Wolves re-relisted as endangered

Idaho hunt off; reactions mixed

By Laura Lundquist
Times-News writer

The Idaho Department of Fish and Game will have to put its planned discussion of wolf-hunt quotas on hold after a federal judge

Thursday returned wolves in Idaho and Montana to the endangered species list. U.S. District Judge Donald Molloy's ruling hinged on the fact that wolves were taken off the list in those two states, but not in Wyoming.

He wrote that wolf populations cannot be managed based upon political boundaries such as state lines. It's the second time wolves have been relisted in recent years. Reintroduced to the region in the mid-'90s, they were taken off the list in early 2008, only to receive federal protection again later that year thanks to an injunction Molloy granted. In 2009, both Idaho and Montana submitted acceptable wolf management plans to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, and the wolf was delisted in the two states that May, clearing the way for the first wolf hunts in fall 2009. But Wyoming's plan was rejected partly because it listed wolves as predators, allowing them to be shot on sight. Wyoming's wolves stayed under Endangered Species Act protection. The Idaho Fish and Game Commission had planned to consider season dates, limits on number of wolves killed and allowable hunting methods for this fall's hunt during its Aug. 16 meeting. See WOLVES, Main 3

Magic Valley bank doles out $27K to area charities

By Laura Lundquist
Times-News writer

In this economy, doing more with less is almost a mission statement for most charities. However, with the help of the First Federal Charity Foundation, some area public-service organizations won't have to scrimp so much to reach their goals. Eleven community groups were presented with a total of $27,000 Thursday at a luncheon at the Blue Lakes Country Club in Twin Falls. Projects funded through First Federal Savings Bank's foundation ranged from a fix of a leaky roof to the purchase of new medical equipment. The South Central Public Health District's Magic Valley Diabetes Coalition was lucky enough to be granted its full request. Health Education Specialist Susie Beem said the Beem said Dr. Gerald Walker can no longer donate his lamp but found a used lamp in Utah, which the coalition bought. New lamps cost up to $5,000. Other charities needed more money, which the foundation couldn't completely provide. But representatives said they still got a much-needed boost. Declo City Councilwoman Pam Young said the council had applied for $10,000 to fund a new playground in the city park. Young said children have no place to play during city park events because the nearby schoolyard isn't close enough. Having received half the amount from the foundation, Young said the council has a few more months to raise funds so it can build the playground next summer.

A sunny day with a dash of rain

Severe thunderstorm pounds Magic Valley

By Amy Huddleston
Times-News writer

Singing in the rain and splashing through puddles weren't exactly what Magic Valley residents had in mind Thursday afternoon. They were given the chance to do both, anyway. A severe thunderstorm brought the curious, the bored and the busy to a stop to watch or run from torrents of rain in Twin Falls shortly after 3:30 p.m. According to the National Weather Service, the rains brought hail a half-inch in diameter and prompted the agency to issue flood warnings. "We call it monsoon moisture," said Megan Thimesch, a NWS meteorologist. She predicted that the storms would last through the night into today. They can be attributed to low pressure over the Northwest and a ridge of high pressure from the southeast, she said. A weather gauge at the Twin Falls airport only recorded .06 of an inch of rain between 4 and 5 p.m. But rainfall produced by the storm was noticeably much more elsewhere in town. Though few traffic problems were reported outside of the city of Twin Falls, city dispatchers reported water up to car bumpers all across town.

Trial scheduled on Johnson murder appeal

By Ariel Hansen
Times-News writer

HAILEY — The motions and counter-motions in the appeals of Sarah Johnson, who was convicted of killing her parents at their Bellevue home in 2003 when she was 16, have covered so much legal ground that there ought to be a kitchen sink in there somewhere. Although the majority of the issues Johnson's attorneys have raised in recent years have been thrown out by the courts, 5th District Judge G. Richard Bevan late last month granted a trial on six items being appealed. The trial is scheduled to last four days, starting Nov. 30 in Twin Falls. Five of the issues relate to ineffective assistance of counsel. Johnson's appeal attorneys claim her trial

The murderer who got kicked by a mule

They hanged John Jurko 84 years ago last month. The Twin Falls barber had murdered his former business partner for supposedly propositioning his wife.

But Jurko's lawyers pleaded for clemency, arguing that "he was mentally unstable due to being kicked in the head by a mule when he was younger."

Jurko, who was 50 when he died, is the only Magic Valley resident ever executed by the state of Idaho. And his story is a corker.

On the evening of June 25, 1924, Jurko and his wife walked into the Twin Falls pool hall that he had previously run with his partner E.B.W. Vandermark. The two had fallen out a month earlier and gone their separate ways.

"Come here," Jurko shouted at Vandermark. "I want you to tell me what you said about my wife."

Vandermark was playing poker with three other men at the end of the bar.

"I came in here to make you take back what you said about my wife," witnesses testified that Jurko said.

Vandermark stood up and replied that he had not said anything about anybody.

"I came here to make you prove what you said to my neighbors, that you were having sexual intercourse with my wife," Jurko said.

Vandermark repeated his denial and ordered Jurko out of the billiard parlor, at which point Jurko drew a pistol and shot Vandermark three or four times. He slumped to the floor and died within a few minutes.

Jurko, meanwhile, walked briskly to the Twin Falls County Courthouse and turned himself in. He admitted the shooting but pleaded self-defense.

At Jurko's trial, his wife testified that Vandermark — who used to live with the Jurkos — showed up at their house the day before the murder and asked Mrs. Jurko to run away with him.

"You are too good for him," Vandermark was quoted as saying, offering Mrs. Jurko $300 if she would leave her husband.

Jurko's spouse said she threw Vandermark out of the house. But in denying Jurko's appeal, Idaho Supreme Court Chief Justice Alfred Budge wrote, "There is evidence to the effect that the deceased was not in the house of the appellant at the time testified to by the appellant's wife ... Her testimony on the whole, as to the alleged statements of the deceased and where and when they were made, is unsatisfactory and more or less conflicting."

Jurko didn't do himself any favors by taking the stand in his own behalf. He told the court that Vandermark had made a menacing move toward him.

But other witnesses said Vandermark died with playing cards in both hands.

"... I don't know whether he had something in his hands or not; I don't remember. I know something was shining. I don't know whether that was his ring or a glass or what it was," Jurko testified.

Asked Twin Falls County Prosecutor Frank Stephan, "He didn't strike you or anything up there?"

"Well, there was something shining like a glass. I ain't sure whether it was a glass or that big ring he had on that was shining," Jurko said.

"I asked you whether he hit you with anything up there," Stephan said.

"Well, I was hit over here on this finger. I don't know what he hit me with. I threw my hands up to try to stop it," Jurko replied.

The jury swiftly returned a guilty verdict.

In March 1926, the Supreme Court denied Jurko's appeal, and the Board of Pardons declined to grant clemency. Jurko was executed on July 9.

He died on gallows built in the prison's rose garden.

Osterhoudt seeks second mistrial

By Bradley Guire
Times-News writer

The case against Franklin Ward Osterhoudt could be declared a mistrial, again.

Fifth District Judge Barry Wood will hear arguments to declare a mistrial from defense counsel George Essma today on behalf of Osterhoudt, 44, of Buhl. Osterhoudt was convicted on July 9 of rape, incest and lewd conduct against a minor under 16.

The defense intends to argue that Osterhoudt's Fifth Amendment right to refuse self-incrimination was violated by Twin Falls County Deputy Prosecutor Julie Sturgill during her closing arguments on July 8.

Specifically, the defense objects to this statement referencing the fact that Osterhoudt did not testify in court: "What is the testimony of the defendant? Actually, no one addressed this at all."

The Fifth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution states, "No person ... shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself." In other words, the defense claims that the prosecutor attacked the fact that Osterhoudt did not testify in his defense while on trial.

Osterhoudt

Prosecutors filed an objection to the motion, arguing that the remark was not improper and was a "harmless error in context of the entire trial." The prosecution maintains that regardless of the comment, the jury would have reached the same guilty verdict.

Twin Falls County Prosecutor Grant Loebs said that his office will "strenuously argue" against a mistrial.

"While every trial has errors, mistakes and problems, these were not so much to deny (Osterhoudt) a fair trial," Loebs added.

Essma declined to comment for this story.

If a mistrial is declared, Loebs' office may re-prosecute Osterhoudt, unless the judge rules otherwise.

This summer's trial marked the second time Osterhoudt faced a jury, as a mistrial was declared during his first jury trial in 2009. In that instance, the jury couldn't reach a verdict.

This time around, the jury convicted him following an eight-day trial.

A grand jury indicted Osterhoudt in 2007, but he left the area and was not found until 2009, when he was arrested near the Arizona-Mexico border.

City Street Superintendent Dean Littler said every drain in town was plugged up.

"It's pretty widespread. I've got all my guys checking drains," Littler said. "These drains only hold so much water. It was a pretty unusual storm."

NWS announced reports of street flooding in town on its website, and an employee at Boyer Jewelry on Addison Avenue East said the entire store was flooded. Police were called to handle traffic along the 1700 block of Addison due to the water on the road.

The storm's effects weren't confined just to the western Magic Valley.

Heavy rain was also reported in the Mini-Cassia area, according to NWS, and penny-sized hail possibly fell around Elba. A small-stream flood advisory was in place for eastern Cassia County from Elba to Idaho, where the agency estimated close to two inches of rain may have fallen.

attorneys should have requested a continuance to gather more evidence from the crime scene, should have established the scientific basis for a blood-spatter experiment, didn't present expert testimony about bed linens that Diane Johnson was found in, didn't adequately cross-examine 15 witnesses, and didn't inquire about the freshness of fingerprints not belonging to Sarah Johnson found on the murder weapon, scope, ammunition and doorknobs.

The sixth issue presents new evidence that, according to court documents, the alleged owner of those fingerprints is Christopher Kevin Hill, who is without an alibi for the murder night.

The state didn't fingerprint Hill after the murder, according to court records, and the defense couldn't legally have fingerprinted him for use in court. Hill admits to having touched the rifle, scope and ammunition in those documents, and said he helped the Johnsons' renter move in, explaining his fingerprints on the doorknobs, but said he did so well before the murders.

If the defense could have presented evidence that Hill's fingerprints were fresh, instead of as old as he attested, that could have provided the jury reasonable doubt as to Johnson's guilt, her attorneys say.

Bevan is still considering whether to grant additional hearings on or summarily dismiss other assertions of ineffective counsel.

Johnson's appeal attorneys hope to argue that trial counsel didn't use readily available psychiatric evidence, failed to challenge whether evidence was sufficient to support an "aiding and abetting" instruction to the jury, and didn't investigate a claim of the then-deputy Blaine County coroner that he overheard Blaine County Sheriff Walt Femling make potentially prejudicial comments at the scene.

Steven Pankey of Shoshone, the former deputy coroner, has asserted he called Johnson's attorneys to tell them he had "important information" about the case. According to court documents, he said he overheard Femling say to Blaine County Prosecuting Attorney Jim Thomas, "Well, I guess I've got to move evidence to make a case."

Johnson's trial attorneys reportedly did not follow up on the call. The judge has said that the failure to re-contact was not objectively unreasonable, that Pankey didn't see any actual tampering with evidence, and that Femling's statement, if he made it, could have been innocuous.

Johnson is in prison at the Pocatello Women's Correctional Center, serving two life sentences without possibility of parole.

Jerome sets tentative budget after debate

By Amy Huddleston
Times-News writer

JEROME — The Jerome City Council on Wednesday passed a tentative city budget of a little more than $15.8 million for fiscal year 2011.

Heated discussion before the final vote led to promises of revision before the budget goes to its first public hearing on Aug. 23. Councilman Robert Culver voiced his concerns over proposed funding for new city employees and a janitorial staff position for the water-works department.

“We need to take care of some emergency stuff instead of fluff,” Culver said. “We have sidewalks in the park that someone can trip on. It’s time to step up to the plate for the important things.”

Although Culver voted against passing the tentative budget, Mayor John Shine encouraged the council to pass it with the promise that detailed discussions will be scheduled to examine line items more thoroughly.

The council will meet at 6 p.m. Aug. 18 for further budget discussion.

Total planned expenditures in the budget dropped by a little less than $3 million from this fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30. Street expenditures of $4 million this year are planned to drop to $1.9 million, mostly due to the completion of major construction work on South Lincoln Avenue.

In other news Wednesday, the council and Fire Chief Mike Hatfield swore in Deputy Fire Chief Frank Wilson and presented him with his badge.

Another sentenced in 4 Corners artifacts case

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A Utah man who once bragged about taking American Indian artifacts from federal lands avoided jail time Thursday after a federal judge said he decided to show leniency after reading letters from the man’s two daughters.

U.S. District Judge Dee Benson said he planned to give Aubry Patterson, 57, prison time but changed his mind after reading the letters, which said Patterson was an “amazing father” who had a hard life but always “provided for us and put food on the table.”

Patterson’s teary daughters accompanied him to court. Benson instead gave Patterson three years of probation, waiving guidelines that called for more than a year in prison.

Patterson apologized for digging up valuable relics on federal lands surrounding his property outside Monticello in southeast Utah, and he promised to never do it again.

“I would just like to say I’m sorry for the crime I committed and would not do it again,” Patterson said in federal court in Salt Lake City.

Interstate 84 Declo on-ramp closed today

Times-News

The westbound Interstate 84 on-ramp from Declo (Exit 216) will be closed today as crews continue rehabilitation project work, according to an Idaho Transportation Department release.

Crews will begin pulverizing the existing on-ramp surface, closing the on-ramp from 6 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Westbound traffic will be required to enter I-84 at Exit 211 in Heyburn or Exit 208 in Burley. Eastbound on- and off-ramps will remain open.

Wolves

Commission Chairman Wayne Wright said the meeting will now be much shorter. He said the ruling left Fish and Game with limited options for managing wolves, elk and deer.

“I’m disappointed; Idaho should be disappointed,” Wright said. “We’re going to have to regroup and determine what the next steps will be.”

Wolf-tag sales will be suspended for the time being, Wright said. Wildlife representatives from the three states already planned to meet in two weeks to discuss regional issues, he said, so now wolves will be the major talking point.

The ruling means that management of Idaho wolves south of Interstate 90 reverts to special Endangered Species Act rules that allow wildlife managers some flexibility in dealing with wolves that kill livestock. The rules also allow ranchers to kill a wolf while it is attacking their stock animals or dogs. These special exemptions do not apply to wolves north of Interstate 90, which are fully protected.

Some sportsmen’s groups hadn’t yet heard the ruling Thursday, but most reached by the Times-News were disappointed.

“That’s the saddest thing I’ve ever heard,” said Ken Enslinger of Idaho Sportsmen for Fish and Wildlife.

Wolf-friendly groups breathed a sigh of relief.

Garrick Dutcher, program manager of Living With Wolves in Sun Valley, said the ruling is a temporary reprieve, during which he hopes groups can come together to clarify the real issues regarding the predator.

The ruling’s only problem, Dutcher said, was that it concentrated on state lines rather than the overall issue of existing with wolves.

“I think we need to let the wildlife services do their work but with strict accountability,” Dutcher said. “Hunting is not the answer, but wildlife managers need to be able to eliminate problem packs.”

“You can never give up hope,” Simpson said in a meeting Thursday with the Times-News editorial board. “Strange things happen in legislative sessions.”

Simpson acknowledges that the proposal has its opponents, including the Idaho Recreation Council, and some will always unpromisingly want it to die.

Simpson also has high hopes for what the 2010 elections will mean for the makeup of the U.S. House of Representatives.

“I believe the Republicans will take back the House,” Simpson said. “... I think we have an opportunity to take back the House if we don’t blow it.”

coming up. Speaker of the House Nancy Pelosi, D-Calif., has summoned representatives back to the Capitol for a session next week in a move that’s interrupted their August recess.

They’ll have to decide the fate of a $26.1 billion jobs bill. About $10 billion would flow to school districts to help avoid teacher layoffs. The rest would help extend Medicaid benefits for states, where a benefit increase that was part of the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act is due to expire at the end of the year.

Gov. Otter OK with wide-load shipments; Minnick seeks delay

LEWISTON (AP) — Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter says he is confident that about 200 proposed shipments of oversized oil equipment along U.S. Highway 12 are being properly reviewed for safety and environmental concerns.

Meanwhile, U.S. Rep. Walt Minnick has asked Otter to defer state approval of the route through north-central Idaho until a “widely advertised” public hearing has been held and the project “has been fully vetted.”

Otter has taken calls at the office — and at home — from residents who object to the shipments scheduled to start later this year, the Lewiston Tribune reports. Still, the Republican governor is convinced the Idaho Transportation Department and other officials are taking heed of all relevant concerns, including possible accidents along the pristine Lochsa River.

Exxon Mobil Corp. aims to truck equipment from the port in Lewiston to the Kearl Oil Sands in Alberta. ConocoPhillips also plans four big equipment shipments from Lewiston to Billings, Mont., where the company has a refinery.

Despite the scale of the proposed loads — they could weigh up to 140 tons and be 170 to 210 feet long — the trucks will use multiple axles to distribute the weight. Otter expects that will keep potential damage to the highway at a minimum.

“The impact to the highway probably won’t be any more than a 1-ton pick-up,” he said. “The weight would be the same as any noncommercial vehicle.”

Adam Rush, spokesman for the Idaho Transportation Department, says the state has yet to sign off on the shipments.

“We’re still working on a transportation plan with Exxon Mobil and ConocoPhillips,” Rush told The Associated Press.

The agency said it held three “highly publicized” hearings on the shipments in Lewiston, Moscow and Kooskia in late June, with 325 people attending. To date, 469 e-mails or letters have been received commenting on the shipments. A petition opposing the shipment with approximately 1,700 electronic signatures was presented to Otter.

The Idaho Transportation Department issues fewer than 10 oversized permits annually for U.S. 12, usually for grain silos, boats or wind turbine blades.

There have been no reported accidents involving oversized loads here in 15 years, but the Nez Perce Tribe is among groups that have objected to the oil-equipment shipments.

The route, starting from the Snake River port of Lewiston, follows the Lochsa and Clearwater rivers through 70 miles of the Nez Perce reservation in Idaho. In early July, the tribe’s governing body passed a resolution against the project, joining others who fear potential environmental and safety consequences.

In a letter sent to Otter late last month, Minnick, a Democrat, wrote that residents of rural north-central Idaho rely on U.S. 12 not only for transportation, but also for vital services and business. He underscored the concern that approval of the shipments could lead to 20 years of continuous loads of oversized mining materials through the area.

“Does the cost of maintaining this new shipping route outweigh the potential economic benefits to the region and the state?” Minnick asked.

Capt. Lonnie Richardson, with the Idaho State Police in Lewiston, said the plan is for all vehicles and loads to be inspected before each trip. They would also be escorted by off-duty Idaho State Police officers, with negotiations in the works to make certain all costs are covered by the companies, including wages, mileage and gasoline.

Otter also said there could be economic opportunities associated with the oil equipment.

“What I’m interested in is, what would it take for the manufacturer to come to Lewiston and build those components,” he said.

BOISE — Homeowners at a failed central Idaho resort want to resurrect ski lift operations next winter and are asking the state, a bankruptcy judge and creditors who are owed hundreds of millions to go along with their plan.

The Tamarack Municipal Association, which represents property owners at Tamarack Resort in Donnelly, said they’d use some of their reserves to initiate a four-day, Thursday-through-Sunday ski season starting in December. The resort hasn’t had a ski season since mothballing the lifts in March 2009.

Its majority owner, Jean-Pierre Boespflug, is trying to find a buyer while the resort’s finances are sorted out in bankruptcy court.

Zurich-based Credit Suisse Group is among dozens of creditors trying to recover hundreds of millions in unpaid debts.

The homeowners said Thursday they have a business plan showing they could break even.

Two ski lifts that are subject to litigation because Bank of America’s leasing unit wants to repossess them wouldn’t be operated, according to the plan. The five lifts that would be used provide access to most of the skiing terrain on 7,700-foot West Mountain.

The homeowners would likely have to work out an agreement with the state, because the resort failed to pay its $250,000 annual lease for state land where most ski runs are located, and another payment is due next year. Homeowners pledged to make a “substantial payment” in exchange for a winter recreation season.

“That’s one of the things that will need to be resolved,” said Scott Peyron, a spokesman for the homeowners who hope their proposal can go before the Idaho Land Board in September.

Season passes would cost $199.

A lawyer for the Idaho Department of Land said getting all the players on board and reopening the resort, even for limited skiing, likely won’t be easy.

