Magic Valley voters mixed on supplemental school levies

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

Voters on Tuesday sent a mixed message to four Magic Valley school districts, showing varying levels of willingness to reach into their pocketbooks to support public education.

The decisions come amid financial challenges and a statewide education overhaul that's heavy on technology and online learning. Among the changes: Two seasoned Twin Falls School District trustees were ousted in favor of

DIETRICH VOTES FOR CHANGE

Voters in Dietrich opted Tuesday to allow their hometown to spend $2 million on improvements to the city's domestic water system, a change the city said was needed to facilitate growth. But only just — it passed 38-35. Also, voters in and around Dietrich reaffirmed their November 2010 vote to form the Dietrich Cemetery District, a new taxing district that will allow the town to develop and maintain its own cemetery. The original November vote to form the district was later voided, as proper public notice of the election wasn't sent out in time.

newcomers. Cassia County's public school district successfully renewed its supplemental levy, while an effort in Buhl narrowly failed.

Here are the details:

Buhl School District: It was close, but not close enough. Buhl

School District didn't get enough support for a one-year, $571,903 supplemental levy to keep its schools operating as they do now.

It wasn't the first try, either. Voters last year defeated a two-year $466,000 request, forcing the district to dip into half of its reserves to keep programs intact.

Without the levy, the district expects to look at charging students to participate in sports and other extracurricular activities and trim at least two positions.

NECESSARY, OR TOO COSTLY?

T.F. commissioners question costs to run shared jail with Gooding County

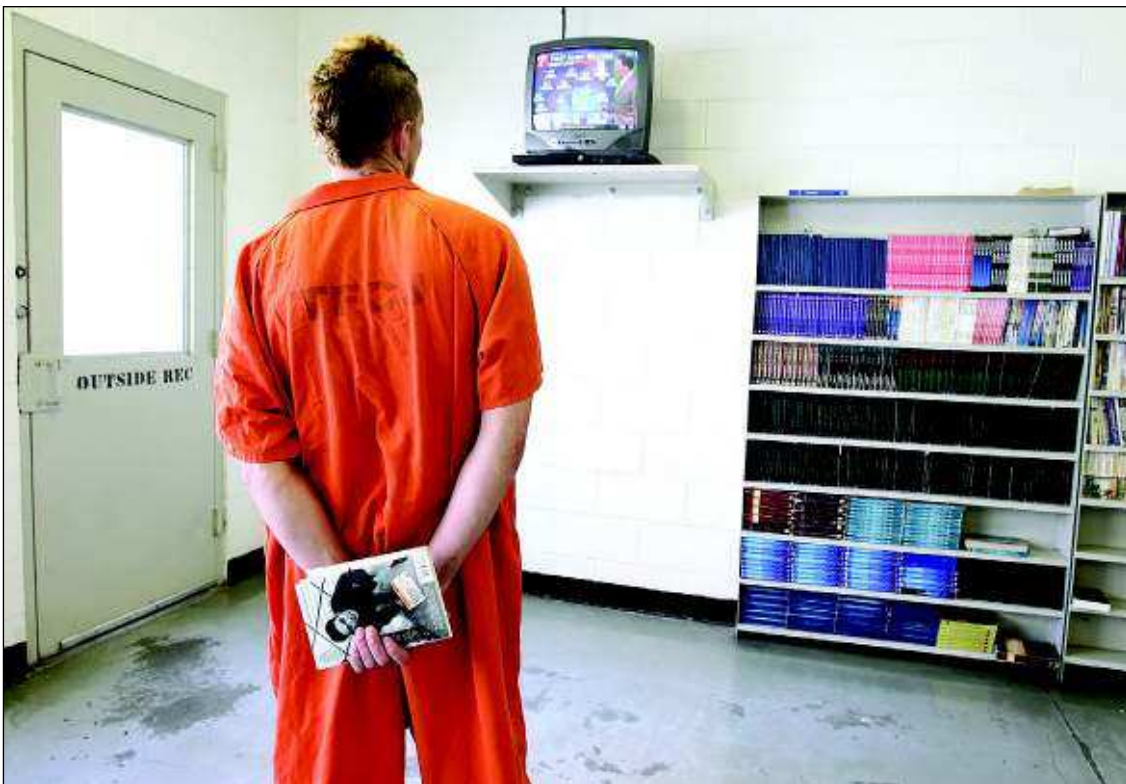

By Bradley Guire
Times-News writer

While the sheriffs of Twin Falls and Gooding counties are enthusiastic about leasing a shared jail, Twin Falls County commissioners still have a cell block full of questions for which they need answers.

Twin Falls County Sheriff Tom Carter, county jail administrator Capt. Doug Hughes and Gooding County Sheriff Shaun Gough met with commissioners on Tuesday to continue discussions about the possibility of the counties working together to "lease, operate, and share" a 150-bed regional jail based in Wendell.

Former police chief to run for T.F. council

Jim Munn, who retired in March, to seek November election

By Nick Coltrain
Times-News writer

Former Twin Falls Police Chief Jim Munn Jr. said public service just got into his blood.

It's understandable: He spent 30 years as a Twin Falls city police officer, joining the force at only 19 years old. He retired in March and it took less than three months to decide on another avenue of public work, this time a bid to join the Twin Falls City Council.

The election is still six months out and official filing doesn't start until Aug. 26. It's also far enough out that Munn said he hasn't decided which up-for-grabs seat he'll pursue or even declared the platforms he'll run on.

"I've been out of government for a couple months. I knew what was really, really important two months ago," Munn said. But now, "I really want to see what's out there. It would be remiss of me right now to make some declaration of a platform without having some more information."

Idaho Transportation Department crews and police respond to a stalled heavy-duty industrial rigging truck that broke down Tuesday on U.S. Highway 26 west of Shoshone. Highway traffic in both directions was blocked through the afternoon.

Stalled truck holds up traffic between Shoshone, Gooding

Times-News

SHOSHONE — U.S. Highway 26 between Shoshone and Gooding was closed to traffic from both directions on Tuesday afternoon when a truck with an oversized load broke down just west of Shoshone.

The incident at mile marker 165 involved a large heavy-duty industrial rigging truck owned by Southwest Industrial Rigging, according to Idaho State Police.

Two cranes were at the scene to reposition the truck, which stalled in the roadway after a pin that connected two sections of its three-part trailer broke, according to the Idaho Transportation Department.

The truck, which was hauling an electrical transformer, did not overturn after the malfunction. However, the transformer fell to the ground, “severely” damaging the roadway.

Police responded to the blockage at 1:30 p.m. An ISP release around 6:30 p.m. advised the road could still be blocked for five or more hours. ITD officials had hoped to fully reopen it by this morning.

No injuries were reported.

The incident remains under investigation. ISP, ITD, Lincoln County sheriff’s deputies and the Shoshone Police Department were at the scene of the accident.

Munn

He said one benefit to his experience is that he does not have much of a learning curve on city budgeting, having done it as police chief. City Manager Travis Rothweiler instituted a new budgeting process this year that brings council members in on front-end decisions.

The Twin Falls council system doesn’t zone its board seats. All are at-large. Munn said he’ll decide soon which seat he’ll run for to be fair to whoever he runs against. Seats held by Trip Craig, David E. Johnson, Will Kezele and Rebecca Mills Sojka will be contestable. Johnson has said he’s on the fence about running again.

Campaign Manager Rich Stivers said the early announcement will help Munn’s campaign because it may cause second thoughts for those looking to run against someone of Munn’s qualifications. It also gives more time to raise money — Stivers said Johnson’s 2007 campaign, which he helped run, needed $5,500.

If Munn wins, he would be one of two former TFPD officers guiding the city. The other is Mayor Don Hall. Munn said he assumes they would hold similar views on public safety issues, including making sure police and other emergency services are properly paid and staffed. After that, Munn said he wouldn’t make any assumptions.

“Don and I are very, very good friends, but we certainly don’t agree on all the issues,” Munn said. “I hope there would be no perception that the way Jim Munn would vote on issues is the way Don Hall would vote on the issue.”

Munn also lists Hall as an investigator for his private investigation business, which he runs with fellow former Police Chief Lee DeVore.

Ultimately, Munn said he wants to continue to serve the community he grew up in and worked his entire life in. He said he couldn’t imagine another community for which he would have risked his life as a police officer or that he would want to help lead.

“It’s not about me, it’s about Twin Falls,” Munn said. “That’s just where I’m at. It’s about Twin Falls here.”

Some Pina, Shores background incomplete

Some background information in a Tuesday story about the voluntary manslaughter sentencing for Juan Carlos Fuentes Pina was incomplete.

Pina has remained incarcerated since 2005 on convictions that include aggravated assault, a charge amended from an original second-degree kidnapping charge related to the death of Jesse Naranjo.

Pina’s accomplice in the Naranjo shooting, Johnny A. Shores, will be eligible for parole on a 23-year prison sentence in about two years. Though convicted of voluntary manslaughter in June 2007, he was given credit for time served since December 2005.

Truth be told, it’s long past the time that the rest of us should have to look at you running around in your knickers.

That’s especially so for you guys: The male torso just does not keep well.

Either you become a sal-low-chested question mark as you get older, or you turn into the kind of figure that inspired Moby Dick.

But not just guys are at fault here.

There’s an inverse relationship, I believe, between the size of a woman’s figure and the likelihood of its being covered by Spandex.

Matter of fact, I have some pictures of that very phenomenon in the family album.

There’s a particular photo of some aunts and female cousins frolicking in the surf along the California coast in They’re all wearing those first-generation, one-piece Latex swimsuits and rubber bathing caps, and they look remarkably like Monty Python with a bad hangover.

Probably just a coincidence, but there’s an especially menacing wave in the background of the picture. Now, maybe the surf was just high that afternoon, but it looks much like what happens when you drop a bowling ball into a bathtub.

Yep, somebody cannon-balled.

All of this would be no more than a crime against aesthetics were not the world population of middle-aged fat people burgeoning.

Many of them are taking vacations. To the seashore, if you get my drift.

I think it’s time to talk seriously about a potbellied public pallor moratorium.

The biggest obstacle, of course, is denial.

You’re not aware, I suppose, of those little pockets of fat dancing where your triceps used to be? You have lint in your navel, for cryin’ out loud, and if you suck in your gut any farther, your ears will pop off.

You’re 45: Get over it and shake hands with your new best friend, Omar the Tent-maker.

I know, it was not always thus: You were once sculpted, shapely, ripped, and all of that is still part of you. Just buried under 3 inches of creampuffs.

So put your clothes back on and act your age: All that glare is blinding passing motorists.

or I can see from this study — which I have no reason whatsoever to believe it’s not factual — it makes perfect sense,” Carter said.

The sheriffs say they need the jail because on Tuesday, Carter’s lockup held its capacity of 154 inmates, with the county paying to house another six elsewhere. Gough has struggled with security issues and costs to operate his 51-bed jail built in 1976 and added on to in 2001.

Carter, Hughes and Gough presented commissioners with a funding breakdown in an eight-page study that puts the proposed jail’s yearly operating costs at $2.9 million. About $1 million of that cost would be split evenly between Twin Falls and Gooding counties, while projected revenue from renting out beds and other sources would fund $1.9 million of yearly costs.

or with maximum-security designation. The new jail would be a minimum-to-medium security facility to hold Twin Falls’ long-term inmates and others from Gooding County and elsewhere.

Commissioner George Urie wanted to see a breakdown of what it would cost the county to operate both jails, a request echoed by the other commissioners.

“What George asked was a valid point,” Commissioner Terry Kramer said later in the afternoon. “We want to keep looking at budgets. Does it really change by $236,000?”

Meanwhile, Gooding County stands to save more than $500,000 in annual jail costs if the new facility is built, according to the proposal.

Funding for the jail would largely rely on renting inmate beds to the Idaho Department of Corrections for $40 per night, or to other counties and federal agencies for $50 per night. The proposal estimates that IDOC could rent 40 beds, with 25 going to other counties and another 30 going to the feds.

Additional money could be made by charging 50 cents per minute for people to visit inmates via streaming Internet video. Gough said Ada County is doing that, but didn’t provide a figure for how much the county made. Ada County Sheriff Gary Raney told the Idaho Statesman in May 2010 that the service could generate $1.5 million in yearly revenue at his jail.

While Rocky Mountain Corrections — the facility’s potential builder and landlord — is a major player in the study the sheriffs presented on Tuesday, Gough stressed that many elements of the study, such as staffing needs and costs, were put together by he and Hughes using salary information from both Twin Falls and Gooding counties.

CSI trustees approve new board bylaws

By Amy Huddleston
Times-News writer

The College of Southern Idaho Board of Trustees gave final approval Monday to the first set of guidelines in its 46-year history.

The new bylaws outline board responsibilities, actions and meeting regulations, as well as a policy on ethics and conflict of interest. The bylaws have been in the making since Bob Keegan and Karl Kleinkopf were elected in November.

BOARD DUTIES

Among the CSI Board of Trustees' duties are:

- Select and evaluate a college president
- Approval of annual budgets, tuition and fees
- Review and approve building contracts and salary recommendations from the president
- Partake in long-term facilities planning
- Consider citizen or organization requests on policy matters

A complete copy of the board's bylaws is expected to be posted on the college's website, www.csi.edu, by the end of the week.

While CSI faced past scrutiny for board decisions that involved trustees' relatives, the new conflict of interest policy instructs board members that they are not to use their position to acquire any fiscal interest for themselves or relatives. A session on ethics advises trustees that they "must have but one allegiance, that is to the institution and its mission. Representing special constituencies dilutes trust and undermines the mission of the College."

In other business, the board approved the Twin Falls City Council's recommendation for new campus zoning that will allow CSI to build on-campus facilities independently of the city's input and put CSI in compliance with city zoning codes. The council did not allow CSI's request to rezone 6.4 acres on the east side of campus to build proposed student apartments.

CSI President Jerry Beck said the board in June will discuss other options for the land or possibly asking the City Council to reconsider the request.

The board was approached by the Festival of Trees Planning Committee for a second time, as organizers hope to serve alcohol at an event on the CSI campus. The request was denied a year ago, but the board this time asked for more information on liabilities, Idaho State Board of Education policies and legal issues before making a decision. The board will address not only the Festival of Trees request, but also whether to allow alcohol-related functions on campus property in general.

Buhl school officials, legislators discuss education's future

School board considers raising driver's ed fee

By Kimberly Williams-Brackett
Times-News correspondent

BUHL — State Reps. Jim Patrick and Stephen Hartgen spent an hour with the Buhl School Board on Monday evening, discussing the major changes to state education policy this year.

Patrick said although a state emergency has been declared and the school system is being overhauled, a 3 percent state revenue growth is projected for the coming year.

"Sales tax hasn't been coming in like it should, which means people are paying off debt or saving money," he said.

Board member Mike

Hamilton asked if the sales tax will be increased to allow the state to generate revenue.

"We'll grow our way out of this," Hartgen said. "Let's not raise taxes."

As of April 30, Idaho's fiscal year-to-date general fund revenue stands at $2.058 billion, which is $74.2 million more than was forecast. "The actual FY 2011 shows we're ahead 9 percent despite still being down from 2008," Hartgen said. "We're coming back up."

Part of the discussion focused on the growing portion of salary funds that will be moved to pay instead for classroom technology and teacher merit pay.

"It is the future," Patrick said of the funding priorities.

"You have to shape the district to the economy of the district," Hartgen said.

Despite concerns from several board members, Chairman Jim Barker said the district "can fight it or we can embrace it." Barker also noted a need to "think outside the box" in ways such as using online lessons to supplement the current education system.

In other business:

- The board set a June 20 public hearing on increasing the driver's education fee from $125 to $200. The hike would help replace a 1996 Ford Taurus that currently has 150,000 miles on it, said David Klug, district business manager. He said the price of driving lessons from a private entity is $350.
- Board members approved inserting a daily advisory period before lunch and both the middle and high schools. Classes will begin 20 minutes earlier, starting this fall, to accommodate the new period.

A ratio of one teacher per 15 students will allow each teacher to interact with the students, and a curriculum will be monitored to prevent teachers and students from using the time as prep or study hall. Students will keep the same advisory teacher throughout high school.

Middle and high school administrators and staff supported the idea as a way to improve and track student performance.

"The middle school could use more time for intervention since we're not meeting AYP," said middle school Principal Suzanne Wilkin, referring to federal student achievement benchmarks.

Trial set for Dietrich home invasion suspects

By Bradley Guire
Times-News writer

Three suspects in a home invasion case in Lincoln County pleaded not guilty on Tuesday.

Aaron Donabedian, Jeremiah Bennett and Gabriel Baker are each scheduled for an Aug. 30 jury trial, with 5th District Judge John Butler presiding. The fourth suspect, Jamie Taylor, filed for a continuance on Tuesday and is set to enter a plea on June 7.

The four are accused of breaking into the Dietrich home of David and Colleen Conner in the early morning of March 9.

The Conners testified at a preliminary hearing for the group on May 11, stating that individuals wearing masks and brandishing guns forced their way into their home to take cash and other valuables. The Conners could not identify any of the suspects because of the masks used during the invasion.

Instead, investigators tied the group to the invasion through, among other items, a video camera with a matching serial number to the one reported as stolen by the Conners. The camera also contained personal images of the Conners stored in the device's memory. Investigators were initially led to Donabedian, whose fiancée, Kayla Richardson, went to police with information in late April. Upon interviewing Donabedian, police say he provided additional details of the crime.

Suspended prison term ordered for T.F. batterer

A 55-year-old Twin Falls man received a suspended sentence on Monday after pleading guilty to felony domestic battery.

Roger Iverson faced a seven-year stint in state prison before Twin Falls County 5th District Judge Randy Stoker ordered a one-year retained jurisdiction program. Iverson was accused of shooting a female victim multiple times with a BB gun last summer.

Iverson initially pleaded not guilty and was scheduled for trial in February, but a $100,000 warrant was issued when he skipped his court date. He was later taken back into custody and changed his plea to guilty on March 21.

Court of Appeals amends Gooding man's sentence

The Idaho Court of Appeals on Thursday amended a Gooding County man's sentence of nearly 60 years in prison.

Judges John Melanson, Karen Lansing and Sergio Gutierrez found that two consecutive sentences are too much for the crimes committed by Lunde Eugene Justice, 22, who was convicted of four counts of felony forgery and one count of grand theft in 2010.

Gooding County 5th District Court Judge John Butler ordered Justice to serve 14 years for grand theft and 14 years for one forgery count as the fixed portion of the sentence, to run consecutively as a 28-year sentence.

Butler added 10 years of indeterminate time for each of the other charges, which put Justice at 58 years total.

Justice appealed, claiming his First Amendment rights were violated when Butler ordered an excessive prison term for his white supremacist views. The appeals court concluded that Butler did not violate Justice's rights but did order an excessive term for property crimes. The court amended the two fixed terms to run concurrently without further modifying the overall sentence. Justice is ordered to serve 44 years in all — 14 before he's eligible for parole.

AROUND THE WEST

WYOMING

Trailer traffic over Teton Pass restricted

JACKSON — The Wyoming Department of Transportation says a mudslide that closed a highway between Alpine and Jackson is still moving and dumping debris into the Snake River.

State officials said Tuesday that they don't know when U.S. 26-89 in the Snake River Canyon will reopen. The slide closed the highway about 25 miles south of Jackson over the weekend.

Motorists traveling between Jackson and Alpine in northwest Wyoming must take a detour through Idaho and over Teton Pass that adds about an hour of drive time. The transportation department is closing Teton Pass to trailer traffic 6 a.m. to 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. while the canyon is closed.

IDAHO

Bail set at $1M; man charged with murder

POCATELLO — A 19-year-old Pocatello man is charged with first-degree murder in the death of his 7-month-old son.

The Idaho State Journal reports bail for Lee Ross Barbone was set at $1 million during an initial court hearing Tuesday.

Court records say the baby, Richard Lee Barbone, died of abusive head trauma. Officials say the infant was born about 16 weeks premature last fall and spent four months in a Salt Lake City hospital. Police say the infant was unresponsive when he was brought to the hospital Monday morning.

2 killed by boulder near Lewiston

LEWISTON — Idaho State Police say two people were killed when the car in which they were riding collided with a boulder that rolled onto Highway 12 near Lewiston.

