Beginning of the end for Gulf oil spill?

By Colleen Long and Harry R. Weber
Associated Press writers

NEW ORLEANS — The oil has stopped. For now.

After 85 days and up to 184 million gallons, BP finally gained control over one of America's biggest environmental catastrophes Thursday by placing a carefully fitted cap over a runaway geyser that has been gushing crude into the Gulf of Mexico since early spring.

Though a temporary fix, the accomplishment was greeted with hope, high expectations — and, in many cases along the beleaguered coastline, disbelief. From one Gulf Coast resident came this: "Hallelujah." And from another:

Trevino lets extradition go ahead

By Bradley Guire
Times-News writer

Thomas Trevino is not fighting extradition.

The accused shooter of Jill Gelever waived extradition to Idaho on Thursday, simply signing a document in 21st District Court in Mesa County, Colo., to begin the process.

Mesa County Deputy Prosecutor Jennifer Springer said now that Trevino has signed the waiver, it's up to the state of Idaho to make arrangements to bring him home.

"Our case (in 21st District Court) is closed," she said.

Capt. Doug Hughes of the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office said that he has not received any paperwork to schedule Trevino's trip back to Twin Falls. Hughes added that details on transportation are not disclosed for any inmate for security concerns.

Trevino fled the state after allegedly shooting Gelever at the Comfort Inn & Suites in Twin Falls on July 5. Law enforcement agents in Colorado picked him up in Mesa County on July 7, and he was made aware of his rights of extradition on July 8.

His first appearance in 5th District Court in Twin Falls has yet to be scheduled.

Paint Magic reaches 25th-anniversary goal

By Amy Huddleston
Times-News writer

It used to be called "the sunshine house on Buchanan."

Nestled back from the road, the house waited for the painters to finish dressing it in a new color — a summer-sky blue, with trim as white as afternoon clouds.

Roy Horne stood inside on Wednesday and pointed out the new windows and doors. He talked about his brand-new furnace in the basement and the new gutter installed under his shingles. Then he glanced at a glass cabinet filled with the music boxes he gave his late wife Nancy throughout their 36 years of marriage. The sounds of machine and construction work reverberated through the floorboards, mixing with his strong voice when he started to sing their song, "12th of Never" by Roger Miller.

The 72-year-old has been in the business of helping people throughout his life, volunteering at St. Vincent de Paul in the mornings and singing at local nursing homes on the first and last Sunday of each month.

This week, it was his turn to receive some much-needed help from Paint Magic and South Central Community Action Partnership (SCCAP). While SCCAP put in new windows, doors, insulation and a new furnace — work Horne estimates cost more than $6,000 — Paint Magic gave the sunshine house a whole new look.

"It's crazy the things they've done for me," Horne said. "It is just unbelievable. It's been the whole shooting match. I about passed out when they told me that I was getting that sliding door."

Horne's home and 24 other houses have received a new paint job this week as 30 sponsors, approximately 30 donors and more than 600 volunteers helped celebrate Paint Magic's 25th anniversary. Applications for houses to be painted were down in June, and organizers weren't sure if they'd reach their goal of 25 homes. But after extending the event's deadline, enough applicants came in to satisfy the silver dreams.

The paint teams are painting homes throughout the Magic Valley, including four in the Mini-Cassia area, and helping homeowners with whatever needs they present.

Congress passes Wall Street crackdown, consumer protections

By Jim Kuhnenn
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Congress on Thursday passed the stiffest restrictions on banks and Wall Street since the Great Depression, clamping down on lending practices and expanding consumer protections to prevent a repeat of the 2008 meltdown that knocked the economy to its knees.

INSIDE

Idaho senators vote against financial reform, and a breakdown of the bill and how it affects you.

See Business 1

A year in the making and 22 months after the collapse of Lehman Brothers triggered a worldwide panic in credit and other markets, the bill cleared its final hurdle with a 60-39 Senate vote. It now goes to the White House for President Obama's signature, expected as early as Wednesday.

The law will give the government new powers to break up companies that threaten the economy, create a new agency to guard consumers in their financial transactions and shine a light into shadow financial markets that escaped the oversight of regulators. The vote came on the same day that Goldman Sachs & Co. agreed to pay a record $550 million to settle charges that it misled buyers of mortgage-related investments.

From storefront payday lenders to the biggest banking and investment houses on Wall Street, few players in the financial world are immune to the bill's reach. Consumer and investor transactions, whether simple debit card swipes or the most complex securities trades, face new safeguards or restrictions.

A powerful council of regulators would be on the lookout for risks across the finance system. Large, failing financial institutions would be liquidated and the costs assessed on their surviving peers. The Federal Reserve is getting new powers while falling under greater congressional scrutiny.

"I'm about to sign Wall Street reform into law, to protect consumers and lay the foundation for a stronger and safer financial system, one that is innovative, creative, competitive and far less prone to panic and collapse," Obama said.

"Unless your business model depends on cutting corners or bilking your customers, you have nothing to fear."

The man who would be Idaho's water king

Could Charles H. Hammett have done for Elmore County what I.B. Perrine did for Twin Falls?

Doubtful, but not for lack of trying.

Hammett — an Oklahoma oilman — partnered with Colorado entrepreneur Lucien Nunn to try something remarkable: Monopolize both water and electricity.

Hammett and Nunn bought water rights to the Malad River, according to Hugh Lovin, a retired history professor at Boise State University. Hammett controlled the irrigation and Nunn the electricity.

"... they erred in projecting quick riches," wrote Lovin in Idaho Issues Online, a Web publication of BSU's Center for History and Politics. "By apportioning 300 cfs of Malad River water to irrigation, a quantity that contrasted sharply with the Glens Ferry Company's earlier resolve to use 1,000 cfs for irrigation, the partners foisted insecurity and water shortages on the project over the long term. They had, in short, miscalculated the water needs of their irrigation tract."

But Hammett talked the state Land Board and Gov. Frank Gooding into signing off the scheme.

"The board admired his old-time handling of railroad, mining and petroleum ventures," Lovin wrote. "This bias helped Hammett to convince the board to accept ... his theory that charging high prices for water would enable him to capitalize the project without delay."

Hammett built a siphon across the Snake River. In 1908, he signed a contract with the Land Board to supply water to 17,666 acres.

But the money ran out quickly, so Hammett had to sell more bonds on the promise of extending his irrigation network. Then he used the new investments to cover old debts, and when he scrimped on canal construction, the water stopped flowing to some farmers who had contracted for it. They, in turn, stopped paying him.

By 1910, Hammett was one of the most hated men in Idaho.

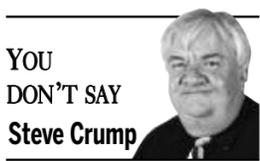

"... his projects became an issue in the statewide election campaigns ..." Lovin wrote. "Critics accused an Idaho assistant attorney general of joining Hammett in 'water juggling'; James Hawley, the Democratic Party's nominee for governor, referred to incumbent Gov. James Brady and members of the Brady administration as 'figure-heads and incompetents' whose King Hill wrongdoings stemmed from their 'direct connections' to the 'land promoters.'"

After a last-ditch effort to convince his customers to create their own irrigation district to get him off the hook, Hammett watched his companies slide into bankruptcy in 1913.

"Hammett, once heralded as a giant among the builders of Idaho's irrigation frontier, scarcely exemplified the best in free-enterprise methods of putting land under irrigation ditches," Lovin said. "Instead, he disillusioned King Hill settlers, and they predictably worried lest Idaho state authorities select another enterpriser to fulfill Hammett's Carey Act obligations to provide water. But many settlers stayed the course at the project ... Consensus finally developed among them to trusting the federal government to provide a suitable irrigation system."

Hammett went back to Tulsa, where there was more oil than water.

Power loss knocked out some St. Luke's systems for one day

Patient records not affected in T.F.

By Laura Lundquist
Times-News writer

Power to computer systems serving St. Luke's Health System was lost for about 24 hours on June 30, forcing staff to rely on paper and pencil for some records.

According to St. Luke's, both the primary and backup power supplies for the health care company's bank of more than 600 computer servers at a Boise facility failed in the early morning hours and couldn't be repaired until early the next morning.

Power to the servers failed at around 3:30 a.m. Brett Tyler, the information technology site leader for St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center, said the Twin Falls hospital had some applications on web-sites hosted by outside groups, so access to some information, such as patient records, wasn't lost. Access to others, including e-mail, was lost system-wide, including in Twin Falls and Ketchum.

St. Luke's Magic Valley spokeswoman Jody Tremblay said patients with June 30 appointments at the four Mountain States Tumor Institute offices were rescheduled because all MSTI information was on the Boise servers.

Employees established an incident command center to handle the emergency, something they practice on a periodic basis. By 8 a.m., they had transitioned to using paper forms and no major incidents resulted, Tremblay said. Heart monitors and other computerized health equipment were not affected.

Tyler didn't know what caused the outage or how soon after initial power loss the backup system failed. He said the main components that failed in the power units have been replaced. St. Luke's IT staff are conducting an analysis and should have a report by mid-August.

"We're doing a post-action review," Tyler said. "The most important thing is to learn from this."

One improvement is already in the works: In its new Twin Falls hospital building set to open next year, St. Luke's already planned to install a data center that can serve as a backup for the system in case the Boise center loses power.

Wells Fargo Bank paint-team captain, started helping prep Horne's home on Sunday. She said it's been a great experience to watch her co-workers work together outside of the bank, building relationships with each other and with the homeowners.

"My last homeowner and I still keep in touch," Mueller said. "It doesn't end when the job ends. It can be a life-long friendship because we aren't just there to paint their houses. It's about getting to know them personally."

The week of painting will end on Saturday with a barbecue from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. in the Twin Falls City Park. A few people who had their homes painted in the past and board members from the original Paint Magic team will attend. SCCAP Executive Director Ken Robinette said the dreams of the event's 12 founders are still going strong in the Magic Valley.

"I see it going for a long time," said Richard Boyd, one of the original board members. "It pays back both ways. It's the classic win-win scenario. Teams always say 'that was so worth it' and 99 percent of the homeowners are so appreciative of the teams."

Penne Main, one of the twelve founders who stayed involved for the first 10 years, said she isn't surprised Paint Magic has carried on.

"I've always loved that the people of the Magic Valley are extremely generous, not only of their dollars but people are so generous with their time and their skills. They put in a lot of elbow grease," Main said.

Main said the mission of Paint Magic is to reach out and help people. The event's committee goes through a long and laborious process to make certain that homes qualify for help, she said.

"My hat is off to the committee," she said. "They ensure the safety and the integrity of the project."

For those like Horne, the paint is a welcome gesture that wouldn't have been accomplished otherwise. He said he won't miss the bright yellow that gave his home such a distinct presence on Buchanan Street.

"I don't need a nickname for my house," Horne said. "I just want people to drive by and say, 'Boy, what a beautiful job they did.'"

ISP promotes drug hotline

With the recent find of more than 141 marijuana plants in Gooding County, the Idaho State Police would like to remind citizens that they can use the Idaho Drug Tip Hotline to report suspected drug crimes.

The number remains the same as the old "grass hotline" — 800-524-7277 — but ISP is now asking citizens to report any drug crimes. While ISP handles the calls, it farms out the information to the appropriate jurisdiction for investigation.

Major Dan Thorton said officers answer the phones from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. Messages left after business

No charges filed in bridge incident

A Twin Falls man and Hansen woman will not be charged or cited for climbing on the support structure under the Perrine Bridge Wednesday afternoon.

Justin Call, 23, and Kelley Call, 20, were found to be climbing the understructure, according to an Idaho State Police release. ISP and deputies from the Twin Falls and Jerome county sheriff's offices responded to the scene after 5 p.m., telling the pair not to proceed any further until safety personnel could help them get up to the top.

Jerome County Sheriff Doug McFall said he learned Thursday afternoon from the county prosecutor's office that the pair will not be charged as the "no trespassing" signs were vandalized and torn off the fence surrounding the catwalk entrance.

Osterhoudt convicted

Franklin Ward Osterhoudt was found guilty of lewd conduct with a minor under 16, incest and rape by a Twin Falls County jury on July 9.

The jury returned its verdict around noon. Osterhoudt now faces sentencing before a 5th District judge for all five counts of the charges. Sentencing is not yet scheduled.

Osterhoudt was first tried on the charges last fall, but the jury was not able to reach a verdict then.

INL fire halted

The 170-square-mile Jefferson Fire on the desert property of the Idaho National Laboratory continued to smolder Thursday, but grew no bigger. Winds picked up during the afternoon, stalling containment, but crews finally had the fire contained by 7 p.m.

Work to restore power to the Materials and Fuels Complex began Thursday afternoon and power was restored to office buildings. Some employees returned to work today.

Sampling was conducted for airborne radiation but none was detected, according to a press release.

The cause of the fire is still under investigation.

Blaine Co. fisherman treated for rabies after run-in with bat

By Laura Lundquist Times-News writer

A fisherman from Blaine County is receiving a series of shots after getting too close to a rabid bat over the weekend.

The bat was the second animal with rabies reported in Idaho this year, according to the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare.

The man, whose name was not released by Health and Welfare, was fishing when a bat started swooping erratically around his head. The man swung his cap at the bat and thought it flew away. Later, he discovered it clinging to his life vest.

According to the agency, he captured and killed the bat and put it in his home freezer in a Ziploc bag. He then called Idaho Department of Fish and Game officials who sent the bat to a Health and Welfare laboratory in Boise. A day later, the lab confirmed the bat had rabies.

Experts warn people not to touch wild bats because they are the main carriers of rabies in Idaho. But because the bat could have bitten the man while swooping, capturing it in this case meant officials could confirm the rabies, Health and Welfare Epidemiology Manager Mary Jensen said.

Dr. Leslie Tengelsen, deputy state epidemiologist, said bats are difficult to catch unless they are sick. Normally, lab technicians find rabies in dead bats that were found by people's pets.

Very few bats carry the rabies virus and even fewer get sick from it. In a 2010 Colorado study, only 15 percent of bats tested positive for rabies. Last year, eight bats found in Idaho tested positive for rabies. The first bat this year was discovered in Shoshone County.

Humans rarely get rabies from bats. Most of the time, officials said, people are given the five-shot vaccine regimen as a precaution. That's because once people start to show symptoms, the virus can't be stopped and people die. Symptoms — headaches, fever, confusion, sleeplessness — may take up to a year to show, but most occur within one to three months of contact. A new vaccine that requires only four shots has just been introduced.

Terrestrial rabies, the strain that infects ground animals such as raccoons and skunks, exists in Wyoming but has not moved into Idaho, Jensen said.

Health and Welfare offers the following tips to avoid rabies:

- Do not touch a bat with your bare hands.
- If you have had an encounter with a bat, seek medical attention immediately.
- If you come in contact with a bat, save the bat in a container without touching it and contact your district health department to arrange testing for rabies. Whenever possible, the bat should be tested to rule out an exposure to rabies.

Spill

"I got to see it to believe it!"

If the cap holds, if the sea floor doesn't crack and if the relief wells being prepared are completed successfully, this could be the beginning of the end for the spill. But that's a lot of ifs, and no one was declaring any sort of victory beyond the moment.

The oil stopped flowing at 1:25 p.m. MDT when the last of three valves in the 75-ton cap was slowly throttled shut. That set off a 48-hour watch period in which — much like the hours immediately after a surgery — the patient was in stable, guarded condition and being watched closely for complications.

"It's a great sight," said BP Chief Operating Officer Doug Suttles, who immediately urged caution. The flow, he said, could resume. "It's far from the finish line. ... It's not the time to celebrate."

Nevertheless, one comforting fact stood out: For the first time since an explosion on the BP-leased Deepwater Horizon oil rig killed 11 workers April 20 and unleashed the spill 5,000 feet beneath the water's surface, no oil was flowing into the Gulf.

No texting while driving for Boise officers

By John Miller
Associated Press writer

BOISE — The Boise Police Department announced Thursday it is barring employees from using cell phones and other handheld devices to text or e-mail while driving the agency's vehicles, a move the force says sets a good example for all drivers.

Police in Idaho's largest city are taking the step three months after the Legislature failed to enact a statewide texting-while-driving ban. At least 29 other states have passed some type of restrictions.

Boise Police Chief Michael Masterson said his employees can still use handheld electronic devices while driving to get GPS information. The ban also won't prohibit officers from talking on their cell phones while driving, something seen as critical to doing their jobs.

But sending text messages while driving will no longer be in his officers' arsenal of tools as they try to protect the public.

"There's growing evidence that texting takes a driver's eyes off the road for too long, and sadly, already has been a deadly distraction on our roads," Masterson said. "We have to follow the same safety advice we give to the people we serve — do not text and drive."

An 18-year-old from southwestern Idaho, Cassandra Kerfoot, died in December after losing control of her car while texting and crashing into oncoming traffic.

Boise police officers were involved in 37 crashes last year while driving 1.7 million miles — fewer accidents than other forces in similar-size cities, the agency said.

None of those accidents involved texting on a phone or other handheld device, either by the employee or the citizen, said Lynn Hightower, a police spokeswoman. There was also no evidence officers were regularly texting while driving, she said.

"The reason for this policy, which has been under discussion in the department for several weeks, is simply the safety factor," Hightower said. "The chief considers this a pre-emptive move."

Like most police agencies, Boise Police Department officers do have computers in their cars; the ban doesn't cover use of those, Hightower said, adding that the computers don't have Internet access and have preprogrammed keys that eliminate superfluous typing.

"Those display terminals give officers immediate information about incidents that are on going and that they are en route to respond to," she said. "That operation is considered one that is critical to the mission of public safety and one that officers are trained to use."

In March, the Idaho House failed to pass a measure that would have fined people who typed on their mobile devices $50. Chief among its opponents was state Rep. Raul Labrador, an Eagle Republican who is now running for the U.S. House.

He blasted the bill as unenforceable before employing a rare procedural move to block its passage.

Other states, however, have been responding to concerns that texting while driving — especially by teens — is increasingly becoming a traffic hazard. At least 29 other states and the District of Columbia have banned drivers from texting — including some that have restricted police from the practice, too.

Non-emergency Boise city employees are already banned from talking on their cell phones while driving city-owned vehicles, and Boise is considering bolstering that by adding texting prohibitions, too.

"We have a draft under review now," city spokesman Adam Park said Thursday. "Police represent the greatest number of city drivers. However, we are reviewing our policy for all employees."

Rep. Minnick banks $410K for re-election

BOISE (AP) — U.S. Rep. Walt Minnick has banked about $410,000 for his campaign war chest since April and has more than $1.1 million in cash on hand, according to a new report filed with the Federal Election Commission.

Minnick, a fiscally conservative Democrat who represent Idaho's 1st Congressional District, faces a challenge from Republican state lawmaker Raul Labrador in November.

Labrador has raised $114,000 since April and put together his best fundraising quarter since he launched his U.S. House bid in December, pulling an upset over nationally recruited Republican Vaughn Ward to clinch the May primary.

Police nab suspect in fake law officer case

BOISE — A Boise woman wanted on an outstanding warrant couldn't have been all that surprised when a police officer wearing a Kevlar vest and packing a gun showed up at her home last month.

But the woman did question why the officer did not have any official identification and drove her to Ada County Jail in an unmarked black-and-white car that only resembled a police cruiser.

The Boise Police Department says the woman was the latest victim of a 25-year-old Ryan Hamilton, an imposter who posed as an officer and relied on public records to track the woman down.

Authorities say they believe Hamilton, who is neither an officer nor a bounty hunter, may have "arrested" others.

Hamilton was arrested himself Wednesday and faces a charge of unlawful exercise of functions of peace officers.

Rapper Too Short arrested after Boise performance

BOISE — Police say the Atlanta-based rapper Too Short was arrested after performing in Boise and faces three counts of misdemeanor battery.

Police arrived at the Knitting Factory at 11 p.m. Wednesday to investigate reports that a fight broke out when security workers told Too Short, whose real name is Todd Shaw, that he couldn't bring underage girls backstage.

Three employees at the concert house told police they were punched and kicked by Shaw, 44, and another man, 38-year-old Michael Walton, who appeared to be Shaw's associate.

Police say Walton, of Modesto, Calif., faces two counts of misdemeanor battery.

Ada County Jail records show Shaw and Walton were arrested early Thursday and have since been released on bond.

