A GIFT FROM BELOW: Rupert couple discovers buried silver

RUPERT — A Rupert couple's discovery of a time capsule in their yard came with a silver lining worth about $46,000.

James and Brytten Sievers, who have lived in their home for five years, uncovered a plastic tube filled with 18 silver bars as they dug out an egress window well while recently performing home renovations.

Brytten, who had won the couple's argument of where to place the window, said that if the tube had been 6 inches further from their home, they never would have found it.

"When I got down about 4 feet my shovel hit something that went 'crunch,'" said James, who was digging the hole on Oct. 29 because he had been unable to reach the worker he'd planned to hire for the task.

As James began removing the dirt from around the tube he realized that it wasn't a clean-out

CHOKED BY CONSTRUCTION

ASHLEY SMITH/Times-News

Keith Morgan, manager at Zulu Bagels and Java Jungle on Washington Street North in Twin Falls, stands near the entrance to the business that was blocked due to construction on Friday. Morgan estimates that the ongoing roadwork has contributed to a 40 to 50 percent loss in business.

Bagel store manager says business halved by Washington project

By Nick Coltrain
Times-News writer

Sitting at a table rumbling from the outside roadwork, Zulu Bagels store manager Keith Morgan recounted one of the problems brought on by the Washington Street North construction.

How, he asked, do you help a new father, one not wanting to pass hospital bills to others, get more hours at a customer-deprived store?

About five months ago, the employee's child was born through cesarean section, adding bills just when his hours were being cut. Morgan said he more than halved his employees' hours to survive the choke of construction on his store. Luckily, he could promote the new dad to assistant manager, upping his hours.

"He's a prideful guy and he's not going to expect taxpayers to go and pay for it," Morgan said, explaining part of why he made

Long Butte Fire area fenced off for reseeding

By Laura Lundquist
Times-News writer

Along with planting sage and grasses in the area burned by the Long Butte Fire, the U.S. Bureau of Land Management will plant a few new fence posts.

But while the grasses will hopefully be permanent, the fences will fade.

The BLM recently began stringing more than 40 miles of barbed wire around badly scorched areas of the fire, after drill seeding those areas with native plants. BLM spokeswoman Heather Tiel-Nelson said the fences block some popular dirt roads and trails, so outdoorsmen should look out for them. The public is asked not to disturb enclosed areas but if necessary, gates still allow passage through.

The Long Butte Fire burned more than 250,000 acres of BLM land in August, but fires don't burn uniformly. BLM managers are allowing slightly tinged areas to recover naturally, but badly burned regions need a little human help.

Tiel-Nelson said drill seeding of about 40,000 acres should be done by Dec. 1. Planes will be in the air until January, spreading Wyoming big sagebrush seed over half of the burned acreage.

The fences will remain in place until biologists determine the vegetation is established, which can sometimes take a year or two, Tiel-Nelson said.

A number of grazing allotments were affected by the fire, so the enclosures should keep returning livestock out of recovering areas. The Saylor Creek Wild Horse Herd is still stabled in Boise, but once a portion of the herd returns, it'll also need to be kept out.

"We ask that the public please respect our efforts to return this area to its pre-fire state," Tiel-Nelson said.

People with questions about the fences should contact Jarbridge Outdoor Recreation Planner Max Yingst at 736-2362.

Next step uncertain for Jerome Co.'s proposed jail

By Bradley Guire
Times-News writer

Where does Jerome County go from here? Or, more specifically, where do the inmates go?

County officials were handed a third defeat on proposed jail funding this week, leaving them with few options other than budgeting enough money to maintain the current, 35-year-old facility. None of the commissioners have spoken of pursuing a fourth public election, especially since the latest vote failed by the widest margin — the county needed a 66.6 percent supermajority to support the measure but only received 59.4 percent on Tuesday.

However, the option remains of seeking judicial confirmation, in which commissioners would ask a district judge for permission to enter into long-term debt to build the new facility. Opinions on doing so are mixed among officials.

"Undoubtedly, we'll discuss it," said Jerome County Commission Chairwoman Cathy Roemer, "but from my point of view, it's not something I will rush to."

Roemer added that she doesn't want to give voters the idea that commissioners will override public opinion.

Commissioner Joe Davidson said that the commissioners have not met since the election. However, he'll likely have little impact in this matter as his term ends in January, when Commissioner-elect Roger Morley takes office. Neither Morley nor Commissioner Charlie Howell could be reached for comment on Friday.

Sheriff Doug McFall said he believes that seeking judicial confirmation for the $13 million facility should be considered because all three elections — in November 2009, May 2010 and Tuesday — saw a majority of voters favor funding the new jail, just not the required supermajority.

"The thing I think to guide us ethically is that in every vote, we've received the majority," McFall said. "They want a new jail."

McFall noted that he doesn't have the authority to ask for the judicial confirmation; only the commissioners do.

For now, the sheriff said that he and his staff will do their best within their means to keep the 30-bed jail afloat and keep themselves away from closure or civil lawsuits.

Volunteers expect to deliver to 600 homes

By Laurie Welch

Times-News writer

Laurie Welch/Times-News

Mini-Cassia Christmas Council volunteers Mary Bellem, right, Barbara Mai and Verlee Frost sort bags of toys on Friday. The nonprofit will begin accepting applications for its Christmas gift boxes on Nov. 13.

BURLEY — The Mini-Cassia Christmas Council is preparing to assemble nearly 600 gift boxes for underprivileged families this year.

Last year the council delivered 578 boxes, each of which contained food and meat certificates, along with five gift items for each family member.

“We’re gearing up for a little more this year,” said longtime volunteer Verlee Frost. “There is a great need in this community.”

The nonprofit charity founded in 1979 helped 35 families in its first year, and every gift was purchased at yard sales. Today, most of the items they deliver are new.

“People like to be able to help when there is a need locally,” said Dolly Freiburger, who has helped steer the council for years alongside Frost.

Frost said dozens of individuals and groups donate cash, gifts and their time each year. Last year the council donated $10,000 in meat certificates.

Freiburger said applicants can list the things they would like or need on the application, but often the items asked for bring the volunteers to tears.

“A lot of time on the applications all people will ask for is food and clothing,” Freiburger said.

Volunteer Mary Young said one year a teenage boy asked only for a doll for his little sister, who had never had one.

Frost said canned food donations are down this year by about 700 cans and the council especially needs canned meat and peanut butter. Other needed items include items for men and teen boys, as well as toys, quilts and blankets. Cash donations are also helpful because the council can purchase what is needed.

Freiburger said it’s often hard for people to admit they need a little help, and it’s common for someone who has received help from the council one year to return in subsequent years to donate or volunteer.

“This community is just unbelievable,” Frost said.

Silver

A neighbor who had previously uncovered 100 pounds of lead buried in his yard watched on, expecting that the Sievers had unearthed a similar find.

James unscrewed the tube's lid and began pulling out 100-ounce bars of .999 pure Johnson-Matthey silver wrapped in newspaper.

After James pulled out the third bar, he said his neighbor left, muttering that he hadn't seen anything and didn't know anything.

Brytten looked up the cost of one of the bars — about $2,600.

“I was out there doing the chicken dance in my yard,” James said.

But he said his glee was soon tempered by another thought — who had buried the silver?

A 1982 date was stamped on the time capsule and the newspapers inside bore the same year. A little detective work by the Sievers soon revealed that Clint Nelson, who now lives in Utah, had built the home and occupied it in 1982.

James placed a call to Nelson and told him that he now lives in his old house.

“I said, ‘I found something in the backyard when I was digging around and I think it’s yours,’ ” James said.

When Nelson realized that the couple planned to return the bars to him, he told them they had restored his faith in humanity and they didn't owe him anything. He said if he didn't hear anything back from them once they hung up, he'd know they'd decided to keep it.

“So I'm doing the chicken dance again,” James said.

“But 30 minutes later I knew what I wanted to do. I wanted to split it with him.”

That Sunday, the Sievers packed up all the silver — just in case Nelson changed his mind about wanting it all back — and drove to Utah to see him.

“What a decision to be faced with,” James said. “I could have just kept my mouth shut.”

The Sievers ended up giving Nelson half the silver.

Brytten said Nelson assured them there is no more buried treasure in their yard. And their portion has been tucked away in a safety-deposit box where they plan to keep it in the hopes that silver prices will continue to rise.

“Clint was a businessman and he said someone had paid him in silver. Apparently the bottom had fallen out of silver and he buried it because he was tired of looking at it,” James said.

“He said at one time there was five tubes buried back there and that one just got left behind.”

James added that if they eventually find out the silver was stolen and the FBI comes knocking, at least he and his wife have a cool story to tell.

Choked

sure his employee got the promotion. “But I’ve had a couple of employees leave, too, because they just weren’t getting enough hours to make ends meet. We have a bunch of employees so to get them all on their schedule I’ve had to chop up all their hours.”

Morgan said the bagel shop has lost about half its business since construction began, going from 500-hour weeks split among the employees to weeks with less than half the hours, and to phone calls from customers asking how to navigate the construction zone to the coffee shop (Answer: west on Filer Avenue, north on Bolton Street, east on Wirsching Avenue).

The challenge won't end soon for the shop. The work on Washington Street North between Filer Avenue and Pole Line Road that began in June likely won't finish until next summer.

DEBCO Construction, the contractor on the federally funded $6.5 million project, has a hard deadline of June 2011 for the road work and a contractually obligated hiatus between Dec. 1 and March 1, said Idaho Transportation Department spokesman Nathan Jerke. DEBCO has also had its share of challenges along the way.

For example, the job included installing a new stormwater drain system. A kink arose when what was supposed to be a 36-inch pipe DEBCO could connect to ended up being an 18-inch pipe, much too small to handle any major storms, Jerke said. That delay, caused by an error in city of Twin Falls blueprints, is one of many he said can snowball and cause a delay in a project — it already caused DEBCO to miss a start-of-the-school-year deadline for that section.

Morgan's store has tried to make the best of the situation. The shop has posted signs directing traffic toward it — including one modeled heavily after a detour sign, right down to the color — but they were all taken down. To further complicate things, the main entrance periodically goes from concealed by construction to cut off by it.

When construction moves business accesses, Jerke said ITD usually posts signs signaling as much. He said he'd look into having it done for Zulu and other businesses on Washington.

Morgan expects the store to be busier than ever when the work is done and Washington becomes a wider thoroughfare. But with more than half a year left on the project, it's still a question whether Zulu's Washington location will survive.

“If it keeps on like this, we won't be able to,” Morgan said, as paving crews blocked the main entrance to his store.

“Unless I'm the only employee, of course.”

Nick Coltrain may be reached at ncoltrain@mag-icvalley.com or 735-3220.

WASHINGTON STREET SCHEDULE

- Paving is expected to continue off and on for about three weeks.
- Southbound lanes should be open by Dec. 1, and will be split for north- and southbound traffic until March 1.
- The project is scheduled to be completely finished by June 2011.

Buhl man sentenced to 5 years for solicitation

Times-News

A Buhl man will serve five years in state prison for attempting to solicit money from a Twin Falls attorney in exchange for providing false testimony in a criminal case.

Robert L. Barton Jr., 40, was sentenced Monday to five years for criminal solicitation, to be served consecutively with his current prison sentence. A jury convicted him in late August.

On Aug. 11, 2009, Barton approached Twin Falls attorney Lynn Dunlap about changing his testimony by agreeing to commit perjury in exchange for $15,000. Dunlap contacted the Twin Falls County Prosecutor's Office and the Attorney General's Office to report the solicitation.

The Attorney General's Special Prosecutions Unit prosecuted the case at the request of County Prosecutor Grant Loeb. Deputy Attorney General Chris Topmiller prosecuted the case.

Hill jailed again on $1 million bond

By Bradley Guire
Times-News writer

Alleged meth trafficker Jeremy Todd Hill is back in prison on new charges.

This time, the 33-year-old is charged with possession of a controlled substance, battery and unlawful entry after being found in a Filer woman's home on Wednesday. Hill has three pending criminal cases against him in Twin Falls County: one for the controlled substance charge, one for battery and unlawful entry and an August case for trafficking methamphetamine. He also has a probation violation hearing in Jerome County and a sentencing in Ada County, both set for later this month.

Most recently, Hill was found hiding out at the house of Crystal Buhler. Filer Police Officer Jason Vanleeuwen reported that he found Hill while doing a welfare check on Buhler's Filer residence. While checking her home, he noticed one locked door. Buhler unlocked the door to find Hill in the room with the lights off, sitting in a chair in front of a computer desk.

Vanleeuwen reported that he also found a glass plate with a small amount of "crystal like substance" on the desk. The officer also found two glass pipes.

When confronted, Hill allegedly provided a false first name, but with the help of the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office, Vanleeuwen was able to determine Hill's true identity and three warrants for his arrest — two from Twin Falls County and one from Jerome County.

When later interviewed,

Hill

Buhler claimed that she had met Hill only once, despite previously stating that she did not know him.

Hill's bond was set at $1 million, and he faces a Nov. 12 preliminary hearing.

In the battery and unlawful entry case, Hill is accused of arriving at a man's house with a partner on Sept. 12 in an attempt to collect money for a third party.

The alleged victim, Mickey McConnell of Twin Falls, told police that when he denied owing anyone money, Hill and the unidentified partner allegedly entered the house by force, threw him on the sofa and punched him above the right eye. McConnell fought back, and Hill and his partner fled the scene.

Hill's bond in that case was set at $1,000. He pleaded not guilty and is slated for a Dec. 14 pretrial.

In the meth trafficking case, Hill skipped an Aug. 16 preliminary hearing, leading Judge Roger Harris to issue a $100,000 bench warrant. According to police, Hill was allegedly found sleeping in a car while parked in a residential driveway in Filer. When sheriff's deputies responded, they reportedly found more than 80 grams of meth. Hill was arrested on a trafficking charge but bonded out within a week.

His preliminary hearing is now reset for Nov. 12.

On Nov. 15, Hill is scheduled for a probation violation hearing in Jerome County 5th District Court. He was convicted of possession of a controlled substance in May, with the Twin Falls County drug trafficking charge the basis for the violation.

Last but not least, Hill faces sentencing on Nov. 22 in Ada County 4th District Court. He pleaded guilty to leaving the scene of an accident, possession of a controlled substance, possession of paraphernalia and driving without privileges in September. These charges stemmed from a hit-and-run in which he struck another vehicle on Interstate 84 in April. He wrecked while on his way to court to appear for other possession charges, for which he was also found guilty.

Hill's past criminal history includes a January conviction for possession of a controlled substance in Gooding County and a 1995 conviction of unlawful entry in Blaine County.

Red Cross faces shortage of volunteers in Idaho

By Amy Huddleston
Times-News writer

The services of the American Red Cross have changed since Clara Barton founded it in 1881.

But the heart of the organization still beats with the same desire to respond to disasters, educate citizens about health and safety, and provide blood services.

It's a tall order for the paid staff and volunteers who work in Idaho — enough that the group's south-central Idaho manager would like some more help.

Idaho's 44 counties are served by 13 staff members and about 340 volunteers, according to CEO Sue Robinson.

Robinson started as the CEO two years ago and added two new positions for the Greater Idaho Chapter, which also extends into three counties in Oregon and Washington and serves about 1.6 million people.

"Volunteers lead this organization — around 94 percent of our work force is volunteer," Robinson said.

Red Cross volunteers serve as first responders in emergencies and as health and safety instructors, teaching CPR classes, child-care classes and wilderness survival.

Jennifer Egbert, district manager for south-central Idaho, said she has about six to eight consistent volunteers for the eight-county south-central Idaho region.

"We would love to have five to six volunteers in each county, so that would be around 50 people for the area," Egbert said.

While she said her area doesn't handle many disasters, the Red Cross also responds to single-family fires and she would like to offer health and safety classes at her office at 253 N. Fourth Ave. in Twin Falls. She currently doesn't have any instructors available to teach such classes.

Volunteers are asked to fill out an application and go through a background check before training is provided. Volunteers meet once a month to stay updated and Egbert said the time commitment is around five hours a month, depending on each volunteer's area of interest.

Robinson said the Red Cross is often an afterthought until a large disaster occurs, like Hurricane Katrina or January's earthquake in Haiti.

"We want people to know that we are there before an emergency happens to better prepare them," Robinson said.

T.F. schools send wrong message by hiring administrator

JEERS: To the Twin Falls School District, for spending $30,170 to hire retired administrator Dale Thornsberry as a part-time activities director at Canyon Ridge High School. Thornsberry will perform a combination of vice principal and athletic director duties at the 1,100-student, two-year-old school. Canyon Ridge was half of an administrative position shorter than Twin Falls High School without the hire, Superintendent Wiley Dobbs said. Thornsberry’s salary will be paid from the emergency levy that the district qualified for because of increased attendance this school year, but wherever the money comes from district administrators are missing the point. Every teacher in the Twin Falls school system had his or her pay slashed this year as a result of the state budget crisis, and the district is deferring purchases and making other cuts. Surely there would have been a way to shift around administrative duties at Canyon Ridge and the rest of the district to get the activities director’s job done without spending $30,000 to do it. The hire sends the wrong message to teachers, students and parents during a difficult time for education. CHEERS: To 16 temporary workers at the Idaho State Tax Commission, for bringing in more than $5.5 million in unpaid taxes over a three-month period at a cost of just $157,902. And if you add in the permanent staff, the commission collected $50.2 million from July through September at a cost of $3.72 million. Their experience lends credence to Democratic gubernatorial candidate Keith Allred’s contention during the just-ended campaign that Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter missed out on $100 million over the past four years by not hiring more tax auditors. That extra revenue would have come in handy in staving off cuts in education, Health and Welfare and corrections during the Great Recession. The Legislature’s Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee later this month will consider requesting funding to make the temporary jobs at the tax commission permanent. It should jump at the chance.

JEERS: To the Twin Falls City Council, for gutting a provision in a proposed bicycle safety ordinance requiring helmets for people riding within city limits. The council voted 6-1 earlier this week, with Councilman Greg Lanting dissenting, to remove the helmet clause after some residents argued it impinged on their freedom of choice. Lanting supported requiring people under the age of 16 to wear a helmet. “We require an awful lot of people under 16 because they aren’t old enough to make that decision for themselves,” he said. “We’re helping the parents, if the parents want the helmet on ... If the kid takes it off later, then the police help them to enforce (their rule).” The dirty little secret of bicycle and motorcycle head injuries is that the taxpayers — one way or another — end up paying for many of them. “Only slightly more than half of motorcycle crash victims have private health insurance coverage,” according to a 2002 report by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. “For patients without private insurance, a majority of medical costs are paid by the government.” And even for folks who are insured, brain injuries can soon max out lifetime coverage limits. The individual cost of a severe head injury is about $3 million, a moderate injury is $941,000, and a mild injury is $85,000. According to the Bicycle Helmet Safety Institute, helmets prevent 49 percent to 56 percent of fatal head injuries and 65 percent of other head injuries. The law requires seat belts; it ought to require bike helmets too.

