Afghan war funds clear Congress, despite leak

By Robert Burns
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — The House on Tuesday sent President Obama a major war-funding increase of $33 billion to pay for his troop surge in Afghanistan, unmoved by the leaking of classified documents that portray a military effort struggling between 2004 and 2009 against a strengthening insurgency. The House voted 308-114 to approve the spending boost for the additional 30,000 U.S. troops in Afghanistan. Other non-war provisions brought the total bill to nearly $59 billion.

From Obama on down, the disclosure of the documents was condemned by administration officials and military leaders on Tuesday, but the material failed to stir new anti-war sentiment. The bad news for the White House: A pervasive weariness with the war was still there — and possibly growing. Republicans in Congress still were strongly behind the boost in war spending, but there was unusually strong opposition from members of Obama's own Democratic Party. All but 12 of the "no" votes in the House came from Democrats.

ITD plans new canyon overlook on west side of bridge

By Nick Coltrain

A project 10 years in the making that aims to increase access to the canyon rim is finally underway.

The Snake River Canyon Overlook project broke ground Tuesday, with a single backhoe loader pushing and pulling concrete out of a sidewalk that will eventually be expanded to allow greater access to residents and visitors.

The $213,000 project, which is scheduled for completion in October, will close the main parking lot to the Buzz Langdon Visitor Center for its duration, according to the Idaho Transportation Department. But by the end, crews will build a 43-by-21-foot steel cantilever overlook jutting over the canyon rim, a new sidewalk nearby and improved Americans with Disabilities Act-approved access.

"I think it's going to be fantastic to have another overlook and yet another reason for people to visit and enjoy the canyon," said Shawn Barigar, president and CEO of the Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce. The chamber operates the visitor center, which will be open and accessible throughout construction. "ITD has been very helpful in keeping as much access as they can out there."

ITD spokesman Nathan Jerke said the project will include better-defined bike paths and pedestrian paths, also for safety reasons.

The design plans for the project were originally completed around the turn of the century, he said, and they languished as the process to green-light it marched on, Jerke said.

"It's been an extremely long, drawn-out process to get through this," Jerke said.

The project was originally conceived just to improve

ADA-approved access to the area, but extra cash allowed ITD to go ahead with an overlook as well, he said. The overlook will also be ADA-accessible, he said. The designers took great care to make sure its color matched the rustic color of the Perrine Bridge and the aesthetics of the canyon area, Jerke said.

County's value flat compared to last year

City sees slight drop; overall value ticks up

By Nick Coltrain
Times-News writer

Much to the surprise of no official, the total value of property within Twin Falls County is about the same as last year.

But the scant increase of $639,439 in full market value county-wide doesn't necessarily show a true increase in overall property values — last year in the city of Twin Falls alone, there was $68 million in new construction, hiding what may have otherwise been a decrease in value, said Twin Falls Assistant City Manager Travis Rothweiler.

"It kind of illustrates what everyone is seeing: property values are trending downward," he said.

He said the decrease in city value — about $40 million, or 1.7 percent from last year — was actually slightly less than what the city had anticipated when drafting its preliminary budget. As such, it won't affect its plans, Rothweiler said.

County Commissioner Terry Kramer said much the same thing from the county's perspective.

"I think it means we are sitting pretty flat, basically, which is what we've been saying," Kramer said. "That's not unexpected. It's a little less than we had originally anticipated."

The county will still need to pay for some increases in costs — such as what looks to be an 18 percent hike in employee health care costs that the county hopes to eat, he said.

Property tax rates still depend on how much money the city and county plan to spend this coming fiscal year. The commissioners say they hope for a fairly flat budget, which should mean similar rates to this year's. The city projects tax rates remaining the same.

Whooping cough rising in vaccine-averse Idaho

By Laura Lundquist
Times-News writer

Idaho health officials say whooping cough is on the rise. But their efforts to control it may be a struggle against apathy and those who question the necessity of immunization.

During the first half of 2010, the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare recorded 77 cases of whooping cough, almost double the number seen last year.

South Carolina, Michigan and California are also reporting high numbers.

California has an epidemic with six infant deaths among almost 1,500 cases. Officials are encouraging people to get their children immunized and to get a booster themselves.

Whooping cough, also known as pertussis, is a highly contagious respiratory disease that was a leading cause of childhood illness and death in the first half of the 20th century before a vaccine was found. Few alive today fear the disease, which is milder in adults and some-adults and sometimes unrecognized. It is most contagious before the coughing begins.

The cause of the resurgence is unknown but some, including the American Society of Pediatrics, say it's because fewer children are being immunized.

Idaho has had the fewest immunizations nationwide since at least 1997. According to the 2008 National Immunization Survey, around 35 percent of Idaho children younger than 3 years old are not immunized, 12 percent above the national average.

Emily Simnitt of Health and Welfare said the department doesn't know why Idaho is in last place.

"It could be a number of things," Simnitt said. "It could be parents not remembering to get all the shots for their children, or they're unsure about safety?"

Simnitt said the whooping cough vaccine is safe and of very low risk.

But Ingri Cassel, director of Vaccination Liberation, disagrees. Hers is one of a number of groups nationwide that contend immunizations aren't proven and shouldn't be mandatory for school children. In 2003, she unsuccessfully lobbied the Idaho Legislature to remove the school requirement for immunization.

To support her case, Cassel pointed to a 1997 whooping cough outbreak in Idaho's Panhandle. The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention found that 81 percent of the 253 people who came down with the disease had received full immunization. In a 1997 interview with Oregon Public Broadcasting, Spokane Health District epidemiologist Paul Stepak said most of the people were older and people lose their immunity as they age.

Based upon a review of the effects of vaccination laws, the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation's Public Health Law Research Program concluded in December that sufficient evidence supported the requirement for vaccinations for schoolchildren.

Cheryle Becker, public health division administrator for the South Central Public Health District, said the district's offices in Blaine and Jerome counties saw a huge decrease in the number of people being immunized for all diseases starting in May. But, she said, that's when Health and Welfare closed its own offices in those counties, so confusion may explain the drop.

"It's down about half," Becker said. "We're looking into possible reasons but people have told us they didn't know we were still open."

Becker said she's trying to let people in those areas know they can still be immunized and should be.

Buhl's pool broken into twice

By Blair Koch

Times-News correspondent

BUHL — Nearly a month apart, the Buhl City Pool was broken into twice, with cash stolen both times.

The first nighttime heist took place on June 30, with about $140 taken from a locked room on the vicinity.

The latest break-in happened Sunday night and was reported Monday. Only about $40 cash was taken, but a cash register and telephone were thrown into the pool.

The Buhl City Council on Monday discussed the break-ins and how to prevent them.

Members were especially concerned about the vandalism that occurred during the second incident.

Council President Regie Finney, leading the meeting because Mayor Tom McCauley wasn't present, went over some estimates for purchasing a floor safe — more than $1,000 to cut the concrete and purchase a safe, he said.

"We'll budget for this," Finney said, pointing out the city will soon set the coming fiscal year's budget.

Councilman Bob Linderman suggested the city add lights around the pool's building.

"Dark shadows make it pretty convenient for people," said Linderman.

Water Department Supervisor Jeff Huntington told the council that after the first break-in he welded another lock to the door. But it was broken during the second break-in.

"I thought it was strong enough," Huntington said.

On a positive note, Huntington reported that fingerprints were lifted from the scene.

Councilwoman Pam McClain suggested the city offer a reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the thieves. Police Chief Ron Romero will be instructed to look into posting the reward with Twin Falls County Crime Stoppers.

In the meantime, the process of handling cash collected from daily operations has changed. Instead of keeping petty cash on site for the following day, all money will be taken from the pool and returned to the facility the next morning.

Lose weight on a treadmill? Fat chance

What idiot put calorie counters on treadmills?

There you are, on the brink of a coronary event after what seems like hours aboard your NordicTrack, and you look down at the digital display.

You've burned 10.2 calories.

On Saturday night, my wife and I went to the rodeo in Nampa. I drank a single 16-ounce cup of Coors Light, which contained 136 calories.

Took me 45 minutes Sunday to erase that on the treadmill.

But then again, treadmills have long been instruments of torture. The devices were installed in English jails following a 1779 prison reform act, according to John Linehard, professor emeritus of mechanical engineering and history at the University of Houston. That law stipulated that prisoners should be given "labor of the hardest and most servile kind in which drudgery is chiefly required and where the work is little liable to be spoiled by ignorance, neglect, or obstinacy ..."

YOU DON'T SAY

That worked OK in the boom economy of the early Industrial Revolution. But England had out-of-work laborers on her hands after the Napoleonic Wars, according to Linehard. She could hardly let convicts take jobs, no matter how menial, away from citizens.

So Sir William Cubitt, a noted 19th-century civil engineer, offered a solution. He designed a treadmill for English prisons to generate power for mills. It looked like a very wide paddle wheel. Workers held on to a bar and climbed the paddle blades. It was like walking upstairs for hours on end.

The convicts had to keep lifting their legs. Gravity gave them no choice.

A typical treadmill shift

lasted eight hours, Linehard says. Workers spent 40 percent of that time resting, but that's a lot worse than it sounds. It meant raising the lower half of their bodies 11,000 feet (2.1 miles) per day.

The English put vertical separators between prisoners in 1838. Each was to labor in isolation, repenting his crimes and purifying himself through toil, according to Linehard. Those treadmills were still operating into the 20th century. Oscar Wilde, sent to prison for gross indecency in 1895, worked on one. When he came out, he wrote about it in the "Ballad of Reading Gaol."

"We banged the tins, and bawled the hymns And sweated on the mill, But in the heart of every man Terror was lying still"

That's about right. But on the upside, your treadmill may be lying to you about calories. The machines use standard formulas to figure out the number of calories burned, and those formulas don't account for body-fat percentage and fitness level.

Writing on About.com, fitness writer Christine Luft explains it this way:

"... if a 160-pound woman with 35 percent body fat and a 160-pound woman with 20 percent body fat are both running at a 10-minute/mile pace, the treadmill will display the same amount of calories burned. However, the woman with the lower body fat and more muscle mass is actually burning more calories."

How is that fair? The skinnier gal doesn't need to burn more calories.

Wilde understood that, long before he was sent to the treadmill.

"To get back my youth I would do anything in the world," he explained. "Except take exercise, get up early and be respectable."

So gimme another Coors Light.

Camas Co. fair, rodeo to return this week

Times-News

The Camas County Fair and Rodeo kicks off today with the 4-H Horse Show at the McLam residence, just a few miles southwest of Fairfield.

The event, themed “Lost in the ’50s,” will feature the second Idaho Cowboys Association rodeo since the event resumed last year;

Fairfield hadn’t had a rodeo in nearly four decades before 2009.

The grand marshal of Saturday’s parade will be Beulah Baldwin, born Dec. 1, 1924, in a sod house in Logan County, Kan. She moved to Fairfield in 1950, where she married rancher Lon Baldwin in 1952, according to biographical information submitted to the fair.

Crime watch: TFPD bomb squad disposes of multiple explosives

Times-News

One area man is lucky that his day didn’t end with a bang.

The Twin Falls Police Department bomb squad disposed of four pipe bombs found four miles southwest of Twin Falls Tuesday. According to Twin Falls County Sheriff’s Office spokeswoman Lori Stewart, a landlord was cleaning up around his rental property in a rural part of the county, and upon returning home, he discovered what he thought were pipe bombs.

TFPD Officer Luke Allen, a bomb squad technician, said the squad confirmed that the devices were bombs, around five inches in length.

“There were some wires consistent with electrical blasting caps,” Allen said, adding that the bombs were “old and rusty” and not made recently.

The Southern Idaho Regional Communications

Center dispatched sheriff’s deputies at 1:31 p.m. TFPD was called in for assistance at 2:15 p.m.

The TFPD bomb squad evacuated residents within one mile of the bombs’ location prior to “disrupting” them.

The Twin Falls County Sheriff’s Office will handle any further investigation.

Allen added that people who find suspected explosive devices should avoid them and immediately call their local law enforcement agency. The public may also contact Allen with any questions at 735-7358.

Wendell shooting ruled accidental

A non-fatal shooting near Wendell last week was ruled accidental, Gooding County Sheriff Shaun Gough said Tuesday.

Erica Garcia, of Wendell, was shot in the stomach with a .22-caliber rifle at 3302 S. 1600 E., southwest of Wendell, on Thursday.

Garcia was taken to a Boise hospital via air ambulance that night, where Boise police officers interviewed her and reported back to Gough.

Garcia told police that she picked up the rifle and it discharged accidentally, Gough said. No one else was found to be in the vicinity of the woman or the gun.

In debate before the vote, Rep. Jim McGovern, D-Mass., said the leaked documents revealed corruption and incompetence in the Afghanistan government.

“We’re told we can’t extend unemployment or pay to keep cops on the beat or teachers in the classroom, but we’re asked to borrow another $33 billion for nation-building in Afghanistan,” McGovern said.

At a Senate hearing on prospects for a political settlement of the Afghan conflict, there was scant mention of the leaked material, posted on the website of the whistleblower group WikiLeaks, but there were repeated expressions of frustration over the direction of the fighting.

Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., who has questioned the realism of U.S. goals in Afghanistan though he supports the war, pointedly asked why the Taliban, with fewer resources and smaller numbers, can field fighters who are more committed to winning than are Afghan soldiers.

ments explain why, last year, he undertook an in-depth review of the war and developed a new strategy.

“We’ve substantially increased our commitment there, insisted upon greater accountability from our partners in Afghanistan and Pakistan, developed a new strategy that can work and put in place a team, including one of our finest generals, to execute that plan,” Obama said. “Now we have to see that strategy through.”

Utah court reverses polygamist leader's convictions

By Jennifer Dobner
Associated Press writer

SALT LAKE CITY — The Utah Supreme Court on Tuesday reversed the convictions of polygamist leader Warren Jeffs and ordered a new trial, saying a jury received incorrect instructions before considering his role in the 2001 nuptials of a 14-year-old girl and her 19-year-old cousin.

Jeffs, 54, was convicted in 2007 of two counts of first-degree felony rape as an accomplice. He is serving two consecutive terms of five years to life in the Utah

State Prison.

“We are thrilled that the Supreme Court had the courage to exonerate, or at least to find that legal errors were made, so that Mr. Jeffs, obviously a very unpopular figure in the state of Utah, could have his conviction overturned,” defense attorney Wally Budgen said.

Assistant Utah Attorney General Laura DuPaix said the state maintains its position that Jeffs used his religious authority to force an underage girl to marry and have sex.

“The court said today that at least part of our legal reasoning was misguided, we accept that and we think that’s unfortunate,” DuPaix said. “We do think that it will make it a little more difficult to prosecute men like Warren Jeffs who are forcing young girls in to unwanted marriages.”

She said no decision has been made about whether to prosecute Jeffs again. Meanwhile, authorities in Texas are trying to get him sent there to face charges.

Jeffs is head of the Fundamentalist Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day

Jeffs

Saints. The sect, whose estimated 10,000 members live mostly on the Utah-Arizona state line, practices polygamy in marriages arranged by church leaders. Some marriages have involved underage girls to older men.

Jeffs performed the religious marriage of Elissa Wall and Allen Steed in a Caliente, Nev., motel and later counseled Wall to be obedient and give her “mind, body and soul” to her husband in an effort to make an unhappy marriage work.

During the trial and later in her book, “Stolen Innocence,” Wall said she objected to the marriage and was forced into sexual relations with her husband.

The Associated Press does not typically name victims of alleged sexual assault, but Wall has frequently spoken publicly about the case.

In its ruling Tuesday, the court agreed with defense attorneys who argued that jurors should not have been told to decide whether Wall’s marital relations were consensual based on Jeffs’ actions and his role as her religious leader. That essentially equates Jeffs with Steed — the person who allegedly has had nonconsensual sex.

Justices said prosecutors were wrong to make that leap.

“Only after there is a determination that an offense has been committed can the law impose liability on another party who ‘solicited, request, commanded, encouraged or intentionally aided’ in the commission of that offense,” the court’s opinion states.

Steed was charged with rape the day after Jeffs’ September 2007 conviction, but the case has languished and it’s unclear how it might now proceed.

Study: Idaho passenger car drivers paying too much for highways

By John Miller
Associated Press writer

BOISE — Passenger car drivers pay a disproportionate share of Idaho highway maintenance costs compared with big trucks, according to a study released Tuesday that state leaders predict could become a political “hot potato.”

The study concludes that cars are overpaying by 8 percent, while heavy trucks that do more damage underpay by 14 percent, according to one scenario. In another scenario, the discrepancy is wider, with cars overpaying by 26 percent and trucks underpaying by 27 percent.

The study was completed by consultants from Richland, Wash.-based Battelle for a 15-member task force assembled by Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter to investigate how to raise money for Idaho roads. It follows a battle in the 2009 Legislature, when Otter failed to convince lawmakers to boost registration fees and the gas tax.

