Pillar of Luna proposal stalls

Committee chairman: No effort to move bill forward

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

BOISE — Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Luna's three-pillared education reform proposal faces a legislative twist.

The largest piece of his "Students Come First" reform has fallen into legislative limbo. Luna's plan to slash 770 teaching jobs and add more technology to public school classrooms stalled Tuesday in a Senate committee, raising questions of whether its fate will dull the scope of the educational overhaul.

Senate Education Committee Chairman John Goedde said Tuesday he doesn't see any effort to move Senate Bill 1113, the centerpiece of Luna's plan, forward as it is currently written. As debate of its merits continues, the bill has already raised some lawmaker concerns about increasing classroom sizes.

Luna told reporters Tuesday that he's open to further changes to the bill in the Senate committee, adding that he doesn't have a problem with changes that add flexibility for local districts.

Meanwhile, the House Education Committee is moving ahead with Luna's other two bills, which would revamp teacher contracts and labor negotiations and offer teachers merit-based pay incentives.

Both have already passed the Senate.

Asked if the bills are equally important, Luna said all three play a key role in transforming education in a tough economic climate.

"I've never been one to ask for a pony when what I really wanted was a puppy," he said. "We put forward what we think is necessary to reform education in the kind of an economy that we see now and what I'm convinced is in the future."

At the same time, he called the two bills that have passed the Senate "monumental."

Lane Barker missed history class on Tuesday, opting instead to lend his voice to those debating the future of Idaho education.

Barker was among the nearly 400 Canyon Ridge High School students who stretched their legs and voices across Twin Falls early Wednesday in protest of Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Luna's sweeping education reform proposal. Barker said the rally was a fitting pursuit, being that his history class has recently focused on progressivism and reform.

"We are learning about changing America in class," he said, adding that the protest made him feel "rebellious."

While other students weren't quite sure what they intended to change with the classroom walk-out, they held protest signs proudly, cheering along their route to Twin Falls High School and Twin Falls City Hall like they were attending a homecoming football game.

Students crunched through the snow-covered College of Southern Idaho campus en route to TFHS, where they were turned away when Principal

Wild lands order debate sparks reaction in West

By Laura Lundquist
Times-News writer

Idaho Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter and other Western governors on Tuesday assailed a plan to assess "wild land" characteristics on federal lands.

The Dec. 22 order issued by U.S. Interior Secretary Ken Salazar directed the U.S. Bureau of Land Management to regularly conduct wilderness resource inventories, and factor in the wild characteristics of land when making land-use decisions.

Salazar and the BLM have depicted the order as repairing a role that was stripped in a 2003 legal settlement, citing the Federal Land Policy and Management Act of 1976.

But opponents have decried the move as a way to seal more lands away from public enjoyment under a "wilderness" designation.

Opening remarks of House Natural Resources Committee leaders illustrated the gap between both sides.

"This order is a clear attempt by the administration to create de facto wilderness areas without congressional approval," said Chairman and Rep. Doc Hastings, R-Wash. "It's absurd to claim that giving wilderness a different label will somehow pass muster."

"Criticism of Secretary Salazar's order is based on misperceptions," said Rep. Edward Markey, D-Mass. and the committee's ranking minority member, citing the assumption new wilderness will be created. "This directs the Bureau of Land Management to just look for wilderness as required by law."

T.F. council ponders safety of canyon road

By Nick Coltrain
and Amy Huddleston
Times-News writers

Safety issues were the crux of John Lezamiz's push Monday for a designated walking trail down Canyon Springs Road into the Snake River Canyon, and the Twin Falls City Council took notice.

Lezamiz, an attorney who lives near the canyon, brought out photos that showed the risks of the narrow, winding canyon road, including how trucks with trailers block the entire street when they make one of the two hairpin turns.

He suggested creating a designated walking trail on one side of the road, backed by a nearly 200-signature petition.

Barbara Beck agrees; she started asking for the signatures on the petition a few months ago.

"We are looking at increased use of the canyon and we need to make it safer for those who use it," Beck said during a Tuesday visit to the canyon road. "There are not only a lot of cars on this road, but also a lot of people."

Other council action

New commissioners: The council appointed Terry Ihler and Chuck Sharp to serve as city P&Z commissioners. They will replace Gerardo Munoz and Bonnie Lezamiz, who both must step down due to term limits. The council also recommended Twin Falls County commissioners approve Lee DeVore, who lives in the city area of impact, for another term on the city P&Z.

Community garden: A proposal to convert part of Harrison Park into a community garden was postponed so city staff can do more work on it.

Beck said the road could be expanded on one side by relocating existing dirt closer to the road and paving over it to make a path. She said the cost shouldn’t be too much and the city could consider doing it in segments.

All of the three access points to the floor of the canyon on the Twin Falls side are narrow, winding and treacherous for walkers, she said.

“I started walking 10 years ago and you are always looking behind you for traffic,” Beck said. “This is just a wonderful place. The views are amazing and we need to let people enjoy it in its natural state. You can’t get a workout like this anywhere else.”

Beck said she’s seen an increase in walkers in the last five years, adding that the city needs to find a plan to keep the road safe and open for the public.

Lezamiz is also worried about increased traffic from both cars and people.

“I think it’s a matter of time before someone is seriously injured or killed on that roadway,” Lezamiz said. “That roadway is already over capacity and it’s just going to get worse.”

The council asked city staff to put the issue before the city’s Traffic Safety Commission and Parks and Recreation Commission, the latter to see if an alternate walking trail is viable.

Councilman David E. Johnson questioned if more immediate action should be taken: putting up signs prohibiting pedestrian traffic on the road. He added that he doubted city taxpayers would want to be on the hook for liability in an injury lawsuit. But no one else, not even Lezamiz, was willing to back him up.

City Engineer Jackie Fields said Monday she hadn’t given any serious thoughts to Lezamiz’s pitch or any of the others thrown around the chamber, and couldn’t give any cost estimates. But anything’s possible, she said.

“There’s really nothing you can’t engineer if you desire it,” she said. “It’s a matter of at what cost.”

M.V. woman has plans for lottery winnings

By Laura Lundquist
Times-News writer

Lady Luck couldn’t have picked a better time to shine on one Magic Valley resident.

Cindy Ragains was running errands on Feb. 22 when she made her traditional stop to buy lottery tickets at the Oasis Stop ’N Go on Addison Avenue East.

She expected she’d maybe win a few bucks to break even on her purchases. She didn’t really believe that she would end up as the winner of $250,000 from the Idaho Lottery.

But there she stood Tuesday, receiving a check from lottery spokesman David Workman. Because Ragains is a regular, the store bought a cake in her honor.

“When they win in the Magic Valley, they win big,” Workman said.

Ragains said her winning Idaho Millions ticket was one of three she bought, then scratched while sitting in her car.

The first was a dud. On the second, she matched one number out of six, earning $20.

As she scratched away on the third, the money started to mount.

“At first, I thought I’d only won $25,”

Ragains said. “But then the zeros just kept coming.”

The convenience store clerks had to confirm the results for Ragains, who said she was so excited she couldn’t sleep that night. It was the sixth and final top prize from the 18-month Idaho Millions game.

It didn’t take Ragains long to find a use for the money. She said she takes care of her 36-year-old son, who is deaf and has cerebral palsy, and her sister, who has severe epilepsy. Until this year, she supported them through state-funded programs, but now those may disappear due to budget cuts.

“Gov. (C.L. “Butch”) Otter is making it hard for people like me because I’ll probably have to put my sister in an institution,” Ragains said. “I was trying to pay everything off to avoid that as long as I could, so this couldn’t have come at a better time.”

Ragains said she’ll pay off her car and some loans, then deposit the remainder in a savings account to care for her family.

Convenience store manager Janie Blair also received $20,000 Tuesday for the store for selling the winning ticket. Blair said her store sold one other winning ticket for $50,000 three years ago.

Rally

Ben Allen locked down the school — preventing his students from joining the rally — to avoid class disruptions. The march ended with a demonstration at Twin Falls City Hall, after which students were shepherded back to class shortly after 11:30 a.m.

Cynthia Marin, 18, said she and another friend had the idea for a protest. Marin started a social media campaign on Monday, and many of her classmates followed her lead.

“I just want to raise awareness. It’s unfair for teachers to be replaced by computers,” Marin said. “I want to be a teacher one day, so I want to have a job. We love our teachers, and no computer can ever replace them.”

The protest marked many students’ initial foray into social activism. Freshman Samara Ramobic said she was scared she’d be marked truant but said the protest was important to her.

OTHER STUDENTS RALLY

Jerome High School students plan to meet today at the school’s spirit rock for a 12:15 p.m. rally organized by sophomore Celsey Kidd.

“I have friends at Canyon Ridge and my grandma was a teacher,” she said of organizing the rally. “It’s just not fair to teachers, and also it’s just giving students laptops. How can you learn from that?”

Kidd said students will paint the spirit rock with a “No Luna” sign before marching to the Jerome County Courthouse.

A group of Filer High School students also protested Tuesday.

school students remained in class. The protesting students were marked absent, he said. Parents who disagree with their children’s participation could ask for their child to be marked as truant.

“I think these students are seeing these things play out on TV,” Dobbs said. “There are protests across the state and the nation.”

Barker’s history teacher, Jeremy Belliston, said he doesn’t condone students skipping class to protest, but supports those who felt strongly about Luna’s overhaul.

“I think any time an American citizen voices their opinion is great, because it’s a part of living in this country,” he said. “Some students were doing it just to get out of school, but for others it was really important to them, and I support that.”

Bill

“The way we pay teachers, reforming that is long overdue,” Luna said. “Pushing the reset button on how schools are managed at the local level is long overdue, so those are two great bills. They’ll go a long ways towards reforming education. The third bill completes the project.”

House Education Committee testimony on two of the bills included input from Magic Valley educators.

Hansen teacher Debbie Cottonware blasted Luna for not unveiling his plan prior to the November election, adding that most feedback on it has been negative.

ABOUT THE BILLS

- Senate Bills 1108 and 1110, which the Senate passed last week, are being heard in the House Education Committee. One adds a merit-based pay system for teachers, eliminating tenure, and the other revamps how teacher contracts and labor negotiations play out.
- What’s next: The committee will continue hearing testimony about the bills today, with a vote likely later this week.
- Senate Bill 1113 deals with technology and student-teacher ratios.
- What’s next: It remains in the Senate Education Committee, its fate uncertain.

“The majority of the people in this state are now telling you they do not want this legislation passed,” she said.

She also criticized an aspect of one bill, which would allow districts to fire teachers if enrollment declines.

“How is dismissing a teacher a month to six weeks into a school year a positive?” she asked.

Debra Infanger, board chairwoman for North Valley Academy charter school in Gooding, spoke in support of the legislation, saying she knows there are both good and ineffective teachers.

Thomas Van Slyke, a Blaine County School District teacher, opposed the legislation, saying that restricting bargaining to only pay and benefits isn’t right.

He also questioned how a pay-for-performance system could accurately gauge which educators are responsible for a child’s gains, noting the many types of educators are involved.

“Who gets the credit when the child is successful?” he asked.

Wild

Wilderness characteristics usually require the absence of human impact, meaning any area already leased by industry or with roads or grazing permits would probably not qualify. That eliminates the majority of federal land.

But critics worried about a greater impact. Otter said the order shifted land-use decisions to D.C., adding he was offended that the states hadn’t been consulted about the decision. During questioning, Markey said identifying any potential wild land would include public input and the final decision would be made by local BLM managers.

Markey also asked Otter if he was similarly offended in 2003, when the Bush administration didn’t notify the states that it was dropping the policy. In 2003, Otter was a U.S. representative.

“Of course not — I agreed with it,” Otter said.

Otter said several energy-related projects in Idaho, including the proposed China Mountain wind farm and Gateway West transmission line, would probably not be spared the impacts of the order.

The transmission line may face more challenges accessing private land than public, however. Project manager Walt George told the Times-News in September that more than half of private landowners along the route have refused access.

Separately, U.S. Rep. Raul Labrador introduced a bill Tuesday that would require congressional approval of any wild land designation in Idaho.

Many of Tuesday’s speakers were opponents of the order. But Hastings said the committee would hold more hearings, including one where BLM employees could defend their position.

BLM Director Bob Abbey was allowed to testify, but Hastings said he didn’t want to displace other witnesses, so Abbey appeared last.

“The policy directs BLM to work collaboratively with the public to determine how best to manage their public lands, keeping in mind our responsibility to future generations,” Abbey said. “This does not make de facto wilderness; the designation just adds wild lands back into the roster of uses we manage for.”

Urban renewal bills pass House

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

BOISE — The Idaho House made this much clear Tuesday: It's time to reform urban renewal.

Lawmakers passed sweeping legislation that would shake up the state's current urban renewal system by adding public accountability and involvement.

The four bills passed Tuesday offer a variety of changes, including requiring citywide elections for the approval of urban renewal districts, prohibiting districts' growth through annexation, and providing for comment periods and public hearings.

Other changes would allow affected tax entities to opt out of urban renewal and reduce the time frame for an urban renewal district from 24 years to 20.

The bills now move on to the Senate.

Urban renewal districts are a sore spot in the state's dialogue about economic development. Critics say the districts have too much unbridled freedom in their use of taxpayer dollars as incentives for developers, while supporters contend that restrictions would hamstring efforts to lure new businesses.

Urban renewal agencies get their money primarily by tax-increment financing, which allows the agencies to collect any increase in assessed property tax value within their boundaries after their formation. That's money that otherwise would go to taxing bodies within the district such as cities, counties and highway districts.

Rep. Leon Smith, R-Twin Falls, said he supported changing the urban renewal timeframe from 24 years to 20 years.

