Roads funding emerges as campaign issue

By Ben Botkin Times-News writer

In 2009, Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter's quest for roads funding led to neargridlock in the Legislature.

One year later, it's emerged as a key issue debated by both Otter and his Democratic challenger in the November election, Keith Allred. As campaign season hits its stride, a gubernatorial task force is working to modernize transportation funding, with a December – after the election.

Allred's proposal would reduce the gas tax from 25 cents per gallon to 22 cents per gallon for motorists, saving them an estimated $19.2 million yearly. That amount would then be shifted onto drivers of heavy trucks weighing more than 60,000 pounds, a move that Allred contends would be more fair.

"We've had four studies, and we've been deliberating on this issue for three years," Allred stated in a response to Otter later Tuesday. "Each one of those studies conissue. It's not about campaign rhetoric. It's about taking appropriate action."

The campaign aside, the study, completed by Wash.-based Richland, consulting group Battelle, is drawing criticism from the trucking industry.

Gooding moves forward with airport work, waits for funds

Times-News correspondent

GOODING - The city of Gooding expects to receive about $2.1 million from the Federal Aviation Administration to renovate its municipal airport.

The City Council on Monday unanimously approved a contract with Riedesel Engineers, of Twin Falls, for work tied to the FAA project. The contract, for time and materials, is capped at just less than $221,000 and is contingent upon the city receiving the grant fund-

"We're not going to proceed without (the funding)," said Martin Gergen, project engineer. Gergen approached the council about approving the contract so that the project will be ready to move forward as soon as the FAA releases the funds.

Councilman Vern France didn't have any problem with the city signing the contract, saying it's "moot anyway" if the funding falls through.

renovation of The Gooding Municipal Airport's runway, taxi area and a portion of the apron is expected to begin with a preconstruction meeting on Monday. Construction should start Aug. 16 and finish by the end of October.

City officials are proceeding with the work, trusting the federal funding is secure.

The FAA has given verbal confirmation of its contribution, said Public Works Director Todd Bunn

"We should have written confirmation within a week to 10 days," he said after the meeting.

The airport will be closed during the construction period.

Twin Falls-based Gordon Paving is the project contractor, said Airport Manager Dale Thomas.

He said the last time the runway had major work done was in the 1990s. With some 30,000 takeoffs and landings there each year, the facility is seeing some wear and tear, he said.

"We've got a pretty good feeling about being awarded the funds," Thomas said. "Based on everything we've heard it's all but final."

Former county clerk Mickelsen arraigned

Former Cassia County clerk Larry Mickelsen was arraigned Monday on a misdemeanor battery charge in Cassia County 5th District Court.

Mickelsen was charged with battery on July 16, stemming from an alleged incident that occurred a little more than a year ago another county employee.

He has pleaded not guilty to the charge.

Mickelsen also requested that a public defender be appointed to represent him, but the court denied the request, court records show.

Records state that a female coworker said Mickelsen, who was her supervisor at the time, allegedly grabbed her by both wrists as she was leaving her office.

Mickelsen, who served as county clerk for more than seven years, began working from home, and at his office only when other employees were off, after the alleged incident. He retired in February, citing health reasons for his decision to leave office.

No further court dates have been set for Mickelsen.

Gunshots, but no need to worry

Twin Falls County sheriff's deputies point out locations where gunshots were heard Tuesday afternoon near Shoshone Falls Park east of Twin Falls. Several officers canvassed the area for what turned out to be a homeowner shooting a gun into a berm on his nearby property.

IDAHO Man sentenced in pregnant wife's death

MOSCOW – A northern Idaho man Man gets 7 years for who pleaded guilty to voluntary manslaughter and first-degree arson in the death of his wife and unborn child will serve at least 20 years in prison.

Second District Judge Jeff Brudie sentenced Silas Parks on Tuesday to serve a maximum of 40 years.

Silas, a 26-year-old who prosecutors say strangled or suffocated a pregnant Sarah Parks and then set fire to their Moscow home last summer, was ordered to serve up to 40 years in prison — the maximum allowable sentence.

Parks was originally charged with two counts of murder, but pleaded guilty in mind last December when he tried to kill March to lesser charges as part of an agreement with prosecutors.

Teens and rape: It's worse than you think very year, the federal government's Centers for Disease Control and Prevention issues a state-by-state report on risky behavior by teenagers. As usual, Idaho's kids are pretty healthy, ranking in the bottom 10 nationally in obesity smoking, sex and drug use among high school students and in the top 10 in physical activity.

But when the CDC asked Idaho adolescent girls if they'd ever been physically forced to have sex, 14.4 percent said ves. That's the fourth-highest rate in the nation and a warning that teenage date rape is an especially serious problem here.

Given its social conservatism, relatively large percentage of church-goers and comparatively modest rate of alcohol use, the Gem State has more forcible rapes than you'd expect. Idaho's rape rate was tied for ninth in the nation in the most recent Crime in America report issued by the FBI.

In a 2003 National Violence Against Women report on rape in Idaho, authors Kenneth Rugiero and Dean Patrick estimated 19.9 percent of adult women in Idaho had been raped sometime during their lifetimes. Extrapolated to the current population, that works out to 111,452 Idaho adult female rape victims - including nearly 3,300 in Twin Falls, about 5,800 in Twin Falls County, roughly 1,600 each in Jerome and Blaine counties and 1,500 in Cassia County.

"Idaho has a substantial rape problem as reflected by our conservative estimate that about one of every five adult women ... has been the victim of forcible rape sometime in her lifetime," Rugiero and Patrick wrote. The national average is 13.4 percent.

Among Idaho girls, these numbers are especially alarming since a 16- to 19-year-old female is 3 ½ times more likely to be raped than an adult, according to the Boston-based Victim Rights Law Center. And adolescent rape victims are statistically less likely to press charges.

Earlier this year, the Idaho Legislature modified the state's statutory rape law to prevent young adults from going to jail for having consensual sex with their 16- and 17-year-old partners. But the change, prosecutors argued at the time, would hamper their ability to stop sexual and physical abuse.

Rape is a tough crime to prove at any age, especially in Idaho's rural counties where law enforcement resources are limited. But CDC statistics suggest that Idaho schools, parents, churches and communities have some work to do in better protecting teenage girls and raising awareness among them that sexual assault by someone they know is a very real threat.

JOTABLE

LOOK! IT'S EVEN BIGGER THAN

e could be in for a long, slow decade. There's a confluence of forces that are probably going to retard economic vitality.

Consumers are still overindebted, and it will take years of curtailed spending before households are back on a sustainable path. Federal and state governments also will have to pull back. Labor markets were ill before the recession and are worse now.

David Brooks

Our trading partners in Europe and Japan are stagnant or in peril. Banks in this country are not lending to small businesses and banks elsewhere have huge writedowns to endure. The psychological war between business and the Obama administration also is taking a toll. Business types think the administration is stuffed with clueless professors. Some administration officials think corporate honchos are free-market hypocrites prowling for corporate welfare.

What we have is not just a cycle but a condition. We could look back on the period between 1980 and 2006 as the long boom and the period between 2007 and 2014 or so as the nasty crawl.

Politically, this period could be akin to the late-1970s. Economic anxiety could produce good and bad ideological effusions. As the economy stutters, people will ask fundamental questions about the nature of our political-economic structures and come up with grand proposals to revive growth. The electorate could shift in ways hard to imag-

You could call the Democratic growth agenda the Moon Shot Approach. In this approach, government tries to spur economic development first by creating the context for growth with a big infrastructure program and then by focusing subsidies and tax credits on key sectors, like energy research.

The Republicans have their own growth agenda. You could call it the Unleash America Approach. The underlying worldview was deftly sketched out in Arthur C. Brooks' book, "The Battle: How the Fight Between Free Enterprise and Big Government Will Shape America's Future."

Brooks argues that Americans are a uniquely entrepreneurial people. A nation of immigrants, "America's vast success might be explained in part by our genetic predisposition to embrace risks with potentially explosive rewards."

Citing an array of polling data, Brooks argues that 70 percent of Americans embraces this free-market and entrepreneurial vision of their country. But 30 percent prefers a more government-centric, Europeanstyle vision. The battle, Brooks concludes, is between the 70 percent, trying to reclaim the country, and the 30 percent, which is now expanding the federal role on an array of fronts.

Paul Ryan, the most intellectually ambitious Republican in Congress, lavishly cites Brooks' book. Over the past few years, Ryan has been promoting a roadmap to comprehensively reform the nation's tax and welfare system. On the tax side, he would sweep away most of the specialinterest-favoring tax credits and subsidies and give people a chance to join a simple tax system with only two

On the welfare-state side, he'd sweep away most subsidies to the middle and upper classes, like the tax exemption on employee health plans. He'd essentially voucherize federal benefits, like health care and Social Security, and increase federal subsidies for people down the income scale.

The idea would be to end the complex and sclerotic arrangements and solve the fiscal crisis. The effect would be to radically reduce the power of federal policy makers and shift discretion onto individuals.

