2010 CENSUS: STATE DEMOGRAPHIC PROFILES

Here's looking at you, Idaho

Idaho's population has grown in the last decade — that's no secret. Besides sprouting from 1.29 million to 1.56 million people, though, much remains the same in the Gem State's makeup, according to U.S. Census 2010 data released Thursday. Families make up 69.6 percent of all households, down from 71.9 percent a decade ago. Nothing's changed in the proportion of males to females, either. It's still 49.9 percent female, and 50.1 percent male — exactly the same as the last census. Still, some change has come to Idaho, at times reflecting the economic hardships of the state and a baby boomer population entering its golden years. Here's a look:

By Ben Botkin, Times-News writer

More renters, fewer owners

More Idahoans are living in rentals instead of owning homes than 10 years ago, a sign of the state's struggles with the housing bubble that burst into a flood of foreclosures. Rentals climbed to 30.1 percent in 2010, up from 27.6 percent of households. At the Idaho Housing and Finance Association, for example, thousands of Idahoans have gone through the organization's counseling program for people trying to keep their homes in the last several years, said spokeswoman Katrina Thompson.

A drop in family households with kids

While the rate of family households has dropped by only 2.3 percent, fewer of those families now have children under 18. Just 32.7 percent of families have children, a drop from 36.9 percent in 2000. Meanwhile, the level of households that aren't considered a family has increased from 28.1 percent to 30.4 percent. These households include those with only one person or multiple unrelated people living together as roommates.

Baby boomers move up an age bracket

Of course, we've all grown a decade older since the last census, but we can't forget about those who were only a twinkle in their mother's eye back in 2000. The state's latest population count includes 242,967 youngsters who are 9 years old or younger. That's 15.5 percent of Idahoans. The number of residents between 60 and 64 years old has grown from 3.7 percent in 2000 to 5.3 percent in 2010.

The average Idahoan is 34.6 years old. That's a year up from 33.3 in 2000.

LONG ROAD TO A CSI CAP AND GOWN

ASHLEY SMITH/Times-News

College of Southern Idaho student Timothy Henderson boards a Trans IV bus while talking with driver Chris Leazer at 7:30 a.m. Tuesday. Today, Henderson, who was paralyzed in a 2005 automobile accident, will be among 1,009 CSI graduates to receive diplomas or certificates in the college's 45th annual commencement exercises.

Man obtains degree, despite obstacles

Henderson turns life around after crash leaves him paralyzed

By Amy Huddleston
Times-News writer

When Timothy Henderson awoke from a two-month coma, the Fourth of July had come and gone and Hurricane Katrina had left its mark upon the South.

News of others' devastation was the first thing Henderson remembers hearing as he began to realize his own life had drastically changed. Months earlier, he was a passenger riding back from a round of golf with his friend Ryan Maughan when a collision threw him 60 feet from the vehicle. More than an hour passed before emergency responders found his prone body in a field.

He awoke in the hospital, paralyzed from the waist down, his thoughts entangled by a traumatic brain injury. He had to learn to speak and write again.

"They brought in this dog for patients to pet, and I pointed at it and said, 'elevator.' I had to re-learn everything," he said.

Six years after his accident, Henderson, 42, will receive an associate degree tonight from the College of Southern Idaho. The Twin Falls man will be among the more than 200 students to participate in the Twin Falls college's 45th annual commencement ceremony. About 900 more will pick up their diplomas and professional certificates at a later date.

Accused bank robber faces more charges

Sites reportedly took money from customers

By Bradley Guire
Times-News writer

A preliminary courtroom hearing for accused bank robber Nicholas Sites was delayed Thursday for a second time, after Twin Falls County prosecutors slapped the 26-year-old with additional criminal charges.

Sites

The amended criminal complaint against Sites — five charges of felony robbery with weapons enhancements — was filed Thursday morning in Twin Falls County 5th District Magistrate Court. Sites was initially charged on April 28 with two felony robbery counts.

Idaho Legal Aid shuttering offices to save money

BOISE (AP) — Money woes are forcing a nonprofit legal aid outfit that helps thousands of Idaho's poorest residents to begin shuttering its offices on selected days.

Idaho Legal Aid Services, which has already cut hours of its staff and 21 attorneys, has a $250,000 hole in its $2.6 million annual budget. Its leaders say employees at nine offices will now take forced days off without pay starting on May 27. If that's not enough, layoffs could be in the offing, said Deputy Director James Cook.

Congress in April cut about $15.8 million from the federal agency that provides about 60 percent of Idaho Legal Aid Services' funding.

And a bill in the 2011 Idaho Legislature that would have shored up its coffers died amid opposition from the Idaho Farm Bureau Federation, which has tangled with Legal Aid Services in the past over labor laws that govern migrant workers.

Cook says the demise of this year's legislation kept Idaho as the only state that doesn't provide any funding for legal aid for poor people to get assistance with domestic violence cases, disputes with their landlords, foreclosures, child abuse and neglect cases.

"The sad part about it is, the population that's eligible for our services has gone up," Cook said. "Part of the problem is, our budget has remained the same for a long time."

and First Federal Savings Bank this winter. The Blue Lakes Boulevard location of U.S. Bank was hit on Dec. 16, while the Falls Avenue branch of First Federal Savings Bank was robbed five weeks later. In both instances, bank video surveillance footage showed an individual wearing a hooded coat with a multicolored pattern of skulls, dark jeans, white sneakers, sunglasses and a dark mask.

In each robbery, the suspect brandished a pistol, threatened bank personnel and customers, and took money from both the banks and some customers — hence the multiple charges against Sites.

A new preliminary hearing, scheduled for 8:15 a.m. May 27, will be used to determine if there is enough probable cause to officially charge Sites with a crime. If so, Judge Roger Harris would send the case to district court, where Sites may defend himself in a trial.

According to the court file, defense attorney Keith Roark asked for Thursday's hearing to be pushed back to give him time to further prepare for the additional three charges.

Sites was fingered as the robber following a traffic stop in which police claim they found a bundle of $20 bills with a hole in the middle, which may be a bank bundle for hiding dye packs or tracking devices. Upon a search of Sites' residence, police say they found a black mask, white shoes, multiple pistols and newspaper clippings of the robberies.

Later, an inmate at the Twin Falls County Jail claimed Sites bragged about the robberies while he was held on charges of driving under the influence, possession of a controlled substance and driving with an invalid license.

A felony robbery conviction carries a possible life sentence, while the weapons enhancements could add 15 more years of prison time for each conviction.

Woman allegedly found with 100 grams of meth

By Bradley Guire
Times-News writer

Twin Falls police reported finding approximately $3,300 worth of methamphetamine in a Kimberly woman's car after conducting a traffic stop on Tuesday.

Lynnsey Cummings, 29, was arrested and charged with felony trafficking in meth after Officer Joel Woodward claimed to find 109.6 grams of meth in her gold 1996 Chrysler Sebring. According to Woodward's report, he was dispatched to the 2700 block of Paint Brush Drive in Twin Falls to check on a suspicious vehicle in a residential driveway. The resident told Woodward that a woman, later identified as Cummings, was honking the horn and screaming from inside the car. The resident said Cummings was lying in a fetal position in the car, talking about receiving subliminal messages from the radio. By the time police arrived, Cummings had left.

Woodward reported later finding Cummings at an apartment complex at 2140 Elizabeth Blvd. Upon searching her vehicle, he alleged finding a digital scale, two plastic baggies with a white crystal substance that tested positive for meth, two syringes, four empty plastic baggies and a ledger. Woodward's report estimates the price of a half gram of meth at $50.

Cummings is held on $25,000 bond and faces a May 20 preliminary hearing.

Dennis Clark to be honored Saturday

An appreciation cookout for Jerome Police Officer Dennis Clark will be held Saturday at the Jerome Senior Citizens Center at 520 N. Lincoln Ave.

Clark was injured in the line of duty on Feb. 7 while in pursuit of a suspect. He was hit in the left side of his face with a shotgun blast that came from outside his patrol car and is now blind in one eye.

Money raised will go to a fund that helps provide support to officers hurt in the line of duty and their families.

Hamburgers, hot dogs, chili, beer and soft drinks will be available.

Officers' memorial slated for next week

The Idaho Peace Officers' Memorial annual Candlelight Vigil and Memorial Ceremony will be held on Thursday and May 20 at the ISP Headquarters memorial grounds, 700 S. Stratford Drive in Meridian.

The vigil will start at 9 p.m. Thursday and at 10 a.m. May 20. There will be an officer processional just prior to the memorial ceremony on Friday. This event is designed to honor officers who have died in the line of duty.

Information: Maj. Kedrick Wills, 884-7207.

T.F., Buhl DMV offices to close next week

Both the Twin Falls and Buhl Department of Motor Vehicle offices will close for one day next week for training.

The Buhl office will close on Wednesday and reopen at 8 a.m. Thursday. The Twin Falls office will close on Thursday and reopen at 8 a.m. Friday. However, the Twin Falls Driver's License Office will remain open all day Thursday.

Contact the Buhl office at 543-8023, or the Twin Falls office at 733-7610 ext. 11 for more information.

Henderson said his doctors, therapists and family members will be at the graduation ceremony to celebrate what he calls "a huge accomplishment."

Some, though, will be with him only in spirit.

Henderson lost his high school sweetheart to pneumonia three years after they married. Left with his grief and two girls under the age of 3 to raise on his own, he handled life poorly.

"We were just starting out," he said. "Shortly after her death, I got into drugs and made some bad decisions."

He spent three years in a California prison, and lost both of his children before he was allowed to take his parole in Idaho, where his parents lived. His daughter Melissa chose to live with him when she turned 13, but his oldest daughter, Christina, stayed with her grandparents in California.

Henderson worked framing houses before his accident, but after his physical skills were taken, he turned his efforts toward earning a drafting degree from CSI. He started in 2007, but was slowed by eight surgeries to help repair his battered body. Months after his oldest daughter died in October 2010, a December surgery put another obstacle in Henderson's path.

"It took me four years to get a two-year degree," he said. "It feels good to be almost done. At the beginning it was tough, but now I can see the light at the end of the tunnel."

Henderson lost his friend Ryan Maughan in December. CSI spokesman Doug Maughan — Ryan's father — keeps in touch with Henderson and said he will miss him when he graduates.

"I've always been inspired by people who can accept tragedy in their lives and move on even more positively than they did before. Tim is one of those people," Doug Maughan said. "He has taken the pain and the limitations in his life very matter-of-factly. I know he told Ryan many times not to torture himself over the way things worked out."

Every day at CSI, Henderson takes a 30-minute break from classes to rest on a bench in a side room and relieve the pressure of a sore that has formed from years in a wheelchair. And every day he rallies to complete daily assignments. When he returns home from school, a caretaker helps him with what most people think of as routine procedures — showering, cooking and using the bathroom.

He said he's had a rough road to his diploma, but his instructors, Trans IV transportation and others have been his saving grace. After he grabs his diploma tonight, his main goal is to completely heal his wounds before he finds a job. He also has eight credits to complete this summer.

"I could have just lain down and given up, but that's not an option," he said. "I refuse to give up, and am constantly trying to better myself. Once you hit rock bottom, you can only go up."

Montana gives tentative OK to wolf hunt

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — Montana wildlife officials tentatively approved a plan Thursday to allow hunters to kill as many as 220 wolves this fall, marking the state's first wolf management decision since Congress lifted endangered species protections.

The unanimous vote opens the door for the public to weigh in before the commission makes a final decision in July. It would be Montana's second wolf hunt since 2009, when 72 wolves were killed.

Kimberly, Hansen examine joint wastewater plant

Mayor proposes cities work together

By Emily Katseanes
Times-News correspondent

KIMBERLY — The Kimberly City Council has partnered with the city of Hansen to explore the possibility of starting a joint wastewater plant.

Mayor Chad Urie of Hansen appeared at Kimberly's Tuesday council meeting to propose the two towns work together to take advantage of grant money for a facility study.

Hansen was offered a grant of up to $50,000 from the Idaho Department of Environmental Quality, with the city supplying half the match, to do a feasibility study for a wastewater treatment facility. Hansen, however, had almost completed a roughly $70,000 study for its city alone, funded by the city itself after previous grant attempts fell through.

Urie proposed Kimberly chip in $15,000, with Hansen footing $5,000 of the matching grant costs. The new study's focus would then widen to the possibility of creating a joint facility between the two communities, instead of just rebuilding Hansen's current system.

"We would love to look at the possibility of a joint facility," Urie said. "But we don't have a lot of money."

Hansen has started small upgrades at its plant. But if new environmental requirements are attached to it in 2012, the need for a plant rebuild may become more urgent.

Kimberly's waste is handled through the city of Twin Falls. Kimberly Maintenance Superintendent Rob Wright said he expects Kimberly's capacity at the Twin Falls plant to remain steady. Though there is room for expansion, one large business moving to Kimberly could prevent additional growth.

"I don't believe you're in dire straits," Urie said. "But controlling your own destiny would be nice."

Kimberly councilwoman Mitzi Cheldelin said she liked the idea, but not the costs.

"I'm kind of swinging toward 'it's a good idea,' but I'm wondering about the cost for us because we're not under the gun like you are," Cheldelin said. "Maybe a 50-50 split or a 60-40 split would work better."

Councilman Brandon Hoobler said he would also support the idea with a 60-40 split, and Urie agreed. Kimberly will pay $12,000 of the match and Hansen will put up $8,000.

If Kimberly had not been interested in joining in on the study, Urie said Hansen would have turned down the grant and the money would have gone to the next city on DEQ's list, Albion.

In other business, Kimberly is working to wrap up commercial billing under the new tiered water rate structure. On the table is whether to set up a smaller rate for large users, or continue to let commercial users pay a higher rate. Wright also said that the ordinance rewrite could allow for companies to negotiate a lower water rate with the council.

"Usually a commercial industry that will be making a profit will use a lot of water," Wright said. "You certainly don't want to kill that industry off."

Wright said Kimberly currently has about 50 commercial water users, including schools, multiplex housing units and car washes.

The council hopes to set a special meeting to discuss the issue, after city administrators are trained on software to gather water data.

The city Utility Advisory Committee, two members of which were in the audience, also hopes to discuss the matter.

Mayor Dave Overacre was absent from Tuesday's meeting.

Times-News

The U.S. Bureau of Land Management wants your thoughts on a proposed 170-turbine wind farm in southwest Twin Falls County, and how it will affect the environment around it.

The agency recently released its draft environmental review of the China Mountain Wind Project, which would scatter towers that could generate up to 425 megawatts across nearly 30,700 acres of Brown's Bench.

Now, the BLM is gathering feedback on the draft review to incorporate into its final version.

The meetings include one from 4 to 7 p.m. Wednesday in Jackpot, Nev., at the Jackpot Recreation Center, 2395 Progressive Road. Or, share your thoughts on Thursday in Twin Falls, from 4 to 7 p.m. at the Red Lion Hotel Canyon Springs, 1357 Blue Lakes Blvd. N.

Protecting Idaho's land the cooperative way

Along with the Owyhee badlands and the Salmon-Selway wilderness, the Pioneer Mountains drainage is Idaho's last undiscovered country.

Straddling Craters of the Moon National Monument, it's a wild swath of high desert that's home to sage grouse, pronghorn antelope, elk, mule deer, moose, sage thrasher, pikas and rare plants.

And with the cooperation of the Nature Conservancy, Hailey ranchers Kathleen and Brian Bean aim to keep it that way.

According to the Idaho Statesman, the Beans have placed 4,533 acres of ranch lands into conservation easements that will prevent development forever. The idea is to protect both the land and the ranching tradition that has dominated the past 150 years of the region's history.

Our view: Sometimes, preserving wild lands is easier when the government's not directly involved.

What do you think? We welcome viewpoints from our readers on this and other issues.

The Nature Conservancy of Idaho, which also manages preserves at Thousand Springs and Silver Creek, will hold the easements.

The two properties protected by easements are located in the West Fork of Fish Creek drainage in the Pioneers, a range that spans Blaine, Butte and Custer counties and includes Copper Basin and some of the tallest peaks in Idaho. They're part of an ecosystem and connected landscape that stretches from the top of the 11,000-plus mountains between Hailey and Mackay south through the Craters of the Moon down to 4,000 feet and nearly to Interstate 84.

The Pioneer's Alliance isn't talking about national monuments or national parks, but working with local folks seeking to protect the values they want as well as the land. Conservation groups, state and federal agencies, other ranchers and businesses are part of the effort.

That, it seems to us, is a paradigm for protecting much of what we value in Idaho without the neverending tension between federal land management and private use.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Are levvies a ploy to get sympathy votes?

Dear Friends and Neighbors:

Getting more money for your household or business has never been easier! Just hold a vote! All you need to do is have a majority of voters say "yes" to help you out and everyone else will be forced to. You only have to make general claims for why you need the money. You won't have to explain why you can't make it on the money you earn. You won't even have to give an accounting for the money you already spent! It's called a supplemental levy. It's great!

Do you need equipment for your farm? A levy is the way to go. Having trouble making payroll? A levy is the answer. Consider a levy to fix your roof! If you can't make it on what you earn, just force others to make up the difference! By having a vote, it makes you feel like the people being forced are agreeing to help. The trick is not to let the voters know so that only those that will say yes will vote.

For more information on how to make a supplemental levy work for you, just contact your local Cassia School Board member or superintendent. They have one planned for May 17.

And please vote "yes" on Chad's Supplemental Levy. I won't tell you when it is, just in case you might vote against it.

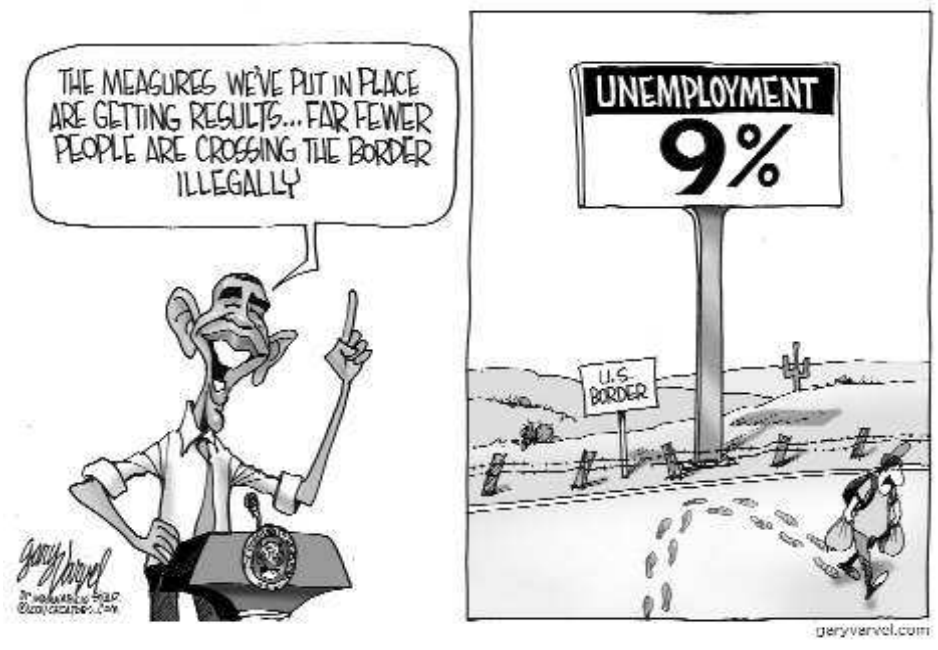
Not enough men at work



In 1910, Henry Van Dyke wrote a book called The Spirit of America, which opened with this sentence: "The Spirit of America is best known in Europe by one of its qualities — energy."

David Brooks

This has always been true. Americans have always been known for their manic dynamism. Some condemned this ambition as a grubby scrambling after money. Others saw it in loftier terms. But energy has always been the country's saving feature.

So Americans should be especially alert to signs that the country is becoming less vital and industrious. One of those signs comes to us from the labor market. As my colleague David Leonhardt pointed out recently, in 1954, about 96 percent of American men between the ages of 25 and 54 worked. Today that number is around 80 percent. One-fifth of all men in their prime working ages are not getting up and going to work.

According to figures from the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, the United States has a smaller share of prime-age men in the workforce than any other G-7 nation. The number of Americans on the permanent disability rolls, meanwhile, has steadily increased. Ten years ago, 5 million Americans collected a federal disability benefit. Now 8.2 million do. That costs taxpayers $115 billion a year, or about $1,500 per household. Government actuaries predict that the trust fund that pays for these benefits will run out of money within seven years.

Part of the problem has to do with human capital. More American men lack the emotional and professional skills they would need to contribute. According to data from the Bureau of Labor Statistics, 35 percent of those without a high school diploma are out of the labor force, compared with less than 10 percent of those with a college degree.

Part of the problem has to do with structural changes in the economy. Sectors like government, health care and leisure have been growing, generating jobs for college grads. Sectors like manufacturing, agriculture and energy have been getting more productive, but they have not been generating more jobs. Instead, companies are using machines or foreign workers.

The result is this: There are probably more idle men now than at any time since the Great Depression, and this time the problem is mostly structural, not cyclical. These men will find it hard to attract spouses. Many will pick up habits that have a corrosive cultural influence on those around them. The country will not benefit from their potential abilities.

This is a big problem. It can't be addressed through the sort of short-term Keynesian stimulus some on the left are still fantasizing about. It can't be solved by simply reducing the size of government, as some on the right imagine.

It will probably require a broad menu of policies attacking the problem all at once: expanding community colleges and online learning; changing the corporate tax code and labor market rules to stimulate investment; adopting German-style labor market practices like apprenticeship programs, wage subsidies and programs that extend benefits to the unemployed for six months as they start small businesses.

Reinvigorating the missing fifth — bringing them back into the labor market and using their capabilities — will certainly require money. If this were a smart country, we'd be having a debate about how to shift money from programs that provide comfort and toward programs that spark reinvigoration.

But, of course, that's not what is happening. Discretionary spending, which might be used to instigate dynamism, is declining. Health care spending, which mostly provides comfort to those beyond working years, is expanding. Attempts to take money from health care to open it up for other uses are being crushed.

There are basically two ways to cut back on the government health care spending. From the top, a body of experts can be empowered to make rationing decisions. This is the approach favored by President Obama and in use in many countries around the world. Alternatively, at the bottom, costs can be shifted to beneficiaries with premium supports to help them handle the burden. Different versions of this approach are embodied in the Dutch system, the prescription drug benefit and Rep. Paul Ryan's budget.

We'll probably need a mixture of these approaches to figure out what works. Instead, Republicans decry the technocratic rationing model as "death panels." Democrats have gone into demagogic overdrive calling premium support ideas "privatization" or "the end of Medicare."

Let's be clear about the effect of this mendacity: We're locking in the nation's wealth into the Medicare program and closing off any possibility that we might do something significant to reinvigorate the missing fifth. Next time you see a politician demagoguing Medicare, ask this: Should we be using our resources in the manner of a nation in decline or one still committed to stoking the energy of its people and continuing its rise?

Idahoans have been swindled; sign the referendum petition

READER COMMENT
Deborah Silver

Our legislators have come home celebrating that they have satisfied the constitutionally mandated requirement they balance the budget. But they have failed to satisfy another constitutional mandate — the one that requires them "to establish and maintain a general, uniform and thorough system of public, free common schools."

Let's think back on how this happened. Republican Superintendent Tom Luna wins his election by defending the existing education system of our state, and suggesting he will fight for increased funding. Three months later, he proposes major reform to the existing system by killing an estimated 770 teaching jobs to pay for out-of-state technology.

The Idaho Statesman publishes a story demonstrating the financial links that the superintendent has to out-of-state companies which will profit from the firing of Idaho teachers. The J.A. Albertson Foundation is linked to one of these companies and spends thousands of dollars to promote the education bills.

Proposals come from all directions to ease the state's financial strain without handing our education system to out-of-state interests. Maxine Bell, R-Jerome, suggests fund balances be used. The Tea Party of Southeast Idaho suggests that farmers lose their production tax exemption. Democratic voices suggest examining tax exemptions such as the exemption for driver's education vehicles. Voices on all sides propose an increase in the state's cigarette tax — a tax that is currently the lowest in the United States.

But these suggestions are ignored by the Legislature, who would rather destroy 770 teaching jobs than raise taxes on a product that causes cancer.

The Republican legislature accepts Superintendant Luna's plan without any evidence to show that computers can replace teachers in effectiveness. They dismiss an unprecedented show of citizens' testimony overwhelmingly against these bills. They institute a system of merit pay but do not fund it, and they preempt existing contracts so that teachers may be fired at any time. At the same time, in an act of blatant economic hypocrisy, the Republican legislature votes to pay the Republican Party $100,000 in Idaho tax dollars to reimburse court costs that closed the primary elections to Independent voters.

So while the Republican Legislature slips money toward its own party coffers, school districts face the financial burden of operating their schools as real costs are passed on to them. This puts school boards and districts in the position of proposing additional levies. These efforts pass or fail depending on the community support. How does this fit with a "general, uniform and thorough system of public, free common schools" as mandated by our state constitution?

Where in any of this discussion have we addressed effective education of our children? Where have we discussed the constitutionally mandated uniform system of education? Nowhere. The Republican Legislature has reduced the discussion to dollars. And, the dollars they discuss will ultimately flow out of Idaho toward companies linked to the state superintendant of schools, Tom Luna.

The citizens of Idaho have been ignored and swindled, but there is something we can do.

A referendum petition is being circulated that will finally give Idaho voters a chance to be heard. If enough signatures are acquired, the new education laws will be placed on the 2012 ballot and the citizens of Idaho will be able to determine if these laws are best for our children and the future of Idaho.

We have until the end of May to gather the required signatures. We encourage people to involve themselves in this process any way they can.

Petitions are available at the office of Hayes & Silver, CPAs, 2188 Addison Ave. E. from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. Monday-Thursday. They are also available at the IEA office at 808 Eastland Drive # A, or call (208) 734-5015.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Why should we pay for government's lack of prep

Buhl voters should vote no on increased taxes. This letter is a response to the May 9 editorial regarding the levy votes in Hansen and Buhl.

To say people need to be convinced to vote into increasing their own taxes while politicians get to tout how well they cut and balanced the budget is ridiculous. I do understand the need for schools to patch their budget holes in the wake of the policy decisions set forth by our state Legislature and state school board, but it's like the old saying goes, "Lack of preparation on your behalf does not constitute an emergency on mine."

Our politicians lacked the preparation to realize the real world outcomes to their fiscal decisions that has led to this problem for our community; or worse, they just didn't care. When Republicans run for office they generally promise or imply lower taxes for all and balanced budgets, but when they go to the Capitol and create policy and number crunching that makes local communities have to pass emergency levies to patch holes in current fiscal years, where I'm supposed to feel guilty about this emergency and vote to increase my own taxes, makes me think they are getting a political gain while I'm getting a net loss.

Sorry, I will vote no to increase my taxes as that's what was promised or implied by the representative politicians and, when it comes time to vote on their job, I'll be sure to do my part to vote them out.

When you're tired seeing overcrowded classrooms fall apart around students while corporations continue to get massive tax cuts and incentives, maybe you'll do the same. For those that need more time to be convinced, don't worry, I'm sure the ceiling tiles in schools won't cause much head trauma.

Siegel has experience to be school board trustee

Vote for Dixie Siegel.

Twin Falls is privileged to have a passionate, well-qualified candidate running for school board trustee from Zone 4.

Dixie Siegel has lived here for 34 years and has had two daughters and a foreign exchange student from Spain graduate from Twin Falls High School. She has a bachelor's degree in psychology from the University of Southern Colorado, an associate's degree in business from the College of Southern Idaho and currently holds secondary certificates from Idaho State University in English, psychology, business education, basic math and humanities. She has taught at Magic Valley High School and Jerome High School. She has taught in summer and after-school programs for years as well as helped facilitate the annual Magic Valley Hispanic Heritage Scholarship Pageant. She has worked this past year in the federal NAEP program in Magic Valley schools testing fourth and eighth grade students to verify their academic progression. She is currently an adjunct master trainer in Jan Mittleider's Stanford University Living Well grant program at CSI, teaching those who live with chronic diseases in coping skills to achieve a better quality of life.

Dixie believes that our school district has to achieve mutual respect between trustees, teachers, administrators, legislators and students in the goal of achieving all we can with limited resources. Sagging morale for all must be addressed by pulling together and coming up with creative ways to move forward and give students the best education possible on the budget we have before us. She will be a part of the solution in these trying times.

Cougar captured near grocery store

LEWISTON — A long tail sticking out of the shrubbery was the first clue that a cougar had taken up residence near a grocery store in Lewiston.

The cat was captured Wednesday afternoon after a wildlife biologist shot the 80- to 100-pound male with a tranquilizer dart.

Idaho Fish and Game officials are seeking a zoo or research facility that is willing to take the animal, or it will have to be tranquilized because it has had contact with people.

Safeway employee Fred Coates says someone working on a landscaping crew asked him if there were any animals living in the bushes because there was a long tail sticking out of one. Coates went to investigate, spotted the cougar and called authorities.

U of I dean picked for Montana Tech

BUTTE, Mont. — University of Montana President Royce Engstrom is recommending Donald Blackketter be named the new chancellor of Montana Tech in Butte.

Blackketter is the dean of the College of Engineering at the University of Idaho. He was selected from among four finalists to replace Chancellor Frank Gilmore, who served for 13 years.

Engstrom says he'll recommend the state Board of Regents approve Blackketter's hiring during their Thursday meeting in Kalispell.

Blackketter, who grew up in Bozeman, earned his bachelor's, master's and doctoral degrees in mechanical engineering from the University of Wyoming and has been at the University of Idaho in various roles since 1989.

He is scheduled to start at Tech on June 27. Blackketter will earn $197,000 annually, plus use of a house and a car.

Man indicted for 2 Boise robberies

BOISE — The U.S. attorney's office in Idaho says a 54-year-old man has been indicted on two counts of bank robbery for holdups that happened last month in Boise.

An Ada County grand jury indicted Bryan Mark Johnson of Las Vegas on Wednesday for the April 2 robbery of a Wells Fargo branch and the April 22 robbery of a Key Bank branch. He also was indicted for unlawful possession of a firearm and possession of a firearm in furtherance of bank robbery.

Johnson's co-defendant, 65-year-old Melvin Glen Lantis, also of Las Vegas, was indicted on a charge of being an accessory after the fact for hindering Johnson's apprehension.

ISP investigating 3 forensic lab workers

BOISE — The Idaho State Police has launched an investigation into three of its own employees for potential violations related to policy in the agency's forensics lab.

Idaho State Police Major Kedrick Wills said all three employees have been placed on administrative leave pending the outcome of the internal investigation.

Will said allegations are not criminal, and instead conflict with policy and standard procedure. He also says the allegations do not appear to have compromised any previous or current casework.

The Lewiston Tribune reports the employees are suspected of hiding chemicals and controlled substances from audits and authorized uses.

Wills says the agency has high confidence in the state lab and there is no reason to believe the issues under inquiry go beyond the three lab employees.

Biologists: Angler caught in lie

SANDPOINT — A Coeur d'Alene man has been ordered to pay more than $6,800 in restitution for defrauding a bounty program that pays anglers who catch trout in Lake Pend Oreille.

Christopher Pluntz pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor theft charge Wednesday as part of a plea deal with prosecutors.

The Coeur d'Alene Press reports that Idaho Fish and Game managers thought something was fishy last year after the 44-year-old angler turned in 443 rainbow trout heads and collected a $15 bounty on each.

Investigators examined the heads and determined that the rainbow trout belonged to a coastal variety, not the type found in Lake Pend Oreille.

The bounty program aims to help the lake's struggling kokanee trout population.

Rethinking unemployment among veterans

Bill would make job training mandatory for U.S. troops

By Rob Hotakainen
McClatchy Newspapers

WASHINGTON — For the first time, U.S. troops would be required to enroll in a federal job-training program before they're allowed to leave the military under a bill introduced in the Senate on Wednesday.

Called the Hiring Heroes Act of 2011, it's aimed at reducing an unemployment rate of 27 percent for veterans returning from the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan.

"We are taking a huge step forward in rethinking the way we treat our men and women in uniform after they leave the military," said Sen. Patty Murray, D-Wash., the chief sponsor of the bill.

Too many returning troops are suffering from "the invisible wounds of war" and need more help finding jobs, said Murray, chairman of the Senate Veterans' Affairs Committee.

"We read about it in the skyrocketing suicide statistics, problems at home, substance abuse and even in the rising homelessness among our returning veterans," she said at a news conference on the U.S. Capitol lawn.

There's no cost estimate for the bill, but Murray noted that in 2010, the Department of Defense paid out $500 million in unemployment benefits for Army veterans.

Under the bill, departing service members would learn about such things as job searches, career decision-making, occupational and labor market conditions, interviewing techniques and how to write cover letters and resumes. It would be offered as part of the Transition Assistance Program, which was created by a partnership among the Departments of Defense, Veterans Affairs, Transportation and Labor.

Currently, veterans can voluntarily participate in the program. But officials said

Head to the Friday Night Market instead

By Blair Koch
Times-News writer

Vendors and businesses alike have spent the past week preparing for this evening's Friday Night Market.

The market, on Main Avenue between Shoshone and Gooding streets, is in its second week, and attendees can expect a few changes.

For one, the event starts at 5 p.m. — an hour later than last week.

"I think a lot of people were still at work, and it was a bit slow to start," said organizer Sarah Taylor, who noted the weather didn't cooperate either.

Today's forecast calls for temperatures in the upper 70s and a chance of thunderstorms.

Sony offers ID theft protection to customers

The Associated Press

The massive data breach at Sony Corp.'s PlayStation Network has left accountholders worrying that their credit card information could fall into the wrong hands. Now the technology giant is hoping to ease concerns by offering free identity theft protection to affected customers.

The PlayStation Network links gamers worldwide in live play and serves the company's Qriocity movie and music services.

The details

Sony says the ID theft protection will be free for 12 months after enrollment. The company says PlayStation Network and Qriocity account holders should expect an email in coming days with instructions on how to enroll in the AllClear ID Plus program by Debix Inc.

Those who enroll will receive monthly status reports and alerts if the program detects their personal information is being misused. The program also includes an insurance policy that provides up to $1 million in relief for covered costs for a year after an identity theft incident.

Customers will have until June 18 to sign up for the program.

Background

Sony shut down its PlayStation Network on April 20, a day after it said it began investigating unusual activity. The company later disclosed a data breach that it said resulted from a sophisticated criminal attack designed to steal personal and credit card information.

Without offering a specific timeline, the company signaled in a blog post Thursday that service on the PlayStation Network could be restored soon.

Sony is also enticing potentially wary customers with a "welcome back" program that includes complimentary entertainment downloads and a 30-day membership to its PlayStation Plus premium service.

$4 a gallon? 4 more reasons to bike to work

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Consider it a sign from the corner gas station. It's time to start biking to work.

With a gallon of gas topping $4 in many parts of the country, you may finally be willing to ditch the car and hop on a bike.

With Bike to Work Day around the corner on May 20, here are four reasons to join the movement:

1. Biking Broadens Your Options

Think of biking as a way to become an empowered commuter.

2. The World Is Getting More Bike Friendly

It's always easier to make changes in your life when you have a support network. And the community of bikers is only poised to continue growing.

3. A Bike Ride is More Fun Than the Elliptical

The financial perks of biking to work don't end at the gas station. Biking is also a reason to reconsider that gym membership.

4. It's a Low Maintenance Habit

All you really need to bike to work is a comfortable pair of pants and shoes.

Job gains should offset higher gas, food prices

By Christopher S. Rugaber and Martin Crutsinger
Associated Press writers

WASHINGTON — Consumers spent more in April, but most of their money went to pay higher food and gas prices.

The rising cost of basic necessities is threatening to slow economic growth in the coming months. But hiring gains are the best in five years, commodity prices are easing, and gas prices could follow in the weeks ahead.

Economists say the stronger job market will offset the impact of inflation and drive the economy in the second half of the year.

"If this is the full hit from the rise in gas prices, it is no big deal," said Ian Shepherdson, chief U.S. economist for High Frequency Economics.

More expensive gas boosted retail sales 0.5 percent in April, the 10th straight month of gains. But excluding gas station sales, the increase was only 0.2 percent, the Commerce Department said Thursday.

Companies also paid more for raw materials and factory goods in April, mostly because energy prices jumped for the seventh straight month.

The Labor Department said its producer price index, which measures price changes before they reach the consumer, rose 0.7 percent. But after taking out volatile food and energy categories, core wholesale prices increased only 0.3 percent, the same gain as the previous month.

Fuel prices have been surging in recent months. The nationwide average for gas has hovered slightly below $4 per gallon. Economists are worried that higher fuel costs will leave motorists with less money to spend on other discretionary goods. That would slow economic growth.

Consumers are paying more for food, too. Grocery stores sales jumped 1.5 percent, according to the retail sales data. That's triple the March increase and a reflection of higher prices.

But commodity prices have dropped in recent days, hinting that inflationary pressures could cool in the coming months. Oil prices ticked up slightly Thursday to near $99 a barrel. But that's still down from nearly $114 a barrel last week. Corn prices fell sharply Wednesday and have been little changed on Thursday.

Mojave Desert hamlet banks on green technology

By Tiffany Hsu
Los Angeles Times

McClatchy

City Manager Les Bourell stands by an 80-kilowatt solar installation in Nipton, Calif., in December 2010. The remote, Mojave Desert town has solar panels that provide about 85 percent of the community's power.

NIPTON, Calif.— Gerald Freeman was prospecting for gold in the Mojave Desert when he stumbled on Nipton.

In 1984, it had become a virtual ghost town. Its sole resident lived in the trading post selling sodas to the occasional wayward traveler.

But where most saw desolation, Freeman saw "a little place to make a home" and maybe some money too. The Caltech-trained geologist shelled out $200,000 to buy the tiny, tattered outpost.

For a quarter-century, Freeman struggled to make much of the place, spending roughly $1 million on restoration. About 20 people eventually moved in, most living in recreational vehicles and trailers.

But now Freeman thinks he's finally figured out a way to turn Nipton into a boomtown.

He put up rows of gleaming solar panels, and recently began selling hats emblazoned with the hamlet's new motto: "Nipton, powered by the sun."

It's part of a major push to make Nipton a sustainable wonderland, a green hospitality center for nature lovers headed into the neighboring Mojave National Preserve.

The 80-kilowatt solar installation — enough to power most of the town — is 10 miles from Interstate 15 and two miles from the Nevada border. Freeman has also erected five "eco-cabins" based on designs by Frank Lloyd Wright.

In the next decade, Freeman envisions energy-efficient buildings, an organic farm, electric vehicle charging stations and even more solar installations. If the local winds weren't so weak, he'd erect wind turbines too.

Nipton isn't the only U.S. town hopping on the environmental bandwagon. But Nipton has one advantage: Freeman owns the town.

"I decide the priorities around here, and those are to be a real community, not a Disneyland with staged shootouts at high noon," he said, alluding to Calico, west on I-15, which has turned its ghost town heritage into a tourist attraction.

Veterans

roughly one-third of those leaving the Army choose not to.

Murray, 60, said that for too long Americans have patted veterans on the back, thanked them for their service, and then "pushed them out into the job market alone."

She said she wants to make sure that returning troops end up with good careers, not homeless or addicted or as "a generation lost."

Paul Rieckhoff, executive director of Iraq and Afghanistan Veterans of America, said, "We consistently hear from our members that the challenges in this job market are mounting. They need jobs and skills training to transition into the civilian work force, and we're encouraged to see that Congress is taking aggressive action on this front. There is a long road ahead."

Market

"Hopefully, it will stay sunny throughout. That would really help bring people out," Taylor said.

Another difference? The market has grown from about 12 booths to about 17.

If you didn't attend the market's debut — and even if you did — you'll want to hit downtown Twin Falls this evening: vendors and businesses have been preparing all week.

Here are a few things to watch for.

• Holesinsky Organic Vineyard & Winery in Buhl.

Vintner James Holesinksy said some of his wine, including his award-winning Ice Wine, is only sold at farmers markets. Plus, springtime is when new wines are unveiled.

You'll likely have to wait for wine tasting, however, as Holesinsky's permit is awaiting processing at city hall.

"I'm excited," Holesinsky said. "We need this. Twin Falls needs this. The Magic Valley needs this, and we're lucky to be part of getting this market going."

• Rock Star Rae. This Main Avenue business has been selling vintage and costume jewelry, purses and other accessories since August.

Owner Acy Maldonado is taking advantage of increased foot traffic by staying open later and displaying product on the sidewalk.

"We had a lot of people, different people, than usually comes in here," Maldonado said. "I'm excited about the market because it gives us more exposure."

If you're not captured by rock-bottom priced (but very trendy) items outside, don't be afraid to step inside.

"Our target market is people from 16 to over 85 years old. Costume jewelry was a big part of fashion, and it's come back, big time," she said.

• Green Grass and Sunshine, goat cheese and milk.

Owner Gena Herzinger produces a very mild and creamy chevre cheese from seven goats she milks on the Buhl-based farm.

"I plan to be there every week," Herzinger said. "Obviously, since last week was the first market, there are are a few things to smooth out, but I enjoyed the music, variety of vendors and businesses, and it's a very nice atmosphere for a market."

• Desktop by Design, 120 Main Ave. N.

Shannon Gnesa, owner, said the market's layout makes sense for perimeter businesses.

Instead of facing vendors away from stores, market attendees can easily browse both storefronts and booths simultaneously.

Gnesa is matching her store hours to the market.

"I think the market had some good momentum. Now we just need to keep it going," Gnesa said.

• Soft Touch Greenhouse.

Val Hymas said he'll have a different lineup of vegetable starts and flowers each week.

Tonight, you'll find hanging baskets with tumbling color from petunias, verbena, geraniums and more, and hardy tomato and bell pepper plants.

Hymas said getting into the market was good luck. He didn't know the event would take root when he added a greenhouse to his small, Filer operation earlier this year.

"I think the market is a good opportunity for all of us," Hymas said.

• Dot +Line Home.

A husband and wife team, Peter and Annie Bierma say they're excited to offer their line of handmade lamps and shades.

Peter crafts the lamp stands from reclaimed wood, and Annie fashions the shades.

"They've been selling pretty well in Boise, and we're glad there is interest in them in our hometown," said Annie Bierma.

Eugene F. Mauzey

Sept. 14, 1922-May 10, 2011

BURLEY — Eugene F. Mauzey was born to Earl F. and Jenny (LeFevre) Mauzey on Sept. 14, 1922, at Sunset Orchards, Woods Bay, Mont. He stepped into the presence of the Savior he loved Tuesday, May 10, 2011.

He grew up on the shores of Flathead Lake, where he learned to work hard in the orchards that were the family business. He also learned to swim, ice skate and fish — pastimes he taught his kids to enjoy also. In April 1944, he was drafted into the Marine Corps, where he served in the Pacific Theater on the islands of Guam, Okinawa and Guadalcanal. He ended his military service in China, where he participated in the surrender of the Japanese forces to the Chinese.

Gene married Helen M. Burnell on June 19, 1949, and to this union was born three children. He loved his family and was a faithful husband and father. He was a member of the American Legion, served as commander of Flathead Post 7 and was a Boy Scout leader when his sons were young. In 1958, Gene and Helen were introduced to Jesus Christ and his relationship with his Lord was what characterized the remainder of his life. He served faithfully at the Bible Presbyterian Church in Kalispell, Mont., until moving to Burley in 2002 to be closer to his daughter's family. Gene always enjoyed basketball but was made a rabid fan by his youngest son who took him to a Portland Trailblazer game. He was watching the NBA playoffs during the final days of his life.

He is survived by his wife, Helen of Burley; a daughter, Shirley (John) Ramey, also of Burley; two sons, John (Tina) of Kalispell, Mont., and Steve (Linda) of Oregon City, Ore.; six grandchildren; and eight great-grandchildren. He was preceded in death by his parents and a brother, Richard.

Gene's life was characterized by a servant's heart. He loved helping people and would do all he could to help any one. He would quietly step in to fill any need he saw and never considered a task too menial for his attention. He was deeply loved by his family and friends and will be greatly missed.

A memorial service will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday, May 14, at the Calvary Baptist Church, 515 W. 27th St. in Burley, with Pastor John Ramey officiating. Military rites will be accorded by the Mini-Cassia Veterans Organization.

Arrangements and cremation have been entrusted to the care of the Rasmussen Funeral Home of Burley.

How bin Laden emailed without being detected

By Matt Apuzzo and Adam Goldman
Associated Press writers

WASHINGTON — Despite having no Internet access in his hideout, Osama bin Laden was a prolific email writer. And he had a system that kept him one step ahead of the U.S. government's best eavesdroppers.

His methods, described in new detail to The Associated Press by a counterterrorism official and a second person briefed on the U.S. investigation, served him well for years and frustrated Western efforts to trace him through cyberspace. The arrangement allowed bin Laden to stay in touch worldwide without leaving any digital fingerprints behind.

The people spoke to AP on condition of anonymity to discuss the sensitive intelligence analysis.

Bin Laden's system was built on discipline and trust. But it also left behind an extensive archive of email exchanges for the U.S. to scour. The trove of electronic records pulled out of his compound after he was killed last week is revealing thousands of messages and potentially hundreds of email addresses, the AP has learned.

Holed up in his walled compound in northeast Pakistan with no phone or Internet capabilities, bin Laden would type a message on his computer without an Internet connection, then save it using a thumb-sized flash drive. He then passed the flash drive to a trusted courier, who would head for a distant Internet cafe.

There, the courier would plug the memory drive into a computer, copy bin Laden's message into an email and send it. Reversing the process, the courier would copy any incoming email to the flash drive and return to the compound, where bin Laden would read his messages offline.

It was a slow, toilsome process. And it was so meticulous that even veteran intelligence officials have marveled at bin Laden's ability to maintain it for so long. The U.S. always suspected bin Laden was communicating through couriers but did not anticipate the breadth of his communications as revealed by the materials he left behind.

Navy SEALs hauled away roughly 100 flash memory drives after they killed bin Laden, and officials said they appear to archive the back-and-forth communication between bin Laden and his associates around the world.

Al-Qaida operatives are known to change email addresses, so it's unclear how many are still active since bin Laden's death. But the long list of electronic addresses and phone numbers in the emails is expected to touch off a flurry of national security letters and subpoenas to Internet service providers. The Justice Department is already coming off a year in which it significantly increased the number of national security letters, which allow the FBI to quickly demand information from companies and others without asking a judge to formally issue a subpoena.

Officials gave no indication that bin Laden was communicating with anyone inside the U.S., but terrorists have historically used U.S.-based Internet providers or free Internet-based email services.

The cache of electronic documents is so enormous that the government has enlisted Arabic speakers from around the intelligence community to pore over it. Officials have said the records revealed no new terror plot but showed bin Laden remained involved in al-Qaida's operations long after the U.S. had assumed he had passed control to his deputy, Ayman al-Zawahri.

The files seized from bin Laden's compound have the potential to help the U.S. find other al-Qaida figures, and they may force terrorists to change their routines. That could make them more vulnerable to being discovered.

GOP moves to cut money for airport body scanners

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republicans controlling the Transportation Security Administration's purse strings are moving to cut off funding for those advanced airport scanners that have sparked outrage over their revealing images of travelers' bodies.

Draft legislation released Thursday by the Appropriations homeland security subcommittee denies the Obama administration's $76 million request for an additional 275 of the scanners, which many travelers dislike because TSA employees can view full body images of travelers.

The GOP move wouldn't affect the 500 or so machines in place at 78 of U.S. airports or the 500 funded in a recent spending bill.

TSA currently gives passengers the option of a pat down in private — a choice that most people find even more intrusive.

Panel chairman Robert Aderholt, R-Ala., said his move was sparked by budgetary factors rather than protests from privacy advocates. And it comes as the TSA is trying to modify the machines so that they won't produce revealing images. Instead, new software would have the machines read the images and alert airport screeners when there's a potential weapon or other threat. The screener would then see the location of the threat as shown on a stick figure of the body.

Earlier HIV therapy found to help prevent virus spread

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treating HIV right away, before patients are too sick, dramatically lowers their chances of spreading the AIDS virus to a sexual partner, says a major international study that may convince more doctors to offer medication sooner.

The nine-nation study offers convincing evidence of what scientists have long believed — that HIV medicines don't just benefit the patient, but may act as a preventive by making those people less infectious. Earlier treatment in the study meant patients were 96 percent less likely to spread the virus to their uninfected partners, according to preliminary results announced Thursday by the National Institutes of Health, which oversaw the research.

Those findings were striking enough that the NIH said it was stopping the study four years ahead of schedule to get the word out.

Rising Mississippi heads for Cajun country

BUTTE LAROSE, La. (AP) — In the latest agonizing decision along the swollen Mississippi River, federal engineers are close to opening a massive spillway that would protect Baton Rouge and New Orleans but flood hundreds of thousands of acres in Louisiana Cajun country.

With that threat looming, some 25,000 people in an area known for small farms, fish camps, crawfish and a drawling French dialect are hurriedly packing their things and worrying that their homes and way of life might soon be drowned.

People in this riverfront community gathered at their volunteer fire station to hear a man dressed in Army fatigues deliver an ominous flood forecast.

Col. Ed Fleming leaned over a podium this week and warned that projections by the Army Corps of Engineers call for the station to be inundated by up to 15 feet of water. The crowd let out a collective gasp.

"From the ground?" an incredulous resident shouted at the meeting.

"From the ground," replied Fleming, head of the corps' New Orleans district.

A few skeptics in the audience scoffed at the projection, but many others were shaken. "It's over with," muttered Pierre Watermeyer. "That's it. There's no sense in pretending."

The corps could open the Morganza floodway north of Baton Rouge as early as this weekend, a move that would relieve pressure on the city's levee system.

Opening the spillway gates for the first time in 38 years will unleash the Mississippi on a wild ride south to the Gulf of Mexico through the Atchafalaya River and divert floodwater from the river into the basin's swamplands, backwater lakes and bayous. Several thousand homes would be at risk of flooding.

Even if engineers decide against opening the spillway, no one seems to doubt that a major flood is bound for Butte LaRose, Krotz Springs, the oil-and-seafood hub of Morgan City and other swampland communities in the Atchafalaya Basin.

If the Mississippi rises much more at New Orleans, the Coast Guard said Thursday that it would consider restrictions on shipping, including potentially closing the channel to the largest, heaviest ships.

Senate panel refers Ensign case to Justice

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Sen. John Ensign of Nevada broke federal law, made false statements to the Federal Election Commission and obstructed a Senate Ethics Committee's investigation into his conduct, the panel said Thursday in a scathing report that sent the matter to the Justice Department for possible prosecution.

The former Republican lawmaker "created a web of deceit that entangled and compromised numerous people," the committee said, adding that it had assembled enough evidence to warrant possible expulsion had Ensign not resigned.

Ensign quit May 3.

Find a new favorite among these Magic Valley bands

By Melissa Davlin
Times-News writer

With music like this, there's no reason to spend your weekends in silence.

Whether they've been together for 25 years or six months, frequent bars or play at church, these Magic Valley bands are making sure their music is heard. As always, check out our Entertainment calendar for even more shows.

DREW NASH/Times-News

Milestone's Valli Robirts plays keyboard at Twin Falls' Oasis Bar & Grill on May 6. Today, the Times-News is profiling four of the bands that frequent Magic Valley's live-music venues.

Renegade

Members: Rick Maritt, vocals and guitar; Larry Jones, vocals and guitar; Vern Baumgardner, bass; Glen Mutter, drums; Linda Schoepp, keyboard.

Genre: Classic and country rock.

How long together: Since 1983. Schoepp, the band's newest addition, joined two years ago.

Where you might have seen them: Western Days in Twin Falls, 360 Event Center, Magic Valley Speedway and other events.

What sets them apart: "They've been together for so long that they're relaxed," Schoepp said.

The band's timing is impeccable, Jones added, saying what they do together is "just really, really natural."

What others say: Shawn Bryan of Sawtooth Sound in Gooding enjoys Renegade's country rock. "They're all very solid musicians, some of the best I've worked with," he said. They put on a good show, and their new album, "Happy Disaster," is full of solid music, he said.

Where you can hear them next: Opening Randy Hansen's new Twin Falls dealership from 1 to 4 p.m. June 18.

Garrison Keillor

Keillor is coming to Sun Valley

Times-News

Best-selling author and popular radio host Garrison Keillor will speak in Sun Valley next year, Sun Valley Center for the Arts confirmed this week.

Keillor's March 5 appearance will be part of the center's 2011-12 lecture series.

"This may be one of the last opportunities to catch this talented humorist in person, since Garrison says this is his farewell tour — he's done speaking in public after 2012," the center's Britt Udesen said in a press release. "The Sun Valley appearance will be just him and will be a rare, more intimate experience than 'A Prairie Home Companion' performance."

Keillor will share anecdotes about growing up in the American Midwest, the people of fictional Lake Wobegon and his adventures in late-life fatherhood.

Ticket prices were not yet determined, the center said Tuesday.

Gooding's deaf drummer feels the beat

By Emily Katseanes
Times-News correspondent

GOODING — After shows, the members of Ask Philips like to mingle with their audience, meeting fans and shaking hands. And though drummer Melissa Jensen is a teen girl in a band of 20-something men, it's not just her beats that make her remarkable.

At 17, Jensen has become an ambassador for rockers in the world who happen to be deaf.

"After playing the music, we talk to fans and they are stunned I am deaf," Jensen said. "I just let people know I have that feeling, and it doesn't matter if you can understand it, you can feel it."

Jensen, the baby of the group, first got a yen to rock out when she heard the beat paired with one Kurt Cobain.

"The first music that I remember hearing was Nirvana," she said. "I would ask my brother, 'What is that sound?' And he would say, 'The drums.'"

So at 7, she took over that brother's unused drum kit. Like many children who terrorize their families with drumming, Jensen said she was drawn to her instrument of choice because it's the loudest and coolest looking.

Soon, she was taking her talent to the house of a friend who had a better drum kit. She wasn't looking to be in front of an audience, but her friends — after getting over the surprise at someone with a hearing impairment pounding away and even plunking on a guitar — asked her to jam. Next she was sitting in on her friend's recording sessions on his laptop. After appearing as a session musician again and again, she was formally asked to join the band of friends who had grown up together.

"I felt like in shock and awe. I felt this is really cool," Jensen said.

She wasn't the only one. Chelsea

Drummer Melissa Jensen, 17, left, laughs along with friend Joey Pace at teacher Aditya Sharma's antics. When she's not in school at the Gooding-area Idaho School for the Deaf and the Blind, Jensen jams out as a drummer for the band Ask Philips.

Grammy winner Grupo Fantasma kicks off summer concert series

Grammy Award-winning Latin-funk band Grupo Fantasma will play the first Sun Valley Center for the Arts outdoor concert of the season, 7 p.m. June 16 at Hailey's Hop Porter Park.

The 10-piece orchestra grew out of Austin's music scene and is made up of musicians with Latin American and Texan backgrounds. Since its 2000 formation, Grupo Fantasma has been praised as an important independent act in the Latin genre, drawing from cumbia, salsa, old-school funk, merengue, reggae and other influences.

"El Existential," the band's latest album released on Nat Geo Music, snagged a Grammy this year for Best Latin Rock, Alternative or Urban Album. The band has backed Prince — including performances at the Coachella music festival, "The Tonight Show" with Jay Leno and at London's 02 Arena — and its horn section recently performed with indie rock band Spoon.

Hear the band's music at grupofantasma.com.

Grupo Fantasma tickets are $15 for Sun Valley Center members, $20 for others and $5 for kids 12 and younger, available at sunvalleycenter.org or 726-9491, ext. 10. Gates open at 6 p.m. Picnic baskets and low lawn chairs are welcome, but not pets. Food and drink will be available for purchase.

The concert is in association with the College of Southern Idaho's Sun Valley Summer Spanish Institute, a week-long intensive program including language instruction and cultural insight. CSI is teaming with the Sun Valley Center for a fifth year to offer a Spanish-language concert in Hailey. Information about Summer Spanish Institute: 788-2033.

You don't need a date, and you don't need tickets. But for social folk, Saturday's opening is a highlight of southern Idaho summers.

Yes, of course I mean the season opening of the Twin Falls Farmers Market — where you can stroll among the booths wearing a chic hat, chatting with fanatic foodies and igniting new friendships. Weather forecasters say we'll have a fine Saturday morning for it. Get in the mood tonight with the second Friday Night Market in downtown Twin Falls. Both places are as much about lingering as shopping.

If you're entertaining a family, some of the most promising things on this weekend's calendar are a Kimberly musical theater production of "Annie Get Your Gun" on Friday and Saturday, and a Hailey dance show of "Mary Poppins" on Saturday and Sunday. Follow that on Wednesday with the Lipizzaner Stallions performance in Filer — yes, the white stallions that tour several continents with their choreographed leaps and maneuvers.

The state historical society's month of Paleoldaho events might seem dull at first glance, but don't be put off: This weekend, that means an "Artifact Roadshow" on Saturday in Twin Falls (bring your rocks and arrowheads and talk with archaeologists), and a hiking tour Sunday at Castle Rocks State Park near Oakley (another promising way to meet people).

And the calendar entry that most fascinates me this week? Local birder and photographer Kathleen Cameron's Thursday talk in Ketchum on bird migrations between Costa Rica and summer breeding territory in Idaho.

For details on these events — and many others — see the full calendar in today's Entertainment section.

Drummer

Paulson, one of Jensen's teachers at the Idaho School for the Deaf and the Blind in Gooding, said that when she met Jensen last fall, she knew the Rexburg teen was a well-rounded student. But Paulson was still taken aback by Jensen's musical talent.

"I knew deafs could do that and there's no problem," Paulson said. "But she's good. She's very good. I knew there were some deaf bands, but wow."

Paulson isn't the only one surprised at how well Jensen can tackle drum rolls. Jensen said other people with trouble hearing were just as surprised as those in the hearing crowd.

"When I became involved with the deaf community, sometimes they'd ask me, 'What do you do for fun, Melissa?' I'd say, 'I play the drums and guitar,' and they'd be like, 'How?'" Jensen said.

Jensen said she can hear music piped via earbuds, but more important than that is her ability to feel the rhythm.

Being in a band has allowed Jensen to meet a lot of people — something she loves — and through that, to help expand people's picture of deafness. But even before meeting the people in the mosh pits, music means something to Jensen.

"When I talk with a person, I feel so disconnected, but when I listen to music, I feel connected," she said. "I like to be involved with music because other people, they feel the same, they feel connected. When we play our music, people feel connected to it."

MAGIC VALLEY BANDS

Milestone

DREW NASH/Times-News

Milestone's Shawn Burnett performs, with drummer Joe Otero in the background, at a Twin Falls bar May 6.

Members: Valli Robirts, keyboard and lead vocals; Joe Young, bass; Shawn Burnett, lead guitar and lead vocals; Joe Otero, drums and vocals. (Robirts and Young also play together as Flashback.)

Genre: "We play everything, but (classic rock) is what we're most known for," Robirts said. The band plays mostly covers, but throws in a few originals. On a given night, you might hear contemporary country or contemporary rock, depending on where they're playing and how the crowd is responding.

How long together: Robirts and Young have played together for 21 years in different incarnations, starting as Flashback before changing the band name to Milestone when their guitarist died. Robirts and Young recently resurrected the name Flashback for their duo.

Where you might have seen them: Milestone frequents bars like Pioneer Club and The Oasis Bar & Grill in Twin Falls, and TJ's Lounge in Buhl.

What sets them apart: Milestone is a keyboard-driven band, and the oldest female-driven band in Magic Valley, Robirts said. Robirts calls her bandmates the hardest-working musicians in Twin Falls. "We make a living doing this," she said.

What others say: Dana Winson, owner of King & Harts Bar and Grill in Castleford, said the band is "upbeat and fun."

"They do quite the little mixture," she said.

Where you can hear their music: Milestone plays at 8:30 p.m. tonight at King & Harts in Castleford. It will also play at Western Days, 4-6 p.m June 5. Flashback has a lot of out-of-town shows and private parties lined up, but watch for upcoming shows in the Times-News' Entertainment calendar.

Country Classics

Members: Floyd Drown, guitar; Gale Cartwright, guitar; Bill Taylor, keyboard and fiddle; Walt Schroeder, bass; Joe Torres, drums. All of them sing.

Genre: Just like its name says, the band plays classic country covers. Think Hank Williams, Johnny Cash, Merle Haggard, George Strait and Everly Brothers.

How long together: Six years.

Where you might have seen them: The band plays every Friday night for a dance at Snake River Elks Lodge in Jerome. The musicians also play plenty of private parties.

What sets them apart: They're experienced, seasoned musicians. Drown started in Texas and has played for more than 40 years, and Cartwright started in California and has been playing all his life. Torres is in his 50s, and "the rest of us are older than that," Drown said.

What others say: "I like it. They play good dancing music," said Gail Quinn, chairman of the board for Snake River Elks Lodge. Most of the couples who come to the Friday-night shows are older, and the band keeps them entertained and moving.

Where you can hear their music: Snake River Elks in Jerome, 8 p.m. every Friday.

Glory Bound

Members: Rosa Dieter, vocals; Marvin McKenzie, guitar; Gary Roach, bass; Doug Kennison, drums.

Genre: Country gospel, and a bit of contemporary country. The band plays covers from artists like Hillside, Amy Grant, Vince Gill and The Hoppers, as well as traditional hymns.

How long together: Six months in this incarnation, although Dieter, McKenzie and Kennison have played together for 12 years. A few years ago, Dieter's son and daughter played with them, too.

Where you might have seen them: So far, only Calvary Assembly of God in Buhl, but they'll perform at the Twin Falls County Fair and Buhl's Sagebrush Days this year.

What sets them apart: Their soulfulness, said Lyle Dieter, Rosa's husband and the band's sound manager. "(Rosa) pours her heart just into everything," he said. "People really respond to it." The musicians see their work not only as entertainment, but as a way to spread the gospel.

What others say: David Royer, pastor for Calvary Assembly of God in Buhl, said the musicians are talented and technically excellent. "They're very good musicians, and I'm impressed with them."

Where you can hear them next: 6 p.m. June 17 at McClusky Park in Buhl.

Civil Liberties Symposium takes patriotic theme

Times-News

College of Southern Idaho will host its sixth annual "Civil Liberties Symposium and Pilgrimage" June 30 through July 2 — this time focusing on military issues and World War II, with a theme of "Patriotism, Honor, and Sacrifice."

Students may enroll for one credit for $110, but others may also register for the conference. The non-credit fee for two-day registration, breakfast and lunch is $35 for CSI students and $70 for others.

Featured speakers include Boise State University emeritus historian Bob Sims; David Adler, director of the University of Idaho's McClure School on Public Policy; psychologist Martin Cutler; poet Larry Matsuda; and educator Linda Tamura.

The conference will also examine two films and a play, "The Betrayed," presented by the Grateful Crane Ensemble. A July 2 tour of Hunt Camp is available.

Register at csi.edu/forms/civilliberties/. Information: Russ Tremayne, 732-6885 or rtremayne@csi.edu.

Young writers can spend a week at Harriman park

Times-News

High school students who like to write may sign up for Writers @ Harriman, a one-week workshop set for July 31 through Aug. 6 at Harriman State Park, off U.S. Highway 20 between Ashton and Island Park.

Teaching at this year's camp are writers Meghan Kenny of Baltimore; Catherine Jones of Missoula, Mont.; Chris Dempsey of Middleton; and Nicole LeFavour of Boise. Find their biographies at www.writersatharriman.org.

Students will work in small groups and one-on-one with professional writers and a naturalist, exploring imaginative writing techniques in an outdoor classroom. A full description of the workshop is on the website. Each student receives an anthology of student work following camp.

Applications must be received before June 10; scholarships are available.

Information: Margaret Marti, 426-8996, or email inquiries to writersatharriman@yahoo.com.

Visual arts: Magic Valley Has Art

Exhibited in multiple Twin Falls venues, April 29 to May 7

What a great show this turned out to be. The variety and depth of the art submitted was stunning, from the two-dimensional forms of paintings and photographs to the three-dimensional sculpture, ceramics and jewelry. Kudos to the artists for their entries. Downtown was transformed for a brief period.

Music: Ethan Tucker goodbye concert

Seen May 7 at Anchor Bistro in Twin Falls

The reggae- and blues-filled show — complete with dreadlocked fans, a warm spring rain and plenty of beer — served as a perfect sendoff for Tucker, who's moving to Washington. I hope this isn't the last time we see him, or his spectacular guitar player.

The art of motion

Exhibits celebrate bicycle design, versatility

Times-News

In a bike-crazy place, perhaps an art exhibition devoted to bicycles was inevitable.

On Memorial Day weekend, Sun Valley Center for the Arts will open "Geared: The Culture of Bicycles," launching a series of bike-related classes, films and an interactive outdoor installation.

The exhibition opens during Ketchum's Gallery Walk, 5-8 p.m. May 28. Ride your favorite bicycle to Sun Valley Center for a free portrait session with your bike that evening; the photos will be displayed at the center's Hailey facility during its summer open exhibition.

In parts of the world, bicycles are transformed into portable shops or services like pedicabs. At the other end of the spectrum, professional cyclists ride bikes that cost more than minivans and achieve household-name status.

"Geared" celebrates the bicycle in all its forms and uses, with work by contemporary artists and bike makers. The exhibition includes handmade bicycles of fine design, craftsmanship and materials. Artists are Lisa Anne Auerbach, Margarita Cabrera, Dzine, Katina Huston and Dinh Q. L. Bike makers are Ahearne Cycles, Alliance Bicycles, Hufnagel Cycles and Schwinn.

Admission to the gallery is always free. The center will offer an exhibition tour at 2 p.m. June 21, and back-to-back tours at 5:30 and 7:30 p.m. July 7. To schedule a tour at another time or in Spanish, call 726-9491.

Related attractions:

• Center Lot installation: San Francisco artist and cyclist Paul Cesewski is installing an interactive sculpture, "Flight," on The Center Lot, across the street from Ketchum's post office. The pedal-powered artwork incorporates bicycle parts and technology. May 28 through Sept. 10, you can hop on and propel yourself through space while reliving playground joy and those first childhood bike rides.

• Workshop with Bruce Kremer: "Bike Counterculture: Rat Rods, Klunkerz, Customs & Lowriders," 5-8 p.m. June 23 at the center's Hailey location; $25 for Sun Valley Center members, $30 for others. Embrace the hot rod aesthetic and personalize your own two-wheeler. Look at examples of extreme bikes and decide what it would take to transform your own bike from bland to bodacious. Registration required by June 9, at sunvalleycenter.org or 726-9491.

• Hailey exhibit: "Geared: An Open Exhibition" goes on view June 16; an opening celebration is set for 7-8:30 p.m. June 24, followed by a free outdoor screening of the "Breaking Away!" movie about kids who get obsessed about bike racing. The exhibit will include bike-inspired artwork by local artists, plus bike portraits taken at the Ketchum "Geared" opening on May 28.

Grammy-grabbing band will stop in southern Idaho

Times-News

Alison Krauss and Union Station will bring its "Paper Airplane" summer tour to the Sun Valley Pavilion on July 2.

Tickets range from $29 to $110 at 622-2135 or seats.sunvalley.com. Children younger than 12 get in free for lawn seating when accompanied by an adult. Early-bird pricing is available for some seats.

In April, Rounder Records released the band's "Paper Airplane" album, which debuted at No. 1 on the Billboard Country Albums Chart and Bluegrass Albums Chart and No. 3 on the Top 200 Album Chart. It's Krauss' 14th album and the band's follow-up to 2004's triple Grammy-winning "Lonely Runs Both Ways." It's also Krauss' first release since her 2007 collaboration with Robert Plant, "Raising Sand," which won six Grammys.

Krauss and Union Station members Dan Tyminski (guitar, mandolin, lead vocals), Barry Bales (bass, harmony vocals), Ron Block (banjo, guitar, harmony vocals) and Jerry Douglas (Dobro, harmony vocals) will crisscross the nation this summer performing more than 50 dates.

Krauss bridges the gap between roots music and country, rock and pop, and she has collaborated with James Taylor, Phish, Dolly Parton, Yo Yo Ma and Bonnie Raitt. Since 1985, Krauss has sold more than 12 million albums and garnered 26 Grammys.

This 'Mary Poppins' is on her toes

Dance production opens in Hailey

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

This dance troupe has license to have a smudge on the cheek and dirt on the feet. After all, chimney sweeps aren't exactly the spotless type.

Footlight Dance Centre will present a premiere dance production of "Mary Poppins" on Saturday and Sunday at the Community Campus Theater in Hailey.

"Over the years the kids have been saying, why don't we do 'Mary Poppins?' I waited for the right characters and this year we had them," said Artistic Director Hilarie Neely. "I've been especially surprised by the two youngsters playing Mary and Jane Banks. They're in every scene so they've had to be at every rehearsal, and they've done an amazing job — always with smiles on their faces."

Dylan Peterson will dance the part of Mary Poppins, and Mariah Davis plays Bert. Tori Poole will dance Mrs. Banks; Alberta Jefferson, Mr. Banks; and Bryn Downey and Samantha White, Jane and Michael Banks.

In addition, two fathers — Aaron Taylor and John Gaeddert — will dance a lullaby ballet with their daughters Annette and Laura to the song "Stay Awake."

The Centre's 160 dancers will tell the story through ballet, modern, jazz, hip-hop and tap. The performance will include familiar songs from "Mary Poppins," such as "Feed the Birds," "Chim Chim Cher-ee" and "Let's Go Fly a Kite," as well as a few new pieces.

Wood River Community Orchestra will accompany the dancers on some of the numbers, said choreographer Julie Fox-Jones. That's good experience for the dancers, she added, because it's so different from working with recorded music that's predictable.

"Doing a show that's never been done before is definitely a challenge. But it's turning out very well," said Dani Theobald, who portrays a nanny.

Think you have an author inside you?

The College of Southern Idaho's Community Education Center is offering the class series "Writing, Publishing and Marketing Your First Book," taught by author Bobbie Christensen, on May 21 at CSI's Twin Falls campus — and a pared-down version, "Writing and Publishing Your First Book," on May 23 at the college's Mini-Cassia campus in Burley.

Christensen teaches new authors how to develop a manuscript in six weeks following her 10-step plan, sell it to a publisher or self-publish, and market the book on a shoestring budget.

The three-part May 21 series in Twin Falls will be 1-2:45 p.m. (writing, $30 plus a $15 materials fee), 3-4:45 p.m. (publishing, $30) and 5-6:45 p.m. (marketing, $30); the classes can be taken individually or as a series. The series fee is $59, plus $15 for materials.

In Burley, "Writing and Publishing Your First Book" will be 6-10 p.m. May 23; cost is $30.

Sign up the kids for summer dance camp

Times-News

College of Southern Idaho's Fine Arts Center is taking registrations for its annual CSI/IDAA Summer Dance Workshop, held in July on CSI's Twin Falls campus for students 12 and older who have had a minimum of two consecutive years of dance.

Tuition, with or without board, ranges from $80 to $765.

Students take five to seven hours of class per day in ballet, jazz, tap, lyrical and modern techniques, plus musical theater, world dance, choreography and related areas. The camp features a guest faculty of professional dancers and dance instructors from around country.

Downtime activities include game night, movies, a canyon excursion, swimming parties, a fashion show, an ice cream social, a pizza and autograph party, barbecues, a carnival, a pampering night and an end-of-camp recital for family and friends. Chaperoned dormitory housing and meals are available.

Students may choose a one- or two-week workshop: July 17-22 or July 17-29.

Also, a Junior Camp introduces students ages 9-11 — regardless of dance experience — to the concept of an intensive workshop taught by the regular camp faculty July 23.

Registration form and information: csi.edu/dance-camp or 732-6288.

Jerome girls, TFHS boys win 4A districts

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

HAILEY — Carrie Thibault admitted to feeling the pressure Thursday.

The Jerome pole vaulter won the Class 4A championship last year. She desperately wanted to get back to state, and she said she was feeling the heat. But she blocked it out and rose to the occasion, clearing 10 feet, 6 inches to win the District IV championship and earn her third trip to the state meet at Bronco Stadium.

If she wants to pull off another state championship, she said, she'll have to bring out her best on the big stage.

"I know I'm going to have to go higher. I know there are girls who are going over 11 (feet) consistently, and I haven't cleared it in a meet yet," Thibault said. "But this is my last high-school state event. I'm going to go and give it my best."

Thibault wasn't alone in the win column for Jerome. In fact, it seemed like a point parade for the Tigers, who had several high finishers in the same events. Jerome placed four of the top five in the pole vault, went 1-2-3 in the 800 meters, and put three in the top four of the mile. It was all part of an effort that saw the Tigers breeze to the girls team title with 219 points. Twin Falls was second with 146.

Jerome's girls are now in prime position to contend for a state trophy next week, qualifying all four of their relays and earning 17 individual berths.

The Bruin girls were anchored by Madi Worst's wins in the 100 and 200, followed with a second-place effort in the 400. Claire Goss also helped the Twin Falls cause by sweeping the hurdles.

DAVID BASHORE/Times-News

Canyon Ridge runners Nick Kytle, foreground, and T.J. Richardson celebrate qualifying for the Class 4A state meet by finishing second in the 4x200-meter relay at the District IV championships in Hailey on Thursday.

Goss won the 100 hurdles despite a slow start she said was caused by a strong fear of doing something she rarely, if ever, does.

"I had this really bad feeling that I was going to false-start, and I got one of the worst starts of my life," said Goss, who won by nearly a full second. "I was able to make it up because I three-stepped (between hurdles) and I think some of the other girls four-stepped. I'm just excited to make it back to state and try to win this year."

Twin Falls didn't win the boys title by nearly as much as the Jerome girls did, but the Bruins' 140 points were enough to coast ahead of Minico (115.5) and Canyon Ridge (113).

Erik Harris brought home two more golds for Twin Falls, winning the 800 and the mile to go with his two-mile win on Wednesday. Ryan Carlson qualified in two more individual events, winning the high jump and placing third in the 200.

The Bruins also won the most exciting races of the day, with Kimball Hardman nipping Wood River's Ian Keys at the line to win the 100 and Ricky Akridge steaming home to clip Minico and Canyon Ridge for the 4x100-relay gold.

Cade Owen powered Minico to a healthy chunk of its points, winning the 110 hurdles, the 200 and the 400 in a span of two hours. He also helped the Spartans win the 4x200 relay.

"I'm really happy with my endurance, and I think I can bounce back a little better than some other people, especially at the high-school level," said Owen. "I'm looking forward to running against the guys from Boise up at state."

The state meet runs next Thursday and Friday.

Gooding girls, Declo boys win 2A districts

By Ryan Howe

FILER — The handoff between Kylie Becker and Audrey Youren on the final leg of the girls 4x200-meter relay was less than smooth.

It didn't matter.

The Senators had plenty of distance on their competition, and even ran their best time of the season.

"We did better than we ever did," Youren said. "Me and Kylie's handoff was pretty sketchy, but other than that we've been doing really well this week."

The relay win was one of many for the Gooding girls, who won the team title at the Class 2A District IV track meet Thursday at Filer High School.

Declo's girls finished second, followed by Valley and Wendell, respectively.

Youren, who plans to compete in heptathlon next season at College of Idaho, also helped Gooding win the 4x400, to go with her wins in high jump and medley relay on Wednesday.

Also victorious for Gooding's girls were Danielle Baker in the 100 and 200 sprints. Rachel Youren swept the three distance races and Amaia Demaray won the pole vault.

For Declo, Kaylee Holmstead won the long jump to complement her triple jump victory from Wednesday.

Jerome softball repeats as District IV champions

By Stephen Meyers
Times-News writer

JEROME — Great Basin softball supremacy belongs to the JLT.

For the second year in a row, Jerome is the District IV champion after its 9-6 victory over Twin Falls Thursday.

"It feels really good to win this again," said Jerome third baseman Crystal Luna. "We all really, really wanted it. We made a promise at the beginning of every district game that we were going to play as hard as we could and no matter what mistakes were made, we were going to keep each other up and do whatever we could to make it to the end."

Luna's single off Jaquelyn Corr in the bottom of the sixth broke a 6-6 tie, scoring pitcher Colby Argyle, who led off by reaching base on an error. Taylor Molt scored on a close play at the plate as catcher Brylee Bartlett threw to second on a Jessica Praegitzer steal. Molt took off for home and Henli Blick's throw to the plate was too late.

A Kylee Fullmer groundout scored Praegitzer and Argyle worked a 1-2-3 inning in the seventh to close the door on the Bruins (16-10).

"Colby was a little tired and Twin Falls hit her a little better today, but she's a competitior. She did a great job to finish," said Jerome coach Adam Reynolds.

Bruins beat Burley, punch ticket to state

By John Derr
Times-News writer

Twin Falls is headed back to the state tournament.

Cy Sneed dominated on the mound and the Bruins took advantage of a few opportunities offensively to eliminate Burley 3-1 and earn a berth to Class 4A state tournament. Twin Falls will face Minico at 3 p.m. today for the District IV title.

Sneed was nearly unhittable. The senior hurler tallied 14 strikeouts, gave up just a pair of hits and was in control from the start.

"I felt really good on the mound, the change-up was working well," said Sneed, who also had two of the three Bruin hits. "We respect Burley, they fought hard."

While Sneed was in control, the Bruins chipped away offensively. A double steal plated Jayson Welker in the first. A pair of errors in the third brought home Casey Merritt while Sneed also produced at the plate, chipping in an RBI single.

Neither team could get anything going offensively in the middle innings. Things got interesting in the top of the seventh. In between a pair of strikeouts, Sneed loaded the bases with three walks. A wild pitch brought one run home, but Sneed ended it with yet another strikeout.

"I lost a bit of rhythm, I had some close pitches. The dugout helped me and I had just enough juice left to get it done," Sneed said.

Jake Mills was effective for the Bobcats, allowing just three hits in six innings. The bottom of the order tallied the hits, with Spencer Rice and Jack Darrington belting singles.

Wood River boys, girls win district tennis titles

Bruins' White, Ash take girls doubles

By Mike Christensen
Times-News writer

Natalie White and Kayla Ash have only been playing tennis for about 15 months. Charlie Grabow and Josh Morell have only been playing together for a few weeks.

But they all walked away as Class 4A District IV tennis champions Thursday in Twin Falls.

White and Ash beat Canyon Ridge's Bel Stienke and Staci Baird 7-5, 6-2 to claim the girls doubles title. The duo took up tennis last spring and made it to the state tournament last May where they went 0-2. But with solid chemistry and a district title on their resume, they have loftier goals for next week's state play in Boise.

"We just get each other," said Ash.

"We play really well together," added White.

They did so Thursday, with White's service aces and play at the net complementing Ash's ability to cover the baseline with her quickness. It took all of that to get past Stienke and Baird.

"They're our best competition," said Ash, before White added, "We were just lucky enough to make less errors."

Grabow and Morell made their share of errors early, dropping their first set against Twin Falls' Jeff Ward and Mike Zitterkopf before rallying to win 3-6, 6-3, 6-3.

"We just weren't playing consistent enough," Grabow said of the first set.

"We were beating ourselves," said Morell.

Grabow won a state title last year with Raleigh Grossbaum, but when Grossbaum recently moved to mixed doubles, Grabow teamed up with Morell, who moved over from boys singles. They looked like a seasoned pair on Thursday, claiming the final four games of the third set and putting the match away on Morell's cross-court forehand shot.

While Morell said the victory felt "awesome," Grabow said "it was just good to get off the court."

Why? It's the first time they've played in the heat all season after a spring filled with wind, rain and overcast skies. Between the sunshine and the

CSI softball upset at Region 18 tourney

Times-News

The College of Southern Idaho softball team is in Salt Lake City for the Region 18 Tournament.

The Golden Eagles' game, however, is MIA.

Williams

They entered the tournament expecting to face Salt Lake Community College in the winner's bracket final, but CSI is already in a fight for its playoff life as Southern Nevada stunned the Eagles 5-2 in the second round Thursday.

The Eagles got single runs in the first and fifth innings, with Marie Williams crossing the plate both times. But they left the bases loaded in each of those innings, twice spurning a chance to put more pressure on the Coyotes.

"I really thought in the first inning, Marie hit that double and then Jess (Albertson) got on and we were off to a good start," CSI coach Nick Baumert told 1450 AM KEZJ. "I thought they were ripe for the picking and we let them hang around. A good team at this level is going to beat you if you let them hang around."

Back-to-back solo home runs from A.J. Woodward and Alicia Firelein in the fourth inning gave the Coyotes a lead they never relinquished. They pushed across a third run in the frame and added two unearned runs in the seventh inning to provide the final margin.

Southern Nevada and Salt Lake will play for a berth in the region championship round this afternoon.

CSI (41-18) now faces in-state rival North Idaho College at noon today as the Eagles look to battle back around and do what no team has done since North Idaho five years ago: win the region tournament out of the loser's bracket.

"I told the kids that we were in this position four years ago and we lost this very same game, and we got back to the championship," Baumert said. "It's doable, but we have our work cut out for us."

Balks, homers hurt CSI's cause at regionals

Salt Lake tops Eagles 10-5

By Steve Yingling
Times-News correspondent

CARSON CITY, Nev. — Three early Salt Lake home runs didn't do in the College of Southern Idaho on Thursday, but three balks did.

The Bruins took advantage of two balks during a five-run third inning and a third balk to score three times in the fifth, pulling away for a 10-5 victory in the Region 18 baseball tournament at John L. Harvey Field.

CSI relievers Chris Kerns and Cody White were each called for a balk that resulted in a run crossing the plate and a third put two runners in scoring position, allowing Salt Lake to score twice on an infield single.

"The solo homers didn't hurt us, but the balks killed us," said CSI coach Boomer Walker. "They were instrumental in keeping them rolling."

The loss dropped the Golden Eagles (33-21) into an elimination game this afternoon against Eastern Utah. If CSI wins that game, it will turn right around and play the loser of this morning's Salt Lake-Western Nevada matchup.

Sean Moysh, the third hitter in Salt Lake's lineup, homered on the first pitch he saw from CSI starter Paul Schaak. Moysh's drive to left-center field barely eluded the glove of center fielder Chase Harris, giving Salt Lake a 1-0 lead. Kennedy Kinkade belted a Schaak offering over the left-field fence for a 2-0 Salt Lake edge in the second inning.

CSI took its only lead in the top of third inning, scoring three times with only one hit. One-out walks to Andrew Freter and Andre Ashton gave CSI its first two baserunners against Adam Gunn.

Leadoff hitter Ryan Cooperstone, serving as the Eagles' designated hitter, hit a comebacker to Gunn but because the baserunners were in motion, CSI stayed out of the double play. The extra out paid off as Blake Lively responded with a two-out single just in front of center fielder Braden Anderson, resulting in Freter and Ashton crossing the plate and tying the score at 2-2.

Lively scored the go-ahead run moments later when Gunn made an errant pickoff throw that sailed into center field. Anderson compounded the error by air-mailing his throw to third base into the CSI dugout.

Moysh stemmed a momentum change in the third frame by slamming his second homer in as many at-bats to tie the score. The home run ended Schaak's outing, but the Bruins didn't let off the accelerator, even though Kerns fanned the first batter he faced. A two-out, two-strike base hit by Eddy Alvarez past diving third baseman Freter put Salt Lake ahead 4-3.

"We didn't make enough good pitches after we got the lead," Walker said. "Give credit to them. They didn't miss the pitches they got to hit."

Salt Lake (44-13) didn't balk at adding to its lead. Kerns' second start-stop infraction sent home Scott Manning, putting the Bruins ahead 5-3.

"That was a backbreaker," Walker said. "The bases were loaded, and we had the guy 0-2. Then panic set in, and we turned it into a three-run balk, which is disappointing. The guys let the inning spin out of control."

Over the final four innings, CSI left seven runners on base.

Lively and Cooperstone combined for five of the Golden Eagles' eight hits.

"We may be deflated now, but we'll come back and be ready to play (today)," said Lively, who had a team-high three hits.

Burley coach Devin Kunz said he will miss the senior class.

Next up for the Bruins is a rematch with the Spartans who roughed them up on Monday.

"It was very humbling, a wake-up call. It let us know that we are not invincible. We have to play our minds out every game," said Sneed.

The Wolverines' Raleigh Grossbaum and Jessica Hamilton didn't have nearly as much trouble in winning the mixed doubles title, beating teammates Ellen Davis and Bryan Donoso 6-1, 6-1 to help Wood River claim both team titles. The Wood River boys earned 82 points, more than doubling up second-place Twin Falls (40). The WRHS girls amassed 52 points, with Canyon Ridge (39) and Twin Falls (38) coming in second and third, respectively.

Canyon Ridge's McKenzie Baggett beat Wood River's Erin Murphey 6-3, 6-1 to win the girls singles title.

The boys singles championship final was played Wednesday, with Karl Wilander of Wood River edging Twin Falls sophomore Dallas Hunt 7-5, 7-6 (8).

"I'll probably remember that match my whole life," said Hunt. "It was back and forth the whole way. We both played really good."

The top four finishers in each division qualify for the state tournament, which will be played May 20-21 at three sites in Boise, including Timberline High School, East Junior High and the Appleton Tennis Complex at Boise State University.

Twin Falls pulled the score to 6-5 in the fifth with a two-out rally as shortstop Madisen Traveller hit a two-run single and Allie Johnson hit an RBI double. Jade Byce singled in Blick to score the tying run in the sixth.

But four errors and six walks issued by Rainey Dyreson and Corr doomed the Bruins.

"Errors come back to bite you, especially in games like this and against a tough team like Jerome," said Twin Falls coach Leslie Phillips. "But it was nice to see the girls fight and show that they wanted to win. They could have easily said, 'We're going to state, we're fine. We're content.' But they didn't today and I'm very proud of them for doing that and fighting and now we can carry that on to state and get it where it counts."

Twin Falls will open the state tournament in Couer d'Alene May 20 against the top team from District III, while Jerome (17-7) plays District VI champion Hillcrest.

Chicago Bulls headed to 1st conference final since 1998

ATLANTA (AP) — Derrick Rose simply had to run the show. The MVP had plenty of help in this one, and the Chicago Bulls are off to the Eastern Conference finals for the first time since M.J. was at the controls.

Carlos Boozer scored 23 points and Rose doled out 12 assists, pushing Chicago out to a big lead in the first half that carried the Bulls past Atlanta 93-73 in the Eastern Conference semifinals Thursday night. They finished off the Hawks in six games.

Chicago advanced to its first conference final since 1998, when Michael Jordan and Scottie Pippen were on their way to a second three-peat. The Bulls fell on hard times after that glorious era, including three straight 60-loss seasons, but they have put together a deep, talented team that won more games than anyone during the regular season.

Yep, even more than the ballyhooed Miami Heat, whose Big Three are waiting in the next round, with a spot in the NBA Final on the line. Game 1 is Sunday in Chicago.

"It's not surprising me at all, where we're at right now," Rose said. "We know that we have something special in front of us."

Rose was right in the middle of things, of course. He scored 19 points in addition to setting up all those baskets, but this was a textbook performance by the guys around him, each of them comfortable in a supporting role, each of them willing to do the dirty work at the defensive end.

The most impressive number: Chicago had assists on all but seven of its 31 baskets. Or, come to think of it, maybe it was this stat: The Hawks shot just 37 percent (27 of 74) and rarely got an open look.

"If anything, our defense won this game," Rose said.

At the other end, Boozer kept winding up with the ball with no one around, and kept knocking down jump shots. He went 10-of-16 from the field, grabbed 10 rebounds and handed out five assists.

"What goes underrated about them is the depth of their team," said Atlanta's Al Horford, who had a miserable night and a tough series overall. "They just wear on you. They just kept coming, kept coming every game. It seemed like their starters were fresh."

With the loss, Atlanta extended an infamous playoff mark: The Hawks have never advanced past the second round since moving from St. Louis in 1968.

Joe Johnson led the Hawks with 19 points. Josh Smith was the only other player in double figures with 18. The Hawks went 1-of-11 from beyond the 3-point arc.

Rose had been averaging nearly 30 points a game in the playoffs. No need for heroics in this one; he took just 14 shots, his lowest of the postseason, and wound up with his second-fewest points.

That's OK. He got to spend the final minutes on the bench, celebrating with his teammates.

Tiger Woods withdraws, Watney leads at Players

PONTE VEDRA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Coming off his worst performance in nearly a year, Nick Watney looked better than ever Thursday in The Players Championship with an 8-under 64 that put him atop the leaderboard.

Coming off what he described as a "minor injury," Tiger Woods looked to be in big trouble.

Nine holes into his first tournament since the Masters, the former No. 1 player in the world said he couldn't go on. Woods withdrew after his highest nine-hole score at this event — a 42 — and had no idea when he might return.

"I'm having a hard time walking," Woods said.

Watney opened with three straight birdies, didn't let a double bogey slow his momentum, and finished with his best score ever on the TPC Sawgrass — his previous best was a 68 — to take a one-shot lead over Lucas Glover, who won last week at Quail Hollow.

The surprise came from 54-year-old Mark O'Meara, who qualified by winning the Seniors Player Championship and who played nine holes of practice rounds with Woods the last two days.

He finished with a long birdie on the 18th for a 66 in his first round at Sawgrass in eight years.

"Even when I went to dinner with Tiger last night, my wife Meredith said, 'How's Mark hitting it?' He says, 'Short.' OK, yeah, I'm not 32 and strong," O'Meara said. "But I hit it far enough."

Davis Toms also had a 66, and he managed to do that without a single bogey on his card.

Watney had not missed the cut since last June when he had rounds of 76-75 for an early departure last week at Quail Hollow. Instead of letting it get him down, he came to Florida to practice and then came out firing.

"Last week in Charlotte, I got off to a bad start and I never really righted the ship," Watney said. "So today to have a bad hole like that and still play a good round is a rewarding feeling, just because I didn't let it affect the rest of my day."

PGA champion Martin Kaymer, who can return to No. 1 in the world by winning or finishing alone in second this week, opened with a 67 and became part of the biggest news of the day.

He was in the group with Matt Kuchar and Woods, although it became a twosome on the back nine when Woods left.

"Nobody really knows how much pain he was in," Kaymer said. "He was walking really slowly. He was walking behind us. But I didn't know that it was because of pain or I just thought that he walks a little slower than me."

Also at 67 was Rory Sabbatini, U.S. Open champion Graeme McDowell and Alvaro Quiros of Spain. Ryder Cup captain Davis Love III, a two-time winner of this prestigious event, had a 68, along with Ben Crane.

Buhl boys, girls sweep district track titles

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

FILER — Up until a few days ago, Arly Pettinger was on crutches.

Hobbled by a fracture in her foot this season, the Buhl senior had to pull out of the Indians' relay teams. However, she refused to miss the final district meet of her high school career — and a shot at returning to state.

"It's sore," she said. "But I want it so bad, I'm not going to quit."

Pettinger gritted through and won the girls 100-meter hurdles. It was one of the many highlights for Buhl on Day 2 of the Class 3A District IV track meet as the Indians swept the boys and girls team titles.

"We work hard every day," said Buhl's Elenes Ramos, who ran victoriously in the 100, 200, 400 meters and as a member of the 4x100 relay. "We practice every weekend. I don't know another team around here that practices on the weekends. We go to the gym together and push each other. We're committed to this. We've got a great team and we're going to make it."

Kimberly finished runner-up and Filer was third in both boys and girls team standings.

Kimberly senior Brian Crane stole another would-be win from Buhl in the 800. With about 230 meters to go, Crane kicked it into high gear and passed Buhl's Kellen Gillins.

"The 800 race is a lot like a cinnamon roll. The middle is the best part," Crane said. "When he passed me, I knew I've beat him before. After a few seconds of him ahead of me, I just kept telling myself 'I can get him, I can get him.'"

Buhl's boys won every relay event. The Indians also were victorious with Camden Gillins in the long jump and Steven Newell in 110-meter hurdles.

For Kimberly, Wesley Kelly won the 1,600 and Skyler Crystal won 300-meter hurdles. For Filer, John Beer won the high jump.

On the girls side, Kaitlin Keller of Kimberly won the 100 and 200 meters. Other wins for the Bulldogs included April Adamson in 300 hurdles, and Hannah Lentz in the long jump. Kimberly also won the 4x100 and 4x200 relays.

For Buhl, Skyler Barger was victorious in the 800, 1,600 and 3,200. Clara Comer won the 400 and Paige Ward won the high jump.

The top two individuals and winning relay team in each event qualify for the May 20-21 state tournament in Boise.

Raft River girls, Hagerman boys win 1A district titles

By Mike Christensen and Diane Philbin
Times-News writers

JEROME — Track and field isn't Katelyn Peterson's favorite sport. You wouldn't know it based on her performance at the Class 1A District IV track meet.

After winning the long jump on Wednesday, Peterson won the high jump and the triple jump on Thursday. She also set a school record of 48.4 seconds in winning the 300-meter hurdles.

"Volleyball is my favorite, but I always like to compete," said Peterson.

Despite Peterson's effort, the Mushers came up just short in the team scoring. Raft River won the district title with 90 points, while Camas County had 86. Oakley (78), Castleford (77) and Carey (72) rounded out the top five.

Raft River's Kassie Ottley won the shot put, while the Trojans also took the 4x400 relay.

Castleford sophomore Xantha Darrow had a big district showing, winning the 100 and 200 meters, while helping the Wolves place in two relays. She set a personal best of 27.8 seconds in the 200.

"I like to compete and run. There are a lot of other fast girls that push me," said Darrow. "When you are in the blocks at the start, when you heart starts pumping, it's an adrenaline high."

Richfield's Sasha Kent continued a season of dominance with wins in the 800 and 1,600 meters.

Hagerman claimed the boys district title with 122 points, getting wins in the 4x100 and 4x400 relays along with Zarek Tupper's triumph in the long jump. Camas County earned 96 points, while Carey (84.5), Castleford (84) and Raft River (56.5) were next in line.

It was a busy two days for Castleford's Kale Weekes, who participated in four events on Wednesday and three more on Thursday. He placed first in the 100 and 400, while helping the Wolves win the medley relay.

The most rewarding thing he felt Thursday night? Exhaustion.

"If you're not tired you didn't give your all," said Weekes. "It always feels good knowing when you're done with your last race, you're finished."

Murtaugh's Humberto Pacheco swept the hurdles.

The top four finishers in each event, along with the top two relay teams, advance to the 1A state meet May 20-21 at Bronco Stadium in Boise.

swept both hurdles events.

In the boys competition, Declo ran away with the team title, outpacing runner-up Gooding, which was followed by Valley and Wendell.

"It feels pretty good. It means a lot to us," said Declo junior Justin Jenkins, who won the 100, 200 and 400 meters and the high jump.

Declo's Calum Webb won the long jump

"I've been working on getting stronger, being able to jump higher and run faster," Webb said. "And I've done pretty well getting the form down and the landing, so it's all just a matter of getting stronger."

Webb was also a member of Declo's winning 4x100 and 4x400 relay teams.

"We have been doing handoffs with each other the last two years, so we have good chemistry," Webb said. "We practice together and we have confidence in what each other can do. If you have confidence in each other's handoffs, they will be quick."

However, the Hornets were a little too quick and careless in the 4x200. They would have won that event as well, but were disqualified for a botched handoff.

Also victories for Declo were Trevor Anderson in the 800, Ross Sanders in 110 hurdles and Mark Knobbe in shot put.

For Gooding, Mike McHan won 1,600 and 3,200 meters, and Jose Rodriguez won 300 hurdles.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON PROPOSED ORDINANCE REQUIRING OBSTRUCTION MARKING/LIGHTING OF TOWERS

The Gooding County Planning & Zoning Commission will hold a public hearing on June 6, 2011 at 7:00 p.m. in the Planning and Zoning Meeting Room at 145 7th Avenue East in Gooding, ID. The purpose of the hearing is for public input and discussion on recommending to the Board of County Commissioners an ordinance which would require towers to have obstruction marking/lighting. A summary of the proposed ordinance follows, and the complete text can be accessed at www.goodingcounty.org/P&Z.htm or by email request to: abennett@co.gooding.id.us

FOR TOWERS BETWEEN 100 FEET IN HEIGHT AND THE FEDERAL AVIATION ADMINISTRATION¡ÇS MINIMUM HEIGHT REQUIREMENT FOR OBSTRUCTION MARKING AND LIGHTING. AN ORDINANCE OF THE COUNTY OF GOODING, IDAHO, TO ESTABLISH REGULATIONS AND STANDARDS FOR PERMITTING AND IDENTIFYING TOWERS; WHEREAS, DISCUSSIONS HAVE BEEN HELD BY THE GOODING COUNTY PLANNING AND ZONING COMMISSION AND CONCERNED PILOTS IN GOODING COUNTY, AND; WHEREAS THIS ORDINANCE COMPLIES WITH THE GOODING COUNTY COMPREHENSIVE PLAN; AND; WHEREAS IT IS DEEMED TO BE IN THE BEST INTERESTS AND SAFETY OF PILOTS OPERATING AT LOW ALTITUDES IN GOODING COUNTY, AND TO PROTECT LIFE AND PROPERTY, TO ADOPT AN ORDINANCE.

PROPOSED REQUIREMENTS

A. TOWER VISIBILITY

All towers meeting the height requirements specified by this Ordinance and located outside the exterior boundaries of any incorporated city or town in Gooding County shall be visible and may be required to be lighted, marked, painted, and flagged in accordance with the following guidelines:

1. Towers must be painted in seven, equal, alternating bands of aviation orange and white. Beginning with orange at the top of the tower, and ending with orange at the base.
2. Towers must have a flashing light at the top of the tower with a minimum of 3.75 km visibility when flashing.
3. The surface area under the entire footprint of the tower and six (6) feet past the outer anchors must be free of vegetation, or planted in vegetation that is distinctly different from the vegetation surrounding the tower.
4. Guy-Wired towers must have a total of eight (8) marker balls attached as follows: four (4) marker balls attached to guyed wires at the top of the tower at a distance no further down than fifteen (15) feet from the top wire connection to the tower; four (4) marker balls at the bottom of the guyed wires at a height of 5 - 10 feet above the tallest crop to be grown in the immediate vicinity of the tower.
5. Guy-Wired towers must have a seven (7) foot long safety sleeve at each anchor point, plus one sleeve located six (6) feet outside the outside anchor, and one sleeve at the lift anchor.

B. SPECIAL USE PERMIT APPLICATION

Locating and constructing a tower meeting the height requirements specified by this Ordinance including the buildings or other supporting equipment used in connection with said tower shall require a Special Use Permit in accordance with Gooding County Zoning Ordinance.

Any person(s) may attend and written and/or oral testimony shall be taken. A five-minute time limit on oral testimony of supporters and opponents shall be enforced. All written testimony, more than one page long, must be submitted to the Planning and Zoning Office seven days prior to the hearing (May 31, 2011). Any person requiring special accommodations to participate in the above-noticed meeting should contact the Administrator at 934-5958 five days prior to the meeting.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"Secure, whate'er he gives, he gives the best."
— Samuel Johnson

. . . . . .

In the following deal from the Cavendish Teams, Gunnar Hallberg and his partner, Brian Glubok, produced a sparkling defensive coup.

The contract of four hearts is not a thing of beauty. Off three aces with a delicate trump holding, the cards nevertheless seem to lie so well for declarer that only an initial diamond lead beats the hand by getting a ruff for East.

That is not quite so. Consider the effect of the lead of the club two, which was found by Hallberg. Declarer won in hand to play on spades. Glubok took his ace and played a second club — nice, but by no means obvious, defense. Declarer won and played a diamond, and West also did well when he hopped up with the ace (drawing the inference that declarer had the diamond queen or he would have unblocked the clubs before playing the spade). Had West not taken his ace, declarer would have cashed the black queens to discard both of his remaining diamonds. Hallberg now played a third club. Declarer won in dummy and ran the heart 10, covered by the jack and queen.

At this point declarer had to read the precise heart and club positions and exit with a low heart to have any chance to make his contract. When he made the more natural play of the heart king, Glubok won and led a fourth club, promoting the heart eight to the setting trick.

ANSWER: Whether the response is forcing to game or not, I like the economical rebid of two spades here. Though your diamonds are good enough to bid, that call suggests extras in high cards or shape. You can still find the fit later, while the minimum action gives partner room to describe his hand. The suit rebid doesn't promise six; it is the default action on a hand unsuitable for bidding no-trump.

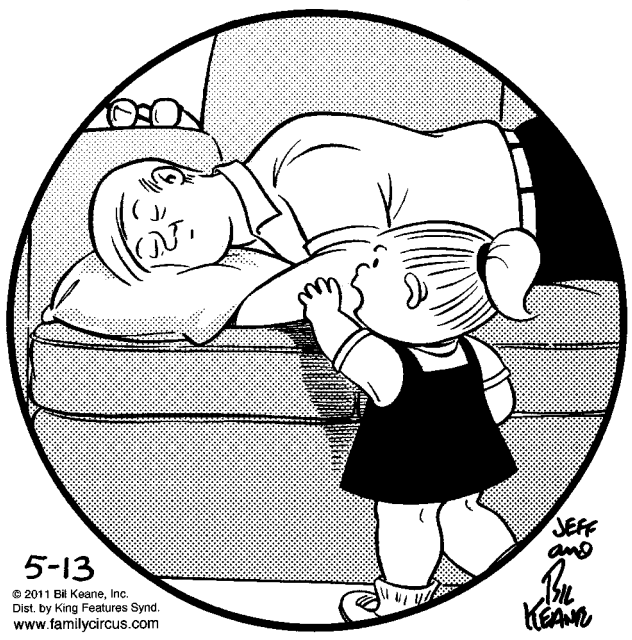
THE FAMILY CIRCUS By Bil Keane



"Daddy, Mommy asked me to see if you were up from your nap yet. Are you? ... Daddy? ... Daddy? ..."

Today is Friday, May 13, the 133rd day of 2011. There are 232 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On May 13, 1981, Pope John Paul II was shot and seriously wounded in St. Peter's Square by Turkish assailant Mehmet Ali Agca.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1607, English colonists arrived by ship at the site of what became the Jamestown settlement in Virginia (the colonists went ashore the next day).

In 1846, the United States declared that a state of war already existed with Mexico.

In 1861, Britain's Queen Victoria declared her country's neutrality in the American Civil War, but also acknowledged that the Confederacy had belligerent rights.

In 1917, three shepherd children near Fatima, Portugal, reported seeing a vision of the Virgin Mary.

In 1918, the first U.S. airmail stamps, featuring a picture of a Curtiss JN-4 biplane, were issued to the public. (On a few of the stamps, the biplane was inadvertently printed upside-down, making them collector's items.)

In 1940, Britain's new prime minister, Winston Churchill, told Parliament: "I have nothing to offer but blood, toil, tears and sweat."

In 1958, Vice President Richard Nixon and his wife, Pat, were spat upon and their limousine battered by rocks thrown by anti-U.S. demonstrators in Caracas, Venezuela.

In 1961, actor Gary Cooper died in Los Angeles six days after turning 60.

In 1985, a confrontation between Philadelphia authorities and the radical group MOVE ended as police dropped a bomb onto the group's row house; 11 people died in the resulting fire that destroyed 61 homes.

In 1994, President Bill Clinton nominated federal appeals Judge Stephen G. Breyer to the U.S. Supreme Court to replace retiring Justice Harry A. Blackmun.

Ten years ago: Moderate Basque nationalists won a key election in Spain's semiautonomous Basque region. The center-right won Italy's parliamentary elections, setting the stage for the return to power of media magnate Silvio Berlusconi (behr-loos-KOH'-nee). Actor-playwright Jason Miller ("That Championship Season'') died in Scranton, Pa., at age 62.

Five years ago: Former Presidents George H.W. Bush and Bill Clinton helped Tulane University celebrate its "miracle'' commencement, nine months after Hurricane Katrina put two-thirds of the campus under water and scattered students to more than 600 schools nationwide.

One year ago: Three Pakistani men who authorities say supplied funds to Times Square car bomb suspect Faisal Shahzad were arrested in a series of raids in New England. President Barack Obama met with police officers who responded to the attempted car-bombing, greeting them at the New York Police Department's high-tech Real Time Crime Center.

DEAR ABBY: I recently learned that my husband of 35 years is gay. I never suspected and I am stunned. I have loved him since we met. I still do. I have never been interested in anyone else. We have three children and eight grandchildren who all adore him.

I learned his secret from an email he left on the computer screen. It took a few days, but I confronted him and he told me everything. He has been with men since before our marriage. He assured me he has never done anything that could have caused me to get a disease. I went for an examination and I'm fine.

I'm lost about what my next step should be. I'm in my late 50s. Starting over isn't something I ever considered. I'm seeing a therapist who suggested it might be simpler to consider myself a widow. I have no interest in having sex with my husband again, but being apart from him terrifies me. I feel like I'm in prison. Have you any suggestions?

— HELPLESS IN MIAMI

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR HELPLESS: You are not "in prison" and you're not "helpless." You're probably in shock, knowing your husband deceived you from the time you met him. That's understandable. My advice is to do NOTHING until you regain some sense of balance.

Finding that email was no accident. Consciously or unconsciously, your husband wanted you to see it. That you no longer want to have sex with him isn't surprising. Some things to consider: Does he still want to have sex with you? How do you feel about having sex with anyone? Is your husband involved with more than one person or just one? And does HE want to stay married?

Some women (and men) remain married to their bisexual spouse. Others marry people they know are gay. I do not agree with your therapist that you should "consider yourself a widow," unless you want to be married to the living dead.

Before making any decision about your future, you should contact the Straight Spouse Network. It's a confidential support network of current or former heterosexual spouses or partners of gay, lesbian, bisexual or transgender mates. It helps straight spouses or partners cope constructively with the coming-out crisis and assists mixed-orientation couples and their children to build bridges of understanding. The phone number is (201) 825-7763 and the website is www.StraightSpouse.org. I wish you luck on your journey.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 19-year-old woman. When I was 4, my mom went to prison for eight years. It turned her life around. At 38, she now has a college degree, a loving husband, a good job and a new home.

My two younger sisters say they don't want to be part of Mom's life, but they never fail to call her at holiday and birthday time to pick up the gifts they know she has bought them. Afterward, they don't contact her or answer her calls and texts until the next holiday. It leaves Mom depressed and feeling used. I have tried telling them they're wrong, but they don't listen. They say I'm wrong for getting in their business. Is it wrong to want my mother to be happy?

— DAUGHTER ON THE OUTSIDE

DEAR DAUGHTER: I don't blame your mother for feeling depressed and used. Your two younger sisters are manipulative, selfish and self-centered. However, your mother is enabling them to behave that way. Talk to her and suggest family counseling. She may be giving and giving out of guilt, they may be taking and taking in order to punish her, and that's not healthy for any of them.

IF MAY 13 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: As the old musical says, you're the top, and your popularity might grow like a weed during the next six to eight weeks. Your talents as a visionary seem to attract romance, and you heartily enjoy both vacations and creative endeavors. A fresh sense of professionalism or business insights can make you a star in late August and early September, especially in community groups and social settings. You may reach the height of business success in September if you are not distracted by an impossible romantic dream. In October and early November, stringent demands and obligations could test your character, so avoid initiating anything of major importance and sidestep significant changes.

HOROSCOPE
Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): The urge to travel might be irresistible. If you are caught in the grip of wanderlust and a yen to explore, then a trip to a casino to try your hand at a new game or just a walk through the woods might suit.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): It's only superstition. Step on a crack and you won't necessarily break someone's back just because it is Friday the 13th. Your companions this evening might be harboring false impressions or fallacies.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Abracadabra. You may feel fit as a fiddle, but even a Stradivarius needs to be tuned up before you can begin to play. Tonight you may be tempted to abruptly change the subject or change your tune.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your plans may be bigger than a breadbox. Your group of friends might encourage you to go out on a limb. Don't start remodeling projects, as your ideas could exceed your practical experience.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Less is much more. Enthusiasm should be worn in minute amounts, like a fine perfume. It might be a very good idea to count to 10 before making sweeping statements or jumping to conclusions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Improve your mind. Utilize a restless need for excitement in a beneficial and fulfilling way. Take a chance on the latest movie, dine at a new restaurant or explore the latest hot spot for a quick thrill.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Friday the 13th could fill you with fear. Throw some salt over your left shoulder, cross your fingers, and continue enjoying some homegrown pleasures. A pizza, some popcorn and a movie might be fine.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You are inspired to be fired up. You are mentally alert, but willing to believe tall tales. Stories about Friday the 13th might send a chill down your spine, so you aren't anxious to test your luck tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You jump through hoops without fear. Think through your ideas before acting. You have a penchant for performing feats of daring, but this could lead others to see you as rash and reckless.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You probably won't worry much about walking under ladders or black cats crossing your path. On the other hand, your luck could change if you take your friends or relatives for granted today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Physical activities dust away mental cobwebs. An acquaintance might hope to take a relationship to a more intimate level. Enjoy a new friendship, but don't commit yourself to anything permanent.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Get back what you give. If you have been generous with your time, money and expertise, someone will be glad to lend you a helping hand. Games of chance and competitive sports might be costly.

SUDOKU

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.