"I think 24 years was too long, and I applaud the effort to bring it back to 20 years," Smith said, noting that the same provision was in a separate bill he wrote.

"That's good," he said. "That was in my bill."

Smith's bill was held in committee, while House

Majority Leader Mike Moyle's, which included other provisions like one to mandate citywide elections for district formation, moved forward.

But not all urban renewal proposals were embraced.

The House voted down a bill to require countywide elections for urban renewal projects amid concerns that small, rural communities in counties with larger cities would struggle to get voter approval.

Legislators also rejected a bill that would have required elections for urban renewal commissioners. Smith raised concerns about that requirement, saying that urban renewal officials are unpaid volunteers often already active in the business community who wouldn't be inclined to pursue the position through an election.

HEYBURN — State and federal wildlife and immigration officials searched Moyle Mink and Tannery in Heyburn Monday.

It is not immediately clear what officials sought during the search of the Heyburn business, Pocatello-based U.S. Assistant Attorney Mike Fica said Tuesday. He added that U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service investigations typically involve the Lacey Act, which combats the trafficking of illegally acquired wildlife.

Fish and Wildlife officials were joined by Immigration and Customs Enforcement officers and fish and game officers from multiple states.

Fica said search warrants were executed Monday at the business' 21st Street main office and at another location less than a mile north of the office.

"Because it's an ongoing investigation, no charges have been filed," Fica said.

Moyle Mink Secretary Shannon Wood said the owners of the business were not available Tuesday for comment.

Fica said ICE officers were present to help with the investigation because of their expertise in seizing evidence.

"There was no immigration aspect to this case at all," Fica said.

Fica said he could not disclose whether evidence was taken from either site.

An example of a Lacey Act case, Fica said, would be if an elk was illegally killed in Idaho and transported to Montana to be mounted. In such an instance, the Lacey Act would allow state wildlife officials to cross state lines to enforce the law.

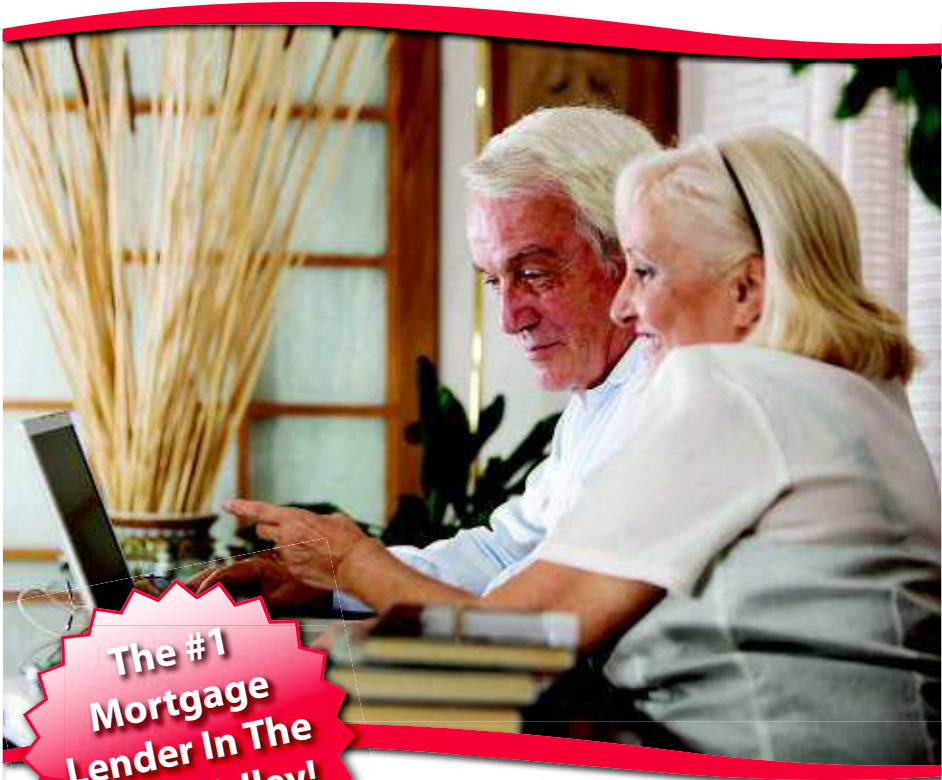

Fica said more information will not be released unless charges are filed.

"And I can't say that would even happen," Fica said.

Idaho lawmakers keep pressure on pardons, parole commission

The Associated Press

BOISE — A committee made up of Republicans and Democrats requested follow-up studies Monday of a state parole process blamed for costing the state millions of dollars by delaying the release of offenders.

The Joint Legislative Oversight Committee voted unanimously for two more studies looking at operations at the Commission on Pardons and Parole.

The commission was the subject of a critical audit report issued last year by the Legislature's Office of Performance Evaluations that found delays in the parole process cost the state more than $6.8 million between January 2007 and September 2009.

The office made more than a dozen recommendations to improve the process and operations at the commission and the Department of Correction. Some of those recommendations have been enacted. Others are in the works, but some were rejected or ignored.

Lawmakers were also briefed Monday on a review by Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter's Division of Human Resources, which identified management problems and wasteful spending at the commission, according to the Idaho Statesman.

Rep. Cliff Bayer, R-Boise, who is co-chairman of the oversight committee, requested an interim study that would be due in January 2012 and another with a deadline for the fall of 2012. The fall study will include a trend analysis looking at whether parole delays identified in 2010 have been reduced.

Bayer also said he wants the committee to weigh policy and budget changes at the conclusion of its work.

"For those recommendations to be as sound as possible, we can't cut the process short," he said.

The committee's other chairman, Sen. Elliot Werk, D-Boise, said he remained concerned about personnel issues raised in last year's audit, specifically decisions by commission Executive Director Olivia Craven.

The audit report found that 40 percent of Craven's 29 employees reported problems, including fear of retaliation and the belief that their conversations with auditors were being recorded.

Werk agreed that legislation may be warranted to reform governance of the commission, which is run by a board appointed by the governor.

After the audit was released, Otter rejected the recommendation that Craven's duties change. He faulted auditors for overstepping their role and in doing so, undermining the report's objectivity.

A subsequent and separate report by the governor's Division of Human Resources suggested problems remained at the commission. A letter dated July 9, 2010, and released publicly Monday, concluded that not all hearing officers at the commission were held to the same standards or office hours.

The letter also concluded Craven is considered by staff to be dedicated, but her work with the commission leaves little time to manage office operations.

AROUND THE STATE

Bill would restrict abortion insurance coverage in Idaho

BOISE — A bill that would ban state insurers from providing coverage for elective abortions has been approved in the Idaho Senate.

The measure was approved 27-7 along party lines Tuesday and now goes to the full House for debate.

The federal health reform approved by Congress last year requires so-called insurance exchanges set up in states to cover elective abortions. But the law also allows states to opt out of requiring elective abortion coverage.

Republican Senator Curt McKenzie says the bill approved Tuesday would ban abortion coverage in the exchanges except in cases of rape, incest or cases when the mother's life was in jeopardy.

The bill still allows women to purchase coverage for elective abortions from private insurers.

the measure encouraging the repeal of the 17th Amendment in the U.S. Constitution.

The loss is a blow for Mountain Home Rep. Pete Nielsen, who claimed such a step was necessary to get the U.S. Senate more in tune with the needs of states.

But several lawmakers said they were concerned with wording in the measure, including a reference calling Congress an "arrogant bureaucracy."

The 17th Amendment put the power of electing senators in the hands of voters instead of state legislatures, which were criticized for delaying appointments and engaging in unethical behavior in picking senators.

Howard Dean agrees to speak at Idaho Democrat event

BOISE — Former national Democratic party official and Vermont governor Howard Dean will be paying a visit to Idaho Democrats next month.

Dean, who also ran for the Democratic presidential nomination in 2004, will headline a state party training event April 16 in Worley.

During his tenure as chairman of the Democratic National Committee, Dean was credited with launching the "50 State Strategy" that helped the party regain control of Congress with a renewed emphasis on grassroots organizing and new forms of technology.

He also served six terms as governor and worked for years as a physician.

Idaho Democratic Party interim Director Shelley Landry says it's an honor to have Dean headline the party event focused on strengthening the party and recruiting new supporters and candidates.

Hannah May Brown Free

Aug. 8, 1925–Feb. 28, 2011

BURLEY — Hannah May Brown Free passed away Monday, Feb. 28, 2011, at Safe Haven Assisted Living Center in Burley, Idaho.

Hannah was born Aug. 8, 1925, in Arco, Idaho. Her mother told her she was born in July so she always celebrated her birthday July 8 until she was 62 and she ordered her birth certificate. She was the sixth child born to Alvin Ransom and Mary Ling Turndull Brown. She attended school in Howe until the eighth grade. After her father's death, she moved to Tetonia with her sister, Lucille. She was never able to attend school after that.

Hannah married Marion Horace Free in Dillon, Mont., on March 17, 1947; from this union came six children. Hannah and Marion resided in Idaho Falls until 1962, later moving to Rupert and then Burley. Hannah worked various jobs in the potato industry. She retired from J.R. Simplot in Heyburn after 21 years. Hannah was always independent and outspoken. You always knew where you stood with Hannah. She loved a good Pinochle game, the outdoors and fishing at Lost River. Hannah enjoyed her grandchildren and great-grandchildren. She looked forward to seeing them and hearing about their daily experiences.

Hannah is survived by her three sons and three daughters, M. Dwayne (Pam) Free and Darrell R. (Pat) Free, both of Burley, M. Alice Balch of Idaho Falls, Shanna (Larry) Kennedy of Heyburn, Richard (LeAnne) Free of Elko, Nev., and Tammy and (Edward) Dubreuil of Anamosa, Iowa; 13 grandchildren; and 12 great-grandchildren. She was preceded in death by her parents; her husband, Marion; four brothers, John Brown, Orville Brown, Antone Brown and Bill Brown; and one sister, Lucille Brown O'Conner.

At her request, there will be a viewing from 6 until 8 p.m. Friday, March 4, at the Morrison-Payne Mortuary, 321 E. Main St. in Burley. A graveside service will be at 11 a.m. Saturday, March 5, at the Pleasant View Cemetery, conducted by Chaplin Mike Johnson.

The family would like to thank Dr. De Temple and the employees at Safe Haven and Home Health and Hospice.

Eleanor Louise Eydman (Ellie)

Dec. 27, 1922–Feb. 2, 2011

Eleanor Louise Eydman (Ellie) passed away peacefully Wednesday, Feb. 2, 2011, after a short illness at Bridgeview Estates in Twin Falls, Idaho. Her husband Tom and daughter Carol were with her at the bedside. She was 88 years old.

Ellie was born Eleanor Mohan in Anaconda, Montana on Dec. 27, 1922, to James and Rosann Mohan, where she grew up in an Irish Catholic family with four brothers and two sisters. After high school, she graduated from St. Johns in Helena, Mont., as a registered nurse and moved to Long Beach, Calif., where she met Thomas Eydman. Tom and Ellie were married on Valentine's Day in 1948. Moving to Chino, Calif., in 1958 to raise their two daughters, Ellie continued to work as a nurse. She retired from nursing (Baxter Medical, Claremont Colleges) in 1984.

Tom and Ellie moved to the Mojave Valley in Arizona, where they enjoyed retirement: water sports on the Colorado River and traveling by vehicle every year until they had visited all 50 states. In June of 2010, they moved to Twin Falls, Idaho, to be closer to their daughter, Carol and her family. Ellie was a beautiful, elegant person. Industrious and never idle, she left her indelible mark of precision, individuality and creative insight on everything she put her hand and heart to: painting, ceramics, sewing, decor, knitting, needlepoint, countless craft ventures, her work as a nurse and of course her relationships. She had a wonderful sense of humor with good natured mischief, always enjoying the gathering of friends and family. Admired by all who knew her and many who didn't, she will be missed.

She is survived by her loving husband of nearly 63 years, Thomas Eydman; daughter, Carol Klick (husband Chris); daughter, Cindy Harrelson; granddaughter, Emily Klick; sister, Rosalie Hyatt; and brother, Bill Mohan (wife Tina).

No service is planned; a private family Mass will be held.

Why T.F. schools supplemental levy makes sense

With Tom Luna’s three education overhaul bills still making their way through various committees in the Legislature and with protests over collective bargaining spilling out of Wisconsin and across the country, it would be very easy to lose sight of what’s at stake in next Tuesday’s supplemental levy election here in Twin Falls. It would be easy to confuse this week’s student protests against Luna’s plans as an indictment of education at the school district level.

Very easy, but not very right. Let’s review. Five years ago, the percentage of our property taxes that went to support local public school districts decreased from 25 percent to 17 percent. The state said that they’d pick up the difference and they did — until two years ago. Since 2009 the state of Idaho has decreased school funding by more than $200 million. It’s likely to decrease it again in the coming year. Short-term federal stimulus funds were introduced to prop up declining state budgets with the hope that the economy and related tax revenues would rebound by the time the federal dollars went away. That hope — never a very realistic one — is gone. In the wake of these events, the Twin Falls School District reduced spending, cut into its contingency reserve fund, delayed curriculum and technology upgrades and reduced the number of teacher in-service and teacher-student contract days by introducing furlough days to all district personnel.

The supplemental levy and students in the Twin Falls School District deserve a ‘yes’ vote.

Unfortunately, the 7,800 students in the district were also furloughed. The board of trustees of the district held off on proposing and asking voters to approve a supplemental levy for years. It asked our students to ride out the storm, again, hoping that things would improve. They haven’t. So now the board is asking Twin Falls’ voters to do what voters in districts throughout the state have been approving for years — they’re asking for approval of a two-year, $7.5 million supplemental levy. We think it’s time to say “yes”. Eighty-four of the 115 school districts in the state of Idaho already have supplemental levies in place including nine of the 10 largest districts. More than 30 of these districts have had these levies in place — annually — since the early 1990s. Voters in the Lewiston Independent School District have approved and paid more than $95 million in supplemental levies in the past decade; those in Idaho Falls have voted to sacrifice over $60 million during the same 10-year period. The Twin Falls School District is asking us for $7.5 million. Yes, approving the supplemental levy involves a sacrifice; it involves voluntarily surrendering some of our tax dollars today in exchange for something that we think will have immensely greater value in the future — the education of those 7,800 students. Our students deserve the same “yes” vote that those in 84 other state districts have already gotten from voters in their communities. We urge you to vote next Tuesday, and to vote “yes.”

Have you driven a smartphone lately?

I’m barreling along a rural Michigan highway at 75 miles per hour in a gray Ford Taurus X when I glance down to check a number on a screen. It can’t be more than two seconds, but when I look back up, I’m inches from plowing into a huge green truck. Panicked, I slam on the brakes.

Maureen Dowd

Even though I’m in Virttex, the Ford simulator that uses virtual reality to give you the eerily real sensation that you’re flying down the highway past cars and barns, I still feel shaken.

I made the mistake of taking my eyes off the road for more than 1.5 seconds, which is the danger zone, according to technology experts at Ford headquarters.

Ford, Chrysler, Chevy and other car companies are betting on the proposition that, as long as your eyes don’t stray from the road for more than a moment, your other senses can enjoy a cornucopia of diversions on your dashboard.

I worried in a prior column that Ford cars with the elaborate and popular new “in-car connectivity” sounded like death traps. Ford Sync lets you sync up to apps, reading your Twitter feeds to you. MyFord Touch plays your iPod on demand and reads your texts to you — including emoticons — and allows you to choose one of 10 prewritten responses (“I’m on my way,” “I’m outside,” “OK”). It also has voice-activated 3-D navigation that allows you to merely announce “I’m hungry” or “Find Chinese restaurant.”

Your car can even help you with a bad mood by giving you ambient lighting, vibrating your seat or heating your steering wheel.

Ford executives invited me to Detroit to experience their snazzy new technology firsthand.

They are on the cusp of a system featuring the futuristic avatar Eva, the vaguely creepy face and voice of a woman on your dashboard who can read you your e-mail, update your schedule, recite articles from newspapers, guide you to the restaurant where you’re having lunch and recommend a selection from your iPod. Ford’s working on a Web browser, which would be locked while driving.

Remember when your car used to be a haven of peace from the world? Now it’s just a bigger, noisier and much more dangerously distracting smartphone.

Over lunch at Ford, Sue Cischke, a dynamic company executive, argued that even before cellphones and iPods, drivers were in danger of distraction from reaching for a briefcase or shooing away a bee.

“Telling younger people not to use a cellphone is almost like saying, ‘Don’t breathe,’” she said.

Given that Americans are addicted to Web access and tech toys, she said, it will never work to simply ban them. “So we’ve got to figure out how we make people safer,” she said,

“and the more people can just talk to their car like they’re talking to a passenger, the more useful it would be.”

Given that, however, we’re talking about human beings who live in an ADD world, wouldn’t it be safer to try to curb the addiction, rather than indulging it? Nobody thought you could get young people to pay for music after downloading it for free, either, but they do.

David Teater, a former market research consultant to auto manufacturers, lost his 12-year-old son in a distracted driving accident in Grand Rapids, Mich., seven years ago. A 20-year-old nanny driving her charge in her employer’s Hummer was so immersed in a cellphone call that she ran a red light and smashed into Teater’s wife’s Chevy Suburban. Now he works at the National Safety Council.

He says he doesn’t expect car companies — which are trying to make cars more seductive — to be arbiters of safety. “They were slow to move toward seat belts and airbags until we, the customer, said we want it,” he said. He sees the overwrought dashboards as trouble. “We can chew gum and walk, but we can’t do two cognitively demanding tasks simultaneously.”

Ray LaHood, the secretary of transportation, is livid about the dashboard bells and whistles. When he saw a Ford ad with a bubbly young woman named Kelly using the new souped-up system to gab on the phone hands-free and not paying attention to the road, he called Alan Mulally, the president and CEO of Ford.

“I said to him, ‘That girl looks so distracted, it belies belief that this is what you want in terms of safety,’” LaHood told me. “Putting entertainment centers in automobiles does not contribute to safe driving. When you’re trying to update your Facebook or put out a tweet, it’s a distraction.”

He said he would compile his own statistics, meet with car executives and use the bully pulpit. “We’ll see what the auto companies can do voluntarily and what we need to do otherwise,” he said. “I don’t think drivers should be doing any of that.”

By not defending marriage, Obama’s not defending the Constitution

President Obama has said his view of same-sex “marriage” is “evolving.” Apparently he thinks that the law should be based on a kind of Darwinian jurisprudence which allows it to “evolve” and become whatever the ruling politicians at a given moment say it is (or isn’t).

How else to explain the decision by the president and his attorney general, Eric Holder, not to defend the Defense of Marriage Act, signed into law by President Bill Clinton in 1996? The Senate vote was 85-14; the vote in the House was 342-67, an indication of overwhelming public support to keep marriage for opposite-sex couples.

Let’s leave aside for the moment any moral, religious, historical or cultural reasons for maintaining the legal status quo on marriage, which has precedent dating to biblical times. The president and his attorney general have concluded that because DOMA is being challenged before the Second Circuit Court of Appeals, which they say “has no established or binding standard for how laws concerning sexual orientation should be treated” — they will circumvent or overrule judicial authority and decide the matter for themselves. This “we are the law” thinking is what we oppose in Middle East dictators.

Holder contends that because of past “discrimination” against gays, the Second Circuit Court will, or should, apply a more “rigorous standard” to such cases and when they do, DOMA will be found unconstitutional.

Doesn’t this sound strangely like Richard Nixon’s approach to the law? It was Nixon who told David Frost in 1977, “When the president does it, that means that it is not illegal.” So when the president and his attorney general refuse to defend a law they have taken an oath to uphold, isn’t that the other side of the same coin? Imagine the reaction from the Left had George W. Bush announced his administration would no longer defend Roe v. Wade because he thought it unconstitutional and it would eventually be overturned by the Supreme Court.

Former Speaker Newt Gingrich in an interview with Newsmax.TV on Friday said he thought the Obama-Holder decision not to defend DOMA in the courts might be an impeachable offense and that the House may “zero out (defund) the office of attorney general and take other steps as necessary until the president agrees to do his job.” He later softened his stance on the issue of impeachment, saying instead in a statement to reporters that, though impeachment is clearly not an appropriate action, “Congress has every responsibility to demand President Obama live up to his constitutional obligations.”

The president and attorney general believe there are no “reasonable” arguments in favor of retaining DOMA. Constitutional attorney John Whitehead disagrees. Whitehead tells me he thinks the Obama-Holder tactic is “an attempt to provide cover for the president’s decision to achieve a repeal of DOMA through the courts as opposed to an even-handed evaluation of the strengths of the legal arguments.”

Whitehead notes that Holder has acknowledged a binding circuit court precedent which holds that “classifications based on sexual orientation are subject to ‘rational basis’ scrutiny.” Under such scrutiny, Whitehead says, “a legislative classification based on sexual orientation would be upheld if there is any conceivable basis to support the distinction; a court is not to judge the wisdom, fairness, or logic of the legislative choice.”

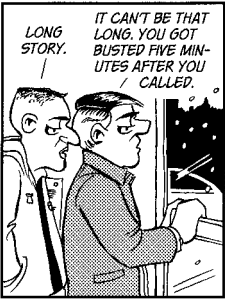

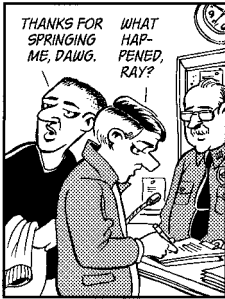

Whitehead adds, “Because rational basis scrutiny is extremely deferential to the decision of the legislature, the determination that it applies to a particular classification basis is usually outcome determinative; where rational basis scrutiny applies, that equal protection challenge is almost always denied.”

That is why President Obama and Attorney General Holder are wrong to pre-judge the outcome of this case in the courts, not to mention their rejection of congressional authority. Isn’t this ultimately about the separation of powers?

Robert Wayne Ivie

May 15, 1961-Feb. 26, 2011

KIMBERLY — Robert Wayne Ivie, age 49, of Kimberly, Idaho, died Saturday, Feb. 26, 2011, at his home in Kimberly.

Robert was born May 15, 1961, in Twin Falls, Idaho, the son of Ralph W. and Grace W. (Human) Ivie. Rob grew up and attended schools, graduating from Kimberly High School in 1979. Robert was very close to his parents. He enjoyed vacationing with them to places such as Lagoon, Disneyland, the Grand Canyon and Yellowstone National Park. The family would refer to them as the Three Musketeers, completely inseparable. And so now, “The Three Musketeers are Together Again!”

Rob worked in the food service industry, but when he was not at work, he enjoyed electronics and every kind of electronic gadget. To say he loved his cats was an understatement; they were some of his closest buddies.

Robert was a great son and brother, and he will be missed by all who knew and loved him. Robert is survived by his sister, Carolyn Kerbs; brothers, Roger (Peggy) Ivie and Randy Ivie; and also extended family. He was preceded in death by his parents, Ralph and Grace Ivie.

Visitation will be held from 5 to 7 p.m. Thursday, March 3, at Parke’s Magic Valley Funeral Home, 2551 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls. The funeral will be held at 2 p.m. Friday, March 4, at the funeral home, with Pastor Steve Nutzman officiating. Interment will be held following the service at Sunset Memorial Park Cemetery in Twin Falls, Idaho. All services and arrangements are under the direction of Parke’s Magic Valley Funeral Home of Twin Falls.

Walker’s budget includes large cuts for Wisconsin schools, local government

Los Angeles Times

MADISON, Wis. — As hundreds of protesters clamored to be allowed into a locked-down Capitol, Wisconsin Gov. Scott Walker outlined a plan that will balance the state’s budget by cutting heavily from schools and local governments.

The budget released Tuesday for the next two years follows a budget repair bill for the current fiscal year that would severely curtail collective bargaining rights for most of the state’s public employees. Walker, a Republican, said the clamp-down on unions will be necessary to give local governments the means to deal with cuts in state aid in his proposed budget.

“The facts are clear: Wisconsin is broke, and it’s time to start paying our bills today, so our kids are not stuck with even bigger bills tomorrow,” Walker said.

The budget measure has spurred massive protests, including a two-week occupation of the Capitol by activists, and led 14 Democrat senators to flee the state to deny the Senate a quorum to act on the bill. It has also set off recall campaigns against everyone involved, including Walker, the missing Democrats and state Senate Republicans.

Republican state Senate Majority Leader Scott Fitzgerald said he met with several of the missing Democrats on Monday in Kenosha, Wis., near the Illinois border, but they reached no deal.

The governor’s budget proposal called for more than $1 billion in cuts to public schools, the University of Wisconsin system, and to cities and counties, while limiting their ability to raise property taxes. Democrats decried the austerity measures contained in the bill as a “decimation” of the education system.

Government shutdown averted as House votes $4 billion in cuts

By David Espo
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The House passed emergency short-term legislation Tuesday to cut federal spending by $4 billion and avert a government shutdown. Senate Democrats agreed to follow suit, handing Republicans an early victory in their drive to rein in government.

The bill that cleared the House on a bipartisan vote of 335-91 eliminates the threat of a shutdown on Friday, when existing funding authority expires. At the same time, it creates a compressed two-week timeframe for the White House and lawmakers to engage in what looms as a highly contentious negotiation on a follow-up bill to set spending levels through the Sept. 30 end of the fiscal year.

The Senate set a vote on the short-term measure for Wednesday morning, the final step before it goes to President Barack Obama for his signature. “We’ll pass this and then look at funding the government on a long-term basis,” said Majority Leader Harry Reid, D-Nev.

The White House, which earlier in the day called publicly for an interim measure of up to five weeks, stopped short of saying the president would sign the legislation.

“The President is encouraged by the progress Congress is making towards a short-term agreement,” the president’s spokesman, Jay Carney, said. “Moving forward, the focus needs to be on both sides finding common ground in order to reach a long-term solution that removes the kind of uncertainty that can hurt the economy and job creation.”

House Republicans were more eager to draw attention to the bill that was passing with the acquiescence of the White House and Democrats than to the challenge yet ahead.

“Now that congressional Democrats and the administration have expressed an openness for spending cuts, the momentum is there for a long-term measure that starts to finally get our fiscal house in order,” said Majority Leader Eric Cantor of Virginia.

U.S. Army Sgt. Cornelius Trammell clears a hurdle as he demonstrates one of the elements of the Army’s new Combat Readiness Test on Tuesday at Fort Jackson in Columbia, S.C.

Army’s new fitness tests add taste of battlefield

The Associated Press

FORT JACKSON, S.C. — Sit-ups don’t make a soldier, the Army has decided. So its 30-year-old fitness requirements are getting a battlefield-inspired makeover.

Soon every soldier will have to run on a balance beam with two 30-pound canisters of ammunition, drag a sled weighted with 180 pounds of sandbags and vault over obstacles while carrying a rifle. Those were just some of the tests the Army unveiled Tuesday as it moves toward making its physical training look more like combat.

Right now soldiers have to complete sit-ups, push-ups and a two-mile run twice a year within times that vary by age and gender. Lt. Gen. Mark Hertling, the general in charge of the Army’s initial military training, said he has been working to change that test for years.

Hertling said the current test “does not adequately measure components of strength, endurance, or mobility,” or predict how well a soldier would do under fire.

A new annual “combat readiness” test includes running 400 meters — about a quarter of a mile — with a rifle, moving through an obstacle course in full combat gear, and crawling and vaulting over obstacles while aiming a rifle. Soldiers also will have to run on a balance beam while carrying 30-pound ammo boxes and do an agility sprint around a course field of cones.

Soldiers also will have to drag sleds weighted with sandbags to test their ability to pull a fallen comrade from the battlefield.

“Changing the culture of borrowing and spending in Washington is no small feat, but I am heartened by today’s action and it shows that Republicans have started to make the meaningful changes that voters called for in the last election.”

The GOP won control of the House and gained seats in the Senate last fall with the backing of tea party activists demanding deep cuts in spending and other steps to reduce the federal government.

On the House floor, Democrats sharply attacked Republicans in the run-up to the vote, but much of their criticism was aimed at an earlier $61 billion package of spending cuts that had cleared on a party-line vote.

“The sooner we can agree on a long-term package of smart cuts — not reckless, arbitrary, job-destroying cuts — the sooner we can stop funding the government in disruptive two-week increments that undermine efficiency and spread economic uncertainty,” said Rep. Steny Hoyer of Maryland, second-ranking in the Democratic leadership.

When it came time to vote, Democrats split, 104 in favor and 85 against. The leadership was similarly divided, Hoyer supporting the legislation and the party’s leader, Rep. Nancy Pelosi of California, opposed.

Republicans voted 231-6 in favor.

AROUND THE WORLD

LIBYA Gadhafi forces retake towns near capital

TRIPOLI — Moammar Gadhafi's forces battled poorly armed rebels Tuesday for control of towns near the capital trying to create a buffer zone around his seat of power. The increasingly violent clashes threatened to transform the 15-day popular rebellion in Libya into a drawn-out civil war.

Amid the intensified fighting, the international community stepped up moves to isolate the longtime Libyan leader.

U.S. Defense Secretary Robert Gates said he ordered two ships into the Mediterranean, including the amphibious assault ship USS Kearsarge, and he is sending 400 Marines to the vessel to replace some troops that left recently for Afghanistan.

Military leaders weighing a no-fly zone over Libya said it would be a complex task that would require taking out Gadhafi's air defenses, and Russia's top diplomat dismissed the idea as "superfluous" and said world powers should focus on sanctions.

YEMEN President says U.S., Israel behind unrest

SANAA — Yemen's embattled president on Tuesday accused the U.S., his closest ally, of instigating

the mounting protests against him, but the gambit failed to slow the momentum for his ouster.

Hundreds of thousands rallied in cities across Yemen against the government of President Ali Abdullah Saleh, in the largest of the protests of the past month, including one addressed by an influential firebrand cleric, a former ally of Saleh, whom the U.S. has linked to al-Qaida.

"Go on until you achieve your demands," Sheik Abdul-Majid al-Zindani told tens of thousands of demonstrators in the capital of Sanaa. A former U.S. ambassador to Yemen called al-Zindani's decision to turn against President Ali Abdullah Saleh a major setback for the president.

FRANCE Dior sacks fashion provocateur Galliano

PARIS — John Galliano, long a top fashion-world provocateur on and off the runway, went too far this time. The French label Christian Dior said Tuesday it was firing the zany British bad boy after video showing him spouting "I love Hitler" in a drunken rant went viral online — sending shock waves through the start of Paris Fashion Week.

The ouster followed a barrage of accusations and revelations about Galliano's outbursts that spelled major career trouble for the talented and moneymaking couturier.

The allegations of bigotry had put Dior, which battles crosstown rival Chanel for the title of world's top fashion house, in the hot seat: Oscar-winning actress Natalie Portman, the new advertising face of the Miss Dior Cherie perfume line, who is Jewish, expressed fury over the remarks.

"Knowing John's proclivity for provocation on the runway and in life, to hear such accusations wasn't surprising," said Dana Thomas, a fashion guru and author of "Deluxe: How Luxury Lost its Luster," an expose of the industry. "But the videos that went viral yesterday were too damning to deny," she said.

Celebrating Our 75th Winter Season

Norman Kump holds one of his rabbits Feb. 23 at his farm and meat-processing kitchen north of Jerome. Kump sells a few of the rabbits as pets, but most are destined for the dinner table. Kump says the meat is lean and high in protein and iron.

Norman Kump's rabbits eat 5 to 8 ounces of food a day including these hay cubes. Kump requires his rabbit producers to avoid hormones, steroids and antibiotics, and discourages them from feeding rabbits corn.

Jerome farmer's processing kitchen widens availability of rabbit meat in Magic Valley

JEROME — Norman Kump has a passion for rabbit meat. Give him a chance and he'll tell you all about the benefits of bunny. It's lean, it's affordable, it's grown locally. And the Jerome rabbit processor hopes to introduce more Idahoans to the product. Kump grew rabbits when his children were small, but the family abandoned the practice when they moved to Arizona. When they relocated to Jerome two years ago, they took up rabbits again. At the time, Kump couldn't find many other rabbit growers or processors, so he built his own rabbit enclosure and went through the steps to get certified. Rabbit meat is non-amendable — or wild — so the meat itself doesn't have to be inspected, but Kump's processing kitchen had to be certified through South Central Public Health District. Kump processes about 45 rabbits per week, about five of which he raises himself.

LOCAL PRODUCT

Want to get your hands on some rabbit meat? Norman Kump's frozen rabbit meat is $6 per pound for a fryer, or $5.85 per pound for a roaster. Fryers are typically 2.5 to 3.5 pounds, and roasters are 4 to 7.5 pounds. Visit goldenpremierfarms.com or call 324-6689.

SO WHAT CAN YOU DO WITH RABBIT MEAT?

|--|--|---|
| You can prepare and eat rabbit just like chicken, said Norman Kump of Golden Premier Farms in Jerome. Cut into bite-sized pieces and pan-fry, or roast the whole rabbit. Young fryers are more tender and are best suited for grilling, frying and baking, while roasters get their best flavor from cooking for a long time over low heat. In the end, though, you can use either for whatever recipe you have. Not sure where to start? ## T.F. commercial kitchen may open for public use

By Ariel Hansen
Times-News writer

Twin Falls residents may soon have a new place to prepare their peach preserves or crispy crackers for sale. Last week, the Times-News told you about certified commercial kitchens available for hourly rent in south-central Idaho, where home cooks can make food products to a saleable standard. Soon, the Twin Falls Senior Center may get in on the game, executive director Diane Stevens said.

Stevens

"I'm only in the stages of gathering research on who would be interested," Stevens said. She has put out the word that she's looking for caterers or home cooks who might want to use the center's kitchen during off-hours. "I'm trying to think of every way I can leverage the facility that we have, and those hours go unused." The kitchen is unavailable between 6 a.m. and 2 p.m. on weekdays, when meals are prepared for homebound seniors. A senior center representative would need to be present when the public uses the kitchen during off-hours, so rental use would be limited by that person's availability, Stevens said. The kitchen includes a gas oven, convection oven, gas range, dishwasher, steam tables, prep equipment and a large prep area; the freezer would not be available, and the refrigerator could be used only during the kitchen rental. A firm hourly rental rate has not been set, but Stevens said it will likely be about $20 per hour. Stevens is trying to determine whether there is enough interest to justify the paperwork needed to open the kitchen to the public. "I would like (the opening date) to be as soon as possible, but I'm not going to jump the gun," she said.

Monks' bitter brew becomes trendy amaro cocktails

By John Mariani
Bloomberg News

I had just sat down at a restaurant named Caval d'Brons, set above Turin's Piazza San Carlo, and ordered Piedmontese specialties like tiny meat-stuffed ravioli called plin, with a butter and sage sauce, and vitello tonnato, made with slices of veal in a creamy tuna sauce.

But first I was presented with a little appetite starter — a rosy slice of culatello ham, a taste of Castelmagno cheese drizzled with balsamic vinegar, and a small glass of the Italian cordial called amaro.

It was no more than a sip or two, syrupy, herbaceous and bittersweet, a perfect spur to the palate. Now, since arriving home from Italy, I've been serving it before dinner to friends.

Italy produces scores of amaros, whose name means bitter but whose sweet flavors are a complexity of herbs, spices and citrus rinds, including gentian, angelica, lemon verbena, ginger, mint, thyme, licorice, cinnamon and menthol.

Made between 16 to 35 percent alcohol, amaros are drunk either as an aperitif on the rocks or in cocktails. More commonly in Italy, amaros are taken as a digestive after a meal.

In fact, their origins lie in the medicine cabinets of medieval monasteries, concocted by monks as aids to digestion and good health.

If you want to know what those early medicines tasted like, buy a bottle of Fernet Branca, a commercial Milan-based brand of amaro. It is a dark and potent brew — with up to 45 percent alcohol. Made from 27 herbs and spices, including Iranian saffron, South African aloe and French gentian, then aged for a year, Fernet Branca's ad motto is "It is worth the bitterness."

It is indeed very acrid, so some use it as cocktail biters. Still, even many of its advocates grimace upon knocking it back after a huge meal to settle a queasy stomach. I am one of those reluctant advocates, so that is the price I pay for being raised a Catholic taught to believe the sin of gluttony must be punished with bitterness.

The best known, sweeter, amaro is Campari, the garnet red spirit usually drunk on the rocks with a twist of lemon or as a component in the classic Italian cocktails, the americano and negroni.

Vermouth too is an amaro

(the word comes from the German wermut for wormwood), first produced by Turin-based Antonio Benedetto Carpano in 1786. In fact, the amaro I was served at Caval d'Brons was Carpano's "Antica Formula," which can be found in the U.S. for about $25-$35.

The Carpano firm (now owned by Fratelli Branca) also makes the popular Punt e Mes, which means, in Piedmontese dialect, "point and a half," said to refer to a point-and-a-half rise in the stock market that once greatly benefited the company.

Other fairly well known amaro brands available in Europe, South America, and the U.S. include Averna, Ramazzotti, and Cynar, all at least as sweet as they are bitter.

I set out to find some more unusual amaros in the market, heading to Mt. Carmel Wine & Spirits on Arthur Avenue in the Bronx, a superb repository of Italian wine and spirits. Here are some amaros I particularly liked.

Amaro Lucano ($24.99): This minty, liqueur-like amaro has been made in the province of Madera in Basilicata since 1894. Roasted hazelnuts, orange notes and a lingering bittersweetness make for a delicious way to begin or end an evening.

S. Maria al Monte Amaro Naturale ($26.99): Hefty, at 40 percent alcohol, this Ligurian amaro has a deep mahogany color, is of medium body and is quite bitter, with an aroma that is instantly evocative of incense used at Sunday mass. A good Catholic could sniff it and fall to his knees. Best after dinner.

Ditta Bortolo Nardini ($44.99): Claiming to be Italy's oldest distillery (1779), Nardini, in the Veneto, is best known for its grappas. Its premium-priced amaro pours like maple syrup into the glass and delivers a beautifully nuanced bouquet and what tastes like scores of carefully blended herbs and spices. You could have this on pancakes.

Nonino Amaro ($36.99): This Friulian distillery almost singlehandedly changed grappa's image from moonshine to connoisseur's brandy twenty years ago. There's no mistaking the refined hand of the family in this exquisitely crafted amaro, with an impeccable balance of bitterness, sweetness, fruit and spice that would be every bit as welcome after dinner as a vintage Port.

Replacing wine in recipes

By Kathleen Purvis
McClatchy Newspapers

Q A soup recipe calls for 2 tablespoons of white wine. I don't drink and I don't keep wine around. Is there a replacement?

A Wine is popular with recipe writers because it adds such a concentrated zap of flavor. But there are plenty of other ways to do that. Which one to reach for depends on the recipe.

In the case of just a couple of tablespoons of wine in a whole pot of soup, you could probably just skip it. Since white wine adds acidity, which helps to bring out other flavors, you might need to adjust by adding a lemon juice or some cider vinegar or white wine vinegar diluted with a little water.

For a recipe that can handle a slightly sweet addition, white grape juice, apple juice or apple cider are good replacements, although it won't taste exactly the same. To get away from going too sweet, try adding a few drops of fresh lime juice to white grape juice to make a wine substitute.

If you're trying to cut alcohol from baking recipes, the website www.gourmetsleuth.com has a long list of non-alcohol substitutes for things like liqueurs and liquors. It's a handy place to look for ideas.

Rabbit meat

Idaho law requires him to buy the other rabbits he butchers and sells; his producers are in Declo, Shoshone, Buhl, Twin Falls, Kimberly, Gooding and Jerome.

But Kump won't process just any animal. He has standards about how the animals are cared for and what they eat. If the rabbits have mites, he won't allow them into his facility, and if he finds signs of disease after butchering, he returns the carcass to the producer. He won't take chances on illnesses spreading to the healthy rabbits he keeps.

His standards aren't a problem for Dave Zortman in Jerome.

"You know, he doesn't have a list of rules that he walks over and says, 'Are you meeting these?'" Zortman said. "But he did come and inspect the facility. Is it clean? Are the animals well cared for? That kind of thing."

Zortman and his wife started raising rabbits about eight months ago and now have about 100. His wife likes pets, and Zortman likes that they help the family become self-sufficient.

"In an economical disaster, it (allows us) to produce our own meat here at home without depending on grocery stores," Zortman said.

Both the Zortmans and Kump treat their rabbits like pets. Kump cleans the cages daily and checks on them

ASHLEY SMITH/Times-News

Norman Kump of Golden Premier Farms has been raising rabbits for the past two years and says he hopes to process 400 rabbits per week by the end of the year.

throughout the day. All the rabbits are handled, in case anyone wants to buy them as pets.

"They're fun to take out of the cage and love them and enjoy them," Kump said. He has his favorites, including Lucky, a tri-color doe that he resuscitated after it was abandoned by its mother, and Bucky, a big brown Rex that he enters in shows. Most of the rabbits, though, are destined for the kitchen.

More than anything, he enjoys it when customers buy rabbits for health reasons. A rabbit's fat isn't marbled in the muscle — as it is in pork or beef — resulting in a leaner meat.

Kandee Andersen of Healing Arts Studio in Twin Falls refers many of her clients to Kump. The meat is hearty and easy to digest, she said, and she likes that Kump doesn't use steroids and antibiotics on his animals.

The health conscious aren't the only fans. Foodies love the meat, too.

"It's actually endless what you can do with it," said chef Kirt Martin of Snake River Grill in Hagerman, who raises his own rabbits. He recommends braising rabbit, then using the meat in wraps, salads or pasta. Martin describes the flavor as "mild and wonderful."

"To me, rabbit tastes like chicken used to when I was a child," he said.

Kump grows two types of rabbits: fryers and roasters. Fryers are raised solely for meat and are ready for butchering three months after they're born. Roasters such as Rex rabbits are processed when their fur is mature — usually at 8 months. Their short, plush coat is used for accessories, like hat linings or glove cuffs.

Chefs prefer the tender fryers, but Kump likes the flavor of the roasters. He sells rabbits to southern Idaho businesses like Sego Restaurant in Ketchum, Cucina Gemelli in Twin Falls, Boise Co-op, Local Dish in Twin Falls and Wood River Sustainability Center in Hailey. Web-based food cooperative Idaho's Bounty also carries his rabbit meat.

As more stores and restaurants offer the meat, interest is growing.

"As far as looking for variety in your diet, rabbit meat is an excellent way to get that," Andersen said.

Her soups have created a stir

By Bonnie S. Benwick
The Washington Post

Lorraine Wallace knows she can make a mean pot of soup. But no one has been more surprised than she at how fast America is slurping it up.

Tortellini meatball, salmon chowder and Buffalo-wing-inspired chili are three of the 78 comfort-food recipes in her first cookbook, which has remained in Amazon's top-100 bestsellers list since the slim paperback was published in December. In the food, cooking and wine category on a recent week, it was ranked above both "The Omnivore's Dilemma" by Michael Pollan and the Barefoot Contessa's "How Easy Is That?" And for the week of Feb. 27, it clocked in at No. 8 on The New York Times bestseller list for paperbacks in the advice etc. category.

"It's on its fourth printing," Wallace says. "Twenty-five thousand copies. I'm stunned."

Her book's trajectory has something to do with its lovable enterprise — soup for all seasons — and a built-in nationwide audience. Husband Chris was skeptical at the very idea of a book two years ago, yet he grooved the fast-ball that is "Mr. Sunday's Soups" (Wiley). Catchy title, and fitting: As anchor of "Fox News Sunday," he proclaimed his wife to be the show's Power Player of the Week in mid-January, conducting the interview in their D.C. kitchen.

"She cooked well when I married her," he says, referring to the 1997 event that blended his four children and her two from their first marriages. The offspring now range in age from 21 to the mid-30s. Offering a different, quick soup each week was Lorraine's warm way of feeding a famished spouse just home from work and a son headed for a day of sports.

Her repertoire grew. Family favorites were established as the grown children came home for the holidays. Chris' famous TV journalist dad, Mike Wallace of "60 Minutes" fame, became a fan as well.

ITALIAN SPINACH SALAD SOUP

6 to 8 servings. This is one of Lorraine Wallace's signature "salad soups," each serving topped with a mix of some of same ingredients that are pureed. It works especially well here, with tender spinach leaves. Wallace prefers not to use an immersion (stick) blender for pureeing the soup; she does not like its effect on the texture.

For the soup:
4 tablespoons (1/2 stick) unsalted butter
1 large onion, finely chopped (1 1/4 to 1 1/2 cups)
8 cloves garlic
2 tablespoons Italian seasoning blend
8 cups (2 quarts) home-made or store-bought low-sodium chicken broth
2 large russet potatoes, peeled and chopped into bite-size pieces
Two 9-ounce packages frozen chopped spinach, defrosted and squeezed dry
1/2 cup half-and-half (optional)
1/2 teaspoon kosher salt
Freshly ground black pepper
For the salad:
3 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
Freshly squeezed juice from 1/2 lemon (1 tablespoon)
1/4 teaspoon kosher salt
Freshly ground black pepper
2 cups (about 2 ounces) loosely packed baby spinach leaves
2 cups loosely packed watercress leaves and tender stems
9 to 12 cherry or grape tomatoes, cut in half
2 to 4 ounces Parmigiano-Reggiano cheese, shaved with a vegetable peeler

For the soup: Melt the butter in a large, heavy soup pot or Dutch oven over medium heat. Add the onion, garlic and Italian seasoning blend; cook for about 5 minutes, stirring occasionally, until the onion is tender.

Add the broth and potatoes; once the liquid begins to bubble at the edges, cook for 5 minutes so the potatoes are just tender, then stir in the spinach and cook for 5 minutes. Remove from the heat and let cool for about 10 minutes.

Working in batches, puree the mixture in a blender or food processor to form a smooth green soup. (Remove the center knob from the blender lid to allow steam to escape. Place a dish towel over the lid to prevent splashes.) Return the soup to the pot, and place over low heat.

Stir in the half-and-half, if using. Season with the salt and pepper to taste. Cover and keep warm until ready to serve.

For the salad: Whisk together the oil, lemon juice, salt and the pepper to taste. Add the spinach and watercress; toss to coat evenly.

To serve, ladle the soup into individual bowls (preferably warmed ones). Top each portion with some of the salad, a few tomato halves (to taste) and the shaved cheese (to taste). Serve immediately.

burg, Va., but she heeded her British mother's example of using seasonal, home-grown ingredients. As a young mother, Wallace sought out organic produce to make baby food for her kids.

Chris Wallace seems most impressed with Lorraine's ability to deconstruct any restaurant dish the couple may enjoy — a talent his wife modestly confirms. "He will take me out, and two days later, he's eating what we had," she says.

A quick scan of Wallace's recipes in the book yields soup standards and riffs. Closer inspection finds special touches. She'll compose a salad to scatter across or enrich the center of a bowlful; the treatment proves to be a masterstroke for her garlicky, bright-green spinach puree. Lightly dressed, tender baby spinach leaves and watercress, bursts of cherry tomato and Parmesan shavings lend texture and wink at the soup's main ingredient.

The majority of "Mr. Sunday's" soups boast plenty of vegetables, although Wallace is especially keen to tout her chili with the flavors of Buffalo wings delivered via ground turkey, hot sauce, canned tomatoes and crumbled blue cheese. It's a keeper for a family full of sports fans who like to eat while they watch games on TV, she says. She also asked permission to feature friends' recipes she had long admired.

Wallace didn't know how to write a recipe, much less structure a collection of them, so her agent set up a collaboration with Brigit Binns, a Central California coast recipe developer and food blogger at Roadfoodie.com who has worked on dozens of chefs' cookbooks (Michael Psilakis; most recently) and has 11 under her own name for Williams-Sonoma, including the just-published "The Cook & the Butcher" (Simon & Schuster).

She and Wallace hit it off right away. "I adore her," Binns says, admitting that is not always the case after intense collaborations that can last several months. Binns came to Washington to spend 10 days straight in Wallace's kitchen: "I needed to get to know her palate." She suggested tweaks, such as the subtlety of a leek in some places where Wallace had used onion and the addition of a blue-cheese popover to complement a butternut-squash soup.

Wallace was attentive, yet firm about keeping the recipes user-friendly, which is why store-bought chicken broth shows up in ingredient lists. "She wanted these soups to be pantry-accessible," Binns says.

The project took more than three months. "I could see that this book would have broad appeal, because it is also about togetherness. And with that Fox connection. ... I can't imagine any woman who deserves the success more." The two remain in touch and have their heads together about a future project.

"Each soup has a story," Wallace says. "I think that is the book's real appeal." Chapters are introduced with family photos and recaps of which soup is whose favorite. Winston, the Wallaces' yellow Lab, earned pictorial homage because he is a kitchen-dwelling, soup-loving dawg.

"He knows when I reach in the drawer for a pot," she says. Sure enough, he perks up with a hop of his two front feet when Wallace transfers a small portion of cooled soup to his bowl. It's gone before she has a chance to sit down.

TORTELLINI AND MEATBALL SOUP
8 to 10 servings. Chunky, hearty and comforting, this soup uses convenient packages of fresh pasta. The soup can be refrigerated in an airtight container for up to 3 days. From "Mr. Sunday's Soups," by Lorraine Wallace with Brigit Binns (Wiley, 2011).

1 pound bulk sweet Italian sausage
2/3 cup fine plain breadcrumbs
Pinch plus 3/4 teaspoon kosher salt
Pinch freshly ground black pepper, plus more to taste
2 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
1 medium onion, finely chopped (1 cup)
4 carrots, peeled and cut into quarters lengthwise, then cut into 1/3-inch-thick slices
6 cloves garlic, minced
8 cups (2 quarts) homemade or store-bought low-sodium chicken broth
1 cup water
Two 9-ounce packages fresh four-cheese tortellini or cheese ravioli
2 tablespoons Italian seasoning blend
2 tablespoons chopped basil leaves
2 roasted red peppers (from a jar), drained and chopped
Freshly squeezed juice from 1/2 or 1 lemon (2 tablespoons)
6 cups loosely packed baby spinach leaves, washed and dried

Combine the sausage and breadcrumbs in a large bowl and add the pinches of salt and pepper; mix well. Use clean, damp hands to form meatballs about 3/4 inch in diameter. Heat the oil in a large, heavy soup pot or Dutch oven over medium heat. Add the onion and carrots; cook for about 5 minutes, stirring occasionally, until the vegetables are tender. Add the garlic and cook, stirring, for 1 minute. Add the broth, water, the remaining 3/4 teaspoon salt and the black pepper to taste. Once the liquid begins to bubble at the edges, add the meatballs and cook for 6 minutes, adjusting the heat so the liquid barely bubbles. Add the pasta and Italian seasoning blend; cook for 4 minutes, then add the basil, roasted red peppers and lemon juice; cook for about 3 minutes or until the pasta is tender. Gently stir in the spinach and remove from the heat. Cover and let stand for about 2 minutes or until the spinach is wilted but still bright green. Taste, and adjust the seasoning as needed. Ladle into individual bowls (preferably warmed ones); serve hot.

Art Smith: Celebrities can make healthy eating sexy

By J.M. Hirsch and Holly Ramer
Associated Press writers

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. — Defending the often frenzied food celebrity culture, chefs Art Smith and Spike Mendelsohn said Saturday that more stars should use their status to promote healthy eating.

Smith, who rose to fame as Oprah Winfrey's personal chef, said the American public loves personalities, so chefs — and athletes and movie stars — might as well tap into that fascination to do some good.

"If you don't make it sexy, if you don't make it fun, they're not going to buy into it. And the fact is, for so long, when it came to health and wellness, it was not fun," said Smith, who has made healthy eating a public focus since losing a considerable amount of weight in recent years. Offering even a few healthier menu items can make a difference, he said.

"What will change America most effectively and efficiently will be more chefs like Spike, like me, like Jamie (Oliver), getting on the bandwagon," Smith said in an Associated Press interview at the South Beach Wine and Food Festival.

Celebrity chef Art Smith discusses a healthy journey to wellness during a Saturday interview in Miami Beach, Fla.

Mendelsohn, a contestant on "Top Chef: Chicago," and chef and owner of Good Stuff Eatery and We, the Pizza restaurants in Washington, D.C., acknowledged that food television has become more about entertainment than teaching people to cook, but he believes it is slowly coaxing people back to the kitchen.

"Most people out there get anxiety in the kitchen. I feel with all this television, all these chefs doing demonstrations, they're starting to learn this is really not that hard," said Mendelsohn.

And even people who aren't interested in cooking for themselves can be spurred to think more about their food choices by celebrity chefs, he said.

"If we can get that education through entertainment, if that's the way we can deliver it to you and make you understand about food, I think that's the best way," he said.

Smith challenged actors and athletes to follow the lead of celebrity chefs.

"I want to see these amazing sports people say, 'Hey, the reason I look like this is because I eat this,'" he said. "We are so star struck that if these people with power would say, 'I feel great because this is part of my regimen,' people will buy into that."

GETTING PHYSICAL
Health club, physical therapy
businesses open in Burley

By Judy Albertson
Times News writer

BURLEY— Painful bone or joint injuries are just a couple of ailments likely to afflict nearly everyone at one time or another.

Exercise and staying active are common treatments for such ailments.

Dr. Curtis Mason, a physical therapist has combined two businesses to accommodate exercise and pain therapy. Mason owns and operates Elite Health Club and Elite Physical Therapy & Health, in Burley.

“The one is an all around health club with memberships, while the other is more personalized physical therapy,” Mason said.

Mason spent seven years earning his degree in physical therapy from the University of Utah. He holds a doctoral in tendon rehabilitation.

After college he worked at Burley Physical Therapy. When the opportunity came to open his own facility he jumped at it. He lives in Heyburn with his wife and four children.

Mason provides a lot of back rehabilitation as well as some shoulder, vertigo and balance treatments.

“Tendonitis and balance rehab are my favorite to treat because (patients) do so well so quickly,” Mason said.

Having the gym is both a personal and professional advantage, he said.

“I work on a one on one basis. With the gym I can see people that need special things they normally wouldn’t get in a gym alone. A lot of times people will come to me and I can tell them what they need that day. Then I can get very specific. I can use the gym with the therapy,” Mason said.

As an example, Mason said he has a knee patient who does a lot of stretching

Ex-Goldman
exec. charged with insider
trading

WASHINGTON (AP) — Depicting moment-to-moment detail, the Securities and Exchange Commission on Tuesday laid out civil fraud charges linking a former Goldman Sachs board member to the biggest hedge fund insider-trading case ever.

It’s a portrait of corporate board meetings leading to secret phone calls, to stock-trading orders and finally to huge illicit profits made within hours.

The SEC charged Indian-born Rajat Gupta, who has also served on the boards of Procter & Gamble and the parent company for American Airlines. Gupta was a guest at President Barack Obama’s first state dinner.

But at the height of the financial crisis, Gupta passed along privileged financial information that helped enrich the target of the government’s sweeping probe, the SEC alleges.

A pivotal moment came on Sept. 23, 2008. Gupta listened via teleconference as the Goldman Sachs board approved an offer from Warren Buffett’s Berkshire Hathaway to invest $5 billion in the banking giant.

Seven minutes before the stock markets closed, Gupta hung up the call. He dialed Raj Rajaratnam. The two men spoke briefly.

Within a minute, Rajaratnam directed his hedge fund, the Galleon Group, to buy 175,000 shares of Goldman stock. The next day, he would sell them. His profit: nearly $1 million.

Those and other allegations lie at the core of charges suggestive of a financial thriller. The SEC lays out how it says Gupta gave Rajaratnam details about Goldman and P&G that hadn’t been made public. Those leaks enriched Federal regulators have charged Rajat Kumar Gupta, a former Goldman Sachs board member with insider trading, saying Tuesday, he provided confidential information to the central figure in a major hedge fund probe.

Rajaratnam’s funds by nearly $18 million, officials say.

Rajaratnam stands at the center of the government’s broad insider trading investigation. His hedge fund delivered profits exceeding $50 million, thanks to inside information about public companies’ earnings and plans for mergers and acquisitions, prosecutors say.

In their investigation, criminal investigators relied on wiretaps and search warrants, tactics normally reserved for cases against drug dealers and mobsters.

Now, Gupta is being charged in that broadening probe.

“Gupta was honored with the highest trust of leading public companies, and he betrayed that trust by disclosing their most sensitive and valuable secrets,” SEC Enforcement Director Robert Khuzami said.

At the time he was passing along information to Rajaratnam, the SEC charges, Gupta was an investor in some of the Galleon hedge funds. He also had other business interests with Rajaratnam.

Gupta’s attorney, Gary Naftalis, called the allegations “totally baseless.”

U.S. auto sales jump 27 percent
in February

By Dee-Ann Durbin
and Tom Krishner
Associated Press writers

DETROIT — As more U.S. buyers head back into auto dealerships, automakers are jostling for their attention with sweetened deals.

The major automakers knocked a little extra off sticker prices in February, giving additional momentum to a recovery in sales that started last year. The good news for buyers is that discounts are likely to continue into the spring, as older models like the Toyota Corolla and Chevrolet Malibu duke it out with newer models like the Ford Focus and Hyundai Elantra.

“Sales rates are starting to exceed expectations. It’s an opportunity to grab sales from others if you’re aggressive enough and you have the right product,” said Jesse Toprak, vice president of industry analysis at auto pricing site TrueCar.com.

All the major car companies reported double-digit gains for last month. Improving economic conditions and consumer confidence could mean more gains in the months ahead.

But automakers’ results came on a day when oil again approached $100 per barrel on continued unrest in the Arab world. Rising oil prices could still put a damper on the industry’s recovery, GM CEO Dan Akerson cautioned on the

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Idaho lawmakers
approve longer
liquor stores hours

BOISE — A state Liquor Division experiment to keep more of Idaho’s busiest state-owned stores open a little longer each day has earned initial approval from the committee that writes the state budget.

The Joint Finance Appropriations Committee narrowly approved the plan Tuesday amid objections that extending store hours was tantamount to the state promoting the sales of booze and spirits.

Lengthy debate on the proposal Monday caused the committee to stalemate and postpone a final vote until Tuesday. Ultimately, the committee voted 10-9 to give the Liquor Division the authority to spend up to $450,000 to help pay staff to keep more than two dozen of the busiest stores open until 9 p.m. as part of a six-month experiment. Most state stores close at 7 p.m., though at least 10 are kept open until 9 p.m. two days each week.

Liquor Division officials say the extra hours could translate into an additional $2 million in revenue for the state and appeal to customers in some of Idaho’s cities and towns fueled by tourism.

Still, opponents on the committee contend the experiment sends the wrong message about the state’s intentions.

Rep. George Eskridge, R-Dover, proposed on Monday deleting from the agency’s budget the money set aside to extend store hours, according to the Spokesman-Review. “We have to recognize there is an issue between making money and responsible use,” Eskridge told his colleagues Monday. “This is the getting-in-trouble time. This is when the parties start winding out of their refreshments, and people say, ‘Let’s just make one more stop, the liquor store’s still open. We can go down and get some more and we can party-hearty longer.’”

His motion to strip the funding from the agency’s budget failed by two votes.

Senators approve advertisements on school buses

BOISE — A measure that would allow school buses to sport corporate logos and ads has passed the Senate.

A bill that would give school districts the option of selling ad space of on the sides of busses cleared the Senate 25-9 Tuesday.

Assistant Majority Leader Chuck Winder of Boise proposed the bill, calling it one more step to help schools deal with a budget crisis. Winder says selling the ad space could generate up to $1 million a year.

The measure gives the State Board of Education authority to determine what ads are acceptable, and bans political campaign ads.

Opponents like Boise Democratic Senator Les Bock argued that school bus ads are distasteful and taint the image of an American icon.

About half a dozen states already allow bus advertising.

Gas prices shoot up
26 cents in February

BOISE — The price of a gallon of gas in Idaho has spiked dramatically in the last month.

The latest figures from AAA Idaho show the average price of gas in the state rose 26 cents, from $2.96 per gallon on Feb. 2 to $3.22 Monday.

Prices at pumps in Boise are trending toward the mid-$3 range. The Idaho Statesman reports some retailers selling unleaded for $3.43 per gallon Monday, more than 50 cents higher than the same time a year ago.

Still, Idaho motorists are getting a deal compared to other states. Idaho’s statewide average is still 15 cents below the national average.

sidelines of the Geneva Auto Show.

“I don’t think the industry learned a lot of lessons from 2008. They will this time around,” Akerson said of the 2008 spike in U.S. gas prices to above $4 per gallon, which rapidly changed buying habits.

So far, gas prices aren’t having much impact on buying decisions. At AutoNation Inc., the country’s largest dealership chain, customers are increasingly considering fuel prices when they decide what model to buy. But there are other factors, said President and Chief Operating Officer Mike Maroone. The company sees the “freak-out point” that changes people’s car-buying behavior at $4.25 to $4.50 per gallon, he said.

“We’re still a long ways from that,” he said. The nationwide average for a gallon of regular gas Tuesday was $3.375, according to AAA.

Auto sales rose 27 percent in February as the economic recovery continued and consumers felt more comfortable taking on a car payment. The strongest showing came from General Motors Co. and Toyota Motor Corp. with increases of more than 40 percent.

The monthly sales rate, when adjusted for seasonal differences and projected out for a full year, was 13.4 million vehicles. That would make it the highest rate since the government’s Cash for Clunkers rebates juiced sales in the summer of 2009.

In the mix is economic recovery, better auto loan availability, low interest rates, increasing consumer confidence and a return of leases, which were almost absent in February of last year because used-car values dropped so dramatically during the downturn. GM said 22 percent of its individual buyers were leasing in February, up from 15 percent in January.

“I would connect all the dots together,” said Paul Ballew, a former chief economist at GM who is now at insurance firm Nationwide.

Overall, GM saw a 49 percent jump in sales compared with February of last year.

Toyota’s gain was similar, at nearly 42 percent. But sales in the comparable month were poor because of a string of highly publicized safety recalls. Toyota said it saw strong sales toward the end of the month as it launched its “Number One for a Reason” marketing campaign.

“Then I will work with her on things that would be difficult for her to do herself,” Mason said.

Mason was inspired to practice physical therapy by his wife, who is a gymnast.

“I wanted to do something in medicine that was not based on medications and surgery ...something more natural,” he said.

In addition to the usual gym equipment, Mason has a climbing wall, or “vertical treadmill.” He has used it in some therapy, but mostly it is for health club users. He got it because he loves rock climbing.

Mason said most insurance companies are very good about paying for most therapy. He said he is a preferred provider with many insurance companies in the area.

Ten years ago: The United Nations tried in vain to persuade Afghanistan's ruling Taliban to reverse its decision to destroy a pair of giant, ancient statues of Buddha and other Buddhist relics that the regime considered idolatrous.

Five years ago: President George W. Bush and Indian Prime Minister announced a landmark civilian nuclear cooperation deal in New Delhi. A suicide attacker rammed an explosives-packed car into American diplomat David Foy's car in Karachi, Pakistan, killing Foy and three others. The Senate voted 89-10 to renew the USA Patriot Act. "Killer nurse" Charles Cullen, who'd murdered 22 patients in New Jersey alone, was sentenced in Somerville to spend the rest of his life in prison.

One year ago: Authorities in San Diego County found the body of 17-year-old Chelsea King, who'd been missing since Feb. 25, 2010. (John Albert Gardner III later pleaded guilty to raping and murdering King and another victim, 14-year-old Amber Dubois; he was sentenced to life in prison without the possibility of parole.)

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I moved into our first home two years ago. A few months after that, our lives got even better with the addition of our son.

After living here for a while, we noticed that the neighbors behind us have a large window in their shower, and they tend to take a lot of nighttime showers. (I'm sure you can see where this is heading.) For a long time, we chose to ignore it, but my motherly instincts are getting the better of me now. I can't help thinking of the day when my son is old enough to realize what he's seeing.

My husband and I have been debating whether to tell our neighbors we can see them showering. Sometimes they get pretty carried away in there. Should I tell them we can see everything? And if so, how do I go about it without causing them to be embarrassed, ashamed or angry?

— GETTING AN EYEFUL IN OHIO
DEAR GETTING AN EYEFUL: Another shower letter! Write your neighbors a polite note telling them there is a clear view into their shower when their lights are on at night. Explain that before your son was born this was not of concern to you, but now that you have a small child, you would appreciate it if they would work with you on a solution to this problem. They may not be aware they've been putting on an X-rated show.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I have worked in the same office for more than a decade. Last year I returned to school in an effort to finally get into a field where I can earn more money. I will graduate next spring and, hopefully, will begin a new career.

I need your advice about how to approach my boss when the time comes. This is a very small office and, while I wouldn't call us friends, we probably have a closer relationship than most people in a larger office would have. Any thoughts on the best way to approach this?

— GIVING NOTICE ON THE EAST COAST
DEAR GIVING NOTICE: Because you have been in school for the length of time you have, your announcement will probably not come as much of a surprise to your employer. However, before you give notice, be sure you have another job in place. When you do speak to your employer, thank him or her for your job. Explain that you are ready to start in your new field and offer to spend a few weeks training your replacement to make any transition easier.

DEAR ABBY: My husband recently had major surgery. I wanted to call a few close friends and family members beforehand to let them know. When I told my husband, we had an argument. He felt they would feel obligated to respond. I felt it would be nice for both of us to have support and that they would want to know. As it turned out, I made some calls and we did receive some much-needed support. Was I wrong to do this? (My husband wants your opinion on the matter.)

— GRATEFUL FOR HELPING HANDS IN COLORADO
DEAR GRATEFUL: The prospect of major surgery can be frightening — both for the patient and the spouse. Your husband may have preferred to downplay it because he was afraid broadcasting it was displaying weakness. You obviously found the prospect traumatic and didn't want to be alone at that time. Was it wrong to ask for help? I don't think so. My advice to your husband is to lighten up and get well soon.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

“Boldness, and again boldness, and always boldness!”

— Danton

During the auction North can build up a fair picture of his partner's hand, once partner has opened and made a jump rebid. Despite north's clear absence of a heart stop, his high cards entitle him to proceed to five diamonds, which at worst will depend on a trump split or a successful finesse.

West's opening lead is the heart king, and East has to be wide awake. He can see from the dummy and his own hand that the defense has no chance of making a trick in the black suits. Even if declarer is missing the club king, the finesse is working for declarer, so either the contract is down in top tricks, or the defenders must generate a trump trick.

As long as partner has both top hearts, which is probable, the contract can be set if dummy can be forced on the third round of hearts, so that East's trump king cannot be picked up. Accordingly, East should echo in hearts to encourage his partner to play a third round, and once that is done, the contract cannot be made. Even if East is not sufficiently alert to make this play, it is probably the right defense for West to continue hearts unless East discourages hearts, then signals for spades on the second heart. West can see that prospects of making a club trick are poor (given the likely discards coming on the spades), and so the best hope of a third trick lies in trumps.

ANSWER: This auction shows a spade fit and a singleton diamond — a classic splinter bid, though not necessarily in a standard sequence. To cooperate in a slam venture, you need some extras, or a well-fitting minimum with extra shape. This hand does not quite qualify for a five-club cuebid. Maybe with the club king instead of the queen I'd move on; here, it looks right to retreat to four spades.

IF MARCH 2 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: April showers may bring you flowers — or at least a blossoming of your business, career and financial situation. That is a very good time to push the limits, ask for a raise, change jobs or reassess your investments. Get all your ducks in arrow then, so that during May through July, when you might have heavy-duty responsibilities, you will not need to make crucial changes or alterations. Late November may be the best time for romance or a vacation and the end of the year is your best bet for a major opportunity or improvement.

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Give everyone a little space. Efforts to kiss and make up could receive a positive response, but not an enthusiastic one. Those in your intimate circle expect you to do your own thing and fend for yourself.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Drum up some enthusiasm for the latest and greatest. This is not a good time for you to have a heart-to-heart discussion with a loved one, but it is a fabulous time to learn about technological advances.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A smart cookie often ends up rolling in dough. You might not see financial rewards immediately, but a bright idea or sudden inspiration might give you a chance to make a change for the better.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Let bygones be bygones. Hurt feelings could result if you engage in a spat and might be hidden from view. Anyone worthy of your attention will be able to rise above petty upsets and misunderstandings.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): When things go right, give credit to those who helped you. You can expect good luck in reaching your goals without a great deal of effort. It is possible that you are being rewarded for past actions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be an innovator, not an instigator. Major financial outlays might drain the kitty and waste resources. Under these celestial conditions, you can look for opportunities but can't carve them out of thin air.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You are on the right track, but nowhere near the finish line. Keep your money in your pocket and don't wear your heart on your sleeve. This is not the right time to push romantic or financial issues.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You might imagine how someone feels, but you might not be right. Where love and money are concerned, your imagination could be at odds with the facts. Hold off on crucial decisions and discussions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Set new goals and objectives, rather than trying to set the record straight. Ask disinterested parties for an opinion of a situation. You might get better guidance from strangers than from old friends.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Lock up the piggy bank and hide the key. You may have an opportunity to put all your eggs in one basket — and everyone knows how that could turn out. Avoid misunderstandings with loved ones.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Strive to make yourself known. Put networking skills to work with a circle of congenial contacts and enhance your reputation. You can overcome minor setbacks by trying something different.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your tongue is no stranger to the Blarney Stone. Your ability to win others over is enhanced, so this is a good time to make a plea, a presentation or a proposal and obtain favorable results.

The Twin Falls boys basketball team did well to make the state tournament. Now comes the hard work.

The Bruins open defense of their Class 4A championship against a familiar opponent, playing Century at 8 p.m. Thursday at Borah High School in Boise.

Twin Falls split its two season meetings with the Diamondbacks, with Eric Harr scoring in the high 20s in each contest.

"We're going to have to have someone else step up and score in double figures for us, because they aren't going to let Eric do that again," said Twin Falls coach Matt Harr.

With no players taller than 6-foot-3 on the team and only a couple of contributors getting significant time during last season's title run, it's tough to envision Twin Falls repeating if it comes up against a bigger, more physical team.

It'll be a tough ask, but all the Twin Falls faithful is hoping for is a chance to get back to the Idaho Center, where it would see a familiar floor — Twin Falls has played on that court three of the previous four state tournaments, twice in the 5A state tournament and last year for the 4A title.

On the other half of the bracket, Minico makes its first state tournament appearance in 22 years by opening the 4A tournament against Rigby at 1:15 p.m.

Class 3A

Kimberly had to win three straight elimination games just to get to Meridian High School. Three more games in a row would land the Bulldogs a state title.

Their quest starts with Snake River in a 1:15 p.m. game Thursday. The Panthers offer similar challenges to Kimberly's conference foes, one of the reasons the Bulldogs are optimistic about advancing.

"Snake River we know isn't very tall, but they're physical, a lot like Buhl and they can shoot like Filer. They will be tough, but we like our chances," said Kimberly senior forward Derek Maloney. "You have to win three games at state and we just won three games we had to win, so we feel really

Spartans savor state berth, championship

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

RUPERT — On the wall inside Minico's locker room hangs a newspaper clipping of a Spartan team celebrating a championship in the 1980s.

Senior Minico point guard Edgar Espinoza says the current team's district title celebration photo will also be going up on the wall.

"Difference is," he said, "ours is going to be in color."

Yes, it has been that long since a Minico boys basketball team snapped photos with a trophy. And yes, these Spartans enjoyed every minute of it, clinching a state tournament berth and the District IV championship — the school's first in more than 20 years.

"Because of the team we have and how close we are as a team, we just naturally enjoy the moment," said senior Casey Christiansen. "We've enjoyed each step of the way."

The next step of the journey will be at Borah High School in Boise, where the Spartans will compete for a Class 4A state championship.

CSI men ranked No. 2 in NJCAA poll

Eagles prep for region tourney

By Mike Christensen
Times-News writer

The reaction to the No. 2 ranking was pretty much universal among the Golden Eagles: It's nice, but it's still one spot short of the ultimate goal.

The College of Southern Idaho men's basketball team is second in this week's NJCAA Division I rankings, the program's highest perch in the poll since the 2007-08 team spent three weeks at No. 1 in February 2008. Only Missouri State-West Plains (28-2), which topped the poll for the fifth straight week, is ranked ahead of CSI (26-4).

"It's a real compliment to these guys but it's not where they want to be just yet," said CSI head coach Steve Gosar. "They've got their hearts set on getting to No. 1."

With this week's poll being the last of the season, the only way CSI can get to No. 1 is by winning the NJCAA Tournament in Hutchinson, Kan., March 15-19. First though, the Eagles have to win this week's Region 18 Tournament on their home floor.

Do that and they'll advance to the March 8 bi-regional play-in game against the Region I champion, likely Arizona Western (22-8). With so many big games on the horizon, CSI guard Jerrold Brooks said, "I don't really care (about the ranking). It's win or go home now. I'm happy to see we're No. 2, though, but we've got to hoop like we're No. 1."

But after starting No. 24 in the preseason poll, the No. 2 ranking "is a nice reward for our hard work all

Giants' Mara 1st owner seen at talks

By Howard Fendrich
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — The New York Giants' John Mara joined the NFL group negotiating with the players' union Tuesday, the first team owner to participate since a federal mediator began overseeing the talks.

Atlanta Falcons president Rich McKay, chairman of the league's competition committee, and Washington Redskins general manager Bruce Allen also were among those joining NFL Commissioner Roger Goodell when mediation resumed Tuesday at 1 p.m., 59 hours before the current collective bargaining agreement was due to expire. Most participants hadn't left as of 6:30 p.m.

"I don't think you could have a greater sense of urgency," Jeff Pash, the league's lead labor negotiator, said on his way into the meeting. "We all know what the calendar is, and we all know what's at stake for everybody. And that's why we're here. We're going to be here as long as it takes and work as hard as we can work to get something done."

There was no telling, of course, whether the sides would fare any better Tuesday than they did during more than 40 hours of meetings spread across seven consecutive days of mediation that wrapped up last week. When that round ended Thursday, mediator George Cohen said the league and the NFL Players Association still had "very strong differences" on the "all-important core issues."

The CBA runs out at midnight as Thursday becomes Friday on the East Coast, and the owners could lock out the players afterward. The union could also decertify — essentially, declare itself out of the business of representing players — and let the players take their chances in court.

Buffalo Bills safety George Wilson — who's not involved in the negotiations but is getting updates from the union as his team's NFLPA representative — doesn't expect there to be a deal by the deadline.

"Everything I'm telling my guys is: Prepare this Friday for the start of a lockout," Wilson told The Associated Press. "I certainly don't believe a deal will be reached by Thursday midnight. That's what I feel in my heart. I have not received any indication (from the union) that we're close to a deal."

Howard leads Magic over new-look Knicks

ORLANDO, Fla. — Dwight Howard had 30 points and 16 rebounds, Jameer Nelson scored 23 of his 26 points in the second half, and the Orlando Magic outlasted the New York Knicks 116-110 on Tuesday night.

The Magic trailed 58-47 at halftime, but surged in the second half as the Knicks struggled from the field.

The win was the Magic's third straight and fifth in six games. It was also Orlando's second win this season over the Knicks, who host the Magic twice before the end of the month.

New York fell to 2-2 since acquiring All-Star Carmelo Anthony and Chauncey Billups. The Knicks finished 1-1 on the Florida swing, following its win over Miami on Sunday.

Amare Stoudemire and Billups led New York with 30 points apiece, followed by Anthony with 25.

MAVERICKS 101, 76ERS 93

PHILADELPHIA — Jason Terry scored 30 points, Jason Kidd had a triple-double, and Dallas won its seventh straight game.

Dirk Nowitzki added 22 points for the Mavericks, who have won a whopping 17 of 18 games to move into second place in the Western Conference.

Terry used near-flawless shooting over the second and third quarters to give the Mavs the lead, then sealed the win late in the fourth with a dunk where he waved his arms in celebration.

Kidd had 13 points, 13 assists, 10 rebounds and no turnovers.

LAKERS 90, TIMBERWOLVES 79

MINNEAPOLIS — Pau Gasol, Andrew Bynum and the Lakers' towering front line overwhelmed Kevin Love on the boards in a victory over Minnesota.

Gasol had 17 rebounds and 12 points, Bynum had 14 points and seven boards and the Lakers scored 28 second-chance points to overcome a poor shooting night and win their fifth straight game.

Wes Johnson had 20 points and eight rebounds for the Timberwolves, who led for much of the first three quarters before the Lakers asserted themselves.

GRIZZLIES 109, SPURS 93

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Darrell Arthur and Zach Randolph each scored 21 points and Memphis took advantage of San Antonio's poor ball handling.

Tony Allen added 20 points, missing only one of his nine shots, and Mike Conley had 18 points and nine assists as Memphis won its season-best fifth straight home game.

Gary Neal was the only Spur to finish in double figures with 14 points. Starters Tim Duncan, Manu Ginobili and DeJuan Blair had nine points apiece, as they sat out the fourth quarter.

PACERS 109, WARRIORS 100

INDIANAPOLIS — Danny Granger scored 27 points, hitting all 16 free throws, and Indiana held off Golden State.

Darren Collison scored 11 points for Indiana, eight in the third quarter, when the Pacers outscored Golden State 37-26 to turn a three-point deficit into a nine-point lead.

Reggie Williams had 25 points off the bench for Golden State, which rallied from a double-digit, first-half deficit to lead by nine points late in the second quarter before faltering.

RAPTORS 96, HORNETS 90

TORONTO — Jose Calderon had 22 points and 16 assists, DeMar DeRozan scored 17 points and Toronto beat New Orleans for just its fourth win in 24 games.

Returning to the lineup after missing Sunday's loss to Dallas with flulike symptoms, Andrea Bargnani scored 14 points for Toronto, which also got 14 from Sonny Weems and 13 from James Johnson.

BUCKS 92, PISTONS 90

MILWAUKEE — Brandon Jennings scored 21 points, making the clinching free throws with 5.9 seconds left and leading Milwaukee over Detroit.

confident right now. As long as we're having fun and playing together we have a chance."

Class 2A

Valley had no business finishing second in the Canyon Conference. The Vikings had no business winning the district championship. So it's only natural that they have no business advancing past Melba in Thursday afternoon's second game at Capital High School in Boise.

That's just the way a team making state for the first time since 2003 wants it as it begins the chase for its first title in 10 years.

Valley went 2-20 last season before reversing that by 12 1/2 games so far and qualifying for the state tournament.

"No matter what hardship they're going through, they can find a way. It had that feeling during (the district) tournament that they were going to find a way to get it done. Our job as coaches has been to not get in the way and let them get it done," said Valley coach Steve Hunter. "They're fighters. They're not quitters. They bought into what we were saying and I'm thoroughly proud of them."

Class 1A Div. I

Shoshone is back to the dance, looking to improve on its third-place finish from last season. With a strong core of seniors to lean on, the Indians have their best chance in 10 years to claim their first title since 1989.

They'll open against Wilder at 6:15 p.m. Thursday, at Vallivue High School in Caldwell, to start one of the most unpredictable tournaments in recent memory.

"Of all the last few years this is the most balanced I've seen the state tournament," said longtime Shoshone coach Larry Messick, who's capping his 36th season in charge with yet another trip to the state tournament. "I think we match up well with (Wilder), but it's going to be a matter of having good shot selection and putting the ball in when it counts."

Class 1A Div. II

The best way for a team to battle-test itself for this classification's tournament? Play in District IV.

Carey finished second at last season's tournament and Murtaugh third, while Castleford was the Division I runner-up. All three of those teams are trying to improve their standing at this season's Division II playoff at Caldwell High School.

One, however, has a clear advantage, though Carey is playing down its bracketing position.

"All five teams that are ranked in the state got there, and four of them are in the top half," said ninth-year coach Dick Simpson, whose 21-2 Panthers are on the bottom half. "On the other hand we have to take care of business when we get there. It's like I told the kids, you made it in football, nobody thought you'd win as many games this year ... up to this point we've accomplished all the goals we set. Now we've got three more: win the first game, get back to the championship, and win it."

Carey clipped Castleford by a single point for the District IV championship and the right to face Meadows Valley at 6:15 p.m. Thursday. The Wolves rebounded to take second place, but that leaves them to deal with defending champion Nezperce in the 3 p.m. game.

Castleford has twice been humbled this season, but its first-year coach believes his team will come back stronger for it.

"We'd like to have won the district tournament, but there's no reason to shy away from it. If you want to win the state championship you've got to win three in a row anyway, no matter who they are," said Tracy Vulgamore, who led the Wolves to a third-place football finish. "Everything happens for a reason. We hadn't been tested like that in the season, and we had a few less games than everyone else. Maybe up here we'll be in that situation again and we'll know how to handle it."

Murtaugh had to survive a play-in last weekend against Sho-Ban, a team to which it lost by 40 in the regular season, just to make it to Caldwell, where it will have an 8 p.m. game against 6-11 Kootenai.

The Red Devils aren't taking the Warriors lightly, though they recognize the opportunity to possibly bring home three trophies to District IV.

"That's kind of all we've really got to go off of was watching them play Dietrich last year (in a game Dietrich won comfortably)," said coach Adam Johnson. "I think our district the past few years has fared very well. It's a tough district to get through and if you're able to get through it's definitely good preparation to get to state."

Spartans

Whether Minico's lack of state experience will be an issue is up for debate.

"If you don't let it get to your head, it shouldn't really matter," Espinoza said.

Six of the eight teams in the bracket were at state last year, including the champion (Twin Falls), runner-up (Moscow) and consolation winner (Skyview).

"I'm sure if you've been there it's good experience, but at the same time it's not going to make shots for you, it's not going to stop them from scoring, it's not going to put you in the right position," Christiansen said.

"We've gone on the road before. It's still going to be the game of basketball. It means something only if you make something of it."

State experienced or not, Minico is built for a deep tourney run. The Spartans' effort and intensity on defense should keep them in games, even if nerves or an unfamiliar gym causes hiccups offensively.

Plus, it's highly unlikely that all the Spartans will have an off night offensively, which bodes well for their balanced scoring. Kade Miller (12.2 ppg), Kevin Jurgensmeier (11.7 ppg, 6.8 rpg), Christiansen (10.4 ppg) and Bronson Miller (8.3 ppg) are each capable of 20-plus point nights.

Minico got a good look at its first-round opponent last Saturday when Rigby (16-10) won a play-in game over Middleton at Burley High. With five players 6-3 or taller, Rigby isn't as big as Minico's 6-10 Jurgensmeier, but has enough bodies to throw at him.

"They're a solid team, they look really well-coached. They're physical. It's going to be a dogfight," Christiansen said. "They have a couple kids who make tough shots, big-time fourth-quarter shots."

Led by juniors Kamen McCullough and Dylan Jones, Rigby has been playing its best ball of late and looks to fast break as much as possible. Minico coach Mike Graefe said Rigby compares to Idaho Falls, but executes better offense.

"They do some things offensively that we're going to have to adjust to, some different stuff we haven't seen this year," Graefe said. "If we do what we're supposed to do and pressure them, we'll be fine."

If Minico can survive and advance, it will meet the Moscow-Skyview winner in the semifinals Friday.

"The biggest thing is playing hard for 12 straight quarters," Christiansen said. "Other teams are going to make a run, but you've just got to keep digging. Whenever times get tough, we have to keep digging no matter what."

Ohio State rolls over Penn State

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. — Jon Diebler had career highs of 30 points and 10 3-pointers Tuesday night and No. 1 Ohio State routed Penn State 82-61 to clinch at least a share of the Big Ten title.

Diebler went 5 of 6 from behind the arc in the first half as the Buckeyes (28-2, 15-2) built a 15-point lead. The senior's 10 3s set a school record and tied the conference record.

The win allowed the Buckeyes to earn at least a share of their fourth conference championship in six years and stay one game ahead of second-place Purdue. Ohio State can claim the conference title outright with a win over No. 10 Wisconsin on Sunday.

NO. 6 PURDUE 75, ILLINOIS 67

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. — JaJuan Johnson scored 23 points and E'Twaun Moore added 18 to lead Purdue.

It was a fitting display for the two seniors in their final home game. They came off the court to a standing ovation with 3.6 seconds left.

D.J. Byrd added a career-high 16 points and Ryne Smith had a career-high nine rebounds for the Boilermakers, who overcame a 13-point deficit to win their seventh straight.

NO. 9 SAN DIEGO ST. 85, WYOMING 58

LARAMIE, Wyo. — Malcolm Thomas and Brian Carlwell both scored 15 points and No. 9 San Diego State beat Wyoming 85-58 on Tuesday night, rebounding from its second loss of the season with a win in an arena where the Aztecs haven't been very successful.

NO. 14 FLORIDA 78, ALABAMA 51

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — Chandler Parsons scored a season-high 19 points and Vernon Macklin also had 19 for Florida.

The Gators clinched at least a share of the Southeastern Conference regular season title and can claim their fifth outright win at No. 21 Vanderbilt on Saturday. Florida (23-6, 12-3) also would win the league if Georgia beats Alabama earlier Saturday.

NO. 20 KENTUCKY 68, NO. 21 VANDERBILT 66

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Brandon Knight scored 17 points and Terrence Jones added 15 points and nine rebounds for Kentucky (21-8, 9-6 Southeastern Conference), which remained unbeaten at Rupp Arena under coach John Calipari.

NEBRASKA 69, NO. 22 MISSOURI 58

LINCOLN, Neb. — Lance Jeter scored 16 points and Nebraska used a 17-2 second-half run to pull away.

It was the last regular-season Big 12 home game for Nebraska (19-10, 7-8), which moves to the Big Ten next season.

Bonds' perjury trial takes shape

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Barry Bonds' former personal trainer is facing prison and a judge admitted a trove of evidence while the admissibility of still more hangs in the balance after a pivotal hearing in federal court Tuesday, three weeks before the slugger's trial is scheduled to start.

Bonds also renewed his not guilty plea, which was made necessary when prosecutors revised the charges for the third time since the initial indictment was unsealed in November 2007. Bonds is charged with four counts of making false statements to a grand jury and one count of obstruction of justice. There was little doubt what Bonds' plea was going to be Tuesday and that the case was going to trial March 21 after Bonds' legal team and prosecutors last month told U.S. District Judge Susan Illston that there was little chance of a plea agreement.

Likewise, there was no doubt that Bonds' former personal trainer, Greg Anderson, would tell the judge Tuesday that he has no intention of taking the stand as a government witness during the trial. Anderson made a similar pledge in 2009 before Bonds' trial was put on hold until a government appeal was resolved in Bonds' favor.

Anderson has previously spent more than a year in prison on contempt charges after refusing to testify before the grand jury investigating Bonds.

The judge said that prosecutors and Bonds' legal team both want Anderson to testify. She said his testimony would spare his former clients, including several retired major league players, from being called to the witness stand to discuss how he supplied them with steroids. Assistant U.S. Attorney Jeff Ned row said he wants to use that evidence to support their position that Bonds was lying when he claimed "he was unwittingly duped by Mr. Anderson" into believing he was taking legal supplements.

Former baseball player Barry Bonds arrives Tuesday at a federal courthouse in San Francisco.

"Much of that testimony would be unnecessary" if he testified, Illston told Anderson.

Illston then told Anderson that she planned to find him in contempt of court and will order him jailed during the duration of the trial, which is expected to last at least two weeks. Anderson simply nodded his head when the judge asked if he intended to follow through on his vow of silence.

"He's taking not testifying to the nth degree," said Mark Geragos, Anderson's attorney.

Illston ordered Anderson to return to court March 22, when she plans to order him jailed.

After Anderson left the courtroom, the lawyers got down to highly technical arguments over what evidence will be presented to the jury.

The judge ruled that the jury may hear, among other pieces of evidence:

- That prosecutors granted Bonds immunity from prosecution as long he testified truthfully about his drug use before the grand jury.

- Bonds' former personal shopper, Cathy Hoskins, testifying about Bonds' relationship with a Playboy model.

- Bonds' personal surgeon, Dr. Arthur Ting, and former girlfriend Kim Bell testifying that Bonds mistreated them, including Bell allegedly witnessing violent outbursts.

But the admissibility of other evidence must still be determined.

Bonds attorney Cris Arguedas objected to Bell telling the jury about an incident where Bonds allegedly grabbed her by the throat and threatened her life. Arguedas denied the incident occurred, but argued that even if it did happen, such testimony would unfairly bias the jury against Bonds.

"It's an act of domestic violence," Arguedas said. "It has an incendiary effect on the jury."

year," according to backup center Chris Patton. "... It's nice to show the nation that we're a team to be taken seriously."

As the top seed in the Region 18 tourney, CSI receives a first-round bye. The Eagles await Thursday's winner between No. 4 seed Snow College (18-12) and fifth-seeded North Idaho College (22-8) in a 7:30 p.m. game Friday.

A win Friday would put CSI in Saturday's title game, where it could face a rematch with No. 2 seed Eastern Utah (23-7), which fell to No. 20 in this week's poll. CSI beat CEU 88-86 in double overtime last week.

Regardless of the foe, Gosar knows CSI will get the opposition's best shot.

"We do have bull's-eye on our chest now and everybody's going to be gunning for us," said Gosar. "But I do feel like we've played that way all year long so I think the guys are getting used to that."

Brooks said the key to advancing is to "talk on defense" and avoid the first-half struggles the team has experienced at times this season.

"We've got to play good through the whole game," said Brooks. "Start off good, finish good."

Talks

Whatever happens between now and Friday could eventually wind up causing the country's most popular sport to lose regular-season games to a work stoppage for the first time since 1987. Or everything could be resolved by management and labor in an industry with revenues topping $9 billion annually.

In a ruling Tuesday that could have a significant bearing on the negotiations, U.S. District Court judge David Doty in Minneapolis sided with the union by overruling a special master's Feb. 1 decision to reject the NFLPA's request that $4 billion in 2011 payments from networks to the league be placed in escrow if there is a lockout.

Doty, who has jurisdiction over NFL labor matters, said there will be a hearing to determine what should happen to that money. The date of the hearing wasn't announced immediately.

The union accused the NFL of structuring TV contracts so owners would be guaranteed money even if there were a work stoppage in 2011 — while not getting the most revenue possible in other seasons, when income would need to be shared with players. The union argued this violated an agreement between the sides that says the NFL must make good-faith efforts to maximize revenue for players. The NFLPA also said any work stoppage clauses in TV deals guaranteed "war chest" income for the NFL, giving it an unfair advantage in labor talks.

When Seattle Seahawks guard Chester Pitts left Tuesday's negotiating session at about 4:30 p.m., he was asked whether he is optimistic about a new CBA agreement being reached.

"What's the word we're using right now? 'Cautiously optimistic,'" Pitts said. "We're making a point to go into it doing all we can to do things the right way, and hopefully we get a deal done."

Asked about Mara's presence, Pitts said: "He's a businessman, and businessmen like to make money. So sometimes you've got to come, make sure you're hovering around, make sure everything's being done to get a deal done. And I'm pretty sure he'll say he had that sense."

The biggest sticking point all along has been how to divide the league's revenues, including what cut team owners should get up front to help cover certain costs, such as stadium construction. Under the old deal, owners got $1 billion off the top. They entered these negotiations seeking to double that.

Match Play offers snapshot of golf scene

MARANA, Ariz. (AP) — The PGA Tour could have skipped the West Coast swing and gone straight to the Match Play Championship, which provided a perfect snapshot of everything going in the world of golf.

Europe looked as strong as ever.

Martin Kaymer showed why he is No. 1 in the world ranking. Lee Westwood made people wonder why he was.

Bubba Watson and Rickie Fowler, when they're not making videos for Twitter, offered more evidence that their homemade golf swings are just as compelling as their fashion accessories.

And has anyone seen Tiger Woods?

Europe has been the strongest continent in golf over the last year, and Dove Mountain was no exception. Luke Donald of England and Kaymer (Germany) reached the championship match, the second straight year for an all-European final.

Donald was so good that he never trailed after any hole in any of his six matches, and wound up playing the winner of the Bob Hope Classic (92). Who would have guessed that?

After winning, Donald said European golf was going through a "purple patch."

For the Americans, it's more black-and-blue.

Only two Americans have reached the championship match in the last five years — Woods and Stewart Cink in 2008. One year ago, Americans were Nos. 1-2-3 in the world ranking. Europe now occupies the first four spots in the ranking for the first time in nearly two decades. Woods is the highest-ranked American at No. 5, his lowest position since the week before he won the 1997 Masters.

Before anyone writes the Americans off too quickly, they have had six winners on the PGA Tour this year. Then again, their average ranking when they won was No. 171. Watson at Torrey Pines was the only winner inside the top 75.

The best American at the moment? Good question.

Mark Wilson has won twice, at the Sony Open and Phoenix Open, which doesn't exactly make him a favorite at the Masters, where he will be playing a major for only the fourth time.

Wilson advanced to the second round of the Match Play, and that was noteworthy for whom he beat — Dustin Johnson.

There was little debate that Johnson was the most promising young American going into 2011, if not one of the emerging talents in the world. Two months into the season, however, he has only made news because of Natalie Gulbis and Jim Gray.

He was linked romantically to Gulbis until the LPGA star said that Johnson was handling their PR. Meanwhile, Gray was sent home by the Golf Channel for asking Johnson in the middle of his round why he was late to the tee for a two-shot penalty.

Speaking of tardiness, the Match Play Championship renewed talk about the pace of play.

One week after Kevin Na nearly turned Riviera into a five-day tournament, J.B. Holmes took some of the shine off a riveting match because he was so deliberate. Watson rallied from 5 down with eight holes to play to square the match on the 18th and win it on the 19th. But the match took nearly five hours to play, and not all of that is down to rulings from the desert on the final two holes.

The opening match of the tournament between Cink and Ian Poulter took over four hours before it reached the 18th hole. Part of the delay was when they each made double bogey on the par-3 sixth, prompting rules official Stephen Cox to tell Poulter on the next fairway, "Look, I realize you've both taken a trip to In-N-Out for a double-double, but I'd appreciate it if you would pick up the pace."

Watson and Fowler won't get accused of slow play.

Both bring old-school qualities to the game, and both are reaching the point where they can move the needle.
