year history, including its highest revenue and profit margins ever, at a time that is historically the low point of the year for technology spending, coming ahead of the back-to-school and holiday shopping.

"I think people are going

Home loan applications down 2.9 percent

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Applications for home loans dipped last week even though consumers were able to refinance at the lowest rates in decades.

The Mortgage Bankers Association says overall applications decreased nearly 3 percent from a week earlier. That incorporates an adjustment for the Independence Day holiday.

Applications to refinance home loans were down 2.9 percent. Applications taken out to purchase homes fell 3.1 percent, which the MBA said reduced its index to the lowest level since December 1996. The MBA doesn't publish the actual index.

Applications to refinance loans made up nearly 79 percent of total applications.

Mortgage rates have fallen since mid-April after investors, nervous about Europe's debt crisis and the global economy, have shifted money into safe Treasury bonds. That has caused the yields on those bonds to fall. Long-term fixed mortgage rates tend to track those yields.

The average rate for a 30-year fixed loan sank to 4.57 percent last week, according to Freddie Mac. That was the lowest since the mortgage company began keeping records in 1971.

The Mortgage Bankers Association's survey covers more than 50 percent of all applications nationwide and has been conducted since 1990.

Majority of Americans say deficit out of control

By Mike Dornier and Catherine Dodge
Bloomberg News writers

WASHINGTON — More than 7 out of 10 Americans say the economy is mired in recession, and the country is conflicted over how to balance concerns over joblessness and the federal budget deficit, according to a Bloomberg National Poll.

Just like the experts, Americans are torn about whether the federal government should focus on curbing spending or creating jobs, the poll conducted July 9-12 shows. Seven of 10 Americans say reducing unemployment is the priority. At the same time, the public is skeptical of the Obama administration's stimulus program and wary of more spending, with more than half "The number they're seeing change is the deficit. It's rising at what seems like an astronomical rate."

— Ann Selzer, president of Selzer & Co.

saying the deficit is "dangerously out of control."

This concern over spending extends to aid for the jobless. With unemployment at a near-record high of 9.5 percent in June, the public is closely split on whether another extension of jobless benefits, which is stalled in Congress, is worth the $34 billion cost.

"They're just running out of patience," said Ann Selzer, president of Selzer & Co., a Des Moines, Iowa-based company that conducted the survey. "The number they're seeing change is the deficit. It's rising at what seems like an astronomical rate. The number that seems intractable is the unemployment rate."

The Obama administration expects a record budget deficit this year of more than $1.5 trillion, or 10.6 percent of GDP, according to projections the White House released in February. The U.S. deficit is a greater percentage of GDP than any other major industrialized nation except the United Kingdom, where it is estimated to reach 11.4 percent, and Ireland, where it will be 12.2 percent, according to International Monetary Fund projections released in April.

Small business financial checkups get complicated

NEW YORK — Small business owners who want to give their companies a midyear financial checkup may find it hard to forecast what the rest of the year will bring. It's not just the economy that's unpredictable, there's also uncertainty about the tax laws.

This may complicate the decisions that owners typically make at this time of the year, such as whether to buy new equipment.

Jeffrey Berdahl, a certified public accountant with RLB Accountants in Allentown, Pa., said business owners will have to do a lot of waiting and watching. First, to see how the economy fares, and second, what changes are made in taxes before the November elections.

"It's really hard to plan right now, because nobody knows what's going to happen down in Washington," Berdahl said. "What you learn today's going to change tomorrow."

Berdahl said accountants are waiting to see how lawmakers change capital gains taxes, which would affect anyone who sells an interest in a business. He said it's also not yet known what changes may come in the alternative minimum tax, which can impose a heavier tax burden on taxpayers, including small business owners, who have large deductions.

But Berdahl also said it's widely expected that tax rates will go up next year. So business owners who are expecting to have a better 2011 need to factor that into their 2010 planning.

The Hiring Incentives to Restore Employment Act passed earlier this year included a provision that extended into 2010 the $250,000 Section 179 deduction, which allows small businesses to deduct up-front rather than depreciate the cost of certain kinds of equipment. The deduction, which had been $128,000 in 2008, was nearly doubled last year as part of the government's economic stimulus programs. Its continuation at a higher level in 2010 is an acknowledgment that small businesses still need help.

But owners need to ask

YESTERDAY ON WALL STREET

The Dow Jones Industrial rose 3.70, or 0.04 percent, to 10,366.72. The Standard & Poor's 500 index fell 0.17, or 0.02 percent, to 1,095.17, while the Nasdaq composite index rose 7.81, or 0.4 percent, to 2,249.84.

Losing stocks were ahead of gainers by 4 to 3 on the New York Stock Exchange. Consolidated volume came to 4.1 billion shares, down from Tuesday's 4.7 billion. Bond prices rose, pushing interest rates lower in the Treasury market. Investors were following their pattern of turning to government debt as a safe place to put their cash when the economy looks troubled. The yield on the benchmark 10-year Treasury note fell to 3.05 percent from 3.13 percent late Tuesday. That yield helps set interest rates on mortgages and other consumer loans. The Russell 2000 index of smaller companies fell 2.66, or 0.4 percent, to 640.16. Overseas, Britain's FTSE 100 fell 0.33 percent, Germany's DAX index rose 0.3 percent, and France's CAC-40 fell 0.1 percent. Japan's Nikkei stock average jumped 2.7 percent.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Fed eyes steps to bolster recovery

WASHINGTON— Federal Reserve officials cut their forecasts for growth this year and signaled they stood ready to take new steps to keep the recovery alive if the economy worsens.

A new document, released Wednesday, revealed a more cautious mood among the Fed policymakers in light of Europe's debt crisis, a volatile Wall Street, a stalled housing market and high unemployment.

With risks growing, Fed officials at their June 22-23 meeting saw the need to explore new options for bolstering the economy. That's a turnaround from earlier this year when they were moving to wind down crisis-era supports.

Retail sales drop 0.5 percent in June

WASHINGTON – Retail sales fell in June for the second straight month, more evidence that the recovery will slow in the second half of the year.

Retail spending dropped 0.5 percent in June, the Commerce Department reported Wednesday. That followed a 1.1 percent fall in May. Excluding autos, spending was down 0.1 percent in June.

Much of the weakness last month came from a drop in auto sales and a decline in gasoline prices.

SEC reviews company proxy vote process

WASHINGTON – Federal regulators are reviewing the process by which company shareholders exercise their votes and said they may change the rules to make the system more transparent.

The Securities and Exchange Commission took a step Wednesday toward that goal by voting to issue a document raising questions about the corporate proxy system and seeking public comment on it. The document also raises questions about the accuracy and transparency of the voting process, and whether some practices by professional investors can improperly influence voting results.

No conclusions reached in Toyota acceleration case government said Wednesday it had not reached any conclusions about whether Toyota drivers may be to blame for their vehicles suddenly accelerating, a problem that led to millions of recalled cars and trucks since last year.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration said in a statement that its engineers were continuing to investigate the possible causes of sudden acceleration in Toyotas along with scientists and researchers with the National Academy of Scientists and NASA.

The Wall Street Journal, citing anonymous sources, reported Tuesday the government had analyzed dozens of black boxes in Toyota vehicles that suggested the drivers were stepping on the gas pedal instead of the brakes.

Gas cans, wires in NJ car touch off bomb scare

By David Porter
Associated Press writer

NEWARK, N.J. — A report of gas cans and wires in the back of a car near a railroad overpass Wednesday brought traffic in New Jersey's largest city to a standstill before police determined the items were not components of an explosive.

"At this point, we know it's not a bomb," Newark Police Director Garry McCarthy said after bomb squad personnel examined the car with the help of a robot.

The car was parked on a residential street no more than 60 yards from railroad tracks used by Amtrak and three commuter lines operated by NJ Transit. Train traffic was delayed after police arrived on the scene around 10 a.m. but resumed soon after.

Police diverted traffic off McCarter Highway, the city's primary north-south artery that runs parallel to the elevated train tracks, causing lengthy delays.

According to McCarthy, a 911 operator received a morning call from a passerby who reported seeing what appeared to be two gas containers, wires and a device in the back of the car, described by police as a Dodge Omni.

A police bomb squad specialist broke through a window to pop the door lock, and the robot opened the door and eventually removed the items.

The wires were found to have been protruding from the toolbox and weren't connected to the containers, which an FBI spokesman described as "a full gas can and a plastic jug with an unidentified liquid." The unidentified device turned out to be a battery pack, McCarthy said.

"Law enforcement has determined that it is not an explosive device or suspicious or threatening in any way," FBI spokesman Bryan Travers said.

Authorities were searching for the vehicle's owner, described as a 58-year-old white male with no criminal record whose license and car registration correspond to an abandoned house in the seaside town of Point Pleasant, McCarthy said.

"We don't know why the car was left here," McCarthy said.

Cheney has heart pump surgically implanted

The Washington Post

Former Vice President Dick Cheney, who has long suffered with cardiac issues, underwent surgery last week to have a pump implanted into his heart, he announced Wednesday.

"I decided to take advantage of one of the new technologies available and have a Left Ventricular Assist Device (LVAD) implanted," Cheney said in a statement. "The LVAD is a small implantable pump that improves heart function and will enable me to resume an active life."

The announcement came just weeks after the 69-year-old politician was admitted to the hospital after experiencing discomfort. He was released after several days of receiving medication to treat a fluid buildup.

Cheney has had five heart attacks, the first coming when he was just 37 years old. His statement Wednesday was his most direct comment in years about his health.

Cheney

"A few weeks ago, it became clear that I was entering a new phase of the disease when I began to experience increasing congestive heart failure," he said. "After a series of recent tests and discussions with my doctors, I decided to take advantage of one of the new technologies available."

The left ventricular assist device is a more modest version of the "artificial heart" that physicians have used for more than 25 years, without much success, to save people whose hearts are weakened by disease. The mechanism aids in pumping blood through the tens of thousands of miles of blood vessels in the body.

A pump is implanted in the chest and attached to the heart's main chamber, the left ventricle. It is powered by a wire that comes out through a hole in the skin and is attached to a battery pack, usually carried over the shoulder.

Originally, LVADs were designed to be used only for days or weeks, until a heart transplant could be performed.

FDA panel: Diabetes drug can stay on the market

WASHINGTON (AP) — GlaxoSmithKline's drug Avandia should stay on the market, federal health experts voted Wednesday, but the controversial diabetes pill should be subject to new restrictions due to risky heart side effects.

A panel of Food and Drug Administration advisers voted 20-12 to keep the once blockbuster pill available for diabetics. But 10 panelists also called for limiting who can receive and prescribe the much-debated medication.

The vote marks a tough win for British drugmaker Glaxo, which is facing thousands of lawsuits from patients who say Avandia caused their heart attacks or strokes. While the company may fare better in court due to the panel ruling, sales of Avandia are likely to shrink to minuscule levels.

The FDA is not required to follow the advice of its panelists, though it usually does. FDA officials said they would review the recommendations and make a decision on Avandia as soon as possible.

The vote came despite an earlier ruling by the panel that Avandia appears to increase heart attack risk, underscoring the often contradictory evidence for and against the drug.

Panelists voted 21-4 that Avandia is more likely to cause heart attack than its closest competitor Actos. Eight panelists said there was not enough information to make a decision.

Ultimately though, panelists said the risks were not severe enough to justify removing a drug used by hundreds of thousands of patients.

"I didn't want to take away a drug without definitive evidence that it was bad for those few patients who need it," said University of Missouri Lamont Weide, who voted to leave the drug on the market with new restrictions.

The agency convened the two-day panel meeting to help untangle over 1,000 pages of conflicting evidence about Avandia's risks.

The drug has a long, knotty history at the FDA. Since diabetics are already predisposed to heart risks it is extremely difficult to tell which heart attacks are drug-related and which are simply caused by the disease.

The task of evaluating Avandia's possible side effects across dozens of studies has dragged on for years without definitive answers.

BP begins testing new cap over Gulf oil leak

By Tom Breen and Harry R. Weber
Associated Press writers

NEW ORLEANS — BP allayed last-minute government fears of making the disaster worse and started trying to slowly choke off the flow of oil into the Gulf of Mexico Wednesday, in the hope of finally stopping the leak.

Retired Coast Guard Adm. Thad Allen, the Obama administration's point man on the disaster, said the government gave the go-ahead after carefully reviewing the risks of the procedure. The plan is a test of whether a new temporary well cap can withstand the pressure and ultimately contain the oil.

"What we didn't want to do is compound that problem by making an irreversible mistake," he said at the end of a 24-hour roller-coaster of hopes raised, hopes dashed and hopes raised again along the Gulf Coast.

The cap — a 75-ton metal stack of pipes and valves — was lowered onto the well on Monday in hopes of either bottling up the oil inside the well machinery, or capturing it and funneling it to the surface. But before BP could test the equipment, the government intervened because of second thoughts about whether the buildup of pressure from the gushing oil could rupture the walls of the well and make the leak worse.

"We sat long and hard about delaying the tests," Allen said. He said that the pause was necessary in the interest of the public, the environment and safety, and that officials were convinced the test could go forward.

If the cap works, it will enable BP to stop the oil from gushing into the sea, either by holding all the oil inside the well machinery like a stopper or, if the pressure is too great, channeling some though lines to as many as four collection ships.

The test began with BP shutting off pipes that were funneling some of the oil to ships on the surface so the full force of the gusher went up into the cap. Then deep-sea robots began slowly closing, one at a time, three openings in the cap that let oil pass through. Ultimately, the flow of crude will be blocked entirely.

All along, engineers will be watching pressure readings to learn whether the well is intact. The first two valves shut off like a light switch, while the third works more like a dimmer and takes longer to close off.

On Wednesday evening, the company said it had isolated a leak on the line attached to the dimmer switch, and was repairing it before moving forward. It wasn't clear how that would affect the timing of the operation.

Allen said BP will monitor the results every six hours and end the test after 48 hours to evaluate the findings.

The one-day delay came just when it looked as if the Gulf oil crisis was nearing an end. The holdup was met with disappointment along the Gulf Coast.

"This thing's been going on for so long now, it's time to take a gamble," said Mitch Jurisich, a third-generation oyster farmer from Empire, La. "If it's going to blow the bottom of the ocean out, it's just going to blow the bottom out."

