Allred makes T.F. visit

Candidate offers specifics on tax exemptions

Bv Ben Botkin Times-News writer

Keith Allred got plenty of questions when he was in Twin Falls. With less than two weeks until Election Day, the Democratic gubernatorial candidate visited on Thursday with the Kiwanis Club in Twin Falls. He's running against GOP incumbent Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter.

This far into the campaign, Allred's introduction and answers haven't changed, except to respond to emerging criticisms.

For example, when asked which state tax exemptions should be eliminated to reduce the overall tax rate, Allred repeated his desire to get broad range of input from everyday Idahoans about which ones don't make sense. Then he added: "I doubt that 60 percent of Idahoans think we ought to tax cookies at bake sales."

Fatal crashes involving teen drivers decline

ATLANTA (AP) — Far fewer people are dying in car crashes with teens at the wheel, but it's not because teenagers are driving more cautiously. Experts say laws are tougher, and cars and highways are safer.

Fatal car crashes involving teen drivers fell by about a third over five years, according to a new federal report that credits tougher restrictions on younger drivers.

The number of deaths tied to these accidents dropped from about 2,200 in 2004 to 1.400 in 2008, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention said.

The CDC looked at fatal accidents were more than 9,600 such incidents during the five-year span, and more than 11,000 people died, including more than 4.000 of the teen drivers and more than 3,400 of their passengers.

The report is being published in Friday's issue of the CDC's Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report.

The rate of such fatal crashes has been declining since 1996. Experts credit a range of factors, including safer cars with air bags and highway improvements, which reduce the risk of death.

The number of non-fatal accidents involving drivers 16 and 17 years old has been dropping as well - by 31 percent involving drivers who were 16 or 17. There from 2004 through 2008, according to government figures.

ISP: Semi triggered I-84 crash

Times-News

Idaho State Police are investigating a crash on Interstate 84 that injured three people Thursday morning.

ISP responded to the crash near milepost 199 at about a.m. Marvin L. Blanchard, 45, of Pocatello, was eastbound in a 2003 Freightliner, pulling three Great Dane trailers. Also headed east - albeit more slowly - was a 2005 Hyundai Accent driven by Ryan L. Holyoak, 24, of Jerome. He was using a tow rope to pull a 1995 Kia Sephia steered by Steven R. Holyoak, 60, of Ierome.

According to ISP, Blanchard hit both vehicles, causing them to lose control. His semitrailer then drove off of the right side of the road, through a fence and on to a frontage road. The cab and first trailer rolled on to their tops, pinning Blanchard — who wasn't wearing a seatbelt under the cab.

Blanchard was taken by air ambulance to St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center in Twin Falls. Both Holyoaks, who were wearing seatbelts, were taken by ground to Cassia Regional Medical Center in Burley. All three were treated and released.

Gov. Caleb Lyon: Diamonds on the soles of his shoes ar and away the preeminent con man in Idaho history was our second territorial governor, Caleb Lyon.

Lyon, given to "flashingred cravats," velvet coats and extravagantly woven tall tales, talked none other than Abraham Lincoln into appointing him as governor of Idaho Territory in 1864. During his two-year tenure, he was - gosh, how to put this delicately? - not scrupulous with the taxpayer's funds.

In December 1865 — in part to divert attention from the fact that he was a New York Republican carpetbagger trying with limited success to run a Democratic territory full of angry veterans of the Confederacy – Lyon circulated a story that a prospector on the way to Silver City had discovered a diamond some 20 miles south of the Snake River in Owyhee County.

Tell that to a busteddown prospector surviving on hardtack.

Hundreds of them streamed to what soon became known as Diamond Gulch. A few diamonds were found - remarkably few.

All of which became painfully apparent by the middle of 1866, by which time Lyon was safely out of the territory. Under pressure from Democratic Sen. James Nesmith of Oregon, President Andrew Johnson had removed Lyon as governor that May.

$50,000 discrepancy between the former governor's receipts and the disbursements of the federal superintendent of Indian affairs. Lyon allowed that he had money with him when he left Idaho Territory, and put it under his pillow for safekeeping on the train taking him back to Washington, D.C.

But somebody stole it, the governor claimed.

The funds were bonded, so the federal government eventually got them back. Lyon was never prosecuted, and retired comfortably to Staten Island, N.Y., until his death in 1875.

No word survives on whether he still had diamond stick-pins sufficient to hold down those flashing-red cravats.

Ad takes Minnick remark out of context

BOISE — Republican Raul Labrador's new campaign ad takes a remark made by U.S. Rep. Walt Minnick out-of-context to suggest the Democrat favors a middle-class tax increase.

Minnick misspoke during a 2008 debate on Idaho Public Television with then U.S. Rep. Bill Sali, but then corrected himself two minutes later and said: "We need to have a middle class tax cut, not another tax cut for the rich."

Republican Rod Beck, a former state senate majority leader, acknowledged immediately after the debate that Minnick had misspoke when he first said: "We need a middle-class tax increase."

Labrador's new TV ad includes a short video clip of Minnick's misstep, but makes no reference to his correction.

Allred: Wolf management key to delisting

BOISE — Democratic gubernatorial candidate Keith Allred would restore Idaho's role in managing wolves under the federal Endangered Species Act because he believes it will help speed up delisting.

Allred said he'd undo Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter's move this week to hand management back to the federal government. Otter was protesting U.S. Interior Secretary Ken Salazar's refusal to allow a public hunt to help reduce Idaho wolves that now number about 850.

Otter says his decision will prevent hunters' dollars from going to wolves he argues were foisted on Idaho against its will in the 1990s.

But Allred contends if Idaho wants wolves de-listed, it needs "to stay in the game, not walk away."

The Democrat does support Otter's plan to kill dozens of wolves in northcentral Idaho, to help bolster elk herds in the region.

Burglars target meat locker with elk, moose

POST FALLS — The owner of a northern Idaho business says thieves. stole a skinned moose and three skinned elk worth thousands of dollars. Don Kirk of Prairie Custom Meats tells the Coeur d'Alene Press the meat was taken last week.

He says someone broke the hinges off a side door to get into the building. Kirk says some pieces of meat were found in a field about 70 yards from the business where it looked like the meat was loaded into vehicles. Police are investigating.

Cops: Woman drove with body for months

COSTA MESA — A California woman who befriended a homeless woman and let her sleep in her car told police she didn't know where to turn when the woman unexpectedly died — so she drove the body around for months along with a box of baking soda to hide the smell, authorities said Thursday.

Officers with the Costa Mesa police found the unidentified body Monday after getting a call about a car partially blocking a driveway, Sgt. Ed Everett told The Associated Press. When officers arrived, they noticed a stench and saw a leg poking out from a blanket and some clothes, he said.

The partially mummified remains consisted of mostly skin and bones and weighed about 30 pounds, he said.

An autopsy showed no signs of foul play but police are still investigating the role of the car's driver.

The woman driving the car told police she met a homeless woman in a park in nearby Fountain Valley and told her she could sleep in her car, Everett said. But when the woman died in her car 10 months ago, she was afraid to go to the police, he said.

The woman who drives the car, a 57-year-old who herself had fallen on hard times and was living with friends, told officers she had last seen the woman alive in December. It wasn't clear when she discovered the body in the car, he said.

