Candidates rake in the campaign donations

Area legislative incumbents better funded

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

Before the votes are counted, candidates have something else to tally: contributions to their campaigns.

Campaign contributions — or the lack thereof — play a crucial role in a candidate's ability to get the word out and reach enough voters to win an election. In Magic Valley legislative elections, incumbents fared better than their rivals in generating contributions.

For example, in the District 23 race for the House seat held by Rep. Stephen Hartgen, R-Twin Falls, his Democratic opponent, Bill Chisholm, pulled in $2,660.

"I think I've done a pretty good campaign with a minimal amount of money," said Chisholm, a long-time candidate in south-central Idaho elections. "I only have three signs, but they're really strategically placed."

Chisholm said he hasn't done any active fundraising.

Hartgen, meanwhile, received $13,420, and has used the support to travel the district and reach voters through direct mailings and advertising. He said he's pleased with the variety of support, which includes donations from agricultural interest groups, individuals and businesses.

Here's a look at contributions in other local races:

- In the District 24 election, Republican incumbent Rep. Maxine Bell of Jerome has received $13,095, and had $10,361 cash on hand when the campaign began. She's spent $14,869, according to the most recent filings available. Her opponent, Democrat Cindy Shotswell, reported $617 in contributions,

SCARING UP A THRILL

Annual CSI Halloween performance draws hundreds

By Amy Huddleston
Times-News writer

Somebody really wanted the crown. So badly, in fact, that they killed Meghan Richens to get it.

At least that's what it looked like on Thursday at the College of Southern Idaho's Halloween dance performance.

"They were probably just jealous of your crown," Nichole David, 18, told Richens, 20, as she applied a death mask of makeup on the beauty queen.

The college's beginning and intermediate jazz dance students gave a zombie-characterized performance to Michael Jackson's hit "Thriller" in front of the CSI Fine Arts Center, attracting a crowd of about 200 onlookers.

The third-annual Halloween performance directed by CSI physical education and dance instructor Julie Wright-Leggett serves as part of her students' midterm grade.

Terror plot against US thwarted

By Eileen Sullivan and Matt Apuzzo
Associated Press writers

WASHINGTON — Authorities on three continents thwarted terrorist attacks aimed at the United States from Yemen on Friday, seizing two explosive packages addressed to Chicago-area synagogues and packed aboard cargo jets. The plot triggered worldwide fears that al-Qaida was launching a major new terror campaign.

President Barack Obama called the coordinated attacks a "credible terrorist threat," and U.S. officials said they were increasingly confident that al-Qaida's Yemen branch, the group responsible for the failed Detroit airliner bombing last Christmas, was responsible.

Parts of the plot might remain undetected, Obama's counterterror chief warned. "The United States is not assuming that the attacks were disrupted and is remaining vigilant," John Brennan said at the White House.

One package was found aboard a cargo plane in Dubai, the other in England. Preliminary tests indicated the packages contained the powerful industrial explosive PETN, the same chemical used in the Christmas attack, U.S. officials said. The tests had not been confirmed.

In the U.S., cargo planes were searched up and down the Eastern Seaboard, and an Emirates Airlines passenger jet was escorted down the coast to New York by American fighter jets. No explosives were found aboard those planes, though the investigation was continuing on at least two.

Obama's sobering assessment, delivered from the White House podium, unfolded four days before national elections in which discussion of terrorism has played almost no role. The president went ahead with weekend cam-

Two dead after I-84 wrong-way crashes

BREAKING NEWS
MAGICVALLEY.COM

You read this story first online.

Two people are dead after a Buhl man entered Interstate 84 in the wrong lane of travel on Thursday night.

Gabriel Silva, 59, of Buhl died at approximately 8:52 p.m. when the 1988 Chevrolet pickup truck he was wrongfully driving eastbound in I-84's westbound lanes collided head-on with a 1995 Subaru Legacy driven by Shantay Henson, 21, of Pocatello.

Henson, who was wearing her seat belt, was pronounced dead at the scene, while Silva died later at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center in Twin Falls. He was not wearing his seat belt and ISP troopers suspect alcohol to be a factor in his actions.

The fatal crash occurred at milepost 141 near Bliss, only minutes after Idaho State Police say Silva caused another accident near milepost 136. In that incident, a 2003 Suzuki Aerio driven by Harold Carroll, 33, of Ontario, Ore., rolled after Carroll swerved to avoid Silva's pickup. Carroll, who was wearing his seat belt, suffered non-life-threatening injuries and was transported to North Canyon Medical Center in Gooding.

The two-vehicle crash at milepost 141 blocked westbound I-84 for four hours while ISP troopers, Gooding County sheriff's deputies, emergency medical first-responders and the Idaho Transportation Department responded to the scene.

Burley family, program share in success

By Laurie Welch
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Burley High School’s vocational agriculture department is manufacturing more than typical student projects — it’s cranking out students with top-notch job skills.

A wall lining the entrance to the department speaks for itself. It’s decorated with years of awards students have won, including the two previous James F. Lincoln Arc Welding Foundation National Gold Awards that have come since teacher Lex Godfrey took over the program.

2010 graduate Ethan Parkin’s gold award will be the wall’s newest addition. The awards have been handed out since 1938 for excellence in arc welding design and production among U.S. schools.

Parkin said that district Superintendent Gaylen Smyer, who previously headed Cassia Regional Technical Center, left an award-winning legacy as well.

Godfrey added.

Parkin, who is now studying agribusiness at the University of Idaho, said that Godfrey was a major influence on him during his high school years.

“He taught me what it takes to get the job done,” Parkin said. “I don’t think Burley ag would be the same without Mr. Godfrey.”

Parkin’s winning project was a tilt-deck semitrailer transporter that he built for Handy Truck Line.

“It about took up a whole bay,” he said.

Parkin started the project on the first day of school last year and it was in the paint bay during the last week of school.

Godfrey’s students Coy Tolle and Noe Navarrete won regional silver awards in the competition and students Matt Judd, Nathan Searle and Logan Searle garnered regional bronze awards. Regional merit award winners included students Nathan Yost, Derek Mascorro, Bo Hawker, Brandon Weeks, Jordan Rasmussen, Cole Peterson, Jesse Gochnour, Kenison Jorgensen, Cody Scheer and Mykal Torrez.

Parkin’s grandfather, Dallas Stoller, was one of the previous award-winning students from the department in 1951. Keith Merrill Jr., who is now 93, was his teacher at the time.

Stoller used the skills he learned in the class throughout his lifetime.

“I made a lot of projects under him,” Stoller said of Merrill. “He was no-nonsense and a lot of work. He was my favorite teacher.”

Godfrey said he buys into the theories of “no-nonsense and a lot of work.”

“It makes kids respect the program, and they end up learning life skills and work ethic along with the technical skills,” Godfrey said.

thing,” Wright-Leggett said, adding that she started the performance just for fun because Halloween is her favorite holiday. The dance routine has become a CSI tradition as it has gained popularity among students.

Each student is required to pick an identity and buy clothes for the performance from second-hand stores. The outfits are shredded in class and the dancers work on getting into the zombie character.

Students from Tony Mannen’s stage makeup class helped the dancers with the ghastly makeup. Blood, burns, bullet wounds and bruises were all applied liberally.

Many of the dance students brought in pictures of a deceased person who had died in a gruesome manner and asked the makeup students to do their best. As part of their grades, stage makeup students must create a portfolio that will be graded at the end of the semester. The dance students were graded on their participation, enthusiasm and performance of the dance.

Wright-Leggett said finding an identity was an important part of the practice for the students, who started working on the dance five weeks ago.

“I ask that they don’t dress up as the military or other public figures that we need to respect because of the times we live in,” Wright-Leggett said.

The dancers — dressed as teachers, hospital patients, little girls, old women and punk rockers — flopped their way onto the concrete in front of the large crowd and laid like the dead, before rising up and hissing at the audience.

Richens said she was shaking during the performance and may have scared herself a little.

“It was worth it, all of this was worth it,” she said through a fake-blood-caked smile. “The character and the sounds came pretty easy, especially with the makeup on.”

with the Riverhawks junior varsity squad when the team bus was stopped by the first crash, ISP Lt. Kevin Haight said. Sweesy, off-duty at the time, assisted Carroll after his vehicle rolled.

Haight said on Friday that it’s unclear where Silva entered the interstate and how far he wrongfully drove in the westbound lanes. He added that anyone with information about where Silva may have entered the interstate is encouraged to call the ISP Region 4 office at 326-6000.

Crashes caused by wrong-way drivers are not tracked by the Idaho Transportation Department, so any information on their frequency on Idaho’s highways is anecdotal at best. Haight said that while dispatchers take many calls reporting wrong-way drivers, wrecks are few and far between.

“I don’t know if there’s anything to say it’s a problem to address,” Haight said of the lack of statistics.

He added that drivers who find themselves on the wrong side of the road may be impaired, confused and lost, or elderly drivers who become confused.

Haight said he could remember only one other fatality accident that happened this year in ISP’s Region 4. In August, a wrong-way car driven by Eusebio Jacobo Pineda, 45, of Wendell, collided with a car carrying a California family. Pineda survived the crash, but the four family members in the other vehicle died at the scene.

Pineda faces four felony counts of vehicular manslaughter and is scheduled to appear in Elmore County Fourth District Court for a Nov. 19 preliminary hearing.

Gooding river wall project stalled on federal funding

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

GOODING — Gooding officials don't question that they need to fix 1.5 miles of rock wall that line the Little Wood River as it runs through town.

The problem, however, rests with one thing they don't have — project funding.

"We are committed to moving forward and getting that thing fixed," Mayor Duke Morton said. "We have to move forward. The wall is collapsing."

The wall was built in the 1930s and early '40s as a Civilian Conservation Corps project to protect the city from flooding. But over the decades, it has deteriorated.

"The Corps has been doing studies on the wall since the 1970s," said Army Corps of Engineers project manager Mark Mendenhall, who added that the agency has known since 1998 that wall deterioration was imminent.

The Corps is currently working on a feasibility study on the project, needed before reconstruction and ecosystem rehabilitation can get underway. Although the Corps has authority to do the work, Congress must make appropriations to fund it.

In September, the city hosted a meeting to update residents on the project, said City Clerk Carmen Korsen.

"This is something the city has been trying to do for many, many years," Korsen said. "We're back to the point where we need to gather information from residents to see what they want."

Korsen said city officials have met with congressional delegates many times to emphasize the importance of project funding.

"At this point we don't know what we're going to get," Mendenhall.

The Corps needs an additional $200,000 to fund its feasibility and environmental compliance studies, which could be completed by October 2011 and usher in construction.

Mendenhall said the city will have cost-sharing responsibilities of $50,000 for the project. He said the city's inability to cover project costs in the past has derailed other rehabilitation attempts.

"Cost share has killed us every time," he said, adding that the city will have the opportunity to provide some of that cost share through in-kind services.

This time, Morton said, the project won't stop because of the city's inability to shoulder the match.

"We don't want to pay the whole $50,000 in cash and we'll be doing as much in-kind services as possible, but we are prepared to do what it takes," Morton said.

Plot

with wires and powder. Brennan said the devices were in packages about the size of a breadbox.

While Obama didn't specifically accuse Yemen's al-Qaida branch, Brennan called it the most active al-Qaida franchise and said anyone associated with the group was a subject of concern.

The radical U.S.-born Muslim cleric Anwar al-Awlaki, who now is in hiding in Yemen, is believed to have helped inspire recent attacks including the Fort Hood shooting, the Times Square bombing attempt and the failed Detroit airliner bombing last Christmas Day. Another American hiding in Yemen, Samir Khan, has declared himself a traitor and has helped produce al-Qaida propaganda.

Most of the officials spoke on condition of anonymity, citing the ongoing investigation.

Brennan later told reporters that the explosives "were in a form that was designed to try to carry out some type of attack," but he provided no further details.

"The forensic analysis is under way," he said, adding,

"Clearly from the initial observation, the initial analysis that was done, the materials that were found in the device that was uncovered was intended to do harm."

Intelligence personnel had been monitoring a suspected plot for days, officials said. The packages in England and Dubai were discovered after Saudi Arabian intelligence picked up information related to Yemen and passed it on to the U.S., one official said.

U.S. intelligence officials warned last month that terrorists hoped to mail chemical and biological materials as part of an attack on America and other Western countries using the mail. The alert came in a Sept. 23 bulletin from the Homeland Security Department and obtained by The Associated Press.

In the hours following the discoveries, Yemeni officials and Scotland Yard were investigating and the U.S. issued a 72-hour ban on all cargo from Yemen.

"As a precaution, DHS has taken a number of steps to enhance security," the agency said in a statement. "Some of these security measures will be visible while others will not."

U.S. authorities conducted searches of aircraft in Philadelphia, Newark, N.J., and New York City.

Since the failed Christmas bombing of a Detroit-bound airliner, Yemen has been a focus for U.S. counterterrorism officials. Before that attack, the U.S. regarded al-Qaida's branch in Yemen as primarily a threat in the region, not to the United States.

The Yemen branch known as al-Qaida in the Arabian Peninsula has since become a leading source of terrorist propaganda and recruiting. Authorities believe about 300 al-Qaida members or cells operate in Yemen.

The Yemeni government has stepped up counterterrorism operations, with help from the U.S. military and intelligence officials. Mohammed Shayba, general-director of the state airline's cargo department, said the government is conducting an investigation.

"Those in charge are in constant meetings and they are investigating and taking the issue seriously," he told The Associated Press.

City, DEQ strike deal to revise wastewater limit

By Laura Lundquist
Times-News writer

Twin Falls may be one muddy step closer to allowing citizens to flush their toilets without paying a lot more to do so.

The Idaho Department of Environmental Quality plans to change one of its water quality documents to increase the amount of particles, or total suspended solids, that Twin Falls can pump into the Snake River along with its treated wastewater. In return, the city has agreed to intercept sediment spilling off the canyon rim.

DEQ develops pollution reports for all streams known to be degraded. Suspended solids, including silt, sewage and organic matter, reduce water quality by absorbing light, which warms the water and limits the amount of oxygen available for aquatic life.

The agency developed reports for the Snake River in the late 1990s, identifying sources of suspended solids and setting limits that would keep the river healthy.

The limits for Twin Falls were then used by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency as a basis for restrictions placed on the city's wastewater permit renewal in 2009.

The EPA's annual limit would have required the city to install a tertiary filtering plant at a cost of $6 million to $8 million, said Assistant City Manager Travis Rothweiler. The city appealed, asking the limit be increased to more than double the EPA's proposal. The DEQ change is the beginning of a process that could ease those restrictions.

If the change goes through and a new permit is issued, the city wouldn't be allowed to dump more dirt in the river without making up for it. Per the DEQ agreement, the city would reduce sediment flowing in from other areas.

It turns out that city wastewater contributes relatively little sediment compared to what are called "nonpoint sources," including runoff from farms, roads and industry. The amount of suspended solids in the river near Twin Falls has increased by one-third since 2000, but treated wastewater accounts for less than 1 percent of that.

The city's efforts have included a series of wetlands to filter canal water built with the help of the Twin Falls Canal Co., Rothweiler said. Near where aerial photos have shown a plume of sediment spilling into the river, he said, canal water was released this fall into a four-acre test wetland and came out cleaner.

"We looked at the demo as a success," Rothweiler said. "Allowing nature to help in the cleaning process will be better for the river."

Marti Bridges with DEQ said the city has proposed a handful of projects that together could reduce the amount of suspended solids ending up in the river by three to four times the amount the city would be allowed to discharge. If the city doesn't follow through, the contract would require the city to make up the difference in suspended solids in other ways before getting its next permit.

A public comment period on the report revision runs until Nov. 26. Visit www.deq.idaho.gov to read it.

