Report: 1 in 10 Idaho drivers uninsured

See the car in your rear-view mirror, practically sitting on your bumper at the traffic light? Odds are one in 10 that the driver isn't carrying automotive insurance.

Law-enforcement agencies and insurance industry analysts say that nearly 10 percent of Idaho motorists are uninsured, a notion reinforced recently during a campaign to curb speeding by the Idaho State Police. The agency said that one out of every 10 drivers pulled over in the Magic Val-

Sgt. Chuck Garner and Officer David Frick waited on the blacktop as their Dodge Charger patrol cruiser idled.

Garner got the go-ahead, and the crackle of radio static broke the silence.

"One-Adam-12, One-Adam-12, a 4-1-5, a man with a gun," was the make-believe emergency dispatcher's call as the funky thememusic rhythm of the 1970s police procedural show Adam-12 prompted Garner to drop the Charger into gear, hit the accelerator and race toward the obstacle course as if he were responding to a real emergency.

Garner put on speed to barrel down the runway before braking hard to avoid a multitude of orange cones. He shot the gap, reached at least 60 mph, and then braked hard again to weave through more cones. Tires screeched and the aroma of hot rubber filled the cab as the car pivoted on its front wheels, slinging its rear around each cone - one of which turned black before the day's exercise was

Jerome council hikes city water rates

By Ben Botkin

Times-News writer

JEROME - The Jerome City Council voted 3-2 on Tuesday to increase water rates, with city officials saying higher water bills are needed for the utility system's maintenance and higher future operating costs.

The vote increases the usage rate from $1.40 per 748 gallons to $1.44. Other monthly base rates also change. For a standard-sized water meter connection, the $4 rate for payment of capital water projects is rising to $6.57.

The standard rate for operation and maintenance costs is increasing from $3.60 to $4.75. But the rate for utility debt service will drop from $7.32 to $5.75.

The new rates took effect immediately and will appear on residents' next bills.

City staff gave a presentation outlining the water infrastructure of Jerome and the long-term needs. Among them: some water hydrants need to be replaced with larger pipes, larger water storage tanks are needed, and well generators are limited in the water they can provide if there's an outage. "If I didn't need this increase, I wouldn't ask for it," said City Administrator Ben Marchant.

Mayor John Shine voted for the rate increase, along with councilwomen Dawn Soto and Marjorie Schmidt. Opponents were councilmen Robert Culver and Chris Barber.

Shine said Jerome grew much in the last decade and it's important to ensure the city has all the re-

Senate Democrats eye $4T budget savings plan

Committee Budget Chairman Kent Conrad, D-N.D., said the plan calls for a complete overhaul of the tax code - stripping out numerous tax write-offs while lowering income tax ment on the budget. But the rates — but would leave Social Security untouched. The tax reform idea would generate an overall revenue increase in the range of perhaps $1 trillion over the coming decade.

Conrad briefed his Democratic colleagues on the draft plan, which under Capitol Hill's arcane budget process is a blueprint setting a nonbinding framework for future legislation. The measure could come up for a committee vote next week, Conrad said.

The Senate Democratic plan would offer a counterpoint to a House GOP budget plan that passed last month. The GOP measure calls for a dramatic overhaul of Medicare that, for future retirees now 54 years old or younger, would turn the popular elderly health care program into a voucher-like system in which beneficiaries would purchase health insurance.

Conrad is also part of a so-called Gang of Six senators working on a separate track to devise a stronger plan that would seek to force Congress to pass deficit-slashing legislation. Conrad had little specific to say about either his Tuesday proposal or the secretive work of the Gang of Six. But he says both emulate the work of the bipartisan budget commission on which he served. Conrad voted for the commission's plan, which blended cuts to defense and domestic programs with an increase in the gas tax and $1 trillion in new revenues flowing from a radical tax overhaul.

"What I am laying out borrows heavily from the fiscal commission," Conrad told reporters.

It's debatable at best whether the Democraticcontrolled Senate and the GOP-dominated can come to agreement on a budget resolution. Dan Kindig,

Minidoka Co. captain honored for marine work

By Laurie Welch

Times-News writer

RUPERT – Slightly surprised, Minidoka County Sheriff Capt. Dan Kindig paused briefly Tuesday before entering the county commission chambers.

Inside, the room was filled with colleagues, family and friends gathered to watch as Kindig was presented with a state award for his service as a marine Kindig is the Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation's 2011 Marine Officer of the Year. Kept in the dark about the award, he said he became suspicious that something was being kept under wraps "when people's stories weren't matching up."

"I know there are officers who deserve the award more than I, but I'm glad to have it," Kindig said.

IDPR Boating Law Administrator Dave Dahms presented the award. "He is a great asset and we're proud of what he's done here," Sheriff Kevin Halverson said of Kindig.

Dahms said candidates' names are submitted by officers throughout the state. Five prior award recipients review the candidates and choose the winner.

Deputy Mike Gladhart nominated Kindig for the award. "I nominated him based on his outstanding service and his willingness to jump in and help out with anything," Kindig heads the Minidoka County Sheriff's Office's marine patrol division, which includes a dive rescue team and covers a portion of the Snake River and Lake Walcott.

He is also an instructor at the state's marine law-enforcement academy and was instrumental in the development of an on-the-water, tactical-based instruction course for marine officers, and a swift-water boat operation and navigation course for the state.

Kindig is a certified boat safety instructor and has taught the Boat Idaho safety course to the public for years. And, he's been a volunteer firefighter Ben Keyes said the selection panel looks for 26 years and teaches extrication at 5025.

"As an avid rafter and outdoorsman, Capt. Kindig realizes the potential dangers associated with recreational activities and has dedicated his public service to helping educate people and being involved in search and rescue events;" Dahms said.

Minidoka County Undersheriff Vic Watson said the marine division of the sheriff's office is becoming increasingly important as more people use county waterways.

"The state has helped with that tremendously and responded to the need with funding," Watson said. "And Dan has been the linchpin that has pulled the marine division along."

White House: Bin Laden was not armed when SEALs stormed room

By Matt Apuzzo and Adam Goldman Associated Press writers

WASHINGTON - Osama bin Laden was unarmed when Navy SEALs burst into his room and shot him to death, the White House said Tuesday, a change in the official account that raised questions about whether the U.S. ever planned to capture the terrorist leader alive.

The Obama administration was still debating whether to release gruesome images of bin Laden's corpse, balancing efforts to demonstrate to the world that he was dead against the risk that the images could provoke further anti-U.S. sentiment. But CIA Director Leon Panetta said a photograph would be released.

"I don't think there was any question that ultimately a photograph would be presented to the public," Panetta said in an interview with "NBC Nightly News." Asked again later by The Associated Press, he said, "I think it

Bin Laden's death may prompt change in Afghan war plan

By Jonathan S. Landay McClatchy Newspapers

WASHINGTON - Osama bin Laden's death could force President Barack Obama to change his strategy for ending the nearly decadelong Afghan war, including keeping tens of thousands of U.S. troops in Afghanistan at least until 2014, according to some experts and officials.

The key rationale underpinning Obama's strategy repeated in every major statement that the president or his lieutenants make on the war - is that the massive U.S. troop presence is required to stop the Taliban from retaking power in Afghanistan, which could allow al-Qaida to use the country again as a sanctuary from which to attack the United States.

But bin Laden's death on Sunday in a U.S. commando raid on a compound in northeastern Pakistan dealt a huge blow to al-Qaida that will almost certainly fuel domestic opposition to the war, some officials and experts said. Polls show that more than 60 percent of Americans oppose the war.

"With al-Qaida taken down a big notch, how are its strategy, under which we going to sell what we are doing?" asked a veteran U.S. diplomat, who asked to remain anonymous in order to speak freely. "I wouldn't be bilities before taking over surprised to see policy the entire country by 2014.

shifts" after Army Gen. David Petraeus relinquishes command of U.S.-led forces in Afghanistan this summer.

"The American people are going to be pretty quick to write the obituary of al-Qaida because bin Laden is dead," said Christine Fair, an expert at Georgetown University, who warned that doing so "is premature" because the terrorist network remains a threat.

A key pillar of Obama's strategy is facing an uncertain future as a result of bin Laden's death: the billions of dollars in U.S. aid that Pakistan receives in return for cooperating in fighting terrorism and closing the havens that the Afghan Taliban and allied groups maintain inside its borders.

Key lawmakers indicated on Tuesday that Congress could slash the $3.1 billion the administration is seeking in 2012 for Pakistan if it is determined that the Pakistani army or spy agency, the Inter-Services Intelligence Directorate, were complicit in hiding bin Laden outside the city of Abbottabad.

The White House said Tuesday that bin Laden's killing was consistent with U.S. troops will begin withdrawing in July and Afghan forces will gradually assume greater security responsi-

The Spokesman-Review reports the price of silver has increased by almost 50 percent since the beginning of 2011.

Body found in Snake River still unidentified

LEWISTON — Officials in Asotin County, Washington say a body pulled from the Snake River on Sunday hasn't been officially identified yet but could belong to a missing grandmother from Kamiah, Idaho.

The Lewiston Tribune reports that Asotin County Sheriff Ken Bancroft says the body could be that of Lavina Hietala, a 72-year-old woman missing since April 1.

Bancroft says that detectives examining the remains found dental identifiers and hair that could confirm whether it is indeed Hietala. The Idaho State Police is handling the investigation, and official identification is waiting on the results from lab testing.

Fishermen found the body on the river's edge Sunday afternoon and called 911.

"The world is safer. It is a better place because of the death of Osama bin Laden."

— President Barack Obama hours after U.S. forces killed the al-Qaida leader in a middle-of-the-night raid hat a difference a line on a map In Washington, voting is celebrated as a public responsibility and the state does everything it can to make it easy. The Legislature passed and Gov. Chris Gregoire signed legislation this spring to make Washington the second state in the nation to have all vote-by-mail elections.

Senate Bill 5124 will replace a 2005 law that let all counties choose whether to have polling places or mail-in ballots, a move supporters say will add clarity to state law and save money.

Secretary of State Sam Reed, a Republican, said mail-in ballots increase voter participation, save money and give people time to do their research about the things they're voting for.

The Evergreen State also has a "top two" primary system, meaning whichever two candidates get the most votes advance to the general election, regardless of party affiliation or the preference of the state party organizations.

Meanwhile, across the border in Idaho, some legislators treat voting like a raid on the henhouse.

During the just-adjourned session, the Republican-dominated Legislature passed a bill sharply restricting the right of independents and Democrats to vote in GOP primaries. That comes a year after House Majority Leader Mike Moyle, R-Star, pushed through legislation requiring voters to produce identification with a photograph at the polling place. If a citizen wishing to vote can't provide ID, he or she must sign an affidavit affirming his identity.

What in the world are Idaho Republicans so scared of?

Voter fraud is scant in the United States, to say the least. According to the Brennan Center for Justice at the New York University School of Law, there is no documented wave or trend of individuals voting multiple times, voting as someone else or voting despite knowing that they are ineligible. Indeed, evidence from the microscopically scrutinized 2004 gubernatorial election in Washington revealed that voter fraud happened 0.0009 percent of the time. The similarly closely analyzed 2004 election in Ohio revealed a voter fraud rate of 0.00004 percent.

National Weather Service data shows that Americans are struck and killed by lightning about as often.

Idaho has vote-by-mail, largely because Republican Secretary of State Ben Ysursa and the state's county clerks insisted upon it. Twenty percent of the ballots in the 2010 general election were absentee voters — which includes vote-by-mail. Twenty-six percent of voters in Blaine County cast their ballots that way.

Ysursa has stoutly resisted efforts by GOP lawmakers to make it harder to vote, and he's right.

For the fact is that in most elections, Idaho's voter turnout is pathetic – 58 percent in the 2010 general election. In Washington state, it was 71 percent.

In the primary election a year ago, 41 percent of Washington voters turned out. In Idaho, it was 27 percent.

That's unacceptable.

Although it's unstated, the subtext of many Idaho Republicans' reluctance to make voting easier is the fear more Latinos — who comprise about 10 percent of the state's population — will go to the ballot box. Our guess is that Idaho Latinos who vote are only slightly less Republican than the state's electorate as a whole.

Politicians shouldn't run away from voters, and when they do it's worth asking why.

Bin Laden's dead; al-Qaida isn't he United States needed to eliminate Osama bin Laden to fulfill our sense of justice and, to a lesser extent, to end the myth of his invincibility. But dropping bin Laden's corpse in the sea does not end the terrorist threat, nor does it remove the ideological motivation of al-Qaida's supporters.

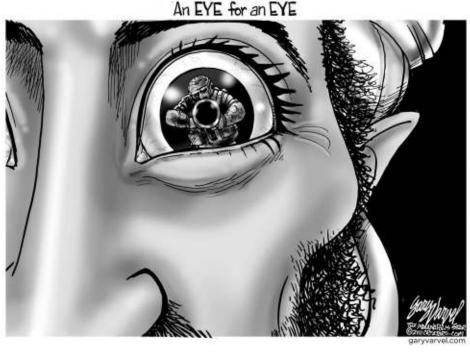

Often forgotten amid the ugly violence of al-Qaida's attacks was that the terrorists' declared goal was to replace existing governments in the Muslim world with religiously pure Islamist states and eventually restore an Islamic caliphate. High on al-Qaida's list of targets was Egypt's president, Hosni Mubarak. The protesters of Tahrir Square succeeded in removing him without terrorism and without al-Qaida.

Thus, even before bin Laden's death, analysts had begun to argue that al-Qaida was rapidly becoming irrelevant. With bin Laden's death, it is even more tempting to think that the era of al-Qaida is over.

But such rejoicing would be premature. To many Islamist ideologues, the Arab Spring simply represents the removal of obstacles that stood in the way of establishing the caliphate. Their goal has not changed, nor has their willingness to use terrorism.