White House spokesman Robert Gibbs said the government acted "out of an abundance of caution to do no harm," and added that he did not consider the delay to be "some giant setback."

With the testing on hold, oil continued to spew nearly unimpeded into the water. Two vessels on the surface collected about 700,000 gallons on Tuesday, BP said. The government estimates 1.5 million to 2.5 million gallons are leaking every day.

BP also said it was halting drilling for the duration of the test on one of two relief wells that are intended to plug the gusher permanently from deep underground. The company said it was stopping the work because it was not clear what effect the testing of the cap could have on it.

Serving the wounded

Veterans to visit Gem State for hunt of a lifetime

By Andrew Weeks
Times-News writer

Monte Bruhn never served his country in the military, but he's found a way to serve those who have.

Come fall, the Buhl resident will lead former soldiers into Idaho's backcountry to hunt big game, the first adventure of the newly-created Doug Bridges Memorial Hunts.

Bruhn said the hunts are a way to honor Army Cpl. Doug Bridges of Buhl, who was killed in action Nov. 4, 2006 while serving in Iraq, as well as a way to give something back to wounded veterans.

"It was always something I thought about doing, but never did" — until now, Bruhn said.

The idea came to him last October after watching the TV show "Hunts for Heroes." Bruhn sent an e-mail to the program and quickly heard back from Bob Bowden, founder of TheLink-up.org, which hooks up hunters with outdoorsmen in other states.

Bruhn said he wanted to participate, and came up with the memorial as a way to raise funds and honor soldiers.

Bruhn said being able to take wounded veterans on a hunt into Idaho's backcountry is a dream come true for him. The soldiers who'll participate in the fall archery and rifle hunting trips — one is scheduled in mid-September, the other for early November — echoed the same sentiments.

"I've already got my bags packed," said veteran Bill Woods, who's learning that patience is a virtue. "My wife says, 'You haven't even made it through the baseball season yet.'"

Bill Woods, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Woods sustained multiple head injuries while serving two stints in Iraq.

Like other wounded warriors, he returned with post-traumatic stress disorder, anger issues and uncontrollable crying episodes.

Before he left for war he had

A raffle for a hunting rifle will be held during fair week at the Twin Falls County Fair, Sept 1-6. A welcoming breakfast and fundraiser for the veterans will take place 6-8 a.m. Sept. 17 at Mimi's Flowers and Saddlehorn Events Center, 289 Clear Lakes Road in Buhl. the support of family and friends. After he returned, people didn't want to hear about his problems.

Because his equilibrium was off, he couldn't walk straight and he'd often throw up. He'd break down, sometimes at work, as he thought about buddies who didn't make it back from the war. Those who should have supported him didn't understand, Woods said. They'd say, "You're supposed to be a soldier, why don't you buck up?" "That's where I'd sedate myself in hunting," Woods, who still suffers from short-term memory loss, told the Times-News in a phone interview. "The head injuries have pretty much affected my everyday life. One thing that has always helped is getting outdoors, going camping and hunting."

His favorite is bow hunting, he says, but he's never shot a mule deer or an elk. He's also never visited Idaho, but that'll change come September.

"It might not ever happen again, but hunting in Idaho is something I've always wanted to do," he said. "If it's going to happen, this will be the year. And maybe someday I can take my own son out West."

Bradley Garfield, Quantico, Va.

A robot tried to disarm the explosive, but it had failed. That meant a person had to try to disarm the device.

Garfield

Bradley Garfield, who was serving as a bomb squad commander for the Marine Wing Support Squadron 271 at Al Asad Airbase in the Anbar Province of Iraq, approached the bomb. When he drew close, the enemy activated a remote control: the bomb exploded.

Garfield suffered significant injury to his left knee, right shoulder, and from several penetrating wounds. Some of the shrapnel is still inside his body because they're too deep for doctors to safely remove.

"I have chronic headaches, don't sleep well, post-traumatic stress stuff — symptoms related to traumatic brain injury," said Garfield, who's made the Marines a 28-year career.

During that time, he's had the good fortune to meet kind folks from across the country, including Idaho.

"But honestly," he said, "it's a state I've never been to."

He said he's heard about phenomenal hunting opportunities in Idaho, and going on an archery elk hunt is something he's always wanted to do.

"It's an opportunity of a lifetime I wouldn't have the connections or resources to do ... without The Link-up and willing donors like Monte that have graciously volunteered their time and resources."

Joshua Wofford, Clay Center, Kan.

In 2001 while stationed at Ft. Riley, Kan., Joshua Wofford encountered his sergeant watching TV. The scene: smoke billowing from the World Trade Center.

Wofford

Wofford thought it was a movie.

"It's not a movie, Wofford. This is news," his sergeant replied. "From that point on I knew I was going somewhere, but didn't know where."

He found out soon enough.

"I've got some good news and some bad news," his sergeant later informed him. "The bad news is we're going to Iraq. The good news is we're going to make history."

The war made history on a personal level for Wofford, who was wounded due to mortar attacks, which left him brain injured, with bad knees and, like a number of other returning soldiers, post-traumatic stress disorder.

It's been tough to deal with, but he's glad he's alive. He's also happy about his future hunting trip to Idaho.

"It's definitely a dream come true — something I probably never imagined I'd get to do, but it's coming real," he said.

In a letter he sent to the Times-News in early April, Wofford, who will participate in the November hunt, expressed gratitude to those who've contributed to the fund: "It would not have been possible without the help of several good-hearted Americans from Idaho and for that I am extending my deepest gratitude. Fall chinook harvest season set

The Idaho Fish and Game Commission, during a July 8 meeting in Kellogg, adopted a recommended harvest season on fall chinook salmon to open Sept. 1.

The season will continue seven days a week until further notice, or Oct. 31, whichever comes first.

Fishery managers predict 23,075 adult hatchery origin chinook salmon will cross Lower Granite Dam, the last of four federal dams on the lower Snake River on their way back to Idaho. Most are headed for the Snake River above the mouth of the Clearwater River, and Idaho Fish and Game has proposed a fall chinook harvest season on the Snake River between Lewiston and Hells Canyon Dam.

The daily limit is two fall chinook, one of which may be an adult; the possession limit is six; three may be adults. Anglers may keep only fish with a clipped adipose fin, evidenced by a healed scar, and they may keep 40 salmon for the year, including spring, summer and fall chinook. All salmon with an intact adipose fin must be released.

Anglers may use only barbless hooks no larger than 5/8-inch from the point to the shank. When the daily, possession or season limit is reached, the angler must stop fishing for salmon, including catch and release. It is unlawful to take or fish for salmon by snagging.

Salmon caught in a legal manner must be either released or killed immediately after landing.

The Snake River is open from the Washington-Idaho border to Hells Canyon Dam. No fall chinook may be taken in the Clearwater River.

The Snake River fishery is open in four sections: From the Washington-Idaho border to Bridge Street; from Bridge Street to the Oregon-Washington border; from the Oregon-Washington border to the mouth of Sheep Creek; from the mouth of Sheep Creek to Hells Canyon Dam.

A map showing the boundaries is available in the 2010 Fishing Seasons and Rules brochure.

Continuing the tradition: Her first big-game rifle

If there is anything more satisfying to a sports-man than pulling a new gun from its factory container, it might be watching the wonder in your children's eyes as they unbox their first shooting iron.

SHOOTING THE BULL
Rich Simpson

I enjoyed this experience recently. On her 19th birthday, my eldest daughter, Emily, unceremoniously shredded the colorful paper wrappings around the long, lean cardboard box to get at her new Thompson Center Venture rifle tucked inside. Her ear-to-ear grin didn't come from unveiling an unknown treasure, but from receiving the perfect gift: a gun that she had selected herself.

This selection process had actually begun years ago when Emily was a toddler. Whenever I got home from a hunt, the first order of business would be to clean the day's kill. Unlike her siblings, Emily was never content to watch Dad through the living room window. She had to be outside where the action was. Any duck, pheasant or Canadian goose that wasn't being attended to would be plucked up and carried around the yard like a toy doll; all the while being treated to a one-way conversation from Em.

When she was 12, we took a hunter education course at an elementary school and, upon graduation, she received her first rifle: her practice gun, in fact, a well worn Marlin single-shot .22. On her 13th birthday, she lifted the lid on a shiny new Ruger 10/22 carbine and a brick of .22s.

Now after completing her first year of college in Montana, Emily has been bitten by the big game hunting bug. Our hunt for the perfect first big game rifle began.

With an eye toward economy, we limited our search to new entry-level bolt-action rifles and combo (rifle/scope) sets. We found about half a dozen viable candidates within the $300 to $500 range. Most notable were the tried-and-true Remington 700 SPS combo, the Mossberg ATR, Weatherby's Vanguard line, Marlin's XL7, and the aforementioned T/C Venture.

For fit, finish and features, Em settled on the T/C. The matte blue metalwork is pillar bedded into the Venture's black injection molded synthetic stock, which features gray non-slip inserts at the wrist and forearm to aid in grip and handling. The trigger is easily adjustable for weight of pull and is blocked by a convenient two-position safety. Weaver-style bases sit atop the sculpted steel receiver, which accepts the 3-shot single-stack polymer detachable magazine.

Perhaps best of all, the match grade barrel boosts the same high accuracy 5 R rifling as T/C's flagship bolt gun, the ($1,000) Icon. Amazingly, this economy model carries the same accuracy guarantee as its pricey stable mate: three shots into one-inch at 100 yards. Our shooting verifies this claim.

Emily choose the .308 Winchester chambering, which is ideal for hunting Montana's deer, antelope and elk. Right now, she is becoming acquainted with her gun by firing Remington's Managed Recoil, Federal's Low Recoil ammo and my reduced velocity handloads.

Please consider introducing someone new to our wonderful sport this year. And when they begin looking for that perfect first big game rifle, have them run the bolts on the aforementioned models. They'll be hooked.

Good shooting!

Kids to C.A.S.T. at Lake Walcott on Saturday

Children with disabilities will have the opportunity to enjoy a day of fishing with volunteers during the annual C.A.S.T. for Kids fishing event at Lake Walcott State Park near Rupert on Saturday. C.A.S.T. stands for Catch a Special Thrill.

"For some kids, this is their first experience fishing," said local coordinator Sarah Wageman of the Bureau of Reclamation's Snake River Area Office. "For the volunteers, it's a great opportunity to be part of a special experience that these children will remember for a lifetime."

The participants range from age 7 to 16 and have a variety of physical and/or developmental disabilities and, in some cases, a terminal illness.

Volunteers will provide fishing boats and expertise to assist novice anglers.

The morning fishing event will be followed by a barbecue lunch hosted by the Rupert Elks Club 2106. Each participant will receive fishing gear, a T-shirt and hat.

Partners include C.A.S.T. for Kids Foundation, Bureau of Reclamation, Rupert Elks Club 2106, Idaho State Parks, and Idaho Department of Fish and Game. The Minidoka County Sheriff's Office, United States Coast Guard Auxiliary and Emergency Response Ambulance will assist by providing emergency services for the event.

Lake Walcott State Park is located 11 miles northeast of Rupert off State Highway 24.

In the event of rain the C.A.S.T. event will be canceled. For more information: Sarah Wageman at 678-0461, ext. 48.

Fishing pond receives $60,000 donation

POCATELLO — The family of the late Roger Benton Humberger of Pocatello has made a combined contribution of $60,000 to the Edson Fichter Community Fishing Pond to be built in Pocatello.

The family honored Roger's wishes and made the donation in his name. A pavilion will be built at the fishing pond to be built in Roger's name, which generated an additional $1,100.

Roger, a chemist for more than 40 years with the JR Simplot Co., was an avid angler. Before his passing, he had expressed his desire to donate $60,000 to the fishing pond so that youth and families in the community would have a place to enjoy an activity he had cherished, according to family friend, Stacie Gebo of Pocatello.

"Though Roger was passionate about his work, fishing was one of Roger's favorite respites," Gebo said.

Fundraising for the Edson Fichter Community Fishing Pond has been under way since a special fundraising committee was established in March. Fundraisers and donations have also helped to bring in money for the pond.

"The community support for the fishing pond has been tremendous, and we thank all those who have contributed to the fundraising effort thus far," said Jennifer Jackson, regional conservation educator for the Idaho Department of Fish and Game. "Now, add the extremely generous donation from the Humberger family, and the dream of a community fishing pond has become a reality almost overnight. Fish and Game and the fishing pond fundraising committee are truly grateful."

Construction of the fishing pond is set to begin this fall at the Edson Fichter Nature Area in south Pocatello. The 3-acre pond will be about 15 feet deep and will be stocked with rainbow trout, bluegill and bass. Site amenities will include fishing docks, a perimeter trail, a pavilion, picnic areas and benches.

Fishing report

At Salmon Falls Creek Reservoir anglers fishing for walleye are generally fishing about 15 feet down and using jigs as well as wedding rings. Bass fishing is consistent with keepers being caught. Trout fishing has slowed down.

The water at Magic Reservoir is continuing to rise. Anglers are seeing perch show up in the Narrows. They are catching smallmouth up Camas Creek. Trout fishing continues to be good from the bank and from boats. Two- to 3-pound trout are not uncommon. Anglers say larger trout are showing up at Roseworth Reservoir and catch ratios are good.

Little Wood Reservoir is full and trout fishing off the dam is said to be good. Trout are hungry and are running 10 to 14 inches. Trout fishing at Lake Walcott and Sublett Reservoir continues to be good. Lots of small planters being caught in both places with some larger fish mixed in.

The water at Dierkes Lake is warming up, so trout seem to be going deep and bass and bluegill are slowly picking up. Most bass being caught are not keeper size.

Carey Lake is said to be slow with some small bluegill and perch being caught. Cassia Creek, Crystal Lake and Niagara Springs Pond have all recently been stocked.

Fishermen at Anderson Ranch Reservoir are catching small mouth bass and a few trout. The Big Wood, Big Lost and South Fork of the Boise Rivers are still running high and for safety reasons are not being recommended for fishing. Silver Creek is a good choice for stream fishing. Anglers say it is fishing well using pmrds and baettis Local ponds have been stocked and fishing well. For the time being, these are better choices than the Big Wood River Valley.