When chips are down, Luna sides with Idaho's kids uperintendent of Public Instruction Tom Luna takes cuts in state funding for education personally. That's why we're endorsing him for election to a second term.

In that respect, he's very much like a former Republican schools chief.

A quarter century ago, Jerry Evans stood before a GOP-dominated Legislature in the midst of an economic downturn and said lawmakers weren't doing enough for the state's

That didn't make him popular with the speaker of the House of Representatives at the time, Tom Stivers of Twin Falls. Nor with the Senate president, a fellow named Iim Risch.

But Evans wasn't there to please Idaho's movers and shakers. Neither, to his credit, was Luna during the past legislative session. "A $130 million reduction - that in and of itself should alarm every mother and father in our school system," Luna told the Legislature's Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee in January. "If you couple that with our monies that were spent last year, we're talking about almost $200 million that has been cut from our public school system over a two-year period of time." So Luna, pretty much on his own initiative, went out and found nearly $30 million more revenue – $5 million in his own Department of Education and $22 million from in the Land Board's earnings reserve fund, which he persuaded the other members of the Land Board to release by a 3-2 vote. Without that money, according to Sen. Dean Cameron, R-Rupert, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, the public school cuts would have been deeper.

Luna faces a strong Democratic opponent on Nov. 2 in recently retired Boise Superintendent of Schools Stan Olson, who faults Luna correctly for overselling his Math Initiative. And while Olson is right that the governor and the Legislature didn't do enough to find additional sources of revenue to stave off reductions in state support for public education, he's wrong that Luna shares the blame for that.

Fact is, nobody spent more of his own personal political capital in the past year fighting for education than Luna.

He's a former businessman, a conservative Republican and a political ally of Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter who has more in common with the conservatives who run the Legislature than with teachers, superintendents and school board members.

But Luna never backed down from telling lawmakers that their plans for funding public schools weren't adequate, and after it became obvious that significant cuts were coming, he teamed up with Cameron and House Appropriations Chairwoman Maxine Bell to bring education stakeholders together and devise a plan for how the reduced budget could be allocated to do the least damage to schools.

During his 16-year tenure as superintendent, Evans was fond of saying that he represented Idaho's kids first and the Republican Party sec-

The rage won't end on Election Day

WHICH CANDIDATE'S

BEST MATCH YOUR PRE-CONCEIVED MINDSET ABOUT HIS OPPONENT?

arl Paladino began his New York gubernatorial campaign by bragging he'd "clean out Albany with a baseball bat." When an ally likened his main Albany target, the (Jewish) leader of the State Assembly, to "an antichrist or Hitler," he enthusiastically endorsed the slur. We also learned of Paladino's repertory of gag e-mails among them a pornographic picture of a woman having sex with a horse and a photo of an African tribal ritual captioned "Obama Inauguration Rehearsal." How blind we were not to recognize that his victory in a Republican primary under the proud Tea Party banner was inevitable.

Frank Rich

A week ago New Yorkers were presented with a vivid reminder of how a bat can be used as a weapon. A pack of young thugs was charged with torturing three men in the Bronx for being gay, one of whom was sodomized.

It's probably safe to assume that no one in this lynching party has heard of Paladino. Presumably he has heard of them, but a man of Tea Party principles will not compromise, no matter what may be happening in the real world. Don't tread on Carl! And so last Sunday, Paladino visited a fringe Orthodox synagogue in Brooklyn to stand his ground. He attacked gays for supposedly plotting to brainwash children into accepting the validity of homosexuality.

We don't know what will happen on Election Day, but one fairly safe bet is this: Paladino will not be the next governor of New York. The national forecast is not so Paladino is just the most clownish illustration of where things have been heading for two years and are still heading. Like the farcical Christine O'Donnell in another blue Northeastern state, he's a political loss-leader, if you will, whose near-certain defeat on Nov. 2 allows us to indulge in a bit of denial about the level of rage still coursing, sometimes violently, through our national bloodstream.

That wave of anger began with the parallel 2008 cataclysms of the economy's collapse and Barack Obama's ascension. The mood has not subsided since. But in the final stretch of 2010, the radical right's anger is becoming less focused, more freefloating — more likely to be aimed at "government" in general, whatever the location or officials in charge. The anger is also more likely to claim minorities like gays, Latinos and Muslims as collateral damage. This is a significant and understandable shift, if hardly a salutary one. The mad-as-hell crowd in America, still not seeing any solid economic recovery on the horizon, will lash out at any convenient scapegoat. The rage was easier to parse at the Tea Party's birth, when, a month after Obama's inauguration, its founding father, CNBC's Rick Santelli, directed his rant at the ordinary American "losers" defaulting on their mortgages, and at those in Washington who proposed bailing the losers out. Soon enough, the anger tilted toward Washington in general and the new president in particular. And it kept getting hotter. In June 2009, still just six months into the Obama presidency, the Fox News anchor Shepard Smith broke with his own network's party line to lament a rise in "amped up" Americans "taking the extra step and getting the gun out." He viewed the killing of a guard by a neo-Nazi Obama hater at the United States Holocaust Memorial Museum in Washington as the apotheosis of the "more and more frightening" post-election e-mail surging into Fox.

The moment passed. Glenn Beck, also on Fox, spoke for most on the right when he dismissed the shooter as a "lone gunman nutjob." Those who showed up with assault rifles at presidential health care rallies that summer were similarly minimized as either solitary oddballs or overzealous Second Amendment patriots. Few cared when The Boston Globe reported last fall that the Secret Service was overwhelmed by death threats against the president as well as a rise in racist hate groups and antigovernment fervor. It's no better now. In a cover article last month, Barton Gellman wrote in Time that the magazine's six-month investigation found that "the threat level against the president and other government targets" is at its highest since the antigovernment frenzy that preceded Timothy McVeigh's bombing of a federal building in Oklahoma City in 1995. While Obama-hatred remains a staple of the right, the ebbing of his political clout may have diminished him as a catchall for America's roiling, inchoate rage. The president rial candidate from Nevada, is no longer the sole personification of evil. For those who see government as Public Enemy No. 1, other targets will do, potentially some as remote from Washington as Oklahoma City.

Dana Milbank, a

Washington Post columnist, has been tracking the case of Byron Williams, a bank robber on parole who injured two California Highway Patrol officers in a July shootout. Williams was out to start a revolution, his mother said, because "Congress was railroading through all these left-wing agenda items." But instead of picking Congress as his target, Williams was gunning for progressives closer to home, at the Tides Foundation and ACLU in San Francisco. The Tides Foundation? It's an obscure nonprofit whose agenda includes education and AIDS prevention. But it's not obscure to Beck fans, who heard him single it out for vilification 29 times in the 18 months before Williams grabbed his gun.

As Milbank has written, "it's not fair to blame Beck for violence committed by his fans," but he would nonetheless "do well to stop encouraging extremists." The same could be said of the many politicians who are emulating the Beck template - especially given the tinderbox state of the nation. Whether it's Sarah Palin instructing her acolytes to "reload" or a congressman velling "baby killer!" at a colleague on the House floor or Sharron Angle, the Tea Party senatoproposing that citizens consider "Second Amendment remedies" to "protect themselves against a tyrannical government," we know where this can lead.

Crazy to pay taxes on 70 acres we don't need

Our three Jerome County commissioners finally got a "sketch" of a jail (not necessarily of the proposed jail) and bought 80 acres at an overpriced amount, paying $10,000 earnest money. It astounds me that they say they only need approximately seven to 10 acres, so why buy 80 acres? Also, have they received approval from the Federal Aviation Administration for building the jail in the landing pattern of the airport?

This country is in a depression and homes are being foreclosed almost every day. And we have 9.6 percent unemployed and homeless people. Our seniors are again not getting a cost of living adjustment.

This is crazy to pay taxes on approximately 70 acres we don't need! We do need a new jail, but not such an expensive one. Also, the sheriff will need more people to manage a larger jail, which is a cost probably not included in the $13 million.

It is also approximately six miles to the judicial annex and there will be transportation costs. So the taxpayers will again have to pay it unless they plan to move the judicial annex out there.

People, please consider this carefully before you vote, and vote your pocketbook. But do vote.

Vote for Cindy Shotswell for state senator

Cindy Shotswell should be elected as the state senator from the Jerome district. I have known Cindy for 30 years and have seen her develop into an adult who works hard to have the best community to live in that can be had. Cindy Shotswell has raised her children in the Magic Valley community and has always supported the youthful community in their hopes and decisions over the vears. Cindy Shotswell has achieved her master's degree in social services in Idaho schools while raising her family. She understands the difficulties and rewards of education and that it can help financially and socially in many aspects of community life.

I support Cindy Shotswell as a good choice for "new blood" for Jerome district. KAREN NIELSON

oom and gloom and lies. The Jerome County commissioners and the Times-News are guilty of spreading these. When elected officials lie, there is usually a motive and money is at the top of the list. I say this using their own words. Recently, the paper quoted Commissioner Howell saying, "If the building cost is under the proposed bond amount, extra money will be returned to taxpayers." How, Charlie? Tell us that legal process. And what if it's more than the bond amount? You'll raise our taxes to cover it?

If you don't truly know how much the jail will cost because you have no blueprints and no firm bids or contracts from reputable builders, you're guessing with taxpayer dollars.

Howell also said that "the county's received calls from all around the United States wanting to build the jail, but the bid would most likely be given to Idaho businesses." I did two public records requests and these calls were not in this required disclosure. Where's this list and who took the calls?

Both Charlie and the Times-News say the $10,000 earnest money will be returned if the vote is no. I have their draft and their final land sales agreement from my public record request that says otherwise.

Howell said, "The budget doesn't allow for expensive blueprints until the bond is passed." When I researched jail builders online, I talked to three, who had dozens of blueprints available for review at no cost. Commissioner Roemer thinks blueprints cost $25,000. I'm not ready to give her a check for $18 million.

When we build a school, we're told exactly how much our property taxes will go up. Charlie says we'll get "an 100,000 taxpayer dollars average increase of $50 per year." Average?

Howell says the mostly empty impound yard can be moved to allow the airport to expand. Didn't the commissioners just buy a bunch of land to expand the airport? If the Federal Aviation Administration says no, then what? If the city can't reach its goal of putting sewer lines out there in their projected three years, then what?

Why are the commissioners pushing a bond without blueprints, firm bids or anything close to what you'd go to a bank with to get a loan? If the bond passes, their past attempts to get a leased jail that wasted more than will soon be forgotten.

If the bond passes, the commissioners can do anything they want with the excess land. They're buying 80 acres and claim we need 10 for a jail. Their $2,000 conceptual drawings of the jail do not require 10 acres. Do we really want to move the ambulance service three miles out of Jerome? To transport prisoners to court is six miles round trip instead of walking them there if they built the jail behind the annex. I don't have enough space to counter all the misleading statements made by the county and the Times-News but I remind the reader that I Jerome.

uncovered the illegal overtime appropriation scam that two current commissioners wanted buried. I want a jail but I want to know how it will be built, how much it will cost and exactly what the increase in my taxes will be, to the penny, as required by law.

There is no firm contractor, blueprint, contract, definite costs analysis, in short, they are lacking everything you'd need to go to the bank to build a house. And. Times-News, Jerome County ain't Canyon County.

Vote no on the Jerome County jail bond Nov. 2.

Eller is best qualified for county commission

Do you vote for the person not the party? Have you ever voted for a Democrat?

Gary Eller is the best qualified candidate for county commissioner. His military career as an officer has given him experience in dealing with government regulations and managing employees. His recent experience teaching school and ranching in Twin Falls County has brought him back in touch with the area he was raised in. He is currently involved in the search for an occupant of the hospital building. He has taken the time to attend meetings the county commissioners must attend. He is fully informed of the necessities of the job.

Gary Eller chose to run as a Democrat knowing that makes him the underdog. He only recently changed party affiliation. He knows, as we in the Democratic Party know, that it is the independent voter that makes the difference in this race. If the only people who vote in this off-year election are party stalwarts, then the Republican will prevail despite not being the most-qualified candidate.

We vote as citizens, not as party members. If you are truly an independent voter, you should be taking the time to contact Gary Eller at 420-4334 or gryeller@aol.com to find out just what qualifications he has and his concerns for our county. You could also stop by the Twin Falls Democratic office at 161 Fifth Ave. S. between 4 and 7 p.m. Tuesday through Friday and 1 and 4 p.m. Saturday and pick up a biography of Gary Eller. Consider the Democrats in this election.

Pence has background to help our schools

As a retired teacher, Donna Pence has the right background to help our schools in District 25 continue to prepare for the future. Donna agrees the cuts to education were too severe and will fight for common sense solutions to assure our students get the quality education they rightfully deserve. Donna's relationships with educators in the 10 public school districts in our region will help her get things done for our youth. She is involved with Idaho Education Network that provides the connectivity that brings in the online and virtual class offerings to schools throughout our state. It enables our rural school districts to offer a variety of advanced course opportunities. This will help students in rural areas get the same level of education as students in larger school districts. Donna will continue to work on bringing more technical training programs to our high schools and linking those programs with community colleges like the College of Southern Idaho to prepare students for good jobs. As an educator, Donna understands the various needs of the classroom and supports a well-rounded education for all students in all dis-

motes improved efficiency throughout our mid to small school districts through shared services. During her time in the state Legislature, Donna served on the Idaho State School for Deaf and Blind Study Committee. She studied the structure of ISDB and helped make the determination about where the location of the school should be to benefit the students that attend ISDB as well as the community that would best serve the needs of the students.

Donna has the experience and training as an educator to continue to fight for the right combination of opportunities for our kids. Our kids are too precious to cut corners on their futures. Please support Donna Pence this November.

We don't need to pay companies to move here

Two politicians unwittingly illustrated the reasons voters should vote no on HJR5 in their reader comment published Sunday in the Times-News. They want local governments to go into the private real estate development business with public money and no voter oversight. They presented the following scenario: "Consider a hypothetical, but not at all unrealistic situation: A major air cargo provider needs a new, regional maintenance facility and wants to locate that facility in Boise at our airport. Under the current circumstances, if the Boise airport wanted to construct a facility and then enter into a long-term lease with the air cargo company, we would need to seek voter approval, even though no tax dollars would be involved - in any way - with the transaction. "Under this proposed change, the airport could negotiate a business deal with the air cargo firm, undertake construction financed by the lease terms or other airport generated revenue, and move with efficiency to meet a business need and create jobs and strengthen the econothat airports are seeking authority to go into debt and enter the commercial real estate leasing business to construct tax-exempt government facilities for private businesses using public funds.