It’s a close call, but Otter’s the best choice

Idahoans are reluctant — famously so — to change horses in midstream.

Historically, of the 17 Idaho governors who have sought reelection during economic downturns, 11 won. The last chief executive to be turned out of office during a recession was Don Samuelson in 1970, although that happened for reasons other than economy.

So it’s not surprising that Idahoans are showing patience with first-term Republican Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter.

Otter has faced the toughest economy of any governor since Ben Ross encountered the Great Depression. While Otter’s record of dealing with the recession is mixed, we believe he has earned a second term.

On the issue of employment, the governor has clearly made strides. In the case of Twin Falls, the new C3 call center will bring 900 new jobs to the Magic Valley directly and create an additional 690 jobs indirectly, according to the Idaho Department of Labor. More than $22 million will flow into the local economy directly from C3 and $20.7 million indirectly.

Meanwhile in Pocatello, Allstate has announced the opening of a call center that will provide jobs for 500 to 600 people.

Total employment in Idaho is still down by 1.6 percent since Otter took office in January 2007, according to the Department of Labor. But the average wage has increased by almost 9 percent on Otter’s watch — remarkable, in this economy.

Our endorsement of the governor, however, comes with a couple of reservations.

The first is that Otter’s deferential, hands-off governing style — especially in dealing with the Legislature — simply hasn’t worked. For much of the past four years, lawmakers have scratched their heads and wondered what the governor was really up to.

That leadership vacuum is serious enough that the balance of power in Boise has shifted to the Legislature, and specifically to the GOP leadership of the House of Representatives.

What’s curious is that on a personal level, Otter is the most engaging governor since Cecil Andrus. But unlike his mentor Phil Batt, Otter is not strong on follow-up and making sure that everyone is on the same page. And, frankly, he delegates too much responsibility to a staff that has left a lot to be desired.

All of which has made Otter look indecisive — a disastrous trait in a governor.

Our second reservation is that Otter has a strong Democratic opponent this year.

Keith Allred, who grew up in Twin Falls, taught at Harvard and Columbia and organized a groundbreaking nonpartisan public interest group called The Common Interest, knows more about state government than all but a few Idahoans. Allred is insightful, flexible and moderate, with innovative ideas about growing the economy, reforming Idaho’s tax code and making government work better for citizens.

At another time and in different circumstances, he might make a great governor. But the specter of a Gov. Allred and a Legislature that will be at least three-quarters Republican is a recipe for gridlock.

And in this season of crisis for Idaho’s economy and its schools, we don’t have the luxury of impasse.

Can Otter do better? We’ll see. But what’s clear is that the 61st Legislature will be the most important since the 22nd, which Ross convened on Jan. 2, 1933, as Idaho’s economy essentially collapsed.

At minimum, the Legislature and the governor must:

- Stop the bleeding in Idaho public education, by means up to and including suspending Idaho’s grocery tax credit. And the first order of business ought to be giving the state Tax Commission money to hire enough additional auditors to collect the taxes that Idahoans already owe.
- Find a funding source — probably user fees — that will rescue the Idaho Department of Water Resource from dysfunction.
- Establish state standards — or at least a multi-county mechanism — for siting and regulating the massive poultry and swine operations headed for southern Idaho.
- There’s a serious public safety crisis brewing at the Department of Correction because of all the budget cuts that agency has endured. The Legislature must either divert more money to corrections or fund additional drug, alcohol and mental health treatment programs through the Department of Health and Welfare and the courts.
- Medicaid is a mess, and getting worse. It’s time for the state to force Molina Healthcare — Health and Welfare’s Medicaid provider payment contractor — to do the job it’s being paid for — or sue Molina for breach of contract and find another alternative.

With 30 years of working in public policy under his belt, Butch Otter is the most experienced governor Idaho has had since Andrus. His potential is still there, but it hasn’t been realized yet.

And the clock is ticking.

Stennett’s knowledge, passion make her the logical choice

Common sense in government matters now more than ever. That’s why I’m asking you to vote for Michelle Stennett on Nov. 2.

Michelle has demonstrated that she is a common sense problem-solver. She takes the time to listen and gets input from all sides before making a decision. Michelle has first hand knowledge and experience with agriculture and water issues. That knowledge, combined with a passion for the state of Idaho and a desire to represent Idahoans in the state Senate make Michelle a logical choice for your vote.

District 25 voters have a choice — Michelle Stennett, who has proven her capacity to do a tremendous job in serving her constituents, taking care of her husband and being a friend to many who have drawn on her strength or an Illinois attorney that is not seasoned in Idaho issues.

I hope common sense would lead you to a vote for Michelle Stennett.

CELIA GOULD Buhl
(Editor’s note: Celia Gould is the director of the Idaho Department of Agriculture. A Republican, she represented Twin Falls County in the Idaho House of Representatives from 1987 to 2002).

Stennett shows understanding of community’s complex needs

As a longtime Lincoln County resident and current county commissioner, I have had the opportunity to interact with our legislators on many, many, occasions. My concern, always, is the impact of their decisions on the hard-working people of Lincoln County.

State Sen. Michelle Stennett has shown during her time in the Legislature that she, too, understands the complex needs within our communities. She sees the impact double digit unemployment has had on the housing market, as well as local businesses, and has shown a great deal of concern for our families who find it impossible to make ends meet each month.

Sen. Stennett works every day to find solutions to these problems because she understands that just being concerned is not enough. She is a gifted listener who really hears what her constituents are saying. I believe her ability to communicate with senators and representatives from both sides of the aisle will serve us well in the upcoming legislative session.

I will cast my vote for Sen. Stennett on Nov. 2, and I hope voters in District 25 will take the opportunity to get to know her by going to her website at www.michellestennett.com.

JERRY NANCE Dietrich
(Editor’s note: Jerry Nance, a Republican, has served on the Lincoln County Commission for 23 years.)

Idaho is too great to vote for Democrats

The state of Idaho needs leaders like Gov. Butch Otter. He has been fiscally responsible to Idaho citizens. Gov. Otter has worked hard for new jobs and to maintain stable, good-paying employment for Idahoans. A good example is the new C3 company in Twin Falls. Butch and his staff worked hard to attract and bring this company to Twin Falls.

With the economy going through hard times, he has placed education as his top priority, trying hard to keep good teachers and facilities functioning at their best. For example, when the Legislature was cutting all budgets, education was cut as the last resort to balance the budget.

Thank you, Gov. Otter, for your concerns for the Idaho Fish and Game. The wolf problem never seems to end. Butch is trying hard to bring a positive and sensible termination to this issue.

Please support the strong, sensible, conservative ballot that the Republican Party has presented to the citizens of Idaho. Idaho is too great to vote for Democrats.

Allred offers alternative to special-interest-driven politics

In times like these, it takes very little imagination or courage to protest that the current system is broken. It takes quite a bit more, however, to come up with changes to the system that are visionary, thoughtful and practical. We in Idaho have at this moment a chance to elect a man who not only has impressive ideas on how to change the governmental system in a fundamentally positive way but also has the education, knowledge and background to do so. That man is Keith Allred.

Keith supports an idea that may currently be out of the mainstream but that has its roots in the infancy of our Republic: that the government serves at the will of the people. With his background in mediation and conflict resolution, he was able to form an organization, The Common Interest, which provided a mechanism for the voices of Idaho citizens to be heard by their elected representatives.

His plan to use this model from the office of the governor is a marvelous departure from the current special-interest-driven politics as usual. His ideas give the citizens of Idaho a chance to shape the policies that impact our lives. When difficult choices must be made, the voice in the ear of the governor will, and should, be the voice of the people rather than that of the special interests.

It is too easy to enter the voting booth to check off the “R” or “D” candidate. Come this Nov. 2, we will have the chance to elect a man with a different vision of the whole of government and with the intellectual capital to effect that change.

Please join us in voting for Keith Allred for governor.

Record over past 21 years shows Mills has what it takes

I would like to encourage everyone in Twin Falls County to vote for Leon Mills for District 2 county commissioner.

Other candidates claim to be the most qualified, but Leon’s experiences over the past 21 years show that he has what it takes to be a great county commissioner. He is knowledgeable concerning county issues — he was born in Twin Falls County, grew up here and has chosen to stay. He has worked closely with local farmers and ranchers through his position at LambWeston and knows how important agriculture is to this community. He understands that water issues are important to county residents and would never downplay them as “squabbles.”

If you have ever met Leon, you know he is friendly and approachable. He has been called a “good listener” by the Times-News. He will be a diplomatic leader and able to work productively with the other two commissioners. He genuinely cares about the well-being of Twin Falls County residents. These are qualities we need in a county commissioner.

Leon Mills has proven his commitment to bettering this community through his acts of public service. For the past 20 years, he has painted homes for Paint Magic, helped build the Rock Creek Park walking path, cleaned up county highways with Johnny Horizon, and assisted the elderly and disabled through Interfaith Caregivers. The best leadership is done through action, and Leon’s actions prove that he is a strong leader who cares about the future of Twin Falls County.

Join me this Tuesday, Nov. 2, in voting for Leon Mills for Twin Falls County commissioner.

Medicaid rule change will hurt special-ed kids

It is vastly important that the public become informed about the issue of the proposed Medicaid redesign (IDAPA 16.03.10 docket No. 16-0310-1002) and be called to action against it. I would also encourage each voting citizen to become fully informed about the stand taken on this issue by candidates vying for legislative positions so votes may be cast accordingly.

There are extreme consequences in store for Idaho's children with disabilities as well as for the schools providing special education services to them. If the Medicaid rule change is adopted in the coming legislative session, schools will no longer be able to be reimbursed for developmental therapy and/or intensive behavior intervention services provided.

Without the funding stream from federal reimbursements — approximately 70 percent (districts already pay the state's share of the costs, approximately 30 percent) — schools will be hard pressed to be able to continue to afford to provide these necessary services.

Federal law — the Individuals with Disabilities Education Improvement Act 2004 — mandates the provision of special education services for eligible students. The federal mandate will remain the same whether or not Idaho's Medicaid redesign is approved and adopted. Every school district in Idaho will continue to be obligated to provide these services to children if student needs indicate such services are necessary. In essence, the state law and federal law would work at odds against each other, yet both laws would represent advocacy for the same population of students. In the meantime, the students, their families and schools will be caught in the middle. If adopted, conflicts with parents will likely increase. Requests for due process hearings will also increase while services will likely be reduced.

Our state's children with disabilities deserve for their individual needs to be met. Become an informed voter by understanding candidate positions on the Medicaid redesign.

County jail is unsafe and overcrowded

I come to you as a concerned mother and citizen of Jerome County.

We have expectations for our community leaders to provide: good schools, safety, expansion, integrity and peace of mind. However, there is a problem with that picture; we have ignored our community leaders and put our county's safety and liability at risk.

The terms overcrowded, insecure and liability are what I see in our county jail. We put our deputies at physical risk and our county at monetary risk every day. Jerome County is paying hundreds daily when we send our inmates to another county for housing.

We are paying $45 a day for housing one inmate in a different county, i.e. Gooding ($45) and Blaine ($45). Add in the cost of transporting the inmate to and from court plus extra manpower to do the transporting. These expenditures add up and we find ourselves putting out more money to other counties when we could keep the inmates here for less money.

The Jerome County Jail has no real central command center, and what the deputies use is outdated and unreliable, compounded with the use of one key to open most of the units, parading the inmates behind the courthouse for recreation and accompanied with the deteriorated condition of the facilities is a huge liability.

Whether or not we build a new jail the costs will rise and, when they do close the doors on this jail (and they will), then the cost will rise exponentially. Where will we put inmates then? Will county prosecutors have to bargain with the criminals to keep housing costs down? How much do we value our safety, security, money and property? Do we value the men and women who sacrifice their time for our safety? Could we put those men and women to better use in the county? Can we hold the community leaders liable when we have held them hostage?

SARAH HOPKINS

Avoid repeat of Bush years; vote Democratic

Before voting Republican again, ask yourself why? Republicans oppose extending unemployment benefits to help those harmed by their policies supporting mammon over humanity. They say you unemployed don't have incentive to find work and starving you would be the tough love you need to get a job. You agree? Starve your children?

Republicans fight tooth and nail to preserve unfunded tax breaks for the top few percent and stood against increasing the minimum wage. Democrats gave 95 percent of us tax cuts in our paychecks and raised the minimum wage. Republican policies facilitated credit card companies and financial institutions to prey upon your family with sky high rates and fine print. Democrats made them disclose to you truthful information regarding payback terms and fees.

The Obama administration has already created more jobs than the eight Bush years together. Republicans cut education, Democrats fund education. Republicans fabricated a war killing your children for oil; Democrats are ending the immoral war killing your beloved children.

Don't forget, the economy crashed under Bush, who bailed out Wall Street over Main Street. The only "mission accomplished" by Republican policies has been mass destruction of families all across Idaho. Perhaps yours. This time, vote Democratic.

Olson offers leadership through example

As a professional in the field of education, I would like to express my concerns with the direction the state of Idaho has taken past year. In one year, the legislators cut funding for education for the first time ever in the state. By cutting educational funding, public schools were forced to increase class sizes, forego replacing textbooks that are outdated and falling apart, reduce course offerings and graduation requirements, and increase taxes on property owners to remain afloat.

When our local legislator was asked about raising taxes, he replied that his constituents would not support a tax increase for education, and yet many school districts across the state of Idaho have been forced to run levies to balance their budgets. Does this not represent a tax increase to the local property owners? Where is the logic in forcing students year after year to take the Idaho Standardized Assessment Test when they have successfully passed the test but are unable to "bank" their scores? With each test costing $8 per test per student and four tests required, who is really benefiting from these tests? The student who as a freshman passes the same test a junior or senior would take but cannot keep the score he earns or the testing company and state offices that oversee the test?

The time has come for Idahoans to question those in charge and look for new leadership. Stan Olson represents leadership through example. Not only is he highly qualified to be the state superintendent of schools — holding multiple degrees in education and classroom and administrative experience — but he successfully ran one of the largest school districts in the state of Idaho, managing a budget of more than $100 million.

Please join me in supporting quality education in Idaho! Vote Olson for superintendent!

New Jerome County jail will protect community

On behalf of the city of Jerome, I share with you my support and that of Bob Culver, Chris Barber and Dawn Soto of the City Council for your efforts to construct a new jail facility in Jerome County. A new Jerome County jail will enable our community to provide safe and adequate resources to protect the physical safety and rights of law enforcement personnel and the public we serve.

The Jerome County Sheriff's Office serves an integral role in the city's efforts to provide public safety and law enforcement services to our respective constituencies within the Jerome city limits. The county sheriff's office provides for the processing and housing of persons arrested by the Jerome Police Department in the county jail. We have toured the county jail facility and learned of the current needs, deficiencies and liabilities.

The concern for unsafe conditions, inadequate accommodations to separate women and men, overcrowding, costs of maintenance and housing prisoners at other facilities are all factors that justify the need and expense of replacing this facility. The City Council realizes that the current facility poses an unacceptable and immediate liability to our taxpayers which could potentially cost more than what the bond would be for building a new and adequate jail facility. It is our hope that the voters in Jerome County will take the time to become fully informed of the facts and issues for the proposed county jail bond and that they will participate in the Nov. 2 election.

We are grateful to the commissioners for the many hours of thoughtful research and planning that have been put into this effort to ensure that the residents of Jerome County may be protected and safe. Our two law enforcement agencies work closely together and we hope that this will continue to be the case as we are supportive of one another's efforts to provide the best and most affordable law enforcement services to the Jerome community.

Donoval campaign is annoying, negative

The other day I received a mailer from Jim Donoval, who is running against Michelle Stennett for state Senate. It asked about what is bothering me. The answer is he bothers me.

