Rita Chretien released from Twin Falls hospital

Weather suspends search for missing husband in Nevada

By Bradley Guire
Times-News writer

Rita Chretien, 56, has been discharged from St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center in Twin Falls, according to the hospital. Chretien was transported late Tuesday afternoon to a hospital in British Columbia, St. Luke's spokeswoman Laura Stewart confirmed this evening. She had spent four days recovering in the Twin Falls hospital after being found Friday afternoon in a van in remote northern Nevada, where she had been stranded for seven weeks.

Rita and Albert Chretien, of Penticton, B.C., were traveling to a trade show in Las Vegas when their van became stuck in the Jarbridge area on March 19.

Feds consider protections for 250 species

The Associated Press

BILLINGS, Mont. — The Obama administration on Tuesday announced a deal with environmentalists to work through a backlog of more than 250 imperiled animals and plants in order to determine which merit federal protection. In south-central Idaho, the deal would set a fiscal 2015 deadline for a decision on whether the greater sage-grouse should be listed as threatened or endangered. A grouse listing would greatly affect ranching, recreation and other uses of public land across the region. Decisions would be made on three other species, but no deadlines were set for them in materials provided Tuesday.

Tough choices loom over city pay raises

Mid-2000s offer view of T.F. employees leaving in droves

By Nick Coltrain
Times-News writer

While the city of Twin Falls grapples with falling revenues and crumbling infrastructure, it has another specter over it: increasingly below-average wages. An employee pay survey completed about a year ago found that Twin Falls' compensation — benefits and wages — was about 7.6 percent below comparable regional employers. It did not take cost of living into account. Since that survey, city staff has said other local governments have given raises, meaning Twin Falls pay may be closer to 10 percent behind others. And as the city deals with a $2.4 million gap between what it can afford and what it wants to afford, employees may go a third year without a pay increase. Councilman Lance Clow warned that the survey also doesn't paint a complete picture: Some cities that gave raises also laid off employees, which Twin Falls hasn't done. He said that stability was an unaccounted-for benefit. He, like everyone interviewed, didn't accuse employees of being ungrateful for their jobs. Clow said he hasn't made up his mind on raises, "but I do know it's going to be tough to find a lot of extra money this year." Pay isn't the only reason employees leave the city, but it can make the decision to leave easier, Twin Falls Police Capt. Anthony

FLEEING THE STORM

DREW NASH/Times-News

Steve and Julie Egersdorf talk about surviving a tornado that tore through Phil Campbell, Ala., Friday at Steve's mother's home in Gooding. The family lived in Alabama for 10 years, but now plans to restart their lives in Idaho after the April 27 tornado destroyed their home.

Survivor of Alabama tornado returns to Gooding

By Bradley Guire
Times-News writer

Steve Egersdorf doesn't know if he wants to leave Gooding and go home. His home is gone. His restaurant is gone. He knows that much. But he doesn't know what else he'll find just two weeks removed from one of the worst tornado outbreaks in American history. He's not sure if he can handle knowing who made it and who didn't among his small town of barely 1,000 people in Phil Campbell, Ala. "I don't know if I want to see who's missing," he said. His house is no longer a safe place to stay, not after being tagged by heavy trees and a pick-up truck. So he and his family moved to another small town, Gooding, his hometown where

Anti-Luna groups to hold petition drives at city park

The people behind the effort to put Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Luna up for a November recall election will hold petition signature drives this weekend at Twin Falls City Park.

The group also seeks to put a ballot question in front of Idaho voters to repeal laws associated with Luna's "Students Come First" education reform package.

The drives will be held from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday and noon to 4 p.m. Sunday.

Organizers say they're halfway to their goal of collecting 60,000 signatures on each petition against the individual Luna laws. They need 48,000 verifiable signatures on each petition.

They are working to submit collected signatures to county clerks by the end of May, in order to have them verified in time to send to the Secretary of State's office by June 6.

T.F. school board candidates to speak at forum

Candidates seeking election on May 17 to the Twin Falls School District Board of Trustees have been invited to speak at a public forum at 7 p.m. Thursday at the Twin Falls High School faculty lounge.

Zone 2 candidates, incumbent Kenney Young and Paul McClintock, will speak. Also invited are Zone 4 candidates, incumbent Lori Ward and challengers Mary Catherine Barron and Dixie Lee Siegel.

Unopposed Zone 5 candidate Bernie Jansen has also been invited to talk by the event's host, the Twin Falls Education Association. The public is invited to attend.

No. 2 Democrat in U.S. House opposes contractor disclosure

WASHINGTON (AP) — The second-ranking House Democrat said Tuesday he opposes a White House proposal to require anyone seeking government contracts to disclose political contributions.

Rep. Steny Hoyer of Maryland, the party whip, placed himself on the same side as Republicans and the business community — and against liberal groups demanding more disclosure.

Hoyer told reporters that contractors should be chosen on the merits of their applications, their bids and their capabilities, not on their political donations.

President Barack Obama's disclosure order, drafted in April, has not yet been issued.

One of Obama's sharpest critics, Chairman Darrell Issa of the House Oversight and Government Reform Committee, has scheduled a hearing Thursday to hear from witnesses who believe the order would curb free speech and harm small businesses.

Hoyer told reporters, "It's not a requirement now. I don't think it ought to be a requirement. So I'm not in agreement with the administration on that issue."

Drafted April 13, Obama's proposal would require anyone submitting bids for government work to disclose two years' worth of political contributions and expenditures.

The search for Albert, 59, should resume this morning after weather interrupted the effort Tuesday. He had left the van on March 22 in search of help.

According to Sgt. Kevin McKinney of the Elko County (Nev.) Sheriff's Office, heavy amounts of rain and melting snow have continued to flood the search area where Albert Chretien, 59, and his wife, Rita, became stranded in northern Nevada on March 19.

"We sent a helicopter up, but we had to turn back because of (poor) visibility conditions," McKinney said Tuesday afternoon. "We couldn't get teams on the ground to search."

Lt. Marvin Morton told the Elko Daily Free Press that today's search parties will start from Grasmere, Idaho, and go through the Rowland town site the same way the Chretiens did when their van became stuck.

Resources today were expected to include horses, various all-terrain vehicles, aerial surveillance and dogs trained to detect cadavers.

The search was also halted on Sunday due to poor weather.

Officials have been scouring the areas between Jarbidge and Mountain City, a town they believe Albert Chretien was trying to reach when he left his wife in their van on March 22, three days after the couple became stranded near Nevada Highway 225.

Albert Chretien was last seen wearing a khaki shirt, black jeans and a hat, is 5 feet 6 inches tall and weighs about 175 pounds.

Rita Chretien's discharge came after a remarkably quick recovery. Earlier Tuesday, St. Luke's caregivers had upgraded her condition to good, and reported that she was eating solid foods and handling that well. In a Tuesday evening news release, St. Luke's officials passed on the Chretien family's thanks for all the prayers and well wishes they'd received, and how grateful they were for the privacy they received in Twin Falls.

Stewart wasn't sure where in British Columbia Rita was taken or how much recovery still lies ahead of her. But she said Rita was "obviously in good condition" and in "really good spirits" prior to her discharge.

"It's a pretty miraculous story all the way around, I'd say," Stewart said.

New software allows Idahoans to have their say on new legislative districts

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

GET INVOLVED

To access software and instructions for redistricting, visit Redistricting.idaho.gov and click the Maptitude link.

The Idaho Redistricting Commission meets for the first time on June 7, but the public can get involved right away in the once-a-decade task of redrawing the state's legislative districts.

This time around, anyone with a computer and Internet access can participate in redistricting, a task done each decade after the U.S. Census to equalize the number of residents each legislative district represents. Public proposals submitted through the new redistricting software will be considered by the commission.

Once the districts are redrawn to match Idaho's changing population, areas of more growth — like the Treasure Valley — will have more representation, leaving areas with less growth or population declines with diminished clout. Depending on how the lines are redrawn, it could leave you with different legislators representing your district.

This is the first decade for this level of easy public access to the redistricting process. Following the 2000 Census, people wanting to submit plans needed to access mapping software at public libraries. This year, Maptitude Online software to draw up proposals is available at the Idaho Redistricting Commission's website. For those starting out, here are a few guidelines:

- Idaho's two congressional districts must each have about 783,791 residents.
- The population of the largest and smallest state legislative districts can be no more than 10 percent different. For a 35-district plan, that means a goal of 44,788 people in each district, with a range of 42,549 to 47,027.
- A plan must have between 30 and 35 districts.

There's no deadline yet for submitting plans. That's something the commission will look at when it starts meeting, said Keith Bybee, a legislative analyst.

On Monday, he said 67 people had signed up to use the software since Friday.

The six-member commission has three appointees each from the Democrats and Republicans. Democrats have already announced their picks: Allen Anderson of Pocatello, Julie Kane of Lapwai and George Moses of Boise.

Mississippi delta braces for historic flood

The Associated Press

TUNICA, Miss. — The bulging Mississippi River rolled into the fertile Mississippi Delta on Tuesday, threatening to swamp antebellum mansions, wash away shotgun shacks, and destroy fields of cotton, rice and corn in a flood of historic proportions.

The river took aim at one of the most poverty-stricken parts of the country after cresting before daybreak at Memphis, Tenn., just inches short of the record set in 1937.

Some low-lying neighborhoods were inundated, but the city's high levees protected much of the rest of Memphis.

Over the past week or so in the Delta, floodwaters along the rain-swollen river and its backed-up tributaries have already washed away crops and forced many people to flee to higher ground and closed some of the dockside casinos that are vital to the state's economy.

But the worst is yet to come, with the crest expected to roll through the Delta over the next few days. The damage in Memphis was estimated at more than $320 million as the serious flooding began, and an official tally won't be available until the waters recede.

Tornado

day, leaving more than 300 dead, thousands injured and many without a place to live.

Steve took his family to Alabama nearly 10 years ago. Most recently, he ran restaurants in Phil Campbell, which is 90 miles north of Tuscaloosa, the hardest-hit Alabama city with more than 40 dead. The life he knew came to an end on what looked to be a pleasant Wednesday.

"We've heard hundreds of alarms over the years and never saw a thing," Steve said.

While managing Good Cooks, a restaurant owned by friends, he got word that bad weather was on its way, so he closed the restaurant and walked the few feet to his home.

Within minutes, the tornado struck with such ungodly force that it decimated 40 percent of all structures in the town before it was done.

Steve and his family had a scant few minutes to get to the restaurant, which featured a sturdier frame than the house next to it. When they emerged from the rubble, everything was gone. People just like them rose from the wreckage, taking in what was left of their town.

"The people were shellshocked coming out," Steve said. "It was like a land of zombies, people just walking everywhere with lost looks on their faces. The more you looked, the more destruction you saw."

The death toll stood at 26 in Phil Campbell, another 17 in nearby Hackleburg and thousands injured, according to Associated Press reports. Sue Robinson, CEO of Red Cross of Greater Idaho, said that a team of eight disaster volunteers will spend the next few weeks aiding survivors as other Red Cross chapters also help with providing shelter, meals and personal hygiene kits for the newly homeless.

The family was able to stay in a hotel in Haleyville, just a few miles south of Phil Campbell. With nothing left of their home, they rented a trailer, packed up what they could and made the 1,900-mile drive to Gooding. Steve said that the restaurant owners want him to come back and help rebuild, but he isn't sure of what kind of life his family would have now that nature has taken so much from Phil Campbell.

"We weren't making a gob of money, but we were making it," Steve said. "If they open it up, will we make it? People moved to Russellville and Decatur."

For now, Steve will do whatever is needed to provide for his family whether they remain in the Magic Valley or make another go in the South. But he is quick to admit his family is one of the fortunate ones.

"I didn't lose anyone that I know of," he said. "I lost my job, my house. But I feel bad about feeling bad because at least we're all alive."

City pay

Barnhart said. He and Police Chief Brian Pike would know better than most: In 2005 and 2006, the police department lost 16 officers, some for personal reasons and others because they had better offers.

It created an experience scale in the department that looks a bit like an hourglass: an adequate number of both new and experienced officers, but a lack of officers in-between, City Manager Travis Rothweiler said.

While the police department is a more-extreme example, during that time engineering and other departments also lost workers. Like the officers, those employees took with them the results of training and time investments by the city.

Councilman Will Kezele didn't discount the importance of keeping quality employees, but said finding more cash in a recession will be tough. He said the times call for increased efficiency, including looking at more privatization.

"Human capital is a budgetary item," he said. "And in a recessionary year, quite frankly, I don't think it is appropriate to increase any percentage of a budget."

Pike said it takes two to five years of experience for officers to develop the level of service he wants. He won't even let them patrol solo with less than a year of experience.

"We see good people on their worst day," Pike said. "It takes a special person to deal with those situations, diffuse those situations."

Aside from losing the time it took to get the officers to the level he wants, losing a swath of officers adds a burden to the others, Pike said. Twin Falls receives an average of 128 calls for service a day, and that doesn't change because the staffing isn't there. If enough officers are gone, it also forces leadership to decide between staff for service calls and for other duties, like school and traffic patrol, he said.

And with Twin Falls officers making an average of 18 percent less than they would at comparable departments, Pike said, "I think we are falling behind."

Add in the economy and the city's revenues, though, and pay becomes an "awkward conversation," he said.

"Here we are in one of the worst economic climates — and some would say the worst in our history — but you have these honest compensation issues," Pike said.

While the bad economy doesn't make it easier for employees to find better jobs now, a recovery would leave the city less competitive, Human Resources Director Susan Harris said. Pike said he hopes that a recovery wouldn't mean "the flood gates open" for new offers for his officers.

"When that time comes, we want to make it a more difficult decision for them to leave," Barnhart said.

Kezele said that's a decision that needs to be balanced against other needs of the city, especially roads and infrastructure. He wouldn't go as far as to say those needs outrank pay concerns, but he would like to give those more attention this year.

"Every year, we need to reevaluate the highest priorities and needs," he said. "And there are roads and other infrastructure needs that have been taking the back seat to other things."

CSI players get suspended sentences, probation in drug case

By Bradley Guire
Times-News writer

Suspended College of Southern Idaho men's basketball players Jerrold Brooks and Luke Cothron received suspended jail sentences Tuesday in Twin Falls County 5th District Magistrate Court.

The duo, initially charged with misdemeanor possession of a controlled substance in March, entered guilty pleas to lesser charges of frequenting a place where controlled substances are used. Judge Roger Harris ordered both men to serve 12-month probationary periods in lieu of 90-day jail terms. Each man must also complete 20 hours of community service.

Harris also fined each defendant $200, with half of that suspended, and ordered each to pay $177.50 in court costs.

"You've done a lot of positive things, but made a poor decision that could have jeopardized all that," Harris said.

Both Brooks, 19, and Cothron, 20, made brief statements prior to Harris' ruling.

"I made a poor decision," Brooks said, "and I won't let it happen again."

Cothron apologized, saying, "I embarrassed my community, my school and my team."

Both entered guilty pleas in mid-April.

Brooks and Cothron were arrested and arraigned on misdemeanor charges just days after the Golden Eagles secured the 2011 NJCAA National Championship.

According to the police report, they were found on March 22, sitting in a vehicle filled with white smoke on the 1900 block of Bitterroot Drive in Twin Falls. Police said Brooks, who was driving, pulled the vehicle away when the officer approached, but was pursued and stopped. Brooks and Cothron were in possession of a container of 8.2 grams of marijuana, while Cothron had another 0.7 grams on his person.

Brooks had told police he got the marijuana from a girl at a bar in Kansas, where CSI played earlier in March in the NJCAA National Tournament.

U.S. Postal Service reports billions in losses

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service is continuing to hemorrhage money, reporting a loss Tuesday of more than $2 billion over the first three months of the year and warning it could be forced to default on federal payments.

Such a default would not interrupt mail service to millions of Americans, but it could further hobble an agency struggling with a sharp decline in mail because of the Internet and a tough economy.

The agency says the $2.2 billion loss covers Jan. 1 to March 31 — sharply higher than the net loss of $1.6 billion for the same period last year. The post office also said it will have reached its borrowing limit, set by Congress, of $15 billion by the end of the budget year on Sept. 30.

Unless Congress intervenes, the Postal Service said, the agency won't have the cash for certain payments to the government, such as billions for a trust fund to provide health care benefits for future retirees.

"The Postal Service continues to seek changes in the law to enable a more flexible and sustainable business model," said Postmaster General and CEO Patrick R. Donahoe.

Twin Falls schools eye $40.3 million budget

By Amy Huddleston
Times-News writer

The Twin Falls School District Board of Trustees glanced over a preliminary $40.3 million budget for fiscal 2012 on Monday night, and reserved June 13 for hearings on the coming year's budget and an amendment of this year's mark.

Fiscal Affairs Director Bob Seaman presented trustees with the preliminary budget, which showed a tentative carryover of a little less than $1 million in reserve funding from this year. Superintendent Wiley Dobbs said that without voters' March approval of a $7.5 million supplemental levy, the district would be facing a rough year of budget cuts. But the locally approved funding will restore six days to the school year calendar — two for teachers' preparation and professional development, and four days of student-teacher interaction.

The board also approved new proposed trustee zones, which will be sent to the State Department of Education for final approval.

Also on Monday, legislators Rep. Stephen Hartgen, Rep. Sharon Block, Rep. Leon Smith and Sen. Lee Heider — all Twin Falls Republicans — presented the board with their reasoning for their votes either for or against the three "Students Come First" education reform bills that have been passed into law. Heider said a lot of blood, sweat and tears went into the revisions of the bills, and it was never the legislators' intent to replace teachers.

Block said voting for the bills was the right thing to do in light of the economic times, and said technology will facilitate individual plans for gifted, average and remedial learners.

Smith said he voted against all of Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Luna's bills, calling them "mean-spirited." He called Luna's plan to provide teachers merit-based pay incentives an unfunded mandate, and said he wasn't sure how school districts were going to find that extra money or manage the influx of technology without proper tech support.

Hartgen said legislators came home with a balanced budget and didn't impose any new taxes on Idaho's residents, adding that efficiency drives out inefficiency when it comes to technology.

Board members and school officials thanked the legislators for their work, though some criticized the legislators for their decisions. Ted Popplewell, elementary programs director, asked them to come back in five years to discuss the implications of this session's new laws.

"I'm afraid it won't all be good," he said.

Species

Interior Department officials said the proposal stemmed from a court agreement with WildEarth Guardians, one in a handful of groups that have filed hundreds of legal actions against the agency over its handling of threatened species.

With a long list of animals that scientists say need greater protections, but with too few resources to cover restoration costs, federal officials have put many species on a waiting list of "candidates" for greater protections. Some species have languished on that list for more than 30 years.

Deputy Interior Secretary David Hayes said the backlog has been made worse by lawsuits that have bogged down the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

"This plan will enable the endangered species program to function as it was originally intended," Hayes said. "Priorities are being set by plaintiffs in courts, instead of by wildlife professionals, by litigation instead of science."

The agreement is pending court approval.

If approved, the settlement would clarify how much time state agencies, local landowners, outdoors enthusiasts and others have to improve sage-grouse populations and avert a listing. Local working groups across the West have sought to reverse the bird's decline, many for more than a decade, and some members worried before last year's decision that a listing would fail to acknowledge the hard work they've put in.

As part of the proposed deal, WildEarth Guardians and the government would seek to dismiss five pending court cases involving species litigation — including one brought by Hailey-based Western Watersheds Project regarding the sage grouse. But if other parties refuse to drop their suits or one or more of the cases are not dismissed, Interior would be able to end the agreement.

Western Watersheds was still reviewing the proposal Tuesday. But Biodiversity Director Katie Fite noted some concerns with Interior's ar-

"As far as WWP's concerned, the sage grouse litigation that we're involved in is going forward," Fite said.

For its part, WildEarth Guardians said it would limit the number of petitions it files. But another group involved in numerous lawsuits over endangered species, the Center for Biological Diversity, said Tuesday it refused to sign the agreement.

Interior officials also said they plan to make initial findings on an additional 600 species for which groups have filed petitions seeking greater protections.

Feds unveil critical habitat proposal for slickspot peppergrass

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is proposing that nearly 60,000 acres of land in Idaho be designated as critical habitat for slickspot peppergrass.

The plant, which is on the federal endangered species list, would be protected on 57,756 acres in stretches of Elmore, Owyhee, Payette and Ada counties. The public can review the proposal and submit comments to the federal agency through July 11.

Federal scientists worked up the proposal, which aims to provide space to allow the plant's growth across sagebrush-steppe habitat and address threats like wildfire, residential and agricultural development, and potentially inappropriate livestock use such as trampling, according to the agency.

"This proposed designation of critical habitat for slickspot peppergrass is the result of a careful, comprehensive assessment of the best scientific information available, including that found in the final listing determination," said Brian Kelly, Idaho state supervisor for the federal agency, in a statement.

About 95 percent of the proposed designation is on public land. Military lands that already have approved conservation plans are not affected by the proposal.

The designation doesn't affect land ownership, or create a refuge or conservation area. Nor does it allow the government or public access to lands that aren't owned by the federal government.

Grazing allotments on federal public land will likely be affected by the conservation measures, but the critical habitat designation doesn't place restrictions on non-federal lands unless federal money, permits or activities are involved, according to the agency.

Laptops and support go hand in hand

In 2013, $3 million in laptops will flood Idaho schools. In 2014, $11 million will be used for their purchase. The year after that, another $14 million in laptops will be given to students.

Within four years, there will be tens of thousands of new computers in the hands of Idaho teens.

And the state has yet to finalize how to support them. As Buhl School District Superintendent Byron Stutzman told the Times-News: “It takes money to run technology.”

Ideas have been discussed, and Idaho schools chief Tom Luna’s office says that the task force will have a plan ready sometime within the 30-month window before laptops start appearing in schools. However, a support system for these truckloads of technology should have been drawn up long before the money was budgeted.

Our view: The state’s goal to maintain schools’ laptops makes sense on paper, but reality may be different.

What do you think?
We welcome viewpoints from our readers on this and other issues.

The state’s goal is to handle the machines more like a service — repair fees would be bundled with the price of technology. If a student’s computer gets a virus or the batteries won’t charge, it’s shipped off to a support center somewhere instead of fixed locally. Luna has repeatedly said that the cost won’t trickle down to the local school level.

It’s a goal that makes sense on paper, but the reality may be different. Twin Falls School district currently has six employees to support its 3,300 computers. The number of machines will more than double by 2015, and in an era of razor-thin budgets, we don’t expect more money to be allocated for tech support staff.

Even if those computers are shipped off and repaired out of state, somebody has to do the diagnosis. The schools’ technology people will end up replacing batteries, checking to make sure software updates are running and that the system is indeed malfunctioning before they box it up and ship it off. And that takes time.

Even if Twin Falls School District’s six tech staffers can handle the increased workload, smaller districts are getting a raw deal. Murtaugh’s school district has one part-time technology person (who’s also a maintenance man). Dropping dozens of laptop-related problems into his lap doesn’t seem like a particularly well thought out plan.

In many ways, it’s like maxing out your finances to buy a Porsche, and figuring that, by the time the payments come due, you’ll have figured out how to pay for those hefty insurance payments.

When coupled with the plans to teach educators how to use the new tools, the addition of technology is going to be a distinguishing factor in Idaho’s education plans. We just wish that all of the costs had been figured out from the beginning.

Were Pakistan officials really unaware bin Laden was living among them?

There is something surreal about Pakistani officials’ reaction to the killing of Osama bin Laden.

Their focus has been wholly on the violation of Pakistan’s sovereignty by the U.S. raid, rather than the fact that bin Laden was living well in their country. The army chief, Gen. Ashfaq Parvez Kayani, warned he would not tolerate any repeat of such covert action; the country’s foreign secretary, Salman Bashir, said any similar attack could lead to “terrible consequences.”

“No self-respecting nation would compromise or allow others to compromise its sovereignty,” Bashir insisted. But how could any self-respecting nation allow the world’s top terrorist — a foreigner — to operate out of its heartland? How could any self-respecting state permit the leader of al-Qaida — a group composed of Arabs, Uzbeks and Chechens — to base in their country?

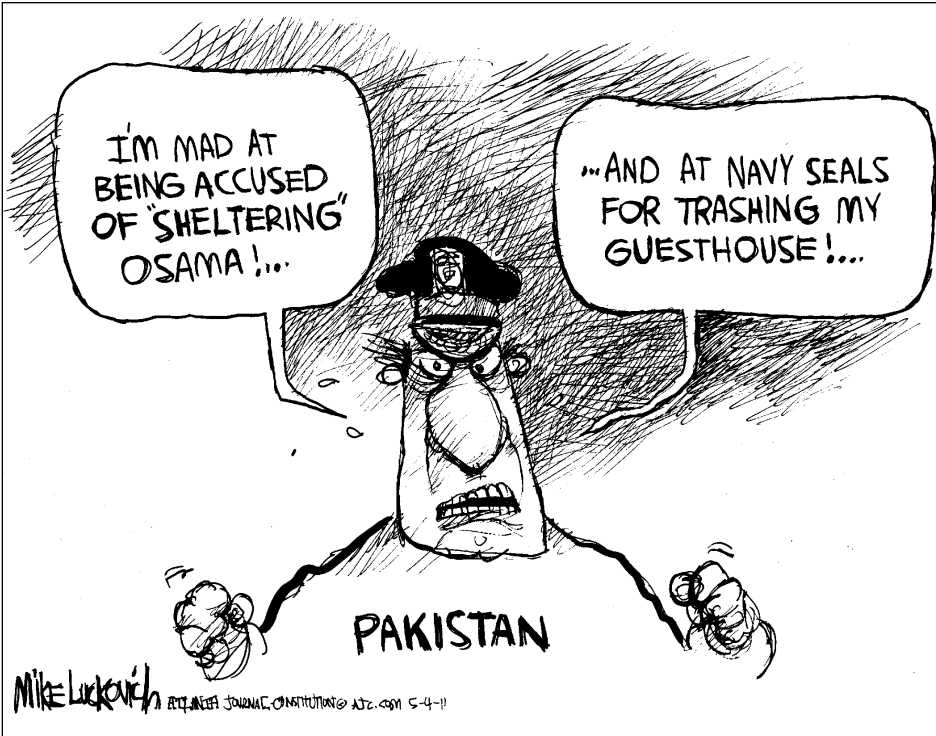

Unless Pakistani officials address these questions head-on, they are heading for terrible consequences. They are risking not just their relationship with the United States but their country’s future existence as well.

No one believes the civilian government of President Asif Ali Zardari knew bin Laden was hiding in Abbottabad. And most experts doubt that Gen. Kayani, a square shooter, was aware of bin Laden’s location.

But few security experts familiar with Pakistan doubt that some agents in Pakistan’s Interservice Intelligence Agency (ISI) knew of bin Laden’s hideout. How could they not? He was living practically next door to Pakistan’s equivalent of West Point, in a city filled with serving and retired military personnel — a city where other top al-Qaida operatives had been captured.

If the fix wasn’t in, wouldn’t the ISI have been watching for unusual activities, especially since the mansion where bin Laden lived had already attracted attention? Wouldn’t ISI agents have checked out who lived there?

“Did they know he was here? Surely, they knew he was here,” writes the astute Pakistani columnist Cyril Almeida, in Dawn newspaper. “Maybe they’re so daft they didn’t really take this whole business of al-Qaida seriously. Maybe they just didn’t think it was their problem.”

“If we didn’t know, we are a failed state,” Almeida adds. “If we did know, we are a rogue state. But does anybody really believe they didn’t know?”

Upon the answer to this question will depend the future of U.S.-Pakistani relations. This administration, particularly Adm. Mike Mullen, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs, has tried hard to build bonds of trust with Pakistani counterparts, including Kayani and ISI chief Ahmed Shuja Pasha.

But unless the ISI comes clean on bin Laden, it will be hard to deflect congressional pressure to cut military and civilian aid to Islamabad. It may become impossible for the two countries to cooperate on a political endgame for the Afghan war that will stabilize that country, as U.S. troops exit. Without such cooperation, Afghanistan faces renewed civil war that will spill across the AfPak border. This would be a self-inflicted tragedy for Pakistan.

The U.S.-Pakistani relationship was already on a downhill slide because of Pakistani ire over an expanded CIA presence in their country. But this presence — which Pakistan wants to slash — would be unnecessary if the ISI was in vigorous pursuit of the leaders of al-Qaida and other hard-line terrorists on their soil.

Pakistani officials have taken on their own Taliban who threaten them. But they won’t confront Afghan Taliban or terrorist groups such as Lashkar-e-Taiba, whom they view as useful tools in their struggle with India. And they failed to find bin Laden.

Assume they didn’t know where he was, that they were just incompetent (after all, the CIA has had big lapses). Why didn’t they try harder? “Maybe they just didn’t think it was their problem,” Almeida surmised in his column. Too true.

The Pakistani army and ISI are so obsessed with India that they can’t grasp the bigger threat within their own borders. Their distinction between “good” terrorists who fight India and the West and bad ones who attack Pakistanis is reckless; these terrorists have links to each other, and allowing them to flourish in Pakistan eats at the core of the state.

And what if — as most believe — some ISI agents were helping bin Laden. Why would they do it? As Almeida points out, “Pakistan has nothing in common with al-Qaida. They serve no purpose to us.”

“Did we think we could produce him like a rabbit out of the hat when we needed to?” the columnist asks in frustration. “Or, assured in our assumptions about the world around us, did we simply think we could get away with it?”

These are the questions Americans are asking, and Pakistanis should be asking, too. We need the answers quickly.

“The best way to confront the situation is to come clean and tell people what is really happening,” I was told by retired Pakistani Gen. Talat Masood, by phone from Islamabad. Instead, Pakistani officials are “posturing,” doing damage control at home by focusing on the American incursion.

“This is a very dangerous way of deflecting the public’s attitude from the real problem,” Masood said. “Are they proposing to face the problem or not? We need to know?”

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Buhl school levy allows us to support kids

An educated citizenry is the essential cornerstone of a democratic society. In America, providing a public education, available to all, is a shared responsibility of the community.

Buhl’s school board has determined that due to a reduction in state funding, a supplemental levy is necessary to sustain a quality education program. Respecting these dedicated board members, I am certain they have used their best judgment in reaching this decision.

Remember that voters who own no real estate are exempt from property taxes. Those owning a home valued at $100,000 will pay about $5 more per month. That is a financial commitment that enables all of us to participate in supporting our kids.

Burley library services are at risk without levy

On May 17, the citizens of Burley will be asked to renew the operations override levy for the Burley Public Library. Approved in 2007 and 2009, the proposed 2011 levy again provides for the level of services currently being offered at our library. However, due to prudent management, grants and an increase in the overall tax base of Burley, the amount of tax per household will decrease significantly with this levy.

Members of the library board understand budget constraints on households as well as businesses, but they also realize that, in tough times, more people turn to their library for entertainment, a source of information, resources to find jobs, computer classes and many other programs.

Since 2006, circulation is up 77.5 percent and program attendance has increased 168 percent! In 2010, more than 105,000 people visited the library. Julie Woodford, director, and her staff provide excellent quality service to our citizens and are always looking for grants to enhance programs and provide new ones at no cost to our taxpayers. Our first ever children’s librarian is funded by this levy. Services are at risk if the levy fails!

Even if you personally do not use the library, this is an opportunity to invest in the good of our community for a small cost. Please call me or another board member with any questions. For additional information visit the website www.bplibrary.org.

I urge the citizens of Burley to vote in favor of continuing the library override levy. Absentee ballots are available now at the Cassia County Courthouse during regular business hours, and anyone can take advantage of this convenience. This important election should not be forgotten. Please support our library!

Thank you.

Obama mocks Republican position on immigration

By Darlene Superville and Erica Werner
Associated Press writers

EL PASO, Texas — In search of Hispanic votes and an immigration overhaul, President Barack Obama on Tuesday stood at the U.S.-Mexico border for the first time since winning the White House and declared it more secure than ever. He mocked Republican lawmakers for blocking immigration over border security alone, saying they won't be happy until they get a moat with alligators along the border.

"They'll never be satisfied," he said.

Stymied by both chambers of Congress, the president ditched lawmakers in favor of voters who might pressure them, making an appeal to the public on a hot and dusty day far outside the beltway. He told a friendly El Paso, Texas, crowd that it's up to them to tell Congress to pass legislation providing a pathway to citizenship for 11 million illegal immigrants.

The approach also allowed the president to make clear that it's Republicans — not him — standing in the way of immigration legislation. As his re-election approaches it's a message he wants broadcast loud and clear to Latino voters who don't like his administration's heavy deportations and feel he never made good on his promise to prioritize immigration legislation during his first year in office.

"I am asking you to add your voices to this," Obama said in El Paso. "We need Washington to know that there is a movement for reform gathering strength from coast to coast. That's how we'll get this done."

Countering Republican calls to focus on border security before moving to a comprehensive overhaul, Obama boasted of increasing border patrol agents, nearing completion of a border fence, and screening more cargo, among other steps.

"We have gone above and beyond what was requested by the very Republicans who said they supported broader reform as long as we got serious about enforcement," Obama said. "But even though we've answered these concerns, I gotta say I suspect there are still going to be some who are trying to move the goal posts on us one more time."

"Maybe they'll need a moat," he said derisively to laughter from the crowd. "Maybe they'll want alligators in the moat."

"The question is whether those in Congress who previously walked away in the name of enforcement are now ready to come back to the table and finish the work we've started," he said.

Obama also tailored his argument to the times, making his case for immigration reform in newly sharpened economic terms. He said that the middle class would benefit from bringing illegal immigrants out of an underground economy and drawing on the abilities of immigrants educated in American universities. Obama also noted that it's not just Latinos who want an immigration remake, but also police chiefs, business owners, educators and others.

His speech broke no new policy ground, though, and he declined to offer a bill or call on Congress to send him one by a particular deadline — a bow to political realities on Capitol Hill. Republicans who control the House are hostile to overhaul legislation. And as if to underscore how faintly his call for immigration reform would resonate in Congress, two key border state Republicans immediately shot back with a statement demanding to know: "President Obama speaks about our broken immigration system; but what about our broken borders?"

The statement was from Republican Sens. Jon Kyl and John McCain of Arizona, the latter Obama's 2008 presidential opponent and a one-time supporter of comprehensive overhaul legislation. Obama's personal pitch was the latest step in a visible campaign to build support and pressure on Republicans to act. He went so far as to encourage people to sign up to help him at the White House website. He said it was up to the American people to drive the debate and isolate areas where both parties can agree.

FEDERAL JUDGE BLOCKS UTAH LAW

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A federal judge on Tuesday blocked a new Utah immigration law that would allow police to check the citizenship status of anyone they arrest.

U.S. District Judge Clark Waddoups issued his ruling in Salt Lake City hours after the law went into effect, citing its similarity to an Arizona law currently before federal courts.

The American Civil Liberties Union and National Immigration Law Center had sued to stop the law, warning that its implementation could lead to racial profiling.

Utah Assistant Attorney General Jerrold Jensen said the ruling was "not a surprise." Jensen said after the hearing that the law is "fully constitutional" and that his office plans to "argue it vigorously."

The law, signed by Republican Gov. Gary Herbert in March, would require police to check the citizenship status of anyone arrested on suspicion of a felony or class A misdemeanor, while giving officers discretion to check the citizenship of those stopped for traffic infractions and other lesser offenses.

Doctor testifies on sweat lodge deaths

CAMP VERDE, Ariz. (AP) — A doctor told jurors Tuesday in a manslaughter trial related to a fatal Arizona sweat lodge ceremony that three participants died from heat-related illnesses.

James Arthur Ray has pleaded not guilty to the deaths. His lawyers say toxins in the wood at the event in October 2009 could have factored into the deaths.

Dr. Matthew Dickson testified that the signs and symptoms of the victims were inconsistent with a chemical typically found in pesticides. Other medical experts have testified that they could not rule out the chemical.

TOLEDO, Ohio — General Motors is putting out help wanted signs.

GM said Tuesday that it will add or keep 4,000 jobs in the U.S. by hiring new employees or calling back furloughed workers over the next year and a half. It's the latest sign that that the company and U.S. car industry are recovering from a sales slump and bankruptcies.

"Those jobs impact and reverberate in our economy," said GM CEO Dan Akerson, who spoke at a transmission plant in Toledo, where up to 400 new workers will be hired or retained.

GM will spend $2 billion at 17 plants in eight states to create the new work. Most of the investment will be in the Midwest. Beyond that, few details were released about where the jobs will land.

It's also not clear how

many of the positions will be new hires. Many will be existing jobs retained with the introduction of new cars and trucks. The automaker will announce over the next few months which plants are getting new investments.

GM spokeswoman Kimberly Carpenter said the company has about 1,300 laid off workers waiting to be recalled in the U.S. GM expects to recall all of them by the end of the year and already is adding workers at factories in Flint, Mich., Orion Township, Mich., and Delta Township, Mich., near Lansing, she said.

The news is sure to boost GM's image after it came under fire for taking a $50 billion government bailout.

All the jobs will be in addition to 9,500 created or retained since GM left bankruptcy protection in 2009.

Akerson said he's confident about the economy and demand for new cars, especially fuel-efficient models that have helped GM's sales. General Motors Co. reported its best profit in more than a decade last week, earning $3.2 billion in the first quarter.

GM also plans to invest in factories outside the U.S. to meet increased demand, Akerson said, but he would give no details.

"Our cars are selling well," he said. "We seem to have hit a sweet spot."

In Toledo, workers wearing red T-shirts saying "Support us We support you" stood and cheered when Akerson said GM will build a new eight-speed transmission at the plant.

The new transmissions will not replace the six-speed ones that the factory already makes for more than a dozen models, including the Chevrolet Corvette and Camaro and the Cadillac Escalade.

For Brad Cowell, 20, of Toledo, the timing couldn't be better. He's a temporary worker at the plant who was just called back from layoff

Youth Job Fair attracts businesses and teens wanting a paycheck

By Blair Koch
Times-News writer

Weighing heavy on Spencer Wells' chest is the cost of attending college.

To finance his higher education, Wells plans to work through his remaining two years at Canyon Ridge High School and save as much money as possible.

The Times-News caught up with the 17-year-old while he filled out job applications at the Youth Job Fair, held at CRHS Tuesday afternoon.

"I need a lot of money for college," Wells said of his desire to attend the University of California, Los Angeles. "But in order to get a decent paying job, I need more experience."

Like many of his peers, Wells has had odd jobs in the past but hoped to make a connection with a business offering a steady, part-time schedule.

"There are more jobs available than there have been, so I'm trying to stay positive," Wells said.

Last year, 19.1 percent of youth, ages 16 to 24, were unemployed, according to the U.S. Department of Labor Bureau of Labor Statistics. It was the highest unemployment rate for youth since 1948.

By comparison, adult unemployment held steady throughout 2010 at about 10 percent.

However, this summer's job outlook for teens and young adults is on the rebound, said Idaho Department of Labor Workforce Consultant Marj Schmidt, who helped organize the fair.

"We have all these kids getting ready for summer vacation and businesses that are hiring and we thought it would be a good opportunity to bring everyone together," Schmidt said.

Internships and early searches lift chances for job

By Alexander Macinnes

HACKENSACK, N.J. — Darnell Stith will graduate from Fairleigh Dickinson University in about two weeks with a nursing degree and a job at Overlook Hospital in Summit, N.J., already secured.

"I guess I'm one of the lucky guys," said Stith, who also pointed to his early start in bulking up his resume for his success. "My experience had been a deciding factor. Ever since my freshman year, I have always worked in hospitals."

Stith is one of 1.7 million college seniors who will enter the job market this spring. This year's graduating class is in a better position to find work than their predecessors from the past couple of years, according to employment data, industry experts and the students themselves.

Employers this year plan to hire nearly 20 percent more college graduates than they did in 2010, according to the spring survey by the National Association of Colleges and Employers. Also, the Department of Labor reported in February the number of job openings reached the highest level since September 2008.

But, despite a rosier outlook, competition will remain high, partly because this year's alumni will compete with graduates from 2009 and 2010, those who entered the workforce during a recession, or the early stages of recovery. To stand out, students like Stith are starting their internships and work experience earlier — forgoing vacation plans even as early as freshman year.

"We're seeing employers who are interested in bringing in students earlier and earlier," said Mimi Collins, a spokeswoman for the National Association of Colleges and Employers. "Among the employers we survey, yes they have students who are finishing freshman year, sophomore year and junior year. So,

YOUR MONEY

Get personal finances on the right track with these tips from the SEC

- Invest and Save: Don't think socking back just $50 a month will add up to much? Don't underestimate compounding interest, with it even modest investments can grow over time.
- Get rid of your credit load: Paying high-interest debt could be better than sticking money into the stock market. Few investments pay as well as that 19 percent credit card you've been chipping away at for years.
- You need rainy-day savings: Personal finance experts recommend keeping at least six months of expenses in a federally insured account to cover emergencies and unexpected bouts of unemployment.

Report: Up to 44M more uninsured under GOP budget

By Ricardo Alonso-Zaldívar
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — The House Republican budget would leave up to 44 million more low-income people uninsured as the federal government cuts states' Medicaid funding by about one-third over the next 10 years, nonpartisan groups said in a report issued Tuesday.

LEARN MORE

For more information visit the Kaiser Family Foundation website at www.kff.org

The analysis by the Kaiser Family Foundation and the Urban Institute concluded that Medicaid's role as the nation's safety net health care program would be "significantly compromised" under the GOP budget, "with no obvious alternative to take its place."

The budget passed by House Republicans last month on a party-line vote calls for sweeping health care changes, potentially even more significant than President Barack Obama's insurance overhaul.

So far, most of the attention has gone to the part of the Republican plan that would convert Medicare into a voucher-like system for future retirees. But Medicaid would also be transformed.

The federal-state partnership now covers more than 60 million low-income families and seniors, including most nursing home residents, as well as disabled people of any age.

No bail for man in attempted cockpit entry

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A Yemen native who disrupted a San Francisco-bound flight was portrayed by prosecutors Tuesday as a dangerous and erratic passenger who tried to barge into the cockpit twice, did not carry any luggage and yelled “God is great” in Arabic.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Elise Becker said Rageh Al-Murisi, 28, was carrying several valid and expired forms of identification from New York and California, $47 in cash and two postdated checks totaling $13,000 in his wallet. One check was made out to himself, she said, but did not specify where the other was from.

She also said he didn't tell his relatives in California that he was traveling there.

Al-Murisi faces one count of interfering with flight crew members and attendants as pilots on American Airlines Flight 1561 were preparing to land in San Francisco on Sunday, one week after the death of Osama bin Laden at the hands of the U.S. military, which has raised fears of a possible retaliation.

“He attempted to enter the cockpit right before a critical part of the flight,” Becker said in prosecution arguments to withhold bail for Al-Murisi.

In the court affidavit filed Monday, air marshal Paul Howard said after being told the cockpit door wasn't the restroom, Al-Murisi made eye contact with a crew member, lowered his shoulder and rammed the door. The crew member told Howard he then got between Al-Murisi and the door, but Al-Murisi kept yelling and pushing forward in an attempt to open it, according to the affidavit.

Court documents say Al-Murisi repeatedly yelled “Allahu Akbar,” or Arabic for “God is great,” and tried twice to open the cockpit door before being subdued by a crew member and several passengers, including a former Secret Service agent and retired San Mateo police officer Larry Wright. The flight landed safely at San Francisco International Airport, but not without frightening passengers who became alarmed as he yelled unintelligibly and tried to rush the cockpit.

Wright said Tuesday that he jumped out of his seat after he heard a scream and Al-Murisi trotted past him yelling “Allahu Akbar.” The man was tackled, and Wright put Al-Murisi in a “control hold” as others tied his arms and legs in plastic handcuffs, he said.

Tripoli sites bombed; rebels claim gains

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — In a one-two punch against Moammar Gadhafi's forces, NATO warplanes struck a command center in the capital, Tripoli, on Tuesday after pounding regime targets around the besieged port of Misrata. Rebels hoped the stepped-up attacks could help extend some of their biggest advances to date, including a major outward push from Misrata.

The opposition also said it made gains along a long-deadlocked front near the eastern town of Ajdabiya.

Gadhafi, Libya's autocratic ruler since 1969, has not been seen in public since one of his sons was killed in a NATO airstrike April 30. A NATO official, Italian Brig. Gen. Claudio Gabellini, said the alliance had no evidence to indicate whether Gadhafi was alive or dead.

The rebels' military spokesman, Col. Ahmed Bani, said opposition forces had pushed Gadhafi's troops out of rocket range on the west side of Misrata and dislodged them from the airport after two days of battles, raising the prospect that the siege could be broken.

Bani said rebels from Misrata and Zlitan, 35 miles west, had joined up to fight in close-range combat that rendered the regime forces' long-range rockets useless. Speaking to The Associated Press in the rebel headquarters city of Benghazi, Bani said Gadhafi's brigades were pushed about 10 miles back from Misrata's airport.

“The picture is looking good for us,” he said.

In another boost to the opposition, the U.S. State Department said the first load of non-lethal American military aid for the rebels landed Tuesday at the port in their headquarters city, Benghazi.

Spokesman Mark Toner said the shipment consisted of more than 10,000 meals, with further shipments of medical supplies, boots and protective gear to arrive shortly. The delivery came ahead of planned meetings in Washington this week between U.S. officials and the head of the opposition Transitional National Council.

Syrian military tightens grip in areas of unrest

BEIRUT (AP) — More tanks and troops rolled into southern villages Tuesday near the heart of Syria's anti-government uprising, with activists saying the regime has isolated parts of the country. A human rights group reported that more than 750 people have been killed in a crack-down on seven weeks of unrest.

The military has been sealing off various areas of Syria and conducting house-to-house raids in search of people on wanted lists, with many fleeing cities and towns for fear of detention by the regime of President Bashar Assad, activists say.

Intense military operations have taken place in the Damascus suburb of Maadamiyeh, which has been sealed off for days, said human rights activist Mustafa Osso. He said communications have been cut and checkpoints were preventing anyone from entering or leaving.

“Any area where there are demonstrations, the government is sending the army,” he said.

Revel in asparagus season with this chicken salad

By Stephanie Witt Sedgwick
Special to The Washington Post

Although asparagus is available year-round, I prefer spring stalks. I stir-fry them, grill them and generally enjoy the season while it lasts.

Everything's cut into bite-size pieces and finished with a little more of the dressing to create a light and delicious spring meal.

GRILLED CHICKEN AND ASPARAGUS SALAD

4 servings

Salt

1 pound asparagus, woody bottom part of the stems snapped off

Freshly squeezed juice and finely grated zest of 1 large lemon (about 1/4 cup juice and 2 or 3 teaspoons zest)

1 tablespoon white wine vinegar

2 teaspoons Dijon-style mustard

TRACY A. WOODWARD/The Washington Post

2 tablespoons chopped parsley

2 teaspoons sugar

Freshly ground black pepper

4 1/2 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil

1 pound thin-sliced boneless, skinless chicken breast cutlets

Fill a shallow, straight-sided wide pan with lightly salted water; bring to a boil over high heat. Add the asparagus and cook for 3 to 6 minutes, until the stalks are slightly tender. Transfer to a plate or platter to cool.

Whisk together the lemon juice and zest, vinegar, mustard, parsley, sugar, and salt and pepper to taste in a small bowl. Slowly whisk in 4 tablespoons of the oil to form an emulsified dressing.

Pour half of the dressing

(a generous 1/4 cup) into a shallow pan, then place the cutlets on the dressing. Turn them over to coat evenly and let them sit for 20 minutes at room temperature.

Meanwhile, prepare the grill for direct heat. If using a gas grill, preheat to medium-high (450 degrees). If using a charcoal grill, light the charcoal or wood briquettes; when the briquettes are ready, distribute them evenly under the cooking area. For a medium-hot fire, you should be able to hold your hand about 6 inches above the coals for 4 or 5 seconds. Lightly coat a grill rack with oil and place it on the grill.

Use the remaining 1/2 tablespoon of oil to lightly coat the asparagus.

Place the asparagus on the grill; cover and cook for 2 minutes. Uncover and turn the asparagus with tongs. Cook for 1 to 2 minutes, until the stalks have even grill marks but have not burned. Transfer to a plate.

Arrange the chicken cutlets on the grill; discard the dressing that was used as a marinade. Cover and cook for 4 to 5 minutes, until the chicken has good grill marks and no longer looks raw; turn the cutlets over and cook for 3 to 4 minutes, until the chicken is cooked through. If the cutlets are less than a half-inch thick, you might need to shorten their grill time.

Transfer the chicken to a platter and let it rest for 10 minutes, then cut into strips 1/4- to 1/2-inch wide.

Cut the asparagus into 1 1/2-inch pieces and transfer to a large bowl. Add the chicken strips and the remaining dressing; toss to coat evenly. Serve warm or at room temperature.

Making a classic summer food even more fun

By Alison Ladman
For The Associated Press

To help start summer right, we decided to come up with a fun and delicious new way to enjoy that classic summer nosh — the hot dog.

So instead of grilling the hot dogs, then slapping them in buns, we wrapped pizza dough “buns” around the hot dogs, then grill them. The result is a wonderfully crispy grilled bread surrounding a juicy dog. And since these hot dogs are perfect for dipping, we created a trio of condiments to get you started.

HOT DOG DIPPERS

Start to finish: 30 minutes. Servings: 8.

For the chipotle ketchup:

1 chipotle pepper in adobo sauce, minced

1 tablespoon adobo sauce

3/4 cup ketchup

1 teaspoon smoked paprika

For the citrus mustard:

1/2 cup brown mustard

1/4 cup mayonnaise

Zest of 1/2 lemon

Zest of 1/2 orange

1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper

2 tablespoons honey

1 tablespoon balsamic vinegar

For the pimento cheese relish:

1/4 cup mayonnaise

4 ounces cream cheese, softened

1/4 cup finely grated cheddar cheese

1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce

1/4 cup sweet pickle relish

4-ounce jar chopped pimento, drained

1 teaspoon hot sauce

For the hot dogs:

20-ounce package refrigerated pizza dough

8 hot dogs

1 tablespoon vegetable oil

Heat a grill to medium-high.

To prepare the chipotle ketchup, in a small bowl stir together the minced chipotle, adobo sauce, ketchup and paprika.

To prepare the citrus mustard, in a small bowl stir together the mustard, mayonnaise, both zests, the black pepper, honey and vinegar.

To prepare the pimento cheese relish, in a small bowl, blend the mayonnaise with the cream cheese and cheddar until smooth. Stir in the Worcestershire sauce, relish, pimento and hot sauce.

To make the hot dogs, divide the dough into 8 pieces. Roll each piece into a snake 24 inches long. Wrap each hot dog with one of the lengths of dough, spiraling the dough around the length of the hot dog. Place the wrapped hot dogs onto a tray. Using a pastry brush, lightly coat each wrapped hot dog with a bit of the oil.

Grill for 12 to 15 minutes, turning every few minutes, until golden brown on all sides. Serve with the condiments in small cups for dipping.

Rodney Allen Hanson

Oct. 2, 1949-May 7, 2011

NAMPA — Rodney Allen Hanson finished his good fight and entered his reward Saturday, May 7, 2011, surrounded by family. His fight was long but his life was defined by his faith and tenacity rather than his illness.

He was born Oct. 2, 1949, to Arnold and Gladys Hanson in Minot, N.D. He was brought up on a dairy and grain farm and raised pigs and hogs for 4-H. While in high school, he participated in baseball, basketball and track. He was valedictorian of Montpelier High School in 1967. Rod graduated from NNC in 1971 with a history teaching degree. During his senior year, he was included in “Who’s Who for Colleges and Universities.”

On Oct. 2, 1971, he married his college sweetheart, Kathleen Howard. Together they raised three children, Heather, Whitney and Ryan. Rod began his teaching career in Nampa at South Junior High School. He had a memory for his students and would often be able to address them by name years after having them in class. Even during his illness and retirement, he would see someone in a restaurant and share when he had taught that student, their siblings or their parents and even who they were dating when he taught them. During his teaching years, he enjoyed coaching multiple sports and refereeing hundreds of basketball games. His summer vacations were filled with Little League coaching. He was a gracious winner and a gracious loser and held both his students and his own children to those standards, regardless if the game was basketball or Monopoly.

His career led into administration both in Minidoka County and at South Middle School in Nampa. Twenty nine years of his educational career were spent in the Nampa School district. The support of the district throughout his increasing medical issues remains a source of comfort for his family.

Rod endured countless medical issues stemming from diabetes and kidney failure. Over the course of several years, he was a recipient of two separate organ transplants which extended his life and health; gracious gifts from an anonymous donor and his younger sister, Marlys.

From his hospital bed, he began to teach his most important lessons — a deep love of life, fortitude and faith. He treated his nurses much the way he’d treated his students; with grace, respect, and an incredible memory for their names and activities. Always the consummate gentleman, Rod would never forget a thank you, even while being poked and prodded. His strength and perseverance for the last 17 years of his life served as an inspiration for those around him.

The last years of his life included an annual family vacation. Each summer, the family would travel together, enjoying a week at the beach or another destination. On these trips, Rod reveled (in his quiet way) playing games, sightseeing, and watching his grandkids play.

As his health declined, limiting his ability to work and play, it did not limit his ability to love, nor did it diminish his wry sense of humor or his tenacity. He earned a nickname, “The Comeback Kid,” for always defying the odds given to him.

Rod is survived by his loving wife of almost 40 years, Kathleen. Their marriage is a testament of faithfulness, abiding love and deep respect. He is also survived by his three children, all of whom are proud to call him Dad, Heather (Christopher) Osborn and their children, Samuel and Kate; Whitney (Ryan) Ward and their children, Dexter and Adeline; and Ryan (Jessica) Hanson and their children, Robert and Elizabeth.

Other surviving family members include his mother, Gladys; and his siblings, Ken (Joni) Hanson and Marlys (Bob) Roseberry; and in-laws, Bob (Jocelyn) Howard, Judy (Norm) Hall and Mike (Vicki) Howard; along with numerous nieces, nephews and cousins. Rod was preceded in death by his father, Arnold Hanson; his in-laws Robert and Virla Howard; and his brother in-law, Gary Lantz.

The family wishes to express its thanks to hundreds of people. Doctors, nurses, DaVita Dialysis Center, and the hospital staff at St. Luke’s Meridian, and LDS Hospital in Salt Lake City. The care he’d received for so many years was exemplified by the paramedics and emergency staff at Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center, Nampa who gently guided us through Rod’s final hours. College Church of the Nazarene repeatedly cared for the family. Countless friends who visited in the hospitals. An anonymous donor whose family saw the opportunity in their grief to give and to Marlys, who gave the gift of life.

It is fitting that on his last day, Rod was able to donate his corneas, thus passing on the gift of life he received.

A memorial service will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday, May 14, at College Church of the Nazarene. The public viewing will be from 6 to 8 p.m. Thursday, May 12, at Alsip and Persons Funeral Chapel, 404 10th Ave. S. in Nampa (466-3545).

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the National Kidney Foundation at www.kidney.org. We also encourage you to consider the gift of organ donation.

Condolences and memories may be shared with the family at www.alsipfuneralchapel.com.

“I have fought the good fight, I have finished the race, I have kept the faith. Now there is in store for me the crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge will award to me on this day ...” 2nd Timothy 4:2-8.

John Louis Gaskill

Feb. 5, 1916-May 6, 2011

FAIRFIELD — John Louis Gaskill, 95, of Fairfield, died at home Friday morning, May 6, 2011.

He was born Feb. 5, 1916, on the family homestead at the east end of Camas Prairie. He was the oldest son of Perry and Florence Peck Gaskill. John attended the Elk Creek Grade School and graduated from Camas County High School in 1934. His father died when John was a boy — leaving him the man of the family. As a result, when World War II came along, even though John was ready to serve, he stayed home to help his mother with the family farm. John also spent time cutting Christmas trees in Oregon and well drilling in Michigan.

While visiting his younger sister in western New York, John met Beverly VanStone, whom he married in March 1955. They had one daughter, Roxane. John was a farmer working his own farm on the east end of the prairie and also doing custom work throughout the county. John was a lifetime member of the Grange and Odd Fellows; he also served on the Camas Prairie Grain Growers and Senior Center boards. After retirement, John spent time having coffee with friends and shooting a mean game of pool at the senior center, where he was a regular until just recently.

He is survived by his wife of 56 years, Beverly; his daughter and son-in-law, Roxane and Mel Olson; his brothers, Charlie Gaskill of Fairfield and Robert Gaskill of Shoshone; his sister, Almira (Dolly) Fessenden of Boise; and many nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by his parents; his two older sisters, Mae Ballard and Nellie Hollenback; and his younger brother, Lyle.

A visitation for family and friends will be held from 1 until 2 p.m. Friday, May 13, at the Fairfield Community Church in Fairfield, with the funeral service to begin at 2 p.m. Burial will follow at the Mountain View Cemetery.

In lieu of flowers, memorials may be sent to the Camas Senior and Community Center or charity of your choice.

Condolences may be shared with the family by visiting the obituary link at www.demarayfuneralservice.com.

How to make healthy desserts for kids

By Alison Johnson
Daily Press (Newport News, Va.)

Dessert doesn't have to equal junk food on children's plates. "If you stick with simple, all natural ingredients, desserts can be a sweet, satisfying and healthy addition to your family's daily diet," says Laurel Moll, a New York-based holistic health coach and author of the blog laurelonhealth-food.com. "Just remember that when it comes to sweets, small servings are best." Some ideas:

Let kids help. The more children are involved in whipping up fun and creative desserts, the more likely they are to love them.
Turn fruit into "candy." Drizzle melted dark chocolate on apples, bananas, pears or other favorites. Place the fruit on wax paper and chill it in the refrigerator for 10 to 15 minutes, then slice and serve.

Assemble fruit skewers. Cut fruit into bite-size pieces and let kids match up their favorite colors and spear them on a stick.
Try a non-dairy ice cream. Coconut milk ice cream — now available at most major grocery stores — has healthier fats that the body can burn easily for energy and that may help protect the heart.

Make nutritious milkshakes ... Take almond or coconut milk, a banana, cocoa powder and ice cubes and blend them into chocolate banana milkshakes.
... or Popsicles. Toss fresh or frozen fruit in a blender with coconut water and pour the mixture into Popsicle molds for a low-calorie treat.

Cook a pie alternative. Bake slices of apples, peaches or berries and top them with a mixture of oats, nuts, cinnamon and pure maple syrup. Cover with foil and bake for about 30 to 40 minutes at 350 degrees; remove foil for the last 10 minutes to make the topping crisp.

W. Gene Gines

Feb. 12, 1927–May 8, 2011

Wilma Gene (Ivie) Gines, age 84, passed away Sunday, May 8, 2011, while being cared for at her son's home in Mapleton, Utah.

She was born Feb. 12, 1927, in North Bend, King, Wash. Growing up, Gene lived in North Bend, Wash.; Farmington, N.M.; Twin Falls, Hazelton and Jerome, Idaho; Seattle, Wash.; and back to Jerome, Idaho, where Gene and Richard met, courted and fell in love. Gene and Richard were married Jan. 18, 1950, in the Idaho Falls Temple. Gene and Richard started their marriage working Richard's dairy in Jerome but, after selling the cows, they found many opportunities for employment in Castleford, Idaho, Clearfield, Utah, Hazelton, Idaho, Hollister, Idaho, and retirement in Twin Falls, Idaho. Along the way, Gene made many wonderful friends and brought happiness and service to people wherever she lived. Gene's greatest treasure came from her family. With the "patience of Job," Gene brought 10 children in this world, Hal, Barry, Carol, Nancy, Brent, Bruce, Mike, Kurt, Bryce and David. Gene, Richard and the children spent many happy days together, camping, hiking, fishing, playing family baseball (we had our own team), attending sporting events and just spending family time together. Gene's love of Jesus Christ enabled a lifetime of service, not only to friends and family, but in many church callings and assignments.

Gene is survived by her children, Hal (Ruth Ann) Gines, Barry (Nancy) Gines, Nancy (Dan) Paetzold, Brent (Caren) Gines, Bruce Gines, Mike (Laura) Gines, Kurt (Joy) Gines, Bryce (Kristi) Gines and David (Cheryl) Gines. Gene is also survived by her sister, Helen. Gene and Richard have 45 grandchildren and 58 great-grandchildren. Gene was preceded in death by her husband, Richard; daughter, Carol; parents, Wilford and Hazel Ivie; brothers Donald, Ralph and Kenneth; sister, Edith; and grandson, Joel Gines.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, May 14, at the Twin Falls 16th Ward LDS Church, 851 Harrison St. S. (corner of Orchard and South Harrison) in Twin Falls, with burial to follow at the Jerome Cemetery. Visitation for family and friends will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. Friday, May 13, at Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home, 2551 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls, and one hour prior to service Saturday at the church. Services are under the direction of Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home. ## FEMA wants aid payouts returned CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa (AP) — After the raging Cedar River filled his home with 13 feet of water and ruined most of his possessions, Justin Van Fleet pleaded for help from the Federal Emergency Management Agency to get back on his feet.

Dead broke and living in a FEMA trailer following the 2008 flood, Van Fleet repeatedly submitted paperwork and made countless phone calls arguing his case. After seven months, the agency finally gave him more than $20,000, which he said gave him his life back and allowed him to move into a house.

Then in March, a letter arrived from the government with a shocking message: He should never have gotten the money. And he had just 30 days to pay it all back.

The agency is asking Van Fleet and thousands of other Americans who were victims of natural disasters to return more than $22 million in government aid, acknowledging it mistakenly made payments to many people who were ineligible.

FEMA is required by law to recover improperly spent money, but most of the people who were helped say they used the cash years ago, and they don't want to be financially punished because of the agency's errors.

"It literally felt like everything is being taken away from me again," said Van Fleet, a 28-year-old call center worker. "It's like going through the flood again."

Documents obtained by The Associated Press show that FEMA is seeking payments from more than 5,500 people who were affected by 129 separate disasters since 2005, including floods, tornados, hurricanes and other calamities from Arkansas to American Samoa. The agency is still reviewing records, and more repayment requests could go out soon, including to victims of Hurricane Katrina.

FEMA admits the payments were largely its own fault — the result of employees who misunderstood eligibility rules, approved duplicate assistance for costs that were already covered by insurance or other sources, or made accounting errors. But the agency is still obligated to try to recover the money.

Mild vinegar is the trick in thisrice pilaf

By Stephanie Witt Sedgwick
Special to The Washington Post

I've borrowed a Japanese seasoning trick here, using a mild vinegar to flavor the rice. It adds a subtle taste and is especially good as an accent to the fragrant basmati. The spinach, mushrooms and garlic add their own punches of flavor, color and texture.

Serve with simple grilled meats. Because this dish is great at room temperature, you can prepare it before you go outside to grill.

Brown basmati is becoming increasingly common in supermarkets' rice aisles, but it doesn't work well in this pilaf; stick with white basmati varieties.

BASMATI RICE PILAF WITH BABY SPINACH AND MUSHROOMS

6 to 8 servings

1 cup uncooked basmati rice
Water, as needed
2 to 3 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
3 medium cloves garlic, finely chopped
8 ounces cremini (brown) mushrooms, cut into thin slices
Salt

Freshly ground black pepper
4 ounces baby spinach, rinsed and drained
2 to 3 tablespoons sherry wine vinegar

Combine the basmati rice and water in a medium saucepan; use the package directions to determine the correct amount of water and the cooking time.

Meanwhile, heat 1 tablespoon of the oil in a large skillet over medium-low heat until the oil shimmers. Add the garlic; cook for 3 to 4 minutes, stirring occasionally, until it is soft and fragrant.

Increase the heat to medium-high; add the sliced mushrooms. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Cook for 8 to 10 minutes, stirring occasionally so the mushrooms soften, release their liquid and eventually start to brown. Turn off the heat; immediately use tongs to incorporate the spinach, taking a few minutes to toss it until the spinach starts to wilt. Transfer to a large bowl.

When the rice is ready, stir in 2 tablespoons of the vinegar and 1 tablespoon of the oil. Add the seasoned rice to the spinach and mushrooms. Stir to evenly distribute the rice.

Taste, and add vinegar, oil, salt or pepper as needed. Serve immediately or at room temperature.

Bruin boys edge Riverhawks in golf playoff

CRHS golfers earn school's first-ever state berth

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

RUPERT — Early this season, a Canyon Ridge golfer said his team had two goals: first, to beat Twin Falls. Second, to win state.

The Riverhawks nearly achieved the first goal on Tuesday in the Class 4A District IV state qualifier. And they have given themselves a chance to accomplish the second, as the CRHS golfers made history by becoming the school's first-ever team to qualify for a state tournament.

It all came down to a dramatic finish.

Twin Falls and Canyon Ridge tied at 301, forcing a playoff. The crosstown rivals played Rupert Country Club's par-5 first hole to a draw, highlighted by Peter Seppi's par save and Alec Perkins' birdie for the Bruins. After slicing his tee shot into the rough, Seppi got up and down with a 15-foot putt.

The second playoff hole was the 167-yard par-3 No. 2. All five Canyon Ridge golfers missed the green off the tee, and Twin Falls took advantage of pars and another birdie by Perkins to win the team title.

"I like pressure, but that second shot on Hole 1 really helped a lot," Perkins said. "I wasn't sure about the long putt, but when I got it up by the hole I felt pretty good. And this putt right here on Hole 2, I read the line and felt comfortable about it and just went for it."

Both the Bruins and River-hawks move on to the Class 4A state golf tournament, held Monday and Tuesday at Centennial Golf Course in Nampa. Rusty Wilson of Jerome and Kody Miller of Minico also earned a trip to state by finishing in the top six individually.

Wilson, a freshman, was the boys medalist, carding a 1-over-par 72. Not only did Wilson score the best round of the day, he said it was the "best round of my life."

"I was making lots of putts. I didn't miss a putt within three feet. I was sinking everything," Wilson said. "I shot 70s on the practice rounds here and I really wanted to go low and possibly go to state. I definitely did not expect to take first."

Canyon Ridge golfers Derek Cook and John Essma, along with Miller, finished tied for second by shooting 74s. Cook won a playoff to earn the runner-up medal.

The girls competition wasn't nearly as dramatic.

Twin Falls easily won the team championship by shooting 334. Katherine Reed earned district medalist honors for the second straight year, carding a 7-over-par 79. It was a resurgent tournament for Reed,

Rose leads Bulls past Hawks 95-83

By Andrew Seligman
Associated Press writer

CHICAGO — Derrick Rose scored 33 points, Luol Deng added 23 and the Chicago Bulls beat the Atlanta Hawks 95-83 in Game 5 of the Eastern Conference semifinals on Tuesday night to take a 3-2 lead.

Taj Gibson had 11 points — all in the fourth quarter. Rose also scored 11 in the fourth, and the Bulls pounded the Hawks 26-15 in the quarter.

"Taj, man, he just doesn't know how good he is right now," Rose said. "Still young, still trying to learn the game, but he came in and did what he's supposed to do."

Game 6 is Thursday in Atlanta, and Chicago is one win from its first conference finals appearance since 1998, when Michael Jordan and Scottie Pippen wrapped up their second championship three-peat.

"Play defense," Rose said of what the Bulls need to do in Game 6. "That's our whole game plan is playing defense. Our offense will be there, but if we continue to help each other, rebound the ball and run, I think that we should be in good shape."

Rose showed why he is the league's youngest MVP, hitting 11 of 24 shots and finishing with nine assists. It was a big improvement over Game 4 when he needed 32 shots to score 34 points.

That was enough to offset another strong performance by Atlanta's Jeff Teague. Filling in for the injured Kirk Hinrich, he delivered his third 21-point game of the series.

Josh Smith scored 16 points for the Hawks, while

Chicago Bulls forward Carlos Boozer, left, shouts in front of teammate Derrick Rose after scoring during the third quarter in Game 5 of a second-round NBA playoff series against the Atlanta Hawks on Tuesday in Chicago.

Joe Johnson had 15 and Al Horford added 12 points and 10 rebounds.

It hasn't been an easy postseason for the Bulls after they stormed to a league-leading 62 wins. They got pushed by Indiana in the first round and are getting all they can handle from the Hawks, yet they are in a good position thanks to a strong fourth quarter.

"Just playing together," Rose said of Chicago's fourth-quarter defense. "Making sure there's help-side defense. Making everything tough on them, and some of the people that came off the bench, they played tremendous for us."

The Bulls led by as many as 15 points in the first quarter but were trailing 70-69 early in the fourth when they went on a 9-0 run.

CSI baseball pumped ahead of region tournament

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

To those thinking the College of Southern Idaho baseball team would try to coast through today's Region 18 Tournament opener with Colorado Northwestern: not so fast.

The last time CSI tried to skirt through with anything but its best, the Spartans won, a 10-7 victory on the Golden Eagles' home field to knock them out of the 2007 tournament.

That's why staff ace Michael Renner will get the ball today.

"I can't take any chances with that stuff," said CSI coach Boomer Walker. "Michael's a strike-thrower, he hardly walks anybody and he doesn't beat himself. Teams are going to have to hit the ball to beat him."

Renner also rebounds well from outings, something that's particularly important in the four-day, double-elimination tournament. Walker's ideal result from today's early-morning game is a run-rule game with his prized lefty tossing 60 to 70 pitches.

He'll be hoping the bats wake up from an arduous slumber the past few days. Monday's weather was lousy, and the players crammed all their final exams into a 36-hour window. The team left for Carson City, Nev.,

Golden Eagles softball likes chances at tourney

By David Bashore

They might be seeded second for this week's Region 18 Tournament, but there's no shortage of confidence amongst players on the College of Southern Idaho softball team.

"We believe we have everything it takes to win, and if we play at our best we believe we'll win the tournament," said freshman pitcher Jyl Eckstein.

Bold words from one of the leading performers on a team whose struggles of late include failing to sweep the worst two teams in the tournament in fifth-seeded Snow

College and sixth-seeded Western Nevada. CSI also recently split with No. 4 seed North Idaho and dropped three of four against No. 3 seed Southern Nevada.

But a split of four games against top-seeded and tournament host Salt Lake has the Golden Eagles feeling bullish.

"You have to believe you're the team to beat, because that makes things easier for you mentally," said CSI coach Nick Baumert. "If you come in feeling like you're the inferior team, things aren't going to go well."

Having things go well at the region tournament is imperative for CSI. In the previous four tournaments in program history,

Glenns Ferry and Wendell tangle for 2A state berth

By Mike Christensen
Times-News writer

Glenns Ferry has played in the state baseball tournament 10 of the past 12 seasons. To make it 11 of 13, the Pilots will have to get past Nolan Stouder.

Glenns Ferry coach Denis Uhl knows getting the best of Stouder, Wendell's senior pitcher, will be no easy task. "He's a great competitor," said Uhl. "We've got to stay composed and stay focused to beat him."

With only two teams in the Class 2A Canyon Conference, the District IV Tournament consists of a best-of-three series between Glenns Ferry and Wendell. The first two games are today, beginning at 3 p.m.

A winner-take-all third game, if necessary, would be played at 4 p.m. Friday.

While the two teams split their season series 2-2, the Pilots (11-7) won home-field advantage by scoring more runs in the four-game set. That could prove critical.

But what today could come down to is a match between Stouder and Glenns Ferry ace Adrian Martinez in a stellar pitching duel.

"I'm looking forward to watching that one," said Uhl. "... Each time we've played Wendell, in the first game we've given up runs early and fallen behind. Against Stouder, who's very composed and just a good pitcher, we've got to keep it close early."

Wendell is just 5-13 on the season and has struggled to play error-free defense and generate enough runs to benefit from Stouder's arm. But Wendell coach Gary Stouder said his team is surging at the right time, including two wins over Glenns Ferry last week.

"We're definitely feeling good coming off the sweep and feel like we have the momentum," said Gary Stouder.

Glenns Ferry took third place at state last season and finished second in 2009. They'd love to see what they can do at next week's 2A state tournament in Nampa. But first, they have to conquer their old rival. And when Glenns Ferry and Wendell get together, one thing's certain.

Said Uhl: "It's going to be a battle."

Wood River's Martinez wins scholarship

Times-News

It's been quite the junior year for Wood River High School's Kaitana Martinez.

This week, Martinez won the 2011 Idaho High School Activities Association Interscholastic Star Student Recognition Scholarship Award.

Martinez receives a $1,000 scholarship to a school of her choice and will be a guest speaker at the 2011 IHSAA Hall of Fame banquet Aug. 10 in Boise. Her picture will be printed on all of next year's Idaho High School Activities Association state tournament programs.

The Times-News 2010-11 Girls Basketball Player of the Year averaged 17.1 points, 4.1 assists and 3.1 steals per game this season for the 19-4 Wolverines, who finished second in the Class 4A state tournament in February, earning the school's first state tournament trophy.

An outstanding athlete, Martinez also plays soccer and in past years played softball and track and field. Outside of sports, Martinez participates in band and is the president-elect for the National Honor Society. She also started a club this year at WRHS promoting healthy decision making for teens.

Wood River High School will receive $1,000 for the activities department from the United Dairymen of Idaho on behalf of Martinez.

Micaela Adamson of Carey High School was also a finalist and her school will receive $500 from the United Dairymen of Idaho.

WET WEATHER POSTPONES PREP TOURNAMENTS

Rainfall over night Tuesday forced the postponement of several sporting events in the Magic Valley, including games in the District IV baseball and softball tournaments.

Canyon Ridge High School's baseball game at Burley has been postponed to 5 p.m. today, sliding the rest of the tournament bracket back a day. Twin Falls will host the CRHS-Burley winner at 5 p.m. Thursday, with the winner advancing to face Minico in Rupert on Friday in the Class 4A district championship game.

The 4A district softball tournament was also postponed to today with four games on the schedule. The Jerome-Twin Falls game has been moved to Twin Falls High School while the rest of the tournament games will remain at Canyon Ridge High School, beginning with Minico vs. Wood River at 1 p.m.

Class 2A district softball game in Declo was nixed, but Glenns Ferry did play at Wendell. The winner now visits Declo on Thursday afternoon.

District IV's Class 4A tennis tournament was also pushed back a day and will be held today and Thursday at five courts in Twin Falls.

Wendell struggled to hit reliever Kendall Martell for a couple innings before putting four more runs on the board in the fourth.

Filer's Tews third area player to sign with Big Bend

By Stephen Meyers
Times-News writer

FILER — Jessica Tews and Allie Kelsey are teammates once again.

Tews, a Filer High School senior, inked her letter of intent Tuesday to play women's basketball at Big Bend Community College in Moses Lake, Wash., where she'll join forces with Twin Falls seniors Kelsey and Jazlyn Nielsen.

Tews and Kelsey played their freshman and sophomore seasons together at Preston. Kelsey moved to Twin Falls before her junior year and Tews moved to Filer last year, for her senior season.

"I definitely didn't think that would happen. It doesn't seem that long ago when we played together," Tews said. "I think it will be a positive for the team. We've played with each other before and we'll have that chemistry on the court."

The Sawtooth Central Idaho Conference Player of the Year in 2010-11, Tews averaged a team-leading 12.2 points and four assists per game for the Wildcats. She shot 38 percent from 3-point range and also averaged four steals per game.

She figures to be a point guard for Big Bend, which finished last season with a 12-4 record, including a 5-9 mark in the Northwest Athletic Association of Community Colleges.

"Jess was an asset. She gave us a lot of positive things. The girl handled the ball, never afraid to handle the ball. I never doubted her handling the ball," said Filer coach Kody Ketterling.

This season, Tews led Filer to two dramatic wins over Kimberly in the district tournament to guide the Wildcats to the Class 3A state tournament. Although the team went two-and-out at state, it was there where Tews and Big Bend got connected.

The school approached her at the tournament and Tews sent the coaches game tapes a week later.

"And the rest is history," Tews said. "I wasn't sure if I was going to have the opportunity. I'm really excited to keep playing."

Tews said she, Kelsey and Nielsen are excited about playing together next season.

"I really liked the school and the coaches and they (Kelsey and Nielsen) were a big reason why I chose Big Bend. Jazlyn and Allie are great girls and it will be a lot of fun playing on the same team," Tews said. "It's an amazing opportunity. I'm excited to be a Viking."

Baltimore beats Seattle in 13 innings

BALTIMORE — Matt Wieters singled home the winning run with two outs in the 13th inning, part of a stunning comeback that gave the Baltimore Orioles a 7-6 victory over the Seattle Mariners on Tuesday night.

After the Mariners got the go-ahead run in the top of the 13th, the Orioles scored twice in the bottom half against Brandon League, who blew his first save opportunity in 10 chances this season.

J.J. Hardy homered and had four hits for Baltimore in his first game back from the disabled list. The Orioles, who bounced back from a 4-3 deficit in the eighth, snapped a four-game losing streak and improved to 1-17 when trailing after seven innings. Adam Kennedy homered for the Mariners, who took the lead in the 13th on Mike Wilson's first major league hit.

YANKEES 3, ROYALS 1

at 12:15 p.m. Tuesday to get there in time to rest for today's 10 a.m. MDT encounter.

"I don't really think we're going to be all that tired, with guys running on excitement and adrenaline," said sophomore catcher Parker Morin. "Guys are finished with finals and it's starting to feel like summer for us. We're ready to go down there and just have some fun. It's an exciting time for us."

CSI has exhibited success against four of the other five teams in the tournament. The Eagles swept the season series against Colorado Northwestern and won series against Eastern Utah and Southern Nevada. They also split with second-seeded Salt Lake, which at the time was ranked No. 1 in the nation.

Only Western Nevada, the league champion and tournament host, has managed to keep CSI quiet. But baseball is a funny game.

"We know we're going to have to go through them at some point if we want to win the title," Morin said of a Wildcat team that won all eight meetings in the regular season and hasn't lost at John L. Harvey Field in 14 months. "But they can't keep beating us forever. Baseball just doesn't seem to work like that."

The return of Ryan Cooperstone to shortstop should bode well for CSI. One of the Eagles' best players, Cooperstone missed most of the last month with back trouble but is said to be feeling good ahead of this week's grind.

His addition will aid an ever-improving offense and bolster the defense. There's only one problem area Walker hopes is shored up this week.

"We've got to be more consistent with our pitching. Guys have been great, the Eagles haven't finished any worse than runner-up. All signs point toward another top-two finish, but the team's recent history is reason enough to avoid complacency, even if the championship is where it expects to end up.

CSI will play either Western Nevada or Southern Nevada in the second round Thursday evening. It lost a game last week at Western Nevada, the Wildcats second win over a team other than last-place Colorado Northwestern, which didn't qualify for the tournament.

The Eagles also lost two of four to fourth-seeded North Idaho and once to No. 5 Snow. But they're turning it into a positive.

"It's been a heads-up for us, and now we know that if we don't come to play we're going to lose," Eckstein said. "We know we have to come out strong and if we don't, we know what's going to happen."

Though it's a double-elimination tournament, not losing is paramount if a team wants to make it to next week's national tournament in St. George, Utah. In each of the last four seasons, the team that enters championship play from the winner's bracket has gone on to win the region title.

The desired path doesn't have anything to do with teams, just wins.

Feds ask for help with Armstrong case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Undeterred by the slap on the wrist a jury gave Barry Bonds, U.S. investigators are forging ahead in a separate drug-related case against another superstar athlete — Lance Armstrong.

In France, where Armstrong became famous by winning the Tour de France seven straight times, officials received a request from U.S. authorities last month for help gathering evidence about the cyclist and other members of his former U.S. Postal team.

The move indicates federal authorities are looking to bolster their case against Armstrong so they can give a grand jury in Los Angeles the fullest account possible of

U.S. authorities are asking European officials for help gathering evidence against Lance Armstrong in a case related to the use of performance-enhancing drugs.

the cyclist's actions before deciding whether Armstrong, like Bonds, also should face criminal charges related to using performance-enhancing drugs.

People familiar with the investigation said the French request has been in the works since late last year, shortly after U.S. investigator Jeff Novitzky, prosecutor Doug Miller and other American authorities traveled to Interpol headquarters in south-central France to meet with European investigators, prosecutors and anti-doping officials from France, Belgium and Italy.

The American evidence request specifically targets U.S. Postal and mentions Armstrong by name, said officials who have seen it. To date, federal prosecutors have called several people connected to Armstrong to testify before the grand jury, including exercise physiologist Allen Lim and Ukrainian cyclist and former Armstrong strong teammate Yaroslav Popovych.

Associated Press reporters in the U.S. and Europe interviewed about a half-dozen people familiar with the case, all of whom requested their names not be used because they're not authorized to speak publicly about the investigation. The probe initially focused on the Rock Racing cycling team, then turned toward Armstrong after a former teammate, Floyd Landis, alleged Armstrong had a long-running doping system in place.

The people said the case against Armstrong, who has steadfastly denied doping and never failed a drug test, could ultimately lead to charges of fraud and conspiracy related to the alleged building of a doping program, at least part of which was said to be operating while his team received government sponsorship.

"This case isn't like Bonds and Clemens," said one person familiar with the investigation, bringing up pitcher Roger Clemens' upcoming trial on perjury charges related to alleged use of PEDs. "Those were about lying. This is about corruption to the core."

Thom Mrozek, a spokesman with the U.S. attorney's office in Los Angeles, declined comment.

Mark Fabiani, counsel to Armstrong, criticized investigators for leaking "self-serving information."

who said she struggled to find her rhythm early this season.

"I've had Mike Hamblin help me with my swing and it's really helped a lot," Reed said. "We're definitely ready for state. We're all really close, all five of us. ... We really want the whole team to do well."

Joining the Bruins at state will be second-place Wood River, led by individual runner-up Jennie Williams, who finished one stroke back. Williams went to state as a freshman, but missed the cut by a few strokes last year as a sophomore.

"It was crushing," Williams said of missing state, "but I knew I had to pull through this year so I can go. It's really awesome to go to state. Today I was just connecting with the ball really well. I kept my focus and I was really mentally in the game. I was making the putts I wanted to make."

Bush stirs up fans with lockout posts on Twitter

NEW ORLEANS — Reggie Bush insists he was only joking when he stirred up fans with posts on his Twitter account about enjoying free time during the NFL lockout.

Bush drew critical responses from a number of his nearly 1.7 million Twitter followers when he posted: "Everybody complaining about the lockout! Shoot I'm making the most of it! Vacation, rest, relaxing, appearances here and there! I'm good!"

Bush then added in a second post moments later: "Right about now we would be slaving in 100 degree heat, practicing twice a day, while putting our bodies at risk for nothing."

less forgiving, Bush posted another message that read: "FYI last tweet was a joke! Relax people damn it's called sense of humor! Cry me a river why don't you..."

The Twitter exchange marked the second time Bush had made waves with a post since the NFL draft. Shortly after the Saints made a first-round trade to draft Alabama running back and former Heisman Trophy winner Mark Ingram, Bush tweeted: "It's been fun New Orleans," before later posting another message welcoming Ingram to the team.

HAYNESWORTH ENTERS NOT GUILTY PLEA TO SEX ABUSE

WASHINGTON — Washington Redskins defensive lineman Albert Haynesworth did not grope a waitress at a hotel bar and intends to fight the accusations, his lawyer said Tuesday in entering a not guilty plea to a misdemeanor charge of sexual abuse.

Haynesworth, who was not at his arraignment in D.C. Superior Court, is accused of sliding his credit card into the bra of a waitress and touching her breast during a birthday party at a Washington hotel in February. His lawyer said after the hearing that the accusation was false and that Haynesworth would defend himself at a trial set for July 11.

"The government's version of what happened at the WHotel a few months back is very different from our version — and we've got witnesses," said defense lawyer A. Scott Bolden, who said his client was currently out of town. "The one thing I can tell you is my client didn't do what he's accused of doing."

TWIN CITIES SUBURB PITCHES NEW VIKINGS STADIUM

ARDEN HILLS, Minn. — The owners of the Minnesota Vikings said Tuesday the team's future is in the suburbs, announcing a deal with Ramsey County to collaborate on a $1.1 billion retractable-roof football stadium about 10 miles north of their current home at the Metrodome in downtown Minneapolis.

The deal between the Vikings and Ramsey County appeared to end the debate over the location of the team's long-sought stadium — at least from the Vikings' perspective. But the team and its supporters still face a tough fight for approval in the dwindling days of Minnesota's legislative session.

DEAR ABBY: Your mother's recipes occasionally have been printed in your column. However, there is one of the best that I have never seen yet. It's her "St. James' Baked Beans." If you have never tried it before, then the greatest taste sensation has been missed. I am always invited back to any party — provided I bring the beans. I have always given your mom full credit for the recipe and have never changed a single ingredient. You can't improve upon perfection.

Do your readers a favor and print it. They won't be sorry. My mom started making them when she bought the first cookbooklet in 1987, and I have continued the tradition. Thanks!

— SANDRA S.,

PORT ST. LUCIE, FLA.

DEAR SANDRA: I'm pleased to print the recipe. With summer almost here, those baked beans will make a welcome addition to any barbecue or patio party — and they're high in fiber, too. Other recipes in the cookbooklet set are also terrific for entertaining when the weather is sweltering. Among them are Summer Cucumber Salad, Cucumber Soup, Abby's Tomato Salad, Summer Surprise Dessert (made with fresh fruit) and Ritz Pecan Pie. All of them are simple and easy to make. The cookbooklet set can be ordered by sending your name and address, plus check or money order for $12 (U.S. funds) to: Dear Abby — Cookbooklet Set, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, IL 61054-0447. Shipping and handling are included in the price. Included with the recipes are tips for not only entertaining, but also how to graciously end a party without being rude — a question I am frequently asked.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

ST.JAMES' BAKED BEANS

(Serves 8)
6 slices bacon, diced
1/2 cup chopped onion
1 (16-ounce) can pork and beans, drained
1 (16-ounce) can lima beans, drained
1 (15-ounce) can kidney beans, rinsed and drained
1 (10-ounce) package sharp cheddar cheese, cubed
1 cup ketchup
3/4 cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
Heat oven to 325 degrees. Butter a 1 1/2-quart casserole. In a small skillet, saute the bacon and onions until the bacon is crisp and onions are lightly browned; drain well. In a large bowl, combine the remaining ingredients. Add bacon-onion mixture; mix well. Pour bean mixture into prepared casserole. Bake uncovered at 325 degrees for 1 1/2 hours. Enjoy!

DEAR ABBY: Why is it when women get headaches or something goes wrong that depresses them, they take it out on us men?

— SOMETIMES NOT MY FAULT IN SIOUX CITY, IOWA
DEAR SOMETIMES NOT MY FAULT: For the same reason that men do it. It's because you are THERE.

IF MAY 11 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: This month, you may receive very good advice or a chance to improve your life in a significant way. You are inspired to follow your fancies and that may mean that between now and the end of June you can take a well deserved vacation or enjoy an amiable fling. Throughout August your business intuitions and expertise are in top-notch condition, making that a good time to reassess investments, income making decisions and career choices. Perseverance and stamina will see you through the rough spots that occur in late September and October while transiting conditions challenge your sector of the zodiac. Do what you must do, but don't actively seek added obligations or responsibilities. Avoid public appearances and refrain from entering into fresh commitments while your ability to charm others is at a low point.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Communication is the key to compromise. Emotions may need to be reined in by thinking about the other person first. Your intuitions might be right on target, but some friendly advice hits the bull's-eye.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): People who seem to be competing with you may, in reality, be firmly on your team. Avoid working at cross-purposes with others by making sure that there are frank and sincere conversations.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Knowledge is power, but you don't need to know it all. You know exactly who to ask for honest appraisals or who to contact for expert advice so you are one up on the other people who merely trust to luck.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be forthright and honest. You don't need to embellish the truth or exaggerate abilities. If you are humble and willing to face facts, it will be easier to make headway. Listen to the voice of experience.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Put a ribbon around your finger as a reminder. There is something of importance you must ask someone or information to relay. Your reputation might hinge on how reliably you handle a position of trust.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Networking can be a delight. A few words in the right ear can do the trick. Your likability quotient hits high notes in the workplace, so combine business with pleasure to end up in a win-win position.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Temper aggressive tendencies with good sportsmanship. Competing with others for the attention of the boss or your special someone might cause conflict. It is best to play by the rules and remain fair-minded.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): New friends are silver, old friends are gold. You might be filled with ambition today, but you will still find time to keep in touch with true blue people who will support you when the chips are down.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your noggin is full of knowledge. You may put your feet up on the desk to reminisce and stumble on key information. You like to give unasked advice, but remember to practice what you preach.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You can be a softie and still work hard, play hard. Being known for a first-rate work ethic can earn the key to the executive suite. Being known for a soft heart can win you the key to someone else's heart.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You don't have to be the leader of the pack. While you may be accustomed to people knocking on your door and seeking your advice, it isn't necessary to take control. Your opinion is but one of many.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Say the right thing. You can turn on the charm school manners and give someone a reason to remember you. People may forget what you say or do, but they will never forget how you make them feel.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"Civilizations ... break down and go to pieces if and when a challenge confronts them which they fail to meet."

— Arnold Toynbee

The best material for bridge reporters tends to come when declarer thwarts the best efforts of the defense, or vice versa. All this week's deals are selected from past Cavendish tournaments. Today's deal, from the 1998 Cavendish, features a fine example of both sides playing in top form.

Declarer was Jill Levin, who had just won a world title with her partner here, Irina Levitina. The latter had won a world chess team title when living in Russia, making her perhaps the most successful player in the world at both games.

Levitina elected to open the North hand with a 15-17 no-trump, a reasonable choice since a one-diamond opening is guaranteed to give her a very ugly rebid problem. Levin transferred into hearts, allowing Mohan to overcall in spades. Now Levin introduced her second suit, and Levitina flirted briefly with the idea of a grand slam before settling for the small slam. The inference about North's having both black suits controlled was not lost on Mohan, who selected the diabolical opening lead of the club eight!

However, Levin had been playing the game long enough to draw the same inferences as Mohan. She rated him as capable of underleading an ace, and she decided that with the club queen instead of the ace, he might have pre-empted at his first turn to speak. So she put up dummy's club king and lived happily ever after.

ANSWER: Although your diamonds are better than your hearts, you should introduce your hearts first. The logic is that this gets the suits in play in economical order. Also, your most likely game is surely four hearts.
