Jerome considers jail remodeling

With new facility stalled, redo could add 15 beds

By Amy Huddleston
Times-News writer

JEROME — When Jerome County proposed another funding solution to build a new jail, voters sentenced it to failure for a third time with a November vote. The county's latest attempt to fund a $13 million, 165-bed jail and county sheriff's office fell 7.2 percent short of approval. Now, commissioners have returned to the drawing board to consider new ideas and more citizen input. "We're just going to start over and explore all the possibilities again," County Commissioner Charlie Howell said. One possibility to relieve overcrowding at the county's existing 30-bed lockup would involve remodeling the jail's basement to make space for 15 more inmate beds. Commissioners recently

Questions ahead for higher education budget

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

BOISE — Idaho's higher education community wants to double the number of high school students who go on to earn a college degree or professional certificate. But fewer state resources could hamper that effort. The state aims to have 60 percent of its residents between 25 and 34 years old hold a college degree or professional certificate by 2020. Currently, the rate is just 31.4 percent. "Our society, our global competition and our workplace require it," Richard Westerberg, president of the Idaho State Board of Education, said in a presentation Thursday to the Legislature's budget-writing committee. The goal comes amid a complex background of state budget challenges and a push by Superintendent of Public Instruction

T.F. sheriff moves three to new posts

Times-News

With the new year came new changes at the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office. Sheriff Tom Carter has rearranged some of his administrative positions, among them moving Capt. Gerlyn "Sam" Walker from chief deputy to the officer in charge of investigations. Capt. Don Newman is now chief deputy, with Lt. Brent Hilliard moving up to head the Law Enforcement Services Division in Newman's place, said spokeswoman Lori Stewart. The changes were effective Jan. 1. The moves weren't prompted by any particular issue, but rather by Carter's belief that the new positions will better suit the three, Stewart said. "He said he had a great staff, but he felt that this would better utilize their strengths," Stewart said.

Idaho GOP gets ready to nullify health care reform

By John Miller
Associated Press writer

BOISE — After leading the nation last year in passing a law to sue the federal government over the health care overhaul, Idaho's Republican-dominated Legislature now plans to use an obscure 18th century doctrine to declare President Barack Obama's signature bill null and void. Lawmakers in six other states — Maine, Montana, Oregon, Nebraska, Texas and Wyoming — are also mulling "nullification" bills, which contend states, not the U.S. Supreme Court, are the ultimate arbiter of when Congress and the president run amok. It's a concept that's won favor

"What do we do when we don't get proper relief in the court? We can't just throw up our hands and say, 'We tried.' The creators had to have some way of not having that system destroyed." — Thomas E. Woods Jr., author of the book "Nullification" among many tea party adherents who believe Washington, D.C., is out of control. Though a 1958 U.S. Supreme Court decision reaffirmed that federal laws "shall be the supreme law of the land," Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter is promoting the idea, too. In his January 10 State of the State speech, he told Idaho residents "we are actively exploring all our options — including nullification." Sen. Monty Pearce, an Idaho GOP lawmaker who plans to introduce a nullification bill early next week, wanted to be the first one to give Otter a recently published book on the subject, "Nullification: How to Resist Federal Tyranny in the 21st Century." But Otter beat him to the punch. "I took that copy and tried to give it to the governor," he said, pointing to a copy on his desk. "He already had a copy." Sick of just passing largely symbolic resolutions decrying federal encroachment on states' rights, proponents like Pearce say their bills will ratchet up the pressure on the feds: This isn't just some piece of paper to wave about; if it passes — and there's plenty in Idaho to suggest it will — this would become the law of the state, Pearce says. It's been tried before, a long time ago. Back in 1799, Thomas Jefferson wrote in his "Kentucky Resolution," a response to federal

Burley stalls hike in base water rate

By Laurie Welch
Times-News writer

BURLEY — A $4 increase to Burley’s monthly base water rate won’t be approved until at least February. The Burley City Council decided Tuesday to table discussion of increasing that rate, along with golf and swimming pool fees, until it could review the city’s audit. Discussion stalled when councilmen questioned whether residents could stomach the increase. It is slated to continue on Feb. 1. “People have a choice whether they want to play golf or not, but they don’t have a choice whether they want to use water,” Councilman Denny Curtis said. The proposed increases include base water-rate hikes of 28 percent for the city’s 3,000 residential customers and 24 percent for its 500 commercial users.

laws passed amid an undeclared naval war against France, that “nullification, by those sovereignties, of all unauthorized acts ... is the rightful remedy?” Three decades later, South Carolina Sen. John Calhoun pushed nullification of federal tariffs that many in the South deemed discriminatory toward agricultural slave states. President Andrew Jackson readied the military, before a compromise defused the situation. In 1854, Wisconsin also sought to nullify the federal Fugitive Slave Act that forced non-slave states to return escapees. And more recently, Arkansas defied the federal government’s order to desegregate public schools after the landmark 1954 Brown v. Board of Education decision. In a unanimous 1958 ruling rejecting Arkansas’ position, the High Court wrote that states were bound by the Constitution’s Article IV mandating U.S. laws, when vetted by justices, “shall be the supreme law of the land.” After passing its “Health Care Freedom Act” last year, Idaho is already among 27 states now suing the federal government over the constitutionality of what health-care overhaul foes deride as “Obamacare.” Supreme Court justices haven’t yet weighed in on questions like whether residents can be compelled to buy health insurance.

But Thomas E. Woods, Jr., author of the 2010 book “Nullification” that Otter and Pearce have in their Idaho Capitol offices, argues states have the final say on the gravest issues, like when the government forces citizens to spend their hard-earned money. If the U.S. president, Congress, and the Supreme Court get it wrong, Woods said, then Jefferson had it right back in 1799 when he wrote that states, as creators of the federal government, “being sovereign and independent, have the unquestionable right to judge of its infraction.” “What do we do when we don’t get proper relief in the court?” Woods told The Associated Press from his home in Auburn, Ala. “We can’t just throw up our hands and say, ‘We tried.’ The creators had to have some way of not having that system destroyed.”

David Gray Adler, who directs the University of Idaho’s McClure Center for Public Policy Research, said nullification proponents ignore the fact that one Supreme Court decision after another has gone against them. What they seem to be advocating for, he said, is a return to the state sovereignty that existed under the Articles of Confederation — exactly what the Constitution’s framers in 1789 sought to replace because it had failed. “The premise of their position and the reasoning behind it are severely flawed and have no support in our Constitutional architecture,” he said.

Cassia bond would cost more

By Laurie Welch
Times-News writer

BURLEY — If voters approve a $41.5 million facilities bond issue in March, the improvements to Cassia County schools will cost taxpayers a little more money than if the bond had passed in December. The Cassia County School District’s board of trustees decided to move forward with the new bond issue election earlier this week. The district was eligible for $10 million in state funds at zero percent interest when it proposed a nearly identical bond issue for December’s vote. But that eligibility has since expired, said district Superintendent Gaylen Smyer. Smyer said if the bond issue doesn’t pass in March, it may cost even more down the road when another $7.4 million in funding with zero interest is lost later this year. “That is one of the reasons the board chose to move forward in March,” Smyer said. The bond issue would increase residential property taxes by $4.05 per month for every $100,000 of assessed property. That is an increase of $1.18 more per month from the December proposal.

Cassia County Chief Elections Deputy Theresa Woodbury said state election consolidation laws that went into effect this year allow the district to bring the bond issue back before voters up to four times a year. “There is no limit to the number of times they can bring it back,” Woodbury said. Previously, entities such as school districts also had to pay for their own elections. “Now we pay for the charges of those elections and we’re given a quarterly funding to cover those expenses,” Woodbury said. The March bond issue will be the first election the county conducts under the new law. “I am almost constantly on the phone with the secretary of state getting clarification on issues,” Woodbury said. Polling places for the March vote will stay the same as in December. Cassia County Clerk Joseph Larsen said there are some lingering issues for the county regarding the new election laws. One example is how a county election will accommodate consolidated districts, like the school district, with patrons who reside outside of the county.

Tom Luna for a massive education reform package. In his presentation, Westerberg stressed the growing role of dual-credit — an area in which the College of Southern Idaho is heavily involved. That’s also a component of Luna’s plan, which calls for the state to pick up the cost of dual-credit courses for high school students who graduate early. The college-level courses offer high school students credit opportunities at a discounted rate. “It also helps the students realize they can, in fact, do college-level work,” Westerberg said. State funding for higher education has dropped 22 percent in the last three fiscal years, while demand for services has increased. “Doing more with less isn’t just a mantra anymore,” he said. “It’s a reality.”

Institutions across the state have made cuts. CSI hasn’t given employees raises as faculty members have taken on larger workloads. The University of Idaho has eliminated or consolidated 41 degree programs. “We are starting to see increased complaints from students,” Westerberg said. “They’re not able to get the sections and courses they need.” Ken Edmunds of Twin Falls, vice president of the state board, said the challenge ahead is coming up with the best model for providing services as dollars shrink and demand increases. “Nobody has the answer yet, but the problem isn’t going away just because we haven’t come up with the right answer,” he said. Sen. Dean Cameron, R-Rupert and co-chairman of the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee, questioned the level of reserves maintained in the state’s higher education system. Cameron said that many other sources of one-time funding are being tapped for state budget needs, while the reserve balances have increased. “It’s something we grapple with and try to find what the proper balance is,” Westerberg said. The combined total unrestricted net assets of Lewis-Clark State College and the three state universities is $168.9 million, budget documents show. That doesn’t necessarily mean all of it could go to filling budget holes. Much of it — $94 million — is already obligated toward existing agreements. Another $55.8 million is designated toward projects that are in the works but don’t have contracts yet. The rest — $18.9 million — is unrestricted and on hand for any cash-flow problems. For JFAC, the task ahead will be to see how much money can go toward meeting budget needs. Rep. Maxine Bell, R-Jerome and co-chairwoman of JFAC, said the reserves will need a look. “We’re saying that while a good business plan is important, at this time you don’t raise fees and sit on money for an eventuality,” she said. She added: “We’ve been saying stop any plans for anything new and give back the monies so we can maintain services. ... They raised the student fees and sit on quite a fund and I do think the good senator and I will be having more discussion.” Next week, presidents of the state institutions and community colleges will make individual presentations to JFAC.

while but we’ll still need to rely on out-of-county housing,” McFall said. Commission Chairwoman Cathy Roemer said Hass reported 24 inmates are currently housed out-of-county at a per-inmate cost of $45 to $60 per day. While the remodel would offer the county a temporary reprieve from some current costs, county officials don’t see it as a permanent fix. The county is still considering options for a new jail, including pursuing a facility lease or reducing a proposed facility’s beds to 100. Roemer said she would have preferred to wait longer before re-opening the jail discussion, but the dilapidated facility and excess inmate numbers encouraged commissioners asked the jail administrator, Sheriff’s Lt. Robert Hass, to research costs associated with remodeling that part of the 35-year-old facility. Costs would include labor and adding toilets and showers. Howell said a cost report isn’t yet available, but he anticipates the remodel would pay for itself within two years. Sheriff Doug McFall said the building is in poor condition and doesn’t meet certain standards set for Idaho’s jails. But the extra 15 beds would help reduce costs associated with housing inmates in other county jails when Jerome’s facility is at capacity. “It will get us by for a and the sheriff’s office to seek new solutions. Howell said more education is needed for the public. He is organizing a citizens committee to provide input on a jail location and other possible justice facility funding. Amy Huddleston may be reached at ahuddleston@magicvalley.com.

Gooding council supports community garden

By Emily Katseanes
Times-News correspondent

GOODING — Members of the Youth Advisory Council in Gooding hope to grow something new in their community.

Three members appeared Wednesday before the Gooding City Council in the hopes of moving ahead plans for a community garden.

YAC member Jacki Bellamy said the community garden could beautify the area, help Gooding residents connect with each other and cultivate food. Other events could be planned around the garden, such as a pumpkin-growing contest.

The idea was supported by the council, including Mayor Duke Morton.

“I know the pumpkin contest is really pandering to my wish to grow the biggest pumpkin in the state,” Morton said.

The council decided to draft a letter of support and supply water to the garden, potentially at no cost, once it gets going.

The idea of a community garden first started with Gooding resident Eric Moore. The next steps for Moore and the YAC will be to reach out to the community for support and interest.

“We’re ready to be the foot soldiers and the organizers,” said YAC adviser Chris Thompson. “We’ve got some kids who are ready to go.”

In other news, the council opted to hold off on purchasing a new garbage truck until more bids and information come in. Public Works Director Todd Bunn presented a bid for a $215,209 truck based on specifications drawn up for Burley.

“I understand the prices of things have gone up exponentially, but that seems like an awfully expensive truck,” Councilman Vern France said. “I’d like to see another bid from another company.”

Though money was budgeted for buying a new truck, purchasing one at that price would require reopening the budget and taking some money out of reserves, officials said.

The council also clarified the language in the city’s new snow-shoveling ordinance for a Gooding citizen, who was concerned it required shoveling snow to the edge of his property. All the ordinance regulates is not throwing snow into city roads.