Yellowstone grizzly deaths similar to past years

JACKSON — Ten grizzly bear deaths have been documented in the Yellowstone ecosystem so far this year, a rate comparable to past years.

One other grizzly death is suspected. Of the 11 deaths, humans caused eight.

The count was seven at this time last year and 13 at this point in 2008.

Biologists keep close track of grizzly bear deaths because the Yellowstone population is classified as threatened under the Endangered Species Act.

Researchers consider the deaths of adult female grizzlies to be particularly important for the species. Two adult females have died this year, compared with one at this time last year.

Wildlife Biologist Mark Haroldson, with the Interagency Grizzly Bear Study Team, says the number of female deaths is not a worry so far.

"It's a pretty normal spring," Haroldson said this week.

By the end of last year, the count of all types of grizzlies that died reached 31.

Why aren't businesses flocking to Idaho?

Electricity costs a manufacturer 4.48 cents per kilowatt hour in Idaho. The same company would pay 26.05 cents per kilowatt hour in Hawaii. In Connecticut, it's 14.93 cents. In Alaska, it's 14.17 cents.

The average worker in Idaho earns $647 a week. Next door in Washington state it's $906 a week. So why aren't companies standing in line to move here?

Three reasons: Our schools aren't good enough, our business taxes are too high, and, except for Boise, our transportation infrastructure is lousy.

States trying to attract businesses these days aren't just competing with each other; they're vying with the whole world. If it's cheaper for an American company to set up shop in Singapore, Bangladesh or Nicaragua than in the United States, that's where it will go.

So what can Idaho do about that? For starters, we need to fund education adequately, and the key to that is devising a strategy and sticking with it. Instead of the Legislature showing up every January and divvying up whatever tax revenue is available, Idaho needs a five-year plan — or a 10-year plan — with funding targets. And we must — must — stop begging higher education come budget time.

Idaho also needs to show that it's serious about developing transportation outside of Boise, and that involves more than filling potholes. Southern Idaho, for example, needs a rail intermodal facility, but there's no plan — at the state, regional or local level — for developing one. And it needs to find a way to attract more commercial air service to cities like Twin Falls and Pocatello.

Finally, it's time for a hard look at our tax structure. Idaho's corporate income tax is too high.

It's not enough for Idaho to put out the welcome mat for companies looking to relocate. We have to make the case why they should move here, as Twin Falls successfully did with Florida-based C3, which is taking over the old Dell building for use as a call center.

We all know that Idaho is a great place to live, but that's not enough. As a state, we have to be able to show that there's no better place to do business.

Life's tougher outside the casino

The hustlers and high rollers at Wall Street's gaming tables are starting to feel lucky again.

Hiring is beginning to pick up in the very sector that led the country to the edge of a depression. An article on the front page of The New York Times recently noted that this turnaround "underscores the remarkable recovery of the biggest banks and brokerage firms since Washington rescued them in the fall of 2008, and follows the huge rebound in profits for members of the New York Stock Exchange, which totaled $61.4 billion in 2009, the most ever."

Bob Herbert

The hustlers and high rollers are always there to skim the cream, no matter what's happening in the real world of ordinary American families.

In a column that was published a few days before Christmas 2007, the very month that the great recession began, I wrote about the record-breaking seasonal bonuses being handed out on Wall Street: an obscene $38 billion, the highest total ever. The subprime mortgage debacle was already upon us and the economy was sinking like a stone, but the casino crowd was celebrating as never before. "Even as the Wall Streeters are high-fiving and ordering up record shipments of Champagne and caviar," I noted, "the American dream is on life support."

The fattest of the fat cats live in a perpetual heads-I-win, tails-you-lose environment. But if you step outside the Wall Street casino, you'll notice that things aren't going too well in the rest of the country. More than 14 million Americans are out of work, and nearly half of them have been jobless for six months or longer. The unemployment rate for black Americans is 15.4 percent.

School districts across the country are taking drastic steps to cope with collapsing budgets: firing personnel, increasing class sizes, cutting kindergarten and summer-school programs and, in some cases, moving to a four-day school week. The Associated Press, in a demoralizing report, recently noted: "As the school budget crisis deepens, administrators across the nation have started to view school libraries as luxuries that can be axed rather than places where kids learn to love reading and do research."

What a country. We'll do whatever it takes to make sure the bankers keep living the high life and swilling that Champagne while at the same time we're taking books out of the hands of schoolchildren trying to get an education.

I'm no friend of the deficit hawks, but the staggering amounts of money we've been spending for the past several years have not benefited the people most in need of help and have not laid the foundation for a more secure economy going forward.

We've handed over unconscionable tax breaks to the very rich (you can see the Prada paraders high-stepping along Fifth Avenue in their million-dollar flip-flops) and countless billions to the private contractors brazenly feeding off the agony of the endless wars in Afghanistan and Iraq.

What's needed is the same sense of urgency about helping struggling families and putting people back to work as the Bush and Obama crowds showed when the banks were about to go bust. That sense of urgency is always missing when it's ordinary people who are in trouble.

Millions of Americans are stuck in an economic depression. Several million have either lost their homes to foreclosure during the recession or are in imminent danger of losing them. The long-term unemployed are facing painful daily choices on such basic matters as whether to buy food or refill needed prescription medication or pay electric bills to keep the lights on.

Back in February, The Times' Peter Goodman wrote about the new poor, "people long accustomed to the comforts of middle-class life who are now relying on public assistance for the first time in their lives — potentially for years to come."

There can be no real national recovery with so many millions of people in such deep economic distress. We can pretend that we're locked in some kind of crisis of confidence, that if only people felt better about themselves and the economy then they'd start spending again. This is a variation on the "mental recession" lunacy spouted by Phil Gramm, John McCain's top economic adviser during the presidential campaign.

People who are out of work and deeply in debt don't have any money to spend. The only way to get real money back into their wallets and bank accounts (and thus back into the economy) is to get them back to work.

With our help, the banks and Wall Street have done fine. Better than they had any right to expect. It's the ordinary folks outside the casino, in the real world, who are still in desperate need of help. But in a society of, by and for the rich, that help will be a long time coming.

Sen. Harry Reid holds off Tea Party at gunpoint

WASHINGTON — Some choices look easy.

Between Nevada Republican Sharron Angle, an ardent believer in the constitutional right to bear arms anywhere from a national park to a corner bar, and one of Washington's most powerful Democrats, who would the National Rifle Association choose?

If you said Angle, that's the easy choice, and probably the wrong one. The NRA's political arm has yet to make endorsements, but gun owners around the U.S. are worried, with evident reason, that the group may be prepared to forsake Angle for her Democratic opponent, Harry Reid, the Senate majority leader.

Angle's devotion to gun rights is unquestioned. In one interview, she coyly wouldn't say whether she was carrying a concealed weapon because she didn't want the bad guys to know.

When "government becomes tyrannical," she has said, it's the citizenry's right to lock and load.

And she fretted: "People are really looking toward those Second Amendment remedies and saying, 'My goodness, what can we do to turn this country around?' I'll tell you, the first thing we need to do is take Harry Reid out." She later acknowledged that comment might have been "a little strong," and that, lest the trigger-happy among her supporters misunderstand her, she meant "take him out of office."

Reid occasionally flirts with the NRA, as Western Democrats must, but mostly breaks its heart. He helped secure land and funding for a 2,900-acre park for shooting and gamely took down clay birds with his 12-gauge shotgun at the opening in March.

While his headquarters may be in Fairfax, Va., NRA Executive Vice President Wayne LaPierre is part of the Washington firmament. And like the Christian Coalition before it, LaPierre's NRA is forgetting the faithful — who, online, are up in arms about a possible Reid endorsement.

He worked to keep insurance premiums from being raised on those who keep a gun at home and supported a carve-out exempting the NRA from new campaign-donation disclosure requirements.

The gun owners' bill of particulars against Reid is longer. He supported the confirmation of Attorney General Eric Holder, who strongly favors gun limits. He is currently pushing the confirmation of Elena Kagan to the Supreme Court, a vote the NRA is going to score. That should bring Reid's rating, even grading on a curve, to a gentleman's "C" from the "B" he received the last time he ran, in 2004.

end minutemen or militia men or patriots in camouflage, have to do with that?

At the core, LaPierre has more in common with the heretic Reid than with a sweaty believer like Angle. She's proven to be a strong brew even by Tea Party standards.

Before Republicans muffled her, she was for gradually privatizing Social Security, defunding the new health-care system, abolishing the income-tax code and massively cutting the federal government, including eliminating the Energy Department and the Environmental Protection Agency, which probably are too busy trying to clean up the Gulf of Mexico to pay much attention to Nevada politics. Even right-wing voters in her state must gulp at her desire to make Yucca Mountain home to the country's nuclear waste.

Asked if she'd permit abortion in the case of a teen-ager raped by her father, Angle said no — two wrongs don't make a right, and the teen-ager should make lemonade from lemons.

Such views aren't likely to attract the growing number of independents in Nevada's suburbs and are splitting the state GOP.

One pragmatic concern is that if Reid loses and Republicans don't retake the Senate, the NRA leadership would be faced with a new majority leader who wouldn't know one end of a rifle from the other. One likely candidate to replace Reid in that scenario is Charles Schumer, Democrat of — dare I say it? — New York.

No one should blame NRA leaders for preferring the devil they know to a city slicker who would pry guns from the fingers of law-abiding citizens in a New York minute. Majority Leader Schumer: that's enough to scare the bejesus out of any gun owner, concealed or not.

Mallard Fillmore

The class war that we need

The rich are different from you and me. They know how to game the system.

That's one interpretation, at least, of last week's news that Americans with million-dollar mortgages are defaulting at almost twice the rate of the typical homeowner. It suggests an infuriating scenario in which the average American slaves away to keep Wells Fargo or Bank of America off his back, while fat cats and high-fliers cut their losses and sail off to the next investment opportunity.

That isn't exactly what's happening, most likely, just because you have a million-dollar mortgage doesn't make you a millionaire, and a lot of the fat-cat defaulters probably aren't that fat anymore. Chances are they're more like Teresa and Joe Giudice from "The Real Housewives of New Jersey," tacky reality-TV climbers who recently filed for bankruptcy after their decadent lifestyle turned out to be a debt-enabled fantasy.

Still, watching the Giudices sashay through their onyx-encrusted mansion, and knowing that thousands of similarly profligate homeowners are simply walking away from their debts, it's easy to succumb to a little class-warrior fantasizing. (Pitchforks, tar, feathers ... that sort of thing.)

The trick is to channel those impulses in a constructive direction. The left-wing instinct, when faced with high-rolling irresponsibility, is usually to call for tax increases on the rich. But the problem, here and elsewhere, isn't exactly that we tax high rollers' incomes too lightly. It's that we subsidize their irresponsibility too heavily — underwriting their bad bets and bailing out their follies. The class warfare we need is a conservative class warfare, which would force the million-dollar defaulters to pay their own way from here on out.

Consider the spread that the Giudices currently occupy (pending potential foreclosure proceedings, of course). The first million of its reported $1.7 million price tag is presumably covered by the federal mortgage-interest tax deduction. Intended to boost middle-class homebuyers, this deduction has gradually turned into a huge tax break for the affluent, with most of the benefits flowing to homeowners with cash income over $100,000. In much of the country, it's a McMansion subsidy, whose costs to the federal Treasury are covered by the tax dollars of Americans who either rent or own more modest homes.

This policy is typical of the way the federal government does business. In case after case, Washington's web of subsidies and tax breaks effectively takes money from the middle class and hands it out to speculators and have-mores. We subsidize drug companies, oil companies, agribusinesses disguised as "family farms" and "clean energy" firms that aren't energy-efficient at all. We give tax breaks to immensely profitable corporations that don't need the money and boondoggles that wouldn't exist without government favoritism.

And we do more of it every day. Take Barack Obama's initiative to double U.S. exports in the next five years. As The Washington Examiner's Tim Carney points out, it involves the purest sort of corporate welfare: We're lending money to foreign governments or companies so that they'll buy from Boeing and Pfizer and Archer Daniels Midland. That's good news for those companies' stockholders and C.E.O.'s. But the money to pay for it ultimately comes out of middle-class pocketbooks.

This isn't just a corporate

welfare problem. The same pattern is at work in our entitlement system, which is lurching toward bankruptcy in part because of how much Medicare and Social Security pay to seniors who could get along without assistance. Instead of a safety net that protects the elderly from poverty, we have a system in which the American taxpayer is effectively underwriting cruises and tee times.

All of this ought to be grist for a kind of "small-government egalitarianism," in the economist Edward Glaeser's useful phrase, that seeks to shrink government by attacking Washington's wasteful spending on the well-connected. And sometimes conservative politicians make moves in this direction. President George W. Bush's Tax Reform Commission proposed sharply reducing the mortgage-interest deduction. House Minority Leader John Boehner, to his great credit, recently floated the possibility of means-testing Social Security. Many Republican senators have been staunch critics of corporate welfare.

In the age of Barack Obama, many rank-and-file conservatives have been more upset about redistribution of a different sort — the kind that takes money from the prosperous and "spreads the wealth" (as Obama put it, in his famous confrontation with Joe the Plumber) down the income ladder.

This kind of spending can be problematic. But conservatives need to recognize that the most pernicious sort of redistribution isn't from the successful to the poor. It's from savers to speculators, from outsiders to insiders, and from the industrious middle class to the reckless, unproductive rich.

Ross Douthat is a columnist for The New York Times.

The recovery has left small businesses behind

If you go to business conferences, you know that at lunch it is definitely better to be seated next to a prince than a grind. Princes, who can be male or female, are senior executives at major corporations.

They are almost always charming, smart and impressive. They've read interesting books. They've got well-rehearsed takes on the global situation. They can drop impressive names as they tell you about their visits to the White House, Moscow or Beijing. If you're having lunch or dinner with a prince, you're going to have a good time.

Grinds, on the other hand, tend to have started their own company or their own hedge fund. They're often too awkward to work in a large organization and too intense to work for anybody but themselves.

Over lunch, they can be socially inert. You try to draw them out by probing for one or two subjects of interest to them. But as often as not, you find yourself playing conversational ping-pong with a master of the monosyllabic response.

Every once in a while you'll run into one who can't help but let you know how much smarter he is than you or anybody else in the room. Sitting at this lunch is about as pleasant for him as watching a cockroach crawl up his arm. He'd much rather be back working in front of his computer screen.

Since the princes are nicer and more impressive, it is easy to be seduced into the belief that they also are more trustworthy. This is false. During the last few years, for example, the princes at Citigroup, Bear Stearns, Goldman Sachs and Lehman Brothers behaved with incredible stupidity while the hedge fund loners often behaved with impressive restraint.

As Sebastian Mallaby shows in his superb book, "More Money Than God," the smooth operators at the big banks were playing with other people's money, so they borrowed up to 30 times their investors' capital. The hedge fund guys usually had their own money in their fund, so they typically borrowed only one or two times their capital.

The social butterflies at the banks got swept up in the popular enthusiasms. The contrarians at the hedge funds made money betting against them. The well-connected bankers knew they'd get bailed out if anything went wrong. The solitary hedge fund guys knew they were on their own and regarded their trades with paranoid anxiety.

In finance, as in other realms of business life, social polish doesn't always go with capitalist success. Often it is the most narrow, intense, awkward people who start the best companies, employ the most people and create the most value.

Sadly, this recovery has been great for princes and horrible for grinds. The people who work at the big corporations are critical of the Obama administration, but the fact is they are doing very well. The big companies are posting excellent earnings. They're sitting on mountains of cash.

The aspiring grinds, meanwhile, are dead in the water. Small businesses are not growing. They are not hiring. They are struggling to stay alive.

Princes can thrive in a period of slow, steady growth, but grinds need a certain sort of psychological atmosphere. They need a wide-open economy with plenty of creative destruction. They need an atmosphere of general confidence, so bankers will feel secure enough to lend them money, so big companies will feel brave enough to acquire their start-ups, so they themselves will feel the time is ripe to take on their world and show their brilliance to all of humanity.

The princes can thrive while the government intervenes in the private sector.

They've got the lobbyists and the connections. The grinds, needless to say, don't.

Over the past decade, professionals — lawyers, regulators and legislators — have inserted themselves into more and more economic realms. The princes are perfectly at home amid these tax breaks, low-interest loans and public-private partnerships. They went to the same schools as the professionals and speak the same language. The grinds try to stay far away and regard the interlocking network of corporate-government schmoozing with undisguised contempt.

The upshot is that we have an economy that is inching toward recovery but that is not creating much in the way of new innovations and new jobs. It's not that the overall labor markets are shrinking. It's just that very few grinds are bringing new ideas to scale and hiring workers to enact their us-against-the-world schemes.

For jobs to recover, the grinds have to recover, but it's hard to see how that will happen so long as households are still so leveraged, government debt is still so unnerving and the business climate is still so terrible for entrepreneurs.

We've been mired in debates over macroeconomic models recently. But maybe the real issue is how we are going to light a fire under the country's loners, its contrarians and its narrow, ambitious outsiders.

Court papers detail evidence in boy's murder

BOISE (AP) — Court documents in the case against a Boise mom and her boyfriend accused of murdering her 8-year-old show that the boy was complaining of pain and struggled to walk the last time his mother saw him alive, and he was hidden from visiting child welfare workers in the weeks before he died.

The mom, Melissa Jenkins, and her boyfriend, Daniel Ehrlick, are charged with first-degree murder in connection with Robert Manwill's beating death. The boy was reported missing in Boise last July 24; his body was found nearly two weeks later in an irrigation canal.

The Idaho Statesman reported Thursday that court records show Melissa Jenkins told investigators she should have sought medical attention for Robert on the morning of his death, when he was complaining of back, chest and stomach pain and stumbled when he tried to walk.

Prosecutors say Ehrlick repeatedly abused the boy and Jenkins didn't do anything to stop it. The two declined to enter pleas at their preliminary hearing, so the court has entered not guilty pleas on their behalf.

According to the court documents, neither Jenkins nor Ehrlick testified before the grand jury.

Testimony from others who spoke to the grand jury accuses the 260-pound Ehrlick of "dropping a knee" on the chest of 66-pound Robert as the child was forced to lie motionless on the ground. Investigators say that led to torn ligaments and abdominal bleeding. Prosecutors say physical evidence and testimony also indicates that the child was hit with a piece of wooden molding, that he was made to kneel on the floor with his nose touching the wall as punishment, and that he was forced to continue to eat after vomiting.

Jenkins' attorneys mentioned the testimony in a motion to the court asking that the murder charge be dropped, saying there's no evidence Jenkins knew about, aided or abetted abuse against her son.

"At best, the evidence shows Mrs. Jenkins found out Mr. Ehrlick had on ONE occasion 'dropped a knee' on Robert a week to two prior to Robert's disappearance, and when she found out, she told Danny she did not want him doing that anymore. Furthermore ... when Melissa discovered Danny hit Robert with a stick, she took the stick, broke it, and threw it away," the attorneys wrote. "The evidence (presented at grand jury) showed whenever Ms. Jenkins learned of disciplinary acts she felt were too harsh, she intervened."

The defense motion also acknowledges that there may be some evidence showing Jenkins participated in hiding Manwill from Idaho Department of Health and Welfare workers after she found bruises on the child. The attorneys say there's no indication she did that to cause suffering, but instead it was because "she was afraid she would lose both Robert and Aidan (Robert's younger brother) if the social worker knew Danny bruised Robert."

State, BLM move to halt auction of Teton land

By Mead Gruver
Associated Press writer

RAWLINS, Wyo. — Wyoming and federal officials expect to draft proposals soon to avoid the auction of two square miles of state land inside Grand Teton National Park.

Wyoming has tried for years to get the federal government to buy or trade mineral rights or royalties for the land. Recently Gov. Dave Freudenthal threatened to auction off the land if an agreement can't be reached.

This week, Freudenthal discussed the impasse with Bob Abbey, director of the U.S. Bureau of Land Management, during Abbey's first official Wyoming visit as BLM director.

The latest: Freudenthal and Abbey expect state and federal officials to agree to two or three specific proposals within a month. The ideas would then go before Interior Secretary Ken Salazar and Congress, the governor and BLM director said in an interview.

"I think everybody recognizes that the logical outcome of this is for there to be some kind of purchase tailored, frankly, by the federal government," Freudenthal said.