Schools, cities, counties, highway districts and any other taxing agencies would suffer loss of revenue on any buildings constructed under this plan. We see it as an alternative plan to skirt the growing distrust of urban renewal. In fact, the language of the amendment is so broad it would allow most any business to locate on airport property and get government financing. I would welcome any business to our state as long as they pay a decent wage and their fair share of taxes. We simply don't need to pay them to come here. Let those states willing to speculate on real estate ventures "attract" those businesses. If a business can't afford to construct its own buildings, it probably can't afford much else either. Claims of jobs and prosperity are mere speculation. The only fact if HJR5 passes is you lose your right to vote on airport debt. DAVID FRAZIER Boise

Health law aims to destroy our freedoms

"Obamacare" should be repugnant to every freedom-loving Idahoan.

Contained within the massive legislation are many government mandates involving far more than making health care more affordable and available to Americans. It is a huge power grab designed to control doctors and businesses, discourage private insurance companies and, worst of all, destroy our precious individual freedoms.

We cannot accept mandated health care in any form. The real solution is for government to get out of the health care business all together and let the real fair market work to increase competition, improve medical care and drive down prices. Idaho needs to encourage more insurance companies to offer their services here.

The 10th Amendment declares that any powers not granted to the federal government nor prohibited to the states by the Constitution of the United States are reserved to the states or the people. It is the duty of the states to nullify any unconstitutional federal legislation. Obamacare is clearly far outside the bounds of the federal government's jurisdiction.

We must demand that our state representatives support any efforts to nullify this terrible federal legislation. It is imperative that we support freedomloving candidates at our general election. We need the kind of leadership that Republican Gov. Butch Otter offers. I believe he will continue to fight unconstitutional federal government mandates while striving to be fiscally conservative. Keith Allred's solution is for Idaho to create its own governmentrun health care system.

Idaho does not need that! As Twin Falls Precinct 5 leader for the Republican Party, I support Rep. Steve Hartgen because he has proven to be a true constitutionalist. Leon Mills will serve us well as county commissioner with his experience and leadership skills. These men hold freedom dear to their hearts and we need them to represent us.

Less hope, more fear

In 2 years, Obama's oratory takes fearful turn

PORTLAND, Ore. – With the 2008 Democratic primary race all but won, Barack Obama appeared at a massive outdoor rally here and delivered a message that was unique by the cut throat standards of American political campaigns.

"We're not going to worry about what other folks are doing;" Obama told a crowd of 75,000 at the waterfront event in May 2008. "We're going to try to focus on what President Obama and Sen. Patty Murray, D-Wash., right, get donuts we think we can do for America?"

Tainted celery sickens at least 6 in Texas; 4 die

The Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO Texas health officials have shut down a processing plant linked to contaminated celery that sickened at least six people this year, four of whom died, and ordered the recall of all of the produce that passed through the plant since January.

SanGar Produce & Processing Co. issued the recall Wednesday after its plant in San Antonio was shuttered. The Texas Department of State Health Services traced six of 10 known cases of listeriosis in the state during an eight month period to celery processed there. The agency is investigating the origins of the other four cases, which include one death.

Health inspectors found sanitation problems at the plant, including a condensation leak over a food production area. The health department is trying to determine who the nowrecalled produce was sold to and whether it was used in other products. The agency urges customers to throw out or return all SanGar products.

The Food and Drug Administration is also looking into the contamination and may decide to expand the recall once it learns more, Don Kraemer, the deputy director in the FDA's Office of Food Safety, told The Associated Press on Thursday.

Texas health department spokeswoman Carrie Williams said the state asked the company to close voluntarily but it refused.

DEAR READER: Your mother is likely suffering from a condition known as hemochromatosis. It is the most common form of iron-overload disease. There are several forms, including primary/hereditary, secondary, juvenile and neonatal. Primary or hereditary hemochromatosis is generally caused by a defect of the gene HFE, which regulates the amount of iron absorbed from food. There are two mutations, C282Y and H63D. Those with one copy of the defect C282Y become carriers who don't develop hemochromatosis but may have higher-thannormal iron levels throughout life. Those with two copies can develop the condition.

Secondary is caused by anemia, alcoholism and other disorders. Juvenile and neonatal hemochromatosis are caused by a mutation of the gene hemojuvelin.

Treatment, as you know, is phlebotomy (blood drawing). If started before the condition progresses, it may prevent symptoms; otherwise, it typically improves but doesn't eliminate symptoms. Arthritis

Steamy 'Glee' GQ pictures have many, well, steaming

Associated Press writer

NEW YORK - You're a couple of great-looking, talented young actresses on the hottest show on TV. You're adults. So why NOT pose for some seriously saucy photos in GQ, a magazine for adult men?

Well, it gets a little thorny when the show is "Glee," beloved by 8- and 9-yearolds, and when you're posing as a high-school girl in flap. nothing but skimpy panties, spreading your legs skywide on a locker room bench. Or suggestively licking a lolly as you lean - inthe same skimpy panties on a high-school locker.

Did the stars of "Glee" go too far?

That's what critics and fans of the show have been chimed in Salon.com. Her feelings were echoed by commentators as prominent as Katie Couric, who devoted an opinion segment Wednesday's on Evening News" to the photo

"I'm a Gleek," she began, saying how she and her 14year-old daughter watch the show every week. But she decried the photos, particularly Michele's spread-eagle one, as "raunchy" and "un-Glee-like," and concluded: "I'm disappointed."

Nelson added: "What we wanted to celebrate in the shoot and the story is (the show's) playfulness, its wicked sense of fun, the clever way it plays with its self-awareness. And it doesn't hide from it sexual suggestiveness."

The show's creators didn't quite expect that at first.

"We didn't know 9-yearolds would like it so much," co-creator and executive producer Brad Falchuk told the AP in May. "We didn't know the geriatric set would like it so much, either. I wish we knew how we did it."

It wasn't clear how "Glee" producers felt about the GQ photos: Fox denied the AP's request for comment. In any case, Nelson, at GQ, said that Fox knew about the shoot, but didn't get involved in the concept. "It was up to the individual actors and the reps for the actors to approve the concept," he said.

Declo students earn library micro-grant

This week is Teen Read Week, with a theme of "Books with Beat @ your library." To help celebrate the week, the Idaho Commission for Libraries sponsored a micro-grant program for schools and libraries that wanted to participate.

Eleven Declo Junior High School students directed by librarian Vicki Petersen and two educational assistants, Roxanne Gillette and Sara Osterhout, earned one of this year's micro-grants by creating a public service announcement to celebrate the week. Gillette's daughter, Monica, filmed and edited the PSA, which incorporated music, dancing and sports.

Students who helped with the piece were Jaden Jensen, Jace Garrard, Kali Johnson, Dalon Koyle, Blakely Peterson, Cody Johnson, Thomander, Savannah Campbell, Delaney Kunau and Kohl Osterhout. Some volunteered, while others were recruited for their tal-

Boise mulls plan to discourage holiday panhandling

BOISE (AP) - City officials in Boise are considering a citywide campaign aimed at discouraging panhandling during the holiday season.

The plan would ask shoppers not to give money to panhandlers, but instead make donations to local nonprofit organizations.

The city last summer ran a three-week pilot program with that message at the Albertsons grocery store in downtown Boise.

During the "Have a Heart Give Smart Boise" pilot program, store clerks at Albertsons gave brochures to customers suggesting donations to the Idaho Food Bank, the United Way of Treasure Valley, and others.

Boise Police Department said panhandling was reduced by 10 percent.

"It showed we can change behaviors if we give people directions to organizations that help solve long-term problems," said Theresa McLeod, special assistant to Boise Mayor David Bieter and who helped to organize the campaign. "Even if we make a difference in the lives of let's say 10 people, it's been successful."

She said donating to organizations is the best way to help people in need.

"If people know they can give wisely they can direct resources to services that can really help," McLeod told the Idaho Business Review.

She said it would cost about $4,000 to print 100,000 brochures to hand out to shoppers during the holiday season to discourage giving to panhandlers. She said the Boise City Council will likely consider the matter early next month.

Lilia Rodriguez, spokeswoman for Albertsons, said the company has received more complaints about panhandling from customers in Boise than from any of the other cities where the company has 463 stores in nine western states.

Shopping mall burns after standoff in northern Calif.

By Don Thompson Associated Press writer

ROSEVILLE, Calif. – A high-end regional mall that is one of the main retail centers in a broad swath of Northern California was set ablaze Thursday after police arrested a man who had barricaded himself

Police said the man holed up in a video game store at the Roseville Galleria and started a small fire that later erupted and spread to the roof, damaging an entire arm of the mall.

The 1.3 million-squarefoot Galleria was evacuated by the time the fire blew up, and no injuries were reported.

City officials said part of the roof on the mall's south end collapsed. After the clouds of smoke cleared, overhead television images showed the charred remains of retail stores, many of which were gutted.

Cholera is a waterborne bacterial infection spread through contaminated water.

It causes severe diarrhea and vomiting that can lead to dehydration and death within hours. Treatment involves administering a salt and sugar-based rehy-

Twin Falls' Mary Alice Park now has a little

On Saturday, community members came together with Art Guild of Magic Valley to start a flower mural in the alley behind the park. The project is the first of what Art Guild president Cheryl Bruce hopes will be many public art projects in Twin Falls.

Art Hoag, a member of Art Guild of Magic Valley and caretaker of Mary Alice Park, came up with the idea when chatting with Colleen McClellan, the homeowner whose property borders the back of Mary Alice Park. Hoag then recruited Bruce and they assembled a team of painters.

There were no stencils, no plans to follow. McClellan likes flowers and dragonflies, Hoag said, but didn't give any other direction.

"I'm just providing them a clean slate," McClellan said.

So Bruce and her crew started painting freehand, whimsical flowers and vines, each with its own character. Bruce, who owns Twin Falls

"My character is kind of like a narrator, the overseer of everything going on. I don't interact with the other characters so that has been rough," said Bangerter, a junior.

Jonathan Blackburn, cast as Tony, said his character will likely connect with many people, peers and audience members alike.

"Tony is kind of a follower, a tag-along," Blackburn said. "He doesn't try to be anything but talks bigger than he is. He'll cheer on a fight but not get his hands dirty."

Tony is a member of the group of other street kids Tommy finds himself in.

"Although Tommy makes the same bad choices as the others he represents something different. When he goes into the museum, he is interested in the artwork. He is drawn into literature and art. The people around him sense that difference and they don't like it." Blackburn said.

Sixteen-year-old Meghan Burnham said "The Brick" is balanced nicely with the comedies.

"I think the comedies are really needed. 'The Brick and the Rose' is so heavy, it will definitely leave people thinking," Burnham said.

Spartans bring lunch pail approach to game

By Ryan Howe Times-News writer

RUPERT - After a lackluster 4-6 season in 2009, the Minico football team has returned to the earned Great Basin Conference championships the four seasons

The Spartans are bringing their lunch pail to work every day figuratively and literally.

Gosnell started the lunch pail tradition this year. In practice the offense and defense compete in different challenges. The winning side earns bragging rights and a stuck it to Twin this year is Poky lunch pail full of candy.

For each home game, the team chooses the week's hardestonto the field carrying the lunch pail. It symbolizes the Spartans' blue-collar approach to the season, as well as the team's community pride.

"The lunch pail represents the hard working people of the community who support us. They just bring it every day to work," said Minico senior Dalton Mickelsen. "We play for our team, but we also play for our fans."

The Spartans' hard work has workmanlike approach that paid off. They are in position to reclaim the conference championship as they travel to Twin Falls tonight.

"It's huge," said Mickelsen. "We've been hitting hard, in conditioning we've been giving it the Minico assistant coach Doug extra step, so that we can go play them with our best game of the year. Coming out in the first half we want to stick it to them because the only team that has and we want to be one of those teams."

Twin Falls' only loss was to working player to lead the team Pocatello, while Minico's two losses were against undefeated and No. 1-ranked Bishop Kelly, and Elizabeth High, which is unbeaten and ranked No. 2 in its classification in Colorado.

La. Tech at

on task at hand

By Jason Chatraw Times-News correspondent

BOISE - As second-ranked Boise State begins the second half of its season Tuesday (6 p.m., ESPN2) against Western Athletic Conference foe Louisiana Tech, BSU head coach Chris Petersen wasn't interested in grading his team at the midway point

He made it clear at his weekly press conference Thursday that he is interested in only one grade: the final

"Who cares about preseason rankings or midseason rankings?" Petersen said. "I don't. But I think we're where we need to be. We'll grade ourselves at the end of the season when it's all said and done."

For Petersen and the Broncos, waiting until the end of the season seems like the best direction to go. Otherwise, they might remain stuck in a world of frustration.

After starting the season ranked No. 5 in the coaches' poll, Boise State is one of only two teams in the preseason top 10 to remain unbeaten to this point. However, other teams have leapfrogged the Broncos as they themselves find with the most frustrating BCS ranking possible - No. 3.

Nevertheless, Petersen's focus on the end goal of a third straight perfect regular season seems within reach.

And that is a goal that Petersen feels can be accomplished with continued focus and energy on the task at hand.

"This

season is a grind for everybody."

- BSU Coach

Chris Petersen

"I think we have to keep our focus and we have to keep practicing at a high level and stay excited about all of those things," Petersen said. "I know that seems like, 'What are you talking about?' But it's easier said than done.

"This season is a grind for everybody. It's not going to be done by showing up and just being excited to play on Tuesday or Saturday or whatever day you play. The preparation has to be meticulous and there has to be a lot of energy so everything is all in the line so you can go play fast and hard."

At 6-0 overall and 2-0 in WAC play, the Broncos look unbeatable with a relatively weak remaining schedule. With a No. 2 ranking in the polls and sporting the nation's thirdbest scoring defense at 12.3 points per game and third-best scoring offense at 47.5 points per game, Petersen doesn't have many complaints.

Bruins vs. Spartans: Breaking down the matchup

Jerome High School coach Gary Krumm offers his take on today's Minico at Twin Falls game. Krumm's Tigers lost 44-34 to the Bruins and 43-19 to the Spartans.

In a nutshell, both teams have strong, veteran leadership at QB in T.J. Ellis (Twin Falls) and Kade Miller (Minico). That is about the only similarity I truly see.

Minico is a more physical football team between the tackles on both sides of the ball, but Twin Falls has a stable of skilled players on both offense and defense who have multiple talents. Can Twin Falls defensive coordinator Dave Slotten and his defense shut down Minico running back Brady May by holding him under 100 yards? If so, they can win.