Lt. Gov. Brad Little, the task force chairman, suggested Tuesday that recommendations resulting from the study to recalibrate the funding balance between cars and big trucks could again become the subject of heated debate.

“It looks like a hot potato,” Little said.

A task force subcommittee investigating how highway costs are divided up will now review the study’s findings into August, before making recommendations to the full panel in about a month.

Already, however, it’s become political fodder.

Keith Allred, Democratic candidate for governor, said the study underscores his contention that Otter was wrong in 2009 to attempt to boost truck registrations by 5 percent, while hiking fees for passenger cars significantly more than that.

“Butch Otter puts the special interests who have contributed to his campaigns ahead of the interests of everyday Idahoans,” Allred said in a statement Tuesday.

Otter’s 2009 plan also called for studying whether trucks were paying their fair share.

Jon Hanian, a spokesman for Otter, didn’t immediately return a phone call.

The study concludes that passenger car drivers were actually underpaying for roads in 1994, compared with big trucks. But over the last 16 years, that relationship has been reversed, said Patrick Balducci, one of the study’s authors.

There’s a trend toward “more and more overpayment on the part of automo-

PANEL: HIKING GAS TAX BY PENNY IS TOP PICK

BOISE — A panel investigating how to shore up Idaho highway funding ranks boosting the gas tax by a penny as its top pick.

The 15-member Governor’s Transportation Funding Task Force says the hike, from 25 cents, would raise $8.2 million annually to bolster road and bridge maintenance.

The panel’s other top choices, released Tuesday, include a proposed 1 percent sales tax on fuel to raise $22.5 million annually, as well as a plan to index the fuel tax to inflation.

Had that been done since 1996, drivers would pay a 34-cent tax per gallon now, producing $74 million for roads.

— The Associated Press

biles and pickup trucks, and more underpayment by combination trucks,” Balducci said. “On average, an 80,000-pound truck is going to do... more damage than lighter vehicles.”

One reason for Idaho’s funding imbalance dates to 2000, when a judge ruled the state’s two-tiered registration system was unconstitutional because it gave agriculture and resource truckers an unfair advantage over out-of-state haulers.

The current system, adopted by lawmakers in 2000 along with a $27 million settlement with the American

Trucking Association, charges truckers a flat fee based on a range of miles the trucks run. That’s cost Idaho nearly $12 million annually, the Idaho Transportation Department estimates.

Don’t be ‘deliberate’ in recovering taxes from deadbeats

There are no sure things in government, but there are a few pretty good bets. And one of them is that if you hire a tax auditor, he or she will more than pay for himself or herself.

In a state and during a year when generating additional tax revenue is absolutely critical, the Idaho Tax Commission should have a neon “help-wanted” sign flashing above the front door.

Not so much. Officials in the administration of Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter say they’ll continue to take a “cautious, deliberate approach” to hiring new tax collectors.

That’s a terrible idea. Temporary auditors brought on board by the tax commission generated a 15-to-1 return in fiscal 2010.

Dan John, tax policy manager for the commission, told the Lewiston Tribune that the temps collected more than $30 million last year. All of that was tax revenue that hadn’t been paid voluntarily.

Funding for tax auditors has been a touchy subject since 2008, when 50 temporary auditors and tax collectors were laid off the day before Christmas. The move saved less than $1 million, but it was estimated that state tax collections would drop by $7.5 million.

In response, the Legislature added $425,000 to the fiscal 2010 budget to rehire those workers. Otter used $1.5 million in discretionary funds to offset the effects of further budget cuts.

When the 2011 budget was set, the tax commission got $560,000 to fill 10 vacant positions, plus another $1.54 million to hire 43 temporary compliance workers — phased in throughout the fiscal year. The initial hires have to generate a 7-to-1 return on investment or funding for future help won’t be approved.

“We’re obviously pleased that we’re seeing that kind of return, but we need to be cognizant of the fact that those numbers will diminish as we go along,” Otter spokesman Jon Hanian told the Tribune. “That’s why the governor has said we’re going to take a quarterly approach. As we see continued benefit, we’ll look for additional resources.”

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Keith Allred called that what it is: penny-wise and pound-foolish.

“We have solid evidence on what the return is already,” he told the Lewiston newspaper. “We did this same thing in 2003 and the return was 13-to-1. I’ve never seen a policy idea that had sounder evidence behind it. The evidence is staring us in the face, but because Otter fails to see it we’ve lost more than $100 million to tax deadbeats.”

Let’s put that into context: $100 million represents 78 percent of the amount — $128 million — by which the Legislature cut state support for public schools this year.

There’s no reason for the Otter administration to be fiscally cautious about hiring more tax auditors.

Our view:

With very little political pain, Gov. C.L. ‘Butch’ Otter could speed up the hiring of more tax auditors for the Idaho Tax Commission. So why doesn’t he?

What do you think?

We welcome viewpoints from our readers on this and other issues.

Dems digging a deep political hole

If legislation were dirt, Democrats would have piled up a mountain of it over the past 18 months, digging themselves in a deep political hole in the process.

Gary Andres

The House that Nancy (Pelosi) built continues to ramrod new policies through the legislative process, hoping the bustle will salve America’s sour mood. Senate Democrats move a little more slowly due to different institutional rules, yet their hearts are in the same place: the more legislative production, the better.

That’s what legislators do, after all. New laws are like seed corn, intended to grow public support.

But it’s not working. The congressional majority keeps passing initiatives they say respond to the public’s desire for “change.” Yet the combination of current liberal initiatives and uncertainty about future policies now seriously hampers economic growth and business risk-taking. It’s also taking a toll on congressional standing with voters.

Gallup reinforced this point recently, reporting that Congress’s job-approval rate hovered near an all-time low of 20 percent.

Perceived liberalism in the lawmaking process may also impact Americans’ ideological self-identification. Gallup issued a separate study recently, demonstrating a significant rise in the number of Americans describing themselves as conservatives since the 2008 election.

Near record numbers now also say that the Democratic Party is “too liberal.”

Congressional Democrats must have heavy heads not to hear and see all this.

Weighed down with tin ears and political blinders, they think Americans want what they’re selling.

Independents worry that “productive” translates to ideologically indulgent, like playing political roulette with other people’s money. In fact, Gallup tracking data on ideology shows a significant rise in conservatism among independents over the last two years. And some point to the Democratic agenda as a primary cause of this shift.

Michael Boland, a former senior House GOP leadership aide, who now runs Dome Advisors, a Washington-based research company for institutional investors, sent out an analysis to his clients last week that sums up how Democrats’ hyperactive legislating and spending impacts independent voters.

“What motivates Democrats to push an agenda that pushes the independents away?” Boland asks. “Democrats believe in their agenda. They believe it is why they were elected. They believe every one of their voters deserves his or her very own subsection in their city-size 2,000-plus page ‘comprehensive’ bills on federal stimulus spending, health care, energy, environment and banking. Democrats believe their body of work will boost their electoral prospects.”

In other words, every problem deserves a federal government fix using your money.

Their agenda is not only pushing independents away. It’s also terrifying the folks creating jobs in this country — American businesses.

Ivan Seidenberg, Verizon CEO, blistered the Democrats in a recent speech at the Economic Club of Washington.

“We have become somewhat troubled by a growing disconnect between Washington and the business community that is harming our ability to expand the economy and grow private-sector jobs in the U.S.,” said Seidenberg.

Writing about the Seidenberg speech, the Wall Street Journal’s Kimberly Strassel said the business community now suffers from a serious case of “buyers remorse” when it comes to Democrats in Congress.

Democrats argue we can get the economy humming again if more people get government employment.

That’s an unsustainable and misguided goal.

CNBC’s Jim Cramer concurred. “With no employment growth, and a fear that Washington’s anti-stock agenda will crimp the earnings of all kinds of companies across the board, the sense of doom and gloom, the Jimmy Carter-esque malaise, is almost palpable,” he said.

Stock market jitters and volatility this past week support that verdict.

Yet it’s more than just the legislative substance that bothers independents, business leaders and others. It’s also the congressional style. House Democrats typically pass every major bill on near party-line votes.

Strategies like this may thrill Democratic partisans, but it leaves a majority wondering why the process is so divisive and polarized.

Slowing down and building more consensus would improve the Democrats’ approval numbers. Yet that would mean modifying their agenda, a set of programs they want to enact before voters take away these politicians’ shovels in November.

Tea Party movement is a house divided

Leaders of the Tea Party movement reacted angrily to the NAACP’s call for the movement to purge “racist elements” from its ranks. Then, a few days later, one of the movement’s biggest organizations did precisely what the NAACP advised.

Lesson: It’s easier to appreciate an idea after you’ve decided that it was your idea in the first place.

The National Tea Party Federation, an alliance of 85 member and affiliated organizations, according to their website, expelled its most prominent faction, the Tea Party Express. That move came after the Express’ spokesman Mark Williams offered the world a breath-taking example of the sort of racism that Tea Party leaders had long denied was much of a problem — except maybe in liberal groups like the NAACP.

Williams’ offense came in a satirical jab he posted on his blog, aimed at Ben Jealous, president of the organization formally known as the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. The satire was in the form of a letter from what

Clarence Page

Williams called “Colored People” to President Abraham Lincoln. Williams’ humor only went further downhill from there.

Lesson: If you care about your public image, do not fill your spokesman position with a nutty political talk show host.

This internal Tea Party schism should be interesting. Tea Party Express has some muscle behind it. Its well-attended national bus tours feature big names like Sarah Palin, Ann Coulter and “Joe the Plumber” Wurzelbacher — and raise big money for conservative candidates.

The Wilson schism illustrates what Matthew Continetti, associate editor of the conservative Weekly Standard, characterized in a recent cover story as “The Two Faces of the Tea Party” as represented by two cable TV stars, CNBC’s Rick Santelli and Fox News’ Glenn Beck.

Santelli probably ignited the Tea Party movement from the floor of the Chicago Mercantile Exchange in February 2009. He called for protests against what he saw as the moral hazards in President Obama’s Homeowner Affordability and Stability Plan.

Despite striking differences between Santelli and Beck, who embodies the insane TV anchor Howard “Mad as Hell” Beale in the movie “Network,” the two men easily represent what Continetti calls “the dual nature of conservative populism.”

Unlike Beck’s crowd, Santelli did not call Obama a “socialist” or challenge the president’s legitimacy or patriotism. He even wrote a month after his on-air rant that “I hope that the president and the final stimulus plan succeed” because “I love my country.” He may not get his own radio talk show with sensible talk like that, but he captures the best of this country’s optimistic, even-handed spirit.

It’s not hard to imagine Santelli’s conservatism as “easily integrated into a conservative Republican party” as Ronald Reagan’s in the 1980s, Continetti writes, “with an affirmative agenda of spending cuts, low taxes, entitlement reform and free trade.” Maybe not. But in the meantime, the Grand Old Party has to wrestle with the Beck style — as paranoid, pugnacious and polarizing as that which cost Barry Goldwater a landslide loss in the 1964 presidential race.

Henry Olsen, vice president at the conservative American Enterprise Institute, also describes a divide within the Tea Party and other populist movements from America’s past. “The challenge for conservatives,” Olson concludes, “is to propose alternatives that offer a real change of direction without seeming too radical.” So true.

With so much at stake the Tea Party movement should quietly thank the NAACP for doing them a favor. The Tea Party needs to purge embarrassments like Williams from their ranks, not just to please the NAACP, but for the sake of their movement’s future.

Nonstop political bickering tearing up neighborhoods

A battle is raging in the suburbs of San Antonio. Genial residents are manning picket fence parapets on the manicured lawns of Alamo Heights, Olmos Park and Terrell Hills.

Neighbor is setting upon neighbor beneath live oak and magnolia trees thriving from spring rains.

Their weapons of choice are yard signs — durable, two-sided Coroplast yard signs, black with white lettering, carrying two distinct political messages.

One began to appear last summer, austere declaring in lower-case letters, “no socialism.” The other started popping up in recent weeks with a belated yet similarly simple response: “no selfishness.”

This is exactly what our nation does not need.

Jonathan Guzwitz

The American people already endure what has become a permanent political campaign. In the recent past, you could count on being solicited for your money — or having your opinion sought as a guise for soliciting your money — during only a few weeks every two or four years. Now officeholders and challengers, the Democratic and Republican parties and all their ancillary political action and leadership committees operate on a constant cycle, 365 days a year, every year.

As if that barrage of phone calls and junk mail of the old-fashioned and digital varieties weren’t bad enough, citizens are enlisting as mercenaries to politically mobilize their neighborhoods. It used to be that political yard signs went up for a few weeks before primary elections and for the two months between Labor Day and Election Day.

Those were the official political seasons, during which it was permissible to turn your yard into an arsenal for the political bureaucracy. When the elections were over, if the flimsy cardboard had survived the elements, the signs came down. So did whatever divisions happened to separate neighbor from neighbor.

But like the hydrogen bomb wedded to the intercontinental ballistic missile, technology in the form of indestructible plastic has joined with the permanent campaign to create a weapon capable of straining neighborly relations on a more or less constant basis. No matter where your political allegiance may lie, and mine is unabashedly with the “no socialism” folks, this is a bad thing.

The bumper sticker long ago turned public thoroughfares into political hot zones.

Interestingly, bumper sticker proliferation correlates with the decline of the friendly wave between drivers and its replacement by the one-finger salute. Do we really want that kind of political confrontation on residential streets where kids ride bikes and couples take strolls?

“Sorry, Timmy, I can’t come over to play on your Xbox 360. Dad says you’re a socialist.” Or, “Look at the beautiful begonias the Selfish have planted.”

Both the “no socialism” and the “no selfishness” forces have Facebook pages. The “no socialism” brigades also have a website. Read the comments of foot soldiers in both camps, and you can see their fervent hope to escalate the conflict with more and bigger signs. “Hope this goes national!!!!” writes one enthusiastic volunteer.

Here’s one person hoping it doesn’t. Cable television, the Internet and the opinion pages of newspapers are already politically militarized zones. Our front yards don’t need permanent political occupation as well.

There’s a buck to be made here, if not by the sellers of the signs, then by the printers of the signs or — at the end of the day — by Coroplast. So it’s probably futile to plead with both sides to abide by a cease fire. But here’s the plea anyway: end the escalation, visit with the people over the hedge, enjoy your summer, fly the Stars and Stripes on the Fourth of July, and take down your signs until Labor Day.

Vote the bums out, whoever you may think the bums might be. Bring an end to socialism and selfishness. But love your neighbor.

Can drinking alcohol be good for you?

As California contemplates legalizing the sale of marijuana, the real war over intoxicants in this country is, as always, over alcohol.

Since Prohibition ended in 1933 with the 21st Amendment to the Constitution — which repealed the 18th Amendment authorizing the ban on alcohol — states, counties and municipalities have see-sawed back and forth over alcohol sales. States are still passing laws on the sale of alcohol on Sundays, and municipalities and counties are still voting on whether to permit local alcohol purchases.

But as an addiction psychologist and alcohol epidemiologist, I am more interested in another debate over alcohol: whether it can be good for you. This issue arises every five years as the United States issues new dietary guidelines, including for alcohol consumption. In 1990, the Dietary Guidelines for Americans firmly declared that alcohol “has no net health benefit, is linked with many health problems, is the cause of many accidents and can lead to addiction. Their consumption is not recommended.”

But in 1995, based on the results of studies identifying subjects who drank and did not drink and then following their health outcomes over time, the guidelines modestly declared — amid a sea of information about the dangers of drinking — that “alcoholic beverages have been used to enhance the enjoyment of meals by many societies throughout human history” and that “current evidence suggests that moderate drinking ... is associated with a lower risk for coronary heart disease in some individuals.”

A firestorm resulted over these words, led by the late Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., a notorious teetotaler. Somehow, the section came through intact, to the amazement of a member of the committee writing the guidelines, Marion Nestle, then-chairwoman of the Department of Nutrition, Food Studies and Public Health at New York University. “It’s a miracle, a miracle,” she told the New York Times. “It is a triumph of science and reason over politics. The committee process was very contentious, but the outcome makes the fuss seem worthwhile.”

Well, the same forces are back doing battle for the 2010 edition of the guidelines. In the intervening years, quite a bit of evidence has accumulated to take the statement of alcohol’s benefits even further. The 2010 guidelines’ alcohol section group is headed by epidemiologist Eric Rimm of Harvard Medical School, where he is a co-director of the Health Professionals Follow-Up Study that has tracked doctors’ and nurses’ health outcomes and drinking for decades. But the opposition this time around is not teetotaler Southern politicians.

According to the experts charged with creating the alcohol section, strong evidence indicates that “the lowest mortality risk for men and women (occurs) at the average level of one to two drinks per day, (and) is likely due to the protective effects of moderate alcohol consumption on CHD (coronary heart disease), diabetes and ischemic stroke as summarized in this chapter.”

In other words, people who have a couple of drinks daily live the longest! Adding what for some is insult to injury, the group also noted: “Moderate evidence suggests that compared to non-drinkers, individuals who drink moderately have a slower cognitive decline with age.” Moderate drinkers not only live longer, they are more alert while doing so!