Child evaluators must meet higher standards

Children undergo incredible stress during a child custody case. This stress is intensified by a child custody evaluation. Children’s fate is often put into the hands of court-appointed child custody evaluators. The parents, society, children and, hopefully, even judges expect and anticipate that these evaluators will use correct procedures and methods. These stakeholders, especially the children, deserve evidence that meets the standard of “scientific” expert testimony. Questions should be asked by the parents, judges, other professionals and even the community regarding the validity of some evidence provided by court-appointed evaluators. Consider these questions: Can the evaluator’s evidence be tested? Has it or will it ever be subjected to peer review? Has the evaluator informed the court the potential rate of error contained in an evaluation? Has the evidence been obtained through methods accepted by the scientific community? Finally, does the evaluator’s evaluation reflect an examiner that maintained a neutral, objective attitude toward all litigants?

If few or none of these criteria have been met, then the “expert” evidence is little more than subjective, individual speculation and personal biases. Judges and attorneys rely on the “evidence” and “finding” of court-appointed child-custody evaluators. We must insist that expert testimony meet legal standards of admissibility. Because children’s lives are touched by these people, we need to scrutinize the reliability of their reports and demand that they meet both ethical and professional standards. LOUISE PARKER

Kids with jailed parent need you for holidays

Now that Thanksgiving and the holiday season is approaching, one gift that keeps on giving is a gift of time for a child with a parent in prison.

America’s most at-risk children are children who have a parent under some form of state or federal incarceration. Without effective intervention, many of these children may follow their parents’ footsteps into jail or prison. The CSI AMACHI Mentoring Children of Prisoners Program was developed to provide a different path — by establishing the presence of loving, caring, positive adults in their lives. CSI AMACHI Mentoring is more than a program. It is a passionate response to the needs of these children. These children are invisible to most of us. Many programs exist to help prisoners but few programs to address the specific needs of the “invisible” children. The CSI AMACHI program is designed to address the needs of these children and alter the potential direction of their lives. We know research indicates little hope for many children of parents who have been in prison. All of this can be changed by a loving, caring adult spending a minimum of four hours each month for one year with such a child. We are seeking volunteers interested not only mentoring children but also in assisting in program operation. This holiday season would be an excellent time to begin a relationship with a child that could last a lifetime or to volunteer time to assist in general program operation or both. We are not looking for miracle workers; we are seeking concerned, dedicated adults willing to volunteer in whatever capacity to better the lives of these children. Please call 736-2122, ext. 2394, and ask for Ken or email me at csi.amachimentoring@yahoo.com or kwhiting@00a.csi.edu. KEN WHITING

Dems pick lousy time for a blowout

In some ways, the post-Nov. 2 political situation is worse for Democrats than it may appear. I am referring not just to the colossal losses they experienced in state legislatures — a 650-plus seat swing in favor of the GOP that has left Democrats in control of the fewest number of state legislatures since 1928.

Charles Lane

The resulting pro-GOP gerrymandering may lastingly blunt the demographic advantage Democrats could otherwise expect to reap from population trends such as the growth of Hispanic America. No, what’s really bad for President Obama and his party is the likely impact of the 2010 Census and ensuing House of Representatives reapportionment. We can talk all day about whether a majority of voters would support Obama for reelection, but what really counts in presidential elections is the electoral college. Each state’s electoral vote equals its number of representatives in the House plus two for its Senate delegation. As the U.S. population continues to flow south and west, reapportionment will probably add House seats in red states and subtract them in blue states. Thus, the census looks like a setback for Democratic chances to win the 270 electoral votes necessary to become president. Texas, which has voted Republican in nine of the past 10 elections, will gain four electoral votes, according to projections from preliminary census data by Polidata.com. Other gainers — one vote each — include Arizona, Florida, Georgia, Nevada, South Carolina and Utah. All of these states have voted for the GOP candidate in at least seven of the past 10 elections. To be sure, Florida and Nevada are not a lock. Obama carried both in 2008. But the only reliably blue state that looks likely to gain an electoral vote is Washington, which backed the Democrat in six of the past 10 elections. Only one reliably red state — Louisiana — is losing an electoral vote. Ohio, the perennial swing state — it backed the GOP nominee in six of the past 10 presidential elections — is losing two. Meanwhile, eight states that usually go blue in presidential elections — Illinois, Iowa, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania and Minnesota — are projected to lose one electoral vote each. Bottom line? Removing Ohio, Florida and Nevada from the analysis because they are too unpredictable, it looks like Republicans can count on an additional seven electoral votes (Arizona, Georgia, South Carolina, Utah and four in Texas, minus one vote in Louisiana) in 2012, while the Democrats can count on seven fewer (losses in Illinois, Iowa, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania and Minnesota, offset by a gain in Washington). Put another way, consider the 22 states that voted for John McCain as the GOP base in the 2012 presidential election. That base is about to grow from 173 electoral votes to 180. And if Republicans hold it, they could get to 271 by carrying just six more states — Florida, Ohio, North Carolina, Indiana, Virginia and Nevada — each of which has voted GOP in a majority of the past 10 elections. As it happens, all six of these states, except for North Carolina, will have Republican governors next year, and all six, except for Nevada, will have Republican state legislatures. Sounds eminently doable. Charles Lane is a member of The Washington Post’s editorial page staff.

GOP lawmaker files ethics complaint against Hart

BOISE (AP) — A GOP lawmaker from northern Idaho has filed a new ethics complaint against Rep. Phil Hart, a fellow Republican, calling his actions a “stain” on the state House and demanding he be removed from office.

Rep. Eric Anderson of Priest Lake told the Spokesman-Review he thinks Hart’s 1996 removal of state-owned timber to build his house without paying for it; claims of legislative immunity; and refusal to pay federal and state income taxes show he’s violated his oath to uphold the U.S. and state constitutions.

“The people are tired of it,” Anderson said. “I’m surrounded by Priest Lake State Park, and people are just shocked that someone could steal timber off of endowment lands and then be a legislator.”

Hart, a GOP representative from Athol who was re-elected to a fourth term Tuesday, last month paid more than $2,000 to the state after the timber issue came to light. He didn’t immediately return a phone call from The Associated Press seeking comment late Friday.

Hart was cleared of ethics violations following a separate complaint from House Democrats earlier this year.

But an ethics panel did recommend he be removed from the House’s tax policy committee, at least until he resolves his fight with the state and federal government over $500,000 in unpaid taxes. House Speaker Lawrence Denney, R-Midvale, has said he won’t make a decision on whether to remove Hart from the Revenue and Taxation Committee until later this year.

Anderson contends Denney dropped the ball.

“The speaker should have done something a long time ago,” Anderson said.

Hart is a tax protester, alleging the federal income tax violates the U.S.

Hart

Constitution.

In an appeal of his state tax case filed earlier this week, he also contends the state’s income tax is out of line with the state’s Constitution because it “as a graduated tax, fails the uniformity requirement.”

And Hart last month sent a check for $2,450 to the state after The Spokesman-Review, using public records, revealed he took timber from state endowment land that he used to build his house. The land is used to generate money for Idaho’s public schools.

Even after Hart’s recent payment, Idaho contends Hart owes thousands more to satisfy his debt.

Anderson says he now gets “calls all the time” from people angry about Hart’s behavior.

“It shocks people where I live,” Anderson said. “I wish I didn’t have to do this. There’s nothing comfortable about it for me. It’s about the Legislature and the House of Representatives. I think this casts a terrible shadow over all of us.”

IDAHO Poaching charge refiled against activist

KETCHUM — Prosecutors have refiled a felony elk poaching charge against an anti-wolf activist.

The charge against Anthony Mayer of Twin Falls was dismissed in Blaine County last month, though he still faced three misdemeanor counts concerning the killing of a bull elk in the fall of 2009.

During an Oct. 20 hearing, Magistrate Judge R. Ted Israel said it was clear that Mayer had killed the elk out of season. But he dismissed the felony poaching charge based on when the measurement of the elk antlers was taken.

The antlers were measured before a 60-day drying period required by the Boone and Crockett scoring system.

Blaine County Prosecutor Jim Thomas says the antlers have been remeasured and the case against Mayer will continue.

WASHINGTON Nancy Pelosi to seek minority leader post

WASHINGTON — Rejecting demands that she relinquish power after her party’s losses in the midterm elections, House Speaker Nancy Pelosi announced Friday that she will run for minority leader, potentially setting up an ideological battle inside the Democratic caucus.

“I am running for Dem leader,” Pelosi, Calif., said in a post on her Twitter account. She said her decision was in part “driven by the urgency of creating jobs” and protecting this year’s health-care and Wall Street overhauls.

Many Democrats had hoped Pelosi — a central figure in campaigns that allowed Republicans to capture at least 60 new seats and retake control of the House — would step aside. This would have cleared a path for Majority Leader Steny Hoyer, D-Md., who has support from the party’s diminished moderate-to-conservative ranks.

But Pelosi’s allies have been quietly approaching fellow Democrats, seeking support for her to continue as the party’s leader.

Officials: Saudis tipped weeks before attack

WASHINGTON — U.S. intelligence officials say a Saudi tip about a possible al-Qaida effort to bring down airplanes was relayed to U.S. authorities in early October, nearly three weeks before the group’s Yemen affiliate tried to ship mail bombs in planes to the U.S.

The Saudi intelligence tip was the first warning that helped to head off what could have been a devastating series of plane explosions. Western officials credit the Saudis with playing a crucial role in finding two mail bombs recovered last week in Dubai and Britain before they reached the U.S.

U.S. officials say the Saudi tip contained no mention of cargo planes, or any details of the plot. But they say it gave the U.S. and other Western officials enough of a warning to know what to look for. The officials spoke on condition of anonymity to discuss classified matters.

NEW YORK MSNBC suspends Olbermann for donations

NEW YORK — MSNBC has suspended prime-time host Keith Olbermann indefinitely without pay for contributing to the campaigns of three Democratic candidates this election season.

Olbermann acknowledged to NBC that he donated $2,400 apiece to the campaigns of Kentucky Senate candidate Jack Conway and Arizona Reps. Raul Grivalva and Gabrielle Giffords.

NBC News prohibits its employees from working on, or donating to, political campaigns unless a special exception is granted by the news division president — effectively a ban. Olbermann’s bosses did not find out about the donations until after they were made. The website Politico first reported the donations.

LOUISIANA Scientists find coral damage near BP well

NEW ORLEANS — For the first time, federal scientists have found damage to deep sea coral and other marine life on the ocean floor several miles from the blown-out BP well — a strong indication that damage from the spill could be significantly greater than officials had previously acknowledged.

Tests are needed to verify that the coral died from oil that spewed into the Gulf of Mexico after the Deepwater Horizon rig explosion, but the chief scientist who led the government-funded expedition said Friday he was convinced it was related.

“What we have at this point is the smoking gun,” said Charles Fisher, a biologist with Penn State University who led the expedition aboard the Ronald Brown, a National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration research vessel.

State, federal agencies oppose Montana power plant idea

Line would link up with Jerome substation

HELENA, Mont. — Government agencies and a conservation group oppose a proposal to develop a power-generating facility in the Elkhorn Mountains northwest of Townsend.

Gridflex Energy of Boise filed an application for a preliminary permit to build the plant on land transferred to the Bureau of Land Management after being purchased by The Conservation Fund.

The project would generate power to supplement wind energy to be carried on the proposed Mountain States Transmission Intertie line. NorthWestern Energy wants to build the line from a substation near Townsend to a substation near Jerome.

Gridflex proposes building two reservoirs, one with a 225-foot dam and a second with a 40-foot dam. Both reservoirs would have storage capacities just under 5,000 acre-feet.

Gridflex CEO Matthew Shapiro said the company proposes partially filling the reservoirs with water from nearby Canyon Ferry Reservoir. When power is needed, they would run water from the upper reservoir through the pump house and into the lower reservoir, and transmit the power to a proposed NorthWestern Energy substation.

The water would be pumped back into the upper reservoir at times that electricity rates are lowest, the Independent Record reports.

The Department of Fish, Wildlife and Parks, the Bureau of Land Management, the U.S. Forest Service and the Elkhorn Working Group all say the project isn’t an appropriate use of land in the Elkhorn Wildlife Management Unit.

The Elkhorn Working Group notes that the site of the proposed project was purchased for the purpose of removing the threat of development.

“The proposed project is contrary to every agency, Elkhorn Working Group and public management goal for this special area,” the group wrote in commenting on the application for a preliminary permit.

White ex-transit officer given two-year prison term in shooting of unarmed man

The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Dozens of protesters took to the streets Friday, some breaking windows and knocking down fences, after a white former transit officer was sentenced to the minimum possible prison sentence of two years for fatally shooting an unarmed black man on a California train platform.

The case against defendant Johannes Mehserle has provoked racial unrest at every turn, and police in Oakland, the scene of the killing, were on alert for more problems following a sentence that many thought was too light.

After nightfall, police in riot gear squared off with a crowd of protesters several blocks from downtown and started making arrests. Live television footage showed nearly 50 people sitting on the side of the street in handcuffs.

Earlier, Oakland Police Chief Anthony Batts said only one man had been arrested after getting in a fight with an officer and pulling the officer’s gun out of his holster. Other officers were able to subdue the man, and no one was hurt.

Mehserle’s sentence, handed down in Los Angeles, also angered the victim’s family and friends, who demanded a much harsher punishment.

Wanda Johnson, the mother of Oscar Grant, shouted, “Oh my!” when Superior Court Judge Robert Perry issued the two-year sentence. She burst out of the courtroom saying, “He got nothing! He got nothing!”

Grant’s uncle, Bobby Cephus Johnson, said outside court: “I do believe it’s a racist criminal justice system.” Still, he said the family was reacting calmly but added he could not comment for others.

Who's got your back?

My dad told me when I was growing up that over the course of my life I would have many friends. Some friends you meet and lose track of, there are friends you just hang out with, and a few friends you trust with your life - a friend that always has your back. I never thought one of those friends would be the head of a car company. Oh don't get me wrong, Alan Mulally and I don't hang out together, we don't even talk that much, but I know he's got my back because he's got the back of America.

Alan Mulally helped develop Ford's, "One Team, One Plan, One Goal" philosophy. He's serious about honoring the Ford tradition, I mean think about it, Henry Ford wasn't just the first to build a car that most Americans could afford, he literally created the middle class, almost overnight, by instituting the $5 work day. Henry had a lot of backs to cover. One of my favorite quotes of Henry's was, "Make the best quality of goods possible, at the lowest cost possible, paying the highest wages possible." Those are words Mr. Mulally lives by every day and that's why during one of the toughest times in automotive history, Ford stood strong, not taking government money when others did.

I don't think I've ever been quite so proud.

Ford is an American legend, taking care of business, the American way. Ford got back to basics, producing the most reliable cars in the world, cars that can't even be beat by Toyota or Honda. They're a leader in Hybrid technology and environmental friendly vehicles, with innovation, safety and values that the competition just can't touch.

Another one of my dad's favorite quotes by Henry Ford was "When everything seems to be going against you, remember that the airplane takes off against the wind, not with it, the only way you get better is to challenge the norm." Well Henry, there are those of us who still like to fly. When the norm nowadays is to take the easy way out, Alan Mulally and Ford chose to take the high road, with cars that have taken America through more than one tough time. I think my dad would have liked Alan Mulally because it's hard to find a friend that has your back, it's even harder to find one whose willing to do it for an entire nation.

Heyburn seeks director for urban renewal agency

By Laurie Welch
Times-News writer

HEYBURN – Heyburn officials are looking for an advisor to help guide the city’s newly formed urban renewal agency.

The city council passed an ordinance in July that allowed the council to form the agency and in September and October appointed Brent Tolman, Clayton King, Ken Luke, Ralph Williams and Dan Lloyd as committee members. Williams was appointed by the city council as chairman of the committee.

“I think we have a really good knowledgeable group of people on the committee,” said George Anderson, mayor of Heyburn.

Urban renewal agencies are funded primarily through tax-increment financing. The financing allow the agency to collect any increase in assessed property tax value after the agency is implemented. The purpose of the self-governed agencies, which are usually started by cities, is to provide assistance and incentives to businesses.

“You know in order to be competitive with other cities you have to have those kinds of tools in place,” Anderson said.

Anderson said in past couple of years several companies have expressed interest in locating in Heyburn.

“But it always depends on urban renewal,” Anderson said.

Once the agency is formed the city will step back and the agency will become its own governing entity.

The agency advisor will provide professional advice and assistance to the committee. Heyburn hasn’t established a pay range, though cost will be a factor in determining who the city picks.

In September, Region IV Development Association President Joe Herring gave the city council a briefing on how to establish the agency and said Region IV, which is a private non-profit that promotes economic growth in southern Idaho, could assist the city with the urban renewal training that the committee needs to move forward.

Anderson said Region IV may be selected as the agency’s advisor but the city council wanted to open up the process so they could review all applicants, costs and compare services.

Interested parties may provide a professional resume summarizing their background in urban renewal and related areas to the city’s clerk, Deb Hopkins.

The applicant also needs to provide a description of the services they can provide along with their fees and billing method. They also need to provide at least three references where they have provided similar services.

Applications may be sent to Hopkins at the city of Heyburn, P.O. Box 147, Heyburn, Id., 83336, or by fax at 208-679-2438 or e-mail at dhopkins@pmt.org. Applications must be received on or before Dec. 3, 2010.

Laurie Welch may be reached at lwelch@magicvalley.com or 677-5025.

Idaho jobless rate up for third straight month

Times-News

Total employment in Idaho slipped further in October, pushing the forecasted seasonally adjusted unemployment rate up another notch to 9.1 percent.

It was the third straight monthly increase in the rate, which peaked in February at a near-record 9.5 percent.

Employers remained cautious about the economy’s future. While there were relatively few layoffs during October, employers hired fewer new workers than during any other October since complete record keeping began in 1998.