The 20-year-old driver was not injured in the Monday afternoon accident.

Police say the boulder rolled off a hillside and hit the passenger side of the 1990 Jeep Cherokee, causing it to roll over on the shoulder.

Spokane stations KHQ and KREM report the two passengers were declared dead at the scene — 22-year-old Isaac Wilson and 23-year-old Joseph Wilson, both of Lapwai.

COLORADO

Feds hold meetings on roadless plan

DENVER — Federal officials Tuesday began conducting a series of public meetings to discuss Colorado's proposed plan for managing roadless areas in national forests.

Colorado is one of two states — along with Idaho — that has petitioned federal officials with plans for managing its undeveloped national forest land amid a lingering dispute over federal regulations for almost 60 million acres of untouched land across dozens of states.

Colorado's plan for managing about 4.2 million acres of its undeveloped national forest areas would more than double the amount of land suggested for higher protection than what was offered under a 2001 federal proposal.

Death penalty reinstated for Idaho man

By Todd Dvorak
Associated Press writer

BOISE — The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals has reinstated the death penalty for an Idaho man convicted in the gruesome and brutal murder of a Blackfoot woman in 1984.

A three-judge panel for the court ruled Tuesday in the case of Richard Leavitt, who was convicted in the stabbing death of Danette Jean Elg. Leavitt was found guilty of stabbing Elg 15 times then removing her sexual organs. Her body was found several days after the crime in her blood-spattered bedroom.

Leavitt, 54, was initially sentenced to death in 1985 by former district Judge H. Reynold George, who cited the heinous nature of the crime and disregarded arguments that Leavitt's mental health was a factor in the crime.

Defense attorneys have tried multiple times over the last three decades to have the death penalty overturned.

In 2007, U.S. District Judge B. Lynn Winmill agreed after concluding defense attorney

David Parmenter was ineffective for failing to investigate if brain damage found years later could explain Leavitt's personality disorders at the time of the crime. Parmenter represented Leavitt during the early stages of his appeal.

But in a divided opinion, the appellate justices reversed Winmill, putting Leavitt back on Idaho's death row.

Chief Judge Alex Kozinski, writing for the majority, said Leavitt failed to show how his lawyer's decision not to pursue the mental health angle was insufficient and prejudicial to his case.

Leavitt's first set of lawyers tried using Leavitt's mental health and personality disorders as a basis for avoiding the death penalty during the trial and sentencing in 1985. But at the time, Judge George discounted those claims, saying the findings of a psychologist amounted to "feathers on the scale" when weighed against the heinousness and brutality of the crime.

"Parmenter's decision to cease further investigation into Leavitt's already heavily analyzed mental health was entirely rational," Kozinski wrote. "One definition of insanity is repeating the same course of action twice and expecting a different result."

Years after the murder, Leavitt underwent an MRI that showed he suffered from an organic brain disorder in a section of the brain responsible for managing and regulating emotion and impulse control.

Leavitt is being held at the Idaho Maximum Security Institution south of Boise along with 15 other inmates on death row.

Fatal horse virus reported in Western states, Canada

By Rebecca Boone
Associated Press writer

BOISE — Horse owners and organizations nationwide are watching anxiously and some are shutting down shows and other events in an effort to keep a deadly horse virus outbreak that began in Utah from spreading beyond a handful of Western states and Canada.

So far, at least 17 horses in Idaho, Utah, Colorado, California, Washington and Canada have been infected with the highly contagious Equine Herpes Virus-1, and at least three have died. The disease poses no threat to people but is easily spread among horses, alpacas and llamas because it can be airborne and transmitted by touch or by sharing feed, brushes, bits and other equipment.

The infected horses were among roughly 400 that attended the National Cutting Horse Association Western National Championships in Ogden, Utah, earlier this month.

Now, officials in several states are quarantining infected animals and asking owners of other horses that were at the event to closely monitor the animals for symptoms. Organizers also are cancelling horse shows and classes in Texas, Utah and elsewhere in an effort to stem the disease's spread.

The outbreak has horse owners across the West worried, said Preston Skaar, president of the Idaho Cutting Horse Association.

"It's a hard deal, but all you can do is have your horses stay home and wait it out," he said.

Skaar took one horse to compete at the Utah event and then brought it back to his property in Menan, Idaho, where it lives with 12 other horses. So far, he said, none of the animals have shown any signs of illness, but he's starting each day earlier so he can take their temperature and check for fever, gait problems and other symptoms of the virus.

Infected horses can appear perfectly healthy until they get stressed and the virus takes hold, he said — so none of the horses are being ridden unless absolutely necessary.

"I was kind of bummed out that I didn't make the finals (at the Ogden competition), but I'm not feeling quite as bad about it now," Skaar said. "That kept my horse from getting more stressed and fatigued, and maybe that helped."

Officials with the National Cutting Horse Association couldn't be immediately reached, but a statement on the group's website said members are closely monitoring the situation and that all NCHA-approved shows scheduled for this weekend have been canceled by the affiliates or show producers putting on the events.

"The NCHA appreciates this proactive move by show producers in a nationwide show of precaution and solidarity," the group said. "While reported cases of the virus are currently in Western states, the interstate transport of infected horses could cause a much wider spread of the virus if we are not all very cautious at this time."

Cutting competitions — in which horses and riders are judged on their cattle-handling skills — involve quarter horses or other stock-horse breeds. But all horses are susceptible to the virus.

Idaho Department of Agriculture spokeswoman Pam Juker said 26 horses from Idaho were at the Utah event. Of those, two have died of the disease and at least six others were infected, state veterinarian Bill Barton said.

All of the Idaho owners have voluntarily quarantined their animals, Barton said, and they're being told to take precautions such as disinfecting things that come into contact with the animals and limiting contact between horses.

Changes for bison management weighed, but court order looms

BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP) — The next steps in letting wild bison roam beyond Yellowstone National Park were laid out by government officials on Tuesday, after a tumultuous winter in which almost 900 of the animals were captured during their annual migration.

State and federal agency representatives suggested allowing bison into new areas west of Yellowstone, relocating bison to other parts of the state and vaccinating the animals against disease.

But overshadowing the discussions was a pair of court orders last week from a judge in Park County. State District Court Judge Nels Swandal halted an effort that had opened 75,000 acres in Montana's Gardiner Basin to bison.

The orders underscored continued resistance to free-roaming bison in Montana despite progress toward resolving concerns over a disease carried by the animals.

In the past, the debate over bison had centered on their potential to spread that disease, brucellosis, to cattle. Now, after at least 500 bison were allowed into the Gardiner Basin this year, the focus is shifting to the broader question of whether and where bison belong outside the park.

"There are some viable things to talk about with increasing habitat, but given ongoing litigation, we may get a court decision that re-frames how far we can go," said Gallatin National Forest Supervisor Mary Erickson. The Forest Service is one of five federal agencies and three American Indian groups that oversee bison management in Montana.

Cameron Mottet makes up a missed snow day in the kitchen of her home last month in Parkville, Mo. Some schools are experimenting with ways for students to do lessons online during bad weather.

Could Internet spell the end of snow days?

PARKVILLE, Mo. (AP) — Could the Internet mean the end of snow days? Some schools think so, and they are experimenting with ways for students to do lessons online during bad weather, potentially allowing classes to go on during even the worst blizzard.

“Virtual snow days” would help ease pressure on school calendars. Because districts are required to be in session for a certain number of hours or days, losing teaching time to winter weather can mean extending the school day or cutting short spring break or summer vacation.

And canceling school in the winter, when some of the most difficult material of the year is covered, risks leaving students with a learning deficit heading into the spring, when many states administer standardized tests.

“Even if you can’t continue on at the same pace, being able to keep students on track can make a huge difference,” said Doug Levin, executive director of the non-profit State Educational Technology Directors Association.

Virtual learning, which has been widely used by colleges and universities for years, is becoming more viable for younger students as teachers and administrators grow comfortable with the technology. Online learning also saves money because districts don’t have to pay for transportation, electricity and custodians.

But there are obstacles, too. Many families don’t have Internet access with speeds that would support complex classroom-style work, especially in rural areas and impoverished inner cities. Families with multiple children — without multiple computers — could be hard-pressed to keep up.

And some people say kids just need an occasional extra day off in the depths of winter.

“When deep snow falls, the world becomes quiet and still. And if we listen to our instincts, we settle in and enjoy the pure joy of not doing,” David Santner wrote on the website for the Poughkeepsie Day School in New York, where his son is a middle schooler, after the school turned to online learning during a spate of winter storms.

For schoolchildren, old-fashioned snow days used to mean hours spent playing outside in the drifts, watching television or sipping hot chocolate. But someday, kids who can’t get to the classroom might just sit down with their computers.

Josie Holford, head of the Poughkeepsie school, which had six snow days and four late starts this past winter, said it’s possible to enjoy the outdoors and keep learning. Students in one class were told to draw a picture in the snow for a lesson on angles and to take a picture of their creation.

“We have to recognize as teachers, educators, all of us, that we are in a completely different landscape, and that learning really isn’t confined to a textbook or a teacher anymore,” Holford said. “We all have to be learning all the time. Why should a snow day stop the progress of learning?”

At St. Therese School in the Kansas City suburb of Parkville, students recently did a virtual make-up day after classes were canceled six times because of weather.

As she used a computer drawing program to complete an art lesson in her kitchen, seventh-grader Cameron Mottet predicted her classmates would embrace the system, especially if it means “they don’t have to go to school in June.”

Geithner: GOP will bear responsibility

NEW YORK (AP) — Treasury Secretary Timothy Geithner said Tuesday that if Republicans insist on passage of their budget plan as a condition for approving an increase in the nation’s borrowing limit, they will be responsible for the consequences.

Speaking to a New York audience, Geithner said that Republicans would bear responsibility for the first debt default in the nation’s history if they insist they will not vote for an increase in the $14.3 billion borrowing limit unless they win approval of a House Republican budget plan.

“If Republicans try to impose that plan on this country as a condition for raising the debt limit, then they will own the responsibility for the first default in our history, with devastating consequences,” Geithner said in a speech to the Harvard Club of New York.

Geithner noted that the country reached the current borrowing limit of $14.29 trillion on Monday. He said

SENATOR QUILTS DEFICIT TALKS

WASHINGTON (AP) — A top Republican senator in the bipartisan “Gang of Six” seeking agreement on a plan to cut the deficit by $4 trillion over the next decade dropped out of the group on Tuesday, saying that his colleagues weren’t willing to cut enough from benefit programs like Medicare.

Sen. Tom Coburn of Oklahoma said he doesn’t see how the group can reach agreement and that he would stop participating in its discussions. “It’s got to be balanced. And I didn’t perceive where we were was balanced,” Coburn said.

The closely watched group has been working for months on a sweeping plan to wrestle the deficit under control through a mix of new tax revenues and cuts across a wide swath of the federal budget.

he has begun deploying a series of bookkeeping maneuvers to avoid a debt default but that he will run out of maneuvering room around Aug. 2.

“As I have said before, Congress must meet its responsibility to protect the nation’s full faith and credit by increasing the debt limit,” Geithner said.

He said while the borrowing costs on the national debt have remained low, that could change quickly if financial markets begin to doubt America’s ability to deal with its financial difficulties.

He said the cost of debt default, something that has never occurred in the country’s history, would be as devastating as the financial crisis that hit in 2008.

“As we saw in the fall of 2008, when confidence turns, it can turn with brutal force and with a momentum that is very difficult and costly to arrest,” Geithner said. “That is a threat we should preempt.”

Geithner called on lawmakers to work on a credible deficit-cutting plan that could be accepted by Republicans and Democrats.

House Speaker John Boehner said again on Monday that Republicans will not support an increase in the debt limit “without serious budget reforms and significant spending cuts.”

Republicans have ruled out any tax increases, including any plans to end tax cuts for high earners enacted in 2001 and 2003.

The Treasury Department confirmed that the debt ceiling was reached on Monday with the debt totaling $14.293 trillion.

So long to Killebrew, the best ballplayer Idaho ever saw

Idaho may have produced better athletes, but never a greater sportsman than Harmon Killebrew.

Killebrew, who died Tuesday at 74 of esophageal cancer, was a small-town Idaho boy who made it all the way to the major league baseball Hall of Fame. He got there by hitting 573 home runs in 22 seasons with the Washington Senators, Minnesota Twins and Kansas City Royals.

No Idahoan before or since has come close to an achievement of that magnitude in professional sports.

Our view:

Harmon Killebrew brought Idaho lots of attention, but never a second of embarrassment.

What do you think?
We welcome viewpoints from our readers on this and other issues.

Killebrew’s dad, the Payette County sheriff who paid the bills by painting houses, put young Harmon to work on a farm, hefting 10-gallon milks cans. By high school, the lad had set every record in every sport in his hometown of 4,100.

But Killebrew was unknown until U.S. Sen. Herman Welker told Senators’ owner Clark Griffith about a kid back in his state who was hitting .847 for a semi-pro baseball team. Killebrew signed for $50,000, but because of baseball rules at the time, played little for the Senators in his first two years.

Then he made up for lost time: Killebrew ended up 11th on baseball’s all-time home run list, including eight seasons with 40 or more homers. He was an All-Star 10 times at three positions — first base, third base and in the outfield — and was voted National League most valuable player in 1969.

Idaho never had a better ambassador to the wider world. His nickname was Killer, but Killebrew was a quiet, gentle soul little given to the lifestyle enjoyed by his peers. Asked once what he did for fun, Killebrew replied, “Well, I like to wash dishes, I guess.”

After he retired from baseball, Killebrew returned to Payette and opened a car dealership, but he faced some adversity in later years. In 1988, a year after Killebrew and his wife divorced, his house went into foreclosure. In 1989, the Minneapolis Star-Tribune reported that he had fallen $700,000 into debt. Soon after, his health failed.

In 1990, Killebrew was rushed to the hospital with a collapsed lung and damaged esophagus. Together with a subsequent abscess and staph infection, Killebrew endured three surgeries and nearly died. He used a wheelchair for a time after surgery.

But Killebrew remarried and slowly regained his health. He was involved in a Boise insurance and securities business, and founded the Danny Thompson Memorial Golf Tournament in 1977 with former Idaho congressman Ralph Harding. Played each August in Sun Valley, it has raised more than $8.6 million to leukemia and cancer research.

Killebrew lived for the past 20 years in Arizona, where he became a wry, low-key ambassador for baseball. David Letterman once invited Killebrew on his TV program and hung his guest’s sport coat in the rafters of the studio in mock tribute to Killebrew’s career. At the end of the show, Killebrew asked Letterman to return the jacket because it “was kind of expensive.”

Spoken like a kid from Payette.

The dying art of conversation

He is Yammering Man, the One Who Speaks Loudly On A Cellphone In Public. He was once the terror of public spaces. Now listen.

Alexandra Petri

Do you hear it, too? The silence, modulated only by a vague clicking. It’s almost eerie. Talk about hive-minds. There is no more insect-like sound than all that tapping on glowing screens, like the sinister clicking of the claws of a silent lobster.

Those ads at movie theaters about not talking on your cellphone during films feel vaguely old hat. Talk during the movie? What are we, 80?

It’s where all this new communications technology has taken us. It’s what we thought we wanted.

Conversation has always been a bewildering art. It dates back, like so many arts (violin concertos, action painting, wine appreciation, action painting violins after appreciating too much wine) to a mysterious and bygone epoch When There Was Nothing Better To Do. You had to figure out some way of sharing the mammoth, so you wound up talking to the guy in the next cave. You had to figure out who was going to go represent the serfs, so you wound up talking to the guy in the next castle. You had to figure out if Roxane would date you, so you wound up having Cyrano write you some lines and going to chat up the ladies’ balcony.

But it took effort. And it could be awkward. Those silences over the phone (the need to pay attention), having to set aside enough time to converse — superficially, all of this was most irritating. And don’t get us started on Yammering Man, telling some stranger what he had for breakfast! Surely there was an app for that.

But we’re gradually sensing our mistake. Some hindrances are necessary.

That is the funny, brutal little irony of it all: not that the old ways were the best ways, but that the inefficient ways were the best ways. You learn words better from the effort of looking them up in a dictionary. You read faster on a glare-free device that allows you to mark your place, is easily portable and doesn’t require batteries. There’s a word for that.

And you might have to talk to some people, after all.

My initial relief at not having to talk to anyone is feeling more and more like panic. I miss the slivers of conversation that you’d hear in an elevator. I miss the days when the people around me were engaged in anything other than checking their phones repeatedly. I miss when I wasn’t doing the same. I miss the voices. I miss the awkwardness.

So the next time I hear someone yammering into his phone on an escalator, I hope my face will light up with a beatific smile. “Good for you, sir,” I will intone. “At least you’re talking.”

‘Rock Chuck Derby’ a barbaric fundraiser

A recent article celebrating the fundraising “Rock Chuck Derby” spoke of the fun and good times had by those who took pleasure in killing helpless animals. It’s a shame that such barbaric events still draw interest, but there is something that could be learned by this.

Psychologist Robert Hare of the University of British Columbia developed a checklist of traits that is commonly used to assess psychopathy in patients. Among these traits are many commonly held by those who hunt for pleasure: a grandiose sense of self-worth, lack of remorse or guilt, a callous lack of empathy, need for stimulation/proneness to boredom, and impulsivity.

If we apply these “gold standard” criteria to those who engage in killing helpless animals for pleasure, it can be said that those attracted to events like the “Rock Chuck Derby” could be mentally ill. Hopefully participants in this fundraising bloodbath will recognize that they are the owners of such traits and take steps to undergo the psychiatric care that they need.

There are countless ways to run successful fundraisers that do not involve violence and bloodshed, and it would be wise to pursue such events now and in the future. Killing harmless animals for pleasure should not be deemed acceptable by a civilized society.

Smokers should be left on their own to stop

Regarding the front page, April 27, “Help for smokers targeted”:

The intrusion into private lives by Americans in authority is very amazing to me.

If you consider that at pack of ordinary cigarettes cost some $6.50, it would seem to me that if you decided to quit, you could afford your own medication.

This program, along with many others both state and national, is what is going to bankrupt the richest and most successful country since prehistory.

My, and for that matter your, tax dollars could be spent in a much more important direction than this. For example, in the richest country in the world, there are people out there starving, mothers living on the streets with small children; this would be a more important role for local government involvement.

Sorry, pregnant mothers and teenage smokers, if I had my way, this program would be fast cancelled and you would be on your own.

If I ever decided to give up smoking, having started at 11 and now 65, I would not dream of going to a local clinic on your tax monies to give up my bad, in the eyes of some, personal habit.

We cannot afford these programs as a nation and we cannot afford to police every individual with supposed bad habits and much less can we afford to police the world.

Social Security should be for those who paid

Like another person recently, I am concerned about the fact that we are going to bring several hundred immigrants to the Twin Falls area from Nepal. I feel for the people in other countries, but with our job situation so bad, what will we do with those folks?

I heard that a local McDonald’s recently had some 60-plus applicants for just one job! So if we have no jobs, that means those new arrivals will be put on public assistance. Which brings me to my real pet peeve: You seniors on Social Security, are you not as tired as I am of the media and the government calling our monthly Social Security an “entitlement,” making it sound kind of dirty, like it’s a handout we don’t deserve?

I looked up my Social Security contributions for the 39 years I worked and, with the matching contributions from my employers, if that amount had been put into any kind of interest-bearing account, I figure there should be enough in there to pay me my current monthly draw for 30 to 40 years! I’m sure a lot of you paid in even more than I did, but guess what? Years ago, those generous people in Congress saw that Social Security had a big surplus, so they started tapping it for other uses like new immigrants that never paid in one cent.

They draw SSI, but I am told that comes out of our Social Security fund. And I know some of those checks are more than some of us get. Now, if our government wants to keep bringing in more immigrants when we have no jobs for them, then let them put them in another “pocket,” not on our Social Security.

If you aren’t concerned, don’t complain when they cut your paycheck; if you are, then we better all start contacting our congress people and tell them to stop this policy! There are too many hands in the till, all right, but it’s not just us baby boomers, as they’d like us to believe.