Despite these proposed additions to the guidelines, the overwhelming burden of the alcohol section is to portray the negative health, psychological and addictive effects of alcohol. But this has not been enough to avoid a sharp blowback from medical, public health and addiction professionals, who have started a campaign to limit these recommendations out of a fear their impact “would likely be to encourage greater daily consumption of alcohol, discourage appropriate caution about using alcohol for health benefits, and open the door for the alcohol industry to misrepresent federal alcohol consumption guidelines to consumers.”

And so it goes — the war over alcohol in America continues ad infinitum.

Stanton Peele, an addiction and alcohol expert, is the author of “7 Tools to Beat Addiction.” He wrote this commentary for the Los Angeles Times.

Horse Liniment Erases Pain

HALEAH, FL — An ingredient often used to treat inflammation in race horse legs, is now back on the market in its original doctor recommended formula.

According to a national drug store survey, the formula at one time became so popular that it rose to the top of pharmacy sales for topical pain relievers. But the company marketing the product at the time changed the formula and sales plummeted. The inventors of the original formula have brought it back under the trade name ARTH ARREST and says it can relieve pain for millions.

ARTH ARREST works by a dual mechanism whereby one ingredient relieves pain immediately, while a second ingredient seeks out and destroys the pain messenger signal before it can be sent to the brain. Considered a medical miracle by some, the ARTH ARREST formula is useful in the treatment of painful disorders ranging from minor aches and pains to more serious conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, tendonitis, and more.

ARTH ARREST is available in a convenient roll-on applicator at pharmacies without a prescription or call 1-800-339-3301. Now at:

Neuhoff, DISH reach programming agreement

By Joshua Palmer
Times-News writer

Neuhoff Communication, owner and operator of KMVT, CW, My TV and Mexicanal in southern Idaho, reached an agreement Tuesday with the DISH Network to provide programming via satellite TV. The agreement ends heated negotiations between the two companies that lasted nearly a year. During that time, KMVT aired messages on its broadcast stations and on its website that alleged the DISH Network was strong-arming the station into an agreement, while DISH sent mailers to residents in south-central Idaho criticizing KMVT for seeking an “unreasonable” price hike. The debate between the two companies revolves around the 1992 Cable Act, which allows local broadcast stations to determine how cable and satellite TV providers retransmit programming.

Chris Pruitt, general manager and programming director for KMVT, said he could not disclose details of the negotiations, citing confidentiality agreements tied to the recently signed contract. “About all I can say is that we did reach an agreement,” he said. KMVT publicly criticized DISH prior to the agreement Tuesday, telling viewers on its website and through televised advertisements that it pays the satellite TV company more than $5 a month for local stations and that KMVT was asking Dish Network to share less than 2 cents a day of the money. “Although negotiations are continuing, we want you to be aware of the facts and prepared for the possibility of having to receive KMVT via an alternate method,” the station wrote on its website. DISH shot back, saying “It is unfortunate that Neuhoff is scrolling information during local TV broadcasts and posting information on KMVT’s website about our ongoing contract negotiations, which are a normal part of our business,” said Dave Shull, senior vice president of programming for DISH Network. He said Neuhoff was asking for a rate increase of more than 350 percent, despite DISH’s offer being “fair and consistent with the market rates.” However, DISH was also sending mailers to residents of south-central Idaho that alleged KMVT was demanding a 350 percent increase — something that would raise rates for DISH customers. DISH has negotiated contracts with more than 1,000 local broadcast stations, some of which claimed in past statements still listed online that they were forced into the agreement. The interior of the 2011 Ford Explorer.

AP photo

By Dee-Ann Durbin
Associated Press writer

DEARBORN, Mich. — The Ford Explorer used to be one of the best-selling vehicles in the U.S., but as demand for big, truck-like SUVs fell, so did its sales. Now Ford is trying to breathe new life into the Explorer by reinventing it as a more car-like, fuel-efficient utility. Ford begins a marketing campaign Monday for the 2011 Ford Explorer, which will be in dealerships this winter. The automaker promises a utility vehicle with seating for seven that has similar fuel economy to a Toyota Camry sedan. At $28,190, the base price is also $1,000 less than the 2010 Explorer. It’s priced competitively, midway between the Toyota 4Runner and Jeep Grand Cherokee. The new Explorer has been completely redesigned. The most obvious difference: It’s built on a car platform, not a truck one, so it sits lower to the ground and has a smoother, more fuel-efficient ride. The new Explorer shares a platform with the Taurus X sedan. Ford is taking a risk with an important vehicle, which is Ford’s best-known product after the Mustang. Some buyers looking for a truck-like SUV will be disappointed. The new Explorer will have less towing capacity than the outgoing model — 5,000 pounds, versus 7,115 pounds — and it won’t offer a V-8 engine. “Ford’s challenge is to match the idea of the Explorer to this product,” said Aaron Bragman, an analyst with IHS Automotive. “It’s a good test for Ford to determine what an SUV is these days.” Trends in the market suggest most buyers aren’t looking for the power of traditional SUVs and would prefer a more fuel-efficient vehicle. Ford’s top U.S. sales analyst George Pipas said that a decade ago, 85 percent of all SUVs sold were truck-based; last year, just 23 percent were. See EXPLORER, Business 2

Ford Motor Company unveils the 2011 Ford Explorer during a news conference in New York. The Ford Explorer, the hulking family-hauler that helped launch the SUV boom in the early 1990s, is back. And it hopes to define a new generation of more streamlined, fuel-efficient sport utility vehicles.

Survey: Workers rarely unplug from the office

By Lorraine Mirabella
The Baltimore Sun

A growing number of American workers can’t seem to put down their BlackBerrys, laptops and iPads and disconnect — even if they’re sitting on a beach or sailing the seas aboard a cruise ship. And many of those who vow to unplug and get away from it all often return from vacation burned out, never really managing to decompress. A survey released recently by Expedia.com showed that 55 percent of workers come back from time off without feeling rejuvenated, and others struggle to cope with work-related stress while they’re away. In a separate survey, staffing firm Robert Half International found that 69 percent of financial executives check in with the office at least once or twice a week while on vacation. Americans are not only working more during office hours but also paying more attention to their jobs during vacations, according to workplace experts and recent studies. “It used to be that work was like a belly button: You were either in or out,” said Alan Langlieb, a Baltimore psychiatrist and business consultant and former director of Workplace Psychiatry at the Johns Hopkins University. “And now, for most people who work, they’re always in.” Langlieb added that “technology allows you to be at work 24 hours a day anyplace in the world.” He said: “You end up seeing nonstop work where there’s never really an off period.” The line between work and leisure has been blurring for years, a trend exacerbated by the recession and global economic pressures, experts say. Staffing cuts have left heavier workloads for employees who remain. And some workers, worried about layoffs, believe they have to forgo breaks or vacations. “Staffs have been cut pretty thin, and there’s more on each person’s plate to handle day in and day out. Personal care provider sentenced for Medicaid fraud

Bonnors Ferry resident Coral Mouser was sentenced Tuesday for Medicaid provider fraud, a felony, Attorney General Lawrence Wasden said. First District Judge Benjamin Simpson sentenced Mouser to five years in prison, imposed a $5,000 fine and ordered her to pay restitution. The Court suspended the sentence and ordered Mouser to serve 45 days in jail and to pay $12,465 in restitution to the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare. Mouser, 35, a personal care provider, pleaded guilty on May 24. By pleading guilty, Mouser admitted to submitting progress notes on clients for care in their homes that she did not provide. She was then paid based on the fraudulent progress notes causing a loss to the Idaho Medicaid Program. Medicaid uses state and federal taxpayer dollars to provide health care for more than 200,000 Idaho residents who are poor, disabled or elderly.

Gov. Otter to address construction industry

BOISE — Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter will help the Idaho Business Review present the 2010 Top Project awards. The presentation will highlight nine projects from around the state as part of the Idaho Business Review’s annual Top Projects celebration. Top Project collects all the projects that were started or completed during the previous year and are ranked by dollar value. “This is a special occasion since this past year the state capitol renovation was completed and represented the greatest dollar value project in the Government category, reported for the year,” said Sean Evans, vice-president and publisher of the Idaho Business Review.

Wells Fargo invests $600,000 in Northwest Real Estate Capital Corp.

Times-News

Wells Fargo & Company said Tuesday that it made a $600,000 equity equivalent investment (EQ2) in Northwest Real Estate Capital Corporation, a non-profit development corporation headquartered in Boise that helps preserve government-subsidized and other types of multifamily affordable housing in Idaho. NWRECC targets subsidized affordable housing properties located in rural communities throughout the northwestern United States. This EQ2 investment has a five-year term and features a below-market fixed interest rate. “Since 2004, through our partnership with Wells Fargo, we have preserved 26 multifamily complexes in projects totaling approximately $70 million that now provide decent, safe, and sanitized affordable housing for 754 families. The EQ2 is representative of their commitment to invest in local communities,” said Raquel Guglielmetti, executive vice president of NWRECC in a written statement. “Its immediate use will provide predevelopment funds for a $21 million portfolio that will preserve about 200 units of housing.” “NWRECC is a long-time bank customer, and we are proud to support its successful strategy for preserving rental housing in the Northwest,” said Megan Teare of Wells Fargo Community Lending and Investment. EQ2s are patient capital in the form of below-market-rate loans. This limited resource is reserved for Well Fargo non-profit community development partners that are working to expand affordable housing, job creation, and economic development in the communities where Wells Fargo does business.

Audit: U.S. can't account for $8.7 billion in Iraqi funds

By Tarek El-Tablawy
Associated Press writer

BAGHDAD — A U.S. audit has found that the Pentagon cannot account for over 95 percent of $9.1 billion in Iraq reconstruction money, spotlighting Iraqi complaints that there is little to show for the massive funds pumped into their cash-strapped, war-ravaged nation.

The $8.7 billion in question was Iraqi money managed by the Pentagon, not part of the $53 billion that Congress has allocated for rebuilding. It's cash that Iraq, which relies on volatile oil revenues to fuel its spending, can ill afford to lose.

"Iraq should take legal action to get back this huge amount of money," said Sabah al-Saedi, chairman of the Parliamentary Integrity Committee. The money "should be spent for rebuilding the country and providing services for this poor nation."

The report by the Special Inspector General for Iraq Reconstruction accused the Defense Department of lax oversight and weak controls, though not fraud.

"The breakdown in controls left the funds vulnerable to inappropriate uses and undetected loss," the audit said.

The Pentagon has repeatedly come under fire for apparent mismanagement of the reconstruction effort — as have Iraqi officials themselves.

Seven years after the U.S.-led invasion, electricity service is spotty, with generation capacity falling far short of demand. Fuel shortages are common and unemployment remains high, a testament to the country's inability to create new jobs or attract foreign investors.

Complaints surfaced from the start of the war in 2003, when soldiers failed to secure banks, armories and other facilities against looters. Since then the allegations have only multiplied, including investigations of fraud, awarding of contracts without the required government bidding process and allowing contractors to charge exorbitant fees with little oversight, or oversight that came too late.

But the latest report comes at a particularly critical time for Iraq. Four months after inconclusive elections, a new government has yet to be formed, raising fears that insurgents will tap into the political vacuum to stir sectarian unrest.

In a sign that insurgents are still intent on igniting sectarian violence, at least six people were killed and dozens more wounded when a female suicide bomber blew herself up near a checkpoint in the holy city of Karbala, local police said. They spoke on condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to speak to the media.

Aid worker killed; France declares war on al-Qaida

By Elaine Ganley
Associated Press writer

PARIS — France has declared war on al-Qaida, and matched its fighting words with a first attack on a base camp of the terror network's North African branch, after the terror network killed a French aid worker it took hostage in April.

The declaration and attack marked a shift in strategy for France, usually discrete about its behind-the-scenes battle against terrorism.

"We are at war with al-Qaida," Prime Minister Francois Fillon said Tuesday, a day after President Nicolas Sarkozy announced the death of 78-year-old hostage Michel Germaneau.

The humanitarian worker had been abducted April 20 or 22 in Niger by al-Qaida in the Islamic Maghreb, and was later taken to Mali, officials said.

The killers will "not go unpunished," Sarkozy said in unusually strong language, given France's habit of employing quiet cooperation with its regional allies — Mauritania, Mali, Niger and Algeria — in which the al-Qaida franchise was spawned amid an Islamist insurgency.

The Salafist Group for Call and Combat formally merged with al-Qaida in 2006 and spread through the Sahel region — parts of Mauritania, Mali and Niger.

Officials suggest France will activate accords with these countries to stop the terrorists in their tracks.

"It's a universal threat that concerns the entire world ... not just France or the West," Defense Minister Herve Morin said Tuesday on France-2 television. "We will support local authorities so these assassins and (their) commanders are tracked, judged and taken before justice and punished. And, yes,

Michel Germaneau, a member of the French aid group Enmilal is shown in 2007. Al-Qaida's North African branch said in a broadcast Sunday that the 78-year-old French engineer was killed in retaliation for the killing of six al-Qaida members in a raid.

we will help them."

Algeria, Mauritania, Mali and Niger in April opened a joint military headquarters deep in the desert to respond to threats from traffickers and the al-Qaida offshoot. U.S. Special Forces have helped the four nations train troops in recent years.

The United States said it would help the French "in any way that we can" to bring those who killed Germaneau to justice, according to U.S. State Dept. spokesman P.J. Crowley.

"There is no religion that sanctions what can only be described as cold-blooded murder," Crowley said Tuesday.

Fillon refused to say how France would act. "But we will," he said in an interview with Europe 1 radio.

And perhaps it already has. On Thursday, the French backed Mauritanian forces in attacking an al-Qaida camp on the border with Mali, killing at least six suspected terrorists. It is the first time France is known to have attacked an al-Qaida base.

Hot days cool indulgences

By Melissa Davlin ♦ Times-News writer

t's hot, and you're in the mood for a sweet treat.

But if you're counting calories or concerned about sugar, should you reach for the shaved ice or the frozen yogurt? Is all ice cream off limits?

Occasional indulgences aren't a problem for most, but if you are counting calories or watching sugar intake, there are ways to make those treats slightly healthier.

Mocha.

ICED MOCHA

Coffee fans don't need to give up their favorites just because it's hot outside. Iced mochas and other coffee drinks help caffeine junkies cool down while getting their fix.

But how do those drinks compare with other summer treats? Pretty well. A Starbucks 16-ounce Caffe Mocha made with 2 percent milk and whipped cream delivers 8 grams of saturated fat and 330 calories, according to starbucks.com.

Make it healthier: Skip the whipped cream and opt for lower-fat milk. The same 16-ounce drink made with nonfat milk and sans whipped cream has just .5 grams of saturated fat and 220 calories. Not half bad for a chocolate treat.

Hannah Alonso, 4, eats her Kiwi Loco treat Friday in Twin Falls. 'I like (Kiwi Loco's) variety,' says her mom, Christine Alonso. 'It's something fun for the girls to do.'

FROZEN YOGURT

Frogurt fans have a new place to score in Twin Falls.

Local business Kiwi Loco, which opened in April, uses YoCream brand yogurt to fill its dispensers. The Oregon-based manufacturer offers dozens of flavors, several of which rotate through Kiwi Loco's lineup. Last Thursday, offerings included Premium Red Velvet Cake, Nonfat Root Beer Float, Nonfat Euro Tart and Non-dairy Mango Tango Sorbet. The website kiwilocoyogurt.com lists daily flavor rotations.

Owner Doug Burch fields many inquiries about his yogurt's contents. A lot of people ask about sugar, gluten and dairy content, he said, while a few others ask about calories or live yogurt cultures. On any given day, the store offers at least one dairy-free sorbet, one sugar-free variety and one gluten-free "tart" flavor. And while the store switches out flavors regularly, employees keep the peanut flavor contained in one machine so those with nut allergies can avoid cross-contamination, Burch said.

Make it healthier: Calorie counters, fear not the froyo. Nearly all of the yogurt offerings come in at under 140 calories for a half-cup serving, with several under 100. If you're hyperconcerned about calories and plan to eat more than half a cup, though, stick with the nonfat and tart flavors and avoid those with the "premium" prefix.

"There's quite a bit of difference as far as those go," Burch said.

When it comes to toppings at Kiwi Loco, think fruit and nuts. Stay away from fatty add-ins like cookie dough and Oreos and opt for fruits and nuts like blueberries, raspberries, sliced almonds or dry coconut.

"We fresh cut all of our strawberries during the day, and that is by and far our most popular topping," Burch said.

ICE CREAM

Sweet, smooth, luscious – and full of calories and sugar. But what is summer without a bit of ice cream?

Austin Humphries, who has worked at Baskin Robbins in Twin Falls for two years, said customers often ask about the nutritional profiles of the store's ice cream, sherbets, sorbets and frozen yogurts.

"People ask about sugar the most," he said. He directs them to no-sugar-added flavors like Cabana Berry Banana. For those concerned about calories, a binder behind the counter holds nutritional information on most of the treats.

Al Cantu brings his 8-year-old daughter, Kaydee, to Baskin Robbins once or twice a week for a treat. Her favorite: peanut butter chocolate ice cream (320 calories per scoop) in a chocolate waffle cone. Al isn't too concerned about the calories, he said, and lets her splurge.

Two scoops of Chocolate Mousse Royale from Baskin Robbins. Each scoop is 310 calories, according to baskinrobbins.com. Other flavors have fewer calories; a 4-ounce scoop of Rainbow sherbet has 160 calories, and a 4-ounce scoop of Very Berry Strawberry ice cream has 220.

"I like how it's really chocolatey," Cantu said.

Make it healthier: Consider skipping the cone and asking for a bowl instead. A Baskin Robbins plain waffle cone contains 160 calories and 4 grams of fat.

And consider the flavors. A 4-ounce scoop of mint chocolate chip contains 16 grams of fat, 10 of which are saturated. That's half of the daily recommended saturated fat for adults on a 2,000-calorie daily diet.

Savor each bite

Junior Club's Bite of Magic Valley brings good smells to City Park tonight in T.F.

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

The only thing tougher than knowing which dish to try first will be making sure you leave room for drinks and dessert.

Around 15 local eateries have signed up for Junior Club of the Magic Valley's 23rd annual summer food festival, The Bite of Magic Valley. It's 5 to 9 p.m. today at Twin Falls City Park, featuring music of the Matthew Hertz Band.

For around $4 a plate, attendees can try everything from gourmet-inspired cedar plank salmon from Canyon Crest Dining and Event Center to tortellini or chocolate cake from Johnny Carino's, Greek gyros from the Pressbox, Smoking Cowboy's pulled pork sandwiches and huckleberry-bacon ice cream from Beacon Burger and Brew, to name a few.

Don Scarrow of Scarrow Meats in Jerome is returning with his barbeque beef tri-tip, which last year was named Best of the Bite, a people's choice award. Scarrow said he hasn't changed his recipe or technique for the winning dish, slathered in his company's special-blend barbecue sauce.

"I just throw it in my large Traeger grill on high," he said. "I'm not one of those people with a lot of time to prepare something special. It's get-it-in and get-er-done."

That's how he'll cook a new dish for the Bite, pork tenderloin topped with Scarrow's Burgundy Pepper BBQ sauce.

"I've been to five cookoffs, and the worst I've gotten is second place," Scarrow said. "I must be doing something right."

Buffalo Wild Wings, opening in Twin Falls on Aug. 2, will bring its traditional chicken wings and boneless wings, with six of the franchise's 14 signature sauces.

"The Bite gave us the perfect timing to showcase our meat and brand prior to opening in Twin Falls," said Brittany Ward, corporate vice president of marketing. Sauces available tonight include Garlic Parmesan, Honey BBQ and Wild Sauce, which is a notch up from Buffalo's hot sauce, with "a powerful kick of flavor."

"It's a great way to open our doors while having a good impact on the community's charities," Ward said.

Ward said tonight's wings will be prepared just like they are in the restaurant. The customer's cooked-to-order wing and sauce selection are poured together in a sealed bucket and spun, so each wing is coated.

Each vendor's $325 registration fee will be split between the Junior Club's chosen charities: the Ike Kistler Safe House, Court Appointed Special Advocates and the Ronald McDonald House. Buffalo Wild Wings will also donate all of its proceeds from Bite sales to the charities as well. Radio station The Buzz, selling root beer floats, has decided to do the same.

Last year the Junior Club donated $8,300 to charity, said media chairwoman Ellen Jones.

"That's what we're hoping to raise again this year," Jones said.

Charity money is also generated through the Bite's beer garden, which will include a variety of microbrews, summer ales, wine and specialty malt drinks, at $3 a drink. To gain entry into the garden, buy a $2 identification bracelet.

Ticket sales for kids' activities also help raise money for the club's charities. The play area will feature an inflatable obstacle course, face painting, mini train and "Spin Art" by Hands On of Twin Falls. Tickets cost $1 each, with unlimited-ride bracelets also available.

Club president Gretchen Scott said organizers don't keep attendance records for the Bite, as admission is free, but typically about 3,000 mini-entrees are served. Over the past eight years, the number of vendors has fluctuated from 12 to 15.

"We know each vendor prepares about 300 meals each," Scott said.

How many will you try?

Hot days, cool indulgences

SHAVED ICE

Sugary flavored syrup on ice — how can you go wrong?

Snoasis employees Lauren Chandler and Mikayla Harris said they often field inquiries about sugar content, but not as much about calories.

Outside the Blue Lakes Boulevard stand in Twin Falls, Tyler Bringham ate his Tiger's Blood shaved ice, alternating between slurping it with a straw and spooning it into his mouth.

"It feels good on a hot day," Bringham said.

Make it healthier: Shaved ice is flavored with sugary syrup, so if you're concerned but want to partake in the frosty treat, get a smaller size, or find a booth — like Snoasis — that offers up sugar-free varieties.

SMOOTHIES

Between fast-food restaurants and coffee shops, there are plenty of smoothie choices in Magic Valley. But customers are hard-pressed to find smoothies made the old-fashioned way — from milk, yogurt and chunks of fresh fruit.

Drink-wise, though, you could do a lot worse than ordering a smoothie. A large Strawberry Banana Real Fruit Smoothie from McDonalds has fewer calories — 330 — than a small Triple Thick strawberry shake, which has 420. (The large smoothie, however, has 70 grams of sugar. Ouch.)

Make it healthier: Know that just because a smoothie says "fruit" or "real fruit" doesn't mean it isn't from a mix with pureed fruit and preservatives. If you're concerned about fillers, ask about ingredients.

Or just break out the blender at home.

MILKSHAKES

These thick, creamy treats are not the best choice for the health-conscious. A large hot fudge shake at Dairy Queen packs 1,220 calories — the equivalent of three Deluxe Cheeseburgers.

Make it healthier: Go small. A small hot fudge shake has half the calories of its large counterpart. At 610 calories, it's still not the healthiest, but when you really want ice cream, who cares?

Consider the flavors as well; a small Dairy Queen chocolate shake has 100 more calories than a small strawberry shake.

‘Local produce is tastier than what they can get in the store’

ARIEL HANSEN/Times-News

Carol Murphy, right, owner of Shooting Star Farm, chats with Hailey resident Trish Raziano on July 15 about produce available at the Hailey Farmers Market. Murphy says lettuce greens and pea shoots have been particularly popular at her booth this season, and customers are looking forward to the nearly ripe squashes, tomatoes and cucumbers. ‘It’s been a little busier than it has been in the past,’ Murphy says. ‘People find the local produce is tastier than what they can get in the store.’ Find an online interactive map with 2010 season details on all of south-central Idaho’s farmers markets at www.magicvalley.com/app/farmers-markets/

Not PB&J again! Livening up the lunchbox

By Joseph DeVita
For The Associated Press

French fries in a sandwich? Why not? We aimed for kid-friendly creativity when crafting these deliciously different sandwiches for back to school. French fries stand in for the mashed potatoes and stuffing on our Thanksgiving sandwich (and may be just crazy enough for little ones to love). If you’d prefer a healthier version, use sweet potato fries.

Speaking of crazy ingredients, we went with waffles instead of bread when we rethought the classic ham and cheese. We also suggest serving it with a small container of maple syrup for dunking. And if popcorn wedged into the center of a PB&J doesn’t do it for you, try pretzels or potato chips.

THANKSGIVING SANDWICH

- 2 tablespoons cream cheese
- 2 slices whole-wheat bread
- 3 deli-slices turkey breast
- 1 small handful frozen french fries, toasted or microwaved until warmed
- 2 tablespoons cranberry sauce

Spread the cream cheese onto 1 side of each slice of bread. Top 1 side with the turkey breast, then the french fries, then the cranberry sauce and the second slice of bread.

Per serving: 398 calories; 129 calories from fat; 14 g fat (7 g saturated; 0 g trans fats); 59 mg cholesterol; 47 g carbohydrate; 20 g protein; 5 g fiber; 1,002 mg sodium.

HAM AND CHEESE WAFFLE SANDWICH

- 2 teaspoons honey mus-

- tard or Dijon mustard
- 2 frozen waffles, toasted
- 3 deli-slices maple ham
- 2 deli-slices Swiss cheese
- 1 tablespoon unsalted butter
- Maple syrup (optional)

Spread the mustard over 1 side of each waffle. Top 1 side with 1 slice of cheese, the ham, the other slice of the cheese, then the other waffle.

In a large skillet over medium, melt the butter. Fry the sandwich for about 1 minute on each side. Serve with maple syrup for dunking.

Per serving: 674 calories; 365 calories from fat; 41 g fat (18 g saturated; 0 g trans fats); 106 mg cholesterol; 41 g carbohydrate; 34 g protein; 4 g fiber; 1,342 mg sodium.

HONEY CUCUMBER SANDWICH

- 3 tablespoons cream cheese, softened
- 1 tablespoon honey
- 1 teaspoon chopped fresh dill
- 2 slices whole-wheat bread
- 2-inch length English cucumber, cut into 1/4-inch slices
- Kosher salt and ground black pepper

In a small bowl, mix together the cream cheese, honey and dill. Spread the mixture over 1 side of each slice of bread. Top with cucumber slices, then season with salt and pepper. Top with the remaining slice of bread.

Per serving: 381 calories; 153 calories from fat; 17 g fat (10 g saturated; 0 g trans fats); 48 mg cholesterol; 46 g carbohydrate; 12 g protein; 5 g fiber; 393 mg sodium.

POP PB&J

- 3 tablespoons peanut butter

AP photo

Creative and kid-friendly, these sandwiches are way beyond the usual PB&J for school lunches: from foreground, ham and cheese waffle, Thanksgiving and honey cucumber sandwiches.

- 2 slices whole-wheat bread
 - 2 tablespoons fruit jam
 - 1/2 cup popped popcorn
- Spread half of the peanut butter on 1 side of each slice of bread. Spread the jam over that. Arrange the popcorn in an even layer over 1 slice, then top with the second slice of bread.
- Per serving: 586 calories; 236 calories from fat; 26 g fat (5 g saturated; 0 g trans fats); 0 mg cholesterol; 75 g carbohydrate; 20 g protein; 7 g fiber; 485 mg sodium.*

A healthy makeover for peanut noodles

By Jim Romanoff
For The Associated Press

Cold peanut noodles already are among the healthier choices when it comes to Asian takeout, yet there still is plenty of room for improvement.

While nuts are an excellent protein and can be part of a healthful diet, peanut butter is relatively high in fat and calories. Plus, if you're counting carbs, the noodles won't do you any favors.

But turning this decadent noodle dish into a meal rich in nutrients, complex carbohydrates and healthier fats is easy when you make it from scratch.

For extra fiber and nutrients in our chili-lime almond butter noodles, whole-wheat fettuccine are used instead of white pasta. And don't get stuck on shape; any variety of whole-grain pasta can be substituted.

Next, the sauce is made with almond butter (for the extra nutritional punch they offer over peanut butter) spiked with tangy lime juice, spicy chili-garlic sauce and minced fresh ginger.

The sauce gets thinned a bit with some of the pasta cooking water, which helps curb fat and calories while adding some starch for improved coating power and a smoother texture.

Finally, the entire dish gets a nutritional bonus with the addition of a substantial amount of filling, low-in-calorie, but high-in-nutrient vegetables, which for convenience are cooked in the same water as the pasta.

When made from scratch, cold peanut noodles can become a nutrient-rich meal with healthier fats than its take-out cousin. This recipe also uses whole-wheat pasta that provides extra fiber.

Look for chili-garlic sauce in the Asian section of your market, or in a pinch substitute a few cloves of minced garlic and crushed pepper flakes to taste.

CHILI-LIME ALMOND BUTTER NOODLES

Start to finish: 30 minutes. Servings: 6.

- 1/2 cup smooth almond butter
- 2 tablespoons lime juice
- 2 tablespoons reduced-sodium soy sauce
- 1 tablespoon honey
- 1 tablespoon rice vinegar
- 2 teaspoons chili-garlic sauce, or to taste
- 1 teaspoon minced fresh ginger
- 8 ounces whole-wheat fettuccine
- 12-ounce bag fresh vegetable stir-fry blend, such as carrots, broccoli, snow peas

Bring a large pot of lightly salted water to a boil.

In a large bowl, whisk together the almond butter, lime juice, soy sauce, honey, vinegar, chili-garlic sauce and ginger.

Cook the pasta in the boiling water until not quite tender, about 1 1/2 minutes less than specified by the package directions. Add the vegetables and cook until the pasta and vegetables are just tender, about another 1 1/2 minutes.

Drain the pasta, reserving 1/3 cup of the cooking water. Rinse the pasta and vegetables with cool water. Stir the reserved cooking liquid into the almond sauce, then add the pasta and vegetables. Toss well to coat. Serve at room temperature or chilled.

Per serving: 191 calories; 112 calories from fat; 12 g fat (1 g saturated; 0 g trans fats); 0 mg cholesterol; 16 g carbohydrate; 5 g protein; 2 g fiber; 272 mg sodium.

Not-too-fancy dinner in 30 minutes

By Bonnie S. Benwick
The Washington Post

Although this comes from a cookbook with “glamorous” in the title, it is not a fancy dish. Make sure to season the meat well before searing it. The sauce gets a bump from a little balsamic vinegar at the end of cooking.

Serve with a peppery green salad and crusty bread for sopping up the sauce. Adapted from “Donatella Cooks: Simple Foods Made Glamorous,” by Donatella Arpaia (Rodale, 2010).

STEAK PIZZAIOLA

4 to 6 servings

- 5 tablespoons olive oil
- 2 thick New York strip steaks (about 2 pounds total)
- Coarse sea salt
- Freshly ground black pepper
- 4 medium cloves garlic
- 28 ounces (1 can) good-quality canned whole tomatoes, preferably San Marzano
- 4 teaspoons dried oregano

2 to 3 tablespoons balsamic vinegar

Leaves and tender stems from 6 stems fresh oregano or from 4 stems flat-leaf parsley, for garnish

Heat 3 tablespoons of the oil in a large skillet over medium-high heat until the oil shimmers.

Meanwhile, lay the steaks flat on a cutting board; use a sharp smooth knife to cut them in half horizontally to create 4 steaks of equal size. (If the steaks are of different thicknesses, adjust the cooking times as needed.) Trim any large pieces of fat from the edges. Season the meat with salt and pepper to taste.

Peel and crush the garlic; leave it in large pieces if you plan to discard it before serving.

Place the steaks in the skillet and cook for about 3 minutes on each side, until the meat is deeply browned. Transfer to a plate.

Carefully drain the oil from the skillet. Reduce the heat to medium. Add the remaining 2 tablespoons of oil to the skillet. When it is hot, add the garlic and cook, stirring, for 1 or 2 minutes, until it starts to turn golden. Add the tomatoes by crushing them with your hands (reserving the juices in the can for another use, if desired). Season lightly with salt and pepper. Cook for 10 to 12 minutes or until the tomatoes have broken down to form a slightly thickened sauce; add a little of the reserved can juices as needed. Add the dried oregano and vinegar to taste; stir to incorporate.

Place all 4 steaks in the skillet, along with any accumulated meat juices. Cover and cook for about 4 minutes (for medium-rare) or longer, to the desired degree of doneness.

While the steak is cooking, mince the leaves of oregano or parsley.

Place each steak on a plate and spoon equal amounts of the sauce onto each portion (remove the garlic if desired). Garnish with the fresh herbs and sprinkle lightly with salt. Serve warm.

Per serving (based on 6): 290 calories, 27 g protein, 6 g carbohydrates, 17 g fat, 6 g saturated fat, 70 mg cholesterol, 370 mg sodium, 1 g dietary fiber, 3 g sugar.

SAN FRANCISCO — You want your back-to-schooler to eat a healthy diet, so you pack a “wheat” bread sandwich and tuck a “juice” drink in her brown-bag lunch. But did you know that loaf simply labeled “wheat” may be just white bread with added coloring? And the “juice” drink may contain more water than juice?

It pays to read between the label lines, nutritionists say.

“People in the store, trying to make healthy choices, do fall into that pitfall,” said Andrea Giancoli, registered dietitian and spokeswoman for the American Dietetic Association. “They see ‘wheat’ or they see ‘multi-grain’ or ‘sprouted’ and things of that nature. Unless it said ‘whole grain’ or ‘whole wheat,’ it probably isn’t.”

Which means it may not be nearly as nutritious as consumers think.

Of course, there is an easy way to know whether the wheat you eat is whole and whether the juice is juicy. Turn the package around. The ingredients list, often found on the back of food packaging, lists each item by order of weight, greatest to least.

“The front of the package is almost all marketing,” said Giancoli. “You really have to be a smart consumer and turn it over, look at the ingredients.”

