In campaign season, spin zone grows

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

They spit out statistics, tout successes and cast their opponents' actions in the most negative light possible.

Sometimes, these statements by political candidates are true. Other times, they're a step or two removed from reality, as seen in these two cases:

CAMPAIGN NOTEBOOK

Ben Botkin

MIS-COUNTED VOTES: Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Luna may have misled voters Tuesday about support for his pay-for-performance proposal that state legislators rejected in 2008.

The GOP incumbent's comment came during a debate with Democratic challenger Stan Olson on Idaho Public Television.

"We put together a plan. We took it to the Legislature," Luna said. "It had the full support of the governor. It had the full support of the House of Representatives and a majority of the Republicans in the Senate. If just one Democrat would have voted for it, today we would have $50 million more dollars that would have gone into the teacher salary schedule. So we had a majority support."

That isn't exactly so.

Luna's right about Democrats rejecting the bill — not a single blue senator supported his proposal.

But it wasn't Democratic opposition alone that killed it.

Actually, more Republican senators than Democratic senators voted against the bill. Nineteen senators total were opposed, 12 Republicans and seven Democrats.

It was a close vote, with 16 senators in favor of the proposal. So with a bit more Republican support, the bill could have passed.

Luna also was off by a number when he referenced the bill's need for "just one Democrat."

Red strobe lights pulsed against the overcast sky as emergency responders raced to board the plane and attend to the wounded.

But don't worry: it was only a drill, and no one was hurt.

Well, except the three mannequins on row three of the "plane."

Multiple agencies from Twin Falls County descended upon Joslin Field, Magic Valley Regional Airport on Wednesday morning to participate in an federally mandated emergency response drill.

"It's (a Federal Aviation Administration) requirement that we do this drill every three years," said airport Manager Bill Carberry.

Falls Fire Department, St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center, multiple EMT companies, the Twin Falls County coroner and numerous other volunteers took part in the drill. In total, nearly 200 individuals participated.

On this day, the simulation involved a small commercial plane carrying approximately 40 people that crashed on the runway, breaking in half near row three — thus killing the mannequin passengers — injuring dozens and starting small fires along the runway. Fire engines arrived at the simulated wreckage to douse fires, and firefighters hit the asphalt to reach the plane, making sure to check some vital details upon entering the craft.

"They will check to shut down all systems, turn off the oxygen — which is a highly combustible gas — and look for placards to denote if there are any hazardous materials on board," said Jim O'Donnell, a member of the Airport Advisory Board. ## It's change vs. experience in 26A House race

By Laurie Welch
Times-News writer

Incumbent Republican John A. "Bert" Stevenson will face off for a second time with Democratic challenger Scott McClure for an Idaho House of Representatives seat in District 26.

Stevenson, 74, of Rupert, has held the seat for seven two-year terms. McClure, 63, of Jerome, last challenged him in 2006.

Legislators are paid a yearly salary of $16,116 and receive $122 a day for living expenses when the Legislature is in session if they reside more than 50 miles outside of Boise.

Stevenson, a farmer, graduated from Rupert High School and attended Ricks College. In the House he chairs the Resources and Conservation Committee and serves on the State Affairs and Agricultural Affairs committees.

He said the resolution of several current water issues, including an aquifer management plan that will hopefully resolve issues among groundwater, surface water and springwater users, has prompted him to seek re-election.

Author shares advice with Jerome High students

By Amy Huddleston

JEROME — Dave Pelzer, The New York Times best-selling author of a "Child Called 'It,'" knows that America wants people who have lived a good message.

On Wednesday, Pelzer met with Jerome High School senior Mattie MacGregor, who is not only living a good message but wants to encourage others in her high school to live one too.

She invited Pelzer to the Magic Valley as a part of her senior project, which focuses on different types of abuse.

"High school can be kind of a hard environment to be in," MacGregor said. "I want people to go back to the golden rule and treat others the way you want to be treated because you never know what they are going home to."

Otter weighs in partially, backs one amendment

The Associated Press

BOISE — Republican Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter has abandoned his silence — at least partially — on three constitutional amendments on the Nov. 2 ballot.

Earlier this week, he declined to take a position. His rival, Democratic candidate Keith Allred, supports all three.

Otter now says he supports letting 11 municipal power companies sign longterm energy contracts, without a vote of the people.

But he’s still deciding on the other two amendments.

They’d allow publicly owned airports and hospitals to take on debt without an election, provided revenue, not taxes, covers the projects being financed.

Otter says he’s still waiting to hear if public projects in other states financed by revenue bonds ever left taxpayers on the hook in the event of a default.

His says his support will depend on whether he’s satisfied taxpayers are protected.

T.F.-Sun Valley bus route still on hold

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — A decision on starting bus transportation between Twin Falls and Sun Valley will have to wait two more weeks.

The Mountain Rides board wants to see whether it would be feasible to partner with Sun Valley Resort before making a final decision.

Mountain Rides Executive Director Jason Miller told the board Tuesday that Sun Valley requires a 45- to 50-passenger bus seven days a week. That’s more than the 30-passenger, five-day-a-week bus Mountain Rides had been negotiating with Salt Lake Express.

Miller said he expects to have figures for expanded service by the Oct. 20 board meeting. Sun Valley Resort currently pays a fixed fee to run a bus from Twin Falls for its employees, who pay for a percentage of their transportation through payroll deduction. Miller added he didn’t know whether Sun Valley would be willing to buy monthly or six-month passes for its employees.

In other news:

- Skiers who take advantage of Mountain Rides’ free service around Sun Valley and Ketchum may be able to wait for the bus inside the ski lodge this winter, thanks to a new GPS software system the company hopes to install.

The system will tell riders at a variety of stops through the valley where the bus is at any given time so they know how long it will be until it reaches their stop.

The Idaho Transportation Department would spend $337,675 in stimulus money to purchase and install the equipment. Mountain Rides would be responsible for coming up with $65,800 over a five-year period to maintain and operate the system.

Miller said he believes the system will offer a cost savings while improving ridership and good will. Mark Gilbert, Mountain Rides’ new board member, agreed: “Patrons love to know where the bus is and when it’s coming.”

- The board approved $36,925 to purchase a new para-transit van to replace the aging van that currently makes house calls for those with disabilities. The van can hold six passengers and two wheelchairs, Miller said. Mountain Rides has about 30 regular customers and makes a few trips a week.

Since it was predetermined that there were no hazardous chemicals, responders then evacuated passengers — played by real volunteers from the community — who were well enough to flee on their own. The simulation was detailed down to firefighters using neck braces and backboards on “injured” passengers who were unable to move without assistance.

Meanwhile, officers formed a perimeter around the airport grounds to control who got in and out of the gates, corralling victims’ family members and the media to designated waiting areas in the terminal.

Later, ambulances took the volunteer passengers to the hospital, continuing the simulation beyond the airport’s boundaries as firefighters continued to put out the blazing inferno — not real, of course.

In a real emergency, calls would be made to the FAA and the National Transportation Safety Board bureau in Seattle, which would immediately send a team of investigators.

Later in the afternoon, the agencies gathered to debrief on the drill and hear reassuring recommendations from FAA evaluators, who were on site.

There were a few snags when it came to communication — different agencies utilize different frequencies. But otherwise, everyone did just what they needed to do.

At 19-16, the bill needed two more votes of support that could have come from either party.

Ken Burgess, a spokesman for Luna’s campaign, explained the superintendent’s words like this:

When senators vote on a bill, they have a final chance to change their votes before the official tally is recorded. In this case, the bill initially had an 18-17 vote against it before Sen. Joe Stegner, R-Lewiston, changed his “yes” vote to “no,” making the final outcome 19-16, Burgess said.

What Luna meant, Burgess said, was that if one Democratic senator had also voted for the bill, the initial vote would have been 18 in favor and 17 against, enough to pass the bill.

Burgess added that he didn’t want to put words in Stegner’s mouth, but that if the bill had passed the initial vote, Stegner “probably would have just left it” without changing his final vote.

Stegner said he didn’t recall his vote change, but noted that there’s only one vote that matters. He said he’s not critical of Luna, adding that it’s easy to forget all the steps in a legislative process — especially from a long time ago.

“My guess is his memory is not exactly accurate,” he said.

‘TWO LOW POINTS’: Sometimes, events in an incumbent’s record get jumbled together.

That’s the case in a new television advertisement by Keith Allred, the Democrat challenging GOP incumbent Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter.

“He cut education for the first time in Idaho history a whopping 7.5 percent while also trying to raise taxes,” Allred says in the commercial. “It didn’t have to happen.”

That statement could leave voters thinking that Otter cut education spending at the same time he tried to raise taxes. And it doesn’t say what kind of tax increase Otter sought.

To be precise, the two events happened a year apart from each other. In 2009, Otter unsuccessfully backed a 7-cent increase in the gasoline tax for the state’s roads that legislators rejected.

It wasn’t until one year later, in the 2010 legislative session, that the public schools budget was trimmed by 7.5 percent as part of state budget cuts. Before the governor signed off on the budget, legislators set and approved the public schools appropriation.

Shea Andersen, Allred’s spokesman, said that the television spot is intended to make the case for why Idahoans need to review Otter’s record. Andersen said the ad focuses on “two low points” of Otter’s term.

“That’s what Otter’s known for and we’re calling him out on that,” Andersen said.

Election

McClure, a licensed engineer in 12 states who heads McClure Engineering, said state education funding tops his list of reasons for seeking election. He graduated from Jerome High School and Idaho State University.

McClure argued that education must stay funded at a level that will produce students able to compete in today’s market.

Stevenson said that though the Legislature was criticized for its budget cuts this past year, members had already trimmed as much as they could and the cuts were necessary to balance the budget.

“The only two options you have are to increase taxes or reduce the budget,” Stevenson said.

McClure, however, said legislators missed a chance to hire additional tax auditors and crack down on people with delinquent tax bills. He also wants to take advantage of uncollected money from Internet sales.

“They took a pass on that,” McClure said. Although state lawmakers hired a few additional auditors, he said, not enough was done to collect the unpaid bills.

Stevenson said uncollected tax bills are an issue currently under litigation, so he’s not at liberty to discuss it. But, he said, the Legislature has encouraged the State Tax Commission to collect the debt.

“I don’t disagree with him that we need to collect the taxes, but how much money do you spend?” Stevenson asked, noting that it also takes time to collect debt and the money has to come in before legislators can budget it. “Do you spend $100 to collect a $10 bill?”

Stevenson said his experience in the Legislature tops his list of qualifications for the seat, along with business expertise gleaned from his years farming.

“I have the experience; I’ve been through tough times in the past, although none nearly as long or as sharp as the one we’re dealing with now,” Stevenson said. “I have an exceptionally good working relationship with the agencies and I have that ability to help them come through with what we give them. ... if you have a Legislature that is all brand-new I can tell you the session will last a lot longer than it has. Because we’ve been through it and we know what has to be done.”

McClure said change is part of a vital and growing society.

“I understand the value of experience but it’s time to rotate the crops,” McClure said. “If you don’t you become stagnant. You need new ideas and commitment.”

Pelzer

Pelzer, who grew up in a physically and mentally abusive home, addressed about 1,000 students and community members at Jerome High School on Wednesday morning, then spoke at the College of Southern Idaho in the evening. His message of resilience and personal accountability was peppered with personal stories from his childhood and time in the military.

A self-described cross between Robin Williams and Clint Eastwood, Pelzer said he enjoys giving presentations to high-school students because it is a chance to challenge them.

“It’s a lot of energy for me to talk to them. You have to be happy with yourself and find solace to work things out,” Pelzer said. “That’s the goal, to always be working on yourself.”

MacGregor, 17, contacted Pelzer about a visit a year ago. After partnering with the CSI Student Senate, she was able to raise enough for the $8,000 speaking fee.

“I almost gave up because of the money, but I’ve learned that if you want something bad enough anything is possible,” said MacGregor, who is considering a career in social work after researching the effects of abuse.

JHS Principal Eric Anderson said MacGregor’s work has gone above and beyond what is expected of a senior project.

“I always preach to the kids about building good relationships. This is a good message,” Anderson said. “It’s the kindness campaign, it really is.”

Pelzer reinforced basic principals with the students — be good, be of peace and remember that the hard times only last so long.

“The sooner you learn that message the better off you’ll be. You must be self-aware of your situation and want to get out of that hole. Once you crawl out, why don’t you give back a little?”

Donations to the Magic Valley Safe House were taken at the door after both events.

“Remember,” Pelzer said. “It is always the thing of genuine love that makes a difference, whether it is a touch or a kind word.”

Group asks for extra time to digest Jarbidge plan

By Nick Coltrain
Times-News writer

Ninety days to digest a more than 2,000-page long-term plan from the U.S. Bureau of Land Management is a bit strenuous, representatives of the China Mountain Wind Project said Wednesday.

They're hoping the Twin Falls County commissioners agree, and back their request for a 90-day extension before a draft management plan for the BLM's Jarbidge Field Office moves to its next phase.

"It's 2,000 pages and it's going to determine public grazing, recreation and (have) social impact for 20 to 30 years," said Marc Brackett, a landowner with a financial stake in the project. He also just finished a term on the BLM's Resource Advisory Council, which is evaluating the management plan. "It's a huge document and it deserves more than 90 days."

The Jarbidge plan encompasses 1.4 million acres of public land in southern Idaho and includes a variety of possible long-term management plans for the BLM. The options range from no change from the last management plan, developed in the late 1980s, to ones that are "radically" different, said BLM Jarbidge Field Office Manager Rick Vander Voet.

The advisory council already asked the BLM for an extension, Vander Voet said. After meeting with Brackett regarding the wind project, the commissioners also requested a meeting about the management plan, Vander Voet said.

The document will be in its initial 90-day public input phase until Dec. 2. From there, the BLM will compile public suggestions, redraft the document and move to another level of public input.

Commissioners seemed to indicate they would ask for the extension also. Commissioner Tom Mikesell said the commission's word would carry more weight in a public meeting.

"We certainly understand that it's a huge document, it's complex and it's overwhelming at first blush," VanderVoet said. "It's kind of early, way early, in the 90-day comment period to make that decision (about allowing an extension)."

In other commission news, the three commissioners voted unanimously to decline extra terrorism protection through the county insurance provider. The extra coverage would have cost $65,000 for $65 million in coverage. The current insurance automatically provides $20 million in terrorism insurance, though it would be split among all claimants.

RAC MEETING

The Resource Advisory Council will meet regarding the Jarbidge Draft Resource Management Plan.
When: Tuesday, 6 p.m. Public comment is from 6:15 until 6:45 p.m.
Where: Loong Hing Restaurant, 1719 Kimberly Road, Twin Falls.

"It's an expensive policy and I think it's unnecessary," Mikesell said, joking that "I don't believe we need to keep fear alive."

Candidates focus on local economy

By Bradley Guire
Times-News writer

Incumbent County Commissioner Connie Crusier will face a political newcomer, Albert Hofer, on Nov. 2 for her District 3 seat in Elmore County.

Crusier, a Democrat from Mountain Home, is running for her third term — two years this time around. The position pays just more than $36,000 per year. Hofer, also of Mountain Home, is running for office for the first time as a Republican. Both were unopposed in the May primary.

With Alternate Energy Holdings Inc. focusing primarily on Payette County now for its proposed nuclear power plant, and Mountain Home Air Force Base having lost out on hosting new F-35 fighter craft, Elmore County's economic future faces some uncertainty. Crusier said she would like to re-evaluate the county comprehensive plan and look for other industries that might like to settle down in the county, such as more wind farms.

"Maybe there are some other areas we could designate for heavy or light industry," said Crusier, a registered nurse by trade. But, she added, the lack of water and other basic services to some areas of the county remains a significant issue.

She said she'd also like to bring new business to Glenns Ferry, which lost a major employer when North American Foods shut down its potato processing plant in 2008.

Her opponent said part of the problem is that the current commissioners took too long to make decisions and have let businesses get away.

"I don't think it takes two years to make a decision," Hofer said, referring to the nuclear plant. "We need to jump in, get the help we need to make decisions and not drag it out."

Hofer added that the county Planning and Zoning Commission needs an overhaul but didn't go into further detail. He said he could be an asset to the county with his experience as a construction superintendent, having worked on major projects such as wastewater facilities and schools.

Mostly, Hofer said, it's time for new blood in Elmore County.

"I don't want to get in there and stay for 14 years," he said. "I think a guy should get in there for two or three terms and then get out of the way and let some fresh ideas in."

Jerome residents question county officials on proposal for new jail

By Amy Huddleston
Times-News writer

JEROME — Jerome County officials presented the conceptual drawings for a new county jail to the Jerome City Council on Tuesday night.

It was standing-room only as citizens filed into the building.

Many of them were there for the presentation of poster winners for Fire Prevention Week. But the seats were filled, and Sheriff Doug McFall and County Commissioners Joe Davidson and Charlie Howell answered the questions that have been dancing on the streets of Jerome like autumn leaves.

Questions like "Why does it cost so much?" and "How many colored televisions are in the jail?" were posed to the three men who have worked on the project for several years.

McFall said possible revenue from other county entities who want to rent beds in the larger jail would help quickly pay back the $13 million bond needed to build it. While nothing is in writing, he said there has been an interest in using the facility to meet growing population needs.

Howell said if the building cost is under the proposed bond amount, extra money will be returned to taxpayers.

As far as color televisions? They are provided for inmates, but not at the taxpayers' expense. McFall said an ordinance requires inmates to have access to two types of news sources, whether they be radio, television or newspapers. He attributes much of the good behavior in the jail to the risk of getting television privileges taken away.

The trio also addressed questions about a nationwide search for contractors and the lack of an actual jail blueprint. The budget doesn't allow for expensive blueprints until the bond is passed. And when it comes to the nationwide search, McFall said it's required for citizens to get the most bang for their buck.

"The commissioners have a moral obligation to be fiscally responsible," McFall said.

Howell added that the county's received calls from all around the U.S. wanting to build the jail, but the bid would most likely be given to Idaho businesses.

"I believe without hesitation that the facility will meet our needs for the next 35 years and beyond,"

McFall said.

Voters will decide whether to approve the jail funding on Nov. 2.

In other business, the council tabled a discussion that would allow Advanced Info Systems to prepare utility billing statements for the city. A town hall meeting will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday at the Jerome Public Library regarding the significant rise in the number of delinquent accounts in utility billing operations and the current cost to the city.

AROUND THE VALLEY

I-84 work almost complete, but bridge work starts

Reconstruction of about 15 miles of Interstate 84 between Burley and the Interstate 86 junction is nearly done.

But more maintenance work is about to start on the westbound side of the Snake River bridge near the Declo exit, according to the Idaho Transportation Department.

Drivers should continue to be cautious between mileposts 207 and 222 as crews complete their work, according to an ITD press release. They may encounter short lane closures until all work is complete, and the speed limit will remain 65 mph.

Traffic at the bridge, at mile-post 216, will be reduced to one lane in each direction for one mile. The speed limit will also be 65 mph, with a 12-foot width restriction.

Traffic entering I-84 at that exit will face a 10-foot width restriction.

The bridge work was added to the existing I-84 contract with Knife River Corporation Northwest of Boise. It should wrap up in early December.

Gooding School District OKs levy

Gooding School District's board has approved an emergency levy that will provide $218,515.

By state law, school districts with increased attendance compared to the school year before are allowed to have emergency levies.

School officials still need to discuss where the funding will go, but needs within the school district include facility improvements and textbooks, Superintendent Heather Williams said. The board approved the levy last month.

That vote came before district voters rejected a proposed $4 million supplemental levy that the district wanted for a variety of building improvements.

Jerome P&Z to hold hearing

The city of Jerome Planning and Zoning Commission will hold a public hearing Oct. 26 to discuss the city's design review ordinance.

The meeting will start at 7 p.m. at the city council chambers, 100 E. Ave. A.

The ordinance addresses the aesthetics of buildings in city limits. Comments about the colorful paint job on the former Jolly Bean building will be heard. City administrators said they have received more than 21 complaints regarding the bright exterior of the new business.

Three tornadoes tear across N. Arizona, damage homes

By Felicia Fonseca
Associated Press Writer

BELLEMONT, Ariz. — A rare swarm of tornadoes shoved semis off highways and destroyed homes in the pre-dawn darkness Wednesday, leaving startled residents wondering if they were in Arizona anymore or had woken up in the twister-prone Midwest.

After the first tornado rumbled through Bellemont around 5:30 a.m., residents armed with flashlights emerged from their homes to check on the damage — a house splintered, windows smashed, garage doors twisted, but no major injuries.

“Running through the house, all the Kansas movies go through your head telling you: ‘Move to the basement,’” Breanna Hunt said. “But we don’t have a basement.”