The Gooding Airport Flyers Association presented the city with a DVD of the airport construction to celebrate its completion. The association is planning a grand opening for this summer.

The hero from Hunt Camp

Today would have been Bill Nakamura’s 89th birthday. He’s the only Magic Valley resident — I checked — ever to have a courthouse named after him.

But Nakamura is much better known for what he did on the Fourth of July, 1944, the last day of his life.

A sophomore at the University of Washington, he and thousands of other Japanese-Americans had been locked up on the orders of President Franklin Roosevelt after the United States entered World War II.

In May 1942, the Army moved Seattle-area Nisei into “Camp Harmony” at the Puyallup, Wash., fairgrounds. Within months, most of them were incarcerated in the Minidoka Relocation Center east of Jerome.

At Hunt Camp, Nakamura met Hisako Deguchi and married her after a short courtship. According to the Seattle Times, the marriage went against his family’s wishes, but Nakamura had a reputation of being a bit of a rebel.

Even more surprising, Nakamura enlisted immediately after his wedding, also against the wishes of his family.

The Army assigned Nakamura to the all-Asian-American 442nd Regimental Combat Team, which would become the most highly decorated regiment in the history of the U.S. armed forces, including 21 Medal of Honor recipients.

YOU

The 442nd first went into combat on June 26, 1944, in a murderous battle with German troops defending the Italian town of Belvedere. By Independence Day, the unit was approaching the Arno River — the natural barrier between southern Italy and the heavily populated north, the country’s industrial heartland.

Pvt. Nakamura’s platoon was passing a field when it came under fire from a German machine gun. During the fierce firefight that followed, it was pinned down.

On his own initiative, Nakamura crawled 20 yards toward the hostile gun emplacement with bullets barely missing him. Reaching a point 15 yards from the position, he quickly raised himself to a kneeling position and threw four hand grenades, killing or wounding at least three of the enemy soldiers. The weapon silenced, Nakamura’s company was ordered to retreat and Nakamura stayed behind to cover them.

While moving toward the safety of a wooded draw, the platoon came under fire again. Crawling to a point from which he could fire on the machine gun nest, Nakamura silenced the German gunners. His platoon was able to withdraw without further casualties, but it cost Nakamura his life.

He was 22 years old.

Nakamura’s commanding officer recommended him for the Congressional Medal of Honor, the Army’s highest decoration. Instead, the Pentagon awarded him the Distinguished Service Cross posthumously.

Fifty years later, a review of service records for Asian-Americans who had received the Distinguished Service Cross during World War II led to Nakamura’s award being upgraded to the Medal of Honor. In a ceremony at the White House on June 21, 2000, his surviving family was presented with his Medal of Honor by President Bill Clinton.

A year later, the federal courthouse in downtown Seattle was renamed for Nakamura.

Seventy-three soldiers from the Hunt Camp died while fighting for their country. Two received the Medal of Honor.

No charges filed in T.F. stabbing

Times-News

In the end, the stories just didn’t add up.

Twin Falls Prosecuting Attorney Fritz Wonderlich will not pursue criminal charges for an alleged Jan. 8 stabbing that left two men injured in downtown Twin Falls.

City of Twin Falls spokeswoman Julie Pence said witness reports were inconsistent regarding the incident that happened at 1:15 a.m. outside Woody’s Bar. Twin Falls police previously said two men suffered stab wounds during a parking-lot fight that followed an argument within the bar.

The identity of the alleged victims has not been released. Police said both were treated and released from St. Luke’s Magic Valley Medical Center.

Dean LeRoy Manning

BURLEY — Dean LeRoy Manning, an 81-year-old longtime resident of Burley, passed away at his home Thursday, Jan. 20, 2011, from complications of a stroke.

He was born Feb. 5, 1929, to Horace Levi and Sarah LuEmma Craner Manning. Dean has lived all his life in this area except for a couple of years in Stibnite, Idaho, during high school. He met Carol Christensen during his senior year in high school, and they married June 23, 1949, in the Logan Utah LDS Temple. They bought a farm in the Springdale area around 1958. There they raised their seven children with much work to do milking cows and farming the land.

Dean was active on the Burley Irrigation District and ASC boards for many years. He loved to fish and shared this love with his sons and grandsons. Dean loved to buy, fix up and sell cars. When a family member would buy a new car, they would bring it to Dad/Grandpa and, if he approved, they knew that it would be a good car. He had a large collection of hot wheels and toy tractors that he displayed in his office.

He has been active in the LDS Church his entire life, fulfilling many callings in the ward and stake. He was an excellent home teacher and taught his sons this good trait. Dean and Carol served an LDS mission to San Jose, Calif. Dean has many, many friends and will always be remembered for being a “gentle man” and for his beautiful smile. He loved his children and grandchildren and loved talking with them to see “how things were going.” He was always ready with encouragement to family and friends that needed it.

Dean had a stroke in April 2008 and has not been able to talk or walk much since. He has been in hospice care since July 2010.

He is survived by his wife of 61 years, Carol Manning of Burley; his children, Dennis (Jan) Manning of Burley, Roger (Debbie) Manning of Brigham City, Utah, Karen (Gene) Hines of Burley, Randy (Marianne) Manning of Chubbuck, Lynn (Hollie) Manning of Burley, Danene (Bart) Beck of Burley and Karlene (Scott) Bowden of Rigby; 32 grandchildren; 37 great-grandchildren; three brothers, Don, Gail and Jay; and his sister, Doris Hess. He is also survived by his wonderful aunt and longtime friend, Donna Rose Fenton. Those greeting him on the other side of the veil are his parents; a sister, Wilma; a brother, Cloyd; and a grandson, Michael Levi Manning.

The family wishes to thank Idaho Home Health and Hospice for the wonderful care of Dad — especially Melissa, Toni, Maria and Deanna.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Monday, Jan. 24, at the Springdale LDS Church, 200 S. 475 E. of Burley, with Bishop Gregg M. Harman officiating. Burial will be in the Pleasant View Cemetery. Friends may call from 6 until 8 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 23, at the Rasmussen Funeral Home, 1350 E. 16th St. in Burley, and from 10 until 10:45 a.m. Monday at the church.

Nicholas Jolley

BURLEY — Nicholas Jolley, 55, of Burley, passed away Monday, Jan. 17, 2011, in Twin Falls.

He was born March 8, 1955, in Burley, Idaho, to Wayne and Angeles (Menchaca) Jolley. He attended school in Burley and graduated from Minico High School. He first started working at Albertson's in Burley while attending school. He married Kathryn Edwards and later divorced. During their marriage, they lived in Boise, where he still worked for Albertson's for a total of 15 years. He then worked for Smith's Food for more than 20 years. He returned to Burley still working for Smith's, taking on a side business with Heaven's Best Carpet Cleaning. He also worked many hours with his brother, Tony Jolley, plus his nephew, Chad, in TJ's construction business and also in TJ's auto body business. Nick could always be counted on in any job he had and was a very hard worker.

Nick loved camping, hunting, fishing and trips with family and friends. He enjoyed watching football, playing darts and pool and a good debate at Joe's. He loved dancing and just life in general.

He was very close to his son, Casey, with their numerous hunting and camping trips; and his brother, Tony, with their numerous road trips. His daughter, Shasta, brought a special sparkle in his eyes and he loved being a grandpa.

Nick is survived by his son and daughter, Casey Jolley and Shasta (Rob) Jones; his brothers, Dioni “Dee” (Hazel), Tony (Clellie) and Julian (Darlene); his sisters, Tina Schafer and Angela (Tom) Dowell; four grandchildren; and 20-plus nieces and nephews. Nick was preceded in death by his parents; and two brothers, Jeff and Mike.

A service for family and friends will be held at 3 p.m. Friday, Jan. 21, at White Mortuary “Chapel by the Park.”

Jay W. Durfee

GOODING — Jay W. Durfee, 77, of Gooding passed away Tuesday, Jan. 18, 2011, after a sudden heart attack.

Jay was born in Almo, Idaho, on Dec. 17, 1933, the 12th child of Anna Abby and Lorenzo Durfee. His early youth was spent in Almo, where he developed a lifelong love of horses while riding in the City of Rocks. He graduated from Heyburn High School in 1952.

In 1953, Jay married Sharma Helen Roy in the Idaho Falls Temple. He attended Ricks College, where he lettered in football, basketball and baseball. He began a 39-year career as a high school teacher and coach. He taught in Wendell, Winchester, Bliss and then spent 10 years in Baker City, Ore. In 1974, they moved back to Gooding, where he taught and coached until 1995. Over the years, Jay affected the lives of many students and athletes. He had an uncommon ability to interact with students, and he was a beloved coach and teacher to many.

Jay loved to ride his horses in the hills and spent years with friends and family in places like Copper Basin, the White Clouds, the Sawtooths and Soldier Mountain area. After years of unsuccessful elk hunting, the family teased him about his annual fall elk rides. In November of 2010, he followed the example of his daughter, sons, grandsons and granddaughters and finally was able to fill his first elk tag.

Jay was an active member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and served in many positions, including bishoprics, High Council, four years as a temple worker in Boise and most recently as a service missionary in Twin Falls.

Jay is survived by his wife of 57 years, Sharma Helen Roy Durfee; children, Scott (Pauli) Durfee of Rexburg, Kevin (Rhonda) Durfee of Springfield, Ore., and Karen (Kevin) Stewart of Rigby; grandchildren, Shawn (Stacey) Durfee of Payson, Utah, Ryan (Emily) Durfee of Rexburg, Arik (Anna) Durfee of Idaho Falls, Melissa (Tracen) Peterson of Salt Lake City, Chad (Jessica) Durfee of Springfield, Ore., Tyler Stewart of Salt Lake City, Utah, Lindsay (David) Marchant of Springfield, Ore., Keersten (Jake) Goss of Idaho Falls, Hailey Durfee who is serving a mission in West Virginia, Jason (Alise) Durfee of Idaho Falls, Kacy Durfee of Springfield, Ore., Stephanie Stewart of Salt Lake City, Utah, Chase Stewart who is serving a mission in Paraguay and Abby Stewart of Rigby; and 17 great-grandchildren. Surviving brothers and sisters include Aileen (Lyman) Jensen of Sequim, Wash., Naomi (Wallace) Reed of Bountiful, Utah, Doris Gibbons of Gooding, LaRae Taylor of Ogden, Utah, Walter (Kenna) Durfee of Burley, Louis (Barbara) Durfee of Gooding and Bernus Waite of Gooding. Survivors also include many nieces and nephews and many from the Roy family to whom he was a brother.

Jay was loved and respected by friends and family.

A viewing will be held from 5 to 7 p.m. Friday, Jan. 21, at Demaray Funeral Service Gooding Chapel. The funeral will be conducted at 11 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 22, at the Gooding LDS Church with a viewing from 10 to 10:45 a.m. Interment will follow in the Elmwood Cemetery in Gooding.

Idaho to patch, not replace bridges

BOISE — State officials say bridges designed to last up to 60 years will have to hold out twice that long without an increase in transportation funding.

That's what Idaho Transportation Director Brian Ness told lawmakers Thursday, saying his agency only has enough money to replace bridges every 120 years.

A state task force on transportation funding determined in November that Idaho will need to come up with an additional $543 million annually to fully address its needs to maintain highways and bridges.

But the task force directed the governor and Idaho lawmakers to explore their ideas only after the economy has improved and more revenue is available.

Until there is more money, Ness says his agency will rely on short-term fixes to keep Idaho roads and bridges intact in the meantime.

Motor vehicle fatalities decline in Idaho

BOISE — State officials say motor vehicle fatalities across Idaho declined in the past year, dropping to the lowest level since 1975.

Idaho Transportation Department Deputy Director Scott Stokes told lawmakers Thursday there were 211 deaths on Idaho roadways last year, the lowest number since 1975.

There were 226 highway deaths in 2009, compared to 232 in 2008.

Stokes told lawmakers on the House and Senate transportation panels that his agency was encouraged by the decline in vehicle fatalities.

Feds award $3.4M to homeless agencies

BOISE — Dozens of Idaho agencies devoted to helping the homeless are getting $3.4 million in federal aid to help keep people and families off the streets.

The U.S. Department Housing and Urban Development announced Wednesday grants to 35 homeless providers in many of Idaho's biggest cities.

HUD Secretary Shaun Donovan says there is a growing and tremendous need on the streets and in shelters for people dealing with long-term homelessness and new families struggling in the recession.

The grants come one week before volunteers in nearly every city and county nationwide conduct on a one-night count of homeless persons and families.

The grants were awarded to shelters and agencies in Boise, Coeur d'Alene, Idaho Falls, Moscow, Pocatello, Lewiston, Twin Falls and other cities and counties.

Woman pleads guilty to embezzlement

SANDPOINT — A former employee of the University of Idaho's extension office has pleaded guilty to grand theft for embezzling at least $35,000.