He suggested the federal government could divert additional federal mineral revenues to Wyoming over time — sort of an installment program.

An exchange of mineral holdings also is on the table. "There are several options that could make sense," Abbey said.

After trade fight, Idaho trainmaker wins $115M deal

'Buy America' rules come into play

By John Miller
Associated Press writer

BOISE — An Idaho locomotive maker will share in a $115 million deal to supply 20 new commuter rail locomotives to Boston's public transit agency, but the package is smaller than one floated two years ago before it bogged down in an international trade dispute.

Boise locomotive maker MotivePower Inc., a unit of Pennsylvania-based Wabtec Corp., will build the locomotives for the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority. The authority plans to retire some of its aging fleet of 80 locomotives, some of which are more than 30 years old and are blamed for service delays.

In 2008, MotivePower tried to win a share of what was then a transaction for at least 28 locomotives and valued at as much as $186 million.

That collapsed after MotivePower enlisted Idaho's congressional delegation to help convince the federal government, which is paying for much of the Boston project, not to waive protectionist "Buy America" trade rules that prevented a European rival from bidding on the contract.

The decision blocked Germany's Vossloh AG from the competition.

Joe Pesaturo, a spokesman for the Boston transit agency, said Thursday the decision to move ahead now is being driven by financial realities and the need to start changing out its fleet, including 18 locomotives manufactured between 1978 and 1980 that were due for retirement five years ago.

"The MBTA has limited funds for its wide array of capital improvement needs," Pesaturo told The Associated Press in an e-mail.

The original proposal had called for options for up to 56 locomotives.

The Boston agency wanted Vossloh's bid allowed as it sought to reduce the project's cost; the German company wanted to build and assemble two prototype locomotives at its factories in Spain.

But federal "Buy America" rules, meant to protect U.S. industry, require that new equipment purchased by agencies such as the MBTA be assembled on U.S. soil and consist of 60 percent American parts.

As part of this scaled-back transaction, MotivePower now plans to build 20 fuel-efficient locomotives at a factory in Boise.

They'll be tested in Massachusetts before they are commissioned and are expected to be in service by 2013.

Wabtec spokesman Tim Wesley declined to comment on the reduced dimensions of the transaction compared with 2008, but confirmed his company had won the Boston agency's nod to build the locomotives in Boise.

"We were awarded the project," Wesley said. "We have not yet signed a contract."

Wabtec indicated the proposed contract will create or preserve 1,246 union jobs.

At the time of the fight two years ago, the Wilmerding, Pa.-based company and Idaho lawmakers argued that 85 engineering jobs would be exported to Spain and as many as 200 manufacturing jobs in Boise eliminated if the "Buy America" waiver were granted and Vossloh wound up winning the contract.

Homes lost to foreclosure on track to hit 1 million in 2010

By Alex Veiga
Associated Press writer

LOS ANGELES — More than 1 million American households are likely to lose their homes to foreclosure this year, as lenders work their way through a huge backlog of borrowers who have fallen behind on their loans.

Nearly 528,000 homes were taken over by lenders in the first six months of the year. If foreclosures continue at that rate, the yearly number would eclipse the more than 900,000 homes repossessed in 2009, RealtyTrac Inc., a foreclosure listing service, said Thursday.

"That would be unprecedented," said Rick Sharga, a senior vice president at RealtyTrac.

Lenders have historically taken over about 100,000 homes a year, he said.

The surge in foreclosures reflects a crisis that has shown signs of leveling off in recent months but remains a crippling drag on the housing market and the economy.

Many homeowners struggling to make their monthly payments have had little success in negotiating more deals.

Dalebout, a manager of a recreation center who lives in the Salt Lake City suburb of Holladay, said her lender has refused to refinance her loan with lower rates and payments.

The monthly payments on her $240,000 mortgage take more than half her salary.

"I'm just running into a lot of brick walls," Dalebout, 58 said.

Banks seem to be creating two classes of troubled homeowners. Those who are falling behind in their payments are being allowed to stay in their homes longer because lenders are reluctant to add to the glut of foreclosed homes on the market. At the same time, lenders are stepping up repossessions to clear out the backlog of bad loans.

"The banks are really sort of controlling or managing the dial on how fast these House Speaker Nancy Pelosi, D-Calif., signs the financial reform legislation bill during an enrollment ceremony on Capitol Hill in Washington, Thursday.

Idaho senators vote against financial reform, calling it misguided and ineffective

By Joshua Palmer
Times-News writer

Idaho's senators voted against the most far reaching financial overhaul bill since the Great Depression, saying the bill fails to make any significant changes that will make the economy more secure.

Idaho Senator Mike Crapo voted against H.R. 4173 on Thursday, more commonly known as the financial reform bill. Crapo was a member of the House-Senate conference committee on the legislation.

"This bill makes credit more expensive which will impact Main Street and job creation," Crapo said. "The best way to get people back to work and improve their financial condition is for employers to have adequate access to the credit they need."

He added that the measure also creates a large, new and expensive government bureaucracy.

The measure was approved by the Senate 60 to 39, on a nearly party-line vote.

U.S. Senator Jim Risch also voted against the financial regulatory reform bill, citing the need to protect taxpayers from "another bailout and to go after those companies and individuals responsible for the nation's economic problems."

"There is no question that something must be done to prevent Wall Street and its 'Too Big To Fail' firms from taking down the American economy," Risch said in a written statement. "But this bill is not the answer. Too many of its provisions put big business ahead of small business while leaving the taxpayers with the risk."

He added that mortgage giants Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac were exempt from any provisions in the bill. He also pointed out the legislation sets up a system that perpetuates the bailout of companies.

A breakdown of financial reform and how it affects you

OVERSIGHT

A 10-member council of regulators led by the Treasury secretary would monitor threats to the financial system. It would decide which companies were so big or interconnected that their failures could upend the financial system. Those companies would be subject to tougher regulation.

If such a company teetered, the government could liquidate it. The costs of taking such a company down would be borne by its industry peers.

The council could overturn new rules proposed by the consumer protection agency. That's supposed to happen only to rules deemed a threat to the financial system.

CONSUMER PROTECTION

A new independent office would oversee financial products and services such as mortgages, credit cards and short-term loans. The office would be housed in the Fed.

Auto dealers, pawn brokers and others would be exempt from the bureau's enforcement. For community banks, the new rules would be enforced by existing regulators.

The oversight council could block rules proposed by the consumer agency, but only if they determine the regulations would threaten the system.

Currently, consumer protection is spread among various bank regulators.

FEDERAL RESERVE

The Federal Reserve would lead the oversight of big, interconnected companies whose failures could threaten the system. Those companies would be identified by the council of regulators.

The Fed's relationships with banks would face See REFORM, Business 2

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Sun Valley Resort announces Gillette as new sales director

SUN VALLEY — Brent Gillette, senior sales executive for Sun Valley Resort, has been promoted to director of sales.

Gillette started with Sun Valley Resort in 1981 and began his sales career in 1991 when he served as Idaho sales representative. He then became senior sales executive 10 years later.

The new director of sales will supervise Sun Valley's team of four full-time sales executives who collectively share nearly 40 years of sales experience for the resort.

Jack Sibbach will remain as director of marketing and public relations for the resort.

Governor launches Twitter job announcements

BOISE — Governor C.L. "Butch" Otter announced today that the State Division of Human Resources has started posting State government job openings on the social networking site Twitter.

He said Twitter will enable the State to quickly communicate new job opportunities as they become available, and it will enable followers to alert friends and family about openings.

Anyone interested in receiving tweets on job opportunities with the State of Idaho can become a follower on Twitter at <http://twitter.com/idahostatejobs>.

Reform

more scrutiny from the Government Accountability Office, Congress' investigative arm. The GAO could audit emergency lending the Fed made after the 2008 financial crisis emerged. It also could audit the Fed's low-cost loans to banks, and the Fed's buying and selling of securities to implement interest-rate policy.

The Fed also would have to set lower limits on the fees that banks charge merchants who accept debit cards.

CAPITAL CUSHIONS

Big banks would have to reserve as much money as small banks do to protect against future losses. But big banks would have to replace hybrid forms of capital called trust preferred securities with common stock or other securities. Banks with under $15 billion in assets wouldn't have to replace those securities, but could not add more to their reserve funds.

DERIVATIVES

Derivatives are financial instruments whose values change based on the price of some underlying investment. They were used for speculation, fueling the financial crisis. Under current law, they have been traded out of the sight of regulators. The new law would force many of those trades onto more transparent exchanges.

Banks will continue trading derivatives related to interest rates, foreign exchanges, gold and silver. Those deals earn big profits for a handful of Wall Street titans.

But riskier derivatives could not be traded by banks. Those deals would run through affiliated companies with segregated finances. The goal is to protect taxpayers, since bank deposits are guaranteed by the government.

BANK RESTRICTIONS

Companies that own commercial banks could no longer make speculative bets for their own profits.

A related provision would have banned banks from investing in private equity and hedge funds. The final compromise scaled that back. Banks will be allowed to invest up to 3 percent of their capital in private equity and hedge funds.

EXECUTIVE PAY

Shareholders would vote on executive pay packages. But the votes wouldn't be binding. Companies could ignore them.

The Fed would oversee executive compensation to make sure it does not encourage excessive risk-taking.

The Fed would issue broad guidelines but no specific rules. If a payout appeared to promote risky business practices, the Fed could intervene to block it.

CREDIT RATING AGENCIES

Credit rating agencies that give recklessly bad advice could be legally liable for investor losses. They would have to register with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Regulators would study the conflict of interest at the heart of the rating system: Credit raters are paid by the banks that issue the securities they rate. Before the crisis, they bowed to pressure from the banks, lawmakers say. That's why the agencies gave strong ratings to mortgage investments that were basically worthless.

MORTGAGE LOANS

Lenders would have to make sure mortgage borrowers could afford to repay.

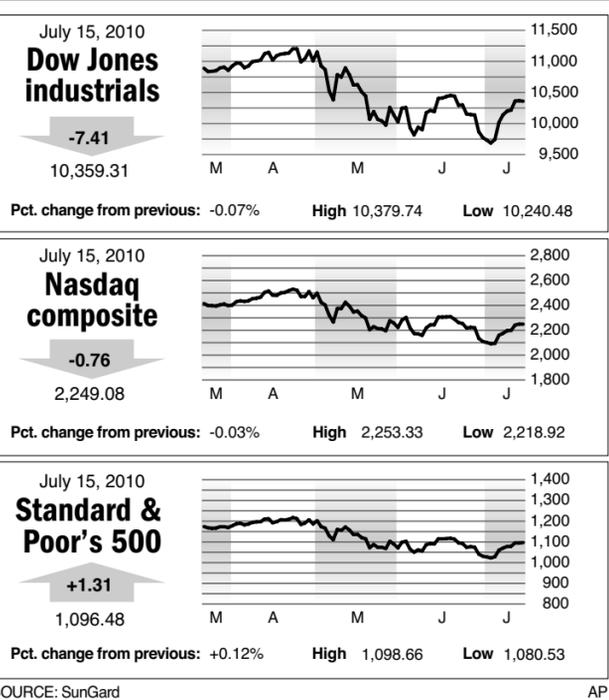

Lenders would have to disclose the highest payment borrowers could face on their adjustable-rate mortgages. Mortgage brokers could no longer receive bonuses for pushing people into high-cost loans.

GOVERNMENT COSTS

=The bill would be paid in part with $11 billion generated by ending the unpopular Troubled Asset Relief Program, the $700 billion bank bailout created in the fall of 2008 at the height of the financial crisis. It would cover additional costs by increasing premium rates paid by commercial banks to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. to insure bank deposits. The increase would not affect banks with assets under $10 billion.

YESTERDAY ON WALL STREET

The Dow Jones Industrial fell 741, or 0.07 percent, to 10,359.31. The Standard & Poor's 500 index rose 1.31, or 0.1 percent, to 1,096.48, while the Nasdaq composite index fell 0.76, or 0.03 percent, to 2,249.08.

Losing stocks were slightly ahead of gainers on the New York Stock Exchange, where consolidated volume came to 4.6 billion shares, up from 4.1 billion Wednesday.

Bond prices rose as investors worried about the economy sought safety the safety of government securities. The yield on the benchmark 10-year Treasury note, which moves opposite its price, fell to 3 percent from 3.05 percent late Wednesday.

Overseas, Britain's FTSE 100 fell 0.7 percent, Germany's DAX index fell 1 percent, and France's CAC-40 fell 1.4 percent. Japan's Nikkei stock average fell 1.1 percent.

FFA local chapters awarded scholarships

The Kimberly and Hagerman FFA chapters participated in a first-ever Western National Rangeland Career Development event on April 16-17 in Twin Falls. Top-placing individuals were awarded cash scholarships and many other prizes.

Hagerman: Billy Arriaga, second place, Joe Maxwell, third place, and Hagerman FFA Chapter, first-place team award.

Kimberly: Dakota Brown, fifth place, and Kimberly FFA Chapter, fourth-place team award.

A U.S. Department of Agriculture grant for secondary youth education funded the event, which was coordinated by the University of Idaho Rangeland Ecology and Management program and the Idaho Rangeland Resource Commission. Students learned to identify 75 common western rangeland plants, measure vegetation attributes for livestock and wildlife habitat, and make management recommendations based on stocking rate and habitat improvement scenarios for a rangeland site. Natural resource agency representatives helped administer the contest and provide additional expertise.

MICHAEL TOLZMANN/Joint Hometown News

Air National Guard Staff Sgt. Zachary T. Woods is a vehicle operations specialist at Malmstrom Air Force Base, Mont. He is stationed at one of only three intercontinental ballistic missile bases still active in the United States.

In Montana, guardsman helps maintain U.S. missile network

By Rich Lamance
Joint Hometown News

MALMSTROM AIR FORCE BASE, Mont. — They call this part of Montana "Big Sky country," with rolling plains, few trees and lots of, well, sky. It's also where the son of a Filer couple calls home, with a job of protecting the U.S. in an area slightly larger than the state of Maryland.

Air National Guard Staff Sgt. Zachary T. Woods, son of Dennis and Glenda Woods of Filer, is a vehicle operations specialist at this intercontinental ballistic missile base, one of only three remaining in the U.S. The 341st Missile Wing is one of the largest units in the Air Force: With 150 Minuteman III missiles spread out over 13,800 square miles within 15 missile-alert facilities and more than 4,000 military and civilians, it is the largest complex of its kind in the western hemisphere.

Woods is assigned to the 120th Fighter Wing with the responsibility of training maintenance airmen. "I work side-by-side with airmen from all skill levels sharing my expertise," said Woods, who earned a bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering from the military extension of Park University in Great Falls.

To support such a large operation requires help from just about every corner of the Air Force. With everyone from administrators and chefs to missile crewmen, missile-alert officers, security forces, helicopter pilots and maintenance, communications, medical and dental services, it all adds up to one of the biggest support operations in the military.

"The mission here at Malmstrom is to secure and maintain one of our nation's ICBM missile systems," Woods said, "and there is no room for error when it comes to doing our job."

For Woods and other airmen stationed here, Montana is either one of the best places to be stationed or one of the worst. Montana can be a haven for the outdoorsman and traveler with major national parks like Glacier and Yellowstone just a few hours away. For others, being in an out-of-the way place like Malmstrom, with no major metropolis or urban centers nearby, can make a tour seem isolated.

"Life in Montana is great for the outdoorsman, and the people here are really friendly," commented Woods. "I like to take advantage of all the outdoor activities (including) hunting, fishing and camping, among other things."

Woods has been in the Air Force for 13 years. "In that time I have been stationed in New Mexico, Montana and Idaho, and I have deployed two times — once to Kuwait and once to Iraq."

games and read to patients, or help in the office. Information: Kerri, 736-0900.

Volunteers — South Central Community Action Partnership needs a volunteer to pick up donated food items on Monday and Tuesday every week from two stores in Twin Falls for about an hour to an hour and a half each day. These items supplement the emergency food program. Reliable transportation and liability insurance are required to be reimbursed mileage. Information: Leanne or Sandra, 733-9351.

Volunteers — Girl Scouts of Silver Sage Council needs adult mentors to deliver Girl Scout programs in the Magic Valley. Information: 733-9623 or girlscouts-ssc.org.

Drivers — Twin Falls Senior Citizens Center needs volunteer drivers for the home-delivered meals program for the homebound. Drivers do not have to be seniors to volunteer to drive one or two days a week for an hour to an hour and a half. The center needs people who can be relied on for their appointed routes and who care about the well-being of the elderly. Reimbursed mileage for gas is available. Information: Joanna, 734-5084, or 530 Shoshone St. W., Twin Falls.

Volunteers — Hospice Visions needs volunteers to help make a difference in the lives of caregivers and those experiencing end-of-life issues. Volunteers provide companionship, bring joy during difficult times and ease burdens by writing letters, singing, playing cards and games, reading, working with junior volunteers or being a friend. Information:

Flo, 735-0121.

Mentors — The Retired and Senior Volunteer Program needs volunteers in Jerome and Twin Falls counties to mentor children with a parent in prison. Volunteers must undergo a complete background check and be willing to mentor a child for a minimum of four hours each month for one year. Information: Ken, 736-2122, ext. 2394 or kwhiting@ooa.csi.edu.

Mentors/volunteers — The Easter Seals Goodwill GoodGuides program is part of a national mentoring program providing guidance to boys and girls ages 12 to 17. The program has a variety of volunteer opportunities in the Magic Valley, including mentors, speakers, tutors, activity directors and mentor leaders. Teens are needed to be part of the Teen Advisory Board, which meets about every three months for one or two hours per meeting to provide input, feedback and guidance for the program. Information: Tristan or LeWayne, 736-2026 or 2469 Wright Ave., Twin Falls.

Beta blockers: Easing the work of the heart

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please explain what beta blockers are and what they do in certain medications.

DEAR READER: A beta blocker, also known as a beta-adrenergic blocking agent, is a medication designed to help reduce hypertension. The drug actually "blocks" the effects of epinephrine that stimulates the adrenal glands. This, in turn, makes the heart beat slower and easier.

ASK
DR. GOTT
Dr. Peter Gott

Some beta blockers affect the heart; others affect both the heart and blood vessels. Therefore, a physician will make an appropriate decision as to which one to prescribe.

Drugs in this class are used to treat heart arrhythmias (irregularities), heart attack, migraine headaches, hyperthyroidism and a number of other conditions. They are not commonly prescribed for people with a diagnosis of asthma because of the possibility of triggering an attack.

Side effects may occur in some people and can include insomnia, depression, shortness of breath and a temporary elevation in cholesterol levels.

To provide related information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Consumer Tips on Medicine." Other readers who would like a copy should send a self-addressed stamped No. 10 envelope and a $2 check or money order to Newsletter, P.O. Box 167, Wickliffe, OH 44092-0167. Be sure to mention the title or print an order form off my website at www.AskDrGottMD.com.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have a problem that has become embarrassing for me. I am a healthy 43-year-old woman. I am within normal weight, have no medical problems and take only a multivitamin and calcium supplement daily.

My problem is that my bangs have become very thin and I have a semi-bald spot at the top of that area. I also seem to be losing a lot of hair while showering. Is there anything I can eat, supplements or herbal remedies that I can take, or a procedure that can correct this problem or at least stop it from continuing? I have become self-conscious about this and hope you have some suggestions. I will truly try anything.

DEAR READER: As I have stated in the past, there are a

See DR. GOTT, Business 4

 number of reasons for hair loss and female-pattern baldness. You might begin with blood tests, particularly of the B vitamins. While you indicate you take a one-a-day vitamin, biotin and B12 deficiencies are commonly the cause of the problem. Then there's stress, hormonal changes, iron deficiency, a family history, specific skin diseases, some medications and a number of other possibilities. Read the fine print on your daily supplements to determine if thinning hair can be a minute but distinct possibility. If you color or otherwise treat your hair, use a blow-dryer, or get perms, I recommend you discontinue the practice. What should be understood, however, is that damage to your hair from harsh products has no impact on hair loss that results from a medical problem.

Rule out all obvious possibilities. Then speak with your physician regarding the use of minoxidil, the only FDA-approved medication to combat hair loss. On the downside, it is an expensive treatment and once you discontinue it, the thinning and baldness will continue once again. Review your diet. If appropriate, consider adding walnuts, fish, soy, poultry and eggs. While there is no scientific evidence to substantiate the recommendation, green tea is a good source of antioxidants and may slow the progression. Good luck. Keep me informed.