The second tornado struck minutes later east of the small town of a few hundred people nestled in the Ponderosa pines just west of Flagstaff. A third was reported around noon along Interstate 17 south of Flagstaff, but there were no immediate reports of injuries or damage.

The radar showed that many more twisters likely formed, but none of those have been confirmed.

Sparsely populated Arizona typically has four tornadoes a year, but rarely if ever sees twisters come in clusters and cause the kind of damage seen Wednesday, meteorologists said.

“The hammering that northern Arizona is getting right now is exceptional,” said National Weather Service meteorologist Ken Waters in Phoenix. “It’s not uncommon this time of year to have one or two tornado reports or a warning, but this is quite an outbreak.”

The storm system moved across the West over the last few days, dropping record-setting rain in northern Nevada, pounding Phoenix with hail and dumping enough snow in the Sierra Nevada mountains to close a highway pass.

In Utah, two teenagers were struck by lightning outside their school on Tuesday. They were airlifted to a Las Vegas hospital, where they regained consciousness Wednesday.

The extreme weather came from a low pressure system that has been parked over Central and Southern California. The system was expected to weaken as it drifts northward.

Arizona, however, was the hardest hit. On Tuesday, storms ripped out trees and broke windows in metropolitan Phoenix, flooded roadways, shut airports and dented cars and shattered windows with hail bigger than golf balls in some places.

Gingrich brands Democrats ‘party of food stamps’

By Brian Bakst
Associated Press Writer

MINNEAPOLIS — Former House Speaker Newt Gingrich is advising Republican candidates on November’s ballots to frame the choice for voters between Democrats as “the party of food stamps” while selling the GOP as “the party of paychecks.”

With a month to go before the election, Gingrich brought his branding effort to Minnesota on Wednesday. He raised money for Republican gubernatorial nominee Tom Emmer and the state GOP during a private fundraiser.

He told reporters later that Republicans can campaign as the party of opportunity.

“Most Americans would like to get a paycheck,” Gingrich said. “Most Americans would not like to be forced to have food stamps handed out by liberal Democrats.”

Gingrich is considering a run for president in 2012 and is about to head off on a 12-city “Jobs Here, Jobs Now” tour with stops in South Carolina, Georgia, Iowa and Wisconsin, among other places.

Gingrich this week distributed a memo to Republican hopefuls saying they should use the final month to stress tax and spending cuts as a way to spur job growth while attacking Democratic policies as detrimental to that effort.

He blamed policies by a Democratic Congress and President Barack Obama’s administration for pushing the number of people receiving food stamps to historic highs. U.S. Department of Agriculture Data show 41.8 million people were on government nutrition assistance programs in July, up from about 32 million when Obama took office.

“It’s perfectly fair to say they are earning the title of the party of food stamps,” he said. “By contrast, we have historically since Ronald Reagan of 1980 been the party of job creation.”

Hari Sevugan, press secretary for the Democratic National Committee, said Democrats are pulling the country “out of the deep ditch” the current administration inherited from a Republican White House.

Feds: Eight touches of ‘Shrek’ glass pose hazard for children

By Juistin Pritchard
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES — Federal regulators leaned on McDonald’s to quickly recall 12 million “Shrek”-themed drinking glasses this spring because they concluded that a typical 6-year-old could be exposed to hazardous levels of the metal cadmium by touching one of the glasses just eight times in a day, according to documents obtained under the federal Freedom of Information Act.

Of the four collectibles in the series tied to the hit movie “Shrek Forever After,” the glass depicting the character Puss in Boots, with a predominantly orange design, prompted the recall push.

The investigatory file shows how the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission aggressively turned a tip that the glasses contained cadmium in their colored exterior designs into an assessment that the Puss in Boots glasses posed an unacceptable risk to younger kids.

It was a first-of-its-kind recall for the agency, which wasn’t accustomed to testing for cadmium in glassware and had no official level at which results would represent a health hazard. Yet within a week, McDonald’s had agreed to urge its customers to return all the glasses, even though the fast food giant didn’t think they posed a serious health danger — and the agency thought only one from the set did.

“Staff took an approach at the time that was highly protective of children, and McDonald’s took a proactive approach in conducting the recall,” safety commission spokesman Scott Wolfson said in response to questions about the 124 pages from the file, many of them completely whited out, that the agency provided to The Associated Press.

There have been no reports of illness from the glasses, and no one has suggested that a child could be stricken just by handling one. The concern has been long-term, low-level exposure to a metal that when ingested accumulates in the body for decades and at high enough levels can punch holes in kidneys, soften bones and, according to some new research, hinder the development of young brains. It is also a carcinogen.

Cadmium is used in a range of consumer products; in glassware, it is a pigment. Manufacturers say there’s no viable alternative if they want bold “fire engine” red for their designs, and that oranges and yellows are difficult to produce without it.

Cadmium pigments are ingredients in enamels that are baked into a glass’s exterior. The agency’s testing showed that children could rub off some cadmium when they touched the glasses. When young consumers put their contaminated hands to their mouths, whether because they’re eating or just being a kid, they’d be ingesting a poison.

The simple presence of cadmium in the glasses might not be a problem — the question was whether people who handled them could be exposed, and whether that exposure represented a health hazard.

Poll shows working-class whites shun Democrats

By Alan Fram
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Desperate for jobs and cool toward President Obama, working-class whites are flocking to Republicans, turning a group long wary of Democrats into an even bigger impediment to the party’s drive to keep control of Congress.

An Associated Press-GfK poll shows whites without four-year college degrees preferring GOP candidates by twice the margin of the last two elections, when Democrats made significant gains in the House and Senate. The poll, conducted last month, found this group favoring GOP hopefuls 58 percent to 36 percent — a whopping 22 percentage-point gap.

In 2008, when Obama won the presidency, they favored GOP congressional candidates by 11 percentage points, according to exit polls of voters. When Democrats won the House and Senate in 2006, the Republican edge was 9 percentage points.

Compared with better-educated whites, working-class whites tend to be older and more conservative — groups that traditionally lean Republican and are uneasy with the young president’s activist governing. Their wariness is reinforced by a prolonged economic funk that has disproportionately hurt the working class and shown scant signs of improvement under Obama and Congress’ majority Democrats.

Though accustomed to trailing among working-class whites, Democrats can hardly afford further erosion from a group that accounts for about 4 in 10 voters nationally. Their GOP preference is in contrast to whites with college degrees, who the AP-GfK Poll shows are split evenly between the two parties’ candidates, and to minorities, who decisively back Democrats.

Many of these working-class voters were dubbed Reagan Democrats in the 1980s, when some in the North and Midwest who had previously preferred Democrats began supporting conservative Republicans. Many never warmed to Obama during the 2008 presidential race, when he said some bitter small-town residents cling to guns and religion for solace. They preferred Hillary Rodham Clinton, his rival for the Democratic nomination, by 2-1 and in the general election backed Republican nominee John McCain by 18 points.

Obama

“They try to make everybody think the economy is better, and it isn’t,” Jennifer Moore, 40, a school bus driver from Amherst, Va., said of Democrats. “Gas prices are going up, food is going up and people working for the minimum wage can’t make it.”

In the AP-GfK poll, working-class whites were likelier than white college graduates to say their families are suffering financially and to have a relative who’s recently lost a job. They are less optimistic about the country’s economy and their own situations, gloomier about the nation’s overall direction and more critical of how Democrats are handling the economy.

Fired CNN host Sanchez apologizes

NEW YORK (AP) — Fired CNN host Rick Sanchez has apologized to Jon Stewart and anyone else he offended with what he calls “inartful comments” he made during a radio interview.

Sanchez issued a blanket statement Wednesday, five days after he was fired from CNN for his remarks, including branding Stewart a bigot and questioning whether Jews should be considered a minority.

In Sanchez’s statement, he said he had had a “very good conversation” Monday with Stewart, who anchors the satirical “Daily Show” on Comedy Central.

Sanchez also says he has highest regards for CNN, his employer for six years.

Comedy Central declined to confirm Wednesday whether Stewart and Sanchez have spoken since Sanchez’s radio outbursts last week.

Anti-wolf activist charged in elk poaching case

KETCHUM (AP) — An anti-wolf activist stands accused of illegally killing a trophy bull elk last year after the hunting season had ended.

Anthony Mayer was charged with felony poaching in 5th District Court last month.

If convicted of “flagrant unlawful killing and possession of a trophy bull elk,” Mayer faces up to five years in prison and a $50,000 fine. He is also charged with the misdemeanor crimes of hunting without an elk tag, hunting without an archery permit and unlawful possession of protected wildlife.

The Idaho Mountain Express reports that the 59-year-old killed a trophy elk out of season in northern Blaine County, near Alturas Lake. He was scheduled to have an initial hearing in court on Wednesday.

Mayer is the founder of www.saveelk.com, a website that protests the reintroduction of wolves in the northern Rocky Mountains in the mid-1990s.

He’s entered a written plea of not guilty and his lawyer denies that Mayer did anything wrong.

“We’re prepared to bring every possible legal defense on behalf of our client,” said attorney John Lothspeich, adding Mayer is demanding a jury trial. “He is a lifelong dedicated hunter and fisherman and we deny any wrongdoing on the part of our client.”

In the case, Idaho Department of Fish and Game Conservation Officer Merritt Horsmon filed documents alleging that Mayer illegally killed a bull elk with six points on both antlers in the Alturas Lake Creek drainage area several days after the bow hunting season was closed there on Sept. 30, 2009.

A probable-cause affidavit filed by Horsmon alleges the animal was killed instead by Mayer on Oct. 3 and that Mayer did not have an elk tag at the time or a valid archery permit.

Horsmon began investigating after Mayer apparently posted a story on a website indicating that he may have killed the elk outside of the legal season.

The investigation included a search of Mayer’s Twin Falls home.

Horsmon wrote Mayer told him in an interview on Oct. 8, 2009, that “he had first shot and wounded the elk using archery equipment on Sept. 30, 2009, and again shot and killed the elk using archery equipment on Oct. 1, 2009.”

Horsmon says Mayer didn’t purchase an elk tag until Oct. 4, 2009, and that when he reported the elk harvest he claimed to have killed the animal on that day.

On his anti-wolf website, Mayer posts photos of wolves bearing their sharp teeth and contends that the predators kill and drag big game for fun and may be spreading diseases and parasites throughout the Idaho backcountry.

Labrador disputes claim in Minnick campaign ad

By Jessie L. Bonner
Associated Press writer

BOISE — Republican U.S. House hopeful Raul Labrador says a new political ad that targets his work as an immigration attorney inaccurately claims he profited from selling forms provided free by the government.

The campaign for Democratic U.S. Rep. Walt Minnick, who represents Idaho’s 1st Congressional District, launched new TV and radio ads earlier this week, highlighting Labrador’s previous role as president of www.rapidimmigration.com.

The website sold self-help kits on legal immigration to America.

Minnick’s new radio ad tells listeners: “Raul Labrador profited on immigration by selling documents to people they could have gotten for free.”

But Labrador said that’s not true.

While Minnick’s campaign provided documents that show forms from the website sought the same information as an U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Services questionnaire would ask, the www.rapidimmigration.com materials included a disclaimer that noted they were not government forms.

Labrador also said this component of the business, which used information from prospective clients to fill out federal forms for them and guide them through the immigration process, remained dormant after he bought the website in 2005.

Labrador only sold information kits, which included forms, but they were provided at no cost, he said.

“This was for somebody who couldn’t afford an attorney and they need help filling out the forms themselves. They needed step-by-step instructions,” Labrador said.

His past role as president of the company that ran www.rapidimmigration.com first emerged during this campaign season in June, when The Associated Press reported that Labrador had failed to include the position in his U.S. House of Representatives filing, as required. Labrador took action in July to amend his disclosure and include the company.

What would Smeed say? Caldwell activist’s billboard likely breaks law

By John Miller
Associated Press writer

CALDWELL — A libertarian curmudgeon who died a month ago from cancer is still causing a stir, thanks to his enormous billboard that is lighting up the sky over Caldwell with campaign messages that legal experts say aren’t legal.

The billboard, which has been up for decades and has been updated to flash electronic messages, is now controlled by the estate of Ralph Smeed, who died Sept. 7 at age 88. When he was alive, Smeed used it to skewer government and politicians, but starting this month, the billboard has carried notes telling observers to vote for Republican Raul Labrador in the 1st Congressional District race to unseat Democratic U.S. Rep. Walt Minnick.

Legal experts say the latest messages are almost certainly a violation of federal election law. And the question remains: Would he have approved them, if he were alive?

“If you can contact him, why don’t you ask him?” quipped Maurice Clements, a co-executor of Smeed’s estate who is responsible for the pro-Labrador message.

“There’s no way possible to know we’re doing exactly what Ralph would have wanted. But we’re doing the best we can.”

Minnick aides say that the estate trustees broke the law when they failed to disclose who is behind the campaign endorsement, or how they are paying for it. And Smeed and Minnick were friends, going back to the late 1980s.

This week, the sign highlighted Minnick’s vote against health insurance reform earlier this year, as well as his refusal to back a push by the right-leaning think tank Heritage Foundation to repeal the law.

“Minnick voted against Obama Care and refused to repeal it,” the sign read. “Come on Walt, are you for it or against it?”

It also urged voters to oust Minnick from office this November: “A vote for Minnick is a vote for Pelosi. Choose wisely. Elect Labrador.”

based Campaign Legal Center, said that last line makes it clear the billboard is meant to sway an election.

“Any expenditure made in connection with that communication is an independent expenditure under federal law,” Ryan told The Associated Press. “The billboard itself should contain a ‘paid for by’ disclaimer, and if the expenditure exceeds $250, it must be reported to the Federal Election Commission.”

In an election where Labrador has struggled to raise cash and Minnick’s campaign has banked over $1 million, independent expenditures like this merit close scrutiny because Labrador simply doesn’t have enough money to match his rival’s spending.

He’s looking for help where he can get it, but Phil Hardy, Labrador’s spokesman, told the AP it had nothing to do with the billboard.

John Foster, Minnick’s campaign spokesman, contended that allowing Clements and Dan Symms, son of former Republican U.S. Sen. Steve Symms of Idaho, as well as the Smeed estate’s other executor, to wade into the campaign fray without meeting federal standards gives Labrador an unfair advantage.

“The rules were designed to prevent exactly this: Giving assistance to a candidate, without having to report their contribution,” Foster said, adding Minnick was considering a formal FEC complaint. “A preferred option would be for them to recognize they are violating the letter and spirit of the rules, and stop doing it. Particularly because Ralph Smeed and Walt were friends.”

So, would Smeed have approved of this attack?

Dan Symms conceded that the men were certainly buddies, but said that alone wouldn’t have shielded Minnick from Smeed’s ire.

“Ralph held Congressman Minnick in high regard, as do I,” Symms said. “But they argued about politics, about the way things should be done. I think this just kind of continues that discussion.”

Symms also said it’s a private message, something that ought to be protected by the First Amendment.

Pot-mimicking Spice has no place in Idaho

As four more states prepare to vote on ballot measures to make marijuana easier to get — and in California’s case, legalize it entirely — Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter is right to put Spice on ice. Otter announced earlier this week that on Oct. 15 he’ll sign a temporary rule adding the chemicals prevalent in Spice to the list of controlled substances in Idaho. Sale or possession of controlled substances is a crime.

“We also are asking law enforcement to help retailers before the ban on Spice goes on the books by taking control of excess merchandise so it can be properly destroyed,” Otter said. “The key here is working closely with everyone involved — from consumers and retailers to regulators and law enforcement — to ensure this is more than a gesture. We are concerned about the impact of Spice on our citizens, and we want to address it by giving people the information and other tools they need to act responsibly.”

Spice is an herbal plant mixture soaked in chemical compounds developed to mimic the active ingredient in marijuana — tetrahydrocannabinol.

Also packaged as K2, Genie, Ultra, Summit, Blonde, Yucatan Gold, Bombay Blue, Black Mamba and many other names, Spice is sold throughout Idaho.

A survey of Idaho hospitals between February and August reported more than 80 emergency room visits related to Spice or its clones.

Spice is sold as an incense and “not for human consumption” as a means to avoid legal regulations.

Thirteen other states also have banned one or more of the chemicals considered under the proposed rule. The 2011 Legislature will consider permanently adding the chemicals in Spice to Idaho’s list of controlled substances.

Pressure will continue to grow on Idaho to allow marijuana for medical uses, which is a foot in the door for more widespread availability of pot. We think that’s a bad idea and we’re gratified that Otter is putting the latest THC substitute into the realm of illegal drugs.

VOTING ON POT

Four states with ballot measures that would make marijuana easier to obtain legally:

Arizona
The Arizona Medical Marijuana Initiative, also known as Proposition 203, will appear on the Nov. 2 ballot. If enacted, Arizona will become the 15th state to legalize the use of medical marijuana.

The measure would allow Arizonans with specific medical conditions to be treated with certain amounts of marijuana for personal use, regulated by the Arizona Department of Health Services. The measure would also allow qualifying patients and caregivers to buy the drug from specific, closely monitored clinics. Patients would be protected from arrest and prosecution for using the plant for medicinal purposes.

Employers would also not be allowed to discriminate in hiring employees, as well as terminating employment against registered cardholders. But workers would not be allowed to be on the medicine while on the job.

California
Proposition 19, also known as the Regulate, Control and Tax Cannabis Act of 2010, would legalize various marijuana-related activities, allow local governments to regulate these activities, permit local governments to impose and collect marijuana-related fees and taxes, and authorize various criminal and civil penalties. Medical marijuana has been legal in California since 1996; the state’s voters rejected a previous ballot initiative to legalize marijuana in 1972.

Oregon
Measure 74, the Oregon Regulated Medical Marijuana Supply System Act, would create a system under which farmers can become licensed by the state to grow and distribute marijuana to medical marijuana dispensaries in the state. The initiative would allow the establishment of privately owned, non-profit dispensaries subject to state regulations, and the measure would allow people to continue growing medical marijuana at home with a license. Additionally, the proposition would permit the Oregon Department of Health and Human Services to establish quality control standards.

South Dakota
The South Dakota Medical Marijuana Act, Measure 13, calls for the legalization of medical marijuana. Patients or their caregivers would be allowed to possess up to six plants and 1 ounce of marijuana at a time.

Texters, you would be better off with Jack Daniels

Michael Fumento

We don’t know what the message was in a 2007 accident involving the sender and her four fellow New York high school cheerleaders. But it probably wasn’t worth slamming head-on into a truck, killing them all. And the 2008 Chatsworth train collision, in which 25 people died and more than 100 were injured, was officially attributed to the engineer of the Metrolink commuter train being distracted by text messaging.

Texting while driving can be more dangerous than driving while swigging Jack Daniels, according to studies. In a 2009 survey, Car and Driver magazine tested two of its staffers under a variety of conditions. It found that on average, driving at 70 mph, one man braking suddenly while legally drunk (0.08 blood alcohol content) traveled 4 feet beyond his baseline performance. But reading an e-mail while driving sober, he traveled 36 feet beyond the baseline result and 70 feet while sending a text.

Yet 66 percent of respondents to a 2007 Harris Interactive poll admitted they’ve texted while driving, even as 89 percent said it should be banned. And it’s the youngest drivers, who already are in far more than their share of road accidents and deaths, who do it most, according to government and insurance industry reports.

“One possible explanation for why we can’t seem to keep our paws off those tiny keyboards is that surveys show that a vast majority of American drivers believe themselves to be above average ... Hence the belief that we need to ban thee but not me.”

Texting and driving is 17 times more dangerous than just talking on a phone, according to a 2009 Virginia Tech study. And we sent about 15 times the number of messages in 2009 as we did in 2005, according to one wireless industry report.

One possible explanation for why we can’t seem to keep our paws off those tiny keyboards is that surveys show a vast majority of American drivers believe themselves to be above average — and not just in Lake Wobegon. Hence the belief that we need to ban thee but not me.

Twenty states still don’t ban texting and driving, and only eight plus the District of Colombia ban talking on hand-held phones while driving.

However, the mere existence of laws alone is not enough. Texting laws in four states surveyed have done nothing to reduce reported collisions, according to figures released by an affiliate of the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety.

Why? Penalties are a joke and enforcement is essentially nonexistent. A first offense is merely a $20 fine in California; a first DUI conviction carries a jail sentence of four days to six months, a fine as high as $1,000 and a six-month license suspension.

Enforcement efforts are virtually nonexistent because everyone thinks it’s so difficult. Yet equipment that detects outgoing radiofrequency signals is neither new nor cost-prohibitive and no more invasive than traffic control cameras, radar or radar detector spotters. But even such low-tech “equipment” as human eyeballs can work. Results from two pilot programs released Tuesday by the Department of Transportation show that. During a yearlong test, using a combination of public service announcements and programs in which officers were specifically watching out for drivers using cellphones, hand-held cellphone use while driving dropped 56 percent in Hartford, Conn., and 38 percent in Syracuse, N.Y.; texting while driving declined 68 percent and 42 percent, respectively.