The Bonner County Daily Bee reports that 43-year-old Kristan Clar Peacock of Laclede entered her plea Tuesday in 1st District Court. Sentencing is scheduled for March 21. Both sides have agreed to recommend a suspended prison term, up to six months in the Bonner County Jail and just over $35,000 in restitution.

Defense attorney Bryce Powell released a statement saying Peacock's son suffers from a severe neurological disorder and her effort to find a correct diagnosis and treatment left her with more than $260,000 in medical bills. He says she is sorry and intends to make restitution with the help of her extended family.

Court records say Peacock took the money between 2004 and 2009.

County declares emergency after flooding

SHOSHONE COUNTY — Shoshone County officials have declared a state of emergency to help the community recovery from floods the caused costly losses.

They say the waters are receding from swollen rivers and creeks, but the damage may be felt much longer.

The Shoshone Emergency Manager estimates flood damage throughout the county to be around $255,000. Now the county is seeking assistance from the state to help foot the bill.

KREM-TV reports Moon Gulch Road is just one of several roads damaged from the rushing water. Debris blocked a culvert and eventually the road gave way and collapsed into Moon Creek.

Beverly Jo Anne Routt

BUHL — Beverly Jo Anne Routt from Buhl passed away from a courageous battle of breast cancer Tuesday, Jan. 18, at the age of 77 years old.

Mom was born Sept. 2, 1933, in Crawford County, Iowa. Her parents were William Casper McCoy and Bernice Andresen McCoy. At a young age, Mom and her family moved from Iowa to Idaho and lived in various towns, Twin Falls, Hansen and Murtaugh. She graduated from Hansen High School in 1951. In high school, she met her lasting love, Dee Routt from Kimberly. They were married July 16, 1950. After traveling with Dad while in the service, they settled in Pocatello, then Murtaugh and started a family — Rick, born in 1955, Kent, born in 1960, and Lisa, born in 1966. In 1966, Mom and family moved west of Buhl, then later southwest of Buhl, where Mom and Dad farmed and raised cattle. To this day, the farms and cattle were her life, as was her tole painting. She was an avid tole painter since 1980 and to the day she died, she wanted to “go home and paint.”

She is survived by her family, brother, William (Nadine) McCoy of Twin Falls; sons, Rick (Ladeana) Routt of Twin Falls and Kent (Robin) Routt of Buhl; and daughter, Lisa (Mark) McBeth of Pocatello. She is also survived by eight grandchildren. Mom is also survived by her many friends from Magic Valley Decorative Artists, Mountain States Tumor Institute and various others from her life. She was preceded in death by her husband, Dee; and her parents.

A celebration of Beverly's life will be at 10 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 22, at White Mortuary “Chapel by the Park.” Memorial donations can be made in Beverly's name to Mountain States Tumor Institute or the Humane Society.

Mom was a good person, and she was tough. She wanted so much to keep farming and painting. We love you, Mom. You just keep on painting.

Blackwater founder trains Somali troops to fight piracy

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Erik Prince, whose former company Blackwater Worldwide became synonymous with the use of private U.S. security forces in Iraq and Afghanistan, has quietly taken on a new role in helping to train troops in lawless Somalia.

Prince is involved in a multimillion-dollar program financed by several Arab countries, including the United Arab Emirates, to mobilize some 2,000 Somali recruits to fight pirates who are terrorizing the African coast, according to a person familiar with the project and an intelligence report seen by The Associated Press.

Prince's name has surfaced in the Somalia conflict amid the debate over how private security forces should be used in some of the world's most dangerous spots. Blackwater, now known as Xe Services, became a symbol in Washington of contractors run amok after a series of incidents, including one in 2007 in which its guards were charged with killing 14 civilians in the Iraqi capital.

A U.S. federal judge later threw out the charges on the grounds that the defendants' constitutional rights were violated. Last year, Iraq's Interior Ministry gave all contractors who had worked with Blackwater at the time of the shooting one week to get out of the country or face arrest for visa violations.

Though Somali pirates have seized ships flying under various flags, most governments are reluctant to send ground troops to wipe out pirate havens in a nation that has been in near-anarchy for two decades and whose weak U.N.-backed administration is confined to a few neighborhoods of the capital. The forces now being trained are intended to help fill that void.

In response to requests for an interview with Prince, his spokesman e-mailed a brief statement that the Blackwater founder is interested in "helping Somalia overcome the scourge of piracy" and has advised antipiracy efforts. Spokesman Mark Corallo said Prince has "no financial role" in the project and declined to answer any questions about Prince's involvement.

Conservatives pledge to cut another $90B in spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — House conservatives vowed Thursday to slash domestic programs well beyond the already steep spending cuts promised by GOP leaders in the midterm election campaign that put Republicans in control of the chamber.

A proposal unveiled by the Republican Study Committee, whose conservative members make up about three-fourths of the House GOP conference, called for bringing domestic agency budgets down to the 2006 levels in place when Republicans last controlled Congress. That's about a $175 billion cut from current levels and roughly $90 billion more than the cuts promised by Republicans last fall.

Behind the scenes, conservatives are pressuring GOP leaders to deliver on a promise to immediately pass legislation cutting Cabinet budgets by $100 billion this fiscal year, which began Oct. 1 and is already one-third over.

Boehner

"Despite the added challenge of being four months into the current fiscal year, we still must keep our $100 billion pledge to the American people," the committee said in a draft letter to House Speaker John Boehner, R-Ohio.

The letter had not been delivered Thursday. But it posed a potential headache for Boehner, foreshadowing a possible split between tea party-backed freshmen lawmakers and more experienced lawmakers willing to settle for fewer, more easily achievable cuts.

The study committee proposed eliminating several programs outright, including the Legal Services Corporation, which provides legal help to people who can't afford a lawyer; Amtrak subsidies; community development grants popular with local officials, and economic aid to Egypt. It advocated a five-year pay freeze for federal workers, and cutting the federal work force by 15 percent through attrition.

"The pledge, the $100 billion, is simply a start," freshman Rep. Mick Mulvaney, R-S.C., said. "We want more. We will be looking for ways to cut the deficit and the debt more than is in the pledge."

Senior Republicans on the House Appropriations Committee, meanwhile, were working on the already difficult task of fulfilling the party's original promise to take most domestic agencies other than the Homeland Security and Veteran Affairs departments down to their 2008 spending levels.

That would require cutting their operating budgets an average 18 percent, or about $84 billion, from last year's budget.

"These are not going to be easy cuts," House Appropriations Committee Chairman Harold Rogers, R-Ky., said.

While conservatives are pressing for deeper cuts, appropriators are looking to protect the budgets for NASA, the FBI and the Indian Health Service.

CSI gives green energy a big boost

Wednesday’s announcement that the College of Southern Idaho will receive a $4.4 million federal grant to help bring a $7 million technology center to Twin Falls is a major step forward in local economic development. The Applied Technology and Innovation Center will provide a much-needed consolidated home for CSI’s renewable energy programs. Currently, courses for the college’s environmental technology and wind energy programs are housed across on- and off-campus facilities. The 29,600-square-foot, energy-efficient center will provide training to students in an array of renewable energy generation techniques and green construction. CSI President Jerry Beck said he anticipates the building will be located on the south side of North College Road, near the Health Sciences and Human Services Building.

Wednesday’s grant came from the U.S. Economic Development Administration. The college will pay for its nearly $2.5 million portion of the facility out of its plant facilities fund. CSI President Jerry Beck expects construction to take 18 months. The college’s 2-year-old renewable-energy programs have capacity for 70 students. Joe Herring, president of the private, nonprofit economic development consultant Region IV Development, said the $4.4 million represents the largest grant EDA has awarded west of the Mississippi River. There are those who argue that the outlook for renewable energy — for which CSI is preparing students — is cloudy because of the questionable future of federal green energy subsidies in a more conservative Congress. We disagree. Wind, geothermal and solar will find a permanent place in Idaho’s energy landscape because they’re economical, efficient and sustainable. And CSI will be at the forefront of training the people who will make that energy happen.

The members of the editorial board and writers of editorials are John Pfeifer, Steve Crump, Bill Bitzenburg and Mary Lou Panatopoulos.

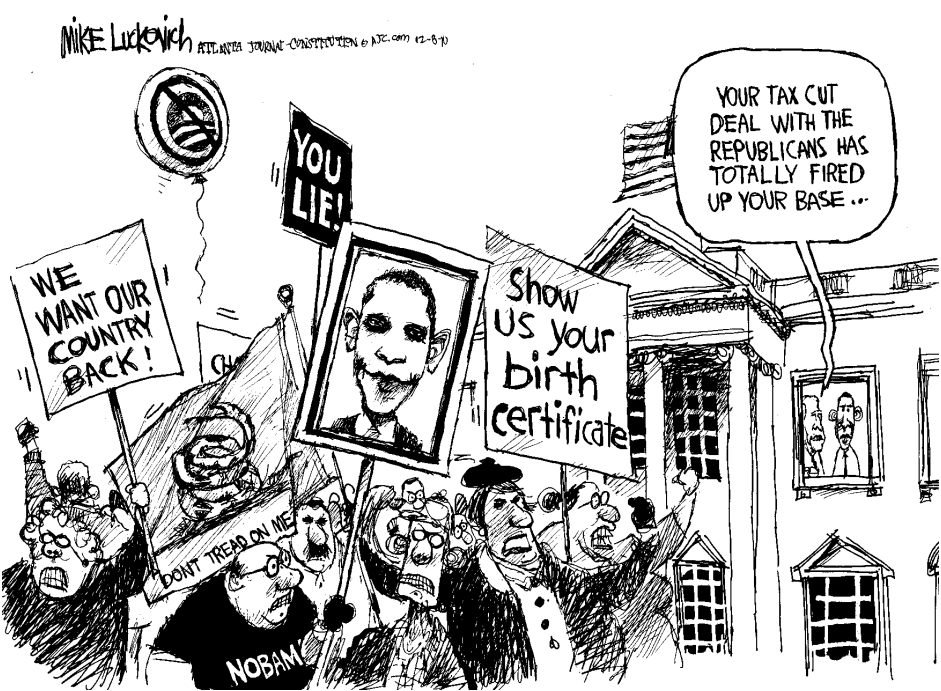

When it comes to opinions, we’re all living in an intellectual Costco

You think too much. And you’re not alone. Everybody’s thinking too much. We live in an era in which it is important to have opinions. Not necessarily smart or original ones; almost any opinion will do as long as it’s forcefully expressed. When it comes to opinions, we’re all living in an intellectual Costco, where it’s volume, volume, volume.

Stephen Randall

It wasn’t that long ago that opinions were something carefully considered and weighed, so that they’d stand the test of time and reflect well on the author. Thinkers were like gourmet chefs laboring over an elaborate meal they wanted to be perfect. But today, opinions are Big Macs — thrown together hastily, served by the billions and not very good for you. You probably don’t want to have as many opinions as you have. But everyone around you has them. There’s cable news, of course. Keith Olbermann and Glenn Beck each have plenty of opinions. When you sell opinions for money, the way Keith and Glenn do, it doesn’t take you long to catch on that the more opinions you have, the more money you make. So, like radish farmers who grow more radishes in order to get rich, Keith and Glenn create dozens of new opinions per night. But here’s the problem: They’re not very smart opinions. And they’re forcing everyone around them, including you, to also have far too many opinions. We post them on Facebook; we tweet them; we express them in comments on Huffington Post. We’ve become junior-grade cable goons — but paid much less. We get angry too, just like Keith and Glenn. What’s the point in having an opinion if it’s not an angry opinion? If something upsets us — like a member of Congress and a bunch of innocent bystanders being shot in Tucson — we don’t mourn, we fulminate. We assign blame. Or we deflect blame — angrily. It’s hard to find the good guys when one side is self-righteously accusing the other side of lacking civility as if that were any more likely to spark violence than movies or video games, and the response is, weirdly, to defend a lack of civility as if it’s a good thing. Opinion inflation has invaded every aspect of our lives. It causes us to post our opinions about our dry cleaner on Yelp. Did you used to have an opinion about your dry cleaner, or was he just sort of there, like a shrub or a parking meter? The Internet is a Petri dish of opinion inflation, breeding commentary like bacteria. Because few people do anything interesting or have anything factual to report, they toss off a short opinion. That, in turn, leads to opinion hyperinflation; just look at the comments sections on any blog. Opinions quickly devolve from Big Macs into rat poison. Civility makes only a rare appearance, and facts are no longer facts. Evolution, climate change, gravity — it’s all one point of view against another. Everyone gets a vote, even the people who aren’t particularly sane. There was a time when thoughtful people tried to be balanced. The old-style political columnists were famous for saying nothing. They presented both sides of any given issue in an “on the one hand/on the other” fashion, pretty much allowing readers to form their own opinions, which readers rarely did. Walter Cronkite voiced so few opinions that when he uttered one — about the Vietnam War — it changed the course of history. Of course, those days were boring. Today’s onslaught of nonstop commentary everywhere you look is significantly more entertaining. Walter Lippmann was boring; Arianna Huffington is not. Eric Sevareid could put you to sleep faster than Ambien; Sean Hannity is a shot of double espresso (with the new, not the old, Starbucks logo). Now we’re hooked. We don’t go to a new restaurant to eat a meal; we go there to dissect it and then tweet about it. We can’t post a link to an article without giving it some sort of grade. We criticize the music we listen to and the TV we watch. Awards shows have been reduced to weird Joan Rivers screeds about what celebrities are wearing on the red carpet. Each dress has to be deconstructed by a panel of experts and found wanting. It’s all turning us into surly teenagers who disagree with everything. There’s a certain irony, I realize, to expressing an opinion about opinions. And perhaps I should be grateful. Not only am I more entertained these days, but when I’m feeling lazy, I can switch from thinking too much to not thinking at all. I am so surrounded by opinions that I don’t need any of my own. I can turn on Fox or MSNBC and adopt an entire political philosophy without knowing a thing. Of course, the problem is that when I share that philosophy, I don’t sound intelligent, I sound like a drunk at a bar arguing with an empty barstool. On his old HBO show, Dennis Miller used to end his trademark rants with, “Of course, that’s just my opinion. I could be wrong.” He was right. I could be wrong too. But he was also way too opinionated. Stephen Randall is the deputy editor of Playboy. He wrote this commentary for the Los Angeles Times.