More noncredit classes at CSI Education Center

The College of Southern Idaho Community Education Center is offering several new noncredit classes.

"Selling on eBay" will be held from 1 to 5:30 p.m. Saturdays, July 24 and 31 at CSI Evergreen C93 lab.

Students will learn to buy and sell items on eBay in the step-by-step and hands-on class. They will learn how to register, be introduced to must-have equipment, and learn about shipping and handling concerns, setting up an online electronic pay account and restrictions of the service. The registration fee is $65.

"Women's Roller Derby" will be held from 2 to 6 p.m. Sundays, July 25 and Aug. 1 at Skateland on Kimberly Road, Twin Falls. Registration fee is $60.

The Treasure Valley Roller Girls will share their expertise in the sport, its history and the knowledge and skills needed to play. Women age 18 and older of all skill levels are welcome.

"Mastering Group Dynamics" will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. Thursdays, July 29 and Aug. 5 at CSI in Taylor 248. Registration is $40.

The class is offered for anyone who is used to leading groups or who wants to be more comfortable working within a group. Students will learn how to engage people through icebreakers, team challenges and setting task goals to increase workplace efficiency, group morale and create positive group dynamics.

Class sizes are limited, early registration suggested. Information: 732-6442 or www.communityed.csi.edu.

Ground Zero mystery: Ship junked 200 years ago unearthed at WTC site

By Verena Dobnik
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — The ship was buried as junk two centuries ago — landfill to expand a bustling little island of commerce called Manhattan. When it re-emerged this week, surrounded by skyscrapers, it was an instant treasure that popped up from the mud near ground zero.

A 32-foot piece of the vessel was found in soil 20 feet under street level, amid noisy bulldozers excavating a parking garage for the future World Trade Center. Near the site of so many grim finds — Sept. 11 victims' remains, twisted steel — this discovery was as unexpected as it was thrilling.

Historians say the ship, believed to date to the 1700s, was defunct by the time it was used around 1810 to extend the shores of lower Manhattan.

"A ship is the summit of what you might find under the World Trade Center — it's exciting!" said Molly McDonald, an archaeologist who first spotted two pieces of hewn, curved timber — part of the frame of the ship — peeking out of the muddy soil at dawn on Tuesday.

By Thursday, she and three colleagues had dug up the hull from the pit where a section of the new trade center is being built.

A steep, hanging ladder trembled with each step down into chaotic mounds of dirt, dwarfed all around by Manhattan skyscrapers rising into the July sun. People sank in the mud as they walked and grasped pieces of the historic wood for support — touching the centuries-old ship that may once have sailed the Caribbean, according to marine historian Norman Brower, who examined it Thursday.

"It smells like low tide, this muck," said McDonald as she stood on the weathered planks, sniffing the dank odor that hovered over them in the hot summer morning.

The ship harbors many mysteries still to be solved: "Where was it built? How was it used? Why was it sunk?"

McDonald and archaeologist A. Michael Pappalardo made the discovery on Tuesday at about 6:15 a.m., just as they started their shift observing construction in the pit at the southern edge of ground zero. The two work for AKRF, a New York environmental consulting firm hired to document artifacts discovered at the trade center site.

"We noticed two curved timbers that a backhoe had dislocated," McDonald said. Joined by two more archaeologists, they started digging with shovels, "and we quickly found the rib of a vessel and continued to clear it away and expose the hull over the last two days."

Brower, the historian, works in Mystic, Conn. — renowned for its historic vessels. He told the archaeologists that it was an oceangoing vessel that might have sailed the Caribbean, as evidenced by 18th-century marine organisms that had bored tiny tunnels in the timber.

The vessel's age will be estimated after the two pieces that first popped up are tested in a laboratory through dendrochronology — the science of using tree rings to determine dates and chronological order. Also unknown is what kind of wood was used to build the ship.

Former Justice Dept. lawyer: Some CIA interrogation tactics not OK'd

By Pete Yost
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — One of the key Bush administration lawyers in the evolution of the CIA's interrogation program cast doubt on whether the Justice Department approved some of the harsh steps the agency took to get terrorist suspects to talk.

Former Assistant Attorney General Jay Bybee's remarks were contained in a transcript sent to the special prosecutor investigating CIA interrogations by House Judiciary Committee Chairman John Conyers, D-Mich., who also made a copy public on Thursday.

Interviewed by Judiciary Committee members on May 26, Bybee stressed the limits that he helped set on how far the CIA could go while at the same time acknowledging that his legal advice helped pave the way for tactics such as waterboarding, which evokes the sensation of drowning.

"I do wish to repeat that we said on page 2 of the techniques memo ... that repetition will not be substantial" on waterboarding, Bybee reminded the committee in quoting from one of his own legal memoranda.

The professed mastermind of the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks, Khalid Shaikh Mohammed, was waterboarded 183 times.

Bybee

Conyers

Terrorist suspect Abu Zubaydah was subjected to the procedure at least 83 times.

"We were not given any number of sessions as a range by the CIA," Bybee told the committee.

Now a federal appeals court judge, Bybee said there is "ambiguity" as to whether 83 and 183 refer to the number of times water was poured on a detainee, the number of sessions in which waterboarding was used or something else.

What the Justice Department lawyers advised was that if "there are substantial repetitions, we told the CIA 'you don't have a legal opinion from us'" providing legal protection for an interrogator's conduct, Bybee said.

Bybee was the head of the Justice Department's Office of Legal Counsel, which has been criticized by Bush administration critics as an enabler for abuse rather than a traffic cop telling the CIA not to violate legal prohibitions on torture.

Bybee's statements "are highly relevant to the pending criminal investigation of detainee abuse, and I have provided the committee's interview to the Justice Department," Conyers said in a statement.

The committee's top Republican, Rep. Lamar Smith of Texas, said he appreciated Bybee's "thorough effort to be truthful and forthcoming." Smith said the Democrats' agenda was to criticize Bush administration policies "that kept America safe."

In response Thursday, CIA spokesman George Little said: "Opinions from the Office of Legal Counsel were the foundation for the CIA's past detention and interrogation practices. That program, now over, has been — and continues to be — the subject of extensive review by the Department of Justice, among others. As the attorney general has said, the focus is to see if anyone involved in the program may have gone beyond the legal guidance Justice provided."

Last August, Attorney General Eric Holder appointed federal prosecutor John Durham to look into abuse allegations after the release of an internal CIA inspector general's report that revealed agency interrogators once threatened to kill a 9/11 terror suspect's children and suggested another would be forced to watch his mother be sexually assaulted.

Texas takes Klansman's name off dormitory

By Jim Vertuno
Associated Press writer

AUSTIN, Texas — University of Texas regents agreed Thursday to strip the name of a former law school professor and early organizer of the Ku Klux Klan from a campus dormitory.

The dorm named after William Stewart Simkins will now be known as Creekside Residence Hall. The two-story brick building was constructed in the 1950s near Waller Creek.

The unanimous vote came after a motion from regent Printice Gary, who is African-American, to make the change.

"From time to time we are reminded of ugly periods in our nation's history regarding civil rights," Gary said. "The history behind the name is not in line with today's University of Texas and its core values."

Simkins, who was a Confederate colonel, helped organize the Klan in Florida after the Civil War. He taught law at Texas from 1899-1929 and gave speeches and wrote papers promoting the Klan and terrorizing blacks.

New Mexico revives border meeting canceled by Arizona

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — New Mexico will host a meeting of U.S. and Mexican border governors, providing a new venue for a conference that was scrapped in Arizona because of a dispute over its new immigration enforcement law.

However, the governors of Arizona and Texas will not attend the rescheduled meeting.

The meeting will be held in Santa Fe in late September, according to Gilbert Gallegos, a spokesman for Democratic Gov. Bill Richardson.

The governors of six Mexican states are expected to attend, he said Thursday.

"Obviously, all border governors are welcome and encouraged to attend, although the governors of Arizona and Texas have said they are not interested in joining a dialogue with their border colleagues," Gallegos said in a statement.

Richardson's announcement of the border governors' meeting came as a federal judge in Phoenix considered a lawsuit against the Arizona law, which takes effect July 29 unless blocked by a court.

The law requires police, while enforcing other laws, to question a person's immigration status if officers have a reasonable suspicion that the person is in the country illegally.

Vatican issues rules on clergy sex abuse

By William Wan
The Washington Post

The Vatican issued long-anticipated rules Thursday dealing with clergy sex abuse, putting Catholic priests who molest the mentally ill or use child pornography in the same category as pedophile priests, and formally lengthening the number of years that canonical charges can be brought against transgressors.

But critics called the new rules weak because they include few substantive changes to the church's approach.

The worldwide church has yet to adopt a "zero-tolerance" policy similar to one created by U.S. bishops that force priests out of ministry after a single case of pedophilia. The new rules also do not mention mandatory reporting of abuse to police nor establish sanctions to deal with bishops who cover up abuse.

The Vatican did, however, institute a policy that angered women's groups: a provision that labels any attempt to ordain women as a grave crime, the same words used to describe sex abuse. Some Catholic women's rights activists accused the Vatican of equating the ordination of a woman to the molestation of children.

"The Vatican's decision to list women's ordination in the same category as pedophiles and rapists is appalling, offensive, and a wake-up call for all Catholics around the world," said Erin Saiz Hanna of the Women's Ordination Conference in a statement. "The idea that a woman seeking to spread the message of God somehow 'defiles' the Eucharist reveals an antiquated, backwards Church that still views women as 'unclean' and unholy."

The new rules are the most significant laws announced since the 2001 sex abuse scandal in the United States prompted widespread reform in this country. In recent months, the re-emerging scandal has been largely fueled by cases in Europe.

A Vatican spokesman, the Rev. Federico Lombardi, said the revisions signaled a commitment to tackling clergy sex abuse with "rigor and transparency."

One change, highlighted by church officials, puts priests who abuse mentally disabled adults and priests who use child pornography in the same category as pedophile priests.

Abductee or defector, scientist back in Iran

By Adam Goldman and Eileen Sullivan
Associated Press writers

WASHINGTON — An Iranian scientist who defected to the U.S. returned home amid an escalating propaganda war between Tehran and Washington but without $5 million he had been paid for what a U.S. official said was "significant" information about his country's nuclear programs.

The CIA paid Shahram Amiri a total of $5 million to provide intelligence, but Amiri did not take the money with him, the U.S. official, who was briefed on the case, said Thursday. The funds were barred by U.S. Treasury sanctions that prohibit the flow of American dollars to Iran.

"Anything he got is now beyond his reach, thanks to the financial sanctions on Iran," said the U.S. official, who spoke on condition of anonymity because public discussion of the case was not authorized. "He's gone, but the money's still here."

The official said Amiri had provided the CIA with Iranian scientist Shahram Amiri, who went missing in 2009, attends a press conference with his son Thursday after arriving at Imam Khomeini International Airport in Iran.

Kyodo/AP Images

"significant, original information" that the agency was able to independently verify, although he would not detail the scope of the intelligence he provided. There was also no indication, the official said, that Amiri might have been a double agent sent by the Iranians to learn what the CIA knows about its suspected nuclear weapons program.

Still, several former U.S. intelligence officers said Thursday that Iranian intelligence officials would be expected to debrief Amiri to try to learn every last detail about the exchanges that took place between him and his CIA handlers — a process that could take weeks or even months.

The former officers, who spoke on condition of anonymity because of the sensitive nature of those exchanges, said Iranian intelligence would try to exploit any information to hunt for existing American spies.

Iran's leaders are expected to use Amiri to ring up as many propaganda points as possible against Washington, and within hours of the former defector's arrival in Tehran, the war of words heated up.

Iranian officials touted Amiri's claim he had been abducted by U.S. agents, while a U.S. State Department official parried with a call for three long-imprisoned American hikers to be released and treated similarly to Amiri, who they said was allowed to return to his homeland.

U.S. officials have insisted that Amiri was neither kidnapped nor coerced into leaving Iran and that he made the decision to come to the U.S. without his family. The U.S. official added that Amiri decided to return to Iran to see his family again.

The money paid Amiri came as part of a secret "brain drain" program aimed at inducing Iranian scientists and others with information on the country's nuclear program to defect, according to a former U.S. intelligence official familiar with the workings of the program. The program that recruited Amiri and an unspecified number of other defectors was started several years ago and remains active, the former official said.

Abuse worries some as U.S. hands over final detention center to Iraq

By Leila Fadel
The Washington Post

BAGHDAD — A U.S. general on Thursday handed an oversize key to Iraq's justice minister and relinquished control of the nation's last American-run detention center.

That moment closed a controversial chapter of the U.S.-led occupation, after seven years in which tens of thousands of Iraqis have passed through American detention centers. Often they were never charged with a crime. At Abu Ghraib, some were infamously abused and humiliated.

Now human rights groups and Iraqis worry that detainees will be subjected to abuse in Iraq's crowded prison system. Torture was rampant during the reign of Saddam Hussein, deposed in the U.S.-led invasion. In the past two years, hundreds of torture cases in Iraqi facilities were confirmed by the country's Human Rights Ministry. This year, a secret prison was uncovered where inmates had been beaten and sodomized.

"Unfortunately, Iraq is prone to detention and torture abuses, whether it's the former regime, the occupying powers or now the Iraqi government," said Samer Muscati, an Iraq expert at Human Rights Watch. "Under international law, you're not supposed to transfer detainees if they will get tortured. But how long can the Americans hold on to them? There is no ideal solution, but the Americans have a responsibility."

The top U.S. military commander in Iraq, Gen. Ray Odierno, said his forces would continue to train Iraqi security officials and prison guards to respect human rights. He called past abuses by U.S. forces mistakes that resulted from a lack of training and preparation. "Abu Ghraib is a lesson that we weren't prepared," he said in a briefing this week. "We made some real errors. We've learned from it and we've moved on from it, and that's the most important thing."

Even after the U.S. military transferred Camp Cropper and its 1,500 detainees to the Iraqi government on Thursday, it retains control of about 260 detainees who are considered especially dangerous.

Holocaust survivor's dance at Auschwitz sparks controversy

By Amy Teibel and Melissa Eddy
Associated Press writers

JERUSALEM — He's a Holocaust survivor dancing with his family on what easily could have been his own grave.

A video clip of Adolek Kohn awkwardly shuffling and shimmying with his daughter and grandchildren to the sound of "I Will Survive" at Auschwitz and other sites where millions died during the Holocaust has become an Internet sensation. It's also sparking debate over whether the images show disrespect for those who perished — or are a celebration of life.

The fight — raging on Facebook, Twitter and elsewhere — poses uncomfortable questions about how to approach one of history's greatest tragedies: What's the "proper" way to commemorate it? Can a survivor pay homage in a way that might be unthinkable for others? Adding to the irony, Kohn and his dancing brood owe their fame to neo-Nazi groups who posted the clip on their websites and turned it viral, his daughter told The Associated Press on Thursday.

The 4½-minute video opens with the 89-year-old Kohn, his daughter Jane Korman and three grandchildren dancing near the infamous railroad tracks leading to Auschwitz. The group then moves to other Holocaust locations across Poland and Germany, including the notorious "Arbeit Macht Frei" ("Work sets you free") sign at Auschwitz's entrance, Poland's Lodz ghetto and the Dachau concentration camp.

In one eerie shot, with his family behind him, Kohn presses his face to the small opening in a cattle car of the type that transported so many to their deaths. In another, he raises his arms and leads the troupe in a conga line to the pulsating disco beat of the Gloria Gaynor song.

Kohn, shown at one point wearing a white T-shirt emblazoned with the word "Survivor" and flashing a V-for-victory sign, told Australia's Nine Network he didn't think the video was offensive because the dance was distinct from the memory of those who died.

"Why did I do that? First of all because I came with my grandchildren," he said in an interview from his home in Melbourne, Australia. "Who could come with their grandchildren? ... Most of them are dead?"

"We came to Auschwitz with the grandchildren and created a new generation, that's why we danced," he said.

Korman, a Melbourne-based artist, filmed the clip during a trip she took with her father, four children and a niece last summer to Kohn's native Poland, and to places in Germany and the Czech Republic where he once lived.

Country songwriter Hank Cochran dies at 74

By Joe Edwards
Associated Press writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Hank Cochran, a consummate songwriter who composed a string of country hits including "Make the World Go Away" for Eddy Arnold, died Thursday. He was 74.

Martha E. Moore, his publicist, said Cochran died at his home in Hendersonville north of Nashville. He had been in declining health in recent years, and suffered an aortic aneurysm in March. He was diagnosed with pancreatic cancer two years ago.

He co-wrote the following No. 1 hits: Patsy Cline's "I Fall to Pieces"; George Strait's "Ocean Front Property"; and "Set 'em Up Joe" by Vern Gosdin.

He also wrote the No. 1 hits: "Don't You Ever Get Tired of Hurting Me" by Ronnie Milsap; "He's Got You" by Cline and Loretta Lynn; "I Want to Go With You" by Arnold; and "That's All That Matters to Me" by Mickey Gilley.

This pleading sentiment was expressed in 1965 in "Make the World Go Away":

"Make the world go away.

"And get it off my shoulders.

Say the things you used to say

"And make the world go away."

Arnold died in 2008.

Moore said Cochran's close friends Billy Ray

Cyrus, Jamey Johnson and Buddy Cannon visited him Wednesday night and they sang songs together.

Cochran said recently: "I'm sure thankful to be where I am, and that the good Lord has run enough songs through me that I'm seriously satisfied with. As long as he keeps giving them to me, I'm going to try to do something with them."

Survivors include his wife, three sons and a daughter. A private memorial service will be held later. His ex-wife is Grand Ole Opry singer Jeannie Seely.

Garland Perry Cochran was born Aug. 2, 1935, in Isola, Miss., and worked the New Mexico oilfields as a young man.

He arrived in Nashville in 1960, and got a job as a staff songwriter with Pamper Music for $50 a week, hired by country singer Ray Price.

Shortly after that, Cochran helped Willie Nelson get a songwriting job with Pamper. Nelson went on to write classics such as "Crazy," sung by Cline, and his own singing career.

"I recorded a lot of his songs," Price said Thursday about Cochran. "He was a great songwriter and a great friend, so it's a double loss for me."

Cochran was a member of the Nashville Songwriters Association International Hall of Fame and the Mississippi Musicians Hall of Fame.

Europe wilts in heat wave

MOSCOW (AP) — It's so hot that women in bikinis are sunbathing in Moscow.

A heat wave across much of Europe also is causing crops to wither, forest fires to ignite and roads to melt, while refrigerators and fans are buckling in the searing sun.

From Russia's Urals mountains to western Germany, a week of temperatures hovering stubbornly in the mid-90s F has baked northern parts of Europe, which are usually spared the heat of the Mediterranean — and forecasters are warning of more to come over the next week.

People were finding ways to beat the heat. There was the rare sight of women in bikinis sunbathing Thursday in Kolomenskoye park in Moscow, while other people tried to cool off by soaking themselves in fountains and playing in water jets in the Russian capital, Belarus and other parts of Europe.

But it hasn't been all fun and games. The air-conditioning systems on board the high-speed trains of Germany's national rail operator Deutsche Bahn broke down several times. With locked windows, dozens of passengers were afflicted with heat exhaustion after spending hours trapped in temperatures of up to 122 F.

The higher temperatures are being caused by an interaction between a zone of low pressure to the northwest of the United Kingdom and high pressure around the Mediterranean, British weather service spokesman Barry Gromett said.

Authorities dispute who's to blame in Polanski case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Roman Polanski case took another strange turn Thursday, with American prosecutors disputing who was responsible for an apparent miscommunication about sealed transcripts requested by Swiss authorities.

Swiss officials said their request to see the transcripts was denied — a choice that led them to free the director against U.S. wishes.

The Justice Department insisted that it notified Los Angeles prosecutors about its decision to reject the Swiss request. But Los Angeles officials said they never heard from Washington.

The dispute was not likely to change Polanski's status since prosecutors had previously argued against unsealing the secret testimony. But Los Angeles authorities maintained they were not asked. The miscommunication was another in a long series of prosecutorial missteps that have dogged the case from its inception in 1977.

Loyola University law professor Stan Goldman said the current flap was mostly about attorneys "pointing fingers at each other."

"It's an embarrassment for the district attorney's office," he said. "It was they who were seeking to get Polanski back, and they have failed."

Sandi Gibbons, spokeswoman for the Los Angeles District Attorney Steve Cooley, declined to comment on what prosecutors would have done if they had known of the request.

"We don't comment on 'what if' questions," she said.

Twin Falls artist Adan Robles, 18, adds finishing touches to his mural for the Idaho Meth Project's Paint the State contest. Robles says his family has been touched by meth and he wants other people to know the toll it takes.

Anti-meth themed art fills public venues

By Melissa Davlin
Times-News writer

As storm clouds approached Twin Falls on June 29, Jordan Carr, 17, and her friends mused over how wind and rain would affect their Paint the State entry.

If the anti-meth art were left outside, it would need a cover. An indoor venue would be best to display their coffin and painting of a meth mouth, they concluded.

Carr, Julie Pizarro, Kayla Boomhower and Jessica Wilson are part of a team competing in Paint the State, a competition put on by the Idaho Meth Project. There's one of 21 teams registered to compete in Twin Falls County — among 50 teams in the eight counties of south-central Idaho and 348 statewide posted on the Idaho Meth Project's Paint the contest off a similar one in Montana in 2006. Each of Idaho's 44 counties will have a first-place, second-place and third-place winner, receiving $1,500, $1,000 and $500 prizes, respectively. A grand prize winner will be picked from the state's 44 first-place winners to receive an additional $5,000. Prizes total more than $135,000. The project will announce all winners Aug. 6.

Paint the State rules allow only individual teens to enter, but those entrants can enlist however many people they want to help. It's up to the entrant to decide how to divvy up any winnings. If it wins, Carr's group plans to give its money to Canyon Ridge High School's anti-drug program, which Pizarro advises.

Carr and company decided to paint a canvas with meth mouth — rotted teeth and gums. The American Dental Association cites poor oral hygiene, dry mouth and a drug-induced craving for sugary drinks as the probable causes of extreme tooth decay in meth addicts.

On the other side of the canvas, they planned to paint a gravestone. Under the morbid pictures they would write "METH = DEATH." The whole display would go on a platform.

The girls weren't sure how the work would be divided but knew Boomhower would do a lot of the painting.

Jazz camp gives lessons on life, music

By Rebecca De Leon
Times-News writer

The Fourth Annual Great Basin Jazz Camp drew talent from far and wide — in different ages and accents. This year, two teenagers traveled from their home in Australia to attend the five-day camp in Twin Falls this week.

"It's really fun here," said Tristan Rogers, 15. "Everyone here's really nice. We're learning how to talk with an American accent."

"Yeah, it's been cool," said Rogers' 17-year-old Aussie buddy Sam Maguire. "And we've learned a lot from

Castleford Classics Motor Jamboree revs up this weekend

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

Castleford's annual mud drag show comes a little early this year, but organizers say moving the event from mid-August to this weekend will allow for a better show.

Cliff Lockhart, who started the show five years ago, said the new date gives more mud racers a chance to come out. Lockhart expects about 130 mud drag entries, not counting the locals who will come out to play in the pit.

"There were other races going in August," Lockhart said. "Instead of competing with other venues we decided to go for a date that allows racers the chance of coming out without missing other competitions. We've got guys — and gals — coming from Elko, Nev., New Mexico, Oregon and Wyoming."

Spectators will enjoy big rigs like the Silt Mud Stud from Silt, Colo. — a 1936 Chevy 4x4 sporting a hand-made, four-link suspension, nitrogen shocks, 400 tranny and 1,250 horsepower (2,010 dyno).

"It's not nitrous, it's just got a lot of motor,"

Lockhart said.

The mud races may be the last time to enjoy Team Lewis — Ron and Mary Lewis, from Twin Falls — run its '48 Willys CJ. Ron Lewis said the Jeep is up for sale. There's nothing wrong with the vehicle's nitrous oxide system, Lewis said, they just want to get into drag racing.

"It'll go through the pit in 2 to 3 seconds, depending on the weather. The heat seems to slow it down a bit," Lewis said.

Team Lewis' drag racing vehicle, a 1973 Chevy Vega, will be on display in the Jamboree's Show 'n Shine and burnout competition. The Vega will be one of more than 100 vehicles on display in Jean's Park over the weekend.

"We're expecting a great turnout," said Show 'n Shine coordinator Linda Wilson. "With two dozen trophy classes, we expect a great variety of automobiles to be on display."

Show 'n Shine entry fee is $20 through today, or $25 at the gate. The first 100 vehicles receive a dash plaque. The entry fee covers participation in the mud drag, burnouts, tough truck competition and poker run.

The public can enter individual events the day of the competition, for a $25 entry fee.

"This is the first year we've opened the poker run up to the public," Wilson said. "There are five stops along the route, taking drivers to Buhl and back."

There's $500 up for grabs; first place gets $250, second place wins $150 and third place receives the remaining $100.

Jean's Park won't be filled with just vehicles. More than 20 vendors will peddle everything from food to jewelry, Castleford's Fighting 28 firefighters will sponsor a beer garden, and the National Guard will offer a free climbing rock wall for kids.

The Jamboree will host a raffle, with tickets available and prizes on display at the Jamboree booth in the park.

Raffle tickets cost $1 each or $5 for six; prizes include a Traeger grill, $2,000 in jewelry and a butchered and wrapped hog, to name a few. While 50 percent of the pot will go to one lucky raffle winner, the remaining funds will be set aside for a scholarship fund for Castleford and Buhl high school graduates, awarded next spring. ## Writers' conference hits its 15th year

Times-News

Sun Valley Writers' Conference will hold its 15th annual gathering of readers and writers, Aug. 20-23 at Sun Valley Resort. A full event pass provides access to all lectures and breakout sessions as well as breakfast and lunch throughout the weekend for $850.

Presenters this year will include: former Secretary of the Treasury Henry M. Paulson Jr., interviewed by 2010 Pulitzer Prize winner Liaquat Ahamed; Supreme Court Justice Stephen Breyer; economic historian Niall Ferguson; Tony and Academy Award-winning actor John Lithgow; poet and memoirist Mary Karr; a travel writer and lifelong friend of the Dalai Lama, Pico Iyer; human rights activist and memoirist Ishmael Beah; novelist and screenwriter Dennis Lehane; and others.

For four days each August some of the best writers and thinkers — including fiction and nonfiction writers, journalists, playwrights, poets and filmmakers — talk about their work and the world. The conference's past presenters have included 31 Pulitzer Prize winners, 10 National Book Award winners and five winners of the Mann Booker Prize given in Great Britain.

The audience of about 1,000 will enjoy talks presented in the outdoor Sun Valley Pavilion and smaller sessions with speakers, as well as theatrical and musical performances and films. In July and August, tickets to individual talks in the pavilion are on sale in Sun Valley bookstores for $35 each. Accommodations are available at Sun Valley Resort; reserve at www.sunvalley.com or 800-786-8259.

If Sun Valley's signature wine auction is out of your budget, try the wines at its tasting or picnic

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

SUN VALLEY — The wine cost $135 a bottle. But it was the four glasses sitting in front of him that engaged Joe Bauwens' interest.

The Ketchum resident swirled the wine in each of the glasses, stuck his nose in each to drink in the aroma, then took a sip.

"I'm amazed how different the wine tastes in each of the different glasses. You can really taste the difference," he said.

Bauwens' revelation came last year in the midst of the first Riedel Wine Symposium organized by the Sun Valley Center for the Arts as part of its annual Wine Auction Weekend.

The symposium attracted a sell-out crowd of 69, who watched as Georg Riedel — part of the 10th generation of a family of Austrian glass-makers — told how his company now makes more than 300 wine glasses of different shapes and sizes to help impart the full flavor, texture and aroma of wine.

And the symposium will be back this year with Georg's son Maximilian doing the honors from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. July 23 at the Sun Valley Inn. Maximilian designed the popular O line of stemless wine glasses and the mouth-blown Eve decanter, a $495 glass with a coiled shape.

Master sommelier Fred Dame will lead a second symposium on "The Power of Pinot" from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. July 24.

"The symposiums are a really cool addition. They broaden people's experience with wine," said Frazer Ford, general manager for J.W. Thornton Wine Imports in Ketchum.

The symposiums will be part of a whirlwind weekend July 22-24 that will feature a dozen lavish Dinners with Vintners, a wine tasting, a wine picnic and concert, and a wine auction dinner.

The wine auction dinner alone raises about $1 million for The Center each year. That provides more than half the operating budget of the Sun Valley Center for the Arts, making possible free programs that attract up to 30,000 people each year and providing scholarships for local teachers and students, said wine auction chairwoman Cristl Holzl.

Ford's son Everett Frazer Ford has been a recipient of those scholarships, using them to hone his classical singing voice at Idyllwild Arts Academy in Idyllwild, Calif. He plans to study opera at Denver University this fall.

"The wine auction is a really big deal for both The Center and those who benefit from its programs because they make a large portion of their money in just three hours," Ford said. "And it's great for the attendees, as well. Those who attend the vintner dinners get a chance to learn about two or three lines of wine in a very intimate setting. And those who attend the dinner and auction get a chance to buy fairly rare big bottles that you can't get at the store."

A volunteer readies wine glasses to be handed out at last year's wine tasting. The Sun Valley Center for the Arts' annual Wine Auction Weekend will be back July 22-24, featuring lavish dinners, a wine tasting, a picnic and concert and, of course, an auction.

The July 23 wine auction will feature a variety of wines in commemorative bottles, such as this Atkinsons' Market lot featuring fall scenes of Baldy.

Thornton and other wine dealers help out by wooing vintners to town, where they are plied with a pig roast, fly-fishing trips and other recreational opportunities. In turn, the vintners get a workout pouring wine at the various events.

• The weekend will kick off Thursday with vintner dinners at 12 private residences. The dinners will feature an array of chefs that include Christopher Kostow, chef at The Restaurant at Meadowood in Napa, Calif., and Beau MacMillan, executive chef at elements restaurant at Sanctuary in Paradise Valley, Ariz.

Kostow was nominated for Best Chef: Pacific by the James Beard Foundation and named one of Food & Wine magazine's Best New Chefs 2009. MacMillan is co-host of the Food Network's "Worst Cooks in America" series and an "Iron Chef America" competitor who triumphed over glassmaker and CEO of Riedel Crystal America, will present a primer on using proper stemware as students try wines from various vineyards.

Admission is $125 and includes a set of Riedel pinot noir stemware to take home.

• Guest chefs Kostow and MacMillan will don their chef's hats again the night of July 23 to prepare dinner for guests attending the Wine Auction Gala.

The auction, consistently ranked among the top 10 charity wine auctions in the country by Wine Spectator magazine, will take place at 5:30 p.m. under a tent on Dollar Mountain. Admission is $500, of which $200 is tax deductible.

• Master sommelier Fred Dame will lead "The Power of Pinot" symposium from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. July 24. Admission is $125 and includes a set of Riedel pinot noir stemware to take home.

• Come July 24, wine connoisseurs can try wines from dozens of vintners from California, Washington and Idaho at the Wine Tasting Extravaganza from 12:30 to 3 p.m. under the Big Tent at Dollar Mountain. Admission is $40 and includes a Riedel glass.

• The Sun Valley Center's Wine Auction Picnic and Concert will sport a new look this year. Fifteen local restaurants and businesses will work together to prepare the meal while guest vintners pour their favorite wines.

The July 24 affair, from 6 to 9 p.m. at the Warm Springs Ranch in Ketchum, will feature Hawaiian Ahi Poke from Globus; two Lava Lake Lamb dishes prepared by Ketchum Grill and CK's; salads from SEGO, Raspberry's, the BrickHouse Bar and Grill, the Roosevelt Tavern and the Sawtooth Club; and desserts from Toni's Ice Cream, The Chocolate Moose and Cristina's.

Picnickers can burn off all those calories by dancing to the music of rock and rockabilly musician Clinton Curtis.

"The picnic is great fun," said John Wellsandt, a Ketchum resident who attends every year with his wife, Sharon. "We enjoy the wine and listening to the music. And the move to Warm Springs was a good one because it provides more shade than the Big Wood Golf Course venue."

The picnic costs $80 per person.

Packages that include early admission to the wine tasting extravaganza, personal concierge service, chauffeur shuttle service and other perks are also available.

Pick up historical calendar at Oakley museum

By Judy Albertson
Times-News writer

If you're looking for a unique, historical calendar, the place to go is the Oakley Valley Historical Museum.

Oakley Valley Historical Association, which is in charge of the museum, is releasing its ninth annual calendar in conjunction with Oakley's Pioneer Days celebration, July 21-24.

Laurel Adams, an association board member, said the 2011-12 calendar will feature schools in the Oakley Valley for the past 100 years. They include Cassia Stake Academy — which was opened in 1910 and later became Oakley High School — Warm Creek, Marion School, Locust School, Basin School, Dam School and others.

"The Dam School was near the Oakley Reservoir, and that's why they called it the Dam School," Adams said.

Bob Fehlman, association president, loves to tell about the building of the museum.

"The Oakley Valley Historical Association was founded in 1998. Before that the Daughters of the Utah Pioneers (DUP) had, for many years, been collecting artifacts, and had them in a building that was condemned and the artifacts were being ruined. The City Council at that time decided it was important to have a museum in town, and there was an organization that was doing Oakley tours then and they decided they would use their funds to help build a museum," Fehlman said.

To raise funds for the museum, they created a Founders Circle, and any family donating $1,500 could have their names on the Founders Circle Plaque, Fehlman said.

"The museum was completed in 1990 and we continued to get donations and all of the labor was donated. The DUP ceded their collection to the museum and we have continued collecting artifacts. To date, 40 or more families have donated $1,500 for the museum," Fehlman said.

The museum was dedicated in 2000, and they started publishing the history-themed calendars.

"This year we are featuring the 100th anniversary of the Cassia Stake Academy. Last year we featured the 100th anniversary of the Oakley Reservoir. The theme will always be the subject of the cover page," Fehlman said.

Two pages of the calendar are saved each year for 50- and 25-year class reunion pictures. The page of November is used to honor area veterans, and every other June the calendar features one of the old homes on the Oakley tour.

"This year we are featuring the S.P. Worthington hotel and family. There will be pictures of it before and how it is today," Fehlman said.

There is no charge to use the Oakley museum.

Association members will sell calendars at the Oakley museum from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. July 23-24 for $10 each. Order books by calling Marge Woodhouse at 862-3495, also for $10 plus $2 shipping. Issues of past calendars are also available at the museum.

"We've cut the price a lot on those. By getting one each year, a person will have collected a substantial amount of Oakley history," Fehlman said.

Bumping, jumping car race turns Oakley festival a little wild

By Laurie Welch
Times-News writer

Hundreds of people will flock to Oakley next week to celebrate their pioneer heritage and spirit during Oakley Pioneer Days.

Along with more traditional events — like the rodeo, the Goose Creek Run-Off race, a parade and several opportunities for hearty meals — one new event is drawing a crowd that's a bit more on the rowdy side.

Zane Gillette, coordinator for the 2nd Annual Bump-n-Rub four-cylinder car race, said he drove in the race last year and wouldn't miss it for the world.

"It's a blast," Gillette said. "It's a circle track race with a lot of bumps and jumps. It isn't a demolition derby, but there are plenty of opportunities to play around with your friends."

Gillette said the cars are always running into straw bales or flying through the air.

At the beginning of the race the cars are auctioned off Calcutta-style, and the audience participant who bids on the race's winning car takes home a cash purse. Gillette said the drivers get a little wild during the auction and stand on their cars. One driver last year even sported a Spandex suit.

Neil Justesen, winner of last year's race, said the guy who bid on his car during the auction took home about $400.

"So many of the events during Pioneer Days are cowboy events, and this is something for the whole community," Justesen said. "People were talking about it for months afterwards last year."

and arts department head at East Valley Middle School in Nampa. Because Idaho teachers must complete six semester credits every five years to remain current in certification, Sutton and Burton chose to attend this jazz camp, both for the experience and the credits.

"This camp is three credits," Burton said.

"We stay here for the whole week, but we get our own rooms," Sutton said.

The minimum age is set at 15 years old, but the camp sometimes accepts younger middle school students if they audition well.

"The young ones are also extremely talented," said Michael "Big Mike" Allen, founder and executive director of Great Basin Jazz Camp. "They really are the stars of the camp."

Alec Aultz, 14, of Nampa, specializes in trombone. He was one of the more than 30 students who filled Wayne Bliss' "Practice Techniques" class Tuesday morning.

MEAGAN THOMPSON/Times-News
Mardee Burnham, 17, pays attention during a lecture about the importance of practice Tuesday morning during Great Basin Jazz Camp.

"It was pretty fun," Aultz said after the class adjourned. Bliss "was pretty funny. I'm really glad he gave me this sheet; I think I've been practicing wrong."

Bliss had given his class a sheet with the Myers-Briggs personality test for students to determine which practice technique best fits their type. The class laughed along with Bliss' eccentricities, but when he was teaching, the class was uncharacteristically silent.

"This is not just for music, but for life, too," Bliss said after describing that professional baseball players hit around 30 percent of all the balls pitched to them. "We attach emotion to failure. This is not a good thing. You shouldn't do that."

Bass trombone player Elizabeth Evans, 17, came from Federal Way, Wash., with a fellow classmate at Bliss' urging. Bliss teaches band at her high school.

"We like him," Evans said with a smile. "And I like this place. I told my friend last night, 'I don't want to go home.' It's different here because there's no grades, no other classes to worry about, it's just about learning, and that's what I like the most about it."

"The point of this camp is to inspire the kids and get them passionate about jazz music," said faculty member David Bode, a 26-year-old saxophone player from New Orleans. "And I feel like I have knowledge I can share. They just need a strong foundation. It's like I told them in my class earlier, 'We want to build skyscrapers, not little huts.' All they need is that foundation."

Faculty member Bruce

Foreman has taught at Great Basin Jazz Camp since its inception four years ago in Elko, Nev.

"It has definitely changed since then," the veteran guitarist said. "The level of students is better, and their successes have become well-known. They are more vibrant now. The returning kids have improved from the year before, and they come home from the jazz camp and get younger kids in their area excited about jazz, so the new kids have kind of indirect experience, too."

Allen, who is credited with inspiring faculty and students alike, gives praise to his adorers.

"We have Dr. David Deacon-Joyner coming back to be our lead instructor," Allen said. "He's internationally known, and in my humble opinion, no jazz camp could have a better lead instructor than this man. I'm so excited to have him. And people should come to learn trumpet from Carl Saunders. Just take private lessons from him — everything else you get is just extra."

Meth

"Kayla's a really good artist," Pizarro said.

Sketching out the plans was the easy part. The real task: figuring out a high-profile public space to display the art.

The girls originally wanted the display at a busy intersection, but concerns about weather and visibility made them reconsider. They set their sights on Magic Valley Mall, where passers-by were more likely to linger.

"They have more time to notice," Boomhower said.

When they first called, they were told the mall employee they needed to talk to was out until July 1 — the day Carr was scheduled to leave for a week-long vacation.

Materials presented another obstacle. The team needed paint and wood to build their display and coffin. On June 29, they asked a manager at Lowe's, but he couldn't give them a firm answer until July 1.

As Carr readied for her vacation, she said she trusted Pizarro and the rest of her group would handle the details.

For the most part, Adan Robles worked alone on his entry. He planned to have an interactive exhibit with an area for people to sign their names and leave anti-meth messages.

The 18-year-old had started painting only six months before beginning the anti-meth project but decided to spray paint portraits. Earlier this year, a teacher hooked him up with Art Hoag of Art Guild of Magic Valley, who needed help painting a mural for the Western Days Parade. Art Guild members built the mural canvas, a 6-by-8-foot wall, and allowed Robles to use it for his Paint the State entry.

He stayed up late into the night on June 30 to sketch out his entry, an interactive mural that allowed passers-by to sign and pledge to be meth-free. The next part: finding a location for his work.

On July 8, Carr felt less certain that her project would get done on time.

She wasn't sure whether Magic Valley Mall had accepted her group's entry, and didn't know what kind of progress her partners had made on construction.

"I'm still in Washington until Saturday," she said. "I don't know what anybody else is going to do."

The group no longer felt excited about showing their work in Magic Valley Mall, and other stores had turned them down. Several other displays would be at the mall, Pizarro said, and she and her group wanted theirs to be unique.