In his campaign, Donoval rants on about what he thinks are the local Sun Valley issues, attacking local officials in an almost conspiratorial tone and stating he will do something about all this from a seat in the state Legislature. It is just all so negative.

Besides showing a fundamental misunderstanding of how state and local politics works in Idaho, it reveals his true agenda is settling local political scores, not representing the people of District 25. This is an agenda of petty personal politics. This is not the agenda we need from our state senator.

Instead, we need clear thinking and common sense. Our representative in Boise must understand our district and our state government. Our state senator must have the temperament and skills to work with others to solve the real economic problems facing our state. We need a state senator who has the trust and respect of the people of District 25 and leaders statewide, both Republican and Democrat.

That is why, in my opinion, Michelle Stennett is by far the best choice for state Senate.

Allred and Kemp don't dance around issues

Mr. Allred and Ms. Kemp say what I feel! How about you? They seem sincere and do not do a "dog and pony" show and dance around the issues. They confront them. They are both putting up with a lot of guff because they know Idaho needs some changes for the better. They both realize our state's governor is missing the mark when it comes to adequately, impartially, caring for our state's needs!

But, here's where we could lose, my fellow citizens, Mr. Allred and Ms. Kemp are essentially pulling votes from each other, as well as prior Otter supporters who are becoming increasingly dissatisfied. Ugh! What can we do? We care, yet our current governor is probably quite comfortable because of the old "divide and conquer" doctrine which works very well.

I support Mr. Allred mostly, because I can't support Ms. Kemp as well. I can only cast one vote!

Please join me in choosing a successor to Gov. Otter. If the tables were turned and Ms. Kemp had a better shot at winning the election, I would not hesitate to support her. We would surely benefit from her leadership as well!

Just for the record, I support Idaho's national interests and am thankful for our representation in the U.S. Senate and Congress. Don't let the governor's race become a "divide and conquer" win for Mr. Otter. Rethink your vote next Tuesday and perhaps we can change our state's leadership! Thank you!

Sutter is representative that District 25 needs

The argument that we should keep Pence as our representative because she is a "rural Democrat" is an invalid argument. We should not elect our politicians based on filling minority quotas for the statehouse. If there is a district in Idaho that has a "rural Democrat" whom the majority of people agree with his/her policies, then let them respond to this perceived "need."

Representatives should meet the needs of the people whom they represent; having Alex Sutter as District 25's representative, as opposed to Donna Pence, would actually give District 25 conservatives at least one out of our three who is most likely to represent our ideals. The constituents' needs in District 25 for at least one conservative voice trumps any need that the Times-News may be promoting for the statehouse in general.

Alex is a dynamic leader, an articulate speaker who is willing to give of his time to serve the citizens of District 25. He knows what the Constitution is about; he realizes the state's obligations and duties to its people; he understands how individual and family strength, productivity and sovereignty is the backbone of our country's founding. He will be a true leader to rally a people to their obligations both as public servants and private producers in a time of conflict and uncertainty in our nation's history. He will be a very welcome figure in Idaho politics, and one that will in time be celebrated by the Times-News as "one of the most important political figures in Idaho's history."

Alex Sutter in no way falls behind on responding to the crisis in education. And unlike his opponent who is a veteran in the obsolete bureaucratic system of American public education, Alex brings fresh ideas and vision for what education needs to become in our changing world. Alex also will be a proponent of agriculture and its responsible growth. His experience has shown him over and over again to be someone who knows how to bring people together and develop solutions that work. When anyone with a conservative leaning set of values looks at Donna's record, they can't help but realize that she absolutely does not represent them. She is a very nice lady who is to be commended on the life work that she has and is accomplishing. But she is not the representative that District 25 needs at this time. Alex Sutter is.

GOP still pursues failed economic policies

The public service announcements abound. Idaho has the highest rate of high school dropouts and the highest rate of college dropouts in the nation. Otter is proud that he cut funding for education, and Luna further dilutes that funding by instituting redundant school systems (aka charter schools). Then the good ol' boy (I mean GOP) candidates are still pushing the failed voodoo economics that takes money out of middle-class pockets and puts it into big-business coffers, preaching that this will bring more business to Idaho. Sounds reasonable. Why should a business be concerned about moving to a state with an ignorant work force, unless they just happen to want to succeed.

Go for it, Idaho, keep on voting Republican. You'll get what you've always got.

Mills has many ideas to offer as commissioner

A letter on the editorial page Monday, Oct. 18, implied that a person running for county commissioner should ideally be non-partisan in order to be able to think independently.

For the writer's edification, just because you have the support of a party does not mean you cannot think independently nor have solutions to problems. Also for her information, her support of Mr. Eller is in fact support for a Democrat. He may claim to be an independent thinker, but he is on the ballot as a Democrat. I also have heard him speak, and he espouses the dialogue that the Democrats follow. That is his choice, so don't claim he is independent of a party, because he is not.

I know without a doubt the Republican candidate has a long history of public service to his community, his church and his chosen political party. He thinks independently; his views are also well reasoned and practical. Leon Mills has many good ideas to contribute to the office of county commissioner. Leon doesn't try to hide behind the skirts of being independent just to get elected. He is proud to claim he is a Republican and has been a precinct committeeman for 12 years. He strongly upholds conservative values such as limited government and individual rights. He speaks the truth.

Leon Mills will serve all the citizens of Twin Falls County equally whether they are rich, poor, black, Hispanic, Caucasian, Democrat, independent or Republican.

Please vote Nov. 2 for Leon Mills.

Mills will use common sense to run county

We have the privilege to vote for good people who will represent us in our counties, in our state and in Washington, D.C. It is vital that we choose carefully but even more important that we vote. How many counties have our young men fought and died for so they would have a democracy and be able to vote? And yet, only 20 to 30 percent of the people in the United States will exercise this privilege.

I know who I am voting for, and I hope you will support this good man to represent you as county commissioner. Leon Mills has worked diligently for Twin Falls County as a volunteer for many years. He is an assistant supervisor at Lamb Weston, where he has worked for 20 years.

Previous to that, he managed a local lumber yard for seven years. Some of you may have seen Leon running the Lamb Weston fry booth at school events, the Twin Falls County Fair and other venues. He's helping raise money for schools and non-profit organizations. He participates in Johnny Horizon Day and Paint Magic as well. He and his wife, Sheri, have instilled these same qualities in their children.

Mills will bring a common-sense approach to managing the county and will exercise fiscal responsibility. He knows he doesn't have all the answers, but he will learn and will work well with the other elected officials.

You might wonder how I know all of the above information about Leon. He is my friend. I am very proud of him and all of his accomplishments. Please join with me and vote for Leon Mills on Tuesday, Nov. 2.

Allegiant Travel operating revenue increases

Company officials comfortable with results of T.F. -Vegas flight, airport manager says

By Amy Huddleston
Times-News writer

Flying to Las Vegas for a little weekend away has been available to nightlife and warm-weather seekers alike for the past four months.

The 150-seat flight has seen a consistent passenger load of 75 percent and Bill Carberry, Magic Valley Regional Airport manager, said Allegiant Travel has been comfortable with the results of the newest way to escape Twin Falls for a different atmosphere.

The airline company released its third quarter financial results ending September on Wednesday, announcing an increase in total operating revenue of 23 percent compared to the previous year — a total of $163.6 million. The Las Vegas-based company serves 57 cities and six major leisure destinations including flights to Phoenix and Mesa.

Carberry said Allegiant hasn't considered another destination for the Magic Valley Regional Airport yet, stating that it was too early in the process.

“We’ve seen considerable pick-up and for the first four months it’s been pretty good,” Carberry said. “It’s about a one hour flight and you can’t beat the prices. Allegiant is very deliberate and they take a close look at their markets before they add new flights.”

The flight out of Twin Falls leaves on Thursdays and Sundays. Carberry said it is all about convenience and opportunity.

Maurice J. Gallagher Jr., chairman and CEO of Allegiant Travel Company, said the airline felt the slowdown in the general economy over the summer but their third quarter results were favorable.

“We had another excellent quarter, generating an 11.9 percent operating margin in our historically weakest quarter,” Gallagher said. “We are seeing near term strength in unit revenues and expect October’s PRASM (passenger revenue per available seat mile) to increase approximately 9 to 10 percent on a year-over-year basis.”

Total operating expenses per passenger excluding fuel rose 4 percent compared to the previous year and landed at $52.34.

The company expects the majority of growth will come from small cities like Twin Falls that offer new services to current leisure destinations.

“It’s a new market and the more good experiences people have the more they will come,” Carberry said.

‘It’s an epidemic’

As economy festers, job scams multiply

By Stuart Pfeifer
Los Angeles Times writer

LOS ANGELES — A weak labor market is hurting the U.S. recovery, but it’s been lucrative for scammers, who are bilking unemployed workers out of millions of dollars in fees to steer clients to jobs that never materialize, watchdogs say.

Many of these schemes have been around for years, promising people who send money a chance to work as bartenders, home inspectors or “secret shoppers” for retail chains. But with nearly 15 million Americans out of work, consumer groups and law enforcement agencies say these scams are multiplying as con artists capitalize on the misery of the unemployed.

“It’s an epidemic. It’s opportunity time for fraud artists, and people are so desperate to earn a living that they easily fall for the scam,” said Ellyn Lindsay, an assistant U.S. attorney in Los Angeles who has prosecuted several of these swindlers.

Although federal authorities don’t keep statistics on employment-related fraud incidents, the Better Business Bureau says such cases are on the rise.

The bureau received nearly 3,000 complaints about work-from-home scams in the first eight months of this year. That’s more than double the 1,200 it received in the same period in

STEER CLEER

How to avoid job scams:

- Beware of employers who ask for money upfront for training or materials.
- Be cautious of placement services that guarantee they’ll find you a job.
- Check out companies with the Better Business Bureau or through a Google search.
- Do not cash unsolicited checks that arrive in the mail.
- Be careful with placement agencies that direct you to call a toll-free number. Sometimes, these companies can transfer you, without your knowledge, to a number that charges a fee.
- Follow up with the corporate offices of any company listed in an ad by an employment service to find out if that firm is really hiring.
- Be wary of firms promoting “previously undisclosed” federal government jobs.
- Do not give out your credit card or bank account information over the phone unless you are familiar with the company.

Employment costs show modest rise

U.S. workers see little increase in compensation

By Martin Crutsinger
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Employment costs posted another modest gain in the July-to-September quarter with compensation for state and local government employees turning in the weakest performance in nearly three decades.

Employment costs for civilian workers rose 0.4 percent in the third quarter and are up just 1.9 percent for the 12 months ending in September, the Labor Department reported Friday. High unemployment following a deep recession continues to depress workers’ bargaining power.

State and local government workers, who have been battered by shrinking budgets, fared even worse than employees of private industry. Their compensation was flat in the third quarter and up only 1.7 percent in the past 12 months.

Both were the weakest showings on records that go back 28 years.

The 1.9 percent 12-month rise in compensation for all civilian workers was little changed from a 1.8 percent increase for the 12 months ending in June. Those gains are significantly below the 3.3 percent increase for the 12 months ending in December 2007, the month the recession began.

With more than 8 million jobs lost from December 2007 to December of last year, employees have not had the bargaining power to demand higher wages.

For the third quarter, wages and salaries for civilian workers rose 0.4 percent, matching the second quarter increase, while benefits were up 0.5 percent, also the same as the April-to-June quarter.

Wages and salaries make up 70 percent of employee compensation while benefits, which include health insurance and pensions, make up the other 30 percent.

For state and local workers, the flat reading on total compensation in the third quarter reflected a 0.3 percent drop in wages and salaries and a 0.7 percent rise in benefits.

Economy grows 2 percent as consumer spending picks up

By Shobhana Chandra
Bloomberg News writer

WASHINGTON — The economy grew at a 2 percent annual rate in the third quarter as consumer spending climbed the most in almost four years, a sign the expansion is developing staying power.

The increase in gross domestic product matched the median forecast of economists surveyed by Bloomberg News and followed a 1.7 percent gain the prior three months, Commerce Department figures showed Friday in Washington. Household purchases, about 70 percent of the economy, rose at a 2.6 percent pace, the best quarter of the recovery that began in June 2009.

The figures, the last economy-wide gauge before voters head to the polls on Nov. 2, show growth remains short of what’s needed to cut a jobless rate stuck near 10 percent. The report also indicated inflation cooled as retailers like Wal-Mart Stores cut prices, one reason why Federal Reserve policy makers next week may pump more money into the world’s largest economy.

“Consumer spending is growing, business demand is still OK,” said Michael Feroli, chief U.S. economist at JPMorgan Chase in New York, who accurately forecast the gain in household purchases. “We need to do better than this to get a real recovery in the labor market. The report leaves everything in place for more asset purchases by the Fed next week.”

Employment expenses rose less than forecast in the third quarter, reinforcing expectations that inflation will be restrained in coming months, figures from the Labor Department also showed. The 0.4 percent increase in the employment cost index was the smallest gain this year. Wage gains for all employees were the smallest in a year and reflected a record decline in pay for state and local government workers.

Growth projections of 83 economists in the survey ranged from 0.5 percent to 3.6 percent.

The GDP estimate is the first of three for the quarter,

YouTube co-founder Chad Hurley steps down as CEO

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — YouTube co-founder Chad Hurley is stepping down as CEO of the world's most popular website for watching video.

Hurley's decision to give up the leadership role at the 5-year-old site formalizes a transition that has been in the works for some time as YouTube's owner, Google Inc., asserted more control.

Salar Kamangar, one of Google's earliest employees, has been running YouTube's day-to-day operations for the past two years while Hurley concentrated on the site's design and relationship with its users.

Hurley, who is 33 years old, intends to remain a YouTube adviser and officially turn over the CEO's role to Kamangar.

Google bought YouTube for $1.76 billion four years ago, enriching Hurley and his fellow co-founders Steve Chen and Jawed Karim. Chen and Karim already left YouTube.

Fox, Dish agree to terms

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Broadcaster Fox and satellite TV provider Dish came to terms on Friday, ending a blackout of several cable channels including FX and 19 regional sports networks to 14.3 million Dish customers that began at the start of the month.

The deal between the unit of News Corp. and Dish Network Corp. comes two days before their agreement for Fox's broadcast signals expired. The agreement means Dish customers will be able to watch baseball's World Series on their own TV sets.

Financial terms of the deal were not disclosed. But the companies said it was wide-ranging and long term.

Meanwhile, signals from Fox broadcast stations remain blacked out to some 3 million Cablevision subscribers in the New York area.

The gain in consumer spending, the biggest since the end of 2006, compared with a 2.5 percent median forecast in the Bloomberg survey and followed a 2.2 percent increase the prior quarter. Purchases added 1.8 percentage points to growth.

Stock-market gains and reduced debt may be allowing consumers to increase spending, which bodes well for the holiday season.

The National Retail Federation has forecast November-December sales will rise 2.3 percent from a year ago, making it the best holiday season in four years.

Big Oil resets its sights on Gulf of Mexico

By Chris Kahn
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — Big Oil is ready to go back to work in the Gulf of Mexico, even with the U.S. government promising to rule the waters with a heavier hand.

Chevron, Exxon, Royal Dutch Shell are willing to endure the additional time to secure permits and extra costs that will result from new government regulations because they've come to depend on deepwater drilling to replenish their reserves. The companies outlined plans for the Gulf this week as most of them reported improved earnings for the third quarter.

These big oil and gas companies know the geology of the Gulf much better than other parts of the world. Taxes and royalties for projects in U.S. waters are considered to be much lower than foreign operations, and it's much easier and cheaper to deliver the oil to the consumer.

"It's one-stop shopping," said Fadel Gheit, an analyst with Oppenheimer & Co. "When you're working in the Gulf, you're sitting in the belly of the largest energy-consuming economy in the world."