Hef may think he’s still got it, but it’s last call at the bunny roundup

Let’s just get this out of the way before the new year is all backed up with highly consequential events of much greater urgency: Hugh Hefner is repulsive. There. I feel guilty already violating a resolution to be less snarky and judgmental in 2011. But while on a sugar high as I vow to diet, I might as well take another bite: Hugh Hefner is reptilian and should never be looked upon as a role model for anything except how not to grow old. I don’t mind if an octogenarian sits around all day in his jammies while waiting for his meds to kick in. Nursing homes are full of such people, most of them far more productive than Hefner. Nor do I care that Hefner is still trying to shape the legacy of his pathetic Playboy brand — weird, plastic-bodied women who giggle at non sequiturs from aging paramours in hygienically challenged hot tubs. What bothers me about Hefner — and this is a visceral reaction, nothing I’ve fully intellectualized — is that some people think it’s cute, and even kind of cool that an 84-year-old man has just announced his engagement to a 24-year-old Playmate. The media response has been fawning, bordering on cloy, and cries out for a rebuttal. So, he was 60 when she was conceived. He might be 100 before she starts to get serious about having children. Nature does not work this way; birds should not fall from the sky for no reason, and losing football teams should not be in the playoffs. “Best wishes, you two crazy kids,” gushed Politico, in nauseating sincerity. The obvious reasons for one part of this union — money, money and money — are worth mentioning. Would any passably attractive young woman marry a geezer more than three times her age if he worked the night shift at a convenience store? How many men with names not linked by trust fund to oil companies can paw 20-something and not get banned from any social function? But ol’ Hef — wink, wink. Hefner’s reputation, a gloss of nonsense put forth by people who feel privileged to hang with the mummified sybarite at his mansion in Los Angeles, took a hit when a British newspaper recently published an account of the Hefner compound by a former bunny. The portrait that emerged was of a strange old man who popped Viagra pills like they were Skittles and doled out $1,000 a week in cash from a safe to his various “girl-friends.” There’s a word for that kind of arrangement. At one point, Hef later boasted, he had seven girlfriends around, and imposed upon them a 9 p.m. curfew. Sounds like extreme Islam without the burka — and everything else. Underlying all of the media flattery is a theme that aging is horrible unless it’s spent in moneyed defiance of the inevitable. I’m lucky to count among my friends an 80-year-old man who joins us every year on a ski trip to the Wasatch Range in Utah. He skis the double-diamonds, and he never complains. He’s been married for at least 50 years, and seems more full of life now than ever before. He’s my role model. Sean Connery is also 80, and has been married to a woman his age for 35 years. Ten years ago, when Connery was just about to turn 70, People magazine named him the sexiest man of the century. Bravo! Has Diane Keaton, at age 65, ever projected more authenticity and sexiness? Did Paul Newman do anything but grow in stature as he nurtured a long marriage, and a charitable foundation that helped thousands? Is 88-year-old Betty White a joy for what she is, rather than a pretend version of an old babe? Hefner is the opposite, a spirit-curdling spectacle as he parades his trophies out for approval. But don’t take it from me. I asked my daughter, who is about the same age as Hefner’s fiancée, what she thought of the engagement. She hadn’t heard much about it, so I showed her a picture of the pair. Her response: Ewww! Timothy Egan is a Seattle-based columnist for The New York Times.

America and the art of self-repair

“The period was so far like the present period, that some of its noisiest authorities insisted on its being received ... in the superlative degree of comparison only.”
— Charles Dickens, “A Tale of Two Cities”

We are, it's said, now living through the most wrenching period since the end of World War II. Unemployment has exceeded 9 percent for 20 months, and it's unclear when it will fall. Americans' faith in the future has been shaken; a recent Gallup poll finds that only one in seven thinks it “very likely” that today's children will “have a better life than their parents.” The feelings and facts are genuine, but the conclusion amounts to historical amnesia. At least one other period rivals the present for its disillusion and contentiousness — the 1960s.

At first blush, the comparison seems absurd. The Sixties were nothing if not prosperous. The economy expanded for a then-record 106 months; by 1969, the unemployment rate was 3.5 percent. For job seekers, it was paradise. “I didn't look for a job, the job looked for me,” recalls political scientist Alan Wolfe of Boston College, who received his Ph.D. in 1967. That applied to almost anyone wanting work. Now, graduating Ph.D.'s face “horrendous” prospects, notes Wolfe, as do most job seekers.

But a strictly economic focus misses broader political and psychological parallels. What frightens people today is that we've experienced setbacks that were so completely unpredicted and unimagined (financial panic, major bank failures, General Motors' bankruptcy, huge budget deficits, collapsed housing values) that they raise dark doubts about our institutions and leaders. The political order seems unequal to the challenges. The stridency of debate reflects fears that one political crowd or the other will yank the country in a disastrous direction.

Precisely the same sort of breakdown occurred in the Sixties, and although the causes were very different, the consequences as measured by public divisiveness and anxieties were as great or greater. “The country was more divided than at any time since 1861, just before the Civil War,” says historian Allen Matusow of Rice University, author of the acclaimed Sixties' history “The Unraveling of America.”

About two-thirds of Americans, born in 1960 or later, are too young to have a first-hand memory of the Sixties' convulsions. Even for many who lived it, the Sixties have become a historical cartoon — hippies, drugs and anti-war protests. What's forgotten is the era's deep public and private acrimony.

The toll on the national psyche was profound. Democrats, more than Republicans, became bitterly divided. People felt threatened. Law and order became a popular cause — from 1963 to 1973, the homicide rate doubled, from 4.6 to 9.4 per 100,000 — and was sometimes code for racism. In the 1968 presidential election, Gov. George Wallace of Alabama campaigned on the backlash and received 13.5 percent of the vote.

Robert Samuelson

Polarization was not just public. Families often split angrily. Some early baby boomers, reared in affluence and largely ignorant of the Depression and World War II, adopted political views and counterculture lifestyles that infuriated their parents, who had lived through the hard times and thought they knew better.

Activists were always a minority. A 1969 Gallup poll found that 72 percent of college students had never demonstrated against the war. But the minority's high visibility fed the perception that America was coming apart, with its privileged youth rejecting “conventional middle-class styles of life” and impugning “the symbols of American patriotism,” writes Brown University historian James Patterson in his “Grand Expectations: The United States, 1945-1974.”

It was a wrenching era. Although dramatic differences separate then and now, the history reminds us that we've been through this before. It also allows for modest optimism. With time, luck and leadership, America has the capacity for self-repair.

Newsweek columnist Robert Samuelson writes about economics.

Wendy's/Arby's considers sale of Arby's chain

The Associated Press

ATLANTA—Wendy's/Arby's Group Inc. is considering selling its struggling Arby's business and concentrating more on its expansive Wendy's hamburger chain. Its shares rose more than 9 percent in pre-market trading.

The Atlanta restaurant operator has experienced softness at both its Wendy's and Arby's locations, but Arby's has long been suffering because its sandwiches can cost $5 or more, more expensive than many other fast-food offerings.

Diners have focused on value and price in the economic downturn, seeking cheaper alternatives.

While Wendy's/Arby's announced in November that Arby's would be coming out with lower-priced options, the company has now decided to pursue strategic options and potentially shed the operations. UBS Investment Bank will help Wendy's/Arby's as it explores alternatives for Arby's.

The Arby's sandwich chain has almost 3,700 restaurants and is known for its roast beef sandwiches. The restaurants also serve deli-style sandwiches, toasted subs, salads and other items.

Chairman Nelson Peltz said in a statement on Thursday that the company believes the best way to maximize shareholder value is to concentrate its efforts on Wendy's.

He says the reality is that the Wendy's brand, given its relative size and scope, is the key drive of shareholder return.

Peltz's Trian Fund Management owns about one-fourth of Wendy's/Arby's stock.

Wendy's currently has more than 6,500 restaurants, including locations in Burley, Jerome and Twin Falls. The chain is in more than 20 countries. Wendy's/Arby's has more than 10,000 restaurants in the U.S. and 24 countries and U.S. territories worldwide when accounting for both its Wendy's and Arby's locations.

The announcement of the possible Arby's sale comes just two days after Yum Brands Inc. said it was putting its Long John Silver's and A&W restaurant chains up for sale so it could focus on its growing international business. A sale of those two businesses would leave Yum with Taco Bell, Pizza Hut and KFC in the U.S. and abroad.

The Arby's news also comes during ongoing speculation that Wendy's/Arby's is a potential takeover target. The company said it received a third-party inquiry in June about acquiring the fast-food company. In November management pushed for Peltz's Trian to act on the inquiry "as promptly as practicable."

Wendy's/Arby's lost money in its third quarter, hurt by higher ingredient costs and weakness at Wendy's and Arby's locations.

Builders cautiously upbeat

Lynn Michaelis speaks Wednesday at the 'Future of Homebuilding' forum presented by Franklin Building Supply at the Twin Falls Hampton Inn. Michaelis, former chief economist of Weyerhaeuser, talked about the economic outlook for building homes.

Economist predicts slow but steady housing recovery

By Blair Koch
Times-News writer

Lynn Michaelis, former chief economist for forest products company Weyerhaeuser, had good and bad news Wednesday for the 30 or so homebuilding professionals who heard him speak.

At the root: Is there a future in homebuilding?

"Yes," Michaelis said at a forum in Twin Falls, "The Future of Homebuilding," sponsored by Franklin Building Supply. "Definitely. Eventually."

On the positive side, he said, the market seems to have bottomed out.

But a rebound doesn't seem likely within the next couple of years.

"We're in an unprecedented period," he said.

With low construction costs, affordable interest rates and home prices down considerably from two years ago, it's a buyer's market — if only there were buyers.

"Once people start building again, those costs will increase," Michaelis said.

He noted that until the unemployed find jobs and foreclosures

slow down, the market won't recover.

Each decade has a unique cyclic pattern, Michaelis said, but this market depression is different from previous downturns.

After previous recessions, people went back to work and low interest rates made home loans affordable, which boosted home starts.

The Federal Reserve has kept interest rates low, Michaelis said, but people aren't finding work.

Housing, like all markets, goes through periods of expansion and retraction, he said. Before the national housing bubble popped in 2007 the number of homes being built increased for 15 continuous years, as did home values.

"When people are in a bubble they don't think rationally," Michaelis said. "The myth was housing prices wouldn't ever fall."

But fall they did, to levels unseen since the Great Depression.

The volume of home starts and sales won't likely ever reach the levels seen during the bubble's peak. That's probably a good thing, said Franklin Building Supply President Rick Lierz.

"Those levels weren't healthy. They weren't sustainable," Lierz said in an interview. "I think the industry as a whole has reset its attitude and understands that things won't ever be that way again. It can't be."

"It will be a slow recovery. The Idaho market, except for the Boise area, is doing rather well," he said.

"At some point we're close to the bottom, or have passed it, and things will get better. In southern Idaho, it's a much more healthy market."

Michaelis said recovery should gain momentum through 2012.

Micron unveils plans for new research building

BOISE — Officials with Micron Technologies say they intend to break ground on a new 50,000-square-foot research facility at the company's main campus in Boise this year.

Spokesman Dan Francisco said this week that at least half of the new building would be devoted to research and development of 300-millimeter wafer microchips.

The other half will be vacant in the short term.

Construction is expected to be finished next year.

The chip maker has been growing in the last 18 months and reporting profits after several years of financial losses that forced a company that was once the state's largest single employer to shut down plants and shed thousands of jobs.

Francisco says the new facility is needed to help the company stay competitive in the ever-changing chip industry

Blaine County drug coalition office moves

HAILEY — The Blaine County Community Drug Coalition has moved to a new office in the St. Luke's Center for Community Health.

The facility has relocated to St. Luke's Clinic, 1450 Aviation Drive, Suite 200, in Hailey.