Both the Democratic and Republican approaches have problems. The Moon Shot Approach relies on omniscient experts to pick out the engines of future growth and on public-spirited legislators to pass bills that maximize productivity instead of special-interest favors. The weakness of the Brooks and Ryan approach is that their sociology is off a bit. America is not a nation of risk-embracing pioneers. It is a nation of heroic bourgeois families who want to thrive within a secure social order. The economic debate is not as Manichaean as the culture war since most people are split down the middle and because it's easier to compromise on money than on life.

Still, these two visions are better than the nativist and antiglobalist visions that will be arising. And despite the tough battle talk, they are combinable. At his best, Ryan wants to cleanse and rejuvenate the nation — to sweep away the specialinterest sclerosis that strangles flexibility and growth. At his best, Obama wants to create a context for innovation — to employ blue-collar workers and to spur growth clusters like Silicon Valley.

The two projects are in tension, but in a sane political culture they are not mutually exclusive. It should be possible to simplify the tax code, target welfare spending and also build strong infrastructure at the same time.

Puzzling through the maze of road work

My wife, Mary, and I live on the west side of Twin Falls. We are deeply grateful to the Idaho Department of Transportation and whichever city officials are involved in giving us a daily mental challenge.

We are both retired (near 70 years of age) and concerned about possible declines in our mental states. However, IDT and friends have come to our rescue by working on Washington Street North, Falls Avenue

West, Pole Line Road extension. Wendell Street. Parkway Drive extension and the Chenev Drive extension all at the same time!

We normally do crossword puzzles and Sudokus to stay mentally sharp. But these can be repetitive and the rules don't change from day to day. But thanks to IDT, simple ordinary tasks such as grocery shopping or visits to the doctor or post office have now become quite puzzling. The routes from our house to any of these places can change radically on any given day. This keeps our brain function decline from accelerating over prime retirement years.

We feel that all of Twin Falls could benefit. Next year, Eastland Avenue, Falls Avenue East and Addison Avenue could be simultaneously closed to give old timers on the East side of the city a comparable mental challenge.

Again, our thanks are extended to all of those responsible. Without you, we'd be deeper into dementia, I guess!

THE LIGHTER SIDE OF POLITICS

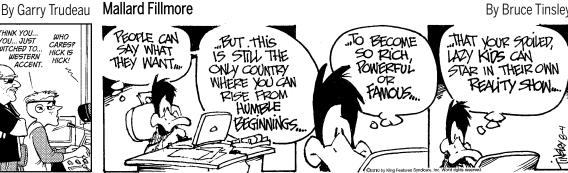

Doonesbury

By Bruce Tinsley

The culture of progressive disillusionment

hy does the Obama administration keep looking for love in all the wrong places? Why does it go out of its way to alienate its friends, while wooing people who will never waver in their hatred?

These questions were inspired by the ongoing suspense over whether President Obama will do the obviously right thing and nominate Elizabeth Warren to lead the new consumer financial protection agency. But the Warren affair is only the latest chapter in an ongoing saga.

Obama rode into office on a vast wave of progressive enthusiasm. This enthusiasm was bound to be followed by disappointment, and not just because the president was always more centrist and conventional than his fervent supporters imagined. Given the facts of politics, and above all the difficulty of getting anything done in the face of lock step Republican opposition, he wasn't going to be the transformational figure some envisioned.

And Obama has delivered in important ways. Above all, he managed (with a lot of help from Nancy Pelosi) to enact a health reform that, imperfect as it is, will greatly improve Americans' lives — unless a Republican Congress manages to sabotage its implementation.

But progressive disillusionment isn't just a matter of sky-high expectations meeting prosaic reality. Threatened filibusters didn't force Obama to waffle on torture; to escalate in Afghanistan; to choose, with exquisitely bad timing, to loosen the rules on offshore drilling early this year.

Then there are the appointments. Yes, the administration needed experienced hands. But did all the senior members of the economics team have to be proteges of Robert Rubin, the apostle of financial deregulation? Was it necessary to install Ken Salazar at the Interior Department over the objections of environmentalists who feared, rightly, that his ties to extractive industries would make him slow to clean up a corrupt agency? And where's this administration's Frances Perkins? As FDR's labor secretary, Perkins, a longtime crusader for workers' rights, served as a symbol of the New Deal's commitment to change. I have nothing against Hilda Solis, the current labor secretary — but neither she nor any other senior figure in the administration is a progressive with enough independent stature to play that kind of role.

What explains Obama's consistent snubbing of those who made him what he is? Does he fear that his enemies would use any support for progressive people or ideas as an excuse to denounce him as a leftwing extremist? Well, as you may have noticed, they don't need such excuses: He's been portrayed as a socialist because he enacted Mitt Romney's health care plan, as a virulent foe of business because he's been known to mention that corporations sometimes behave badly.

The point is that Obama's attempts to avoid confrontation have been counterproductive. His opponents remain filled with a passionate intensity, while his supporters, having received no respect, lack all conviction. And in a midterm election, where turnout is crucial, the "enthusiasm gap" between Republicans and Democrats could spell catastrophe for the Obama agenda.

the Obama agenda.
Which brings me back to Warren.

The debate over financial reform, in which the GOP has taken the side of the bad guys, should be a political winner for Democrats. Much of the reform, however, is deeply technical: "Maintain the requirement that derivatives be traded on public exchanges!" doesn't fit on a placard.

But protecting consumers, ensuring that they aren't the victims of predatory financial practices, is something voters can relate to. And choosing a highprofile consumer advocate to lead the agency providing that protection – someone whose scholarship and advocacy were largely responsible for the agency's creation — is the natural move, both substantively and politically. Meanwhile, the alternative - disappointing supporters yet again by choosing some little-known technocrat seems like an obvious error.

So why is this issue still up in the air? Yes, Republicans might well try to filibuster a Warren appointment, but that's a fight the administration should welcome.

OK. I don't really know what's going on. But I worry that Obama is still wrapped up in his dream of transcending partisanship, while his aides dislike the idea of having to deal with strong, independent voices. And the end result of this game-playing is an administration that seems determined to alienate its friends.

Just to be clear, progressives would be foolish to sit out this election: Obama may not be the politician of their dreams, but his enemies are definitely the stuff of their nightmares. But Obama has a responsibility, too. He can't expect strong support from people his administration keeps ignoring and insulting.

Sure signs of a 'classy' restaurant

When PK Pasta's owner said he was creating a "classy" restaurant, I started to think about what I expected in a classy restau-

Of course, it would be clean, quiet, nicely decorated and not over-lit. It would have a great chef with good quality food plated attractively. There would be tablecloths and cloth napkins, nice stemware and a full set of flatware already on the table, with flowers or perhaps a candle. The background music would be soft and mellow.

and mellow.

But most importantly, the waiters would be trained.
They would greet patrons with "Good evening, have you had a chance to look at our menu? We are offering two specials tonight." And they would know how to pronounce the name and explain the ingredients and preparation of the specials and the menu items.

When one patron has finished his dinner but others have not, they will refrain from removing plates. They will keep an eye on the table so that they can pour more water or see what is needed but will not interrupt a conversation at the table. They will never refer to their patrons as "you guys." Of course, they will be dressed appropriately, preferably uniformly.

If you have ever dined at the Blue Lakes Country Club, you will know what a really classy restaurant is. Other restaurant owners should take note.

Fed chief: States need budgetary buffers

By Steve Goldstein MarketWatch writer

WASHINGTON - Federal Reserve Chairman Ben Bernanke called for states to build up larger rainy-day funds, even as he said consumer spending is set to sustain the economic recovery.

Speaking at the annual meeting the Southern Legislative Conference in Charleston, S.C., Bernanke said states should have taken more steps — and should do so in the future - to prepare for economic downturns.

At the end of 2006, he notes, state governments had set aside 12 percent of their general expenditures in reserve funds. "Given the depth of the recent recession, even these historically high reserve-fund balances proved insufficient to buffer fully the budgets of most states. Thus, state governments may wish to revisit their criteria for accumulating fiscal reserves. Building a rainy-day fund during good times may not be politically popular, but it can pay off during the bad times," the Fed chief and South Carolina native said.

Speaking after last week's report that showed slowing economic growth in the second quarter, Bernanke predicted the U.S. consumer and business demand should help sustain growth that has been provided so far by stimulus programs and company inventory building.

Jobless tap retirement plans to survive

By Pete Carey San Jose Mercury News

SAN JOSE, Calif. – Some of the nation's jobless are sacrificing future retirement security for day-today survival.

As the recession drags on and savings are exhausted, they say they have no choice but to tap retirement plans, even though they pay stiff penalties and lock in market losses from the crash.

Pension experts advise against cashing in a 401(k) if at all possible. Income tax withholding of 20 percent along with a 10 percent penalty for early withdrawal can take a big bite out of the money.

But electronics engineer Robert Sweat, 36, of San Jose said he had to cash out his 401(k) to make ends meet after losing his job with Pillar Data Systems in 2008.