But Shellen Gilliland, marketing director at Magic Valley Mall, said she had received only three Paint the State inquiries, and two of those had backed out. The mall created an application for those interested so staff could determine whether the display was appropriate for their business and figure out the best placement, but as of July 8, no one had submitted those applications.

"I think that we're dealing with some last-minute situations," Gilliland said.

Pizarro said group members' vacations had forced them to put off planning. But with three days left to submit a photo of the final project, she and the other participants pushed to get everything done. Her father had built the coffin for them, and they had secured material donations from several businesses throughout town. They planned to finalize the location — either in Fred Meyer or Magic Valley Mall — by that Friday afternoon, and complete construction on Saturday.

Later that week, the plan changed again. The group decided to put its display in the former Rite-Aid parking lot.

"We made a couple of changes last minute," Pizarro said. They changed the slogan, painted on a gray backdrop, to "METH: A DEATH YOU CAN'T ESCAPE" and added green carpet and flowers around the coffin to resemble a graveyard. Barbed wire surrounded the entry.

After seeing other entries, including an ornate sculpture of forged steel by the Twin Falls County Courthouse, the partners wasn't so sure their entry would bring home any money.

And that's just fine with them, Pizarro said.

"It's not about winning. It was really good for our group to get together," she said. "It's really cool to see the message getting out."

Robles' process was more straight-forward.

Early last week, he approached Magic Valley Bank with his proposal to put up his mural at the corner of Shoshone Street and Main Avenue in Twin Falls. The bank agreed, and by mid-week the mural was almost done.

Words on the wall said "Who Does Meth Affect? Every1." Between the words, Robles had painted portraits of those hurt by meth use, like mothers, fathers, infants, friends, dogs and cats. A shattered mirror, attached with green tape, showed that meth affects "you," Robles explained.

Robles left the other side of the wall blank, with a statement encouraging people to write anti-meth messages.

By July 8, the wall already had about three dozen signatures, some with messages.

"Drug free for life 28 and still going strong," scrawled Marcie R. Velasquez.

"My son is finally meth free. I have him back," wrote Tabitha Clifford.

Robles hopes people will pay attention to his message and the words on the wall.

"The idea is that meth affects everyone, everyone around the user," he said.

Shoshone cowboy poetry gathering benefits youth

Times-News

The Lincoln County Cowboy Poetry Gathering announced the first of what it hopes will become an annual Lost in Lava Cowboy Poetry Gathering, Sept. 17-18 at the Lincoln County Fairgrounds in Shoshone.

Besides poetry throughout the two days, expect open microphone, music, demonstrations, vendors and food.

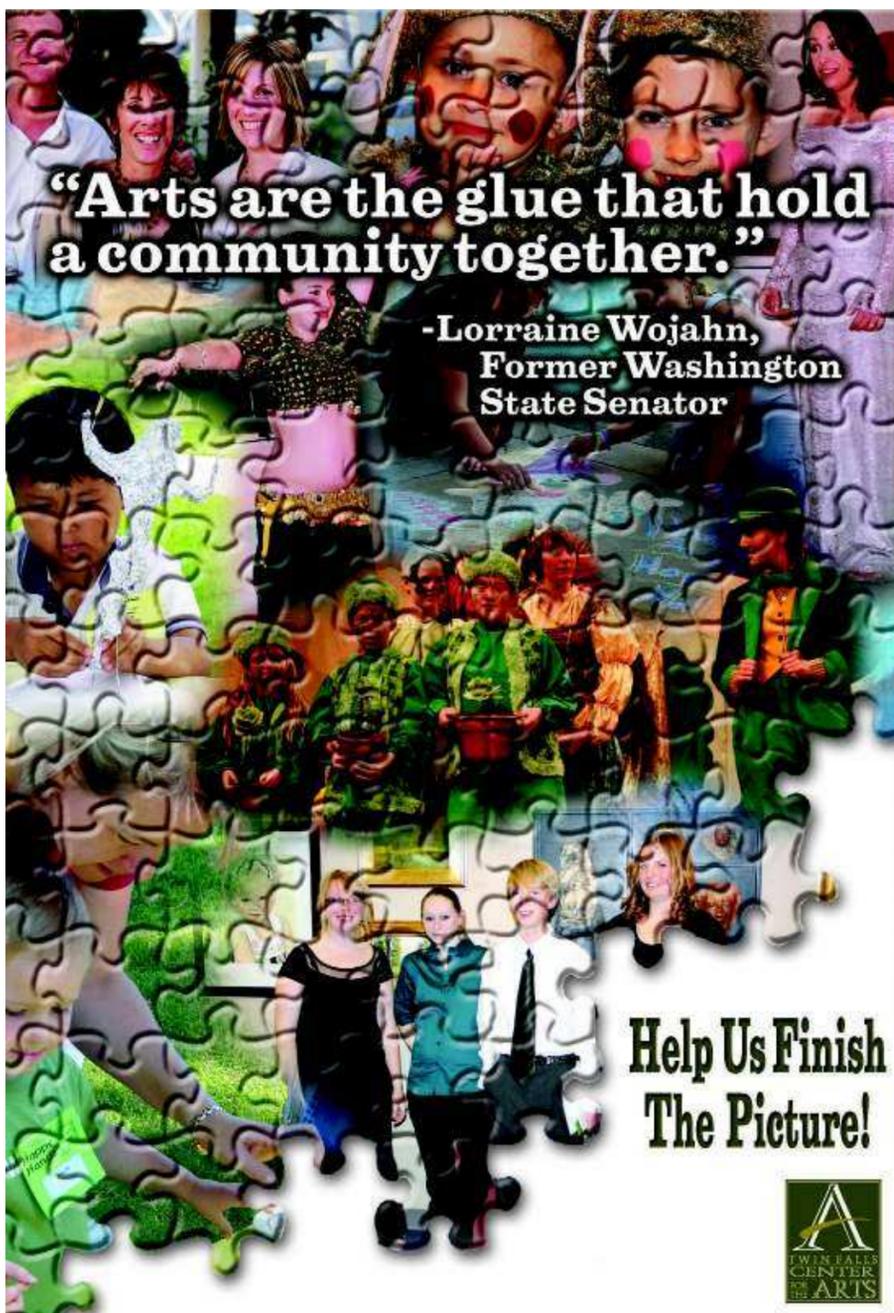

An evening concert will feature musicians and poets from the Idaho Cowboy Poet Association and other performing artists from around the area, to benefit Moon Creek Ponies for Prevention from Shoshone. Moon Creek provides a haven for traumatized children and any challenged and at-risk youth; they get an opportunity to work with horses and ponies to develop responsibility and confidence and enhance communication and socialization skills.

Events are still being scheduled and will be posted on the blog site for the poetry gathering (lincolncounty-cowboypoetry.blogspot.com); you'll find information about concert lineup, vendors, sponsors and events.

Help Us Finish The Picture!

The Twin Falls Center for the Arts is being built now; but we need your help to finish it. A private foundation has expressed interest in contributing to the project, but we need to raise $100,000 by July 31st to qualify for funding.

We have already raised more than 75% of the total funds needed to build and fully furnish the Twin Falls Center for the Arts. Now we need the community's support to reach our $1.4 million goal.

The Twin Falls Center for the Arts will be a community gathering place where people of all ages and walks of life can gather to celebrate creativity and the arts. Imagine a place where you can:

- Enjoy music recitals, foreign films, or a dinner theater performance on a Friday night.
- Learn new ways to express your creativity through workshops and classes.
- See a travelling watercolor exhibit one week and experimental photography from local artists the next.
- Spend a Saturday morning watching a local artist paint a picture of the canyon, while a band plays on the outdoor stage.

Help build a place where we can celebrate art and life in the Magic Valley. Donate TODAY by contacting Robin Baumgartner, Arts Center Project Coordinator at 734-ARTS (2787) or e-mail robin@twinfallscenter.org

Jerome Cyclones use long ball to sweep Spartans

DREW GODLESKI/For the Times-News

Jerome Cyclone Nolan Stouder celebrates with teammates after crossing home plate against the Minico Spartans in Class AA American Legion Baseball Thursday in Jerome.

By John Derr
Times-News writer

JEROME — The Cyclones nearly gave it away, then took it back in smashing fashion.

Up early, Jerome's six errors let the Minico Spartans back into their American Legion Baseball Class AA doubleheader before a pair of blasts over the left-field fence led to a 9-6 victory Thursday afternoon.

With the game tied in the top of the sixth, an error brought Minico's Nick Salvi up with two runners on.

He quickly blasted a single to the gap in right center to bring home both runners, the second on a close play at the plate.

Jerome didn't hang their heads, though. Spencer Parker singled in a run to cut the deficit to a single run in the bottom of the sixth. Then D.J. Worthington came to the plate.

The third baseman tallied a trio of errors — "Everybody has one of those day, it was my turn," said Worthington — but he made it up for it, big time.

He blasted a shot over the fence, putting the Cyclones back on top.

"The dugout got into it because they knew I was having a tough day. I came through," added Worthington, who also walked and scored in the first inning. "I was thinking finally something good happened."

Winning pitcher Nolan Stouder followed with a nearly identical shot to give Jerome a 9-6 cushion entering the seventh.

Stouder sealed it from the mound, getting two strikeouts and reaching for a hard shot back to the mound for the final out.

"It wasn't a typical day for me. I couldn't find the zone right away but just kept working at it," said Stouder, who also tallied a single and scored three runs. "I just wanted to hit the ball hard. I got a fast ball and had a good swing."

Cameron Stauffer hit a pair of two-run homers in the nightcap as Jerome completed the sweep with a 17-10 win. Trey Berrett also had a two-run shot, while Gary Koopman

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland — In the 137 years since the British Open first came to St. Andrews, the Old Course rarely has been such a pushover. Rarer still was the score Rory McIlroy delivered.

Whether it was the luck of the draw or his tantalizing talent really didn't matter.

In conditions so calm that not a hair on his considerable mop was out of place, McIlroy set off on an incredible run into the record book Thursday with a 9-under 63 that gave him a two-shot lead.

"Going out there this morning with no wind, you're never going to get St. Andrews playing any easier," McIlroy said.

It was just as easy for John Daly, a former champion at St. Andrews and now the ultimate long shot. He first energized the gallery by bashing tee shots and making enough birdies for a 66, matching his best score in the British Open.

And it was just as easy for Tiger Woods, who ran off three straight birdies late in his round for a 67.

"The old lady had no clothes on today," Tom Watson said after a 73.

There were 45 rounds in the 60s, 73 players broke par and the average score was under par — 71.75.

No one took advantage like McIlroy, a 21-year-old from Northern Ireland with a game beyond his years. His 63 tied the lowest score in any major, and it was only the second such score at St. Andrews in golf's oldest championship.

ONE LAST RIDE

Area cowboys, cowgirls headed for NHSFR

By Diane Philbin
Times-News writer

Kindee Wilson's second chance is also her last, so the Filer cowgirl plans to make the most of it.

After a month of rest and preparation following the Idaho State Finals Rodeo, Wilson is among several area participants headed for the 62nd annual National High School Finals Rodeo (NHSFR) Sunday through Saturday, July 24, in Gillette, Wyo.

Other area qualifiers include Darby Fox of King Hill (pole bending), Raeli Prescott of Kimberly, TiAnna Stimpson of Minico (girls cutting) and Cody Rowe of Kimberly (boys cutting). In the rough stock events, Tyler Wadsworth of Kimberly (tie-down roping) and his brother, Jade (steer wrestling), will compete along with Dietrich teammates Kolton Hubert (bareback) and Whit Bingham (saddle bronc).

Wilson will take part in two events after winning a state championship in breakaway roping and finishing second in goat tying.

"I want to finish what I started my freshman year and get something done before I head out," said Wilson who last qualified for nationals as a freshman in 2007. "My sophomore and junior years I was hurt and lacked confidence and kept changing things. So this year, I went back to the basics, changing to the old school and working on being consistent."

Wilson's changes included a new ride in breakaway as she started using her dad's horse, Boone, midway through the season. The two clicked and became a good team.

"Our personalities are the same," said Wilson.

Wilson said the level of competition at state was good preparation for nationals.

Wilson and Boone laid down runs of 3.24 seconds and 3.11 in the first two rounds at state to give them a two-run time of 6.35 seconds and put them second in the average. The twosome clocked a 2.83 in the short go to win the average and the state title.

"I was focused going in and went for it," said Wilson. "You have to win the average if you expect to walk away with the title. Even with the luck of the draw, there were no bad calves in the pen. The competition at state is tougher than in the district because you have the best from all the districts in the state and you have to step it up."

"Nationals will be even better. I have a million people pushing me but no one pushes me like I do myself."

Most cowboys or cowgirls say that whether a rodeo is a district outing in

CSI baseball adds Coeur d'Alene standout

Eight Golden Eagle sophomores moving on to four-year programs

By Mike Christensen
Times-News writer

Idaho's Gatorade Baseball Player of the Year is coming to Twin Falls.

Coeur d'Alene High School catcher Devon Austin recently signed with the College of Southern Idaho. The 6-foot-1, 180-pound Austin batted .433 with 48 RBIs as a senior, helping the Vikings to a 22-10 mark. He had four home runs and 17 stolen bases. He twice earned Inland Empire League MVP honors.

"He's an all around good player," said CSI head coach Boomer Walker. "He can catch and throw. He's not a big stature kid, but he can swing it."

Austin originally committed to New Mexico State, but said he would likely pick a junior college if he was drafted in the MLB's 2010 First-Year Player Draft. After the Chicago Cubs took him in the 45th round, he wound up signing with CSI.

Walker said the fact CSI is in Austin's home state gave the college an edge among the many JUCOs who came calling.

While Austin brings CSI's player count, including walk-ons, to 31 for next season, eight of the Golden Eagles' departing sophomores have found homes at four-year programs, according to Walker.

Kyle Beverley is headed for Oregon State, while Ryan Lay and Remington Pullin will play at UNLV. Michael Wesner (North Florida), Lionel Morrell (Grambling State), Dale Anderson (Seton Hall), Preston Olson (Utah Valley University) and Casey Lish (West Texas A&M) are also headed to new teams.

"Every single one of our sophomores is moving on and they landed in good spots, so we're excited," said Walker.

A former Twin Falls High School star, Pullin said he's still taking care of some academic paperwork before his UNLV plans will be "100 percent," but added that he's looking forward to playing in Las Vegas.

"It'll be sweet," he said. "I'm really excited."

Pullin and Lay will play for a familiar face at UNLV as former Southern Nevada coach Tim Chambers enters his first season with the Rebels.

Christian Winmill, left, slides safely into second base as Idaho Falls second baseman Patrick Green fields the ball during an American Legion Baseball doubleheader Thursday at Burley. Winmill was a combined 6-for-8 with six RBIs on the day.

Green Sox rally to sweep I.F.

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

BURLEY — The Class A Burley Green Sox came from behind twice to sweep an American Legion Baseball doubleheader with Idaho Falls on Thursday.

Jake Mills pitched six innings with 12 strikeouts and two walks in Burley's 14-10 win in the opener. Mills also batted 3-for-5 and drove in three runs, including the go-ahead run in the fourth on a two-RBI double. Burley's 9-3 in in Game 2 came on the strength of Fonzie Sanchez's arm. The graduated senior hadn't pitched in about a month, but seemed comfortable on the mound.

"My arm's sore, I don't know what's wrong with it, but it's just playing catch, basically," Sanchez said. "I just tried to mix it up."

After Sanchez stepped in during the fourth inning for starter Christian Winmill, he allowed five hits and no earned runs the rest of the way. Sanchez batted 2-for-4 with three RBIs and also drove in the go-ahead run in the fifth inning, which was followed up by a three-run double by Spencer Rice.

"We're seeing a lot of younger guys maturing with their talent," Sanchez said. "The bottom of our lineup came up big today with some hits at good times."

In the two games combined, Winmill hit 6-for-8 with six RBIs. Jackson Kunz was 5-for-9.

The Green Sox (24-13) are on the road for their regular-season finale today at Skyline. The district tournament gets under way Wednesday at American Falls.

AA Cowboys split with Treasure Valley

Times-News

The Twin Falls Cowboys Class AA squad split a doubleheader with Treasure Valley Thursday in Ontario, Ore. The Cowboys fell 9-8 in the opener, committing three errors and giving up 16 hits. They rebounded with a 12-10 win in Game 2, aided by Jared Jordan's three-run homer in the fourth inning.

first game to keep it close. They had a runner on in the seventh before grounding out for the final out.

The Cowboys benefited from five Treasure Valley miscues in the night-cap and got a triple from catcher Jayson Welker.

Twin Falls (34-10, 15-3 Area C) is the likely top seed at next week's district tournament in Idaho Falls. The Cowboys conclude the regular season tonight by hosting the Jerome Cyclones for a 6 p.m. doubleheader at Skip Walker Field.

"It was hot and the ball was jumping," said Jerome coach Kenneth James.

The Cyclones, who also swept Minico earlier in the season, improve to 10-8. They conclude the regular season today with a 6 p.m. doubleheader at Twin Falls.

Minico coach Ben Frank said his team, which had six errors in Game 2 needs to work on holding a lead.

"That is the trend for us. Hopefully we get figured out by school ball next year," said Frank. "We did a really good job on offense — that is a good arm we faced. We just didn't pitch well enough at times and mistakes cost us."

Jerome led 3-0 early behind Stouder's RBI single and Gary Koopman's two-run double. Minico got one back in the second with the help of free passes and miscues, then moved in front in Glenns Ferry or nationals in Gillette, Wyo., they treat each one the same.

Fox is the same. "I'm trying not to think about it being nationals," said Fox. "I look at it as just another rodeo with a much bigger atmosphere. I'm not overly excited or nervous because you have to do your best at every rodeo anyhow."

Even though she's a district champion, Fox knows she'll be challenged at the NHSFR.

"I've gained more confidence this year and after state, I'm more where I want to be," said Fox. "I'm not at the top like before state. My goal is to end up in the top 20 but my main objective is to go in there and do better and improve myself. I'm always trying to improve myself instead of beating other people."

Fox and her 15-year old gelding, Easy, have been able to find success in their first year together.

"I have come to trust him," said Fox. "But he is spoiled rotten."

Championships will be awarded in Gillette for all-around cowboy, all-around cowgirl, bareback riding, barrel racing, boys cutting, breakaway racing, bull riding, girls cutting, goat tying, pole bending, saddle bronc, bareback riding, steer wrestling, team roping and tie-down roping.

About 1,500 contestants from 41 states, five Canadian provinces and Australia will vie for national titles, assorted prizes and their share of thousands of dollars in college scholarships. Rodeo events will be conducted at 9 a.m. and 7 p.m. each day, with the first performance scheduled for 7 p.m. Sunday.

The final round of competition on July 24 will determine who walks away with championship titles.

Gooding

"We were worried we were opening a Pandora's box for everything that's been cut, not just athletics," said board chairman Tracie Anderson. "... We're in uncharted territory with these budget cuts, so hopefully we made the right decision."

Anderson said the exact amount of money needed is still being determined. The program cost $2,944.49 last year, according to the budget posted on the district's website, but higher transportation costs will make that figure rise for the 2010-11 school year.

The reason for the Aug. 5 date, according to Anderson, is so Comstock will know for certain if the program will be reinstated before he schedules the tennis team's spring 2011 season.

Hurd and several other parents joined about 10 Gooding students at Tuesday's board meeting.

"We all sat there holding our breath while they were deciding," said Hurd. "Finally the motion came to give us a chance and you could just hear everybody breathe a sigh of relief."

Hurd said the tennis team will accept donations Saturday at a car wash at the USDA building in Gooding. Members will hold a yard sale in the same location July 24. Those wishing to donate may mail a check made out to "Gooding Tennis Program" to 1050 7th Ave. West, Gooding, ID 83330.

White Sox stretch win streak to nine

MINNEAPOLIS —

Gordon Beckham had a home run and two RBIs and John Danks recovered from his worst inning of the season to help the White Sox win their ninth game in a row, 8-7 over Twins on Thursday night.

Danks (9-7) gave up six runs on six hits in the second inning, but only allowed three hits in his other five scoreless innings and the White Sox did all the little things right to push the slumping Twins 4½ games behind them in the AL Central.

Bobby Jenks picked up his 20th save in 21 chances. He struck out Orlando Hudson with the bases loaded in the eighth inning, then gave up an RBI-single to Delmon Young in the ninth before getting Jim Thome looking to end the game.

Chicago perfectly executed four hit-and-runs, bunted runners over and played superb defense for their 26th win in the last 31 games.

RANGERS 7, RED SOX 2

BOSTON — Josh Hamilton had three doubles to take over the major league batting lead and help the Rangers get off to a quick start in the second half by beating the Red Sox.

Hamilton improved his average to .351 before leaving in the seventh inning with soreness in his right knee.

Nelson Cruz and Vladimir Guerrero also had three hits, and Bengie Molina homered in the six-run first inning to help the Rangers halt a four-game losing streak.

NATIONAL LEAGUE
BRAVES 2, BREWERS 1

ATLANTA — Jair Jurrjens gave up only one run, rookie Jason Heyward made two strong defensive plays in his return from an injury and the Atlanta Braves beat the Milwaukee Brewers 2-1 on Thursday night.

Once powerful A's struggle to go deep

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — From the days of Reggie Jackson in the 1970s to the Bash Brothers of the 1980s to the slugging beer-league style teams that were so successful a decade ago, power has often been a big component of the Oakland Athletics' success.

It's that long ball power that has been the biggest missing ingredient in a first half of the season that had moments of perfection that were too infrequent for any sustained success.

"We can't be waiting around for guys to hit home runs to win games," slugger Jack Cust said. "Everybody hits more home runs than us."

That's pretty much been the case so far this season. The A's come out of the All-Star break ties with Seattle and Houston for the fewest home runs in all of baseball with 57.

The A's are on pace for 104 home runs this season — the fewest in a full season for the franchise since 1978. In fact, the A's are in danger of failing to reach 100 home runs for the first time since the franchise's inaugural season in Oakland in 1968.

Jackson had 37 home runs at the All-Star break the following season and the A's have been one of the game's best power-hitting teams ever since. Jose Canseco and Mark McGwire teamed up in the late 1980s to give Oakland a feared offensive attack and players like Jason Giambi, Miguel Tejada, Frank Thomas, Matt Stairs and Nick Swisher continued the trend in recent years.

But this year, catcher Kurt Suzuki is the only player in double digits in home runs with 10. The team went 23 games without homering more than Martin Prado and Chipper Jones hit home runs in the third inning off Dave Bush (4-7).

CARDINALS 7, DODGERS 1

ST. LOUIS — Chris Carpenter allowed four hits in eight innings to improve to 6-0 against the Los Angeles Dodgers, and the St. Louis Cardinals chased an off-kilter Clayton Kershaw early.

Allen Craig had two RBIs without a hit off Kershaw (9-5), who issued consecutive walks on 11 pitches to start the Cardinals' two-run first, meriting a quick visit from pitching coach Rick Honeycutt. Kershaw also got tagged with a liner off his right leg for an infield hit by Aaron Miles in the second and allowed four earned runs in 4 1-3 innings with one strikeout.

CUBS 12, PHILLIES 6

CHICAGO — Aramis Ramirez hit a pair of two-run doubles, and Derrek Lee and Geovany Soto each had two-run homers to lead the Cubs to a win over the Phillies.

Alfonso Soriano also hit a solo homer for the Cubs, who scored nine of their 12 runs with two outs.

Jazz introduce Jefferson, agree with guard Bell

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Utah Jazz aren't sure if they just picked up a new power forward or center.

Al Jefferson can play both positions, which is why Utah made a deal with the Minnesota Timberwolves to get him.

"I'm going to do whatever I can, whatever they want me to do," Jefferson said. "Just tell me and it's done."

Both Jefferson and the Jazz appeared to be thrilled with the new arrangement during a news conference Thursday.

"I just can't wait for training camp to start. Normally I don't never say that," Jefferson said with a wide grin.

Utah just lost free agent Carlos Boozer to the Bulls last week, but quickly picked up another player who can average 20 points and 10 rebounds. Jefferson is a little bigger (6-foot-10, 265 pounds) than Boozer and four years younger.

General manager Kevin O'Connor said Jefferson could expect to play some at forward and some at center, where starter Mehmet Okur may not be available for training camp and the preseason as he recovers from surgery on a ruptured Achilles' tendon.

AP photo
New member of the Utah Jazz, Al Jefferson, smiles after being introduced at the Jazz practice facility in Salt Lake City on Thursday. Jefferson says he's excited to join a contender led by All-Star point guard Deron Williams.

While Okur is capable inside, he's been more of an asset for his 3-point shooting. Jefferson is a completely different threat.

"I like to be in the paint. That's where we get nasty," Jefferson said.

And once Okur returns, the Jazz could have a lineup including Jefferson, Paul Millsap and Okur on the floor at once with All-Star point guard Deron Williams running the offense.

"We're thrilled," O'Connor said. "How many guys in the league talk about going down in the low post and love to get banged?"

Just a week after the Jazz lost Boozer and shooting guard Kyle Korver to free agent offers from Chicago, Utah's future was looking considerably better Thursday. The Jazz have a deal in place to bring back shooting guard Raja Bell, who just needs to pass a physical.

Bell joined the Jazz in 2003 and was a leader the first two seasons Utah was without John Stockton and Karl Malone. Bell signed as a free agent with Phoenix after his career took off with the rebuilding Jazz. Now that the Jazz can contend in the playoffs, Bell is returning for a three-year deal worth about $10 million.

"He loved playing for Jerry. He loved living in Salt Lake," agent Herb Rudoy said Thursday. "It was an easy decision for him to come back."

Bell was a favorite with both the fans and coach Jerry Sloan because of his defense. He is also a strong leader who the Jazz hope can help Williams take the team from the second round of the playoffs much deeper.

It also means the Jazz are not planning on matching Portland's offer for restricted free agent Wesley Matthews — as long as Bell passes the physical.

While losing last year's rookie surprise, the Jazz add a proven veteran in Bell and a new inside threat in Jefferson, who has played six NBA seasons and is just 25 years old.

Sloan, entering his 23rd season with the Jazz, will have a lot of options.

"One of the things Coach does so well is to put people in position to succeed," O'Connor said.

Jefferson acknowledged his defense can lapse at times and expects Sloan's blunt style to be exactly what he needs as a motivator.

Jefferson was the key player Boston sent over in the deal to get Kevin Garnett in 2006. He averaged 17.1 points and 9.3 rebounds last season and said he has recovered from a major knee injury in February 2009.

The Jazz got him from the Timberwolves for two future first-round draft picks and center Kosta Koufos.

Jefferson leaves the Timberwolves, who went 15-67 last season, for a team that's been to the postseason four straight years. He hasn't been on a winning team since he was a rookie with the Celtics in 2004-05.

"This team don't accept losing. They don't accept losing at all," Jefferson said.

Renshaw expelled for head-butt in helping Cavendish win stage

BOURG-LES-VALENCE, France (AP) — In the frenzied and dangerous mass sprints at the Tour de France, competitors often need to keep their heads.

Mark Renshaw decided to use his. The Australian lead-out man for sprint specialist Mark Cavendish was kicked out of the race after head-butting a rival Thursday, which cleared a path for his British teammate to win his third stage at this year's Tour.

"This is cycling. It's not wrestling," said course director Jean-Francois Pescheux, who called Renshaw's aggressive tactics "flagrant" and the punishment necessary.

"There are rules to respect," Pescheux said.

Andy Schleck of Luxembourg retained the yellow jersey, and rode conservatively during the 114.6-mile ride from Sisteron to Bourg-les-Valence so that he could save his energy for tough climbs in the Pyrenees during the final week.

The 25-year-old race leader cruised into the finish in the main pack after riding part of the stage discussing a vacation with his main rival, defending champion Alberto Contador.

"It was quiet and we can act like normal people," Schleck said through a translator. "So we spoke about — we remembered — our holidays."

It wasn't nearly so quiet near the front of the pack, at least at the finish line.

With the sprinters' teams barreling toward the finish at about 40 miles per hour, Renshaw rammed his head three times into the shoulder of Julian Dean of New Zealand, the lead-out man for American sprinter Tyler Farrar on Garmin-Transitions. It was an apparent bid to push Dean, who was then in the lead, out of the way during the final sprint.

After reviewing video of the finish, the race jury said Renshaw was "removed from the competition for a particularly serious case." They also said the HTC Columbia rider was fined 200 Swiss francs (about $192) for a grave case of "irregular sprint."

"I'm extremely disappointed and also surprised," Renshaw said. "I never imagined I would be removed from any race, especially the Tour de France. I pride myself on being a very fair, safe and a straight-up sprinter, and never in my career have I received a fine or even a warning."

After the head-butts, causing Dean to shake his head in apparent exasperation, he appeared to swerve in front of Farrar. That allowed Cavendish to spurt ahead in the final 300 meters, with Alessandro Petacchi of Italy in second and Farrar in third.

"I only saw open space on my left. I had no idea Tyler Farrar was there," Renshaw said. "By no means would I ever put any of my fellow riders in danger."

Cavendish rushed to Renshaw's defense, alleging that Dean had tried to elbow his teammate.

"Mark used his head to get away," Cavendish said. "There's a risk when your elbow's that close (that) the bars are going to tangle. That puts everybody behind in danger. Mark gave us a bit of space which kept everybody upright."

The 25-year-old Cavendish, one of the world's top sprinters, took his third stage win in this year's Tour and the 13th of his young career.

"They don't need to ride like that," said Farrar, who is still looking for his first Tour stage win. "They need to think about the safety of everybody, and let the fastest man win."

"I want to win, but more than that, I don't want to fall," Farrar added. "Something like that is more than about winning, it's really about the health of the riders."

After feeling three "hits" on his side, Dean said he was "a little bit astounded that this conduct was taking place," and said he felt shaken as he crossed the line in 23rd place.

Of course, the two riders were almost destined for antagonism: Dean is from New Zealand, Renshaw from Australia; they're both pilots, or lead-out men, for top sprinters; and their two American teams have a simmering rivalry.

"Yeah, if you start making a list of the potential opposites, we have a lot," Dean told The Associated Press by phone after the stage.

The stage was mainly flat, and thus favored sprinters. The general classification didn't change, with all the top contenders finishing behind the sprinters in the main pack.

Schleck earned the yellow jersey for a third straight day, while Contador remained 41 seconds back. His fellow Spaniard, Samuel Sanchez, is 2:45 behind in third.

Seven-time Tour champion Lance Armstrong, who has already ruled himself out of contention for the title, lost time for the second straight day. He finished in 114th place, 29 seconds behind the pack, and is 17:51 behind Schleck in 32nd place overall.

Wade says James 'didn't quit' on Cavs' playoff run

MIAMI — They've been teammates for only a week, and Dwyane Wade is already standing up for LeBron James.

Wade defended the NBA's two-time reigning MVP on Thursday, telling The Associated Press that James "didn't quit" on Cleveland during the playoffs. That was the accusation made by Cavaliers owner Dan Gilbert last week, not long after James went on television to reveal he was leaving Cleveland for Miami.

"He's not a quitter," Wade said. "He didn't quit."

In an interview with The AP on July 8, Gilbert not only levied the quitting charge, but said James got "a free pass" for too long. The NBA fined Gilbert $100,000 earlier this week for some of his comments, with commissioner David Stern saying they were too extreme for the league's liking.

Wade said he watched every game in Cleveland's second-round series against Boston, the team that eliminated the Heat in the opening round of the postseason. The Celtics used a similar defensive scheme against James as they did against Wade to open the playoffs, throwing a slew of challenges in the way of both.

"LeBron James, Dwyane Wade, Kobe Bryant, guys like that understand what Boston's defense was about," Wade said. "Their defense was built on not letting one player beat them. You either settle for the outside shot or you pass to your teammates. LeBron had one bad game in the playoffs. Other than that, he did what he could do with the defense all watching him."

The Cavs lost to the Celtics in six games, but Wade pointed out that in the series finale, James finished with 27 points, 19 rebounds and 10 assists.

Nonetheless, Gilbert told The AP, "watch the tape. The Boston series was unlike anything in the history of sports for a superstar."

MILLER SIGNS HEAT DEAL, JOINS WADE, JAMES AND BOSH

MIAMI — Mike Miller has signed his five-year contract with the Miami Heat, joining LeBron James, Dwyane Wade and Chris Bosh to chase a championship.

Miller announced it on Twitter, saying "It's official" and thanking Heat owner Micky Arison and team president Pat Riley.

The 6-foot-8 sharpshooter becomes the latest player to take less money than he could have made elsewhere to play for the Heat.

Terms were not immediately disclosed, but Miller's deal was expected to be

CAVS' WEST PLEADS GUILTY IN GUN CASE

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. — Cleveland Cavaliers guard Delonte West pleaded guilty Thursday to weapons charges and received a home detention sentence that includes flexibility to travel to NBA games if the league allows it.

In Prince George's County Circuit Court, Judge Graydon S. McKee III sentenced West to eight months of home detention with electronic monitoring, two years of unsupervised probation, 40 hours of community service and psychological counseling.

Prosecutors said that the sentence would allow West to attend practices and travel to NBA games as his team's schedule requires, but NBA officials would not say whether any he'll face any additional discipline that could keep him off the court.

NBA spokesman Tim Frank said in an e-mailed statement that the league would "review the court's decision before making any disciplinary decisions."

worth around $25 million.

NUGGETS SIGN CARTER, WILLIAMS

DENVER — Anthony Carter has signed a one-year league-minimum deal to stay with the Denver Nuggets, who also signed Shelden Williams.

Carter, who has played his last four seasons in Denver, averaged 3.3 points and 3.0 rebounds in 54 games last season, spelling Chauncey Billups and Ty Lawson.

Williams, a 6-foot-9, 250-pound forward/center, played sparingly for the Boston Celtics last season, averaging 3.7 points, 2.7 rebounds and 11 minutes.

Carter will make $1.352 million and Williams about $915,000 in 2010-11.

PIPPEN BECOMES BULLS AMBASSADOR

CHICAGO — Hall of Famer Scottie Pippen is back with the Chicago Bulls, this time as an ambassador.

A six-time champion with Michael Jordan in the 1990s, Pippen will participate in various team events and attend most home games, interacting with fans and sponsors. He will also write a monthly column and appear on BullsTV for the team's website.

Pippen says in a statement being back with the Bulls "means a lot to me" and that he's "really looking forward to being more involved in the community and working with kids."

Golden St. Warriors sold for record $450 million

OAKLAND, Calif. — Golden State Warriors owner Chris Cohan reached an agreement Thursday to sell the franchise for a record $450 million to Boston Celtics minority partner Joe Lacob and Mandalay Entertainment CEO Peter Guber.

"I am incredibly excited to have the opportunity to be the next steward of this storied NBA franchise. This is my dream come true," said Lacob, who is also the managing partner with Kleiner Perkins Caufield & Byers. "Peter and I intend to do what we do best — innovating and building. It is our passion to return the Warriors to greatness and build nothing short of a championship organization that will make all of us in the Bay Area proud."

Lacob and Guber beat out Oracle CEO Larry Ellison, who had been considered the favorite to buy the team from Cohan. Ellison has a personal fortune of $28 billion, according to an annual survey by Forbes magazine, and is the sixth-richest man in the world.

He had been courted by Warriors fans at a game earlier this year to buy the struggling franchise, which has made the playoffs only once in the past 16 seasons.

While Ellison has expressed a desire to own a sports franchise, he was unwilling to outbid the group led by Lacob and Guber. Their offer broke the record for the largest sale in league history, topping the $401 million Robert Sarver paid to buy the Phoenix Suns in 2004.

"The sale process was extremely competitive and the price reflects the Warriors' exceptional fan base, the outstanding demographics of the Bay Area, the high level of interest in the team and the strength of the NBA," said Sal Galatioti, president of Galatioti Sports Partners, which advised Cohan on the sale.

CNBC first reported the deal.

The deal still needs to be approved by three-quarters of the NBA Board of Governors. Lacob also must sell his interest in the Celtics.

Lacob, who has been a season-ticket holder for the Warriors, was part of the ownership group with the Celtics when they won their 17th championship two years ago. He has also been involved in sports websites, was the primary investor in the women's American Basketball League along in venture capital.

Guber is a producer who helped bring movies such as "Rain Man," "Batman," "Flashdance," and "The Color Purple" to the screen. In 1995, he founded the Mandalay Entertainment Group with partner Paul Schaeffer, who will also be an owner of the team. Mandalay has financed, produced and distributed numerous motion pictures including "Donnie Brasco," "Enemy at the Gates," and "Seven Years in Tibet."

Cohan has had financial problems. In 2007, the Internal Revenue Service said he owed more than $160 million in back income taxes and penalties from the 1998 sale of a cable television company.

Cohan bought the Warriors in January 1995 for $119 million and made the playoffs just once in his entire tenure. The only other franchises that have been in the league since then to make the playoffs fewer than five times are the Los Angeles Clippers with two appearances and the Memphis/Vancouver Grizzlies with three.

The one playoff berth came in 2007, when the Warriors became the first No. 8 seed to beat the top seed in a best-of-seven series. Golden State lost to Utah in the following round and failed to make the playoffs in 2008 despite winning 48 games. The Warriors have reverted to form the past two seasons with 55 wins in that span.

Golf's best sideshow, Daly entertains at British Open

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — John Daly's scorecard was the only thing getting more attention than his pants.

Golf's most entertaining sideshow was at it again Thursday, tying his best round at the British Open with a 6-under 66 on the Old Course. It put him atop the leaderboard, a spot that, regardless how brief the stay, would have been unimaginable during the latest chapter in his pulp fiction life.

"I've never ran from my mistakes. I've always kind of been the man that you're supposed to be when you screw up — and I've screwed up an awful lot, not just on tour, but in other aspects of life," Daly said. "I think it's how you come back and deal with it. I don't know if it's motivation for fans or if it's helping them. Whatever it is, as long as it's a positive, to me that's all that matters."

"When you have so many ups and downs in life, like everybody does, some smaller and bigger, it makes it so much more gratifying when you do something special."

Daly birdied seven of the first 11 holes, and he might have challenged early leader Rory McIlroy if not for four putts that lipped out. One, on 17, led to his only bogey of the day.

That Daly is a spectacular talent has never been in doubt. You don't go from last alternate to major champion, as he did at the 1991 PGA Championship, without considerable game. And you sure don't win a second major — the British Open here at St. Andrews, no less — by being lucky.

Daly is Everyman. Fans can't help but be charmed, seeing a little bit of themselves in him. Or maybe a little bit of who they would like to be. He hits driver when he should hit irons. He goes for shots that inevitably end badly. He believes "grip it and rip it" is more than just a cute slogan.

Daly's nickname was "Wild Thing," and he more than lived up to it.

Among other things, he trashed a hotel room in 1997 during The Players Championship and once did a TV interview to promote a golf course wearing only blue jeans. No shirt, no shoes. The PGA Tour has put him in timeout-mode five times (his disciplinary file was a hefty 456 pages as of the fall of 2008), fined him $100,000 and ordered him to attend counseling or alcohol rehab seven times. He's also lost part of a considerable fortune to four ex-wives, gambling and bad loans to friends.

But at 44, even Daly has had enough of his high-wire act.

He's lost almost 100 pounds since having Lap-Band surgery in February 2009, and said he quit drinking and eating as much junk. The rib and back injuries that made it painful to get his game back in shape have healed.

"I feel like I'm getting healthier,"

Daly said. "Being able to work on my game and get some confidence built up, (winning) would be just the most gratifying victory I could ever have."

There's still a long way to go. Daly has three victories worldwide since winning the British Open 15 years ago, and has dropped to 455th in the world rankings. He has just one top-50 finish this year, a tie for 24th at the Puerto Rico Open, and sounded as if he was ready to quit after missing the cut at Torrey Pines earlier this year.

Bettencourt leads Reno-Tahoe; DiMarco 1 back

RENO, Nev. (AP) — If Chris DiMarco keeps playing like this, his 14-year-old son may have landed a permanent job as his caddie.

The three-time winner on the PGA Tour who hasn't finished in the top-10 since 2008 shot a 5-under-par 67 with Cristian DiMarco on his bag for the first time at the Reno-Tahoe Open on Thursday, good enough to be a stroke behind first-round leader Matt Bettencourt.

