Twin Falls animal shelter officials worried about funding shortage

the tails keep wagging and the motors keep purring.

While the animal shelter is a cheerful place for those who come to pick out their first puppy or cuddle up with a kitten of choice, it can also be a bit of a letdown when grants are lost or funding is decreased.

The kibble and bits of the organization are that this year it is working with $20,000 less than last year, which worries Director Debbie Blackwood. A large grant that the shelter has received for the last five years wasn't gifted this year. With a city budget that has been frozen for three years, the shelter has to stretch its

Gooding hospital CEO on leave

ISP investigating matter relating to absence

By Laura Lundquist
Times-News writer

North Canyon Medical Center CEO Earl Fitzpatrick has been on administrative leave from his job for more than three weeks, hospital officials confirmed Thursday.

Details were scarce as to who put Fitzpatrick on leave on Aug. 18 and why. But representatives of the Gooding hospital's staff, its governing board and St. Luke's Health System said they weren't sure how soon Fitzpatrick might return.

Whatever the reason, the matter has attracted the attention of law enforcement. Gooding Police Staff Sgt. Sjuni Bunderson said Idaho State Police are investigating a matter related to Fitzpatrick's leave. Gooding police aren't handling it themselves due to a conflict of interest.

The hospital, formerly Gooding County Memorial Hospital, recently became a nonprofit operation but still takes funds from a county taxing district.

Its officials had little to say about Fitzpatrick's situation. North Canyon spokeswoman Shellie Amundsen said she didn't know the circumstances of the CEO's leave. Hospital board member Pat Nelson deferred comment to St. Luke's, which provides North Canyon Medical Center with management advice, access to supplies and help finding specialists.

St. Luke's spokeswoman Beth Toal was unwilling to comment on Fitzpatrick's leave. She said she didn't know who put him on leave.

Jerome Boy Scout troop victimized by burglars

$2,000 worth of items stolen

By Bradley Guire
Times-News writer

There's no merit badge for sneak-thieving but somebody's working toward it regardless.

A Jerome Boy Scout troop recently discovered that thousands of dollars worth of stored camping equipment was stolen, supplies the troop intended to use for a camping trip this weekend.

"I told the boys that it's unfortunate that these things happen," said Kelly Bangarter, the Troop 36 Scoutmaster. "If (the thieves) needed it that bad, we would have shared it with them."

Bangarter said he learned of the burglary Wednesday night when he went to check the gear. The equipment was stored in the unattached garage of a friend's house, which is vacant and for sale in Jerome County. He said he found one of the garage's windows had been jimmied

Court: Stem cell funding allowed — for now

Short-term approval may be little help to scientists

By Pete Yost and Lauran Neergaard
Associated Press writers

WASHINGTON — The government may resume funding of embryonic stem cell research for now, an appeals court said Thursday, but the short-term approval may be of little help to research scientists caught in a legal battle that has just begun.

It is far from certain that scientists actually will continue to get federal money as they struggle to decide what to do with research that is hard to start and stop.

Research associate Crystal Pacutin pulls a frozen vial of human embryonic stem cells at the University of Michigan Center for Human Embryonic Stem Cell Research Laboratory in Ann Arbor, Mich. on Oct. 22, 2008.

After U.S. District Court funding on Aug. 23, the Judge Royce Lamberth issued a preliminary order barring the National Institutes of Health suspended work on funding new research projects on embryonic stem cells. While NIH didn't immediately comment Thursday on the temporary stay from the appeals court, the government's process for approving these grants is unlikely to resume before a final court resolution.

With appeals, that could be many months off.

"No way this would be a scientific reprieve," said Patrick Clemons of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Scientists who already have received taxpayer money for stem cell experiments can continue their work until their dollars run out, but 22 projects

Voters to determine fate of University of Idaho fee change

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

The University of Idaho may end up with a different way of charging students in January.

A proposed state constitutional amendment on the ballot in the November election would allow the university to charge tuition to undergraduate students. Currently, the school can only charge students fees.

The Legislature earlier this year voted overwhelmingly to put the amendment on the ballot.

The change, if approved, would allow the university to use funding from tuition to pay for classroom instruction. Under the system in place now, fee money cannot pay for classroom instruction.

"This would simply remove that restriction," said Marty Peterson, assistant to U of I President Duane Nellis.

The constitutional amendment does not set the tuition amount, as the amendment is aimed at giving better flexibility to the university's budget, not charging students more,

Peterson said.

"It has nothing to do with the amount of the charges, but it has everything to do with what you can do with the fees that you charge," he said.

Because of existing restrictions, the university can only use other sources than tuition and fees, like state funding and federal grants, to cover classroom instruction costs.

Peterson said that the university's situation is different from other state-funded colleges and universities, which are already allowed to charge tuition under legislation passed in 2005.

"Basically, this just levels starts Oct. 1.

"The ramifications are that we cannot afford to set a broken leg if a dog was hit and needs surgery. We don't have the money to do that," Blackwood said. "It's heart-breaking."

The shelter is currently holding 50 dogs and 60 cats. Blackwood estimates that it costs an average of $80 per stay to hold an animal at the shelter. The typical stay for an animal is around seven days, although it varies according to health and adoptability.

According to the animal records for 2008-09, 57 percent of shelter animals were adopted. Euthanizing, Blackwood said, is something none of the staff came there to do — but it's a job that must be done. Last year 935 of the 3,825 animals were put down.

The economy, Blackwood said, has prompted an increase in animals and decrease in funds at the shelter. Costs for food and transportation have also risen.

"The last two years we have seen more animals — 2007 was horrid because it was the first big wave of lay-offs," Blackwood said. "Our numbers shot up by 46 percent."

She encourages those who cannot take on the responsibility of adopting a pet to consider donating to the shelter, whether with monetary funds or supplies like pet food, litter, towels and blankets.

"We want people to know that we are still here and we are trying to keep up the same level of service that we have worked 20 years to provide," she said.

For those like puppy Boogie, that service makes all the difference until he can get a new home.

Calls to Fitzpatrick himself were not returned Thursday.

He has served as hospital CEO since 2005, when he moved from Dallas, Texas. Perhaps the most notable change at the hospital during his tenure has been the shift to nonprofit ownership. That was launched when he learned that state law limited how much the publicly owned hospital could borrow to build a new facility.

Fitzpatrick, hospital staff and the board created the nonprofit Partners in Healthcare Inc. to govern the new $17 million hospital, which opened its doors under its new name this February.

Devan Johnson, St. Luke's director of regional services was identified as North Canyon's interim CEO in the agenda for a Gooding County Memorial Hospital District budget hearing this week. The hospital also currently has an interim chief financial officer, listed as Tim Powers.

Paul council applauds Palooza

Meeting set for animal shelter fee structure

By Coreen Hart

Times-News correspondent

PAUL — This year's Paul Palooza was a great success, Paul City Council members were told on Wednesday.

That's thanks to help from many volunteers. Councilman Bruce Hossfeld said face painting, the bake sale, meal and other events paid their way and produced an overall profit of $150.16.

"I think we had a very successful Paul Palooza, that was enjoyed by all," Hossfeld said.

In other items:

● The council set a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 13 to take comments on revised fees proposed by the Minidoka County Animal Control Board.

Proposed fee changes include $50 to bail out an animal, $20 for dog vaccinations, $40 for adoptions including licenses and vaccinations, $50 for euthanasia, and $15 per day for impound fees after a three-to-five-day claim period.

For dog-bite cases where the owner keeps the dog, animal control would charge a $150 quarantine fee, a $102 veterinarian fee and $10 for a tag if one's needed. When the dog is euthanized in such cases, the vet fee would be $75 and shipping the carcass to Boise would cost $25, on top of the euthanasia fee.

● Councilman Garth Baker provided a report on a recent Idaho Transportation Department meeting. The Ellis Street/100 South project is still on schedule for 2011, with the road redone from the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saint out to Rupert. A two-mile project on 600 North toward Kamima will be done next week, and work on Interstate 84 should wrap up soon as well.

● A spate of vandalism, including graffiti and broken windows in the old city shop building area, has prompted city officials to add electronic surveillance to identify the culprits. The shop vandalism included a couch placed in the building.

● Paul Public Works Director Rich Rau said a weed clean-up is planned for Saturday to clear up city flower beds and the water tower area. About 200 volunteers from the Paul LDS Stake, representing six wards, are expected to show up for the job.

● Jay Lenkersdorfer of the Weekly News Journal asked the council to dub his paper the official newspaper of Paul. The council asked City Attorney Kent Fletcher to draft an ordinance, and Hossfeld requested a figure for the number of News Journal subscribers who live in Paul.

Latham again requests later trial date

Times-News

Robert Latham Jr. is seeking another continuance in his battery case.

A motion filed by defense counsel Rob Lewis on Sept. 2 states that Latham wants to push back his trial date to January 2011. Latham, 51, faces charges of battery and tampering with telecommunication equipment, all stemming from a February domestic dispute arrest in Twin Falls County. He was arraigned in 5th District Court in March and pleaded not guilty.

Latham, in court documents, states he needs more time to ease into his new job in Hawaii, where he moved earlier this year. Latham has a tentative job as a manager of a hotel, according to the court record. Further, it notes that the state was contacted on Sept. 1 about the matter of pushing back the trial date, but the state objected.

As of Thursday, no new trial dates were set. Latham is still scheduled for a pre-trial conference on Monday and jury trial on Oct. 19.

Judge Michael Crabtree is presiding over the case.

Latham's other trial, in which he faces three charges of unemployment insurance fraud, is scheduled for Jan. 18, 2011, also in front of Crabtree. His third pending criminal case — two counts of violating a no-contact order — is scheduled for a plea entry and sentencing,

Filer city council OKs budget, favors rezone

By John E. Swayze
Times-News correspondent

FILER — Hearing no public comment, the Filer City Council Tuesday formally approved a $15.2 million budget for fiscal year 2011.

The city's general budget will increase by $22,000 to $13 million and this year's $98,000 fire department budget will grow to $100,538. The Filer Police Department's $483,000 budget will increase by $1,000. The new budget starts Oct. 1.

In other business, the city will recommend to the Twin Falls County commissioners that a 2.5 acre parcel at 2180 North 3900 East be rezoned from residential ag to commercial. Property owner Forrest LeBaron currently operates a storage unit business on the site.

The county is involved because the site is in the county area of impact for the city.

"With our new comprehensive plan and map, this will be the first time we've done anything like this," said

Filer Mayor Bob Templeman. "We'll send a letter to the county and it'll be at their own discretion and time."

City resident Rick Dunn spoke up against the proposal, noting he's not opposed to the business, just its location. He cited illegality of the structures regarding permits, concerns about business proximity to the curve on U.S. Highway 30 and potential traffic flow dangers where the speed limit slows from 60 to 45 miles-per-hour.

"In the six years I've lived here I know of people and a horse that have been killed, not in that exact spot but in the area," said Dunn, a former council member and Twin Falls County's planning and zoning administrator. "If the rezone is approved there are over 80 different uses that could be put at that property without even asking the council, and that doesn't include the special-use permit things you would have input on."

LeBaron countered by pointing out that storage units generally have light traffic and other businesses along the highway, such as the Quality Truss Tree Farm, seem to have few problems with traffic flow.

"The property is set to become commercial upon request and I'm just trying to run an honest business," LeBaron said. "The structures that are there and the professional parking lot I put down did not require a building permit. And with the dual lane and turning lane right there, I don't think my access is a problem whatsoever."

Dunn after the meeting emphasized he was speaking as a private citizen and doesn't believe there was any conflict between his words to the council and his county job, noting the rezone proposal bypasses his department and goes straight to the county commissioners.

In other action, council members also accepted a request from Filer Mutual Telephone Co. Manager Steve Cowger to close off a portion of Union Street, from Main Street to the alley, for a customer appreciation barbecue from 4-8 p.m. on Sept. 24.

Lincoln Co. budget approved

By Emily Katseanes
Times-News correspondent

SHOSHONE — The shots fired last year at Shoshone businessman Craig Hadden also hit Lincoln County's pocketbook.

County commissioners on Tuesday passed a $2.65 million budget for the 2011 fiscal year. It's about $45,000 less than the current year's budget, thanks to the end of last year's attempted-murder trial.

With the parties involved all sentenced, the county's public defender's budget has been able to return to normal levels.

County commissioners said they had also overbudgeted jail expenses in the 2009 fiscal year, leading to a surplus in the 2010 year. That $15,000 surplus will roll over into next year's budget and revert back to general funds.

The surplus comes from overestimating the cost of renting jail space in Twin Falls and Bingham counties. Lincoln County does not have its own jail.

The new fiscal year starts Oct. 1.

Stem cells

that were due to get yearly checks in September were told after Lamberth's order that they'd have to find other money. Most of the researchers have multiple sources of funding and are working now to separate what they can and can't continue, Clemens said.

Medical researchers value stem cells because they are master cells that can turn into any tissue of the body. Research eventually could lead to cures for spinal cord injuries, Parkinson's disease and other ailments, they believe.

The Obama administration is asking the appeals court in Washington to strike down a preliminary injunction by Lamberth that blocked the funding. Lamberth left little doubt that he is inclined to issue a final order barring that funding, but he has yet to issue that ruling, which inevitably will set off a new round of appeals.

Lamberth concluded that those who challenged the government support had demonstrated a strong likelihood of success in their lawsuit. He said the clear intent of a law passed by Congress was to prohibit federal spending on research in which a human embryo is destroyed.

the playing field," Peterson said.

The university is mounting an educational program about the amendment, Peterson said, stressing that the goal will be to give voters information about the proposal, not advocate in its favor.

The university had briefly started up a website called "isupport101.org," which refers to Senate Joint Resolution 101 that legislators approved to put the amendment on the ballot.

But then the university became concerned about advocating for the proposal rather than just educating voters about it, and the site was taken down, Peterson said.

There are plans to start up a different website, but with a different name.

"We are going back up with a website but it's going to be something like: 'Facts about S.J.R. 101,'" he said, adding that it will be focused on providing information to voters.

If the amendment is approved by voters, the Idaho State Board of Education would need to approve any tuition proposals that the university brings forward next spring, as is the case for all state universities and Lewis-Clark State College. For community colleges like the College of Southern Idaho, approval of tuition and fees is required by the college's board of trustees, not the state board.

Among the items stolen were four tents of various sizes, two sleeping bags, two propane tanks, a double-burner stove and carry bag, a fry griddle for the stove, a wrench, a jail mattress, a propane heater, eight metal folding chairs and a cast-iron dinner bell. In all, Bangert estimated the value of the gear at $2,000.

The Jerome County Sheriff's Office is investigating the burglary.

"We're asking anyone with input to where this property may have ended up, call our office," Sheriff Doug McFall said. "This has outraged a lot of people, including myself and my deputies. We're going to put forth as much effort as we can to prosecute whoever is responsible."

Bangert said that the troop will gather what supplies they can and camp anyway.

"We may just have to rough it a bit more," he added.

Soldier's father: Army was warned of murder plot

By Gene Johnson
Associated Press Writer

SEATTLE — The father of a U.S. soldier serving in Afghanistan says he tried nearly a half-dozen times to pass an urgent message from his son to the Army: Troops in his unit had murdered an Afghan civilian, planned more killings and threatened him to keep quiet about it.

By the time officials arrested suspects months later, two more Afghans were dead.

And much to Christopher Winfield's horror, his son Adam was among the five Fort Lewis-based soldiers charged in the killings.

The elder Winfield told The Associated Press in an exclusive interview that his son did not kill the unarmed man and would never have been in the situation if the Army had investigated the warnings he says he passed along to Fort Lewis.

An Army spokeswoman at the base said she could not comment on whether they received such a tip or if so, whether it was acted on.

But the new details about Winfield's efforts to alert the Army and his son's pleas raised questions about the Army's handling of the case and its system for allowing soldiers to report misconduct by their colleagues.

The soldiers have been accused of conspiracy and premeditated murder. The highest ranking is Staff Sgt. Calvin Gibbs, who, along with Cpl. Jeremy Morlock, are accused of taking part in all three killings.

Pfc. Andrew Holmes is charged with murder in the first killing, and Spc. Michael Waggon is charged in another. Both deny the charges.

Winfield is charged with murder in the final killing, and his attorney, Eric Montalvo, insists he was ordered to shoot after Gibbs hit the civilian with a grenade. Winfield deliberately shot high and missed, he said.

Gibbs has denied the charges. His attorney, Phillip Stackhouse, said his client maintains that the shootings were "appropriate engagements" and denies involvement in any conspiracy to kill civilians.

The soldiers, all assigned to the 5th Stryker Brigade, deployed in July 2009 and were stationed at a base in Kandahar Province.

The AP reviewed witness and defendant statements as well as documents filed with an Army magistrate for this report.

Gibbs, 25, of Billings, Mont., arrived in the unit late last year and soon began discussing how easy it would be to kill civilians, some in the platoon told Army investigators. He and Cpl. Jeremy Morlock, 22, planned "scenarios" in which they could carry out such killings, they said.

Morlock, of Wasilla, Alaska, gave investigators extensive statements describing the plot.

Morlock's lawyer did not immediately return calls and e-mails from the AP, but previously told The Seattle Times that the statements were made under the influence of prescription drugs to treat traumatic brain injuries from explosions and should be suppressed as evidence.

In each of the killings, Morlock said, he and Gibbs planned and initiated the attack and enlisted one other soldier to participate.

The first indication for Christopher Winfield and his wife, Emma, that something was amiss came Jan. 15, the day of the first killing.

"I'm not sure what to do about something that happened out here but I need to be secretive about this," their son wrote them in a Facebook message. The couple gave the AP copies of the Facebook messages, Internet chats and their phone records.

Winfield, 22, of Cape Coral, Fla., didn't immediately provide more details, and over the next month he had little contact with his parents. They said they checked constantly to see if he was online.

On Feb. 14, he told his parents what happened in a lengthy Internet chat: Members of his unit on patrol had killed "some innocent guy about my age just farming." He said he did not witness the killing.

But, he wrote, those involved told him about it and urged him to "get one of my own."

He said that virtually everyone in the platoon was aware of what was going on, but no one seemed to object.

"If you talk to anyone on my behalf, I have proof that they are planning another one in the form of an AK-47 they want to drop on a guy." He added that he didn't know whom to trust and feared for his safety if his comrades learned he was talking to authorities.