“The laws are simple to enforce,” says Jennifer Smith, president of Focus Driven, patterned after the highly effective Mothers Against Drunk Driving.

“Texting requires you to take your mind off the road,” University of Illinois cognitive scientist Daniel Simons said. Indeed, hands-free phones may induce a fatally false sense of complacency ; that’s why studies repeatedly show hands-free phones to be just as dangerous as hand-helds.

But current state laws universally allow hands-free phones.

For now, all you can do is control your own conduct, including downloading software that automatically blocks outgoing messages while turning off alerts for incoming ones. No message is worth dying for.

Lawmakers dirtying their hands with fossil fuel money

You would think that the worst environmental disaster in U.S. history would force Congress to pass a clean energy climate bill to move us away from fossil fuels. But nope, that isn’t the case. Heck, the Senate can’t even pass an oil spill response bill. How does this happen?

It’s no secret that dirty industries, like oil and coal, give millions of dollars to our elected officials every year. People talk about it all the time. Everyone knows it. Yet it continues unchecked to the tune of almost $15 million during just the last Congress alone. And you can’t say that the big polluters don’t get their money’s worth. Their contributions buy them weak environmental regulations, giant subsidies for their companies and a national energy policy that keeps us dependent on dirty energy.

Unfortunately, what we the people (their constituents) get out of this deal are things like the Gulf oil disaster, the recent mining disaster in West Virginia, the coal ash spill in Tennessee and the prospect of runaway climate change — the list goes on and on. The truth is, if we ever want to see a national energy policy that’s based on clean, safe, renewable energy, we’re going to have to get the dirty fossil fuel money out of Washington.

That process starts right now with you and me. It has to. When you look at it as a whole, the problem can seem overwhelming. But if you break it up into smaller pieces — say by the amount of dirty fossil fuel money that each elected official accepted — it becomes far more manageable.

The problem is how much cash they’re taking, so we’re gonna let them know we’re watching. There’s never been a better time than now to do that. With the BP Deepwater disaster fresh in the public’s mind and the midterm elections right around the corner, it’s a perfect time to show your representatives and senators that their constituents want them to stop taking dirty fossil fuel money.

We collected information on the amount of money our Idaho politicians have accepted from the oil and coal industry: Michael Crapo, $225,039; Mike Simpson, $110,300; and James Risch, $98,300. Ask our Idaho representatives to stop taking dirty fossil fuel money and start working for a clean energy climate bill.

Here’s what Idaho newspapers are saying about ...

... legalizing pot

Moscow-Pullman Daily News

It’s time to get serious and legalize marijuana. Not just for medical use, but legalize it completely. We’re not advocating people go out and get high, just like we don’t advocate people rushing out and buying cigarettes or getting drunk. But it’s time to stop burying our heads in the sand over marijuana. It’s time to regulate it, tax it and ... make it safer for people to use.

Recently, a synthetic cannabinoid called spice has been sold in incense shops, not for human consumption, but for the aroma. That may be the official intent, but more often than not, spice, which was created for lab work to simulate the affects of marijuana, is being used by people to get high. There’s a fight going on right now to get spice off the market, but if that succeeds, another imitation marijuana product will take its place. Keeping marijuana off the streets is impossible, and much like the alcohol Prohibition era of the 1920s and ‘30s, keeping pot illegal is creating more crime and getting more people killed than if it were legal ... Studies have shown that pot isn’t good for you, but it’s at about the same level as smoking cigarettes. And if you don’t want to smoke it, by all means, just say no. The reality is, pot is here to stay. It’s time to face that fact and learn how to live with it.

... why Mountain Rides works

Idaho Mountain Express, Ketchum

To say big things have happened to the valley’s public bus system is to hit the proverbial nail on the head. In 30 years, the system has grown from a primitive, small, local bus route – Ketchum Area Rapid Transit – to the Mountain Rides regional transportation operation that stretches along the valley spine from Ketchum and Sun Valley to Hailey and Bellevue, then to Twin Falls. From a few pieces of rolling stock, the system now operates 15 buses and eight vans that carry 15 passengers each. Four new large buses are to be delivered soon. Nearly a half million passenger trips per year have been recorded. There’s more than a statistical success in Mountain Rides. It symbolizes something far more important. People of vision began early on putting a permanent public transportation system in place to serve a larger population down the road, so to speak – a system that has now become a familiar brand name and service to Blaine County residents, and can expand in many ways. Right now, Mountain Rides and Blaine County officials are studying what role the transit operations will fill when a replacement airport for Friedman Memorial is built in southern Blaine County. In addition to private taxi and limousine firms, Mountain Rides would meet the demands of construction workers, airport employees and eventually passengers and flight crews commuting to destinations throughout the county ... And as Friedman Memorial Airport is redeveloped into a multi-use complex, it will require inter-city and intra-city transportation service. In their own ways, Mountain Rides and its predecessors are models of what cooperation can spawn when communities show determination to unify behind good ideas ...

... cowboying up

Idaho Statesman, Boise

In hopes of corralling the wandering undecided vote, incumbent Gov. Butch Otter and challenger Keith Allred aren’t above touting their roping and riding skills. There is an Old West feel to the 2010 gubernatorial race. As Associated Press reporter John Miller ..., Otter and Allred “seem to be running as much for cowboy-in-chief as they are for the state’s top political office.” But the most vexing problems awaiting the governor are New West, not Old West. Problems that reflect where Idaho is now, and where Idaho is going. A few of the most sobering and salient facts: ● Per-pupil spending in Idaho ranks 49th among the states, exceeding only Utah. And that’s how Idaho fared in a Census study from 2007-08 – before Idaho cut an unprecedented $128.5 million from the public school budget. As the Republican Otter correctly notes, Idaho put 50.9 percent of its 2009-10 budget into public schools, the biggest share in more than two decades. But Allred, a Democrat, is also right when he points out that, over time, the state has put increasing shares of the budget into prisons and Medicaid. If both candidates are correct, then which candidate is best suited to help Idaho make smart investments in the schools of tomorrow? ● The crisis facing higher education is even more acute. It starts with money – a series of budget cuts, including a $48.3 million slash for 2009-10. Consequently, tomorrow’s would-be graduates, and their parents, are facing tuition and fee increases outpacing the rate of inflation ... ● Idaho’s economy is in transition statewide. Not just in rural communities that have, for generations, relied on agriculture, mining and timber. The Treasure Valley’s corporate mainstays are in transition – from Micron to Hewlett-Packard to Supervalu ... ● The future will favor states with a well-trained work force and a favorable business climate. ● Taxes are part of that equation, and more candidates and incumbents are at least talking about tax reform – from a review of the state’s myriad sales tax exemptions to pursuing sales taxes on Internet purchases to revisiting Idaho corporate and personal income tax rates. Adversity tends to be a great motivator, and the education budget crunch certainly fills the bill. In the next four years, Idaho’s governor could put a profound mark on state tax policy – on the magnitude of Gov. Robert Smylie, who instituted the sales tax in 1965. The governor’s election isn’t all about schools, jobs and taxes. But it’s close. After paying our heritage a hearty, respectful tip of the 10-gallon hat, it is about riding squarely into the future.

Tax battle favors Dems, but they could blow it

WASHINGTON – Democrats have a good hand, politically and substantively, in the big tax-cut fight; they could screw it up. The two parties have staked out hard positions in a battle that may help define the elections this autumn. Democrats want to extend the tax cuts for the middle class; Republicans insist that’s not possible unless tax cuts for the highest earners are extended, too. “Public-opinion polling shows strong support across the electorate for making permanent the middle-class tax cuts that otherwise would expire at the end of this year,” Geoff Garin, a leading Democratic polltaker, advised congressional leaders in a memo last week. Voters, he added, would direct “anger and agitation” against anyone “who stood in the way” of these middle-class cuts. Moreover, if necessary, Democrats have a viable backup: extend the upper-income tax cuts for one year – countering

Al Hunt

Republican charges that you can’t raise any taxes with the unemployment rate at 9.6 percent – while making the middle-class tax cuts permanent. Decoupling the tax cuts would ultimately require the upper-income provisions to stand on their own. Nevertheless, lacking a skilled legislator on this issue or a well-considered White House strategy, the Democrats, who desperately need a legislative victory, may blow it. A number of senators, including Nebraska’s Ben Nelson and Connecticut’s Joseph Lieberman, who often side with upper-income taxpayers, have insisted all the tax cuts be extended. And in the House, 31 Democrats wrote Speaker Nancy Pelosi of California a letter calling for some extension of all the Bush-era tax cuts, which are slated to expire at the end of the year because of sleight-of-hand budgetary gimmicks the Republican-controlled Congress put in place when passing them. Ironically, 23 of those Democrats are so-called Blue Dogs, members of a coalition dedicated to reducing deficits. Extending the upper-income tax cuts would add more than $700 billion to the federal budget deficit over the next decade. And Peter Orszag, President Barack Obama’s former budget director, handed the Republicans a gift when he recently called for extending all the tax cuts for two years, then letting them expire. Orszag says the long-term fiscal situation is so dire that the nation can’t afford the middle-class tax cuts, either. Thus, he argues for a “34-vote strategy” that would extend all tax cuts for two years and then count on the president to veto any subsequent extension. That assumes that in 2012, a presidential election year, Obama would veto a bill that would prevent a tax increase for all Americans, breaking a pledge he made in his first campaign. There’s a better chance he’ll tap Sarah Palin to be Treasury secretary. The other huge miscalculation would be if timid Democrats, or those who think the tax debate is a good campaign issue, decided to postpone any action to a lame-duck session after Election Day, Nov. 2. Republicans are certain to make major gains this year. Some of their candidates will likely win seats of appointed senators and take office immediately, thus enabling them to participate in a lame-duck session. The political climate will be far less conducive; Rep. Pete Sessions, R-Texas, who heads the House Republicans’ campaign committee, says he relishes the prospect of dealing with the tax cuts in a lame-duck session. This, he predicts, would assure passage of the measures for the wealthier. If a fallback is necessari-tated – a scenario the Obama White House hasn’t adequately considered – passing only a short-term extension of tax cuts for the wealthy is feasible. For instance, Senate Budget Committee Chairman Kent Conrad, D-N.D., has been depicted as belonging to the Nelson-Lieberman camp favoring extending all tax cuts. In an interview, he said that he wants only a short-term continuation of upper-income tax cuts, that no extension on these is preferable to a permanent one, and that if a bill only includes a middle-class tax cut, he would vote for it. A victory for the Democrats – forcing the Republicans to back down or fashioning a reasonable bill in which the opposition is seen as stymieing middle-class tax cuts – would provide a much-needed boost. Conversely, if they botch this, their already dismal November prospects may get worse.

Otter offers experience in private sector

The U.S. economy is in serious trouble due to the reckless policies of liberal politicians who control government in Washington. Keith Allred promises the same for Idaho. It is not difficult to understand why. He spent 20 years making a living in the public sector with most of it spent in academia. The public sector is supported by private sector tax revenues. Problem is, the private sector can no longer afford the public sector at current levels of spending. But why would Allred promote change to a system that has supported him in the past and he hopes will support him in the future? Allred’s position: I’m for the little guy; corporations are bad; I’m against special interests and we need to spend more money on education – typical positions from Democrats running for office. Those same corporations provide jobs for thousands of Idahoans. He says he is against special interests, but the Idaho Education Association is the largest union and special interest in the state of Idaho and Allred courts them like a new bride. We need serious structural changes to how we spend for education and the public sector in general. This election is not a referendum on a candidate’s ranching background as a teenager or his religious affiliation. It is a referendum on experience, leadership and financial principles. Private sector principles are what has kept Idaho’s budget balanced. Those same principles will be required to meet the financial challenges that Idaho faces in the future. Gov. Otter, with extensive private-sector experience, made the necessary budget cuts required by law including education. They were politically unpopular but the right thing to do. We don’t need academics in politics. We need private-sector experience and thinking. Allred, a product of the public sector, falls short on both. MARK DOERR Kimberly Idaho doesn’t need any more wilderness I find it rather perplexing in what is going on in the desert land around us. First we have the Owyhee (no we don’t need another Crapo) Wilderness Act, where the sportsmen never got invited to any of the meetings – just the ranchers, the river rats, Indians and the enviros. They have kept the sportsmen from driving to the canyons to hunt, yet they can still take canoes, kayaks and float tubes across wilderness designated lands to float the rivers. If you are going to stop people from going hunting, why not shut it off to everyone? I think the desert lands were the last frontier for lots of people to go have fun. You didn’t have to go ask permission, and you don’t have to try and get through private property for the most part. Now the Bureau of Land Mangement and the enviros want to do more wildernesses clear on over to Salmon Falls Creek. We have enough wildernesses in Idaho; we don’t want anymore. I don’t know why they didn’t leave it as it was. We used to get out maps and try and decide how to get to places. Now, BLM has road signs that tell you how far to what, where and what directions. And now of course the BLM wants to police it? Police what? There are already existing laws for underage drinking, open container laws and for abusing property. Why create more rules and regulations; so BLM has the right to stop anybody, anytime for no reason at all. We don’t need to become another police state, but this is what the latest proposal is coming to. I hope these proposed actions are not going to ultimately create another populace of the Claude Dallas type. So, in ending, I don’t know is there is a conspiracy to keep people off the desert lands or is it job security for public servants who have been doing studies upon studies since the ’70s and they just keep coming up with more measures and more rules and more regulations. We have enough of all of it. Stop now before the only thing left to do is stay indoors and do nothing. NORMAN ECKERT Buhl Injured on the job and struggling with state insurance fund I was injured on the job in 2007 and have battling the State Insurance Fund of Idaho ever since. I contacted Robert Paisola of Western Capital Multi Media in Sandy, Utah. My attorney’s assistant told me to not expect any favors due to the fact that they were embarrassed. My case is close to a settlement, and they are offering the bare minimal because of the embarrassment. I live in severe pain constantly and have suicidal thoughts. I am afraid for my future. I have no skills besides hard labor. # General Motors gets ‘junk’ credit rating

By Dan Strumpf
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — Fitch on Wednesday assigned General Motors Co. a junk-level credit rating, the first assessment of the automaker’s creditworthiness since it left bankruptcy protection last year, saying its pensions are heavily underfunded and the auto market remains uncertain.

Fitch’s rating of “BB-” comes as the automaker is preparing for an initial public offering of stock, likely to come in mid-November.

Fitch said GM has come a long way since emerging from bankruptcy protection last year. Its Chapter 11 reorganization gave it more financial flexibility and it is likely to reap the benefits of an improving global auto market.

The company also has a strong cash position, a better cost structure and an increasingly competitive lineup of cars and trucks, Fitch said.

But auto sales remain sluggish for now, Fitch said, while GM’s pension obligations remain underfunded by $27 billion as of last December.

In addition, a large portion of the automaker’s senior management are new to the auto industry, including CEO Daniel Akerson. The former telecommunications industry executive took the helm of the company on Sept. 1 from Ed Whitacre.

“There may be missteps along the way as the management team essentially learns the industry while on the job,” Fitch said in its report.

GM spokeswoman Renee Rashid-Merem declined to comment on the Fitch rating. She said it is common for companies that aren’t publicly traded to get ratings from agencies because of debt they carry or the possibility they may issue new debt in the future.

GM disclosed in its initial public offering paperwork filed last month that it is negotiating with banks about a revolving line of credit to provide more liquidity. Rashid-Merem would not say if the company got the credit line.

Assessments from ratings firms such as Fitch are important for companies because they are a factor in determining how expensive it is to issue debt. Fitch considers a rating of “BB-” to be “speculative” with an “elevated vulnerability to default risk.”

How to tune up your 401(k)

By Claudia Buck
McClatchy Newspapers

We want to be good retirement savers, we really do. But many working Americans find the process intimidating, confusing or financially impossible.

Unfortunately, in an era where more of the retirement burden is falling on individuals than their employers, ramping up savings is essential.

Which helps explain why 401(k) plans, where contributions come out of your paycheck tax-free — and often are matched by the boss — are one of the most common retirement tools out there, research shows.

To get some tips on how to fine-tune your 401(k), we talked by phone with Mary Beth Franklin, senior editor of Kiplinger’s Personal Finance magazine, who spent weeks researching the topic for the magazine’s October issue.

Here’s some of her advice.

QUESTION: Trying to save for retirement can be daunting. How do you know if you’re saving enough?

ANSWER: People have to rely on themselves for their future retirement. We’ve got the first of baby boomers turning 65 who still have pensions. But going forward, those who are middle-aged and younger will really be on their own. The onus of making sure you’re doing it right, that you’re setting aside enough for your retirement, falls more and more on the shoulders of workers themselves. Now is a great time to reassess your plan.

Q: What’s the magic formula for how much you should be socking away in your 401(k)?

A: You should be contributing about 15 percent of your gross salary a year; that’s combined between you and your employer. If you’re contributing 10 percent and your employer is matching 50 cents on the dollar, which is typical, that’s (an additional) 5 percent.

Always contribute at least enough to get your employer match or you are walking away from free money. Nobody can afford that. If you don’t take the 3 percent your boss was going to give you in 2010, it’s gone forever.

Q: What are some quick fixes employees can make to

Economic pressure seen in late-night runs at stores

By Anne D’Innocenzio and Dena Potter
Associated Press writers

At grocery stores across the country, the chimes come just after food stamps and other monthly government benefits drop into the accounts of shoppers who have been rationing things like milk, ground beef and toilet paper and can finally stock up again.

More than a year after the technical end of the Great Recession, millions of Americans still have a hard time stretching their dollars until the first of the month, or even the next payday.

One in seven Americans lives in poverty, and more than 41 million are on food stamps, a record. Last year the figure was about 35 million.

As a result, there are more scenes like the one last week at a 24-hour Kroger in Cincinnati. As the final hours of September ticked down, about five dozen cars were in the parking lot. It’s much slower on normal weeknights.

“This here is emergency bread,” said Malinda Patterson, 36, who has been without a full-time job since the recession began and had started shopping 20 minutes before midnight. That’s when $435 in food stamps kicked in to help feed her six children.

The same night, Shavon Smith and her four young children were loading up on meat, fruit, bread, water, tissues and cereal at Kroger’s Food 4 Less store on Chicago’s West Side. Those staples had begun running out more than a week earlier.

Stores have learned how to adapt to the surges, which typically occur on the first and the 15th of the month.

Monsanto posts smaller loss in 4th quarter

Restructuring aimed at moving company away from herbicide division

By Christopher Leonard
Associated Press writer

ST. LOUIS — Monsanto Co. is promising brighter days ahead.

The world’s biggest seed company reported a smaller loss Wednesday for its fiscal fourth quarter than a year ago as its revenue increased. The company said the results are the first sign it has put behind it a period of layoffs and lost sales resulting from a sharp dropoff in its herbicide business.

The quarter is typically a money loser for Monsanto, which makes more of its money in the spring and summer months as farmers are ordering seed. But the company said its narrower loss is the result of a broad restructuring that will deliver double-digit growth in coming years.

“There’s no doubt we’re looking forward to seeing the results of changes we’ve made in a new fiscal year,” Chief Executive Hugh Grant said during a conference call Wednesday morning.

The restructuring is aimed at moving Monsanto away from its less profitable herbicide division. Its flagship Roundup brand has been pummeled by foreign, generic versions, which contributed to a 10 percent revenue decline during fiscal year 2010.

Monsanto said its turnaround is already showing results. Roundup sales have bounced back after Monsanto slashed prices to match generic versions, and the company thinks sales have hit a “steady state”

LIVESTOCK

POCATELLO (AP) – Idaho Farm Bureau Intermountain Livestock Report for Tuesday, October 05.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 22.93, or 0.2 percent, to close at 10,967.65.

Broader indexes fell. The Standard & Poor's 500 fell 0.78, or 0.1 percent, to 1,159.97, while the Nasdaq composite index fell 19.17, or 0.8 percent, to 2,380.66.

Falling stocks narrowly outpaced rising ones on the New York Stock Exchange, where volume came to 980 million shares.

The yield on the two-year Treasury note touched a record low 0.38 percent, and the yield on the 10-year note fell to 2.39 percent. The 10-year yield touched its lowest level since January 2009 when the country was mired in a recession.

More weak economic data in the coming weeks, including any disappointment from Friday's key Labor Department report on employment, could provide further incentive for Fed action.

LIVESTOCK AUCTION – Smithfield Livestock Auction on Thursday. Utility and commercial cows 44.00-$2.50; canner & cutter 33.00-$42.00; heavy feeder steers 89.00-$110.00; light feeder steers 101.00-$116.00; stocker steers 116.