Private businesses shed 5,300 jobs from September to October with only transportation and education escaping the seasonal decline. That loss of jobs, smaller than employers have normally experienced over the past five years, was partially offset by increased employment at all levels of public education as the fall term got under way.

The October job listing report from the Conference Board, a Washington, D.C.-based business think tank, found Idaho had one job listed for every three unemployed workers, up slightly from September’s report but a marked

U.S. SEES SMALL HIRING SPURT

The jobs crisis eased a bit in October as U.S. companies stepped up hiring, suggesting further gains ahead.

Still, hiring remains far too weak to drive down unemployment, now stuck at 9.6 percent. And the newly elected Congress will come under pressure to take action to accelerate job growth.

The burst of hiring — 159,000 net jobs added by private employers — nevertheless raised hopes that companies are finally emerging from the hiring stall seen during much of the summer.

The previous big spurt of job growth — a healthy 241,000 — came in April. Private companies have now added jobs for 10 straight months. That shows that recession-battered companies have regained some appetite to hire after slashing jobs for nearly two straight years in a row.

While saying he was pleased with the improvement, President Barack Obama conceded the economy still isn’t creating enough jobs for the nearly 15 million people out of work.

Q&A: The how and why of GM’s public offering

By Susan Tompor
Detroit Free Press writer

DETROIT — IPO. Those three letters conjure up the dot-com heyday of the 1990s, the era of fast money and instant millionaires.

But most of us didn’t get rich quick back then on Netscape or other Internet-related IPOs. And what do we know about initial public offerings of stock?

With General Motors Co. expected to roll out its new IPO on Nov. 18, we could all use a primer. Here are answers to frequently asked questions.

Q. What is this GM “road show” we keep hearing about?

A. The road show is the big show, if you will, of initial public offerings. The company issuing stock has a marketing campaign that it takes on the road to several major cities, often New York and Chicago, but GM’s road show also will go to Europe.

“They go on the road to present the investment story to potential investors,” said Bill Buhr, IPO strategist for Morningstar.

The road show involves meetings with mutual fund managers, hedge fund managers, endowments, or pension funds. It also helps the issuers of the IPO judge its potential popularity, and helps underwriters better determine how to price it.

Q: Who sets the price of that GM IPO?

A: GM does not slap a sticker on the window. Instead, the underwriters — or investment banks — involved work-up

AIG cleans house, posts $2.4B loss for third quarter

By Pallavi Gogoi
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — American International Group Inc., one of the largest recipients of government aid during the financial crisis, reported a $2.4 billion loss due to restructuring charges Friday as the sprawling insurance company made more strides toward trimming down its balance sheet and returning taxpayer-funded bailout money.

The moves by New York-

based AIG, which is still 80 percent owned by the government, will likely result in an upgrade to the company’s credit ratings, setting the stage for the government to take the steps necessary to start selling its stake.

AIG still owes about $100 billion from the bailout package it received two years ago at the peak of the 2008 credit crisis, shortly after the collapse of the Lehman Brothers investment bank. One of the first portions that AIG plans to repay is a $20 billion credit facility extended by the Federal Reserve which carries a hefty fee.

“In the fourth quarter, we want to exit the Federal Reserve debt,” said Robert Benmosche, CEO of AIG, in an interview with The Associated Press.

Benmosche expects the company will likely take another charge in the fourth quarter of $4.7 billion related to repaying the Fed.

YESTERDAY ON WALL STREET

The Dow Jones industrial closed up 9.24, or 0.1 percent, at 11,444.08. The broader Standard & Poor's 500 index edged up 4.79, or 0.4 percent, to 1,225.85, and the Nasdaq composite index edged up 1.64, or 0.1 percent, to 2,578.98.

The Dow gained 326 points this week, or 2.9 percent, its fourth weekly gain out of the past five. The S&P is up 3.6 percent for the week and the Nasdaq rose 2.9 percent.

Treasury yields inched higher as investors trimmed their holdings of defensive investments. The yield on the 10-year note rose to 2.53 percent from 2.47 percent late Thursday. The dollar rose against other currencies, and commodity prices mainly rose.

Rising stocks outpaced falling ones on the New York Stock Exchange Friday, where consolidated volume came to 5.7 billion shares.

Overseas markets were mostly higher. Britain's FT-SE edged up 0.2 percent, Germany's DAX rose 0.3 percent and France's CAC-40 was flat. Japan's Nikkei 225 jumped 2.9 percent after that country's central bank outlined details of its own program to stimulate its economy by buying up debt securities.

Consumer borrowing posts rare gain in September

By Martin Crutsinger
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON – Consumer borrowing increased in September for the first time since January even though the category that includes credit cards dropped for a record 25th straight month. The rise in credit came from the category that includes student loans.

The Federal Reserve said Friday that consumer credit increased at an annual rate of Americans have been reducing their borrowing for nearly two years as they try to repair their balance sheets in the wake of a steep recession and high unemployment.

$2.1 billion in September after having fallen at a rate of $4.9 billion in August. It was only the second increase in the past 20 months.

Americans have been reducing their borrowing for nearly two years as they try to repair their balance sheets in the wake of a steep recession and high unemployment.

For September, revolving credit, the category that includes credit cards, fell for a record 25th consecutive month, dropping by an annual rate of $8.3 billion, or 12.1 percent.

The category that includes student loans and auto loans rose by $10.4 billion, or an annual rate of 7.9 percent. The data from the Federal Reserve showed a large increase in lending by the federal government for student loans in September.

This growth has come as a result of a law passed by Congress that makes the government the primary lender to students, rather than a guarantor backing private loans.

The $2.1 billion rise in overall borrowing in September pushed consumer debt to a seasonally adjusted $2.4 trillion in September, down 2.9 percent from where consumer credit stood a year ago.

Analysts said that consumer credit is continuing to be constrained by all the problems facing households, including high unemployment and tighter lending standards on the part of banks struggling with high loan losses.

But Theresa Chen, an economist at Barclays Capital Research, said that while the big declines in consumer credit were probably coming to an

Medicare Open Enrollment starts Nov. 15

Every year, new prescription drug and health plan coverage choices are available to people with Medicare. Open enrollment, starting Nov. 15 through Dec. 31, is the time of year when current or newly eligible Medicare beneficiaries, including people with original Medicare, can review their current health or prescription drug plans, compare the plans to other options and choose the plans that best meet their current needs.

One-on-one assistance for comparing Medicare prescription drug coverage for 2011 will be available from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Nov. 15 at the Twin Falls Senior Citizens Center, 530 Shoshone St. S. Representatives from Social Security, the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare and the College of Southern Idaho will be available to answer questions about extra help paying for Medicare premiums, deductibles and co-pays. Bring a current list of your prescriptions and your Medicare card.

Other days, the center is open from 12:30 to 4 p.m. Mondays, Wednesdays or Fridays. Walk-ins are welcome on a first-come, first-serve basis. Information: 734-5089.

Tricky traffic violations

Q: Why is it that whenever I call in a traffic violation that I witness, the police either don't find the violator or refuse to cite the violator?

— Ryan

A: I'm betting you don't play or win at the lottery either? I can't give you a complete answer when I only have part of the equation. I don't know the whole story here so I will just have to assume what it might be, and we all know what happens when you assume, you — oh, never mind.

The first assumption I'm guessing is that you didn't want to sign the citation for the violation. If the traffic violation didn't happen in the presence of an officer, then the burden of proof falls on the person(s) who witnessed the violation. If the witness does not want to sign a citation, then end of story and the violator goes on his or her merry way.

The next assumption I have is that the suspect was found but you were not 100 percent positive it was the right person. This again ends the story of somebody getting cited. Law enforcement works with a 100 percent known suspect before any charges ever get filed because we know that a wrongful charge could mean bad things might happen to our futures. The same goes for citizen complaints.

Assuming that law enforcement didn't get to you, officers might have been too busy with other pressing events, such as a crash or traffic stop. Law-enforcement officers are like fishermen: they can only catch one fish at a time (I don't want to hear about dynamite fishing, either). The sad fact is that there are not as many officers to cover every area at all times, but we do our best.

Finally, one issue I want to bring up is that if you believe the suspect was driving recklessly, don't call the regular law-enforcement number to report it. Call 911 so that the information can be given greater attention if the driver is indeed reckless or driving under the influence. Reckless driving means people are in danger and this event needs to be treated as such. If the driver just made you mad by his or her driving, then go with what the officer suggests as a valid charge. Officers know what the courts will or won't assume the correct violation is.

I had somebody ask me last weekend about the 10 codes on the police radio and what they meant. I thought I'd share a few, and maybe more in later columns:

- 10-4 means everything is ok (I know, duh, right?).
- 10-10 means that there is a fight.
- 10-41 means that the officer is in service.
- 10-42 means that the officer is out of service.
- 10-16 means there is a family fight or domestic (the most-dreaded code).

Officer down

Please put these officers, killed in the line of duty, and their families in your prayers. God bless these heroes.

- Officer Christopher A. Wilson, San Diego Police, Calif.
- Deputy Dean Miera, Bernalillo County Sheriff, N.M.

- Officer Sergio Antillon, San Antonio Police, Texas.
- Officer Paul Dittamo, Metropolitan Police, District of Columbia.

They fought the good fight, may they rest in peace. Be safe, I'll talk to you next week.

Local Modern Woodmen donate books

Each year on the fourth Saturday in October, volunteers from coast to coast vow to improve their communities on Make A Difference Day, a national day of service.

On Oct. 23, local Modern Woodmen of America No. 15634 members joined the effort by donating large-print puzzle books to Parke View Care and Rehabilitation.

Modern Woodmen groups nationwide provide more than $23 million and nearly 1 million volunteer hours each year for community projects. Youth service clubs also provide young Modern Woodmen members with opportunities to volunteer, be patriotic, learn new skills, make friends and have fun.

Diabetes diagnosed after accident, but what caused it?

DEAR DR. GOTT: On May 18, 2009, I was injured when a heavy metal door was slammed down on my head. Since then, I have suffered from severe neck pain and headaches that have caused serious sleep disruption and constant fatigue. All of these symptoms are unprecedented for me.

I have had physical therapy, an epidural steroid injection, numerous prescriptions for pain, muscle relaxers and have done home exercises recommended by my physical therapist. All provided only temporary relief, and my doctor has said I've reached my maximum medical improvement. Actually, there has been no improvement.

DR. GOTT

Despite my best efforts, I have had absences from work in excess of my former employer's guidelines and, after six years, was terminated. This, of course, has resulted in financial problems.

After five to six weeks of feeling lethargic, experiencing extreme thirst, blurred vision and weight loss, I visited my doctor on Aug. 27, 2010, and was diagnosed with type 2 diabetes. No one in my family has ever had diabetes.

Could the physical distress and mental anguish from my accident have contributed to this condition?

DEAR READER: If I understand you correctly, you were diagnosed with diabetes 466 days after your accident. In the interim, you obviously saw a number of health care providers who failed to either order lab work or zero in on the diagnosis.

Glucose is the primary source of energy in our cells that make up muscles and other tissues. As food is digested, sugar is absorbed into the bloodstream. With the aid of insulin, cells are able to absorb the sugar and convert it to energy. When type 2 diabetes occurs, cells become resistant to the insulin and/or the pancreas is unable to produce adequate amounts of insulin. As a result, sugar builds up in the bloodstream.

Long-term complications can include nerve damage, pain, and tingling and numbness that commonly begin in the toes and fingers and gradually spread upward through the body over a period of months or years. The kidneys, bones, joints and other areas of the body can be damaged, as well.

My guess is that your neck pain and headaches were and are the result of the accident. You had major trauma to your head and may have even suffered a concussion. There is evidence that stress can cause sugar levels to elevate in known diabetics. This still leaves a big question unanswered as to whether stress is a trigger in a person with no prior history. Perhaps some light can be shed on the matter if your physician has lab results in your file done prior to and following the accident. Request a review of the results to determine whether there was a gradual increase in readings that might not have been identified prior.

From the copies of the MRI results you sent, I can see that you are 67 years old. Is there a possibility that because of your pain, headaches and lack of employment that you have gained a little weight and become sedentary? Are you exercising as much as possible under the circumstances and eating well-balanced meals? Everything we do affects our bodies in positive or negative ways. Sometimes simple lifestyle changes can make an enormous difference and even allow for previously prescribed diabetic medications to be reduced or eliminated.

CSI offers noncredit classes on word usage, Medicare

The College of Southern Idaho's Community Education Center will offer the following two noncredit classes:

- "The Power of Words" will be taught by Robyn Romney from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. Nov. 15 at CSI Taylor 248.

Productive keywords propel thoughts and results forward and upward as they resonate to a higher frequency, packing power into a person's life. Students will be able to start counting their success as their mind switches to the generating effect of high-energy word usage and thinking. In this class, Romney will help students realize how internal and external language patterns create their lives. Registration is $30, plus a $2 supply fee paid to the instructor the night of class.

- "A, B, C and D's of Medicare" will be taught by Ken Azbill from 7 to 9 p.m. Nov. 17 at CSI Shields 109.

The class is designed to present the benefits and regulations of Medicare in a clear approach students can understand and use to maximize participation in the program. In this two-hour session, Azbill will discuss Medicare Parts A, B, C and D, Medicare enrollment guidelines, Medicare premiums, and supplements to Medicare including Medigap and Medicare Advantage plans. Registration is $15. Call Community Education for a supply list, 732-6442. Class sizes are limited, so register early at community.csi.edu.

Indonesia volcano burns whole villages; 122 dead

The Associated Press

MOUNT MERAPI, Indonesia — A surge of searing gas raced down the sides of Mount Merapi on Friday, smothering houses, cattle and villagers in its path. The death toll after the volcano's largest eruption in a century soared to 122.

The worst hit village of Bronggang lay nine miles from the fiery crater, just on the perimeter of the government-delineated "danger zone." Crumpled roofs, charred carcasses of cattle and broken chairs — all layered in white ash and soot — dotted the smoldering landscape.

The zone has since been expanded to a ring 12 miles from the peak, bringing it to the edge of the ancient royal capital of Yogyakarta, which has been put on its highest alert.

Sri Sucirathasri said her family had stayed in their Bronggang home Thursday night because they hadn't been told to leave.

They awoke in the dark as the mountain let out thunderous claps and tried desperately to outrun the flows, which reached speeds of 60 mph, on a motorbike. Her mother, father and 12-year-old sister, Prisca, left first, but with gray ash blocking out any light, they mistakenly drove into — rather than away from — the volcano's dangerous discharge.

The 18-year-old Sri went looking for them when she heard her mother's screams, leaving at home an older sister, who died when the house became engulfed in flames.

"It was a safe place. There were no signs to evacuate," said Sri, a vacant gaze fixed on Prisca, whose neck and face are burned a shiny ebony, her features nearly melted away.

Their mother is still missing. Their father, whose feet and ankles are burned, is being treated in another ward.

"I don't know what to say," she whispers when asked if she blames officials for not warning the family. "Angry at who? I'm just sad. And very sick."

Merapi's latest round of eruptions began Oct. 26, followed by more than a dozen other powerful blasts and thousands of tremors.

After initially predicting earlier eruptions would ease pressure under the magma dome, experts who have spent a lifetime studying the volcano now say the don't know what to expect.

Hurricane adds to Haiti's woes, 4 dead in floods

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Hurricane Tomas flooded camps of earthquake refugees, turning some into squalid islands Friday as it battered Haiti's rural western tip, while largely sparing the vast homeless encampments in the shattered capital.

Aid workers rushed to guard against the spread of disease as the storm moved into the region where thousands are infected with cholera.

Driving 85 mph winds and a lashing storm surge battered Leogane, a sea-side town west of Port-au-Prince.

Four deaths were confirmed by Haitian officials, all people attempting to cross rivers by car or on foot in the mountainous region to the west of Leogane, on Haiti's far southwestern tip.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Do you have any information on condyloma acuminata?

DEAR READER: This diagnosis is better known as genital warts, one of the most common types of sexually transmitted diseases, which may resemble flesh- or gray-colored bumps, or that have a cauliflower-like appearance when a number of them grow close together. The warts may itch, and there may be bleeding with intercourse. Two-thirds of all people who have sexual contact with a person who has genital warts will develop the condition, either within a few months of contact or several years later.

Genital warts can be treated with medication and surgery, but they remain a serious health problem. The underlying virus is never completely eradicated, and the warts can reappear even following treatment. The human papillomavirus (HPV) that causes these warts is associated with cervical and genital cancers. There are now two vaccines available for females aged 9 to 26. One of the vaccines is also approved for use in males in that same age bracket.