According to a press release, BCCDC's mission is to "improve the health and safety of our community by decreasing alcohol and other drug use among our youth," which directly supports the hospital's mission.

"The primary reason for the move to create a more synergistic relationship between the Center for Community Health and the Drug Coalition," said Terry

Basolo, coalition director, in the release. "With the new office our staff can be highly productive and focus on our commitment to public health and safety."

WASHINGTON IRS to start processing delayed returns Feb. 14

The Internal Revenue Service plans a Feb. 14 start date for processing tax returns delayed by last month's tax law changes.

Beginning Feb. 14, the IRS will start processing both paper and electronically filed returns claiming itemized deductions on Schedule A, the higher education tuition and fees deduction on Form 8917 and the educator expenses deduction.

The IRS needed the extra time to update its systems to accommodate the tax law changes without disrupting other operations tied to the filing season.

The delay followed the Dec. 17 enactment of the Tax Relief, Unemployment Insurance Reauthorization, and Job Creation Act of 2010, which extended a number of expiring provisions including the state and local sales tax deduction, higher education tuition and fees deduction and educator expenses deduction

People using e-file for these delayed forms can get a head start because many major software providers have announced they will accept these impacted returns immediately. The software providers will hold onto the returns and then electronically submit them after the IRS systems open on Feb. 14 for the delayed forms

Most other returns, including those claiming the Earned Income Tax Credit, education tax credits, child tax credit and other popular tax breaks, can be filed as normal, immediately.

Southwest posts earnings of $131 million

By David Koenig
Associated Press writer

DALLAS — Southwest Airlines Co. is making money on more traffic and higher fares, and it says bookings for January and the rest of the winter look strong.

Southwest said Thursday that it earned $131 million in the fourth quarter, beating analysts' predictions of $116.2 million. Profit increased 13 percent and revenue rose 15 percent from a year ago.

The airline likes to advertise that it offers low fares, but twice this month Southwest went along with fare increases at the other airlines. The average fare on Southwest has jumped 9.1 percent in a year, to $131.17.

The airline industry is on a rebound after getting hammered by falling demand during the recession. Southwest joined Delta in posting a fourth-quarter profit. Although American Airlines parent AMR Corp. lost money, analysts expect all the other major airlines to report profits next week.

But airline executives are spooked by rising fuel prices. Southwest's fuel bill jumped 18 percent in the fourth quarter and it

South Central Community Action Partnership has thanked three outgoing county commissioners for their commitment, service and support as members of the SCCAP board of directors.

Lynn Hunsaker of Minidoka County,

Clay Handy of Cassia County and Tom Mikesell of Twin Falls County were selected by their counties as elected officials to serve on the board. Hunsaker served six years, including as the board chairman for the past two years. Handy served eight years, and Mikesell served three years. All three either decided to leave office or were voted out last year.

The three board members were dedicated to that post and the commitment and responsibility it carried, according to SCCAP officials.

Benefit dinner in Twin Falls

Friends and family of James Moulson, a Jerome County sheriff's deputy who was killed in the line of duty in 2001, will host a 10th-annual dinner and wine tasting benefit in his honor on Jan. 30 at the Rock Creek Restaurant in Twin Falls.

A no-host bar with appetizers will begin at 1 p.m. Dinner, including appetizers, salad bar, prime rib, salmon, shrimp, baked potato, rice, and a dessert bar will be served from 2 to 6 p.m. Entertainment will be by Crossfire musician Brett Reid, formerly the College of Southern Idaho's law enforcement instructor.

Proceeds from the event are used to help meet the needs of Magic Valley peace officers, as well as for scholarships to the law enforcement program at CSI. Tickets are $30 each and available at Dick's Pharmacy, Rock Creek or from Bob Moulson at CSI at 732-6296.

Diaper drive exceeded $2,500 goal

Sara Hillier, a College of Southern Idaho student who recently held a community diaper drive, says the drive was a great success.

She collected just more than 3,000 diapers, from a goal of 2,500. The drive also netted 2,100 baby wipes for local families at the Pregnancy Crisis Center and the food bank at the Mustard Seed thrift store.

Expired medication sometimes safe

DEAR DR. GOTT: With our overall belt-tightening in this down economy and no Social Security increase going on two years now, I have a question many of your readers probably face. Can taking expired medications make you sick or even poison you?

To be more exact, I'm referring to hard-coated prescriptions, not the soft capsule forms that have been stored as directed in a cool, dry place and for which I still have the medical problem they were originally prescribed. I'm talking maybe one or two years past expiration and mostly prescribed for pain relief.

DEAR READER: As a general rule, they will neither make you sick nor will they poison you. Starting in 1979, labeling mandated that expiration dates be included on medication — both over-the-counter and prescription varieties. This requirement only indicates the date a manufacturer guarantees full potency and safety of that medication. It does not indicate how long a drug is either safe or effective.

The FDA conducted one of the largest-known studies for the U.S. military 15 years ago, and it was subsequently reported in the Wall Street Journal in March 2000. The military stored $1 billion worth of drugs for a test program to determine whether it could extend the lifetime of its inventories, which had traditionally been updated every two to three years (at great expense and much effort with disposal). More than 100 drugs were tested, including OTCs and prescription meds. At the end of the test period, almost 90 percent of the drugs were found to be both safe and effective — 15 years after the posted expiration date. As of 2003, the FDA indicated it still did not garner sufficient evidence from the program, but from my perspective, the results speak for themselves. There are a few exceptions, however — nitroglycerin, some liquid antibiotics, tetracyclines and insulin. Generally speaking, drugs degrade slowly, especially pain medication, and with these exceptions, most can be used successfully long after the expiration date.

There are specific recommendations for disposal of any medications you might wish to eliminate from your medicine chest. Check with your local hospital, pharmacy, walk-in health facility or a pharmaceutical company to determine whether they have a takeback program. If not, consider putting the drugs in a plastic bag. Crush them with a kitchen tool such as a meat tenderizer to break them apart. Add used coffee grounds or kitty litter to the bag. Place the contents in a can or container, and dispose of them in the trash — not down the toilet.

Should we consider the expiration process a pharmaceutical manufacturing stroke of genius to get people to update their medications earlier than is necessary? If so, is it all because this means more money in the old corporate pocket? Do their marketing people really feel it is necessary to periodically update the packaging that may have the same ingredients as the old label did? Is there a justifiable reason to clean out the medicine chest on an annual basis and check expiration dates as we do on that quart of milk in the refrigerator? We can all ponder the process over dinner tonight. It will certainly beat watching those commercials regarding constipation and diarrhea that invade dinner-time TV programs.

If the smoke-drenched walls of a karaoke bar could speak, there would be a few sentences dedicated to Maria Cruz.

The woman from Puerto Rico discovered the Klover Klub, a downtown Twin Falls bar, a few months ago and is known to give in to owner Kristi Johnson's favorite song request.

"You always ask me to sing the same song," Cruz said, laughing and sipping her drink Saturday night.

"What song?" Kristi Johnson said, pretending to be oblivious. "Yeah, OK. I do ask for that song a lot."

Johnson's favorite? "I Will Always Love You," Whitney Houston style.

The Klover Klub was quiet around 9:30 that night, but once Cruz grabbed the microphone and started the flow of singers, the music rolled on for hours. People filtered in and out of the smoky bar, adjusting tables to make more room for friends.

A few older men leaned their elbows on the bar, drinking whiskey or beer. A small group of friends was seated close to the wall, their faces lit by the giant clover above them. Others were mashed together around groups of tables celebrating another Saturday night. An insurance agent

Bringing back the b-boys?

Magic Valley breakdancers hope to see revival

By Melissa Davlin
Times-News writer

On Tuesday, Michael Angelo Villanueva met his friends at the College of Southern Idaho gym to show off their moves. As they stepped and spun to the sounds of hip-hop coming from their tiny white boom box, a silver-haired woman stopped by. What is this? she asked, watching Daniel Benavides and Steven "Spyder" Solorio spin upside down on their hands.

"This is breakdancing," Villanueva said.

While there aren't as many Magic Valley b-boy crews as there used to be, a few dedicated dancers are keeping the art alive and hoping to bring it back.

B-boying, commonly called breakdancing, is a hip-hop dance that combines upright stepping moves, called toprocks, with spinning floor moves, called downrocks. Downrocks transition into freezes, the acrobatic upside-down poses that dancers hold for a few seconds.

Twin Falls b-boy Villanueva has been breakdancing for about 10 years. He had no formal training, relying instead on watching fellow Twin Falls b-boys and videos of professional breakdancers.

"I'd go and buy those and just go for it," Villanueva said.

Mike Goodson of Twin Falls learned from his siblings. His older brother is a choreographer, and his sisters also dance.

"Now I'm better than they are," he said. Goodson hopes to turn his 6- and 7-year-old daughters into b-girls, but isn't having much luck at the moment.

"Right now, they're into the whole cheerleading thing," Goodson said. "But eventually, I'll get the breakdancing in them."

Clown's heartwarming sketch returns to Hailey stage

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — A few years ago, a “Snowflake” landed on the stage of The Liberty Theatre.

The heartwarming performance combined mime, clowning, puppetry and theater that enchanted audience members from age 4 to 84. Now, “Snowflake” is back for four performances today through Sunday.

“Snowflake” features Michigan’s Gale LaJoye as Snowflake, a street person who lives in a vacant lot littered with discarded objects — all of which he transforms into joyful treasures.

LaJoye, who spent six years as Boss Clown with Ringling Brothers Barnum and Bailey Circus, based the sketch on a man nicknamed Snowflake who lived in a room above Doc’s Corners in LaJoye’s hometown of Marquette, Mich. The man had cerebral palsy and speech impediments, prompting the townspeople to believe he was shell-shocked or perhaps retarded, even though he often read novels.

“One Christmas Eve I saw him walking down the street,” LaJoye recalled. “He was alone and it was snowy, and the concept came to me: What happens when we’re not around? Does he go into the alley and play with all the things that have been thrown away by others?”

LaJoye’s sketch takes a discarded individual and shows how he responds to objects that others have discarded. He doesn’t speak a single line. But he speaks volumes with his very human portrayal of a street character who finds treasure in everything around him.

“It’s pure entertainment, yet it addresses things like respect and humanity, vulnerability and hope — things of the heart and soul,” said LaJoye, who has taken “Snowflake” around the world, performing in Japan, Australia and every other continent except Antarctica.

LaJoye tells the story using many of the athletic feats he learned during his years of clowning, such as hanging from a fence by his suspenders and ski walking up wooden planks shaped like barrel staves.

At age 60, he acknowledges that the skiing routine is positively brutal, even Finally, they’ve arrived: two events that draw hordes of passionate fans year after year. You’ll find sweet treats at one, rangeland rhymes at the other.

Competitive chefs will unleash their creative powers for Twin Falls’ Death by Chocolate charity fundraiser on Thursday, and your tasting ballot helps choose the winners. Meanwhile, plenty of Idahoans will head south of the Nevada border for Elko’s National Cowboy Poetry Gathering. This year’s week-long gathering showcases Hungarian musicians and horsemen, and attractions range from rawhide braiding to zydeco. How can you go wrong?

Tonight, entertainment lovers have plenty of options around the region, as the Cole Porter musical “Kiss Me, Kate” opens in Burley, Taiko drum masters On Ensemble play Ketchum and Gale LaJoye brings his silent but heartwarming “Snowflake” sketch back to Hailey for a three-day run.

In Twin Falls tonight, the fledgling Magic Valley Social Club kicks off with a free dance for singles and couples 50 and older. If you’re not old enough to make that cut, consider ventriloquist Lynn Trefzger’s zany comedy show instead. But if you plan to bring youngsters along, wait for her all-ages version on Saturday afternoon.

For event details, see the full calendar in today’s Entertainment section.

Make fabric designs with the colors you love

Times-News

No art experience is needed for the “Watercolors on Fabric” class offered by the College of Southern Idaho’s North Side Center.

Once you learn this method of painting, you can use it on quilts, clothing, pillows and just about anything made of fabric. It’s easy and permanent.

“Watercolors on Fabric” will meet 7-9 p.m. Feb. 10 and 17, at the North Side Center, 202 14th Ave. E. in Gooding. Cost is $40, plus a $15 materials fee.

Nostalgic for '50s innocence? 'Forever Plaid' is for you

Times-News

Experience the four-part harmonies of “Forever Plaid” when the musical comes to the College of Southern Idaho’s Fine Arts Auditorium next month.

The Arts on Tour performance will be 7:30 p.m. Feb. 7. Tickets are $32 for adults and $24 for students in high school and younger.

In this funny, feel-good musical for all ages, it is 1964 and four young male singers have landed their first big gig at an airport bar. But on the way to pick up their tuxes, they are slammed broadside by a busload of Catholic teenagers. That’s where the story begins, as the four members of an all-male singing group get a second chance to perform the concert they never got to in life.

