Gooding hospital CEO fired

St. Luke's searching for replacement

By Laura Lundquist

Times-News writer

St. Luke's Health System is conducting a national search to replace North Canyon Medical Center CEO Earl Fitzpatrick.

Fitzpatrick was placed on leave on Aug. 18. St. Luke's spokeswoman Beth Toal confirmed Wednesday that he was fired Sept. 17. Toal said St. Luke's employs the CEO on behalf of the North Canyon Medical Center Board of Directors and that the board voted to terminate him.

Fitzpatrick

Toal would not disclose the reasons for termination and said a search was underway for a permanent replacement.

Board member Pat Nelson deferred inquiries to St. Luke's.

The Gooding hospital's chief financial officer, Rod Larson, was also fired by North Canyon officials. Calls to the hospital about that decision were not returned.

Idaho State Police Lt. Gary Kauffman said Wednesday that an investigation of the hospital administration is still underway and he could not release further information.

Fitzpatrick, hospital staff and the board created the nonprofit Partners in Healthcare Inc. to govern a new $17 million hospital, which opened its doors under its new name in February to replace the Gooding County Memorial Hospital.

Devan Johnson, St. Luke's director of regional services, has taken over as North Canyon's interim CEO. The hospital also has an interim CFO, Tim Powers.

Diverse group of adults studies English at CSI

By Amy Huddleston

Times-News writer

Students representing fifteen countries cram into the plain, white classroom and decorate it with their colorful clothing, strong accents and varied skin tones.

They have biked to the English classes or walked from their apartments. Some of them drove newly purchased cars or car-pooled with caring American neighbors who are dedicated to helping them learn English.

They have come from Nepal, Iran, South America, Asia and Russia. They are as diverse as their cultures are large, and now they are living in the Magic Valley, where English is demanded.

Marian Steel oversees the Adult Basic Education (ABE) programs based at the College of Southern Idaho. She witnesses the changes that occur in the people who walk through her doors every year, eager to enroll in the free classes to learn English or study for their high-school equivalency degrees.

"It is a wonderful experience to see people start over," Steel said. "To see that change happen is a human drama of the finest sort."

Gricelda Luna, 30, has lived in America for 15 years after moving from Mexico, and is enrolled in the second level of English classes.

"Why now after all these years?" Steel said to Luna on a sunny September morning, right around the beginning of the three-hour class.

"For my children — I need to speak for my children," she said.

Fish and Wildlife denies protection to tiny rabbit

By Nicholas K. Geranios

Associated Press writer

SPOKANE, Wash. — The tiny pygmy rabbit does not warrant protection under the endangered species act, a federal agency said Wednesday in its latest ruling against the creature.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service concluded that while there are pressures on the rabbit's habitat, it is not enough to threaten the species' survival. At 9 to 12 inches in length, the adult pygmy rabbit is the smallest in North America.

"We find there has been some loss and degradation of pygmy rabbit habitat range wide, but not to the magnitude that constitutes a significant threat to the species," said Bob Williams, of the Fish and Wildlife Service. "The comparison of available historical and current data indicates that pygmy rabbits seem to occur in a similar distribution pattern, and they have been documented as occurring in new locations."

The agency considered protecting the rabbit in the states of California, Nevada, Oregon, Idaho, Utah, Wyoming and

Democrat challenges Donna Jones for Idaho state controller post

By Ben Botkin

Times-News writer

Idaho State Controller Donna Jones is running for a second four-year term of office against a Democratic candidate new to Idaho's state political realm.

Bruce Robinett is challenging Jones, the Republican incumbent, on a platform of bringing more accountability and visibility to how the state spends its money.

The state controller is the chief fiscal officer for Idaho, responsible for maintaining accounting and financial records, paying all the state's bills and employees, operating the state's computer service center and preparing the state's annual financial report.

The state controller does not set the state's budget; that task is for the Legislature, with final approval gained from the governor's signature.

The position's annual salary is $93,756, though that will drop in 2011 to $90,006.

Robinett, of Boise, believes that the controller's office needs to take a close look at the state's programs and determine which ones are getting the best results and which aren't.

"I thought that there would have been more effort or focus on what's actually happening in government," said Robinett, 46, a finance manager for Hewlett Packard Corp.

When economic times are good, no one notices when money is spent on programs that don't get results, Robinett said, adding that changes when there's less funding.

He said the controller's office should also be more active in identifying budget solutions.

For example, the controller should have asked the public for budget-trimming ideas this year, he said. Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter's office asked for public input when the economy and state budget outlook worsened.

Robinett, a certified management accountant, is also an adjunct professor at Boise State University where he teaches financial and managerial accounting.

Jones, 71, has goals for her next term of office if elected, both of them focused on keeping government accountable and transparent. She wants to complete a hotline that would allow citizens and state employees to confidentially report cases of possible waste or fraud in state government.

She's also pursuing a transparency project that would put more information online for citizens to access.

MORNING BRIEFING

Pat's Picks

Three things to do today

Pat Marcantonio

● Support breast cancer awareness and the Twin Falls High School volleyball team at its “Dig Pink” event at 6 p.m. in the TFHS gym during games against Canyon Ridge High School. “Pink” water and “Dig Pink” volleyball T-shirts will be available with part of the proceeds going to a local breast cancer foundation.

● Learn how to be a good consumer from a representative of the Consumer Protection Division at 7 p.m. at the Burley Public Library, 1300 Miller Ave. It’s free, which is the best bargain a consumer can get.

● The Arts on Tour season opens with the renowned Trey McIntyre Project dance company at 7:30 p.m. at the CSI Fine Arts Center auditorium. Individual tickets are $18 to $25, or $95 to $132 for season tickets. These performances are usually top-notch.

Jones also stresses other efforts by her office to get information to citizens. For example, her office publishes annual reports with salary data, and she also travels the state to give presentations about the state’s endowment lands.

“We’ve tried very much to make government as open as possible,” Jones said, noting that she even has her cell phone number on her business cards so she’s accessible to the public.

Though her opponent faults her for not being more active with the budget and reviewing state programs, Jones stressed that the role of the controller’s office is to provide information.

“My role is not a policy role,” she said. “We provide information, so I can’t be active in the policymaking role. That’s not my constitutional duty.”

Jones was a state representative from 1987 to 1999, chairing the House Revenue and Taxation Committee in 1997 and 1998.

She later was the executive director of the Idaho Real Estate Commission, a position she left in 2006 after she was elected state controller. Earlier in her career, she sold real estate and owned an auto parts business.

endangered in 2003. Scientists at Washington State University have for years been breeding and releasing pygmy rabbits in an effort to re-establish a population. Many have been devoured by predators.

The Western Watersheds Project has been pushing for protection of the rabbits, which weigh up to one pound and can fit in a man’s palm. The group contends rabbit numbers have been decreasing for years in the West because of habitat loss, which reduces their ability to escape predators. The group did not immediately return a message seeking comment.

In 2007, a federal judge in Idaho overruled the agency’s denial of protection after a 2005 petition and ordered the new review.

Rabbit advocates argued that the species was losing population and its sagebrush habitat because of agricultural development, livestock grazing, urban and rural development, energy development, invasive plant species, and fires. The rabbits also faced threats from predators and disease, the petition said.

But the agency concluded there is no sign the rabbits are significantly impacted by sagebrush loss or modification, predators, disease or other threats.

The rabbits are typically found in areas of tall, dense sagebrush where soils are sufficiently deep and loose to allow them to dig their own burrows.

Judge closes proceedings in Burley teacher sex abuse case

By Laurie Welch
Times-News writer

BURLEY — A Cassia County judge has sealed a court case regarding child-sex charges levied against a suspended Burley teacher.

Fifth District Judge Michael Crabtree’s order will keep any further information about the case, including its outcome, under wraps and bar the public from the courtroom.

Michael S. Brinkerhoff, 42, was charged in August with felony sexual abuse of a child under 16 and enticing a child over the Internet after he allegedly pretended to be a teenage boy in order to have sexual conversations with a student.

Cassia County Prosecutor Al Barrus told the Times-News in mid-September that he planned to file a motion to have the case sealed in order to protect the female teenage victim.

Brinkerhoff waived his preliminary hearing in magistrate court Sept. 10, and the case was bound over to district court in front of Crabtree.

Barrus had also filed a motion to close the Sept. 10 hearing, which was granted by Magistrate Judge Rick Bollar.

Barrus said afterwards his effort to close the hearing was also made to protect the victim.

Brinkerhoff was suspended with pay by the Cassia County School District pending the outcome of the case. He was hired by the district in 2006 and had a previous record of misdemeanor petit theft charges in Bonneville County. District officials said a background check performed prior to his employment with the district failed to turn up the charges.

Brinkerhoff taught

English and drama at Burley Junior High School and was charged after he allegedly pretended to be his own 15-year-old nephew in order to engage the young girl in sexual discussions.

According to court records, the victim’s mother allegedly turned over more than 1,000 pages of messages to law-enforcement officials that had allegedly been sent between the victim and Brinkerhoff. Many of the messages were graphic and sexual in nature.

White House turns away medal winner’s family

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Family of Medal of Honor recipient Vernon Baker was denied access to the White House’s West Wing on Saturday, a day after the World War II hero was buried at Arlington National Cemetery.

Baker’s widow, Heidy, and grandson, Vernon Pawlik, 10, were denied entry because the boy was wearing shorts and a T-shirt.

His shirt had a picture of his grandfather on it.

A White House website doesn’t list a dress code, but the family had been invited to tour the West Wing, which houses the president’s office and where casual dress is prohibited.

U.S. Rep. Walt Minnick’s office says he’s contacted the White House to express his disappointment.

Vernon Baker, of St. Maries, Idaho, was the last living black World War II Medal of Honor winner.

The White House didn’t return a phone call seeking comment.

Students in the ABE English class come from 15 countries, and their names are placed on a large map of the world in the classroom, seen here.

That is at the heart of what ABE does, Steel said — helping adults learn for themselves, their children and their new community.

About 1,000 adults attempt to learn English every year through the classes that are offered Monday through Friday in Twin Falls, Jerome, Burley, Wendell and Hailey. The classes focus on real-life adult needs — catering to their students who range from ages 18 to nearly 80.

For many refugees and immigrants, this is their first time in a classroom.

The challenge of learning a new language is compounded by the fact that they are often illiterate in their own language.

Learning another language takes around five to seven years of full immersion, ESL coordinator Judy Ruprecht said, and even longer for people who have never learned to hold a pencil before.

“So often you hear people say, ‘this is America, why don’t you just learn English?’” Rubrecht said. “But it gets more difficult as you get older.”

Janet Khamissinia, 35, moved from Iran to Twin Falls around five years ago with her husband and now 8-year-old daughter, Assal.

Her English skills have advanced quickly. She speaks with an accent but the sentences are complete.

She pauses to think of certain words at times and, though she said she doesn’t like the sign language many foreigners use to get by, she waves her hands to attempt to describe events and places.

She didn’t know English when she came here and spent four months going to classes offered by the CSI Refugee Center.

“I wanted to communicate with people when I had a problem. Worst part was the doctor,” she said. “I couldn’t explain. I didn’t know all the words.”

Khamissinia watches Sesame Street with her daughter to learn basic words and practice elementary phrases, and speaks English in the home with her family. But she also stresses the need for her daughter to continue speaking Farsi so she won’t forget.

She tells just one of the many stories that file into the classes every day. Some students have worked the night shift at their various jobs and drag themselves into the classes with tired eyes.

“It’s very difficult to work full-time, go to school and take care of their families,” Ruprecht said.

“People are so grateful. We are helping people who want to be helped. We are all immigrants here. Some of us have just been here longer.”

Buhl residents voice objections to linking two sections of road

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

BUHL — The city of Buhl's proposal to use urban renewal funds to connect two sections of Clear Creek Drive in the southern part of Buhl met with opposition Monday from residents of Apple Valley Acres.

Residents of the subdivision were invited to the evening's City Council meeting so the city could get their input. The road currently has about a 300-foot disconnect, from Applewood Drive on the east to Milner Avenue on the west

While Mayor Tom McCauley said he had discussed the idea with residents who support it, no one commenting during the meeting expressed approval.

Response times and public safety top the city's reasoning for connecting the road, which would cost the urban renewal agency an estimated $100,000.

"That is a very pertinent road that needs to go in for infrastructure and public safety," said Fire Chief Mark Korsen.

However, resident Jered Vaughn questioned that position. He said emergency responders have never been called in to the area he lives at since he moved into his home on Clear Creek about three years ago. He asked if the city had analyzed the cost of the project versus the benefit.

"If that home wouldn't have been on a dead-end street I wouldn't have purchased it," Vaughn said. He added that he believes the road's current 15 mph speed limit would increase, along with traffic volume, if the connection goes through.

Several residents also contended that their area of town will be tied to another area that has, in the past few months, been the location of two separate shooting incidents.

"People have a sense of security," said Michelle Vaughn, who said residents feel safe enough to let their children play outside, comforted in knowing that people who drive into the area can't just drive through. "Police may have a straight shot but so do the criminals."

City Engineer Scott Bybee said the residents' "input is important," and suggested a possible compromise: connecting Clear Creek Drive but adding a gate to the design that could only be opened by city personnel and emergency responders.

That idea met with some approval, but residents still maintained the money could be better-spent elsewhere, like widening streets to help first-responders traverse the area more safely.

No decision on the connection has been made.

Residents present also criticized a plan to build a pocket park in the same neighborhood.

"We all have acreages and don't need a park," Jennifer Yost said.

McCauley said the park was suggested because that area of town, one of the oldest residential sections in Buhl, doesn't have any parks close by.

Buhl has applied for Seagraves Family Foundation grant funding to cover the costs, he said, competing with other cities like Carey and Shoshone.

Jerome council calls emergency meeting about replacing police car

By Amy Huddleston
Times-News writer

The Jerome City Council has called an emergency meeting for 6 p.m. today to deal with a dead police car.

Chief of Police Dan Hall drives one of the oldest cars on the police force, and much to his dismay, the old Buick finally broke down.

On his way to Moscow for an Idaho Chiefs of Police Association conference, the engine in the police car threw a rod, according to Micah Austin, assistant to the city administrator.

That left Hall stranded in Lewiston with the option of renting a car to finish his journey to and from Moscow.

With the city's fiscal year ending on Friday, the council decided to call the emergency meeting this evening to respond to the situation. Members will discuss whether the city has the money to purchase a new or a used car for Hall's use.

Austin said the breakdown wasn't a surprise. "Next year's budget doesn't have the money for this, but with the reserve this year we can find some leftover monies. We have to meet before the first,"

Austin said. "The damages to the vehicle cost more than the car is worth."

Rupert signs for changes in electrical power agreement

By Coreen Hart
Times-News correspondent

RUPERT — Rupert Mayor Paul Fries on Tuesday signed an amended and restated load-commitment agreement regarding the city's electrical power.

In 2009, Rupert joined Northwest Intergovernmental Energy Supply (NIES). It provides for non-federal power supply when the city exceeds its high-water mark with the Bonneville Power Administration (BPA).

The revised agreement takes effect Oct. 1, 2011, and represents a pooling of 20 utilities — 10 with NIES and 10 with NESCA, a generation and transmission co-op.

The changes mean NIES members are no longer completely dependent on BPA for all their power needs, officials said, and lends some price stability.

Also Tuesday, resident Don Hoffner spoke with the City Council about his concerns for the new surface on A Street. He said he's sure it will deteriorate within a year because beet trucks are too heavy for it. Councilman Todd McGhie reassured Hoffner that the resurfacing is intended to be temporary until grant money is available for a more durable job.

"That road is a farm-to-market road," McGhie said. "We will continually have heavy trucks on that road because there is no truck route. That road will maintain truck traffic for the rest of our lives."

Trucks are limited to 15 miles per hour and 129,000 pounds through that part of A Street.

Resident Sylvia Lujan wondered whether Fir Street is going to be repaired. Cedar and Pine next to her have had work done twice, she said.

Councilman Mike Brown explained the reason.

"The two streets you mentioned were chip-sealed this year ... in order to maintain the work that was done a year ago," he said. "It may have looked as if the work was done twice there, but that's just the process."

He told Lujan that the city has a master plan for road repairs, but that money isn't available yet.

City Superintendent Dennis Andrew added that much work is needed on city streets, and they must all be maintained.

Also, POW/MIA Day organizer George Maas addressed the council to recognize to the many groups and individuals who contributed to this year's event. He said more sponsors are needed to buy flags for next year, at $15 apiece.

Post office to close driveway

The north side of the driveway into the parking lot of the Pioneer Station Post Office, 1376 Fillmore St. in Twin Falls, will close today for maintenance work.