Henrickson's FG lifts Declo into 2A semis

Stirland Zollinger (41) holds as Declo kicker Erik Henrickson (11) converts the game-winning 32-yard field goal against Nampa Christian in the Class 2A state quarterfinals Friday at Declo High School. LAWRENCE GILLETTE/ For the Times-News

DECLO — Erik Henrickson had been in this type of pressure situation before. Except for this time the ball was shaped funny, there was no net between the goal posts and instead of beating a goalkeeper, he faced 11 charging defenders. Still, Henrickson was money. The senior who had never strapped on a football helmet until three weeks ago, booted the game-winning 33-yard field goal to lift Declo to a thrilling 30-28 victory over Nampa Christian in the Class 2A state quarterfinals Friday night. “I was like, ‘I gotta hit this one good!’ I did it like in practice and tried not to think about it. I’ve kicked in a few PKs (penalty kicks) in soccer, so it’s kind of like that, it’s the same amount of pressure,” said Henrickson. Jack Darrington was the long snapper and Stirland Zollinger was the holder. The field goal capped Declo’s comeback from a two-touchdown deficit. It also came just minutes after Henrickson’s point-after attempt was blocked by Nampa Christian’s

Jeff Butkus, which left Declo behind 28-27. “It’s the greatest night of my life,” said Declo lineman Jared Patterson. “We’ve worked so hard and we finished strong tonight. I felt like we could pull it off. We play with a lot of heart all the time and we strive to win. We knew we could do it.” The game took an unfortunate turn for Declo early, as starting quarterback Kai Garner suffered a hip injury on the game’s third play. Senior Justin Cameron replaced him, and while he was shaky at first, Cameron made

High-scoring Hawaii poses tough challenge

By Jason Chatraw
Times-News correspondent

BOISE — Early in the season, Boise State’s hopes for perhaps an even bigger stage on the national scene hinged on nonconference games against Virginia Tech and Oregon State. With those games in the past, the Broncos’ hopes for a shot at the BCS title will take a backseat this week as BSU faces a must-win game against Hawaii today — just to stay in the hunt for the Western Athletic Conference title. Entering the game with the nation’s longest winning streak at 21 games, BSU plays host to surprising Hawaii, which only has the WAC’s two weakest teams remaining on its schedule. Hawaii (7-2, 5-0) has traditionally avoided games on the mainland if it can help it. But the Warriors played at Army and at Colorado early in the season — and they are playing much better on the mainland than in years past. “I’m not sure if (playing more on the mainland) helped them, or if they’re just a more experienced, better team,” BSU head coach Chris Petersen said. “But I do know this: There’s no question that I knew this was a different Hawaii team when they beat Utah State so bad in the rain on the road. “When I saw them do that, I knew that this team was different. I think they’re back to being the Hawaii we’ve known for so long.” While Hawaii has disappeared from both the national radar and the WAC radar since suffering a beatdown in the Sugar Bowl at the hands of Georgia, the Warriors have suddenly put everything together this season after a slow start. Hawaii quarterback Bryan Moniz is 14th in the country in passing efficiency and second in the WAC behind BSU quarterback Kellen Moore, who is first nationally. And Moniz leads the nation in total offense. “(Hawaii’s offense has) got a good rhythm about them,” Petersen said. “(Moniz) is a typical Hawaii quarterback. He throws it downfield a lot, and they’ve got a little run game mixed

Idaho defense aims to slow down Nevada

By Josh Wright
Times-News correspondent

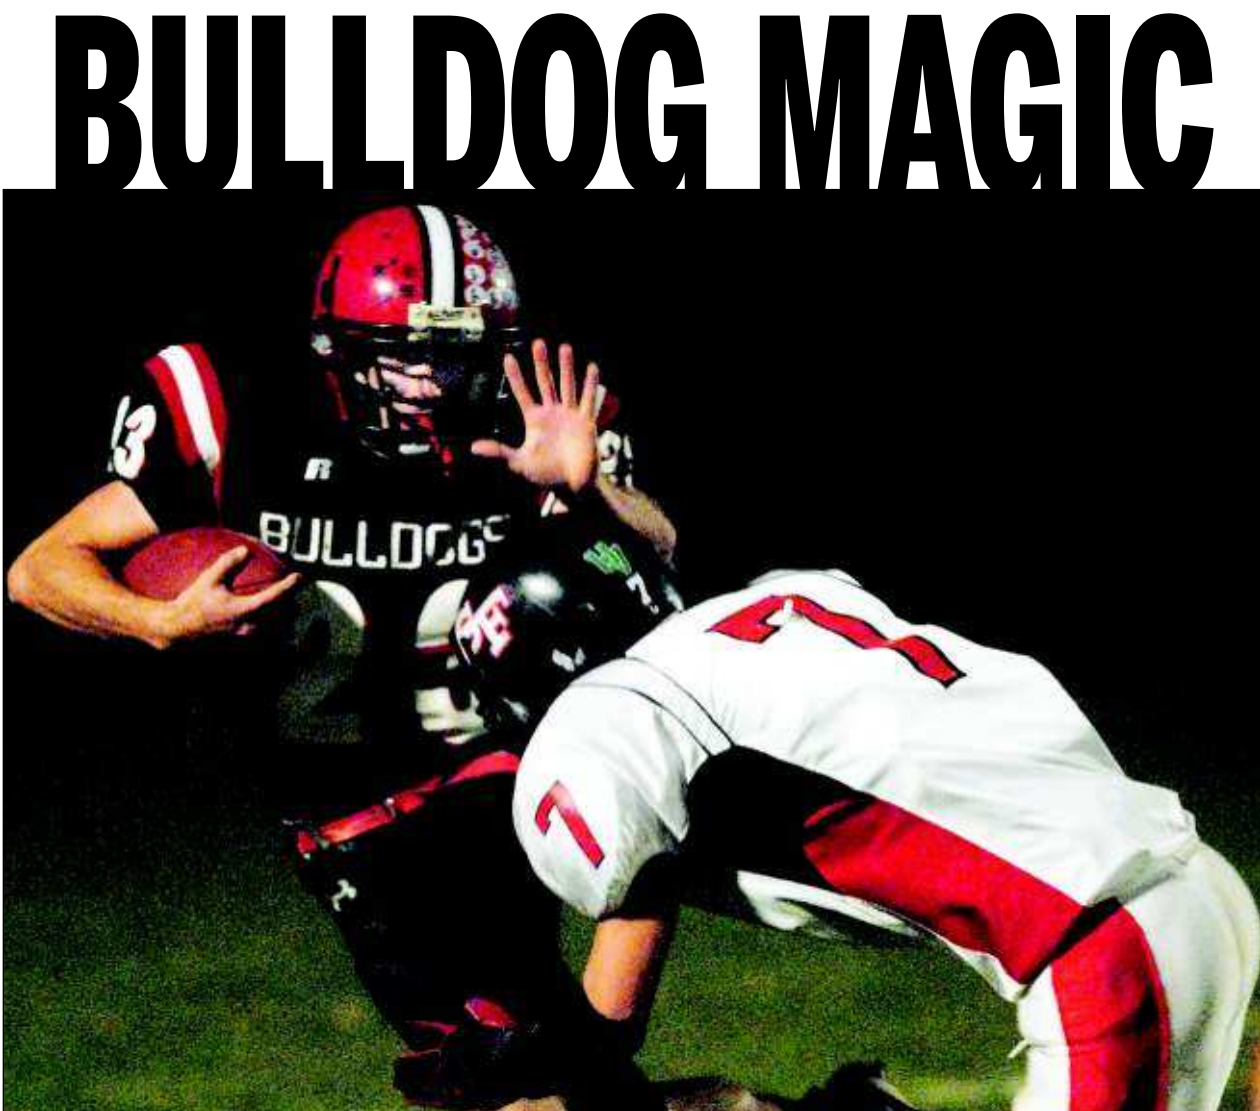

MOSCOW — Members of the University of Idaho defense trudged off the team plane Sunday morning, groggy after an all-night flight from Hawaii, and already Mark Criner had started to pick up on a theme from his players. “We landed and they were talking about getting after (Nevada),” the Vandals defensive coordinator said. “I don’t think it’s a revenge factor. I think it’s a challenge ... to have a good football game.” It’s no wonder the Vandals want a redo with the Wolf Pack. Last year

Nevada blitzed Idaho for 484 rushing yards and five touchdowns of 35 yards or more in a 70-45 trampling in Reno. The Idaho defense did all it could to brush off the nightmarish outing, but the memories were hard to shake. “Things got rolling last year and it was a bad situation,” Criner said. “We didn’t play very well obviously. We had a lot of missed tackles.” Today the Vandals (4-4, 1-2) have another weighty task when they go up against the 23rd-ranked Wolf Pack in a 3 p.m. (MDT) game at the Kibbie Dome. Nevada (7-1, 2-1) has the

KIMBERLY — The Kimberly Bulldogs certainly like to sweat games out in the final minutes. Up by two with two minutes remaining and South Fremont quarterback Spencer Goulding orchestrating a potential game-winning drive, the tension built on the Bulldogs’ sideline and in the stands. Nervous coaches paced up and down the sideline, players too nervous to watch turned their backs to the field, the crowd anxiously held its breath. Kimberly defensive back Tyler Bringhurst relieved the Bulldog faithful as he sacked Goulding on fourth-and-seven to end the Cougars’ drive and seal a 28-26 win for Kimberly. “I just knew I had to make a play. We get a stop there and the game is over. I saw him scrambling around and just went after him. I had him wrapped up and wasn’t going to let him go. You just have to go after it you know,” said Bringhurst. Goulding had shredded the Kimberly defense all game, passing for 235 yards and two touchdowns and adding 87 yards and a touchdown on the ground. But it was his two interceptions that doomed the Cougars.

COEUR D’ALENE — The defense rests. The College of Southern Idaho volleyball team was dethroned as national champions in heartbreaking fashion Friday night, falling in five sets to Salt Lake Community College in the Region 18 Tournament semifinals. The Bruins’ 25-19, 22-25, 20-25, 25-15, 15-9 victory eliminated the Golden Eagles with a 23-11 record, while Salt Lake (26-5) clinched a berth in both the region championship match today and the NJCAA tournament in two weeks. “We had opportunities and just couldn’t capitalize on enough of them,” said CSI coach Heidi Cartisser. “We played great in the second two sets and then got tentative. Against good teams you can’t do that because once you give away the momentum it’s hard to get it back.” CSI started out flat, conceding the first five points of the match as Salt Lake cruised to the first set. But the next two sets were some of the best Golden Eagle volleyball of the season, led by inspired performances from sophomores Alyssa Everett and Elisa Brochado. The level dipped after the third set, however, and once Salt Lake got it to a fifth set

Hagerman cruises into 1A Div. I semifinals

By John Derr
Times-News writer

HAGERMAN — The Pirates got an early wake-up call. It was exactly what they needed.

Hagerman watched Rimrock score the first touchdown in Friday's Class 1A Division I state quarterfinal game. Then the Pirates took over.

Hagerman scored 35 unanswered points on its way to a 63-30 victory to reach the state semifinals.

Senior running back Amberosio Nava scored four touchdowns in the romp.

"It was pretty much a team victory. I need to thank the line — they opened the holes for me. It was a well-played game," said Nava, who tallied 143 yards on the night while adding two fumble recoveries. "We have been down before. We knew we could come back."

Nava, who played soccer the last two years instead of football, used his feet for kicks as well, converting three extra points.

Hagerman faces Grace next week for a spot in the Nov. 19 championship game.

Rimrock's failed onside kick to open the game gave the Pirates great field position, but they couldn't do anything with it. Rimrock didn't have that problem. It took just three plays for the run-oriented Raiders to find pay dirt with Nate Black cruising in from 35 yards out.

Hagerman got things going with Jonathan Owsley scoring on fourth-and-goal from 2 yards out to knot the score.

A fumble on the kickoff put the Pirates on the doorstep again. Zac Reid connected with Ryan Luttmer from 37 yards out as Hagerman took the lead for good.

Reid and Luttmer ultimately hooked up seven times for 140 yards and three touchdowns.

"We have been playing together since elementary school. It is a chemistry built over the years," said Reid, who added that Rimrock's early score got the Pirates going. "It was a slap in the face. We weren't ready and it woke us up."

Nava found the end zone twice in the second quarter while Reid and Luttmer hooked up from 8 yards out for a 35-8 advantage.

"They were giving me the post all night and the quick slant was open when they were laying off," said Luttmer.

A late first-half score by the Raiders cut the deficit a bit at the break, but Hagerman continued to roll in the second half.

Owsley and Nava each tallied a score in the first two minutes of the third after two onside kicks put the Pirates in Raiders territory to thwart any thought of a Rimrock comeback.

Hagerman subbed freely down the stretch while the Raiders put a couple scores on the board.

Now the Pirate seniors hope to keep things rolling.

"For the senior class it is like the old days, playing recess and having fun," said Reid.

there was only going to be one winner.

"We started making errors and lost momentum," said Everett, who had 10 kills and four blocks, one solo. "It's just a mental thing with us, not being able to finish. I just wish it was different ... I'd give anything to have a few different points."

With Salt Lake's big-time trio of Ame' White, Kellie Turner and Erika Charry out of the front row, the Bruins struggled to generate offense. But Sheila Uluave stepped up and made enough of an impact to nose Salt Lake to the finish line.

Uluave finished with 12 kills, to go with 16 for Turner and 14 apiece for White and Charry. White and Turner posted double-doubles with 20 and 15 digs, respectively. Brochado had a match-high 17 kills to go with 15 digs, and Beth Carey added 10.

CSI set up the semifinal showdown by dispatching

Colorado Northwestern 25-10, 25-10, 25-10, taking just 56 minutes to do so in the tournament's opening match Friday morning.

Brochado had 13 kills to just one error, while Pollard added eight. Carey had five error-free kills and four blocks, one solo.

But in the end a dominating performance in the opener did nothing to ease the sting of missing out on nationals for the second time in three seasons.

Quinn impressive in Wolves win

By Diane Philbin
Times-News writer

CASTLEFORD — Faster than a speeding bullet?

Castleford all-purpose back Cody Quinn sure looked that way Friday night as he used his speed to score five touchdowns in a 46-0 romp of Dietrich in the Class 1A Division II quarterfinals.

The mercy rule victory moved the Wolves to 10-0 and into a state semifinal meeting with the winner of today's game between Rockland and Carey.

"(Quinn) is faster than what I thought," said Dietrich coach Doug Astle. "We sure didn't want to kick the ball to him."

But one kick that was fielded by Quinn turned into a 55-yard punt return for a touchdown. Quinn finished with 161 yards on 18 carries, including four rushing scores, the last covering 53 yards for the Wolves' final touchdown. And just to finish on a positive note, Quinn ran in the 2-point conversion to end the game.

"We executed tonight and didn't make any mistakes," said Quinn. "Everyone picked up their blocks really well. It was just a good all-around game."

Castleford's line play was dominant on both sides of the ball, especially the defensive line, which hardly gave up any yards.

The Wolves' offense had a total of 275 yards with 225 on the ground and 50 through the air.

"We knew that Heimerdinger has speed and that they had a good quarterback

(Brody Astle), but we did a good job of containing them," said Castleford coach Tracy Vulgamore. "We were able to take advantage of our speed. We had a good game plan that worked out. We couldn't have asked for more."

Castleford quarterback Kale Weekes rushed 10 times for 41 yards, including a 5-yard score in the second quarter. Backup quarterback Mitch Howard completed four passes, including a 15-yard scoring strike to Tyler Hansen to put the Wolves ahead 30-0 at intermission.

"We got off the line fast — everything just clicked," said Hansen. "Our freshman and sophomore years we won just three games and last year we finished third at state. Winning state — there would be no better way for our senior year to end."

Even in losing, Doug Astle had nothing but positive comments on the game, regarding both his team and the opposition.

"They dominated us at the line. We thought we had a couple of good things going for us early," he said.

For the Dietrich defense, junior Gray Weber recorded 15 tackles.

"Dietrich is a well-coached team and they are hard competitors," said Hansen. "They played hard until the end."

enough plays in the second half to lead three Declo scoring drives.

Nampa Christian's speed was too much for Declo to handle in the first half as the Trojans scored on runs of 22, 59 and 85 yards, plus a TD pass of 82 yards. The Trojans' four scoring drives took just a combined 11 plays.

"This was the first team we've played where the kids had that kind of speed," said Declo coach Kelly Kidd. "We were a step slow. We made some adjustments at halftime and we thought we could shut them down when we adjusted to the speed."

The Hornets did just that, smothering Nampa Christian to just 89 yards of offense in the second half. Additionally, the Trojans sputtered after their starting QB Jake Campbell didn't return after halftime due to an injury.

carries and a touchdown for Declo. He also returned a punt 35 yards for a score after the Nampa Christian punter chased down an errant snap, forcing him to kick it short.

Trailing 28-14 at halftime, Declo recovered a muffed punt and went 64 yards in 13 plays, capped by Cameron's 1-yard keeper. The Hornets scored again on their next possession as Kyle Zollinger went 10 yards for the score, which was followed by the blocked PAT. Zollinger finished with 61 yards on 16 carries.

The game-winning drive started at midfield. The Hornets converted two fourth downs — one on a hard count that caused Nampa Christian to jump offside, and another on a reverse to Jaxon Wrigley on fourth-and-seven. Five-yard runs by each Knobbe and Zollinger put Declo in comfortable field goal range for Henrickson.

"We have kids that are totally exhausted. They never quit. I'm proud of our kids," Kidd said.

Declo (7-3) advances to the semifinals for the third straight year. It will face the winner of today's Aberdeen-West Side game, which will be played at 4 p.m. at Holt Arena in Pocatello.

Kimberly

Kimberly's Jeremy Howell picked off Goulding in the second quarter, returning it 53 yards to the house to give the Bulldogs the 14-7 lead.

"My uncle told me to pick off a pass and return it for a touchdown before a game. I didn't even know I had the ball in my hands," Howell said. "I just kicked it into high-gear. I thought he was going to catch me. I didn't know I could run that fast."

Defensive back Dally Charters, who had been beaten on Goulding's first touchdown pass of the game in the first quarter, bounced back to intercept Goulding on the Cougars' ensuing possession.

Kimberly turned that into seven points as quarterback Seth Champlin snaked across the field on a bail-out scramble, going 47 yards as time expired before halftime.

"That was a crazy run," said Champlin, who added a 14-yard TD run in the third quarter.

ball over four more times on the night, resulting in 21 Kimberly points.

"We killed ourselves out there," said South Fremont coach Ben Hildebrand.

The Cougars opened the game explosively as Goulding found receiver Joseph Carlson in the corner of the endzone in the first quarter for a 35-yard strike, but the Kimberly defense began to figure out the vaunted passing attack from South Fremont.

"We knew our team could hang in there," Howell said.

Rayce Spath returned a kickoff 95 yards for a score in the third quarter and Goulding tossed his second touchdown to Carlson with 10:30 remaining in the game, but the Cougars didn't have any more magic in them.

"It's always a tough time in the locker room after the last game of the season," Hildebrand said. "We're a resilient team and we'll bounce back next year."

Kimberly was certainly more exuberant as the Bulldogs advance to the Class 3A state semifinals where they will face Snake River.

"This feels amazing," Howell said.

With two last-minute wins in the past two weeks, this team feels it can do anything right now.

"We've come together as a team and know we can come back from anything," Bringham said. "We've got some heart."

ISU hopes to compete with SEC's Georgia

By Mark Liptak
Times-News correspondent

POCATELLO — At least they're competitive now.

After a stretch of blowout losses, Idaho State (1-7) has shown pride and effort in its last two outings — a three-point loss to Weber State and a 23-17 overtime defeat to Montana State.

The latter came with some controversy. TV replays showed that MSU's Denarius McGhee stepped out of bounds at the 3-yard line en route to scoring the winning touchdown. The touchdown stood, sending the Bengals to their 28th loss in 31 games.

ISU gets its biggest test of the season today when they play Southeastern Conference power Georgia (10:30 a.m., ESPN3) in Athens. Georgia (4-5) is in its own set of unusual set of circumstances, fighting to become bowl eligible. That means the Bulldogs won't over look the Bengals.

"I wouldn't think they would," said ISU head coach John Zamberlin. "They are going to be stinging from that overtime loss to Florida. They have three games left and have to win two of them to play somewhere."