It’s a quirky, entertaining tribute to friendship, music and the power of following your dream. In four-part harmony, Jinx, Sparky, Francis and Smudge serenade the audience with 1950s hits such as “Catch a Falling Star,” “Sixteen Tons,” “Crazy ’Bout Ya Baby” and “Love Is a Many Splendored Thing.”

“Forever Plaid” is directed by Theatre production. Written by Stuart Ross, Robert Randle in this Barter the 1950s, we think of rock ’n’ roll, greasers, hot rods, Elvis, Annette, Fabian, D.A. hair-cuts and teenage rebellion,” Randle said in a press release. “But there was a flipside to this era — the side of harmony, innocence and the sincerity of dreams.”

Barter Theatre opened its doors in Abingdon, Va., during the Great Depression. In 1946, it was designated Virginia’s state theater. Two years later, founder Robert Porterfield received a Tony Award for his contribution to the development of America’s regional theater movement. Celebrating its 77th anniversary, Barter has a year-round professional resident repertory company and boasts an annual attendance of more than 163,000. Famous Barter alumni include Academy Award winners Ned Beatty, Ernest Borgnine, Patricia Neal and Gregory Peck; Tony winner Hume Cronyn; and Wayne E. Knight. Learn more: bartertheatre.com.

What hundreds of cubic miles of water did to the Snake River Canyon

Times-News

Steven Lubinski, geologist for the Bureau of Land Management’s Burley Field Office, will speak on “The Bonneville Flood” for the first lecture of Magic Valley Arts Council’s 2011 Brown Bag Lecture Series.

The free lecture is at noon Jan. 28 at the Twin Falls Center for the Arts. Following at 7 p.m. at the center is a screening of The

Lubinski

Twin Falls Public Library Foundation’s 2008 DVD “The Bonneville Flood on the Snake River Plain,” produced by Leo Malberg and narrated by R. Brent Jensen.

From the broad Snake River Plain, to the fresh lava flows at Craters of the Moon National Monument, to the Thousand Springs of the Snake River Canyon — and the rich wind-deposited soils that fuel agriculture — geology tells the story of the region’s history. A defining moment in the Twin Falls area’s history was a catastrophic flood. Around 14,500 years ago, the Lake Bonneville covering much of northern Utah crested the mountains in southeastern Idaho and released an immense amount of water into the Snake River watershed.

That’s the event Lubinski’s lecture will illuminate.

Since Lubinski was a child, he has been fascinated with science and the outdoors. Drawn to the mountains, forests and streams of the West, he headed to Montana from his hometown on the outskirts of Chicago in summer 2002. Lubinski graduated from the University of Montana Western in 2007 with a bachelor’s degree in geology. Since then he has worked for the BLM in range, hydrology and geology in Montana and Idaho.

Bring a brown bag lunch to the free, public lecture. Or to pre-order a box lunch, call the Twin Falls Center by Thursday afternoon: 734-2787.

B-boys and -girls, also called breakers, find performance space anywhere. Sometimes they come together for organized “battles” at clubs, forming crews and competing against each other.

When b-boys battle, two crews face off against each other, with members of each crew taking turns soloing. The moves can be choreographed or improvised. Judges decide the winners of formal competitions, while audience reaction determines who wins more casual rounds.

When they compete, the atmosphere is generally respectful, Benavides said, although sometimes personal vendettas get in the way. Usually, a competition ends in handshakes and compliments for the other dancers.

But that hasn’t happened in a while.

“It’s been a long time since they’ve done that,” Villanueva said of the battles. The Treasure Valley scene is also dwindling, said Boise-based hip-hop artist Mark Garcia.

“I know it’s still alive, but I’m not sure how well it’s thriving,” Garcia said.

When they’re not battling, they perform choreographed routines for festivals — like Cinco de Mayo — slam poetry shows and cultural fairs. Garcia also incorporates b-boys into his hip-hop shows for his group Brown Ecstasy.

The performances draw big crowds, Benavides said.

“Then you get grandmas over here trying to do the worm,” Benavides said, referring to a common breakdance move.

Breakdancing isn’t for the weak. Minor injuries like jammed fingers and huge bruises are almost guaranteed, and broken bones and compressed necks are hazards of the hobby. Goodson has injured his shoulder and saw someone break a bone in competition.

“I’m lucky,” Villanueva joked. “I was the one that actually survived.”

Though some of the breakdancers are content with the lack of battles, Villanueva is driven. He hopes to see more battles spring up in coming months.

“Tell the other crews I’m coming for them,”

Villanueva said with a smile.

Reporter Melissa Davlin may be reached at 735-3234 or mdavlin@magicvalley.com.

rapped while his date smoked and talked on her cell phone. By the time karaoke was in full swing, more than 40 people were crammed into the small, friendly bar that opens at 11 a.m. every day for singers who want to shake off stress.

Certain songs will always be sung in a karaoke bar — heart-wrenching duets, off-key oldies and musical numbers in which the entire audience can sing backup. “Picture” by Sheryl Crow is performed at least once or twice a night, Johnson said. “Summer Nights,” “Friends in Low Places” and certain other country songs can be counted on night after night.

Personality and confidence are key to a good performance, but bar-goers said even if the singer is awful no one gets booed off the stage.

“A lot of people come here and they aren’t good singers, but we’re just entertained,” Cruz said.

The weekend karaoke crowd is larger than the weekday regulars, but at Twin Falls’ Pioneer Club on Wednesdays, the songs are still sung with fervor.

Sheena Schoonover, 29, said she never sings in the shower and denied any regular karaoke nights. It was her second time to the bar and the only time she had come by herself. But she grabbed the mic with confidence and asked the DJ to pick a song — any song — for her to sing.

The wooden walls around the karaoke stage and dance floor are decorated with Marilyn Monroe pictures, and as Schoonover started to sway and sing, the famous blond bombshell’s essence seemed to fill the room. Schoonover grabbed the DJ, Ken Shipp, for a passionate duet. Both of them flirted with the lyrics and let the music take over for a few minutes before a new singer came to the stage.

Just across town at Montana Steak House, Wednesday-night karaoke brought in a large crowd.

Darrell Bridgeman, 38, said karaoke is a stress reliever, and after his performance of “Hotel California” he sat down to catch his breath and grab a drink.

“You feel like a superstar!” he said. “It doesn’t matter how you sound as long as you have the nerve to get up and sing like you’re a superstar no matter what.”

The performances range from the casual and slightly inebriated singer to the man who leaves the stage to croon lyrics in a woman’s ear. There are the good, the bad and the tone-deaf, the sensual, the awkward and the just plain fun.

But in every karaoke bar, people earn cheers for the courage to get up and sing.

Amy Huddleston may be reached at 735-3204 or ahuddleston@magicvalley.com.

REPORTER’S NOTEBOOK

A secret singer’s conversion to karaoke

When I am alone I could be Broadway’s greatest star. I practice my dance moves and twirl in the kitchen while singing loudly on a daily basis.

I am a secret singer, bringing out my inner diva only when the radio can be turned up loud to hide my real voice or the water from the shower masks the tone-deaf notes.

I do not sing in public. Do not.

Except under intense peer pressure and when I have backup. I had a great group to accompany me on the karaoke bar escapades, and we sang everything from Gary Allen to Journey songs.

I was able to lure Times-News City Editor Eric Larsen up to the microphone with me on two occasions for rousing renditions of “You’re So Vain” and “You’ve Lost That Loving Feeling.” I became the backup singer very quickly when I realized how awful I sounded, and Eric had to carry on with only my laughter in the background.

I discovered that karaoke is really about a sense of freedom. It’s an adrenaline rush that lasts as long as a chorus. By grabbing that mic you are suddenly famous, suddenly amazing. And even if it was less than the best, it was still good enough for the audience.

— Amy Huddleston

It's hypnotic and exhilarating, say promoters of On Ensemble, a 21st-century take on an ancient Japanese art.

On Ensemble performs at 6:30 p.m. today at the Church of the Big Wood in Ketchum, as part of the Sun Valley Center for the Arts' Performing Arts Series. Tickets are $20 for Sun Valley Center members and $30 for others, at sunvalleycenter.org or 726-9491, ext. 10.

The young musicians who comprise On (pronounced "Ohn") Ensemble are Masato Baba, Kristofer Bergstrom, Shoji Kameda and Kelvin Underwood.

Since the group's inception in 2002, On Ensemble has performed in concert halls, theaters and outdoor venues throughout the U.S. and Canada.

In 2005, On Ensemble released its first studio album, "Dust and Sand." The independently produced album spent several months on the New Age Reporter charts, reaching as high as No. 3 in October 2005 and continuing to enjoy national airplay. In 2006, the ensemble released its first DVD, "Neiro," and in 2007 its first live CD and second DVD, "Live at the Cerritos Center." In 2009 On Ensemble released its second studio album, "Ume in the Middle."

On Ensemble brings its 21st-century take on an ancient Japanese art to a Ketchum venue tonight.

Minico girls clip Burley for fourth straight win

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Minico’s had its share of road struggles this season. That’s why Thursday night’s game at Burley was so important.

Minico gutted out a 32-28 victory over its rival, ensuring the Spartans no worse than the No. 4 seed and a first-round home game in the upcoming District IV Great Basin Conference girls basketball tournament.

“We don’t want to lose to Burley,” said Minico junior guard Malarie Pratt. “The rivalry is really a big thing for us.”

Minico (7-10, 4-5), which is just 2-8 on the road this season, won its fourth straight game and seems to be peaking at the right time with three games remaining in the regular season.

“We do better when we talk a lot,” Pratt said. “If we talk more on defense I think we could win more games.”

Defense was the story Thursday night, as neither team could get into an offensive flow. Minico shot 25.7 percent from the field, while Burley shot 22.6 percent.

“I felt like our team was nervous,” said Minico coach Joe D. Shepard. “It’s a combination of things, we couldn’t run our offense and Burley was playing tough defense. When we were running our offense we were either forcing a pass in or taking a bad shot.”

Marlee Chandler led Minico with 15 points, while Burley got 10 points apiece from Chelsee Baker and Brooke Bowers. The Bobcats fell to 3-14 overall and 2-7 in GBC play.

“We played all four quarters and played hard,” Bowers said. We just need to work on our shots. We had more shots, more rebounds, but shots didn’t fall.”

Minico had a four-point halftime lead before Burley came back to tie it heading into the fourth. A jumper by Micaela Merrill gave Minico the lead for good with 2:13 remaining, and Pratt followed with a pair of free throws that made it a two-possession game.

“The girls are playing extremely hard, but you’ve got to make shots,” said Burley coach Roger Caresia. “Our defense was intense and stellar, but you’ve got to make open looks. We make shots, we win the ballgame, it’s that simple, because I thought we outplayed them.”

Minico travels to Century on Saturday.

Burley will play at 5:30 p.m. Saturday at Skyline, in a game that was postponed earlier this season due to weather.

Minico’s Micaela Merrill goes up for a shot as Burley’s Kayla Kerbs defends Thursday at Burley High School.

Caroline Wozniacki, Djokovic advance; Justine Henin out

By John Pye
Associated Press writer

MELBOURNE, Australia — Justine Henin has been eliminated in the third round of the Australian Open, losing 6-4, 7-6 (8) to Svetlana Kuznetsova on Friday just a year after reaching the final in her comeback to Grand Slam tennis.

It was Henin’s first loss in a major to Kuznetsova, the former French and U.S. Open champion, and her worst run at a Grand Slam event since Wimbledon in 2005.

Henin was only weeks into a comeback from a career break from the tour when she lost the final last year to Serena Williams, the third time in four appearances that she’d reached the championship match at Melbourne. Her comeback season was derailed when she injured her right elbow at Wimbledon and didn’t play again in 2010.

The seven-time Grand Slam winner put up quite a fight in this one.

Kuznetsova twice had chances to serve out the match but Henin broke her both times. In a fluctuating tiebreaker, Kuznetsova was ahead 6-4 before Henin sent a service return skidding down the line and took the next point. She netted a forehand to give Kuznetsova another match point at 8-7 but again hit a powerful forehand service return winner.

Henin finally lost when she sent a forehand wide, giving Kuznetsova only her third win in 19 head-to-head meetings.

In the previous match on center court, Caroline Wozniacki beat Dominika Cibulkova 6-4, 6-3 to avenge last week’s loss in a tuneup tournament.

French Open champion Francesca Schiavone also moved on, beating Monica Niculescu of Romania 6-0, 7-6 (2). No. 9 Li Na of China, who reached the semifinals here last year before losing in two tiebreak sets against Williams, advanced with a 6-2, 6-1 win over Barbora Zahlavova Strycova.

Twin Falls girls zoom past Canyon Ridge, 70-40

By Stephen Meyers
Times-News writer

Once again, the Riverhawks were mystified by Bruin blue.

As has been the case in each of the matchups the past two seasons, the Canyon Ridge girls were routed by Twin Falls, losing 70-40 Thursday night.

The Bruins brought their swagger and one-loss conference record into Canyon Ridge’s gym and left with smiles and a showdown date against Wood River on Tuesday.