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 4.54, or 0.1 percent, to close at 11,118.49. The Standard and Poor's 500 Index fell 0.52, or 0.1 percent, to 1,183.26, while the technology focused Nasdaq composite index rose less than a point to 2,507.41.

Every market index was up more than 3 percent for the month. The Nasdaq finished October with a 5.9 percent gain. The market could be stuck in a holding pattern until the Fed wraps up its meeting Wednesday where it is expected to announce details about the bond-buying program.

Bond prices rose slightly following the GDP report. The yield on the benchmark 10-year Treasury note fell to 2.62 percent from 2.66 percent late Thursday.

Illegal right turns and legal chats with the cops

I must start out this week by wishing my son Kyler a happy 18th birthday today. I can't believe he is only a year younger than me now.

Q: My question is about a wide four-way intersection (16th Street and Highland Ave) in Burley. Sometimes when I am stopped at the stop sign people will pull up beside me on my right to turn right and there is not a right turn lane. Is it legal for people to do that?

— Ann

A: This is where it would be OK to play a NASCAR driver and run that person into the wall. So maybe that's not the right advice, but you have to admit it would be fun.

Since there is not a legal right turn lane there then it is illegal. The area they drove up beside

ASK POLICEMAN
DAN

you, I am guessing, was probably reserved for parking or nothing at all but is definitely not a turn lane.

The problem for people making this turn is that if you were to decide to turn right and crashed into their vehicle, they would be at fault. Let's say you were not signaling and turned right. You could be cited for failure to signal, but they could be cited for improper passing, failure to yield or even inattentive driving.

The other thing to remember here is that if you are on the right side of the car at the four-way stop, you still have to yield the right of way to the other lanes of traffic.

Q: My son went to the police and they asked him questions about an incident he was involved in. He was arrested a day or two later because of that interview. He told me that he was never read his (Miranda) rights when they talked to him. Doesn't that make anything he said unusable in court?

— Tom

A: No, your son gave information voluntarily to the police and was not under arrest at the time. It is called a non-custodial interrogation, which your son had the right to get up at any time and leave. When he chose not to leave, all the information he gave the police was admissible for criminal and court proceedings.

There have been arguments about where the interviews take place, but the main issue is that unless the police detained your son from leaving then he was free to leave at any time. One example would be if your son was told he could not leave unless he told the police something. That could be determined to be a custodial interrogation in which your son would have to have been read his Miranda rights.

One other thing to mention here is that, when people demand a lawyer before they will or will not speak to the police, that is usually a good sign that they are afraid they will give away too much information that would put them away in the Gray Bar Motel.

No screening for pancreatic cancer ... yet

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband's parents both died of pancreatic cancer. Is there any test my husband and his siblings could get during their regular checkups to screen for this cancer?

DEAR READER: Pancreatic cancer is a quiet, fast-spreading disease. According to the National Cancer Institute, in 2010, about 43,000 people will be diagnosed and just less than 6,000 will survive. Often, symptoms are not present until very late, when it has spread to other areas and surgical removal is impossible. Those who are diagnosed early have about a 22.5 percent five-year survival rate, compared to those with late-stage disease at the time of diagnosis who have a less than 2 percent five-year survival.

There are two types of pancreatic cancer. The first forms in the ducts of the pancreas. This type of tumor is known as adenocarcinoma or an exocrine tumor. Most cases of pancreatic cancer are of this sort. The second forms in the hormone-producing cells. This type is also known as endocrine cancer and is very rare.

Risk factors for developing pancreatic cancer include being overweight or obese, having pancreatitis (chronic inflammation of the pancreas), being a smoker, having a family history of pancreatic cancer, having diabetes, and a family history of genetic syndromes that increase cancer risk and age, especially in those over age 60.

Symptoms can include loss of

ASK
DR. GOTT

appetite, jaundice (yellowing of the skin and eyes), unexplained weight loss, blood clots, depression and upper abdominal pain that radiates to the back.

Treatment depends on the stage of cancer and which part of the pancreas is affected when first detected. In the early stages, surgical removal of part or all of the organ may be beneficial. As the disease spreads, this may not be an option. Chemotherapy and radiation therapy are often used before or after surgery or when surgery is not an option. In advanced cases, chemotherapy may be combined with targeted drug therapy.

There are clinical trials available for individuals with pancreatic cancer in order to study/test new therapies, but these trials are not a guarantee of cure. Clinical trials are simply studies to determine whether a new drug is effective and safe.

To date, there are no screening tests available to the general population. According to the Johns Hopkins website, researchers there are working on developing new tests to screen and detect pancreatic cancer in its earliest stages. It is hoped that these new tests will be effective, especially for those with increased risk, such as those with a strong family history.

Currently, the best available tumor marker for cancer of the pancreas is the CA19-9 test. Unfortunately, it is only 80 percent accurate in identifying patients with this type of cancer and cannot identify early disease.

Because both your husband's parents had pancreatic cancer, he is at a higher risk for developing it as well. Sadly, I cannot offer you much hope about this disease other than the fact that the medical community now knows much more about it than in the past. Perhaps he should look into genetic testing or even contact the lab at Johns Hopkins that is developing these tests. They may need people to determine whether the tests are safe, effective and accurate. You can learn more about this at www.pathology.jhu.edu/pc/. You may wish to look into similar programs at other teaching hospitals, primarily those closest to your home.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I saw your column about cluster headaches and wanted to tell you about my husband's experience. He suffered with these for many years. He was on medication, hospitalized, and even had sinus surgery, but nothing worked. I began researching and found that he was most likely suffering from cluster headaches, something his doctors hadn't told us. I also found that ginseng might help. He now takes ginseng tablets daily and has not had a headache since. The only kind that doesn't seem to work is American ginseng, and the brand doesn't seem to matter, either. I hope this helps some of your readers.

DEAR READER: Thank you for writing. I have printed your letter in the hopes that it will in fact reach those readers who need it most. However, I do have a few issues. First, cluster headaches are fairly easy to diagnose because they follow a pattern, so I am surprised to hear that your husband underwent all this treatment for something that his doctors either couldn't diagnose or wouldn't tell him. Second, you did not provide any dosing information. How much ginseng is your husband currently using daily?

I ask that you or any other readers familiar with this write to let me know so I can pass it on to others. Thank you.

To provide related information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Headaches." Other readers who would like a copy should send a self-addressed stamped envelope and a $2 check or money order payable to Newsletter and mailed to Newsletter, P.O. Box 167, Wickliffe, OH 44092. ## Feds: Tiny rabbits still endangered

By Nicholas K. Geranios
Associated Press Writer

SPOKANE, Wash. — Threats to the survival of the endangered Columbia Basin pygmy rabbit have increased in the past five years, in part because the tiny animals are not breeding enough, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service said Wednesday.

While the agency last month declined to list the pygmy rabbit as endangered in most western states, the Columbia Basin population in Eastern Washington is distinct and faces serious threats. It was listed as an endangered species under emergency provisions in 2001 and fully listed in 2003.

In its five-year review of aggressive efforts to save the species, the agency found the Columbia Basin rabbits face increased risk from disease in captivity; are getting used to captive conditions that make them less capable of surviving in the wild; and face loss of genetic uniqueness due to interbreeding.

The last known wild population of Columbia Basin pygmy rabbits was believed to be extinct by mid-2004.

"We don't know of any animals in the wild, but there is a whole lot of ground that hasn't been surveyed," said Chris Warren of the FWS in Spokane.

The remaining members of the distinct population are housed at the Oregon Zoo, Northwest Trek and Washington State University, the agency said. Those animals are inbred and scientists have been trying to mate them with pygmy rabbits from elsewhere, Warren said.

But initial efforts to use artificial insemination and Viagra-style stimulants haven't worked. And conventional mating is difficult because female rabbits will only briefly tolerate the presence of males, and often fight with them, Warren said.

"Sometimes the female beats up the male," Warren said.

Even when mating is successful, many infant rabbits have been dying from diseases carried in soils that the rabbits burrow into and use as nests, he said.

"They can't breed without burrows," he said.

It's a different story for pygmy rabbits in other states. Last month, the agency rejected extending endangered species protection to pygmy rabbits in California, Nevada, Oregon, Idaho, Utah, Wyoming and Montana, saying their survival was not threatened.

Environmental groups approved of the decision.

"The Columbia Basin pygmy rabbit is one of the most endangered mammals in North America," said Noah Greenwald, endangered species director at the Center for Biological Diversity in Portland, Ore. He said the agency should extend the protection to pygmy rabbits in other western states also.

In 2007, twenty captive-bred pygmy rabbits were reintroduced in the basin, but were almost immediately consumed by predators.

The agency is considering a second release of pygmy rabbits but would include many more rabbits from other areas in an effort to increase the survival rate, Warren said.

The pygmy rabbit is the smallest rabbit in North America, and can fit in a man's hand. Adults weigh about one pound and measure less than a foot in length. It is one of only two rabbit species in North America that digs its own burrows, and lives in areas of deep, loose soil.

Historically, the rabbit lived in shrub-steppe habitat in portions of Douglas, Grant, Lincoln, Adams, Franklin, and Benton counties in Washington. The Columbia Basin rabbits have been isolated from other populations for at least 10,000 years, as suggested by the fossil record and genetic analyses.

Resilient Bulldogs rally for wild win

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

KIMBERLY — These Bulldogs just don't know when they're beaten.

Kimberly scored three times in the final 9:36 of Friday night's game with Parma to reverse a 20-point deficit and advance to the Class 3A state quarterfinals with a wild 42-41 win over the Panthers.

"We just believed we would get the job done," said senior tailback Cody Casperson, who scored all three of the touchdowns in the final stretch to get Kimberly over the finish line. "We got some breaks at the end, and it just looks like things were meant to happen for us."

Parma's Lance Johnson had just ripped off two backbreaking scoring runs to seemingly put the game on ice. With the Bulldogs trailing 27-21, they went for it on fourth down inside the Parma 20 and came up short. Johnson broke a 53-yard run to set up his own 2-yard scoring plunge. Then after Kimberly (7-2) went three-and-out, he raced 75 yards to the end zone on Parma's first play for his fifth touchdown of the night.

But Casperson and the Bulldogs weren't to be denied. After Parma crucially missed the extra point, the Panthers kicked off three straight times out of bounds — each time resulting in a 5-yard penalty and a re-kick. Casperson caught the fourth kickoff attempt and raced 69 yards to the house.

Kimberly's defense forced Parma into successive three-and-outs and Casperson ended drives with short touchdown runs, the last coming from a yard out with 18 seconds left to tie the game at 41. After Dally Charters nailed the extra point to put the Bulldogs ahead, Casperson intercepted Parma quarterback Trevor Kramer to seal a thrilling win.

"We just have lots of heart," said Casperson. "There's no downer guys on this team. Everyone stays positive and keeps believing. We weren't going to let ourselves lose today."

Casperson finished with 236 rushing yards on 29 carries and three touchdowns, plus the kickoff return. He was outdone by Johnson, who carried 21 times for 273 yards and five scores. But Johnson was held to just six yards after breaking the long touchdown run.

But as with the mistakes that led to Kimberly's first score in the final stretch, a vital roughing-the-passer penalty gave the Bulldogs new life after Seth Champlin had thrown incomplete on fourth-and-14 in Parma territory. That gave Kimberly a first down at the Panther 18 with just more than a minute left, and they managed the clock perfectly in punching it in for the decisive score.

Butte County pull aways late to top Gooding

By John Derr
Times-News writer

GOODING — The final score didn't tell this story.

Driving for the tying score in the fourth quarter, Gooding came up a little short. There wouldn't get a second chance.

After digging out of a hole early to knot the score at 22-22, the Senators struggled late in falling 44-22 to Butte County in a Class 2A sub-state playoff game. With seven minutes left it was a six-point game, but the Pirates took charge from there.

"(Butte County) executed really well. That is a team that has been to state and we haven't," said Gooding coach Cameron Andersen.

The two teams met early in the season with the Pirates coming away with a narrow home victory in a defensive battle. This time the offensives took center stage.

The Pirates pounded the ball down the field on their first two possessions after short kickoffs gave them favorable field position. Tyler Andreason went off tackle at the 32 then broke a pair of tackles on his way to the end zone while Brandon Pearson chipped in a 9-yard touchdown run.

"They play physical up front and confused us on the delayed runs," Anderson said.

The Senators struggled with penalties early, including three procedure infractions and a hold on their first possession. But a heavy dose of Casey Pierson got them on track.

Minico falls to Shelley in Great 8 playoffs

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

RUPERT — When things weren't going Shelley's way early in its Great 8 playoff game at Minico on Friday, the Russets just kept plugging away.

"Our team is a four-quarter team," said Shelley quarterback Chad Leckington. "We don't give up, we play all the way through the game."

After falling behind 7-0 in the first quarter, its offense sputtering, Shelley persevered, found its footing, and grinded out a 21-7 victory.

"They're a good team, they're tough guys. I hope they go far, they deserve it," Minico linebacker Jordan Roland said of the Russets, adding that he believes Shelley is the second-best team the Spartans have played this season behind Bishop Kelly.

Shelley's defense held Minico to 111 yards rushing, 67 of which came on two long Brady May runs, including his 32-yard touchdown scamper in the first quarter.

"(Shelley is) very, very physical," said Minico coach

Tim Perrigot. "They were able to stop our run game with six guys in the box, and teams haven't stopped us with eight guys in the box all year long."

Shelley's Aaron Adams carried 25 times for 116 yards, including a 1-yard touchdown to tie it 7-7 midway through the second quarter.

Minico went three-and-out on its first possession of the second half, setting Shelley up with good field position at its own 42. A tidy seven plays later, the Russets went up 14-7 on Leckington's 2-yard QB sneak.

Shelley's next possession was the back-breaker. The Russets marched 72 yards in 17 plays, draining nine minutes of game clock, and punctuated the drive with Leckington's 10-yard TD pass to Derek Wilson.

"That was the play calling of (coach Dave) Hadley, putting together different options and letting me finish it off," said Leckington, who was 9 of 13 for 144 yards.

Knobbe leads Declo to second round

By Stephen Meyers
Times-News writer

DECLO — With a tear down the chest of his No. 10 jersey and steam rising off his head and shoulders on a chilly night, Mark Knobbe was pumped.

Not even a surprise ice-cold shower from the water jug could wipe Knobbe's smile off his face.

"I just want to hug everyone right now," Knobbe said after the Hornets' 28-6 win over McCall-Donnelly on Friday. "If I could sing, I would be singing!"

The running back had a reason to be so happy.

He scored all four of the Hornets' touchdowns, rushed for 202 yards on 25 carries and in the process broke the single-season rushing record of 1,990 yards set by Jason Webb in 1998.

"This just makes the four years of all the pain and weight lifting and practice and dedication all worth it. This has made my high school life," Knobbe said.

The senior went on to give all the credit to other teammates and especially his offensive line of Jake Lancaster, Craig Christensen, Spencer Bingham, Jacob Turner and Jared "The Patty-Wagon" Patterson.

"I love the 10 other guys on the field. They went out there and competed and I couldn't have done anything without my O-line," said Knobbe.

That offensive line dominated the line of scrimmage, leading to 327 rushing yards for the Hornets (6-3).

Kyle Zollinger rushed for 72 yards on eight carries and quarterback Kai Garner added 58.

After a McCall-Donnelly fumble on its second play from scrimmage, the Hornets went to work and Knobbe dashed down the sideline untouched for the 28-yard score.

Zollinger ripped off a 31-yard run in the second quarter to set-up Knobbe's second touchdown and the senior running back added his third score from six-yards out on the Hornets' next possession.

McCall-Donnelly didn't move the ball so successfully.

