BLM captures Saylor Creek wild horses

Horses moved from charred Long Butte land

By Laura Lundquist
Times-News writer

GLENN'S FERRY — A small white cloud rose from the blackened desert west of Hagerman Tuesday. But rather than smoke, it was ash and dust kicked up by a couple hundred hooves.

The U.S. Bureau of Land Management rounded up the Saylor Creek wild horse herd Tuesday morning after last week's Long Butte Fire burned most of the herd's management area. Managers conducted the emergency roundup because the remaining grass could not support the herd of around 200 horses.

Since the fire, volunteer Joe Bennett of Hagerman has taken feed out to the horses every night. So he couldn't pass up the chance to join other observers in the chilly pre-dawn to witness the gather. BLM spokeswoman Heather Tiel-Nelson said the agency schedules gathers early in the morning while it's still cool.

The last Saylor Creek gather occurred in 2005 after the Clover Creek Fire. Susan Foss has lived in Bliss for 28 years but hadn't come out before. She said she became concerned for the horses as she watched this year's fire.

"They're such an integral part of this area," Foss said.

People were allowed to observe from Twin Butte, overlooking the capture chute erected by Cattoor Livestock Roundup Inc.

The observers settled behind the rocks and waited for the sound of the Cattoor helicopter that would herd the horses in. The BLM has contracted with Cattoor for a number of years, but Range Management Specialist Ken Crane said the pilot hadn't flown the area before, so he'd need time to orient himself.

The dust clouds of the horses were finally spotted up on "the big hill," more than five miles southwest of Twin Butte. Crane said they'd left feed below the hill the night before.

Bennett said he'd fed the horses just below Twin Butte on previous nights. But an airplane had flown too close on Monday and spooked the animals, Crane said. The herd split into three groups and complicated the gather, forcing the helicopter pilot to drive the horses farther than planned and make multiple runs.

People watched through binoculars as the horses surged along the ridge, while the helicopter

Obama: U.S. combat in Iraq over, 'time to turn the page'

By Ben Feller
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Claiming no victory, President Barack Obama formally ended the U.S. combat role in Iraq after seven long years of bloodshed, declaring firmly Tuesday night: "It is time to turn the page." Now, he said, the nation's most urgent priority must be fixing its own sickly economy.

From the Oval Office, where George W. Bush first announced the invasion that would come to define his presidency, Obama addressed millions who were divided over the war in his country and around the world. Fiercely opposed to the war from the start, he said the United States "has paid a huge price" to give Iraqis the chance to shape their future — a price that now includes more than 4,400 dead, tens of thousands of troops wounded and hundreds of billions of dollars spent since March 2003.

In a telling sign of the domestic troubles weighing on the United States and his own presidency, Obama turned much of the emphasis in a major war address to the dire state of U.S. joblessness.

In his remarks of slightly less than 20 minutes, only his second address from the Oval Office, Obama looked directly into the TV camera, hands clasped in front of him on his desk, family photos and the U.S. and presidential flags behind him.

Even as he turns control of the war over to the Iraqis — and tries to cap one of the most divisive chapters in recent American history — Obama is escalating the conflict in Afghanistan. He said that winding down Iraq would allow the United States "to apply the resources necessary to go on offense" in Afghanistan, now the nation's longest war since Vietnam.

In Iraq, for all the finality of Obama's remarks, the war is not over. More Americans are likely to die. The country is plagued by violence and political instability, and Iraqis struggle with constant shortages of electricity and water.

Obama is keeping up to 50,000 troops in Iraq for support and counterterrorism training, and the last forces are not due to leave until the end of 2011 at the latest.

As the commander in chief over a war he opposed, Obama took pains to thank troops for their sacrifice but made clear he saw the day as more the marking of a mistake ended than a mission accomplished. He spoke of strained relations with allies, anger at home and the heaviest of wartime tolls.

"We have met our responsibility," Obama said. "Now it is time to turn the page."

To underscore his point, Obama said he had telephoned Bush, whom he had taunted so often in the 2008 campaign, and he prominently praised the former Republican president in the heart of his speech.

Former Burley teacher sentenced for sex crimes

By Laurie Welch
Times-News writer

BURLEY — An illicit tryst with an underage student has cost former Burley High School teacher Chad Burnett life as he once knew it.

Burnett, 28, will serve up to 12 years in prison for child sex crimes he was sentenced for on Tuesday in Burley. Burnett pleaded guilty in June to two felony counts of sexual battery of a child 16 to 17 years old and a misdemeanor violation of a no-contact order.

He will serve three years in prison before he becomes eligible for parole, and was ordered to pay restitution and a $5,000 civil penalty to his underage female victim.

"I've lost all that I have worked for academically and professionally by giving up my teaching certificate," Burnett told the court on

Long Butte disaster declaration lost in shuffle

T.F. commission: Delay won't affect aid to ranchers

By Nick Coltrain
Times-News writer

Twin Falls County commissioners quickly declared disaster after the Long Butte Fire burned the western edge of the county Aug. 22, hoping to expedite state aid to ranchers and farmers affected by the blaze.

Problem is, the declaration didn't make it to the governor's office for more than a week.

Commissioner Terry Kramer, who spearheaded the disaster declaration, said commissioners faxed the declaration to the office of Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter, who needs to approve it, but didn't follow up to make sure it made it there.

"It never got where it was supposed to go. I don't have any idea where it ended up," Kramer said. "It never even dawned on me that we needed to follow up on this. I had assumed (Otter) was busy — it's political time, there's the fairs. I had assumed he would get to it when the fire was done."

Kramer said the declaration was sent again — and its receipt confirmed — at about 4:30 p.m. Tuesday after the Times-News asked about its status. He said it shouldn't affect any state aid that ranchers and farmers receive.

"The fact of it is that a lot of these people don't know the damage. They haven't had a chance to assess it," Kramer said.

Otter spokesman Jon Hanian said the state can't offer any assistance to the county until the governor's office receives the declaration of disaster. He said if approved, it would cut through a lot of red tape that surrounds disaster response.

Kramer said the disaster declaration will help ranchers graze on land originally set aside for regrowth, and help them sell livestock they'll no longer be able to feed by letting them pay taxes on sales of the animals over two years instead of one.

The 306,000-acre fire wasn't contained until Monday.

Idaho, Montana seek OK to hunt endangered wolves

By Matthew Brown
Associated Press Writer

BILLINGS, Mont. — State officials sought Tuesday to revive gray wolf hunts in the Northern Rockies, even as they entered talks with wildlife advocates whose lawsuit recently restored the animal's endangered status.

Hunters in Idaho and Montana killed 260 wolves last year in the first managed hunts since the species rebounded from near-extinction in the past century.

This year's hunts were doubtful after a U.S. District Court ruling said portions of the wolf population remained at risk.

On Tuesday, Montana asked the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to commit by Sept. 10 to the state's plan for "conservation hunts" beginning this fall.

State officials said the hunts were justified because the wolf population had exceeded its "carrying capacity" — the number of wolves that are biologically sustainable.

The tactic is new for Montana official. In the past, they have stressed the wolf's ability to survive even under extreme pressures, including hunting, poaching and removals by government agencies.

Ron Aasheim with Montana Fish, Wildlife and Parks said the state hopes to convince federal officials that hunting would actually benefit wolves. He said wolf numbers are now at risk of crashing in some areas as they deplete elk herds.

MORNING BRIEFING

Pat's Picks

Pat Marcantonio

• The Twin Falls County Fair kicks it up at the fairgrounds in Filer. There's something for everyone, from livestock exhibits and a carnival to great food. Admission is $4. Children 5 and younger get in free.

• Listen to old-time music at the Idaho Old Time Fiddlers Association members' acoustic string instrument jam session from 6 to 8 p.m. at Idaho Pizza Co., 1859 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls. The event is open to all.

• A free "Beginning Computers" class is open for people who have little experience using computers at 10 a.m. at the Burley Public Library, 1300 Miller Ave. No sign-up is necessary, but the class size is limited to 10 people.

Have your own pick to share? Something unique to the area and that may surprise people? E-mail me at patm@gmagicvalley.com.

Guys in crimson suspenders can't keep women away

Some random stuff I thought you should hear, since nobody else will tell you:

• Red hot

Men in red are hot, according to a study published in the Journal of Experimental Psychology.

According to the UK's Telegraph, participants were shown a photograph of a man, surrounded by either red or white, and asked to rate his attractiveness.

"We found that women view men in red as higher in status, more likely to make money and more likely to climb the social ladder," lead author Andrew Elliot said. "And it's this high-status judgment that leads to the attraction."

Yet guys, it seems, don't get much notice — or care — what color women wear. Gee, there's a surprise.

• We need more women around here.

According to a study published in the latest issue of Demography, men age 18-27 who live in areas where they are outnumbered by women may live longer.

Researchers used data from the Wisconsin Longitudinal Study, which followed thousands of the state's 1957 high-school graduates. The study showed that men who attended schools where boys outnumbered girls by more than 3-to-2 were 40 percent more likely to have died by age 65 than men who went to schools where girls outnumbered boys.

After also examining 12.7 million Medicare and Social Security records, the researchers found that men who reached marriageable age in states that were 52 percent male at the time were more likely to have died than men who came of age in states that were only 47 percent male.

The bad news? Twenty-

to-29-year-old men outnumber women in all eight counties of south-central Idaho, according to the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare.

So it's not surprising, I suppose, that life expectancy for men in south-central Idaho is 77.3 years, compared to 77.6 years statewide.

• The power of squirming.

Want a good deal on a car? Sit on a hard chair.

In a new study out of Harvard, Yale and MIT, researchers had 86 participants haggle over the price of a new car with a sticker price of $16,500.

After their first offers were rejected, participants made second offers. Those sitting on wooden chairs raised their offers by less than $900, while those in padded chairs went up by more than $1,200.

That's why you'll only find couches in car dealerships.

• Women who scratch.

Female beer drinkers are more likely to get psoriasis, according to the Archives of Dermatology.

Over 14 years, 82,869 women were studied. In comparison with non-drinkers, those who quaffed at least five non-light beers per week had a 76 percent chance of developing the skin disease.

The researchers believe that barley, a grain used in the fermentation process of heavier beers, could be to blame. Barley contains gluten, a protein substance that people with psoriasis can be sensitive to.

Seems to me they need to switch to vodka.

State honors Hailey patriot

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — Maggie Springer has never set foot in boot camp or served with U.S. forces in Iraq or Afghanistan.

But on Tuesday, the 28-year-old Hailey woman received Idaho's Distinguished Service Medal, a plaque from the Idaho National Guard designating her a "100 Percent American Soldier" and another plaque making her a member of the Guard.

She also received several other plaques, medals and ribbons, including a certificate from Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter declaring Tuesday "Maggie Springer Day" in Idaho.

"I feel overwhelmingly honored and very humble," Springer said in front of about 50 people gathered at Hailey City Hall, including 10 Idaho National Guard members who had flown to the surprise ceremony in a Blackhawk helicopter. "I would never have imagined this."

Springer has become synonymous with supporting American servicemen at Gowen Field in Boise, where she has become "a true legend," said Col. Tim Marsano.

She was but a tot when she began helping her mother, Julia Springer, sell poppies and gather donations for veterans.

When she learned to play the trumpet, she volunteered her time for military services from Ketchum to Richfield.

In the aftermath of the Sept. 11 attacks, Springer used her own money to purchase 1,100 "Picture Me With You" bears, which she contributed to the New York City fire and police departments for children who had lost parents in the terrorist attacks. Her various contributions continued year after year.

She raised funds for a granite memorial honoring 50 Idaho soldiers killed in Iraq and Afghanistan, which will be unveiled in front of the Ada County Courthouse on Sept. 11 this year. And she answered the call seven years ago when a Veterans of Foreign Wars member inquired about starting up a Memorial Day service at the Hailey Cemetery.

Last May, about 400 people attended the ceremony, including an honor guard from Boise.

"We have one honor guard to send anywhere in the state. And where did it end up? Right here. And that's because of Maggie Springer," said Idaho Army National Guard Brig. Gen.

Alan Gayhart.

Springer credited her parents with instilling patriotism in their children.

"We raised our children to respect God, country and family — in that order," said Julia Springer.

Maggie Springer acknowledged that she may not be able to organize Hailey's Memorial Day service much longer due to health complications from a brain malformation and a degenerative spinal disease that she developed 11 years ago. But she said she is confident that her fellow Hailey residents will continue what she started.

"None of us do this for personal recognition," she said. "We do it for the ability to honor those who have served and fallen. It's a small way to say thank you, and I feel blessed to do this."

very painful, plus I've lost my freedom."

Burnett said he knows he violated a sacred relationship between a teacher and student, calling his actions "unlawful, unethical and immoral." But Judge Michael Crabtree wasn't convinced of Burnett's remorse.

"I don't know at this point if you appreciate how wrong it was," Crabtree said before handing down Burnett's sentence.

Burnett originally faced eight other related felony and misdemeanor charges, which were dropped as part of a plea agreement.

Burnett on Tuesday read a letter to the court, apologizing to his victim, her family, his family and the community.

"As I got to know the victim in this case I lost my sense of right or wrong," Burnett said. "But a relationship formed. Not one of lust, but of friendship. I cared for her a great deal."

But Cassia County Prosecutor Al Barrus said Burnett groomed the victim starting when she was 14 and manipulated her once he forged a relationship with her.

"My daughter's a mess," the victim's mother said. "She is going to need a lot of help. I wish I could say it will be over today."

Burnett's defense attorney, Keith Roark, pleaded for Burnett to be sentenced to the state's retained-jurisdiction program.

"If you didn't know the ages, you'd assume this is a high-school romance," Roark said, adding that Burnett, who attempted to assure the court that he has learned his lesson, is not a psychopath.

"There's not a chance that anything like this could ever happen again," Burnett said. "I felt trapped in the relationship and I lost control of myself and I did not behave in a way that reflects my morals or standards."

Crabtree said the need to punish Burnett and deter others from such crimes ultimately outweighed any consideration of leniency in Burnett's sentencing.

"Teachers who have been honorable have suffered," Crabtree said. "Perhaps we'll be able to regain in the future the trust of the parents, but I think it's very safe to say that parents at this point have been significantly rocked and shaken by what's taken place."

Police still searching for bank robber

By Bradley Guire
Times-News writer

Twin Falls police continued to scour the area Tuesday for Monday's bank robbery suspect.

"There's nothing new to report," Lt. Craig Stotts said of the manhunt. "We've received a few leads to follow up on."

The suspect's description has been circulated throughout the area to other law-enforcement agencies, and police said they always appreciate any leads citizens can provide through Crime Stoppers or other means.

Around 10:15 a.m. Monday, a white male between 5 feet, 5 inches and 5 feet, 9 inches tall walked into the Bank of America branch on Shoshone Street and quietly made off with an undisclosed amount of money. He was seen leaving on foot, heading south on Shoshone Street.

Surveillance footage released by police shows the man to have short, blond-brown hair and a dark mustache. He was wearing a baseball cap, a white hooded sweatshirt and baggy pants at the time of the robbery.

Contact the TFPD, 735-4357, or Crime Stoppers, 732-5387, with any information pertaining to the robbery.

wheeled in an effort to bring them down.

"This is not an easy thing," horse owner Evelyn Simon said. "They're running this way and that ... how do they know if they've run too much?"

The first group of 50 finally zigzagged into the chute from the south at 9:30 a.m., and the helicopter peeled off to round up the bulk of the herd, which had galloped north around the butte. The helicopter brought the group around, flitting closely behind horses that had become slick with sweat. A colt was working to bring up the rear, but all made it into the chute to the corral.

As the dust settled and the horses milled in the enclosures, they kept up a chorus of whinnies. Stallions occasionally would shove and rear. Cowboys moved the horses through chutes, separating the stallions, mares and colts.

Tiel-Nelson said colts and their mothers would be allowed a day's rest before travelling, while stallions and other mares would be shipped Tuesday to corrals in Boise to wait for the land to recover.

Tiel-Nelson didn't know when the horses would return or how many would be brought back. Adoption may be an option. After the 2005 gather, 90 horses returned to Saylor Creek, she said.

"We didn't have much time to move on this," Tiel-Nelson said. "So we didn't plan much beyond the gather."

Cattoor had corralled most of the horses by noon, but 10 to 12 remained scattered, including a mare and her colt and a couple horses that hadn't run well.

"I would think there'd be some riders or more than one 'copter," Simon said as she watched the helicopter unsuccessfully try to bring in the stragglers.

All the horses had to be captured, Tiel-Nelson said; the BLM can't guarantee care even for just a few.

Otter talks taxes, economic recovery

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

With campaign season underway, Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter on Tuesday defended his record and expressed his desire to see Idaho's economic recovery pick up more quickly.

In an interview with the Times-News, the Republican incumbent said the campaign has brought no surprises his way. Otter's facing Democrat Keith Allred, Libertarian Ted Dunlap and independent candidates Jana Kemp and Pro-Life in his run for a second term.

"I think the Democrats have to push their agenda and we have to defend our record, and we're doing that," Otter said in Twin Falls.

Otter had a campaign stop in Jerome on Monday night with Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Luna, and has been seeking to balance his job of governor with running for re-election. After visiting Twin Falls on Tuesday, he headed to Idaho Falls for another campaign event.

He was cautiously upbeat about the state's revenue outlook, including that July revenue figures came in $4.5 million above projections. While $4.5 million helps the budget, he said, it's important to put the figure in the context of the state's $2.4 billion budget.

"I'm optimistic that it's no longer going down," Otter said of revenue.

He also noted that with the state fiscal year just starting in July, the revenue picture won't be clearer until August and September figures of the first year's quarter are known.

"We're starting to see some positive signs," Otter said of the revenue, adding legislative leaders are being kept apprised of the state's situation.

Allred has used the $4.5 million figure from July to criticize Otter, saying it shows his opponent cut more than necessary from public schools.

"In January, Otter told us that the 2011 fiscal year was going to be so bad that he had no choice but to cut funding to Idaho education," Allred said in a statement last week. "I said then — and I'm saying now — that Otter got it wrong and that Idaho school kids would pay for it."

Otter also praised the success of economic development efforts in the Magic Valley, such as $500 million in wind farm developments dedicated last week in Bliss and the C3 call center that moved into the empty Dell building in Twin Falls.

At the same time, he said he wants to see the pace of economic recovery improve.

"I'd like to see it picking up a little more," Otter said. "I'd like to see our unemployment dropping a little faster. I feel that we're doing everything we possibly can. We're going to keep doing that because it's working."

Reflecting on the last legislative session, Otter said requiring a business plan for each of the state's 30 parks — making them more self-sustaining — had an additional benefit besides taking pressure off the general fund. Now, he said, communities are taking a greater ownership of their parks, with efforts by volunteer organizations to maintain and take pride in the facilities.

Jerome P&Z OKs dairy expansion

By Amy Huddleston
Times-News writer

JEROME — The Jerome County Planning and Zoning Commission voted Monday evening to support a much-debated dairy expansion, though only two members actually participated in the vote.

The C Bar M Dairy, owned by Jane Ledbetter, is located a few miles southwest of Jerome.

Dairy operators applied to add nearly 1,120 animal units to their permit for the 563-acre confined-animal feeding operation, for a total of 4,080. One animal unit equals 1,000 pounds.

Neighbors and concerned citizens had voiced concerns about the expansion. Some say lagoons shifted closer to wells would add to the level of nitrates seeping into local water supplies. Flies, dust and odor were also issues brought up at previous meetings.