Twin Falls can spread the ball around on offense. Can Minico create a turnover or two and force punts? If so, they win. It could come down to which of the veteran QB's has the best night with the fewest mistakes. Playing at Twin Falls helps even this game up somewhat in my opinion.

High School High Five A look at this week's biggest prep football games

Jerome at Burley

7 p.m. Radio: 1400 AM (Jerome), 1230 AM (Burley)

The skinny: With a Great 8 playoff spot already locked up, Jerome (2-5, 2-2) limps into Burley tonight. The Tigers have lost seven starters due to injury since the start of the season, most recently slot/DE Jordan McCully (knee) and DE Cameran Bartlett (ribs). Burley (0-7, 0-4) looks to avoid its second winless season in five years. Jerome won last year's meeting 50-13. Burley coach Jeff Green declined to comment on the matchup.

Jerome coach Gary Krumm: "Burley's at home trying to get a win to go out on. I can't see this being an easy road closer for us. We must eliminate the huge mistakes. We've gotten better as we've progressed, but complete elimination of those would lead to confidence in our kids. (The many injuries) gives some younger players opportunity, and we'll look at that on the positive side, but there's no doubt it hurts our team."

Filer at Kimberly

Radio: none The skinny: After surviving to beat Buhl last week, Kimberly can claim the outright SCIC title with a home win over Filer tonight. The Bulldogs should have the horses to beat the inconsistent Wildcats, who will be without RB Jordon Brown (knee). But Filer is feeling confident and would love to pull the upset to forge a three-way tie in the SCIC. That would mean a Kansas City playoff on Monday to decide the league's two postseason berths.

Filer coach Russ Burnum: "We're pretty fired up about it. We know the ramifications if we win. We've just been waiting for an opportunity like this. ... The kids are feeling pretty good about our chances, but it's going to be a tough row to hoe."

Kimberly coach Kirby Bright: "When you have a chance to (win the outright SCIC title), that's why you play the game. We were fortunate enough to get a win last week and we're looking forward to get one at home."

Buhl at Wendell

7 p.m.

Radio: none The skinny: Both teams come in on tough times. The Indians suffered a gut-wrenching loss to Kimberly last week, watching a field goal go through in the final seconds, while Wendell lost quarterback Nolan Stouder for the season with a torn meniscus in its loss to Gooding. Buhl started Markus Lively at quarterback for the injured Camden Gillins last week against Kimberly and he responded well, passing for 98 yards and rushing for two touchdowns. Stouder is the centerpiece for Wendell's offense and the Trojans will have a tough time replacing him, defense. Buhl coach Stacy Wilson:

especially against a stout Buhl

"Championship teams respond to adversity. We need to come out and move on from last week. We've learned from it and we'll be ready."

Declo at Gooding

7 p.m.

The skinny: Declo and Gooding battle for the Canyon Conference championship. The teams have identical 4-3 records and are unbeaten (3-0) in conference play. Look out for a marquee matchup between the teams' stud RB/LBs. Gooding's Casey Pierson has rushed for more than 1,500 yards and 15 touchdowns, while also averaging 18 tackles per game. Declo's Mark Knobbe has rushed for over 1,700 yards.

Declo senior Mark Knobbe: "After last year (a 63-0 Declo win), they're going to want a little bit of revenge. We're going to have to wrap up on tackles and we have to stay home, because a lot of what I'm seeing on film is they're beating teams by (misdirection)." Gooding coach Cameron Anderson:

"When you're trying to rebuild a program, the first thing you do is try to get some wins. We've done that. The next step is to beat big teams like Declo. ... You have to keep an eye on Knobbe, but I think people devote so much time to Knobbe they forget about guys like (Kyle) Zollinger, (Kyle Darrington) and (Jaxon Wrigley), and that's when they get dangerous."

Castleford at Rockland

4 p.m.

Radio: none The skinny: It's a battle of unbeatens as No. 1-ranked Castleford (7-0, 4-0) travels to No. 3 Rockland (6-0, 4-0) for an afternoon clash, with the winner clinching at least a share of the Sawtooth Conference South Division championship. Castleford linemen Zach Frey, Tyler Hansen and Mitch Howard will have their hands full with Rockland's size advantage. The Wolves will try to spread the field and use their speed, led by RB Cody Quinn, who is among the state's top rushers. Castleford averages 52.1 points per game while Rockland scores 44.8. Castleford coach Tracy Vulgamore: "Rockland's in the same boat as we are. It's hard to get a good feel for what they are when they're doing the same thing (destroying opponents) that we are. I definitely feel good about our team. I think we're faster, and in 8-man that can be key. I think our quickness will be an advantage for us."

NFL stresses discipline in video on illegal hits

NEW YORK - The NFL delivered its message about heavier punishment for illegal hits, including suspensions, directly to the 32 teams Thursday with a video spelling out what to avoid.

The video includes three tackles from last Sunday that led to huge fines, and warns players that even first-time offenders will immediately be subject to suspensions for delivering such flagrant hits to the head and neck area of defenseless play-

"Illegal hits to the head of an opponent will not be tolerated," NFL executive vice president of football operations Ray Anderson says in the video. "A player is accountable for what he hits. Illegal techniques must be removed from our game.

'We all accept that football is a physical and tough game, but players must play under control. If a player launching into an opponent misses his aiming point, he will nevertheless be responsible for what he hits.' In the video, Anderson calls Patriots safety

Brandon Meriweather's helmet hit on Ravens tight end Todd Heap "inexcusable." Meriweather was fined $50,000 for the hit in which he launched himself headfirst into Heap's helmet.

Colts TE Clark out indefinitely

INDIANAPOLIS - Injuries are hitting some of Peyton Manning's favorite targets.

Colts president Bill Polian says tight end Dallas Clark is out indefinitely with a hand/wrist injury. He told WISH-TV that Clark would meet with doctors on Thursday to determine the extent of the injury and how long he will be sidelined.

The Colts also said wide receiver Austin Collie (thumb) and defensive tackle Antonio Johnson (knee) have undergone surgeries. The team said there is time for their return.

NASCAR Kahne to finish with Red Bull

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Kasey Kahne will finish this season driving for Red Bull Racing, a move made possible when Richard Petty Motorsports granted him an early release, presumably to dump the remainder of his contract.

Kahne will finish this year in the No. 83 Toyota, Red Bull said Thursday. He's signed to drive for Hendrick Motorsports in 2012 and is moving to Red Bull next year as a one-season stopgap.

With the early switch, Red Bull now must make the final two payments on Kahne's contract, and he could be owed at least $2 million.

"With our agreement only being for one year, there is a great sense of urgency to get started on 2011," Red Bull general manager Jay Frye said. "With Kasey coming earlier than planned, we are excited to have a five-race head start."

Wendell, Gooding boys set up 3A semifinal clash

By David Bashore Times-News writer

For the second straight year, Gooding County will be represented in the Class 3A boys soccer state championship match. It's just a matter of which school will do the representing.

Jose "Pepe" Rodriguez scored two first-half goals as Gooding cruised to a 3-2 over South Fremont at Sunway Soccer Complex on Thursday, while Wendell scored a rare come-from-behind 2-1 win over Weiser to set up a semifinal showdown between the two conference rivals.