Officials said the closure is expected to last 10 days to two weeks. Besides that office, other post offices in Twin Falls are located at 991 Washington St. S. and 253 Second Ave. W.

Poverty Flats owner sentenced for stolen property, meth

By Bradley Guire
Times-News writer

The owner of Poverty Flats in Jerome County was sentenced Monday in 5th District Court.

Judge John Butler imposed fines and prison time on Christopher Butts, 39, who pleaded guilty to three counts of theft by receiving or possessing stolen property and one count of possession of a controlled substance.

He received a $1,000 fine and 14 years on each count of theft by receiving, and a $1,000 fine for possession of a controlled substance. Butler also ordered restitution of $2,966.52. Butts will serve a 395-day retained jurisdiction program, 90 days of which must be served at the newly opened Idaho Correctional Alternative Placement Program in Boise. He was credited with 194 days for time spent in custody of Jerome County.

Law-enforcement authorities found at least five stolen vehicles and methamphetamine at Poverty Flats in March.

Suspect in standoff gets 30 days in jail

Marco Palomo pleaded guilty to resisting/obstructing a peace officer and was sentenced on Sept. 13 in Gooding County 5th District Court, ending a journey that began with a standoff with police in August.

Palomo, 24, of Twin Falls, barricaded himself inside a home on the 1900 block of California Street in Gooding in the early evening of Aug. 17. Police, who suspected he had a firearm in the house, took him in without incident around 11 p.m. that night. Palomo was sentenced to 30 days in jail with 27 days credited.

Judge denies venue change for cab driver

A cab driver accused of rape will have his jury trial in Twin Falls County 5th District Court.

Judge Randy Stoker ruled Monday against Randolph King's motions for venue change and bond reduction. King, 47, of Filer, is charged with rape and faces a jury trial on Dec. 14. King's original bond amount was $25,000. He remains incarcerated at the Twin Falls County Jail.

Kimberly man pleads guilty

Marcos Eccles pleaded guilty to amended charges of attempted robbery and conspiracy to commit robbery Monday in Twin Falls County 5th District Court.

The 18-year-old Kimberly man was charged with two counts of robbery and one conspiracy count. One robbery charge was dropped while the second was amended as part of the plea bargain.

Eccles and two co-defendants, Allen Park III, 16, and Weston M. Hills, 16, were accused of using a .22-caliber handgun in two June 4 incidents. Park and Hills pleaded guilty on Sept. 16, and both face sentencing on Nov. 15. Eccles is scheduled to be sentenced on Nov. 22.

Time isn’t on the side of many mobile home owners

In 2007 when Idaho’s housing and commercial real estate booms were near their peak, Boise State University issued a bleak analysis of the future of Idaho mobile home parks and those who live in them.

“Idaho cities have limited tools to arrest the national trend that closes the mobile home parks and displaces affordable housing,” said the report by BSU’s College of Social Sciences and Public Affairs. “No provision in state law explicitly allows a municipality to require a landowner ... to maintain mobile home units or pay relocation expenses... Many park owners are reluctant to accept a relocated house that is more than 7 years old. Manufactured homes on leased land depreciate rapidly. Often the expense of relocation — perhaps $5,000 to $10,000 per household — exceeds the worth of the home.”

The issue arose in Twin Falls this week when the city’s Planning and Zoning Commission rejected a rezoning request than would have allowed commercial development on the site of the Lazy J Ranch mobile home park. Developer Gerald Martens said he plans to appeal to the City Council.

As in most Idaho mobile home parks, most of Lazy J’s residents are elderly. The BSU report found that half of the 5,400 Boiseans who lived in mobile homes in 2007 were senior citizens with a median income of $20,000. Most were women and nearly half suffered from chronic medical conditions.

These are folks with truly limited options.

Idaho emphasizes the rights of private property owners, who by law have broad discretion over what they do with their land.

In 2006, then-Gov. Jim Risch appointed an advisory commission on manufactured housing issues. Its report made a number of recommendations, but there was no call for a municipal tax on projects that displace affordable housing. It stopped short of advocating solutions such as rent control or the public purchase and management of mobile home parks.

Two years ago, state Rep. Phyllis King, D-Boise, proposed a bill that would mandate a right of first refusal for tenant organizations to buy mobile home parks. It never made it out of the House Business Committee.

So in Idaho, zoning is about the only legal protection mobile home owners have.

But whether the Twin Falls City Council agrees with the P&Z’s decision on the Lazy J rezoning or not, the park is surrounded by property that sooner or later be developed commercially. The long-term prospects for a mobile home park at that location are cloudy.

What’s needed are private-sector solutions. Under a voluntary program in Boise, developers contribute cash — typically $1,500 to $2,000 per household — to help mobile home owners displaced by new construction. There’s no reason there couldn’t be a similar statewide enterprise.

And local governments could work with homeowners’ associations to sponsor limited equity housing cooperatives, which keep housing prices low by limiting the resale price of the land. The co-op works with a lender to buy a mobile home park and the homeowners pool their own money to buy shares in a public corporation that owns the property. The committee appointed by Risch suggested that cities might be able to finance limited equity cooperatives with impact fees, but that would probably require approval by the Legislature.

None of that is likely to happen unless, like Risch, a high-profile Idaho elected official embraces this issue as his or her own.

And soon. The plight of Lazy J’s tenant is being played out in mobile home parks all over Idaho.

This year, every other voter is a conservative

WASHINGTON — Sometimes the most important clues are hiding in plain view. That was the case in late June, when the Gallup Organization reported that the share of voters who describe themselves as conservative had increased from 37 percent to 42 percent in the past two years.

David Broder

That does not sound like a big change. But given the long-term stability of these basic philosophical alignments, the reaction it measured to the economic troubles and the performance of the new Democratic administration is very significant.

The most recent number, a cumulative figure based on surveys during the first half of 2010, drew some attention because it was the highest percentage for conservatives in any such poll since Gallup started asking this question in 1992. The five-point gain came equally from the ranks of moderates and liberals, who fell to 35 percent and 20 percent, respectively.

What was less noticed at the time were the state-by-state Gallup figures, but thanks to the busy calculators at Third Way, the moderate Democratic advocacy and political action group, the implications of those numbers for the mid-term election have become clear in a memo now circulating around Washington.

They explain why so many Democratic candidates are struggling in states such as Wisconsin and Washington, which have been kind to their party in the recent past. And they argue that President Obama may have been focused on the wrong target when he kicked off his fall campaigning at the University of Wisconsin in the liberal stronghold of Madison.

The message emerges from some pretty basic math calculations — work done by Lydia Saad of Gallup and then overlaid by Anne Kim and Jon Cowan of Third Way.

Saad ran the Gallup numbers for individual states, with few surprises. Wyoming, Mississippi, Utah and South Dakota checked in with 50 percent or more conservatives. At the other end, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Vermont, Massachusetts and Colorado were the most liberal states — but only in Rhode Island did the percentage top 30.

Then Kim and Cowan added their own assumptions: Suppose Democratic candidates run as well as Obama did nationally in 2008, taking 20 percent of the conservatives, 60 percent of the moderates and 89 percent of the liberals. And suppose, too, that turnout rates are the same for all three groups.

With the updated Gallup figures, a 2010 Democratic candidate who matched Obama’s national percentages would still win Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Oregon and Washington. But with more conservatives and fewer liberals in the mix, the Democrat would come up short in 13 other competitive states and barely break even in California, Illinois and New Hampshire. Among the big states where the numbers now break against the Democrats are Florida, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

As anyone who is following the election campaign knows, this kind of analysis makes no allowance for the possible impact of Lisa Murkowski’s write-in effort in Alaska or the crash-and-burn Republican gubernatorial campaign in Colorado.

But the basic math shows why Democrats such as Sen.

Russ Feingold in Wisconsin are struggling this year and why Obama may witness the defeat of his fellow Democrats running for governor and senator in his home state of Illinois.

And, in the view of the Third Way analysts, the math also suggests the limitations on the apparent White House strategy of concentrating the president’s campaign efforts on young people and single women. To the extent that those groups delivered liberal votes to Obama in 2008, it makes sense to mine them again.

But if Gallup is right, and I believe its methodology is solid, there simply are fewer liberal votes to be won this time. And, as the Third Way memo says, “While the middle has always played a pivotal role in American electoral politics, where they swing this fall will certainly decide the fate of the Democratic majority.”

Voter endorses Eller, Allred and Olson

There is a critical election this Nov. 2. I urge everyone to vote for Twin Falls County commissioner candidate Gary Eller, gubernatorial candidate Keith Allred and state superintendent candidate Stan Olson.

I have had the pleasure of meeting all three of these highly qualified individuals, and I can vouch for their character and desire to help Idahoans in these tough times.

Mr. Eller is retired military and a former government teacher who is not ideologically paralyzed, but respectful of political differences. I know Gary and I know his passion to be a commissioner who listens and makes decisions based on common sense and not political correctness or party platforms.

Keith Allred has worked across party lines to build consensus. He worked to protect private property rights and to defeat Otter’s gas tax and registration fee hikes. When Otter wanted to raise registration fees on our vehicles by 138 percent while only raising them on heavy trucks by 5 percent, Keith worked to defeat Otter’s unfair plan for Idahoans. This is just one example of his passion to put every day Idahoans ahead of partisan politics and special interests.

As head of Boise’s well-run school district and more than 40 years in education, Stan Olson is highly qualified for Idaho state superintendent. Stan will bring knowledge, focus and inspiration for all the teachers, administrators and support staff that have been demoralized by recent educational cuts and Luna’s “rudderless ship.”

As a teacher in Jerome and at the Magic Valley Alternative School, I personally know how hard educators are working for less and less. I can think of no better solution than having Gov. Allred and State Superintendent Stan Olson working to make children a priority again in this state and having a quality commissioner like Gary Eller in

First the sacrifice then the celebration

Tommy Pigger was my pet pig. He was overweight and needed slaughtering. It was hard to watch his blood dribbling in the dirt. Sad but necessary. Later, I invited the family over for pigger chops. We celebrated.

A piece of rotted siding caught my eye. As I walked around the house looking up, I saw all kinds of problems. Should I just paint over them again? The more I looked, the scarier it got. Past sins of neglect and ignorance overwhelmed me. Hundreds of hours of work, scaffolds and ladders (always look up when you’re on a ladder) were my future. Now a total makeover, better than new vinyl but costly. My house is “born again.”

How to eat an elephant or donkey? One bite at a time. All of us see the need for life changes (tomorrow). The debt, the waste, the clutter, the fat. So to governments: local, state, national; huge waste, horrendous bureaucracy, gross inefficiency, all mirror our personal lives. All need bone-cutting roll-backs, not “paint.”

Everybody’s got a “pet” that needs slaughtering, but says kill some other “services,” not my favorites. We’re paralyzed with fear as the golden calf of big government eats our prosperity and gnaws our liberty with flimsy promises of security and entitlement.

Thank God for the recession! As if Moses-like, the immutable laws of human existence writ in stone are coming from the mountain top. Repent from idol worship, first personally, then collectively.

We’ve amassed a wealth unseen in human history (and a tax rate as well). It’s time for a massive repair bill and a new normal. Time to look neither “right” nor “left.” Time to look in the mirror hard and long and then just maybe look “up”?

Here’s what Idaho newspapers are saying about ...

.... the mess in Arizona

Idaho Mountain Express, Ketchum

Idaho has been included on an unscientific list of ,, states hankering to copycat Arizona’s harsh immigration legislation, and indeed, Idaho Republican state Sen. Monty Pearce ... is sympathetic toward such a law. Wise heads will douse any passions for that misbegotten law in the Gem State. Idaho lawmakers will have their hands full in the 2011 session without trying to pre-empt the federal government’s authority on immigration and ultimately discovering a world of hurt. Beware. In addition to the court challenges to Senate Bill 1070 in federal court, Arizona is mired down in other crises since ideological Republican extremists took control of the state legislature and obsessed about immigration and other matters utterly unrelated to real problems of real people. Think Nero’s fiddling while Rome burned. Arizona is broke. Gov. Jan Brewer has been forced to appeal for donations on the Internet to pay legal fees in the state’s fight with the feds. Arizona sold its dome Capitol building, and then leased it back. It’s closed many state parks, cut 300,000 adults from state health care rolls (plus 47,000 children), fired scores of tax revenue auditors and thereby lost an estimated $174 million in tax collections. Arizona lawmakers that didn’t consider implications of tracking down illegal immigrants and arresting them are faced with new realizations. Detained illegal immigrants need detention facilities and jailers that aren’t available, and they’re entitled to hearings and trials that could take months or even years while they’re living as guests of the state ... Is this what Idaho’s Sen.

Pearce wants? ... supermajority hurts Idaho

Lewiston Tribune

David Frazier is a political gadfly who deserves your respect. He does not, however, deserve your vote. Frazier insisted Boise’s plan to build a new airport parking garage violated the state constitution because the city was incurring debt without getting a two-thirds voter approval Four years ago, the Idaho Supreme Court read the same Idaho Constitution that Frazier saw. It says what it says, the court agreed. But what now? Such is the question Idaho’s lawmakers have placed on the Nov. 2 ballot. Spread across three proposed constitutional amendments, voters must decide: Should it remain necessary to get a two-thirds majority before one of Idaho’s seven commercial airports can sell bonds and dedicate the fees they earn ... toward an expansion or even an economic development project? ... A handful of Idaho cities ... operate their own electrical utilities. Until a recent Supreme Court decision, those utilities purchased power from the Bonneville Power Administration in order to stabilize supplies and get the best deal for their ratepayers. Now, the court says those utilities must get a two-thirds vote every time they enter into a long-term contract. Taxpayers are not on the hook for these agreements, but if the constitution remains unchanged, municipal power companies could face paying for electricity on the open market at the most expensive rates ... What today’s airports, public hospitals and municipal electric utilities propose does not break new ground. It simply says that in matters where the private market is accountable for its investment in public-private partnerships, a third of the electorate should not have a veto. Nonetheless, passing these three amendments promises to be a tough sell. In the current political environment, voters are suspicious of government experts and financial elites. Just saying no, as Frazier suggests, is easy. Taking that path, however, leaves Idaho shackled to the 19th century while many of its competitors are firmly planted in this one.

... disinvesting in education

Idaho Statesman, Boise

Based on one set of numbers, it is a banner year on Idaho college campuses. Enrollment has reached record highs at Boise State University and Lewis-Clark State College. The University of Idaho has welcomed the second-largest freshman class in its 121-year history.

Enrollment at the College of Western Idaho is up 74 percent from fall 2009 ... Business is booming. In that sense, the enrollment figures represent an unqualified success. Until you consider another set of numbers — the budgets set by Gov. Butch Otter and the 2010 Legislature. This year’s state budget for its four-year institutions is down $48.2 million, or 11.3 percent. ... state funding for community colleges is down $1.6 million, or 6.1 percent. Not only is this pattern unsustainable, it manages to exacerbate many of the obstacles that keep Idahoans from pursuing ... a college education: • The schools have no recourse but to go to the State Board of Education to seek fee increases that outpace the rate of inflation. The fees remain low, relative to Idaho’s neighbors, but that is of little comfort to high school graduates who are still priced out of the higher-education market. • When fees and enrollment both increase, this places even more pressure on the state’s meager scholarship programs. • Class sizes will inevitably increase. Borderline students will have that much more trouble getting tutoring — and will be that much more at risk of flunking and dropping out. • Provided ... students can actually register for their core requirements. When universities have to cut back on class offerings, students will be less likely to receive their degrees in four years. Every extra semester drives up the out-of-pocket cost of college ... As Idaho colleges struggle to keep up with demand, they ... cannot create the kind of programs ... that will prepare graduates for 21st century jobs and ... attract mobile creative-class employers to Idaho. All of that will happen instead in states that believe in higher-education investment, not disinvestment ...

Mystified by Allred claims, T-N endorsement

Another voting season is almost here and I have a few thoughts on one of the candidates. This man is Keith Allred. I don’t quite understand what he is saying. He wants the job of governor, having no employment now. Seems to be just another community organizer and lobbyist. Claims to have stopped legislation on car registrations and to have reduced the taxes on home ownership. Don’t know how that is possible, since he is not now nor ever been a legislator. How did he vote for these things? I write to my representatives also, but surely I don’t think they all vote for my beliefs. And in his ad he says at 16 he was the lone hand on his grandfather’s ranch. He should be commended for spending time with his grandparents but I have eight grandkids who all come home every summer also and they all help around the farm. Should I then call them hands? And his stand on taxes is amazing. His only solution to the budget is spending and more taxes. Taking away any emption is taxation no matter how you spin it. Why can’t he and his friends at the Times-News see this? And with our economy the way it is, now is not the time for any new taxes. I just think he hates our constitutional balanced budget amendment. And for the Times-News to back this candidate, I don’t understand. Ask its employer, Lee Enterprises, if it uses its exemptions. You can refuse them, you know. MORRIS L. GREENWELL Hazelton A plea to vote for moderation on Nov. 2 The Republican Party takes Idaho voters for granted. When you’re taken for granted, you also get taken advantage of. Republicans have departed from reasonable mainstream values and become a party of special interests, contradictions and extremism. The Magic Valley lost one of the best state senators it ever had (Chuck Coiner) because he wasn’t right enough for Republican primary voters. Republican legislators have undermined our children’s and grandchildren’s futures, viciously gutting education while exempting special interests and the privileged from paying their fair share (or any share) of taxes. Idaho Republicans call for open governance, while seeking repeal of the 17th amendment, enabling backroom politicians to appoint U.S. senators. Nationally, Republicans avow strict constitutionalism, yet promote more than 40 amendments to the U.S. Constitution. In Idaho, they marginalize the State Constitution’s education mandate. The two-pronged Republican economic mantra consists of little more than calling for lower taxes for the rich and promoting the purchase of gold. If holding gold is so shrewd, why are gold venders itching to trade their gold for your dollars? What about family values? Isn’t providing for education a huge family value? Don’t we want Idaho youth and retraining adults to have access to an education that opens doors, advances prosperity and provides the ability to lead informed lives and comfortably support families? Party loyalty oaths and one-party politics guarantee a “system” that only serves the powerful, rich and connected. Lately it also seems to be guaranteeing destruction of anything remotely resembling the once reasonable party of Lincoln, Teddy Roosevelt or even Nixon and Reagan, all of whom supported many progressive policies. Shouldn’t we bring some reasonable balance to Idaho government? Please consider Stan Olson for Idaho superintendent of public instruction, Keith Allred for governor, and the many other highly qualified moderates seeking office Nov. 2. BOB SOJKA Twin Falls

Idaho gets more than $700K in settlement

Times-News

BOISE — The State of Idaho has received $702,846 from a legal settlement with AstraZeneca Pharmaceuticals LP, Attorney General Lawrence Wasden said.

Wasden’s Medicaid Fraud Control Unit joined with other states and the federal government in an agreement in April to settle allegations that AstraZeneca improperly promoted Seroquel, an antipsychotic drug.

Seroquel is used to treat certain psychological disorders. From 2001 through 2006, AstraZeneca promoted the sale and use of Seroquel for uses that the Food and Drug Administration had not approved. The settlement resolved an investigation into AstraZeneca’s promotional activities directed to psychiatrists, primary care physicians and other health care professionals for unapproved uses in the treatment of aggression, Alzheimer’s disease, anger management, anxiety, attention deficit hyperactivity disorder, dementia and sleeplessness. The settlement also resolved claims that AstraZeneca caused physicians to prescribe Seroquel for children, adolescents and dementia patients in long-term care facilities. Such uses were not medically accepted indications for which state Medicaid programs would approve reimbursement.

AstraZeneca was also alleged to have made illegal payments to physicians, paying their way to travel to resort locations to advise AstraZeneca about marketing messages for unapproved uses, to serve as authors of articles written by AstraZeneca and its agents, and to conduct studies for unapproved uses of Seroquel.

AstraZeneca agreed to pay the states and the federal government $520 million in damages and penalties to compensate Medicaid and various federal health care programs. Half of Idaho’s share of the settlement will go to the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare, Division of Medicaid, to reimburse the department for improper claims. The other half will go to the state’s general fund and will be available for appropriation by the Idaho Legislature.

A National Association of Medicaid Fraud Control Units team participated in the investigation and conducted the settlement negotiations on behalf of the settling states.

An anti-union Delta Air Lines employee holds a sign during a rally outside an employee parking lot as a Delta jet comes in to land at Hartsfield Jackson Atlanta International Airport on Wednesday in College Park, Ga. Voting has begun as 20,000 flight attendants for Delta Airlines and Northwest Airlines choose if they will be represented by the Association of Flight Attendants.

Big union votes begin at Delta Air Lines

By Joshua Freed
Associated Press writer

MINNEAPOLIS — Delta Air Lines Inc. is the only big U.S. airline that is mostly nonunion. Elections that began Wednesday give 50,000 workers a vote on whether it stays that way.

The votes are the last act of Delta’s absorption of Northwest Airlines, which it bought in 2008. Flight attendants began voting on a union Wednesday. Three groups of ground workers are expected to vote in the next few months.

This could be a turning point for Delta, where only pilots are unionized among the bigger work groups. The Atlanta company has had few labor problems compared with most major airlines — the last strike was a mechanic’s walkout in 1947. But at heavily unionized Northwest, labor relations were often combative, with two strikes since 1998.

That’s why Delta wanted to absorb the workers without their unions, and has been encouraging them to vote against organizing. The workers who came from Northwest still work under their old contracts.

Mike Campbell, Delta’s executive vice president of personal and labor relations, said money isn’t the issue. He said pay rates are generally higher at nonunion Delta than under the union contracts at Northwest. He thinks a bigger issue is that unionizing employees will change the culture at Delta.

Delta is about to become the world’s second-largest airline after United and Continental combine this week into the new No. 1. Unions have tried to make inroads at Delta before, without success. The Association of Flight Attendants-CWA failed to win enough votes to bring the union into Delta in 2008, before the Northwest deal closed.

Some Delta employees hope the result is the same this time.

Linda M. Conley of Tyrone, Ga., has been a Delta flight attendant for almost 36 years. She said she’d take a 10 percent pay cut before she’d vote for the union.

“If I had a problem, I just could walk in to my supervisor, and I know she would help me,” she said. “I just don’t know if that’s going to happen with a union. I think everything changes.”

Delta and the unions have both mounted big campaigns in recent months.

Union supporters gathered at Delta headquarters to encourage co-workers to vote for the AFA. They decried what they called harassment by Delta management about the vote.

Voting for the union will give workers a voice and “security and respect that comes with negotiating world-class contracts,” said Joan Harvey, who’s been a flight attendant for Delta for 20 years.

Other Delta workers opposed to the union gathered in a Delta parking lot near the airport.

Fed officials clash over efforts to aid economy

By Jeannine Aversa
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Divisions within the Federal Reserve over how to pump up the economy and lower unemployment came into sharper view Wednesday.

Three Fed officials squared off in competing speeches over how much help would come from one likely next step — buying more government debt.

Narayana Kocherlakota, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis, argued that such an effort may not help the economy much. Charles Plosser, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia, made a similar point.

But, Eric Rosengren, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, said Fed policymakers must do what they can to bring

The Fed delivered a strong signal last week at its meeting that it was prepared to act if the econo-

The goal is to force down rates on consumer and businesses loans even more to get Americans to boost their spending. Doing so, would help the economy.

In their speeches, Kocherlakota and Plosser expressed skepticism that quantitative easing would drive down rates nearly as much as such efforts did during the recession and financial crisis.

Because financial markets are in better shape now than during the crisis, the difference between the rates on super-safe Treasury securities and rates on other consumer and business loans has narrowed.

“I suspect that it will be somewhat more challenging for the Fed to impact them,” Kocherlakota said. “A new debt-buying program ‘would have a more muted effect,’” he concluded.

Why the pay gap between women and men persists

By Jena McGregor
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — A new Government Accountability Office report, highlighted at a Congressional hearing Tuesday morning, finds that female managers earned just 81 cents for every dollar earned by their male counterparts in 2007, compared to 79 cents in 2000. Women make up just 40 percent of this country’s managerial ranks, little changed from the 39 percent ratio in 2000. And working mothers with children under the age of 18 account for an astonishingly low 14 percent of all managers, a number that hasn’t changed since 2000.

Countless attempts have been made to explain the persistence of the wage and gender gap in management, which has hovered at around 80 cents on the dollar for so long that the number has become conventional wisdom. It’s discrimination, women’s groups say. It’s education, others argue. Women don’t negotiate well for raises, some say. Or, my personal favorite, they simply aren’t tough enough to reach the highest levels of corporate power.

The GAO report does not make an effort to explain or analyze its findings, which largely reveal that despite relative economic health (the new numbers are for 2007, remember), little has changed. But it does, for the first time, take an in-depth look at the impact of motherhood on the pay discrepancies of male and female managers, which offers revealing clues for the primary reason this perennial leadership issue remains.

Let’s take a look at the common explanations one by one.

Discrimination surely plays a role, and it’s one that shouldn’t be discounted. But years of diversity training and equal-opportunity policies have barely moved the needle on the pay-gap issue. So while discrimination’s still alive and well in many offices, it’s only one reason, and likely a small one at this point, for why the gap persists.

Education is finally out as a rationale. Last year, women earned more Ph.D.s than men for the first time. For every two men who graduate from college or receive a graduate degree, three women do, this story in Time reports. That’s the inverse of the ratio in place when the baby boomer generation headed to college. The GAO found similar improvements: among women aged 25 to 64 in the labor force, the proportion with a college degree roughly tripled from 1970 to 2008, it reports.

And yes, it’s true that few

Congress punts on tough choices until after election

By Andrew Taylor and Laurie Kellman
Associated Press writers

WASHINGTON — A deeply unpopular Congress is bolting for the campaign trail without finishing its most basic job — approving a budget for the government year that begins on Friday. Lawmakers also are postponing a major fight over taxes, two embarrassing ethics cases and other political hot potatoes until after the Nov. 2 elections.

With their House and Senate majorities on the line, Democratic leaders called off votes and even debates on all controversial matters.

“It would be one thing if you have a chance to pass something, then by all means have a vote,” Sen. Joe Lieberman, I-Conn., said Wednesday. “But it was pretty clear that it was going to be mutually assured destruction.”

It was a messy end to a session fraught with partisan fire.

“We may not agree on much, but I think with rare exception, all 100 senators want to get out of here and get back to their states,” said Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid, who is locked in a tough re-election fight against Republican Sharron Angle in Nevada.

One foot out the door, the House and Senate convened just long enough to vote on a “continuing resolution,” a stopgap measure to keep the government in operating funds for the next two months and avoid a pre-election federal shutdown.

Even that, along with passing a few minor agreed-upon bills, was expected to take into the night and possibly into Thursday.

Staying or going might seem an equally unpleasant prospect for some embattled Democrats, who are facing more than four weeks of defending unpopular votes in favor of President Barack Obama’s economic stimulus measure, health care law and uncompleted legislation for curbing global warming.

They also head home without what was supposed to be their closing argument of the campaign, an extension of Bush-era tax cuts for families making less than $250,000.

Republicans and a few Democrats urged Congress to preserve the tax cuts for all Americans, even the wealthiest. Democratic leaders opted to avoid the risk of being branded tax hikers and punted the matter until after the elections.

Republicans applied the label anyway, scolding Democrats for folding the tent without voting on extending former President George W. Bush’s tax cuts beyond their Dec. 31 expiration. A motion to adjourn upon completing routine business passed by a single vote, House Speaker Nancy Pelosi’s, after 39 Democrats joined Republicans in protest.

“If Democratic leaders leave town without stopping all of the tax hikes, they are turning their backs on the American people,” said House Minority Leader John Boehner.

NEW EARTHS?

Could ‘Goldilocks’ planet be just right for life?

By Seth Borenstein
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Astronomers say they have for the first time spotted a planet beyond our own in what is sometimes called the Goldilocks zone for life: Not too hot, not too cold. Juuuust right.

Not too far from its star, not too close. So it could contain liquid water. The planet itself is neither too big nor too small for the proper surface, gravity and atmosphere.

It’s just right. Just like Earth. “This really is the first Goldilocks planet,” said co-discoverer R. Paul Butler of the Carnegie Institution of Washington.

The new planet sits smack in the middle of what astronomers refer to as the habitable zone, unlike any of the nearly 500 other planets astronomers have found outside our solar system. And it is in our galactic neighborhood, suggesting that plenty of Earth-like planets circle other stars.

Finding a planet that could potentially support life is a major step toward answering the timeless question: Are we alone?

Scientists have jumped the gun before on proclaiming that planets outside our solar system were habitable only to have them turn out to be not quite so conducive to life. But this one is so clearly in the right zone that five outside astronomers told The Associated Press it seems to be the real thing.

“This is the first one I’m truly excited about,” said Penn State University’s Jim Kasting.

This undated artist's rendering shows a new planet, right. The planet circles a star called Gliese 581 and is about 120 trillion miles away.

He said this planet is a “pretty prime candidate” for harboring life.

Life on other planets doesn’t mean E.T. Even a simple single-cell bacteria or the equivalent of shower mold would shake perceptions about the uniqueness of life on Earth.

But there are still many unanswered questions about this strange planet. It is about three times the mass of Earth, slightly larger in width and much closer to its star — 14 million miles away versus 93 million. It’s so close to its version of the sun that it orbits every 37 days. And it doesn’t rotate much, so one side is almost always bright, the other dark.

Temperatures can be as hot as 160 degrees or as frigid as 25 degrees below zero, but in between — in the land of constant sunrise — it would be “shirt-sleeve weather,” said co-discoverer Steven Vogt of the University of California at

Santa Cruz.

It’s unknown whether water actually exists on the planet, and what kind of atmosphere it has. But because conditions are ideal for liquid water, and because there always seems to be life on Earth where there is water,

Vogt believes “that chances for life on this planet are 100 percent.”

The astronomers’ findings are being published in Astrophysical Journal and were announced by the National Science Foundation on Wednesday.

AROUND THE WORLD

BRITAIN Terror plot in Europe prompts drone strikes

LONDON — Security officials said Wednesday a terror plot to wage Mumbai-style shooting sprees or other attacks in Britain, France and Germany is still active and that recent CIA strikes in Pakistan were aimed at al-Qaida operatives suspected in the threat.

The plot was still in its early stages and not considered serious enough to raise the terror threat level, officials said. Still, the Eiffel Tower in Paris was briefly evacuated Tuesday — the second time in two weeks because of an unspecified threat — and French police were on alert.

A heavy police presence was seen Wednesday around Buckingham Palace, Trafalgar Square and Big Ben. Victoria Station was briefly evacuated after an unusual smell was reported.

“This plot was in its embryonic stages,” a British government official told The Associated Press, speaking on condition of anonymity because of the sensitivity of his work. He said the plot had preoccupied the security community more than other recent threats, but did not merit changing the security threat level from severe to critical.

JAMAICA 2 known dead, 12 missing after storm soaks Jamaica

KINGSTON — Tropical Storm Nicole caused flooding and mudslides across Jamaica on Wednesday, leaving two confirmed dead and at least 12 more missing, even as the drenching system moved north and dissipated over the Florida straits.

The outer bands of the storm hammered Jamaica, toppling bridges and knocking out power to thousands. Many streets were filled with gushing brown torrents of water, prompting Prime Minister Bruce Golding to urge people to stay indoors.

Floodwaters battered squatter communities perched uneasily on the slopes of gullies that crisscross the sprawling capital of Kingston. One slide killed a 14-year-old boy, known to his neighbors as Buju, who was found in an eddy of muddy water. The rest of his family — including four sisters, the youngest just 3-years-old — had not been found by Wednesday evening.

MEXICO 30 Gulf cartel suspects captured in north Mexico

MEXICO CITY — Mexican marines captured 30 suspected Gulf cartel members and seized an arsenal of weapons during two days of raids in a northern border state torn by drug gang battles, officials announced Wednesday.

The marines, acting on intelligence obtained by the navy and other agencies, conducted the raids in Matamoros and Reynosa, two cities across the border from Texas in the state of Tamaulipas, Rear Adm. Jose Luis Vergara said.

The troops seized more than 50 guns, two shoulder-fired rocket launchers, 21 grenades and ammunition.

The 30 suspects, including one woman, were paraded before reporters at an air base in Mexico City, handcuffed and flanked by masked marines in black-and-white combat gear. They were lined up in front of a helicopter, the arsenal of weapons laid out in front of them.

MAINE Gov. candidate: I'd tell Obama to go to hell

PORTLAND — Republican gubernatorial candidate Paul LePage told a group of fishermen at a GOP forum that he won’t be afraid to tell President Obama to “go to hell.”

LePage, a favorite of tea partiers, told The Associated Press on Wednesday that he regretted the words he chose Sunday in the small coastal town of Brooksville but that he wasn’t backing down in his criticism of the administration for what he describes as free-spending, antibusiness policies.

A Democratic Party official said it showed LePage is hotheaded and ill-suited to govern.

LePage was responding to a question when he made the remark about Obama, which was captured by a Democratic Party aide who was videotaping the event.

“As your governor, you’re going to be seeing a lot of me on the front page, saying ‘Governor LePage tells Obama to go to hell,’” LePage said to applause.

KANSAS Record number of children die in hot cars in 2010

This year of record temperatures has also led a record number of children dying in hot vehicles, according to a group that tracks such deaths.

According to the Kansas-based organization Kids and Cars, 48 children have died of hyperthermia after being left or becoming trapped in a hot car or truck. The previous record of 47 was set in 2005, says Janette Fennell, the group’s founder and president.

“I’m devastated,” Fennell said Wednesday.

The latest death was a 2-month-old girl who died Sept. 20 in Kingman, Ariz., after being left five hours in a car in 100-degree heat. Police say the girl’s father forgot the baby was in the car, went inside the house and took a shower and nap.

Fennell had waited until the results of an autopsy on two Kentucky brothers before declaring this a record year. The two boys, ages 4 and 6, died Aug. 6 after apparently climbing into their family’s pickup truck, but the cause of death was not released until this week, Kentucky State Police Detective Scott Skaggs said Wednesday.

WASHINGTON Drugs before surgery help women avoid mastectomies

Taking hormone-blocking pills for a few months before breast cancer surgery can shrink tumors and allow many women to have just the lump removed instead of the whole breast, a new study suggests.

This approach is sometimes tried now in Europe, and the study was the first large test of it in the United States. It won’t change practice right away; a second study is starting to try to repeat the results and identify which drugs work best.

Ultimately, though, this new approach could affect the care of tens of thousands of women each year with large tumors whose growth is fueled by estrogen. It might give them not just a gentler surgery option, but also may let many of them skip chemotherapy.

Before being treated with the hormone blockers, most of the women in the study were facing likely mastectomies because their tumors were too large for less drastic surgery.

“Half of them wound up having successful breast-conserving therapy,” said Dr. John Olson, breast cancer surgery chief at Duke University. “That is a huge deal.”

LBZ Racing holds fun day for youth, seeks more public awareness

By Andrew Weeks
Times-News writer

JEROME — There were no pitchforks or brimstone in sight, but there was plenty of dust at the Devil's Corral, where a handful of dirt bike fans gathered Saturday to draw the public's attention to the group's youth.

It wasn't quite the turnout that LBZ Racing founder James Allinen had hoped, but the five kids and seven adults who participated in the mini-bike and drag race and wheelie events still had a fun time.

Fourteen-year-old Rachell Allinen was all smiles after a two-lap timed race on the 3/4-mile youth bike track.

"It was hard. I slid a couple of times," she said. Her time: 3:33.

Cash and other prizes were given away for winners in the various events. Members of the Jerome Lady Tigers, a freshman volleyball team, volunteered their time helping out Saturday, and a few of them even participated in the mini-bike race. Adventure motorsports, Poindexters, WinCo and other area businesses helped sponsor the fun day.

Fun aside, it would have been nice to have seen more community involvement. After all, Allinen said, it was for a good cause Allinen sponsors youth desert riders through the LBZ logo he and wife Janie created. But the group is more than just about racing. Events like the one Saturday offer positive, self-esteem-building experiences for the kids.

Allinen said he's seen how the experiences have helped his own children. Since learning to ride dirt bikes and participating in activities, they've done better in school and have taken more responsibility around the house.

Doing something that builds confidence also is a good way to encourage kids to live a healthy lifestyle and stay away from drugs.

Allinen says he eventually would like to open a youth center that'd offer counseling, tutors, and bring more awareness about the ill-effects of drugs. It'd be the first of its kind, he said.

"It'd be something akin to the Boys and Girls club or the YMCA but with a motocross theme," Allinen said.

Of course, it all depends on funding; the group currently is trying to get grant status.

He appreciates area businesses that so far have helped, and aims to keep building relationships in south-central Idaho.

"It's nice to get out with friends just having a good time," said Brent Mort of Twin Falls. Though not a member of LBZ, Mort, 29, volunteered his time Saturday to help the kids. Riding behind them on his own bike, he made sure he was there if any of them had problems on the track.

"The more support we can get from the community, the more events we can have," he said. "It's a good way for parents to spend time with their kids."

Allinen, in an e-mail he sent to the Times-News on Sunday, shared that the experience Saturday allowed him to meet old friends and make new ones.

"We also gained experience towards putting on some more events in the future," he wrote. "What touched me the most about the whole day was having the Jerome Lady Tigers ... out there helping us put on the event. It was exciting for me because they knew about the team but were not aware that our mission was to raise drug awareness. So we had the privilege of teaching them and their families when they came to pick them up."

"All the JLT girls (were) very proud of themselves to be part of such a good cause and performed at their best."

Two Idahoans to be inducted into Motorcycle Hall of Fame

Times-News

Come November, two life-long off-road fans will be inducted into the Motorcycle Hall of Fame. What's more, these folks — Clark Collins and John Gregory — are from Idaho.

Off-road fans will recognize the name Collins, of Pocatello, who has a long and distinguished history as an advocate for the rights of dirt bike and other off-highway vehicle riders. Collins built regional and national coalitions among trail users and played an instrumental role in the passage of a federal law that dedicated user-paid monies for trail funding nationwide.

"I'm amazed to be inducted," Collins said. "Looking at all the people in the Motorcycle Hall of Fame, I feel really honored to be on that list. We're not used to getting trophies, and we don't get to stand up and be recognized for going fast, so this is really great."

Collins first caught the motorcycling bug in 1962 while serving in the Navy in Rome, Italy. When he returned home, he started riding and racing cross-country. When he saw local riding areas threatened with closure in the 1980s, Collins focused his energies on advocacy for OHV riders. His concern about trail closures led to the creation in 1987 of the BlueRibbon Coalition, a national non-profit organization dedicated to protecting responsible recreational access to public lands.

Although Collins retired as executive director of the BlueRibbon Coalition in 2006, he took up the cause again in 2009 and currently serves as president of the Idaho State ATV Association.

Gregory and his wife Rita in 1970 created JT Racing USA in San Diego. The company produced innovative motocross gear for two decades. Under the Gregorys' leadership, JT Racing sponsored just about every big-name motocross rider of the 1970s and '80s, including Hall of Famers Marty Smith, Marty Tripes, Ricky Johnson, David Bailey, Bob Hannah, Johnny O'Mara, Jeff Ward and Broc Glover.

"The Gregorys changed how motocross riding gear was manufactured and marketed," said Glover, one of the leading motocross racers in America at the time. "They brought style to the sport and sponsored powerhouse riders. They were the industry leaders, and set the benchmark for other apparel companies."

"I had a lot fun doing that," said Gregory, who now resides in McCall. "I met a lot of nice people, saw a lot of nice places, and I had a great crew. It wasn't just Rita and me. We probably owe nearly all of our success to our riders. It was a bunch of other incredible people, too."

Both John and Rita, along with Collins, will be inducted into the Hall of Fame on Nov. 19 at the Red Rock Casino Resort and Spa in Las Vegas. The event kicks off the three-day AMA Legends & Champions Weekend, which also will feature the 2010 Motorcycle Hall of Fame Concours d'Elegance on Nov. 20.

Officials remind hunters to stay on designated trails

Times-News

BOISE — Officials with the Idaho Off-Highway Vehicle Public Outreach Campaign remind people who use all-terrain vehicles or motorbikes during hunting season to stay on designated trails and to ensure the trails they plan to ride are open.

Officials with the U.S. Forest Service, Bureau of Land Management and Idaho Department of Fish and Game say that hunters riding off-trail on ATVs or motorbikes continue to be a problem on public lands during hunting season.

“We are most concerned with instances where a hunter drives off-trail to scout for game or retrieve game,” said Forest Service spokesman Andy Brunelle. “One set of tracks through the brush or in a meadow can invite others to do the same, and the impacts add up, damaging vegetation and causing soil erosion into streams.”

According to several surveys, more than half of the approximately 240,000 people who hunt in Idaho — residents and non-residents — during the fall months are use motorbikes or ATVs to access their hunting areas.

The Boise, Payette, Sawtooth, Caribou-Targhee and Salmon-Challis national forests have completed travel management plans and have published MVUM’s to indicate what trails and roads are open or closed during the fall hunting seasons. The Nez Perce, Clearwater and Panhandle national forests are still working on travel management plans before they can publish final MVUM’s.

BLM officials encourage hunters to check Travel Management Maps for BLM districts to see if the trails or roads they plan to use are open or closed. The BLM maps are available online on BLM district office web sites and hard-copies are available at district offices.

Hunters also should check Idaho Fish and Game regulations to check on trail or road restrictions in their hunting areas. The Idaho OHV Public Outreach Project produced a YouTube video that helps explain how to sort through MVUM maps and Fish and Game regulations to see if trails are open or closed.

Jon Heggen, enforcement chief for Fish and Game, encourages motorbike and ATV riders to be sensitive to the fact that some people may be hunting on foot in the same area where they are riding their trail machine.

“We want to remind hunters to stay on trails and be courteous to other users,” Heggen said.

Idaho OHV campaign officials recommend that hunters check out 10 hunting tips on stayon-trails.com to make sure they have a safe and legal hunting season. Idaho Fish and Game also has a brochure that reviews motor vehicle and ATV regulations pertinent to hunting.

Barth Crouch, right, shows Benjamin Thomas how to tell the age and gender of a prairie chicken after hunting, Sept 24 in Ellsworth County, Kan.

Prairie chicken season gives hunters a chance to stretch their legs

By Michael Pearce
McClatchy Newspapers

ELLSWORTH COUNTY, Kan. — Barth Crouch has hunted prairie chickens for more than 40 years. He's dealt with them professionally as a biologist for about 30.

Friday morning, he headed to pastures with some of the best greater prairie chicken populations in Kansas, where he'd hunted successfully many times through the years.

Still, he took two ministers with him to up his odds.

“Hey, with prairie chickens you just never know,” he joked with his friends Benjamin Thomas and Leroy Pralle.

Crouch is one of the few Kansas hunters who take advantage of the Sept. 15 to Oct. 15 season for prairie chickens in the eastern half of Kansas. Unlike the traditional season later in the year, when most hunting is done by pass-shooting at feed fields, the early season gives hunters a chance to stretch their legs on the tall grass prairie.

“Some may be flying back and forth to grain, but I’m guessing a lot are still staying out here eating grasshoppers,” Crouch said as the trio walked from their trucks at about 8 a.m. “They’ve got everything they need out here this time of the year.”

Simply walking until birds are flushed can be a feathered needle in a haystack kind of thing in sprawling tall grass country. Crouch mostly walks the ridges where he’s seen or heard them in the spring.

“They go to their leks (breeding grounds) in the fall like they do in the spring,” Crouch said. “At least the males do, and they’ll do some displaying. I’ve also seen some juvenile hens around those areas, too.”

Why the males go to the traditional breeding grounds when there are no adult hens to breed isn’t totally known. One theory is the amount of daylight matches what they find in March and April so they’re fooled into thinking it’s time to dance.

Pralle let his two dogs, Wishbone and Raisin, loose and the hunters headed north. Wishbone is a German wire-haired pointer and Raisin a wirehair/giant schnauzer cross.

Crouch warned Thomas, on his first prairie chicken walk, to expect the unexpected and promised things wouldn’t go perfectly.

“If anything can go wrong on a prairie chicken hunt, it probably will,” Crouch said as he took long steps into the pasture.

Fifteen minutes from the trucks, his point was proven when a bird flushed to his left. Crouch’s .410 went “click” instead of “boom” as the shell didn’t fire.

“Figures,” he said as he examined the shell’s dented primer. “That would have been a pretty easy shot.”

He predicted the birds would be atop the grazed ridges, trying to stay out of the thick grass in the bottoms still soaked from earlier rains.

A bird eventually flushed from thick grass at the very bottom of a canyon, catching Pralle off guard and he missed.

“I sure wasn’t expecting him there,” said the hunter who’s known for his good shooting.

An hour into the hunt, a young male prairie chicken flushed in front of Crouch and he shot it at about 30 yards with his .410.

The group headed to another pasture and toward another lek where Crouch had found birds many times. They were there, but spooked 200 yards from the hunters when a herd of wild-eyed cattle ran through the area. A half-mile farther, four prairie chickens flushed near Crouch and he shot one that filled his daily limit of two. Up and down steep canyons and across long ridges, the hunters walked the mile-plus back toward their trucks. Pralle was off working an area while Crouch, his gun unloaded, walked with Thomas.

A spot that should have birds didn’t. Four flushed where they hadn’t been before.

They held well, letting the hunters get within about 10 yards before they flushed one at a time, heading in different directions.

Thomas looked on one bird and tried a shot at about 40 yards while two others were at half that distance. He couldn’t get his single-shot reloaded until the birds were well out of range.

Crouch chuckled at the event, telling Thomas that was about as pretty of a flush as you can hope for when walking the big pastures.

“You can walk a long time and never get into something like that,” Crouch said.

You just never know with prairie chickens.

Upcoming outdoor events in south-central Idaho

Youth to hunt pheasants Saturday

The 2010 Mini-Cassia Youth Pheasant Hunt is 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday at Old Burley Landfill Access Area, 650 S. 150 E., Burley.

The goal of the event is to introduce youth hunters to the sport of pheasant hunting.

Safety and hunting ethics will be the main focus of the event, and class members will participate in morning and afternoon events. A biology/habitat station will be on site as well as a clay pigeon range; 20-gauge shotguns and ammunition will be provided, as will lunch and refreshments.

All participants need to have completed a hunter safety course.

For more information: Fish and Game at 324-4359.

Gun club plans events

The Jerome Gun Club will hold sporting clays shoots on Saturday and on Sunday Oct. 17.

These are 100-target events. If you have never shot sporting clays at Jerome Gun Club, your first 50 targets are free. Cost is $20 for adults, $14 for under age 18. There is a $5 charge for non-members. Sign up is at 9 a.m., shooting begins at 10 a.m.

The club is located 11 miles north of the junction of highway 93 and Interstate 84 at mile marker 64.

Club info: www.jeromegunclub.com.

Change in M.V. motorized restrictions

Idaho Fish and Game off-highway vehicle restrictions have been removed in two game management units in the Magic Valley Region.

Earlier this year, the Idaho Fish and Game Commission removed Fish and Game’s motorized vehicle use restrictions in units 48 and 57. But existing U.S. Forest Service and Bureau of Land Management motorized travel regulations remain in effect.

To learn more about Fish and Game’s motorized vehicle rule and where it applies: <http://fishandgame.idaho.gov/cms/hunt/atv/atv.pdf>.

MV ATV Riders to meet

The Magic Valley ATV Riders will meet at 6 p.m. Oct. 13 at Idaho Pizza, 1859 Kimberly Road, Twin Falls.

A no-host dinner will begin at 6 p.m., with club meeting to follow at 7 p.m. Guest speaker will be Max Yingst, recreation planner with the Bureau of Land Management’s Jarbidge Field Office, who’ll discuss the office’s recently released Resource Management Plan.

For more information, including upcoming club rides: Stan Mai at 733-5981 or www.mvatvr.org.

Taking the road less traveled

By Carrie Steinweg
Northwest Indiana Times

Are you an adventurous soul who likes to think outside the box, color outside the lines and ride off-road?

You may want to consider a trip out to the Badlands Off-Road Park in Attica, Ind., about 30 minutes southwest of Lafayette.

The privately-owned 800-acre multidirectional park offers a variety of terrain that will satisfy beginners up to the most experienced off-road drivers. A combination of wooded and sand dune areas, Badlands offers the best of both worlds for those who want to take the road less traveled in their SUV, dirt bike or ATV.

The park is open year round and in winter months, snowmobiles can be brought into the park. Regular hours for the facility are from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., but in the summer months closing time is extended to 6 p.m. on Friday and Saturday.

The attached Attica Family Campground is a convenient site for an extended trip.

There is park access from the campground, which allows you to drive back and forth without exiting the campground. “There are also emergency procedures in place, so it’s a lot safer than going somewhere where there isn’t anyone around,” said owner Kyle Noss.

A concession stand is available in the park, but food can also be brought in, except for alcohol, which is prohibited on the grounds. There’s also a shop and retail facility on site carrying parts for SUVs, ATVs and dirt bikes.

“We do our best to try to have parts for people, so if they break something we try to get them back out so their day or weekend isn’t ruined,” Noss said.

“The biggest thing that we like to say is unique is that the park has a very diverse type of terrain,” he said. “We’re very privileged in having the woods, which is a very East Coast environment and the sand dunes to get a taste of out West. And we pride ourselves to being a friendly environment.”

Barth Crouch of Salina, Kan., enjoys the early fall season for prairie chickens. He walks pastures in the Smoky Hills to flush the birds.

Mike Hoops made his first trip to Montana to hunt elk in 1997 and began guiding for an outfitter in 2006. This will be his fifth season as a guide for Wilderness Connections in Gardiner, Mont.

Hoops, 62, retired as manager of Minnesota's Crosby-Manitou State Park and previously served as park manager at Tettegouche State Park.

"I love hunting in Minnesota, but I really love the mountains," Hoops said. "It's so much bigger in scale, and, of course, it's the opportunity to hunt elk. But it's also the things you see — you're seeing grizzlies, you're seeing mountain goats and full-curl rams. It's the diversity."

The Duluth News Tribune asked Hoops to share some thoughts about western elk hunting:

Question: Should a hunter use the services of an outfitter or hunt on his own?

Answer: It all depends on their level of expertise and how much time they have to invest in it. With the Internet, hunters have more options than they used to. They can do map searches. Every state has its way to find a place to hunt.

But if you have time constraints, or you're the kind of person who wants to jump on a plane, have someone pick you up, if you have a week off and five days to hunt, that's when it's imperative to book a hunt.

Q: How much does a guided, weeklong hunt with an outfitter run?

A: It'll vary from state to state, unit to unit. Probably a five-day guided hunt, with accommodations, is in the $3,500 to $5,000 range. There are always people willing to make deals, especially in this economy.

Q: What are some tips for choosing an outfitter?

A: Don't just call someone you read about in a magazine. It's like a marriage. It's a short-term marriage. You're living in each other's faces for five days. Call several. Check references. That's imperative. Talk to them in person. There are a lot of folks who don't have the best intentions. The respectable ones will have a list (of references) for you to call.

Q: How much does physical conditioning matter in a western elk hunt?

A: I always remind hunters: We're going to make this as tough or as easy as you want. It's harder to get into areas where elk are hanging out. Be in the best physical condition you can be in. Even if you haven't started until Sept. 1, six weeks of walking and working out on machines will give you a lot of conditioning.

Q: What kind of expectations should a hunter have?

A: They need to look at the number of licenses sold and the number of kills. It's (success rate) typically one in four, one in five. And we're not all going to be able to kill a 400-inch (Boone and Crockett scoring system) bull. What's a trophy to you?

Q: What's the biggest problem you have with your hunting clients?

A: It's the lack of physical conditioning.

The Minnesota hunters are more aware of it, but we get a lot of eastern hunters who have physical difficulties that they minimize while they're booking the hunt.

Q: What elevations can a hunter expect to reach?

A: In Montana, we're at 6,200 feet and we hunt up to 9,000. In Colorado, you camp at 9,000 and hunt to 12,000.

Q: How much shooting should a person do before the trip?

A: I know ammunition is very expensive, but it doesn't hurt to spend extra time on the bench making sure the rifle is going to shoot straight. Zero your rifle at 250 to 300 yards. If you shoot a bolt-action rifle, practice with a .22-caliber bolt-action (to save on ammunition). Muscle memory in shooting is important, especially for quick shots where you just get that glimpse. Same with an archery hunter. Shooting six arrows every day will do more than shooting 50 on Sunday.

Q: How much does rifle size matter?

A: Anything from .270 (caliber) up is good. A .300 short mag is a good gun, or a .30-06. Shot placement counts a lot more than having a big gun.

Q: How about clothing?

A: You need good-quality clothing, a quiet outer layer, and bring enough stuff. Your clothing should be wicking. Dress in layers. Make sure you have plenty of clothes so you can change 'em out. It can be 70 during the day, and the next day a front will be blowing with a blizzard, and you're wading through 10 inches of snow. Have good boots, well broken in, and have them to match varying conditions.

Q: How about applying for a license?

A: Application in Montana is by March 15. In Colorado, it's April. Wyoming is earlier. Your outfitter should be working to help you get your application in. In Montana, you can get a guaranteed license if you hunt with an outfitter. Otherwise, you can put in for the lottery. In Montana, you typically draw a general tag every other year. But there are units you may not be able to hunt.

Q: Does a hunter need to have passed a firearms safety course?

A: Depending on your age, you may need firearms safety. All the states vary by when the cut-off date is. Make sure you've got that taken care of.

Idaho Power grants youth a hunt of a lifetime

A dream came true for a 13-year-old boy recently, thanks to Idaho Power, which hosted a "hunt of a lifetime" Sept. 17 at its Daly Creek Wildlife Habitat property in Richland, Ore.

Justin Jacobson of Peoria, Ariz., took his shot to bag a bull elk as part of a special hunt arranged just for him by the company and Hunt of a Lifetime, a nonprofit organization that grants hunting and fishing trips for children with life-threatening illnesses. Justin beat a terminal diagnosis and is recovering from liver cancer after a life-saving transplant late last year.

"I'm excited to come here and get a big bull, come here and go hunting and experience the hunt," he said just before his big day.

Justin, along with his dad and grandpa, arrived in Boise and then traveled to Baker City, Ore., where they met Clay McEnroe of HOAL. The crew was joined by Idaho Power staff later in the day, including Environmental Supervisor Brett Dumas, who was instrumental in making the Daly Creek hunt happen.

The excitement was palpable early Friday morning as the group set out on the hunt.

"We feel very fortunate to get this hunt, to be able to hunt on the Idaho Power land, to be able to just come up here and experience this with him," Justin's dad Kevin said. "It's an amazing thing. I mean, a year ago I didn't think we'd be here because of everything that happened."

The group of six men, comprised of Justin's family and HOAL volunteers, hiked for hours across the scrubby, sometimes rugged terrain of Daly Creek.

Eventually, everything fell into place. The bull was spotted. Justin took his shot. A clean kill was made. Justin bagged a six point bull estimated at 750 pounds.

Need-to-know info about fish salvage

Q: "I was talking to my buddy about the fish salvage season coming up below Magic Reservoir. He told me it's not open to salvage unless the Fish and Game 'officially' opens it up to salvage. I thought once the dam was shut down, it automatically opened up for salvage and that you didn't need a fishing license. Who's right?"

A: Your buddy is correct. The Idaho Department of Fish and Game must go through an official process to rescind angling rules and allow fish salvage each and every time a salvage order is granted.

"No salvage of fish from public waters will be allowed without specific Commission order or without authorization from the Director or the Regional Supervisor," reads "Fish Salvage" under the Fish and Game Commission Rule IDAPA 13.01.11.346. There is no automatic salvage below Magic Dam once the dam is closed and the irrigation water is shut off.

This rule goes on to rescind usual possession limits and allows anglers to utilize snagging, spearing, archery, dip-nets, seines or bare hands to take fish. Toxic chemicals, explosives, firearms and electricity remain prohibited. A fishing license is always required to participate in the fish salvage (36-401 Idaho Code).

The department often issues salvage orders in dewatered streams and irrigation systems when fish survival is not likely. It only makes sense to allow anglers to harvest the doomed fish instead of letting them waste. If there is a reasonable chance most of them could survive in a low or dewatered area, a salvage order might not be issued.

ASK THE OFFICER

In the Big Wood River below Magic Dam, fish can often survive even after the dam is shut off, since there is still water flowing through the system (seepage through the dam and springs) and a lot of deep holes in the river below the dam.

Formerly, the department has issued salvage orders in the Big Wood River when Magic Dam is shut down during the heat of summer and when dissolved oxygen levels plummet. In the last few years, a salvage order has only been issued in a portion of the river below the Richfield Canal and not in the river from the Richfield Canal Diversion up to Magic Dam.

How do you know if there is a salvage order in place? Fish and Game lists each salvage order in the Legal Notice section of the newspaper and on the department website. The quickest way is to contact your regional office.

Questions: Magic Valley Regional Office at 324-4350 or e-mail through the Fish and Game website at <http://fish-handgame.idaho.gov>.

Seminar will cover end-of-life concerns

By Judy Albertson
Times-News writer

University of Idaho Extension and AARP will co-host a seminar Oct. 9 at the Historic Wilson Theatre in Rupert, focused on helping people prepare for end-of-life matters.

The “Secure Your Future” seminar starts at 8:30 a.m. and is free to the public. It includes a complimentary meal. The registration deadline is Tuesday.

“We did this in Twin Falls last year, but this is the first time we have done this program in the Mini-Cassia area,” said Lyle Hansen, Jerome County Extension educator. “I grew up in Rupert, so I love to bring things like this to that area.” Hansen said many Idaho residents die without a will or an advance health care directive, and numerous people just never get around to making specific legal arrangements to protect their survivors. Others don’t want to discuss end-of-life issues with family members.

Some mistakenly believe their property will automatically pass on to their heirs without complications, that their assets have to be of a certain value before being affected by a tax liability, that estate planning isn’t important for young parents, or that preparing wills and important documents is too costly to be worthwhile.

“This seminar should be of special interest to seniors and people looking toward retirement,” Hansen said. “It’s a great opportunity to get this kind of setting.”

Scheduled topics and instructors include:

- Organize Your Important Papers, taught by Marilyn Bischoff, U of I Extension specialist.
- Advance Health Care Directives, taught by Karen Martinat, LMSW, of Visions Hospice Inc. in Twin Falls.

- Prepare: Advice from an Attorney by Twin Falls attorney Dennis Voorhees.

“We have so much at stake regarding these things. Now is the chance to get some decisions made so you can go on to other things,” Hansen said.

Corn maze is back at CSI

A new and larger corn maze has been created this year by the College of Southern Idaho Horticulture Program. It will be open from 5 to 10 p.m. every evening in October.

The new 12-acre field, located behind CSI’s new Health Sciences and Human Services building on North College Road, is more than twice the size of the field at the corner of North College and Washington Street North that has served as CSI’s corn maze for the last several years. The paths through the field now total nearly two miles. Customers are strongly encouraged to bring flashlights for nighttime visits.

Four CSI clubs will work at the maze this year. Joining the Horticulture Club will be the Latinos Unidos, Judo and Equine clubs. Cadets from CSI’s law enforcement program will provide security. The students will sell tickets and food, including hot dogs, hamburgers, nachos, hot chocolate, cider, soft drinks and candy. A warming fire will also be available at the maze entrance.

Tickets are $2 for adults and $1 for students, with family tickets for $5 on Monday evenings. School and other daytime groups can make reservations for the maze for a minimum of $50 by calling Dave Kiesig’s office at 732-6431. All proceeds will go to CSI student club activities and expenses.

Customers are encouraged to park in the health building parking lot. An overflow area will be available in the graveled area just east of that lot.

Maze visitors on Tuesdays, Fridays, and Saturdays will be provided $1 off coupons to see “Anthems of Ghoulish Delight” or other shows at the Faulkner Planetarium during the month of October.

Not much remained of Clayton Wages' barn and shop after a haystack caught fire Aug. 7 and flames leapt to the buildings.

Replacing what the flames stole

Benefit will help replace barn, feed

By Judy Albertson
Times-News writer

While many enjoyed the rodeo at the Minidoka County Fair on Aug. 7, few were aware of the fireworks going on at Clayton and Andrea Wages’ farm south-east of Heyburn.

Now, the Wages’ friends and family plan to host a Clayton and Andrea Barn Building Benefit to help them recover from the devastating fire that consumed their barn and shop.

The event will be at 7 p.m. Saturday at the Rupert Elks Lodge, 85 S.

200 W. Rupert. There will be a $10 spaghetti dinner followed by a live auction, as well as a silent auction. Merv May will be the auctioneer.

Fire crews and the Wages themselves had fought to save their property last month.

A spark from a nearby burn pile was picked up by a passing dust storm and drifted into a haystack. The Wages’ neighbor, Dale Avery, saw the flames and called 911. The Heyburn Fire Department got the call at 6:12 p.m. and arrived on scene at 6:21 p.m., by which time the fire had leapt from the haystack to the nearby barn and shop.

Clayton and his son-in-law, Derek Severe, had cattle penned under the shed. One calf was unable to escape the flames and died from smoke inhalation.

Another Holstein calf was singed on one side, earning him the name “Marshmallow.” The remaining cows had minor injuries and made a full recovery.

Animals were not the only ones affected by the fire. Because of the size and intensity of the flames, the Rupert Fire Department also responded. Firefighters Bobby Nevaro of Rupert and Randall Keeter of Heyburn both had to be taken by ambulance to the hospital where they were treated and released.

Clayton Wages himself was injured attempting to keep the fire away from his 1,000-gallon propane tank used to heat his house, for fear of losing his home. He suffered minor burns on his face and arm.

The fire was a stubborn one. After initially quelling the blaze, firefighters had to be called back again later that evening when a chicken coop reignited and flames started up again in the haystack.

Andrea Wages later said the haystack smoldered for eight to 10 days. The Wages lost an estimated 20 tons of hay meant for livestock feed this winter, along with tack, hunting supplies, childhood antiques, family heirlooms, tools and fencing supplies, among other items.

Though many of those items can never be replaced, the organizers of Saturday’s benefit said they hope to help the Wages replace their barn and maybe buy more feed.

Members of the public unable to make it to the event can donate to a benefit account set up at Key Bank or contact Brooke Genzmer, 731-0817.

Ketchum library to receive ‘Esto Perpetua’ award

The Jeanne Lane Moritz Regional History Department at the Community Library in Ketchum will be one of six recipients of the “Esto Perpetua” award for outstanding accomplishments in preserving Idaho’s heritage at the Idaho State Historical Society’s annual luncheon and awards celebration, on Oct. 7 at the Idaho State Historical Museum. Tickets are $30 and must be reserved by Friday.

Named in honor of Moritz — a founding member of the Community Library — the Regional History Department has worked to preserve and promote an understanding of the land and people of Idaho since 1982. The library collects, preserves, interprets and makes accessible its oral histories, documents, photographs and other materials on the history of Idaho and of the Wood River Valley.

The “Esto Perpetua” award, — named for the state motto, which translates to “let it be perpetual,” — began in 1999 to honor individuals or groups for professional accomplishments, public service, volunteerism and philanthropy related to preserving Idaho’s heritage.

Jerome firefighters: Smoke alarms vital

“Smoke Alarms: A Sound You Can Live With!” is the theme for this year’s Fire Prevention Week campaign, Sunday through Oct. 9, whose local supporters include the Jerome City Fire Department.

The National Fire Protection Association has officially sponsored the week for 88 years.

In Jerome, the fire department will mark the week with a poster coloring contest at elementary schools, with the winners recognized at Tuesday’s City Council meeting. There will also be an open house and pancake breakfast starting at 9 a.m. on Oct. 9 at Station 2, 110 W. Yakima St. Residents will be able to learn more about the power of smoke alarms and newer options to install and maintain them, among other lessons.

NFPA statistics show that working smoke alarms cut the chance of dying in a fire nearly in half, but only if they’re working properly. The association states many homes have smoke alarms that aren’t working or maintained properly, usually because of missing, disconnected or dead batteries.

Monaghan completes basic training

Navy Seaman Recruit Jake K. Monaghan, son of Wyndie G. Redman of Declo and Pete M. Monaghan of Emmett, recently completed U.S. Navy basic training at Recruit Training Command, Great Lakes, Ill.

The capstone event of boot camp is “Battle Stations.” This exercise gives recruits the skills and confidence they need to succeed in the fleet. It is designed to galvanize the basic warrior attributes of sacrifice, dedication, teamwork and endurance in each recruit through the practical application of basic Navy skills and the core values of honor, courage and commitment. Its distinctly Navy flavor is designed to take into account what it means to be a sailor.

Monaghan is a 2009 graduate of Kuna High School.

North Side Center holds career day

The College of Southern Idaho’s North Side Center will hold a career counseling day on Oct. 14 at its campus in Gooding. The day will consist of two workshops to help people focus their job search and move forward productively:

- 9:30 a.m. to noon: Individuals can investigate what kinds of jobs fit their talents and personalities. Participants will discuss job options in a small group with a facilitator, and then take several online inventories that will help them assess their interests and possible job matches.

- 1 to 3:30 p.m.: Individuals will learn helpful tips for the job search process, such as how to prepare a resumé and how to present a strong interview.

Individuals can register for one or both workshops. Both are free, though advance registration is required.

October classes at CSI North Side Center

New classes at the College of Southern Idaho’s North Side Center include:

- “QuickBooks 1,” where students will learn to organize and manage their business finances with QuickBooks.

This course, instructed by Bonnie Marshall, CPA, will include information on setting up company books; entering typical customer, vendor and payroll transactions; and how to reconcile bank and credit card accounts.

The course will meet from 6:30 to 9 p.m. on Wednesdays, Oct. 6 to 20, at the CSI North Side Center. The course fee is $75.

- “Knit One, Felt Too!” taught by Pat Hamilton, will meet from 7 to 9 p.m. Mondays and Tuesdays, Oct. 12-26, at the North Side Center.

First, students will knit an oversized bag using wool yarn. The instructor will teach students the basic stitches, sizing and how to prepare for the felting process. Then the project will be put in the washing machine, where it will transform into a smaller bag with a smooth, firm appearance. Class fee is $25 plus supplies, which can be purchased from the instructor at the first class session. Deadline for registration is Oct. 8.

- “Taking Better Photographs with Your Point-and-Shoot Digital Camera,” taught by Rod Mathis, will meet from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Oct. 16 at the North Side Center. The class fee is $35.

Mathis will help students decode the various modes of operation such as manual, sports, nighttime, close-up, and action, and the use of the built-in flash. Students will also learn what ISO and white balance settings are for and how to use them. Bring your compact, fixed-lens camera and its manual to class.

- “Crocheted Rag Rugs,” taught by June Peterson, will meet from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Wednesdays, Oct. 6-20, at the center.

Using recycled bed sheets, Peterson will lead students through the process of crafting these unique rugs that will add colorful, durable accents to their homes.

Students must bring a size N or Q crochet hook, two to three used cotton or blend sheets, scissors, and needle and thread. A basic knowledge of crochet is required. The three-session course fee is $24.

- “Pinch, Coil and Fire Away!” taught by Jillian Greenawalt, will meet from 2 to 3:30 p.m. Fridays, Oct. 8-22, at the Green Goat Paint & Pottery, 121 Third Ave. E., Gooding.

In this class, students in first through third grade will make a pinch pot, a coil pot, a mask and clay impressions with the help of instructor Jillian Greenawalt. She’ll explain how she fires projects in her kiln, and projects will be out of the kiln and ready for painting and glazing at the second class session.

The course fee of $30 includes all supplies. Space is limited.

To register for any of these courses: 934-8678 or visit 202 14th Ave. E. in Gooding.

Barbara L. Dalry

RUPERT — Barbara Lorraine Dalry passed away Tuesday, Sept. 28, 2010, at her home in Rupert alongside her family. At the time of her death, Barbara was 74 years old.

Barbara was the firstborn child of Edward and Blanche Plocher and was born at the home of her grandmother, Alice Fenstermaker, on March 14, 1936, in Idaho, in the Emerson District of Minidoka County. Barbara was baptized as an infant and later confirmed at 14 years of age at the Trinity Lutheran Church in Rupert. Barbara's grandparents, Edward Plocher Sr. and Magdalena Dietz Plocher, were charter members of the Lutheran Church Missouri Synod when it originated in Minidoka County out at Adelaide.

Barbara's family resided in a home north of Rupert, where Barbara grew up helping with the farm, the animals and the dairy operation. Barbara attended Pioneer and Lincoln Elementary schools and was a graduate of Rupert High School, Class of 1954. While working on the family farm and living at their home in Rupert, Barbara first met the love of her life, Charles John Dalry Jr., who was also working on the farm nearby. Barbara and Chuck dated while Barbara was still in high school, continuing their courtship after her graduation. Charles J. Dalry and Barbara L. Plocher were married Oct. 24, 1954, at the Trinity Lutheran Church, with the Rev. J.C. Westerdorf officiating at the wedding ceremony. The Dalrys celebrated their 55th wedding anniversary last October and would have celebrated their 56th year in this next month. Barbara was the loving mother of two daughters. The first daughter was born in January 1957 and was named Sheryl Ann. The second daughter born in February 1961 was named Pamela Kay.

Surviving is her spouse of Rupert, Charles J. Dalry; and her daughters, Sheryl Dalry Harris (Kevin Harris) of Rupert and Pamela K. Jensen (Vern Jensen) of Surprise, Ariz. Survivors also include her grandchildren, Michelle Harris Pierson (Joe Pierson) of Mendon, Utah, Melanie Harris Gillette (Zack Gillette) of Burley, Alan Motley of Twin Falls and Jason Motley of Salt Lake City, Utah. The surviving great-grandchildren are Alex and Aubrey Pierson and Mya and Zia Gillette. Survivors also include her sister, Shirley Plocher Tucker of Paul; and her brother, Earl Plocher of Rupert. Preceding in death are her parents, Edward and Blanche Plocher, as well as her maternal and paternal grandparents.

Barbara taught Sunday school and was a lifetime member and parishioner of the Trinity Lutheran Church in Rupert. Barbara was also a lifetime resident of Minidoka County, living in Rupert with her husband, Chuck, until the time of her death. She loved living in Idaho and specifically being a part of this wonderful community. Barbara enjoyed being a wife and a mother, considering being a homemaker as her greatest accomplishment. Barbara and Chuck started their own electrical business in 1968 and, until 1992, she served as the secretary/treasurer for Dalry Electric Inc., where she conducted the secretarial work and accounting for the corporation. Barbara enjoyed the many business acquaintances and friendships that were made through their electrical, heating, ventilation and cooling business. Even though she no longer worked on a daily basis, she was interested in the business as it continues to service the Magic Valley area with the second generation at the helm. The Mini-Cassia area provided hours of enjoyment for the Dalry family as they shared time together making memories while they enjoyed water-skiing, swimming and snow skiing. Barbara and Chuck also enjoyed taking their family camping and fishing as well. Many memories with friends and relatives were made on these adventures. Barbara loved gardening and was accomplished at bottling, canning and preserving fruits and vegetables.

Music was a critical element in Barbara's life, and the family attended many performances together throughout her lifetime. She assisted with the Mini-Cassia Community Concert Committee and also the Burley-Rupert Knife and Fork Club. The highlight for Barbara and Chuck was their annual trip to the Jazz Festival held in Sun Valley, each year in October. They loved the concerts and programs from the Mini-Cassia Community Concerts and Barbara was able to attend one last concert prior to her stroke which she enjoyed thoroughly. Barbara and Chuck also loved attending the local plays and drama presentations. Barbara was instrumental with the costuming and design for clothing necessary for her husband, Chuck, to be Tevye in "Fiddler on the Roof." She loved doing anything alongside her husband, Chuck! She valued each moment spent with her children and grandchildren. Family was a priority to Barbara and she extended love and care for each member in special ways that will be forever treasured and never forgotten. The great-grandchildren have been a bonus that she cherished, and Barbara looked forward to their visits.

Barbara was an accomplished seamstress and cook. She was a member of the Minidoka County Extension Club, where she enjoyed the many activities that they had as well as the friendships with the other club members. She was chairperson numerous times for her RHS Class reunions for the Class of 1954. Barbara enjoyed attending the annual RHS Alumni Reunions with her husband, Chuck, until her health would not permit. Barbara suffered a debilitating hemorrhagic stroke in October of 2008, which left her paralyzed and has prohibited her from leaving her home. She has been tenderly cared for the majority of the past two years in her home and specifically cherished the loving care and dedication of her husband, Chuck, who was the best nurse Barbara could ever have and the one she most preferred. The family would like to thank her doctor, Dr. Greg Boettcher, for the professional care and concern, Minidoka Memorial Hospital and Countryside Care, as well as Idaho Home Health and Hospice. Special acknowledgments and thanks are extended to caregivers, Betsy Lynn and Toni Thomas; to nurses, Wendy Gillette and Melissa Davids for the kindness and loving care that they gave to Barbara over the course of the past two years, as well as many other individuals such as Connie Ashcraft, coordinator.

A service in memory of Barbara L. Dalry will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 2, at the Trinity Lutheran Church, 909 Eighth St. in Rupert, with the Rev. Joel Pike officiating. A viewing will be held one hour prior to the service. Friends and family are also invited to attend a viewing from 5 until 8 p.m. Friday, Oct. 1, at the Rasmussen Funeral Home, 1350 E. 16th St. in Burley.

Memorials may be made to the Trinity Lutheran Church, the Wilson Theatre Renovation or a charity of your choice.

Walten E. 'Gene' Mildren

HAGERMAN — Walten E. "Gene" Mildren, went to be with the Lord on Monday, Sept. 27, 2010.

Gene was born May 22, 1921, in Kingman, Kan. Married to his sweetheart, Joan Blauser in 1941, he soon answered his nation's call as he became a pilot in the Army Air Corps in World War II and a fighter pilot during the Korean War. After starting Mildren Heating and Sheet Metal in the 1950s, he worked throughout the Magic Valley. They moved to the Hagerman Valley during the 1990s, where he spent many years with his closest friends.

Survivors include his wife, Joan; two daughters, Connie

O'Neill and Karen Kump; and his son, Gene Mildren Jr. He had eight grandchildren and 16 great-grandchildren.

A tribute to his life will be held at 10:30 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 2, at the Valley Baptist Church in Hagerman. Burial will follow at the Hagerman Cemetery. Arrangements are under the direction of Demaray Funeral Service, Gooding Chapel.

In his lifelong mission to spread the word of Christ, remembrances can be sent to Gideon's International at tgi@gideons.org. Condolences, memories and photos may be shared with the family by visiting the obituary link at www.demarayfuneralservice.com.

Gregory Hackett

WOODSTOCK, Conn. — Dr. Gregory Thomas Hackett, 60, passed away Friday, Sept. 24, 2010, at his home in Woodstock, Conn., following a courageous fight with cancer.

Born May 25, 1950, Greg was the eldest son of the late Thomas and Virginia Hackett of Twin Falls, Idaho. He grew up in Twin Falls with eight siblings and attended Washington State University, where he earned his degree as a doctor of veterinary medicine in 1976. He managed his own veterinary practice in Woodstock for nearly 30 years and was active in the community as a director of the Woodstock Fair. Greg's appreciation for agriculture was reflected in his favorite hobbies, which included cultivating an impressive vegetable garden, managing his small farm and, more recently, harvesting honey from his own beehives. He was an avid Red Sox and Patriots fan and enjoyed traveling.

He is survived by his wife, Barbara of Woodstock, Conn.; his daughter, Megan Hackett of Richmond, Va.; his daughter and son-in-law, Kelly and Keegan Coderre of Newmarket, N.H.; his son and daughter-in-law, Tom and Stephanie Hackett of Greenwood, S.C., and their daughter (Greg's only grandchild), Caitlyn Grace Hackett. He is also survived by his sisters, Tracy (Todd) Blakeman of Boise, Idaho, Anne (Paul) Niemsyk of Boise, Idaho, and Nancy (Paul) Zimmerman of Buhl, Idaho; brothers, Sean (Melissa) Hackett of Middleton, Idaho, Brian Hackett of Twin Falls, Idaho, and Kevin Hackett of Boise, Idaho; as well as numerous nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by a sister, Patricia; and a brother, Robert.

A memorial service celebrating his life will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 2, at the East Woodstock Congregational Church, 220 Woodstock Road, Woodstock, Conn.

In lieu of flowers, the family asks that donations be made to Hospice of Northeastern Connecticut and/or the Gregory Hackett Memorial Fund, Tufts University Ambulatory Clinic, 149 New Sweden Road, Woodstock, CT 06281 (www.smithand-walkerfh.com).

Arthur Penn, director of 'Bonnie and Clyde,' dies

By Mike Stewart
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — "Bonnie and Clyde" wasn't a movie that director Arthur Penn wanted to make, but when he finally agreed to it, he made sure that the violence provoked by the lawbreaking couple from the 1930s — and that led to the protagonists' bullet-riddled demise — wasn't disguised.

"I thought that if we were going to show this, we should SHOW it," Penn recalled. "We should show what it looks like when somebody gets shot."

His cinematic art, he noted, only reflected the times: TV coverage of Vietnam "was every bit, perhaps even more, bloody than what we were showing on film."

The director died Tuesday night, a day after his 88th birthday, leaving behind films — most notably "Bonnie and Clyde" and "Little Big Man" — that refashioned movie and American history, made and broke myths and sealed a generation's affinity for outsiders.

Daughter Molly Penn said her father died at his home in Manhattan of congestive heart failure. A memorial service will be held by year's end, longtime friend and business manager Evan Bell said Wednesday.

Penn — younger brother of the photographer Irving Penn — first made his name on Broadway as director of the Tony Award-winning plays "The Miracle Worker" and "All the Way Home," then rose as a film director in the 1960s, his work inspired by the decade's political and social upheaval.

"Bonnie and Clyde," with its mix of humor and mayhem, encouraged moviegoers to sympathize with the marauding robbers, while "Little Big Man" told the tale of the conquest of the West with the Indians as the good guys.

"A society would be wise to pay attention to the people who do not belong if it wants to find out ... where it's failing," Penn said.

Penn's other films included his adaptation of "The Miracle Worker," featuring an Oscar-winning performance by Anne Bancroft; "The Missouri Breaks," an outlaw tale starring Marlon Brando and Jack Nicholson; "Night Moves," a Los Angeles thriller featuring Gene Hackman; and "Alice's Restaurant," based on the wry Arlo Guthrie song about his being turned down for the draft because he had once been fined for littering.

"I loved working with Arthur," said Hackman, who also worked with Penn on "Bonnie and Clyde" and the film, inspired by the movies of the French New Wave. (Francois Truffaut and Jean-Luc Godard each turned down offers to direct the film.)

Penn, in his 40s when he made "Bonnie and Clyde," took full advantage of his gorgeous lead actors — Beatty and Faye Dunaway — and of the story, as liberal in its politics as it was with the facts — a celebration of individual freedom and an expose of the banks that had ruined farmers' lives.

Released in 1967, when opposition to the Vietnam War was spreading and movie censorship crumbling, "Bonnie and Clyde" was shaped by the frenzy of old silent comedies, the jarring rhythms of the French New Wave and the surge of youth and rebellion. The robbers' horrifying deaths, a shooting gallery that took four days to film and ran nearly a minute, only intensified the characters' appeal.

With the glibbest of promotional tag lines, "They're young ... they're in love ... and they kill people," it was a film that challenged and changed minds. Beatty worked for a reduced fee because the studio, Warner Bros.-Seven Arts, was convinced that "Bonnie and Clyde" would flop.

BSU's Gallarda money in the red zone

By Jason Chatraw
Times-News correspondent

BOISE — Largely ignored during most drives near the middle of the field, Boise State tight end Tommy Gallarda claims he does nothing special when the Broncos' offense is sniffing the end zone.

He doesn't have more end zone patterns where he is the primary receiver nor does he hold some dark secret over quarterback Kellen Moore in order to get more glory catches.

But Gallarda will get you six, that much Moore can count on.

No. 3 Boise St. at New Mexico St.

TV: KTVB Radio: 98.3 FM

"I don't know why it seems that way," said Gallarda, whose five receptions in three games have accounted for two Bronco touchdowns. "I guess the other teams' defenses are so focused on (Kyle) Efaw that it leaves me open."

Gallarda's humility is sincere but his statement isn't entirely accurate.

In the Broncos' season-opener against Virginia

Tech, Hokie safety Davon Morgan was draped all over Gallarda when Moore floated a pass in his direction. Gallarda snatched the ball with one hand and secured it before getting a foot down in the end zone for the touchdown.

Despite the on-field celebration by his teammates, Gallarda remained calm.

"It really didn't hit me at first about what it took to make that play," said Gallarda, who will have to get tape from Boise State coaches to watch his play again since the DVR at his house was full and couldn't record the game. "It seemed like another play in the game. My instincts just took over when the ball was coming down."

"It didn't really hit me until we were on the plane heading home and the replay popped up on TV"

Last week against Oregon State, Gallarda was the target for Austin Pettis on a 6-yard touchdown reception

College of Southern Idaho men's basketball player and Twin Falls High School graduate Jon Pulsifer leaps in the PlayPlace at McDonald's on Blue Lakes Boulevard in Twin Falls on Wednesday, during the men's basketball team's second annual CSI Amazing Race.

Golden Eagle men's hoops team takes on cross-town race

By Mike Christensen
Times-News writer

There were some larger-than-usual visitors to the McDonald's PlayPlace Wednesday afternoon.

Instead of pint-sized 4-year-olds, it was members of the College of Southern Idaho men's basketball team climbing around Ronald's PlayPlace on the corner of Blue Lakes Boulevard and Heyburn Avenue in Twin Falls.

The Golden Eagles held

At Papa Kelsey's, the teams had to perform several kitchen duties before one team member had to wolf down an entire pepperoni pizza sub.

The best eater: Australian freshman center Chris Patton. The 6-foot-9, 275-pounder downed the sandwich in about three minutes.

"It went down really easy," he said.

Not the fastest of players, Patton added, "I wanted to make sure that I did my best and I figured this was the part I could do best."

Patton's team of sophomore post Kenny Buckner, freshmen Kevin Attilla and Cameron Bowen and assistant coach Colby Blaine won the challenge.

In its second year, the race was Blaine's idea. He loved the TV show in high school and decided CSI's own version would be a great way to condition and build team chemistry.

Mission accomplished. "They competed really well," said CSI head coach Steve Gosar.

Sophomore guard Darius Smith, a transfer from the University of Connecticut, said the race offered a great chance to communicate with teammates. That was a particular challenge for his group, which featured Brazilian Gerson do Espirito Santo and Serbian Nemanja Grujicic, both of whom are still learning English.

"Me and Jerrold (Brooks) had to direct them the best we could," Smith said. "We were using sign language and everything."

The Golden Eagles had to find clues in balloons at each stop and then follow

Idaho's Axman thankful after cancer scare

By Josh Wright
Times-News correspondent

MOSCOW — The pesky issue had come up before, first when he was a teenager. Steve Axman was told he had a floating chip in his jaw, and for years after that he scarcely thought about it or felt it.

This spring, all that changed. Axman, in his fourth year as University of Idaho offensive coordinator, watched his face swell up as if he'd been attacked by hornets.

The chip had to go, his doctor said.

So the longtime coach had surgery in March. And once the chip was removed from his jaw, doctors found something much more alarming — a cancerous tumor about the size of a dime.

With the Vandals just starting spring practice, Axman, 62, underwent two surgeries in a 10-day period on his jaw and neck. More than 30 of his lymph nodes were taken out.

After the second surgery, Axman contracted a staph infection that, combined with everything else, forced him to miss 3 1/2 weeks of practice before returning at the end of spring. He then went through 30 radiation treatments over six weeks of the summer.

"It was certainly unexpected and I'm sure there's a lot of people who have had a tougher time than I did," said Axman, in his first public comments about his cancer. "For that I'm thankful. But it wasn't really pleasant. It wasn't really easy."

It was a relief, however, when earlier this month

Idaho at W. Michigan

Noon, Saturday
TV: KTVB 24/7 Radio: 1310 AM

Axman's first follow-up tests revealed no trace of cancer.

Axman has coached for nearly 40 years and never missed more than a day here or there because of illness. Ordered to stay away from Idaho's day-to-day activities in the spring, he tried nonetheless to keep his influence on the offense.

"Every day he would come in here and give us kind of a pep talk and get us going," running backs and co-special teams coach Jeremy Thielbahr said. "He would call us all the time, want to know what's going on with the offense. That whole time, I'm thinking to myself, 'Hey, Ax, just get better. We've got the offense. It will be fine.'"

Axman insisted he never contemplated taking off more time than he did. And Thielbahr never doubted that Axman would be back.

"I wasn't (worried) because I know Ax," he said. "And anybody who knows or has met Ax or worked with Coach Ax knows that no matter what, he was going to be here this fall. I knew he was going to pull through it. And I knew he was going to do whatever it took to be with us this fall."

TFHS hosts Dig Pink volleyball event tonight

By Stephen Meyers
Times-News writer

The Twin Falls high school volleyball team is going pink tonight.

With Breast Cancer Awareness Month beginning Friday, the Bruins are supporting the cause by using tonight's home match against Canyon Ridge as part of the Dig Pink fundraising initiative.

Seniors Bailey Anderson, Cheltzie Williams, Mallory Jund, Taylor Lancaster and Jaquelyn Corr spearheaded the event.

"We really wanted to start a tradition with the volleyball program and get behind a good cause," said Williams. "Breast cancer is a big issue and we want to raise as much money as we can towards research and awareness."

Referee shortage a big issue for prep soccer

Dr. Peter Doble will board a plane today to fly home to Twin Falls from a medical conference. Upon arrival, he'll turn around and head for Burley to officiate a boys soccer match between Twin Falls and Burley.

As the commissioner for District IV soccer, Doble could just assign the match to someone else — but there's hardly anyone else to assign.

The soccer aficionado, approaching 60, is nearing his wit's end with the perennial issue of having fewer referees to work with than the year before.

"I've advertised, I've run

David

clinics, tried to get people out. ... I'm at a loss as to how to turn this thing around," he said. "I don't know what it is."

A year ago Doble told the Times-News the number of referees at his disposal, then at 31 plus himself, was critically low. To function with nearly half that amount — this season there are 19 referees, seven of which hail from the Wood River Valley and rarely venture south to officiate — he's had to retool the system.

The big change is cutting last year's standard of three referees — one assisting on each sideline with the main referee working the center of the field — to just two that share the middle duty while also attending to one sideline apiece.

If there's a particularly physical match on the schedule that carries a good possibility of tensions boiling over, he'll schedule three referees to make sure control is kept.

On three occasions, lack of referee availability has resulted in one official going it alone.

"It's a terrible way to referee a game," Doble said. "It's bad for the referees and for the players."

Terrible indeed, but necessary given a shortfall that won't likely rectify itself anytime soon.

The best case, Doble said, is that in two years some of the new referees that have come aboard this season can go full bore with confidence, and in turn they'll hopefully recruit some new referees to train. He doesn't hold much faith in next year being any better than this season, however.

Trojan volleyball team remains unbeaten by beating rival Oakley

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

OAKLEY — Raft River rolled into Oakley and spoiled the Hornets' senior night on Wednesday.

The Trojans remained undefeated by crushing their rival 25-9, 25-7, 25-9.

"Being undefeated is a big deal, but it's not something we let psych ourselves out," said Raft River senior Kassie Ottley, who had 16 digs and was perfect from the service line. "We're proud of it, but we just take it one game at a time. We work well as a team and have really good chemistry."

Wynter Holtman led the Trojans with 10 kills and Holly Scott had 17 digs and five kills. Echo Hansen chipped in with five kills and three blocks, while setter Taylor Whitaker dished out 14 assists.

Oakley honored seniors Hanna Pickett, Elli Alves, Kori Poulton, Sabrina Wybenga and Jordan Lierman, who played the final home match of their

CSI volleyball slips to No. 11

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

The Golden Eagles are flying in reverse.

After getting thumped in its home Scenic West Athletic Conference opener on Saturday, the College of Southern Idaho fell another four spots in Wednesday's NJCAA Division I volleyball poll, checking in at No. 11 in the nation.

It's the first time the Golden Eagles (15-5) have been ranked outside the Top 10 in a midseason poll since Oct. 22, 2008, when they were ranked 12th. CSI opened the 2009 season at No. 14 in the preseason poll.

North Idaho College, which defeated CSI in four sets Saturday, made the biggest leap by moving up seven spots to No. 10.

"This just shows us that we need to compete every point of every match," said CSI coach Heidi Cartisser. "We've got three teams ranked really high in the poll, and we need to make sure we protect our status. The girls know they've lost a little bit of that expectation from the beginning of the season but they're committed to working hard and earning that back."

The top two in the poll remained unchanged, with Miami Dade (Fla.) and Salt Lake holding firm at the top of the poll. San Jacinto-Central (Texas) moved up one spot to No. 3, and Western Wyoming jumped up two places to No. 4 after knocking off Western Nebraska, which fell two spots to No. 5.

CSI visits Colorado Northwestern on Friday and Eastern Utah on Saturday.

Anderson and her family saw the "Pink" water cases while shopping in Boise and were inspired.

"We asked them what we could do to get involved and help a good cause," Anderson said. "We hope that we can make a difference. We want this to stick."

The Bruins will also sell "Dig Pink Volleyball" T-shirts for $10, with proceeds to benefit the Expedition Inspiration Fund.

Based in Ketchum, Expedition Inspiration Fund's purpose is to "raise awareness and monies to benefit breast cancer research through research project funding, public education, and patient support."

Twin Falls High is one of five schools in Idaho to participate in the Dig Pink initiative. The College of Southern Idaho and Lewis and Clark State College as well as Bonners Ferry and Genesee High Schools, will all host Dig Pink night. CSI's is slated for October 11.

By playing Canyon Ridge in the Dig Pink game, the hope is that the Riverhawks will host their own Dig Pink night next season.

"We really hope that this becomes an annual event like the Service Bowl in football," said Kristen Ingram-Funk, Williams' mother.

The Bruins face off against the Riverhawks in the Great Basin conference match at 7 p.m.

Wood River girls finish GBC season with rout of Minico

Times-News

The Wood River girls soccer team dominated Minico 8-0 Wednesday in the Great Basin Conference matchup, wrapping up conference play for the Wolverines.

Tanner Dredge scored four goals, adding to the school record she broke last year as a junior. K.T. Martinez scored two and Ellen Davis and Nicole Roos each added one.

"We were a little sore from the night before, but we came out and played fine today," said Wood River coach Jenni Conrad.

The Wolverines (10-2-1, 9-1 GBC, 27 pts.) play Century on Saturday which they drew 1-1 with earlier this season. With a loss, Twin Falls captures the GBC regular-season title on a common-opponent tiebreaker as the Bruins beat Century earlier in the year.

A Wood River win leaves it up to another tiebreaker.

BUHL 4, WENDELL 3

Ruth Loza's second goal of the game midway through the second half gave Buhl a 4-3 win at Wendell on Wednesday.

Loza and Skyler Barger both scored twice for the Indians (9-3-0, 8-2-0 HDSC, 24 pts.), who saw goalkeeper Chelsea Cress save a penalty kick late to preserve both their one-goal lead and their faint hopes of earning the High Desert Soccer Conference Tournament's top seed.

Buhl hosts the Community School on Monday.

FILER 3, BLISS 1

Candra Coelho scored twice to lead Filer to a 3-1 win over visiting Bliss on Wednesday.

Coelho netted in the third and 35th minutes as the Wildcats (8-6-1, 7-3-1 HDSC, 22 pts.) took a 2-0 lead into halftime and extended it on Callie Ridley's free kick 10 minutes after the restart.

Demsie Butler scored the lone goal for the Bears (5-4-1, 5-4-1, 16 pts.) five minutes from the end.

FILER 5, BLISS 1

Sergio Campos scored two goals to help lead Filer over Bliss 5-1 Wednesday.

"They played really well. We've been working all year on building the attack and we did a great job controlling midfield today," said Filer coach Greg Clark.

Ryan Karel, Wiley Taylor and Ago Alvarado each scored and Zach Clark and Alvarado both dished out two assists. Isaac Kreft also added an assist.

Filer (5-9-1, 4-6-1 High Desert) plays Declo on Wednesday.

WENDELL 5, BUHL 0

Lupe Ruelas scored 15 seconds into the game Wednesday night, setting the tone early for the Trojans' 5-0 romp over Buhl.

Ruelas added his second goal early in the second half, while Johnny Macias, Jorge Diaz and Mateo Londano each scored once. Macias also dished out two assists, while Eder Macias and Carlos Sarabia each added one.

"We played great tonight. We had one of the best combination plays from midfield to attack," said Wendell coach Matt Valadao.

The Trojans defense also dominated, recording its eighth conference shutout.

Wendell(12-1, 11-0 High Desert, 33 pts.) plays Bliss on Monday.

WOOD RIVER 2, MINICO 1

An own-goal sent Minico to defeat at Wood River, which won 2-1 on Wednesday.

Charlie Evans opened the scoring for Wood River (7-5-1, 6-3-1 GBC, 19 pts.) midway through the second half, but Omar Rojas equalized for the Spartans (7-7-1, 3-5-1, 10 pts.) 10 minutes later. The unfortunate own-goal settled the match and clinched the Great Basin Conference Tournament's No. 2 seed for the hosts.

Wood River visits Century on Saturday. Minico hosts Burley on Tuesday to wrap up Great Basin play.

Wendell was swept by Buhl 25-14, 25-16, 25-12 Wednesday night.

Heather Sturgeon led the Trojans with five kills and six blocks, while Kiersten Hilt recorded 10 digs.

"The mental game just wasn't there for us tonight," said Wendell coach Amber Smith.

Wendell (2-10, 1-6) travels to Glenns Ferry today.

VALLEY SPLITS AT HOME TRI-MATCH

The Valley Vikings split their two matches Wednesday night, falling to Glenns Ferry in their opening match 22-25, 25-17, 25-17, 25-16 before bouncing back to beat Hansen 25-15, 15-25, 15-13.

Kaylee Kent recorded 13 kills on the night and Gabby Beck added eight kills and seven blocks.

Hansen defeated Glenns Ferry in three sets 25-22, 19-25, 15-11.

Valley (5-9) is in action tonight, hosting Kimberly.

Braves finish sweep of Marlins, edge closer to playoffs

ATLANTA — The Braves moved closer to their first playoff berth since 2005, beating the Florida Marlins 5-1 Wednesday to complete a three-game sweep behind Derek Lowe's fifth win of September and Brooks Conrad's three-run homer.

Atlanta (90-69) reached 90 wins for the 15th time in 25 years under the 69-year-old Cox, who is retiring after the season. The Braves won 14 straight division titles under Cox but have missed out on the playoffs for four straight seasons.

Atlanta closes at home against NL East champion Philadelphia with a three-game series starting Friday night.

DODGERS 7, ROCKIES 6

DENVER — Matt Kemp hit a grand slam and the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Colorado Rockies 7-6 Wednesday to complete a three-game sweep.

Atlanta closes at home against NL East champion Philadelphia with a three-game series starting Friday night.

BREWERS 8, METS 7, GAME 1
BREWERS 3, METS 1, GAME 2

NEW YORK — Dave Bush pitched three-hit ball into the seventh inning and helped his own cause with an RBI single, Ryan Braun hit a two-run double and the Milwaukee Brewers held on to complete a doubleheader sweep Wednesday night.

Prince Fielder's RBI single and Carlos Gomez's hustle in the eighth inning of the first game rallied the Brewers after they squandered a six-run lead.

CARDINALS 4, PIRATES 1

ST. LOUIS — P.J. Walters pitched seven innings of three-hit ball and Allen Craig hit a solo homer.

After allowing an infield single to Andrew McCutchen to start the game, Walters (2-0) set down the next 14 batters before Ronny Cedenro led off the sixth with a single to center field.

ASTROS 2, REDS 0

CINCINNATI — Carlos Lee had three hits and Nelson Figueroa took advantage of a Cincinnati lineup missing all of its regulars as the Houston Astros beat the newly crowned NL Central champion.

PHILLIES 7, NATIONALS 1

WASHINGTON — Ben Francisco hit two of Philadelphia's four homers Wednesday night, and a lineup filled with reserves led the NL East champion Phillies.

Only two regulars started for Philadelphia, which is 95-64 and already was assured of home-field advantage throughout the postseason, as manager Charlie Manuel gave key cogs such as Ryan Howard and Chase Utley the night off. Mike Sweeney and Francisco hit consecutive homers off Ross Detwiler (1-3) to open the second inning.

AMERICAN LEAGUE
RANGERS 6, MARINERS 5

ARLINGTON, Texas — Mitch Moreland raced home from first base with the winning run after a wild pitch and a throwing error on a strike-out with two outs in the ninth inning.

Moreland reached on a two-out walk in the ninth off Dan Cortes (0-1). Pinch-hitter Nelson Cruz struck out, but reached on a wild pitch that bounced past catcher Guillermo Quiroz.

Quiroz retrieved the ball, but threw wildly into right field trying to get Cruz at first. Moreland never stopped running and beat the throw home by right fielder Ichiro Suzuki.

ANGELS 2, ATHLETICS 1, 11 INNINGS

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Torii Hunter's two-out single drove home Jeff Mathis in the 11th inning and Los Angeles swept Oakland.

INDIANS 4, TIGERS 0, 1ST GAME
INDIANS 4, TIGERS 3, 2ND GAME

CLEVELAND — Mitch Talbot and Josh Tomlin both finished their rookie seasons with wins as the Cleveland Indians swept a doubleheader from the Detroit Tigers.

Tomlin (6-4) went five innings to beat Tigers ace Justin Verlander (18-9) after Talbot (10-13) pitched seven innings for only his third win in his last 13 starts to beat Max Scherzer (12-11) in the opener.

TWINS 4, ROYALS 2

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Delmon Young homered and drove in two runs and the Minnesota Twins snapped a season-long five-game losing streak.

BLUE JAYS 8, YANKEES 4

TORONTO — Aaron Hill hit a three-run homer, John Buck and Travis Snider added solo drives and the Toronto Blue Jays gave retiring manager Cito Gaston a winning send-off in his home finale.

ORIOLES 2, RAYS 0

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Kevin Millwood allowed two hits over seven innings, Felix Pie hit a two-run triple and the Baltimore Orioles beat the Tampa Bay Rays before a capacity crowd of 36,973.

WHITE SOX 5, RED SOX 2

CHICAGO — Omar Vizquel hit a go-ahead single in Chicago's three-run seventh inning.

The Idaho High School Activities Association showed its intent Tuesday to ease the statewide tumult surrounding soccer referees specifically — though the situation is far from soccer-specific. In its most recent board meeting, the association voted to permit non-varsity-approved officials to be used as assistant referees — under no circumstances are they to be referred to as linesmen! — in varsity contests where there are not enough varsity-approved referees to meet the demand on a given day. This can only be done with the approval of the IHSAA and the district commissioner.

Don't count on that alleviating District IV's woes, however. Doble said the measure in no way helps the numbers.

He believes this slide in numbers can be reversed, and the vanishing breed called the soccer referee can After taking today off, CSI begins that quest in earnest on Friday when practice officially begins. But on Wednesday, CSI's Amazing Race provided a great cap to be saved from extinction. But it's going to take a lot of work, and a lot of outside help.

It's going to take a greater long-term interest in the sport from the fringes — former players who have finished their careers, parents who stop paying attention once their son or daughter graduates, and the casual fan — to make any lasting impact. The average retention rate of current referees is about 70 percent from one season to the next, so about six new offi-

"It's a tough job," Doble said. "No one likes to be yelled at."

Getting yelled at is far better than the alternative: seeing those fans silenced because the referees have become so scarce there are few matches at which to yell.

Bubba Watson could be this year's Boo Weekley

NEWPORT, Wales (AP) — Bubba Watson could be this year's Boo Weekley for the U.S. Ryder Cup team, a guy who keeps his teammates laughing, scratching their heads or maybe just wishing he'd shut his mouth every now and then.

Rest assured, the big-hitting Watson won't be laying up — on or off the course — during his week in Wales.

He put it all out there Wednesday during an entertaining and emotional session with the media, whether it was shrugging off the history of the event ("It's no big deal to me."), dismissing the need for serious discussions ("All I'm asking is what team outfit we are wearing that day."), or choking back tears as he spoke of his cancer-stricken father serving in the U.S. military during Vietnam ("This is a chance to be like my dad").

If some are offended that a golf match played at a ritzy resort is mentioned in the same breath with a war that claimed some 60,000 U.S. soldiers, well, so be it.

Bubba ain't backing down for nobody.

Just ask the reporter who tried to get him to reveal whether he's had an intimate talk with teammate Tiger Woods: "What are we going to sit down and talk about, 'What are we eating at night?'" Watson responded in an exasperated tone. "I mean, it's just golf."

Just golf? The Ryder Cup?

Yep, in the world according to Bubba.

"It's a big honor and it's just golf," Watson repeated, before turning back to the subject of what he should be discussing with Woods. "Tiger's game is different than mine. Jim Furyk's is different than mine. Phil Mickelson's, well, his is pretty close to mine. We both miss fairways a lot of time. Maybe I should talk to Phil."

Watson claimed his first PGA Tour win this year at Hartford, and his big breakthrough nearly came at the PGA Championship. He started the final round six shots off the lead, but overpowered Whistling Straits with his booming drives and finished in a three-hole playoff with Martin Kaymer (which didn't include Dustin Johnson because of his disputed penalty for grounding his club in a bunker).

With his foot firmly on the accelerator, Watson refused to play it safe at the final playoff hole, even after he drove into the thick rough. From 210 yards and with a tough lie, he went for the green — and wound up in the water.

Still, the runner-up finish sent Watson to the Ryder Cup for the first time, and he showed absolutely no remorse about attempting such a bold shot on such a big stage. He still doesn't.

"Some days, I'm going to beat you at golf," Watson said. "Some days, you're going to beat me at golf. That's how it is. The only history I look at is, I've got one win and a lot of people have a lot more wins."

That's how he's approaching the Ryder Cup.

"I just see it as a competition and hopefully by the end of the week, we have won more matches than the other team," Watson said. "I don't look at the history of it. No big deal to me."

Obviously, he's dealing with a much tougher issue off the course, which might be why he seems so nonchalant about being a Ryder Cup rookie, trying to help the U.S. keep the trophy it won two years ago at Valhalla.

"My dad is dying of cancer," Watson said. "The doctor says he's got three months to live. I'm playing this for him and representing the United States."

NFL gives union detailed proposal on 18 game schedule

WASHINGTON — The current labor deal between the NFL and its players' union contains a provision that allows the league to increase the regular season to 18 games. As the sides try to negotiate a new contract, they are talking again about the possibility of making such a switch.

"An 18-game regular season is not uncharted territory," NFL spokesman Greg Aiello wrote in an e-mail to The Associated Press on Wednesday, referring to the 2006 collective bargaining agreement and noting that the CFL and USFL have played schedules of that length.

"The key," Aiello continued, "is to approach it the right way and work closely with our players and clubs to come up with a year-round football calendar that will be better for everyone, including the fans."

League owners and NFL Commissioner Roger Goodell want to expand the regular season from 16 games to 18, and cut the preseason from four games to two. The NFL presented the NFL Players Association with its first detailed proposal covering that issue at a bargaining session in Washington on Tuesday.

Goodell has pointed out that the old CBA already left room for the league to extend the regular season, but he also says he wants to work on any such switch with the union.

The 2006 contract says the NFL would need to give the NFLPA 90 days notice in writing before increasing from 16 games to as many as 18. That agreement also says the league would have to negotiate "with the NFLPA with regard to additional compensation to be paid to players for additional regular season games."

Collins: Should have walked away from fan

GREEN BAY, Wis. — Green Bay Packers safety Nick Collins says he should have just walked away, no matter what a fan might have done or said to him after Monday night's loss at Chicago.

Collins apologized to his team and his fans on Wednesday for drawing negative attention to the Packers after he confronted a fan as he left the field and threw his mouthpiece into the stands. "This is a situation that I could have walked away from but, you know, heat of the moment," Collins said. "Things happen. Both sides (were) out of line."

Collins' teammates are firmly in his corner, saying fans cross the line when their taunts turn personal.

"The fans are taking it too far," wide receiver Donald Driver said. "This is a game where we go out here and we try to have fun playing it. I think the fans are taking it too far when they start talking about you, your family. They don't know your family."

Collins was walking toward the locker room when he stopped and got into a shouting match with a fan. Milwaukee's WTTV-TV captured video of the incident, reporting that the fan spit on Collins and used a racial slur.

NFL and Bears officials are looking into the incident, and Packers coach Mike McCarthy said Tuesday that he supports Collins "100 percent." Collins declined to go into details Wednesday, but didn't dispute the original report.

Osgood attacked in cheerleader's home

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Jacksonville receiver Kassim Osgood leapt out a second-floor window to escape a gun-wielding man who attacked him and a 19-year-old Jaguars cheerleader, according to police.

The armed intruder exchanged gunfire with his ex-girlfriend, Mackenzie Rae Putnal, after putting a gun to her head Monday night, according to the Jacksonville Sheriff's Office.

According to the sheriff's report, Osgood, 30, sustained some minor bruises during the attack and while fleeing.

"He's fine," Jaguars coach Jack Del Rio said Wednesday. "I'm aware of it. I really can't comment on that whole deal. He's doing OK."

Julian Armond Bartletto, 20, of Jacksonville, was arrested on charges of aggravated battery, false imprisonment, armed robbery, burglary and violation of an injunction. He was being held without bond at the Duval County Jail.

that wasn't so tightly covered.

That's the kind of reception Gallarda imagines himself making as he and fellow tight end Efaw prepare for games.

"The coaches always talk to us about visualizing yourself making plays," Gallarda said. "Every night before a game, we go through all the plays and go over who is doing what and get a visual for what is going to happen in each play. Most of the time though, I visualize an easier catch than the one I made against Virginia Tech."

Gallarda, who now has eight TD catches in his career, may find himself on the end of more scoring passes from Moore, but he's not dwelling on his early-season success too much.

"It is such a long season, you're going to have ups and downs," Gallarda said. "You just have to be as consistent as possible. We've always been a one-day-at-a-time team and tried not to get too up or down."

Axman

"Every ounce in my body knew he was going to be back," he added.

Thielbahr described Axman as an "old warhorse" who returned to the Vandals with the same energy and detail-oriented approach that he's always had. Nothing's changed with his persona, which fifth-year senior Aaron Lavarias was happy to see once fall camp started in August.

Even though Lavarias, a defensive end, is not coached by Axman, he still feels the offensive coordinator's presence.

"It's hard to have anyone, especially the coaches who are like your father figures, go through something like that," Lavarias said. "It's really hard on the players. It was really inspiring to see him back on the field as soon as he was."

Axman feels the effects of his stint with cancer less frequently than even a few weeks ago. He still gets unusually tired on what he calls an exceptional day, and the sickness that once dogged him as a result of the staph infection is now pretty much gone.

The biggest lift so far, he said, was hearing that he was cancer-free.

"The situation seems to be gradually getting better and better," Axman said. "I'm feeling very happy for that."

Notes: The Vandals (2-2) travel to Western Michigan for a noon MDT game on Saturday. The status of tailback/receiver Kama Bailey (shoulder) is still in doubt. He was held of most drills in practice on Tuesday.

NOTICE OF PROPERTY TAX INCREASE BY SCHOOL BOARD

The Gooding Jt. School District #231 has proposed to increase the amount of ad valorem tax dollars it collects by certifying a school emergency fund levy pursuant to section 33-805, Idaho Code, for the period 2010 to 2011. The total amount of dollars to be collected pursuant to this levy is estimated to be $218,515. The amount of dollars to be collected pursuant to this levy on a typical home of $50,000 taxable value of last year is estimated to be $30.00. The amount of dollars to be collected pursuant to this levy on a typical farm of $100,000 taxable last year is estimated to be $60.00. The amount of dollars to be collected pursuant to this levy on a typical business of $200,000 taxable value of last year is estimated to be $120.00.

CAUTION TO TAXPAYER: The amounts shown in this schedule do NOT reflect tax charges that are made because of voter approved bond levies, override levies, supplemental levies, or levies applicable to newly annexed property. Also the amounts shown in this schedule are an estimate only and can vary with the amount of dollars and the levy amount certified and the taxable value of individual property.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"Not to admire is all the art I know."

— Lord Byron

When West led the heart four against three no-trump, declarer ran the lead to his hand, then played a club to dummy's queen as West ducked. Now, when a second club went to West's king, West paused to count out the hand and concluded correctly that his partner had no more than six points and no more than two hearts. The problem was to construct a hand that would lead to the defeat of the contract.

West eventually decided that his only hope, unlikely as it might be, was for declarer to hold the doubleton queen-jack or king-jack of spades. He therefore tried the effect of a switch to the spade eight, but met with no success.

After declarer had wrapped up 10 tricks, West explained why he had not continued hearts. He knew that even if he had found East with the doubleton heart jack, his partner would have been left on lead. The defenders would still not have been able to set up the suit, as West had only one side-suit entry.

It was only much later that inspiration dawned on West as to what would have been his best shot. If he had led the heart king at trick four, it would have looked completely natural for declarer to duck this trick. But then West remains on play and can press on with a third heart while he still has the club entry to run the heart suit on regaining the lead.

ANSWER: There seem to be an awful lot of points in this deck! Rather than drive directly to game, cue-bid two diamonds to show a good hand and follow up with an invitational call, even after a sign-off in two hearts. At that point either a raise to three hearts or a call of two no-trump looks right; I prefer the latter.

DEAR ABBY: My 3-year-old goddaughter, "Tammy," is one of the most important people in my life. So are her parents, "Sophie" and "Zack." I was friendly with them separately before they got together. As a couple, they selected me to be godmother. They have since split up.

Zack is understanding about my staying neutral and continuing to be friendly with him and his ex. But Sophie gets mad and won't talk to me for weeks if she hears I went to see Tammy on a weekend she's with her daddy.

Even though I am closer to Sophie, Zack is a great father and a good friend. I don't think it's fair that Sophie expects me to take her side. I feel their issues are theirs alone, and my main focus is that my goddaughter have my support regardless of which parent she happens to be with.

Am I doing something wrong? If not, how do I handle Sophie?

— HONORED IN OMAHA

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR HONORED: You are doing nothing wrong. However, viewed from Sophie's perspective, it may appear that you have "chosen" her ex over her. A way to handle this would be to tell Sophie that you are not visiting Tammy when she's with Zack because you prefer his company over Sophie's. It's that you want your goddaughter to have continuity, and if Sophie is upset with Zack, she shouldn't displace her anger onto you because it's not fair to you or her daughter. And further, if this continues, Sophie will drive a caring friend (you) away.

DEAR ABBY: In this age of electronic devices, how appropriate is it to take photos at the table in a restaurant? I suppose it depends on the establishment — probably not a problem in a casual buffet environment.

My boyfriend and I like to go to fancy restaurants (on our own and with friends), and we enjoy taking pictures of each other, our friends and the food. How do we handle this? Do other patrons care how many times we "flash" our cameras?

— SNAP-HAPPY IN BLOOMINGTON, IND.

DEAR SNAP-HAPPY: When making reservations at an expensive restaurant, ask whether it would be disruptive to take pictures. While some diners might not object, I can think of several reasons why some would find it intrusive. Because some "foodies" enjoy snapping photos of their table and the various dishes as they're presented, it may be possible to be seated in a location where the flash will not be a nuisance. However, the restaurant staff should be warned in advance.

DEAR ABBY: I volunteer at a hospital and help with mail sorting for the patients. I know it is important for patients to receive their mail — even if they are no longer being treated at the hospital.

Abby, please advise your readers that when they send Get Well cards, to always use the person's OWN name — like, "Betty Jones" instead of "Mrs. John Jones." Also, when sending a card or note to someone in the hospital, to always put the patient's home address as the return address on the envelope — not their own. If your readers do this, the person is sure to receive it, even after he or she has been discharged from the hospital.

— JUDY IN LORAIN, OHIO

DEAR JUDY: Thank you for two perfectly logical suggestions — which I'm sure the majority of people don't always consider when they're sending their good wishes. Readers, take heed.

A BRAND NEW WAY TO SEARCH FOR YOUR NEW HOME

Today is Thursday, Sept. 30, the 273rd day of 2010. There are 92 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Sept. 30, 1938, after co-signing the Munich Agreement allowing Nazi annexation of Czechoslovakia's Sudetenland, British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain praised the accord on his return home, saying, "I believe it is peace for our time."

On this date:
In 1777, the Continental Congress — forced to flee in the face of advancing British forces — moved to York, Pa.

TODAY IN HISTORY

In 1791, Mozart's opera "The Magic Flute" premiered in Vienna, Austria.

In 1809, a treaty was signed by Indiana Territory Gov. William Henry Harrison and representatives of four Indian tribes under which the Indians sold some 3 million acres of land to be used for U.S. settlements.

In 1846, Boston dentist William Morton used ether as an anesthetic for the first time as he extracted an ulcerated tooth from merchant Eben Frost.

In 1949, the Berlin Airlift came to an end.

In 1954, the first nuclear-powered submarine, the USS Nautilus, was commissioned by the Navy.

In 1955, actor James Dean, 24, was killed in a two-car collision near Cholame, Calif.

In 1960, "The Flintstones," network television's first animated prime-time series, debuted on ABC.

In 1962, black student James Meredith was escorted by federal marshals to the campus of the University of Mississippi, where he enrolled for classes the next day.

In 1988, Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev retired President Andrei A. Gromyko from the Politburo and fired other old-guard leaders in a Kremlin shake-up.

Ten years ago: A Catholic priest crashed his car into a building housing an abortion clinic in Rockford, Ill. and attacked it with an axe. (The Rev. John Earl later pleaded guilty to damaging property, and was sentenced to 30 months' probation and two days in county jail.) In Sydney, Australia, Marion Jones won Olympic gold in the U.S. women's 1,600-meter relay and bronze with the 400-meter squad — making her the first woman to win five track medals at one Olympics. (However, in 2007, Jones forfeited the three gold and two bronze medals she'd won in Sydney after she admitted taking a designer steroid.)

Five years ago: Out of jail after 85 days, New York Times reporter Judith Miller testified before a grand jury investigating the leak of CIA operative Valerie Plame's identity. Six Mexicans were killed in a string of robberies targeting Hispanic immigrants at trailer parks in and around Tifton, Ga. (Four suspects are awaiting trial.)

One year ago: A powerful earthquake rocked western Indonesia, killing 1,115 people. A Soyuz spacecraft carrying Canadian circus tycoon Guy Laliberte (gheeh-lah-lee-behr-TAY) and two crew mates lifted off from the Kazakh steppe, headed for the International Space Station. Former Soviet cosmonaut Pavel Popovich, 78, the sixth man to go into orbit, died in Gurzuf, Ukraine.

IF SEPTEMBER 30 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Thinking about which direction to go and making plans for the future may be of prime importance right now. You may see opportunities, but all the information isn't in, so don't make major business or financial decisions in late October through mid-November. Trust that the universe will provide exactly what you need by December and January