The Vandals opened the game with a 32-yard pass from Kylan Whalen to Codi Clark, but Clark coughed up the ball on the very next play and McCall-Donnelly never gained any momentum — or many yards — the rest of the game.

"We just executed out there. Everyone did their jobs and we were all fired up," Patterson said.

The 6-foot, 290-pound lineman anchored a dominant defensive front to hold the Vandals to just 95 yards rushing and 171 yards of total offense.

The Vandals did finally get on the board late in the fourth quarter with a Todd Allen 1-yard touchdown run, after Knobbe's final touchdown of the night.

Then it was celebration time as fans and teammates swarmed Knobbe and Declo coach Kelly Kidd surprised his running back with a water jug shower.

"He's earned it. He's been in the weight room and showed tremendous leadership. I'm so proud of him," Kidd said.

The Hornets now look ahead to next week, when they'll host Nampa Christian in the Class 2A state quarter-finals.

LAWRENCE GILLETTE/For the Times-News

Declo's Mark Knobbe (10) plunges forward for yardage against McCall-Donnelly Friday night in Declo.

After two straight appearances in the state championship game, the Hornets plan on making it a third.

"At the beginning of the season, we were ranked No. 1 by the media and all that, but I didn't really pay attention. I just set a goal for this team to get back to the state championship game. We're going to practice hard and get ready for next week," Knobbe said. Said Kidd: "At this point, I like our chances. We're starting to believe."

Blackfoot crushes Jerome to open Great 8 playoffs

By Zach Kyle
Post Register

BLACKFOOT — The Blackfoot Broncos began the defense of their Class 4A state football title by running past the Jerome Tigers 62-13 in the Great 8 playoffs Friday at Blackfoot.

Blackfoot's speed exploited the Jerome defense all over the field. The Blackfoot offense moved the ball at will, running up a 35-0 lead at halftime.

Jerome trailed 49-0 before Dylan Dowton's 1-yard scoring plunge in the fourth quarter. Spencer Parker caught a 15-yard scoring strike from Simon Espinoza late in the game, but was far too little, too late for the Tigers (3-6).

Espinoza finished 16 of 29 for 127 yards, but suffered three interceptions.

Blackfoot quarterback Trae Pilster started the game unusually off kilter, connecting on just one of his first six throws.

Pilster settled in and didn't throw another incompletion. The junior completed 10 straight passes and led Blackfoot on a 70-yard drive in the final 1:12 of the first half that ended with a 10-yard touchdown strike to Pearson with three-tenths of a second left on the clock.

Blackfoot's improving run game took another step against Jerome. Nine Blackfoot rushers combined to pick up 319 yards on the ground.

After relying on the air attack most of the season, Blackfoot threw just 16 times versus 37 rushes and threw just once in the second half.

Pilster led Blackfoot with 57 scrambling yards, but sophomore Alonzo Ramos was electric. The 132-pound playmaker ran for 54 yards and two touchdowns on just five carries and caught four screen passes for another 74 yards.

The cat-quick Ramos repeatedly shook defenders out of their shoes before sprinting for big gains. His role has steadily expanded since being called up from the JV team for Blackfoot's third game of the season.

"I'm looking just to make plays to make the coaches happy," Ramos said. "I'm a sophomore. I can't make any mistakes or anything, so I have to step it up."

Receiver Beau Hoskins also torched Jerome, scoring on a 15-yard end-around, a 75-yard interception return and an 85-yard kickoff return.

Hoskins said he expected a tougher game.

"(Our game plan was) just play safe, make sure we keep everything covered," Hoskins said as he glanced to the scoreboard. "That's what came out of it."

Blackfoot (7-2) will host

Preston (7-2) in the 4A state quarterfinals on Friday, Nov. 5.

Bruins season comes to end with Preston rout

By Jimmy Hancock
Idaho State Journal

PRESTON — The Bruins found out just how hard it is to play at Preston.

Preston's defense intercepted Twin Falls quarterback T.J. Ellis four times Friday night, and the Indians rolled to a 42-6 victory over the Bruins in the first round of the 4A playoffs.

After a strong showing by both defenses early in the game, it was Preston running back Zach Porter who made the first big play.

Porter took the Bruins' second punt of the game from his own 40-yard line and broke a couple of tackles on his way to the Twin Falls 22.

That set up a five-play drive capped by Porter's 3-yard touchdown run, and the floodgates were opened.

Porter found the end zone a second time on a 58-yard run with about five minutes left in the second quarter. That run was the only play of a drive set up by Indian defensive back K.C. Hollingsworth's interception of Ellis.

Down 20-0 to start the second half, Twin Falls looked poised to make some headway, taking the ball from their own 35 to the Preston 25-yard line before the drive stalled.

The Bruins' only score of the game came with just seconds left on an Ellis pass to running back Josh Settlemoir.

Preston defensive lineman Jason Nelson had two big sacks of Ellis, which, combined with a holding penalty, pushed Twin Falls (6-3) back to its own 47-yard line. After a 16-yard pass to receiver Robert Sanchez, Ellis then missed his receiver on fourth down.

On their second drive, the Bruins again showed signs of life after Ellis hit receiver Ricky Akridge for 37 yards, taking them to the Preston 37-yard line. But Ellis followed that play with his third interception when Hollingsworth stepped in front of the pass, picking off his second of the night.

Down 34-0 with less than five minutes left in the game, Ellis was again driving the Bruins down the field. But after passes of 20 and 13 yards that took his team into Preston territory, Ellis had his next pass tipped by Preston lineman Brandon Fitzgerald.

It was pulled out of the air by fellow lineman Jason Nelson, who ran it 55 yards for a touchdown to ice the game. It was Nelson's second pick-six of the season.

final two passes were intercepted by McKay Cannon, thwarting any hope of a Minico comeback. Shelley also sacked Miller five times.

"We couldn't put it in the end zone when it mattered most," said Roland. "If we would have gotten some momentum on offense, I think it would have been a whole different ballgame."

Minico finished its season 6-3 with a Great Basin Conference championship, but the season's successes didn't outweigh Friday's disappointment, especially for the 37 seniors who played their final game at Bill Matthews Field.

"I'm going to miss the guys," Roland said. "You spend a lot of time with each other over the span of a football season and it's just going to be tough not being able to come out here and play anymore."

Said Perrigot: "I love this football team. We're going to miss these seniors, they're going to be tough to replace. We had more fun in practice with these kids than we've ever had. These kids love to practice, and I think that says a lot about the way they played on Friday nights, they were prepared and ready to go."

Shelley (7-2) advances to play the third-place team from District III next week.

Gooding

The senior running back tallied 70 yards on the Senators' second drive with quarterback Jon Jensen sneaking it in the final 3 yards.

A Pirate fumble put Gooding back in business and Pierson's 25-yard run knotted the score.

After a short kickoff, the Pirates got the ball at the Senator 40. Brant Reynolds took two plays to put Butte County up 22-16 at the half.

Gooding tied it up early in the second with Pierson going up the gut for 40 yards and his second touchdown on the night. Pierson wound up with 222 yards in his final prep football game.

But the Senators failed to score off a Pirate fumble and Butte County used a 51-yard pass and a 19-yard run to go up 28-22.

After the teams traded possessions, the Senators drove deep into Butte County territory, converting on a fourth-and-five. On fourth-and nine, they would not have the same fortune as they turned the ball over on downs. With the defense keying on Pierson, the Senators went to the air, but failed to move the ball.

"We have got to be able to throw the ball. We had guys open, but didn't get enough time," said Andersen.

AP Men's Basketball Top 25

The top 25 teams in The Associated Press' preseason

NEW YORK — LeBron James and Chris Bosh headed for South Beach, while Amare Stoudemire decided to star on Broadway.

Allen Iverson? He's headed for Turkey.

"My whole thing was being wanted, being accepted by a ballclub. That was the most important thing," the former NBA MVP said Friday, after signing a $4 million, two-year contract with Turkish club Besiktas during a news conference at the upscale St. Regis Hotel in Manhattan.

"I had a great time playing in the NBA. Who knows if I ever will again?" Iverson said. "But I wanted to show everybody I can play at a high level, not just the NBA."

The 11-time All-Star waited all offseason for an NBA team to come calling, though none ever did. He ultimately decided the Istanbul-based club was the best fit.

"I feel like it's a fresh start for me, and I just thank all these guys for giving me the opportunity," Iverson said, "a chance to get back on track with my basketball career."

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL

UConn No. 1 in preseason

Connecticut begins the season the same way it has the last two — No. 1 in The Associated Press preseason Top 25 women's basketball poll.

UConn received 39 of the 40 first-place votes Friday from a national media panel. The Huskies have been No. 1 for 44 straight weeks, a streak dating to Feb. 18, 2008. It's the eighth time in school history UConn has held the AP's top preseason ranking.

Baylor received the other first-place vote and is second. The two teams will meet on Nov. 16 in an early showdown. Stanford, Tennessee, and Xavier rounded out the first five.

UConn has won 78 straight games and has been a unanimous choice in the poll for 35 straight weeks.

T.F., Jerome to meet for consolation title

By Stephen Meyers
Times-News writer

The moment got to them. The blue, personalized state shirts, the dyed blue hair, the vibrant, enthusiastic student crowd, the talk about state since August, the upper-level competition. All of it overwhelmed the Twin Falls Bruins volleyball team Friday in its state tournament opener against Middleton, as the Bruins lost in straight sets 25-18, 25-22, 25-20.

“The spotlight got to most of us,” said Twin Falls coach B.J. Price.

As did Middleton’s service game.

Krissy Quenzer recorded four aces to lead the Pirates, who served the ball brilliantly, frustrating Twin Falls into bad passes and taking the Bruins out of their usually quick and efficient offensive system.

“We went in confident, but they are a great team and their serves got to us and we were kind of flustered,” said senior Taylor Simonson.

“We have to pass the ball better,” Price said.

The Bruins had a chance to win Set 2, going up 22-20, but couldn’t close as the Pirates stormed to a 5-0 finish.

Maya Ahyou led Middleton with nine kills and Madeline Laan added six. Kami Evans recorded seven digs to lead the Pirates.

Cheltzie Williams led the Bruins with nine kills and Sierra Starley added eight. Starley also added 10 digs as did senior Taylor Lancaster. Setter Allie Johnson dished out 20 assists.

Starley, a freshman, was one of the few Bruins to not let the environment affect her play.

“She wasn’t worried about anything out there. She showed a lot of poise and maturity and just played and went back to the basics,”

The loss is reminiscent to the Bruins’ showing at the state tournament last season en route to a two-and-out showing.

“We’re all very sad,” Simonson said.

Jerome didn’t fare well in its opening state tournament match, losing to Bishop Kelly 25-21, 25-19, 25-26, 25-18.

After a slow, timid start, the Tigers played more aggressive each set, stealing the third set with great intensity down the stretch as Carrie Thibault and Savannah Lott recorded a block for the final point.

Pushed to the brink of elimination at match point in the fourth set, the Tigers rallied back at 24-15 to force three more points.

“We had a great comeback in the last set and never gave up,” said Jerome coach Hannah Clark.

“We played hard. Nobody quit. We played to the very end. State is the time to shine and we left everything on the court,” said senior libero Melissa Marsing, who recorded 46 digs.

Thibault led the Tigers with 11 kills and Haylee Burnham recorded eight. Jasmine Branch and Frankie Carey each added four.

Rebecca Sweeney led the Knights with 16 kills, 15 digs and two aces and Makayla Lundin added 13 kills and 21 assists for Bishop Kelly which moves on to face Rigby on the winner’s side of the bracket.

By Diane Philbin

WENDELL — Fruitland had the intensity that Kimberly lacked as the Grizzlies downed the Bulldogs 25-18, 25-11, 10-25, 25-14 in the first round of the Class 3A state volleyball tournament.

Down 2-0, Kimberly appeared to regroup as it fought back and pulled out the win, forcing a fourth set. But the comeback was short-lived as Fruitland ended the match with a victory in the fourth and final set.

“We played strong the third game but we just couldn’t keep our intensity,” said Kimberly senior Taylor Sievers, who had three blocks.

Kalie Wright led the Bulldogs with nine kills and tied with Brittani Applewhistte with 15 digs. Katy Robinson added six kills and Nellie Makings dished out 18 assists.

“It was ugly,” said Kimberly coach Lawrence Pfefferle. “We didn’t pass or execute and we weren’t aggressive.”

Jarica Martarano added 13 kills, while Sadie Stutzman had nine kills, five blocks and three aces. Wright recorded 13 kills and 14 digs, while Robinson and Sievers each added five kills and Sievers had three blocks. Makings chipped in with 21 assists.

Bear Lake advances to the consolation match against Timberlake at 9 a.m.

Raft River reaches 1A Div. I semis

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

DECLO — Travelling just 25 miles down the road, at first it didn't quite feel like Raft River was heading to the Class 1A Division I state volleyball tournament.

"It didn't feel like state until we walked into the gym and saw everything, and then we're like, 'This is it.' We're excited," said Raft River sophomore Wynter Holtman.

Maybe it's a good thing Raft River isn't in awe about travelling to Declo High, because on Friday it was business as usual for the Trojans advanced to the semifinals by beating Greenleaf Friends Academy 25-17, 25-20, 22-25, 25-9. Raft River will face defending state champion Genesee in the semifinals at 11 a.m. today.

"We had to really wake up this morning early," Holtman said of the Trojans' 8 a.m. match. "That was one of our main goals, to come in and be ready right off the bat."

Raft River only fell asleep once, allowing Greenleaf to come from six points down to take the third set.

"We came out quick in that third game and then we thought it was over," said Raft River coach Cami Schumann. "Greenleaf wasn't going away, they were here to play and they were scrappy. They started reading a lot of our short stuff and started picking up our tips. I was glad to see our girls push through and get Echo Hansn had 24 digs, 11 kills and was perfect from the service line to lead Raft River. Kassie Ottley had 17 kills, Holtman had 23 digs and Taylor Whitaker had 21 assists.

"Our setters do a really good job, so props to them," Holtman said. "We've got to keep talking, play together, and come in with a lot of intensity!"

GENESEE 3, SHOSHONE 0

Shoshone fell to the defending state champion Genesee Bulldogs 25-13, 25-18, 25-13.

Kelcie Hutchins had 14 kills for Shoshone, but the Indians struggled with serve-receive.

"We were competitive, but not consistent," said Shoshone coach Larry Messick.

TROY 3, HORSESHOE BEND 0

Troy reached today's semifinal round with a 26-24, 25-17, 25-12 sweep of Horseshoe Bend. Troy will face Challis at 1 p.m. today.

CHALLIS 3, LAKESIDE 0

District IV-V-VI champion Challis continued its dominating ways, sweeping Lakeside 25-18, 25-19, 25-11. Challis will face Troy this afternoon for a spot in the 6 p.m. championship match.

ELIMINATION MATCHES SHOSHONE 3, GREENLEAF FRIENDS 0

Kelcie Hutchins and Jennica Kerner each pounded down 11 kills to lead the Indians to a 25-17, 25-17, 26-24 win over Greenleaf Friends in a loser out match.

"We did a much better job of passing and getting into an attack mod than we did this morning against Genesee," said Shoshone coach Larry Messick. "Emily Ellis and Jessica Chitwood did a good job on the backrow."

Shoshone will play Horseshoe Bend at 9 a.m. in the consolation match.

HORSESHOE BEND 3, LAKESIDE 1

Camas advances, Dietrich reaches consolation final

By Ryan Howe

BURLEY — It won't be an all-Northside state title match this year.

Camas County held up its end of the bargain by sweeping Nezperce, but Dietrich fell to North Gem in five sets in the opening round of the Class 1A Division II state volleyball tournament Friday at Burley High School.