But the dairy's application did meet what the county asked of it, P&Z members noted, including plans for waste distribution, odor management and pest control.

"Obviously they have met the requirements set out by the county," board member Larrey Anderson said. "I have trouble though, is it enough for the neighbors?"

P&Z Chairman Jack Nelsen reassured Anderson and Ed Brune, the only two members who voted on the permit change, that C Bar M had done what it needed to.

"I don't know how you make a CAFO smell wonderful," Nelsen said. "From our ordinance, I think they've met all of the requirements."

Brune and Anderson both voted to recommend that Jerome County commissioners approve the dairy expansion, though their votes were made a little ambivalently.

Of the seven-member P&Z, three members were absent Monday. Member Doug Suter abstained from the C Bar M vote, saying he wasn't present at a past public hearing on it, and, as chairman, Nelsen didn't vote. But Deputy Prosecuting Attorney Mike Seib advised that a voting quorum was present because Suter remained in the room.

County ordinance states that a quorum consists of a majority of the P&Z's voting members.

The application will now be passed to county commissioners for another public hearing, likely at the end of September or the first week of October, P&Z Administrator Art Brown said.

Jane Ledbetter's ex-husband Greg Ledbetter, formerly Idaho's state veterinarian, once also had a business interest in C Bar M but said Tuesday he no longer does.

Wolves

Idaho plans to make a similar request for a hunt. Jim Unsworth of Idaho Fish and Game said the state will point to the legal harvest of other protected species such as salmon and bull trout as a precedent.

It was uncertain how many animals might be harvested if the states prevailed. Wildlife officials were waiting for a federal government response before setting any quotas.

There are an estimated 1,700 wolves in Wyoming, Idaho and Montana — more than five times the federal government's benchmark of 300 wolves for the species to be considered recovered.

"Montana began 2010 with a minimum of 504 wolves, even after a conservative but successful 2009 hunting season," Joe Maurier, director of Montana Fish, Wildlife and Parks wrote in a letter to U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service Acting Director Rowan Gould.

Maurier added that public hunting was "the optimum population management tool" for wolves, and asked the federal government to issue a conservation hunt permit to Montana by Nov. 30.

Original plans called for a hunting quota of 186 wolves this fall in Montana. That would have driven down the population to 439 by the end of 2010.

Idaho had not set its 2010 quota. The state's long-term goal is to reduce its wolf population from current estimates of at least 843 animals to roughly 500.

Some states suing feds file for health subsidies

By Ricardo Alonso-Zaldívar
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — More than half a dozen states suing to overturn President Obama's health care law are also claiming its subsidies for covering retired state government employees, according to a list released Tuesday by the administration.

About 2,000 employees have been approved for the extra help to cover early retirees, mainly private businesses. But the list also includes seven states that are suing to overturn the health care overhaul as an unconstitutional power grab by the federal government.

The seven are Idaho, Arizona, Indiana, Louisiana, Michigan, Nebraska and Nevada.

They are part of a group of 20 states that have challenged the law's requirement for most Americans to carry health insurance or face fines from the IRS. They argue that government cannot order individuals to buy a particular product. The administration counters that the mandate falls within broad powers conferred on Congress to regulate interstate commerce.

A spokeswoman said Indiana's Republican Gov. Mitch Daniels disapproves of Obama's overhaul, but will take advantage of specific provisions that benefit his state.

"Congress approved health care reform and the president signed it into law. Gov. Daniels does not agree with it, but Indiana will seek funds that help Hoosiers when there are no complicated strings or costs attached," said press secretary Jane Jankowski.

The list of employers who have expressed an interest in the subsidies includes about half the Fortune 500 companies, as well as state and local governments, educational institutions, unions and nonprofit organizations, the administration said. A total of 16 states have been approved, and more are expected to apply.

As medical costs soared in the last 20 years, employers have dramatically scaled back retiree health coverage. The share of large companies providing the benefit dropped from 66 percent in 1988 to 29 percent last year.

"Not only has this coverage disappeared, but individuals between 55 and 64 who are pre-Medicare are really struggling with the private health insurance market," said Health and Human Services Sec. Kathleen Sebelius. "This is one of the most vulnerable populations." Insurers usually charge older adults several times more than what people in their 30s and 40s pay.

To try to stabilize a precarious situation, the health care law provides $5 billion to help employers maintain coverage for early retirees age 55 and older but not yet eligible for Medicare.

The government subsidy amounts to 80 percent of medical claims between $15,000 and $90,000 — significant assistance to help cover high-cost retirees and eligible family members.

Tot handled police gun that hurt 3

EMMETT (AP) — A 3-year-old child was handling an Emmett Police Department officer's weapon that discharged and injured three people on Aug. 6.

The Idaho Statesman reports the agency has been accused of a cover-up in the incident, so Emmett Police Chief Steve Nebeker is now trying to eliminate some of the rumors.

The incident occurred at the residence of Emmett Detective Sgt. Kim Judy.

Three people, including the 3-year-old handling the gun, a 2-year-old and Judy's roommate, Whysper Rowden, were injured.

Judy took the three to a hospital, but didn't immediately report the incident.

Nebeker says Judy was probably thinking more about getting to the hospital than calling 9-1-1.

The three are recovering.

The Ada County prosecutor's office is now considering possible charges. Nebeker also says there's an internal investigation.

Cops: California doctor gets stuck in chimney, dies

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — A doctor involved in an "on-again, off-again" relationship apparently tried to force her way into her boyfriend's home by sliding down the chimney, police said Tuesday. Her decomposing body was found there three days later.

Dr. Jacquelyn Kotarac, 49, first tried to get into the house with a shovel, then climbed a ladder to the roof last Wednesday night, removed the chimney cap and slid feet first down the flue, Bakersfield police Sgt. Mary DeGeare said.

While she was trying to break in, the man she was pursuing escaped unnoticed from another exit "to avoid a confrontation," authorities said.

DeGeare said the two were in an "on-again, off-again" relationship.

The man's identity was not revealed by police, but the man who resides in the home is William Moodie, 58.

"She made an unbelievable error in judgment and nobody understands why, and unfortunately she's passed away," Moodie told The Associated Press. "She had her issues — she had her demons — but I never lost my respect for her."

Reached by telephone, Moodie did not dispute the police's characterization of his relationship with Kotarac. He would not comment on the circumstances that led to her death, saying it was more important to focus on the good she did in life.

Moodie, who runs an engineering consulting firm, said Kotarac was a superb internist who often provided service and medication free of charge to her patients.

Kotarac apparently died in the chimney, but her body was not discovered until a house-sitter noticed a stench and fluids coming from the fireplace Saturday, according to a police statement.

3 killed when copter crashes in downtown Kamiah

By Rebecca Boone
Associated Press writer

BOISE — A helicopter chartered by a state wildlife agency plunged into a camping trailer and crashed Tuesday on a downtown street in the small Idaho town of Kamiah, killing two biologists and the pilot.

Officials suspect mechanical failure caused the aircraft to flip over before it plummeted from the sky just a block from Main Street.

Debris was scattered along several blocks, but no one on the ground was injured.

Witness Jim Emmert saw the crash from his house.

"I saw white parts coming off of it," Emmert said of the helicopter. "It made a crumpled sound — like paper being crumpled — and then a loud crash and an explosion. And then nothing."

The Fish and Game biologists onboard were identified as Larry Barrett, 47, and Danielle Schiff, 34. The pilot was Perry J. Krinitt, 43, of Belgrade, Mont.

The Department of Fish and Game had chartered the aircraft from Clarkston, Wash.-based Leading Edge Aviation to count salmon spawning nests on the Selway River.

An Idaho State Police trooper takes pictures of a helicopter that crashed into a camping trailer near a home in Kamiah, Tuesday. The pilot and two passengers were killed in the crash.

Florence Krinitt, the pilot's mother, said her son got his pilot's license more than 20 years ago and began flying for Leading Edge last November. He was also a trained aircraft mechanic, she said.

"He was so careful," she said. "Every time he went out, you say a prayer. But he loved that. That was his heart and soul. He made up his mind when he was young. It's what he wanted to do."

Emmert said he initially heard loud rhythmic banging, "like a rock-crusher, but with metal parts," then ran to the deck of his home and realized the noise was coming from the helicopter heading east through Clearwater Valley.

"The thing was sounding like there was some serious metal destruction going on," Emmert said. "It was maybe 800 feet off the valley floor, and then it kind of hesitated in its forward momentum before sliding backward."

The helicopter lost a few hundred feet of altitude and flipped upside down, with its rotors toward the ground, before Krinitt briefly managed to get it upright and level again.

"It started sliding to the left and downward and going down too rapidly," Emmert said. "He was headed toward some power lines, and I perceived that he banked it toward the right to avoid them."

Resident Mick Landmark said it appeared the helicopter clipped the eaves of a U.S. Forest Service-owned house before colliding with the travel trailer about a block from his downtown insurance office in the north-central Idaho town.

The National Transportation Safety Board and Lewis County sheriff's office were investigating the crash.

Idaho Fish and Game Deputy Director Jim Unsworth said the two biologists were longtime employees who were well-known and well-liked by colleagues.

"This is a sad day for Idaho Fish and Game and our families," Unsworth said.

Barrett had worked for the department for 25 years, while Schiff had 13 years with the agency. The two had flown on fisheries surveys before, making helicopter trips to count the number of salmon nests in streams and tributaries.

AROUND THE WEST

Panel OKs study highlighting truck underpayments

BOISE — A task force investigating Idaho road funding unanimously accepted a report that concluded heavy trucks aren't paying their share of wear-and-tear.

The Spokesman-Review reported Tuesday the task force, organized by Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter, still has misgivings about the report — because they don't want to blame trucks for causing damage to Idaho's roads.

The study, released by Richland, Wash.-based Battelle in July, concludes cars are overpaying by 8 percent, while heavy trucks underpay by 14 percent, according to one scenario.

State Rep. Marv Hagedorn says trucks are important, especially for northern Idaho logging towns.

He says fees that burden trucking firms could spell economic ruin for those communities.

Idaho Transportation Board Chairman Darrell Manning says the study will be just one tool in developing new road funding proposals.

"Socialism has failed worldwide but not to worry: Congress only wants to try it one more time."

Reward offered for info on N. Idaho briefcase bomb

COEUR D'ALENE — Crime Stoppers of the Inland Northwest is offering a cash reward for information leading to the arrest of whomever left an explosive device Friday in a briefcase near the Kootenai County Fairgrounds.

A bomb squad safely detonated the device after it was discovered about a block south of the fairgrounds off Kathleen Avenue.

A note was attached to the briefcase that said "Warning, do not touch, boom".

The briefcase was reported by a passer-by heading to the North Idaho Fair on Friday evening, after which a bomb squad from nearby Spokane, Wash., was called in to dispose of the threat.

Police say the briefcase held some kind of explosive device but experts are still trying to determine just what kind of device it was.

Callers with information are asked to use a code name or number and do not have to use their own name to be eligible for the cash reward.

E-coli reported in water supply at Idaho Correctional Center

BOISE — Traces of the E. coli bacteria have been found in the water supply at the Idaho Correctional Center south of Boise.

The redesigned Gibbon Falls Overlook and parking area, two new picnic areas and the long closed Gibbon Falls picnic area are all set to open to visitors on Oct. 23, weather permitting.

Idaho libertarian's pancreatic cancer advancing

BOISE — A libertarian activist famous for his anti-big government billboards in Caldwell in southwestern Idaho is in "rough shape" after his pancreatic cancer advanced.

Supporters say Ralph Smeed is in a hospital in Meridian, where he's undergoing tests and meeting with doctors.

Wayne Hoffman, founder of the Idaho Freedom Foundation and a Smeed supporter, wrote in an e-mail Tuesday that the previous night had been difficult for the 88-year-old.

Smeed was recently treated at a Houston, Texas cancer clinic recommended to him by his friend and libertarian-leaning U.S. Rep. Ron Paul, a Republican.

Smeed's billboards in Caldwell regularly berated government and politicians, including this one:

The clock's ticking on Jerome County's jail

As Sheriff Doug McFall and the Jerome County commissioners long predicted, the first day of reckoning has arrived for the dilapidated county jail. A recent inspection of the 36-year-old facility by the Idaho Sheriff's Association found overcrowding and bad lighting. The jail must remove four beds to comply with ISA standards. Those prisoners will be sent to another county jail, at a cost of $40 to $50 a day per inmate. The projected annual tab for those four inmates: $70,000. That's money the Jerome County Sheriff's Office won't be able to spend on patrols and for other purposes.

“People ask me why I'm not doing more about the illegal aliens and I tell them to come and look at the jail. We don't have room for everyone,” Jail Administrator Robert Hass said. “We're not enforcing all of the laws because of the overcrowding.”

All of which is prelude to the Nov. 2 bond issue election to build a new, $13 million jail. Two previous attempts to construct a jail under a lease-purchase plan failed at the polls.

If the bond issue also fails, it's only a matter of time before the ISA or the county's insurance company shut down the lockup altogether.

“At some point we will reach the point of no return,” County Commission Chairwoman Cathy Roemer said.

There are four dozen inmates registered in the jail at the moment, 13 of them farmed out to stockades in Blaine and Gooding counties. If all 48 were incarcerated out of county, that would cost Jerome County taxpayers about $840,000 a year.

So there's a lot at stake on Nov. 2.

And not just for Jerome County. What happens there on Election Day will have much to say about Twin Falls and Gooding counties' jail plans.

That's because the new Jerome County Jail would have 165 beds, the surplus of which could be used to house prisoners from other counties. Besides being a significant revenue source for Jerome County, it would put off the day when the other two counties are compelled to replace, remodel or expand their jails.

For years, we've argued that the counties of the western Magic Valley should do what Cassia and Minidoka counties did years ago: cooperate on building a regional jail.

Ideally, that would be a joint effort in which all of the participating counties would pay a prorated share based on the number of inmates they house in the jail.

But sooner or later, Twin Falls, Jerome or Gooding counties won't have a choice about building a bigger lockup. The liability costs will simply be too high for keeping the current facilities open.

That new building would, in effect, become a regional jail because the other two counties would house some of their prisoners in it.

So the question comes down to this for Jerome County voters: Is it better to spend the money in the county, or send it elsewhere?

Our view:

The removal of four beds from the Jerome County Jail simply hastens the day when the old hoosgow will have to be closed.

What do you think?

We welcome viewpoints from our readers on this and other issues.

Sen. Simpson has a cow

What are we to make of Alan Simpson, the co-chairman of President Obama's deficit reduction commission, who recently referred to Social Security as “a milk cow with 310 million tits”?

Gail Collins

Personally, I would love for us to have a national cow with that sort of milk-giving capacity. But Simpson, who gets very impatient with people who want to preserve current Social Security benefits, did not mean it as a compliment. Now, his remark is getting a lot of attention, and that is only partly because the rest of the news has been so depressing that Bristol Palin's rumored agreement to compete on Dancing With the Stars was a high point of last week.

Simpson, 78, is a former Republican senator known for his outspokenness — he once called the American Association of Retired Persons “the greedy geezers of America.” In appointing him co-chairman of the president's National Commission on Fiscal Responsibility and Reform, the White House broke an important political rule, which is to keep away from anyone who considers himself a colorful old codger.

Colorful codgers can be a welcome diversion in mediocre situations, but you do not want one to be the public face of your deficit reduction commission. He might do something crazy, like e-mailing an activist for older American women, to accuse her of “babbling into the vapors,” then make disparaging remarks about well-endowed dairy animals and conclude with: “Call when you get honest work!”

Simpson was responding to a Huffington Post article by Ashley Carson, the executive director of the Older Women's League. In it, Carson criticized Simpson's support for reducing Social Security benefits. She also slammed his “record of sexism” and “his constant bashing of seniors.”

Carson's post had been published in April. So besides writing an e-mail that confirmed all of her worst charges, Simpson was also choosing to get involved in a fight whose expiration date had long since kicked in.

After his e-mail rant was made public, Simpson apologized in his colorful old codger way. (“Over the last 40 years I have had my size 15 feet in my mouth a time or two.”) But that did not stop the demands that he resign or be fired.

So far, Obama is sticking with his deficit-reduction co-chairman. He picked Simpson for the job because he is a Republican willing to talk about Social Security tax increases, a breed rarer than the ivory-billed woodpecker. The administration was obviously hoping that the commission would come up with a bipartisan plan that would combine a rise in payroll taxes with a modest reduction in benefits. The system is supposed to run out of money in 2037, and if we could fix it now, the pain would be much more modest than if Congress waited until, say, January of 2038.

This is so totally contrary to the current culture of Washington that it seems sort of touching that anybody might imagine it can happen. However, there is too much negativity in the world these days. I hereby offer a two-part proposal for fixing Social Security:

- More illegal immigrants. Immigration in general is a Social Security plus, since new arrivals tend to be young, and likely to contribute to the retirement system through payroll taxes for a long time before they start collecting. But illegal immigrants never get to collect at all. Their money only goes one way, toward benefits for the rest of us. Arizona retirees, tear down your walls.

- Tax longer lives. Some experts, including people in the administration, believe that Congress should raise the age at which people can retire on full Social Security benefits, which is currently 66 and will rise to 67 for younger workers. Personally, I will be happy to rally around this idea the very second that the White House announces there is a large pool of job opportunities for unemployed 60-year-olds that are going begging.

The theory behind raising the retirement age is that people are living longer these days. However, the Americans who do all this extra living tend to be wealthier than the ones who expire before they can cash their first pension check. Right now, only the first $106,800 in annual income is taxed for Social Security. Get rid of the cap, and you will be making the folks who are causing most of the problem pay for the solution.

Finally, we could make a rule that it is unacceptable for people who are collecting large government pensions to make fun of retirees who want to keep Social Security benefits the way they are. Particularly if they try to be colorful about it.

Gail Collins is a columnist for The New York Times.

“The administration was obviously hoping that the commission would come up with a bipartisan plan that would combine a rise in payroll taxes with a modest reduction in benefits. The system is supposed to run out of money in 2037, and if we could fix it now, the pain would be much more modest than if Congress waited until, say, January of 2038.”

Why the economic recovery is lagging

WASHINGTON — The logic of the economic recovery isn't working — or, at any rate, not well. By that logic, over-borrowed Americans would repay loans and replenish depleted savings, creating a temporary drop in consumer spending and economic activity. But once savings increased and debt declined, consumer buying would strengthen. It would replace the Obama stimulus program. Hiring would improve; the recovery would become self-sustaining.

We're still waiting. Just last week, economic growth for the second quarter was revised down to a meager 1.6 percent annual rate.

Why is the recovery faltering? There are many explanations: depressed housing; weaker-than-expected exports; cautious corporations. But consumers, representing 70 percent of the economy's $14.5 trillion of spending, are the crux of the matter.

It isn't that Americans aren't behaving as anticipated. They may actually be out-performing. “Consumers are deleveraging (reducing debt) ... and rebuilding saving faster than expected,” writes economist Richard Berner of Morgan Stanley. In 2007, the personal savings rate (the share of after-tax income devoted to saving) was 2 percent. Now it's about 6 percent.

This severe retrenchment might now signal a rebound in consumer spending, says Berner. Suppose — to take a simple example — a family has after-tax income of $100,000 and wants to raise its savings rate from 2 percent to 6 percent. Saving would go from $2,000 to $6,000. Spending would drop from $98,000 to $94,000. But after savings reached 6 percent, any additional income would boost spending. A $1,000 increase would result in $60 saving and $940 spending.

Debt reduction works the same way: first pain, then gain. Household debt has already dropped $800 billion from its peak of $11.7 trillion, estimates economist Mark Zandi of Moody's Analytics. The Federal Reserve reports that debt service — the share of income going to interest and principal payment — has decreased from almost 14 percent in early 2008 to about 12.5 percent, the lowest since 2000.

If Berner's right, the worst is over. He expects consumption to grow 2 percent to 2.5 percent annually, propelling a steady recovery.

The trouble with this analysis, as Berner admits, is that it presumes that most of the adjustment has already occurred. But what if worried Americans are only midway? In the past decade, they counted rising stock and home wealth as “saving,” which rationalized high borrowing and spending. Now, the process may work in reverse. Since late 2007, lower home and stock values have shaved about $10 trillion from household wealth. If Americans tried to replace most of this through more annual saving, consumer spending would remain weak for years.

The recovery is a creature of confidence, or its absence. “In normal times, psychology doesn't matter much. It reflects economic conditions,” says Zandi. “But in abnormal times, it's the reverse. Psychology determines economic conditions.” What the boom and bust left is a massive case of collective doubt.

Nine justices and the Ten Commandments

While the politically manipulated controversy over the proposed Islamic center in Lower Manhattan will eventually end, there is one dispute over religious symbolism and identity that remains, apparently, endless. I'm referring to the continuing effort by state and local governments to post the Ten Commandments in public places.

Believe it or not, a familiar Ten Commandments case is now heading back to the Supreme Court. The court has spent years making a nearly complete hash out of the public display of religious symbols, and the prospect of watching lawyers and justices engage in more contorted efforts to attach supposedly secular meaning to obviously sectarian objects and texts is not a pleasant one. But the case could provide a window on how committed the Roberts court is to the project that some justices have clearly embraced, that of carving out more space for religion in the public square.

The new/old case is McCreary County v. American Civil Liberties Union of Kentucky, which the Supreme Court last encountered in 2005. Its history is convoluted, which is part of the point. Eleven years ago, officials of two Kentucky counties, McCreary and Pulaski, decided to post framed paper copies of the Ten Commandments on the courthouse walls. Faced with a lawsuit, they retooled the display to make the Commandments part of a bigger collection of documents, most of which happened to be religiously oriented, including the national motto, "In God We Trust," and a statement by Abraham Lincoln that "the Bible is the best gift God has ever given to man."

When this tactic did not satisfy a federal district judge, who ordered the displays removed, the counties tried again. They came up with the "Foundations of American Law and Government" displays, which included the Ten Commandments along with nine other documents, including the lyrics of The Star-Spangled Banner and the texts of the Declaration of Independence and Magna Carta. An explanation informed viewers that "the Ten Commandments have profoundly influenced the formation of Western legal thought and the formation of our country" and have provided "the moral background of the Declaration of Independence."

The federal courts remained unimpressed. The district court's preliminary order to remove the display was upheld by the United States Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit and, over a dissenting opinion by Justice Antonin Scalia, by the Supreme Court. Justice David H. Souter, writing for the 5-to-4 majority, cited a 1980 Supreme Court decision that overturned a Kentucky law requiring a copy of the Ten Commandments to be posted in every public school classroom. In that decision, Stone v. Graham, the court described the Commandments as "an instrument of religion." Justice Souter said the First Amendment's inclusion of the clause prohibiting the "establishment" of religion meant that "the government may not favor one religion over another, or religion over irreligion."

Noting that "reasonable observers have reasonable memories," Justice Souter said an observer of the Foundations display "would probably suspect that the counties were simply reaching for any way to keep a religious document on the walls of courthouses constitutionally required to embody religious neutrality."

That seemed to be that. But what happened next illustrates the tenacity of those who are determined to have those Commandments on the wall. As a procedural matter, the case was only at the preliminary injunction stage when it reached the Supreme Court, with the result that the justices returned it, still alive, to the Federal District Court in London, Ky., for a potential trial. In an effort to bolster their case, the counties passed resolutions in 2007 declaring that the Foundations display was not an attempt to endorse religion. In a 2008 final judgment, Chief Judge Jennifer B. Coffman ruled against the counties. In June, the Court of Appeals affirmed that ruling. Judge Ryan's dissenting opinion also praised Justice Scalia's "powerful and logically compelling" dissent in the 2005 case, and added that he looked forward to the day when "the Supreme Court rediscovers the history and meaning of the words of the religion clauses of the First Amendment."

It's way past time to fix the Senate filibuster rules

After months of debate, Senate Democrats this summer broke a Republican filibuster against a bill to extend unemployment benefits. But the Republicans insisted on applying a technicality in the Senate rules that allowed for 30 more hours of floor time after a successful vote to end debate. As a result, the bill — with its desperately needed and overdue benefits for more than 2 million unemployed Americans — was delayed a few days more.

The Senate, once the place for slow and careful deliberation, has been overtaken by a culture of obstructionism. The filibuster, once rare, is now so common that it has inverted majority rule, allowing the minority party to block, or at least delay, whatever legislation it wants to oppose. Without reform, the filibuster threatens to bring the Senate to a halt.

It is easy to forget that the widespread use of the filibuster is a recent development. From the 1920s to the 1950s, the average was about one vote to end debate, also known as a cloture motion, a year; even in the 1960s, at the height of the civil rights debates, there were only about three a year.

The number of cloture motions jumped to three a month during the partisan battles of the 1990s. But the last decade has seen the filibuster become a regular part of Senate life: there was about one cloture motion a week between 2000 and 2008, and in the current Congress there have been 117 — more than two a week.

Even though there might be several motions for cloture for each filibuster, there has been an increase in the use of what is meant to be the Congressional equivalent of a nuclear weapon.

Filibusters aren't just more numerous; they're more mundane, too. Consider an earlier bill to extend unemployment benefits. It faced two filibusters — despite bipartisan backing and its eventual passage by a 98-0 margin. Or take the nomination of Judge Barbara Milano Keenan to the United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit: she faced a filibuster, even though she was later confirmed 99 to 0.

Part of the problem lies with today's partisan culture, in which blocking the other party takes priority over passing legislation or confirming candidates to key positions. And part of the problem lies with changes in Senate practices during the 1970s, which allowed the minority to filibuster a piece of legislation without holding up other items of business.

But the biggest factor is the nature of the filibuster itself. Senate rules put the onus on the majority for ending a debate.

If the majority leader wants to end a debate, he or she first calls for unanimous consent for cloture, basically a voice vote from all the senators present in the chamber. But if even one member of the filibustering minority is present to object to the motion, the majority leader has to hold a roll call vote. If the majority leader can't round up the necessary 60 votes, the debate continues.

Getting at least 60 senators on the floor several times a week is no mean feat.

True, the filibuster has its benefits: it gives the minority party the power to block hasty legislation and force a debate on what it considers matters of national significance. So how can the Senate reform the filibuster to preserve its usefulness but prevent its abuse?

For starters, the Senate could replace the majority's responsibility to end debate with the minority's responsibility to keep it going. It would work like this: For the first four weeks of debate, the Senate would operate under the old rules, in which the majority has to find enough senators to vote for cloture. Once that time has elapsed, the debate would automatically end unless the minority could assemble 40 senators to continue it.

An even better step would be to return to the old Mr. Smith Goes to Washington model — in which a filibuster means that the Senate has to stop everything and debate around the clock — by allowing a motion requiring 40 votes to continue debate every three hours while the chamber is in continuous session. That way it is the minority that has to grab cots and mattresses and be prepared to take to the floor night and day to keep their filibuster alive.

Under such a rule, a sufficiently passionate minority could still preserve the Senate's traditions and force an extended debate on legislation. But misuse of the filibuster would be a thing of the past.

Happy Labor(less) Day

It's a bit ironic (or maybe oxymoronic) that the one day of the year that's literally named for hard work is really about squeezing as much swimming, barbequing, or just plain old napping on the couch into one three-day weekend as is humanly possible. Not that there's anything wrong with that. We're just suggesting that a name like, "Icantbelivesummerisoveralready Day" or "Inthreemonthsillbeshovelingsnow Day" might be more appropriate. But no matter what you decide to call it, Swensen's Markets can offer you amazing bargains on everything you'll need to make the most of the summer's last big holiday weekend.

Idaho passes New York in milk production race

POCATELLO (AP) — Idaho's dairy industry increased milk production by 5.3 percent in July, a rate that enabled the state to surpass New York as the nation's third leading milk producer.

But that's not all good news for Idaho's dairy farmers.

Industry officials say milk prices are rebounding slowly after suffering significant declines in 2009. Producers say they are fetching prices of $15 per hundredweight, closer to the break-even point and up from the $11 per hundredweight paid in 2009.

Still, state dairy officials are urging caution to producers considering production increases.

Dale Evans, who owns a 400-head dairy, told the Idaho State Journal. "But if we keep producing more milk, prices will go back down."

Figures from the U.S. Department of Agriculture show July milk production in Idaho totaled 1.12 billion pounds, up 5.2 percent from July 2009 and a four percent increase compared to June 2010.

The average number of milk cows in Idaho during July was 567,000, an increase of 17,000 from July 2009 and up 5,000 from June.

Idaho's volume topped New York, which produced 1.1 billion pounds in July. Idaho still trails industry leader California, at 3.4 billion pounds for July and Wisconsin, which produced 2.2 billion pounds.

"That 5 percent increase is a huge number and I think that took a lot of people by surprise," said Bob Naerebout, executive director of the Idaho Dairymen's Association. "It's great that our dairy producers are producing a lot of milk, but we have to be very cautious."

For the last several years, Idaho and New York have frequently exchanged bragging rights as the nation's third leading milk producing state. But with production on the rise in Idaho, and the state's No. 3 ranking in cheese production, Naerebout claims Idaho is poised to keep its spot ahead of New York.

About 44 million gallons of Idaho's milk is processed into fluid milk for drinking, but the majority — about 770 million pounds — is used to make cheese.

Stock investors are bracing for another ugly September

By Dave Carpenter
Associated Press writer

CHICAGO — The economy is weakening, home sales are plunging and stocks are on a long slide. Now comes something even scarier for investors — the beginning of what is traditionally the worst month in the market.

Could stocks be headed for another September swoon?

"If history is any guide, for it's never gospel, we may be in for another rough ride," says Sam Stovall, chief investment strategist at Standard & Poor's.

Mutual fund managers tend to clean house after Labor Day, taking profits on winning stocks and weeding out portfolios before putting out the rosier possible end-of-quarter reports for their clients.

Workers coming back from summer breaks are also inclined to sell stocks as they get their financial affairs in order. Any festering issues with the economy or stocks during the summer, when trading volume is light, tend to get put off until fall.

The result: September is usually a dog of a month for the market. It typically starts with solid market increases, then tails off, says Jeffrey Hirsch, editor-in-chief of the Stock Trader's Almanac.

"There's just a general selling bias in the month of September," he says.

Four times in the past decade alone, the S&P 500 shed at least 5 percent in September. The average September decline since 1950 is 0.6 percent, according to the Stock Trader's Almanac. February is the next worst, with an average 0.2 percent loss, and December and November are the best, averaging 1.6 percent gains.

Of course, investors haven't forgotten that the financial world collapsed in September just two years ago. And the Sept. 11 attacks, which delivered a devastating blow to the stock market, remain a painful memory.

This year, there's a lot to frown about. The S&P 500 index is down 14 percent from its high in April, and was down 5 percent for the month of August.

Americans' economic confidence ticks up slightly

By Anne D'Innocenzo
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — Americans' confidence in the economy improved slightly in August from July, but they're still roughly as gloomy as a year ago.

The downbeat sentiment underscores the challenges ahead for the increasingly shaky recovery and for retailers, which are grappling with a weak start to back-to-school shopping. Worries are even growing about the critical holiday shopping season.

The Conference Board, a private research group, said Tuesday that its Consumer Confidence Index rose to 53.5 from a revised 51.0 in July. Economists surveyed by Thomson Reuters had expected 50.5. The increase comes after two straight months of declines.

"The consumer is still struggling, and the prospects look like more of the same," said Ken Perkins, president of research firm RetailMetrics.

An index of 90 or more indicates a healthy economy. That level hasn't been approached since the recession began in December 2007. The index — which measures how Americans feel about business conditions, the job market and the next six months — had been recovering fitfully since hitting an all-time low of 25.3 in February 2009.

In August 2009, the index stood at 54.5, only a point higher than now. Since then, it has mostly hovered in a tight range between the mid-40s and the high 50s.

May 2010 proved to be the only exception, at 62.7 — still weak.

Moreover, there doesn't seem to be any catalyst in sight to get them to feel better any time soon. Home sales are plunging, and consumers are saving more and spending less as the unemployment rate remains stuck at almost 10 percent, all contributing to weak confidence.

Shoppers are increasingly waiting for the best deals and buying only fashions that they can wear right away. Perkins estimates that August retail sales were at best slightly better than last year, which was weak. Major retailers report August revenue figures Thursday.

Economists watch confidence closely because consumer spending accounts for about 70 percent of U.S. economic activity and is critical to a strong rebound. But worries are rising the economy is growing too slowly to support sustained job growth. Some are concerned it could fall back into a recession.

"The comfort ... is that confidence did not fall further," Paul Dales, U.S. Economist at Capital Economics, said in a statement. "But there are few signs that households will ramp up their spending. High unemployment, widespread negative housing equity and low share prices are keeping households on the sidelines."

Investors seized on the bigger than-expected increase. The Dow Jones See CONFIDENCE, Business 2

Fed officials discussed further stimulus steps

By Martin Crutsinger
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Federal Reserve officials signaled at their August meeting that they would consider going beyond a modest program to purchase government debt if necessary to boost the economy.

Minutes of the Fed's discussions from the Aug. 10 meeting show the central bank recognized that the economy could need further stimulus beyond the debt purchases. Those are intended to lower interest rates on a range of consumer and business loans.

The minutes, which were released Tuesday, did not spell out what new steps might be taken. But they do indicate that the officials focused attention on the modest move the Fed did take at the meeting, which would invest a small amount of proceeds from its huge mortgage bond portfolio in Treasury securities.

Some Fed officials argued that reinvesting proceeds from the Fed's holdings of mortgage securities "could send an inappropriate signal to investors about the committee's readiness to resume large-scale asset purchases," the minutes said.

One member objected and said making the change could complicate the Fed's eventual exit from its period of aggressive credit easing, which began more than two years ago as the country plunged into a deep recession.

The minutes are not verbatim and do not identify speakers but analysts said they provided an indication that the central bank engaged in an extensive debate over the issue before agreeing to provide nearly unanimous support for Federal Reserve Chairman Ben Bernanke.

In the end, the Federal Open Market Committee, the panel of Fed board members and regional bank presidents who set interest rates, voted 9-1 to support the modest easing move. The only dissent came from Kansas City Federal Reserve Bank President Thomas Hoenig.

YESTERDAY ON WALL STREET

The Dow rose 4.99, or 0.05 percent, to close at 10,014.72. Broader indexes were mixed. The Standard & Poor's 500 index edged up 0.41, or 0.04 percent, to 1,049.33. The Nasdaq composite index fell 5.94, or 0.3 percent, to 2,114.03. Other market indicators also had dismal performances in August, having surged ahead in July on a series of strong earnings reports. The Dow lost 4.3 percent in August, while the Nasdaq lost 6.2 percent. Rising stocks outpaced falling ones by about 4 to 3 on the New York Stock Exchange, where consolidated volume was low at 4.5 billion shares. Volume has been very light in recent days, which can exaggerate movements in the market. Treasury prices rose, sending their yields lower, as cautious investors put money back into bonds. The yield on the 10-year Treasury note, which helps set interest rates on mortgages and other kinds of loans, fell to 2.47 percent from 2.53 percent late Monday. Overseas, Japanese stocks were hammered as the yen hovers near a 15-year high against the dollar.

Auto sales may reach 28-year low for August

By Keith Naughton and Tim Higgins
 Bloomberg News

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. – Auto sales in August probably were the slowest for the month in 28 years as model-year closeout deals failed to entice consumers concerned the economy is worsening and they may lose their jobs. Industrywide deliveries, to be released today, may have reached an annualized rate of 11.6 million vehicles this month, the average of eight analysts' estimates compiled by Bloomberg. That would be the slowest August since 1982, according to researcher Ward's AutoInfoBank. The rate would be 18 percent below last year's 14.2 million pace, when the government's "cash for clunkers" incentive program boosted sales. "Home sales are way down, the stock market is

Hurricane Earl could force U.S. evacuations ahead of Labor Day

By Emery P. Dalesio Associated Press writer

RALEIGH, N.C. — A powerful Hurricane Earl threatened to sideswipe much of the East Coast just ahead of Labor Day, worrying countless vacationers who planned to spend the traditional last week of summer at the beach.

remain over the open ocean before turning north and running parallel to the East Coast, bringing high winds and heavy rain to North Carolina's Outer Banks by late Thursday or early Friday. From there, forecasters said, it could curve away from the coast somewhat as it makes its way north, perhaps hitting Massachusetts' Cape Cod and the Maine shoreline on Friday night and Saturday.

"My guests are calling and they don't know what to do and I don't know what to tell them," said Dave Dawson, owner of the oceanfront Cape Hatteras Motel in Buxton, N.C.

Forecasters cautioned that it was still too early to tell how close Earl might come to land. But not since Hurricane Bob in 1991 has such a powerful storm had such a large swath of the East Coast in its sights, said Dennis Feltgen, spokesman for the National Hurricane Center.

"A slight shift of that track to the west is going to impact a great deal of real estate with potential hurricane-force winds," Feltgen said.

rents up and down the coast through the Labor Day weekend, a prime time for beach vacations, forecasters said.

The approaching storm troubled many East Coast beach towns that had hoped to capitalize on the BP oil spill and draw visitors who normally vacation on the Gulf Coast.

Where to find artisan bread

Whether you're looking for crunchy, soft, airy, sweet or hearty, this list of where to buy locally baked artisan bread in south-central Idaho will help. This isn't a comprehensive list, but we trust this trail of crumbs will get you started on finding the perfect loaf for your table.

Twin Falls

• Local Dish
788 Falls Ave.
Among the loaves: Serenity's Treasures gluten-free bread, $5 per loaf.

• Magic Valley Chalet
1511 Fillmore St.
Among the loaves: Albion School House Bakery's pumpkin and honey wheat breads, both $4.50 per loaf. (The ovens are currently down, but check back soon.) Bakery owner Chad Manderscheid will soon produce both traditional and gluten-free breads in a brick oven, and will take custom orders.

• Twin Falls Farmers Market
North College Road, across from the College of Southern Idaho's Expo building; 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturdays through mid-October.

Among the loaves: Whole-wheat bread, Iranian bread and honey oatmeal from various vendors like Hagerman Manna. Offerings change week by week, so check often.

• Downtown Mid-Week Market

Vincent Carpenter, pastry chef at Rasberry's Catering in Ketchum, slices a line in a baguette. Carpenter, who baked bread for Sun Valley Resort before coming to Rasberry's, likes baguettes because of their complexity of preparation.

Southern Idaho bakers talk artisan bread

By Melissa Davlin
Times-News writer

What makes an artisan loaf? Is it the time the baker puts into it? The ingredients used? The crunch of the crust and soft bite of the flesh?

There is no standard definition, but bakers agree that artisan bread is made in small batches with more time and care than sliced, packaged breads flavored with high fructose corn syrup.