Dogs can be taught to avoid rattlesnake danger

By Ray Sasser
Dallas Morning News

DALLAS — I was quail hunting in south Texas several years ago with a hunting guide who used a Labrador retriever to search for fallen birds. Somebody crippled a bird that fluttered down into a clump of buffle grass.

The gung-ho dog saw the bird fall, raced for the cover, stuck his head into the dense vegetation and suddenly jumped back with a panicked yelp. The guide grabbed the dog (a big, yellow male lab) and made a quick examination, but there was little doubt about what had just happened.

Sure enough, a look at the dog's broad nose revealed twin puncture wounds about an inch apart. A drop of yellow venom dripped down the side of the dog's nose. He had obviously been bitten by a rattlesnake.

As a hunter stomping around in tall cover, looking for fallen doves, teal ducks or early-season quail (south Texas snakes may be active all 12 months of the year), you would be dismayed to know how many rattlers have been within striking range.

The good news is a snake bites for two reasons: one is to secure food. The second is self defense. Unless you step directly on a snake, the odds of being bitten are very small. Research has shown that rattlers spend more than 90 percent of their time hiding patiently in thick cover, waiting for a rat or rabbit to wander by.

As long as the snake doesn't feel threatened, it's unlikely to bite. The rattlers that buzz like crazy and put on a wild west rattlesnake show are snakes that are surprised in the open and have no place to hide.

Unfortunately for our canine companions, they don't know enough to let hidden snakes lie. Upon smelling a snake, dogs have a tendency to advance face first to investigate the smell. Thus, the high percentage of snake bites that dogs incur is on their heads.

Dogs can be taught to avoid snakes, and the Lone Star German Shorthaired Pointer Club has as much experience as any local group when it comes to snake-proofing clinics. In the last 31 years, they've had more than 4,000 dogs come through their annual event. Actually LSGSPC has renamed their event a "snake avoidance clinic" and that's really a better term, because no dog is truly snake-proof.

Even if a dog knows a snake is something to avoid, it can always run into a snake from upwind and get nailed before it knows the snake is there.

Trainers typically use live rattlesnakes with their fangs removed. They put an electric training collar on the dog and allow its owner to bring the dog toward the snake from downwind. Most dogs go right for the snake as soon as they realize it's there. They get a mild electric shock for their poor judgment.

The exercise is then repeated. Stubborn dogs may require several shock treatments to get the idea. Most dogs eventually learn to avoid snakes, and their actions in the field can also alert hunters to a snake's location.

Don't try this exercise at home. Only experts should handle rattlesnakes and even the experts get bitten occasionally. One dog owner got the bright idea of putting a snake in a portable dog kennel so he wouldn't have to remove the snake's fangs or milk its venom.

What he managed to do was teach his dog to avoid a portable dog kennel. Dog owners who hunt or have pets in snake country should also talk to their veterinarians about the rattlesnake vaccine that greatly reduces the effects of snakebite.

Veterans

Idaho have helped to make a dream come true. ...

"All throughout history you can read about how average people have come together to accomplish extraordinary things. I sincerely believe this is one of those moments."

Making memories, Idaho

Bruhn says he's pleased by the response he's gotten so far for the Doug Bridges Memorial Hunts, which are open only to wounded veterans. The archery hunt will be Sept. 17-25 in the Lemhi Mountains near Salmon. The rifle hunt will be Oct. 30-Nov. 12. in the Frank Church River of No Return Wilderness.

A taxidermist, anonymous pilots, and other donors have offered their time, money and other means to help the veterans make the trip. Bruhn says the organization can always use more donors, though, as it's a hunt he wants to keep going in the years ahead.

"It's pretty neat how it's all come together; it is something we want to be able to do again," he said. "The money raised has been a good thing, but we sure would like to find other donors who would be inclined to help wounded warriors in the next outdoor adventure."

He also said he'd like to see more veterans apply, especially vets from Idaho. Army Spc. Andrew Pike of Kimberly, who became a paraplegic in March 2007 after a sniper's bullet hit him while on a patrol in Iraq, will likely participate in a hunt with the organization next year.

"I've got guys that will take veterans fishing right now," Bruhn said. "I just need wounded warriors."

At least two other hunting partners will accompany Bruhn and the veterans on their trips. He doesn't expect each hunter to retrieve an animal but, regardless, he says, hunting in Idaho will be a memorable experience for the veterans.

As for himself, Bruhn said, "It's time for me to pay something back."

Give unused game meat to area charities

Question: “I’m cleaning out the remnants of last year’s hunting efforts from my freezer in preparation for the upcoming season. There is some deer meat and some game birds that we didn’t eat. I’d rather not throw them in the landfill. Do you have any suggestions for what I should do with this meat?”

Answer: Cleaning out the freezer in preparation for the upcoming fall is a common

ASK THE OFFICER

ritual among many sportsmen. Unfortunately, odd cuts of meat or less desirable species are often not consumed and discarded in the garbage.

If the meat is still edible and hasn’t been previously thawed out there are several charitable institutions that would jump at the chance to get this meat into the hands of individuals and families out of work or down on their luck.

Nearly every religious organization or church in the Magic Valley has some kind of food pantry or relief society to aid indigent families. The department has donated meat from salvaged animals and from animals confiscated by the court to ministerial associations in Twin Falls and Jerome counties, in addition to the Salvation Army and Project Compassion Food Bank.

Pastor at the Project Compassion Food Bank, Toby Kennedy, called to inform me they are now operating under a new name: Strings of Hope Food Bank. He told me they have seen an increase in the need for food for indigent and out-of-work families, and he would welcome any of last year’s hunting bounty to help these folks.

As in the past, I have accepted any donated game meat for indigent families and will get it to the organizations that can best distribute it to those in need. In several instances, local meat cutters have even donated or reduced the cost of their services for cutting and wrapping game animals donated in the carcass during the fall.

Families accepting game meat must sign a waiver acknowledging the meat they have received has not been federally inspected.

Anyone interested in donating game meat may call or e-mail the regional office at the address below.

If you have questions: Fish and Game’s Magic Valley Regional Office at 324-4350 or e-mail through the Fish and Game website at fishandgame.idaho.gov.

New game laws take effect

Times-News

Several new game laws took effect this month, which affect the 2010 hunting seasons.

Nonresidents can now buy a three-day nonresident small-game hunting license. The license is valid for upland game birds, migratory game birds, cottontail rabbits, huntable furbearers and unprotected and predatory birds three consecutive days.

Some species also require tags or permits. The license is valid for hunting turkeys as long as a valid tag is purchased. The license is not valid for hunting pheasants during the first five days of the season. The license costs $33.75, plus an issuance fee of $1.75.

Two changes for the 2010 season affect holders of nonresident deer or elk tags.

A nonresident deer or elk tag may be used on a black bear or mountain lion or gray wolf during the deer or elk season when the black bear, mountain lion or gray wolf season is open.

The addition of gray wolf to the nonresident deer tag is new for 2010. This will be the first year a nonresident elk tag would be valid for tagging a black bear, mountain lion or gray wolf.

Young turkey hunters may purchase a hunting license when they are 9 years old to apply for controlled turkey hunts, but they may not hunt until they are 10 years old.

Deadline looms to buy controlled hunt tags

Times-News

Big game hunters whose names were drawn in controlled hunt drawings have until Aug. 1 to buy their tags.

Any tags not purchased by that date will be forfeit. After a second drawing, any leftover tags are sold over the counter.

The rules have changed for controlled hunt permits. Hunters who were successful in a controlled-hunt drawing no longer have to buy a separate permit. All permit information is included on the tag.

It is the hunter’s responsibility to check the drawing results. Results of deer, elk, antelope and fall black bear controlled hunt drawings are available on the Fish and Game website, fishandgame.idaho.gov/apps/ch/results.cfm. Hunters can buy those tags at any Fish and Game office, license vendor, by telephone at 800-554-8685, or online at id.outdoor-central.us/.

For hunters whose names weren’t drawn, big game over-the-counter tags also are available in many big-game units. For details, contact license vendors or local Fish and Game offices.

Taking in NATURAL FIREWORKS on July 4 hike

By Brett French
The Billings Gazette

The sun brightened the yellow glow of an expansive field of dandelions and buttercups at the west end of Keyser Brown Lake when the fireworks started at around 4 p.m. on the Fourth of July.

Seven miles into the Absaroka-Beartooth Wilderness, this natural explosion was short-lived but impressive. A rock slide across the lake on a mountain face I’d named Jabba the Hut, for its resemblance to the Star Wars villain’s fat frowning face, raked down the mountainside in a cloud of dust accented by a booming report. Happy Independence Day!

Normally wilderness areas and national forests are void of loud explosions on the Fourth. Fireworks are outlawed on federal lands. So this natural version was an unusual and appreciated show. And with the yellow flowers in the foreground, it was almost like a shower of bright sparks that never disappeared.

Popular for a reason

Even minus the rockslide, the Lake Fork trail south of Red Lodge is hard to beat for ease and beauty when it comes to hiking and backpacking in the Beartooths. For these reasons, and its close proximity to Red Lodge, the trail is one of the most popular in the Custer National Forest’s Beartooth Ranger District.

Located 8.5 miles south of Red Lodge, Lake Fork Creek is a main tributary to Rock Creek. The stream is fed by a number of lakes and snow-gathering peaks in the drainage, along with melt water from Beartooth and Grasshopper glaciers. The lakes are Lost, Black Canyon, Keyser Brown, First Rock, Second Rock and September Morn. The peaks include Whitetail (12,548), Mount Lockhart (11,647), Thunder Mountain (11,446), Beartooth Mountain (12,377) and Mount Rearguard (12,204).

Although this is high country, the trail rises gradually from the trailhead at 7,200 feet, following the creek upward while sandwiched between the dominating Silver Run and Hellroaring plateaus. It’s easy to slip into a trance as the rushing water of the creek puts you in a mountain state of mind. At the head of the drainage, Mount Lockhart looms with a bright white coating of snow forming a picturesque backdrop for photos.

BRETT FRENCH/Gazette Staff

The stream leading up to First Rock Lake provides a scenic foreground to 12,548-foot Whitetail Peak.

First lake

Five miles in, Lost Lake is the first stop for many day hikers and backpackers. Sitting at an elevation of about 8,500 feet, Lost is located south off the main route and pressed hard against pink, gray and tan cliffs. Evidence of a dramatic windstorm that scoured the Beartooth Front from Nye to Red Lodge three years ago is evident at the lake, with the lodgepole pine trees stacked like fallen matchsticks across the landscape.

All the downfall makes finding a campsite a bit difficult, but they’re there — flat spots for tents and kitchens hidden in the criss-crossed trees. The one good thing about the storm is that there is an ample supply of firewood. A pack saw would come in handy to buck up some of the trees. The downside to the downfall is that, when the wind comes up, you wonder if any of the trees still standing have been badly loosened and may topple in the next breeze.

Further on

Back on the main trail, it’s only a short distance farther west to the turnoff to Black Canyon Lake. It’s a rugged climb up the drainage, a scramble over rocks as the trail becomes hard to find. There are few flat spots to camp at Black Canyon, but the lake’s large cutthroat trout still tempt anglers to venture in.

Two miles past Lost Lake is Keyser Brown and its flower-filled meadow. Numerous campsites can be found around the lake, which is also popular with trail riders. From Keyser, the trail is not maintained and it’s a scramble up to First Rock and Second Rock, but there are great views of Whitetail Peak and few other hikers and backpackers.

Just before reaching Keyser Brown, the trail forks to rise to September Morn Lake, which is 8 miles from the trailhead and sitting just below 9,800 feet. From September Morn, it’s another two miles to the top of Sundance Pass. Hardcore hikers can take this route and drop into the West Fork Rock Creek drainage and finish their journey at the Camp Senia trailhead after hiking 19 miles. One energetic duo was making a loop out of the route over the Fourth of July weekend. Having parked their mountain bikes at the Camp Senia trailhead, they planned to bike back to their car at Lake Fork to round out the journey.

The Beartooth District’s trail guide lists different distances than the sign at the trailhead. According to the trail guide, it is four miles and 1,300 feet in elevation gain to Lost, 5.5 miles and 2,000 feet to Black Canyon and six miles and 1,500 feet to Keyser Brown.

No matter how it’s measured, the Lake Fork is the most gradual of climbs offered to a variety of lakes on the Beartooths’ eastern face. And if you’re lucky, you might even get to see a natural fireworks display.

Our national parks are great destinations

The Bryan Times

BRYAN, Ohio — We took our first big camping trip as a family of three to Yosemite National Park when our daughter, Alexis, was 5.

We had looked longingly at Ansel Adams’ photographic essays and had read about the natural wonders of giant trees, ancient rock formations and enticing hikes and rock climbs.

We flew to San Francisco, rented a car and made the historic Ahwahnee Hotel our base camp for three days as we climbed up to Vernal Falls and hiked through grassy plateaus in the highlands.

The natural beauty, the fresh air, the pristine streams and the wonder we felt made us realize how important it was to experience as much of the grandeur of the United States as we could.

For years after that trip, we made a point of visiting both national and state parks all over the country.

When I turned 50, I met Alexis in Utah, where we hiked the amazing Zion National Park.

Zion’s most riveting feature is a 15-mile-long canyon that is almost a half-mile deep. On that same trip, Alexis and I drove by Bryce Canyon National Park on our way to Yellowstone, where we saw an amazing array of wildlife — moose, deer, bison, elks and magnificent birds — and the geothermal bubbling mud pots, fumaroles, geysers and hot springs.

The national parks in the West are rich in natural wonders and history. And you don’t need to be an avid hiker to enjoy them; each park offers a range of ways to take in the scenery.

YELLOWSTONE

America’s first national park, Yellowstone was established in 1872. Its 3,500 square miles are located mainly in Wyoming; about 4 percent of the park is in Montana and Idaho. Geysers such as Old Faithful are famous features, but there’s much more in its vast wilderness, including 67 mammal species, one of the world’s largest petrified forests and an active volcano.

Stay at: Old Faithful Inn (www.yellowstonenationalparklodges.com). The grand, rustic style of this hotel, built in 1904, inspired the term “parkitecture.” Its location, next to the Old Faithful geyser, is the best in the park. Book at least a year in advance.

Don’t miss: The spot where the Boiling River hot spring meets the cool Gardner River. Visitors of all ages will enjoy bathing in the waters and watching the steam clouds.

YOSEMITE

California’s Yosemite National Park is one-third the size of Yellowstone but no less astounding. Its waterfalls, valleys and granite cliffs are breathtaking reminders of the power of glaciers.

Stay at: The Ahwahnee (www.yosemitepark.com). This National Historic Landmark in Yosemite Valley offers views of the epic El Capitan and Half Dome rock formations. The 1927 hotel’s interiors are as stunning as the surroundings.

Don’t miss: A mule ride through Yosemite’s high country, which rises above several lakes and looks out onto the Cathedral and Mammoth mountain ranges. Hike to at least one of the three major waterfalls: Nevada, Vernal and Yosemite.

BRYCE CANYON & ZIONS

Utah’s Bryce Canyon is a spectacular geological oddity. Carved over the course of millennia, this great, roofless cave has elevations of more than 9,100 feet, offering dramatic views of the colorful rock formations called hoodoos that define its landscape. Zion’s narrow sandstone canyons are decorated with an impressive collection of dinosaur tracks.

Stay at: The Lodge at Bryce Canyon (www.brycecanyonforever.com). This stone and timber lodge, which opened in 1926, is a National Historic Landmark. Reserve one of the original cabins, which have been restored to their 1920s appearance.

Don’t miss: A rodeo at Ruby’s Inn (www.rubysinn.com). An institution since 1916, Ruby’s hosts rodeos throughout the summer.

COMMUNITY NEWS

SCCAP will hold annual board meeting today

South Central Community Action Partnership, a nonprofit organization dedicated to helping the low-income population of the Magic Valley, will hold its annual board meeting at 7 tonight at the Wilson Theatre in Rupert.

Elected low-income representatives and selected private-sector representatives will be seated on the board of directors for the three regions of south-central Idaho.

Those three regions consist of Twin Falls County, Mini-Cassia and the northern region of Lincoln, Gooding, Jerome, Blaine and Camas counties. The board of directors represents three groups in the community: the public sector, the private sector and the low-income sector, representing the needs of low-income people in the community. The public is invited to attend.

Information: Ken Robinette, executive director, 733-9351 ext. 3002.

First-time homebuyer class nears at CSI

The College of Southern Idaho Community Education Center is offering a noncredit homebuyer's education course. The course is specifically designed for first-time low- to moderate-income homebuyers and addresses some issues that potential homeowners face as they take the steps toward purchasing a home.

The Finally Home course will be held from 6 to 10 p.m. Monday and July 26, at the CSI Mini-Cassia Campus. The registration cost is $20 and students can register at www.communityed.csi.edu. Information: 732-6442.

University of Idaho Twilight Tour nears in Kimberly

The Fourth Biennial University of Idaho Twilight Tour will be held from 5 to 8 p.m. Wednesday, at the Kimberly Research and Extension Center, two miles north of Kimberly, at 3806 N. 3600 E.

It features horse-drawn wagon rides around the experiment station to view and hear about ongoing field research projects, displays and exhibits, and a free hamburger and hot dog dinner.

This event is designed to show the public some University of Idaho College of Agricultural & Life Sciences research and extension projects and activities taking place in south-central Idaho.

Circus coming to Wendell

The Wendell Lions Club is sponsoring the Culpepper & Merriweather Circus in Wendell on July 22 at the New Life Community Church, 800 W. Main St. Shows are at 5 and 7:30 p.m.

Discounted advance tickets are $9 for adults and $6 for children ages 2 to 12. Advance tickets, which benefit the Lions Club, are available from Lions Club members, at Wendell City Hall, and at The Package Shoppe on North Idaho Street.

All proceeds will go to pay for improvements at the new Ambrose Pocket Park.

Veterans Services officer to visit Jerome

Military veterans and surviving spouses of veterans are invited to make an appointment to see Milt Smith from the Idaho Division of Veterans Services Office from 9 a.m. to noon July 26, at the Jerome County Courthouse, 300 N. Lincoln St., Room 310. Questions and concerns about veterans benefits will be addressed.

Information: Terry Gabbert, veteran services officer for Jerome County, 644-2708.

ASUI honors area students

Schumann receives ag educator award

By Judy Albertson
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Cami Schumann, agricultural educator at Raft River High School in Malta, has been selected as the 2010 Idaho recipient of the Outstanding Young Member Award given by the National Association of Agricultural Educators (NAAE).

Schumann said she was surprised she received the award.

“They send out an invitation to teachers in the state inviting them to apply,” she said. “I have some great kids and a great community to work with.”

Schumann started college at Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah, and graduated from Utah State University in Logan, in agriculture education.

According to the NAAE, Outstanding Young Member Award recipients are agricultural educators who have taught for no more than six years and have demonstrated significant progress toward establishing a successful agricultural education program. Applicants are judged on a variety of criteria, including teaching philosophy, effective classroom and experiential instruction, development of partnerships, and professional growth.

“I don't think I have done anything special,” Schumann said. “I'm just doing my job. We put on a dinner every year for the local beef and dairy people in the area. We do elementary activities. We have an ag reading day and an ag day in the spring with elementary kids.”

The Outstanding Young Member Award was created to encourage early career agriculture teachers to remain in the profession and become active members in their professional association.

Schumann will compete against other award recipients from surrounding states for the opportunity to be named the 2010 NAAE Outstanding Young Member for Region I.

Regional winners will receive a plaque and an expense-paid trip to attend the 2010 NAAE convention in Las Vegas, as well as a dinner in their honor one night during the convention.

Schumann has taught at Raft River for five years. She and her husband live in Malta with their four children. Her husband is ranch manager at Arimo Ranches.

Female octogenarian wants to be able to dance again

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am an active 80-year-old female in good health. I'm writing about an injury to my left knee that occurred in December 2007 while dancing. In the same month, I fell down while bowling, injuring both my knee and back. The doctors diagnosed me with spinal stenosis and damaged cartilage of the knee.

I've since had chiropractic treatments and massage therapy but am unable to continue due to financial difficulties. I saw an orthopedic surgeon but to my dismay, he didn't refer me for any treatment. Instead, he administered a cortisone shot and asked that I return for a follow-up visit in three months. Follow-up visits were disappointing as he did not even try to refer me for therapy or anything beneficial to my injury.

I took it upon myself to work my knee muscles and provided self-therapy. I'm finally walking a little better, but I still cannot fully bend it. Without having to undergo surgery, is there a sports kinesiologist similar to those who care for professional athletes you can refer me to? Would that be outside my insurance benefits?

DEAR READER: I recommend that you see your primary-care physician and orthopedic specialist to obtain some answers. In a sense of the word, you must know the rules of the game before you can start to play. Perhaps they will both indicate that you have improved as much as you can, that you have arthritis, disc degeneration or other condition(s) that affect many people as they age. If that is the case, there are self-help steps you can take. If not, consider physical therapy, hydrotherapy, yoga, weight loss, pain medication and/or ice/heat for relief. You don't indicate if you have taken any medication other than the cortisone injections that were somewhat ineffective. Is a trial medication an appropriate first step? Once you receive answers and know your limitations, ask for an appropriate referral, perhaps to a sports-medicine specialist who would be covered under your insurance.

Kylie Lamm receives first Christensen Memorial Scholarship

The first Elma Jean (Nielson) Christensen Memorial Scholarship has been awarded to Gooding High School Senior Kylie Lamm, right.

Lamm is the daughter of MayEllen Fay and Joel Lamm. She plans to attend the College of Southern Idaho and then transfer to Idaho State University, majoring in secondary math education. She has been active in Honor Society, completing many hours of community service. She received a medal for completing the IT Academy at Gooding High School.

The scholarship was created in Christensen's name by her family to honor her lifelong thirst for knowledge and learning, and her commitment to being a steadfast proponent of the importance of academics and education. Christensen graduated from Wendell High School and attended Albion State Normal School, where she obtained her teaching certificate. She and her husband, Christy, have lived in Gooding since 1958.

North Side Center offers classes

Coming classes at the College of Southern Idaho's North Side Center include:

- "Tee Party," from 1 to 2:30 p.m. July 23, with a course fee of $15.

Get started on your way to becoming a fashion designer or just have fun being creative at this "Tee Party." Using three of their own T-shirts, students will cut, clip, tie and pin to customize the shirts into their own style. Instructor Suzie Heller will introduce them to 12 makeover techniques they can use to "deconstruct" shirts into unique fashion statements. "Fringe benefits," "ruffle and tumble" and "shoulder slash" are just a few of the techniques available to try.

Students should bring fabric scissors and three T-shirts.

- "Balloon Blast," from 11 a.m. to noon July 23; the court fee of $10 includes an instruction booklet.

Ballies? Swirlies? What are those? Those who missed it in June can find out in this July balloon class, where they will learn all the tricks to making crazy balloon hats and animals. Students may purchase a supply of balloons and a hand pump at the end of the class for $6 to continue the fun at home.

Information or registration for both classes: 934-8678, or visit the center at 202 14th Ave. E. in Gooding.

DEAR DR. GOTT: How does one multivitamin/mineral tablet taken daily with more than 30 supplements get into one tablet, especially with different ingredients?

DEAR READER: Great question and observation. Vitamins and minerals are essential for good health, yet the body requires only small amounts of most of them. A healthful diet rich in fresh fruits and vegetables can provide most of our collective needs.

Supplements contain intense concentrations of each in varying degrees that are compressed into small tablets or gel capsules. Beyond that, I guess maybe the process is one of the mysteries of all time.

Benjamin M. Harris

BURLEY — Benjamin McKay Harris, age 21, passed away Tuesday, July 13, 2010, while celebrating his 21st birthday in Moscow, Idaho.

Benjamin was the beloved son of Jeffery L. and Rebecca A. Harris of Burley. Ben was born as a twin to a loving LDS family on July 12, 1989. He achieved the rank of Eagle Scout at the age of 16 and was always bright and full of ideas. He loved outdoor activities like hockey and skiing, but he also loved quiet things like reading, drawing and chess.

Benjamin finished high school early after spending most of his school years at American Heritage Academy. He then spent a year at CSI before transferring to the University of Idaho. Ben was majoring in architecture at the U of I, where he was also a member of the Army Reserve. Benjamin joined the Army Reserve in the summer of 2009 and was awaiting his company's orders for deployment in the fall. Benjamin was a bright and promising young man with so much more to give. Benjamin will be deeply missed by his family.

He is survived by his parents, Jeffery L. and Rebecca A. Harris of Burley; his siblings, Nathan (Kate), Matthew (Cheyenne), Joshua, Aria (Rhett) Spear, Adam (Kali) (Benjamin's twin brother), Brittney, Jared and April; seven nieces; one nephew; his paternal grandfather, L. Edwin Harris of Burley; his maternal grandparents, Joseph Eldon Toomey of Burley and Marcia Rose Toomey of Burley. He was preceded in death by his grandmother, Marian Hanks Harris.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, July 17, at the Star LDS Church, 100 S. 200 W. of Burley, with Bishop Kirk Carpenter officiating. Burial will be in the Pella Cemetery. Friends may call from 6 until 8 p.m. Friday, July 16, at the Rasmussen Funeral Home, 1350 E. 16th St. in Burley, and 9:30 until 10:30 a.m. Saturday at the church.

Ira J. Davids

BURLEY — Ira James Davids, age 86, of Burley, died Tuesday, July 13, 2010, at Highland Estates in Burley.

Ira was born April 1, 1924, in Chesterfield, Idaho, the son of Emery Willard and Hazel Lavine (Call) Davids. He received his education in Chesterfield and Bancroft, where he excelled in high school sports. He served in the United States Navy during World War II. Ira married June Christensen on Dec. 18, 1946, in the Idaho Falls LDS Temple.

Ira farmed and worked on the railroad in Lava Hot Springs. After moving to Burley, he worked for Ore-Ida Foods for 26 years until his retirement. He was proud of his family and enjoyed hunting and fishing with his sons. He was active in the LDS Church and worked in the Scouting program.

He is survived by his wife, June of Burley; his children, Lawrence (Jan) of Rupert, Lyle (Rosie) and Lynn, both of Burley, Darla (Mike) Harward of Bountiful, Utah, and Wayne of Burley; 11 grandchildren; and 13 great-grandchildren. He was preceded in death by his parents; twin children, Julia and James; a brother, Joel; and his sisters, Lavine, Phoebe, Juanita "Nete" and Buelah.

A graveside service will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, July 17, at the Arimo Cemetery in Arimo, Idaho. Friends may call from 6 until 8 p.m. Friday at the Burley LDS Stake Center, 2050 Normal Ave. in Burley.

In lieu of flowers, the family suggests memorial contributions be directed to the American Diabetes Association or to a charity of your choice.

Arrangements have been entrusted to the care of the Rasmussen Funeral Home of Burley.

DeEtte Ann (Bean) Sturtevant

LONGVIEW, Wash. — DeEtte Ann (Bean) Sturtevant, 72, of Longview, Wash., passed away Friday, July 9, 2010, at Community Home Health and Hospice.

She was born July 26, 1937, in Eustis, Neb., to Gerald and Helen (Puls) Bean. She owned the Town Tavern in Sequim, Wash., and was a member of the Sequim VFW and Eagles as well as the Kelso Eagles. DeEtte enjoyed the occasional trip to the casino to play bingo (daboink!), fishing, camping, sewing, gardening and time spent with family. DeEtte had a great sense of humor and loved life.

DeEtte is survived by her longtime companion, Douglas West; three daughters, Melody and Benjo Brown of Vancouver, Wash., Rena Havens and Kenny McNally and Victoria Horman, all of Longview, Wash.; one son, Rick and Debbie Bean of Vancouver, Wash.; nine grandchildren, Benny, Clint and Ashley Brown, Tawnya Munson, Amanda Rowton, Shelly Fish, Joseph Jackson, Larry Horman and Rich Bean; 14 great-grandchildren, Brooklyn Brown, Clayton and Kylie Moore, Madison Munson, Hayden and Evan Rich, Karlee (Polly as grandma called her), Ryan, Daniel and Aaron Fish, Micah and Maris Jackson, Gage and Amy Marie Horman; three sisters, Cathy Dollarhyde (who preceded her in death on Dec. 8 1997), Diane Brookshier of Idaho Falls and Barbara Goeman of Chehalis, Wash.; two brothers, Gary Bean of Buhl and Bill McCaleb of Camano Island, Wash.; and numerous nieces and nephews.