In the months ahead, bin Laden's death may encourage al-Qaida to stage an attack to counter the impression that it is out of business. The more significant threat, however, will come from al-Qaida's local affiliates. Bin Laden and his deputies designed al-Qaida as a network of affiliated groups that could operate largely independently to attack America, Europe and secular governments in the Middle East in order to establish fundamentalist regimes. Once in place, the network no longer needed bin Laden and, in fact, has been proceeding with minimal direction from him for several years.

The affiliates Laden helped to create, including al-Qaida in the Arabian Peninsula and Al Shabab in Somalia, are still recruiting and financing terrorists and training them for attacks. Neither the events of Tahrir Square nor the raid on bin Laden's hideout is likely to significantly diminish the appeal of Islamist extremism to those who have been receptive to it.

In many Muslim societies, there remains a radical stratum born of a sense of victimization by the West, fueled by inefficient and corrupt governments, and carried forward by an enormous youth population. Al-Qaida was and is simply a pressure valve, an early form of connective social media that allowed young, militant jihadists fed up with the West and their own governments to organize and vent their anger.

Believing that their religion requires them to act violently against nonbelievers in the West and impure, apostate Muslim elites, the Islamist extremists will not be stopped by the elimination of al-Qaida's leader or even by the eradication of al-Qaida itself. They will continue their struggle, refusing to renounce violence or accept more democratic less corrupt regimes as a substitute for the caliphate.

Just because we do not always know the identities of their leaders or see a named and hierarchical organization does not mean that Islamist extremists are not working hard to seize the fruits of the Arab Spring. The challenge for the United States is not merely to take advantage of the intelligence gained in the Pakistan raid to further erode al-Qaida, but to assist moderate Muslims in creating a counterweight to violent extremism, with both an appealingly articulated ideology and an effective organizational structure.

The government that was overthrown in Egypt was corrupt and feckless, as are the regimes now under siege in Libya, Syria and Yemen, but the groups poised to take advantage of the upheaval in those countries include many who share bin Laden's vision for repressive religious rule. Similar situations exist in Afghanistan and

Moderate, tolerant and even some secular groups exist, but they often do not have a comprehensive alternative vision, know how to communicate it or have the organizational skills to promote it. American and European experts can assist them in building politically viable organizations, but to succeed these new groups must be homegrown and tap into the Arab and Islamic traditions that speak to many Muslim youth.

Moreover, without investment to create jobs, new governments in these countries will fail under the weight of youth unemployment. Unless corruption is replaced with efficiency, investment will either not materialize or be wasted.

Without alternative movements with vision, appeal, and the ability to deliver change, existing organized extremist groups will fill the void. And despite his death, bin Laden's goal may yet be achieved.

Buhl school levy deserves support

Nearly all of us who enjoy the blessings of this great country benefited from a "free, public education." The saying "Freedom isn't free" could be restated as "free public education isn't free."

As the generations before us supported the students of their generation, it is our responsibility and obligation to support today's students. On May 17, patrons of the Buhl School District have the opportunity to step up and meet that responsibility. For about the cost of a cup of coffee or soft drink per week, we can help the district maintain some of the programs that will be lost or have been lost due to state funding cuts.

As a retired teacher, I appreciate the extent to which the district is attempting to stretch every dollar of revenue. What a shame it is when programs for the "gifted and talented" (our best and brightest) have already had to be eliminated. Unfortunately that program is not mandated by state and federal law, thus an early casualty of funding cuts. Perhaps this program for kids who excel could be restored if the supplemental levy passes.

None of us is thrilled to pay or to increase taxes, and one of the difficulties in passing a supplemental is that it is one of the few times you as a taxpayer have a direct say on a tax. Is it a chance just to say no, or is it the opportunity to "do the right thing"?

I would urge you to support your kids, grandkids, neighbor's kids, kids you don't even know by "doing the right thing" and support the supplemental levy on May 17.

Schools, teachers have to get along with less

I hear lots of wailing and gnashing of teeth in the tents of the education establishment and lots of wild propaganda about Tom Luna and "his plan."

I would like to point out to you that maybe, just maybe, Tom Luna is saving teachers' jobs instead of firing teachers. The governor, the Legislature and Tom Luna are required by Idaho state law to balance the state's budget. When the recession hit, the tax collections fell, and there is just less money for everyone in state government.

Teachers have had raises every year since I can remember and things have been good for everyone. Maybe they were just a little too good and we got arrogant about what the Lord blessed us with. Now we have to live within a budget smaller than what we are used to, even though it's hard to get used to.

I hear the rhetoric coming out of the schools about the changes taking place and, of course, none of us wants our standard of living to suffer. When we look at our situation in comparison to those who actually have lost their jobs, homes and businesses, maybe it isn't quite as bad as we thought.

In the past, I have heard grumbling about the state's mandates coming we don't like. Now for those who feel that way, here is your chance to take back some local control, pass a levy if you can justify it in your school district and spend more money for education.

Again, we are all going to have to learn to get along with less for a while, but it still is a good life in Idaho.

ASHINGTON -It's not that I don't intend to go to church. In fact, every weekend I intend to go. It's almost a hobby at this point. "Want to go bowling?" my friends ask. "I can't," I say. "That's the time I spend intending to go to church."

I'm not alone. Twentyeight percent of Americans have not attended a religious service in the past six months, a survey by the evangelical Barna Group found. Some don't identify as religious. But many do – we just don't make it down in time.

Most of us are the wedding-funeral churchgoers we pop by on joyous and sad occasions but attend sparsely otherwise. The one day our intent usually triumphs over our general lassitude is Easter. People have the vague general sense that Easter is a religious holiday, so we drift into churches wondering when the rabbit is going to show up. To encourage us, some churches give away new cars. Others are trying more subtle techniques, such as inviting the Jonas brothers.

So I was surprised when Donald Trump recently told an interviewer about his churchgoing habits: "I go as much as I can. Always on Christmas. Always on Easter. Always when there's a major occasion. And during the Sundays. I'm a Sunday church person. I'll go when I can."

Note how he upgraded from "always on Easter" to "Sunday church person."

Say what you will about Trump, he understands how Americans like our politicians to go to church: regularly. We don't care if it's our church. We don't care if you play guitars instead of organs. We just want proof that you go.

It's tied up in our complicated dance with the men and women we elect. We want them to be like us. Not like us in the sense that we scratch below our armpits and sometimes forget to pick up our children from summer camp. We want

It's how Americans think of ourselves. We think we know policy but can't find any of the 'stans on a map. We think we're responsible about spending, yet we want the government to buy everyone bulletproof platinum hips while still cutting the deficit. We view ourselves as religious - 83 percent of us identify as Christians on surveys - but actual attendance eludes us. Want our vote? You have to do better than we can - or say so.

At least, we'll intend to vote for you. You'll have to wait and see how that works

Legislature did a bang-up job for Idaho business since the 2011 legislative session adjourned, it has been interesting to read the negative editorial comments being written by many involved with the state Legislature - from trade associations to political pundits and lawsuit filed by an environeven legislators themselves. As the voice of business in Idaho, IACI completely agrees that this was a very challenging legislative session for all involved. This is largely due to the historically difficult economic times we are experiencing; however, there were a number of positive accomplishments that should be lauded.

The governor's Hire One Act, part of his Project 60 initiative, extends a tax credit to employers who hire new employees. We believe it is extremely important to support all efforts that encourage economic development opportunities that could help create jobs for Idaho's 70,000 unemployed citizens.

An industry-wide effort to establish rules and legislation to implement the state's water quality antidegradation program was passed. This effort was necessary for DEQ to protect water quality, while providing certainty to the regulat-mental group against the EPA. By taking measured and important steps, legislators have improved the clarity of environmental regulation while enhancing protection for Idaho waters.

Two major pieces of legislation regarding unemployment insurance benefits were passed. House Bill 108 allows the state to bond the existing debt to the federal government, thus saving employers millions of dollars in penalties. Additionally, House Bill 109 passed to extend the federal unemployment benefits that 17,000 Idaho citizens are receiving, hopefully enabling them to stay in Idaho while seeking employment.

The Legislature also reduced taxes for worker's compensation coverage in Idaho. The fund had collected much more from employers than was necessary for claims, so the Legislature worked to imby reducing this tax on all employers by as much as $5 million in total annually.

Finally, Superintendent Tom Luna's innovative education reform plan will enhance the state's K-12 education system. While there has been plenty of debate surrounding this series of education reform measures, the business community supported these three bills for one simple reason: Idaho employers need educated employees to be successful and the status quo in the education system was simply not adequate to develop the highly-skilled workforce that will help our state's economy thrive. We must now focus our efforts on providing the necessary resources to implement these reforms to work as designed. This was clearly a challenging session for everyone as the economy continues to recover more slowly than desired, and some folks are naturally unhappy with the results. Yet, it is almost as though the majority of the vocal critics of this session and the Legislature as a whole didn't quite comprehend the message that citizens in Idaho and across the nation were sending last year on election-day: now is the time for fiscal responsibility. Businesses and individuals both are experiencing the toughest economic times in recent history, and it is not only okay for government to tighten its belt more, it is imperative. We are pleased with the successful passage of many good bills and the defeat of many that would have been detrimental to the state's citizens and overall economy. Legislators should be complimented rather than criticized for these efforts. We will continue our mission to work with both private and public sectors to make Idaho a more prosperous state for its citizens to live and work.

LOOKING BACK ON C3'S FIRST YEAR

Putting Idaho on the map

Gov. Otter joins in anniversary for Twin Falls employer

By Blair Koch

Times-News writer

Like all companies, C3/Customer-ContactChannels' first year in Twin Falls wasn't all fun and games.

The challenges made Tuesday all that much sweeter for company officials and employees who braved bone-chilling breezes to celebrate the day with special guests, including Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter and co-CEO David Epstein.

"We have quickly come to love the Magic Valley, its people and the community we have joined," said David Epstein, co-CEO.

Epstein, who works out of C3's Florida headquarters, credited employees' integrity, work ethic and commitment for the success of the Twin Falls call center.

"Our client satisfaction and results are nothing short of phenomenal," Epstein said. "The principles this team has and the enthusiasm they have for doing a great job ... it's just one of many reasons why southern Idaho has been such a good place to do business. We are excited about the opportunities and success this center is sure to have for many years to come."

Otter told employees during the morning ceremony he was proud of them for helping put Idaho "on the map," as a destination state for call center companies.

"We were delighted to welcome C3 to Idaho as a new corporate citizen and now we're growing more excited about the kind of leading edge enterprise that are looking at Idaho as the place to do business," Otter told the Times-News.

C3 decided to expand into Twin Falls last May.

Its plans to hire more than 500 people was welcome relief to the many people who lost their jobs because of the recession and those who became unemployed when Dell closed its customer service and technical support call center in September 2009.

However, the "natural ebb and flow," of C3's business led to the lay off of about 100 people in February, Epstein said.

By Tuesday, it had brought back about half of those laid off and the company has plans to hire "a couple hundred additional folks," in the near future, Epstein said.

"We're committed to being partners and a part of this community for the long term," Epstein said. "I think that most people understand that companies go through periods of expansion and retraction and that's what happened to us earlier in the year. But we were able to bring many of those employees back and look forward to expanding our services to more customers and bringing additional staff on to meet that demand."

C3 has additional facilities in Florida, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Utah, Florida, Costa Rica, Puerto Rico, India and the Philippines.

"We're even opening an additional site in the U.S., with that location to be announced soon," Epstein said. "It's really been a great year and we look forward to many more."

Glanbia Foods nabs 11 U.S. Championship Cheese Contest medals

Glanbia Foods continues producing award-winning cheeses, and it has the medals to prove it.

Glanbia, which has facilities in Twin Falls, Gooding and Richfield, took home 11 awards from the recent 2011 U.S. Championship Cheese Contest, in Wisconsin.

In addition, Glanbia's sister company, Southwest Cheese in New Mexico also earned a silver medal for Quesos Para Fundir Cheese (a high-moisture Monterey Jack-style cheese).

Twin Falls Plant Manager Tim Hesby said its Pepper Jack variety has won an award five out of the past seven years.

"Our Smoked Cheddar is a new product that was entered last year but didn't show well," Hesby said. "It's award this year is indicative of our perfecting it."

Glanbia's Twin Falls plant processes 19 million pounds of milk a week into 2.1 million pounds of cheese.

YESTERDAY ON WALL STREET

After two weeks of strong earnings pumped up the markets, weak results from Pfizer and others deflated a broad earnings rally, at least for today. The world's largest drug maker posted lower than expected quarterly results Tuesday, slowing a parade of positive corporate reports. Clorox, Molson Coors Brewing Co., and Beazer Homes also slipped after announcing weaker earnings.

That sent broad indexes such as the Standard & Poor's 500 lower. The Russell 2000, an index of small companies, lost 1.3 percent.

The S&P 500 fell 4.60 points, or 0.3 percent, to 1,356.62. The Nasdag composite fell 22.46, or 0.8 percent, at 2,841.62. The Dow Jones industrial average inched out a gain of 0.15 percent to close at 12,807.51.

Two stocks fell for every one that rose on the New York Stock Exchange. Consolidated volume came to 4.5 billion

A farm is seen surrounded by floodwater Tuesday in Mississippi County, Mo., after the Army Corps of Engineers blew a two-mile hole in the Birds Point levee in southeast Missouri.

Missouri levee breached, easing threat to Ill. town

The Associated Press

WYATT, Mo. - The dramatic, late-night demolition of a huge earthen levee sent chocolate-colored floodwaters pouring onto thousands of acres of Missouri farmland Tuesday, easing the threat to a tiny Illinois town being menaced by the Mississippi River.

But the blast near Cairo, Ill., did nothing to ease the risk of more trouble downstream, where the mighty river is expected to rise to its highest levels since the 1920s in some parts of Tennessee, Mississippi and Louisiana.

May," said Jeff Rent, a east Missouri. spokesman for the Mississippi Emergency Management Agency. "We had the historic tornados, and now this could be a historic event."

The Army Corps of Engineers was considering making similar use of other "floodways" – enormous basins surrounded by giant levees that can be opened to divert floodwaters.

Twin Falls' Indian market brings new ingredients to your culinary adventures

On Monday, Dadhi Ram Biswa wandered the aisles of India Foods.

"I think I like this store," the Bhutanese refugee said as he and his wife, Nirmala, looked for fruit, rice and curries.

Many of the ingredients he searched for weren't available in Twin Falls before India Foods' March opening, Biswa said. And though most of the customers at the store are from Bhutan, Nepal and India, the shelves offer plenty of culinary possibilities for Western dishes.

Hasmukh Patel, owner of India Foods, said he decided to open the store after discovering many of his customers came to his Boise store from Twin Falls and Sun Valley.

"It's too far, you know, to come to Boise all the way," he said, adding that most of his Nepali.

Private chefs rely on talent, discretion, diplomacy

> By Ariel Hansen Times-News writer

It takes a special set of skills to be a private chef.

- Versatility, because your clients might want comfort food one night and high-end French cuisine another, with options for kids and those with dietary restrictions.
- Humility, to recognize that although you may be excellent at what you do and paid very well for it, you're still there in a service capacity. "Just because I have the chef tag on my coat, I'm still a domestic in the house," said Mary Clare Griffin, who owns Executive Chef Services in Sun Valley.
- Time management, because that 7 p.m. dinner party for eight could turn into an 8:30 p.m. dinner party for 12 at a moment's notice.
- And of course, discretion, because your livelihood depends on your loyalty and trustworthiness for clients who can range from CEOs to world leaders to A-list Hollywood stars.

But for some private hopefully it was a good chefs, there's they'd rather do.

Taste or try your hand at Dutch oven gathering

Times-News

Here's an easy way to get started in Mini-Cassia's red-hot Dutch oven scene

The Snake Black Pot chapter of the International Dutch Oven Society plans its 4th Annual DOG & Taste of Dutch from noon to 8 p.m. May 14 at the Burley Senior Center, 2421 Overland Ave. A DOG, of course, is a Dutch Oven Gathering – in this case, combined with a fundraiser for Burley's Meals On Wheels program. Organizers are asking cooks to prepare enough food for the gathering and for the public to sample. Sampling of the breads, desserts and main dishes begins at 6 p.m.; tickets are $10, and proceeds go to the local Meals On Wheels.

Want to learn something? Ask the cooks questions; some of them have won top honors in Dutch oven competitions.

Want to participate but don't have equipment? No problem. Organizers say they'll have extra Dutch ovens on site and will show you how to get started. All you have to bring is the food.

Skewers are handy for controlling portion size

I love to play around with ingredients and see how many different ways I can ounces whole peppers) prepare the same items. In the winter, I took peppers, onions and pork tenderloin and made a stew. Now that it's spring, I want to grill, so I've turned the same ingredients into a skewer.

The peppers and onions become a base of the dish after they are slowly sauteed to bring out their sweetness. The pork benefits from a flavorful wet rub made from garlic, oil and paprika. The whole thing is delicious, especially if you take the extra move from the heat. step of garnishing with a little sour cream.

The skewers enable you to control portion size. A pound of pork yields 5 skewers. You'll need 5 medium-size metal skewers, or soak 5 bamboo skewers for 30 minutes before using.

The pork needs to be marinated for 2 to 12 hours.

If using a charcoal grill, light the charcoal or wood briquettes; when the briquettes are ready, distribute them evenly under the cooking area. Thread the pork cubes evenly on 5 skewers.

Lay aluminum foil on the grill so the parts of the skewers not covered with pork will be shielded from the heat by the foil. To serve, divide the onion-pepper mixture evenly among individual plates. Top each portion with a skewer of pork. If using the sour cream, put it in a small resealable plastic food storage bag and seal. Snip off 1 of the bottom corners of the bag to create a way to pipe a thin line of sour cream over each skewer.

Give Mom the royal treatment this bought angel food cake Mother's Day with these Brit-inspired trifles. Because face it, as nice as breakfast in bed is, dessert is better.

Though they're traditionally made with liquor-soaked ladyfingers or sponge cake and layers of whipped cream, custard and fruit, we've taken liberties to create a more familyfriendly version. Our individual trifles are made from angel food cake cubes and fresh berries layered with whipped cream and lemon curd (look for it alongside the jams and jellies at the grocer).

This recipe calls for half of a purchased angel food cake. The remaining half can be wrapped tightly in plastic wrap and frozen. Or serve it with scoops of ice cream and fresh berries. This trifle recipe can be prepared and refrigerated up to six hours ahead.

RASPBERRY-LEMON TRIFLES

Slightly crush the raspberries to release a bit of the juice.

To assemble the trifles, divide the cake cubes, whipped cream, lemon curd and raspberries evenly, layering hours. Garnish with mint just before them (starting with the cake cubes on serving.

Love is like a box of chocolates ... that you make

By Alison Ladman For The Associated Press

Giving Mom a box of chocolates on her special day can be a fine way to show your love. Even more so if you made the chocolates yourself.

Relax. It's easier than it sounds and we've written up a foolproof plan for making all of the mothers in your life a special box jammed with a delicious variety of chocolates.

To keep it manageable, we broke the process up into a two-afternoon project that produces five 15-piece boxes chocolates, such as chocolate-dipped fruit jellies, dipped caramels and buttercreams. The only special equipment you'll need is a candy thermometer; they are inexpensive and available at kitchen and hardware stores.

Craft and baking supply shops will be your best bet for boxes and wrappers. Once made, the chocolates can be kept in a cool and dry place for up to a week.

For the fruit jellies, we used passionfruit nectar and black cherry juice, but use whichever juice you like, including grape, pomegranate, apricot or blueberry. Just be sure to use 100 percent juice made from just the fruit named (not a fruit juice blend).

When making the buttercream filling, use whichever flavor vou like. Strawberry, raspberry, orange and lemon are common flavors used for chocolates. Mint, vanilla, butter rum, ginger, maple and anise also are good. If you'd like to color the filling, gel food coloring can be stirred in with the extract. To make more than one flavor, simply divide the unflavored buttercream mixture into bowls and flavor them individually.

DAY ONE: BEGIN BY PREPARING THE FRUIT JELLIES:

Sugar, for dusting 11/4 cups fruit juice 3/4 cup unsweetened applesauce

3 cups sugar

Two 3-ounce envelopes liquid pectin (sold with canning supplies)

1 tablespoon lemon juice

Coat a 9-by-9-inch baking pan with cooking spray. Dust the pan with sugar, then tap to coat evenly and tip out any excess. Open the packages of pectin to have them ready to use.

In a medium saucepan over medium heat, combine the juice, applesauce and sugar. Stirring constantly, heat until the mixture reaches 238 degrees on a candy thermometer. Add the pectin and return to a boil, stirring constantly.

Cook for 1 minute. Remove from the heat and stir in the lemon juice. Pour the mixture into the prepared pan. Sprinkle the top with a thin layer of sugar. Allow to set, at room temperature, for at least 2 hours or overnight. They can be left at room tem-

In the bowl of a stand mixer, beat the butter until creamy and no lumps remain. Add half of the powdered sugar and beat on low until incorporated. Add the cream and the other half of the powdered sugar and beat again until smooth. Add the flavorings and color, if using.

Spoon the mixture into a pastry bag or a zip-close plastic bag. Snip off the tip or one lower corner to make a 1/2-inch opening. Pipe the filling into 3/4-inch mounds onto the prepared baking sheet. Place the baking sheet in the freezer to harden the fillings. Chilling the fillings will make them easier to handle when covering with chocolate.

NEXT, ASSEMBLE THE FILLINGS:

Begin with the fruit jellies. Overturn the pan onto a cutting board. Using a sharp knife, trim the edges so they are squared. Cut the block into neat 1-inch squares. Dust each cube, especially In a medium saucepan the cut edges, with more sugar. The fruit jellies can be added to the box of chocolates as is, or dipped in chocolate. If you plan to dip the fruit jellies in chocolate, skip the sugar dusting step.

To prepare the caramels, 15 to 20 minutes. Remove the using the foil, lift the sheet of caramel out of the pan onto a cutting board. Peel the foil off the back. Using a sharp knife, cut the caramel into 1 caramel will soften and lose its form, so do this just before dipping in chocolate. Alternatively, individual caramels may be wrapped in squares of waxed paper, twisting the ends to seal.

When all of the fillings have been covered, dump any remaining chopped nuts and dried fruit into the bowl of melted chocolate. Mix to coat, then use a tablespoon to scoop out and form fruitand-nut clusters on the prepared baking sheets.

Refrigerate the dipped chocolates on the baking sheets for 10 minutes to help the chocolate set. Miami Heat run past Boston Celtics in Game 2

MIAMI - With the outcome decided in the final seconds, LeBron James walked toward Mario Chalmers to begin his version of a celebration.

Fitting, because James and the Miami Heat have now landed two blows against the Boston Celtics.

James scored 24 of his 35 points in the second half, Dwyane Wade added 28 and the Heat used a late 14-0 run to pull away and beat the aching Celtics 102-91 in Game 2 of their Eastern Conference semifinal series on Tuesday night. "Feel good about it," James said. "Series is far - far, far, far — away from over. It's really just beginning for us." until Saturday night, and James shot 14 of 25 from the field, and logged 44 minutes with no turnovers. Chris Bosh finished with 17 points and 11 rebounds for Miami, which leads the best-of-seven 2-0.

Pac-10 signs record TV deal with Fox, ESPN

SAN FRANCISCO — The Pac-10 agreed to a 12-year television contract with Fox and ESPN on Tuesday worth about $3 billion, allowing the conference to quadruple its media rights fees and start its own net-

The contract, which will begin with the 2012-13 season, will be worth about $250 million per year, guaranteeing each of the 12 schools in the conference about $21 million, a person familiar with the deal told The Associated Press on condition of anonymity because the terms had not been announced. The contract is expected to be formally announced by commissioner Larry Scott at a news conference in Phoenix on Wednesday. "Commissioner Scott has done an exceptional job in seeing the negotiations through and providing significantly greater exposure for the athletic teams at all of our Pac-12 universities, as well as greatly enhancing the revenue from the media to support those programs," Washington interim president Phyllis Wise said in a statement. "It's a good day for the conference and the great universities that comprise it." The Pac-10, which will be renamed the Pac-12 in July with the additions of Utah and Colorado, made less than $60 million in media rights this past season but became the latest conference to take advantage of the escalating market for college sports on television.

The ACC recently signed a deal for $155 million a year and the Big 12 reached a deal with Fox that made its total annual package worth about $130 million. The Pac-10 topped those deals, as well as the $205 million the SEC gets and the $220 million paid to the Big Ten.

Rights to some football and men's basketball games were not sold to Fox and ESPN, preserving some premium property the conference can use for a Pac-12 network to go along with Olympic and other non-revenue sports, a person close to the deal said.

The conference will also launch a digital network to show games online that aren't on ESPN or Fox.

Man charged with stalking Serena Williams in Florida

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. — A man was charged with stalking tennis star Serena Williams after police say they caught him trying to walk into her gated subdivision in South Florida.

Palm Beach Gardens police said 40-year-old Patenema Ouedraogo told officers he was going to Williams' home Monday night "because he loves her" and "he knows the feelings are reciprocal."

An attorney for Williams said he had recently obtained a restraining order after Ouedraogo tried to contact the player three times.

Subdivision security guards stopped Ouedraogo as he walked in a few minutes after Williams' sister, Venus, returned home, police said. The guards had been told to call police immediately if they saw someone matching Ouedraogo's description.

It was unclear if Ouedraogo has an attorney. He is being held on $25,000 bond.

According to the police report, Serena Williams' attorney, Malcolm Cunningham, got a restraining order to keep Ouedraogo away from Williams after he followed her to a meeting with her agent in Los Angeles in October.

Cunningham told police Ouedraogo pretended to be Williams' assistant in Tampa earlier this year while she was at the Home Shopping Network. Ouedraogo allegedly convinced HSN security he worked for Williams and was given access to her dressing room. Williams had him escorted from the building, but Ouedraogo waited outside for the rest of the day.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

"My name is Might-have-been; I am also called No-more, Toolate. Farewell."

— Dante Gabriel Rossetti

How would you play three notrump on the lead of the club 10 to East's king? At one table declarer won the club lead and played out the diamond ace and jack. Unsurprisingly, the diamond jack held, and now South turned his attention to spades by leading one to the 10 and king. East continued clubs, knocking out declarer's last stopper. When declarer played another spade, West won and cashed two clubs before playing a diamond to his partner's king: one

An alternative approach is to play on spades first. After a spade to the 10 and king, East would clear the clubs and declarer would play the spade queen. West would win and take two clubs, but now declarer has lost only four tricks. He wins the return, cashes the spade jack, and when the nine drops, cashes the seven too. Now he just needs either hearts to break or the diamond king to be onside. (If the spade nine hadn't dropped, he'd need both red suits to behave.) As the cards lie, he can't go wrong.

However, better than either of by playing the diamond jack instead of playing the diamond ace and jack at tricks two and three. This card must be ducked, so declarer reverts to spades, with play continuing as before. But now declarer has a second diamond trick under his belt. With the spade nine dropping, he has nine tricks without relying on hearts, irrespective of the position of the dia-

ANSWER: The two questions to address are whether to force to game and whether to worry about the heart weakness for no-trump. With no quick tricks, I think you should invite game here. If we play in a partscore, three clubs will surely be the safer spot, but no-trump may be hard to reach unless you suggest it now, so bid two no-trump.

Island. In 1776, Rhode Island declared its freedom from England, two months before the Declaration of Independence was adopted. In 1886, at Haymarket

Square in Chicago, a labor demonstration for an 8hour work day turned into a deadly riot when a bomb exploded.

In 1904, the United States took over construction of the Panama Canal.

In 1916, responding to a demand from President Woodrow Wilson, Germany agreed to limit its submarine warfare. (However, Germany resumed unrestricted submarine warfare the following year.)

In 1932, mobster Al Capone, convicted of income-tax evasion, entered the federal penitentiary in Atlanta. (Capone was later transferred to Alcatraz Island.)

In 1942, the Battle of the Coral Sea, the first naval clash fought entirely with carrier aircraft, began during World War II. (The outcome of the battle was considered a tactical victory for Japan, but a strategic one for the Allies.)

In 1959, the first Grammy Awards ceremony was held at the Beverly Hilton Hotel. Domenico Modugno won Record of the Year and Song of the Year for "Nel Blu Dipinto Di Blu (Volare)"; Henry Mancini won Album of the Year for "The Music from Peter Gunn."

In 1970, Ohio National Guardsmen opened fire during an anti-war protest at Kent State University, killing four students and wounding nine others. In 1980, Marshal Josip Broz Tito, president of Yugoslavia, died three days before his 88th birthday. Ten years ago: Pope John Paul II began a visit to Greece, where he issued a sweeping apology for the "sins of action and omission" by Roman Catholics against Orthodox Christians. Bonny Lee Bakley, wife of actor Robert Blake, was shot to death as she sat in a car near a restaurant in Los Angeles. (Blake, accused of Bakley's murder, was acquitted in a criminal trial but found liable by a civil jury and ordered to pay damages.) Five years ago: A federal judge sentenced Zacarias Moussaoui to life in prison for his role in the 9/11 attacks, telling the convicted terrorist, "You will die with a whimper." The U.S. military released unflattering video footage of Abu Musab al-Zarqawi in which the al-Qaida leader was seen wearing American tennis shoes and fumbling with his automatic rifle.

DEAR ABBY: As children come to their mothers to mend their scraped knees and broken hearts, readers in turn come to you for advice that can mend fractured relationships and save

mothers everywhere value

your wisdom, the Food and

Office of Women's Health and the Federal Citizen

Information Center have created the Healthy Moms

Administration's

Drug

Advice Kit for your readers. It's filled with practical tips on topics such as hay fever, recognizing and conquering depression, keeping food safe, discovering the real differences between name brand and generic drugs and – every mom's dream – learning the secrets of getting a good night's sleep. Abby, thanks for letting your readers know about the free Healthy Moms Advice Kit, and for being someone we always know we can trust to steer us to the answers we need. – MARSHA HENDERSON, FDA ASSISTANT COMMISSIONER FOR WOMEN'S HEALTH (ACTING)

DEAR MARSHA: I'm pleased to help you educate readers on these important topics. Every year when I review the advance copies of your kits, I learn something new — which is why I know they will be helpful to others.

Folks, this year's free smorgasbord of information contains helpful advice on such topics as how to avoid getting sick from restaurant take-out foods, medications and products to avoid during pregnancy, and an enlightening fact sheet on HPV (human papillomavirus), a sexually transmitted disease that, left untreated, can lead to cervical cancer. Did you know that vaccination with Gardasil can help prevent four types of HPV? I didn't. And no, you CAN'T get HPV from the vaccine.

tion in these kits has been compiled by the government at taxpayer expense, it's offered at no cost to you. However, quantities limited, so don't wait. Order now. To receive the kits in printed form, send your name and address to Healthy Moms Advice Kit, Pueblo, CO 81009, go online Publications.USA.gov, or call (888) 8-PUEBLO (that's (888) 878-3256) weekdays 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Eastern time. You can also read the publications online in PDF format, download them to your computer and print

DEAR ABBY: I had an affair a few years ago that lasted a lot longer than it should have. It ended when my lover, "John," died unexpectedly. The kicker is I was and still am - married. For the last two years I had wanted to end the relationship, but I couldn't find the courage to do it on my own.

My question is, should I feel guilty for feeling glad that John is dead? I'm glad the affair is finally over, but I feel guilty that death is what ended it and that I didn't have the courage to end it myself.

CONFLICTED IN SANTA ROSA DEAR CONFLICTED: I don't think you're feeling "glad" as much as you're relieved that John is finally out of your life — even if it was feet first. As to your guilt about not ending the affair, that's something between you, your religious adviser and your higher power. You'll have to work it out with one of them, and I'm advising you to start

IF MAY 4 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: As the year ahead unfolds, you will find that you are consumed by ambition and focused on making headway on important career objectives. Those who have the willingness to burn the midnight oil will find it is entirely possible to make dreams a reality. Certain people will be delighted to help you travel the road to success careerwise, but these same people will definitely expect to get something in return, particularly in July. You could be fooled into thinking a friend is a soul mate in December or January, or could be mesmerized into risking all on a project that really isn't worth your time. Get plenty of advice from your most trusted friends to conquer all unseen problems.

HOROSCOPE Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): This is a good time to act the part you have been given to play. You are increasingly seen as a leader, and others tend to follow your example. Make the most of the respect you have earned with your peers.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You may enjoy the ability to hold the reins of power. Since you have the ability to influence the direction of any project, it is necessary to be concerned about the welfare of others as well as yourself.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your mind is at your command; you can handle it any way that you choose. You may have learned from experience that thoughts can take on a life of their own, so it is wise to remain optimistic and cheerful.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Make your limits crystal clear. You can't expect anyone to respect boundaries if they remain invisible. Secret hostility can poison the atmosphere. Do the best you can do under the circumstances.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): The gap between the amateur and the professional is blurred. A smooth flow of words can charm and impress others into thinking you are experienced and adept. Use your sharp mind to score extra points.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): People will respect your wisdom even if they do not recognize vour faults. Pay attention to the difference between attainable goals and what could be a getrich-quick scheme cooked up by a group of dreamers.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Wait until the dust settles. You may believe that you and a potential partner are in perfect agreement, but that could be the mirage of wishful thinking. Hold off on romantic proposals and group meetings.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Don't let power go to your head. In group situations, you might be under the impression that you have been given free rein to control the outcome but you might innocently stir up resentment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Get a move on. It is an ideal day to stretch your muscles or your mind with for traveling, sports or exercise. You may be the designated driver, as well as the advice giver, for your family.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): The doubts you have about people and the doubts they have about you can undermine your reputation. Get good advice from a trusted friend to handle disappointment and disillusionment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Speak from the heart. It is important to keep the lines of communication propped open to let in a breath of fresh air. Remain calm, sympathetic and logical — even if others won't meet you halfway.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Fight for the right. The 1950s cartoon character Crusader Rabbit always willing to fight for any worthy cause, no matter how hopeless. Adopt that brave bunny's realization that where there's a will there's a way.

Building on the Promise

The opening of the new St. Luke's Magic Valley is a fulfillment of a promise made on May 23, 2006, when the community voted to join Magic Valley Regional Medical Center with St. Luke's. From the groundbreaking exactly one year later, through four years of construction, residents of the Magic Valley have watched our new hospital take shape. When it opens on May 21, almost exactly five years from that historic vote, St. Luke's Magic Valley will be the newest medical center in the region, with some of the most sophisticated systems and advanced technology in Idaho.

From all of us at First Federal...

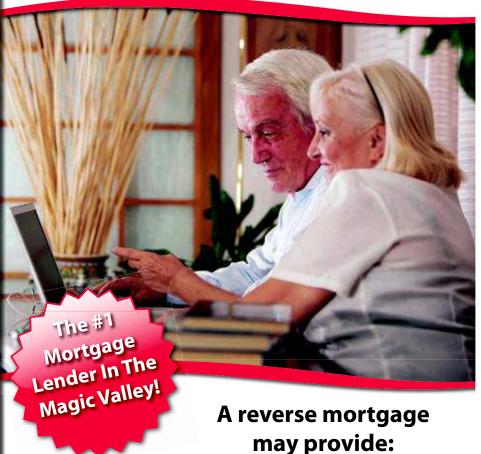

Congratulations to Saint Luke's for their commitment to the Magic Valley with the opening of the new hospital. This state of the art facility will provide outstanding health care, allowing patients to stay near their families and homes to receive the very best treatment options available today.

First Federal has been dedicated to serving the Magic Valley for nearly 100 years and has worked closely with the hospital to provide leadership in their growth and development.

We have similar missions as we both serve our communities with cutting edge technology, high standards of service, and the best employees.

Building a Strong Future for Community Health Care

Five years ago, St. Luke's embarked on the largest, most ambitious project in our history. Long before the first patient walks through the doors of the new St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center, the impact of the $238 million facility has rippled throughout the region. At 40 acres and 700,000+ square feet, this project has meant $174.5 million in design and construction costs alone. St. Luke's has worked with 225 vendors including sub-contractors, architects, and engineers, and averaged 350 construction workers on site each day.

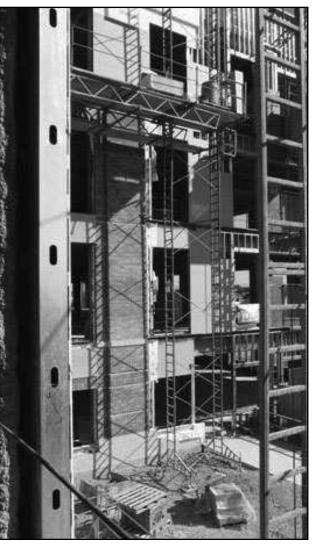

Hummel Architects, established in Boise in 1896, builds on more than a century of experience, a deeprooted understanding of the regional marketplace and local contractors, and a legacy of visionary projects including the Idaho State Capitol, Idaho State University Performing Arts Center, and locally, the new Canyon Ridge High School.

Architectural Nexus brought a wealth of experience in health care design, trends, and innovations to our new medical center project. The Nexus office in Logan, Utah provided local access to this international firm.

St. Luke's contracted with Sprague Solutions, a Boise-based design firm, for all design, furniture, and artwork in the new facility. Sprague has many years of health care design experience, and has worked on several St. Luke's Health System projects. Their natureinspired themes throughout the medical center bring the beauty of the Magic Valley inside, creating a soothing, healing environment.

" We want to have the latest and greatest technology and the most sophisticated systems for health care, yet we want it to look and feel natural and offer a calming experience. ""

-Jeff H., Director, Architecture and Construction

A Green Experience

Beautiful Rooftop Gardens

Good for Patients and the Environment Three rooftop gardens will grow and mature at our new medical center, where the original white, reflective surfaces of the roofs were replaced with rock and soil and prepped for planting. Construction and landscaping staff designed the gardens to generate oxygen and reduce the ultraviolet (UV) impact on the building, but they also followed a vision of creating green spaces that promote calm, healing, and hope. Patients can enjoy beautiful views of the gardens from their rooms, or visit the garden near the

Making the Most of Natural Light Natural Light Promotes Healing:

Women's and Children's Center to enjoy a peaceful respite alone or with visitors.

Studies show that an environment that takes good advantage of natural light accelerates the healing process. The new hospital is designed to maximize natural light in patient rooms, nursing areas, hallways, treatment rooms, and in public areas such as the cafeteria and chapel.

Natural Light Saves Energy & Money:

The more natural light in the design, the less electric light the building needs to produce. The new hospital regulates light usage with photo cells that measure daylight and keep electric lights off when they're not needed.

A Growing Partnership

In 2006, the Horticulture program at the College of Southern Idaho took over the care of several small trees purchased by St. Luke's. Students in the program nurtured the trees over the past four years, and prepared them for planting this spring. This partnership gave the students valuable experience, and allowed St. Luke's to plant more mature trees on the new hospital grounds.

A Fan of Energy Efficiency

Hospitals require large volumes of fresh air exchange; to meet that demand, many use giant fans requiring enormous amounts of electricity. To dramatically

The "artichoke lights" in the new hospital's main lobby are beautiful and energy-efficient, using half the energy of traditional recessed lighting.

lower those amounts, the new hospital employs a wall of small, energy-efficient fans. This "fan wall" is regulated by a computer that turns the fans on and off as needed to keep interior temperatures constant. Because the computer alternates the fans in use at any given time, the fans also last longer.

Reduce, Re-use, Recycle

- Construction teams recycled trim pieces, metal scraps, and plastics.
- · Blasted lava rock was incorporated into the design and landscaping.
- The hospital worked with waste management companies on recycling education, substantially increasing recycling efforts.

relationships ourselves, and acknowledging that evervone has a valuable contribution to make in creating and sustaining a healthy, effective work environment and an organizational culture that values each patient, family, employee, physician, and volunteer.

Nurses—the Heart of St. Luke's

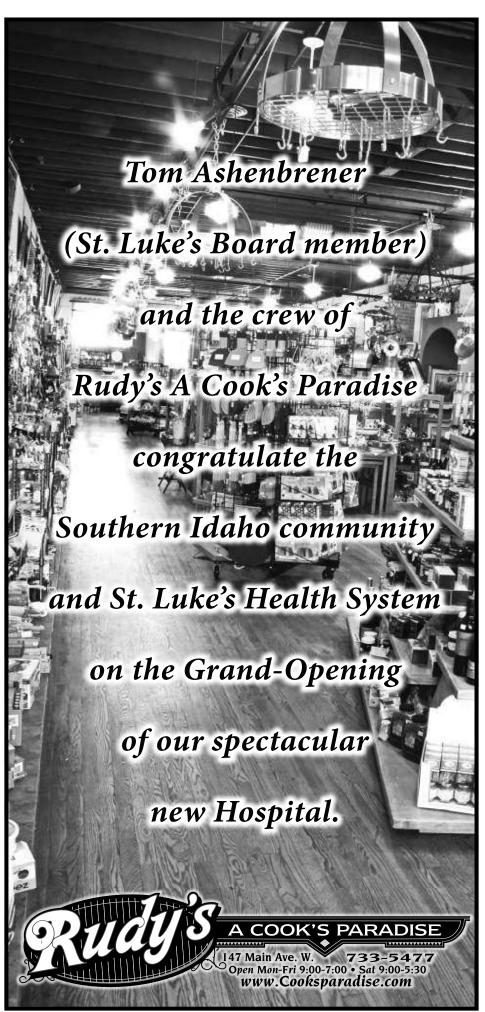

Nurses are the heart of St. Luke's Magic Valley, providing skilled, high quality medical care, compassion, kindness, and comfort. They are caregivers, healers, and advocates for patients and families—by their side as they face life's joys and tragedies.

Our new medical center will allow nurses and other dedicated staff to even better care for the people of our communities, bringing leadingedge services closer to home and the support of family, friends, and caregivers they know and trust.