Homebuilders miss out on economic recovery

Unemployment, tightened lending standards reduce pool of buyers

By Derek Kravitz
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — For homebuilders, it hardly feels like an economic recovery. Nearly two years after the recession ended, the pace of construction is inching along at less than half the level considered healthy. Single-family home building, the bulk of the market, has dropped 11 percent in that time. Builders are struggling to compete with waves of foreclosures that have forced down prices for previously occupied homes. The weakness is weighing on the economy: Though new homes represent a small portion of overall sales, they have an outsized effect on jobs. The Commerce Department said Tuesday that new-home construction plummeted in April to a seasonally adjusted rate of 523,000 homes per year. A major drop in volatile apartment building pulled down the monthly figures. And strong tornadoes and flooding also disrupted construction projects throughout the South. Still, through the first four months of this year, the pace of new-home construction is barely ahead of 2009's — the worst year on records dating back a half-century. “There are very few signs of recovery in residential construction,” said Celia Chen, senior director at Moody’s Analytics. “Absent evidence of stronger demand for housing, homebuilders will remain reticent to put up new homes.” The disappointing construction data contributed to a sell-off on Wall Street on Tuesday. The Dow Jones industrial average fell more than 110 points in mid-day trading. The April drop in new-home construction was largely because apartment and condominium building plunged more than 28 percent. Single-family home construction, which makes up roughly 80 percent of the market, fell about 5 percent. Building permits, a gauge of future construction, fell 4 percent. “The underlying trends, as far as we can tell, are about flat, at a very low level,” said Ian Shepherdson, chief U.S. economist at High Frequency Economics. High unemployment and tighter lending standards have greatly reduced the number of potential buyers who could qualify for a mortgage. And those who are eligible have more incentive to buy a previously occupied home. The median price of a new home was about 34 percent higher in March than the median price for a re-sale. That’s more than twice the markup in healthy housing markets. In some cities, prices are half of what they were before the housing market collapsed in 2006 and 2007. Many potential buyers who could qualify for loans are worried that prices will fall further. Others are hesitant to put their own homes on the market when prices are dropping. The housing market has traditionally powered economic recoveries. Each new home built creates an average of three jobs for a year and generates about $90,000 in taxes, according to the National Association of Home Builders. In previous recessions, housing accounted for 15 to 20 percent of overall economic growth. In the first post-recession year, between 2009 and 2010, housing contributed just 4 percent to the economy.

With IMF chief in jail, markets weigh possible successors

Europeans will likely want to keep post as debt crisis unfolds

By Pan Pylas
Associated Press writer

LONDON — The global financial community was abuzz with speculation Tuesday about who would eventually replace Dominique Strauss-Kahn as head of the International Monetary Fund. With Strauss-Kahn jailed in New York on sex crime charges, the prevailing view in the markets and in policy-making circles is that it’s only a matter of time before he quits or is forced out by the IMF board. Even before his arrest Sunday, Strauss-Kahn was widely expected to resign from the IMF later this year to pursue the French presidency in 2012. A number of names were touted as potential candidates but the final choice will largely hinge on whether the U.S. and the European Union continue their arrangement of splitting the jobs of the two Washington D.C.-based sister organizations — the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank. The IMF focuses on stability in the international financial system, while the World Bank funds projects in developing countries. Since World War II, a European has headed the IMF while the U.S. has grabbed the top job at the World Bank. This arrangement might be in peril as developing nations such as China and Brazil become more potent forces in the world economy. Simon Johnson, a professor at MIT’s Sloan School of Management and a former IMF chief economist, said there’s no guarantee the U.S. will continue to want the World Bank leadership, and may back the nomination of an official from a big, developing nation such as China. That would raise questions about Europe’s claim to the IMF leadership. “A brilliant move on behalf of the Americans would be to get China more involved in the development process,” Johnson said. “The Europeans need to line their ducks up; they want this more than ever.” European leaders would blanch at the thought of giving up their traditional claim to nominate the IMF chief, as one of the fund’s main jobs now is to help solve Europe’s Course graduates will receive a certificate of completion that can potentially help qualified borrowers take advantage of special programs offering down payment or closing cost assistance, the use of gifted funds or more generous debt ratios. The cost to register is $20 and students can register at <http://communityed.csi.edu> or by calling 732-6442. Class size is limited and early registration is suggested.

N.Y. probe seeks mortgage records

By Michael Gormley
Associated Press writer

ALBANY, N.Y. — New York Attorney General Eric Schneiderman is seeking records from three major Wall Street banks as part of a broad investigation into the mortgage crisis that fueled the recession, an official familiar with the issue said Tuesday. Schneiderman is meeting with representatives of the Bank of America, Morgan Stanley and Goldman Sachs, according to the official, who spoke to The Associated Press on condition of anonymity. Those meetings are expected to focus on mortgage securities operations during the boom on Wall Street that ultimately cost banks billions of dollars. The official said securitization of those mortgages would be an area Schneiderman will examine. Packaging mortgages into securities that investors could buy might have concealed risky loans, something critics on Wall Street said was at the center of the mortgage crisis.

Airlines rush to pass on fuel costs

Memory of losses in 2008 compels increases in fares

By Steve Everly
McClatchy Newspapers

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Airfares are rising at their fastest pace in years as airlines are having more success in passing on the higher cost of fuel to their passengers.

The average price of a ticket on a U.S. airline, including baggage and other fees, was 14 percent higher in March than a year ago. That's the biggest 12-month increase and the highest average price for March in at least a decade.

The five biggest U.S. airlines together still lost a little more than $1 billion in the first quarter, but they appear determined to avoid a repeat of the multibillion-dollar losses in 2008, when they couldn't recover rising fuel prices.

They appear to be making progress, with fuel prices in March just 1.5 percent higher than they were three years ago and fares up 10 percent.

"In 2008, airline CEOs were on the floor in the fetal position," said Michael Boyd, an aviation expert and president of the Boyd Group. "This time they're prepared."

Unlike before, the fare increases are sticking this year. One big difference is that Southwest Airlines, which in 2008 typically balked at the increases, is raising its fares, too.

Southwest has bumped prices up seven times since the middle of December and, in a recent conference call with analysts, signaled that more increases are likely.

"I don't like fare increases

McClatchy

A ticket agent at the American Airlines terminal at O'Hare International Airport in Chicago discusses a ticket with a customer earlier this year. The airline reported that its traffic in March was up slightly and that its fuel cost for the year will rise $2.1 billion.

for our customers, but they're certainly necessary in this soaring fuel-cost environment," said Gary Kelly, the airline's chairman and chief executive officer.

Southwest was the lone big U.S. carrier to squeeze out a profit in the first quarter, though losses overall for Delta Air Lines, American Airlines, US Airways and United Continental Holdings were less than expected.

And further airfare increases are expected because airlines still need to recover more of their fuel costs and the current increases haven't scared away many passengers.

Soaring fuel costs are hitting every segment of the economy, from farmers and manufacturers to the typical two-car household, which is paying an extra $100 a month for gasoline.

For U.S. airlines, with fuel costs often their single highest expense, the increases become downright scary. Just a penny annual boost in the price of a gallon of jet fuel costs them $175 million, and if jet fuel averaged $3 a gallon for all of 2011, they would add $15 billion in fuel costs compared with 2010. That's for an industry that last year had a $3 billion profit, according to the Air Transport Association, an industry trade group.

Jet fuel prices passed $3 a gallon in late February, up 50 cents since the first of the year, according to the Energy Information Administration. Fuel prices have since jumped to $3.30. In 2008, jet fuel peaked at $4.16 per gallon, according to the Energy Information Administration.

United Continental Holdings, the parent of United and Continental airlines, saw the price it paid for fuel increase 35 percent in the debt crisis. Strauss-Kahn, France's finance minister when the euro currency was created in 1999, has been viewed favorably for his leadership in handling the 17-nation eurozone's troubles.

Managing directors serve five-year terms. Countries nominate candidates, and they are elected by the organization's 24-member executive board, which represents the 187 member nations. The United States and Europe, as leading donors, have much greater weight than smaller countries.

Possible Europeans touted at the moment to lead the IMF include French Finance Minister Christine Lagarde, the former head of the German central bank Axel Weber, the head of Europe's bailout fund Klaus Regling, and Peer Steinbrueck, a former German finance minister. Marek Belka, the head of Poland's central bank who also worked as the director of the IMF's Europe sector, took himself out of the running Tuesday.

"They need a heavy-weight and they need a European heavyweight," said Jan Randolph, head of sovereign risk analysis at IHS Global Insight.

Troops face escalating violence in southern Iraq

BAGHDAD (AP) — American forces are facing an increasingly dangerous environment in southern Iraq, where Shiite militias trying to claim they are driving out the U.S. occupiers have stepped up attacks against bases and troops.

The uptick in violence serves as a warning about what American forces could face if U.S. and Iraqi officials come to an agreement about keeping more U.S. troops in the country past Dec. 31.

“We’re very concerned about it,” said Col. Reginald Allen, who commands the 3rd Armored Cavalry Regiment that operates in five, predominantly Shiite provinces. “This environment is very fluid, but in general our planning assumptions and our precautions are based on the worst case, that levels of violence will continue to increase.”

Allen’s regiment lost five soldiers in April, one of the highest months for combat-related deaths in Iraq since U.S. forces pulled out of the cities in June 2009.

Two were killed in Babil province by indirect fire — the military’s term for rockets or mortars; two more were killed by a roadside bomb in Wasit province, which borders Iran; and the last was killed by a rocket-propelled grenade in Qadisiyah province.

About 46,000 American troops remain in Iraq, focusing on training Iraqi forces. That’s down from their one-time high in 2007 of nearly 170,000 troops. U.S. soldiers still come under attack from rockets or mortars on their bases, and from roadside bombs and shootings when they’re moving around the country.

Michael Knights, of the Washington Institute for Near East Policy, said the attacks indicate an increased confidence by militias to engage U.S. forces. He noted that the militants have been targeting vulnerable U.S. supply lines. The vast majority of supplies for U.S. forces are shuttled on roads from Kuwait into southern Iraq.

Knights, who writes extensively about security issues in Iraq, said April saw a major jump in the use of armor-piercing explosives — known as explosively formed penetrators, or EFPs.

“The increase in attacks shows that Iranian-backed cells enjoy greater freedom of movement than they have in the past. They have increased confidence in their ability to engage U.S. forces in stand-up firefights in broad daylight,” he said.

AROUND THE NATION

Senate blocks bill repealing tax breaks

WASHINGTON — The Senate blocked a bill Tuesday that would repeal about $2 billion a year in tax breaks for the five biggest oil companies, a Democratic response to $4-a-gallon gasoline that might fare better when Congress and the White House negotiate a deal later this year to increase the government’s ability to borrow.

The bill was defeated on a procedural vote. But Democrats hope to build their case to include the measure in a deficit-reduction package being negotiated by key lawmakers and the Obama administration. Lawmakers from both parties are demanding deficit reduction as part of deal to increase the government’s ability to borrow and avoid an unprecedented default on U.S. Treasury bonds.

“This bill says that even the most rich and powerful among us must do their fair share to help us reduce the deficit,” said Sen. Robert Menendez, D-N.J., the bill’s sponsor. “Their high-priced lobbyists cannot stop us from doing what is fair and what is right.”

Nevada high court won’t hear O.J. appeal

LAS VEGAS — The Nevada Supreme Court has declined to hear O.J. Simpson’s appeal.

Simpson’s lawyer lost his bid Tuesday to appeal for his client’s freedom before all seven members of the state’s highest court.

The court issued a terse ruling Tuesday saying it won’t reconsider Simpson’s case.

Simpson’s lawyer Malcolm LaVergne in Las Vegas told The Associated Press he’ll take the case to federal court.

Giffords set to undergo surgery

HOUSTON — Doctors will replace a piece of Gabrielle Giffords’ skull with a plastic implant on Wednesday, another encouraging step in the Arizona congresswoman’s recovery from a gunshot to the head more than four months ago.

The surgery — coming just days after Giffords traveled to Florida to watch her astronaut husband launch into space — was confirmed to The Associated Press by a person familiar with the congresswoman’s care. The person spoke on condition of anonymity because the information has not officially been released.

Judge cautions Blagojevich lawyers

CHICAGO — The judge in Rod Blagojevich’s corruption retrial suggested Tuesday that attorneys for the impeached governor have attempted to broach frivolous legal arguments and reiterated that he intends to keep them on a tight leash.

“There is a real concern that you are throwing stuff at the wall and seeing if it sticks,” Judge James Zagel said during the proceedings in Chicago. “I don’t blame you for doing any of this, but I am not going along with it.”

Man eats 25,000 Big Macs in 39 years

FOND DU LAC, Wis. — A retired prison guard ate his 25,000th Big Mac on Tuesday, 39 years to the day after eating his first ... nine.

Don Gorske was honored after reaching the meaty milestone during a ceremony at a McDonald’s in his hometown of Fond du Lac. Surely McDonald’s most loyal customer, Guinness World Records recognized Gorske’s feat three years and 2,000 Big Macs ago, and the 57-year-old says he has no desire to stop.

“I plan on eating Big Macs until I die,” he said. “I have no intentions of changing. It’s still my favorite food. Nothing has changed in 39 years. I look forward to it every day.”

Flooded businesses along the Mississippi River are seen Tuesday in Vicksburg, Miss. The Coast Guard said it closed the Mississippi River at the port in Natchez, Miss., on Tuesday because barge traffic could increase pressure on the levees.

Part of river reopens

Shipping interrupted on flooding Mississippi

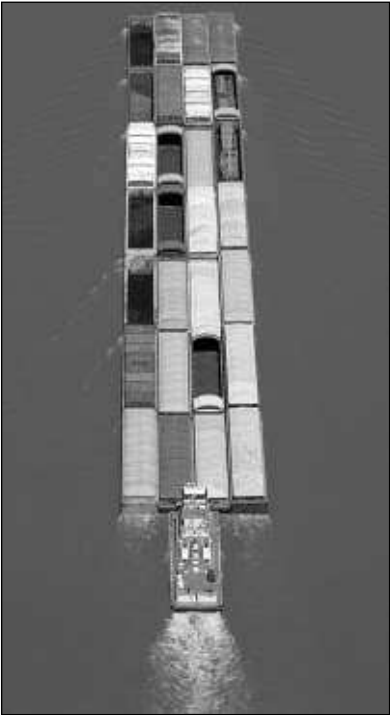

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The Coast Guard reopened the swollen Mississippi River north of New Orleans on Tuesday, allowing cargo vessels on the nation’s busiest waterway to pass slowly, one at a time in the latest effort to reduce pressure from rising floodwaters.

A 15-mile stretch at Natchez, Miss., was closed entirely earlier in the day, blocking vessels heading toward the Gulf of Mexico and others trying to return north after dropping off their freight. Had the channel remained closed, it could’ve brought traffic to a standstill up and down the river, which moves about 500 million tons of cargo each year.

That sort of interruption could’ve cost the U.S. economy hundreds of millions of dollars for every day of idled barges carrying coal, timber, iron, steel and more than half of America’s grain exports.

Coast Guard officials said wakes generated by passing barge traffic could increase the strain on levees designed to hold back the river. Authorities were also concerned that barges could not operate safely in the flooded river, which has risen to the level of some docks and submerged others.

“We’re closely monitoring traffic

age,” said Jenkins, who owns Vidalia Dock and Storage.

Moland said the Coast Guard tested wake impact before making the decision. The tests indicated sandbagging and other measures to protect most of the area could withstand the wakes if the vessels were ordered to move through the areas at the slowest possible speed.

It’s not clear how long barges would only be able to move one at a time through the section. The river is expected to stay high in some places for weeks.

The Coast Guard did not have comprehensive figures on how many vessels were immediately affected, but the agency stopped at least 19 near Natchez.

In past closures, the numbers have grown quickly. In 2008, the agency halted 59 ships within a day of shutting down a stretch of the river near New Orleans because of a barge and tanker collision.

Shipping companies had hoped for a swift reopening.

On a typical day, 600 barges move up and down the river, according to Bob Anderson, spokesman for the Mississippi Valley Division of the Army Corps of Engineers. A single barge can carry as much cargo as 70 tractor-trailers or 17 rail cars.

Also Tuesday, at least 10 freight terminals along the lower Mississippi between Baton Rouge and New Orleans suspended operations because of high water.

After separating from Shriver, secret comes out about Schwarzenegger

By John Rogers
Associated Press writer

LOS ANGELES — He’s one of the most famous people on the planet, a two-term governor of California, a movie star and a former world champion bodybuilder with a profile so huge that just one name, Arnold, instantly identifies him to almost everyone.

Yet somehow, for more than a decade, Arnold Schwarzenegger managed to keep an incredible secret from the public and his wife, prominent former TV journalist and Kennedy heiress Maria Shriver: that he fathered a child with a woman on his household staff more than a decade ago.

The revelation came Tuesday, just a week after Schwarzenegger and Shriver announced they had separated.

“I understand and deserve the feelings of anger and disappointment among my friends and family,” Schwarzenegger wrote in a statement. “There are no excuses and I take full responsibility for the hurt I have caused. I have apologized to Maria, my children and my family. I am truly sorry.”

Hours later, Shriver also released a statement: “This is a painful and heartbreaking time. As a mother, my concern is for the children. I ask for compassion, respect and privacy as my children and I try to rebuild our lives and heal. I will have no further comment.”

Schwarzenegger and Shriver jointly announced May 9 that they were splitting up after 25 years of marriage. She moved out of the family’s Brentwood mansion after Schwarzenegger acknowledged the child is his, the Los Angeles Times reported Tuesday.

For several weeks, she has been seen in public without her wedding ring.

Schwarzenegger said the child was born “over a decade ago” — before he became governor.

The Times did not publish the former staffer’s name or that of her child but said she worked for the family for 20 years and retired in January.

Schwarzenegger issued his statement to the Times late Monday, after the newspaper interviewed the former staffer. The Times reported that she originally said another man — her husband at the time — was the child’s father.

AROUND THE WORLD

LIBYA
Another Gadhafi regime official defects

TRIPOLI — Another high-ranking Libyan official has defected and fled the country amid a widening NATO campaign of bombings as well as leafletting and other psychological warfare to persuade Moammar Gadhafi's troops to stop fighting.

Shukri Ghanem, the Libyan oil minister and head of the National Oil Co., crossed into neighboring Tunisia by road on Monday, according to a Tunisian security official and Abdel Moneim al-Houni, a former Libyan Arab League representative who was among the first wave of Libyan diplomats to defect.

The defections suggest Gadhafi's political structure is fraying, but Gadhafi appears to retain the backing of his core of military commanders.

MEXICO
Police find 513 migrants in trucks

TUXTLA GUTIERREZ — Police in Mexico's southern Chiapas state found 513 migrants on Tuesday inside two trailer trucks bound for the United States, and said they had been transported in dangerously crowded conditions.

Some of the immigrants were suffering from dehydration after traveling for hours from the Guatemalan border.

The trucks had air holes punched in the floors of the containers, but migrants interviewed at the state prosecutors' office said they lacked air and water.

SYRIA
Activists call general strike in new tactic

BEIRUT — Syrian protesters called Tuesday for a one-day nationwide general strike, urging students to skip school and workers to bring commerce to a halt in a new strategy of defiance against government crackdowns that appear to be turning more brutal and bloody.

The strike, planned for today, marks a shift by opposition forces to strike at President Bashar Assad's regime from new angles: its economic underpinnings and ability to keep the country running during two months of widening battles.

CHINA
Fields of watermelon burst in farm fiasco

BEIJING — Watermelons have been bursting by the score in eastern China after farmers gave them overdoses of growth chemicals during wet weather, creating what state media called fields of "land mines."

About 20 farmers around Danyang city in Jiangsu province were affected, losing up to 115 acres of melons, China Central Television said in an investigative report.

All of those with exploding melons apparently were first-time users of the growth accelerator forchlorfenuron, though it has been widely available for some time, CCTV said in the report broadcast Monday night.

British queen makes historic trip to Ireland

DUBLIN (AP) — Sometimes words aren't necessary. That was the case Tuesday when Queen Elizabeth II placed a wreath in Dublin's Garden of Remembrance to honor the Irish rebels who lost their lives fighting for freedom — from Britain.

The queen became the first British monarch to set foot in Dublin for a century. Her four-day visit is designed to show that the bitter enmity of Ireland's war of independence 90 years ago has been replaced by Anglo-Irish friendship, and that peace has become irreversible in the neighboring British territory of Northern Ireland.

The ceremony under threatening steel-gray skies was simple and direct, its meaning clear. There were no apologies, no acknowledgment of misdeeds, but the presence of the British monarch on ground that is sacred to many Irish was a powerful statement of a desire to start anew.

Helicopters and fixed-wing aircraft patrolled the skies and marksmen kept watch on rooftops during the ceremony for any attempt by Ireland's most extreme nationalists to disrupt the event.

A few hundred supporters of Irish Republican Army dissident groups did clash with police on the security perimeter a half-mile away, but the trouble didn't interrupt the queen's carefully choreographed procession through Dublin.

Earlier, as the queen stood in silence alongside Irish President Mary McAleese, a flock of black balloons floated off in the distance, a silent protest by the nationalist Sinn Fein party.

But the event marked a successful first day of the queen's groundbreaking four-day visit to Ireland, a trip aimed at demonstrating that the former foes have reconciled their differences.

Pakistan protests after border clash with NATO

ISLAMABAD (AP) — Pakistan's military said Tuesday its ground forces exchanged fire with a NATO helicopter in another possible flashpoint with Washington, but also claimed it arrested a senior al-Qaida operative following U.S. demands for "action, not words" to restore trust.

The two reports highlight some of the complexities of trying to rebuild ties after the U.S. raid that killed Osama bin Laden earlier this month. Washington needs Pakistan as a crucial partner against al-Qaida, but Pakistani officials remain deeply angered by the secret operation over their borders in the assault on bin Laden.

In a possible sign of stronger controls on the frontier, Pakistani ground forces traded fire with a NATO helicopter on the Afghanistan-Pakistan border, wounding two Pakistani soldiers, officials said. The Pakistani army filed a protest, and a NATO spokesman said an "incident" occurred at the border and that an investigation would be launched.

Pakistan's powerful army and intelligence agencies have faced uncomfortable international scrutiny since bin Laden was killed inside a fortified compound in the army town of Abbottabad.

U.S. lawmakers and other critics have said bin Laden's location was the latest —

THE INCIDENT

In Tuesday's incident, a Western military official said a NATO base in Afghanistan took intermittent fire from the Pakistani side of the border. Two helicopters flew into the area, and one fired across the border after twice taking fire from the Pakistani side, said the official, speaking on condition of anonymity because of the sensitivity of the issue.

and strongest — indication that Pakistan could have been accepting U.S. aid to battle the Islamic militancy, but at the same time possibly protecting terrorists. Pakistan denies that.

The army said it had arrested Yemeni national Muhammad Ali Qasim Yaqub — also known as Abu Sohaib Al Makki — who they claim had been working directly under al-Qaida leaders along the border between Pakistan and Afghanistan. It did not say when he was arrested, but noted it was in the southern city of Karachi, where several other top al-Qaida leaders have been detained since 2001.

An American official said the suspect was a mid-level al-Qaida operative and praised the Pakistani military. The official spoke on condition of anonymity to discuss matters of intelligence. There was little if any information about him in the public sphere.

The Pakistani military said Al Makki's detention was a "major development in unraveling the al-Qaida network operating in the region."

On Monday, U.S. Sen. John Kerry met army and civilian leaders in Pakistan during the first visit by an American emissary since bin Laden was killed. With some American lawmakers calling for U.S. aid to Pakistan to be cut, he told them that "action, not words" were needed to tackle militancy.

The United States says it has no evidence that Pakistan's civil or military leadership knew of bin Laden's whereabouts, but it could apply more pressure for operations against Afghan Taliban factions living over the border in northwest Pakistan. Such offensives could make it easier to begin withdrawing American troops from Afghanistan in July as planned.

Islamabad has so far refused to step up missions in the tribal areas, saying its forces are too stretched already.

The NATO firing incident took place in the Datta Khel area of the North Waziristan tribal region, a known sanctuary for Taliban and al-Qaida militants that launch attacks inside Afghanistan as well as Pakistan. It has been targeted repeatedly by U.S. drone strikes.

Times-News contest: Grilling with flair

For this competition, it's not enough to have a delicious recipe and masterful barbecue skills — we're looking for something extra-special. Perhaps you built your own barbecue, designed your own tools, came up with a new technique, or concocted your own family-favorite spice rub.

To compete, send in your favorite grilling recipe, with a description of what sets your barbecuing apart from the average tong-wielder. The top contestants — chosen on a combination of recipe and flair — will be contacted the week of June 6, and must be available to grill that recipe for a Times-News reporter and photographer during the week of June 13.

Send your recipe and description to writer Ariel Hansen at ahansen@magicvalley.com (or drop off your entry at the Times-News' Twin Falls office) by 5 p.m. May 27. Include a phone number where you can be reached during the day.

May the most creative griller win!

GOING GOAT? Hagerman producer's chevon gains attention from southern Idaho foodies

By Ariel Hansen
Times-News writer

HAGERMAN — It's easy to see that Evelyn Simon cares about her goats. Her breeding stock and all the kids have names, and she can tell apart by sight all 70 animals in her herd.

As she entered their pen Friday, her prize-winning does ran up, and she reached down to stroke and scratch their faces. Their kids scampered around Simon, bleating. Another leaned down to scoot its head under a gate to get closer to her, then temporarily caught its stubby horns on the bottom-most bars before freeing itself.

"When they're so tame, they're pesky," Simon said, describing how they chew fence posts or anything else remotely edible, and jump on fences, rocks, their feed troughs and even each other. "The saying around goat people is, if (a fence) can hold water, it can hold a goat."

Simon has been raising goats for meat for about six years and has been converting southern Idahoans to the lean, high-protein meat — properly called chevon — despite a little skepticism at first.

"I was amazed by the clean flavor of it," said Jane Deal, chef for Ballard Cheese and co-owner of Sweet Deal Catering in Gooding. "Most people will be very surprised at the taste, and that goat meat is good for you. It's definitely something people should try and not be frightened of."

Daniel Pastick, Ketchum Grill's chef de cuisine, said the restaurant sells out of goat every time it's offered on the menu there. "They're just delighted to have it, something local they may not get at The Pioneer or a French restaurant," he said.

Simon said sales through

TRY GOAT YOURSELF

Few sources for goat meat, also known as chevon, are available in south-central Idaho, and Simon Boer Goats is the only local producer to offer USDA-approved chevon. Its meat is sold at the Friday Night Market in downtown Twin Falls, through the web-based Idaho's Bounty cooperative, and directly from the producer. Contact Simon Boer Goats at idahoboergoats.com, simon\_boers@q.com, 539-2261 or 837-6523. Prices start at $3 a pound for soup bones, and go up to $12 a pound for loin chops and racks. Popular cuts including boneless legs and Osso Bucco are $9 a pound. Whole goats are also available at about $5.70 a pound for 35 pounds.

kids to grow her own herd. She brings in a new buck every three years, to increase the herd's genetic diversity.

So how does she decide which young goats — slaughtered at about 80 pounds, or 7 to 9 months old — will end up on Idaho dinner tables?

Primarily it's determined by how likely they are to pass on the genetic traits she's trying to breed for, including conformation and overall health; those that need less medical attention are more apt to be bred, though no goat is sent to slaughter if it is sick.

Simon's buck has won so many awards over his lifetime that he has a permanent "ennobled" status from the American Boer Goat Association, and many of her does are also prize winners. So she wants to continue to breed for the traits the judges are looking for — a long back, thick loin, rounded face, straight legs and other signs of conformation that indicate the goat will produce high-quality chevon.

And once she has decided, she tries to distance herself from the meat goats, which are still cared for carefully but are separated from their breeding-stock brethren.

"I don't spend any time hugging them or petting them, I don't teach them to lead, like I would with my show goats," Simon said. "Once they're in the meat pen, I don't pay much attention to them. (But) I make sure they're happy and healthy and comfortable while they're here."

That care — whether they're destined for breeding or for the dinner table — includes freely available minerals to supplement their diets, vaccinations at 30 days and 60 days after birth, regular vitamin shots, hoof trimming several times a year and locally grown hay to supplement their grazing. Simon checks on them multiple times a day from dawn to dusk, and gets up at all hours of the night during birthing season.

Because the goats aren't in their traditional environment, which is much rockier than the Hagerman valley, their hooves don't naturally wear down. So hooves must be cut or the goat will get uncomfortable and could suffer diseases. Imagine walking directly on toenails that never got cut and you'll get an idea of what untrimmed hooves can do to a goat.

Trimming is a fairly quick process. Simon leads each goat out of the pen and up a ramp onto a small platform a few feet above the ground. She lifts its face into a raised trough and uses a chain

Take the fear out of bread baking

Times-News

This cooking class doesn't leave you in any doubt. Its name: "Bread, Bread, Bread!"

Wood River Valley pastry chef Vincent Carpenter will teach it 7-9 p.m. May 25 at Rudy's — A Cook's Paradise, 147 Main Ave. W. in Twin Falls. Cost is $45.

Keep seafood healthy and crunchy without frying

By Jim Romanoff
For The Associated Press

Seafood has lots of offer a healthy diet. Much of it is lean, and even the fattier varieties are loaded with the so-called good fats.

Keeping it healthy is all a matter of how you cook it. Poaching and steaming are good techniques because they highlight flavors and preserve moistness without adding much fat.

If you're going to saute, opt for healthier fats (such as nut or olive oils) and a non-stick skillet so you can use less of them.

You'd think it would be best to avoid crispy fish because it would involve deep-frying, but this recipe for baked catfish po'boys with Cajun remoulade (similar to tartar sauce) turns that notion on its head.

To start with, catfish fillets — which are an environmentally friendly, farm-raised seafood choice — are marinated in hot sauce-spiked buttermilk, which adds a layer of flavor while helping to tone down the muddy undertones catfish can sometimes have. The fillets then are dredged in a seasoned blend of cornmeal fish fry mix, which can be found in the seafood section of most grocers, before being misted with a bit of olive oil cooking spray and “oven-fried” to crispy, golden perfection.

Our lighter take on the traditionally deep-fried po'boy fish sandwich is finished off crispy French bread slathered with a low-fat remoulade, and a hearty amount of shredded lettuce and sliced tomatoes. If you like, instead of the lettuce you can substitute a helping of coleslaw for an added tangy crunch.

BAKED CATFISH PO'BOYS WITH CAJUN REMOULADE

Start to finish: 40 minutes (20 minutes active). Servings: 4.

- 3/4 cup buttermilk
- 3 tablespoons coarse grain Dijon mustard, divided
- 3 teaspoons hot sauce, divided
- 3 teaspoons Cajun seasoning mix, divided
- 1/2 cup unseasoned cornmeal fish fry mix
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1/4 cup reduced-fat mayonnaise

This is a lighter take on the traditionally deep-fried po'boy fish sandwich.

- soning mix, divided
- 4 catfish fillets (about 1 1/4 pounds)
- 1/2 cup unseasoned cornmeal fish fry mix
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1/4 cup reduced-fat mayonnaise

BASQUE-STYLE BRAISED GOAT WITH BALLARD'S IDAHO GOLDEN GREEK CHEESE

From Gooding County chef Jane Deal.

- 1 small Capra boneless leg or shoulder roast (1 1/2 to 2 pounds)
- 6-7 whole garlic cloves
- Salt and pepper
- 2 teaspoons dried rosemary
- 1 small onion, thinly sliced
- 4 slices raw bacon
- 1 cup red wine
- 1 round of Ballard's Idaho Golden Greek Cheese (or 1 pound of another Greek grilling cheese)
- 4 cups raw spinach leaves
- High-quality balsamic vinegar

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Place roast in a shallow baking dish and cut slits on the top of the roast for the garlic cloves. Push whole cloves into the cuts on the meat. Season the roast with salt, pepper and rosemary and cover with sliced onions. Lay bacon strips over the top. Pour wine over the roast and place in the oven. Cook roast for approximately one hour, or until meat temperature probe reads 160 degrees. Place foil over roast and allow to rest while preparing cheese.

Cut cheese into 1/4-inch slices. Heat a non-stick skillet to medium-high, and place some of the cheese slices in the skillet in a single layer. Cook cheese slices, turning once, until they have browned on both sides, then remove from pan. Keep slices warm while continuing to brown the rest of the cheese.

Cut the roast into thin slices. Place spinach onto a large serving platter and drizzle with a small amount of balsamic vinegar. Arrange the cheese slices on top of the spinach and lay slices of meat over the top of the cheese. Serve immediately.

MEDITERRANEAN BRAISED GOAT LEG

From Daniel Pastick, chef de cuisine at Ketchum Grill.

- All ingredients should be measured to taste:
- 1 goat leg
- Olive oil
- Lemon juice
- Sea salt
- Fresh rosemary
- Garlic
- Thinly sliced fennel
- Fresh oregano
- Sliced onions
- White wine
- Chicken stock

Preheat the oven to 425 degrees. Open up the goat leg and moisten with olive oil, lemon, sea salt and rosemary. Let sit in the refrigerator for a few hours, then tie up into a roast or large cubes. Sear the roast or cubes in the pan and add garlic, fennel, oregano, onions, a little more salt and black pepper. Be sure the roast is kept moist, or it will dry out and be tough. Add white wine, lemon juice and chicken stock to cover at least halfway, then cover or cook in a Dutch-oven style pot. Bake for at least 2 1/2 hours, but check occasionally and turn the meat at least once in the broth.

Pastick recommends that the goat be accompanied by roasted potatoes, sauteed green beans or a Greek salad with kalamata olives and tomatoes. He noted that the meat is best used in recipes that call for slow cooking, but it can be substituted for nearly any recipe that calls for lamb.

“You don't want to overcook it. It is quite lean; if you cook it nice and slow, it would be fine,” Pastick said. “Sear it, braise it, grill it or slow cook it and you really can't go wrong.”

- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- Olive oil cooking spray
- Four 5-inch sections of crusty French bread, halved horizontally
- 2 cups shredded romaine lettuce
- 1 large tomato, thinly sliced

In a shallow dish or bowl, whisk together the buttermilk, 2 tablespoons of the mustard, 2 teaspoons of the hot sauce and 1 teaspoon of the Cajun seasoning. Add the catfish fillets, turning to coat them with the mixture. Cover the dish with plastic wrap, and refrigerate for at least 20 minutes or up to 2 hours.

Meanwhile, in another shallow dish or bowl, whisk together the cornmeal fish fry mix, 1 teaspoon of the Cajun seasoning, and the salt and pepper. Set aside.

To make the remoulade, in small bowl whisk together the mayonnaise, Worcestershire, the remaining 1 tablespoon Dijon mustard and the remaining 1 teaspoon each of hot sauce and Cajun seasoning. Set aside or cover and refrigerate if using later.

When ready to cook the fish, heat the broiler. Use the cooking spray to lightly coat a wire rack large enough to hold the fish in a single layer. Place the rack on a baking sheet.

Remove the fish from the refrigerator and turn each fillet in the buttermilk mixture to recoat. Transfer to the cornmeal mixture, turning the fillets to coat completely. Lightly mist the fillets on both sides with the cooking spray and place on the prepared rack (they should not touch).

Broil 4 inches from the heat source for 3 minutes, then carefully flip the fillets and broil for another 3 minutes, or until the fish is opaque at the center.

Assemble the po'boy sandwiches by spreading the cut side of each piece of bread with the reserved sauce. On the bottom half of each bread section, layer with a catfish fillet, shredded lettuce, sliced tomato and the top piece of bread. Serve immediately.

A doe with kids rests on Evelyn Simon's farm on Friday. Simon says goats like to stay close to family and are more productive when they are kept together. Although she separates breeding stock from meat stock, the two groups are kept close to reduce their stress.

Goat

around its neck and a stretchy cord around its nose to keep its head secure; less tame goats will use their hooves and horns to impede the process if they're allowed to. Then Simon lifts each foot in turn, using what looks like a pair of garden shears to trim down the inside and outside edges and the tips of each hoof. The chain and cord are released, and the goat jumps down from the platform and is led back to the pen.

“I love their personalities,” Simon said, describing how their antics make her laugh, how each is an individual, and how they have defined pecking orders. “They're very challenging animals, smart and stubborn.”

And she can do most of the work with goats without calling in help. “They're small, I can handle them; they're great for women and families.”

One thing she doesn't do herself, though, is take them to slaughter. Her husband, Joe Bennett, steps up for that uncomfortable duty.

Chevon is more expensive than many of the traditional meats you'd find in a big grocery store, and at the prices Simon charges, she still earns as much from selling breeding stock as selling meat. “It should be priced a lot higher,” Simon said. “The public doesn't understand how much work it is.”

But it's rewarding, too, as she converts more meat eaters to chevon. Each year Simon has been in business, the market has risen for both her meat and for breeding goats for other herd owners. “There's much more demand than there are goats,” she said.

A salad that showcases low-fat turkey

By Stephanie Witt Sedgwick
Special to The Washington Post

When you're looking for low-fat meats, turkey breast is a good choice and a nice alternative to chicken. It pairs especially well with tarragon.

Turkey tenderloins come trimmed and are quick and easy to cook. Brown them on the stove and finish in a 350-degree oven; that will take about 25 minutes from start to finish.

The salad can be refrigerated for up to three days.

HONEY-TARRAGON TURKEY AND GRAPE SALAD

Makes 5 cups (4 to 6 servings)

- 2 tablespoons apple cider vinegar
- 1 tablespoon honey, or more to taste
- 1 tablespoon chopped tarragon (about 1/4 ounce)
- Salt
- Freshly ground black pepper
- 3 tablespoons mild olive oil
- 1/4 pound (about 3/4 cup) green seedless grapes, large ones cut into quarters, smaller ones cut in half
- 1/4 pound (about 3/4 cup) red seedless grapes, large ones cut into quarters, smaller ones cut in half
- 2 ounces sweet onion, such as Mayan, Maui or Vidalia, cut into 1/4-inch dice (1/2 cup)
- 1 large rib celery, cut into 1/4-inch dice (about 2 ounces, 1/2 cup diced)
- 12 ounces cooked boneless, skinless turkey breast, cut into 1-inch strips

Combine the vinegar, honey, tarragon and salt and pepper to taste in a large bowl. Slowly whisk in the oil to form an emulsified dressing.

Add the grapes, onion, celery and turkey. Toss to coat evenly. Taste, and adjust the seasoning as needed by adding salt, pepper and/or honey. Let sit for 20 minutes before serving, or cover and refrigerate for up to 3 days.

Summer cocktails that are pitcher perfect

By Michelle Locke
For The Associated Press

Summer time and the living can be just that little bit easier with pitcher cocktails.

Whether you're mixing up a batch of margaritas for friends in your backyard or ordering a round of mai tais for the table, pitchers are a quick and easy way to rethink your drink for a crowd.

At Spoonbar in the wine country town of Healdsburg, Calif., bar manager Scott Beattie knew early on that he wanted to serve cocktails by the pitcher. So he ordered a Kold-Draft ice cube machine capable of making big, dense cubes that keep drinks cold without diluting them.

It's also efficient. With the cubes and a really big shaker, "it takes just about as long to make one drink as it does to make five," he points out.

The drinks are shaken, strained and poured into a pitcher ready to go.

"It's been great, people really dig it," says Beattie, author of "Artisanal Cocktails."

Other cocktail enthusiasts also are shaking up pitcher-perfect cocktails.

At Philadelphia's Square 1682 restaurant, one night a week is dedicated to tiki cocktails and with the weather warming up and the patio open they've introduced a new tiki pitcher cocktail: Kama'aina Punch.

The drink blends gin, triple sec, fresh lemon juice, coconut syrup, pineapple juice and black cherry puree and can be given a little extra sparkle with the addition of prosecco.

"Everyone loves a pitcher," says Anna Schneider, general manager. "It's social, fun, basically happy hour in a bowl."

And Young Lee of the Yellowtail Japanese Restaurant and Lounge in Las Vegas makes a refreshing cucumber cooler with vodka, fresh lemon sour, white cranberry juice, simple syrup and cucumber puree.

Want to mix up your own jug of good cheer? Try these recipes by Alison Ladman:

ROOIBUS RELAXER

This red tea is punched up with fruity accents and a bit of rum. Adding the bubbles — in the form of lemon-lime soda — to each glass as you serve it allows you to enjoy this pitcher cocktail at your leisure without worrying about the whole batch running losing its fizz. Start to finish: 30 minutes, plus chilling. Servings: 8.

3 cups water
1 cup pomegranate juice
1/2 cup pineapple juice
1 cup peach schnapps
1 1/2 cups light rum
Lemon-lime soda, to serve

In a small saucepan over medium, combine the tea and water. Heat until simmering, then remove from the heat and steep for 15 minutes.

Meanwhile, in a serving pitcher combine the pomegranate juice, pineapple juice, peach schnapps and rum. When the tea has steeped, remove the tea bags, squeezing to release any extra tea. Pour the tea into the pitcher and stir. Refrigerate until cold.

To serve, fill tall glasses with ice. Fill the glasses halfway with lemon-lime soda, then top with the tea punch mixture.

MINTED MARGARITA

Two classic summer cocktails — mojitos and margaritas — inspired this pitcher cocktail. The zesting of the limes ensures intense lime flavor to contrast with the mint. Using a flaked sea salt on the rims of the glasses allows for a more subtle salting than a traditional table or kosher salt. Start to finish: 10 minutes, plus chilling. Serving: 8.

1/2 cup water
Zest of 4 limes
3/4 cup freshly squeeze lime juice
2 tablespoons agave nectar
3/4 cup triple sec
2 cups blanco or silver tequila
Sliced limes, to garnish
Flaked sea salt, to serve

In a blender, combine the mint leaves, water, lime zest, lime juice and agave nectar. Blend on high until the mint is very finely chopped. Strain the mixture through a fine mesh strainer into a pitcher. Discard the solids. Stir in the triple sec and tequila, then chill.

To serve, moisten the rim of cocktail glasses with a piece of lime. Dip the rims in the salt. Add ice to the glasses and pour the margaritas. Garnish with slices of lime.

HONEY PEACH SANGRIA

Sangria is a fruit-infused wine punch. Though often made with red wine, this

white wine version is a delicious accompaniment to summer grilling. This recipe combines chardonnay with pureed frozen peaches and a touch of ginger liqueur. Start to finish: 10 minutes, plus chilling. Servings: 8.

1/4 cup honey
1 cup orange juice
750-milliliter bottle chardonnay, chilled
1 cup Domaine de Canton ginger liqueur
Soda water or seltzer, to serve
Fresh strawberries, for garnish
Fresh mint leaves, for garnish

In a blender, combine the peaches, honey and orange juice. Blend until smooth. Pour into a pitcher, then stir in the chardonnay and ginger liqueur. Chill.

To serve, fill glasses halfway with soda water or seltzer, then top with the sangria and stir gently. Garnish with fresh strawberries and mint leaves.

LEMONADE IN BLOOM

Lemonade and flowers — two sure signs of summer. So we combined them in this refreshing floral-infused lemonade. If chamomile isn't your, er, cup of tea, feel free to substitute another herbal variety. Start to finish: 20 minutes, plus chilling. Servings: 8.

4 cups water
2 cups sugar
4 bags chamomile tea
1/4 teaspoon dried lavender
2 sprigs fresh basil
1 cup freshly squeezed lemon juice
1 cup elderflower liqueur
1 cup vodka
1/2 cup gin
Fresh basil leaves, for garnish

In a medium saucepan over medium-high, combine the water and sugar. Bring to a boil, then remove from the heat. Add the chamomile tea bags, lavender and basil. Steep for 10 minutes.

Strain the tea mixture through a mesh strainer into a pitcher, pressing the solids to extract as much liquid as possible. Discard the solids. Add the lemon juice, elderflower liqueur, vodka and gin. Chill. Serve over ice garnished with basil.

Eating lighter, with a remake of Jewish tradition

By Stephanie Witt Sedgwick
Special to The Washington Post

Tzimmes is a traditional Jewish dish in which vegetables are braised with dried fruit and honey or brown sugar. Sometimes beef is included, which makes for pretty heavy fare.

Here, I've transformed the tzimmes into a vegetable and fruit topping for sautéed chicken cutlets. It's light, quick-cooking and delicious.

CHICKEN SCALOPPINE WITH GLAZED VEGETABLE TZIMMES

6 servings

6 thinly sliced skinless chicken breast cutlets (1 1/4 pounds total)
Salt
Freshly ground black pepper
2 tablespoons mild-flavored olive oil
1 small onion, finely chopped (1/2 cup)
2 medium carrots, trimmed and cut into 1/4-inch dice (1 cup, about 4 ounces)
1 medium sweet potato, peeled and cut into 1/3-inch dice (about 8 ounces, a generous 1 1/2 cups)
1 medium Granny Smith apple, peeled, cored and cut into 1/3-inch dice (1 cup)
8 dried apricots, cut into 1/4-inch dice (2 ounces, 1/3 cup; may substitute your favorite dried fruit)
1/4 teaspoon freshly grated nutmeg
1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon ground ginger

ger
1 1/2 cups homemade or no-salt-added chicken broth
2 tablespoons honey

Season the chicken cutlets on both sides with salt and pepper to taste.

Heat the oil in a large, shallow skillet over medium-high heat. Add as many of the cutlets as will fit comfortably. Cook for 3 to 4 minutes, until nicely browned on the first side; turn them over and cook for about 3 minutes, until lightly browned and cooked through. (Cooking time might vary depending on the thickness of the cutlets.) Transfer to a plate and loosely cover with aluminum foil to keep warm. Repeat to cook all of the cutlets.

Add the onion to the skillet; cook for 3 to 4 minutes, until softened, then add the carrots, sweet potato, apple, apricots, nutmeg, cinnamon, ginger and salt to taste; stir to combine.

Stir in the broth and the honey; bring to a boil, then cover and reduce the heat to medium or as needed to maintain a low boil. Cook for 8 to 10 minutes, stirring occasionally, until the vegetables are tender and most of the liquid has evaporated. Uncover and cook just until the liquid has reduced to a glaze.

Divide the cutlets among individual plates. Spoon the vegetable mixture over each one. Serve hot.

Meatless stir-fry in 25 minutes

By Bonnie S. Benwick
The Washington Post

This is a meatless version of the classic Chinese stir-fry. Use a bag of prepped slaw fixings or shredded vegetables to cut down on the prep time.

Serve with instant brown rice, or use the mixture to fill warmed whole-wheat tortillas.

MOO SHU VEGETABLES

4 servings

3 teaspoons toasted sesame oil
4 large eggs
6 to 8 scallions
1-inch piece ginger root

2 medium cloves garlic
12 ounces shredded vegetables or prepared slaw mix (from the produce department)
2 cups mung bean sprouts
1 tablespoon low-sodium soy sauce
1 1/2 tablespoons unseasoned rice vinegar
2 tablespoons hoisin sauce

Heat a teaspoon of the oil in a wok or large nonstick skillet over medium heat.

Lightly beat the 4 eggs in a liquid measuring cup. Pour into the skillet and stir for 1 to 2 minutes, or just until the eggs are set. Transfer to a bowl.

Wipe out the wok or skillet and add the remaining 2 teaspoons of oil over medi-

Trim the scallions and cut them on the diagonal into thin slices. Peel and mince the ginger to yield a tablespoon. Mince the garlic to yield 2 teaspoons.

Add the ginger and garlic to the wok or skillet; stir-fry for 1 minute, then add the shredded vegetables or slaw mix, the mung bean sprouts, half of the scallions, the soy sauce and the vinegar; stir to combine, then cover and cook for about 3 minutes, stirring once or twice.

Add the hoisin sauce and return the eggs to the wok or skillet, stirring to break them up and incorporate them into the vegetables; this should take about 2 minutes.

GOOD RUB = GOOD GRUB

For great flavor on the grill, think spice rubs

By Alison Ladman
For The Associated Press

Grilling season is here, and spice rubs are an easy way to pump up the flavor. Grocers offer a huge selection of rubs intended for steak, chicken, pork, seafood, even veggies. But consider saving your money and making your own. They are easy to assemble, and you can better cater to your tastes.

We created these four rubs with versatility in mind. While wonderful on steak, also try them tossed with chunks of zucchini and summer squash, skewered shrimp and chicken breasts.

In general, dry rubs such as these can be applied directly to the seafood or meat you want to flavor. But you also can use them as wet rubs. Just mix a portion of the dry mix with a bit of oil — olive or canola work fine — then rub that into the meat.

TEX-MEX GRILLING RUB

Makes 1/2 cup

- 1/4 cup kosher salt
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar
- 1 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1/2 teaspoon cayenne pepper
- 1 teaspoon cumin
- 1 teaspoon paprika
- 1 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1/2 teaspoon onion powder

In a blender or spice grinder, or with a mortar and pestle, grind all the ingredients together. Store in a sealed jar or plastic bag.

LOG CABIN GRILLING RUB

Makes 1/2 cup

- 1/4 cup kosher salt
- 3 tablespoons maple sugar
- 1 teaspoon ground black pepper

The rubs, from left, are Moroccan, Tex-Mex, Log Cabin and Seven Pepper, pictured with Moroccan vegetables, Log Cabin chicken, Tex-Mex shrimp and Seven Pepper steak.

- 2 teaspoons mustard powder
- 2 teaspoons dried thyme
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon

In a blender or spice grinder, or with a mortar and pestle, grind all the ingredients together. Store in a sealed jar or plastic bag.

MOROCCAN GRILLING RUB

Makes 1/2 cup

- 1/4 cup kosher salt
- 1 teaspoon ground white pepper
- 2 teaspoons ground ginger
- 2 teaspoons ground coriander

- 1/2 teaspoon ground allspice
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon ground mace
- 1/2 teaspoon cayenne pepper
- 1 teaspoon turmeric
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cardamom

In a blender or spice grinder, or with a mortar and pestle, grind all the ingredients together. Store in a sealed jar or plastic bag.

SEVEN PEPPER GRILLING RUB

Makes 1/2 cup

- 1/4 cup kosher salt

- 3 tablespoons brown sugar
- 2 teaspoons ancho pepper powder
- 1/2 teaspoon red pepper flakes
- 1/2 teaspoon cayenne pepper
- 1 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1 teaspoon ground white pepper
- 1 teaspoon pink pepper - corns
- 1 teaspoon sweet paprika
- 1 teaspoon smoked paprika

In a blender or spice grinder, or with a mortar and pestle, grind all the ingredients together. Store in a sealed jar or plastic bag.

This couscous dish pairs well with grilled entree

By Stephanie Witt Sedgwick
Special to The Washington Post

This side dish is great for an easy warm-weather meal. Just add grilled meat or fish.

To keep things simple, buy medium-thick asparagus whose spears are all about the same size.

LEMON COUSCOUS WITH ASPARAGUS AND TOMATO

Makes 5 cups (8 servings)

- 1 cup plain dried quick-cooking couscous
- 12 ounces asparagus, tough ends removed
- 2 medium tomatoes, peeled, seeded and cut into 1/3-inch dice (each tomato 6 ounces, 1 cup diced; see note)
- Finely grated zest and freshly squeezed juice of 2 lemons (2 tablespoons zest, 1/3 to 1/2 cup juice)
- 2 to 3 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
- 3 tablespoons chopped parsley
- Salt

Freshly ground black pepper

Prepare the couscous according to the package directions. Make sure to fluff and separate the grains when the couscous is done. Transfer to a large bowl.

Fill a large bowl with ice water. Bring a shallow pan of lightly salted water to a boil over medium-high heat. Add the asparagus and cook for 4 to 6 minutes, just until tender. Transfer the asparagus to the ice water; cool for 5 minutes. Remove and dry the spears; cut into 1/2-inch lengths.

Add the following to the couscous: the cut asparagus, tomatoes, lemon zest and juice, 2 tablespoons of the oil, the parsley and salt and pepper to taste; toss to combine. Taste, and adjust the seasoning as needed. If the couscous seems dry, add the remaining tablespoon of oil.

Serve immediately. Note: To peel tomatoes, use a small, sharp knife to cut an X in the bottom of each one. Drop them into a large bowl of just-boiled water; let sit for a few minutes. You should see the peel start to curl where the X is. Transfer to a bowl of cold water or let cool, then discard the peel. Cut the peeled tomatoes in half; gently squeeze to release and discard the seed gel in each half.

Fish with a spicy, tropical touch

By Stephanie Witt Sedgwick
Special to The Washington Post

Any firm-fleshed fish would work well in this recipe. I like to pick what's freshest: halibut from Alaska, grouper from Florida or even the old standby, salmon, especially when the stores are well stocked with the wild variety. The main thing is to pick a meaty fillet, at least an inch thick, or to get one cut from the center. The thin fillets or tail ends tend to overcook quickly.

I've made many versions of this dish, but this is my current favorite. Heating the fruit, even for just a few minutes, brings out its tropical flavor. Allspice lends a healthy kick of spice. The lime, brown sugar and jalapeno pepper balance it all. If you love mango, you might want to double the amount of salsa.

This dish is best served while the salsa and fish are still warm.

ALLSPICE-RUBBED FISH FILLETS WITH MANGO SALSA

4 servings

- 3/4 teaspoon ground allspice
- 1/4 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- 1/8 teaspoon salt, plus more to taste
- Four 4- to 6-ounce skinless fish fillets, such as grouper, halibut or salmon
- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 1 medium sweet onion, such as Maui, Vidalia or Walla Walla, cut into 1/4-inch dice (1 cup)
- 1 medium jalapeno pepper, stemmed, seeded and finely chopped (2 tablespoons)
- Flesh of 1 large, ripe mango, cut into 1/3-inch chunks

Finely grated zest and freshly squeezed juice of 2 limes (at least 1 tablespoon zest and 1/4 cup juice)

1 tablespoon light brown sugar

Preheat the oven to 350 degrees. Line a rimmed baking sheet or shallow pan with aluminum foil.

Combine the allspice, pepper and 1/8 teaspoon of salt in a small bowl.

Place the fillets on a plate and sprinkle them with the spice mixture, turning and rubbing the fish to evenly distribute the spices.

Heat the oil in a large skillet over medium-high heat. Add the fillets, skinned side down. Cook for 1 to 2 minutes, until seared, then carefully turn over the fillets. Cook for 1 minute, then use a spatula to transfer them to the lined baking sheet. Transfer to the oven; bake for 5 to 8 minutes, until the fish is just done.

Meanwhile, place same skillet used to sear the fish over medium heat. Add the onion and cook for 3 to 4 minutes, stirring once or twice, until the onion softens. Add the jalapeno pepper; cook for 2 minutes. Add the mango and cook for 2 to 3 minutes, stirring, until the mango is heated through. Stir in the lime juice and zest and the brown sugar; season with salt to taste. Cook for 2 minutes, then remove from the heat.

Place the fillets on individual plates. Divide the salsa among the portions, spooning it on top of each fillet. Serve immediately.

Get yourself juiced up

By Jennifer LaRue Huget
Special to The Washington Post

It seems everyone I know — most recently, my long-time hairdresser, David — is into juicing these days. I'd never considered getting a juicer myself. Who needs another space-hogging appliance? But the more I learn about juicing fruits and vegetables, the more I think it might be a good way to eat (or drink) more of those key foods, especially for those who fall short of the recommended daily intake. Plus, David (who is 50, like me) looks fabulous.

If you're thinking of giving juicing a try, here are some things to keep in mind.

Did you know?

A main difference between juicing and blending is the thickness of the juice. A blender's blades mix pulp and juice together, whereas most juicers use centrifugal force to separate juice from solids, producing a thinner liquid. With a juicer, you can use whole fruits and vegetables, including small seeds,

JUICE: THE GOOD, THE BAD AND THE PULPY

PROS

- Juice can be “a very healthy addition to a healthy diet,” says Jolia Allen, online managing editor for Vegetarian Times. Fresh juice delivers a concentrated dose of vitamins (particularly antioxidants such as Vitamin C), minerals and other nutrients without filling you up. Allen notes that a single glass of carrot juice may contain the nutrients of up to 10 whole carrots.
- You can put whole fruits and vegetables in a juicer, letting the machine do the work of removing the inedible parts.
- If you create the right combination of ingredients, fresh juice is by all accounts simply delicious.

CONS

- “Juicing is processing,” says Manuel Villacorta, a spokesman for the American Dietetic Association. “With any whole food, the more you process it, the less nutrients you’re going to get.” Removing pulp gets rid of a lot of fiber, and without skin you miss out on such “micronutrients” as carotenoids and flavonoids that have the potential to reduce the risk of cancer and cardiovascular disease.
- Cleaning the machine afterward is almost universally regarded as a pain in the neck.
- Juice supplies a lot of sugar at once and adds more calories per ounce than whole fruit or vegetables.

3 USES FOR LEFTOVER PULP FROM YOUR JUICE

- Add it to foods such as casseroles, soups and meatloaf.
  - Eat it just as is; it's pure fiber.
  - Chuck it on the compost pile.
- 3 things you should not put in a juicer
- Citrus peels. The pungent, bitter oils will overshadow the taste of the juice.
  - Pits. Remove the hard pits from cherries, peaches and other stone fruits to avoid damaging the blades.
  - Your fingers. Always use the food pusher to avoid contact with the ultra-sharp blades.

skins and rinds. When using a blender, remove peels (though some skins, such as apple and pear, can be left on), rinds and seeds — anything you don't want to end up in your belly.

What to juice?

Think green. Jolia Allen of Vegetarian Times suggests going for green vegetables. These taste plenty sweet (toss in a bit of apple if you need it sweeter), she says,

Key nutrients

If you're looking to boost your intake of certain vitamins and minerals, toss these in your juicer. For Vitamin C: carrots, pineapple, parsley. For calcium: kale, collards. For potassium: oranges, tomatoes, spinach.

Recipes

From “The Everything

Juicing Book” by Carole Jacobs, Patrice Johnson and Nicole Cormier (Adams Media, March 2010):

- Popeye's Secret: 2 kale leaves, 1 beet top and greens, 1 fist of spinach, 1/2 cup broccoli florets. All of these vegetables contain Vitamin C, an antioxidant that may help reduce the risk of cancer.
- Salad in a Glass: 1 cup broccoli, 3 butterhead lettuce leaves, 1 carrot, 2 red radishes, 1 green onion.

Broccoli is rich in Vitamin K, which helps blood clot normally.

- Garlic Delight: 3 Roma tomatoes, 2 red apples, 1 clove garlic, 1 sprig Italian parsley. Tomatoes and parsley are both good sources of vitamins A, C and K and of potassium, which helps keep blood pressure in check.

Smart juicing

- Save money. Juicers go through vegetables fast. Allen suggests buying seasonal produce (such as strawberries and spinach) at their peak and freezing them to use during the off-season, when they cost more. Or buy in bulk from a local farm. Better yet: Grow your own.

- Chill out. Because friction from the juicer warms up the juice, use frozen produce or toss a couple of ice cubes into the machine to cool things down.

- Preserve. If you have a bit left over, add a squeeze of lemon or orange juice to keep your juice from oxidizing (which makes it turn brown) and save it, no longer than overnight, in the fridge.

Cross-cultural dinner in 30 minutes

By Bonnie S. Benwick
The Washington Post

This dish is so simple and cross-culturally clever, we'll look the other way when it comes to the nutritional information. Its author, British food writer Hugh Fearnley-Whittingstall, makes his own version of chorizo sausage and keeps it in the refrigerator as a pantry staple. If you have a little extra time, make some; here, we used fresh chorizo from the meat department, without the casings.

The recipe can be easily cut in half.

Serve with a salad of thinly sliced fennel and orange slices.

This recipe calls for raw egg yolks. If you are concerned about the risk of salmonella, buy pasteurized eggs, available in select supermarkets. Adapted from Fearnley-Whittingstall's “River Cottage Every Day” (Ten Speed Press, 2011).

4 servings

- Kosher salt
- 8 ounces dried multi-grain spaghetti or linguine
- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 1 pound (approximately 2 cups) fresh chorizo (may substitute 12 ounces cured chorizo, cut into very small dice)
- 3 large egg yolks
- 3/4 cup heavy cream (may substitute low-fat milk)
- Freshly ground black pepper

Meanwhile, heat the oil in a large skillet (preferably nonstick) over medium heat. Sift and discard the chorizo casings.

Add the chorizo to the skillet in pinches; cook for about 15 minutes, stirring with a wooden spoon to break up clumps. As it fries, the sausage should form succulent little nuggets and crumbs, with crisped edges.

Beat the egg yolks and cream together in a liquid measuring cup; season lightly with pepper to taste.

Return the drained pasta to the (empty) pot it was cooked in, then tip in the chorizo and a little of its rendered fat in the skillet. Use 2 forks to stir in the egg yolk-cream mixture so that a lightly colored sauce forms and the pasta is evenly coated.

Divide among individual plates; sprinkle each portion generously with pepper. Serve hot.

Note: To make the author's version of chorizo, combine 1 1/2 pounds of coarsely ground pork shoulder, 1 tablespoon of sweet smoked Spanish paprika, 2 teaspoons of hot smoked Spanish paprika, 2 finely chopped cloves of garlic, 2 teaspoons of fine sea salt, 1 1/2 teaspoons of fennel seed, 1/4 teaspoon of cayenne pepper, 1/4 cup of red wine and freshly ground black pepper to taste in a plastic container with a tight-fitting lid. Use your clean hands to blend the mixture thoroughly. Cover and refrigerate for at least 2 hours and up to 1 week. To cook the chorizo, shape it into small patties, take pinches of the mixture or roll it into meatballs; fry in a skillet until cooked through.

A burger with the condiments built right in

By J.M. Hirsch
Associated Press writer

No condiments needed for this high-flavor barbecue-style cheeseburger; they are built right in.

For ease — and let's face it, awesome taste — I took your basic beef burger and mixed in pureed chipotles in adobo sauce, a healthy splash of barbecue sauce (use your favorite brand) and some garlic. But why stop there? I also stuffed the burger with a mix of cheddar cheese and chopped black olives.

To round it out, I mixed together a simple bell pepper slaw to form a creamy-crispy bed for the burger. Of course, you can keep it simple by substituting whichever prepared slaw you prefer.

This recipe also welcomes playing. To jack up the heat, up the chipotles. You also could add some

CHIPOTLE BARBECUE CHEESEBURGER

Start to finish: 30 minutes. Servings: 4.

- 1/4 cup mayonnaise
- 1 tablespoon mustard powder
- 1 tablespoon honey
- 1 teaspoon cider vinegar
- 1 red bell pepper, cored and thinly sliced
- 1 green bell pepper, cored and thinly sliced
- 1 yellow bell pepper, cored and thinly sliced
- Salt and ground black pepper
- 2 chipotle peppers in adobo sauce
- 1/4 cup prepared

barbecue sauce

- 2 cloves garlic
- 1 pound 85 percent lean ground beef
- 1 cup shredded cheddar cheese
- 1/4 cup finely chopped black olives
- 4 large potato buns, toasted
- 1 large tomato, thickly sliced

In a medium bowl, whisk together the mayonnaise, mustard powder, honey and vinegar. Add all 3 peppers, then toss to coat well. Season with salt and pepper, then set aside.

Heat a grill or grill pan to medium-high.

In a blender or food processor, combine the chipotle peppers, barbecue sauce and garlic. Puree until smooth. Transfer to a large bowl. Add the ground beef, 1/2 teaspoon salt and 1/4 teaspoon ground black

Divide the ground beef mixture into quarters. One at a time, form each quarter into a cup in the palm of your hand. Add 1/4 cup of the cheese and a sprinkling of the black olives to the center of each cup, then push the beef over it to completely cover the cheese. Carefully form the beef into a patty.

Coat the grill grates with oil. Grill the burgers for 7 to 8 minutes for medium-well, or until desired doneness.

Apology given; fishing fines returned

BOSTON (AP) — The U.S. Commerce Secretary on Tuesday ordered $650,000 in unjust fines returned to Northeast fishermen, while the nation's oceans chief apologized to the group and said restoring the money marks a turning point in their tense relationship.

New England fishermen have complained for years of abusive treatment, retaliation and excessive fines by the nation's fishery law enforcers.

Last year, secretary Gary Locke appointed special investigator Charles Swartwood, following a report by the Commerce department's inspector general that flagged several questionable penalties against fishermen.

Swartwood has reviewed 30 cases to date, and on Tuesday Locke said he was returning money to 11 people or businesses, based on Swartwood's recommendations.

National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration chief Jane Lubchenco said with Locke's decision "we acknowledge and rectify past mistakes."

"I want to apologize to the fishermen and businesses hurt by these mistakes," she said in a press call. "Today marks a major turning point in NOAA's relationship with America's fishermen, particularly fishermen in the Northeast."

Former scalloper Jim Kendall didn't get money back in his case, which dated to the 1980s, but said the overall admission of wrongdoing "means more than the money."

"It was denied and we were vilified and we were called all kind of names by people on that side of the fence," he said.

An attorney for a union that represents fishery enforcement officials noted that Locke found no cause to discipline any officer or attorney, whom he said had been "unfairly tarnished" in the probe.

Richard Hirn of the National Weather Service Employees Organization said when Swartwood interviewed NOAA's attorneys, he seemed to have already made up his mind about the cases. "Swartwood's investigation was unfair to the employees because his conclusions were predetermined and politically motivated," Hirn said.

Fishery enforcement officers ensure fishermen comply with a complex mash of federal regulations, governing everything from where and how they can fish, to the gear they can use.

In 2009, Lubchenco ordered a review of the enforcement system by the Commerce department's inspector general, Todd Zinser. His office found abusive treatment of fishermen, though it wasn't widespread. It also said the process for penalizing violators appeared arbitrary. Zinser later revealed that former top fisheries cop Dale Jones had wrongly ordered documents shredded during the investigation. He also said the millions in fines paid by fishermen had been used on questionable expenditures, such as a luxury undercover boat and a fleet of vehicles for fishery enforcement officials.

included interviews with 75 people and review of 100,000 documents.

The bulk of the fines Locke ordered returned come in two cases: $400,000 to former scalloper Lawrence Yucubian, whom Swartwood said was wrongly coerced into paying a large fine, and about $160,000 to Agger Fish Company in Brooklyn, N.Y., which was accused of possessing shark fins without the proper permit.

Locke also cancelled tens of thousands in unpaid penalties.

As members of the Twin Falls boys golf team exchanged high-fives, freshman Alec Perkins soaked in the moment.

"I didn't even know what to say. I was too happy," said Perkins, who shot a two-day 147 at Centennial Golf Course in Nampa to help Twin Falls win the Class 4A state championship.

Perkins finished fourth individually after carding a 72 on Tuesday. While the five birdies in his round were often followed by bogeys, he managed to keep an even keel. So did the other Bruins.

Kyle Miley shot 74s both days to finish with a 148, the same score shot by teammate Alec Meyerhoeffer, who carded a 72 on Tuesday. Matthew Frank added a two-day 154 to round out the scoring.

"We're feeling great," said Perkins. "We're overwhelmed right now."

Things couldn't have ended much better for Castleford at the Class 2A state golf tournament. The Wolves took home the boys state title at Lakeview Golf Course in Meridian while Castleford's Dylan Kinyon and Sierra Harr swept medalist honors.

"It was awesome," said Castleford coach Laurie Howard. "It was almost better than a dream come true."

Castleford's boys shot a two-day 697, easily besting Soda Springs (716). Kinyon shot a 78 on Tuesday, giving him a two-day 157 as he rallied past Ririe's Tristen Cole (159) for medalist honors.

Kinyon had a bogey and a double bogey on the first two holes Tuesday before settling in for a solid round.

"I knew I was one back and just went out and played," said Kinyon.

Mitch Howard chipped in a 166 for the Wolves, while Keegan Kinyon shot a 176 and Tanner Allred a 198.

"The state medalist is nice, but to have our program win it only our fourth year is more meaningful," said Kinyon. "Seeing our

MLB Hall of Famer Harmon Killebrew dies of cancer at 74

Former baseball star grew up in Payette

By Dave Campbell
Associated Press writer

MINNEAPOLIS — Harmon Killebrew earned every bit of his frightening nickname, hitting tape-measure home runs that awed even his fellow Hall of Famers.

Yet there was a softer side to "The Killer," too.

The balding gentleman who enjoyed a milkshake after each game. The fisherman who was afraid of alligators. The MVP who always had time to help a rookie.

Killebrew, the big-swinging slugger for the Minnesota Twins and the face of the franchise for so many years, died Tuesday at age 74 after battling esophageal cancer.

"It's a sad day. We lost an icon. We lost Paul Bunyan," former Twins star Kent Hrbek said.

The team said Killebrew, a native of Payette who played at College of Idaho, died peacefully at his home in Scottsdale, Ariz., with his wife, Nita, and their family at his side. He announced his diagnosis just six months ago, and last week Killebrew said he was settling in for the final days of his life with hospice care after doctors deemed the "awful disease" incurable.

At Target Field, the scoreboard showed a picture of a smiling Killebrew and his retired No. 3 was etched in the dirt behind second base. Plus, there was a more personal tribute — the Twins' ground crew slowly lifted home plate and put under it a plastic-encased, black-and-white photo of Killebrew.

The picture, believed to be from the 1960s, will stay beneath the plate the rest of the season. It shows, naturally, the compact Killebrew poised to go deep.

And boy, could he take a big cut.

His 573 home runs still rank 11th on the all-time list. His uppercut swing formed the silhouette that inspired Major League Baseball's official logo.

"You shake his hand, still at 70-some years old, and he'd crush your hand. You can see where he got that power," Twins slugger Justin Morneau said.

giant bronze glove where fans pose for snapshots — the glove is 520 feet from home plate, fittingly the distance of his longest home run.

Much farther away, Killebrew was on the minds of current major leaguers.

"We were just talking about him this morning," Atlanta star Chipper Jones said after the Astros-Braves game. "He looked like one of those big strong, country horses. You don't see guys like that anymore. He was a guy who really overpowered the baseball."

Nearby, teammate Eric Hinske nodded his head.

STATE BASEBALL PREVIEW

RYAN HOWE/Times-News

Area teams harbor championship hopes

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

The Bishop Kelly baseball field in Boise — site of this year's Class 4A state tournament — has special significance for both District IV squads competing there this weekend.

For Twin Falls, it's where the Bruins hope to exact revenge.

In last year's semifinals, Bishop Kelly ended Twin Falls' title hopes by beating the Bruins 6-5. Rubbing salt in the wound, the championship game between Bishop Kelly and Bonneville was postponed due to weather and played the following week at Twin Falls. The Bruins prepared their own field, just to watch the Knights celebrate on it.

"We've been waiting a year," said Twin Falls coach Tim Stadelmeir. "We wouldn't mind watching them do the field for us for a weekend."

Twin Falls (20-5) plays District III champion Bishop Kelly (17-5) in the opening round at 7 p.m. Thursday.

Meanwhile, Minico's first-round game is a rematch of last year's other semifinal. The Spartans (19-6) face District VI champion Bonneville (17-5) at 1 p.m. Thursday.

"They're going to be tough, they're one of the best teams in the state," Spartan coach Ben Frank said of Bonneville, which blanked Minico 8-0 in last year's tourney. "But our guys will be ready to go. We'll be looking to get back at them from last year."

Minico is making its seventh consecutive state tour-namment appearance. The Spartans have taken home a trophy in each of the last six seasons.

"Our goal is to win a state championship, anything less than that is an unsuccessful season," said Frank.

Twin Falls reached the state championship game in 2002 and 2007, but finished runner-up both times. The Bruins' last state title came in 1990.

The Bruins lost the District IV title to Minico, but are confident heading to Boise with pitchers Cy Sneed, T.J. Ellis, Casey Merritt and Zayne Slotten. After falling one run short of the championship round last year, Twin Falls returns with a talented lineup and a deep enough bullpen to make it to Saturday afternoon.

Minico has swung a hot bat all season. The Spartans average 10 runs per game and four players bat over .400. If they can continue to provide run support for pitchers Casey Christiansen, Sager Nevarez and Slade Winnmill, the Spartans could find themselves playing for another title.

"It's just another game," said Minico senior Suede Denker. "You can't overemphasize each one. You've got to go out there and play seven innings, put up runs and play defense and pitch. If we do that, we're going to be state champions."

If the Spartans or Bruins pull that off, they'll look good doing so. Players from both sides have donned mohawks for state.

Cavaliers win draft lottery, Jazz snatch No. 3 pick

By Brian Mahoney

SECAUCUS, N.J. — The new face of the Cavaliers is 14 years old, wears a bow tie and has battled disease since birth.

lection in next month's NBA draft.

"It's been a roller-coaster ride," owner Dan Gilbert said. "It's been absolutely earth-shocking events took place last summer, not just for me but a lot of people in Ohio. It was a slow, long, painful haul to get through it and maybe this will be the final straw in getting over the hump and getting to the other side and having a lot of hope for the future. That's what we need."

Gilbert sent his son and "hero" 14-year-old Nick Gilbert, to the stage and the kid came up with a stunning victory, as the Cavs turned a pick from the Los Angeles Clippers that had only a 2.8 percent chance of victory into the top spot.

Nick Gilbert was born with Neurofibromatosis (NF), a nerve disorder that causes tumors to grow anywhere in the body at any time. He was wearing blackrimmed glasses and a bow tie and looked serious until he showed a keen sense of humor in a television interview. His father called him his "hero" for the way he has fought the disease.

"It's sort of Nick fashion. He has been doing it his whole life to some degree. I'm proud of him. I'm proud of the way he carried himself and I am very excited for the fans of Cleveland, Ohio who have been through a very, very rough year," Dan Gilbert said. "They deserve it more

Twin Falls owned a 10-stroke cushion after Monday's first round, but didn't take the lead for granted.

"We were just coming out here to shoot as good as we could," said Perkins.

"It's always good to see the looks on the kids faces," he said. "They're pretty pumped."

They weren't the only ones with a memorable Tuesday. The Canyon Ridge boys stormed up the team standings with a 289 — the best team score of the day — and finished second with a two-day 607 in their first-ever state experience.

Derek Cook shot a 69 for the Riverhawks on Tuesday, giving him a two-day 147, while Sawyer McMillen shot a 148, John Essma a 155 and Michael Curtis a 157.

"Canyon Ridge made a good run," said Harr.

But no one could catch Twin Falls, which claimed its first boys state crown since 2007. With mostly underclassmen competing at state, the Bruins should have a great chance to defend their title next season.

The Twin Falls girls finished third overall with a 693, but had three golfers in the top 10, with Katherine Reed (163), Sydney Lee (165) and Jenna Sharp (166) finishing fifth through seventh.

Moscow shot a two-day 646 to run away with the girls team title, while Middleton (667) was second.

Harr's two-day 166 was six strokes better than runner-up Johanna Backe of Garden Valley on the girls side.

The Castleford freshman shot a 37 on the front 9, getting up and down successfully on several occasions.

Kade Crossland wasn't about to let his first-round lead evaporate. After carding a 75 on Monday, Crossland fired a 73 Tuesday to claim medalist honors at the Class 3A state tournament at Scotch Pines Golf Course in Payette.

Crossland's two-day 148 was two strokes better than runner-up J.D. Hurd of Weiser (150).

While Crossland took home individual honors, the Kimberly boys came within a whisker of the team title. The Bulldogs fired a 308 on Tuesday, the best result of the day, but came up one stroke short of Marsh Valley's two-day total of 638.

Kimberly senior Gage Huft led the charge, shooting a 72 on Tuesday after a disappointing 82 on Monday. He finished with a two-day 154, good for third place overall. Stephen Clements shot a 156 to finish eighth, while Derek Maloney (163) and Matt HoChee (166) rounded out the scoring for the Bulldogs, who finished second to Marsh Valley for the second straight season.

Kimberly's girls finished third overall with a two-day 857. They were led by Teneicia Grover's 203. Filer's Lexi Meyerhoffer was the area's top individual, finishing sixth with a two-day 189.

tinued their unbelievable lottery losing streak, falling to 0 for 14 and dropping for the eighth time. They had a 25 percent chance of winning after finishing with a league-worst 17-65 record.

The Cavs will select first for the first time since 2003, when they drafted James out of high school.

He left for Miami last summer and the Cavs tumbled to the second-worst record in the league, but they will have two top-four picks next month as they try to back owner Dan Gilbert's boast that they would win a title before James. They already had their own pick and acquired another at the trade deadline from the Clippers in the deal for Baron Davis.

Minnesota will select second and Utah turned New Jersey's pick from the Deron Williams trade into the No. 3 selection.

The Timberwolves continued their unbelievable lottery losing streak, falling to 0 for 14 and dropping for the eighth time. They had a 25 percent chance of winning after finishing with a league-worst 17-65 record.

The Cavs will likely decide between point guard Kyrie Irving of Duke or Arizona forward Derrick Williams as the top pick.

"I don't think you can make comparisons to me and LeBron," said Irving, who attended the lottery. "One, I'm not 6-8. Two, I'm not a high flyer and three, my name isn't LeBron James. Honestly, you can't make those comparisons yet. I think I would bring a different feel to the Cleveland organization if they do decide to take me."

The draft is June 23 in Newark, N.J.

Nowitzki's 48 leads Mavs past Thunder

DALLAS (AP) — Dirk Nowitzki showed no rust from a long layoff, making 10 of his first 11 shots and an NBA play-off-record 24 straight free throws on the way to 48 points, leading the Dallas Mavericks to a 121-112 victory over the Oklahoma City Thunder in Game 1 of the Western Conference finals on Tuesday night.

Jason Terry scored 24 points and J.J. Barea added 21 points as the Mavericks picked up where they left off in a sweep of the Lakers nine days before. They broke open a tight game with a 13-0 run late in the second quarter and never trailed again, stretching their franchise-record postseason winning streak to seven games.

Game 2 is Thursday night in Dallas, where the Mavs are 6-0 this postseason.

The Thunder — fresh off a seven-game series against Memphis that included a total of four overtimes — led by nine early in the second quarter, then went 6:28 between baskets. They missed 10 shots during that drought and were down by 11 when it ended. They eventually trailed by 16 before clawing within five points with 3:42 left, and six with 48.5 seconds to play.

Kevin Durant followed his 39 points in Game 7 of the previous round by scoring 40, one shy of his most ever in a playoff game. While Nowitzki dominated, Durant's scoring binge merely helped his team stay close.

Russell Westbrook went from a triple-double in his last game to 20 points, three assists and three rebounds. He missed 12 of his 15 shots, including 10 of his first 11. Despite his poor aim, he had taken more shots than Durant at one point late in the third quarter, fueling the critics who say he's too much of a scorer and not enough of a distributor.

The Thunder's big problem, though, was Nowitzki.

Six guys tried stopping him, and the big German either shot over them or put them in foul trouble. He made 13 free throws in the third quarter alone. And when Oklahoma City sent a second defender at him, Nowitzki usually passed to the teammate left open.

Nowitzki finished 12 of 15 from the field and a perfect 24 of 24 at the line. He was two points shy of his most ever in a playoff game. He also had six rebounds, four assists and four blocks.

How good was he? On the series when Nowitzki missed for the first time, a teammate got the ball back to him, and he found Tyson Chandler for a layup.

"I was really looking to shoot early and was able to get my rhythm after the first couple of shots," Nowitzki said. "I kept attacking and my teammates kept feeding me and feeding me and I was able to take advantage over some smaller players."

The Thunder came into the series unsure how it would handle Nowitzki because their usual defender, Jeff Green, was traded in February. Serge Ibaka went at him first, then got two quick fouls, turning things over to Nick Collison. Kendrick Perkins, Durant, Thabo Sefolosha and James Harden all took turns with little success.

When things tightened up in the final minutes, Nowitzki helped protect Dallas' lead with two jumpers over the outstretched arms of 6-foot-10 Serge Ibaka, and an assist on a 3-pointer by Terry with 28.9 seconds left. Chants of "M-V-P!" echoed almost every time he went to the foul line in the fourth quarter.

Oklahoma City coach Scott Brooks is going to have to figure something out quick.

The good news for Brooks is that his youngsters kept scrapping all the way to the end. Down a lot on the road to a well-rested veteran team, they could have considered this game a lost cause and saved energy for the next game. Perhaps they remembered Dallas' history of blowing big, late leads. Earlier this postseason, the Mavericks coughed up a 23-point lead over the final 14 minutes against Portland.

Yankees beat Rays, end six-game slide

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Alex Rodriguez homered twice, Jorge Posada had two hits and the New York Yankees stopped a six-game losing streak with a 6-2 victory over the Tampa Bay Rays on Tuesday night.

With Yankees managing general partner Hal Steinbrenner in attendance, New York ended its longest skid since dropping seven in a row from April 20-27, 2007.

Posada doubled and singled while batting seventh as the designated hitter. It was his first start since he pulled himself out of the lineup Saturday soon after he was set to bat ninth.

Rodriguez tied it 1 with a fourth-inning homer and then put the Yankees ahead with a solo shot in the sixth off James Shields (4-2).

Ivan Nova (4-3) gave up one run and four hits in 5 1-3 innings.

The fields at Treasure Valley (Ore.) Community School have become a second home to Markus Lively and Matt Hamilton.

The Buhl duo helped the Indians to the Class 3A state title there last season and this fall, both will suit up for the Chukars at TVCC.

A late-season surge and two state play-in victories have the Indians (10-12) back at TVCC to defend their title. Buhl opens the tournament against Bonners Ferry (10-13) at 1 p.m. Thursday and last year's runner-up Payette or consolation winner South Fremont loom in the second round.

"Nobody gave us a chance to be back, but we're there and really, it couldn't have played out any better. We're on the good side of the bracket and we've got some teams we're capable of beating. We're just going to go roll the dice and have fun up there," said Lively, Buhl's ace.

Lively and Hamilton give the Indians a powerful one-two punch in the middle of their lineup and Lively has pitched well down the stretch, striking out 14 against Bear Lake Saturday to clinch the team's state berth.

The Indians though, will need production throughout their lineup from Hunter Littlefair, Todd Loveless, Kade Crossland and Branden Benkula.

"Obviously the first game is the most important. We'll focus on who we have first and take it one game at a time," said Hamilton.

Kimberly is in the tournament for a second straight year, fresh off its first-ever district championship. The Bulldogs boast the tournament field's best record (19-3) after rolling through the Sawtooth Central Idaho Conference with only two losses.

Last year, the Bulldogs stumbled in the state tournament, going two-and-out with two one-run losses to 2009 state champion Fruitland and Timberlake.

That humbling experience has the Bulldogs more confident and prepared for this week's tournament.

"Last year was our first time to state and I think we weren't really ready. We didn't know what to expect. This year though, it won't be so new and we'll be ready to play," said Kimberly pitcher Seth Champlin. "Now we know what the competition at state looks like."

Jordan Gentry and Clay Mathews spearhead a sound defensive infield behind Champlin, while Ridge Lee and Seth Morris provide the big bats.

Kimberly opens the tournament against Snake River (14-4) at 4 p.m. Thursday and could face Fruitland in the second round.

Class 2A

Sooner or later, the Glenss Ferry baseball team is going to break through.

Will this be the year?

The Pilots have played in the state tournament 11 of the past 13 years. They've earned three runner-up trophies and have taken third three times, including last year. However, a state title has eluded them.

"I think we've got as good a chance as any team we've taken up there," said Glenss Ferry coach Denis Uhl.

Glenss Ferry (13-8) opens against Orofino at 1 p.m. Thursday at Rodeo Park in Nampa.

Glenss Ferry has just two seniors, outfielders Rory

Hance and Terry Jacobsen. Hance is a four-year player, but this is Jacobsen's first year of baseball. He worked his way into the starting lineup midway through the season.

Defending champ New Plymouth, which Uhl believes is the favorite once again, likely looms in the semifinals.

"I don't think there's any side (of the bracket) that has an easy way to the state finals," Uhl said. "It's always tough when you've got three games in three days with the depth of pitching."

Glenss Ferry's big three — juniors Adrian Martinez, John Acord and Michael Willis — have the arms that will carry the Pilots through the weekend. At last year's state tournament, Martinez tossed a one-hitter in the first round, followed by a no-hitter to win the third-place game.

"We've been pleased with our starting pitching," Uhl said. "Our hitting is starting to come around. If we bat up and down the order, we're going to score a lot of runs. This is probably one of the fastest teams we've had. We've got speed on the basepaths."

Even without Nehro, Preakness could draw 14 horses

BALTIMORE (AP) — There will be no rematch between Animal Kingdom and Nehro at the Preakness.

Nehro, who finished second in the Kentucky Derby behind Animal Kingdom, will skip Saturday's second leg of the Triple Crown and be pointed toward next month's Belmont.

Nehro's owner, Ahmed Zayat, said Tuesday the decision was based on the horse's hectic spring schedule. Although Nehro emerged well from the Derby, the Preakness would have been his fourth race in the past two months.

Despite Nehro's absence, the race is expected to attract the maximum 14 horses — only the third time since 1991 that 14 horses have run in the Preakness.

Animal Kingdom trainer Graham Motion will enter Wednesday's draw with more concern about his horse's post position than the credentials of the other entrants. After starting from the No. 16 post at Churchill Downs, Animal Kingdom rallied to beat Nehro by 2¾ lengths.

Motion wants no part of the Preakness rail.

"I'd rather not be stuck on the inside, very much like the Derby," Motion said. "It's 14 horses instead of 20, but it's still a large field so he's going to have to navigate traffic. He's not looking obviously (to be) on the pace. I'd much rather be on the middle to outside."

No matter where Animal Kingdom begins, he won't have to worry about Nehro at the finish.

"It was a hard decision for Mr. Zayat to make," Bradley Weisbord, racing and finance manager for owner

Zayat Stables LLC, said in Louisville, Ky. "Four races in eight weeks seemed like a lot to ask. For any top race horse, that's a lot of running in this day and age."

Before competing in the Derby, Nehro was second in the Louisiana Derby on March 26 and second in the Arkansas Derby on April 16.

Weisbord expects Nehro to continue to train at Churchill Downs before moving to Belmont in the next couple weeks.

Weisbord said the long-term goal for the son of Mineshaft with be North America's richest race, the $5 million Breeders' Cup Classic on Nov. 5, contested at the same distance and on the same track as the Kentucky Derby.

With Nehro out, Isn't He Perfect moves into position to join the starting field. Isn't He Perfect has amassed more than $90,000 in earnings but hasn't finished in the money in three stakes races this year.

It will be the first Triple Crown race for trainer Doodnauth Shivmangal, who is from Guyana and based in New York. Shivmangal wasn't assured a spot until Nehro dropped out.

"I'm more than happy to be in the race," Shivmangal said. "I can't tell you how good it felt."

Saratoga Red, trained by D. Wayne Lukas, needs another horse to drop out to make the Preakness field. If that doesn't happen, Saratoga Red probably will run in Saturday's undercard.

The stakes barn at Pimlico was virtually empty Tuesday. Seven horses are expected to arrive Wednesday, but it remains likely that Animal Kingdom will be shipped Saturday morning from the Fair Hill Training Center in Elkton.

Court decision threatens start of 2011-12 NFL season

NEW YORK (AP) — Delay of game might turn into delay of season for the NFL.

Not only does the most recent court decision upholding the validity of the owners' lockout of the players mean a likely game of wait-and-see for the next several weeks — more than ever, it puts the opening of training camps in jeopardy. And, beyond that, preseason games.

And, beyond that, perish the thought, even the games that count.

Make no mistake, the 2-1 decision Monday by an 8th Circuit Court appeals panel to maintain the lockout until the league's full appeal is heard beginning June 3 is a huge victory for the owners. The wording in that ruling by the majority strongly favored the NFL's argument; the judges indicated they find a great deal of merit in the NFL's claim that lifting the lockout without a new contract with the players would cause chaos and be harmful to the sport.

"I think this decision says the NFL really controls the game board here," said Robert Boland, professor of sports management at New York University's Tisch Center. "It is a big turn of fortune because the NFL controls the timing, they can control the clock. This allows the owners to put greater pressure on the players. If the injunction had gone into effect, it would have put the players in control of the game of leverage."

Instead, the players are in "uncharted territory," Boland said.

"The players don't have a lot of options now," he added. "Certainly there is enough litigation remaining and they could win. They could have a game changer from their case in front of the NLRB, but there's no indication when a decision might come there.

So their best bet is keep negotiating"

Others will argue that the latest victory for the owners is not a fumble recovery deep in the players' territory. The players still believe they can prove in court that the lockout is illegal. But after several wins for them — and with another expected soon from Judge David Doty on what to do with TV money promised to the league even if no games are played — Monday was a hard hit for the NFLPA.

"The law is on the players' side if they can survive," said agent/attorney Ralph Cin-

Sanders, Maryland lead Hall class loaded on D-line

NEW YORK (AP) — The latest class of College Football Hall of Famers is loaded on the defensive line.

Defensive tackles Marty Lyons of Alabama, Russell Maryland of Miami, Doug English of Texas and Rob Waldrop of Arizona were among the 14 players chosen for induction.

Also headed for the Hall are Deion Sanders, who turned cornerback into a glamour position at Florida State from 1985-88, and former Michigan coach Lloyd Carr, who won 75 percent of his games and the 1997 national championship in 13 seasons leading the Wolverines.

The rest of the players in the class revealed Tuesday were Florida receiver Carlos Alvarez, Oregon State full-back Bill Enyart, Georgia defensive back Jake Scott, Nebraska guard Will Shields, Minnesota quarterback Sandy Stephens, West Virginia linebacker Darryl Talle, Oklahoma halfback Clendon Thomas and Michigan State receiver Gene Washington.

Fisher DeBerry, who led Air Force to a winning record in 17 of his 23 seasons as Falcons coach, will also be inducted in December.

The Hall of Fame selection of 1995 Heisman Trophy winner Eddie George from Ohio State was announced Monday.

Lyons, Maryland and Carr took part in a news conference Tuesday at the NASDAQ MarketSite in Times Square.

"As my mother would say, and she said it a lot of times to me, 'Son, you've led a charmed life,'" Maryland said.

Maryland was born in Chicago and was lightly recruited out of high school there, but went on to star on some of Miami's greatest teams. He helped the Hurricanes win two national titles from 1986-90 before becoming the first overall pick in the 1991 draft by the Dallas Cowboys.

"Twenty-five years ago, not even knowing I was going to play college football at a high level, and here 25 years later after having played 10 years in the NFL ... but some of my best times, where I was formed, were at the University of Miami," he said.

Lyons grew up in Florida and settled in the New York area after a long NFL career with the Jets.

He played in Tuscaloosa from 1975-78 and got choked up talking about his old college coach, Bear Bryant, his Alabama teammates and the Crimson Tide fans, many of whom are still dealing with the aftermath of deadly tornadoes that swept through the state last month.

"Right now they're going through a difficult time in their life with the devastating tornado," he said. "But come Dec. 6 I'm going to put them all on my back and we're going to get inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame."

English helped Texas to a pair of Southwest Conference championships, playing for the Longhorns from 1972-74.

Waldrop was the nose guard for Arizona's famed "Desert Swarm" defense. In his senior season of 1993, he won the Outland Trophy as the nation's top lineman.

The new inductees were chosen by the National Football Foundation's honors court from a list of 79 finalists.

To be eligible for the ballot, players must have been a first-team All-American, played at least 10 years ago and cannot be currently playing pro football.

Coaches must have at least a .600 winning percentage to be eligible.

Killebrew

"He was as intimidating as hell," Hinske added.

But he wasn't always the tough guy. Philadelphia Phillies manager Charlie Manuel became friends with Killebrew and Bob Allison during his first spring training with the Twins and often fished together in a Florida lake.

"There were some alligators in there, otters and things like that in there that would bump up against your leg," Manuel said. "They would get scared. So I would take the fish chain and hook it to the boat, and I'd wade and pull the boat. That was part of being a rookie."

Whether as an 18-year-old with the Washington Senators in 1954 or playing for Kansas City in his final season in 1975, Killebrew carried himself the same unassuming way.

"He never walked around with his nose in the air. Never, ever. He used to go out after every game and get a milkshake. A super guy," said former Royals second baseman Frank White, a youngster who played with Killebrew that final year.

The Twins played at Seattle on Tuesday night. Manager Ron Gardenhire said it was a somber clubhouse.

"A lot of guys out there are really sad. We're all honored that at least we had the chance to hang out with him a little and get to know him. He touched a lot of lives out there, not just on the baseball field, but the way you should handle yourself and a little bit about respect," Gardenhire said.

In 1933, President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed a measure creating the Tennessee Valley Authority.

In 1953, Jacqueline Cochran became the first woman to break the sound barrier as she piloted a Canadair F-86 Sabre jet over Rogers Dry Lake, Calif.

In 1969, astronauts Eugene A. Cernan, Thomas P. Stafford and John W. Young blasted off aboard Apollo 10 on a mission to orbit the moon.

In 1980, the Mount St. Helens volcano in Washington state exploded, leaving 57 people dead or missing.

In 1981, the New York Native, a gay newspaper, carried a story concerning rumors of “an exotic new disease” among homosexuals; it was the first published report about what came to be known as AIDS. American author and playwright William Saroyan died in Fresno, Calif., at age 72.

In 1991, Helen Sharman became the first Briton to rocket into space as she flew aboard a Soviet Soyuz spacecraft with two cosmonauts on an 8-day mission.

Ten years ago: A Palestinian suicide bomber blew himself up at a shopping mall in Netanya, killing five Israelis; Israel retaliated with air strikes against security targets in the West Bank and Gaza Strip that killed ten Palestinians.

Five years ago: Visiting one of the busiest crossing sectors between the U.S. and Mexico, President George W. Bush said in Yuma, Ariz., that it made sense to put up fencing along parts of the border but not to block off the entire 2,000-mile length to keep out illegal immigrants.

One year ago: Grilled by skeptical lawmakers, Interior Secretary Ken Salazar acknowledged his agency had been lax in overseeing offshore drilling activities, and that might have contributed to the disastrous oil spill in the Gulf of Mexico. A suicide bomber detonated his vehicle near a U.S. convoy in Afghanistan, killing 18 people, including six troops — five from the U.S., one from Canada. Following a 2009 party switch, Sen. Arlen Specter was defeated in Pennsylvania's Democratic primary, ending his re-election bid.

The late Boris Schapiro was one of the dominant players of the postwar game. Helen Schapiro, his widow, is no mean player either. Here she is, in partnership with Evan Harris, a liberal democrat MP.

Strong Acol two-openings have gone out of fashion of late, but it made reaching slam easy here. But how would you play six hearts on a spade lead?

The best line is to win the spade ace, play the heart queen to dummy's king, and ruff a diamond high. Then play the heart five to dummy's eight, cash the diamond ace (pitching a club), and ruff another diamond. Now, assuming both red suits have broken, play a club to dummy's queen.

If this holds, you can ruff another diamond, then cross back to dummy with a spade ruff to reach the established diamonds. However, if East has the club ace, you can cross to dummy with a spade ruff to finesse the club jack.

The trap is to ruff a spade in dummy too early. You would still be able to set up the diamonds, but would not know if you could reach them. If you played a club to the queen and East had the ace, he would play back a spade, and you would go down unless the club jack were to fall. Alternatively, you could run the club 10 from hand, but then you have put all your eggs in one basket — namely, that the club jack is with West.

ANSWER: Your partner's double is for takeout, suggesting a good hand and short hearts. Having passed to start with, you are full value for a jump to three spades now, suggesting these values and five spades. Indeed, bidding game in spades would not be absurd, though it seems reasonable to give partner the chance to make the final decision.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a senior in high school and about to graduate. The week after graduation, one of my close friends is getting married. I have no qualms about the marriage, but I'm confused about the pre-wedding parties.

The bride and groom are registered at three stores and have had a Tupperware party already. However, I have received an invitation to a lingerie party to which guests have been instructed to bring the bride lingerie with gift receipts attached.

Am I wrong in thinking that buying intimate apparel is the responsibility of the couple? I plan to buy them a wedding gift from the registry, but I feel odd being asked to essentially contribute to their sex life. Abby, if I decline the invitation, what would be the proper way to do it?

— BRINGING A BLENDER IN MONTANA

DEAR B.A.B.: If you are unable to attend the shower, all you need to say is you're unavailable on that date. You do not have to give a reason. However, lingerie showers can be a fun way for women to bond with each other. I once attended one at which a guest jokingly brought the bride a pair of handcuffs. (In Montana, a set of spurs might make an interesting gag gift.)

However, if you prefer not to "contribute to the couple's sex life," why not bring a high-necked flannel nightgown? Your gift could be the talk of the party.

Readers, care to offer any other gift suggestions?

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I represent Operation Paperback: Recycled Reading for the Troops. Our 10,000 volunteers, at their own expense, collect gently used paperback books and send them to military members and organizations deployed all over the world.

Since 1999, we have sent over a million books and have received thanks from Bosnia, Iraq, Afghanistan, Korea, Germany, ships at sea, and dozens of places on the globe where our military serves.

Because units are continually being deployed, reassigned and recalled, we struggle to maintain current address lists. We would appreciate the assistance of your forum in spreading the word to service members and their families that they need only to go to operationpaperback.org to register, and we will see to it that they have quality reading material to provide an escape from their day-to-day trials. Thank you for your help.

— DAN BOWERS, RED LION, PA.

DEARDAN: What a wonderful offer. But be careful what you wish for, because Dear Abby readers are the most generous and patriotic people in the world!

DEAR ABBY: My stepdaughter came and cleaned our house when my wife — her mother — was ill. I appreciated her efforts, until I noticed she had put the toilet brush in the dishwasher with the dishes. I quietly removed it.

Am I overreacting because I no longer want to eat at her house? This made me extremely uncomfortable because most of our family gatherings are at her house.

— TURNUED OFF IN TEXAS

DEAR TURNED OFF: Ew! Had I been in your position, when I saw what she had done, I'd have hit high C. And I wouldn't have been subtle about removing the toilet brush from the dishwasher. What a gross lapse of judgment. I wouldn't want to eat at her house either, and I'd let my spouse know exactly why. (Please tell me your stepdaughter didn't learn this from her mother.)

IF MAY 18 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You know it is true that you should make hay while the sun shines — and in your case, the month of July is going to be a perfect time to harvest something of great value. The people who rock your world in July will have your best interests at heart and any opportunity that comes rapping on your door will probably be of great benefit, even if you don't realize it at the time. That is a great time to lay future plans as well as initiate new projects. In September, your business savvy is at an all time high, so it is a good time to implement financial strategies or business maneuvers. Maintain a low profile and fight off an urge to enter into new commitments in December.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Totally stoked, but never broke. Your enthusiasm for romance, recreation and reaching out for the better things in life shouldn't blind you to the value of a nickel. Hold out for the best and finest.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Flirtations flower. Affectionate Venus has entered your sign, so it is quite possible that your attractiveness is enhanced. Additional opportunities for social contacts should not be taken lightly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Get your foot in the door. Your yen for congenial companionship might nag at you to take the first step. You can be highly aggressive in your pursuit of affection and can't or won't take no for an answer.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your heart is definitely in the right place. A passing whim might tempt you to play hooky when you should be hard at work. Friends might be more concerned about social activities than material success.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Fuel your passions. Someone in close connection, either emotionally or geographically, may trigger your enthusiasms. Don't be afraid to experiment with new ways of performing tasks.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You might be eager to splurge in order to merge. You may find that the credit card is beginning to get warm to the touch as you buy gifts or goodies to please a mate. It is admirable to share with others.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your social calendar is getting cluttered. Pair up with a congenial partner who will keep you company no matter what is on the agenda. You won't be happy if you have to work or travel all by yourself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Love and affection seem to take center stage and the footlights are flattering to your every move. Yesterday was the full moon — but in the next few days, you might experience a total eclipse of the heart.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Strike while the iron is hot. You have extra energy and your executive ability gleams under these stars. Put these qualities to good use. This is a fabulous time to meet new people or appear in public.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Wink at the wheel of fortune. You can't adapt to changes unless you turn on the charm and convince others of your commitment. A change of venue might give you a chance to let your hair down.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Get more facts before you fritter money away. Your partner or significant other might have brainstorms but might need your input or possibly even financial assistance to make a dream reality.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Romance rules. If you are single, you might tend to concentrate on the amorous flavor of the week. You prefer a bit of spice in your love life even if you are happily paired up with the "one and only."

OFFICIAL NOTICE OF BOND SALE
(To Be Conducted Electronically)
JOINT SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 151,
CASSIA, ONEIDA AND TWIN FALLS COUNTIES,
STATE OF IDAHO
$8,480,000
GENERAL OBLIGATION REFUNDING BONDS, SERIES 2011
(Idaho State Bond Guaranty and Credit Enhancement Programs)

* Preliminary; subject to change. See caption “ADJUSTMENT OF PRINCIPAL AMOUNT OF THE BONDS” in this OFFICIAL NOTICE OF BOND SALE.

Bids will be received electronically (as described under “Procedures Regarding Electronic Bidding” below) by Joint School District No. 151, Cassia, Oneida and Twin Falls Counties, State of Idaho (the “District”) via the PARITY® electronic bid submission system (“PARITY®”) until 9:30:00 a.m., Mountain Daylight Savings Time (“MDST”), on Wednesday, May 25, 2011, for the purchase (all or none) (“AON”) of $8,480,000* aggregate principal amount of General Obligation Refunding Bonds, Series 2011 (Idaho State Bond Guaranty and Credit Enhancement Programs) (the “Bonds”) of the District. The bids received electronically will be sealed and delivered to the District's Board of Trustees (the “Board”) and the Board will award the Bonds to the successful bidder in public session at a special meeting to be held on Wednesday, May 25, 2011, at 9:30 p.m., MDST, at Oakley High School, 455 West Main Street, Oakley, Idaho.

Description of Bonds. The Bonds will be dated as of the date of issuance and delivery (anticipated to be Tuesday, June 7, 2011), will be issuable only as fully-registered bonds in book-entry form, will be issued in denominations of $5,000 or any whole multiple thereof, not exceeding the amount of each maturity, and will mature on August 1 of each of the years and in the principal amounts as follows:

Year	Principal Amount*
August 1
2012	$1,780,000
2013	1,820,000
2014	1,865,000
2015	1,905,000
2016	1,110,000

Adjustment of Principal Amount of the Bonds: The District reserves the right, following determination of the best bid(s), to reduce or increase the principal amount of each maturity of the Bonds by the amount necessary to properly size the issue so that proceeds available to the District will be approximately $8,645,000. The total principal amount of Bonds issued may not exceed $8,480,000. The adjustment of maturities may be made in such amounts as are necessary to provide the District with desired debt service payments during the life of the Bonds. The dollar amount of the price bid by the successful bidder may be changed as described below, but the interest rates specified by the successful bidder for all maturities will not change. A successful bidder may not withdraw its bid as a result of any changes made within these limits, and the Board will consider the bid as having been made for the adjusted amount of the Bonds. The dollar amount of the price bid will be changed so that the percentage net compensation to the successful bidder (i.e., the percentage resulting from dividing (a) the aggregate difference between the offering price of the Bonds to the public and the price to be paid to the Board, by (b) the principal amount of the Bonds) does not increase or decrease from what it would have been if no adjustment was made to the principal amounts shown above. The Board expects to advise the successful bidder as soon as possible, but expects no later than 2:00 p.m., MDST, on the date of sale, of the amount, if any, by which the aggregate principal amount of the Bonds will be adjusted and the corresponding changes to the principal amount of Bonds maturing on one or more of the above-designated maturity dates for the Bonds. Any such adjustment will be in an amount of $5,000 or a whole multiple thereof.

To facilitate any adjustment in the principal amounts, the successful bidder is required to indicate by facsimile transmission to Zions Bank Public Finance, the Financial Advisor (the “Financial Advisor”) to the Board, at fax number (801) 844-4484 within one-half hour of the time of bid opening, the amount of any original issue discount or premium on each maturity of the Bonds and the amount received from the sale of the Bonds to the public that will be retained by the successful bidder as its compensation.

Ratings. The District will, at its own expense, pay the fee of Moody’s Investors Service, Inc. for rating the Bonds. Any additional ratings shall be at the option and expense of the bidder.

Purchase Price. The purchase price bid shall not be less than 102% of the principal amount of the Bonds ($8,649,600).

Interest Rates. Bidders must specify the rate of interest with respect to each maturity of Bonds. Bidders will be permitted to bid different rates of interest for each separate maturity of Bonds, but:

- (a) the highest interest rate bid for any of the Bonds shall not exceed 4.00% per annum;
- (b) each interest rate specified in any bid must be in a multiple of one-eighth or one-twentieth of one percent (1/8th or 1/20th of 1%) per annum;
- (c) no Bond shall have more than one rate of interest;
- (d) interest shall be computed from the dated date of a Bond to its stated maturity date at the single interest rate specified in the bid for the Bonds of such maturity;
- (e) the same interest rate shall apply to all Bonds maturing at one time;
- (f) the purchase price must be paid in immediately available funds and no bid will be accepted that contemplates the cancellation of any interest or the waiver of interest or other concession by the bidder as a substitute for immediately available funds;
- (g) any premium must be paid in the funds specified for the payment of the Bonds as part of the purchase price;
- (h) there shall be no supplemental interest coupons;
- (i) a zero percent (0%) interest rate may not be used; and
- (j) interest shall be computed on the basis of a 360-day year of 12, 30-day months.

Interest will be payable commencing August 1, 2011, and semiannually thereafter on February 1 and August 1 of each year.

Bond Registrar and Paying Agent; Place of Payment. U.S. Bank National Association, Corporate Trust Department, Salt Lake City, Utah, will be the paying agent and bond registrar for the Bonds. The District may remove any paying agent and any bond registrar, and any successor thereto, and appoint a successor or successors thereto. So long as the Bonds are outstanding in book-entry form, the principal of and interest on the Bonds will be paid under the standard procedures of The Depository Trust Company (“DTC”).

Redemption Provisions. The Bonds are not subject to redemption prior to maturity.

Security. Unlimited Ad Valorem Taxes. The Bonds will be full general obligations of the District, payable from the proceeds of ad valorem taxes to be levied without limitation as to rate or amount on all of the taxable property in the District, fully sufficient to pay the same as to both principal and interest. Additionally, the Bonds are secured through the Idaho State Sales Tax Guaranty Program and the Credit Enhancement Program.

Idaho State Sales Tax Guaranty. The District has received a Certificate of Eligibility from the Idaho State Treasurer qualifying the District for the Idaho School Bond Guaranty Program (the “Idaho State Sales Tax Guaranty Program”) pursuant to the Idaho School Bond Guaranty Act, Title 33, chapter 53, Idaho Code. Payment of the principal of and interest on the Bonds when due will be guaranteed by the sales taxes collected by the State of Idaho pursuant to the provisions of the program.

Credit Enhancement Program. The District has received a Certificate of Approval of Credit Enhancement for the Bonds from the Idaho Endowment Fund Investment Board (the “Investment Board”). Under the Credit Enhancement Program, in the event moneys from sales taxes are insufficient to pay the District's debt service payments on the Bonds under the Idaho State Sales Tax Guaranty Program, the Investment Board may purchase on behalf of the public school endowment fund, or from other funds administered by the Investment Board, notes from the State issued by the State Treasurer; or upon the request of the State Treasurer, the Investment Board shall purchase on behalf of the public school endowment fund notes issued by the State Treasurer, the proceeds of which shall be sufficient to pay debt service payments on the Bonds.

Moody's Investors Service has assigned its “Aaa” rating to bonds that are guaranteed by both the Idaho State Sales Tax Guaranty Program and the Credit Enhancement Program. For a detailed description of the Idaho State Sales Tax Guaranty Program and the Credit Enhancement Program see the section “STATE OF IDAHO GUARANTY” in the OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

Award. Award or rejection of bids will be made at the Wednesday, May 25, 2011 meeting of the District referred to above. The Bonds will be awarded to the responsible bidder offering to pay the lowest effective interest rate to the District computed from the date of the Bonds to maturity and taking into consideration the premium, if any, in the purchase price of the Bonds. The effective interest rate to the District shall be the interest rate per annum determined on a per annum true interest cost (“TIC”) basis by discounting the scheduled semiannual debt service payments of the District on the Bonds (based on such rate or rates of interest so bid) to the dated date of the Bonds (based on a 360-day year consisting of 12, 30-day months), compounded semiannually and to the bid price.

Procedures Regarding Electronic Bidding. The successful bidder shall provide the required good faith deposit as described under “GOOD FAITH DEPOSIT” below.

A prospective bidder must communicate its bid for the Bonds electronically via PARITY® on or before 9:30:00 a.m., MDST, on Wednesday, May 25, 2011. No bid will be received after the time for receiving bids specified above. To the extent any instructions or directions set forth in PARITY® conflict with this OFFICIAL NOTICE OF BOND SALE, the terms of this OFFICIAL NOTICE OF BOND SALE shall control. For further information about PARITY®, potential bidders may contact i-Deal LLC at 1359 Broadway, 2nd Floor, New York, New York 10018, telephone 212.849.5021 or the Financial Advisor at One South Main Street, 18th Floor, Salt Lake City, Utah 84133-1109, telephone (801) 844-7373. For purposes of PARITY®, the time as maintained by PARITY® shall constitute the official time.

Each prospective bidder shall be solely responsible to register to bid via PARITY® as described above. Each qualified prospective bidder shall be solely responsible to make necessary arrangements to access PARITY® for purposes of submitting its bid in a timely manner and in compliance with the requirements of this OFFICIAL NOTICE OF BOND SALE. Neither the District nor i-Deal LLC shall have any duty or obligation to undertake such registration to bid for any prospective bidder or to provide or assure such access to any qualified prospective bidder, and neither the District nor i-Deal LLC shall be responsible for a bidder's failure to register to bid or for proper operation of, or have any liability for any delays or interruptions of, or any damages caused by, PARITY®. The District is using PARITY® as a communication mechanism, and not as the District's agent, to conduct the electronic bidding for the Bonds.

Notification. The Financial Advisor, on behalf of the District, will notify the apparent successful bidder electronically (via PARITY®), as soon as possible after the District's receipt of bids, that such bidder's bid appears to be the best bid received which conforms to the requirements of this OFFICIAL NOTICE OF BOND SALE, subject to verification and to official action to be taken at the District's meeting as described in the next succeeding paragraph.

The award of the Bonds to the successful bidder will be considered at the District's special meeting to be held beginning at 9:30 p.m., MDST, on Wednesday, May 25, 2011. The District's acceptance of the winning bid shall be made electronically to the successful bidder via PARITY® within the time described under “Prompt Award” below.

Form of Bid. Each bidder is required to transmit electronically via PARITY® an unconditional bid specifying the lowest rate or rates of interest and the purchase price (as described under “Purchase Price” above) at which the bidder will purchase the Bonds. Each bid must be for all the Bonds herein offered for sale.

For information purposes only, bidders are requested to state in their bids the effective interest rate for the Bonds represented on a TIC basis, as described under “Award” above, represented by the rate or rates of interest and the bid price specified in their respective bids.

No bids will be accepted in written form, by facsimile transmission or in any other medium or on any system other than by means of PARITY®; provided however, that in the event a prospective bidder cannot access PARITY® through no fault of its own, it may so notify the Financial Advisor by telephone at (801) 8447373. Thereafter, it may submit its bid by telephone to the Financial Advisor at (801) 8447373, who shall transcribe such bid into written form, or by facsimile transmission to the Financial Advisor at (801) 8444484, in either case before 9:30:00 a.m., MDST, on Wednesday, May 25, 2011. For purposes of bids submitted telephonically to the Financial Advisor (as described above) or by facsimile transmission, the time as maintained by PARITY®, shall constitute the official time.

Each bid submitted as provided in the preceding paragraph must specify the interest rate or rates for the Bonds and the total purchase price of all of the Bonds. The Financial Advisor will seal transcribed telephonic bids and facsimile transmission bids for submission to an official of the District. Neither the District nor the Financial Advisor assume any responsibility or liability from the failure of any such transcribed telephonic bid or facsimile transmission (whether such failure arises from equipment failure, unavailability of phone lines or otherwise). No bid will be received after the time for receiving such bids specified above.

Right of Cancellation. The successful bidder shall have the right, at its option, to cancel its obligation to purchase the Bonds if the District shall fail to execute the Bonds and tender the same for delivery within 60 days from the date of sale thereof, and in such event the successful bidder shall be entitled to the return of the deposit accompanying its bid.

Good Faith Deposit. A Good Faith Deposit in the amount of $85,000 (the “Deposit”) is required only from the successful bidder. The Deposit shall be payable to the order of the District in the form of a wire transfer in federal funds as instructed by the Financial Advisor no later than 12:00 p.m. MDST on the date of sale. As an alternative to wiring funds, a bidder may deliver a cashier's or certified check, payable to the order of the District, with its bid. If a check is used, it must precede each bid. Such check shall be promptly returned to its respective bidder whose bid is not accepted.

The District shall, as security for the faithful performance by the successful bidder of its obligation to take up and pay for the Bonds when tendered, cash the Deposit check, if applicable, of the successful bidder and hold the proceeds of the Deposit of the successful bidder or invest the same (at the District's risk) in obligations that mature at or before the delivery of the Bonds as described under the caption “Manner and Time of Delivery” below, until disposed of as follows: (a) at such delivery of the Bonds and upon compliance with the successful bidder's obligation to take up and pay for the Bonds, the full amount of the Deposit held by the District, without adjustment of interest, shall be applied toward the purchase price of the Bonds at that time, and the full amount of any interest earnings thereon shall be retained by the District; and (b) if the successful bidder fails to take up and pay for the Bonds when tendered, the full amount of the Deposit plus any interest earnings thereon will be forfeited to the District as liquidated damages.

Sale Reservations. The District reserves the right: (1) to waive any irregularity or informality in any bid or in the electronic bidding process; (2) or reject any and all bids for the Bonds; and (3) to resell the Bonds as provided by law.

Prompt Award. The District will take action awarding the Bonds or rejecting all bids not later than twenty-four (24) hours after the expiration of the time herein prescribed for the receipt of bids, unless such time of award is waived by the successful bidder.

Manner and Time of Delivery. The successful bidder will be given at least seven business days' advance notice of the proposed date of the delivery of the Bonds when that date has been tentatively determined. It is now estimated that the Bonds will be delivered in bookentry form on or about Tuesday, June 7, 2011. The Bonds will be delivered as a single Bond certificate for each maturity of the Bonds, registered in the name of DTC or its nominee. Delivery of the Bonds will be made in Salt Lake City, Utah, pursuant to DTC's FAST system. The successful bidder must also agree to pay for the Bonds in federal funds that will be immediately available to the District on the day of delivery.

CUSIP Numbers. It is anticipated that CUSIP identification numbers will be printed on the Bonds, but neither the failure to print such numbers on any Bond nor any error with respect thereto shall constitute cause for a failure or refusal by the successful bidder to accept delivery of and pay for the Bonds in accordance with terms of the contract of sale. All expenses in relation to the providing of CUSIP numbers for the Bonds shall be paid for by the District.

Tax-Exemption. In the opinion of Hawley Troxell Ennis & Hawley LLP, Boise, Idaho, Bond Counsel, subject to the condition that the District comply with certain covenants made to satisfy pertinent requirements of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended (the “Code”), under present law, interest on the Bonds is not included in gross income under the present federal income tax laws pursuant to Section 103 of the Code. The Bonds are not private activity bonds. Interest on the Bonds will not be treated as an item of tax preference for purposes of determining the alternative minimum taxable income for individuals or corporations, but will be taken into account in the computation of the adjusted current earnings adjustment applicable to corporations for purposes of computing the alternative minimum taxable income of corporations under Section 55 of the Code. Failure to comply with certain of such District covenants could cause interest on the Bonds to be included in gross income retroactive to the date of issuance of the Bonds. Ownership of the Bonds may result in other federal tax consequences to certain taxpayers, and Bond Counsel expresses no opinion regarding any such collateral consequences with respect to the Bonds. Reference is hereby made to the discussion of the Code set forth in the Official Statement under the caption “TAX EXEMPTION.”

The District intends to designate the Bonds as “qualified tax-exempt obligations” for the purpose and within the meaning of Section 265(b)(3) of the Code.

Issue Price. In order to enable the District to comply with certain conditions of the Code, as amended, the successful bidder will be required to provide a certificate as to the “issue price” of the Bonds. Each bidder, by submitting its bid, agrees to complete, execute and deliver such certificate, in form and substance satisfactory to Bond Counsel, by the date of delivery of the Bonds, if its bid is accepted by the District. It will be the responsibility of the successful bidder to institute such syndicate reporting requirements, to make such investigation or otherwise to ascertain the facts necessary to make such certification.

Legal Opinions and Closing Certificates. The unqualified approving opinion of Hawley Troxell Ennis & Hawley LLP covering the legality of the Bonds will be furnished to the successful bidder. A supplemental opinion shall be furnished to the successful bidder by Hawley Troxell Ennis & Hawley LLP with respect to the disclosure of certain information in the Official Statement. Closing certificates will also be furnished, dated as of the date of delivery of and payment for the Bonds, including a statement that there is no litigation pending or, to the knowledge of the signer thereof, threatened affecting the validity of the Bonds.

Disclosure Certificate. The closing papers will include a certificate executed by the Chairman of the Board of Trustees or other officer of the District confirming to the successful bidder that, to the best of the knowledge of the signers thereof, and after reasonable investigation: (a) the descriptions and statements contained in the Preliminary Official Statement circulated with respect to the Bonds were at the time of the acceptance of the bid true and correct in all material respects and did not at the time of the acceptance of the bid contain any untrue statement of a material fact or omit to state a material fact necessary to make the statements therein, in light of the circumstances under which they were made, not misleading; and (b) the descriptions and statements contained in the final Official Statement are at the time of the delivery of the Bonds true and correct in all material respects and do not at the time of the delivery of the Bonds contain any untrue statement of a material fact or omit to state a material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein, in light of the circumstances under which they were made, not misleading; provided, should the final Official Statement be supplemented or amended subsequent to the date thereof, the foregoing confirmation as to the final Official Statement shall relate to the final Official Statement as so supplemented or amended.

Continuing Disclosure. The District covenants and agrees to enter into a written agreement or contract, constituting an undertaking (the “Undertaking”) to provide ongoing disclosure about the District for the benefit of the beneficial owners of the Bonds on or before the date of delivery of the Bonds as required under paragraph (b)(5) of Rule 15c2-12 (the “Rule”) adopted by the Securities and Exchange Commission under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934. The Undertaking shall be as described in the Preliminary Official Statement, with such changes as may be agreed upon in writing by the successful bidder. The District is in compliance with each and every Undertaking previously entered into by it pursuant to the Rule.

The successful bidder's obligation to purchase the Bonds shall be conditioned upon the District delivering the Undertaking on or before the date of delivery of the Bonds.

Delivery of Copies of Final Official Statement. The District shall deliver to the successful bidder on such business day as directed in writing by the successful bidder, which is not earlier than the second business day or later than the seventh business day after the award of the Bonds as described under the caption “Award” above, copies of the final Official Statement in sufficient quantity, as directed in writing by the successful bidder, to comply with paragraph (b)(4) of the Rule and the Rules of the Municipal Securities Rulemaking Board.

Financial Advisor. The District has entered into an agreement with the Financial Advisor whereunder the Financial Advisor provides financial recommendations and guidance to the District with respect to preparation for sale of the Bonds, timing of sale, tax-exempt bond market conditions, costs of issuance and other factors related to the sale of the Bonds. The Financial Advisor has obtained permission from the District to submit a bid in its behalf, or to participate in a syndicate account, at the public sale for the purchase of the Bonds.

Additional Information. For copies of this OFFICIAL NOTICE OF BOND SALE and the Preliminary Official Statement and information regarding the electronic bidding procedures and other related information with respect to the Bonds, contact the Financial Advisor to the District, Zions Bank Public Finance, One South Main Street, 18th Floor, Salt Lake City, Utah 841331109, (801) 844-7373, fax (801) 844 4484, email: alex.buxton@zionsbank.com, eric.pehrson@zionsbank.com, cara.bertot@zionsbank.com.