Friends of DeEtte are welcome to celebrate her life at the memorial service at 1 p.m. Sunday, July 18, at the Cascade North West Funeral Chapel, Green Hill Crematory-Cemetery, 1939 Mount Brynion Road, Kelso, WA 98626. A reception will follow at the Kelso Eagles, 609 S. Pacific in Kelso. In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to Community Home Health and Hospice, 1035 11th Ave., P.O. Box 2067, Longview, WA 98632-8189.

Medal of Honor hero Vernon Baker dies at 90

By Rebecca Boone
Associated Press writer

BOISE — Vernon Baker, a black U.S. soldier who belatedly received the Medal of Honor for his World War II battlefield valor after historians concluded he'd been wrongly denied the military's top award because of his race, died at his home near St. Maries, Idaho. He was 90.

Baker died Tuesday of complications of brain cancer, Benewah County coroner and funeral home owner Ron Hodge said.

Then-President Bill Clinton presented the nation's highest award for battlefield valor to Baker in 1997. He was one of just seven black soldiers to receive it and the only living recipient.

"The only thing that I can say to those who are not here with me is, 'Thank you, fellas, well done,'" Baker told The Washington Post after the ceremony. "And I will always remember you."

In 1944, 2nd Lt. Baker was sent to Italy with a full platoon of 54 men. On April 5, he and his soldiers found themselves behind enemy lines near Viareggio, Italy. When concentrated enemy fire from several machine gun emplacements stopped his company's advance, Baker crawled to one and destroyed it, killing three Germans. Continuing forward, he attacked an enemy observation post and killed two occupants.

With the aid of one of his men, Baker attacked two more machine gun nests, killing or wounding the four enemy soldiers occupying these positions. Then he covered the evacuation of his wounded soldiers by occupying an exposed position and drawing the enemy's fire.

On the following night, Baker voluntarily led a battalion advance through enemy mine fields and heavy fire.

In all, Baker and his platoon killed 26 Germans and destroyed six machine gun nests, two observer posts and four dugouts.

He said later he felt the company commander, who said he was going to get reinforcements, had abandoned his group of men.

"It made me all the more determined to accomplish our mission," he told the PBS series "American Valor." "Because at that time the Army was segregated. It was thought that we were unable to fight." No black soldiers were awarded the Medal of Honor during World War II, although Baker did receive the Purple Heart, a Bronze Star and Distinguished Service Cross.

In 1993, U.S. Army officials contracted Shaw University in Raleigh, N.C., to study whether there was a racial disparity in the way Medal of Honor recipients were selected.

Historians did not find official evidence suggesting racial bias in the Army's award policy. But the study's authors say the political climate and common Army practices guaranteed no black soldier would ever receive the military's top award.

Baker

The university researchers recommended 10 soldiers to receive it. From that list, Pentagon officials picked seven.

But there was one problem — the statutory limit for presentation had expired. Congress was required to pass legislation that allowed the president to award the Medals of Honor so many years after the action.

Vernon Baker was the only recipient still living; the other six soldiers received their awards posthumously, with their medals being presented to family members.

Baker was initially rebuffed when he tried to join the Army. Baker said in an interview with public television that a recruiter told him there was no quota for enlisting "you people."

Reflecting on life in a segregated Army unit, he told The Washington Post, "I was an angry young man. We were all angry. But we had a job to do, and we did it." He added that he "knew things would get better, and I'm glad to say that I'm here to see it."

Baker returned to his northern Idaho home after the war. When he received a call telling him he was to receive a Medal of Honor, at first he was astonished. Then he was angry.

"It was something that I felt should have been done a long time ago," he told Idaho public television. "If I was worthy of receiving the Medal of Honor in 1945, I should have received it then."

Baker called his 1997 memoir "Lasting Valor."

U.S. Rep. Walt Minnick said he met Vernon Baker in the 1990s when the soldier spoke at a College of Idaho event. Minnick said he'd been expecting a battle-hardened soldier but was instead struck by Baker's gentle demeanor. Minnick said Baker's valor on the battlefield in Italy was a rebuke of racist policies that dominated the U.S. military into the middle of the last century.

"His actions on the front line demonstrates better than words can describe why discrimination and segregation in the military was both unfair and absolutely inconsistent with an effective fighting force," Minnick said. "He demonstrated a degree of courage few people have. He was prepared to give his life for his country — a country in which he was considered a second-class citizen."

Angle: Campaign against Reid is God's calling

By Michael R. Blood
Associated Press writer

LOS ANGELES — Republican Sharron Angle says her campaign to unseat Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid in Nevada is "a calling" from God and that her faith is helping her endure a fiercely competitive race in which Democrats have depicted her as a conservative extremist.

"When you have God in your life ... he directs your path," Angle told the Christian Broadcasting Network in an interview posted on its website Wednesday.

Asked why she entered the race, Angle said "the reason is a calling."

"When God calls you he also equips you and He doesn't just say, 'Well today you're going to run against Harry Reid,'" the tea party favorite said.

In the Bible "Moses has his preparatory time. Paul had his preparatory time. Even Jesus had his preparatory time," the former legislator said, citing her years in public office as her preparation for the race.

"God knew all of this in advance," Angle added. "I don't know what's coming up tomorrow but I do know that He is there. He saw it and that He has provided a way of escape and a way for me to endure."

In a wide-ranging interview, Angle said her media appearances are guided by the need to raise money for her campaign and she defended an overhaul of her campaign website in which many of her earlier positions on Social Security and other issues were rewritten, condensed or deleted.

Angle, a Southern Baptist, has called herself a faith-based politician who prays daily. Among her positions, she opposes abortion in all circum-

AFGHANISTAN

8 U.S. troops killed in Afghan attacks

KABUL, Afghanistan — A spate of attacks that included a bombing outside an Afghan police base in Kandahar city killed eight American troops and three police officers, NATO officials said Wednesday, reflecting stepped-up resistance by the Taliban to coalition efforts to secure southern Afghanistan.

The most brazen attack was an assault Tuesday night at the headquarters of the Afghan National Civil Order Police, a force that recently came to Kandahar to work with NATO troops to secure the city. At about 9 p.m., a car bomb exploded on the base's perimeter, followed by gunfire and rocket-propelled grenades.

Three U.S. troops were killed, along with five Afghan civilians — including four interpreters — and three police officers, according to NATO and Afghan officials.

Four other U.S. service members died in a bombing attack Wednesday in southern Afghanistan, and a fifth was killed by gunfire. Officials did not immediately offer more information about the location or circumstances of those deaths.

IRAQ

Country faces new test in U.S. handover of last prison

BAGHDAD — The U.S. military has handed over Tariq Aziz and dozens of other members of Saddam Hussein's inner circle to Iraqi authorities who will assume control today of the last American-run detention facility in the country.

Although the Americans will continue to hold 200 problematic detainees, the changing of the guard at Camp Cropper will mean the end of a mammoth U.S. prison system that has processed more than 100,000 Iraqis in the seven years since the fall of Baghdad.

It will also close a chapter on one of the most bitter legacies of the war, the shocking images in 2004 of prisoners being abused by American soldiers at Abu Ghraib.

For Iraq, the transfer of detainees marks a milestone on the road to full sovereignty. But it also puts to the test a democratically elected government that many believe has learned few positive lessons from the abuses of Saddam's regime.

Despite Abu Ghraib — or perhaps because of reforms in its wake — prisoners have more recently said they receive far better treatment in American custody than in Iraqi jails.

IRAN

Scientist who says he was kidnapped returns to Iran

TEHRAN — An Iranian nuclear scientist who disappeared a year ago headed back to Tehran on Wednesday, telling Iranian state media that he was abducted by CIA agents who tried to bribe him into speaking out against his homeland. The U.S. says he was a willing defector who changed his mind.

Shahram Amiri's reappearance broke into the open an often-bizarre intelligence drama. U.S. officials have dismissed accounts of a kidnapping and suggested Amiri returned home because he missed or feared for his family. But much in the case remains mysterious, including the exact circumstances of how the defection fell apart and what information, if any, he provided about Iran's controversial nuclear program.

Also unknown is whether the 32-year-old scientist could face any punishment in his homeland after the State Department said he came willingly to the United States and was in contact with the government.

On Wednesday, Iranian state media were heavily promoting the account that he was the victim of a CIA kidnapping, and politicians were declaring a victory over the "terrorist state" America — suggesting that at least for now, the government would rather squeeze the return for propaganda value than overtly retaliate.

CHINA

Beijing starts gating, locking migrant villages

BEIJING — The government calls it "sealed management." China's capital has started gating and locking some of its lower-income neighborhoods overnight, with police or security checking identification papers around the clock, in a throwback to an older style of control.

It's Beijing's latest effort to reduce rising crime often blamed on the millions of rural Chinese migrating to cities for work. The capital's Communist Party secretary wants the approach promoted citywide. But some state media and experts say the move not only looks bad but imposes another layer of control on the already stigmatized, vulnerable migrants.

So far, gates have sealed off 16 villages in the sprawling southern suburbs, where migrants are attracted to cheaper rents and in some villages outnumber permanent residents 10 to one.

"In some ways, this is like the conflict between Americans and illegal immigrants in the States. The local residents feel threatened by the influx of migrants," Huang Youqin, an associate professor of geography at the University at Albany in New York who has studied gating and political control in China, said in an e-mail. "The risk is that the government can control people's private life if it wants to."

BRITAIN

Da Vinci painting reveals hidden details

LONDON — A restoration project for Leonardo da Vinci's "Virgin of the Rocks" has revealed new details and suggest the Renaissance artist may have painted all the picture himself, instead of with his assistants as previously thought, a British gallery said Wednesday.

The 18-month conservation project involved removing much of some badly degraded varnish that was applied to the painting in the late 1940s, enabling experts to take a much closer look at the picture's brush strokes and styles, the National Gallery said.

The cleaning revealed the painting's full tonal range, especially in the darker areas, and resulted in a clearer sense of how the artist intended for space to recede through the rocky landscape, the gallery said.

It also affirmed that Leonardo likely painted the entire picture himself and intended for it to be unfinished.

The restored painting showed a range of completion from the barely sketched hand of the angel to the fully realized heads of the main figures — consistent with many of Leonardo's works.

The painting dates from about 1491 to 1508 and is a later version of one on display in the Louvre in Paris.

Boise State receiver Austin Pettis (2) and Alabama receiver Julio Jones (8) hope to lead their teams to the BCS National Championship Game.

SPORTS ILLUSTRATED WRITER SAYS

'BAMA VS. BOISE

IS GAME HE'D MOST LIKE TO SEE THIS SEASON

In this week's edition of his College Football Mailbag, SportsIllustrated.com writer Stewart Mandel was asked what two college programs he'd most like to see play in the upcoming college football season.

His answer: "I'll go with Alabama vs. Boise State."

"There's no greater litmus test right now than facing the SEC's champion, and if we believe the consensus projections that Alabama will once again be that team, and that the perennial outsider Broncos are about to field their most complete team to date, what better way to settle the question once and for all as to whether Boise belongs?," wrote Mandel.

"For once, there would be no excuses if the Broncos pulled it off," Mandel continued. "No one could say their opponent wasn't motivated (Oklahoma in the 2007 Fiesta Bowl), hadn't yet rounded into form (Oregon in last season's opener) or wasn't a BCS program (TCU in last year's Fiesta Bowl)."

"We can already predict the requisite disclaimers that will follow should Boise beat Virginia Tech in this year's highly anticipated opener — the Hokies always lose their high-profile openers, they play in the 'inferior' ACC, etc."

"Even when Utah beat 12-1 Alabama in the Sugar Bowl two years ago, we heard that the deflated Tide didn't take the game seriously, suffered from Andre Smith's suspension, etc., etc."

"That's why it would take a BCS championship matchup against an actual SEC champion (because heaven knows a win over Ohio State would come with its own set of detractors) for Boise State to deliver its closing argument."

"And of course, if Alabama won by three touchdowns, we'd learn something, too."

Talk about an educational matchup.

Whether the twain shall meet in January 2011 depends on what Boise and 'Bama do in 2010.

BSU begins its season on Labor Day, facing Virginia Tech at 6p.m. (MST) on ESPN. Alabama's coming campaign kicks off two days earlier in a home date with the WAC's San Jose State.

The countdown is on.

Two opposite ends of the sports spectrum collided in Mini-Cassia last Saturday.

While the Burley Golf Course hosted the MillerCoors Burley Amateur Golf Championship, the Burley Golf Course Marina hosted the Idaho Water Sports Wake in the Snake wakeboard competition — separated only by a chain link fence.

On one side it was khakis and argyle. On the other it was Daisy Dukes, bikinis on top.

The calming sounds of birds chirping and the "ping" of a titanium driver striking a Titleist were drowned out by Soulja Boy and Three Days Grace.

While some athletes lined up their putts, other athletes just a hundred yards away lined up their tantrums and heelside 360s.

One PA speaker announced the four-some playing the 11:40 tee time.

Ryan Howe

Moments later, another PA speaker announced, "Oh! That's Zac Davis with a hoochie glide! Gettin' dirty with it!"

The winner after 36 holes was Darren Kuhn of Pocatello, a 30-something husband and father. The winner after 30 riders was Braxton Tomlinson of Mud Lake, a 17-year-old with shaggy bleach-blonde hair.

Both tournaments were a success, according to their organizers, and each brought in competitors from all over Idaho, Utah and a few other states.

It shows what a diverse and vast sports world we live in. On Saturday in Mini-Cassia alone there was something for everyone.

If golf or wakeboarding weren't your thing, down the road in Declo you could participate in a 5K/10K run as part of the 30th Annual Declo Days celebration.

In addition, for the first time, Declo Days hosted a 3-on-3 basketball tournament in which two dozen teams competed in three divisions. Proving that you're never too old to pull a hamstring in an attempt to re-live the glory days, Kelly Mangum, Chris Gailey, Darin Matthews and Dee Darrington won the 30-and-over division.

Later Saturday evening, local rivals Burley and Minico met for an American Legion Baseball game, with fans packing the bleachers (heck, fans would pack the bleachers if these rivals met for a Rock, Paper, Scissors play-off). Jackson Kunz blasted the first pitch of the game for a home run and Jake Mills pitched a two-hitter in the Green Sox win.

Kicking back with a grilled onion and mustard-smothered hot dog as the sun set at Warburton Field, it was the perfect end to a perfect sports day in the M-C.

Even though I have no idea what a hoochie glide is.

Wade says hardest part is over for Heat

By Tim Reynolds
Associated Press writer

DORAL, Fla. — Dwyane Wade looked at the flag, took his stance and slowly pulled back his 5-iron.

He whiffed. Twice.

"No time to practice my golf," Wade said.

That'll soon change. With his free agency settled, with LeBron James and Chris Bosh now along for the ride and with the Miami Heat roster slowly taking shape, Wade is looking forward to finally getting some downtime this summer — knowing that a training camp unlike any other starts in about two months.

Touching on a variety of topics, Wade seemed as relaxed and content as he's been in weeks on Wednesday when he and Alonzo Mourning co-hosted a charity golf event to start their five-day series of fundraising activities known as the Summer Groove. Wade posed for photos, chatted with those who paid $1,000 to play, even wolfed down a hamburger under a canopy with fans during a rain delay.

"The hard part," Wade said, "is out of the way" now. He has a $107 million, six-year contract after giving back some money to accommodate the acquisitions of James, Bosh and Udonis Haslem, his close friend and teammate for the past seven seasons. He settled four civil lawsuits from failed business deals, finalized a divorce and is spending time with his kids.

It's all about looking ahead now, Wade insisted.

A little more than a week ago, some sports books in Las Vegas had Miami listed as a 20-1 shot to win the 2011 NBA title. The Heat are now about an 8-5 betting choice, now that James, Bosh and Wade — three of the NBA's top nine scorers last season — will be together for presumably years to come.

"It still seems surreal," Wade said. "Walking down the hallway when we were on our way to do the congratulations, the 'Yes. We. Did.' event, looking to my life and my right, I'm like, 'this is awesome.' It took me back to

A British Open with all the elements

By Doug Ferguson
Associated Press writer

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland — The locals are famous for saying that if it's "nae rain and nae wind then it's nae golf."

There was rain. And there was wind.

There just wasn't much golf being played Wednesday on the eve of the British Open.

Kenny Perry wanted to play one more practice round, and the miserable weather wasn't about to stop him. It just made him think about how long he really wanted to be in the kind of elements St. Andrews hasn't seen in 15 years for the British Open.

Three holes after he teed off, with raindrops on his glasses and water dripping off a black rainsuit that had turned slick and shiny, he cut across the Old Course to play two holes back toward the clubhouse. As he stepped onto the 17th tee, Perry noticed a man grinning at him from beneath an umbrella.

"Are you enjoying our weather?" the man said in his thick brogue.

"What's there to enjoy?" Perry replied.

Worse yet was leaving the 17th tee with Nick Watney, rain pelting them sideways and the sound of laughter above them. There was Ian Poulter, dressed in shorts and a shirt, taking pictures of them from the comfort of his third-floor room in the Old Course Hotel.

"Having fun down there, boys?" Poulter called out to them.

The fun doesn't begin until today, when the 139th version of golf's oldest championship gets under way at St. Andrews, with weather that likely will as much of a factor as Tiger Woods, Phil Mickelson or any of the players.

AP photo

Spain's Sergio Garcia puts on his gloves during a practice round on the Old Course at St. Andrews, Scotland, Wednesday. The British Open golf tournament begins today at St. Andrews.

And it's about time.

The last time the Open came to St. Andrews, there was only one round of a stiff breeze and Woods won by five shots at 14-under 274. Ten years ago on a sun-baked links, Woods set a major championship record at 19-under 269 for an eight-shot win in perfect weather. But there was nasty weather in 1995, when John Daly finished at 6-under 282 and won a playoff.

The Royal and Ancient, which runs this tournament, doesn't get wrapped up in scores. It lets nature decide that.

"The forecast for the championship is changeable — blustery, showery conditions," R&A chief executive Peter Dawson, barely able to contain a grin. "Pretty good for links golf."

First-round coverage

3 a.m. to 1 p.m., ESPN

This is what Woods will face as he tries to make more history at the home of golf. No one has ever won the Open three times at St. Andrews, and this stage could be an important test for golf's No. 1 player.

Woods has never gone this far into the calendar without winning. He has never gone more than seven tournaments to start a season without a victory, and the Open marks his seventh event. His preparations included playing Sunday in gusts that approached 50 mph, and the next two days in wind out of different directions.

He also endured a press conference in which about half of the questions were about his personal life. Among his chief critics has been Watson, who has said that Woods needs to "clean up his act."

Given a chance to elaborate Wednesday, the five-time Open champion declined.

"I said what I needed to say about Tiger Woods," Watson said. "The one thing that you should be writing about Tiger Woods right now is that he's won the championship the last two times he's played here, and that he's probably the odds-on favorite to win it again."

The challenge figures to be much greater, a result of Woods' unpredictable form, the growing number of contenders — especially a European resurgence led by U.S. Open champion Graeme McDowell, Justin Rose and Lee Westwood — and the weather.

MLB readies for second act

By Jon Krawczynski

When Oakland outfielder Rajai Davis heard the Texas Rangers had acquired Cliff Lee from Seattle late last month, he reacted the same way as many others around baseball did. “They’re trying to make a real run, huh?” Davis said. “They’re not playing around.”

The Rangers may be in the middle of a messy ownership change that includes a rancorous bankruptcy proceeding, but that didn’t stop them from making the first major splash before the July 31 non-waiver trade deadline. Texas added Lee to a team that will carry a 4½-game lead in the AL West into the second half of the season, which begins Thursday.

The Rangers are looking for their first playoff appearance since 1999, and adding Lee to a formidable offense lets everyone know they’re serious. Lee was 4-0 with a 1.56 ERA in five postseason starts last year for the Phillies. But more importantly, he was 2-0 against the mighty New York Yankees in the World Series.

So who will be the next team to make a move?

The Los Angeles Angels are looking to add a big bat to stay in contention with Texas, and the AL Central-leading Chicago White Sox have similar designs.

“The probability of big guys moving at the deadline is always a risky proposition to try to handicap,” Angels manager Mike Scioscia said. “Things can change from week to week.”

One thing we do know is that the winner of the National League pennant will have homefield advantage for the World Series, after the NL beat the American League 3-1 on Tuesday night for its first victory in the All-Star game since 1996.

With tight races everywhere and the powerful Yankees playing for something bigger than just another title, buckle up for what is shaping to be a wild ride over the next few months.

AP photo
Texas Rangers starting pitcher Cliff Lee (33) delivers a pitch to the Baltimore Orioles during a baseball game Saturday in Arlington, Texas.

Here's a look at some of the keys to the rest of the MLB season:

MOTIVATED YANKEES: The Yankees steamrolled into the All-Star break with 30 victories in their final 44 games, looking every bit the favorite that they usually are.

The defending world champions may not even need to make a move after getting all the extra motivation they needed when longtime owner George Steinbrenner died this week.

Alex Rodriguez shared a story about a handwritten note Steinbrenner had delivered to him in 2004 that read “I’m counting on you” with capital letters and exclamation point.

“So I think to this day, we are still playing for him, not to let him down,” A-Rod said.

TIGHT RACES: No team is running away with anything right now. The biggest lead in any division is the Rangers’ 4½ games over the Angels in the AL West.

A few of the more intriguing races:

- AL East: Arguably the three best teams in baseball — the Yankees (56-32), Rays (54-34) and Red Sox (51-37) — are fighting for the title and likely the AL wild card. The Atlanta Braves (52-36) are only other team in baseball with a better record than third-place Boston.

- NL West: Can Mat Latos, Heath Bell and the remarkably successful San Diego Padres make their 2-game lead over the Rockies and Dodgers stand up for another few months?

- NL Central: The Cincinnati Reds (49-41) have been the other big surprise, one game in front of star-studded St. Louis at the break.

KEY INJURIES: They always play a big part in who makes it in and who falls short in the playoff race. This year, several teams have been ravaged, including:

- Boston Red Sox: RHP Clay Buchholz, C Victor Martinez, 2B Dustin Pedroia (fractured left foot), OF Jacoby Ellsbury (broken ribs), C Jason Varitek (fractured right foot), 3B Mike Lowell (right hip) and RHP Josh Beckett (back) have all missed significant time. Yet the Red Sox still only trail the Yankees by 5 games in the AL East.

- Philadelphia Phillies: The two-time defending NL champs, and the 2008 World Series champs, are off to a slower start this year after injuries to 2B Chase Utley (right thumb), LHP J.A. Happ (left forearm) and 3B Placido Polanco (left elbow). Utley isn’t expected back anytime soon and key relievers Ryan Madson and Chad Durbin have also been hurt.

- New York Mets: SS Jose Reyes aggravated his sore right side and missed the All-Star game, but CF Carlos Beltran is set to make his season debut Thursday after right knee surgery.

- Minnesota Twins: 1B Justin Morneau (concussion) has been out a week, SS J.J. Hardy and 2B Orlando Hudson have made trips to DL and C Joe Mauer’s shoulder is hurting for the stumbling Twins, who have fallen to third place in the AL Central.

YOUNG GUNS: It’s not just the year of the pitcher, it’s the year of the young pitcher.

“It seemed like 15 years ago, it was a time of young shortstops, and other times, it seems there’s an influx of great, young talent in outfielders,” Yankees manager Joe Girardi said. “But right now the influx of young pitching in baseball is incredible, and not just guys with stuff; guys that know how to pitch in tough division series at a young age.”

Can these young guns hold up through hot pennant races?

- Tampa Bay Rays: David Price (24) started the All-Star game and Matt Garza (26) was the MVP of the ALCS two years ago. James Shields (28), Jeff Niemann (27) and Wade Davis (24) give the second-place Rays a battle-tested young staff.

- Ubaldo Jimenez, RHP, Rockies: The 26-year-old Dominican is chasing history at 15-1 at the break, and he has the Rockies two games back of San Diego in second place in the NL West.

- Cincinnati Reds: RHPs Johnny Cueto (24) and Mike Leake (22) were a combined 14-3 at the break, and LHP Travis Wood (23) nearly tossed a perfect game last Saturday against Philadelphia.

- Stephen Strasburg, RHP, Nationals: The Nationals may be out of it, but it’s going to be great fun watching how MLB’s newest rock star responds to all the attention that has turned each of the rookie’s starts into an event.

Favre not concerned about his beat-up body

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Brett Favre was badly beat up in Minnesota’s overtime loss at New Orleans last January, a well-documented part of that epic NFC championship game.

The grandfather of NFL quarterbacks, however, doesn’t sound worried about his health as it relates to returning for a 20th season.

“Playing another year probably isn’t going to make a difference. The damage has already been done,” Favre told Men’s Journal magazine for the issue that will go on sale on Friday.

Favre also explained his thought process on the fateful fourth-quarter interception against the Saints in that game, an on-the-run pass to Sidney Rice that was forced into tight coverage. Favre said they connected on the same play the week before against the Dallas Cowboys, expecting Rice to come back toward him.

“As a player you’ve got to pull the trigger,” Favre said. “You can’t say, ‘Well, is he going to do what I think he’s going to do?’ He wasn’t wrong, and in some ways, I wasn’t either.”

The Vikings are still waiting to learn whether Favre will come back, with training camp a little more than two weeks away. His agent, Bus Cook, told The Associated Press in an e-mail on Wednesday he had no update on Favre’s status.

“Nothing yet,” Cook said.

Favre was scheduled to appear at the ESPY awards ceremony in Los Angeles on Wednesday night. He has four nominations this year.

In the wide-ranging interview with Men’s Journal, Favre expressed the usual uncertainty about continuing his decorated, drama-filled career. He offered candid details, claiming he was so dehydrated during a comeback victory over the San Francisco 49ers that he went 13 hours without urinating.

Favre also spoke proudly about his exceptional first season with Minnesota in which he threw 33 touchdown passes and only seven interceptions, wondering aloud whether he could repeat that feat.

“I’ve had games when I almost threw seven picks,” Favre said. “It was unreal. Before last year, I’d reached a point where I was sitting in meetings with guys 15 years younger than me thinking, ‘What the hell am I doing here?’ Football became work. But last year it went back to being a game.”

Favre said he did doubt his decision to unretire for a second straight year and sign with the Vikings, even as he was making the commitment.

Union disputes NBA’s figures, prepares for lockout

NEW YORK — Insisting that the NBA’s financial projections “strain credulity,” players’ association executive director Billy Hunter said Wednesday he’s seen nothing to change his belief that a lockout is possible.

Hunter disputes commissioner David Stern’s forecast of nearly $400 million in losses this season, countering that the league’s basketball-related revenues increased to their highest point ever in 2009-10.

“Our position is that David is mistaken,” Hunter told The Associated Press, adding he believes things are “much, much better than they maintain.”

The league’s collective bargaining agreement expires next summer. The sides have started negotiations toward a new one but remain far apart, creating fears of the first work stoppage since 1998-99.

“I’m preparing for a lockout right now and I haven’t seen anything to change that notion. Hopefully I’ll see something over the next several months,” Hunter said. “As of this moment, it’s full speed ahead for me in preparing the players for a worst-case scenario.”

Stern predicted the $400 million loss during the All-Star weekend in February, amending it to about $370 during a press conference Monday in Las Vegas following a meeting of the league’s board of governors.

The union was alerted to that projection last summer, but Hunter contends revenues turned out to be much higher than anticipated — though deputy commissioner Adam Silver said costs were up, too.

FORMER 76ERS EXECUTIVE BILLY KING TO REPLACE THORN

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Former Philadelphia 76ers general manager and president Billy King was hired Wednesday to replace Rod Thorn as the New Jersey Nets top executive, owner Mikhail Prokhorov announced in a release. Contract terms were not immediately available.

“He has all of the qualities we’ve been looking for in a candidate: professionalism, good relations with the league, players and agents, and strong communications skills,” Prokhorov said. “He will be an excellent fit with head coach Avery Johnson. Most importantly, Billy is ambitious. He wants to win. This is what I felt when I met with him and why he will be a strong addition to the Nets organization.”

Prokhorov personally interviewed more than five people for the general manager’s job and met with King again on Tuesday.

AP SOURCE: TIMBERWOLVES AGREE TO DEAL WITH RIDNOUR

MINNEAPOLIS — The Minnesota Timberwolves agreed to a four-year, $16 million deal with free agent point guard Luke Ridnour, a person with knowledge of the negotiations told The Associated Press on Wednesday. The person spoke on condition of anonymity because the deal has not been officially announced.

Ridnour averaged 10.4 points and 4.0 assists per game as the backup to Brandon Jennings in Milwaukee last season.

The 29-year-old is entering his eighth season in the NBA and will be playing for his third team after starting his career in Seattle and moving to Milwaukee in 2008.

The Wolves were able to swing the deal after shipping Al Jefferson to Utah on Tuesday to create more salary cap room.

BOBCATS REACH DEAL WITH GUARD SHAUN LIVINGSTON

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Shaun Livingston suffered what was widely considered a career-ending knee injury playing against Charlotte in 2007.

Just over three years later, he’s joining the Bobcats to continue his comeback and help plug their hole at point guard.

“Yes,” agent Henry Thomas said, “how ironic.”

Thomas confirmed on Wednesday his client was headed to Charlotte but didn’t provide financial figures. Yahoo! Sports reported it was a two-year deal worth $7 million.

“A good get,” Bobcats coach Larry Brown said in a brief phone interview.

ROCKETS TO MATCH CAVS’ OFFER SHEET TO LOWRY

CLEVELAND — The Cavaliers have been rejected again.

The team’s attempt to sign free agent Kyle Lowry was rebuffed Wednesday when the Houston Rockets matched Cleveland’s offer sheet to the veteran point guard. Cleveland’s package was a three-year, $24 million deal with a fourth option year, but Rockets general manager Daryl Morey wasted no time in making a counteroffer.

The 6-foot Lowry averaged 9.1 points, 4.5 assists and 3.6 rebounds per game last season backing up Aaron Brooks.

UDOH TO MISS 6 MONTHS AFTER WRIST SURGERY

OAKLAND, Calif. — The Golden State Warriors say top draft pick Ekpe Udoh will miss six months after undergoing surgery on his injured left wrist.

Udoh underwent the operation on Wednesday in San Francisco to repair a torn ligament in his wrist. He will have his wrist immobilized for about 10 weeks.

Armstrong teammate Paulinho wins 10th stage of Tour

By Jamey Keaten
Associated Press writer

GAP, France — Something finally went right for Lance Armstrong's squad at the Tour de France.

Team RadioShack got its first taste of success at this year's Tour when Sergio Paulinho of Portugal captured the 10th stage Wednesday, narrowly winning a two-man sprint among breakaway riders.

Andy Schleck of Luxembourg retained the yellow jersey. He finished in the main pack more than 14 minutes back, alongside his biggest rivals for the title.

Paulinho edged Vasil Kiryienka of Belarus over the sun-baked 111-mile trek from Chambéry to Gap that featured one difficult climb — the Laffrey pass — as the race left the Alps.

Paulinho pointed skyward then sucked his thumb in honor of his 8-month-old daughter after beating Kiryienka by less than half a wheel.

Sergio Paulinho of Portugal crosses the finish line to win the 10th stage of the Tour de France cycling race over 179 kilometers with start in Chambéry and finish in Gap, France, Wednesday.

They both clocked 5 hours, 10 minutes, 56 seconds. Belgium's Dries Devenyns was third: 1:29 behind. "This is a victory we've been looking for a while, after all the bad luck we had in the first week," Paulinho said. "I hope this victory gives morale back to our team."

It was the Portuguese rider's first individual stage win at the Tour, though he was part of the Astana squad — including Lance Armstrong and 2010 Tour winner Alberto Contador — that won the team time-trial last year.

Armstrong brought Paulinho and several other former Astana teammates to the RadioShack team, which was formed around the seven-time champion last year.

Armstrong fell out of contention in the first Alpine stage on Sunday after getting tangled up in three crashes and losing crucial minutes against the top contenders. The team is now banking on the podium hopes of Levi Leipheimer, who is sixth overall.

The 30-year-old Paulinho and Kiryienka, of Caisse d'Epargne, were part of a six-man breakaway made up of riders far back in the overall standings. The pack finished 14:19 behind Paulinho.

Paulinho and Kiryienka were part of a breakaway that took off around the 23-mile mark, and the pack didn't give chase. Even the winners clocked an average of 21 mph during the stage — a relative snail's pace at the Tour.

The overall standings didn't change. Schleck leads Contador by 41 seconds, while Samuel Sanchez of Spain was third, 2:45 back. Leipheimer is 3:59 behind.

It was the 25-year-old Schleck's first day in yellow, and he said he noticed greater fan support on the side of the roads of southeastern France during his ride in the coveted shirt.

"My name was on some of the signs. It's nice to see that," he said, referring to handmade banners unfurled by spectators. "I'm getting popular even here in France."

Riders are likely to breathe a bit easier during Thursday's 11th stage, a mostly flat 114.65-mile route from Sisteron to Bourg-les-Valence that has one midgrade climb.

Braves acquire Alex Gonzalez from Blue Jays in shortstop swap

ATLANTA — The NL East-leading Atlanta Braves, looking to bolster their lineup for the second half of the season, acquired Alex Gonzalez in a swap of shortstops that sent Yunel Escobar to Toronto on Wednesday.

The Braves also traded left-hander Jo-Jo Reyes to the Blue Jays in the five-player deal while also adding left-handed minor league pitcher Tim Collins and minor league shortstop Tyler Pastornicky.

The 33-year-old Gonzalez is hitting .259 with 17 home runs and 50 RBIs. He is tied for fifth in the American League with 43 extra-base hits.

"He's an outstanding defensive shortstop and he's having a very good offensive season," Braves general manager Frank Wren said. "We think he can improve our run production. He immediately leads our team in home runs."

Troy Glaus had 14 homers to lead the Braves at the All-Star break.

Escobar hit .299 with career-best totals of 14 homers and 76 RBIs last season. He has struggled this year, hitting only .238 with no homers and 19 RBIs.

"We feel that Yunel Escobar will absolutely turn it around," Toronto general manager Alex Anthopoulos said Tuesday.

"There's certainly an element of risk there, but we feel he has a very good opportunity to turn it around. I think if Yunel Escobar was doing what he did in the past, he's not available to us and this trade does not present itself."

Wren said Escobar could enjoy his best years after leaving the Braves.

"He very well may," Wren said. "He's a talented guy. But for our ballclub we felt we needed to make some adjustments. It just wasn't happening here right now."

The Braves also took on more salary. Escobar is making $435,000 this season. Gonzalez's salary is $2.75 million; his contract includes a 2011 club option for $2.5 million.

"Getting a guy we can control for a year and a half was important to us," Wren said.

Each shortstop is regarded as a strong defensive player.

Shaq to face Bieber, Rachael Ray in 'Shaq Vs.'

NEW YORK — Shaquille O'Neal is competing far outside his weight class in the second season of "Shaq Vs."

ABC announced Wednesday that Justin Bieber is among those the NBA star will face off with in its reality competition series. O'Neal will visit the much smaller 16-year-old pop star and join in a dance crew competition.

The second season of "Shaq Vs." will take the focus off athletic competitions. O'Neal will have a cook-off with Rachael Ray and a hot-dog-eating contest with competitive eating champion Joey Chestnut.

He will also race Dale Earnhardt Jr., try magic with Penn & Teller and box Sugar Shane Mosley.

O'Neal says: "I'm out to prove that I can compete beyond athletics. ... There's no challenge bigger than me."

The second season premieres Aug. 3.

Vanderbilt coach steps down 7 weeks before opener

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Saying there's never a good time for a football coach to quit, Bobby Johnson retired abruptly Wednesday as the Vanderbilt Commodores' head coach.

Vice Chancellor David Williams announced the news in a post on the university's athletic website Wednesday just before a news conference. Minutes later, the 59-year-old Johnson stepped up to a podium and said he was retiring from college football.

Johnson called it a very difficult decision but one not prompted by health concerns for either himself or his wife. He said he began seriously considering retirement a month ago, and he informed Williams in a meeting Monday.

"Football is not life, but it's a way of life and it consumes your life," Johnson said. "You only have so many years to live, and you want to see a different way."

Johnson's retirement comes a week before he was scheduled to appear at the Southeastern Conference's preseason media days, nearly three weeks before players report for fall practice and just seven weeks before the Commodores' opener Sept. 4 against Northwestern.

News leaked out Wednesday morning with WGFX-FM 104.5 The Zone citing sources that Johnson was resigning. That came four hours before Vanderbilt officials planned to inform the Commodores themselves, so the news conference was hastily scheduled. Coaches left reporters to speak with players.

"I am saddened by the fact Bobby has made this decision," Williams said. "At the same token as I've said to the staff, it's our obligation to respect his decision. I did try to talk Bobby out of it. I tried to talk him out of it yesterday. I tried to talk him out of it last night, and I tried to talk him out of it this morning."

Williams announced that Robbie Caldwell will be the interim head coach after serving as assistant head coach. He will be given the chance to keep the job with his performance this season.

"This is something we had to do overnight, so this is how we will handle this overnight. We might be doing something different next week, next month, but this is where we are right now," Williams said.

4 RECRUITS SUE SAVANNAH ST. FOR DISCRIMINATION

SAVANNAH, Ga. — Four white football players recruited by Savannah State University's former coach say in a lawsuit the historically black college denied them scholarships because of their race.

The lawsuit filed Monday in U.S. District Court in Atlanta says coach Robby Wells offered scholarships to the players before he was fired in January. It says Savannah State pulled the scholarship offers after Wells left.

Savannah State's attorney, Joe Steffen, says the school has no record of scholarship offers to any of the players. He says the coach had no authority to give scholarships without approval from the university athletics director.

Wells, who was Savannah State's first white football coach, filed his own discrimination lawsuit in May.

MICHIGAN STADIUM'S CAPACITY SET AT 109,901

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — The University of Michigan made a lot of changes to the Big House, erecting luxury boxes and club seats in towering structures that loom along both sidelines as part of a $226 million renovation.

It also increased the seating capacity to 109,901 for this season — up about 2,000 — to reclaim the distinction away from Penn State of having the largest football stadium in the country.

Athletic director Dave Brandon is already envisioning the iconic venue getting even bigger.

"We're already looking at future expansion," he said Wednesday after the media and public got a chance to tour the new-look stadium.

Brandon said the project — which started a day after the 2007 season ended — is on budget and time. He said revenue generated by suites and club seats have already covered costs.

couple years ago," he said Wednesday in a telephone interview with The Associated Press. He said he has accepted a job as an account representative for Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan.

HARRIS SAYS HIS THUMB WILL BE READY TO GO

CORAL GABLES, Fla. — The thumb injury Miami quarterback Jacory Harris dealt with on his throwing hand last season was repeatedly dismissed as something minor.

It apparently was far more severe than the Hurricanes ever acknowledged.

Harris feared "the worst" in the weeks following the injury, which was eventually announced as a torn ligament that required surgery six months ago. And although he's still recovering, Harris said Wednesday that he'll be pain-free and ready to play when Miami opens against Florida A&M on Sept. 2, followed nine days later by a trip to Ohio State in a rematch of the 2002 season's national title game.

"I guess the time off gave me time to rest," Harris said. "And when I got back, I was just in a mode where I've got to work to get better. I can't be the same person from last year. I've got to strive to get better."

Harris completed 242 of 406 passes last season for 3,352 yards and 24 touchdowns, the third-most in the Atlantic Coast Conference. He also threw 17 interceptions, second-most in major college football.

The thumb problem had him using a variety of wraps, tape jobs and treatments last season. He couldn't squeeze the ball properly and noticeably changed his release. And the numbers suggest it took a major toll as the year wore on.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

On October 14, 2010, at the hour of 11:00 o'clock AM of said day, at Land Title and Escrow, Inc., 237 North Lincoln, Jerome, Idaho, JUST LAW, INC., as Successor Trustee, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder, for cash, in lawful money of the United States, all payable at the time of sale, the following described real property, situated in the County of Jerome, State of Idaho, and described as follows to wit:
Lot 3 in Block 1, Magic Meadows No. 5 Subdivision, to the City of Jerome, Jerome County, Idaho, as the same is platted in the official plat thereof, now of record in the office of the Recorder of said County
The Trustee has no knowledge of a more particular description of the above referenced real property, but for purposes of compliance with Section 60-113 Idaho Code, the Trustee has been informed the address of 915 17th Avenue East, Jerome, ID, is sometimes associated with the said real property.
This Trustee's Sale is subject to a bankruptcy filing, a payoff, a reinstatement or any other conditions of which the Trustee is not aware that would cause the cancellation of this sale. Further, if any of these conditions exist, this sale may be null and void, the successful bidder's funds shall be returned, and the Trustee and the Beneficiary shall not be liable to the successful bidder for any damages.
Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, possessions or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the Deed of Trust executed by Ubaldo Aguilar and Araceli Aguilar, husband and wife, as Grantor(s) with First Horizon Home Loan Corporation as the Beneficiary, under the Deed of Trust recorded August 6, 2004, as Instrument No. 2044280, in the records of Jerome County, Idaho. The Beneficial interest of said Deed of Trust was subsequently assigned to Midfirst Bank, recorded August 1, 2008, as Instrument No. 2084193, in the records of said County.
THE ABOVE GRANTORS ARE NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506(4)(a), IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THEY ARE, OR ARE NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION.
The default for which this sale is to be made is the failure to pay the amount due under the certain Promissory Note and Deed of Trust, in the amounts called for thereunder as follows:
Monthly payments in the amount of $963.57 for the months of December 2009 through and including to the date of sale, together with late charges and monthly payments accruing. The sum owing on the obligation secured by said Deed of Trust is $100,009.51 as principal, plus service charges, attorney's fees, costs of this foreclosure, any and all funds expended by Beneficiary to protect their security interest, and interest accruing at the rate of 6.00% from November 1, 2009, together with delinquent taxes plus penalties and interest to the date of sale.
The Beneficiary elects to sell or cause the trust property to be sold to satisfy said obligation.
DATED this 10th day of June, 2010

According to the County Assessors Office, the above described property is commonly known as: 990 East 900 South, Albion, ID 83311.