"Should I do the right thing and put myself in danger for it. Or just shut up and deal with it," he wrote his parents. "There are no more good men left here. It eats away at my conscience everyday."

In statements to investigators, at least three platoon members said Gibbs directly threatened Winfield. Morlock added that Gibbs devised "scenarios" for Winfield's death, one of which involved Gibbs dropping heavy weights on him as he was working out.

Gibbs accosted Winfield as he was on his way to speak with a chaplain and warned him to keep quiet, Montalvo said.

Soldiers serving in a combat theater typically would report crimes up the chain of command, to military investigators or chaplains, to members of the Defense Department inspector general's office, or even to another unit if their own commanders are involved.

One soldier, Pfc. Justin A. Stoner, who reported hashish smoking in the unit, said he was beaten by several platoon members. Gibbs and Morlock then paid him a visit, with Gibbs rolling out on the floor a set of severed fingers, he told investigators.

Morlock told him that "if I don't want to end up like that guy ... shut the hell up."

Winfield asked his parents to call an Army hotline because he didn't want anyone to overhear him using the phone.

His father, a Marine veteran, was shocked, and made five calls to military officials that day, his phone records show.

He said he left a message on a Defense Department hotline and called four numbers at Fort Lewis. He said he spoke with an on-duty sergeant and left a message at an Army Criminal Investigations Division office before reaching the base's command center.

In that call, an official told him that if his son wasn't willing to come forward while deployed, there was nothing the base could do, Winfield recalled in interviews with the AP and in a sworn statement to Army investigators.

The official suggested the soldier keep his head down until his deployment ended and investigators could look into his claims, he said.

The elder Winfield told AP he regrets not writing down the identities of those he spoke with. He said he did not give any of them Gibbs' name, but did identify his son. He said one of his son's sergeants had been involved in a civilian's murder and was planning more.

His son soon expressed concern about what would happen if Army officials stateside began making inquiries, and asked his dad to back off. The elder Winfield said he complied.

A week later, the second killing occurred. On May 2, the third killing took place.

The killings eventually came to light when the soldier who had reported the drug use told investigators that Morlock "had three prior kills that none of which I believe were actually justified."

Preliminary hearings in the case are expected to begin this fall.

AROUND THE WEST

IDAHO Otter gives Salazar Oct. 7 deadline on wolf pact

BOISE — Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter says he’ll negotiate until Oct. 7 with the federal government on a plan to manage wolves in his state.

If no pact comes about, however, Otter says Idaho will no longer be designated agent for monitoring, providing law enforcement support or investigating wolf deaths.

Otter delivered the ultimatum in person to U.S. Interior Secretary Ken Salazar in Washington, D.C., this week.

At their meeting, they discussed a U.S. District Court decision in August that restored federal protections to wolves in Idaho and Montana — over both of their objections.

Otter says he pledged to continue working with federal agencies on a plan for Idaho to manage its roughly 850 wolves, including increased flexibility to kill them when they eat livestock or too many elk.

He also wants the federal government to pay for state management efforts.

Committee to study lawmaker pay

BOISE — Two members of a committee scheduled to meet next Wednesday to set compensation for Idaho state legislators say a pay cut is possible.

“I would expect to see a small decrease or no increase,” said Legislative Compensation Committee chairman Rich Jackson.

Panel member Deb Kristensen said she’d expect the same result.

“I can’t imagine voting for an increase in light of all the cuts made across the state,” she told the Idaho Statesman. “Whether we hold the line or recommend a decrease, I think that’s going to be the discussion.”

In the past two years, state employees have endured pay and benefit cuts and have been required to take unpaid furloughs.

Idaho’s legislative salary has been $16,116 since December 2006. Lawmakers also receive health and pension benefits along with $2,500 a year for constituent services, and up to $1,000 for travel expenses.

MONTANA Judge: County should have say in power line route

BOULDER — A Montana judge has ordered a state agency to give Jefferson County commissioners input in the siting of a major power line proposed to run from southwestern Montana into south-central Idaho.

District Judge Loren Tucker ruled Wednesday that the state Department of Environmental Quality had not done enough to get county input on the best route for the $1 billion, 500 kilovolt Mountain States Transmission Intertie proposed by NorthWestern Energy, the Montana Standard reported. The proposed line would run from a new substation near Townsend to a substation near Jerome, Idaho.

“DEQ has concluded and insisted that

Jefferson County should be kept out of the process for a certain period of time,” Tucker said. “Jefferson County should have ample time to consider all of the data.”

County commissioners sued the DEQ to try to force the agency to listen to their concerns about the line’s location. They also sought an injunction that would halt the line’s construction until the county was consulted.

WYOMING Judge mostly upholds lynx habitat in 6 states

CHEYENNE — A judge in Wyoming has mostly upheld a federal decision to designate land in six states as critical habitat for the threatened Canada lynx.

The designated habitat is scattered over parts of Idaho, Maine, Minnesota, Montana, Washington and Wyoming and adds up to 39,000 square miles, an area the size of Indiana.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service designated the habitat last year, prompting a lawsuit from snowmobile enthusiast groups in Wyoming and Washington state.

U.S. District Judge Nancy Freudenthal almost entirely upheld the designation Thursday after hearing oral arguments. Her lone exception is certain national forest land in northern Washington state where Freudenthal says Fish and Wildlife didn’t adequately consider the economic effects of designating the habitat.

Idaho officials want pot substitute made illegal

BOISE (AP) — Prosecutors in southwest Idaho plan to lobby state lawmakers to ban the sale or possession of a marijuana substitute called Spice that officials say is becoming more popular.

Ada County Deputy Prosecutor Heather Reilly said officials will ask the Legislature to add Spice to the controlled substances list.

Spice is legal in Idaho and does not have an age restriction. It’s sold as incense but it contains a synthetic chemical similar to THC, the psychoactive ingredient in marijuana, and police say it’s being smoked like the drug. Spice use is banned in 11 states, including Utah.

Mareen Baker-Burton, coordinator for the Ada County Drug Court, said more people in the system are using Spice. The drug court tries to use treatment and rehabilitation rather than incarceration.

“We have struggled with people in Drug Court using Spice,” she told the Idaho Statesman. “It’s been a huge issue for any addict, since it is so available.”

In nearby Canyon County, Prosecutor John Bujak announced last month that juveniles found with Spice would be charged with a misdemeanor count of possession of inhalants.

Bujak said he can use that law to limit Spice to juveniles until the Legislature bans it. Bujak also plans to charge any retailer selling Spice to juveniles, but no store owners had been charged through Wednesday.

Ada County prosecutors say they are not sure the law on possession of inhalants applies.

Besides smoke shops, Spice is also sold at a variety of locations, including “Spice World,” located inside a motorcycle supply shop.

Cutting pay will make Legislature less representative

Next Wednesday, the state Legislative Compensation Committee will gather in Boise to decide how much members of the 61st Idaho Legislature will be paid. Because of the sour economy and recent pay cuts absorbed by many state employees, the committee — made up of six private citizens — will likely decide to slash the salaries of Idaho’s 105 legislators or freeze their compensation. It shouldn’t. Idaho doesn’t spend enough on lawmakers’ pay to get the Legislature its citizens deserve. Lawmakers earn $16,116 a year, which works out to $7.75 an hour if they worked 40 hours a week, 52 weeks a year. Lawmakers also receive full-time health benefits, pension benefits, $2,500 a year for constituent services, and up to $1,000 for non-session travel. During the session, those who live within 50 miles of Boise get $49 per day per diem. Those from outside the Boise area who maintain second residences get $122 per day. Most of them lose money — which drives many out of government. Those who stay have a reliable second income, or are retired. That doesn’t leave a lot of Idahoans in a position to serve, which leaves the rest of us with a deliberative body that skews heavily toward age and profession. About a quarter of Idaho legislators are women — close to the national average — but there are few lawmakers who are in the first three decades of their working lives. At the moment, four thirtysomethings serve in the House and one in the Senate, and just 12 of lawmakers are in their 40s. And ethnic diversity? There isn’t any. The typical Idahoan is 34 years old and works in the transportation, construction or service sectors. The average Idaho legislator is 26 years older and either a farmer, rancher, lawyer or small-business owner, or retired from one of those professions. None of that will change until the state makes it financially possible for working people of ordinary means to serve in Boise. Nationally, the average lawmaker’s salary in the 41 states that pay legislators annually is $31,908, plus per diem and expenses. Idaho lawmakers don’t need that much. But a $5,000-a-year bump, say to the $21,612 that Oregon pays its lawmakers, would go a long way toward making a more representative Idaho Legislature possible.

The Roosevelt Recession, Obama-style

Here’s the situation: The U.S. economy has been crippled by a financial crisis. The president’s policies have limited the damage, but they were too cautious, and unemployment remains disastrously high. More action is clearly needed. Yet the public has soured on government activism, and seems poised to deal Democrats a severe defeat in the midterm elections.

Paul Krugman

The president in question is Franklin Delano Roosevelt; the year is 1938. Within a few years, of course, the Great Depression was over. But it’s both instructive and discouraging to look at the state of America circa 1938 — instructive because the nature of the recovery that followed refutes the arguments dominating today’s public debate, discouraging because it’s hard to see anything like the miracle of the 1940s happening again. Now, we weren’t supposed to find ourselves replaying the late 1930s. President Obama’s economists promised not to repeat the mistakes of 1937, when FDR pulled back fiscal stimulus too soon. But by making his program too small and too short-lived, Obama did just that: the stimulus raised growth while it lasted, but it made only a small dent in unemployment — and now it’s fading out. And just as some of us feared, the inadequacy of the administration’s initial economic plan has landed it — and the nation — in a political trap. More stimulus is desperately needed, but in the public’s eyes the failure of the initial program to deliver a convincing recovery has discredited government action to create jobs. In short, welcome to 1938. The story of 1937, of FDR’s disastrous decision to heed those who said that it was time to slash the deficit, is well known. What’s less well known is the extent to which the public drew the wrong conclusions from the recession that followed: far from calling for a resumption of New Deal programs, voters lost faith in fiscal expansion. Consider Gallup polling from March 1938. Asked whether government spending should be increased to fight the slump, 63 percent of those polled said no. Asked whether it would be better to increase spending or to cut business taxes, only 15 percent favored spending; 63 percent favored tax cuts. And the 1938 election was a disaster for the Democrats, who lost 70 seats in the House and seven in the Senate. Then came the war. From an economic point of view World War II was, above all, a burst of deficit-financed government spending, on a scale that would never have been approved otherwise. Over the course of the war the federal government borrowed roughly twice the value of GDP in 1940 — the equivalent of roughly $30 trillion today. Had anyone proposed spending even a fraction that much before the war, people would have said the same things they’re saying today. They would have warned about crushing debt and runaway inflation. They would also have said, rightly, that the Depression was in large part caused by excess debt — and then have declared that it was impossible to fix this problem by issuing even more debt. But guess what? Deficit spending created an economic boom — and the boom laid the foundation for long-run prosperity. Overall debt in the economy — public plus private — actually fell as a percentage of GDP, thanks to economic growth and, yes, some inflation, which reduced the real value of outstanding debts. And after the war, thanks to the improved financial position of the private sector, the economy was able to thrive without continuing deficits. The economic moral is clear: when the economy is deeply depressed, the usual rules don’t apply. Austerity is self-defeating: when everyone tries to pay down debt at the same time, the result is depression and deflation, and debt problems grow even worse. And conversely, it is possible — indeed, necessary — for the nation as a whole to spend its way out of debt: a temporary surge of deficit spending, on a sufficient scale, can cure problems brought on by past excesses. But the story of 1938 also shows how hard it is to apply these insights. Even under FDR, there was never the political will to do what was needed to end the Great Depression; its eventual resolution came essentially by accident. I had hoped that we would do better this time. But it turns out that politicians and economists alike have spent decades unlearning the lessons of the 1930s, and are determined to repeat all the old mistakes. And it’s slightly sickening to realize that the big winners in the midterm elections are likely to be the very people who first got us into this mess, then did everything in their power to block action to get us out.

Leave retirement age, Social Security alone

There are a lot of things Congress doesn’t know right now. What to do about jobs, for instance. Who’ll be running the House come January. How to balance the budget. But there is one thing that both parties increasingly seem to agree on: You should work longer. Raising the Social Security retirement age has become as close to a consensus position as exists in American politics. House Minority Leader John A. Boehner, R-Ohio, supports it. House Majority Leader Steny H. Hoyer, D-Md., has said that “we could and should consider a higher retirement age.” And for a while, I agreed with them, too. It seemed obvious: People live longer today, and so they should work later into life. But as I’ve looked at the issue, I’ve decided that I was wrong. So let me be the skunk at the party. We should leave the retirement age alone. In fact, we should leave Social Security alone — unless we’re making it more, rather than less, generous. Social Security provides disability insurance and survivor’s benefits, but when people talk about it, they tend to be referring to its role as a program that provides income support to retirees. The average monthly benefit of $1,170 replaces about 39 percent of the person’s pre-retirement earnings. Over the next two decades, the “replacement rate” is slated to drop to 31 percent. That is less than in most developed countries — the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development ranks it 25 out of 30 member nations. The system, in other words, is not that generous, and it’s becoming less so every year. The age at which you can begin collecting full Social Security benefits is moving from 65 to 67, as part of a deal struck in the 1980s to ensure the system’s solvency. And all this at a time when employers are getting rid of defined-benefit pensions, which means that most workers will have no guaranteed retirement income except for Social Security. Start with the basic rationale for raising the retirement age. As Rep. Paul D. Ryan, R-Wis., has argued, when Social Security was signed into law, the retirement age was 65 and life expectancy was 63. “The numbers added up pretty well back then,” he said on Fox News. But that’s misleading. That figure was driven by high infant mortality. If you were a white male who’d made it to age 60 in 1935, you could expect 15 more years going forward. If you’re a white male who lives to 60 today, you can expect 20 more years going forward. Moreover, those averages conceal a lot of inequality. In 1972, a 60-year-old male worker who made less than the median income had a life expectancy of 78 years. By 2001, he had a life expectancy of 80 years. Meanwhile, workers in the top half of the income distribution shot to 85 years from 79. Insofar as the argument for raising the retirement age is that “Social Security beneficiaries live a lot longer today than they did in 1935,” it should be restated as: “Social Security beneficiaries tend to live somewhat longer today than they did in 1935, and that’s much more true of rich beneficiaries than poor beneficiaries.” And so what? Lurking beneath this conversation is an unquestioned assumption: We live longer, so we should work longer. That’s pretty intuitive to members of Congress, who seem to like their jobs and don’t seem to like the idea of retiring. It’s also pretty intuitive to blogger/columnists, who spend their time in air-conditioned rooms opining about pension programs. But most people don’t work in Congress or in the media. They work on their feet. They strain their backs. They’re bored silly at the end of the day. By the time they’re in their 60s, they want to retire. You see that reflected in Social Security. Age 66 is when you get full benefits. But most people begin taking Social Security at age 62. They get less, but they can retire earlier. To them, the trade-off is worth it. And remember, the country is much richer than it was in 1935. Adjusting for inflation, our gross domestic product in 1935 was $865 billion. In 2009, it was more than $12 trillion.

We're getting too paranoid about paranoia

Last week, a man named James Lee entered the headquarters of the Discovery Channel with explosives strapped to his body, took three hostages at gunpoint, and waited for his demands to be met.

A foe of population growth, Lee had apparently decided that shows like Kate Plus Eight and 19 Kids and Counting were pushing the planet toward destruction. "All programs on Discovery Health-TLC must stop encouraging the birth of any more parasitic human infants," he decreed, before moving on to demand solutions for "global warming, automotive pollution, international trade ... and the whole blasted human economy."

By the end of the day, the hostages were safe, Lee had been killed by police, and TLC's fall lineup was preserved. But the debate about the hostage-taker's politics was just beginning.

Conservatives and libertarians dubbed Lee a "liberal eco-terrorist" inspired by a "green climate of hate." They pointed out that he traced his political

Ross Douthat

"awakening" to Al Gore's apocalyptic rhetoric. They cited an FBI statement calling eco-vigilantes America's "No. 1 domestic terrorism threat."

This was all a little ridiculous. But of course it was really an attempt to turn the tables on liberals, who have spent the last two years linking conservative rhetoric to hate crimes and antigovernment maniacs. (It's a hard habit to break: the liberal site ThinkProgress.org quickly suggested that James Lee was actually a right-wing extremist, because his hostility to "parasitic human infants" extended to the children of illegal immigrants.)

To some extent, partisans persist in these arguments — "your side encourages extremists!"; "no, your side encourages extremists!" — because America really is rife with wild and crazy sentiments. The belief that Barack Obama is secretly a Muslim (apparently held by nearly 20 percent of the country) gets the headlines. But as the George Mason law professor Ilya Somin has noted, national opinion polls reveal support for numerous far-out or noxious-seeming notions.

There's the 32 percent of Democrats who blame "the Jews" for the financial crisis. There's the 25 percent of African Americans who believe the AIDS virus was created in a government lab. There's support for state secession, which may have been higher among liberals in the Bush era than among Republicans in the age of Obama. And there's the theory that the Bush White House knew about 9/11 in advance, which a third of Democrats endorsed as recently as 2007.

So are we a nation of potential James Lees, teetering on the brink of paranoid violence? Not necessarily. As the libertarian writer Julian Sanchez has pointed out, it's worth taking all these polling responses with a substantial grain of salt. For all but the hardest-core conspiracy theorists, they may express what Sanchez calls "symbolic beliefs." These are "propositions you profess publicly" but would never follow through on, because they're adopted as a kind of political and cultural statement rather than out of deep conviction.

Consider the apparently widespread notion that George W. Bush knew about 9/11 in advance. If true, it would suggest that Bush was not merely a bad man or a bad president, but an evil genius on a shocking scale. But as Sanchez notes, "you did not really see a lot of behavior consistent with millions upon millions of people being seriously convinced that their president was a treasonous mass murderer." Nobody planned an insurrection; few people fled to Canada. Instead, liberals organized for Democratic candidates, as though Bush were an ordinary opponent rather than a stone-cold killer.