Panel: White House controlled message on oil spill response

By Dina Cappiello
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The Obama administration blocked efforts by government scientists to tell the public just how bad the Gulf oil spill could become and committed other missteps that raised questions about its competence and candor during the crisis, according to a commission appointed by the president to investigate the disaster.

In documents released Wednesday, the national oil spill commission's staff describes "not an incidental public relations problem" by the White House in the wake of the April 20 accident.

Among other things, the report says, the administration made erroneous early estimates of the spill's size, and President Barack Obama's senior energy adviser went on national TV and mischaracterized a government analysis by saying it showed most of the oil was "gone." The analysis actually said it could still be there.

"By initially underestimating the amount of oil flow and then, at the end of the summer, appearing to underestimate the amount of oil remaining in the Gulf, the federal government created the impression that it was either not fully competent to handle the spill or not fully candid with the American people about the scope of the problem," the report says.

The administration disputed the commission findings, saying senior government officials "were clear with the public what the worst-case flow rate could be."

In a statement Wednesday, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration chief Jane Lubchenco and White House budget director Jeffrey Zients pointed out that in early May, Interior Secretary Ken Salazar and Coast Guard

Adm. Thad Allen told the public that the worst-case scenario could be more than 100,000 barrels a day, or 4.2 million gallons.

For the first time, the documents — which are preliminary findings by the panel's staff — show that the White House was directly involved in controlling the message as it struggled to convey that it, not BP, was in charge of responding to what eventually became the biggest offshore oil spill in U.S. history.

Citing interviews with government officials, the report reveals that in late April or early May, the White House budget office denied a request from NOAA to make public its worst-case estimate of how much oil could spew from the blown-out well. The Unified Command — the government team in charge of the spill response — also was discussing the possibility of making the numbers public, the report says.

The report shows "the political process was in charge and science really does not have the role that was touted," said Christopher D'Elia, dean of environmental studies at Louisiana State University.

The White House budget office has traditionally been a clearinghouse for administration domestic policy. Why exactly the administration didn't want to emphasize the worst-case scenario is not made clear in the report.

However, Kenneth Baer, a spokesman for the Office of Management and Budget, said the budget office had concerns about the reliability of the NOAA estimates.

"The issue was the modeling, the science and the assumptions they were using to come up with their analysis. Not public relations or presentation," he said. "We offered NOAA suggestions of ways to improve their analysis, and they happily accepted it."

Members of the Westboro Baptist Church picket in front of the Supreme Court in Washington on Wednesday.

High court: Does father's pain trump free speech?

By Mark Sherman
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Supreme Court justices, in a rare public display of sympathy, strongly suggested Wednesday they would like to rule for a dead Marine's father against fundamentalist church members who picketed his son's funeral — but aren't sure they can.

Left unresolved after an hourlong argument that explored the limits of the First Amendment: Does the father's emotional pain trump the protesters' free speech rights?

The difficulty of the constitutional issue was palpable in the courtroom as the justices weighed the case of Albert Snyder. His son died in Iraq in 2006, and members of a family-dominated church in Topeka, Kan., protested at the funeral to express their view that U.S. deaths in Afghanistan and Iraq are God's punishment for American immorality and tolerance of homosexuality and abortion.

Margie Phelps, arguing the case for her family's Westboro Baptist Church, said the message of the protests at military funerals and elsewhere is, "Nation, hear this little church. If you want them to stop dying, stop sinning."

Phelps' argument did not endear her to the justices, who asked repeatedly whether Snyder had any recourse.

"This is a case about exploiting a private family's grief," said Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg, who questioned whether the First Amendment should protect the church members.

Could a wounded soldier sue someone who demonstrates "outside the person's home, the person's workplace, outside the person's church ... saying these kinds of things: 'You are a war criminal,' whatever these signs say or worse?" Justice Elena Kagan asked.

Justice Samuel Alito wanted to know if the Constitution also would shield someone who delivers a mean-spirited account of a soldier's death to the serviceman's grandmother while she's leaving her grandson's grave. "She's waiting to take a bus back home," Alito imagined and someone approaches to talk about the roadside bomb that killed the soldier. "Let me describe it for you, and I am so happy that this happened. I only wish I were there. I only wish that I could have taken pictures of it! And on and on. Now, is that protected by the First Amendment?"

Snyder, of York, Pa., is asking the court to reinstate a $5 million verdict against the Westboro members who held signs outside the Westminster, Md., funeral of Lance Cpl. Matthew Snyder, including ones that read "Thank God for Dead Soldiers," "You're Going to Hell" and "God Hates the USA.'" The 20-year-old Marine was killed in a Humvee accident in 2006.

The church also posted a poem on its website that assailed Snyder and his ex-wife for the way they brought up Matthew.

Phelps said the court has never allowed a speaker to be held liable for remarks on a topic of public interest, in this case U.S. war deaths. She also suggested that the court would find it difficult to draw a line that would protect grieving families without imposing significant limits on unpopular speech.

Sheriff: Ohio mom killed 2 children, then herself

CARROLLTON, Ohio (AP) — A woman shot and killed her two children in their beds before committing suicide Wednesday morning in their rural home, authorities said.

Carroll County Sheriff Dale Williams said the woman's father notified police at around 7:30 a.m. Wednesday. The man was in the house at the time but didn't witness the shootings, the sheriff said.

The shooting, which took place in a rural town about 20 miles southeast of Canton, left the 24-year-old woman and her two children — a 6-year-old girl and an 18-month-old boy — dead.

Investigators were checking a note found at the home, but no immediate motive was offered, Williams said. The bodies were taken for autopsies at the Stark County coroner's office, he said.

The children had different fathers, both of whom apparently lived outside the area, Williams said. Detailed information on the victims' identities was being withheld until the men and other family members are notified, he said.

Carrollton school Superintendent Palmer Fogler said the 6-year-old was a first-grader in the district.

Several people hugged and consoled one another in the driveway of the house, situated at the edge of a grassy hill and cordoned off by a paddock-style white fence.

After 25 years on the run, Nevada mom arrested

By Scott Sonner
Associated Press Writer

RENO, Nev. — A 32-year-old Nevada woman who was unaware that her mother abducted her as a child from New Jersey inadvertently alerted authorities when the daughter tried to change her name to get married, police said Wednesday.

Nancy Dunsavage Fiedler, 57, of Incline Village, was arrested Tuesday at her home near Lake Tahoe after she admitted to being the woman named on a fugitive warrant issued in New Jersey 25 years ago, the Washoe County sheriff's office said.

Fiedler, who was using the alias Debbie Reed in Nevada, did not have custody of 6-year-old Eva Marie Fiedler when the two disappeared during a break in a custody hearing in August 1984 in Somerville, N.J., New Jersey prosecutors said.

Eva Fiedler has been living with her mother at Incline Village, about 30 miles southwest of Reno, and apparently didn't know her mother was wanted or anything else about the case, said Sgt. Frank Roman, commander of major crimes for the Somerset County Prosecutor's office in New Jersey.

"It is still a very active investigation, but we believe she was not aware of this, no," Roman told The Associated Press.

Roman said that Eva Fiedler should be treated as a victim in the case, but "it's not like she was ever in any danger or anything like that."

The bizarre chain of events began to unfold Tuesday in Nevada when Eva Fiedler went to the Washoe County clerk's office to get her name changed to Melissa Reed to obtain a marriage license, said A. Peter DeMarco Jr., the acting prosecutor in Somerset County, N.J. It was not immediately known why Fiedler did not want to use her real name.

The fugitive warrant for Nancy Fiedler was issued on June 28, 1985, after she failed to appear for an arraignment charging her with interference with custody, DeMarco said. The girl's father had full custody at the time of the original hearing in New Jersey in Aug. 23, 1984, he said.

Trio wins Nobel for key chemistry tool

NEW YORK (AP) — A method for building complex molecules has paid off by helping to fight cancer, protect crops and make electronic devices — and now it has earned its developers a Nobel Prize.

Three men — two Japanese scientists and an American researcher — designed the technique to bind together carbon atoms, a key step in assembling the skeletons of organic compounds used in medicine, agriculture and electronics.

Their work in the 1960s and 1970s provided "one of the most sophisticated tools available to chemists today (and) vastly improved the possibilities for chemists to create sophisticated chemicals," the Nobel committee said.

The winners are Richard Heck, 79, a professor emeritus at the University of Delaware, now living in the Philippines; Ei-ichi Negishi, 75, a chemistry professor at Purdue University in West Lafayette, Ind., and Akira Suzuki, 80, a retired professor from Hokkaido University in Sapporo, Japan.

Carbon atoms are normally shy about pairing up. The winning approach was to use atoms of the metal palladium kind of like a singles bar, a place where pairs of carbon atoms are jammed together and encouraged to bond. This idea, called palladium-catalyzed cross coupling, was easier to do than previous methods.

Heck published his initial work in 1968 and an improved method in 1972. In 1977, Negishi developed a variant of the palladium approach and two years later Suzuki developed another.

Altogether, their methods are now widely used in industry and research.

Sludge-hit Hungarian villagers demand payment

By Pablo Gorondi and George Jahn
Associated Press writers

KOLONTAR, Hungary — There was no stopping the avalanche of toxic red sludge: It smashed through the door of Kati Holczer's house, trapping the mother and her toddler in a sea of caustic waste.

She saved her 3-year-old son, Bence, by placing him on a sofa that was floating in the muck. Then she called her husband Balazs, who was working in Austria, to say goodbye.

"We're going to die," she told him, chest-deep in the acrid mud.

After the terror came the pain: Holczer and her two rescuers were among dozens of villagers suffering from deep chemical burns following Monday's spill.

Their fox terrier Mazli — his name means "Luck" in Hungarian — lay dead in the yard Wednesday, still chained to a stake. Luca, their Labrador, was swept away by the 9-foot-high wave of toxic waste that poured from a breached reservoir at a nearby alumina factory.

The ecological catastrophe that is threatening the Danube River — one of Europe's main waterways — has left a trail of shattered lives.

On Wednesday, furious villagers, their shoes splattered with the caustic red mud, crowded around an official of the company blamed for the disaster and demanded compensation for destroyed homes, fields and livelihoods. Authorities have ordered a criminal inquiry into the accident, which killed at least four people, injured 120 and left three people missing.

After bursting from the reservoir and flooding three villages Monday, the sludge

An aerial view shows excavators working Wednesday to repair a broken dyke that released a flood of toxic red mud Monday at an alumina factory near Ajka, about 100 miles southwest of Budapest, Hungary.

— a waste product of aluminum production that can contain heavy metals — ended up in the Marcal River, part of the tributary system feeding the Danube, some 45 miles to the north. Hundreds of people were evacuated.

Local streams were swollen by the sludge, and residents said they were empty of fish.

Imre Szakacs, head of the county crisis management committee, told the state-run MTI news agency the slurry was expected to reach the Danube by the weekend or early next week. Chemical analyses of the sludge were ongoing Wednesday.

However, Kolontar Mayor Karoly Tili told The Associated Press the material was not radioactive as feared.

"We can say for sure that according to the measurements there is no radioactivity," he said.

Still, concerns grew about damage to marine life in the region and beyond. South of Hungary, the 1,775-mile Danube flows through Croatia, Serbia, Romania, Bulgaria, Ukraine and Moldova before emptying into the Black Sea.

Hungary's National Rescue Service said engineers considered diverting the Marcal River into nearby fields but decided not to, fearing the damage would be too great.

Workers were extracting sludge from the river and using plaster and acid to try to neutralize it. Initial measurements showed the sludge was extremely alkaline, with a pH value of 13, the agency said.

The European Union said it feared the toxic flood could turn into an ecological disaster and urged Hungarian authorities to focus on keeping the sludge from reaching the Danube.

"It is important that we do .... everything possible that it would not endanger the Danube," EU Environment Commissioner Janez Potocnik told the AP in Brussels. "We have to do this very moment everything possible ... (to) limit the extent of the damage."

"This is a serious environmental problem," EU spokesman Joe Hennon said. "We are concerned, not just for the environment in Hungary, but this could potentially cross borders."

Greenpeace was more even emphatic.

The sludge spill is "one of the top three environmental disasters in Europe in the last 20 or 30 years," said Herwit Schuster, a spokesman for Greenpeace International.

Angry villagers gathered outside the mayor's office in Kolontar late Wednesday had more immediate concerns, as they berated a senior official of MAL Rt., the Hungarian Aluminum Production and Trade Company that owns the Ajkai Timfoldgyar plant, demanding compensation.

Local officials said 34 homes in the village were unlivable. However, furious residents said the disaster had destroyed the whole community by making their real estate valueless.

"The whole settlement should be bulldozed into the ground," bellowed Janos Potza, straining to be heard above his neighbors. "There's no point for anyone to go back home."

"Those who can, will move out of Kolontar. From now on, this is a dead town," fumed Beata Gasko Monek.

Visibly shaken, Jozsef Deak, the company's operations manager, said it would not shy away from taking responsibility if found guilty. He spoke from the passenger seat of a police cruiser, using its speaker system as villagers crowded around.

Two days after the red torrent disgorged an estimated 35 million cubic feet of toxic waste, it was not known why part of the dike collapsed.

National Police Chief Jozsef Hatala was heading the investigation into the spill because of its importance and complexity, police spokeswoman Monika Benyi said. Investigators would look into whether on-the-job carelessness was a factor, she said.

The huge reservoir, more than 1,000 feet long and 1,500 feet wide, was no longer leaking Wednesday and a triple-tiered protective wall was being built around its damaged section. Interior Minister Sandor Pinter said guards have been posted at the site to give an early warning in case of any new emergency.

Greenpeace workers took sludge samples on Tuesday and were having them tested to determine whether they contain heavy metals.

Red sludge is a byproduct of the refining of bauxite into alumina, the basic material for manufacturing aluminum. Treated sludge is often stored in ponds where the water eventually evaporates, leaving behind a dried red clay-like soil.

U.S. apologizes to Pakistan for deaths in airstrike

By Jonathan S. Landay
McClatchy Newspapers

KABUL, Afghanistan — The U.S. apologized Wednesday for the deaths of two Pakistani paramilitary troops and the wounding of four others in a cross-border airstrike by U.S. helicopters that prompted Islamabad to close two vital supply routes used by the U.S.-led force in Afghanistan.

The latest flare-up comes as the Obama administration steps up public and private pressure on Pakistan to crack down on the Afghan Taliban and allied groups. The Wall Street Journal reported Wednesday that a new White House report to Congress says bluntly that Pakistan's civilian and military leaders have been unwilling to attack al-Qaida and other terrorist groups.

Officials in Washington said that intensified strikes inside Pakistan by manned and pilotless aircraft — and reportedly also by U.S.-trained Afghan fighters — are an effort to pressure Pakistan to move against the Haqqani network, an insurgent group based in Pakistan's North Waziristan tribal area.

"The message is clear: If you won't act, we will," said one U.S. official in Washington, who requested anonymity because he was not authorized to talk to the news media about the issue.

Many U.S. officials think that elements within the Pakistani military are backing Islamist insurgent groups as part of a strategy to install a pro-Pakistan government in Kabul.

Wednesday's apology by the U.S. ambassador to Pakistan, Anne Patterson, came after the U.S.-led force in Afghanistan announced that a joint investigation into the Sept. 30 incident conducted with the Pakistani military found that the U.S. helicopters mistook the paramilitary troops for insurgents.

"We extend our deepest apology to Pakistan and the families of the Frontier Scouts who were killed and injured," Patterson said. "Pakistan's brave security forces are our allies in a war that threatens both Pakistan and the U.S."

In Kabul, U.S. Army Gen. David Petraeus, the commander of the U.S.-led International Security Assistance Force, or ISAF, also issued a statement, saying that the force "offers its deepest sympathy and condolences to the families of those killed and injured. We deeply regret this tragic loss of life."

Intense Spartans sweep Burley

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

RUPERT — A few rotation adjustments and a higher intensity level was all the Minico Spartans needed.

After dropping a tight four-set volleyball match to their Mini-Cassia rivals earlier this season, the Spartans bounced back to beat Burley 25-17, 27-25, 25-10 on Wednesday.

Minico, which moved to 3-8 overall and 2-6 in Great Basin Conference, switched its middles and started Chelsea Hepworth on the front row to maximize the Spartans’ strength at the net.

“Minico was very aggressive on the nets,” said Burley coach Tiffany Green. “They were a good team tonight. This was a different team than we’ve seen from Minico.”

“We’ve waited a long time for them to play with that intensity.”

Hepworth was all over the court, tallying eight blocks, nine kills and seven digs. Kaylee Kostka helped spearhead the attack with 23 assists and freshman Hannah Bailey had five kills and 10 digs.

“We’ve waited a long time for them to play with that intensity,” said Minico coach Kris Christensen. “We’ve worked really hard to get to this point and hopefully it will carry through.”

In the pivotal second game, Minico led the entire way until Burley clawed back to tie, 19-19. Burley seemed to take control, 24-22, on Jessica Laumb’s kill, but Hepworth answered with a kill of her own. The teams went back-and-forth trading errors until a diving dig by Bailey floated over the net and landed in the middle of the Bobcats for the decisive point.

“Defensively we were slow and didn’t seem to be reading the ball and reacting well,” said Green. “We’ve just got to make some changes and keep going in the right direction.”

The Spartans were solid defensively, as Tiffany Joyce had nine digs and Tylo Coleflesh and Dayna Phillips tallied seven digs apiece. Minico was

Tjong-A-Tjoe: BSU tackle is one of a kind

By Jason Chatraw
Times-News correspondent

BOISE — Ask Ricky Tjong-A-Tjoe to give you some background for how a 6-foot-3-inch, 292-pound Surinamese defensive lineman from the Netherlands found his way to Boise State, and he just shakes his head and laughs.

“The guys on the team are always making fun of me because I don’t know what I am,” said the redshirt freshman, who is fluent in three languages. “Sometimes, I’m white. Sometimes, I’m black. Sometimes, I’m Latino. It’s crazy.”

With his half-Chinese paternal grandfather and other Indian relatives, Tjong-A-Tjoe’s family tree may look more like the roots of a mangrove. But there’s no doubt about what he is on the football field — a blossoming young defensive tackle.

“I didn’t think I would even get to play much this season,” Tjong-A-Tjoe said convincingly and with sincere humility. “I was thinking in fall camp maybe I could be on the third string. And if I played really well, I could maybe travel. But I didn’t think I would land on second string playing as much as I am.”

After not playing in the season opener against Virginia Tech, Tjong-A-Tjoe has not only played but made a significant contribution to the Broncos’ defensive line, which has been hampered by nagging injuries early in the season.

In three games, Tjong-A-Tjoe has 12 tackles, including three tackles for loss and 1.5 sacks. Not bad for a guy who spent all of last season on the scout team.

Even head coach Chris Petersen has taken note of Tjong-A-Tjoe’s rapid advancement.

“Ricky is still pretty raw,” Petersen said. “I think he has made a lot of progress being over here for a year after high school. He is working on his learning techniques — and those things are easier said than done. You can’t think about it. It takes a while to get those things ingrained in you. We just need to get him to play hard on every down.”

Playing hard on every down is a new concept for Tjong-A-Tjoe, one he addresses without shame as he recalls why.

“Before I came to play (in the U.S.), I didn’t play with any technique,” says Tjong-A-Tjoe, who played club level nine-man football in Amsterdam before playing his senior season at Boise High. “I used to just rely on being big. Now I know I have to get better with my technique and my intensity. I need to fire off the ball on every play, too, and I’m working on it — I think it’s just more laziness than anything.”

Shoshone bounces back by blitzing Hansen

By David Bashore

HANSEN — Garrett Sant and Shane Walsh didn’t want to talk about the 72 points their team had just hung on Hansen.

Instead, all they wanted to do was talk up Shoshone’s improved defense.

The Indians clamped down to allow a late third-quarter touchdown for Hansen’s only second-half points, and the offense exploded for four touchdowns to invoke the mercy rule with 17 seconds to spare in the third quarter in a 72-26 win at Hansen on Wednesday to spoil the Huskies’ homecoming festivities.

Walsh, who scored three touchdowns including an electrifying 85-yard punt return, said the first half was carryover from the Indians’ first loss of the season, last week at Hagerman. But once they got it going, they broke open a reasonably tight game.

Hansen’s Kevin Fuller brings down Shoshone’s Shane Walsh short of the goal line Wednesday evening in Hansen.

“We played terrible on defense in the first half. It took us that half to work out the kinks from against Hagerman,” Walsh said. “But we knew it was important to make a statement after that game — that we’re the real deal and we’re not that bad.”

Shoshone (5-1, 2-1 Snake River) took control of the game late in the first quarter when it recovered a fumble from Hansen quarterback Kevin Fuller at the Huskies’ 5-yard line to set up a 1-yard quarterback sneak by Sant to make it 14-6 for the Indians.