Canyon Ridge, however, played with the deer-in-the-headlights look all night and didn’t have any answers for Twin Falls’ aggressive pressure defense, half-court trap or Josie Jordan.

CSI men gain revenge, thump Snow

By Mike Christensen
Times-News writer

Consider the favor returned.

The College of Southern Idaho men’s basketball team avenged its only league loss, routing Snow College 105-87 Thursday night. The margin was almost an exact flip-flop of CSI’s 105-86 loss to Snow in Ephraim, Utah, last month.

“It was nice to see our guys come out and do exactly what we needed them to do,” said CSI head coach Steve Gosar. “This is a big win. That’s a very quality Snow team.”

Pierre Jackson scored 28 points, going 6-for-10 from 3-point range. He hit three treys in a 55-second span earlier in the second half that put the Golden Eagles in total control with 63-44 lead.

“Once I hit one, it just feels good,” said Jackson, who also had six rebounds and five assists.

CSI had five players in double figures, including a 19-point, 10-rebound double-double from Kenny Buckner.

Darius Smith had a big night, going a perfect 6-for-6 from the field and 5-for-5 from the line. He tallied 17 points, 10 assists, six rebounds, four steals and two blocks.

“Even coming out of grammar school and junior high, I’ve always been known as a stat stuffer,” said Smith. “It just seems like I’m always in the right spot at the right time.”

“He had a wonderful ball game today. Very, very happy with how he played,” Gosar said of Smith.

CSI’s Gerson Santo goes up for a rebound as Snow’s Travis Wilkins gets a hand on it while his teammate Sam Hoopes (922) watches Thursday night at CSI in Twin Falls.

DREW NASH/Times-News

CSI (19-2, 5-1 Scenic West Athletic Conference) went 24-for-26 (92 percent) at the foul line and shot 55 percent from the field. Gerson Santo netted 15 points and Jerrold Brooks added 12 as the Eagles, the SWAC’s highest-scoring team, continued to light it up offensively.

“Late in the season like it is, you’ve got to click on all cylinders and that’s what we’re doing,” said Smith.

Snow College got 25 points and 10 boards from DeShawn Mitchell, but most of those points came after the game was out of reach. Mason Sawyer went 6-for-8 from long range to score 22 for the Badgers (14-7, 3-3 SWAC), while Travis Wilkins scored 14 of his 18 points in the first half.

The lead went back and forth early until Smith scored seven points in a 13-4 CSI run that put the Eagles up 26-17 midway through the half. Jackson hit three first-half treys as CSI pushed its cushion to double figures and led 45-34 at halftime.

CSI women swat Snow

By Mike Christensen
Times-News writer

Laurel Kearsley threw a block party, Guili El-Mir found her groove and Mechela Barnes led a 3-point barrage as the 21st-ranked College of Southern Idaho women’s basketball team hammered short-handed Snow College 79-52 Thursday night.

Those performances highlighted a balanced effort that saw eight Golden Eagles score six points or more.

“I thought we had moments where we played really good,” said CSI head coach Randy Rogers, whose team improved to 17-4 (4-2 Scenic West Athletic Conference).

Many of those moments came courtesy Kearsley, El-Mir and Barnes.

Kearsley had a career-high nine blocks to go with nine rebounds and seven points.

“They came into my area,” is how Kearsley chalked up her blocks. Three of those swats came on one Snow possession.

“I felt like, ‘Dude, they just keep coming.’ You’d think they’d learn,”

Kearsley joked.

El-Mir broke out of a recent slump, going 6-for-8 from the field on her way to 13 points after missing time last week due to disciplinary reasons.

“That was the most energy we’ve seen lately from her,” said CSI coach Randy Rogers.

“I’m back,” said El-Mir, adding that the effort is one she plans to replicate in future games.

Barnes went 4-for-7 from long range, scoring a team-high 14 points as the Golden Eagles finished 12 of 27 beyond the arc.

“I shot with more confidence tonight,” said Barnes. “They backed up off me like I’m going to drive, so I was like, ‘OK, I’ll shoot then.’”

Snow played without injured starters Alle Finch and Dani Lockhart and struggled to keep pace after the early going. Erica Martinez led the 13-6 Badgers (3-3 SWAC) with 20 points, but went just 6-for-24 from the field.

CSI fell behind 7-2, but trailed for the last time at 13-12, ripping off a 17-3 run to take a 29-16 lead. The

Davis Love III picked as U.S. Ryder Cup captain

MEDINAH, Ill. — Davis Love III had to share his big day with Chicago's beloved Bears.

If he leads the Americans to the Ryder Cup in the fall of 2012, he'll have the whole town to himself.

An emotional and enthusiastic Love was introduced Thursday as the next U.S. captain of the Ryder Cup, then spent the next few hours being feted across Chicago. He was made an honorary member at Medinah Country Club, where the 2012 matches will be played, got a miniature replica of the Stanley Cup, and hobnobbed with Chicago's sports royalty: Scottie Pippen, Dan Hampton and Ernie Banks.

“Good luck to you,” Pippen, who teamed with Michael Jordan to win six NBA titles with the Bulls, told Love at an afternoon reception. “I’m looking forward to popping some champagne with you.”

All five of Chicago's pro teams presented Love with personalized jerseys, and the White Sox threw in a ball from the 2005 World Series. Love also was to be a guest of the Bulls at their game against the Dallas Mavericks later Thursday night.

“The whole world is going to be watching what we do here in Chicago,” Love said. “When we get here, when the European team gets here, we’re going to be at least a point ahead because we’re going to have the Chicago fans, the Chicago energy.”

The daylong celebration of Love's appointment wraps up a week that put the Ryder Cup in the news some 18 months before the next shot is struck. Europe, which won the gold trophy in Wales last October, appointed two-time Masters champion Jose Maria Olazabal as its captain Tuesday.

WEEKLY, VEGAS LEAD HOPE CLASSIC
LA QUINTA, Calif. — Boo Weekley shot a 6-under 66 in windy conditions Thursday for a share of the second-round lead with rookie Jhonattan Vegas in the Bob Hope Classic.

Vegas had a 67 to match Weekley at 13-under 131 in the 90-hole tournament on four Palm Springs-area courses. Charles Howell III (66) and Chris Couch (65) were a stroke back.

Vegas is a Venezuelan playing in just his fifth PGA Tour event.

Keegan Bradley (67) and Brian Davis (66) were 11 under.

SCHWARTZEL LEADS IN ABU DHABI
ABU DHABI, United Arab Emirates — Charl Schwartzel shot an 8-under 64 to take a one-stroke lead over Padraig Harrington after the first round of the Abu Dhabi Championship.

The Joburg Open winner last week, Schwartzel had nine birdies — eight on his first 12 holes.

U.S. Open champion Graeme McDowell birdied his last five holes to join Alexander Noren and Niclas Fasth at 65. Defending champion Martin Kaymer had a 67, top-ranked Lee Westwood opened with a 69 and Masters champion Phil Mickelson had a 71.

Kerner fills new role nicely for Shoshone

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

SHOSHONE — Ahead of her senior season, Shoshone forward Jennica Kerner was approached by girls basketball coach Tim Chapman about the increased role she would have to take in her third year as a varsity player.

“Fish Bait” was about to become a big fish. Since the start of the season, Kerner’s played the part to perfection.

Averaging 12 points and eight rebounds per contest, Kerner is one of the most important cogs for the 14-3 Indians. But the 5-foot-7 post still prides herself on being a tenacious, pain-in-your-butt spark plug rather than the team’s leading scorer.

“When I was a sophomore they

Kerner

Times-News Athlete of the Week

used to call me ‘Fish Bait’ because I was a lot smaller than the other girls, and it kind of stuck,” Kerner said, referencing an English class vocabulary term that became her moniker of choice. “I really like to play against bigger opponents and get the rebounds anyway. It’s more gratifying to get the big rebound against a bigger post than to hit a big shot.”

Kerner has taken on a greater scoring role this season, something to which she’s not exactly accustomed. While she doesn’t mind scoring in double figures, she’s quick to find fellow forward Mariah Schoolcraft or an open outside shooter if someone else has the hot hand.

“I just started shooting more this season, and it’s worked for me,” she said.

What’s worked for Kerner has been an added bonus for Shoshone. Though it’s still the rebounds that she pays the most attention to on the stat sheet.

“The first question she always asks is how many rebounds she had,” Chapman said. “As she goes, our team goes. When she’s going, we know we’re going to have a pretty good night.”

As the Indians continue their battle for a state tournament spot, it’s safe to say “Fish Bait” will have to make a splash for their dreams to be realized.

Rodgers' finest feat? Making Favre an afterthought

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — On the list of Aaron Rodgers' accomplishments in three seasons as the Green Bay Packers' starting quarterback, one stands out as being something that really didn't seem possible when he first took over as the starter.

He made Brett Favre an afterthought in Green Bay.

Going into Sunday's NFC championship game against the Bears in Chicago, Rodgers is the undisputed face of the Packers, and his success in the playoffs is winning over almost anyone who still had doubts about his place among the NFL's elite quarterbacks.

"I think he's definitely the quarterback we all hoped he would become," coach Mike McCarthy said. "He was a young talented quarterback, had a very bright future, and now we're in year three of his development and he's definitely developed into a special player. He does it the right way. He'll break them down physically, mentally. He's in a great rhythm right now."

He certainly made a believer out of veteran Packers wide receiver Donald Driver.

"I love him," Driver said. "I don't know if you can put words to it but he's playing like one of the best quarterbacks in the game, if not the best."

Rodgers might not have made the Pro Bowl this season, but there's no shortage of praise coming his way after a dominant performance in last Saturday's play-off rout of Atlanta. Rodgers has been particularly sharp since he sustained his second concussion of the season and sat out the Packers' Dec. 19 loss at New England.

Bears linebacker Lance Briggs said he isn't bothered by all the national attention on Rodgers.

"No, that's all it is, it's a sign of respect for what the Packers and Aaron Rodgers have been able to do," Briggs said. "They have been doing a lot of that this whole year. Credit is due."

Rodgers appreciates the praise from fellow players, fans and pundits, but doesn't think he deserves it — not yet.

"We have to put some more hardware around here," Rodgers said.

Forcier tweets he's leaving Michigan

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — Former Michigan quarterback Tate Forcier, who helped the Wolverines win the first four games of the Rich Rodriguez era before slipping on the depth chart and in the classroom, is leaving the school.

"Its time for me to go," Forcier wrote on Twitter late Wednesday. Messages seeking comment were left with Forcier and his father on Thursday.

Forcier, a sophomore, backed up Denard Robinson in eight games last season. He was ruled academically ineligible to play in the Jan. 1 Gator Bowl.

Michigan athletic director Dave Brandon said last week that Forcier was no longer with the program as he introduced coach Brady Hoke as Rodriguez's successor.

"I hate acting like I'm dodging questions," Brandon said Jan. 12 when asked about Forcier's status. "But there are certain limitations as to what I can talk about relative to any student's academic status with the university."

Michael Forcier, who traveled to Ann Arbor recently in the hopes of helping his son earn another chance with the Wolverines, said he was disappointed that Brandon said what he did.

"He could've used different words, but the new sheriff sent the media into a frenzy," Michael Forcier said last week. "Tate didn't flunk out, but he had two incomplete grades. If he was given a chance by at least one professor to make up the work and get a grade, he would be eligible."

FORMER ESPN ANNOUNCER SUES NETWORK OVER FIRING

AUSTIN, Texas — Former ESPN announcer Ron Franklin has sued the network over his firing for reportedly berating a female colleague.

The wrongful termination lawsuit filed Monday in state district court in Franklin's hometown of Austin claims ESPN had no grounds for dismissing him. The suit says Franklin exchanged "contentious words" with a colleague who repeatedly interrupted a private conversation before the pair worked at the Chick-fil-A Bowl without incident.

Sideline reporter Jeannine Edwards has said Franklin called her "sweet baby" in a condescending tone. When she objected, he used a derogatory term. Edwards said a colleague reported the incident to ESPN officials.

The lawsuit seeks unspecified damages and other fees, but not reinstatement. An attorney for Franklin didn't immediately return a phone call seeking comment.

Franklin was pulled from Fiesta Bowl coverage on New Year's Day, a day after the Chick-fil-A Bowl, and later apologized. He was fired Jan. 5.

KRAGTHORPE IS LSU OFFENSIVE COORDINATOR

BATON ROUGE, La. — LSU coach Les Miles hired former Louisville and Tulsa head coach Steve Kragthorpe as his new offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach on Thursday.

Kragthorpe will fill the post vacated by Gary Crowton, who after four seasons at LSU has taken a similar position on Randy Edsall's first-year staff at Maryland.

LSU went 11-2 this season, beating Texas A&M 41-24 in the Cotton Bowl. However, the Tigers struggling with consistency on offense.

LSU ranked fourth in the 12-team SEC in rushing with 185.7 yards per game and last in the league in passing with 155.6 yards per game.

EX-IOWA ATHLETE AVOIDS PRISON, AIMS TO PLAY AGAIN

IOWA CITY, Iowa — A former University of Iowa football player who faced decades in prison over a sexual assault case got his future back Thursday, when a jury convicted him on the least serious charge possible: misdemeanor assault.

Cedric Everson's attorney acknowledged Everson had sex with a female athlete in a vacant dorm room but claimed it was consensual, while the woman said she had passed out and didn't even know it happened until weeks later. The case has haunted both former students and the university for years.

For Everson, the verdict means the 21-year-old faces no more than 30 days in jail when he is sentenced Feb. 25. He won't have to register as a sex offender. He'll be able to return to Atlanta to his new wife and 1-year-old daughter. And the former defensive back said he hopes to resume his college football career as soon as next fall at a school neither he nor his attorney identified.

This is an excellent value on highway and all season radials. Offers a smooth quiet ride and tough steel belt construction.

DEAR ABBY: My adult son passed away nine months ago. I am mostly numb. My home has always been welcoming, and I have had friends and family here constantly — but now they won't leave! They don't seem to "get" the fact that I need some time to be alone.

I love these people, but my heart is broken. The only person I want to see and spend time with is my surviving son. I have lost my enthusiasm for almost everything. I work full time and no longer want to be the "hostess." I am TIRED. My sons and I were close, and I raised them by myself.

How do I tell my friends and family members that I need to be alone without offending them? I want to do the right thing.

— HEARTBROKEN IN CORPUS CHRISTI, TEXAS

DEAR HEARTBROKEN: Please accept my deepest sympathy for your loss. I'm sure your friends and family care deeply about you and are only trying to be there for you.

However, you need to heal as best as you can in your own way from the death of your son. Thank them for their constant support, and explain that you need some time to be alone and cope with this without a crowd around. They will understand.

Working your way through the grieving process can be exhausting. But if your "tiredness" persists, I'm advising you to discuss it with your doctor because it can be a symptom of chronic depression, which is a medical condition.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I'm a friendly, outgoing cashier at a grocery store. I enjoy chatting with customers. I particularly like some of them and look forward to them coming in. The problem is what I should do when they ask me for personal information, like my phone number or Facebook information.

In the last month, two customers asked to be my friends on Facebook and one asked for my phone number. I don't feel comfortable sharing this information with them. It's important for me to have a private life kept separate from my work life.

What is a polite way to let them know I don't want to give out that information?

— FACEBOOK-UNFRIENDLY IN LOVELAND, COLO.

DEAR FACEBOOK-UNFRIENDLY: Smile at the customer and, in your usual upbeat, friendly way, say: "You know, I think you are very nice — but I keep my work life and personal life separate. I never mix the two. But thanks for asking." Period.

DEAR ABBY: My 12-year-old daughter, "Sophia," repeatedly shirks her basic responsibilities. She routinely receives detention for not completing homework assignments and for failing to bring required materials to class. Despite my concern, Sophia continues with her usual shortcomings. This is causing a great deal of stress between us, and our relationship is now very poor. Should I keep pushing her or should I just allow her to fail?

— DISAPPOINTED MOM IN LOUISIANA

DEAR DISAPPOINTED MOM: Of course you shouldn't allow your daughter to fail. All mothers have to "push" sometimes. It goes with the territory. However, rather than letting it drive you and your daughter apart, talk with her teacher and see if she or he can give you some insight as to what's going on. If that doesn't help, then consult Sophia's pediatrician. The girl may have a neurological problem that's causing her behavior.

Avail. for Adoption:
Donations of Pet Carriers are greatly appreciated. We are in desperate need!

Wyatt is a young adult red heeler. He came into our shelter with a gun shot wound in his foot. He was x-rayed and we found that one toe had been broken where he had been shot. He is being treated and is doing very well. We need to find a family with lots of love to give this poor guy.

Lobo is a very handsome Golden Retriever mix. His coat is the golden color with chocolate stripes throughout. He is very affectionate and will be a nice companion. Come meet him today.

Adoption fee is $75, inclds spaying/neutering and the first set of vaccinations.

Classified Advertising Supervisor

Classified Advertising Supervisor – Employment Sales

The Times-News is seeking a high-energy and enthusiastic classified advertising supervisor with strong interpersonal skills and who possesses an entrepreneurial spirit. The successful candidate will have recruitment advertising sales experience and will demonstrate the ability to effectively manage, lead, and generate revenue growth for recruitment, real estate, auction, and service directory categories.

Primary responsibilities include growing the number of recruitment, real estate and commercial classified customers as well as making the Times-News and www.magicvalley.com THE PLACE for buyers and sellers of household and miscellaneous items to connect. The Classified Supervisor will be responsible for exceeding print and on-line classified advertising revenue goals and will collaborate with the Advertising Director to create an annual budget and establish sales strategies and develop programs and products to exceed those goals. They will recruit, train, coach and manage a first class, diverse and talented classified department.

Requirements:

- Previous sales management experience.
- Knowledge of marketing and competitive media.
- Must be a decisive problem-solver and possess strong written and verbal communication skills.
- Serve on one or more community boards/activities.
- Computer skills including proficiency in Microsoft Word, Excel & PowerPoint.
- College degree or equivalent experience

The Times-News offers exciting career opportunities and competitive salary and bonus potential. Our industry-leading benefits package includes a 401(k) plan, paid vacation and sick leave, and medical, dental, vision, disability and life insurance plans.

We are a drug-free workplace and all applicants considered for employment must pass a post-offer drug screen and criminal background check prior to commencing employment.

Apply online at www.magicvalley.com/workhere by Friday, January 28th.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

“Nothing defines humans better than their willingness to do irrational things in the pursuit of phenomenally unlikely payoffs.”
— Scott Adams

At the Bermuda Congress last year, this deal decided the winner of the teams tournament. McKenzie Myers, South in six hearts doubled, ruffed the club lead in dummy and ran the heart jack. It is tantamount to instant surrender to take this trick, but can West do better? No! If South is allowed to hold the heart jack, he crosses to a top diamond to ruff a club with the trump ace, then ruffs a spade back to hand to play the heart king and 10. Since West has no club left to lead, declarer can win the forced spade return in hand, draw the last trump, then cash the diamonds.

In the other room Myers’ teammates (Bill Souster and Joe Wakefield) reached five spades doubled with the East-West cards after Souster opened the West cards with a two-spade bid.

Against five spades doubled,
North led a low diamond, looking for a ruff, but South had clubs under control, so shifted to a low heart. Declarer ruffed in dummy and tried to cash the club ace;
North ruffed this, and had to be careful now, but exited calami-tously with the heart ace. Declarer ruffed, then crossruffed two more diamonds and hearts. That left him in hand to draw three rounds of trumps. In the three-card ending, the last trump squeezed South between his heart king and his guard in clubs. That was plus 650 and a whopping 20
IMPs for Myers.

ANSWER: You have a complex hand, but the simplest way to describe it is to raise hearts and forget about spades, since your partner rates strongly to have five or more hearts, or a very good four-carder. A jump to three hearts gets across the general values of your hand, if not the precise shape, fairly accurately.

Today is Friday, Jan. 21, the 21st day of 2011. There are 344 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On Jan. 21, 1861, Jefferson Davis of Mississippi and four other Southerners whose states had seceded from the Union resigned from the U.S. Senate.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1793, during the French Revolution, King Louis XVI, condemned for treason, was executed on the guillotine.

In 1910, the Great Paris Flood began as the rain-swollen Seine River burst its banks, sending water into the French capital.

In 1911, Sen. Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin announced creation of the National Progressive Republican League with the goal of promoting "popular government and progressive legislation."

In 1915, the first Kiwanis Club was founded, in Detroit.

In 1924, Russian revolutionary Vladimir Lenin died at age 53.

In 1950, former State Department official Alger Hiss, accused of being part of a Communist spy ring, was found guilty in New York of lying to a grand jury. (Hiss, who proclaimed his innocence, served less than four years in prison.) George Orwell (Eric Blair), author of "Nineteen Eighty-Four," died in London at age 46.

In 1954, the first atomic submarine, the USS Nautilus, was launched at Groton, Conn. (However, the Nautilus did not make its first nuclear-powered run until nearly a year later.) In 1968, the Battle of Khe Sanh began during the Vietnam War as North Vietnamese forces attacked a U.S. Marine base; the Americans were able to hold their position until the siege was lifted 2 1/2 months later. In Greenland, an American B-52 bomber carrying four hydrogen bombs crashed, killing one crew member and scattering radioactive material.

In 1970, the Boeing 747 went on its first commercial flight as Pan Am passengers traveled from New York to London.

In 1976, the supersonic Concorde jet was put into service by Britain and France.

Ten years ago: Pope John Paul II elevated archbishops of New York and Washington and 35 other church leaders to the College of Cardinals. The Roman epic "Gladiator" claimed best dramatic movie and the 1970s rock-and-roll story "Almost Famous" won best comedy at the Golden Globes Awards. Byron De La Beckwith, a white supremacist convicted of assassinating civil rights leader Medgar Evers, died in Jackson, Miss., at age 80.

Five years ago: Rescuers in West Virginia found the bodies of two miners who'd disappeared after a conveyor or belt caught fire deep inside a coal mine. A Red Cross-chartered helicopter that had been used for earthquake relief in Pakistan went missing (the wreckage of the copter and the bodies of the seven people on board were found in June 2006).

One year ago: A bitterly divided U.S. Supreme Court, in Citizens United v. Federal Election Commission, vastly increased the power of big business and labor unions to influence government decisions by freeing them to spend their millions directly to sway elections for president and Congress. Former Democratic presidential candidate John Edwards finally admitted fathering a child during an affair before his second White House bid. Toyota recalled 2.3 million U.S. vehicles to fix accelerator pedals.

IF JANUARY 21 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Work hard, play hard. You are stimulated by your surroundings and might find extra energy at your disposal during the next several months. This is a good time to start a new exercise program or projects that require physical energy. During May, you could meet Mr. or Ms. Right if you are single and because your attractiveness is at a peak, this is a good time to interview for a new position or be seen in public. If you are in any profession that requires widespread publicity, you will be at your best in late June and early July. That is a fine time to make major changes successfully.

Jeraldine

Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): In spring, our fancies might turn to thoughts of love, but even in January there can be a thaw. Romance and affection could seem to be a major motivating force in your life for the next several days.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): The longer the chase, the more satisfying the catch. Playing coy and hard to get only makes the final outcome all the sweeter. This is a good night to play footloose and fancy free if you are single.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): It takes two to burn the candle at both ends. It won't be hard to find energy to ignite a match and rekindle enthusiasm for piles of routine work if there is another person around to act as a helpmate.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Noah took the animals on board in pairs. In the same way, you will find that by being part of a couple you, too, can get a free ride. Get out and about, but be sure you have a congenial companion.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Toss coins in a wishing well. Your dreams and fantasies may persuade you to try your luck. Keep your aims set on achieving the best and the highest. Don't be discouraged by a brief dip in confidence.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Hold your horses. Too much ambition might stand in the way of true success and you might inadvertently invite criticism by playing the game of life with cut-throat tactics. Concentrate on being fair.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The ends justify the means. Perhaps you are a bit more ambitious than usual or are tempted to employ cut-throat tactics. It is time to reassess what constitutes true happiness and to be influenced by others.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Let the games begin. You and your special someone can bowl, ice skate, dance or find another suitable outlet for your energies. Anything that two people can do together fits the bill.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Display your sporting side. Focus on playing fair when meeting with friends or business associates. Sympathy and kindness are good tools that can weld together different perspectives.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You could be skating on the thin ice of conscience. Don't do anything that you can't tell your mother about. Make sure that you show someone special that you are true blue and trustworthy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Once bitten, twice shy. Your caution or hesitation about an investment or purchase might be founded on past experience. You shouldn't rush into action today just to please someone else.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You know the old saying about fools and their money. Money might burn a hole in your pocket, so keep a fire extinguisher handy. Someone may pay compliments; don't let it go to your head.

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

Public Comments Sought on Weatherization Assistance Program Plan

The State of Idaho will accept public comment on its Program Year 11 funding plan for the U.S. Department of Energy's Low-Income Weatherization Assistance Program. The PY 11 State Plan is available for review at Community Action Partnership Association of Idaho, located at 5400 W. Franklin Rd., Suite G in Boise, Idaho. A public hearing on the plan will be held from 10:30 - 11:30 am on Monday, January 31, 2011 at Community Action Partnership Association of Idaho, located at 5400 W. Franklin Rd., Suite G in Boise, Idaho.

The Weatherization Assistance Program assists low-income families through the installation of weatherization measures in their homes. The measures include insulation, air sealing, and heating systems improvements that improve the energy efficiency of the homes. Program services help eligible families reduce their heating costs, promoting the health and safety of the family and conserving energy resources.

Summary of changes to the 2010 DOE State Plan:

- Average cost per unit is $6,572
- Description of identified Training and Technical Assistance Priorities for the grant period
- Amendment of agency allocations and production estimates

Public comments for written testimony on the State Plan will be accepted from January 20-January 30, 2011. Send or deliver comments to:
