Auger Falls Park rehabilitation effort nears

Area groups donate thousands to project

Times-News

Auger Falls Park's recovery from the July 22 wildfire that left most of the park charred will soon take a major step forward.

Area businesses, service groups and conservation organizations have rallied to kick-start rehabilitation efforts for the park, owned by the city of Twin Falls, on Sept. 11. Community members are invited to join more than 400 volunteers from The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints to help with reseeding efforts that have received more than $60,000 in donations so far.

"This is Twin Falls at its best," Dennis Bowyer, the city's parks and recreation director, said Thursday.

Around 450 acres of the 550-acre park were burned by the Auger Falls Fire, which also threatened Snake River Canyon rim homes. The reseeding work won't restore all of it, Bowyer said, but will cover as much as possible — some areas on the slope up to the rim would require a helicopter to effectively repair.

The LDS church members had already been looking for a community service opportunity on Sept. 11, Bowyer said. Several other organizations stepped forward to contribute to the effort.

Kimberly-based Conservation Seeding and Restoration donated about $21,000 of native seed, while the Southern Idaho Land Trust donated $18,000 for reseeding.

"Getting the Auger Falls area seeded before this coming winter is of tremendous importance," SILT President Jack Kulm said in a written release, adding that reseeding will help park habitat support native plants instead of cheat grass and other invasive species.

ORCHARD TRAINING AREA — President Barack Obama declared the end of combat operations in Iraq Tuesday night.

You wouldn't know it by watching the soldiers of the 116th Cavalry Brigade Combat Team train for their impending deployment.

The citizen soldiers qualified on squad automatic weapons, gunning down pop-up targets with the machine gun. They practiced VIP protection, quick-drawing their M9 Berettas, aiming at unseen targets and shielding their clients. They worked on spotting and disabling improvised explosive devices, and prepared for all other means of foreseeable action in a place halfway across the world that's

THE 116TH'S SCHEDULE

Today through Sept. 9: Annual training at Orchard Training Area.

Sept. 10-17: Soldiers return home for a week before becoming active-duty.

Sept. 17: Guardsmen become active-duty, moving from the purview of the governor to the president.

Week of Sept. 20: Guardsmen head to Camp Shelby, Miss., for mission-specific training. They will be here for about three months.

Mid-November: Soldiers leave Camp Shelby for Kuwait, heading into Iraq from there.

Appeals court upholds block of BLM rules

By Laura Lundquist
Times-News writer

The U.S. Bureau of Land Management broke three laws in 2006 when trying to amend land-use regulations regarding grazing, the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals concluded Wednesday.

The court upheld most of a federal district court's ruling in its decision, which was enough to ensure that government oversight of grazing operations will not be reduced.

The appeals court found that the BLM had violated two federal laws when it failed to consider the environmental effects of the regulation changes. Therefore, the decision states, the district judge was justified in blocking the changes from taking effect.

For a third law — the Federal Land Policy and Management Act (FLPMA) — the appeals court sent the case back to the district court to reconsider, as the latter overlooked a precedent-setting case from 1984. But any final ruling on that part won't have an effect on BLM regulations.

"We figure the (FLPMA) claim will be dismissed at this point by the district court," said Jon Marvel, executive director of Western Watersheds Project, a case plaintiff. "The case has been decided on other grounds."

In 2006, the BLM drafted 18 amendments to its grazing regulations that decreased public involvement, limited governmental enforcement powers and increased grazing rights. Similar changes were attempted in U.S. Forest Service regulations.

The BLM changes were challenged by a coalition of organizations, including Western Watersheds Project and the Idaho Conservation League. They claimed the changes violated three federal laws: the National Environmental Policy Act, the Endangered Species Act and the FLPMA.

In the meantime, the Public Lands Council — a group representing ranchers throughout the West — and the American Farm Bureau Federation sided with the BLM as defendants.

The district court ruled in favor of the Western

Twin Falls County Fair officials hope for attendance boost after first-day figures

Jerome fair sees 33 percent increase

Pig wrestling, lawnmower races and motocross events have boosted recent fair attendance in the Magic Valley.

The beleaguered economy had some area fair boards worried about attendance. But it seems that despite financial hardships, people are still in need of a little distraction and a bit of fair fun.

The Twin Falls County Fair is in full swing.

Although first-day attendance was down from last year by a little more than 1,000 people, the fair board hopes for attendance to grow over the weekend. Almost 9,300 people took time to take in the fair food, art exhibits, 4-H projects and 38 Special concert on Wednesday.

With Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association rodeos planned for the weekend and the Knights of the Realm tournament riding in with swords ablaze, fair officials have high hopes for Labor Day weekend.

While it may be a slower start for the Twin Falls fair, Jerome County saw a 33 percent increase with the addition of its new motocross night.

“It was our biggest night,” Fair Manager Kathleen Diederich said. “Pig wrestling is always insane and the destruction derby has grown for four straight years in a row.”

Minidoka County fair board secretary Leann Smith said the board was pleased with the turnout this year. That fair doesn’t charge a gate fee, so its attendance estimate wasn’t available Thursday, Smith said. However, the fair board served 1,000 people ice cream donated by the Idaho Dairy Association one night, while a Charlie Jenkins concert was crowded with country music lovers, Smith said.

“Overall, this was our best fair yet,” Smith said. “We were really happy every night.”

Watersheds coalition in June 2007 and blocked the amended regulations. The defendants appealed.

After President Barack Obama’s election in November 2008, the BLM retracted its appeal in December. The Public Lands Council and the American Farm Bureau Federation carried on, but the coalition questioned their standing to continue the appeal.

That resulted in the one bright spot in the appeals court ruling for the ranching interest groups: the judges concluded they did have the right to appeal.

“(The coalition) was trying to keep a stakeholder group from challenging but the court nipped that in the bud,” said Danielle Quist, senior council for public policy at the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Quist said the Federation hasn’t yet decided what its strategy should be following this week’s ruling, but with the new administration, the case may not be worth pursuing.

John Robison, public lands director for the Idaho Conservation League, said he’s been too busy to be aware of the lawsuit’s status — spending time working with ranchers on sales of less-important BLM land that then pay for land purchases in the Owyhee Wilderness.

“I’m glad we weren’t waiting on this before we worked things out,” Robison said. “Litigation has its place, but it’s nice to be able to come together outside the courts.”

- Magic Valley Mall will be open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Flaggers to help control traffic near Canyon Ridge

Times-News

Flaggers will assist traffic near Canyon Ridge High School, as Washington Street North construction will continue when school starts on Tuesday.

The new traffic signal at the intersection of Washington and North College Road will flash red in all directions, creating a four-way stop to allow for safe travel as the school year begins, the Idaho Transportation Department announced on Thursday. Flaggers will assist traffic movement before and after school each day during the next two weeks.

Crews have encountered unforeseen delays, according to ITD, and are completing concrete work in preparation of final paving and median landscaping between Northstar Avenue and Cheney Drive. The light at the North College intersection will resume a normal cycle once North College paving and roadway striping are complete.

DEBCO Construction of Orofino is the contractor for the $6.5 million federally funded project.

Reseed

Mid-Snake Resource Conservation and Development awarded the city a $21,000 grant for seed, while $2,200 for the effort was donated by the Twin Falls Community Foundation.

The U.S. Bureau of Land Management will assist with seed selection, delivery and planting oversight.

Those hoping to aid restoration efforts are encouraged to arrive at 8 a.m. Sept. 11 at the LDS Twin Falls Stake Center, 2085 S. Temple Drive, with gloves and rakes. Parking in the canyon is extremely limited, so participants will be bused to the park, where BLM employees will lead reseeding efforts for four to six hours. Bowyer said he plans to provide water, apples and portable toilets.

The seed mix should actually leave the park looking better and more native than before, Bowyer said. All of the plants — from sagebrush and bitterbrush to seven types of grass — will be native to the area except for two kinds of the grass.

That said, the city will likely have to spread out the work and funds over one or two more years to fully repair the park.

“Don’t expect miracles next year,” Bowyer said.

Iraq

It's when the National Guardsmen open their mouths that the new mission, dubbed Operation: New Dawn, becomes apparent.

"Last time we had soldiers kicking down doors and clearing buildings. That's not our mission anymore," said 2nd Lt. Chellis Dodge, who deployed as a specialist in 2004. "We are definitely on a very defensive mission," he added, noting that offensive strikes are now up to the Iraqi government.

The 116th will largely focus on security details during its year in Iraq, according to brigade leadership. Their training reflects that: VIP escort used to be more-specialized training. It's now commonplace.

Likewise, guardsmen undergoing annual training at the Orchard Training Area on Thursday — before they receive more mission-specific training in Mississippi later this month — said they expect Iraqis to ask for help if they need it, but don't expect to perform U.S.-led attacks on insurgent hold-outs.

Obama emphasized the point in his Tuesday speech.

"This new approach reflects our long-term partnership with Iraq — one based upon mutual interest and mutual respect," he said before a national audience. "Of course, violence will not end with our combat mission. Extremists will continue to set off bombs, attack Iraqi civilians and try to spark sectarian strife."

The numbers indicate that such violence is waning, at least from when the 116th deployed to the country the first time.

According to an analysis by the nonpartisan think

American troops died in Iraq; 47 troops have died in 2010, including non-combat deaths.

None of the guardsmen interviewed for this story said they think Iraq is a safe place, and they said their friends and family are no less worried.

"They're like any parents would be," said Spc. Matt Hawkins, who lives in Rupert but is from Twin Falls. "I think they're nervous about it."

"I think (my wife) is still concerned about it," said Sgt. 1st Class Eric Kulhanek. "Anybody's spouse would still be concerned with safety."

"Anytime their kid is going off to a foreign country with a military force is a little bit unnerving," said 2nd Lt. Laura Newell, whose brother is also deploying with the guard.

The soldiers themselves are filled with a sort of nervous energy. Most who have deployed before said they are excited to see how much Iraq has changed in five years, how many blown-out buildings have been repaired, how the people act now as opposed to then.

"It does give you a sense of pride in that things were a lot different the first time around," Dodge said. "You get to see a bit of cause and effect and see the effect you had."

Longtime CSI trustees face challengers

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

Two longtime College of Southern Idaho trustees face opponents in the Nov. 2 elections.

LeRoy Craig, chairman of the board, and Charles Lehrman, the board's vice-chairman, have been trustees since 1974. Craig first came to the board in September 1974, when he was appointed to fill a vacancy. Lehrman first ran for election in November of that year and took office the following January.

Craig and Lehrman have been chairman and vice-chairman of the board, respectively, since the 1970s.

Karl Kleinkopf is running against Lehrman. Craig has three opponents: Joshua Jackson, Bob Keegan and Catherine Holston.

The winner of each race will have a four-year term on the college's five-member board and take office in January. The election will be decided by voters in Twin Falls County and Jerome County, the college's district.

Trustees are unpaid positions. The board sets policy and has the role of holding the college administration accountable.

The deadline to file nominating petitions was Monday. The petitions to run required signatures from at least five qualified voters.

month at his ranch in Star.

"It's the best eight seconds in the world," he said, shortly before riding into the arena on Lemonade, a brown horse owned by Ken Woods that made an entrance into the 2007 Fiesta Bowl in Glendale, Ariz.

Before the roping, the governor and first lady Lori Otter were two of the riders who entered the arena during the grand entry, part of the ceremonies kicking off the rodeo.

When Otter rode out in his team roping event, he missed the horns and his cowboy hat flew off in a flurry of action. He got a round of applause just the same from a welcoming audience, as did other roping teams who were down on their luck.

Otter has an affection for rodeo sport events, which reflect real-life work on ranches.

"We actually do that job every day on the ranch," Otter said in a recent interview with the Times-News. "We actually do that every day somewhere in Idaho, somewhere in the West."

With team roping, one person ropes the head of a steer and the other ropes a hoof. Out on the ranch, instead of hearing crowds cheer afterward, ranch hands tend to their cattle's needs instead.

"Then you can brand them; then you can doctor them," Otter said. "Then you can trim the horns or whatever you have to do."

That reality sets rodeo sports apart from others, Otter said.

"You don't see people out on the ranch as a job playing football every day, or basketball or baseball," he said. "Now, I played all those sports but rodeo is unique to the West and the western way of life because it was the perfection of your job."

Goats rescued after 2 days on bridge

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — Two young goats were rescued after spending two days stranded on the six-inch ledge of a railroad bridge 60 feet above a road in southern Montana.

Rimrock Humane Society president Sandy Church says it's not clear how the animals got onto the bridge between Billings and Roundup on Tuesday.

She says the nimble-footed goats may have wandered onto the ledge at night then froze once the sun rose and they saw where they were.

She enlisted help from officials at the nearby Signal Peak Energy mine after learning of the goat's plight on Wednesday.

GOP leaders downplay Allred's role in cutting Idaho taxes

By John Miller
Associated Press writer

BOISE — Democratic gubernatorial candidate Keith Allred in 2006 played a major part in boosting a tax break for Idaho homeowners that's reduced their annual payments, despite a Republican attack Thursday contending his role was minimal.

House Speaker Lawrence Denney, R-Midvale, and Senate President Pro Tem Bob Geddes, R-Soda Springs, accused Allred of taking too much credit for efforts to reduce property taxes in 2006, a year when home prices were skyrocketing and many residents were up in arms.

Allred, who at the time led the nonpartisan group The Common Interest, is now running against Republican Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter.

"We think he (Allred) is basically claiming credit for something we did," Denney told The Associated Press. "The impetus for that all came from the interim committee."

But records from the 2006 Legislature, as well as interviews with other Republican lawmakers, show Allred was pivotal in linking a state homeowners tax exemption for owner-occupied homes to the Idaho Housing Price Index, instead of the federal Consumer Price Index.

Making that switch has saved Idaho homeowners millions, because the Housing Price Index has risen faster than the CPI, even taking into account the recent downturn in home values.

Allred declined to criticize Geddes and Denney following their attack, distributed to media outlets across the state.

"I think the errors in today's press release were honest mistakes," Allred said of the leaders' release, which also includes several misspellings — and the contention Otter signed the final 2006 bill.

In fact, the expanded tax exemption was signed into law by then-Gov. Dirk Kempthorne; Otter became governor only in 2007.

The move by Denney and Geddes to take up arms for Otter is emblematic of the GOP's fierce desire to retain the state chief executive's seat that's been firmly in Republican hands since 1994.

Nonetheless, an analysis by The Associated Press shows that linking Idaho's homeowners exemption to the Housing Price Index, as Allred pushed for, has resulted in the exemption rising from $75,000 to $104,471 in 2009. It fell to $101,153 in 2010 and is due to drop again, to just over $92,000 for 2011, amid the moribund housing market, according to Idaho Tax Commission estimates.

Had the Consumer Price Index been used, however, the exemption would hover at $80,000.

In Denney's and Geddes' attack on Thursday, they contend Allred was "involved on a very minimal basis" in the tax exemption debate. Otter's campaign also weighed in.

"The governor's opponent is taking credit for passing a bill that he had nothing to do with," said campaign manager Debbie Field.

Denney and Geddes also said Allred never spoke up during public debate that year.

Former U.S. House hopeful Ward named hospital CEO

POST FALLS (AP) — Former U.S. House hopeful Vaughn Ward has been appointed CEO of a northern Idaho hospital.

Ward

Ward, a Republican who lost to tea party favorite Raul Labrador in the Idaho primary three months ago, will start his new job at Northwest Specialty Hospital in Post Falls on Sept. 27.

"It's exciting to take the next step in our lives and have a chance to live in North Idaho," said Ward, who will become the fourth CEO to run the seven-year-old hospital since 2005.

Ward beat out more than 30 other candidates for the position, the Coeur d'Alene Press reports.

The former congressional candidate and decorated Iraq veteran said his time on the campaign trail allowed him to make connections, which helped lead to the opportunity in northern Idaho.

"Health care is so important to our nation and we're in dire straits with the way we're approaching it," Ward said. "I like the for-profit model Northwest Specialty Hospital utilizes."

Ward will replace outgoing CEO Ron Rock, who is retiring after three years but will remain on staff at the hospital as an anesthetist. Rock, who donated $2,500 to Ward's campaign for Congress, said the former candidate's political experience, leadership and critical thinking skills made him the best person for the job.

"I really admire his character and his service to our country," Rock said.

Wash. woman in acid attack recounts agonizing pain

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Bethany Storro had just bought a pair of sunglasses and was celebrating a new job when a woman walked up to her with a cup and said: "Hey pretty girl, do you want to drink this?"

The woman then splashed acid in the cup on Storro, who stumbled in pain and fell to the ground screaming. She felt agonizing pain as the skin on her face bubbled and sizzled and portions of her blouse disintegrated.

"It was the most painful thing ever," Storro, 28, said Thursday. "My heart stopped. It ripped through my clothing the instant it touched my shirt; I could feel it burning through my second layer of skin."

Police are seeking a black woman with a ponytail in the Monday attack as Storro, with her head wrapped in white bandages, told a news conference Thursday how only days before, she had been celebrating a new job and a recent move to Vancouver, Wash., from Idaho.

But she insisted that she would not let the attack in Vancouver wreck her life, and laughingly marveled how her eyesight was spared just minutes after she bought those sunglasses.

Storro said she had spinal meningitis twice as a child, which robbed her of most of her hearing.

"Oh my gosh, to be hard of hearing and blind? That would drive them nuts," she said, laughing and pointing at her parents, Joe and Nancy Bethany Storro, who was the victim of a random attack Monday in Vancouver, Wash., is flanked by her parents, Nancy and Joe Neuwelt, during a news conference Thursday at Legacy Emanuel Hospital in Portland, Ore.

Neuwelt. "They have to be in the same room for me to hear them. I'm just so glad it's a miracle."

Doctors at Legacy Emanuel Hospital in Portland performed surgery on Storro's face Wednesday night, removing dead skin from the areas that were most deeply injured.

Her mother said Storro was getting something out of her car before heading into a Starbucks when the woman approached her with the cup. Storro said the woman was wearing a green top and khaki pants.

"I have never, ever seen this girl in my entire life," Storro said. "When I first saw her, she had this weirdness about her — like jealousy, rage!"

After the attack, the woman ran off. A passer-by called police using Storro's cell phone.

Dr. Nick Eshraghi, a burn surgeon who operated on Storro, said it was an acid as strong as hydrochloric or sulfuric acid.

Storro said she wanted to find her assailant and ask:

"Why?" Was it a dare, or did the woman wake up Monday morning and tell herself that today, she was going to "carry some acid in a cup and throw it on the first person I see?" Storro said.

Storro said she has received letters and e-mails from people all over the country, and has been relying on her friends, family and faith to get her through this ordeal.

Nancy Neuwelt called the attack "an act of evil." Joe Neuwelt said the family hopes the attacker is found, but is focused on Storro's recovery.

"You can imagine how I feel," Neuwelt said. "This is my little girl. We're going to get through this; we're not going to allow this to stop our lives. We're going to get through it."

Feds sue defiant Ariz. sheriff in civil rights investigation

By Amanda Lee Myers and Paul Davenport
Associated Press Writer

PHOENIX — The Justice Department sued the nation's self-proclaimed "toughest sheriff" on Thursday, calling Joe Arpaio's defiance of an investigation into his office's alleged discrimination against Hispanics "unprecedented." It's the first time in decades a lawman has refused to cooperate in one of the agency's probes, the department said.

The Arizona sheriff had been given until Aug. 17 to hand over documents the federal government first asked for 15 months ago, when it started investigating alleged discrimination, unconstitutional searches and seizures, and jail policies that discriminate against people with limited English skills.

Thomas Perez, assistant attorney general for the department's civil rights division, said it's unfortunate the department had to sue to get the documents, which neither the agency nor Arpaio would describe.

But Arpaio called the lawsuit "aruse" and said the federal government is just trying to score a win against the state, which has found itself at the center of the nation's argument over illegal immigration since passing a law that mirrors many of the policies Arpaio has put into place in the greater Phoenix area.

Maricopa County Sheriff Joe Arpaio speaks to the media Thursday in Phoenix after learning the U.S. Justice Department is suing him. The department says the Arizona lawman has refused for more than a year to turn over records in an investigation into allegations his department discriminates against Hispanics.

"I think they know we have not been racial profiling, so what's the next step — camouflage the situation, go the courts, and make it look like I'm not cooperating," Arpaio said Thursday.

Arpaio said he provided "hundreds of thousands" of reports but hasn't turned over others because the department's request was too broad.

Kevin Ryan, former U.S. attorney for the Northern District of California and a law professor at the University of San Francisco, said he thought the department's characterization of Arpaio's behavior as unprecedented was overstating it.

He said the contentious relationship between the sheriff and the department is no secret.

"You really can't hold it against the sheriff and assume he's guilty because he's not rolling over for the Justice Department," he said.

But Rory Little, a law professor at the University of California Hastings College of the Law who formerly worked at the Justice Department, disagreed, called Arpaio's actions "pretty unusual" because the lawsuit says Arpaio's office signed agreements promising to cooperate with civil-rights investigations and other reviews when it accepted federal law enforcement grants.

Last year, the nearly $113 million that Maricopa County received from the federal government accounted for about 5 percent of the county's $2 billion budget. The lawsuit listed $16.5 million of funding provided Arpaio's office through several programs.

Ariz. governor stumbles during debate

By Paul Davenport
Associated Press writer

PHOENIX — It will go down as one of the most painful openings to a political debate in recent memory.

Gov. Jan Brewer stumbled and stammered through her opening statement during a televised debate Wednesday night, suffering through an embarrassing, cringe-eliciting pause that lasted more than 10 seconds.

With her hands clasped in front of her, she looked at the camera, then down, possibly at notes, and back up at the camera. She smiled, let out a loud exhale, then resumed her statement with a pronouncement of her record as governor.

"We have, uh, did what was right for Arizona," Brewer said, using a grammatical misconstruction she uttered twice during the debate.

Then, she bolted from a post-debate question-and-answer session with reporters after refusing to respond to queries about a past statement about bodies supposedly found beheaded in the Arizona desert.

Video of the pause and the post-debate walkoff from the media scrum quickly became an Internet sensation as Brewer was skewered on political blogs Thursday.

"Jan Brewer: Bumbling politician of the year," salon.com headlined its post. "The rising star governor of Arizona gives a painfully awful debate performance."

Some called it her Stockdale moment, a reference to James Stockdale's bumbling debate performance as H. Ross Perot's running mate in the 1992 presidential race.

Brewer herself acknowledged Thursday during an interview on a talk show on Phoenix radio station KTAR-FM that she could have done better.

"It certainly was the longest 16 seconds of my life," Brewer said of the pause. "I'm human, I'm human."

She said the post-debate questioning by reporters was unfair, but added that leaving as she did might have been "the wrong thing to do."

"But that's how I felt at the moment," she added.

Brewer became governor in January 2009 when her Democratic predecessor resigned in midterm and the Republican drew national attention when she signed the state's controversial immigration law on April 29.

The immigration law turned her into a popular politician among Republicans around the country as she runs for a full term against Democratic Attorney General Terry

Brewer

Goddard. She is heavily favored to win.

Not surprisingly, Brewer said she doesn't think she'll debate Goddard again. He previously challenged her to six debates across the state and his campaign renewed that call Thursday. Goddard said Thursday that Brewer's debate performance "unquestionably" would help him. "The unfortunate result is she's now afraid to do any more debates," he said.

The debate itself was peppered by heated give-and-take jabs by Brewer and Goddard over immigration, the state's budget troubles and a recent prison escape, often with the candidates talking over each other.

Goddard also took Brewer to task over her comments about beheadings in the desert. He said such comments are false and hurting the state's image and economy. That could help neutralize the immigration issue, and Goddard is also attacking Brewer on economic and budget issues.

Patrick Kenney, an Arizona State University professor of political science, said Brewer's stumbles could hurt her, especially with the clip of the pause being replayed all over TV and the Internet.

Cammie King Conlon, Rhett's daughter in 'Gone With the Wind,' dies at 76

By Valerie J. Nelson
Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Cammie King Conlon, who jokingly lamented that she was famous for an experience she barely remembered, portraying Scarlett O'Hara and Rhett Butler's ill-fated young daughter in the film "Gone With the Wind," has died. She was 76.

Conlon, whose brief movie-acting career included voicing the fawn Faline in "Bambi," died Wednesday of cancer at her home in Fort Bragg, Calif., said Bruce Lewis, a friend.

At 4, she was cast as Bonnie

Blue Butler for her resemblance to her film-screen parents — Vivien Leigh and Clark Gable — but her memories of making the epic 1939 Civil War saga were vague.

She had adored the black Shetland pony that she rode and recalled how perplexed she was when she spotted what looked like a little girl, dressed exactly as she was, smoking a cigarette on the set.

The actor was an adult male, a little person who was her stunt double when Bonnie Blue falls from her pony, which causes her death and a pivotal plot point — Rhett's profound depression.

In the death scene that followed, she couldn't keep her eyelids from fluttering and wore a death mask when Gable picked her up. She was so frightened when the mask was being made, her tears left visible imprints on it, Conlon later said.

She also recalled how director Victor Fleming had lectured her to remember her lines.

He said, "Cammie, I have a daughter your age and all these men here have families, too, that depend on them to work here. They need to feed those children. But if you don't say your lines, they can't work," she told the Santa Rosa Press Democrat in 1998.

U of I law school should be in Boise, not Moscow

When the University of Idaho decided to develop a livestock research center, it never considered building it on the campus in Moscow.

That would be silly. According to the 2007 Census of Agriculture, there were fewer than 1,000 milk cows in the 10 counties of the Idaho Panhandle. In 2009, there were 286,700 dairy cattle in Gooding, Jerome and Twin Falls counties alone.

So now that the university's third-year law program in Boise is up and running — classes started this week — why not gradually transition the whole law school from Moscow to the state capital?

Ada and Canyon counties are home of more than half of the practicing attorneys in Idaho — a large percentage of them graduates of the U of I law school. The demand for a southern Idaho law school is obvious.

Idaho is a net importer of legal talent; producing fewer law graduates than is adequate to meet the need in this state. A 2007 survey found nearly two-thirds of students who were admitted to College of Law in Moscow, but chose to go somewhere else, said they would have been more likely to stay in Idaho if a Boise campus had been an option.

Moscow is 320 miles from Boise and 453 miles from Twin Falls. The next-closest law school is the University of Utah (349 miles from Boise and 221 miles from Twin Falls).

The U of I had little choice but to expand to Boise. Portland, Ore.-based Concordia University will soon open a law school in Boise, with an initial enrollment of about 100, eventually expanding to about 250 students. That would be on par with the enrollment at the U of I Law School in Moscow.

The number of U of I law graduates hasn't increased significantly in the past 30 years. That's a recipe for stagnation.

The university's planning consultant recommended a single statewide law school with unified administration and curricular design. The state constitution requires the school of law be based in Moscow, but that wouldn't necessarily prelude moving most of its operations to Boise if the Legislature agrees.

And why shouldn't it? Relocating the law school to Boise wouldn't take anything away from the U of I any more than the university's Twin Falls Research and Extension Center detracts from the Moscow-based College of Agricultural and Life Sciences.

A full-fledged Boise program would energize U of I Law. Its graduates have long been at the center of Idaho politics and government — three of the five members of the Idaho Supreme Court and two of the four justices on the Court of Appeals are Idaho law school alumni, as were five of the last nine state attorneys general.

U of I Law, in collaboration with the Idaho Supreme Court, hopes to develop an Idaho Law Learning Center in Boise. It would be home to the university's legal educational program, the Idaho State Law Library, judicial education offices and public outreach programs.

Sounds to us like the perfect place to move Idaho's only law school.

Don't let the Internet sell out

On the Internet, when I send my ones and zeros somewhere, they shouldn't have to wait in line behind the ones and zeros of wealthier people or corporations. That's the way the Net was designed, and it's central to a concept called "net neutrality," which ensures that Internet service providers can't pick favorites.

Recently, though, big telecommunications companies have argued that their investment in the Net's infrastructure should allow them more control over how it's used. The concerned nerds of the world are up in arms, and there's been a long, loud public debate, during which the Federal Communications Commission appeared to develop a plan to preserve net neutrality.

The FCC's latest action on the question came partly in response to a federal appeals court ruling in April that appeared to limit the agency's authority over Internet service providers. In May, FCC Chairman Julius Genachowski issued a plan to classify the Internet under Title II of the 1934 Communications Act. In English, that means the agency would be legally recognizing a fact so obvious that I feel silly even typing it: We use the Internet to communicate. With that radical notion established, the FCC would have jurisdiction to protect the public interest on the Net, including enforcing neutrality. But the FCC hasn't followed through, and the corporations involved are trying to take the reins before the public servants do.

The first volley, earlier this month, was a proposal from Google and Verizon. The part they'd like us to notice, and the part I was thrilled by, is where they say there shouldn't be paid priority for the transmission of Internet content, meaning all legal data should be treated equally. Hear, hear, Googrizon! We, the stuff-making, freedom-loving, innovation-crazed citizens of the Internet, could not agree more.

Unfortunately, a couple of parts of the proposal radically contradict the noble principle outlined above.

First, Google and Verizon would like to exempt wireless Internet, which leads one to wonder just how dumb they think we are. Everyone's heard that the future of the Web is all wireless, but in truth, the present of the Web is all wireless. We are already deep in the iPad/BlackBerry/Android era, and there's no going back.

Second, the companies slipped in a doozy of an idea for what seems like a hypothetical "fast lane" apart from the "public" Internet. Big bucks could gain access to this separate, specialized service, guaranteeing faster delivery of corporate ones and zeros. Essentially they are saying: Don't worry, there would be no "paid priority," except in the instances where you could pay for priority.

Let me tell you why I take this so seriously. I've spent a decade working in the music industry, a business in which creativity and innovation take a distant back seat to money, and everyone loses, even the big guys themselves. They have insulated themselves from change for so long, they've dug their own grave.

Both as a musician and as a music fan, I've always wanted to see the best and most exciting musical ideas rise to the top. But we all know the story of the music business: Success is bought more often than earned. Smart money looks for low risks, so the safest, blandest music attracts the most investment, and only the safest, blandest music makes it to the airwaves and the shelves at Wal-Mart. Creative, innovative artists toil in obscurity.

Music is subjective, of course, so you don't have to agree with my assessment of what's innovative and what's trash. But business is less so, and the past decade of the music industry is as clear an example as you can find of what happens when the depth of pockets, not the quality of ideas, is the arbiter of success. It's been like a corporate version of the Three Stooges: absurd flailing, spectacular myopia and willful ignorance of reality. Now that the big record companies have made themselves obsolete, bands such as mine can make a better living without their help than we can with it.

The lesson is that insider's clubs don't nurture the best ideas, which is the whole point of markets: Competition is supposed to keep everyone on their toes.

The Internet is the purest marketplace for ideas that the world has ever seen, and the amazing power of such a level playing field has revolutionized everything. Google knows this better than anyone. It started in a garage and became an industry leader by having great ideas, not mountains of cash. And it's wonderful: The Internet works! It rewards innovators such as Google, and it relegates protectionist, defensive, idea-squashing fogies such as record companies to the dustbin of history.

Now that the Internet has been around long enough to have developed its own giants, though, we need to make sure they don't ruin what's great about the technology that made them. I hope Google keeps succeeding, but it must be because of the power of its ideas, not its power to tilt the playing field.

Five myths about mosques in America

In addition to spawning passionate debates in the public, the news media and the political class, the proposal to build a Muslim community center near Ground Zero in New York has revealed widespread misconceptions about the practice of Islam in this country — and the role of mosques in particular.

1. Mosques are new to this country.

Mosques have been here since the colonial era. A mosque is literally any place where Muslims make salat, the prayer performed in the direction of Mecca; it needn't be a building. One of the first mosques in North American history was on Kent Island, Md.: Between 1731 and 1733, African American Muslim slave and Islamic scholar Job Ben Solomon, a cattle driver, would regularly steal away to the woods there for his prayers — in spite of a white boy who threw dirt on him as he made his prostrations.

The Midwest was home to the greatest number of permanent U.S. mosques in the first half of the 20th century. In 1921, Sunni, Shiite and Ahmadi Muslims in Detroit celebrated the opening of perhaps the first purpose-built mosque in the nation. Funded by real estate developer Muhammad Karoub, it was just blocks away from Henry Ford's Highland Park automobile factory, which employed hundreds of Arab American men.

2. Mosques try to spread sharia law in the United States.

In Islam, sharia ("the Way" to God) theoretically governs every human act. But Muslims do not agree on what sharia says; there is no one sharia book of laws. Most mosques in America do not teach Islamic law for a simple reason: It's too complicated for the average believer and even for some imams.

Islamic law includes not only the Koran and the Sunna (the traditions of the prophet Muhammad) but also great bodies of arcane legal rulings and pedantic scholarly interpretations. If mosques forced Islamic law upon their congregants, most Muslims would probably leave — just as most Christians might walk out of the pews if preachers gave sermons exclusively on Saint Augustine, canon law and Greek grammar.

3. Most people attending U.S. mosques are of Middle Eastern descent.

A 2009 Gallup poll found that African Americans accounted for 35 percent of all Muslim Americans, making them the largest racial-ethnic group of Muslims in the nation. It is unclear whether Arab Americans or South Asian Americans are the second-largest. Muslim Americans are also white, Hispanic, Sub-Saharan African, Iranian, European, Central Asian and more — representing the most racially diverse religious group in the United States.

Mosques reflect this diversity. Though there are hundreds of ethnically and racially integrated mosques, most of these institutions break down along racial and ethnic lines. Arabs, for instance, are the dominant ethnic group in a modest number of mosques. And according to a 2001 survey (the most recent national survey on mosques available) by the Council on American-Islamic Relations, they represented the plurality in only 15 percent of U.S. mosques.

4. Mosques are funded by groups and governments unfriendly to the United States.

There certainly have been instances in which foreign funds, especially from Saudi Arabia and the Persian Gulf region, have been used to build mosques in the United States. The Saudi royal family, for example, reportedly gave $8 million for the building of the King Fahd Mosque, which was inaugurated in 1998 in Culver City, a Los Angeles suburb.

But the vast majority of mosques are supported by Muslim Americans themselves. Domestic funding reflects the desire of many U.S. Muslims to be independent of overseas influences. Long before Sept. 11, 2001 — during the Persian Gulf War, for instance — Muslim American leaders decided that they must draw primarily from U.S. sources of funding for their projects.

5. Mosques lead to home-grown terrorism.

To the contrary, mosques have become typical American religious institutions. In addition to worship services, most U.S. mosques hold weekend classes for children, offer charity to the poor, provide counseling services and conduct interfaith programs.

No doubt, some mosques have encouraged radical extremism. Omar Abdel Rahman, the blind Egyptian sheik who inspired the World Trade Center's first attackers in 1993, operated out of the Al-Salam mosque in Jersey City, N.J. But after the 2001 attacks, such radicalism was largely pushed out of mosques and onto the Internet.

There is a danger that as anti-Muslim prejudice increases alienated young Muslims will turn away from the peaceful path advocated by their elders in America's mosques.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

New policy limits senior citizen access to fair activities

As a senior citizen who relies heavily on an electric assisted vehicle for daily, local transportation, I was rather shocked when the Twin Falls County Fair security informed me today that I could not use my small, electric, 40-pound tricycle to enjoy the spread-out activities of this year's annual 2010 Twin Falls County Fair, unlike the previous five years I've done so — without issues or complaints.

It is also disturbing that the fair manager, Mr. John Pitz, didn't address his concerns in person but instead chose to direct others to ask me to leave the grounds, again without reason or cause.

So those of you who, like me, rely on low-speed, electric-assisted vehicles, be advised that you'll probably be asked to leave.

KENNETH SCHMOE
Filer

(Editor's note: John Pitz, fair manager, said electric scooters are against fair policy unless the rider has a handicap sticker. Letting people ride because they don't want to walk presents too much of a liability, he said.)

Use common sense when voting for school superintendent

Please take this short quiz to determine if your common sense is still intact. In the following situations, circle whom you would ask for help.

For a leaky faucet, I would ask a (banker, plumber). If my car won't start, I'll ask my (mechanic, lawyer). My pet is sick so I'll contact the (veterinarian, store manager). To make my yard beautiful, I would find a good (doctor, landscaper). As my child goes through school, I would consult with a(n) (businessman, educator).

Answers: 1) plumber, 2) mechanic, 3) veterinarian, 4) landscaper, 5) educator.

Dr. Stan Olson is a veteran educator with 40 years' experience. Mr. Tom Luna is a businessman. Common sense has no political party. Idaho voters should elect Dr. Olson as state superintendent of public instruction.

Voters thanked for their support of Wendell school bond

On Tuesday, Aug. 17, the patrons of the Wendell School District No. 232 approved a $9.8 million bond to build a new elementary school.

The School Board would like to thank our patrons for the support demonstrated for this new construction project. We as district administration recognize this outstanding community that has shown such commitment to the education of the students in the Wendell School District.

Kudos to the District Facilities Committee that spent so many hours researching, communicating and analyzing the facility needs of our district.

The motto for this project has been "Build One School, Build Our Future."

To all of our patrons, be assured that staff and administration will continue to work with our community to ensure that we are indeed building our future through effective education for our students.

Illegal immigrants shouldn't be rewarded with better education

Who's dream?

I read the letters to the editor written by Alonzo Lemus and Juan Carlos R. Goni.

First, I see nothing wrong with immigrants going to college to better themselves. I don't feel most people would have a problem with this. But I do have a problem with illegal immigrants doing so. I don't feel the taxpayers should pay for school for anyone that is here illegally.

You see, being here illegally means that they have committed a crime by being here in the first place and not going through proper channels.

I don't believe we should reward lawbreakers and that's what illegal immigrants are. That is what illegal means, people. Illegals should be entitled to only two things — jail and/or deportation. If immigrants want to come here, then it must be by legal and proper means.

The great governors' tax smackdown

Governors don't usually brawl, but this year seems to be the exception.

When Massachusetts Gov. Deval Patrick proudly scheduled a two-day sales-tax holiday for his citizens this month, just in time for back-to-school shopping, Gov. John Lynch of New Hampshire punched back with a reminder that New Hampshire levies no sales tax at all. To rub it in, Lynch travelled to Baron's Major Brands, an appliance retailer located practically within inches of the Massachusetts state line. Citizens of Massachusetts, Lynch belted over the border, ought to remember that "in New Hampshire, every day is a sales-tax holiday."

A similar contest rages between Gov. David Paterson of New York and Connecticut Gov. Jodi Rell. The New York Legislature had a plan to treat any carried interest earned by hedge-fund employees who commute into the state as income, subject to the state's high income-tax rates.

As Bloomberg has reported, Rell penned hedge-fund executives a smarmy letter inviting them to put their offices in the Nutmeg state. "I would like to convey a simple, yet, heartfelt message: Connecticut welcomes you."

Amity Shlaes

There are other contests across the nation, statistically documented by the Tax Foundation. As Bill Ahern of the Foundation notes, "Nevada plays New Hampshire to California's Massachusetts."

What's up here? Many economic experts, including conservative ones, have long contended that marginal changes in tax rates don't weigh as heavily as other aspects of economic decision-making. The environment has changed. If you study the 2010 state tax brawls, you can see their import stretches far beyond their respective regions, even beyond U.S. borders.

The most visible reason for the escalation is the increase in federal-tax rates that will come in 2011. Barack Obama's administration has made it clear it will raise the statutory top rate to 39.6 percent, with all the additional taxes going up, including a wicked health-care-related levy on unearned income.

The federal government is itself, of course, thinking of taxing carried interest as income shortly. That likelihood is what originally emboldened Paterson. As a result of the federal push upward, any diminution in state taxes becomes precious to companies, employees and consumers.

The second aspect at work here is recession. When you have less money, you care more about the sales tax or taxes paid on behalf of employees. When you have no job, your time is cheaper, and a drive across a border to get a break on a new washing machine suddenly begins to make sense.

The third aspect is political identity. States are like siblings. They have trouble remembering who they are unless they are competing with a brother or a sister. To feel good, states need someone else to feel better than. A tax race provides that opportunity to beat someone else.

And that state competitiveness results in a benefit for all citizens, not just those who live in the tax-cutting state. Other topics preoccupied Rell this spring. But spying Paterson's weakness, and the readiness of the hedge funds to pack up their terminals and ergonomic chairs, Rell couldn't resist some tax fun. Paterson and his income-tax blunder made her political day. Her constituents won, too, for their carried-interest cash was now less likely to confront a tax increase.

Rell won't want to look like a hypocrite. She may have even helped New York because Paterson, wounded by his Rell battle, retreated from the plan for carried interest. Maybe not permanently, since Paterson doesn't believe in low taxes as a creed. He only moved due to the competition. Still, Paterson will be warier next time.

This leads us to the most important competition of all, that involving nations. Britain has played the competitor role for Europe at times, and played it well. But the United States has also mattered. Though corporate taxes are high, the general tax burden in the U.S. is lower than the levels in the European Union. In economic heft and population terms, the U.S. is the best match for Europe.

When President Obama and Congress raise taxes, they make Europe's day. But they don't make Europe's decade, or its century. For without the U.S. to goad them, Europe's politicians — like Paterson, hardly tax-cutters by temperament — will surely raise taxes eventually. And they will do so because they don't have the U.S. to beat them.

Working for wages that don't pay the bills

Already in the news is the brewing fight between Democrats and Republicans over what Congress should do about the expiring Bush tax cuts. Whether the richest Americans continue to get a break on income taxes will endlessly rivet cable television's talking heads and Washington politicians before the midterm elections, but the issue is not going to engage many Americans lower down the income pyramid.

The simmering anger driving voters this election season concerns jobs — good jobs — and a growing frustration that the country's leaders don't have a plan to resurrect the American Dream. President Barack Obama was elected to be bold and push liberal answers to this problem. His unimpressive poll numbers say he hasn't done enough.

Bringing that message home is the new documentary Homeless: The Motel Kids of Orange County. The HBO film by Alexandra Pelosi, daughter of House Speaker Nancy Pelosi, offers an arresting portrait of America's paycheck-to-paycheck life as seen through the eyes of the kids who live it.

Orange County, Calif., is one of the wealthiest areas of the country. It's where Bravo's The Real Housewives of Orange County show off their indulgent lifestyles in their big-dollar homes. Meanwhile, 6-year-old Rudee sleeps between her parents in a run-down motel room because her father's mechanic pay isn't enough for an apartment. And Celine, age 10, and brothers Dilan and Ben, 9 and 7, are crowded into a single motel room with their parents and another sibling. Dad lost his job and mom works night shifts at a hospital making a little over $11 per hour. She can't give up working nights because the extra dollar and change per hour is essential income for the family.

The documentary features working parents whose jobs pay so poorly — though more than the federal minimum wage — that they can't provide a basic standard of living for their children. One widowed mom of four kids figured out she would have to earn double her hourly pay in the parking department of Disneyland to afford a stable home.

No one should work 40 hours and still be unable to afford decent shelter, food, transportation and health care, but this country allows it. And it's no accident. It's deliberate public policy. How this has happened and what can be done is the focus of "Not Just More Jobs — But Good Jobs," a special report in the upcoming edition of the American Prospect. According to co-founding editor Robert Kuttner, multiple factors got us here: Government retrenched on labor-market regulation. This allowed the minimum wage to tank in value, and union busting to become a look-the-other-way affair. Globalization expanded without government insisting on symmetrical rules to protect workers, thereby ending the tacit social contract between labor and management that workers were not to be treated as disposable cogs of production. In short, for more than 30 years the U.S. government has failed workers.

What can be done to undo the damage without legislative action, since Republicans will oppose anything pro-worker? Kuttner suggests that the most consequential immediate action Obama could take is to start using government's buying power to reward good labor practices. It must be big-time, governmentwide, and high-profile.

One in every four jobs in the economy is influenced by federal procurement, whether it's foodstuffs for the military or Medicaid payments to nursing homes. Jobs in these industries could be transformed tomorrow if contracts were awarded only to employers who paid living wages, provided benefits, respected labor laws and didn't interfere with unionizing.

As Congress fights over tax breaks for millionaires, the administration could be changing the economic prospects of millions of low-skilled workers. Boosting pay and working conditions for, say, nursing home workers under new Medicaid rules could provide real hope to the working poor parents such as Rudee's, Dilan's and Ben's. It could start raising the pay floor for this country's laborers, so their kids no longer have to sleep on a floor.

Temporary cap that stopped oil gusher removed

By Harry R. Weber
Associated Press writer

NEW ORLEANS — Engineers removed a temporary cap Thursday that stopped oil from gushing into the Gulf of Mexico from BP's blown-out well in mid-July. No more oil was expected to leak into the sea, but crews were standing by with collection vessels just in case.

The cap was removed as a prelude to raising the massive piece of equipment underneath that failed to prevent the worst offshore oil spill in U.S. history.

The government wants to replace the failed blowout preventer first to deal with any pressure that is caused when a relief well BP has been drilling intersects the blown-out well.

Once that intersection occurs sometime after Labor Day, BP is expected to use mud and cement to plug the blown-out well for good from the bottom.

The April 20 rig explosion killed 11 workers and led to 206 million gallons of oil spewing from BP's well. BP was leasing the rig from owner Transocean Ltd.

As the cap was slowly removed at 3:25 p.m. MDT, hours after a pipe latched to the top of it, there was no sight of anything spewing into the water. Undersea video feeds showed the cap suspended in the water. BP planned to place the cap on the seafloor nearby.

With the cap gone, the old blowout preventer can be removed and a new one put in place before engineers try to seal the well for good deep underground.

Once the blowout preventer is removed, a lot will be riding on the stability of a plug that was created when mud and cement were pumped down into the well from the top. Essentially, the pressure exerted downward served to counter the pressure coming up.

But Rice University engineering professor George Hirasaki said there is still uncertainty about whether the cement settled everywhere it needed to in order to keep oil and gas from finding its way up.

"Just because it didn't flow when they tested it doesn't mean the cement displaced all of the oil and gas," Hirasaki said.

That's why many people have felt that finishing a relief well and pumping mud and cement in through the bottom would be the ultimate solution to the crisis, said Hirasaki, who was involved in the oil containment effort in the Bay Marchand field off Louisiana after a rig burned in the early 1970s.

The government still plans on ordering BP PLC, the majority owner of the well, to do the so-called bottom kill operation. But it believes the wisest course is to put on a new blowout preventer first to deal with any pressure that is caused when the relief well intersects the blown-out well.

Oil platform explodes, burns off Louisiana coast; crew rescued

By Alan Sayre
Associated Press writer

NEW ORLEANS — An oil platform exploded and burned off the Louisiana coast Thursday, the second such disaster in the Gulf of Mexico in less than five months. This time, the Coast Guard said there was no leak, and no one was killed.

The Coast Guard initially reported that an oil sheen a mile long and 100 feet wide had begun to spread from the site of the blast, about 200 miles west of the source of BP's massive spill. But hours later, Coast Guard Cmdr. Cheri Ben-Iesau said crews were unable to find any spill.

The company that owns the platform, Houston-based Mariner Energy, did not know what caused the fire. Mariner Energy's Patrick Cassidy said he considered the incident a fire, not an explosion.

"The platform is still intact and it was just a small portion of the platform that appears to be burned," he said.

Mariner officials said there were seven active production wells on the platform, and they were shut down shortly before the fire broke out.

Louisiana Gov. Bobby Jindal said the company told him the fire began in 100 barrels of light oil condensate.

The Coast Guard said Mariner Energy reported the oil sheen. In a public statement, the company said an initial flyover did not show any oil.

Photos from the scene showed at least five ships floating near the platform. Three of them were shooting great plumes of water onto the machinery. Light smoke could be seen drifting across the deep blue waters of the gulf.

By late afternoon, the fire on the platform was out.

The platform is in about 340 feet of water and about 100 miles south of Louisiana's Vermilion Bay. Its location is considered shallow water, much less than the approximately 5,000 feet where BP's well spewed oil and gas for three months after the April rig explosion that killed 11 workers.

Responding to any oil spill in shallow water would be much easier than in deep water, where crews depend on remote-operated vehicles to access equipment on the sea floor.

A Homeland Security update obtained by The Associated Press said the platform was producing 58,800 gallons of oil and 900,000 cubic feet of gas per day. The platform can store 4,200 gallons of oil.

White House press secretary Robert Gibbs said the administration has "response assets ready for deployment should we receive reports of pollution in the water."

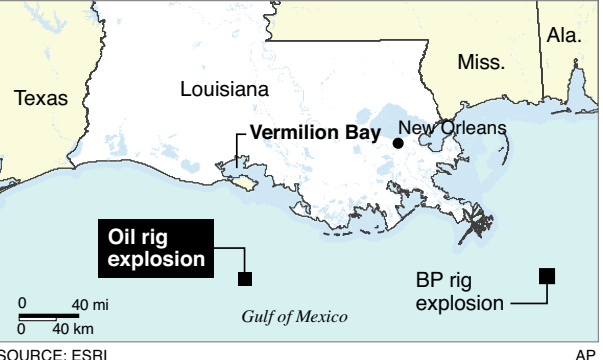

All 13 of the platform's crew members were res-

Boats spray water on an oil and gas platform that exploded off the coast of Louisiana in the Gulf of Mexico on Thursday. All 13 crew members were rescued.

cued from the water. They were found huddled together in life jackets. The captain of the boat that rescued the platform crew said his vessel was 25 miles away when it received a distress call Thursday morning from the platform.

The Crystal Clear, a 110-foot boat, was in the Gulf doing routine maintenance work on oil rigs and platforms. When Capt. Dan Shaw arrived at the scene of the blast, the workers were holding hands in the water, where they had been for two hours. They were thirsty and tired.

"We gave them soda and water, anything they wanted to drink," Shaw said. "They were just glad to be on board with us." Shaw said the blast was so sudden that the crew did not have time to get into lifeboats. They did not mention what might have caused the blast.

"They just said there was an explosion, there was a fire," Shaw said. "It happened very quick." Crew members were being flown to a hospital in Houma. The Coast Guard said one person was injured, but the company the survivors. He would not identify them except to say most were from Louisiana.

Environmental groups and some lawmakers said the incident showed the dangers of offshore drilling, and urged the Obama administration to extend a temporary ban on deepwater drilling to shallow water, where this platform was located.

"How many accidents are needed and how much environmental and economic damage must we suffer before we act to contain and control the source of the danger: offshore drilling?" said Rep. Frank Pallone, a New Jersey Democrat.

Troops kill 25 in gunbattle near border

By Mark Walsh
Associated Press Writer

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP) — A shootout between soldiers and suspected drug cartel members in northeastern Mexico left 25 purported gunmen dead Thursday, the military said.

A reconnaissance flight over Ciudad Mier in Tamaulipas state spotted several gunmen in front of a property, according to a statement from Mexico's Defense Department.

When troops on the ground moved in, gunmen opened fire, starting a gunbattle that killed 25 suspected cartel members, according to the military. The statement said two soldiers were injured but none were killed.

Earlier, a military spokesman had said the shootout happened when troops on patrol in the town of General Trevino, in neighboring Nuevo Leon state, came under fire from a ranch allegedly controlled by the Zetas drug gang.

The spokesman, who was not authorized to be quoted by name, said the troops returned fire at a ranch, known as "The Stump."

Authorities rescued three people believed to be kidnap victims in the raid, according to the statement.

The military said troops seized 25 rifles, four grenades, 4,200 rounds of ammunition and 23 vehicles.

Drug violence has claimed more than 28,000 lives since President Felipe Calderon intensified a crackdown on cartels after taking office in late 2006.

The Zetas began as a gang of drug assassins but have since evolved into a powerful cartel.

Federal loan programs fill farm funding void

By Laura Lundquist
Times-News writer

The government has opened up more grant opportunities to farmers, who coincidentally are finding it harder to secure loans from banks hesitant to risk the funds they have.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture announced a new loan program Thursday to help farmers pay for conservation projects. The program was part of the 2008 Farm Bill to provide “official conservation-type grants,” and took some time to come online, said Lance Phillips, executive director of the Farm Service Agency’s Twin Falls County office.

But, Phillips said, it couldn’t have come at a better time.

“It’s great that we can get loans out to people, but it reflects the tough economic times that we’re the ones having to do it,” Phillips said.

Idaho FSA Executive Director Dick Rush said the banking community has become cautious when making loans, especially for conservation projects where the benefits aren’t immediately realized. So the FSA provides the loans to help farmers pay for any project approved by the U.S. Natural Resources Conservation Service, including adding forest cover, installing water conservation measures, adding or improving permanent pastures, and improving manure processing and removal.

Both the FSA and NRCS have programs that pay half of a conservation project’s cost. But in a tough economy, fewer farmers can pay their share. The conservation loan program can help.

“We don’t want people to stop doing conservation just because they can’t come up with their half right now,” Phillips said.

Direct conservation loans can be obtained through local FSA offices with loan limits up to $300,000. If farmers can find an FSA-associated lender, they can receive guaranteed loans of up to $1.1 million.

This loan follows on the heels of the first application period in four years for the Conservation Reserve Program. The August signup was short-noticed and brief. If approved for a 10-year CRP contract, farmers are paid to plant their fields with native species that benefit the soil, water and wildlife. Phillips said his office received 25 inquiries but only about half applied.

“Nationally, it looks like it might be down a bit,” Phillips said. “But the program changed a lot, adding wildlife elements that made it a little more difficult to compete.”

Phillips said land in the Twin Falls area scored a little lower than he was hoping, but farmers may still be approved depending on who else applied. Because USDA automated the process, it’s easier and faster so applicants should know in the next few weeks if they were approved.

Another 12 million acres are poised to expire soon under the CRP program. So, Phillips said FSA

Recession talk quieted by improving economic data

By Christopher S. Rugaber
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — The feeble economy exhibited a smidgen of strength Thursday, with mildly positive reports on jobs, store sales and housing.

Figures released on unemployment claims, store sales and home-buying contracts all trend in the right direction, tempering fears that the economy is on the brink of another downturn. Still, growth remains anemic, and a report Friday is forecast to show that employers have yet to step up hiring.

For now, companies aren’t resorting to widespread layoffs. New applications for unemployment benefits declined for the second straight week after rising in the previous three to above the half-million mark.

While homes languish on market, owners forced to become landlords

By Greta Guest
Detroit Free Press

DETROIT — A growing number of homeowners are finding out what it means to be a landlord after failing to sell their homes in one of the worst housing slumps in history.

With home prices down nationwide, many don’t want to take a huge loss when they decide to move. They want to wait to see whether they can rebuild their equity. So they rent.

“People just really don’t want to be landlords, and they really have no choice,” said Dennis Dickstein, a Realtor at Real Estate One in Farmington Hills, Mich., who estimates that 20 percent of his deals are leases.

Mark and Rhonda LaVelle decided to buy a bigger home while the market was down. The couple had a 1,100-square-foot house in Royal Oak, Mich., to sell but decided to move when they found a 2,300-square-foot home about 2 miles away.

They started renting their house in January after it had been on the market nine months.

“After paying two mortgages and the house wasn’t moving, we were at a point where we would have to sell it at a substantial loss or get someone else in who could pay the mortgage,” said Mark LaVelle, 38, a freelance cameraman.

He and Rhonda LaVelle, 37, a television-news producer, turned the leasing over to his real estate agent.

“It’s been a great experience. We’re getting the full mortgage payment from the tenants,” Mark LaVelle said. “My wife just wanted to wash her hands of the whole thing. She looks at it like a liability. I look at it as an investment.”

But it’s not always moving up that sparks a home rental. Sometimes it’s a life change, such as marriage, college graduation, divorce or death in the family.

Discounts spur surprising Aug. retail sales gains

By Anne D’innocenzio
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — This year’s back-to-school season isn’t as big a bust for retailers as they feared — or as last year’s — but it’s not great either.

Americans are spending only when the item and price are just right, according to August reports from major chains released Thursday that showed shoppers bought a little more than a year ago.

Analysts expect stores will need to keep discounting to get shoppers to spend this fall and for the holiday season while they grapple with job worries and tight credit.

“It’s a glimmer of hope that the numbers are coming in ahead of low expectations,” said Ken Perkins, president of research firm RetailMetrics. “But the back-to-school shopping season isn’t anything to get excited about. It means that Santa may not be dumping a huge lump of coal, but it sets up a very promotional holiday season.”

LONDON — The chief of the U.N.’s telecommunications agency urged the Canadian manufacturer of the BlackBerry to allow law enforcement agencies access to customer data, saying that governments all over the world had legitimate security concerns which should not be ignored.

The International Telecommunication Union agency’s Secretary-General Hamadoun Toure said that all governments engaged in the fight against terrorism had the right to demand access to users’ information from the maker of the BlackBerry — Research in Motion Ltd.

“Those are genuine requests,” he told The

BLACKBERRY BRIEF

THE ARGUMENT: BlackBerry’s Canadian manufacturer should give law enforcement agencies around the world access to its customer data, the U.N. telecommunications chief said.

THE RATIONAL: Government officials have the right to demand access to users’ information from the maker of the BlackBerry — Research in Motion Ltd. — because of the imperative of fighting terrorism.

THE DISPUTE: Privacy advocates say that the crackdown has been fueled by frustration within authoritarian governments over their inability to eavesdrop on citizens.

Associated Press on Wednesday. “There is a need for cooperation between governments and the private sector on security issues.”

RIM has said it complies with all legal requests, but is unable to provide anyone with the text of e-mails sent using its corporate service, which is designed from the ground up for secure communications.

The International Telecommunication Union is responsible for coordinating the use of the global radio spectrum, promoting international cooperation in assigning satellite orbits, and establishing standards for the telecommunications industry. The little-known body also serves as a global forum for discussion of cutting-edge communications issues.

The agency has no independent regulatory power, but Toure’s comments are a barometer of sentiment among the agency’s 192 member states, who are expected to re-elect him to a second term later this year.

At least five of those members — India, Indonesia, Lebanon, Saudi Arabia, and the United Arab Emirates — are already considering banning some BlackBerry services over concerns that the devices’ powerful data encryption could be used as a cover for terrorist and criminal activity. Civil libertarians have argued that the controversy is in fact fueled by authoritarian governments’ inability to eavesdrop on BlackBerry-using citizens.

Economy

“This is something of a relief, because it suggests that the 504,000 claims number from two weeks ago was a fluke rather than an indication that the trend has suddenly surged higher,” said Ian Shepherdson, chief U.S. economist at High Frequency Economics.

If claims don’t rise from their current level, that “would be consistent with ... very sluggish growth rather than a double-dip recession,” he added.

Claims for unemployment aid fell last week by 6,000 to a seasonally adjusted 472,000, the Labor Department said. There would be far fewer claims in a healthy economy. When economic output is growing rapidly and employers are hiring, claims generally drop below 400,000.

The Labor Department is forecast to report today that private businesses added a net total of only 41,000 jobs last month, the fourth straight month of anemic hiring. When government jobs are included, total payrolls are forecast to drop by 100,000 — based mostly on about 115,000 temporary census jobs ending.

The jobless rate is projected to rise to 9.6 percent from 9.5 percent, according to Thomson Reuters. Many economists expect growth to proceed at such a weak pace that the unemployment rate could top 10 percent by next year.

Retail sales

Retailers that cautiously primed for a comeback five months ago as sales improved have been scaling back their hopes and making some tweaks to their merchandise again, analysts said. And stores will face more difficult comparisons starting this month because consumer spending had started rising by last September.

But Thursday’s reports helped ease fears of another double dip recession, which have been stoked in recent weeks by a barrage of negative economic reports, including slumping home sales.

The International Council of Shopping Centers said Thursday that its index of 31 major retailers rose 3.2 percent for August. That’s a tad better than the 3 percent forecast but it barely compensates for a 2.0 percent drop a year ago.

For most of stores releasing comparisons, they cover the four weeks that ended Aug. 28. Back-to-school shopping stretches from late July through mid-September, but recession-scarred consumers have been shopping later, waiting for the best deal.

Burger King sets sights overseas after $3.26B sale

CHICAGO — Burger King’s new ruler could help its empire expand.

Burger King Holdings Inc. sealed a deal Thursday to sell itself for $3.26 billion to 3G Capital, an investment firm with strong ties to Latin America. The fast-food chain’s chairman and CEO, John Chidsey, said the deal will help it expand more rapidly overseas.

Chidsey, who will become co-chairman of the company after the tender offer is complete, said the $24-per-share deal also brings 3G Capital’s experience and contacts abroad. “Hopefully they’ll be able to even provide more of an accelerant to the fire,” he told The Associated Press.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 50.63, or 0.5 percent, to close at 10,320.10.

Broader indexes also rose. The Standard & Poor’s 500 index rose 9.81, or 0.9 percent, to 1,090.10, while the Nasdaq composite index rose 23.17, or 1.1 percent, to 2,200.01.

The Labor Department said first-time claims for unemployment benefits fell slightly last week, but remain well above levels that indicate a healthy economy. Claims dipped for the second straight week. They fell slightly below the level economists had forecast, which was somewhat encouraging ahead of today’s monthly employment report.

The number of buyers who signed contracts to purchase homes rose 5.2 percent in July after hitting a record low in June, according to the National Association of Realtors. Sales plummeted in the months following the expiration of the government’s home buyer tax credit in April and economists were expecting that trend to continue for a third straight month.

Hopeful sign: More talks for Israel, Palestinians

By Matthew Lee and Robert Burns
Associated Press writers

WASHINGTON — In an early sign of promise, Israeli and Palestinian leaders pledged Thursday in a cordial first round of talks to keep meeting at regular intervals, aiming to nail down a framework for overcoming deep disputes and achieving lasting peace within a year.

As their facilitator-in-chief, Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton urged Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu and Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas to rise above the suspicion and skepticism that has blocked peace efforts for decades. “By being here today, you each have taken an important step toward freeing your peoples from the shackles of a history we cannot change,” she said.

The eventual aim is the creation of a sovereign Palestinian state beside a secure Israel.

Thursday’s results, in the first face-to-face peace talks between Israelis and Palestinians in nearly two years, were modest — and acknowledged as such by all sides. There was no detailed negotiation on any substantive issue, according to George Mitchell, the administration’s special envoy for Mideast peace, who held months of preparatory talks and was a participant in most of the day’s discussions.

Netanyahu and Abbas will meet again on Sept. 14 and 15 in the Middle East, probably at the Egyptian Red Sea resort of Sharm el-Sheik, with Clinton and Mitchell attending. The two also agreed to meet roughly every two weeks after that — sometimes with U.S. officials present, other times not.

Mitchell offered no timeline for agreeing on the initial framework, which he said was to be “less than a full-fledged treaty” but more detailed than a statement of principles.

A major obstacle is looming: Israel’s moratorium on Jewish settlement construction in the disputed West Bank is due to expire Sept. 26. The Palestinians have said that unless the freeze is extended, the fledgling peace talks will collapse in short order.

In his public remarks Thursday, Netanyahu made no reference to an extension;

Abbas called for an end to settlement expansion, but he raised the matter in the context of both sides living up to commitments, including a Palestinian pledge to end all incitement of violence against Israelis.

That’s not entirely under Abbas’ control.

Gunmen from the militant Palestinian Hamas movement killed four Israeli residents of a West Bank settlement on Tuesday. And, on Wednesday, hours before the leaders had dinner with President Barack Obama and Clinton at the White House, Hamas gunmen wounded two Israelis as they drove in another part of the West Bank.

Hamas rejected the talks and stepped up its rhetoric as the ceremony in Washington began.

“These talks are not legitimate because the Palestinian people did not give any mandate to Mahmoud Abbas and his team to negotiate on behalf of our people,” said Sami Abu Zuhri, a spokesman. “Therefore, any result and outcome of these talks does not commit us and does not commit our people, it only commits Abbas himself.”

In Washington, the atmosphere was mostly upbeat.

In his opening remarks, Netanyahu at one point turned to Abbas and said, “I see in you a partner for peace. Together, we can lead our people to a historic future that can put an end to claims and to conflict.”

Abbas struck an optimistic tone, too. “We’re not starting from scratch,” he said, noting that all the central issues in dispute are well known.

Both cautioned, however, that hard decisions lay ahead.

When the two leaders had finished their introductory remarks, they shook hands, a smiling Clinton seated between them.

In a plea for both sides to compromise, Clinton said the Obama administration has no illusions about a quick breakthrough.

“We’ve been here before, and we know how difficult the road ahead will be,” she said. “There undoubtedly will be obstacles and setbacks. Those who oppose the cause of peace will try in every way possible to sabotage this process, as we have already seen this week.”

Earl weakens but still powerful as it smacks N. Carolina

By Mike Baker
Associated Press writer

BUXTON, N.C. (AP) — The last ferry left for the mainland and coastal residents hunkered down at home as Hurricane Earl closed in with 105 mph winds Thursday on North Carolina’s dangerously exposed Outer Banks, the first and perhaps most destructive stop on the storm’s projected journey up the Eastern Seaboard.

The hurricane’s squalls began to lash the long ribbon of barrier islands Thursday night. Gusts above 40 mph made signs shake and the heavy rain fall sideways in Buxton, the southeastern-most tip of the Outer Banks.

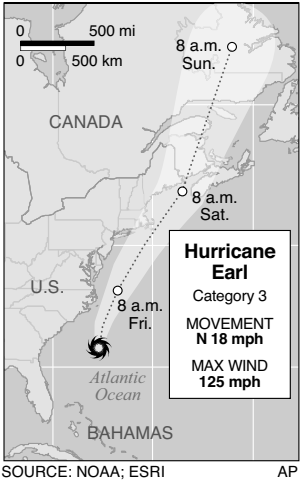

Hurricane Earl’s winds were slowing, from 140 mph early Thursday to 105 mph, Category 2 strength, by late Thursday. But forecasters warned that it remained powerful, with hurricane-force winds of 74 mph or more extending 70 miles from its center and tropical storm-force winds of at least 35 mph reaching more than 200 miles out.

“It’s interesting to me to just see what Mother Nature can do,” said Jay Lopez, 36, of Frisco, as the wind howled through Buxton.

Federal, state and local authorities were waiting for daybreak to begin patrolling the coast to check for damage.

The Coast Guard planned an airplane flyover of the Outer Banks and were prepared for search-and-rescue helicopter flights. State transportation officials were waiting to check Highway 12, which connects the Outer Banks with the mainland, for washouts and downed trees.

National Weather Service

meteorologist Hal Austin said the eye of the hurricane was expected to get as close as 55 miles east of the Outer Banks about 2 a.m. Friday. The coast is expected to be lashed by hurricane-force winds for a couple of hours with a storm surge of up to 5 feet and waves 18 feet high.

“It’s spitting rain. It’s probably going to get a little hairy. We’re prepared for it. My biggest concern is the ocean, not the wind,” said Karen Denson Miller, who decided to stay on Hatteras Island with friends. The storm late Thursday was about 100 miles south of Cape Hatteras.

Earl’s arrival could mark the start of at least 24 hours of stormy, windy weather along the East Coast. During its march up the Atlantic, it could snarl travelers’ Labor Day weekend plans and strike a second forceful blow to the vacation homes and cottages on Long Island, Nantucket Island and Cape Cod. Forecast models showed the most likely place Earl will make landfall is western Nova Scotia, Canada, where it could still be a hurricane, said hurricane center deputy director Ed Rappaport.

75-year-old mystery: L.A. police ID owner of trunk containing 2 skeletons

By Thomas Watkins
Associated Press writer

LOS ANGELES — Investigators have identified the owner of a trunk in which the mummified remains of two babies were found, bringing them a step closer to solving the intriguing international mystery.

The owner of the steamer trunk, abandoned for decades in the basement of an apartment building, was Janet M. Barrie, a Scottish immigrant who was born in 1897 and worked as a nurse in Los Angeles before moving to Vancouver, where she died, officials said Thursday.

Confirming her identity will help investigators as they try to solve the puzzle of the abandoned remains found wrapped in sheets and nestled in doctor bags amid scrunched up copies of 1930s newspapers.

The coroner’s office has been unable to determine how the babies died, and it may never be known why they were placed in the trunk or who put them there. DNA tests are currently under way to see if the babies were related to each other.

Investigators with the coroner’s office tracked down Barrie’s nieces and nephews in Canada. The family members have agreed to submit DNA samples to see if they are related to the babies, said a law enforcement official who asked not to be named because the investigation was ongoing.

The abandoned trunk was found Aug. 17 by two women clearing out an apartment building basement that was filled with items that accumulated during years of remodels.

The trunk was like a time capsule from the 1930s, containing a pearl necklace, an iron with a thick electric cord, a giraffe, a figurine, books, photos, documents and a cigar box painted with depictions of saints.

The women found the babies when they peeked into the doctors bags. It is not known if they had been born alive or had been miscarried or aborted.

One of them, a girl, was about the age of a newborn and extremely well preserved. She had thick brown hair and her arms lay by her sides while her legs were folded up to her chest, the law enforcement official said.

The other baby was much smaller and in worse condition, and could have been a fetus or born prematurely. There were no signs of trauma to the babies.

Speculation was heightened because the trunk contained Peter Pan memorabilia, and Barrie shared the same initials as the character’s creator, James M. Barrie, leading some to wonder if there was a connection.

Police on Thursday ruled out any immediate links to the Scottish author.

The name on the trunk was Jean Barrie but investigators established the owner’s name was Janet after reading letters and postcards from relatives. Coroner’s investigator Joyce Kato traced surviving Barrie family members to Canada by studying an online ancestry database and census forms and by examining immigration forms and other items from the trunk.

Several amateur sleuths and genealogy enthusiasts contacted the coroner’s office to offer help, but much of their information was based on the name Jean, not Janet, so turned out to be wrong, Kato said.

Investigators are working on a number of theories about why someone would put the babies in a trunk.

Barrie worked as a private nurse in the home of dentist George Knapp, mainly looking after his wife Mary Downs Knapp. After the wife died of breast cancer in 1964, Barrie married George Knapp and stayed with him until his death in 1968.

After her husband’s death, Barrie moved to Vancouver, where she died of natural causes in 1995, the law enforcement official said.

COMMUNITY NEWS

Walmart helps 10 O'Leary teachers buy supplies

Walmart is helping 10 teachers from Vera C. O'Leary Middle School purchase much-needed classroom supplies through its Teacher Rewards program. Each teacher will receive a $100 Teacher Rewards Card at a ceremony at 8:15 p.m. today at the school.

Walmart stores, distribution centers and Sam's Club locations are awarding the $100 cards to more than 45,000 educators nationwide through the Teacher Rewards program this fall.

Canyonside school accepts applications

Canyonside Christian School is currently accepting enrollment applications for the 2010-11 school year.

The school offers four-day, full-day preschool programs for children ages 3 to 4; four-day, full-day kindergarten programs; first- to fifth-grade elementary classes; and summer programs. It also has before- and after-school programs.

Classes start Sept. 7. Canyonside Christian School has provided academic excellence in a Christian environment since 1990. It is a non-denominational, evangelistic Christian school.

Information: 324-3444, www.canyonsidechristian-school.net or visit 820 E. Nez Perce in Jerome.

Creative courses offered at CSI

The College of Southern Idaho's Community Education Center is offering several non-credit arts and creativity courses for personal enrichment, including:

"Beginning Sewing," taught by Kaysie Schreiner, will be from 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesdays, Sept. 7-28, in CSI Shields 214. Students learn the basics of sewing, including running a sewing machine, simple mending, hemming and alteration techniques. The class will also construct a simple household project such as a grocery bag dispenser.

Registration is $55 plus a $5 materials fee payable to the instructor.

"DIY: Indoor/Outdoor Water Features," taught by Robert O'Donnell, will be from 7 to 9 p.m. Sept. 10 and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sept. 11 in CSI Shields 106. This creative class covers, from beginning to end, the skills and materials necessary to create a professional water feature, including ponds, pondless tabletop fountains and bird baths. Registration is $60 plus a $10 supply fee payable to the instructor.

Register: 732-6442 or communityed.csi.edu.

BYU-Idaho slates religion class

BYU-Idaho's Community Connection is sponsoring a non-credit adult religion class, "Doctrine and Covenants," taught by Mark Peterson.

The class will be from noon to 1 p.m. each Tuesday and Thursday beginning Sept. 7 at the Burley LDS Institute, located at 17th Street and Park Avenue in Burley.

Military support group to meet

The Magic Valley Military Support Group will have its first fall meeting at 5:30 p.m. Sept. 12 at Don and Sharla Dunn's home, 300 E. Ave. D, Wendell. Barbecue, hamburgers and hot dogs, condiments, drinks and table service will be provided; please bring a side dish or dessert.

Please RSVP by Sept. 10. Information: Sharla, 536-6159, or Sharon, 536-6111.

Recovery for Life groups will gather

Recovery for Life groups will meet every Monday night beginning Sept. 13 at the Twin Falls Reformed Church, at the corner of Pole Line Road and Grandview Drive North.

Groups include Divorce Care, Grief Share, Financial Peace (getting out and staying out of debt), HOPE 12-step program (substance-abuse recovery), Co-Dependency for Men and Women, Parenting Skills, and First Place-4-Health (Bible-based weight management and fitness). All groups meet at the church at 7 p.m. A meal is available from 6 to 6:45 p.m.

Special Parents-Special Kids, a support group for parents and special-needs kids, meets the first Monday of each month.

Free childcare and a shuttle are available.

Call 733-6128 for more information.

Cassia Co. to host Child Find screening

Parents or guardians of 3- or 4-year-old children experiencing speech, physical, mental or emotional difficulty are encouraged to contact the Cassia Joint School District Office in Burley to schedule an appointment for a free Child Find screening on Sept. 17.

Children who attend private or home schools are eligible and encouraged to attend the screening.

The purpose of the screening is to determine if a child is eligible for the district's special-education preschool program or other special-education services. Children who have a disability may attend the preschool or receive special-education service free of charge.

For an appointment, call Michele Knopp at 878-6627, ext. 101, between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. Only children and parents who have appointments will be screened.

USDA SITE MANAGER HONORED

Courtesy photo

Wally Hedrick, right, USDA Rural Development Idaho state director, presents Troy Hurd with an award for being the agency's Idaho site manager of the year for family housing. Hurd is the site manager and maintenance worker for the Evergreen Village Apartments in Gooding, the location of Tuesday's award ceremony. Forty to 45 people attended the event, officials said, including Evergreen Village tenants, Gooding city and state officials, and local representatives of Idaho's congressional delegation. The housing project, owned by Boise Housing Corp. and managed by Tomlinson and Associates, provides 20 units of subsidized housing in Gooding. Hurd was honored for accomplishments that include a recent rehabilitation of the apartment complex, and creating through new policies and improved playground and picnic areas an atmosphere where many tenants socialize and have become friends. Hurd has been fair, honest and courteous to both tenants and the community, officials said.