The Trojans went behind for just the third time all season when Manuel Calderon lashed home a shot from 15 yards to put Weiser ahead 10 minutes into the second half. In the past the Trojans may shouting at each other, but they kept their composure and found a way to win on Thursday.

Mere seconds after being switched from attacking midfielder to forward, Johnny Macias pounced on a goalkeeper mistake and got to the ball just before the keeper to stab home the equalizer midway through the period.

"Our coaches always tell us to follow the ball because there's always a chance of a rebound," Macias said. "I knew that (Jose "Lupe" Ruelas) was going to shoot it hard and maybe the goalie would let it bounce. I just ran as hard as I could to get there."

Ten minutes after the senior leveled the match, his younger brother won it as Eder Macias sprung the offside trap and poked in the pionship.

Ruelas set up the second goal as well, spotting the freshman and clipping in a through-ball just before the defensive line stepped up to try and catch him in an offside

"I knew I was on the line and I lifted my hand for Lupe, and he saw me," Eder Macias said. "I couldn't control the ball very well but when I got a chance I shot it. We're not used to playing from behind, but knowing we needed a goal pumped the team up. We want this really badly."

"It was nice to score," Rodriguez said. "I think we played well, but we can still step it up a couple of levels."

The second half was largely uneventful, with South Fremont pulling a goal back in the dying seconds on a penalty kick.

The only trouble with riding your luck is that it inevitably runs out.

Kimber Choffin's 35-yard wonderstrike just before the halfway point of overtime settled matters and sent Sugar-Salem through to this afternoon's semifinals with a 2-1 win over Filer.

Choffin weaved through traffic in the center of the field and unleashed a right-footed shot that cracked high and just over the outstretched hand of Wildcat netminder Katie Williams before tucking under the bar to end the match on the golden goal rule.

Williams three times made saves on breakaways after halftime to keep Filer in the match.

"They put a lot of pressure on us in the second half. If we didn't have Katie back there they probably would have put a couple in," said Filer coach Shane Hild. The Cutthroats marked Rodriguez the rest of the game, limiting her to only one more shot.

"She's a good player. She's pretty versatile and we haven't had to manmark all season." Feldman said. "But once we figured it out, we did a good job shutting her down."

The Cutthroats had a tough time creating offense in open play.

Payette defenders frustrated top goal-scorer Ellie Swanson, not letting her get one shot off the entire game.

Instead, Community School had to rely on offense from corner kicks.

Late in the game, Jordan Fitzgerald Filer will play the Grizzlies in an sent the ball into the box and Payette goalkeeper Brandy Blackburn dropped it while trying to make a catch, instead of knocking it out of the zone.

The ball bounced freely on the ground, but Hannah Dies couldn't get it through before the Pirates cleared it out.

"It's really annoying. We were so close to the goal, but just couldn't get it through," said Dies, who had another great opportunity in the first half on a similar play.

The Cutthroats look to rebound against Teton at 11 a.m. today.

Heat's Big 3 will try to keep Kobe from a 6th ring

By Brian Mahoney Associated Press writer

Kobe Bryant had just finished with a Big Three when LeBron James and friends got to work building another.

Dwyane Wade soon announced he was staying in Miami, flanked by Chris Bosh, who said he was coming. The next night, James appeared on his much-publicized, heavily criticized TV special to declare his intentions of heading to South Beach.

Two days, three All-Stars. Just like that, the Heat were the clear winners in July.

For now, Bryant and the two-time defending champion Lakers still own June.

"I think until someone beats the Lakers, the Lakers is the team to beat. I don't care how stacked the team is," Hall of Famer Michael Jordan said. "That's the thing about being champions. Until you get knocked off of that hill, you're still the champions."

Los Angeles also got stronger with the signings of Steve Blake and Matt Barnes. Phil Jackson returned to try for a fourth three-peat, which would allow Bryant to tie Jordan with six titles.

There are other contenders. The Celtics were minutes away from an 18th title last season before Los Angeles rallied for an 83-79 victory in Game 7. Orlando has won 59 games each of the last two seasons, and the West is deep in potential threats to the Lakers' reign.

Fresh off winning MVP honors after leading the U.S. to the gold medal at the world championship, Oklahoma City's Kevin Durant was voted by general managers as their pick to win the NBA's award this season. The Rookie of the Year race could come down to the last two No. 1 draft picks: the Clippers' Blake Griffin, who missed last season with an injury, and Washington's lightning-quick point guard, John Wall.

"In general, we've made progress," Petersen said. "We played a really good Virginia Tech team right out of the gate and won a hard-fought game at the end. That was good to start that way. Since then, I think we've gotten better.

"But I think the second half of the season is going to really show how much we've progressed. The foundation has been built and we'll see where we go from here.... The first part of the season sets the stage for the second part - and that's what it's really all about. It's all about how you finish."

Petersen, who remains adamant about the classic coach-speak of controlling the things he can control and not worrying about the things he can't, will concentrate on keeping his players focused. And if a few more upsets fall the Broncos' way around the nation, they just might find themselves playing for the BCS title at season's end.

2011 FORD FIESTA SEDAN/HATCHBACK

RoadWorthy! By Ken Chester, Jr. Motor News Media Corp.

oasting an expressive. vibrant design, with sharp reflexes and a global track record that will redefine U.S. small car customers expectations, Furd has introduced the all-new 2011 Fiesta. Designed to be versatile, personal and adaptable, Fiesta is expected to deliver best-inclass safety, convenience and connectivity with sagmentexclusive SYNC voice-activated communications system, an expressive color palette and available graphics. The all-new Fiesta offers 15 class-exclusive technologies, adding luxury and convenience usually found in vehicles at significantly higher price points.

Available in sedan and five-door hatchback models and S, SE, SEL and SES trim levels, the Fiesta arrives in North America, delivering a design that builds on Ford's global kinetic design theme. True to its heritage, the new Fiesta for North America retains many of the expressive design characteristics that have earned the car accolades around the world. Sweeping, multi-element headlamps gracefully reach toward Fiesta's A-pillar, giving the car a confident yet instantly recognizable expression. The diagonal flowing headlamp shape signifies motion and the dynamic act of driving even when parked. Prominent wheel arches reflect muscularity, athleticism and confident handling.

Power for the front-wheel drive Fiesta is provided by a responsive 1.6L fourcylinder engine featuring Twin Independent Variable Camshaft Timing (Ti-VCT) to deliver the optimum balance of power and fuel efficiency. Torque is communicated to the asphalt through the standard five-speed manual gearbox or an all-new advanced PowerShift six-speed automatic transmission.

The all-new, North American industry-exclusive PowerShift six-speed automatic transmission combines the responsive performance of a manual shift with the convenience of a traditional automatic. The new transmission gives better fuel efficiency than a traditional torque convertor automatic or manual shift transmission. Simpler, more responsive and more fuel efficient than a conventional four-speed automatic transaxle, PowerShift represents an innovative small car breakthrough.

Twin internal clutches keep the PowerShift in constant mesh, continuously optimizing for maximum responsiveness and fuel efficiency, depending on engine speed, vehicle speed and input from the driver's foot on the accelerator pedal.

PowerShift is a dual dry clutch transmission, operating with sealed internal lubrication, reducing friction and adding to Fiesta's fuel economy. The lack of pumps and hoses reduces complexity, saves weight and contributes to fuel efficiency.

