Birth rate falls; possible effect of sour economy

By Marilynn Marchione
Associated Press writer

The U.S. birth rate has dropped for the second year in a row, and experts think the wrenching recession led many people to put off having children. The 2009 birth rate also set a record: lowest in a century.

Births fell 2.7 percent last year even as the population grew, numbers released Friday by the National Center for Health Statistics show.

“It’s a good-sized decline for one year. Every month is showing a decline from the year before,” said Stephanie Ventura, the demographer who oversaw the report.

The birth rate, which takes into account changes in population, fell to 13.5 births for every 1,000 people last year. That’s down from 14.3 in 2007 and way down from 30 in 1909, when it was common for people to have big families.

“It doesn’t matter how you look at it — fertility has declined,” Ventura said.

In Idaho, nearly 1,500 fewer children were born in 2009 than in 2008, according to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, though that trend isn’t uniformly followed.

“We’ve seen a steady increase,” said Diane Baker, health unit coordinator for Cassia Regional Medical Center in Burley. In 2007, the hospital welcomed 704 babies, while that number jumped to 719 in 2008. Figures from the hospital for 2009 weren’t immediately available on Friday.

St. Luke’s Health System spokesman Ken Dey said St. Luke’s Magic Valley Medical Center in Twin Falls has seen a 6 percent drop in births over the past year, as have St. Luke’s hospitals in Meridian and Ketchum. St. Luke’s Boise hospital has only witnessed a decrease of 1.6 percent

Judge grants second Osterhoudt mistrial

By Bradley Guire
Times-News writer

Alleged rapist Franklin Ward Osterhoudt remains innocent.

Although his second trial on charges of incest, rape and five counts of lewd conduct with a child under 16 ended with a guilty verdict, 5th District Judge Barry Wood declared a mistrial this week. Wood granted the motion for mistrial after defense counsel George Essma argued that Osterhoudt’s Fifth Amendment right to refuse self-incrimination was violated by Twin Falls County Deputy Prosecutor Julie Sturgill during her closing arguments on July 8.

Wood’s ruling concluded that “the deputy prosecutor’s comment was constitutional error and the State has failed to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the error did not contribute to the verdict.”

Specifically, Essma objected to this statement by Sturgill, referencing the fact that Osterhoudt, 44, of Buhl, did not testify in court: “What is the testimony of the defendant? Actually, no one addressed this at all.”

As Long Butte Fire cools, crews move on to other hot spots

By Laura Lundquist
Times-News writer

HAGERMAN — Fighting wildfire can be hectic and dangerous near the front line of a large blaze such as the Long Butte Fire. But in a fire’s final stages, some of a firefighter’s job ends up being far more tedious, though no less important.

U.S. Bureau of Land Management officials expected to have the Long Butte Fire fully contained Friday night, almost a week after it began. As fewer fire crews were needed for mop-up, some were released to fight other fires, including some near Boise. But fire commanders knew strong winds were predicted toward week’s end, so they kept extra crews on call at their Hagerman fire camp.

The winds picked up Thursday night as a cold front passed, and 40 mph gusts buffeted crews in their tents. Some firefighters didn’t even make it to their tents, though, as lighting started three more fires near Hagerman between 9 and 10 p.m.

“We had the crews ready,” said BLM spokeswoman Susan Marzec. “We were already set up to go when it started popping.”

Three engines were initially sent to work the 1,460-acre Saylor Cap Fire that started west of the Long Butte Fire. Twin Falls native Mike Houser was on one of the engines sent to the 110-acre Bray Fire north of Bliss. Houser said the incident was actually two fires about a quarter-mile apart, but crews were able to quickly knock both down.

Karsten Milek was headed back to camp Friday morning with his engine crew from the Wind River-Big Horn BLM District in Wyoming. The season in Wyoming has been slow, he said, so the crew is up to going anywhere. By the time it arrived Monday to work the Long Butte Fire, that blaze had already done most of its damage.

“It was still making a good push,” Milek said. “But we really didn’t work much until last night.”

Cracked wheat: Scientists unravel genetic code of world’s top grain

By Raphael G. Satter
Associated Press writer

LONDON — British scientists have decoded the genetic sequence of wheat — one of the world’s oldest and most important crops — a development they hope could help the global staple meet the challenges of climate change, disease and population growth.

Wheat is grown across more of the world’s farmland than any other cereal, and researchers said Friday they’re posting its genetic code to the Internet in the hope that scientists can use it as a tool to improve farmers’

“The wheat genome is the holy grail of plant genomes. It’s going to really revolutionize how we breed it.”

harvests. One academic in the field called the discovery “a landmark.”

“The wheat genome is the holy grail of plant genomes,” said Nick Talbot, a professor of biosciences at the University of Exeter who wasn’t involved in the research. “It’s going to really revolutionize how we breed it.”

University of Liverpool scientist Neil Hall, whose team cracked the code, said the information could eventually help breeders of varieties of wheat better identify genetic variations responsible for disease resistance, drought tolerance and yield. Although the genetic sequence remains a rough draft, and additional strains of wheat need to be analyzed for the work to be useful, Hall predicted it wouldn’t take long for his work to make an impact in the field.

“Hopefully the benefit of this work will come through in the next five years,” he said.

A genome is the full complement of an organism’s DNA, complex molecules which direct the formation and function of all living organisms. Sequencing an organism’s genome gives unparalleled insight into how it is formed, develops and dies.

Wheat is a relative latecomer to the world of genetic sequencing. This year marks the 10th anniversary of the date the human genome was laid bare.

MORNING BRIEFING

Pat's Picks

Three things to do today

Pat Marcantonio

From flying to fiesta to prestidigitation, you'll find it all today.

- Radio-controlled model planes and helicopters fly at the Magic Valley Aeromodelers air show from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Flying Field, seven miles south of Kimberly Road on Blue Lakes Boulevard and then two miles west on 3100 N. outside of Twin Falls. Food will be for sale, along with free gliders for the first 75 kids and free flying lessons for kids 9 and older.

- A Mexican rodeo highlights the Buhl Fiesta from 4 to 10 p.m. at the Buhl Rodeo Grounds. The event features pinatas, music and dancing, and dinner is served from 4 to 6 p.m. Tickets are $10 to $15.

- End the evening with the "Art of Imagination" magic show at 7 p.m. at the CSI Fine Arts Auditorium. Tickets are $12. And it will make money appear for local charities.

Births

over that span, Dey said.

"Fifty percent of births are planned, and with the slow-down in the economy people are taking a step back," Dey said. "We kind of expected it. The economy has been a big issue overall."

The nationwide situation is a striking turnabout from 2007, when more babies were born in the U.S. than any other year in the nation's history. The recession began that fall, dragging stocks, jobs and births down.

"When the economy is bad and people are uncomfortable about their financial future, they tend to postpone having children. We saw that in the Great Depression the 1930s and we're seeing that in the Great Recession today," said Andrew Cherlin, a sociology professor at Johns Hopkins University.

"It could take a few years to turn this around," he added, noting that the birth rate stayed low throughout the 1930s.

Another possible factor in the drop: a decline in immigration to the United States.

The downward trend invites worrisome comparisons to Japan and its lost decade in the 1990s of choked growth and very low birth rates.

The new U.S. report is a rough count of births from states. It estimates there were 4.1 million births in 2009, down from nearly 4.3 million in 2008 and more than 4.3 million in 2007.

The report does not give details on trends in different age groups. That will come next spring and will give a clearer picture of who is and isn't having children, Ventura said.

Times-News reporter Amy Huddleston contributed to this report.

Mistrial

The Fifth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution states: "No person ... shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself."

Prosecutors filed an objection to the motion, arguing that the remark was not improper and was a "harmless error in context of the entire trial." The prosecution maintains that regardless of the comment, the jury would have reached the same guilty verdict.

In his analysis of the matter, Wood wrote, "This Court holds that the deputy prosecutor's comment was of such character reasonable jurors could readily take the statement to be a comment on the failure of Osterhoudt to testify. Accordingly, the prosecutorial comment was a violation of a constitutionally protected right."

In an Aug. 9 letter to Wood, Osterhoudt juror Dennis Brown argued that the jury did not discuss closing arguments as part of the two-hour deliberation.

Brown wrote that he felt "compelled to tell (Wood) that in our jury deliberation there was absolutely no mention of the fact that Mr. Osterhoudt did not take the stand in his own defense." Brown added that he had not realized that the prosecutor had erred until reading about it in the Times-News.

Wood ruled that the prosecutorial conduct was not intended, so Osterhoudt can be re-tried. That will happen, "Without a doubt," Twin Falls County Prosecutor Grant Loebs said Friday.

Loebs added that Sturgill will argue the case for the state again.

"I have absolute confidence in Julie Sturgill," Loebs said. "She did an excellent job with the last trial, and she'll do an excellent job in the next trial."

A new trial date has yet to be scheduled.

This summer marked the second time Osterhoudt faced a jury, after a mistrial was declared during his first jury trial in 2009. In that instance, the jury couldn't reach a verdict, unlike the guilty verdict reached this year after an eight-day trial.

According to Friday's head count, Osterhoudt remains in custody at the Twin Falls County Jail.

Crews extinguish two Mini-Cassia fires

By Laurie Welch
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Two fires that broke out on public lands in Mini-Cassia Thursday were contained Friday including one near Oakley that damaged 3,800 acres.

U.S. Bureau of Land Management spokeswoman Barbara Bassler said Friday that a fire burning grass, pinyon juniper and brush 14 miles south of Oakley was reported at 3:23 p.m. on Thursday. Dubbed the Emery Fire, its cause is still under investigation.

"No homes were threatened," Bassler said. "And the closest thing to it was a rock quarry, which had heavy equipment."

Bassler said the fire was about one mile from the quarry when it broke out.

Ten engines, three dozers, three helicopters and three 20-person hand crews remained on the fire Friday.

A second blaze, the Mile Marker 11 Fire, broke out Thursday evening near Interstate 86. Crews were mopping it up by 10:15 p.m. that night. Eight engines were called to the scene.

Bassler said the fire was discovered at 6 p.m. burning grass and brush 26 miles east of Burley and north of I-86.

"It started north of the interstate and burned toward the river," Bassler said.

She said the cause of the fire, which burned 1,000 acres, is still under investigation.

Fires

The firefighters watched through the night to make sure the Bray Fire was out but were still able to grab a wink or two of sleep.

Those sent to the nearby North Bliss Fire weren't as lucky. Forty BLM and Forest Service firefighters from Idaho and Utah worked through the night to fight the 5,500-acre fire.

Sagebrush still survived on the west side where the fire started, but the blackened earth was barren where the winds had whipped the fire to the east.

The winds were still stiff out of the west as Kristen Omelia and her crew showed up Friday morning to do the slow work of cold-trailing — identifying and cooling a fire's hot spots. Flames can smolder within sagebrush stumps even though the main fire appears to be out. If it's not caught, it can burn anew.

As trails of smoke curled up from a few isolated depressions, Omelia dug into the charred sagebrush, looking for the white ash indicating a hot spot. When she found one, she dug deeper and crew member James Brown followed with the hose to douse the spot. The team of four inched along, scouring a swath of about 10 to 20 feet along the eastern edge of the burned area.

Omelia said they would return to make the swath 30 feet wide, but wanted to quickly hit the spots closest to unburned areas so the fire wouldn't jump. All four had a full 12-hour day ahead.

"Mop-up is the hardest part," said BLM spokeswoman Jessica Gardetto. "It's frustrating because you want action but you just gotta be vigilant and patient."

The crew has been doing the same work for a week. Brown said they cold-trailed 4 to 5 miles of the north side of the Long Butte Fire on the night of Aug. 21, when it was first raging.

"The flame height was 10 to 30 feet — bigger when the winds were going," Omelia said. "They could easily jump the line, so we were busy."

Both the Long Butte and North Bliss fires are "dirty fires," — the fire didn't burn evenly, leaving unburned islands in the burned area. The islands preserve valuable sagebrush, but are more likely to catch fire in the aftermath.

And that's what happened midday Friday, when a hot spot ignited an island in the North Bliss area and the fire surged east again.

"That's why we stay out here and monitor, even after a fire is supposed to be out," said Gardetto. "Because random things like that can pop up."

Highway 21 reopens after fires

Times-News

HAILEY — Both lanes of Idaho Highway 21 between Stanley and Boise were reopened on Friday, pending a change in the behavior of the Banner Fire.

The highway had been shut down or restricted to one lane for much of the week due to the blaze, which is burning about 15 miles northwest of Stanley.

Delays are still possible depending on the fire's progress and local weather conditions.

The Banner Fire started Aug. 20 from a lightning strike and has burned more than 2,365 acres. While contained along the highway, fire managers are letting it burn into the backcountry for resource-management purposes — cleaning up fuel that could otherwise feed a more destructive blaze.

The nearby Little Beaver Complex Fire, 26 miles west of Stanley, was also lit by lightning, on July 28 and has burned 5,350 acres. It is expected to be contained within a week.

Buhl Trout Fest back on the schedule

Times-News

BUHL — It was scrapped, but now it's back.

The Buhl Chamber of Commerce decided Thursday to move forward with a Sept. 24 Trout Fest.

The chamber's decision to hold the festival was made after the deadline for an article in Friday's Times-News, which stated that the chamber had cancelled the event.

Trout Fest will still be much smaller than in years past, said Chairwoman Holly Langdon.

“There were plans to organize a ‘Bite of Buhl’ event featuring our local restaurants and we thought that if we were already going to pull that off, we might as well integrate that into Trout Fest,” she said.

The festival will feature trout-inspired hors d'oeuvres and drinks, including local wines, and a rededication ceremony for Buhl's downtown trout sculpture.

Organizers plan on booking a live band for a street dance, and hosting children's activities and local vendors.

A worker holds a handful of dried wheat Friday at a silo in Tyne Dock, South Shields, England. British scientists have decoded the genetic sequence of wheat, one of the world's oldest and most important crops, a development they hope can help breed better strains of the global food staple.

Wheat

Other crops have had their genetic codes unscrambled within the past few years — rice in 2005, corn in 2009, and soybeans earlier this year.

