BOISE — The sound of machine-gun fire rattled off of the walls as soldiers scrambled for cover.

The 10 shooters lay on their stomachs, the kick from their firing rifles reverberating through shoulders and clenched hands.

In five minutes, the carnage was over and the lights came up. The results: 52 hits and 1,139 misses. At 7 cents per bullet, the shooters could have cost taxpayers $3.64 for their successes, but $79.73 for their failures.

Fortunately, it was just a simulation using computer graphics and replica rifles. The men and women behind the weapons don't need to be accurate, but their understanding is key to the Idaho Army National Guard.

Around 200 employers from across the Northwest arrived at Gowen Field in Boise on Thursday for a two-day Boss Lift event organized by the Employer Support of the Guard and Reserve.

The seventh-annual event provided employers of soldiers and airmen a chance to see what their employees do during their service training.

About 200 Magic Valley members of the 116th Cavalry Brigade Combat Team will begin to head to Camp Shelby, Miss., on Sept. 17 to train for up to two months before deploying to Iraq, leaving behind not only families but also jobs.

"It's like a milk stool. There is the airman, the family and his employer," Idaho Air National Guard State Command Chief Master Sgt. Pete Glick said. "If you break a leg, it falls over. We want to take care of the families and their employers when they leave."

About 75 percent of guardsmen hold jobs as civilians.

"We have students, federal, state and local workers," Col. Tim Marsano said. "They serve in hundreds of occupations."

And when guardsmen deploy, their employers must cope without them. The Uniformed Service Employment and Reemployment Rights Act of 1994 protects the jobs guardsmen and reservists

Two killed in Minidoka Co. crash

Lighthouse Christian mourns loss of student athlete

HEYBURN — A Rupert man and a Twin Falls teen died Wednesday night after a crash on Idaho Highway 24 between Heyburn and Rupert.

Multiple law-enforcement and rescue agencies were called to the highway near milepost 1.5 for the two-vehicle crash at 9:08 p.m.

Dedrik K. Lovato-Rodriguez, 15, of Twin Falls, was pronounced dead at the scene, while Danny J. Gonzales, 69, of Rupert, died from his injuries after he was transported to an area hospital, according to a press release issued by the Minidoka County Sheriff's Office.

According to the release, Lovato-Rodriguez was driving a 1994 Nissan Altima southbound from Rupert when his vehicle crossed the median and went into the northbound lane of traffic at high speed.

Lovato-Rodriguez's vehicle continued toward Heyburn, passing one vehicle in the wrong lane of traffic before crashing head-on into Gonzales' northbound 1997 Ford pickup.

There were no passengers in either vehicle, the release said.

Gonzales was transported to Minidoka Memorial Hospital, where he died from his injuries.

Lovato-Rodriguez was a sophomore varsity football player at Lighthouse Christian School in Twin Falls. Athletic Director and head football coach John van Vliet said he believes Lovato-Rodriguez was on his way home from a Bible study meeting in the area. Van Vliet said that counselors are at the school to assist students.

The sheriff's release states that the investigation into the crash is ongoing and will be conducted by the Minidoka County Sheriff's Office. The crash reconstruction will be completed by Idaho State Police.

According to the release, lab results are pending for both drivers and both were wearing their seat belts.

Sen. Crapo announces first Owyhee land acquisitions

By John Miller
Associated Press writer

BOISE — A key gateway into the rugged new Owyhee Wilderness areas of southwestern Idaho is being opened as part of the first major land transaction since the federally protected preserve was created in 2009.

U.S. Sen. Mike Crapo, the Republican who spearheaded creation of 517,000 acres of federal wilderness in the Owyhee canyons last year, announced on Thursday the purchase of 971 acres of private inholdings from ranchers. No price was disclosed.

The deal includes more than a mile of the North Fork Owyhee River, located just east of the Oregon-Idaho border, that will be available for fishing, hiking and habitat protection. That 611-acre property has belonged to Owyhee County rancher Mike Hanley.

Environmental groups said the acquisition helps ensure the integrity of the wilderness and removes roadblocks for public access into some of the nation's most remote country.

"This is an important first step in achieving the greater goal for the completion of the wilderness in the Owyhees," said David Kirk, of The Wilderness Land Trust, a group that acquires unprotected private land within wilderness and

The Civil War hero in Gooding's cemetery

Earlier this year, the federal government finally got around to putting a marker on Congressional Medal of Honor recipient Oscar Peterson's grave in Richfield. But Peterson isn't the only winner of the nation's highest award for bravery who's buried in the Magic Valley.

James Kephart, wounded grave is in Gooding's Elmwood Cemetery, was a private in Company C of the 13th Infantry Division. During the Civil War Battle of Vicksburg in 1863, the 21-year-old soldier rescued an officer under fire. Thirty-six years later, the War Department gave Kephart the Medal of Honor.

Vicksburg, Miss., was a strategically important town that dominated the stretch of the Mississippi River still controlled by the Confederacy in 1863. Its location was important because the South depended heavily on food grown in Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas — the three Confederate states west of the river.

The city sat on a high bluff overlooking a horseshoe bend in the river, and to the east lay the vast swamp of the Mississippi Delta. Union commander Ulysses Grant decided to attack it by land.

His Army of the Tennessee crossed the Mississippi and began the Vicksburg offensive on May 19.

Kephart's outfit was part of a corps commanded by Maj. Gen. William Tecumseh Sherman, who directed his troops to storm Vicksburg's northern defenses.

Sherman's troops came under withering rifle and artillery fire while trying to climb a steep ravine and cross a 6-foot-deep ditch. This first attempt was easily repulsed, so Grant ordered an artillery bombardment to soften the defenses. A second attack was a disaster.

Kephart's commander, Capt. Joseph Horr, was one of those wounded in the assault.

"... our battalion suffered a loss of 45 (percent)," Horr wrote in nominating Kephart for the Medal of Honor. "I was one of the severely wounded having been hit some six times.

YOU DON'T SAY

"I received my wounds close to the (Confederate defensive) works when Kephart crawled up and dragged me down to a place of comparative shelter ... We were over an hour in crawling a few hundred yards to the next line of hills in our rear. We were discovered and fired upon from almost the moment we started until we were out of range.

"Instead of remaining with me as he might have done, Kephart at once returned and assisted others from the field who were unable to help themselves."

The failed federal attacks of May 19 left 157 Union troops dead, 777 wounded and eight missing. Eight Confederates died.

Kephart was part of the siege that finally resulted in Vicksburg's surrender on the Fourth of July 1863. He was mustered out of the Union Army in 1864 and lived in Dubuque, Iowa, for 28 years before moving West. Kephart died in Gooding in 1932 at age 90.

James' older brother Conrad, a cavalryman, was killed at Vicksburg.

Improbably, there's another Battle of Vicksburg Medal of Honor winner who's buried in Idaho. John Conaway, a private in the 83rd Indiana Regiment, was part of an assault on an even stronger Confederate position on May 22. Of the 150 men in the storming party, nearly half were killed. Seventy-nine of the survivors were awarded the Medal of Honor.

Conaway is buried in Post Falls.

SIRCOMM finds fix for loss of service

By Bradley Guire
Times-News writer

Lines of communication are again open for rural emergency agencies around Hagerman, including some still fighting the Long Butte Fire.

The Southern Idaho Regional Communications Center in Jerome recently lost valuable radio equipment in the area, destroyed by the 300,000-acre wildfire. But the dispatch agency has a temporary solution in place.

"There was significant damage due to the fire and power surges," said Director John Moore. "We put together a mobile command trailer to get communication back."

Moore said that the new equipment, which is solar powered, has been tested and is up and running.

Although SIRCOMM's governing Joint Powers Board recently passed its fiscal year 2011 budget, board members will now have to come up with money for a permanent fix to the lost equipment. The tower the equipment was mounted on is fine and will not need replaced, officials said.

Board Chairman Tom Mikesell, a Twin Falls County commissioner, said there are many unanswered questions as to replacing equipment, be at least a month before any work begins.

"We'll have to wait and see what's insured and if we can find any federal aid to help," Mikesell said. Moore added that it would added that the fire scorched only around 15,000 acres of untouched sagebrush habitat.

The first concern when restoring land burned in the fire is re-establishing vegetation, which prevents erosion and provides animal habitat and forage. The team looks at the surviving vegetation, the topography and erosion potential when deciding whether to seed and what plant species to replace.

BLM fisheries biologist Kate Forster said increased sediment is always a worry for streams after a fire. She's concerned about a few areas near the Snake River and possibly Salmon Falls Creek, but while the fire continues to burn, she's limited to looking at aerial photographs.

Forster said the worst case is if fire made it into riparian areas near streams, because the vegetation loss can increase erosion and fish may have died if they couldn't escape. But sediment can also wash down from outlying areas.

"It's most likely that we'll do seeding in the upland areas," Forster said. "But there's some steep topography where we may need to set up some structures to keep the soil from ending up in the Snake (River)."

Scott Uhrig, a BLM emergency recovery and stabilization specialist, was already checking Monday morning to see which contractors were available to help with the work. He said there's still plenty of seed.

"We haven't had that many range fires this year and this is one of our largest," Uhrig said. "So the warehouses are full and prices are low — that helps with the cost."

The BLM doesn't plan to do much drilling — used when seeding for sagebrush — when it seeds, Klott said, only seeding areas that were drilled after previous fires.

That's not good news for sage grouse. University of Idaho wildlife biologist Kerry Reese said sagebrush needs to be well-established before sage grouse feel comfortable raising their chicks. And it takes around 30 years for sagebrush to recover to that point. With each recurring fire, Reese said, the sagebrush community gets knocked further back.

"It's a downward spiral," Reese said. "That's the reason the government should jump on range fires with the same ferocity they use with forest fires."

Fish and Wildlife biologist Brad Lowe said some radio-collared grouse were in the Winter Camp Butte area, hit by the fire. He hopes to schedule a flight over the area soon to see if he can pick up any signals. The birds have a good chance of survival, he said, because most grouse survived nearby Saylor Creek fires earlier this summer. But he doesn't know how the grouse will do long-term.

That's also the case for the Saylor Creek wild horse herd. BLM spokesman Codie Martin said the horses survived on a handful of islands not touched by the fire, so the BLM is taking out supplies of food and water. And Klott said his staff still has to assess the condition of other species of interest.

Elsewhere, at least two other wildfires started Thursday afternoon. The Emery Fire about 14 miles south of Oakley was reported at about 3:30 p.m. and covered 2,500 acres by 8:30 p.m. Retardant drops from seven single-engine air tankers were ineffective due to wind, but 10 engines and other equipment were later able to reach the blaze.

The Mile Marker 11 Fire was at about 1,000 acres, burning between Interstate 86 and the Snake River. Eight engines and a dozer were also starting to get a handle on it.

Though wind was an issue, high winds expected to cause problems with the Long Butte Fire had yet to arrive by 6:30 p.m., fire managers said.

Shooting

"(Hassani's) actions were justifiable," Dunn said.

May, 24, faces four charges of aggravated assault, one charge of burglary and one charge of eluding a police officer. He is accused of shooting James Lambert, who was wounded in the lower right leg, two days prior to his capture.

The investigation's results revealed more details of May's capture, which included a high-speed pursuit and shooting. It was noted that no police videos recorded the shooting.

According to the investigation's findings, May's mother contacted police to say that May was attempting "suicide by cop." A friend also relayed information that May had left his mother's house with a gun and that they couldn't get him to surrender it.

He was also reported to have a knife and crowbar.

May's friend also told an emergency dispatch worker that May said "he had shot at a demon and the bullets bounced off of him."

Officers located May driving along U.S. Highway 93 in Twin Falls County, and he tried to ditch them in a high-speed chase. Spike strips helped eventually bring May's car to a stop. Hassani approached the car but had trouble seeing inside, as its windows were tinted. Concerned that May would use a weapon or use his car as a weapon, Hassani fired one shot through the driver's-side front window.

The slug grazed the side of May's head above his left ear, and according to medical reports, it is still lodged there in his skull. Further medical reports show that at the time of his apprehension May was over the legal limit for blood alcohol content and that he tested positive for methamphetamine.

Although Hassani was not made available for comment on Thursday, Filer Police Chief Tim Reeves said he was happy that Ada County prosecutors agreed with his department's findings. Reeves added that he is not aware of any pending civil litigation against Hassani or the department.

During the press conference, Dunn held up a binder easily six inches thick that chronicled the details of the investigation, conducted by the Magic Valley Critical Incident Task Force. The report contained emergency dispatch records from the Southern Idaho Regional Communications Center, historical information regarding May, U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives records, sketches, photographs, medical records and blood toxicology reports.

May remains in custody at the Twin Falls County Jail. He is scheduled for a preliminary hearing in 5th District Court in Twin Falls on Sept. 3.

Manhunt stalls in Jerome County

By Bradley Guire
Times-News writer

Was it a coincidence? Hard to say.

Jerome County sheriff's deputies were in pursuit of an unidentified suspect Thursday afternoon, not far from the corn crops northwest of Jerome where more than 2,200 marijuana plants were found earlier this week.

Sheriff Doug McFall said that a deputy patrolling the area saw a male come out of the corn field. The man spotted the patrol cruiser and darted back into the crop. Other deputies responded to create a perimeter, and helicopter air support was called to assist deputies on foot.

"We sent a team in, but no luck," McFall said. "It was like looking for a needle in a haystack."

Out of concern for deputy safety, they pulled back. McFall said there was no way to know if the individual was connected with the recent illegal marijuana grows or was simply another individual wanted on a warrant.

TFPD grounds vandalized

Somebody wanted to stick it to the Man.

Or at least the Man's patrol car tires, but it didn't work.

The Twin Falls Police

Department reported that a jogger spotted several large nails intentionally placed on the department's shooting range road near the Snake River Canyon on Thursday morning. Police responded and discovered 20 large nails, placed in groups of four with the heads pushed into the dirt. The nails covered the width of the road.

TFPD further said that personnel were at the range the night before until 8 p.m., and that the road was clear at that time.

The department is seeking information on the identity of the would-be vandals, and individuals who assist may be eligible for a reward through Crime Stoppers, 732-5387.

Land

Kirk's Colorado-based group and The Nature Conservancy are assisting with the transfers and plan to shift ownership to the Bureau of Land Management. Earlier this month, Crapo announced the Bureau of Land Management had set aside $2 million for land purchases included in his Owyhee Initiative.

In 2009, Crapo succeeded in getting Congress and President Barack Obama to approve new federal wilderness in the Owyhee canyon lands. Crapo had worked for nearly a decade to secure agreement from environmental, recreation and livestock groups, as well as the Shoshone-Paiute Indian tribe whose members have historically lived and traveled on this territory.

The effort also protected 316 miles of rivers and streams under federal Wild and Scenic River designation.

The bill released 199,000 acres of wilderness study areas to multiple uses, including motorized recreation and livestock grazing.

Hanley said he's pleased with the Owyhee effort's cooperative nature and its focus on allowing multiple uses and hopes it will help to resolve legal battles where conservationists, livestock owners and the government tangled in the courts.

"The Owyhee

Initiative has ushered in a new era which will serve as a template to settle other wilderness issues throughout the West," said Hanley, who will continue to ranch in the area including on leased BLM ground.

Conflicts over Idaho wilderness are far from over, however.

U.S. Rep. Mike Simpson, R-Idaho, has been working for nearly as long as Crapo on another wilderness in the central Idaho mountains, only to see that effort stall — again — this summer on opposition from snowmobile and ATV groups and Republican Idaho Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter.

Eastland reopens, other T.F. closures planned

Times-News

Twin Falls' Eastland Drive South has been reopened south of Kimberly Road, according to a city press release.

While that closure due to road construction has ended, other streets will be closed for work related to the city's arsenic reduction project.

The approaches to Falls Avenue from Bracken and Rose streets will be closed today as crews complete gutter work along the approaches.

Homeowners can access the streets by Robbins Avenue and Crestview Drive, and the contractor will build gravel ramps across the new concrete for emergency vehicles to use.

Work will begin today on Orchard Drive between Harrison Street South and Washington Street South, restricting traffic to one east-bound lane. On Monday, the same stretch will be closed completely for the start of a three-week construction project contracted by Owyhee Construction Inc. of Boise.

Floral Avenue continues to be open to local traffic only, while Highland Avenue between Madrona Street South and Locust Street South will be open to local traffic only starting on Monday.

Harrison Street between Falls and Filer avenues will be paved on Friday, and should reopen early next week.

Crashes block part of I-84 Thursday evening

Times-News

Four crashes along east-bound Interstate 84 Thursday evening backed up traffic and closed part of the highway for three hours.

Idaho State Police at 4:27 p.m. investigated a non-injury crash at mile marker 199, where Robert Ochoa, 39, of Burley, lost control of his 2007 International roll-back tow truck hauling a 10-wheel truck. He ended up in the median.

Traffic congestion then led to three other incidents, including a two-vehicle crash at mile marker 197.5 at 4:58 p.m. Todd Stocker, 34, of Burley, was stopped in a 2002 Chevrolet pickup when Nicole Knobbe, 21 of Declo, ran into him in a 2004 Oldsmobile Alero. Knobbe and her 3-year-old son were transported to hospitals in Boise and Twin Falls, respectively.

Stocker was not injured, and all three were in safety restraints. Information on the other two crashes was not immediately available.

leave and requires employers to provide them with similar positions and similar pay when they return.

The Boss Lift gives employers a chance to understand and communicate with the military.