When buying bread, for example, it helps to know that “enriched wheat flour” means the wheat grain has been processed to create a fluffier, softer product, thereby removing nutrients. In other words, it’s white flour.

Manufacturers are required to restore some, but not all, of the nutrients to processed wheat — hence the term “enriched.” But smart shoppers look for “100 percent whole wheat,” which means the product meets Food and Drug Administration standards for whole grain flour.

There are similar — but still sometimes confusing — labeling requirements for juice. The FDA rules say if the

When choosing what to pack in a school lunch bag, be sure to look beyond the name on the package to find out the real nutritional value of your kid’s meal.

“The front of the package is almost all marketing. You really have to be a smart consumer and turn it over, look at the ingredients.”

package is labeled “juice,” the product must be 100 percent juice. But juice blends can still use the word, such as “juice drink” or “juice cocktail.”

Fruit leathers also merit scrutiny. Some are 100 percent fruit and, while not as nutritional as a piece of fruit, are fine as a treat in small portions, Giancoli said. Others have added sugars — the ingredient list tells the story.

Parents aren’t the only ones scanning labels. Earlier this year, the FDA sent letters to 17 food manufacturers warning them of problems with labels. Issues ranged from unauthorized health claims to products that were advertised as “zero trans fat” without noting that the product was high in saturated fat.

Still, going after manufacturers one by one is “a little like playing Whac-A-Mole, with one hand tied behind your back,” Michael Taylor, FDA deputy commissioner for foods, wrote in a recent post on The Atlantic’s online site.

Taylor, who is responsible for food safety and nutrition labeling, said the FDA has launched a major campaign to improve the nutrition labels on the backs of packages while working on ways to have essential information and guidance on the front.

The Washington, D.C.-based Center for Science in the Public Interest is calling for more enforcement of labeling laws as well as revamped nutrition labels that alert buyers to products high in fat and sugar, said Bruce Silverglade, director of legal affairs for CSPI.

For consumers, the situation right now is “buyer beware,” he said.

CSPI also is suggesting that if a product makes a particular health claim, such as “made with whole wheat,” it should be required to list how much of that ingredient is in the product, by percent, on the front of the package.

Industry representatives say most food companies work hard to ensure their labels are truthful and not misleading.

Ingredients and nutrition information are listed and manufacturers have to follow FDA guidelines, said Regina Hildwine, senior director of science policy labeling and standards for the Grocery Manufacturers Association, based in Washington.

“We really do have to make sure that we’re following these requirements, making responsible representations, making legal statements that are truthful and not misleading and well-substantiated by scientific evidence,” she said. “That’s a job that requires continual attention.”

‘Clean’ beef dinner in 35 minutes

By Bonnie S. Benwick
The Washington Post

What makes this recipe “clean”? Simply put, it calls for whole, unprocessed and unrefined foods, without additives. It also signals a meal that is naturally balanced, without excessive amounts of saturated fat and calories.

Then again, the aforementioned information might not be how you first want to describe tonight’s dinner to your family. Try this: It’s beef on a stick, served over quick-cooking noodles that will take on the flavors of your home-made hoisin sauce (part of this recipe), lime, crunchy vegetables, ginger and peanuts. Better!

Give yourself a head start by using chopped scallions and shredded carrots from the salad bar.

The sauce is made with fermented black bean paste, which is available at Asian markets and is not the same thing as black bean sauce. You can make a substitute with readily available ingredients; see the note below. This makes a sauce that has the salty-sweetness of store-bought hoisin but much less sugar and sodium.

The homemade hoisin sauce can be made ahead and refrigerated, tightly covered, for up to 2 weeks.

Adapted from “The Complete Idiot’s Guide to Eating Clean,” by Diane A. Welland (Alpha, 2009).

BEEF SATAY ON RICE NOODLES

4 to 6 servings

For the sauce:

1 medium clove garlic
1/2 large jalapeno pepper
1 tablespoon honey
2 teaspoons toasted sesame oil
2 tablespoons fermented black bean paste (may substitute; see note)
2 tablespoons low-sodium soy sauce
2 teaspoons rice vinegar
Freshly ground black pepper

For the satay and noodles:

12 ounces fresh or frozen snow peas
1 small bunch cilantro
2-inch piece ginger root
1 teaspoon minced jalapeno pepper
1/2 to 3/4 cup chopped scallions, or 9 scallions, chopped
2 tablespoons toasted sesame oil
2 tablespoons water
3/4 cup orange juice
12 ounces beef tenderloin or strip steak
8 ounces thin rice stick noodles
3 cups shredded carrots
1/4 cup roasted unsalted peanuts, chopped

For the sauce: Crush the garlic clove and place in a small bowl. Stem, seed and finely mince the jalapeno pepper (reserving 1 teaspoon for the satay and noodles) and add to the bowl, along with the honey, toasted sesame oil, fermented black bean paste, soy sauce, rice vinegar and black pepper to taste. Whisk together to form a hoisin sauce, then place 2 tablespoons of the sauce in the bowl of a food processor. Cover and refrigerate the rest for another use (up to 2 weeks).

For the satay and noodles: Fill a medium saucepan two-thirds full with water; bring to a boil over high heat. String the snow peas.

Pluck enough cilantro leaves to yield 1 1/2 cups and add to the sauce in the food processor. Peel the ginger, then grate to yield 1 tablespoon and add to the food processor along with the reserved teaspoon of jalapeno pepper, the chopped scallions, sesame oil, water and orange juice. Process for about 30 seconds, then use a spatula to scrape down the sides of the bowl and process for 30 seconds or longer to form a smooth dressing. Transfer 1 tablespoon of the dressing to a small bowl.

Position an oven rack 4 to 6 inches from the top broiling element; preheat the broiler. Have several metal skewers at hand (do not use bamboo skewers). Have ready a broiler pan, or line a baking sheet with aluminum foil.

Cut the beef into thin, equally sized slices. Thread all the pieces onto the skewers, then brush the meat on all sides with the tablespoon of dressing in the bowl. Place the filled skewers on the broiler pan or lined baking sheet and broil for 2 minutes, until browned, then turn over the skewers and broil on the second side for 2 minutes or just until cooked through.

While the meat is cooking and once the water has come to a boil, add the rice noodles and cook them for 2 minutes, stirring to separate, until they have softened. Use tongs to transfer them to a colander to drain. Once the water returns to a boil, add the snow peas and shredded carrots to the saucepan; cook for 1 minute, until crisp-tender, then transfer to the colander to drain (on top of the noodles is OK).

While the vegetables are cooking, coarsely chop the peanuts.

Toss the noodles and vegetables together to combine; divide among individual plates or wide, shallow bowls. Top each portion with 2 pieces of skewered beef, 2 tablespoons or more of the remaining dressing (in the food processor) and 2 teaspoons of the chopped peanuts. Serve immediately.

NOTE: If you can’t find fermented black bean paste, substitute by whisking together a mixture of 2 tablespoons all-natural creamy peanut butter and 1 tablespoon low-sodium soy sauce. If it is too thick, add up to 1 tablespoon water.

Summer dinner that’s light, seasonal and do-ahead

By Jim Romanoff
For The Associated Press

Light, in-season and make-ahead — it’s the trifecta for the perfect summer supper.

For this easy-to-prepare dish, thin slices of eggplant are baked until tender, then fashioned into rolls stuffed with delicately spiced couscous and tangy feta cheese.

The rolls can be prepared up to two days in advance, covered with plastic wrap and refrigerated. When ready to serve, remove the plastic, drizzle with marinara sauce and bake until heated through.

ORANGE-SCENTED EGGPLANT AND COUSCOUS ROLLS

*Start to finish: 1 hour 10 minutes (30 minutes active).
Servings: 4.*

1 large eggplant (about 1 pound)
3 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil, divided
2 oranges
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon ground cardamom
1 tablespoon apple cider vinegar
1 cup water
3/4 cup couscous
2 cups crumbled feta cheese, divided
4 tablespoons chopped flat-leaf parsley, divided
Ground black pepper, to taste
1 cup prepared marinara sauce

Heat the oven to 425 degrees. Coat a baking sheet with cooking spray. You may need 2 baking sheets.

Trim both ends of the eggplant. Standing the eggplant on end, slice it lengthwise into 1/3-inch-thick slices. Discard the end slices of skin.

Arrange the slices on the prepared baking sheets and brush with 2 tablespoons of the olive oil. Bake until lightly browned on the undersides, about 10 minutes. Turn the slices over and continue baking until the second sides are lightly browned and the flesh is tender, about 10 to 15 minutes longer.

Meanwhile, to make the filling, grate the zest of a half an orange, then juice both oranges. Transfer the zest and juice to a medium saucepan. Add the cinnamon, cardamom, the apple cider vinegar, the remaining

These eggplant rolls can be made ahead for an easy and light summer meal any time of the week.

1 tablespoon of olive oil and the water. Bring to a boil. Stir in couscous and remove the pan from the heat. Cover and let stand until the liquid is absorbed, about 5 minutes.

Uncover the couscous and fluff with a fork, then let cool. Stir in 1 1/2 cups of the feta and 3 tablespoons of the parsley. Season with pepper.

Coat a 9-by-13-inch baking dish with cooking spray. Place about 1/4 cup of the couscous mixture at one end of each eggplant slice. Pressing with your fingers to compact the filling, roll up each slice and transfer them, seam-side down, to the prepared dish.

In a small saucepan, heat the marinara sauce until warm. Drizzle the marinara sauce over the rolls. Cover the dish tightly with foil and bake until the rolls are heated through and the sauce is bubbling, about 15 minutes. Sprinkle with the remaining feta and parsley just before serving.

Gladys Francis Killeen

IDAHO CITY — Gladys Francis Killeen, 94, of Idaho City, Idaho, was born Feb. 10, 1916, in St. James, Manitoba, Canada. She passed away Sunday, July 25, 2010, in Boise, Idaho, with her daughter, Brenda, at her bedside at a local Care Facility.

She married the love of her life, Chris, in 1937 and celebrated 60 years of a wonderful life. Gladys was the oldest of four girls and was the loving mother of four daughters, Sharon and Johnny Slattery of Minden, Nev., Brenda and Donn Berrier of Idaho City, Idaho, Patti and Frank McLaughlin of Santa Clarita, Calif., and Terri and Howard Laderman of Simi Valley, Calif.

Gladys is survived by her four daughters; 12 grandchildren; 26 great-grandchildren and a new great-grandchild to be born this August; Gladys’ younger sister, Terry Huntington of Langley, British Columbia, Canada, and many nieces and nephews in Canada and the United States.

Gladys was the most loving mother with a winning smile that touched everyone’s heart. From young to old, she was so very loved and adored. We will all miss her.

Gladys enjoyed bowling with her daughters and was so proud of the trophies. She was a seamstress and model for Olga Co. of Van Nuys, Calif. She made her clothes for herself and her daughters, a gift she inherited from her mother. She belonged to the Altar Society of Our Lady of Peace Catholic Church in Sepulveda, Calif., and John the Baptist De La Salle Catholic Church in Granada Hills, Calif. Gladys filled all her family with unconditional LOVE.

There will be a Mass for Gladys at noon Sunday, Aug. 1, at St. Joseph’s Church in Idaho City, with a rosary to follow. The family requests “no flowers, please.”

Peace be with you. To share memories with the family, please visit Gladys’s memorial webpage online at www.Cloverdale-FuneralHome.com.

Kyron Horman’s birth mother, Desiree Young, holds back a tear during a news conference with her husband, Tony Young, on Tuesday at the Multnomah County Sheriff’s Training Facility, in Portland, Ore.

Reward doubled as search for missing Ore. boy continues

By William McCall
Associated Press writer

PORTLAND, Ore. — The mother of an Oregon boy missing for 53 days tearfully addressed her son during a Tuesday news conference, telling him not to give up hope, while investigators doubled a reward for information in the case.

The Multnomah County Sheriff’s Department said “significant progress” was being made in the search for 7-year-old Kyron Horman, but declined to offer details.

The reward for information leading to Kyron’s whereabouts was increased from $25,000 to $50,000.

Desiree Young broke down while sharing a message for her son with reporters, sobbing: “We love you Kyron. Never give up hope. We are all coming to get you to bring you home.”

Kyron vanished June 4 after attending a science fair at Skyline Elementary School in northwest Portland. The case has taken many twists in the weeks since, many of them centered on his stepmother, Terri Horman.

Terri Horman has not been named as a suspect in Kyron’s disappearance, and she has never spoken publicly about it.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — A trove of old glass negatives bought at a garage sale for $45 has been authenticated as the lost work of Ansel Adams and worth at least $200 million, an attorney for the owner said Tuesday, but the iconic photographer’s representatives dismissed the claim as a fraud and said they’re worthless.

Arnold Peter, who represents Fresno painter and construction worker Rick Norsigian, said a team of experts who studied the 65 negatives over the past six months concluded “beyond a reasonable doubt” that the photos were Adams’ early work, believed to have been destroyed in a 1937 fire at his Yosemite National Park studio.

Adams is renowned for his timeless black-and-white photographs of the American West, which were produced with darkroom techniques that heightened shadows and contrasts to create mood-filled landscape portraits. He died in 1984 at 82.

His photographs today are widely reproduced on calendars, posters and in coffee-table books, while his prints are coveted by collectors. His print “Clearing Winter Storm, Yosemite National Park” fetched $722,500 at auction last month in New York, a record for 20th century photography.

Norsigian, who works for the Fresno Unified School District, is already planning to capitalize on his discovery. He’s set up a website to sell prints made from 17 negatives from $45 for a poster to $7,500 for a darkroom print with a certificate of authenticity. A documentary on his quest to have the negatives authenticated is in the works, as well as a touring exhibition that will debut at Fresno State University in October.

Representatives of Adams, however, said they’re not buying Norsigian’s claims.

“It’s an unfortunate fraud,” said Bill Turnage, managing director of the Ansel Adams Publishing Rights Trust. “It’s very distressing.”

Turnage said he’s consulting lawyers about possibly suing Norsigian for using a copyrighted name for commercial purposes. He described Norsigian as on an “obsessive quest.”

“We’ve been dealing with him for a decade,” he said. “I can’t tell you how many times he’s called me.”

Adams’ grandson, Matthew Adams, who heads

they convicted him of injury to a child and continuous sexual abuse. Prosecutors had asked for a life sentence. Santiago’s attorney had asked for 25 years, the minimum allowed under the sex abuse conviction.

Santiago also was fined $20,000.

After the sentencing, Santiago told the judge he would appeal.

“God knows I am not guilty of these charges,” he said.

The children were emaciated when they were found last summer. Their ribs and spines showed through flaky skin, and the oldest child, an 11-year-old girl, told authorities she had been repeatedly sexually assaulted.

Several witnesses compared their appearance to Holocaust survivors. The youngest boy, then 5, weighed less than 30 pounds — about the weight of a healthy 2-year-old. Pictures of the wasted children were pinned to the courtroom wall above the witness stand throughout the trial.

During the sentencing hearing, the boy described Santiago beating him with broomsticks and belts. Nervous on the stand, the child frequently pulled the neck of his navy T-shirt over his mouth.

Jurors also heard from the children’s therapist, who said the oldest boy has been hospitalized three times for being suicidal. His testimony earlier in the trial was so stressful he vomited afterward.

He attended schools in Simi Valley, Calif., and Elk Creek, Fairfield, Idaho, graduating from Gooding High School, where he was active in athletics. He served in the U.S. Army and attended the University of Idaho under the GI bill, graduating in 1952 with a degree in forest and range management. He met his future wife, Helena DeNardis of Buhl, Idaho, at a dance in Gooding. They were married in Buhl in 1951.

Bill Leavell began his career of 34 years in the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) in 1952 as a range conservationist in Burns, Ore. After many postings in Oregon, Utah, California and Washington, D.C., he moved to Portland, Ore., retiring in 1986 as the state director for the Oregon and Washington Region for the BLM. After retirement, he and his wife raised cattle, Christmas trees and kiwis on their farm near Canby, Ore., and traveled extensively in the United States and abroad. He also contacted relatives throughout the United States through extensive genealogy research. He served on multiple boards, including the Board of the Public Lands Foundation, receiving their Lifetime Service Award. He also provided volunteer assistance to Kazakhstan to establish a national park.

He is survived by his wife of 59 years, Helena; seven children, Dr. Rita Leavell of Amman, Jordan, Renee Lothrop of Mountain Home, William Jr. of Stanley, Lori Secrest of Half Moon Bay, Calif., Lisa Dalglish of Lake Stevens, Wash., LeeAnne Huffman of Missoula, Mont., and Brent of Canby, Ore.; their spouses; and 12 grandchildren. He will be dearly missed by all, who are grateful for his lessons in appreciation of the great outdoors, the need for planning and cooperation for success, giving back to make the world a better place, and the nature of a life well-lived.

A memorial Mass service will be held at 10:30 a.m. Friday, July 30, at St. Patrick's Catholic Church, 498 NW Ninth Ave., Canby, Ore. A reception will follow. In lieu of flowers, the family has requested donations at www.publicland.org or www.caringbridge.org/visit/billleavellsr/guestbook.