The reason for the delay in analyzing wheat's genetic code, Hall said, was that the code is massive — far larger than corn or rice and five times the length of the one carried by humans.

One reason for the outsize genome is that strains such as the Chinese spring wheat analyzed by Hall's team carry six copies of the same gene (most creatures carry two.) Another is that wheat has a tangled ancestry, tracing its descent from three different species of wild grass.

But sequencing techniques have improved dramatically over the past decade. The process used in this case is called pyrosequencing, a technique which involves extracting DNA, suspending it in fluid, breaking it apart with bursts of gas and using chemical reactions and a high-resolution camera to infer its makeup.

Hall said the machine used enabled his team to analyze a million strands of DNA at a time. The whole process took about a year to complete.

Although the code may yet see use by genetic engineers hoping to craft artificial strains of wheat, Hall was at pains to stress the conventional applications of his work. Until now, breeders seeking to combine the best traits of two strains of wheat would cross the pair, grow the hybrid crop and hope for the best.

Although the process has been used by farmers since wheat was first cultivated 10,000 years ago, Talbot described it as laborious and inefficient.

“Very often we were talking about 10-15 years of intensive breeding programs,” he said. “We're talking now about doing things in less than five.”

Talbot noted that rice cultivation had already benefited from the publication of its genetic code — and led to the development of vitamin-enriched and drought-resistant strains. He said that his own field of specialty, the study of the destructive rice blast fungus, had been revolutionized as a result of having the genome sequence.

Twin Falls kids learn about magic from the pros

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

Unfazed by having to perform in front of her peers, Nikki Mongetta confidently took the floor.

One hand clutched a green handkerchief, tied to a yellow handkerchief of the same size.

With sass, Mongetta told the five other kids taking part in Friday's Magic Camp that she would change the colors of both. Then, to cheers from her audience, she slid her hand across the silky material, turning green to blue and yellow to red.

BLAIR KOCH/For the Times-News

The trick was just one of a variety of illusions the six children learned at the camp, part of this weekend's MagicFest in Twin Falls. The kids will demonstrate what they learned today at 1 p.m. at the Magic Valley Mall and during the 7 p.m. Art of Imagination magic show at the College of Southern Idaho's Fine Arts Center.

This is the second year for MagicFest, a fundraiser benefiting the Twin Falls Kiwanis Club and the Twin Falls Community Foundation, but the first year a youth activity was scheduled.

“For a number of logistical reasons we were not able to pull off the kids event last year,” said Brian Higgins of Success Martial Arts, where the afternoon camp took place. “But we thought adding something the kids could be a part of

was important and this year made sure it happened.”

However simple the tricks he taught appeared, Nelo the Magician — also known as Olen Foreman of Twin Falls — explained that behind every great magician is someone who spends long hours practicing and preparing.

He was inspired at 22 years old to take up magic by his father-in-law. Now 59, he's been performing and honing his craft for nearly four decades.

“The timeless element to magic is the wonder of it. I believe that a lot of adults are still kids at heart,” Foreman said. “Magic shows are something that are enjoyed equally by both adults and children.”

Camp participant Thomas Collins has studied the art of magic for a few years. The 12-year-old said he got hooked after seeing his friend perform a coin trick from a kit purchased at a dollar store.

Collins soon had many magic kits and books on the subject.

“I can make tissues disappear,” he said.

“The high road’s a graveyard, isn’t it?”
– Pollster Marc Helleenthal, blaming Lisa Murkowski’s tight race in the Alaskan Senate primary on the Republican’s failure to respond to negative ads by the Tea Party Express

Heyburn right to take a close look at consolidation

CHEERS: To the city of Heyburn, for considering melding its police department with the Minidoka County Sheriff’s Office.

The Heyburn Police Department spends more than $500,000, some of which comes out of the city’s $5.9 million budget and some from grants. The city of 2,800 will have $1.7 million less in the next fiscal year than it did in this one.

City Administrator Scott Spevak estimates that contracting police services with Minidoka County would cost about $350,000 a year.

“I don’t think we would be a responsible city council if we didn’t look at all of the issues affecting our budget,”

Councilwoman Leann Smith said.

Consolidated services have served Minidoka County well. It’s a countywide school district, and the sheriff already handles law enforcement for all of the county except Rupert and Heyburn.

Local control is important, but saving the taxpayers money in these difficult times make sense if Heyburn can get the same level of public safety from the county.

JEERS: Come on, Boise State. Compounding BSU President Bob Kustra’s tirade against University of Idaho fans last month, on Thursday the university’s assistant athletic director pulled the plug on a Boise TV station that was trying to broadcast football coach Chris Petersen’s news conference live.

Apart from being a blatant violation of KTVB’s First Amendment rights, the incident was the latest sign of arrogance in Boise State’s athletic program. The Bronco football team is ranked No. 3 in the nation in preseason polls, and it’s beginning to show in the university’s attitude.

The press conference took place on public property — the BSU campus. Courts have ruled that media have a right to cover news and take pictures as long as they are lawfully in the place where it’s happening.

BSU Assistant Athletic Director Max Corbet works for you as a taxpayer. According to the Idaho Freedom Foundation’s state employee salaries database, you pay him $26.76 an hour.

Petersen, of course, is the highest-paid state employee. He earns $474.88 an hour, according to the IFF.

Seems to us the taxpayers have the right to hear what he has to say.

CHEERS: To Idaho State Police Trooper James Kilton, for an extraordinary act of courage.

Kilton received the ISP’s Medal of Valor this week for pulling a motorist out of a canal in Minidoka County early on the morning of June 6. It was dark, the water was cold, and the driver was drunk.

The trooper clocked a speeding vehicle traveling at 107 mph in a 45 mph construction zone. The driver lost control, ran off the road and crashed. Kilton shed his gun belt, waded into the water and got the man out of the rig just before it sank.

Gerardo Huerta-Flores, 20, of Jerome was cited for driving under the influence.

ISP officers do a lot with fewer resources than they should have. But Kilton’s action was above and beyond the call of duty.

Bluegrass festival had many helpers

A big thank-you to everyone that helped put on the Snake River Bluegrass Festival, especially the city of Heyburn. We were able to collect 325 food items to donate to South Central Community Action. The weather was wonderful, the food was great and the music was entertaining.

Thank you to our sponsors: D.L. Evans Bank, Boise Cascade and the city of Heyburn. Thanks to the local newspapers for helping get the word out. Thanks to the bands that traveled here to perform, High Desert Band, Soles Rest, Front Porch Flavor and Strings Attached. Thanks to our MC and local entertainment Gary Bench and Jason Parton. Thanks to the members of the Heyburn Amphitheater Committee that helped plan the event and the Heyburn Horizon Committee for cooking a wonderful pancake breakfast.

Look for upcoming events at the Heyburn Riverside Park on the Mini-Cassia Chamber of Commerce website.

Building a nation of know-nothings

Having shed much of his dignity, core convictions and reputation for straight talk, Sen. John McCain won his primary on Tuesday against the flat-earth wing of his party. Now McCain can go search for his lost character, which was last on display late in his 2008 campaign for president.

Remember the moment: a woman with matted hair and a shaky voice rose to express her doubts about Barack Obama. “I have read about him,” she said, “and he’s not — he’s an Arab.”

McCain was quick to knock down the lie. “No, ma’am,” he said, “he’s a decent family man, a citizen.”

Timothy Egan

That ill-informed woman — her head stuffed with fabrications that could be disproved by a pre-schooler — now makes up a representative third or more of the Republican party. It’s not just that 46 percent of Republicans believe the lie that Obama is a Muslim, or that 27 percent in the party doubt that the president of the United States is a citizen.

A growing segment of the party poised to take control of Congress has bought into denial of the basic truths of Barack Obama’s life. This astonishing level of willful ignorance has come about largely by design, and has been aided by a press afraid to call out the primary architects of the lies.

So where is this media? Two sources, and they are the usual suspects. The first, of course, is Rush Limbaugh, who claims the largest radio audience in the land among the microphone demagogues, and his word is Biblical among Republicans. A few quick examples of the Limbaugh method:

“Tomorrow is Obama’s birthday — not that we’ve seen any proof of that,” he said on Aug. 3. “They tell us Aug. 4 is the birthday; we haven’t seen any proof of that.”

Look here, www.factcheck.org, for starters, one of many places posting Obama’s Hawaiian birth certificate.

On the Muslim deception, Limbaugh has sprinkled lie dust all over the place. “Obama says he’s a Christian, but where’s the evidence?” he said on Aug. 19. He has repeatedly called the president “imam Obama,” and said, “I’m just throwing things out there, folks, because people are questioning his Christianity.”

You see how he works. He drops in suggestions, hints, notes that “people are questioning” things. The design is to make Obama un-American. He says this as a preemptive way to keep the press from calling him out. And it works; long profiles of Limbaugh have largely gone easy on him.

Once Limbaugh has planted a lie, a prominent politician can pick it up, with little nuance. So, over the weekend, Kim Lehman, one of Iowa’s two

“The founder of Politifact, (a) nonpartisan referee to the daily rumble, said two of the site’s five most popular items on its Truth-o-meter are corrections of Glenn Beck.”

Republican National Committee members, went public with doubts on Obama’s Christianity. Of course, she was not condemned by party leaders.

It’s curious, also, that any felon, drug addict, or recovering hedonist can loudly proclaim a sudden embrace of Jesus and be welcomed without doubt by leaders of the religious right. But a thoughtful Christian like Obama is still distrusted.

“I am a devout Christian,” Obama told Christianity Today in 2008. “I believe in the redemptive death and resurrection of Jesus Christ.” That’s not enough for Rev. Franklin Graham, the partisan son of the great evangelical leader, who said last week that Obama was “born a Muslim because of the religious seed passed on from his father.”

Actually, he was born from two non-practicing parents, and his Kenyan father was absent for all of his upbringing. Obama came to his Christianity like millions of people, through searching and questioning.

Finally, there is Fox News, whose parent company has given $1 million to Republican causes this year but still masquerades as a legitimate source of news. Their chat and opinion programs spread innuendo daily. The founder of Politifact, another nonpartisan referee to the daily rumble, said two of the site’s five most popular items on its Truth-o-meter are corrections of Glenn Beck.

Of late, he has gone after Michelle Obama, whose vacation in Spain was “just for her and approximately 40 of her friends.”

The White House said Michelle Obama and her daughter Sasha were accompanied by just a few friends — and they paid their own costs. But, wink, wink, the damage is done. He’s Muslim and foreign. She’s living the luxe life on your dime. They don’t even have to mention race. The code words do it for them.

Climate-change denial is a special category all its own. Once on the fringe, dismissal of scientific consensus is now an article of faith among leading Republicans, again taking their cue from Limbaugh and Fox.

It’s one thing to forget the past, with predictable consequences, as the favorite aphorism goes. But what about those who refuse to comprehend the present?

Warmth in winter will remind of assistance

We have been the recipient of some wonderful programs in the Magic Valley and would like to express our thanks.

In January, our furnace went out and as we are elderly and on a fixed income, we had no way of replacing it. We contacted Mac at South Central Community Action to see if they could offer assistance. What a great blessing they have been.

With their weatherization program, we not only got our furnace replaced but they also insulated our walls and ceiling and went over our entire home to see what else it needed to be made energy efficient. We are so grateful and want to thank all who worked so hard to help us.

With a warm home this winter, we will be thinking of these wonderful people every day and their willingness to help us in our time

Movement stirs around education

While Washington is consumed with whether our president is secretly a Muslim, or born abroad, possibly in outer space, I'd like to talk about some good news.

You have to look at America from the bottom up, not from the top (Washington) down. What you'll see is a movement stirring in this country around education. From the explosion of new charter schools to the new teachers' union contract in D.C., which will richly reward public school teachers who get their students to improve faster and weed out those who don't, Americans are finally taking their education crisis seriously.

Or, for another look, go to a theater near you after Sept. 24 and watch the new documentary Waiting for Superman. You'll see just what I'm talking about.

Waiting for Superman follows five kids and their parents who aspire to obtain a decent public education but have to enter a bingo-like lottery to get into a good charter school, because their home schools are miserable failures.

This movie is about the people trying to change that. The film's core thesis is that for too long our public school system was built to serve adults, not kids. For too long we underpaid and undervalued our teachers and compensated them instead by giving them union perks. Over decades, though, those perks accumulated to prevent reform in too many districts. The best ones are now reforming, and the worst are facing challenges from charters.

Although the movie makes the claim that the key to student achievement is putting a great teacher in every classroom, and it is critical of the teachers' unions and supportive of charters, it challenges all the adults who run our schools with one question: Are you putting kids and their education first?

Thomas Friedman

Because we know what works, and it's not a miracle cure. It is the lead-follow-or-get-out-of-the-way ferocity of the Washington and New York City school chancellors, Michelle Rhee and Joel Klein.

And it is the quiet heroism of millions of public and charter school teachers and parents who do put kids first by implementing the best ideas, and in so doing make their schools just a little bit better and more accountable every day — so no Americans ever again have to play life bingo with their kids, or pray to be rescued by Superman.

'Thank you, Glenn!' shouts Brenda Herr, of Grant-Valkaria, Fla., as Glenn Beck leaves the site of the Restoring Honor rally near the Lincoln Memorial in Washington, on Friday. The rally will take place today.

D.C.'s 'truth, honor' rally tests Beck's power

By David Bauder
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — Glenn Beck, the man behind today's rally at the site of Martin Luther King Jr.'s famous "I Have a Dream" speech, has built an empire around his own voice that grew exponentially with his move to Fox News Channel and President Barack Obama's election to the White House.

Beck has become a soundtrack for conservative activists and members of the tea party movement, angry and frustrated with Obama and other Democrats in a highly charged election year. Beck suggests Obama is a socialist moving the country away from its ideals of limited government. Beck's critics contend that he exploits fear with conspiracy theories and overheated rhetoric.

Organizers say the "Restoring Honor" rally isn't about politics. It's to pay tribute to America's military personnel and others "who embody our nation's founding principles of integrity, truth and honor." It also is to promote the Special Operations Warrior Foundation, which provides scholarships and services to family members of military members.