“All of the interested parties are going to have to sit down and say, ‘This makes sense,’” said Robert Follett, a deputy attorney general, adding any deal wouldn’t release Tamarack from its obligation to make good on its underlying lease.

A Credit Suisse Group spokeswoman in New York declined to comment.

IDAHO Idaho to penalize new Medicaid contractor

PIERCE — An Idaho health official says the state plans to penalize its new Medicaid billing contractor over delays in payments to thousands of service providers.

Regional Health and Welfare Director Ron Beecher said Wednesday that the contract with California-based Molina Healthcare gives the state the option of penalizing the company if it doesn’t perform as expected.

Idaho switched to the new Medicaid billing vendor on June 7, just as the state enacted a three-week delay in Medicaid payments so the agency could balance its budget. Providers expected to receive their payments beginning July 1, but the new billing system isn’t working smoothly.

The Lewiston Tribune reports that Beecher says Molina officials plan to meet with welfare department officials today to discuss what is being done to solve the problem.

State to divvy up $2.75 million for school solar projects

BOISE — Idaho’s energy czar is getting ready to divvy up about $2.75 million in federal stimulus money for state schools.

The Office of Energy Resources is now taking grant proposals from districts for the Idaho Solar Panels for Schools program.

The money will be used to install large solar electric net-metered equipment at schools.

Each project is expected to be up to 100 KW in size and will generate electricity and revenue to cut districts’ energy bills.

The program is also meant to teach students about alternative energy.

Every district across Idaho can submit one proposal. The deadline for submitting such proposals Nov. 12.

Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter said in a statement that he’s anxious to see this federal money spent to put solar installations into Idaho schools — and expand the state’s alternative energy sources.

Odors that sickened workers puzzle police

BOISE — Seventeen workers say they were sickened by a sewer gas-like smell at their Boise office building, but tests by the police hazardous material team didn’t find the cause.

Police say the employees of the home health care office on North Curtis complained of headaches and dizziness after reporting for work Wednesday and sought treatment at a nearby clinic. No one was seriously hurt.

Lynn Hightower of the Boise police says the office was closed when the employees left. About two hours later the investigators checked for a number of volatile compounds and also walked around the building but couldn’t detect the cause of the complaints. He says the team advised the building owner to work with medical personnel to try to identify what may have caused the health complaints.

Dropouts may be going to boot camp

PIERCE — High school dropouts could earn their diplomas through a proposed boot camp-style program that’s planned for economically depressed north-central Idaho.

The National Guard’s Youth Challenge Program would bring about 60 new jobs to the remote rural community of Pierce, the Lewiston Tribune reports.

The area has seen its economic fortunes flag with the decline of the timber industry.

“One thing on our radar is trying to find ways to address our dropout rate,” said Paul Agidius, an Idaho Board of Education trustee. “It can help with college attendance as well. Usually, if you can get kids back into the system, they pick up some confidence and end up moving forward.”

An old school on Pierce’s northern outskirts would accommodate the program but first needs to be renovated.

Two classes would be held annually, for nearly six months each. They’d start with a two-week boot camp.

Kids who leave Idaho high schools without graduating would have to apply to participate.

“They’re free to opt out at any time,” said Maj. Gen. Gary Saylor, commanding general of the Idaho National Guard. “It isn’t a prison, (but) they wouldn’t leave the school premises except for the community service. They’d wear some type of uniform and be supervised 24 hours a day.”

WYOMING Another light quake hits Wyoming

JACKSON — Two light earthquakes have struck western Wyoming in as many days.

The U.S. Geological Survey said a magnitude-4.0 temblor hit Thursday just before 9 a.m. It was centered 20 miles northeast of Jackson and originated about 3 miles below ground.

A magnitude-4.8 quake struck in the same area Wednesday evening. It could be felt in most of the western half of the state as well as portions of eastern Idaho.

The Wyoming State Geological Survey said Wednesday’s quake was felt most strongly in Kelly and Moose.

Idaho’s wolf hunt comes to an abrupt end

To the surprise of no one, U.S. District Judge Don Molloy put wolves back under federal protection on Thursday. That means there will be no wolf hunting seasons in Idaho or Montana this fall. State agencies will still be able to manage wolves, including removing problem wolves implicated in livestock conflicts or causing unnatural declines in game species.

It was nothing Idaho and Montana did that prompted the decision. Molloy, a federal judge in Missoula, Mont., ruled that the Interior Department’s removal of wolves from the endangered species list in those two states but not in Wyoming was a political decision and violated the Endangered Species Act.

Molloy said the entire wolf population in the Northern Rockies must either be listed or removed as an endangered species, but the protections can’t be separated by state.

In so doing, he agreed with arguments by Defenders and Wildlife and 13 other environmental groups that had sued to return wolves to federal protection.

Molloy held hearings last summer, and decided to let Montana and Idaho go ahead with their 2009 wolf hunts while he considered the case. Wyoming was excluded because that state had adopted a virtually shoot-on-sight policy for killing wolves.

Will Molloy’s decision stick? Probably. It’s hard to envision the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals reversing such a ruling.

That means the next move is Interior Secretary Ken Salazar’s. He can either formally restore wolves to the endangered species list or remove all protection.

At the end of 2009, Idaho had at least 850 wolves, Montana had about 525 wolves and Wyoming had 320. Montana and Idaho each offered wolf hunting seasons last year, and hunters were able to kill 73 and 185 wolves, respectively.

In 1995 and 1996, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service captured 66 wolves from Canada and released them in central Idaho and Yellowstone National Park. The population had increased to about 2,000 wolves by 2009, a number that some biologists estimated would be necessary for maintaining a recovered wolf population. After the Idaho and Montana hunting seasons, the Northern Rockies wolf population is about 1,650, according to Defenders of Wildlife.

Wolves have become an explosive issue in Idaho, so the inevitable rebound in wolf populations will resonate for the foreseeable future in the state’s politics and in Idaho’s prickly relations with the federal government.

For now, the only consolation for Idahoans is that the Department of Fish and Game made the best of a dicey situation and did a creditable job in managing Idaho’s first wolf hunt.

It also may have been the last.

Five myths about tax cuts

The tax cuts enacted in 2001 and 2003, known as the Bush tax cuts, are set to expire Dec. 31, and the fight over what to do is increasingly heated. Should the tax cuts expire, as some Democrats have said? Should they be extended, as most Republicans maintain? Or does the answer lie somewhere in between, as the Obama administration, led by Treasury Secretary Timothy Geithner, has argued in recent weeks?

This controversy has given rise to a number of stubborn myths about what extending the Bush tax cuts would — or wouldn’t — do.

1. Extending the tax cuts would be a good way to stimulate the economy.

As a stimulus measure, a one- or two-year extension has one thing going for it — it would be a big intervention and would provide at least some boost to the economy. But a good stimulus policy can’t just be big; it should also offer a lot of bang for the buck. That is, each dollar of government spending or tax cuts should have the largest possible effect on the economy. According to the Congressional Budget Office and other authorities, extending all of the Bush tax cuts would have a small bang for the buck, the equivalent of a 10- to 40-percent increase in GDP for every dollar spent.

2. Allowing the high-income tax cuts to expire would hurt small businesses.

One of the most common objections to letting the cuts expire for those in the highest tax brackets is that it would hurt small businesses. As Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, recently put it, allowing the cuts to lapse would amount to “a job-killing tax hike on small business during tough economic times.”

This claim is misleading. If, as proposed, the Bush tax cuts are allowed to expire for the highest earners, the vast majority of small businesses will be unaffected. Less than 2 percent of tax returns reporting small-business income are filed by taxpayers in the top two income brackets — individuals earning more than about $170,000 a year and families earning more than about $210,000 a year.

3. Making the tax cuts permanent will lead to long-term growth.

A main selling point for the cuts was that, by offering lower marginal tax rates on wages, dividends and capital gains, they would encourage investment and therefore boost economic growth. But when it comes to fostering growth, this isn’t the whole story. The tax cuts also raised government debt — and higher government debt leads to higher interest rates. If estimates of this relationship — by former Bush Council of Economic Advisers chair Glenn Hubbard and Federal Reserve economist Eric Engen, and by outgoing Office of Management and Budget Director Peter Orszag and myself — are accurate, then the tax cuts have raised the cost of making new investments. As the economy recovers and private borrowing rises, the upward pressure on interest rates is likely to grow even stronger.

4. The Bush tax cuts are the main cause of the budget deficit.

Although the cuts were large and drove revenue down sharply, they are not the main cause of the sizable deficit that exists today. In 2007, well after the tax cuts took effect, the budget deficit stood at 1.2 percent of GDP. By 2009, it had increased to 9.9 percent of the economy. The Bush tax cuts didn’t change between 2007 and 2009, so clearly something else is to blame.

The main culprit was the recession — and the responses it inspired. As the economy shrank, tax revenue plummeted. The cost of the bank bailouts and stimulus packages further added to the deficit. In fact, an analysis by the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities indicates that the Bush tax cuts account for only about 25 percent of the deficit this year.

5. Continuing the tax cuts won’t doom the long-term fiscal picture; entitlements are the real problem. The Bush tax cuts are the main cause of the budget deficit.

Continuing the tax cuts won’t doom the long-term fiscal picture; entitlements are the real problem. One theory holds that the country’s long-term budget shortfall is “just” an entitlements problem, the result of rising costs associated with growing Social Security rolls and increased health-care spending (via Medicare and Medicaid). Republicans like this idea because it plays down tax increases as a potential solution. Democrats like it because it makes the recent health-care package seem like even more of a triumph.

But it just isn’t true. The deficits we face over the next decade reflect a fundamental imbalance between spending and revenue, one that goes beyond entitlements. Based on projections by the CBO, Alan Auerbach of the University of California at Berkeley and myself, among others, even if the economy returns to full employment by 2014 and stays there for the rest of the decade, the continuation of current fiscal policies, including the Bush tax cuts, would lead to a national debt in the range of 90 percent of GDP by 2020.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Credit card holder was not so lucky

Where was Jerad Dovenmuhler when we needed him? I am referring to the young man in Twin Falls who found a checkbook belonging to a lady from Paul who was shopping in Twin Falls and lost a checkbook out of her purse. According to the letter in the Times-News, Dovenmuhler took the checkbook to the bank and it was returned to the owner.

My wife and I were not so lucky. My wife was doing business in a local bank and inadvertently left her bank card holder at the teller’s window but out of sight of the teller. The next person at the window recognized opportunity when it fell in his lap. Within a little over three hours, this individual, a man, used a woman’s credit cards to the tune of several thousand dollars in three stores — Macy’s and Best Buy in Twin Falls and Best Buy in Idaho Falls.

The irony of it all is that not once in these establishments was he asked for identification. Tell me, is the recession we are in so bad that stores will throw all precaution out the window just to make a sale? I am asked for my identification regularly when using a credit card or check, recently for as little as $20.

If stores are to continue being as lax as the three mentioned, I guess I’ll have to quit using credit cards for the fear of losing them or change my appearance as I am a little scary looking.

Synthetic marijuana is doing damage in MC

I would like to pose a question to all of you. What would you do if drugs were not being sold in back alleys and dark areas but rather in prominent places of business? Would you continue to support these businesses?

Synthetic marijuana is being sold at businesses in the Mini-Cassia community! Right in our town! Right where our children can get it! Cassia Regional Medical Center has reported at least seven cases of adverse reactions to this synthetic drug. One of which the family took their son to the emergency room because he went into a rage and they could not control him.

This synthetic drug does not affect people in a similar manner as “normal pot.” When people use synthetic marijuana, it affects parts of the brain responsible for emotions. It causes emotional, even psychotic reactions! One mother I know said her sweet daughter was transformed into an angry violent person. One question I have is will this damage their brain forever? Will the chemical-emotional imbalances this drug causes be lifelong?

So you might be asking yourself how can this be sold from a store? Why is this permitted? The short answer is there are laws that prohibit the sale, but they are hard to enforce at our level.

Ironically, this synthetic drug is already illegal in the United Kingdom, in Russia and throughout many more European countries! Our federal government is working to make it illegal to sell, but this isn’t expected to happen until early 2011.

But what in the meantime? What can we as a community do right now to protect our families and future?

My suggestion, phone the leaders of your community — mayors, commissioners, senators, prosecuting attorneys — and tell them you want ordinances in place to effectively halt the sale of this garbage!

A Republican likes Allred's tax proposal

When I was chairman of the Senate Transportation Committee, the legislature authorized a study of highway costs, and it has been over-studied extensively during the last several years. The latest study, which was just released, shows that passenger cars and pickups are paying a disproportionate share of Idaho's highway maintenance costs compared to what semi trucks are paying.

We see a great deal of rutting in the highways that have heavy truck traffic. It becomes a serious safety issue, especially in the winter. It must be repaired. It is very costly to tear up the rutted road and put down a new asphalt mat. Cars and pickups do not cause the rutting. That is done by the semi trucks, many of which are carrying excessive loads.

A foot of concrete for road base is not needed for a road traveled by cars and pickups. But that type of construction is necessary for heavy truck travel and it is much more expensive to build.

With that, it is easy for me to agree with this current study that cars and pickups are subsidizing the trucks for highway maintenance costs. This is correct and right on.

Don't get me wrong; trucks on our roads are very important and much needed to transport goods throughout our state and nation. But, the important issue here is that they should pay their fair share of the maintenance of our road system. Keith Allred has the background and experience to work out a solution with the heavy truck industry to determine the best way to achieve equity — that is what he does for a living.

I consider myself an average driver, like most of us. I drive a passenger vehicle and pickup on Idaho's highways. We "average drivers," according to the study's policy option No.3, are each paying between $300 and $350 per year to subsidize the heavy trucks for Idaho road maintenance.

READER COMMENT
Dennis Hansen

Keith Allred's plan to cut 3 cents off the state gasoline tax and replace it with an increase in heavy truck registration fees seems very fair. It's a good starting place to bring equity between cars, pickups and heavy trucks closer to what this study reveals. This reduction in gasoline tax saves me and the other average drivers between $60 and $75 a year. That would pay my electricity bill for one month or a few oil changes, or fill my vehicle with gas a couple of times.

Gov. Otter's plan is to create even a greater unfairness for car and pickup owners. Under what Gov. Otter proposed two years ago to raise the state gasoline tax by 10 cents, the "average driver" would pay an additional $200 a year in gasoline tax, plus a huge increase in registration fees. That is a lot of money.

It is not right and indicates catering to a special interest group at the ordinary people's expense.

Let me just say from my years as chairman of the Transportation Committee: Keith Allred has it right. It is time to start correcting this injustice. It reminds me of what Ronald Reagan did when he saw the many injustices and unfairness in our federal income tax laws. He had the courage to change them which benefited ordinary citizens and left us with more money in our pockets.

Dennis Hansen, a Republican, represented Caribou, Bear Lake and Franklin counties in the Idaho Senate from 1987-95. He was a member of the Idaho Public Utilities Commission from 1995-2007.

Deregulation got us into this recession

Prospects are not looking too peachy for Democrats this election season. President Barack Obama and Democrats in Congress are getting tarred by the nation's entrenched unemployment and the cost of efforts to reverse the damage. I can understand the malaise that afflicts a nation with close to 15 million people unemployed and millions more underemployed. But the blame is being put in the wrong place. The next election should be a contest over which economic worldview — laissez-faire or Keynesian — turned out to be the better one, and, on that score, the Democrats should win.

Deregulation got America into this mess — decades of it — the kind of laissez-faire economics enacted by the Chamber of Commerce, former Federal Reserve Board Chairman Alan Greenspan and Republican leaders. America barely survived life under their tie-regulators' -hands approach to markets. Wall Street sucked up the wealth in this country, hollowing out our productive sectors, while bankers got drunk on risk. It was only after $17 trillion in American household wealth was wiped out in 18 months that Greenspan acknowledged how bankrupt his views were.

Yet even after this painful object lesson, Republicans in Congress stood nearly united against financial reform. "This is killing an ant with a nuclear weapon," House Republican Leader John Boehner said in his smackdown of a measure that others, including former Fed Chairman Paul Volcker, thought wasn't tough enough.

So the Great Recession was brought to you by deregulation. But thankfully we avoided economic dislocation on a scale equal to the 1930s through the Keynesian federal bailout and stimulus programs, the very initiatives that Republicans are demonizing in the run up to the midterm elections. The Utah GOP even branded one of their own "Bailout Bob" (U.S. Sen. Robert Bennett) and denied him a fourth term because he voted for the TARP funds.

If only we could do a faux replay, like in the film "It's a Wonderful Life," and experience in celluloid what would have happened were it not for government bailouts and stimulus. But the closest we can get is when economists use empirical data to peer into a rearview mirror. According to them, it was only due to government action that America averted the "Great Depression 2.0."

Republicans who are using the TARP bailout (passed while George W.

Bush was president) and the $787 billion stimulus program as this year's campaign betes noires, are essentially denouncing the fire hoses after the flames have been doused — flames that they and their ideological acolytes fanned.

What makes this all the more distressing for America's future is that crises are supposed to be learning opportunities. We reflect on what went wrong, how it happened and who most contributed to the disaster. But polls suggest that Americans are poised to elect politicians who stand against regulation and the stimulus.

This doesn't make sense. Voters should be rewarding the worldview that proved more successful and saved the day, otherwise the economic turmoil we barely avoided may soon be upon us again.

Robyn Blumner is a columnist for the St. Petersburg, Fla., Times.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Republicans don't make the grade

Idaho's Constitution states our form of government's stability depends "mainly upon the intelligence of the people." Mainly. Not somewhat. Not sort of, but "mainly." It secures that foremost need by mandating a "thorough" system of public education. Republicans have controlled Idaho's education funding for decades. What's their track record regarding this constitutional requirement?

In the 2007-2008 school year (the good old days), Idaho spent $6,931 per pupil, second to last nationally. Average was $10,259. New York was tops ($17,173). Idaho's current budget amputates $128.5 million ($460 per student) from last year's austere budget. Things are heading south fast, and we already make Mississippi look good.

Tom Luna's July 27 "Idaho Education News" article, tried spinning this data as not so bad, based on isolated good outcomes. I heartily congratulate those marvelous professional teachers who manage to succeed in Idaho's parsimonious educational system. The data Mr. Luna didn't share, however, look far less rosy. For decades Idaho's per pupil spending has not topped 47th. According to NCHEMS (www.highered-info.org) our 2006 college-bound rate was second to last (45.7 percent). Mississippi was tops (76.1 percent). Yes, I said Mississippi. Using 2008 data, Idaho's six-year bachelor completion rate was eighth from last (43.5 percent), Mississippi's was 28th from last (51 percent). Massachusetts' was tops (69.1 percent). The national average was 55.9 percent.

Do you really believe Republicans have met and are meeting your educational needs, or those of your children or grandchildren, for success in the 21st century? Have Republicans really met the constitutional requirement to recognize that educating ourselves is our "main" need? Republicans won't change their minds, but we can elect Democrats who consistently prioritize and genuinely support the constitutional mandate regarding education. In particular, vote for Stan Olson for superintendent of public instruction and Keith Allred for governor.

Survey shows scientists think Gulf can recover

By Seth Borenstein and Cain Burdeau
Associated Press writers

BAY ST. LOUIS, Miss. — Want to know the future of the oil-stained Gulf of Mexico ecosystem? Look first to its muddy, polluted past.

The recent ecological history of the Gulf gives scientists reason for hope. In an extensive survey of Gulf of Mexico researchers by The Associated Press, at least 10 of them separately volunteered the same word to describe the body of water: “resilient.”

This is buttressed by a government report that claims that all but 53 million gallons of the leaked oil from BP’s Deepwater Horizon well are gone. The report issued Wednesday says the cleanup extracted a lot of it, but the natural processes that break up, evaporate and dissolve oil took care of 84 million gallons — more than twice the amount human efforts removed.

At the same time, more progress was made in sealing the well for good as BP finished pumping cement into it on Thursday.

The Gulf’s impressive self-cleanup makes sense given its history and make-up. The Gulf regularly absorbs environmental insults: overfishing, trawlers raking sea floors, frequent hurricanes. And then there’s the dead zone, an area starved of oxygen because 40 percent of America’s runoff pours from the Mississippi River into the Gulf.

And yet the Gulf remains America’s most biologically diverse place, with 15,419 species. It is the nation’s buffet of life as well as its gas station and septic tank.

It’s too soon to know the full effects of the BP disaster. But to get a sense of where the Gulf has been and where it’s going, the AP surveyed 75 scientists about the health of the Gulf of Mexico before the spill. On a 0-to-100 scale, the scientists graded its general health a 71 on average. That’s a respectable C, considering 100 would be considered pristine and untouched by civilization.