Will MacKenzie, the 2006 Reno champ, and Craig Bowden were two shots off the pace with 68 at Montreux Golf & Country Club on the edge of the Sierra Nevada. A group of more than a dozen golfers at 69 included Steve Elkington, Woody Austin, Mark Hensby, J.J. Henry and former UNLV star Chad Campbell.

DiMarco's son helped read the tricky mountain greens and even called him off of using his driver when the 2-iron proved to be the perfect choice on the 464-yard, tree-lined No. 8 that drops 138 feet from an elevated tee.

"It's about the coolest thing I've ever done on a golf course having my son there sitting right next to me making birdies and playing well," said DiMarco, 41, who has made 10 of 15 cuts this year but only had one top-25 finish and barely $200,000 in earnings. "He's a 3 or 4 handicap himself, so he can read greens."

Bettencourt, who won the 2008 Nationwide Tour Championship but has no PGA wins, hit his drive 355 yards on the par-5 17th, knocked a 4-iron 260 yards to within 3 feet and made the eagle before bogeying No. 18.

The 35-year-old Northern California native said he probably played nearly 100 rounds of golf in the neighboring Reno area while growing up, including a couple dozen trips to Montreux the past decade.

"My confidence is building. I feel real comfortable," he said. "I feel really acclimated to the elevation."

"The whole game is about confidence. I think that's what Tiger (Woods) has bred so well over his career. I mean, he's so much more confident than everybody else. We all believe in ourselves. You know, it's just the matter of getting on a hot streak."

DiMarco, who birdied the last three holes in his bogey-free round Thursday, has earned more than $20 million in his 16 years on tour. A former member of the U.S. Ryder and Presidents cup teams, his best year was 2005 when he finished seventh on the money list and lost the Masters by two strokes to Woods in a play-off.

British

Of the eight players who have shot 63 in the British Open, McIlroy is the only one to do it in the first round.

"I'm very happy that I was able to take advantage of those conditions," said McIlroy, who had a two-shot lead over Louis Oosthuizen of South Africa. "And it gives me a little bit of a buffer going into the next three days, whatever weather comes our way."

It sure didn't feel easy in the afternoon.

Not long after McIlroy finished his round, the leaden skies over St. Andrews Bay brought showers to the Old Course and a breeze that picked up strength the rest of the afternoon.

Of the 16 players atop the leaderboard, only Peter Hanson (66), Bradley Dredge (66), Lee Westwood (67) and Y.E. Yang (67) teed off after the wind showed up at noon.

"The difference for the early and late starters was huge," Westwood said. "You could have kicked it round in a low score this morning. The course was defenseless, and I actually expected somebody to post a 62. I don't think I have ever known St. Andrews as calm. Hopefully, we might get a break with the weather tomorrow morning, but you never know."

Retief Goosen turned on his television just before 10 a.m. and saw Daly at 7-under par through 11 holes. The wind already was whipping flags when he teed off, and the two-time U.S. Open champion equated his 69 to a 66 had he played in the morning.

He bore no grudges. Such is the fickle nature of links golf.

"You've still got to make a score," Goosen said. "It doesn't matter how easy it is."

Phil Mickelson didn't make a birdie in the afternoon until making an 8-foot putt on the last hole for a 73, and walking off the course without speaking to reporters.

McIlroy's amazing run began with a drive that he hit onto the green at the 352-yard ninth hole to about 15 feet below the hole. He knocked that in for birdie and was on his way. The freckled-face kid followed with a sand wedge to 6 feet on the 10th for birdie, a 7-iron to 8 feet for birdie on the 11th, and two putts from 50 feet on the short 12th hole.

It was so low — and so there for the taking — that even after a record-tying round, he thought about the one that got away.

McIlroy was 8 under when he flew his approach dangerously close over the Road Hole bunker on the 17th, leaving him a 5-foot birdie putt. Make that, and he goes to the 357-yard 18th with a shot at 62.

He missed. "It sort of went through my mind on 17 that 62 would have been the lowest round in a major," McIlroy said. "That's probably why I missed the putt."

He already shot a 62 earlier this year on a course that was far tougher than St. Andrews on Thursday — Quail Hollow for his first victory in America. It was another example why so many have predicted stardom for him. He also shot a 61 at Royal Portrush when he was 16.

This was different. "I think it probably is the most special just because it's at St. Andrews," McIlroy said. "And it's the Open Championship."

Oosthuizen looked as though he might have a chance to join McIlroy. He also was at 8 under playing the 17th until making a bogey, then failing to pick up a stroke on the last hole and settling for a 65.

Not often does someone open with a 65 in a major and trail by two shots. This was not a typical opening round in a major.

Vick trustee seeking repayment of millions

RICHMOND, Va. — The trustee in Michael Vick's bankruptcy case is seeking repayment of at least $2 million that the NFL quarterback doled out to friends and family members in the months before he was sent to federal prison for running a dogfighting operation.

A complaint filed in U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Newport News says Vick knew his lucrative career was in jeopardy and that he would be facing huge legal bills, yet he continued to shower friends and relatives with gifts and cash. Those assets, trustee Joseph J. Luzinski argues, should have gone to Vick's creditors.

Attorneys for both Vick and the trustee say such filings are not unusual in complicated Chapter 11 cases like Vick's.

"We are not suing Mike Vick or accusing Mike Vick of fraud," said Luzinski's attorney, Ross Reeves. "This is about the proper distribution of assets Vick had before his bankruptcy."

Vick's bankruptcy attorney, Paul Campsen, called the filing "a garden-variety attempt to collect money." He said Vick fully disclosed the transfers, did nothing wrong and will continue to cooperate with the bankruptcy court.

Vick claimed about $20 million in debt when he filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection in July 2008, while he was serving a 23-month sentence at the federal penitentiary in Leavenworth, Kan. Last summer, a bankruptcy judge approved a plan that allows Vick to keep $300,000 of his $5.2 million salary from the Philadelphia Eagles with the rest going to creditors.

The trustee's complaint seeks reimbursement from Vick's mother, Brenda Boddie; his fiancée and the mother of two of his children, Kijafa Frink; his brother, Marcus; his sister, Christina N. Vick; another relative, Terrance Vick; the mother of his first child, Tameka Taylor; and friends Tommy Reamon and Charles W. Reamon Jr.

BROWNS' SHAUN ROGERS AVOIDS FELONY GUN CHARGE

CLEVELAND — Cleveland Browns nose tackle Shaun Rogers entered a diversion program Thursday to avoid trial on an airport weapons charge, but he still faces a possible NFL suspension.

The diversion deal was approved in Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Court by Judge Eileen Gallagher.

Under the terms, the felony gun charge will be dismissed if the 31-year-old Rogers completes the program, including 40 hours of volunteer service and 10 hours in a gun class. He also has to forfeit the weapon.

Police said Rogers had the semiautomatic handgun in a carry-on bag at Cleveland's Hopkins International Airport in April.

His attorney, Pat D'Angelo, said Rogers received no special treatment and has consistently given the same explanation — that he had forgotten he had the weapon in the bag. D'Angelo, commenting outside court while Rogers was processed, said the diversion program might last up to one year and would include helping out at a program aimed at reducing truancy in Cleveland public schools.

NFLPA SERVES SUBPOENAS IN ONGOING CIVIL SUIT

NEW YORK — The NFL Players Association has served subpoenas on the NFL, commissioner Roger Goodell and former union president Troy Vincent, according to a report Thursday by Sports Business Journal.

The subpoenas, part of an ongoing civil lawsuit filed by a former union official, seek all documents related to allegations that Vincent and other former NFLPA officials attempted to collude with NFL officials by holding secret meetings to discuss labor talks.

The league's collective bargaining agreement expires next March and a work stoppage is possible without a new deal.

The meetings are alleged to have occurred before current union chief DeMaurice Smith won an election over Vincent to become executive director in March 2009. Vincent was hired by the NFL as vice president of player development earlier this year.

George Atallah, the NFLPA's assistant executive director for external affairs, declined to comment on the subpoenas when reached by The Associated Press.

NFL spokesman Greg Aiello said, "We have no comment on any aspect of this litigation between the NFLPA and one of its former employees."

BEARS TAKES BYU'S UNGA IN SUPPLEMENTAL DRAFT

NEW YORK — The Chicago Bears and Dallas Cowboys have each made seventh-round picks in the supplemental draft on Thursday.

The Bears, picking 12th, chose BYU running back Harvey Unga. The Cowboys, selecting 30th, picked Illinois defensive end Josh Price-Brent.

With the selections, Chicago and Dallas will forego their seventh-round picks in the 2011 draft.

Unga was an all-Mountain West conference first-team selection as a redshirt junior in 2009 and is BYU's career leading rusher with 3,455 yards. He led the conference with 1,087 yards rushing in 2009.

"It's absolutely a good fit for Harvey," Unga's agent, Eric Metz, told the Salt Lake Tribune. "We are very excited. I am glad things worked out well for Harvey. He is going to a great organization, one that has had a lot of interest in him from the very beginning."

Price-Brent played 32 games for Illinois, including 20 starts, totaling 17½ tackles for a loss and five sacks. He led the team with three forced fumbles in 2009, and finished third on the team with three sacks.

Despite church opposition, Argentina legalizes same-sex marriage

Los Angeles Times

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina — Argentina on Thursday became the first nation in Latin America to legalize same-sex marriage, turning aside protest from the Roman Catholic Church to give gay couples the same rights as their heterosexual counterparts.

The Senate approved the measure in a hard-fought 33-27 vote, with three abstentions. President Cristina Fernandez de Kirchner has indicated that she will sign it into law quickly.

The 4:05 a.m. vote came after an exhaustive debate that dragged on for more than 14 hours. Hundreds of supporters of the law, waiting outside Congress in freezing temperatures, erupted in cheers and tears of joy when news of the vote reached them.

"This was already a victory because there was no one in Argentina who wasn't following this debate," said Emelina Alonso, a human rights lawyer in the crowd to support the law. "Human rights and international law oblige us to protect (same-sex) marriage — so it is in Argentina and soon, surely, in other countries in the region."

The law makes Argentina one of the most liberal countries in the world when it comes to gay rights, despite fierce opposition from the still-powerful church as well as Christian evangelical groups.

Cardinal Jorge Bergoglio, archbishop of Buenos Aires, led the opposition, saying that allowing gays and lesbians to marry posed a threat to what he called the "natural" family formed by the union of a man and woman.

Opponents staged a huge rally earlier in the week, with about 60,000 people marching to Congress.

The law allows couples of the same sex to marry, adopt children and inherit property, among other rights and protections.

In Latin America, only Mexico City has legalized gay marriage, along with Portugal, Spain and a handful of other European nations, plus Canada. Same-sex civil unions are legal in Uruguay and some states in Brazil and Mexico.

2011 FORD F-SERIES SUPER DUTY PICKUP ALWAYS PREPARED!

First Look!
By Ken Chester, Jr.
Motor News Media Corp.

Boasting all-new powertrains with best-in-class performance and capabilities, the new Super Duty further underscores Ford's Built Ford Tough legacy. With class-leading torque, horsepower, fuel economy and towing and payload capability, the all-new Super Duty trucks are designed to deliver results day after day, year after year in the most demanding situations. No nonsense. And never any excuses.

"The 2011 Super Duty offers the widest array of solutions for the widest array of heavy-duty work truck customers," said Chris Brewer, chief engineer. "The Super Duty lineup offers a variety of body styles and powertrains, from diesel and gasoline engines, each with a new six-speed transmission, to pickup trucks and chassis cabs, each with the towing and payload capabilities that define Super Duty."

For 2011, Super Duty features both all-new diesel and gasoline engines. The new 6.7L Power Stroke V-8 turbocharged diesel provides best-in-class fuel economy and biodiesel compatibility up to B20. An all-new 6.2L V-8 gasoline engine also best-in-class with 85 more horsepower and 40 lbs-ft. more torque than the current 5.4L V-8 gas engine – combined with class-leading fuel economy and E85 compatibility.

Both new engines are mated to the all-new 6R140 heavy-duty TorqShift® six-speed automatic transmission, which has been optimized for the increased torque of the new diesel engine and the higher speeds of the new gas engine. The new transmission features SelectShift Automatic™ capability, with segment-exclusive Live Drive Power Take Off (PTO) available for diesels.

The all-new powertrains are the backbone of the new 2011 F-Series Super Duty, which has class-leading towing capability of 24,400 pounds and best-in-class payload capability of 6,520 pounds; the new Super Duty averages an 18 percent improvement for pickup models and up to 25 percent improvement for chassis cabs over outgoing model.

Putting all that power to work is what defines Super Duty. The 2011 Super Duty builds on its best-in-class towing and payload capability and also offers more towing options from inside the bed. New is the first-ever factory-installed and warranted fifth wheel and gooseneck substructure directly attached to the frame.

Ford's lauded Trailer Sway Control (TSC) system also joins the Super Duty lineup, giving those customers segment-first capability. TSC is integrated with AdvanceTrac® with Roll Stability Control™, which now is standard on all single rear wheel (SRW) configurations.

Inside, customers will benefit from a new reconfigurable flow-through console that improves the functionality of the truck. Storage space is increased about 60 percent, and at least 70 different configurations are possible. A 12-volt powerpoint is available at the rear of the console and another is located inside the main bin, which is lockable. A 110-volt power inverter is standard with all console configurations.

The seats of the new Super Duty are based off the well-received seats from the Ford F-150 and feature improved comfort and support, upgraded cloth and leather, and have available 10-way power adjustments. The front seats can be heated and cooled, and the driver's seat has manual lumbar support standard. Lockable, underseat storage also is available.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"How shall your houseless heads, and unfed sides,
Your looped and windowed raggedness, defend you
From seasons such as these?"
— William Shakespeare

Today's three-no-trump deal features nice defense by the Hackett twins of England, from the Forbo-Krommenie International Teams held in Holland.

Jason Hackett led a low heart to Justin's nine and declarer's king. Declarer played a spade to dummy's king, then a low club to her queen, which Jason ducked. A further spade forced Jason's ace, and he now made the thoughtful return of the club 10, knowing the distribution of the suit from Justin's initial count-signal.

On winning with dummy's king, declarer cashed the spade queen and next, trying to keep all options open, ducked a diamond. Jason won, cashed the club ace, and with dummy now dead, exited with his last diamond. South could now achieve only eight tricks.

At the other table the first two tricks went the same way. However, after the spade king held, declarer returned to hand at trick three with the diamond ace to play another spade. West won, performed, then returned the heart 10. (The diamond jack might have been a better play, but declarer can come home by ducking this and later finessing in diamonds against East.)

South won the second heart, played a club to the king, and cashed the spade queen. Then came a club to the queen. West had to duck to prevent declarer from scoring three club tricks, so declarer cashed his diamond king and exited with a club. Forced to win, West was employed and had to present declarer with his ninth trick in hearts.

ANSWER: After you have opened one no-trump, the simplest and most practical way to play your partner's double of a two-club overcall is as Stayman. You can then retain transfers and all the other methods you play in an uncontested auction. Accordingly, bid two hearts now.

Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, possession or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the deed of trust executed by Maria Celina Urias, a married woman as her sole and separate property, as Grantor to Alliance Title & Escrow Corp., as Successor Trustee, for the benefit and security of the Bank of New York Mellon f/k/a The Bank of New York, as Trustee for the holders of the Certificates, First Horizon Mortgage Pass-Through Certificates Series FHAMS 2006-FA2, by First Horizon Home Loans, a division of First Tennessee Bank National Association, Master Servicer, in its capacity as agent for the Trustee under the Pooling and Servicing Agreement as Successor Beneficiary, recorded February 13, 2006 as Instrument No. 2006-003509, Mortgage records of Twin Falls County, Idaho. THE ABOVE GRANTORS ARE NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506(4)(a), IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THEY ARE, OR ARE NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION.

The default for which this sale is to be made is failure to:

Make principal and interest payments as set forth on said Deed of Trust and Promissory Note. The original loan amount was $395,000.00 together with interest thereon at the rate of 7.2500% per annum, as evidenced in Promissory Note dated February 9, 2006. Payments are in default for the months of August 2009 through and including June 2010 in the amount of $2,614.19 per month and continuing each and every month thereafter until date of sale or reinstatement. The principal balance as of June 24, 2010 is $395,000.00 together with accrued and accruing interest thereon at the rate of 7.2500% per annum. The per diem is $78.46. In addition to the above, there is also due any late charges, advances, escrow collection fees, attorney fees, fees or costs associated with this foreclosure.

The balance owing as of this date on the obligation secured by said deed of trust is $395,000.00, excluding interest, costs and expenses actually incurred in enforcing the obligations thereunder or in this sale, as trustee's fees and/or reasonable attorney's fees as authorized in the promissory note secured by the aforementioned Deed of Trust.

Found Dogs:
A full grown black male Lab was found on 8th street in Buhl. He was wearing a collar but had no tags. Call to identify.

Avail. for Adoption:
Some of our doggies have been in the shelter for a long time. They anxiously await finding a place to call home.

Howie is a 7 month old Boxer male. He is tan and white and has a very cute face. He loves to run and play and will make a great companion.

Bailey is an adult border collie. She is black and white and has medium length hair. She is very affectionate and loves to be petted. She gets along well with other dogs including the little ones. Come meet her today and she will find a way into your heart!

Duke is a young adult rottweiler mix male. He is very handsome and loves to romp around with his sister Melody. He does well with children and other dogs. He and his sister have been in the shelter a long time. And must find a home soon.

Melody looks like a blue heeler mix. She came to the shelter with her brother Duke who looks like a rottweiler mix, so who knows what breed they really are. Melody is very pretty with dapple markings and patches on her eyes. She has been in the shelter for a long time! She needs to find her forever home soon.

Harley is a very handsome young adult male Lab. He has a silky medium length black coat. He is very friendly and loves to give kisses. He plays well with others.

Adoption fee is $75, inclds spaying/neutering and the first set of vaccinations.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 27-year-old woman who lives alone in a house I own. Sometimes strangers come to the house for various reasons – plumbers, electricians, etc. One question I am frequently asked is, "Do you live alone?" I just don't know how to answer that question without feeling like someone might take advantage of me. Can you help me and other single women by providing an appropriate response?

– CAUTOUS BACHELORETTE, HUNTSVILLE, ALA.

DEAR ABBY: Gladly. Your gut instincts are on target. I ran your question by my local police department. While I do not usually advise readers to lie, this is the exception that proves the rule. If you are asked if you live alone, reply: "No, I do not live alone. My boyfriend (brother, nephew, etc.) lives here too. Why do you ask?"

DEAR ABBY: My parents are in their 60s and very healthy. Dad has always been frugal. But ever since his retirement, saving a buck seems to be the only thing that makes him happy. Mom and Dad are comfortably well off, but all they seem to think about is saving money. My sibling and I are doing well enough that we don't need to rely on inheritance money. We would rather see them enjoy life than hold onto that money for us. Is Dad bored, or does he need a hobby?

It has reached the point where it's embarrassing to go anywhere with them because Dad berates waiters at restaurants and argues with store clerks over prices. When we're shopping, he "disappears" until everything is paid for. When I tell him I didn't expect him to pay, he gets defensive and denies he was hiding. What do you make of this?

– PULLING MY HAIR OUT

DEAR PULLING: I make of it that your parents are healthy, retired with less money at their disposal than – perhaps – they had counted on, and expect to live a long time. That may be what is driving your already frugal father's behavior.

Many retirees today are doing with far less because of the financial turmoil over the last few years. Some have had to postpone their retirement entirely.

Because your father is arguing with servers over the price of food – which is not their fault because they don't set the prices on the menu – take him to less expensive restaurants. And if his behavior when you're shopping embarrasses you, find other ways to spend time with him.

DEAR ABBY: I am a college student and four months pregnant. This is my first pregnancy and I'm having a baby shower. I recently heard that sometimes males are invited to the shower. I would like to know if this is appropriate and if I can do it. My mother thinks it's tacky, but this is 2010! Is it acceptable?

– JESSICA IN CONNECTICUT

DEAR JESSICA: Yes, it is acceptable. Allow me to quote from Emily Post's Etiquette, 17th Edition: "It is not uncommon for men to be included on baby shower guest lists these days – and some lucky guys become shower honorees. (An Emily Post Institute survey showed that over a third of respondents had attended showers where the guest list was mixed.)"

SUDOKU

Sudoku is a number placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Concepts Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.
