A decade later: How we’ve changed

One year ago, U.S. Census workers knocked on doors and mailed out forms as part of America’s 10-year head count. The government released the first round of Idaho information Thursday, including these population highlights:

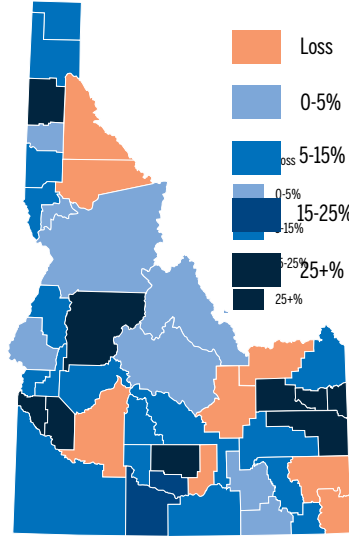

Idaho is still popular

From 2000 to 2010, the state grew about twice as quickly as the nation. But most of that growth skipped the Magic and Wood River valleys. Twin Falls County, at 20.1 percent growth, grew roughly in line with Idaho. But most of south-central Idaho lagged the state average (21 percent). And Elmore County lost more than 7 percent of its residents – a full 2,092 people – over the course of the decade.

Blaine: 18,991	12.6%
Camas: 991	12.7%
Cassia: 21,416	7.2%
Elmore: 29,130	-7.2%
Gooding: 14,155	9.3%
Jerome: 18,342	21.9%
Lincoln: 4,044	28.8%
Minidoka: 20,174	-0.5%
Twin Falls: 64,284	20.1%

Minidoka County perseveres

In 2003, J.R. Simplot Co.’s potato processing plant in Heyburn closed. Kraft Foods Inc. pulled out of Rupert in 2006. Minico High School lost enough students to drop from Idaho’s highest athletics classification. But the county persevered, a fact apparent in Thursday’s figures. Minidoka County’s population dropped just half a percentage point – only 105 people – between 2000 and 2010. Preliminary 2010 jobless figures released in January 2011 put the county at 7.6 percent, below the state average of more than 9 percent unemployment.

We’re becoming more urban Rural counties took a population hit. The cities of Twin Falls, Idaho Falls, McCall and Boise helped propel urban areas to grow by more than 25%.

SNOTEL stations across the West help farmers, skiers prepare

By Laura Lundquist
Times-News writer

HANSEN — The area around Magic Mountain Resort is normally quiet midweek, but Wednesday it was even more so. A Tuesday storm dropped a layer of snow that muffled sounds, smoothed the ground and left evergreens smothered.

Max Newlin joined skiers from the High Desert Nordic Association to re-break a ski trail into the trees. A ski mask shrouded his bearded face and covered his neck, around which dangled an altimeter and compass. The travelers slogged through the new South Hills snow, made wet and heavy by the winter sun.

Eventually, they entered a clearing surrounded by lodgepole pine and spindly bare aspen. If it weren’t for the small

Lawmakers reduce cuts to Medicaid

Reform bill rewritten, will resurface today

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

BOISE — House lawmakers approved a major overhaul of proposed Medicaid reform Thursday, removing two contentious cuts that would have trimmed about $4.4 million in state dollars for developmental therapy services.

Lawmakers in the House Health and Welfare Committee scrapped two of the bill’s 23 cost-savings proposals, dropping the level of state dollars saved from $39.1 million to $34.3 million.

One of the eliminated ideas would have saved $1.8 million by reducing benefits for adult developmental therapy services. The other idea would have trimmed $2.6 million by initiating a “retirement” age of 45 for developmental therapy, shifting retired individuals to a program for the aged and disabled.

Thursday’s changes came after lawmakers heard testimony from hundreds of Medicaid providers and recipients earlier this week, the vast majority in opposition to the bill.

“It was primarily from what we heard during the public, hearing the level of opposition from the public from those two areas,” said Rep. Janice McGeachin, R-Idaho Falls and chairwoman of the committee.

AT A GLANCE

A bill to reform Idaho’s Medicaid system and reduce state and associated federal spending is working its way through the Legislature. Where it started: A bill with 23 cuts to save $39 million in Medicaid spending was introduced on March 2 in the House Health and Welfare Committee. Where it stands: Lawmakers dropped two of the 23 proposed cuts, reducing estimated savings to $34.3 million. What’s next: The bill is being rewritten and will be introduced today in the House Ways and Means Committee.

New downtown Twin Falls group forms

Organization won’t take assessments, public cash

By Nick Coltrain
Times-News writer

Another downtown organization has coalesced in Twin Falls, without some of the issues associated with its predecessor.

Mark Rivers, a city Urban Renewal Agency-hired downtown consultant, announced the formation of “Downtown Alive” on Thursday as a new downtowners group dedicated to “sharing ideas, coordination of community outreach and marketing, advocacy on urban issues and a neighborly sense of working together.”

The new organization is not a taxing entity and will not accept public money or take assessments from businesses or property owners, according to the release. It will work with Rivers and the URA on revitalization goals.

“The time is now for us to unite in new opportunities and the rebirth of downtown Twin Falls,” Tom Ashenbrener, owner of downtown shop Rudy’s — A Cook’s Paradise, said in the release.

Ashenbrener, who helped gather signatures for the now-defunct downtown Business Improvement District in 1982, will co-chair the association

Storm cuts power across Magic Valley

A Thursday evening windstorm toppled power lines and otherwise caused trouble across the Magic Valley.

Minidoka County Sheriff Kevin Halverson said winds took down about five large Bonneville Power Administration lines, which in turn damaged some substations. That cut power to probably half the county at first, he said, and at 8 p.m. he expected it to be some time before service was restored to the southern end. “It’s warm,” he said. “People are OK right now.”

Cassia County was also affected by outages, though a dispatcher said Minidoka County likely was worse off.

Farther west, Idaho Power reported two outages around 6 and 7:40 p.m. that affected about 560 of its customers in and around Buhl, Filer and Twin Falls. Dispatchers at the Southern Idaho Regional Communications Center also recorded a carport blown on top of power lines.

At the height of the storm, the National Weather Service recorded wind gusts of 72 mph at the Twin Falls airport and 39 mph at the airport in Burley.

shack and rust-colored stovepipe nearby, Newlin might not have spied the two narrow conduit towers lost in the vertical pattern of tree trunks.

“I’ve come near here many times, but I never knew this was here,” said Newlin, a regular visitor to the ski trails since his 2005 retirement as a state park manager.

The small group of objects in the clearing makes up one of the 750 SNOTEL weather stations maintained in 13 western states by the U.S. Natural Resources Conservation Service. NRCS hydrologist Jeff Anderson said the site’s instruments measure snow depth, temperature and precipitation.

Why all the fuss? Snowmelt accounts for as much as 80 percent of the West’s yearly water supply.

“The snow pillow, which measures snow-water equivalent, is the only equipment that is different from a normal weather station,” Anderson said.

The snow pillow brings scientists like Anderson out to SNOTEL stations because they occasionally have to check its accuracy. Anderson said the now-hidden snow pillow is a 10-foot-wide, liquid-filled bladder resembling a black rubber doughnut. As snow builds up, it pushes on the bladder. A sensor under the bladder measures the pressure, which is calibrated to register as the amount of water contained in the snow.

Anderson can read the pillow’s reading on a tube in the shack. To double-check it, he collected snow at four points around the pillow by driving a long, 2-inch-diameter pipe down through the snow. Using a combination of the snow depth and the weight of the snow in the pipe, he calculated the amount of water.

“It comes out to around 17.9 inches of water, and the meter was reading around 16.5 inches this morning,” Anderson said. “The depth measurements may be off since the snow has settled since it fell.”

The stovepipe that juts into the ground collects all precipitation, including rain that runs off the bladder. Anderson said while the pipe may start off with more water from October rains at the start of the water year, it should track the increase in snow-water on the bladder. Right now, both show that the site has received around 90 percent of the water it gets by this point in an average year.

The various sensors send measurements to a data logger in the shack. Two NRCS base stations, one in Boise and one in Ogden, Utah, regularly bounce radio signals off dust in the atmosphere out to all the SNOTEL stations. The signal “wakes” the stations, prompting them to radio their measurements back. Solar panels and backup batteries in the shack power the data loggers and the sporadic bursts of radio activity.

Not all the NRCS snow sites have radio capability. In Idaho, 83 sites are SNOTEL-equipped, while 102 are still just snow courses where scientists collect data manually.

The NRCS posts SNOTEL measurement updates online for free. Different groups use the information for various reasons, but the primary use is to predict spring and summer water supply. Decades of measurements allow scientists to predict water runoff based on snowpack amounts.

“Our service originated in the 1930s as a result of the Dust Bowl, when soil conservation became a priority,” Anderson said. “Farmers need to have an idea of what their irrigation season will be like.”

“I use it to see what the snow is like for skiing,” Newlin said.

Blaine school board approves hiring

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — Blaine County schools have a new spokeswoman.

The countywide district’s school board voted 3-2 Tuesday to hire Heather Crocker as its new communications director, after deferring the vote at previous meetings.

Crocker has headed up the Blaine County School District’s Education Foundation. She formerly served as the education director for the Sun Valley Center for the Arts.

The Works of Grace Foundation will provide $25,000 of Crocker’s $78,000 salary the first two years. And the board will review the position after two years.

Both stipulations were made by Board President

Julie Dahlgren as a gesture of compromise towards trustees Paul Bates and Kathryn Graves. The latter have repeatedly voiced their opposition to the hire.

The debate has drawn heated charges from proponents and opponents, including one from former board President Alex Sundali who said that Bates should recuse himself because his live-in partner signed a letter opposing the hire.

But Graves continued his opposition Tuesday night, saying “public consequences could be far-reaching” if the board makes a mistake.

Superintendent Lonnie Barber acknowledged that there had been some polarization. But, he added, the decision to hire a communications manager came not from him, but rather from a communications audit that determined a manager was necessary to carry out its recommendations.

“We’re not hiring at the expense of teachers. We’ve added teachers every year for 20 years and we’ve never subtracted a single one, so I think this will be a win-win,” Barber said.

In other business, Wood River High School Principal Pete Jurovich unveiled a new schedule that moves his students away from their current trimester schedule.

The new schedule offers students more flexibility in the courses they take, Jurovich said. It also allows students to develop time management skills, do their homework at school and take more ownership of their education, he said.

The new schedule involves seven 50-minute periods. Some classes will be offered on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays; other longer classes will be offered Tuesdays and Thursdays, including science labs and other courses that could benefit from longer class times.

The seventh period is a five-day-a-week class.

The schedule also allows for zero-hour classes before school and an eighth period after the regular day, Jurovich said.

Currently, students attend three semesters of five 70-minute classes a day. The current system requires 54 credits for graduation. The new system will require 52, which is still above the state requirement of 46.

Required U.S. history credits will drop from 3 to 2, with one replaced by a required Global Perspectives class.

Paul council briefed on animal control

By Coreen Hart
Times-News correspondent

PAUL — The Paul City Council learned Wednesday about the dire financial situation facing Minidoka County’s jointly operated animal control facility.

Councilman Bob Dempsay said that the animal control budget will run out on May 1.

The facility operates under the eye of an animal control board, and is funded by the county and the cities of Rupert, Paul, Acequia and Minidoka. Heyburn contracts separately for service.

“One of the options that is favorable is that we basically cease operation when we run out of funds,” Dempsay said. “That’s May 1. That would be a total closure of the facility, and (animal control Officer Steve Mani) would probably be reabsorbed into the sheriff’s department and possibly continue to do some animal control work.”

Undersheriff Vic Watson said Mani would not be reabsorbed, because the animal control funding stream could continue to support him as the animal control officer.

“The problem is we won’t be able to continue to support the shelter side of it for the rest of the fiscal year,” Watson said. “You can run it until the money is gone, the facility and the manpower. Or at some point in time, no later than May 1, you can cease to operate the shelter side of the budget but continue to support the labor side of it, for Steve’s position. You’ll end up with a balanced budget at the end.”

He said Mani could still be in the field and respond to vicious dog calls. But there would be no pick-up of strays or housing stray dogs.

“It’s pretty grim,” Watson said. “There’s going to be some tough decisions at the animal control board, along with each individual city council and county commissioners. It is underfunded and has been for some time.”

Minidoka County will ultimately be responsible for any deficit.

Suggested solutions at the meeting included going back to euthanizing most dogs three days after their capture. Dempsay pointed out that in 2006, Mani received $32,579. His annual salary for 2011 is $43,252.

When adding federal matching funding associated with the $4.4 million state dollars spared the axe, elimination of the two ideas amounts to a total restoration of about $12 to $13 million in Medicaid funding. That in turn reduces the bill’s total economic impact to about $108 million, down from the earlier estimate of a $120 million spending reduction.