The same is true of conservative conspiracy theorists today. Tuning in to Glenn Beck or joining your local Tea Party seems like a woefully insufficient response to the possibility that Barack Obama is a Manchurian candidate groomed from birth to undermine democracy and impose Shariah law. But if we understand those paranoias to be symbolic beliefs, rather than real convictions — an attention-grabbing way of saying, "I consider Obama phony, dishonest and un-American" — then conservative behavior makes a lot more sense.

Such beliefs can still be dangerous. The line between what's symbolic and what's real isn't always clear, and a determined demagogue can exploit symbolic beliefs as well as real ones.

But obsessing about the paranoia of the masses is often a way for American elites to gloss over their own, entirely nonsymbolic failures. In the Bush era attacking the conspiracy theories of the "angry left" made it easier for conservatives to avert their eyes from the disaster the Iraq war had become. Today, establishment liberals would much rather fret about the insanity of the Republican base than reckon with the unpopularity of Barack Obama's domestic program.

Some fretting is justified. (Just ask the Discovery Channel.) But over all, Americans still have more to fear from the folly of establishments than from the paranoia such follies summon up.

In Iraq, anyway, nation-building works

The U.S. venture into Iraq was a war, but it was also a nation-building exercise. America has spent $53 billion trying to reconstruct Iraq, the largest development effort since the Marshall Plan.

On the economic front, there are signs of progress. It's hard to know what role the scattershot American development projects have played, but this year Iraq will have the 12th-fastest-growing economy in the world, and it is expected to grow at a 7 percent annual clip for the next several years.

"Iraq has made substantial progress since 2003," the International Monetary Fund reports. Inflation is reasonably stable. A budget surplus is expected by 2012. Unemployment, though still 15 percent, is down from stratospheric levels.

Oil production is back around prewar levels, and there are some who say Iraq may be able to rival Saudi production. That's probably unrealistic, but Iraq will have a healthy oil economy, for better and for worse.

Living standards are also improving. According to the Brookings Institution's Iraq Index, the authoritative compendium of data on this subject, 833,000 Iraqis had phones before the invasion. Now more than 1.3 million have landlines and some 20 million have cellphones. Before the invasion, 4,500 Iraqis had Internet service. Now, more than 1.7 million do.

In the most recent Gallup poll, 69 percent of Iraqis rated their personal finances positively, up from 36 percent in March 2007. Baghdad residents say the markets are vibrant again, with new electronics, clothing and even liquor stores.

Basic services are better,

but still bad. Electricity production is up by 40 percent over pre-invasion levels, but because there are so many more air-conditioners and other appliances, widespread power failures still occur.

In February 2009, 45 percent of Iraqis said they had access to trash removal services, which is woeful, though up from 18 percent the year before. Forty-two percent were served by a fire department, up from 23 percent.

About half the U.S. money has been spent building up Iraqi security forces, and here, too, the trends are positive.

Violence is down 90 percent from pre-surge days. There are now more than 400,000 Iraqi police officers and 200,000 Iraqi soldiers, with operational performance improving gradually. According to an ABC News/BBC poll last year, nearly three-quarters of Iraqis had a positive view of the army and the police, including, for the first time, a majority of Sunnis.

Politically, the basic structure is sound, and a series of impressive laws have been passed. But these gains are imperiled by the current stalemate at the top.

Iraq ranks fourth in the Middle East on the Index of Political Freedom from The Economist's Intelligence Unit — behind Israel, Lebanon and Morocco, but ahead of Jordan, Egypt, Qatar and Tunisia. Nearly two-thirds of Iraqis say they want a democracy, while only 19 percent want an Islamic state.

In short, there has been substantial progress on the things development efforts can touch most directly: economic growth, basic security, and political and legal institutions. After the disaster of the first few years, nation building, much derided, has been a success. When President Obama speaks to the country on Iraq, he'll be able to point to a large national project that has contributed to measurable, positive results.

Of course, to be honest, he'll also have to say how fragile and incomplete this success is. Iraqi material conditions are better, but the Iraqi mind has not caught up with the Iraqi opportunity.

There is still very little social trust. Iraq is the fourth-most-corrupt nation on earth, according to Transparency International's rating system. The role of women remains surprisingly circumscribed. Iraqi politicians clearly find it very hard to compromise (though they may be no worse than American politicians in this regard).

Human capital is lagging. Most doctors left Iraq after the invasion, and it is hard to staff health clinics. The engineers left too, so American-built plants lie dormant because there is no one with the skills to run them. Schools are suffering because of a lack of teachers.

Ryan Crocker, the former ambassador, recently wrote an article in The National Interest noting that fear still pervades Iraq. Ethnic animosities are in abeyance, but they are not gone. Guns have been put in closets, but not destroyed.

If he is honest, Obama will have to balance pride with caution. He'll have to acknowledge that the gains the U.S. is enabling may vanish if the U.S. military withdraws entirely next year. He'll have to acknowledge that bottom-up social change requires time and patience. He'll have to shelve plans to withdraw completely.

Such a move may rob him of a campaign talking point. But it will safeguard an American accomplishment that has been too hard won.

Iran to release imprisoned U.S. woman, official says

By Ramin Mostaghim
and Borzou Daragahi
Los Angeles Times

TEHRAN — An American woman, one of three U.S. hikers jailed in Iran last year after possibly straying into Iranian territory, will be released Saturday, an Iranian official said Thursday.

Friends and relatives say Joshua Fattal, Shane Bauer and Sarah Shourd were on a hiking trip in the scenic mountains of Iraqi Kurdistan near the Iranian border July 31, 2009, when they may have strayed inadvertently into Iranian territory. They were detained by Iranian forces and have been locked up in Tehran's infamous Evin Prison.

The Ministry of Culture and Islamic Guidance said in a text message Thursday that one of the three would be released, but did not specify which one. But an official with the Iranian mission to the United Nations said in a subsequent e-mail that it would be Shourd.

"I would like to confirm that Iran will be releasing Sarah Shourd (an American hiker) very soon," the diplomat, Mohammad Reza Bak Sahraei, said. Observers in Tehran had speculated that Shourd, who is in her 30s and has medical problems, may be allowed to go home.

A statement Thursday from the hikers' mothers, who pleaded for their release during a trip to Tehran in May, said: "We have seen the news reports and are urgently seeking further information. We hope and pray that the reports are true and that this signals the end of all three of our children's long and difficult detention."

"Shane, Sarah and Josh are all innocent, and we continue to call for their immediate release, so that they can return home together and be reunited with our families," said the statement from Cindy Hickey, Nora Shourd and Laura Fattal.

Liam O'Donoghue, a friend of Bauer and Shourd, said the families had been assuming that of the three, Shourd was most likely to be freed.

"There's a precedent of earlier hostage releases in Iran of releasing the women first. And she found a lump in her breast. The need is that she get health care immediately," he said. "We're all really frightened and hoping that she gets to see a doctor soon. Even Shane and Josh's families have said that it's important for Sarah to get health care."

In public statements, Iranian officials have leveled vague charges at the three, including trespassing and espionage.

American officials called for the hikers' freedom after the U.S. allowed alleged Iranian defector Shahram Amiri, a nuclear scientist, to return home in July. The release may be in response to Amiri's return.

But rulers of Muslim countries often grant amnesty to prisoners as a gesture of charity and mercy during Eid al-Fitr holidays, which mark the end of the holy month of Ramadan.

The news of the release also comes as Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad prepares to depart for his annual trip to New York for the opening session of the United Nations General Assembly.

"If this turns out to be true, it's terrific news," State Department spokesman Mark Toner said. "I would just stress that we hope it's all three hikers."

Suicide bombing in S. Russia kills 17

ROSTOV-ON-DON, Russia (AP) — Russian Prime Minister Vladimir Putin blamed extremists "without souls, without hearts" for a suicide car bombing that killed 17 people Thursday in the crowded central market of a city in the North Caucasus.

It was the fourth terrorist attack at the market in a decade, and while no one claimed responsibility, the Kremlin has been trying to contain Islamic militancy in the mountainous southern region of Russia.

Nearly 140 were wounded in the bombing in Vladikavkaz, the capital of North Ossetia, with about a half-dozen hospitalized in very serious condition.

Putin met with Russia's top Muslim cleric after the blast and said Russia's estimated 20 million Muslims should play a key role in eradicating Islamic extremism in the nation.

"The crimes like the one that was committed in the North Caucasus today are aimed at sowing enmity between our citizens. We mustn't allow this," Putin said in televised remarks at the meeting.

The bomber drove to the market's main entrance and detonated the explosives, the Emergency Situations Ministry said. The blast tore the car in half, littered the market square with shrapnel and blew out windows in nearby buildings, according to nationally broadcast video that also showed charred body parts — presumably those of the bomber — bloodstains on the pavement and rows of scarred vehicles.

Economic boost awaits transmission upgrades

Renewable energy the future of Idaho, but development hinges on system expansion

By Joshua Palmer
Times-News writer

Idaho and other western states need to invest millions of dollars in transmission lines to continue producing and selling renewable energy, say business and government officials who are familiar with the industry.

At stake is a major industry that is expected to boost the state's economy and create thousands of jobs.

That was the message that was underscored Thursday during the Southern Idaho Economic Development Organization's annual summit at the College of Southern Idaho's Herrett Center.

More than 100 business and industry leaders, as well as state, county and local officials, gathered at the summit to hear about the organization's strategy to bring new investment and jobs to south-central Idaho.

The keystone to the strategy laid out Thursday is to attract more renewable energy producers — as well as the equipment manufacturers and technical training needed to maintain hundreds of wind turbines, solar panels and geothermal plants.

The region itself is on the brink of being one of the few areas in the United States that commercially produces all five forms of renewable energy, including hydro, wind, biomass, geothermal and solar. Solar is the fifth and final method that will be added to the region's lineup when Mid-Point Energy, a Jerome-based company, completes construction on a 405-acre solar panel farm south of Shoshone.

However, Paul Kjellander, administrator of Idaho's Office of Energy Resources, said Idaho and other western states are in dire need of an adequate transmission system to transport renewable energy to consumers.

"Transmission is the key," Kjellander said. "Our transmission system is now at, or near, capacity. We are at the point today where we can't South-central Idaho will soon commercially produce all five forms of renewable energy — hydro, wind, biomass, geothermal and biomass. However, Idaho and other western state must expand the transmission system to bring the energy to markets, say state and business officials.

just talk about transmission, we need to build it."

Breaking through the bureaucratic, political and environmental "red tape" is easier said than done, he said.

Transmission systems often run hundreds, if not thousands, of miles of high-voltage cable through federal, state and private lands. Bringing all three parties together to approve a transmission system is difficult — at best.

The recently proposed, 1,150-mile Gateway West transmission system through Wyoming and Idaho has become a case example.

State Rep. Stephen Hartgen, R-Twin Falls, said the Gateway West project has — at times — pit economic development against voters.

Southern Idaho Solid Waste, SIEDO plan 400-acre methane production plant

Times-News

The Southern Idaho Economic Development Organization announced Thursday during its annual summit that it is working with Southern Idaho Solid Waste to build a renewable energy plant that will convert methane gas into electricity at the Milner Butte Landfill west of Burley.

Jan Rogers, executive director of SIEDO, and Doug Manning, city of Burley economic development director, confirmed that the president of the waste site has offered about 400 acres of the 800 acre site for the plant's use.

Manning said the current proposal is to extract the methane gas from decomposing garbage, which is collected from seven counties in south-central Idaho, and use it to power turbines that would create electricity.

"It's still in its infancy, but it's definitely moving forward," he said. The plant brought a methane-gas collection system online in September 2009. Tests then showed that the landfill's methane gas flowed at between 315 and 330 standard cubic feet per minute, more than enough to support a generator.

Feds send housing cash to T.F., other Idaho towns

Times-News

The federal government is sending an additional $5 million to Idaho to help neighborhoods hurt by the foreclosure crisis.

U.S. Housing and Urban Development Secretary Shaun Donovan announced the additional funding Wednesday to help communities acquire foreclosed properties for demolition, re-sale or development.

The money is a byproduct of the Wall Street reform bill passed earlier this year by Congress. The extra funding is in addition to the $19.6 million diverted to the Idaho Housing and Finance Association since 2008.

So far, money from the program has been used to buy 186 blighted or foreclosed properties across the state, including small towns like Athol and Kuna to cities like Twin Falls and Coeur d'Alene.

Donovan says the grants will help with local efforts to reverse the effects foreclosed properties have on neighborhoods.

"A blighted or foreclosed house in an otherwise vibrant neighborhood can all too quickly change the quality of life for those who call it home," said HUD Regional Administrator Mary McBride. "Our funds are giving Idaho communities the resources to move effectively to halt the downward trend in its tracks and to keep their neighborhoods strong."

According to HUD, state and local governments can use funds to acquire land and property, demolish or rehabilitate abandoned properties; or offer downpayment and closing cost assistance to low- to moderate-income homebuyers.

In determining the allocations, HUD will weigh several factors to match funding to need in the 20 percent most distressed neighborhoods based on the number and percentage of home foreclosures, the number and percentage of homes financed by a subprime mortgage related loan, and the number and percentage of homes in delinquency.

Housing regulator prepares changes for reverse mortgages

By Mary Ellen Podmolik
Chicago Tribune writer

The Federal Housing Administration isn't talking publicly about it, but the agency may be getting ready to lessen the upfront costs of reverse mortgages for some borrowers.

The agency also, however, may be reducing the amount seniors can borrow from their homes.

In a recent conference call with industry participants, FHA officials said they were finalizing plans to offer a home-equity conversion mortgage with almost no upfront mortgage insurance premium attached, according to the National Reverse Mortgage Lenders Association. The FHA also may tinker with the traditional product in a way that increases the overall borrowing costs.

"HUD is looking at options to provide a lower-priced (home-equity conversion mortgage) option," said Lemar Wooley, a spokesman for the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. "We are still working out the details. Our basic plan is to make the product more attractive, while limiting FHA's exposure to risk."

A home-equity conversion mortgages is a federally guaranteed reverse mortgage designed to let homeowners 62 or older tap into the equity in their homes. The loans and accrued interest don't have to be repaid until the owner sells the home, dies or fails to live there for one year, but the loans have traditionally carried significant upfront and annual expenses.

According to participants on the conference call, home-equity conversion mortgages

Cold drinks, hot summer lift McDonald's

By Emily Fredrix
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — August's summer heat provided a lift for fast-food giant McDonald's, pushing a key revenue figure up 4.6 percent in the U.S. during the month as customers came in for frappes and fruit smoothies.

But the results weren't as strong as analysts were expecting, largely on weakness in Europe, and shares fell Thursday morning.

The world's largest hamburger chain said that August sales at restaurants open at least 13 months climbed 4.9 percent. While the performance was strong and beat growth of 2.2 percent in August 2009, it is down from July's 5.7 percent rise — the biggest monthly increase since a 6.1 percent gain in April 2009.

The measurement is for restaurant operators because it measures growth at existing locations. It excludes growth at

A patron leaves a McDonald's restaurant in Tonawanda, N.Y. The world's largest hamburger chain said that August sales at restaurants open at least 13 months climbed 4.9 percent. stores that open or close during the year.

McDonald's Corp. said the figure climbed 2.2 percent in Europe on strong results in the U.K. and Russia. Limited items, such as the U.K.'s summer barbecue food event, drove sales.

In the rest of the world, those sales were up 7.8 percent — marking a reverse from a drop of 0.5 percent in the same period last year. Among the strongest performers were Japan, China and Australia. The hamburger chain said menu items that appealed to local tastes and convenience helped push sales higher.

Shares fell $2.18, or 2.9 percent, to $73.90 in morning trading Thursday.

Performance in the U.S. and Asia, the Middle East and elsewhere beside Europe was strong, said Janney Capital Markets analyst Mark Kalinowski, but "Europe was the culprit."

He had expected revenue at locations open at least a year to rise 5.5 percent there. He told clients in a note Thursday Europe's weak results could be because of France, which lowered its value-added tax on restaurant meals from 19.6 percent to 5.5 percent. That spurred a sales gain in August 2009, which created a tougher comparison, he said.

"This move likely helped to boost McDonald's sales the last several months, but not that we've rolled over the benefits from this modification, all else equal France won't be producing as robust top-line results now that the benefit is gone," he said.

Revenue in rose 4.7 percent overall, though the company did not say how much revenue was.

“I had a couple hundred people in Owyhee (County) show up for a public meeting, who absolutely do not want those lines running through their property,” he said. “There are a lot of constituents that are passionate about this issue.”

Without an adequate transmission system, south-central Idaho will struggle to attract renewable energy development — and the economic impact can be astounding.

in Idaho that are in either the construction or planning phases were completed, it would create more than 4,000 direct jobs, with $5.5 billion in total economic output, according to a report by RES Americas, which is behind the proposed 170-turbine China Mountain wind project south of Twin Falls.

With that in mind, SIEDO will aggressively market south-central Idaho to renewable energy developers.

“This is the future of energy in the West,” said Jan Rogers, executive director of SIEDO, adding that the organization will promote the region at seven conferences focused on the tech sector and renewable energy. It will also host south-central Idaho's first renewable energy conference on Nov. 16 at 17 at CSI.

Changes

would be split into two products this fall: a “standard” loan and a “saver” loan.

The saver loan would have an upfront mortgage insurance premium of 0.01 percent of a home's value, but the amount of funds that could be borrowed, known as the principal limit, would be reduced by at least 10 percent, lowering the risk to the FHA, which guarantees the loans. Because a smaller amount could be borrowed, the saver loan could be marketed as an alternative to a home equity line of credit to seniors on fixed incomes who can't make the monthly minimum interest payments required on such lines of credit.

Under the standard loan, the upfront mortgage insurance premium charged by the FHA would remain 2 percent of the property value (or a max of 2 percent of the FHA maximum loan limit of $625,500), and the principal limit would be cut by 1 to 5 percent of a home's value, depending on the borrower's age. The upfront mortgage insurance premium would remain 2 percent, said industry participants briefed on the plan.

For both loans, the monthly mortgage insurance premium, which is 0.5 percent of the mortgage balance for a traditional home equity conversion mortgage, would increase to 1.25 percent.

“For someone who needs a chunk of money, but not a huge chunk, we believe this will significantly broaden the appeal,” said Peter Bell, president of the National Reverse Mortgage Lenders Association. “They're very smart changes.”

YESTERDAY ON WALL STREET

SOURCE: SunGard

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 28.23, or 0.3 percent, to close at 10,415.24. The Dow had risen as much as 90 points earlier.

The Standard & Poor's 500 index rose 5.31, or 0.5 percent, to 1,104.18, while the Nasdaq composite index rose 7.33, or 0.3 percent, to 2,236.20.

Rising stocks outpaced those that fell three to two on the New York Stock Exchange, where consolidated volume was extremely low at 3.5 billion shares.

Bond prices fell, sending the yield on the 10-year Treasury note up to 2.76 percent from 2.66 percent late Wednesday. That yield helps set interest rates on mortgages and other consumer loans.

History on the way

These images show the new interpretive exhibit recently installed in the visitors center at the Rock Creek Station/Stricker Store and Home Site.

New exhibit set up at Rock Creek Station

An interpretive exhibit was recently installed in the visitors center at the Rock Creek Station/Stricker Store and Home Site, which is owned by the Idaho Historical Society and operated by the Friends of Stricker Ranch Inc.

The multi-year project was funded through the Transportation Enhancement program of the Federal Highway Administration and administered by the Idaho Transportation Department.

The exhibit covers the story of the Rock Creek area from prehistoric times through the development of irrigation in the area, with special emphasis on transportation themes and the story of the Herman and Lucy Stricker family, who settled at the site in the 1870s.

The exhibit was designed and fabricated by TAG Historical Research & Consulting, a Boise-based firm that provides a variety of history-based services. TAG worked with historical society staff and the Friends of Stricker to develop the exhibit themes and text. Images used in the layout are from the society's collections.

The layout incorporates both wall panels and floor units. The floor units have been designed to be removed so that the visitors' center can accommodate meetings and special presentations when needed. The exhibit will be open to the public this fall during normal operating hours. A grand opening will be planned for spring 2011.

M.V. schools announce reduced-price meals and free-meal policy

Valley School District, Filer School District and the Immanuel Lutheran School recently announced their policies for free and reduced-price meals for children unable to pay the full price for meals served under the National School Lunch Program and/or School Breakfast Program.

Each school has a copy of the policy for review. Eligibility guidelines are $23,803 annual salary for a household of three; add $4,862 per year for each additional family member.

Application forms are available from the school and are being sent to all homes with a letter to parents or guardians. Applications may be submitted at any time during the year. Under the provisions of free and reduced price policy, the food service supervisor will review the applications and determine eligibility.

In certain cases, foster children may also be eligible for school meal benefits. Each foster child requires a separate application. A determination will be made based on the foster child's personal use income.

Appeals for Valley School may be sent to Arlyn R. Bodily, 882 Valley Road S., Hazelton, ID 83335 or 829-5333; Filer School: John Graham, 700 B St., Filer, ID 83328 or 326-5981; and Immanuel Lutheran School: Michelle Jund, 2055 E. Filer Ave. E., Twin Falls, ID 83301 or 733-7820.

SOMEBODY NEEDS YOU

Volunteers — The College of Southern Idaho Foster Grandparent Program has openings for volunteers, age 55 and older, to read to children and assist ages 2 to 9 with their academic and social skills. Placements are available throughout the Magic Valley in Head Start programs and public elementary schools. Information: Kelle Johnson, 736-2122.

Volunteers — The AARP Tax-Aide Program needs volunteers to provide tax assistance and preparation services from Feb. 1 to April 15. Volunteers with good computer skills are needed to assist with filing electronic tax returns in the Gooding, Jerome, Burley and Rupert areas. Training begins from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday and continues through Nov. 13 at College of Southern Idaho's Evergreen Building, Room C93. Information: Jim Simpson, 733-1808 or simpsonjim@cableone.net.

Donations — River Ridge Care and Rehabilitation Center in Twin Falls is in need of new furniture for its Solana Care Unit (Alzheimer's unit). New or used furniture in very good condition can be donated. Information: Stephaney Osburne, 734-8645, ext. 142, or Stephaney.Osburne@sunh.com.

Volunteers — Girl Scouts of Silver Sage Council needs female volunteers to facilitate the Visions program at the fourth- and fifth-grade levels in schools and other venues. Visions is a short-term, once-a-week commitment of eight to 18 weeks, depending on the volunteer. Training and materials are provided. Information: 733-9623.

Volunteers — Guardian Home Care and Hospice needs volunteers in the Twin Falls, Jerome, Gooding, Glens Ferry and Burley areas to assist with patient care: sit with patients, play games and read to patients, or help in the office. Information: Nicole, 736-0900.

Drivers — The Retired and Senior Volunteer Program needs volunteer drivers, age 55 and older, in Twin Falls, Jerome and Gooding to take senior citizens to medical appointments and for grocery shopping. Volunteers are reimbursed mileage and covered by excess insurance. Information: Edith, 736-4764.

Volunteers — The Easter Seals Goodwill GoodGuides program is part of a national mentoring program providing guidance to boys and girls ages 12 to 17. Volunteer opportunities in the Magic Valley include mentors, speakers, tutors, activity directors and mentor leaders. Information: Tristan or LeWaynne, 736-2026, or 2469 Wright Ave., Twin Falls.

Drivers — Twin Falls Senior Citizens Center needs volunteer drivers for the home-delivered meals program for the homebound. Drivers do not have to be seniors to volunteer to drive one or two days a week for an hour to an hour and a half. The center needs reliable people for the appointed routes. Reimbursed mileage for gas is available. Information: Joanna, 734-5084, or 530 Shoshone St. W., Twin Falls.

Volunteers — St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center needs volunteers to assist in a variety of positions. Qualifications include being friendly, compassionate individuals; the ability to set priorities, such as punctuality, dependability and responsibility; the physical ability to walk, stand and sit for a period of time; and the ability to take the initiative and be flexible, assuming different roles as needed to provide help or comfort to patients, visitors and staff. Information: Kim, 737-2006, or St. Luke's Volunteer Services Office, Fifth Floor, 650 Addison Ave. W., Twin Falls.

Volunteers — Hospice Visions needs volunteers to help make a difference in the lives of caregivers and those experiencing end-of-life issues. Volunteers provide companionship, bring joy during difficult times and ease burdens by writing letters, singing, playing cards and games, reading, working with junior volunteers or being a friend. Information: Flo, 735-0121.

WANT TO HELP?

This public service column is designed to match needs in the Magic Valley with volunteer help. If you need a volunteer, contact the Retired and Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) at 736-4764, before noon Wednesday for Friday publication. RSVP is a United Way-sponsored agency at the College of Southern Idaho.

Hard evidence lacks for linking pains to allergies

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm hoping this information will be helpful to many of your readers. I am a healthy 57-year-old female. Ten years ago, my husband and I lived in Virginia because he was in the Army. I became ill with tingling and numbness in my left arm and also aching joints. After numerous doctor visits, MRIs, etc., I still had no diagnosis. Then, about three months later, I awoke with my arms and torso covered in hives. I immediately went to see an allergist who told me that I was allergic to something that had caused the hives to develop, but he also said it was wreaking havoc inside my body and making my arm and joints ache. I started taking an antihistamine every day for two years and was absolutely fine.

For some dumb reason, I stopped taking it, and last year I had another strange episode: This time, it was strong pains in my breasts. It felt as though I was lactating, but I knew I could not be. Again, I had many doctor visits and also underwent a sophisticated mammogram. I was told I had fibromyalgia, because I also had aches and muscle pains. I disagreed with the diagnosis and began researching on my own.

We had gotten a new dog four months earlier, and, after talking to friends, I decided to stay away from the dog. Sure enough, I began feeling better. Then I told my boss at work, a female, about the strange breast pain, and she immediately told me that I must be allergic to the dog because her little boy had similar reactions to his new dog. His underarms swelled up painfully. I was elated to solve this!

We returned the dog to the shelter, and I was immediately tested for allergies. I was allergic to cats and dogs, not to mention many grasses, molds, trees and house dust. I will never stop taking my daily antihistamine, and I have been feeling great ever since restarting it.

DEAR READER: I have printed your letter because I find it interesting that you say you have joint, muscle and breast pain due to allergies.

Most allergies cause itchy, watery, red eyes; a runny nose and/or congestion; coughing, wheezing or other asthma-like symptoms; skin rashes, hives or swelling. The type of symptoms experienced depends on the allergen and how you came into contact with it. Pet dander, for example, is typically inhaled, so skin manifestations, while possible, are not generally seen.

I am unable to find any reliable scientific evidence that shows that any allergen, let alone pet dander, can cause joint, muscle or breast pain. I was able to find personal testimonies that claimed these symptoms due to allergies, but there is nothing to substantiate the claims. Perhaps this is something that should be further investigated by the medical and scientific communities.

I am not in any way dismissing your claims. I am simply stating that at this point there is no hard evidence to back up the claims. The fact that you have experienced relief by taking a daily antihistamine is compelling nonetheless.

To provide related information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Allergies." Other readers who would like a copy should send a self-addressed stamped envelope and a $2 check or money order to Newsletter, P.O. Box 167, Wickliffe, OH 44092-0167. ## Teresa June Hopple Cutsinger

Teresa June Hopple Cutsinger, 58, of Twin Falls, passed away Monday, Sept. 6, 2010, at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center in Twin Falls after a long fight for her life.

Teresa was born June 19, 1952, in Buhl, the daughter of William Hopple and Daisey Mae Freeman Hopple Ford. She grew up in Buhl where she resided until her later teen years when she moved to Caney, Kan., with her mom and stepdad, Bill

Ford. They later moved to Winfield, La., to be closer to her grandmother prior to returning to the area and Twin Falls, where she spent the rest of her life. She met her husband, Gene Cutsinger, whom she was deeply in love with, and they spent 14 wonderful years together.

Teresa was the life of the family. She kept everyone in touch with each other. She was filled with love and compassion and would be

Geraldine Marie Barber Warner

Geraldine Marie Barber Warner was born March 13, 1922, in Exeter, Neb., the middle child of three and only daughter of Elsie Christine Kraft, a former school teacher and homemaker, and Dr. John Nelson Barber, a veterinarian. She attended Doane College in Crete, Neb., a small Christian liberal arts college from 1939 to 1941, where she met her future husband, George William Warner. After two years, she transferred to the University of Nebraska, where George attended medical school, and she received her Bachelor of Arts degree in education in 1943. She taught school for one year in Milford, Neb., before she and George were married in Sioux City, Iowa, in 1944. Later she worked as a secretary during World War II on hospital wards and as an executive secretary in Denver, Colo., while her husband did his medical internship.

She and Dr. Warner had five children, Pamela Warner Hill, Diane Warner Conrad, Roger William Warner, and twins David Alan Warner and Douglas Bryan Warner. They moved to Twin Falls in 1951 from Denver, Colo., with their two daughters, and their three sons were born soon thereafter in Twin Falls.

Gerry was a devoted and proud member of the community for almost 60 years. She was a member of the Presbyterian Church, the South Central Medical Auxiliary, the Idaho Medical Association Auxiliary and the Auxiliary to the American Society of Abdominal Surgeons. She served on the board of the YWCA and YFCA off and on for 25 years. She also served on the board of the Community Concert Association and the PTA. She was past president of the Chapter AI, PEO Sisterhood and was devoted to its opportunities to support young people in achieving their goals for higher education and future careers.

During the Olympic torch run in 1984, she acted as an "agent" for the torch bearer who carried the torch into Twin Falls, and she created and motivated most of the events surrounding the torch run into Twin Falls. For 10 years she also worked with a young man at CSI who taught world religions and together, they established a World Religions Day, Martin Luther King Day commemoration, and planted a Tree for Peace on the campus.

In 1979, she wrote a piece in commemoration of her son, Douglas's death called "Death and Its Victory." It was later critiqued by the late renowned mythologist, Joseph Campbell, which she said was one of her most humbling experiences.

In his poem, "Ode to a Grecian Urn," Percy Bysshe Shelley wrote: "A thing of beauty is a joy forever." Beauty was essential to Gerry's soul whether it be the beauty of nature in flowers, a sunset or the mountains or the beauty of the arts. She loved classical and popular music, painting, sculpture, color, form, interior design and especially fashion. She also enjoyed walking, cross-country skiing and hiking in the South Hills and Sawtooth Mountains. She and her husband loved spending time at their home in the Wood River Valley in Ketchum.

Sports were her other passion. Both she and her husband were avid supporters of the Twin Falls High School Bruins, the CSI Golden Eagles basketball and volleyball teams, and later the Idaho Vandals and Boise State Broncos. Her other hobbies included reading newspapers and magazines, writing poetry and personal there for anyone with love, a hug or just a homemade gift to cheer you up. She was very compassionate about her animals. Tina and Mikey are happy to see their mommy again and Cuddles will deeply miss her. She also loved her crafts as much.

Survivors include her husband, Gene; stepson Michael; brother, William "Stormy"; sisters, Linda, Shawn, Wendy, Sandy and Barbie; nieces, Kelsey and Brandi, Dessirrie, Christina, Heather and Dizzi; essays, gourmet cooking and traveling, first to Europe with her daughter, Diane, in 1974, then later to the British Isles, China, Russia, Egypt, Morocco, the Canary Islands, the Caribbean, Mexico, the Hawaiian Islands and Canada with her husband, friends, and colleagues. Her travels allowed her to connect with people of all cultures and she believed in fostering the personal and educational growth of many foreign students, athletes, and professionals she met in Twin Falls. Gerry liked the politics of bringing two good forces together for the good of the whole. She was in contact with several of those foreign students and professionals whose lives she touched and whose dreams and aspirations she helped foster and encourage up until the end. Carmen Carbajal Martin from Mexico, Valentina Konstantin and Ruslan Chaplygin from Russia, Madeline Ritchie and Natalia Kortison from the Czech Republic were just a few of those friends

Her other loves were seeing and spending time with her nine grandchildren and four great-grandchildren scattered from Seattle to Colorado, Chicago and Dallas, Alex Hill (Lisa) and daughters, Elliana and Eva; Jan Hill (fiancé, Juan Mares), Jonathan Warner (Anne Marie) and daughters, Holly and Laura; Jason Warner (Beth); Sarah and Kaitlin Conrad, and Natalie (fiancé, Curtis Gibbs) and Grant Warner. She loved keeping up with them, supporting and encouraging their activities, dreams, hopes and goals and enjoyed receiving their birthday and holiday cards and talking with them on the phone.

Before the ravages of the Sjogren's Syndrome stole all of her vitality and independence, she wrote that her life's mission was to try to make nephews, Jason, Ryan, Jody, Keith, Kevin, Kyle, Coy, Charlie, Justin, Billy, Tanner, Dakota and River; good family friend, Lucy; classmates and extended family. She was preceded in death by her father; mother; half brother, Shane; and her grandparents.

A memorial service will be at 3 p.m. Friday, Sept. 10, at Farmer Funeral Chapel in Buhl with a potluck to follow at Buhl United Methodist Church. All are welcome; please come join us in memory of Teresa.

life better, nicer, kinder, healthier, prettier, happier, easier, quieter, more comfortable, more agreeable, more optimistic, more graceful, more welcome, more restful and more fun for others. She always hoped to lighten people's burdens and give them encouragement. She was very spiritual in nature and her writings tried to express hope and humility for all. How fortunate that in the past few months, many longtime friends and family from near and far made the effort to visit Gerry, Carmen Martin of Reno; Donna Jorlin of Seattle; her granddaughter, Kaitie on her return from American Samoa; her grandson, Alex Hill, wife, Lisa and daughters, Ellie (4) and Eva (16 months) of Denver; and Wendy and Ken Eklund, TFHS class of '67 of Olympia, Wash.

Geraldine Barber Warner died peacefully at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center on Monday, Sept. 6, 2010, with her daughter, Pam, and son, Dave, by her side. She was preceded in death by her husband, George W. Warner MD; her son, Douglas Bryan Warner; her son-in-law, H. Douglas Hill; and her two brothers, Dr. Sterling Barber of Clear Lake, Iowa, and Arnold Barber of Spencer, Iowa.

The family expresses their gratitude and thanks to all her friends, caregivers and physicians who attended to her needs over the past several years. Their love, care, and concern kept her going long past what the family expected.

A memorial service will be held at 1:30 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 11, at First Presbyterian Church. Memorial contributions may be made in Gerry's honor to the Dr. George Warner Memorial Nursing Scholarship, in care of the College of Southern Idaho Foundation, P.O. Box 1238, Twin Falls, ID 83303-1238.

Pastor cancels Quran-burning, then reconsiders

The Associated Press

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — An anti-Islamic preacher backed off and then threatened to reconsider burning the Quran on the anniversary of the 9/11 attacks, angrily accusing a Muslim leader of lying to him Thursday with a promise to move an Islamic center and mosque away from New York's ground zero. The imam planning the center denied there was ever such a deal.

The Rev. Terry Jones generated an international firestorm with his plan to burn the Quran on Saturday, the ninth anniversary of the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks, and he has been under intense pressure to give it up. President Obama urged him to listen to "those better angels" and give up his "stunt," saying it would endanger U.S. troops and give Islamic terrorists a recruiting tool. Defense Secretary Robert Gates took the extraordinary step of calling Jones personally.

Standing outside his 50-member Pentecostal church, the Dove Outreach Center, alongside Imam Muhammad Musri, the president of the Islamic Society of Central Florida, Jones said he relented when Musri assured him that the New York mosque will be moved.

Musri, however, said after the news conference that the agreement was only for him and Jones to travel to New York and meet Saturday with the imam overseeing plans to build a mosque near ground zero.

Hours later, Jones said Musri "clearly, clearly lied to us."

"Given what we are now hearing, we are forced to rethink our decision," Jones said. "So as of right now, we are not canceling the event, but we are suspending it."

Jones did not say whether the Quran burning could still be held Saturday, but he said he expected Musri to keep his word and expected "the imam in New York to back up one of his own men."

Jones

Imam and developer: No deal for moving NYC mosque

NEW YORK (AP) — The imam and developer behind a plan to build an Islamic center near ground zero denied a Florida pastor's claim Thursday that there was a deal to move the facility and said the project would go forward as planned.

The Rev. Terry Jones, the leader of a tiny congregation in Gainesville, Fla., later threatened to reconsider burning copies of the Quran on the anniversary of Sept. 11, accusing the imam of lying to him with a promise to move the Islamic center away from ground zero.

Jones' remarks on a possible deal had been met with a quick denial from people in New York who are associated with the project.

Imam Feisal Abdul Rauf, the center's the spiritual leader, had issued a statement through his publicist saying that there had been no negotiations of the sort.

"I am glad that Pastor Jones has decided not to burn any Qurans. However, I have not spoken to Pastor Jones or Imam (Musri)," Rauf said. "I am surprised by their announcement. We are not going to toy with our religion or any other. Nor are we going to barter. We are here to extend our hands to build peace and harmony."

Wildfire sets sights on Boulder as wind picks up

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — A Colorado wildfire that has destroyed 170 homes showed no signs of relenting Thursday as wind gusts of more than 40 mph fueled fears that the flames would move east from the Rocky Mountain foothills and into the heart of Boulder, where some residents were warned to be ready to flee.

Officials worried about a repeat of the devastation in the foothills, where neighborhoods once filled with million-dollar homes and scenic mountain cabins have become piles of smoking rubble. On one lot, all that survived was a tennis court. On others, all that's left are crumbling, ash-covered foundations.

Authorities told residents on the west side of Boulder to be prepared to evacuate if the wildfire moves into town. They urged people to remove lawn furniture, brush and propane tanks that could fuel the fire. The city also mowed grass in open spaces to reduce potential fuel and told residents to do the same.

The city encouraged residents to gas up and park their cars pointed toward the road for a speedy getaway, wet down yards and vegetation and pack up important documents, medication and other items in case they had to flee.

But the leader of the national team that took over management of the fire seemed to play down the threat. Jim Thomas told reporters late Thursday that he didn't see imminent danger for Boulder, although he added that conditions can change and there's always a risk of a major fire spreading.

Alvin Ellis Gorrell

A cowboy's final ride to the great beyond ...

Dad, You have been Mom's cup of tea for over 61 years; our Dad, a fine brother to your identical twin and other siblings, a loving grandpa, great-grandpa and great-great-grandpa, a friend and mentor to many people. You knew no strangers, had a joke for everything and were humble with all that you did.

You had a special bond with all who knew you, especially with your grandkids (who called you 'PaPa').

Sharing your middle name and many experiences led to an unbreakable bond with great-grandson, Zachary Ellis — your cowboy partner. We know how excited you were to hold your first great-great-grandson, Tracen Ellis. Zachary spent 21 years to the day idolizing you, and Tracen spent 21 days looking up to you.

Each morning you loved to go to the China House with your buddies — to get your "schoolin'" and waiting for a diploma," as you always said. As avid horse and cowboy enthusiasts, you and your longtime friend (Bob Craig) founded the Idaho Cowboy Hall of Fame held in Gooding, Idaho. For over than nine years, proceeds from the auctions have supported local high school cowboys going to Nationals.

We will all take care of the horses — your shared passion. This is not a final goodbye, because your memory, sense of humor and love will live in our hearts.

Popsie, until we meet again, "We'll See You on the Other Side." — Nan

We love you very much. — Your family and all who knew you.

On Tuesday, Sept. 7, 2010, Alvin Ellis Gorrell of Gooding, Idaho, rode his last rodeo at age 78.

Al and his twin brother, Calvin, were born in Rocky Ford, Colo., to Byron Gorrell and Dorothy 'Dot' Gorrell Prince Boulware. He was raised and educated in Gooding at Lincoln Grade School and Gooding High School, where he met his childhood sweetheart, Vena V. Andrews. They married Aug. 9, 1949, in Elko, Nev., and just celebrated their 61st anniversary.

He is survived by his wife, Vena; twin brother, Calvin; sisters, Joyce Boulware Krahn and Audrey Boulware Davis; his children, C. Randy (Valerie) Gorrell, Linda (Larry) Bay and Judy (Dan) Jones; seven first generation grandchildren; 10 second generation great-grandchildren; one great-great-grandchild (Tracen Ellis); and many nieces and nephews he loved very much.

There will be a family and friends open house to celebrate Al's life from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 12, at Alvin and Vena's home, 1012 Ninth Ave. E. in Gooding. Memorial contributions may be made to the Gooding High School Rodeo.

Charlotte Marie Jauregui

DIETRICH — Charlotte Marie Jauregui of Dietrich passed away Wednesday, Sept. 8, 2010, at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center, surrounded by family following a short illness.

Charlotte was born Dec. 11, 1922, in Wisner, Neb., to Roy Lattin and Flora Mae (Davis) Lattin.

Charlotte moved from Nebraska with her family at the age of 12 to the Kimberly area. She graduated from Kimberly High School and then attended the Albion Normal School, where she received her Lifetime Teaching Certificate in 1942. Shortly thereafter, she began her 34-year teaching career in Dietrich. This was the beginning of a long and wonderful career in education, most of which was teaching early elementary students. Charlotte took a great deal of pride in the fact that she could teach any child how to read and to love reading.

Charlotte married her partner in everything, Martin Jauregui, on Dec. 21, 1945, in Twin Falls. She and Martin began their family a short time later and had three children; Robert, Carol and Janice. Charlotte took a break from her teaching career to focus on her family but returned to teaching and then earned her Bachelor of Arts degree from Idaho State University. Charlotte balanced teaching, her family and helping out on the farm until her retirement. Reading, crocheting afghans for family and crossword puzzles often filled her spare time. Charlotte loved her family and delighted in hosting Christmas parties, family gatherings and birthday parties surrounded by her children, grandchildren, great-grandchildren and extended family. She never forgot a birthday and was much loved by her entire family.

Charlotte retired from teaching in 1989, then she and Martin sold the farm and moved to town. In the spring of 1990, Charlotte and Martin took the trip of a lifetime to the Basque Country of Spain. They spent a month sightseeing and connecting with relatives. After their return from Spain, they settled into life in town. Ever the educator and caregiver, Charlotte took on caring for the Heimerdinger children, Alex, Camas and Mesa. Jerry and Maureen Heimerdinger and their children joined her family, as the family of her heart.

Throughout her life Charlotte was active in the community. She was a member of St. Peter's Catholic Church, the Altar Society, the Dietrich Grange and the PTA. In addition, school activities always received her help and support.

Charlotte is survived by her brothers, Harold (Carolyn) Lattin of Mountain Home and Charles (Jerrie) Lattin of Kimberly; her sister, Laurabelle Brown of Twin Falls; her brother-in-law, Raymond (Carolyn) Jauregui; her children, Robert Jauregui of Dietrich, Carol (Don) Roberts of Melba and Janice (Bruce) Helsley of Shoshone; her grandchildren, Jack (Denise) Jauregui, Jose Jauregui, Sandy (Cody) Prescott, Don (Cindy) Roberts, Julie (Art) Combs, Kay (Steven) Hylton, Angela (John) Gramps, Tammy Roberts, Nancy (Ed) Elder, Linda (Collin) Belnap, LaVaughn (Angela) Helsley, Kelly (Tim) Chapman and Gary (Mandy) Helsley; 29 great-grandchildren; eight great-great-grandchildren; and numerous nieces and nephews. Charlotte was preceded in death by her husband, Martin; her beloved friend, Cathleen Orr; her parents; three brothers; and two sisters.

The funeral service will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 11, at St. Peter's Catholic Church in Shoshone; visitation from 5 to 7 p.m. Friday, Sept. 10, at Demaray Funeral Service, Shoshone Chapel; rosary follows at 7 p.m. Friday at the mortuary (condolences may be posted at www.demarayfuneralservice.com).

Scientists: Male dancers with big, flashy moves attract the most women

By Maria Cheng
Associated Press writer

LONDON — John Travolta was onto something. Women are most attracted to male dancers who have big, flamboyant moves similar to the actor's trademark style, British scientists say in a new study.

Kris McCarty and colleagues at Northumbria University and the University of Gottingen in Germany asked 19 men aged 18 to 35 who were not professional dancers to dance in a laboratory for one minute to a basic drum rhythm. They filmed the men's movements with a dozen cameras, and then turned those movements into computer-generated avatars so the study could focus on moves, not appearances.

Scientists then showed the dancing avatars to 37 women, who rated their skills on a scale of 1 to 7. According to the women, the best dancers were those who had a wide range of dance moves and focused on the head, neck and torso.

The research was published this week in the journal, Biology Letters, a publication of Britain's Royal Society. It was paid for by Northumbria University.

"In principle, it is possible to break down the motion patterns that are informative and attractive to women," said Rufus Johnstone, a reader in the evolution of animal behavior at Cambridge University. He was not connected to the research.

Johnstone said there were similarities between animal mating rituals and what happens in modern dance clubs.

"There are lots of cues females use when choosing a mate, like a peacock puffing out its tail," he said. "Dancing for humans could signal whether a male is fit because it requires the expenditure of a lot of energy."

Nick Neave, an evolutionary psychologist at Northumbria University and one of the study's co-authors, said women may subconsciously judge how fit a man is by the fluidity of his dancing. He said their research was likely subjective and different cultures would have different measures for what constitutes good dancing.

Neave advised bad dancers to improve their core body moves.

"The movements around the head, neck and trunk were the most important," he said. "The good dancers had lots of different movements and used them with flair and creativity."

Johnstone said men who are bad dancers shouldn't despair.

"Among animals, courtship rituals are very important when there are very obvious physical displays," he said. "In humans, I suspect it is much more complicated and may come down to more than whether or not a man is a good dancer."

Eritrean refugees keep culture close with dance

By Melissa Davlin
Times-News writer

They don't need a wedding, performance or cultural celebration to groove.

They danced in a circle, feet shuffling, shoulders and heads moving to the beat. The shoulder jerks are deliberate, hitting downbeats slightly harder.

There are no costumes, no special songs, no judgment for less-than-perfect moves.

Eritrean refugees in Twin Falls sometimes perform their cultural dance for audiences, but make no mistake. When they dance, it's for themselves.

Eritreans learn the dances from their communities, said Robel Zeru, who has lived in Twin Falls for two months. Their culture, called Tigrinya, is one of nine in Eritrea, and each group has its own distinctive dance.

Tigrinya dance circles form at weddings, parties and festivals. The more dancers, the larger the circle.

On Monday, just three of them congregated in Zeru's apartment near downtown Twin Falls. As Zeru waited for friends to arrive, American hip hop played on his radio. Zeru mouthed the words to Outkast and Jay Sean songs as he shifted through his CD collection.

Get 'Lost in Lava' at Lincoln County Cowboy Poetry Gathering

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

With a history steeped in the cowboy way of life and much of Lincoln County's sweeping vistas untouched by development, what better place to hold a cowboy poetry gathering?

On Sept. 17 and 18, Shoshone's Lincoln County Community Center will house the first such gathering and organizers expect both entertainers and attendees from near and far to take part in the Americana event. "We have someone coming from British Columbia to be here to watch the many cowboy poets and musicians," said Lincoln County Cowboy Poetry Gathering Board Secretary Tammy Corrigan. "Shoshone has a rich cowboy, pioneering history and remains an old cowboy town. Shoshone is an awesome place, a great backdrop for a cowboy poetry gathering."

It was Dietrich resident Richard Williams' idea to organize the event. He's always wanted to attend the National Cowboy Poetry Gathering in Elko, Nev., which is one of the best-known such gatherings in the world, but has never been able to attend.

If he couldn't make it to a cowboy poetry gathering, then Williams decided to bring one to him.

"Cowboys, horses, Western music and that entire way of life has been my love and what I'm interested in. The cowboy is a true American icon," Williams said. "With that desire and the need for something to liven up Shoshone I decided to move forward with organizing a gathering."

Williams, the Cowboy Gathering's board chairman, connected with several like-minded individuals, formed a non-profit entity and started planning this year's event early this summer.

Williams is also involved with Moon Creek Ponies for Prevention, a group providing alternatives and opportunity to at-risk, traumatized and disabled children through work with ponies.

The group has been working with Lincoln County kids for about a year but needs funding to keep afloat, Williams said. Proceeds from ticket sales and a silent auction will be donated to the organization.

"The Cowboy Poetry Gathering was always going to be a fundraiser for something," Williams said. "The Moon Creek Ponies for Prevention seemed like a perfect fit for the gathering."

Jon Pugh of Shoshone started Ponies for Prevention after many years of working as the

"It gives kids something to do besides get into trouble," Pugh said. "We've got about 25 ponies in the program. Word is spreading about the impact the program is having in Lincoln County and this could spread to the eight other counties in our district."

He said the ponies, equipment, tack and feed is all donated but continued funding is needed.

"Basically, we need a lot of hay," Pugh said.

Learn about ancient encaustic

Times-News

The ancient technique of encaustic — that is, applying layers of hot pigmented wax to a surface — offers exciting possibilities for surface treatments.

In this three-day workshop presented by the Sun Valley Center for the Arts, instructor Daniella Woolf will show participants how to transfer images, apply metal leafing, utilize collage techniques and work with line and edge.

Drawing from her newly released CD and book, “Encaustic with a Textile Sensibility,” Woolf will demonstrate methods for creating varied and visually fascinating surface effects that refer to cloth or printed fabric or are grid based or resemble weaving. The class will also cover safety procedures and setting up a studio.

Based in Santa Cruz, Calif.,

Woolf holds an M.A. in design from University of California, Los Angeles and has exhibited her work in solo and group shows throughout the U.S. She is represented by the Wexler Gallery in Philadelphia and has taught at several prestigious venues, including the Kansas City Art Institute and Anderson

Poetry

Williams is hoping to fill that need and has confirmed that many members of the Idaho Cowboy Poetry Association will be entertaining at the Shoshone gathering, which has been themed “Lost in Lava” after the terrain that surrounds the city.

Association member Gordon Peterson, of Rexburg, is slated to emcee both Friday and Saturday night concerts and will likely share some of his own poetry, which is peppered with American Indian lore.

Amateurs and people wanting to share their works can take the spotlight during open mic sessions, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on both days of the gathering.

Rounding out the event will be a silent auction, artisan and food vendors and pony cart rides.

Free events include a variety of games and activities for kids, which are still being organized, Williams said.

“We’re hoping to spark some inspiration, give Lincoln County businesses a boost, help a worthwhile cause and enjoy some great cowboy poetry, music and art,” Williams said. “If this event is as successful as we hope, we’re looking at making it a yearly event.”

Is it ‘transformational entertainment?’

Sun Valley Spiritual Film Festival features ‘Griefwalking’

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

Stephen Jenkinson is a “griefwalker” — a Harvard-trained theologian who is trying to help people overcome what he calls their “demented death phobia” to befriend death.

“The thing you’re running from is never far from you. Your own death is never far from you no matter how healthy you are. It’s the most reliable part of your life — the fact that it will end,” he said. “One of the things dying gives people a chance to do is to see life in a different way than ever before. It takes something quite profound for you to love your life in its entirety and death can do that if you give it a chance.”

Award-winning documentary filmmaker Tim Wilson found Jenkinson’s message so profound as he wrestled with the possibility of his own death that he made a film depicting Jenkinson’s work explaining how “death is the cradle of your love of life.” That film, “Griefwalking: The Soul of the Well-Lived Life,” will be one of those shown at the Sixth Annual Sun Valley Spiritual Film Festival Thursday through Sept. 19 at Sun Valley Resort.

The film will be shown at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 18 in the Sun Valley Opera House, accompanied by a discussion with Jenkinson. And Jenkinson will conduct a full-day workshop from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Friday in the Limelight Room of the Sun Valley Inn for members of the public, health care providers, social workers and counselors.

“I’m offering a vision that dying can be your most reliable teacher. But it’s not a walk in the park. It will ask a lot of you. But if you embrace it you will come to the end of life as complete as a person as you can ever imagine,” he said.

Jenkinson’s film was one of a few dozen chosen from 400 films and cartoons that were submitted for inclusion in this year’s festival, said film festival director Mary Gervase.

This year’s films run the gamut from “Raw Faith,” which follows an Oregon minister as she wrestles with a crisis in faith, to “El Andalon,” about a veterinarian who ministers to the poorest of the poor in Chiapas, Mexico, paying for medical supplies with the money he gets from tourists attending a museum of native traditions that he founded. Gervase chose the film because a sizable number of Wood River Valley residents come from Chiapas.

Another film with a local connection is “A Life Ascending,” which features mountain guide Ruedi Beglinger, who runs a heliski business in British Columbia’s Selkirk Mountains that a number of Wood River Valley residents have partaken in. The film includes a look at how Rudy and his co-workers dealt with an avalanche that killed seven skiers several years ago.

For the first time, the film festival will also incorporate a mini children’s film festival featuring two days’ worth of films and cartoons that Gervase promises will be as thought-provoking and entertaining for adults as children.

The festival will kick off with a performance of Jayanthi Raman Dance Company performing the temple dance ballet of India at 8 p.m. Thursday at the Sun Valley Pavilion. It will include a Filmmakers Seminar from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. on Friday ($15) with a free lunch sponsored by filmmakers Stephen Crisman and Bex Wilkinson.

In addition, the film festival will display some fabric thangkas made by Leslie Rinchen-Wongmo, a California woman who served a four-year apprenticeship in Dharamsala, India, learning to stitch the intricately designed silk cloth images designed to teach and inspire viewers about spiritual enlightenment.

Rinchen went there to help the Tibetan government-in-exile with economic development but fell in love with the thangkas that are often hung on sides of palaces and monasteries during special holidays or ceremonies.

Now she teaches others to make them via a Stitching Buddhas Virtual Apprentice Program over the Internet.

“It’s amazing to teach this ancient technique by such a modern technology as the Internet,” she said. “But it’s a way to learn when you can’t take off for four years and live in India.”

Gervase said that there are some 3,000 film festivals held in the United States each year. But the Sun Valley Spiritual Film Festival stands alone with its focus on films that focus on man’s search for meaning and purpose in life.

“Some have coined this genre of film ‘transformational entertainment,’” she said. “We call it compelling, entertaining through-provoking storytelling through film.”

Bring the kids

This year’s Sun Valley Spiritual Film Festival will feature a two-day Youth Film Program Sept. 18 and 19, at Sun Valley’s Boiler Room.

Children will be admitted free when accompanied by an adult pass holder. Admission is $8 for adults and $5 for children.

Saturday’s films are:

10 a.m. — “Lost and Found,” based on Oliver Jeffers’ award-winning picture book. “Miss Shade is Missing” follows a third-grade class in Brooklyn recounting its worst day in school — a day that was not only surprisingly bad but also surprisingly funny. Also, “Smart Machine,” an animated short that captures a little boy’s unusual encounter with a vending machine.

1 p.m. — “School Play,” a hilarious coming-of-age documentary depicting the drama of childhood through a fifth-grade production of “The Wizard of Oz.”

3 p.m. — “The Secret of Kells” employs Celtic mythology as it follows a lad living in a medieval outpost into an enchanted forest of mythical creatures in an animated story about the power of imagination and faith to carry humanity through dark times. Nominated for an Academy Award.

5 p.m. — “A Shine of Rainbows,” about a young Irish orphan who is introduced to the secrets of seals and other folklore and embarks on a perilous journey where he must learn that everything he needs is inside of him. Also, “Smart Machine,” an animated short that captures a little boy’s unusual encounter with a vending machine.

Sunday’s films are:

1 p.m. — “El Salon Mexico,” an animated hand-drawn cartoon produced by a 13-year-old and a retired filmmaker about a young boy who sneaks away from home with his chicken and donkey to a fiesta. Also, “Tibet is My Country,” which features the story of a teenaged Tibetan luminary and his struggle to retain his traditional culture in the face of persecution.

3 p.m. — “Cultural Safari,” a kid-friendly introduction to the origins, history and festivals of Sikh Americans. Also, a book reading of “The Royal Falcon” by author Jessi Kaur. The book is about an 8-year-old who is befriended by a falcon in a tale of adventure and friendship.

5 p.m. — “How I Taught My Grandmother to Read,” a Hindi film with English subtitles about the love between a young girl and her illiterate grandmother. Also, “Follow Me,” about a young girl who learns about caring.

Hands On offers pottery classes

Times-News

Wheel-thrown pottery classes for adults are offered from 6-8:30 p.m. Tuesdays, beginning Oct. 5 through Nov. 23 at Hands On, 147 Shoshone St. N. in Twin Falls.

Instructor is Paula Dodd, a Magic Valley Arts Council member and artist with works on display at Full Moon Gallery and Main Street Mercantile in Twin Falls. Beginner and hobbyist classes provide instruction on the various aspects of wheel-thrown pottery, including how to wedge, center, throw, trim and glaze.

Class schedule is: weeks one through four, wedge, center, throw and trim clay with the first bisque firing at week four, and practice techniques for simple forms such as bowls, mugs and vases; weeks five and six, additional time to throw; week seven, final day to trim pots; and week eight, final glaze firing.

Cost for the eight-week session is $175 and includes pottery tool kit, glazes, kiln time and the first 25-pound bag of clay. Additional clay supplies can be purchased as needed. Recycled clay will be available for free use.

Reservations: 736-4475 ($75 deposit with balance due at first class).

M.V. Arts Council has new director

By Amy Huddleston
Times-News writer

The mission of the Magic Valley Arts Council is to promote arts and culture for all. It's a goal Robin Baumgartner hopes to continue in her new role as executive director.

The 36-year-old was hired as the MVAC coordinator about a year ago and has been sharing part-time duties with Carolyn

White, the program director, since previous executive director Staci Madsen left in late 2009.

The MVAC board hoped to get a new director into the position before the grand opening of the new arts center along the Snake River Canyon rim in Twin Falls, planned for sometime in October.

Baumgartner said she doesn't have a new direction for her position — just a goal to keep the non-profit running consistently in the black while spreading greater awareness of art in the community.

"I've really enjoyed working with this organization and with our board," Baumgartner said. "Besides getting the new building open, I want to increase membership in the coming year.

In her new position, she will be in charge of fundraising, membership, finances and managing facilities, among other executive duties.

Baumgartner grew up in the Moscow area and hopes she can help the arts council continue to foster art appreciation in the Magic Valley.

Jerome Live History Days enters 26th year with weekend activities

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

There was a time, not too many years ago, that churning butter was a household chore. Butter was not merely a line item on the weekly supermarket list but something made at home.

Every time Bill Brown demonstrates butter churning at the annual Jerome Live History Days, the 86-year-old Jerome resident remembers his mother cranking a churn shaft until cream became butter.

"We'd milk the cows and then separate the cream, which was taken to Mom," Brown said. "She'd make the butter and we'd milk the cows. That was just the way it was."

For many years, Brown and his wife, Phyllis, have demonstrated the skill at Live History Days and they'll be doing the same during this weekend's event at the Idaho Farm and Ranch Museum in Jerome.

"A lot of people have never seen how butter is made and the kids really enjoy helping churn with the hand crank," Brown said. "Once the butter starts collecting together you have to work it in smaller batches with a spoon, getting all the milk out. Once the milk is out then everybody gets to try the butter on some bread."

The couple go through the process many times, depending on the crowd.

"I was a city girl and didn't know how to churn butter before," said Phyllis Brown, 79. "It's been fun to learn how... Seeing the people and all of the kids, it's a pretty fun deal."

Live demonstrations are a big part of History Days, said Linda Helms, Jerome County Historical Museum assistant curator.

"We try and get the kids out so they learn what their ancestors went through," Helms said. "They get to do things like make rope, churn butter and wash clothes on a wash board. It's important for the younger generations to know what even kids had to do before there were things like televisions, radios, computers and hand-held games. It was fun but a lot of hard work too, just to survive."

Helms said even if people have come to Live History Days before there is always something new to see. Attendance is typically from 1,000 to 3,000 people.

Saturday's events begin with a 10 a.m. flag raising ceremony, with musical entertainment provided by the Jerome High School Marching Band.

The Idaho Farm and Ranch Museum has one of the largest collections of agriculture equipment in the northwest, with some 600 tractors and implements onsite, ranging in age from the late 1800s to about 1950.

The 33 developed acres also have many old buildings, including the Albert Lickley family homestead: the family home, barn, carriage house, granary and corral.

Every year the homestead properties have restoration work completed, Helms said.

"There was a room in the home that was blocked off for many years but was recently restored and will be open to the public this year," Helms said. "The majority of the property is restored but there is some work left to do."

In addition to enjoying the many activities and displays people can participate in History Days in other ways, too, said Helms, like playing horseshoes, taking part in the pioneer costume contest or entering a pie into the best pie contest/auction, all free.

Helms said the pies, sometimes bringing in more than $100 during the Saturday auction, must be fruit pies that do not need refrigeration. If people want to bring a pie, they are due by noon Saturday at the Canyonside building at the IFARM.

The Jerome Recreation Center is organizing several children's games where modern amenities are not applicable. There will be a marble toss, and gunny sack and three-legged races, to name a few.

"They will be old-fashioned type games but activities that will get kids up and moving," said JRC Fitness Supervisor Amy Worthington.

Activities and demonstrations will be on Saturday. On Sunday, there will be a non-denominational community church service at 11 a.m., followed by a bring-your-own-picnic lunch.

Intensity replaces novelty in Service Bowl II

Bruins visit Riverhawks tonight

Twin Falls quarterback T.J. Ellis runs the ball against Skyview Aug. 27.

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

On the red side of Twin Falls, the message was simple: 55-7. On the blue side it was just as unmistakable: “We don’t lose to Canyon Ridge.” The novelty of this cross-town high-school football rivalry is gone. But as the second Service Bowl approaches, the football teams at Twin Falls and Canyon Ridge have ratcheted up the intensity in practices as they look to garner bragging rights for another year. “For me it doesn’t make any difference (that the newness is gone),” said Twin Falls linebacker Mark Christensen. “There’s still the intensity, it’s still the rivalry. We’re just excited to come back and try to protect that helmet.” The sparkling military helmet is the Service Bowl’s “trophy,” awarded annually to the game’s winner much like the Old Oaken Bucket

Canyon Ridge practice, as the Riverhawks work to prove that their second season will be much more successful than the first. Ultimately they’d like to keep the helmet once it hits their turf tonight. “After being beaten so badly last year, of course we want it this year. We’re going to come out and give it our best,” said Canyon Ridge senior quarterback Tyler Myers. “They’re going to come to play. It’s going to be a dogfight. I’m excited to play them.” But Twin Falls is in no mood to give it up. The internal pressure to retain the helmet, in fact, is

Bruin spikers sweep Tigers

By Stephen Meyers
Times-News writer

It was the Sierra Starley show Thursday night on the volleyball court at Twin Falls High School. The freshman led the Bruins with nine kills in a 25-15, 25-15, 25-17 sweep over Great Basin Conference foe Jerome. Starley set the tone early for Twin Falls, recording six of her kills in the first game. “I got great sets from our setters all night, so that made it easy. It was exciting out there,” Starley said. Starley got her first taste of GBC play with rival Jerome. “I was looking forward to the game tonight. We were all excited and confident to play,” Starley said. Twin Falls jumped up 6-0 in the first game and never looked back. Jerome never led by more than two points throughout the match. “They just didn’t show up to play. I think they were nervous. Maybe the rivalry had something to do with it tonight. They need to come out more confident,” said Jerome coach Hannah Clark. Missed blocks at the net and service and attacking errors plagued the Tigers. Jasmine Branch led Jerome with four kills and Frankie Carey recorded 10 assists and six digs. The Tigers had to play without senior setter Melissa Marsing, out with a knee injury. Jerome (2-4, 1-1 GBC) hosts Burley on Tuesday. Twin Falls had no problems with depth, mixing and matching rotations all game. “We have a lot of depth. It’s frustrating for some of the kids since they may not play all that much, so every week is a competition for playing time with these kids,” said head coach B.J. Price. Josie Jordan added five kills in a well-rounded attack for the Bruins. “I thought I played alright. I should have stayed on my toes more on defense,” Jordan said. Twin Falls’ front line defense, led by Jordan, Cheltzie Williams and Bailey Anderson, was solid at the net, recording 19 blocks. After the Bruins traveled out of town for tournaments the past two weeks, “it was nice to finally play at home,” said Price. “There was good energy with the crowd and the cheerleaders. It was probably one of the best crowds we’ve had.” Twin Falls (1-0 GBC) hosts its home tournament this weekend.

Football, family fuel Declo’s Knobbe

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

When Declo senior Mark Knobbe learned last week that his sister Nicole had passed away from injuries sustained in a car accident, he went to his sanctuary, the one place where he feels most at home. The football field. “It’s just like absolute peace and comfort,” Knobbe said of stepping onto the Declo stadium grass. “It’s like being in a euphoric state. I can’t do anything but smile.” Since losing the Class 2A state championship game for the second straight season last November, Knobbe couldn’t wait to get back on the football field. “It’s hard to describe the feeling. It’s kind of like you’ve been away from home for nine months. You just miss it, and then you step out there and know that it’s back,” he said. There’s perhaps only one thing Knobbe loves more than football: his family. He

Over the hump: Bruin girls edge Wood River

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

The Bruins spent halftime reminding themselves they were a second-half team. Then they went about clueing in Wood River. The Twin Falls girls soccer team clamped down defensively and hit twice on the counterattack to break a halftime deadlock and secure a confidence-boosting 3-1 win over visiting Wood River on Thursday. “They were playing the offside trap, and we’ve got good speed,” said Twin Falls senior Allie Webb. “You get the right player and the right pass and you’re through (on goal).” Twin Falls (6-1-0, 3-0-0 Great Basin, 9 pts.) got on the board in the first minute of the match when Erin Grubbs-Imhoff lashed home a left-footed shot inside the penalty area. Tanner Dredge equalized in the 30th minute for Wood River (5-2-0, 4-1-0, 12 pts.). But the Bruins went ahead for good when Webb broke through on goal in the 56th and Claire Goss netted 14 minutes later. Grubbs-Imhoff and Goss assisted on each other’s goals. The difference in the second half was a

Brees, Saints edge Vikings

The Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS — Drew Brees and the Saints extended New Orleans’ post-Super Bowl euphoria for at least another week and handed Brett Favre a second straight loss in the Louisiana Superdome. Brees completed 27 of 36 passes for 237 yards and one touchdown, and the Saints survived a hard-fought season opener for a 14-9 victory Thursday night. It wasn’t the most spectacular way to open a title defense, considering it was a rematch of the riveting 2009 NFC title game last January, in which the Saints took an overtime win to advance to their first Super Bowl. It was the lowest-scoring victory of the Sean Payton era, which began in 2006. Still, the Saints will take it, considering their defense limited Favre to 171 yards passing and one score. Unlike the NFC championship game, the Vikings didn’t fumble and turned the ball over only once on Jonathan Vilma’s interception of Favre, who made an ill-advised throw as Roman Harper hit him on a safety blitz.

Also unlike their previous meeting, the Saints had most of the statistical advantages, outgaining Minnesota 308 yards to 253 and controlling the ball for 33:43, compared to 26:17 for Minnesota. New Orleans might have

PREP RALLY

High School High Five

A look at this week's biggest prep football games

VS.

Burley at Buhl

7 p.m.

Radio: 1230 AM
The skinny: First-game jitters under a new coach with a new system resulted in penalties and mental errors in Burley's loss last week to Century, while Buhl had numerous chances in the red-zone against Wood River, but came away with only 16 points.

Burley senior lineman Jordan Jones: "We've got to get rid of all those penalties that hurt us last week. Our O-line, we've got to step it up — we weren't flying off the ball. Hopefully this week we're going to step it up and play Burley Bobcat football."

Buhl coach Stacy Wilson: "We know they like to run the football out of the T-Wing. They have some size on their front line, so hopefully we can match them up front and stop the run."

VS.

Declo at Kimberly

7 p.m.

Radio: none
The skinny: Kimberly comes off a wild game against American Falls that saw the Bulldogs put up 41 points behind Cody Casperson's six touchdowns. Revenge will certainly be on Kimberly's minds after Declo put up 42 points in the first quarter en route to a 62-7 win last week. Declo comes off a 24-21 win over Aberdeen, led by Mark Knobbe's 300 rushing yards and three touchdowns.

Declo coach Kelly Kidd: "When Declo and Kimberly get together, it's always tooth and nail. When we were in the same league years ago years ago, it became a heated rivalry and even though we're not in the same league, there's a pride issue there. I expect a good game. It's one more step in the process of getting better and we look forward to it."

VS.

Hansen at Castleford

7 p.m.

Radio: none
The skinny: Controlling the line of scrimmage is key between these two run-heavy teams with good team speed. Castleford does have a size advantage up front, though. Hansen (2-0) defeated Lighthouse Christian last week, led by Gerritt Peters' 296 rushing yards. Castleford (1-0) comes off an impressive 56-34 road victory over Hagerman.

Hansen coach Teejay Berry: "They are the best team in the conference. They have more experience on the line, so ultimately we'll try to leave out the big gaps and eliminate the big plays."

Castleford head coach Tracy Vulgamore: "We're hitting on all cylinders right now. We had some first game jitters and mistakes last week, but when you score 56 points, you can't be too critical."

VS.

Wendell at Wood River

7 p.m.

Radio: none
The skinny: For Wood River (0-1) to win its home opener, the Wolverines must find a way to slow down versatile Wendell quarterback Nolan Stouder. Wood River also needs to generate some points after being shutout at Buhl last week.

Wendell coach Brad Neuendorf: "They've got some big physical kids on the line. ... I think they're up and coming. I like our chances if we're able to run our offense, with the kids that we have. I think it's going to be a good ballgame."

Wood River coach Kevin Stilling: "We will have our hands full trying to contain Stouder. He had a great game running the ball last week and did a great job distributing the ball through the air. On offense we need to be able to take advantage of them loading up the box."

VS.

Middleton at Jerome

7 p.m.

Radio: 1400 AM
The skinny: After consecutive seven-point losses, Jerome (0-2) faces perhaps its toughest test of the season in Middleton. And the Tigers will be taking the field without starting offensive right guard Tom Crozier (knee), who is out for the season. Jerome's young offense needs to clean up critical mistakes to outpace Middleton on the scoreboard.

Jerome coach Gary Krumm: "Our job doesn't get any easier this week with a hard-nosed Middleton team. They could have and probably should have beaten a very good Pocatello team last week. We go from preparing for a spread, fly motion, misdirection team last week, to a tight, double-wing, power team this week. Our defense has persevered for the most part. Offensively, we've got to eliminate costly mistakes."

Wendell's Stouder breaks out with new offense

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

When Wendell football coach Brad Neuendorf built an offense around one player, he knew he could do a lot worse than Nolan Stouder.

With Week 1 of the spread option experiment in the books, it's safe to say things are going swimmingly. All Stouder did in the Trojans' season opener against North Fremont was run for 275 yards and five scores and throw for 133 yards. The savvy senior quarterback took what the Huskies gave him in leading the Wendell to a 42-0 romp.

Stouder

Times-News Athlete of the Week

"Their defensive ends liked to crash hard on the running back so I tried to get outside and keep getting more yards," Stouder said. "It was a great confidence booster, a great first game. I've had some good games but I don't think I've ever had a game like that before, so it was nice to show that I want to come out and play and take the team as far as possible."

Stouder didn't become the Trojans' quarterback until the fourth game of last season. The promising pitcher didn't even come out for football his sophomore year, instead electing to focus on baseball.

But whatever sport he zones in on or whatever position he's put in, the 6-foot, 200-pound Stouder is a heady player and the consummate leader.

"Nolan leads by example all the time. I know that's cliché but that's the kind of kid he is. He doesn't say a lot but he just gets out there and gets the job done," Neuendorf said. "There was a learning curve with him (at quarterback), but once you get him on the edge, he's one of the fastest kids around and his size makes him tough to stop."

That mix of size and speed is a menace to the small-school ranks, but the Trojans are mostly preparing for the conference season with bigger schools — including two Class 3A schools and 4A Wood River, their opponent today.

Stouder isn't worried about the "bigger school" thought, and he won't let his teammates get caught up in it either.

"I'm not sure anyone on the team is thinking 2A vs. 4A," he said. "We're going to prepare for them hard and come out after them ... hopefully have the same result as (against) North Fremont."

Minico preps for 'Rocky' challenge

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

Minico football is ready to rumble again. For the third consecutive year, the Spartans will participate in the Rocky Mountain Rumble at Holt Arena in Pocatello. They will face Elizabeth High from Colorado at 1:30 p.m. Saturday. Other games on the RMR schedule are Shelley vs. Aspen (Colo.), Blackfoot vs. Raymond (Canada) and Highland vs. Notre Dame (Canada). "It's always great football with the caliber of teams you have coming in," said Minico coach Tim Perrigot. "These are the matchups that you dream about in high school football."

Unlike past years, the Rocky Mountain Rumble will not be televised on Altitude. Instead, Idahosports.com will webcast each game.

Minico (1-1), which nearly knocked off No. 1-ranked Bishop Kelly last week, will have its hands full with Elizabeth. According to a Denver Post poll, Elizabeth is ranked No. 4 in Colorado's Class 3A, which is comparable in size to Idaho's 4A. The Cardinals are coming off an 8-3 season, and with nine returning starters on each side of the ball, they are favored to win their Metro South league.

"Colorado football is very similar to Utah," said Perrigot, who is a Colorado native. "I don't know if it's as big as Ohio, Florida or Texas, but football is pretty important to that state. Those schools play great football."

Pound for pound, Minico matches up well with Elizabeth's size. The Cardinals have good team speed, led by quarterback Dalton Taylor, who will make things happen with his arm and feet. Elizabeth lines up in the double-wing, but instead of that formation's typical smash-mouth style, the Cardinals use more sweeps and play action passing.

fact, is almost consuming. "We definitely want to keep it ... it's a huge thing," said Twin Falls running back Josh Settlemoir. "We have to keep that helmet. We've got to defend it."

Canyon Ridge is coming off a solid season-opening victory at Filer, just the Riverhawks' second win in their brief history. They jumped out to a 27-0 lead after three quarters before coasting home for a 27-12 win.

On the west side of Twin Falls, the vibe is one of optimism ahead of a game the Riverhawks expect to be a battle. Every mistake during practice Tuesday was identified as a Twin Falls touchdown, a Twin Falls takeaway — anything to drive up the intensity and cut down on the miscues, to find the balance between wanting to win and wanting to win so badly it begins to affect a team's execution.

A few miles to the southeast, the Bruins upped the tempo in practice to resemble the game they anticipate getting tonight.

Execution was for the most part crisp, just like it was in their second game of the season, a statement-making 14-0 win over Nampa last Friday in Twin Falls. A 10-minute scoring drive punctuated that game, and allowed the Bruins to continue building a platform from which they hope to assault the Class 4A ranks if they make the state playoffs.

This week, though, the rivalry takes center stage. For the gaggle of seniors on each side, it'll be the culmination of a lifelong rivalry finally bearing out in high school.

"Ever since we've been in junior high," Christensen said, "it's been us vs. them."

Not only will "us" or "them" have the helmet after tonight's game, one team will have a leg up in the Great Basin Conference race.

BURLEY — When the rival comes to town, everybody turns it up a notch.

The Burley volleyball squad played at a higher level against cross-river rival Minico Thursday night. The Bobcats were aggressive, yet calm under pressure, and earned a four-game victory.

“These kids are learning how to be competitive,” said Burley coach Tiffany Green.

It was a tight match, with Burley winning 25-22, 25-23, 21-25, 25-19. The Bobcats improved to 1-1 in Great Basin Conference play (2-5 overall). Minico lost its third straight match and is 1-3 overall, 0-2 in GBC.

“They’re getting more confident and playing a lot better and more kids are stepping up,” Green said.

Junior middle Stephanie McGill, who finished with 10 kills and five blocks, set the tone early for Burley by dominating the net in Game 1 as the Bobcats jumped out to a 12-3 advantage.

Minico closed the gap at 23-21 after one of Chelsea Hepworth’s nine kills, but back-to-back clutch points by Kayla Kerbs closed it out.

“We always dig holes and then we have to try to crawl back out. We need to work on our consistency to be where we want to be,” said Minico coach Kris Christensen, who praised her team for improving from its loss to Jerome on Tuesday.

The second game was identical to the first as Burley built a commanding lead, Minico fought back, but Burley held on. However, Minico rode late momentum from Game 2 and took Game 3, led by Ashley Parker, who finished with 11 kills and nine blocks.

Both setters played well. Burley’s Delta Jones had 33 assists and Minico’s Kaylee Kostka dished out 30.

Burley’s Karissa Bean, Emri Haynie and Jessica Laumb combined for 23 service points. Laumb also had eight kills, while Melanie Garrard had five kills and Allison Hepworth tallied four blocks.

Burley's Allison Hepworth (10) and Stephanie McGill (7) team up to block Minico's Hannah Bailey on Thursday at Burley High School.

Burley boys cruise past Canyon Ridge

Times-News

Gustavo Castaneda and Cesar Mendoza both scored twice and Juan Puentes added another as the Burley boys soccer team rolled past Canyon Ridge 5-0 on Thursday.

The Bobcats (4-1-2, 1-0-2 GBC, 5 pts.) took a while to figure out Canyon Ridge’s high-pressure defense, coach Wes Nyblade said, but once they did they exposed the Riverhawks often.

“We just had some more legs there at the end,” Nyblade said. “It was a good win coming back after that tough game against Wood River.”

Burley hosts Pocatello on Saturday.

JEROME 3, MINICO 1

Jerome proved too much for Minico as the Tigers rolled to 3-1 victory on Thursday.

Eduardo Ruiz scored first for the Tigers and teammates Salvador Mercado and Sergio Madrigal scored to close the book on Minico.

Jerome goalie Spencer Parker had four saves in the win.

“We did a lot better in this game,” said Jerome coach Robert Garcia. “We still have room for more improvements. Hopefully, we can do as well as we did today against Canyon Ridge next week.”

Jerome (4-4-1) travels to Century today.

WOOD RIVER 2, TWIN FALLS 1

Wood River edged visiting Twin Falls 2-1 on Thursday. Alex Lopez scored in the opening minutes off an assist from Jeffery Espejo to put the Wolverines up 1-0.

Twin Falls evened the score on a goal by Nate Goss late in the opening half, but Ryan Domoso assisted a goal by Zach Mizulski in the 68th minute to give Wood River (4-2-1, 3-1-1, 10 pts.) the winning margin.

“Twin played tough,” said Wood River coach Luis Monjaras. “They dominated the first half and we were really flat. Second half we just picked it up and luckily our freshman put some in.”

Twin Falls (2-3-1, 1-2-0 GBC, 3 pts.) hosts Burley on Tuesday.

Girls soccer

JEROME 1, MINICO 0

The Jerome girls soccer team earned a 1-0 Great Basin Conference victory on the road Thursday.

Sarah Walker netted for the Tigers, who moved to 1-5 overall and 1-3 in GBC play. Minico fell to 1-7 (0-4 GBC).

“It was probably the best I’ve seen us play and we moved the ball well,” said Minico coach Dennis Haynes. “We just didn’t have any finishers.”

Football

OAKLEY 43, CENTURY 22

Oakley quarterback Stephan Ortiz threw two touchdowns and running back Garrett Wybenga ran for 100 yards as Oakley pound Century’s junior varsity 43-22 Thursday night.

“It was a fun game,” said Oakley coach Tim Behunin. “It was great to give these kids more playing time. We are excited to get into our conference season and see how we do. I am really proud of these kids and we want to improve some things and get better.”

WOOD RIVER 3, CANYON RIDGE 0

Wood River topped Canyon Ridge 25-11, 25-23, 25-13 in Twin Falls on Thursday.

“We’re building, working hard and we’re doing some good things,” said Canyon Ridge coach Stacy Boer. “We’re starting to move together quicker and reading the other side of the net. It’s still a work in progress.”

Hunter Sagers had six kills for the Riverhawks (1-5, 0-1 Great Basin), while Breyana Burk added four blocks and Kylee Denny 13 assists.

Canyon Ridge is at the Twin Falls Invitational on Saturday.

BUHL 3, FILER 1

Behind outstanding team defense, Buhl beat Filer Thursday night in four sets 25-13, 20-25, 25-23, 25-15.

The back row of Morgan Pearson, Kendyl Hamilton and Tegan Montgomery dug out every attack shot by Filer.

“They kept digging everything up,” said Filer coach Ed Richards.

Buhl’s Katherine Hunter recorded 18 digs and Pearson added 10.

Mackenzie Jasper and Audrey Croy led Filer with 11 kills each. Croy also recorded five stuffed blocks. Tiffany Farr had a nice night at the service line with four aces and 13 points.

Filer (4-5) plays in the Twin Falls tournament on Saturday.

VALLEY 3, GLENNS FERRY 1

Glenns Ferry fell to Valley in four sets Thursday night 25-18, 25-27, 25-23, 25-17.

Sydney Sterling dished out 27 assists and Jacqueline Brennan led the Pilots with 11 kills and five aces.

Glenns Ferry coach Jolinda Solosabal said the team came out flat in the first game.

“The first game we were just dead and tired after playing Carey the night before,” Solosabal said.

Glenns Ferry (2-3, 0-1 Canyon Conference) plays Wendell on Tuesday.

SHOSHONE DROPS MATCHES AT TRI

Shoshone lost to Challis 25-16, 25-14, 25-16 and lost to Salmon 25-17, 27-25, 25-20 at Challis on Thursday.

“We were just outclassed today,” said Shoshone coach Larry Messick. “Both of those teams were really aggressive and we just were flat-footed.”

The Indians (3-2) travel to Hagerman on Tuesday.

GOODING 3, WENDELL 0

Despite a valiant effort by Meagan Sousa (10 assists) and Kirsten Hilt (six kills and four digs), Wendell was swept by Gooding 25-19, 25-20 and 25-11.

Other notable stats for Wendell include Kendal Mowery with six digs, Taylor Robinson with five digs and Heather Sturdeon with 3 kills.

Wendell (0-5) host Glenns Ferry on Tuesday.

CASTLEFORD 3, COMMUNITY SCHOOL 0

Castleford defeated the Community School 25-18, 25-21, 25-10 in Sun Valley on Thursday.

Laura Vandenberg had seven kills and Kendra Flores added 10 assists for the Wolves (2-3, 1-3 Northside), who host Murtaugh on Tuesday.

RAFT RIVER 3, HAGERMAN 0

Raft River scored a 25-17, 28-26, 25-14 over Hagerman in Malta on Thursday.

Echo Hansen had 11 kills for the Trojans (7-0) while Wynter Holtman had 10. Holly Scott had 26 digs and Kassie Ottley added 23, while Hailey Greenwood was a perfect 21-for-21 from the service line with three aces.

Raft River is at Grace on Tuesday.

DIETRICH 3, LIGHTHOUSE CHRISTIAN 2

Dietrich outlasted Lighthouse Christian 25-15, 24-26, 16-25, 25-15, 15-12 in Twin Falls on Thursday.

Kyanna Jones had eight kills and 15 digs to lead the Lions (2-2, 2-2 Northside), while Brooklyn Vander Stelt had 19 assists and 10 digs and Brynli Wooten added 14 digs.

Lighthouse Christian is at a tournament in Garden Valley on Saturday.

RICHFIELD 3, CAREY 0

Richfield swept Carey 25-22, 25-10, 25-7 in Sawtooth Conference play action Thursday.

Kegan Cenarussa served eight straight service points to end the match. Kalie Cenarussa led Richfield with 11 kills.

“I’m very pleased with the way our team played tonight. Carey is an athletic, scrappy team,” said Richfield coach Norm Rock.

Richfield (3-1) hosts Dietrich on Tuesday.

Cross Country

DECLO BOYS, GIRLS SWEEP MEET

The Declo boys and girls finished first Oakley Invitational cross country meet on Thursday.

Trevor Anderson of Declo crossed the finish line at 18 minutes, 49 seconds just one second in front of Buhl’s Caleb Vanhoozer to take first place.

Sasha Kent of Richfield finished first in the girls in 21:56 followed by Nikkaila Bain of Buhl at 23:52 and Sierra Zollinger from Declo at 24:11.

Oakley Invitational Boys

Vikingman enters fourth year in Mini-Cassia

By Ryan Howe

HEYBURN — Bring your swim caps, bikes and running shoes, but leave your swords and helmets at home — it’s time for the fourth annual Vikingman Triathlon.

About 170 athletes are expected to compete in the event Saturday at Riverside Park. The competition includes half-triathlon and Olympic triathlon distances, as well as aquabike and duathlon races.

Originating in 2007, the Vikingman was an expansion of the Skandi Dag Festival, a fundraiser event for Burley’s American Heritage Academy.

Although Skandi Dag has been discontinued, Vikingman hopes to grow.

The event kicks off Friday night with a family fun run of either a half-mile or 1-mile. Everybody wins a medal.

“We pretty much have something for everybody,” said race coordinator Lisa Clines. “It’s still a family affair, even though the Skandi Dag isn’t there anymore, we’re still doing something to have the whole family involved.”

The Vikingman’s biggest change this year is its date. In previous years, the race was held in early June, but unpredictable weather, cold water temperatures and fewer participants won the game more easily if not for two missed field goals by Garrett Hartley, who kicked the dramatic winning field goal last year.

Still, New Orleans was able to kneel on the ball to run out most of the last two minutes after Pierre Thomas capped a 71-yard, one-touchdown performance with 10-yard, first-down run right after the 2-minute warning.

Adrian Peterson, who rushed for 122 yards and three TDs in the last meeting, rushed for 87 yards on 219 carries against New Orleans’ stingy defense.

Although the game was competitive until the final minutes, it hardly lived up to its hype.

Favre’s comeback from ankle surgery, marking the start of his 20th season, was largely unspectacular. Despite being sacked only once and hit not nearly as often, or as hard, as in the NFC title game, he looked out of synch at times.

says he was “extremely close” to Nicole, a 21-year-old mother of two young boys. Following an auto accident on Interstate 84, Nicole spent a week in a Boise hospital before she passed away Sept. 2, the day before Declo’s season-opener vs. Aberdeen.

“It’s tough,” said Declo teammate Jared Patterson. “That’s a big burden to carry. I was surprised he played on Friday night.”

There was never any doubt.

“My sister would want me to play. I absolutely feel that if I could talk to her and ask her, that’s what she would have wanted me to do.”

After facing perhaps the biggest tragedy of his life,

Knobbe played the game of his life. In Declo’s 24-21 win, Knobbe broke the school’s single-game rushing record with 358 yards on 21 carries and scored three touchdowns. At linebacker, he recorded 16 tackles.

While he believes Nicole was with him on Friday night, Knobbe doesn’t think that’s the reason he played well.

“Whether my sister dies or not isn’t going to effect how hard I play,” he said. “From the Aberdeen game until the last game (of the regular season) against Gooding, every Friday night I’m going to give everything I have for 48 minutes, until I can’t walk or stand. So would I have had the same game? I think so, because either way my sister would have been there cheering me on.

“I’m actually doing really good, for what’s happened. This isn’t much of a trial or a tragedy for me because I have an absolute belief that my sister is in a better place right now where she’s happy and it’s better than anybody can imagine.”

Four years of focused determination led up to Knobbe’s senior season. His work ethic is second to none, according to Declo head coach Kelly Kidd — and he would know. During the summer, if Coach Kidd were late for a 6 a.m. weight lifting session, Knobbe would go to his house and pound on the door.

Besides countless hours in the gym, Knobbe has spent countless more working on football fundamentals and running on Declo’s country roads. He’s also prepared himself academically for his voice filled the school’s halls and classrooms.

“With all due respect, ignore what Mr. Kidd just said. We will get new jerseys,” Knobbe announced, and then went to work collecting the last of the money needed.

“Telling him no isn’t an option and he’s accomplished a lot because of that,” Kidd said. “He’s detail-oriented about everything. He does good schoolwork, he takes care of his friends and he’s caring about people who need help.

“The freshmen in my weights class wonder if I’m the teacher or if Mark’s the teacher because Mark’s in there teaching them proper technique and encouraging them to lift harder. I love him to have that role.”

It’s ironic, Knobbe wants to make his teammates stronger, but now the roles are reversed. Part of what’s kept him strong through his family’s trial is the support of teammates.

“I had to play because my team needed me,” Knobbe said. “I love my team, they’re like my family. I would do anything for them — anything. I would sacrifice my mind, body and soul to help any one of them. And I know they would do the same for me.”

It’s been said that this year’s Declo football team will go only as far as Mark Knobbe can carry it — a notion that Knobbe himself disagrees with, especially with regard to last Friday.

“If anything, the team was carrying me.”

Patriots QB Brady unhurt in wreck near Boston home

BOSTON — New England Patriots quarterback Tom Brady was unhurt in a two-vehicle accident near his home Thursday morning and hours later practiced as usual with his team just days before the season opener. He then agreed to a four-year extension that would make him the NFL's highest paid player, according to a person with knowledge of the contract.

The contract is worth an average of $19 million per year and begins in 2011, said the person, who spoke on condition of anonymity because the paperwork had not yet been filed with the NFL. Brady is making $6.5 million this season.

New England Patriots quarterback Tom Brady (12) works a passing drill during practice at the NFL football team's facility in Foxborough, Mass., Thursday afternoon. Brady was in a two-car accident near his home on Thursday morning but was unhurt.

The crash, at an intersection in Boston's Back Bay area, knocked over a light pole and sent a passenger in the minivan that collided with Brady's car to a hospital with injuries that were serious but not considered life-threatening, a police report said.

A witness told The Associated Press that the two-time Super Bowl MVP was approaching the intersection on a green light when his black Audi sedan collided with the minivan.

The 21-year-old driver of the Mercury Villager minivan, Ludgero Rodrigues, was cited Thursday for failing to stop at a red light, based on witnesses statements, police said. Two other people in the minivan were able to exit and had no visible injuries, they said.

The police report, which did not name Brady, said the driver of the Audi had no visible injuries and was evaluated by Emergency Medical Services. It said a 49-year-old passenger had to be freed with the Jaws of Life and was taken to a hospital.

Brady's father had just arrived in Boston from the family's California home early Thursday and found out about the accident when he got off his flight.

"I understand he's fine, but I haven't talked to him," Tom Brady Sr. told the AP outside his son's home three blocks from the accident site.

COWBOYS GIVE WR MILES AUSTIN LONG-AWAITED NEW DEAL

IRVING, Texas — The Dallas Cowboys have given Pro Bowl receiver Miles Austin a six-year contract extension. Financial terms were not immediately disclosed.

Austin signed a $3.168 million contract in June, but Cowboys owner Jerry Jones had repeatedly said he wanted to sign the receiver coming off a breakout season to a long-term deal. That finally came Thursday, three days before the season opener at Washington.

Austin last season had 81 catches for 1,320 yards, sixth-best in team history and the sixth-best by an undrafted receiver ever in the NFL.

Damon, Tigers beat slumping White Sox

DETROIT — Johnny Damon had a season-high four hits and the Detroit Tigers beat Chicago 6-3 Thursday to hand the White Sox their third straight loss.

The White Sox (77-63) fell six games behind idle Minnesota in the AL Central, their largest deficit since June 17.

Rick Porcello (9-11) gave up three runs and four hits in eight innings to win his fourth straight start. Ryan Perry pitched the ninth for his second save.

RANGERS 4, BLUE JAYS 2

TORONTO — Colby Lewis won for the first time since mid-July and Mitch Moreland drove in three runs to lead Texas to the victory.

The Rangers, who lead the AL West, won their second straight after losing nine of 12.

NATIONAL LEAGUE CARDINALS 4, BRAVES 1

ATLANTA — Colby Rasmus hit a pair of homers, Albert Pujols and Skip Schumaker also connected, and Adam Wainwright bounced back from a shaky first inning to lead the Cardinals past the slumping Atlanta Braves.

The Braves, looking to turn things around after a poor road trip knocked them out of first place in the NL East, jumped ahead 3-0 in the first inning. But the Cardinals rocked Jair Jurrjens (7-5) for five runs in the second — capped by Schumaker's two-out, two-run drive — and Atlanta took its sixth loss in eight games.

ROCKIES 6, REDS 5

DENVER — Chris Nelson stole home in the eighth inning to send the Rockies to the four-game series sweep and their season-best seventh consecutive victory.

With one out and runners on the corners, Nelson broke for home before Nick Masset (3-4) threw his first pitch to Miguel Olivo. Inexplicably, Masset stepped off the mound, whirled to his left and toward second base.

ASTROS 3, DODGERS 2

HOUSTON — Rookie Chris Johnson hit a three-run homer in the sixth inning and the Astros rallied to get the victory.

Johnson, who struck out in his first two at-bats, drove a full-count pitch from Ted Lilly (8-10) to the train tracks in left field for his eight homer, erasing a two-run deficit. Hunter Pence singled to extend his hitting streak to 10 games and Carlos Lee walked to set up Johnson's one-out drive.

Nadal beats Verdasco to reach U.S. Open semifinals

NEW YORK (AP) — After one early miss, Rafael Nadal slapped himself in the right thigh. After another, he put his hands on his hips and stared at the spot where his shot went awry.

It did not take long for Nadal to put a slightly slow start behind him and move one step closer to the only Grand Slam title he hasn't won.

The top-seeded Nadal figured out how to handle the wind that's plagued the tournament, got his serve in gear after being broken for the only time in five matches, and beat No. 8 Fernando Verdasco 7-5, 6-3, 6-4 Thursday night in the first all-Spanish quarterfinal in U.S. Open history.

Nadal's streak of 62 consecutive holds of serve ended in Thursday's third game, when he put a forehand in the net, allowing Verdasco to break him at love to go ahead 2-1. Nadal wouldn't face another break point the rest of the match, though, and won the last 13 points he served in the second set.

In the very early going, Verdasco played the brand of point-extending, opponent-dispiriting defense that Nadal is so well-known for. But Nadal broke back to get to 4-all, thanks to Verdasco's two double-faults in a row, and suddenly was seeming more and more comfortable.

Nadal broke Verdasco for a second time in the last game of the opening set thanks to a volley winner at the end of a 20-stroke exchange. By match's end, Nadal was pulling out all the tricks, even hitting one half-volley while spinning around, putting the racket on the ball with his back to the net — sort of like a no-look pass in basketball.

And now Nadal is headed to a third consecutive semifinal at Flushing Meadows. Nadal never has reached a final in New York, losing at that stage to Andy Murray in 2008, and to eventual champion Juan Martin del Potro in 2009.

On Saturday, Nadal — trying to complete a career Grand Slam at age 24 by earning a U.S. Open trophy to put alongside the eight total he owns from the French Open, Wimbledon and Australian Open — will face 12th-seeded Mikhail Youzhny of Russia for a spot in the final.

No. 2 Roger Federer will face No. 3 Novak Djokovic in Saturday's other semifinal; they won their quarterfinals Wednesday. Federer owns a record 16 Grand Slam titles, including five at the U.S. Open, and has faced Nadal in finals at the other three major tournaments.

Nadal has won his last 19 Grand Slam matches, including titles in 2010 at the French Open and Wimbledon.

Youzhny's only previous trip to the semifinals at any Grand Slam tournament came at the 2006 U.S. Open, and he made it there by upsetting Nadal in the quarterfinals.

"It's another time, and I'm, like, another player," Youzhny said. "I cannot say I am (a) better player now, but it's another time and other opponent, so everything can happen."

He hit fewer aces and fewer winners, needed treatment on his right foot in the fifth set — and still managed to come back and beat No. 25 Stanislas Wawrinka of Switzerland 3-6, 7-6 (7), 3-6, 6-3, 6-3 in four hours earlier Thursday.

Kuchar leads, Woods struggles at BMW

LEMONT, Ill. (AP) — Already having his best season, Matt Kuchar got off to his best start of the year Thursday in the BMW Championship. A mystery season for Tiger Woods took another unexpected turn.

Kuchar, who won the opening FedEx Cup playoff event to position himself for the $10 million bonus, wasted no time putting his name atop the leaderboard. He finished with an 18-foot birdie putt for a 7-under 64 and a one-shot lead over Ryan Moore.

Ian Poulter of England, who has finished in the top 10 only once since winning the Match Play Championship in February, had a 66 for the best round of the afternoon despite opening with a double bogey.

Woods also started with a double bogey, but he never got those shots back.

With one last bogey on the 18th hole, he wound up with a 73 to leave himself in a big hole as he tries to advance to the final stage of the playoffs in Atlanta. It was his highest round at Cog Hill since he opened with a 73 in the 2005 Western Open. It also ended a streak of 11 consecutive rounds in the 60s on the public course in the Chicago suburbs where he has won five times.

Woods should be used to rough starts by now. His scoring average in the first round this year is 71.08, compared with 68.9 a year ago in the same tournaments.

Even so, it was peculiar to hear him discuss how much ground he has to make up — not against Kuchar, but the finish he needs to get into the top 30 in the FedEx Cup standings and advance to the Tour Championship.

"As of right now, I'm only five shots back out of that spot," Woods said. "That's not bad."

Everything is good with Kuchar at the moment, except his voice. He is playing so well — a winner at The Barclays, a tour-high 10 finishes in the top 10 this year — that there's really nothing left for him to say.

Not that he had a choice. Kuchar has laryngitis and begged off a series of interviews, letting his score speak for itself. It was the second-best start of his career, and the 21st time in 23 events this year that he broke par in the opening round.

"Just keep playing," Kuchar said to one question he felt good enough to answer. "I was driving it well. I was actually doing everything well. It felt very good. Last week was a little bit suspect, and this week I kind of figured some stuff out."

Retief Goosen and Charlie Wi were at 67, while the group at 68 included Dustin Johnson, Luke Donald and Justin Rose.

Phil Mickelson, not a fan of Cog Hill, ended with a bogey on the par-5 ninth hole for a 72. Mickelson swapped out playing in the pro-am to do a corporate function, and instead played Butler National on Wednesday, which he raved about.

TECHNOLOGY, DESIGN & SOPHISTICATION

2011 FORD EDGE CROSSOVER

First Look

By Ken Chester, Jr.
Motor News Media Corp.

Style and technology – the hallmarks of Ford Edge since it took the midsize crossover segment by storm starting in 2006 – come together in an all-new way, offering customers even more of what they love for the 2011 model year. A dramatic freshening of the 2011 Ford Edge and Edge Sport includes extensive exterior redesign, improved materials and craftsmanship on the interior, class-exclusive technology and new powertrains. With available MyFord Touch™ driver connect technology, the new Ford Edge crossover wraps an engaging package with superior craftsmanship, capability and performance.

"Customers told us how much they like Edge's design and dynamic driving quality," said Mark Fields, Ford's president of The Americas. "We listened and made sure the new 2011 Edge delivers that and more – including fuel economy leadership, unexpected levels of quietness, a strong new design with quality materials, and MyFord Touch driver connect technology that will change how people interact with their vehicles."

In addition to delivering customer-focused technology, the new Edge also showcases and details as well as a tiered, waterfall-like design along the dashboard also highlight the all-new interior.

The all-new MyFord Touch driver connect technology is the focal point – literally and figuratively – of the new 2011 Ford Edge. This available groundbreaking system allows customers seamless and easy access to media or vehicle information by scrolling through menus with simple touch or voice commands.

JOINT SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 231 GOODING AND LINCOLN COUNTIES STATE OF IDAHO NOTICE OF SPECIAL GENERAL OBLIGATION BOND ELECTION

Pursuant to the laws of the State of Idaho and the Bond Election Resolution of the Board of Trustees of Joint School District No. 231, Gooding and Lincoln Counties, State of Idaho, adopted on August 10, 2010, notice is hereby given that a Special General Obligation Bond Election will be held in the District on Friday, September 24, 2010, beginning at the hour of 7:00 A.M. and closing at the hour of 8:00 P.M. on said date, for the purpose of taking a vote upon the following question, to-wit:

QUESTION: Shall the Board of Trustees of Joint School District No. 231, Gooding and Lincoln Counties, State of Idaho, be authorized to issue general obligation school bonds of said District in the principal amount not to exceed $4,000,000 to become due in such installments as may be fixed by the Board of Trustees, the final installment to fall due not more than twenty (20) years from the date of the bonds, for the purpose of financing the costs of (i) renovating, remodeling, and adding to existing school facilities throughout the District and acquiring related equipment for such schools and school facilities, and (ii) construction of a building on the Gooding High School campus, including all lighting, heating, ventilation and sanitation facilities and appliances necessary to maintain and operate said building, all as provided in the Resolution adopted by the Board of Trustees on August 10, 2010?

Said election shall be held at the following polling places:

Gooding County

Gooding High School

1050 7th Avenue West

Gooding, ID

Lincoln County

Fire Station No. 2

702 West 620 North

Shoshone, ID

Absentee Address:

Joint School District No. 231

1050 7th Avenue West

Gooding, Idaho

Notice is further given that only qualified electors of the District, eighteen (18) years of age or older, who have resided in the District for thirty (30) days preceding the Bond Election, who are registered or who register at the polls on the day of the Bond Election, as provided by law, are entitled to vote at said election.

Any registered elector of the District may make written application to the Clerk of the District in accordance with law for an absentee ballot, provided that an absentee ballot must be received by the Clerk at the above Absentee Address not later than 8:00 P.M. on the day of the election in order to be counted. If at said Special General Obligation Bond Election two-thirds (2/3) of the qualified registered electors eighteen (18) years of age or older voting at such election assent to the issuing of said negotiable bonds and the incurring of the indebtedness thereby created for the purpose of financing costs of the projects set out in the above ballot question, such negotiable bonds shall be issued for such voted purpose in the manner provided by the Idaho Code. Said negotiable bonds, or any issue thereof, shall mature over a period commencing before the expiration of two (2) years from their date and ending not more than twenty (20) years from their date and shall bear interest and be payable from ad valorem taxes in accordance with the provisions of § 33-1107, Idaho Code.

The following information is required by § 34 439, Idaho Code: The total existing bonded indebtedness of the District, including interest accrued, as of September 24, 2010, is $2,350,642. The interest rate anticipated on the proposed negotiable bonds, to be designated qualified school construction bonds ("QSCBs"), is zero percent (0.00%). The range of anticipated rates for the QSCBs is from zero percent (0.00%) to one-half percent (0.50%). The total amount to be repaid over the life of the proposed QSCBs, based on the anticipated interest rate, is $4,000,000.

YOU ARE NOTIFIED THAT:

An Order Expanding Juvenile Corrections Act Proceeding To Child Protective Act Proceeding, a copy of which is attached, has been filed in the above-entitled matter in the Magistrate's Division of the District Court of Twin Falls County, Idaho, by the Prosecuting Attorney, alleging the above-named child comes within the Court's jurisdiction under the Child Protective Act.

You are hereby directed to appear personally for a Review Hearing at the Twin Falls County Courthouse, 425 Shoshone Street, Twin Falls, Idaho, on December 2, 2010 at 9:30 AM.

You are notified that service of the attached Order Expanding Juvenile Corrections Act Proceeding To Child Protective Act Proceeding upon you, as the parent(s), guardian, or custodian of this child, confers personal jurisdiction of the Court upon you and subjects you to the provisions of the Child Protective Act.

You are notified that if you fail to appear without reasonable cause, the Court may proceed in your absence or you may be proceeded against for contempt of Court.

You are notified that the parent(s), guardian, or a custodian may be financially liable for the support and/or treatment of the child.

You are further notified that the child and parent(s), guardian, or custodian have the right to be represented by an attorney of your choosing, or if financially unable to pay, have the right to have an attorney appointed by the Court to represent the child or the parent(s), guardian, or custodian at county expense. If you request to have an attorney appointed at county expense, you must appear before the date of the hearing given above, at which time the Court shall consider appointment of an attorney for the child and inquire whether the parent(s), guardian, or custodian require the separate appointment of an attorney.

You are further notified that there shall be a rebuttable presumption that if a child is placed in the custody of the IDHW and was also placed in out of the home care for a period not less than fifteen (15) out of the last twenty-two (22) months from the date of Adjudication, the IDHW shall initiate a Petition for Termination of Parental Rights. This presumption may be rebutted by a finding of the court that the filing of a Petition for Termination of Parental Rights would not be in the best interest of the child and their family, or that the child is placed permanently with a relative.

WITNESS MY HAND AND SEAL of said Magistrate Court this 7th day of September, 2010.

IF SEPTEMBER 10 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You could be flying high on the wings of inspiration and kicking up your heels like a kid during the next several weeks. A new romance might make your head spin, but don't be too dizzy to be practical. In the meantime, feather your nest when opportunity knocks in November and smart business tactics are easy to implement. Plan ahead for March and April when you are most likely to land the new job you desire or when a true soul mate will show his or her true colors.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Furious activity and careful thinking will pay off. Present your valuable ideas and others will listen. Be assured that your points will get across to your audience and the message will be loud and clear.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A little unpredictability spices up relationships. Spring a pleasant surprise on someone to keep old romances just like new. Mingle with some new faces, but don't every piece of gossip as gospel.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): The wisdom that comes from age and experience can't be purchased online or bought in a store. Information and data are not always knowledge. Share those things you truly know with a loved one.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Common sense doesn't always dictate the future. You might have some facts wrong that affect your finances. You must have faith in things that are unseen or invisible or that defy rational description.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You are as proud as a lion. You would never stoop to do anything dishonorable. You aren't always practical about home and family because you trust everyone to stick by you the way you stick by them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): It doesn't do any good to crack the whip. People might just laugh at your efforts to appear stern. Relax and take a break for a few hours. Just relax and tell personal stories to amuse a devoted audience.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Feather your nest. Other people will be happy to do favors for you with no strings attached. This is a good time to get things done. You will notice that people don't expect you to be perfect all the time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Too much of a good thing is wonderful. It is time to quit fooling around and look for a purpose that will capture your heart. Maybe there is someone waiting in the wings who is willing to help.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): It is all good clean fun. Enjoy improving conditions along with enjoyable working conditions. Lucky breaks could be as mundane as a lower tax bill or a wart that falls off of its own accord.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Maintain a delicate balance. Your extra energy can be used to transform your surroundings and you may see ways to make improvements with your assets. Keep in touch with siblings and neighbors.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your sociable and amiable public persona can earn you lots of attention. The desire to live in the fast lane and hobnob with the rich and famous could put you in the right place at the right time.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Pull a rabbit out of a hat. You can use sleight of hand to amaze a willing audience. Make all the right moves to entertain and amuse others. Remaining independent and original brings the best success.

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

By Bil Keane

Today is Friday, Sept. 10, the 253rd day of 2010. There are 112 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On Sept. 10, 1960, Hurricane Donna, a dangerous Category 4 storm, struck the Florida Keys. (In the days that followed, Donna crossed over the Florida Peninsula and headed northward, subjecting the East Coast to hurricane-force winds; the storm was blamed for 364 deaths.)

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1608, John Smith was elected president of the Jamestown colony council in Virginia.

In 1813, an American naval force commanded by Oliver H. Perry defeated the British in the Battle of Lake Erie during the War of 1812.

In 1846, Elias Howe received a patent for his sewing machine.

In 1919, New York City welcomed home Gen. John J. Pershing and 25,000 soldiers who'd served in the U.S. First Division during World War I.

In 1935, Sen. Huey P. Long died in Baton Rouge two days after being shot in the Louisiana state Capitol, allegedly by Dr. Carl Weiss.

In 1939, Canada declared war on Nazi Germany as Parliament acted at the behest of Prime Minister William Lyon Mackenzie King.

In 1945, Vidkun Quisling was sentenced to death in Norway for collaborating with the Nazis (he was executed by firing squad in Oct. 1945).

In 1963, twenty black students entered Alabama public schools following a stand-off between federal authorities and Gov. George C. Wallace.

In 1979, four Puerto Rican nationalists imprisoned for a 1954 attack on the U.S. House of Representatives and a 1950 attempt on the life of President Harry S. Truman were freed from prison after being granted clemency by President Jimmy Carter.

In 1983, John Vorster, prime minister of white-ruled South Africa from 1966 to 1978, died in Cape Town at age 67.

Ten years ago: The space shuttle Atlantis docked with the international space station. Controversial basketball coach Bob Knight was fired by Indiana University for what was called a pattern of unacceptable behavior.

Marat Safin beat Pete Sampras 6-4, 6-3, 6-3 to become the first Russian to win the U.S. Open. Tiger Woods won the Canadian Open by one stroke over Grant Waite. NBC's "The West Wing" won a record-setting nine Emmy awards, including best drama series; NBC's "Will and Grace" won best comedy. The musical "Cats" closed on Broadway after 7,485 performances.

Five years ago: Cadaver dogs and boatloads of forensic workers fanned out across New Orleans to collect the corpses left behind by Hurricane Katrina; cleanup crews towed away abandoned cars and even began readying a hotel for reopening. Kim Clijsters won her first major title, cruising to a 6-3, 6-1 victory over Mary Pierce at the U.S. Open. Clarence "Gatemouth" Brown, the singer and guitarist who'd built a 50-year career playing blues, country, jazz and Cajun music, died in Orange, Texas, at age 81.
