Forgotten funding? Jerome school projects paid for by dedicated money By Amy Huddleston

Times-News writer

JEROME - Educators across Idaho are sighing over salary cuts and sucking in at the tightening of the budget belt.

But construction projects at Jerome High School continue, leaving some patrons scratching their heads about school spending priorities.

"I've heard concerns from people about cutbacks on school days and salaries," district Superintendent Dale Layne said. "But they see this project going on at the high school and wonder why the money isn't going toward salaries."

Oh, how soon they forget.

Twin Falls man faces rape charge

By Bradley Guire Times-News writer

A 37-year-old Twin Falls man is held in the Twin Falls County Jail on the charge of rape.

Twin Falls police arrested Jesus Vasquez-Vargas on Monday after a female of an unspecified age reported that she was raped in a south Twin Falls residence.

The alleged victim told police that Vasquez-Vargas came to her house early that morning, forced his way inside and forced himself on her. According to the police report, officers located Vasquez-Vargas and questioned him at the police station. Vasquez-Vargas was reported to have given a written statement to police, stating that he had sex with the female, and that he was unable to control himself. Allegedly, he also offered the female $20 to keep quiet.

Vasquez-Vargas is held on $100,000 bond and has retained private counsel. His preliminary hearing in 5th District Court is scheduled for Sept. 3.

In other court news, Justin R. Wicklund pleaded not guilty to a charge of rape on Monday in 5th District Court in Twin Falls.

Wicklund, 25, of Twin Falls, is accused of raping a female at gunpoint this summer. His jury trial is scheduled for Oct. 19, and Judge G. Richard Bevan will preside. The trial is scheduled for three days. Twin Falls County Deputy Prosecutor Julie Sturgill is trying the case, and public defender George Essma will argue for Wicklund.

KETCHUM - Mary Jane Griffith Conger was looking at historical kiosks in the Gold Rush town of Jacksonville, Ore., when inspiration hit her.

Ketchum needs something like this, she thought.

Conger, who helped found the Ketchum/Sun Valley Historical Society and Ski and Heritage Museum, wasn't content to let it go at that.

She, daughter Lynndee Marin and son Jim Marin began sorting through family photos in century-old trunks that Conger had stashed away in her attic, pairing their family history with that of the Wood River Valley.

"I'm so thrilled with how they came out," Conger said, eveing the eight boards. "Of course, there's much more we could have put on them - like the Castle Rock Fire of 2007. That was a big deal."

It could be said that Conger was made for such a task. Her grandfather, Albert Griffith, wandered into the Wood They put the best items on River Valley in 1879 in search of gold at the same time as Ketchum's namesake, David Ketchum.

And Conger and her brother Jimmy – the first Ketchum native named to the U.S. Olympic Ski Team – grew up racing on Bald Mountain, while their mother watched through a telescope set up in the living room of their home on Leadville Avenue.

"Her family is Ketchum's history," said Chapter One bookstore owner Cheryl Welch.

Now that Conger has the panels in hand, she's looking for a place to display them. She thought they might fit well in the new Ketchum town plaza, but designers had tory." created several panels displaying the history of the Ketchum area. Now, she's looking for a place to display them.

She displayed them on Aug. 18 during a signing for her new book. "The Legacy of Al Griffith – A History of Ketchum, Idaho," which she wrote as she researched information for the panels.

She hopes to display them when a Smithsonian exhibit titled "Journeys" opens at the Blaine County Historical Museum in Hailey in September.

Jeanne Flowers, who can trace her own family history back to early Ketchum, said she would love to see the kiosks at the Ketchum/Sun Valley Heritage and Ski Museum.

"They're laid out very nicely and it's always nice for people to be able to see panels like that," she said. "I think it's very interesting for local his-

One giant step for renewable energy his isn't the greenest state in America, but you can't help but like the prospects for renewable energy in Idaho. On Tuesday, Exergy Development Group broke ground on a $500 million complex of wind farms near Hagerman, Bliss and Burley backed by global giant GE Energy Financial Service.

The Oregon Trail Wind Farm, scheduled to be completed by the end of the year, will include 122 turbine housings the size of small buildings and 366 turbine blades, which are taller than a 10-story structure. The complex will create up to 175 jobs and power about 39,700 homes.

And as Idaho Power adds wind energy, the pace of development for geothermal energy is likely to quicken as well. Because wind is not a constant source of power, the utility must have a backup. Geothermal fits the bill perfectly.

The Magic Valley may be the best place in Idaho to build wind and geothermal projects. Three of the six windiest cities in the state are in south-central Idaho - led by Twin Falls and such as hydropower, wind, geothermal and solar. Under state law, renewable energy producers can avoid up-front taxes by paying 3 percent from the sale of energy over several years.

That allows developers to spread the tax burden out over multiple years.

State Rep. Stephen Hartgen, R-Twin Falls, and others are hoping to give geothermal a similar boost with legislation that would reduce the rate developers pay to lease public lands in Idaho.

"The lease rates were developed around 1973 for oil leases, so one of the things we need to do is bring that rate down to bring in more serious developers," Hartgen said.

The biggest question for the future of both wind and geothermal is how much renewable energy Idaho power is willing to buy in the long run. Last week the utility announced it would no longer accept proposals to supply the company with wind power. In May 2009, Idaho Power asked for proposals from developers to purchase about 150 megawatts of windpowered generation by 2012. Developers responded by flooding the utility with proposals, but Idaho Power suddenly ended the process without awarding a contract.

n the wake of the sud-den fame of Steven Slater, the JetBlue flight attendant who, as you've surely heard, dramatically walked off the job this month when he cursed out an unruly passenger, inflat ed the aircraft's emergency slide and plunged feet first to instant celebrity (after grabbing two beers for the road), I've spent the last few days trying to figure out the ins and outs of his new occupation: folk hero.

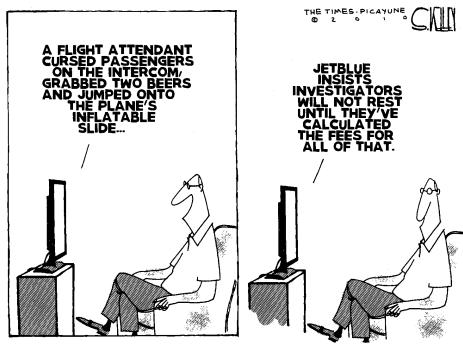

According to Wikipedia, a folk hero's "single salient characteristic" is "the imprinting of the name, personality and deeds of the character into the popular consciousness. This presence in the popular consciousness is evidenced by mention in folk songs, folk tales and other folklore. Folk heroes are also the subject of literature and some films."

At first glance, Slater meets the wiki criteria. Within hours of his grand gesture, several Facebook pages had popped up in his honor (imprinting of his name into the popular consciousness: check). Since then, a number of odes have emerged, including a ditty by television personality Jimmy Fallon called The Ballad of Steven Slater (mention in folk songs: check). There's also, of course, already talk of a reality show (subject of "some films": half a check).

But the wiki criteria don't go far enough. I think Slater's a folk hero because he has all the makings of the perfect symbol of the contemporary oppressed working stiff, and even the working professional. That's right, we're all flight attendants now.

His job, however banal it's become and however low paying it remains (according to the Assocation of Flight Attendants, salaries average about $35,000 a year), holds a certain fascination. As much as flight attendants are the butt of jokes and the punching bags for all manner of air rage, they also capture our imagination in a way that few workers at that level do.

For one thing, their work is a public performance. They are costumed and easily identified, often scrutinized and sometimes even fetishized. For another, as passengers, we've been hit about as hard as flight attendants with the slings and arrows attacking the airline industry. Slater's plight is relatable. Our flight

And even though the majority of American workers don't have job descriptions that include mixing a drink and evacuating a jet in 90 seconds (or, alas, access to an inflatable slide), a good number of us toil under conditions brought about by the same forces that have made air travel so miserable for passengers and crew alike.

That is to say, we're all participating in some version of an argument with someone who has too much baggage. We're all working longer hours for less pay. We're all watching our coworkers get laid off and fearing (and perhaps occasionally half-hoping) we'll be next. Like flight attendants, we're all trying to make nice and keep things in line at the same time.

Commercial air travel can function as a symbol for so much that's wrong with contemporary life. The soldier who goes AWOL might be seen as a symbol of a broken system or one bad unit, but the flight attendant who snaps may be more like a casualty of a broken dream. It once was glamorous to fly; it had a sheen of innovation, of vaulting American Century ambitions. And even after the glamour got discounted, it was still aspirational, a luxury that wasn't beyond middle-class reach, a perk for Everyman.

So sure, Slater's personal "breakdown" struck a "take this job and shove it" chord. But it's the larger breakdown of air travel, and its relationship to what we like to call the American way of life, that's made that chord so resonant.

It's not so much that Slater's a folk hero. It's that so much of what we used to love about flying now seems like folklore.

destroying jobs through his offshore drilling moratorium, blocking onshore development and wreaking havoc on the energy industry. Given Salazar's fraudulent book-cooking in support of the administration's offshore drilling moratorium, his comments on the new ocean grab are more threat than promise: "With 2 billion acres we help oversee on the Outer Continental Shelf, Interior is a proud partner in this initiative, and we look forward to helping coordinate the science, policies and management of how we use, conserve and protect these public treasures." Even New York Sen. Charles Schumer slammed the administration's junk science-based fishing limits at a meeting this week between NOAA's Lubchenco and Long Island recreational fishermen. Draconian regulations, he said, according to the New York Post, "put the industry on death's door." Now, the same forces behind such job destroyers will have free reign over a national ocean policy established by administrative fiat. Viva la Summer of Wreckovery.

t's not enough that the White House is moving to lock up hundreds of millions of acres of land in the name of environmental protection. The Obama administration's neon green radicals are also training their sights on the deep blue seas. The president's grabby-handed bureaucrats have been empowered through executive order to seize unprecedented control from states and localities over "conservation, economic activity. user conflict and sustainable use of the ocean, our coasts and the Great Lakes." Democrats have tried and failed to pass "comprehensive" federal oceans management legislation five years in a row. The socalled "Oceans 21" bill, sponsored by Democratic Rep. Sam Farr of California, went nowhere fast. Among the top reasons: bipartisan concerns about the economic impact of closing off widespread access to recreational fishing. The bill also would have handed environmentalists another punitive litigation weapon under the guise of "ecosystem management." Instead of accepting defeat, the green lobby simply circumvented the legislative process altogether.

The company says its wind-generated power exceeds projections set out in its Integrated Resource Plan – a two-year roadmap that identifies sources of electricity.

It has begun the lengthy process of developing the next resource plan, which will go into effect in 2011. Idaho Power spokeswoman Stephanie McCurdy said it's too early to know if the company will seek additional wind-generated power in its next resource plan.

Until the utility's plans become clearer, wind energy's development future in southern Idaho will be in limbo. But there's plenty of development in the pipeline that will bring an infusion of money and jobs to the Magic Valley in the short run.

"National Ocean Council" with the stroke of a pen. Farr gloated: "We already have a Clean Air Act and a Clean Water Act. With today's executive order, President Obama in effect creates a Clean Ocean Act." And not a single hearing needed to be held. Not a single amendment considered. Not a single vote cast. Who gives a flying fish about transparency and the deliberative process? The oceans are dying!

The panel will have the power to implement "coastal and marine spatial plans" and to ensure that all executive agencies, departments and offices abide by their determinations. The panel has also been granted authority to establish regional advisory committees that overlap with existing regional and local authorities governing marine and coastal planning.

No wonder the antigrowth, anti-development, anti-jobs zealots are cheering. The National Ocean Council is co-chaired by wackadoodle science czar John Holdren (notorious for

THE LIGHTER SIDE OF POLITICS

Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho

Bush tax cuts: Now that's rich re need to pinch pennies these days. Don't you know we have a budget deficit? For months that has been the word from Republicans and conservative Democrats, who have rejected every suggestion that we do more to avoid deep cuts in public services and help the ailing economy.

But these same politicians are eager to cut checks averaging $3 million each to the richest 120,000 people in the country.

What – you haven't heard about this proposal? Actually, you have: I'm talking about demands that we make all of the Bush tax cuts, not just those for the middle class, permanent.

Some background: Back in 2001, when the first set of Bush tax cuts was rammed through Congress, the legislation was written with a peculiar provision – namely, that the whole thing would expire, with tax rates reverting to 2000 levels, on the last day of 2010.

Why the cutoff date? In part, it was used to disguise the fiscal irresponsibility of the tax cuts: lopping off that last year reduced the headline cost of the cuts, because such costs are normally calculated over a 10-year period. It also allowed the Bush administration to pass the tax cuts using reconciliation – yes, the same procedure that Republicans denounced when it was used to enact health reform – while sidestepping rules designed to prevent the use of that procedure to increase long-run budget deficits.

Obviously, the idea was to go back at a later date and make those tax cuts permanent. But things didn't go according to local governments. And where would this $680 billion go? Nearly all of it would go to the richest 1 percent of Americans, people with incomes of more than $500,000 a year. But that's the least of it: the policy center's estimates say that the majority of the tax cuts would go to the richest one-tenth of 1 percent. Take a group of 1,000 randomly selected Americans, and pick the one with the highest income; he's going to get the majority of that group's tax break. And the average tax break for those lucky few – the poorest members of the group have annual incomes of more than $2 million, and the average member makes more than $7 million a year - would be $3 million over the course of the next decade.

How can this kind of giveaway be justified at a time when politicians claim to care about budget deficits? Well, history is repeating itself. The original campaign for the Bush tax cuts relied on deception and dishonesty. In fact, my first suspicions that we were being misled into invading Iraq were based on the resemblance between the campaign for war and the campaign for tax cuts the previous year. And sure enough, that same trademark deception and dishonesty is being deployed on behalf of tax cuts for the wealthiest Americans.

So, for example, we're told that it's all about helping small business; but only a tiny fraction of small-business owners would receive any tax break at all. And how many small-business owners do you know making several million a year? Or we're told that it's about helping the economy recover. But it's hard to think of a less cost-effective way to help the economy than giving money to people who already have plenty, and aren't likely to spend a windfall. No, this has nothing to do with sound economic policy. Instead, as I said, it's about a dysfunctional and corrupt political culture, in which Congress won't take action to revive the economy, pleads poverty when it comes to protecting the jobs of schoolteachers and firefighters, but declares cost no object when it comes to sparing the already wealthy even the slightest financial inconvenience. So far, the Obama administration is standing firm against this outrage. Let's hope that it prevails in its fight. Otherwise, it will be hard not to lose all faith in America's future.

The city of Twin Falls has done what the Legislature failed to do this year enact a law against text messaging while driving.

A $50 fine in the Twin Falls ordinance is not that painful, but certainly makes a few tweeted words expensive and could help stave off a growing cause of highway accidents.

Blaine County and its cities should consider a similar law.

At least 20 states and the District of Columbia now have total bans on text messaging while driving. Another nine ban the practice among "novice drivers."

Distracted and inattentive driving have become major factors in highway accidents nationally. In Idaho, 19 percent of all single-vehicle accidents were caused by inattentive or distracted driving, while 25 percent of two-vehicle accidents were blamed on drivers' taking their eyes and minds off the steering wheel ...

Accident statistics are overwhelmingly persuasive about texting dangers. For example, a drunk driver travels four additional feet before stopping while driving 35 mph. But a driver who's texting travels another 25 feet before stopping.

If even a single life is spared because of a local anti-texting law, Blaine County's governments will have performed a noble service.

... Craig must come clean

Post Register, Idaho Falls

It's been nearly three years since Larry Craig told the citizens of this state it was his "intent" to resign from the United States Senate following his arrest in a gav sex sting in a Minneapolis airport bathroom.

At the time, those words – "intent to resign" – went over a lot of heads. Most took the man at his word. Standing before a sea of television cameras carrying his message to the state's four corners and beyond, Craig said he wanted to make sure Idahoans' interests were being represented by someone not distracted by a pending legal battle.

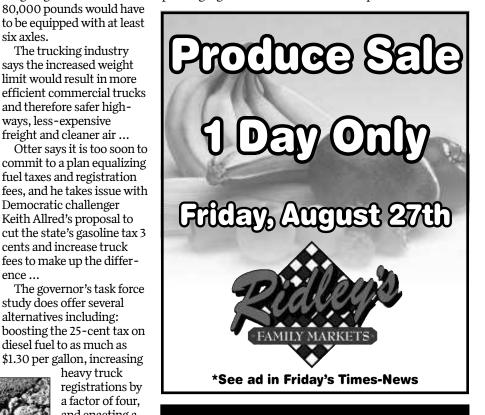

Only later did we learn that Craig was lying. Craig had decided to "reshape" his message in a way that would allow him to weasel out of what was the honorable thing to do.

We bring up this ancient history because Craig recently reappeared on Idaho's political scene. (Last week) Craig spent three hours discussing issues on a Boise radio show. Prior to that, Craig weighed in on the 1st Congressional District race between Democrat Walt Minnick and Republican Raul Labrador. Last year, Craig attempted to get a federal prison built in the Magic Valley.

This is the way with retired statesmen ... Nobody wants his or her legacy to be a punch line for bad bathroom humor .. (but) the manner in which he extended the final months of his career leaves him ineligible for the elder statesman status he so clearly desires.

Is this irreparable? Possibly ... So there's hope for Craig. But he cannot be reformed until he chooses to come clean, not about what happened in that Minneapolis bathroom, but the disgraceful manner in which he handled the aftermath.

Craig lied. We deserve to know why. Until he's willing to tell us, we'd prefer he not foul our public debate with his presence.

plan. And now the witching hour is upon us.

So what's the choice now? The Obama administration wants to preserve those parts of the original tax cuts that mainly benefit the middle class which is an expensive proposition in its own right – but to let those provisions benefiting only people with very high incomes expire on schedule. Republicans, with support from some conservative Democrats, want to keep the whole thing.

And there's a real chance that Republicans will get what they want. That's a demonstration, if anyone needed one, that our political culture has become not just dysfunctional but deeply corrupt.

What's at stake here? According to the nonpartisan Tax Policy Center, making all of the Bush tax cuts permanent, as opposed to following the Obama proposal, would cost the federal government $680 billion in revenue over the next 10 years. For the sake of comparison, it took months of hard negotiations to get Congressional approval for a mere $26 billion in desperately needed aid to state and

Boise State has new car-sharing program

BOISE - Boise State is starting a new carsharing partnership with Zipcar Inc., that & Company said Wednesday that it has will make four hybrid vehicles available to rent on campus.

It costs Boise State students and staff $35 a year to join Zipcar, while Boise residents over the age of 21 can join for $50.

Under the program, members can rent cars by the hour or for up to four days at a time. The rates are $8 an hour or $66 a day during the week and $9 and $72 a day on the weekend. The cost includes gasoline, but renters are limited to 180 miles per day. Members reserve the car online or on their mobile phones.

Zipcar representative Tricia Capello says company will add more cars to the campus fleet as demand increases.

Consolidation brings name change for Sun Valley company

SUN VALLEY - Coldwell Banker Conklin acquired Sun Valley's Distinctive Properties, one of the area's oldest luxury vacation rental and home management companies. The company is officially changing its name to Coldwell Banker Distinctive Properties.

"The consolidation of the two companies has been great," says Todd Conklin. "We are now able to service all our clients' real estate needs, from buying, managing, renting, and selling."

He added that the growth strategy is designed to maximize expertise in the resort markets, while allowing the company to deliver a higher level of exposure and service to clients locally.

Egg prices rise since recall

The Associated Press

PORTLAND, Ore. Wholesale egg prices are climbing in the wake of a massive egg recall, which could lead to higher prices at the supermarket.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture said prices have increased markedly since Aug. 13, when the recall was first announced.

In the Midwest, that prices rose from 72 to 81 cents per dozen to $1.01 to $1.10. Prices are up in other parts of the country as well during what is normally the lowest time of the year for egg prices.

Those increases will likely be passed on to consumers it is far to early to determine recall of eggs linked to as within the next few weeks or months, said Richard Stillman, at the Economic Research Service of the USDA.

AROUND THE NATION

WASHINGTON

Bad economic news adds to recession fears

It's starting to feel like another recession.

Businesses are ordering fewer goods. Home sales are the slowest in decades. Jobs are scarce, and unemployment claims are rising. Perhaps most worrisome, manufacturing activity, which had been one of the economy's few bright spots, is faltering.

'The odds of a double-dip are rising and uncomfortably high," said Mark Zandi, chief economist at Moody's Analytics, referring to the possibility that the nation will tip back into recession. "Nothing else can go wrong. There is no cushion left."

On Wednesday, the government offered the latest dose of grim news about the economic recovery: Companies cut back last month on their investments in equipment and machines. And Americans bought new homes at the weakest pace in nearly half a century.

Earlier this week came news that sales of previously occupied homes fell last month to the lowest level in 15 years.

Unemployment remains near double digits because job growth in the private sector has slowed.

Alaska GOP Sen. Murkowski in jeopardy

WASHINGTON - Alaska Sen. Lisa Murkowski fought to save her job Wednesday, locked in a stunningly tight Republican primary race against a political novice backed by Sarah Palin and tea party activists. The outlook was far brighter for another incumbent, Sen. John McCain, who won handily in Arizona.

With 98 percent of election day precincts counted, Murkowski trailed Joe Miller by 1,960 votes out of more than 91,000 counted. The race was too close to call, with as many as 16,000 absentee votes and

IOWA

Suspect eggs could come to table near you

Millions of eggs from the lowa farms at the heart of a massive salmonella recall are not destined for the garbage but for a table near you.

The recalled eggs that were already shipped to grocery stores and restaurants are being dumped by the truckload. But the eggs still being laid by potentially infected chickens will be pasteurized to kill any bacteria. Then they can be sold as liquid eggs or put in other products such as mayonnaise or ice cream.

It's a common if little-known practice in the food industry - salvaging and selling products that may have been tainted with disease.

After pasteurization, the bacteria "are all going to be dead, and if they're dead, they're not going to hurt anybody," said University of Illinois food science professor Bruce Chassy.

Officials from the two farms that have recalled more than a half-billion eggs said Wednesday there's no reason not to use the eggs while federal officials investigate the outbreak.

NEW YORK Man held without bail in cabbie stabbing

A judge ordered Enright, 21, held without bail on charges of attempted murder and assault as a hate crime and weapon possession. The handcuffed defendant, wearing a polo shirt and cargo shorts, did not enter a plea during the brief court appearance.

In addition to a serious neck wound, Ahmed H. Sharif suffered cuts to forearms, face and one hand while trying to fend off Enright, prosecutor James Zeleta said while arguing against bail.

LUCERNE VALLEY, Calif. (AP) - An off-road motorcycle event in the Southern California desert went off without a hitch Sunday, a week after a modified pickup truck plowed into race fans in the same area, killing eight people. Last week's tragedy was on the minds of organizers and riders alike at the Desert Scramble in the Mojave Desert's Johnson Valley, said Jerry Grabow, president of the American Motorcycle Association's District 37. "The off-road community has never had a tragedy like that in its history," Grabow said. "But our goal that's what we did today."

Reflections of a dirt bike fan – but I want your thoughts too aven't been on my bike lately, which has made me feel kinda bad. Felt worse when I went out to start my bike recently only to find its battery was dead.

That's my fault. When my bike was new I used to ride it a lot. But this year I've been on my dual sport only a few times, and the past several months I've let the bike sit in my garage unattended. Not good for the bike, and now I'm really kicking myself.

Good thing it's only the battery that needs replacing.

Take experts' advice when they say to remove your machine's battery when you let it sit for a while. Other things you should do: change the oil and stabilize the fuel.

A couple of years ago when we first kicked off the off-road edition, I was excited about the venture but wondered if there were going to be enough off-road topics to cover monthly. Some people I spoke with also expressed their doubts.

But in two years we've covered a handful of offroad topics including trail access, the ATV lead controversy, sand rails, rock crawling, motocross, trail riding, snowmobiling, offroad clubs, and personal off-road expeditions.

Consider Lyra, the Harp. Although it's well below average in size, it has a lot to offer the backyard star gazer.

Lyra's brightest star, Vega – currently shining directly overhead at 10 p.m. - is the third brightest star visible from Idaho, fifth brightest in the entire celestial sphere, and a star in the Hollywood at arm's length from Vega sits Epsilon Lyrae, which looks unremarkable to the unaided eye. Yet, binoculars reveal it to be a double star, and a good telescope will split each of the two stars into further pairs, making it a quadruple star (known as the "double-double").

Vega and Epsilon comprise two vertices of an equilateral triangle, the third corner of which (Zeta Lyrae) joins to a slightly larger parallelogram of stars. Along the side of the parallelogram opposite the triangle sits the Ring Nebula, which resembles a glowing, oval smoke ring through a telescope at moderate to high power. It's the expanding shell of gas shed from the core of a dying star as it exhausted its reserves of energy-supplying hydrogen.

A short ways outside the parallelogram is M56, one of only 158 known globular (spherical) star clusters in the Milky Way. With binoculars, it looks like a fuzzy smudge; a telescope resolves it into thousands of stars swarming like angry, luminous bees, frozen in place. Next column (Sept. 9):

Illinois teen a champion at motocross

By Rick Dawson Mattoon Journal-Gazette

CHARLESTON, Ill. Now that he has conquered one of the highest remaining pinnacles in amateur motocross, Jace Owen has one big hill left to climb.

He's still too young to tackle the AMA's pro/am circuit, through which he could earn enough points to become a professional, but the 15-year-old just took a serious step in that direction. He won the Supermini 2 title in the 13-16 age division at the Loretta Lynn's Amateur Motocross National Championships earlier this month, a feat that's reserved for only the country's elite amateur riders.

By means of winning in Tennessee, he essentially carries the No. 1 national ranking in his class.

"There's other nationals but that's the one to win," he said.

If it's a matter of jumping through a few more hoops to reach his goal, Owen got off to a good start a long time ago. Home schooled since next year into the B class the sixth grade, he began racing at the age of 4. About eight years ago, with his son quickly improving, father Mike Owen installed a track at his farm north of Charleston. It took about two become the training center for Jace when he's not on the road.

"It's got natural terrain, uphills and downhills," Mike said. "It's got roller sections

"I probably would have won both championships," Owen said. "The same people that were in the one I won were the same people that were in the one my bike broke."

With success has come new sponsorship: Suzuki and Rockstar Energy Drink have climbed aboard and will dictate what events he'll compete in during the near future. Once he reaches 18, he can take a shot at the pros.

"It's not easy to find a great rider because you need to have the right desire and the right technique at the same time," Tortelli said. "That's what Jace was showing. Desire is one of the main things. If your head is not ready, it's tougher to process that information and go faster. He was able to learn fast. That's where you can see one of the top guys there. TRAINING FOR A NEW SEASON

Kenny Miskavige and his wirehire puppy, Minnie, take a break during a hunting training session on Aug. 19 in Grafton, N.D.

Hunting dog experts offer advice

By Brad Dokken Grand Forks Herald

GRAFTON, N.D. Kenny Miskavige gets his three dogs ready for hunting season the way a trainer might prepare an elite athlete for competition.

It's a year-round process, he says, a work in progress. And with fall hunting seasons just around the corner, Miskavige is beginning to kick the training regimen up a notch.

"Now you want to start running them in a little more heat, but you have to be careful," Miskavige said. "You've got to make sure you have plenty of water or access to water."

Owner of Dakota Rose lems he encounters in the Grafton, field. Kennel in Miskavige specializes in German wirehair pointers. But regardless of the breed, Miskavige said, dog owners need to focus on obedience and conditioning as they prepare their hunting companions for the field.

The exercise is a win for the hunter, too, he said.

"I don't like to see guys let the dogs run alongside the pickup," he said. "Every year, you hear of three or four getting killed that way, and it just breaks your heart."

Dr. Rick Odegard of Kindness Animal Hospital in Grand Forks said beyond conditioning, proper hunters also should make sure their dogs are up-todate on vaccinations. Rabies is on the upswing in both Minnesota and North Dakota, he said, and Lyme disease has become prevalent in Minnesota.

In the fall of 2003, excessive heat resulted in the deaths of numerous hunting dogs during South Dakota's pheasant opener. Signs of overheating, Odegard said, include excessive panting and the dog's tongue hanging to the ground; in severe cases, dogs can go into seizures and die quickly.

To avoid the worst, Odegard said hunters should product called Frontline pected, the animal should be until its temperature drops to about 103. Then, the dog should be dried off.

ruly successful companies traditionally have been those businesses that keep a finger on the pulse of the day's economic conditions and respond accordingly.

Thompson/Center of Rochester, N.H., has proven to be one of these companies. Realizing that many of today's sportsmen are hunting for outdoor gear that provides the most bang for their buck, T/C downscaled its $1,000 flagship bolt rifle, Icon, and unveiled the entry level priced Venture.

If you're in the market for a quality bolt-action rifle that won't break the bank, you need to head down to your local sporting goods store and wrap your hands around a Venture.

Regular readers will recall last month that I mentioned my eldest daughter, Emily, had chosen a Venture .308 Winchester as her first big game rifle. After wringing out her rifle at the range and in the field on rock chucks, I, too, was bitten by the Venture bug and I bought one for myself.

Let's dissect the Venture and see what features you'll be getting for your hard-earned dollars.

This year the Venture is available with both shortand long-action receivers. The short-action model chambers several popular varmint cartridges: the .204 Ruger, .223 and .22-250 Rem., and the big game capable .243, 7mm-08 and .308 Win. The long-action Venture houses four traditional Western favorites: the .270 Win., .30-06, 7mm Rem. Mag, and the firebreathing .300 Winchester.

The matte-blue metalwork is pillar bedded into an ergonomic black synthetic stock. Weaver-style bases sit atop the nicely sculpted steel receiver, which accepts the threeshot single-stack detachable polymer magazines. Gray plastic traction grip panels inset into the forearm and pistol grip provide a solid purchase on the stock in dry or wet conditions. A soft recoil pad cushions the back thrust of even the most aggressive cartridges.

By using the same 5R rifled match-grade barrel as its pricey Icon, T/C can back up its 1 MOA guar antee. If your Venture won't shoot three shots into an inch or less at 100 yards with quality factory ammo, T/C will recondition your Venture or replace it with a new one free of charge.

Did I mention that the bargain-priced Venture also carries T/C's lifetime warrantv?

Thanks to the lubricity of its black nitride coating, the Venture's fat bolt snicks back and forth with little effort. Its three locking lugs allow for a short, quick bolt uplift and easy scope clearance. The trigger is owner adjustable between 3.5 and 5 pounds of pull weight and is blocked by a convenient two-position safety.

Friends, the Venture truly is a rifle for the times. If you're in the market for a new centerfire and don't want to spend your children's' inheritance, have a look at the T/C Venture. Good shooting!

"Especially with young dogs, now is the time to get them on birds," Miskavige said. "If you want a bird dog, bottom line. You get out of a dog what you're going to put into it, and it will show in the field."

Electronic "shock" collars can help break hunting dogs of certain bad habits such as straying too far afield, but Miskavige said dog owners should avoid becoming too reliant on using them.

Lyme disease is transmitted by deer ticks, which have become more abundant in northern Minnesota in recent years and also have shown up in smaller numbers in North Dakota. Symptoms vary, Odegard said, but dogs often experience stiffness and soreness.

'We've been checking a lot more of the lame dogs for it if they've got multiple leg or joint lameness," Odegard said. "It's surprising how often we find it. We've had three or four dogs that we feel were pretty much only North Dakota dogs that were probably exposed in North Dakota."

In the field, hunters should carry a first aid kit for tending minor wounds.

It might seem like common sense, but after 40 years in the dog business, Enlow, the Manvel expert, said too many hunters wait until the last minute to prepare their hunting companions for the field.

Still, he said, starting the regimen now is better than not at all. And whether the dog is in shape or out of condition, if they show signs of quitting, it's time to quit.

"A dog will kill himself to please you, and that's the thing," Enlow said. "Once they start lagging behind and slowing down, it's time to take a break."

As Miskavige, the Grafton trainer, said, a good dog is an investment that needs to be protected.

"There's no quick fix to Enlow and Miskavige said having a good quality dog, takes time - it really does."

YOUR OUTDOOR SNAPSHOTS

As a regular feature in the Outdoors section of the Times-News, called Outdoor snapshots, we'd like to publish readers' outdoor photos. Been boating, fishing, hiking, hunting, trail riding, rafting? You name it, as long as it's outdoors we'll take it. Send photos and information to Outdoors Editor Andrew Weeks at aweeks@magicvalley.com. Or send hard copy submissions to him at 132 Fairfield St. W., Twin Falls, ID, 83303. Be sure to include your name and phone number, in case we have questions, and pertinent information about your photo, including where it was taken.

RUPERT WOMAN NAMED 2011 Minidoka Grandma Queen

By Judy Albertson Times-News writer

Being in a rocking chair is more comfortable than being in the saddle.

Vicki Edgar of Rupert was named 2011 Minidoka County Fair and Rodeo Grandma Queen at this year's festivities. It was an honor she never expected.

"I have never been so surprised in my life. I had no idea," Edgar said.

As she listened to the introduction before the announcement, she had decided the winner must be a good friend of hers who she had known for a long time.

"They were saying how she liked cooking chicken noodle soup and I thought 'My, she must like to do that too,' and they said she was from Preston and I thought, 'Why I've known her all this time and I never knew that. I'm going to call her tomorrow and ask who her mother was,'" Edgar said.

It wasn't until they said she taught home education classes at Minico High School that she realized they were talking about her.

Edgar's family also did an excellent job of keeping the secret.

"They did so well. My 4-year-old granddaughter invited me to go to the rodeo with her. I picked her up and the rest of the children were there, but they paid her $5 not to tell Grandma that they were there and I never knew," Edgar said.

Edgar is not sure just who nominated her for Grandma Queen.

"I think maybe it was Joan Parr, who was once at the extension office. And Molly Mahler might have had something to do with it too," she added. Edgar has taught home economics at Minico High School for 32 years. When she turned 65 this year, she decided it was time to cut back and went part-time. "You know when you can't put forth as much, and I decided it was time to work just half a day, and so far it's working out wonderful," she said. Edgar and her husband, Larry, have three children and 12 grandchildren. Larry is semi-retired. He is in sales and does some substitute teaching. In addition to making chicken noodle soup, Edgar loves gardening and working with the flowers. Her specialty is roses.

furnished her with the evening of her crowning.

"That wagon was really nice. I ride, but I always ride the softest, gentlest horse in the group," Edgar said. "I use to ride with one of the first Grandma Queens, Myrtle Bean. We would go to Thompson Flats and ride the hills. But I do not consider myself an accomplished rider."

She and her husband do still have horses, and currently the count is up to six.

"My husband raises them. I just feed them – table scraps and garden weeds," she said. "One of our horses is old and has cancer in her eyes and our little granddaughter rides her. My husband use to put her on it when she was only 2 and walk her up and down the drive and she loved it," Edgar said.

Her children all grew up riding as well. Two of her children participated in 4-H for a time, and Edgar has always helped with 4-H projects and the different booths during fair time.

Edgar said she also loves to quilt, but finds she doesn't have enough time to do "I love teaching and I love the students," she said. "I am always eager to learn new things.

"I have taken several cooking classes. You learn so much from them. I took one online and it was the hardest one I have ever taken. But I finished it. If I have anything, it's perseverance."

As Grandma Queen, Edgar received a beautiful bouquet of roses, a rocking chair and a belt buckle.

"The whole thing was so touching," she said. "I had never been a queen before it is something I had never aspired to.

"I appreciate receiving this so much. I love our community and I love our fair."

CSI North Side Center offers bowling class

Bowling is back at the Ranch Bowl in Gooding. The "Kids' Rockin' Bowl" class will be held from 2 to 4 p.m. Sept. 10 at the Ranch Bowl, for kids in first through fifth grade. The fee for this one-session class is $10. Participants must wear socks.

The class teaches the rules of the game, how to hold the ball, bowling etiquette and tips on how to throw strikes. After the group lesson, there will be music, a small drink and candy.

Exemplary lifestyle doesn't prevent enlarged spleen

DEAR DR. GOTT: My friend who lives in another state indicated her mother was diagnosed with an enlarged spleen.

This is a woman in her 80s, still tall and slender, never smoked or drank alcohol, doesn't consume caffeine and doesn't take drugs of any kind. Her diet is exemplary with no white sugar, bread, flour, starchy foods, red meats or luncheon meats. She has always eaten a lot of fruits and vegetables, buying organic whenever possible.

Lately, she has complained about being very tired, she fell a couple of times, and now she has a constant fear of falling. How could someone who took such good care of what she put into her body end up with an enlarged spleen? What purpose does it serve, anyway?

DEAR READER: The spleen is an organ located in the upper portion of the abdomen. It is purple in color, about 4 to 5 inches long and weighs about 6 ounces in healthy people. Because it is protected by the rib cage, it generally cannot be felt unless it enlarges. The spleen acts as a filter for blood, destroying old and damaged blood cells. It fights bacteria such as meningitis and pneumonia by producing white blood cells known as lymphocytes. It stores iron from old cells, returning the iron to our bone marrow, where hemoglobin is made. Oddly enough, with all the important things this organ does, we can live without it if necessary.

An enlarged spleen, known as splenomegaly, can occur because of infection, parasites, liver disease, lymphoma, leukemia and a number of other conditions. When the condition occurs, this relatively small organ can weigh up to 4 pounds and becomes palpable on examination. Symptoms can include frequent infections, fatigue, anemia and pain in the left upper abdomen that radiates to the left shoulder.

Diagnosis, other than through palpation, can be made by ultrasound, CT scan or MRI and will often provide a physician information such as how large it is and whether it is crowding other organs in its proximity.

Treatment is directed toward determining the underlying cause for the enlargement and may be as simple as antibiotics to cure infection or chemotherapy and radiation if Hodgkin's or another more complex disorder is discovered.

Sadly, an enlarged spleen can occur despite doing all the right things. A healthful diet, plenty of exercise and abstaining from smoking, drinking and drugs has likely kept her well all these years. Now, however, she should be under the care of a physician, who can get to the bottom of the issue and get her back on the road to recovery. She should also address her fear of falling. It might be that she has been so well for so many years that she now perceives the falls to be the beginning of a massive decline in her general health. Her physician can order appropriate testing to rule out any concerns he might have in this regard or, if appropriate, she might speak with a therapist in an attempt to regain her independence if no medical basis is discovered.

Gooding Public Library celebrates 100 years

Library will hold an open 308 books had been house from 2 to 4 p.m. Saturday at 306 Fifth Ave. W. to celebrate 100 years of service. There will be displays, refreshments, and visits with former staff and board members.

Gooding Public Library was a civic club library when it was established in 1910. By that September, 140 card-

The Gooding Public holders had registered and 28 times, and "The Virginian accessed. Horatio Alger's "The Young Acrobat" was the most popular, with 34 circulations from July to April, and a dozen Alger books donated by library association president Ralf Spangler accounted for a large proportion of the library's activity. Two copies of "Black Beauty" went out and Uncle Tom's Cabin" also had a respectable run. The library was also augmented by a traveling library.

The library now has 2,555 cardholders and 24,352 books and audio books, as well as videos, DVDs, music CDs, periodicals and newspapers. Other services include eight public-use computers, WiFi service, Sage reciprocal and Lili Express state system reciprocal, World Cat reference and interlibrary loan service, free coffee and tea for newspaper-reading pleasure, and weekly preschool and toddler storytimes. Youth book club and various family and informational programs are also scheduled. The library's website is gooding.lili.org.

T.F. library records rise in summer use

The Twin Falls Public Library recently finished its 2010 Summer Reading Program, and more people than ever participated in the programs, according to the youth service depart ment head.

This year, 365 children in preschool to fifth grade signed up for the program, a 24 percent increase from last year. Attendance at the teen Summer Reading Program events also increased. The Adult Summer Reading Program grew by leaps and bounds as well, with 239 book reviews being turned in, 30 percent more than last year. In June and July, 1,603 people attended a library program that's up 44 percent from last vear.

Library administrators say all those patrons coming in this summer have had a great selection of new books to choose from. The library is constantly ordering and receiving new books, and 717 were added to the collection last month. The new books stay in the "new" section for one year so that patrons always know where to go to find the latest title.

The library also recently participated in Idaho Snapshot Day, part of an initiative from Library the American Association (ALA). The ALA encouraged every state to organize their own "Snapshot Day" where libraries across the state recorded certain statistics for one day. Once compiled, those statistics give people a "snapshot" of a day in the life of a library and, according to the ALA, are very compelling evidence for the importance of libraries.

Forty-five libraries from across the state of Idaho participated. In only one day, 26,966 people visited a library in Idaho, including 1,238 who came to the Twin Falls Public Library. The 2,393 items that were checked out at the Twin Falls library were part of 29,925 items checked out across the state. In all, 190 people used a computer at the Twin Falls library, part of a total of 5,231 people who used library computers statewide.

September is National Library Card Sign-up Month. Stop by the Twin Falls Public Library or visit www.twinfallspubliclibrary.org to see all the library has to offer.

Buhl Public Library fall book talks scheduled

The Buhl Public Library will kick off its fall book-talk schedule with three very different books and some new book-talk leaders.

Connie McDonald will lead the book discussion on "The Glass Castle," a memoir by Jeannette Walls, at 7:15 p.m. Sept. 28. Walls is a regular contributor to MSNBC.com who lives in New York and Long Island and is married to writer John Taylor. But her life today is very far removed from the roots of her childhood, which she hid for two decades.

Kristara Stern Lopez is one of the new booktalk leaders this fall and will take members into the world of mystery – Jaine Austen mysteries to be exact, at 7:15 p.m. Oct. 26. She will share her insights into "Death By Pantyhose" by Laura Levine, which is about a freelance writer's crime investigation.

From murder and mayhem, the talks go to science fiction with the last book talk scheduled for the fall on Nov. 23. "The Hunger Games," the first book in a series of three by Suzanne Collins, will be led by another newcomer to book talks, Susie Jones. Set in the future, in the ruins of a place once known as North America, lies the nation of Panem. The harsh. cruel Capitol keeps its 12 districts in line by forcing them to send one boy and one girl between the ages of 12 to 18 to participate in the annual Hunger Games, a fight to the death on live TV.

The books for "The Glass Castle" and "Death by Pantyhose" are at the library available for checkout. For questions or more information about these free programs, call the library at 543-6500. The winter schedule will start in January 2011 and be announced in December.

Abuse charge dropped over statute of limitations

County prosecutor says she hopes lawmakers will consider expanding Idaho's statute of limitations for some sex abuse cases after such a charge was dismissed because it was filed a few months too late.

Earlier this month, a county grand jury indicted a 71-year-old man on a charge of felony sexual battery of a child between the ages of 16 and 17 after prosecutors said he abused a 17-year-old boy in 2005.

But the statute of limitations on that crime expired May 1 - five years after thealleged abuse occurred.

The Idaho Statesman reports that Ada County Deputy Prosecutor Cathy Guzman says she was hoping she could argue in court that Idaho lawmakers didn't intend to exclude that particular crime from a host of child sex abuse charges on which they expanded the statute of limitations in 2006.

Now Guzman says she hopes the Legislature will consider the issue.

"The charges were not dismissed over lack of evidence," Guzman said. "We are very disappointed in this and hope the Legislature picks up the issue."

Four years ago, lawmakers removed the statute of limitations for prosecuting most cases of child sexual abuse. Though the law change didn't apply retroactively to all abuse cases, it extended the new rules to any victims of past crimes who had not yet turned 23.

But the specific charge of sexual battery of a child between the ages of 16 and 17 was left out of the new law - so the statute of limitations for prosecuting that crime remains five years from the point of abuse.

Rep. Donna Boe, D-Pocatello, who sponsored

BOISE (AP) – An Ada the law change in 2006, said Tuesday she did not mean to specifically exclude the charge of sexual battery of a child between the ages of 16 and 17.

"I don't remember that being part of the discussion," she said.

The Meridian police began investigating the elderly man for a possible sexual battery charge after the man's adult son reported he had been abused by his father in the 1970s. That case was well past the statute of limitations, but detectives began searching to see if anyone else claimed to be abused by the man. That's when the man who was 17 in 2005 came forward with allegations of abuse.

Police officials said the detective in charge of the case didn't know the crime was excluded from the statute of limitations rule change.

"We just missed it," Deputy Police Chief Tracy Basterrechea said Tuesday.

Basterrechea said the department is doing an internal review to figure out why the detective did not know about the statue of limitations but also said such cases take time to put together.

"The investigator involved in this is very upset" about his mistake, Basterrechea said. "This is an anomaly. The investigator involved in this case has done great work" in other similar cases.

The attacks pointed to the enduring capabilities of militant groups when the U.S. military and Iraqi forces have depicted al-Qaida in Iraq and its brethren as no match for the Iragi army.

The bloodshed came amid Iragis' frustration over the failure of political blocs to form a new government nearly six months after national elections. U.S. officials have insisted that Iraq is stable, even if the country is locked in a political stalemate and fears are mounting among Iraqis that their nation's stability is in fact eroding.

Iraq's leaders, including Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki, blamed al-Qaida in Iraq and the late dictator Saddam Hussein's Baath Party for the attacks and vowed to apprehend the culprits.

In one of the deadliest assaults Wednesday, a car bomb struck a police station in Kut, about 100 miles southeast of Baghdad, near the offices of the Wasit province governor. The attack killed 16 people and wounded 18, Gov. Latif Turfa said.

In Baghdad, a suicide car bomber exploded his vehicle at a police station in the northeastern neighborhood of Oahira, killing at least 18 people, including six police officers, police said. The blast left 60 people wounded. Four people were killed in other attacks in the capital.

NORTH KOREA Carter lands in North Korea to bring home American jailed for illegal entry

SEOUL, South Korea - North Koreans welcomed Jimmy Carter back to Pyongyang with smiles, salutes and hearty handshakes Wednesday as the former American president arrived on a mission to bring home a Boston man jailed in the communist country since January.

U.S. officials have billed Carter's trip as a private humanitarian visit to try to negotiate the release of Aijalon Gomes, sentenced to eight years of hard labor in a North Korean prison for entering the country illegally from China.

However, visits like Carter's - and the journey ex-President Bill Clinton made a year ago to secure the release of two American journalists - serve as more than just rescue missions. They also offer an opportunity for unofficial diplomacy between the U.S. and North Korea, analysts say.

CHILE Trapped miners told to stay slim while waiting for rescue or stay in mine COPIAPO - Put on a show. Play cards. Sing. Get exercise. And whatever you do, don't get too fat to squeeze through the escape tunnel.

Chilean officials are offering lots of advice to help 33 miners trapped underground keep their health and sanity as they wait to be rescued. One thing they're not sharing with the men is their estimate that it could take four months to drill them out of an emergency shelter nearly half a mile below the surface.

"I hope that nobody commits the imprudence of telling them something like this. We have asked the families to be careful in the letters they write," Interior Minister Rodrigo Hinzpeter said Wednesday. "It's going to be very hard. We're going to have to give them a great deal of attention, care and psychological support."

The miners were trapped by an Aug. 5 collapse, and rescuers established contact with them Sunday by drilling a 6-inch-wide hole to the shelter. That hole and two others are now lifelines, delivering supplies, communications and fresh air to the miners while they wait for the escape tunnel to be drilled.

U.S. beats Greece 87-59 in last game before worlds

ATHENS, Greece — The United States breezed to one last exhibition victory before the start of the world basketball championships, not that coach Mike Krzyzewski seemed to care.

He's just happy that his group brimming with youthful exuberance is ready to play.

"The score doesn't really matter, it was just an exhibition game," Krzyzewski said after an 87-59 blowout of defending silver medalist Greece on Wednesday. "I'm happy we had the chance to play a great team, in a great atmosphere."

Eric Gordon scored 18 points to pace the Americans, who led from start to finish against a Greece team playing for the first time since a brawl near the end of an exhibition game against Serbia turned the focus of the upcoming world championships away from the court.

Kevin Love played well in the second half and finished with eight points and a team-high 13 rebounds.

In addition to Gordon and Love, the final 12-man roster for the U.S. includes: Lamar Odum, Kevin Durant, Derrick Rose, Rudy Gay, Chauncey Billups, Danny Granger, Russell Westbrook, Stephen Curry and Andre Iguodala. Celtics guard Rajon Rondo preempted Krzyzewski's decision about the final roster cut Tuesday by taking himself out of contention citing family reasons.

17.32 SIGNS

Automotive Automotive

17.32.010 Statement of Intent:

The purpose of this chapter is to promote and protect the public health, welfare and safety by regulating existing and proposed outdoor advertising, outdoor advertising signs and outdoor signs of all types. It is intended to protect property values, create a more attractive economic and business climate, enhance and protect the physical appearance of the community and preserve the scenic and natural beauty of designated areas. It is further intended to reduce sign or advertising distractions and obstructions that may contribute to traffic accidents, reduce hazards that may be caused by signs overhanging or projecting over public rights of way, provide more open space, curb the deterioration of the natural environment and enhance community development.

17.32.020 Definitions:

ADJACENT PROPERTY: Real property sharing one common boundary with another parcel of real property. Public roads separating parcels of real property shall be disregarded in determining whether property is "adjacent property".

ADVERTISING DEVICE: Any floating, billowing, turning, oscillating device, any colored, shiny, reflective material, or any light or other contrivance except a sign used to attract attention.

ADVERTISING DISPLAY: Any device, contrivance, object or structure other than a sign used to attract attention.

AREA OF SIGN: The back area, where defined, of a sign. Contrasting supports are not included. Painted signs on a wall will be measured from the edge of the background color, if used, or the area enclosed by straight lines where no background is defined.

AWNING: Any shelter or decorative dimensional shape extending from the exterior surface of the building, constructed as a supporting framework, covered with nonrigid materials.

AWNING SIGN: Letters, numbers or logos applied to any awning, BILLBOARD SIGN: A freestanding sign on a parcel of real property other than that owned or leased by the business or activity being advertised by said sign and which advertises a business, organization, event, person, place or thing other than that conducted or residing on the same parcel of real property.

BUILDING OFFICIAL: The person appointed in that capacity under the current version of the international building code adopted by the city of Jerome, or any successor or the person with the equivalent authority under the then existing building code adopted by the city of Jerome.

BUILDING SIGN: Any sign attached directly to a building.

CANOPY SIGN: A sign not attached directly to a building, but attached by means of a separate structure to a building.

EAVE LINE: The bottom of the overhang, or the bottom of a mansard roof.

FREESTANDING SIGN: A sign not attached to any building, directly or by means of a separate structure.

HEIGHT: The distance between the top of a sign and the surface of the nearest adjacent public road.

NAMEPLATE: A sign naming the occupant, the occupant's occupation, and the address.

OFF PREMISES SIGN: A sign which advertises business or other activities not related to the business being conducted on the property upon which it is located. A sign providing information concerning public events of general community interest shall not be considered an off premises sign. PROJECTING SIGN: Any sign which is attached to a building and has a surface which extends more than one foot (1') away from the exterior of a building.

PROPERTY OWNER: The fee simple owner of the real property upon which a sign is located. PROPERTY SIGNS: Either a political sign or a nameplate sign. REALTY SIGN: A temporary sign advertising the sale, lease, or rent of property upon which it is located, and the identification of the company and/or person handling the transaction. It includes "for sale by owner" signs.

ROADS: A public thoroughfare. Multiple road frontages require two (2) different streets with a frontage of at least fifty feet (50') each on each road.

SIGN: Shall have the meaning ascribed to it in section 17.03.730 of this title.

SINGLE FACE SIGN: A sign attached parallel to a building wall, projecting no more than eighteen inches (18") from the building wall and having writing or images only on the one surface of the sign facing away from the building wall, SPECIAL EVENT: Sales, sale promotions, community events, holidays, and similar functions.

STREET TREE: Any tree, the trunk of which is located in any portion of the right of way of any public road or street within the city of Jerome.

17.32.030 Application for Signs:

It shall be unlawful for any person, whether acting as owner, occupant, contractor, or otherwise, to erect, construct, reconstruct, enlarge, locate or alter any sign within the city of Jerome contrary to the provisions of this chapter. Any person proposing to erect, construct, reconstruct, enlarge, locate or alter any sign must file an application with the building official for a permit. The application shall state the size and weight of the sign, and the distance it is to project from a building, the details of its supports providing attachment to any building, or any other information required by this chapter. The building official or his designee shall:

Issue all permits to construct, reconstruct, enlarge, locate or alter any sign. A

B. Prior to issuing such permit, the building official shall determine whether the application meets all the requirements of this chapter and any other applicable provision of this code and shall consult with the zoning administrator in that regard.

17.32.036 Site Plan:

A. All applications for sign permits as provided by section 17.32.030 of this chapter shall be accompanied by a site plan and elevation drawing. The site plan shall be in duplicate on paper of a minimum dimension of eight and one-half inches by eleven inches (81/2" x 11"). The site plan of information below required shall be drawn approximately to scale, but shall show accurate dimensions as proposed to be built, shall convey such information to the building official to determine whether the sign which is the subject of the application conforms with the provisions of this chapter. The site plan shall depict the exact site of the sign and its location in relation to the following features of the site:

Property lines and length of street frontage adjacent to the sign;

Existing and proposed buildings or other structures in the vicinity of the sign;
 Existing curb cuts in the vicinity of the sign;
 The location and size of existing signs adjacent to the area of the sign which is the subject of the application.

B. Elevation drawings to demonstrate design compatibility between the sign and adjacent buildings. The elevation drawings shall depict: 1. The type of sign as defined in section 17.32.020 of this chapter;

Sign materials, colors, lighting and other physical aspects of the sign;

Sign materials, colors, lighting and other physical aspects of the sign;
 The sign height measured from the bottom of the sign to its top and the height of the sign as installed from the ground;

Dimensions of the sign.

17.32.037 Exempt Signs:

The following types of signs as defined in section 17.32.020 of this chapter are exempt from the application and permit requirements of this chapter;

A. Property signs; B. Nameplate signs;

C. Any sign erected and maintained pursuant to and discharged of any governmental function or as required by any statute, ordinance or lawful regulation; D. Signs being manufactured, transported or stored within the city limits so long as they are not used for purposes of advertising at the place or places of manufacturer storage;

Commemorative plaques of recognized historical societies or organizations;

F. Beligious symbols, legal holiday or special event decorations;

G. Identification emblems of religious orders or historical societies;

H. Signs located within malls, arcades, porches, patios or similar areas where such signs are not visible from any point on the boundary of the real property in which the structure was located;

Signs on licensed, commercial vehicles, including trailers, provided that such vehicles are not utilized as stationary outdoor display signs;

Such advertisements may not contain any graphic words, phrases, or images describing or showing any specified sexual activities or specified anatomical areas.

6. No sexually oriented business shall, in any manner, advertise or permit the observation of any live entertainment, or other adult materials, depicting, describing, or relating to specified sexual activities or specified anatomical areas by display, decoration, sign, show window, or other opening viewable from any public street, alley, sidewalk or other right of way.

17.32.090: Violations:

Any person, no matter the capacity in which they act, who violates or refuses to comply with any provision of this chapter shall be guilty of an infraction. A separate infraction shall be deemed to be committed each day that any violation occurs or continues. In addition, the city may take whatever civil action it deems necessary to enforce the provisions of this chapter, including, but not limited to, the following:

A. Giving written notice to the owner or lessee of any sign subject to a provision of this chapter that is being violated. B. Giving the owner or lessee thirty (30) days from such notice to correct the deficiency contained in the notice. C. Upon a failure of the owner or lessee of the sign to comply with a notice given under this section or, alternatively, the owner or lessee of the sign having failed to remove the sign from the property on which it is installed, the city may seek an order from a court of competent jurisdiction ordering the removal of the sign. D. In any action commenced by the city under this chapter, the City shall be entitled to recover from the owner found to have been in violation of the terms of this chapter all attorney fees and costs incurred.

Section 9. This ordinance shall be effective upon its passage and publication as required by law. PASSED BY THE COUNCIL this 17th day of August, 2010. SIGNED BY THE MAYOR this 18th day of August, 2010.

Today's Highlight:

On Aug. 26, 1920, the 19th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, guaranteeing American women the right to vote, was certified in effect by Secretary of State Bainbridge Colby.

On this date:

In 55 B.C., Roman forces under Julius Caesar invaded Britain, but achieved limited success.

In 1883, the island volcano Krakatoa began cataclysmic eruptions, leading to a massive explosion the following day.

In 1910, humanitarian and Nobel Peace laureate Mother Teresa was born Agnes Gonxha Bojaxhiu in present-dav Skopje, Macedonia.

In 1910, Thomas Edison demonstrated for reporters an improved version of his Kinetophone, a device for showing a movie with synchronized sound.

In 1958, Alaskans went to the polls to overwhelmingly vote in favor of statehood.

In 1961, the original Hockey Hall of Fame was opened in Toronto.

1964, President In Lyndon B. Johnson was nominated for a term of office in his own right at the Democratic national convention in Atlantic City, N.J.

In 1968, the Democratic national convention opened in Chicago.

In 1972, the summer Olympics games opened in Munich, West Germany.

In 1978, Cardinal Albino Luciani of Venice was elected pope following the death of Paul VI. The new pontiff took the name Pope John Paul I. (However, he died just over a month later.)

Ten years ago: President Bill Clinton visited Nigeria, where he appealed to the leaders of the oil-rich nation to set aside political acrimony so that their citizens could lift themselves from poverty and isolation. The Houston Comets won their fourth straight WNBA championship by defeating the New York Liberty in 79-73. overtime. Maracaibo, Venezuela, won the Little League World Series title, defeating Bellaire, Texas, 3-2.

Five years ago: Utility crews in South Florida scrambled to restore power to more than 1 million customers blacked out by Hurricane Katrina, which continued to churn in the Gulf of Mexico. A fire raced through a crowded, rundown Paris apartment building housing African immigrants, killing 17 people, mainly children. One year ago: Authorities in California solved the 18year-old disappearance of Iavcee Lee Dugard, who appeared at a parole office with her children and the Antioch couple accused of kidnapping her when she was 11. A giant wildfire erupted north of Los Angeles; the blaze went on to destroy more than five dozen homes, kill two firefighters and force thousands of people from their homes. Death claimed crime story author Dominick Dunne, 83, in New York City; Ellie Greenwich, 68, who'd cowritten songs like "Chapel of Love," "Be My Baby" and "Leader of the Pack," in New York City; Abdul-Aziz al-Hakim, 59, one of Iraq's most influential politicians, in Tehran.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

"Those who'll play with cats must expect to be scratched." Miguel de Cervantes

When the Junior European Championships took place last summer in Romania, there was a week-long tournament for schools players. Today's deal is my favorite from that event.

Joris Van Lankveld was defending four spades against the Norwegians. A heart was led to the bare ace, and declarer played the spade queen to East's ace. The defense forced declarer with a second heart. Declarer, risking everything on a successful club finesse, drew trumps (West throwing a heart) and ran the club queen. Van Lankveld bravely let this hold. When the next club finesse lost to West, declarer's club suit became wastepaper. West now played winning hearts until the dummy ruffed in. Declarer could do no better than exit with the diamond queen. West won, cashed his last heart, and led a diamond to East's jack.

This was three down for 150 to the Netherlands. On scoring up, South proudly read out plus 150. "Push" was the reply. Somewhat disappointed, Van Lankveld asked, "So they held up the club king as well?" "No. We were in six spades," came the answer.

Maybe a better line in four spades would have been to draw a second round of trumps ending in dummy and take a club finesse, planning to repeat it if necessary. West can win the second and lead a heart, but declarer simply discards a club from hand and has the rest. He can ruff the next heart in dummy and cross to hand with the spade jack to run the clubs.

ANSWER: Since three no-trump is certainly your side's most likely game, you should advance with a forcing call of two diamonds, hoping your partner can bid two notrump and you can raise to game. If your partner bids three clubs, you should pass. If he bids two spades, you can correct to three clubs.

IF AUGUST 26 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: To be ambitious you must be ambitious about something. Aim high; you are inspired this fall to reach higher and further than ever before. Because you can focus fully on achieving your goals, you are in a perfect position to launch a new business or begin a new life trend in September or October. You might get by with a little help from your friends in early February when you are recognized for your leadership abilities and can cement friendships easily. Do not make any crucial changes or decisions in March when minor relationship disruptions could disturb your balance and place you on the defensive.

ARIES (March 21-April Be generous with your time and talent. The only way to keep from losing sight of the goal is to keep lines of communication open during busy periods. Someone close can offer valuable advice and insights.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): What seems most important could only be the call of competition challenging you to perform feats of daring. You may need your track shoes to keep up with energetic companions and co-workers.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Do what you do best without bending the rules. You won't get credit or kudos for defending your territory or arguing with the boss. This isn't the time to handle hot issues or tempt fate by telling a fib.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Ambition is your middle name. Be passionate about things that are important to you, including your finances, and it will be easy to achieve your objectives. Remember that you can't control everything.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Keep the cat in the bag. The best tactic to ensure that important goals are achieved may be pulling a few strings behind the scenes. If people trust you with secrets, be sure to keep them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You are brimming with energy and could find it difficult to unwind. New friends or acquaintances may present some interesting ideas and could offer a muchneeded break from an intense workload.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your charm is best suited for shopping expeditions, not the workplace. Go ahead and take a long lunch break with a friend and find something beautiful to bring happiness to your soul or a smile to the face.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A thirst for power and prestige could put you in the driver's seat today. But loved ones just along for the ride may be more interested in fun and games than in keeping up with your relentless drive.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Juggle your balls. You may be tempted to show off in front of friends but unlikely to offend anyone with your antics. People will be sociable and cheerful and ready to forgive just about anything.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): An obsessive nature may make you act like a dog with a bone refusing to let go. Yield to the call of love and put romance above ambitions tonight if a true blue someone faithfully waits in the wings.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You think you have changed your life, but life has changed you. You are proud of your accomplishments, but your accomplishments have made you who you are today. You have a win, win situation.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Someone close may be under the gun to perform and be obsessed by business success, so alleviate the pressures by planning an evening out. Social matters thrive and it is a great time to mix with others.

Times News, Twin Falls, Idaho

DEAR ABBY: I had to chuckle at the letter from "Smooth-Headed in Tampa" (June 28), who complained that shallow women won't date a bald man. He hit the nail on the head with the term "shallow."

My husband is bald, but I didn't realize it when I first met him because he always wore a ball cap. We had gone to school together many years earlier, and he had thick, wavy hair then. When he took his cap off, I only hesitated for a second, remembering a lesson my father had taught me: "Never judge a book by its cover."

I'm so glad I heeded my dad's advice. We've been married 11 years and are more in love with each other now than when we married.

Please tell "Smooth-Headed" that not all women are shallow. He wouldn't want a woman like that, anyway. Besides, those women have no idea what they're missing. I keep threatening to get my husband that T-shirt that reads, "This Isn't a Bald Head, It's a Solar Panel for a Sex Machine," but he says he doesn't want to spill the beansl

- LOVE HIS CHROME DOME

DEAR LOVE: Thank you for the encouraging words for "Smooth-Headed." If the enthusiasm from my readers who love and/or prefer bald men is any indication, "Smooth" has been worrying needlessly. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I happen to absolutely go nuts over bald or balding men. I find nothing sexier. I can spot a bald man a mile off, and in my eyes there is no one else who compares. It may be because ever since I can remember, my father has been balding.

It makes no difference to me whether a man has little or no hair, is tall or short, thin or heavy. It is what's on the inside that counts. Any man bold enough to shave his head or not cover it with a ball cap is tops in my book. (My favorite actor is Vin Diesel.)

– OUT THERE LOOKING

DEAR ABBY: Doesn't "Smooth" know that bald is the new "sexy"? If he is uncomfortable with his hairline, he should see a barber or stylist who can make what hair he has "hot." Every

SUDOKU

Conceptis SudoKu By Dave Green 8 8 6 4 З 4 З 9 4 5 6

Thursday, August 26, 2010 Classifieds 15

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

head can look good.

I have happily dated men with receding hairlines and shaved heads. "Smooth" just needs to find a real woman who's interested in who he is, not what's growing or not growing on top of his head.

- NOT BALDPHOBIC IN MASSACHUSETTS DEAR ABBY: You are correct that plenty of women will date balding men. Aside from your assertion that we are the smart ones who see beyond the surface, balding is supposed to be a sign of virility. I do have one question for "Smooth-Headed": Are you willing to date women who are less than supermodels? Many women I know, myself included, are smart, funny and sexy, but have been spurned because we are slightly overweight. What I have learned is that people who sit around whining about the opposite sex being shallow should review their own biases and unrealistic expectations. Who might you be overlooking, Mr. "Smooth"?

- BIG AND BEAUTIFUL IN SOUTH DAKOTA

DEAR ABBY: I am in a loving, happy relationship with my 26-year-old boyfriend who has male-pattern baldness. We met through Internet dating, and "Smooth" should give it a try. Potential dates read about your interests and personality at the same time they see your photos. They'll start to know you before they meet you.

My advice to balding men: Don't be ashamed. "Own" your baldness. My boyfriend does. And his self-confidence makes him even more attractive to me.