Estate tax law uncertainty makes planning a challenge here is a saying that 2010 is a good year to die - that is, if you have an estate to pass on INSIGHT to your heirs.

The saying is making light of a one-year repeal of the estate and generation skipping transfer, or GST, that went into effect Jan. 1. These taxes are scheduled to return in 2011 – at higher levels than in 2009. As of now, the repeal is still in effect, but Congress is expected to make some changes to the estate law.

That adds up to a whole bunch of uncertainty and many planning challenges.

The gift rate tax remains in effect for 2010 - at a toprate of 35 percent. That's down from 45 percent in 2009. But top rates for the gift tax and the estate and GST taxes will jump to 55 percent in 2011 if Congress doesn't take action.

Because the estate and GST tax repeals are temporary, taking steps to minimize these taxes is as important as ever. Fortunately, the following exemptions and other breaks are available:

• Gift and estate tax exemption: During your lifetime, the gift tax exemption allows you to transfer up to $1 million of taxable gifts without paying gift tax. When the estate tax is in effect, transfer at death up to the estate tax exemption amount minus any gift exemption used can be made free of estate tax.

 Unlimited Marital Deduction: Your estate can generally deduct the value

Economic recovery falls to thrifty consumers

By Martin Crutsinger Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON American shoppers are being careful about how much they spend, and that's making businesses cautious about hiring.

For the economic recoverv to gain strength — and the unemployment rate to come down in any meaningful way - consumers will need to become less frugal. But a flurry of data released Tuesday suggests families are reluctant to increase their spending, even as they buy more stuff, including cars and consumer staples like Insight. "It's a Catch-22 dipped below 5 percent razors and shampoo.

"Once the unemployment rate starts coming down in a significant way, consumers will feel more confident and start spending. But businesses are reluctant to step up hiring until they see stronger demand," said Chris G. Christopher, senior economist at IHS Global situation."

Back-to-school shoppers crowd the aisles at a Staples store in Little Rock, Ark. The pace of consumer spending stalled in June and personal incomes failed to increase, further evidence that the economy slowed significantly in the spring.

One telling detail about Commerce Dept.'s personal income and spending report for June: the annualized savings rate stood at 6.4 percent, triple the rate in 2007, before the reces-

The savings rate hasn't since October 2008.

Even the way people are consumers' habits these paying for things shows a days came from the change in attitude about money. Consumers shied away from accumulating new debt during the second quarter, according to households chose to save the latest reports from MasterCard Inc., and Visa Inc.

Overall card use rose 14 percent. But the growth came almost entirely from debit cards, which rose to $465 billion, from $408 billion a year ago. Credit card use edged up less than a percent to $345 billion from $342 billion last year.

Analysts believe consumers have now rebuilt savings and will be open to spending more in the coming months.

"We think most of the required increases in savings have already happened and that further increases in incomes will translate into consumer spending," said Peter Newland, an economist at Barclays Capital.

Consumer spending is important because it accounts for 70 percent of total economic activity.

While personal income growth was flat in June, it rose in April and May. But the extra money rather than spend it.

Longer term, that may not be such a bad thing, economists said, because the savings help households get control of their bills and make purchases they can afford.

"It is of some comfort that households now appear to have something of a cushion that can be used to pay down debt or support spending," said Paul Dales, U.S. economist at Capital Economics.

Make no mistake, Americans are spending money. But they want value for their purchases or a good deal. If they don't get either, many are passing on name brands and living with generic goods.

The number of buyers who signed contracts to purchase homes dropped in June, as the weak economy and tight lending standards kept consumers away from the housing market.

The National Association of Realtors said Tuesday that its seasonally adjusted index of sales agreements for previously occupied homes dipped 2.6 percent to a reading of 75.7.

That was the lowest on records dating back to 2001 and down nearly 19 percent from the same month a year earlier. The index has fallen more than 40 percent from its peak in April

He said his wife is still working, but has had to borrow from her 401(k) to help pay their bills.

Hewitt Associates, an Illinois human resources consulting company that tracks 3 million 401(k) holders, recently reported the biggest increase in permanent withdrawals since it began collecting the data. Withdrawals increased from 5.9 percent to 7.1 percent. Twenty percent were hardship withdrawals to satisfy an immediate, heavy financial need.

"Loans are also increasing," said Pamela Hess, director of retirement research for Hewitt. "Maybe their spouse has been laid off, and they need to tap into it while working, so they take a loan."

"It's a tough situation for lot of people, and people don't have a lot of options,"

she said.

Wells Fargo also has seen an increase in hardship withdrawals. "It's certainly more than usual," said Erik Davidson, managing director of investments at Wells

"Those numbers are creeping up across the board, but more typically in the smaller to medium-size account balances," said center president Catherine Collinson. "At some point the tax hit is so great that it's a deterrent, but in balances even up to $50,000 to $75,000, more are cashing out than have in prior years."

Fidelity Investments, which has 13 million plan members, says it hasn't seen a big increase in withdrawals so far.

"The overall distribution rate has gone up slightly, but there's not an overwhelming surge of individuals accessing and taking out distributions," said Beth McHugh, a Fidelity vice president.

She added that one plan sponsor recently told her that older workers may be borrowing from their pension funds to help younger family members who are out of work.

...for diabetics who use diet to control their disease

By Ariel Hansen Times-News writer

Refinement is all well and good when it comes to manners, but that's exactly what you don't want if you're a Type 2 diabetic considering your diet.

"Anything white — white sugar, white flour, white rice - had to go, and anything that was made with it," said Rose Fisher, a Twin Falls resident who was diagnosed with diabetes in January. The former chef quickly learned what she could eat and what she should avoid, to minimize her need for medications. "The foods that are closest to the way they occur in nature were the best things for

Type 2 diabetes affects how sugars, including carbohydrates, are used by the body. The less refined the sugars are — the carbs in whole-wheat breads, for example, or fruit versus a candy bar the slower the body processes them, giving the pancreas and other systems time to properly respond.

Modern dietary science shows patients don't have to cut carbs or sugars altogether, but need to instead get an assessment of their energy needs from a professional and adjust their diets accordingly.

"(Patients are) surprised that we're saying, you in fact need carbohydrates or your body can't use energy properly. They've eliminated desserts and favorite foods from their diet and oftentimes they find they're dissatisfied, they're hungry," said Nancy Dettori, registered nurse and certified diabetes educator at St. Luke's Wood River Medical Center. "What I think is very freeing is there are no forbidden foods, it's about balance."

Fisher learned her body's new, diabetic balance initially by testing her blood sugar before, during and after meals, and noting how she responded to different ingredients. Not all diabetics are the same - beans are often recommended, for example, but Fisher's blood sugar spiked after she ate them.

Through these experiments, she learned how to adjust recipes to make them work for her.

"If it calls for flour, I'll do whole-wheat flour; if it calls for rice, I'll either do brown rice or something like bulgar or buckwheat," she said. She has also enjoyed the surge in commercially available products with artificial sweeteners, like the Breyer's ice cream made with Splenda that satisfies her desires for the chilly treat.

However, not all experts recommend artificial sweeteners like Splenda (sucralose) or Nutrasweet (aspartame).

Marion Wallace, a registered nurse who uses alternative methods to counsel patients in her massage and nutrition business in Twin Falls, was diagnosed as diabetic earlier this year, and her

GETTING INTO THE KITCHEN?

Many resources are available to help those with a diagnosis of diabetes treat their illness through diet, including diabeticcooking.com, diabetesmonitor.com and diabetic-lifestyle.com/cookingtips.htm, and books of recipes and advice are available at most bookstores. Locally, Rose Fisher plans to teach a class on diabetic cooking at the College of Southern Idaho next spring. Details of time, day and cost are not yet available.

Looking for the healthier side of bacon

By Jim Romanoff

For The Associated Press

Bringing home the bacon used to be a noble thing. Today, it's considered a health

So what's a bacon lover to do? Read the nutrition labels and use common sense.

The good news is that bacon is so loaded with flavor a little bit goes a long way. Using just a bit to garnish a salad or speckle a meatloaf or burger can feel indulgent without ruining a diet.

Also look for center-cut varieties, which often have less fat and fewer calories per serving than the regular stuff. Low-sodium variations also are available.

And consider poultry-based bacons, which can be surprisingly good. Just be sure to read the labels and compare the amounts of fat, saturated fat and sodium. Some turkey bacons, for instance, have as much fat per serving as pork varieties.

This double chicken club sandwich with saffron aioli makes a great packed lunch or light supper for a busy school night. It has a sophisticated flavor adults will love, but can easily be tailored to younger tastes by using lettuce rather than arugula and subbing plain mayo for the saffron aioli.

The sandwich was developed using Murray's Uncured Chicken Bacon, a low-fat variety that has nice flavor and crisps up quite well. It has just 35 calories per ounce, compared with several hundred for pork. If you can't find it in your market, use center-cut pork bacon or one of the leaner varieties of turkey bacon.