Camas and Dietrich, which finished one-two at last year's state tournament, respectively, hoped to see each other again in today's 6 p.m. title match, but instead Dietrich moved to the consolation side, where the Blue Devils swept Clark Fork to reach's today's consolation final.

Camas advanced to today's semifinal round, where it will meet Garden Valley at 11 a.m.

In what Camas coach Shelli Schroeder said was her team's best blocking performance of the season, the Mushers downed Nezperce 25-17, 25-13, 25-18.

"It feels awesome. It just shows how hard we've worked. We have a really young team, but we weren't nervous and played well," said Camas junior Katelyn Peterson, who had 26 kills, five aces and four blocks.

Camas was strong at the net, as Brittani Hulme had four crucial blocks and Stephanie Moore had another three to go along with her three aces. Sierra Sabin led the defense with 18 digs to complement her three aces.

Camas advances to play a revenge-minded Garden Valley team, which the Mushers knocked out in the first round at last year's tournament.

"We figure it will be like playing Dietrich in the district championship," said Peterson. "We need to get our passes up, play good defense, and our hits will all come together."

NORTH GEM 3, DIETRICH 2

Moriah Dill had 26 kills and Jessica Perron had 47 assists as Dietrich rallied from two sets down before falling.

The Blue Devils battled back from four points down to tie Game 5 at 11, but a pair of service errors down the stretch proved too costly, as North Gem won 25-18, 25-19, 20-25, 17-25, 15-12.

"We didn't start playing until the third game," said Dietrich coach Traci Perron. "I don't know if they were too loose, or if it was nerves — I have a lot of young players."

Dietrich came out flat and was troubled by North Gem's size advantage, led by 6-foot senior Kirsti

Rested Bengals host McGhee, Montana State

By Mark Liptak
Times-News correspondent

POCATELLO — When Idaho State takes the field this afternoon against Montana State (1:30 p.m., Altitude TV) the hope is that a week of rest will pay large dividends.

“The bye week came at a good time for us,” said ISU head coach John Zamberlin. “It enabled some of our guys to get healthy and I think it just recharged everybody.”

For the Bengals (1-6, 0-5 Big Sky) to have a chance in this one they are going to have to slow down one of the top offenses in the Big Sky Conference and contain the league's the leading candidate for freshmen of the year. The Bobcats (6-2, 4-1 Big Sky) are averaging 39 points a game, tops in the league, and are second in the conference in rushing. The guy who makes it all go is freshman quarterback Denarius McGhee. He's earned Zamberlin's respect.

“He’s from Texas and is a very good athlete, but what’s most impressive about him is that he has a real touch on the football,” said Zamberlin. “He’ll throw it to where either his receiver is going to make the catch or no one will.”

MSU has shown some vulnerability in recent weeks though. Two weeks ago they were beaten convincingly at Northern Arizona and last week escaped with a 37-35 win over Northern Colorado. helped in large part by a 75-yard touchdown off a shovel pass.

Asked if he saw anything on tape that could be used to ISU’s advantage, Zamberlin said, “We have to do what Northern Arizona did. They got right in McGhee’s face and were extremely physical with him. Every time he touched the ball they made contact with him.”

Notes: Idaho State last beat Montana State in 2002, a 23-17 win in Bozeman. ... ISU’s Tavoy Moore is first in the league in kickoff returns at 27.1 yards a return and is first in the league in all-purpose yards at 198.9. ... Bengal linebacker A. J.

Storms is first in the conference in tackles at 12.9 which is good for second nationally, while David Harrington is first in the Big Sky in punting at 44.5 yards. Dustin Tew’s 100-yard interception return for a touchdown against Weber State on Oct. 16 was only the second time this season an FCS player has returned an interception 100 yards for a touchdown. That mark also tied the school record for longest interception return for a touchdown.

Vandals face talented Hawaii squad

Game ends stretch of five games in five time zones

By Josh Wright
Times-News correspondent

MOSCOW — The punishing stretch began at Colorado State and wraps up tonight at Hawaii — five games in five time zones, with nearly 7,000 miles accounted for through the air.

The Idaho football team has grown used to long flights and navigating its way to tough-to-reach locales over the last six weeks. But that’s OK to coach Robb Akey — just as long as the Vandals don’t get shaken out of their routine.

“Everybody looks at it a little differently and our approach is (traveling) the way we’re accustomed to,” he said. “And I think it’s going to help us.”

The Vandals always leave the day before Saturday road games, and they typically fly out 30 miles from campus in Lewiston. The only hiccup this week was a scheduled fuel stop for their plane before heading across the Pacific.

Still, there’s nothing easy about the every-other-year trek to Honolulu. And this time, after a five-hour plane ride and trying to acclimate to the humidity, Idaho (4-3, 1-1 WAC) will match up against a Hawaii team that’s on a roll in today’s 9:30 p.m. (MDT) matchup.

The Warriors (6-2) nailed down their fifth consecutive victory last week to become the first Western Athletic Conference team to reach 4-0 in league action.

Like past Hawaii teams, the Warriors have put up eye-popping numbers all season. But it hasn’t just been the offense that’s carried Hawaii within a win of bowl eligibility.

Led by linebacker Corey Paredes and safety Mana

Silva, Hawaii’s defense ranks second in the WAC. It handcuffed Nevada two weeks ago in an upset of the then-No. 19 Wolf Pack and held Utah State to a lone touchdown last week.

“Even our coaches said this is probably going to be one of the toughest defenses we face all year,” Idaho tight end Daniel Hardy said. “And I think they take pride in being a good defense, because they’re more known for their offense nationally. I think they kind of use that as a chip on their shoulder and they play that way.”

Five Vandals hail from Hawaii, including linebacker Robert Siavii. He’ll start for the first time without roommate and defensive captain JoJo Dickson, another Hawaii native who was lost for the season last week.

Siavii and his Hawaiian teammates have surely offered advice to other Vandals on what to expect from the Warriors and Aloha Stadium. Siavii is close friends with Hawaii quarterback Bryant Moniz, the nation’s leader in total offense, and followed receiver Kealoha Pilares’ career at the same high school of Idaho tailback Kama Bailey.

Siavii is expecting more than 120 family and friends at the game, most of whom will be wearing T-shirts made by his parents.

“Should be at least 120 and my whole high school is coming,” Siavii said. “I’ve got to zone them out and play ball.”

Notes: This is the third straight road game for the Vandals in which they are the homecoming opponent. They beat Western Michigan in the Broncos’ homecoming game and lost at Louisiana Tech. ... Idaho is looking for its first back-to-back wins of the season.

6 p.m. (ABC)
Line: Oregon by 6½.
Series Record: USC leads 37-17-2.
Last time: 2009, Oregon 47-20.

WHAT’S AT STAKE
In a role reversal from most recent seasons, Oregon (7-0, 4-0 Pac-10) visits the Coliseum as the highly-ranked team with everything to lose, while USC (5-2, 2-2) hopes to boost its reputation with an upset victory. The Ducks are on track for the national championship, but only if they maintain their offensive momentum against a USC team with its usual wealth of talent. USC will attempt to gain a fraction of Oregon’s home-field advantage by loading up the Coliseum with cardinal-wearing fans for a night described by Trojans QB Matt Barkley as their bowl game.

KEY MATCHUP
Oregon RB LaMichael James vs. USC’s linebackers. The Trojans have been inept tacklers during a disappointing half-season for the school’s worst defense in more than a half-century, and the nation’s leading rusher might be its toughest player to tackle. USC’s front seven must maintain discipline and gap integrity to force the Ducks to air it out.

WHAT’S AT STAKE
Auburn (8-0, 5-0 SEC) is the last undefeated SEC team and is ranked No. 1 in the BCS. In the loaded Western Division, the Tigers can’t afford a slip against Mississippi (3-4, 1-3), which has struggled most of the season. The Rebels are trying to get a marquee victory in what’s been a mediocre season.

The winner takes control of the Big 12 North. The Tigers (7-0, 3-0 Big 12) would love to send Nebraska (6-1, 2-1) off to the Big Ten with a second straight win in Lincoln. The Tigers’ 52-17 victory in 2008 was the Huskers’ most lopsided home loss in 53 years.

A Giant celebration: Texas hopes to crash WS party

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — A half-hour after Jeff Francoeur hit an easy fly ball to end Game 2, a most curious sight began to unfold in front of the San Francisco dugout.

General manager Brian Sabean and maybe 100 members of the Giants staff gathered on the grass Thursday night at AT&T Park, posing for a group picture around a huge trophy.

Moments later, the party picked up. Family members joined in. Adults ran the bases, a toddler made a head-first dive toward home plate. Hugs and high-fives for all. Hundreds of fans cheered from the box seats, horns honked outside the ballpark.

Sure looked like the Giants had just won the World Series.

They will, too, unless the Texas Rangers can reverse their fortunes at home. Down 2-0, the hitters are slumping, the bullpen is a wreck and the manager is being criticized. A team that did so well in the AL playoffs got battered 11-7 in the opener, then embarrassed 9-0.

“What you do is you just try to analyze what went wrong and just try to correct it,” Texas manager Ron Washington said before Friday’s workout.

“Now that we’re home, we feel comfortable back in this place. Not taking anything away from the Giants, they beat us soundly,” he said. “We’ve just got to come back here, get focused and win a game. We win a game, everything will be fine.”

Colby Lewis is set to start Game 3 Saturday night against Giants lefty Jonathan Sanchez. It will be the first Series game in the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

Signs around Rangers Ballpark proclaimed, “It’s Time!” Francoeur and his teammates hope so.

“I think it’s important for us to come out, play well early, get guys on and put pressure on them. Make them feel uncomfortable,” Francoeur said. “They did a good job of making us seem uncomfortable in their park. Hopefully we can turn around and do the same to them.”

Lewis, who closed out the Yankees in the AL championship series, will try to stop San Francisco’s scoring spree. Texas has been tagged for 20 runs, the most allowed in a franchise’s first two World Series games, STATS LLC said. Colorado set the previous record of 15 runs in 2007.

“If you try to get too amped or too overly confident, I think you get yourself in trouble,” Lewis said.

Vladimir Guerrero will rejoin the Texas lineup as the designated hitter. He drove in the first run of this World Series with a single off Tim Lincecum’s leg, but also made two errors in right field and sat out Game 2.

Giants manager Bruce Bochy said Pablo Sandoval will be his DH.

“We get to get all of our weapons in that lineup,” Washington said. “It’s just comfortable to be back home in front of our fans. We can draw energy from them, and that’s what we need.”

They certainly need some sort of boost.

“We’re not playing the same. I don’t know what it is,” Texas slugger Nelson Cruz said. “I wish I could tell you. The way we’re playing, it’s different. It’s not us.”

Neither is San Francisco, apparently. The week began with many fans wondering whether the Giants could hit enough to win — so far, they’ve become the first NL team to score at least nine runs in back-to-back World Series games.

Bochy and the Giants were merely going about their business inside the clubhouse while the postgame festivities took place on the field at AT&T Park, so nobody could accuse them of celebrating too early.

Outside, members of the Giants organization whooped it up. They stood around the NL championship trophy — the official picture might’ve been a matter of logistics since there’s no guarantee the Series will return to San Francisco.

“See you next year,” some giddy fans told ushers on their way out of the stadium. Others chanted “Sweep! Sweep!”

About 400 Giants employees and guests were set to come to Texas.

“If anything to see how these fans have come out and brought the enthusiasm, energy, it’s been a lot of fun here playing down the stretch,” Bochy said after the win.

Wade, Heat shred Magic

MIAMI — Dwyane Wade scored 26 points in Miami’s home opener, LeBron James had 15 points and seven assists and the Heat scored the first 14 points of the second half to turn a close game into a surprisingly one-sided 96-70 victory over the Magic.

The Heat earned their sixth win over the Magic in their last 21 meetings. Of course, all the previous ones were before Wade, James and Chris Bosh teamed up in Miami.

And if this game was the measuring stick to see how the Heat are coming together, the result had to be an enjoyable one for Miami’s Big 3. The Heat held Orlando to its lowest point total since Dec. 2, 2005.

When the Heat acquired James this summer, Magic president of basketball operations Otis Smith uttered a now-infamous-in-Miami line: “I was surprised that he went. I thought he was, I guess, more of a competitor.”

Carmelo Anthony had 24 points and 10 rebounds for Denver.

CELTICS 105, KNICKS 101
BOSTON — Rajon Rondo had a triple-double with a career-high 24 assists, and Paul Pierce scored 25 points with 14 rebounds.

MINNEAPOLIS — Michael Beasley had 21 points and 10 rebounds and the Minnesota Timberwolves pounded the Milwaukee Bucks on the boards in a 96-85 victory on Friday night.

Kevin Love added 17 points and 16 rebounds, and the Timberwolves outrebounded the Bucks 62-39 to get their first win of the season.

NETS 106, KINGS 100
NEWARK, N.J. — Devin Harris had 21 points and 10 assists, helping New Jersey stage another late rally.

New Jersey closed with a 17-3 surge over the final 3:40. Harris scored seven straight late in the run to give new owner Mikhail Prokhorov and coach Avery Johnson a second straight heart-pounding win.

HAWKS 104, 76ERS 101
PHILADELPHIA — Al Horford had 20 points and 12 rebounds, Joe Johnson scored 22 points and Jamal Crawford finished with 19.

Reserve Andres Nocioni, who scored 15 points, had his 27-footer partially blocked by Josh Smith as time expired, allowing the Hawks to move to 2-0 after wasting nearly all of a 15-point lead.

PACERS 104, BOBCATS 101
CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Danny Granger scored 33 points, Tyler Hansbrough made a big contribution in his return to North Carolina and Indiana rallied to beat Charlotte.

With Hall of Famers Michael Jordan (Bobcats owner) sitting at the end of Charlotte’s bench and Larry Bird (Pacers president) in the fourth row behind Indiana’s, their teams staged a dramatic fourth quarter that featured an unlikely star.

RAPTORS 101, CAVALIERS 81
TORONTO — Andrea Bargnani scored 20 points and Linas Kleiza added 19 for the Raptors in a matchup of teams spurned by stars over the summer.

Antawn Jamison scored 13 points for the Cavaliers, who were without Mo Williams and Anderson Varejao. Williams has an injured groin and Varejao was with his ill father.

THUNDER 105, PISTONS 104
AUBURN HILLS, Mich. — Jeff Green made a layup with 2.5 seconds left for Oklahoma City.

The Pistons were out of timeouts at the end of the game and failed to attempt a shot.

Charlie Villanueva made a go-ahead 3-pointer with 7.5 seconds left, but Detroit’s defense allowed the Thunder to make one too many easy shots with the game on the line.

GRIZZLIES 91, MAVERICKS 90
DALLAS — Rudy Gay scored 21 points, O.J. Mayo added 20, and each made key defensive plays in the final seconds.

Marc Gasol added 10 points and 15 rebounds, and Dallas native Darrell Arthur contributed 14 points for Memphis, which split its first two games of the season.

Kaymer shoots 74, won’t likely supplant Woods at No. 1

SOTOGRADE, Spain — Martin Kaymer dropped out of position to take over the No. 1 ranking from Tiger Woods, falling 11 shots behind leader Graeme McDowell on Friday in the Andalucia Masters.

Kaymer struggled to a 3-over 74 in the second round to seemingly fall out of contention for the victory he needs to pass Woods. McDowell was 7-under after a 67. Gareth Maybin was two strokes back after a 68.

INCHEON, South Korea — American Vicky Hurst and South Korea’s Song-Hee Kim shot 4-under 68s in chilly conditions to share the first-round lead in the LPGA Hana Bank Championship.

Hurst and Kim, both winless on the LPGA Tour, each had five birdies and a bogey on Sky 72 Golf Club’s Ocean Course in the second of three straight events in Asia.