Lawmakers also axed a long-term policy change from the bill that wouldn’t have saved money during the upcoming year, but would have required a board-certified psychiatrist to approve mental health services ordered for children and adults.

Disagreements about the reach of the bill’s policy changes remain. For example, House Minority Leader John Rusche, D-Lewiston, made a failed motion that would have increased the proposed four-hour weekly cap for adult mental rehabilitation services to five hours.

Due to the level of changes needed, the bill is being rewritten and will be introduced today in the House Ways and Means Committee. It’s being moved there because legislative leadership can introduce bills there more quickly.

Idaho is more diverse

One of the whitest states has grown a little more colorful. Most of the Magic Valley is now about 80 percent white. The rest is predominantly Hispanic.

That’s a departure from the state average, which dropped only slightly to 89 percent. Jerome, Gooding and Blaine counties in particular marked large growth in non-white ethnicities, with Jerome County leading the pack with an 8 percent decline in whites. All that change, though, came with growth in both whites and non-whites. The only local county to actually lose white residents was Elmore, down 2,656.

Kimberly to buy old Rock Creek fire station, move offices

By Emily Katseanes
Times-News correspondent

KIMBERLY — The Kimberly City Council looked to the past at its most recent council meeting.

In 1998, the city gave property to the Rock Creek Rural Fire Protection District for its firehouse, with the caveat that if the property was no longer needed, it would return to city ownership with the city paying only the cost of improvements made by the fire district.

With the district moving into a new $2.24 million station, the city is taking over the old station for $221,154.

City Attorney William Hollifield said the only thing holding up the property's change of hands is making sure the city doesn't end up paying taxes on the property twice.

Once that's squared away in the purchase agreement, the city hopes to move its temporary chambers out of the library and into the station. City Hall was closed in June 2010 due to structural problems.

Several years ago, the city ground down some pavement and used the resulting gravel to pave alleys in town. On Tuesday, the council looked at a series of bids from different companies to do the same thing again.

"The purpose for utilizing this pavement is grinding it down to a spec that it can be put in the alleys," Mayor Dave Overacre said. "It has allowed for a nice, stable base in these alleyways."

Overacre said the cost for the project is in Public Works Director Rob Wright's budget, but Wright, who was unable to make it to the meeting, wanted council approval before beginning. The council approved a $8,762 bid for the project.

"I think it's great that we're able to recycle this," Councilwoman Mitzi Cheldelin said.

In other business, Overacre asked Kevan Hafer with the public works department if his department can start collecting bids for repair work in the Stonegate subdivision.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has approved most of the city's proposed fixes to the subdivision's inadequate sewer system, but some clarifications are needed for both sides before work can officially begin. Hafer and City Engineer Tracy Ahrens said that wouldn't be a problem.

Ketchum's Herbst: the fastest guy on 56 legs

Meet Trent Herbst, who at the moment is the swiftest musher in the biggest sled dog race in the world.

On Wednesday, the Ketchum fourth-grade teacher collected a $3,000 prize for being the first racer to reach the abandoned Alaska mining town of Iditarod, the halfway point on the 1,161-mile Iditarod Great Sled Dog Race.

Herbst's students at the Community School helped him build his sled. This is his fifth Iditarod.

With his 14 dogs, the 40-year-old Herbst reached Iditarod at 7:29 a.m. MST Wednesday, completing the first half of the race in a little more than 14 hours. He was greeted with $3,000 in gold nuggets and was honored with the GCI Dorothy Page Halfway Award.

But since Herbst had not yet taken the race's required 24-hour layover, he'll be somewhere in the high teens or low 20s as far as his position is concerned by the time he can get back on the Iditarod Trail.

YOU DON'T SAY

Steve Crump

The race's real leader, Martin Buser of Big Lake, Alaska, was maintaining his 45-minute lead as of 2 p.m. MST Thursday.

The Iditarod began outside Anchorage on Saturday and will end at the Bering Sea coastal town of Nome sometime next week. Teams frequently race through blizzards causing whiteout conditions, sub-zero temperatures and gale-force winds.

The overnight forecast for the Upper Kuskokwin River Valley called for clear skies and a low of 25 below zero.

Rupert's Lou Dobbs, the last major conservative television commentator not on Rupert Murdoch's payroll at Fox, will end that distinction starting Monday.

Lou Dobbs Tonight, a reboot of Dobbs' old weekend business program on CNN, will debut Monday at 6 p.m. MST on Fox Business Network. Fox says the show will feature stories about the news of the day and how it affects the economy. Dobbs will be up against CNBC's The Kudlow Report.

Fox is picking up steam in its bid to take on CNBC as cable's voice of business news.

Dobbs quit CNN in November 2009, ending a nearly 30-year career with the network after continuing controversies over his on-air views on immigration. He received an $8 million severance settlement.

Since then, he has concentrated on his nationally syndicated radio show, The Lou Dobbs Financial Report, and is a regular columnist for Money magazine, U.S. News & World Report and the New York Daily News. A New Jersey resident, Dobbs is considering challenging Democratic U.S. Sen. Bob Menendez next year.

Dobbs, 65, was born in Texas and raised in Rupert, bucked hay on a Minidoka County farm as a teenager, graduated from Minico High School in 1963 and got into Harvard (his $25 application fee was paid by teachers at Minico). Old-timers still talk about Dobbs throwing a chicken off the balcony at the Wilson Theatre as a prank.

Hailey's urban renewal revs up

By Ariel Hansen
Times-News writer

HAILEY — The city of Hailey is moving forward with its newly created urban renewal agency, which will likely result in improvements to streetscapes and promotion of property development in less-developed areas of town.

The city has begun surveying where the URA could be applied. It can include up to 10 percent of the assessed city value and might encompass:

- River Street and some pieces that abut River Street properties.
- Blaine Manor property and nearby land, including the new rodeo arena and ice skating rink.
- Portions of light industrial land near Friedman Memorial Airport.
- The airport, depending on the timeline for its replacement and redevelopment.
- Undeveloped portions of the Sweetwater project in central Woodside.
- Light industrial areas of south Woodside.

The city would like the involved pieces to be as contiguous as possible to avoid the patchwork of Ketchum's URA plan, which Hailey attorney Ned Williamson said could make it more likely to attract legal challenges.

On Wednesday morning, Williamson told the Hailey URA board he's tracking 10 pieces of legislation at the state level about URAs, including four that have passed the House and await Senate action. None of the bills would take effect before July if signed into law, Williamson said. The city hopes to have its plan in place before then, and it would likely not be affected by pending legislation.

The board met for the first time Wednesday to hear what members will be asked to do in the coming months, beginning with drafting URA bylaws and culminating with details and funding for specific projects.

"Personally, I don't think we should go out and borrow like Ketchum did; that's scary," said Don Keirn, a Hailey city councilman and member of the URA commission. An alternative to immediate borrowing would be for the city to establish the URA taxing district and then save tax receipts until there is enough to move forward with specific redevelopment projects.

Ketchum's URA came up several times during the meeting, usually in the context of what Hailey might want to avoid. However, the language of the draft plan for Hailey's URA is taken directly from the Ketchum boilerplate, said Hailey planning director Beth Robrahn. She indicated that the important differences between the two plans would be in the details — the appendices that establish maps and projects.

The board will next meet at 8:30 a.m. April 11 to review bylaws for the URA board and a map of areas that could be included in the URA plan, before the City Council gets a look at those documents later that evening.

“In 30 minutes, 18 state senators undid 50 years of civil rights in Wisconsin.”

Where will money come from for teacher merit pay?

The most influential member of the Idaho House of Representatives — Majority Leader Mike Moyle, R-Star — and six committee chairmen say the merit-pay bill passed by the House 44-26 on Wednesday doesn’t add up. Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter can’t responsibly sign Senate Bill 1110, a key part of state Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Luna’s education reform package, until he knows there will be enough revenue available to cover it in the near future.

“Every single statutory element has to fit within the revenues,” said Rep. Maxine Bell, R-Jerome, chairwoman of the Appropriations Committee, on Wednesday. “I budget now 18 months out, and I couldn’t see the strength that will be there in the economy at that point” to cover the bill’s added expense of $38 million in the first year and $51.3 million each subsequent year.

In the context of the state budget, that’s not small change: $38 million is double what Idaho spends in a year on agricultural research and Extension operations; $51.3 million is more than twice the state’s community college expenditures.

Idaho has struggled to fund the statutory items in its public schools budget the past two years, Bell said, and has had to use intent language to waive statutory requirements. “Once it’s statutory, it will have to fit within the revenue available. That’s my concern.”

Moyle opposes the bill “because it’s not funded.” “I don’t think it’s written right,” he said. “I don’t have a problem with pay-for-performance if it’s done right, but I don’t think that bill accomplishes the goal. I think we’ll be back a year from now, trying to figure out why we’re lowering teacher salaries to pay for pay-for-performance, and I don’t think that’s good.”

Rep. Janice McGeachin, R-Idaho Falls, who chairs the Health and Welfare Committee that is struggling to make deep and difficult cuts in the Medicaid program, says SB1110 would spend money the state doesn’t have.

“... I do believe that this, in a sense, is an unfunded mandate, in that we have not identified a revenue that would be able to pay for this. And by putting it into statute, it will present for further pressure on the education budget in the future.”

Why in the world did the state Senate — which passed the bill 20-15 on Feb. 24 — Luna’s Department of Education and Otter’s budget writers let a potential budget bomb get this far?

In order to balance the budget, Idaho has cut millions of dollars in state financial support for public schools over the past two years. And now the Legislature has set in stone an initiative it isn’t sure it can pay for next year and beyond.

And if it can’t, the money will have to come from elsewhere in a stretched-to-the-breaking-point state budget.

Our view:

If Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter signs the teacher merit-pay bill, Idaho will be writing checks it may not be able to cash down the road.

What do you think?

We welcome viewpoints from our readers on this and other issues.

He’s Charlie Sheen, and you’re not Say what you will about Charlie Sheen — that he is a raving lunatic, an egomaniac, a train wreck, an anti-Semite, a drug-addled cautionary tale — he has also actually made some sense this past week by offering up a reasonably astute analysis of the relationship between the public and its celebrities. In fact, Sheen seems to have decided to liberate himself by liberating us from the illusions we harbor about the stars.

Neal Gabler

Most of us want to think of celebrities as ordinary folks who, by dint of talent, hard work and a bit of luck, ascended to the heights. We want to think of them that way, one suspects, because it binds them more closely to us and because it allows us to indulge the fantasy that it could be us up there on the screen.

Unlike Europeans, Americans have never much tolerated Sarah Bernhardts, the sort of grands artistes who exist in a different and higher realm from the hoi polloi. We take our democracy seriously, right into entertainment. We like a star who is modest, self-effacing, self-deprecating — in effect, one of us. That’s why the fan magazines in the 1930s and 1940s featured Clark Gable and Carol Lombard lolling in their backyard just like any old married couple, or Joan Crawford tending to her brood just like any old mother.

This was the basic contract: Entertain us, and we’ll grant you fame, riches and adoration — so long as you remain one of us. Violate that contract at the peril of your career. Abide by it, like, say, Tom Hanks, and you will be rewarded with longevity. All we ask is that you be, or at least appear to be, normal.

Bruce Willis once described the basic trajectory of celebrity in America as having four stages: You arrive, you peak, you bomb and you come back. Whether he realized it or not, Willis was also describing the phases that anthropologist Joseph Campbell had discerned for the hero across cultures — save for one thing. Heroes don’t bomb. That is a distinctly American interpolation, one designed to ensure that our demigods never confuse themselves with gods. As our stars rose into the heavens, we reserved the right to humble them, to bring them back to Earth. Think of Edie Murphy or John Travolta or Tom Cruise, all of whom seemed to get too big for their britches and were brought down a peg for it.

So Charlie Sheen’s verboten media blitz flaunting a lifestyle that is decidedly not shared by the vast majority of his fans (how many of us have two live-in porn star “goddesses” or can profess to have consumed an amount of cocaine that would have killed a mortal?) explicitly violates the contract, which seems to have been Sheen’s point.

He says he isn’t off the rails like Mel Gibson or Lindsay Lohan. He insists he is the engineer. He is doing exactly what he wants to do, what his riches and fame allow and entitle him to do. As he puts it, he is embracing his “rock star” life.

The irony is that living large and doing exactly as he pleases has long been a central ingredient in Sheen’s appeal. His role on “Two and a Half Men” as a womanizing, footloose bachelor seems lifted out of his real life, which is one of the reasons it is funny. We think we are seeing Sheen spoofing himself. When Sheen reminded us that his life is even more extreme than his character’s, the media turned censorious — an example of trying to have your comedy and revile it too. Sheen is absolutely right to call this hypocrisy. He has never pretended to be a Boy Scout. He has always purported to be precisely the opposite.