After today, Georgia's remaining schedule includes Auburn and Georgia Tech.

To stay close, ISU must overcome a huge gap in talent.

"You look at Georgia and you see guys like Justin Houston, he leads the SEC in sacks with nine. You see 6-4 receivers like A.J. Green and you see running backs like Washaun Ealey. He only scored five touchdowns against a Kentucky team that'll be going to a bowl for the fifth straight season. ... It's going to be a challenge," Zamberlin said with a half smile on his face.

The reason for the game itself is simple: ISU will be handsomely rewarded financially for playing against Georgia.

"They have played some really outstanding BCS conference teams over the last couple of years," Georgia coach Mark Richt said. "I'm sure the revenue that they will generate from it is part of the reason why they'll come that far. I'm sure it makes sense for them financially."

During head coach John Zamberlin's three-plus seasons in Pocatello, the Bengals have faced Arizona State, Boise State, Oklahoma and Oregon State. But Zamberlin hopes the Bengals will do more than collect a check.

"I hope our kids play well, that they represent the university in a good fashion and they experience what it's like to play in front of 92,000 people," he said.

Notes: ISU center Mark Clampitt is out for the remainder of the year due to injury. He becomes the fourth lineman who started the year on the offensive line to be sidelined. ... Since 2000, Idaho State has played 15 teams from the Football Bowl Subdivision. The only win came against Utah State. ... ISU's David Harrington leads the nation in punting with 45.1 yards a kick. This is the first meeting between Idaho State and Georgia.

The matchup: Nevada at Idaho

3 p.m., (KTVB 24-7)

Line: Nevada by 11½.

Series Record: Nevada leads 18-9.

Last Meeting: 2009, Nevada 70-45.

WHAT'S AT STAKE

Idaho (4-4, 1-2 WAC) seeks to become bowl-eligible for the second consecutive season, but faces No. 25 Nevada (7-1, 2-1 WAC) and No. 2 Boise State at home the next two weeks. Nevada tries to hold onto its ranking this time and move up in the bowl picture.

KEY MATCHUP

The Nevada rushing attack, averaging 300 yards per game, against the Idaho defensive line, or the Vandals' passint attack, which averages 338 yards, against the Nevada secondary.

PLAYERS TO WATCH

Nevada QB Colin Kaepernick and RB Vai Taua. Kaepernick averages 96 yards rushing and Taua leads the WAC with 132.6 yards per game.

Idaho QB Nathan Enderle is second in the WAC at 285.2 yards passing per game.

FACTS & FIGURES

Nevada has won five in a row since the Vandals' last win in 1999 ... Idaho has played four of its past five on the road ... It's a rare weekend of double home games in the Palouse, as Washington State hosts California six miles away in Pullman an hour before Idaho starts. ... Idaho is 3-0 in the Kibbie Dome and has given up 21 points there this season ... The Vandals are most penalized team in the WAC.

Vandals

No. 3 offense in the FBS and the WAC's top two rushers in quarterback Colin Kaepernick and tailback Vai Taua.

Working out of the pistol offense that fits him perfectly, Kaepernick has rushed for 52 touchdowns in his career. The senior is averaging 7.3 yards per carry this season while improving his completion rate to 68.1 percent from 54.3 percent in 2008.

"It won't break my heart to see him gone," Idaho coach Robb Akey said. "I told him last year he was ready for the NFL. He should have left, but (Nevada coach Chris) Ault got him to stay around for another year"

Idaho was able to generate enough big plays from Nate Enderle and its passing game to stay within range of the Wolf Pack into the third quarter last year. And the Vandals will probably have to rely on Enderle's arm again this time.

Idaho has yet to get consistent output from senior tailback Deonte Jackson or Princeton McCarty, the No. 1 back coming into the season. McCarty missed last week's loss to Hawaii and has logged just 10 carries since breaking a finger at the end of September.

"It's not like we have to go in going, 'Oh, we need 42 points at least,' because you never know," Enderle said. "The defense has played some really good games this year, and if they come out to play, it could be a lot more low-scoring than people think"

The Vandals have allowed a total of three touchdowns in three home games. Yet each of their home opponents — North Dakota, UNLV and New Mexico State — was limited offensively.

That changes today with Nevada — and next Friday when No. 4 Boise State comes to Moscow. The Vandals' two most difficult home dates will be followed by trips to Utah State and Fresno State before the season finale with San Jose State at home.

They'll need three wins in their remaining five games to nab a bowl berth.

"One of things I'm looking for is consistency (in the program)," Akey said. "We've got the thing turned and I'm still telling you this is going to be a bowl team this year"

Notes: The Vandals last won a game in November in 2004. ... A loss today would send Idaho below the .500 mark for the first time since the end of the 2008 season. It spent a total of five weeks at or above .500 from 2000-2008.

BYU hopes to get offense on track vs. UNLV

By Darnell Dickson
(Provo, Utah) Daily Herald

If a 1-7 team and a 3-5 team play a college football game on the same Saturday and in the same state that TCU and Utah face off, does it make a sound?

About the time BYU and UNLV kick off for the second half of their game the attention of most college football fans will be focused about 45 miles to the north, where No. 5 Utah hosts No. 3 TCU in the biggest game in Mountain West Conference history. ESPN's Game Day will be in the parking lot, the stadium will be full and many BYU fans will begin checking their smart phones or changing channels for updates.

Heck, they might even put CBS College Sports on in the BYU press box. It's the kind of game BYU and its fans would love to be a part of.

Instead, the Cougars hope to take another step in a painfully mediocre season, one in which the best BYU can hope for is a lower-level bowl appearance in Albuquerque, Dallas or Shreveport.

The Cougars have owned the Rebels lately, having won five in a row and scoring at least 42 points in four of those five wins. UNLV and first-year head coach Bobby Hauck have won just one game this year, a 45-10 thrashing of winless New Mexico on Sept. 25. The Rebels are 117th (out of 120 teams) in total offense (272.38 yards per game) and 118th in rush defense, allowing 221.25 yards per contest.

BYU's defense has improved dramatically in the past three weeks since Mendenhall took over as coordinator but the Cougar offense has yet to break out. If it's going to happen, the Rebels are coming to Provo at the right time: UNLV has allowed 184 points in the past four games, an average of 46 points per contest.

"We were looking at our points and we're averaging 16 a game," BYU junior running back J.J. DiLuigi said. "That's not like BYU football. That's not the tradition here. We need to get back to those traditional scores. When we get carries we need to break out and have a big game. Everyone needs to do their job on every play?"

BYU has the advantage of coming off a bye week used to heal injuries and evaluate what's working and what isn't. UNLV got drilled at home last week by TCU, 48-6.

"(The bye week) has been very productive," Mendenhall said. "We have a lot clearer idea of what has worked. At some point in the season, we have to look at what we are doing, what we can do and what's realistic. That's what the past week has done."

No. 1 Oregon vs. Washington

1:30 p.m. (ABC)

Line: Oregon by 35.

Series Record: Washington leads 58-39-5.

Last Meeting: 2009, Oregon 43-19.

WHAT'S AT STAKE

This should be an easy win for Oregon (8-0, 5-0 Pac-10) at Autzen Stadium, with Washington starting freshman QB Keith Price while Jake Locker recovers from a broken rib. The Ducks have owned the Huskies (3-5, 2-3) with a six-game winning streak, and all of those wins by 20 or more points.

KEY MATCHUP

Oregon's high-powered offense against Washington's defense. The Huskies are allowing 34.1 points per game, while Oregon leads the nation with an average of 55.88. Washington's defense is ninth in the Pac-10, allowing 429.8 yards a game, while the Ducks average 572.9 yards.

PLAYERS TO WATCH

Washington: Price. All eyes will be on Washington's freshman, the heir apparent to Locker, as he makes his first start at inhospitable Autzen against the top-ranked team in the country.

Oregon: RB LaMichael James. Look for the Heisman Trophy candidate to add lots of additional yards to his season total. He has already rushed 1,210 in seven games and he leads the nation with 172.9 yards per game.

No. 4 TCU vs. No. 6 Utah

1:30 p.m. (CBS College)

Line: TCU by 4½.

Series Record: Utah leads 5-2.

Last Meeting: 2009, TCU 55-28.

WHAT'S AT STAKE

This battle of the unbeaten not only will decide the Mountain West, but could propel the winner toward the BCS title game. Utah (9-0, 5-0 MWC) is riding a 21-game home winning streak but is still an underdog against TCU (9-0, 5-0) in what could be a repeat of the 2008 game in Salt Lake City. In that defensive battle, Utah rallied to win 13-10 en route to a perfect season. This year's contest will be a shot at redemption for Utah quarterback Jordan Wynn, who was roughed up in his second career start last year. The sophomore will face a TCU defense ranked No. 1 nationally.

KEY MATCHUP

TCU's rushing defense is No. 1 in the nation, allowing 98.3 yards a game, while Utah's run game averages twice that (191.5 yards). Eddie Wide (5.0 per carry) and Matt Asiata (22 career touchdowns) lead the way.

PLAYERS TO WATCH

Utah: CB Lamar Chapman is just 5-foot-8, but he leads the team in sacks (5½) and tackles for loss (9.5). The senior also forced a fumble last week against Air Force.

TCU: QB Andy Dalton completed 16 of 23 passes last week for 252 yards and two touchdowns while running for another score against UNLV. He now has 9,344 yards passing, and his 38 wins are a TCU record.

No. 5 Alabama at No. 12 LSU

1:30 p.m. (CBS)

Line: Alabama by 6.

Series Record: Alabama leads 45-23-5.

Last Meeting: 2009, Alabama 24-15.

WHAT'S AT STAKE

Alabama (7-1, 4-1 SEC) still controls its fate in the SEC. By winning out against LSU, Mississippi State and Auburn, Alabama would go into the conference championship game still in the hunt for a second straight national title. LSU (7-1, 4-1) must not only win its last three SEC games against Alabama, Mississippi and Arkansas, but also needs Auburn to lose to Georgia and Alabama.

KEY MATCHUP

Alabama WR Julio Jones vs. LSU CB Patrick Peterson. Jones is among the top receivers in the SEC, with 669 yards and three TDs, while Peterson is widely regarded as the best cornerback in college football, although he doesn't have the statistics (2 INTs) to show it. Peterson has covered Jones in the teams' previous two meetings. When Peterson went out of last year's game with a cramp in the fourth quarter, Jones gave Alabama the lead for good on a 73-yard TD.

PLAYERS TO WATCH

Alabama: The RB tandem of Heisman Trophy winner Mark Ingram and his talented backup, Trent Richardson, have helped the Tide average 187 yards rushing. LSU: RB Stevan Ridley has been LSU's most reliable offensive player.

No. 10 Stanford vs. No. 13 Arizona

6 p.m. (ABC)

Line: Stanford by 9½.

Series Record: Arizona leads 14-11-0.

Last Meeting: 2009, Arizona 43-38.

WHAT'S AT STAKE

This is the first time both teams enter a meeting ranked in the AP poll. The Wildcats (7-1, 4-1 Pac-10) and Cardinal (7-1, 4-1) are both a game behind No. 1 Oregon in the Pac-10 and likely need to win to keep any hopes of a Rose Bowl bid alive.

KEY MATCHUP

Arizona defensive line vs. Stanford offensive line. The Cardinal have done a good job protecting QB Andrew Luck, allowing three sacks all season. Led by DEs Ricky Elmore and Brooks Reed, the Wildcats lead the conference with 27 sacks. That will put pressure on OTs Jonathan Martin and Derek Hall, as well as the running backs and tight ends.

PLAYERS TO WATCH

Arizona: WR Juron Criner leads the Wildcats with 49 catches for 786 yards and five TDs. He caught a 41-yard scoring pass last week at UCLA. Nine of his 14 career TD receptions have come on pass plays longer than 20 yards.

Stanford: DE Matt Masifilo had two sacks last week against Washington and anchored a defense that held Jake Locker and the Huskies to 107 yards and one trip past midfield. That's the second fewest yards ever allowed by Stanford. Masifilo also had five tackles and forced a fumble.

The matchup: Hawaii at Boise State

1:35 p.m. (ESPNU)

Line: Boise State by 21.

Series Record: Boise State leads 8-3.

Last Meeting: 2009, Boise State 54-19.

WHAT'S AT STAKE

Boise State (7-0, 3-0 WAC) finally gets a shot to impress poll voters with a game against a team with a winning record. The Warriors (7-2, 5-0) have a high-flying offense, won six straight and sit atop the WAC. If the Broncos win big, it could help prevent another slide in the BCS rankings.

KEY MATCHUP

Hawaii QB Bryant Moniz vs the Boise State defense. Moniz is one of the nation's top passers, with 24 TDs and a nation's best 373 total yards per game in the Warriors' run-and-shoot offense. He faces a Bronco defense that allows just 13 points and 161 yards passing per game.

PLAYERS TO WATCH

Hawaii: WRs Greg Salas and Kealoha Pilares. This tandem has caused headaches for opposing secondaries all season. They are the most productive receivers in the WAC, leading the league in receptions, yards receiving and touchdowns.

Boise State: QB Kellen Moore: The lefty is again the nation's most accurate passer, with an efficiency rating of 188.3. He'll have to be sharp again against a Hawaii defense that has been stingy against the pass all season, allowing 198.4 yards per game.

FACTS & FIGURES

The Warriors have been on a roll since late last season, posting an 11-3 record and eight straight conference wins since Nov. 1, 2009. ... Hawaii has never beaten Boise State in Bronco Stadium, losing all four meetings. ... The Warrior defense this season has forced 26 turnovers, second best in the country. ... Bronco WR Austin Pettis needs two more catches to become the school's career leader for receptions. ... The Broncos have won 21 straight, the longest active winning streak in major college football. ... Boise State hasn't trailed this season since late in the fourth quarter in the opener against Virginia Tech.

Broncos

in there to keep you off balance. If you sleep on them because you think it's all about throwing the ball, they hurt you with the run game."

While running back Alex Green's rushing numbers aren't all that impressive (62.4 yards per game), he is also averaging nearly 30 yards per game receiving as well.

"(Green) certainly can hurt you," Petersen said. "He's exactly the kind of guy who can protect the quarterback, and then they can give him the ball and he can go north and south. He can make you pay in a hurry!"

Individual matchups aside, this game promises to be a WAC classic, as Boise State and Hawaii enter the game ranked fifth and seventh in total offense, respectively.

However, the Warriors have yet to face a defense as stingy as Boise State — and that should be where the game is won or lost for the Broncos.

Since the season opener, Boise State's secondary has been held suspect as the weakest link in an otherwise stout team with a penchant for giving up big plays.

However, the Broncos still rank eighth in the country in total pass defense at 161 yards per game, but will face a Hawaii offense that averages 395 yards in the air.

Earlier in the week, Petersen lamented the fact that national sports journalists demand a large margin of victory to keep Boise State in the BCS title discussion.

"The (national journalists) were talking about how Boise State needs to make a statement, and has to play perfect and clean," Petersen said. "And I'm thinking, 'No, we don't. That's not our thing.' We're trying to play the best that we can play and as hard as we can play.

"The other thing is one of our kids is standing there and he said, 'Whatever happened to just winning the game?' And I said 'That's why we don't listen to these guys. You just play hard and that's what it's all about.'"

While Boise State may need to win by a large amount to continue to impress pollsters, a win by any margin will satisfy Petersen in a must-win game for the Broncos.

Prediction: Boise State 44, Hawaii 31.

Hornets top Heat, stay unbeaten

NEW ORLEANS — Emeka Okafor had 26 points and 13 rebounds, and Chris Paul had 13 points and 19 assists, and the New Orleans Hornets remained unbeaten with a 96-93 victory over the Miami Heat on Friday night.

David West added 15 points, including crucial free throws with 7.2 seconds to go after Chris Bosh's 3 had pulled Miami to 94-93. Dwyane Wade gave up a 3-point attempt to tie and passed to Eddie House, whose shot rimmed out in the final seconds.

Miami did not take its first lead until LeBron James' free throws made it 90-89 with 59.8 seconds left, but the Hornets responded by Marco Belinelli's free throws, and then Trevor Ariza's 3.

Wade led all scorers with 28 points, including 12 points in the fourth quarter, and went 13 of 13 from the foul line.

CAVALIERS 123, 76ERS 116

PHILADELPHIA — Anderson Varejao had 23 points and 12 rebounds, Daniel Gibson scored 20 points and the Cleveland

Cavaliers recovered in the fourth quarter after blowing a 19-point lead.

Mo Williams scored 22 points and J.J. Hickson had 16 for the Cavaliers, who won for the first time since beating Boston on opening night.

CELTICS 110, BULLS 105, OT

BOSTON — Kevin Garnett chased down Joakim Noah and tipped the ball away from behind with 14 seconds left.

Garnett scored 16 points with 10 rebounds, and he also drew an offensive foul on Derrick Rose with Boston nursing a three-point lead in overtime. Ray Allen, who scored 25 points, followed with a layup on an assist from Rajon Rondo to make it a five-point game.

After Luol Deng tipped in Kyle Korver's airball, Chicago had a chance to cut it to one point when Noah tried to take off on a fast break. But Garnett ran him down and tipped the ball to Big Baby Davis; he hit the foul shots to clinch it.

HAWKS 113, TIMBERWOLVES 103

MINNEAPOLIS — Jamal Crawford came back from a one-game absence due to a toe injury to score a season-high 22 points in his super-reserve role for undefeated Atlanta.

Josh Smith had 20 points, eight rebounds, six assists and five more blocked shots, and the Hawks improved to 6-0 despite a low-impact performance by star Joe Johnson for the second straight game. Mike Bibby had 15 points and Al Horford added 14 points and 12 rebounds.

KNICKS 112, WIZARDS 91

NEW YORK — Toney Douglas had 19 points and 10 rebounds, Raymond Felton added 13 points and 10 assists, and the New York Knicks spoiled Gilbert Arenas' return to NBA action.

The Knicks' point guard combo outplayed the more heralded duo of No. 1 draft pick John Wall and Arenas, who played in his first regular-season game in 10 months. And the Knicks' guards had much more help up front, with Amare Stoudemire scoring 18 points and Danilo Gallinari chipping in 16.

BUCKS 94, PACERS 90

INDIANAPOLIS — John Salmons scored 22 points and Brandon Jennings scored 18 points and Luc Mbah a Moute added 10 points and 15 rebounds for the Bucks (2-4).