ALPINE, Wyo. — Leslie Keith Bowcut, 83, passed away peacefully at his home in Alpine, Wyo., on Thursday, July 22, 2010.

Keith was born Sept. 10, 1926, in Burley, Idaho, to Leslie Peter and Fern Mitton Bowcut. He resided in Burley until joining the United States Navy, where he served in Okinawa, Japan, working in a Seabee unit of the Navy. It was during his military service that Keith learned operating and troubleshooting for big equipment. He worked for Jelco Inc. as a master mechanic, shop manager and heavy equipment troubleshooter. The company would fly him around the country to troubleshoot for large and heavy equipment. It was through this experience that he became interested in flying and obtained his pilot's license.

He met Dorothy Rosa Miller and, after a brief courtship, they began their 53-year marriage Nov. 2, 1956. Keith enjoyed working with his hands and sharing activities with Dorothy. They took classes together and they loved fishing and traveling.

Keith is survived by his wife, Dorothy Bowcut; son, Don (Barbara) Bowcut; brothers, Noel (Lois) Bowcut and Jerry (Helen) Bowcut; grandchildren, Michelle (Ace) Perez and Keith Bowcut; and great-grandchildren, Dylan and Malia Perez. Keith was preceded in death by his parents; son, Lee Bowcut; and brother, Blaine Bowcut.

A memorial service will be held at 11 a.m. Thursday, July 29, at Wilks Funeral Home, 211 W. Chubbuck Road, with military rites provided by the Pocatello Veteran's Honor Guard. Condolences may be left online at www.wilks-funeralhome.com.

Fredona W. Schenk

BURLEY — Fredona Woolstenhulme Schenk, 89, of Burley, passed away Sunday, July 25, 2010, at the Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise.

She was born March 6, 1921, at Starrhs Ferry, Idaho, to Rueben Allen and Sarah Sorenson Woolstenhulme. She grew up in the Starrhs Ferry area and graduated from Burley High School and Albion State Normal School. After college, she taught school in the Oakley and Burley area.

Fredona met Robert Schenk in the summer of 1946, and they were married on Dec. 14, 1946. They farmed in the View area until 1959, when they drew a veterans homestead northwest of Paul, in the Crestview area. Over the next 50 years, they developed a successful farm and cattle business, Schenk Land and Cattle, now located in Oakley. As a partner in the feedlot and farm, she was honored with her husband as "Cattle Feeders of the Year" from the Idaho Cattle Feeders Association in 1972. Fredona and Robert were also inducted into the Southern Idaho Livestock Hall of Fame in 2008. Additionally, she was active in the Paul PTA and the Crestview 59'ers.

She is survived by her husband, Robert; three children, Barbara (Ron Stephenson) Schenk of Boise, Linda (Barry) Tanner of Paul and Dallan (Brenda) Schenk of Oakley; six grandchildren, Cori (Joe) Gilbert, Chris Tanner, Logan Schenk, Robyn (Ryan) Fisher, Jake (Tiffany) Schenk and Casey (Kyle) Elfe; three great-grandchildren; a sister, Marie Elquist; and many nieces and nephews. She was preceded in death by her parents, an infant daughter, a granddaughter, and six brothers and sisters.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Friday, July 30, at the Paul LDS Stake Center, 424 W. Ellis St., with Bishop Brett D. Thomas officiating. Burial will be in Gem Memorial Gardens. Friends may call from 6 until 8 p.m. Thursday, July 29, at the Rasmussen Funeral Home, 1350 E. 16th St. in Burley, and from 10 until 10:45 a.m. Friday at the church.

The family suggests memorials be directed to the Mini-Cassia Shelter for Women and Children or to the Burley Public Library.

Flora Belle Van Winkle

BUHL — Flora Belle Hensley Van Winkle, 87, passed away Monday, July 26, 2010, at the Desert View Care Center in Buhl.

She was born in Hardy, Neb., on June 5, 1923. She was the eldest of eight, who all preceded her in death. On March 19, 1944, she married the love of her life, Dale Van Winkle, and they spent 67 loving years together. Dale worked for Boeing Aircraft and, until retirement, they lived in various parts of the country as his job demanded. In 1982, they moved to Buhl and spent summers there and were snowbirds, going south to Arizona during the winters.

Flora is survived by her husband, Dale Van Winkle of Buhl; five children, Cheryl Goodwin of Filer, Gary Van Winkle (Dustie) of Buhl, Dennis Van Winkle (Margie) of Torrance, Calif., Steve Van Winkle of Omaha, Neb., and Kirk Van Winkle (Alexis) of Gold Canyon, Ariz. She and Dale had 10 grandchildren, 13 great-grandchildren and four great-great-grandchildren. She is also survived by two aunts who were like sisters to her, Harline Powell (Clark) of Edgar, Neb., and Madeline Thompson (Earl) of Buhl.

Flora was a dedicated wife and homemaker. She loved her family, traveling, dancing, reading, playing cards and meeting new people. She never knew a stranger and always had a smile for all. She will be greatly missed.

A memorial service will be 11 a.m. Friday, July 30, at Farmer Funeral Chapel, 130 N. Ninth Ave. in Buhl.

Paul Junior Wright

Paul Junior Wright, 90, of Twin Falls, passed away Saturday, June 26, 2010, at his home.

Paul was born June 26, 1920, in Peebles, Ohio, the son of Lewis Van Buren Wright and Nora Shively Wright. On May 20, 1960, in Reno, Nev., he married his sweetheart, Vendetta Howe. He graduated from Twin Falls High School in 1938 and attended a seminary in Ohio. He was a dedicated pastor for the Church of the Brethren and served in several pastorates across the country. He retired as an auditor with Allstate Insurance Company.

Survivors include four stepchildren, Marge Matthews, Richard Haueter, William Hollibaugh and Vendee Helms; several grandchildren, great-grandchildren and great-great-grandchildren. His wife, Vendetta; parents; a sister; and a brother preceded him in death.

A memorial service for Paul will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, July 31, at the Church of the Brethren in Twin Falls, with Pastor Mark Bausman officiating.

Robert 'Bob' Lee Hume

GOODING — Robert "Bob" Lee Hume, 86, formerly of Gooding, passed over after a long illness on Sunday, July 25, 2010, in Bozeman, Mont.

Bob was born in Gooding, Idaho, to Roy and Marion Hume. He attended Gooding schools. He joined the service in 1942. He attended one year of flight school training to be a pilot. He held the record at the school for one-arm pushups! Bob was transferred to England during the war. They needed Ball-Turret gunners on the B-17s. He flew 11 missions and received the air medal.

He returned to Gooding, where he married Mary Nadine Higgins on March 24, 1946. They had four children, Jimmy, Mary, Tim and Julie. In 1955, the family moved to Pocatello. Bob held an advertising position with an exclusive men's clothing store called Block's. Bob loved advertising and was in this position for 36 years.

As a young man, Bob loved to hunt and fish and be outdoors. He was a great fisherman. As Bob grew older he lost his appetite for hunting and fishing. He loved photography and he liked to work in his garden. He took special pride in his photography and won several first place blue ribbons at the county fair.

In the early '80s, Bob and Nadine built a cabin at Henry's Lake. This was a new chapter in their lives and they loved it. A beautiful new cabin, new friends, spectacular scenery of the Centennial Mountains, Henry's Lake, the Tetons and all of the migrating birds and wildlife. As Dad's health declined, Bob and Nadine moved to Bozeman, Mont., to be near their daughter, Julie.

Dad's last year of life was spent at Mountain Care Center. Bob died early in the morning surrounded by his loving family.

My father's body will be returned to his beloved homeland. He will be returning to his favorite place in the world. Almost all of our family has returned to Gooding to be buried in the Elmwood Cemetery. My father now joins a great circle of friends and family that have gone on before him. I know he will be happy to see all of the loved ones that have been so sorely missed over the years.

Bob is survived by his wife, Nadine; one brother, Jim (Ladene) Hume; his children, Mary Hume, Tim (Sherry) Hume and Julie Hume; two grandchildren; one great-grandchild; and numerous nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by his parents; and one son, Jimmy Hume.

We will miss you, Dad, with all our hearts. We will love you forever.

The funeral will be held at 2:30 p.m. Friday, July 30, at Demaray Funeral Service, Gooding Chapel. Military graveside rites will follow at the Elmwood Cemetery in Gooding.

A reception will follow at the home of Robert Whipkey in Hagerman. A special thank you to Robert for opening his home for the reception. Condolences can be sent at www.demaray-funeralservice.com.

FIELD OF DREAMS

The Burley High School's baseball facility will be the site of the American Legion Baseball Class A State Tournament.

Burley to show off field with American Legion state tourney

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

BURLEY — It isn't surrounded by cornfields — although there is some hay — and Devin Kunz swears he's never heard voices.

If it's not a "field of dreams," then at the very least, Burley High School's baseball facility has transformed into something the community can be proud of.

"We've done a lot of work on our field and we're ready to represent Burley real well," said Kunz, head coach of the Burley Green Sox American Legion Baseball team.

Since Kunz took over Burley's high school and legion baseball programs two years ago, the team has put in countless man-hours doing field work. In addition, the team has received more than $30,000 in donations from community members for improvements.

All the time and money invested will receive a payoff this weekend. The field will be showcased as Burley hosts the American Legion Baseball Class A State Tournament, Thursday through Sunday.

"We're going to make the town proud of us," Kunz said.

For the eight-team, double-elimination state tournament, the top Class A teams in the state will travel in from Pocatello, Idaho Falls, Boise, Nampa, Emmett, Moscow and Sandpoint. As the host team, the Burley Green Sox will also compete in the tourney.

"Hosting state is huge for us," said Burley player Fonzie Sanchez. "It's going to be a good atmosphere there, a lot of people, a lot of fun."

Over the past two years, Burley's field has received a total makeover. Some of the improvements include installation of a warning track, walk-ups from the dugouts, a batter's eye screen behind center field, new fencing and refurbished bullpens. High-quality fertilizers have made a lush playing surface, plus the infield grass was completely redone last year.

Not only is it a better field for the players, but several upgrades have been made to improve the fan experience as well. Spectators are greeted by a spruced-up entrance to the park. Everything has received a fresh coat of paint. Players' parents have worked to enhance the concession stand cuisine. The scoreboard was moved to a more viewable location and new backstop netting gives spectators a better view of the on-field action. The team also increased sponsorship sales to cover costs while offering free admission at regular-season home games.

None of the improvements could have been possible, Kunz says, without support from parents and community members.

"We've surrounded ourselves with good people," Kunz said. "It's impossible to do this alone. We have good parents, and you can't have a successful program without parents that volunteer."

Kunz says the community has been more willing to contribute because of the kids' high character.

"It's easy for people to help when we're doing the right thing and the kids are good kids," Kunz said. "We don't have knuckleheads over here. They're good kids who are putting in the time."

The players have provided most of the manual labor.

"As a team, we want to be there," said Burley catcher Kody Moon. "It's a pride issue. It's our field and we want to take care of it and represent Burley."

The labor could be hired out, but Kunz sees a teaching opportunity.

"They're taking ownership. It makes them feel good that it's their field and they did the work," Kunz said. "This is bigger than baseball. We're trying to teach them lifelong lessons that, if you work together and you work hard, you can accomplish a lot of things."

Several players and community members have expressed that they are willing to make an extra effort — on and off the field — because of the leadership of Kunz and assistant coach Mike Hill.

"I see Burley baseball going up, especially from my freshman year," said Sanchez, who graduated this spring. "Everything is different now, and I think that's the way it's going to stay as long as Kunzy and Hill are here."

While the field has improved, so has the level of play on it. Burley's high school squad went 12-37 (.244 winning percentage) in the two seasons before Kunz arrived. Under Kunz's two-year stewardship, the Bobcats improved to 23-36 overall (.389). In addition, Burley's legion team is 52-35 over the past two years.

"You've got to have a person you can believe in, and we all believe in Kunz to take us to that next level," Moon said. "We are building a good program and Kunz is developing it."

Kunz's vision is simple: If you build it, the athletes, parents, sponsors, fans — and especially the wins — will come.

Burley's field of dreams is starting to become a reality.

WAC MEDIA DAYS

La. Tech aiming to be WAC's next BSU

By Jason Chatraw
Times-News correspondent

SALT LAKE CITY — Louisiana Tech first-year coach Sonny Dykes made it clear who he is modeling his program after Tuesday morning at the second day of the Western Athletic Conference media preview.

"I hate that Boise State is leaving," Dykes said. "They're the model, but I'm excited that it gives everybody else a chance to become the next Boise State — and ultimately that's what we want to do."

However, Dykes will be building his program without former Oregon quarterback Jeremiah Masoli.

"The only thing I can say about it is that we're not recruiting (Masoli) any more," Dykes said. "We had the blessing of our school president (Daniel Reneau) to pursue him if we felt like it was a good fit. But the more we learned about him, we felt like it wasn't in our best interest to try to bring him into the program."

Masoli, who has one more year of eligibility remaining but was kicked off the Oregon team by head coach Chip Kelly after multiple legal troubles, is still available for any school that will take a chance on him. When Ole Miss quarterback Raymond Cotton announced his plans to transfer last week, rumors of Masoli heading to Ole Miss heated up, though he has yet to sign with anyone ahead of fall practice.

Dykes, who takes over as the Bulldogs' head coach this season for Derek Dooley, served as the offensive coordinator at Arizona for the previous three seasons. But moving from the PAC-10 to the WAC isn't the smooth transition he once believed it would be due to the style of play.

"In the PAC-10 you think it's going to be a wide-open league, but it's really a pro-style league," Dykes said. "The perceptions really aren't true at all. I was like everybody else. I was from Texas and I thought we invented football and we're going to go out west and murder those guys and show them how to play football. But that just wasn't the case."

Other news from Tuesday's interviews:

CSI men add VCU transfer, Brazilian forward

Golden Eagles have four scholarship spots remaining for 2010-11 season

By Mike Christensen
Times-News writer

College of Southern Idaho men's basketball coach Steve Gosar confirmed Tuesday the addition of two signees for the 2010-11 roster.

The Golden Eagles have added Virginia Commonwealth transfer Issiah Grayson and Brazilian big man Gerson do Espirito Santo Junior.

A 5-foot-11 point guard, Grayson saw limited minutes in 13 games as a freshman for a 27-9 VCU squad.

The Atlanta product spent his senior year of high school at Findlay Prep in Nevada where he helped his team go 33-0 as a backup to former Texas guard Avery Bradley, the No. 19 pick of the Boston Celtics in June's NBA Draft.

Gosar compared Grayson to returning point guard Pierre Jackson.

"He's very, very fast," said Gosar. "He's a small point guard that handles the ball well, shoots it well. He takes care of the ball very well, makes very sound decisions."

Gosar said Grayson and Jackson could often play together, much like Chuck Odum and Jackson did last season.

Espirito Santo Junior is from a small town outside of Rio de Janeiro. A 6-foot-10 forward with a thin 200-pound frame, he is a "very skilled four-man that's very athletic," according to Gosar.

"He runs the court well, can pick and pop and shoot out to the 3-point line."

While Gosar hasn't seen film on the Brazilian, he said trusted sources rave about his work ethic, upside and willingness to be coached.

Gosar has four more scholarships to work with for the coming season and said the biggest need is on the wing.

"We need a few guys that can guard on the perimeter and get to the cup," said Gosar. "... Someone who can score off the bounce."

An additional power forward is also on the wish list. CSI returns three players with starting experience from last year's 22-10 squad, including Jackson, center Kenny Buckner and forward Dennis Mikelonis.

The other guards signed for the coming campaign are Kevin Attila, Jerrold Brooks, Mitch Bruneel and Ben Van Lith. The front line includes Kevin Davis, Paul Bunch and Chris Patton.

CSI also has three invited walk-ons in former Twin Falls player Jon Pulsifer, guard Athley Lwal and forward Cameron Bowen.

CSI opens the season Nov. 11, hosting Idaho Select in the Gordon Paving Invitational.

Mike Christensen may be reached at sports@magicvalley.com or 735-3239.

TCU picked to repeat in Mountain West Conf.

The Associated Press

LAS VEGAS — TCU is still on top in the Mountain West Conference.

The Horned Frogs received all 31 first-place votes in the league's preseason media poll, released Tuesday.

"Probably what that means is that we have good talent. Now we have to live up to it," TCU coach Gary Patterson said. "I think that's the whole thing. It doesn't matter what people say about them in August. Preseason goes off of what happened last year."

And last year was great for the Horned Frogs, who finished 12-1. The only loss was to Boise State in the Fiesta Bowl.

TCU has 16 returning starters, including preseason offensive player of the year Andy Dalton. The senior quarterback, who was the 2009 MWC offensive player of year, is one of nine starters coming back on offense.

TCU linebacker Tank Carder was named the preseason player of the year on defense and kick returner Jeremy Kerley got the special teams honor Tuesday.