More broadly, even as Sheen blows the whistle on the idea that celebrities are just like us (or that he has ever been anything other than a loose cannon), he also reveals the cracks in the “humble star-grateful audience” contract. When Willis was making his observations on celebrity some 15 years ago, he explained that Americans everywhere, having seen the benefits of fame, desired it. Increasingly, he noted, it isn’t what we have in common with stars that binds us to them; it’s exactly the opposite. Privilege and arrogance once repulsed us. Now, in our amped-up, success-obsessed culture, it attracts us.

And if Sheen isn’t the first celebrity to be overtly imperial, he may be the first to tell us just how imperial he is. Think “Adonis DNA,” and “winning, duh.”

And that may be Sheen’s real infraction to his detractors: In letting us know that he is nothing like us — that his life is the American dream on steroids and that many of us, as he says, are jealous of him for it — he has shown us that envy is at least as potent a force as identification. With his firing this week, one might even say that he sacrificed his career for the cause.

Replace Tom Luna, not teachers, with laptop

Tom Luna wants to reform Idaho’s education program by buying computers and laying off teachers. How about we buy one computer and lay off Tom Luna?

Unlike computers, teachers pay taxes. Employed taxpayers are the force that drives economic growth, not computers.

It’s pretty simple, Tom. Here’s how it works. When people are employed, they earn wages. With that money, they buy food and other necessities. Thus, the economy grows. Then those wage earners pay state taxes. Then the state, except for our current administration, wisely puts that revenue to work to help taxpayers and educate their children.

When taxpayers lose their jobs, the state and the people bear the burden. With that expense, plus the loss of tax income, the economy tanks and the state goes broke. Sound familiar? What goes around comes around.

Otter’s busy wasting our tax dollars suing the feds over health care reform. If he wins, instead of creating jobs, these two are trying to eliminate them. You can’t do the same thing over and over and expect different results.

It’s a lose-lose situation with a 10-gallon governor and superintendent of public instruction who stopped to think and forgot to start again. Convincing yourself that a bad idea is a good idea is a bad idea.

Besides having the least influential congressional delegation in Washington, Idaho’s ranked last among the states in many areas. With Otter and Luna in the statehouse, Idaho will remain at No. 50 unless Puerto Rico becomes a state. Then we’ll drop to 51.

Yes, Virginia, two heads are thicker than one. Dunce caps, please.

America can't take any more immigrants

There are more Irish in this country than there are in Ireland. There are more Britons than there are in England, Wales and Scotland combined. We have more blacks than many African countries. More of Germanic descent live here than fill Germany and enough Italians to make pizzas to stretch around the world and the spaghetti to lace them all together. Most of them paid their own travel, came in legally and took near starvation-paying jobs. They didn’t join the welfare, ADC and Social Security system nor overburden the medical community.

All you who think we can absorb all those Chinese dissatisfied with their country’s policies and disgruntled Russians who let communism ruin their own country, raise your hand. Every one of you who think our coasts can accommodate the Central and South American millions, stand up.

The rest of you, those who know that our economy, our ability to house, feed and clothe our own population is already at the breaking point, sit quietly and say nothing. Nobody’s listening to you anyhow. You’ll only give yourself a heart attack, stroke or high blood pressure, and Obama “care” doesn’t.

BSU football coach deserves pay raise

On Coach Pete Petersen’s raise, a football program that has brought fame and fortune to Boise and the state of Idaho deserves a reward.

First off, Boise State University’s football coaches and programs are supported and rewarded by ticket sales, conference championships and bowl championships. Second, the accomplishments of the BSU football programs are unbelievable, a reminder how dominant BSU football has been.

Since 2006 (Coach Pete era), overall record 60-5; Western Athletic Conference record, 32-2; 12 average wins per season, five straight bowl games, five straight 10-plus win seasons; five seasons ranked in Top 25; four seasons ranked in BCS Top 10; four WAC championships; four seasons with one or zero losses; three undefeated regular seasons (2009, 2008, 2006); three undefeated conference seasons; three seasons with 12-plus wins; two BCS Bowl invitations; two perfect seasons (2009, 2006); two Top 5 national finishes; two-time National Coach of the Year; Heisman Trophy finalist; outscored WAC opponents 1,789-679; nation’s best record since start of 2008 season.

Hours and hours of hard work and dedication goes into a record like BSU’s football record by players and coaches alike, not to mention the successful eras before Coach Pete’s era.

Ordinary people losing battle against fat cats

This will turn your crank. Our president who is in charge of the world's largest economy, the richest nation in the world and by far the largest and most effective military gets paid less than $500,000 a year.

He does not get to set his own pay like the executives of corporations. They have the power to legally steal exorbitant salaries and bonuses. They steal from the stockholders, research and development and employees compensation even while doing an inferior job. Remember when Walmart got caught showing its employees how to get welfare from the government? The fat cats keep putting out propaganda that we are broke while they suck up every penny and scream for more.

We the people are losing our battles to the fat cats. The appointment of a president by the Supreme Court. Absolutely unconstitutional. Making corporations living breathing human beings with the right to donate unlimited amounts of money for political purposes totally phony. Now the projected cash requirement to run for president, $1 billion. You know how crooked you have to be to get that much money. We need a new way to finance elections. All this carping about socialism when it is a part of any decent democracy. We have socialism when we finance public schools, police, legal departments, military, laws to protect the public, welfare for the indigent, collect taxes and emergency help. Especially a great tool when President Obama bailed out GM, Chrysler and the financial industry saving thousands of jobs and avoided a deep depression.

The fat cats should remember the words of God when he said, "from those that much has been given, much is expected."

Who will represent the other 83.8% of Idaho?

The extreme right faction of the Republican Party (wingnuts as mainstream Republicans call them) won what they consider a victory in federal court this week by convincing a federal judge that allowing every voter to vote for the candidate of his or her choice in every election "infringed on their freedom of association" and their exclusive right to select the party candidate for the general election.

From an independent perspective, this challenge and apparent victory was not unexpected. As an increasing number of voters reject political party control of the political process and our government and declare themselves "independent" political parties across America are using every means available to maintain control of the political process, appoint party-leaning judges to federal courts and continue to strengthen party control of our government.

When extremist elements in a political party (Republican or Democrat) control the selection of candidates, it is expected that the elected official will represent those party interests over those of the larger majority of the people. In Idaho, the latest BSU public policy survey found that only 16.2 percent of Idaho voters surveyed claimed to be very conservative, 6.1 percent claimed to be very liberal, 29.7 percent said they were somewhat conservative and the largest percent (31 percent) said they are middle-of-the-road. When the extreme right faction of the Idaho Republican Party begins its court-sanctioned selection of extremist candidates, these elected officials will represent 16.2 percent of Idahoans.

Anyone supporting closed primaries should be asking who will be representing the other 83.8 percent of Idaho's citizens.

Government covering little of our needs

The cut which the government has forced on us is not politically correct. After all, we paid into a fund for many years to protect us when we became old, yet there is no promise now to pay our medical bills.

They used our money to raise their wages while sending money overseas to assist foreign countries, but covering very little of our needs at home.

We both have bipolar and numerous medical issues which need to have daily attention, so this change disturbs us greatly.

Protect Yourself Against Colon Cancer

Men and women of all ages are diagnosed with colorectal cancer in Idaho every year. It's the second leading cause of cancer death in our state.

But colorectal cancer is very treatable when caught early. Screening through colonoscopy can prevent cancer by removing pre-cancerous polyps. And home screening kits can detect blood hidden in the stool—a potential sign of cancer.

If you have any concerns about your colon health, don't ignore your risks or warning signs. Talk to your doctor immediately, and get screened.

Call 737-2441 for a free screening kit or order online at stlukesonline.org/freekit.

Warning Signs

- ☐ Change in bowel habits; constipation or diarrhea that lasts more than two weeks
- ☐ Feeling that the bowel does not empty
- ☐ Bright red or very dark blood in the stool; black stools
- ☐ Stools that look narrower or thinner than normal
- ☐ Unexplained weight loss
- ☐ Abdominal discomfort: frequent gas pains, bloating, fullness, or cramps
- ☐ Constant fatigue
- ☐ Unexplained anemia

Risk Factors

- Talk with your doctor about early screening if you are at risk; otherwise, begin screening at age 50.
- ☐ Family history of colorectal or endometrial cancer
 - ☐ Personal history of polyps or colorectal cancer, ulcerative colitis, or Crohn's disease
 - ☐ Aging (most common over age 50)
 - ☐ Physical inactivity
 - ☐ Obesity
 - ☐ A diet high in red meat can increase your risk; a diet low in animal fat and high in fiber, fruits, and vegetables can reduce your risk.

Screening kits paid for with funds from the Brian Olson Memorial Golf Classic. To learn more about this event, email rudy.pinson@hp.com.

Emotions run high at terror hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress pushed deep into a raw and emotional debate Thursday over American Muslims who have committed terrorist attacks in the name of religion, in a hearing punctuated by tearful testimony, angry recriminations and political theater.

Republican Rep. Peter King declared U.S. Muslims are doing too little to help fight terror in America. Democrats warned of inflaming anti-Muslim sentiment and energizing al-Qaida.

Framed by photos of the burning World Trade Center and Pentagon, the families of two young men blamed the Islamic community for inspiring young men to commit terrorism. On the other side, one of the two Muslims in Congress wept while discussing a Muslim firefighter who died in the attacks.

The sharp divisions reflect a country still struggling with how best to combat terrorism nearly a decade after the September 2001 attacks. Al-Qaida has built a strategy recently around motivating young

Rep. Keith Ellison, D-Minn., who is Muslim, becomes emotional Thursday as he testifies before the House Homeland Security Committee.

American Muslims to become one-man terror cells, and the U.S. government has wrestled with fighting that effort.

King, a New York congressman and the new chairman of the House Homeland Security Committee, said he called the hearing because Muslim community leaders need to speak out more loudly against terrorism and work more closely with police and the FBI. Democrats wanted the hearing to focus on terror threats more broadly, including from white supremacists.

“This hearing today is playing into al-Qaida right now around the world,” said Rep. Sheila Jackson Lee, D-Texas, who said the committee was trampling the Constitution.

Republicans said that was nothing but political correctness.

“We have to know our enemy, and it is radical Islam in my judgment,” said Rep.

Michael McCaul of Texas. Thursday’s hearing was the first high-profile event for the new Republican majority in the House, and it roused the city. The room was packed, and officials steered onlookers into an overflow.

At one point, an exchange between Reps. Tom Marino and Al Green grew loud as they talked over each other. Green, a Texas Democrat who is black, said the terrorism hearing should have included discussion of the Ku Klux Klan. Marino, a Pennsylvania Republican who is white, said the subject of the day was terrorism, prompting the chairman to rap the gavel repeatedly as the two argued over whether the KKK was a terrorist organization.

Despite years of government focus on terrorism, dozens of unraveled terrorism plots and a few successful attacks have suggested there is no one predictable path toward violence. Thursday’s hearing offered no insight into those routes.

U.S., Europe pressure Libya but ease off militarily

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Obama administration cut ties with Libya’s remaining representatives in the U.S. on Thursday and France became the first nation to recognize Moammar Gadhafi’s opponents, adding diplomatic pressure on the Libyan government even as trans-Atlantic leaders stepped back from imminent military intervention.

In a day of intense discussions on two continents, the European Union added new sanctions on Libyan companies and Germany froze billions of dollars in Libyan government assets.

The bottom line: A bottom line that promises little but plans for the worst. The United States and NATO allies agreed to develop contingency plans for air patrols over Libya to protect civilians, but most nations hope those are never used.

“We all agreed that NATO will only act if there is demonstrable need, a sound legal basis and strong regional support,” Defense Secretary Robert Gates said following discussions at NATO headquarters in Brussels.

The military alliance will continue examining “all military options,” including protective aerial cover, Gates said. “But that’s the extent of it.”

On Thursday, fierce barrages of tank and artillery fire from Gadhafi’s loyalists threw rebels into a frantic retreat from a strategic oil port in a counteroffensive that reversed the opposition’s advance toward the capital of Tripoli and now threatens its positions in the east.

Hundreds of rebels in cars and trucks mounted with machine guns sped eastward on the Mediterranean coastal road in a seemingly disorganized flight from Ras Lanouf as an overwhelming force of rockets and shells pounded a hospital, mosque and other buildings.

Bill seeks to extend sales tax rebate for green energy

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

BOISE – Renewable energy developers may end up with a few more years to build projects without paying sales taxes on equipment.