Defending champion Na Yeon Choi and Amy Hung opened with 69s, and Michelle Wie birdied the final two holes to top the group at 70 along with Jimin Kang, coming off a victory in the LPGA Malaysia.

Top-ranked Cristie Kerr, 50-year-old Juli Inkster and Suzann Pettersen shot 71s, Paula Creamer and Morgan Pressel had 72s, and second-ranked South Korean star Jiyai Shin opened with a 73.

Talladega could be trouble for 3 title contenders

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — Denny Hamlin wishes no ill will on Jimmie Johnson and Kevin Harvick this weekend at Talladega Superspeedway.

He wants a clean race Sunday, with no outside interference, and an honest final push to the Sprint Cup championship.

“You really would like to beat the guy heads-up,” Hamlin said Friday. “You almost don’t want anything to happen to anyone because you want to beat ‘em straight-up, 10 weeks, no questions about it when you get down to Homestead.”

That will, of course, depend on the results of Sunday’s race, the most anticipated of the 10 in the Chase for the Sprint Cup championship. Talladega is considered the “wild card” race of the Chase, and the one where the drivers are at the mercy of one another on the track.

Because of the tight packs and high speeds — both Hamlin and teammate Kyle Busch posted laps at 201 mph in Friday’s first practices — the race is a white-knuckle exercise in trying to avoid the slips, bumps and nudges that create multicar accidents.

So as the Chase hits the homestretch, Talladega becomes a critical spot on the tour. Johnson, the four-time defending series champion, takes a six-point lead into Sunday over Hamlin.

Lurking back in third is Harvick, the winner of April’s race at Talladega who trails by 62 points. Harvick has had decent success at restrictor-plate races, but is taking nothing for granted.

“Obviously at this place anything can happen whether you are leading the race or running last — you can wind up in somebody else’s mess,” he said. “There is a lot of strategy involved in it, and you have to have fast cars.”

That strategy could include teammates as all three title contenders drive for multicar organizations.

Teammates came into play last weekend at Martinsville, where Hamlin won and Busch passed Johnson in the closing laps to take away fourth place — thus denying Johnson five more points in his race with Hamlin.

“I thought when I was running around (Johnson), ‘Man, this only helps me and only helps Denny if I can keep him back another spot,’ “ Busch said of passing Johnson at Martinsville. “Anything can help. I knew that was another spot that I got between (Hamlin) and Jimmie.”

That same scenario can come into play at Talladega, and then some.

Because drafting is a critical component of plate racing, drivers will have to pick and choose carefully who they push Sunday. The Joe Gibbs Racing drivers are likely to avoid helping Johnson, just as Hendrick Motorsports and Richard Childress Racing drivers will try not to push Johnson and Hamlin to the win.

“Your teammates can help you on a restrictor-plate track probably more so than anywhere else,” Johnson said. “I’m hopeful that my teammates will keep an eye out for me and if I need to get into a slot, will cut me some slack. At the end of the race, if they have a decision to push two or three different cars, that they would pick pushing me and help us out.”

But RCR driver Jeff Burton, who tangled on track with teammate Harvick last week, said there’s only so much organizations can do to help without jeopardizing their own efforts.

“It is very clear to all of us at RCR, if you are in a position to help your teammate, you go help them,” Burton said. “But you don’t do that if it is going to hurt you. We don’t have any team orders that says ‘Hey, go push Kevin. Go make it so he can do it!’

“If I can help Kevin, I certainly will. I won’t do that at the jeopardy of hurting me and my team and Kevin wouldn’t want me to. We have to go and do the very best we can for each individual team. If we don’t do that, then I think we really mess with the credibility of the sport.”

Local foursome among Idaho HS Heisman finalists

Times-News

Four local athletes were named state finalists for 2010 Wendy's High School Heisman Award, the award's governing body announced Friday.

Kimberly's Nellie Makings, Jerome's Cody Davis, Glenns Ferry's

Rebecca Woody and Abby Burk of Bliss are among 20 finalists for the award at the state level. One male and one female winner, announced next Friday, will progress in the national competition along with one male and female from each state plus the District of Columbia.

From the 51 "state" winners, 12 male and 12 female national finalists will be announced to be featured in a televised ceremony on ESPN. Each national finalist receives a medal and $2,000 for their high schools, while the winners receive the High School Heisman Trophy and a $10,000 donation to their school. # Farewell, Sheridan

Buhl pastor retires after more than 30 years of church service

By John E. Swayze
Times-News correspondent

God may work in mysterious ways, but ministry seems to have always been in his plans for Rev. Charles Sheridan.

On Sunday, Sheridan and his wife, Linda, will mark their 30-plus-year vocation of church service with his last sermon as pastor of Buhl Church of the Nazarene. The couple plans to enjoy their retirement in Lewiston.

"It'll be hard to let go and leave our church family, but I'm sure I'll find something to do," Sheridan said. "That probably means spending as much time as I can hunting and fishing."

Long ago, as a newborn, Sheridan battled sickness. Growing concern about his health led family members to pray for divine intervention.

"Mom was sick and dad was worried he might lose me," Sheridan said. "So he promised God, if I lived, he could do whatever he wanted to with me. I spent years trying to run away from that."

For much of his childhood and early teens, Sheridan and his brother Russell remember attending church in Twin Falls and at Buhl Church of the Nazarene.

"I remember we went to church in Twin and with our grandmother," Russell Sheridan said. "She was a charter member of the Buhl church."

After graduating from Filer High School, Sheridan attended Northwest Nazarene College but soon enlisted for a four-year stint, 1962-66, in the U.S. Navy. He was stationed at Jacksonville Naval Station in Florida and completed two tours aboard the USS Ranger and USS Enterprise off the coast of Vietnam.

After returning to Filer, he worked for his father's building supply company until 1967 and then moved to Coeur d'Alene to establish his own electrical contracting business. Though his efforts were successful, family and friends prayed that his life would return to a focus on that early vow of service to God.

"We were around Christians, and I can't tell you why, but when God calls, you don't have peace until you answer," Sheridan said. "So, I sold my half of the business to a partner and enrolled at Nazarene Bible College in Colorado Springs."

Graduating in 1979, he accepted a four-year call to the 50-member congregation of Hewitt Church of the Nazarene in Hewitt, Minn.

"The cold took a little getting used too," Sheridan said. "But they were good and patient people with a new pastor. Our second call was another four years in a church about the same size in the lumber town of Dorris, Calif., on the Oregon-California border."

Throughout those eight years, despite calls from other congregations, Sheridan had a sense that God would call him back to Idaho. On a visit home in the mid-1980s, he heard that the Buhl congregation was looking for a new pastor.

"A friend told me about it and suggested I apply," Sheridan said. "They turned me down, but it wasn't long afterwards that they asked me to come back, and we've been here 24 years."

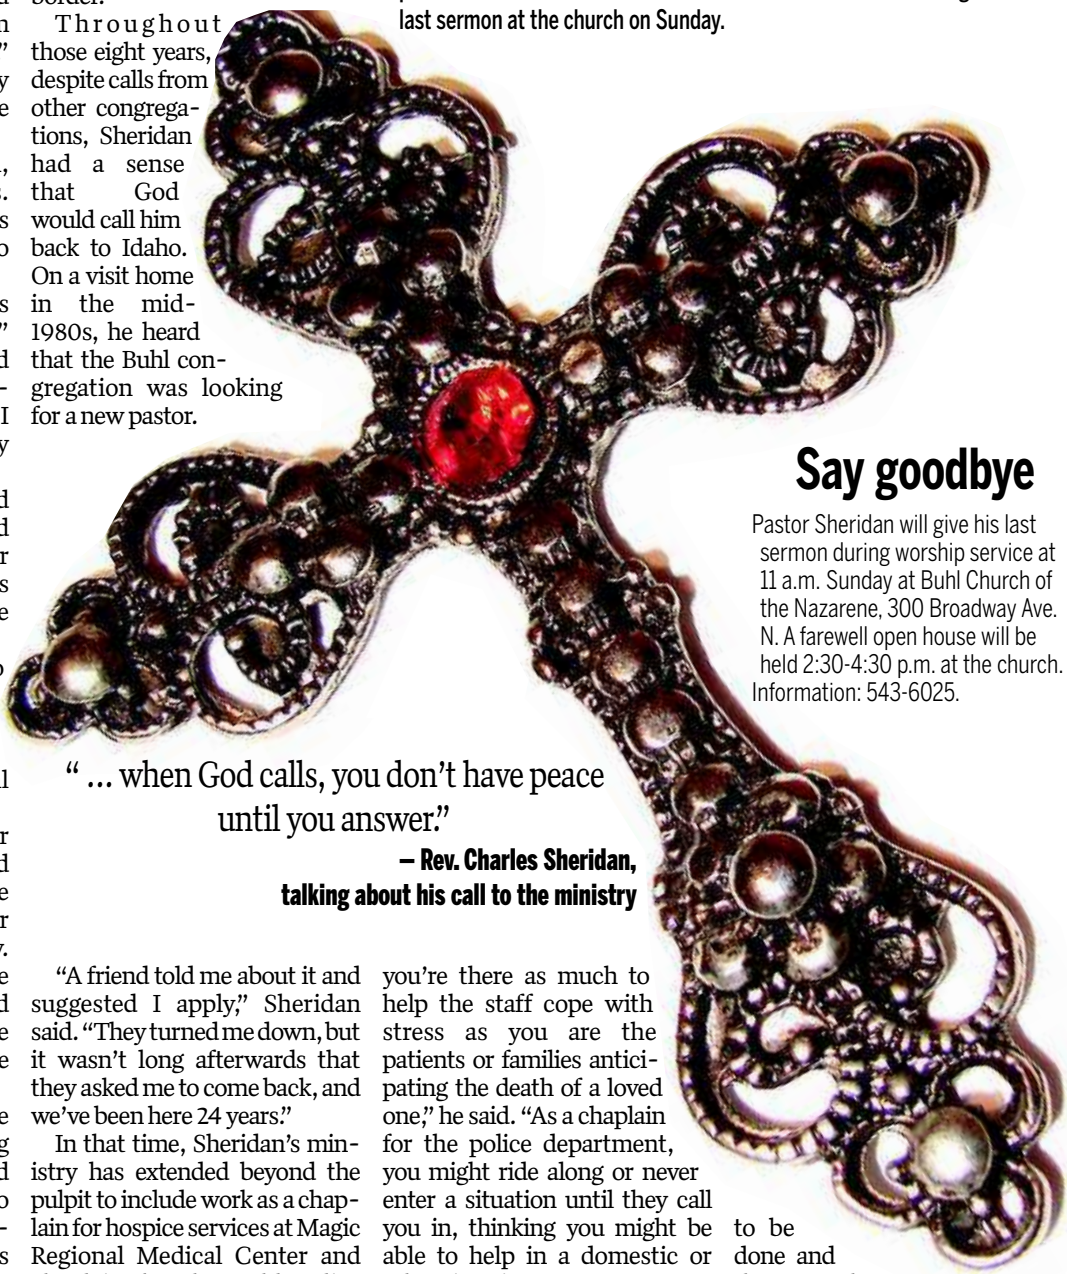

In that time, Sheridan's ministry has extended beyond the pulpit to include work as a chaplain for hospice services at Magic Regional Medical Center and chaplain for the Buhl Police Department.

With hospice he not only ministered one-on-one to those who requested a comforting word or prayer, but also provided training for nurses and aides who wanted to learn how to share their faith in God.

you're there as much to help the staff cope with stress as you are the patients or families anticipating the death of a loved one," he said. "As a chaplain for the police department, you might ride along or never enter a situation until they call you in, thinking you might be able to help in a domestic or other situation."

In 2005, Sheridan also campaigned and was elected for one term as mayor of Buhl. Under his watch the city undertook a water project to reduce arsenic levels and was committed to the ongoing efforts for a wastewater treatment plant.

Say goodbye

Pastor Sheridan will give his last sermon during worship service at 11 a.m. Sunday at Buhl Church of the Nazarene, 300 Broadway Ave. N. A farewell open house will be held 2:30-4:30 p.m. at the church. Information: 543-6025.

to be done and threw my hat into the ring," he said. "All my life experience and knowledge has helped me learn to get along with and help people, both as a pastor and as mayor."

Halloween on holy day

How churches celebrate All Hallows Eve

By Andrew Weeks
Times-News writer

Don't be surprised to see ghosts and goblins in the pews of some churches Sunday.

Like any other fixed-date holiday, Halloween cycles through the days of the week, sometimes, like this year, landing on a Sunday. That might cause controversy with some churches, but for others it's no big deal.

Phil Price, pastor of First Presbyterian Church in Twin Falls, says his church will celebrate All Hallows Eve by inviting children to come to service dressed in their costumes. Afterward, they'll participate in a Halloween party.

The holiday is more than about witches and ghouls. It is a time to celebrate those who have passed from this life, Price said.

Originally, Scottish Celts would dress in costume to hide from spirits who might do them harm. From a Christian perspective, the holiday is more in line with All Saints' Day, celebrated on Nov. 1.

"We've got a pretty broad view of what a saint is. Anyone who died believing in God and living a good life is considered a saint," said Deborah Seles, pastor of Ascension Episcopal Church in Twin Falls, which also will celebrate with an All Hallows Eve service. Besides commemorating traditional Christian saints, she said, "we're going to commemorate people who have been saints in our own lives."

The Sunday service will include verses from the Bible, which, seen in a different light, might be considered "Halloweenish." Ezekiel 37, for instance, wherein the prophet saw in vision a valley of dry bones, and God restoring flesh to the skeletal frames; and 1 Samuel 28 that talks about Saul and the witch of Endor.

As for kids knocking on doors Sunday night?

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints is firm about keeping Sunday a Christ-centered day, and prefers its members to instead celebrate Halloween on Friday or Saturday, when many of the area's stake and ward houses will host "trunk or treat" activities. Kids come to the event dressed in costumes — though masks, especially of the scary variety, are discouraged — and walk around the parking lot to the different cars to receive their treats. Games often are held inside the church.

"The church's position is that the Sabbath day comes first," said Del Traveller, area spokesman for the LDS church. "Halloween shouldn't replace Sabbath

Should faith groups get involved in issues like health insurance and immigration?

McClatchy Newspapers

AN IMPORTANT CALLING FOR CHRISTIANS

The Rev. Justin Hoye, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church, Nevada, Mo. and St. Bridget's in Rich Hill, Mo.: While many religious groups would suggest that their primary intent is to focus on individual's attention on spiritual realities — often realities to be fully realized only after death — that focus does not negate attention to the physical realities of this life.

A Christian view asserts that God, in the person of Jesus Christ, entered our human condition in solidarity with the plight of humanity. Though like us in all things but sin, Jesus bore the weight of the burdens in life that come from sin: loss and grief, suffering and illness, brokenness and betrayal.

With that in mind, participating in the concerns of life that affect our human condition, like health insurance and immigration, is appropriate for a faith community. Moreover, for Jesus' disci-

Voices of ### faith

Involvement with these social issues demonstrates solidarity with those most often victimized by structures that are lacking, if not outright sinful. The immigrant and those most vulnerable to illness and its accrued expenses are worthy of a religious community's attention. Jesus engaged our world in solidarity with those who were burdened by unjust or inadequate conditions. A disciple of Christ, in solidarity with the Lord's work, should do no less.

CHURCHES SHOULD SHY AWAY FROM POLITICS

The Rev. Duke Tufty, Unity Temple on the Plaza: A church and/or a minister, priest or rabbi should not get involved in campaigning or promoting for anything political. Religious leaders are certainly entitled to their own beliefs and viewpoints and have the right to vote accordingly, but I believe it is unfair and unethical to preach their position from the pulpit.

There are two sides to every issue, and if only one side is being told in a very influential and emphatic way, to a captive audience, this doesn't give the people listening the benefit of hearing both sides and deciding for themselves.

I believe any faith movement should support, encourage and empower people to think for themselves. In addition, it should be a source of support and direction to assist people in getting their needs met, whether that assistance is to help one get health insurance, become a legal citizen or gain a greater sense of well-being.

I also believe a religious leader is there to answer people's questions but must also be open to having his or her answers questioned. The spiritual center I serve holds to the belief that all people have the wisdom within them to determine how they want to live their lives and the kind of world they want to live in.

That should not be dictated or dogmatized by somebody other than them.

A nun walks past a branch of Credito Artigiano's bank in Rome in this Sept. 21 file photo. Italian prosecutors contest claims by the Vatican bank that it is trying to comply with international rules to fight money laundering, saying an investigation that led to the seizure of $30 million from a Vatican bank account shows 'exactly the opposite,' according to a court document obtained Oct. 22 by The Associated Press.

EU: Pope to bind Vatican to money-laundering law

By Jeffrey Donovan and Lorenzo Totaro
Associated Press writers

ROME — Pope Benedict XVI will bind the Vatican to implementing European Union laws against money laundering and financial fraud, the European Commission said Friday, after the Holy See's bank was tainted by a series of scandals.

The Vatican is "fully committed" to putting relevant EU legislation into effect by the end of 2010, as stipulated by a monetary accord the Vatican signed with the commission Dec. 17 last year, Amadeu Altafaj, spokesman for EU Monetary Affairs Commissioner Olli Rehn, said in an interview in Brussels.

A joint EU-Vatican committee, set up under the agreement, "discussed in detail" a draft Vatican law "approximating" the EU rules at an Oct. 15 meeting, Altafaj said. By an "act of the pope" the law will become applicable to "the institutions of the Holy See, including the Institute for Religious Works," as the Vatican Bank is called, Altafaj said Tuesday. The information was confirmed Friday by a high-ranking Vatican official, who declined to be identified, citing Vatican policy.

After scandals that included IOR involvement in the fraudulent bankruptcy of Banco Ambrosiano in 1982, the Vatican is seeking to embrace financial openness after a push by the Group of 20 nations for greater transparency in the wake of the economic crisis.

The Vatican's efforts came under scrutiny last month when Italian prosecutors seized $32 million from a Rome bank account registered to the IOR and opened an investigation into the Vatican Bank and its top two executives for alleged violations of money-laundering laws.

Altafaj's comments come after Italian media, including the newspaper Libero, had said the Vatican may not respect the Dec. 31 deadline to implement the EU legislation. Not complying with the deadline could nullify the monetary accord with the commission and lead to action by the European Court of Justice. The accord also sets rules for the Vatican, which uses the European single currency, on the issuance of euro coins.

"The IOR has long acted as an offshore bank mostly for Italian businessmen and politicians close to the Roman Curia," the Vatican's governing body, Gianluigi Nuzzi, author of a book about the IOR, said by phone. "Maybe that's starting to change."

The Vatican agreed on Oct. 15 to set up a special authority as of Jan. 1 to implement the new financial legislation "with the right to control the institutions of both the Vatican and the Holy See," Altafaj said. The Vatican is a sovereign city-state outside EU jurisdiction, though surrounded by Italian territory. The Holy See refers to the institutions, many located within Vatican City, that manage the Roman Catholic Church's global affairs.

Rome prosecutors last month opened a probe into whether the Vatican Bank violated money-laundering laws by omitting information in wire-transfer requests from an IOR account at Credito Artigiano SpA. The case stems from a misunderstanding with the Italian bank, the Vatican said on Sept. 21. Chairman Ettore Gotti Tedeschi, who joined the IOR last year, and Director General Paolo Cipriani are also being probed. The Vatican has said it has "full confidence" in them.

Under Gotti Tedeschi, 65, who also teaches ethics in finance at Milan's Catholic University, the Holy See has sought to improve the IOR's image after scandals that included the $1.3 billion collapse of partly Vatican-owned Banco Ambrosiano, once Italy's largest private bank. Its former Chairman Roberto Calvi, dubbed "God's banker," was found hanged under London's Blackfriars Bridge in June 1982.

worship." However, he said the decision about trick-or-treating on Sunday is a parental decision and not a church one.

Price said he believes trick-or-treating and other Halloween activities can teach important decision-making lessons.

"It encourages them to use sound judgement, to be safe," he said. "The only problem I have is the sometimes inappropriate behavior that goes on ... there's the temptation to dress inappropriately, especially for girls, and for boys to smash pumpkins."

While dressed in costumes and begging for treats instead of tricks, kids can still represent Christ, Price said.

Seles echoed the same sentiments, saying that as long as kids are safe, she thinks it's fine for kids to trick or treat on Sunday.

"I don't like the gore and the violence that is part of our culture in general," she said of Halloween.

"I don't think those are good things. ... Evil can have no real power over us unless we allow it. Halloween can be the same way. If it provides little kids to deal with scary things, in a safe environment, it's a healthy part of maturation. A way to laugh and deal with our fears — that's not a bad thing."

Police say gunman surrenders at Nevada Walmart

By Martin Griffithh
Associated Press

RENO, Nev. — A gunman who police said was about to be fired surrendered Friday after shooting three co-workers at a Walmart store in Nevada in a possible retaliation attack, authorities said.

The peaceful surrender capped a six-hour standoff during which police negotiators said they spoke by telephone with 45-year-old John Dennis Gillane as he was holed up in an office in the store.

Gillane was taken into custody and will be charged with three counts of attempted murder, Reno police Lt. Mohammad Rafaqat said.

No shots were fired after the three male victims, including a manager, were wounded shortly after 8:30 a.m., police said.

"I'm very happy he is out and the situation didn't escalate," Rafaqat said. "We convinced him the best move was to surrender."

Rafaqat did not know how many shots were fired or whether anything was said at the time of the shootings.

"Today was going to be the day he was going to address his employment situation," he said.

Police had not established a motive for the shooting but suspect it was related to the termination, Reno Deputy Police Chief Mike Whan said.

"He's not admitting that right now, but we can assume that," Whan said.

Rafaqat said investigators had not determined if the manager who was shot was Gillane's supervisor. The shootings apparently took place in rapid succession near a management office, he added.

ASWAT team entered the store more than three hours before the surrender of Gillane, who police believe had a handgun.

One victim was treated and released, Rafaqat said. Another was in critical but stable condition, and the third was in serious condition.

Montana plans to capture 500 elk for disease testing

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP) — Montana wildlife officials plan to capture 500 female elk over the next five years to track the spread of a disease that can threaten cattle.

The study is scheduled to begin this winter and will target brucellosis, which causes some animals to abort their young.

The disease is confined in the United States to the Yellowstone region of Montana, Idaho and Wyoming. Periodic infections over the last decade have prompted federal restrictions on the three states' interstate beef trade.

The latest infection was announced this week in Wyoming, where three cattle from a Park County herd tested positive in a preliminary test.

Today is Saturday, Oct. 30, the 303rd day of 2010. There are 62 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On Oct. 30, 1938, the radio play "The War of the Worlds," starring Orson Welles, aired on CBS. (The live drama, which employed fake breaking news reports, panicked some listeners who thought the portrayal of a Martian invasion was real.)

HISTORY

On this date:

In 1735, the second president of the United States, John Adams, was born in Braintree, Mass.

In 1885, poet Ezra Pound was born in Hailey, Idaho.

In 1893, the U.S. Senate gave final congressional approval to repealing the Sherman Silver Purchase Act of 1890.

In 1944, the Martha Graham ballet "Appalachian Spring," with music by Aaron Copland, premiered at the Library of Congress in Washington, D.C., with Graham in a leading role.

In 1945, the U.S. government announced the end of shoe rationing, effective at midnight.

In 1961, the Soviet Union tested a hydrogen bomb, the "Tsar Bomba," with a force estimated at about 50 megatons. The Soviet Party Congress unanimously approved a resolution ordering the removal of Josef Stalin's body from Lenin's tomb.

In 1974, Muhammad Ali knocked out George Foreman in the eighth round of a 15-round bout in Kinshasa, Zaire, known as the "Rumble in the Jungle" to regain his world heavyweight title.

In 1979, President Jimmy Carter announced his choice of federal appeals judge Shirley Hufstедler to head the newly created Department of Education.

In 1984, police in Poland found the body of kidnapped pro-Solidarity priest Father Jerzy Popieluszko, whose death was blamed on security officers.

In 1985, schoolteacher-astronaut Christa McAuliffe witnessed the launch of the space shuttle Challenger, the same craft that carried her and six other crew members to their deaths in Jan. 1986.

Ten years ago: Comedian, television host, author and composer Steve Allen died in Encino, Calif. at age 78.

Five years ago: The body of Rosa Parks arrived at the U.S. Capitol, where the civil rights pioneer became the first woman to lie in honor in the Rotunda; President George W. Bush and congressional leaders paused to lay wreaths by her casket. Baseball Hall of Fame catcher and manager Al Lopez died in Tampa, Fla. at age 97.

One year ago: A Coast Guard C-130 plane and a Marine Cobra helicopter collided off the Southern California coast, killing seven Coast Guard members and two Marines. A BRAND NEW WAY TO SEARCH FOR YOUR NEW HOME

IF OCTOBER 30 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: During the next six months, you will very likely be more interested in the internal, spiritual life rather than the material world. You might feel guilty about this and wish to show off as an expert in business or finance in January, but it will not be in your best interest to do so. Because you are sympathetic toward those in need and are more romantic than usual, you could fall prey to someone or something unworthy of your attentions in February. If you are single and looking for a special someone, ask for a friend's advice before acting — and wait until May or June to make a firm commitment with money or love.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Reassure the people closest to you. Don't let a few doubts or worries cloud your judgment. Your ability to make money is somewhat impaired so this isn't an optimum time to turn the roulette wheel.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Pretend you are Sherlock Holmes. Things that go bump in the night aren't so baffling after a little sleuthing. One of the visitors at your door may be a very special someone with a unique treat in mind.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Don't beat your head against a brick wall. You can only do so much in a small amount of time. Energy levels will bounce back in just another day or so. Concentrate on being a stickler for accuracy.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Mind your own business, not anyone else's. You may end up as the odd man — or woman — out unless you keep your wits about you. Avoid being overly inquisitive or sniffing around in places you shouldn't.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Don't leave the door wide open to unpleasant speculation. You could become frustrated if you try to persuade someone to follow your lead. Take it easy; ignore an itch to take unnecessary chances.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Listen to the purrs of pleasure as you parade your accomplishments. You may need to pet a few black cats that cross your path. But no one can take away your joy in doing what makes you happy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your mother probably said not to take candy from strangers — but it is a tough rule to follow this time of the year. Someone may share some sweet caresses with you instead of candy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Avoid sending mixed signals. There is a tendency to adopt a serious stance when playfulness is in order and vice versa. Someone who seems to want sympathy might not appreciate your helpfulness.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Everybody needs somebody sometime. Whether you are testing out the treats for the kids, bobbing for apples at a party or just shopping at the mall, you need a congenial companion by your side.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You can't please all of the people all of the time. You might not be on the same wavelength as others. This isn't a good time to push business agendas, to invest or to pursue your social ambitions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Take notes. Jot down any ideas that resonate with your plans. People you mingle with under these stars might be seeking your friendship due to self-interest. Hold off on starting new ventures.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): There are no second acts in life. You can't exit stage right and bow out of responsibilities because you might get your hands dirty or it does not meet your aesthetic standards. Make the best of it.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 12-year-old girl who is not happy with who I am. When I was younger I always imagined what I'd be like when I was older — and this is not who I want to be. I am the girl everyone wants to date. I have lost people close to me lately and made mistakes I wish I could take back. I love God and the fact that He gave me life, but I don't like myself. People treat me like I have no feelings sometimes, and I'm tired of drama that isn't worth my time. I want to change who I am to who I really want to be.

Do you have any tips on how to make myself the person I want to be, and not the person everyone else wants?
— WHO AM I?
VALRICO, FLA.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR WHO AM I?: You are an intelligent young lady who has recognized that she must make changes if she wants to achieve her goals. Good for you.

At 12, you're not frozen into any role. There is time to change your image. While it may be flattering to be someone "everyone wants to date," you are not obligated to date anyone. Concentrate on improving your grades, becoming active in sports, developing your interests and a stronger relationship with your church. If you do, you will form different kinds of relationships that will enable you to become the person you want to be. I have no doubt that you'll accomplish whatever you set your mind to because you have already started.

DEAR ABBY: I am a friendly, 23-year-old woman who likes to make new friends all the time. Recently, though, I have had a few "bumps" and I'm not sure if I may be doing something wrong. I tried to befriend one girl who was an acquaintance from high school. I found her on Facebook and sent her a message. She replied that she was glad for the surprise e-mail. I sent her a reply, but she never returned one. I also tried to add her as a friend, but she declined.

Then there's the girl who is the sister of one of my male friends. I found her on Facebook, too, and sent her an e-mail. It was the same story. I got a friendly reply — then nothing.

I met the third girl online at a different friend-type site. She said she was "so glad I messaged her" and the same scenario repeated. I'm confused. Am I making some mistake or just picking the wrong people to befriend?
— EVERYONE'S PAL
EUGENE, ORE.

DEAR PAL: What matters in life isn't the number of friends one has, but the quality of the friendship. Friendship does not usually happen spontaneously, it takes time and common interests among acquaintances to build.

Instead of trying to make friends all the time, concentrate on trying to nurture relationships more slowly on common interest sites. The approach you have chosen may strike others as a little too aggressive. Also, stop depending on online sites and venture into the real world, too.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have a minor disagreement about the definition of a bachelor. The dictionary defines a bachelor as "an unmarried man." My husband thinks the definition should include "men who have never been married, widowed or divorced."

I think a bachelor is an unmarried man, regardless of the reason he's currently unmarried. He could be divorced or widowed and be a bachelor, as long as his current status is without a companion. What do you say?
— AN INQUIRING COUPLE IN GEORGIA

DEAR COUPLE: I'm inclined to side with your husband on this one. A man who has been divorced is a divorced man; a man who has lost his wife is a widower; and a man who has never been to the altar by the age of 50 is not only a bachelor — but a confirmed bachelor.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

*"Go where glory waits thee,
But, while fame elates thee,
Oh! still remember me."*

— Thomas Moore

At the table, North began by using the Jacoby two-no-trump convention to set hearts as trump. After using Blackwood, North was happy to gamble on a grand slam that he knew would depend, at worst, on a 50-50 club finesse.

Declarer took the trump lead, eventually tested spades, then fell back on the club finesse, seeing nothing better. Down one, and an opportunity wasted. Let's revisit the hand and try again.

Best is to win the trump lead with the ace. Next comes the diamond ace followed by a diamond ruffed high. South can lead the heart 10 to the king and ruff a second diamond high. South next leads a heart to dummy's nine, which draws the last trump, then cashes the fourth trump winner while throwing a club from his hand. The diamond king reduces everyone to five cards.

Dummy has three spades and two clubs, South has four spades and one club — but what about East? He must keep his four spades, and so must try to bare his club king as smoothly as possible. Declarer cashes the three top spades, finding East with the length, at which point he knows East started with four red cards only, and four spades. Thus he has five clubs to his partner's three and so is far more likely than West to have begun with the club king.

Additionally, what expert would take a finesse when he can play for a squeeze? Declarer plays a club to dummy's ace. Result: happiness!

ANSWER: Your partner has made a penalty double and you have no reason to overrule him. He won't always produce four good trumps, but you can expect him to have either trump length or a hand unsuitable for playing hearts. In either eventuality you surely want to defend, so pass.