Utah is picked to finish second in its last season before joining the Pac-10. BYU is third, followed by Air Force, Wyoming, San Diego State and Colorado State.

UNLV is eighth as new coach Bobby Hauck takes over the program and New Mexico is picked to repeat at ninth after going 1-11 last year — just 1-7 in the MWC.

Chicago White Sox Paul Konerko watches his solo home run against the Seattle Mariners in the second inning during a baseball game in Chicago, Tuesday. Chicago won 11-0.

White Sox go yard in win over Seattle

CHICAGO — Alexei Ramirez, Andruw Jones and Paul Konerko homered for the Chicago White Sox in an 11-0 win over the Seattle Mariners on Tuesday.

Ramirez finished with three hits and three RBIs and Jones drove in three runs for the White Sox, who led 8-0 after three innings. A.J. Pierzynski hit a two-out, two-run single in Chicago's four-run first against Ryan Rowland-Smith (1-10).

The Mariners have lost 18 of their last 24 games and are 6-18 in July. They were shut out for the seventh time and are last in the majors in several offensive categories.

INDIANS 4, YANKEES 1

CLEVELAND — Josh Tomlin took a shutout into the eighth inning against Alex Rodriguez and New York to win his major league debut with Cleveland.

Getting one more chance at hitting his 600th homer with two outs in the ninth inning, Rodriguez grounded into a forceout to shortstop to end the game. A-Rod went 0 for 4 on his 35th birthday.

RAYS 3, TIGERS 2

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — James Shields gave up two runs over 6 2-3 innings, and Matt Joyce hit a tiebreaking RBI double for Tampa Bay.

Shields (9-9) allowed nine hits, one walk and had seven strikeouts one day after teammate Matt Garza threw the Rays' first no-hitter. Tampa Bay went up 3-2 when Joyce had a broken-bat run-scoring double during the sixth.

BLUE JAYS 8, ORIOLES 2

TORONTO — Jose Bautista hit two home runs, giving him a major league-leading 30, and Ricky Romero pitched 7 2-3 strong innings in Toronto's 11th straight win over Baltimore. It was the fifth multi-homer game of the season for Bautista.

RANGERS 3, ATHLETICS 1, 10 INNINGS

ARLINGTON, Texas — Nelson Cruz hit a two-run homer in the bottom of the 10th to lift Texas over Oakland after Rangers starter Cliff Lee struck out a career-high 13 and scattered five hits in a nine-inning no-decision.

TWINS 11, ROYALS 2

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Danny Valencia drove in three runs, Carl Pavano won his eighth straight decision and the Minnesota Twins battered Kansas City, completing the worst three-game pitching span in Royals history.

NATIONAL LEAGUE NATIONALS 3, BRAVES 0

WASHINGTON — With Stephen Strasburg suddenly scratched, reliever Miguel Batista was pressed into making his first start in nearly two years.

The 39-year-old journeyman allowed three singles in five scoreless innings, and two throwing errors hurt Atlanta starter Tommy Hanson as the last-place Nationals beat the NL East-leading Braves.

PHILLIES 9, DIAMONDBACKS 5

PHILADELPHIA — Ryan Howard hit a tiebreaking two-run homer, and Jayson Werth and Cody Ransom also connected for Philadelphia in its season-high sixth straight win.

METS 8, CARDINALS 2

NEW YORK — Shut out four times during a 2-9 road trip, New York came home and ended Adam Wainwright's career-best scoreless streak at 26 innings. Wainwright (14-6) allowed a season-worst six runs.

Jeff Francoeur hit a three-run homer and Jose Reyes added a two-run shot, while Jonathon Niese (7-4) and the Mets handed the NL Central leaders their fourth loss in five games.

ASTROS 6, CUBS 1

HOUSTON — Brett Myers pitched a complete game and Lance Berkman hit his first grand slam for Houston since 2008.

It is the 10th career complete game for Myers (8-6) and his first since May. He allowed four hits and struck out a career high-tying 12 batters.

PIRATES 4, ROCKIES 2

DENVER — Zach Duke threw six solid innings to help the Pittsburgh Pirates snap a four-game skid Tuesday night with a 4-2 win over a reeling Colorado Rockies team that lost Huston Street to a freak injury before the game.

REDS 12, BREWERS 4

MILWAUKEE — Brandon Phillips, Joey Votto and Scott Rolen had four hits apiece and the Cincinnati Reds roughed up Milwaukee Brewers ace Yovani Gallardo.

Feds seek records from '04 Armstrong doping case

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Federal prosecutors investigating cheating in professional cycling have subpoenaed documents from a 2004 case in which a Texas company tried to prove Lance Armstrong used performance enhancing drugs.

Jeffrey Tillotson, the attorney who handled the case for Dallas-based SCA Promotions Inc., said Tuesday that his office will send the documents to federal prosecutors in Los Angeles.

The records include depositions from former Tour de France winner Greg LeMond, former Armstrong teammate Frankie Andreu and his wife, and testimony from Armstrong and his business associates. The Wall Street Journal first reported the subpoena Tuesday.

Armstrong has not received any subpoenas or official requests from federal investigators, according to his attorney, Bryan D. Daly, a criminal defense lawyer and former federal prosecutor based in Los Angeles.

“Truthfully, I don’t have any idea how Lance Armstrong fits into this whole thing,” Daly said. “Lance Armstrong doesn’t want to be stuck in the middle of a celebrity investigation.”

Armstrong and SCA went to arbitration after the company withheld a $5 million performance bonus it owed Armstrong for his 2004 Tour de France win. SCA had cited published allegations Armstrong was doping, which he denied.

The cyclist never has failed a drug test and has strongly denied all allegations he participated in doping.

The 2004 case ended with SCA paying Armstrong $7.5 million, covering the original contract plus attorneys fees and interest. Sean Breen, one of Armstrong’s attorneys in the SCA case, said most of the case testimony already had been leaked in recent years.

“There’s nothing in (the subpoenaed documents) that hasn’t been released or would support any contention he was doping or cheated,” Breen said.

Federal prosecutors’ investigation was spurred by more recent accusations from Floyd Landis, Armstrong’s former teammate on the U.S. Postal team. Armstrong has denied the allegations and questioned Landis’ credibility.

Armstrong won the Tour de France a record seven times from 1999-2005, an era that started after his recovery from testicular cancer that had spread to his lungs and brain.

The SCA case involved three weeks of testimony from dozens of witnesses. Betsy Andreu claimed that days after Armstrong underwent brain surgery in 1996, he told a doctor he used the blood-boosting hormone EPO and other drugs. Frankie Andreu also gave similar testimony.

Armstrong denied those claims and his lawyer released an affidavit from the doctor who led his chemotherapy treatments saying there is no medical record of any such admission.

“I would have recorded such a confession as a matter of form, as indeed, would have my colleagues,” Dr. Craig Nichols said. “None was recorded.”

Other allegations in the case included LeMond saying Armstrong threatened his life, a charge Armstrong dismissed as “ridiculous.” America’s top two cyclists have feuded for years.

USA Swimming has 2nd list of people under scrutiny

By Paul Newberry
Associated Press writer

USA Swimming acknowledged to The Associated Press on Tuesday that it has a second list of people who are under suspicion for unscrupulous behavior, having already banned 46 coaches and officials for life, mostly for sexual misconduct.

The board met in Newark, N.J., to sign off on measures that will be voted on at the national convention in September, another step in its efforts to cope with numerous allegations of coaches abusing underage athletes. They included a new athlete protection policy, expanded background checks and a requirement that all adults who interact with swimmers become members of the organization. USA Swimming president Jim Wood also told the AP there's a second list of people who've been "flagged" for alleged misconduct against swimmers but haven't faced any disciplinary action because they aren't current members. That will change — the board voted Tuesday to take those cases before the National Board of Review.

Those who decline to attend an NBOR hearing or lose their case will be added to the list of banned officials that was released last month, Wood said. He did not know how many people were on the flagged list, which was disclosed publicly for the first time. USA Swimming didn't immediately respond to an additional request for the number of people on the list. "Some of them were added recently. Some have been there for a period of time," Wood said. "They were nonmembers of the organization that we heard things about and we put them on a list to make sure if they ever tried to become a USA Swimming coach, they would be flagged here." At least one is a former member coach who quit the organization after being confronted with allegations of statutory rape. Dave Goble, secretary of the group's Michigan chapter, said he recently checked on the ex-coach's status with USA Swimming and was told he had not been banned for life but was on the flagged list. "There are many accusations in his background," Goble told the AP. "In my estimation, he should not be dealing with children." The most prominent name on the banned list is former national team director Everett Uchiyama, who quit in 2006 after being accused of having a decade-long relationship with a swimmer that began when she was 14. He never faced criminal charges and turned up less than a year later as the aquatics director at the Country Club of Colorado, only about five miles from USA Swimming's headquarters in Colorado Springs. Uchiyama hastily resigned from the club after the banned list was published. He landed the job with a recommendation by Pat Hogan, who leads USA Swimming's club development. There are at least four ongoing lawsuits against the governing body, contending it has covered up wrongdoing and allowed a culture of abuse to exist in the coaching ranks. Ed Vazquez, a spokesman for attorneys in several of those cases, said he was surprised to learn of the second list and reiterated his belief that no meaningful changes will occur until the current leadership is replaced. "This list raises lots of questions," Vazquez said. "How long have they known about the individuals on the list? Did they investigate them? Did they notify law enforcement if they committed any kind of crime?"

Bengals reach deal with Owens

CINCINNATI — A year after they were featured on HBO's "Hard Knocks," the Bengals have scripted their own reality show. T.O. and Ocho. Two self-conscious stars, one NFL team.

How will they fit? How will it work? Which receiver will provide most of the drama? And, more importantly, will any of it help the Bengals get back to the playoffs?

The Bengals reached a contract agreement with receiver Terrell Owens on Tuesday, two persons familiar with the situation told The Associated Press. He's expected to report to training camp in a day or two and sign a one-year deal that will pay him $2 million with a chance for an additional $2 million in bonuses.

The Bengals were his first choice, giving him a chance to team with close friend Chad Ochocinco, who has already dubbed the pair Batman and Robin. The Bengals made an offer on Monday, and Owens accepted a day later.

Players are required to report for the start of training camp on Wednesday in Georgetown, Ky. Owens is expected to show up when workouts begin on Thursday, said one person speaking on condition of anonymity because the team had made no announcement.

On his Twitter account, all Owens would say was, "Hoping 2 b a Bengal w/in the 24hrs!!" He's expected to sign his deal with he arrives in Georgetown. Already, it's like something out of a reality show.

Ochocinco gushed about the matchup on his Twitter feed, welcoming Owens and joking that "all of our games have been moved to pay-per-view, you got to pay to see this!"

In the middle will be quarterback Carson Palmer, who helped bring Owens to Cincinnati. Palmer worked out with Owens in California and called coach Marvin Lewis, saying the team ought to try to sign him.

"He and Chad are going to do some great things with Carson," said Drew Rosenhaus, the agent for both receivers. "Carson Palmer had a lot to do with this deal coming together."

RAIDERS HARD-HITTING JACK TATUM DIES AT 61

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Jack Tatum, the Pro Bowl safety for the Oakland Raiders best known for his crushing hit that paralyzed Darryl Stingley in an NFL preseason game in 1978, has died. He was 61.

Nicknamed "The Assassin," Tatum, died of a heart attack Tuesday in an Oakland hospital, according to friend and former Ohio State teammate John Hicks. Hicks said Tatum had diabetes the past several years, and had lost his left leg because of circulation problems.

On Aug. 12, 1978, in a preseason game against the New England Patriots, the hard-hitting Tatum slammed into Stingley with his helmet while the receiver was running a pass pattern. The blow severed Stingley's fourth and fifth vertebrae and left the receiver paralyzed from the neck down. The two never met after the hit. Stingley died in 2007.

Tatum was not penalized on the play and the NFL took no disciplinary action, but it did tighten its rules on violent hits.

Despite Tatum's failure to show remorse, Hicks said Tatum was haunted by the play. "It was tough on him, too," Hicks said. "He wasn't the same person after that. For years he was almost a recluse."

COWBOYS' BRYANT NEVER EXPECTED PADS TO BE AN ISSUE

SAN ANTONIO — Dez Bryant insists he was unaware of the rookie ritual of carrying a veteran's shoulder pads after practice. The Dallas Cowboys' first-round pick would have done more than that had he known his refusal to accommodate Roy Williams' request would become such a big issue.

"I told Roy this ... he could have walked in with his tights on," Bryant said after the first of Dallas' two practices Tuesday. "I would have took his shoulder pads, his pants, his helmet, his socks, his shoes. I would have took everything. But you know what, that's not even an issue."

Bryant, the talented receiver who slipped to 24th overall in the draft because of questions about his character and talk of him skipping meetings and classes at Oklahoma State, said he is trying to do all the right things with the Cowboys at training camp.

"But it seems like I can't do the right thing because every little thing that I do (reporters) watch it and try to make a big deal out of it," Bryant said.

STEELERS UNSURE IF QB'S SUSPENSION WILL BE CUT

PITTSBURGH — The Pittsburgh Steelers expect to go through most or all of training camp without knowing the exact date when quarterback Ben Roethlisberger can play again.

NFL commissioner Roger Goodell plans to visit the Steelers' camp on Aug. 5, but the stop is not specifically related to Roethlisberger's six-game suspension for violating the NFL's personal conduct policy. Goodell is visiting seven training camps during the first week of August.

Goodell said the suspension could be reduced by two games if Roethlisberger has no more behavioral issues and does all that is asked by the league. Roethlisberger was suspended April 21 after being accused of, but not charged with, sexually assaulting a Georgia college student in March.

"Toward the end of training camp is the timetable to find out," Steelers president Art Rooney II said Tuesday.

The Steelers' final preseason game is Sept. 2. They open the season at home Sept. 12 at Atlanta, but the earliest that the two-time, Super Bowl-winning quarterback can return is Oct. 17 against Cleveland.

USC COACH LANE KIFFIN SURPRISED BY TITANS SUIT

NEW YORK — Southern California coach Lane Kiffin says he was surprised by the lawsuit filed against him and USC by the Tennessee Titans after he hired away one of the NFL team's assistant coaches.

Kiffin hired Kennedy Pola on Saturday to be offensive coordinator and running backs coach for the Trojans.

Titans coach Jeff Fisher said he was upset by the fact that Kiffin didn't contact him before reaching out to Pola.

On Monday, Tennessee Football Inc., the company that owns the Titans, filed a suit accusing Kiffin and USC of violating Pola's contract.

Kiffin, in New York on Tuesday for a Pac-10 media event, says Pola's hiring "was done no differently than any we did at SC or Tennessee. I didn't anticipate this. No one would have."

HARSHER LANGUAGE ON CONCUSSIONS IN NEW NFL POSTER

NEW YORK — The NFL will distribute a new poster to teams that warns of the dangers from concussions in much harsher language than the league had previously used.

Traumatic brain injury "may lead to problems with memory and communication, personality changes, as well as depression and the early onset of dementia," the document reads. "Concussions and conditions resulting from repeated brain injury can change your life and your family's life forever."

The acknowledgment of such risks is a significant change from a pamphlet previously distributed to players, starting in 2007.

That pamphlet said: "Current research with professional athletes has not shown that having more than one or two concussions leads to permanent problems if each injury is managed properly."

BSU president talks about Idaho rivalry

Following is a statement from Boise State University President Dr. Robert Kustra:

During an editorial board meeting with the Idaho Statesman, I was asked to comment on Coach Petersen's statements from the WAC media day regarding the future of the Boise State-Idaho rivalry game. I agree with the Coach in this matter that if the game continues, it should be held in Boise and not a home-and-home series. I think there are good reasons for that position.

I'm afraid their questions hit a sore spot, however, as someone had sent me the recent "Reasons to Hate Boise State" article from the U of I student newspaper. It troubles me that the occasion of an annual football game causes the air waves and Internet to be full of disparagement of Boise State's students, faculty and programs, year after year. I have tremendous pride in Boise

State, and my response was harsher than I intended.

I have enjoyed my working relationship with U of I's president, Dr. Duane Nellis, and the friendship of many of the University of Idaho's alumni in the Valley. I think Idaho's universities are working together better than ever, thanks in no small measure to the encouragement and leadership of the members of the State Board of Education.

I hope that all of us can demonstrate civility and sportsmanship for the rivalry game this year and remember that the two universities share mutual goals of excellence in education, affordability, and pride as an Idaho institution of higher learning.

As it should be, I plan to leave the scheduling of football games to our very able athletic director, Gene Bleymaier, as I have for the past seven years.

Pac-10 announces name change in New York

NEW YORK (AP) — For years people in the Pac-10 — from players to fans — have complained about a lack of recognition and a so-called East Coast bias that caused the conference to be underappreciated nationally.

Commissioner Larry Scott, who grew up in New York on Long Island, decided that instead of complaining it was time for the league to do something about it.