The bill, introduced in the House Revenue and Taxation Committee on Thursday, would extend the rebate of the state's 6 percent sales tax on equipment used for renewable energy projects until Dec. 31, 2014.

The rebate was first passed by the Legislature in 2005; without the bill passing the rebate is set to expire June 30.

Wind developers have said the rebate is needed so they can be competitive with companies from neighboring states that either already offer tax breaks or don't have a sales tax.

Long-term plans for expansion, including Exergy Development Group's project in the Magic Valley, have been on hold as developers wait to see what will become of existing rebate.

To get the rebate, a project will need to be producing energy by Dec. 31, 2014.

"I think what this bill does is it tries to say, 'Ok people, those of you who will get to work and build out and start producing energy by December 2014 will continue,'" said Rep. Dennis Lake, R-Blackfoot and chairman of the House committee. "After that, you're on your own."

Because of the deadline for project completion, the bill's extension is "basically for projects that have already been identified," said Rep. George Eskridge, R-Dover, the bill's sponsor.

Committee member Rep. Leon Smith, R-Twin Falls, said he'll have some questions about the length of the extension in the legislation.

Others were less supportive.

Rep. Lenore Hardy Barrett, R-Challis, noted that the law has reached its sunset only to see another effort at extending it.

"Here we are at sunset time," she said. "I don't know why we bother to sunset anything. We never do."

Report decries America's lack of paid parental leave

By David Crary
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — Americans often take pride in ways their nation differs from others. But one distinction — lack of a nationwide policy of paid maternity leave — is cited in a new report as an embarrassment that could be redressed at low cost and without harm to employers.

"Despite its enthusiasm about 'family values,' the U.S. is decades behind other countries in ensuring the well-being of working families," said Janet Walsh, deputy director of the women's rights division of Human Rights Watch. "Being an outlier is nothing to be proud of in a case like this."

Human Rights Watch, based in New York, focuses most of its investigations on abuses abroad. But last month, with release of a report by Walsh on work/family policies in the U.S., it takes the relatively unusual step of critiquing a phenomenon affecting tens of millions of Americans.

The report, "Failing its Families,"

READ IT ONLINE

Human Rights Watch's report 'Failing its Families' can be found at: <http://www.hrw.org/en/news/2011/02/23/us-lack-paid-leave-harms-workers-children> says at least 178 countries have national laws guaranteeing paid leave for new mothers, while the handful of exceptions include the U.S., Swaziland and Papua New Guinea. More than 50 nations, including most Western countries, also guarantee paid leave for new fathers.

Past efforts in Congress to enact a paid family leave law have floundered, drawing opposition from business lobbyists who say it would be a burden on employers.

Instead, there is the 1993 Family and Medical Leave Act, which enables workers with new children or seriously ill family members to take up to 12 weeks of unpaid leave.

Who'll pay bigger fees for your debit card use?

By Alan Fram
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Bankers and merchants, pillars of the business world and frequent allies, are embroiled in a bitter lobbying battle over something Americans do 38 billion times a year — swipe their debit cards. Both sides vigorously claim to speak for consumers.

At stake is $16 billion annually that the Federal Reserve says stores pay to banks and credit card companies when customers use the cards — fees the Fed has proposed cutting.

Cut the fees, banks say, and they'll have to abandon free checking and boost other charges to consumers to recover lost revenue. Merchants say lower fees would let them drop their prices, though bankers say they doubt that would happen.

Currently, the fees typically range between 1 and 2 percent of each purchase, averaging 44 cents. The Fed has proposed capping that at 12 cents, though smaller banks could charge more. Bankers want lawmakers to delay the change in hopes that it will eventually be killed or toned down.

Patrick Lewis and Charles Garrowlock are foot soldiers in this fight's opposing infantry.

Lewis, a partner in 13 Oasis Stop 'N Go convenience stores in southern Idaho, was visiting Idaho lawmakers on Thursday urging them to back the Fed proposal.

As new, improved model hits stores, iPad hangs on to price advantage

By Peter Svensson
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK— The new iPad model hitting stores Friday comes with several improvements over the original version but the same price tag, hobbling efforts by rivals at breaking Apple Inc.'s hold on the emerging market for tablet computers.

Competitors such as Motorola Mobility Holdings Inc. can't seem to match the iPad's starting price of $499. Tablets that are comparable to the iPad in features cost hundreds of dollars more, while cheaper tablets are inferior to the iPad in quality.

This is highly unusual in the gadget business, where early products, such as the first Blu-ray players or digital cameras, are expensive. Competition then gradually brings prices down. With the iPad, the reverse is happening.

It looks as if this is a result of Apple's strategy. The company appears to have chosen, right from the start, to make less of a profit from its iPads than it does from iPods and iPhones. The move is particularly odd for a company that isn't known for cheap products.

Apple's profit margin on the $499 entry-level iPad model is about 25 percent, according to an estimate by Toni Sacconaghi at Bernstein Research.

The iPad 2 is seen at an Apple event March 2 in San Francisco. The new iPad hits stores Friday.

By contrast, the company's profit margin for all products, before corporate overhead, was 38.5 percent in the most recent quarter. He and other analysts estimate the margin for the iPhone 4 is 50 percent to 60 percent. (Apple charges about $600 for it, though it's cheaper in stores because wireless carriers subsidize it.)

Apple is telling investors to expect overall margins to keep declining, meaning competitors can't expect much of a reprieve.

There are cheaper tablet computers available, but they don't perform as well. They have poor screens, poor touch sensitivity and poor software, and they are slow. For example, Archos sells a tablet that's roughly iPad-sized for $370. Reviewers at CNET and Laptop Magazine say its screen washes out unless you're right in front of it, and it has problems sensing touch.

A tablet that can match the iPad 2 in quality and features costs much more.

Weak economic news from China, the U.S. and Spain combined with a slump in oil companies sent stocks sharply lower Thursday. The Dow Jones industrial average had its biggest one-day drop since August.
The Dow Jones industrial average fell 228.48 points, or 1.9 percent, to close at 11,984.61. McDonald's Corp. was the only stock in the Dow 30 that rose.
The Standard & Poor's 500 index fell 24.91, or 1.9 percent, to 1,295.11. The Dow and S&P 500 are still up 3 percent since the start of the year.
The Nasdaq composite fell 50.70, or 1.8 percent, to 2,701.02.
Thursday's drop in the Dow was the biggest since Aug. 11. The S&P had a larger fall recently, dropping 27.57 points on Feb. 22 as the uprising against Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi gained strength.

Leave

By excluding companies with fewer than 50 employees, it covers only about half the work force, and many who are covered cannot afford to take unpaid leave.

“Leaving paid leave to the whim of employers means millions of workers are left out, especially low-income workers who may need it most,” said Walsh, citing federal estimates that only 10 percent of private-sector workers have paid family leave benefits.

With prospects for federal legislation considered dim for now, advocates of family-friendly workplace policies hope for progress at the state level and are looking closely at California and New Jersey, the only states that have paid-leave programs.

Both states have severe budget problems overall, but the leave programs – financed entirely through small payroll tax contributions by workers – are flourishing. Both offer six weeks of paid leave for workers taking time off to bond with a new child or to care for a seriously ill child, spouse or parent.

Human Rights Watch, which interviewed dozens of parents for its report, said lack of paid leave has numerous harmful consequences – fueling post-partum depression, causing mothers to give up breast-feeding early, forcing some families into debt or onto welfare.

The Human Rights Watch report urges other states to emulate New Jersey and California by adopting paid leave programs. Any takers might get federal help – the Obama administration, in its recent budget proposal, proposed allocating $23 million to help states with startup costs for such initiatives.

Fees

He said the $275,000 he pays yearly in debit card fees trails only payroll and his properties' mortgages and rents.

“I don't think her boss is necessarily on our side,” he said spending a half hour with an aide to Rep. Mike Simpson, R-Idaho. “But maybe if we provide enough information it will change.”

Garlock, president of the Rock Valley Federal Credit Union in Loves Park, Ill., said he would lose $150,000 to $175,000 annually if the Fed's proposed cut in fees is adopted, about one third of his credit union's net annual income. “The little guys will be hit the worst. I can't sustain it,” he said during his lobbying visit last week.

Though bankers are outspending their rivals on lobbying and campaign contributions and seem to have gained momentum, merchants so far have the upper hand. The bankers are trying to get Congress to undo legislation it passed just last year, which is a tall order.

Bankers and merchants are often allied on such issues as taxes and regulation, but the debit card battle has driven them apart, each accusing the other of trying to pocket unjustified profits in what has become an emotional fight.

“Take a white kitten and put it out, and they will find ways to say how evil it is,” Lyle Beckwith, lobbyist for the National Association of Convenience Stores, said of the bankers.

“This is as close to a pitchfork and torch issue as I've seen from our guys,” said Jason Kratovil, lobbyist for the Independent Community Bankers Association.

DeMary Memorial Library receives gifts

The Friends of the DeMary Memorial Library recently presented a book and eight computer tables to the library. The book is Gilead by Marilynne Robinson, an Idaho author from Sandpoint. It won a Pulitzer Prize for fiction in 2005, the only time one has been won by an Idaho author. The tables were obtained through a grant from the First Federal Charitable Foundation. They created more space in the computer room and brought a great improvement to the library and its computer users. The book is Gilead by Marilynne Robinson, an Idaho author from Sandpoint. It won a Pulitzer Prize for fiction in 2005, the only time one has been won by an Idaho author.

Son's sickly look, constant body shaking worry mother

DEAR DR. GOTT: My son is 60-plus years old and has been reasonably healthy. He has been hospitalized a couple of times for pneumonia. Unfortunately, he still smokes.

Over the past few years, he has developed a visible constant shaking of his body, particularly noticeable in his arms and hands, even when he is eating. He is married and has no children. Seeing him during the holidays, my husband (his stepdad) and I were shocked at his appearance. He has always been a handsome man. Now, apart from the frightening, continuous shaking, he has a sick, unhealthy color, with his face blotchy and gray. His eyes are rather sullen and baglike. He coughs occasionally, sometimes almost choking.

When asked, his wife said he has been to the doctor, had a few preliminary tests and is fine. "They could find nothing wrong with him."

My husband and I love them both, and we are so worried about my son. What can we do? He has always been a dear man, and we are just sick over this.

DEAR READER: Tremors are unintentional muscle movements that commonly affect the hands, arms, legs, head, face and other areas of the body. There are more than 20 types of tremor that are often caused by difficulties in parts of the brain that control muscles. They occur at any age but are more common in middle-aged and older men and women. The cause of body shaking (tremors) depends on which body parts are involved. Simple possibilities include a feeling of apprehension or nervousness brought on by an event that occurred or is pending; prescribed drugs such as stimulants and amphetamines with shaking as a side effect; the excessive use of alcohol or withdrawal from it; or stroke, multiple sclerosis, traumatic brain injury, Parkinson's and Huntington's disease.

Beyond the body shaking, you indicate your son continues to smoke and cough, his complexion is gray and he appears unhealthy. This is of more concern to me from a medical point of view. He may have cardiac abnormalities, chronic obstructive pulmonary disease or other more ominous problems. If his wife indicates he is fine, it would likely be in his best interest to make an appointment with another physician for a complete examination, blood work, X-rays, an EKG and anything else the doctor deems appropriate. My guess is that he should also consult a top-notch neurologist, who can get to the bottom of his tremors and get him back on track.

You have your hands full. Speak with your son, but keep it short and sweet. You are concerned, you love him, and you want him around for many more years. Ask him to seek medical help as a favor to you (and to him and his wife) to ensure this. Help is out there. He simply has to reach out and help himself. Good luck.

Readers who would like information on one form of tremor can order my Health Report "Parkinson's Disease" by sending a No. 10 envelope and a $2 check or money order made payable to Newsletter and mailed to Newsletter, P.O. Box 167, Wickliffe, OH 44092-0167. Be sure to mention the title or print an order form off my website at www.AskDrGottMD.com.

Concealed gun bill advances

Opposition comes from universities, state Board of Ed

By Jessie L. Bonner
Associated Press writer

BOISE — Idaho lawmakers are advancing legislation to give college students and professors the right to carry guns on campus.

The House State Affairs Committee signed off on a measure Thursday that would direct universities to allow concealed handguns. The bill was approved on an 11-8 vote despite opposition from the state Board of Education and Idaho's public universities. It now goes to the full House.

Supporters of the legislation argue gun violence on campuses, such as the 2007 mass shootings at Virginia Tech, show the best defense against a gunman is students who can shoot back.

Idaho law now gives university and college presidents authority to prohibit firearms on campus. Boise

"I want to go on record as being in favor of something to prevent further taking of life."

— Rep. Ken Andrus, R-Lava Hot Springs

State University, Idaho State University, the University of Idaho, Lewis-Clark State College and several community colleges throughout the state have adopted their own regulations to prohibit guns on campus.

"If we can prevent the death of one or more people because some deranged person comes and opens fire, like they did at Virginia Tech, I want to go on record as being in favor of something to prevent further taking of life," said Rep. Ken Andrus, R-Lava Hot Springs.

Texas lawmakers are also considering legislation to allow college students and professors to carry guns on campus, adding momentum to a national campaign to open this part of society to firearms. It would become the second state, following Utah, to pass such a broad-based law. Colorado gives colleges the option, and several have allowed handguns.

In Idaho, Republican state Rep. Erik Simpson's bill would allow students, faculty, staff members and visitors who have concealed-firearms permits to carry their guns anywhere on campus except undergraduate residence halls. Guns would be allowed at athletic events.

Simpson, of Idaho Falls, contends his legislation would increase safety at the state's four public universities and community colleges. He says letting students, faculty or others carry concealed guns heightens the chances they could help prevent a violent crime.

But during two days of public hearings, opponents argued allowing firearms at universities would only accelerate conflict and leave students and faculty in fear, not knowing who might pull a gun over a poor grade, a broken romance, a drunken fraternity argument, or an altercation at a football game.

"I don't want to sit next to someone that's carrying a gun," said Rep. Carlos Bilbao, a Republican from Emmett who often attends Boise State University football and basketball games.

Simpson countered that in Idaho, lawmakers are often exposed to people who carry concealed firearms.

Idaho allows people with concealed-weapons permits to carry their firearms on them except in courthouses, juvenile detention facilities, prisons, jails and at public and private schools, according to the Idaho attorney general's office.

"You sit next to people who carry guns in restaurants now. You shop in supermarkets where people carry weapons," Simpson said. "How is sitting next to someone at a football game different?"

Pilot-hunters aim cronyism charges at House leader

By John Miller
Associated Press writer

BOISE — The House's No. 2 elected official, Majority Leader Mike Moyle, has become the target of fury from hunters who accuse him of using his position to restrict access to a stash of western Idaho elk for just an elite few.

Moyle, R-Star, wants to require pilots who land their rugged back-country planes on unofficial landing sites like gravel bars or dry lake beds on state or federal land to wait at least one day before shouldering their rifles and beginning their hunt.

Moyle, whose Capitol office features a large wolf pelt and six-point elk antlers, was contacted by a hunting buddy who wants Idaho to adopt restrictions similar to states like Alaska and Utah aimed at preventing hunters from spotting big game from the air, landing, then making a quick, easy kill. Having witnessed such airborne incursions personally, Moyle insists he has long wanted to address the issue.

"I don't want to stop people from using their planes to hunt," Moyle told The Associated Press on Thursday. "I just don't want it abused."

But at a hearing Wednesday, Idaho residents who fly to their hunts told the House Resources and Conservation Committee they suspect Moyle really aims to discourage them from touching down on a dry lake bed below Washington County's 4,026-foot Sugarloaf Summit.

This mountaintop in western Idaho includes thousands of acres of state and Bureau of Land Management territory but is largely surrounded by private holdings whose owner charges thousands of dollars for access privileges. Flying in is cheaper and easier than walking. What's more, the hunting buddy who approached Moyle about these changes is one of those who lease the private holdings surrounding the public land.

"This isn't about protection of animals, it's not about ethical hunting," said Toby Ashley, a Boise resident. "It's about access to public ground."

Moyle

Benjamin Brandt, one of Ashley's hunting partners, recalled being dropped off by plane last October with his teen son before killing an elk about five hours later. The following day, Brandt said he was preparing to trek out on foot when he was confronted — and accused of trespassing — by one of the men who leases the private land. Brandt said the message was clear: Stay off Sugarloaf.

Bob Price, the Boise resident who is among those who lease the private holdings, has hunted birds with Moyle, the two having met through Price's son, a Boise lawyer.

But Price said he's not trying to use his connection to House leadership to scare off hunters from his stomping grounds.

He only wants to keep pilot-hunters from gaining an unfair advantage over their earthbound compatriots. Using a plane affords a hunter a good view of elk herds from the skies, allowing them to quickly set off in pursuit once they land. Waiting a day after landing levels the playing field, Price said.

House OKs bill to shield farms from nuisance suits

BOISE (AP) — Republican legislators powered a bill through the House, casting aside objections from Democrats who said it could block local government planners to determine the character of their communities.

The vote Thursday was 57-11 to help farms, feedlots and other agriculture-related operations to expand without fear of neighbors' challenges.

It also underscores the continuing power of ag in Idaho politics.

Rep. Gayle Batt, an incoterim GOP lawmaker from rural southwestern Idaho, said Idaho has "folks moving out into the country that don't understand the basic necessities" of why farmers in some instances need to fire up their tractors and other equipment at night.

Democratic Rep. Phylis King of Boise contends this will interfere with local control, while Rep. Bill Killen argued it extends beyond farming activities to include industrial installations.

COMEDY CLUB TRIES INVISIBLE ROPES, BAT HUNTING, SWEDISH CHEF

By Emily Katseanes
Times-News correspondent

Like athletes, the members of Haphazard Comedy Club warm up before leaping into the big games. But these exercises are with invisible balls.

Five College of Southern Idaho students and one professor gathered in a circle Feb. 16 and mimed handing around various balls. The giver had to call someone's name and announce what ball he was getting rid of. The recipient had to repeat the object's name and say "thank you" before passing it to another person.

"Jacob, red ball."
"Red ball, thank you," Jacob Kuisti replied.

After a couple of sedate rounds, the pace picked up. Suddenly people were kicking imaginary soccer balls, rolling nonexistent bocci balls and swinging clubs at invisible golf balls.

To the chagrin of Alex Payne and the amusement of everyone else, he ended up juggling an impossible number of balls.

"Tiny ball, red ball, blue ball and I can't remember — oh, volleyball," Payne said, generating more laughter.

Payne and his fellow invisible-ball handlers are part of an improvised comedy troupe formed this year at CSI. For every joke — like when Jesse Curtis came in late and was dubbed Norm, leading to a group riff on "Cheers" — there is some serious hard work.

In another exercise that evening, the comedians paired up to compete for control of an invisible rope. After a few minutes of intense struggles and only a few victories, the group discussed what made the battles funny or — more often — not funny. In the next setup, one small Kaitlyn Henning was pitted against the rest of the troupe.

"What would an audience want to see?" asked Brendan Rowlands, the troupe's faculty adviser and fellow purveyor of slapstick, before the tugging began.

The comedians agreed the audience would laugh if Henning won,

TALENT will TRIUMPH

Meet a contest's
10 finalists

By Melissa Davlin ♦ Times-News writer

There's a lot of talent in Magic Valley, and Lighthouse Christian Fellowship wants to show it off.

Lighthouse is hosting its second Magic Valley's Got Talent gala dinner on Saturday. The Top 10 contestants compete for a grand prize of $3,000, while second- and third-place winners get $1,500 and $500, respectively.

Lighthouse held video auditions and live auditions starting in December, and judges picked the top 30 from those short performances. Judges at a February show narrowed the field to 10.

After Saturday night's Top 10 show, judges will choose three acts to immediately perform again. Those three performances will be broadcast at 9 p.m. Viewers can vote by text, while the live audience votes with pen and paper.

Want a sneak peak at the show? Check out our profiles of the Top 10.

Leah Schaal

Singer

Schaal, 17, grew up singing worship music. But for the gala competition, the Twin Falls teen is tackling a song made for big voices: "When You Believe" by Mariah Carey and Whitney Houston.

"I don't know why I do that to myself," she said. But she's up for the challenge. For her audition, she sang "So Small" by Carrie Underwood, another huge song. Her performance impressed the judges enough to move her to the Top 10.

"It's been a really fun experience that has stretched me vocally more than I've ever been stretched probably," Schaal said.

SHOWDOWN AT THE MIC

- What: Top 10 gala for Magic Valley's Got Talent
- When: 5:30 p.m. Saturday
- Where: Lighthouse Christian School, 960 Eastland Drive, Twin Falls
- Tickets: Admission is $50 per person, or $1,500 for a premiere or corporate table for 10. Includes a catered dinner by Local Dish and River Rock Grill.

Tickets will not be available at the door, so buy them in advance at magicvalleysgottalent.com.

- Vote: Can't make it to the show? Watch the Top 3 live on Saturday night at magicvalleysgottalent.com or on KMVT. The broadcast starts at 9 p.m., and viewers can vote by text message for the winning act.

'People's tenor' sings in Sun Valley

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

SUN VALLEY — Alfie Boe might have spent his life polishing and spray painting cars at a sports car factory in Blackpool, England, had it not been for his father.

His father played favorite operatic arias for his nine children every Sunday as they sat down to the family meal. While Boe preferred football and rock music, those Sunday afternoons rubbed off on him.

He was entertaining his fellow workers with an aria when a customer who night on PBS.

Idahoans will get to see this 37-year-old singing sensation in person March 19. He’ll fly from London, where he lives with his wife and 2-year-old daughter, to Sun Valley for a concert hosted by Sun Valley Opera and Sun Valley Resort.

“We feel so fortunate to have signed him before his meteoric rise as a star,” said Mary Jo Helmeke of Sun Valley Opera.

“It would be pretty hard to touch him today,” agreed opera co-founder Frank Meyer.

At 14 Boe joined a local operatic company because his sister told him it would be a good way to meet girls. He sang in amateur productions of “Carmen” and “Il Trovatore.” And then, after his Gilbert and Sullivan tour, he entered the Royal College of Music in London on scholarship.

But Boe didn’t stay. He took a detour into rock ‘n’ roll as “Opera Dude,” then returned to classical music, enrolling in the Royal Opera House’s Young Artists Programme. But six months into the two-year course, he again left — this time to star in filmmaker Baz Luhrmann’s “La Boheme” on Broadway.

From there he toured with the Boston Pops singing musical theater and released a number of albums before returning to Britain — and opera.

Boe has no regrets about his choice to leave opera awhile for Broadway.

“They’re two very different worlds, obviously, but my life on Broadway was so exciting and something else,” he said. “I love classical music and opera. Don’t get me wrong, but that world is quite insular and can be intimidating to a new audience. As a singer, I want to dispel that image and be able to play to a wider audience and reach so many more people with my song. I don’t like being categorized as an opera singer, as it limits what you can and can’t sing, plus the audience you play to. There’s a lot of great music out there that I want to perform.”

Boe has been working with the Prince of Wales Arts and Kids Foundation to introduce children to opera.

“It’s so important to inspire and encourage the youth of our nations in music and the arts no matter what the genre it is,” he said. “They are the future in the world of music, dance, film, TV and other visual art forms, whether it be as a performer or an audience member.”

Boe said he’ll sing the songs that are close to his heart while in Sun Valley, including some Italian songs, some show tunes and some from his album “Bring Him Home.” The album includes “Pure Imagination” from “Willy Wonka and the Chocolate Factory,” “Come What May” from Henning was victorious.

After warmups, the troupe ran through “games” — practice set-ups and skit beginnings that could be performed in front of an audience. The group was divided into actors on stage and an audience in seats, switching frequently.

In one game, audience members got up and left as soon as they stopped being interested in a skit. When Joseph Sunderland mimed hunting bats or giant butterflies, he lasted 20 seconds before losing his audience. Considering the goal to hold onto fellow actors’ attention for 15 seconds, it was a pretty good run.

But the audience’s mental acrobatics rivaled Sunderland’s performance. In one cerebral dissection of what made them laugh, the comedians decided Sunderland’s hunt had nowhere unknown to go.

“People are interested when they don’t know what’s happening,” David Duckett said.

In another game, the comedians developed characters to give the audience advice, then brainstormed ways to make them more real. Should Jeremy Fechner create a new character instead of his recurring Swedish chef Sven?

“I was about to accuse

you of not really being Swedish,” Rowlands said. “Which can be a really good character if the audience knows you’re never really Sven.”

Even before finishing a skit, the comedians were constantly thinking. They made sure the emcee jumped in fast enough, and they rejected the audience’s bland suggestions. They re-did skits to refine delivery.

More than anything else, they laughed.

Rock, pop, jazz music are all reinvented as vocal percussion

Times-News

They have percussion without drums. They have a rhythm section without a bass. The only instruments on stage are nine voices.

A cappella group Vocal Point, an international collegiate champion from Brigham Young University, will bring its high-energy performance to Twin Falls this month. Expect a family-friendly show of harmony, humor and vocal percussion.

The singers perform at 7:30 p.m. March 18 at the College of Southern Idaho's Fine Arts Auditorium. Tickets are $12 through today ($15 on Saturday or later), at the CSI Box Office; Welch Music in Twin Falls and Burley; Dunkley Music, Bell's Books and Crowley's in Twin Falls; the Book Plaza in Burley; and online at alumni.byu.edu.vpintwin.

Utah-based a cappella group Vocal Point will perform in Twin Falls this month.

Vocal Point's repertoire takes in rock, pop, country, jazz and R&B.

"This nine-man group takes the songs you hear on the radio, retools them and delivers a new rendition, complete with all the complex instrumentation done entirely with their mouths," a BYU announcement said.

The group performs for more than 50,000 people each year, promoters say. In July, Vocal Point performed "The Star-Spangled Banner" for an audience of more than 80,000 at Boy Scouts of America's centennial celebration. Vocal Point has performed for the San Francisco Giants at 3Com Stadium and for ambassadors from around the world in Washington, D.C. In 2002, at the invitation of the Salt Lake Organizing Committee, the group performed at major venues for the Winter Olympics.

In June 2008, Vocal Point released its sixth album, "Nonstop," featuring recordings by three configurations of the group from 2004 to '07. In 2006, Vocal Point took first place at the International Championship of Collegiate A Cappella. In 2005, The Faith-Centered Music Association awarded the group three Pearl Awards, including best performing artist and best recording group.

Profiles

mic.ill
Rapper

You might have seen Twin Falls rapper Michael Summer at last year's gala performance, where he performed with Tony Garrett as Christian rap group Mouth of Christ. The group is still together, but now that Garrett has moved out of state, Summer usually flies solo as mic.ill.

This year's competition is easier for the more experienced Summer. In 2010, the group had only so much material, so it was obvious what to perform. Now, Summer, 26, has a lot of solid songs to choose from. He plans to perform "Rise and Shine" for the gala dinner, and a mix of three songs from the newest Mouth of Christ album.

Kalie and Jenny
Singers

Kalie Wright of Kimberly (right) and Jenny Dawson of Twin Falls, both 17, have performed together for only a couple of months. But already, they're wowing listeners. The two play guitar and sing covers of pop and country songs and write a few of their own. The competition has forced them to put songs together quickly, but the teens are enjoying the challenge.

"We're having a lot of fun, and this is a really good experience," Wright said.

David Bolster
Drums

Bolster, 59, made MVGT audiences laugh last year with his cowboy comedy skit. He's back again, but with a new talent. Bolster has been drumming for more than 40 years, and is combining marching band music, "Wipeout" and Michael Jackson's "Thriller" for a solo drumming experience. Watch for his super-quick costume changes.

"In the time frame that I have, it moves very, very quickly," the Twin Falls drummer said.

ASHLEY SMITH/Times-News

David Bolster has been drumming for decades — in many locations, and with various bands.

Energico
Bell quartet

Bell choirs are usually associated with church music and Christmas, but four Magic Valley teens hope to change that.

Emily Dixon, 17, McKenzie Manning, 16, Barrett Manning, 14, and Truman Whitney, 15, participate in a youth bell choir but wanted to do something more challenging for a 2010 music competition. They did well and enjoyed the experience, "so we kept going," Dixon said.

The quartet arranges many of its own pieces from piano music and other sources. For the Top 10 performance, the ringers plan to play the jazzy "Pink Panther" theme.

Elena Coats
Singer and guitarist

Coats is no stranger to MVGT. The 13-year-old Twin Falls singer won second place in last year's competition, taking home $1,000 for her efforts. She's back with new songs in her arsenal.

"Last year, I was more Taylor Swift and Jewel," Coats said. "And I still do a bunch of that stuff, and that's where I get a lot of inspiration for writing my music." But she's also branching out into other songs, and she's considering singing one of her original pieces for the Top 10 competition.

"No matter what happens, it's a fun experience," she said.

Laura Taylor
Singer and guitarist

The Twin Falls singer and acoustic guitarist is a regular on the Magic Valley live music scene, and while she doesn't have an album out, she wows audiences with her strong voice. Taylor, 25, combines covers with original material. No word on what she'll play for the gala, but it's sure to be sweet and soulful.

DREW NASH/Times-News

Laura Taylor performs for a modest crowd Jan. 19 at Anchor Bistro and Bar in Twin Falls.

Michael Sandoval
Dancer

Sandoval, 20, describes his style as "illusion hip hop."

"I look like I'm slowing time down," the Wendell dancer said. He does all his own choreography, and about half of his performances are freestyle. He generates his own electronic beats to dance to, making his performances one-of-a-kind.

"Just to be able to show people what I can do is more than enough for me," Sandoval said.

Caitlin and Kelsi Fadness
Singers

Kelsi, 17, performed in last year's competition and this year is joined by her sister Caitlin, 22. The Twin Falls duo couldn't be reached for comment, but Rachel Bosma of Lighthouse Christian Fellowship described their style as alternative rock. She said their "harmonies are tight and beautiful, and their style is clearly their own."

Editor's picks

This week, there's an entertaining option for every one of your alter egos.

For the you who dresses in black and thoughtfully sips wine: tonight's Gallery Walk around Ketchum, where you can nibble hors d'oeuvres and chat with artists. That one's free. But if you have $100 to drop on a ticket, try Ketchum's culinary-themed library benefit on Sunday. It's classy but low-key.

For the you in cowboy boots: country-western singer Buddy Jewell's Burley concert on Saturday. You can't line dance in the aisles of the King Fine Arts Center, however.

For the you eager to laugh: Haphazard Comedy Club's first improv show tonight. These college comedians have sharpened their acts with imaginative exercises and ruthless critique.

For the you willing to think about death: astrophysicist Tom Stroman's Saturday lecture about how stars die, or archaeology professor Max Pavesic's Wednesday talk on Idaho's ancient burial behavior.

For your critical self: the Magic Valley's Got Talent finals on Saturday, where your vote helps knock out the competition. And Tuesday's Curtain Call Awards Gala, where you can toast the best of Magic Valley's community theater.

For the you who knows a few words of French: De Temps Antan's Sun Valley concert on Saturday. Expect traditional Quebec melodies reinvented for fiddle, accordion, harmonica, guitar and bouzouki.

For the you who wishes for a red beard and a green coat: the St. Patrick's Day Parade in downtown Twin Falls. Expect a crowd of outlandish characters, with or without green hair dye.

For event details, see the full calendar in today's Entertainment section.

New Orleans isn't the only place in North America for French-inflected music. Traditional music from Quebec has the same joie de vivre, and nobody does it better than De Temps Antan, promoters say.

The three-man group performs Saturday in Sun Valley, with fiddles, accordion, guitar, bouzouki and a variety of other instruments.

"If you like Beausoleil and Cajun music, you'll love these guys," said Kristine Bretall of Sun Valley Center for the Arts. "Their music ranges from piercingly beautiful ballads to buoyant dance tunes."

Since 2003, Eric Beaudry, Andre Brunet and Pierre-Luc Dupuis — all natives of the province of Quebec — have been performing time-honored melodies from French-speaking Canada. They research old material and give it new arrangements.

All three musicians spent time as members of La Bottine Souriante, one of Quebec's best-known traditional music groups. Brunet was Canadian Grand Master fiddler in 2008 and participated in the opening ceremony of the 2010 Winter Olympics in Vancouver.

Saturday's concert is at 6:30 p.m. at Sun Valley Opera House. Tickets are $20 for Sun Valley Center members and $30 for others, at sunvalleycenter.org or 726-9491, ext. 10.

Shakespeare condensed: Loving all the wrong people

Times-News

Shipwreck, disguise, a love triangle, mistaken identity and yellow stockings: That's the recipe for Shakespeare's comedic romance "Twelfth Night," which Boise-based Idaho Shakespeare Festival will bring to Twin Falls this month.

The play, a Magic Valley Arts Council offering, is set for 7:30 p.m. March 18 at Twin Falls Center for the Arts. Tickets are $10, at the center or 734-2787.

"Twelfth Night" tells of Orsino, the Duke of Illyria, and his deep love for Olivia. Meanwhile, the shipwrecked Viola, separated from her twin brother, Sebastian, disguises herself as a man, takes the name of Cesario, enters Orsino's service, and is ordered to woo Olivia for him. Olivia falls in love with Cesario (Viola disguised), and Cesario falls in love with Orsino. Then Sebastian surfaces and falls for Olivia. Complicated? So is love.

This Idaho Shakespeare

Festival production — a fast 50-minute version of the Bard's comedy — is a part of Shakespeare for a New Generation, a national initiative to bring a live Shakespeare theater experience to all generations.

ISF is a regional repertory theater that provides educational theater around Idaho. The March 18 show's proceeds will provide an ISF Idaho Theater for Youth performance of "Hansel & Gretel's Grimm Tale" for students at a local elementary school.

Veronica Von Tobel and Rod Wolfe act in Idaho Shakespeare Festival's touring production of 'Twelfth Night.' See it this month in Twin Falls.

BYU overcomes
TCU's upset bid,
moves along in
MWC tourney

By Arnie Stapleton
Associated Press writer

LAS VEGAS — The stat sheet was ugly and the final score certainly won't impress the NCAA tournament selection committee. But to BYU coach Dave Rose, the No. 8 Cougars' 64-58 squeaker over TCU on Thursday was a thing of beauty.

"I was really pleased with how we competed. I thought our team in crucial situations got big rebounds. We made big shots. We were able to win that first-round game, which is very difficult, to play a team for the third time," Rose declared after the Cougars advanced to the semifinals of the Mountain West Conference tournament.

The Cougars (29-3) will face nemesis New Mexico, which has handed them two of their three losses this season — and by an average of 13.5 points.

As usual, Jimmer Fredette led the Cougars, scoring 24 points. But with suspended teammate Brandon Davies watching from the bench in a black dress shirt and slacks, the top-seeded Cougars had a tougher time than expected against a TCU team that went 1-15 in conference play before snapping a 13-game skid with a win over

The Cougars trailed the ninth-seeded Horned Frogs 34-33 at halftime and didn't take the lead for good until the 12:44 mark, when Jackson Emery swished a 3-pointer from the left corner to break a 40-all tie.

ISU athletic program given full NCAA certification

Times-News

POCATELLO — Idaho State University's athletic department has been fully certified by the NCAA without condition, the school announced in a press release issued Thursday. The certification is part of a standard ongoing process involving all NCAA Division I member schools.

The purpose of athletics certification is to ensure integrity in the institution's athletics program and to assist institutions in improving their athletics department, according to the NCAA.

Legislation mandating athletics certification was adopted by the NCAA in 1993, with the first certification phase taking place on a five-year cycle and the second and third rounds occurring over a 10-year cycle.

Last summer Idaho State received NCAA certification with one condition: that it did not fully implement the gender equity plan associated with second-cycle certification.

In response the university constructed a new softball complex and increased funding for the program, completed new locker rooms for women's volleyball, softball and basketball, and upped the number of women's athletic scholarships.

Twin Falls sweeps March Madness Tournament

By Stephen Meyers
Times-News writer

The greens were soft, bunkers were filled with snow and pools of water stood on the edge of the fairways, but for Twin Falls, Canyon Ridge, Jerome and Minico, it was still a round of golf to kick off the 2011 season.

Moved back a day due to snow, the March Madness Golf Tournament at Twin Falls Golf Club provided much-needed competition to area team enduring a sporadic start to their seasons due to the inclement weather.

"It's great to be back on the course," said Twin Falls junior Katherine Reed. "The first tournament is really like a practice for us. This is probably only our third practice since we started a couple weeks ago."

Added her teammate Sydney Lee: "I look at what's going to come back first, what am I going to need to work on the most?"

Lee shot 86, Reed 89 and Emma Bride 85 to lead the Twin Falls girls team over Canyon Ridge for the win. The Bruins shot a combined 356 to the Riverhawks' 572 as the Bruins swept the top five.

It was a little closer on the boys side as Twin Falls Blue narrowly edged Canyon Ridge Crimson 310 to 316.

Derek Cook of Canyon Ridge took home the top honors, shooting a 72 to win the tournament.

One-over with six holes left, Cook limped to the finish, bogeying three of his final holes, but he held off Kyle Miley and Connor Meyerhoeffer of Twin Falls, who both finished at 74.

"It was really windy in the morning, but toward the end of the day on the back nine it calmed down and the final holes were pretty good," Cook said. "I knew I had a chance (to win it), talking with the other guys and they weren't playing as well. I finished kind of bad, but I'm still happy with how I played today."

Miley, Meyerhoeffer, Trevor Zearth of Twin Falls (76) and Minico's Kody Miller (76) rounded out the top five.

Canyon Ridge and Twin Falls expect to see close matches throughout the season.

The Riverhawks are heavy on experience with three seniors and two juniors, while the Bruins, who had two teams Thursday, saw the freshman team finish fourth, led by Meyerhoeffer.

"We're really strong this year. We're a really young team, but we should be really good. We want to get a state championship," said Twin Falls sophomore Matthew Frank.

Said Cook: "I think we can get them this year. We have some good players who can shoot better than today and we have a lot of experience."

Kimberly's Casperson picks up scholarship recognition

Times-News

The awards are piling in.

A day after Twin Falls senior Jayson Welker was announced as a recipient of a $500 academic scholarship by the Southern Idaho Chapter of the National Football Foundation and College Hall of Fame, Kimberly High School announced that senior Cody Casperson has also been named as an honoree.

The award is presented to eight senior football players from around the state who have distinguished themselves on the football field, in the classroom and in extracurricular activities that display leadership, according to the foundation.

In addition to the scholarship, recipients of this particular award have their names entered into a book held at the College Football Hall of Fame in South Bend, Ind.

Past area winners include Ben Kohring (Twin Falls, 1997), Curt Osborne (Hagerman, 1998), Sean Brown (Buhl, 1998), Nick Smith (Camas County, 1998), Jamon Frostensen (Camas County, 1999), Rich Arrossa (Kimberly, 1999), Mike

McHargue (Gooding, 1999), David Thibault (Valley, 2000), Pat Hobbs (Twin Falls, 2000), Andrew Coats (Minico, 2001), Chris Maughan (Dietrich, 2002), Sean Goodbody (Wendell, 2003), Jysen Lancaster (Wendell, 2004), Dakota Dalin (Camas County, 2005), Cory

Rutkowski (Wood River, 2007), Will Chivers (Buhl, 2007), Dane Brodhead (Minico, 2008), Skylar Morgan (Minico, 2009), Jake Lammers (Jerome, 2009), Brett Kohring (Twin Falls, 2010), David Griffin (Minico, 2010) and Nick Howard (Castelford, 2010).

McHan, Baker lead Gooding to sweep home invite

Times-News

Mike McHan and Danielle Baker led the Gooding boys and girls teams to the sweep at the Senators' season-opening home track and field invitational Thursday.

The Gooding boys just edged Declo 112.5 to 108 and the girls beat Filer 111-96.

McHan won both the 1,600 and 3,200 meter races, while Baker swept the 100 and 200 meters.

Derek Evans of Gooding won both the pole vault and the high jump, while Camas County's Katelyn Peterson swept the triple jump and high jump.

Sara Arellano of Glenns Ferry won the shot put and discus.

Spartans pull off another upset, beat Idaho 74-68

LAS VEGAS — Keith Shamburger and Adrian Oliver had 28 points each, and San Jose State knocked off another higher seed in the Western Athletic Conference tournament by beating Idaho 74-68 in the quarterfinals on Thursday.

San Jose State (17-14), the No. 8 seed, pulled off a mild upset in the WAC opener, knocking off fifth-seeded Hawaii to extend its season at least one more game. The Spartans earned another reprieve behind their perimeter shooting, hitting 13 3-pointers, including six each by Shamburger and Oliver.

Next up is a daunting task in Friday's semifinals: against No. 23 Utah State, the tournament's top seed and overwhelming favorite.

Fourth-seeded Idaho (18-13) dominated inside, outscoring the Spartans 32-12, but couldn't keep up with Shamburger and Oliver on the perimeter, ending an up-and-down season on a down note.

NEW MEXICO STATE 66, NEVADA 60

LAS VEGAS — Troy Gillenwater had 18 points, Gordo Castillo added 14 while hitting all 10 of his free throws and New Mexico State grinded out a 66-60 win over Nevada in the quarterfinals of the Western Athletic Conference tournament on Thursday.

New Mexico State (16-16), the defending WAC tournament champions, got off to an awful start and never found much of a rhythm in a defensive-dominated game. Gillenwater made some big plays down the stretch and Castillo hit four free throws in the final 31 seconds to seal the win, sending the Aggies into Friday's semifinals against Boise State.

NO. 7 SAN DIEGO STATE 64, UTAH 50

LAS VEGAS — Kawhi Leonard and Malcolm Thomas each had a double-double to help No. 7 San Diego State beat Utah 64-50 in the Mountain West Conference quarterfinals Thursday night, giving the Aztecs the first 30-win season in their 90-year history.

Leonard scored 13 points and pulled down 12 rebounds before sitting out the final 7 minutes as a precaution because of a tight back. Thomas pitched in 13 points, 10 boards and eight assists for the defending tournament champions, who will face the UNLV-Air Force winner Friday night at the Thomas & Mack Center.

NEW MEXICO 67, COLORADO STATE 61

LAS VEGAS — New Mexico earned a shot at beating BYU for a third time by outlasting Colorado State 67-61 in the quarterfinals of the Mountain West Conference tournament Thursday.

Drew Gordon had a double-double with 13 points and 13 rebounds and Kendall Williams, the league's freshman of the year, led the Lobos (21-11) with 16 points.

No. 8 BYU is 29-1 against everybody else but 0-2 against New Mexico, which beat the Cougars 86-77 in Albuquerque and 82-64 last week in Provo, Utah, when BYU was without center Brandon Davies, who was suspended for violating the school's honor code.

NO. 2 KANSAS 63, OKLAHOMA STATE 62

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Mario Little's three-point play broke a tie with 71 seconds to go and Oklahoma State missed a desperation heave at the buzzer, allowing No. 2 Kansas to escape with a 63-62 victory Thursday in the quarterfinals of the Big 12 tournament.

Big 12 player of the year Marcus Morris, shut down most of the second half, hit a key 3-pointer for the Jayhawks (30-2), who play Colorado in the semifinals Friday night. Kansas trailed by as many as eight until Oklahoma State (19-13) got in deep foul trouble in the second half.

NO. 21 CONNECTICUT 76, NO. 3 PITTSBURGH 74

NEW YORK — Kemba Walker hit the winning basket on a classic stepback jumper at the buzzer and Connecticut stunned Pittsburgh in the quarterfinals of the Big East tournament.

Walker got the ball at the top of the key with 15 seconds left and found himself guarded by 6-foot-10 Gary McGhee after the Panthers switched on a screen. The shifty guard used a crossover and shoulder roll to dump McGhee to the ground, then calmly swished the shot.

The Huskies (24-9) have won three games in three days after a late-season slide sent them to the No. 9 seed in the Big East tournament. They'll face fourth-seeded Syracuse in the semifinals Friday night.

NO. 4 NOTRE DAME 89, NO. 25 CINCINNATI 51

NEW YORK — Ben Hansbrough led a brutally efficient attack with 23 points and Notre Dame dismantled one of the nation's best defenses in a quarterfinal rout of Cincinnati at the Big East tournament.

The league's player of the year had plenty of help.

Carleton Scott scored 18 points and Tim Abromaitis had 17 for the Fighting Irish (26-5), who have already won more games than in any other season under longtime coach Mike Brey.

NO. 10 TEXAS 74, OKLAHOMA 54

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Jordan Hamilton and Tristan Thompson each had a double-double, helping Texas cruise past Oklahoma in a lopsided quarterfinal at the Big12 tournament.

The Longhorns, who beat Oklahoma for the third time this season and 11th in 13 meetings, led by as many as 25 and never let the Sooners (14-18) get closer than 13 after that.

NO. 11 SYRACUSE 79, NO. 17 ST. JOHN'S 73

NEW YORK — Brandon Triche had a season-high 22 points and freshman center Fab Melo scored a career-high 12, including two layups in the final 2 minutes, to help Syracuse beat St. John's in the Big East quarterfinals.

Melo, a 7-foot native of Brazil who has been inconsistent in his rookie season, gave the fourth-seeded Orange (26-6) the lead for good at 70-68 with a layup off an in-bounds pass with 2 minutes left. He added another layup on a bounce pass from Triche that made it 74-70 with 32 seconds left.

NO. 14 LOUISVILLE 81, MARQUETTE 56

NEW YORK — Mike Marra hit six 3-pointers and had 22 points to lead No. 14 Louisville to an 81-56 victory over Marquette on Thursday night in the quarterfinals of the Big East tournament.

The third-seeded Cardinals (24-8) will play second-seeded Notre Dame on Friday night in the semifinals. The fourth-ranked Fighting Irish (26-5) beat Cincinnati 89-51 in the quarterfinals.

NO. 16 ARIZONA 78, OREGON STATE 69

LOS ANGELES — Derrick Williams scored 22 points and Arizona rode its 3-point shooting to a victory over Oregon State in the Pac-10 tournament quarterfinals.

The top-seeded Wildcats (26-6) advanced to play fourth-seeded Southern California in Friday's semifinals at Staples Center.

COLORADO 87, NO. 19 KANSAS STATE 75

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Cory Higgins scored 28 points, Alec Burks had 24 and Colorado beat Kansas State for the third time this season, ousting the Wildcats in the Big 12 tournament quarterfinals.

Colorado (21-12), after losing nine in a row to Kansas State, was the only team to beat the streaking Wildcats (22-10) in their final nine games. The latest win was a big one for the Buffaloes as they try to secure an NCAA tournament bid.

Higgins had 19 points in the second half, picking up the slack while Burks struggled with three fouls and spent much of the time on the bench.

Heat snap 5-game slide, top Lakers

MIAMI (AP) — Less than 2 minutes to go, tie game, Kobe Bryant with the basketball and staring down Dwyane Wade.

Bryant's move was good. Wade's reaction was better.

And in that moment, Miami's epic run of blown opportunities late in games started coming to an end.

Wade's steal set up LeBron James for the dunk that put Miami ahead to stay with 1:27 left, Chris Bosh scored 24 points in his first outing after saying he wanted more shots, and the Heat beat the Los Angeles Lakers 94-88 on Thursday night to end a five-game losing streak and hand the two-time defending NBA champions their first loss in nine games.

"We had everything riding on this game, really, to be honest with you," Bosh said.

Wade scored eight of his 20 points in the fourth quarter and James finished with 19 points, nine assists and eight rebounds for Miami, which secured a postseason bid with 17 games left — the earliest that's happened in franchise history.

That was an ancillary point: Winning again was all that mattered.

"We didn't want to run away from this," Heat coach Erik Spoelstra said. "We didn't want to hide from any of this. We want to get better. We want to make sure our game is right and ready when it really counts."

Bryant scored 24 points for the Lakers, who got 20 from Pau Gasol. Andrew Bynum finished with 13 points and 12 rebounds for Los Angeles.

certification, gender equity will continue to be a reviewable progress," Idaho State Athletic Director Jeff Tingey said in the release. "We will always look for new and creative ways to provide an equitable and rewarding athletic experience for our inter-collegiate athletes."

The certification process involves a self-study — overseen by the school's president or chancellor — that focuses on rules compliance, academic integrity, gender and diversity issues, and general student-athlete well-being. The process also includes dialogue between the university and the NCAA to address potential issues that could impact certification, giving the school an opportunity to address them before a final decision is rendered.

Cougars

A minute later, Horned Frogs point guard Hank Thorns picked up his fourth foul, and center Nikola Cerina was soon whistled for his fourth.

"We have seven players,"

TCU coach Jim Christian lamented. "We had a lot of guys that played 40 minutes. It came down to a couple plays. We left some points out there, a couple 2-on-1 breaks, a couple free throws. You have to make all those little plays to beat them. I think they're that good."

It looked as though the Cougars had finally shaken the Frogs (11-22) when Noah Hartsock's pair of free throws made it 60-51 with 52 seconds remaining.

Hunter Mahan storms into Doral lead

DORAL, Fla. — Television towers toppled and the monster scoreboard at Doral came crashing down when 50 mph gusts blew through the Blue Monster. Hunter Mahan then delivered some excitement of his own.

Mahan birdied his opening four holes Thursday and kept right on rolling until the storm-delayed opening round was suspended by darkness. He didn't miss a green or come close to a bogey in 11 holes and was 7 under.

Mahan, the only American winner in the last five World Golf Championships, didn't get much attention in a tournament that tried to drum up some drama by grouping players by their world ranking.

The biggest crowd belonged to Tiger Woods and Phil Mickelson in a rare weekday pairing, with Graeme McDowell along for the ride. They scrapped their way around Doral without challenging the leaders — Mickelson at 2 under, with Woods and McDowell another shot back through 15 holes.

The top three players did a better job living up to their billing.

Martin Kaymer, in his second week at No. 1, opened with three straight birdies and was at 5 under through 10 holes. Match Play winner Luke Donald (No. 3) joined him with a birdie on the 10th hole, while Lee Westwood (No. 2) was another shot behind.

Mahan went out in 30 on the back nine, which included birdie putts of 35 and 40 feet.

At 7 under, he was two shots clear of Charley Hoffman, who had a 5-under 67 and was among nine players in the 66-man field who were able to finish the round.

DRISCOLL LEADS PUERTO RICO OPEN

RIO GRANDE, Puerto Rico — James Driscoll shot a 9-under 63 on Thursday in the PGA Tour's Puerto Rico Open, missing a chance to break 60 when he played the final four holes in 2 over.

Driscoll eagled the par-5 fifth — his 14th hole of the day — to reach 11 under, but dropped strokes on the par-4 seventh and par-3 eighth at Trump International Golf Club-Puerto Rico. He had 10 birdies in a 12-hole stretch from No. 12 to No. 3 and ended up with a two-stroke lead over Will MacKenzie.

Driscoll matched the course record set by Derek Lamely in the third round of his victory last year.

Chicago takes unique approach to fight concussions

CHICAGO (AP) — Keep kids with concussions off the field, or your school could be forced to pay up.

Chicago's City Council is sending that threat through an ordinance that could make local schools — public and private — liable for water and sewer charges if they allow children to participate in sports with concussions.

"There's more and more information becoming available about the dangers of concussions," said Alderman Edward M. Burke, a co-sponsor of the ordinance that passed in January. "Part of this is an effort to get people educated on the issue, especially parents."

Stories about the catastrophic and long-term damage from concussions and other head trauma have spread throughout the sports world recently, particularly in the NFL and NHL. Both leagues are cracking down on improper hits, and putting new emphasis on prevention and care. The NFL and NHL now require any players who have suffered concussions to be cleared by an independent neurologist before they're allowed to play again.

But the blows continue to come. Sidney Crosby, the Pittsburgh Penguins captain and one of the faces of the NHL, hasn't played since early January after absorbing hits in consecutive games. Montreal police opened a criminal investigation Thursday into the on-ice hit that left the Canadiens' Max Pacioretty with a severe concussion and cracked vertebra. According to NFL data obtained by The Associated Press in December, the number of concussions being reported this past season was up more than 30 percent from 2008.

"The past year or two, the NFL and NCAA have taken it very seriously," said Kevin Guskiewicz of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, a member of the NCAA's Concussion Committee and the NFL's Head, Neck, and Spine Committee. "They have begun to show how they're educating athletes at the professional level and at the NCAA level, and I think it's created awareness for coaches and parents and athletes at the youth level."

A growing number of states are passing laws that require players to be removed if they show signs of a concussion, and bar them from competing again until cleared by a medical professional trained in concussion evaluation and management. But Illinois does not have such legislation — it has passed the House and is now before the Senate — and Burke became more concerned the more he learned about the devastating impact of head trauma in athletes.

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

Get In The Habit!
Read the Classifieds Every Day

DEAR ABBY: My 3-year-old son is terminally ill. My sister-in-law, "Anita," has a son who is a year old. Anita always wants to compete for attention between the two boys. She makes nasty comments to family members, suggesting that her son is ignored while mine gets all the attention. No one says anything to her because they're afraid of her "blowups."

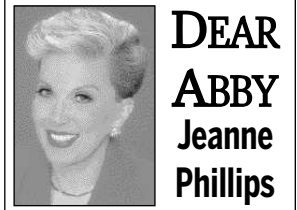

I don't know how much longer I can live with this. It is hard enough watching my son slip away a little more each day, but having to deal with this has pushed me over the edge. How can I handle a crazy in-law in this situation?

- FALLING APART IN ILLINOIS

DEAR FALLING APART:

Please accept my sympathy for the heartache you are experiencing. It's a shame that no one in the family is willing to point out to your volatile sister-in-law that the "annoyance" she's feeling is selfish and insensitive.

However, because no one is, it might be better that Anita be excluded from family gatherings in which she might feel her son is getting short shrift. And you should ask the person who is repeating her complaints to you to please stop sharing them. That should solve your problem.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I am a married man, but not happily. I have been taking the kids on play dates with a neighbor woman who has been kind enough to meet with the children and doesn't seem to care too much that I'm a guy. As you can imagine, most women will not bother to befriend a man they know is married.

She has two kids who are close in age to mine. She is 19 years younger than I am and lives with her boyfriend.

I have fallen in love with her. I know I can't tell her, and I doubt she feels the same toward me. When we part, we do hug each other. It makes me feel fantastic, something I haven't experienced for a long time.

Should I continue getting together with her or should I avoid her? I feel both happy and sad when I see her because I realize she is basically out of reach.

- PERPLEXED IN WISCONSIN

DEAR PERPLEXED: You feel lonely and isolated. It is understandable that you would be drawn to whatever warmth you can get, but this young woman is not the answer to your problem. Call a halt to this relationship so that you can work on your real problem — which is your unhappy marriage. Once you sort that out, everything else will fall into place. But continuing to see this woman as things are will only perpetuate your pain.

DEAR ABBY: A few months ago I ran into an old friend at the spa. She told me to call her and plan to get together with her. I have called her, but she never seems receptive to actually getting together. She called me once and invited me over to sit by the pool, but that's been the extent of it.

We're both married with children and work part time. I feel as though I'm bothering her when I call since she never makes an effort to return my calls or accept my invitations. However, when we run into each other at events or the spa, she's chatty and friendly.

Should I stop putting out the effort?

- CAN'T FIGURE IT OUT

DEAR CAN'T: Yes. You've taken the first step, and the second. The ball is now in her court. Stop calling and let her make the next move. If she doesn't, she was probably making polite conversation when she suggested you get together.

Today is Friday, March 11, the 70th day of 2011. There are 295 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On March 11, 1861, the Constitution of the Confederate States of America was adopted by the Confederate Congress in Montgomery, Ala.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1810, French Emperor Napoleon I was married by proxy to Archduchess Marie Louise of Austria.

In 1888, the famous Blizzard of '88 began inundating the northeastern United States, resulting in some 400 deaths.

In 1930, former President and Chief Justice William Howard Taft was buried in Arlington National Cemetery.

In 1941, President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed the Lend-Lease Bill, providing war supplies to countries fighting the Axis.

In 1942, as Japanese forces continued to advance in the Pacific during World War II, Gen. Douglas MacArthur left the Philippines for Australia. (MacArthur, who subsequently vowed, "I shall return," kept that promise more than 2 1/2 years later.)

In 1959, the Lorraine Hansberry drama "A Raisin in the Sun" opened at New York's Ethel Barrymore Theater.

In 1965, the Rev. James J. Reeb, a white minister from Boston, died after being beaten by whites during civil rights disturbances in Selma, Ala.

In 1977, more than 130 hostages held in Washington, D.C., by Hanafi Muslims were freed after ambassadors from three Islamic nations joined the negotiations.

In 1985, Mikhail S. Gorbachev was chosen to succeed the late Soviet President Konstantin U. Chernenko.

In 2004, ten bombs exploded in quick succession across the commuter rail network in Madrid, Spain, killing 191 people and wounding more than 2,000 in an attack linked to al-Qaida-inspired militants.

Ten years ago: Masked Zapatista rebels urged passage of an Indian rights bill after riding triumphantly into the heart of Mexico's capital in a march supported by the president and welcomed by 75,000 cheering supporters.

Five years ago: Former Serb leader Slobodan Milosevic was found dead of a heart attack in his prison cell in the Netherlands, abruptly ending his four-year U.N. war crimes trial for orchestrating a decade of conflict that had killed a quarter of a million people; he was 64. Michelle Bachelet was sworn in as Chile's first female president.

One year ago: A federal appeals court in San Francisco upheld the use of the words "under God" in the Pledge of Allegiance and "In God We Trust" on U.S. currency.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"Men are made by nature unequal. It is vain, therefore, to treat them as if they were equal." — J.A. Froude

Every year the Young Chelsea Bridge Club hosts the Lederer Memorial Trophy. This invitational event allows you to watch great players up close, both at the table and on the Vugraph presentation, and even on the computer, since the tournament is frequently covered on Bridge Base Online.

Today's deal was one of the best-defended hands from the 2006 event. Zia Mahmood is quite rightly well-known for his sparkling declarer play, but this time he made fewer tricks than anyone else in the field. The star of the show was Ireland's Hugh McGann, who got his side off to a good start when he led the heart queen (in his methods, showing the king) rather than the spade three, which was the choice at other tables.

Zia won in dummy with the ace, and East, Tom Hanlon, played the four, showing an odd number. With the diamond queen likely to be offside, Zia chose to play diamonds from the top. West pitching a club. When he found out the bad news, he continued with his four club tricks. West discarded two spades and East one.

Zia now got off play with the spade queen, East unblocking the 10. West won the king and found the only card to give himself a chance: the heart 10! This created an entry to his partner's hand with the nine. Zia won dummy's jack, but there was nothing he could do. West had managed to avoid the endplay, and the defense could always come to five tricks.

ANSWER: Your partner rates to have five or more spades and four diamonds, with something like an 18 or 19 count. If your club 10 were the spade 10, you might have enough to look for higher things. As it is, the lack of club control is unattractive — as is the singleton in partner's suit. All this suggests that passing is the most discreet action now.

CANYONSIDE IRWIN REALTY

IF MARCH 11 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Fantasies can be fun — but if you want to fulfill them, you must work hard and smart in the upcoming four to six weeks. You might meet someone new this month or in June, but this person might not be interested in a permanent connection. Rather than wasting your time and emotions on someone or something that is not going to pan out, look for opportunities in May to improve your net worth or standing. A small piece of advice or a favor granted by a casual bystander might lead you into much greener financial pastures. Anyone worthy of being your long-term partner will be waiting in the wings for you.

HOROSCOPE
 Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Tall tales may be fun to tell, but they don't really get you anywhere. Be honest even when there is the greatest temptation to stretch the truth. Don't let the pressure get to you, as a slip up will rock your boat.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Someone once said, "I'm not paranoid, it's just that everyone is out to get me." You might want to crawl back into bed today, but it's not as bad as it seems. Remain neutral and don't get involved in other's conflicts.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Look for the plentiful positives. A situation may seem grave, but there are lessons to be learned and improvements to be made. Don't waste time sulking; focus on fixing errors and preventing future mistakes.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Nobody's perfect. Today that saying will be proved countless time through errors and mistakes. Don't chew someone out for messing up; show them what went wrong and help them understand how avoid doing it again.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Be driven to achieve your goals. Do not accept failure as an option; accept only that you will accomplish what you set out to do. Whether you think you can, or you think you can't, you are correct. Focus is the key.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Keep the past in the past. All that matters right now is the future. Use experience gained from previous mistakes to guide your plans for lucrative long-term goals. A new acquaintance could provide some adventure.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): If you have all the answers, perhaps you need to start looking for the right questions to ask. A change in routine could bring about an increase in production. But, if it isn't broken, there's no reason to fix it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A seashell may look pretty — but there's nothing inside. Someone may knock you off your feet with an attractive smile. If you look beneath the surface, however, you may find a smile is all there is on offer.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Keep your goals in order. While you fuss over an ill-chosen course of action, a truly lucrative opportunity may pass you by. Keep your eyes and ears open and look for your chance to shine.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Don't forget where you came from. You are riding high, but should take care not to forget or fail to acknowledge those who helped you along the way. Look up old friends and recount past deeds and events.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): It's just like starting over. It is a good time to start new projects and endeavors that will revolutionize your future. You'll be surprised with the ease with which you achieve your financial objectives.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Nothing lasts forever. It is time to leave one aspect of your life behind and move on to the next. You have a difficult choice to make, but deep in your heart you know the answer. Remember, there is no need to rush.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC COMMENT PERIOD
CONCERNING FISCAL YEAR'S 2012 WATER QUALITY AND DRINKING WATER LOAN AND GRANT PRIORITY LISTS AND ASSOCIATED INTENDED USE PLANS (IUPs)

This notice is given to fulfill the public information requirements of Idaho's rules for administration of drinking water and water quality construction grant and loan programs. The Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ) has scheduled a comment period concerning the following documents, which, upon final DEQ Board acceptance will govern the state fiscal year 2012:

1. The draft State Drinking Water Loan Intended Use Plan (IUP) which contains the Loan Project Priority List and the Drinking Water Quality Planning Grant Priority List

2. The draft State Water Quality Loan Intended Use Plan (IUP) which contains the Loan Project Priority List and the Water Quality Planning Grant Priority List

DEQ will award grants and loans from these four lists in priority order, to the highest ranked projects that are ready to proceed. Awards will be made to fully utilize all available funding. The purpose of the comment period will be to give interested parties an opportunity to comment on the grant and loan lists.

Copies of the lists and IUPs are available for public review at the following locations:
