Otter signs emergency wolf legislation

Governor praises intentions of Idaho legislators but says the law may be unnecessary

By Ben Botkin

Times-News writer

Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter signed into law Tuesday a bill granting him emergency powers regarding Idaho's wolves, despite his concerns about the bill's constitutionality and whether it's even necessarv.

Supporters of the broad, vaguely defined bill, introduced late in Idaho's 2011 legislative session, had backed it as a way of enlisting the aid of law enforcement for wolf hunts. But the law may be unnecessary after Congress voted last week to take the gray wolf off of the endangered species list in five Western states and restore state management of the predators.

In a letter to Secretary of State Ben Ysursa, Otter raised concerns about the legislation usurping his authority as governor to declare emergencies. Otter noted that between that existing authority and the fact that Idahoans can already legally kill wolves attacking people, livestock and pets, the law is likely unnecessary.

But he also praised the intentions of legislators. And he wrote that parts of the new

H.B. 343 declared the gray wolf's presence in Idaho to be a disaster emergency, granting Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter a fairly open-ended set of powers. Otter signed it into law Tuesday.

Otter's concerns: The governor worries the bill usurped his sole authority under state law to declare disasters. Also, the bill may be unecessary due in part to those powers.

Why he signed it: Otter wrote that he understands why legislators felt the need for the bill, and that parts may be useful if the wolf returns to the endangered species list.

Early aquifer recharge in works

Idaho Water Resource Board offers contracts

By Eric Larsen Times-News writer

State and local water officials hope to turn this year's plentiful precipitation into a boon for the underground aquifer that provides water to much of southern Idaho.

The Idaho Water Resource Board has offered contracts to seven canal companies and irrigation districts to send 72,000 acre-feet of surface water back into the Lake Erie-sized Eastern Snake Plain Aquifer. Database of missing persons expands

BOISE (AP) — More than five dozen people have been entered into Idaho's missing person database since January.

Kathy Moedl's husband, Grant, is among those who have vanished. During the past six weeks, investigators have found no trace of the Rexburg man, who disappeared in southern Idaho on March 2 while driving to Boise for a business meeting.

"My heart hurts;" Moedl told the Idaho Statesman. "He was ... he is, the nicest person I know and so just doesn't deserve this, whatever it is."

Dawn Peck, who manages the Idaho State Police's Bureau of Criminal Identification, has maintained the missing person database since it was created in 1996. Idaho's Missing Person Clearinghouse now lists 235 people.

"It's like plucking a small town off the map," Peck

These unexplained disappearances have wreaked havoc on Idaho families.

Moedl hasn't been able to work since her husband vanished, and 16-year-old daughter is in counseling, she said.

The oldest case in the database is from 1968, when Wendell farmer Fred Miller disappeared after leaving a bar in Gooding County. Miller, 66, was last seen in the company of two hitchhikers and was driving a white four-door Rambler.

State approves temporary rules for gas drilling operation

BOISE - State officials on Tuesday approved rules governing a gas drilling operation and its plan to use hydraulic fracturing to tap western Idaho energy deposits, agreeing they'll adequately safeguard the region's groundwater.

The state Oil & Gas Conservation Commission, which includes Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter, unanimously approved the temporary rules to guide Bridge Energy's operation in Payette County and any other wildcatter outfits that follow them here hoping to hit pay dirt. The Department of Lands is now set to write permanent rules that would likely replace this version after the 2012 Legislature has vetted them.

The new rules allow four wells per square mile. more than the previous standard of just a single well, and set parameters for hydraulic fracturing - or "fracking" — where Bridge plans to inject liquids into four of its seven wells to clear out blockages formed by drilling mud and trigger the flow of natural gas.

Moscow academic named to education board seat

BOISE — An academic and former naval aviator has been tapped to fill a vacancy on a board that makes policy decision for Idaho's public schools and universities.

Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter on Tuesday named William

H. Goesling to fill an open seat on state Board of Education. Goesling replaces Moscow attorney Paul Agidius, whose term expired last month.

Otter says Goesling's academic and professional experience make him an ideal candidate.

Goesling earned the Distinguished Flying Cross and other medals as a Navy pilot during the Vietnam War. He was a faculty member at the University of Idaho before retiring. He earned a doctorate degree from the University of Idaho and also served as an associate vice president and financial consultant for D.A. Davidson & Co.

Gov. Otter signs Idaho wolf disaster bill into law

BOISE — Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter has signed a bill into law that will allow him to declare a wolf disaster emergency in Idaho.

The governor signed the bill Tuesday, even though Congress already took action this month to strip federal protections from wolves in the northern Rocky Mountains. Otter says he also has concerns about undermining his own statutory authority to declare such disasters, with the new state law.

The measure allows the governor to enlist local law enforcement agents to reduce Idaho's wolf population, which at 800 animals makes up about half of the wolves in the region. Otter says despite the federal delisting and his concerns, portions of the new law could prove useful if the predators are ever relisted under the Endangered Species Act.

Rescuers alter search operation for Silver Valley miner

Wait until the debt ceiling caves in imothy Geithner does not want the market to smell his fear. "I want to make one thing perfectly clear," he said Sunday. "Congress will raise the debt ceiling." But if there was truly so little doubt, Geithner wouldn't have been peppered with questions about it on the Sunday shows.

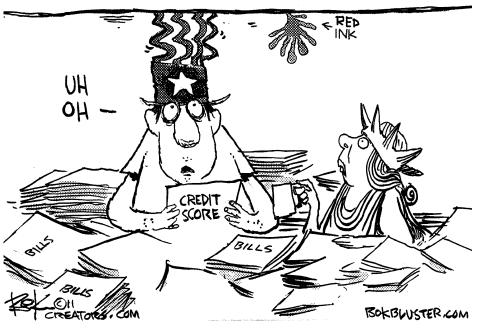

Ezra

Raising the debt ceiling might be economically necessary, but it's politically lethal. Only 16 percent of Americans want the debt ceiling raised, according to an NBC/Wall Street Journal poll. Sen. Marco Rubio said he wouldn't vote for an increase unless it included "a plan for fundamental tax reform, an overhaul of our regulatory structure, a cut to discretionary spending, a balanced-budget amendment, and reforms to save Social Security, Medicare and Medicaid" - everything on the conservative agenda, basically.

And this is where things get dangerous. Republicans and Democrats both bear substantial blame for the country's rising deficits. The Bush tax cuts and the Medicare Prescription Drug Benefit and our various wars — none of which have been paid for, and all of which are ongoing – are major contributors to our mounting debt, and all were passed by Republican majorities. The debt ceiling had to be raised seven times during the Bush years, and the policies that helped drive those increases – not to mention the financial crisis that followed them - have not been undone under President Oba-

But the GOP wants to pin the debt on the Democrats, and it wants major concessions in return for its vote.

DEBT CEILING

Democrats, however, aren't going to agree to the GOP's plan to deny partial responsibility for the country's debt and hold the country's credit rating hostage in order to reshape the government along more conservative lines. Fear over exactly this sort of political gridlock is what led Standard & Poor's to downgrade the nation's credit outlook to "negative" Monday.

To understand the danger posed by the debt ceiling, it helps to understand the financial crisis. A lot of banks and investors held assets based on mortgages they thought were safe. They weren't. That meant that no one knew how much money they really had, or how much money anyone else really had. So the market did what woodland creatures do when they get confused and scared: It froze. And so, too, did the economy. As the unemployment rate shows, we're still not completely thawed out.

If Congress fails to lift the debt ceiling beyond its current limit of $14.29 trillion or even waits too long — the chain of events will be similar, but the asset under question will be America itself, not some newfangled Frankenstein bond made out of mortgages from the Reno suburbs. Which would mean the aftermath would be much, much

"The cornerstone of the global financial system is that the United States will make good on its debt payments," says Mark Zandi, chief economist at Moody's Analytics. "If we don't, we've just knocked out the cornerstone, and the system will collapse into turmoil."

The likeliest disaster here will not be caused by Congress refusing to raise the debt ceiling. And, Geithner says, Congress will raise the debt ceiling. Eventually. But there'll be a lot of partisan posturing between now and then. In 2006, then-Sen. Barack Obama lodged a protest vote against an increase in the debt ceiling — a vote he's since called "a mistake." Our economy, however, is weaker than it was then, our deficits are more worrying and the markets are more fragile. So the normal congressional bickering could prove especially dangerous. Earlier this month, Congress waited until the last possible minute to avert a shutdown waited so long, in fact, that the government was technically unfunded for a few moments - and we could see it wait till the last minute on the debt ceiling. But the last minute might be too late.

"The risk is not that we get to July and run out of desperation measures;" says Citigroup's Peter Orszag, who previously served as Obama's budget director. "Both political parties realize that would be crazy. But the worry is you're in June, and you think you have time, and the market blows apart early."

In the end, the debt ceiling is not just about the debt ceiling. It's about our capacity to solve our economic problems going forward. If the two parties can come to a grand bargain on debt and deficits by the end of May, then great. But if they can't - and that's where the smart money is the debt ceiling is not the moment to demonstrate to the markets that Washington is broken. Once we pull the pin on that grenade, there's no putting it back in.

Hot air from the wind power industry?

Idaho Statesman, Boise

hen is an ultimatum not an ultimatum? How about in the closing days of the 2011 legislative session, when a wind energy producer went all-out to lobby to extend a multimillion-dollar sales tax

Pull the plug on the rebate, said Roy Eiguren, a lobbyist for Exergy Development Group, and the company will pull the plug on hundreds of millions of dollars worth of

That was April 7. To put it charitably, the winds have changed direction since then.

Exergy founder James Carkulis now says his company will follow through on Southern Idaho wind projects it has on the drawing board — even though, as he told The Associated Press, the projects will be "more than likely unprofitable."

Eiguren, meanwhile, was left with some explaining to do. "Since the vote, James has been re-evaluating the projects," he told the AP.

The larger question may be whether legislators are reevaluating their position on tax breaks for alternate energy projects. One of the last issues to come before the 2011 Legislature, a bill to extend the rebates passed the House on a close 40-29 vote, only to die in the Senate on an 18-17 vote. As a result, the rebates, passed in 2005, will expire

This reworked rebate bill was a compromise crafted by lawmakers, the wind industry and utilities that have been uneasy about the proliferation of wind projects — so the bill's defeat was an end-of-session surprise. But because of that narrow defeat, it would be no surprise if the tax rebate issue resurfaces in 2012. That's especially true considering the big dollars at stake.

Bill sponsors like to point to cost-benefit analysis on the rebates. According to Boise State University research, a 160-megawatt wind farm, eligible for $12 million in rebates under the failed bill, would generate $77 million in state and local taxes over 25 years. A small, 2.5-megawatt hydro project — also eligible for the renewable rebates would have received $187,718, while generating more than $1.3 million in state and local taxes.

We supported extending the renewable energy rebates because we believe the state needs to keep all of its powerproduction options open. We also believed, as sponsors argued, that phasing out the rebates would drive a nascent wind power industry to pursue projects elsewhere.

Idaho still needs wind power. But while Exergy does not speak for the entire Idaho wind industry, the company's abrupt about-face undermines the developers' case for rebates. Not to mention undermining one company's credibility at the Statehouse.

State Legislature needs that some kids will be motimore independents

I appreciated the analysis of the Lewiston Tribune of the Idaho Senate and their votes on Luna's education plan. It is definitely interesting that some have learned to listen to their constituents.

That brings me to something I noticed about the senators that represent the Magic Valley. Sen. Darrington and Sen. Cameron of the Mini-Cassia and Jerome areas; Sen. Stennett of Blaine, Lincoln and Gooding counties; and Sen. Corder of Elmore County all voted no on Luna's education reform bills. They represented their constituents and voted accordingly. That leaves us with Twin Falls County senators who voted with Luna. Either Twin Falls County is farther right than I thought or these senators voted with the far right leadership of the Republican Party rather than vote the wishes of the people. Where is Sen. Noh or Sen. Coiner when you need them?

I am not opposed to technology in the classroom. I do believe I worked enough years in education to know vated to learn on computers, but most will not have the patience or desire to learn without the teacher's assistance, motivation and encouragement. Technology is a tool for learning, but it is not a panacea for learning. If Mr. Luna's reform package is so good, why didn't he use it in his reelection campaign? As a matter of fact, he tried to sell us all on how great everything was in Idaho education. My analysis is that he was either lying about how well he had done as state superintendent or he knew that he couldn't get re-elected on his reform package or, most likely, both.

I have no power over the senators in Twin Falls County, but if there are good people in the county that are independents, I would encourage them to run. I am rather conservative myself, but I am not a card-carrying Republican. Therefore, I am looking to vote for an independent.

I do have some power in reference to Mr. Tom Luna. I will be one that carries a petition for his recall. I encourage other retired educators to get involved in the process and we can continue to be real advocates for "Students Come First." Feel free to contact me if you want to be part of this historical process.

Bureaucrats will burn $34M hole in pocket

Medicaid reform: Legislators, saying the existing system is unsustainable, overhauled the Medicaid system that serves the health needs of some 220,000 Idahoans. The state ended up with 21 changes with $34 million worth of state savings. Those include more provider assessments, fewer hours of provided services and more staff to watch for fraud. Eligibility won't change, and the trims didn't eliminate entire programs. As part of the effort, legislators started longterm planning for an eventual shift to a new system with even more oversight.

More staff to watch for fraud? Eventually shift to a new system with more oversight? What a joke how many of the $34 millions "saved" will they use to pay the bureaucrats that will do that job that will produce absolutely noth-

New theater not bringing new jobs to Magic Valley

Concerning the announcement of the new theaters, I was excited to learn that the mall was building their new stateof-the-art theater. In my mind and with our struggling economy, I was thinking how many of our local contractors would be put to work for its construction. Come to find out that none of it was open for bid and all the contractors would be coming from out of state without even allowing the locals to compete. You would think that the mall management would have been smart enough to keep that money in our community which could be spent shopping at the mall and put people to work, but instead our community was completely locked out of this process by serving their own self interests.

Thank you very much mall management. You are really serving our community. I will be sure to shop at Wal-Mart.

Take the time to serve your community

We must make time to serve in our communities to keep them strong and healthy. We cultivate relationships to interact and understand all the people of our different cultures and become involved on a personal level to give something back.

Communities, families and generations are divided by the barriers that we have erected in the past. We cannot serve the people who need us by isolating ourselves from them. It's time to come together in new relationships where we lay aside our difference and work together to become stronger and heal our brokenness.

Politicians originally sold AmeriCorps as an alternative to big \bar{g} overnment — a program to "renew the ethic of civic responsibility and the spirit of community throughout the United States." With bipartisan support, the program has morphed into an all-purpose progressive slush fund. Instead of reining in the national service boondoggle. Washington has turned taxpayer-subsidized helping hands into a legion of Nanny State handout helpers. Goodbye, AmeriCorps. Hello, FoodStampCorps.

Yes, across the Internet, the feds are recruiting AmeriCorps VISTA workers to apply for jobs as publicists for the welfare state. Their mission: to sign up as many people to federal food stamp rolls as possible. Because, you know, the record-breaking 12 million that have been added since Obama took office is apparently not good enough. In New York, Philadelphia and a total of 30 sites across the country, AmeriCorps and the Department of Agriculture are funding the "National Anti-Hunger and Opportunity Corps" to "increase access to food stamps."

National Affairs managing editor Meghan Clyne reports that the administration is roping in left-wing churches to aggressively promote food stamps. With institutional support from first lady Michelle Obama, the FoodStampCorps will train church members to apply for food stamps after religious services; and "'encourage eligible families to enroll their children in (government-subsidized) school meal programs'; if organiza tions operate day-care or after-school programs, they are advised to pursue reimbursement for meals and snacks through the Child and Adult Care Food Program (a federally funded, state-administered welfare program). Places of worship are asked to serve as feeding sites for the Summer Food Service Program — another federally funded, state-run welfare project."

enrollment at an all-time high, why should taxpayers be underwriting make-work jobs for future Democratic flacks-in-training? Shouldn't it already be the job of the vast network of existing social services and welfare agencies to publicize and assist food-stamp applicants?

More troublesome: AmeriCorps workers are themselves being encouraged to sign up for food stamp benefits - giving new meaning to "hands-on" (or rather, "hands-out") experience.

An AmeriCorps blogger provided a thorough advice manual on working the system: "Plenty of jobs come with perks," the worker wrote. "For some these come in the form of company cars, dental insurance, or a spending allowance. For VISTAs, it's food stamps." The step-by-step guide tells AmeriCorps workers: "If you apply for food stamps after you become an Ameri-Corps VISTA member, you will have a decreased food stamp allotment. So if you're debating applying, you should do it now." Another AmeriCorps tip for those preparing for their in-person eligibility interview with food stamp administrators: "These social service agencies are only open during regular business hours, so you will probably have to take the day off (some sites don't count it against your 20 vacation/sick days)." Oh, and don't forget to "bring a book." Says the wise Ameri-Corps welfare-system expert: "While food stamps are handled by a different agency in every state, they all generally have a reputation that mirrors that of the DMV: too little staff, too high demand, and wait times that can border on extreme. While my own wait was only three hours, I've heard some VISTAs waiting as long as eight. Yes, I know you may have an appointment, but that doesn't necessarily mean they're going to see you at that time. So bring a book, an iPod, that screenplay you've been tinkering with whatever, because you're

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Luna lacks experience as a leader in the classroom

As some Idahoans are trying to figure out how to get rid of our State Superintendent Tom Luna, I can't help but wonder why anyone voted for him to begin with. Why vote for someone who is not the most qualified person for the job?

Last November, Mr. Luna, a Republican, ran against Democrat Stan Olson. Mr. Luna has not spent one day in a class room as a teacher while Mr. Olson has spent the past 40 years working for our schools as a teacher, an adjunct professor and a superintendent. The closest Mr. Luna came to teaching in a classroom was on the school board of the Nampa School District. How can he possibly make any realistic education reform policies?

I refuse to vote along party lines and ignore the person's qualification just because that is what I've always done. I vote for the person who is best suited for the job, regardless of their party affiliation. This blind faith for the GOP has become insane.

Unemployment rate falls in two-thirds of states

By Christopher S. Rugaber Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON - The unemployment rate fell in two-thirds of the nation's states last month, the latest evidence that the strengthening economy is encouraging many employers to boost hiring.

The Labor Department said Tuesday that the unemployment rate dropped in 34 states in March. That's the largest number of states to record a decline since June. The rate rose in seven states and was unchanged in nine and Washington, D.C.

Employers hired more workers in 38 states. A government survey of employer payrolls found only 12 states plus Washington, D.C. lost iobs last month, the fewest since October.

Nationally, the unemployment rate fell in March to a two-year low of 8.8 percent, and private employers added more than 200,000 jobs for the second consecutive month. followed by Missouri and Florida, Maine all had large job losses, too. Jan Rogers, executive director of the Southern Idaho Economic Development Organization (SIEDO) points to the broad swath of industry utilizing the rail system locally.

The organization plans to launch the "Southern Idaho Rail Estate Corridor" marketing initiative in the fall.

"Companies using the rail continue to increase. Already, those industries include grain, dairy, alternative energy, food commodities, plastic manufacturers and many more," Rogers told the Times-News on Tuesday. "Rail access is becoming more and more critical to business success for many reasons, including fuel price and trucking regulations. Lo-and use rail. It is something that businesses looking to possibly relocate to our area are asking for more and more."

SIEDO is identifying property on both the Eastern Idaho Rail and Union Pacific lines for its Rail Estate Corridor.

"With the push of a button we'll be able to identify, and companies will be able to easily identify, properties available along the rail lines. We're looking at this initiative being a huge success in driving economic development and catering to companies looking to move into our market," Rogers said.

The bill was referred to the Senate Committee on Finance.

Obama rips GOP plan, yet sees hope for debt deal

By Ben Feller Associated Press

WASHINGTON - With America's global credit standing suddenly in question, President Barack Obama insisted Tuesday that Washington has the political will to slash the massive U.S. debt despite fierce, fundamental differences with Republicans about how to do it. Obama spoke hopefully of compromise with GOP lawmakers, yet still used a campaign-style town hall event to accuse the Republicans of offering a bleak future for the poor, young and elderly with their proposals.

The president seemed intent on assuring financial markets and the watching world that U.S. leaders will get their act together to address a suffocating debt while at the same time trying to convince voters that only his plan would share the pain fairly.

Republicans didn't sound optimistic about compromise.

Speaker House Boehner announced Tuesday that he had picked House Majority Leader Eric Cantor to work with a White House commission on cutting spending. But in doing so, Boehner said, "The American people understand we can't keep spending money we don't have. The only ones who don't are the Democrats running Washington."

More upbeat, Obama said, "Here's the good news: I believe that Democrats and Republicans can come together to get this done?' Speaking at Northern Virginia Community College outside Washington, he said, "There will be those who say that we're too divided, that partisanship is too stark. But I'm optimistic."

Obama never mentioned the new context for his comments: a warning that the federal government must rein in its debt or risk losing its sterling credit rating, which could in turn erode the economic recovery. On Monday, Standard and Poor's, a key credit rating agency, lowered its outlook for the government's fiscal health to "negative" amid sliding confidence in Washington's ability to deal with its debt.

The president said that over the past five months in other words, since Republicans altered the dynamic in Washington by winning control of the House in midterm elections — the two parties have come together to strike some unexpected deals.

Traffic tower error results in close call for first lady

By Jim Oliphant and Katherine Skiba

Tribune Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON - A plane carrying first lady Michelle Obama and Jill Biden had to abort a landing at Andrews Air Force Base because an error by an air traffic controller allowed it to draw too close to a miliahead of it, a federal aviation official said Tuesday evening.

The Federal Aviation Administration said neither plane was in danger during the incident Monday.

Obama and Biden, wife of Vice President Joe Biden, were returning from New

Monday afternoon when their plane neared the base behind a 200-ton, C-17 cargo plane. Both aircraft had been under the direction of air traffic controllers FAA official speaking on condition of anonymity.

The safety standards for tary cargo plane landing landing a C-17 require there be at least five miles of separation from lighter aircraft following behind, the official said, because the heavier C-17 can cause turbulence that can disrupt the maneuverability of a plane following too closely.

When controllers at Andrews took over, they dis-

C-40, akin to a 737, on were too close together just three miles apart — and asked the pilots flying Obama's airplane to try to create a bigger gap by making gentle, S-shaped curves, the FAA official said. That didin Warrenton, Va., said an n't produce the necessary spacing, so controllers instructed the pilots to do a "go-around" - circle the base to delay its landing.

"They're an accepted, recognized procedure that's available to controllers and pilots," the official said. "A controller got these two planes closer than they should have been, but at no public affairs official, also speaking on condition of anonymity, said: "It happens all the time on commercial airports."

While both planes landed safely, the incident is considered an operational error by the Warrenton controller and a non-punitive report will be filed while an investi-

"If it was done deliberately, or while under the influence of alcohol or drugs, it might be a discipline issue, but our main goal in investigating these is really to understand the situation and prevent them from happening," the official said.

Japanese officials mull restricting access to zone near crippled nuclear power plant

The Associated Press

TOKYO - Japan's top government spokesman says authorities are considering restricting access to its crippled nuclear plant.

Chief Cabinet Secretary Yukio Edano said Wednesday that Tokyo was discussing with local authorities the option of legally limiting entry into the area, which has a 12-mile radius. It was unclear when the ban might be imposed.

The area around the plant would be legally designated as a "caution area." The aim is to limit radiation exposure tsunami.

Meanwhile, the operator of the nuclear plant began pumping highly radioactive water from the basement of the evacuation zone around one of its buildings to a makeshift storage area Tuesday in a crucial step toward easing the nuclear crisis.

SYRIA Government troops fire on protesters as crackdown intensifies

BEIRUT - The Syrian government ratcheted up its efforts to quell weeks of demonstrations Tuesday, firing live ammunition into a crowd of protesters in one city even as it lifted decades-old emergency laws in an attempt to appease its critics.

The actions came in the wake of the boldest, most organized antigovernment rally in the monthlong uprising, with protesters occupying a square in Syria's thirdlargest city as they demand an end to the Assad family's 40-year rule.

Neither side has shown any signs of backing down, and Tuesday's events seemed to indicate that the struggle is likely to turn deadlier.

In Homs, four people were killed after tens of thousands of demonstrators tried to stage an Egyptianstyle sit-in in a main square, activists said. After firing warning shots into the air, security forces fired into the crowd and dispersed it, using tanks to secure the area, according to witness accounts.

YEMEN Police open fire on protesters, killing 3

SANAA - Yemeni security forces opened fire on anti-government protesters Tuesday, killing at least three amid rising international concern over the strategically located nation.

The United Nations Security Council met late Tuesday for a first-ever briefing and discussion about the deteriorating situation in Yemen, where rights groups say two months of protests calling for the president to step down have claimed 120 lives.

But the U.N.'s most powerful body couldn't agree on a statement proposed by Lebanon and Germany expressing concern at the political crisis, calling on the parties "to exercise restraint and end of his era and endorsed key to enter into a comprehensive dialogue to realize the legitimate aspirations of the Yemeni people," and supporting the mediation role of the Gulf Cooperation Council.

The Security Council met as a Yemeni government delegation headed to nearby Abu Dhabi, in the United Arab Emirates, for talks the six-nation Gulf Cooperation Council over a proposal for President Ali Abdullah Saleh to transfer power to his deputy to end the crisis.

CUBA Fidel Castro era ends as Congress closes

MIAMI — An almost ghost-like Fidel Castro attended the closing of a Communist Party conclave Tuesday that marked the formal economic reforms — but dashed hopes for a younger leadership amid a sea of white hair.

The 84-year-old Castro smiled, clapped and nodded but remained silent as his brother Raul replaced him as the party's first secretary and warned that while the reforms are critically needed, they will bring hardships. While the party's first Congress in 14 years renovated about half the membership of its ruling Politburo and the broader Central Committee, there was no sign of the generational change in leadership that many Cubans had hoped for. Replacing the 79-year-old Raul as second secretary was Jose Ramon Machado Ventura, 80 years old and a long-time party functionary.

Want to try your hand at making a cake fit for a future king? Here's our recipe for a cake similar to the one Prince William has requested.

CHOCOLATE BISCUIT CAKE

The royal family prefers McVitie's brand Rich Tea Biscuits for their chocolate biscuit cakes, but any firm butter cookie can be used in this intensely rich and chocolatey no-bake treat. Cover and refrigerate any leftovers; the cake gets better with time. Start to finish: 31/2 hours (30 minutes active). Servings: 12.

For the cake:

7-ounce package butter tea biscuits (sold in the cookie

1 cup heavy cream

2 tablespoons honey

4 tablespoons (1/2 stick) butter

16 ounces (about 21/2 cups) bittersweet chocolate bits 1 teaspoon vanilla extract

For the glaze:

2 tablespoons butter

1/4 cup heavy cream

6 ounces (about 1 cup) bittersweet chocolate

Coat a 7- or 8-inch round springform pan with cooking spray.

To make the cake, with your hands break up the biscuits into 1/4- to 1/2-inch pieces; you want chunks, not

In a medium microwave-safe bowl, combine the cream, honey and butter. Microwave on high for 1 1/2 minutes, or until bubbling. Add the chocolate and stir until melted and the mixture is smooth. Stir in the vanilla, then the crumbled biscuits. Spoon the mixture into the prepared pan, using the back of the spoon to smooth the top. Gently tap the pan on the counter to eliminate any air pockets.

Refrigerate for 3 hours or until thoroughly chilled.

Once the cake is chilled, prepare the glaze. In a small saucepan over medium heat, combine the butter and cream. When the mixture reaches a boil, remove it from the heat and add the chocolate, stirring until completely melted and smooth.

Carefully remove the sides from the springform pan (you may need to slide a paring knife around the inside upper edge to ensure the sides come away cleanly from the cake). Invert the cake onto a wire rack, then remove the bottom of the pan from the cake. Set the rack over parchment paper to catch drips.

Pour the glaze evenly over the cake, allowing it to drip down and completely cover the top and sides. Allow to firm up, then transfer to a serving plate. Refrigerate left-

Fewer families asking for free food

drop in demand for nutrition assistance

By Ariel Hansen Times-News writer

When Autumn Fowler of Rupert found out she was pregnant in 2003, she quickly realized she needed help. "I was young and I didn't even realize how much it took to feed a child," she said.

She heard about free food offered through South Central Public Health District - but was initially reluctant to use that program, when she learned she'd have to take nutrition class-

"At first, I thought they were going to tell me how to be a mom. Once I went in there with an open mind to see what they had to say, I started learning so much more," Fowler said. "We didn't have any way to pay for any formula or anything, so it probably saved my daughter's life."

The federally funded Women, Infants and Children program is open to more families than most people think, said health district

WIC coordinator Tammy Walters. But in recent months there's been an unexplained decline in the number of families using it. Families can earn up to 185 percent of the poverty line - meaning about $27,000 a year for a family of two, or $41,000 for a family of four - and still be eligible for WIC assistance.

"At that level you can still be struggling with making ends meet even though you're not considered in poverty," Walters said. Pregnant women, nursing mothers and children up to age 5 are eligible for the assistance, which comes in the form of a voucher that recipients can trade in for certain items, plus a stipend for fruits and vegetables. The list of approved items includes fortified cereals, whole-wheat bread or corn tortillas, dried beans and Health district notes peas, eggs, 100 percent fruit juice, peanut butter, milk and cheese. If infants are nursing, the vouchers pay for nutritious food for the mom — and the program highly encourages breastfeeding — but if the baby is on formula, the mother gets a voucher for that.

"There would be a lot of things we wouldn't be able to afford to buy. Peanut butter is really expensive; keeping fruits and vegetables in the house would be hard," said Amanda Larson of Twin Falls, who has been on and off the program for 71/2 years, through her pregnancies with and the infancies of her 7-year-old, people, they're extremely informative," Larson said. "If you can find someone to give you the education you need to help your kids be healthy and also supply the food they need to be healthy, why not?"

The food vouchers have expiration dates and usually are distributed in packs of three per month, allowing families flexibility to have fresh items all month long. With WIC covering the nutrition essentials protein, iron, calcium and vitamins A and C — the family's budget will stretch further for other needs.

Use a morsel of caution melting butterscotch

By Kathleen Purvis McClatchy Newspapers

I'm having trouble _getting butterscotch chips to melt. I tried it on double boiler and I tried the microwave. They just dried out. I have the same trouble when I try to melt chocolate, too.

With the butterscotch A chips, the problem might be scorching. Anything made with sugar burns easily. It's particularly a problem with melting chocolate or butterscotch chips in the microwave. Because the morsels are made with stabilizers and because microwaves heat from the center out, morsels hold their shape until they are stirred. Since they don't look melted, we keep zapping them in the microwave or raising the heat I'd skip the double boiler on the stove.

To melt either chocolate or butterscotch morsels in the microwave, use 50 per- heat, stirring frequently.

Anyone can do a bunny. How about chocolate salami?

Chocolate bunnies for Easter are so predictable. You gnaw off their ears, then quickly work your way down to their toes. Where's the excitement in that?

Consider something a bit more daring with your chocolate this year, such as chocolate salami. But no animals - chocolate or otherwise - are harmed in the making of this "salami."

The gist of this Italian treat is that you blend together honey, melted butter, sugar, cocoa powder and crushed cookies. You then form the mixture into a log, roll it in powdered sugar, then slice and Fowler said it allows her to enroll her kids in city activity programs, including sports, while Georgina Allison of Twin Falls said she purchases extra meat and vegetables she would otherwise have to go without.

"It's not that I couldn't make it without it, it's just a load off," Allison said, describing how rising grocery prices would be a challenge without WIC.

Most WIC clients find the free program by word of mouth, talking to friends. family and co-workers who have used it since it began in 1974, Walters said. Because the economy is still in the doldrums, she's mystified why the number of participants has begun to fall in recent months.

From a recent high of about 7,300 participants per month in the eight counties of south-central Idaho, the program currently has about 6,800 participants. "In Idaho, a lot of people don't want to be on services if they don't have to be, so they feel if they can get along without it, maybe that has them dropping off the program," she said, also speculating that participants might be moving out of state in greater numbers. Walters said the program coordinators are nonjudgmental, and simply want to give as many Idaho kids as possible the best nutritional start in life by providing healthy food and helping parents model healthy behavior. It is also cost-effective for Idaho and the federal government.

"WIC has an excellent history of paying for itself," Walters said, citing lowered their knowledge to other use of Medicaid and other government assistance.

That good start is what has spurred mothers like Fowler, Larson and Allison to sign up, even if it means admitting they need a little

"When I did go in, I was ashamed. How can I bring a kid into the world and not afford to give them food? I had too much pride," Allison said. "It's not all about you, it's about your child, making sure they have the nutrients they need."

Along with those nutrients comes emotional support, Walters said. The agency has also received federal funding in recent months to start a peer counseling program for breast-feeding mothers, to help participants pass on

Because face it, nothing is a dinner downer like a bowl of peas. Sure, the flavor can be fine, but they are dreadfully boring. I wanted them to have heft, to have flavor that makes them stand up and get noticed.

So I borrowed an idea from freshpeas a classic Italian salad - panzanella. This bread-based salad elevates the simple fresh dough bread, cut into small tomato to a hearty meal by adding tons of fresh herbs and chunks of bread, the latter of which often is soaked in a delicious vinaigrette.

For this version, I started with fresh peas that are briefly blanched. They get tossed with cubes of sourdough that are pan-fried in olive oil with mint garlic. Then everything gets tossed with a basic vinaigrette. To keep the salad on the cheese lighter side — it is intended for spring, after all - I added fresh mint. The result was delicious, hearty and still light.

Gwyneth Paltrow turns her love of food into a book

By Alicia Quarles Associated Press writer

NEW YORK - Surely Gwyneth Paltrow can't do everything well: She's yet to enter the field of medicine or play professional sports, for example.

But the list of things the Oscarwinning actress, mother, lifestyle guru and newly minted singer can't do seems to be dwindling. At a recent dinner party, she proved herself a master at yet another role - domestic goddess.

"I am just exploding with joy for her because this is something that gives her tremendous satisfaction," said Paltrow's mother, actress Blythe Danner, as she watched her daughter move about in an apron, playing host to a crowd that included A-list celebrity friends like Jay-Z, Jerry Seinfeld. Cameron Diaz and beau Alex Rodriguez, Martha Stewart and Paltrow's husband, Chris Martin of Coldplay.

It was a dinner party in celebration of her new cookbook, "My Father's Daughter," sponsored by One Kings Lane. The book is filled with family recipes and pays tribute to Paltrow's dad Bruce, who died in 2002. She credits him with teaching her how to cook while cultivating her love for food.

Paltrow took a break from her hostess duties at the event to talk with The Associated Press about her culinary endeavor.

AP: This book pays tribute to your father. What are some of your fondest memories of cooking with him?

Paltrow: Sort of just the togetherness of being next to him. We didn't talk a lot when we were cooking. We were very concentrated. It was that proximity. Sometimes he would make a joke or just throw out some hilarious criticism but in a sweet way. It was just being next to each other. AP: What are some of your favorite cooking traditions that you shared with your father that you now enjoy with your own children? Paltrow: I think the importance of eating together as a family and making homemade food that is nourishing and good for you. It is such a nice time because my dad used to really talk to us when we ate dinner and see what we thought about things, and now I use that opportunity to do the same thing with my kids as well.

AP: This has been a transformative year for you singing on big platforms such as the Grammys and the Oscars, and now releasing this cookbook. Is it just about acting anymore?

Paltrow: It has been a surprise for me as well. I have just had a great time. I feel very lucky that I am being able to try these other things. The cookbook isn't a career change for me. I am just a working mom and this is how Idoit, so I made the collection of recipes for anyone who was interested to see just me as one example of a working mother kind of a thing.

AP: People see you as this celebrity, but do you really

Paltrow: I do. Every day. I think it is really important to make food yourself. I think it is so engrained. I don't really think about it. I will just get a bunch of ingredients and cook whatever is around. I am kind of always on the fly making stuff. I think it is such a part of who I am that I don't even think about it

A dessert rendition of the ubiquitous tomato bruschetta

By Jim Romanoff For The Associated Press

Traditional tomato bruschetta has become so ubiquitous in the U.S. you can even buy jars of prepared toppings and pre-toasted bread. So we decided to reinvent it as a breakfast or dessert item.

Instead of starting with a garlic-rubbed toast, we take slices of baguette and slather them with low-fat, yet creamy part-skim ricotta cheese. If you like, you could vary the recipe by using Neufchatel (reduced-fat cream cheese) or even thick Greek-style yogurt.

We then top them with sliced strawberries and a drizzle of honey - reminiscent of the tomatoes and olive oil from traditional versions. Capping the creamy strawberry toasts is a sprinkle of herbs to add a fresh counterpoint to all the sweetness.

While these strawberryricotta bruschetta are a natural fit as part of a breakfast or brunch, they make a fine passed appetizer as well.

For a tart variation, toss the diced strawberries in a sweet balsamic vinegar glaze before assembling and skip the honey drizzle.

A fast and healthy seafood stew for spring

By Jim Romanoff

For The Associated Press

Looking to score a nutritional home run this spring? Consider cioppino, the tomato-based fish stew created by Italian immigrants in San Francisco.

Seafood is always a healthful choice when it comes to protein because most varieties are low in fat and calories. And even when they are high in fat, it's usually the good kinds. So in this dish, we've used virtually fat-free shrimp and Pacific cod. Both are mild in flavor - making them an excellent choice for picky eaters — but feel free to substitute whichever fish or shellfish you like.

Another big benefit of a cioppino is that like many soups and stews it contains lots of liquid and vegetables, making it a filling dish without filling up on calories. In this case the liquid and vegetables come as a package in the form of a store-bought marinara sauce.

Tomatoes are packed with vitamin C ley, plus more for garnish and lycopene, a powerful antioxidant. And unlike some vegetables, which lose some of their nutritional mojo when medium-high, heat the oil. Add the cooked, tomatoes are enhanced by cooking. And because you're working with a jarred sauce and quick-cooking seafood, this stew can be on the table in

An Asian-Italian take on spinach cannelloni

By Jim Romanoff For The Associated Press

East and West combine for these cannelloni, which are made by rolling a very Italian-style filling of spinach, cheese, mushrooms and roasted red peppers in Asian-style egg roll wrappers.

Ricotta cheese combined with tangy goat cheese gives the filling some bite, but if you prefer you can use all ricotta for milder results. Here we've called for jarred marinara sauce as a convenience, but by all means, use homemade sauce if you have it.

Look for fresh egg roll wrappers in the produce section (often near the tofu) of most supermarkets.

Top that sirloin with something fatty and spicy

By J.M. Hirsch Associated Press writer

Guacamole is so good, I firmly believe it is wasted on tortilla chips.

So I decided to come up with a suitable platform on which it could truly shine. And since fatty foods — even healthy ones like avocados - have a delicious affinity for salty foods, I decided to play with steaks.

What I came up with was a simple marinated sirloin – started on the stove and finished in the oven - topped with a spicy, creamy guacamole. If you're a beef purist, you can skip the marinating of the steaks, but I found the vinaigrette added a wonderful zing to the meat that worked so well with the avocado.

This recipe is incredibly versatile. It's minced easily started ahead - the steak can be marinated overnight. And it can be served as a generous entree (as described in this recipe), or cut into thin strips across the grain and served on toasted baguette rounds and topped with the guacamole for a party.

VINAIGRETTE-MARINATED SIRLOIN WITH SPICY GUACAMOLE

Start to finish: 1 hour 15 minutes (15 minutes active). Servings: 4 entrees or 16 appetizers.

For the steak:

1/4 cup red wine vinegar

1/4 cup olive oil

1 teaspoon salt

1/2 teaspoon ground black pepper

3 cloves garlic, minced Two 1-pound sirloin steaks

For the guacamole:

2 avocados, pitted and skinned 1 small plum tomato, cored, seeded and finely chopped

2 tablespoons chopped fresh cilantro 1/2 fresh jalapeno pepper, seeded and

Juice of 1/2 lime

Salt and ground black pepper 1 tablespoon canola or vegetable oil

In a large bowl, whisk together the vinegar, oil, salt, black pepper and garlic. Trim the steaks of any visible fat, then cut mg sodium.

each into 2 portions. Add the steaks to the marinade and turn to coat well. Cover and refrigerate for 1 hour.

When the steaks are nearly finished, heat the oven to 400 degrees.

To prepare the guacamole: In a medium bowl, combine the avocados, tomato, cilantro, jalapeno and lime juice. Use a fork to mash until chunky smooth, then season with salt and pepper. Cover, pressing plastic wrap onto the surface of the guacamole, then set aside.

Heat a large cast-iron or other heavy, ovensafe skillet over medium-high. Add the canola oil and heat for 30 seconds. Add the steaks and sear on the first side for 4 to 5 minutes, then flip and sear on the second side for 3 to 4 minutes.

Transfer the skillet to the oven and roast for 4 to 5 minutes for medium-rare, or until the steak reach desired doneness.

Transfer the steaks to a cutting board, cover with foil and let rest for 5 minutes. Serve each topped with guacamole.

Hawaiian pizza-inspired sweet-and-sour chicken

Bv Alison Ladman

For The Associated Press

For quite a while we couldn't quite put our finger chicken thighs, cubed on what was missing from sweet-and-sour chicken.

With all the tangy sweet enned goodness from the pineapple, peppers, onions, sugar and vinegar, it was hard to and cut into strips identify what it needed. Then we started thinking snow peapods about Hawaiian-style pizza and suddenly it hit us — bacon! Like so many things, sweet-and-sour chicken could be made better with bacon.

And while we were making improvements to this classic dish, we decided we might as well use fresh rather than canned pineapple, as well as the more flavorful chicken thigh rather than the more common breast. Credit Card Debt?

CGA STAFF WRITER

Every three minutes another person falls behind on credit card debt. It's no wonder, since every major credit card company has nearly doubled the minimum monthly payment on consumers' bills. Federal Regulators forced the change because of their concern about the growing mountain of consumer debt, which stands at $2.17 trillion. Many consumers can only pay the minimum payment, which can take up to 30 years to pay off. Now, relief is in sight for millions of Americans.

Solutions that can help you get out of debt.

CreditGUARD of America, non-profit licensed debt management service provider, is making a new program available to lower debt payments and become free of all credit card debt in only three to five years. Consumers need only $2,000 or more in total credit card debt and are falling behind on any account, to cut their payment by 35% to 50%, and reduce or eliminate interest charges altogether.

Over 200,000 families, located throughout the U.S. have regained financial independence with CreditGUARD's licensed, bonded and insured service. CreditGUARD of America has received high marks in consumer surveys showing high consumer satisfaction and confidence. The CreditGUARD debt management program can lower your monthly payments by hundreds and save you thousands!

One such case is Sandra L. who proclaimed "CreditGUARD cut my monthly payment by $656 and saved me over $29,206.53 in interest. They saved my way of life and gave me back my piece of mind! Now I can see myself on my way to becoming debt free." or Jeffrey C. who said "CreditGUARD of America helped me consolidate 3 of my credit cards into one affordable payment. They are now saving me nearly $200 a month. Now I will be debt free in 2 years or less"

Stop using mugs if glaze is worn off

Akron Beacon Journal

My husband purchased a couple of ceramic mugs at a garage sale a few years ago. It appears that the coating has worn off, since they have a lot of black inside them. I keep telling him to discard them because they might be leaching into his coffee, but to no avail. Is this dangerous?

Doug Karas, A spokesman for the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, said unglazed ceramic surfaces are not intended for food contact, because the clay can contain heavy metals. If the glaze on the mugs is worn, he recommended your husband stop using

Ellis Cody McRoberts

Nov. 10, 1925-April 16. 2011

BOISE - Ellis Cody McRoberts, 85, of Boise, passed peacefully into the loving arms of his Heavenly Father whom he had served faithfully for 65 years of his family. A graveside service with military honors by the Idaho Army National Guard of Twin Falls will be conducted at noon Friday, April 22, at the West End Cemetery in Buhl, Idaho. A public viewing will be held from 4 to 8 p.m. Thursday April 21, at Cloverdale Funeral Home, 1200 N. Cloverdale Road in Boise. The family will greet friends from 6 to 8 p.m. A service celebrating Ellis's life will be held the end of May in Boise following his grandson's return from Iraq.

Ellis Cody McRoberts was born in Manes, Mo., on Nov. 10, 1925, the son of Ray and Clementine Woolard Mc-Roberts. He was the sixth of 11 children. Ellis moved with his family at the age of 10 to Buhl, Idaho, where he grew up on the family farm and, after his school day, he would work with his brothers performing the many kinds of farm duties including driving the four-horse team and caring for 40 head of livestock.

His senior year of high school was interrupted by World War II. when he was the Asiatic Pacific Theater, leaving his two older brothers to help their father on the family farm. Eventually all three would be serving their country at the same time for the cost of freedom. Ellis was honorably discharged in April 1946. He returned to Buhl, where he was employed by Morrison-Knudsen Co. and later Shield's Bean and Warehouse.

Ellis began attending the Buhl Church of the Nazarene with his mother and met his first sweetheart, Harriet H. Sievers of Twin Falls. They were married Aug. 17, 1947, in Buhl and to this union. there were three sons, Kenneth Lee, Keith J. and Steven

PITCHING DUEL

Christiansen leads Minico Spartans in split with Twin Falls Bruins

By Ryan Howe Times-News writer

RUPERT - Two of the elite pitchers in the state went head-to-head in Game 1 of a doubleheader between Minico and Twin Falls on Tuesday.

They didn't disappoint.

Cy Sneed of Twin Falls had 15 strikeouts and two walks, but left the game after the seventh inning with a high pitch count.

That left the stage open for Casey Christiansen, who went the distance in Minico's 2-1 nine-inning victory.

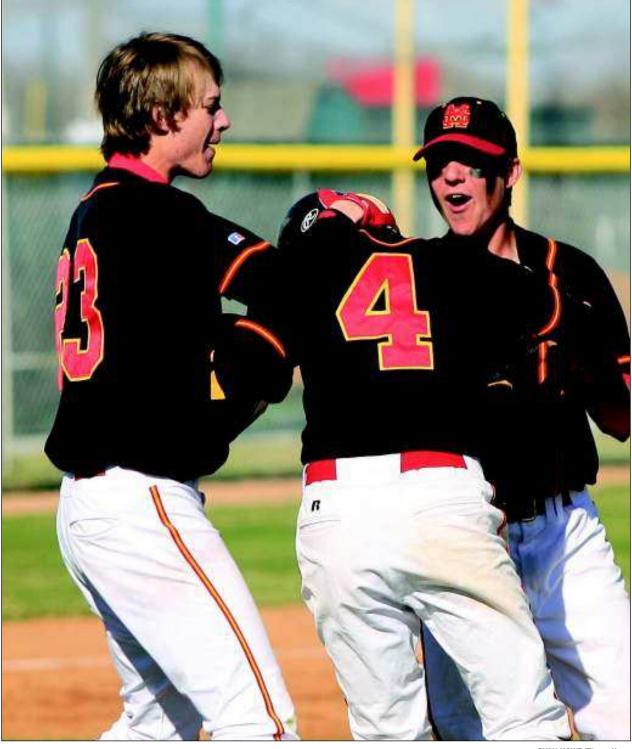

"I knew that if they were going to score any runs off me it was going to be on one of my better days," Christiansen said.

Christiansen gave up just two hits and no earned runs. While he only struck out three, his only walk issued was intentional to Sneed. Christiansen also got plenty of help from his defense, particularly Andrew Frank, who turned double plays to end the fourth and eighth innings.

The main reason for Sneed's high pitch count was he had to work out of several jams. Minico loaded the bases with one out in the first, but came away with only one run on Slade Winmill's RBI single. Sneed ended the inning with a pair of strikeouts.

Minico had two runners on with no outs in the fourth and seventh, but Sneed shut the Spartans down again each time.

"There's no reason we shouldn't win that game with the way (Sneed) threw," said Twin Falls

BURLEY - The Bobcats are tasting some success, and they like the flavor.

Earning five Great Basin Conference wins in less than a week, including a doubleheader sweep of Wood River on Tuesday, the Burley baseball team is right in the thick of things as far as favorable district tournament seeding.

"We couldn't be happier," said Burley catcher Kody Moon. "We're coming together as a team and we're believing as a team."

Moon was 3-for-5 with three RBIs and Jackson Kunz was 3-for-5 with two RBIs as Burley beat Wood River 14-8 in the opener.

Zach Israel belted a grand slam for Wood River and Alex Padilla added another home run.

Turns out the suspensions for College of Southern Idaho men's basketball players Jerrold Brooks and Luke Cothron have not been lifted.

CSI head coach Steve Gosar told the Times-News on Tuesday that he misspoke Monday when he said the suspensions had ended.

Brooks and Cothron were suspended indefinitely on March 23, a day after they were arrested and charged with marijuana possession. Brooks and Cothron pleaded guilty on April 14 to reduced misdemeanor charges of frequenting a place where illegal substances are present. They will be sentenced the class. But otherwise, CSI athletic director Joel Bate said, "They are under very close scrutiny in terms of what they do here."

Bate said Brooks and Cothron are under strict rules regarding class and study hall attendance. And when CSI holds its athletic banquet on April 27, "They will not be a part of that," said

Bate. Gosar and Bate said the players' future with CSI has not been determined.

Boston Celtics edge Knicks for 2-0 lead

BOSTON - The Boston Celtics pulled out their first two playoff games with big finishes. They want to play much better from the start next time.

"We were lucky to win," coach Doc Rivers said after a 96-93 victory on Tuesday night over the depleted New York Knicks and Carmelo Anthony's 42 points.

Kevin Garnett sank the go-ahead basket with 14 seconds left then stole the ball with 4 seconds remaining as the Knicks — without Amare Stoudemire for the second half and Chauncey Billups for the whole game still gave the Celtics all they could handle.

"I probably (have) never been more proud of a team and how they battled the circumstances," Knicks coach Mike D'Antoni said, "how hard they played and how tough they played."

Billups had a strained left knee and his status for Game 3 on Friday night is uncertain. Stoudemire had back spasms but expects to be Smith added 17. back when the best-of-seven Eastern Conference firstround series resumes.

Boston wants Mutai's time to count as world record

Boston Marathon in 2 hours, 3 minutes, 2 seconds the fastest time ever for the 26.2-mile distance race officials said they will ask track's international governing body to certify his time as a world record even though the course is technically ineligible. 'Sure," Tom Grilk, the executive director of the Boston Athletic Association, said Tuesday. "Why wouldn't we?"

With temperatures in the 50s and a steady, significant tailwind — perfect marathon weather — Mutai ran almost a minute faster than the official world record of 2:03:59 set by Haile Gebrselassie in Berlin in 2008. But Mutai's mark is doomed to be recognized only as a "world best," not a "world record," because the Boston course is too downhill and too much of a straight line to meet IAAF standards. Fourth-place finisher Ryan Hall's 2:04:58 was the fastest ever for a U.S. runner; it is likewise ineligible to be recognized as the American record because the national governing body has similar rules to the international one, according to Jim Estes, the manager of long-distance running programs for USA Track and Field.

Still, Boston officials said they would apply to have the records certified, which would force the governing bodies to reject an unprecedented performance on the world's most prestigious marathon course. Runners are lining up behind Mutai and insisting that any rule that excludes Boston, a race that predates the IAAF itself, is itself flawed.

Lakers' Odom wins Sixth Man LOS ANGELES —Los Angeles Lakers forward Lamar Odom won the NBA's Sixth Man award on Tuesday as the league's top reserve, easily outdistancing Dallas' Jason Terry to win the first significant award for individual achievement in a career mostly spent supporting others.

"It's been a long time coming. I just kept at it," Odom said, accepting the award while Kobe Bryant and Derek Fisher led a round of cheers. "I've learned so much from the dudes in the locker room. I've just been so blessed to be around you guys."

Odom averaged 14.4 points, 8.7 rebounds and 3 od.

BOSTON — One day after Geoffrey Mutai won the assists per game this season while playing in every game for the Lakers. He was a starter for long stretches of the season while center Andrew Bynum was sidelined with injuries, but also came off the bench 47 times.

COLLEGE BASKETBALL Knight apologizes to Kentucky

NEW YORK - Bob Knight has apologized to Kentucky and coach John Calipari after claiming that several of the Wildcats' players did not attend spring semester classes last year. The Hall of Fame coach and college basketball analyst for ESPN blasted Calipari's habit of recruiting players who spend just a year on campus before bolting for the NBA during a speaking engagement in Indiana last weekend. Knight said in a brief statement released by ESPN on Tuesday: "My overall point is that 'one-anddones' are not healthy for college basketball. I should not have made it personal to Kentucky and its players and I apologize.'

The Wildcats went 35-3 during the 2009-10 season, after which freshmen John Wall, DeMarcus Cousins, Eric Bledsoe and Daniel Orton left school for the NBA.

Blackhawks avoid elimination

CHICAGO - Dave Bolland returned to the Chicago lineup after missing 17 games with a concussion and had a goal and three assists Tuesday night as the defending Stanley Cup champion Blackhawks avoided being swept, routing the Vancouver Canucks 7-2.

Vancouver still leads 3-1 in the first-round series that heads back to the Rogers Arena for Game 5 on Thursday night. Chicago's Patrick Sharp scored two power-play goals in a chippy final period that featured pushing, shoving, jawing and a fight between Vancouver's Kevin Bieska and Chicago's Victor Stalberg. The Blackhawks got an offensive lift from their defensemen as Brian Campbell and Duncan Keith scored 17 seconds apart in a four-goal second peri-

Big Bend finished 12-4 with a 5-9 record in the Northwest Athletic Association of Community Colleges last season. The Vikings are getting Twin Falls' top-two scorers from this season. The 6-foot Nielsen averaged a team-leading 11.4 points, while Kelsey, a sharpshooter from outside, averaged 10.7.

Nielsen earned first-team Class 4A Great Basin Conference honors and Kelsey was a second-team selection for the Bruins, who earned the third-place trophy at state this season.

"We'll miss Jazlyn and Allie in our program, but we're just happy that they're able to go on and play somewhere and get to play together," said Twin Falls coach Nancy Jones. "Big Bend is getting two quality athletes and two quality people."

Nielsen, who is also involved in dance, got the itch to return to the basketball court after the Bruins' run at the state tournament ended.

"I've had dance and everything and it was so hard to choose between the two, but after the state tournament, it was like, 'I need to keep playing basketball. I can't be totally done;" Nielsen said. "The team was just welcoming and I felt really comfortable up there."

Kelsey felt the same way. "The team was what sold me on it. I fit in well and I think we can do something next year," said Kelsey, whose four older siblings played basketball at Montana Tech, Spokane Falls, Pacific and Yakima Valley. "I'm excited to play at the next level. I know I have a lot to work on, but my brothers played basketball at college and my dad (Filer boys coach Allen Kelsey) can help me

Burley sent 13 batters to the plate in a 10-run second inning. Kunz finished 3-for-4 with a pair of doubles and an RBI, and Joe Ferrin drove in three runs.

"They earned a day off tomorrow," said Burley coach Devin Kunz. "We knew it would be a struggle because our pitchers just went through a three-game series. We plugged away and got done what we needed to do."

The Kearl Module Transportation Plan: What You Should Know

Before we ship anything on Idaho roadways, we've worked with state leaders and the public to develop a plan that ensures oversized shipments are completed safely, with minimal disruption, while providing economic benefits to Idaho.

Here's our commitment to the people of Idaho:

- Safety will be our top priority. Shipments through Idaho are being planned by some of the most experienced transportation professionals in the business.
- Shipments will occur only between 10:00pm and 5:30am to cause as little disruption as possible.
- State police will escort shipments at all times, at our expense.
- Transport plans will comply with, and in many cases exceed, state regulatory requirements.
- No taxpayer dollars will be spent on this plan we will pay the costs of necessary road and infrastructure improvements.

To date, we have invested over $30 million in Idaho and Montana and expect that the transportation of this equipment could generate over $100 million of economic benefits in both states.

We invite you to learn more about this plan. For more information, please visit: www.KearlTransport.com

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

Call (208) 732-0400

DEAR ABBY: I work in a dental office. My boss (the doctor) and his assistant have a problem keeping their pants up. Every time either of them reaches for something or, God forbid, bends over — they flash their backsides. It's just bad, and both of them are pretty goodsized men.

My boss is the kindest, most generous person I know. But frankly, this is an embarrassment for patients co-workers alike. Something has to be done. Any suggestions to help us with this problem would be greatly appreciated.

- EMBARRASSED FOR EVERYONE, TOWANDA, PA.

DEAR EMBARRASSED: The doctor and his assistant may be unaware of the show to which they are treating everyone. You say this is not only embarrassing for the employees but also the patients. Have any of them complained about it to you? If so, you have your opening to transmit that message to Dr. Derriere.

DEAR \mathbf{A} BBY Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I have been with my boyfriend, "Gil," for three years. We bought a house together six months ago. Prior to that, we had a discussion about the future. Gil told me he wanted to get married and have kids.

I expected a marriage proposal over the holidays. When it didn't happen, I asked him what he was waiting for. His response broke my heart. He said he no longer wants to get married. Gil says he loves me, I'm his "best friend," he is willing to move forward and have children — but not get married.

I'm not sure how I feel about his arrangement. I am depressed and don't know what to do. For me, Gil is "The One" - - the love of my life. I feel like a failure and a fool for allowing myself to get into this situation. Please help me.

WEDDING BELL BLUES IN MASSACHUSETTS DEAR WEDDING BELL

BLUES: I don't blame you for feeling depressed and confused. The person you thought was The One led you on and convinced you to make a major investment under false pretenses. You should not have children with him under these circumstances. Before this goes any further and you feel even worse about yourself, I'm advising you to consult a lawyer about extricating yourself from this bad business deal. You're not the failure. He is.

DEAR ABBY: I played matchmaker for a girlfriend and introduced her to a buddy of mine from work. Two years later, he was arrested for molesting her children, and I just found out he'd had a record for this! She is no longer speaking to me. What do I do?

- REGRETFUL IN OREGON DEAR REGRETFUL: All

you can do is apologize which I presume you have already done. Although you were well-intended when you made the introduction, it implied that you were giving him your endorsement. However, you should not have been expected to have done a background check on him — that was your friend's responsibility as the mother of young children. And she may be madder at herself for not doing so than she is at

DEAR ABBY: This Friday, April 22, is Earth Day. It offers all of us a chance to do something positive for the planet. Many parents use it as an opportunity to bond with their children by sharing in a project, and some schools offer credit to students who participate (hint, hint). So check your local newspapers and go online to find ways you can help in your community.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

"The extremists' oversimplifications and their baseless generalizations reflect the softness of those who cannot bear to face the burdens of a continuing struggle against a powerful and resourceful enemy."

Wednesday, April 20, 2011

William Fulbright

Today's deal from the Gold Coast Congress — set in sunny Brisbane, Australia — features a delicate point or two on defense.

Whatever you think of South's strong no-trump opening (and my opinion would not be suitable for tender ears), it got North-South to a reasonable two-spade contract. When West led a top diamond, how should East signal? At the table East encouraged the lead to prevent an unwelcome shift. Continuing diamonds would not do anything for declarer that he could not do for himself. Accordingly, the defenders played three rounds of diamonds, declarer pitching a club. Then South led ace and a second spade to the 10 and jack, and East had his second problem.

partner has a high club or heart, the contract is going down; if not, there seems little hope for the defense. But if East is going to shift to a heart, he should play the low one, not the jack. This was what happened at the table where Pablo Lambardi and Barry Rigal were defending. Not being blessed with second sight, declarer quite reasonably tried to cash three top hearts to pitch a club loser from dummy; this would be safe as long as East had three or four hearts. Alas for declarer, East could score his trump seven for down one.

Note that if East had shifted to the heart jack, declarer could have used the heart 10 as an extra entry to assist in the process of drawing trump.

ANSWER: Although you have an attractive hand, you do not have enough to force to game, so a jump to three clubs would be a wild overbid. Best is either to bid two clubs and convert a minimum response to two no-trump, or simply to raise to two no-trump directly. With such weak clubs, I prefer the no-trump call. On a hand with the same shape, but with a club ace, instead of the spade ace, I'd certainly go the other way.

POLES

IF APRIL 20 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Money and career should be at the top of your priority list for the next six weeks. For the next month, your dispassionate, businesslike view of the world will give you the edge when dealing with material affairs. By late May and early June, you will be able to decide what is really important and can be guided by the universe into making wise and beneficial choices. You might find that the way is blocked if you try to pursue something that isn't good for you, but doors open when you deal with people who have your best interests at heart. The spiritual side of life might appeal greatly to you and over the summer you may begin relationships or projects with lasting effects.

HOROSCOPE Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): If you aren't moving forward, you'll never get anywhere. Make the most of valuable contacts — even if it means mixing business and pleasure. Make sure every move you make is somehow linked to your overall goal.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Little things mean a lot. Indulge yourself with those small things that bring you happiness. Relax with a box of chocolates, sing a song or paint a masterpiece – but only as long as you are doing what you want to be doing.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Don't jump to conclusions. If you are constantly suspicious and don't trust anyone, you'll find the feelings are reciprocal. If you are more easygoing and take things as they come, people will trust you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Rock as the referee. Step in and sound the voice of reason if two sides are at an impasse. Find a mutually beneficial solution that will clear the air and save the day. Showing off your best manners is always a plus.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Set aside a few hours for yourself. Pursue your hobbies and passions and remember why it is you enjoy these things in the first place. You may be amazed at the new levels of creativity that you can reach.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): If someone is trying to rain on your parade, carry an umbrella. Someone may try to undermine vour recent successes out of jealousy, too. Ignoring people like this will put them in their place far more gracefully than a lecture.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): No task can be completed without at least some effort. Inviting a competent partner to help you doubles your production and makes you that much more effective. The financial picture looks rosier than usual.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): If you're happy and you know it, clap your hands. Life's precious moments will touch you. Share your good mood with others and let the folks in your inner circle know just how much you care SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Show those who trust you how trustworthy you really are. Come through for your friends in a pinch, keep a deep, dark secret, or lend some advice. Think a problem over carefully before taking action.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Every story has two sides. Simply because those on one side are louder and more vocal does not mean that they are correct. Investigate a matter carefully before deciding on which side of the fence you belong.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Have a pot cooking on every burner. Don't limit yourself to one task or goal when you can be juggling a variety of activities at once. Multi-tasking will make you more well-rounded and successful.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Everyone has an opinion. Simply because someone's opinion is the polar opposite of your own is no reason to start an argument. Agree to disagree. Show a little pride by caring for your most prized possessions.