The event at the Lincoln Memorial — where 47 years ago King delivered his speech — is expected to feature 2008 vice presidential nominee and potential 2012 White House candidate Sarah Palin. Organizers have a permit for up to 300,000 people at the rally, although Beck has said he expects 100,000. Counter-rallies with the Rev. Al Sharpton and others also are planned.

Beck, 46, is a former "morning zoo" radio DJ who cleaned up after years of drug abuse in the 1990s and switched to talk radio. CNN's then-named Headline News network gave Beck his first TV home, and he switched to Fox in January 2009, shortly after Obama was inaugurated.

His Fox show created an immediate sensation, as Beck spun his theories with an emotional fervor that Comedy Central's Stephen Colbert quickly dubbed "crank up the crazy and rip off the knob."

In interviews, Beck sees himself more as broadcaster Howard Beale, the "mad as hell, and I'm not going to take this anymore" character in the 1976 movie "Network."

He was the driving force in stories about former Obama adviser Van Jones, who resigned after Beck publicized some of his past statements. Jones was linked to efforts suggesting a government role in the 2001 terror attacks and to derogatory comments about Republicans.

Beck's own statement last year that Obama had "a deep-seated hatred for white people" led to an advertiser boycott and protests from civil rights groups.

His Washington rally has attracted attention and criticism because it is taking place on the anniversary of King's speech and in the same spot. Beck has said it will be the moment when "we reclaim the civil rights movement."

His own Fox News colleague, Greta Van Susteren, said he should move his event. She said he should do it for sensitivity reasons, much as both she and Beck argue that an Islamic Center should not be built near the site of the World Trade Center, where terrorists struck in 2001.

"It does not help the country on so many fronts if we poke a stick in eyes," Van Susteren wrote on her blog.

Beck has said he wouldn't have picked the date if he had known about the anniversary. But he rejected attempts to move it, arguing that what he will say is consistent with King's "message of focusing on the content of a person's character above all else." King's niece Alveda King is scheduled to speak.

The size of the crowd will be a visible manifestation, beyond radio and television ratings, of how Beck has connected with people.

He was already the fifth most-listened-to radio talk show host when he moved to Fox, and he's since vaulted to third "with a bullet" behind Rush Limbaugh and Sean Hannity, says Michael Harrison, publisher of the trade publication Talkers.

More than his rivals, Beck has led the way in turning himself into a multifaceted brand. Besides the radio and TV shows, he goes on concert tours, he writes books, he sells fans access to an "Insider" account for $74.95 a year and he sells his own advertising on his website.

"He's a model for a 21st century talk show host and businessman," Harrison said.

High-tech remains significant contributor to Idaho's economy

Times-News

Despite thousands of layoffs during the harshest recession in two generations, high technology remains a significant contributor to Idaho's economy, according to a report released Friday by the Idaho Department of Labor.

High-tech accounted for 7 percent of total employment and business establishments in Idaho in 2008, as well as 17 percent of total wages, despite an employment contraction that began in 2007 at Micron Technology Inc. and washed through the industry.

Figures for 2008 are nearly a full percentage point below the sector's 2006 peak for employment and payroll, but high technology continues to pump billions of dollars a year into Idaho — nearly $4 billion in wages.

Even after the sector went into decline, Idaho still ranked 29th in the nation in the percentage of its work force employed in high-tech, 31st in the percentage of businesses in the high-tech sector and seventh in the ratio of the average high-tech paycheck to the average wage statewide. High technology workers in Idaho averaged over $70,000 a year in 2008 compared to the statewide average wage of just under $34,000 — 87 percent higher. That was little changed from the peak year of 2006 although the state's ranking nationally was third that year.

High technology goods, primarily computer chips, have also dominated the state's exports, typically running at over 70 percent of total value until 2008 and 2009 when they slipped under 65 percent.

While still a boon to the state overall, the economic impact of high technology varies regionally. Nearly half the 2008 payroll was in the southwestern part of the state, Idaho's most populous and the home of Micron. Eastern Idaho claimed a quarter of the wages, benefiting from the Idaho National Laboratory's presence and the spin-off businesses it fosters.

South central Idaho, known primarily for agriculture, had a surprising 18 percent of the high-tech payroll.

In all three cases, the percentage of high-tech wages was higher than the region's percentage of the state population.

The other three regions of the state had only fractional shares of high-tech wages, well below their proportions of the population.

And even though the sector has suffered a setback during the recession, a number of high technology occupations remain on the list of those that pay well and will be in high demand in the years to come. Among those on the Department of Labor's projected "Hot Jobs" through 2016 are computer software engineers, system analysts and administrators and computer support specialists.

Workers rest near a loaded cargo ship. The economy grew at a much slower pace this spring than previously estimated, mostly due to the largest surge in imports in 26 years and a slower buildup in inventories.

Federal Reserve poised to act, Bernanke says

By Jim Puzzanghera
Los Angeles Times writer

WASHINGTON — The Commerce Department on Friday downgraded the nation's economic growth in the second quarter, providing the most important evidence yet that the recovery has stalled.

The anemic annualized growth rate of 1.6 percent was down from last month's estimate of 2.4 percent. The drop was slightly less than many economists had predicted, but the report still put an exclamation point on a week of bad economic news that has raised fears the nation could plunge into another recession.

Responding to those concerns, Federal Reserve Chairman Ben S. Bernanke said Friday that the central bank was prepared to step in if necessary to help provide additional stimulus to the economy and avoid the type of debilitating deflation that struck Japan in the 1990s.

He outlined three possible options, including expanding its purchases of long-term securities to pump more money into the economy and signaling that the central bank will keep its short-term interest rate near zero for longer than the vague "extended period" it has promised.

"The Federal Reserve is already supporting the economic recovery by maintaining an extraordinarily accommodative monetary policy, using multiple tools," Bernanke told a major economic gathering in Jackson Hole, Wyo., according to a copy of his remarks released by the Fed.

"Should further action prove necessary, policy options are available to provide additional stimulus. Any deployment of these options requires a careful comparison of benefit and cost."

In his highly anticipated comments, Bernanke added that despite the "recent slowing" in economic growth, "it is reasonable to expect some pickup in growth in 2011 and in subsequent years." But the high unemployment — at 9.5 percent in July — is expected to "decline only slowly," he said.

"The prospect of high unemployment for a long period of time remains a central concern of policy," Bernanke said.

The Commerce Department's Bureau of Economic Analysis said Friday's downward revision was based on more complete data and "primarily reflected a sharp acceleration in imports and a sharp deceleration in private inventory investment" by businesses. Those drops were partially offset by an increase in residential and nonresidential investment, as well as increases in federal, state and local government spending.

As Harley mulls cuts, factory town frets

By Rick Barrett
Milwaukee Journal Sentinel

TOMAHAWK, Wis. — Logging trucks and Harley-Davidson motorcycles are pillars of the economy in this northern Wisconsin city of about 3,700 people.

Harley is one of the largest individual employers, with two factories that make parts and accessories for expensive touring bikes.

It also is a magnet for an annual motorcycle rally that attracts about 40,000 bikers and fills hotel rooms for 90 miles. Some people rent their homes to motorcycle tourists during the Tomahawk Fall Ride, this year Sept. 15-19, that was started 29 years ago.

"The identity of Tomahawk and Harley-Davidson are one and the same," said Glenn Christenson, a retired Harley employee whose son and daughter are employed at the motorcycle plants here.

But the two plants and Harley's factory in Menomonee Falls, Wis., could close if the company can't cut millions of dollars in manufacturing costs.

Harley says this fall it will decide whether to pull its plants out of Wisconsin, a move that could eliminate several thousand jobs including nearly 400 in Tomahawk — a city with strong ties to the forest-products industry and the maker of Electra Glide and Ultra Classic motorcycles.

"Is Tomahawk totally dependent on Harley-Davidson? Probably not. But a good percentage of the community depends on what happens to Harley," said Christenson, who worked 36 years for the company in Milwaukee and Tomahawk.

Harley-Davidson executives declined to discuss the Tomahawk operations, saying

Cable bills rise as economy leaves people on the couch

By Kelly Riddell
Bloomberg News writer

WASHINGTON — Beth Brodtkin pays Comcast Corp. more than $200 a month for television and Internet services. The stay-at-home mom says it's a bargain.

"My kids use the Internet for homework, we can rent movies, and I can use the DVR to watch all the shows I've missed during the day," said Brodtkin, 46, who lives in Voorhees, N.J., with her three teenagers. "When you put it all together, it's actually a pretty cheap form of entertainment."

The slowing economy is prompting some Americans to cut back on eating out and name-brand goods. Consumers like Brodtkin are instead spending on home entertainment, providing a boon to a cable and satellite industry struggling to find new customers.

Critics say consumers have a breaking point over prices

"Cable system operations have long been defensive when it comes to economic pressures on consumers," said Tom Eagan, an analyst at Collins

Stewart in New York.

Cable bills climbed about 8 percent on average in the second quarter to $123 a month on demand for digital video recorders and premium channels like Time Warner's HBO, according to researcher SNL Kagan. By comparison, consumer prices rose 1.1 percent in the year ended June, according to figures from the Labor Department.

Year to date, cable and satellite stocks, on average, have outpaced the S&P 500 by more than 15 percent, Eagan said. Free cash flow at the three largest publicly traded cable operators, Comcast, Time Warner Cable and Cablevision

Systems, has reached record levels, spurred by declining capital spending and increased sales.

Comcast is enticing customers with a campaign called "Xfinity," which offers faster Internet speeds and more than 70,000 hours of on-demand content. It has also introduced a DVR service that lets users

Army Pfc. Micheal R. Olney, a member of the 82nd Engineer Support Company, 65th Engineer Battalion, 130th Engineer Brigade, Schofield Barracks, Hawaii, was recently a part of an engineer support mission sponsored by Joint Task Force North, with headquarters at Fort Bliss in El Paso, Texas. Olney helped with the construction of several miles of all-weather border road along the U.S. and Mexico border east of the San Luis Port of Entry, south of Yuma, Ariz.

Filer High School grad helps secure U.S. border with Mexico

By Dona Fair
Joint Hometown News Service

For the son of a Castleford couple, helping secure America's borders against potential threats meant enduring 12-hour work days in desert-like conditions where dust, sandstorms and extreme heat were common.

Army Pfc. Micheal R. Olney, son of Don and Connie Johnson of Castleford, was recently part of an engineer support mission where he helped repair and upgrade more than three miles of all-weather border road along the U.S. and Mexico border near San Diego, Calif., and the Tecate Port of Entry.

Olney, a heavy equipment operator, is assigned to the 82nd Engineer Support Company, 65th Engineer Battalion, 130th Engineer Brigade, Schofield Barracks, Hawaii.

"I have been working in the tactical operation center," said Olney, who graduated in 2001 from Filer High School. "(It) is responsible for keeping track of the project site, personnel and communication between the work sites."

These support missions are coordinated by Joint Task Force North, a Department of Defense organization headquartered at Fort Bliss in El Paso, Texas, and are routinely performed by active-duty and reserve units and individual military assets from all four military branches of service. The missions consist of road construction and improvement, border perimeter lighting installation, border fence construction, vehicle barrier construction and mobility construction. These are long-term operations planned one to two years before they begin, and can consist of multiple-phase operations that may take several months or years to complete.

These types of missions are twofold for Olney. They provide an opportunity to gain valuable and unique training experiences in "real-world" military construction, mission planning, deployment, execution and redeployment. They also help secure U.S. borders by contributing to the mobility and safety of the Border Patrol's agents who are on patrol 24 hours a day, responding to suspected illegal activities along the border.

"This mission is important because it provides the necessary improvements that the Border Patrol needs to keep our borders safe," said Olney. "Our work here will provide them with better roads so that they will be able to respond to any incident that happens."

Besides providing Olney with training opportunities, the missions also teach units how to work in a joint military and civilian environment, environments that they will encounter on deployments to Iraq and Afghanistan.

"I hope to get the training that I will need to work in a tactical operation center down range," said Olney, who has been in the military for more than a year.

Based in San Antonio, Texas, the Joint Hometown News Service is run by the U.S. Department of Defense. It produces a variety of print and electronic news products highlighting the armed forces and offered for free to media outlets.

Jones completes Army training

Army Pvt. Tammy Jones has graduated from One Station Unit Training (OSUT) at Fort Leonard Wood, Waynesville, Mo., which included basic military training and advanced individual training (AIT).

During basic military training, Jones received instruction in drill and ceremony, weapons qualification, map reading, tactics, military courtesy, military justice, physical fitness, first aid and Army doctrine, history, principles and traditions.

Jones is the daughter of Lewis E. Jones of Rupert and Sharon F. Jones of Oakley.

She is a 1992 graduate of Minico High School.

If your radar detector has gone off, you are already caught

Q: First of all I love your column. I see many things marketed as radar or LIDAR detectors that claim to work. I have even seen ads for lenses to put over your license plates and even a radar detector that will jam radar. I tell my friends none of these things work and will not save them from getting stopped or ticketed. Do any of these things work?

— Z. Austin

A: Yes, and if you go to my website I can sell all of these things to you. The website is getrichbysellingpromisestosuckers.com. If you don't have luck with that website don't worry, it is just another attempt at humor by me.

The real truth about radar detectors is that they do detect radar, but what you don't hear is that radar detectors go off when radar waves are detected. The problem for you is that by the time your radar detector goes off you have already been captured on radar. The radar detector is basically telling you to go ahead and pull over if you were going more than the speed limit.

The license plate covers you are asking about could be deemed illegal because license plates are suppose to be clearly visible, even the renewal sticker, and free of foreign objects, such as a plate cover. A picture of a vehicle with a plate cover trying to hide the plate number when a traffic camera goes off could still be used as evidence of a violation.

I can't tell you much about radar "jammers." I checked the Internet and found several sites that basically said that jammers are a scam and do not work.

There are many other myths out there about avoiding radar, such as hanging chains from the front bumper and putting aluminum around the inside of the vehicle. These don't work either. There is however one surefire way to defeat radar. If you keep your speedometer pointed at the number on your dash that matches the number on the sign, I can guarantee that you won't get stopped.

Q: I got pulled over and cited for running the railroad flashing lights. The train had already gone by when I crossed the tracks. Do I have a chance to win if I fight the ticket?

— K. Jones

A: You have a chance to win, but I would say it's as good as my chance to win the Powerball lottery (I don't play, so what does that tell you?). I see this all the time (usually in my private vehicle). Crossing the railroad tracks when the lights are still flashing is against the law.

The main reason this is a law is because how do you know if another train is not coming, especially when there are more than one set of railroad tracks? I know it might sound strange if there is only one set of tracks, but sometimes trains do follow each other on that track.

When the medications stop working, it's time for a change

DEAR DR. GOTT: A neurosurgeon told me that I have a genetic familial tremor. He prescribed Mysoline, 50 milligrams four times a day. Well, either I have become immune to it or it just doesn't work. Your thoughts, please.

DEAR READER: Familial refers to a hereditary disease or disorder seen in some families and not in others — thus, your genetic tremor. Essential, tremor affects millions of people across the United States. It is a disorder of the nervous system that causes involuntary tremor or shaking, primarily seen in the hands, head and eyelids but never the feet or legs. Other signs and symptoms are generally not observed when a person is asleep. It differs from other disorders such as Parkinson's or disorders that are the result of head trauma.

Essential tremor is commonly observed in the elderly. It is not dangerous; however, it can affect a person's ability to pick up a cup of coffee, eat with a fork, apply makeup, shave and a host of other day-to-day activities we so commonly take for granted. Symptoms can be worsened by such things as temperature extremes, caffeine, emotional stress and fatigue.

ASK

Mysoline (primidone) is an anticonvulsant prescribed to control specific types of seizures. It works by reducing abnormal electrical activity in the brain. The medication may help control your tremor, but it will not cure it.

I don't know the reason your physician prescribed the Mysoline, but you might speak with him or her about a trial switch to propranolol, a beta blocker used to treat tremor, hypertension, rhythm disorders of the heart and migraine headaches. As with all drugs, this medication carries the potential for side effects, including edema of the feet and ankles, nausea, constipation, diarrhea, shortness of breath and cardiac arrhythmias. It should not be taken by anyone who has been diagnosed with a second- or third-degree heart block.

I sound like a broken record when I often repeat that a drug manufactured for one reason can be successfully prescribed for another. Therefore, I don't at all question the reason your physician chose one medication over another. The real concern here is that what was once working no longer is. Make an appointment, and express your concerns. It appears time for a change.

Report "Consumer Tips on Medicine." Other readers who would like a copy should send a self-addressed stamped No. 10 envelope and a $2 check or money order to Newsletter, P.O. DEAR DR. GOTT: I have a ganglion cyst on my knee. There's no pain, but it's rather large — the size of an egg.

Have you heard of taking premium calcium montmorillonite (red clay) to dissolve these types of cysts? Thank you for your expertise on this matter.

DEAR READER: No, I haven't. Calcium montmorillonite is among a group of specific clays that has been recognized for years as a detoxifying agent and bacteriocidal. It is known to contain no less than 67 minerals, including calcium, iron, magnesium, potassium and manganese. Several years ago, the American Journal of Nutrition even wrote an article on the healing properties of clays. Having said even this much, I cannot endorse using it to rid you of the "ganglion" cyst.

A ganglion cyst generally develops along tendons or joints of the wrist or hand and is a noncancerous fluid-filled lump that feels like a water balloon. They don't generally appear on the knee. Many cause no pain and simply go away without treatment. Others are uncomfortable and may require intervention. They are caused by osteoarthritis or injury to the tendons and joints.

I question whether you may have a Baker's cyst, otherwise known as a popliteal cyst. This is a swelling behind the knee. Again, it may not cause any pain in some people and may be extremely uncomfortable in others.

If not a Baker's cyst, you could have a tumor or popliteal artery aneurysm that should be identified by your primary-care physician or specialist.

If you are sure of your diagnosis, see your physician to have him or her discuss methods of removal. I'm sorry, but I guess I'm a bit old-fashioned on this one to go out on a limb. I know I have recommended some rather unusual remedies, but not this time.

To provide related information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Compelling Home Remedies." Woman's corpse found in house's clutter

LAS VEGAS (AP) — A four-month search for a missing Las Vegas woman came to a ghastly end this week when her husband found her corpse in their home amid a labyrinth of squalor that had been impassable even to search dogs.

Bill James apparently had no idea that the body of his pack-rat wife, Billie Jean, was under the same roof as he helped police scour the home and the Nevada desert for any sign of her. Then he spotted the feet of the body poking out of a floor-to-ceiling pile of junk Wednesday, revealing in shocking detail the woman's penchant for hoarding.

Police say they searched the home several times — even using dogs from a unit that helped locate bodies at ground zero after Sept. 11 and Hurricane Katrina. But they were unable to find the body of amid the piles of clothes, knickknacks, trash and other junk.

“For our dogs to go through that house and not find something should be indicative of the tremendous environmental challenges they faced,” police spokesman Bill Cassell said.

Clark County Coroner's office spokeswoman Jessica Coloma said it could take weeks to determine when and how the 67-year-old woman died. The husband has been cooperative throughout the investigation and quickly notified police of his discovery.

One thing is not in doubt about the case: Billie Jean James loved to hoard. It's a behavior that has received new attention this year with two popular reality TV shows — “Hoarding: Buried

A pickup truck and trash bin are seen outside the home of Billie Jean James on Thursday in Las Vegas. The Clark County Coroner's office said Friday that the corpse found in the clutter-filled home is that of 67-year-old James.

Alive” and “Hoarders” — that chronicle the lives of people who live in absolute squalor because they cannot bring themselves to throw anything away.

A similar situation could be seen at the James' home in a desert-front cul-de-sac near the Las Vegas Strip. In the driveway sit two huge trash bins that require industrial-sized trucks to haul them away. The front patio is filled with knickknacks including old chairs, smaller trash bins and a 10-foot basketball hoop.

Inside, Cassell said James' piles of clutter left just small pathways to walk and strong odors that hindered their search — generated by animals, decomposing garbage, food, clothes and other stuff.

“If there had been any indication that there was a remote possibility that somebody was back underneath that stuff we would have taken the appropriate action,” Cassell said.

Sari Connolly, who walked dogs with James and her husband daily at a nearby park with a group of friends, said the woman bought things at thrift stores each day and accumulated them in the house.

“She became this hoarder person and she wouldn't let anyone come in her house,” Connolly said.

Connolly said one of Billie Jean James' closest friends once asked to use the bathroom at the home after a camping trip, but James wouldn't let her in.

“It sounds like it was beyond control,” said Connolly, who had a big banner made to help find James during the search.

Approached at the home Thursday, Bill James declined to speak with an Associated Press reporter.

Cassell said initial reports had James last seen walking away from the house in late April. He said along with the dogs, police visited the house several times and searched the desert with a helicopter equipped with infrared detection.

Friends and family searched the nearby desert several times on foot, horseback and with all-terrain vehicles. They created a Facebook page to help coordinate efforts, while the family offered a $10,000 reward in hopes of finding a woman described as a peace activist who to loved hiking, camping and the arts.

Nine digital billboards publicized her search amid the bright lights of Las Vegas to draw attention the search, and Connolly said they hired someone to hold a banner in a spot near the home where a woman reported possibly seeing James.

“This was certainly something that was not glossed over,” Cassell said. “We did everything that we could.”

But Connolly said she and friends think police may have botched the search.

“I'm trying to figure out how a body couldn't smell so bad — that's what everyone's saying,” she said. “It's the million-dollar question right now.”

The case is not completely surprising given the fact that 2 to 5 percent of Americans are chronic hoarders, said Dr. David Tolin, a hoarding expert from Hartford Hospital who co-wrote “Buried in Treasures” to help people who compulsively collect things.

Tut-tut: Security problems seen in Egypt's museums

CAIRO (AP) — The Egyptian Museum houses some of the world's prized antiquities, including the gold mask of King Tut that draws millions of tourists a year. But it also has an out-dated video surveillance system that doesn't work around the clock and guards who snooze, read the Quran or are seemingly too bored to pay attention.

Security for Egypt's treasures is under scrutiny after the Aug. 21 theft of a van Gogh painting from another museum in Cairo revealed some alarming gaps, and the minister of culture told a newspaper he lies awake at night, fearing for the safety of the country's relics.

Shortly after van Gogh's 1887 “Poppy Flowers” was stolen from the Mahmoud Khalil Museum, officials discovered that no alarms were working, and only seven of 43 cameras were operating.

That made it very easy for whoever took the painting, said Ton Cremers, director of the Netherlands-based Museum Security Network, which keeps tabs on the protection of art around the world.

“The value of the van Gogh is $40 (million) to $50 million,” Cremers told The Associated Press. “A complete security system of that museum would be $50,000, and to keep it running would cost $3,000 a year. ... Need I say more?”

With the alarms out and few cameras working, the thieves took advantage of the afternoon period when security guards were busy praying during the Muslim holy month of Ramadan.

The thieves used a box cutter to slice the 12-inch-by-12-inch canvas from its frame and left the museum undetected.

Now, officials in Egypt's Culture Ministry are under fire.

On Monday, the head of the ministry's fine arts department, Mohsen Shalaan, was arrested for negligence. Shalaan, who was in charge of the Mahmoud Khalil Museum, and a number of other museum heads had asked Culture Minister Farouk Hosni for nearly $7 million to upgrade their security systems, but only $88,000 was approved.

May Day: Minico runs over Century

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

POCATELLO — It wasn't hard to see what Minico's bread-and-butter was against Century Friday night.

The Spartan offensive line made the toast, and Brady May sliced through the defense like a hot knife through butter as Minico won its season opener 34-7 at Holt Arena.

May rushed for 151 yards on 16 carries and scored two touchdowns.

"That's a good group of guys in front of me and we can run the ball behind them," May said of his offensive line.

Once the running game was established, it opened things up for quarterback Kade Miller, who completed 10 of 18 passes for 225 yards and three touchdowns.

But Minico was less than crisp in its opener. The Spartans committed 13 penalties, two of which negated touchdowns in the first half.

"We were playing great football, but then we got in the red zone and it looked a lot like last year with the mistakes and penalties," May said. "We had the talk in the locker room that we were just going to run at them, everybody calm down and do your job, and see where it takes us."

Minico did just that. After leading 8-0 at halftime, the Spartans ran May on five straight plays to start the third quarter, the last of which landed him in the end zone on a 4-yard plunge.

The Spartans scored on their first three second-half possessions. May had a 13-yard TD run, and then Miller threw a flare out to Moi Rice, who raced down the sideline for a 77-yard score. Rice finished the game with 131 yards of offense.

Minico rested its starters after it went up 34-0 on Miller's second touchdown pass of the night to Jeremy Castaneda, who hauled in TDs of 17 and 25 yards.

Defensively, Minico was stellar, holding Century to less than 50 yards rushing and never allowing the Diamondbacks' pass-first offense to get in a rhythm.

"(Early mistakes) kind of threw us off at first, but we ironed things out and we put the hammer down," said Minico linebacker Jordan Roland. "Our defense, we've got guys in every spot that does his job and executes to the best of his ability."

Minico's defense set the tone early. Century had a first-and-goal at the 4-yard line in the first quarter, but the Spartans shut it down.

"That goal-line stand, that's

Pass sets up Bruins' game-winning TD

By Stephen Meyers
Times-News writer

One catch erased all of Twin Falls' recent opening-game struggles.

Ryan Fuchs caught a 38-yard pass with 19 seconds left in the game to set up the game-winning touchdown for the Bruins in a 30-26 nonconference win over Skyview.

"The ball hung in the air for so long. It seemed like I was waiting for it forever," Fuchs said. "There was no way I was going to drop that ball. I just cradled it"

Quarterback T.J. Ellis was hit as he threw the ball and didn't see Fuchs catch it.

"I just saw him wide open and threw it up for him. I laid on the ground just listening to the crowd's reaction," Ellis said.

The crowd erupted, erasing all of the frustration built up from a disastrous third quarter.

Skyview's Mike Iordanescu returned the opening second-half kickoff 80 yards for a score and Twin Falls fumbled the ensuing kickoff which led to another Skyview touchdown.

But Twin Falls dug deep and recovered.

After Skyview went ahead 26-23 on a late field goal, the Bruins received the ball on their own 35-yard line with 1 minute remaining. Ellis led the Bruins down the field with quick, precise passes to the sideline. The Bruins were just hoping for a field goal, but Fuchs streaked down the sideline with his hand waving in the air, signaling he was wide open.

"The play was originally supposed to go to (Ricky) Akridge across the middle, but Skyview bit hard on the slant and left Ryan wide open," said head coach Allyn Reynolds. "That play was all T.J."

Boise State seeks to expand Bronco Stadium

By Todd Dvorak
Associated Press writer

BOISE — Boise State athletic officials are hoping to expand Bronco Stadium again, this time by adding 19,000 new seats, more luxury suites and a new football complex.

Athletic Director Gene Bleymaier unveiled preliminary drawings Friday hours before kicking off a fundraising pitch to more than 500 boosters, donors and corporate sponsors he's counting on to help foot the bill.

While there is no timeline and official price tag to the project, Bleymaier said there is a sense of urgency to the latest expansion project.

The Broncos will be joining the Mountain West Conference next fall, a move that will increase competition on the playing field. He also said adding more seats to the 40-year-old stadium and building new football offices and locker rooms are critical if Boise State hopes to sustain the success and national recognition it's achieved in the last five years.

Of the teams ranked in the Top 25 starting this season, Boise State, ranked No. 3, has the smallest stadium.

"We need to get this done ASAP," Bleymaier said. "We're moving into the Mountain West. We've raised the bar. We're in tall company right now. If we want to stay in the Top 10 in the country, we've got to fill in the gaps. Right now we're an outlier, plain and simple."

Bronco Stadium's capacity is 33,500 and the school spent $37.5 million two years ago to add luxury suites, club and box seating and a new press box.

No. 1 CSI stumbles against Miami Dade

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

After the first two matches of its season-opening tournament, the College of Southern Idaho volleyball team was feeling pretty good about itself.

Friday's night session left the Golden Eagles realizing how far they still have to go.

Top-ranked CSI committed 50 errors, including 29 in attack and 15 from the service line, in a four-set loss to No. 4 Miami Dade (Fla.), falling 25-22, 27-25, 23-25, 25-21.

"We just had too many errors and didn't do a good job keeping the ball in play," said CSI right-side hitter Elisa Brochado, who had 20 kills and 13 digs. "Everywhere else we were better than them."

The Golden Eagles practically gave away the first set with nine service errors. They shored that up over the final three sets but committed 26 attack errors during the same period.

CSI head coach Heidi Cartisser expressed disappointment with the way her team lost the first set, but was pleased to see a rally in the final three sets.

Hagerman tops Lighthouse Christian

By John Derr
Times-News writer

It was a successful season-opener for Hagerman, but that wasn't the main thing on everyone's mind.

Lighthouse Christian, dealing with the death of sophomore student-athlete Dedrik Lovato-Rodriguez, hung around for awhile but the Pirates pulled away for a 46-22 nonconference football victory Friday night.

Lovato-Rodriguez passed away in an automobile accident Wednesday night. The sophomore would have started his first varsity game

Friday. A prayer was given before the game.

It was a difficult decision whether to play the game or postpone.

"We are not sure if we are doing the right thing or the wrong thing. Our faith teaches us to move forward," said Lighthouse coach John Van Vliet, who along with all the other coaches wore Lovato-Rodriguez's No. 81 jersey.

Hagerman took little time to put the first points of the season on the board as Jace Kast went for 33 yards on a reverse then took it the final 5 for the score.

Zach Reid grabbed an interception at the 39 and returned it to put the Pirates up 12-0.

Hagerman was on the move again before fumbling at the 30. Eli Berndt recovered and later scored from 3 yards out to get the Lions within 12-8.

It took little time for Hagerman to respond as Reid went around the right end for 65 yards and another score.

"It was a lot of fun, we were ready to go," said Reid, who tallied more than 150 total yards. "It was a good first game."

Reid found Ryan Luttmier in the corner on the fade route to open the second half.

Gabe Heath answered for the Lions, finding Garrett Goettle in the back of the end zone as Lighthouse Christian stayed within striking distance.

Kast erased any doubt as he scored twice in less than a minute on a 39-yard run and a 44-yard pass from Reid.

"It felt good, we came out with a lot more intensity in the second half," said Kast,

Jerome Tigers come up short at Mountain Home

Times-News

The Jerome Tigers came up just short in their season-opener, falling 28-21 at Mountain Home on Friday.

Jake Hollifield's pass into the end zone on the final play fell incomplete to seal Jerome's fate.

Joe Carey recorded a safety and Hollifield hit Riley Parrish for a 22-yard score on the final play of the first half to put Jerome up 8-7.

Dylan Dowton had scoring runs of 29 and 2 yards, respectively, to keep Jerome close, but Mountain Home had two touchdown passes in the fourth quarter, the final one with just 1:41 to go.

"It was a good first game for us because we got tested and we battled," said Jerome coach Gary Krumm, who added that inexperience led to several miscues for his team. "But we definitely have to get better."

Harris and Chojnacky win easliy at Jerome invite

By Stephen Meyers
Times-News writer

It may have been the first meet of the season, but Jerome's Mackenzie Chojnacky and Twin Falls' Erik Harris ran in midseason form at the Jerome Invitational Friday on the College of Southern Idaho campus.

Chojnacky coasted to an easy victory in the girls race with a time of 19 minutes, 44 seconds - nearly one minute ahead of second-place runner Sasha Kent of Richfield.

"I had no idea where the runners were behind me," Chojnacky said. "I was running by myself and you just have to push yourself mentally to keep up your pace the entire race."

Harris' race finished much the same, though he had some competition at the start. The senior used a surge in the second mile to break away from the pack up front made up of Canyon Ridge's Dunia Emmanuel and Wood River's James Parris.

"I didn't want to go out too fast in the first mile, but then in the second mile I decided to pick up the pace

No one could keep up as Harris crossed the finish line 46 seconds ahead of second place in a time of 16:51 - almost as fast the last time he ran this course at regionals last season (16:47).

"I'm excited where I'm at right now," Harris said.

No team scores were kept at the meet.

Strasburg vows return from Tommy John op

WASHINGTON — Stephen Strasburg had to get through a few hours of anger, confusion and certainly a few more volatile emotions before he was ready to accept the sobering news expressed in three disheartening words.

Strasburg

Tommy John surgery. The Washington Nationals rookie sensation is done for the season — and maybe next season as well — after the team announced Friday that he has a torn ligament in his right elbow. He will travel Saturday to the West Coast for a second opinion, but the 22-year-old right-hander has accepted the fact that he will need the ligament replacement operation that requires 12 to 18 months of rehabilitation.

“It’s a new challenge,” Strasburg said. “I want to be the best at everything, and right now I want to be the best at rehabbing and getting back out here.”

It’s a blow to Strasburg, of course, and to a baseball world that has spent the summer gasping in awe at his 100 mph fastball, bending curves and wicked batter-freezing changeups, but the biggest punch to the gut is to a Nationals franchise that had made the young phenom the centerpiece in their plans to climb out of perpetual last-place irrelevancy.

“There’s no words that I can put in place here that would indicate we could possibly replace Stephen,” manager Jim Riggleman said. “But we have to do it a different way, different names, different staff members who will go out there and fulfill the rotation until Stephen comes back.”

WHITE SOX AWARDED WAIVER CLAIM ON MANNY RAMIREZ

CHICAGO — The Manny

Watch is on for Chicago’s South Side.

Manny Ramirez was placed on waivers by the Los Angeles Dodgers, and the White Sox were awarded the claim that gives them exclusive bargaining rights for the slugger, a person with knowledge of the situation told The Associated Press on Friday.

The White Sox and Dodgers have until 11:30 p.m. MDT on Tuesday to complete a trade, which Ramirez would have to approve.

The Dodgers also could let him go — with his consent — in which case the White Sox would simply assume his salary.

Or, Los Angeles could keep Ramirez and try to make a run at the playoffs with him.

BREWERS’ GALLARDO ROBBED AT GUNPOINT

MILWAUKEE — Brewers pitcher Yovani Gallardo and clubhouse attendant Alex Sanchez were robbed at gunpoint early Friday, hours after Milwaukee’s ace pitched in a loss to the Dodgers.

“It was a scary moment for me, obviously for me and Alex, and those are tough situations,” Gallardo said Friday afternoon, about 14 hours after the robbery occurred. “Things like that happen in every city, anywhere you go and it’s just unfortunate that it happened to me and him.”

WTMJ-AM said that an armed man approached the two in a supermarket parking lot demanding money and jewelry, and that Sanchez was hit in the head but not seriously injured.

Sox tighten AL wild-card race

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Jon Lester pitched seven strong innings and Victor Martinez homered twice off All-Star David Price, helping the Boston Red Sox beat the Tampa Bay Rays 3-1 Friday night to tighten the AL wild-card race.

Lester (14-8) rebounded from the worst outing of his career to win for the third time in four starts. The left-hander walked five and uncorked three wild pitches, but also struck out 10 while limiting the Rays to two hits and an unearned run.

INDIANS 15, ROYALS 4

CLEVELAND — Chris Gimenez drove in a career-high four runs and the Cleveland Indians hit a trio of three-run homers.

Matt LaPorta hit a three-run homer in Cleveland’s six-run second inning off Bryan Bullington (1-3). Gimenez and Jayson Nix later connected with two on against relievers in the Indians’ largest offensive output since a 15-3 win over Oakland on July 3, 2009.

WHITE SOX 9, YANKEES 4

CHICAGO — A.J. Pierzynski hit a two-run double in Chicago’s four-run first, and Freddy Garcia threw seven solid innings while the White Sox roughed up A.J. Burnett and New York.

RANGERS 7, ATHLETICS 3

ARLINGTON, Texas — Tommy Hunter pitched into the eighth inning, Josh Hamilton had his 24th three-hit game of the season, and AL West-leading Texas pulled farther away from Oakland.

BLUE JAYS 3, TIGERS 2, 11 INNINGS

TORONTO — Jose Bautista hit his major league-leading 42nd homer and Aaron Hill singled home the winning run in the 11th.

NATIONAL LEAGUE REDS 7, CUBS 1

CINCINNATI — Jay Bruce homered in three consecutive at-bats, matching his career high with five RBIs, and the first-place Cincinnati Reds extended their two-week playoff surge by beating the Chicago Cubs 7-1 on Friday night.

MARLINS 7, BRAVES 1

ATLANTA — Florida led off a game with back-to-back homers for the first time in franchise history, Chris Volstad pitched eight strong innings and the Marlins romped past slumping Atlanta.

CARDINALS 4, NATIONALS 2

WASHINGTON — Jaime Garcia tossed 5 1-3 scoreless innings and Albert Pujols hit his 401st home run as Saint Louis broke a three-game skid. Matt Holliday also went deep.

METS 2, ASTROS 1

NEW YORK — Mike Pelfrey pitched eight dominant innings and New York took advantage of a wild outing by former teammate Nelson Figueroa to end Houston’s five-game winning streak.

BREWERS 7, PIRATES 2

MILWAUKEE — Alcides Escobar’s triple highlighted a six-run seventh inning and Milwaukee beat Pittsburgh Pirate.

James McDonald (2-4) was cruising along in his 10th major-league start before the seventh.

the new project call for spending a minimum of $40 to $50 million to lower the field, add 12,000 seats behind the north end zone and build a two-story football complex. The new football facility would include office for coaches, meeting rooms, new weight and training rooms and home and visitor locker rooms.

Bleymaier said the more comprehensive plan calls for also adding new luxury suites and boxes on the east side and adding more seats in the south end zone, bringing capacity to 53,000.

The entire package could cost more than $100 million and could be done in phases, he said.

Broncos coach Chris Petersen, now in his fifth year, said the stadium expansion is essential to making sure his team can stay on equal footing in the standings and economically in the competitive world of college football.

“It’s tremendously important that we get this done,” said Petersen, who led the Broncos to a perfect season last year and a victory in the Fiesta Bowl. “To me this project is going to be as important as any project I’ve seen around here. There is no question in my mind that this is the next thing we need to do, not only for our players, our recruiting, but for our fans.”

Earlier this month, TCU, a member of the Mountain West, announced plans for a $105 million renovation of its 80-year-old stadium. When the season opens next month, Michigan will play in a stadium fresh off a $226 million renovation that added 2,000 new seats and luxury suites and boxes. Louisville will also open the season with a stadium that now holds 55,000 after a three-year expansion project.

Bleymaier said the current football complex is no longer suitable for a nationally ranked team. The training section has just two bathrooms, the weight room is outdated and the building has been remodeled six times in the last 40 years.

“We’ve probably got the worst locker room ... training rooms than I’ve seen in any Division I school,” Bleymaier said.

Petersen and Bleymaier are also confident the community and fan base is big enough to fill a bigger stadium, even though several games last year were not sold out.

“I just think we’re in a position where it’s time to add more seats,” Bleymaier said. “If definitely feel and know that if we had 40,000 seats today, they’d be filled on Sept. 25 (the home opener) and they’d be filled at a couple of other dates this year.”

“I’m never satisfied with a loss but at least we battled,” she said. “We just need some more emotional leadership out there ... and some players need to step up to the level (Brochado) is playing at.”

The evening loss tarnished what was otherwise a great day for CSI as the Golden Eagles hammered Eastern Utah and Casper earlier in the day. The Golden Eagles defeated Eastern Utah 25-22, 25-18, 25-13 and Casper 25-15, 25-14, 25-22.

Australian middle Beth Carey had 10 kills and seven blocks in the win over Casper, adding 13 kills against Miami Dade. Scharae Steel chipped in 11 kills against Miami Dade.

The good news for the Golden Eagles is that it was the opening day of the season, and the team has two conference foes up today in North Idaho and Snow.

“We just have to forget about this one and learn from it,” Brochado said.

CSI plays Snow at noon today and faces North

Idaho at 4 p.m.

Ivory, Saints top Chargers

NEW ORLEANS — The Saints may have plucked another exciting young running back from the ranks of the undrafted.

Rookie Chris Ivory turned a swing pass into a tackle-breaking, zigzagging, 76-yard score in New Orleans' 36-21 preseason victory over the San Diego Chargers on Friday night.

Ivory's 45 yards rushing and 76 yards receiving were the most of any player in the game. Essentially, he played like Pierre Thomas, who joined the Saints as an undrafted rookie in 2007.

Drew Brees set the tone for New Orleans (2-1) with 240 yards passing, including touchdowns to Devery Henderson and Robert Meachem.

Philip Rivers led two touchdown drives for the Chargers (1-2). His 167 yards passing included a 9-yard TD toss to Malcom Floyd.

REDSKINS 16, JETS 11

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Mark Sanchez and the New York Jets' offense sputtered again.

They at least left the game against the Washington Redskins on a positive note.

Sanchez connected with Dustin Keller for a 10-yard touchdown early in the fourth quarter, capping a 15-play drive that gave New York a lead before Washington came back to win a snoozer.

Larry Johnson, competing with Clinton Portis and Willie Parker for a spot in the backfield for the Redskins (2-1), caught a screen pass from Richard Bartel and rumbled 15 yards for the winning score with 2:13 left.

Looking to rebound from a poor performance against Carolina last weekend, the Jets (1-2) were hurt by turnovers and missed opportunities.

EAGLES 20, CHIEFS 17

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Mike Kafka's 18-yard pass to Riley Cooper in the closing seconds boosted Philadelphia past Kansas City, making Todd Haley 0-7 in preseason games as the Chiefs' head coach.

The Chiefs' offense got off to a horrendous start and Kevin Kolb, who's attempting to replace Philadelphia quarterback Donovan McNabb, sputtered most of his time on the field.

Chiefs rookie linebacker Cameron Sheffield was immobilized and had to be taken away on a cart after a helmet-to-helmet tackle on Mike Bell left him motionless on the field.

Kafka, a rookie out of Northwestern, led the Philadelphia reserves on an 8-play, 80-yard drive against the Chiefs backups to pull out the win.

FALCONS 16, DOLPHINS 6

MIAMI — The Atlanta Falcons were stout against the run, dug in on third down and came up with a big takeaway — all things coach Mike Smith is looking for this season.

Atlanta gave up only a field goal while Miami starting quarterback Chad Henne was in the game and beat the Dolphins.

Middle linebacker Curtis Lofton led the Falcons' defensive charge with 11 tackles, two for losses. Erik Coleman intercepted a pass in the end zone, and the Dolphins (2-1) converted only one of eight third-down situations with Henne, who played one series into the third quarter.

Lawrence Sidbury had a sack, two quarterback hits and a tackle for a loss for the Falcons (2-1).

Woods struggles at Barclays

PARAMUS, N.J. — Jason Day can't get a straight answer from doctors on the mysterious health issues sapping away at his energy. He at least knows exactly where he stands after two rounds of The Barclays.

A tournament that once looked as though it might belong to Tiger Woods shifted late Friday to the hands of the 22-year-old Australian, who showed some of his great promise with three late birdies for a 4-under 67 and a one-shot lead.

Nine players had at least a share of the lead at some point during the second round until Day's late surge. He was at 8-under 134, one shot clear of Kevin Streelman (63) and Vaughn Taylor (70) going into the weekend of the FedEx Cup's first playoff event.

"I just tried to stay as patient as possible, and it just kind of fell in my lap, which was really good," he said.

Woods didn't so much lose his patience as much as his putting stroke. Part of that was playing in the afternoon on greens that became bumpy under foot traffic and a day of blazing sun, as Woods expected.

He wasn't planning on missing a 20-inch par putt on the fifth hole, or failing to make a single birdie on the easier front nine.

"I didn't hit it bad at all," Woods said. "I hit it really good. As I said, I didn't putt really well. I hit it as good as I did yesterday. If I don't make putts, I don't score."

He wound up with a 73, eight shots worse than his opening round.

The good news for the world's No. 1 player — he will stay atop the world ranking for at least another week after Phil Mickelson missed the cut, and he's still very much in contention. Most times this year, a bad day for Woods meant an early tee time on the weekend.

He still was only four shots behind, and at least takes this with him into the weekend: He has missed only two fairways in two rounds, although he never hit driver one time in the second round.

"You play around here and post good numbers, you'll move up the board," he said. "The guys aren't going to be tearing this place apart!"

WIE HANGING ON TO LEAD AT CANADIAN WOMEN'S OPEN

WINNIPEG, Manitoba — Michelle Wie's second round didn't have the wow factor of a hole-in-one, but a 3-under 69 on Friday was enough to keep her the American atop the leaderboard late in the second round of the Canadian Women's Open.

The Hawaii native posted a two-round total of 10-under 134, three strokes ahead of Jiyai Shin of South Korea, who had a second-round 67.

Morgan Pressel had a 66 at the St. Charles Country Club to move into a tie at 138 with defending champion Suzann Pettersen of Norway.

Sarah Jane Smith of Australia also had a 66 and was in a group at 3 under in the tournament with a $2.25 million purse.

Wie, 20, had her ace on the par-3 11th during her first-round 65, a course record for a women's competition.

PRICE LEADS BOEING CLASSIC

SNOQUALMIE, Wash. — Nick Price birdied five of his last seven holes and surged into the lead with a 9-under 63 in the first round of the Champions Tour's Boeing Classic on Friday.

Tom Pernice Jr. had a pair of eagles and is two shots back after a 64, and Hal Sutton and Bernhard Langer each shot 66.

Price got off to a fast start with birdies on his first four holes. His only bogey of the round came at the 5th, when he three-putted from nearly 45 feet out.

Price then went on a birdie barrage on the back nine, with pars coming on Nos. 14 and 18 during his seven-hole stretch to close the round.

Hometown favorite Fred Couples shot a 68.

Three NBA players suspended for incidents

NEW YORK — The NBA has suspended Brandon Rush of the Indiana Pacers, Tyreke Evans of the Sacramento Kings and Kenny Hasbrouck of the Miami Heat for separate incidents.

The league announced the suspensions in a statement Friday.

Rush has been suspended without pay for five games for violating the terms of the NBA/NBPA Anti-Drug Program. He started 64 games for the Pacers last season and averaged 9.4 points.

Evans, the NBA's Rookie of the Year, has been suspended without pay for one game for pleading no contest to reckless driving in California. He averaged 20.1 points last season.

Hasbrouck, a former Siena guard, has been suspended without pay for two games for pleading guilty to driving while intoxicated in New York.

KNICKS SIGN EWING TO FREE-AGENT DEAL

NEW YORK — Patrick Ewing Jr. is back with the team where his father became famous.

The team says the former Georgetown star signed with the New York Knicks as a free agent Friday. Terms of the deal were not disclosed.

Ewing was the 43rd pick of the 2008 draft by Sacramento, but wound up with the Knicks through a series of moves. He spent the 2008-09 season in the NBA Development League but missed all of last season because of injuries.

The 6-foot-8 forward averaged 4.8 points in four games for the Knicks' summer league team.

Ewing's father played 15 seasons for the Knicks before finishing his career in Seattle and Orlando. The elder Ewing appeared in 11 All-Star Games with New York.

The Knicks' roster stands at 15 players.

NUGGETS HIRE UJIRI AS NEW GM

DENVER — The Denver Nuggets have hired a man with global basketball experience to manage a team that's in a world of hurt: two big men sidelined, a player under police investigation and its superstar's signature missing from a contract extension.

Former Nuggets international scout Masai Ujiri was appointed the team's new executive vice president of basketball operations on Friday.

Ujiri (whose name is pronounced ma-SIGH u-JEER-e) served as a scout for the Nuggets from 2003-07 before joining the Toronto Raptors as director of international scouting in 2008. He most recently served as the Raptors' assistant general manager in charge of player personnel.

Buell puts the 'pro' in promoting as M.V. Speedway announcer

By Linda Brittsan
Times-News correspondent

He delivers animated play-by-play from the tower and works the crowd at intermission. After a main-event win, he's in Victory Lane getting all he can out of the driver. Terry Buell does it all with a personality that simply will not quit.

Anyone who has taken in the races at Magic Valley Speedway can't help but notice how Buell, the track's associate promoter and announcer, has enhanced the fan experience.

The Times-News asked the 49-year-old father of two a few questions about himself and his work at MVS.

Times-News: Tell me a little bit about your background.

Buell: I did a radio show in Alaska for two years, covering the Iditarod and other sled dog races. I reported from the 1996 Miller's Reach wildfire, which won the radio station a Governor's Award for the coverage. Also, I sang in a rock and roll band (Ruff Edge) from 1988 to 1992, and was in the U.S. Army from 1980-1983.

Times-News: How did this opportunity with MVS come about?

Buell: I met Eddy (McKean) when he was buying the track from Steve York during the Speedweeks promoters meetings in Daytona Beach. That's how it all got started. At that time I was working for Evergreen Speedway as an associate promoter.

Times-News: What is your background with racing?

Buell: I raced for 8 1/2 years in street stocks cars and spent 2 1/2 years as a track announcer, all in the Northwest area. I also hosted a weekly racing radio show called 'Northwest Race Talk' and spent 8 1/2 years as an associate promoter at Evergreen Speedway in Monroe, Wash. I also am owner of B&D Entertainment, which has been promoting motorsports events such as demolition derbies since 2009.

Times-News: Since you reside in Washington, how do you commute to Twin Falls?

Buell: I fly to Boise then drive a rental car to Twin Falls. During the racing season, I come in on Thursdays or Fridays and leave on Sunday. In the offseason I spend Monday through Friday here every other week.

Times-News: What is involved with your duties on race nights and how do you prepare for them?

Buell: I am in charge of taking care of the marketing partners, sponsors and fans. I schedule intermission events and prize giveaways. I also announce play-by-play and do the trackside interviews. ... I actually don't think I'm all that hot at what I do, but I love doing it.

Times-News: What has been especially memorable for you this season?

Buell: The all-time track record set by 17-year-old Sierra Jackson. Then when we asked the veterans in the crowd to come trackside for opening ceremonies May 15, I watched more than two dozen file down. That brought tears to my eyes.

Times-News: You had a great line last weekend after the wheel and axel came off a car. You quickly came up the line that the driver had an "axledent." Do you find it easy to come up with those kinds of descriptions?

Buell: I just made that stuff up just sitting there. I asked the people in the stands to raise their hands if they thought that was funny and actually quite a few of them did. That was a good thing — that I actually said something funny. There was one night after the races, I was in the restroom and this guy said 'Dude, do you drink up there in the tower?' I said, 'No, of course not.' He said, 'Because you just get funnier and funnier as the night goes on.' I told him that was because he had been drinking that's why it got funnier to him.

TONIGHT AT MVS

It's the final round of events before championship night for the Mr. Gas Late Models, NAPA Street Stocks, Quale's Electronics Hornets and Junior Stingers.

Brennan's Pony Stocks are also on the agenda with two events remaining before their championship night Sept. 18.

The closest races of those on the track tonight involve the Hornets and Junior Stingers divisions. Andy Brennan, who recently took over the lead in the points standings with the Hornets, has a three-point advantage over Ty Garibay, while Russell Dalton holds on an 18-point lead over Doug Brownfield in the Junior Stingers division.

Late Models drivers Rick Fowble and Mike Greco are running first and second in their division with a 54-point margin separating the two. One night can make a big difference at this point of the season.

John Newell in the Street Stocks holds one of the most secure positions of any division driver with a 78-point lead in the standings over Casey Pehrson. A new event, the Boat Race of Destruction, provides tonight's finale. Gates open at 4 p.m., with the first green flag flying at 6.

2 QBs get nod for BYU

PROVO, Utah — The battle for the starting quarterback job at BYU has ended in a tie.

Coach Bronco Mendenhall said Riley Nelson and freshman Jake Heaps will share the job when the season begins next week.

"Each is a talented player with a different style, which will pose some difficulties for opposing defenses," Mendenhall said in a release Friday.

Nelson, a junior who backed up Max Hall in seven games last season, will likely take BYU's first series in the Cougars' opener against Washington on Sept. 4 at LaVell Edwards Stadium.

Heaps will also play in what Mendenhall described as a system, not a continued tryout.

Nelson gives the Cougars a running threat they didn't really have in Hall the last three years. As a freshman at Utah State in 2006, Nelson started eight games and completed 55 percent of his passes for 925 yards and six touchdowns while rushing for 290 yards with the Aggies.

Heaps, a high school star in suburban Seattle and one of the top-rated quarterback recruits nationally, passed for 3,191 yards and 45 touchdowns last fall as a senior at Skyline High School, then enrolled early at BYU so he could take part in spring practice.

"Riley is a great player and I'm excited to have the opportunity to contribute," Heaps said. "This isn't about me or him. It's about us. It's about doing what we can to help our team."

4 LA TECH PLAYERS SUSPENDED INDEFINITELY

RUSTON, La. — Louisiana Tech has suspended four players indefinitely for violating a team rule.

First-year coach Sonny Dykes says wide receivers Tim Molton, R.P. Stuart and Cruz Williams and line-backer Kiammi Washington each has been suspended retroactive to Aug. 23. None of the players has participated in any team meeting or practice since that time.

Dykes, in Friday's announcement, did not specify what rule was violated.

The Bulldogs open the 2010 season Sept. 4 against Grambling State in the Port City Classic. Kickoff is at 6 p.m. at Independence Stadium in Shreveport.

SUSPENDED MISSOURI RB ACCUSED OF SEXUAL ASSAULT

COLUMBIA, Mo. — Missouri running back Derrick Washington was accused of sexual assault by a former tutor in June and could still face criminal charges related to the incident that may be behind his indefinite suspension.

Boone County court records show the woman, a Missouri graduate, obtained a protection order against Washington on June 22. She accused the senior captain and starting tailback of entering her off-campus apartment three days earlier in the middle of the night and sexually assaulting her.

The complaint accuses Washington, 21, of entering her bedroom "unwilling and unprovoked."

However, a July hearing was delayed at the woman's request and the case was dropped late last month after both Washington and the alleged victim failed to show up for the rescheduled hearing. A prosecutor is still investigating and Washington's family has hired an attorney.

Missouri coach Gary Pinkel, on Thursday, announced Washington's suspension for undisclosed reasons. Washington has led the Tigers in rushing yards each of the past two years.

GEORGIA TAILBACK CHARGED WITH LEAVING ACCIDENT

ATHENS, Ga. — Georgia tailback Washaun Ealey, who led the Bulldogs in rushing a year ago and was expected to share carries this season with Caleb King, was suspended for at least one game after being arrested early Friday.

Ealey was charged with hit and run and driving on a suspended license. Coach Mark Richt said the sophomore definitely won't play when the No. 23 Bulldogs open the season Sept. 4 against Louisiana-Lafayette and left open the possibility of adding more games to the suspension.

"I'm not happy with it. It's foolish. He knew better," Richt said.

University police chief Jimmy Williamson said Ealey was driving his roommate's Chevrolet Impala when he hit a parked truck in a school parking deck at 3:19 a.m. on Friday. Williamson said alcohol was not involved. Ealey was released from the Clarke County Jail after posting bond of $4,800.

LaRene Whitaker

BURLEY — LaRene Kay Whitaker, age 64, of Burley and formerly of Malta, died Tuesday, Aug. 24, 2010, at her home from complications of diabetes.

LaRene was born Oct. 29, 1945, in Rupert, Idaho, to Harvey J. and Sarah Mae Darrington Wight. She graduated from Raft River High School in 1964 and attended Brigham Young University for one year. She married her high school sweetheart, Arthur Don Whitaker, on April 5, 1967, in Malta, and they were later sealed with their children in the Logan Temple on Jan. 17, 1987.

In her youth, LaRene loved riding horses, was a cheer-leader and was involved in various clubs and organizations. She helped with the family ranch in Malta, worked at Raft River Electric, was active in the LDS Church with various callings such as Primary president, Relief Society president and ward librarian. Her hobbies included crocheting, spending time with friends, watching her grandkids' activities, family history, scrapbooking, reading, watching movies and traveling.

She is survived by her sons, Justin (Kimberly) Whitaker of Burley and Andy (Tia) Whitaker of Malta; her daughters, Kimberly (Shay) Watterson of Burley and Nikelle (Brent) Farley of Morgan, Utah; 12 grandchildren; her sisters, Donna Butler of Kaysville, Utah, and Clara Beyler of Malta; and her brother, Jack (Elmoine) Wight of Malta. She was preceded in death by her parents; her daughter, Jennifer Lynn Whitaker; her husband, Arthur Don Whitaker; and her brother, Harold Wight.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Monday, Aug. 30, at the Malta LDS Church, with Bishop Brad Hutchison officiating. Burial will be in the Valley Vu Cemetery. Friends may call from 6 until 8 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 29, at the Rasmussen Funeral Home, 1350 E. 16th St. in Burley, and from 10 until 10:45 a.m. Monday at the church.

Condolences may be sent to the family in care of Rasmussen Funeral Home.

Dino D. Castaldi

JEROME — Dino D. Castaldi, 58, of Jerome, passed away unexpectedly at home Thursday, Aug. 26, 2010.

He was born Feb. 17, 1952, in Blackstone, Mass., the son of Domenico and Jannette DeRochers Castaldi. Dino was raised in Blackstone and graduated from high school there. He earned his bachelor's degree from Quinsigamond College in Worcester. He married Kathy Walden on July 16, 1999, in Twin Falls. They made their home in Jerome where they raised three children. Dino spent most of his working life as a counselor and for the past 10 years was employed at Psycho-Social-Rehab (PSR) in Twin Falls. Dino loved fishing and reading and was also a dedicated Patriots and Red Sox fan. He will be remembered as a wonderful husband, father, brother and friend who will be deeply missed by all who knew him.

Dino is survived by his wife, Kathy of Jerome; children, Tiffany (Nate) Endicott, Melissa (Justin) Bode and Alex Lent; one sister, Jacqueline (Bud) Boudreau; two brothers, Dominick (Mary) Castaldi and Ronnie Castaldi; and many extended family members and friends. He was preceded in death by his parents, one sister and one brother.

A memorial service will be conducted at 2 p.m. Monday, Aug. 30, at Farnsworth Mortuary Chapel, 1343 S. Lincoln in Jerome.

Elizabeth B. Stutzman

POCATELLO — Elizabeth B. Stutzman, 84, of Pocatello and formerly of Burley, passed away Wednesday, Aug. 25, 2010, in Pocatello.

Elizabeth was born March 17, 1926. She married William D. Stutzman in 1950. She was a talented seamstress. She was a member of the United Methodist Church, the Eastern Star and the Ladies Shriner's. She enjoyed quilting, painting and dancing in her younger years. She loved listening to her music.

She is survived by her daughter, Reta "Rick" (Royce) Martin; grandchildren, William Martin and Rose Martin; and sisters, Virginia (Ralph) Simpson, Marjorie Boggs and Rose Lee Frost.

She was preceded in death by her husband's parents.

A gathering for family and friends will be from 2 to 4 p.m. Monday, Aug. 30, at the Wilkes Funeral Home, 211 W. Chubbuck Road in Chubbuck.

Arrangements are under the direction of Hansen Mortuary in Rupert.

Storm brings dozens of new wildfires in Idaho

By Jessie L. Bonner
Associated Press writer

BOISE — Thunderstorms in west-central Idaho have sparked dozens of new wildfires, adding to several significant blazes across the state that have forced evacuations and threatened homes.

Crews are battling more wildfires in Idaho than in any other state, the National Interagency Fire Center reported Friday. About 312,600 acres — or roughly 490 square miles — of active fires were burning in Idaho, the agency said.

More than 60 lightning-caused blazes that erupted Thursday afternoon in southern Idaho and the Boise area are on lands managed by state and federal agencies, officials said.

An estimated 250 to 300 residents were evacuated in the Tamarack Resort area Thursday as firefighters battled the wind-fanned flames of the Hurd Fire, which more than doubled in size from 550 acres late Thursday to nearly 1,300 acres early Friday despite winds that were milder than predicted, U.S. Forest Service spokeswoman Laura Pramuk said.

At least 725 firefighters were working to contain the blaze, which has scorched more than 2 square miles but has not damaged property so far.

Pramuk said lighter winds on Friday were expected to allow crews to hold the blaze above housing subdivisions, but the agencies managing the wildfire remained leery of stronger gusts.

"There is the chance that the winds could pick up," Pramuk told The Associated Press.

The Valley County sheriff revised the evacuation order at noon Friday and some residents were allowed to return to their homes but warned they must be ready to leave again at a moment's notice.

The wildfire was 10 percent contained Friday afternoon.

The lightning storm ignited some 60 fires in the Boise National Forest alone, said spokesman Dave Olson.

The blazes are scattered over a total of one million acres, or about 1,500 square miles, and many are in remote areas, which could make them difficult to reach, he said.

"It's just hard to get a handle on all those fires, they all started at once," Olson said.

At least one of those blazes was contained late Thursday when firefighters also responded to a wildfire at the Wilderness Ranch subdivision, where about 30 structures and homes were threatened.

The fire was contained and residents allowed back into their homes around 8 p.m., said Dalia Griffith, a freelance writer who has lived in the subdivision for seven years.

The 100-acre fire blackened a hillside but didn't appear to damage any residences, Griffith said.

"Fortunately by a stroke of luck, the lightning struck a pretty big hillside rather than a home," Griffith said.

Murder trial for mom of slain boy postponed

BOISE (AP) — A judge has postponed the trial of a Boise woman accused of killing her 8-year-old son to allow more time for her co-defendant boyfriend to be tried.

The first-degree murder trial for Daniel Ehrlick, scheduled to begin in October, is now expected to last six weeks or longer, the Idaho Statesman reported. As a result, 4th District Judge Darla Williamson moved Melissa Jenkins' first-degree murder trial from late November to late January to give prosecutors and defense attorneys additional time to work on that case.

Prosecutors say Ehrlick beat young Robert Manwill in a pattern of "escalating physical violence" that ended in a fatal head injury, and that Jenkins knew about the abuse and not only failed to intervene but actively hid it from state child protection workers. Both Ehrlick and Jenkins have maintained their innocence.

The child was reporting missing July 23, 2009.

A community-wide search ended two weeks later when Robert's battered body was found in an irrigation canal.

Attorneys for the couple say their defense is simple: They didn't do it.

During a court proceeding Thursday, Williamson said that since testimony in Ehrlick's trial is expected to last longer than originally estimated, it wouldn't be fair to make prosecutors or defense attorneys try to get ready for Jenkins' trial just a short time later.

Schools eyeing education funding asked to speak up

BOISE — The state wants public school districts and charter schools to speak up if they plan to use the federal education funding Congress set aside earlier this month to preserve teacher jobs.

Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter and public schools chief Tom Luna determined last week that Idaho was eligible for what will likely be nearly $52 million in new education money.

The governor intends to pump the federal money into classrooms to reduce furloughs and mitigate other local measures that districts have introduced to save cash during a tight budget year.

The state Department of Education says each district and charter school that plans to use the funding once it flows to Idaho should notify the agency, per the governor's request, by Sept. 3.

Company seeks speedy hearing for wide loads

BOISE — ConocoPhillips is asking the Idaho

Supreme Court to speed its appeal of a judge's ruling that blocked the oil company's plans to haul four oversized loads of refinery equipment along Highway 12.

The company claims it stands to lose $9 million if trucks hauling the oversized loads are not allowed to begin immediately.

The Supreme Court has not yet ruled on the request.

The appeal and motion for expedited hearing follows 2nd District Judge John Bradbury's decision to revoke special permits issued by the Idaho Department of Transportation.

Bradbury ordered the agency to reconsider the permits to ensure public safety and convenience concerns.

The company wants to get the massive equipment from Lewiston to its refinery in Billings, Mont. along the scenic roadway in north Idaho.

Idaho Foodbank gets 27,000 pounds of protein

BOISE — Officials with The Idaho Foodbank say they got a hefty donation of chicken and beef just in time to help the organization meet the region's skyrocketing need for free emergency food.

Tyson Foods donated more than 27,000 pounds of chicken and beef products to The Idaho Foodbank, and the Idaho Press-Tribune reports the protein hit the foodbank's shelves on Thursday.

Foodbank President Karen Vauk says the organization hopes to distribute 9.5 million pounds of food this year — almost 40 percent more than the amount distributed two years ago.

The Idaho Foodbank is the largest distributor of free emergency food in the state, distributing food to more than 220 partner agencies, who in turn serve an average of 119,000 Idahoans each month.

Firefighter injured in blaze

BOISE — U.S. Forest Service officials say a firefighter was injured while working to contain a wildfire in central Idaho and will remain hospitalized overnight.

The man was struck by a falling tree while fighting the Jesse Fire, a small blaze burning seven miles northwest of Salmon, and flown to a nearby hospital for treatment.

Iraq combat phase ends, but U.S. might stay past 2011

By Warren P. Strobel and Shashank Bengali
McClatchy Newspapers

WASHINGTON — The U.S. combat mission in Iraq officially comes to an end Tuesday, 2,722 days after American-led troops stormed across the border from Kuwait. The remaining 49,000 U.S. troops are supposed to depart by the end of next year.

The American mission is far from over, however, and it may have to be extended, according to former senior

U.S. officials, foreign diplomats and private analysts.

Iraq's leaders, worried about the country's stability and the designs of powerful neighbors such as Iran and Saudi Arabia, may ask for at least some American troops to remain as an insurance policy, Iraqi and U.S. observers said.

"There is a reasonable probability the Iraqis, once they've got a new government in place, will reassess" and request a change to the 2008 status of forces agreement, said Ryan Crocker, who was the U.S. ambassador to Iraq from 2007 to 2009.

"I hope we'll be responsive," Crocker said in an interview, arguing that there's much left to do in Iraq.

President Barack Obama, who will mark the end of the combat mission with an Oval Office speech Tuesday, hasn't said how he'll treat such an Iraqi request.

"We've made a commitment ... to have our troops out by the end of 2011, and that's a commitment we intend to keep," deputy press secretary Bill Burton said last week.

If the Iraqis ask, however, "it would be damn hard to say no," said Daniel Serwer, a vice president of the non-partisan U.S. Institute of Peace.

The uncertainty over next year's deadline underscores Iraq's precarious position as America's attention shifts to this fall's elections, domestic economic issues and the growing war in Afghanistan.

Iraq is better off in many ways since 2007, when a "surge" of U.S. combat brigades, a change in military strategy and payments to Sunni Muslim tribal leaders to fight al-Qaida in Iraq stemmed an incipient sectarian civil war.

Violence is down dramatically, raw sectarian feelings appear to have ebbed and political horse-trading is the norm.

Iraq isn't as well off as U.S. officials had hoped it would be by late August 2010, however, a deadline that Obama himself set and that isn't stipulated in the U.S.-

Iraqi forces agreement. Many things have improved, but the political system remains deadlocked.

Sen. Richard Lugar of Indiana, a leading moderate Republican voice on foreign policy, said Friday that the timing of Obama's speech was unfortunate given Iraq's state of flux. It reflects not so much realities on the ground as the president's need to show the public, and the liberal wing of his party, that he's made good on a campaign promise to withdraw from Iraq, Lugar said.

PAKISTAN'S PLIGHT

Tepid response from U.S. public to help flood victims

By David Crary
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — Americans are giving a paltry amount for relief efforts in flood-stricken Pakistan compared to other overseas disasters. They were more than 40 times more generous for the Haiti earthquake.

Reasons include the slow-motion nature of the calamity, relatively scant TV coverage, and — unmistakably — the fact that the strategic Muslim ally is viewed warily by many Americans.

No disasters are alike. Yet a month into Pakistan's flood catastrophe, with 8 million people in dire need and a fifth of its territory affected, the donation comparisons are startling.

InterAction, an umbrella group for U.S. relief agencies active abroad, says its affiliates have raised about $12 million thus far for Pakistan, compared to more than $500 million at the same stage of the Haiti earthquake relief effort earlier this year.

The American Red Cross, traditionally the biggest recipient of disaster relief donations, has collected about $2 million for Pakistan and is dipping into a contingency fund to support its work there. At the same stage, it had raised about $100 million in response to the 2004 Indian Ocean tsunami, more than $670 million for Hurricane Katrina and

"People find it complicated to understand our relationship with Pakistan — how the government works, who to trust."

—Stacy Palmer, editor of the Chronicle of Philanthropy about $230 million for the Haiti quake.

"People find it complicated to understand our relationship with Pakistan — how the government works, who to trust," said Stacy Palmer, editor of the Chronicle of Philanthropy, which has been tracking the donations.

"It was easier to look at a place like Haiti and know a quick response was needed," she said.

In Haiti and the nations hit by the tsunami, the devastation's scope was apparent immediately to anyone who saw the graphic images on television. In each case, the death toll surpassed 200,000. Pakistan's floods, in contrast, worsened over a period of days — and the outside world was relatively slow in realizing the scope of the catastrophe in a country already wracked by the Taliban insurgency. The flood death toll, estimated at 1,500, is viewed by some experts as misleadingly small given the scale of the dislocations and the long-term damage to Pakistani society.

"Fortunately, the death toll is low compared to the tsunami and the quake in Haiti," said David Meltzer, senior vice president of international services for the American Red Cross. "The irony is, our assistance is focused on the living — and the number of those in need is far greater than in Haiti."

The disaster unfolded at a time when many Americans were on vacation, aloof from breaking news. And initial TV coverage of the floods was not as extensive as for the tsunami or Haiti quake, according to charity experts who say that likely diminished donations.

"The media coverage of the Pakistan floods has been minimal," wrote Charity Navigator vice president Sandra Miniutti on the monitoring group's blog. "As they say, out of sight, out of mind."

Samuel Worthington, president of InterAction, has been urging Americans to overcome any doubts about Pakistan's political and security problems, and to be as generous toward the flood victims as they were to victims of the tsunami and Haiti quake.

"Pakistan is a very diverse country, with a population that tends to be labeled through a very small subset of terrorists," he said.

Admin. official: FDA to inspect large egg farms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration is planning to inspect all of the country's largest egg farms before the end of next year following the massive recall that has sickened as many as 1,500 people.

An Obama administration official says inspectors will visit about 600 large egg farms that produce 80 percent of the nation's eggs. The official spoke on condition of anonymity because the plan has not yet been announced. This will be the first government effort to inspect large egg farms, as most of them have gone largely uninspected for decades.