“If having a strong system in place pre-spill makes a difference, and I think it might, then I think the system may bounce back sooner than expected,” said Brian Crother, a Southeastern Louisiana University wetlands biologist.

But nothing about the Gulf is simple. Just as often as scientists use the word “resilient,” they use the word “stress.”

“The Gulf of Mexico has been fairly resilient, but it’s been under stress,” Michael Carron, director of the Northern Gulf Institute, said as he steered his boat around the Bay St. Louis waters.

In the survey, which was sent to scientists through several research institutions and scientific societies, sea turtles, manatees, wetlands and water quality hovered around or below the failing point. Doing well were beaches and birds, including the once-endangered brown pelican, Louisiana’s state bird.

While others are optimistic, Jeremy Jackson, director of the Center for Marine Biodiversity and Conservation at the Scripps Institution of Oceanography, is worried.

“You have an ecosystem that’s already severely stressed, then you add this major disturbance,” he said. “We’re going to pay for our sins double-time because we’ve neglected the environment of the northern Gulf so badly for so long!”

Yet the Gulf’s water is warm, which is good for microbes that eat oil. The currents and drainage are right to flush and dilute tainted water. And the Gulf has long been exposed to natural gas, oil and a host of other contaminants.

While BP’s well dumped 172 million gallons into the Gulf over three months, the muddy Mississippi brings in 198 million gallons of water — replete with urban and farm runoff — every minute. The National Research Council estimates that 41 million gallons a year of oil naturally seep into the Gulf from below.

A thriving microbial ecosystem has developed to consume the oil.

“The Gulf has been immunized many times by environmental insults,” said Larry McKinney, director of a Gulf research center at Texas A&M University Corpus Christi. “Because of that resilience we see here — and not in other places — it also may be the best place” to cope with a gigantic spill.

It’s still early in damage assessments, but so far about 600 miles of coast has been fouled with oil. The official government death toll so far: 3,606 birds, 508 endangered sea turtles and 67 marine mammals. More than 2,100 birds, turtles and marine mammals have been found oiled, but alive.

Kagan is confirmed to Supreme Court seat

Tribune Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Senate confirmed Elena Kagan as the 112th justice of the U.S. Supreme Court Thursday, creating a historic, liberal, three-woman bloc likely to vote together much of the time.

But the 63-37 vote suggested that the bitter partisan divide that has plagued legislative efforts on Capitol Hill is increasingly infecting the high court nomination process.

Kagan, the daughter of a tenants’ lawyer and a teacher who was raised in New York City’s Upper West Side, worked in the Clinton White House and headed the faculty at Harvard Law School before joining the Obama administration as its advocate before the Supreme Court. She watched the Senate proceedings with her colleagues at the solicitor general’s office.

Only five Republicans crossed party lines to support Kagan, four fewer than those who last year voted to confirm Justice Sonia Sotomayor. As a result, the tally in Kagan’s favor ranks among the lowest among justices in recent history despite support from some prominent legal conservatives.

Medicare fund will last extra 12 years — maybe

By Noam N. Levey
Tribune Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Social Security and Medicare continue to face grave financial challenges even though the new health care law may provide added stability to the two massive programs, according to the government’s annual review.

This year, for the first time since 1983, Social Security is projected to pay out more in benefits than it collects in taxes.

And Medicare confronts a new test as the health care law envisions using billions of dollars of projected savings over the next decade to expand medical coverage for younger Americans.

The report, released Thursday by the Social Security and Medicare trustees, estimated that the Social Security trust fund used to pay retiree benefits will remain solvent until 2037, the same outlook as last year. And it predicted that the Medicare fund covering hospital services for the elderly, which government officials last year said would run out of money in 2017, could now stay in the black until 2029.

Senior administration officials and Democrats on Capitol Hill hailed that as validation of what House Speaker Nancy Pelosi, D-Calif., called the “remarkable impact of health reform.”

Speaking at a fundraiser in Illinois, Obama said the new report underscored Medicare’s improved health. “It is going to be more secure for our seniors and it’s going to be there for future generations because of the changes we made,” he said.

But the outlook for Medicare is still extremely cloudy, according to budget experts, including the program’s chief actuary, Richard S. Foster.

As a result of the new health care law, Medicare, which provides health insurance to more than 45 million mostly older Americans, will undergo significant changes in coming years that many experts believe will make it more efficient.

The health care law does not guarantee that the program will be able to keep all the anticipated savings, however. That means that unless Congress finds more money, Medicare could run out of funds much more quickly than Thursday’s report predicts.

“It sounds like Medicare is in much better shape than it is,” cautioned Robert Bixby, executive director of the Concord Coalition, a non-partisan budget watchdog group.

Bixby pointed to the fundamental problem of using Medicare savings to expand coverage. “You can’t spend the same money twice,” he said. “And since all that money is used for something else, it won’t be available to pay Medicare benefits. We are basically no better off.”

In an uncertain economy, shoppers stay choosy

Government expected to release mediocre jobs report today

The Associated Press

With the economy only limping along, Americans are once again being choosy at stores, many of them buying only at deep discounts because they can't shake uncertainty about their jobs.

Retailers around the country posted a sales increase of just 2.8 percent for July over a year earlier — and at that time, the economy looked much bleaker than it does today.

The July figure, released Thursday by the International Council of Shopping Centers based on results from 31 chains, was the fourth straight month of weak retail numbers. For the most part, economists were disappointed.

Without more jobs, Americans are likely to remain cautious with their spending, restraining the economic rebound, they said. But without more spending, companies will likely be slow to hire.

“To break out of this, we need both employment and consumption to come up together,” said Nigel Gault, an economist at IHS Global Insight.

Today, the government will release its snapshot of the nation's job market for July, and no one expects anything strong. Private companies are expected to have added 90,000 jobs for the month, not nearly enough for healthy economic growth.

The overall figure is expected to show a loss of 65,000 jobs for July, because of the end of temporary positions with the U.S. Census Bureau. Unemployment is not expected to budge much from its current 9.5 percent, and may actually rise.

Ornamental grasses play an important part in Anchor Bistro's landscaping.

Some go out of the way to create landscapes that stand out

By Melissa Davlin
Times-News writer

People come to Anchor Bistro and Bar for pub food and music. But outside, it's the landscaping that turns heads.

Tall ornamental grasses adorn the beds surrounding Anchor Bistro's tiki-torched outdoor patio, giving the area a casual beachy feel while blocking wind and traffic noise from diners. The look has inspired passers-by to ask Moss Greenhouse about replicating the look in their own gardens.

It's a scene Bob Maloney, co-owner of the year-old business, can be proud of. When many Twin Falls businesses stick to the bare minimum landscaping requirements defined in the city code, business owners who think outside the shrub-filled box create landscapes that stand out.

Renee Carraway, zoning and development manager for the city of Twin Falls, said businesses on gateway arterials — main roads like Blue Lakes Boulevard, Addison Avenue and Kimberly Road — are required to maintain landscaping is part of a new build or remodel. Most businesses must maintain a landscaped strip between the sidewalk and lot, and at least 50 percent of the plants must be evergreen trees, according to city code.

There are exceptions to those rules, and business owners can submit alternative landscape plans for the planning and zoning commission's approval.

While some businesses splurge on landscaping, others avoid planting anything at all. The disparity between those businesses stands out on Main Avenue in Twin Falls. On the 100 and 200 blocks of Main Avenue East, lush garden beds add color to the sidewalks and baskets hang outside most businesses.

Across Shoshone on Main Avenue West, though, few businesses take advantage of the available garden beds. While a few have flowers or

FCC abandons efforts at net neutrality compromise

By Joelle Tessler
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Federal regulators are abandoning efforts to negotiate a compromise on so-called “network neutrality” rules intended to ensure that phone and cable TV companies cannot discriminate against Internet traffic traveling over their broadband lines.

The announcement Thursday by the Federal Communications Commission ends weeks of FCC-brokered talks to reach an agreement on the thorny issue among a handful of big phone, cable TV and Internet companies. And it comes as two big companies that have been taking part in those talks — Verizon Communications Inc. and Google Inc. — try to hammer out their own separate proposal on how broadband providers should treat Internet traffic.

Verizon and Google expect to unveil their proposal within days and hope it will provide a framework for net neutrality legislation in Congress, said several people briefed on the negotiations between the companies. They spoke on condition of anonymity because the talks were confidential.

But according to one person close to the FCC talks, the deal also undermined the discussions taking place at the FCC. This person said FCC officials fear that the proposal from Google and Verizon does not do enough to prevent phone and cable companies from using their control over broadband connections to become online gatekeepers. FCC Chairman Julius Genachowski is seeking to adopt rules that would require phone and cable companies to give equal treatment to all broadband traffic.

Utah officials say Adobe investment is a big deal

By Paul Foy
Associated Press writer

SALT LAKE CITY — Utah officials heralded a major investment by software company Adobe Systems Inc. as a sign that a state that produces many early computer innovations is finally amassing jobs, talent and Fortune 500 operations instead of exporting startups through corporate mergers.

“This is a watershed moment for Utah,” said Spencer P. Eccles, executive director of Gov. Gary Herbert's economic development office and the son of a prominent Utah banker.

“We'll look back at this as a real tipping point,” added Jeff Edwards, president and CEO of the Economic Development Corporation of Utah, which recruits major companies.

Herbert seized on Adobe's announcement Thursday that it will build a $100 million campus and add 1,000 jobs to brag that Utah is leading the nation's economic recovery. Other recent arrivals are Twitter Inc. and eBay Inc., which plan to build huge data centers in Utah.

Opportunity knocks: Mortgage rates dip below 4% on 15-year loans

By Alan Zibel
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — A plunge in mortgage rates is giving homeowners a rare opportunity to lock in a 15-year fixed-rate loan for less than 4 percent.

Rates haven't dipped this low in decades. For those who can qualify, it's the chance to pay off a home in half the time while saving tens of thousands of dollars — if not more.

But the lower rates on short-term loans are not likely to ignite the refinancing market. Most people can't afford the higher monthly payments required by a 15-year fixed mortgage compared with a more traditional 30-year loan.

“That's not what most people need right now. They need lower payments,” said Leif Thomsen, CEO of Walpole, Mass.-based lender Mortgage Master Inc.

High unemployment, slow job growth and tight credit have hampered the housing industry. And fewer people are also in position to refinance, because low real estate prices have left many with little equity in their homes. Many people who would qualify have already refinanced in the past year.

The average rate on the 15-year fixed loan dropped to 3.95 percent last week, according to mortgage company Freddie Mac. That's the lowest on records the company has kept since 1991. The average rate for a 30-year fixed loan fell to 4.49 percent. Rates haven't been that low since the 1950s, when longer-term mortgages typically lasted 20 to 25 years.

Fannie Mae sees improving quarterly results

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fannie Mae is asking for less money from the government, a sign that the cost to taxpayers for bailing out the mortgage giant could be billions lower than once thought.

The government-controlled company said Thursday it has now set aside enough money to cover the majority of losses stemming from bad loans made from 2005 through 2008. It requested $1.5 billion in additional taxpayer aid after posting the best quarterly results since the company was put under federal control in September 2008.

Fannie Mae said Thursday that it lost $3.13 billion, or 55 cents per share, in the April-to-June period.

GM CEO expects to sell all stock in 1 batch

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. (AP) — Eager to get out from under government control, GM expects to sell its stock in one swoop when it offers shares to the public sometime later this year, its CEO said Thursday.

Some experts had expected General Motors Co. to sell only a partial stake at first, followed by several smaller sales, but Ed Whitacre told reporters at an auto conference Thursday, “Our anticipation is we’d roll it out there all at once.”

Ever since the Obama administration gave the automaker a $50 billion dollar survival loan last year, many drivers have scorned the company and bought cars from rivals. Even though GM has cut costs, changed leadership, and reported its first quarterly profit since 2007, the resentment will linger as long as taxpayers have a 61 percent stake in the company.

“We want the government out. Period,” Whitacre said. “We don’t want to be known as Government Motors.”

Although Whitacre wouldn’t say when GM wants to sell the stock or when it would file paperwork with regulators to start the official process, he repeatedly said GM wants the sale as soon as possible. The paperwork, he said, would be submitted in the near future.

GM spokesmen later said the decision on how much equity to sell will be made by current stockholders, the U.S. and Canadian governments, a United Auto Workers health care trust and former bondholders.

Whitacre said the company could have a successful IPO sometime after GM reports second-quarter earnings next week. The earnings numbers, he said, would be impressive. GM’s business already looks healthier. It reported a net income of $865 million in the first quarter.

“You’d have to say our future is pretty bright,” Whitacre said.

shrubs, most are bare. On the 200 block of Main Avenue West, plant containers are more likely to contain cigarette butts than blooms.

Randy Lent, owner of Randy’s Jewelry on Main Street East, started sprucing up the beds around his business about three years ago.

“I got tired of standing out front and looking at dirt,” he said.

Lent arrives downtown about 6 a.m. every morning to take care of the plants, and has spent more than $1,000 on flowers and supplies this season alone.

Other business owners don’t have the time, he said, although some have given him money to help maintain the beds or pitched in to help while he went on vacation. Sacrificing mornings and weekends for the project isn’t always fun, but compliments from downtown patrons and fellow business owners help.

One Washington tourist said the area looks like downtown Seattle, while another said it was one of the most beautiful downtowns she had ever seen.

Still, it’s hard for Lent to see other business owners neglect their plots.

“It doesn’t take that much,” he said, especially if every business owner contributes a little.

Moss Greenhouse manager Becky Marshall, whose business sells hanging baskets to downtown business owners, said the lack of flowers stands out, especially now that fewer businesses are sponsoring the baskets.

“It just bums me out — not just the sales here, but it looks so pretty,” she said. And Marshall notices when businesses have nice landscaping. One gas station on Blue Lakes features rose bushes that make her crane her neck every time she drives past, she said.

Lent hopes to see more businesses like that.

YESTERDAY ON WALL STREET

NEW YORK (AP) — A surprisingly poor signal on the jobs market sent stocks slightly lower Thursday as investors remained worried about a lack of hiring.

The modest drop came after the Labor Department said first-time claims for unemployment benefits rose unexpectedly last week.

Investors tried to muster a late-day rally, but there wasn’t enough momentum to push the Dow Jones industrial average back into positive territory. The Dow closed down 5 points after dropping as much as 68 points earlier in the day. Broader indexes also fell modestly.

Trading volume on the New York Stock Exchange fell to its second-lowest level of the year as many traders avoid the market altogether.

The Labor Department said initial claims for unemployment benefits jumped to 479,000 last week from a 460,000 a week earlier. Economists polled by Thomson Reuters had forecast new claims would fall modestly.

The high unemployment rate in the U.S. remains one of the biggest worries for investors. The surprise jump in claims last week suggests that employers are still reluctant to create jobs.

SOMEBODY NEEDS YOU

Volunteers — Guardian Home Care and Hospice needs volunteers in the Twin Falls, Jerome, Gooding, Glenns Ferry and Burley areas to assist with patient care: sit with patients, play games and read to patients, or help in the office. Information: Kerri, 736-0900.

Drivers — The Retired and Senior Volunteer Program needs volunteer drivers, age 55 and older, in Gooding and Twin Falls to take senior citizens to medical appointments and for grocery shopping. Volunteers are reimbursed mileage and covered by excess insurance. Information: Edith, 736-4764.

Donations/volunteers — The College of Southern Idaho Refugee Center is preparing for a community-wide cultural diversity celebration. The free event is from 6 to 9 p.m. today at Twin Falls City Park and includes food samples, dancing and music. The center is seeking support to help the refugees with the cost of food supplies for the event (monetary donations or gift certificates to WinCo Foods or Asian Food Market) and assistance with transporting refugee families. To volunteer or donate resources: Michelle, 736-2166, or 1526 Highland Ave. E., Twin Falls.

Volunteers — Girl Scouts of Silver Sage Council needs adult mentors to deliver Girl Scout programs in the Magic Valley. Information: 733-9623 or girlscouts-ssc.org.

Mentors/volunteers — The Easter Seals Goodwill GoodGuides program is part of a national mentoring program providing guidance to boys and girls ages 12 to 17. The program offers a variety of volunteer opportunities in the Magic Valley, including mentors, speakers, tutors, activity directors and mentor leaders. Teens are needed to be part of the Teen Advisory Board, which meets about every three months for one or two hours per meeting to provide input, feedback and guidance for the program. Information: Tristan or LeWayne, 736-2026, or 2469 Wright Ave., Twin Falls.

Drivers — Twin Falls Senior Citizens Center needs volunteer drivers for the home-delivered meals program for the homebound. Drivers do not have to be seniors to volunteer to drive one or two days a week for an hour to an hour and a half. The center needs people who can be relied on for their appointed routes and who care about the well-being of the elderly. Reimbursed mileage for gas is available. Information: Joanna, 734-5084, or 530 Shoshone St. W., Twin Falls.

Donations — The Retired and Senior Volunteer Program is seeking an electronic peddler or a deluxe pedal exerciser. Information: Edith, Office on Aging, 736-4764.

WANT TO HELP?

This public service column is designed to match needs in the Magic Valley with volunteer help. If you need a volunteer, contact the Retired and Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) at 736-4764, before noon Wednesday for Friday publication. RSVP is a United Way-sponsored agency at the College of Southern Idaho.

Burley High School's national qualifying speech duet, Ansley Winkles and Makena Greener, placed in the top 70 in the nation at this year's competition, held in Kansas City, Mo., in mid-June.

Along with competing, the duo participated in a service project to prepare meals for Haitians. They and coach Richard Call, as well as the other national competitors, helped package 525,960 meals for earthquake survivors in Haiti.

The National Forensic League partnered with Numana Inc., an international hunger-relief organization, to empower people to save the starving. BHS wants to thank all those in the community who helped in any way to send the duo to nationals.

Xavier Charter School hosts ribbon cutting

Xavier Charter School of Twin Falls has scheduled an open house and ribbon-cutting ceremony from 5 to 7 p.m. Aug. 18, with the ribbon cutting at 6 p.m., at the school's new location, 1218 North College Road W.

Parent Faculty Association, the parents' group of the school, is looking for families to donate two dozen chocolate-chip or peanut butter cookies for the open house. Volunteer hours will be one hour earned for two dozen cookies. If interested, contact Andie Dayley by Tuesday at fish-dayley@yahoo.com.

Burley pets go online

The Burley Animal Shelter recently joined other animal-welfare organizations in the area that list their homeless pets on Petfinder.com.

The site currently has more than 323,800 homeless pets listed and is updated continuously. More than 13,300 organizations in the U.S., Canada and other countries post their pets on the site. Burley pets may be viewed at www.petfinder.com/shelters/ID105.html.

Adoptions are handled by the animal placement group where the pet is housed, and each group has its own policies.

Petfinder.com was created in early 1996 as a grassroots project by Jared and Betsy Saul to end the euthanasia of adoptable pets. The site has since facilitated about 20 million adoptions.

FFA student develops team leadership skills

Idaho FFA State Sentinel Joseph Maxwell, 18, of Hagerman, participated in a national leadership seminar for state officers from June 28 to July 2 in Washington state.

Maxwell is the son of Dan and Ginger Maxwell.

During the four-day conference — conducted by national FFA officers — state officers learned how to use motivation to create change in the lives of young people, achieve team leadership, discover and implement characteristics of a high-trust team, understand issues that face the national FFA organization, establish a state recruitment plan and learn effective presentation techniques.

Is dyslexia to blame, or memory problem something else?

DEAR DR. GOTT: This letter is a lifetime overdue. Six years ago, I turned 69. During that year, I had numerous medical problems that have nothing to do with this letter.

However, I spent a lot of time in the hospital, which I used for thinking and reading. I realized I had been suffering from dyslexia all my life and didn't know it. I just thought I was dumb.

I have had a terrible time all my life with reading, spelling, studying and writing. I still must work very hard to remember something, only to forget it. I have notes to myself all over the house, in my car, purse and everywhere else. I could never figure out how actresses could remember all those words and still include facial expressions while performing. I still don't.

ASK
DR. GOTT
Dr. Peter Gott

At this age, I can work my life around being dyslexic, but the other day our son asked my husband and me, "Where do I get my bad memory from? I can't remember anything and I forget almost everything I should remember." I felt so bad. I do remember what a hard time he had studying, reading, spelling and writing. He has the same problem I have. I just don't know how he made it through college. He's 41, but I would really like to help him. Is the disorder inherited?

I know my son and I are not alone. I could not get through this letter if it weren't for spellcheck and the dictionary. Please, please dedicate a column to all the people out there who are going through this.

DEAR READER: Dyslexia is an impairment of the brain's ability to translate written images received from the eyes into understandable language. It is thought to be the most common learning disability in children and ordinarily presents in youngsters with normal intelligence and vision.

Symptoms may be difficult to interpret before a child enters school. Prior to kindergarten, children may have difficulties rhyming words, and they may be late talkers. Once in a school atmosphere, they may have difficulties understanding what is being said, remembering sequential commands, may read at a level below what is expected for their age, and may see words or letters backward. For example, a "b" may look like a "d." This can be common for children without the diagnosis. The difference is that once the child is in the second or third grade, this situation will not correct itself.

Diagnosis may be made through psychological assessment, evaluation of educational skills, and visual and neurological testing.

There is no cure for dyslexia, and the only treatment is remedial education. The earlier this begins, the better a child can cope and function with the disorder. Often, psychological testing is used to develop a custom teaching program that involves a multisensory approach. This includes using hearing, vision and touch to improve reading rather than simply using books and text.

That said, your inability to remember things and your constant need to write notes to yourself is not a symptom of dyslexia, and I can't be sure that you even have the disorder. I urge both you and your son to undergo psychological and neurological testing to determine the cause of forgetfulness and learning difficulties. While dyslexia may be a part of your and your son's difficulty, I am not convinced it is the entire problem.

Autumn Rebecca Klink Sutton

MERIDIAN — Autumn Rebecca Klink Sutton of Meridian, Idaho, was born in Twin Falls, Idaho, on Aug. 26, 1978, and raised in Burley, Idaho. Autumn was the dear friend and beloved daughter of David and Kink Burt Klink of Burley. When she wasn't playing tricks on him, Autumn was a devoted sister and dear friend of Ben.

Autumn married Michael John Sutton, originally of Midvale, Idaho, on Nov. 9, 2002. To the delight of Autumn and Mike, Madeline Claire and Henry Michael were born July 28, 2005, completing their family. Autumn graduated from Burley High School in 1996 and earned a degree in business and marketing from Albertson College of Idaho in 2000. She enjoyed a successful career in radio sales, where she met Mike, and they worked together harmoniously, then she "retired" when the twins were born.

Ever the business woman, Autumn became the advertising and marketing director for Simmons Fine Jewelry in 2006 and truly enjoyed her co-workers and being around the fabulous jewelry. Autumn enjoyed spending time with her family and cherished the time she spent with Mike and the twins. Autumn was a devoted mother to both her children and was a champion and advocate for Madeline and her care. Mike and Autumn enjoyed traveling and had great luck getting bumped to first class on many occasions. Autumn was an avid picture taker and has left us with memories of those trips.

Autumn loved shopping! Even as a small child, she looked at Christmas catalogs and as she turned the pages would tell her parents that she wanted "all ones and all ones." She enjoyed generously giving gifts to her family and friends. Autumn loved music, took years of piano lessons and continually attended concerts. She loved visiting on the telephone, going to Starbucks, getting her nails done, and being a good friend to everyone. Autumn was a fourth-generation Chapter J PEO sister, a member of the Burley United Presbyterian Church, an on-going advocate for children with differing abilities and an active member of the St. Al's Jump Start Preschool Program.

Autumn is survived by her husband; her darling twins; her parents, her brother currently residing in Las Vegas and his fiancée, Emily Pachner; Mike's family, Gertie Sutton, John and Reta Sutton, and Dan Sutton, all of Midvale, and Jason and Erika Sutton Jones and their children of Boise. She is also survived by her grandparents, Gordon and Shirley Burt of Idaho Falls, and Albert and Martha Klink of Burley. Additionally, she is survived by her closest friend, Andy Young of Baltimore, Md., and many loved aunts, uncles and cousins.

Our special thanks to Ana Stauffer and Kylie Werner for their ongoing love and care of our twins. Autumn was preceded in death by her grandmother, Wanda Claire Burt, her great grandmother Lillie Gaumer, her cousin Angel Burt, and her close family friends, Don Royster and Tom Trusky. A viewing will be held at 11:30 a.m. on Saturday, August 7 with the funeral following at 1:00 p.m. at Summers Funeral Homes, Ustick Chapel. Burial to follow at Morris Hill Cemetery. The family suggests in lieu of flowers, donations be made to St. Al's Jump Start Preschool Program through Summers Funeral Homes, Ustick Chapel. Our hearts are broken forever but we promise to take good care of Mike, the twins and each other. Be at peace and sleep well.

Doris 'Dot' Maxine Davis

LONGVIEW, Wash. — Doris "Dot" Maxine Davis passed away at age 84 on Friday, July 30, 2010, of natural causes in her home in Longview, Wash., surrounded by the love of her family.

Doris was born Feb. 3, 1926, in Hansen, Idaho, to her parents, Fred Lawrence Scherupp and Anna Mary Augusta Scherupp. She married Tommy Collins in 1945 and resided in Twin Falls, Idaho. She worked in the potato fields and took in ironing to help support her family. She later married Floyd Davis in 1966 and moved to Longview, Wash. After many years, Doris retired from International Paper. In her later years, she provided care for her elderly friends.

Doris is survived by her two sisters, Lela Miller and Bernice Crippen; one brother, Ron Scherupp; nine children, Connie (Jim) Wilson, Tom "Dennie" (Vicki) Collins, Terry Collins, Carol Kaylor, Jim (Sandy) Davis, Sandy (Jim) Howard, Carol "Pinky" (Ken) Brown, Eddie (Bernice) Davis and Sherrie Kautz; 44 grandchildren; more than 63 great-grandchildren; nine great-great-grandchildren; and many nieces and nephews.

Doris was preceded in death by her husband, Floyd

Davis: ex-husband, Tommy Collins; six sisters, Iris Scherupp, Elsie Bean, Georgia Heybur, Freedia Rear, Betty Couch and Helen Crippen; five children, Cathy Cline, Carol Saderwhite, Dean Davis, Shirley Jones and Sandy Davis; and three grandchildren.

A resident of Longview for more than 40 years, Doris lived in the same apartment building for 29 of those years.

She loved to spend time with her family, do word puzzles, take walks in the rain and work in her flowerbeds; she would accept a challenge at a Rummy card game any day, be ready to win a game of 31 at any given family gathering, and welcome a bowl of popcorn and glass of water after dinner.

She was kind and caring, brave and courageous, honest and straightforward — a beloved mom and adored grandma. She will be greatly missed by family and friends.

A viewing was held Monday, Aug. 2, at Steele Funeral Chapel in Longview, Wash. She is buried at Longview Memorial Park next to her husband, Floyd Davis.

Dorothy Alane Green, 47, of Twin Falls, died Thursday, Aug. 5, 2010, at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center in Twin Falls.

Arrangements will be announced by Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home of Twin Falls.

Ronald D. Lierman

MILPITAS, Calif. — Ronald D. Lierman of Milpitas, Calif., went to be with the Lord on Friday, July 30, 2010, ending his long battle with cancer.

He was born the son of Edgar and Bernice Lierman in Twin Falls, Idaho, on Nov. 9, 1936. He always treasured his family and his "growing up" years on the family farm in Filer, Idaho. He attended Trinity Lutheran School and graduated from Filer High School.

After graduation, he was ready for some adventure so he joined the U.S. Air Force and spent most of his four years in Asia, which sparked his lifelong desire to travel and see the world. Just home from the Air Force, he met his future wife, Gloria. They were blessed with 45 happy years of marriage and two wonderful sons, Jeff and Tim. Ron graduated from the Idaho State University School of Technology and spent the next 32 years in the field of electronic engineering, working most of those years at GTE Government Systems in Mountain View, Calif.

Ron was a man of many and varied interests. He loved the world of aviation, flew as a private pilot for many years and attended air shows far and near. He also loved traveling, camping, hiking and backpacking, which led the family to many destinations and backroad adventures. He climbed Mount Whitney on two different occasions and was able to travel and explore many countries in Europe and Asia. Two of his favorite destinations were close to home, Yosemite National Park and the Sawtooth Mountains of Idaho. Ron never went anywhere without a book as he loved to read and had such a curiosity about life, whether it be history, the sciences or the scriptures. His faith in God and his love of his family were at the center of his life. No one loved to sit down and have good conversation with family and friends more than Ron. He was a wonderful husband, father and friend.

Ron is survived by his wife, Gloria; and sons, Jeff and Tim. He is also survived by Dorothy and Leonard Kerbs; Brian, Darren and Melanie Kerbs; Isabelle Lampe; Karen Lierman Eggleston; and many cousins and close friends. He was preceded in death by his parents and his brother, Dale.

We thank all the family and friends who have supported us and held us up in prayer over this last year with a special "thank you" going to our church family at Our Savior Lutheran Church in Fremont, Calif. We are so appreciative of the awesome care given to us by all the nurses, aides and staff of Hospice of the Valley, San Jose, Calif. We could not have walked this journey without you.

A celebration of Ron's life will be held at 11 a.m. Tuesday, Aug. 10, at the Clover Trinity Lutheran Church, 3553 N. 1825 E. in Buhl, with Pastor Mark Christ officiating. Burial will follow at the Clover Lutheran Cemetery with Military honors by Magic Valley Veterans Association and Idaho National Guard. A viewing for family and friends will take place from 6 to 8 p.m. Monday, Aug. 9, at Reynolds Funeral Chapel, 2466 Addison Ave. E. in Twin Falls.

Memorial contributions may be given in Ron's name to the Clover Trinity Lutheran School or the Our Savior Lutheran Church Capital Improvement Fund. Contributions may be given to funeral chapel staff or mailed to Reynolds Funeral Chapel, P.O. Box 1142, Twin Falls, ID 83303.

Condolences may be left for the family by visiting www.reynoldschapel.com.

Joy Deonne Moser

JEROME — Joy Deonne Moser, 66, of Jerome, lost her courageous three-year battle with ovarian cancer. On Wednesday, Aug. 4, 2010, surrounded by her family, she went peacefully into the loving embrace of our Lord.

She was born Oct. 15, 1943, to Joseph Kelley and Lois Ivorine Rutherford in Twin Falls, Idaho. She attended elementary school in Jerome and Filer and graduated from Nampa Christian High in 1962. She was an active member of the school's choir, where she sang with her older brother, Darrel. After high school, she worked at the Twin Falls Hospital as an LPN.

In 1963, Joy met and married the love of her life, Harry Frederick Moser. Together they had three sons and one daughter. In 1965, they relocated to Southern California, where Harry was stationed in the Navy. They resided there for 26 years, where she worked for private patients and convalescent homes as a nurse. In 1991, they returned to Jerome, Idaho, where Joy was employed by St. Benedicts for eight years and her final place of employment was Jerome Cheese.

She enjoyed being with her family, working in her yard and traveling. She was always an active member of her children's lives and supported each of their activities. Joy loved to hear the roar of an engine on old hot rod or her son's Harley coming down the road. In 2007, she enjoyed what she called the trip of a lifetime to Hawaii. She loved it there and was hopeful she would get to return. She fought an amazing fight against this cancer and allowed us to have her here on earth a while longer. She will always be remembered as a vibrant woman full of life who has inspired her children to reach their goals and never stop dreaming or believing that God will guide us if we just have faith. She taught us to be happy with the simple things in life, that God comes first and that family is important.

She is survived by her husband, Harry; three sons, Kelly Sr. (Robbie) of Wilmington, Calif., Steve (Cindy) of Jerome and Dean (Lisa) of Malvern, Ark.; one daughter, Theresa (Eric) Mills of Twin Falls; seven grandchildren, Stephanie, Shaylene, Ashley, Brittany, Kirslynn, Jessica and Alexis; two grandsons, Kelly Jr. and Jayson; her brother-in-law, Chuck Moser; sister-in-law, Doris Hall; as well as five nieces and one nephew. She was preceded in death by her parents; and older brothers, Damon and Darrel.

The family would like to extend a very special thank you to Dr. Steven Kohtz, Dr. Paul Montgomery and all of the loving nurses at the St. Luke's MSTI center in Boise. She has requested that, in lieu of flowers, contributions be made in her honor to Nampa Christian High.

The funeral will be held at 2 p.m. Monday, Aug. 9, at Rosenau Funeral Home, 2826 Addison Ave. E. in Twin Falls, with burial to follow at Sunset Memorial Park. A viewing will be held from 4 to 6 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 8, at Rosenau Funeral Home.

Family and friends are encouraged to share your thoughts and memories of Joy at www.rosenaufuneral-home.com.

Frank Alpha Allard

Frank Alpha Allard, 75, of Twin Falls, died Tuesday, Aug. 3, 2010, at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center in Twin Falls, Idaho.

Frank was born Aug. 8, 1934, in Huntington Park, Calif., the son of Lillian Irene (Woodrow) Allard and Alpha Eastman Allard. Frank graduated from the University of Southern California in June 1956 with a bachelor's degree in mathematics.

Upon graduation from college, Frank was commissioned an Ensign in the Navy and commenced a 20-year Naval career. He served on the USS Rowan (DD782), Staff COMESDIV 32 and U.S. Navy Electronics Laboratory in San Diego, Calif. In 1962, Frank's naval career changed to submarines, and he served on the USS Skipjack (SSN 585), USS John C. Calhoun (SSBN 630) and USS Patrick Henry (SSBN 599); he made 13 Polaris deterrent patrols. After three years at the Naval Submarine Base in New London, Conn., he retired in June 1976 with the rank of lieutenant commander. During his Naval service, Frank visited ports on both coasts of the United States, the west coast of South America, the North and South Pacific oceans including the Orient, and Europe; he was a Shellback.

On Sept. 4, 1965, Frank married June Ann Henstock in Grace Church in Charleston, S.C. Their daughter, Elizabeth Rebecca Allard, was born in Charleston in August 1967.

Upon his retirement from the Navy, Frank and June moved to June's home state of Idaho and lived in the Twin Falls area. Frank finally retired in 1998 after 10 years as a Twin Falls County Adult Misdemeanor Probation officer.

Frank had many interests: amateur radio, amateur astronomy, projects on their acreage south of Twin Falls, embroidery, woodworking and computer programming. He was very active in the Episcopal Church of the Ascension in Twin Falls and served God and his fellow parishioners. Realizing that a spiritual journey with God is available to anyone, Frank grew into a practice of the presence of God in his life.

Survivors are his beloved wife, June of Twin Falls; and daughter, Elizabeth (Dr. Charles) Kodner of Crestwood, Ky. He was preceded in death by his parents, Alpha and Lillian Allard.

Visitation will be from 6 to 9 p.m. Monday, Aug. 9, at White Mortuary. A memorial service and Eucharist will be held at 11 a.m. Thursday, Aug. 12, at the Episcopal Church of the Ascension with inurnment at the church. In lieu of flowers, the family requests memorial donations be made to the Faulkner Planetarium at the CSI Herrett Center or the Episcopal Church of the Ascension Memorial Fund.

To share a memory of Frank or offer condolences to Frank's family please visit www.whitemortuary.com.

Idahoans set to get free air cooling units

A new miracle air cooler is actually being given away free to the first 1,505 readers who call to beat the order deadline for their first miracle air cooler to stay cool for just pennies a day

Save money: uses 95% less electricity to blast out cold air with no windows, no vents and no freon

R.K. BERRY
Universal Media Syndicate

UMS – Everyone wants to stay cool this summer. But just turning on your air conditioner sucks the money right out of your pockets.

Well today, for the first time ever brand new MIRA-COOL™ air coolers are actually being given away free to the general public for the next 48 hours starting at precisely 8:00am this morning.

The only thing today’s readers have to do is call the Toll Free Hotline with their order for their first MIRA-COOL air cooler before the 48-hour deadline. The first 1,505 readers who do are instantly getting their second MIRA-COOL air cooler absolutely free.

This is all happening to announce the MIRA-COOL air cooler which actually rolls from room-to-room so you can turn down the central air conditioning and stay cool anywhere. That way, everyone who gets them first can beat the sweltering heat and immediately start saving on their electric bills.

Just in time for the unbearable summer heat, MIRA-COOL portable air coolers are being delivered directly to the doors of all Idahoans who beat the deadline.

The good news is the MIRA-COOL portable air cooler is not an air conditioner, so it only costs about a penny an hour to operate.

These remarkable air cooling units are being called a miracle because they use 95% less electricity than a typical room air conditioner, yet blast out ice cooled air without any windows, vents or freon.

They even come with two sets of reusable ice blocks. Everyone is getting the MIRA-COOL because all you do is fill it up and plug it in to stay cool for just pennies a day.

So what’s the catch? “Well, only the first 1,505 readers who call 1-866-964-2336 to beat the order deadline for their first MIRA-COOL air cooler are getting their second one free,” said Chris Gallo, Operations Director.

“We’re sorry, but we just can’t afford to give any more than that away free to readers of today’s publication,” Gallo said.

“We can barely keep up ever since we started giving the MIRA-COOL air coolers away free. With the dog days of summer everyone’s trying to get them,” said Gallo.

You just won’t find these MIRA-COOL air coolers in the national chain stores. That makes the first MIRA-COOL air cooler a real steal for just two hundred ninety-eight dollars and shipping since when you cover only shipping of the second MIRA-COOL air cooler the entire cost is free.

This free giveaway is the best way to slash summer cooling bills and stay cool all summer long. The MIRA-COOL air cooler rolls from room-to-room to keep you cool so you can turn down the air and save a ton of money on cooling bills.

“You see, with a central air conditioner you are paying to cool areas of your home that you’re not using. And window air conditioners are even worse because they weigh a ton so they’re a hassle to move,” said ■ RELIEF IS ON THE WAY: Everyone wants to stay cool and save money on their energy bills this summer. These trucks are being loaded full of MIRA-COOL air coolers and soon will be ready to go. The new MIRA-COOL air cooler is a real steal at just two hundred ninety-eight dollars and shipping because the first 1,505 readers who call to beat the 48 hour order deadline for their first MIRA-COOL air cooler are actually getting their second MIRA-COOL air cooler absolutely free.

Gallo.

But the MIRA-COOL air cooler actually rolls from room-to-room so it’s easy to stay cool in any room of the house for just pennies a day.

And here’s the best part. Readers of this publication who beat the 48 hour order deadline are getting one free. The MIRA-COOL air cooler only uses about 1¢ an hour of electricity, so the potential energy savings are absolutely incredible.

“We’re trying to make sure no one gets left out, but you better hurry because we only have 1,505 MIRA-COOL air coolers to hand out to today’s readers for free,” confirms Gallo.

Getting the MIRA-COOL air cooler is the smart way to slash summer electric bills and still stay cool all summer long. And getting the second one free is like putting around three hundred bucks in your pocket and you can keep everyone in your family cool.

“We’re bracing ourselves for all the calls because everyone wants to save on their electric bills and stay cool this summer. But those that really want to stay cool will be telling our operators they want two and they’ll get two more free,” said Gallo.

“So when lines are busy keep trying or log onto www.MIRA-COOL.com. We promise to get every call. Then we’ll have a delivery truck out to you in no time at all so you can stay cool and start saving on your energy bills right away,” Gallo said.

“You’ll instantly feel the ice cooled air in any room. You will never have to be hot and miserable again,” he said. ■

How to get your free air cooler

Readers need to call the Toll Free Hotlines beginning at 8:00am this morning. If lines are busy keep trying, all calls will be answered.

The first 1,505 readers who beat the 48 hour order deadline to cover the cost of just their first MIRA-COOL™ air cooler and shipping on each get their second MIRA-COOL air cooler absolutely free.

They have imposed a strict limit of 2 free MIRA-COOL air coolers per household. Readers need to hurry and call now because there are only 1,505 MIRA-COOL air coolers to be given away free, when they’re gone, they’re gone.

Rolls anywhere to keep you cool for just pennies, so leave it on all day long and never be hot again

■ SAVES ON BILLS: Everyone gets lower bills and still stays cool and comfortable. The new MIRA-COOL air cooler uses 95% less electricity than a typical window air conditioner, yet blasts out ice cooled air to keep you cool for just pennies a day.

■ EASILY ROLLS ANYWHERE: This is the new MIRA-COOL air cooler that is so portable it easily rolls from living room to bedroom to keep you cool everywhere. No windows, no vents and no freon. All you do is just fill it up and plug it in and instantly stay cool in any room.

■ EVERYONE STAYS COOL: The new MIRA-COOL air cooler helps everyone beat the summer heat and only uses the same energy as a light bulb to blast out ice cooled air. It even includes two sets of reusable ice blocks to give you eight hours of extra cooling power.

■ COOL NIGHT’S SLEEP: Everyone loves a cool, comfortable night’s sleep. The new MIRA-COOL has a built-in sleep timer that puts you in control of how cool you want to be throughout the night. That way, everyone wakes up cool and refreshed.