DOUBLE CHICKEN CLUB WITH SAF-FRON AIOLI

- 2 teaspoons warm water
- 1/2 cup reduced-fat mayonnaise
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice 1 teaspoon Dijon mustard
- 1 teaspoon minced garlic
- Ground black pepper, to taste
- 6 ounces chicken or turkey bacon

- 8 slices whole-grain sandwich bread
- 8 ounces sliced cooked chicken breast
- 2 cups arugula or leaf lettuce
- 1 large tomato, sliced 1/2 small avocado, sliced (optional)

In a small bowl, combine the saffron and warm water. Let stand for 5 minutes.

In a blender or mini food processor, combine the saffron mixture, mayonnaise, lemon juice, mustard and garlic, then blend until smooth. Season with pepper to taste. Set aside. The aioli can be store, covered, in the refrigerator, for up to 1 week.

Cook the chicken (or turkey) bacon according to package instructions. Toast the bread.

To assemble the sandwiches, spread some of the saffron aioli on each piece of toast. Divide the bacon, sliced chicken breast, arugula (or lettuce), tomato and avocado (if using) among 4 slices of toast; top with the remaining toast.

"All artificial sweeteners are bad news," she said, emphasizing that she buys almost exclusively organic food to minimize the preservatives and other chemicals she eats, believing they contribute to an unhealthy body.

Wallace suggests natural alternatives like fruit, stevia and agave syrup in place of white sugar or artificial sweeteners.

"Most people just want to think of their body as a machine, but a good machine has to be taken care of," Wallace said, describing how she has paid attention to her own physical responses to food. "I've learned to listen to my body, and I can tell whether it's happy or not. Is my body giving me a smile today, or a so-so face, or is it sad?"

John Beer of Twin Falls said his body's response means he can't have very many carbohydrates at all, so he'll have at most one slice of whole-wheat bread a day, or half a small potato.

"Pasta and rice is terrible, it turns to sugar immediately," he said, noting that many of the recipes in diabetic cookbooks didn't work for him. He is careful to read labels and choose wisely in restaurants to avoid a bad reaction to his food. "It's easy for you to say to yourself, 'It's just a little bit,' or 'It won't hurt me this time? You won't miss the meat in this 35-minute dinner

By Bonnie S. Benwick The Washington Post

Although vegans must grow weary of hearing this "compliment" bestowed on a meatless dish, I have to say it here: You won't miss the meat. Small, yellow-fleshed potatoes cook quickly while tomatoes, shallots and bell pepper soften and lend flavor to the curry base.

Black mustard seeds might be easier to obtain than the fresh curry leaves called for here. If you can't find the leaves, a sprinkle of lime juice just before serving will suffice.

A corn risotto for ears that aren't all they could be Fresh sweet corn might look better than it tastes. Peel back some husk and smell it: Does it smell vegetal, green or like sweet corn?

Rock-a-bye maybe: More foods hinder than help sleep

By Jennifer LaRue Huget Special to The Washington Post

A number of my apparently sleep-deprived friends and colleagues, upon learning I planned to write about foods that might help people sleep better, have told me they're eager to see what I come up with.

them.

But it turns out science has yet to find a magical food that can send us right to slumber-

"The bad news for people trying to talk about food and sleep is that ... generally it's hard to find foods that help with sleep," says Michael Grandner, a sleep researcher the University of Pennsylvania's Center for Sleep and Respiratory Neurobiology.

"The easier question," Grandner says, "is what are less and report that the sleep dietitian and spokeswoman the things to avoid?"

Though you might expect caffeine to top that list, Grandner's most recent research, published in the journal Sleep Medicine, found otherwise. Women who ate the most fat slept for shorter times and took more naps, a sign that they didn't get enough restful sleep at night. (He believes his findings apply to the broader population, not just older women.)

If eating fat keeps you from sleeping, so does being fat. "People who are obese sleep medical doctor, registered

This may have to do with the fact that the hormones that control our feelings of hunger and being full get disrupted when

Of course, caffeine is among the substances (along with spicy foods) we should avoid late in the day if we want to sleep well. "Caffeine can still have an effect on sleep 12 hours later," Grandner said in a phone interview, "enough that it's keeping alertness levels so high that we're unable to shut it off?"

As for tryptophan, a substance that promotes sleep, Gerbstadt and Grandner say turkey doesn't contain enough to knock you out.

"The tired or sleepy feeling after a large meal probably has more to do with the amount of food consumed, especially carbohydrates, than anything in the food itself," Grandner wrote. "The studies that demonstrated the sedating effects of tryptophan needed at least one and up to 15 grams of tryptophan to show an effect. You would need to eat over a full pound of meat - there are almost equal amounts in turkey, chicken and beef — to get just one gram of trypto-

vegetables in favor of fruit

By Stephanie Witt Sedgwick Special to The Washington

I am not a fan of meatand-vegetable skewers. The meat cooks, but the worse, the vegetables overcook (think charred peppers and burst cherry tomatoes).

What I will pair on a skewer with meat is fruit, especially pineapple. The pork, seafood and shella flexible cooking companion: If it's paired with remaining marinade. fast-cooking seafood, it gets a delicious char.

Either way, it's a winner. Better yet, you're fitting in a daily serving of might eat if you grilled meat-only skewers.

The key is to make sure your grill grate is well oiled, or the pineapple will stick. You'll need 10or 12-inch bamboo skewers; soak them in water for 30 minutes before using so they don't burn on the grill.

SPICY PORK AND PINEAPPLE SKEWERS

Makes 12 skewers (6 servings)

1/4 cup apple cider vinegar

1/4 cup olive oil 1 teaspoon chili powder, or more to taste 1/2 teaspoon ground

cumin, or more to taste 1/2 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper

1/2 teaspoon salt Flesh of 3/4 pineapple (about 1 pound) pineapple, cored and cut into 3/4- to 1-inch pieces (3 cups)

1 1/2 pounds pork tenderloin, trimmed of silverskin and excess fat, cut into 3/4- to 1-inch chunks

Combine the vinegar, oil, chili powder, cumin, pepper and salt in a medium bowl: whisk together to form a marinade. Place the pineapple in one bowl and the pork in another. Divide the vinegar-oil marinade evenly between the pork and the pineapple. Toss each with the marinade to coat the meat and fruit pieces. Let sit for 15 minutes.

Prepare the grill for direct heat. If using a gas grill, preheat to mediumhigh (450 degrees). If using a charcoal grill, light the charcoal or wood briquettes; when the briquettes are ready, distribute them evenly under the cooking area. For a medium-hot fire, you should be able to hold your hand about 6 inches above the vegetables don't, or, even coals for about 4 or 5 seconds. Lightly coat a grill rack with oil and place it on the grill.

Prepare the skewers by alternating 3 or 4 pieces of pork with 3 or 4 pieces of pineapple. You might want combination works for to count and divide the pieces before skewering to fish, and the pineapple is make sure you fill all 12 skewers. Discard

Use tongs and a spatula to turn the skewers over. Cook for 4 to 5 minutes, until the pork is cooked through; the internal temperature of the meat should be 155 degrees. Remove from the grill and let the meat rest for at least 5 minutes before serving.

Pakistani government stretched thin by deadly violence, flooding

SLAMABAD — Pakistan confronted crises on two fronts Tuesday, as flooding that has already affected at least 3 million people threatened to spread and street battles in the nation's largest city claimed at least

Fresh monsoon rains on Tuesday panicked many residents of northwestern Pakistan who have endured nearly a week of destruction from the worst floods to strike the region in eight decades. The rainfall also disrupted relief efforts, as aid groups pulled back out of fear that villages that had been drying out would once again be inundated.

The government has appeared overwhelmed by the scope of the disaster, and on Tuesday, charities that are widely thought to be fronts for militant Islamist groups were on the streets offering help. Members of one charity associated with the banned Lashkar-i-Taiba were operating openly in the heavily damaged town of Charsadda, giving out rice, bread, medicine and tents.

"If our political leaders and rulers are ignoring us, such organizations will work for us instead," said Ajmeer Shah, a 52-year-old farmer.

Lebanon, Israel clash; at least 4 dead

ADEISSEH — Lebanese and Israeli troops exchanged fire Tuesday in a fierce border battle that killed a senior Israeli officer, two Lebanese soldiers and a journalist - underlining how easily tensions can reignite along the frontier where Israel and Hezbollah fought a war four

It was the worst fighting since 2006 in the area, where Israeli and Lebanese soldiers patrol within shouting distance of each other, separated by the U.N.-drawn Blue Line boundary.

The fighting flared into Israeli tank, helicopter and artillery strikes near this Lebanese town, but ended after several hours and there was no sign that either side was preparing to escalate.

The Shiite guerrilla force Hezbollah said it offered to help the Lebanese army but in the end did not get involved. "We told our brothers, control yourselves and don't do anything," Hezbollah leader Sheik Hassan Nasrallah in a televised speech.

But, he warned, his fighters would intervene if Israeli troops ever attack Lebanese forces again. "Any Israeli arm extended against the Lebanese military will be cut off by the resistance," said Nasrallah, whose arsenal is far more powerful than the Lebanese army's.

Senate Dems delay vote on energy bill

WASHINGTON — Democrats on Tuesday gave up trying to pass even a scaled-back energy bill this summer that would have removed liability ceilings on oil companies, a reaction to the BP oil spill.

The bill also would have offered rebates to consumers for home energy efficiency improvements and encouraged federal agencies to buy more electric vehicles and retrofit heavy duty vehicles for natural

Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid, D-Nev., said he was unable to find a handful of Republicans to help advance the energy bill before the August recess. The bill would have removed the $75 million cap on oil spill liability and required energy companies to pay higher fees into an oil spill trust fund. The House passed a similar bill last week.

Republicans had offered an alternative bill that would have lifted the moratorium that the Obama administration put on deep-water drilling

Sen. James Inhofe, R-Okla., called Reid's bill an "empty political exercise" that would kill jobs by exposing oil companies to unlimited liability — a measure that had some oil-state Democrats nervous.

Senate moves toward final vote on Kagan

WASHINGTON — The Senate, tied in knots on almost every other legislative issue, is now gliding toward ending its session on a high note for Democrats by confirming Elena Kagan as the fourth woman to serve as a Supreme Court justice.

Unable to find consensus on a series of domestic policy issues including help for small businesses, financial aid to cash-strapped states and energy legislation — Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid, D-Nev., moved the chamber into several days of debate on Kagan's nomination Tuesday morning.

After coasting through her confirmation hearings in late June and winning approval from the Judiciary Committee two weeks ago, the solicitor general could have been confirmed many days ago.

Instead, Reid's leadership team decided that, whatever else happened before the summer recess, they wanted to finish on a positive note. So they scheduled Kagan's confirmation to be the last issue debated and voted on, probably Thursday afternoon or evening. The Senate will then recess for a nearly six-week break, returning in mid-

Bristol Palin breaks with fiance Johnston

ANCHORAGE — Bristol Palin and Levi Johnston have called off their second engagement after he told her he may have fathered a baby with another woman.

Palin declined to identify the woman to People magazine, but a pregnant ex-girlfriend of Johnston has publicly denied he is the father.

Palin, the 19-year-old daughter of former Alaska Gov. Sarah Palin, said Johnston told her about the baby on July 14, the day the couple announced their re-engagement. Bristol Palin and the 20-year-old Johnston have a toddler son together, Tripp.

Representatives for Palin and Johnston did not immediately return requests for comment Tuesday.

Palin had said she didn't have her mother's full support over reconnecting with Johnston. She said both her mother and father worried she would get hurt again.

Key Losses: LB Blaze Soares, OL John Estes, OL Aaron Kia, WR John Mederios

Key Games: vs. USC (Sept. 2), at Colorado (Sept. 18), vs. Nevada (Oct. 16), at Boise State (Nov. 6) Hawaii is still trying to regain the magic from its 2007 season, but the Rainbow Warriors are finding anything but a pot of gold in their quest. Head coach Greg McMackin avoided making any embarrassing comments at this year's WAC Media Days and appears focused and determined to get his team to do the same as he begins his third season at the school. Offensively, Hawaii has an impressive cache of weapons for its spread offense. Junior quarterback Bryant Moniz will be solid under center, while senior Greg Salas provides a top receive option. Alex Green will be Hawaii's leader in the team's seldom-used running game, replacing the leader from last year's team Leon Wright-

On defense, problems still persist for a unit that surrendered nearly 30 points and more than 400 yards per game. While senior defensive lineman Elliott Purcell will provide some teeth on the line for Hawaii, he is the lone returning starter. Spencer Smith's skills at defensive back are much-needed in pass-happy conference play, but Hawaii needs to make some major strides defensively to return to its recent success.

8. New Mexico State

2009 Record: 3-10 (1-7 WAC)

Key Losses: WR Marcus Anderson, LB Ross Connor, LB Jamar Cotton, LB Jason Scott Key Games: at Kansas (Sept. 25), vs. Boise State (Oct. 2), vs. New Mexico (Oct. 9), at Utah State (Nov. 6)

For New Mexico State, there is nowhere to go but up for second-year head coach DeWayne Walker after last year's abysmal campaign. To aid in the rebuilding process, the Aggies have a softened schedule and have added one controversial playmaker that may be a differencemaker in running back Kenny Turner. Turner, who spent five years in prison on a felony conviction for aggravated battery with a deadly weapon, hopes to make his second chance pay off at New Mexico State, which finished dead last in the nation in total offense last season. If Turner lives up to his billing, the Aggies might find themselves catapulted to the middle of the WAC. But that will require plugging some major gaps in the team's linebacker

The Aggies lost all four of their starting linebackers, which included the team's top two tacklers. Look for defensive end Pierre Fils and cornerback Davon House to provide some leadership on defense to help assuage woeful defi-

9. San Jose State

Starters Returning: 17 (offense – 9; defense – 8) Key Returnees: S Duke Ihenacho (Sr.), QB Jordan Marah (Sr.), RB Lamon Muldrow (Sr.)

Key Games: at Alabama (Sept. 4), at Utah (Sept. 25), vs. Fresno State (Oct. 23), vs. L.a Tech (Nov. 27) First-year head coach Mike MacIntyre has his work cut out for him as the Spartans' new coach and the retired coaching legend Dick Tomey didn't leave the cupboard bear. Jordan La Secla, who shared time in the starter role at QB last season, returns for his senior season and will be joined in the backfield by last year's leading rusher in Lamon Muldrow. La Secla will also have plenty of weapons in the receiving corps with Marquis

Defensively, San Jose State will need to shore up a porous unit that finished near the bottom in scoring defense in the nation, giving 34.5 points per game. Duke Ihenacho and defensive end Mohamed Marah are the lone bright spots for the Spartans that needs an overhaul. MacIntyre, who inherits a program penalized seven scholarships due to academic shortcomings, hopes to use as many as 10 players to play both ways to strengthen the Spartans' depth. ball in certain situations on the other side. If it

Is this Favre's finale? Don't be so sure

By Barry Wilner Associated Press writer

The joke going around Tuesday after the latest round of will-he-or-won't-he with Brett Favre was that the three-time MVP should open a Waffle House in his hometown of Kiln, Mississippi.

Favre sure has waffled on the decision before, and it's difficult to believe his latest "see ya" will stick.

A source with knowledge of the situation has told The Associated Press that the NFL's most prolific passer is citing his injured left ankle as the reason he won't return for a second season with Minnesota. But the Vikings aren't taking his latest pronouncement as gospel, even after Favre texted some players to explain why he is MIA and won't BRB during a training camp that is in full swing.

Coach Brad Childress, who not only orchestrated the Vikings' acquisition of Favre last year but picked up his new/old quarterback at the airport, wasn't fully swallowing this news.

"I gotta hear it from the horse's mouth." Childress said.

The old warhorse - Favre is 40 - has used the retirement gambit often enough that there are as many doubters today as there are folks wearing purple No. 4 jerseys in Minnesota.

"I don't know. It's like believing in Santa Claus," former teammate Nick Barnett of the Packers said. "You get gifts, but you ain't seen Santa Claus. So we don't know whether it's true or not. We'll see what happens."

Dolphins coach Tony Sparano was just as skeptical.

"Well, I'll believe it when the season starts and he's ... somewhere out there in (Mississippi). All I know is we're going to Minnesota in Week 2, so I'm hoping (he's retired).

"We'll see," a chuckling Sparano added. And Jaguars safety Gerald Alexander even tweeted his skepticism:

"Favre's coming back people cmon don't believe the hype."

All along, most people have dismissed retirement talk, figuring the past is indeed

Judgment day for IHSAA softball, volleyball tournaments

Concussion vote also scheduled

Sweeping changes may hit June. Idaho's high school sports landscape today.

The Idaho High School Activities Association will vote today whether to consolidate the state tournament brackets for volleyball and softball, structure like the basketball and soccer state tournaments.

Each of the sports will be voted on individually, after being combined in a first vote that passed in The change would mean a team

While some coaches vehemently oppose the changes, athletic directors appear poised to pass the measures with little fanfare.

Lochte, Magnuson, Hoff win at U.S. nationals

IRVINE, Calif. (AP) - Ryan Lochte won the 400-meter individual medley at the U.S. championships on Tuesday night with the fastest time in the world this year.

Lochte overcame a left groin injury to finish in 4 minutes, 9.98 seconds – more than five seconds faster than runner-up Tyler Clary.

the year's fastest time in winning the 100 butterfly.

Michael Phelps took opening night off, but will swim five events over the next four days. At stake in the meet are spots on the U.S. team for the Pan Pacific championships later this month — the year's only major international meet - and for the world championships next year.

Katie Hoff won the 400 freestyle, her first national title in two years. During that chaotic time, she changed coaches three times and moved her before turning serious. "After that first training base from Baltimore to Fullerton, Calif.

Q & A S

MacIntyre's style?

Q&A with Hawaii wide receiver Greg Salas

WAC

T-N: Hawaii opens with Southern Cal this season. Being from Southern California, what does it mean getting to play USC for you personally?

Salas: USC was one of my favorite teams growing up and I have tremendous respect for them as a program. But they weren't my all-time favorite — that was Michigan. My hero was Charles Woodson growing up. I wanted to play receiver like that guy.

T-N: Hawaii struggled last season with injuries. If the receiving corps stays healthy, what do you expect to happen?

Salas: I think a lot of player can do what I did (1,000 yards receiving). I think we can have at least two players with those types of numbers and maybe more. We've got a chance to be a lot more explosive this season as long as everybody stays healthy.

T-N: You were placed on the Belitnikoff Award watch list. What does that mean to you? Salas: All the individual accolades are nice. What it really means is that our offense is clicking. But more than anything, I want to be part of a winning season.

FOOTBALL Q&A with New Mexico State running back Seth Smith

T-N: What has been the major difference since coach DeWayne Walker took over the program?

Smith: Discipline. Period. Before coach Walker, things were very laid back and there wasn't a lot of structure. That has all changed. We all know that coach Walker means business.

T-N: Your offense really struggled last season. How will things be different this year? Smith: Last year was tough. It felt like I was running up hill the whole time. But mainly what stopped us was the red zone. We really struggled when we got down close around the opponent's goal line – and that really hurt us. We've got to do better this season about punching the ball in and taking advantage of those chances.

Q&A with San Jose State safety Duke Ihenacho T-N: How do the players feel about playing both ways this season? Ihenacho: I think the players like it. I think it's a smart move, too. It's something we really need to help us out right now. T-N: How have you adjusted to coach Ihenacho: I think he's better for us. He's more in tune with the players. He always knows where we are. He's even called me a few times. That never happened with coach Tomey. It just wasn't his style. But I think it shows that coach MacIntyre really cares about us.

T-N: You open on the road at Alabama this season. What do you think about getting that kind of test against the defending national champions right out of the gate? Ihenacho: All that ranking stuff is completely irrelevant; it doesn't matter. The guys picking the rankings don't play. We want to win games. We want to win every home game. We're going to go to Alabama to win. We're not going to Alabama to visit. We don't want to go to Alabama and look at the stadium or just to say we played the defending national champions. We want to win. That's the goal. They have great players and play in a great conference. Don't get me wrong. But we want to win.

Huskers the buzz of Big Ten media days with a year to go Course in Jackpot, Nev. There are no handicap

CHICAGO — Not too long after Nebraska joined the Big Ten, Wisconsin coach Bret Bielema approached the league with a request: How about a Badgers-Huskers game to finish the season?

"It was something I felt strongly about," Bielema said. "And I thought it would be neat. So that's all there is to it.' lowa coach Kirk Ferentz said fans around his state would constantly ask about playing their Big Red neighbors.

"I think that will probably take care of itself now," he said.

Nebraska won't play football in the Big Ten until next season, but the Huskers already have the full attention of the Big Ten, from its coaches to its fans. By adding one of the most storied programs, the Big Ten will have 12 teams and enticing possibilities that go with it.

A championship game in football? Big Ten commissioner Jim Delany expects there to be one next season at a site to be determined.

What about those six-team divisions? Delany hopes to hash that out in the next 30-45 days. Competitive balance and rivalries will be considered along with geography, with a nine-game league schedule possibly coming in a few years.

Further expansion remains a possibility even though that's on the back burner for now, and Delany reiterated he doesn't see Notre Dame joining if the Big Ten decides to grow again. He also said again that the league's name will remain the same, even with 12

But the big theme around the conference this week was change. Specifically, expansion. And to a large degree, Nebraska.

"I think it will be a real good addition, really good people, they run a good program and obviously it's going to be a very competitive team," said Penn State coach Joe Paterno, whose history against Nebraska dates back to when he was a Nittany Lions assistant

Golf's magic number doesn't seem so magical anymore

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — The PGA Tour used to be so hard that it was boring to play, much less watch.

It was only three years ago at Firestone — Tiger Woods was the only player to break par that week — that Steve Stricker spoke for dozens of players when he said just about every tournament felt like a major.

It sure hasn't seemed like that lately.

"This is a little different," Stricker said with a smile Tuesday when reminded of his comments.

Now, every tournament feels like the Bob Hope Classic.

Consider the flurry of low scores over the last four weeks on the PGA Tour:

• Paul Goydos became the first player in 11 years to shoot golf's magic number when he with a 59, but he had a great chance to set a major championship record at the British Open until he missed a 5-foot birdie putt on the 17th at St. Andrews. He was mildly disappointed with a 63.

• Carl Pettersson had to round of the Canadian Open when his 30-foot birdie putt from just off the front of the 18th green caught part of the

• D.A. Point had a chance to shoot 59 at the Greenbrier until he three-putted for bogey on the par-5 17th and shot 61. It wasn't even the low score of the third round - J.B. Holmes shot a 60 that day. Both scores were trumped in the final round Sunday when Stuart Appleby birdied his last three holes for a 59, rallying from a seven-shot deficit

And they were trying to talk on my backswing the last three holes. ... I had two chances coming in. Didn't quite do it. I think I felt embarrassed for them."

Now, however, Els is everyone else.

"I don't know if the tour is of late.

What exactly is golf's ages. We were due to have a trying to get some people to watch television again because they're seeing a lot of birdies," he said with a halfsmile that made you wonder if he really was serious. "But I'm not sure what my take is. There's even two 60s, 61s. It's starting to look like the Nationwide Tour."

NFL: No discipline for Eagles' Vick

BETHLEHEM, Pa. – NFL commissioner Roger Goodell told Michael Vick he will not face disciplinary action following a shooting at the quarterback's birthday party six weeks ago.

Goodell spoke with Vick on Tuesday while visiting the Eagles during his training camp tour. Shortly after, the NFL released a statement.

"Commissioner Goodell informed Michael Vick there will be no disciplinary action as a result of the incident in Virginia, based on his current understanding of the facts. Commissioner Goodell spoke several weeks ago by phone with Michael, Tony Dungy, and Eagles coach Andy Reid.

"All were in agreement on the need for additional support measures to be added to Michael's plan to enhance his opportunity to succeed in life and football. These additional steps will remain confidential, but they will require Michael to meet even higher standards."

Vick was scheduled to speak to reporters after practice today.

The NFL and the Eagles had been looking into a shooting at a nightclub in Virginia Beach, Va., where Vick held his 30th birthday party on June 25. Police said no charges would be filed because of a lack of cooperation by witnesses and the victim, who Vick's attorney Larry Woodward identified as Quanis Phillips – a co-defendant in Vick's federal dogfighting case.

Vick and Goodell spoke on the phone after the shooting, but this was their first face-to-face meeting.

"He understands the responsibility he has and the position he's in, and he has to make good decisions." Goodell said. "I want him to understand that he's in a different position than others and because of that he has to protect that, I think, and hopefully he's going to make good decisions moving for-

Both sides were working on the language of the deal and it was expected to be done by Wednesday morning. according to a person familiar with the negotiations. The contract could be worth as much as $68 million.

The person spoke to The Associated Press on Tuesday night on condition of anonymity because the talks were confidential.

selected the former Detroit Nebraska defensive tackle with the second overall pick in April's draft, hoping he could bolster a defense that has ranked among the league's all-time worst in points allowed the past two seasons. The Lions won two games last year after becoming the first team in league history to go 0-16.

Philadelphia Eagles quarterback Michael Vick will not receive any disciplinary action from Associated Press College Football Player of the Year award since its inception in 1998. He had 4½ sacks against Texas in the Big 12 title game and finished the season with 12.

STEELERS COORDINATOR: ROETHLISBERGER NEVER BETTER

LATROBE, Pa. – If Ben Roethlisberger's offseason troubles are bothering him, Steelers offensive coordinator Bruce Arians certainly hasn't noticed.

Less than a week into training camp, Arians' assessment of his quarterback: Never been better.

Arians remember can't Roethlisberger being in such good we're all still working on it," Nix told a shape or throwing the ball this well so early during any of his previous six Tuesday. "And probably in a couple of camps. He has yet to be intercepted days, if he don't (sign), I will have during team drills, and Roethlisberger himself differently, and he recognizes has gone entire practices without throwing an incompletion.

> him," Arians said Tuesday. "His arm is live and he has no interceptions and very few incompletions unless they were dropped. This may be the best I've ever seen him right now."

He was not charged following the March incident, but was suspended by the NFL for six games — a punishment that could be shortened to four games.

"I mean, especially for me as a sixth-The 6-foot-4, 307-pound Suh was round pick, that's not my world," the first defensive player to win The Hasselbeck said after Okung stayed away through Tuesday's practice. "Probably some of the guys who were first-round picks could put themselves (there or) empathize more. I don't know. I'm not there. That's not me."

Hasselbeck was not invited to the NFL combine out of Boston College in 1998 before Green Bay drafted him in the sixth round to back up Brett Favre. He has gone on to make three Pro Bowls and a Super Bowl.

He has plenty to gain by Okung signing – namely his health, protection of his blind side and a replacement for retired All-Pro left tackle Walter Jones as the anchor of the offensive line.

"I felt like I should have been paying them to let me be there, I was so excited," he said of the '98 Packers, who had coach Mike Holmgren commanding Favre and Hasselbeck.

"I'm obviously very biased against first-round draft picks," he deadpanned. "Always have been. Jealousy."

Joking aside, new Seahawks coach Pete Carroll cannot understand why Okung hasn't already signed what Carroll has called a strong offer, especially given that the No. 5 and No. 7 picks have signed.

BILLS REPORT LITTLE PROGRESS ON TALKS WITH SPILLER

PITTSFORD, N.Y. - Buffalo Bills general manager Buddy Nix isn't getting too impatient with the inability to negotiate a contract with rookie running back C.J. Spiller.

That might change if talks aren't resolved soon.

"All I can tell you at this point is that group of reporters after practice something to say."

"Akron is my home, and the central focus of my life," James wrote in Tuesday's Akron Beacon Journal. "It's where I started, and it's where I will always come back to."

Conspicuously absent from the ad is any mention of Cleveland, home of the Cavaliers, the team that James famously dumped in a much-maligned ESPN television special last month. The ad features photographs of Tames at his annual charity bike-a-thon, where he hands out hundreds of bicycles and joins a mile-long ride through downtown Akron. Despite speculation that James might skip the event, he has said he plans to show up on Saturday.

The traditional eight-mile trek that follows the ride has been canceled this year.

"It was here where I first learned how to play basketball, and where I met the people who would become my lifelong friends and mentors," James wrote in the ad. be with me."

NEGOTIATING DEAL The Boston Celtics are making progress on a deal that would bring Shaquille O'Neal to the defending Eastern Conference champions, a person with knowledge of the negotiations told The Associated Press.

The person spoke with the AP on the condition of anonymity because the deal was not yet final. Earlier Tuesday, the four-time NBA champion said he will be in the league next season and would rather retire than play internationally. The 38-year-old O'Neal spent last season with the Cleveland Cavaliers. He won three NBA titles with the Los Angeles Lakers and another with the Miami Heat.

But he has struggled to find a contract from a team that can guarantee him playing time, enough money and a chance for one more championship. He has all-but ruled out joining LeBron James in Miami or a return to Orlando, where he began his career in 1992.

The Celtics have been looking for big men because Kendrick Perkins is expected to miss at least half the season with a knee injury he sustained in the NBA finals. Boston has already signed Jermaine O'Neal.

TIMBERWOLVES WAIVE WEST

MINNEAPOLIS – The Minnesota Timberwolves have waived guard Delonte West.

West was acquired from Cleveland with Sebastian Telfair on July 26 in a trade that sent point guard Ramon Sessions and center Ryan Hollins to the Cavaliers.

But West's $4.6 million contract was guaranteed for only $500,000 if he was waived by Wednesday.

Today is Wednesday, Aug. 4, the 216th day of 2010. There are 149 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight: On Aug. 4, 1944, Anne Frank, 15, was arrested along with her sister, parents and four others by German security after hiding for two years inside a building in Amsterdam, (Anne, who'd kept a now-famous diary during her time in hiding, died in March 1945 at the Bergen-Belsen Nazi concentration camp.)

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1735, a jury found John Peter Zenger of the New York Weekly Journal not guilty of committing seditious libel against the colonial governor of New York, William Cosby.

In 1790, the Coast Guard had its beginnings as the Revenue Cutter Service.

In 1792, English romantic poet Percy Bysshe Shelley was born at Field Place near Horsham, England.

In 1830, plans for the city of Chicago were laid out.

In 1892, Andrew and Abby Borden were axed to death in their home in Fall River, Mass. Lizzie Borden, Andrew's daughter from a previous marriage, accused of the killings, but acquitted at trial.

In 1900, Britain's Queen Mother Elizabeth was born.

In 1916, the United States reached agreement with Denmark to purchase the Danish Virgin Islands for $25 million.

In 1964, the bodies of missing civil rights workers Michael Schwerner. Goodman and Andrew James Chaney were found buried in an earthen dam in Mississippi.

In 1977, President Jimmy Carter signed a measure establishing Department of Energy.

In 1987, the Federal Communications Commission voted to abolish the Fairness Doctrine, which required radio and television stations to present balanced coverage of controversial

Ten years ago: Fresh from the Republican national convention in Philadelphia, GOP presidential nominee George W. Bush and running mate Dick Cheney began an air and rail tour of four swing states: Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan and Illinois, For his part, Democratic presidential candidate Al Gore mocked the Republican gathering as a specialinterests-sponsored sham.

Five years ago: Al-Qaida's No. 2, Ayman al-Zawahri, threatened more destruction in London in a videotape aired on Al-Jazeera. He also threatened the United States with tens of thousands of military dead if it did not withdraw from Iraq; President George W. Bush responded by saying, "We will stay the course, we will complete the job." A 19-year-old Israeli soldier opened fire inside a bus, killing four Israeli Arabs; an angry crowd then killed the gunman. A minisubmarine carrying seven Russians became caught on an underwater antenna 600 feet below the surface of the Pacific Ocean; the men were rescued three days later with help from a British vessel.

One year ago: North Korean leader Kim Jong Il pardoned American journalists Laura Ling and Euna Lee for entering the country illegally and ordered their release during a surprise by former U.S. Bill Clinton. President

DEAR ABBY: I'm 25 and have been married to "Bob" for five years. The problem is, I'm in love with his 53year-old father. I have always been attracted to "Charlie," but my feelings have escalated since Bob's mother died last year.

After the funeral, Charlie was lonely and started coming to our house. Most of the time Bob was at work, so Charlie and I became very close. At one family gettogether, Charlie kissed me passionately in the kitchen when no one was around.

I don't know what to do. I think I am seriously in love with Charlie, but my husband is a wonderful man and I would never want to hurt him. If I tell Bob the truth, not only will it destroy our marriage, but forever ruin Bob's relationship with his father.

Should I ignore my feelings for Charlie and pretend it never happened? Or should I tell Bob what happened, hoping he'll under-

> - IN LOVE WITH THE OLDER VERSION

DEAR \mathbf{A} BBY Jeanne Phillips

DEAR IN LOVE: Charlie may have been lonely and grieving when he started coming over, but when you both recognized that you were becoming attracted to each other, a stop should have been put to it. That he would actually hit on you "when no one was looking" is disgraceful. (Was he sober?)

If you tell your husband, he will indeed "understand," and I don't recommend it. You need professional counseling, and Charlie needs to be told that poaching on the family preserve is not allowed, so he should spend his lonely hours looking for company that's available. What you have described isn't love; it's a scandal.

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago I placed my second child for adoption. I was a single mom with a 3-year-old boy to raise and the father was in the military for an extended mission. I thought long and hard before I did it and decided that the gift I could give to another couple was better than the life I could offer a child as a single parent.

I am still in contact with the father. We speak often, comfort each other and just talk. Some people - mainly men I have dated - find this relationship disturbing. It has caused two relationships to end.

Abby, am I wrong to continue a friendship with the father of a child I gave up for adoption? I know that at some point the past needs to be the past, and I'll have to deal with it for the rest of my life. Is it wrong to want to have that other person there to connect with me and understand firsthand what a hard life decision I went through?

- GIVEN UP SO MUCH ALREADY IN PENNSYLVANIA DEAR GIVEN UP SO MUCH: No, but if you are trying to cultivate and maintain a relationship with someone else, you need to recognize that clinging to the father of that child and talking to him "often" was somewhere between threatening and a turn-off for the men you were involved with. THEY should have been the ones providing understanding and comfort - not him.

DEAR ABBY: I have been living with my boyfriend for three years. We have often talked about a future together, complete with a house, kids, etc. I am the breadwinner while he is working hard to achieve success as an artist. The role reversal suits us just fine except for one thing. I would like to become engaged, but I feel I can't expect him to propose when I know he has very little money. Abby, should I propose to him?

- BREADWINNER IN NEW YORK, N.Y. DEAR BREADWINNER: I don't see why not. It happens every day!

IF AUGUST 4 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You may be filled with a sense of well being as this year unfolds. Between now and end of the year, your self-confidence will be boosted by positive feedback, so it might be a good time to pamper yourself with a few luxuries or take a training course to prepare yourself for the future. During the early fall, however, you could be distracted by a pie-in-the-sky idea or a romantic involvement that has little chance for long-term commitment. By January, your attention may shift toward career success or business necessities. Be wise and make important decisions during mid-March when your common sense is better than usual.

HOROSCOPE Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): He who stoops to conquer might scrape his knees and need a bandage. It is more important to be fair and ethical than to be right. Don't bother following through on complicated schemes to win support.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You could be dissatisfied. You yearn for romance and glamorous surroundings. You could be so in love with the idea of being in love that you aren't discriminating about whom you pick for a partner.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): The truth shall set you free. When tensions run high and you feel cornered by circumstances, you could be tempted to spit out a white lie. The truth may be discovered at an inopportune moment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Hang in there. Someone might be more successful than you, but that does not diminish your innate gifts. Brief feelings of inadequacy may undermine your confidence but will disperse quickly.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Be content with what is good enough to serve your needs. It is more important to keep what you already have than to reach for something that could exceed your grasp. Delay making significant purchases.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. Avoid becoming embroiled in issues where the answers aren't completely black and white. It might not be possible to choose the winning side or to see a clear solution at this time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Shoo away nasty ideas like flies on the picnic table. You don't need to be jealous of someone else's achievements, as yours are sufficient. It isn't necessary to defend your views during a simple discussion.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You might step on important toes while caught up in an obsessive aspiration. Don't jump to conclusions. It is possible under these conditions to lose your temper or inadvertently aggravate others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): If you fight fire with fire, you may end up with scorched fingertips. Rather than taking offense, try soothing words and a bit more understanding. Don't be overly focused on material net worth.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your moral compass might need dusting off or some spit and polish. There could be an important dilemma, but you won't develop a complete solution overnight. You must simply wait it out.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Star quality comes inmany packages. The world might remind you that you possess many talents. Your flare for fashion or your people skills might come in handy to improve your reputation.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A rush to judgment could prove disadvantageous in the end. You don't need to be on the defensive and shouldn't attempt to outmaneuver others. Consider what will make loved ones proud of you.

SUDOKU

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

Department of the Interior, Bureau Of Land Management Notice of Realty Action: Recreation and Public Purposes Act Classification for Conveyance of Public Lands in Blaine County, Idaho; IDI-36299

SUMMARY: Pursuant to regulations found at 43 CFR 2400.0-3(a) and in accordance with Section 7 of the Taylor Grazing Act (43 U.S.C. 315f), the following described public land in Blaine County, Idaho, has been examined by the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) and found suitable for classification and conveyance under the provisions of the Recreation and Public Purposes Act (R&PP), as amended (43 U.S.C. 869 et seq.), R&PP Act, as amended (43 U.S.C. 869 et seq.). The area described contains 242.72 acres, more or less, in Blaine County. In accordance with the R&PP Act, Blaine County has filed an application for the following described public land for (1) expansion of the existing Ohio Gulch transfer station (60 acres) and (2) recreation (182.72 acres): Transfer Station (60 acres) Boise Meridian, T. 3 N., R. 18 E., sec. 15, W1/2E1/2NW14, SE14SW14SW14NW14, S16SE14SW14NW14; Area 2 Recreation (182.72 acres) Boise Meridian, T. 3 N., R. 18 E., sec. 10, Lot 3, SENSWMSEMSWM, SWMSEMSEMSWM, and EMSEMSEMSWM; sec. 15, W\2NE\4, E\2E\2NW\4, NW\4NW\4SW\4, and N\2NW\4SW\4.

The lands are not needed for Federal purposes and conveyance is in the public interest. The conveyance of public land is consistent with the BLM Shoshone Field Office Sun Valley Management Framework Plan, approved by the BLM in 1981 and amended by the Amendments to Shoshone Field Office Land Use Plans for Land Tenure Adjustment and Areas of Critical Environmental Concern (Amendment) in 2003. According to the Amendment (p. 11), the BLM prefers land disposal through R&PP Act patents to local or State governments because these entities are expected to provide long-term land management to meet the needs of the public. Blaine County meets this criterion, as its intent is continue existing recreational opportunities as Blaine County meets this criterion, as its intent is continue existing recreational opportunities as well as to acquire public land to support infrastructure and extend community services.

The land will not be sold until at least 60 days after the date of publication of this notice in the Federal Register. Pursuant to the R&PP Act, permanent conveyances of land for recreation or historical monument purposes are made without charge to State and local governments. The special pricing schedule for land which will be government-controlled, used for government purposes, and serve the public (i.e. transfer stations) is $10 an acre, with a minimum price per conveyance of $50. The 60 acres to be used to expand the construction and demolition debris disposal area at the existing Ohio Gulch transfer station will be offered to Blaine County for $600.

Any patent issued to Blaine County will contain the following terms, conditions and reservations:

1. The patent is subject to the provisions of the R&PP Act and to all applicable regulations of the Secretary of the Interior;

2. A right-of-way is reserved for ditches and canals constructed by the authority of the United States,

Act of August 30, 1890 (43 U.S.C.945); 3. The patent is subject to valid existing rights. Subject to limitations prescribed by law and regulation, and prior to patent issuance, a holder of any right-of-way within the disposal area will be given the opportunity to amend the right-of-way for conversion to a new term, including perpetuity, if applicable;

 The United States will maintain ownership of all minerals, together with the right to prospect for, mine, and remove such deposits from the same under applicable law and such regulations as the Secretary of the Interior may prescribe;

5. The patent is conditioned on the receipt of an appropriate indemnification clause protecting the United States from claims arising out of the patentee's use, occupancy, or operation of the premises; and

Any other terms and conditions deemed necessary or appropriate by the Authorized Officer.With respect to the 60 acres to be used for the transfer station expansion, the following additional provisions will be required:

a. The patentee shall comply with all Federal and State laws applicable to the disposal, placement, or release of hazardous substances.

b. The patentee shall indemnify and hold harmless the United States against any legal liability or future costs that may arise out of any violations of such laws.

c. The land conveyed to the County shall revert to the United States unless substantially used in accordance with an approved plan and schedule of development on or before the day five years after the date of conveyance. However, no portion of the property shall revert to the United States if such portion has been used for solid waste disposal or for any other purpose that the authorized officer determines may result in the disposal, placement, or release of any hazardous substance.

d. If, at any time, the patentee transfers to another party ownership of any portion of the land not used for the purpose specified in the application and the approved plan of development, the patentee shall pay the BLM the fair market value, as determined by the authorized officer, of the transferred portion as of the date of transfer, including the value of any improvements thereon; and

e. No portion of the land covered by such patent shall under any circumstance revert to the United States if such portion has been used for solid waste disposal or for any other purpose that the authorized officer determines may result in the disposal, placement, or release of any hazardous substance.

With respect to the 182.72 acres that will be used for public recreation purposes, the following additional provisions will be required:

a. Title to the property shall revert to the United States upon a finding, after notice and opportunity for a hearing, that, without the approval of the authorized officer:

(1) The patentee or its approved successor attempts to transfer title to or control over the lands to another:

(2) The lands have been devoted to a use other than that for which the lands were conveyed;

(3) The lands have not been used for the purpose for which they were conveyed for a 5-year period;

(4) The patentee has failed to follow the approved development plan or management plan. The Secretary of the Interior may take action to revest title in the United States if the patentee directly or indirectly permits his agents, employees, contractors, or subcontractors (including without limitation lessees, sublessees, and permittees) to prohibit or restrict the use of any part of the patented lands or any of the facilities thereon by any person because of such person; Çs race, creed, color, sex or national origin. On July 23, 2010, the above-described public land will be segregated from all other forms of appropriation under the public land laws, including the general mining laws, except for conveyance under the R&PP Act, leasing under the mineral leasing laws, and disposals under the mineral material disposal laws. The segregative effect will terminate upon issuance of a patent or publication in the Federal Register of a termination of the segregation. Detailed information concerning the proposed conveyance, including the planning and environmental documents are available for review at the BLM Shoshone Field Office, 400 West F Street, Shoshone, Idaho. Normal business hours are 7:45 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, except for Federal holidays. PUBLIC COMMENTS: Interested parties may submit comments involving the suitability of the land for (1) expansion of the existing Ohio Gulch transfer station and (2) recreation. Comments on the classification should be limited to whether the land is physically suited for the proposal, whether the use will maximize the future use or uses of the land, whether the use is consistent with local planning and zoning, or whether the use is consistent with State and Federal programs.

Interested parties may also submit comments regarding other proposed decisions for the R&PP Act application and plan of development, whether the BLM followed proper administrative procedures in reaching the decision to convey the described public land under the R&PP Act, or any other factor not directly related to the suitability of the land for recreation and public purposes. Public comments should be submitted in writing to Ruth A. Miller, BLM Shoshone Field Manager, 400 West F Street, Shoshone, Idaho 83352, or before September 6, 2010. Electronic mail, facsimile, or telephone comments will not be considered properly filed. Any adverse comments will be reviewed by the BLM Idaho State Director. In the absence of any adverse comments, the classification of the land described in this notice will become effective on September 20, 2010. The land will not be available for conveyance until after the classification becomes effective. Before including your address, phone number, e-mail address, or other personal identifying information in your comment, be advised that your entire comment including your personal identifying informationmay be made publicly available at any time. While you can ask us in your comment to withhold from public review your personal indentifying information, we cannot guarantee that we will be able to do so. FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Tara Hagen, Realty Specialist, BLM Shoshone Field

Office, 400 West F Street, Shoshone, Idaho 83352 or (208) 732-7205.
