Recycling, even without rewards

Twin Falls recycles almost six times as much in February

By Nick Coltrain
Times-News writer

A mound of many men's trash has grown at Magic Valley Recycling, but only to become one company's treasure.

The pile of recyclables is made up of plastic bottles, newspaper, cardboard and more. Surprisingly little of the heap is prohibited items, said Tammi Eiguren, assistant manager at the plant.

"I'm pleased because before (recycling) was a lot on the honor system," Eiguren said. "The public is doing a really good job."

Avoiding the prohibited recyclables — such as the glass that will shatter and contaminate a load, the plastic bags that will gum up the bailer, or the food-encrusted items that attract maggots — isn't all that impresses those running the new recycling program.

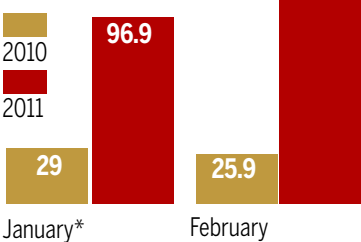

Twin Falls residents recycled almost six times as much by weight in February as they did that month last year, according to city figures. And even though only a bit more than a third of eligible residents are signed up for RecycleBank, a program that rewards residents with coupons based on tons recycled, the workers on the street put recycling rates at closer to 80 percent.

"I think it's going great and the tonnage shows that we've got a lot

Judge shuts down some Jarbidge grazing allotments

By Laura Lundquist
Times-News writer

Six local cattle producers must now organize rapid roundups to move their herds off public land.

On Monday, following a five-year reprieve, U.S. District Judge B. Lynn Winnill reasserted his 2005 ruling prohibiting grazing on some of the land in the U.S. Bureau of Land Management's Jarbidge Field Office. Monday's ruling suspends grazing on 17 of 28 contested allotments, including three near China Mountain.

The Jarbidge office contains a total of 94 allotments, so grazing will continue on most, said Jarbidge Manager Rick Vander Voet.

"Six of the allotments are cattle, so there are animals out there now," Vander Voet said. "We called the permittees and sent letters, but many were at the hearing so they knew this might be coming."

In 2005, Winmill agreed with the Western Watersheds Project that the BLM violated federal law in reissuing the 28 permits. He elected to prohibit grazing because "irreparable harm warranted an injunction."

Rather than kicking ranchers off the land, Winmill allowed the parties to negotiate. Agreements were reached on 11 allotments to allow grazing.

Stage is set for votes

Panel sends two Luna bills to House floor

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

BOISE — Two of three bills to overhaul public education in Idaho are one step away from the governor's desk.

Two pillars of Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Luna's "Students Come First" plan passed the House Education Committee Thursday on 13-5 votes, setting the stage for a vote on the House floor.

If the bills become law, the legislation will revamp the state's system of negotiating contracts with teachers, add performance-based pay incentives, and phase out tenure by not awarding it to new teachers, replacing it with two-year rolling contracts.

Thursday's separate 13-5 committee votes came after a nearly five-hour marathon session.

The bills have proven divisive, as many teachers have raised concerns that the legislation will hurt their job security, limit negotiations with school boards, and eliminate seniority as a consideration when school districts lay off teachers to cope with declining enrollment.

Sherri Wood, president of the Idaho Education Association, which represents teachers,

What's next

• Senate Bills 1108 and 1110, have nearly passed through the Legislature after coming out of the House Education Committee on Thursday. One adds a merit-based pay system for teachers, eliminating tenure, and the other revamps how teacher contracts and labor negotiations play out.
What's next: Full House votes on the bills. If they pass there, they'll move on to the governor.

A quiet protest: TFHS students write letters

By Amy Huddleston
Times-News writer

Hunter McFarland and a few of her friends didn't participate in loud protests against education overhaul bills.

Instead, they decided to stay after school and write letters to their legislators as a thoughtful way to support their teachers and voice their opinions.

On Thursday afternoon, around 15 students mingled in a hallway at Twin Falls High School. McFarland said she expected more students to show up for the "sit-in" but had to make do with what she called "more of a small task force."

Sophomore Amanda Greenley said the plan was to write letters to the Legislature — at least 50 of them — and stay in a hallway at Twin Falls High School until 11:30 p.m.

"We knew that protesting during school hours wasn't right and we decided to do this after school because it would make a point," Greenley said. "We're supporting the levy, too."

testified Thursday that passage of the bill would take the state back to the 1960s, "When Idaho was a place teachers wanted to avoid."

She raised concerns about the loss of job protection and due process for teachers.

"Education is not a widgets business," she said. "It's a people business."

In his remarks, Luna countered that the goal isn't to devalue teachers. The goal, he said, is to put a system in place that rewards and recognizes good teachers and properly deals with the limited cases of ineffective educators.

"The teacher isn't the problem," Luna said. "The teacher is the solution, and that's what these two bills recognize."

Magic Valley lawmakers who voted for the bill were Rep. Stephen Hartgen and Rep. Sharon Block, both Twin Falls Republicans. Rep.

Donna Pence, D-Gooding, voted against the legislation.

Hartgen said the search for a perfect solution shouldn't overrule the good accomplished in the legislation.

"The perfect is the enemy of the good," he said.

Pence questioned the value of two-year contracts when teachers can be fired at the start of a school year when enrollment drops, saying that system seems like a contradiction.

Phil Homer, a lobbyist for the Idaho Association of School Administrators, said school districts and teachers would need to move forward if the legislation passes, regardless of opposition to the bills.

"At some point, if we get the road map or when we get a road map, we're going to have to pound the sabers and swords into plowshares," he said.

CSI board reviews tuition, fees

Times-News

Students at the College of Southern Idaho will face new fees and tuition expenses in coming semesters.

CSI President Jerry Beck and Vice President of Administration Mike Mason presented three options to the CSI Board of Trustees on Monday night. They said final decisions will be made after today, when the Legislature's budget-setting committee recommends a funding level for community colleges. Beck said they were also waiting on student input.

The current situation

Students pay $105 per credit until they reach 12 credits.

For those taking 12 to 16 credits, tuition is a flat $1,260 per semester.

Once a student reaches 17 credits, $105 is charged for each additional credit.

The options

- Move from $105 per credit to $110 per credit.

- Move from $105 per credit to $100 per credit but charge students per credit they take, rather than a flat rate.

- Keep tuition and fees at $105 per credit, but start charging full-time students per credit once they surpass 15 credits instead of the current 16.

Each option would take effect for the coming school year. The board will be recommended one option on March 28.

Mason said each option was considered with fairness to students in mind. Option two would significantly affect an estimated 14 percent of students and would put more responsibility on full-time students.

"It's quite a balancing act that we have to go on," Mason said.

Four-truck crash blocks I-84 near Wendell

Times-News

A detached trailer led to a multi-truck crash that closed eastbound Interstate 84 near Wendell for more than three hours Wednesday night.

Idaho State Police reported that at approximately 8:15 p.m., troopers responded to a four-vehicle crash at milepost 155 and found that a trailer full of construction equipment had detached from Harrison Matthews' 2002 Ford F150 truck.

Matthews, 44, of Boise, was heading east, attempting to exit the interstate, when he lost control of his truck and lost the trailer, which rolled into the left lane of eastbound I-84. Matthews' truck spun so that he faced oncoming traffic, blinding other drivers with his headlights.

Because of the blockage and the brightness of the Ford's headlights, three semitrailers were forced off the interstate, two of which struck the overturned trailer.

Petr Demyanchuk, 33, of Everett, Wash., and William Brander, 56, of Twin Falls, hit the trailer but did minimal damage to their vehicles. Demyanchuk was driving a 1994 Freightliner cab pulling a Great Dane trailer, and Brander was in a 1995 Ford L8000 commercial truck, hauling a flatbed trailer with a tractor on top. The third truck driver, Pedro Espinoza, 40, of Nampa, was able to avoid the trailer. He drove a 2006 Volvo semi, pulling a tanker trailer.

No one was injured in the crash. Matthews was cited for careless driving.

What you need to know about the Jerome school levy

What it costs: $60 per year for every $100,000 of taxable property value within the district

What they say: "This levy is the same amount it has been, with no additional tax increase. We're looking at reducing staff, and that is with the supplemental levy passing. It will sustain general operating costs like textbooks and supplies."

Levy basics

What it seeks: $650,000

How long it lasts: Two years, splitting the amount to $325,000 each year

Protest

While they waited for others to show up, the students discussed Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Luna's three education reform bills and bounced ideas back and forth like a pingpong tournament.

"Personally, I think the tenure bill is a good idea because it benefits students maybe even more than teachers," Keaton Workman, 16, said. "If teachers have job security, they have no initiative for competition — teamed with merit pay it would work well."

McFarland, a junior, said the protests done earlier in Wendell High School students also participated in a after-school rally Thursday. Principal Jon Goss said around 25 students marched from the high school to the middle of Wendell and were joined by a few Gooding students. the week weren't an effective way to voice opinions.

"We were upset that people were walking out of school, and leaving our teachers isn't supporting them," she said.

She said she didn't know how she would fix education and balance the budget, but said she wouldn't get rid of teaching jobs.

"I feel a little biased against sports since I am a debater. Tom Luna isn't looking into it all the way. There are a lot of big corporations that can do more to help out schools," McFarland said.

Sophomore Austin Murray said he's had great teachers that have changed his life.

Murray cited his current drama teacher, James Haycock, as someone who has influenced him greatly and motivated him to follow his talents. Murray has taken two online classes and said they were a lot of work, but he said the classes could be positive if taken in moderation.

"My mother is a teacher, and her class has a lot of kids who have a hard time learning and need a teacher to motivate them and pat them on the back. You don't get that from a computer screen," he said. "If you put a computer in front of them, they will be completely lost."

Grazing

After three months, the parties reached a temporary settlement, which Winnmill approved, allowing continued grazing on the remaining 17 allotments until a new Jarbidge management plan could be published in 2009.

The BLM has since operated using an interim plan that was extended to 2010 since the management plan was not completed on time.

Vander Voet said the permanent management plan won't be done until 2012; he's just begun to review 1,200 pages of comments on the draft. Once the plan is finalized, permit approvals can take up to three years, pushing the date to 2015, far later than allowed in the settlement.

Snowpack Levels
Seasonal percentage
Watershed	% of avg. peak

Big Wood	81%	67%
Little Wood	84%	69%

As of March 3

ized, permit approvals can take up to three years, pushing the date to 2015, far later than allowed in the settlement.

The BLM requested that the settlement be extended, but Winnmill refused.

"Because there is no agreement on the (grazing plans) beyond 2010, the (plans) cease to exist, and the Court's remedy — the injunction — takes over," Winnmill wrote.

The BLM could still try to stay the injunction, but it would have to present new information showing grazing wouldn't further degrade the land. That's a tall order, said Advocates for the West attorney Tom Tucci.

"The sage grouse population is collapsing in the Jarbidge area, so they'd have to ask the judge to ignore factors like the Long Butte Fire and the Murphy Complex Fire," Tucci said. "This isn't affecting small ranchers; these are big operators like Simplot who have other places to go."

Simplot ranch manager Chuck Jones said the company was in the process of deciding where to move its animals. Simplot has not determined yet how it will proceed, Jones said.

Former Idaho Sen. Jim McClure, who died last Saturday, wasn't from the Magic Valley but might as well have been. The Payette Republican swept every election he ever contested here, and was directly responsible for bringing millions of dollars in federal aid to south-central Idaho.

So here, with the help of McClure's biographer Bill Smallwood, is what McClure thought about the Magic Valley and those with whom he worked:

Group accuses ISDA of faulty regulation

By Laura Lundquist
Times-News writer

Legislators may give the Idaho State Department of Agriculture more responsibilities this session, including oversight of large-scale poultry farms.

But one group doesn't believe the department has shown itself to be dependable.

Earlier this week, the House Agricultural Affairs Committee gave a chilly reception to a presentation questioning the department's environmental oversight of large confined-animal feeding operations. No action followed the presentation, but skeptical questions from committee members did.

Members of Idaho Concerned Area Residents for the Environment attempted to show, based upon an audit of inspection reports, that the department regularly under-reports violations of CAFO permits and that such violations contribute to declining groundwater and air quality in counties with high concentrations of the facilities.

"At the beginning of the session, we sat down with (Rep. Tom Trail, R-Moscow) to show that we had a significant amount of proof against the ISDA," said Alma Hasse, ICARE founder. "He was concerned enough that he put us on the schedule."

ICARE started the audit in August and hired Jerry LaCava, Boise State University professor emeritus, to run the statistics.

During the presentation, LaCava said that to make the samples representative of CAFOs across the state, he randomly selected a third of the inspection reports. Of those, LaCava found that one-quarter of operations were cited for at least one illegal pollution discharge. No permits were revoked. Whitegold Dairy No. 2 near Kimberly, highlighted during the presentation, had a total of 17 discharge events over six years.

Shavonne Hasse with ICARE said more operations should possibly have been cited. She said more than one-quarter of the reports had inspector comments directing the CAFO to correct noncompliant items but did not cite the operation for noncompliance.

This costs the state fine money, she said. Even those CAFOs that were fined were rarely required to pay the full amount, she said. In one case, Whitegold was fined more than $16,000 but paid nothing.

Ultimately, the discharges also cost homeowners money because their wells were being tainted, Shavonne Hasse said. Three Idaho Department of Environmental Quality reports published since 2009 show increasing levels of nitrates, ammonia, hormones and agricultural antibiotics in Magic Valley groundwater.

ICARE received the inspection reports through a public records request to ISDA. The state agency redacted confidential information, Shavonne Hasse said, and ICARE plans to post the reports on its website.

Rep. Bert Stevenson, R-Rupert, and others objected to posting the documents, which are public information.

"You recall when we had a wolf hunt, they got the names and posted them, giving cause for people to be harassed," Stevenson said. "This, I suspect, is the same thing your organization is intending to use this for."

Reached by the Times-News, ISDA Chief of Staff Pam Jucker later said the agency had not seen the audit and had no comment.

Alma Hasse said ICARE has often shared the problems summarized in the audit with ISDA since October 2009, but she has never received a response.

Community college election measure dies

Times-News

The House State Affairs Committee on Thursday killed legislation that would have required community college trustee positions to be divided into zones within the college's district.

That legislation, which had support from several Jerome County lawmakers, died with a 10-8 vote to hold it in the committee, which effectively kills it.

The legislation had been sparked in part by the outcome of the College of Southern Idaho's board elections in November, which resulted in a five-member board of trustees who all live in or near Twin Falls. Because the college's taxing district includes Jerome County, the argument was that larger cities like Twin Falls make it difficult for candidates from Jerome County to win in current district-wide elections. Separating board seats into zones would help provide evenly geographic- and population-based representation.

Prior to the election, LeRoy Craig, who is from Jerome, was on the board as its chairman.

A chance to make a good school district better

There are 115 public school districts in Idaho. Cassia County’s is among the best.

Why? Mostly because in 1948, patrons in 49 separate school districts within Cassia County — at places like Artesian, Basin, Bridge, Cotterel, Hazel, Moulton and Stanrod — went against the grain and voted to consolidate into a single countywide district.

In so doing, they created a school system the whole community can be proud of.

And equally important, one which it could afford.

Among its greatest achievements of the Cassia County School District has been balancing the diverse demands of a school population of 5,300 students spread over 2,577 square miles. When a school in Oakley, for example, needs a new roof, that’s not always an easy sell to taxpayers in Malta.

And yet year after year, Cassia patrons have approved supplemental levies to give students countywide the very best education available.

Now the district is asking for a lot more — $41.5 million — to upgrade schools and to build new ones.

That’s a tall order in a tough economy, but we believe Cassia patrons should embrace it.

Why? Because the expenditures the district envisions are going to be necessary sooner rather than later, and later will be more expensive.

Construction costs and interest rates are lower now than in 2008, when the district tried basically the same proposal and voters rejected it. Idaho’s Bond Levy Equalization Program will repay 17 percent of the bond, and the federal government will cover 32 percent of its interest. The district will also be eligible for at least $10 million at no interest through a state program.

The December election fell 100 votes short of the required 66.7 percent voter approval, so the School Bond decided to put the issue before patrons again on Tuesday. The federal money won’t be available after August.

Considering the cost to property taxpayers — the owner of a $100,000 home in Cassia County would pay an additional $4.05 a month if the bond issue passes — taxpayers should jump at the chance.

ABOUT THE CASSIA BOND ISSUE

The bond issue proposal would provide for:

MALTA

- A new Raft River Junior/Senior High School.
- A new agricultural science building with classroom and lab facilities.
- A new heating and cooling system in the auditorium/library portion of the existing Raft River High.
- Maintenance of the high school gymnasium for school and community needs.

OAKLEY

- Six new junior high classrooms, a computer lab and gymnasium facilities attached to Oakley High School to serve students grades 7-8.
- Remodeled agricultural science classroom and an expanded lab.
- Remodeled music room.

ALBION

- Conversion of heating system from coal.
- Upgraded ventilation system to improve comfort and efficiency.
- Installation of energy efficient windows.

DECLO

- New elementary classrooms added on to the fourth-fifth grade building and the food service/multipurpose building.
- Renovation of 1950s portion of Declo Middle School and remodeling of gymnasium to improve student learning, safety and energy efficiency.
- A limited seating auxiliary gym attached to the west side of the main gym at Declo High. This second gym will allow for additional scheduling.

BURLEY

- Five new classrooms and a science laboratory at Burley High School.
- A new computer lab at Burley Junior High using an existing classroom to provide additional instruction as well as electronic testing.

- Two new elementary schools for 550-600 students each to address current and anticipated needs. Mountain View will no longer be used as an elementary school.
- The combined student population of Dworshak Mountain View elementary schools and White Pine Intermediate School (about 2,000 students) will be divided among the reconfigured K-6 Dworshak, White Pine and two new elementary schools (about 500 students each).
- At Dworshak, an off-street student drop-off area for increased student safety and better traffic flow.
- Upgrade heating and ventilation system at Dworshak.
- An off-street student drop-off area on the east side of White Pine Intermediate School.
- Conversion of about half of Mountain View Elementary to Cassia Alternative High School. The remodeled classrooms will meet student needs, including physical education and food service.
- Conversion of the other part of Mountain View to school district central offices, including offices for the superintendent and other staff, a trustee boardroom and training facilities. Total cost: $1.1 million.
- Use of the current Cassia County School District central office by special services staff.
- An additional bay on the north side of the Cassia Regional Technical Center for more automotive service technology lab space.
- Expansion of professional technical classes at the tech center into the space now used by the alternative school.

Five myths about colleges, liberals

Do red-blooded, hard-working Americans pay thousands of dollars each year to send their children to college, only to have those kids turned into pot-smoking Obamacare-lovers by a pack of communist hippies? Let’s upend five popular misconceptions about the people educating the next generation.

Matthew Woessner and April Kelly-Woessner

- 1. Today’s professors are more moderate than radical professors from the 1960s.

A recent, widely reported study on the political views of U.S. college professors provides evidence that younger professors are more likely than their older colleagues to define themselves as moderates. However, more relevant than how individuals identify themselves is where they fall on specific political and social questions.

For our book, “The Still Divided Academy,” we surveyed more than 4,000 professors, students and administrators from four-year colleges throughout the United States. We compared the views of professors born after 1955, those born between 1946 and 1955, and those born before 1945. The youngest group was most liberal on key social issues, 7 percentage points more likely than the middle group and 14 percentage points more likely than the oldest group to agree with the statement “homosexuality is as acceptable a lifestyle as heterosexuality.” And the youngest group was 8 percentage points more likely than the oldest group to agree that “it is all right for a couple to live together without intending to get married.” If this trend continues as older professors retire, college faculties won’t become more moderate, but will drift toward the left.
- 2. College professors turn their students into liberals.

Prominent conservative commentators such as David Horowitz and Dennis Prager argue that by requiring students to read politically charged books, slanting their lectures and belittling right-

- wing arguments, liberal professors alter the views of impressionable undergraduates.
- While some professors do attempt to influence their students’ politics, it’s not clear that they make much of an impression. When we compared the political views of first-year college students with those of seniors, we found little evidence of systematic indoctrination. When 32 percent of first-year students and 31 percent of seniors identify themselves as Democrats, it’s safe to say that institutions of learning aren’t turning elephants into donkeys.
- 3. Tenure permits professors to espouse fringe views without consequences.

How much does tenure protect professors? When we asked professors whether they “avoid expressing a particular point of view because “they expected a negative reaction,” 31 percent reported that they “sometimes” or “frequently self-censor” to avoid a negative reaction from other faculty members. Thirty-four percent reported that they do so to avoid negative reactions from students. Though Democrats self-censor slightly more, this tendency does not vary greatly by party affiliation, nor by tenure status.
- 4. Conservative academics are ostracized on campus.

We have found little evidence that right-leaning college professors are treated poorly. In our survey, 33 percent of Republican and/or conservative faculty say they are “very satisfied” with their careers, while 24 percent of Democratic and/or liberal faculty say so. More than 90 percent of Republican professors report that, given the chance to “begin your career over again,” they would definitely or probably still become a professor. Meanwhile, fewer than 2 percent say they have been treated unfairly because of their political views.

- 5. College professors are liberal because better-educated people tilt left.

We examined the relationship between political orientation and educational ambition. Liberal and conservative students report similar levels of satisfaction with college and nearly identical grade-point averages, but conservatives are far less likely to express interest in pursuing a Ph.D. Why?

Part of the reason stems from their preferred majors. Conservative students are approximately twice as likely to major in professional fields such as accounting or hotel management that focus on immediate employment rather than advanced study. But even in the same course of study, differences emerge between conservatives and liberals. Among humanities majors, 19 percent of students on the political right expressed an interest in pursuing a Ph.D., compared with 30 percent on the left. While smart liberals are drawn to academia, smart conservatives choose other paths.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Every employee deserves opportunity to work

Regarding the Feb. 25 editorial, “Enough demonizing of Idahoans who join a union”:

Joining a union or not joining a union is the wrong debate topic. What needs to be debated in Idaho is how companies and public sector employers treat their employees. Workers trying to put food on the table and gas in the car are being treated with disrespect from certain employers and especially the public sector employers.

Some companies feel with the labor market flooded with applicants that they don’t have to value their employees. Highly successful companies treat their employees fairly and with respect. They realize that the most important tool they have is the human tool. Employees that are treated well are much more productive than disgruntled employees.

The companies now treating employees badly will find that their best employees will be leaving for other employment. Every employee in Idaho deserves a fair workplace devoid of fear. The majority of the workforce readily gives a good day’s work for their wages. When the employment market improves, employers who have treated or allowed employees to be mistreated will find a shortage instead of an overage of qualified applicants. Once a reputation is established, it takes a long time to change.

Every employee, public or private, in Idaho deserves the opportunity to come to work, give their best, get a fair salary and go home to their families with their self-worth intact. Until the legislators create some basic worker rights and instill accountability into the private and public sector employers, the current status quo will go on. Idaho is not faced with a union issue but instead a human issue.

Where will taxpayers get funds for Friedman airport?

Surprised? The $100 million shocker! Feb 21, Airport Authority says “No surprises” in construction cost estimates. For Ketchum, this is not only a surprise but a nasty one. For years, the FMAA has said that the new airport’s total cost would approximate $130 million, and that it could be funded by $50 million from FAA, $50 million from sale of Friedman property and $30mm from private investments, with no cost to taxpayers.

Now, with construction cost estimates alone of $189 million, the total bill could reach $240 million-$250 million, after adding in costs for design, environmental remediation, transportation and other soft costs. In other words, the “new” data are more than $100 million higher than our community’s assumptions, most of which would have to be carried by Blaine County residents. Where are we going to get the additional $100 million?

Adding to this challenge are two data points impacting funding. FMAA consultants now say that the land at Friedman is worth much less than $50 million. Second, the federal outlook has changed. This year’s Obama budget cuts $1 billion from FAA Airport Improvement expenditures nationwide, and it would be prudent for us to anticipate continuing austerity in future budgets. Under these circumstances, what sort of an FAA contribution can we expect toward our new airport?

In Ketchum, we are very focused on economic development. We have $2 billion of approved new development projects awaiting execution. We are working to refine economic development goals and strategies via a community wide effort. We are working with the Sun Valley Marketing Alliance to grow our visitor based economy. All of these efforts rely, directly or indirectly, on improving air service to the valley.

The information released last week makes the realization of a new airport distinctly uncertain. Our future depends upon reliable expanded air service. How are we going to get it?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Cassia schools will not close if bond fails

No, we have not paid off the last Cassia County School District bond. We still have more than five years to go.

No, the district can't maintain the current buildings and grounds with the present budget. There will be another maintenance and operations levy "needed" this spring.

Are we really going to receive more state funds due to increased enrollment? The 2009 figures were up. However, 2010 figures declined (some discrepancy between the sources). New buildings will require additional staff and maintenance people. That represents larger budgets.

Yes, we do have some education, safety and health issues that need to be addressed. Let's solve these necessary issues soon. We should strive to complete them without the burden of passing an excessive $41.5 million bond that includes our athletic and social desires.

No, our school district will not shut down if this bond fails a supermajority vote again!

Yes, we could support a bond for necessary, educational needs.

The meeting that I attended was to indoctrinate people and get them to support those that were trying to force a yes vote. Common sense ideas were not welcome.

A taxpayer with little money but some horse sense,

Anti-government people take a lot for granted

I'm disheartened by the contempt directed at the government of the United States. I am a citizen of the United States first and a citizen of Idaho second. When I place my hand over my heart and "pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all," and when I hear or sing the words of that beautiful patriotic song, America the Beautiful, in particular the words, "our liberty in law," I am reminded of the U.S. Constitution as the highest law of the land to which all citizens of this great nation are subject. And as such we are not subject to the whims or capriciousness of any one individual. Marcus Luttrell (Lone Survivor) never once said that he was fighting for the state of Texas. He continually declared his allegiance, love and loyalty to the United States of America which includes his beloved state of Texas and my beloved state of Idaho.

I believe in living within our means. Much of the national debt can be attributed to deficit spending to pay for wars recently fought in foreign lands. The citizens of America on the whole are willing to uphold our ideals and help others to overcome oppression, tyranny and injustice in order for them to enjoy self-dignity and civil liberties. I do not resent the taxes that I pay. I feel I get more from the taxes that I pay than from any other dollar that I spend. There is so much taken for granted, so many services, opportunities and privileges protection to be grateful for.

I love the United States of America and am so grateful to be a citizen of this country and to be living under constitutional law.

We can't keep cutting and expect same results

The Twin Falls School District is asking for a two-year levy that will provide our schools with much-needed revenue in order to maintain the services the district is currently providing. Statewide, education funding has been cut significantly in the past several years. The students in Twin Falls are feeling the effects of these recent budget cuts. Class sizes at the middle school are already in the upper 20s to lower 30s and they have had to complete curriculum much quicker due to a shortened calendar.

The Twin Falls School District is one of the most progressive districts in the state. In fact, despite the cuts and the necessary changes that have been made the past several years, the district is excelling. Twin Falls ACT scores are higher than both the state and national scores. Twin Falls has the highest percent of students proficient on the Idaho Reading Indicator than any of the other large districts. Between the two high schools, almost 60 courses are offered where students can earn both high school and college credits. Good things are happening in our schools. However, we can't keep cutting and expecting the same results.

This levy will ensure that our school district will be able to maintain our current programs and will allow the educators to continue to offer a world class education. Please join me in support of the March 8 levy vote.

Today's students need a new way of teaching

I strongly opposed the $7.5 million levy proposed by the Twin Falls School District. We all know it is easier to wish for more money than figure out how to effectively operate through the economie downturn. All businesses and households must adjust accordingly, but schools, along with other public entities, think their answer lies in acquiring a bigger piece of the smaller pie.

Our world is reforming itself, but education has remained virtually "the teacher in front of the classroom." Can you possibly imagine how frustrating it is for students, who have computer-speed minds, to wait for a teacher to write on the black (white) board? Their minds are trembling, "get on with it!" Students are bored? We say they are disrespectful, uninterested, even crass: No! They are just lightning speed ahead of the chalk marker. By teaching today's students the same way we taught yesterday's, we inhibit them from their tomorrows! Electronic devices have relegated memorization for tests to 20th-century skills.

Twenty-first century students have instant access to what was required to be memorized. We must redesign education into opportunities for group learning, peer teaching and collaboration instead of competition, for students to direct their own learning by following their passions, and for further production and sharing experiences through social media. Teachers who learn to utilize these new modes together with their students will become the sought-after educators of tomorrow.

More money will not transform education; in fact, it will further entrench the status quo. Humankind proves again and again that adversity seems necessary to spur our inborn creativity into beneficial change. Creating education into the joy of lifelong learning is the most beneficial change we can make for our students and for ourselves. No additional funds needed.

Otter underestimates Idaho wilderness use

BOISE (AP) — Idaho Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter greatly underestimated the number of people who visit a central Idaho wilderness when telling members of Congress how little wilderness means to residents in the state, a newspaper is reporting.

Otter spoke at a House Natural Resources Committee hearing Tuesday concerning an Obama administration plan to reverse a Bush-era policy and make millions of undeveloped acres of land eligible for federal wilderness protection.

“There are more people in one day, probably, that play golf on the floating green in Coeur d’Alene, Idaho, than visit the Frank Church-River of No Return (Wilderness) in a year,” Otter told the committee, the Idaho Statesman reports. “And that’s just a par 3.”

The newspaper reported that when Otter hosted an event at the golf course in 2010, 144 people played.

Andy MacKimmie, the resort’s head golf professional, said more can play by starting players on every hole at the same time.

“We can accommodate up to 280 golfers in a day with double shotgun starts,”

Otter

MacKimmie said.

The wilderness in 2010, based on permits, attracted 10,222 river runners on the Middle Fork of the Salmon River and another 8,769 on the Salmon River. Also, 1,229 hunters bought elk tags, and officials counted 13,000 steelhead angler days.

That adds up to more than 33,000 people who visited the wilderness, a number that doesn’t include hikers and horseback packers.

Jon Hanian, Otter’s spokesman, said Otter, a Republican, was responding to some Democrats on the committee who said wilderness can be good for tourism.

“What some failed to examine — and what the governor was trying to point out — was the diverse nature of tourism in our state and the different levels of economic impacts associated with each,” Hanian said.

Rick Johnson, executive director of the Idaho Conservation League, said most Idahoans recognize the values of wilderness and public lands.

“The governor needs to loosen his fed-bashing grip on the golf club and remember what it means to be an Idahoan,” Johnson said.

AROUND THE WEST

IDAHO Mt. Home airmen ready to deploy to Asia

BOISE — More than 400 airmen from the Mountain Home Air Force Base are getting ready to deploy to Southwest Asia.

Air Force officials said Wednesday the airmen from the base’s 366th Fighter Wing will take part on combat operations as part of Operation Enduring Freedom.

Fighter Wing Commander Col. Ron Buckley says crews from the 389th Fighter Squadron “T-Bolts” will conduct F-15 support and combat missions, as well as a variety of non-aviation roles.

Officials did not provide a specific date for the deployment.

Bill would allow concealed guns on campuses

BOISE — A state lawmaker is pushing a bill that would allow students, faculty and staff to legally carry concealed weapons on university campuses — except in undergraduate residence halls.

Republican Rep. Erik Simpson’s bill was introduced in the House State Affairs Committee on Thursday.

It seeks to limit the ability of administrators at Idaho’s four public universities to restrict concealed weapons on campus. It preserves, however, the ability to keep concealed weapons out of dormitories.

Existing statutes give administrators authority to prohibit firearms anywhere on campus.

Simpson says the bill would increase safety by allowing armed, law abiding students or teachers to step in and help prevent violent crimes.

The legislation comes weeks after a law student sued the University of Idaho over rules preventing him from storing firearms in his on-campus apartment.

Man charged in student’s crosswalk death

MIDDLETON — An 89-year-old Caldwell man has been charged with misdemeanor vehicular manslaughter in the death of a 15-year-old Middleton High School student who was struck by a pickup while walking to school.

KBOI-TV reports the Idaho State Police cited Harold Sharpe in mid-February. His trial is set for May 4.

Police say Sharpe was eastbound on Highway 44 on Sept. 10 when his pickup struck Colton Mackey, who was in a crosswalk. Mackey died early the next day.

At the time, police said the rising sun could have affected the driver’s vision.

UTAH Federal jury convicts environmentalist

SALT LAKE CITY — An environmentalist has been convicted of making $1.8 million in false oil and gas drilling bids at a federal auction in a case that became a cause celebre among activists and Hollywood stars.

Authorities say 29-year-old Tim DeChristopher made the bids to run up the price of 13 oil-and-gas leases near Utah’s Arches and Canyonlands national parks but lacked the ability to pay.

A federal jury reached its verdict Thursday, finding DeChristopher guilty of two felony counts of interfering with and making false representations at a government auction.

He could face as many as 10 years in prison and a fine of $750,000.

A University of Utah economics student at the time, he offered to cover the bill with an Internet fundraising campaign, but the government refused to accept any of the money.

NEVADA Saturday fundraiser tries to save state fair

RENO — Nevadans couldn’t have known at the time, but last year’s state fair may have been their last.

Fair officials facing a big budget shortfall and a financing deadline next week have organized a last-ditch fundraiser in Sparks on Saturday to try to keep the fair from folding up its tent for the first time in 136 years.

“This is it, the last hoorah for the Nevada state fair,” said Rich Crombie, the event’s executive director. He hopes a big turnout will spur local businesses to contribute toward the $250,000 needed to keep the fair alive.

If not, Nevada will join Michigan as the only states without fairs. Facing similar economic woes, Michigan ended its 160-year-old event last year.

Unemployment benefit claims near 3-year low

By Jeannine Aversa
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The job market suddenly looks brighter.

The number of people filing for unemployment benefits sank last week to its lowest point in nearly three years, and retailers and other service companies posted strong results Thursday for last month.

On the eve of the government's February jobs report, the news suggests the economy may be about to take off despite growing concerns about inflation.

The stock market had its best day in three months. The Dow Jones industrial average rose more than 190 points, or 1.6 percent, erasing most of its losses since the unrest in Libya began.

And some analysts raised their forecasts for how many jobs the economy created last month. The consensus is 175,000, but many economists are now estimating 200,000 or more, and they expect the pace to hold for the rest of the year.

That would almost certainly bring the unemployment rate, now 9 percent, down steadily.

"This is a good harbinger of a healthier job market to come," said economist Sung Won Sohn at California State University.

Applications for unemployment benefits fell by 20,000 to 368,000, the Labor Department said, the third decline in four weeks and the lowest level since May 2008. The figures are adjusted to account for seasonal differences.

The four-week average, which smooths out volatility to give a broader perspective, fell below 400,000 for the first time since July 2008.

When unemployment claims remain consistently below 375,000, that tends to signal steady declines in the unemployment rate. The figure peaked at 651,000 during the recession.

"The evidence is just stacking up that the labor market is picking up decisively," said economist Jim O'Sullivan at MF Global.

And the U.S. service sector, which employs about 90 percent of American workers in fields from health care to construction, is expanding at the fastest pace in more than five years, according to the Institute for Supply Management.

Productivity did rise in the final three months of last year. When workers are producing at a higher level, it makes it easier for businesses to hold off on hiring.

And there's a big wild card for the economy — rising prices. Food around the world is at its most expensive in 20 years, and gas prices have been rising for weeks, with the average for a gallon nearing $3.50.

A few economists are expecting the government to report that employers added 300,000 jobs last month, although that's on the high end of forecasts.

January's figures were anemic — just 36,000 jobs added — partly because of severe winter storms that kept businesses closed. As much as a quarter of February's job gains could come from people returning to payrolls after the bad weather.

But most people pay more attention to the unemployment rate, which fell from 9.8 percent in November to 9 percent in January, the quickest decline in more than half a century.

Few takers for microloans

BLAIR KOCH/Times-News

Brent Jussel, chief lending officer for Region IV Development, addresses the organization's meeting Thursday at the College of Southern Idaho in Twin Falls.

Lack of interest baffles officials at Region IV Development

By Blair Koch
Times-News writer

AT A GLANCE

What is Region IV Development?
The organization is a private, not-for-profit corporation established to encourage economic development and diversification in south-central Idaho.

With traditional lending options dried up, Region IV Development thought its microloan product would be a big hit.

Just two businesses have applied for loans — neither qualified — since the funding became available late last year.

All of the $100,000 awarded to Region IV through a USDA grant remains available for lending, said Brent Jussel, Region IV Development chief lending officer, during the organization's quarterly board meeting Thursday.

"We really thought after announcing the loan opportunities that the money would go pretty quickly," Jussel told the Times-News. "But virtually no interest has even been shown."

While USDA hasn't indicated pulling the money back, Jussel said it makes sense that if the program isn't successful the money could be used elsewhere.

In line with Region IV's focus on economic development throughout southern Idaho, the loans are geared at helping small businesses grow.

"The money can be used for start up capital, equipment purchases, supplies — things like that. The maximum amount someone can get is $20,000 but the loan is a great opportunity for someone needing $4,000 or $5,000. Plus, interest rates continue to be low so repayment is affordable."

Jussel also reported the organization has over $536,000 in revolving loan funds and nearly $53,000 available in its Intermediate Relending Program.

While the economy regains momentum, Jussel expects more businesses to inquire about funding opportunities.

Lending may be slower than in the past, but one service provided by the entity is booming: grant writing.

Big Tobacco fires back on feds' ad changes

By Michael Felberbaum
Associated Press writer

RICHMOND — The nation's largest cigarette manufacturers on Thursday said the Justice Department's proposed corrective statements about smoking's dangers are inflammatory and inaccurate and violate guidelines set by the court overseeing the lawsuit.

The tobacco companies, including Philip Morris USA, maker of top-selling Marlboro cigarettes, also asked a federal appeals court to toss out the 12-year-old lawsuit, saying the Food and Drug Administration's authority over the industry makes the court's involvement unnecessary.

Last week, the Justice Department released 14 "corrective statements" that it says the companies should be required to make as part of the lawsuit. It wants the companies to admit that they lied to the public and would force the industry to pay for an advertising campaign of self-criticism.

But the companies said the proposed statements don't meet the court's requirements that the statements be "purely factual and uncontroversial." They also said the proposed statements are "plainly designed solely to shame and humiliate" the companies.

The Justice Department declined to comment.

The government's proposed statements cover nicotine's addictiveness, lack of health benefits from "low tar," "ultra-light" and "mild" cigarettes and negative health effects of second-hand smoke. The proposed statements are labeled "Paid for" by the name of the cigarette manufacturer "under order of a federal district court."

One of the government's statement says: "A federal court is requiring tobacco companies to tell the truth about cigarette smoking. Here's the truth: ... Smoking kills 1,200 Americans. Every day."

Another of the government's proposed statements begins: "We falsely marketed low tar and light cigarettes as less harmful than regular cigarettes to keep people smoking and sustain our profits."

In 2006, the judge in the case, Gladys Kessler, ruled that the tobacco industry had concealed the dangers of smoking for decades. The proposed statements by the companies would be the remedy for that violation.

Kessler has said she wants the industry to pay for ads, both broadcast and print, but she has not made a final decision on what the statements will say, where they must be placed or for how long.

The companies have escaped from having to pay the hundreds of billions of dollars that the government has sought to collect from them. Lower courts have said the government is not entitled to collect $280 billion in past profits or $14 billion for a national campaign to curb smoking.

Still, the companies argued Thursday that the FDA's authority to regulate the industry should eliminate the court's involvement and the corrective statements.

The new political disorder: We win. You're finished.

The events unfolding in the Arab world over the past month offer some hope that democracy, freedom and the rule of law may finally be taking root in the sandy political soil of that part of the world.

The irony is that, just as these countries are becoming more like us, we are becoming more like them, embracing the kind of winner-take-all political struggles associated more with Sunnis and Shiites than Republicans and Democrats.

Steven Pearlstein

It wasn't so long ago that a change in political power in the United States may have signaled a modest shift in policy direction within the context of a broad political consensus and stable set of laws and institutions. But today, many of those who win elections believe they have both the right and the obligation to revisit all the controversies of the recent past, toss out anything they don't like and stick it to the losers in ways that help ensure they will never regain power again.

The latest manifestations of this histrionic political disorder can be found in the Republican caucus of the U.S. House of Representatives and among some of the newly elected Republican governors, who aim to use a serious budget crisis as a pretext for driving a stake through the heart of government, the labor movement and the "enemy" party. It's not just the Republicans, however — this tribalism afflicts both parties and has been getting worse for decades.

You can see it not just in legislative battles, but increasingly in the federal appeals courts, where judges divide into predictable voting blocs on controversial cases, and court majorities think nothing

Region IV Development's board of directors decided against allowing staff to choose which project applications should be submitted.

Grant Writer Jeff McCurdy said he didn't want to be put in a position to choose which projects should apply for the grants, because they are all worthy.

The board unanimously voted not to change its grant-writing procedures.

of throwing out long-held precedents to reach preferred political outcomes. In the wake of cases such as Bush vs. Gore and Citizens United, even justices of the Supreme Court are viewed as nothing more than political hacks.

The disease has spread to what were once considered fiercely independent, highly professional regulatory agencies such as the Federal Communications Commission and the Securities and Exchange Commission. Leading the way has been the National Labor Relations Board, which is charged with overseeing collective bargaining in the private sector and like many independent agencies is structured to give a one-seat majority to the party of the president in power.

In recent decades, the NLRB has decided that graduate teaching assistants at universities don't have a right to unionize, then do have them, and now don't have them.

It has ruled that nonunion employees do not have the right to have a co-worker at disciplinary hearings, do have that right and, most recently, do not have it.

It has made it easier and harder and easier and harder again for temporary workers to organize. And late last year, a new Democratic majority on the board indicated its interest in overturning a Bush-era ruling allowing some workers to challenge a card-check certification agreed to by a company and majority of its workers.

To most of us, these decisions seem rather narrow and technical. But in the furtive imaginations of labor lawyers, union organizers and business lobbyists, they are the first steps on the slippery slope toward either the end of capitalism or the extinction of the middle class. Whichever the case, they are the occasion for whipping up the troops for a holy crusade.

At the NLRB, the polite phrase for all this flip-flopping is "policy oscillation," and academics, labor lawyers and even members of the board itself have complained about it for years. But since neither side is ever willing to forgo the opportunity of undoing the "wrongs" of the past administration, it never gets fixed.

Lyle F. Craven

May 9, 1945–Feb. 28, 2011

POCATELLO — Lyle F. Craven, 65, passed away peacefully Monday, Feb. 28, 2011, at a Pocatello hospital surrounded by his loving family.

Lyle was born May 9, 1945, in Rupert, Idaho, to Leon and Ila (Watson) Craven. Lyle was raised in Rupert and went to grade school and graduated from Minidoka High School. His father owned the local bowling alley, so he naturally became an avid bowler who managed to carry more than a 200 average. His father also owned the grocery store. He worked with his dad at the grocery store and eventually was cutting the meat there. Lyle enjoyed to swim as a young man and worked as a lifeguard. He later attended ISU.

Lyle married Mickey Annis; to this union they had one daughter, Audrey Moodie. They were later divorced. Lyle was introduced to Pat Bell by one of her friends. Lyle asked her to marry him on March 15, 1969 on his payday. Lyle was really in love with Pat's two children, Jeff and Patti, who lovingly brought their mother along.

Lyle worked at Kraft Foods for several years and then went worked road construction for the 370 Operating Engineers and was a member for more than 30 years. He also taught guitar lessons at Fawson Music for many years. He had students that came from all over. He had a collection of guitars and a banjo, which he taught himself to play. He sat in with his friends to jam and played in several establishments. He was an avid musician that could play nearly any instrument by ear.

Lyle was an avid fisherman, and he loved ice fishing. He loved fishing with his brother-in-law, DeVerl Evans; close friend, Lloyd Cook; son-in-law, Brent Richmond; and daughter, Patti. He also enjoyed bird hunting. Lyle loved to work with wood and, to his credit, he made wooden puzzles and built two grandfather clocks, one for his mom and the other for his wife. He also did an excellent job building onto his home.

Lyle fought a valiant battle with multiple myeloma for well over a year. He was scheduled for a bone marrow transplant in Salt Lake City and was all prepared to go through with it when the cancer came back very aggressively. He was so brave and still fought on even though his body was failing.

Lyle is survived by his wife, Pat of 41 years; a son, Jeff Bell of Olympia, Wash.; daughters, Patti (Brent) Richmond of Pocatello; and Audrey Moodie of Pierre, S.D.; 13 grandsons, two great-grandsons (with one more on the way), and three great-granddaughters. He adored his grandchildren and great-grandchildren, and they adored him. He is also survived by a brother, Noel Craven of California; sister, Deon (Richard) Fassett of Rupert; brother-in-law and best friend, DeVerl Evans; sister-in-law, Jennie Evans; brother-in-law, Roy (Shannon) Corson. Lyle was preceded in death by his parents, Leon and Ila Craven.

Lyle had two nephews that helped him immensely, Verl De Evans and Alan Corson; they were there for him at all times. His family offers their many thanks to Darold and Darlene Schumacher for getting Lyle and Pat's trailer home from Salt Lake City and for simply being such wonderful friends. Also, thank you Dave and Gayle Allen for being such true friends. There is not space enough to thank his many caring friends Lee, Morgan, Jeff and Rick; thank you all so much for your support.

To Dr. Pierson, Dr. Francisco, Dr. Ririe, Dana, Cris and Mary, I thank you all for your kindness and help. Dr. Pierson; we know you did your very best.

Goodnight my love, now you are with your Mom and Dad. I know you are happy and so are they. We love you and always will. Good night from Margy Lou!

Funeral services for Lyle will be held at 11 a.m. on Saturday, March 5, 2011, at Wilks Funeral Home, 211 W. Chubbuck Road. A viewing will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. on Friday evening at Wilks Funeral Home and one hour prior to the services on Saturday. Interment will follow services on Saturday at Mountain View Cemetery.

Ina Krahn

March 19, 1911–Feb. 28, 2011

FAIRFIELD — Ina Krahn went to be with her Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ, and to stand in the presence of God on Monday, Feb. 28, 2011, at the age of 99 and 11/12 years.

She is also reunited with her husband, Eddie; daughters, Darla and Diana; parents, Ida and Dallas Baldwin; brother, Lon Baldwin; sister, Cletis Etter; granddaughter, Gabriella; and many friends and loved ones. She was married for 57 years and widowed for 23 years. Ina remembered the Blackfoot Indians who came to harvest yampus and camas annually. They were always friendly. The Indians were invited by her father to place their teepees near his ranch house and share the artesian water as the women dug the roots.

When Ina was 16 years old, she turned her life over to Christ and tried to be obedient and a witness to Him throughout her life. She and her husband were charter members of the Fairfield Community Church. She taught Sunday school for many years. Ina had a special love and concern for children and “mothered” many.

Ina was also on the Camas County School Board for one term. She was always a great cook and, as her children left home, she started making wedding cakes which became more and more elaborate. Ina decorated more than 90 cakes, making the last one just a few years ago. For the past 25 years she was known for the exquisitely decorated valentines that she made. She finished the last of 30 just before being admitted to the hospital.

One week before her death, Ina told her family that she might be spending her birthday in heaven and she was prepared. During the final time in the hospital and hospice care at home, there were many opportunities to pray and share expressions of love and appreciation; tell jokes and stories and enjoy reminiscing with family and friends. In the final moments, Ina was listening to the “23rd Psalm.”

The family wishes to express appreciation to all who shared prayers, time and pictures with Ina in the hospital and at home.

A private family graveside service will take place at the Elmwood Cemetery in Gooding. A viewing for family members and friends will be held from 4 to 7 p.m. Monday, March 7, at Demaray Funeral Service Gooding Chapel. A remembrance of Ina will be held from 2 to 5 p.m. Saturday, March 19, at the Camas County High School Gym in Fairfield.

In lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to the Fairfield Community Church or Boise Rescue Mission.

Condolences may be shared with the family by visiting the obituary link at www.demarayfuneralservice.com.

Doris Ada Palmberg

Aug. 11, 1920–Feb. 28, 2011

RUPERT — Doris Ada Palmberg passed away Monday, Feb. 28, 2011, at Country Side Care and Rehabilitation in Rupert, Idaho.

Doris was born Aug. 11, 1920, in Lincoln, N.H., to Harry and Margaret Dearborn. In 1940, she married Lloyd Dean and in 1951, gave birth to a beautiful baby boy and named him Dennis. She was married once more in 1959 to Joe Palmberg. Doris has lived in several different places living most of her life in Southern California, then moving to Oregon. She lived in Oregon for three decades before moving closer to her son in Idaho, but she always held the Oregon Coast most dear and loved living there the most, which is why she left southern Idaho in 2004 and moved back to her beloved Lincoln City, Ore. Along with her love for the Oregon Coast, she always loved gardening, knitting, crocheting and sewing blankets and pillows for her son and grandsons.

Doris is survived by her son, Dennis Dean; her three grandsons and spouses, Michael (Alissa) Dean of Burley, Idaho, Gregory (Melissa) Dean of Kuna, Idaho, and Jeffrey Dean of Moscow, Idaho. She was preceded in death by her brother, Orville Dearborn; her husbands, Lloyd Dean and Joe Palmberg; and her daughter-in-law, Sheryl Dean.

There will be a small service held in Heyburn, Idaho, for Doris's family members. The family would like to thank Country Side Care and Rehabilitation, Dr. Jeffrey Swenson and Dr. Lane Hansen for the care that she received while still with us.

SECRET REVISITED

‘There’s a charm in this garden’ takes new meaning for Dilettantes

By Erica Littlefield
Times-News correspondent

You could say that theater runs in the family.

In 1999, Dilettante Group of Magic Valley produced “The Secret Garden,” a musical based on Frances Hodgson Burnett’s classic children’s book. During the course of the show, several couples in the cast had babies or were pregnant. A dozen years later, Dilettantes are doing “The Secret Garden” again, and some of those children and their parents are back for the new show.

“It’s fun for this to come full circle,” said Lori Henson, director of both the original production and the current one.

The play, opening Thursday in Twin Falls, tells the story of the girl Mary Lennox, sent to England to live with relatives she’s never met after her parents die in a cholera outbreak in India. The musical features lyrics by Marsha Norman and music by Lucy Simon.

After Serena Clark was cast as Mary’s aunt Lily in the Dilettantes’ 1999 production, she learned she was pregnant with her first child. She took Henson out to lunch to break the news.

“I told her I had some really good news for her as my friend, and some bad news for her as my director,” Clark said.

Henson and Clark agreed that Clark should stay, and she made it through rehearsals and performances without many problems. One difficulty, especially as the fetus grew, was breath support for singing. By the time the curtain opened, Clark was five months pregnant with Katie.

This month, Clark is playing Lily again, and Katie is playing Mary.

“Doing a show with your kiddo is pretty special,” Serena Clark said. “We get to spend more time together.”

Katie loves the original book, and when she learned of the Dilettantes’ auditions, she knew she wanted to play Mary.

“I like how she transforms from a horrible, hideous girl into a very nice, caring girl,” Katie Clark said.

Along with the Clarks, several other couples involved with the original show had children during the production. With all those pregnancies, one of the lines from the show — “There’s a charm in this garden” — became an inside joke with the cast.

Dusty Blackburn played Dickon in the first show, and he and his ex-wife, Jennifer, had daughter Delanie Rose during the production. Blackburn is back for the

Research pays off for Oscar contest winner

By Ariel Hansen
Times-News writer

She’s good enough to pick the Oscars with her eyes closed.

Dawn Jones didn’t watch many movies in the theater in the past year — not even any of the Academy Award nominees for Best Picture.

“With the economy being this bad, I don’t go to the movies as much as I used to,” the Twin Falls woman said. In 2010, she saw about two movies a month in the theater and about two a week at home via Netflix and RedBox.

But when the Academy Award nominees were announced, and the Times-News once again asked for entries in its annual Oscar-guessing contest, Jones was ready.

Ready enough to win by correctly predicting 12 Academy Award winners among the 13 categories in the newspaper’s contest.

“I use my sister a lot; she goes to all the major movies. I read what all the different critics and things say,” Jones said. After filling out Times-News ballots for about 20 years — and winning seven times, including a tie in 2009 — Jones had also learned that the critics aren’t always right. “The ones I did trust this year were wrong on three of them; I went off on my own. By doing it for a while, you get this feeling.”

Despite critics’ best guesses, she was right about Best Supporting Actress. Rather than

THE ENVELOPE, PLEASE

The Times-News’ annual Oscar-guessing contest carried a prize this year of a $25 gift certificate to Ticketmaster, for which 109 entrants vied. In a four-way tie for second place, with 11 of 13 answers correct, were Joshua Spooner, James Tucker and Sam Kessler of Twin Falls, and Tyler Lassen of Filer.

Jerome schools’ fine arts evening promotes supplemental levy voting

By Sky Buffat
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — The last bell has long since rung at Jerome High School. Yet, still there are students and teachers, piano music and singing voices, stage lights and commotion behind the curtain.

Students of the choir, band, drama and art programs are busily preparing for “An Evening of Fine Arts,” a combined production planned for Tuesday.

The teens are thinking about their songs or skits or costumes. The teachers are thinking about, well, money.

Jerome High has put on the evening event for the past five years to show off the school’s award-winning fine arts programs — and to rally voters for the school’s supplemental levy. Generally, the public can enjoy the arts and then quickly step in to vote. But this year, Jerome High is no longer a levy voting site.

“The thing about a supplemental levy is that it’s not very supplemental anymore,” band teacher Gordon Smith said. “That money is actually necessary for us to operate at a functional level.”

Smith said Jerome High has been able to retain its fine arts programs largely because they are successful, while some schools across Magic Valley have lost such programs.

“All teachers are scared right new show, this time playing Archibald Craven.

Craig Nebeker played Dr. Neville Craven in the 1999 production, while his wife, Katrina, was pregnant with their daughter Sarah. Sarah is in the children's ensemble this year, and Nebeker plays Albert, Mary's father.

"It's pretty special," Nebeker said. "You don't hear about something like this happening too often."

Henson has another reason to like the new production of "The Secret Garden." Henson broke her leg early in the first show's rehearsal process, then directed from a wheelchair. She's glad to revisit the beautiful music.

The last lines of the show are the most powerful, she said, and are still her favorite part.

"If there's a dry eye in the house, then we haven't done our job," Henson said.

now," Smith said. "But those of us not teaching core tested classes see the writing on the wall. We exist by the grace of the community."

The zeal of these teachers is written on their students.

"Lots of these students are in this music room more often than they're at home," Smith said. "They really do feel comfortable here."

"I go home to eat occasionally," sophomore Andrea Moreno said, laughing. "We are here so late all the time, but it's lots of fun."

"This is my second home," freshman Nick Fernandez said. "Most of us in band call it that." Fernandez is one of many students who will participate in multiple facets of the "Evening of Fine Arts," switching Individual performances start at 4 p.m. and continue until 5:15 p.m. in several classrooms. At 5:30 p.m., the Grand Concert begins in the Jerome High auditorium. Performances are also planned at the middle school, which is a voting site for Tuesday's supplemental levy vote.

choosing 14-year-old "True Grit" star Hailee Steinfeld, she went for 50-year-old Melissa Leo, who earned her nod for "The Fighter."

Jones thought that the voting members of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, who tend to be older than the average moviegoer, might want to reward Leo's body of work as well as that specific performance. "The academy's an older demographic, they usually go with something more traditional," she said, noting that's also why she opted for "The King's Speech" for Best Picture over the heavily lauded "The Social Network."

Of the 13 categories in the Times-News' contest, Jones guessed wrong on only cinematography — which went to "Inception" rather than Jones' prediction, "True Grit."

Pretty good for someone who hadn't watched any Best Picture nominees. Jones said she'll probably end up seeing most of them. She especially looks forward to "The King's Speech," because she adores period dramas.

"I love movies, but I'm very particular about my movies," she said. She doesn't plan to see "Black Swan" because her sister told her it was dark and intense. "I go to the movies to be entertained; if it's real depressing I stay away."

And especially entertaining, she said, is the Oscar awards show — particularly when she has a contest entry on the line.

"My husband gets a kick out of me, because I take it so serious," Jones said, describing how she marks off her ballot as each winner is announced during the telecast.

And, like the performers and artists during their on-stage acceptance speeches, Jones is quick to give credit to others — not just her sister and the critics she reads, but also Lady Luck.

"It's always, I can't believe it, because a lot of it was luck," she said.

Spotlight on performers

Which contenders get your vote?

Times-News

Armed with a year's worth of show programs and notes, amateur arts critics are debating the merits of Magic Valley's stage performers.

A slate of nominees for the third annual Curtain Call Awards emerged this week. And your votes — if you pay to join the Curtain Call Awards Association — can help determine who walks the red carpet this spring.

The awards both honor the best in local theater and eventually will support a scholarship fund. Red carpet night is March 15.

Who chose the contenders? Curtain Call Awards — a division of the Twin Falls-based nonprofit Danny Marona Performing Arts Scholarship Fund — takes nominations from its association members, administrator Diane Stevens said.

What shows were eligible? Local arts organizations, performing groups and venues can join Curtain Call's league — that's yet another group — for free. So far, 22 have done so, including high school drama and music departments, arts councils, theater troupes and private arts schools. League members' productions are eligible for nominations.

Who gets to vote? Only paid members of Curtain Call's association may vote; anyone may join. One vote per member per year, in each category on the slate of nominees. That'll cost you $10 for one year. Become a member and print a full ballot at curtaincallawards.com. Votes must be postmarked by March 9.

When do we learn the winners? The Curtain Call Awards Gala will be 6:30 p.m. March 15 at the Turf Club in Twin Falls. Admission is $10 and includes hors d'oeuvres; expect a no-host bar.

The events calls for an air of elegance. "Think red carpet, spiffy suits and lovely gowns," Stevens said. "It is a very special night."

Worried about the future of fine arts in public schools? So are some folks in Jerome.

Jerome schools' Evening of Fine Arts — where you can wander between instrumental, vocal and drama performances and past hallway art displays — is cleverly set for Tuesday to draw voters to their supplemental levy election.

Other high schools, too, are showing off their arts programs this week, with Burley High's Bel Canto Choir performing dinner shows today and Saturday, and drama departments in Buhl and Declo raising the curtain. Wood River High's orchestra will accompany New York-based acoustic string quartet Sweet Plantain for tonight's concert in Sun Valley. It sounds like a hot one: Latin, classical and jazz, with a repertoire rooted in improv.

Young artists are active outside of the classroom, too: The students of Magic Valley Youth Orchestra will play their winter concert on Saturday. And in Hailey that day, community arts groups are offering a free Children's Arts Festival with a lively lineup of creative fun.

The rest of this week's entertainment lineup is particularly family-friendly, too.

On Sunday, you can put the kids and dogs in costume for silly ski races at Sun Valley's Paw n' Pole fundraiser. On Monday in Burley, free admission makes the Mount Harrison Heritage Foundation Gala performances attractive. And on Thursday, the Dilettantes open their production of "The Secret Garden," a musical that puts some parents and their kids on stage together.

A free evening of whimsical music

Times-News

KETCHUM — According to Webster, a "quodlibet" is a philosophical or theological point proposed for disputation. In music, it's a whimsical combination of familiar melodies.

Wood River Community Orchestra will illustrate and quote quodlibets in music, literature and art during a free evening of musical, talks, snacks and drinks at 6 p.m. Wednesday at The Community Library in Ketchum.

"In particular, we will quite quickly but carefully discuss and perform the quizzically quaint quodlibet 'Galamathias Musicum,' quilled at the age of 10 by Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, with some help from his father Leopold," said orchestra conductor A.C. Lewis.

The evening will also feature quodlibets by J.S. Bach, Glenn Gould, the Grateful Dead and The Beatles, he added.

The evening is part of the community orchestra's charge to reintroduce music as it was before the time of recording and TV, Lewis said. Then, people sat around playing music and enjoying parlor games.

Enjoy high-class culinary adventure in a literary setting

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — A Sun Valley pastry chef is preparing a lavender lemon pound cake with flambeed fruit to serve up in the Regional History Library. And bartenders are concocting Papa Diablo — a cocktail favored by Ernest Hemingway — to pour at the fireplace.

The occasion: The Community Library's Moveable Feast.

On March 13, the bookshelves will be shoved aside and the library made over into a feast for the eye and the stomach as the library holds its popular fundraising event.

Rooms will be decorated to mirror five books having something to do with food. The dessert room, for instance, is modeled on "I Was Told There'd Be Cake!" The children's library is patterned after Gael Greene's "Insatiable." The audiovisual room will be made over in cartoon fashion inspired by "How's the Squid?" And the reference room and lecture room will be transformed into Anthony Bourdain's "Kitchen Confidential" and Alan Richman's "Fork It Over."

"Last year's theme was food mysteries. This year's: culinary comedy," said Tom Jewell, the library's development and volunteer coordinator.

This year's Moveable Feast will be 5:30-8:30 p.m. March 13 at the library, 415 Spruce St. in Ketchum.

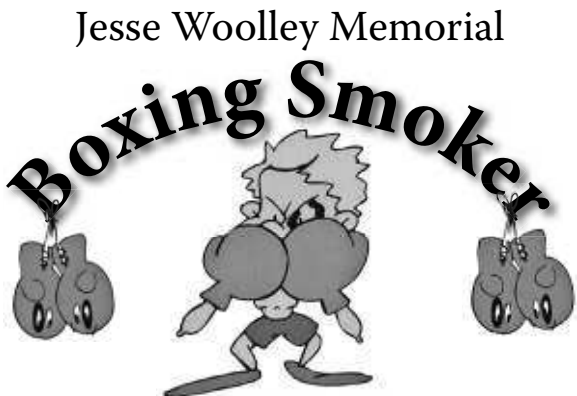

Guests can move from room to room enjoying nibbles prepared by the Wood River Valley's finest restaurants and caterers, imbibing in wine, beer and other cocktails and taking in some low-key entertainment.

A silent auction will feature such items as a week in Provence, a condo in Buenos Aires, a London flat, a Mexican Riviera vacation home and even a cabin in Idaho's Copper Basin. Of special interest this year are catered dinners in some of the valley's glamorous homes, including an Ayurvedic cooking lesson and dinner, an authentic Indian dinner and Moroccan dinner, and a cooking lesson and dinner from Ketchum Grill.

"I love this event because it incorporates the whole community. And the people partaking in it come from all over," said Leslie Silva, who heads up the dessert room that will feature the work of truffle maker Carolina Gomez and other Sun Valley Resort chefs. "It's a nice low-key fundraiser for everyone, and it's so popular we have to turn volunteers away."

Get silly on your skis this weekend

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

SUN VALLEY — One of Ketchum resident Lila Wagner’s cherished moments is watching a wiener dog underneath a covered wagon canvas toting a sign that made it out to be Purina Dog Chow Wagon.

“It was the cutest thing,” she said.

It could happen again this Sunday as the 26th Annual Paw n’ Pole bellies up to the Western theme of “A Howlin’ Hoedown.”

The event, a low-key fundraiser for Animal Shelter of the Wood River Valley, attracts dog owners and their dogs dressed in costume. Owners can participate in ski and snowshoe races with their dogs, vie for prizes in a Silly Pet Tricks contest and enjoy a barbecue.

“This is my favorite local event because everybody’s a winner,” said Ketchum resident Doran Key, who traveled from northern Idaho to participate in the event one year when she was living outside the Wood River Valley. “The people and the dogs — they all just have such a good time.”

The event starts at 10 a.m. at the Sun Valley Gun Club on Sun Valley Road. Race entries are $5 per child, $10 per adult and $20 per family. Each racer will get a barbecue lunch and raffle ticket good for a grand prize of a North Valley Trails ski pass.

Don’t have a dog? No worry. The animal shelter will have some on hand for people to borrow.

Information: 788-4351.

More fun on skis

Another cabin fever reliever going on this weekend is the Sawtooth Ski Festival, held Saturday and Sunday near Stanley.

A ski and snowshoe poker run will start at 11 a.m. Saturday on the Park Creek ski trails seven miles west of Stanley on Idaho Highway 21. The person who collects the best poker hand by picking up cards at stops along the trail will walk away on a new pair of snowshoes.

There will be a chili feed from noon to 2 p.m. at the ski area.

The fun continues with a dinner and silent auction from 5:30 to 8:30 that night at the Community Hall in Stanley, plus live music for dancing.

Come Sunday, Stanley resident Karen Keiski will roll out her Soup Kitchen Social on the ski trails around Alturas Lake, 20 miles south of Stanley, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Keiski, who used to cook up cream of trout soup and dill bread at the old Busterback Ranch near Stanley, will serve up a couple of kinds of soup, foccacia, cookie bars, wine, beer and more for a donation.

The weekend’s events help fund the grooming of the ski trails, which are available to ski by donation, said Dave Keiski, the trails’ head groomer. Donations collected during past ski festivals helped install a new bridge at the Alturas Lake trails this year.

“The old bridge wouldn’t have lasted another year,” he said.

BURLEY — Sighing over “Help Pour Out the Rain” or “Sweet Southern Comfort” on the radio? Country-western singer Buddy Jewell will bring his most popular hits to Burley’s King Fine Arts Center on March 12 for the Mini-Cassia Community Concerts series.

This rising star has packed audiences from coast to coast with original, feel-good songs. Kat Kountry Radio (106.1) program director Scotty Cameron said his country-western station gets requests for Jewell’s songs all the time.

“What’s more, he writes a ton of songs, and other artists record them as well,” Cameron said. “That doesn’t get a lot of notice, but it’s important.”

He has seen Jewell in concert and likes the way the musician interacts with his audience.

Arnie Hansen, a Community Concerts board member, said he didn’t let his wife influence his decision on Jewell’s concert.

“She thinks he’s good-looking, but I leaned toward him because we know a big percentage of our members like country-western performers,” he said with a chuckle. “Plus, country-western appears to be more family-oriented than some other genres. I’ve watched his videos, and he just has tremendous stage presence.”

Jewell, however, is self-effacing.

“I shoot for an intimate kind of atmosphere,” he said in a telephone interview. “I hope folks feel like I’m in their living room singing to them.”

He moved his family to Nashville in 1993, and in 2003 auditioned for the first Nashville Star program and walked off with the top award. His debut album, “Buddy Jewell,” went gold, and two of the songs were in the top-five hits.

His latest hit is “Someone Who

Strong second quarter leads Minico past Rigby

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

BOISE — The T-shirt Casey Christiansen wears underneath his basketball jersey isn't coincidental. It's a shirt he picked up two years ago in Boise with the Minico baseball team. Printed on the back: State Champs. "Once you win (state) in one sport it gives you that sight to know what it feels like," Christiansen said. "To get that feeling is euphoric. There's nothing that can describe it. To put in all the work and then at the end of the journey to accomplish what you thought about your whole life. When I put (the shirt) on before the game, it helps me remember that's what we're trying to get to, and to just get better every day to try to reach that ultimate goal." Just because Minico's boys basketball team lacks state experience — they're the only team in the 4A bracket that wasn't at state last year — doesn't mean the Spartans don't have clutch players hardwired to thrive in big-time moments. That fact was obvious in Minico's 57-44 victory over Rigby in the first round of the Class 4A state basketball tournament Thursday at Borah

High School. Minico (23-1) got the job done by doing what it's done all season: pressure defense and balanced offense. The Spartans are making their first state appearance since 1989, but so far the team and its large contingent of fans are making themselves right at home. Minico advances to the semifinals at 6:15 p.m. today against Skyview (20-4), which was a 56-42 winner over Moscow. The big stage is nothing new to Christiansen, who has pitched 21 strikeouts with a 0.00 ERA in two state baseball tournament starts. The senior produced another gem Thursday, leading Minico with 12 points and four assists while caus-

Bulldogs fall in 3A opener

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

MERIDIAN — Kimberly's best was better than Snake River's. Its worst, however, was worse. That was the difference Thursday as steady but unspectacular Snake River beat hot-and-cold Kimberly 55-52 in the opening round of the Class 3A boys basketball state tournament.

The Bulldogs (17-6) hung with Snake River (18-5) for most of the first quarter and outscored the Panthers during the second half. But a five-minute stretch in the second quarter was enough to doom the Bulldogs to defeat. "There was a stretch where they were beating us to every ball, and that put us in a hole that we couldn't quite dig out of," said Kimberly coach Marvin Mumm. "I was worried that we'd come out a little flat in that first half because of the big stage and everything." Neither team played particularly well in the first quarter, and both teams shoot poorly throughout the first half. Kimberly was worse than 30 percent from the floor, while Snake River was at 32 percent.

Kimberly held Snake River standout Candon Watt scoreless in the first half, though he ended with 13 as he kept getting to the foul line in the final two quarters. Keegan Keller led the Panthers with 17, while Jacoby Johnson added 13.

Jade Wadsworth had a game-high 21 points and 12 rebounds for Kimberly, but the rest of the team went missing for too many stretches of the game. Brian Crane was the only other Bulldog to crack double figures with 10.

Despite struggling through the first half, the Bulldogs were right back in it with a 7-0 run to start the third quarter that got the deficit back to two. They would match that deficit later in the game but never got any closer.

When Snake River swelled the lead to 41-30 with about 5 minutes left in the game, it looked over. But another unpredictable run, many of which appeared during District IV regular-season and tournament games, soon started.

But it couldn't be finished as Kimberly missed two chances to tie, including Brian Crane's off-balance 3-point attempt with the final seconds dying off the clock.

Bruins whip Century to keep repeat hopes alive

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

BOISE — Only two hurdles remain between Twin Falls and consecutive boys basketball state championships. The Bruins used smothering defense and dead-eye outside shooting from Tyler Wolters and Ryan Fuchs to stifle Century 42-31 at Borah High School Thursday evening, advancing to the Class 4A semifinals. Using a 10-2 second-quarter scoring edge, the Bruins (19-7) assured themselves a chance to play for a trophy and a 20-win season. Now it's just a matter of what trophy they'll play for. "It all starts with our defense, and we know the offense will come around," said senior forward Colton Stott, who scored four points and pulled down a game-high seven rebounds. "We learned from earlier in the season not to let them push us around, but to push them around." That physicality on defense, combined with the Bruins' painfully patient attack on offense, led to a lot of frustration on the Diamondbacks' part. The Bruins made them pay with backdoor cuts to the basket and kick-outs for open 3-point opportunities. "We just really wanted to get in their faces because we know they can be impatient," said Wolters, who hit all four 3-point shots he attempted in scoring 14 points and helped anchor a tenacious defensive effort. "On offense we just wanted to swing the ball around and make sure we got good shots, and pick our battles when we wanted to take it to the glass. We wanted to get good shots and make sure they forced

Eagles face North Idaho today

The memory is still fresh for Laurel Kearsley. One year ago, Kearsley was on the floor when the College of Southern Idaho women's basketball team suffered a double-overtime loss to North Idaho in the Region 18 Tournament semifinals. Kearsley and the Golden Eagles hope to avoid a repeat of that today as they face No. 15 NIC in a noon semifinal game. "Last year I hated going home after that loss to North Idaho," said Kearsley. "I want to make sure we work hard and leave it all out there on the floor." On Thursday, the third-seeded Eagles did just that, shellacking sixth-seeded Colorado Northwestern 92-60 in the region quarterfinals at CSI. CSI (23-8) dispatched CNCC (7-24) with impressive depth and balance, getting big performances from a bevy of players. "It came at the right time," said sophomore forward Tina Fakahafua, who came off the bench to score eight points and grab 10 rebounds as CSI outboarded the Spartans 58-34. # Melba's height disrupts Valley in Vikings' 56-39 loss

By Jason Chatraw
Times-News correspondent

BOISE — Nothing could prepare the Valley Vikings boys basketball team for their first-round Class 2A state tournament opponent, the Melba Mustangs.

There are plenty of things a coach can simulate in practice. Height isn't one of them.

"We've used racquets on the end of hands before to simulate a difference in reach," Valley coach Steve Hunter said. "But there's no way to practice for a team that not only has a significant height advantage, but also has skill."

Melba took advantage of its height advantage to dominate Valley in the paint and cruise to a 56-39 victory Thursday at Capital

High School.

With 6-foot-3 being the tallest player in Valley's conference, height — or lack thereof — never affected the scrappy Vikings during their run to state. But the difference was glaring against Melba.

Four of Melba's starters held at least a two-inch height advantage over Valley's starting five. Then there was Melba's post player, Joey Nebeker.

Nebeker, a 6-foot-7 junior who committed to Boise State last fall, had his way around the basket, leading Melba with 20 points, eight rebounds and three blocked shots.

While Valley (15-9) knew it had its hands full with Melba's height, the Vikings didn't shy away from going right after Melba. And it worked — for a while.

After falling behind 13-6 at the end of the first quarter, Valley's defense held fast as a 7-0 run to start the quarter drew the Vikings even at 13-13 with 4:20 left in the second quarter.

Then late in the second quarter, Melba made a few adjustments on offense and began to pull away. Holding a 15-14 lead with less than three minutes left in the first half, Melba closed out the half on an 8-0 run to take a 23-14 lead.

The Mustangs (16-6) extended its lead in the third quarter to 37-18 after going on a 14-4 run.

As Valley tried to get back in the game, Melba forced the Vikings to rely on their outside shooting. But it wasn't the Vikings' day as Valley shot 27.7 percent from the floor and 45 percent from the free throw line.

"They forced us into a perimeter game," Hunter said. "We needed to do more running and cutting to the basket and setting screens. When we did those things, we were successful."

Justin Johnson scored 15 points and grabbed 10 rebounds to lead Valley, while Austin Shawver chipped in 10.

The road doesn't get any easier for Valley in the consolation bracket as the Vikings will face McCall-Donnelly, another team that will hold a significant height advantage over Valley with 6-foot-7 post player Matt Rickert.

Shoshone barrels through Wilder Indians set record in rout

Indians set record in rout

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

CALDWELL — After hitting back-to-back 3-pointers to start the game, Garrett Sant knew it was going to be a good night for him and the Shoshone Indians.

Shoshone jumped out to a 20-4 lead and never looked back, throttling Wilder 37-20 in the opening round of the Class 1A Division I state basketball tournament Thursday at Vallivue High School.

"You're nervous coming in here, and then when you hit your first two shots like that, you kind of ease down and get ready for the game. It takes pressure off you a little bit," Sant said. "It gave us momentum and confidence. It's state, so we've got to play aggressive, and we came out ready to go."

In holding Wilder (18-4) to just 20 points, Shoshone set a Class 1A Division I state tournament record for fewest points allowed in a game. The previous record was 24 points by Troy in 2005.

Sant finished with 10 points and 15 rebounds, while Thomas Lanham added 10 points and Cody Race scored eight.

Shoshone (20-4) advances to the 8 p.m. semifinal game tonight against Genesee, which was a 43-27 winner over Notus.

"It's going to be a tough game," Sant said. "Each game is tougher as you go in the winners' bracket, so we've got to be ready for it. We know we have a chance to beat anybody here as long as we play well."

Despite giving up height to Wilder, Shoshone out-rebounded the Wildcats 37-28.

"We worked on that in practice. We knew they were big and we knew we had to block out," said Sant.

After leading 24-10 at halftime, Shoshone immediately extended its lead to 20 as Race, Sant, Shane Walsh and Skye Axelson scored in the third quarter.

"We talked about that at halftime, that we've got to keep going," Sant said. "We did a good job of that, I think. We didn't necessarily keep the motor on, but we didn't ease up, either. We just kind of steadied there."

After scouting Wilder last week, Shoshone coach Larry Messick believed his team had a favorable first-round matchup, but of course he didn't tell his players that.

"You've got to come out and get that first one," Messick said. "We just want to get the first one, no matter what and we'll get ready for tomorrow."

1A DIVISION II ROUNDUP

Carey and Murtaugh advance

Castleford falls to Nezperce in opening round

By John Derr
Times-News writer

CALDWELL — Standing at the free throw line in a tie game at the state tournament with 2.6 seconds left on the clock, now that's pressure.

Add to that the fact that you have gone 0-for-4 from the charity stripe and had in your mind a horrible game.

That was the situation facing Murtaugh's Humberto Pacheco.

The junior stepped up and nailed both free throws, dropping to his knees after making the first, as the Red Devils advanced to the semifinals with a 50-48 victory over Kootenai.

"I feel so lucky, I had missed them all night and had a horrible game," said Pacheco, who scored a team-high 13 points. "I had to depend on my teammates and they stepped up. I just cleared my head and made the shots."

With Murtaugh leading by one after the first quarter, Jose Gonzales found the range from beyond the arc as the Red Devils led 28-20 at the break.

"I saw the team was struggling and knew I had to step up. We moved the ball and I got opens shots, and I made them," said Gonzales, who chipped in 11 points.

After a run by the Warriors cut the lead to three, Murtaugh went back to its inside game, dominating on the boards. Austin Stanger tallied a pair of put backs as the Red Devils pushed the advantage to seven heading in to the final period.

"I knew the guy guarding me had three fouls so I went at him and my shots were falling," said Stanger, who tallied a double-double with 12 points and a game high 11 rebounds. "It was great, this is state atmosphere. We proved we belong here."

Kootenai had one more rally, tying the game with just under three minutes left. The teams traded baskets until a foul put Pacheco on the line.

Murtaugh faces Carey to day at 3 p.m. in the semifinals.

CAREY 59, MEADOWS VALLEY 36

An interesting victory. That's what senior guard Blair Peck called it.

Good because the Carey Panthers cruised to a 59-36 first round victory over Meadows Valley,, bad because they committed 18 turnovers.

"It was a good team victory. We passed the ball well, we just need to limit the turnovers," said Baley Barg, who who led Carey with a double-double of 16 points and 11 rebounds.

Peck drained his second trey early in the third, pacing a 9-2 Panther run. Down the stretch, Carey worked its passing game to perfection as the lead ballooned to 20. Jacy Baird tossed in 12 points along with six rebounds.

Carey (22-2) plays Murtaugh (14-9) today at 3 p.m. in the semifinals.

"All year we have wanted to push the ball, we get easy baskets or fouls," said Peck, who scored 10 points. "Coach told us they were good from the outside. We made adjustments, but we still have things to work on."

NEZPERCE 41, CASTLEFORD 33

Up by one late in the third, the Wolves suddenly went cold.

Castleford connected on just one basket while committing six turnovers in the final eight minutes, falling to defending champion Nezperce 41-33 in the opening round of the 1A Division II boys state basketball tournament Thursday afternoon in Caldwell.