Vincent Carpenter, pastry chef at Rasberry's Catering in Ketchum, focuses on the time put into a loaf. A dough might sit for three days, fermenting and developing that unmistakable tang.

Do those three days make a difference to the bread buyer? Absolutely. And south-central Idaho bakers make those crusty rustics and soft French loaves available to discerning Magic Valley shoppers — people who see more to bread than soup sides and sandwich material.

Carpenter makes artisan breads like baguettes, ciabatta and brioche for the restaurant and individual customers. Each bread requires a different preparation.

A bread's flavor comes from compounds that yeasts produce, like carbon dioxide and ethyl alcohol, Carpenter said.

"It's a biological process," he said. "The science behind it is the more time you have, the more organic acids are produced. Flavor profiles are enhanced."

Artisan baking is not for the impatient. To get a light, delicate, complex loaf, a baker can't take any shortcuts. A sourdough can take three days to rest, not counting the 10 days to get the starter going, Carpenter said.

Carpenter taps a loaf of bread, listening for a hollow sound to indicate it's done.

Carpenter snipped this dough into ears. He and other south-central Idaho bakers provide artisan breads for stores, restaurants and farmers markets.

A handcrafted loaf doesn't have to be super fancy to hit the spot. Don Friel of Wendell sells hearty wheat bread and soft zucchini bread at farmers markets throughout Magic Valley. The breads are made from wheat he grinds into flour himself. (Until recently, that is, when his grinder broke.) The fresh-ground flour results in a fresher-tasting bread, he said. "It's been pretty successful for us," Friel said.

Chad Manderscheid, owner of Albion Bed and Breakfast, has been baking on and off for 35 years. He emphasizes quality, locally sourced ingredients and freshness.

That freshness sets his loaves apart from bagged, store-bought bread, which doesn't arrive at the store until it is a couple of days old and can sit on the shelf for another week, he said. Manderscheid's bread is made from scratch and rotated daily.

BAKE YOUR OWN

Inspired by the region's artisan bakers? Learn to bake your own sourdough bread with pastry chef Vincent Carpenter of Rasberry's Catering in a class set for 7-9 p.m. Oct. 11 at Rudy's — A Cook's Paradise, 147 Main Ave. W. in Twin Falls. Cost is $45. The class menu: Sour Dough Culture, Country Sour Dough, Blue Cheese and Toasted Walnut, Chocolate Cherry Sour Dough. Register: 733-5477

"It's just a different quality of product," said Manderscheid, whose business has been open for almost a year. He is aiming to bake the best loaves of bread in Idaho, he said.

"Then I'm going for the planet," he said.

Carpenter sees a lot of customers asking for different grains. Customers want to try spelt or kamut baked into their breads.

"Those are the main requests that I get," he said.

No matter the type of bread or variety of grain, preparation is paramount. That, said Carpenter, really sets hand-made loaves apart.

"It should hit your tongue and kind of just feel good," he said. "Like a massage for your tongue."

Any grill can produce great barbecue

By Jim Romanoff
For The Associated Press

Making mouthwatering smoked and barbecued meats in your backyard is easy, so long as you don't mind being a control freak.

Tender, flavorful barbecue is all about slow cooking at low temperatures. That's why it is essential that you be able to carefully control the heat in your grill or smoker. The good news is that no matter what equipment you have, it's possible to get great barbecue.

The trick is knowing how to use your grill for indirect cooking, which is just a fancy term for not cooking directly over a flame or bed of coals. By cooking to the side of the heat source, the meat cooks more slowly and won't burn. How you do that depends on the type of grill you have. Here are some tips on making the most of what you have.

• Classic charcoal grills with a cover, such as a Weber kettle, work well when you use the special baskets they make to keep the coals contained to one or both sides of the grill. This allows you considerable control over the temperature at which you cook the meat.

It also helps to place a pan filled with liquid (water, wine, cider, beer, whatever) under the meat to add moisture. Vents at the top and bottom of the grill will need to be adjusted often, and fresh coals added in order to maintain a constant temperature.

• Cookers that are more specifically designed for barbecue are made by companies such as Brinkmann. They offer vertical models that have a heat source at the bottom with a water pan above it, as well as horizontal designs that have separate sections for the coals and the food (which reduces drying). Both varieties will produce tender results, but still need coals added to them regularly and must have the vents monitored to keep the temperature stable.

• One of the most efficient (and expensive) styles is a ceramic, barrel-shaped grill/smoker, such as The Big Green Egg. These have a vent at the bottom along with a chimney on the top that allow them to burn coals extremely efficiently and maintain steady temperatures over a long period of time with little or no adjustment. The ceramic materials these cookers are made of hold plenty of moisture, which helps keep meats from drying out.

• But if ease is essential, consider a common gas grill. Some barbecue purists may scoff, but gas grills have advantages for making good barbecue. They hold their temperature well without any adjustments, have separate burners to facilitate indirect cooking, and gas heat is less drying.

The downside of gas is that you miss out on the flavor that charcoal adds to the meat, though you can get decent smoke by putting wet wood chips in a foil packet or a smoker box directly on the heat source.

This chili- and coffee-rubbed smoked chuck roast came out equally moist and tender on a gas grill and a Big Green Egg.

The flavor was undeniably more complex from the ceramic cooker, but the intense, sweet flavors of the rich coffee and toasted chili-based rub made the beef a treat even when cooked with gas.

CHILI- AND COFFEE-RUBBED SMOKED CHUCK ROAST

Start to finish: 5 to 7 hours (15 minutes active) plus at least 1 hour marinating. Servings: 6 to 8.

- 1 dried whole Anaheim or New Mexico chili
- 1 dried whole ancho chili
- 2 tablespoons whole cumin seeds
- 3 tablespoons red wine vinegar
- 1 tablespoon brown sugar
- 2 teaspoons garlic powder
- 2 teaspoons instant espresso coffee powder
- 1 teaspoon kosher salt
- 1/2 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1/4 cup water
- 4-pound chuck roast
- 1 cup apple, hickory or oak chips, soaked in water for at least 30 minutes

In a cast-iron skillet over medium heat, toast both chilies until fragrant, about 1 minute per side. Transfer to a cutting board.

Add the cumin seeds to the skillet and toast, stirring constantly, until fragrant, 60 to 90 seconds. Transfer the seeds to a blender or processor. Add the vinegar, brown sugar, garlic powder, espresso powder, salt, pepper and water. Process to a smooth paste, adding water, a teaspoon at a time, if necessary.

Place the chuck roast in a large bowl or baking dish and coat completely with the chili paste. Cover and refrigerate for at least 1 hour or up to 12 hours. Remove from the refrigerator and let sit at room temperature for 30 minutes before cooking.

Meanwhile, light a smoker, charcoal grill or gas grill and prepare for indirect cooking. Place a drip pan below the cooking grates and stabilize the temperature at around 250 degrees.

Drain the wood chips and scatter them over the coals (or place them in a smoker box and set over the heat source in a gas grill or electric smoker).

Place the chuck roast on the cooking grate over the drip pan. Cover the grill or smoker and cook, maintaining the temperature at 250 F, until an instant thermometer registers 180 F at the center of the roast, about 3 to 4 hours.

Wrap the roast tightly in heavy duty foil and cook (with the grill or smoker covered) until fork tender and an instant thermometer registers 200 F to 205 F, about another 1 to 2 hours. Remove the roast from the heat and let rest, in the foil, for 30 minutes.

To serve, shred the meat using forks or slice across the grain.

New harvest festival celebrates Idaho's culinary bounty

Times-News

The first Sun Valley Harvest Festival, a Sept. 24-26 celebration of Idaho's culinary bounty, will focus on regional sustainable foods, wines, spirits and craft beers. It will feature cooking demonstrations and chef presentations, as well as tastings, an eco-culinary trade show, a restaurant walk, chef's dinners and music.

Starting at noon Sept. 24 will be cooking demonstrations, the Harvest Market Place, the Harvest Tasting Room, and the Harvest Wine Cellar at Carol's Dollar Mountain Lodge in Sun Valley. That evening, Ketchum will be the center of the Harvest Restaurant Walk, featuring 14 Ketchum restaurants offering small tastes of Idaho food and wine.

The following morning will start with the 32nd annual Baldy Hill Climb, then Carol's Dollar Lodge for more chef demonstrations, The Harvest Marketplace and tastings. The Idaho Harvest Beer Garden opens at noon at the new Ketchum

City Plaza, covered in fresh grass for the event. At 4 p.m. Sept. 25, Tom Nickel of the Roosevelt Bar and Grill will host "Rubs, Sauces, and Marinades - Taking your Outdoor Grilling to a New Level." Then at 6 p.m. it's the Idaho Martini and Caviar Party at Sego's Restaurant.

These chefs will be featured in the festival: John Turene of Sustainable Food Systems Inc., Wallingford, Conn.; Dustan Bristol of Brick 29, Nampa; Scott Mason of Ketchum Grill; Cristina Cook of Cristina's Restaurant, Ketchum; Randy

King of Sysco Sustainable Foods, Boise; Vaughn Hobbs of Viking, Salt Lake City; Taite Pearson of SEGO Restaurant, Ketchum; Kristi and Chris Preston of The Chocolate Bar, Boise; Steve Rhodes and Richard Lang of Cafe Vicino, Boise; Molly Brown of Glow Live Foods, Ketchum; and Tom Nichols of The Roosevelt Tavern, Ketchum. Also among the speakers will be Alan Minskoff and Paul Hosefros, authors of "Idaho Wine Country," Boise. Details: www.sunvalley-harvestfestival.com.

More popsicle flavors than you can shake a stick at

The Washington Post

Could popsicles finally be the food trend that pushes cupcakes off their throne?

They have all the right ingredients: A childhood favorite? Check. Reinvented for grown-up tastes? Check. (Think strawberry-balsamic instead of strawberries and cream.) Portion control? Check.

They're also everywhere. There is La Newyorkina and People's Pops in New York; Meltdown Popsicles in New Orleans; and Sol Pops, with flavors such as sugar snap pea with orange, in Portland, Ore. In the Washington area, the Dairy Godmother in Alexandria, Va., is turning out dozens of seasonal flavors such as apricot-saffron-pistachio, damson plum with toasted almond, and sour cherry with cardamom. Pleasant Pops, a start-up that sells at the Mount Pleasant (D.C.) Farmers Market, is building a portfolio that already includes peach-ginger and watermelon-cucumber.

Many artisan popsicle makers are inspired by paletas, Mexican ice pops often sold from street carts, that come in a rainbow of flavors: strawberry, mango, lime, cucumber and watermelon. For Liz Davis, founder of the Dairy Godmother, the inspiration was a high-tech popsicle machine.

She first saw it in January 2007 while attending an ice cream course at Penn State. (January is to ice cream makers what August is to the rest of Americans.) Made in Brazil, it looks like a small Jacuzzi bathtub, but instead of getting hot, it gets very, very cold. It holds a mixture of water and glycol, essentially food-grade antifreeze, which cools to 13 degrees below zero and can make a batch of 88 in about eight minutes. The resulting pops are smooth and shiny, without the ice crystals that are the bane of homemade versions. "I was completely captivated," Davis remembers.

It took several years for Davis to find one of the $7,000 machines and import it to the United States. A veteran restaurant pastry chef before she opened her shop in 2001, Davis, 51, had already tackled frozen custard, sorbet and chocolate-dipped truffles. In early July, she was at last able to begin producing popsicles — or, as she likes to say, crossing a "new frozen frontier."

One of the benefits of making popsicles, Davis says, is that she can freeze crunchy surprises inside them, something that's harder to do with ice cream or sorbet that must be churned. For example, she has long made a buttermilk sherbet, a take on lemon- and nutmeg-scented buttermilk pie. For the popsicle version, Davis plans to use a similar base. But she will add bits of chopped up pie crust. Already, she's adding whole berries, candied hibiscus and chiffonade of herbs such as mint or basil to fruit pops. The fast freezing means nothing gets mushy or loses its flavor.

PLUM WITH HONEY AND CARDAMOM POPSICLES

Makes 8 popsicles (scant half-cup capacity). The taste of cardamom in these tart and refreshing popsicles is more pronounced after the mixture has been thoroughly chilled. Adapted from Liz Davis of the Dairy Godmother.

1 1/4 pounds plums, preferably damson
Water, as needed
Sugar (optional)
4 whole green cardamom pods (may substitute 1/2 teaspoon ground cardamom)
1/2 cup honey

Combine the plums and about 1/2 cup of water in a large, heavy-bottomed saucepan over medium heat. Cover and cook for 10 to 15 minutes, until the plums have softened. Add water as needed to prevent scorching. Transfer to a bowl; when the plums are cool enough to handle, discard the pits. Transfer the fruit to the blender and puree until smooth. Taste; if the plums are quite tart, add a tablespoon or two of sugar if desired. The yield should be 2 cups; if you fall short, add the syrupy cooking water as needed. Transfer to a container with a tight-fitting lid.

Combine 1 cup of water and the cardamom pods in a small saucepan over high heat; bring to a boil, then turn off the heat and let steep for at least 1 hour. Discard the pods.

Add the honey to the cardamom water and stir to dissolve, then add the mixture to the plum puree; mix well. Cover and refrigerate for about 2 hours, until thoroughly chilled, then pour into popsicle molds of your choice and freeze for about 5 hours, until firm.

To serve, dip the molds briefly into lukewarm water so the popsicles release easily.

Great burgers demand equally great buns

By Alison Ladman
For The Associated Press

The best hamburger buns have a subtle flavor that doesn't overpower the burger, as well as enough heft to stand up to numerous toppings and condiments. These rolls do just that.

This recipe combines a hearty white bread with deep sourdough flavor and tender potato texture. These rolls can handle your favorite burger recipe with ease.

This simplified sourdough is very forgiving. If you don't have the time to wait the full 8 hours, the recipe will still work, it just won't have quite the same flavor. And if you need more time, just stick it in the refrigerator, then bring it back to room temperature when you are ready to proceed with the recipe.

POTATO SOURDOUGH BUNS

Start to finish: 14 hours (30 minutes active). Makes 12 rolls.

For the starter:

12-ounce baking potato
1 1/2 cups water
1 teaspoon instant yeast
1 cup all-purpose flour

For the rolls:

1/2 cup milk
1 egg
2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon salt
4 to 4 1/2 cups bread flour

To prepare the starter, microwave the potato on high for 5 minutes. Set aside until cool enough to handle, then peel the potato.

In a medium bowl, combine the water and the yeast. Add the flour and the cooled potato, mashing them together until they are well combined.

Loosely cover the bowl and allow to sit unrefrigerated for at least 8 hours and up to 24 hours.

When ready to proceed, in a large bowl or in the bowl of a stand mixer, combine the starter and all of the roll ingredients. Mix on low speed or with a wooden spoon until the dough comes together. The dough should be very soft and slightly sticky. If needed, add a little more flour.

Knead for 5 minutes, or until the dough becomes smooth and elastic.

Cover and let rise for 1 hour, or until doubled in size.

Heat the oven to 350 degrees.

Shape the dough into 12 balls (about 4 ounces each). Flatten each roll with the palm of your hand until they measure about 3 inches across. Place the rolls on a baking sheet, cover with a cloth and let rise until puffy, about 45 minutes.

Sprinkle the tops of the rolls lightly with flour. With a sharp knife, score 2 lines in the top of each.

Bake for 15 to 20 minutes, or until golden brown on the top and bottom.

Makes 12 popsicles. These frozen treats have bold, knockout flavor and aroma. Adapted from Liz Davis of the Dairy Godmother.

1 very ripe whole pineapple (about 3 pounds)

1 cup sugar, plus more for grilling the pineapple

1 1/2 teaspoons pink peppercorns

1 cup water
3 cups unsweetened pineapple juice

Freshly squeezed juice from 1/2 lemon (about 2 tablespoons)

Prepare the grill for direct heat. If using a gas grill, preheat to medium-high (450 degrees). If using a charcoal grill, light the charcoal or wood briquettes; when the briquettes are ready, distribute them evenly under the cooking area. For a medium-hot fire, you should be able to hold your hand about 6 inches above the coals for about 4 or 5 seconds. Lightly coat a grill rack with oil and place it on the grill.

Meanwhile, trim off the pineapple top and skin. Cut the fruit in half lengthwise and coat the cut sides lightly with sugar. Place on the grill cut sides down and cook for about 15 minutes, turning, until there is charring and the fruit has softened and cooked through. Transfer to a plate to cool, then cut out and discard the core from each half. Cut away any excessively charred areas of fruit. (The char is supposed to deliver a slightly smoky flavor.)

Transfer the fruit to a blender and add the pink peppercorns. Puree until smooth.

Combine the cup of sugar and the water in a microwave-safe container. Microwave on high as needed to dissolve the sugar. Transfer to a large container with a tight-fitting lid. Add the pineapple juice, lemon juice and the grilled pineapple puree; mix well. Cover and refrigerate for 1 hour, until thoroughly chilled, then pour into popsicle molds of your choice. Freeze until firm.

To serve, dip the molds briefly into lukewarm water so the popsicles release easily.

POPSICLE MOLDS AND MAKERS

The Zoku Quick Pop Maker ($50, www.zokuhome.com and Williams-Sonoma stores) operates on the same principle as most ice cream makers: You freeze the base in advance (or store it in your freezer), and after you take it out, the device stays cold enough to make the pops in a flash.

If the machine is properly chilled (for at least 24 hours at zero degrees), the popsicle liquid solidifies in several minutes, so quickly that you can watch it happen.

The pop sticks are etched with grooves that help the liquid adhere to them, and a special tool helps you easily loosen and remove them.

Half-cup Ice Pop Maker molds we purchased at Bed Bath Beyond (Progressive; $2.99) have plastic handles/sticks, and they proved tricky when we tried to dislodge Pudding Pops.

A set of Frozen Pop Rocket Molds from Sur La Table ($12) worked well, with or without the sticks inserted.

PUDDING POPS

Makes 16 popsicles (half-cup capacity). The smooth, chocolaty pudding used to make these pops is great to eat on its own, not frozen — just in case you run out of popsicle molds. From Tiffany MacIsaac, pastry chef at Birch Barley in Washington.

3 cups whole milk
3 cups heavy cream
3 large eggs
1 1/2 cups sugar
1/4 cup plus 2 tablespoons unsweetened cocoa powder
1/4 cup plus 2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 tablespoon unsalted butter, at room temperature
9 ounces dark (bittersweet) chocolate, finely chopped
1 to 1 1/2 teaspoon salt

Have 8 or 16 half-cup-capacity popsicle molds at hand.

Combine the milk, cream and eggs in a large saucepan and whisk until smooth. Place over medium heat.

Combine the sugar, cocoa and cornstarch in a bowl, then whisk the mixture into the saucepan. Once bubbles start to form at the edges, cook for about 7 minutes, stirring often to prevent scorching (cornstarch sinks to the bottom and can burn easily). The mixture will form a shiny, soft pudding. Remove from the heat.

Whisk in the butter and then the chocolate, mixing until well incorporated and smooth. Add salt to taste; mix well. Strain through a fine-mesh strainer into a bowl, pushing it through with a flexible spatula. The pudding should be smooth; the yield should be about 8 cups. Press plastic wrap directly onto the surface to prevent a skin from forming. Refrigerate for about 3 hours, until completely chilled.

At this point you can spoon the pudding into popsicle molds and freeze until fully set. If you're working with 8 molds, repeat the process after the pops have frozen.

To unmold, run the molds briefly under warm water so the pudding pops dislodge easily. Serve immediately, or return to the freezer.

Variation: For an optional finishing touch, melt dark (semisweet or bittersweet) chocolate in a bowl set over, but not touching, barely simmering water in a medium saucepan over medium-low heat. Stir until smooth, and remove from the heat. Dip each frozen pudding pop into the chocolate, gently shaking off any excess. The chocolate coating should set fairly quickly because the pop is so cold.

APRICOT-ELDERFLOWER POPSICLES

Makes 6 popsicles. Delightfully clean-tasting and tart, with a hint of sweetness. Although the simple syrup is listed as optional, our tester thought this recipe worked best with the addition of 3/4 cup. From Tiffany MacIsaac, pastry chef at Birch Barley.

15 ripe apricots, cut in half and pitted
Water
St-Germain elderflower liqueur
3/4 cup simple syrup or as needed (optional)

Preheat the oven to 325 degrees. Place the apricot halves cut sides down on 1 or 2 large rimmed baking sheets. Bake for 15 to 25 minutes, until softened; the time will depend on the ripeness of the fruit.

If it's easy to do, peel off and discard the skins. Transfer the warm apricot halves to a blender and puree until smooth. Add just enough water to loosen the puree a bit. Taste for the desired strength of apricot flavor. (Don't worry about using too much water.)

Strain the apricot puree, discarding any solids. Add the liqueur and simple syrup to taste.

Pour into molds of your choice and freeze until firm.

To serve, dip the molds briefly into lukewarm water so the popsicles release easily.

Note: This popsicle has a fair amount of sweetness, but if desired, add simple syrup to taste. To make simple syrup, combine 1/2 cup of sugar and 1/2 cup of water in a small saucepan over medium heat, stirring until the sugar dissolves. Bring to a slow rolling boil, then reduce the heat to medium-low and cook for 5 minutes. Transfer to a heatproof container and let cool to room temperature.

TODD THRASHER'S BOMB POPS

Makes 6 to 8 popsicles. Three layers, all great flavors. Rocket-shaped popsicle molds are available at Sur La Table. From Todd Thrasher of Restaurant Eve and PX Lounge in Alexandria, Va.

For the raspberry layer:

1/2 cup water
1/4 cup sugar
1/2 cup packed mint leaves (from 10 stems)
1 cup fresh raspberries
1 1/4 ounces vodka

For the lemonade layer:

1/2 cup water
1/2 cup sugar
2 tablespoons fresh rosemary
1/2 cup freshly squeezed lemon juice (from 3 large lemons)
1 1/2 to 2 cups cold water
1 1/4 ounces nonsmoky silver tequila, such as Patron or Don Julio

For the blueberry layer:

1/2 cup water
1/4 cup sugar

Get in the BBQ spirit with booze-based marinades

By Michelle Locke
For The Associated Press

NAPA, Calif. — What's Iron Chef Masaharu Morimoto's barbecue secret ingredient? A sake-spiked marinade, of course.

Like many other chefs looking to add a little thrill to the grill, Morimoto heads to the liquor cabinet. Because rum, tequila and other liquors all do a fine job of getting meat ready to face the fire.

As Elizabeth Karmel, known for her grill skills, puts it: Never marinate your food in something you wouldn't drink.

"I cook a lot with booze. It makes everything taste better and really gives food a fabulous depth of flavor," said Karmel, executive chef of Hill Country Barbecue Market and the soon-to-open Hill Country Chicken, both in New York City. "Food is so much about fun and who wouldn't want a tequila sunrise marinated chicken, right? And so many of the flavors in a tequila sunrise cocktail are the same flavors that we would use in, for example, a marinade."

Morimoto, who appears on the Food Network's "Iron Chef America," (he also was a star of the original Japanese "Iron Chef" show) demonstrated his techniques recently at his new restaurant on the Napa riverfront.

He sprinkled sake over pork loin, stabbing the pearly pink meat with chopsticks and then immersing it in a marinade including mirin, a type of rice cooking wine, and sake.

A man of few words, Morimoto cooked in silence. But through a written translation, he explained that using sake is a tip commonly shared by yakitori chefs. (Yakitori is a dish of grilled chicken kabobs.)

He explained that Asian liquors work well with typical seasonings, including salt and pepper, soy sauce, teriyaki sauce and barbecue sauce.

So how do you match liquor with meat? Karmel usually uses lighter alcohols and citrus flavors with white meats and more robust alcohols and flavors with darker meats.

"But that said, one of my favorite marinades is a Jack Daniels and coke marinade that I use on a pork chop," she said.

Other flavors she likes are vodka-based marinades for fish, pork, beef or even grilled fruit, and rum-based soaks for grilled fruits, summer veggies, shellfish, tuna, chicken or pork.

And don't worry, the alcohol cooks away in the heat. This also means that when you're done you can pair the dish with whatever you like, including wine.

Michael Paley, chef of Proof on Main in Louisville, Ky., takes a locavore approach to liquor. He brines pork loin overnight in a bourbon-based brine.

Being in Louisville, "we're fortunate to be surrounded by some of the best bourbon producers in the world," he said. Bourbon makes a good marinade base "because it complements so many different flavors and ingredients, especially honey and brown sugar."

You don't want to use top-shelf booze for the marinade, of course. Save that for what you pour for yourself.

Some recipes to try:

BAHAMA MAMA MARINADE

From Karmel's book "Soaked, Slathered and Seasoned." Makes 3 1/4 cups. Use it for soaking fruit, summer vegetables, shellfish, tuna, chicken or pork.

In a small, nonreactive bowl, whisk together the juice and zest of 1 large lemon, 1 cup fresh orange juice, the zest of 1 orange, 1 cup pineapple juice, 1/2 cup dark rum, 1/4 cup coconut rum, 3 tablespoons cherry kirsch or maraschino cherry juice, 2 tablespoons grenadine, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 teaspoon fine-grain sea salt and 1/4 cup almond or extra-virgin olive oil. Mix until well blended.

SAIKYO YAN RACK OF PORK RIBS

From Morimoto.

Combine 2 cups of saikyo miso, 1/2 cup soy sauce, 1/2 cup sake, 1/2 cup mirin. Use to marinate a 6- to 8-pound rack of pork ribs overnight in the refrigerator. Wipe dry and season with salt and pepper. Grill, cooking to desired temperature.

Use either cooked or raw tomatoes for this gazpacho, leaving you with a great robust flavor no matter which you choose.

Cooked or raw, tomatoes pack nutritional punch

By Jim Romanoff
For The Associated Press

Conventional wisdom says that cooking vegetables tends to diminish their nutritional prowess. And while there is some truth to this, it isn't always the case.

Cooking tomatoes does diminish their stores of vitamin C, but it also concentrates other nutrients, such as lycopene (found in red tomatoes), a powerful antioxidant.

Cooking tomatoes also is great from a culinary standpoint. Heat intensifies their flavor and brings out their rich sweetness by caramelizing the natural sugars. This is an especially good technique when working with out-of-season tomatoes.

With this recipe for gazpacho, you can have it either way.

Traditionally, gazpacho is a fresh, pureed tomato soup of Spanish origin. It typically is made with lots of garlic, onions, bell peppers and cucumbers.

This Italian-style take on the refreshing soup is seasoned with fresh basil and oregano along with a liberal shot of balsamic vinegar. The addition of some fresh mozzarella cheese adds the protein and substance to turn the soup into a satisfying lunch or light supper. Serve with grilled slabs of crusty whole-grain bread to complete the meal.

For a cooked version of this recipe, spread the diced tomatoes on a rimmed baking sheet and roast at 400 degrees until they start to brown. Let them cool, then proceed with the recipe.

TOMATO AND ITALIAN HERB GAZPACHO

Start to finish: 1 hour 35 minutes (20 minutes active).
Servings: 6 to 8.

5 cups cored and diced tomatoes (about 4 large)
1 large English cucumber, peeled and diced (about 2 cups)
1 medium red bell pepper, cored, seeded and coarsely chopped
1 medium red onion, chopped
1/3 cup balsamic vinegar
1/4 cup extra-virgin olive oil
1/3 cup chopped fresh basil
2 tablespoons chopped fresh oregano
3 cloves garlic, minced
1/2 teaspoon kosher salt, or to taste
Ground black pepper, to taste
6 ounces very small fresh mozzarella balls

In a large bowl, combine the tomatoes, cucumber, bell pepper, onion, vinegar, oil, basil, oregano, garlic, salt and pepper. Stir to combine. Let the mixture rest at room temperature for 15 minutes.

Using a food processor or blender and working in batches, process the tomato mixture until it is chunky smooth, about 10 to 15 pulses.

Memorable tuna dinner in 20 minutes

By Bonnie S. Benwick
The Washington Post

Hot, sour and salty: That's the distinctive profile of this recipe's no-cook sauce, slathered on fish and broiled until slightly caramelized.

Prepared horseradish is a key component, and in this case, it's better than grating the fresh stuff. I usually keep a jar in the fridge for 6 months or more. Buy it for this dish, and you'll be able to use it for shrimp cocktail sauce later.

The original recipe called for mackerel instead of tuna; any oily, dark-fleshed fish would work well.

Serve with grilled or sauteed vegetables. Adapted from "Fish Tales," by Bart van Olphen and Tom Kime (Kyle Cathie, 2010).

TUNA WITH HORSERADISH, LEMON AND MUSTARD

4 servings

- 1 1/2 tablespoons prepared (white) horseradish
- 7 ounces plain low-fat Greek-style yogurt
- Freshly ground black pepper
- 1 large lemon
- 3/4 teaspoon hot English mustard
- 1 teaspoon red wine vinegar
- Leaves from 3 sprigs flat-leaf parsley, plus more for optional garnish

1 1/2-pound piece tuna
Kosher salt

Position the top oven rack 4 to 6 inches from the broiler element; preheat the broiler. Line a rimmed baking sheet with aluminum foil.

Combine the horseradish and yogurt in a medium bowl; mix well, then add pepper to taste.

Use a grater or zester to zest the lemon (yield: 2 teaspoons), then squeeze the juice (3 to 4 tablespoons); both go into a small bowl. Stir in the mustard and vinegar, then add the lemon-mustard mixture to the horseradish mixture to form a sauce.

Coarsely chop the parsley to yield 1 1/2 tablespoons, then add to the horseradish mixture. Taste; the sauce should be hot, sour and salty. Some of the horseradish heat will mellow as the fish cooks.

Cut the tuna into 4 steaks of equal size. Season them lightly with salt and pepper on both sides, then arrange them on the baking sheet. Use all of the sauce to cover their tops and sides. Broil for 5 or 6 minutes if you like your tuna on the rare side or 8 minutes for fish that is cooked through. The sauce should be slightly caramelized on top.

Use a wide spatula to transfer the tuna to individual plates along with any sauce that might have run onto the baking sheet. Serve hot.

Should bananas turn dark in pudding?

By Kathleen Purvis
McClatchy Newspapers

Q: What can I do to keep bananas from turning dark when I make banana pudding? I have waited for the custard to cool and I have also dipped the slices in lemon juice/water mixture. Both help some, but some slices still turn dark.

A: I tested a number of banana pudding recipes for a story earlier this year and none called for doing anything to keep the bananas from browning. Traditional recipes usually involve topping the pudding with meringue or whipped cream, which seals the top and keeps the bananas from being exposed to air. The custard also helps to protect the bananas.

You might make sure you aren't using bananas that are too ripe. The skins should no longer be green, but also shouldn't have too many flecks of brown.

However, you also shouldn't expect banana pudding to last longer than a day or so. Beyond that, the bananas will start to darken wherever some of the pudding has been spooned out, exposing them to air. You may just need to treat banana pudding as a fleeting pleasure and plan accordingly.

Source: Unlikely that 2 men plotting attack

The FBI probe of two men arrested in Amsterdam after suspicious items turned up in one of the men's luggage is finding they were probably not on a test run for a future terror attack, a U.S. official said Tuesday, casting doubt on earlier suggestions even as Dutch authorities held the pair on suspicion of conspiring to commit a terrorist act.

The U.S. does not expect to charge the men, a law enforcement official said. The two men arrested in Amsterdam — both traveling to Yemen — did not know each other and were not traveling together, a U.S. government official said.

The officials spoke to The Associated Press on condition of anonymity to discuss the investigation.

The Amsterdam arrests came at a time of heightened alert less than two weeks before the ninth anniversary of the Sept. 11, 2001 terror attacks. U.S. officials have also been concerned about Americans traveling to Yemen to join al-Qaida.

Before officials began casting doubt on the test run theory, FBI agents were chasing down leads in Detroit, Birmingham, Ala., and Memphis, Tenn., a law enforcement official said.

WISCONSIN

GOP leader jabs at Iraq war surge critics

MILWAUKEE — Congressional leaders who opposed the troop surge in Iraq are now taking credit for it, and President Obama is more worried about ending the war than winning it, House Republican leader John Boehner said Tuesday.

Boehner made his remarks at the American Legion's national convention in Milwaukee hours before Obama was scheduled to deliver an Oval Office speech marking the end of U.S. combat operations in Iraq.

About 50,000 U.S. troops remain in Iraq in a training and backup role, however. All forces are scheduled to withdraw by the end of 2011.

"Today we mark not the defeat those voices anticipated — but progress," Boehner said.

Obama was an early critic of the war, spoke out against it during the U.S. invasion and promised during his campaign to end the conflict.

Boehner, a 10-term congressional veteran from Ohio, could become the House speaker if Republicans take control of the chamber in November's elections. He choked up as he heaped praise on veterans and kept his criticisms vague.

ISRAEL

Palestinian kills 4 Israelis on eve of talks

JERUSALEM — Palestinian gunmen opened fire Tuesday on an Israeli car in the West Bank and killed four passengers on the eve of a new round of Mideast peace talks in Washington. The Islamic militant group Hamas claimed responsibility.

Assailants firing from a passing car riddled the vehicle with bullets as it traveled near Hebron — a volatile city that has been a flash point of violence in the past. Some 500 ultranationalist Jewish settlers live in heavily fortified enclaves in the city amid more than 100,000 Palestinians.

One of the victims was pregnant, said police spokesman Micky Rosenfeld. Israel's national rescue service said the victims were two men and two women, and Israeli media said everyone in the car was killed.

Video broadcast live on Israel TV late Tuesday showed a white Subaru station wagon standing at an angle at the side of a road, its windows shot out and its doors dotted with bullet holes. The car was flanked by army and police vehicles and dozens of soldiers.

The attackers fled and Israeli forces set up roadblocks and carried out searches to try to catch them.

About 3,000 people joined a rally in Gaza to celebrate the attack. Hamas military wing spokesman Abu Obeida was among them and told The Associated Press: "The Qassam Brigades announces its full responsibility for the heroic operation in Hebron."

NEW YORK

Michael Douglas tells Letterman he's optimistic about cancer recovery

NEW YORK — Michael Douglas says he faces an "eight-week struggle" against throat cancer but is optimistic about his chances for recovery.

During an appearance Tuesday on David Letterman's "Late Show," the actor said he had just finished his first week of radiation and chemotherapy. That drew a surprised reaction from Letterman.

"You've never looked better to me, and this proves that you're a tough guy, for God's sakes," the talk-show host said, drawing cheers from the studio audience, according to a CBS news release.

"Let's just say ... I'm pretty lit up right now," Douglas replied.

The disease was diagnosed three weeks ago, he said, although he had complained of a very sore throat earlier this year and had undergone testing that failed to find a cause.

Douglas, 65, who has two children with Catherine Zeta-Jones, said he enjoyed the summer traveling with his family before returning to the doctor. A biopsy found he had late, stage-four cancer, he said.

ILLINOIS

Benefits seen for high-risk women in surgery to remove healthy ovaries

CHICAGO — Surgery to remove healthy ovaries gives a triple benefit to high-risk women: It lowers their threat of breast and ovarian cancer, and boosts their chances of living longer, new research suggests.

The study is the largest to date to find advantages for preventive surgery for women who carry BRCA gene mutations. Women with the faulty genes have a dramatically higher cancer risk than other women — five times greater for breast cancer and at least 10 times greater for ovarian cancer.

The study, appearing in today's Journal of the American Medical Association, found benefits for women with two different BRCA gene variants whether they had previously had breast cancer or not.

The results offer more tailored evidence for women considering ovary removal, a surgery that ends fertility, fast-forwards them into early menopause and may contribute to osteoporosis or heart problems later in life.

"It's really critical to have the best information when making such a profound decision," said senior author Timothy Rebbeck of the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine.

OBITUARIES

Barbara Lee (Vipperman) Weigt

BOISE — Barbara Lee Weigt, 75, of Boise, passed away peacefully at home after a courageous battle with pancreatic cancer Sunday, Aug. 29, 2010, surrounded by her beloved family.

She was born June 11, 1935, in Wendell, Idaho, to her loving parents, LeRoy and Wilma Willard Vipperman. She brought much joy to their lives. She was later joined by four sisters and one brother. She attended grade school, junior high and was in the Class of 1953. She was very fun-loving and hard-working. She loved to dance and danced at every opportunity. She met and married Rodney Weigt on Aug. 8, 1959, in Jerome, Idaho. Together they raised four wonderful children.

Barbara enjoyed being quite active in life; in fact, she and Rod often referred to themselves as "young-at-heart." They often RV'd with the entire family and that was one of their favorite ways to build close family relationships.

Barbara attended Lady Catherine's School of Beauty in the spring of 1963 to 1964. She worked for the Bon Marche for a year. She then opened her own salon in her home. She was a great hair-dresser and friend to all who entered her shop. Even as some of her clients became unable to drive, she would graciously drive to pick them up and fix their hair, then drive them back to their home. She was a true friend to them. She never retired from working within her hair salon until she passed away.

Barbara and Rod also enjoyed RV'ing down south to Arizona for the winter with her sister, Carolyn, and brother-in-law, Don. She and Rod were able to do this for the past 10 years.

She is survived by her loving husband, Rodney; and her four children, Ed (Barb) Weigt of Boise and their four children, Joeli, Adam, Charlie and Cody in Boise; D'On (Gene) Lee and their six children, J. Robert, Robyn, Steven, Melissa, Jamie and Kristy in Utah; Ronda (Tim) Rogers and their four children, Danyell, TeJay, Dezeray and Denay in Emmett; Candice (Jody) Hadley and their two children, Garrett and Victoria in Boise; and 13 great-grandchildren. She was also survived by her siblings, Carolyn (Don) Fickes in Meridian, Mary (Gail) Brownlee in Wendell and Rick (Maudie) Vipperman in Twin Falls; and numerous nieces, nephews and cousins. She was preceded in death by her parents; and two sisters, June and Evelyn.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Thursday, Sept. 2, at the Cherry Lane LDS Church in Boise. Viewing will be held two hours prior to the service in the Relief Society room. A graveside service will follow at 3:30 p.m. at the Wendell Cemetery. Services are under the direction of the Nampa Funeral Home, Yraguen Chapel.

police made some key arrests at XXXoticas, an Acapulco tourist bar owned by Valdez, who passed himself off there as an entrepreneur.

Mexican police said they chased Valdez across five Mexican states for a year, a pursuit that intensified in recent months as they raided home after home owned by the drug lord, missing him but nabbing several of his allies.

Among those taken into custody was his girlfriend and her mother, Valdez's U.S. lawyer said.

LaDell Anderson

PAUL — LaDell Anderson passed away at his home north of Paul on Monday, Aug. 30, 2010.

He was born in Wellsville, Utah, on Aug. 18, 1934, to Orval and Rosella Anderson. He grew up on a farm in Wellsville with two sisters and four brothers. With sugar beets to thin and cows to milk, LaDell learned how to work at an early age. He graduated from South Cache High School and continued his education, graduating from Utah State University. As a member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, he fulfilled a mission to the Central Atlantic States. He also served his country for two years in the United States Army. LaDell taught school, worked for the Bureau of Land Management, sugar factory and as a farmer. He enjoyed hunting, fishing, football and, best of all, wrestling.

He is survived by his wife of 41 years, Sherry; and children, Tracy (Stephanie) Anderson of Salt Lake City, Utah. Lance (Sherri) Anderson of Menlo Park, Calif., Landon (Candice) Anderson of Paul, Amber (Cory) Winnett of Paul and Alissa (Casey) Green of Heyburn; 13 grandchildren; two brothers, Neil Anderson and Dr. Jeffrey Anderson; and one sister, Dawn George.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Friday, Sept. 3, at the Paul LDS Stake Center. Burial will follow at the Rupert Cemetery, with military graveside rites by the Mini-Cassia Veterans. There will be no public viewing at LaDell's request. The funeral is under the direction of Hansen Mortuary Rupert Chapel.

Murkowski concedes GOP Senate primary in Alaska

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (MCT) — Alaska Sen. Lisa Murkowski on Tuesday night conceded the Republican primary election to Joe Miller, the "tea party"-backed challenger who maintained his Election Day lead after thousands of additional absentee and other ballots were counted through the day.

"We know that we have outstanding votes to count in the primary but based on where we are right now I don't see a scenario where the primary will turn out in my favor. And that is a reality that is before me at this time," Murkowski said in a news conference broadcast live over statewide television from her campaign headquarters in Anchorage.

Murkowski said she shared the news with Miller, but she did not endorse him in her concession speech. She took no questions.

Miller was in Fairbanks on Wednesday. He did not make an immediate public statement on his victory. Campaign spokesman Randy DeSoto told The Associated Press, "In the end, we're, of course, just happy to hear she conceded, that it would not end up in a long recount or that sort of thing."

Miller will now face Democrat Scott McAdams, the mayor of Sitka, in the November general election.

The race was bitter down to the end. Miller in recent days has alleged that the Murkowski side was trying to steal the election by possibly tampering with votes. Murkowski called him paranoid.

Mexico captures reported drug lord 'the Barbie'

By Mark Stevenson and Paul J. Weber
Associated Press writers

MEXICO CITY — A former Texas high school football player and petty street dealer who allegedly rose to become one of Mexico's most savage assassins became the third major drug lord brought down by Mexico in less than a year, and could provide intelligence on even bigger kingpins.

Edgar Valdez Villarreal, known as "the Barbie" for his fair complexion and green eyes, grinned broadly Tuesday as police described a life of luxury and violence that made a battleground of central Mexico, where he waged a war for control against his slain boss's brother.

The 37-year-old Valdez faces charges in three U.S. states for trucking in tons of cocaine. As a U.S. citizen living illegally in Mexico, Valdez could be deported to the United States if Mexico agrees, or he could face prosecution in Mexico for drug-related crimes. Mexican authorities say he could be responsible for dozens of murders.

The arrest was portrayed by the Mexican and U.S. governments as a victory for President Felipe Calderon, who is trying to recover public support for his war on organized crime in the face of escalating violence.

Valdez's capture Monday on a ranch outside Mexico City was the culmination of a yearlong pursuit after

Valdez

Ruth Knight

BURLEY — Elfrieda Ruth Siebach Knight, 83, of Burley, Idaho, passed away early Sunday morning, Aug. 29, 2010. She was at home in the company of her children and many loved ones.

Ruth was born in New York City on Oct. 10, 1926. She grew up in Gloversville, N.Y., where she attended and graduated from Gloversville High School. She later attended Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah. She went on to serve an LDS mission in the Northwest States. She married the late Robert Don Knight of Burley, Idaho, in the Idaho Falls Temple in 1950 and together, they raised a family of 10 children.

She was a wonderful wife and mother and faithful member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. She loved her large family with more than 50 grandchildren and many great-grandchildren. She also enjoyed being in her home or in her garden, along with serving in her church in any way that she was asked.

She is survived by her seven sons, David and (Ellen) Knight, and Dan and (Julie) Knight, both of Lovelock, Nev., John and (Cynthia) Knight of Imlay, Nev., Aaron and (Kay)

Knight of Spring Creek, Nev., Tim and (Sally) Knight of Battle Mountain, Nev., Nathan and (Peggy) Knight of Galt, Calif., Adam and Jackie Knight of Elko, Nev.; and her three daughters, Nora and (Randy) Golay of Burley, Katy and (Dave) Burch of Oakley, and Bonnie and (Mark) Nelson of Santiago, Chile. Also living are her sisters, Eleanor Knight of Shelton, Wash., Miriam Nelson of Las Vegas, Nev., and Elizabeth Young of Salt Lake City, Utah; along with her brother, Ralph Siebach of Pennsylvania.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Friday, Sept. 3, at the Burley LDS 7th Ward Church, 2200 Oakley Ave., with bishop's counselor, Brent Winn officiating. Burial will take place at 11 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 4, at the Unionville Cemetery in Unionville, Nev. In keeping with Ruth's wishes, there will not be any formal viewing. Services are under the direction of Morrison Funeral Home in Rupert.

Dorothy Frances Keaton

RUPERT — Dorothy Frances Keaton, 95, of Rupert, Idaho, finished her long and eventful journey of life on Monday, Aug. 30, 2010, at the Minidoka County Hospital with her family by her side.

Dorothy was born Feb. 13, 1915, in Rupert, to Charles M. and Pearl Alice (Dickson) Wheeler, the second of four children. She graduated from Rupert High School in 1933. On July 26, 1936, she married Eugene Keaton and together, they raised their four children, Marjorie, Marian, Jean and Allan. She was a loving mother and was completely devoted to her family. Dorothy and Eugene moved 29 times, traveling to the east coast and back again with Gene's job as a civil engineer. She and Eugene returned to Rupert upon his retirement in 1972.

During the family's moves, she made many lifetime friends, corresponding with them throughout her life. Dorothy was a "lifelong learner." She was one of the oldest library card holders of the DeMary Library, often reading six to eight books a week. She read the newspaper daily and was always working the "Daily Jumble." Her span of life encompassed riding to school in a horse-drawn wagon and, near the end of her life, she enjoyed the modern technology of receiving emails from her family and dear friends. She always loved a good joke, a humorous card and would read the "funnies" for a quiet chuckle.

Dorothy was one of only two surviving charter members of the "The Helping Hands Club" and "The Sunshine Club of Rupert. She helped with "The Christmas Council," making many new friends. She was a talented seamstress, often sewing and ironing for those that were older than she. She loved to collect recipes, exchanging the best ones with family and friends. We will long remember her apricot bars and her chocolate cake with the fudge frosting. Dorothy was convinced that "a bit of dark chocolate each day is good for all of us."

Dorothy was a longtime member of the St. Matthew Episcopal Church of Rupert and was a member of the St. Matthew Ladies Guild. She was the oldest "practicing artist" in Rupert. In the 1950s, she worked for the Bureau of Reclamation as a colorist, tinting black and white photographs. She took lessons throughout her life from the following well-known artists: Art Kerne, John Horejs, Robert Moore and others. She continued her lessons into her 90s, taking painting lessons from Blaine Call of Rupert and traveling to Twin Falls to paint with Maria Smith. She looked forward to painting twice a week in her home studio with fellow artists Bernice, Carolyn, Terri and Diane.

She will be greatly missed for her wisdom, council and indomitable spirit! She truly lived for today, not looking back to the past or wondering about the future. She encouraged all to have a zest for life and enriched the lives of all she met.

Dorothy is survived by her daughters, Marian (George) Siedentopf of Polson, Mont., and Jean (Mary Ann Lanoza) Keaton of Daly City, Calif.; and her son, Allan (Penny) Keaton of Glendale, Calif.; grandchildren, Debbi (Steve) Hutchinson of Buffalo, N.Y.; and grandsons, Eric (Sheri) Siedentopf of Kent, Wash., Kevin (Courtney) Siedentopf of Lynnwood, Wash., and Josh (Emily) Valenti of Los Angeles, Calif.; great-grandchildren, Bon (Amber) and Philip Hutchinson, Alec and Lauren Siedentopf, and Sierra Valenti. She is survived by her brother, David (Betty) Wheeler of Gooding; and cousins, Norvin and Dwight Dickson, Mary Lou Wood and Loueen Johnson. She was preceded in death by her daughter, Marjorie Webber of Buffalo, N.Y.; her brother, Wayne Wheeler of Rupert; and her sister, Elaine Farned of Redding, Calif.

Many nieces and nephews, friends and neighbors were given the opportunity to serve her as she approached her elder years. Thank you for your daily constant care in watching over her.

The family and friends of Dorothy wish to thank and acknowledge the nursing staff and her doctor at Minidoka Memorial Hospital for their exemplary care for her in her final days. The family would also like to thank the clergy and members of St. Matthew's Episcopal Church for their constant support and prayers.

In accordance with Dorothy's wishes, there will be no viewing. Please join with family and friends at her gravesite at 1 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 2, in the Rupert Cemetery, where she will be buried beside her dear husband, Eugene. A celebration of life will follow at 2 p.m. Thursday at the St. Matthew Episcopal Church, 902 Sixth St. in Rupert.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made at DeMary Library in Rupert in Dorothy's honor or to the charity of your choice.

Elva Ruth Bytheway Webb

RAFT RIVER — In the early morning hours of Sunday, Aug. 29, 2010, Elva Ruth Bytheway Webb, 88, joined Calvin, her eternal companion on the other side of the veil.

Her life began on a wintery day, Jan. 30, 1922, in West Jordan, Utah. She was the long-awaited daughter of Henry Kendrick Bytheway and Mercy Rebecca Hill Bytheway. Elva was raised with her eight brothers and younger sister in Spanish Fork, Utah, where her father worked for the sugar factory. After graduation, she trained in dress designing and worked with Utah Woolen Mills. She also worked with the Red Cross for a short time during World War II. She attended Quish's Beauty School and was working as a beautician when she met Calvin. They were married in the Salt Lake LDS Temple on May 24, 1950. They settled in Bluffdale, Utah, where they continued farming with his father and brothers.

During this time, they raised a daughter and four sons. They moved their farming and dairying operation to Raft River, Idaho, in 1973. Elva's support and bookkeeping skills were vital to the success of the business. One of her greatest joys was seeing her children and grandchildren being productive, successful and happy. She also enjoyed the beauties of the earth and captured them through her paintings, gardening and poetry.

Elva was well known for her testimony of the gospel of Jesus Christ and exemplified this through her kindness to others. She was an active member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and served in various callings as well as supporting her husband in his. They enjoyed dancing and teaching others to dance. Together, they served a mission to Johannesburg, South Africa, in 1981 to 1982.

She is survived by her daughter, Colleen Seely; four sons, Doug (Patricia), Michael (Carol), Brent (Margaret), and Gordon (Paula); 34 grandchildren; and 47 great-grandchildren. She is also survived by four brothers, Ronald, Quintin (Jennie), Charles (Frieda) and Alvin (Crista); and her sister, Darlene Bytheway. She was preceded in death by her husband; parents; four brothers, Leroy, Glenden, Mervin and Ralph; and a son-in-law, Jim Seely.

The funeral will be held at noon Saturday, Sept. 4, at the Bluffdale LDS Church, 14400 S. Redwood Road in Bluffdale, Utah, with Bishop Scott Webb officiating. Burial will be in the Bluffdale City Cemetery. Friends may call from 6 until 8 p.m. Friday, Sept. 3, at the Rasmussen Funeral Home, 1350 E. 16th St. in Burley, and from 10:30 until 11:45 a.m. Saturday at the church in Bluffdale, Utah.

Virgil Twitchell

JEROME — Virgil Twitchell, 87, of Jerome, died Saturday, Aug. 28, 2010, at his home.

Virgil was born Sept. 25, 1922, in Cannonville, Utah, the son of Leroy Milton Twitchell and Emmer Harriet Dutton Twitchell. He was raised and attended schools in Cannonville, Utah. He married Vivian Marie Roholt in Jerome, Idaho, on April 25, 1946. After her death, he met and married Della Thelma Humphries on Sept. 19, 1987.

Virgil is survived by six sons, Alfred (Della) King, Roland (Carolyn) King, Derald (Norma) Twitchell, Duane Twitchell, Michael (Sandra) Twitchell and Craig (Vesta) Twitchell; three daughters, Karen (Tim) Kerlin, Janet and Debbie; two sisters, Levena Perme and Ileta Gifford; 29 grandchilddren; and 46 great-grandchildren. He was preceded in death by two wives, Vivian and Della; one son, Verli; seven siblings; and one grandson, Randy.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Friday, Sept. 3, at the LDS 2nd Ward Church, 50 E. 100 S. in Jerome. Interment will follow at the Jerome Cemetery. Arrangements are under the care of Farnsworth Mortuary.

Edgar 'Ed' A. Lang

WENDELL — Edgar "Ed" A. Lang, 79, of Wendell, passed away Sunday, Aug. 29, 2010, at his home.

Ed was born Feb. 15, 1931, in Stanton, N.D., to Gustav and Ida Krecklau Lang. He was raised and attended school in Stanton and graduated from Stanton High in 1949. He then joined the U.S. Army, serving our country from January 1951 to December 1953. On Oct. 5, 1954, he married Dorothy Mary Pfliger in Hazen, N.D., and together they had four children, Bradley, Paula, Linda and Lori.

Ed worked construction for Peter Kiewit and Sons, working on highways and dams. He lived in Wendell for 40 years and in various places across the United States while working construction. Ed loved gardening, fishing, hunting and sports but most of all, he loved his family. He was a simple man and was easy to please.

He is survived by his wife, Dorothy; children, Bradley

(Cynthia) Lang of Reno, Nev., Paula (Ron) Adams of Coeur d'Alene, Linda (Donovan) Hargan of Reno, Nev., and Lori (Robert) Maxwell of Wendell; six grandchildren; two great-grandchildren; three sisters, Pandora Morford of Minnesota, Jean Brown of Texas and Marianne Maine of North Dakota; and brother, Leslie Lang of North Dakota. He was preceded in death by his parents; grandparents; brothers, Art Lang and Herbert Lang; sisters, Marge Stanley and Evelyn Pettis; and great-granddaughter, Ruby Lang.

A memorial service will be held at 2 p.m. Friday, Sept. 3, at Farnsworth Mortuary Chapel, 1343 S. Lincoln Ave. in Jerome, with Pastor Mike Seward officiating. The family suggests that in lieu of flowers, donations may be made in Ed's name to The Alzheimer Association, 225 N. Michigan Ave., Floor 17, Chicago, IL 60601. Arrangements are under the care of Farnsworth Mortuary.

Nicole 'Nicki' Severance

GOODING — Nicole "Nicki," Severance, age 44, of Gooding, passed away as the result of heart failure Thursday, Aug. 26, 2010, at her home.

Nicki was born Aug. 7, 1966, in Boise, Idaho, the second of three children born to Richard "Dick" and Eula Severance.

She is survived by her three children, Anthony Cory Garner of Twin Falls, Kyle Garrison Severance and Daniel Francis Jay Ritter, both of Gooding; as well as her mother, Eula Pearl Severance, also of Gooding; her sister Tammy Jeanne (Blake) Rodabaugh of Shanghai, China; and her brother, Clayton Alan Severance of Boise. She is preceded in death by her father, Dick Severance.

A vivacious, generous and forgiving person, Nicki made many friends and helped many in need throughout her life. She worked in Jerome for Communicare as a primary care provider. She will be missed by the clients for whom she cared.

A memorial service will be held 6 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 2, at the First Baptist Church in Gooding. A potluck will follow the service at Nicki's home at the corner of 10th and Idaho Streets in Gooding. Her family hopes that her friends will stop by and share a memory or two. The family asks that flowers not be sent but encourages those wishing to honor Nicki's memory to help another in need thus passing on her legacy of service to others.

Brazile headlines line up at M.V. Stampede

By Diane Philbin
Times-News writer

Mr. Consistent is headed back to Idaho. Trevor Brazile, the ultimate all-around cowboy, is one of more than 500 contestants scheduled to compete at the Magic Valley Stampede, which kicks off Thursday at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds in Filer. Several world champions and multiple National Finals Rodeo qualifiers will compete in the three-day event at Shouse Arena.

"We are really excited about the caliber this year," said Gene Schiffler, rodeo committee chairman. "We have outstanding stock and many of the top cowboys and cowgirls. The 567 contestants may be a new high. This year the purse will be increased $5,000 per event with even money in team roping and pays six places."

Brazile, of Decatur, Texas, is the 2009 world champion tie-down roper and has won 11 world titles and seven all-around gold buckles. Many believe he'll rewrite the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association record books before he is through. He is a tough competitor in tie-down roping, team roping and steer roping. This year, he has earned more than $200,000 for a record 10th consecutive season.

Team roping is the only one of Brazile's events for which he does not have a gold buckle, the missing piece in an unprecedented career grand slam — all-around, tie-down roping, steer roping and team roping. At this year's Stampede, Brazile is entered in tie-down and team roping with partner Patrick Smith and is scheduled to compete in the slack in both events following the Friday performance.

Brazile isn't the only name of interest in team roping. Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter will participate in

Young Burley squad sweeps Declo

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

BURLEY — The youngsters have some heart.

The Burley volleyball team — which has only two seniors and little varsity experience — tested its mettle Tuesday night, coming from behind in each game of a three-game sweep of Declo.

"To watch this young of a team not fold is huge for us," said Burley coach Tiffany Green. "It shows they've got a lot of character and courage. They're willing to take some risks at that point of the game to make things happen."

Senior Melanie Garrard had 11 digs and Delta Jones and Emri Haynie had 12 service points apiece as Burley won 25-17, 25-19, 27-25.

"We looked at Declo just thinking we have to win," said Jones, who also had 13 assists. "Even though it's a rivalry, we had to think of it as a normal game and we really stepped it up and focused and got a win."

Declo led by two points midway through Games 1 and 2. Back-to-back aces by senior Jessica Laumb helped Burley rally in the first game. In Game 3, Declo was up 15-10 before Burley's Jessica Laumb (9) hits the ball as Declo's Sydney Webb defends during their nonconference volleyball match Tuesday at Burley High School.

In each game, Burley would fall behind until its passing got into a groove.

"Sometimes we struggle with passing," said Jones. "Once we get our passes down, we have good hitters and we know what to do up front. We can really hit the ball."

Kayla Kerbs contributed eight digs and Allison

Hepworth had two blocks for Burley.

Declo struggled with serving all night.

"They get nervous back there and it's just fundamentals," said Declo coach Kerri Wilson. "Little mistakes, they tend to dwell on that and they just need to let it go and focus on the now and play the game."

Keva Robinson and Kaylee Holmstead had six kills apiece for the Hornets.

"I love what we have," Wilson said of her players. "We have a lot of potential and the girls are working hard in practice, and it will show on the court."

Burley (1-2) hosts Jerome, Century and Pocatello today, while Declo (2-1) hosts American Falls.

BSU coach plays it close to the vest

Petersen dismisses importance of depth chart hierarchy

By Jason Chatraw
Times-News correspondent

BOISE — Like a good poker player, Boise State head coach Chris Petersen held his proverbial cards close to his vest Tuesday afternoon at his final press conference before the Broncos' season-opener with Virginia Tech on Monday.

If news of who emerged as starters on the Broncos' depth chart for the first game was a mild surprise, Petersen quickly dismissed any importance of the pecking order, particularly in the backfield.

"My son who is 12 said it best," Petersen said. "When I walked in the house yesterday, he said, 'Hey, Dad, I heard Doug Martin is the starter. That's great. ... Oh, yeah, I know what that means. You're going to play them all. Everybody gets time. Everybody shares the ball!'"

"I said, 'Yeah, it doesn't take much to figure out how it is around here.' And that's really how it is."

Last season, Avery ran for 1,150 yards and six touchdowns to lead the team in rushing. Then Doug Martin emerged as a threat in the backfield with more than 700 yards rushing after D.J. Harper went down with a season-ending injury early in the season against Fresno State.

So despite the look of Doug Martin and Dan Paul lining up at running back in the backfield.

Sharapova avoids upset at U.S. Open

By Howard Fendrich
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — Down a set in the first round of the U.S. Open, Maria Sharapova sat in her changeover chair, briefly closed her eyes, and took some deep breaths.

"I knew," she would say later, "that it wasn't over."

Whatever problems she encountered Tuesday, whatever the level of her game, all that mattered to Sharapova was the outcome. Overcoming a deficit and a big-hitting opponent to avoid a significant upset, the 2006 U.S. Open champion put together a 4-6, 6-3, 6-1 victory over 60th-ranked Jarmila Groth of Australia.

Maria Sharapova of Russia pumps her fist in the first round of the U.S. Open women's singles competition in New York on Tuesday. Sharapova advanced to the second round of the tournament by defeating Jarmila Groth of Australia 4-6, 6-3, 6-1.

BYU declares its independence day

Cougars to join WCC in other sports

The Associated Press

PROVO, Utah — BYU is going independent in football after all.

BYU says it is leaving the Mountain West Conference and will go independent in football while joining the West Coast Conference in all other sports in the 2011-2012 school year.

BYU and its new conference announced the moves in simultaneous releases late Tuesday afternoon, saying further details would be given at a news conference Wednesday at BYU's LaVell Edwards Stadium.

BYU said its resignation from the Mountain West takes effect June 30, 2011, allowing the Cougars to join the West Coast Conference play next fall.

The announcement ended nearly two weeks of speculation since BYU's original plan to go independent surfaced, then unraveled within hours when the Mountain West Conference made a protective move and invited Nevada and Fresno State to leave the WAC for the MWC.

BYU had an agreement worked out with the WAC to join in all sports except football, which would play as a Bowl Sub-division independent.

The Mountain West's catch of Nevada and Fresno State foiled the plan and left BYU with little time to come up with something else before Sept. 1, the deadline to notify the Mountain West of any plans to leave before the 2011 school year.

WCC commissioner Jamie Zaninovich began talks with BYU after the WAC plan fell through and was able to put together the deal in just a couple of weeks.

The WCC had looked into possible expansion in the past year but decided to stick with eight teams. However, the chance to get a school the caliber of BYU was too good to pass up. The conference has just started talks to negotiate a new television deal and the new addition should

Yankees use long ball to top A's

NEW YORK — Mark Teixeira hit a three-run homer and Curtis Granderson and Nick Swisher also went deep for the Yankees, who beat up on Oakland again in a 9-3 win over the Athletics on Tuesday night.

The victory moved the Yankees back into sole possession of first place. Tampa Bay and New York had spent eight days tied atop the AL East.

The Yankees, who came back from a three-run deficit to win 11-5 the night before, jumped on A's starter Vin Mazzaro right away. Brett Gardner led off the first with a single, and the Yankees scored three runs in the inning, helped by second baseman Mark Ellis's fielding error and Jorge Posada's triple.

Yankees starter Phil Hughes (16-6) walked five but only gave up two runs and four hits in five innings.

BLUE JAYS 13, RAYS 5

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Jose Bautista hit his major league-leading 43rd homer during a 10-run sixth inning and the Blue Jays beat the Rays.

Tampa Bay lost for only the fifth time in 17 games but fell a game behind the first-place New York Yankees in the AL East. The Rays and Yankees, who beat Oakland 9-3, had been tied atop the division for the previous eight days.

WHITE SOX 4, INDIANS 3

CLEVELAND — With Manny Ramirez standing in the on-deck circle ready to pinch-hit, A.J. Pierzynski hit a three-run homer off Frank Herrmann in the ninth inning to lift the White Sox to a win over the Indians.

Ramirez, who arrived earlier in the day to help Chicago's playoff push, was poised to make his White Sox debut and bat for Brent Lillibridge before Pierzynski came through.

He drove an 0-1 pitch over the wall in right field, and as he rounded the bases, Ramirez retreated to Chicago's dugout, where the fun-loving slugger celebrated his new teammate's heroics by high-fiving the rest of the White Sox as if he was the one who had homered.

ORIOLES 5, RED SOX 2

BALTIMORE — Rookie Brian Matusz won his third consecutive start, and the Orioles beat Josh Beckett and the fading Red Sox to cap a memorable first month under manager Buck Showalter.

Luke Scott hit his career-high 26th homer, had two RBIs and scored twice to help the Orioles extend their winning streak to four. Baltimore went 17-11 in August, 17-10 with Showalter in the dugout.

TWINS 4, TIGERS 3

MINNEAPOLIS — Delmon Young had two hits, including the go-ahead single in the seventh, to lift the Twins to a win over the Tigers.

ROYALS 10, RANGERS 9

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Willie Bloomquist scored on Alexi Ogando's wild pitch with two outs in the bottom of the ninth and Alex Gordon drove in three runs as the Royals beat the Rangers.

Wilson Betemit opened the ninth with a double and Bloomquist pinch-ran for him. Brayan Pena walked with one out. Bloomquist stole third with one out and scored on Ogando's wild pitch with Yumiesky Betancourt at the plate.

NATIONAL LEAGUE REDS 8, BREWERS 4

CINCINNATI — Cuban defector Aroldis Chapman reached 102 mph during one perfect inning, Tuesday and Cincinnati wrapped up the best August by any team in the majors.

The NL Central leaders moved a season-high seven games ahead of St. Louis. The Reds haven't led by so many games since 1995, the last time they reached the playoffs.

BRAVES 9, METS 2

ATLANTA — Atlanta's David Ross hit his first career grand slam to cap a seven-run inning made possible by Luis Castillo's error.

The Mets scored two runs in the fifth off rookie Mike Minor (3-0), but the 2-1 lead didn't last long. In the bottom half, the Braves knocked out Jonathon Niese (8-7), taking advantage of Castillo's blunder.

The second baseman let a likely double-play grounder slip between his legs, and the Braves made New York pay big time. Jason Heyward followed with a two-run double, Alex Gonzalez had an RBI single and Ross — Atlanta's backup catcher getting one of his occasional starts — hit his second homer of the season.

MARLINS 1, NATIONALS 0, 10 INNINGS

MIAMI — Florida's Chad Tracy singled home Hanley Ramirez with the winning run in the 10th inning.

Ramirez singled with one out off reliever Drew Storen, then stole second. After Gaby Sanchez drew a walk, Tracy singled to left.

ASTROS 3, CARDINALS 0

HOUSTON — Wandy Rodriguez pitched seven innings and three relievers completed the three-hit shutout for Houston.

PIRATES 14, CUBS 7

CHICAGO — Neil Walker and Garrett Jones hit long two-run homers for Pittsburgh in a rare road victory.

Walker went 4 for 5 with four RBIs and three runs scored for the Pirates, who won for only the fifth time in 43 road games and ended a 14-game losing streak away from PNC Park.

U.S. Open

"At the end of the day, even though I know I wasn't playing my best tennis, I know I came out with a win. And sometimes it's more important than anything, because you're giving yourself a chance to go out on the practice court tomorrow," the 14th-seeded Sharapova said. "You're giving yourself a chance to play another match and to get better, you know, maybe work on the things that today weren't working that well for you."

Groth hit 14 double-faults, including on the final point of the second set. She was by far the more aggressive of the two, taking risks that sometimes paid off and sometimes did not. She hit 24 winners to 19 for Sharapova, and made 48 unforced errors to 17 for Sharapova.

"She came out firing; didn't give me many opportunities," Sharapova said. "You just want to hang in there, get through it."

There was a lot of hanging in there on a steamy Day 2 at the U.S. Open, when the temperature rose into the mid-90s in the afternoon, prompting the tournament to invoke its "extreme weather policy" for women's singles matches, which allows players to request a 10-minute break after the second set. More than a dozen women's matches went three sets, and seven men's matches lasted the full five sets, including 2007 runner-up Novak Djokovic's 6-3, 3-6, 2-6, 7-5, 6-3 victory over his friend and Serbian Davis Cup teammate Viktor Troicki.

Top-seeded Rafael Nadal found himself in a surprisingly competitive match but still won in straight sets, getting past 93rd-ranked Teymuraz Gabashvili 7-6 (4), 7-6 (4), 6-3 at night. There were only two breaks of serve — both by Nadal, the last two times Gabashvili served under the lights.

"My serve worked well," said Nadal, who saved the only break point he faced.

Under a sizzling sun earlier, Djokovic and Troicki played for more than 3 1/2 hours, and the on-court temperature approached 110 degrees. Djokovic was down a break in the fourth set while already trailing, before righting himself.

"You kind of start panicking a little bit when you don't feel great physically," the third-seeded Djokovic said, "and your opponent takes advantage."

Mardy Fish, an American seeded 19th, also won in five sets, but fan favorite James Blake needed only three to reach the second round.

Sharapova never has lost earlier than the second round in seven U.S. Opens. But she also hasn't made it past the third round since taking the championship. She lost at that stage in 2007 and 2009, and missed the tournament in 2008 shortly before having right shoulder surgery.

Sharapova made adjustments to her service motion after that operation, then missed nearly two months this season with a right elbow injury. But she has seemed lately to be on her way back to being a contender at the biggest tournaments, reaching the finals at two hard-court tournaments this summer.

She only double-faulted twice Tuesday, and it was Groth who donated points with shaky serving, including on the last point of the second set.

"Maybe if I would have served differently," Groth said, "everything would be easier."

At the start, though, it was Sharapova who hardly was at her best. When Groth pounded a return winner off a second serve, she broke Sharapova to take the opening set.

When play resumed, Sharapova's shots improved.

"It's still Sharapova, so it's not like she's going to go, 'There you go,'" Groth said.

Sharapova-Groth was the day's third match in Arthur Ashe Stadium that went the full number of sets, making for a night session that started about 1 1/2 hours later than the 7 p.m. schedule.

Kimberly volleyball sweeps tri-match

Times-News

The Kimberly volleyball team beat Valley 25-22, 25-9 and topped Hagerman 25-20, 25-17 at home Tuesday night at a tri-match.

Kailey Wright recorded 22 kills and 14 digs in the two matches, while Nellie Makings dished out 30 assists and Kylie Haskell added 15 digs.

"The first match we played pretty well, but we need to improve on our passing. Overall though I'm pretty pleased with the way we played," said Kimberly head coach Lawrence Pfefferle.

Kimberly (2-0) plays Thursday at Declo.

HIGHLAND 2, CANYON RIDGE 0

Highland won in straight sets at Canyon Ridge on Tuesday, winning 25-21, 25-16.

TWIN FALLS 2, HIGHLAND 0

Cheltzie Williams had eight kills and 10 digs, while setter Allie Johnson added 17 assists and a career-best 12 digs.

OAKLEY SPLITS HOME TRI

Oakley swept Rockland 26-24, 25-18 in a nonconference match in Oakley on Tuesday. But the Hornets lost the more important Snake River Conference South Division match to Grace in five sets, falling 22-25, 25-13, 25-18, 23-25, 15-8.

No other details were available. Oakley (1-3, 0-1 Snake River South) hosts Jackpot on Thursday.

SHOSHONE 3, WENDELL 0

Shoshone swept Wendell 25-16, 25-18, 25-13 at Wendell Tuesday in the Trojans' first match of the season.

"I think the girls will improve," said Wendell head coach Amber Smith.

Heather Sturgeon recorded four blocks and seven kills, while Megan Soufa dished out 13 assists for Wendell.

WOOD RIVER SPLITS HOME TRI-MATCH

Wood River won its opening match against Buhl 25-19, 17-25, 15-10, but lost in three games against Filer, falling 25-16, 22-25, 12-15.

"It would have been nice to hold our lead in the final set. We have a young team out there and they kind of lost their focus," said Wood River head coach Tim

Lily Richards led the team with seven kills against Buhl and Jessica Hamilton dished out 12 assists against Filer.

Buhl beat Filer 10-15, 25-23, 28-26 as Annie Lauda had nine kills. Katherine Hunter added seven kills and eight digs.

In its loss to Wood River, Buhl got eight kills and six digs from Hunter, while Arly Pettinger has seven kills and Kendall Hamilton added five.

CAMAS COUNTY SWEEPS TRI-MATCH

Camas County beat Castleford 25-12, 25-13, 25-16 and dispatched Lighthouse Christian 25-13, 25-7, 25-18 in a tri-match on Tuesday.

Carly Strom had 16 kills and Larissa Stewart added five aces for the Musers against Castleford, while Katelyn Peterson had 22 kills and Stewart added five aces against the Lions.

The Lions rebounded with a 25-20, 25-16, 26-24 win over Castleford.

Kyanna Jones had five aces and seven kills for the Lions (2-1) against Castleford, while Becca Storm had seven kills and Andrea Helman added six. Jamie Morton added 13 digs.

Lighthouse Christian travels to Dietrich on Sept. 9.

DIETRICH 3, MURTAUGH 0

Dietrich beat host Murtaugh 25-10, 25-17, 25-14 on Tuesday. The Blue Devils found much of their success on the service line in sweeping the match.

RAFT RIVER 3, HANSEN 1

Raft River beat Hansen, winning 25-16, 13-25, 25-18, 25-19.

Kassie Ottley had 10 kills and 33 digs for the Trojans (1-0, 1-0 Snake River South), while Wynter Holtman added 36 digs.

Taylor Harris had 15 blocks, 20 hits and 5 kills for Huskies in the loss.

CENTURY 3, CANYON RIDGE 0

Canyon Ridge's sluggish start to the season continued with a 3-0 road loss at Century on Tuesday. The Riverhawks gave up goals on headers in the fourth and 14th minutes.

"They controlled things," CRHS coach Brian Gillenwater said of Century. "They were the better team today."

While Gillenwater said his team played poorly Tuesday, he noted that the conference season and postseason are where it really counts. The Riverhawks host Wood River on Thursday to open Great Basin Conference play.

MINICO 5, POCATELLO 0

Alberto Ramirez scored two goals as host Minico beat Pocatello 5-0 on Tuesday. Eddie Lopez, Enoch Coats and Romney Hansen also scored for the Spartans (4-0).

PRESTON 2, BURLEY 1

The Bobcats scored first off a free kick by Cesar Mendoza 10 minutes into the game.

Preston scored five minutes later when an Indian corner kick deflected off a Burley defender into the net. Preston went ahead just before the half.

"The way Preston plays, once they get ahead, they're difficult to break down," said Burley coach Wes Nyblade. "We possessed really well and generated a lot of opportunities across the face of the net. We chalk it up as a learning experience."

Burley (2-1-0) plays at Jerome on Thursday.

ABERDEEN 6, DECLO 0

Fresh off a 7-0 loss to Minico on Monday, Declo suffered another shutout loss, losing 6-0 to Aberdeen on Tuesday.

The game was scoreless at the half but a weary roster and a number of injuries proved too much for the Hornets.

"We were like the walking wounded," said Declo coach Tim Henrikson. "We were really walking and limping. Three games in three nights is really tough."

The Hornets (1-3) travel to Wendell for a league game at 6:15 p.m. today.

WOOD RIVER 4, JEROME 1

Jerome jumped out early on Wood River but the Wolverines bounded back for a 4-1 win.

Liam Jablonski scored in the 14th minute, assisted by Trevor Brand, while Trevor Brand netted in the 35th minute on an assist by Jake Freeman to cap off the first half.

"The game started out good. They went up first, but the boys did not lose it," said Wood River coach Luis Monjaras. "They stepped up and put the pressure on their best player and shut him out."

The Wolverines picked up where they left off in the second half as Alejandro Garcia scored assisted by Nathan Moses, and Benito Revles scored at 56th minute.

Wood River (2-2) and travels to Canyon Ridge at 4:30 p.m. Thursday.

HIGHLAND 2, TWIN FALLS 1

Goals early in each half helped Highland to a 2-1 win over Twin Falls in Pocatello on Tuesday.

Bruin coach Ben Harman said the possession game was mostly even, slightly in Highland's favor, and the difference came in that the Rams fashioned more chances on goal.

Nate Goss scored the lone

The Bruins (1-1-1) host Minico on Thursday.

Girls soccer

POCATELLO 10, MINICO 0

The Minico girls soccer team lost 10-0 at Pocatello on Tuesday. The Spartans are back on the pitch today at American Falls.

DECLO 1, ABERDEEN 1

Despite 16 shots, Declo only scored one goal to tie Aberdeen 1-1 on Tuesday.

The Hornets only goal came off an assist by Mariana Rodriguez to Jessica Cuevas in the first half.

Goalie Kylee Matthews had five saves for the Hornets but Chamey Powell of Aberdeen snuck one past Matthews for the tie.

"We played a lot better this time," said Declo coach Amy Mallory. "We started off really strong but we could just not finish a lot of our shots."

HIGHLAND 5, TWIN FALLS 2

The Twin Falls Bruins lead 2-1 at halftime but lost their lead and their energy in the second half in a 5-2 loss to Highland.

"Our biggest downfall was that we played so well in the first half but we just could not keep that momentum in the second half," said Twin Falls coach Katie Kauffman. "We will work on it and work on playing two good halves."

Morgan McGinnis and Claire Goss scored for the Bruins in the loss.

WOOD RIVER 6, JEROME 0

Jerome was shut out 6-0 by Wood River on Tuesday.

Down 3-0 at halftime, the Tigers couldn't get themselves back into the game in the second half.

"It was a really good game effort-wise, but we fell apart in the final five minutes," said Jerome head coach Carlos Hernandez.

Browns' Rogers fined by NFL

BEREA, Ohio — Shaun Rogers wasn't sure if he caught a break.

The NFL decided Tuesday to only fine the Cleveland Browns' nose tackle and not suspend him for carrying a loaded gun into an airport.

"How's it better?" Rogers said with a laugh. "Well, I'm still losing money. I don't play for free."

The league said Rogers will be fined a one-game check — roughly $400,000 or 1/17th his $6.9 million salary this season — for violating its personal conduct policy. The former Pro Bowler, who has not practiced this summer because of a leg injury that ended his season after 11 games in 2009, is appealing the decision.

Police said Rogers carried a semiautomatic handgun in a carry-on bag into Hopkins International Airport in April. He reached a deal with prosecutors last month and was ordered to enter diversion program to avoid trial on the weapons charge.

Under the terms, the felony gun charge will be dismissed if the 31-year-old Rogers completes the program, which included a gun course and community service.

NY TURNS DOWN BURRESS' REQUEST FOR WORK RELEASE

NEW YORK — Former New York Giants Super Bowl star Plaxico Burress has come up short in his bid for work release during his two-year prison sentence in a gun case, a denial that could keep him behind bars until at least next spring, prison officials said Tuesday.