Danny Granger and Darren Collison both scored 19 points for the Pacers (2-3), who have lost two straight. Roy Hibbert had 14 points, 12 rebounds and six blocks, but he shot 4 for 11 from the field. The Pacers committed 19 turnovers, including seven by Granger and six by Hibbert.

PISTONS 97, BOBCATS 90

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. — Ben Gordon scored 20 points and Tayshaun Prince had 14 to lead the Detroit Pistons to their first win of the season.

Detroit (1-5) was off to its worst start since going 0-7 in 1980, but never trailed against the Bobcats. Charlotte fell to 1-4.

MAGIC 105, NETS 90

ORLANDO, Fla. — Dwight Howard had 30 points and 16 rebounds, and the Orlando Magic beat New Jersey for the fourth straight time.

Howard finished 9 for 13 shooting to power the Magic to their second straight win since they were routed by Miami last week. The NBA's twice reigning defensive player of the year also gave Brook Lopez fits in one of the worst offensive games of the young center's career.

Westwood 1 shot back at HSBC Champions

SHANGHAI — Lee Westwood figured a 5-wood would be enough to carry the water on the par-5 18th and set up an easy birdie for a share of the lead Friday at the HSBC Champions.

Only when he got to the green did he realize the hole was closer to the edge of a slope than usual, and that his position some 15 yards left of the pin made it nearly impossible to keep it on the green. He had to settle for par, leaving him one shot behind Francesco Molinari.

"That's why you shouldn't play golf by memory," he said after a 2-under 70.

That was only one shot on one hole.

As for the rest of the game, Westwood has total recall. It does not look as though the Englishman is playing in only his second tournament since the first week of August. He was on a roll this year, and the only difference now is the No. 1 ranking next to his name.

In his first tournament since replacing Tiger Woods atop the world ranking, Westwood didn't know what to expect from his game in the final World Golf Championship of the year.

"Everything is pretty competitive in my game," Westwood said. "It's a good performance the first two rounds to come back. I'm pleasantly surprised with how well I've played."

Ernie Els played it like he had nothing to lose, firing at flags on a day when a slightly stronger breeze made scoring slightly harder. Not for the Big Easy, who made eight birdies in a round of 65 and was only two shots behind.

Tiger Woods was still in the mix, just not as close to the lead as he would like. Woods hit into the water on the par-5 second, recovered with a pair of birdies, then dropped three shots in a four-hole stretch around the turn. All the putts inside 10 feet that he made in the opening round stayed out on Friday.

Frustration set in late in the round, especially with his final tee shot that he hooked into the rough. Woods let the driver fall from his hands, then he kicked the club about five yards in front of the tee box.

He shot 72, and was five shots out of the lead in the only World Golf Championship he has not won.

"Struggled a little bit," he said later. "Didn't hit it very good and had a couple of three-putts there, and had five lip-outs. So my score could have been worse, but it also could have been a lot better."

TWO SHARE LEAD AT MIZUNO CLASSIC

SHIMA, Japan — South Korea's Jiyai Shin and Japan's Yukari Baba shot 7-under 65s at Kintetsu Kashikojima to share the first-round lead in the Mizuno Classic.

Shin, No. 1 in the world rankings, won the tournament in 2008.

Morgan Pressel opened with a 66, and Na Yeon Choi, coming off a successful title defense last week in South Korea in the LPGA Hana Bank Championship, was two strokes back at 67 along with Miki Saiki, Karine Icher, Meena Lee and Chie Arimura. Japan's Ai Miyazato, a five-time winner on the LPGA Tour this season, shot a 72.

COOK SHOOTS 69 AT CHARLES SCHWAB CUP CHAMPIONSHIP

SAN FRANCISCO — Defending champion John Cook shot a 2-under 69 at Harding Park to take a one-stroke lead over Tom Kite and Tom Lehman in the Champions Tour's season-ending Charles Schwab Cup Championship.

A day after opening with seven birdies in a bogey-free 64, Cook was even par through 15 holes before he eagled the par-4 16th. He followed with pars on the final two holes to get to 9-under 133.

Last year, Cook won at Sonoma Golf Club.

Kite had a 67, and Lehman shot a 68.

Mark O'Meara (65), Russ Cochran (68) and Fred Funk (70) were 7 under, and Schwab Cup points leader Bernard Langer (69) was in a group at 6 under after a double bogey on No. 17. Fred Couples was 4 under after a 69.

Johnson can't afford Texas trouble in close Chase

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Jimmie Johnson arrived at Texas last fall with a huge lead and a bunch of different favorable scenarios for winning another Sprint Cup title. Not even a third-lap crash derailed his championship effort.

Johnson is back at the 11/2-mile high-banked track again in the lead with three races left.

Except this time he can't afford any more Texas trouble. Johnson is barely in front in the closest three-way Chase for the Sprint Cup championship to date, with only 38 points separating him, Denny Hamlin and Kevin Harvick.

While there is no margin for error — or big wrecks — like in the past, Johnson insists he feels no extra pressure.

"It is really easy what I need to do. I need to win the race, I need to finish ahead of the 11 (Hamlin) and the 29 (Harvick), and I think that's going to mean winning the race," Johnson said Friday.

"Other weeks coming into Texas concerned the mind in more of a defensive mode trying to protect and worrying about things," he said. "It's all offense right now. So I feel really good about things and feel less pressure for this Texas race than I did last year."

Johnson qualified 17th for the 501-mile race Sunday, ahead of both Harvick (26th) and Hamlin (30th).

So confident that the Chase was already over at this point last fall, Texas Motor Speedway president and showman Eddie Gossage had a fat lady ready to sing at the end of the race.

Jockeys Borel, Castellano fight at Breeders' Cup

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Jockeys Calvin Borel and Javier Castellano turned the winner's circle at Churchill Downs into an impromptu boxing ring, trading punches moments after the opening race of the Breeders' Cup on Friday afternoon.

Borel charged Castellano shortly after the $500,000 Breeders' Cup Marathon, angry over a dangerous mid-race move that endangered Borel and fellow rider Martin Garcia.

The two jockeys were near the weigh-in station next to the winner's circle when things grew heated.

The 43-year-old Borel pointed a finger at the 33-year-old Castellano. The 5-foot-1, 110-pound Castellano then took a swing at Borel, four inches taller than his rival. Security officials struggled to separate the two, holding an enraged Borel who urged them to let him go back at Castellano.

It took several minutes for Borel — his eyes bugging out and his face a deep shade of red — to be restrained.

In an interview with ESPN as he rode out for the Juvenile Fillies race, Borel said he and Castellano had patched things up.

"I want to apologize to everybody," Borel said as he was interviewed aboard Tell A Kelly. "It's over. It's all good. We talked."

Borel was escorted to the paddock by eight security officers for that race. A fan shouted, "Kick some (butt), Calvin!"

Borel declined to speak to reporters following the Juvenile Fillies, though he did stop to talk to trainer John Sadler after Tell A Kelly finished seventh. His agent, Jerry Hissam, said his client "just wants to ride."

Kentucky chief state steward John Veitch said officials will review videotape of the incident and interview both riders. If officials find either jockey at fault, penalties could range from a warning to a suspension. Veitch said neither rider had previously been disciplined for fighting.

UNRIVALED BELLE WINS BC LADIES' CLASSIC

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — A jockey brawl in the winner's circle and long-shot victories made for a wild opening day at the Breeders' Cup, capped by Unrivaled Belle's victory in the $2 million Ladies' Classic under the lights Friday at Churchill Downs.

Unrivaled Belle ran 1 1-8 miles in 1:50.04, winning by 1 3/4 lengths over 3-2 favorite Blind Luck.

Jockeys Calvin Borel and Javier Castellano traded punches after the first Breeders' Cup race, with an enraged Borel needing to be restrained. He was furious about a move in tight quarters by Castellano.

Shared Account scored the second-biggest upset in the event's 27-year history, winning the $2 million Filly & Mare Turf at 46-1 odds on a gray and chilly day.

American horses won all of the six races. No jockey or trainer won more than one race on a day where horses and riders got around safely.

SADLER TAKES 1ST POLE SINCE '06

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Elliott Sadler called Friday "the first day of the rest of my life." If so, it was a pretty good start. Barely an hour after announcing a deal that will put him in one of Kevin Harvick's Nationwide Series cars next year, Sadler blew away the field in qualifying for Sunday's Sprint Cup race in Texas. He zipped around the high-banked 1 1/2-mile track in 195.397 mph, nearly 2 mph better than front-row partner Greg Biffle. Facing an uncertain future in NASCAR's top series, Sadler took his first pole since the spring 2006 race at Talladega. His last win was Sept. 5, 2004, in California. The eighth pole of Sadler's career was less than a mph off the track's four-year-old qualifying record.

TO DO GOOD

KAREN BOSSICK/For the Times-News

Members of Hailey's Masonic Lodge recently celebrated their 125th anniversary with Masons from Twin Falls, Bliss, Hagerman, Glenn's Ferry and Challis. Hailey resident Ted Angle, pictured here, is buoyed by the fact that new members joining the lodge are younger members in their 30s and 40s.

Membership in Hailey Masonic Lodge on upswing

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — Nyal Pedersen kept waiting for his father-in-law to invite him to join the Masons.

The invite never came. Masons, it turned out, don't recruit members. They wait for them to approach.

Despite their low-key approach, membership in the Masonic Lodge of Hailey is on the upswing at a time when many such organizations are closing their doors. After tapering off during the 1970s, the Hailey Lodge boasts more than 40 members, even as membership in Masons statewide has declined from 11,000 in 1982 to 4,388 members and the number of lodges has declined to 56.

Members of Hailey's Masonic Lodge, in fact, just celebrated their 125th anniversary with Masons from Twin Falls, Bliss, Hagerman, Glenn's Ferry and Challis. And they're starting to make their presence felt in the community, providing scholarships for youth, assisting needy families, helping to host a solar energy fair and participating in Hailey's Fourth of July Parade for the first time in decades.

Masonry artifacts, including a book telling about 'the legend of the craft,' are displayed in the foyer of Hailey's Masonic Lodge.

"The character of the people I've met in the Masonic brotherhood has not let me down."
— Nyal Pedersen

One of the lures, Pedersen said, is the fraternity's allegiance to "making good men better" at a time when the ethics and morality of society seem to be in tatters.

"The character of the people I've met in the Masonic brotherhood has not let me down," said Pedersen, a roofer.

Freemasonry, the granddaddy of fraternal organizations, had its beginnings in 1717 England. But some trace it back to the stonemasons who built medieval Europe's cathedrals and castles and, perhaps even, to those who built Solomon's temple in biblical times.

Its membership rolls include 13 signers of the American Constitution, 14 presidents including George Washington, and 17 of Idaho's 30 governors, including Cecil Andrus and the state's current governor C.L. "Butch" Otter.

Other notables include Ludwig van Beethoven, Davy Crockett, Harry Houdini, Wolfgang A. Mozart, Will Rogers, John Wayne and Red Skelton.

Because their meetings are closed to the public, Freemasons have attained an aura of mystery and been accused of everything from conceiving the United States as an experiment in Masonic principles to practicing the occult.

Pope John Paul II, fearful that the lodge with its tem-

MORE ABOUT MASONS

Freemasonry is the oldest and largest fraternal organization in the world with 2.5 million Freemasons in North America and 6 million worldwide from Iceland to Brazil. Here are some Masonic principles:

- Faith must be the center of our lives.
- All men and women are the children of God.
- No one has the right to tell another person what he or she must think or believe.
- Each person has a responsibility to be a good citizen, obeying the law.
- It is important to work to make the world a better place for all.
- Moral doctrines include tenets of brotherly love, relief and truth.
- Cardinal values are temperance, fortitude, prudence and justice.

ples, altars and oaths was anti-Catholic, once proclaimed that Catholics involved in Masonic associations could not take Holy Communion. And just recently "The Da Vinci Code" author Dan Brown added to Freemasonry's enigma in his book "The Lost Symbol," painting a picture of bejeweled power brokers drinking from a wine-filled skull in a dark temple just steps away from the White House.

It's true that Masonry's symbols can be found everywhere — from the all-seeing eye on a dollar bill to the rituals used by the Mormon church.

But everything Masons do, from the "secret handshake" to passwords, can be found on the Internet, said Hailey resident Ted Angle,

Malta's LDS faithful to celebrate centennial

By Judy Albertson
Times-News writer

Malta faithful have reason to celebrate next weekend when the Malta Ward of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints will celebrate its centennial.

Theme of the celebration will be "Families to Match the Mountains," a pageant written by former ward member Janie Thompson, said Janis Warr, an organizer of the event.

The historical pageant will be performed at 3 and 6:30 p.m. Nov. 13 at the Raft River High School Auditorium. Guests will be Janie Thompson & Family and the Udy Sisters.

"The Thompson and Udy families are former members and are, or have been, professional performers," Warr said. "We have a 65-member Centennial choir that will also be part of Saturday's performances and a 25-member children's choir who will join the adult choir for one number."

Many of the Thompson family have either been or are members of the Tabernacle Choir. Janie Thompson is the former director of the Lamanite Generation and the BYU program bureau, Warr said.

Sunday Fireside will be at 6 p.m., Nov. 14, at the Malta LDS chapel.

"The fireside on Sunday evening is more spiritual in nature and will focus on the growth of the church and strength of the families who live here," Warr said.

The Malta Ward was organized on Nov. 13, 1910, with Thomas Taylor Jr. as bishop. There were 246 members at that time. Today, there are two wards — Malta 1st and 2nd with more than 1,200 members.

"We are publishing a book that details the early settlers of the valley, beginning in 1871," Warr said.

Those first men were cattlemen. The farmers and sheepmen arrived in the late 1890s. Those men were mostly members of the LDS church — the Mormons, Warr said.

"The book celebrates all the families of the valley, both members of the LDS church and our good friends and neighbors of other faiths," Warr said.

The commemorative book is available for $6. Anyone can pre-order by calling Susan Holtman at 431-7607 or Warr at 645-2485.

Members of the Centennial committee are Janis Warr, chair with Mary Alice Telford, Jay Harper, Jay Cottle, Cedric Taylor, Margie Neff and Clara Beyler. The group has been planning the event since January.

The events are open to the public.

"We are inviting all members, friends, and former residents to come to our celebration," Warr said.

Judy Albertson may be reached at 678-1536 or jalbertson@lee.net.

Solicitor general surprises justices in religious schools case

By David G. Savage
Tribune Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Obama administration upset liberals as well as the president's two Supreme Court appointees Wednesday by arguing that ordinary citizens have no legal right to go to court to challenge the government if it uses tax money to fund religious schools.

The surprising argument came in this term's most important church-state dispute. At issue is the constitutionality of an unusual, 13-year-old Arizona law that allows taxpayers to direct a $500 tax credit to a private organization, which in turn pays tuition for students in private schools. More than 90 percent of the money goes to religious schools, the challengers said.

Acting U.S. Solicitor General Neal Katyal joined Arizona in defense of the law, but went further and argued no one had the legal standing to challenge it in court. Since no citizen could prove that "a cent ... of his money goes to fund religion," no one had a right to sue over the alleged unconstitutional subsidy for religion, Katyal said.

Justices Ruth Bader Ginsburg and Stephen G. Breyer quickly objected. If no one can sue, there would be no way to enforce the First Amendment's ban on laws that foster "an establishment of religion," they said.

SERVING THE LORD,

The Rev. Shauna Hyde poses in the sanctuary at the Christ Church United Methodist, Oct. 20 in Charleston W.Va. Along with being the pastor at the church she is an expert in karate and in 2006 was inducted into the U.S.A. International Black Belt Hall of Fame.

ONE KARATE CHOP AT A TIME

Winding path leads karate expert to become pastor

By Charlotte Ferrell Smith
Charleston Daily Mail

CHARLESTON, W.Va. — The Rev. Shauna Hyde believes God provides spiritual as well as physical power.

Aside from being armed with Biblical knowledge, she is an expert in karate and in 2006 was inducted into the U.S.A. International Black Belt Hall of Fame.

A winding path led her to Christ Church United Methodist in Charleston, where she began serving as pastor of parish life in June.

“I focus on the life of the congregation and the community,” she said. “I am naturally inclined toward pastoral care. I visit a steady stream of people and get calls all day long. That’s fine with me.”

Hyde believes she was always meant to enter the ministry. However, as a child, she just didn’t know a woman could become a pastor.

She was born in Greenville, S.C., and grew up in Colorado. She was one of four children and her father was a Nazarene minister who believed in daily family devotions.

“We grew up with theology lessons,” she said. “I was 14 when I asked for a study Bible. All of the cats on our ranch were baptized.”

She graduated from high school in Colorado and then earned a degree in biology and chemistry from Marietta College in Ohio. She was working as a chemist when an ad caught her eye about a church in need of a piano player.

“I got hired and they sent a woman pastor,” she said. “I thought, ‘Wow. Women can do that.’”

She approached the pastor one day about her own desire to become a minister. The pastor responded, “I’ve been waiting for you to tell me.”

She went to pastoral ministry licensing school and served two United Methodist churches in St.

Mary’s, W.Va. Last June, she graduated from United Theological Seminary in Dayton, Ohio.

Then the bishop appointed her associate pastor at Christ Church United Methodist, where the Rev. Randall Flanagan is lead pastor.

“I think it’s a good fit because the area is really wonderful,” she said. “This church is active and dynamic. I like that. I can find out what I’m really good at.”

One of her strengths is talking with people who have been abused.

She knows firsthand how it feels to suffer the demeaning and painful abuse of a controlling partner. She openly shares the story of how she ended the relationship and resolutely studied karate so that nobody could hurt her like that again. She holds a second-degree black belt.

She also depends upon the knowledge of the Bible and points to Philippians 4:13: “I can do everything through Christ, who gives me strength.”

She teaches a workshop entitled “Victim No More!” on physical and spiritual self-defense. She travels to conferences, retreats, brunches, evening church services, youth events and seminars.

“God never meant for us to be victims,” she said.

Hyde, 39, is the mother of 19-year-old Alex Ruble, who is studying music at Alderson-Broadus College.

Two years ago she married Wayne Hollandsworth, who she met in a karate class. He is in charge of quality control at Hino Motors in Williamstown.

She enjoys daily devotions, going to the gym, spending time with family and reaching out to others.

“I work really hard to never judge people,” she said. “I want this to be a safe place. Whatever people need to say, they can come to me. Without some of the experiences I have had, I wouldn’t know the importance of being in a safe place.”

St. Edwards hosts harvest festival

St. Edwards Catholic Church will host its annual Harvest Festival Fundraiser today at the Parish Hall, 212 Seventh Ave. E. in Twin Falls.

A children’s carnival will take place from 3 to 8 p.m. An old-fashioned ham and turkey dinner with all the trimmings will be served from 4 to 7 p.m. Cost is $8 for adults, $5 for children or $25 for a family.

The event also includes a silent auction and country store. Cash prizes of $1,000, $300 and $200 will be given away.

Ascension Episcopal Church donates quilts

Ascension Episcopal Church, 371 Eastland Drive N. in Twin Falls, will bless six denim jean quilts during services at 8 and 10 a.m. Sunday. Safe House director Val Stotts will attend the 10 a.m. service to receive the quilts for the Safe House. She also will be available during Ascension Café at 9:10 a.m. to answer questions.

Safe House is a shelter home for youth from 11 to 18 who need a consistent structured environment to succeed. When youth graduate from the Safe House program, they are given their choice of quilt or blanket to take with them.

This is the second year Ascension has made and donated quilts to Safe House.

Schools

Justice Sonia Sotomayor appeared to agree, commenting that “this is the state’s money” going to private groups that fund only religious schools.

Justice Elena Kagan, Katyal’s boss until she joined the court in August, also objected to Katyal’s argument on Wednesday. She ticked off a series of landmark rulings that rejected state aid to parochial schools. “So, if you are right, the court was without authority to decide” those cases, “but somehow nobody on the court recognized that fact?” she asked.

“My answer to you is yes,” he said.

At this, Justice Anthony M. Kennedy, a key swing vote, called for a pause. “I just want to make sure I heard your answer. Your answer is ‘yes?’” he asked. “Those cases were wrongly decided?”

Katyal said the court may have the right to say the states had wrongly subsidized religion, but he insisted no taxpayer had the standing to sue.

While technical, the issue of standing has emerged as crucial in the continuing dispute over church-state separation. In the past, advocates of church-state separation have sued to object when a city, for example, puts a religious symbol on public property. But in recent years, the court’s leading conservatives, including Chief Justice John G.

Roberts Jr. and Justice Antonin Scalia, have questioned whether such persons have standing to sue, since they cannot prove they were injured.

A ruling in the Arizona case has the potential to be far-reaching if the court were to agree with Katyal and broadly shield the government from legal claims that it is wrongly diverting public money to aid religion.

Liberal advocates said they were taken aback by the administration’s stand.

“The brief they filed is the same that would have been filed by the Bush administration,” said Erwin Chemerinsky, dean of the University of California Irvine Law School. “There is no reason for the Obama administration to get involved in this case, let alone to take the conservative position that there is no standing.”

The Rev. Barry Lynn, executive director of Americans United for Separation of Church and State, called the administration’s stand “inexplicable.”

What are YOU thankful for this year?

Times-News

Thanksgiving, it often seems, is overlooked between the year’s two big commercial sales days, Halloween and Christmas.

Yet religious faithful are all about being thankful to a higher power. The Times-News would like to hear what religious folk — that means YOU — are thankful for this year, to be compiled in a Nov. 20 article.

Send comments by 5 p.m. Nov. 11, with your name and contact information, to Religion Editor Andrew Weeks at aweeks@magicvalley.com. Include “Thankful” in the subject line. Only your name and the city where you live will be published. Submissions are subject to editing for grammar, clarity and length.

Masons

who has been a Mason since 1986.

“There were good reasons for secrecy during periods of political or religious strife,” he said. “The ‘Indians’ who dumped the tea during the Boston Tea Party, for instance, were said to be Masons.”

Called “the Brotherhood of Man under the Fatherhood of God,” Masonry’s singular purpose is to make good men better, Angle said. To achieve that, the fraternity requires a belief in a Supreme Being, and for each man to practice his faith as he sees fit to do good in the world.

Indeed, North American Masons contribute more than $2 million a day to charitable causes, including the Scottish Rite’s childhood language disorder clinics and the Shriner’s hospitals, which offer free care for children who have been burned or have orthopedic problems.

The Hailey Lodge was established in 1884 while Idaho was yet a territory — more than 20 years after Masonic lodges had been established in Silver City, Idaho City and Florence mining camps.

The original hall was destroyed by fire in 1889 that destroyed most of Hailey’s downtown. The second lodge, built at what is now the Bullion Square shopping center, burned in 1927.

John Rutter, a Mason born in Cornwall, England in 1888, built the current lodge in 1937 across the street from the historic Emmanuel Episcopal Church.

It was one of many notable projects for Rutter, who also built The Liberty Theatre, Rialto Hotel, Guyer Hot Springs hotel and pool, St. Thomas Episcopal Church, St. Charles Parish Hall, the Christiana Club, Blaine Manor and Hailey Medical Center, the Harris Block furniture store and apartments and even Hailey’s city water system.

The lodge, now on the National Register of Historic Places, is a one-story rectangular building covered with red brick brought from Salt Lake City. An arched medallion with the Masonic square and compass is centered over the double-door entryway.

The building is lit by natural light streaming through multi-paned sash windows, and four glass tear drop shaped ceiling lights hanging from 12-foot ceilings and dimmed by hand crank.

A slightly raised platform with a row of auditorium-style seats runs along each side of the room. At each end, aligned east to west in keeping with the east-west orientation of King Solomon’s temple, is a dais with ornate wood chairs and podiums.

In the center is a wooden podium and padded kneeler.

“One of the cool things is that you see all walks of life — doctors, lawyers, masons, motorcycle riders, laborers. But during closing, the Master asks the Senior Warden how we should leave. And he answers, ‘On the level.’ That’s when we all step down to the same level, no matter who we are. That speaks volumes,” said Angle.

The monthly meetings include discussion about public service projects in between prayers and the Pledge of Allegiance. But they also include rituals and instruction using stone cutter’s tools such as the square and compass as symbols designed to chisel “good men into better men.”

“At one point, we ask how we’re to act. ‘By the plumb’ — that is, to conduct ourselves in an upright matter,” Angle said.

Angle didn’t become a Mason until 1986 because his career as a military pilot kept him on the move. He wishes he would have joined earlier.

“My father was a Mason. And I never met a person who was a Mason that I didn’t respect. And that speaks volumes. I wanted to be part of it, perpetuate it,” he said.

The Hailey membership grew from 11 at its beginning to a high of 225 during War Years. At one time, Lodge members used to hold ceremonies on top of Baldy, restricting those riding the chairlifts to Masons, when Union Pacific owned Sun Valley Resort and many of Sun Valley’s employees were Masons.

Today’s Masons are talking about restoring that tradition, Angle said.

Only men can be Masons. That doesn’t bother Nyal Pedersen’s wife, Meeka, because she believes men need time with men and women time with women.

She belonged to Job’s Daughter’s, the girl’s offshoot of the Masons, as a girl. And now she belongs to Daughters of the Nile, joining other Masons’ wives in Twin Falls and Gooding.

“I’ve known many of the people in this group for 41 years, so the meetings give us a chance to catch up on family while we’re making pillow cases or stuffed animals or blankets for children in hospitals,” she said.

Meeka said she was impressed with how Masonry brought out the best in her father. She’s seen the same thing happen with her husband.

“It makes you want to be a better person, to live up to what they stand for,” Nyal said.

How can faiths get along?

McClatchy Newspapers

EMBRACE NON VIOLENCE

Rabbi Mark Levin of Congregation Beth Torah, Overland Park, Kan.: Religions should disagree. They present alternative visions of reality.

Religious people living harmoniously, without physically attacking one another, requires principled adherence to non-violence. All religions agree on the Golden Rule, some variety of: "Love your neighbor as yourself." Sane people prefer not to be attacked or die for beliefs.

But conflicts occur as in politics: when persuasion fails to win the day, brute force becomes a tool. When all faiths embrace non violence as an absolute principle, all faiths will get along. They will mutually respect the integrity of the other and plan not only for their own future but the peaceful future of "the other" as well.

Too often religious belief becomes a tool of politics. Judaism and Islam include peoplehood within religion. Therefore, Jews and Muslims are inherently concerned about sacred space as well as belief. The Christian Crusaders waged war to capture the Holy Land. An argument ostensibly over belief is often actually over ego, power, conquest or wealth.

In the Middle East you have those factors in combination. For centuries Jews and Muslims coexisted relatively peacefully. But now the politics of the region alongside the fears of the participants result in war.

Truly religious people wage war only when actually physically attacked. Peaceful coexistence requires recognizing God's image in all humans, as the Bible states (Genesis 5:1).

BRIDGE THE GAP

The Rev. Fran T. Cary, pastor of Trinity A.M.E. Church, Kansas City, Kan.: In this week's question, "What would it take for all faiths to get along?" the first thing we must acknowledge is that faiths are made up of people. People always have had differences in what they think, how they live, what they do and what they believe.

Because it is so important for each faith to be right, people often overlook the person as an individual and reject them because their faith is contrary to theirs. In many countries religious leaders are coming together and looking at what is good for the communities in which they live. They are bridging the gap of their own doctrines and looking at how to connect societal gaps for the good of the people.

As a Christian, I believe Jesus said it best: "Love your neighbor as yourself" (Matthew 22:39). In a word, regardless of our faith, culture or color, we must do everything in our power, through all the possible varieties of circumstances, for others, which we would wish them to do for us, were our situations reversed.

In my opinion, there is absolutely no reason why all faiths should not get along. As humans, our commonality should stem from a desire for all to bear the fruit of the Spirit.

This Spirit produces in each of us love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness and faith (Galatians 5:22).

LDS church calls new Twin Falls temple president

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints has called Karl E. Nelson to serve as president of the Twin Falls Idaho Temple. His wife, Beverly Nelson, will serve as temple matron.

President and Sister Nelson lived in the Filer area for a number of years, where they raised their family and where Nelson worked as manager of the sales division of Darigold.

Nelson's church service includes that of Filer stake president, area seventy, president of the India Bangalore Mission, and first counselor in the Twin Falls Temple presidency.

Assisting President Nelson in his new calling are Paul Young, of Burley, who will serve as first counselor and temple recorder; and Ray Olsen, of Jerome, who will serve as second counselor and temple engineer. Their spouses, Susan Young and Barbara Olsen, will serve as assistants to the temple matron.

The changes take effect today.

Thousands protest pope's upcoming visit to Spain

By Sinikka Tarvainen
McClatchyTribune

BARCELONA, Spain — Thousands of people demonstrated Thursday against the upcoming visit of Pope Benedict XVI to Spain, demanding a clear separation between church and state.

Carrying signs with slogans against the Roman Catholic Church's child molestation scandals and its ban on condoms, demonstrators gathered at a central square in Barcelona, the second stop of the pope's two-day visit.

After arriving Saturday in Spain, the pontiff is scheduled to celebrate a Mass at the pilgrimage site of Santiago de Compostela before heading to Barcelona, where he will consecrate the Sagrada Familia Basilica on Sunday.

Demonstrators criticized what they described as the

Neb. couple live Christian faith through ministry

By John Huthmacher
Hastings Tribune

HASTINGS, Neb. — To Wayne and Celia Ganow, working with teens in the Hastings Juvenile Chemical Dependency Program at the Hastings Regional Center is simply a way of living their shared Christian faith.

Wayne, a retired dentist, is a part-time teacher in Central Community College-Hastings' dental hygiene program. He and Celia have been involved in prison ministry with adults and adolescents since the mid-1970s.

Working with the Youth For Christ outreach ministry, their mission is to intervene for good in human affairs, extending a hand of hope to those who have none.

"We're trying to get them on a different track," Wayne said. "We feel like the (HRC) program offers them a great deal, but if they're going to change, they need to change some spiritual things in their lives."

"A lot of them are hurting," Celia said. "They realize that from getting put in that place that they have to make a change. A lot of them are just wanting a mom or a dad, too."

The couple meet with teens each Monday night at the Regional Center, aided by volunteers from churches around the city. These meetings include the reading of Scripture and group discussion.

Typically, the central figures in these shared Bible stories are individuals who've overcome evil with good.

Models of everyday people who've broken free from destructive behaviors aided by a higher power can be effective tools in the conversion process, Wayne said.

"We try to point out Scriptures where they find out there are characters who've had the same issues they've had, the same amount of anger, resentment and bad behavior and that there is hope for them, too."

Sadly, the very idea of hope itself is often foreign to the teens.

"When they come from a dysfunctional family, there are families dysfunctional enough that drug use was going on there," he said. "I've talked to young men whose drug use began right there in the family, and at some remarkably young ages. "When you start working with them at that level, there's an accumulation of issues that they have, and an anger and hostility that sometimes accompanies them.

"That's something we try to defuse. Sometimes when you listen to stories you wonder how you can ask them to forgive treatment like that. But we try to point out that linked to those experiences is their behavior toward other people, where they start doing the same things."

Sometimes just listening and being there for them is enough to leave a lasting impression, Wayne said. Other times, peer pressure or long-term drug usage prove too great an obstacle to overcome.

Having a mentor willing to hold them accountable for their actions is an important component in the reformation process, Wayne said.

"That's the biggest key," he said. "If they've got a commitment to meet with a mentor and be straight with that person, we see success rates increase."

Baptist provide meals at jail

OKLAHOMA CITY — Volunteers from the Baptist General Convention of Oklahoma are providing meal service to inmates and workers at the Oklahoma County jail after a drain collapse in the facility's kitchen.

Sheriff John Whetsel says the kitchen will be under repair until next week. The Baptist convention's disaster relief teams stepped in and served 2,200 hot meals on Monday.

Sam Porter, the leader of the Baptist relief teams, says the volunteers will stay until they're not needed anymore. He says they see the situation as a "major ministry" for Oklahoma County in a time of need.

Whetsel says the Baptist teams are saving the jail from having to rent a mobile kitchen, which would cost about $23,000.

Catholic priest drowns during island vacation

MANILA, Philippines — A Roman Catholic religious order says an American missionary drowned during a vacation on an island south of the Philippine capital.

The director of the Pontifical Institute for Foreign Missions said the Rev. Steve Baumbusch's body was found last Friday, a day after he disappeared while swimming off Lubang Island.

The 53-year-old missionary from Columbus, Ohio, had been working in the Philippines since 1998.

Elmer Walter Ehlers

EDEN — Beloved father, grandfather and brother, Elmer Walter Ehlers of Eden was called home to the arms of his Savior, Jesus Christ, on Wednesday, Nov. 3, 2010, after a long and courageous battle against Parkinson's disease.

Born April 4, 1921, to Walter and Olga Ehlers on the home farm in Eden, Elmer spent most of his life on the farm. Elmer was baptized and confirmed in faith at Trinity Lutheran Church Eden.

He graduated from Eden High School in 1942. In 1945, during World War II, he was drafted into the U.S. Navy, where he served stateside as a hospital corpsman, Pharmacist Mate 3rd Class until he was honorably discharged from Clearfield, Utah, in 1946. He returned to help his folks' farm and then later took over the operations.

He loved to fish and hunt. Once while on a fishing trip at Camp Perkins, he found himself hooked by the lovely camp cook, Karen Brown, whom he married on Jan. 12, 1962, in Farmington, Mich. With his wife, Elmer increased the farm and added a custom work business. Elmer attended Trinity Lutheran Church Eden, all of his life, where he served as treasurer and elder throughout the years.

Elmer and Karen had three children, Rebecca, Amy and David. Elmer was preceded in death by his parents, Walter and Olga Ehlers; his brother, Marvin Ehlers; his wife, Karen Ehlers; and his daughters, Rebecca and Amy.

Survivors include his son, David (Jane) Ehlers; his grandchildren, Jonathon Ehlers and Catherine Ehlers of Eden; and his sister, Bernice (Mark) Hiatt of San Diego, Calif.

The family would like to extend their thanks to the staffs of Bridgeview Estates and Hospice Visions, who have been so supportive and caring to both Karen and Elmer during the past year.

A viewing will be held from 4 to 6 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 7, at White Mortuary "Chapel by the Park." A graveside service will be at 10 a.m. Monday, Nov. 8, at Sunset Memorial Park, with a memorial service to be held at 11 a.m. at Trinity Lutheran Church, Eden.

Memorial contributions may be made in Elmer's name to the Lutheran Hour Ministries or a charity of your choice.

Geraldine 'Gerry' Musgrave

EAGLE — Geraldine 'Gerry' (Macaw) Musgrave passed away peacefully at home on Monday, Nov. 1, 2010, just three months after celebrating her 100th birthday on July 31.

An Idaho pioneer, Gerry and her twin sister, Pauline, were the first pair of twins born in Twin Falls County in 1910. In 1927, Gerry married the love of her life, Frank Musgrave, and after 57 wonderful years of marriage, he passed away in 1985.

Along with her twin sister, Gerry had two brothers and two other sisters who all preceded her in death.

Aside from a brief time in California during the Second World War, Gerry lived all her life in Filer, then in the Boise/Eagle area. Although she traveled to visit family in Los Angeles and Chicago, she was a small-town girl at heart. She loved her hobbies and was an avid collector of many things; she especially loved her Betty Boop dolls. She was known for her "sweet tooth" and always had candy by her side. She also enjoyed reading about the history of the Old West, as well as having a fascination with discoveries in ancient archeology. Gerry lived her life for her loving family. Gerry was also preceded in death by her parents, MJ and Deborah Boyer Macaw; her son-in-law, Gene Knight; her grandson, Michael "Mickey" F. Knight; and great-grandson, Michael Knight.

Gerry is survived by her one daughter, Ethelle Knight of Boise; and two grandchildren, Gregory G. Knight of Chicago and Eagle, and Frankie and David Edgar of Eagle, with whom she lived with for the last six years. In addition, she enjoyed five great-grandchildren and 10 great-great-grandchildren.

Her centenary celebration is a cherished memory for all her family and friends who attended, and she will be missed by all.

The family would like to thank Dr. Stott, Dr. Ludwig and Horizon Hospice for their loving care of Gerry.

A private graveside service will be scheduled for some time next spring at Twin Falls Cemetery.

To share memories with the family, please visit Gerry's memorial webpage at www.CloverdaleFuneral-Home.com.

William 'Bill' Ernest McIntyre

GOODING — William "Bill" Ernest McIntyre, 74, a resident of Gooding, died Wednesday, Nov. 3, 2010, at his home in Gooding with his wife; son, Tim; and daughter, Teresa, at his side.

He was born on July 30, 1936, in Sacramento, Calif., to Neal Ernest and Clara Meyer McIntyre. Bill was raised and educated in California. At the young age of 17 he joined the Marines.

He married Betty Webb and they had four sons. They later divorced. In 1963, Bill married Helen Martinez and they had two sons. In 1993, he married his special friend and love, Beverly Pope Higginbotham.

They resided in Gooding and practically lived at the bowling alleys. He won many awards, was on the travel league, and went to most of the nationals. He also loved to golf, garden, remodel his house and fix anything that was broken. Bill loved life and was a caring and happy person.

He is survived by his wife, Beverly; sons, Bill Jr. (LaRae), Neal (Victoria), Doug (Krista), Tim and Tom (Ann Marie); his grandchildren, Jeremy, Bobby Jo, Amy, Neal II, Nathen, Mandy, Tigger, Karlie, Tim Jr., Dennis, Kandis, Josh, Tommy, T.J. and Taylor; 23 great-grandchildren; his step-daughters, Teresa (Marshall) Henderson, Glenda Robinson, Sandra Dunn and Diana (Don) James; seven step-grandchildren; and six great-step-grandchildren; brother, Lee McIntyre; and sisters, Jane Parker and Diane Davis.

He was preceded in death by his parents; son, Thomas Eugene; and brother, Richard.

A graveside service will be held at 2 p.m. Monday, Nov. 8, 2010, at the Filer Cemetery in Filer, with military honors provided by the Magic Valley Vets and the Idaho Honor Guard.

Following the service, a meal will be provided by the family at 4 p.m. at the Golden Corral in Twin Falls. A visitation will be held from 4 to 7 p.m. Sunday Nov. 7, 2010, at Demaray Funeral Service, Gooding Chapel.

Condolences, memories and photos may be shared with the family online by visiting www.demarayfuneralservice.com.

Workers struggle against the wind to assemble a crane that will lift the 32-ton head and shoulders atop a giant concrete and metal statue of Jesus, Friday in Swiebodzín, western Poland.

Polish priest raising largest Jesus statue

By Vanessa Gera
Associated Press

SWIEBODZIN, Poland — Step aside, Rio de Janeiro. This town is building a Jesus bigger than yours.

A Polish priest is on the verge of realizing his dream of erecting what he says will be the world's largest statue of Jesus Christ in a small town in western Poland.

Attempts were made Friday to complete the statue — which will rise a couple yards higher than the iconic Christ the Redeemer monument in Rio de Janeiro. But heavy winds prevented cranes from lifting the torso, arms and head onto the lower half of the robed white figure.

Workers plan to try again just after sunrise Saturday. Polish media say the project cost 4 million zlotys ($1.45 million). Donations came from across the spectrum — from business people to poor people wanting to make a contribution to the church. Work on the statue began in 2008.

Many Poles are embarrassed by the project and accuse the priest, Rev. Sylwester Zawadzki, of megalomania. But town residents are thrilled by the new business they hope it will bring once believers in this deeply Roman Catholic country add it to their pilgrimage routes. They also hope that many Germans — who tend to be much more secular than Poles — will visit simply out of curiosity since the border with Germany is only 45 miles away.

"My friends in Warsaw are making fun of this, but we are happy about it," said Krystyna Skurzynska, a 68-year-old retired biology teacher who belongs to the priest's parish.

She said she hopes it will stimulate the economy and return some old glory to Swiebodzín, a town of 22,000 that was, as she put it, "a major town in the 13th century."

The mayor, Dariusz Bekisz, also is a fan.

"The biggest statue of Jesus Christ in the world will be in Swiebodzín," he said. "People will come and leave some of their money behind."

He has no use for those mocking the project as excessively grandiose: "When castles and the pyramids were built, there were always people who were laughing. But look at how many millions of people go to see such places and spend their money there now," he said.

Rescue workers retrieve bodies after plane crash kills 68 in Cuba

By Javier Galeano and Paul Haven
Associated Press

GUASIMAL, Cuba — Rescue workers on Friday pulled bodies from the charred wreckage of a state airliner that went down in rugged central Cuba, as desperate relatives gathered at the capital's airport and called foreign embassies seeking information on their loved ones.

All 68 people aboard AeroCaribbean Flight 883 were killed when the turbo-prop plane went down Thursday afternoon in a remote area near the village of Guasimal in Sancti Spiritus province.

Twenty-eight foreigners were among the dead, including nine Argentines, seven Mexicans, and citizens of Germany, Holland, Spain, Italy and other European countries. One Japanese national was also on board. It was Cuba's worst air disaster in more than 20 years.

The plane, carrying 61 passengers and an all-Cuban crew of seven, was en route to the capital from the main eastern city of Santiago de Cuba when it reported an emergency at 5:42 p.m. and later crashed in flames.

Cuban state media showed footage of rescue workers and military personnel poring over the crash site in the evening hours while firefighters sprayed the smoldering wreckage.

Bodies of the victims were being brought to the medical examiner's office in Havana for identification, and a commission was formed to determine the cause of the crash.

"All of the bodies are burned, except for two that were in the back of the plane," chief investigator Rolando Diaz Vergal told local state-run newspaper Escambray. "It seems that the passengers had no time to react because the burned bodies are still in their own seats, which has helped us with the identifications."

Afghan Taliban threatens all who talk peace

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — Scribbled notes from Taliban leader Mullah Mohammad Omar have surfaced in mosques all over Afghanistan's ethnic Pashtun heartland, threatening death to anyone who takes up a government offer to negotiate for peace, according to a Taliban member.

The Taliban also have vehemently denied reports that the militant group was involved in negotiations with the government.

The leadership could be worried that commanders might strike separate deals that would threaten to undermine the insurgency and cripple the morale of their rank-and-file fighters.

Man uses elaborate disguise to get into Canada from Hong Kong

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia (AP) — A young Asian man who boarded an Air Canada flight in Hong Kong elaborately disguised as an elderly white male is seeking refugee status in Canada in what border officials are calling an "unbelievable case of concealment."

An internal intelligence alert from the Canadian Border Service shows before-and-after photos, and describes how the man boarded the flight in Hong Kong on Oct. 29 wearing a silicone mask to make him look like an elderly man.

A Canadian government official gave the alert to The AP. The official provided the document Friday on condition of anonymity as the official was not authorized to release it publicly.

The passenger was seen at the start of the flight as an "elderly Caucasian male who appeared to have young looking hands," the CBSA bulletin said. Later in the flight, however, "the subject entered the washroom and emerged an Asian looking male that appeared to be in his early 20s."

The document says the man had a bag that contained a "disguise kit which consisted of a silicone type head and neck mask of an elderly Caucasian male, a brown leather cap, glasses and a thin brown cardigan."

These undated photos show a young man who boarded an Air Canada flight in Hong Kong, left, and the elaborate disguise of an elderly man, center and right, that he wore on a flight to Canada.

PUBLISH: November 6, 13, 20 and 27, 2010

NOTICES

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE: The following described property will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder, payable in lawful money of the United States, in the office of Land Title and Escrow, 706 Main Street, Gooding, ID, 83330, on February 8, 2011 at 11:00:00 AM, (recognized local time) for the purpose of foreclosing that certain Deed of Trust recorded 03/27/2009 as Instrument Number 229849, and executed by THELMA FRANEK, AN UNMARRIED WOMAN, as Grantor(s), in favor of MORTGAGE ELECTRONIC REGISTRATION SYSTEMS, INC., as Beneficiary, to RECONTRUST COMPANY, N.A., the Current Trustee of record covering the following real property located in Gooding County, State of Idaho. LOTS 4, 5 AND 6 IN BLOCK 52, GOODING, ACCORDING TO THE PLAT THEREOF ON FILE IN THE OFFICE OF THE COUNTY RECORDER OF GOODING COUNTY, IDAHO, ENTITLED 'AMENDED PLAT OF THE VILLAGE OF GOODING. The Trustee has no knowledge of a more particular description of the above reference real property, but for purpose of compliance with Idaho Code, Section 60-113, the Trustee has been informed that the street address of 730 IDAHO STREET, Gooding, ID, 83330 is sometimes associated with said real property.

Bidders must be prepared to tender the trustee the full amount of the bid at the sale in the form of cash, or cashier's check drawn on a state or federally insured savings institution. Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty, express or implied, regarding title, possession or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the certain Deed of Trust.

The default for which this sale is to be made is: Failure to pay the monthly payment due 04/01/2010 of principal, interest and impounds and subsequent installments due thereafter; plus late charges, with interest currently accruing at 5.500% per annum; together with all subsequent sums advanced by beneficiary pursuant to the terms and conditions of said Deed of Trust, and any supplemental modifications thereto. The principal balance owing as of this date on said obligation is $95,620.85, plus interest, costs and expenses actually incurred in enforcing the obligations thereunder and in this sale, together with any unpaid and/or accruing real property taxes, and/or assessments, attorneys' fees, Trustees' fees and costs, and any other amount advanced to protect said security, as authorized in the promissory note secured by the aforementioned Deed of Trust. Therefore, the Beneficiary elects to sell, or cause said trust property to be sold, to satisfy said obligation. NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THIS FIRM IS ATTEMPTING TO COLLECT A DEBT AND ANY INFORMATION OBTAINED WILL BE USED FOR THAT PURPOSE, AND THAT THE DEBT MAY BE DISPUTED. THE ABOVE GRANTORS ARE NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506(4) (a) IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THEY ARE, OR ARE NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION. DATED: 10/05/2010, RECONTRUST COMPANY, N.A., Name and Address of the Current Trustee is: RECONTRUST COMPANY, N.A., 1800 Tapo Canyon Rd., CA6-914-01-94, SIMI VALLEY, CA 80028-1821, PHONE: (800) 281-8219.  President Jefferson Davis was elected to a six-year term of office.

In 1888, Benjamin
 Harrison won the presidential election, defeating incumbent Grover Cleveland with enough electoral votes, even though Cleveland led in the popular vote.

In 1893, composer Peter Ilyich Tchaikovsky died in St. Petersburg, Russia, at age 53.

In 1900, President
 William McKinley was re-elected, beating Democrat
 William Jennings Bryan.

In 1928, in a first, the results of Republican Herbert Hoover's election victory over Democrat Alfred E. Smith were flashed onto an electric wraparound sign on the New York Times building.

In 1934, Nebraska voters approved dissolving their two-chamber legislature in favor of a nonpartisan, single legislative body (or "uni-camera!"), which was implemented in 1937.

In 1944, British official Lord Moyne was assassinated in Cairo, Egypt, by members of the Zionist
 Stern gang.

In 1956, President
 Dwight D. Eisenhower won re-election, defeating Democrat Adlai E.
 Stevenson.

In 1977, 39 people were killed when the Kelly Barnes Dam burst, sending a wall of water through Toccoa Falls College in Georgia.

In 1990, about one-fifth of the Universal Studios backlot in southern California was destroyed in an arson fire.

Ten years ago: On Election Eve, George W.
 Bush and Al Gore campaigned through the final hours of their run for the White House, seeking last-minute momentum in a costly and exhausting race to become the nation's 43rd president. Surgeons in Manchester, England, separated conjoined twin girls, a procedure that involved allowing one of the girls to die, while giving the survivor a chance at life.

Five years ago: An overnight tornado killed 25 people in southwestern Indiana. In a clear jab at Venezuelan President Hugo
 Chavez, President George
 W. Bush, in Brazil, called on Latin Americans to boldly defend strong democratic institutions. French President Jacques Chirac promised arrests, trials and punishment in the wake of urban unrest that had spread to central Paris.

One year ago: President Barack Obama signed a $24 billion economic stimulus bill, hours after the government reported that the unemployment rate had hit 10.2 percent in Oct. 2009 for the second time since World War II.

IF NOVEMBER 6 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You might be in the mood to chase rainbows these next few months, or you could become preoccupied with things of a temporary nature. Realize that dreams are merely dreams. A new love interest that catches your eye after the first of the year must be viewed as just a fling — or you may get your comeuppance in February. Make your wisest business plans in March and execute them in April. Expect to be thrown into contact with those who can become your true friends and form many helpful contacts in the summer.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You might enjoy any game or sport that requires logic or precision. Chess might be your forte today, but gymnastics can't be ruled out for the physically adept. Roll with the punches as plans are adjusted.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Basket weaving keeps fingers busy. Your basket could be literal or figurative, since you could enjoy putting things together and creating a useful whole. Throw a dinner party to put people together.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): It is true that you can only be young once. No matter how old you are, however, you can still behave immaturely. Like a child, you may ignore the facts of life. Others may subtly influence your thinking.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): It is all a matter of perception. Music can make the mood more romantic or simply get on your nerves. Remain attuned to reality and don't let the backdrop distract you from what is in the foreground.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You can't afford to day-dream where finances are concerned. Double check the address and stamp before mailing a bill. Be warm and pleasant — even if the atmosphere around your house seems chilly.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): We all love gossip until we are the subject. If you were a bug on the wall, your little ears would be burning. Be more discreet than usual and avoid saying anything that could be taken out of context.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): When you are at loose ends, "no strings attached" should be your motto. Play the field this weekend and take promises with a grain of salt. A shift in relationships could be to your distinct advantage.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): When you come to the end of the road, sit down and take a break. There is a new cycle at hand that affects your emotional state. It is wise to wait until things settle down before choosing a new direction.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Take it slow and easy. Don't let your imagination work overtime. You may be overly sensitive to your surroundings now. You may see problems that don't exist or overlook ones that do.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Turn an unexpected chain of events to your advantage. Your personal goals and friendships may reach a turning point. Don't obsess over the details or try to manipulate a situation that has no solution.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Too much mushy sensitivity can upset relationships. Put off important partnership discussions. Indiscretions and mistakes can be made with written matter. Miscommunications can cause upsets.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Take a time out for a temporary truce. This is a precarious time to be entangled by mix-ups, arguments or to encourage misunderstandings. Put major undertakings on the back burner until conditions improve.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a junior in high school and taking multiple AP classes. With all the homework we're assigned, I sometimes need to use lunchtime to finish assignments. My problem is my friends follow me into the school library and talk to me while I'm working. Their constant chatter is distracting and prevents me from concentrating on my assignments. I don't neglect my friends. I spend hours outside of school with them every week. But I'd rather be left alone when I'm trying to work. My friends don't understand that I'm more focused on academics and long-term goals than my short-term social life. How can I politely get them to leave me alone when I'm working?

— FOCUSED ON MY GOALS IN L.A.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR FOCUSED ON YOUR GOALS: If you haven't told your friends plainly how you feel and clearly drawn a line, you shouldn't blame them for being clueless when they cross it. Tell them you need to concentrate when you're in the library and that they are creating a problem for you. Not only will you be helping yourself, you'll be doing a favor for other students who are trying to study and who are also being distracted.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 34-year-old woman, and still single. Many people like me enjoy their lives, but I don't. I long to be married and to have a family. But because of my failures in the dating world I'm not optimistic about my chances. The thought of marriage and family late in life frightens me, and I don't want to raise a child as a single parent. So, at my age, is it likely I may never be married? I would appreciate it if your readers could share how they were able to change circumstances like mine.

— SINGLE STILL IN LITTLE ROCK

DEAR SINGLE STILL: Please do not resign yourself to singlehood quite yet. People are settling down and marrying later today for many reasons. Because you mentioned that the thought of marriage and family "later in life" frightens you, my inclination is to suggest that you discuss it with a psychologist or other licensed professional to see whether your fear may have been instrumental in causing your relationships to fail. However, because you requested reader input regarding late marriage, I'm sure we'll hear from them, generously sharing their experiences. I know several couples who married later in life, and they are compatible and happy. Readers, what do you have to say?

DEAR ABBY: I was recently promoted to a new position at work, doing something I have always wanted to do. My supervisor and I are very different — almost polar opposites, in fact. But we get along great and work well together. Because we have started working more closely, she is now beginning to consider me her friend, asking me to "hang out" and occasionally offering me recreational drugs. I love working with her, but I don't want to hang out with her outside of work because of our differences. If something were to go wrong outside the office, it would affect our work relationship. How do I keep things strictly professional without offending her?

— WARY ASSISTANT IN ARIZONA

DEAR WARY ASSISTANT: By telling her (with a smile) that your time to socialize is extremely limited and, as much as you enjoy working with her, you prefer to keep your work relationships strictly professional. And should the woman offer you a controlled substance, simply say, "No thank you."

DEAR READERS: It's time for my "timely" reminder that daylight saving time ends at 2 a.m. Sunday — so don't forget to turn your clocks back one hour before going to bed. (That's what I'll be doing.)

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

“To squander away the objects which made the happiness of their fellows would be to them no sacrifice at all.”
— Edmund Burke

A Merrimac Coup is an attempt to disrupt declarer’s communications by the strategic shift to an unsupported honor. You normally cannot be sure with a Merrimac Coup that it will cost you a trick, whereas today’s play was a more cold-blooded surrender of a winner.

When France defeated England in their annual encounter in the Entente Cordiale Trophy, Michel Lebel was the player confronted with the tricky defensive problem against six spades. You can view it from Lebel’s perspective by taking the East seat.

The auction was entirely straightforward, but South’s Blackwood inquiry had elicited the fact that North did not have the heart queen (no surprise to Lebel). Philippe Cronier led the diamond four, and declarer played low from dummy. How would you plan the defense?

It is all too easy to defend passively, but Lebel worked out that on a passive black-suit return, declarer would make 12 tricks easily. He would draw trumps, play the top hearts, ruff a heart, then cross to the diamond ace to run the hearts. Hoping to find his partner with the club jack, Lebel found the Greek gift of winning with the diamond queen and returning a diamond into dummy’s tenace, giving declarer a cheap trick, but taking away the entry to the heart suit. The best that declarer could do was take the club finesse and try to ruff a club, but Lebel could overruff dummy for one down.

ANSWER: You have a real problem if you are playing standard methods. A cue-bid is unattractive without four hearts, and three diamonds is nonforcing. One solution is to play that a call of two no-trump acts as a puppet to three clubs, allowing you to show a weak hand with either minor, while a direct three-diamond call is forcing. This is called Lebensohl. More on this in my Sunday column later this month.

WARNING
When purchasing a vehicle, make sure that the title is in the name of the seller. Under Idaho motor vehicle code a vehicle cannot be sold unless the title is in the name of the seller (exception: Idaho licensed dealer). The seller shall provide the new purchaser a signed bill of sale showing the following: Full description of the vehicle, vehicle identification number, amount paid and name(s) and address of the new purchaser. The bill of sale must be signed, dated and show actual mileage at the time of sale. If you have any questions, please contact your local assessor's office.