"We've had huge success with this," said Glick, who joined the Air Force after he graduated from Twin Falls High School in 1974. "For a lot of these people, it's their first time exposed to the military and we want the employers to know what these soldiers do. It gives them a sense of duty."

Employers and influential members of communities throughout Idaho, Oregon and Washington spent Thursday trying their hand at training simulations. A flight simulator of an A-10 Warthog, a convoy simulator and an exercise in shooting gave each participant a new understanding.

State Rep. Donna Pence, D-Gooding, said her husband was in the National Guard for at least 10 years.

"Now I can understand better the things he talked about all the time," she said over the sound of the simulation firing range.

The event ends today with an opportunity for employers to sign a statement of support for those in uniform — it's a way for businesses to publicly show their support, though the real opportunity for support comes every day a guardsman walks into his civilian job.

Idaho Power has one guardsman deploying with the 116th. Spokesman Dan Olmstead said lineman surveyor Eric Kulhanek's job may or may not be backfilled while he is deployed.

"We'll help the family out wherever we can," he said.

Salmonella find links two Iowa farms to egg recall

By Mary Clare Jalonick
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Food and Drug Administration officials say they have found positive samples of salmonella that link two Iowa farms to a massive egg recall. Investigators found salmonella in chicken feed at Wright County Egg that was used by that farm and also Hillandale Farms, the FDA said. Authorities also found additional samples of salmonella in other locations at Wright County Egg. More than 550 million eggs from the two farms were recalled this month after they were linked to salmonella poisoning in several states. One of the positive samples for salmonella was found in a feed ingredient sold to Wright County Egg from a third party supplier, Central Bi-Products, according to Wright County Egg, raising new questions as to whether other egg farms also could have received contaminated feed. The FDA could not confirm that the feed element came from a third party, but so far has said it doesn't believe the salmonella outbreak will expand beyond the two farms. Also Thursday, the federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention said there could now be as many as 1,470 illnesses linked to the outbreak, about 200 more than previously thought. Sherri McGarry of the FDA's Center for Food Safety and Applied Nutrition said the salmonella found at Wright County Egg matches the fingerprint of the salmonella found in many of those who were sickened. She said the tests indicate that contaminated feed is a source of the outbreak but possibly not the only source. McGarry and other FDA officials emphasized in a briefing for reporters that the agency's investigation is ongoing, and that they do not yet know how the feed became contaminated. Investigators are analyzing as many as 600 samples from 24 locations at the two farms. Wright County Egg said one of the feed ingredients from Central Bi-Products was held separately in a bin that was tested by FDA officials. Wright County Egg spokeswoman Hinda Mitchell said Central Bi-Products has no ties to the two farms and they receive the feed ingredient, which contains meat and bone meal, from a distributor. "We will work with FDA as they expand their review of feed ingredients purchased from outside vendors for our farm, as well as for their ongoing review of our farms," said the Wright County Egg statement attributed to unidentified company officials.

WASHINGTON From King to Beck: Big rally Saturday at Lincoln Memorial

Glenn Beck says it's just a coincidence his Restoring Honor rally on Saturday at the Lincoln Memorial will take place on the anniversary and at the site of Martin Luther King Jr.'s famous "I Have a Dream" speech. Civil rights veterans are skeptical.

"This is going to be a moment that you'll never be able to paint people as haters, racists, none of it," Beck says of the event featuring Sarah Palin and other conservative political and cultural figures. "This is a moment, quite honestly, that I think we reclaim the civil rights movement."

"When we heard about Glenn Beck, it was puzzling," the Rev. Al Sharpton said. "Because if you read Dr. King's speech, it just doesn't gel with what Mr. Beck or Mrs. Palin are representing."

Beck, a popular figure among tea party activists and a polarizing Fox News Channel personality, is headlining the event, and Palin, the 2008 Republican vice presidential nominee and a potential 2012 president candidate, will be a prominent speaker. But Beck told his television audience again on Thursday that it's not about politics.

The event's website says the rally is to pay tribute to America's military personnel and others "who embody our nation's founding principles of integrity, truth and honor." It also is to promote the Special Operations Warrior Foundation, which provides scholarships and services to family members of military members.

KANSAS Coroner IDs charred body as teen girl

GREAT BEND — A severely charred body found at an asphalt plant in central Kansas is that of a 14-year-old girl who had been missing since the weekend, the attorney general said Thursday.

At a news conference, Attorney General Steve Six asked for the public to contact authorities if they saw or contacted Alicia DeBolt on the day she disappeared.

"We do not, based on our preliminary work, believe it was a random act of violence," Six said.

Across town at the high school where the girl was to begin her freshman year this week, no official announcement was made Thursday that her body had been identified.

"We are trying to keep school just as normal as possible," said spokeswoman Jennifer Scharz.

Guidance counselors will become grief counselors as needed in the coming days and weeks.

"This community cares for each of its children," Superintendent Tom Vernon said in a statement. "We are saddened this has happened to one of our own. Our thoughts and prayers are with the DeBolt family in this, their time of incredible sadness."

DeBolt's mother told authorities that she last saw her daughter around 11 p.m. Saturday when she left for a party with a 19-year-old man. She was due home at midnight.

The girl's family reported her missing early Sunday afternoon after she still hadn't returned Abuelazam, who waived extradition from Atlanta on Aug. 13, is charged with assault with intent to commit murder in the July 27 stabbing of a Flint man. It's one of 14 stabbings in the Flint area. He's also suspected of stabbings in Virginia and Ohio.

CALIFORNIA Tires of plane catch fire during landing

SACRAMENTO — The tires of a JetBlue airplane caught fire Thursday during a hard landing in Sacramento that left 15 people with minor injuries and sent passengers down emergency slides to escape the aircraft.

Passenger Michelle McDuffie

said people onboard felt a thud when the plane touched down at about 12:50 p.m. after a flight from Long Beach, but nobody thought there was an emergency until the crew shouted for everyone to exit on the inflatable slides. McDuffie saw the burning tires when she was on the ground. "I thought, Oh I wish I had gotten my bag off. But I was just happy that I wasn't hurt," said McDuffie, 33, of Mission Viejo.

The plane appeared to experience trouble with its brakes, and four tires blew out during the landing, airline spokeswoman Sharon Jones said. Sacramento Fire Department crews were on scene within four minutes of being dispatched and were escorted to the runway by airport security, according to the department.

Sacramento County Airport System Aircraft Rescue Firefighters extinguished tires of the aircraft that were on fire, while Sacramento firefighters triaged aircraft passengers and crew, according to a Sacramento Fire Department release.

The 87 passengers were taken to the terminal on buses, airport spokeswoman Gina Swankie said.

NEW YORK Mayor seeks to calm cabbie, NYC after knife attack

NEW YORK — A Muslim cab driver whose face and throat were slashed in a suspected hate crime attack appeared with Mayor Michael Bloomberg on Thursday as city officials sought to ease tensions in the debate over a plan to put a mosque near the site of the 2001 terrorist attacks.

Meanwhile, investigators sought to unravel contradictions in the life of the suspect, a baby-faced college student who had traveled to Afghanistan with a group that seeks to promote interfaith understanding.

The Bangladeshi driver, Ahmed H. Sharif, said the proposed mosque and Islamic center north of the World Trade Center site did not come up in his conversation with the passenger accused of using a folding knife to slash his neck and face after asking whether he's a Muslim.

"Of course it was for my religion. He attacked me after he knew I was a Muslim," Sharif said at a news conference at City Hall.

Bloomberg said it is impossible to know the motive of the attack. But he made a pointed connection to the debate about the planned Islamic center, which has ignited intense emotions worldwide.

"This should never have happened and hopefully won't happen again," Bloomberg said.

Wildfire evacuations ordered in central Idaho

By Todd Dvorak
Associated Press writer

BOISE — Authorities in central Idaho asked residents living near and at Tamarack Resort to clear out of their homes and condominiums Thursday as firefighters battled the wind-fanned flames of the Hurd Fire burning about a mile away.

An immediate evacuation was ordered Thursday morning for subdivisions near the golf and ski resort. But hours later, as winds reached speeds of 30 mph, deputies began making the rounds to the pricier properties tucked between ski runs and pockets of forest.

Resort workers also turned on snowmaking equipment to soak unburned sections of the mountain, and air tankers dumped retardant on the mountain west of Donnelly.

So far, fire officials say there are no reports of property damage.

But that could change late Thursday when winds that have been blowing from the south all day are predicted to shift east, said Madonna Lengerich, spokeswoman for the Bureau of Land Management.

"It'll probably be a late night for all of our crews," said Lengerich. "Right now the fire is about a mile from the resort. But that doesn't mean much if we start getting the heavy and shifting winds."

The blaze began Saturday in a lightning strike but — fueled by wind gusts, dry conditions and heat — grew Wednesday night to 550 acres. More than 700 firefighters and support staff are on the scene and worked to contain at least 20 percent of it.

The blaze is one of several significant fires being fought across the state in a late-season surge in wildfire activity.

Near Stanley, more than 560 firefighters are battling the Banner Fire, which grew by 350 acres Wednesday and has now scorched more than 2,000 acres.

A lightning storm that moved through the Boise area Thursday afternoon ignited several more wildfires, including two in the southern regions of the Boise National Forest, said Dave Olson, spokesman for the forest.

Firefighters are responding to a wildfire at the Wilderness Ranch subdivision 25 miles northeast of Boise. Olson said about 30 structures and homes are threatened.

Tom Milby, who has lived four years at Wilderness Ranch, said firefighting aircraft used earlier at the Hurd Fire have been making pass after pass over his home, dropping retardant on a blaze burning just over the ridge from where his home is located.

Deputy cited for carrying guns while drinking

BOISE — The Ada County sheriff says a deputy has been cited and disciplined for carrying two guns while drinking at a downtown bar.

Sheriff Gary Raney says Deputy Ron Love was cited by Boise Police on July 4. Officers say Love was riding a mechanical bull when an employee noticed he had a gun.

One employee called police while another asked Love to leave the bar. He refused and police escorted him outside, where he was cited for being under the influence of alcohol while carrying a concealed weapon. Officers confiscated a .40 caliber Glock handgun and a .38 caliber Smith and Wesson revolver from Love. Neither was his service weapon.

Love, who has been with the department for 21 years, pleaded not guilty on July 12.

Love has been disciplined by the sheriff's office, but the sanctions were not made public.

Idaho National Lab facility might get $1 billion makeover

IDAHO FALLS — The Idaho National Laboratory's Naval Reactor Facility is in dire need of a makeover, according to the federal government, and the proposed upgrades are expected to carry a $1 billion price tag.

The U.S. Department of Energy's Naval Nuclear Propulsion Program has proposed plans to rebuild or repair buildings and equipment at the facility, which is located at the 890-square-mile federal nuclear research area in eastern Idaho.

The Naval Reactor Facility's infrastructure is more than 50 years old at a site used for the unloading, packaging and temporary storage of spent nuclear fuel from reactors aboard U.S. Navy vessels, the Post Register reports.

The deterioration of the facility about 52 miles northwest of Idaho Falls "could immediately and profoundly impact" its ability to support the refueling and de-fueling of nuclear powered submarines and aircraft carriers, the Department of Energy program said in a statement.

Bechtel Marine Propulsion Corp., the company contracted by the federal government to manage the INL Naval Reactor Facility, estimates the upgrades cost for the project will reach 10 figures.

The project is still in the preliminary stages and expected to begin in 2016, with construction scheduled for completion in 2020, company spokesman Rick Nieslanik said.

New visitor education center dedicated at Old Faithful

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK — The doors have opened at a new Visitor Education Center at Old Faithful in Yellowstone National Park.

Park Superintendent Suzanne Lewis hosted a dedication ceremony for the building Wednesday.

The center cost $27 million, $15 million of which came from the Yellowstone Park Foundation. Yellowstone officials say more than 400 individuals, foundations and corporations donated money to the project.

Donations ranged from just a couple of dollars to $3 million.

Idaho needs to change its gas price-fixing law

If you live in Idaho, you're always paid more for gas than the average American driver. But at the moment, the difference is 29 cents for a gallon of unleaded regular, meaning gas is 10 percent higher here than in the nation as a whole. That's excessive, and in our opinion, unwarranted.

Especially since oil prices have fallen 10 percent in the past three weeks. And the average price per gallon has declined 8 cents nationally since Aug. 9.

AVERAGE IDAHO GAS PRICES

- * $3.43 - Stanley
 - * $3.20 - Hailey, Jackpot, Nev.
 - * $3.19 - Ketchum

"Idaho's average price is sixth-highest in the country right now, an ongoing storyline that is yet to be explained," AAA Idaho spokesman Dave Carlson said. "Aside from regional market factors that frequently account for differences in prices, we're aware of no particular explanation why Idaho's prices have been at least 16 cents a gallon more than the average national price for the past five months."

A year ago, the difference between Idaho gas prices and the national average was 7 cents a gallon.

Unfortunately for Idahoans, the Legislature has made the attorney general pretty much powerless to investigate price-fixing.

Idaho's gas price-fixing law applies only to retailers, which means that everyone up the distribution chain - the wholesaler and the refiner - is exempt.

Moreover, it's only in force when the governor or the president declares a disaster or emergency. That means in normal times retailers and wholesalers are free to charge what they like.

The statute contains no numerical definition of "exorbitant or excessive." That has to be determined on a case-by-case basis.

And the law is so vague that it's difficult to determine what facts or circumstances might be relevant in evaluating a retailer's pricing.

The Idaho Association of Commerce and Industry, which heavily influenced Idaho's gas price-fixing law, argues that competition protects consumers.

Not so much. When Gov. Dirk Kempthorne signed the law on March 27, 2002, a gallon of regular unleaded in sold for $1.39 in Twin Falls. The average Thursday was $2.99.

In the past few years, both state Rep. Bert Stevenson, R-Rupert, and Rep. Wendy Jaquet, D-Ketchum, have suggested looking into changing Idaho's gas price-fixing law.

The 61st Legislature, which convenes Jan. 10, would be a good time to start.

The White House war on jobs

The "Summer of Recovery" is looking more and more like the Beltway Chainsaw Massacre for America's workers. As President Obama lolls on Martha's Vineyard with his well-heeled Chicago pals, a new Reuters/Ipsos poll shows that 72 percent of people are very worried about joblessness and 67 percent are very concerned about massive government spending.

After a nearly $1 trillion fiscal stimulus and several multibillion-dollar corporate and union bailouts, unemployment remains stuck near 10 percent nationwide; jobless claims rose again last week. One shudders to think how many more jobs will be on the chopping block after the vacationing president finishes "recharging his batteries."

Michelle Malkin

The blame avoidance industry, of course, never takes a break. Capitol Hill Democrats blame George W. Bush. President Obama blames inaction by the, er, Democrat-controlled Congress. On Tuesday, Vice President Joe Biden derided GOP Leader John Boehner's speech on the Obama job-killing machine as a return to the past. Biden sneered about the "good old days" when Republicans held the majority in Washington. But laid-off, unemployed and endangered Americans in the health care sector, the auto industry, and the oil, mining, gas, and fishing industries are no doubt wondering: What's wrong with returning to the days when we had jobs and steady paychecks?

These are not the wealthy fat cats and Big Business titans Democrats love to demonize.

They're employees of companies like Assurant Health, which announced last week that it would slash 130 jobs at its offices in Milwaukee and Plymouth, Minn., to prepare for costly Obamacare mandates.

They're employees of medical device firms in Massachusetts, where officials say they'll be forced to cut back on operational costs and jobs thanks to a little-noticed Obamacare tax on their products that goes into effect in 2013.

They're employees of restaurants like White Castle and International House of Pancakes, whose executives say they will be forced into layoffs and premium hikes to cope with the federal law's $3,000-per-employee penalty on companies whose workers pay more than 9.5 percent of household income in premiums for company-provided insurance.

They're mom-and-pop enterprises across the country that must now deal with Obamacare's onerous Section 9006 tax-filing mandate. It requires them to file 1099 forms with the IRS for every vendor from whom they purchase $600 or more in goods. Nebraska GOP Sen. Mike Johanns calls it one of many "job-crushing provisions" that will bury small business in paperwork and legal costs.

They're the estimated 23,000 workers in the deep-water drilling industry whom the White House

"... employees of restaurants like White Castle and International House of Pancakes ... will be forced into layoffs and premium hikes to cope with the federal law's $3,000-per-employee penalty on companies whose workers pay more than 9.5 percent of household income in premiums for company-provided insurance."

deliberately wrote off in pursuit of its junk science-based drilling moratorium.

They're the estimated tens of thousands of workers employed by car dealers that were shut down by Obama's auto czars at a time, as the TARP inspector general pointed out last month, "when the country was experiencing the worst economic downturn in generations and the government was asking its taxpayers to support a $787 billion stimulus package designed primarily to preserve jobs... - all based on a theory and without sufficient consideration of the decisions' broader economic impact."

They're employees of Utah oil and gas companies whose leases have been pulled without cause by Interior Secretary Ken Salazar. The Interior Department's own inspector general rejected Salazar's explanation that the Bush administration had rushed the leases through. The Deseret News reports that "rescinding these leases has likely cost the state millions already. Officials in Uintah County estimate the county lost 3,000 jobs in 2009, and Duchesne lost 1,000 jobs."

They're employees of commercial and recreational fishing businesses in New England, who have organized a flotilla on Martha's Vineyard on Thursday to protest the Obama administration's restrictive environmental policies and stealth regulatory ocean grab.