After Hansen (3-4, 1-3) stopped Shoshone at the 1 on the next possession, Fuller was intercepted by Julio Garcia on the goal line and he coasted across for the score. Walsh then returned a punt to cap a 20-point blitz.

“That changed the tempo of the game,” said Hansen coach

BOYS AND GIRLS GEAR UP FOR DISTRICT SOCCER

Coaches say GBC boys soccer tournament is wide open | Bruins, Wolverines girls heavy favorites in GBC tourney

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

Welcome to a better, shorter meat grinder. In years past the Great Basin Conference boys soccer tournament was fairly predictable. Last season, and in the two editions prior as the Great Basin Conference West Tournament, it was Jerome and everyone else.

This year, coaches say, it's so even you might as well drop all six names in a hat and draw two out.

"Flip a coin every game," said Canyon Ridge coach Brian Gillenwater. "We played Jerome 2-0 (in the most recent meeting) and they're the top seed and we're the bottom seed. That's literally the difference in the league."

What has been a long, slow grind through the regular season will come to a crashing halt with an abbreviated tournament schedule. Last season's true double-elimination format resulted in key injuries to players on both state tournament-bound teams after they had already qualified.

That was one of the reasons the tournament will be a modified double-elimination format, meaning the last team to remain unbeaten will be the district champion, and the other five will fight for the conference's second state tournament berth until there's one left with just one loss.

As to which five that will be, well, it's anyone's guess. "The way everyone is playing, it's pretty even, so you're not sure," said Minico coach Armando Tapia, whose squad is seeded fifth. "It's made it a fun season when there are opportunities for all the teams."

The Spartans appeared to be stumbling across the finish line after a hot start to the season, but Tapia told his team it's time for forget about the mistakes that plagued them down the stretch and start anew.

Top-seeded Jerome's only loss all season came at Wood River, which is seeded second. The Wolverines also handed fourth-seeded Burley its only setback of the conference schedule. The Bobcats drew seven of their 10 conference matches, which prevented them from leaping Wood River and Twin Falls to earn the other first-round bye.

"We've been right there every game," said Burley coach Wes Nyblade. "We've had so many opportunities and created good offense, we just haven't capitalized on them."

The tournament begins today when Canyon Ridge visits Twin Falls and Minico trips to Burley. Twin Falls was to host Minico and Canyon Ridge was supposed to go to Burley, but the Riverhawks fielded an ineligible player in their Tuesday win over Twin Falls, giving the Bruins the three points they needed to jump Burley into third place.

Saturday's second round will be played at Sunway Soccer Complex alongside the girls tournament and both Class 3A district tournaments. The GBC championship match participants will be decided amongst the chaos of 24 teams playing on four fields in the space of six hours.

Fitting, given the parity.

"The tournament's going to be tough," said Twin Falls coach Ben Harman. "Each team has some strengths that the others don't, but generally we're all pretty evenly-matched. It's going to be interesting, and it'll make for some fun soccer."

The Great Basin Conference boys soccer tournament is as even as they come. The girls tournament, on the other hand, figures to be nothing short of predictable.

Two teams, Twin Falls and Wood River, dominated the other four schools in the conference. The Bruins and Wolverines finished tied for the regular-season title and only suffered losses to each other, with the home team winning 3-1 in both of their encounters.

Crucially, the Bruins won the coin flip for top seed and home-field advantage in the tournament. Should both teams cruise through to the district championship game as expected, it'll be in Twin Falls and not in Hailey.

"It's been a long time coming. The girls have been working towards that all season. We're excited going into the tournament," said Twin Falls coach Katie Kauffman.

The Bruins lost on penalty kicks at Wood River last season as the Wolverines claimed their sixth successive district championship. Both teams struggled at the state tournament, a trend they'll be looking to head off should they both qualify for this year's edition, held in Post Falls in two weeks.

Both teams have put themselves so far above the other four teams in the league that most outsiders have a tough time seeing the tournament come out any other way than a Twin Falls-Wood River championship match.

But Burley and Canyon Ridge, the third and fourth seeds, respectively, have come on strong toward the end of the season and could be poised to spring a surprise if neither team brings its "A" game.

While Burley coach Sara Edwards said her team has struggled with Wood River, the Bobcats have been more competitive against Twin Falls.

"I think they're definitely beatable," said Edwards. "We just have to play the way we can the entire game."

The tournament starts today with Canyon Ridge hosting Jerome and Minico visiting rival Burley, before play shifts to Sunway Soccer Complex on Saturday.

For Minico and Burley, today's meeting is the second matchup in three days, with the Bobcats winning 2-1 on Tuesday.

"The girls are excited," said Edwards, who added that her team was disappointed in its play despite the win Tuesday. "We're definitely going to come out stronger (today)."

LOCAL ROUNDUP

Pacheco, Murtaugh stomp Jackpot

Times-News

Humberto Pacheco scored five touchdowns as Murtaugh cashed in a 54-8 win over Jackpot on Wednesday. Pacheco caught touchdown passes of 8, 60 and 80 yards from Austin Stanger and added a 45-yard scoring run and a 30-yard interception return for a score as the Red Devils invoked the mercy rule by halftime.

Murtaugh (4-3, 3-2 Sawtooth Conference South) got solid efforts from its three seniors — Jose Gonzales, Lizandro Sosa, Bryan Venegas — on senior night, with Sosa scoring on touchdown runs of 42 and 23 yards. In addition to his three TD passes, Stanger opened the scoring with a 45-yard jaunt.

Murtaugh can all but earn its first postseason bid in several years with a win over Lighthouse Christian next week.

That would give the Red Devils the inside track to at worst third place in the Sawtooth South, which plays the third team from the Sawtooth North for a state tournament berth.

"That would be huge for us," said Murtaugh coach Adam Johnson.

CASTLEFORD 60, MAGIC VALLEY CHRISTIAN 6

Cody Quinn scored on a 65-yard touchdown run, a 55-yard punt return and a 90-yard kickoff return as Castleford blitzed Magic Valley Christian 60-6. The game ended at halftime on the mercy rule.

Sophomore Ty Zimmers turned eight carries into 123 yards and two touchdowns, including a 53-yard scoring scamper for the Wolves.

Castleford (6-0) gave its junior varsity players plenty of time against the Conquerors, who got their lone score on Robert Ryder's 55-yard fumble return.

Boys soccer

BUHL 3, BLISS 0

Buhl got second-half goals from Daniel Peralta, Alex Arizmendi and Juan Perez in a 3-0 road win over Bliss on Wednesday. The Indians (5-7-2, 5-4-2 HDSC, 17 pts.) take the No. 3 seed into the district tournament, facing Declo at noon on Saturday.

Bliss fell to 3-11 overall (1-11 HDSC, 3 pts.).

"We played a fairly good game, but Buhl played really well," said Bliss coach Mike Casten. The Bears open postseason play against second-seeded Gooding at 10 a.m. Saturday.

GOODING 4, COMMUNITY SCHOOL 1

Gooding scored four goals in a 10-minute span of the second half to beat the Community School 4-1 on Wednesday.

After a scoreless first half, the Cutthroats took the lead in the 55th minute when Tim Kanellitsas scored on a shot from 30 yards out.

But Gooding countered quickly, beginning in the 65th minute to take the win on two goals by Fredrico Mendez and scores by Jose Rodriguez and Luis Patino.

Tom Crosby had seven saves for Community School, while Cameron Jenner was named "man of the match."

Gooding (10-2-0 HDSC, 30 pts.) is the No. 2 seed for the Class 3A District IV tournament and faces Bliss on Saturday. The Community School (5-7-1, 4-6-1 HDSC, 13 pts.) opens against Filer.

FILER 2, DECLO 1

Declo lost to Filer 2-1 on senior night to wrap up the regular season.

The Wildcats struck first as Zach Clark netted goal in the 34th minute to give Filer the 1-0 lead at halftime. Declo fell behind 2-0 on an own goal in the 70th minute.

The Hornets finally got on the board as freshman Brian Christenson scored his first career goal in the 75th minute.

"It was a good effort by the guys on senior night. We got great player participation from the entire team," said Declo coach Tim Henrickson.

Declo (2-13-0, 2-10-0 High Desert, 6 pts.) plays Buhl on Saturday to begin district play while Filer (6-9-1, 5-6-1, 16 pts.) plays Community School.

Girls soccer

BLISS 4, BUHL 2

Behind Demsie Butler's two goals and exceptional team defense, Bliss defeated Buhl Wednesday 4-2 to wrap up the regular season.

"This was the best game the girls have ever played," said Bliss coach Diana Butler. "Our defense was amazing at clearing the ball. It was just a great effort."

Estephanie Altamirano and Linsay James also pitched in goals for Bliss (7-4-1, High Desert 22 pts.) which will play Declo on Saturday in district play. Buhl (9-5, 8-4, High Desert, 24 pts) plays Gooding on Saturday.

FILER 6, DECLO 1

Candra Coelho recorded a hat trick to lead Filer over Declo 6-1 Wednesday.

Lidya Guedara, Anna Williams and Allie Hull each scored one goal to round out the scoring for the Wildcats.

"Offensively we got some really good plays. We passed the ball great and some great crosses into the box," said Filer coach Shane Hild.

Filer (9-6-1, 8-3-1 High Desert, 25 pts.) plays Wendell on Saturday to begin district play.

COMMUNITY SCHOOL 6, GOODING 0

Six different players scored as the Community School capped an unbeaten run through High Desert Soccer Conference play with a 6-0 win over Gooding on Wednesday. Jordan Fitzgerald, Ellie Swanson and Hannah Dies each had a goal and an assist, while Freya Dickey, Hailey Reinschild and Emi Carr netted goals.

The Cutthroats (13-2, 12-0 High Desert, 36 pts.) get a first-round bye for the district tournament and will host either Bliss or Declo on Monday.

Volleyball

BUHL 3, GLENN'S FERRY 0

Buhl easily swept Glenns Ferry Wednesday night 25-21, 25-11, 25-15.

Katherine Hunter led the Indians with 13 kills while Cassidee Kippes dished out 16 assists. Kippes and Arly Pettinger each recorded two aces.

"We came out a little slow in game one, but really picked it up in games two and three," said Buhl coach Denny Moretto.

Buhl moves to 10-6 on the season and hosts Gooding at home on Tuesday.

He's back: Vikings get Moss from Patriots in trade

EDEN PRAIRIE, Minn. — Brett Favre finally got his wish. He will be playing with Randy Moss and the Vikings couldn't be happier about it.

The Super-Bowl-or-bust Vikings got Moss from New England on Wednesday for a 2011 draft pick, another eye-opening acquisition that comes just in time to rejuvenate a stagnant offense for a challenging stretch of games.

The Patriots gave the seven-time Pro Bowl wide receiver the exit he expected and sent him back to the team that turned him into a superstar after drafting him in the first round in 1998.

There are still plenty of fond memories around here of Moss's electrifying performances, along with his colorful comments and contrarian behavior.

"He can still go downtown and get the football, which is a stand-alone factor," Vikings coach Brad Childress said. "He could sprain his toe here sometime coming up, and you could say that he's 33, it's old age. But there's always risk-reward. I don't necessarily see this as boom or bust. I think he's got some more football in him."

The Vikings play at New York on Monday night, and Childress said without hesitation Moss would be in uniform against the Jets — in his old purple No. 84.

"Man, we wish this would have happened a week later," Jets running back LaDainian Tomlinson said.

PORTIS THINKS HE'LL MISS REDSKINS GAME VS PACKERS

ASHBURN, Va. — Clinton Portis doesn't think his injured groin will allow him to play in the Washington Redskins' game this week against the Green Bay Packers.

Portis told 106.7 The Fan on Tuesday that he's awaiting the results of an MRI on his left groin, which he injured in Sunday's 17-12 win over Philadelphia.

"I don't think the team would even let me attempt to go and try to play on Sunday," Portis said. "But who knows? ... I'm going to take my time and make sure I'm healed."

MARSHAWN LYNCH ARRIVES WITH NEW TEAM IN SEATTLE

RENTON, Wash. — In college at California, Marshawn Lynch couldn't stand Pete Carroll, wishing somehow he could lay a hit on the Southern California coach.

"He was one of the only coaches you would see running up and down the field like he was playing in the game," Lynch said Wednesday after his first practice with the Seattle Seahawks. "Running up, jumping and having fun with his players. They were over there dogging us and you just sit there watching them have all this fun (thinking), 'Man, what is he doing? Run me to that sideline so I can hit him one time.'"

Now Lynch can't wait to see all of Carroll's theatrics, considering he's providing Lynch a fresh start in his NFL career.

After months of debate over Lynch's future in Buffalo, the former first-round pick was finally dealt to Seattle in exchange for a pair of future draft picks.

And true to Carroll's word, the Seahawks didn't waste any time in getting Lynch on the field and trying to fix a floundering run game.

After arriving in Seattle around 11 p.m. on Tuesday night, Lynch was at Seahawks headquarters around 6 a.m. Wednesday and on the practice field a few hours later.

"I feel this change is a great opportunity for me, not only in football, but in life as well," Lynch said. "Everything that happened with me I feel is an opportunity, the things that come out of it, the way I handle it. This is another one and I plan to handle this situation just as good as I handled the rest. I say that because I'm still here standing."

PREP RALLY

High School High Five

Buhl at Canyon Ridge
7 p.m.

Radio: none
The skinny: Two teams seeking to build momentum collide in a nonconference matchup. Buhl's ground game is the focus as the Indians (3-2, 1-0 SCIC) hope to establish the run to open up passing lanes, while Canyon Ridge (2-3, 1-2 GBC) wants to force Buhl to go to the air. Buhl continues to tweak its offensive line personnel to find the right mix with a matchup against Kimberly looming next week for the SCIC title. Coming off a win over Burley, Canyon Ridge is seeking its first-ever winning streak.
Buhl coach Stacy Wilson: "We always like playing the 4A schools. ... We like that kind of challenge. Our kids like the challenge of being able to compete with a 4A school."
Canyon Ridge coach Bill Hicks: "I think (our team's) pretty motivated. Buhl's a good team, they're pretty quick. We know we have to play well to beat them."

Kimberly at Burley

Radio: 1230 AM
The skinny: Burley (0-5) seeks its first win as it hosts Kimberly (3-2) in a non-conference matchup of similar smash-mouth running styles. Don't expect much passing in this one. Burley's double wing offense is similar to a Sugar-Salem attack that beat Kimberly 30-8 last week. Kimberly will be without running back Cody Caspersen and tight end/linebacker Jade Wadsworth, who are healing up from injuries.
Kimberly coach Kirby Bright: "The double wing has been a nemesis for us. We have to make sure we can defend that and make tackles."
Burley senior Branson Handy: "We're preparing to stop their big plays. That's what killed us (in a 21-14 loss last week) against Canyon Ridge. Our defense needs to shut down big plays and our offense needs to break big plays. We haven't had a big play on offense for two games."

Minico at Wood River
7 p.m.

Radio: 970 AM
The skinny: Wood River (2-3, 0-2 GBC) reaches the end of an arduous three-game stretch in which it traveled to Jerome and Twin Falls and now hosts Minico (3-2, 2-0 GBC). The past two weeks Minico has averaged 46 points while its starting defense has allowed just one touchdown. Wood River, which lacked depth to begin with, has been hit by injuries and will suit up 20 players.
Minico coach Tim Perrigot: "Kevin Stilling is doing a good job as a coach. He has installed a Wing T offense that is productive and controls the clock. ... We are coming off two big emotional wins and are starting to play with confidence."
Wood River coach Kevin Stilling: "When we wanted to, we did some good things against Jerome and Twin Falls. If we start the game playing the way we've shown we're capable of playing, we should be able to compete. Whether we have 16 kids or 60, we don't really care."

Filer at Gooding
7 p.m.

Radio: none
The skinny: Filer visits Gooding in a nonconference matchup after losing to SCIC foe Buhl last week. The Wildcats will ride the legs of running backs Jacob Bogner, Jordan Brown and Ryan Orr in the double-wing offense. In preparation this week, Gooding's defense preached doing it jobs perfectly. On offense Gooding counters with running back Casey Pierson who has rushed for more than 200 yards twice this season.
Filer coach Russ Burnum: "The mental aspect is huge. We had too many crucial penalties last week that just killed us. We're looking for momentum going into this game."
Gooding coach Cameron Anderson: "Filer is a team that has the potential to beat anybody. They beat Declo which is still one of the best teams in the state. Bogner, Brown and Orr are tough, hard-nosed football players."

Wendell at Glenns Ferry
7 p.m.

The skinny: It's rivalry night as Wendell and Glenns Ferry play for the Sellers-Messery trophy. The Pilots (1-4, 0-1 Canyon Conference) won the matchup last year, but are just 1-4 in 2010. Still, they've shown progress in recent weeks, according to head coach Robb Spriggs. But Wendell has a clear size advantage in the trenches and could ride that to offensive success tonight. The Trojans (2-3, 1-1 Canyon) have had an up-and-down season, but would gain major momentum with a win over their chief rival. While Glenns Ferry is the home team, expect plenty of Wendell fans in the stands for this one, which should yield a great environment.
Glenns Ferry coach Rob Spriggs: "Wendell is always the game on the schedule the kids look forward to all year. It doesn't matter how each team is playing, it's always a good game. I don't really have to get them excited for this one."

HIGH 5 BONUS GAMES

Valley at Declo
7 p.m.

Radio: none
The skinny: Declo (2-3, 1-0 Canyon) broke a three-game losing streak with an impressive 52-6 win over Wendell last week. Meanwhile, Valley (2-3, 0-2 Canyon) has hit a three-game skid of its own and the Vikings must win tonight to keep their state playoff hopes alive. Valley will lean on dynamic offensive threat Matt Ivey, while Declo will pound the ball with running backs Mark Knobbe and Kyle Zollinger. With two quarterbacks having gone down with injuries, Declo sophomore Kai Garner will get his first varsity start, as will several other JV call-ups. But Garner did play well coming off the bench in last week's win, passing for 155 yards and four touchdowns as Declo opened conference play in style.
Declo coach Kelly Kidd: "We've gone through (injured) starters all year, so our younger kids are getting opportunities to play. The burden is truly on their shoulders and they've got to get it done. I'm excited to see what they do."

Carey at Dietrich
7 p.m.

The skinny: The early edge in the Sawtooth Conference North race is on the line tonight as Carey visits Dietrich. Controlling the line of scrimmage is pivotal for both teams. Carey (5-1, 2-0 Sawtooth Conference North) is focused on stopping Dietrich's ground game, which gets a boost with the return of running back Dion Norman from injury. The Blue Devils (4-2, 2-0 Sawtooth North) are leery of the Panthers' speed and big-play ability and must play assignment football to keep the points down.
Carey coach Lane Kirkland: "This is probably the biggest conference we'll have outside of maybe Mackay. It's very important to be in the driver's seat going into the playoffs and to be in first place to host in the playoffs."
Dietrich coach Doug Astle: "This is the biggest game we've had to this point, no question. Carey presents us with some problems and hopefully we present them with some problems. ... This is as healthy as we've been all season."

Wybenga leads Oakley volleyball on and off court

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

OAKLEY — Wins have been hard to come by for the Oakley volleyball team this season, but don't expect that to keep Sabrina Wybenga down.

"I just try to be a leader and stay positive, make sure everyone stays up and doesn't get down," she said. "We've just got to work as a team and stay strong."

Wybenga

Times-News Athlete of the week

Perhaps what keeps Wybenga optimistic is her perspective. As a three-year starter in volleyball and basketball, as well as a track athlete, she's seen plenty of ups and downs.

And as she enjoys her senior year, her sights are set on the future. She plans to attend college — although she's unsure where at this point — and hopes to play either basketball or volleyball at the next level.

Plus, Wybenga is well rounded. The National Honors Society member is near the top of her class with a 3.81 GPA while taking college credit classes.

"It keeps me busy," said Wybenga, who lived in California until moving to Oakley in the fifth grade. "My parents really motivate me and get me going."

Coaches and teachers at the school say the best part about Wybenga is her high character, setting an example to the younger students.

While Wybenga leads Oakley volleyball in several statistical categories, the team captain's biggest contribution doesn't show up on the stat sheet.

"She's our most consistent athlete," said Oakley coach Summer Robinson. "She's the hardest working, the most coachable and she has the best attitude out there."

CSI volleyball gears up for brief, tough homestand

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

Going to Colorado Northwestern and Eastern Utah for a couple wins was nice, but now comes the real litmus test.

The College of Southern Idaho volleyball team returns home starting tonight to face three ranked teams in the space of five days, including two squads currently sitting inside the top five.

The 11th-ranked Golden Eagles have kept with what worked last week, soldiering through grueling practices ahead of matches with third-ranked Salt Lake tonight, No. 18 Snow on Saturday and No. 4 Western Wyoming on Monday. They also play Blue Mountain (Ore.) next Thursday in their Dig Pink fundraising match for breast cancer research.

“It’s been really good, in a strange way, for things like team bonding. We’re all fighting against the same thing ... there’s no ‘I can’t’ or ‘I give up,’ it’s one more crunch or one more whatever it is we’re doing,” freshman middle blocker Beth Carey said of the intense workouts. “We’ve just been working on being mentally tough. Nothing’s going to get inside our head or shake us.”

CSI head coach Heidi Cartisser and the rest of the coaching staff have put the players through the wringer the last couple of weeks physically and mentally as part of a vow not to be out-worked after stumbling into conference play.

Any resiliency they’ve gained against adverse circumstances will be thoroughly tested in the pair of top-five matches. CSI’s current three-match home losing skid started against Salt Lake when the Golden Eagles went from within five points of a straight-set victory to wondering how they blew a big fifth-set advantage in a devastating loss.

CSI lost in straight sets against Western Wyoming earlier in the season, but all three sets were lost by the minimum two points.

needed this ... earlier in the season we were on the court in games and I’d feel really tired. But now, no matter how hard people push us, we’re going to respond,” said sophomore right-side Dama Cox. “I’m excited to see what we can bring to the table. # Halladay throws no-hitter

PHILADELPHIA — Roy Halladay threw the second no-hitter in postseason history, leading the Philadelphia Phillies over the Cincinnati Reds 4-0 in Game 1 of the NL division series on Wednesday.

Don Larsen is the only other pitcher to throw a postseason no-hitter. He threw a perfect game for the New York Yankees in the 1956 World Series against Brooklyn. The 54th anniversary of Larsen’s gem is this Friday.

“It’s surreal, it really is,” Halladay said. “I just wanted to pitch here, to pitch in the postseason. To go out and have a game like that, it’s a dream come true.”

Halladay took the Year of the Pitcher into the postseason. The All-Star right-hander, who tossed a perfect game at Florida on May 29, dominated the Reds with a sharp fastball and a devastating slow curve in his first playoff start.

The overmatched Reds never came close to a hit. Halladay allowed only runner, walking Jay Bruce on a full count with two outs in the fifth, and struck out eight.

Halladay spent 12 seasons with Toronto, far from the postseason. A trade last off-season brought him to the defending two-time NL champions, and gave him this chance.

“This is what you come here for,” Halladay said. “It’s a good team, they know how to win. ... It’s been a great year, a fun year, we obviously have a ways to go.”

Halladay even did it at the plate. He ignited a three-run, two-out rally in the second with an RBI single.

On the opposite side, 27-year-old Edinson Volquez allowed four runs and four hits in 1 2-3 innings. The hard-throwing right-hander was 4-3 in 12 starts this season after returning from elbow surgery.

RANGERS 5, RAYS 1

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Picking up where he left off during in a dazzling

October run a year ago, Cliff Lee shut down Tampa Bay while outpitching David Price and leading Texas to a victory in the opening game of the AL playoffs.

Lee matched a postseason best with 10 strikeouts while allowing five hits — one after the second inning. During one dominating stretch, he retired 16 of 17 batters before giving up Ben Zobrist’s homer in the seventh.

The Rangers, in the playoffs for the first time in 11 years, stopped a nine-game postseason losing streak that began in 1996.

Nelson Cruz and Bengie Molina homered for the AL West champions. Darren O’Day and Darren Oliver pitched the eighth, and rookie Neftali Feliz worked out of a ninth-inning jam by striking out the final two batters.

Price, a 19-game winner, allowed five runs and nine hits in 6 2-3 innings. He struck eight and, like Lee, walked none.

YANKEES 6, TWINS 4

MINNEAPOLIS — Mark Teixeira hit a tiebreaking, two-run homer in the seventh inning to rally the New York Yankees over the Minnesota Twins 6-4 Wednesday night in Game 1 of the AL division series.

Yankees ace CC Sabathia labored, but reliever David Robertson fanned Jim Thome in a key spot and Mariano Rivera got the final four outs to close another win for the defending World Series champions. The Yankees rallied from a 3-0 deficit against Francisco Liriano and improved to 10-2 against the Twins in the postseason since 2003.

The Twins played their first outdoor postseason game in Minnesota since 1970. They were hoping a move from the shabby Metrodome outdoors to gorgeous Target Field would turn their fortunes around, but it was more of the same against the Yankees.

overall with a time of 20 minutes, 8 seconds.

“I felt like we really had a reason to run today,” Ward said. “We wanted to run well for her.”

The Bruins had a goal of finishing as the top 4A team, but fell just short as Hillcrest and Jerome finished fourth and fifth, respectively.

Mackenzie Chojnacky led Jerome with a first-place finish in 18:41 — just six seconds off her personal record.

Chojnacky trailed behind Boise’s Kate Jamboretz for the first two miles, before making her move.

“With about a mile left I picked it up and was able to catch her,” Chojnacky said. “I was feeling really good.”

She wasn’t alone at the top as teammate Mikesell Clegg surged ahead with the front pack from the beginning of the race to finish third in 19:01. Jasmine Nesbitt finished eighth (19:55) for the Tigers, giving Jerome three runners in the top 10 to help beat Twin Falls.

“Jerome is really strong with their first three runners,” said Twin Falls coach Marty Grindstaff. “It’s going to be really tight between us and them at regionals. But that will be fun. That’s why you run the races.”

Neither the Bruins nor the Tigers were able to compete with 5A team Mountain View, which won the race with 41 points, placing six runners in the top 18.

The case was the same in the boys race as Mountain View took the team title with 54 points, placing five runners among the top 19.

Highland’s Dallin Farnsworth won the race in 15:50, pulling away from Twin Falls’ Erik Harris about midway through the race.

Harris, who finished second in 16:10, was excited to be so close to Farnsworth, who won the Bob Firman invite earlier this season.

“I didn’t want to go out too fast, but once I saw that the front pack was going at a reasonable pace, I decided to push the pace a bit and move up,” Harris said. “Dillon surged ahead at about the 1.5-mile mark and I just couldn’t keep up. He’s a really good runner, so it was good to pace with him.”

Teammate Karl Lundgren finished ninth with a time of 16:57 to help pace Twin Falls to a sixth-place finish, just ahead of Great Basin Conference foe Wood River, which is without its lead runner James Parris, who is out with a broken foot.

Twin Falls travels to the Mountain Home Invitational meet next weekend before regionals, which are Oct. 20 at the College of Southern Idaho.

Teejay Berry. “We just made too many mistakes. That was 20 free points we gave them.”

Sant threw for 244 yards and two touchdowns and rushed for 34 yards and two more scores.

Hansen was led by Gerrit Peters’ 91 yards and two scores on the ground. But other than three big plays — Fuller’s 53-yard touchdown run, a 55-yard scoring pass from Fuller to Jayme Johnson and a 51-yard touchdown dash by Peters — the Indians held the Huskies in check. Hansen accounted for more than 60 percent of its total offense (159 of 261 yards) on those three plays.

“We knew when they got behind they’d have to pass more and we were able to get to their quarterback a little,” said Sant. “I thought they did a good job on run defense and we had to pass more than we usually do.”

Shoshone hosts Raft River next Friday, while Hansen hosts Hagerman.

Teammate

It may have been a pair of sunglasses, a brick, or even a “No Parking” sign — anything that the team would find along the side of the road on their long runs — the girls would haul it onto the bus and give it to Dani.

“We found all sorts of weird things on the side of the road,” Biedenbach said.

Today, the girls still collect odds and ends on the side of the road, stashing them in a locker. And just like stashing away these items in a locker, the girls have years of memories with Dani stashed away to pull out and smile about.

Like the time the team ran at the Bob Firman Invitational and it rained so hard they thought it would be a good idea to slide on their stomachs across the mud, adding a splash of brown to their blue jerseys.

Or the one of many times singing on the bus after another practice at Shoshone Falls.

“The bus is always a lot of fun,” said junior Lizzie Hegstrom. “It’s like a big happy family. I’ve never been a part of something like this.”

I’m lucky to have been a part of such a close-knit family at my high school.

It’s been five years since I last ran a cross-country race, but those friendships are still the strongest I have.

If we met up today, my teammates and I wouldn’t miss a beat.

We’d tie up our running shoes and catch up right where we left off — on some dirt road somewhere running and talking and laughing and learning about one another.

One mile at a time.

consistent throughout, even when Burley tried to rally.

“For us to accomplish that it’s huge because sometimes we’ve struggled pushing through and not panicking,” Christensen said. “They kept their composure and played with confidence and did a good job.”

Burley (5-13, 3-6 GBC) got 13 assists from Delta Jones and three kills apiece from Emily Wright and Melanie Garrard.

Minico will participate in the Mountain View Invitational this weekend before traveling to Twin Falls on Tuesday. Burley will host Canyon Ridge on Tuesday.

CSI Child Care Center sponsors USDA program

The College of Southern Idaho Child Care Center has announced its sponsorship of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Child and Adult Food Program.

Meals will be made available to enrolled children at no separate charge and without regard to race, color, national origin, sex, age or disability. The meals will be served at the Child Care Center, 315 Falls Ave. in Twin Falls. Families' monthly incomes determine the amount of money USDA will reimburse the sponsoring organization to provide the meals.

The CSI Child Care Center Nutrition Program includes meals that are provided to infants 6 to 12 months of age. At this age, a baby can begin introduction to solid foods. The infant teachers work closely with the parent to meet the individual nutritional needs of each baby. Infant mealtimes provide opportunities for good healthy nutrition, individual

Smith graduates from basic training

Air Force Airman Michael L. Smith graduated from basic military training at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas.

Smith

Smith completed an intensive, eight-week program that included training in military discipline and studies, Air Force core values, physical fitness, and basic warfare principles and skills.

Airmen who complete basic training earn four credits toward an associate in applied science degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

CSI horse show is Saturday, Sunday

The College of Southern Idaho Equestrian Team and the Intercollegiate Horse Show Association will host a western horse show from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Sunday at the CSI Expo Center. It is free and open to the public.

The host school provides all of the horses and tack, and the competitors (students from other colleges in the region) pull a horse's name out of a hat — or pumpkin since it is October — to select the horse they show. The students are not allowed to warm up or ride the horse at all prior to being judged, which is a difficult style of showing since it is focused only on each student's ability. The students are judged on equitation and reining.

Seeking relief for unpleasant post-operative symptoms

DEAR DR. GOTT: I just had surgery on my right shoulder, and the day following, I began vomiting and having gas every time I ate. My doctor blames these events on the anesthesia during my four-hour surgery. Is there anything I can do?

DEAR READER: General anesthesia takes a person from a conscious to an unconscious state so an invasive surgical procedure can be performed. Anesthesiologists, nurse anesthetists and other trained professionals determine the amount of anesthesia to be administered, depending on the procedure to be performed. Some people remain anesthetized for a short time during a relatively simple process and are released the same day. Others, such as yours, take substantially longer and require hospitalization for several days following.

While you didn't mention what surgery was performed, four hours is extensive and could certainly be responsible for the unwanted results.

Some people are fortunate enough not to have any side effects at all. Others can be rather debilitated by them. Side effects commonly appear within a few hours and disappear while a person is still in the recovery room. They can include dehydration, nausea, headache, joint or muscle pain, or a person may feel as if he or she had too much to drink the night before. Unusual but entirely possible side effects can include nightmares, uncontrollable shaking and chills.

Be sure to check with your surgeon if you experience jaundice, weight loss, blood in your stool or have symptoms lasting two weeks or longer. He or she will want to be assured your postoperative recovery is progressing well. Otherwise, the symptoms should resolve on their own.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I read your column faithfully and find my work-related musings and questions addressed there. I would like to comment on your recent instructions to a woman who asked about a diuretic and a potassium pill — that large pills can be crushed in a baggie and be taken with applesauce. Potassium pills are usually quite large and should not be chewed or crushed. Sometimes they can be broken in half or dispensed in a capsule, which can be opened and sprinkled on applesauce or yogurt for ease in swallowing. Or they may be available as a liquid. However, there are a great many pills that should never be crushed. The safety and efficacy of a medication relies on proper administration. Keep up your great work!

DEAR READER: Generally speaking, if a medication should not be crushed or chewed, the prescription label provides the appropriate information, but I was too general in advising readers to crush pills that might be too large to swallow. Additional labeling information often includes whether to take the medication with food or on an empty stomach and the time of day to take it. It may also advise the patient not to drink or drive because of possible drowsiness. Thank you for picking me up on this. Your point is well-taken and a good one.

Rosario Mesina

BURLEY — Rosario Mesina, a resident of Burley for more than 30 years, passed away Monday, Oct. 4, 2010, at her home after an extended illness. She was 57 years old.

Rosario was born Oct. 9, 1952, in Alzada, Colima, Mexico, the daughter of Francisco and Maria Cernas Mesina. She met the love of her life, Leonel Villicana, in 1978 and together, they raised five children. Rosario worked at Ore-Ida Foods for more than 10 years until ill health forced her to retire. She was a very hard worker and was an outstanding homemaker. She loved to cook and was a wonderful dancer! However, most important to Rosario was her family.

She is survived by her loving husband and best friend, Leonel Villicana of Burley; her children, Claudia, Lupe, J. Lionel, Maryelena and Rosario; four grandchildren; and her two brothers, Gabriel Mesina and Salvador Mesina. She was preceded in death by her parents; and three brothers, Israel, Carlos and Jose Mesina.

A funeral Mass will be celebrated at 11 a.m. Thursday, Oct. 7, at the Little Flower Catholic Church, 1601 Oakley Ave. in Burley, with the Rev. Father Marcos Sanchez officiating. Burial will be in the Pleasant View Cemetery. A vigil service will be held at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 6 (this evening), at the Little Flower Catholic Church, where friends and family may call one hour prior to the service.

Company: Electronic monitoring system went down across nation

By Todd Richmond
Associated Press Writer

MADISON, Wis. — An electronic monitoring system tracking sex offenders, parolees and others shut down, leaving authorities in 49 states blind to offenders' movements for about 12 hours, authorities said Wednesday.

A system operated by Boulder, Colo.-based BI Inc. unexpectedly hit its data storage capacity Tuesday morning, which blocked notifications to prisons and other corrections agencies on about 16,000 people being tracked, BI spokesman Jock Waldo said.

Tracking devices continued to record movement, but corrections agencies couldn't immediately view the data. The company has substantially increased its data storage capacity and hasn't heard of any safety issues, Waldo said. People being monitored were unaware of any problems.

"In retrospect, we should have been able to catch this," Waldo said.

In Wisconsin, prison officials had local police and probation agents detain about 140 sex offenders at local jails until the GPS tracking was back up and their whereabouts during the outage could be confirmed.

The offenders were never aware they weren't being tracked, state Department of Corrections spokeswoman Linda Eggert said. The shutdown affected about 300 people in Wisconsin, most of them sex offenders. She said the agency examined the offenders' GPS movements and was certain the shutdown didn't drive anyone to commit a new crime.

BI contracts with about 900 government agencies across the country for monitoring and notification services, including real-time monitoring and delayed notifications about offender whereabouts. The agencies vary widely, Waldo said, from state prison systems to local sheriff's departments to pre-trial service entities.

Along with GPS systems, the outage affected BI's in-home radio monitoring, typically used to check curfew compliance, and alcohol monitoring, which transmits data from home breathalyzer tests, Waldo said.

Before the shutdown, the company's database could hold 2.1 billion records, such as a GPS address or an alcohol reading, Waldo said. Company workers weren't aware of how quickly the database was filling up before it exceeded its threshold Tuesday morning, he said.

The company spent Tuesday expanding the threshold to more than a trillion records. Waldo said staff will work to develop a system that can supply early warnings as the database fills.

"People in our development group knew there was a threshold," Waldo said. "They've never in their careers ... seen a system hit such a database threshold. It speaks of the enormity of the data we collect."

Waldo said he was unsure of all the different types of offenders or defendants the company tracks. The agencies that use the company's systems decide who they want to track, and contract confidentiality clauses prevent BI from disclosing the information.

Wisconsin prison officials said Wednesday it was the first time they had faced such issues.

"Due to a system failure beyond our control, we faced a challenging and unprecedented event for our Electronic Monitoring Center," Wisconsin

Department of Correction Secretary Rick Raemisch said in a statement. But thanks to the agency's emergency plan and cooperation from local law enforcement, "the situation was managed safely and efficiently with the number one priority being public safety," he said.

N.J. senator calls for anti-bully law

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — U.S. Sen. Frank Lautenberg said Wednesday he'll introduce legislation requiring colleges to adopt a code of conduct that prohibits bullying and harassment following the suicide of a student whose gay sexual encounter in his dorm room was broadcast online.

Lautenberg, D-N.J., made the announcement at a town meeting on the Rutgers University campus in memory of 18-year-old freshman Tyler Clementi.

Clementi, a promising violinist, jumped off the George Washington Bridge into the Hudson River on Sept. 22 after the intimate images of him with another man were webcast, and his body was identified days later.

Clementi's roommate, Dharun Ravi, and another Rutgers freshman, Molly Wei, both 18, have been charged with invasion of privacy, and authorities are weighing whether bias crime charges should be added.

Clementi's death has prompted a national discussion on the plight of young gay people and bullying. The Rutgers event, organized by the university and the gay rights activist group Garden State Equality, drew about 300 students and others, including U.S. Sen. Robert Menendez, D-N.J., U.S. Rep. Frank Pallone, D-N.J., and actress/comedienne Judy Gold, a Rutgers grad and gay activist who won two Daytime Emmy Awards as a writer and producer for "The Rosie O'Donnell Show."

"No one could have heard about this degradation he suffered without feeling pain themselves," Lautenberg said. "This is a major problem, and we're going to fix it."

Gold expressed outrage at the pain inflicted on Clementi.

"What happened to him was not just an invasion of privacy. This was just sick," she said.

Lautenberg said his bill would require colleges and universities that receive federal student aid to create policies prohibiting harassment of any student. Such policies are not currently required by federal law, he said. The bill also would provide funding for schools to establish programs to deter harassment of students.

Clementi's death was one of a string of suicides last month involving teens believed to have been victims of anti-gay bullying. Just days after Clementi's body was recovered, more than 500 people attended a memorial service for a 13-year-old central California boy, Seth Walsh, who hanged himself after enduring taunts from classmates about being gay.

Earlier Wednesday,

Ravi's lawyer, Steven D. Altman, issued a statement saying he was "heartened to hear" that investigators are taking their time "to learn all the facts before rushing to judgment" about whether to file bias charges against his client. Altman said he hoped the public would do the same.

"I am confident that nothing will be learned to justify, warrant or support the filing of any bias criminal complaint," Altman said.

Middlesex County prosecutor Bruce Kaplan said earlier this week that he wouldn't rush the investigation into Clementi's death. His spokesman said Wednesday there was nothing new to report.

Former owner of Pompeys Pillar dies at 89

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP) — Stella Foote, a Billings collector who helped preserve what is often called the only physical evidence of the Lewis and Clark Expedition, has died at age 89.

John Foote of Eagle, Idaho, said his mother died in an assisted living facility there Tuesday.

Foote and her husband, Don, bought Pompeys Pillar in the 1950s and for 38 years operated the historical landmark, which contains Capt. William Clark's signature and the date July 25, 1806.

John Foote negotiated the landmark's sale to the Bureau of Land Management in 1991.

"Everything that we ever did in our lives, nothing was important as saving that Pompeys Pillar," Stella Foote said in 2005, during the bicentennial celebration of the Lewis and Clark Expedition.

The Footes collected Western artifacts and antique cars and opened an amusement park in Billings called Wonderland in 1949 that included an Old West history museum and zoo. The park closed in 1961.

In 1964, a portion of the couple's "Treasures of the West" collection traveled to the New York World's Fair on Montana's Centennial train. The collection included items from the Battle of the Little Bighorn and Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show. After the World's Fair, the Footes took the collection to Paris and Germany.

"Those were the peaks of their life, the Centennial trips," John Foote told The Billings Gazette.

When the Western Heritage Center opened in Billings in 1971, the Footes' collection formed the core of the new exhibits, said Kevin Kooistra-Manning, the center's community historian.

After her husband's death in 1968, Stella Foote's interests turned to tennis, golf and cards. She continued to play golf until last fall and she played gin rummy with her son twice a week.

"The last time we played gin was last Friday," John Foote said. "I was starting to win the game and I purposely didn't win."

T.F. taxidermist tells hunters how to cape their trophies in the field

By Andrew Weeks
Times-News writer

When hunters bag a trophy animal they start imagining it not so much on the dinner table as on the wall. They want it mounted.

But there are certain things you must do — and do right — before taking the skins to a taxidermist.

About 90 percent of hunters don't know how to properly remove the skins of an animal, said taxidermist Jeff Frost. If skins and hides aren't properly removed and cared for, however, it can cause frustrations for both the hunter and the taxidermist.

Tips for hunters

Frost, owner of Intermountain Taxidermy & Worldwide Adventures in Twin Falls, shared with the Times-News a few “dos” and “don'ts” for hunters as they cape trophy in the field.

- Never drag an animal's shoulder on the ground. Dragging the animal can make fur rub off and cause noticeable wounds in the hide. Instead, lift the upper part of the animal as much as possible when moving it.
- Make sure the cape is free of blood. If there's blood on the hide it's easier to clean right away, but be careful of how you clean it.
- Don't get the hide wet. Water can cause fur to loosen and fall off, Frost said. If you must use water, make sure the hide dries well.

- Don't put the hide in plastic. Plastic can cause condensation, which isn't good for the hide.
  - Keep the skins as cool as possible.
  - Don't use rock salt, iodized salt or pepper on raw skins. These will burn the hide. If you must use salt, use only un-iodized salt.
  - Don't cut the cape. Most hunters are in the habit of cutting the throats of their big game to make sure they bleed out properly. But Frost said hunters don't need to do this.
- “They'll bleed out just fine when you dress them,” he said, noting that cuts in the throat mean noticeable wounds in the hide's neck.

Frost said he's more than happy to have sportsmen stop by his shop, where he'll show them how to properly cape their trophy in the field.

“The better the cape is prepared in the field, the higher the quality of the finished mount,” he said.

Taxidermy's fine art

When you take your cape to a taxidermist, don't expect to get it back for some time. Customers usually have to wait several months before their mounts are finished, and there's a good reason why.

Taxidermy incorporates many types of skills, including carpentry, casting, drawing, molding, painting, sewing, sculpting, tanning and woodworking.

Most modern taxidermy involves taking animal skin — fur, feather or scale — and sewing it onto a pre-made polyurethane mold or “animal manikin.”

Molds, which come in a variety of sizes, may incorporate an animal's head for wall mounting or whole body for larger display.

Before a skin can be used, however, it has to be tanned and dried, and then soaked for pliability before being stretched onto a mold.

“There are two methods of tanning capes for mounting,” Frost explained. “First method is a dry tan, which means the skin is dry when it comes out of the tanning process. To be mounted, it will then have to be re-hydrated with a water and salt solution to allow the skin to stretch back to the original size for mounting.

“The second method is a wet tan, which means the skin is not completely dried at the tannery and comes back to us damp, which shortens the prepping period prior to mounting. The wet tan method normally takes less time.”

If an animal's skin is too small for a mold, the mold has to be trimmed. If a

How to cape your trophy animal

There's a right way and a wrong way to cape an animal, says Jeff Frost of Intermountain Taxidermy & Worldwide Adventures. He offers several tips on how to do it properly.

1. Skin the body and neck as soon as possible, so the hide will cool. For head mounts, cut behind the front legs and around the body. Leave access hide on brisket. Skin the hide forward up the neck, leaving the head and face intact. Be careful to not cut through the hide.

- For head mounts, cut up the back of the neck and “T” off the antlers. Cut skin carefully away from the base of the antlers. Cut ear cartilage from skull and on inside. Skin the head, lifting the eyelids from the outside with your fingers as you cut, being careful to not cut the eyelids. The lips and nose should be cut close to the gums, leaving the lips attached to the skin. After skinning, saw off the skull

Boat builder, 93, leaves his mark around Homer

By Lindsay Johnson
Homer News

HOMER, Alaska — His work is all over town: wooden boats in various yards and at the Wooden Boat Festival, little chairs in the children’s room at the Homer Public Library, hardback books shelved in the fireplace reading room there, the steeple on the Faith Baptist Church, a pamphlet shelf at the Pratt Museum.

The man has done a lot. Granted, he’s had a lot of time. Norman (Dick) Griffin will be 93 in under a month. He says he doesn’t look a day over 92, and he is not going to let his rocking chair take him to the grave.

Griffin was 50 when he came to Alaska with his soon-to-be wife Joy and 7-year-old twins from upstate New York in the summer of 1967.

He has been part of the Homer community since 1980, when he and Joy retired from their home- stead 60 miles north of Fairbanks, off the Elliot Highway near Livengood.

But those stories are in his books at the library.

This is about Norman Griffin’s time in Homer (even though he insists the story should be about his late wife Joy, who died in 2002.)

So what about him? “Norm’s a hell of a guy. He’s just a good person and he helps everybody and he builds wooden boats,” said Jim Clauss, a fellow wooden boat-builder and 20-year acquaintance of Griffin’s.

Griffin didn’t start building boats, though, until after he got to Homer and bought “The Dory Book” by John Gardner.

“I saw it in the bookstore and bought it. All I do is sit and look at it until I mention to Joy, ‘I wish I could build something like that.’ And she said, ‘Why don’t you try?’” Griffin said. “It interested me because I’ve always liked to work with my hands.”

He built their house, garage, greenhouse and much of the furniture.

“If it’s made of wood, I’ve probably made it,” Griffin said.

Griffin estimates he has built 40 boats in the past 30 years, the biggest a 21-foot sailboat. His dories, Old Town-style canoes (named for a well-known canoe company in Maine where they were originally produced), wherries (a general type of flat, shallow-bottom boat with knuckled sides) and other craft can be seen throughout Homer.

He has sold some, but Griffin is more likely to trade or give his boats away.

Nev. panel supports state’s 1st bear hunt

By Martin Griffith
Associated Press writer

RENO, Nev. — Despite opposition from wildlife advocates, the first black bear hunting season in Nevada history has moved a step closer to reality.

Nevada Department of Wildlife staff has been directed to draft a regulation establishing a spring and fall hunt by state wildlife commissioners.

Commission Chairman Scott Raine said the nine-member panel plans to take final action on the regulation at its Dec. 3-4 meeting in Reno. The tag quota and length of seasons would be set early next year.

Commissioners said Nevada is the only Western state without a bear hunt, and the state’s bruin population is stable enough to allow for a limited one.

“Wildlife should be wild and it (hunt) will keep bears wild,” Raine said, adding nearly all of the wildlife commission’s county advisory boards backed the action.

Nevada is home to 200 to 300 bears along the eastern Sierra, with most in the Carson Range on Lake Tahoe’s east shore. There also are an unknown number of bears in the Wassuk and Sweetwater ranges to the south.

Critics disputed some supporters’ contention that the hunt would reduce human-bear conflicts that often lead to bears having to be destroyed. They also questioned the safety of hunts around Lake Tahoe.

“My main concern is Lake Tahoe is a bad place to have a bear hunt,” said Don Molde, a former board member of the Defenders of Wildlife and a member of the Humane Society of the United States. “It’s congested and some bystander could be injured.”

Public opinion on the hunt is running “roughly 50-50” in nearly 100 e-mails submitted to the wildlife department’s website, agency spokesman Chris Healy said.

Raine insisted public opinion among Nevadans was overwhelmingly in favor of the hunt.

“It’s very much people from Nevada, especially those in the Carson City area, are almost unanimously for it,” he said. “We get some people from California, quite a bit, and they’re against it.”

Fantastic plastic pistols

There was a time — not all that long ago — when plastic items were considered to be cheap substitutes for the real thing. Slowly our prejudices subsided and few people nowadays would dispute how much plastics have actually molded our modern way of life. Plastics, as the industry is quick to point out, are everywhere.

But for the longest time, the use of plastics in firearms was Verboten! Real guns, it was agreed, could only be fashioned of steel or aluminum alloy and walnut. For many handgun enthusiasts, this ideological nut was cracked in 1982. In that year, the Austrian military and police forces replaced their WWII-era service pistol, the Walther P38, with a unique plastic-framed (polymer) pistol, the Glock 17.

The Glock 17 — so coined because it was the 17th patent awarded to the Austrian firm of the same name — was a polymer-framed semi-automatic pistol using a modified version of John Browning’s locked breech short recoil operating system ... aka, Colt 1911.

SHOOTING THE BULL Rich Simpson

Interestingly, the gun’s designer, Gaston Glock, was not a firearms enthusiast at all, but an innovative manufacturer of high-strength synthetic and steel components.

Chambered initially in the Nato-standardized 9mm Parabellum (Luger), the Model 17 has become an international sensation. At last count, the police and armed forces of more than 30 nations marshal some variation of the original Glock 17. It also is the hands-down favorite in today’s lucrative personal defense and concealed-carry market.

Glock pistols chamber most modern pistol cartridges, including the 9mm Parabellum, 10mm, 45 ACP, 40 S&W, .380 ACP, .357 SIG, and their proprietary .45 GAP (Glock Automatic Pistol). So adaptable is the basic design, there is little doubt that some variation of this fine handgun will be with us until we start packing laser blasters for our defensive needs.

To say that Gaston Glock revolutionized the handgun industry with the application of synthetic materials would be an understatement. So complete has this paradigm shift become that practically all the major players in the handgun industry market a polymer model or two.

You can go to a local dealer and purchase polymer-framed guns by Smith & Wesson, Ruger, Beretta, H&K, Sig-Sauer, Kahr, Taurus, E.E.A. or my personal favorite — Springfield Armory XD’s.

So what features do pistols possess to fuel this amazing market demand? One is economy. It is much cheaper to mold a detailed polymer frame than it is to precision cast and/or machine steel or aluminum components.

High strength and durability also are the hallmarks of these “Tupperware pistols.” Contrary to the dire predictions of skeptics, poly guns were not invisible to airport security measures and didn’t melt away or dissolve in real-world environments. In fact, the rust/corrosion-resistant guns have proven to be tougher-than-steel and can shake off abuse that would cripple lesser weapons.

Poly guns also are lighter than steel or alloy-framed weapons and most are equipped with Picatinny rails for conveniently mounting tactical lights and lasers.

So, consider joining the plastic revolution by making your next carry, competition, self-defense or recreational shooter a polymer-framed weapon.

Fall in Anchorage hasn’t cooled angling for fish

By Matt Tunseth
Alaska Star

EAGLE RIVER, Alaska — Although snow has been spotted around town, fall fishing in the area hasn’t cooled off entirely just yet.

“Some of the local lakes are kind of a big deal this time of year,” said Dan Bosch, a biologist with the Alaska Department of Fish and Game in Anchorage.

Bosch said two lakes in the Eagle River area in particular — Lower Fire Lake and Symphony Lake — might be just what anglers need to cure any lingering cases of fishing fever.

Bosch said he recently spent several days on Symphony Lake with a Fish and Game team sampling the local grayling population.

“We managed to catch (and release) 500 or so,” in eight days of fishing, he said.

Bosch said he saw more hikers than anglers at the lake, which is located at the headwaters of Eagle River, about five miles up the South Fork Trail off Hiland Road.

“It’s absolutely gorgeous up there,” he said.

Anglers looking for something a bit more unusual might want to give Lower Fire Lake a try. The lake is chock full of illegally introduced northern pike, which means they’re fair game for just about any kind of fishing. “You can use a bow with the arrow attached to a line or spear them or use a rod and reel,” he said.

There is no limit on how many pike anglers can keep, he said, as long as the fish meat is harvested in accordance with Alaska’s wanton waste laws.

One midafternoon last week, Jonathan Tyler and Levi McKinley tried their luck at Lower Fire Lake, trolling the lake in a hand-built raft propelled by a small electric motor. They said the fishing was good, holding up six healthy-sized pike as evidence, then putting them in a cooler to take home and clean.

Trooper faces investigation after moose killed

SANDPOINT — A Bonner County official says the investigation involving a bull moose that may have been poached by an Idaho State Police trooper has been referred to the Latah County Prosecutor’s Office to avoid a conflict of interest.

Bonner County Prosecutor Louis Marshall tells the Bonner County Daily Bee that the trooper being investigated is often called as a state’s witness in criminal cases.

Authorities say no charges have been filed.

The Idaho Department of Fish and Game says it has taken possession of the cape and head of the moose that was dropped off at a Bonner County taxidermist four days before the season opened.

Ark. voters asked to protect hunting rights

By Andrew DeMillo
Associated Press writer

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — Hunting and fishing is a way of life in much of Arkansas, and a measure on the November ballot will try to make it a right enshrined in the state’s constitution as well.

Arkansas is one of four states where voters will be asked to protect hunting and fishing rights. A proposed amendment on the state’s ballot would make hunting, fishing, trapping and harvesting wildlife a constitutionally protected right.

Arizona, South Carolina and Tennessee have similar measures on the ballot this fall. Kentucky plans a vote in 2012.

The Arkansas proposal is one of three that were referred to voters by the Legislature last year, and its chief backer said he was motivated by what he saw as attempts by animal rights groups to restrict hunting in other states.

State Sen. Steve Faris, who advocated the measure before the Legislature last year, said he sees the proposal as something to complement Amendment 35, which gave the state Game and Fish Commission regulatory power.

“Outdoor activity and tourism and hunting and fishing are a bit part of the draw to the state of Arkansas and also a big part of the lives of people who are here,” Faris said. “We put that in there to protect those various things. This just takes it a step further.”

Artist creates alluring lures for anglers

By Susan Cocking
McClatchy Newspapers

MIAMI — Ross Myers might not have the name recognition of marine artists Guy Harvey or Carey Chen. But hundreds of South Floridians and others who have won trophies in local freshwater and saltwater fishing tournaments during the past 25 years probably display one of his works in the family room.

Working in the garage of his Pembroke Pines, Fla., town house, Myers, 59, designs ceramic sculptures, hand-painted tiles, wooden trophies and boxes, etched glass, laminated boat and truck wraps, banners, signs, clocks, coffee mugs, plates and table lamps. His creations have been awarded at contests such as the Key West Fishing Tournament, South Dade Anglers Club, Redbone Celebrity Series, Pompano Beach Saltwater Series and various South Florida bass circuits.

“The Key West Fishing Tournament, you don’t win money, so it’s all about the trophy,” tournament executive director Doris Harris said. “He puts together such a good product. When you give it to your award winners, everybody in the room goes, ‘Wow!’”

These days, Myers is redirecting his artistic talents to design the tools that some anglers use to win the fishing tournaments where his creations are given as prizes — lines of soft plastic and top-water lures for fresh and salt-water.

“Fishing people are my life’s blood,” said Myers. “I want people to be successful and help me be successful.”

Myers’ new plastic worms, frogs, jerkbaits, and plugs are drawn from a lifetime of experience fishing in urban canals, Biscayne Bay, central Florida lakes, the Everglades and the Atlantic Ocean, catching everything from largemouth bass to giant lemon sharks.

About six months ago, Myers teamed with Roy Singer of Pompano Beach, Fla., to cash checks in several South Florida bass tournament circuits. Some of their key fish were caught using Myers’ latest bait creations.

Myers said he makes the molds for some 200 plastic worms, eels, frogs and lizards by hand. He is cautious about showing them off because he fears others will try to copy them before he can get them to market.

“These small bait companies will do knock-offs,” he said. “You invest your time, and energy, and as an artist, your heart. And some people are willing to snap it up and run.”

Myers is a bit less secretive about his hard-plastic topwater models. A peek inside a tackle box he’s putting together for a customer reveals an assortment of chuggers, floaters and divers in a cornucopia of colors enhanced with rich details, such as raised scales and glittering eyes. They are priced from $18 to $25 apiece.

On a recent morning, Myers and Singer decided to field-test a new soft plastic frog on the bass in the Loxahatchee National Wildlife Refuge in southern Palm Beach County. Their strategy was for Myers to cast the frog around the lily pads and cattail stands in the flats to draw out the big fish while Singer followed up with a Senko worm, a quiet, finesse-type bait.

“I wanted a frog you could stop, start and buzz,” Myers said as he tossed it out. “The feet kick up a lot of good sound and a good wake.”

He was right about the frog’s lifelike action on the flats but it garnered only a small bass. The Senko didn’t do much better.

Singer decided to relocate to the main canal, where he quickly caught and released two nice bass, one about 3 pounds and another estimated at 6. Both were caught on large Gambler Big E-Z swim baits — one green-and-white with copper flakes; the other, a midnight-blue junebug color. Both men followed up with numerous smaller bass, several of which nailed Myers’ colorful topwater plugs.

“In a tournament, we’re going for the win,” Myers said. “... If conditions warrant, I’d throw my baits and have confidence in them.”

by the legislature in 2011. The previous rule was identical to the federal rule for hunting waterfowl.

Big game hunting rules prohibit hunting or shooting from any motorized vehicle unless the hunter has obtained a handicapped exemption. A boat with a motor attached is by definition a motorized vehicle and becomes unlawful to hunt or shoot from while hunting big game. If the motor is removed, the boat becomes a lawful method.

All hunters are encouraged to review the regulations for the species they wish to hunt and the methods they intend to use in the most current copy of the regulations brochure.

Utah anglers may face higher fees for fishing licenses

DUCHESNE, Utah (AP) — Utah anglers might have to pay extra to dip their poles in streams in a few years.

The state Division of Wildlife Resources is floating a plan to hike license fees by 2013 to raise money to pay private property owners to open many of Utah’s streams.

“The good news is we won’t have to ask the anglers for money right now,” agency director Jim Karpowitz told a legislative task force Thursday in Duchesne, about 90 miles east of Salt Lake City. “But down the line, we probably will.”

The Utah Supreme Court in 2008 declared all stream beds publicly accessible, even where they cross private land.

But lawmakers didn’t like the idea and passed a measure putting most of Utah’s stream beds off-limits unless a landowner gives permission.

Now, the task force is looking at ways to restore broader public access to streams, The Salt Lake Tribune reported.

Karpowitz told the panel he can hold off higher license fees for two years while using a federal grant and some state money to buy fishing easements.

The leasing program counts only a handful of stream miles now at a cost to the state of about $1,000 a mile.

Karpowitz says the $26 resident fishing license will go up by $4 or $6 by 2013.

Lawmakers also are looking at authorizing separate fishing licenses for private streams, with landowners collecting half of the money. The rest would go to the state.

Some lawmakers on the panel have said they were bracing for a lawsuit from anglers challenging a tradition of unrestricted access to Utah’s streams. Current law allows them to float through private lands, but they can’t get out of a boat or even touch the stream bottom.

Draper angler Chris Barkey said no leasing program could be funded well enough to reopen a significant number of streams.

“You’d have to expand it to 3,000 miles,” he said.

Karpowitz has set a goal of adding 50 miles of stream access each year for five years at a cost of millions of dollars.

skin is too big, the mold has to be added upon. To complete this work successfully — to make the animal appear lifelike despite the subtractions and additions to molds that have to maintain the animal’s muscle tone and veins — taxidermists have to know something about animal anatomy.

Patient is a virtue

With the detail and work that goes into taxidermy, it’s no wonder it takes several months before a project is complete.

“The average turnaround time after a customer drops off the trophy is six months to one year, this depending on when we get it back from the tannery,” Frost said. “Once it is back from the tannery, and the cape is prepped and mounted onto the form, it takes on average 10 to 15 days to dry and the finishing process to be completed.”

Taxidermists learn early on about being patient and usually work on multiple projects at a time. More importantly, it’s the customer who has to be patient.

“I usually have 10 or so mounts I am working on at the same time, all in various stages of completion,” he said. “Life-size mounts take much more time than shoulder mounts, especially when there are extensive habitats to re-create with the mounts.

“I have a large amount of international trophies I get into the shop from the other half of my business, which is sending hunters all over the world on hunting trips. This means I am busy year round, not just working on trophies from our region.”

Andrew Weeks may be reached at 735-3233 or aweeks@magicvalley.com.

Caping

- Turn the ears inside out, leaving ear cartilage attached to inner ear
- Split the lips carefully
- On hides for full mounts or rugs, all bones in the feet and toes must be removed to the claws or hooves. Leave the claws or hooves attached to the hides.

- Remove all flesh and fat from hide.

- After completing the above steps, run un-iodized salt into the hide. Keep hide in shade at all times, and rolled up for several hours. Unroll, shake out salt, re-salt and lay flat, flesh side up. When semi-dry, shake off salt, let air dry, and fold to convenient size. Deliver to taxidermist as soon as possible.

3. Preparing birds and fish for taxidermy:

Birds: Slip them into a nylon stocking and freeze them whole and not dressed out. Be sure to wipe off any blood.

Fish: After catching, sprinkle 20 Mule Team Borax onto fish, wrap in dry cloth and freeze whole as soon as possible. Because fish of the same species will vary in color depending on the location where they’re caught, it is helpful to provide a close-up color photo of the head, mid-section and tail section, taken immediately after the catch.

The confusing topic of boats and hunting

Q: “I know there are specific rules for hunting from a boat, but the rules don’t seem to be consistent for all the different kinds of hunting. Can you explain the differences in the rules for hunting from a boat for waterfowl, upland game birds, and big game?”