The FDA's plan for heightened inspections came after more than half a billion eggs linked to cases of salmonella poisoning were recalled from two Iowa farms this month. The inspections will be conducted as part of new FDA rules put in place this July to prevent salmonella in shell eggs.

The inspections will begin in September with the farms deemed highest risk to consumer safety, the official said. The new inspection plan covers all egg farms that have 50,000 or more hens.

The FDA will also be adjusting the training of the agency's inspectors based on findings from the ongoing investigations at Iowa's Wright County Egg and Hillandale Farms, the two farms linked to the salmonella outbreak, the official said.

The aim of the inspections, and the new egg rules, are to prevent an outbreak before it starts. In the past, the government has traditionally only inspected egg facilities, along with many other types of farms, after there is an outbreak.

The FDA said it has not inspected either of the two Iowa farms despite at least one of the companies' long history of health, safety, environmental and immigration violations.

LOUISIANA Engineers to remove cap from Gulf well

NEW ORLEANS — Engineers will soon start the delicate work of detaching the temporary cap that stopped oil from gushing from BP's blown-out Gulf of Mexico well and the hulking device that failed to prevent the leak — all while trying to avoid more damage to the environment.

Retired Coast Guard Adm. Thad Allen, the government's point man for the spill response, told reporters Friday that engineers will remove the cap starting Monday so they can raise the failed blowout preventer. The blowout preventer is considered a key piece of evidence in determining what caused the April rig explosion that unleashed the gushing oil.

The leak was first contained when engineers were able to place a cap atop BP's well. Workers then pumped mud and cement in through the top in a so-called "static kill" operation that significantly reduced pressure inside the well. Officials don't expect oil to leak into the sea again when the cap is removed, but Allen has ordered BP to be ready to collect any leaking crude just in case.

CHILE Video gives tour of trapped miners' refuge

COPIAPO — The first video released of the 33 men trapped deep in a Chilean copper mine shows the men stripped to the waist and appearing slim but healthy, arm-in-arm, singing the national anthem and yelling "long live Chile, and long live the miners!" — images that bolstered family members' spirits Friday.

Camping just outside the entrance to the mine, those waiting for the miners' return said they were elated after seeing their loved ones — and that the men appeared to be in better shape than thought.

"It's entirely the opposite of what I thought!" said Antonio Bugueno, whose brother Carlos is one of those trapped. "I thought he would look much worse. But he appeared strong of heart and mind."

Only about five minutes of what is reportedly a 45-minute video were released late Thursday by Television Nacional de Chile via the Chilean government.

The men made the video with a small camera sent down to them through a small emergency shaft drilled to their emergency shelter deep in the San Jose mine.

CALIFORNIA Pair of solar systems discovered

LOS ANGELES — Astronomers have found two new solar systems circling distant stars, one with as many as seven planets and both with planets only slightly larger than Earth. The system with seven planets is the largest yet known beyond our own, and the two planets close to the size of Earth are the smallest yet discovered.

Neither could be considered Earth-like, however. Both orbit so close to their stars that their surfaces are blistering hot — so hot that they might even glow, experts said. Nonetheless, their discovery gives researchers hope that there may be similar planets farther out from stars in the so-called habitable zone, where liquid water can exist on the surface.

Violence targets police, media in Mexico massacre

REYNOSA, Mexico (AP) — A car explodes outside a police station, another outside a television station. A gang is suspected of massacring 72 migrants. A prosecutor investigating those deaths suddenly disappears.

Mexico's drug cartels seem to be adopting the tactics of war zones half a world away.

The violence appears to have contributed to fewer migrants crossing the border into the U.S., officials say, as they have to traverse some of Mexico's most dangerous territory to get to Texas. Mexican officials, meanwhile, warned that there likely will be more in the coming months.

"Violence will persist and even intensify,"

President Felipe Calderon said at a forum on security where he vowed he would not back down.

If authorities confirm the explosions were car bombs, it would mean a total of four such explosives have been used this year in Mexico — a new and frightening tactic that officials say the cartels are using in the escalating drug war.

No drug gangs claimed responsibility for Friday's violence in the northern state of Tamaulipas.

A survivor of the massacre, however, said the killers identified themselves as Zetas, a group of former Mexican army special forces who are now a lethal drug gang that has taken to extorting migrants.

Kidnappings and attacks on government security patrols are rampant in the highways surrounding San Fernando, where the bodies of the 72 Central and South American migrants were discovered on a ranch Tuesday, bound, blindfolded and slumped against a wall.

Last month, the bodies of 15 people were dumped in the middle of the highway from San Fernando to Matamoros, a city across the border from Brownsville, Texas.

The violence extends from Matamoros along the Texas border to Ciudad Juarez, across from El Paso, Texas.

The two car explosions happened less than 45 minutes apart in Ciudad Victoria, the Tamaulipas state capital, the Attorney General's Office said. The first exploded in front of the offices of the Televisa network and the second in front of transit-police offices.

There were no injuries, though both caused some damage to buildings and knocked out the signal of the Televisa network for several hours.

The network described the explosion as a car bomb, but the state attorney general's office said the cause of the explosions have not been determined.

"Excellence In Safety"

Today is Saturday, Aug. 28, the 240th day of 2010. There are 125 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On Aug. 28, 1963, 200,000 people participated in a peaceful civil rights rally in Washington, D.C., where Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. delivered his "I Have a Dream" speech in front of the Lincoln Memorial.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1609, English sea explorer Henry Hudson and his ship, the Half Moon, reached present-day Delaware Bay.

In 1774, Mother Elizabeth Ann Seton, the first American-born saint, was born in New York City.

In 1910, the Kingdom of Montenegro was proclaimed.

In 1947, legendary bull-fighter Manolete died after being gored during a fight in Linares, Spain; he was 30.

In 1955, Emmett Till, a black teen-ager from Chicago, was abducted from his uncle's home in Money, Miss. by two white men after he had supposedly whistled at a white woman; he was found brutally slain three days later.

In 1968, police and anti-war demonstrators clashed in the streets of Chicago as the Democratic national convention nominated Hubert H. Humphrey for president.

In 1973, more than 600 people died as an earthquake shook central Mexico.

In 1988, 70 people were killed when three Italian stunt planes collided during an air show at the U.S. Air Base in Ramstein (RAHIM'-shtyn), West Germany.

In 1990, an F5 tornado struck the Chicago area, killing 29 people.

In 1995, a mortar shell tore through a crowded market in Sarajevo, Bosnia-Herzegovina, killing some three dozen people and triggering NATO airstrikes against the Bosnian Serbs.

Ten years ago: Authorities in Peru announced that four years after military judges convicted American Lori Berenson of planning a rebel attack, the military had overturned her life sentence, clearing the way for a new civilian trial. (Berenson was later convicted of "terrorist collaboration" and sentenced to 20 years; she was paroled on May 27, 2010, but must remain in Peru until the sentence ends in Nov. 2015.)

Five years ago: New Orleans Mayor Ray Nagin (NAY'-gin) ordered everyone in the city to evacuate after Hurricane Katrina grew to a monster storm. Iraqi negotiators finished a new constitution but without the endorsement of Sunni Arabs. West Oahu of Ewa Beach, Hawaii, won the Little League World Series title with a 7-6 win over the defending champions from Willemstad, Curacao.

One year ago: The Los Angeles County coroner's office announced that Michael Jackson's death was a homicide caused primarily by the powerful anesthetic propofol and another sedative. Celebrity disc jockey Adam Goldstein, known as DJ AM, was found dead in his New York apartment from an accidental drug overdose; he was 36. Space shuttle Discovery and seven astronauts blazed into orbit on a flight to the international space station.

IF AUGUST 28 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You are more focused on material success than usual. An upcoming surge of energy and powerful celestial formations can lend you the ambition to begin working on a new project or pursuing a special dream. If you are persistent, you will succeed in anything you initiate between now and the end of the year. February is a good month to use your good judgment to make a final decision about a person or future plans, or to even ask others for sound advice and assistance. However, you must sit on your hands and avoid making undue changes in May when impulsive actions could upset your apperception or disturb the even tone of key relationships.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A stalemate means that nobody wins. You might need to go into extra innings to get your point across today. Positive thoughts and faith in the future will do more good than unconstructive criticism.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Keeping up with a hard working example is a challenge. Someone might dare you to step up the pace just when you thought you had caught up. Just remember that your efforts are genuinely appreciated.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You are in a sociable mood, so be sure to entertain friends or participate in end-of-summer events. Your word is your baton, so wave it cheerfully as you conduct beautiful music this weekend. Say just the right thing.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Perch on your throne. You might pretend to be royalty. You can tell that someone else cares about you by the small services they provide. Sit back and let someone wait on you for a change.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Don't tempt fate. Temperamental people could be easily upset and you might endanger a relationship if you adopt a challenging stance. Take a break for a congenial dinner out with friends or a lover.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Don't be so hard on yourself. You are surrounded by people with short fuses this weekend and find it hard to relax. Make a concentrated effort to leave career pressures on the back burner until Monday.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A night out on the town will not be disappointing, as you have an electric quality that attracts others like a moth to a flame. Romantic partners, however, may not have the staying power to match yours.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Use your friends as sounding boards. You have a chance to think over events of the past week and put them into perspective. Conversations with peers can bring solutions to problems that pop up.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Find ways to be useful. Home base is a hub of activity, so coordinate comings and goings and lend a helping hand where needed. You are at your best as the second mate on important projects.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): It is easy to shed the cares and concerns of the workweek. Relax with true-blue companions. Avoid revealing confidences or betraying confidential information no matter how tempting it is to share.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): An escape to cloud nine with a loved one could be delayed by circumstances beyond your control, even though amorous ideas twinkle in someone's eyes. Extra duties and responsibilities could tie up time.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A special someone offers an oasis of old-fashioned comfort. If the rest of the world seems cruel and unkind, you can escape to an island built for two. Rest assured that a downward mood swing is temporary.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old girl living with my grandmother. My mom died when I was 7 and my father is now remarried. He and my stepmom have two children together.

My problem is my stepmother and I don't get along. I try to be friendly, but she hardly speaks to me or my grandmother. I understand that some people are quiet by nature and I am one of them, but my grandmother and I agree that her behavior is rude — especially because we have done nothing to provoke it.

I sometimes get the feeling my stepmother doesn't want me to see my father. Every time he comes to visit at my grandmother's she calls, and then he has to leave.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

My grandmother and I love their two children and they have come to recognize us. However, we don't get to see them very often. I believe my stepmother may be the reason for this as well.

What can we do to improve the situation? My grandmother has spoken to Dad, but things haven't gotten any better. I'm afraid to say anything because I know things could be worse. What's your advice?

— SILENT TEEN

IN NORTH CAROLINA
DEAR SILENT TEEN: If your grandmother has already spoken to your dad, there is nothing you can do to improve the situation. The ball is in your father's court.

The problem isn't you or anything you have or haven't done. Your father married a woman who appears to be possessive, insecure and unable to empathize with anyone she can't control. You are a reminder that your father had a wife and a life before she came into it, and she views that as a threat. Your father could straighten her out — but it appears she holds the power in their relationship.

It's time you spoke to him about your feelings directly. Hearing it from you may have more impact than what your grandmother is able to convey. If that doesn't work, you have my sympathy.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter, "Cassie," who is 23, moved out to live with her fiancé. My house is now truly empty. I have two sons who have been on their own for a while. Cassie was the last to fly the coop.

I am so sad. I can't bear to even go into her room. It is so quiet. We didn't exactly have the closest relationship. I tried, but she wanted her independence. It hurt, but isn't that what a parent has to do with her kids?

Now that Cassie's gone, she won't answer calls or messages — nothing. I saw her at her place of work the other day and she barely acknowledged me. She claims she is "happy now" and really doesn't miss me. She says hurtful things and makes fun of me because I am so sappy and emotional.

How do parents handle these situations? I don't work because I'm not able to. I know I should go out and do volunteer work. I do go to the gym, but I'm much younger than the crowd there. I don't have many close friends. What do empty-nester moms do? I know Cassie is insensitive, but talking it out with her won't help. She is who she is.

— HURTING

IN PENNSYLVANIA
DEAR HURTING: OK, you say you don't have many close friends and can't work — but you are well enough that you can go to a gym and volunteer. Now it's time for YOU to "fly the coop."

The way your daughter is treating you is beyond insensitive — it's cruel. Instead of being afraid to go into her room you should paint it, redecorate it and rent it. Get out, volunteer, take dancing lessons, join whatever social groups there are in a 50-mile radius. The less time you spend at home the less time you will have to grieve.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"Men are never so likely to settle a question rightly as when they discuss it freely."

—Lord Macaulay

The overall standard in the Junior European Championships last summer was remarkably high. Consider this deal from the match between Italy and Sweden.

Both Souths were at the helm in the heart game. The Italian West led the diamond king. Cecilia Rimstedt won dummy's ace and played the spade queen to East's king. East switched to a low heart and Rimstedt won the king, ruffed a spade and crossed to another club to ruff the last spade. She had her contract now and emerged with an unlikely overtrick for plus 650.

Eric Arvidsson also led the diamond king, and the Italian declarer also won dummy's ace. However, he now followed a different line by returning a diamond. East, Simon Bech, pitched a club and a second one as Arvidsson continued with the diamond 10 for declarer to ruff (fine defense). Declarer was in trouble now. He tried to cash the ace and king of clubs, but Bech ruffed and played the spade king, which Arvidsson overtook to give Bech a second club ruff, taking the contract down one for minus 100 and 13 IMPs to Sweden.

At double-dummy, the only winning line is to cash three rounds of clubs immediately, before East has a chance to pitch clubs on his partner's winning diamonds. If you play either spades or diamonds at trick two, then, as the cards lie, East can pitch enough clubs to leave declarer no chance.

ANSWER: There is no right answer to this question, since this is more about system than judgment. If you play as I do, that a one-diamond response either denies a four-card major, or shows at least invitational values, then you should respond one no-trump
now. Either you do not have a fit in a major, or your partner will introduce his major at his next turn.

SUDOKU

By Dave Green

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Concepts Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.