The White House has invested mightily in creating a propaganda infrastructure to tout its "jobs saved or created." Taxpayers need a full, transparent accounting of how many jobs Team Obama has destroyed. Call it Wreckovery.gov.

Twin Falls drivers seem to be in a hurry

I have a beef with many Twin Falls drivers.

I've been an outdoor jogger for 30 years now. I also ride my bike to do errands to save gas and get extra exercise.

Twin Falls drivers, you cut in front of me all the time! Is it really worth the five seconds you save or do you think you could let me pass?

"Cutter-offers," come on, it's five seconds ... OK, maybe 10 seconds, as I am getting older and slower, after all!

Eller is oriented to the future, solutions

Twin Falls is lucky to have a man in our midst running for county commissioner that has spent a lifetime in service to his country and its citizens.

Gary Eller served nearly 30 years in the military, rising to the level of colonel in Army Special Operations Forces. He has served many overseas tours of duty for our country, including being inspector general of the United States Training Mission in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia. He is a graduate of Idaho State University and holds a master's degree in international relations from Troy University in Troy, Ala.

Gary's business acumen, having been responsible for budgets, equipment, and men and women in commands with much larger scope than Twin Falls County, makes him uniquely prepared to deal with issues facing our Twin Falls County. He and his wife reside here in Twin Falls County on their ranch, where they raise and train American quarter horses. He understands the challenges ranchers, farmers and city folks alike are concerned about.

After retiring, Gary returned to the Magic Valley and taught high school students about our history, government and society. He is future oriented, not ideologically paralyzed, with a strong belief in supporting education. He cares deeply about our county, state and country. Gary acts in a manner respectful of political differences and is most concerned with doing what is necessary to get the job done.

I have found that Mr. Eller has a deep passion for serving others and works hard to be solution oriented. I wholeheartedly urge you to vote for him as county commissioner that we might have a man of his insights, experience, talents and passion representing us as a Twin Falls County commissioner.

Article on police was a home run

Your article, "Cops show a softer side," really impressed me.

What a lovely way to demonstrate that our police force is really the support system for our community and children need not fear their presence.

Thank you, Times-News. You hit a home run.

Jerome Senior Center is a wonderful place

To the people of Jerome: It is time to thank the manager, cooks, council members and all the great volunteers and businesses who have donated to the Jerome Senior Center.

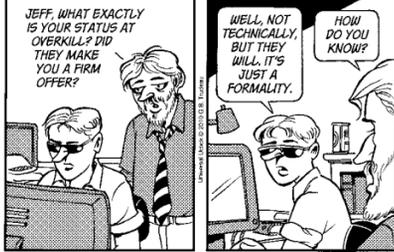

It is a wonderful, friendly place to meet friends, have a good meal, exercise and just enjoy a pleasant day.

I, for one, am so grateful to all the people who make the center a success.

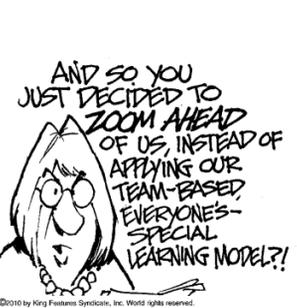

I have made many new friends there and think it is the best thing that ever happened to Jerome.

I love you all.

THE LIGHTER SIDE OF POLITICS

A revolution of failing expectations

In 2008, 60 Minutes visited Denmark to report on a survey of international happiness conducted by Leicester University in England that concluded Danes are among the happiest people on Earth. The reason? They have low expectations and thus, as Morley Safer noted, "are rarely disappointed."

This ought to be a Republican Party theme in the November and subsequent elections. If our expectations about politicians and government are lowered, we will then start expecting less from them and more from ourselves, then our prospects for happiness will likely be much improved.

Take spending. Clearly we can't go on like this. People should ask their grandparents if their parents told them, "We can't afford it" when they asked for certain things. In this generation, the question of whether we can afford something is rarely asked.

Our massive debt has produced an unease that America may be at greater risk from economic collapse than from terrorists. Excessive debt is terror by other means.

Brian Riedl of The Heritage Foundation (www.heritage.org) has performed a useful service by analyzing the 10-year budget baseline of the Congressional Budget Office, which puts the deficit at $6.2 trillion. Riedl says that's a phony figure because CBO is forced to make assumptions based on what Congress tells it. The true baseline deficit, says Riedl — based on a continuation of current spending and tax policies — amounts to $13 trillion over the next decade.

If ever there was a time when "we can't afford it" actually means something, this is that time.

Here are Riedl's conclusions:

- Even as war spending phases out and the economy recovers, the projected budget deficit never drops below $1 trillion, and reaches nearly $2 trillion by 2020.

- The national debt held by the public is set to surpass 100 percent of the Gross Domestic Product (GDP) by 2020.

- By 2020, half of all income tax revenues will go toward paying interest on a $23 trillion national debt.

- Federal spending per household, which has risen from $25,000 to nearly $30,000 over the past three years, would top $38,000 by 2020. The national debt per household, which was $52,000 before the recession, would approach $150,000 by 2020 (all adjusted for inflation).

- Even if all tax cuts are extended, revenues will still surpass the 18.0 percent of GDP historical average by 2020. The reason the deficit will surge 6 percent of GDP above its average is because spending will surge to 6 percent of GDP above its average.

The entire analysis by Riedl may be found at <http://www.heritage.org/R> research/Reports/2010/08/New-CBO-Budget-Baseline-Shows-that-Soaring-Spending-Not-Falling-Revenues-Risks-Drowning-America.

Read it and weep for yourself and for future generations.

Some Republicans, like Rep. Paul Ryan of Wisconsin, are offering credible and thoughtful ways to get us out of this mess. Will the Republican leadership follow, or will it simply try to manage the big government liberal Democrats created, cutting only a little around the edges?

Lowering expectations of government and politicians is only half the equation. We must then raise expectations for ourselves. "You can do it" is more than a rousing assurance from a parent after the training wheels come off and we ride the two-wheeler for the first time, it's the ratification of the individual's power over the weakening power of the state.

Do we really need all we consume? After buying it, how much of it really satisfies? If we look to government to care for us, rather than looking to ourselves and to family, the time will come when government won't be able to, health care will be rationed and our lives will be deemed unworthy of continuing.

Thomas Jefferson said we had the right to pursue happiness. He didn't tell us where to find it. Lowering expectations of government and politicians and raising our own expectations is where happiness — or at least contentment — can be found.

How many other Republicans, besides Paul Ryan and too few of his colleagues, will tell us what we need to hear? For the first time in a very long time, the public may be ready for some strong medicine.

How to save public television

Epiphanies can come at you from the damndest places. Mine was delivered by a cute, doe-eyed, bilingual animation character named Dora the Explorer.

Dora the Explorer is the kind of morning children's show that epitomizes public television. It's gentle, funny, educational and culturally sensitive. Kids gobble it up. But Dora isn't produced or aired by PBS. If it were, it would cost tens of millions of dollars and become the subject of a thousand pledge breaks that might just help it to break even. Dora, by contrast, is produced by and aired on Nickelodeon, and the show is seen by twice as many kids as PBS can muster.

Why does such disparity exist? Why is public television, both nationally and locally, awash in red ink despite its enormously popular programming, while Nickelodeon (and its fellow networks, including the History Channel, A&E, National Geographic and Animal Planet) are making money?

If you asked Dora, she could answer in a second — in Spanish and English: "cable."

So now we come to my epiphany: PBS should market itself as a network to cable and satellite providers rather than having each individual affiliated station across the country offer itself for free.

The PBS Channel, with its strong lineup of shows, such as Sesame Street,

Jack Shakely

American Experience, Frontline, Nature and Nova, would have no trouble whatsoever getting every cable and satellite provider across the country to carry it. It would get paid by the providers just like every other network that is part of the basic cable package, and the need for those annoying pledge breaks would vanish overnight.

So simple, so elegant, and yet probably impossible to pull off. Why? To understand the difficulty, we need to look back in history.

Early public television was a delivery system in search of a product. From the first public television station in Houston in 1954, the operation was conceived as strictly a local affair, broadcasting educational programs into schools a few hours a day, always during school hours. Regular citizens couldn't even pick up the UHF stations without buying a converter box for their TVs.

By 1960, there were more than 200 public television stations covering every major city in America, but no network. But though the public television stations in the 1960s didn't have a network, they became very good at joining forces to lobby Congress for money. In 1969, both the Corp. for Public Broadcasting and the Public Broadcasting Service, or PBS, were created, and American public television was off and running (ironically, however, the first public television national hit in 1969 was The Forsyte Saga from the BBC).

The national system for public broadcasting created back then was cumbersome and expensive. But it was the only system we had. It would be more than five years before premium cable network HBO and Ted Turner's WTBS "superstation" would change the delivery of television programming forever.

Cable television in the 1970s was fresh, loaded with potential and instantly hated by the powerful commercial television networks. A series of draconian laws were enacted to keep cable television literally out in the backwoods, relegated to those areas of rural America without strong signals. Even if public television executives could have imagined a PBS cable network in the 1980s, it would have been political suicide to suggest it. This was the time when President Reagan was successfully cutting millions of dollars out of the Public Broadcasting Service budget, and the National Association of Educational Broadcasters went bankrupt. It was a time to hold the fort and wait for better days. But the good days never returned.

Public television hit its peak in 1987, and it's been a slow but steady decline ever since. From a peak of almost 3 million viewers, its Nielson ratings today seldom creep above 1 million. At the same time, cable's share of viewers has grown prodigiously, with some cable shows such as The Closer outdrawing its competition on the four major networks.

PBS is losing staff, market share and money, but before it can go cable, it must address the rhinoceros in the living room — the more than 300 local public television stations. Some, including WGBH in Boston, produce numerous national shows and are thriving. But many would die without the PBS affiliation that allows them the right to air the network's shows in their markets.

Most public television stations will merge or go broke in the next five years anyway, and PBS in its current configuration can't be far behind. But as Dora the Explorer knows, there are always new frontiers to conquer. The PBS Channel should be the next one. The technology is there; the money would be a cinch. Do we have the political muscle to make it happen?

Taliban hint at attacks on flood-aid workers

MIR ALI — The Taliban hinted Thursday they may launch attacks against foreigners helping Pakistan respond to the worst floods in the country's history, saying their presence was "unacceptable." The U.N. said it would not be deterred by violent threats.

The militant group has attacked aid workers in the country before, and an outbreak of violence could complicate a relief effort that has already struggled to reach the 8 million people who are in need of emergency assistance.

Pakistani Taliban spokesman Azam Tariq claimed the U.S. and other countries that have pledged support are not really focused on providing aid to flood victims but had other motives he did not specify.

"Behind the scenes they have certain intentions, but on the face they are talking of relief and help," Tariq told The Associated Press by telephone from an undisclosed location. "No relief is reaching the affected people, and when the victims are not receiving help, then this horde of foreigners is not acceptable to us at all."

He strongly hinted that the militants could resort to violence, saying "when we say something is unacceptable to us, one can draw one's own conclusion."

AFGHANISTAN
Attacks in north, west stoke fears of Taliban expansion

KABUL — Eight Afghan police gunned down at a checkpoint. Campaign workers kidnapped. Spanish trainers shot dead on their base.

A spurt of violence this week in provinces far from the Taliban's main southern strongholds suggests the insurgency is spreading, even as the top U.S. commander insists the coalition has reversed the militants' momentum in key areas of the ethnic Pashtun south where the Islamist movement was born.

Attacks in the north and west of the country — though not militarily significant — demonstrate that the Taliban are becoming a threat across wide areas of Afghanistan even as the United States and its partners mount a major effort to turn the tide of the nearly 9-year-old war in the south.

The latest example occurred Thursday when about a dozen gunmen stormed a police checkpoint at the entrance to the city of Kunduz, about 150 miles north of the Afghan capital, Kabul. Eight policemen were killed, provincial police chief Abdul Raziq Yaqubi said.

Also Thursday, a candidate in next month's parliamentary elections said 10 of her campaign workers were kidnapped while traveling in the northwestern province of Herat, 450 miles west of the capital.

The candidate, Fawzia Galani, said villagers told her armed men had stopped the group Wednesday and drove them off in their two vehicles.

THAILAND
603-pound woman leaves home for first time in 3 years

BANGKOK — A 603-pound woman believed to be the heaviest in Thailand left her apartment for the first time in three years Thursday with the help of Bangkok city hall and a forklift.

Neighbors of 40-year-old Umnuayporn Tongprapai contacted the Bangkok Metropolitan Authority when they learned she needed medical attention to remove a tumor in her right leg. Bangkok's media-savvy governor Sukhumbhand Paribatra summoned camera crews to document the event, which involved engineers, demolition crews, rescue workers, doctors and nurses.

Umnuayporn walked slowly to a trolley aided by her son. She was rolled down the corridor to a nearby empty apartment where workers had torn down an inner wall to allow her entry and demolished a section of the building's facade to take her outside.

As neighbors cheered on the pavement, Umnuayporn smiled and flashed a "V" for victory as she was lowered from the apartment by an elevator constructed outside. A forklift then transferred her to a waiting ambulance that took her to a Bangkok hospital.

NIGERIA
Oil-rich but candlelit Nigeria seeks power system upgrade

LAGOS — When the sun sets in Nigeria, candle flames dance against the darkness, flashlights bob down empty streets and thousands of diesel generators cough to life.

This nation has more than enough oil and natural gas to satisfy its energy needs, but its power grid is a wreck, reaching less than half the population even on a good day. To frustrated Nigerians, the initials of the state-run electricity provider, the Power Holding Company of Nigeria — stand more aptly for "Please Have Candles Nearby."

Nigerian President Goodluck Jonathan vowed Thursday to set things right by expanding, repairing and privatizing the system — a hugely important issue for the nation of 150 million, with presidential elections scheduled for early next year. He made the announcement in a luxury Lagos hotel powered around the clock by diesel generators.

The effort will require enormous investment. In a report released Thursday, Nigerian officials suggested that $100 billion "would represent a conservative estimate" to build new power plants and transmission lines over the next decade.

There haven't been improvements in Nigeria's electrical grid since the 1970s, and its population has almost tripled since then. Former President Olusegun Obasanjo, who governed from 1999-2007 and is a mentor to Jonathan, purportedly spent as much as $16 billion to revamp the power grid — to no visible effect.

Professional investors revitalize home 'flipping'

By Walter Hamilton and Alejandro Lazo
Los Angeles Times writer

Hoping there are big profits to be made in the aftermath of the housing collapse, professional investors are flocking to the business of buying foreclosed homes at distressed prices. The investors, primarily private equity funds and groups of wealthy individuals, purchase the homes at public auctions, which are held daily on the steps of local courthouses. They refurbish the properties and try to sell them for quick profits.

Not long ago, the typical home flipper was an amateur tapping a home equity line or savings for an investment property. But professionals have rushed in, partly because of sparse investment opportunities elsewhere.

"In crisis there's opportunity," said Rick Hudson, president of investment firm Prosperity Group Real Estate in Irvine, Calif. "Right now, there's huge opportunity with flipping houses."

Closely watched gauges of professional buying have surged over the past two years.

The number of homes sold at foreclosure auctions in California increased to 4,336 in April, from 884 in January 2009, according to research firm ForeclosureRadar. It eased back to 3,483 in July as banks offered fewer properties for sale. The auctions are dominated by professional investors who shop with cash (although not usually with actual greenbacks, for practical reasons).

Another measure, the percentage of all homes sold to absentee buyers, paints a similar picture. In California's hard-hit Inland Empire, for instance, 30 percent of all homes sold in April went to absentee buyers — up from 19 percent at the end of 2008 and the highest level in at least seven years, according to San Diego research firm MDA DataQuick. It was at 28.2 percent in July.

The binge of professional buying has helped spark a nascent housing recovery in Southern California, an area staggered by the subprime mortgage meltdown, because investors have cut significantly into a glut of foreclosed properties.

Home sales in that region rose 7.2 percent in June from May and 2.6 percent from a year earlier, according to MDA DataQuick. In July, overall sales tumbled 20.6 percent, primarily because of the expiration of federal tax credits, but the region's median home price of $295,000 was off only 1.7 percent from June.

The fragile rebound in the broader market contrasts with the behind-the-scenes scramble at foreclosure auctions.

"There's a tremendous amount of capital that is desperate to just buy anything right now," said Gil Priel, principal of a real estate investment firm in Woodland Hills, Calif.

In some cases, well-financed newcomers are elbowing out smaller investors at auction sales.

"The people who want to go and buy a house to flip, and do one or two, are already exiting the market," said Jan Brzeski, who manages a residential investment fund at Standard Capital in Los Angeles.

The swarm of new investors, however, is making a treacherous and labor-intensive business even tougher.

Investors must do their homework on dozens of homes for every one they buy. Legal and other impediments usually prevent them from going into homes prior to buying them, leaving no way to gauge repair costs.

The influx of new players is pushing up auction prices and squeezing profits. The average discount at auctions — the difference between a home's sale price and its actual value — is 21.6 percent, down from 28 percent in January 2009, according to ForeclosureRadar.

Dell says 3Par accepts its buyout bid

By Jessica Mintz
Associated Press writer

SEATTLE — Dell Inc. said Thursday that data-storage maker 3Par Inc. has accepted its raised buyout bid of $1.52 billion, after the computer maker topped an offer from rival Hewlett-Packard Co.

HP and Dell, among the world's largest personal computer makers, are looking at 3Par as a way to build up their "cloud computing" businesses, which involve delivering software, data storage and other services to customers over the Internet. The companies want 3Par to help keep data-storage costs down because the company has technology that does out storage space on the fly.

Dell's new offer is $24.30 a share in cash, up from its $18-per-share offer, or about $1.13 billion, on Aug. 16. Rival HP had countered with an offer of about $1.5 billion on Monday, or about $24 per share.

The back-and-forth bidding for such an obscure company underscores how serious Dell and HP are about finding more profitable businesses than selling computers. The companies that made personal computers affordable and ubiquitous must now draw new buyers by offering more sophisticated PCs with ever-lower prices. The cost of parts, meanwhile, has increased this year, putting even more of a squeeze on profits.

Cloud computing holds the promise of richer profits for technology providers because many

Credit card reform has companies treading lightly on campuses

By Ylan Q. Mui
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Credit card reform came too late for 20-year-old Tamaira Shaw.

The junior at the University of the District of Columbia got a pre-approved credit card from Bank of America in the mail her freshman year of college. It had her name on it and a $500 limit, and she took it as a license to spend. Within three days, she bought a new cell phone, new clothes and new textbooks — and maxed out her card. Her mother is still helping her pay off the balance — plus hundreds of dollars in finance charges and fees.

The landmark federal legislation that overhauled the credit card industry is now reaching into college campuses to protect students as they return to school and attempt to juggle not only their education and social lives but also how to pay for it all.

The Dow Jones industrial fell 74.25, or 0.7 percent, to 9,985.81. The Dow had traded below 10,000 several times this week, but hadn't closed below that level since July 6.

Broader market barometers also fell. The Standard & Poor's 500 fell 8.11, or 0.8 percent, to 1,047.22, while the Nasdaq fell 22.85, or 1.1 percent, to 2,118.69.

Falling stocks outpaced rising ones two-to-one on the New York Stock Exchange, where volume came to 1 billion shares. The yield on the 10-year Treasury note dipped to 2.48 percent from 2.54 percent late Wednesday. Its yield helps set interest rates on mortgages and other consumer loans. Long-term bond yields are hovering around levels not recorded since early 2009, when the country was in the depths of the recession and stocks hit 12-year lows.

European markets got a lift from an improved consumer confidence reading on Germany's economy. Germany's DAX index rose 0.2 percent. France's CAC-40 climbed 0.7 percent and Britain's FTSE 100 rose 0.9 percent.

COMMUNITY NEWS

Donate now to help Greene family

The family of Kyle J. Greene of Eden would like to thank everyone involved at the scene of the car crash, along U.S. Highway 93 in Jerome County, where Greene's car was struck by a semitrailer. He is in stable condition and expected to be released soon.

Donations are being accepted to help the family and can be left at the Valley High School.

Ag Safety Day aims to keep kids safe

Children ages 8-12 are invited to attend the Progressive Agriculture Safety Day from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sept. 25 at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds, Merchant Building No. 2 in Filer. Registration is limited to 175 children, so register early.

Topics for demonstrations and discussions include ATV safety, fire safety, home alone/first aid and animal safety.

Parents can also attend a 9 a.m. or 3 p.m. session on farm safety aimed just at them.

The day includes lunch, snacks, a T-shirt, bike helmet and a take-home goodie bag. Information and registration: Carma McKinnon, 814-7640 or carmaMcK@myrnc.org.

Himpe named to Kansas college honor roll

Garden City Community College in Garden City, Kan. has released its honor rolls for the spring semester of 2010. Amanda Himpe of Twin Falls was among the students named to the dean's honor roll.

Students need to earn a 3.2 to 3.99 grade-point average with a full-time enrollment in eight or more credit hours to be eligible for the dean's list.

Hurley graduates from basic combat training

Army National Guard Pfc. Anthony J. Hurley has graduated from basic combat training at Fort Jackson, Columbia, S.C.

During the nine weeks of training, Hurley studied the Army mission, history, tradition and core values, and physical fitness. He also received instruction and practice in basic combat skills, military weapons, chemical warfare and bayonet training, drill and ceremony, marching, rifle marksmanship, armed and unarmed combat, map reading, field tactics, military courtesy, the military justice system, basic first aid, foot marches, and field training exercises.

He is the son of Chris and Edith Hurley of Buhl and a 2007 Buhl High School graduate.

Local students named to Creighton University dean's list

Morgen L. Bybee of Burley and Andrea S. Radabaugh of Paul were named to the Creighton University School of Dentistry dean's list for the 2010 spring semester.

Full-time students who earn a 3.5 grade-point average or better on a 4.0 scale are eligible for the dean's honor roll.

Creighton University, a Catholic, Jesuit institution located in Omaha, Neb., enrolls more than 4,100 undergraduate and 3,200 professional school and graduate students. Information: www.creighton.edu.

Two locals named to dean's list at Azusa Pacific University

Staci L. Beukers, an undeclared major student from Twin Falls, and Marissa A. Jessor, a history major from Kimberly, were named to the dean's list at Azusa Pacific University in Azusa, Calif. They join nearly 1,500 other students who were honored for a spring semester 2010 academic standing of a 3.5-or-better grade-point average.

Azusa Pacific University is a comprehensive, evangelical, Christian university located 26 miles northeast of Los Angeles. Azusa offers more than 60 areas of undergraduate study, 26 master's degree programs and seven doctorates to a total student population of more than 8,500 on campus, online and at seven regional centers across Southern California.

— Staff reports

SOMEBODY NEEDS YOU

Donations — The College of Southern Idaho Refugee Center is collaborating with Troy Dewsnap for his Eagle Scout project. Dewsnap is collecting new and gently used adult-sized bikes through Sept. 7; he will repair the bikes and donate them to the refugee center. Refugees new to the U.S. often rely on bikes as their only source of transportation to jobs and for grocery shopping. To donate a bike: Dewsnap at 423-5088. Information: CSI Refugee Center, 736-2166 or 1526 Highland Ave. E., Twin Falls.

Volunteers — Hospice Visions needs volunteers to help make a difference in the lives of caregivers and those experiencing end-of-life issues. Volunteers provide companionship, bring joy during difficult times and ease burdens by writing letters, singing, playing cards and games, reading, working with junior volunteers or being a friend. Information: Flo, 735-0121.

Volunteers — St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center needs volunteers to assist in a variety of positions. Qualifications include friendly, compassionate individuals; the ability to set priorities, such as punctuality, dependability and responsibility; the physical ability to walk, stand and sit for a period of time; and the ability to take the initiative and be flexible, assuming different roles as needed to provide help or comfort to patients, visitors and staff. Information: Kim, 737-2006, or St. Luke's Volunteer Services Office, fifth floor, 650 Addison Ave. W., Twin Falls.

Mentors/volunteers — The Easter Seals Goodwill GoodGuides program is part of a national mentoring program providing guidance to boys and girls ages 12 to 17. Volunteer opportunities in the Magic Valley include mentors, speakers, tutors, activity directors and mentor leaders. Teens are needed to be part of the Teen Advisory Board, which meets about every three months for one or two hours per meeting to provide input, feedback and guidance for the program. Information: Tristan or LeWayne, 736-2026 or 2469 Wright Ave., Twin Falls.

Volunteers — Guardian Home Care and Hospice needs volunteers in the Twin Falls, Jerome, Gooding, Glens Ferry and Burley areas to assist with patient care: sit with patients, play games and read to patients, or help in the office. Information: Nicole, 736-0900.

Drivers — Twin Falls Senior Citizens Center needs volunteer drivers for the home-delivered meals program for the homebound. Drivers do not have to be seniors to volunteer to drive one or two days a week for an hour to an hour and a half. The center needs people who can be relied on for their appointed routes and who care about the well-being of the elderly. Reimbursed mileage for gas is available. Information: Joanna, 734-5084, or 530 Shoshone St. W., Twin Falls.

WANT TO HELP?

This public service column is designed to match needs in the Magic Valley with volunteer help. If you need a volunteer, contact the Retired and Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) at 736-4764, before noon Wednesday for Friday publication. Mother asks, are stress and baldness linked?

DEAR DR. GOTT: My son has a bald spot on the back of his head. His doctor said it was stress-related alopecia. His hair grew back and his scalp was normal, but the bald spot reappeared, bigger, and is lasting much longer. So his doctor told him to buy Rogaine.

Am I correct that now he should see a dermatologist? I don't think he's stressed.

DEAR READER: I'm not all that sure your son suffers from alopecia, an autoimmune disorder in which the immune system attacks hair follicles. In most cases, with the various types of alopecia, hair falls out in small patches about the size of a quarter. It can regrow in the same areas but may fall out again, repeating the pattern. Severe cases result in complete loss of hair over the entire body. Treatment to promote hair growth may include minoxidil (Rogaine), topical creams and corticosteroids.

An individual suffering from alopecia will not ordinarily have other autoimmune difficulties but could have an increased incidence of nasal allergies, atopic eczema, asthma and thyroid disorder.

Most people shed up to 100 hairs every day and don't bald. And thinning hair is often a part of the aging process that occurs because of hormonal changes. Balding occurs when the rate hair sheds surpasses the rate it grows. Causes can include having diabetes or lupus; scalp infection such as ringworm; a hair-pulling disorder, such as exhibited with mental illness; medical treatment, such as chemotherapy and radiation for cancer; use of specific medications for arthritis, high blood pressure, some cardiac conditions or gout; several forms of alopecia; and still more. A specific diagnosis can be made through scalp scrapings and other methods.

Your son may have a hormonal or medical disorder. I would defer to his primary-care physician regarding involving a dermatologist.

Rogaine is an over-the-counter medication to slow hair loss and promote new growth for androgenic alopecia and alopecia areata. It is rubbed onto the scalp twice daily, and it may take up to 12 weeks before any progress is seen.

It is up to your son to determine whether he can adapt to early baldness or whether he is so concerned that he chooses to consider a wig, surgical implant or medication. If he is under a great deal of stress at work or in his private life, he may wish to address that issue as well.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband has been taking Simply Sleep by Tylenol nightly for more than a year. I feel it is harmful to the body. There's no warning on the label that states it causes liver damage, but other sleep aids have the warning.

DEAR READER: Simply Sleep is an antihistamine that contains diphenhydramine, a common ingredient in several sleep aids. It was designed for occasional sleeplessness and difficulties falling asleep. I agree with your view and don't believe it is meant to be taken every night.

Nonetheless, I don't know his complete medical history, whether he eats properly, exercises, is under stress, or works a swing shift. Many factors can come into play here. Your husband should speak with his physician for an opinion on the matter.

To provide related information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Sleep/Wake Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send a self-addressed stamped No. 10 envelope and a $2 check or money order to Newsletter, P.O. Box 167, Wickliffe, OH 44092-0167. Be sure to mention the title or print an order form off my website at www.AskDrGottMD.com.

LaRene Whitaker

BURLEY — LaRene Kay Whitaker, age 64, of Burley and formerly of Malta, died Tuesday, Aug. 24, 2010, at her home from complications of diabetes.

LaRene was born Oct. 29, 1945, in Rupert, Idaho, to Harvey J. and Sarah Mae Darrington Wight. She graduated from Raft River High School in 1964 and attended Brigham Young University for one year. She married her high school sweetheart, Arthur Don Whitaker, on April 5, 1967, in Malta, and they were later sealed with their children in the Logan Temple on Jan. 17, 1987.

In her youth, LaRene loved riding horses, was a cheerleader and was involved in various clubs and organizations. She helped with the family ranch in Malta, worked at Raft River Electric, was active in the LDS Church with various callings such as Primary president, Relief Society president and ward librarian. Her hobbies included crocheting, spending time with friends, watching her grandkids' activities, family history, scrapbooking, reading, watching movies and traveling.

She is survived by her sons, Justin (Kimberly) Whitaker of Burley and Andy (Tia) Whitaker of Malta; her daughters, Kimberly (Shay)

Watterson of Burley and Nikelle (Brent) Farley of Morgan, Utah; 12 grandchildren; her sisters, Donna Butler of Kaysville, Utah, and Clara Beyler of Malta; and her brother, Jack (Elmoine) Wight of Malta. She was preceded in death by her parents; her daughter, Jennifer Lynn Whitaker; her husband, Arthur Don Whitaker; and her brother, Harold Wight.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Monday, Aug. 30, at the Malta LDS Church, with Bishop Brad Hutchison officiating. Burial will be in the Valley Vu Cemetery. Friends may call from 6 until 8 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 29, at the Rasmussen Funeral Home, 1350 E. 16th St. in Burley, and from 1 until 1:45 p.m. Monday at the church.

Condolences may be sent to the family in care of Rasmussen Funeral Home.

Korvan Blake Welch

HEYBURN — Korvan Blake Welch, a 49-year-old resident of Heyburn, passed away Monday, Aug. 23, 2010, at his home in Heyburn after a lengthy illness.

Korvan was born Nov. 16, 1960, in Pocatello, Idaho, the son of Desmond and Verla Smith Welch. He married Maryann Francis in 1982 and to this union was born his daughter, Amber. He was later divorced. On Aug. 31, 1991, he married Merrie Ann Gardunio. Korvan spent the majority of his life as a long-haul truck driver. He enjoyed spending most of his free time in the outdoors whether it be fishing, camping, dirt bike riding or evening walks with his wife.

Survivors include his wife, Merrie Ann (Annie) Welch of Heyburn; father, Desmond H. Welch of Twin Falls; brothers, Randy (Jackie) Welch of Twin Falls and Cary (Lynette) Welch of Boise; sister, Pam (Geney) Spaulding of Jerome; daughter, Amber (David) Lazenby; stepchild, Gabriel (Melissa) Gardunio, Miriam Grubbs (Simon Rodriguez), Michael (Karen) Gardunio, Raphael Gardunio and Pedro Gardunio; grandchildren; and numerous nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by an infant daughter, his mother, and paternal and maternal grandparents.

The funeral will be held at 2 p.m. Monday, Aug. 30, at the Heyburn LDS 1st Ward Chapel, 530 Villa Drive, with Bishop Bruce Burtenshaw officiating. Burial will be in the Riverside Cemetery. Friends may call from 6 to 8 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 29, at the Morrison Funeral Home, 188 S. Highway 24 in Rupert, and 1 to 1:45 p.m. Monday at the church.

Friends and family are invited to contribute to a memorial fund set up in Korvan's name at US Bank at the Burley or Twin Falls branches.

Arrangements are under the direction of Morrison Funeral Home in Rupert.

James Robert Fisher

James Robert Fisher, 82, a resident of Twin Falls, died Wednesday, Aug. 25, 2010, in his home.

Jim was born Nov. 24, 1927, in Greeley, Neb., to Janis J. and Deborah Fisher. As a young boy, he moved with his family to Sandpoint and then down to southern Idaho. At the age of 14, he moved to Ruby Valley, Nev., where he worked as a ranch hand until he joined the U.S. Navy in January of 1946. When honorably discharged, he moved to Tulley Lake, Calif., and became a Fish and Game conservation officer, where he met his wife of 61 years and love of his life, Nina J. Smith.

They eventually moved to the Magic Valley in Idaho, where together they raised their four children. Jim began work farming the local area where he often helped fight local fires. Eventually, he found his calling as a sheet metal worker until retirement. Some of Jim's favorite pastimes included fishing, hunting and camping with his family or friends. After retirement, he and his wife worked as camp hosts in the beautiful and rugged areas of Idaho that they loved so much. Jim was known to be a stubborn but fair man. He devoted his life to his family and friends and was always there if they ever needed him.

Jim is preceded in death by both his parents; two brothers, Jack and Melvin Fisher; and a son, Wesley "Vic" Fisher. Jim is survived by his wife, Nina of Twin Falls; his children, Carrie Watson of Indianapolis, Ind., Robert (Debbie) Fisher of Twin Falls and Richard Fisher of Hailey; six grandchildren, Sharea (Rob) Brehm of Indiana, Chana Watson of Indiana, Jason Fisher of Twin Falls, Westin (Sadie) Fisher of Twin Falls, Heather (Carl) Seaman of Mountain Home and Nicole Fisher of Hailey; and four great-grandchildren.

A viewing for Jim will be held from 6 until 8 p.m. Friday, Aug. 27, at White Mortuary "Chapel by the Park." A graveside service will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 28, at Sunset Memorial Park.

To share a memory of Jim or to offer condolences to Jim's family, please visit www.whitemortuary.com.

Martin Dannenberg, U.S. soldier who found copy of Nuremberg Laws, dies at 94

The Baltimore Sun

BALTIMORE — Martin Ernest Dannenberg, who as a young World War II Army sergeant discovered a copy of the anti-Semitic Nuremberg Laws, one of Nazi Germany's most infamous documents, died Aug. 18 in his sleep at his home in Guilford, Md. He was 94.

Dannenberg, who was a special agent in charge of an Army counterintelligence team, told The Baltimore Sun in 1999 about the moment on April 28, 1945, when he realized the significance of the documents he had found in a small-town bank in Eichstätt, Germany.

What he held was a rather ordinary brown manila envelope sealed with red wax embossed with swastikas.

"I had a most peculiar feeling when I had this in my hand, that I should be the one who should uncover this," Dannenberg said. "Because here is this thing that (begins) the persecution of the Jews. And a Jewish person has found it."

Dannenberg carefully slit the top of the envelope and withdrew the typescript documents. The first thing he saw was Adolf Hitler's signature.