SOMEBODY NEEDS YOU

Drivers — The Retired and Senior Volunteer Program needs volunteer drivers, age 55 and older, in Twin Falls, Jerome and Gooding to take senior citizens to medical appointments and for grocery shopping. Volunteers are reimbursed mileage and covered by excess insurance. Information: Edith, 736-4764.

Donations — The College of Southern Idaho Refugee Center is collaborating with Troy Dewsnup for his Eagle Scout project. Dewsnup is collecting new and gently used adult-sized bikes through Tuesday; he will repair the bikes and donate them to the refugee center. Refugees new to the U.S. often rely on bikes as their only source of transportation to jobs and for grocery shopping. To donate a bike: Dewsnup at 423-5088. Information: CSI Refugee Center, 736-2166 or 1526 Highland Ave. E., Twin Falls.

Volunteers — The AARP Tax-Aide Program needs volunteers to provide tax assistance and preparation services from Feb. 1 to April 15. Volunteers with good computer skills are needed to assist with filing electronic tax returns in the Gooding, Jerome, Burley and Rupert areas. Training will be held from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturdays, beginning Sept. 11 through Nov. 13 at the College of Southern Idaho's Evergreen Building, Room C93. Information: Jim Simpson, 733-1808 or simpsonjim@cableone.net.

Volunteers — The Easter Seals Goodwill GoodGuides program is part of a national mentoring program providing guidance to boys and girls ages 12 to 17. Volunteer opportunities in the Magic Valley include mentors, speakers, tutors, activity directors and mentor leaders. Information: Tristan or LeWayne, 736-2026 or 2469 Wright Ave., Twin Falls.

Drivers — Twin Falls Senior Citizens Center needs volunteer drivers for the home-delivered meals program for the homebound. Drivers do not have to be seniors to volunteer to drive one or two days a week for an hour to an hour and a half. The center needs people who can be relied on for their appointed routes and who care about the well-being of the elderly. Reimbursed mileage for gas is available. Information: Joanna, 734-5084, or 530 Shoshone St. W., Twin Falls.

Volunteers — St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center needs volunteers to assist in a variety of positions. Qualifications include being friendly, compassionate individuals; the ability to set priorities, such as punctuality, dependability and responsibility; the physical ability to walk, stand and sit for a period of time; and the ability to take the initiative and be flexible, assuming different roles as needed to provide help or comfort to patients, visitors and staff. Information: Kim, 737-2006, or St. Luke's Volunteer Services Office, Fifth Floor, 650 Addison Ave. W., Twin Falls.

Volunteers — Guardian Home Care and Hospice needs volunteers in the Twin Falls, Jerome, Gooding, Glenns Ferry and Burley areas to assist with patient care: sit with patients, play games and read to patients, or help in the office. Information: Nicole, 736-0900.

Volunteers — Hospice Visions needs volunteers to help make a difference in the lives of caregivers and those experiencing end-of-life issues. Volunteers provide companionship, bring joy during difficult times and ease burdens by writing letters, singing, playing cards and games, reading, working with junior volunteers or being a friend. Information: Flo, 735-0121.

Opposition defiant disorder might be the reason for family unrest

DEAR DR. GOTT: My son has oppositional defiant disorder (ODD), and he seems to scheme to upset the peace in our home. Once there is a blowup, he gets a little half smile on his face. What is a parent to do to fix this?

DEAR READER: All children and teens have moments when they can be difficult, moody and/or argumentative. This is perfectly normal. However, when tantrums, arguing and angry or disruptive behaviors (especially toward the parent/guardian and other authority figures) become regular occurrences, ODD may be the reason.

Symptoms are hard to distinguish from normal behaviors of strong-willed or emotional people. In fact, the symptoms of ODD are the same as behaviors expected during certain stages of a child's development. When these behaviors become persistent, are clearly disruptive to the family, home or school, and have lasted at least six months, ODD must be considered.

ASK
Peter H. Gott

Negativity, defiance, hostility toward authority figures and disobedience are common with ODD and lead to temper tantrums, academic problems, anger, resentment, or argumentative, spiteful or vindictive behavior with adults and aggressiveness toward peers. There may be deliberate annoyance of others, blaming others for mistakes, difficulty maintaining friendships, easy annoyance, acting irritably and refusal to comply with adult rules or requests. ODD often accompanies other problems, such as depression, anxiety and attention deficit/hyperactivity disorder (ADHD).

There is no clear cause, but it is thought that is likely the result of a combination of inherited and environmental factors.

Possible risk factors include having a parent with a mood or substance-abuse disorder; exposure to violence; lack of supervision; being abused or neglected; having parents with a severely troubled marriage; family financial problems; inconsistent or harsh discipline; lack of positive parental involvement; parents with a history of ADHD, ODD or conduct issues; and family instability, such as multiple moves, school changes or the use of childcare providers.

Diagnosis is not made through blood or other physical testing. A child must meet certain criteria set by the American Psychiatric Association. In order to have a positive diagnosis, the child must show a pattern of abnormal behavior for six or more months (as compared to what is typical for the child's peers) and meet at least four of the eight criteria. The behavior must also cause significant problems at work, home or school; must occur on its own rather than as part of another mental disorder; and must not meet the diagnostic criteria for conduct disorder or antisocial personality disorder (in those over age 18).

Treatment of ODD typically involves several types of psychotherapy and training for the child and parents. Medication to treat any associated conditions, such as ADHD, may also be used. Individual and family therapy can help the child manage anger and express feelings, as well as help the family understand how the child is feeling. It can also and provide a safe, neutral environment for the family to discuss concerns, and learn how to cope and work together. Parent-child interaction therapy (PCIT) teaches parents how to interact with their children in order to bring out their best behavior without stressing the parent and straining the (likely) already tenuous relationship. Training may include social-skills training, which teaches the child how to interact with others in a positive manner; parent training similar to PCIT; and cognitive problem-solving training, which aids the child in identifying patterns that lead to behavioral problems and thus change them.

I believe the best approach to the situation is for your entire family to seek out some or all of the treatment options I've detailed. In this way, everyone can come to understand what is happening and how best to handle problems when they arise.

Mozambique riots spotlight world food price spike

By Donna Bryson
Associated Press writer

JOHANNESBURG — A few pennies' increase in the price of a loaf of bread can mean the difference between getting by and going hungry — and erupting in anger — in the world's poorest countries.

A spike in food prices has triggered deadly riots in Mozambique this week, and experts worry other countries that saw such unrest during the last global food crisis in 2008 could be hit again. Over the last two months alone, food prices worldwide have risen 5 percent.

"I think everyone is wondering if we are going to have a repeat of 2008 when ... there were food riots around the world," said Johanna Nesseseth Tuttle, director of the Global Food Security Project at the Center for Strategic and International Studies in Washington.

Countries from Asia, to the Middle East to Europe are feeling the strain.

— In Egypt, where half the population depends on subsidized bread, recent protests over rising food

Rising prices

International food prices rose 5 percent in August, reaching their highest level in two years, according to the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization.

prices left at least one person dead. The crisis could impact upcoming parliamentary elections because the regime's increasingly tenuous legitimacy rests on its ability to provide the masses with cheap bread.

— In Pakistan, the prices of many food items have risen by 15 percent or more following devastating floods that destroyed a fifth of the country's crops and agricultural infrastructure. Flooding has also hit distribution networks, leading to shortages.

— In China, officials are threatening to punish price gougers, while in Serbia, a 30 percent hike in the price of cooking oil reported for next week has led to warnings of demonstrations by trade unions.

In downtown Dakar, Senegal, 29-year-old security guard Djiba Sidime recalled going to the market to buy a bag of rice and finding it had spiked from around $30 to $38.

The increase is no small matter in a country where most people get by on around $4 a day. To make up the difference, Sidime said he won't be able to buy new clothes to mark the end of Ramadan later this month.

"Of course, I'm frustrated," he said.

International food prices have risen to their highest levels in two years, the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization said Wednesday, reporting a 5 percent increase between July and August alone. The Rome-based agency also forecast this year's wheat crop at 648 million tons, down 5 percent from 2009, reflecting a cut in drought-hit Russia's harvest.

However, there are few parallels between today and the 2008 food crisis, which was blamed on high oil prices and growing demand for biofuels that pushed world food stocks to their lowest levels since 1982, according to Maximo Torero, an expert on markets and trade with the International Food Policy Research Institute.

The United States, Canada and other countries have had good harvests and supplies are sufficient, Torero said, adding that what must be avoided are panicky policy decisions, like banning exports.

In Mozambique's case, he said, higher prices set by the government were based on monetary exchange issues, not concerns about world supplies.

Mozambicans saw the price of a loaf of bread rise 25 percent in the past year — from about four to five U.S. cents, and fuel and water costs also have risen.

The increases have had a dramatic impact in a nation where more than half the population lives in poverty. Mozambique ranks 175th of 179 countries on the U.N. Human Development Index, a measure that takes into account health and education levels as well as income.

Per capita income in the southeastern African country is just $802, compared to $9,757 in South Africa, where many Mozambicans have fled in search of work.

Still, the country has recovered from a devastating civil war that broke out after independence from Portugal in 1975 and lasted for 17 years. From 1994 to 2006, it saw annual GDP growth of about 8 percent. Mozambique is relatively stable and a popular tourist destination, particularly for visitors from South Africa.

The trouble this week started Wednesday in the capital, Maputo. Protesters, most of them young men, started marching peacefully but then began throwing stones, burning tires and looting shops.

Police opened fire, and tourists and business people were trapped in their hotels or at the airport as mobs cut off the airport road. At least seven people were killed and scores injured.

Hawking says God not needed for creation

By Jennifer Quinn
Associated Press writer

LONDON — Did creation need a creator?

British physicist and mathematician Stephen Hawking says no, arguing in his new book that there need not be a God behind the creation of the universe.

The concept is explored in "The Grand Design," excerpts of which were printed in the British newspaper The Times on Thursday. The book, written with fellow physicist Leonard Mlodinow, is scheduled to be published by Bantam Press on Thursday.

"The Grand Design," which the publishers call Hawking's first major work in nearly a decade, challenges Isaac Newton's theory God must have been involved in creation because our solar system couldn't have come out of chaos simply through nature.

But Hawking says it isn't that simple. To understand the universe, it's necessary to know both how and why it behaves the way it does, calling the pursuit "the Ultimate Question of Life, the Universe, and Everything."

"We shall attempt to answer it in this book," he wrote. "Unlike the answer given in 'The Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy,' ours won't be simply '42.'"

The number 42 is the deliberately absurd answer to the "Ultimate Question" chosen by sci-fi author Douglas Adams.

Hawking, who is renowned for his work on black holes, said the 1992 discovery of another planet orbiting a star other than the sun makes "the coincidences of our planetary conditions ... far less remarkable and far less compelling as evidence that the Earth was carefully designed just to please us human beings."

In his best-selling 1988 book "A Brief History of Time," Hawking appeared to accept the possibility of a creator, saying the discovery of a complete theory would "be the ultimate triumph of human reason — for then we should know the mind of God."

But "The Grand Design" seems to step away from that, saying physics can explain things without the need for a "benevolent creator who made the Universe for our benefit."

"Because there is a law such as gravity, the Universe can and will create itself from nothing," the excerpt says. "Spontaneous creation is the reason there is something rather than nothing, why the Universe exists, why we exist. It is not necessary to invoke God to ... set the Universe going."

Hawking retired last year as the Lucasian Chair of Mathematics at Cambridge University after 30 years in the position. The position was once held by Newton.

PERRINE BRIDGE FESTIVAL ADDS APPEAL FOR ALL

BASE jumper Marshal Miller does a backflip off the Perrine Bridge during the 2009 Perrine Bridge Festival in Twin Falls. The festival — with a bigger variety of activities than ever — returns for its fifth year next weekend.

Family activities expand to include evening concert, kayak races, raffle

By Ariel Hansen
Times-News writer

In its fifth year, the Perrine Bridge Festival continues to grow, adding events to excite all ages.

The highlight, as in past years, will be the edgy sports — more than 50 BASE jumpers will keep the Perrine Bridge busy next weekend, and local celebrity jumper Miles Daisher plans to please fans of the parachute.

Above the bridge, skydivers will help launch the opening ceremonies on Sept. 11, and beneath, on the river, kayakers and canoeists will sprint a 7-mile course in the festival's first Paddle Pull on Sept. 10.

"We're expecting a lot of participation in that, because a lot of people are coming from Boise for it," said festival coordinator Sandy March.

Also new this year is an evening concert dubbed "Dancing on the Edge," featuring Boise-based High Street

LABOR DAY IN THE WOOD RIVER VALLEY

In the big wagons' wake you'll find antiques, live music, duck racing

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — Most people just get cake and ice cream for their birthday.

Kate Lewis got a parade featuring Ketchum's behemoth ore wagons for hers.

The townspeople of Ketchum trotted out the tall, skinny historical wagons to celebrate the 84th birthday of the widow of freight line founder Horace Lewis in 1958. And when the spectacle gave Ketchum's economy a shot in the arm following the closure of the nearby Triumph Mine, they decided to do it again.

Today that parade has grown into the biggest Labor Day celebration for hundreds of miles around with a plethora of concerts, antique fairs and horse riding demonstrations.

The parade, which organizers say is the biggest non-motorized parade in the Pacific Northwest and one of the biggest in the nation, draws up to 17,000 people to see the ore wagons.

Palmer Lewis, whose uncle ran the ore wagons up and down Trail Creek Summit, eschewed purchase requests from Disney, Anheuser-Busch, Knotts Berry Farm and even Six Flags over Georgia, opting to give them to the city of Ketchum instead. But with one condition: that the city parade them through the streets of Ketchum every year to commemorate the area's mining heritage.

"It still gives me goose bumps to see these wagons roll through town over Labor Day Weekend — especially since we've gone back to using the mules and jerkline," said Ivan Swaner, a Hailey native who has been part of Wagon Days since the first one in 1958.

"It's a step back in time, really," said Ketchum cowboy Ron Brans, who rides alongside the wagon. "Our wagons are phenomenal. Even the Borax wagons — they're really just a lead wagon and a water wagon. Ours stretch 200 feet long with the wagons and 20 mules out in front."

The Ketchum parade starts at 1 p.m. Saturday. And the city of Bellevue will follow it up with its own parade at 1 p.m. Sunday.

Stefany Mahoney said Bellevue hopes to have 75 parade entries this year, including a bunch of antique tractors, up from 50 last year. And that's just one piece of the Bellevue Labor Day Weekend celebration.

Bellevue's Brickhouse Bar and Grill, 202 S. Main St., is hosting a street dance featuring the rock 'n' roll band Hoodwink from 8 to 11 p.m. Saturday.

Dallas Alice, a rootsy folk/country/rock band from Louisville, Ky., will headline Sunday's concerts in the Bellevue City Park following the parade. And Sound County will end the weekend on Monday with old- and new-style country with an edgy alternative rock punch that has earned it spots opening for such crooners as CMA winner Rodney Atkins.

More than 20,000 rubber ducks are expected to take a swim in the Big Wood River on Sunday during the Wagon Days Duck Race, said Josh Fields, Ketchum/Sun Valley Rotary Club president.

The duck race will get under way at 1 p.m. with music and kids activities in Ketchum's Rotary Park. At 3 p.m. the ducks will be Combo, which plays a variety of dance-friendly genres, and a beer garden. This extends the weekend event from its signature family-friendly daytime atmosphere to a more adult Saturday-night vibe.

“That’s going to bring in a different crowd, and we hope a very giving crowd,” March said.

Over the past five years, the festival has expanded from one day to three, providing more opportunity for residents and visitors to find an activity they like, and more opportunity to donate to the St. Luke’s Magic Valley Health Foundation’s restricted Special Needs Fund.

“What the foundation is most excited about is, while the Perrine Bridge Festival started as a one-day event, it’s sprawling now over several days, and it’s high-lighting family fun,” said Rebecca Southwick, events coordinator for the foundation. “It’s a fun, daredevil event, but it really goes to children with special needs.”

Events organizing company Grand Event, co-owned by March and Pam Wright, is coordinating the festival for the first time this year, and the two have tried to minimize the festival’s overhead so more proceeds go to the Special Needs Fund.

So they have asked for more in-kind donations than in past years.

“Because of that, we have saved $20,000, so what we’re getting (in proceeds) we’re going to keep,” March said.

Although many cash donors of past years have been unable to do the same this year, March said, many have offered gift certificates instead, or helped the organizing committee find replacement funds.

“We’re lucky, the Magic Valley is very giving. When they get behind something like this, they’re going to try to give any way they can,” she said. “There are a lot of people who have been able to fill those holes, fill those gaps for us.”

While much of the event is made possible through sponsorships, donations at and fees for the festival’s events add up to help the special-needs kids.

Kids launch themselves into the fun run at the 2009 Perrine Bridge Festival. The festival raises thousands of dollars a year to help children with disabilities, and this year it has expanded to include events to appeal to all ages.

“All the entertainment is free, though we’re doing fundraisers so we hope people will give throughout the day,” March said. “People are looking for things to do, and this is a great event.”

Whom does this festival help? Families grateful for foundation grants for special-needs kids

After the Perrine Bridge Festival’s expenses are paid, the money raised all goes into a restricted fund of the St. Luke’s Magic Valley Health Foundation to help children with special needs.

Up to $500 is granted to a family to help fill the gaps between insurance coverage and out-of-pocket costs.

“Let’s say a child needs a new wheelchair. Most of these families are pretty strapped for cash, maybe they need 500 extra dollars that’s not covered,” said Perrine Bridge Festival coordinator Sandy March. The funds can also go toward expenses like speech or occupational therapy, equipment or other uncovered costs.

“When one of your kids has special needs, that’s a huge amount of money,” said Rebecca Southwick, events coordinator for St. Luke’s Magic Valley Health Foundation. “You would be amazed at how many grateful phone calls I get from people who get that grant.”

Among the recent recipients is Alice Atwood of Twin Falls and her 5-year-old son, Qiansunya, whom she adopted from Mongolia a few years ago. In addition to a cleft palate and other surgically correctable disabilities, Qiansunya has sensory difficulties. Tags in the collar of his shirt, for example, make him scream in pain, and he fails to accurately judge his position in space, sometimes getting too close or too far away for tasks he needs to accomplish.

“I asked for help and it was available,” Atwood said, grateful she didn’t have to take additional time away from her son beyond her two full-time jobs to pay for sensory treatment. With the $500 grant from the foundation, Qian is attending occupational therapy that would otherwise not have been covered by insurance.

“It was one added thing I could not take on, but it is time sensitive, so it was real important that he get it,” Atwood said. “They’re doing some sensory programs with him to help him be aware of space, and it’s really been incredible.”

For Sariah Pearson of Hagerman, a $500 grant has helped her keep her 14-year-old son, Torsten, in speech therapy for his severe stuttering. Before receiving the grant, the family spent its tax refund on his therapy, but that was only enough for intermittent treatment.

“His therapist said he really needed to have continuous sessions, and she pointed us in the direction of this foundation. It really helped us supplement what we were putting out of pocket toward speech therapy,” Pearson said. “They were very easy to work with; I was happy to find out it wasn’t going to be tons of hoops to jump through.”

Leaving a recent session with the speech therapist, Pearson said the professional is pleased with the progress Torsten is making, and credits the foundation with helping her afford his treatment.

dumped off the Warm Springs Bridge into the river. Those who have adopted ducks for $5 each will be eligible for such prizes as a million dollars, a trip for two to Seattle, get-away packages at Sun Valley Resort, a Sun Valley 20/20 ski pass, a night for two at Redfish Lake Lodge and a barbecue for 20 people if their duck is among those crossing the finish line first.

And the annual Silver Car Auction will have an array of treasures, including a 1988 Rolls Royce, a 1932 Ford Hi-Boy replica with a wooden steering wheel and a Volkswagen Thing that’s bubblegum pink with plum wheels and a roll bar.

This year visitors are advised to look to the skies, as well as the streets, as the U.S. Paragliding Nationals and Pre-Paragliding World Cup is taking place on Baldy. Up to a hundred paragliders will take off the top of Bald Mountain sometime after 10:30 each morning, vying to see who can reach specified targets fastest.

Two tandem paragliding teams are expected to perform a BASE jump into Ketchum before the Big Hitch parade on Saturday.

It’ll add a new twist to a turn-of-the-century theme.

Sunday’s bands include Up a Creek, a Bellevue-based, shed-bred group of fellows playing southern Idaho folk ‘n’ roll. Also, Joshua Tree, a Boise quartet that performs the country/folk/bluegrass music and harmonies of Emmylou Harris and the late Gram Parsons, and headliner Dallas Alice, a rootsy folk/country/rock band from Louisville, Ky.

1 p.m.: Great Wagon Days Duck Race at Ketchum’s Rotary Park on Warm Springs and Saddle roads. Includes a bouncy house for children, music and food. Ducks good for prizes can be adopted for $5 per duck, six for $25 or 13 for $50 at Atkinsons’ Market in Ketchum and Hailey, the Wood River YMCA, Towne and Parke Jewelers in Sun Valley and the Visitors Center next to Giacobbi Square in Ketchum.

8 p.m.: International superstar pianist Misha Dichter will perform a solo concert at the Sun Valley Pavilion as a benefit for the new Sun Valley Artists Series, which brings classical concerts to Sun Valley during winter. Tickets start at $47, at 622-2135, 1-888-622-2108 or www.seats.sunvalley.com. Hotel/concert packages available at 1-800-786-8259.

MONDAY

9 a.m.: 5K Cox Fun Run/Walk to benefit the all-volunteer Bellevue Fire Department, beginning and ending at Bellevue Memorial Park. Registration: $10; children 10 and younger, free. Register via e-mail at bellevuelaborday@gmail.com or at Guffy’s and Giddy-Up Coffee in Bellevue. Entrants will receive a gift bag provided by Cox and be entered into a drawing to win a prize that includes an iPod shuffle, Visa gift card and other gifts.

9 a.m.-5 p.m.: Ketchum Art and Antique Show continues.

11 a.m.-6 p.m.: Bellevue Labor Day Celebration continues in Bellevue with live music, food and arts and crafts vendors in Bellevue City Park.

Monday’s musical lineup includes Carter Freeman, a Boisean who gained an early appreciation for acoustic blues, folk, bluegrass and jazz in his native South. Also, the Mighty Shims, a band made up of Wood River Valley residents Jim Paisley, Chip Booth and Fletcher Brock, which plays Americana from swamp music to indie garage music. The afternoon lineup will also feature local band Cow Says Moo made up of Danae Commons, Henno Heitur and Taylor Paslay, who play a blend of cover tunes and original songs fusing folk, blues, pop and classic rock.

X Latino will provide a Spanish-flavored twist, and Sound County will end the day with old- and new-style country.

Here’s what’s on tap for the Labor Day weekend. All events are free, with the exception of the flapjack breakfast and the Sun Valley Ice Show.

Twin Falls native wins cinematography award for short film

By Melissa Davlin
Times-News writer

Cinematographers' names don't show up in lights or on marquees, but their artful camera angles can elevate a film from ordinary to pure art.

Rodney Lamborn, now of New York City, is one of eight honorees to receive the Emerging Cinematographers Award this year from the International Cinematographers Guild.

The guild is composed of camera crews, still photographers, cinematographers and publicists, said the guild's Leonard Morpurgo. The award is open to members who are not directors of photography.

Former winners of the award have gone on to work as directors of photography on "CSI: Miami," "24," "Pirates of the Caribbean: Dead Man's Chest," "Van Helsing," "X-Files" and "Heloise."

An image from the short film 'Meridian,' for which Twin Falls native Rodney Lamborn won an Emerging Cinematographers Award. Lamborn, along with seven other honorees, will receive the award at a ceremony Sept. 26 in Los Angeles.

Entrants are judged on cinematography and how the camera work helps convey the story, Morpurgo said.

Lamborn grew up in Twin Falls and graduated from Twin Falls High School in 1988. After graduating from Brigham Young University, he went on to shoot commercials and documentaries. Lamborn has done work with Victoria's Secret, Subway, National Geographic, MTV, Nike, Adidas and more, and has traveled to Liberia, East Congo, Chechnya and Afghanistan for documentaries.

His "Meridian" is a surreal short film that combines real-time images of a woman with time-elapsed footage that Lamborn shot in Mexico. The latter footage includes a sunset, quivering trees and stars moving across the screen and lends an ethereal quality to the 2 1/2-minute film. The film — shot with Brian Bowman, a co-director and editor — is the shortest in the group of honorees.

Lamborn didn't know much about the Emerging Cinematographers Award when the guild called to tell him he had won.

"I've done stuff that's won awards but I honestly don't even know how serious of an award this is," he said. "I don't know like how big, like, if it's a big deal or not."

Regardless, he'll attend the ceremony in Los Angeles, where his film will show with the seven others receiving the award.

Water-themed project brings artists, environmentalists to Wood River Valley

Times-News

Water is the theme and title of the Sun Valley Center for the Arts' new multidisciplinary project, which will bring visual artists, musicians, resource managers and environmentalists to the Wood River Valley to explore the beauty, power and transformational qualities of water.

"For those of us who live in the American West, water plays a role in every aspect of our economic and social life," Kristin Poole, Sun Valley Center artistic director, said in a press release. "Traditional industries from ranching to agriculture to mineral extraction are dependent on water. Recreational activities — boating, fishing, skiing, golf, hiking — all rely on water. Of course, in other parts of the world it's not only about economics; access to clean drinking water is a life or death proposition."

The project will include visual arts exhibitions, a lecture and a panel discussion, films, a musical performance, classes and artist residencies in schools. Full details: www.sunvalleycenter.org.

Opening in Ketchum on Sept. 13, the "Water" exhibit features work by six contemporary artists, selected to convey some sensation or idea that is universal about people's relationship to water.

• Jan Aronson's precise drawings of water speak to its rhythm, its visual patterns and its meditative qualities.

• Kate Bright is a contemporary British artist whose oil paintings capture the wonder of this resource that holds many forms, from sparkling nodules of snow to sheets of liquid glass.

• Dawn DeDeaux's sculptures and print works are elegant but powerful reminders of the force of water, specifically the destruction wrought by Hurricane Katrina.

• Basia Irland focuses on the ecology of water and on making connections among people who live along a river's banks.

• Megan Murphy's drawings are studies of water, place and the West. For the Sun Valley show, she has created a body of work based on photographs of Robert Smithson's Spiral Jetty and images of clouds.

• Anne Neely's colorful paintings reveal flowing layers of water that move unseen underground.

The center is offering free exhibition tours at 5:30 p.m. Sept. 23 and Oct. 7, and at 2 p.m. Sept. 28. The gallery will also be open late for Gallery Walk on Oct. 8, when visitors can make a clay fish to contribute to Irland's installation.

At 10 a.m. Nov. 6, the center will host a closing ceremony, "A Gathering of Seeds; Big Wood River, Idaho." Irland will speak about her work and guide participants in the release of ice books and clay fish embedded with native riparian seeds into the river.

Courtesy of Locks Gallery, Philadelphia
You'll find Kate Bright's 'Drape, 2008,' a glitter and acrylic piece on canvas, on display in Ketchum this month.

Meanwhile, a related exhibition in Hailey, "Source/Resource: Ranching and Water in the West," will be on view Sept. 17 through Nov. 12. It pairs Ben Ditto's photographs of water usage on ranches in Utah and Nevada with historical photos of ranching and irrigation in Idaho.

Italian walls inspired one artist featured in tonight’s Gallery Walk

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — Many tourists spend their time eyeballing the scenery and the passers-by, always with an eye out for ice cream stands and souvenir shops.

Hailey artist Valerie Stuart is fixated on the walls.

Stuart fell in love with the frescoes and walls of Italy when she spent six months in Europe as a 13-year-old. And now she incorporates them into her paintings.

Stuart’s work is on display this month at Gilman Contemporary, 661 Sun Valley Road in Ketchum. She will be on hand to talk about her work during tonight’s Labor Day Weekend Gallery Walk from 5 to 8 p.m.

Stuart got her first taste of art at age 8 when her mother enrolled her in a Flemish art school. And she dutifully did still-life and landscape for years. But it was the frescoes that she was drawn to when she returned to painting after several years of acting in TV shows and commercials.

“I loved the Old World look of Italy because it was so different from living in Los Angeles where I grew up,” said Stuart, whose father was a character and makeup artist in Hollywood. “I was intrigued by the fact that these walls and frescoes were still around. And I was very attracted to the aging of it all — the fact that part was gone, part wasn’t.”

Stuart mixes marble dust into plaster. Then she tops it with a secret paint and high-gloss varnish technique that she perfected after months of trial and error.

“I liked the Old Worldly effect I get with the plaster. And the painting method adds a contemporary feel. I feel like I’ve taken something old and made it modern,” she said.

“The result is very beautiful,” said gallery owner L’Anne Gilman. “Her method allows her to keep vivid colors.”

Tonight’s Gallery Walk will feature a variety of art, including Gallery DeNovo’s “Annex Show — $1,000 and Under.” The gallery is clearing out its closet with a sale of works that will cost as little as $250 or less, said owner Robin Reiners.

The sale, in the gallery at Sun Valley Road and First Avenue, is offered as an anecdote to recession, Reiners said. And it will offer the works of nearly two dozen international artists, including Andrew Lui, James Rosenquist, Sjer Jacobs, Agusti Puig, Christopher Brown, Philip Tsiaras and Quim Bove.

Gallery DeNovo’s main gallery will feature the abstract paintings of Michel Beaucage in an exhibition titled “Perfect Pairings.” The Montreal artist and his own perfect pair — his fiancée — will be in attendance at the opening reception from 5 to 8 p.m. today.

Karen Bossick may be reached at 578-2111. or kbossick@cox-internet.com.

ELSEWHERE AROUND TOWN

Here’s a look at the other exhibits premiering tonight during Ketchum’s free Gallery Walk:

Ochi Gallery, 350 Walnut Ave., will feature Katy Schimert’s exhibition “The Elysian Fields.” Schimert used the Greek mythological site of the final resting place for souls in her colorful but sometimes emotionally jarring and haunting watercolors and paper pulp heads.

Broschofsky Galleries, 360 East Ave., will feature historic and contemporary Western paintings, sculptures and photographs, including some by Edward Curtis, Andy Warhol and Theodore Villa. Among its featured artists will be William Matthews, who designed album covers for Warner Brothers and Capitol Records. Forbes and FYI magazine hailed him as the new Remington of American painting for his work devoted to the working cowboys of the American West. Those paintings have been exhibited from the Buffalo Bill Historical Center to the Topkapi Palace in Istanbul and the Shanghai Art Museum.

Kneeland Gallery, 271 First Ave. N., will present the exhibition “Sharing the Land.” It includes sculpture by Ketchum’s Dave McGary, who tells the history of Native Americans through his excessively detailed bronzes. And Linda St. Clair will show off the personality of barnyard animals, as well as animals from her recent African safari, with her loose brushwork.

In addition, the gallery will feature new works by Jennifer Lowe in an exhibition titled “The Wisdom of the Wild.” Lowe uses the medium of livestock markers to depict the landscapes, animals and people of her native Montana.

Friesen Gallery, Sun Valley Road and First Avenue, will feature a solo exhibition by New York artist Jill Lear. Lear focuses on the root and trunk systems of trees, exploring proportion and space as she balances the powerful trunks with the light, graceful lines of the landscape in her charcoal and acrylic paintings. Latitude and longitude coordinates document the locations of each tree.

Gail Severn Gallery, 400 First Ave. N., is featuring Lynda Lowe’s poetic combinations of everyday objects, such as leaves, sticks, rocks, birds, trees and bowls, placed on a richly layered color field embedded with fragments of texts, gestural marks and mathematical data. The gallery also will feature Victoria Adams’ latest oil paintings focusing on vast stretches of ocean, some of which borrow images from Hudson River School and European painters.

Toneri Hink Gallery, 400 Sun Valley Road, is featuring new dressers and desks by R.C. Hink with legs in cowboy boots. The gallery also features metal giraffes and cool mutts playing saxes and Lynn Toneri’s vintage watercolors of Sun Valley scenes.

Will Caldwell Gallery, also on Sun Valley Road, will feature new vibrant paintings captured in Palm Springs.

Perfect date night: dinner, music and astronomy

By Karen Bossick

SUN VALLEY — The high notes will reach to the stars Sept. 12 when the Caritas Chorale presents “It’s a Grand Night for Singing on a Starry, Starry Night” at the Elkhorn Springs Restaurant in Sun Valley.

The full 80-voice choir, under the direction of Dick Brown, will sing such numbers as “Sun and Moon” from “Miz Saigon,” “Age of Aquarius (Let the Sun Shine In),” “Moon River,” “Some Enchanted Evening” and “Moon Glow” while Dr. Stephen Pauley presents beautiful high-resolution pictures downloaded from a new planetary camera.

Then Pauley and amateur astronomy enthusiast Mark Nelson, who owns Shades of Sun Valley, will take dinner guests outside to examine Jupiter, which is closer and brighter this year than in past years, through some of the best amateur telescopes on the market.

Judith McQueen, who used to cater events for Universal Studios, will cater the dinner.

KAREN BOSSICK/For the Times-News

Dr. Stephen Pauley, who earned the nickname ‘Dr. Dark’ for advocating for dark sky ordinances in the Sun Valley area, will take those attending the Caritas Chorale benefit on a tour of the universe through his Meade Lx200 EMC telescope, one of the most advanced amateur telescopes manufactured.

“I have many, many interests outside music and one is astronomy,” Brown said. “There’s been so many good songs written about the stars and the sun and the moon. I’ve done a little research and come up with some great arrangements for the choir. And the telescopes are fascinating to look through, particularly on a night such as this when there will be a quarter moon.”

The evening is a benefit for the choir, helping to pay for accompanying orchestra and music sheets. The choir’s upcoming season of free concerts will include an all-American program featuring music by Aaron Copland and other American composers.

Tickets for the Sept. 12 “Starry, Starry Night” event are $150 per person, $100 of which is tax deductible, available at 726-5402 or by mailing checks to Caritas, P.O. Box 164, Ketchum, ID 83340. Reserve by Wednesday.

Don’t use library books for this art form

Times-News

KETCHUM — Judy Whitmyre turned a book into a pocketbook. And Gay Weakes turned “The Bridges of Madison County” into a pop-up she titled “The Beast of Madison County.”

The two will be among the books featured in the second annual Altered Books exhibit at Ketchum’s Community Library, 415 Spruce Ave. N.

Some 35 artists and their books will be honored at a reception at 6 p.m. Tuesday at the library. And the books will be on exhibit at the library through Oct. 8.

Some of the books will be for sale, as well, with part or all of the proceeds going to the library.

Ketchum artist Sharon Payne Bolton included such things as a key and a postage stamp into a book she titled “The Importance of Small Things.” Mary Ennes Davis, a Bellingham, Wash., artist whose mother was a librarian, used a 1904 book cover to house spools, door hardware, buttons, beads and poker chips in a book she titled “Guardian of the Book Lover.”

And Whitmyre used photos of quilts she had made and material scraps to produce a quilting book — her first attempt at making a handmade book but not her last.

“We say it’s OK to think about books in a different way, as material for another art form, as long as you don’t use library books to do it,” said Weakes, who co-founded the event last year with Whitmyre.

Silly songs that aren't for kids

Comedian brings adult humor, music to CSI

By Melissa Davlin
Times-News writer

Anyone who has ever heard the nationally syndicated BOB&TOM radio show knows the lyrics.

"I don't take no crap from anybody ... else but you." "A man's gotta do what a man's gotta do and I'm gonna do what you tell me to." "I don't want to hear a lot of whining, so I'll shut up."

And now, Magic Valley residents have a chance to hear "The Man Song" in person. Comedian Sean Morey is performing Thursday at the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Center.

The comedian won first and third place in the comedy category of the 2007 International Songwriting Competition for his songs "Dear Santa" and "The A.D.D. Song." Morey is a staple on BOB&TOM and in comedy clubs across the country. Morey has performed in Boise and Coeur d'Alene before, but this is his first stop in Twin Falls.

CSI public relations director Doug Maughan said the college's program board, which is composed of both CSI staff and students, has a budget to bring in entertainment every year.

"They decided to swing for the fences this time," Maughan said.

The comedian's 18-and-up act has raised a few eyebrows at CSI — one program board member declined to be interviewed for this story because he

Comedian Sean Morey will perform at College of Southern Idaho at 7 p.m. Thursday. Morey is best known for radio hits like 'The Man Song' and 'The Woman Song.'

SEAN MOREY PERFORMS

- When: 7 p.m. Thursday
- Where: College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Auditorium
- Cost: Tickets are $8 and can be purchased at both Twin Falls Java locations, the CSI Fine Arts ticket office, or the Student Activities office on campus.
- Information: <http://csi.edu/calendar/> didn't want his name associated with Morey's potentially offensive humor. Morey wasn't surprised, acknowledging that his routine includes f-bombs and sexual jokes.

"I just like to say whatever I want," he said in a telephone interview. "That's one of the great things about my job."

If people can't laugh at a silly song, he said, "I feel sorry for their girlfriend or wife."

In other words, leave the kids at home.

PREP RALLY

High School High Five

A look at this week's biggest prep football games

Canyon Ridge at Filer

7 p.m.

Radio: none
The skinny: Both teams open the season looking to start on a good note after enduring one-win seasons in 2009. Canyon Ridge is flying high on confidence heading into its second season and boasts plenty of experience, while Filer is hoping its fourth offensive scheme in as many years kick-starts the Wildcat bandwagon. The Wildcats are deep and versatile at running back/

Canyon Ridge senior Tyler Myers: "They've got a different offense that's tough to defend. They're a good team, working hard, and we are too. We're confident for the new season to start."

Filer senior running back Jacob Bogner: "We're really excited. It's the first game of the season and we've been working hard in practice and we're ready to play a game."

Bishop Kelly at Minico

7 p.m.

Radio: 970 AM
Webcast: Idahosports.com
The Skinny: The No. 1-ranked Bishop Kelly Knights roll into Rupert tonight. BK, which rocked Minico 24-0 in the 2009 season opener, returns 15 starters from a team that went 8-2 and reached the state quarterfinals last year. The Knights' RB/LB Cody McCarthy and DE Hunter Griffith are among the best players in the state. Three BK starters are suspended for this game. Minico starting OT Tyler Garner is out with a knee injury.

Minico coach Tim Perrigot: "It's difficult to know what type of team we have, but we should have a better idea after Friday night."

Minico senior linebacker Jordan Roland: "I think we can take it up a notch, especially against BK. It's going to take a good defense to beat those guys, but I think we've got what it takes."

Columbia at Jerome

7 p.m.

Radio: 1400 AM
The skinny: Jerome looks to bounce back after a 28-21 loss at Mountain Home last week by facing a Wildcats team that's playing its season-opener. This is the first-ever football meeting between the two teams, and Jerome will need a win to avoid its first three-game losing streak since 2005.

Jerome coach Gary Krumm: "They're a lot like Mountain Home, really athletic, good speed. ... We need to try and contain them. I thought our defense did a great job last week other than giving up some big plays. We've got to stay in the game by making them sustain some drives and we need to catch the football and not make as many mistakes as we did last week. Hopefully the kids will be excited about playing the first home game, and hopefully the first-game jitters are gone."

Wood River at Buhl

7 p.m.

Radio: none
The skinny: Wood River is coming off a 2-6 season in Kevin Stilling's first year as head coach and senior quarterback Kevin Jensen starts at quarterback without any varsity experience at position, but there is more depth at the skill positions this year. Buhl dominated this matchup last season, winning 46-0. Running back Evan Wray will be the focal point of the offense in Buhl's run-first attack.

Buhl head coach Stacy Wilson: "This is the coach's (Stilling) second year with the program, so we're more familiar with what they do, but it's the first game of the season, so you can never know what to expect."

Wood River head coach Kevin Stilling: "In past years, kids would go into the game with a defeatist attitude. We're starting to change that culture."

Raft River at Carey

7 p.m.

The Skinny: Carey has an advantage with a game already under its belt (a 56-6 win over Idaho City in Zero Week). The teams' last meeting was 2006, when Raft River handed Carey its only loss of the season as the Panthers went on to a state title. Raft River is young, but athletic and deep at the skills positions. Minimizing typical early-season mistakes will be key for the inexperienced Trojans.

Carey coach Lane Kirkland: "We're excited to host Raft River. We're looking forward to a competitive game. This will be a good testing game for us, to see what we have."

Raft River senior RB/DB Bryce Packer: "It depends on how hard we're willing to work. We're not going to be a big team, so we'll have to be in good condition and be fast. We'll have a good running game. If we can work together, we'll be all right."

Football savvy Settlemoir lifting Bruins

By Mike Christensen
Times-News writer

At 5-foot-8 and 170 pounds, Josh Settlemoir doesn't immediately turn heads on the football field. Until he touches the ball.

In last year's season-opener against Nampa, Settlemoir got his first varsity chance, coming off the bench as a junior running back. In his initial touches, he showed grit and toughness, making second and third efforts to keep each carry alive.

"From that day on, he just opened our eyes up as a staff," said Twin Falls football coach Allyn Reynolds.

One year later, Settlemoir was the star of Twin Falls' season-opener, rushing for 112 yards and two touchdowns on 16 carries last week, while adding two catches for 37 yards and a score. His 2-yard plunge in the final seconds capped the Bruins' 30-26 comeback win over Skyview.

Settlemoir

Times-News Athlete of the Week

Settlemoir called the win "a huge step for us." After several seasons of opening 0-1, the Bruins are on the right track entering today's home contest with Nampa.

"(The Skyview win's) going to help us out down the road," Settlemoir said.

And odds are Settlemoir's going to keep helping the Bruins.

Reynolds called the senior back "football fast" and praised the senior's knowledge of the game.

"He has an awareness and a presence on the football field," said Reynolds. "He's not the most physically gifted, but he makes up for it with his football savvy. He makes good cuts and has good vision. ... The reason he looks so good is he makes the right decisions."

Settlemoir's personal goal for the season is simple: "Do everything the right way."

Meaning? "Not dropping any balls and no fumbles," he said.

The senior is embracing a leadership role, following in the footsteps of last year's seniors, who helped the Bruins get back to the Class 4A state playoffs for the first time since 2004.

"Last year we had a good vibe going and that rubbed off on us to want to lead this team to a good season," he said.

Settlemoir said the Bruins aren't focused on big-picture goals this season, but the little things that'll make those ultimate dreams a reality.

"Take each week slow, work hard and get a victory," he said. So far, so good.

Nampa at Twin Falls

7 p.m.

Radio: 102.9 FM
The skinny: A rematch of last year's Class 4A state quarterfinals, a game won 28-21 by Twin Falls. Nampa has plenty of new faces on offense, but shredded Caldwell 41-0 last week. That means the Bruins, who rallied to edge Skyview last week, will have their hands full tonight. Nampa's Devan Lesley ran for 109 yards in the first half last week and leads the Bulldogs' powerful running attack. The Bruins found success via land and air last week, led by Josh Settlemoir, who had two rushing scores and another through the air.

Twin Falls senior center Clayton Rushing: "Every week is a step-up week. We made some mistakes last game. We're clearing them up and we've got to trust each other for that."

Lundgren, Ward pace Burley X-Country invite

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

BURLEY — It was a good start, but just a warm-up for bigger things to come for Twin Falls runners Amanda Ward and Karl Lundgren.

Running their first meet of the cross country season, Ward and Lundgren easily outdistanced the field at the Burley Invitational Thursday, held at Freedom Park.

“We didn’t really take time off for this race, kind of just trained through it, so I’m happy with my time,” said Lundgren, a junior. “Our big race is on Saturday”

Saturday’s meet will be at Soda Springs, site of this year’s state meet.

“Since (Soda Springs) is the course for state, there’s going to be a lot of people wanting to see what the course it like. That’s why we’re going,” Lundgren said.

Thursday’s race included runners from Twin Falls, Burley, Canyon Ridge and Pocatello. The Freedom Park course was relatively flat and featured varying surfaces of grass, pavement and gravel.

“The gravel was slippery, besides that, it was a pretty good course,” said Lundgren, whose time of 17 minutes, 54 seconds was 44 ticks better than his teammate and runner-up Matt Schenk.

Burley’s top boys runner was Ethan Judd, who finished fourth in 18:46. Canyon Ridge’s Jared Berry finished 10th in 19:49.

On the girls side, Ward finished in 22:03, followed by fellow Bruin Sarah Dadds in 23:47. Burley’s top runner was third-place finisher Megan Mabey in 24:26. Kayla Lee of Canyon Ridge finished sixth in 25:47.

For Ward, it was a solid start to her senior season, for which she has lofty personal and team goals.

“I’m shooting high,” she said. “I want to try and be a state champion, at least top three. Our team’s looking really good this year. We have a lot of new freshmen coming up and they’re running excellent so far. Our whole (2009) state team is back, we didn’t have any seniors graduate. I’m excited.”

Coach

He’s brought home trophies from third-place finishes at state.

But more importantly, he’s touched kids’ lives.

“He teaches you discipline and how to be a good person,” said senior running back Cody Casperson. “You come to get to know him when you play for four years. You can go in and visit him and talk about anything, not just about football”

Football is so much more than Xs and Os, Bright said — it’s about teaching kids life skills, the same things his football coach taught him when he was a 17-year-old running back.

“I think football really taught me that life sometimes isn’t fair, but life can be great as well,” Bright said. “It can be awesome. Enjoy the high times, and the low times aren’t always going to be around.”

Bright has experienced the highs of state playoff runs and the lows associated with 2-6 seasons. But a record doesn’t define a season in his mind; rather, it’s the connection with his players.

“Each season is different. You’ll always have a place in your heart for each team. The 2-6 team has a special place in my heart. The 3-5 team, the teams that have been in the semifinals and brought home trophies and conference championships. Each team will always have a place.

“You can see each kid. They’ll always have that spot,” Bright added, his emotions close to the surface.

That connection is ongoing, Bright said. Hundreds of players have passed through his program during his tenure. After graduation, some head to college, others leave for LDS missions. They move away or get married. But many stay in touch.

“You always hear from them. It’s pretty special,” Bright said. “That just goes to show how special this job is. I don’t ever want to lose sight of that.”

And Kimberly residents won’t soon lose sight of Bright roaming the sidelines.

“As long as those goose bumps are there,” he said. “As long as that knot in your stomach before kickoff is there and all that stuff, you’ll find me out there.”

New York Yankees pitcher CC Sabathia works in the first inning of a baseball game against the Oakland Athletics at Yankee Stadium, Thursday in New York.

Sabathia pitches Yankees past A's

NEW YORK — CC Sabathia pitched one-hit ball for eight innings to earn his major league-leading 19th win, fill-in Curtis Granderson homered twice and New York beat Oakland 5-0 on Thursday for a four-game sweep.

Sabathia (19-5) gave up Mark Ellis' clean single leading off the second. Jonathan Albaladejo completed the combined one-hitter in the ninth.

Granderson hit a solo homer and a two-run shot as a replacement for Nick Swisher, who left after one inning because of a stiff left knee. Jorge Posada also homered a day after an animated ejection, propelling the Yankees to their sixth straight victory.

Dallas Braden (9-10) left in the sixth inning with heat-related cramps. He allowed two hits and slowly walked off trailing 1-0. He was coming off a four-hit shutout at Texas.

RED SOX 6, ORIOLES 4

BALTIMORE — Adrian Beltre homered to spark a five-run second inning, and Boston salvaged a .500 road trip.

David Ortiz drove in two runs and J.D. Drew had three hits for the Red Sox, who moved within 6 1/2 games of idle Tampa Bay in the AL wild-card race.

Boston dropped two of three on the road against the Rays, then lost in Baltimore on Tuesday before winning two straight.

After missing his last start with a sore back, Daisuke Matsuzaka (9-4) gave up four runs in 5 2-3 innings. Jonathan Papelbon worked the ninth for his 35th save.

NATIONAL LEAGUE
METS 4, BRAVES 2

ATLANTA — David Wright homered, Johan Santana won for the first time in four starts and New York snapped Atlanta's five-game winning streak with a 4-2 victory Thursday night.

The Mets, who had dropped three straight, broke a 13-game stretch in which they scored three runs or less against the NL East-leading Braves.

Tim Hudson (15-6) lost for the first time in nine starts after allowing eight hits and four runs — three earned — with one walk and four strikeouts in seven innings.

PHILLIES 12, ROCKIES 11

DENVER — Chase Utley drove in six runs and hit a grand slam to cap a nine-run seventh inning as Philadelphia overcame a four-run deficit.

Utley's six RBIs tied a career high and came after Ryan Howard and Jayson Werth also went deep during the big inning in which the Phillies had nine hits.

Antonio Bastardo (1-0) benched from the Phillies' big inning, getting the win despite allowing a run and four hits in one inning of relief. Brad Lidge got the last three outs for his 19th save but not before giving up a run.

Morgan's 'crime spree' about to come to an end

Good weather, cheap tickets, convenient parking and even bobblehead giveaway nights can't spark much interest in a meaningless September game between the Nationals and Marlins, two teams whose payrolls tipped off their lowly intentions to fans even before the season began.

But Nyjer Morgan can. Washington's feisty, 30-year-old center fielder put baseball back on sportstalk's front burner for at least a day, but not the way Bud Selig envisioned. Then again, it's not as though the commissioner didn't see this coming. Either way, he's the one responsible for sorting it out.

unwritten rules to cover such situations, and most of the time they're understood well enough to keep the peace. Morgan's uncalled-for elbow on St. Louis' catcher, for example, got him in almost as much trouble with his own manager as it did with the Cardinals. Rigglesman called it "unprofessional" and sat him down for a game.

But there was no consensus on where the blame for the Florida fight belonged, although everyone agreed that Morgan was at the center of events and — some surprise — proud of it. When teammates finally dragged him out from underneath the pileup, Morgan fired both hands into the air, beat his chest and walked off like he was Stone Cold Steve Austin.

Morgan has been on baseball's version of a crime spree the last two weeks. Already appealing a seven-game suspension for firing a baseball at fans in the stands Aug. 21 in Philadelphia, he nearly set off a brawl with a cheap shot Saturday on Cards catcher Bryan Anderson, then doubled down by starting a melee Wednesday with the Marlins.

"He was playing his game," said Florida manager Edwin Rodriguez, who joined his Washington counterpart, Jim Rigglesman, and four others in getting ejected before the night was through. "We were playing ours."

Morgan's "game" previously meant channeling his intensity and considerable talents into putting up respectable numbers at the plate for the Nationals, and the hapless Pirates before that. But as his production dipped, Morgan increasingly veered off in the direction of provocation. Along the way, he crossed a line between fierce and dangerous.

The bench-clearing brawl that began in the top of the sixth had actually been simmering since the night before. That's when Morgan barreled into Marlins' catcher Brad Hayes on a play at the plate — he probably could have beaten the tag with a slide — separating Hayes' shoulder and knocking him out for the remainder of the year.

As payback, Marlins pitcher Chris Volstad plunked Morgan in the fourth. He promptly stole second and third, despite the fact that his team was 11 runs down at the time, ruffling the Marlins' scales one more time. In the sixth, presumably for the sin of showing him up, Volstad threw behind Morgan, who responded by rushing the mound and — as the kids like to say — it was on, baby!

"Once is good enough," Morgan said about the Marlins' retribution, "but twice, no, it's time to go." Baseball has a code of

Woods looks to keep going at FedEx Cup

NORTON, Mass. (AP) — A chart of FedEx Cup standings at the Deutsche Bank Championship showed Tiger Woods at the top, not unusual considering he was won the cup and its $10 million prize every year he has played.

This chart was different.

It listed the 10 players who are on the bubble at the TPC Boston, starting with Woods at No. 65 through Josh Teater at No. 75. Only the top 70 after this week will advance to the third round of the playoffs at the BMW Championship, where Woods is defending champion.

Woods has failed to defend a title when the tournament has changed dates or when he was injured. Never has he not gone back to a tournament as the defending champion because he was not eligible.

"It's been a different year," Woods said.

It might be showing signs of turning around. One tournament is not enough to declare Woods' game is back, although his tie for 12th at The Barclays was his best finish since June. Plus, it got him into the second round of the FedEx Cup playoffs.

And for the first time since the Masters, when he returned to golf after a five-month layoff, Woods went through an entire press conference without a mention of his broken marriage or how it got to that point.

Even so, it remains odd to see Woods so far down any list.

Matt Kuchar is No. 1 in the FedEx Cup standings on the strength of his victory last week to open the four-tournament playoffs. Steve Stricker is No. 2 and the defending champion at the TPC Boston. They are assured of reaching the final round.

Woods is only assured of making the weekend because the Deutsche Bank Championship doesn't start until Friday, the lone tournament on the PGA Tour schedule that ends on a Monday.

"I'm starting to see some progress, which is nice," Woods said. "Mentally, I'm hitting the ball much better, hence I have more confidence. I'm driving the ball much straighter, hitting the ball a little bit farther, especially with my irons. And those are all positive signs. It's just a matter of making it a little bit more natural. And that's just reps."

Whether the tournament lasts any longer than Labor Day depends on the path of Hurricane Earl — the same name as Woods' late father. The forecast was for good weather through noon on Friday before it starts getting nasty, with the worst of it late Friday afternoon and into the night.

The tour moved tee times up as much as it could with a 99-man field — 40 minutes — with hopes of getting the round in. Officials will decide Friday morning whether to play lift, clean and place to protect against the late starters having to return Saturday morning to complete the first round in what could be a swamp.

"It will be awesome to get this finished tomorrow," said Mark Russell, a vice president of rules and competition for the tour.

So much is at stake this week — not one cup, but two. For the 99 players — Kenny Perry pulled out on Wednesday — the goal is to finish in the top 70 in the standings to advance to Chicago and the BMW Championship. It's far more tense for the 14 players that U.S. captain Corey Pavin has on a white sheet of paper he keeps in his pocket, all of them candidates to be among his four Ryder Cup picks.

Woods figures to be a lock. Zach Johnson is getting plenty of support as another pick. For the rest of them, the Deutsche Bank Championship is one last chance to make an impression on the captain, and even that might not be enough.

"There are no promises out there to anyone," Pavin said. "I think everyone is mature enough to understand that."

U.S. pulls away to rout Tunisia

ISTANBUL (AP) — With nothing to play for, the United States looked as if it didn't want to play.

Outworked and outthusted, the Americans led winless Tunisia by only four points early in the third quarter before turning the game into a rout over the final 15 minutes of a 92-57 victory Thursday.

Eric Gordon scored 21 points for the U.S., which had already clinched first place in its group and was more interested in getting through this one healthy — which it didn't do — than earning any style points.

"It happens," center Lamar Odom said. "These teams are pumped up to play against us. You're not going to always blow a team out in the first three or four minutes of a game."

That's often what's expected of the powerful U.S., though.

"It's kind of like the Tour de France, except you have to win every stage," U.S. coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "You have to look good in every stage."

The U.S. (5-0), seeded first in Group B, next plays on Monday against Angola, the No. 4 seed from Group A.

Reserve forward Rudy Gay sat out the second half with what was called a slightly pulled right groin. He is expected to be OK for the next game.

The Americans misfired on nine of 10 3-point attempts in the first half and failed to show any sustained stretches of good offense, an occasional problem for the team during the group stage. The Americans have time to clean it up, with three days off before playing their first elimination game.

"On these next few days, we have to get better,"

Krzyzewski said.

The U.S. opened with its three toughest opponents, then faced easy ones in Iran and Tunisia. Chauncey Billups, who earned the nickname "Mr. Big Shot" for his clutch play in big games, attributes the sloppiness the last two nights to the fact that little was at stake.

"It's kind of tough, but the good thing about it is those games are over now and every game is as big as the next one now," Billups said.

Kevin Durant and Russell Westbrook each scored 14 points for the U.S. team and Stephen Curry had 13. Marouan Kechrid scored 15 points and Macram Ben Romdhane added 11 for Tunisia, which went 0-5 in its first appearance in the worlds.

"For our first participation, I am happy," Tunisia coach Adel Tlatli said.

Bradford perfect as Rams win against Ravens

ST. LOUIS — One perfect series and done for Sam Bradford.

No doubt, facing Baltimore's second-string defense made it easier for the former Oklahoma star selected drafted first overall.

Bradford made another favorable impression in his second preseason start, going 6 for 6 for 68 yards and a touchdown to open the St. Louis Rams' 27-21 victory over Baltimore on Thursday night.

A.J. Feeley's thumb injury gave Bradford his starting shot last week, and the rookie may have done enough to get the nod in the opener against Arizona.

The Ravens (3-1) held out all of their starters, plus backup quarterback Marc Bulger in his return to St. Louis after getting released by the Rams (3-1) in April, denying fans a shot to either cheer or boo a player who was the starter from 2003-09.

VIKINGS 31, BRONCOS 24

MINNEAPOLIS — Denver rookie Tim Tebow outplayed Minnesota's Tarvaris Jackson in the backup quarterback comparison, but the Vikings forced four first-half turnovers and beat the Broncos.

Tebow fumbled his first snap, Erin Henderson found the ball and scooted into the end zone from 35 yards out for the Vikings. The 2007 Heisman Trophy winner and first-round draft pick from Florida then threw a wobbler over the middle that Tyrell Johnson easily intercepted and returned for 41 yards to set up a field goal.

Tebow was 12 for 16 for 167 yards and one touchdown and also ran for 21 yards on four carries.

GIANTS 20, PATRIOTS 17

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Rhett Bomar may have nailed down the job as New York's backup quarterback, throwing a 60-yard scoring pass to Duke Calhoun with 1:49 to play as the Giants rallied to beat New England.

The winning score came just minutes after Darnell Jenkins put the Patriots ahead 17-12 by catching a short pass from Brian Hoyer and turning it into a 66-yard scoring play with one move and a burst of speed.

STEELERS 19, PANTHERS 3

PITTSBURGH — Byron Leftwich, expected to replace Ben Roethlisberger during his suspension, injured his left knee in the second quarter and Pittsburgh (3-1) beat starter-less Carolina (1-3).

Carolina's offense ended the preseason the way it began with no touchdowns as No. 3 quarterback Hunter Cantwell and No. 4 Tony Pike took all the snaps in a game both teams played with the intent of not getting any key player hurt.

Leftwich, tuning up for his anticipated start Sept. 12 against Atlanta, completed an 18-yard pass to rookie Emmanuel Sanders before being knocked off his feet as running back Mewelde Moore and safety Marcus Hudson collided near him.

JETS 21, EAGLES 17

PHILADELPHIA — Michael Vick led Philadelphia to a field goal in two series in his first start in four years, and Kurt Coleman scored on two fumble returns, but New York (2-2) beat Philadelphia (2-2).

Mark Brunell's 51-yard touchdown pass to former Pittsburgh Super Bowl MVP Antonio Holmes in the fourth quarter put the Jets ahead to stay.

Neither team used its starters. Kevin Kolb and New York's Mark Sanchez watched from the sideline while backups saw plenty of action.

COWBOYS 27, DOLPHINS 25

ARLINGTON, Texas — David Buehler kicked a 31-yard field goal as time expired, lifting Dallas (3-2) past Miami (2-2).

TITANS 27, SAINTS 24

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Alvin Pearman had a 5-yard touchdown run with 3:18 left to help Tennessee (2-2) beat Super Bowl champion New Orleans (2-2).

Vince Young threw a scoring pass, and LeGarrette Blount also ran for a score.

BROWNS 13, BEARS 10

CLEVELAND — Montario Hardesty, Cleveland's highly touted rookie running back whose career at Tennessee was slowed by knee injuries, hurt his left one in the second quarter of the Browns' victory.

Fellow rookie Colt McCoy got his first pro start and went 13 of 13 for 131 yards in two-plus quarters. The former Texas star fumbled his first snap, but finally showed some potential in easily his best performance for the Browns (2-2).

BENGALS 30, COLTS 28

INDIANAPOLIS — Cedric Peerman had a 93-yard touchdown run in the third quarter, and reserve Jordan Palmer — starter Carson Palmer's brother — completed 10 of 14 passes for 115 yards and two touchdowns for Cincinnati (3-2).

Colts quarterback Peyton Manning didn't play, and most of Indy's starters took the night off. Curtis Painter got the start and completed nine of 20 passes for 114 yards. Tom Brandstater was 10 of 18 for 177 yards and three TDs, all to Brandon James.

CHIEFS 17, PACKERS 13

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Matt Cassel and Brodie Croyle each led touchdown drives and Kansas City (1-3) won for the first time in the preseason since 2008.

Quarterback Aaron Rodgers and a host of other Green Bay starters didn't suit up for the final tuneup. Backup Matt Flynn played into the third quarter, completing 23 of 37 passes for 304 yards. The Packers were 2-2 in exhibition play.

BUCCANEERS 24, TEXANS 17

HOUSTON — Rudy Carpenter threw two TD passes to Arrelious Benn, and Corey Lynch returned one of his two interceptions 91 yards for a score to help Tampa Bay (2-2) beat Houston (1-3).

Carpenter completed 15 of 22 passes for 203 yards and played into the fourth quarter. Tampa Bay rested starter Josh Freeman and backup Josh Johnson.

LIONS 28, BILLS 23

DETROIT — Third-stringer Drew Stanton threw a pair of second-half touchdown passes for Detroit after Matthew Stafford had an interception returned for a touchdown.

Stafford's second pass was picked off by Drayton Florence and Detroit (3-1) punted on his second and last drive. Buffalo's Trent Edwards was 4 for 4 for 66 yards — including a 50-yard pass to Lee Evans — on his only drive to set up the first of Rian Lindell's three field goals. The Bills finished the preseason 2-2.

JAGUARS 13, FALCONS 9

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Fullback Brock Bolen scored on a 16-yard run, and Josh Scobee kicked two field goals for Jacksonville (2-2).

Jacksonville's Luke McCown filled in for David Garrard and completed 5 of 12 passes for 39 yards. Chris Redman, starting in place of Matt Ryan for Atlanta (2-2), completed 15 of 22 passes for 142 yards.

Federer beats the heat, Beck; Soderling looms

NEW YORK (AP) — Roger Federer is one cool customer.

The temperature climbed into the 90s yet again Thursday at Flushing Meadows, and the guy showed up for work wearing a warmup jacket. Then he put in his 1 hour, 41 minutes on court, dismissing 104th-ranked Andreas Beck of Germany 6-3, 6-4, 6-3 with the help of 15 aces, to ease into the third round of the U.S. Open.

"It's about just saving your energy for the really big match coming up, maybe the next one," Federer said, perhaps mindful that he was pushed to five sets in the opening round at Wimbledon in June before eventually losing in the quarterfinals at a second consecutive major tournament.

He dropped all of seven games in the first round of the U.S. Open, and the owner of a record 16 Grand Slam titles is feeling pretty good about things at the moment.

"It's the perfect start, sure. I played Monday; had two days off. I had another easy one physically today, and here I am in the third round feeling like I'm completely in the tournament," said Federer, a five-time U.S. Open champion and the only man left in the field who has won it.

"I got a sense for how the court speed is again. I got the sense of the crowd and the wind now, as well. I played one night, one day," he continued. "I have all the answers after two matches."

In other words: Let everyone else sweat it out.

Like Kei Nishikori, the 147th-ranked qualifier from Japan, who fought cramps in his racket-holding right hand and elsewhere while taking a minute shy of five hours to wrap up a 5-7, 7-6 (6), 3-6, 7-6 (3), 6-1 victory over 11th-seeded Marin Cilic.

"It was very humid. It wasn't easy to get the oxygen," said Cilic, a U.S. Open quarterfinalist last year, and an Australian Open semifinalist in January.

The 20-year-old Nishikori began feeling his muscles tighten in the second set but didn't really begin worrying until after trailing 2-1 in sets.

"I was thinking about it in

fourth set, mostly: 'Even if I win this, I have to play one more set. It's not going to be easy for me, you know, cramping,'" said Nishikori, who reached the fourth round two years ago, the first Japanese man since 1937 to get that far at the U.S. Open. "But I was able to fight through."

His was one of a handful of upsets on Day 4 of a tournament that is quickly accumulating surprises. Beatrice Capra, an 18-year-old from Ellicott City, Md., made like 2009 U.S. Open darling Melanie Oudin and ousted No. 18-seeded Aravane Rezai of France 7-5, 2-6, 6-3.

No. 9 Agnieszka Radwanska lost to Peng Shuai, and No. 22 Maria Jose Martinez Sanchez lost to Patty Schnyder. Seeded winners included 2004 champion Svetlana Kuznetsova, 2008 runner-up Jelena Jankovic and 2010 Wimbledon finalist Vera Zvonareva. Top-seeded Caroline Wozniacki, like Federer, didn't waste any time on court, blanking 84th-ranked Chang Kai-chen 6-0, 6-0.

At 371st, Capra is the lowest-ranked woman left. She's also the youngest — and not only is she making her Grand Slam debut, she's playing in the main draw of a tour-level event for the first time. She said she "watched every second" as Oudin, then 17, reached the quarterfinals 12 months ago.

"I really look up to Melanie," said Capra, who earned a wild card from the U.S. Tennis Association by winning an eight-entrant playoff. "You know, it was really inspiring to me."

SALT LAKE CITY — Utah freshman Brian Blechen intercepted a pass on the first play of overtime, setting up Joe Phillips for a 21-yard field goal that gave the Utes a 27-24 victory against No. 15 Pittsburgh on Thursday night.

Pittsburgh had rallied with 14 points in the fourth quarter, forcing overtime on Dan Hutchins' 30-yard field goal on the final play of regulation.

But after Utah won the toss and elected to play defense, Blechen quickly doused any hopes the Panthers had of completing the comeback when he bolted in front of Pitt receiver Mike Shanahan and grabbed Tino Sunseri's pass at the sideline.

Jordan Wynn passed for 283 yards with three touchdowns for Utah, including two to Jereme Brooks.

Wynn's third TD was a short pass over the middle that DeVonte Christopher broke for a 61-yard touchdown that put Utah up 24-13 with 7:59 left to play.

The more comfortable margin didn't even last a minute.

The Panthers struck back on a 44-yard pass from Sunseri to Jon Baldwin, who was all alone inside the 10-yard line because of a breakdown in Utah's secondary. Sunseri went to Baldwin again for the 2-point conversion that pulled the Panthers within a field goal at 24-21 with 7:11 left to play.

Utah wasn't able to run enough time off the clock to keep the Panthers from one final drive, which Hutchins capped with the tying field goal despite having to kick the ball three times.

His first attempt went through the uprights, but Utah coach Kyle Whittingham called time out just before the snap and Hutchins had to kick again.

Whittingham did the same thing on the rekick, which was wide and had fans and Utah players celebrating before they learned there was yet another kick to come. This time Hutchins was back on target and tied it at 24.

NO. 2 OHIO ST. 45, MARSHALL 7

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Terrelle Pryor tossed three touchdown passes, Brandon Saine rushed for 103 yards and two scores and No. 2 Ohio State rolled over error-prone Marshall 45-7 on Thursday night in a tuneup for a big date with Miami.

Pryor completed 17 of 25 passes for 247 yards and TDs covering 6 and 11 yards to DeVier Posey and 65 yards to Dane Sanzenbacher before 105,040 at Ohio Stadium.

The Buckeyes, who haven't lost a home opener since 1978, next play on Sept. 11 against No. 13 Miami, which coasted past Florida A&M 45-0.

It was a bleak debut for new Marshall coach Doc Holliday, who spent the last two seasons as an assistant at West Virginia. The Thundering Herd fumbled the opening kickoff and were down 14-0 before running their first play in Ohio State territory.

Ohio State's defense limited Marshall to 44 yards on the ground and 199 total. Brian Rolle picked off Brian Anderson's pass and returned it 30 yards for a touchdown late in the second quarter.

Anderson, who completed 17 of 28 passes for 135 yards, was harassed most of the night. He had an interception and the Herd also lost two fumbles.

Meanwhile, the Buckeyes' offense amassed 529 yards.

NO. 13 MIAMI 45, FLORIDA A&M 0

MIAMI — Jacory Harris completed 12 of 15 passes for 210 yards and three touchdowns before sitting out the second half, and the 13th-ranked Miami Hurricanes got their first shutout since 2006 by beating overmatched Florida A&M 45-0 to open the season Thursday night.

"I went out there and took care of my business," Harris said. "As a team, we came out there and did everything we had to do in the first half, and coach sat us out for the rest of the game. I guess it was well-deserved."

Leonard Hankerson caught the first two of Harris' TD passes and finished with 115 receiving yards, as the Hurricanes (1-0) ran out to a 35-0 lead in the first 25 minutes and wound up outgaining Florida A&M 405-110.

Looming for Miami: A trip next Saturday to visit the second-ranked Buckeyes, the first meeting between the schools since the 2003 Fiesta Bowl, where Ohio State denied the Hurricanes what would have been their second straight national championship in a game best remembered for a late pass interference call in overtime.

Miami coach Randy Shannon said he wouldn't start thinking about the Buckeyes until Friday.

"One thing you never do, never take a victory and not enjoy it," Shannon said. "I told the players and the coaches, 'Enjoy tonight!'"

Harris needed just 1:40 to get Miami on the scoreboard, finding a wide-open Hankerson for a 19-yard score, and the Rattlers (0-1) quickly found themselves in trouble.

"He's a guy who worked hard during rehab, was there every day and fought through everything," Harris said. "Just to see him get the ball and do what he do, it was amazing."

DETROIT'S FIRST GAME CHANGER: 2011 CHEVROLET VOLT SEDAN

First Look
By Ken Chester, Jr.
Motor News Media Corp.

It's here. After almost three years of hype, GM's near death experience as the economy imploded, and questions of whether or not the automaker was indeed willing and able to follow through, the first production units of the all-new Chevrolet Volt started coming off the assembly line in late July.

While there has been much ink flowing about what this new sedan is and is not, one thing is for sure - the five-door Chevrolet Volt will lead the way in how we think about energy as it applies to automotive transportation.

First of all, just what is the Chevrolet Volt exactly? The 2011 Chevrolet Volt is a front-wheel-drive, four-passenger electric vehicle with extended-range capability. It uses electricity as its primary power source and gasoline as its secondary source to power the vehicle. The Chevrolet Volt represents a significant departure from conventional hybrids. With the Volt, the wheels are turned by an electric drive unit, whereas in conventional hybrids the wheels are turned by an electric motor, a gasoline engine, or both. For short trips, the Volt runs on battery power alone.

Motor News Media Corporation Photos

For longer trips, additional electricity can be supplied by an internal combustion engine generator. The battery and propulsion systems are sized so that when sufficient energy is available from the battery, the engine is not required for operation. During this electric only phase of driving, the battery, motor, and power electronics are designed to deliver full performance, acceleration, top speed, hill climbing on electric power alone.

Energy is stored on board in a 16-kWh, "T"-shaped lithium-ion battery. The battery powers the electric drive unit, which is capable of meeting full vehicle speed and acceleration performance while driving the car electrically for up to 40 miles (based on EPA city cycle) without using a drop of gas. For longer trips, the Volt's engine generator is used to drive an electric generator when the battery's energy has been depleted. The engine generator is able to generate additional electricity to power the car for about 300 miles before the need to refuel or plug-in to recharge the battery.

The Chevrolet Volt is NOT a hybrid! In practice, hybrid vehicles typically require both sources - engine and battery - to provide full vehicle performance capability. In a hybrid vehicle, the combustion engine is typically the larger of the two propulsion sources, and provides most of the power during high power vehicle maneuvers like off-line starts and freeway cruising. A plug-in hybrid operates the same way, but can be recharged by plugging in. Even with useful energy in the battery, the engine will often be operating to achieve vehicle peak loads. The Chevrolet Volt is unique from a hybrid or plug-in hybrid in that the vehicle's wheels are always driven electrically by an electric drive unit.

As a baseline comparison, Chevrolet estimates that the cost per mile to operate the Chevrolet Volt is approximately two cents per mile electrically versus 12 cents per mile using gasoline priced at $3.60 per gallon.

Even though Chevrolet has recently announced a production increase of 50 percent to 45,000 units for the 2012 model year. Only eight states with participating Chevrolet dealers (California, Connecticut, Maryland, Michigan, New Jersey, New York, Texas and Virginia) will receive Volt sedans for retail sale.

Difficulty Level ★★★★★

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

IF SEPTEMBER 3 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: During the next eight weeks, you may be caught up in highly unrealistic expectations without the practical touch necessary to turn them into something useful. Write down your inspiring ideas and put them to good use when tending to financial matters or career ambitions in the middle of November. That is when you are most likely to experience success in the outer world. If your heart is in the picture you might need to wait until March or April to learn if the one you have targeted as a soul mate is really worth your efforts.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Grab the tiger by the tail. Now that a heavy work schedule is behind you, it is possible to address personal items on your to-do list. Singles might find an amorous other under these tender stars.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Friendly persuasion can be fine-tuned. Influence your customer's decisions, impress your colleagues, entertain your friends and add juice to your social network. Make smart choices with purchases.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Communication is the key to maintaining the peace and tranquility. Keep the cell phone handy and be prepared to cheer others on or spread encouraging words. Make plans for romantic trysts this weekend.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Play follow the leader. Gratification of your most intense desires is possible under these celestial conditions. You will be happy to take the cue from your loved ones and are sensitive to his or her needs.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Get your priorities straight. Your energy levels are at a peak and much can be achieved where business and career are concerned. Keep your ears open to hear the whisper of some sweet notions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Weightlifting with words works wonders. Some smooth talking will quickly sand down the edges of rough trouble areas. Act as a go between to sort out differences. Take action now to ensure financial success.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Pivot and pounce. The object of your affection is merely waiting for you to turn his or her way and make your move. Look forward to a delightful weekend filled with romance, affection, and social events.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Overcome adversaries with charm and finesse. Fair play will win you kudos in any high-energy situation. Take extra care with your appearance today, as seductive glances can turn into embraces.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Exercise authority and initiative in the proper measure. Family members could be full of interesting personal tidbits, gossip or news. Keep in close touch with old friends and new acquaintances.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): An accurate assessment of people and situations helps you make a bull's-eye. Your good humor scores Brownie points with important people. Romantic fantasies may be headed for fairy tale endings.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Surf and turf. You are riding high on a wave of popularity and charm so keep in touch with the key players in your particular game. You are willing to make small earthly sacrifices to keep the peace.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Pay attention if psychic twinges intrude on conscious thoughts. You might be picking up subtle signals that lurk beneath the radar. You are particularly attuned to the thoughts and feelings of loved ones.