Say goodbye to the old Pac-10. The league has a new logo, a new more aggressive attitude and two new members scheduled to arrive in 2011. And when Colorado and Utah officially join, the conference will also have a new name.

The Pac-12 is on its way. "We will be mathematically correct going forward," Scott said Monday at a news conference at a Manhattan hotel.

Scott brought all his football coaches and a few of his star quarterbacks — including Washington's Jake Locker and Stanford's Andrew Luck — to the Big Apple for a couple of days to draw a some more attention to a conference that has been making plenty of headlines this offseason.

In June, Scott nearly turned the Pac-10 into the Pac-16 — and in the process nearly killed the Big 12.

But Texas, Oklahoma and three other Big 12 teams decided to stay put and Scott had to settle for adding Colorado and Utah.

It was a bold move by a conference known for being anything but. Scott, about to start his second season as commissioner, says he received a mandate from the university presidents he works for to remake the league and he's embraced that task.

"I spent my first three months kind of listening," he said. "The common refrain I kept hearing was everyone recognized the excellence of the Pac-10 here on the West Coast but we don't feel we get the respect we deserve nationally. "It seemed to be a bit of an excuse and that the Pac-10 in my estimation was very laid back and passive in terms of how it went about telling its story and promoting itself," he said.

"To me the disconnect was people worried about that but they were not really doing much about it."

The Pac-10 has been holding its football preseason media event at an airport hotel in Los Angeles for years. The one-day event drew little attention west of Arizona, especially in comparison to the multiple-day media circuses run by other power conferences such as the Southeastern Conference, Big Ten and Big 12.

Scott attended his first Pac-10 football media day last year and was less than impressed.

"This can't be how we're promoting ourselves," he said was his reaction.

San Jose State, which was assessed an Academic Progress Rate penalty of seven scholarship losses for its football program in 2008, will play at least five offensive starters on the other side of the ball in limited situations and for certain packages.

Ailao Eliapo, Wade O'Neill, Brandon Rutley, Ray Rodriguez and Dominique Hunsucker were five players that MacIntyre noted who would definitely be playing on both sides of the ball this season. MacIntyre also anticipates tight end Ryan Otten may see playing time on defense as well. "I just thought it was a way to help our team depth-wise," said MacIntyre, who began his search for greater depth in spring practice by having players practice with both units each day.

"You have to realize that when we recruit these guys out of high school, almost all of them play both ways. So when players come to college, you usually put them in a situation where they can help you the quickest, but with our depth situation I wasn't able to do that."

While MacIntyre has players pegged for both sides of the field, his quarterback situation is still up in the air as the team enters fall practice. Redshirt freshman Dasmen Stewart, junior college transfer Matt Faulkner and returning starter Jordan La Secla will be the three competing for starting job.

"There's still no clear-cut starter," MacIntyre said. "We're going to go through the first two weeks of fall camp and make a decision and run with it."

- New Mexico State coach DeWayne Walker hopes to boost the Aggies' flagging offense with the addition of offensive coordinator Mike Dunbar to his staff. Dunbar had success at Minnesota, Cal and Northwestern in implementing high-powered spread offenses.

"(Dunbar) is going to bring a little bit more open sets to run the ball and make defenses have to defend more of the field," Walker said. "He knows what to do and how to get himself out of trouble if we struggle offensively to score a lot of points on any given week."

Walker is also hoping to get running back Seth Smith some more support. Smith, a walk-on last season who rushed for more than 1,000 yards, shouldered the Aggies' offensive load. However, junior college All-American Kenny Turner transfers in to join Smith in the backfield.

"We felt like we needed to get Seth a little bit of help with some other playmakers so he can have a better season," Walker said.

Department of the Interior, Bureau Of Land Management
Notice of Realty Action: Recreation and Public Purposes Act Classification for Conveyance of Public Lands in Blaine County, Idaho; IDI-36299

SUMMARY: Pursuant to regulations found at 43 CFR 2400.0-3(a) and in accordance with Section 7 of the Taylor Grazing Act (43 U.S.C. 315f), the following described public land in Blaine County, Idaho, has been examined by the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) and found suitable for classification and conveyance under the provisions of the Recreation and Public Purposes Act (R&PP), as amended (43 U.S.C. 869 et seq.). R&PP Act, as amended (43 U.S.C. 869 et seq.). The area described contains 242.72 acres, more or less, in Blaine County. In accordance with the R&PP Act, Blaine County has filed an application for the following described public land for (1) expansion of the existing Ohio Gulch transfer station (60 acres) and (2) recreation (182.72 acres): Area 1 Transfer Station (60 acres) Boise Meridian, T. 3 N., R. 18 E., sec. 15, W½E½NW¼, SE¼SW¼SW¼NW¼, S½SE¼SW¼NW¼; Area 2 Recreation (182.72 acres) Boise Meridian, T. 3 N., R. 18 E., sec. 10, Lot 3, SE¼SW¼SE¼SW¼, SW¼SE¼SE¼SW¼, and E½SE¼SE¼SW¼; sec. 15, W½NE¼, E½E½NW¼, NW¼NW¼SW¼, and N½NW¼SW¼.

The lands are not needed for Federal purposes and conveyance is in the public interest. The conveyance of public land is consistent with the BLM Shoshone Field Office Sun Valley Management Framework Plan, approved by the BLM in 1981 and amended by the Amendments to Shoshone Field Office Land Use Plans for Land Tenure Adjustment and Areas of Critical Environmental Concern (Amendment) in 2003. According to the Amendment (p. 11), the BLM prefers land disposal through R&PP Act patents to local or State governments because these entities are expected to provide long-term land management to meet the needs of the public. Blaine County meets this criterion, as its intent is continue existing recreational opportunities as well as to acquire public land to support infrastructure and extend community services.

The land will not be sold until at least 60 days after the date of publication of this notice in the Federal Register. Pursuant to the R&PP Act, permanent conveyances of land for recreation or historical monument purposes are made without charge to State and local governments. The special pricing schedule for land which will be government-controlled, used for government purposes, and serve the public (i.e. transfer stations) is $10 an acre, with a minimum price per conveyance of $50. The 60 acres to be used to expand the construction and demolition debris disposal area at the existing Ohio Gulch transfer station will be offered to Blaine County for $600.

Any patent issued to Blaine County will contain the following terms, conditions and reservations:

- The patent is subject to the provisions of the R&PP Act and to all applicable regulations of the Secretary of the Interior;
 - A right-of-way is reserved for ditches and canals constructed by the authority of the United States, Act of August 30, 1890 (43 U.S.C.945);
 - The patent is subject to valid existing rights. Subject to limitations prescribed by law and regulation, and prior to patent issuance, a holder of any right-of-way within the disposal area will be given the opportunity to amend the right-of-way for conversion to a new term, including perpetuity, if applicable;
 - The United States will maintain ownership of all minerals, together with the right to prospect for, mine, and remove such deposits from the same under applicable law and such regulations as the Secretary of the Interior may prescribe;
 - The patent is conditioned on the receipt of an appropriate indemnification clause protecting the United States from claims arising out of the patentee's use, occupancy, or operation of the premises; and
 - Any other terms and conditions deemed necessary or appropriate by the Authorized Officer.
- With respect to the 60 acres to be used for the transfer station expansion, the following additional provisions will be required:
- The patentee shall comply with all Federal and State laws applicable to the disposal, placement, or release of hazardous substances.
 - The patentee shall indemnify and hold harmless the United States against any legal liability or future costs that may arise out of any violations of such laws.
 - The land conveyed to the County shall revert to the United States unless substantially used in accordance with an approved plan and schedule of development on or before the day five years after the date of conveyance. However, no portion of the property shall revert to the United States if such portion has been used for solid waste disposal or for any other purpose that the authorized officer determines may result in the disposal, placement, or release of any hazardous substance.
 - If, at any time, the patentee transfers to another party ownership of any portion of the land not used for the purpose specified in the application and the approved plan of development, the patentee shall pay the BLM the fair market value, as determined by the authorized officer, of the transferred portion as of the date of transfer, including the value of any improvements thereon; and
 - No portion of the land covered by such patent shall under any circumstance revert to the United States if such portion has been used for solid waste disposal or for any other purpose that the authorized officer determines may result in the disposal, placement, or release of any hazardous substance.

With respect to the 182.72 acres that will be used for public recreation purposes, the following additional provisions will be required:

- Title to the property shall revert to the United States upon a finding, after notice and opportunity for a hearing, that, without the approval of the authorized officer:
- The patentee or its approved successor attempts to transfer title to or control over the lands to another;
 - The lands have been devoted to a use other than that for which the lands were conveyed;
 - The lands have not been used for the purpose for which they were conveyed for a 5-year period; or
 - The patentee has failed to follow the approved development plan or management plan.
- The Secretary of the Interior may take action to revert title in the United States if the patentee directly or indirectly permits his agents, employees, contractors, or subcontractors (including without limitation lessees, sublessees, and permittees) to prohibit or restrict the use of any part of the patented lands or any of the facilities thereon by any person because of such person's race, creed, color, sex or national origin.

On July 23, 2010, the above-described public land will be segregated from all other forms of appropriation under the public land laws, including the general mining laws, except for conveyance under the R&PP Act, leasing under the mineral leasing laws, and disposals under the mineral material disposal laws. The segregative effect will terminate upon issuance of a patent or publication in the Federal Register of a termination of the segregation.

Detailed information concerning the proposed conveyance, including the planning and environmental documents are available for review at the BLM Shoshone Field Office, 400 West F Street, Shoshone, Idaho. Normal business hours are 7:45 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, except for Federal holidays.

PUBLIC COMMENTS: Interested parties may submit comments involving the suitability of the land for (1) expansion of the existing Ohio Gulch transfer station and (2) recreation. Comments on the classification should be limited to whether the land is physically suited for the proposal, whether the use will maximize the future use or uses of the land, whether the use is consistent with local planning and zoning, or whether the use is consistent with State and Federal programs.

Interested parties may also submit comments regarding other proposed decisions for the R&PP Act application and plan of development, whether the BLM followed proper administrative procedures in reaching the decision to convey the described public land under the R&PP Act, or any other factor not directly related to the suitability of the land for recreation and public purposes.

Public comments should be submitted in writing to Ruth A. Miller, BLM Shoshone Field Manager, 400 West F Street, Shoshone, Idaho 83352, or before September 6, 2010. Electronic mail, facsimile, or telephone comments will not be considered properly filed. Any adverse comments will be reviewed by the BLM Idaho State Director. In the absence of any adverse comments, the classification of the land described in this notice will become effective on September 20, 2010. The land will not be available for conveyance until after the classification becomes effective. Before including your address, phone number, e-mail address, or other personal identifying information in your comment, be advised that your entire comment including your personal identifying information may be made publicly available at any time. While you can ask us in your comment to withhold from public review your personal identifying information, we cannot guarantee that we will be able to do so.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Tara Hagen, Realty Specialist, BLM Shoshone Field Office, 400 West F Street, Shoshone, Idaho 83352 or (208) 732-7205.

SUDOKU

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Concepts Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

IF JULY 28 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You have to keep on trucking for the next several weeks. Your heart might be in Vegas or Disneyland, but obligations could keep you at the grindstone. In October and November, when ambitions and climbing the ladder of success begin to take center stage, you may be glad you fulfilled your responsibilities with impeccable efficiency. In January, you might feel pressured to start a new job or enter into an important business commitment. If at all possible, wait until February when the stars smile more favorably on whatever you do. If you are looking for love, the signals will let you know if you are on the right path.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): The flames of your venturesome, entrepreneurial spirit may be doused by the wet blanket of rules and regulations. Write down ideas so you don't waste or forget them if other matters clamor for attention.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): True love and affection don't always manifest on cue. You might find that it takes more talking than kissing to maintain and nurture a key relationship. Talk over goals and ambitions with a partner.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You can't always get a chance to second-guess the results. You might not have the opportunity to make corrections or repairs, so get it right the first time. Research and study carefully before taking action.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Fake it to make it. People might think you are more skilled or desirable than you really are. This could be a good time to bluff your way to the top or to ask for favors and advice from your betters.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Major turning points may have financial implications. You might think that unexpected changes in the outside world require you to react but you should not make crucial alterations to your assets.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You hope to be the darling of the daring and the dangerous. Rather than overreacting to outside stimuli or searching for thrills and chills, buddy up to a creative person who is calm and tranquil.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Take three deep breaths and chant "Om." The unpredictability of others or the world at large may feed your anxieties. You may be able to get in touch with your inner serene center through meditation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Politics and policies can be perplexing. You would be wise to do extra research and dig a little deeper before moving forward with a business plan or deal. Take notes; your ideas can be valuable.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Inspire without causing ire. You must strike a balance between being quietly competent and flaming flamboyance. Your street smarts are on the downturn, so study your subject — and don't experiment.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): The Force is not with you. You hope to be known as the business maven who conquers the reckless and risky. Instead of investing money in an unstable market, invest more time in learning the ropes.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Being full of pluck can impinge on your polished performance. You walk the walk and talk the talk that makes others trust you. A tendency to take unnecessary chances can undermine results.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Taking a chance can be chancy. Rather than investing your money, invest time in new studies, reading and learning. This is a good time to grab a self-help book that inspires improvement and excellence.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"Thus the best human intelligence is still decidedly barbarous; it fights in heavy armour and keeps a fool at court."

— George Santayana

To celebrate the Summer Nationals currently taking place in New Orleans, all this week's deals come from last year's event.

Both tables did the right thing in the auction on this deal from the Senior Swiss. However, a slight difference in declarer's tactics at trick two earned the John Swanson team a game swing.

The North-South pairs at each table did well to land in three no-trump after North had opened one spade and East overcalled two clubs. At least that game had chances!

When Rich Oshlag was East, his wife, Mary, led the club nine. Declarer won dummy's club ace and advanced the heart queen. Rich ducked, won the next heart, and cashed the diamond ace and club king. He then led his other diamond, perhaps more in hope than expectation. But his hopes were answered, and when West produced the K-Q of diamonds, that was a swift down one.

At the other table, declarer Sid Brownstein won the club ace and could see that if he developed his game-going tricks in hearts, he would force the defenders to go after diamonds, making it almost impossible to prevent the defenders from taking five tricks.

So Brownstein, deciding to throw up a smokescreen, played a low diamond from dummy at once. Can you blame East for ducking? I can't, and now the diamond blockage meant the defenders could cash only four of their five tricks.

ANSWER: The simplest way to get your values across is to bid one no-trump. Although you might contemplate raising diamonds, your stoppers in the black suits and your decent high-card values argue for trying for no-trump. Your partner might expect more offense and less defense if you raise diamonds directly.

DEAR ABBY: My 89-year-old mother has always been difficult. She not only never loved me, she treated me as if she didn't like me, either. She told me she didn't send me a birthday card on my birthday last month because "What was it supposed to say — what a 'wonderful' person you are?" My children visibly winced when they heard her say it and worked extra-hard to make sure my day was special.

DEAR ABBY
 Jeanne Phillips

Abby, I have cancer. My prognosis is questionable. I was supposed to have been dead seven years ago — but I'm managing. My problem is, I recently was told that my mother has been keeping in touch with a single friend of mine from years ago, and they are making plans for her to marry my husband when I die! A few other so-called "friends" are in on this. This last betrayal is incredibly hurtful. Where do I go from here?

— J.C. IN CALIFORNIA
DEAR J.C.: Where do you go from here? As far away from your toxic mother as possible — and on to a long, and hopefully complete, remission!

DEAR ABBY: My daughter and 12-year-old grandson "Patrick" visit me on Sundays. Patrick watches TV in my office.

I was recently looking at the history on my Web browser after he had been there, and I noticed that Patrick had been visiting free porn sites and chat rooms on my computer.

I am disappointed that he has been looking at pornography and that he has put my computer at risk for viruses, etc. Should I talk to his parents? To him? Or should I ignore it and disable my computer when he visits?

— GRANDMA ON ALERT

DEAR GRANDMA: You should do all three — so that Patrick's parents can make certain that when he uses a computer at home he can be supervised. And if the parents haven't yet had "the talk" with their son, suggest they place it at the top of their agenda.

DEAR ABBY: I am 20, newly married and very happy with my new husband. I didn't tell my father when I got married; he just found out. When I moved out four months ago to live with my fiancé and his parents, I also didn't tell Dad I was engaged.

Dad called me to ask if it was true that I had gotten married. Of course I said yes, and he got very angry. He asked if I was pregnant and I told him no. Then he wished me luck with my husband, said we were on our own now, and he would be out of my life!

Abby, I have always been a daddy's girl. When it came time to get married, I didn't tell him because I knew he'd try to stop me. I love my father and don't want him out of my life. What should I do?

— NEWLYWED IN JACKSON, MICH.

DEAR NEWLYWED: Your father was extremely hurt by what you did. When a father loves his daughter, he looks forward to the day he will proudly walk her down the aisle, knowing the man she is marrying will be a stable partner. When you sneaked off, you took that away from him. He may also be upset that the young man you married isn't financially independent.