The state Department of Correctional Services said the nature of his November 2008 crime merited turning down his request for a work furlough, which would have let him spend some portion of his time free and working. Burress can appeal the decision but otherwise can't reapply for a work furlough until June 6, 2011, the date he comes up for potential full release if he gets time off for good behavior.

"The serious and negative impact illegal guns have on the community coupled with (the) dangerous nature of the weapon discharging in a public place renders him unsuitable for work release," the agency said.

Burress' lawyer, Benjamin Brafman, didn't immediately return a telephone call seeking comment Tuesday.

For now, the wide receiver remains in protective custody, because of his notoriety, at a prison in the central New York community of Oneida.

The work release request was Burress' second since he started serving his sentence last September. Such requests are rarely successful — less than 2 percent of the nearly 27,000 applications received last year were granted, New York prison system spokeswoman Linda Foglia said.

Burress, 33, pleaded guilty last year to attempted criminal possession of a weapon.

ANDERSON STARTING AGAIN, LEINART MEETS WITH COACH

TEMPE, Ariz. — Derek Anderson will start at quarterback again for Arizona when the Cardinals play Washington tonight in their final preseason game.

Coach Ken Whisenhunt said he will use the same playing order as he did in last Saturday's 14-9 win at Chicago. That means Matt Leinart will come in to replace Anderson at some point.

"It worked for us," the coach said, "so we'll see if it continues to work that way."

He said neither quarterback will get as much playing time as they did against the Bears, "but both guys will get the opportunity."

MORENO RETURNS TO BRONCOS PRACTICE

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. — Denver Broncos running back Knowshon Moreno is practicing for the first time since hurting his right hamstring on the first day of training camp Aug. 1.

Moreno, who remains No. 1 on the team's depth chart, pronounced himself "80-some percent" healed from the injury. It's unlikely he'll play in the Broncos' preseason finale at Minnesota on Thursday, however.

Coach Josh McDaniels said he isn't worried about Moreno being OK for the regular season without a training camp because he went through something similar last season as a rookie, when he held out at the start of camp and then sprained a knee in his first preseason game.

SEATTLE RESTRUCTURES CONTRACT OF LB LEROY HILL

RENTON, Wash. — Linebacker Leroy Hill is taking a major pay cut to play for the Seattle Seahawks in 2010.

Hill, who is facing a one-game suspension for off-the-field issues, will have a base salary of $2.125 million for this season according to the NFL Players Association web site. Hill was previously scheduled to make $6 million in 2010 as part of a six-year deal Hill signed in April 2009 that could have been worth $38 million.

As part of the restructuring, the remaining years on Hill's contract have been wiped out, making him a free agent following this season.

Writer forecasts college football's BCS games

By Ralph D. Russo
Associated Press writer

The season starts Thursday, so what better time to jump ahead five months and predict what teams will play in the Bowl Championship Series and who wins it all. Remember, it's no fun to pick the obvious.

Rose Bowl: TCU (at-large) vs. Oregon (Pac-10 champion). The Pac-10 might be the toughest conference in the country to forecast. The Ducks won't miss quarterback Jeremiah Masoli all that much and they make it two straight Rose Bowl appearances. The Horned Frogs become the first team from a non-automatic qualifying conference to play in the Rose Bowl.

Fiesta Bowl: Oklahoma (Big 12 champion) vs. Connecticut (Big East). The Sooners bounce back from a messy 8-5 season to reclaim the Big 12 and earn a chance to snap their BCS losing streak at three games. The second-toughest conference to predict is the Big East. The experienced and well-coached Huskies earn their first BCS bid.

Orange Bowl: Miami (ACC champion) vs. Nebraska (at-large). The rebirth of Miami and Nebraska as elite programs leads to an Orange Bowl matchup that has decided national championships in the past. Soon we might see the Hurricanes and Cornhuskers playing each other for national titles again.

Sugar Bowl: Alabama (at-large) vs. Ohio State (at-large). The preseason favorites to reach the BCS title game will both be relegated to second-best in their conferences. The Buckeyes get yet another postseason opportunity to show they can keep pace with the SEC.

BCS championship in Glendale, Ariz. Florida (SEC champion) vs. Wisconsin (Big Ten champion). The Gators have more than enough talent to make another run at the national championship. The only thing they lack is experience. And even if they lose to Alabama in Tuscaloosa on Oct. 2, they will get another shot at the Tide in Atlanta for the SEC title in December. The Badgers clear the only major hurdles on a manageable schedule by beating Ohio State at home and Iowa on the road in consecutive October weekends and play for their first national title.

BCS champion: Make it five straight for the SEC and three championships in five seasons for Urban Meyer and the Gators.

Alabama's Ingram to miss opener

Mark Ingram's run for a second Heisman Trophy has been put on hold, and possibly even derailed, before the Alabama tailback had a chance to gain a single yard.

Ingram

Ingram will miss No. 1 Alabama's opener against San Jose State after injuring his left knee late in practice Monday, coach Nick Saban said Tuesday.

Saban said in a statement the star tailback had an arthroscopic procedure and should make a full recovery in a "relatively short time."

"Mark will definitely be out for this week's game against San Jose State and we will manage this on a week to week basis beyond this week," Saban said.

If the absence proves short-lived, it figures to have more of an impact on Ingram's bid to join Ohio State running back Archie Griffin as the only two-time Heisman winners that would do on Alabama's hopes for a repeat national title.

San Jose State went 2-10 last season, but the Crimson Tide face a much stiffer test in the second week of the season. No. 19 Penn State visits Tuscaloosa on Sept. 11, then Alabama travels to Duke.

Alabama does have a talented backup in sophomore Trent Richardson, who ran for 751 yards and scored eight touchdowns last season, including 109 yards and a 49-yard touchdown against Texas in the national title game.

He and Ingram were picked as the preseason first-team all-Southeastern Conference tailbacks.

NCAA DENIES MASOLI'S WAIVER TO PLAY IN 2010

JACKSON, Miss. — The NCAA has denied Mississippi quarterback Jeremiah Masoli's request for a waiver that would allow him to play immediately, meaning the former Oregon standout won't be eligible until 2011.

Mississippi officials announced Tuesday plans to appeal the ruling, with a response expected in less than one week.

"I'm just shocked and disappointed," Masoli said. "I've done everything I can to follow the rules."

Mississippi athletic director Pete Boone said the decision was "subjective" and expected a successful appeal.

"There is no question in my mind Jeremiah is in the right place," Mississippi coach Houston Nutt said. "We're in the people-helping business. I want to plead with that subcommittee. He's done nothing but what he's supposed to do."

Masoli transferred to Mississippi after being kicked off Oregon's team after two run-ins with police.

Boise St.

Continued from Sports 1 and fullback next to quarterback Kellen Moore, Petersen said it will only be one of many combos the Broncos expect to trot out Monday against the Hokies.

"We love Doug," Petersen said. "He can play multiple positions for us. D.J. Haper is awesome. I don't see much difference between those two guys. There there's Jeremy Avery, who has done so much for us around here. He's going to be a key factor before it's all said and done."

While Petersen declined to get into the specifics of injuries to defensive end Ryan Winterswyk and safety Jeron Johnson that have kept the pair out of practice for a large portion of fall camp, he said he expects both to play Monday.

Petersen also expressed confidence in the debut of new defensive coordinator Pete Kwiatkowski, who is taking over for Justin Wilcox, who left for Tennessee after the season.

"I think Justin would be the first to tell you that there are a lot of good coaches on that side of the ball who have been there for the past four or five years," Petersen said. "Coach Kwiatkowski and Justin were always in cahoots as the main two bouncing ideas off each other. ... When you're around a guy enough, you know if he can do the job or not — and he can do it."

"Is he going to come up with some magic defense for this game? No, he's not. It's not that complicated to figure out what we need to do. It's hard to execute, but not hard to figure out strategy wise what you're going to try to do."

BYU

With perennial power Gonzaga, an emerging program at Saint Mary's that won two games in the NCAA tournament last year and programs like Portland and San Diego that have had success in recent years, the WCC is in position to be a regular multiple-bid league for the NCAA men's basketball tournament. BYU has been to 25 NCAA tournaments, including the past four seasons.

Shortly after the BYU and WCC releases, Mountain West commissioner Craig Thompson released his own, saying the league would continue to explore options for the future. It did not mention BYU by name or the Cougars' pendency as a way to increase the school's exposure through its own network — BYU-TV — and others outside The Mtn.

"We look forward to the future with great excitement — particularly welcoming recent additions Boise State, Fresno State and Nevada into the Mountain West," Thompson said in the statement.

Boise State joins the Mountain West next year, when Utah leaves for the Pac-10, and now BYU departs as one of just four independent teams in the NCAA's Bowl Subdivision. The only other football teams without conferences are Notre Dame, Army and Navy.

BYU, owned by The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, has been looking into football independence as a way to increase the school's exposure through its own network — BYU-TV — and others outside The Mtn.

By going independent, the Cougars will have a challenge filling out future football schedules without the eight guaranteed Mountain West games. The agreement with the WAC included a provision for playing several league teams each year while leaving BYU free to fill the rest of the dates with any other schools.

BYU already has some future opponents in place for what would have been non-conference games in the coming years, but will still have plenty of work to round out the rest of the schedule.

Stampede

Continued from Sports 1 top 10 bareback riders will be compete, including Ryan Gray, the current leader in the world standings. Also headed for Filer is reigning 2009 world champion and three-time world champion Bobby Mote. Mote began last year's NFR in second place in the world standings and rode all 10 of his horses on his way to the title. Mote sits in the fifth spot in the current standings. Three-time world champion Will Lowe, who sits ninth, is also entered.

This year's current top money earner in saddle bronc, Wade Sundell, and 2009 world champion Jesse Kruse are scheduled to compete as will five-time world champion Billy Etbauer. Two weeks ago, Etbauer joined Brazile as rodeo's only $3 million cowboys by winning the saddle bronc title in Burley. After a win last week in Lynden, Wash., he became the first contestant to bank $3 million in a single rodeo discipline.

In bull riding, two-time and reigning world champion J.W. Harris tops the field, while 2007 world champion Wesley Silcox and 2004 world champion Dustin Elliott will also compete. Harris is pushing hard to become the first bull rider to win three consecutive world championships.

The competition in team roping includes the top two headers in the world standings, Chad Masters with partner Jade Corkill, and Turtle Powell and partner Jhett Johnson. The team of Nick Sartain and Kollin VonAhn, the reigning 2009 world champions are also entered.

The highest ranked steer wrestler in the Stampede is the 2006 world champion Dean Gorsuch who sits fourth, followed by Trevor Knowles in fifth. Two Utah cowgirls, Kelli Tolbert and Nancy Hunter, are one-two in the current Wilderness Circuit standings in barrel racing with the season winding down and Timi Lickley of Jerome sits third. 14 of the top 15 women will run the cloverleaf pattern.

There are several college contestants entered in this year's performance that rodeo fans may recognize. College of Southern Idaho rodeo team members include Zach Hutchison (bareback) and Tag Elliott (bull riding). Both qualified for the college national finals this past year as did Rob Webb of Wendell who attends Weber State and is entered in team roping.

With many of the standings hotly contested, the Stampede could play a role in determining the 15-member field at the National Finals Rodeo.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1807, former Vice President Aaron Burr was found not guilty of treason. (Burr was then tried on a misdemeanor charge, but was again acquitted.)
In 1894, the Great Hinckley Fire destroyed Hinckley, Minn., and five other communities, and killed more than 400 people.
In 1905, Alberta and Saskatchewan entered Confederation as the eighth and ninth provinces of Canada.
In 1923, the Japanese cities of Tokyo and Yokohama were devastated by an earthquake that claimed some 140,000 lives.
In 1951, the United States, Australia and New Zealand signed a mutual defense pact, the ANZUS treaty.
In 1969, a coup in Libya brought Moammar Gadhafi to power.
In 1972, American Bobby Fischer won the international chess crown in Reykjavik, Iceland, as Boris Spassky of the Soviet Union resigned before the resumption of game 21.
In 1983, 269 people were killed when a Korean Air Lines Boeing 747 was shot down by a Soviet jet fighter after the airliner entered Soviet airspace.
In 1985, a U.S.-French expedition located the wreckage of the Titanic on the floor of the Atlantic Ocean roughly 400 miles off Newfoundland.
In 1995, a ribbon-cutting ceremony was held for the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame and Museum in Cleveland. (The hall opened to the public the next day.)
Ten years ago: Saying he wasn't convinced the technology was at hand to build an effective anti-missile shield, President Bill Clinton said he would leave it to his successor to decide when, or if, to deploy a national missile defense prohibited by a 1972 arms control treaty.
Five years ago: New Orleans Mayor Ray Nagin issued a "desperate SOS" as his city descended into anarchy amid the flooding left by Hurricane Katrina. Al-Qaida's number-two made the terror group's first direct claim of responsibility for the July 7 bombings in London in a videotape.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"It seemed to be but chance, yet who shall say That 'twas not part of Nature's own sweet way...."
 — John Kendrick Bangs

Sally Brock, a member of the current English World Teams Champions, provided me with a good problem from the qualifying rounds of the National Women's Teams. Cover up the South and West hands. When West led the spade two against three no-trump, how would you (East) plan the defense?

It seemed to Brock that because of her guarded diamond queen, there was no hurry to do anything committal. If partner held queen-fourth in spades, she would still do so after East won her diamond queen. Brock considered what might be best if West had jack-fourth of spades instead. One possibility would be to win the spade ace and return the six, but if South were to guess right, that would surely be the end of the defensive prospects.

Brock decided that her best extra chance was to play partner for a three-card heart suit, so at trick two she switched to the heart three, won by declarer's king as West played the four. Declarer took a diamond finesse, which let Brock win her queen and cash the heart ace. If this had dropped her partner's jack, Brock would have switched to a low spade, hoping that declarer would still get the suit wrong.

However, when West followed low on the heart, Brock was confident her partner held the jack (or she would have discouraged at trick two).

Since one down would be sufficient at teams scoring, Brock played the spade ace now, and West intelligently confirmed the spade position by dropping the jack, making the heart play a sure thing.

ANSWER: A call of two diamonds would overstate your hand by a queen or so, a response of one no-trump without a heart stop looks extremely distorted, and a negative double promises four spades. What does that leave? You can only pass and hope to get a second shot, or else defend one heart — and that will happen only if partner is minimum with heart length. As a passed hand, you might risk a bid of two diamonds.

A BRAND NEW WAY TO SEARCH FOR YOUR NEW HOME

IF SEPTEMBER 1 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You need to remember the carpenter's rule during the next six weeks: Measure twice, cut once. You have plenty of enthusiasm and working ability but little patience for precision. Early October is a great time to take a vacation or get inspired to improve your lot, so get out a notebook and jot down your ideas. Late October and early November may be a time when your ambitions come to the forefront and when your knack for turning straw into gold, or to at least get paid for your efforts, is at its height. Avoid criticism by sticking strictly to the rules with everything you do. New friends and opportunities may be a focal point in February.

HOROSCOPE
Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You shine when you adopt a take charge attitude. Tackle the nasty jobs no one else wants to handle. Remain patient if you encounter a brick wall, as the way around it will appear by the end of the day.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Flattery comes and goes, but facts never change. Avoid making agreements or commitments now; what you see might not be what you get. You may regret letting others change your mind.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Cheerleaders cheer you on. It is helpful to know that while you are under intense pressure to perform and pushing hard to reach your goals, you have a loving mate or a friend willing to lend a hand.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Important relationships could require your utmost attention. You may be persuaded to go along with the crowd on important decisions. Get agreements in writing to prevent misunderstandings.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): If you have the urge to follow the Yellow Brick Road, be sure you carry along a pair of ruby red slippers. Ignore the tantalizing lure of big money deals or romantic offers. Appearances may be quite deceiving.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): People find you warm and caring and may bring you their troubles. You are willing to lend an ear or a shoulder to a needy friend. Take a time out from a busy schedule to engage in tender moments.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A pragmatic attitude promotes pleasantries. Your best bet is to rely on the lessons of experience. Tackle detailed or precise work under these stars. A lot can be accomplished in a short amount of time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Disappointment may follow if you give romantic urges their head. You could be too easily bemused by surface appeal. Pressing schedules require your attention. Be more understanding and patient.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Happiness is honey straight from the hive. Busy bees working under pressure will appreciate your efforts to spread good cheer. A donation of time and goods to community projects is highlighted.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Adopt a practical, sensible outlook and stick to routines. Matters that could interfere with the happiness of close relationships might come to your attention. Your tactfulness is a great asset.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Enhance your reputation by being seen in all the right places. Your vitality is at a high point and you can launch successful endeavors. However, pretending to be what you aren't can cause problems.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Small kindnesses result in big appreciation. Even if your special someone is out of sorts, you can bring a smile to his or her face by performing some thoughtful act. Take out the trash or cook a favorite dish.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I generally agree on most major issues. We agree to disagree on the minor ones. But there is one issue I think is major and he thinks is minor — strip clubs. He sees nothing wrong with having women give him lap dances. He compares it to seeing a movie — it's "entertainment."

Abby, I'm not a prude. I wouldn't care if he went to a strip club for a bachelor party, and I don't object about his extensive porn collection. But it makes me feel he isn't getting what he needs from me when he goes to a strip club by himself. I expect my husband to understand and respect my feelings. Is that too much to ask, or am I being unreasonable?

— THAT'S ENTERTAINMENT? IN SALT LAKE CITY

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR "?:" You don't mind your husband going to strip clubs as long as he's with others, and you don't mind him looking at his "extensive porn collection?" It seems as wives go, you're extremely liberal. It's not unreasonable to feel uncomfortable knowing one's spouse is being touched by a scantily clad person of the opposite sex. Because you prefer he not be there alone and he refuses to quit, consider going with him.

DEAR ABBY: I have a good friend who is extremely handsome and well-built. "Kal" is friendly, outgoing and lights up a room when he walks in. Everyone likes him — guys and gals. He makes friends easily and is quite engaging. Girls talk to him and flirt with him, but they don't want to date him.

Kal is 5-foot-7 and everyone says things like, "He's hot!" or, "He's so cute — but he's short." Abby, this man has a great job, makes more than $80,000 a year, owns his own home and drives a nice car. He surfs, snowboards and loves to enjoy life.

I don't get it. If I wasn't already married to a wonderful man, I'd date Kal in a hot minute. I have seen girls swoon over his physique on the beach or at the gym. Is he too short to be considered eligible?

— LOST IN THE LAND OF ALOHA

DEAR LOST: No — he's too eligible to be considered short on anything. The true measure of a man isn't from top to bottom — it's from the eyebrows up. I wish you had sent me Kal's phone number. I know I'll be inundated with letters from interested people.

P.S. Readers, I'd be interested in your thoughts. Does height REALLY matter?

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter just turned 4. She was a "miracle baby" — carried by a surrogate using my embryo. When our surrogate was 4 1/2 months pregnant, I became pregnant. Our second child is a boy.

I have been open about our story, trying to give other infertile couples hope. However, I have noticed that our daughter's ears perk up when I start talking. She often talks about when she was in my tummy, and when her brother was in there, too. I am torn as to whether I should explain the story to her now, or wait until she can really comprehend such a thing. I don't want her to resent me for covering up the truth.

— BLESSED TWICE IN SAN DIEGO

DEAR BLESSED TWICE: At 4, your little girl is too young to be told the technicalities surrounding her birth. Raise the subject when she is older and starting to learn about biology — unless she starts asking questions sooner. If she does, answer her honestly and on an age-appropriate level.

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Concepts Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.