The Trustee has no knowledge of a more particular description of the above referenced real property, but for purposes of compliance with Section 60-113 Idaho Code, the Trustee has been informed the address of 990 East 900 South, Albion, ID, is sometimes associated with the said real property.

This Trustee's Sale is subject to a bankruptcy filing, a payoff, a reinstatement or any other conditions of which the Trustee is not aware that would cause the cancellation of this sale. Further, if any of these conditions exist, this sale may be null and void, the successful bidder's funds shall be returned, and the Trustee and the Beneficiary shall not be liable to the successful bidder for any damages.

Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, possessions or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the Deed of Trust executed by Thomas DiGrazia, aka Thomas Joseph DiGrazia and Ina P. DiGrazia, husband and wife, as Grantor(s) with PHH Mortgage Corporation aka Coldwell Banker Mortgage as the Beneficiary, under the Deed of Trust recorded June 10, 2003, as Instrument No. 289226, in the records of Cassia County, Idaho.

THE ABOVE GRANTORS ARE NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506(4)(a), IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THEY ARE, OR ARE NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION.

The default for which this sale is to be made is the failure to pay the amount due under the certain Promissory Note and Deed of Trust, in the amounts called for thereunder as follows:

Monthly payments in the amount of $1,492.29 for the months of February 2009 through and including to the date of sale, together with late charges and monthly payments accruing. On July 26, 2010 at 7:00 P.M. the Lincoln County Commissioners will hold a Public Hearing concerning a Dietrich Cemetery Maintenance District which is proposed to be organized and that any taxpayer within the proposed boundaries of such proposed district may on the date fixed for such hearing appear and offer any objection to the organization of such district, the proposed boundaries thereof or the including or excluding of any real objections, if any such be interposed, the county commissioners shall thereupon make an order thereon either denying such petition or granting the same, with or without modification, and shall accordingly fix the boundaries of such proposed district in any order granting such petition. The boundaries, the maps, and the petitions are open to public inspection in the office of said clerk of the board of commissioners. The Public Hearing will be held at 111 West B Street, Shoshone, Idaho upstairs in the Courtroom at the Lincoln County Courthouse.

Publish on July 1st, July 8th, and July 15th

PETITION TO THE BOARD OF COUNTY COMMISSIONERS OF LINCOLN COUNTY, IDAHO

IN REFERENCE TO THE ORGANIZATION OF A CEMETERY MAINTENANCE DISTRICT

To the Honorable Board of County Commissioners of Lincoln County, Idaho
We, the undersigned, desire to provide for the organization of a cemetery maintenance district in Lincoln County, Idaho, which, together with the boundaries thereof, is hereinafter more fully and particularly described, and we hereby respectfully petition you Honorable Board to take all steps necessary under the laws of the State of Idaho, to create and organize such a district, and with that end in mind, we respectfully show to your Honorable Board:

That we desire the name of such proposed district to be:

"Dietrich Cemetery Maintenance District"

And that the boundaries of said proposed district are as follows:

"Beginning at the Southeast corner of Section 33, Township 6 South, Range 23 East of the Boise Meridian in Lincoln County, Idaho; thence West 2.5 miles, more or less, along the boundary of Lincoln County, to the Northeast corner of Section 4, Township 7 South, Range 23 East; thence South 6 miles, more or less, along the east boundary of Lincoln County, to the Southeast corner of Section 33, Township 7 South, Range 23 East; thence West, along the south boundary of Lincoln County, a distance of 14.5 miles, more or less, to the Southwest corner of Section 31, Township 7 South, Range 21 East; thence North 3 miles, along the boundary line of Lincoln County, to the Southwest corner of Section 18, Township 7 South, Range 21 East; thence West 6 miles, along the south boundary of Lincoln County, to the Southwest corner of Section 18, Township 7 South, Range 20 East; thence North 1 mile, to the Northwest corner of Section 18, Township 7 South, Range 20 East; thence West 8 miles to the Southwest corner of Section 11, Township 7 South, Range 18 East; thence North 2 miles, more or less, to the Northwest corner of Section 2, Township 7 South, Range 18 East; thence East .5 miles, more or less, to the Southwest corner of Section 34, Township 6 South, Range 18 East; thence North 5 miles to the Northwest corner of Section 10, Township 6 South, Range 18 East; thence East 1 mile to the Northeast corner of Section 10, Township 6 South, Range 18 East, thence North 1 mile to the Northwest corner of Section 2, Township 6 South, Range 18 East, thence East 8 miles, more or less, to the Southeast corner of Section 36; Township 5 South, Range 19 East, thence North 7 miles, more or less, to the Northwest corner of Section 31, Township 4 South, Range 20 East, thence East 6 miles to the Northeast corner of Section 36, Township 4 South, Range 20 East, thence North 11 miles to the Northwest corner of Section 6, Township 3 South, Range 21 East, thence East, along the northern boundary of Lincoln County, 15 miles to the Northeast corner of Section 4, Township 3 South, Range 23 East, thence South, along the eastern boundary of Lincoln County, 24 miles to the Southeast corner of Section 33, Township 6 South, Range 23 East, such being the true point of beginning."

That we, the undersigned, being more than 15 holders of title, and that collectively we are the holders of more than 6,000 acres of contiguous territory or contiguous territory of less extent but having a market value for assessment purposes of at least one million dollars ($1,000,000), lying entirely within the boundaries of said proposed district.

IF JULY 15 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Your need to be in command or to be seen as an authority figure could put you at a disadvantage during the next few weeks if you are too focused on fantasies. Try to be more realistic or escape for a restful weekend retreat where you be inspired by nature. By September and October, you will find appropriate channels for your ever increasing energies and business aptitudes. Perhaps a gym or interest in a new sport figures in your future. "Work hard, play hard" should be your motto until the end of the year. Keeping in shape and exercising your body as well as your mind will win you admiration and bountiful rewards by the end of January.

HOROSCOPE
Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Pitch in and put forth effort without rubbing anyone the wrong way. Your enthusiasm is admirable, but you should not move forward at the expense of anyone else. Sidestep confrontations.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Win the war without losing the battle. Your slow-to-anger persona needs to be dusted off and brought out for delicate negotiations. People might be highly competitive and might need gentle handling.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): If you strike while the iron is hot, you might unleash a firestorm. You would be wise to delay entering into delicate negotiations or asking for favors. Hold off on signing agreements or contracts.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Don't throw down the gauntlet unless you are prepared to engage in a duel. People won't back down from dares or challenges under these stars. This is not a good time to negotiate or sign contracts.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Headstrong ways are sometimes harmful. It isn't the bull in the china shop you must watch out for, it is the easily irritated driver on the highway or the bully in the classroom who can cause you trouble.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Watch out for warfare. There is a tendency for people to rush in and force themselves to the front of the line instead of waiting their turn. Drive defensively and steer clear of aggravations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Being first isn't as important as being ethical. It is easy to forget to play fair when caught up in the heat of a competition. The people you deal with might be more interested in winning than you are.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): It isn't whether you win or lose, it's how you play the game. Remember that it is possible that someone is playing by the rules, but with cutthroat tactics. Hold off on signing contracts or agreements.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Slow down and don't clown around. Pushing your luck might cause an argument. You need to stay in the slow lane on the highway and avoid rushing around as that may invite accidents.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Count to 10 before you lose your temper. You may be provoked or challenged today, so it will pay to remain sharp. Hold off on important meetings and delay signing agreements today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Take your time. There is a tendency to rush through your work in order to get out for the weekend. The problem is that the faster you go, the more mistakes you can make and that will slow you down further.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): This is a time when it is best to let a dilemma resolve itself. Your business acumen could be tainted by a friend's remarks. It would be wise to wait several more days before taking decisive action or steps.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"The trapper shall be trapped — the biter shall be bit, Unravelled is the web that he, poor fool, hath knit!"
— Pierre Corneille

At the Dyspeptics Club three of today's four players will confirm that West is the weakest cardholder, South the luckiest, and North the most acerbic. But, although none of the others would admit it, East is the best cardplayer. In today's deal South was caught by his deceptive defense.

Declaring three no-trump, South covered the opening lead of the spade 10 in dummy and ducked East's king. Back came a spade, West pitching a heart and declarer winning in dummy to take a diamond finesse. Because of the shortages of dummy entries, South briefly considered leading a heart to dummy's 10, but eventually crossed to the heart ace to repeat the diamond finesse, then cashed the two remaining heart winners. On the second of these, East discarded the club queen.

Unsure whether East had one diamond and two clubs left, or two diamonds and one club, South cashed the diamond ace next. When East followed with the king, declarer decided that East had the club A-J left. So South exited from hand with ace and a second spade, hoping to score his club king at the end, but East claimed the rest for down one.

As North pointed out, South could have made his life a lot easier by ducking the spade 10. Now, whether West leads a heart, diamond or club, South gains an extra entry to dummy for another finesse and takes two spades, three diamonds, three hearts and a club.

ANSWER: Experts do not agree whether this sequence shows a very strong balanced hand, or a long suit with guards outside, prepared to play three no-trump facing not very much. The simplest way to advance here is to bid four no-trump, hoping partner will clarify his hand-type if he has extras.

Today is Thursday, July 15, the 196th day of 2010. There are 169 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On July 15, 1910, the term "Alzheimer's disease" was used to describe a progressive form of presenile dementia in the book "Clinical Psychiatry" by German psychiatrist Emil Kraepelin, who credited the work of his colleague, Alois Alzheimer, in identifying the condition.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1870, Georgia became the last Confederate state readmitted to the Union. Manitoba entered confederation as the fifth Canadian province.

In 1916, Boeing Co., originally known as Pacific Aero Products Co., was founded in Seattle.

In 1918, the Second Battle of the Marne, resulting in an Allied victory, began during World War I.

In 1948, President Harry S. Truman was nominated for another term of office by the Democratic national convention in Philadelphia.

In 1960, American opera singer Lawrence Tibbett died in New York at age 63.

In 1964, Sen. Barry M. Goldwater of Arizona was nominated for president by the Republican national convention in San Francisco.

In 1971, President Richard Nixon startled the country by announcing he would visit the People's Republic of China.

In 1976, a 36-hour kidnap ordeal began for 26 schoolchildren and their bus driver as they were abducted near Chowchilla, Calif., by three gunmen and imprisoned in an underground cell. (The captives escaped unharmed.)

In 1979, President Jimmy Carter delivered his "malaise" speech in which he lamented what he called a "crisis of confidence" in America.

In 1985, a shockingly gaunt-looking Rock Hudson appeared at a news conference with actress Doris Day (it was later revealed Hudson was suffering from AIDS).

Ten years ago: The United Nations launched a successful military operation to help 222 Indian peacekeepers and eleven military observers break out of a rebel stronghold in Sierra Leone. Lennox Lewis stopped Francois Botha at 2:39 of the second round to retain his WBC and IBF heavyweight titles in London. Former Rhode Island governor and long-time U.S. senator John O. Pastore died at age 93.

Five years ago: A federal appeals court ruled that a Guantanamo detainee who once was Osama bin Laden's driver could be tried by military tribunal. (However, the Supreme Court struck down the tribunals in June 2006, saying they violated U.S. and international law.) Bankrupt energy company Enron Corp. agreed to pay a settlement of up to $1.5 billion to resolve claims that it had gouged California and other western states during the 2000-2001 energy crisis.

One year ago: A Russian-made jetliner carrying 168 people crashed after taking off from Tehran, Iran, killing everyone aboard. After more than a month's delay, space shuttle Endeavour and seven astronauts thundered into orbit on a flight

DEAR ABBY: Nineteen-year-old "Hopeless" in Chandler, Ariz." (May 21), said he doesn't know what he wants to do with his life. When I was his age, I didn't know what I wanted to do, either. I didn't want to go to college, the military didn't interest me, and nothing I could think of seemed appealing. My parents had factory jobs — Dad in quality control and Mom in assembly. They talked me into filling out an application at the plant. I did so grudgingly, and was hired. I figured I'd stay one or two years and then find something I liked better. This

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

September I'll have worked there 32 years. I have survived layoffs and reorganizations, a move to another town and the sale of the product line I started on. I consider the job I'm doing now to be my dream job, and I enjoy going to work every day. My advice to "Hopeless" is to try something he may think he won't like, give it a chance, and see how he feels in a couple of years. He may be surprised by what he discovers.

— HAPPY AND SATISFIED IN OHIO

DEAR HAPPY: Great advice! It never hurts to give something a try before deciding you don't like it. Read on for more suggestions:

DEAR ABBY: I would encourage "Hopeless" to take college transfer courses at a community college. This often leads to finding an interest. Volunteer and/or get a part-time job. If nothing else, those experiences can eliminate some fields of endeavor or spark an interest in something he has not yet considered.

— VOCATIONAL REHABILITATION COUNSELOR IN MURPHY, N.C.

DEAR ABBY: "Hopeless" should sign with a temp agency. I worked as a temp during my college breaks and was introduced to various office settings, technologies and career opportunities. One summer's temporary placement — answering phones and doing clerical work — led to a higher-level position the following summer after graduation. I took it and couldn't have been happier. "Hopeless" shouldn't wait for others to tell him what he should do — he should just get out there and do it! If nothing else, he may discover what he does NOT want to do and can direct his college course accordingly.

— BARBARA IN KATY, TEXAS

DEAR ABBY: Life is what happens while you're busy making plans. "Hopeless" should choose something he enjoys doing, do it well and enjoy the experience. Most important, he should stick with it until he's sure a change is needed. Career planning works for some, but for most people life has a funny way of taking us down roads we never saw coming.

— "DOC" IN LOS OSOS, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: Twenty years ago I never would have thought of becoming a professional organizer, but that's what I am now. This is not a career that appears in any career counselor's tests, but I'm sure you wouldn't find many unusual careers in a book or test. I advise "Hopeless" to join volunteer groups and ask friends if they need help with anything. He may discover an aptitude for something he wasn't aware he possessed.

— JAN IN CARLSBAD, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: There are hundreds of jobs that provide a good living — plumber, electrician, bricklayer, construction worker, appliance repairman, stonemason. The list goes on. These are jobs that keep the world spinning and keep us in the comforts we enjoy. If "Hopeless" doesn't know what he wants, he might consider taking a year to work with AmeriCorps, the Peace Corps or Habitat for Humanity. If he uses his imagination, he can make a difference in the world.

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.