A: This is an area of confusion, and rightly so. There are three different Fish and Game Commission rules that may apply to hunting from a boat, depending on what game animals you intend to hunt.

Hunting from watercraft has been a technique used across North America for centuries. In the Land of Lakes — the Florida glades and Alaska — water travel may be easier than overland travel so hunting from boats is common.

Hunting for waterfowl also has long been associated with boats, decoys, great water dogs and floating blinds.

ASK THE OFFICER

Gary Hompland

Hunting for upland birds from boats is less common unless you’re in Idaho, Washington or Oregon hunting chukars along the Snake or Salmon Rivers.

The rules for hunting waterfowl from a boat are rooted in the Code of Federal Regulations (federal waterfowl hunting rules). The Idaho Fish and Game Commission has adopted all of these federal rules related to waterfowl hunting. The federal rule states, “... No persons shall take migratory game birds: e) From or by means of any motorboat or other craft having a motor attached, or any sailboat, unless the motor has been completely shut off and/or the sails furled, and it’s for forward progress therefore ceased ...” There are some exceptions for recovering dead birds.

For waterfowl hunting, use of a drifting, moored or anchored boat is lawful as long as the motor is shut off and all forward progress has stopped.

The rules for hunting upland game birds from boats in Idaho will soon change. In July 2010, the Fish and Game Commission adopted rules prohibiting take of upland game birds from all watercraft. Reports suggested jet boat hunters were shooting from the bow of their crafts as they motored alongside birds concentrated along the shoreline. This new rule will require hunters to put into shore and hunt upland birds from land. The rule will not go into effect until approved

NOTICE OF PROPOSED FEE INCREASE

Please take notice that the Council of the City of Paul, Idaho, will meet on Wednesday, October 13, 2010 at 7:30 p.m. at the Paul City Hall, 152 South 600 West, Paul, Minidoka County, Idaho, for the purpose of hearing public comments concerning proposed increases and changes of fees pertaining to animal control. Some of the changes in fees will result in increases that are in excess of five percent (5%) of the amount of the fee collected. The reason for the fee increase is that the fees need to be increased in order to offset the costs incurred by the City and the Animal Control Facility. A copy of the proposed fee schedule is available at Paul City Hall, Paul, Idaho, during normal business hours. You are invited to appear at the time and place of hearing and provide comment on the proposed fees.

RESCHEDULED NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

On the 27th day of January, 2011, at the hour of 10:00 am of this day (recognized local time), in the office of First American Title Company, 199 Country Lane, Jerome, ID 83338, in the County of Jerome, State of Idaho, TitleOne Corporation, an Idaho corporation, as successor trustee, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder, for cash or cashier's check (cash equivalent), in lawful money of the United States, all payable at the time of sale in compliance with Section 45-1506(9) Idaho Code, the following described real property, situated in Jerome County, State of Idaho, and described as follows to wit:

Lots 15 and 16 in Block 4, Tanner Johns Subdivision, Jerome Townsite, Jerome County, Idaho, as the same is platted in the official plat thereof, now of record in the office of the recorder of said county.

The Trustee has no knowledge of a more particular description of the above referenced real property, but for purposes of compliance with Section 60-113, Idaho Code, the Trustee has been informed that according to the County Assessors office, the address of 686 Main Street East, Jerome, ID, 83338, is sometimes associated with said real property.

Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, possession, or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the Deed of Trust executed by Scott M. Chandler and Brenda L. Chandler, husband and wife, as Grantor(s), to TitleOne Corporation, an Idaho corporation, as successor trustee, and KeyBank National Association, as Beneficiary, recorded December 27, 2001, as Instrument No. 2015980, in the records of Jerome County, Idaho.

THE ABOVE GRANTORS ARE NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION (45-1506)(4)(A), IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THEY ARE, OR ARE NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION.

The default for which this sale is to be made is the failure to pay when due, under Deed of Trust Note, the monthly payments of $1,299.38, due per month for the month of April 1, 2010 and all subsequent monthly payments of principal, interest, late charges and any miscellaneous fees thereafter. The Principal balance is $119,445.48, the current interest rate is 8% per annum, as of June 7, 2010. All amounts are now due, together with unpaid and accruing taxes, assessments, trustee's fees, attorney's fees, costs and advances made to protect the security associated with this foreclosure and that the beneficiary elects to sell or cause the trust property to be sold to satisfy said obligation.

IDAHO CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS

S.J.R. 101

"Shall Section 10, Article IX, of the Constitution of the State of Idaho be amended to permit the Board of Regents of the University of Idaho to impose rates of tuition and fees on all students enrolled in the University of Idaho as authorized by law?"

YES ➡ ➡
NO ➡ ➡

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL'S STATEMENT OF MEANING AND PURPOSE S.J.R. 101
Proposed Amendment to the Constitution of the State of Idaho: Section 10, Article IX.

Meaning, Purpose and Result to be Accomplished:

This proposed amendment will clarify that the Board of Regents of the University of Idaho may charge students tuition, as authorized by law. Currently, the University of Idaho charges student fees to undergraduate students, but not tuition. Student fees cannot be used to pay for classroom instruction. All of the other state-supported colleges and universities in Idaho have the authority to charge tuition, and this amendment specifies that the University of Idaho will have the same authority.

S.J.R. 4

"Shall Section 3C, Article VIII, of the Constitution of the State of Idaho be amended to authorize public hospitals, ancillary to their operations and in furtherance of health care needs in their service areas, to incur indebtedness or liability to purchase, contract, lease or construct or otherwise acquire facilities, equipment, technology and real property for health care operations, provided that no ad valorem tax revenues shall be used for such activities?"

NO ➡ ➡

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL'S STATEMENT OF MEANING AND PURPOSE H.J.R. 4
Proposed Amendment to the Constitution of the State of Idaho: Section 3C, Article VIII.

Meaning, Purpose and Result to be Accomplished:

This proposed amendment will allow public hospitals to acquire facilities, equipment, technology and real property through a variety of means that aid the public hospital operations, as long as the acquisitions are paid for solely from charges, rents or payments derived from the existing or financed facilities and are not funded by property taxes. Under current Idaho constitutional provisions, public hospitals, as subdivisions of the state of Idaho, have limited ability to incur debt without the approval of a two-thirds vote at an election held for that purpose. This proposed amendment will provide a limited alternative to that two-thirds vote requirement. The use of tax dollars to finance these kinds of investments is prohibited.

H.J.R. 5

"Shall Article VIII, of the Constitution of the State of Idaho be amended by the addition of a new Section 3E, to provide for the issuance of revenue and special facility bonds by political subdivisions of the state and regional airport authorities as defined by law, if operating an airport to acquire, construct, install, and equip land, facilities, buildings, projects or other property, which are hereby deemed to be for a public purpose, to be financed for, or to be leased, sold or otherwise disposed of to persons, associations or corporations, or to be held by the subdivision or regional airport authority, and may in the manner prescribed by law issue revenue and special facility bonds to finance the costs thereof, provided that any such bonds shall be payable solely from fees, charges, rents, payments, grants, or any other revenues derived from the airport or any of its facilities, structures, systems, or projects, or from any land, facilities, buildings, projects or other property financed by such bonds, and shall not be secured by the full faith and credit or the taxing power of the subdivision or regional airport authority?"

NO ➡ ➡

Proposed Amendment to the Constitution of the State of Idaho: New Section 3E, Article VIII.

Meaning, Purpose and Result to be Accomplished:

Currently, local governmental entities that operate airports and regional airport authorities cannot incur indebtedness without the approval of a two-thirds vote at an election held for that purpose. This proposed amendment will allow local governmental entities that operate airports and regional airport authorities to issue revenue and special facility bonds to acquire, construct, install and equip land, facilities, buildings, projects or other property. Voter approval will not be required to incur such indebtedness, as long as the bonds are paid for by fees, charges, rents, payments, grants or other revenues derived from the airport or its facilities. The use of tax dollars to repay such bonds is prohibited.

H.J.R. 7

"Shall Article VIII, of the Constitution of the State of Idaho be amended by the addition of a New Section 3D to provide that any city owning a municipal electric system may:

(a) acquire, construct, install and equip electric generating, transmission and distribution facilities for the purpose of supplying electricity to customers located within the service area of each system established by law and for the purpose of paying the cost thereof, may issue revenue bonds with the assent of a majority of the qualified electors voting at an election held as provided by law; and

(b) incur indebtedness or liability under agreements to purchase, share, exchange or transmit wholesale electricity for the use and benefit of customers located within such service area; provided that any revenue bonds, indebtedness or liability shall be payable solely from the rates, charges or revenues derived from the municipal electric system and shall not be secured by the full faith and credit or the taxing power of the city, the state or any political subdivision?"

YES ➡ ➡
NO ➡ ➡

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL'S STATEMENT OF MEANING AND PURPOSE H.J.R. 7
Proposed Amendment to the Constitution of the State of Idaho: New Section 3D, Article VIII.

Meaning, Purpose and Result to be Accomplished:

This proposed amendment has two parts. The first part will allow any city owning a municipal electric system to acquire, construct, install and equip electrical generating, transmission and distribution facilities for the purpose of supplying electricity to customers within its service area. The city will be authorized to issue revenue bonds to pay for such facilities, with the assent of a majority of the qualified voters, provided that these bonds are paid for by the electrical system rates and charges, or revenues derived from the municipal electric system, and not with tax dollars.

The second part of this proposed amendment will allow any city owning a municipal electric system to enter into agreements to purchase, share, exchange or transmit wholesale electricity to customers within its service area, without voter approval. Any indebtedness or liability from these agreements will be paid for by the electrical system rates and charges, or revenues derived from the municipal electric system, and not with tax dollars.

YOU ARE NOTIFIED THAT:

A Petition, a copy of which is attached, has been filed in the above-entitled matter in the Magistrate's Division of the District Court of Twin Falls County, Idaho, by the Prosecuting Attorney, alleging the above-named children come within the Court's jurisdiction under the Child Protective Act.

You are hereby directed to appear personally for a Review Hearing at the Twin Falls County Courthouse, 425 Shoshone Street, Twin Falls, Idaho, on December 9, 2010 at 9:30 AM.

You are notified that service of the attached Petition upon you, as the parent(s), guardian, or custodian of these children, confers personal jurisdiction of the Court upon you and subjects you to the provisions of the Child Protective Act.

You are notified that if you fail to appear without reasonable cause, the Court may proceed in your absence or you may be proceeded against for contempt of Court.

You are notified that the parent(s), guardian, or a custodian may be financially liable for the support and/or treatment of the child.

You are further notified that the children and parent(s), guardian, or custodian have the right to be represented by an attorney of your choosing, or if financially unable to pay, have the right to have an attorney appointed by the Court to represent the children or the parent(s), guardian, or custodian at county expense. If you request to have an attorney appointed at county expense, you must appear before the date of the hearing given above, at which time the Court shall consider appointment of an attorney for the children and inquire whether the parent(s), guardian, or custodian require the separate appointment of an attorney.

You are further notified that there shall be a rebuttable presumption that if a child is placed in the custody of the IDHW and was also placed in out of the home care for a period not less than fifteen (15) out of the last twenty-two (22) months from the date of Adjudication, the IDHW shall initiate a Petition for Termination of Parental Rights. This presumption may be rebutted by a finding of the court that the filing of a Petition for Termination of Parental Rights would not be in the best interest of the child and their family, or that the child is placed permanently with a relative.

WITNESS MY HAND AND SEAL of said Magistrate Court this 1st day of October, 2010.

PUBLISH: September 30, October 7, 14 and 21, 2010

DEAR ABBY: I am a parole officer, and while I agree with and support your response to "Smitten in New York" (Aug. 6), I would like to offer an additional comment. People can and do change their lives while incarcerated. However, when they are in a controlled environment, their changed lives on the outside are still in their imaginations.

Many inmates who make very positive plans for their future when they're released, discover life "on the outs" doesn't unfold the way they imagined it would. Some of them deal with substance abuse issues, mental illness, brain injuries and a lack of education and life skills. I would caution "Smitten" not to become too involved with her pen pal after his release until he has proven his ability to be the partner she believes and hopes he will be.

— KELLY IN

WASHINGTON STATE

DEAR KELLY: Thank you for your comments. I received many letters from former pen pals of inmates, all advising — pleading with — "Smitten" to run as fast as she can from this man. Today, however, I'll print some from those in the know from the "inside."

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

Read on:

DEAR ABBY: "Smitten" and countless other women (and men) who write and visit inmates do not fully understand the situation they're potentially putting themselves in.

Any one inmate receives numerous letters, graphic photos and visitors, and not all from the same "potential special person." Inmates live and breathe a 24/7 confined life, with nothing to do but find ways to entertain or protect themselves.

It's not far-fetched that an inmate may be under the control of a gang affiliation and need to do certain things to gain a "rep" inside the walls. They have plenty of time to consider the who, how, what and wheres of surviving in jail.

Sure, some inmates have taken a different road, but is "Smitten" ready to bring a con into her family in the hopes that he's telling the truth? I work in a maximum security prison in New York. "Smitten," I strongly urge you to reconsider communicating with this inmate. And I hope you're NOT sending him money or letting him know your financial situation.

— SEEN FROM THE INSIDE

DEAR ABBY: I am a retired corrections officer from the state of Florida, and this woman has fallen for the most common game played by inmates. One person writes the letter and the others pay him for it with cigarettes or other items they can buy in the canteen. Inmates will come up with amazing fictions to make people feel sorry for them, or send them money to be put in their inmate trust fund.

I can guarantee "Smitten" that this inmate has absolutely no feelings for her and is only using her. If she's that glibble — or stupid — she deserves to be used. If she's that lonely, she should get a dog!

— CHRIS IN FLORIDA

DEAR ABBY: I'm a paralegal who has worked for a criminal defense attorney in Florida for many years. Florida has a comprehensive Web site and its offender information search posts not only photos, but also lists prior incarcerations and case information about the crime for which inmates are presently serving. To find the state prison site, "Smitten" should input "Florida Department of Corrections" and look for the "Offender" information search.

"Smitten" is playing with fire, Abby, and if she gets burned it will be because she'd rather believe the fantasy and ignore the reality. She needs to do her homework before accepting this man's declarations as truth.

“... And don’t go too fast.”

Today is Thursday, Oct. 7, the 280th day of 2010. There are 85 days left in the year.

Today’s Highlight:

On Oct. 7, 1910, a major wildfire devastated the northern Minnesota towns of Spooner and Baudette, charring at least 300,000 acres. Some 40 people are believed to have died.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1777, the second Battle of Saratoga began during the American Revolution. (British forces under Gen. John Burgoyne surrendered ten days later.)

In 1858, the fifth debate between Illinois senatorial candidates Abraham Lincoln and Stephen Douglas took place in Galesburg.

In 1940, Artie Shaw and his Orchestra recorded Hoagy Carmichael’s “Stardust” for RCA Victor.

In 1949, the Republic of East Germany was formed.

In 1959, singer-actor Mario Lanza died in Rome at age 38.

In 1960, Democratic presidential candidate John F. Kennedy and Republican opponent Richard M. Nixon held their second televised debate, in Washington D.C. The TV series “Route 66” premiered on CBS.

In 1985, Palestinian gunmen hijacked the Italian cruise ship Achille Lauro in the Mediterranean. (The hijackers, who killed an elderly Jewish American tourist, Leon Klinghoffer, surrendered two days after taking over the ship.)

In 1989, Hungary’s Communist Party renounced Marxism in favor of democratic socialism during a party congress in Budapest.

In 1991, University of Oklahoma law professor Anita Hill publicly accused Supreme Court nominee Clarence Thomas of making sexually inappropriate comments when she worked for him; Thomas denied Hill’s allegations.

In 1998, Matthew Shepard, a gay college student at the University of Wyoming, was beaten, robbed and left tied to a wooden fencepost outside of Laramie; he died five days later. (Russell Henderson and Aaron McKinney are serving life sentences for Shepard’s murder.)

Ten years ago: Vojislav Kostunica took the oath of office as Yugoslavia’s first popularly elected president, closing the turbulent era of Slobodan Milosevic.

Five years ago: The Nobel Peace Prize was awarded to the International Atomic Energy Agency and its chief, Mohamed ElBaradei.

One year ago: A top Italian court overturned a law granting Prime Minister Silvio Berlusconi immunity from prosecution, allowing trials for corruption and tax fraud to resume. (Berlusconi denies wrongdoing.) Americans Venkatraman Ramakrishnan and Thomas Steitz and Israeli Ada Yonath won the Nobel Prize in chemistry. Fashion and celebrity photographer Irving Penn died in New York at 92.

Five Elves Display

Decorate the house in style this holiday season with this big, full-color outdoor display featuring five Christmas elves. A fun and easy way to spread some cheer around the neighborhood, the Elves display includes five of Santa’s best helpers. Each elf is about 20 inches tall.

To build the display, just glue the posters onto plywood, smooth out the bubbles, cut them out and paint the sides and backs. Make stakes or stands from the remaining plywood or galvanized pipe, and let the elves get busy!

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"What is written without effort is in general read without pleasure."

— Samuel Johnson

All this week's deals come from the World Championship last year in Sao Paulo, to mark the ongoing championships in Philadelphia.

At many tables South played three no-trump, speedily down on a diamond lead. But in Russia vs. Italy, the Italian declarer brought home a club partscore while the Russian declarer, Yuri Khiuppenen, reached five clubs via the auction shown and received a heart lead.

The simplest way to try to set up the spades for two diamond discards would be to lead a spade to the nine. But Khiuppenen did better. He cashed both top hearts, crossed with a club to hand to ruff out the hearts, and drew the rest of the trumps before leading a spade toward dummy.

He had worked out to play West for the doubleton spade ace (since West was marked with five diamonds and three hearts and three clubs). If West ducked his ace, he would be endplayed on the next round of spades. If he took his ace, declarer would have two discards for his diamond losers.

Incidentally, at another table, South played five clubs doubled and made a slight slip when he played a trump to his queen at once. Now the 3-0 trump break meant that to sort out the entry position, he needed to play a spade up at once. But in fact he played a second trump instead and now could no longer achieve the endplay, so was forced to lead a spade to the nine. Unlucky!

ANSWER: It is correct to balance with this hand, although you would not have acted with it in second seat. Since a takeout double is clearly wrong, as you have neither major suit, the choice is the simple two-club overcall, or, my favorite, a call of one no-trump. In balancing seat the range for this call is 10-14, not 15-17; thus you get to protect your diamond king and describe your hand simultaneously.

IF OCTOBER 7 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Be sure that all your bills are up to date and that you give no one any reason to criticize you because November will be a turbulent month for those who haven't dotted their i's and crossed their t's. Go to work on time and be sure to meet deadlines, so that the boss won't think about replacing you. You will have a welcome reprieve from unpleasant celestial weather in February and early March. That is a good time to form lasting romantic connections or to interview for a new job. Just don't become careless because your ability to handle responsibilities responsibly will be tested again in late March and early April.

HOROSCOPE
 Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your words of love aren't lost in translation. For a few hours today, you might feel that you are being rebuffed or ignored by a loved one or that someone you usually praise is unworthy of your attentions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You might have skills that you should share with others. You might be wise to take on an apprentice or trainee. It is always an excellent idea to set a good example, but let others help.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): One small step by a man can be a baby step for mankind. You don't always value what you do or think that your efforts are noticed in the big scheme of things. However, your footprints create a path.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Today's new moon might mark the beginning of a monthlong emphasis on home and family. You could easily have neglected a long lasting problem but become aware of the need for improvements.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Pick up the torch and carry on with someone's efforts. You might feel that you are in a relay race and need to have ample team spirit. If someone doesn't return your phone call, it doesn't mean they forgot you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): When the car is dusty, you wash it; when the rug is dirty, you shake it. You have become accustomed to something that has endured such a gradual change that you have barely noticed it needs attention.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Today's new moon may bring new insights and objectivity. It's possible to come across people who do not like to look at the reflection of themselves in your eyes, but prefer to criticize the mirror.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Exchange ideas under the principles of yin and yang. You may be on the outside, looking in — or on the inside, looking out. Perhaps your most valuable concepts and ideals are closely mirrored by others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Don't get upset over a swiftly changing business scenario. Rock-solid foundations can withstand outside disturbances, so simply ride out disruptions and interruptions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Fame and infamy are like the sides of a coin. You might receive attention, but it should be for all the right reasons. Your past transgressions might be brought out into view, so guard your reputation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Steady as she goes. Don't be thrown off balance by outrageous ideas and avoid being upset by shocking disclosures. You are free to dictate the timetable and control the rudder of your life right now.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): It takes one baby step to learn to walk. It is the struggle to achieve independence that is important. You may be relatively powerless, but through sheer force of will you can actually change your world.

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.
