$50 million for schools?

As state revenue improves, schools may receive $50 million more

By Amy Huddleston
Times-News writer

A recent report from the Idaho Division of Financial Management showed that Idaho's public K-12 schools could receive up to $50 million more in discretionary funding for the next school year, thanks to state revenues that have outperformed expectations. It was with cautious optimism that Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Luna sent an email to school officials on Friday, announcing that the DFM reported April state revenues of more than $13 million above projections, leaving fiscal 2011 revenues an estimated $74 million above original forecasts. If state revenues continue to outperform projections through the June 30 end of the fiscal year, a law passed this year would provide schools with as much as $50 million to split among them.

Kenney Young faces challenger for Twin Falls School District Zone 2 seat

Paul McClintock

The race for the Twin Falls School Board Zone 2 seat will see incumbent Kenney Young seek another term against newcomer Paul McClintock. The unpaid, volunteer position serves as the board representative for southwestern Twin Falls.

Young said there are still accomplishments and challenges ahead for the school board, and cautioned there's a rough road for Idaho educators.

"I think we need to be careful of how we ask for taxpayers' money," Young said. "I have business savvy and know the value of a dollar and how hard it is to come by."

Secret political spending faces scrutiny

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

Secret corporate spending on political campaigns may face the sharp rays of sunshine.

A draft executive order awaiting President Barack Obama's signature would require all companies bidding for federal contracts to show the public how much money they spend on political campaigns, and where it goes. The proposal also covers corporate donations to nonprofit fronts that, in turn, pump the money into independent political spending to either help or harm certain candidates.

In Idaho, the change would mean that the public could check a government website to find the political spending of companies bidding for jobs in the Gem State or elsewhere. Federal contracts play a strong role in Idaho's economy, particularly at installations like Mountain Home Air Force Base and the Idaho National Laboratory. In fiscal year 2010, $2.6 billion was spent on federal contracts in Idaho, according to government data.

The proposed order follows a 2010 U.S. Supreme Court ruling

Megaloads hearings wrapped up Wednesday

BOISE (AP) — Three weeks of hearings over Exxon Mobile's proposed oil equipment shipments on U.S. Highway 12 have finally wrapped up. The hearings were forced by opponents who contend the loads will disrupt traffic on the north-central Idaho transportation route, compromise residents' safety and pose a threat to the Selway and Lochsa rivers. Idaho Transportation Department officials say the shipments, bound for the Kearl Oil Sands in Alberta, Canada, can be done safely and with minimum disruption to the local community. Adam Rush, a spokesman for the Idaho Transportation Department, said Wednesday that closing briefs from both sides are due later this month, with a decision by hearing officer Duff McKee due in the ensuing weeks.

Each defendant appeared with an separate attorney, each arguing that the victims — David and Colleen Conner — could not positively identify any defendant as the two masked individuals who held them at gunpoint in the early morning hours of March 9. The Conners testified during the hearing, recounting the terror and uncertainty of whether they would live through the morning as two individuals ransacked their home, looking for cash and other valuables. The couple told the court that the thieves made off with between $4,000 and $5,000 with at least $3,000 in cash after threatening them with shotguns. However, the Conners could not provide many physical details that would help potentially match the thieves to the accused. Early in the hearing, Lincoln County Prosecutor E. Scott Paul called Donabedian's fiancée, Kayla Richardson, to testify as police had tagged her as a source of information in their affidavit. Richardson, who also had an attorney present, exercised her Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination during much of the questioning. Detectives also testified that Donabedian, once arrested, detailed the course of the home invasion and identified his alleged accomplices through a photo lineup. During other testimony with investigators, the state showed that a search of a Twin Falls residence turned up, among many things, a video camera which had a matching serial number to the one reported by the Conners. It also revealed personal digital images of the Conners. The four are set for arraignment on May 17.

That's an important figure, as state legislators cut the public schools budget by $47 million this year. The additional discretionary funding would allow individual school districts to put the money where they need it most, be it for operations, teacher salaries or other expenses. But Luci Willits, Luna's chief of staff, said with two months of state revenue still unaccounted for, it's still too early to celebrate any extra funding. Prior years have shown positive projections that ultimately proved to be false when the final numbers came through, she said. "It's hard to know in this economy because it's been all over the board," she said. "Schools will not be made whole by this, but it would wipe out the cut this year." Willits said schools would receive this funding because of legislative foresight. Lawmakers this year passed a maintenance-of-effort bill that ensured a large portion of additional state revenue would go toward education if funding outpaces expectations. As school districts and teachers groups begin contract negotiations, Willits said the potential additional money shouldn't be used for negotiations due to its uncertain arrival. "It's still early, but there is a cautious optimism," she said. Amy Huddleston may be reached at ahuddleston@magicvalley.com or 735-3204.

Contributions

that allows corporations and unions to make direct political donations to candidates. But since such donations would show up on a candidate's disclosures, many trade and industry groups have kept their donations secret by creating nonprofits that aren't required to name their fiscal supporters. Those organizations don't donate directly to candidates. Instead, the third-party groups put money into efforts like their own political ads, literature and phone calls during election season. Those groups spent nearly $133 million from secret donors in the 2010 elections, with $119 million — or 90 percent — going toward Republican causes, according to data compiled by the non-partisan Center for Responsive Politics. Government openness advocates say that showing who donates to political spending groups would be a welcome step toward transparency and away from back-door deals. On the other side are business advocates who contend that the change would bring undue political scrutiny to companies' bids for federal work. Corporate and business interests are lobbying fiercely against the proposal, including the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, one of the biggest political spenders. "If you have to disclose to the awarding officials what political spending you've done, the natural result would be for the awarding officials to consider that during the award process," Chamber spokeswoman Blair Latoff said, adding that contracts should be awarded based on the best value for taxpayers. "... They should not be based on those contractors' political views and they should not enlist the agencies in a witch hunt for which contractors are naughty and which are nice." Public Citizen, a national organization that promotes government accountability, backs the proposed order, saying the Supreme Court decision opened the door further to abuse and corruption. "The only reason to oppose this is if you're a massive corporation that wants to buy sweetheart government contracts without the public finding out," Craig Holman, the government affairs lobbyist of Public Citizen, said in a statement. The House Oversight Committee and House Small Business Committee will have a joint hearing today prior to Obama's decision. U.S. Rep. Raul Labrador, R-Idaho and a member of the oversight committee, told the Times-News that contracts should be awarded competitively based on a company's performance history and cost-effectiveness — not political activity. "A company's history of political activity has absolutely no place in the bidding process," Labrador said in a statement. "I am not sure of the intent of this executive order, but in my opinion the net result of this action could be to intimidate

Our funding is a limited resource to be used wisely." He said he offered the board a different perspective in the last six years due to his self-employed lifestyle, and often chose to vote "no" on issues when the rest of the board voted "yes." "You can't make financial decisions based on emotional testimonies," he said, referring to past decisions made by the board and how to deal with pending budget cuts. "Difficult decisions need to be made on what the numbers tell you, not what people's hearts tell you." Young said the board's biggest accomplishments during his tenure so far as trustee were building Canyon Ridge High School, and guiding the district through challenging years by maintaining its level of service. He handed his daughter her diploma when she graduated, and said that made all the long hours on the board worthwhile. His hope is to stay in the position and hand his son a diploma next year.

McClintock is a father of two young children — the oldest a 5-year-old starting kindergarten in the fall. He said he has a vested interest in the district's education and said the schools could do better. McClintock works with budgets on a daily basis and said his background with the U.S. Department of Agriculture would bring a unique view of financial matters to the board. McClintock grew up in California and said from his own experience, keeping classroom sizes smaller is imperative to maintaining a good learning environment. "I want our school district to be the envy of Idaho. I want people to look and say, 'I want my school to look like that,'" he said. "I want these kids to go on and be successful. It is getting more and more competitive out there." One of his goals is to equip students with the tools they need for both ongoing education and the work force. He said Idaho's new education reform laws need to be taken and used to help make students' experiences better. "I feel teachers must feel secure about their jobs if they are going to focus 100 percent on their students," he said.

Ongoing search for missing Rexburg man fruitless, so far

By Bradley Guire
Times-News writer

While law-enforcement agencies south of the Magic Valley continue to search for a missing Canadian man, another search surges forward in the Wood River Valley and Camas Prairie.

Volunteers are still looking for Grant Moedl, the 57-year-old Rexburg resident who went missing on his way to Mountain Home on March 2. Moedl was travelling in a 2008 Subaru Forester to meet friends at the Elmore County seat, but he never showed.

Richard and Kay Holliday, also Rexburg residents, are organizing volunteers in a search for Moedl that started on May 2.

“We’ve had 45 to 50 searchers out,” Richard Holliday said, “but we didn’t find anything.”

Holliday said volunteers are searching nearly 500 miles of roads in the area, including U.S. Highway 20/26/93 from Arco to Carey, U.S. 20 from Carey to Mountain Home, U.S. 26/93 from Carey to Shoshone, Idaho Highway 75 from Shoshone to the U.S. 20 junction, and Idaho Highway 46 from Gooding to the U.S. 20 junction.

He added that they will re-search U.S. 20 from the Elmore County/Camas County border east to Fairfield, back roads around Anderson Ranch Reservoir in Elmore County, and Magic Reservoir in southwestern Blaine County.

HELP OUT

Richard and Kay Holliday of Rexburg can use your help in the search for Grant Moedl, a Rexburg man missing since March 2. He was headed to Mountain Home via U.S. Highway 20, but he never made it to his destination. To help with the search, contact the Hollidays at 360-8911, 360-8970 or ryzyzyzx@yahoo.com.

Volunteers are searching on foot, but Holliday said that they’re also using all-terrain and four-wheel-drive vehicles to search areas farther from paved surfaces.

Two write-ins seek Shoshone schools seat

By Sky Buffat
Times-News correspondent

SHOSHONE — Shoshone School District voters may possibly be scratching their heads as they enter the polls on May 17.

Both candidates for the only item on the ballot, the Zone 2 school board seat, are write-ins.

This is also the first contested school board election for the Shoshone board in as long as 10 years.

Candidate Rian Pine was raised in Rupert and works as an information technology specialist for the Idaho Transportation Department. He and his wife have four children, three of whom are enrolled in Shoshone Elementary School.

Though rather new to Shoshone, Pine said he and his wife have both quickly become integrated with the school and the community.

“I’m just a concerned parent,” Pine said. “I’ve never ran for anything, but I do want the chance to voice my opinion and can’t very well do that while just sitting back idly.”

Pine said he wouldn’t want to jump right in to the board seat with grand ideas or changes in mind, but wanted to learn and be able to share opinions with other trustees.

“I’m positive that the superintendent and board are doing great,” Pine said. “I just want to get involved and help where I can.”

Fellow candidate Tammi Hall was raised in Oakley and works part-time as a finance manager for an engineering surveying firm in Sun Valley. She and her husband have six kids, the fifth of whom will graduate from Shoshone High School this year.

The couple has organized the Senior Celebration, a drug-free lock-in that follows graduation, for several years.

TAMMI HALL

Age: 42
Occupation: Finance manager
School board/education experience: None

RIAN PINE

Age: 43
Occupation: Information technology specialist
School board/education experience: None

“I know what a challenge budget cuts are,” Hall said. “I have the ability now and I guess it’s just time I stepped up and did my part.”

Hall said she loves working with kids and wants them to realize how important education is. She said she wants to be a part of continuing recent improvements the Shoshone School District has tried.

Reflecting on the district’s low standardized test scores, Hall noted that Shoshone has increased the length of its school days until 4 p.m. Monday to Thursday, giving students and teachers more one-on-one time at the end of the day. She said these changes are helping and that the district is currently in an “improvement phase.”

“The whole district has had to step up,” Hall said.

Both Pine and Hall are working their campaigns almost entirely by word-of-mouth, as well as using social media. The seat they are looking to fill is being vacated by longtime trustee Terry Zech, who is retiring from the board.

Dietrich Cemetery District seeks do-over

By Sky Buffat
Times-News correspondent

Folks in Dietrich may have a sense of déjà vu as they step into voting booths on Tuesday and are asked if they want to form a new cemetery district.

Last November, the 329 voters within the proposed Dietrich Cemetery District passed a measure to form a taxing district to develop and maintain a cemetery in their area. But that vote was later voided, as voters within the district received only one of two required mailed notices before the election.

“We kind of got fouled up on this deal, see,” committee member Lynn Johnson said. “The second notice didn’t

ABOUT THE DISTRICT

Amount: If the measure passes, a levy will be certified based on the market value of district property for the 2012 tax cycle. That amount will be taxed proportionately across each property. Idaho cemetery districts do not receive fixed amounts of funding from year to year.

Term: If a vote passes, the cemetery district will exist indefinitely.

Approval needed: 50 percent simple majority

What it does: Creates a Dietrich Cemetery District, in which revenue from a tax levy helps create and develop a cemetery in the Dietrich area.

get sent five days before.”

With Tuesday’s vote looming, voters should receive their second notice by today.

The proposed district borders the Richfield Cemetery District to the north, and extends south to the Jerome County line, east to near Kimama, and about four miles from Shoshone to the west.

“This’ll allow taxes going to Lincoln County Cemetery District to be converted toward Dietrich Cemetery District,” Dietrich City Councilman Daryl Ballard said. “That money would fund the purchase of land for the cemetery, if needed, or to develop it.”

Ballard said Dietrich city leadership is optimistic that the measure will pass.

If the measure passes, the district’s first three-member governing body will be appointed by the governor, who’ll select appointees from a list provided to him locally. That committee will determine where the cemetery should be placed and acquire the land for it. After its formation, the district will be able to levy tax to fund its operations within the district.

“I don’t see it as a money issue,” Ballard said. “Dietrich is a close-knit community, and people would like to have their own cemetery here. I grew up here, and if I have the choice, I’d like to be buried here and have my family here.”

Bellevue considers fire department consolidation

By Ariel Hansen
Times-News writer

BELLEVUE — There aren’t any easy solutions when you need to provide more services with less money, but the city of Bellevue has been trying to do more with less each year of this recession. City leaders want to ensure that one critical service, the fire department, isn’t left with too little, too late.

On Monday, they presented the results of a study assessing the costs and benefits of consolidating fire services with Wood River Fire and Rescue, Hailey’s fire department, or both, to several dozen citizens in the Bellevue Elementary School gym. The study was funded by the other two departments.

Public reaction was mixed, although most lauded what the department has been able to do with its resources. Money was their primary concern, including the cost for individual homeowners’ fire insurance policies and taxes and levies that might be assessed on their homes.

However, those who spoke also acknowledged that providing adequate fire response is a basic function of government, and many said they would be willing to pay more to improve the department.

“Seventy-two thousand dollars is a drop in the bucket; it’s not something we’re going to be able to survive on,” said Bellevue firefighter Trent Shoemaker, describing the importance of the work and how much he enjoys it. “I’ll do it for free if that’s what it takes, but everyone else has to say they’ll do it for free too.”

Councilwoman Barb Patterson said she wanted to ensure the council didn’t opt for something that firefighters weren’t in favor of, while several council members said the

READ THE STUDY YOURSELF

To review the study, which totals nearly 400 pages and covers several dozen scenarios, visit bellevueidaho.us, click “Fire Department,” and scroll down to the “Cooperative Efforts Feasibility Study” link.

Bellevue Fire Department Resources

Fiscal 2011 budget: $72,805

Staff: 19-hour-per-week chief, 10 paid-per-call firefighters

Vehicles and equipment: Three firefighting vehicles (all 15 to 30 years old), one SUV, and a variety of other equipment

Facilities: An old fire station leased from the county for $1 a year.

Work load: The department responds to about 40 calls per year, with an average response time of about 4 minutes, 45 seconds over the past two years. That compares to a highly urban response time averaging about 3 minutes, and a rural response time of about 9 minutes.

public would be heavily involved in whatever decision is made, through public hearings or a citywide vote.

Monday’s town hall meeting is just a first step, said Bellevue Mayor Chris Koch. The city is beginning its budgeting process for fiscal 2012, and any changes to the fire department likely would not be included in plans for the coming year.

The study will also need to be adjusted to reflect current information — including property values that have dropped by almost half since the last valuation — according to city Planning and Zoning Director Craig Eckles.

According to Pat Rainey, a former firefighter who represents Bellevue on the Cooperative Efforts Feasibility Study committee, most consolidation options would end up costing Bellevue households about double what they are paying now. However, all of those options would result in significant improvement to service, Koch said.

“Are you willing to spend a little more money?” Rainey asked attendees. “If you are, we’ll be sure it’s spent properly.”

Acknowledging potential efficiencies in a consolidated department, attendees questioned consolidation as a solution, pointing to the rising costs of the city police services provided by the Blaine County Sheriff’s Office. They also expressed concern for the voice Bellevue taxpayers would have in a consolidated department that would be dominated by other jurisdictions.

Koch said the city will likely hold another town hall with more specifics on consolidation options — and other ways the city could improve the department, including grants — in coming months.

FEMA’s all wet

If it seems as though it hasn’t stopped raining this spring, you’re right. March and April both had higher than normal precipitation and lower than average amounts of sunshine, and May is well on its way to continuing the trend. And yet the high desert version of “wet” pales in comparison to what we see and read about happening in Memphis and southward into Mississippi and Alabama.

In Memphis alone, flood damage is estimated in excess of $320 million and a state of emergency was declared weeks ago. One of the advantages of the “State of Emergency” declaration is that it allows those that have sustained damage to apply for disaster relief funds — much of this flowing through the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA). And therein lies the problem.

MORE INFO

Idaho is in Region X of the Federal Emergency Management Agency that also includes Alaska, Oregon and Washington. Ken Murphy was appointed regional administrator for the region in June 2010. Offices are located in Bothell, Washington, and the office phone number is (425) 487-4600.

Because at the same time that thousands of new claims are getting ready to come in FEMA’s direction, more than 5,500 people that have already received funds have just been given notice to pay it all back. And they have only 30 days to do it.

You read that right. In the past six years FEMA has paid out over $22 million to victims of floods, tornados and other disasters that they now want back. But guess what? The recipients of the money — many of whom had to fight tooth and nail to get it in the first place — spent it to repair and replace damaged homes; exactly what you’d expect them to do. It’s not like they invested in the local savings bank where they’ve been accruing a hefty percent and a half interest. They spent it as the first step to restoring their lives.

Or so they thought. Apparently FEMA is required by law to recover money that is spent “improperly”. We would like to think that they should first be required by law to be competent. When piled on top of the administrative disaster following Hurricane Katrina in 2005, we begin to wonder whether FEMA manages disasters or simply exacerbates the ones that have already occurred.

We may be tempted to react by asking, “What do floods 1,700 miles away in Memphis have to do with us in south-central Idaho?” The answer is simple: there have been four disaster declarations in Idaho over the past six years and although in a different FEMA district — it’s the same Federal Emergency Management Agency in Idaho as it is in Tennessee or Louisiana. And it’s this same organization that will be responsible for the next Idaho disaster.

It may be those in the south that need a capable FEMA today, but our turn is sure to come.

Tom Luna made tragic mistake pushing reform

Information to me says that Tom Luna has no experience teaching in a school classroom. Now he is head of Idaho Public School education.

Governor, I voted for you and support you. Mostly, you have done a good job, but you made a tragic mistake in approving the Luna Education Reform Bill. Replacing teachers with computers will not save money; it will be more costly.

The people who make and sell computers are clapping their hands in glee. With sales, maintenance, repair and replacement of the machines, they will make millions, and we pay for it.

I am a right-to-work person not supporting all union activities, but they have good points too. Taking away all union rights is probably unconstitutional.

I have a grandson in college studying to be a physical education teacher. He now sees no future in teaching and is changing his course.

The first time a dependable, qualified teacher is let go, there will be war, not with bullets and bombs but with words, letters and court actions.

Give CSI students a boost along the way

I have had the privilege to be a “landlord/housemother” to numerous students from the College of Southern Idaho over the past 20 years in my private home.

Sure I had a few bad apples, but at least 95 percent of them were working one or two jobs and studying hard to finish their education. They were respectful of me and the other renters.

I have enjoyed ongoing contacts with them of graduations from four-year schools, wedding announcements and birth notices.

They are the future of our community, state and world. Let’s give them a boost along the way instead of slandering them.

President Obama is a Shiite Muslim

We are being duped by our current unvetted president, Barack Hussein Obama, who is using an old Shiite custom of Taqiyya (deceive your enemies).

Obama Sr. was a Shiite as is our U.S. president. Shiite Muslims are 15 percent, Sunni Muslims are 85 percent of the Middle East total. Iran is Shiite. Obama’s friendship with Amedinejad as he slaughtered Iranian students and now protesters in Pakistan (Sunnis). Obama leads the charge with U.S. blood and money toward his Shiite caliphate. One only needs to do the research.

Obama is supporting the “rebels,” better known as the Shiite-dominated Muslim Brotherhood. Note how he ushers in quick elections where only the Muslim Brotherhood can win using U.S. dollars. Our illegal involvement in Afghanistan, Libya, Egypt, Yemen, Bahrain, Syria, Tunisia and now Pakistan moderate Sunni-led governments, while Obama pulls out of Iraq and overlooks Iran’s (Shiite) threats show Obama’s loyalties. Now Israel will be fully exposed to barbarian elements, and Obama will, with our blood and money, destroy Israel. Osama Bin Laden (ex-leader of “al-Qaida,” radicalized Sunnis, whom Obama puts forth as the terrorists of the world) and family was the beginning of the dismantling of Pakistan, not to avenge the heinous murder of 3,000 U.S. civilians (very clever). Obama’s administration pays the Shiite Muslim Brotherhood as advisers and are on the payroll of the U.S.

Obama is systematically destroying the United States through monetary waste, dependency on Mideast oil, job loss, etc. which lays the groundwork for a global Shiite takeover. Are we using our best and bravest resources along with all of our money to render us powerless to build Obama’s Shiite Caliphate throughout the world?

This will be the most clever terror plot devised to date: Much more successful than 9/11, and right under our noses.

From pizza queen to Pulitzer winner?

This letter is about one of your own, Melissa Davlin. I have been following her career since she joined your paper. Her last story about the refuge camps was her best to date.

I have known her since she was a little kid, schlepping pizza in a local store in Twin. I knew she was destined for greatness when I watched her count pepperoni and talk at the same time. I saw her three times a week. I had to be at that store on business.

So when Melissa wins the Pulitzer Prize or pizza queen, I hope you remember all the little people that you met along the way.

Good job, kid.

Is China’s bad news good for America?

Harold Meyerson

Great news, no? Well, hold the applause for now.

The study looks at the change in U.S. and Chinese labor costs and productivity levels over the past decade, and then projects them for 2015. China’s labor costs were 34 percent of U.S. labor expenses in 2005, the study notes, in the two regions the group chose to measure. By 2015, the study reports, the gap between American and Chinese labor costs adjusted for productivity differentials will have so narrowed that China’s labor costs will come to fully 69 percent of U.S. labor costs.

So what’s the catch? Just this: The two regions that the group compared are the Yangtze River Delta (which includes Shanghai) and Mississippi.

Mississippi? The state that ranks 49th or 50th in virtually every measure of U.S. living standards? Is Mississippi the new normal for an America that’s competitive in the global marketplace?

“We made a mistake by picking Mississippi,” conceded Harold Sirkin, a senior partner and managing director at the Boston Consulting Group who authored the study. But the America that the group was measuring, he told me last week, was one defined by Southern labor standards: “fewer work rules, less unionization and lower costs” than other advanced economies. Our economy, he said, is more flexible than, say, the northern Europeans’. “With unemployment at 9 percent, the economy can flex in ways that people wouldn’t have believed. Michigan’s population is declining, while the South is growing.”

Mississippi, here we come.

So is the rebirth of U.S. manufacturing inescapably linked to paying the next generation of American workers less than their parents made? A quick look around America’s industrial landscape — where new hires in unionized auto plants are paid roughly half the $28 hourly wage that longtime employees make — suggests that inter-generational downward mobility may be the price of bringing manufacturing home.

But perhaps not entirely. John Surma, the chief executive of U.S. Steel, told me this spring that labor costs aren’t that major an issue for his company. “Wages and benefits account for 15 to 20 percent of our costs,” he said. “Materials and energy add up to 75 percent.” And with the productivity gains that the company has experienced — “30 years ago, it took 10 hours per worker to produce one ton of steel; today, it takes two” — Chinese steelmakers no longer have a price advantage (though their government covers their losses).

U.S. Steel is a unionized company that has good relations with its union (the United Steelworkers), and while the union has adapted to the harsher economic climate, conditions for workers there haven’t descended to Mississippi norms. But for many manufacturers — including some based in Europe and Japan — Mississippi beckons. Volkswagen, BMW, Honda and the like have moved into the South, where unions are absent and labor is cheap.

Germany still profitably produces its high-end products at home, with labor costs that are some 50 percent higher than those in the United States. The South is where Germany goes when it wants to build its products on the cheap — a halfway house, as it were, between China and the high-value-added economy of Northern Europe.

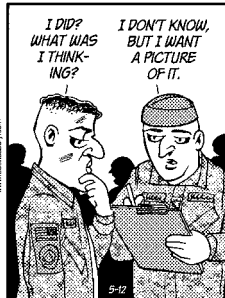

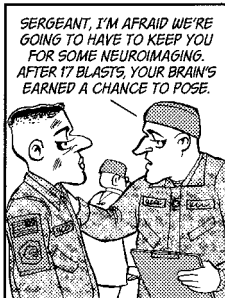

As the Boston Group’s Sirkin effuses, “We’re on pace to become the low-cost manufacturing platform” for consumers in the developing world.

And so it goes in the 21st-century American economy, where even the good news is bad.

Harold Meyerson is editor-at-large of American Prospect. meyersohn@washpost.com.

For Americans, to infinity and beyond

President Obama tried to use the announcement of the death of Osama bin Laden to get Americans to think big again. The successful end of a 10-year manhunt, he declared last week, was a “testament to the greatness of our country and the determination of the American people.”

But bin Laden’s death instead seemed to feed stubborn domestic divisions and conjure thorny geopolitical stalemates. Maybe the president should take a different tack to get the public to embrace the “big things” rhetoric he launched in January’s State of the Union address.

Maybe he should use the final days of the space shuttle program — the penultimate flight is scheduled for next week; the final flight is set for June — to get Americans to turn their attention to the heavens, literally and figuratively. Talk about thinking big.

Obama is right to try to pump us up. It isn’t just the gnawing self-doubt of the past globalized decade that has dampened our national aspirations. Or even the recession, though that hasn’t helped. It’s the earthbound, utilitarian side of our national character, let loose by our insecurities, that has been strangling our idealism and our imagination.

Historians long ago identified the ongoing tension between idealism and pragmatism that lies at the core of the American character. In 1915, Van Wyck Brooks described the nation’s “quite unclouded, quite un-hypocritical assumption of transcendent theory (‘high ideals’)” and its “simultaneous acceptance of catch-penny realities.” In 1920, philosopher George Santayana argued that of all the people in the world, Americans had a unique ability to bring realism and idealism into harmony.

A half-century ago, President John F. Kennedy jump-started the can-do side of our national character, leveraging Americans’ competitive spirit and our love affair with technology to get us thinking about the great unknown. In less than a decade, we planted the Stars and Stripes on the moon.

Back then, the ultimate symbol of technological advancement was the spaceship. Today it’s the newest computerized gizmo. That shift is powerfully reflective of a change in our values. It seems that these days, we’re most excited about technologies that better connect us to each other or better navigate the known world. We pursue links among the like-minded and access to knowledge that has already been catalogued. In other words, we’re excited by exploring the universe horizontally not vertically. We’ve replaced wonder with a search algorithm.

Worse yet, we increasingly see our world through the prism of cost/benefit analysis and risk management. We seek to monetize all aspects of life; I recently saw a study that calculated the economic costs of office rudeness. We constantly ask, “Is it worth the cost?”

In recent years, NASA officials have begun to see that strident utilitarianism as an abiding threat to the future of space exploration. In 2007, Michael Griffin, then the NASA chief administrator, urged people to look beyond what he called “acceptable reasons” for recharging the U.S. space program, to embrace the “real,” “intuitive” reasons for going deeper into space. “The cultural ethos in America today,” he said in a speech in Houston, “requires us to have ... reasons that pass analytical muster, that offer a favorable cost/benefit ratio that can be logically defended.” The problem is that acceptable reasons alone — national security, economic benefit, scientific discovery — don’t fully explain why we should launch ourselves into space. Rather, the true justification for space exploration is that such enterprises “speak abundantly to our sense of human curiosity, of wonder and awe,” and because they “lift up human hearts everywhere when we do them.”

But perhaps the best reason to once again turn our eyes and our dreams toward space is that it helps defeat what Lewis Mumford called the “idols of utilitarianism.” We can’t do big things unless we think big. We can’t think big unless we allow our imaginations go beyond the mundane. There’s nothing less mundane than galaxies far, far away.

Do your homework for the 2012 election

I have a few ideas I would like to share with the Republican leadership of Idaho. Let me emphasize, none of this is intended to be personal, it just makes sense to me.

Why don’t we just send the seven Republicans in leadership positions to Boise for the 2012 Legislative Session and leave everyone else home? They could draft the legislation they approve of and email them to the party faithful at home and they could vote as instructed according to party platform. I’ll bet the session could be over in 30 days or less, which would save the state (us taxpayers) a lot of money. If the party faithful follows the GOP platform as directed and ignores their constituents, they could keep their committee chairmanship, unlike Rep. Leon Smith.

We should ban the high-paid lobbyists in Boise and Washington, D.C., and let congressional and legislative delegations listen to the people who truly pay the bills; we call them tax-paying constituents.

Without the high-paid lobbyists in Boise, we just might get legislation (after 10 years of trying) to impose a beer, wine and hard alcohol user fee dedicated for the treatment of drug, alcohol and mental health issues.

We should ban all campaign contributions. Should we elect the person with the most money or the person who is the most qualified? Sometimes there is a great discrepancy between the

READER COMMENT

William J. Brockman

two. President Obama is projected to raise $1 billion for his next campaign race. That means the Republicans will have to raise $1.1 billion to compete.

Let’s use a non-partisan ballot for our general election and do away with the closed primary election. That way the two major parties could spend the next 18 months trying to solve some of the problems we all face instead of trying to convince us how bad the other party’s candidate is. The closed primary only tells us how many registered Democrats and Republicans voted in the last election. For the cost of a phone call I can find out the same thing from the Secretary of State’s office in Boise. Who says the non-partisan ballot will not work? Some of our most diligent and hard-working public servants are presently being elected on a nonpartisan ballot. We call them judges.

If you are happy with how our political machine works, then just sit on your hands and get out your checkbook. If you would like to see the system changed, then we all had better do our homework and be prepared to vote in the next general election in November 2012. Remember, the primary election in May will be a closed election. God bless America.

What other U.S. newspapers are saying about ...

... online government information

The Florida Times-Union

One of the best ways to keep government accountable is to provide public information online about how it spends taxpayer money. Promising efforts have been made in recent years to give the public more insights into the operations of a federal government that seems too large to fathom. But groundbreaking federal sites such as USAspending.gov, the IT Dashboard, Data.gov and others designed to enhance transparency are in danger because of a massive budget cut, despite being just a sliver of the federal budget, says the Sunlight Foundation, a non-profit organization that aims to make federal data more accessible.

Sunlight says Congress and President Barack Obama cut the Electronic Government Fund from $34 million in the 2010 fiscal year to $8 million in 2011. There’s talk of more reductions. ...

These times call for frugality, and providing any kind of service to the public should entail doing it as cost efficiently and effectively as possible. But it has taken many years to make inroads on making just a fraction of federal information more accessible on a broader scale. Let’s not close an important door that’s just beginning to open.

... bin Laden photos

The Denver Post

There was little to gain and a lot to lose had the Obama administration decided to release photographs of the bullet-scarred body of Osama bin Laden. We think the president made the right call in withholding them.

In this age of the Internet and WikiLeaks, there are no assurances that the photos will stay under wraps forever.

However, a public release of the photos would be out of step with the objective of the mission the U.S. carried out in hunting down the man so closely connected to the 9/11 terrorist attacks. This was about justice, not revenge. It was about finishing the job, not raising the stakes.

As the president said, such action would be tantamount to an end-zone celebration — spiking the football, as he put it — and it would be untoward.

It’s not just the nature of the photos, which are said to be gruesome. Some have argued that release of the photos would quell conspiracy theorists who might otherwise believe bin Laden had been killed long ago, or remains alive.

Let’s face it, skeptics are never going to be satisfied, photos or not.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Buhl residents already pay hefty property tax

This concerns the Buhl School District’s supplemental levy to be voted on May 17.

I cannot vote for this. We already pay a substantial property tax. With this and the high cost of living (fuel, groceries, etc.), any additional expense would be devastating.

The published information has minimized the cost to the property owners. The monthly cost based on $100,000 evaluation reads good, but the tax on most homes would be much higher.

Our politicians have done their best to dismantle the education system with their cuts and new programs, but will the requests for additional money ever end?

Please vote on this issue. If only a few people vote, these few people are controlling everyone’s tax obligation. ANN SULLIVAN Buhl

School levy is in Buhl residents’ best interests

It is unusual for us to support an increase in taxes or a levy on our property, but we feel it is in the best interest of our community to support the levy for our school district here in Buhl.

This is a one-time levy and all of the money stays right here in our community. Our state has had to make tough choices to keep its fiscal house in order, and it has trickled right down to every one at every level.

We urge everyone to vote on May 17 and encourage you to vote yes on the levy. This is an investment in the future of our community, state and nation. Our children are worth it.

911 tape highlights lost Canadian woman's plight

By Brian Skoloff and John Miller
Associated Press writers

MOUNTAIN CITY, Nev. — Even for 911 operators, the idea that a woman had spent seven weeks in the Nevada wilderness alone in a van and survived was unbelievable.

“She’s been in it for a month?” a clearly incredulous Elko County law enforcement dispatcher said during the emergency call from the hunters who found Rita Chretien, 56, in the stranded vehicle Friday afternoon. The hunters had just ridden nine miles through snow and mud to a remote ranch house to find a phone.

“She says March 19,” replies Chad Herman. “She’s about dead, and her husband took off about a month ago and never came back, so I’m sure he’s dead.”

The 911 tape, released Wednesday to The Associated Press and other media outlets, provides another glimpse of the inhospitable conditions where Chretien was stranded for 48 days — and where searchers are still looking for her husband, Albert Chretien, 59.

Albert Chretien set out on foot in search of help three days after the couple’s van got stuck on a muddy road and hasn’t been seen since.

Rita Chretien stayed with the van, surviving for seven weeks on trail mix, hard candy and water from a nearby stream until the hunters spotted her.

Herman said she had draped colorful blankets from the van’s windows to attract attention. As he told authorities where to find her, a helicopter scrambled into action.

The terrain was so remote, the conditions so difficult, that a sheriff’s sergeant who joined the 911 call wasn’t certain if rescuers on the ground could reach the van. Herman advised them not to come from the Elko side, to the south.

“From where she’s at, toward Elko, is all snowed in and washed out,” Herman said. “We got in on four-wheelers, and we were having a real tough time.”

Herman’s hunting party eventually met the rescue helicopter back near the van. The chopper then whisked Rita Chretien toward a Twin Falls, Idaho, hospital. She remained at the hospital for a few days before being sent home with her family Tuesday for treatment in British Columbia.

On Wednesday, search teams resumed efforts to find any trace of her husband.

“Them mountains are nasty, some of the gnarliest mountains you ever seen,” said Bill Landon, one of only about 20 year-round residents in Mountain City. “The mud up there is something terrible. You sink up to your knees in it. When it rains back there, those roads turn to plum mush.”

Locals such as Landon, who know these mountains well and know they can swallow a man without a trace, don’t even venture into the backcountry in winter, which can sometimes last into May. Tourists in these parts are a rarity until the summer sun dries the earth.

It’s hard to imagine how anyone, let alone outsiders, would attempt the off-road crossing the Chretiens tried, said Mel Basanez, a 74-year-old retired grocery store owner who has lived here most of his life.

“I can’t imagine getting off the highway in this country at that time of year, even this time of year,” Basanez balked, looking up at the peaks that disappear into gray clouds. “The minute the guy got off the highway, he should have realized he’s in trouble. Snow, mud, water, everything up there. It’s no place to be. It’s amazing she survived.”

A team of about 20 on horseback and all-terrain vehicles set out Wednesday to look for Albert Chretien over miles of muck, snow drifts and washed-out roads.

The search also is getting help from at least one airplane, said Sgt. Kevin McK-inney, spokesman for the Elko County Sheriff Department. It was called off Tuesday because of flooding threats and rainy weather.

Search teams were advised to continue scouring terrain from the spot where the Chretiens’ van was found and advance toward Mountain City.

But for locals like Basanez, the landscape simply may have been too treacherous for him to survive.

“Couple of nights out there, 10 below zero, that old boy couldn’t have made it,” Basanez said. “Then you get the wind and the snow. How you gonna survive that?”

The Chretiens were last seen on surveillance video March 19 while stopping for gas in Oregon. It’s not clear where they traveled next or what route they took into the spider web of forest roads that wind across the mountains.

The couple from Penticton, British Columbia, is believed to have turned their 2000 Chevrolet van, equipped only with two-wheel drive, off a highway somewhere in southern Idaho or northeastern Nevada near Mountain City looking for a shortcut to Jackpot, a stop in Nevada on their way to a Las Vegas trade show.

Gov. Mead says wolf talks continue

CHEYENNE — Wyoming Gov. Matt Mead says his administration continues to negotiate with the federal government over how to end federal protections for wolves in the state.

Mead said Wednesday negotiations have intensified over the past few weeks.

Wyoming was left behind when the Obama administration this month lifted Endangered Species Act protections for thousands of gray wolves in other states in the Northern Rockies and elsewhere.

Federal officials and environmentalists long have objected to Wyoming’s plan to allow some wolves to be shot on sight.

Feds convict three on marriage fraud

BOISE — Federal authorities say three men have pleaded guilty to misdemeanors for their roles in a marriage fraud scheme.

Prosecutors say the men took part in sham marriages in 2006 and 2007 with Peruvian women knowing that the marriages were designed to help the women obtain immigration benefits.

The three men convicted in the Blaine County case include 33-year-old Daniel Casado, of Texas, 29-year-old Joshua Lee Bell, of Ketchum, Idaho, and 33-year-old Byron Thomas Bain, of Washington.

Federal documents claim the men did not live with the Ranchers allowed to kill wolves

SALEM — The Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife has issued permits for eight ranchers to kill wolves caught in the act of attacking livestock.

The department said Tuesday that the ranchers are all in range of the Imnaha pack, and have already used non-lethal methods to protect their herds, such as special fences, range riders and removing bone piles.

The Imnaha pack has been blamed for 10 livestock attacks

Judge halts rules that let bison roam

LIVINGSTON — A Park County judge granted temporary restraining orders Wednesday to halt state agencies from allowing bison to roam into parts of Montana from Yellowstone National Park.

The Livingston Enterprise reports District Judge Nels Swandal issued the orders at the request of Park County and the Park County Stockgrowers Association.

The judge says that until further legal proceedings occur, government agencies are prohibited from implementing changes made this spring to a federal-state bison management agreement.

Zions Bank index indicates continued growth

Times-News

Zions Bank is expecting continued economic growth in Idaho and the United States.

The Zions Bank Small Business Index for Idaho was 114.1 in April, down from a revised 114.5 in March. The Index measures business conditions from the viewpoint of the Idaho small business owner or manager.

A lower Index number is associated with less favorable business “conditions” for Idaho’s small businesses.

Although strengthening economic growth is forecasted for the rest of the year, which will benefit Gem State small business, factors tied to the state’s unemployment rate pushed April’s index slightly lower compared to March.

According to a press release, Idaho’s unemployment rate was the “most heavily weighted component of the Zions Bank Small Business Index for Idaho.”

Unemployment was estimated at 9.7 percent, unchanged from the prior month but higher than the 9.0 percent unemployment rate recorded a year ago.

A higher Idaho unemployment rate is a positive for the Index as it implies greater labor availability for Idaho’s small businesses but other associated factors typically tied to a higher unemployment rate, such as lesser job creation, lesser income gains and lower retail sales, pull the Index lower.

The Idaho jobless rate averaged 9.3 percent in 2010, 7.7 percent in 2009, 4.7 percent in 2008, 2.9 percent in 2007 and 3.0 percent in and 2007.

By comparison, the Idaho jobless rate averaged 5.2 percent between 1990 and 2005.

On the national front, Zions is expecting economic improvement after sluggish first quarter growth of 1.8 percent, following fourth quarter growth in 2010 of 3.1 percent.

Making forecasting difficult, the report notes, are “major unknowns” surrounding oil price volatility, European sovereign debt anxieties and U.S. government spending the countries debt ceiling.

Nonetheless, most forecasters see first quarter economic weakness as an aberration, tied to higher energy prices and poor weather.

Growth is expected to return to a 3 percent to 3.5 percent annual rate in coming quarters, with some forecasts suggesting even stronger gains.

The Federal Reserve reduced its own forecast of 2011 U.S. economic growth to a 3.1 percent to 3.3 percent real rate, down from the 3.4 percent to 3.9 percent forecast range announced last January.

Pew Trust finds positive results from credit card law

By Eileen AJ Connelly
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — Banks and some pundits had predicted that credit card users would face skyrocketing interest rates, a spike in annual fees and a plethora of other negatives after stringent new rules on cards kicked in last year.

That is not what happened, according to a new look at the policies associated with credit cards issued by major banks and credit unions. The Pew Charitable Trusts Safe Credit Cards Project found instead that interest rates are steady with those charged last year, while most fees have dropped.

The stabilization of interest rates is key, because banks sharply raised rates in 2009 following the law’s passage but before its implementation.

“Whatever increases in advertised interest rates we saw going into 2010 have not continued into 2011,” said Nick Bourke, director of the Safe Credit Cards Project.

Median advertised interest rates for purchases on cards issued by banks are ranging from 12.99 percent to 20.99 percent, depending on a customer’s credit history, according to the Pew study being released Tuesday. Credit union rates increased slightly from last year to between 9.99 percent and 17 percent. Penalty interest rates charged to those who make late payments, and cash advance interest rates have also held steady.

One caveat the study doesn’t address, however, is that most credit cards now carry variable rates, so if the prime rate starts to rise, that would lead to consumers paying higher rates on their cards.

After examining credit card offers made in January compared with those of prior years, Pew also found that transaction surcharges for cash advances, balance transfers and international purchases changed only slightly. The study reviewed offers from the 12 largest banks and 12 largest credit union card issuers. Together those institutions control more than 90 percent of the outstanding

Dairy industry sets goal for digester energy production

PARTNERSHIP OBJECTIVES

The Innovation Center for U.S. Dairy, the Dairy Research Institute and Idaho’s Center for Advanced Energy Studies (CAES) are working to develop a national research program focused on enhancing the economic viability of dairy farms and rural communities.

The agreement outlines the following key partnership objectives:

- Collect baseline data on nutrient and manure management practices to assist in the identification of best practices for dairy farms
- Identify opportunities for dairy farms of all sizes to increase renewable energy production through anaerobic digesters, gasification and composting
- Research best management practices for farm-based renewable energy production on small, medium and large farms
- Analyze the U.S. utility grid infrastructure, electric rates and renewable energy incentives applicable to dairy farm operations
- Identify opportunities to increase funding of national research on sustainable dairy practices, manure management, substrates, renewable energy technologies and smart grid applications
- Facilitate technology-based economic development

By Blair Koch
Times-News writer

On Wednesday, The Innovation Center for U.S. Dairy, the Dairy Research Institute and Idaho’s Center for Advanced Energy Studies (CAES) announced plans to have 1,300 anaerobic digesters operating across the country by 2020.

The Center for Advanced Energy Studies, based in Idaho Falls, includes the U.S. Department of Energy, Idaho National Laboratory and Idaho’s research universities.

The focus is on increasing the economic viability of dairy farms and rural communities country wide.

“This is really good news, not only for the dairy industry but for the citizens of Idaho as well,” said Bob Naerebout, Idaho Dairy-men’s Association executive director. “Seeing this initiative through will substantially reduce our industry’s carbon footprint.”

INL Director of Education Programs Melinda Hamilton, also the Bioenergy Initiative Lead Center for Advanced Energy Studies, said bringing together many stakeholders will help address how to convert animal and farm waste into biofuels in a cost effective and efficient manner.

“Bringing more entities together means we’ll be able

Tips to improve retirement

Too many people end up scrambling to make ends meet during their golden years.

Here are some ways to keep difficulties at bay, before it’s too late:

- Save more. Consult with a financial adviser or an online retirement calculator to measure future needs.
- If married, each partner should contribute to a separate IRA. Relying on just one retirement account is risky.
- Invest aggressively. Investing in a diverse array of stocks provides the best bet for growing a nest egg. Bonds and certificates of deposit typically grow at lower rates and inflation can erode their value.
- You need a support system. Explore community resources and social networks. Building connections can support people living alone.
- Plan ahead for long term care. Many people can not afford long term care once it’s needed so consider getting a policy in your 50s and early 60s to help cover costs. Explore options at www.longtermcare.gov, the National Clearinghouse for Long-Term Care Information website.
- Seek good advise. Instead of relying on friends and family establish a relationship with a professional.

Where to look for your first employee?

NEW YORK — You’ve decided to hire your first employee. But where do you go to find the best candidate?

There are several traditional ways: posting the job online, or contacting an employment agency or school. All these methods have pros and cons.

You might find, though, the best way to find an employee is by asking around. Tell business associates, family and friends that you want to hire a staffer. Chances are, someone you talk to knows somebody who’s looking for work.

SMALL TALK
Joyce M. Rosenberg

ONLINE JOB SITES

If you’re comfortable working online, you’ll probably find it easy to post your job opening on local or nationwide sites. You’ll need to create an account and pay a fee. Fees can differ dramatically from one site to another — for example, $25 to $100. How much you spend may depend on how many postings you have — the more openings you post, the less you pay for each.

The hard part, though, is going through potentially hundreds of resumes and trying to decide which candidates to pursue. This can be very time consuming, especially since some people apply for jobs they aren’t suited for.

You’ll also need to do some investigating when you start choosing candidates to interview and possibly hire. Depending on the nature of the position you may want to request background and credit checks in addition to talking to their references.

EMPLOYMENT AGENCIES

Using an employment agency can be expensive, sometimes thousands of dollars. But the services you get in return for that investment will save you a lot of time and effort.

An agency will interview candidates and then send you those who look like they might be a good fit. If necessary, the agency may handle

Gingrich announces he will run for president

ATLANTA (AP) — Republican Newt Gingrich said Wednesday he's running for president because his experience has prepared him to return America "to hope and opportunity."

In a post on Twitter Wednesday, the former House speaker made official what has been an open secret for months: "Today I am announcing my candidacy for president of the United States."

In a YouTube video, Gingrich assures viewers, "There's a much better American future ahead with more jobs more prosperity, a better health system, longer lives, greater independent living and a country that is decentralized under the 10th Amendment with power once again back with the American people and away from the Washington bureaucracy."

He cites his work with President Ronald Reagan and his time as speaker of the House when he says he led the fight to balance the budget, cut spending and reform welfare.

"We've done it before. We can do it again," Gingrich said in the two-minute on-line video.

Gingrich struck a combative tone, too, saying at one point: "There are some people who don't mind if America becomes a wreck as long as they dominate the wreckage." He also said, "We Americans are going to have to talk together, work together, find solutions together and insist on imposing those solutions on the forces that don't want to change."

In an interview on Fox

News, Gingrich came out swinging against President Barack Obama, accusing the Democrat of using "scare tactics" to attack Republican Rep. Paul Ryan's budget proposal and GOP views on immigration reform.

"President Obama should be ashamed of himself," Gingrich said. He assailed Obama's foreign policy as "a very, very discouraging mess" and labeled his energy policy "anti-American."

Gingrich, 67, said that in the 12 years that have passed since he last held office he's become "more mature."

"I've had time to reflect on what worked and what didn't work," he said.

The Fox News interview was the start of a media blitz. He'll speak to the Georgia Republican Party Convention in Macon on Friday night, appear on NBC's "Meet the Press" on Sunday and barnstorm through Iowa next week.

Gingrich had been publicly flirting with the race for months and sparked stories about his candidacy days before the official announcement.

Gingrich spearheaded the GOP takeover of the House in 1994, the first time Republicans controlled the chamber in four decades.

Mississippi River washes over Delta neighborhoods

By Stephen Ceasar
Los Angeles Times writer

LOS ANGELES — The rain-swollen Mississippi River inundated evacuated neighborhoods in the Delta on Wednesday and washed away precious crops, as residents farther downstream prepared for the looming floodwaters.

After cresting at 47.8 feet Tuesday in Memphis, Tenn., the river's high waters moved south, reaching 58 feet and growing in Natchez, Miss., according to the National Weather Service. The river is expected to crest there at 64 feet on May 21.

Across Mississippi, about 1,000 structures have been hit by floodwaters and officials expect to evacuate between 2,000 and 5,000 people in coming days. Sixteen casinos along the river were closed and three are expected to close later in the week, leaving 13,000 employees out of work and costing state and local governments between $12 million and $13 million in taxes per month, according to the Mississippi Gaming Commission.

In Vicksburg, Miss., 65 homes were underwater, displacing about 250 people, said Deputy Chief Mitchell Dent of the Vicksburg Police department. Crews used bulldozers and dump trucks to fortify levees ahead of incoming floodwaters, as law enforcement patrolled flooded neighborhoods in boats, said Mayor Paul E. Winfield.

"We're making sure we do all that we can to prepare residents," Winfield said. "We're going to get through this."

The river is expected to crest there at 57.5 feet on May 19, about 1.5 feet above the record crest of 1927, according to the Army Corps of Engineers.

Despite better April, federal budget deficit to exceed $1T

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is taking in more tax revenue as the economy improves, but not nearly enough to keep the federal budget deficit from exceeding $1 trillion for a third straight year.

The deficit for April dropped to $40.5 billion, half the imbalance from the same month last year, the Treasury Department said Wednesday. Tax receipts were up 45 percent last month compared to the same month one year ago.

Still, the deficit is on pace to grow to $1.4 trillion in this budget year, according to the Congressional Budget Office. That would be greater than last year's $1.29 trillion deficit and nearly match the record $1.41 trillion deficit hit in 2009.

Through the first seven months of the budget year, the deficit has totaled $869.9 billion — a figure that just three years ago would have ranked as the highest ever for a full year.

Soaring deficits are putting pressure on Congress and President Barack Obama to agree on a long-term plan to trim federal spending.

The White House and Democrats want to trim the deficit through spending cuts and also by ending tax cuts for the wealthy, which were first passed when President George W. Bush was in office and later extended by Obama.

Republicans reject that approach, saying it amounts to a tax increase. Their plan would focus exclusively on cutting spending. They have also proposed further tax cuts for the wealthiest Americans.

Giving game fish a sporting chance

Fish and Game goes 'electrofishing' to clear carp from Hagerman ponds

Story by Andrew Weeks, Times-News writer
Photos by Ashley Smith, Times-News photographer

HAGERMAN — The morning sun beat down on the small watercraft as the hum of the boat's engine idled behind us.

It wasn't until later that I realized how hot I felt in the rubber boots, coveralls and gloves I was wearing to protect myself from electric shock. At the time, however, I was focused on looking for carp.

"There's one," said Alissa Miller, pointing to a fish floating in the water. She was standing to my left at the bow of the boat.

I extended my net, reaching for the fish. A few seconds later, I brought the net inside the boat and dropped the carp — the first catch of the day — into the livewell and then looked up for reassurance that I had done my job well. Scott Stanton, who was driving the boat, smiled. I guess I did OK.

Four of us — Stanton, Miller, Times-News photographer Ashley Smith and myself — were on Anderson Pond No. 2 on May 5 in Hagerman, removing carp from the pond in an effort to help bass and other sport fish better compete for the pond's resources.

Instead of using regular tackle, our bait was 4 to 6 amps of electricity.

The Idaho Department of Fish and Game has been removing carp from the four waters known as Anderson Ponds since early this year, hoping to reduce their numbers in the waters traditionally known as sport fisheries.

Carp, often called a trash fish, have become numerous in the ponds. It's not known how the fish got there, Stanton said, but if something isn't done they'd take over the ponds and reduce the number of other fish.

"We see invasions of carp in a lot of different areas," he said. "We don't sometimes know how they get there. They're just so prolific that when they do get there their population really blossoms."

Fish and Game uses different methods to retrieve the fish, and electrofishing is only one.

Two spindly, claw-like hands — called "spiders" or "skirts" — are put into the water on either side of the boat. An electrical charge is delivered by a generator that sits near the helm, through the spiders and into the water in about a 7-foot diameter. Fish unlucky enough to be caught in the charge are temporarily paralyzed and float to the surface.

That's when we netted the carp.

"Electrofishing is a form of bio-sampling that we use," Stanton said. "But it's proven to be only 15 to 20 percent efficient on fisheries."

That's partly because of the netters, according to Miller, a fisheries technician. "We don't net every fish." But, she said, "this is fun."

May 5 was the last day this season department personnel planned to electrofish on the pond. After a while, they switch to other methods to retrieve carp because the fish become smart to their tactics, Stanton said.

Electrofishing so far has been conducted on Anderson Pond Nos. 1, 2 and 4. They've had most success on No. 4, he said, where they've retrieved about 95 percent of the carp.

The next tactic will be live trapping, Stanton said.

Back on shore, Regional Supervisor Jerome Hansen and Regional Fisheries Manager Doug Megargle, who, along with District Conservation Officer Michael Stoddard, had been awaiting our return, counted, carried and cut the fish, showing us some of their egg sacks. The eggs looked like a pile of fine soil.

"You can see why carp are so prolific. Imagine if all those eggs were to hatch," Megargle said. "If we're putting food into carp, it takes away the food from desirable sport fish."

Most of the carp caught were going to be donated to an area business where they'd be turned into cat food. Some of them were cleaned and turned into filets.

With the sun climbing higher in the sky, Smith and I, both smelling a little like fish, wrestled out of our rubber suits as Miller and Stanton prepared to go again onto the pond. This time, Megargle was going with them.

By day's end, they had netted 124 carp on pond

No. 2 — 30 while Smith and I were on the boat. A good showing, Stanton said, but they have a ways to go. According to population estimates, he said, there's between 1,500 and 2,400 carp in the pond.

"I'm glad we're taking some aggressive action on the carp," Hansen said. "They're prolific little buggers. We're all about making fisheries better, and these strides are steps in the right direction."

White water created by blowout adds risk to Salmon River

By Eric Barker
The Lewiston Tribune

LEWISTON — The few boaters who have run the brand-new rapid on the main Salmon River say it's an impressive drop that could change the nature of the river.

If the coming high water of spring doesn't rearrange the rocks that created the rapid, it will make passage difficult for power boaters in low water and add a degree of risk for rafters.

Jet boater Gerard Poxleitner of Cottonwood is believed to be the first person to run the rapid.

"It's going to be a very dangerous rapid for power boaters and for rafters," he said.

He and Brett Dayton of Moscow ran the river to take a look at the rapid April 9, shortly after they heard of its existence. Poxleitner said they spent a lot of time looking at it before deciding to give it a try. The rapid has a big drop, perhaps 10 feet.

"The pictures don't do it any justice," he said. "It has three great big rollers at the bottom and the climb is really steep at the top."

The rapid, about 20 miles downstream of the Corn Creek boat launch, was created April 1 when a blowout flood barreled down Black Creek and dumped tons of boulders, trees and other detritus into the river. The debris created a pinch point and drop, and also backed up the river behind the rapid so much that it swallowed Salmon Falls — a Class III rapid. The storm also spit trees into the river and created a log jam downstream of the rapid. U.S. Forest Service officials expect the log jam will be pushed out by high water but they don't know how much the rapid might change.

Jim O'Connor of the nearby Arctic Creek Lodge also ran the rapid that he calls Ruby Falls and came away both impressed and worried.

"There is no other rapid I have run that I was scared of after I ran it," he said. "It's a big drop."

O'Connor routinely runs from Spring Bar upriver of Riggins to his lodge on the main Salmon River above the new rapid. During the fall, he runs fishing trips and most of his good steelhead water is below the rapid. On a busy fishing day he will run past the spot the rapid now sits two to three times a day.

"If it doesn't wash out a little bit in there, it's a serious problem for me. I have my lodge just above there and I do all my fishing below there."

Poxleitner said the practice of jet backs, where rafters float the river from Corn Creek to the takeout at Vinegar and then get a jet boat trip back upriver, might not be possible. He would prefer if Mother Nature swept the rocks and debris away and Salmon Falls returned.

"I hope it leaves. I hope it washes downriver."

Wayne Fairchild, owner of the Missoula, Mont.-based Lewis and Clark Trail Adventures ran a guide-training trip on the river in late April and confirmed the rapid is impressive. He said it likely rates as a Class IV but it has a slow approach, giving rafters time to line up for the drop.

"There is definitely a line in there and some holes you kind of have to miss," he said.

The virtues of fishing

F&G officer: Idaho a great place to get kids hooked

By Andrew Weeks
Times-News writer

Fishing is used as a recreation sport and leisurely pastime. It's often a great way to spend time together as a family, and tests your patience and skill.

But fishing also is used as a teaching tool, perhaps first and foremost giving young ones the chance to experience and appreciate the outdoors.

Doug Megargle, regional fisheries manager with the Idaho Department of Fish and Game, answered questions from the Times-News about kids and fishing.

"I love making children aware of how lucky they are to live where they live and show them why," he said.

Question: Like many people, fishing has been a favorite pastime of mine since childhood. I have fond memories going fishing with my dad, and today enjoy taking my own son fishing. Are there certain things that you recommend when teaching a child to fish?

Answer: If possible start young. Statistics show those children exposed to outdoor activities as young children will likely embrace those activities as adults.

Make it positive: Assuming you're starting out the family fishing adventures with a younger child (ages 3-4), I would recommend you keep it simple, short and fun.

You want to make the first ever fishing trips memorable and positive, so try to avoid long road trips, miserable weather, complicated fishing techniques, etc. Keep your fishing trips short and appropriate to the attention span of the child. Even if fishing is good, change up the pace a bit — take breaks, throw rocks, look for frogs, pick up trash; it's all equally cool with young children.

Make a big deal about giving them their first fishing rod and tackle box. There is something magical to kids about going fishing and using their very own stuff.

Remember, going fishing is simply spending some quality time with your children outdoors.

Avoid the negative: Even if you're a die-hard angler yourself, remember the trip is about them and not you. Don't over-teach or push the kids too hard to bait their own hook or gut their first fish if they're showing a reluctance to do so. I've often seen young children instantly lose interest if their adult fishing partner gets frustrated if the child can't cast right (even after repeated demonstrations), can't hook a nibbling bluegill, drags a hooked fish into the weeds instead of shore, walks away from the fishing rod, etc.

Don't take (i.e. grab) the fishing rod away from your child to show them the right way to hook a fish or land the big one. Allow them to make mistakes and allow them the opportunity to get determined not to miss the next one.

Q: It seems that most fly anglers are adults. When is a good time to teach a kid to fly fish?

A: Some may argue this point, but it's my opinion that fly fishing is not something you want to start too young. Fly fishing can be a lot more technical than bait and lure fishing. Also, it tends to be a bit more expensive to start fly fishing (flies, fly line, reels, rods, waders, leaders, polarized sunglasses, etc.), so I'd recommend you get your child interested in the "fishing experience" first and then see if they'd like to try fly fishing.

"It always amazes me how I feel when I see a 4-year-old catch his or her first fish. My other favorite is the teenager's 'I'm not going to show anyone I'm having fun' smile they try desperately, but unsuccessfully, to hide. The smile reminds me why I do what I do."

Fly fishing typically requires the angler to be wading in streams, which requires some serious physical exertion, coordination and concentration. If I were to throw out an age where most children can begin tackling the art of fly fishing, I'd say between 12 and 14 years old.

Q. Where are the best places in the region to fly fish before the official season kicks off?

A: I'd recommend Dierkes Lake, Magic Reservoir, Salmon Falls Creek Reservoir, Roseworth Reservoir, Little Camas Reservoir, Rock Creek, Oster Lakes, Riley Pond (Hagerman WMA) and Filer Ponds.

Most of these fisheries are stocked by IDFG and have already been stocked this year. You can also see where we've stocked this year by going to the IDFG website, selecting the fishing page and choosing "stocking records". We also try to post general fishing conditions on the web under "fishing reports".

So, my recommendations are those fisheries currently open.

Sometimes it's best to find a small urban pond with a lot of room for your first few fly-fishing adventures. For streams, I recommend Rock Creek, lower Malad River, Little Wood River and the South Fork Boise River.

Most of these streams will become hard to fish when the mountain snows start to melt. I'd also recommend Filer Ponds, Dierkes Lake, Oster Lakes (Hagerman WMA), Anderson Ponds and Lake Cleveland.

I'd also recommend folks visit the IDFG website and click on the "Idaho Fishing Planner," which helps the angler plan their fishing trip (<http://fishandgame.idaho.gov/>). Folks can view recommended fisheries or search for bass fisheries within 30 miles of Twin Falls and view a map of the area.

Q. How about bait fishing? Where are some good places for that?

A: I'd recommend Dierkes Lake, Magic Reservoir, Salmon Falls Creek Reservoir, Roseworth Reservoir, Little Camas Reservoir, Rock Creek, Oster Lakes, Riley Pond (Hagerman WMA) and Filer Ponds.

Most of these fisheries are stocked by IDFG and have already been stocked this year. You can also see where we've stocked this year by going to the IDFG website, selecting the fishing page and choosing "stocking records". We also try to post general fishing conditions on the web under "fishing reports".

Q. Besides trout, what is the best types of fish for young ones to catch?

A: When I think of young children and fishing, I think of bluegill, bass and stocked trout.

Some places to find bluegill include Oster Lakes, Dierkes Lake, Anderson Ponds, West Highway Pond, Bruneau Dunes Ponds and Carey Lake.

Q. What, in your opinion, is the best thing about teaching a child to fish?

A: First and foremost, it's the smiles. It always amazes me how I feel when I see a 4-year-old catch his or her first fish.

My other favorite is the teenager's "I'm not going to show anyone I'm having fun smile" they try desperately, but unsuccessfully, to hide. The smile reminds me why I do what I do.

Also, a good friend of mine, who has older children now, once told me his success to having a good relationship with his children were fishing trips. He said he bonded more and had more meaningful conversations with his children when they were alone, without distractions, privately enjoying the day together.

Lastly, I love making children aware of how lucky they are to live where they live and show them why. It's an Idaho heritage I'm passing on.

Four steps can ensure success of application for controlled hunt

Question: "Last year I had a problem with my controlled-hunt application. I thought I applied for a deer hunt in one unit but it showed up for a different hunt on the application receipt I received from the vendor. What should I do if this happens again this year?"

Answer: The controlled-hunt application period is a chaotic time of the year for many vendors and anxious big game hunters. Many hunters have found it difficult and frustrating to deal with the application period, mostly because of miscommunication with the vendor entering the application.

In the end it's not the vendor's responsibility, it is the hunter's responsibility to make sure their controlled hunt application is entered correctly into the drawing.

Here are suggestions to help sportsmen with the controlled-hunt application process:

1. Read the regulation brochure, either an electronic version on the department's website or a hard copy available free from all vendors.

This sounds simple but many individuals don't realize there are changes that occur from year to year. Hunt numbers, season dates, and exceptions vary from year to year. Doing a little homework before showing up at your local vendor can make your application for that prized controlled hunt a lot smoother.

2. Use the controlled hunt worksheet.

This worksheet can be found in the Big Game Regulations brochure. Use this worksheet to speed up the application process. Fill in the blanks with your hunting license and controlled hunt number and take this to your local vendor so they can accurately and efficiently enter your application.

ASK THE OFFICER
Gary Hompland

3. Double-check your application.

While at the vendor make sure the clerk understands which hunt you are applying for. When they hand you your application receipt double-check the hunt number, big game unit, dates and license number before you leave. Make sure the applicant or applicants in the group are all correct on the application, because transposed numbers may result in an application for someone else or a rejected application.

If you notice a mistake, the vendor can immediately cancel the application, make necessary corrections and re-enter the application. If you notice errors at a later time or wait to make changes, you must go to your local regional office to cancel the original application.

At this later time, you will be charged a second application fee of $6.25 for Idaho residents, $14.75 for non-residents. Ultimately, it is your responsibility to make sure your application is correct.

4. Don't wait.

Procrastination is a human condition. Every year the rush at the end of the application period is especially chaotic. If possible, don't wait until the last few days to put in for your application. The application period extends from 1 May through June 5.

Observatory to reopen near Mount St. Helens

By Tom Paulu
The Daily News

LONGVIEW, Wash. — From whatever direction visitors gaze at Mount St. Helens this summer, they'll be able to soak up more information along with the volcano views.

When the Johnston Ridge Observatory opens for the season on Saturday, the displays will include new movies and touch screen kiosks, which will also be installed elsewhere around the peak as part of $1.6 million worth of improvements.

New informational signs are going up at several locations, replacing ones that have faded. By mid-July, the JRO's new 200-seat amphitheater is scheduled to open next to the visitor center at the east end of Spirit Lake Memorial Highway.

Representatives of the U.S. Forest Service and the nonprofit Mount St. Helens Institute, which offers educational programs at the peak, discussed the new tourist attractions Tuesday at the Cowlitz County Historical Museum.

The center of attention was a touch-screen "Return to Life" kiosk loaded with hundreds of photos and videos. Visitors can touch on a location on the main screen to access a science lesson from a Mount St. Helens expert.

"We're trying to bring the three decades of biology research to the exhibits," said Peter Frenzen, a scientist with the Mount St. Helens National Volcanic Monument.

The Forest Service filmed researchers who gathered at the peak last summer to mark the 30th anniversary of the volcano's most recent major eruption in 1980.

"It was the cream of the crop of St. Helens scientists," Frenzen said. The scientists provided hundreds of photos, and the Forest Service also got footage from an Austrian film, "Life from Zero," filmed for the 30th anniversary.

Bike Week ready to roll into Sandpoint

Bonner County Daily Bee

SANDPOINT — It's time to kick off the bicycling season in Sandpoint with the Fourth Annual Sandpoint Bike Week in May, when the days are long and the weather smiles on two-wheel transit.

Sandpoint Bike Week is a series of events rolled into one week of family fun designed to encourage and celebrate cycling for recreation and as a means of transportation.

This year's events include Bike to Work and Bike to School Day, a Bike Swap, a Ride of Silence and the screening of "Ride the Divide" at the Panida Theater. All events are free.

Organized by Pend Oreille Pedalers bike club, Sandpoint's annual event began with Bike to Work Day in 2007 when about 250 riders rode to work. In 2008, the folks behind that initial event decided to expand the fun to a full week of cycling activities and Bike Week was born.

Here's a rundown of this year's events:

- Sunday, May 15: Bike Swap — From 1-3 p.m. at Sandpoint West Athletic Club. Trade, shop, consult with mechanics, learn bike safety and much more. As with all swaps, the best deals are had early. Drop off your gear to sell that morning, from 9 to 11 a.m.

- Wednesday, May 18: Bike to School Day and Bike to Work Day — Don your helmet and ride your bike to school or work. Stop by one of four aid stations to pick up free goodies, and enter a free raffle to win great prizes, to be awarded at the Panida Theater Friday night.

Grand prizes are a new wheel-set for adults and a $50 gift certificate at a local bike shop for kids. All students who ride their bikes to school will get a prize. Bike Week T-shirts will be on sale for $10.

- Wednesday, May 18: Ride of Silence — Begins at 6 p.m. after meeting at City Beach Park. Join other cyclists in a silent slow-paced ride in honor of those who have been injured or killed while cycling on public roadways. The ride is part of a worldwide share-the-road campaign. Route is less than 10 miles in length. Must wear a helmet. All bikes welcome.

- Saturday, May 21: "Ride the Divide" — A cycling movie at the Panida Theater, with free admission. Doors open at 6:30 and the movie starts at 7:30 p.m. The film follows the experiences of three bikers as they race 2,700 miles and climb more than 200,000 feet from Banff, Canada, to a small, dusty crossing on the Mexican border along the Continental Divide Trail.

Dominos pizza, Laughing Dog beer and Pend d'Oreille wine will be for sale. Raffle prizes will be awarded after the movie (need not be present to win).

NETWORKING IN THE DUNES

Linda Gladman of Boise uses Wi-Fi at Bruneau Dunes State Park to keep in contact with family members while enjoying the outdoors at the park.

Idaho parks now serving wireless crowd

By Pete Zimowsky
The Idaho Statesman

BOISE — You can reach out and touch the sand dunes at Bruneau Dunes State Park, or you can reach out and touch relatives anywhere on Earth.

Thanks to Wi-Fi at Bruneau Dunes and 13 other Idaho state parks, campers can connect with nature and their families and offices. The first 20 minutes of Internet access are free, then there's a daily fee.

For Linda and Bob Gladman of Boise, Wi-Fi at the park this spring was a convenience that allowed them to not only enjoy the dunes, bird watching and paddling on the park's lakes, but also keep in touch with family members.

"I'm checking in with my daughter every morning," said Linda Gladman as she powered up her laptop on the table of their camp trailer to check email.

While she sent messages on the computer, right out the window of the camper were the beige-gray sand dunes highlighted against a blue sky.

More Idaho parks could get Wi-Fi this year, said Neil Neiwert, president of BlueMesh Networks of Meridian, the firm providing Wi-Fi to state parks. Idaho has 30 parks.

You'd think campers would want to get away from it all when camping. Not so.

Internet access is attracting people to state parks and keeping them there longer.

"People who use the Wi-Fi network are able to extend a two-day weekend stay at an Idaho park location into a three- or four-day stay by checking into the office on Friday and Monday via email," Neiwert said. "I have heard many positive comments."

Would you rather work surrounded by magnificent pine trees and views of Payette Lake at Ponderosa State Park or at your Downtown office?

"Making Wi-Fi available within our parks is in response to customer feedback," said Jennifer Blazek, communications manager at Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation.

Posting on Facebook is one of the most popular uses of Wi-Fi among campers, but they also are using it for email, geocaching, banking (for people who live on the road) and keeping in touch with family and friends.

You can immediately post on Facebook that you made it to the top of the big dunes at Bruneau Dunes or caught some bluegill in the park's lakes.

Google Earth is a popular application for campers to conveniently map out routes to local areas for sightseeing.

The availability of Wi-Fi makes a big impression on travelers and campers.

There have been some cases in which volunteers decided not to stay and work at an Idaho state park because there was no Internet access, Blazek said.

State parks' Wi-Fi project is a joint venture of the Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation and BlueMesh Networks, an Idaho company that manufactures Wi-Fi networking equipment used in outdoor hospitality applications throughout the United States and Canada.

BlueMesh Networks provided all the equipment necessary for Internet connections in Idaho's state parks with no up-front cost to the state.

Turkey season rejuvenates 77-year-old hunter

By Brent Frazee
McClatchy Newspapers

WARSAW, Mo. — Ken Just knows where to go when he is in search of his version of the fountain of youth.

Each spring, Just, 77, makes the long trip from his home in northern Minnesota to the woods near Truman Lake in west-central Missouri.

There, he meets up with guide Steve Stokes, and the thrill of Missouri turkey hunting helps him rediscover his youth.

"When I pick him up every year, he tells me about his health problems," Stokes said. "One year it was eye surgery. This year, he told me he had a new knee and he wasn't getting around too good."

"But I get him out in the woods, and there's no problem. He's always excited and ready to go."

Just laughed and acknowledged the healing powers of turkey hunting.

"This turkey hunting gets in your blood," he said. "Coming out of a long winter, you always have some aches and pains. And this year, I had knee replacement surgery, and I'm still recovering from that.

"But I get down here, and I forget about all of that. This turkey hunting keeps me going."

A hunt in late April — opening day of the Missouri turkey season — only heightened Just's passion.

As he and Stokes walked down an old logging road on a ridge, they heard the booming gobbles of a tom still on the roost.

They settled into a blind, and prepared for the show.

The tom kept gobbling loudly until it flew down from the roost tree. That's when Stokes went to work.

"I have to get his interest before the hen flies down," he said. "Once she's on the ground, it's over."

"He'll go off with her."

Stokes proceeded to use a series of yelps and cuts to imitate a lovesick hen. And the gobbler immediately responded.

He puffed up, fanned out and began coming in. The bird headed for the decoy in full strut, zig-zagging toward the hunters.

When the turkey was about 25 yards out, Just pulled the trigger. Moments later, he was celebrating another memorable moment in the Missouri turkey woods.

"I've hunted with Steve for 11 years now, and I've taken birds in eight of those years," he said as tagged his turkey. "But this is the best one yet."

"This was a classic turkey hunt. That bird really put on a show."

Stokes glanced at his watch and smiled.

"Seven minutes," he said. "That's how long the season has been open and you already have a bird."

"That's not a bad deal."

Stokes later weighed the bird at just over 20 pounds. Then he slung it over his shoulder and carried it out of the woods for Just.

A twin star for Roman goddesses

Ever since Jupiter's egress from the evening sky at the end of March, Saturn has been the lone naked-eye planet in the night sky. As the slowest moving planet, it is currently trudging through Virgo, the largest zodiac constellation.

Since the end of January, Saturn's nearest visual companion has been Porrima, Virgo's second brightest star. Porrima is the Latin name for a mythological figure also known as Antevorta. Together with her sister, Postvorta, they were the goddesses of the future and past, respectively, and protectors of expectant mothers.

What the ancients couldn't have known is that Porrima really is a pair of close sisters. Porrima is a binary pair of stars who dance around each other every 169 years. Because Porrima is close (only 31 light years away) a backyard telescope can separate the stellar siblings. And they move quickly enough that they shift noticeably from one year to the next.

The sisters are, as best as we can measure, near-identical twins. Both are white, hydrogen fusing stars with surface temperatures of 12,000 degrees Fahrenheit (2000 degrees hotter than the sun). Each is about 40 percent heavier than the sun, four times as luminous, and 20 percent wider. Their mutual orbits are elongated, bringing them close together (as they were in 2005), then wide apart eight decades later.

To find Porrima, first locate Saturn, the medium-bright, pale-yellow object in the south-southeast at 10 p.m. Porrima is dimmer, above and to the right of Saturn by less than the width of your pinkie at arm's length. If you have a telescope, see if you can separate Porrima's sister stars at high power. And while you're at it, swing down to Saturn to enjoy its spectacular rings.

Trail riders to clean up Hagerman hills

If you ride dirt bikes or all-terrain vehicles in Hagerman, you might want to join the Magic Valley Trail Machine Association from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, when the group will be picking up trash on Bureau of Land Management property in the area.

This is the first clean-up activity the group has held in Hagerman but hopefully it won't be the last, said club member Mike Starry. Anyone who rides is welcome to join.

Information: Starry at 731-4039.

American Falls, on Lake Channel Road.

Proceeds raised at the event will benefit TU's work in Idaho.

This is the second year TU is using the annual event as a fundraiser.

Last year, despite inclement weather, anglers pulled almost 200 pounds of carp out of the river, and the event raised more than $1,000.

The tournament begins at 10 a.m., with teams of two hitting the water armed with a fly rod. Admission is $150 per team.

Anglers will compete for such prizes as a one-day float of the South Fork of the Snake River, courtesy of South Fork Outfitters; a hosted day of backcountry tenkara fly fishing; RIO fly lines, Morningstar Lanyards; a signed James Prosek limited-edition print; and a $100 Carhartt gift certificate.

Start stocking up on firewood this month

Though winter is still a few months away, you can stock up on firewood beginning this month.

Firewood permits (or personal forest product permits) for the Minidoka and Fairfield Ranger districts in the Sawtooth National Forest will be issued beginning May 20. Permits for the Payette and Boise National Forests will go on sale Sunday.

Permits are $12.50 per cord with a 2-cord minimum and a 10-cord maximum per household.

Firewood cutting in the northern Sawtooth NF, specifically the Ketchum Ranger District and Sawtooth NRA, will be delayed until the end of May or beginning of June.

Call the Sawtooth NRA at 727-5000 to check snowmelt and road conditions in these areas. Early season wood cutters should avoid wet roads if getting stuck is a possibility.

Sawtooth National Forest vendors are Rock Creek General Store, Hansen; Camas Creek Country Store, Fairfield.

More information at district offices: Minidoka, 678-0430; Ketchum, 622-5371; Fairfield, 764-3202; Sawtooth National Recreation Area, 727-5013; Stanley, 774-3000; Sawtooth Supervisor's Office, 737-3200.

Question: I was seriously injured in a car wreck last year and because I haven't been able to work I have no choice but to file bankruptcy. I'm suing the other driver and my lawyer says I can expect a sizeable settlement. Will the settlement have any effect on my bankruptcy?"

Answer: When you file a bankruptcy, all your assets become part of your bankruptcy estate. You can keep the assets if they are exempt under Idaho law. Your lawsuit and potential settlement would become part of your bankruptcy estate, and the bankruptcy trustee would take your place in prosecuting the lawsuit. From the settlement, you would be allowed to keep amounts necessary for continuing medical care and for medical appliances in addition to amounts reasonably necessary for your support and the support of your dependents. You would probably not get to keep amounts paid for pain & suffering and emotional distress. Worse yet, the trustee would probably settle for less than you would want. You AND your injury lawyer should consult with an experienced bankruptcy attorney before proceeding.

Bin Laden’s records show he held reins

Personal journal, documents shatter conventional view

Kimberly Dozier
 Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Deep in hiding, his terror organization becoming battered and fragmented, Osama bin Laden kept pressing followers to find new ways to hit the U.S., officials say, citing his private journal and other documents recovered in last week’s raid.

Strike smaller cities, bin Laden suggested. Target trains as well as planes. If possible, strike on significant dates, such as the Fourth of July and the 10th anniversary of the attacks of Sept. 11, 2001. Above all, kill as many Americans as possible in a single attack.

Though he was out of the public eye and al-Qaida seemed to be weakening, bin Laden never yielded control of his worldwide organization, U.S. officials said Wednesday. His personal, handwritten journal and his massive collection of computer files reveal his hand at work in every recent major al-Qaida threat, including plots in Europe last year that had travelers and embassies on high alert, two officials said.

They described the intelligence to The Associated Press only on condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to talk publicly about what was found in bin Laden’s hideout. Analysts are continuing to review the documents.

The information shatters the government’s conventional thinking about bin Laden, who had been regarded for years as mostly an inspirational figurehead whose years in hiding made him too marginalized to maintain operational control of the organization he founded.

Instead, bin Laden was communicating from his walled compound in Pakistan with al-Qaida’s offshoots, including the Yemen branch that has emerged as the leading threat to the United States, the documents indicate. Though there is no evidence yet that he was directly behind the attempted Christmas Day 2009 bombing of a Detroit-bound airliner or the nearly successful attack on cargo planes heading for Chicago and Philadelphia, it’s now clear that they bear some of bin Laden’s hallmarks.

He was well aware of U.S. counterterrorist efforts and schooled his followers in working around them, the messages to his followers show. Don’t limit attacks to New York City, he said in his writings. Consider other areas such as Los Angeles or smaller cities. Spread out the targets.

In one particularly macabre bit of mathematics, bin Laden’s writings show him musing over just how many Americans he must kill to force the U.S. to withdraw from the Arab world. He concludes that the smaller, scattered attacks since 9/11 had not been enough. He tells his disciples that only a body count of thousands, something on the scale of 9/11, would shift U.S. policy.

The handwritten journal included significant dates bin Laden noted as preferred for attacking American targets, including the Fourth of July and the 10th anniversary of 9/11, a U.S. official said. He also schemed about ways to sow political dissent in Washington, D.C., and play political figures against one another, officials said.

The communications were in missives sent via plug-in computer storage devices called flash drives. The devices were ferried to bin Laden’s compound by couriers, a process that is slow but exceptionally difficult to track.

Intelligence officials have not identified any new planned targets or plots in their initial analysis of the 100 or so flash drives and five computers that Navy SEALs hauled away after killing bin Laden. Last week, the FBI and Homeland Security Department warned law enforcement officials nationwide to be on alert for possible attacks against trains, though officials said there was no specific plot.

Officials have not yet seen any indication that bin Laden had the ability to coordinate timing of attacks across the various al-Qaida affiliates in Pakistan, Yemen, Algeria, Iraq and Somalia, and it is also unclear from bin Laden’s documents how much the affiliate groups relied on his guidance. The Yemen group, for instance, has embraced the smaller-scale attacks that bin Laden’s writings indicate he regarded as unsuccessful. The Yemen branch had already surpassed his central operation as al-Qaida’s leading fundraising, propaganda and operational arm.

Al-Qaida has not named bin Laden’s successor, but all indications point to his No. 2, Ayman al-Zawahri. The question is whether al-Zawahri, or anyone, has the ability to keep so many disparate groups under the al-Qaida banner. The groups in Somalia and Algeria, for instance, have very different goals focused on local grievances. Without bin Laden to serve as their shepherd, it’s possible al-Qaida will further fragment.

British officials said the Americans had shared some information about the bin Laden cache but there had been nothing concrete yet to indicate his stamp on any of the recent terror attacks or plans in Britain — including a European plot last year involving the threat of a Mumbai-style shooting spree in a capital. Those officials spoke on condition of anonymity to discuss matters of intelligence.

One British official said counterterror authorities had not been tracking bin Laden as they had other terrorists deemed more directly involved in operations — which may have been a mistake, from what they are now learning from bin Laden’s own words.

Poll: Killing bin Laden was justified

Jennifer Agiesta and Robert Burns
 Associated Press writers

WASHINGTON — Was the U.S. right to kill Osama bin Laden? Absolutely, and about time, Americans say.

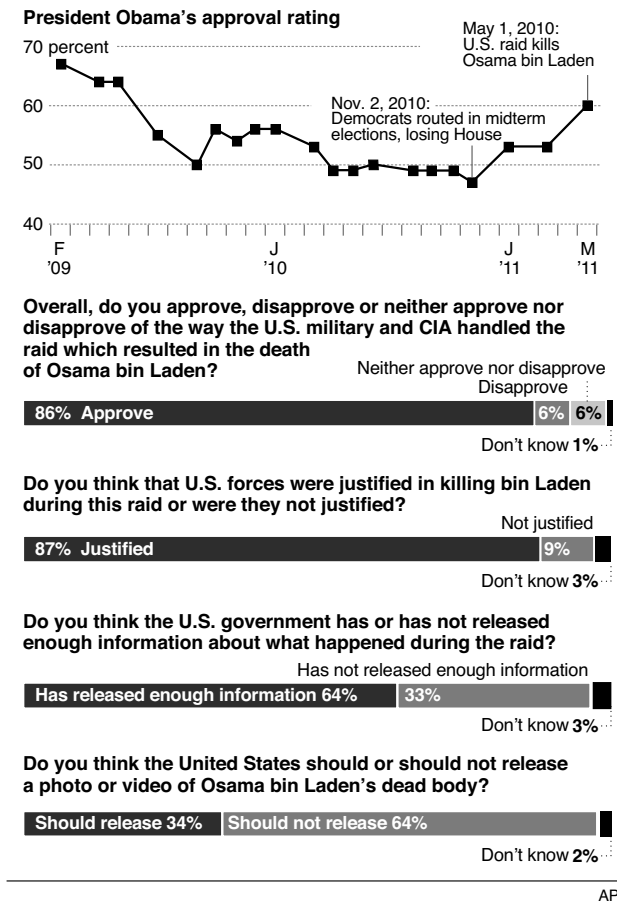

A new Associated Press-GfK poll shows the nation supporting the raid with rare unanimity, and the glow from the operation is also boosting approval for President Barack Obama’s handling of terrorism and the war in Afghanistan.

Few events have sparked such soaring approval from the nation, and almost nothing has since George W. Bush’s handling of the U.S. campaign against terrorism in the months following the Sept. 11, 2001, attacks. Enthusiasm for the risky raid after its success has given Obama some of his highest marks since early in his presidency, and more than half of Americans now say he deserves to be re-elected.

At the same time, many say bin Laden’s death has increased the threat of terrorism against America.

The death, after nearly a decade-long hunt, of the man blamed for killing thousands of Americans also appeared to help boost Americans’ optimism in areas that would seem to have

More Americans — 45 percent, up from 35 percent in March — say the country is headed in the right direction. Still, about half —

Bin Laden’s wife: I’ll stand with you

Ahmed Al-Haj
 Associated Press

IBB, Yemen — Osama bin Laden once gave his wives the option of leaving Afghanistan, but his young Yemeni bride was determined to stay and be “martyred” alongside him.

The pledge early in her marriage to the terror leader, recounted by her family, reflected the determination of Amal Ahmed Abdel-Fatah al-Sada, now 29, to rise above her divorced mother’s social standing.

It came, they said, before the Sept. 11, 2001 attacks and the decade-long manhunt that ended May 2 when U.S. commandos killed the al-Qaida leader in a raid on his compound in Pakistan.

Amal al-Sada was shot in the leg as she rushed the Navy SEALs, according to U.S. officials. She is now in Pakistani custody, along with her daughter and two other bin Laden wives, according to Pakistani officials, who say they eventually will be repatriated.

Amal al-Sada’s family told The Associated Press that they saw her only once after her marriage in late 1999 to the al-Qaida leader — during a monthlong visit to Afghanistan the following year. Communication was largely limited to messages delivered by couriers.

The interviews with the AP took place in the family’s apartment in Ibb, an agricultural town nestled in the mountains about 100 miles south of the Yemeni capital, San’a.

The family portrayed Amal al-Sada as a simple but determined and “courageous” young woman, religiously conservative but not fundamentalist. She was a high school dropout but was eager for knowledge and to realize something more than their modest life seemed to offer.

Amal al-Sada always told her friends and family that she wanted to “go down in history,” recalled her cousin, Waleed Hashem Abdel-Fatah al-Sada.

The door for fame opened in 1999 when her older sister’s husband arrived at her uncle’s home with a proposal. A Saudi named Osama bin Laden was looking for a bride.

Joining Dr. Mohammed Ghalib al-Baany — her sister Farah’s husband — was a man named Rashad Mohammed Saeed, also known as Abu al-Fedaa. They were both friends of bin Laden, the family said.

Her uncle, Hashem al-Sada, recalled telling Amal al-Sada that he knew bin Laden was from a “devout and respectable family” in Saudi Arabia but didn’t know them personally. He told the AP that he wasn’t aware bin Laden “was wanted by the Americans” for the 1998 bombings of U.S. embassies in Kenya and Tanzania.

“The choice is yours,” the uncle said he told her. “It’s your future.”

He said his niece’s response was direct: “This is destiny from God, and I accept it.”

Some U.S. lawmakers to view photos

ANNAPOLIS, Maryland (AP) — Some members of Congress will be allowed to view photographs of Osama bin Laden’s body, a spokeswoman for a Maryland congressman said Wednesday.

Heather Molino, a spokeswoman for U.S. Rep. C.A. Dutch Ruppersberger, said the Democratic congressman is planning to view the photos at CIA headquarters.

“He is interested and wants to see them,” Molino said.

Ruppersberger is a member of the House Intelligence Committee. All of that committee’s members are among the congressional representatives who have been offered a chance to view the photographs, Molino said.

Last week, Ruppersberger said he agreed with the White House’s decision not to publicly release photos of bin Laden’s body.

“Why enrage the rest of the world who don’t like us? And we don’t want them to rally behind his death to hurt us again,” Ruppersberger said last week.

AL-QAIDA LEADER VOWS STRIKES

CAIRO (AP) — The leader of al-Qaida’s Yemeni offshoot has warned the U.S. that Osama bin Laden’s death does not signal the end of the fight and threatened to carry out worse attacks in the future.

Nasser al-Wahishi, the head of al-Qaida in the Arabian Peninsula and once a close associate of bin Laden, posted a eulogy for the slain al-Qaida leader on Islamic extremist websites Tuesday.

Al-Wahishi warned Americans “the matter will not be over” with bin Laden’s death and that “what is coming is greater and worse.”

He said “jihad is glowing brighter” now than during bin Laden’s life, according to a transcript provided Wednesday by SITE Intel group, which monitors militant messages.

Al-Qaida in the Arabian Peninsula is one of the most active affiliates of the terrorist network.

IRAN
Spy trial for three Americans not held

TEHRAN — Iranian authorities postponed the long-awaited espionage trial of three Americans on Wednesday, their lawyer said. Two of the accused, still jailed in Tehran, did not appear in court as expected and the authorities gave no explanation.

Shane Bauer and Josh Fattal have been held since July 2009 after being taken into custody on the Iran-Iraq border. A third American who was taken with them, Sarah Shourd, was released in September on $500,000 bail and returned to the United States. She is being tried in absentia.

Bauer and Fattal, who are both 28, remain in jail. The three claim they were hiking in Iraq's northern Kurdish region and any crossing into Iran was inadvertent.

EUROPE
Europeans call in Syrian envoys

BERLIN — European countries summoned Syrian ambassadors Wednesday to threaten a new round of sanctions that will target the country's leadership if it doesn't halt the repression of protesters, Germany said.

As Europe stepped up the pressure on Damascus, U.N. chief Ban Ki-moon demanded full access for humanitarian workers in Syria, which has blocked an international team from entering to make an independent assessment of the country's aid needs.

CHINA
Bible instructor held after police raid

BEIJING — Chinese police are holding a South Korean Bible instructor and his wife following a raid on an underground Protestant church, a group said Wednesday, as the government pressures Christians worshipping outside the Communist-controlled church.

The instructor, whose Chinese name was given as Jin Yongzhe, was detained Tuesday along with dozens of other Christians during a police assault on a three-floor church building in the central province of Henan's Weishi county, the U.S.-based China Aid Association said.

GREECE
Stones thrown, tear gas fired in Athens

ATHENS — Riot police made heavy use of tear gas and stun grenades to disperse youths throwing stones and petrol bombs at a large march through central Athens Wednesday to protest the Greek government's harsh austerity measures.

The clashes came during a 24-hour general strike that brought most public services to a halt, suspended all train and ferry services, grounded flights for four hours and disrupted public transport.

An Associated Press reporter saw at least three demonstrators injured and another five detained by police, while dozens of black-clad anarchists smashed bus stops and set rubbish bins on fire.

SPAIN
American wins social sciences award

MADRID — Harvard University psychologist Howard Gardner has won Spain's Prince of Asturias award for social sciences in recognition of his studies of how human intellect expresses itself in different kinds of skills.

The prize was announced Wednesday by a foundation run by Spain's Crown Prince Felipe. It said the work has been "decisive for the evolution of educational models by taking into account the innate potentialities of each individual."

Al-Maliki open to troop presence

BAGHDAD (AP) — Iraq's prime minister said Wednesday he might ask thousands of U.S. troops to remain in the country next year provided that a solid majority of the main political parties back the request at a meeting this month.

Nouri al-Maliki's comments indicated a shift from his earlier stance that there would be no U.S. troops past this year. But his insistence on having a consensus before making the decision indicates al-Maliki's worry that he'll be blamed for such a politically risky decision.

The prime minister told reporters he will meet with Iraqi political leaders by the end of May to gauge support for having U.S. troops stay beyond a December withdrawal deadline.

The Obama administration has said it wants to know within weeks whether Baghdad will seek to continue more than eight years of a heavy U.S. military presence in Iraq. During a trip to Iraq in April, Adm. Mike Mullen, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, urged the Iraqis to decide very soon, saying they had a matter of weeks, because the U.S. must begin planning its exit.

Sunni and Kurdish leaders generally want U.S. troops to remain to help the nation become more stable and to continue training security forces that are still unprepared to defend their borders. But hard-line Shiites who helped al-Maliki secure a second term in office last year have threatened to revolt if American soldiers remain. In recent weeks Iraqi demonstrators in the northern city of Mosul and in the western Anbar province have demanded American forces leave on time.

"I will bring the leaders of the political blocs together. If they say yes, I will agree and if they say no, I will reject it," al-Maliki, a Shiite, said during a 90-minute news conference at his office in the fortified Green Zone in central Baghdad.

He refused to say whether he personally supports keeping troops in Iraq.

Rebel fighters at the entrance of the military side of the Misrata airport in Libya on Wednesday. Rebels in the western city appeared close to seizing control of the airport from forces loyal to Col. Moammar Gadhafi, advancing on the sprawling facility in scores of trucks and battling pockets of soldiers holed up in terminal buildings.

Libyan rebels say they have pushed back Gadhafi forces

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — Rebels in the port city of Misrata said they took over the local airport Wednesday from Moammar Gadhafi's retreating forces, and seized weapons and ammunition, a potentially major breakthrough in efforts to break a two-month siege.

The reported rebel advance was the latest in a sudden flurry of accounts of opposition victories, coming in tandem with intensified NATO airstrikes on Gadhafi's forces in several regions. Even though some of the combat reports are difficult to confirm, they seem to represent a major boost for the rebels prospects' after weeks of stalemate in their effort to end Gadhafi's 42-year rule over Libya.

According to a rebel who identified himself as Abdel Salam, rebels were in total control of the airport in Misrata's southern outskirts after two days of fighting. He said five rebels were killed and 105 injured.

"This is a major victory," he said. "The Gadhafi forces have been suffering lack of supplies ... Their morale was very low after being defeated several times and pushed back."

Misrata rebels are also pushing west, toward the nearby city of Zlitan, and then advance farther in the direction of the Libyan capital, Tripoli.

"The main goal is to topple down the tyrant and to liberate the capital," Abdel Salam said. "Now Misrata is free ... Gadhafi can't get in here."

stronghold in western Libya, Misrata is about 125 miles southeast of Tripoli. The rebels control most of eastern Libya.

Since the uprising against Gadhafi began in mid-February, Misrata has endured some of the country's most violent battles. Regime troops surrounded the coastal city from three sides and subjected it to daily shelling.

Residents-turned-rebels mobilized to fight back, pushing Gadhafi's troops from the city center in late April. That battle and others have killed hundreds — many of whom were buried hastily or merely left where they fell.

Another front where the rebels claim recent gains is near the eastern city of Ajdabiya. Rebels at a checkpoint outside the city indicated fighting had subsided on Wednesday after a stretch of heavy ground combat that was coupled with NATO airstrikes.

NATO said Tuesday it had conducted more than 6,000 sorties since it assumed command of the aerial operation over Libya on March 31. More than 2,400 of those were airstrikes, a statement said.

It said alliance warplanes struck six vehicle storage depots near Tripoli on Monday, along with a surface-to-air launcher and an anti-aircraft gun. Four ammunition depots were also hit in other parts of Libya.

Quakes hit Italy, but not the predicted big one

ROME (AP) — More than 22 earthquakes struck Italy by noon Wednesday, as is normal for the quake-prone country. But none was the devastating temblor purportedly predicted by a now-dead scientist to strike Rome.

Despite efforts by seismologists to debunk the myth of a major Roman quake on May 11, 2011, and stress that quakes can never be predicted, some Romans left town just in case, spurred by rumor-fueled fears that ignore science.

Many storefronts were shuttered, for example, in a neighborhood of Chinese-owned shops near Rome's central train station. And an agriculture farm lobby group said a survey of farm-hotels outside the capital indicated some superstitious Romans had headed to the countryside for the day.

The fears are all thanks to a purported prediction of a major Roman quake Wednesday attributed to self-taught seismologist Raffaele Bendandi, who died in 1979. However, Paola Lagorio, president of the association in charge of Bendandi's documentation, says there's no evidence Bendandi ever made such a precise prediction.

Adam Burgess, a senior lecturer in sociology at the University of Kent said rumors like these tend to occur in "information vacuums," such as during war when there are situations of uncertainty.

Italian officials have taken extraordinary measures to try to calm nerves and debunk the myth.

The country's Civil Protection department posted a dense information packet on its website stressing that quakes can't be predicted and that Rome isn't particularly at risk. Toll-free numbers were set aside at city hall to field questions. And the national geophysics institute opened its doors to the public to inform the curious and the concerned about seismology.

Study: 48 rapes every hour in Congo

DAKAR, Senegal (AP) — The African nation of Congo has been called the worst place on earth to be a woman. A new study released Wednesday shows that it's even worse than previously thought: 1,152 women are raped every day, a rate equal to 48 per hour.

That rate is 26 times more than the previous estimate of 16,000 rapes reported in one year by the United Nations.

Michelle Hindin, an associate professor at Johns Hopkins' Bloomberg School of Public Health who specializes in gender-based violence, said the rate could be even higher. The source of the data, she noted, is a survey that was conducted through face-to-face interviews, and people are not always forthcoming about the violence they have suffered when talking to strangers.

"The numbers are astounding," she said.

Rino Henry Grisenti

July 24, 1923-May 10, 2011

RUPERT — Rino Henry Grisenti, 87, of the Jackson area, passed to the other side on 10 May 2011, in Salt Lake City, Utah, of a sudden illness.

He was born at home on 24 July 1923, in Jackson, Idaho, to Dionigio Grisenti and Maria Tomasi Grisenti, the second child of three. His sister, Aida, and he were very close as children and even closer as senior citizens, visiting daily by telephone from her home near Denver, Colo. He received his primary education in the one-room Roston School located about one mile from his parents home. He attended high school in Rupert and Acequia, graduating from Acequia in 1941. He then attended occupational training, a sheet metal course, at the college in Pocatello.

On the 13 June 1942, Rino married Gwendolyn Fern Renzelman, his high school sweetheart, and settled down to farm in Jackson. From this union came his son, Jim Grisenti. That farm has been his home ever since. On 21 May 1972, he married Marian Elaine Peterson Hayden. She brought three sons, Lloyd, Randy and Roger Hayden and their families and much joy to Rino's life.

The farm in Jackson has been Rino's pleasure. On it, he built a home, farmed and built a nice shop where he constructed or modified his farming equipment and repaired the neighbor's broken equipment. Farming was his occupation, but welding and creating were his passion. He also has a small saw mill and various woodworking and cabinet making equipment. He built his first home on the farm and later using his sawmill and equipment did an extreme makeover of that original dwelling. He has been a jack-of-all-trades, installing furnaces, wiring or rewiring many homes and buildings, fixing pumps, broken door hinges, and so forth. In the 1950s Rino was Mr. Fix-It in little Italy (the Roston-Jackson area). In those days the farmers of Little Italy worked cooperatively, helping each other plant and harvest. Rino had the first tractor in that close-knit community, but rather than expand his own farm with his new found powerful companion, he used that tractor to help others. Every spring, he and that tractor were on virtually every neighboring farm. He has always been a good neighbor; helping others was truly very important to him. Rino also worked as a ditch rider for A & B irrigation and as a plant mechanic at the Minidoka Dam power plant.

Rino is survived by his son, Jim Grisenti (Deanna) of Jackson; his sister, Aida Andreatta of Denver; nieces, Lillian Jaynes of Hayden Lake and Marjorie Heinrich (Leo) of Denver, Colo.; and by Lloyd Hayden of Kimberly and Randy Hayden (Linda) of Heyburn. His posterity continues with grandchildren, Mike Grisenti (Angie) of St. George, Utah, Teena Nelson (Weston) of St. George Utah, and Nancy Eakins (David) of Provo, Utah; 10 great-grandchildren; also grandchildren, Tina Hayden Chavez (Robbie) of Pocatello, Francine Hayden MacKay (Jason) of Kimberly and Merlon Hayden of Nampa; and six more great-grandchildren.

He was preceded in death by his parents, Dionigio and Maria; wives, Gwendolyn and Elaine; a younger brother, Rino E. Grisenti; a nephew, Michael Andreatta; brother-in-law, James Andreatta; Roger Hayden and Roger's sons, Nicholas and Mathew Hayden.

The funeral will be held 11 a.m. Saturday, May 14, at the Hansen Mortuary Rupert Chapel, 710 Sixth St. Viewing for family and friends will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. Friday, May 13, and one hour prior to the service Saturday at the mortuary. Burial will be at the Rupert Cemetery.

Sep. 12, 1908-May 9, 2011

Mary Elizabeth Mitchell, 102, of Twin Falls, died Monday, May 9, 2011, at the River Ridge Care Center.

Mary, the second of five children, was born Sept. 12, 1908, at Randolph, Neb., the daughter of Victor and Daisy Sutton Howarth. Mary was raised and educated in the sand hills of Nebraska. As a young girl, Mary enjoyed riding horses. At the age of 14, she went to Omaha, Neb., to work for a family caring for their children; she later met and married Henry P. Mitchell on June 20, 1926, in Omaha, Neb.

In earlier years, all holidays and many Sundays, Mary's home was the gathering place for relatives and friends to feast on her baked goods and culinary skills. She later worked as seamstress for Miller and Paine and J. Braggs Department Stores in Lincoln, Neb., while raising her eight children. She loved being a mother and grandmother and was dearly loved by her entire family. Up until the age of 100, she was always kept busy doing embroidery work, crocheting and sewing for the entire family, every one of which has a complete set of tea towels.

Mary is survived by her six children, Shirley Dunlap of Omaha, Neb., Betty Jo Zweiner of Twin Falls, David (Shirley) Mitchell of Kingman, Ariz., Mary (Don) Aten of Loveland, Colo., George (Linda) Mitchell of Kennewick, Wash., and Mike (Cleo) Mitchell of Marysville, Wash.; 26 grandchildren; 54 great-grandchildren; and nine great-great-grandchildren. She is preceded in death by her parents; her husband; two sons, Jim and John; three brothers; and a sister.

A rosary prayer service will be held at 7 p.m. Friday, May 13, at Reynolds Funeral Chapel, 2466 Addison Ave. E. in Twin Falls. A memorial service for Mary will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, May 14, at Reynolds Funeral Chapel.

Noel Burdell Croft

May 24, 1944-May 10, 2011

HEYBURN — Noel Burdell Croft, age 66, passed away in his Heyburn home Tuesday, May 10, 2011.

Noel was born May 24, 1944, to Noel H. and Burdella King Croft. He graduated from Minidoka County High School in 1962. After high school, he enlisted in the National Guard and was stationed at Fort Ord, near Monterey, Calif. A mission to upstate New York for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints followed. He studied at Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah, eventually completing a doctorate degree in educational psychology.

Professionally, Noel taught in special education classrooms and worked as director of Special Services for the Minidoka County School District, as an instructor for a special education graduate program he helped develop for local teachers, and as a cognitive rehabilitation specialist. He was known for his intelligence, knowledge, sense of humor, kindness and generosity. He told memorable, entertaining stories about his life experiences and enjoyed good music, good books and good conversation. He loved children, especially his 16 grandchildren.

Noel was a gentle man with a strong, passionate heart. He encouraged those he worked with to follow their hopes and dreams and to live to their fullest potential; Noel was pleased whenever those he knew found success and happiness.

He is survived by his beloved and dedicated wife, Peggy J. Poe Croft; three sisters; a daughter; a son; five stepsons; his children's spouses; and their children. He was preceded in death by his parents and two brothers.

A viewing is scheduled for 6 to 8 p.m. Thursday, May 12, at Hansen Mortuary Rupert Chapel, 710 Sixth St. A short memorial service will be held at 11 a.m. Friday, May 13, at the Riverside Cemetery in Heyburn. Services are under the direction of Hansen Mortuary.

Hill panel seeking documents on Libya operations

By Donna Cassata
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Lawmakers who believe President Barack Obama didn't properly consult with Congress before launching air strikes on Libya are pressing the Pentagon for documents and material on all communications.

The House Armed Services Committee, beginning a marathon session Wednesday to craft a $553 billion budget for the Defense Department next year, unanimously approved the measure seeking "any official document, record, memo, correspondence, or other communication of the Department of Defense ... that refers or relates to any consultation with Congress" on Libya.

Republicans and some Democrats have complained that Obama failed to consult with Congress before initiating the military operation to protect civilians from Moammar Gadhafi's forces in Libya. The administration and some Republican senators, including John McCain of Arizona, said the U.S. had to act quickly to avoid a massacre in Benghazi.

"Although select members were invited to a conference call during a constituent work week, immediately preceding the president's press conference, a phone call can hardly be considered significant consultation," Rep. Howard "Buck" McKeon, R-Calif., the panel chairman, said Wednesday.

On the agenda for the committee's day-into-night session were the pace of withdrawing forces from Afghanistan, gays in the military and the transfer of detainees from the military prison at Guantanamo. The first hours of the session focused on military aircraft, carrier ships and a request to the Navy for a timeline on reopening a trap and skeet shooting range at the Miramar Air Station in California.

Obama envisions cuts of $400 billion in defense over the next 12 years as the nation faces a fast-growing deficit. Lawmakers on the committee are resisting some of the cuts while imposing tougher scrutiny on the Pentagon's bookkeeping.

The defense blueprint takes a step toward reviving an extra engine for the next generation F-35 fighter plane despite objections from the administration and Defense Secretary Robert Gates that the engine is not needed.

Billy Graham admitted to N. Carolina hospital

By Tim Funk
McClatchy Newspapers

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Evangelist Billy Graham, 92, was admitted to an Asheville, N.C., hospital on Wednesday and is being treated for pneumonia.

Graham spokesman Larry Ross said doctors do not believe his condition is life threatening. And two of his children — Franklin Graham and Anne Graham Lotz — had no plans Wednesday to return early from mission trips overseas.

The elder Graham was taken to Mission Hospital, near his Montreat, N.C., home, Wednesday morning after experiencing what Ross called "a pulmonary challenge" overnight.

He "had episodes of sweating and coughing," Ross said. "He had a slight fever and experienced difficulty breathing. But he was never in any distress or in an acute situation."

A battery of diagnostic tests suggested pneumonia and determined that Graham's heart was normal. Since then, Graham has been receiving antibiotics and is under observation.

"He is resting comfortably and is fully alert," Dr. Lucian Rice, his primary physician, said in a statement released by the hospital.

Ross predicted the hospital stay would last a day or two, depending on how he responds to the antibiotics.

Graham

"He's remained in good spirits and has kept his sense of humor," Ross said. "He even signed his own admission papers. He ate a big lunch, and has been joking with the medical staff."

Franklin Graham, his eldest son and CEO of the Charlotte-based Billy Graham Evangelistic Association, was visiting North Korea on Wednesday.

"He's aware of (his father's admission to the hospital) and he's keeping an eye on what's been going on," Franklin Graham spokesman Todd Shearer said Wednesday. "But, right now, he has no plans to come back early. He's scheduled to leave North Korea at the end of the week." Anne Graham Lotz was in Israel, Ross said.

In recent years, Billy Graham — long a globe-trotting evangelist and pastor to U.S. presidents — has largely stayed in his mountain-top home. He has nursing care there and gets frequent visits from family and old friends — and, occasionally, from national politicians.

Norma Zimmer, TV's 'Champagne Lady,' dies

By Lynn Elber
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Norma Zimmer, the "Champagne Lady" of TV's "The Lawrence Welk Show" and a studio singer who worked with Frank Sinatra and other pop stars, has died. She was 87.

Zimmer died peacefully Tuesday at her Brea, Calif., home, Welk's son, Larry, said Wednesday. Larry Welk didn't know the cause of death but said Zimmer had been living an active life in recent years.

"She was one of the most gracious, likable people that anyone could ever meet. The other people on the show, to this day, just respect and love her," Larry Welk said.

Zimmer performed on Welk's network and later syndicated show from 1960 to 1982 as the "Champagne Lady;" the title Welk traditionally gave to his orchestra's lead female singer. Zimmer sang solos, duets with Jimmy Roberts and waltzed with Welk to the strains of his effervescent dance tunes tagged "champagne music."

She appeared on the orchestra's public TV specials that have aired (along with repeats of the series) since 1987. Zimmer took part in a tribute to Welk and his show held earlier this year at the Paley Center for Media in Beverly Hills.

Welk, who stopped performing in 1989, died in 1992.

Zimmer, born in July 1923 in Larson, Idaho, grew up in Seattle. The petite blonde sang with "The Girlfriends," a quartet that performed with Sinatra, Dean Martin and Bing Crosby, including on Crosby's famed recording of "White Christmas." Zimmer made several film and TV appearances, including one with Crosby in the 1950 film "Mr. Music" and in an episode of "I Love Lucy;" and was the voice of the White Rose in the 1951 Disney film, "Alice in Wonderland."

Her survivors include her sons, Ron and Mark. Her husband, businessman Randy Zimmer, died in 2008.

Funeral services for Zimmer were pending.

The Kimberly baseball team celebrates the first of its two wins over Buhl Wednesday in Buhl to win the Class 3A District IV championship.

Kimberly baseball beats Buhl twice to earn first district title

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

BUHL — After last week's hiccup, the Kimberly baseball team finished the Class 3A District IV Tournament the way it started the season against its district foes: total domination.

Kimberly edged past Buhl 3-2 Wednesday to force an if-necessary district championship game, then the Bulldogs took home their first district crown in style with a 20-9, six-inning demolition.

The Bulldogs (19-3) had to win three straight do-or-die games to win the district championship after falling to the Indians (8-12) in extra innings last week at Kimberly.

"I don't think we were really up for that game. It was like we had dominated them all season and we expected to do it again," said Kimberly's Seth Champlin, who outdueled Markus Lively in Game 1 and hit two doubles, drove in two runs and scored four in Game 2's blowout win.

"There was a lot more cheering in our dugout today. We definitely didn't want to go through a tough week of play-ins."

Lively struck out 13 batters and scattered five hits, but a key error allowed Kimberly to score the eventual winning run when shortstop Matt Hamilton misplayed a ground ball with the bases loaded.

After defeating Buhl's ace, the Bulldogs pounded out 15 hits and took advantage of eight Indian errors, scoring 16 unanswered runs at one point to put the deciding game beyond reach.

"It just seemed like once we had one error, it was like quicksand and the ball just started bouncing every way but ours," said Lively. "I don't know what to say about it, it's just frustrating. But we have another chance and hopefully we can make the most of it."

KIMBERLY — No matter what the sport, there is always a little added pressure when Kimberly and Buhl face off.

Both the Bulldogs and Indians expended a lot of energy in the Class 3A District IV softball championship game but it was Kimberly that did enough good things early in the game to earn an 8-5 victory.

The district title is the sixth in a row for the Bulldogs.

And for Kimberly seniors Nellie Makings, Averie Schroeder and Whitney Carlton it means another trip to the state tournament.

"We jumped out early and were able to take advantage of some opportunities," said Kimberly coach Rich Bishop. "Even with a few errors at some bad times, the girls didn't panic. We always hope for a few breaks, and wish we would have gotten a few more. But Buhl battled and made a real game of it."

Kimberly scored a pair of runs in the first inning, three in the second and a single run in the third.

With Buhl trailing 6-0 heading into the top of the fourth inning, a two-out single by Kendyl Hamilton followed by a walk to Katherine Hunter and back-to-back singles by Chelsea Cress and Tyana Weaver and the Indians put three runs on the board to get back in the game.

But some key miscues early hurt Buhl's cause, even with the Indians tacking on two runs in the sixth.

"There were two key plays that turned the game around and they took advantage of them — it was the difference in the game possibly

Pearce's Div. I plan comes together

Jerome grad signing with Idaho State today

By Mike Christensen
Times-News writer

When Kameron Pearce signed with Northeastern (Colo.) Junior College, he did so with the hope his time there could propel him to the NCAA Division I level.

Today, that hope will come to fruition.

Pearce, a 2010 Jerome High School graduate, will sign a National Letter of Intent with Idaho State University. He'll join the Bengals men's basketball program for the 2011-12 season.

"I just feel good to be coming home and have a chance to play in front of more family and friends," Pearce said. "It was always my dream and now I'm going to do my best to maintain it."

Pearce averaged 12 points, five rebounds and three assists per game for Northeastern, hitting 39 percent from 3-point range. But things really started to click for him after the Christmas break as he averaged about 18 points per game in Region IX play, helping NJC to a 19-15 record.

"Just an awesome kid to coach," said Northeastern

JC coach Eddie Trenkle. "He did a great job for us. ... He bought into everything we said and anytime we pointed out something for him to work on, he did everything he could to get better."

A 6-foot-4 shooting guard, Pearce chalked up his midseason improvement to a better understanding of the game and its pace at the JUCO level. But his growth came in several areas, including rebounding as he recorded five double-doubles on the season.

"I've gotten a lot stronger and smarter on defense," said Pearce. "I have a better understanding of team defense and I just know how to play the game a little bit better. I want to continue to get better because I know I haven't reached that ceiling yet."

While Pearce has always been good at coming off of screens to shoot jump shots, his offensive game blossomed with his ability to attack the rim.

"He's always been able to go off the bounce pretty well, but he's really improved that," said Trenkle.

Trenkle said he'd love to have Pearce for another season, but is excited to see the Jerome grad realize his

Mills, Burley slip past Canyon Ridge

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Jake Mills stepped to the plate in the bottom of the seventh with the winning run at second base. Up to that point, the Burley senior had gone an uncharacteristic 0-for-3.

"He was throwing good off-speed and I was too antsy," Mills said. "I never changed my approach until that last at-bat. I sat back and made sure it was a strike before I swung."

By crushing a double to the wall, Mills erased his previous miscues by driving in Jackson Kunz for the game-winner in a 4-3 victory over Canyon Ridge on Wednesday.

The win places Burley in the final elimination game of the Class 4A District IV baseball tournament. The Bobcats (15-10) will travel to Twin Falls today, with the winner earning a state berth and advancing to the district championship against Minico on Friday.

Canyon Ridge ended its season with a 13-13 record.

"We struggled with Canyon during the season. There's just something about them that we have a tough time with," said Burley coach Devin Kunz. "They seem to make us pay for our errors. But we just battled."

The Riverhawks got on the board first as Jon Cron scored on a sacrifice fly by Nick Magee.

"Started off, we came out sluggish, the whole team did," Mills said. "We didn't play our best, but a win is a win."

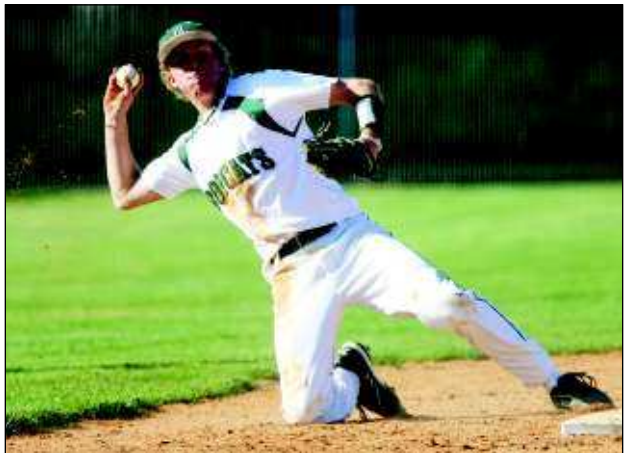

Mills wasn't the only Burley batter to struggle against Canyon Ridge pitcher Garrett Basham, who allowed five hits and no earned runs through six innings.

Burley took a 3-1 lead in the fourth inning when Alex Larson was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded, followed by Kody Moon's two-run single.

Meanwhile, Burley starter Joe Ferrin allowed just two hits through five innings before the Riverhawks strung together three consecutive singles and tied the game in the sixth on Brandon Bradshaw's two-run single.

Mills relieved Ferrin and allowed one harmless hit the rest of the way.

Twin Falls, Jerome reach title contest

Canyon Ridge softball eliminated

By Stephen Meyers
Times-News writer

This really didn't happen again, did it?

For the second straight year, highly-seeded Canyon Ridge bowed out in the district tournament, this time falling to fourth-seeded Twin Falls 7-1 in a heart-breaking loss for the Riverhawks.

The Bruins clinched a ticket to state and advance to the Class 4A District IV championship game against Jerome, which beat Twin Falls 5-1 earlier Wednesday. Canyon Ridge meanwhile could only reflect on its 20-5 season.

"We didn't hit the ball like I know we can. Give all the credit to Twin and Jerome. They proved that they're the two best teams in this conference," said Canyon Ridge coach Lyle Hudelson. "I'm proud of my girls. It's this time of year when you've got to be playing your best and we just didn't."

Twin Falls did.

The Bruins (16-9) didn't record an error and pitcher Rainey Dyreson struck out nine and allowed only two hits in topping CRHS.

Karly Hudelson drove in the lone run for the Riverhawks with an RBI single in the third inning, after the Bruins had piled on five in the top of the frame.

Megan Hinojos belted a three-run home run, Henli Blick scored on a throwing error and Liz Tolbert drove in a run with a single.

"I'm feeling confident (at the plate). I'm just hitting the ball well," Hinojos said. "We've worked so hard and it's just great to be where we are right now."

Sophomore Jera Johnson also belted a home run for the Bruins, smacking a solo shot in the second inning.

The power slugging Bruins that beat Canyon Ridge were stymied against Jerome.

Tigers' pitcher Colby Argyle allowed just four hits and the defense behind her committed only one error. The only blip from Argyle was a solo shot to Hinojos.

"(Argyle) did awesome. I couldn't have hoped for anything better. Our defense was amazing and made plays when they had to," said Jerome coach Adam Reynolds.

Jerome (16-7) broke open the game in the third inning, scoring three runs. Freshman Aspen Grove hit a two-run single to center field to score Crystal Luna and Jenna Seamons, who reached after getting hit by a pitch. She advanced all the way to third on two different throwing errors before Grove's single.

"I'm so proud of my team right here. It was a whole team effort today," Argyle said. "Thank goodness we peaked at districts. We started to play when it counts."

CSI baseball escapes opener, faces Salt Lake today

Times-News

Boomer Walker made the right decision to start Michael Renner. And in the end, Renner's effort was just enough for the College of Southern Idaho baseball team.

Renner struck out 13 in eight innings of work Wednesday as CSI escaped with a 4-3 win over Colorado Northwestern in the opening round of the Region 18 tournament in Carson City, Nev.

Renner (6-5) made one mistake, missing with a pitch to Cameron Buckles for a first-inning two-run homer that gave the Spartans (3-48) an early lead. But after that he was nothing short of dazzling, retiring 11 batters in a row at one point and striking out the side three times.

"Michael threw an unbelievable game. He competed out there and he really wanted to win that game a lot," Walker told 1450 AM KEZJ after the win. "I was disappointed in the effort we gave other than Renner, Parker Morin and Ryan Cooperstone. You can't control the plays but you can control your effort and ours wasn't very good today."

Cooperstone had a couple of hits and Morin drove in two runs, the last of which came in the fifth inning to provide the eventual winning run.

Two negatives to CSI's day: Renner threw more than 110 pitches, making it tough for him to bounce back and make another appearance before Saturday.

Cooperstone reagravated his back injury making a throw from short-stop. He was eventually moved to third base but committed two throwing errors in his three fielding chances. Walker said afterward that Cooperstone was in a lot of pain and may be restricted to designated hitter duty for the rest of the tournament, if he can contribute at all.

Despite the ups and downs, the team advanced to today's second round, where it'll face second-seeded Salt Lake at 1:30 p.m. MDT. The teams evenly split their eight games during the regular season.

"If we bring this kind of effort (Thursday), it'll be a five or seven-inning game," Walker said. "We're going to have to match their energy and enthusiasm, and then it'll come down to the play on the field."

Jerome leads 4A district track meet

Times-News

The Jerome boys and girls are in first place after the opening day of the Class 4A District IV track meet at Wood River High School in Hailey.

Jerome's boys lead Twin Falls by a single point, 34-33, getting wins from Colt Callen in pole vault and Kolton Parson in the long jump. The Bruins got a win from Erik Harris in the 3,200 meters.

Mackenzie Chojnacky won the girls 3,200 for the Tigers, who also won the medley relay in earning 51 points. Second-place Twin Falls has 38 points, highlighted by Cheltzie Williams' win in the high jump. Canyon Ridge's Kayla Lee won the triple jump.

Minico had two winners on Wednesday as Jacob Barclay took the boys shot put and Linsey Bair won the girls discus.

Declo, Gooding Neck and Neck at 2A Track Meet

Declo and Gooding put themselves well above the field and tight together atop the team standings Wednesday at the Class 2A District IV championship meet in Filer.

The two teams are tied for the girls lead with 31 points apiece, while Declo holds a 29-28 edge in the boys race through five events.

Mike McHan won the 3,200 race for Gooding's boys, while Derek Evans won the pole vault. Declo's medley relay won and Mark Knobbe claimed the Hornets' first individual crown in the discus. Valley's Matt Ivey took the triple jump.

Declo's Kaylee Holmstead qualified for two individual events, winning the long jump and placing second in the shot put. Gooding's Audrey Youren won the high jump and helped the Senator medley relay team to victory, while Rachel Youren won the 3,200.

The meet concludes today.

Despite the ups and downs, the team advanced to today's second round, where it'll face second-seeded Salt Lake at 1:30 p.m. MDT. The teams evenly split their eight games during the regular season.

"If we bring this kind of effort (Thursday), it'll be a five or seven-inning game," Walker said. "We're going to have to match their energy and enthusiasm, and then it'll come down to the play on the field."

WOOD RIVER CRUISING TOWARD DISTRICT TITLE

One Wood River player has a district tennis title. Several other Wolverines could claim that same honor today.

Wood River's Karl Wilander outlasted Dallas Hunt of Twin Falls 7-5, 7-6 (7) to win the boys singles title at the Class 4A District IV Tournament.

The other five divisions hold title matches today at the Twin Falls High School tennis courts. Wood River has players in four of the five title matches.

Below are results from Wednesday's semifinals and finals. Consolation matches begin at 10 a.m. today.

The top four placers in each division advance to next week's state tournament in Boise.

Miami Heat forward LeBron James hugs Dwyane Wade after Miami defeated Boston 97-87 in Game 5 of their NBA playoff series at American Airlines Arena on Wednesday.

East finals bound: Miami ousts Boston

MIAMI — For LeBron James, Game 5 last season against Boston was horrific.

A year later, Game 5 was humbling.

And he and the Miami Heat are halfway to an NBA championship, having finally found a way to vanquish the Celtics.

Dwyane Wade scored 34 points, James added 33 — including the game's last 10 in a spectacular closing flourish, part of Miami's 16-0 run over the final 4:15 — and the Heat beat the Celtics 97-87 on Wednesday night to win their Eastern Conference semifinal series in five games.

When it was over, James knelt on the court, oblivious to the photographers who quickly surrounded him in Miami's celebration.

"Everything went through my mind at that point," James said. "Finally getting over this hump against this team. Everything I went through this summer, with 'The Decision' and deciding to come down here to be a part of this team ... because I knew how important team is to this sport ... and all the backlash I got from it."

"I'd be up here for two hours if I tell you exactly everything that went through my head. Very emotional at that point, you know, and happy we got through it as a team."

That they did — as a team.

James Jones hit a 3-pointer that kickstarted the final push, and Chris Bosh finished with 14 points — none of them more important than the two coming when he blew past Kevin Garnett for a game-tying dunk with 2:57 left.

Wade carried Miami early, then James finished

Fiesta Bowl fined $1M, stays in BCS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Fiesta Bowl will be allowed to remain part of the Bowl Championship Series, though it must pay a $1 million fine for apparent illegal campaign contributions and inappropriate spending.

The BCS presidential oversight committee, which made the decision Wednesday, also attached several conditions as it let the Fiesta Bowl remain part of the system for deciding college football's national champion. The demands include strengthening the Fiesta Bowl's board and imposing greater supervision of bowl executives so the problems are not repeated, according to materials obtained by The Associated Press.

"The message is they had cleaned house and addressed their problems, but our group doesn't believe they went far enough," Bill Hancock, executive director of the BCS, said in a telephone interview with the AP. He added that the $1 million fine was meant to reflect the "serious nature of the matter."

The BCS called for the $1 million to be donated to charities serving Arizona youth.

In a statement, Fiesta Bowl Chairman Duane Woods said: "The Fiesta Bowl Board of Directors understands and accepts the sanctions imposed by the BCS. We think that these tough but fair measures are consistent with our commitment to reform the Fiesta Bowl's governance and rebuild trust. The fine is substantial, but we are pleased that the BCS has directed that the funds benefit the youth of Arizona."

The bowl shouldn't have much trouble coming up with the cash. In a filing with the IRS this year, the Fiesta Bowl listed more than $15 million in net assets.

A recent internal report by the Fiesta Bowl detailed about $45,000 in reimbursements to employees for political donations, an apparent violation of federal and state laws. It also revealed lavish and inappropriate spending, such as $33,000 for a Pebble Beach, Calif., birthday bash for then-CEO and President John Junker, $13,000 for the wedding and honeymoon of an aide, and a $1,200 strip club tab for Junker and two others. Junker has been fired.

The oversight committee Wednesday accepted recommendations made in a report by a BCS task force which was "deeply troubled" by the Fiesta Bowl's actions. Those actions, the task force said, strongly suggest "that the bowl's executive staff frequently acted with scant regard for ethics and proper conduct. Further, it is the opinion of the task force that the bowl's board of directors over the years was negligent in its oversight responsibilities."

Both the task force and the oversight committee are chaired by Penn State University President Graham Spanier.

The Fiesta Bowl, played at University of Phoenix Stadium in Glendale, Ariz., is one of four bowls that rotate hosting the BCS national title game.

Even with Wednesday's ruling, the Fiesta Bowl is not entirely in the clear yet. An NCAA panel will decide whether to continue licensing the bowl.

Price, Rays shut down red-hot Indians

CLEVELAND — David Price shut down baseball's hottest team without much trouble, carrying a shutout into the eighth and leading the Tampa Bay Rays to an 8-2 win over Cleveland on Wednesday night, stopping the Indians' home winning streak at 14.

Price (5-3) was perfect for four innings, dominant for seven and became the first pitcher to record a win at Cleveland in more than a month. The left-hander allowed two runs and five hits — four doubles — in eight innings, struck out seven and did not yield a walk.

ROYALS 4, YANKEES 3, 11 INNINGS
NEW YORK — Eric Hosmer hit his first career homer then delivered the go-ahead sacrifice fly in the 11th inning to lift Kansas City over the Yankees.

Hosmer's homer was a soaring shot into the second deck in right field in the fourth inning, hours before the outcome was decided. Wilson Betemit had a tying RBI single in the eighth for Kansas City and Jeff Francoeur drove in a run during the 10th inning.

ORIOLES 4, MARINERS 2
BALTIMORE — Chris Tillman pitched six innings of three-hit ball, Adam Jones went 4 for 4 with two RBIs, and the Baltimore Orioles beat Felix Hernandez.

Tillman and Jones were both traded from the Mariners to Baltimore in 2008 as part of a five-player deal that sent pitcher Erik Bedard to Seattle.

BLUE JAYS 9, RED SOX 3
TORONTO — John McDonald homered, Rajai Davis had four hits and the Blue Jays Boston to sweep a two-game series.

The Blue Jays pounded struggling Boston right-hander John Lackey (2-5), who lost his third straight start and matched a season-high by allowing nine runs. He gave up nine hits, walked a season-high five and struck out one.

TIGERS 9, TWINS 7
MINNEAPOLIS — Brandon Inge hit an RBI triple off the center field wall in the ninth inning to lift Detroit to its fifth win in a row.

Inge's big hit off Twins closer Matt Capps (1-2) scored Ramon Santiago, and Austin Jackson followed with a squeeze bunt. Jose Valverde got his eighth save.

NATIONAL LEAGUE PHILLIES 5, MARLINS 3
MIAMI — Jimmy Rollins delivered a two-out, two-run single in the ninth inning, and the Philadelphia

Phillies rallied past the Florida Marlins 5-3 on Wednesday night.

The Phillies fell behind 3-0, but their bats came alive after Cliff Lee departed for a pinch hitter in the seventh.

NATIONALS 7, BRAVES 3, 11 INNINGS
ATLANTA — Ian Desmond hit a tiebreaking, two-run double in the 11th, Jayson Werth followed with a two-run homer and the Washington Nationals beat the Atlanta Braves.

Alex Cora drove in two runs with a bases-loaded single in the ninth as Braves closer Craig Kimbrel blew a 3-1 lead.

PADRES 13, BREWERS 6
MILWAUKEE — Cameron Maybin drove in the go-ahead runs and Ryan Ludwick homered in an eighth-run eighth inning after the San Diego Padres had already squandered one big lead in a win over the Milwaukee Brewers.

The Padres racked up a season-high 23 hits after coming in hitting a majors-worst .219.

DODGERS 2, PIRATES 0
PITTSBURGH — Hiroki Kuroda allowed just three hits over seven innings and the Los Angeles Dodgers edged the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Kuroda (4-3) struck out eight and walked three as the Dodgers won back-to-back games for the first time in three weeks.

The Dodgers scored their first run against Paul Maholm (1-5) on a double-play grounder in the sixth. Jerry Sands added an RBI double for Los Angeles, which hadn't posted consecutive victories on the road since taking two games from the San Diego Padres in early April.

ASTROS 4, REDS 3
HOUSTON — Hunter Pence hit a tiebreaking double in the ninth inning and the Houston Astros avoided a series sweep with a win over the Cincinnati Reds.

Mike Leake (3-2) walked J.R. Towles with one out in the ninth before Pence's full-count hit landed in the corner of right field and sent Towles home.

CUBS 11, CARDINALS 4
CHICAGO — Matt Garza got his first win at Wrigley Field as the Chicago Cubs delivered their biggest offensive output of the season to beat the St. Louis Cardinals.

Chicago scored six runs in the third after a 53-minute rain delay, added four more in the fifth and finished with 17 hits, four by Starlin Castro.

Indians must negotiate the brutal gauntlet of a cross-district playoff game with Sugar-Salem tonight in Pocatello. If they survive they'll play the District V runner-up Saturday in Rupert.

For Kimberly, it's on to the state tournament next weekend in Ontario, Ore., where it will open up with the 4 p.m. game May 19 against the District V champion.

The Bulldogs know that they won't be among those talked about — many view the tournament as a race for second place behind Fruitland — but they aren't ready to concede anything.

"We don't have a ton of pitchers or anyone who's super dominant, but we've got a great group," said Champlin. "We just want to ride this momentum and keep it going."

After a successful transition from high school to junior college, Pearce said he's eager to make the jump to NCAA basketball at ISU. But he knows he wouldn't be inking with the Bengals without his time in Sterling, Colo.

"I'm just thankful for everyone at Northeastern. Coach Trenkle, I have nothing but respect for him," said Pearce.

Idaho State is coming off a 9-20 season, including 4-12 in Big Sky Conference play under fifth-year coach Joe O'Brien. Pearce believes the Bengals are ready to turn the corner.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Ex-NBA, Michigan player Robert Traylor dies

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico — Robert Traylor, the former NBA and University of Michigan big man nicknamed "Tractor" because of his hulking frame, has died. He was 34.

Described as a "gentle giant" with a generous smile, Traylor played seven years in the NBA. He is perhaps most remembered, however, for his career at Michigan, where he was a standout for three seasons but became embroiled in a major scandal involving a booster.

Police in San Juan said Traylor was found dead Wednesday on the bedroom floor of his oceanfront apartment. Police and Traylor's team, the Bayamon Cowboys, said he had been missing for a few days and apparently died from a heart attack.

"He was a leader of the team," said Jose Carlos Perez, the Cowboys' manager. "He was very, very friendly. He got along very well with everyone. The fans loved him, idolized him."

Perez told The Associated Press that Traylor had been talking by phone to his wife in Chicago when the connection was suddenly cut off. She called team officials Wednesday and they checked on him, Perez said.

The 6-foot-8, 300-pound Traylor was injured and had not been playing, the team said.

Barea has no hard feelings toward Bynum for hit

DALLAS — Dallas guard J.J. Barea says he doesn't hold any animosity toward Lakers center Andrew Bynum after their ugly collision.

Bynum elbowed Barea in the chest while the guard was in the air for a layup in Game 4 of their playoff series. He hit the floor hard, Bynum was ejected and on Tuesday was suspended for the first five games of next season.

Barea says he has a bruise on his ribs and another on his left hand. He said Wednesday that he received an apologetic message from Bynum that he considers sincere. He didn't return the call because he didn't think it was necessary.

Barea said: "He just had a big mistake. People have those sometimes. He lost his mind and he fouled me pretty hard. I know he regrets it."

The Mavericks swept the two-time defending champion Lakers.

Ex-NFL QB Kordell Stewart arrested near Atlanta

ATLANTA — Authorities say former NFL quarterback and ESPN analyst Kordell Stewart has been charged with driving with a suspended license and speeding.

Fulton County sheriff's spokeswoman Tracy Flanagan said Stewart was booked into jail in the Atlanta suburb of Alpharetta Wednesday and freed on $3,000 bond about four hours later.

Stewart is scheduled to appear in court July 12. It wasn't immediately known whether he has an attorney.

The Louisiana native played in the NFL for 11 seasons. He played eight with the Pittsburgh Steelers from 1995 through 2002. He also played for the Chicago Bears and the Baltimore Ravens. In college, he played for Colorado. ESPN spokesman Josh Krulowitz said the network had just learned about the incident and was looking into it.

Auburn AD: No hesitation on Cam Newton statue

AUBURN, Ala. — Auburn athletic director Jay Jacobs said he has no reservations about erecting a statue for Cam Newton while an NCAA investigation continues and expressed confidence that Auburn will ultimately be cleared of any wrongdoing.

Jacobs points to comments from NCAA President Mark Emmert, who said "there was no evidence that money had changed hands and there was no evidence that Auburn University had anything to do with it."

"Out of respect for the NCAA process, technically it's still an open issue," Jacobs said. "But when Dr. Emmert, the president of the NCAA, comes out in February that he's found no wrongdoing on Auburn's part, I'm not sure how you can be any more confident than that."

"And no circumstances have changed since then."

If the Newton saga hasn't been officially closed, Jacobs at least takes that statement as indicative of a happy ending.

Cardinals' La Russa to recover in St. Louis

CHICAGO — Manager Tony La Russa headed back to St. Louis on Wednesday to recover from a painful bout with shingles, but he was still involved in what the Cardinals were doing at Wrigley Field in Chicago.

La Russa, who underwent tests Tuesday at the Mayo Clinic in Arizona, is scheduled to miss the remainder of the Cardinals' six-game road trip that wraps up Sunday in Cincinnati.

Bench coach Joe Pettini is running the team in La Russa's absence and said he'd talked with La Russa a couple of times Wednesday, once to go over the lineup for the game against the Cubs.

La Russa is to rest and take medication for his condition. He's been bothered by swelling in his face and sensitivity to light in his right eye. In his first game away from the team, the Cardinals beat the Cubs 6-4.

being tied," said Buhl coach Derrick Brinkman. "We came out late and hit the ball hard. Being down, the girls could have just gone away but they showed a lot of heart and really competed when it was time."

For the Bulldog seniors, it was the last game on the Kimberly High School softball field.

"After four years and a win of state on this field, it was important to go out big as a senior," said Makings. "Games with Buhl, there is always some added pressure. This game came down to who could hit and execute those hits at the right time."

Makings didn't make it easy on Buhl, recording 13 strikeouts, but Hunter also made Kimberly work for its runs. Both pitchers surrendered nine hits. Hunter struck out five and walked six.

At the plate, Makings was 2-for-2 with a double and Tenli Bright was 2-for-3 for the Bulldogs (19-4).

For Buhl, Cassidee Kippes led off the game with a single and added another hit late. Hamilton also had a pair of hits as did Cress and Weaver. Buhl ends the season at 13-10.

PUBLIC NOTICE OF FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT CITY OF TWIN FALLS

AUGER FALLS WASTEWATER REUSE AND UPGRADE PROJECT

TWIN FALLS COUNTY, IDAHO

As a recipient of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) Special Appropriation Act grant funds, the City of Twin Falls (City) Auger Falls Wastewater Reuse and Upgrade Project is subject to National Environmental Policy Act review as required under 40 CFR Part 6. The following activities will be undertaken by the City:

- Construct a pump station consisting of two-75 Hp pumps to deliver treated wastewater to the site.
- Install an Ultraviolet light (UV) disinfection facility to provide additional disinfection of the treated effluent.
- Install 11,300 feet of 24-inch pipeline to convey treated wastewater to the project site.
- Install 1,000 feet of 8-inch and 200 feet of 12-inch diameter buried lateral pipelines from the mainline to the wetland areas to distribute and control flow.
- Establish wetland habitats within the 100 acres of existing rapid infiltration basins.

EPA has reviewed the Environmental Information Document (EID) which evaluates the potential impacts of the proposed project on the human and natural environment. EPA has determined that the proposed project does not meet the criteria for preparing an Environmental Impact Statement (40 CFR Part 6.107) and has, instead, prepared a Finding of No Significant Impact (FONSI) for the project. The public may view the FONSI and EID by contacting:

YOU ARE NOTIFIED THAT:
A Petition, a copy of which is attached, has been filed in the above-entitled matter in the magistrate division of the District Court of Twin Falls County, Idaho, by the Prosecuting Attorney, alleging the above-named child comes within the jurisdiction of the Child Protective Act and
You, the person(s) who has the custody or control of said child is hereby directed to appear personally and bring the said child before this court for a Case Plan Hearing at the Twin Falls County Courthouse, located at 425 Shoshone Street North, Twin Falls, Idaho, on the 26th day of May, 2011 at 9:30 AM.
You are notified that service of the attached Petition upon you, as the parent(s), guardian, or custodian of this child does confer the personal jurisdiction of the court upon you and does subject you to the provisions of the Child Protective Act.
You are notified that if you, or any person served with a summons, shall fail to appear without reasonable cause, the court may proceed in such person's absence or such person may be proceeded against for contempt of court. If the court proceeds without your presence, you may forfeit all of your rights.
You are notified that the parent(s), guardian, or a custodian may be financially liable for the support and/or treatment of the child.
You are further notified that the parent(s), guardian, or custodian have the right to be represented by an attorney of your choosing, or if financially unable to pay, have the right to have an attorney appointed by the Court to represent the parent(s), guardian, or custodian at county expense. If you request to have an attorney appointed at county expense, you must appear before the court at the address given above, at least two (2) days, excluding weekends and holidays, before the date of the hearing given above at which time the court shall consider appointment of an attorney for the parent(s), guardian, or custodian.
You are further notified that there shall be a rebuttable presumption that if a child is placed in the custody of the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare and is also placed in out-of-home care for a period not less than fifteen (15) out of the last twenty-two (22) months from the date the child entered shelter care, the department shall initiate a petition for termination of parental rights. This presumption may be rebutted by a finding of the court that the filing of a Petition for Termination of parental rights would not be in the best interest of the children or reasonable efforts have not been provided to reunite the children with their family or that the children are placed permanently with a relative.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

On August 23, 2011, at the hour of 11:00 o'clock AM of said day, at First American Title Co., 199 Country Lane, Jerome, Idaho, JUST LAW, INC., as Successor Trustee, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder, for cash, in lawful money of the United States, all payable at the time of sale, the following described real property, situated in the County of Jerome, State of Idaho, and described as follows to wit:

Lot 13 and the East 20 feet of Lot 12 in Block 24, Jerome Townsite, Jerome County, Idaho, as the same is platted in the official plat thereof, now of record in the office of the recorder of said County

The Trustee has no knowledge of a more particular description of the above referenced real property, but for purposes of compliance with Section 60-113 Idaho Code, the Trustee has been informed the address of 116 5th Ave. East, Jerome, ID, is sometimes associated with the said real property.

This Trustee's Sale is subject to a bankruptcy filing, a payoff, a reinstatement or any other conditions of which the Trustee is not aware that would cause the cancellation of this sale. Further, if any of these conditions exist, this sale may be null and void, the successful bidder's funds shall be returned, and the Trustee and the Beneficiary shall not be liable to the successful bidder for any damages.

Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, possessions or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the Deed of Trust executed by Gabe A. Laraway and Jessica Laraway, husband and wife, as Grantor(s) with Mortgage Electronic Registration System, Inc. as nominee for D.L. Evans Bank, its successors and assigns as the Beneficiary, under the Deed of Trust recorded February 20, 2007, as Instrument No. 2070989, in the records of Jerome County, Idaho. The Beneficial interest of said Deed of Trust was subsequently assigned to Suntrust Mortgage, Inc., recorded April 15, 2011, as Instrument No. 2111855, in the records of said County.

THE ABOVE GRANTORS ARE NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506(4)(a), IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THEY ARE, OR ARE NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION.

The default for which this sale is to be made is the failure to pay the amount due under the certain Promissory Note and Deed of Trust, in the amounts called for thereunder as follows:

Monthly payments in the amount of $751.65 for the months of November 2010 through and including to the date of sale, together with late charges and monthly payments accruing. The sum owing on the obligation secured by said Deed of Trust is $93,965.67 as principal, plus service charges, attorney's fees, costs of this foreclosure, any and all funds expended by Beneficiary to protect their security interest, and interest accruing at the rate of 6.25% from October 1, 2010, together with delinquent taxes plus penalties and interest to the date of sale.

The Beneficiary elects to sell or cause the trust property to be sold to satisfy said obligation.
DATED this 18th day of April, 2011.

APPLICATION FOR INFORMAL PROBATE AND APPOINTMENT OF PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVE IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE FIFTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT OF THE STATE OF IDAHO, IN AND FOR JEROME COUNTY
MAGISTRATE DIVISION
Case No. CV-2010-1422

IN THE MATTER OF THE ESTATE OF BETTY J. McCRACKEN, Deceased.

Petitioner, James B. Nutter & Company states and represents to the Registrar as follows:

1. Petitioner, James B. Nutter & Company's interest in this matter is that of a creditor of the estate of Betty J. McCracken.
2. Decedent, Betty J. McCracken, died on January 8, 2010.
3. Venue is proper because at the time of death, Decedent was domiciled in Jerome County, Idaho.
4. To the best of Petitioner's knowledge there are no living heirs.
5. No personal representative has been appointed in this state or elsewhere.
6. Petitioner has neither received nor is aware of any demand for notice of any probate or appointment proceeding concerning the decedent that may have been filed in this state or elsewhere.
7. The time limit for informal probate and appointment has not expired because not more than three years have passed since the decedent's death.
8. Upon information and belief, the decedent died intestate.
9. There are no known heirs with a priority of appointment as personal representative. If anyone qualified to act as such appears in this matter, it is requested that such individual be appointed as personal representative. In the event no person with priority accepts appointment, Petitioner seeks appointment as creditor of the estate of decedent.
10. Bond is not required
11. The total assets in the above estate are exempt from State of Idaho and Federal Estate Taxes. The total value of Decedent's estate is less than $1,000,000.00 which does not require the filing of State of Idaho tax returns or a Federal estate tax return.
12. The assets of the estate should be identified. Petitioner has a Deed of Trust on real property owned by the Decedent and seeks administration of the estate in order to judicially foreclose on the Deed of Trust.

WHEREFORE, PETITIONER REQUESTS THAT:

1. The Decedent's estate be informally probated.
  2. If no individual of higher priority is found, James B. Nutter & Company be informally appointed Personal Representative of Decedent, to act without bond.
  3. Upon qualification and acceptance, Letters of Administration by issued.
- Dated this 22nd day of December, 2010.

Today is Thursday, May 12, the 132nd day of 2011. There are 233 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On May 12, 1937, Britain's King George VI was crowned at Westminster Abbey; his wife, Elizabeth, was crowned as queen consort.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1780, during the Revolutionary War, the besieged city of Charleston, S.C., surrendered to British forces.

In 1870, an act creating the Canadian province of Manitoba was given royal assent, to take effect in July.

In 1930, Chicago's Adler Planetarium first opened to the public.

In 1932, the body of Charles Lindbergh Jr., the kidnapped son of Charles and Anne Lindbergh, was found in a wooded area near Hopewell, N.J.

In 1943, during World War II, Axis forces in North Africa surrendered.

In 1949, the Soviet Union lifted the Berlin Blockade, which the Western powers had succeeded in circumventing with their Berlin Airlift.

In 1958, the United States and Canada signed an agreement to create the North American Air Defense Command (later the North American Aerospace Defense Command, or NORAD for short).

In 1970, the Senate voted unanimously to confirm Harry A. Blackmun as a Supreme Court justice.

In 1978, the Commerce Department said hurricanes would no longer be given only female names.

In 1982, in Fatima, Portugal, security guards overpowered a Spanish priest armed with a bayonet who attacked Pope John Paul II. (In 2008, the pope's longtime private secretary revealed that the pontiff was slightly wounded in the assault.)

Ten years ago: Singer Perry Como died in Jupiter Inlet Colony, Fla., at age 88.

Five years ago: Tony Snow made his debut as White House press secretary. A ruptured gas pipeline in southwestern Nigeria exploded as villagers were collecting fuel, killing up to 200 people. South Korean prosecutors indicted disgraced scientist Hwang Woo-suk on charges of fraud, embezzlement and bioethics violations linked to faked stem cell research. (Hwang was convicted in 2009 for embezzling research funds and illegally buying human eggs; he received a suspended prison term.)

One year ago: An Afriqiyah Airways Airbus A330-200 jetliner plunged into the Libyan desert less than a mile from the runway in Tripoli after a flight from Johannesburg; a 9-year-old Dutch boy was the sole survivor of the crash that killed 103 people. An attacker hacked seven children and two adults to death in a rampage at a kindergarten in northwest China before taking his own life. Republicans chose Tampa, Fla., as the site of their 2012 presidential convention. Kelly Kulick, the first woman to win a PBA Tour title when she beat the men in the Tournament of Champions, won the U.S. Women's Open for her second women's major victory in 15 days.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"Be not deceived, for every deed you do
I could match — outmatch..."
— Claude McKay

Consider this awkward deal from a recent Cavendish Teams. North-South look destined to reach three no-trump, whether or not East pre-empts — unless they can stop off to double an overly aggressive pair who have gone overboard in diamonds. However, when West clears the diamonds at once, nine tricks seem a long way off.

Nonetheless, in the match between Wayne Chu and Gerald Sosler, both tables found a way to nine tricks in three no-trump. When Craig Gower was declarer, Kay Schulle led a top diamond. (Incidentally, do you approve of East's decision to pre-empt? I do not. At favorable vulnerability, a three-level pre-empt is not absurd, but at unfavorable vulnerability, bidding with this hand looks like a way to go for a large penalty.)

Gower took the second diamond, led the heart queen, covered by the king and ace, and then played off the top spades. When Schulle pitched two diamonds, Gower worked out why and so led the heart 10. He next successfully finessed against the heart nine. Now he cashed out the hearts, reducing to a five-card ending with West holding three diamonds and two clubs. At this point he threw Schulle in with a diamond to cash out her suit, but she then had to lead clubs for his ninth trick. Remarkably, this was for a four-IMP loss, since Schulle's teammate, David Berkowitz, had made exactly the same play, but in three no-trump doubled, to land nine tricks.

ANSWER: Whether it is at rubber, teams, or pairs, it is bad tactics to invite game on a balanced eight-count. The right action is to pass, unless you have both majors, or a five-card suit, or exceptional intermediates. This hand has none of those features, so it is sensible to pass and try to go plus.

IF MAY 12 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You may earn high marks as a leader or reliable confidante in the next month. People will respect your abilities and may offer you beneficial opportunities or wise advice. Embrace either one and see a marked improvement in your life. In June, you can escape for a delightful vacation or while away the hours with a new love interest. You could be at your best in group situations where your genuine friendliness and fairness to people of various walks of life is a valuable asset. Your business sense is sound in August and September so career and financial matters will thrive, but a desire for amorous escapades could rattle your concentration. Lay low in October when you should not make major purchases or borrow money, and sidestep making major changes that could incur long term responsibilities that will be difficult to live up to.

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You are judged by the company you keep. If you feel that others are not supporting your goals, then it is time for a frank talk. The people who are good for you grow closer while detractors disappear.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): If you have energy and enthusiasm, you can excel. But you must use common sense before you invest your money. If in doubt, it is best to ask for advice from a loved one or a successful professional.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Words of wisdom and love are the truly valuable things to treasure. Apply your ample common sense to every problem you face and you will gain cooperation and acceptance from adversaries.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Demonstrate solidarity. Group dynamics might not be your cup of tea, but it could be a case of "united we stand, divided we fall." If you are a good listener, you might hear what you want to hear.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): The "my way or the highway" attitude simply won't cut it. Add some finesse to your presentations; ask for opinions and offer to compromise. You will reach your goals if you will reach out to others.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Disposable income is disposed. An embarrassment of riches is a problem you don't mind to disclose. Going overboard with personal entertainment such as videos and books can upset a savings plan.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Blind faith can be a blessing. Your physical senses may tell you that that it is time to be skeptical or time to take aggressive action, but your intuitions tell you that everything will be just fine in the end.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Every team needs a cheerleader. A significant other could champion your cause or support your dreams in a way that improves your reputation. You have a tendency to err on the side of generosity.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Pull out all the stops. Cosmic conditions are fabulous for creative endeavors, meeting new people and acting on inspirations. By delegating authority, you can reserve more time for your interests.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): There is safety in numbers. A little competition from within your own circle gives you an opportunity to appreciate those who are your best allies and staunchest supporters. You can't do it alone.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Divas may dive off the cliff without a golden parachute. If you want to reap the benefits of being on the winning team, you will need to prove that you can be a team player. Help someone along.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Add one and one to find the answer. Logic might be needed if you want to achieve your goals. A passionate desire to be popular and successful is augmented by facts and figures to plot your course.

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.