Dannenberg was accompanied by Frank Perls — a U.S. military translator, the son of Jewish art dealers in Berlin and a refugee from Nazi Germany.

Thursday, Aug. 26, 2010, at the Bennett Hills Care Center in Gooding.

Arrangements will be announced by Demaray Funeral Service, Gooding Chapel (www.demarayfuneralservice.com).

The Jayanthi Raman Dance Co. will perform three styles of traditional Indian dance Sept. 15 at College of Southern Idaho.

Lyrical Indian dancers visit Twin Falls

By Melissa Davlin
Times-News writer

You don't need to be an expert on dance or India to enjoy this show.

Colorful costumes, vibrant drum beats and tinkling ankle bells will flood the College of Southern Idaho's Fine Arts Auditorium on Sept. 15. The Jayanthi Raman Dance Co., sponsored by the CSI Diversity Council, is coming to Twin Falls to share its traditional dances.

Choreographer Dr. Jayanthi Raman of Portland, Ore., founded the Natya Dance Academy in 1993 and incorporates her love of science into the dance.

Edit Szanto, CSI Diversity Council adviser, said students wanted to bring the troupe.

"This is right in with (the council's) mission," she said.

The show combines Manipuri, Odissi and Bharata natyam styles of traditional Indian dance. Each of the 12 dancers, including Raman, performs just one style of dance; it's hard enough to master one style, she said, without adding others. Each of the styles hails from a different area of India.

Although the three dances share similarities, it's possible for the untrained eye to tell them apart.

Manipuri dancers don't wear ankle bells, and they strike the ground softly with their feet. The movements are circular and delicate, Raman said.

"It's a very gentle art form," she said.

The Manipuri dancers will perform with Pung drummers, whom Raman compared to Japanese taiko dancers. The Indian state the art originates from,

Choreographer and physician Jayanthi Raman blends science and tradition in her dance concepts.

THE SHOW

- What: College of Southern Idaho's Diversity Council presents Jayanthi Raman Dance Co.'s "Shrishti — Creation"
- When: 7:30 p.m. Sept. 15
- Where: College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Auditorium
- Admission: $5 for the public and free to CSI students with current ID. A free workshop had been scheduled for earlier that day, but the workshop has been cancelled.

Manipur, was off-limits to travelers until about 50 years ago, Raman said, and still restricts access to foreigners outside of its capital city. Pung drummers are rare outside Manipur.

"They're amazing. They're so vibrant," she said.

Odissi dancers move the head, chest and pelvis in smooth, isolated motions independent from each other. The style is also set apart by a characteristic square pose, called the chauka, in which the dancer holds her bent arms out to her side and squats with her knees facing outward. The movements are smooth and rounded.

Bharata natyam, Raman's specialty, is characterized by elaborate, dramatic movements. The footwork is fast and syncs perfectly with the drumbeat. Dancers

Proving Idaho's indie cred

HEAR FINN RIGGINS LIVE

HAILEY — When Finn Riggins performs across the nation, as the band has in the past few years, its musicians are often geography teachers.

"We are always telling people that Idaho has the largest wilderness area in the country, all these mountains and rivers," said keyboardist Eric Gilbert, who often has to explain where it is, and that it's not a flatland vowel state from the middle of the U.S. "We constantly surprised people, that they expected people from Idaho not to be this edgy and weird. We're not all just a bunch of hicks lost back in time."

It helped that they were touring with Built To Spill, a Boise-based band that has been building national and international indie cred with its so-called "Northwest sound."

Although Finn Riggins got its start in Hailey, the two bands connected in the Boise musical scene, which Built To Spill frontman Doug Martsch frequents as a listener as well as a performer. Finn Riggins drummer Cam Bouiss said Martsch has been supportive of the band, bringing them on two national tours in the past year.

"That's been a huge help, and we're very grateful and thankful to those guys for liking our music and being willing to take us along with them," Gilbert said. "It's kind of cool to be ambassadors for the state of Idaho, assuring people there is rock music out here that is halfway interesting."

Finn Riggins has maintained a rigorous touring schedule over the last four years, performing as many as 250 shows a year. Last March it performed at South by Southwest (also known as SXSW), a film and music festival in Austin, Texas, that has been the launching pad for many bands. It has played well-known venues like the Orange Peel in Asheville, N.C., and the former Roxy in Atlanta and will play the Fillmore Auditorium in San Francisco this fall.

Making the big time isn't Finn Riggins' goal, though.

"We're not looking for any-

In addition to dates with Built to Spill in California this October, Finn Riggins is performing across the Pacific Northwest in coming weeks. In southern Idaho, the band will play tonight at the Flipside Lounge in Pocatello, Saturday at The Big Le Boise Block Party in Boise, Sunday at The Red Room in Boise, Sept. 8 at the NeuroLux in Boise, and Oct. 2 at Whiskey Jacques in Ketchum. Full schedule of dates and locations: myspace.com/finnriggins.

thing other than sustainability," Bouiss said. He said their performances used to be paid for out of band members' pockets, but now their touring costs are covered by profits from their shows and their merchandise.

Each band member has other employment to pay the non-musical bills, though, with Gilbert doing sound for venues, guitarist and vocalist Lisa Simpson working with developmentally disabled children, and Bouiss taking odd jobs around the Wood River Valley.

"It'd be nice to play music and pay your bills doing it," Bouiss said.

The musicians have kept costs low by doing many things themselves, from pressing their own CDs before they signed with Portland, Ore.-based record label Tender Loving Empire to screen-printing T-shirts and tote bags. "Their personalities meshed with ours, and their DIY ethic matched with ours," said Jared Mees, co-owner of Tender Loving Empire. "It's important for people to know that they are probably the hardest working band that anybody could go see for less than $10, or more than $10; any band, period."

Although Finn Riggins' sound is difficult to pigeon-hole, there are names that come up often when those who know them try a description.

"The ones I most often refer to are..."

Traveling exhibit's stops in Hailey, Jerome offer chance to tell your stories of journeys

By Karen Bossick
Time-News correspondent

Where are you from? What is your story?

Those are the questions the Blaine County Historical Museum and the Jerome Public Library will ask as they host the Smithsonian Institution's exhibit "Journey Stories."

The two are among six Idaho communities chosen to show the Smithsonian's traveling exhibit, which uses images, audio and artifacts to tell stories that illustrate the role travel and movement played in building America.

"It's the story of Americans and mobility starting with the people coming across the ocean, exploring the effect the railroad has had taking goods and people back and forth," said Bob McLeod, who is overseeing the project for Blaine County Historical.

The exhibit opens at the Hailey museum, 218 N. Main St., on Sept. 3 and will remain there through Oct. 16. It will open at the Jerome library, 100 First Ave. E., on Dec. 11, remaining there for six weeks, as well.

Each exhibitor has planned special events to go along with the exhibit, said Nancy Gurney of the Hailey Public Library.

The Hailey library, for instance, is working with Blaine County Historical Museum to host Diane Joseph Peavey on Sept. 28. Peavey, who made her own journey from East Coast city life to a sheep ranch in Idaho, will talk about "The Journey from East to West, Urban to Rural."

KAREN BOSSICK/For the Times-News

Mary Jane Griffith Conger has a number of family artifacts that she may include in her family's exhibit at the Ketchum/Sun Valley Heritage and Ski Museum in Ketchum. Among them, a pair of chaps her father wore while working with the Forest Service at the turn of the 20th century.

The children's library will tie its story time into "Journey Stories," and a handful of book discussions will revolve around the "Dear America" series.

The Jerome library, likewise, is organizing events around its exhibit, said Lorna Irwin, a member of Friends of Jerome Public Library. Those events will kick off Sept. 18 with a writer's workshop to encourage Magic Valley residents to write their own "Journey Stories" to be included in the exhibit. The stories can include the tale of a vacation or how one came to move from one place to another.

The Jerome library has also selected four books to discuss, including Stephen Ambrose's "Undaunted Courage" about Lewis and Clark's journey through the West. Copies of the books will be available to check out ahead of time, or come to the discussions to see whether you would like to read the books, Irwin said.

Student art projects will augment the traveling exhibit.

Mary Jane Griffith Conger is among those who have written a story recounting her family's journey for the Blaine County exhibit.

Her grandfather Al Griffith left his home in a Welsh town in Wisconsin at age 14 in the aftermath of the Civil War and headed west. He explored the Wood River Valley's potential for mining in 1879, meeting up with David Ketchum — Ketchum's namesake. Then he returned to Montana for the winter, returning the following spring with Isaac Lewis whom he met on the trail.

Griffith, Lewis, Lewis' nephew and another man purchased the first four lots in Ketchum for $2 each, making them the town's first permanent settlers. Lewis opened Ketchum's first bank and drug store; his son Horace founded the company that ferried ore from mines near Clayton to Ketchum.

"I enjoy the longest continuous family lineage in Ketchum, spanning five generations," Conger said. "It's been quite a journey."

make strong, clean lines with their bodies and squat deeper than Odissi dancers.

"The bend of our knee is very significant," Raman said.

As much as the physical movements are strong, Raman said, the facial movements are delicate and gentle.

Although Raman has received critical praise from publications like The Oregonian and DANCE Magazine, Indian dance isn't popular in the Northwest outside a niche following, she said.

The concert is divided into two acts. The first act's theme celebrates the god of dance.

"It's a very easy concept to follow," Raman said. She likened the interpretation to Einstein's theory of relativity.

"This is a god who's timeless. Because he has no beginning, no end. He is time itself," she said. "It's a very beautiful concept."

The second act explores an issue close to Raman's heart: pollution of the Ganges River in India.

Don't stress too much about the theme or story line, Raman said. Performers will explain what is happening before the dance, and the story is less important than enjoying yourself.

"Keep an open mind," Raman said.

Herrett's King gallery to feature Cheselka show

Times-News

Kim Cheselka lives in Los Angeles, but she often visits Montana. Sometimes, she actually goes there in person.

In her artist's statement, Cheselka says she mentally wanders in Montana even when she is not there. Her works, which will be on display in September and October in the Herrett Center's Jean B. King Gallery in Twin Falls, reflect those physical and emotional wanderings.

Cheselka's show at the Herrett Center is the latest of more than 50 solo and group exhibitions she has had a part of since 1977. Her art is described as mixed media with three-dimensional works, contemporary sculpture, mixed-media color drawings and paintings. One of her specialties is sculpting willows without nails, glue or wires. The willow is bent, formed and dried as a solid sculpture.

A free, public reception for the artist will be held 7 to 9 p.m. Sept. 7 in the Jean B. King Gallery. See the show at

Do-it-yourself is Finn Riggins' ethic, from the music itself to the CD cases to the merchandise the musicians screen-print and sell at concerts. Their sound is difficult to pigeonhole, but drummer Cam Bouiss, left, said he likes this description he heard: 'Talking Heads meets The Pixies meets Sesame Street music for adults.'

Band

Continued from Entertainment 1 to are Rush, T-Rex, Blondie, Metric, Broken Social Scene, and they get a lot of Talking Heads comparisons, but nobody really sounds like them," Mees said.

Bouiss quotes something he heard someone else say that makes him chuckle: "Talking Heads meets The Pixies meets Sesame Street music for adults," he said. "It's energetic music, inspired music, experimental music. ... Some of it is really straight-ahead structured, some if it probably sounds like noise."

Pairing them with Built To Spill makes sense, said Samuel Stimpert, co-owner of Visual Arts Collective, a multimedia arts space in Boise.

"They're definitely indie rock, but they have a different flavor than most indie rock bands," he said. He particularly called out the steel drum set as an element that separates the band from other similar sounds. "The best thing I can do to describe their sound personally is 'kick-ass.'"

Finn Riggins doesn't want to lose their DIY, rural-Idaho vibe, the members said.

"From the get-go in this band, we've always talked about our only goal being sustainable, that we want this art form of ours to be our career. I've definitely seen bands get too big," Gilbert said, referring to groups that are whisked and handled from one giant arena to another. "It's really nice to be a little more connected to what's going on."

Coming home to old friends doesn't hurt.

"Cam, Eric and Lisa are three of the most humble people I've been around, and especially around musicians, that's pretty rare," said Jake Kraft, owner of Freshies restaurant in Hailey. "Every time they get on the road they meet a new and bigger band who gets excited to tour with them. They fully have potential to keep climbing up the ladder of the touring world."

Although Finn Riggins' studio albums aren't highly produced, having more of a "live" sound, Kraft said their true live performances have an energy that gets people up and dancing.

"They have such a high talent level between the three of them that if you get a chance to see them live, it'll knock your socks off, it really will," he said.

If your footwear does get knocked off at one of Finn

Riggins' performances, get the band members to autograph it for you. If their trajectory keeps rising as it has, those socks could be worth a lot.

Sun Valley Center's lecture, performance series: From Latin pop to food journalism

Times-News

Smart scientists, provocative social commentators, a former White House press secretary and performers whose musical influences span the globe are all headed to the Wood River Valley this fall and winter as part of the Sun Valley Center for the Arts' Lecture and Performance series.

Speaking in the lecture series:

- Ira Glass, host of NPR's "This American Life," on Sept. 25.
 - Clean water advocate Maude Barlow on Nov. 4.
 - Neil deGrasse Tyson, director of New York's Hayden Planetarium, on Nov. 17.
 - "Fast Food Nation" author Eric Schlosser on Feb. 24.
 - Ari Fleischer, former press secretary for President George W. Bush, on March 10.
- The performance series:
- Flamenco-fusion musicians Sam Lardner & Barcelona on Oct. 29.
 - Broadway soloist Crystal Monee Hall on Nov. 19.
 - Latin pop singer Raul Midon on Dec. 3.
 - Taiko drum masters On Ensemble on Jan. 21.
 - An encore performance by last year's favorite Sweet Plantain on March 4.
 - Traditional Quebec music by De Temps Antan on March 13.

Series tickets are available at $120 (for Sun Valley Center for the Arts members) or $170 (for nonmembers) for the lecture series' five events, or $115 (members) and $175 (nonmembers) for the performance series' six shows. Individual tickets range from $20 to $35, with discounts for Sun Valley Center members.

Series tickets go on sale to members Sept. 7, and individual member tickets go on sale Sept. 10. Nonmember tickets, both series and individual, go on sale Sept. 15.

Buy tickets at www.sunvalleycenter.org or 726-9491. The website has details about dates, prices and locations and more about the individual lecturers and performers.

Several of the events are tied to exhibitions that The Center will present over the next six months. Also, many of the speakers and performers will visit schools in the Wood River Valley.

When Sweet Plantain, an improvisational jazz group, played in the schools last year, many kids later attended the performance with parents in tow.

"This year, Sweet Plantain will be sending music to the schools for students to practice before the band members come to work in the classroom. The piece that they've worked on will be a part of the evening's live performance, giving our local students the very rare opportunity to perform with professional musicians in a concert setting," said center marketing director Kristine Bretall.

Buhl Fiesta replaces annual fish-themed festival

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

BUHL — No fiesta is complete without pinatas.

At Saturday's Buhl Fiesta you'll find pinatas, music, food, dancing and even a Mexican rodeo, all at the Buhl Rodeo Grounds.

This is the first year the city's chamber of commerce has organized such an event — replacing what had been Buhl's annual Trout Fest — but it's already receiving positive feedback from the growing Latino community, said chamber treasurer Patty Beltran.

The fiesta is a way to get the entire population celebrating together, she said.

"The chamber's events, like Sagebrush Days, are always well attended, but we noticed that Buhl's Hispanic community didn't really participate and we wanted to do something that they could enjoy,"

BUHL FIESTA

- When: 4-10 p.m. Saturday
- Where: Buhl Rodeo Grounds
- Cost: Admission is $15 for adults and $10 for ages 7-15, free for children 6 and younger. Dinner is $6 a plate, served 4-6 p.m.
- Information: 543-6682.

Beltran said.

The chamber reached out to many Latino-owned businesses in Buhl. Saturday's Mexican Dinner, to be served 4-6 p.m. at $6 a plate, reflects wide-ranging support the Fiesta has already received. The menu includes chile verde or chicken fajitas with rice, beans and tortillas, made possible by food donations from El Cazador, La Plaza, Mi Pueblo, Tacos Huichol, Tacos El Korita and Juanita's Tacos, Beltran said.

Hosting the event is Boise-based Edgar Guerrero, with musical entertainment by bands like Grupo Centenarios, Desiados Musical, DJ Nero and The Untouchables.

After participation in the chamber's annual Trout Fest declined, the organization hopes this new event fills a niche.

"Buhl doesn't really have any events for our large and growing Hispanic population, so when the idea was brought up the chamber got behind it," said chamber administrator Michelle Olsen. "This event will be something they can bring their families to."

Buhl High School graduate and reigning Hispanic Heritage Scholarship Pageant queen Marcela Munguia, 21, will likely share her pageant talent: traditional Mexican dances from the state of Veracruz.

Munguia said such an event has been needed. "I think that even though we live and work together we don't always understand each other's cultures, and this event gives us an opportunity to share our culture," Munguia said.

She hopes her success as a first-generation college student will inspire Latino youth to stay in school.

"The dropout rate for Hispanics is much higher than that of our white peers, and that's not good. I don't know if it is the cultural challenges or if other students see their friends dropping out and think that it is easier, but it has to change. I'm going to use the Fiesta as an opportunity to act as a role model and hopefully inspire some of the children there that they can succeed like I am," Munguia said. "There aren't many strong women role models, especially in our small community, so it's important that when women get the chance to be an example we do it."

Buhl High School graduate Marcela Munguia, reigning queen of the Hispanic Heritage Scholarship Pageant, is expected to perform traditional Mexican dances at Saturday's Buhl Fiesta.

Rounding out the event is a Mexican rodeo — like mainstream pro rodeo events but "more spontaneous," Beltran said.

"If this first Fiesta is successful, we'll be exploring the possibility of making it a yearly thing. We're hopeful but we'll see what happens and where it takes us," she said.

Think ahead with MV Symphony season tickets

Times-News

Season tickets for Magic Valley Symphony went on sale this week. An individual ticket for the four-concert season is $25. A season group ticket, admitting four adults or two adults with up to four children, is $90.

Rehearsals are under way for "Out of This World Classics," which will open Oct. 10. In addition to Mozart's "Jupiter" symphony, music director Theodore Anchor Hadley has programmed "Mars, the Bringer of War" and "Venus, the Bringer of Peace" from "The Planets" of Gustav Holst. Winners of the symphony's Youth Soloist Competition will also perform.

A Nov. 16 concert will feature a suite from Tchaikovsky's "Nutcracker." Later concerts will bring the Saint-Saens "Organ" symphony under the baton of guest conductor Dallin Hansen of Brigham Young University-Idaho, and a pops concert of contemporary classics from fantasy films and video games.

The 50-year-old Magic Valley Symphony is a community orchestra of volunteer adult musicians of all levels; string players are most needed.

For more information: www.mvsymphony.org. For season tickets, call business manager Richard Cook at 734-6549. To participate, call Hadley at 733-1079.

Times-News

Using graphite, ink and turpentine on vellum, Idaho artist and fly fisherman Josh Udesen will demonstrate how to create drawings reminiscent of traditional etchings as he leads students through sketching local trout species in a one-day workshop offered by the Sun Valley Center for the Arts.

Udesen lives, teaches and makes art in Boise but travels anywhere the fly fishing is good.

"My art is both unique and personal because it combines my love for the mountains, rivers and open spaces with an artistic focus on details," he said in a press release. "Like a snapshot, I like to capture a second in time that elicits a specific memory."

His "Trout Illustrations" class meets 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sept. 18 at the center's classroom in Hailey. Fee is $50 for Sun Valley Center members and $100 for non-members. Registration deadline is Sept. 3.

Watch plein air painters at Redfish Lake next week

Times-News

STANLEY — Nearly two dozen Idaho artists will take part in the Seventh Annual Paint Out at Redfish Lake near Stanley, Monday through Thursday.

The public is invited to watch the painters as they work at various sites around the lake.

The Paint Out will culminate with a sale, reception and wine tasting at 5 p.m. Thursday outside the lodge. Hailey guitarist and singer Rick Hoel will provide music. 3 Horse Ranch Vineyards will provide the wine.

"There's a long tradition of plein air painting where painters go out of their studio into the world outside and paint what they see," said Hailey artist Karen Jacobsen. "They generally paint their first impressions and the paintings are meant to be done in a day!"

BSU O-line battling injuries as Va. Tech looms

By Jason Chatraw
Times-News correspondent

BOISE — As Boise State nears its all-important season opener with Virginia Tech on Labor Day, the Broncos' starting five on the offensive line remain in limbo — not that it worries head coach Chris Petersen.

A slew of nagging injuries has prevented the third-ranked Broncos from getting any consistent rhythm in practice with the same five players.

But at his weekly press

No. 3 Boise St. vs. No. 10 Virginia Tech 6 p.m., Sept. 6, ESPN conference Thursday afternoon, Petersen refused to show any alarm.

"It's not a concern at all to me," Petersen said. "We do it every year. I have great confidence that we'll get a good five out there and away we'll go."

Whoever is out there opening holes for the Boise State running backs, Petersen tipped his hand that his staff is intent on utilizing the talent of three skilled backs in senior Jeremy Avery and juniors D.J. Harper and Doug Martin.

"You have to make some hard decision in terms of maybe two guys that are really going to be the 1-2 punch out of the gate at least and figure out how everybody else fits in," Petersen said.

"Usually how we game plan is we kind of have certain plays that are personnel specific. You really try to specialize and say this is going to be your special play."

While Boise State will rotate through a bevy of good running backs, Kellen Moore has long since solidified his role as the team's starting quarterback. However, with less than two weeks before the season begins, the backup job remains a battle between senior Mike Coughlin and redshirt freshman Joe Southwick.

"We haven't totally made a decision there," Petersen said of the backup quarterback situation. "Like we've done in the past, Coach Harsin will have both of those guys prepared and ready to go. And we'll cross that bridge when we come to it, but we're not at that time just yet."

Petersen also announced senior linebacker Deron Mackey is returning to the field after being suspended for fall camp. Mackey, who was suspended right before the start of fall camp, pled guilty to three misdemeanors — driving without a valid license, failure to maintain insurance and failure to appear for a court hearing.

But Mackey, who started eight games last season, will have to overcome not only a torn anterior cruciate ligament from last November but also missing three weeks of practice.

College of Southern Idaho volleyball player Elisa Brochado is looking forward to her second season with the team.

Despite position switch, Brochado poised to shine again for CSI

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

Change is nothing new for Elisa Brochado.

The College of Southern Idaho sophomore volleyball player has changed positions, clubs, countries and cultures. As she's settling in with life in Twin Falls, it'll all change again.

"I'm sad already," she said about the thought of leaving for a four-year school after her junior-college eligibility expires.

If Brochado continues being herself, though, that change won't be a problem. It wasn't an issue when she switched positions twice with her club in her homeland of Brazil. It wasn't a huge problem when she left Belo Horizonte for Twin Falls, though there was an adjustment period.

It sure wasn't any trouble when CSI coach Heidi Cartisser approached her star outside hitter and asked her to move to the right-hand side, the same move as befitted All-American Jessica Peacock a year ago as CSI won the national championship.

"When Heidi said she needed me on the right ... whatever it takes to feel that again," Brochado said, alluding to the exultation of winning it all. "If the team needs it, I'll do anything to get back to nationals and win it again."

Moving Brochado, who was the Golden Eagles' top left-sided hitter in 2009 and led the NJCAA Division I Tournament in service aces, to the right is a calculated risk. It paid off when Cartisser did the same with Peacock a year ago, but she was a natural right-sided hitter, playing that position for club and country back home in Australia.

Brochado hasn't had the same continuity. Her Brazilian club played her all across the front, even in the middle.

"Everything but setter," she quipped. "But I don't want to play there, because (CSI setter Barbara Alcantara) is the best I've ever played with."

Alcantara knows firsthand the relief that can come with a steady player on the right. Peacock was

CSI opens season with tournament at home

Times-News

The College of Southern Idaho volleyball team begins its quest to repeat as national champions this morning, with a 9 a.m. match against Eastern Utah to open the Buffalo Wild Wings/Hilex Poly Let's Get It Started Tournament at CSI gymnasium.

Eight teams, including four of CSI's Scenic West Athletic Conference rivals, are slated to appear in the tournament. Three of the top four teams in the NJCAA's preseason rankings — No. 1 CSI, No. 3 Salt Lake and No. 4 Miami Dade — are in attendance.

Admission is $6 per day for adults and $4 for seniors and students. Hilex Poly will sponsor admission for those bringing in a full bag of recyclable plastic grocery bags.

Bruins beat heat, Pocatello

By Stephen Meyers
Times-News writer

Even in 100-degree heat, it was no sweat for the Twin Falls girls soccer team Thursday afternoon against Pocatello.

Freshman Morgan McInnes scored a pair of goals and goalkeepers Jera Johnson and Jessica Jenkins combined to post a 4-0 shutout over Pocatello at Sunway Soccer Complex.

McInnes scored both of her goals in the first half, the second coming on a great outlet pass down the sideline by Erin Grubbs-Imhoff. Dwarfed by the older players, McInnes outsprinted and bumped her way to the ball first to stick it in the net.

"I want to play to their level. I don't want to be a wimp," McInnes said.

Twin Falls head coach Katie Kauffman praised the freshman's ability to play at the varsity level.

"Morgan is doing a great job. She's really stepped up to the level of high school play and she fits in really well with our team dynamics," said head coach Katie Kauffman.

Isabel VonZastrow opened the scoring early for the Bruins, benefitting from a tricky bounce that sent the ball trickling past the Pocatello goalie's outstretched hands.

The Bruins kept a relentless attack in the first half,

CSI men, women finalize schedules for new season

New signees joining teams this week

By Mike Christensen
Times-News writer

The schedules are finalized and the rosters are close to following suit for the College of Southern Idaho men's and women's basketball teams.

The CSI men, who open the season Nov. 4 at Phoenix (Ariz.) College, added two signees this week, leaving just two roster spots open for the 2010-11 season.

Combo guard Darius Smith out of John Marshall Metropolitan High School in Chicago will arrive in Twin Falls today, while Serbian player Nemanja Grujicic, a 6-8 forward, is expected to arrive Saturday.

CSI men's head coach Steve Gosar said the 6-foot-3 Smith can play either guard spot and will be valuable on the defensive end. "Defensively, he gets his hands on a lot of balls," said Gosar. "He's just got a great nose for ball. Seems like he's always a pass ahead of the play."

Grujicic is an outstanding shooter, something demonstrated in a YouTube video.

"When we watched his video, he shot it so well, we thought 'No way this can be real,'" said Gosar.

While Gosar is working to fill his final roster spots by Sept. 3, he's grateful to have the schedule in place.

"This schedule was really hard to put together," he said. "We had it done earlier and a few teams backed out on us because of their budgets."

While CSI's 2009-10 schedule was rated the nation's toughest at JUCO level, this year's slate appears more manageable on paper. After playing two road games in Arizona, CSI will play 11 consecutive nonconference games at home as

PREP RALLY

High School High Five A look at this week's biggest prep football games

Skyview at Twin Falls
7 p.m.

Radio: 102.9 FM
The skinny: Skyview is coming off a 4-5 season, but returns eight defensive starters, plus an entire offensive line that helped gain 356 yards per game in 2009. The Hawks from Nampa are breaking in new starting QB Hunter Hyde, who will look to hook up with veteran WR Mike Jordanescu. The Bruins are 0-3 in season-openers under Allyn Reynolds, but are coming off a state semifinal berth.

Twin Falls senior linebacker Todd Anderson: "They have good athletes and throw the ball a lot. The first game is always exciting. We'll be pumped up and ready to play."

Twin Falls senior defensive back/wide receiver Tyler Wolters: "We don't have much on them. We're just ready to come out and play."

Canyon Ridge JV at Oakley
7 p.m.

The skinny: An intriguing matchup as defending Class 1A Division I eight-man state champ Oakley will line up 11 guys and go against the Riverhawks' JV squad. The Hornets have a 29-game regular-season winning streak, but could have some adjustments with six extra players on the field.

Oakley coach Tim Behunin: "Playing 11-man, I foresee some adjustments, but it's not going to be anything major. It will be a good challenge for our program. (Canyon Ridge is) very well coached and we anticipate a lot of talent with their juniors."

Canyon Ridge coach Bill Hicks: "Oakley has a good program. They will have some older kids who are stronger and faster. Hopefully we can hang with them."

Jerome at Mountain Home
7 p.m.

Radio: 1400 AM
The skinny: Jerome beat Mountain Home 28-14 in the 2009 season opener. Last time the Tigers traveled to Mountain Home they lost 44-43 in 2008. The M.H. Tigers were 2-7 last year and return six offensive starters, including QB Jake Hennessey. M.H.'s defense returns five starters, including 6-5, 230-pound DE Tyler Wright.

Jerome has just three starters back from last year's 5-4 squad, so new there'll be new faces all over the field.

Jerome coach Gary Krumm: "Mountain Home's strength is team speed — that scares me. We need to up-tempo them to death. If our lack of experience isn't predominant, we've got a chance in a tough road opener."

Minico at Century
6 p.m.

Radio: 970 AM
The skinny: Century has a new head coach and only a few starters returning, while Minico's coaching staff begins its 15th year with seven returning starters on each side of the ball. While it appears like a custom-fit confidence booster to start the season, the Spartans can't afford to overlook the Diamondbacks, who have decent size, a stud middle linebacker and receiver, as well as a dual-threat QB.

Minico coach Tim Perrigot: "Our team chemistry is good. It seems like we're a little further ahead than we were last year at this time."

Minico senior defensive back/receiver Eddy Espinoza: "Our defense is tremendous. ... At camp we had some good defensive stops. That's our strength this year."

Shoshone at Dietrich
7 p.m.

The skinny: The rivalry is renewed tonight and bragging rights are on the line as these schools, separated by just eight miles, battle on the gridiron. Last meeting was 2008 when Shoshone beat Dietrich 22-14. Shoshone is young, but Dietrich might be without two starters due to injuries. It is Dietrich's first-ever home game under its new stadium lights.

Dietrich coach Doug Astle: "It's a big rivalry game that I wanted to get on the schedule. I felt it was important that we played each other. It ought to be a good competitive game for us, no question."

Shoshone coach Mark Sant: "It's non-conference, but the schools are rivals and always excited to play each other. We're pretty young, so kids are ready to prove themselves. We've got a long ways to go, but we feel we can improve quickly."

Dietrich plays under the lights tonight

DIETRICH — When Doug Astle took over the Dietrich football program a year ago, he had several goals. Among them: schedule Shoshone regularly, and get lights at the football field.

Check and check. Just last week, Dietrich put the final touches on its stadium lighting project, and tonight will host its first-ever night game.

What's more, the Blue Devils will go against Shoshone, a traditional rival located eight miles away. The series between the schools splintered somewhat in recent years as they competed in different classifications.

Ryan Howe

"I've been to a lot of games here over the years and I always hated afternoon games," Astle said. "We've had parents that were unable to watch their own sons play football because of their job commitments. I thought, this is completely dead wrong."

Work on the lighting project started in October 2009 with community fundraisers, accelerated with a large donation by Glanbia Foods in July and culminated when the Dietrich community flipped the switch at a grand opening celebration last week.

Astle said the total cost was about $18,000, not including donations of labor and some materials.

"When it's fall, there's nothing like football under the lights on Friday nights. That's what high school football is all about," Astle said. "Get the community out there, get them rocking and rolling, get the kids excited, the temperature's a little cooler — it just makes for a better atmosphere."

There's only one damper on this historic night, however: One of the Blue Devils' longtime fans won't be in attendance. Sem Astle, the 81-year-old father of Dietrich's coach, passed away on Monday. He will be laid to rest today at the Shoshone Cemetery.

For 47 years, Sem Astle farmed and operated a dairy in Dietrich. He loved football, especially watching his children and grandchildren play. In his obituary, it reads, "He was looking forward to watching Dietrich's first football game under the lights."

Chances are he'll be there in spirit tonight.

part of four tournament weekends. The 15-game Scenic West Athletic Conference schedule also shapes up nicely, with the Golden Eagles getting two home games and just one road date against both defending SWAC regular-season champ North Idaho and defending Region 18 Tournament champ Eastern Utah.

CSI does have to visit rival Salt Lake Community College twice, hosting the Bruins for the only time on Jan. 22.

The other good news is the Eagles host the Region 18 tourney March 3-5, with the winner earning the coveted trip to the NJCAA Tournament in Hutchinson, Kan., something CSI hasn't done since 2007.

"Obviously hosting the tournament is a huge advantage," said Gosar. "Hopefully we can stay healthy, get better, and keep developing as a team. We've got a lot of new faces — everybody has a lot of new faces in the league.

"One thing we know is this league recruits well, it's well coached and it's going to be a dog-fight every single year to get to Hutch."

The CSI women also have two players joining the squad this week in Kyler Parai of New Zealand and Guilhermina El-Mir of Australia. Head coach Randy Rogers had finalized a roster earlier this summer, but four players departed the program in recent weeks.

Sophomore Devan Matkin, a former Twin Falls High star, signed with Tallahassee Community College, while 6-foot siblings Brigitte and Rachael Spinks of St. George chose to play at Dixie State College.

Point guard Camille Washington was dismissed from the team after being charged with felony grand theft. Her preliminary hearing is scheduled to continue Sept. 1 in 5th District court in Lincoln County.

French center Fanny Cavallo filled one of the roster voids for the CSI women, who tip-off the season Nov. 11, hosting Eastern Arizona College to open the three-day Coca-Cola Classic. The Eagles will face tough tests the following week at the Midland NIT Tournament in Texas where some of the NJCAA's top squads will tangle for three days. CSI opens against host Midland College.

The CSI women return All-American post Laurel Kearsley and look to return to the NJCAA Tournament in Salina, Kan., after a two-year hiatus.

Minico beats Wood River in GBC opener

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

RUPERT — Eduardo Lopez's left foot helped the Minico boys soccer team start its season off on the right foot on Wednesday.

Lopez scored the go-ahead goal in the 66th minute and the Spartans went on to beat Great Basin Conference foe Wood River 3-1.

"We knew Wood River was going to be tough, last year they proved it," said Lopez. "We wanted to open good, and our team managed to get that confidence in ourselves."

Wood River (0-2-0 overall, 0-1-0 GBC), which earned a Class 4A state tournament berth last year, dropped its second straight game to start the season.

"They're under a lot of pressure from last year and they know it, too," Wolverines coach Luis Monjaras said of his players. "They know the capability that they have. They just have to believe in themselves."

"We're not any different than last year. We're just trying to figure out the spots from the seniors that left. We have those, but some of the kids are not stepping up, or they're kind of confused by the different system we're playing this year."

After a scoreless first half, Minico (1-0-0, 1-0-0) struck first in the 47th minute after Lopez was taken down in the box and Andres Madrigal placed the penalty kick in the lower left corner.

"Seemed like neither team wanted to let their guard down," said Minico coach Armando Tapia. "It was very intense."

Wood River responded with Bryan Donoso's equalizer in the 54th minute.

The go-ahead came when Lopez received a pass with his back to the goal on the left edge of the 18-yard box, made a clockwise move on the Wood River defender and buried the ball inside the opposite post.

Minico's Bryant Call scored an insurance goal during stoppage time.

"Our team looks pretty tough," said Lopez, who is among 10 returning varsity players for Minico. "This year we have a lot of kids from football and everything that come to help us and it looks like we'll have a strong team to compete."

Bruin boys pull away from Pocatello

Times-News

Preston Tuesday.

The Bruins claimed their first victory of the season by scoring three times in the second half to break a scoreless deadlock in Pocatello.

Ricky Sanchez opened the scoring for Twin Falls (1-0-1), and Nate Goss and Chris de la Cruz added strikes after that to seal the win.

"We got off to a slow start, but the guys pulled it together at halftime," said Twin Falls coach Ben Harman.

Conner Edwards posted the shutout in goal for the Bruins, allowing only a goal that was ruled out on an offside call.

BURLEY 2, HIGHLAND 0

Gustavo Castaneda scored in first minute as Burley beat Highland 2-0 on Thursday. While the Bobcats dominated possession, they struggled to score again on Highland's sagging defense until Logan Searle broke through for a goal in the final minutes.

Juan Puentes set up Castaneda's opening goal with a nice feed as Burley moved to 2-0. The Bobcats host Preston on Tuesday.

WOOD RIVER 11, MINICO 0

K.T. Martinez scored three goals, McKenna Chase and Jessica Martens each netted two and Wood River rolled to an 11-0 win over Minico in Great Basin Conference play.

Sloan Storey, Gracie Eagen, Erin Murphy and Madison Gove also scored goals for Wood River (2-0-0, 1-0-0, 3 pts.), which travels to Highland for a nonleague game on Saturday.

HIGHLAND 13, BURLEY 2

Ashley Hopkins and Caitlyn Bennett scored the lone goals for Burley in the Bobcats' 13-2 loss Thursday at Highland.

Both goals were scored in the second half.

"We were down by a lot at halftime, so it was good for us to come out in the second half and still compete," said Burley head coach Sara Edwards.

BRUINS SPLIT AT TRI-MATCH

The Twin Falls volleyball fell 25-16, 25-11 to host Century, but topped Pocatello 25-13, 25-23 in a tri-match on Thursday.

Twin Falls coach B.J. Price called Century "one of the top teams in the state. Period. We were not ready for their speed."

Allie Johnson had six assists in the loss, while Cheltzie Williams had four kills and Brylee Barlett added seven digs.

In the win over Pocatello, Johnson had 14 assists, Sierra Starley recorded six kills and Mallory Jund and Brylee Barlett had seven digs apiece.

The Bruins (1-1) face Highland at Canyon Ridge High School on Tuesday.

JEROME SPLITS TRI

Jerome split its home season-opening tri-match with Gooding and Burley Thursday, sweeping Burley in two sets and falling to Gooding in two sets.

Melissa Leavitt led the Tigers with nine kills. Frankie Carey recorded five aces and 11 assists.

"They came out fired up and excited to play," said Jerome head coach Hannah Clark.

Their match against Gooding didn't go as well.

"They played great defense and we had a ton of unforced errors, which was not good," Clark said.

Carey had 12 assists and Haylee Burnham recorded seven kills.

Jerome (1-1) plays another tri at Burley, with Century, on Wednesday.

LIGHTHOUSE CHRISTIAN 3, MURTAUGH 0

Lighthouse Christian beat host Murtaugh 25-17, 25-15, 25-13 on Thursday. Brooklyn VanderStelt and Becca Storm led the way with strong serving and Storm's play at the net.

Murtaugh hosts Dietrich on Tuesday.

RICHFIELD 3, COMMUNITY SCHOOL 0

Richfield swept the Community School 25-5, 25-14, 25-12 in a Northside Conference match Thursday.

Tigers coach Norm Rock praised

Heidi Buckner and Mirian Rivas for having good matches overall.

Richfield (1-0, 1-0) is at Castleford next Thursday.

DIETRICH SWEEPS HOME TRI

Dietrich opened the season with a home sweep of a tri-match with Castleford and Hansen.

The Blue Devils, which finished second in the Class 1A Division II state tournament a year ago, beat Castleford 25-11, 24-26, 25-20, 25-17 and topped Hansen 25-21, 25-23.

The Wolves beat Hansen 25-17, 23-25, 15-13.

Dietrich coach Traci Perron singled out Moriah Dill, Alex Berthelson and Cheyenne Hubert for solid play on the day.

The Blue Devils (2-0, 1-0 Northside) are at Murtaugh on Tuesday. Castleford (1-1, 0-1) hosts a Northside Conference tri-match with Lighthouse Christian and reigning Class 1A Division II champion Camas County on Tuesday.

BUHL SPLITS TRI-MEET

Buhl split its matches at the tri-meet in Declo, losing to Declo 19-25, 17-25, 25-13, 25-21, 15-9 and defeating Oakley 25-20, 25-20.

Kendall Hamilton recorded 11 digs and one block against Declo.

"It took a while for Declo to warm up, but once they did, they were really good," said Buhl head coach Denny Moretto.

Buhl (1-1) plays another tri-match Tuesday at Wood River with Filer.

What's a tradition worth? Big Ten says $10 million

Despite some evidence to the contrary, the guys who run college football can count.

So although there will be 12 teams in the Big Ten Conference by 2012 — and 10 teams in the Big 12 Conference, for that matter — don't be distracted. That's not the kind of math they get worked up over.

What they worry about instead is how many more zeros can squeeze onto the TV rights checks. That's the reason college football looks like a garage sale at the moment.

Everything from longtime conference loyalties to rivalry games that stretch back a century has a tag attached to it as conferences bulk up to make themselves more attractive and forceful presences in a national championship picture that isn't fully developed.

People in the Midwest would argue there's no way to put a value on the Michigan-Ohio State game, but they're wrong.

It's a rite of fall in these parts, a game that's been played more than 100 times, usually as the culmination of the regular season and often with something beyond civic pride on the line. But making it just like any other game on any other fall weekend helps clear the way for realignment and a championship game in the Big Ten — which, with a full house on hand and a healthier TV sports market, could add something like $10 million a year to the conference's bottom line.

"We've had those debates. It's a good one,"

Commissioner Jim Delany told the Chicago Tribune earlier this week. "The question is whether you want to confine a game that's one of the greatest rivalries of all time to a divisional game."

The answer is almost certainly yes, though Delany won't say so yet.

"We have not discussed this with our TV partners," he said.

But just like all the other conference commissioners scurrying to extend their reach, he knows the day is coming. The Big Ten was already at 11 teams before it made a successful pitch to add Nebraska, which will require expanding to two divisions and adding the championship game in the bargain.

The most likely realignment scenario involves putting the historic rivals in different divisions, then having them play in the middle of the regular season rather than at the end. That way, if they meet in the championship game, it won't feel as much like a rematch.

Never mind that few championship games are as memorable as even the clunkers Michigan and Ohio State have played over the years. When pressed, most coaches would concede they view championship games as necessary evils; they're the price a team pays so that its conference keeps a seat at the table for the Bowl Championship Series post-season galas.

But no one ever looked at Michigan-Ohio State that way. The lore that grew up around the game was testimony to that. Play it twice a year, even if the second time is for the league championship, and plenty of the air leaks out of both.

Just so nobody at Michigan or Ohio State takes it personally, several of the Big Ten's rivalry or trophy games likely will get lost in the same shuffle.

To be fair, it's possible the current conference shape-shifting will produce dividends. Chances of a real playoff will go up, the quality of the product will go up and the money paid out — what college football is really about these days — will go up, up and up.

Plus, we won't have to listen to athletic directors, conference commissioners and even university presidents prattle on about how much they value "tradition."

Everything really does have a price.

the feature of CSI's offense a year ago, and a top-caliber player on all three attack fronts makes a setter's life a lot easier.

"It's great, because I know if there's a bad pass or the outsides and middles aren't scoring, I can count on Lili," said the Portugal-born setter, who also came to CSI from Brazil.

Brochado's biggest adjustment came when she came to Twin Falls. The cold winter was shocking for someone who grew up a stone's throw from the beach, and the language barrier presented a separate problem.

But she credited CSI volunteer assistant coach Scott Rogers, who speaks Portuguese, as invaluable to her successful transition.

utilizing short, direct passes. Both Grubbs-Imhoff and Claire Goss had great scoring opportunities on breakaways, but couldn't capitalize. Twin Falls went into halftime up 3-0 and then put on the breaks to start the second half.

"We wanted to limit our touches in the second half," Grubbs-Imhoff said.

The heat may have had something to do with that as well. Game-time temperatures reached over 100 degrees and midway through both halves, teams stopped for a water break.

"We definitely had to find our second wind," said

Alcantara's presence, though the two didn't know each other before coming to CSI, certainly didn't hurt.

The clincher was when Brochado's mother came up for a short time last season to watch her play.

"Everyone was so nice to her, and that really helped us know that this was the right place for me," Brochado said. "I love it here. I love all the people."

Her entire family might get a chance to see her play at some point this season. She hopes it's on the path to another national championship.

"We're ready," she said.

The last time she said that was just before the 2009 national tournament — and that worked out pretty well for the Golden Eagles.

Grubbs-Imhoff, who finished the scoring in the final minute, striking from 30 yards to finally knock one through after her first three shots were saved.

"I was tired of missing so I wanted to get one before the game ended," the senior said.

Jera Johnson and Jessica Jenkins split time in goal, both saving four shots. The pair then turned around and each played a half in the junior varsity game.

"We're just trying to get them both some work right now," Kaufmann said.

The Bruins (3-0) return to the field Tuesday against Highland.

Astros earn sweep of Phillies

PHILADELPHIA — Wandy Rodriguez pitched seven sharp innings, Carlos Lee homered and the Houston Astros beat the Phillies 5-1 Thursday to complete their first four-game sweep in Philadelphia in 11 years.

The two-time NL champion Phillies fell three games behind first-place Atlanta in the NL East and trail San Francisco by a half-game in the wild-card standings.

Rodriguez (10-12) allowed one run and five hits, striking out six. The left-hander is 7-2 with a 1.79 ERA since June 24.

DODGERS 7, BREWERS 1

MILWAUKEE — Casey Blake hit a two-run homer and six Dodgers pitchers combined on a two-hitter as Los Angeles beat Milwaukee to finish a three-game sweep.

The Dodgers came into Milwaukee with a 3-14 mark on the road in the second half but rekindled their playoff hopes with their first three-game sweep at Miller Park since May 23-25, 2003.

DIAMONDBACKS 11, PADRES 5

SAN DIEGO — Ian Kennedy struck out a career-high 12 in a combined four-hitter and Stephen Drew finished a torrid series by hitting a three-run homer and an RBI double as last-place Arizona beat the NL West-leading Padres.

Coming off a start in which he allowed a career-high 10 hits in five innings, Kennedy (8-9) one-hit the Padres through seven shutout innings. After allowing Will Venable's single with two outs in the fourth, he retired his final 10 batters, five by strikeout.

MARLINS 11, METS 4

NEW YORK — Hanley Ramirez feasted on New York pitching yet again and rookie Logan Morrison reached base four times, including a two-run double during Florida's seven-run sixth inning.

Ramirez hit a two-run homer and finished with three hits, going 10 for 15 in the series. He's been a pain for the Mets all season, driving in 14 runs and scoring 15 times against them.

NATIONALS 11, CARDINALS 10, 13 INNINGS

WASHINGTON — Ian Desmond singled home Nyjer Morgan in the bottom of the 13th inning and the Washington Nationals overcame Albert Pujols' 400th home run Thursday night in an 11-10 roller-coaster win over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Morgan was hit by a pitch from Blake Hawksworth (4-8) while squaring to bunt leading off the inning, then advanced to third on Alberto Gonzalez's one-out single. With the infield in, Desmond bounced a grounder up the middle.

AMERICAN LEAGUE TIGERS 7, BLUE JAYS 1

TORONTO — Jhonny Peralta and Gerald Laird homered, Max Scherzer became a 10-game winner for the first time and the Detroit Tigers beat the Toronto Blue Jays 7-1 Thursday.

Peralta hit a three-run drive and Laird added a two-run shot in Detroit's six-run fourth inning. It's the eighth time in eight road games that the Tigers have hit two or more home runs. They've hit 19 in that span.

INDIANS 3, ATHLETICS 2

CLEVELAND — Matt LaPorta hit a go-ahead two-run homer to help Justin Masterson (5-12) win for only the second time in 10 starts and Cleveland broke a five-game losing streak.

It came on "Puppypalooza Night," a promotion in which fans bought tickets for their pet dogs.

The Indians doggedly clawed back to avoid a three-game sweep, snap a five-game losing streak and win for the fourth time in 17 games.

Houston Astros outfielder Carlos Lee is congratulated at the dugout after hitting a home run in the third inning against the Philadelphia Phillies in Philadelphia, Thursday.

Francisco Liriano allowed two runs and five hits over seven innings, Delmon Young hit a three-run homer, and Minnesota beat Texas and struggling Cliff Lee 6-4 to avoid a four-game sweep.

Liriano (12-7) struck out six and walked one to capture his sixth straight decision and snap Texas' four-game winning streak.

Lee fell to 2-5 in his 10 starts for Texas since he was acquired from Seattle in a trade on July 9.

Top draft pick Bryce Harper smiles at a news conference where the Washington Nationals baseball team introduced him at Nationals Park in Washington Thursday.

Nationals' top pick Bryce Harper puts on batting practice show

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sporting a new mohawk — but no war paint — Bryce Harper took batting practice at Nationals Park for the first time Thursday and sent a home run into the upper deck in right field.

When the Nationals introduced 2009 No. 1 overall draft pick Stephen Strasburg a year ago, they set off fireworks. Harper, the first selection of 2010, supplied fireworks of his own, just by showing off his powerful but compact swing.

"It felt like home," Harper said. "It was a blast going out there and hitting with a couple of the guys. I'm like a little kid in a candy store right now. It's a lot of fun to go out there and show what I've got and be able to hit it in the upper deck."

Harper was then formally introduced by the Nationals, a week and a half after agreeing to a $9.9 million, five-year deal. They covered up his mohawk by giving him a red, curly "W" hat that was about two sizes too big. His jersey number is 34 — because three plus four equals the No. 7 worn by one of his childhood favorites, Mickey Mantle.

"My sister is a beautiful," he said, explaining his new hairdo, "so she tries different things on me. The ladies like it."

If Strasburg is the next great pitching phenom, Harper is supposed to be the hitting equivalent. He skipped his final two years of high school and got his GED so he could make the jump to JUCO ball at the College of Southern Nevada, which plays in a league — the Scenic West Athletic Conference — that uses wood bats. He tore up the SWAC, hitting .443 with 31 homers and 98 RBIs. He helped Southern Nevada to three wins in four games during a two-day series in Twin Falls in March.

It'll be a while before he hits home runs at Nationals Park for real. His next stop is Florida, where he will work out with the Nationals' Gulf Coast League affiliate and then play in the Florida Instructional League. It's undecided whether he'll then play in the Arizona Fall League before reporting for spring training next year.

Woods shoots 65 at the Barclays

PARAMUS, N.J. — Yes, that really was Tiger Woods' name atop the leaderboard.

In his first tournament since his divorce, Woods finally looked like the No. 1 player in the world Thursday at the Barclays when he opened with a 6-under 65, his lowest score of the year, to share the lead with Vaughn Taylor. It was his first time leading after any round on the PGA Tour since the Tour Championship last September.

"It's exciting to hit the ball flush again," Woods said. "It's something I've been missing all year."

He didn't miss much at Ridgewood Country Club. Woods hit all but one fairway and putted for birdie on all but two holes. And while he hit his driver only twice, they were two of his best shots of the day — including on the 291-yard fifth hole, where his drive landed pin-high and settled 15 feet away.

Was it just a coincidence that his game showed up so soon after his marriage was dissolved?

"I can't really say that's the case," he said. "As far as golf, it was nice to put it together."

Woods and Taylor both played in the morning, when the greens were smooth and the conditions were only breezy. They had a one-shot lead over Adam Scott, Brian Gay and Ryan Palmer. Scott played in the afternoon, where a gust of wind played tricks on him at the final hole and led to bogey.

Scott endured a long day in the pro-am Wednesday and didn't think Ridgewood would serve up a 65 to anyone.

"Seeing some good scores this morning made me change my mind," he said.

That one of those scores

belonged to Woods was hardly a surprise.

"For him to piece things together can't be too hard," Scott said. "He's very good."

The last time Woods' was atop the leaderboard after any round of any tournament was when he won the Australian Masters on Nov. 15, less than two weeks before his life caved in on him — the car crash after Thanksgiving night, details of adultery, five months away from the game and a broken marriage, which officially ended Monday.

His golf hasn't been very good either, which is why Woods began the FedEx Cup playoffs 112th out of 125 players who qualified. He was so low down the list that he was first to tee off under a sunny sky at Ridgewood, the first time he's done that in his PGA Tour career.

It worked to his advantage. "With fresh greens, everybody in our group was making putts on the front nine," Woods said. "You had to get it today!" And he did.

WIE HAS HOLE-IN-ONE ON WAY TO THREE-STROKE LEAD

WINNIPEG, Manitoba — Michelle Wie has had the second hole-in-one of her professional career Thursday on the way to a 7-under 65 and a three-shot lead after the first round of the CN Canadian Women's Open.

The 6-foot-tall Wie says she's notched eight holes-in-one in her career, but only one other as a pro, in her rookie season at last year's LPGA Championship. This on came on the 190-yard, par-3 11th hole.

Sarah Kemp of Australia was three strokes back of Wie after her morning-round 68, while defending champion Suzann Pettersen was in third place with a 69.

Rookie Ilhee Lee of South Korea initially had a score of 69, but it was later corrected to 70 — a mark shared by a group of players.

Seema Sadekar of Toronto was the low Canadian after shooting a 73.

Rodgers throws 3 TDs as Pack rout Colts

GREEN BAY, Wis. — Aaron Rodgers extended his sharp start to the preseason, throwing for 195 yards and three touchdowns in the first half of the Green Bay Packers' 59-24 rout of the Indianapolis Colts at Lambeau Field on Thursday night.

It was a costly night for the Colts. Running back Joseph Addai left the game in the third quarter with a concussion and linebacker Gary Brackett hurt his right hand.

Pepton Manning made plenty of big plays against a porous Packers pass defense early on, but Rodgers was up for an offensive exhibition against one of the NFL's elite quarterbacks. Trailing 17-7 early in the second quarter, Rodgers rallied the Packers (2-1) to a 28-17 half-time lead.

Adding to the injury problems for Indianapolis (0-3), cornerback Jacob Lacey left the game with a concussion, offensive tackle Tony Ugoh hurt his toe and defensive tackle Antonio Johnson sustained a groin injury.

RAMS 36, PATRIOTS 35

FOXBOROUGH, Mass. — Sam Bradford passed his first test as a starting quarterback in the NFL.

And the player who ended the game at that position for the Rams, Keith Null, directed a drive that set up Josh Brown's 37-yard field goal on the final play that gave St. Louis a 36-35 exhibition win over the New England Patriots on Thursday night.

Bradford, the top pick in this year's draft, was poised and precise in playing the first half. He went 15 for 22 for 189 yards after struggling as a backup in his first two games. But Tom Brady threw touchdown passes on three consecutive drives and the Patriots (2-1) turned a 27-14 deficit into a 35-27 lead.

St. Louis (2-1) rallied for a 2-yard touchdown run by Keith Toston and the game-winning field goal.

The Patriots didn't get a first down until 3:10 remained in the first half, but Brady finished with 18 completions in 22 attempts for 273 yards.

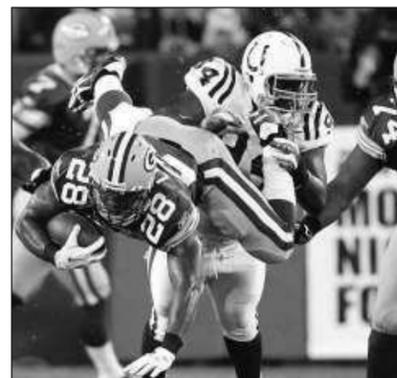

DEREK ANDERSON TO START FOR CARDINALS AT CHARGO

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Matt Leinart has been benched after just two preseason games, this after the Arizona Cardinals gave him the starting job following Kurt Warner's retirement.

It could be just a temporary move — or maybe not.

"Well, I don't think we've played really well enough, offensively to make any determination other than we need to get better," Cardinals coach Ken Whisenhunt said Thursday. "We're looking at different combinations of people."

What Leinart will be looking at is Derek Anderson, signed to be his backup, starting

Federer may meet Soderling in U.S. Open quarterfinals

NEW YORK (AP) — If Roger Federer is going to reach a seventh consecutive U.S. Open title match, he might need to get past the man who ended his Grand Slam semifinal streak. Five-time U.S. Open champion Federer was given a possible quarterfinal against two-time French Open runner-up Robin Soderling in Thursday's draw. The No. 5-seeded Soderling upset Federer in the quarterfinals in Paris this year, stopping Federer's record run of reaching at least the semifinals at 23 consecutive Grand Slam tournaments.

"I'm motivated to do well because I love New York, I love playing in Arthur Ashe (Stadium)," Federer said. "If I couldn't get motivated by this stadium and this city, then I'd have some issues."

The other men's matchups in the quarterfinals could be No. 1-seeded Rafael Nadal against No. 8 Fernando Verdasco, two-time major finalist Andy Murray against Wimbledon runner-up Tomas Berdych, and No. 3 Novak Djokovic against No. 6 Nikolay Davydenko or No. 9 Andy Roddick.

The top-seeded woman, 2009 runner-up Caroline Wozniacki, could face 2006 champion Maria Sharapova in the fourth round and 2004 champion Svetlana Kuznetsova in the quarterfinals.

Other possible women's quarterfinals set up Thursday are defending champion Kim Clijsters against French Open runner-up Sam Stosur, 2000-01 U.S. Open winner Venus Williams against French Open champion Francesca Schiavone, and 2008 U.S. Open finalist Jelena Jankovic against Wimbledon runner-up Vera Zvonareva.

"I know if I play well that I can beat anybody out there," said Clijsters, who also won the 2005 Open, "so that's what I'm going to try to achieve."

Murray, hoping to become the first British man since 1936 to win a Grand Slam title, could meet No. 20-seeded Sam Querrey of the United States in the fourth round. Another American, Wimbledon marathon man John Isner, is seeded 18th and also is in that quarter of the draw.

In the semifinals, Murray was drawn to meet Nadal, who lost in that round in New York each of the past two years and is trying to complete a career Grand Slam by winning the U.S. Open for the first time.

Federer was drawn to meet Djokovic or Roddick in the semifinals. Federer beat Djokovic in the 2007 U.S. Open final and the 2008 and 2009 semifinals.

"Over the last three years here, I've only lost to one player — Federer — and that gives me enough reason to believe I can go for this year," Djokovic said, "because I like the courts, I like the atmosphere here. I just like the tournament — it's suitable to my game, and to my personality." Federer could face another familiar opponent in the third round: 2001 U.S. Open and 2002 Wimbledon champion Lleyton Hewitt. Federer beat Hewitt in the 2004 U.S. Open final, part of a 15-match, head-to-head winning streak for Federer — which ended when Hewitt beat him in the final of a grass-court tournament at Halle, Germany, in June.

"I know my way around New York so well. The center court is so familiar," Federer said. "The fans have always been behind me, and that's always so key, and I hope it's going to be, again, the same this year."

He lost in the 2009 U.S. Open final to Juan Martin del

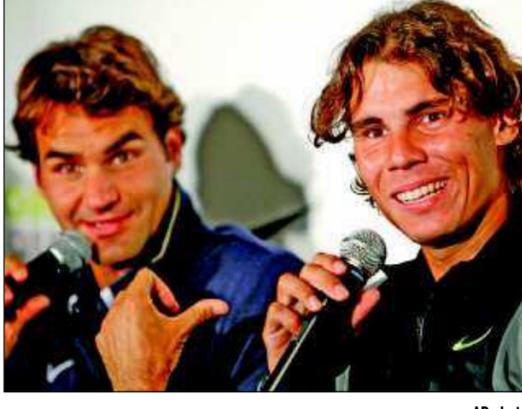

Potro, who — like No. 1-ranked Serena Williams — previously withdrew from this year's tournament, having not recovered fully from surgery. Del Potro's wrist was hurt; Williams cut her foot shortly after winning Wimbledon, although she hasn't explained exactly what happened.

"It would be great to have Serena compete," Clijsters said, "but that's sports, and that's life."

Williams' older sister Venus, who is seeded No. 3, could face an intriguing matchup in the third round against No. 32-seeded Tsvetana Pironkova of Bulgaria. Pironkova has won two of her previous three matches against Venus Williams, including a straight-set upset in the Wimbledon quarterfinals June 29.

That was the last match Williams played on tour; she sprained her left kneecap in early August, forcing her to withdraw from hard-court tournaments at Cincinnati and Montreal. The U.S. Open begins Monday, and Williams will have gone more than two months without a match by the time she meets her first-round opponent, Roberta Vinci of Italy, who is 1-7 for her career at Flushing Meadows.

HARD BARGAINS 2007 LINCOLN MKZ SEDAN

Hard Bargains
By Neal White
Motor News Media Corp.

For consumers aspiring to own a luxury sedan, one model worthy of consideration is the 2007 Lincoln MKZ. Available in front- or all-wheel drive configurations, Lincoln's entry-level luxury sedan offers upscale accommodations for up to five passengers in a mid-size platform. Replacing the Zephyr for the 2007 model year, the MKZ arrived on the market powered by a 3.5L V-6 engine and mated to a six-speed automatic transmission.

Inside the passenger cabin, the 2007 MKZ features genuine materials, including real wood, high-quality leather, satin nickel and chromed trim. Luxury extends to the instrument panel with white electro-luminescent lighting used to illuminate the round, chrome-ringed gauges, complementing the interior's white lighting, which uses white light-emitting diodes to backlight controls and switches at night. While the interior provides comfortable seating for five passengers, it also features a 15.8 cubic feet trunk to accommodate luggage or groceries.

Standard creature comforts include premium audio system, intermittent speed-sensitive wipers, dual-zone climate control system, automatic headlamps, cruise control, leather seats, HomeLink garage door opener, power windows, tilt and telescoping steering column with redundant audio and climate controls, 10-way power driver's and front passenger seats and rear seat reading lights.

Standard safety features include driver and front passenger airbags, seat-deployed side airbags, full-length safety curtain airbags, child proof rear door locks, LATCH child seat anchor system, SecuriLock passive anti-theft system, remote keyless entry, door-mounted keyless entry pad, puddle lamps for exterior mirrors and anti-lock brakes with electronic brake force distribution. Optional features on the 2007 MKZ included THX audio upgrade, power moonroof, heated and cooled front seats, navigation system and HID headlamps.

Published monthly in ten regional editions across the country, the National Automobile Dealers Association (NADA) Official Used Car Guide is a handy reference tool to determine an approximate value for a vehicle depending on the condition and mileage. The retail price listed is the base value by specific model and trim level, with average mileage, usually about 15,000 per year. Consumers can expect to pay more for models with less than average mileage and/or better than average condition. Likewise, a model will be worth less than guide value when a vehicle has high mileage, extensive wear, minor body damage or needs mechanical attention.

The NADA Official Used Car Guide bases mileage ranges on averages from information received from the automotive marketplace. The information use in this column was derived from the July 2010 Midwest Edition of the NADA Official Used Car Guide. For 2007 models, average mileage ranges from 50,001-55,000. The NADA guide lists the average retail price for the 2007 Lincoln MKZ sedan, front-wheel drive, $19,150; all-wheel drive, $20,625. As with all pre-owned vehicles, expect the average retail price to increase if vehicles are equipped with extra features like: navigation ($1,175), power sunroof ($725), THX audio ($500), theft recovery system ($125).

Most new vehicle dealers will check to see if a vehicle received in trade has any outstanding recall notices. Whether purchasing from a dealership or private party, always have a mechanic inspect the vehicle prior to signing an agreement.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"The deed is everything, the glory nothing."
— Johann Wolfgang von Goethe

Over several years of competing in youth tournaments, Thomas Bessis has been a rich source of top-quality declarer play and defense. In the junior European Championships, Thomas produced his finest effort against England in the final match.

When Chris Owen bid four spades, it looked as if that contract would make, thanks to the ruffing club finesse, but ...

Bessis' partner, Frederic Volcker, led the diamond eight, second from three or more small cards, and Bessis won the king and cashed the ace. John Atthey false-carded with the queen as Volcker dropped the two, confirming two or four cards — clearly four on the auction. Bessis now deviously switched to the club seven, and not surprisingly, declarer was taken in. Atthey ruffed low and gave up a heart, Bessis winning the ace and returning a diamond to declarer's 10. Atthey ruffed a heart, ruffed a club, and ruffed a heart, being relieved to see that Bessis could not overruff. He now ruffed another club, but Volcker could overruff and that was two down.

How did Bessis find the brilliant underlead? He deduced that his partner would surely have led a singleton club rather than one of four small diamonds, so was marked with either two clubs or a void. Once declarer was known to have three diamonds, plus heart length because of the auction, it had to be he and not Volcker who had the club void. Because the French North-South pair had played in four clubs down one in the other room, Bessis' fine defense turned a big loss into a small gain.

ANSWER: With a nine-count, albeit a shapely one, facing a hand with no obvious fit, there seems no reason to get beyond the two-level. The simple preference to two diamonds is admittedly conservative, but seems sufficient. The idea is to let partner bid on if he has extras in shape or high cards and stay low if he does not.

DEAR ABBY: My son, "Jason," has decided to leave college with only two semesters left in order to pursue his love of river guiding and outdoor programs. While he was in school, his father and I paid for his cell phone, health and car insurance, and his rent because we wanted his focus to be on his studies. We also paid his tuition.

Jason has a part-time job. Now that he has decided to leave school, our view is that he should find another job and assume these expenses.

My husband and I disagree about who should pay for any future education Jason wants. If he goes back to school, his tuition will be paid for, says Dad. I think we would be enabling him if he thought we were always standing by to foot the bill.

We are heartsick that Jason has made this decision, but his mind is made up. Any advice from you would be appreciated.

— UNHAPPY MOM
IN MISSISSIPPI

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR UNHAPPY: I agree that Jason should shoulder the responsibility for his living expenses. However, do not make any hard and fast decisions about his tuition while you are still angry at him. This situation will play out. If and when Jason decides to complete his education, discuss the matter of tuition then.

DEAR ABBY: Do you know what a speech-generating device is? A lot of people don't. It's a specialized computer that speaks for people who are unable to communicate verbally.

We're a group of campers from Camp Courage who use speech-generating devices to talk. Sometimes people are uncomfortable with our unique way of communicating. We'd like to share some ideas to help them understand:

1. Please be patient. It takes us a little bit longer to get our messages out than it does you.
2. Feel free to ask questions. Don't pretend to understand us if you don't.
3. Do not think we are stupid. Have you ever tried to communicate using one of these things?
4. If it looks like we're having trouble, ask if we need help.
5. Treat us like adults — just as you would want to be treated.
6. If you're curious, you can look at our devices. It's OK to ask. We're not all the same.
7. Be our friend. If you do, you'll find we have a lot of interesting things to say.

Abby, thanks for helping us communicate our message. We hope to speak to you again!

— CAMILLE, HEATHER, JOEL, JOHN, NAT AND NICOLE

DEAR CAMILLE, HEATHER, JOEL, JOHN, NAT AND NICOLE: I'm pleased to help spread the word. For people who are vocally challenged, you have written an eloquent letter.

Assistive technologies have come a long way in recent years to ensure that people with disabilities are more fully able to participate in business as well as society. These advances are constantly evolving — and as they do there must also be an "evolution" on the part of the larger community toward acceptance of people who are perceived as different.

IF AUGUST 27 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You've heard that song refrain, "You've got the power." This fall that song could describe your ability to make things happen. When gripped by a passion to succeed your ability to focus on one subject to the exclusion of all else makes your triumph a sure thing. Although this month you could find it most important to dwell on fantasies with a vacation on tap or a new love interest on your mind, don't discount your ability to make your career dreams come true. Put all of your affairs in apple pie order and be sure to get your most important plans launched by the end of November. In March and April, you may be challenged to prove your trustworthiness to a partner or the general public.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You heard it on the grapevine. You may be put in a position that requires you to spread news you would prefer not to disclose. You will breathe a sigh of relief when you have completed your mission.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Talk things through. The drive toward success can become bogged down in minutiae or blocked by control issues. You are able to discuss things sensibly and reasonably before tempers get out of hand.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You can get it all done. You can rise to a challenge and organize strategically when much must be done in a short amount of time. Burn the midnight oil if necessary to see something through to completion.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You are a pushover for plotting and planning. Your analytical powers are in full swing and you are gripped by a passion for all the details that revolve around your ambitions. Money can be made.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): It may be necessary to shift mental gears today as pleasant conversations around the water cooler could be cut short by demanding phone calls. You might need to hop like a bunny to avoid criticism.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Keep your backbone straight, even if you think you deserve the time to slump in your chair. Others will expect you to shoulder routine tasks and will have little sympathy if you slack off.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Hook up with someone who is outside your type. If you are bored to tears by computer geeks or if high-powered entrepreneurs consistently flake on you, try meeting up with someone artistic.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You are tripped up by throwing your weight around. Your passion for excellence and accomplishment can make you less sensitive to the feelings of others. Support can come from unexpected places.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A change of pace is in order. The excitement of intense work-related situations is almost past and you can concentrate your energies on more sensual pursuits. New faces could enter the picture.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A new love interest could show up on your doorstep or be introduced by friends. Don't rush into intimacy until a reliable friendship is created. Suppress an urge to spend money on non-essentials.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Don't be a loner. All work and no play can make anyone dull — and you have no intention of being known as dull. Find a hot spot or invite a new friend out for a scrumptious dinner and escape mental pressures.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Do something different. Help loved ones relax and escape from intense day-to-day, dog-eat-dog struggles. Let the workweek end on a positive note by putting together a gathering of like-minded people.