Wolves coach Tracy Vulgamore knew there were some things his team needed to take care of to earn a victory. They needed to handle the pressure, rebound and hit their free throws. That all went as planned.

But the shots just wouldn't fall for Castleford in the fourth quarter.

Tyler Hansen, who paced the Wolves with a game-high 12 points and seven rebounds, connected inside cutting the deficit to three points early in the fourth, but that would be the last of the offense for Castleford.

Nezperce (15-8) kept scoring down the stretch, forcing Castleford to foul. The Indians kept it close by struggling at the line, but still the Wolves could not capitalize.

"We had a tough loss in districts and were able to bounce back. I think we will be able to do that again," said Vulgamore.

The Wolves (19-2) will get that chance today at 6:15 p.m. as they take on Rockland, who rallied late but fell short 56-55 against Salmon River.

a decoy than his normal role of free-scoring playmaker. He was held to just eight points on 2-for-11 shooting, but he teamed with Robert Sanchez to make sure Century star Ben Bopp was held in check.

Bopp finished with just three points and scored his only field goal of the game with less than a minute remaining, when the result had long been decided.

The reward for Twin Falls is a renewed battle with longtime 5A district rival Madison, which played from behind the entire way in its quarterfinal game before clipping Bishop Kelly in overtime. The winner of tonight's 8 p.m. showdown will face Minico or Skyview in the Idaho Center on Saturday for the title.

"I only got to play them once during my sophomore year, but we really got after each other," Wolters recalled. "It's going to be a good game, a fun game."

North Idaho College, Salt Lake CC men advance to Region 18 semifinals

By Mike Christensen
Times-News writer

Idris Lasisi was feeling it. The 6-foot-2 sophomore from Belgium scored 25 points, including his team's first 12 of the second half as fifth-seeded North Idaho College routed No. 4 seed Snow College 77-65 Thursday night at the Region 18 men's basketball tournament at the College of Southern Idaho.

Lasisi scored five points in a 13-0 first-half run that put the Cardinals (23-8) in control. The last of his dozen points to start the second half left NIC ahead 51-27 as Snow trailed by as much as 29 before rallying late.

"He really separated the game for us," said NIC coach Jared Phay. "He hit big shots."

Snow College got 21 points from Brandon Vega, but leading scorer Travis Wilkins went 0-for-8 from the field and had just six points. The Badgers (18-13) were 1 of 14 from 3-point range.

North Idaho faces the top-seeded College of Southern Idaho at 7:30 p.m. today in the semifinals. CSI won all three regular-season meetings between the teams.

"They're really, really good and we've got to play with the same energy we did tonight and probably have less turnovers," said Phay. "We have less room for error (Friday)."

SALT LAKE CC 84, COLORADO NORTHWESTERN CC 52

Alfonzo Hubbard had 25 points and 10 rebounds as third-seeded Salt Lake Community College pulled away in the second half to rout Colorado Northwestern Community College 84-52 Thursday afternoon.

CNCC led 18-14 in the first half, but was held scoreless for nearly 10 minutes as the Bruins used a 13-0 run to take control.

"We didn't think they could play with us and they were. We knew we had to turn it up and we did," said Hubbard, who had 17 points and nine boards in the

The Bruins (24-7) led by 12 at intermission, but blew the game open in the second half as Jason Gamblin scored 16 of his 18 points in the final 20 minutes.

The Bruins face No. 2 seed Eastern Utah at 2 p.m. today.

"They beat us twice, so we've got to get payback," said Hubbard. "When we come out (Friday) we've got to play strong again."

Jon Henderson scored 24 to lead the Spartans, who end their season at 7-24.

WOMEN

SNOW COLLEGE 63, EASTERN UTAH 59

Erica Martinez had 17 points and seven rebounds as Snow College outlasted Eastern Utah 63-59 on Thursday.

In a game that featured six ties down the stretch, Snow used a 7-0 run to build a 59-55 lead. Down 61-59, CEU came up empty on its final three possessions and the Badgers made 2 of 4 free throws in the last 16.9 seconds to seal it.

"We just had to be patient," said Martinez. "We were up in the foul count so we just needed to get to the free throw line and make shots and we did that."

Jaquel Christensen added 12 points and seven boards for Snow, while Kelsi Wells netted 11 to go with seven rebounds. Priscila Santos led Eastern Utah (9-20) with 20 points and 10 boards, while both Daiana Ferreria and Bruna Deichmann scored 13.

Snow (17-12) faces top-seeded Salt Lake Community College at 5:30 p.m. today.

"We want to beat Salt Lake," said Martinez, whose team is 0-3 against the Bruins this season. "... We're going to get them."

CSI's Jackson, Gosar earn SWAC honors

By Mike Christensen
Times-News writer

The news brought a smile to Pierre Jackson's face. Learning Thursday that he was named the Scenic West Athletic Conference Player of the Year, Jackson said, "That's big time. I'm going to call my grandma right now. That just made my day."

The 5-foot-10 sophomore is averaging a team-leading 17.2 points along with 4.6 assists and 3.6 rebounds for the 26-4 Golden Eagles. Offseason surgery to repair a broken elbow limited Jackson's shooting range last season. Healthy this season, he is shooting 40 percent from 3-point range, which complements his speed to drive to the bucket.

DEAR ABBY: For several years, a group of ladies at work have held fundraisers so they could participate in cancer charity walks. We have all donated willingly, but someone recently pointed out something disturbing.

Every year, this group travels to a different location for the walk, using the funds they have raised for the charity. There is a walk within driving distance. The funds they raise could be donated to the cause instead of spent on flights, hotels, meals, etc. One of them commented that they "might as well get something out of it."

Are we wrong to feel this is not a good thing? Someone said we're paying for their vacation. At this point we are confused about the whole mess. Any comments?

— BAFFLED IN NEW ENGLAND

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR BAFFLED: You're not wrong. Any monies raised the way these "ladies" have done should have been donated to cancer research. The comment your co-worker made to you was revealing. What you have described sounds like fraud. What those women should have "gotten out of it" was the satisfaction of knowing they were doing something for a worthy cause. This would not include treating themselves to a group vacation. If you continue to support this effort, the check(s) should be made payable to the charity.

DEAR ABBY: Are there any rules of etiquette involving unwanted guests at funerals? While I have many loved ones and friends, I have also made a few enemies in my life. I have made clear to my husband that I do not want "certain people" to be allowed to attend my funeral when I die.

I have always found it distasteful when folks show up at funerals for someone they disliked or didn't know well. It ruins it for those who really did love the deceased. I do not want my enemies trying to make themselves feel better by showing up and pretending they cared.

My husband is against the idea. I made him promise that he'd do this for me because, even though I'll be dead and may not care then, I do care very much now.

P.S. My husband wants to know how one would keep people away from a funeral in the first place.

— PLANNIN' AHEAD IN SODDY-DAISY, TENN.

DEAR PLANNIN': Let's hold a good thought that you'll be around for a long, long time and outlive your enemies. However, if that doesn't happen, a way to ensure that only those you want to attend your funeral will be there is to make it "invitation only" And when your death is announced in the newspaper, it should be stated that the service will be private.

DEAR ABBY: I have been seeing the same gynecologist for eight years. I trust her with my health and my privacy. She recently moved to a new practice and I would like to follow her. My problem is the wife of one of my co-workers is an employee in the new office, and I'm worried that patient confidentiality may not extend to "pillow talk." How do I handle this delicate situation?

— VALUES MY PRIVACY

DEAR VALUES: Handle it by having a frank talk with your gynecologist, explaining that one of your co-workers is married to an employee in the new office, and asking her how she plans to guarantee your privacy. Explain that you would like to remain her patient, but that this has raised a red flag for you.

Did you know that Black Dogs are generally the last to be adopted and are euthanized in shelters in much large numbers? People may consider them too "plain", or simply don't notice them because their dark color makes them disappear in their kennels. Whatever the reason, black dogs are not given the attention they deserve. So PLEASE give our black dogs a chance!

Kate is a black lab puppy that is about 15-weeks-old. She has white on her feet and is very cute.

She was relinquished to our shelter by a loving owner who could no longer care for her due to health reasons. Suki is a sweet girl who just wants a place to call home and a family to love.

The adoption fee is $75 and includes spaying/neutering and the first set of vaccinations.

ANSWER: There are a few minimum hands where slam will make, but even if your partner provides you with a maximum hand with both black suits, you may need a split, or the right doubleton, opposite. If you want to try for slam, you can bid three clubs — a help-suit game try, ostensibly for game. But my instincts tell me it is right just to bid four spades.

Today is Friday, March 4, the 63rd day of 2011. There are 302 days left in the year.

Today's Highlights:
On March 4, 1861, Abraham Lincoln was inaugurated as the 16th president of the United States. The U.S. Government Printing Office began operation. The Confederate States of America adopted as its flag the original version of the Stars and Bars (not to be confused with the more familiar Confederate Battle Flag).

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1789, the Constitution of the United States went into effect as the first Federal Congress met in New York. (The lawmakers then adjourned for lack of a quorum.)

In 1791, Vermont became the 14th state.

In 1811, the first Bank of the United States ceased operations as its charter expired.

In 1858, Sen. James Henry Hammond of South Carolina declared "Cotton is king" in a speech to the U.S. Senate.

IF MARCH 4 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Get down to brass tacks in the year ahead. An opportunity that appears this week might be worthwhile to pursue, but pay attention to feedback from your friends, too. Keep a low profile at the end of the month. Wait until late April to make business decisions or changes in your financial affairs. You have a determination to reach your goals, but must buckle down to achieve them. Keep this in mind through August, when it might be necessary to spend longer hours on business matters in order to stay afloat. November is your best month for a romantic rendezvous or thrilling vacation.

HOROSCOPE
 Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Wait longer to put plans in motion that have been placed on hold. You have the determination to reach your goals without assistance, but others in close connection may offer more help than expected.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Remain fair and open-minded. You can win the hearts of powerful friends and support that can be banked upon. Plan a daytrip or something else that's fun; get out of a rut and make this weekend memorable.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Never settle for less than the best. This new moon subtly shifts your awareness to reputation and your public persona, so you may be more interested in what people say about you than in what they do.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Today's new moon might serve up a month ahead full of educative experiences. You will quickly see how much you have to learn and notice the holes in your knowledge. Let that trigger ambitions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): The new moon might mark a shift in your attentions from relationships to finances. You might even briefly feel that your partner is not pulling his or her weight where joint obligations are concerned.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The new moon falls in your opposite sign, throwing a reflection back on you from your close friends, partners and loved ones. Find ways to be proud of the people you associate with this month.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): No one can pull the wool over your eyes. You know how to choose objectively and fairly from equal factors, but not without watching out for your own interests first and foremost.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your happily ever after is coming in the next chapter. You might find it difficult to hogtie and brand the partner of your choice this weekend. The New Moon might illuminate what makes you happy.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A creative mind visualizes opportunities, not obstacles. The problem is that there could be some obstacles that you haven't counted on. Wait until later next week to begin an important project.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Mirror, mirror on the wall. You might seem more self-absorbed than usual. You expect positive feedback from other people but are disappointed when they simply mirror your own attitudes.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Napkin rings are needless. You might insist on formality, but find that attitude creates misunderstandings. Don't be too picky about your possessions, but take pride in caring for what you already own.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Pull back the curtains and walk on stage. A new moon in your sign might mean a new viewpoint developing for you in the month ahead. You will be more willing to share your thoughts and ideas with others.