Wars and Thunderbirds

Play deals with problems of veterans' return home

By Melissa Davlin
Times-News writer

It will make you laugh, it will make you think, and you might never look at a Baby Ruth candy bar the same way again.

James McLure's "1959 Pink Thunderbird," presented by Random Acts of Theatre Players, takes a humorous approach to the touchy topic of veterans returning home from war and their problems relating to society and their families.

The show's two separate one-act plays are related and deal with two sides of the same story: "Laundry and Bourbon" from the women's perspective, and "Lonestar" from the men's. The cast of each part rehearses on different days, and each act has its own director.

The play takes place in the mid-1970s in a small Texas town, where the characters grew up and still live. Roy, a Vietnam veteran, has a hard time readjusting to life when he returns from the war. His friends have moved away, his loved ones have changed, and he has trouble reconnecting with his wife, Elizabeth. The title of the play refers to Roy's car, one of the only things left in his life that he can relate to.

The thought-provoking play has many funny moments, presented by Roy and Elizabeth's dim-witted family and friends, including one scene where Roy's brother Ray compares Baby Ruth candy bars to poo.

The story hits close to home for actor Jud Harmon, who plays Cletis, and for his wife, Tamara, who is producing the play. Jud deployed with the Idaho National Guard's 116th Cavalry Brigade Combat Team in 2004 and remembers having a hard time fitting in after coming home.

"Some of it's a little ghostly," he said. At the same time, Roy's story is different than Jud's. Roy saw active combat, while Jud didn't.

Although he can relate to the main character, Jud was relieved he was cast as Cletis and not Roy.

"I think I would have put too much of myself into Roy," Jud said, adding the character wouldn't have been as funny then. Cletis is comic relief, Jud said, and gives the audience permission to breathe amidst the issues.

On the other hand, Dustin Hobdey, who plays Roy, has no experience with the military. Hobdey approached the story as a coming-of-age tale and drew on his memories of growing up.

"When you go from being a happy boy to a grumpy man, I feel I can relate to that," Hobdey said.

play information about their countries. Posterboard displays and brochures will talk about religion and history.

The information will focus less on the persecution that drove refugees from their home countries, said volunteer Phang Wongmankitkan, and more on the culture.

"We have their flags, more about their cultures, maps of their cities," she said. Even the tablecloth colors will coordinate with the flags.

"We try to cover everything," said Nahida Mohammad, originally from Iraq.

And make sure you come hungry. Food is free and will include treats such as dumplings, curried goat meat and fried sweet bread from Nepal and biryani, stuffed vegetables and baba ganoush from Iraq.

IDAHO'S FAVORITE BROTHERS KEEP COMING HOME

Brauns will play Bellevue benefit, Challis reunion

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

The Braun brothers are like homing pigeons. They may have left their boyhood cabin home in Idaho's White Cloud Mountains for the music scene of Austin, Texas.

But internally they're wired to come home.

Every year, come August, Micky and the Motorcars point their touring bus north to Idaho. And their big brothers in Reckless Kelly do the same thing.

Micky and Gary Braun and their group — Micky and the Motorcars — will play a benefit concert in Bellevue on Tuesday night to benefit the town's Labor Day celebration. Organizers had hoped to get them to play during Bellevue's Labor Day, but the benefit concert ended up being a good second-best when the band's performing schedule didn't allow it to be in Bellevue that weekend, said Stefany Mahoney of the Sun Valley/Ketchum chamber.

Following the Bellevue gig, Micky and Gary and band member Mark McCoy from Stanley will join brothers Willy and Cody Braun and their Reckless Kelly band at the annual Braun Brothers 2010 Reunion Festival in Challis, Aug. 12-14.

The latter will feature Asleep at the Wheel on Thursday night, along with Jeremiah James and other singers. The night of Aug. 13 will feature the Braun family and friends, along with Frim Fram Four, Jason Boland and the Stragglers and the Randy Rogers Band.

And Aug. 14 will feature Idaho's Famous Motel Cowboy Pinto Bennett, along with Micky and the Motorcars, Reckless Kelly, Two Tons of Steel, Blind Driver and Reunion Guitar Pull.

It's fitting Pinto Bennett should play. Reckless Kelly just released a new album, "Somewhere in Time," which features songs by Pinto Bennett.

Cody Braun said the album takes himself and his brothers back to their roots: "These are the songs me and my brothers grew up listening to. They reminded us how cool true country music can be."

The Braun boys were cute little things in Stetson hats and matching Western shirts when they left their home, which had no electricity or running water, to yodel familiar Western tunes on the Micky and the Motorcars will play a benefit concert in Bellevue on Tuesday before heading for next weekend's annual Braun Brothers reunion in Challis.

BRAUN BROTHERS 2010 REUNION

- When: Thursday through Aug. 14. Thursday opens with Jeremiah James at 5:15 p.m.; Asleep at the Wheel takes the stage at 9 p.m. Aug. 13 opens at 4 p.m. with Frim Fram Four, and the Randy Rogers Band plays the last set at 8:45 p.m. Aug. 14 opens at 1 p.m. with Blind Driver. Micky and the Motorcars play at 7 p.m. and Reckless Kelly at 8:45 p.m.
- Where: Challis Community Stage.
- Tickets: a three-day adult pass costs $99.95 purchased online; the price at the gate is $120. One-day adult passes cost $40.
- What's more: Falls Brand Meat Co. will sponsor a free shuttle bus between motels, campgrounds and the reunion. It also will offer an after-hours bus service from the bars for $5. The 9-hole Muzzball Golf Tourney will be at 9:30 a.m. Friday.

Johnny Carson show. They were so captivating that Carson asked them back.

Today they play what Micky calls "blue-collar country rock" — a grittier, hard-driving medley of tales of love lost. But the Longhorn State has not been the gold mine they'd hoped. Even though they receive air time on contemporary country stations, they still arrive in some towns on occasion to find only a few stragglers hanging around the bars they're playing.

But, Cody says, they've been on the road too long — dating back to when they were tagging along with dad Muzzie Braun, killing time with coloring books — to let that faze them.

"My first love was a twisted wicked road," they sing. "I hit the million mile mark at 17"

And there's no threat of sparse crowds in the Wood River Valley, where all you have to do is say "Reckless Kelly" and the fans show up. "They always draw a crowd here," said fan Lindsay Crawford. "We consider them the hometown boys."

As you might expect, the brothers have had a friendly rivalry over the years — a rivalry that came to a head when the Motorcars dethroned "Reckless Kelly Was Here" with their album "Careless."

THE MOTORCARS IN BELLEVUE

- What: Micky and the Motorcars' benefit concert for Bellevue's Labor Day celebration
- When: Tuesday. Doors open at 4:30 p.m., The Kim Stocking Band starts playing at 5:30 p.m., and Micky and the Motorcars go on about 7 p.m., playing until about 9 p.m.
- Where: The John Alan Partners Outdoor Pavilion in the empty lot just south of Valley Market along Idaho Highway 75. Due to limited parking in the dirt lot north of Atkinson's, you're encouraged to bike, walk, take the bus or carpool. A bus leaves Ketchum every hour starting at 3 p.m.; the last return will be at 10 p.m.
- Tickets: $15 for adults and free for kids 10 and younger, available at Mahoney's, Oak Street Foods, The Silver Dollar Saloon, Atkinson's Valley Market and Guffy's.
- What's more: Coolers will not be allowed, but food and beverage can be purchased on the site from Mahoney's, South Valley Pizzeria and Taqueria El Pastor. Low-back chairs and one unopened bottle of water will be allowed.

But they put rivalry aside for the Challis reunion, which their father and his brothers Billy and Gary organized in 1979.

That has become a family thing, onstage and off. The boys back up their dad and uncles on some old Merle Haggard tunes and such Muzzie originals as "Thirteen Miles Up the Yankee Fork" and "Proud to Be From Idaho," while the fans watching them change diapers and tend to toddlers. If only ol' grandpappy Eustacious "Musty" Braun — who moved his family from North Dakota to Twin Falls in the 1950s to play the Club 93 in Jackpot, Nev. — were there to join in.

INSTANT Critic

Music: Steve Martin and the Steep Canyon Rangers

Seen Tuesday at River Run, Ketchum

Banjo + Steve Martin = surprisingly good bluegrass. Moments of comedy met the rightful winner of the 2010 Grammy for Best Bluegrass Album. Really, the encores said it all: The most exciting, crowd-raising version of "Orange Blossom Special" I've ever heard, followed by Martin's classic novelty song "King Tut."

— Ariel Hansen, Times-News features writer

Classical music: Itzhak Perlman and the Sun Valley Summer Symphony

Seen Monday at Sun Valley Pavilion

What a privilege to hear a great yet humble violinist, whose music transcends his frail body, play Bruch's G minor concerto with musicians from top orchestras around the country. Some sense of that should have kept parents from allowing children to walk noisily through the pavilion's lawn seating during the concert.

The queen of cocktail pop

New York musician gives free clinic, concert in Twin Falls

By Rebecca De Leon
Times-News writer

Deidre Rodman has invented a new genre of music: Cocktail pop.

That's what many critics, as well as the 39-year-old musician herself, have tentatively dubbed her music style, since it doesn't fit into one conventional category.

"It's like sunshine pop," Rodman said. "I just made that up, but it's very cross-genre."

She said her music has elements of jazz, classical, pop and folk with just a twist of funk. And she'll bring it to Twin Falls on Wednesday to give an afternoon workshop and an evening concert, both free.

"What makes Deidre Rodman's brand of mellow bebop stand apart/away from the pack is her tunes: They have an uncomplicated, folk-oriented simplicity and directness," wrote a critic from JazzReview.com.

Although Rodman was born in Twin Falls, she was adopted at birth and grew up in Boise. She excelled in music, especially piano. Now Rodman lives in New York City with her husband and 17-month-old daughter.

"People in New York are always asking me about potatoes," Rodman said with a laugh. "They want to know if I ate potatoes every day or if I know any potato farmers. I'm kind of an exotic creature, being from Idaho."

Even though Rodman has lived in the Big Apple for 13 years, she still draws inspiration for songs from the land of spuds.

"I love New York," Rodman said. "But I come back to Idaho about twice a year, you know, to visit family and get back to my roots."

In 2006, Rodman teamed up with jazz bassist Steve Swallow to create an album titled "Twin Falls."

"It's called 'Twin Falls' because I was born there but then I was adopted," Rodman said. "But when I was touring in 2002, that was the first time I really came back to my birth place. It was a strange homecoming, you know? So this album pays homage to my birth city. And I like the idea of the double meaning of the name. Twin Falls. I like things that come in twos. Because I have my birth mother and my adoptive mother, so I kind of have two mothers. It's an ode to both of them and both Boise and Twin."

Brent Jensen, who teaches music at College of Southern Idaho and has a special interest in jazz, remembers when he jammed with Rodman years ago.

"When you're playing improv with someone," Jensen said, "it's not often you feel like you're communicating with them, instead of just playing with one person and one person playing something else. It's easy to play with her because of her affinity to orally listen and adjust to who she's playing with. She's very eclectic."

One of Rodman's better-known songs is titled "Tina Fey."

"Originally, I wanted to write a song about Buffy the Vampire Slayer," Rodman said. "I wanted to be Buffy so I sat down at the piano to write the song, but there was this Christmas special on TV and Tina Fey was in it. I thought, 'Man, she's so cool.' So the song ended up being about her instead. I mentioned Buffy briefly in the song, but I really wanted to be Tiny Fey at that moment."

"Quirky!" Jensen said in a separate interview. "That's a good word to describe her."

Rodman plays in bands, duos, quartets and improv jam sessions, but perhaps none so famous as her all-female group, The Lascivious Biddies. Rodman giggled at the mention of the name. "That name just came out of my mouth. It's just so fun to say. Biddies means dirty old women."

A Sunday Boston Globe reviewer called them witty, wacky and a little naughty.

"When our kids form a band, they'll be The Itty Biddies," Rodman said.

Though her bubbly, youthful personality is apparent in her music, it's not her only side.

"I think it's important to connect spiritually with music," she told the Times-News. "Sometimes, I don't even remember writing the song — I just let God, or Mother Nature, or whatever higher power, make music through me. I know that sounds really corny, but when I'm in the zone, I'm just a channel and the music just comes. Sometimes, at my performances, people in the audience laugh, and sometimes, they'll even cry. It's a way for people to get in touch with their authentic selves, getting rid of all the extraneous crap in the world."

Make a fine chain

A good chain makes the difference for handmade jewelry.

On Tuesday and Wednesday, San Francisco-area jeweler Alison B. Antelman will teach a two-day Hailey workshop in the fundamentals of chain making for the Sun Valley Center for the Arts.

Students will learn to use a jeweler's saw, to coil and cut jump rings and to fabricate a bracelet using pliers. Students will make samples of different varieties of chain patterns and learn to make woven chains using a textile technique. All students will leave the class wearing a handmade Byzantine sterling silver bracelet.

"Jewelry Making: The Art of the Chain" will meet from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday at the Sun Valley Center for the Arts' Hailey classroom. Fee is $145 for Sun Valley Center members and $195 for others, plus a $75 supply fee.

‘Portraits of place’

Enjoy hiking-inspired art at tonight’s Gallery Walk around Ketchum

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — Jan Aronson paints because she’s curious.

She’s curious about what will happen as she translates reality from the photographs she’s taken into works of art. And she’s curious to see how she can solve problems and overcome challenges in the act of painting.

“Someone once asked Vladimir Nabokov why he writes. And he replied, ‘So I can find out what happens.’ That’s the way it is with me. I want to see what happens as I go through the different layers to the finished product,” said Aronson, who has a home in Ketchum.

That journey has taken Aronson on some wild rides from the Himalayan mountains to Caribbean beaches.

Her latest series, “Water,” is one of three featured exhibitions at the Gail Severn Gallery in Ketchum this month.

Aronson will be among the artists in attendance when that gallery and others around Ketchum celebrate their Gallery Walk from 5 to 8 p.m. today. She also will participate in a free Artist Talk at the gallery at 10 a.m. Saturday.

“Her paintings are very beautiful,” said gallery owner Gail Severn. “Her quick, short strokes of paint draw you deep into the grooves of every rock and the crest of every water ripple.”

A realist, formalist and abstract painter all wrapped up in one, Aronson can’t remember a time when she wasn’t making or looking at art.

“It was something I could do alone, something I could do in a closet. Singing, dancing, making music, by contrast, you have to do in public,” said Aronson, who finds the smell of oil paint and the process of mixing colors “absolutely intoxicating.”

She trained as an abstract expressionist at her hometown university of New Orleans and then got a master of fine art degree at Pratt University in Brooklyn.

It was during a 1985 visit to Israel’s Negev Desert that she became drawn to landscapes and began painting what she calls her “portraits of place.”

“I felt the dryness, the low humidity. I saw the blue sky, the clear air. And I was mesmerized.”

Aronson came back to the U.S., hiked the Grand Canyon and explored Death Valley, replacing the browns and grays of the rugged landscape with vivid oranges and reds to evoke the heat that she felt while there.

She worked on a series of Sinai paintings for 1 1/2 years. And, when it was time to do something different, she headed for the Himalayas and spent a year and a half painting color-drenched landscapes of those craggy mountains in brushstrokes of purples and blues.

“I’ve also gone on at least 50 different hikes in the five mountain ranges surrounding Sun Valley,” said Aronson, who spends summers in Sun Valley with her husband, Edgar M. Bronfman.

“My work tends to be intense, dramatic. I’m not interested in making a replica of a photograph or scene in nature. Rather, I’m interested in my interpretation, my reaction to the landscape. With the Death Valley portraits, for instance, I was trying to convey the heat of the place because I don’t think I’ve ever been in a place that hot.”

Aronson has received some extraordinary praise over the years.

“I have always reveled in the extraordinary sense of fantasy I find in all of Aronson’s work,” said former Sun Valley Resort owner Glenn Janss, a collector of American realist painters. “It comes, I believe, from her joy in the visual play of forms, a joy expressed in the twisting, thrusting rhythms, in the dark areas of the paintings that cause the eye and mind to recede deeply into mysterious depths between rocks and behind waterfalls, to then dance over the delicate tracery of foliage.”

Despite such praise, painting, for Aronson, is like doing battle with the canvas — “a battle I want to win,” she adds.

“Sometimes a painting can get out of control. It’s a strange thing. But it’s almost like there’s a third person in the room with you. For instance, I just finished a 5-by-7 painting on Friday. I walked back in on Monday and I couldn’t let go. It wasn’t done. I spent three more hours doing what I thought made it complete.

“Hopefully, when I return home it will say, ‘Finished.’ It gnaws at me when I see something in a piece that doesn’t work. It’s like having the brakes screech — I can’t live with that. I don’t want anything to leave my studio that I haven’t given everything to.”

GALLERY WALK’S OTHER ATTRACTIONS

What you’ll find around Ketchum during tonight’s free Gallery Walk, 5 to 8 p.m.: Gail Severn Gallery, 400 First Ave. N., is featuring hand-built glazed ceramics by Japanese artist Jun Kaneko, in addition to Jan Aronson’s work. Kaneko calls his thousand-pound three-dimensional canvases “dangos,” which is Japanese for dumpling. The exhibition will also include bronze heads similar to the monumental heads that Kaneko lined New York’s Park Avenue with in 2008.

The gallery will also feature Chinese portraits by Hung Liu, who grew up in Beijing during the Mao years and the Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution. Liu spent four years working in rice and wheat fields during that time and photographed and drew portraits of local farmers and their families. She fuses images from 7th century Tang tomb murals of princes and princesses with Western imagery.

Ochi Gallery, 350 Walnut Ave., is featuring an exhibit of 20 exquisitely printed books and prints. The limited-edition books are typeset by Arion Press in a fully functioning typefoundry in San Francisco’s Presidio National Park. Workers then print the books by letterpress and bind them by hand.

Works on display include “Don Quixote,” the poetry of Emily Dickinson and Seamus Heaney and such literary classics as “Paradise Lost,” “A Coney Island of the Mind” and “Mrs. Bridge.”

Fredric Bollox Fine Arts, 300 First Ave., is featuring the works of Picasso and Matisse.

David M. Norton Gallery, 511 Sun Valley Road, is featuring paintings of the American West by such artists as Jim Norton, Maynard Dixon, Carl Oscar Borg and J.H. Sharp.

Gilman Contemporary, 661 Sun Valley Road, will feature the work of Jane Maxwell, who shapes women from layers of vintage produce crate labels, Hollywood posters and related ephemera. Toneri Hink Gallery, 400 Sun Valley Road, is featuring new dressers and desks by R.C. Hink, with legs in cowboy boots. The gallery also has metal giraffes and cool mutts playing saxes and Lynn Toneri’s watercolors of Sun Valley scenes.

Will Caldwell Gallery, also on Sun Valley Road, will feature new vibrant paintings captured in Palm Springs.

Saddletree Gallery, 460 Sun Valley Road, will spotlight contemporary Southwest art featuring wild horses juxtaposed against a red background by Ke’vin W. Bowers. Bowers recently moved from Santa Fe, N.M., to Boise.

Friesen Gallery, Sun Valley Road and First Avenue, will feature artist Lawrence Fodor joined by a few of his favorite artists — sculptor David Kimball Anderson, photographer Danae Falliers, ceramicist Rocky Lewycky and abstract watercolorist Dara Mark.

Gallery DeNovo, Sun Valley Road and First Avenue, will have Melissa Herrington on hand to discuss her new exhibition, “HANDless.” Herrington has blended the narratives of poets Anne Sexton and Margaret Atwood with her own aesthetic to produce 21 paintings that explore the world of gender and transformation. Herrington’s works, created with acrylic mixed media, resin on wood, plaster, moss and found objects, suggest the story of a girl without hands and an undercurrent of gender entrapment.

Broschovsky Galleries, 360 East Ave., will spotlight Pop Art — specifically the iconic portraits and other imagery of Andy Warhol and the comic-referenced works of Roy Lichtenstein. Pop Art was a visual art movement that emerged in the 1950s in Britain and the U.S. Pop artists liked to satirize objects, sometimes enlarging things like food to gigantic proportions, or to make chairs of squishy plastic instead of the materials you might expect.

The former Anne Reed Gallery, at 391 First Ave. N., will continue to show 21 aboriginal paintings from the Outback of Australia curated by Julie Harvey. The exhibit features the work of the Papunya Tula people.

The Open Room, 620 Sun Valley Road, is presenting paintings by local artist Susan Hall. Hall, who created the Farmhouse collection furniture line, places layer upon layer of paint on canvas to create works for her exhibition, “Palimpsest: the Act of Revealing.”

Sun Valley Center for the Arts, 191 Fifth St. E., is showing off its exhibition “Beam Board Breath: An Investigation of Trees.” The exhibition includes Patrick Dougherty’s “huts,” which he made from twisting and weaving saplings and twigs gathered along the Big Wood River. The huts are across from the Ketchum post office on Second Avenue. Dougherty, who has created more than 200 such installations throughout the world, said he will rely on viewers to keep this one together in the coming months by sticking twigs back in when they wiggle their way out and pulling them out completely when they begin to look ratty.

Heyburn's bluegrass festival offers jam session, banjo lessons, four bands

By Judy Albertson
Times-News writer

HEYBURN — Put on your dancing shoes and head to the Heyburn Amphitheater on Saturday for the 2nd Annual Snake River Bluegrass Festival.

The event is organized by the Heyburn Amphitheater Committee: John Berglund, Mike Andrew, Heather Davis, Brian Duncan, Mike Ramsey, Chris James, Earl Andrew and Deb Hopkins.

“It’s all funded from donations and the city of Heyburn. They have put a lot of money into the park and amphitheater, and they want it to be used. Heyburn doesn’t have a rodeo, parade or fair, so they came up with a celebration using the amphitheater,” James said.

The schedule:
9 a.m.: pancake breakfast, with entertainment by Jason Parton

10:30 a.m.: open jam session

Noon: banjo workshop

1:30 p.m.: Gary Bench

2 p.m.: High Desert Band

4 p.m.: Soles Rest

6 p.m.: Front Porch Flavor

8 p.m.: Strings Attached

“We’re kicking it off with a pancake breakfast which is by freewill donation. The donations will pay for the food, if we’re lucky,” James said. “The Rupert Rotary will be there selling barbecue beef sandwiches as well as several other food vendors selling hamburgers, snow cones and more. And I’m sure Gossner’s will be there with ice cream.”

Party Hardy will bring a bounce house for children.

“We have four good bands, and all we’re asking for admission is a canned food item which will be donated to South Central Community Action Partnership,” James said.

The jam session is open to anyone. The banjo workshop will be headed up by Mike McCarthy from the band Strings Attached.

“We are starting and ending with straight bluegrass bands. The two in between are more a mix of country, rock and bluegrass. All of the bands have been playing for a number of years,” James said.

High Desert Band is an acoustic group whose repertoire ranges from the Celtic roots of old-time mountain music to bluegrass, folk, cowboy and comedy. Soles Rest’s progressive bluegrass musicians hail from the Treasure Valley, playing guitar, rhythm guitar, mandolin and banjo. Front Porch Flavor is a Twin Falls acoustic band whose laid-back sound is a fusion of country, bluegrass, island and rock.

Strings Attached is Jon Jacobson on guitar and lead vocals, Mike McCarthy on banjo, Jenni Stippich on fiddle and David Quinley on upright bass, playing bluegrass and oldtime music. Strings Attached has appeared at the Northern Rockies Folk Festival, the National Old Time Fiddle Contest in Weiser, some guy’s wake by mistake, the National Country Music Festival in Iowa, the Southern Utah Bluegrass Festival and the Brenda, Ariz., Jamfest.

James suggests bringing a blanket or lawn chairs and staying for the whole event.

“You won’t want to miss any of these great bands,” he said.

James hopes for a large crowd.

“Last year the weather was terrible. If we get good weather we think there will be 300 or more show up. We got about 200 last year in spite of the bad weather,” James said.

Front Porch Flavor is Renee Andrew-Lewis on lead vocals and percussion; Bill Butler on lead guitar, mandolin, bass, piano and vocals; Liberty Yates on vocals, percussion and bass; Andy Cluff on bass, mandolin, banjo, acoustic guitar, harmonica and vocals and Kevin Silva on djembe and bass.

Join Oakley arts group for ‘Nerd’ auditions, Christmas choir

Times-News

Oakley Valley Arts Council announced auditions for its fall production of “The Nerd,” directed by Walt Robberson.

The inventive comedy was first presented by the Milwaukee Repertory Theatre, then produced in Great Britain, then on Broadway, the arts council said. The action centers on the dilemma of a young architect who is visited by a man he’s never met but who saved his life in Vietnam. The visitor turns out to be an inept nerd who outstays his welcome.

Auditions will be 7-9 p.m. Sept. 9 and 9 a.m. to noon Sept. 11 at Howells Opera House in Oakley. Be prepared to read from a provided script. The cast has five men and two women, and adults are invited to audition. The production will be Nov. 4-6, 8-9 and 11-13.

Information: 677-2787 or www.oakleyvalleyarts.org.

Also, Oakley Valley Arts Council is inviting singers to join its choir. Weekly rehearsals for the annual Christmas concerts directed by Kent Severe begin at 7 p.m. Sept. 12 at Howells Opera House. The concerts will be at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 4-5. Information: 862-3266 or 677-2787.

By Jason Chatraw •
Times-News correspondent

1. Boise State

2009 Record: 14-0 (8-0 WAC)
Starters Returning: 21 (offense – 11; defense – 10)
Key Returnees: QB Kellen Moore (Jr.), RB Jeremy Avery (Sr.), WR Austin Pettis (Sr.), WR Titus Young (Sr.), S Jeron Johnson (Sr.), DE Ryan Winterswyk (Sr.), DT Billy Winn (Jr.)
Key Losses: TE Richie Brockel, CB Kyle Wilson
Key Games: vs. Virginia Tech (Sept. 6 in Washington, D.C.); vs. Oregon State (Sept. 25); vs. Fresno State (Nov. 19); at Nevada (Nov. 26)

Hopes have never been higher for a non-automatic qualifying school in the BCS era of not just busting the BCS but cracking into the title game. And Boise State could do just that by going undefeated again with its slightly improved strength of schedule. However, because the Broncos play in the WAC, there is no margin for error.

After winning every regular season game by double digits and stunning TCU in the Fiesta Bowl, the Broncos should open the season ranked in the top five. That lofty ranking could be enough to propel Boise State into the BCS title game with another undefeated run. And who's to say they won't do it?

The season opener against Virginia Tech is the most daunting game on the Broncos' schedule. With a roster full of seasoned veterans, don't expect Boise State to be intimidated. Then there's the home opener against last year's Pac-10 runner-up, Oregon State. That should be a tough game for the Broncos, but it's at home where Boise State has won 55 straight games, just three shy of tying the NCAA record held by Miami. And don't forget the rest of the WAC would love to send Boise State to the Mountain West without its fourth straight conference title.

2. Nevada

2009 Record: 8-5 (7-1 WAC)
Starters Returning: 17 (offense – 10; defense – 7)
Key Returnees: QB Colin Kaepernick (Sr.), DE Dontay Moch, RB Vai Taua (Sr.), TE Virgil Green (Sr.), LB James-Michael Johnson (Jr.)
Key Losses: DE Kevin Basped, S Jonathon Amaya, MLB Mike Bethea
Key Games: vs. Cal (Sept. 17), at BYU (Sept. 25), at Fresno State (Nov. 13), vs. Boise State (Nov. 26)

With the exception of last season's season opener against Notre Dame, the Wolf Pack had few problems scoring out of the "pistol" formation. It was stopping their opponents that proved to be the greater challenge. And if Nevada hopes to be more successful in 2010, the defense must show vast improvement.

During the offseason, Nevada hired Andy Buh to take over as defensive coordinator, leaving the same position at Stanford to do so. Buh has nowhere to go but up with the Wolf Pack – and he also has WAC Defensive Player of the Year Dontay Moch to build around.

Scrambling quarterback Colin Kaepernick returns for his senior season. Last season, Kaepernick averaged 91 yards per game on the ground and 158 through the air as the Wolf Pack amassed nearly 350 rushing yards per game. Kaepernick expressed the desire to be a little more balanced in 2010. And he will need that if he hopes to return to the place where he was in his first start for Nevada as a freshman in 2007: on the precipice of beating Boise State.

3. Fresno State

2009 Record: 8-5 (6-2 WAC)
Starters Returning: 17 (offense – 9; defense – 8)
Key Losses: RB Ryan Matthews, SS Moses Harris, WR Seyi Ajirotutu
Key Games: at Ole Miss (Sept. 25), vs. Nevada (Nov. 13), at Boise State (Nov. 19), vs. Illinois (Dec. 3)

Fresno State lost the nation's leading rusher in Ryan Matthews, but it returns the entire offensive line from a year ago that should have no problems opening holes for a stable of Bulldog running backs ready to start. Sophomore Robbie Rouse looks to take over Matthews' role as the Bulldogs' workhorse. Rouse average 5.8 yards per carry and piled up 479 yards in a limited role last season. Returning starting quarterback Ryan Colburn, who was 20th in the nation in passing efficiency, may find himself pressed for playing time by Derek Carr if Colburn doesn't strongly assert himself as the team leader in fall practice.

Seniors Chris Carter and Ben Jacobs anchor Fresno State's defense, but they will need some help to avoid a repeat performance of its national ranking of No. 98 in total defense. But with eight returning starters and only strong safety Moses Harris as the lone key loss, the Bulldogs' defense could be much more improved in 2010.

The Bulldogs' philosophy of "anyone, anywhere" scheduling is setting up nicely this season. With Cincinnati, Nevada and Illinois all paying a visit to Fresno State, the Bulldogs' toughest landmines will be on the road against Ole Miss and Boise State.

Boise State holds first fall camp practice today

Times-News

The Boise State football team opens its two-week fall camp today in preparation for the 2010 season. Coming off an undefeated season and Fiesta Bowl win over TCU, the Broncos face lofty expectations in a season that begins Sept. 6 against Virginia Tech in Washington, D.C.

Boise State's fall camp runs through Saturday, Aug. 21. All practices are closed to the public, but the Broncos will hold an open scrimmage at 7:30 p.m., Aug. 21 in Bronco Stadium.

The scrimmage will pit the Boise State offensive unit against the defensive unit.

Parking and admission to the event are free with seating on the west side of the stadium.

BSU's matchup with Virginia Tech will kick off at 6 p.m. (MDT) and will be televised on ESPN.

Davis well ahead of ACL recovery timetable

By Josh Wright
Times-News correspondent

MOSCOW – In the best of scenarios, Preston Davis would be back in early October, perhaps late September. That's what the doctors told the University of Idaho wide receiver this spring after major knee surgery.

But Davis had a much earlier return date in mind back then. And as fall camp opened Thursday, he's still pushing toward it.

"I'm really ahead of schedule, but it's just a matter of if I can be ready by Sept. 2," Davis said, pointing to the day the Vandals start the season against North Dakota. "I mean, that was my goal from Day 1. We're just still working towards that. We'll see what happens."

Davis, a junior in the mix to start at wide-out if healthy, was in shorts and a jersey like the rest of his teammates during Idaho's first practice. He's still wearing a brace around his left knee, four months after tearing his left anterior cruciate ligament.

But Davis moved nimbly during early drills and said his knee felt fine afterward.

Coach Robb Akey said Davis could be as much as a month ahead of schedule. That would give him a chance to play in the Vandals' opener like he's planned all along.

"I think it's a hopeful goal, but I think there's potential for it," Akey said. "And I'm glad he's got that in his mind. Maybe that will keep pushing him to that point."

Davis is best known for hauling in the game-winning two-point conversion in last year's Humanitarian Bowl. The pulsating grab against Bowling Green capped a 33-catch season for the Las Vegas product.

But on March 30, before the Vandals' first spring scrimmage, Davis sustained an ACL tear and had surgery about a week later. The typical recovery period is six months – meaning Davis wouldn't be back until early or mid-October – but Akey had a suspicion he might make rapid progress.

"There's part of me that thought with that kid it's a possibility because he is a worker," Akey said. "He approached it very, very well. I think our (doctors) and rehab people handled it well. He did a great job of working."

Davis spent the summer in Moscow rehabbing twice a day. Eventually he built up the strength to run on a daily basis on the Idaho practice field, and he's steadily improved since then.

"I don't see why Sept. 2 isn't obtainable," he said. "With the dates and timelines with injuries like this, I actually accelerated them quite a bit. I cut back on a lot of things so I would be ready by the first game."

O-line options: The Vandals' first-team offensive line on the first day of fall camp consisted of lone returner Matt Cleveland, two backups from last year – Tevita Halaholo and Tyrone Novikoff – as well as

Kentucky woman guilty of extortion in Pitino case

By Brett Barrouquere and Will Graves
Associated Press writers

LOUISVILLE, Ky. – A Kentucky woman was convicted Thursday of demanding millions of dollars from Rick Pitino to keep secret their one-night stand in a restaurant, then claiming the Louisville basketball coach raped her after he reported the extortion.

Karen Cunagin Sypher, 50, of Louisville, was found guilty of three counts of extortion, two counts of lying to the FBI and one count of retaliating against a witness. She stared at the ceiling as the verdict was read, while one of her sons wept openly.

The case involved a 2003 sexual encounter between Pitino and Sypher, a former model at car shows, at a table inside an Italian restaurant closed for the night. Pitino testified she came on to him and the sex was consensual. After she was charged, Sypher told police it was rape but Pitino was never charged.

Last year, Pitino received three threatening phone calls and two letters demanding cash and gifts for Sypher to keep the tryst secret. One of the letters showed to the jury was a handwritten note from Sypher that asked for cars, tuition for her children and her mortgage to be paid off.

Neither Sypher or her attorney commented as they left federal court following her eight-day trial. But one of her sons, Jacob Wise, confronted prosecutors. "Thanks for taking my mother away, guys," said Wise, 20.

Assistant U.S. Attorney John Kuhn called it a very difficult trial for the prosecutors, Pitino and the community.

A University of Louisville spokesman said the coach was traveling and referred calls to Pitino attorney Steve Pence, who said the jury did the right thing.

Former Armstrong teammate alleges wide-spread drug use on USPS team

By Jim Vertuno
Associated Press writer

AUSTIN, Texas – Lance Armstrong's attorney has lashed out at a report that a former teammate of the seven-time Tour de France champion told investigators Armstrong knew of widespread performance-enhancing drug use on the U.S. Postal Service team.

Attorney Bryan D. Daly said there are hundreds of former Armstrong teammates who would deny he broke the rules to win.

The New York Times reported in Thursday editions that a cyclist, who was identified only as a former Armstrong teammate, backed up claims by Floyd Landis that the Postal Service team engaged in systematic doping with Armstrong's knowledge and approval. The unidentified cyclist told convened for the case.

Prosecutors and special agent Jeff Novitzky of the Food and Drug

Daly released a statement Thursday afternoon saying the report contains "inappropriate leaks designed to create a circus-like atmosphere."

"To the extent that any riders are suggesting that Lance Armstrong violated cycling rules or doped, they are either mistaken or not telling the truth. Lance has ridden with hundreds of riders over the years who will support his position, and over all that time he has never failed even a single test," Daly said.

Thom Mrozek, a spokesman for the U.S. attorney's office in Los Angeles, declined comment about the report and Daly's reaction to it.

Landis, who was stripped of his 2006 Tour title after failing a doping test, recently dropped longtime denials and said he

IGA takes Carter Cup

Times-News

The Idaho Golf Association team extended its lead on the final day of the Carter Cup head-to-head tournament, earning a 36.5-23.5 victory over the Snake River PGA team in Jackpot, Nev., Thursday.

After posting a 20-10 lead through the first day, the IGA team won the singles portion 16.5-13.5.

Each singles match in the Ryder Cup-style tournament accrued three points, one going to the winner of the front 9, one to the winner of the back 9, and one to the winner of the overall match.

The IGA team was comprised of some of the most notable amateurs from across the state, while the Snake River PGA team was comprised of some of the region's top golf pros.

W A C F O O T B A L L Q & A S

Q&A with BSU quarterback Kellen Moore

Times-News: How much film have you watched of Virginia Tech?

Moore: "It's summer, so sometimes we're bored. I think we've watched all their games from last year already. You watch all those games and you take what you can out, but you also understand at the same time that defense had a whole offseason to do what they wanted to, make some changes and mix things up. They've got some different players. It's like all first games — there'll be twists and changes."

Times-News: How does Virginia Tech compare with Boise State?

Moore: "I think you definitely have to look at the speed factor. Both teams are very athletic and very fast. They're not necessarily the biggest team you'll see, but they might be one of the most impressive in how quick they get to the ball and how they cover in defense. I think they are a very smart team that doesn't screw up."

Times-News: What do you think about Boise State moving to the Mountain West in 2011?

Moore: "I don't care. I just play who they tell us to play."

Q&A with Nevada QB Colin Kaepernick

Times-News: Last year, you guys turned into a nearly unstoppable running attack offensively and led the nation in rushing, but coach Ault wants to change that this year. What are your thoughts on that?

Kaepernick: "I like it. I know that I need to work on my drop back passing game — and I think it will give us more of a threat offensively. The running game just started working and we went with it. But we know if we're going to be successful this season, we need more of a balanced attack."

Times-News: If you had to name a player or two who you try to pattern your game after, who would it be?

Kaepernick: "Vince Young and Randall Cunningham. I loved watching Vince play, and I've seen a lot of film of Cunningham. Both of those players just used their athleticism to make plays and help their teams win. You have to admire the way both of them played the game."

Times-News: Your freshman season in your first start, you had Boise State on the ropes in a thrilling quadruple overtime loss. Is it tough to think about the fact that you haven't been that close to beating them since then?

Kaepernick: "It's definitely something I think about a lot. It was a very memorable moment in my career since it was my first start, but it's painful to think about. We were so close. But I've got one more shot, so we'll see what happens."

Q&A with Fresno St. LB Chris Carter

Times-News: What does Fresno State have to do this year to improve over last year?

Carter: "I think one of the biggest things we have to do is work on our discipline as a team. Our offense is already high powered. If we can tighten up our defense and take care of the things we can control, we're going to be better."

Times-News: Last year, it was well documented that Fresno State traveled the most miles of any team in the country. How will that travel experience help you guys this year, like when you have to travel to play at Mississippi?

Carter: "Well, we're used to all the travel and the hostile environments. I've heard their stadium is one of the best venues in college football, so we're excited about getting to play there. But I know we won't be intimidated."

Times-News: The California state government has enforced furloughs throughout its education system. How is that impacting the football program?

Carter: "Well, furloughs affect the coaches more so than the players. At first we thought we might be able to get a day or two of practice off, but our coaches work around it so that the days off are when we would take days off anyway from practice on the field. I know they miss out on some time in the office game planning, so that can't be easy."

Kotsay has last word as Tigers rally for win

DETROIT — Mark Kotsay hit a two-run homer in the ninth inning, then lined a two-run triple in the 11th that sent the Chicago White Sox past the Detroit Tigers 6-4 Thursday.

Detroit's Ryan Raburn hit a three-run homer with two outs in the ninth off Bobby Jenks to tie it.

Sergio Santos (1-0) pitched two scoreless innings for his first major league win. Freddy Garcia pitched 6 2-3 strong innings for the AL Central leaders.

Kotsay's go-ahead triple came off Jose Valverde (1-3). Brent Lillibridge and Andruw Jones hit one-out singles in the 11th before Kotsay's drive into the right-center field gap.

TWINS 8, RAYS 6

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Jason Kubel's two-out popup hit a cat-walk high above Tropicana Field and fell near the pitcher's mound for a go-ahead single in the ninth inning, a true dome run that sent Minnesota past Tampa Bay.

The Rays scored six times in the eighth, capped by pinch-hitter Jason Barlett's grand slam.

Michael Cuddyer added a more conventional RBI single off Joaquin Benoit (0-1) later in the Twins' ninth.

Matt Capps (1-0) pitched 1 1-3 innings for the win.

RED SOX 6, INDIANS 2

BOSTON — Daisuke Matsuzaka

pitched eight solid innings and Adrian Beltre hit a grand slam to lead the Red Sox.

Matsuzaka (8-3) allowed Shin-Soo Choo's 14th homer of the season in the first but gave up just four more hits and never faced more than four batters in any inning.

Beltre connected for his 20th homer in the fourth inning after Josh Tomlin (1-1) retired Boston's first 10 batters. Beltre took over the team's RBI lead with 75.

Jonathan Papelbon got his 26th save in 31 opportunities when he struck out Trevor Crowe with the bases loaded for the final out.

ORIOLES 5, ANGELS 4

BALTIMORE — Cesar Izturis singled in the winning run in the ninth inning and the Orioles remained unbeaten under new manager Buck Showalter, defeating Los Angeles for a three-game sweep.

Matt Wieters led off the ninth with a double off Francisco Rodriguez (0-3).

After pinch-runner Julio Lugo took third on a bunt by Corey Patterson, the Angels packed the drawn-up infield with six players.

Izturis then lined a single up the middle, sparking a wild celebration by the Orioles around first base.

Jason Berken (3-2) got the win despite giving up a three-run, game-tying homer to Torii Hunter in the eighth.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

PHILLIES 5, MARLINS 4, 10 INNINGS

MIAMI — Carlos Ruiz homered leading off the 10th inning, and Philadelphia benefited from an umpire's bad call to complete a three-game series sweep.

A ruling by third base umpire Bob Davidson cost the Marlins a victory in the ninth. Gaby Sanchez pulled a grounder over third base for a hit that would have scored Hanley Ramirez from second base, but Davidson ruled the ball foul.

Marlins manager Edwin Rodriguez argued in vain, and replays showed ball landed inside the line behind the base.

Ruiz, who had a two-run double in the sixth, broke the tie in the 10th with his fifth homer off Will Ohman (0-1).

Brad Lidge worked the 10th for his 12th save.

The Phillies scored twice in the ninth with no outs to tie the game, but they had three baserunners thrown out in the inning.

BRAVES 3, GIANTS 2

ATLANTA — Eric Hinske snapped an 0-for-17 hitless streak with a tiebreaking, sixth-inning home run off San Francisco's Tim Lincecum.

Alex Gonzalez hit a two-run homer in the second inning — his second as a Brave — for the other runs off Lincecum (11-5).

Jair Jurrjens (4-4) went six innings for the Braves, allowing seven hits, two runs and three walks. Billy Wagner picked up his 26th save with a scoreless ninth.

Lincecum, who had won six of his seven previous starts against Atlanta, gave up six hits and three runs in 6 1-3 innings.

The NL East-leading Braves, who have won three of four, own the best home record in the majors at 37-14.

PIRATES 5, ROCKIES 1

PITTSBURGH — James McDonald pitched six shutout innings in his Pittsburgh debut and Colorado lost its seventh straight road game.

Five days after being acquired from the Los Angeles Dodgers along with a minor leaguer for closer Octavio Dotel, McDonald (1-1) had eight strikeouts — as many as any Pirates starter had all season. He allowed four hits and a walk in his second start of the season and sixth of his career.

Garrett Jones and Ronny Cedeno homered for Pittsburgh, which came in having lost six of its past seven.

Troy Tulowitzki had the lone RBI and three of the Rockies' seven hits — all singles. Colorado had won five of its past six since snapping an eight-game losing streak.

Phelps wins again at swim nationals

IRVINE, Calif. (AP) — Chandler, who touched in World and Olympic champion Michael Phelps won the 100-meter butterfly at the U.S. national championships on Thursday night with the fastest time in the world this year.

Phelps led all the way and touched in 50.65 seconds, easily topping the previous quickest time of 51.70 set by Evgeny Korotyshkin of Russia. He won his 50th career national title, topping Tracy Caulkins' mark of 48.

Tyler McGill was second in 52.20, and Timothy Phillips took third. Backstroke specialist Aaron Peirsol finished fourth.

World champion Rebecca Soni won the 100 breaststroke with the world's fastest time.

Soni was second at the turn, then poured it on down the stretch to win easily in 1 minute, 5.73 seconds.

She was 2.34 seconds ahead of second-place Ann

Chandler, who touched in 1:08.07. Micah Lawrence was third.

Soni trounced a loaded field that included world recordholder Jessica Hardy, who led at the turn before fading to seventh; 2000 Olympic champion Megan Jendrick, and 1996 Olympic silver medalist Amanda Beard. Jendrick was fourth and Beard sixth.

Soni earned a spot on the U.S. team for the Pan Pacific championships later this month.

Hardy swam the first 50 meters in 30.92 seconds to Soni's 31.01. But Soni used her trademark strong finish to close in 34.72, while Hardy had the slowest second lap in the eight-woman field at 38.32.

Hardy and Soni are the two fastest women ever in the event. They train in the same pool at the University of Southern California, though Hardy is a sprinter and Soni stretches out to 200 meters.

Sam Tupua and center Clell Hasenbank.

Those five “are in the mix and will continue to be in the mix,” Akey said.

But they aren't the only ones.

Junior college transfer Charles Wiley will vie with Novikoff for the starting right tackle spot, and true freshman Mike Marboe of Wenatchee has impressed Akey since he joined the team before spring practice.

“The young Marboe, you think he's a freshman, you want to redshirt him,” the coach said. “But he did a hell of a job in the spring and we'll see what can do when we get through camp. He might end up in that core of guys, so he is in play. I think we've got some options.”

Roster moves: Idaho will grayshirt freshman defensive tackle Tyler Kuder, Akey said. In his place, the coaching staff moved running back Calvin Thompson to the roster.

Thompson, who originally was going to grayshirt, will fill the void left by Corey White's departure. ... Akey said JUCO transfer defensive back Thaad Thompson has yet to join the team while waiting for a grade to come through.

Bubba Watson reacts after making a birdie putt on No. 18 during the first round of the Bridgestone Invitational golf tournament at Firestone Country Club Thursday in Akron, Ohio.

Watson surges while Tiger struggles

AKRON, Ohio — Not even one of his favorite golf courses is much use to Tiger Woods these days.

Facing the two easiest holes to start his round, he hit tee shots into the trees and made bogeys. On the course where he has won seven times in his last nine appearances, he posted a 4-over 74 for his highest score ever at Firestone. That put him 10 shots behind Bubba Watson, the largest first-round deficit Woods has faced since he returned at the Masters.

And it didn't get any better when he finished Thursday in the Bridgestone Invitational.

As he took the 100-yard walk to the scoring trailer, one spectator called out to Woods, “You're washed up, Tiger. Give it up.”

Woods, sporting a goatee but rarely a smile, offered no excuses.

“Only thing I did good today is I kept my patience out there,” he said.

It was another example of Woods at war with his game, even on golf courses where he once won with alarming regularity.

He collapsed early in the final round at Pebble Beach, where he had won the U.S. Open by 15 shots the last time it was there. He was never a factor at St. Andrews, where he had won the British Open twice by a combined 13 shots. His dominance is even more defined at Firestone, where he had never shot worse than 72, where he had never finished worse than fifth.

Instead, the day belonged to a guy who had never been here.

Watson made his debut at Firestone by running off four straight birdies on the back nine and making a long putt on the final hole for a 6-under 64 and a two-shot lead over a group that included Masters champion Phil Mickelson and U.S. Open champion Graeme McDowell.

“I was impressed about Tiger Woods having seven wins here,” Watson said about seeing the South Course for the first time earlier in the week. “But with Tiger's wedge game, and his putter is phenomenal, I can see where he could win.”

That was hard to imagine on a muggy, breezy afternoon in northern Ohio.

“Just because I like the golf course doesn't mean I'm going to play well on it,” Woods said, who hit only five fairways and took 32 putts. “You still have to execute, and I didn't do that. I did not execute the shots that I wanted to execute, didn't shape the ball the way I wanted to shape it, and certainly did not putt well.”

Mickelson, long fascinated by distance, decided at the urging of swing coach Butch Harmon to shorten the shaft in his driver to 44 inches. Whether he lost distance was of little importance, for Lefty was thrilled to see the ball go straighter.

This is his sixth tournament with a chance to go to No. 1 in the world. Mickelson could replace Woods at No. 1 by finishing as low as fourth — Woods would have to finish out of the top 44, which looks possible.

TWO SHARE LEAD AT TURNING STONE

VERONA, N.Y. — Rory Sabbatini and Omar Uresti shot 7-under 65s and were tied for the lead in the rain-delayed first round of the Turning Stone Resort Championship.

Sabbatini and Uresti both had seven birdies without a bogey Thursday and they were one stroke in front of Brad Faxon, Brian Davis, Steve Elkington and Alex Cejka.

used drugs during the height of his career. He implicated several cyclists, Armstrong among them.

Armstrong's attorneys have said the U.S. Anti-Doping Agency has been trying to broker deals with cyclists who testify or produce evidence against Armstrong. If those riders have used performance-enhancing drugs, they could receive reduced punishment, Armstrong's attorneys have said.

More riders are expected to meet with the grand jury as early as next week, people close to the investigation told The Times.

“We understand that riders may be being offered sweetheart deals to change testimony that they have given in the past, under oath,” Daly said. “The power of the federal government is being abused to pursue dated and discredited allegations, and that's flat-out wrong, unethical, un-American, and a waste of taxpayer dollars.”

Louisville athletic director Tom Jurich said Pitino has been “100 percent truthful” and will not be disciplined.

“We don't view anything as a win,” Jurich said. “I think this has been a long 17 months. There's probably been a lot of damage done.”

Jury foreman Glen Elder told The Associated Press the panel went through the charges line by line and there were no disagreements during about five hours of deliberations over two days.

Juror Charles Smith said there “was never a huge deadlock” and the tapes of the three extortion calls “were key, they played a major part” in their decision.

“It was a hard decision, I mean we're human beings so we took it into consideration, but we made a decision based on the evidence provided,” Smith said. “We did the defense justice by deliberating, we didn't go in and just look at it one-sided.”

The charges carry a maximum sentence of 26 years in prison, but under federal sentencing guidelines, the penalty will likely be lighter. She will remain free until her sentencing Oct. 27.

“This was nothing more than a pure shakedown of Richard Pitino,” Assistant U.S. attorney Marisa Ford told jurors in closing arguments.

Sypher's attorney James Earhart told jurors Sypher had been “villainized” during the trial. He argued that the government's case proved that “rules don't apply to the privileged” like Pitino, who was the star witness.

Prosecution and defense attorneys questioned the coach in detail about the night he met Sypher, then known as Karen Wise. Pitino, a married father of five, told the jury the two had sex in the empty restaurant after she whispered to him and then unzipped his pants.

Pitino said the sex lasted “15 seconds” and was “unfortunate.”

Although Sypher never testified, jurors heard her version of events when prosecutors played a never-broadcast TV interview where she claimed Pitino raped her.

“All he said was shut up, shut up and be quiet,” she said on the tape.

Although some witnesses described Sypher as persistent and flirty that night, no one else testified to witnessing the sex.

Tim Sypher, a longtime Pitino aide and now Karen Sypher's ex-husband, testified he arranged for an abortion and paid for it with $3,000 Pitino had given Karen Sypher. He testified that the two met when Pitino asked him for help after she said she was pregnant.

Pitino said he thought the money was for counseling and medical needs but Sypher later said she had an abortion.

Pitino has coached at Louisville since 2001. He has coached three different schools to the Final Four — Louisville, Providence and Kentucky, where he won a national title.

Redskins give Haynesworth new test: MRI

ASHBURN, Va. — Even as the Washington Redskins ordered an MRI on Albert Haynesworth's sore left knee, coach Mike Shanahan gave yet another reason why he's adamant about having the two-time All-Pro defensive tackle pass the team's conditioning test.

Haynesworth, says the coach, missed way too many practices last season.

"I've got all the stats in there, how many games he played where he didn't practice throughout the whole week," Shanahan said. "If you don't practice, you're not going to play well. ... My job is to make sure he can play the best once we start our season, and that's to get him in football shape. We'll make sure when he is ready to go, he can go full speed."

The Haynesworth soap opera entered its second week Thursday when the knee kept him from taking the conditioning test for the third straight day. That prompted a different sort of test — an MRI — that Shanahan called a "pre-ventative measure."

"His knee's been a little bit sore, more sore than it has been in the past," Shanahan said. "In the past, every third or fourth day it would be a little sore, according to the trainers, but now it's been a couple of days consistently sore."

The knee has bothered Haynesworth throughout previous seasons. Last year, he missed two days of training camp to have fluid injected into the knee, a procedure he said had become routine for him to fight the wear and tear of practice.

Once the season began, the days off for Haynesworth piled up quickly. He was listed on the injury report for 10 of the team's 16 games with hip, ankle and knee ailments. He missed four games, continuing a pattern from his years with the Tennessee Titans, where he never played all 16 games in a season after becoming a regular starter in 2003.

Haynesworth, entering the second year of a seven-year, $100 million contract, is the only Redskins player who has to take the conditioning test, a result of his decision not to take part in the team's offseason workout program.

Shanahan's unyielding position has asserted the coach's control over the team, but his comments Thursday also echoed long-standing concerns about Haynesworth's fitness.

The test consists of two timed 300-yard runs with many 180-degree changes of direction, hardly the best thing to attempt on a bad knee. Asked if the state of Haynesworth's knee might be a reason to excuse the player from passing the test in order to practice, Shanahan didn't sound ready to bend.

"Well, you can't practice if your knee's not strong enough," Shanahan said. "If you can't do drills and push off it, you can't run. If you can't run, you can't play."

DUMERVIL INJURES CHEST MUSCLE, RETURN UNKNOWN

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. — Denver Broncos pass rusher Elvis Dumervil's season might be sacked by a torn chest muscle.

A person familiar with the injury to Dumervil told The Associated Press on Thursday that the reigning NFL sacks king could be sidelined for up to five months, making it difficult for Dumervil to return this season. The person spoke on the condition of anonymity.

Coach Josh McDaniels said the team is evaluating courses of treatment for the pass rusher and there is no timetable for his return. Surgery hasn't been ruled out, either.

Dumervil was hurt at practice Wednesday night in a 1-on-1 passing drill, and walked off the field clutching his right arm. The Broncos described the injury as to the "pectoral area of his chest."

The 26-year-old Dumervil led the league with 17 sacks in 2009 and parlayed his breakout season into a five-year, $58.332 million extension last month that included $43.168 million in guarantees against injury, a record for a player at his position.

JOHNSON SIGNS NEW DEAL WITH TEXANS

HOUSTON — Andre Johnson signed

a two-year extension on Thursday that will keep him in Houston through the 2016 season.

Neither the Texans nor Johnson's agent, Kennard McGuire, would disclose terms. The Houston Chronicle and KRIV-TV reported that Johnson's extension had a maximum value of $38.5 million, including $13 million guaranteed.

Johnson has led the league in receiving yards the past two seasons and topped 100 catches in three of the past four. He has the NFL's highest receiving yards average (90.2 per game) since 2006.

The 29-year-old Johnson had five years left on his old contract, but told McNair and Smith earlier this year that he wanted a new deal. The soft-spoken receiver caused a stir when he skipped three voluntary workouts in May and brought his desire for a new contract to light.

The Texans drafted Johnson third overall in 2003, the expansion franchise's second year of existence. The team re-signed him to an eight-year contract in 2007.

GOODELL STILL WEIGHING POSSIBLE BROWNS SUSPENSIONS

BEREA, Ohio — Shaun Rogers and Robaire Smith of the Cleveland Browns remain in limbo with NFL Commissioner Roger Goodell.

Goodell skirted the issue regarding suspensions to the two players on Thursday, but emphatically proclaimed that he wants a change to the way rookie salaries are handled.

Goodell spoke with fans, coaches and players during a visit to the Browns' training camp.

He addressed negotiations on a new collective bargaining agreement, rules to improve player safety, and said he is reviewing the cases of Cleveland's two defensive linemen. He didn't meet with them, however.

Rogers and Smith were arrested three months apart for carrying weapons through airport security.

NCAA: WVU football also broke rules

CHARLESTON, W.Va. — West Virginia student managers, graduate assistants and other non-coaching staff worked with football players on their skills and techniques in violation of NCAA limits during the Rich Rodriguez era and under current coach Bill Stewart, according to NCAA allegations released Thursday.

The NCAA said this week that there were five major and one secondary rules violations committed by the Mountaineer football program from 2005 to 2009.

The NCAA said both Rodriguez and Stewart failed to promote an atmosphere of compliance. Similar allegations were leveled against Rodriguez during an earlier, separate investigation at Michigan, which in May admitted it had committed a series of violations related to practice time and coaching activities.

Rodriguez led West Virginia, his alma mater, to two Bowl Championship Series berths and a 60-26 record in seven seasons before taking over at Michigan in December 2007. He left West Virginia two weeks after the Mountaineers lost to Pittsburgh in the 2007 regular-season finale and failed to secure a spot in the national championship game.

Rodriguez said in a statement that he has always taken compliance seriously and have "sincerely felt our program was open and transparent."

"I regret any mistakes that were made or rules that were misinterpreted. Any errors certainly weren't made intentionally. I openly discussed my past practices with NCAA investigators and will continue to cooperate fully during this process.

"I have redoubled efforts with my staff and our compliance team to improve several processes, strengthen communications, and work to ensure these mistakes won't happen in the future."

Michigan athletic director Dave Brandon said there will be no change in Rodriguez's job status as a result of Thursday's NCAA announcements.

INDIANAPOLIS LANDS FIRST BIG TEN TITLE GAME

ANDERSON, Ind. — The Big Ten Conference has chosen Lucas Oil Stadium in downtown Indianapolis as the site for its first football championship game in 2011.

The Big Ten announced Thursday that the conference and the Indiana Sports Corp. will spend the next 30 days working out details of the one-year deal. After that, the Big Ten will conduct thorough research to determine future locations.

TIM BROWN TO CALL ESPN 3-D COLLEGE FOOTBALL GAMES

BRISTOL, Conn. — Heisman Trophy winner Tim Brown will serve as the color commentator for ESPN's 3-D broadcasts of college football.

The network's new 3-D channel will air 13 college football games this season, beginning with Boise State's trip to Virginia Tech and including the BCS championship. The 3-D telecasts use different cameras and announcers from the regular ESPN productions.

Brown won the Heisman in 1987 for Notre Dame. The wide receiver played 16 seasons in the NFL. He'll work alongside play-by-play announcer Joe Tessitore.

TEXAS TO PLAY NOTRE DAME

AUSTIN, Texas — Texas and Notre Dame have agreed to a four-game series starting in 2015 that brings together two of the most successful and storied programs in college football.

The Longhorns are scheduled to play in South Bend on Sept. 5, 2015. The Fighting Irish are slated to play in Austin on Sept. 3, 2016, and again on Aug. 31, 2019.

The Longhorns return to South Bend on Sept. 12, 2020.

Pitcock resurfaces with Seahawks after hiatus

RENTON, Wash. (AP) — Quinn Pitcock's self-doubts are gone. So is his two-year disappearance from the NFL.

The once-promising Colts defensive tackle resurfaced Thursday with a free-agent contract from the Seahawks, two years after he stunned Indianapolis by abruptly leaving the sport at age 24.

He sought mental-health treatment after his departure for what he says was anxiety and mild depression.

"Last year I was getting treatment, working out and hanging out at the swimming pool doing one-and-a-half dives off the board. I've got a couple 9-year-olds I was swimming with, doing gainers," Pitcock said, speaking frankly minutes after restarting his career with his first preseason or regular-season practice since January 2007.

"I got back to my inner child. Before, I was worried about football. Now, I'm not so worried. I just live life to the fullest."

He said Thursday was the first time he was so happy in football in maybe a decade, since his days growing up in Piqua, Ohio. Warding off a huge, live, charging blocker instead of yet another foam-filled training bag never felt so good.

"It's been years, back toward high school," the 2006 All-American said of being happy in the game. "I had a tough time going to camps."

His struggles peaked in the summer of 2008. Pitcock doubted everything, including himself.

The three-year starter for Ohio State didn't believe he was mentally ready to contribute as a regular on Indianapolis' defensive line.

That was even though he'd played in a majority of the games the previous season as a rookie on a 13-3 division champion. He emerged after former league sacks champion Dwight Freeney went down for the Colts with a season-ending foot injury. It didn't matter that Indy's coaches were planning on him to be a primary contributor in '08.

"I didn't think I was good enough mentally for the team," he said. "I thought it was best for my team, if I wasn't ready. So I left. Looking back, I wasn't so stubborn and finally got some help."

He's still in counseling. Pitcock has learned many athletes deal with depression and anxiety, but most do it privately and internalize it "because in our society, alpha males try not to show their weaknesses."

Now, he is trying to get fellow "alpha males" to confront any signs of depression and seek help.

"No one great got anywhere by himself," Pitcock said. "That was my big problem. I thought I could do it on my own."

Female head coach ready for 1st practice

WASHINGTON (AP) — On the eve of her practice debut as a female head coach of a high school team, Natalie Randolph put a black visor over her dreadlocks and got a close-up look at the big time on the sidelines Thursday at Washington Redskins training camp.

Did the petite biology and environmental sciences teacher with the soft voice need tips on how to keep oversized men under control? Not at all. In fact, she's already "cursed" at some of her players for breaking rules at a team building camp just a few days ago.

Randolph was as much interested in tips on how to deal with the nonstop attention she's received since March 12, when she was put in charge of the Coolidge Colts at Coolidge Senior High School in Washington, D.C.. She is believed to be the nation's only female head coach of a high school varsity football team.

"When it comes down to it, I'm just a high school coach," Randolph said. "So all of this is so foreign to me."

Randolph had hoped the fascination over her unique status would have died down by now, but she said it "hasn't let up at all" and will only intensify when practice begins Friday. The school has tried to help her out with a blanket refusal for interview requests, but the doubts and the chatter about the new coach manifest themselves in other ways.

"I think she can deal with it better than I can," said Coolidge defensive coordinator Shedrick Young, who accompanied Randolph to Redskins Park. "I go to certain bars or whatever and talk about it. They're like, 'How could it blah, blah, blah,' and I feel myself getting all tense so I have to leave."

Any concerns about a mass exodus of players from Coolidge were apparently unfounded. Randolph said only two players transferred — and one of them returned. Asked if she had to do a sales job on her players, she smiled and answered politely but firmly: "I'm not into sales."

It helps that she was already respected as a teacher at the school and had a solid football resume.

The Washington native and University of Virginia track star played six seasons as a receiver for the D.C. Divas of the National Women's Football Association, helping the team win the title in 2006, then was an assistant coach from 2006-08 at rival D.C. high school H.D. Woodson.

Huskers, Sooners favored in Big 12's final season

DALLAS (AP) — This is it, folks, the last time around for the Big 12 as we have known it.

Nebraska is headed for the Big Ten next season. Colorado is going to the Pac-10, probably in 2011 as well. The remaining 10 schools are going to stick it out together, going "back to the future," as the commissioner describes it, with no championship game — but perhaps a new name.

All of that shuffling dominated conversations this summer and probably will generate more headlines this fall.

Yet there's plenty of intrigue on the field, too, starting with the Cornhuskers' bid to go out on top.

Coach Bo Pelini declared "Nebraska's back and we're here to stay" following a 33-0 victory over Arizona in the Holiday Bowl. "Here," apparently, meant national prominence and the Cornhuskers really could climb the polls with solid quarterback play.

They didn't last season and still nearly beat Texas in the Big 12 championship game. Nebraska only lost when the Longhorns nailed a long field goal as time expired.

The teams meet Oct. 16 in Lincoln, Neb., and it's already gotten juicy. Nebraska's marketing types put a "Beat Texas" line into a promotional campaign and Pelini insists it was dropped as soon as the football staff found out about it. Longhorns coach Mack Brown is playing it cool, reminding his side of how classy Cornhuskers fans always have been and expecting it to remain that way.

Nebraska's quarterback competition is between incumbent Zac Lee, who hopes to return better than ever following surgery on his passing elbow; last season's backup, Cody Green; and this season's spring sensation, Taylor Martinez.

"Any time you have great competition in any position, quarterback position included, it's going to make everybody better," Pelini said. "It will be interesting to see how that competition plays out."

The South race — surprise, surprise — should come down to Oklahoma and Texas.

Both powerhouses lost high-profile quarterbacks, the Sooners sending Sam Bradford off as the No. 1 pick in the NFL draft and the Longhorns parting with Colt McCoy, winner of the most career game by any Division I-A quarterback.

No biggie, though. Both already have replacements broken in.

Landry Jones played most of last season because Bradford was hurt.

The defending Big 12 champion Longhorns are handing their offense to Garrett Gilbert.

When McCoy was hurt on the opening series of the national title game, Gilbert led a second-half rally and showed he can play.

Supermodel describes gift of blood diamonds in war-crimes case

By Henry Chu
Los Angeles Times

LONDON — Supermodel Naomi Campbell traded the catwalk for the witness stand Thursday as she acknowledged accepting a gift of “dirty-looking stones” that war crimes prosecutors say were uncut diamonds from former Liberian strongman Charles Taylor.

Prosecutors say the gems offer proof that Taylor engaged in the trade of illegally mined “conflict diamonds” to help arm rebels in neighboring Sierra Leone’s decade-long civil war. Thousands of civilians were killed or mutilated during the fighting. Taylor stands accused of crimes against humanity before a tribunal in The Hague, Netherlands.

Campbell, who met the then-Liberian president in 1997, was a reluctant witness at the trial, compelled to appear under threat of being found in contempt of court. On the witness stand, the model with a reputation for impetuous and aggressive behavior made her unwillingness plain.

“I was made to be here. So obviously, I’m just, like, wanting to get this over with and get on with my life,” Campbell told the court. “This is a big inconvenience for me.”

She was made to stay for two hours, grilled about her meeting with Taylor at a charity dinner hosted by then-South African President Nelson Mandela and events at her hotel later that night.

“When I was sleeping, I had a knock at my door. And I opened my door, and two men were there and gave me a pouch and said, ‘A gift for you,’” Campbell testified. “I saw a few stones in there, and they were very small, dirty-looking stones.”

Campbell told the court she did not recognize them as diamonds, which she was more accustomed to seeing “shiny in a box.”

Campbell says she had no idea that the stones were from Taylor, as the prosecution alleges. She maintains that she passed them along to a friend who worked for a children’s charity connected to Mandela, asking that he use them to do something good. The charity denies ever receiving them.

2010 CHEVROLET COLORADO PICKUP TRUCK

STEADY CHEVY!

RoadWorthy!
By Ken Chester, Jr.
Motor News Media Corp.

Boasting outstanding room, a wide range of model configurations the Chevrolet Colorado pickup is available in three cab configurations: regular, extended and crew. The cargo box is six foot long for regular and extended cab models and five foot for the crew cab.

Enhancements and upgrades for the 2010 model year include standard head curtain side air bags on all models and three new exterior colors: Cardinal Red Metallic, Steel Green Metallic and Sheer Silver Metallic.

Offered in W/T and LT trim levels and regular, extended or crew cab configurations, power for the mid-size Chevrolet pickup truck is generated by one of two strong engines: a 2.9L four-cylinder engine and a 3.7L five-cylinder. Both engines are equipped with variable valve timing. Extended and crew cab models can be outfitted with a 5.3L V8 power plant with variable valve timing (VVT). Torque is communicated to the ground via the standard Asin MA5 five-speed manual gearbox or the optional smooth-shifting Hydra-Matic 4L60 four-speed automatic transmission.

Offered exclusively with the 5.3L V8 engine, the optional Z08 sport suspension was developed by GM's Performance Division. This special engineering includes specific steering and track-tuned suspension enhancements that stiffen the suspension by about 30 percent. The steering system with the Z08 package receives a high-performance cooler while under hood temperatures and airflow are controlled with a unique sealing system. The ride height for the Z08 suspension has also been lowered by approximately one inch and the truck is shod with low-profile 18-inch sport tires.

Drivers that desire a more rugged look and performance can select the popular Z71 Off Road package. Available in 2WD and 4WD models, the Z71 Off Road suspension package offers a higher stance, with a larger wheel/tire combination for improved appearance and off-road maneuverability.

The Colorado's solid road manners start with body-on-frame construction. A robust steel ladder-type frame serves as a solid foundation for the different suspension configurations. Cross members provide excellent overall stiffness resulting in a smooth ride.

Chevrolet engineers created a tastefully useful interior. The 60/40 split front cloth seats are comfortable, with a commanding view of the road. The center armrest doubles as storage space. The well-laid out dashboard features large, easy to read displays and user-friendly controls and switches.

Dual powerpoints are located in the center of the dashboard, while dual cupholders are built into the center of the front seat. The map pockets at the bottom of the doors are designed to hold a can or bottle of a favorite beverage.

IF AUGUST 6 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You may be dreaming the impossible dream this fall as you become immersed in some fantasy or pursue a day-dream. By the end of the year you will feel more ambitious and able to concentrate on material success. Although you feel invincible and sure of yourself February isn't the time to gamble all your resources. A lack of preparedness may hamper you from achieving your aspirations but you can cure this by paying your dues or obtaining the necessary qualifications. What is most near and dear to your heart could change drastically this year but you can obtain the answer to at least one important prayer next March.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Buying in quantity won't really save you money in the long run. There could be an opportunity to buy two for the price of one, but if you never use the either one you might simply be wasting your money.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Too much of a good thing is too much. The neighbors might have a new car, but their name isn't Jones and you don't have to keep up with them. Your taste runs toward the extremes right now.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): People will only take advantage of you if you let them. Don't overestimate anyone's abilities, including your own. A new project or relationship might experience unforeseen complications.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Never fear, help is near. People will be happy to perform favors or give you the support you have needed all along. A significant other may prefer to be surprised by something out of the ordinary.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Surround yourself with people and mingle with movers and shakers. You can't be depressed or overwhelmed if you have lively conversations and take an interest in others. Look for new friends, not lovers.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Sparkle; you can light up a room. This is a good day for social networking or for making public appearances. Add new contacts to your address book. Don't purchase clothing as tastes may change.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): What goes around, comes around. You may make emotional decisions rather than intelligent ones today, especially involving your bank account. Avoid costly errors by waiting for better timing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): It isn't necessary to buy something to bolster your reputation or self-esteem. You may long to own that one-of-a-kind collectible or the latest computer gadget. Wait a few days and reconsider.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Meet up with the young and the restless. You may want to pursue new opportunities or take unnecessary risks. Overconfidence may cause you to make a flawed financial decision this weekend.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Practice what you preach. People tend to think poorly of those who are insincere in what they say and do. Keep the credit card locked in the desk drawer and pursue inexpensive amusements.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A flashy new hookup could seem too good to be true — and might be. Your expectations are high but only time will tell if this is the "real thing." Enjoy mingling with people from diverse backgrounds.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): An impromptu get together could produce significant consequences. A person you meet today may not remain in your life very long, but could alter your perspective or give you necessary wisdom.

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

NOTICE OF BUDGET HEARING DECLO CEMETERY DISTRICT

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a budget hearing will be held on the 11th day of August, 2010, at 6:30 p.m., in the office of the City of Declo, Idaho, at the City Hall. The hearing will be held on the proposed budget for the Declo Cemetery District for the year commencing October 1, 2010, and ending on the 30th day of September, 2011. The proposed budget is as follows:

Total Estimated Expenditures from General Fund	$ 10,500.00
Estimated Income to General Fund
Property Tax Replacement	$ 770.00
Property Tax Turnover	$ 9,730.00
Total Estimated Income to General Fund	$ 10,500.00

At the hearing, at the time and place above noticed, any interested person may appear and show cause, if any he or she has, why such proposed budget should not be adopted.

PUBLISH: August 6, 2010

NOTICE OF FEE INCREASE

The Twin Falls School District No. 411, Twin Falls County, has proposed to increase its student fees for the items listed below by an amount that exceeds five percent (5%) of the fee charged last year. The proposed increase is 33.34% of the fee charged the previous year. The following table is an estimate of what these changes may mean to students.

Description	Last Year Fee	This Year Fee	Percent Fee
O'Leary-Agenda Book or Activity
Card Replacement Fee	$10	$15	33.34%

The reason for fee increases are due to increased costs.

All citizens are invited to attend a public hearing on the increased fee request. The Hearing will be held on Monday, August 9, 2010 at 7:00 p.m. in the Twin Falls School District No. 411 Extension Office Board Room at 242 Main Avenue North, Twin Falls, Idaho.

PUBLISH: July 30 and August 6, 2010

CITY OF GOODING PROPOSED BUDGET FOR FISCAL YEAR 2010-11

A PUBLIC HEARING PURSUANT TO Idaho Code 50-1002 will be held for consideration of the proposed budget for the fiscal year from October 1, 2010 to September 30, 2011. The hearing will be held at City Hall, 308 5th Ave West, Gooding Idaho at 6:30 p.m. on August 16, 2010. All interested persons are invited to appear and show cause, if any, why such budget should or should not be adopted. Copies of the proposed City budget in detail are available at City Hall during regular office hours. City Hall is accessible to persons with disabilities. Anyone desiring accommodations for disabilities related to the budget documents or to the hearing, please contact City Hall, 934-5669 at least 48 hours prior to the public hearing. NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

On Friday, the 17th day of December, 2010, at the hour of 10:00 a.m. of said day at the front entrance of the Gooding County Courthouse, 624 Main Street, County of Gooding, State of Idaho, DAVID A. COLEMAN, a member of the Idaho State Bar, as Successor Trustee, will sell at public auction, to the highest bidder, for cash, in lawful money of the United States, all payable at the time of sale, the following described real property, situated in the County of Gooding, State of Idaho, and described as follows, to-wit:

Lot 5, Block 18, HAGERMAN TOWNSITE, Gooding County, Idaho as the same is platted in the official plat thereof, now of record in the office of the Recorder of said County.

Sometimes known as: 150 Spring Street West, Hagerman, Idaho 83332.

Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, possession or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the Deed of Trust executed by ALVIN DEWAYNE OLSEN AND LETICIA F. OLSEN, husband and wife, as Grantors to LAND TITLE & ESCROW, INC., an Idaho corporation, as Trustee, and FARMERS NATIONAL BANK, as Beneficiary recorded June 29, 2004, as Instrument No. 206944, records of Gooding County, Idaho; modified by Modification and Extension of Deed of Trust recorded January 3, 2005, as Instrument No. 209336, Gooding County records; and modified by Modification and Extension of Deed of Trust recorded November 28, 2005 as Instrument No. 214048, Gooding County records; further modified by Modification and Extension of Deed of Trust recorded August 18, 2006, as Instrument No. 217877, Gooding County records; and modified by Modification and Extension of Deed of Trust recorded April 22, 2008, as Instrument No. 226151, Gooding County records; partially reconveyed by Deed of Partial Reconveyance, recorded June 11, 2008, as Instrument No. 226768, Gooding County records.

The default for which this sale is to be made is failure to pay:

1. Monthly payments, collection charges and late charges through June 23, 2010, all in the amount of $1,365.00;
2. Taxes for 2009 were assessed in the amount of $286.32 on Parcel No. RPH30000180050A, and are delinquent, plus any penalties and interest which may accrue;

The unpaid principal balance owing as of June 23, 2010, on the obligation secured by said Deed of Trust is $14,545.16, plus interest, late charges and foreclosure costs.

DATED: July 22, 2010.

Today is Friday, Aug. 6, the 218th day of 2010. There are 147 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On Aug. 6, 1945, during World War II, the United States dropped an atomic bomb on Hiroshima, Japan, resulting in an estimated 140,000 deaths in the first use of a nuclear weapon in warfare.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1806, the Holy Roman Empire went out of existence as Emperor Francis II abdicated.

In 1809, one of the leading literary figures of the Victorian era, poet Alfred, Lord Tennyson, was born in Somersby, Lincolnshire, England.

In 1825, Upper Peru became the autonomous republic of Bolivia.

In 1859, the Australian passenger ship SS Admella, en route from Port Adelaide to Melbourne, struck a reef off South Australia and broke apart; of the 113 people on board, only 24 survived.

In 1890, convicted murderer William Kemmler became the first person to be executed in the electric chair as he was put to death at Auburn State Prison in New York.

In 1926, Gertrude Ederle of New York became the first woman to swim the English Channel, arriving in Kingsdown, England, from France in 14 1/2 hours.

In 1962, Jamaica became an independent dominion within the British Commonwealth.

In 1965, President Lyndon B. Johnson signed the Voting Rights Act.

In 1978, Pope Paul VI died at Castel Gandolfo at age 80.

In 1986, William J. Schroeder died after living 620 days with the Jarvik 7 artificial heart.

Ten years ago: Workers at Verizon Communications went on an 18-day strike over working conditions and union representation.

Five years ago: Anti-war activist Cindy Sheehan, whose soldier son, Casey, was killed in Iraq, began a weeks-long protest outside President George W. Bush's Texas ranch. Former British Foreign Secretary Robin Cook, who'd quit Prime Minister Tony Blair's Cabinet to protest the Iraq war, died in Inverness, Scotland, at age 59. A Tunisian airliner plunged into the Mediterranean while trying to make an emergency landing in Sicily; 16 of the 39 people aboard were killed.

One year ago: Sonia Sotomayor was confirmed as the first Hispanic Supreme Court justice by a Senate vote of 68-31. John Hughes, 59, Hollywood's youth movie director of the 1980s and '90s, died in New York City. Sam, the 4-year-old koala who'd gained worldwide fame and sympathy when she was rescued during devastating wildfires in Australia, was euthanized after a veterinarian found the cysts that threatened her life were inoperable.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

*"Was it a vision or a waking dream?
Fled is that music: — Do I wake or sleep?"*
— John Keats

South had a comfortable opening call of two clubs, and over the three-level intervention, his partner's pass showed values. (With a really weak hand, North would have doubled three clubs.) When the auction reverted to South, he decided to bid his hearts rather than double for takeout.

Now North's jump to five hearts asked South to bid slam with a club control. With only a second-round control and a minimum (in context), South might well have taken the low road, but the slam bonus was an irresistible lure — he let his good trumps persuade him to act.

West led a passive spade against six hearts, and South thought he could count 12 tricks. If trumps were going to behave, he had six trump tricks, two diamonds and four spades. Just in case it was not his lucky day, declarer needed to plan how to cope with a 4-0 trump break. The winning line took him a moment to find, but he spotted it eventually.

South won the spade in dummy, then led a low heart to his ace, discovering the bad trump split. He cashed both top diamonds and went to the spade king to ruff a diamond high, crossed back to the heart nine to ruff another diamond high, then went back to the heart 10 to draw the last trump, pitching a club from hand.

He could run the spades now and concede trick 13 to the club ace — a perfect dummy reversal.

ANSWER: Despite the opponents' energetic bidding, you should be happy that you have some extras in high cards as well as decent shape to offer partner. Although the three-heart call may be your partner's only game-try, you should accept the offer by raising to four hearts and let partner go back to four spades if he wants to.

A BRAND NEW WAY TO SEARCH FOR YOUR NEW HOME

DEAR ABBY: I have been writing to an inmate from the Florida prison system for about two years. It has slowly developed into more than a friendship. "Mike" is a born-again Christian, as am I. He doesn't get out until 2013 at the earliest, so we have plenty of time to see where this goes.

Am I wrong for considering someone who is in prison? Mike has made mistakes, nothing violent, and has turned his life around. If he does become part of my life, how do I introduce him to my family so they may better accept him?

Abby, I'm 54. I lost my husband seven years ago. It is nice to have someone in my life again. We have talked on the phone, and it feels like we have known each other our whole lives. Am I crazy?

— SMITTEN

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR SMITTEN: Crazy? No. Gullible? Possibly. Please forgive me if I seem cynical, but more than one devout, vulnerable, lonely woman has been taken advantage of by an inmate with whom she corresponded. That's why, before allowing yourself to become more emotionally involved, you should contact the warden of the prison and verify that what "Mike" has been telling you is the gospel truth. If it is — fine. If it's not, for your own sake, end the correspondence immediately.

P.S. As to how to introduce him to your family, if it comes to that, be completely honest and tell them he's your pen pal. If you're not, they'll find out eventually anyway.

DEAR ABBY: I am a vegan who is constantly pestered by uninvited comments like, "You're not getting the proper nutrition," or "That looks disgusting," or "You should just give it up." I wouldn't dream of making such rude comments to others about their diet. What one eats is his or her own business.

My husband — an omnivore — and I have decided to raise our child vegan. He can choose whatever diet he prefers when he is older and educated about them. We work with a pediatric nutritionist to ensure that our son gets all the nutrients he needs. We make him pureed fresh vegetables, fruits, grains and more for almost every meal.

We are now getting comments from family and friends who feel we're practically abusing our son. I believe people make these comments because they are ignorant about this lifestyle. I have asked them to stop, but they continue. What can I do to stop the unwarranted harassment?

— SICK OF THE COMMENTS IN BALTIMORE

DEAR SICK: Is your child's pediatrician aware of the diet you have him on? Is your pediatric nutritionist a member of the American Dietetic Association? Have you told the individuals making these comments that you are working with a professional to be sure your little one is getting everything he needs? If the answer to my questions is yes and the questioners persist, refer them to your nutritionist for reassurance.

DEAR ABBY: How do you mend a broken heart?

— TEARS ON MY PILLOW

DEAR TEARS: By staying busy. By avoiding the "old reminders," which tend to make you moody and broody. By putting away or getting rid of the photographs, cards and gifts that make you sad — unless you enjoy punishing yourself. And by staying in the present.

JUMBLE

Unscramble these four Jumbles, one letter to each square, to form four ordinary words.

A: " " " " (Answers tomorrow)

Yesterday's Jumbles: ARBOR OWING
Answer: Why the exotic dancer quit her job — IT WAS A "GRIND"

THAT SCRAMBLED WORD GAME

by Mike Argillon and Jeff Krueck

Now arrange the circled letters to form the surprise answer, as suggested by the above cartoon.