Inside the cabin, the Fiesta interior also delivers aesthetically on the promise of its exterior looks. Just as the exterior imparts motion, the interior is place where the dynamic act of driving is performed. Designed to invoke the same familiarity and usefulness as a cell phone s interface, the car's centerstack represents the focal point of the car, and houses switches, audio and HVAC controls.

Cloth and leather seating surface alternatives harmonize with contrasting environment colors to make Fiesta's interior a modern home. Series-level variations offer accents including contrast piping for leather arrays. Rich blacks, cashmeres and plum interior hues subtly remind drivers that small and fuel efficient does not have to mean a compromise of style and good looks.

For additional interior color accents, available ambient lighting allows mood shifts among seven color choices. Fiesta interior fabric inserts include 25 percent recycled material allowing green sensibility to prevail regardless of extenor color.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"It's a very odd thing — As odd as can be -That whatever Miss T. eats Turns into Miss T."

Walter de la Mare

Do you believe in coincidences at bridge? Today's deal and tomorrow's bear a weird similarity to each other. As you will see, the coincidences do not stop there.

At the World Championships in Tunisia in 1997, Michael Rosenberg (South) boldly protected against the Chinese East-West pair, and West decided to try to punish him for his impudence.

The defenders led the diamond queen against two spades doubled, then shifted to the club nine, which went to the 10 and ace. Now back came the heart three to the 10 and ace, and another heart to Rosenberg's queen.

Declarer ruffed two diamonds in hand while cashing his remaining heart and club winners to reach a four-card ending with the lead in South and six tricks in the bag. Rosenberg had three trumps and a club left in hand, West had all his trumps left, and dummy had two spades and one card in each red suit. The East hand was irrelevant.

Declarer now advanced his club (planning to ruff with the spade jack and collect one more trump trick subsequently). West could do no better than ruff with the queen and lead a low spade, hoping his partner had the nine. But Rosenberg could run the spade to his hand and make two trump tricks for his contract.

After the first two tricks, the only way to set the contract was for East to shift to a trump at trick three. Two early rounds of spades insures that West collects his third trump winner eventually.

ANSWER: It is clear to pass now. Although you may find lies of the cards where you can make game, they are scarce. There are many more hands on which a three- or four-level contract will go down. To bid on, you need a fifth trump. Turn any one of your small plain cards into the trump three and you have enough to try for game.

DEAR ABBY: My 12-yearold daughter, "Skye," is starting to go through puberty. She's not comfortable discussing things with me; instead she goes to her older sister with all her questions. They talk to each other in whispered tones in their bedroom with the door closed and locked.

When I try to discuss things with Skye, she becomes red in the face and refuses to talk to me. She is now ashamed to even have me see her undressed, but has no shyness about her body with her sister.

They have always had a close relationship, and I am pleased about that, but I feel shut out of what should be something between a mother and a daughter. I do not feel I have ever done anything to make Skye feel uncomfortable with me about such things, and I feel hurt to be excluded like this.

My older daughter was very open with me about what she was experiencing when she was going through puberty. I have tried to ask Skye what the problem is; she won't talk to me, What can I do?

- SHUT OUT IN KANSAS CITY

DEAR ABBY Jeanne Phillips

DEAR SHUT OUT: No two children are alike, and it appears that your younger daughter is modest to the extreme. It's possible that because Skye has always shared a room with her older sister, that's the reason she's more comfortable discussing the changes that are occurring with her rather than you.

My advice is to step back and don't push Skye. Be glad she can confide in her sister, and check with your older girl periodically to find out if there is anything you should

DEAR ABBY: Due to the war on terror and a renewed sense of patriotism, more individuals and businesses are displaying American flags. However, many appear to be unfamiliar with flag etiquette.

Veteran's With Day approaching (Nov. 11), please encourage readers to inspect their flags and make sure they are being displayed correctly. If the flag is torn or dirty, it should be cleaned and mended, or disposed of with dignity. A properly handled flag is a sign of respect to those who have served, and currently serve, to protect the freedoms we Americans often take for granted.

PROUD FAMILY MEMBER OF A VETERAN

DEAR PROUD FAMILY MEMBER: Your letter is timely and important. Proud Americans who display flags should be aware of a rule of flag etiquette that states that the flag should be in good condition. Sadly, I have seen more than a few that looked like faded red, white and blue

According to the U.S. Flag Code, "When a flag has served its useful purpose, it should be destroyed, preferably by burning." The pamphlet "Flag Etiquette" published by the American Legion states: "For individual citizens this should be done discreetly so that the act is not perceived as a protest or desecration."

Many American Legion posts conduct Disposal of Unserviceable Flag ceremonies on June 14, Flag Day, each year. The Boy and Girl Scouts of America also are able to conduct these ceremonies. If you're ready to dispose of yours, check with the local Boy or Girl Scout Council — or wait until the Girl Scout cookie sales start locally and offer the flag to a troop during a sale at a small business.

IF OCTOBER 22 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Your kindness and generosity are rewarded as the coming year unfolds. Make major decisions and changes between January and March when your intuitions and wisdom are at a peak and good luck is likely to follow your every move. Because you feel confident and have faith in your abilities, you could win the heart of desirable hookup or land the job of your dreams. You may feel more self-sufficient next May when faced with challenging responsibilities. Rise to the occasion and strengthen your resume with positive experiences but do not forget to enjoy the things that money can't buy.

HOROSCOPE Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Saved by the bell. It may be difficult for you to get out of the starting gate where a new romance is concerned. could experience numerous emotional ups and downs as the full moon crosses your sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A promise is only as good as the person who makes it. The inkling of suspicion that starts growing in the back of your head could lead to trouble or misunderstandings. Don't let doubts stir up controversy.

GEMINI (May 21-June Hearts can roam free, but only behind the scenes. Do not wear your heart on your sleeve right now or let people know your intentions. Be sure to sincerely discuss your long-term goals with a significant other.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Tonight the full moon might illuminate more than just your sidewalk. Family matters that have been brewing could come to a head. It might be you will see the importance of trusting a relative.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Practice what you preach and it will be peachy. The full moon might give meaning to the phrase "your thoughts have come full circle." You have been formulating ideas and ideals but now can live them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Love is likely to seek you out if you stand still. That might be it peeking around the corner and distracting you from important tasks. Daydreaming about an invisible lover won't get work finished.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Put on your dancing shoes. It could be a great evening to trip the light fantastic with a fandango. The late-night full moon could put your ideals about trustworthiness and romance back into proportion.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Line up a pinch hitter. If you can't work well with someone or something, then it is time to send in a substitute. Have an assistant deal with a troublesome colleague or customer. Avoid confrontations.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Tough it out. Showing weakness gives the ravenous wolves an indication that you are easy prey, Sympathy invites discord, so don't fall for a sob story. Avoid making irrevocable decisions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You may follow a suspect instead of a prospect. Your romantic nature is nagging you to zero in on a potential partner. Your intuitions or perceptions, however, could be clouded or out of balance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): This evening's full moon might shed light on your sensitivity, sympathy and understanding. People in close connection might treasure your kind words or advice. Watch a movie or share a meal.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Keep your hands on the table and in plain sight. Sleight of hand behind the scenes, or in private, could cause someone to doubt your intentions. Don't ante up extra cash or place an expensive bet.
