With earmark ban, T.F. rethinks lobbying efforts

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

There's no arguing that Twin Falls has reaped the benefits of earmarks over the years.

For example, federal earmarks — spending for specific projects sponsored by members of Congress — have brought $1.6 million for wastewater work at Auger Falls. They also provided $100,000 to the Twin Falls Public Library to digitize a century's worth of newspaper microfilm and other historical records.

But with a two-year moratorium on federal earmarks in place, Twin Falls is shifting its focus more to federal grants. That means that the city will need to retool and evaluate what it gains from its Washington, D.C.-based lobbyist, Will Hollier.

Hollier's services cost the city a flat fee of $5,000 a month — $60,000 each year, city and federal records show. A former staffer for U.S. Sen. Mike Crapo, Hollier has lobbied for the city since 2004, first with Gallatin Public Affairs and later with his own firm, Hollier & Associates.

"Now with Congress having a turn and twist in how they do earmarks, we've had conversations to say: 'How are we best leveraging the $60,000 we spend on an annual basis?'" City Manager Travis Rothweiler said, calling Hollier's rate of return "phenomenal."

Hollier's work hasn't been limited to earmarks. He lobbied for the land transfer in which the city gained 165 acres near Auger Falls from the U.S. Bureau of Land Management in 2009.

But applying for federal grants is different from asking an Idaho congressman to sponsor an earmark for a project in his district — and much more competitive. How the city will step up those efforts remains to be seen.

Currently, Hollier looks for grant opportunities that fit with the city's goals and passes suggestions to city officials. That's expected to continue for the city's upcoming fiscal year, which begins in October.

The cost for lobbying has been planned into next year's budget, Rothweiler said. From there, the city and its lobbying firm will continue to monitor the effectiveness

Lindsey Ostrander didn't have the luck of the Irish with her on St. Patrick's Day 2010.

After an evening of drinking with friends in Twin Falls, she was arrested for driving under the influence at 2:50 a.m. on March 18. Her blood-alcohol concentration was measured at nearly three times the legal limit to drive, and she was taken to jail, she told her fellow 5th Judicial District DUI Court graduates on Monday night.

The kicker is that she knew better. As a certified Idaho corrections officer, she knew she was held to a higher standard than most.

"I was in law enforcement for three years," the former Jerome County sheriff's jail deputy said. "It was a reality check when I got pulled over and arrested for DUI."

Inside a small conference room on the second floor of the College of Southern Idaho's Taylor Building, Ostrander and a dozen other people received their certificates — and a dismissal of charges — after completing roughly yearlong sessions in the problem-solving court. As part of an expanded graduation ceremony Judge Thomas Kershaw sought to recognize their accomplishments, graduates talked about what they lost to poor decisions and what

HISTORY OF 5TH DISTRICT DUI COURT

The 5th Judicial District began its problem-solving court for driving-under-the-influence convicts nearly five years ago. It is one of 48 problem-solving courts in Idaho.

Eligible defendants enter into substance abuse programs, make regular court appearances and submit to frequent blood-alcohol concentration tests. Successful participants can graduate in about one year, with their convictions dropped.

DUI Court is funded mostly by participant fees and grants. Former probation officer Steve Conger is the court's coordinator, and Magistrate Judge Howard Smyser oversaw it until his retirement last fall. Judge Thomas Kershaw has presided since.

Since its inception, the program has admitted 209 people with 135 graduating. Taking into account 17 terminations — people who can't give up the bottle — and a recent addition of 14 participants, Conger estimates 10.4 percent of participants re-offend.

District Trial Court Administrator Linda Wright, a founding advocate of this and other problem-solving courts, said at a recent graduation: "We've found that it's more beneficial to help you change than to lock you up."

USPS ponders closure in light of dwindling cash flow

By Nick Coltrain
Times-News writer

At the end of an often fiery Tuesday meeting on whether the U.S. Postal Service should consolidate its Twin Falls processing center, postal worker Andrea Price rallied the crowd for one last statement.

"No moving our mail to Boise!" the crowd of 125-plus shouted.

"I heard you," responded Ken McArthur, USPS district manager for Utah and southern Idaho, somewhat jovially.

Price, who works in the downtown Twin Falls office, was one of dozens to grill McArthur on a proposal to move the mail processing center, a cost-cutting measure the USPS estimates will save more than $600,000. The USPS is an independent federal agency intended to be self-sufficient, though it has been borrowing cash from the government to cover debts in recent years. It has also started closing small post offices across the nation.

The USPS has taken a battering from a decline in use — 42 percent in 10 years — instigated by digital services such as email and online bill pay, McArthur said. This year alone it expects to be $8 billion in the hole, he said.

Price criticized the agency as being "top heavy." Others said the Postal Service should drop "service" from its title if it is going to ship Twin Falls mail 130 miles to Boise, only to ship it right back to the Magic Valley. More questioned the seeming logistic magic of

Jerome city to vote on recycling in November

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

JEROME — The Jerome City Council decided on Tuesday to put a recycling proposal on the November ballot.

That means residents will get to choose in the upcoming municipal election if they support paying an extra $3.50 a month for each household for single-stream recycling.

The council's vote was 3-0, with Councilman Robert Culver absent.

The city has already talked with PSI Environmental Systems Inc. about the costs of recycling. The waste management company already does Jerome's trash removal.

Jerome's proposal would also allow residents the option to pay about $1 more each month to participate in a program that provides coupons for area merchants.

Nearby, Twin Falls has switched in the past year to a single-stream recycling program — also with PSI — which has increased the amount of materials going into its recycling bins.

In other business, the council voted to allow Ben Marchant, the city administrator, to attend the International City Management Association's annual conference in Milwaukee, Wisc. The trip is estimated to cost $1,800.

After the open session, the council went into a closed-door meeting, citing the section of the state's open meeting law that covers pending lawsuits or a general public awareness of probable litigation.

they hope to gain in recovery.

Ostrander lost her career. She was about to leave for Army basic training and a road that could have led to becoming a detective. But Idaho Peace Officer Standards and Training strips officers of their certification upon a misdemeanor conviction.

Her career path derailed, Ostrander purchased Asylum Gaming, a small Twin Falls business that caters to video gamers. But it's not something she wants to do forever.

"I feel so lost being on the wrong side of the hall," she said.

Ostrander was among the program's 13 most recent graduates, some of whom faced serious prison time had the problem-solving court not accepted them.

Randy Boyd, 54, was charged with felony DUI when he was picked up on June 13, 2009, for drunken driving. According to the police report, he had been convicted of DUI eight times since 1990. In Idaho, a third conviction within 10 years is a felony punishable by up to 10 years in prison. That fact wasn't lost on Boyd.

"I shouldn't be here," he told the group. "I'm getting through this, and I know it's only the beginning."

Although they have a graduation certificate, participants aren't off the hook. They're still on probation. Ostrander has another 12 months to go. Boyd has completed about a year of a four-year term.

Kershaw closed Monday's ceremony with a somber reminder of graduation being far from the last step in the journey toward sobriety.

"The future will tell whether it worked for the people you've seen today," he said, speaking of recidivism. "That's what allows us to keep the program going. If it doesn't work, we'll lose it. You decide whether it works or not. Your life is at stake, and others' lives are at stake."

of their partnership.

"When we looked at this, we said, 'Let's give this a year,'" Rothweiler said. "Let's see how it works as we continue to move forward. Let's continue to be very objective. Let's be careful to scrutinize it."

Possibilities for the future include hiring a grant administrator for the city, or giving that work to the new assistant city manager after that person is hired, Rothweiler said.

Hollier said the move away from earmarks will make it more difficult for cities to secure dollars for projects often needed to meet federal mandates, like maximum arsenic levels in municipal drinking water.

Cities like Twin Falls compete for earmarks only against other communities in their congressional district — not every city in the nation seeking a grant, he said.

"Now you're back into the days of nothing but federal bureaucrats controlling the money," Hollier said, adding that Idaho's elected leaders have a better knowledge of their constituents' needs than outside observers.

Though members cannot directly sponsor earmarks, Idaho's congressional delegation helps grant applicants, writing letters of support and helping constituents navigate the labyrinth of the federal process.

U.S. Rep. Mike Simpson, R-Idaho, said in a statement that his office has staff available to assist, though cuts to federal programs will make grant opportunities even more limited and competitive.

"In the future, communities across the country are not going to find much help forthcoming from the federal government as it finally confronts its own fiscal crisis," Simpson said.

You are not paranoid: Your lawn is out to get you

I spent a fair amount of last Sunday on my hands and knees yanking up dandelions that did not wish to budge.

Then I read in Ketchum's Idaho Mountain Express that the pros charge $25 to $35 an hour to do the same job — and that some homeowners in the Wood River Valley actually pay it.

It's all part of the inherent unfairness of lawnkeeping.

Once all that hybrid Kentucky bluegrass you've lavished on your alkaline quarter-acre of Idaho lava rock gets you hooked — usually a commitment of several thousand dollars and a herniated disk are the opening bids — it's going to behave like Ophelia in Hamlet.

Which is to say, like an overwrought actress forever on the brink of either death or madness.

Brown spots, for example. The experts blame diseases

DON'T ASK ME

Steve Crump

— rhizoctonia yellow patch, sclerotinia dollar spot, rhizoctonia blight, typhula blight, stripe smut and pythium blight, for example. That's nonsense.

Your lawn turns brown because it wants to. It's a question of control.

For it's a polite fiction that anything a homeowner can do will make his or her grass green and weedless. That's because your lawn is way ornerier than you are.

The madness, of course, is yours — especially since the stewardship of lawns is a powerful test of character among Idahoans.

To have sickly grass smacks of slack morals. It means you probably feed your kids Honey Smacks for dinner and have mold growing on the tile grout in the shower.

For character flaws, always, will be revealed in the growing of greenswards. Your lawn knows if you were not completely candid with the IRS, if you co-habit with Miss Clairol or if you move the golf ball when your brother-in-law isn't looking.

And come the Dog Days, it will bare your imperfections for all the neighbors to see.

Alibis count for nothing. You can complain endlessly that your golden retriever is to blame for your grass' imperfections, but no one is going to believe that any dog hearkens to the call of nature that often.

You can point to fertilizer burn, but it hasn't gone unnoticed among your neighbors that your spreader is swaddled with cobwebs.

Or you can plead feeble topsoil or weedy grass-seed contamination, but neither can account for a lawn the color of eggnog gone bad.

Mother Nature has found you standing in the need of redemption, and so she's given you a landscaped moonscape.

You can, of course, Roundup all that grass and pretend you're xeriscaping. That's the 50-cent word for transforming your yard into a gravel pit.

But honor still demands that you plant something out there — cactus or pampas grass; maybe even a fake ficus tree.

Otherwise the next crop of dandelions will look out of place.

Trial begins for T.F. man accused of harassing Muslim woman

By Bradley Guire
Times-News writer

A Twin Falls Army veteran stands to spend up to five years in prison if a jury convicts him of malicious harassment of a Muslim woman.

Opening arguments were offered, witness testimony was heard, and evidence was presented on Tuesday as the first day of John C. Larsen's trial began in Twin Falls County 5th District Court. Larsen, 42, was arrested on Dec. 22, 2010, and charged for allegedly screaming and using vulgar language in a confrontation with Jerome native Anna Schultz while both were shopping at Walmart in Twin Falls.

Joe Rockstahl, Larsen's defense attorney, paints his client as a distinguished veteran dealing with post-traumatic stress disorder — the result of serving overseas, securing a city against looters after Hurricane Katrina devastated New Orleans and dealing with the deaths of close friends and fellow soldiers.

Larsen appeared Tuesday in an Army dress uniform, which featured three chevrons and the iconic black and gold shield of the 1st Cavalry Division.

Twin Falls County Prosecutor Grant Loeb said the case was simple: Larsen started a confrontation in the store's electronics section.

"It's not about whether Mr. Larsen is a good man or a bad man or whether he's a hero for serving his country in the Army," Loeb said. "It's not about whether we feel sympathy, which we all do if we're humans and we're Americans, for veterans who serve our nation and suffer trauma as a result of that service overseas."

Rockstahl stated Larsen was acting in self-defense during an argument with

Larsen

Schultz, trying to put distance between himself from her. Photos taken from video surveillance show the two in an argument, with Schultz advancing on Larsen at one point.

"I don't think he meets the elements of the crime," Rockstahl said. "He wasn't going out of his way to harass someone. He saw something totally out of character, someone dressed as the enemy he had to deal with for 2 1/2 years."

Walmart employee Juan Gomez, who arrived to break up the argument, also testified, saying both Larsen and Schultz were yelling, but he felt that Larsen was the more threatening of the two based on body language.

"I would say he did do a lean that would make me suspicious as toward a weapon," Gomez said. "Then going on, saying that America allowed him to have his (concealed weapons) permit."

Under cross-examination, Gomez said he didn't actually see a weapon.

Twin Falls Police Officer Aaron Nay testified about his contact with Larsen and Schultz when he responded to the scene. He also confirmed finding a handgun in the center console of Larsen's Dodge Durango SUV. The weapon, called the Snake Slayer, is a hybrid of sorts as it will shoot both .45 Colt slugs and .410-gauge shotgun shells. The gun was found holstered but loaded with 3-inch shells.

Nay said no one claimed to have seen Larsen in possession of the gun.

Schultz and other witnesses to the alleged confrontation are scheduled to testify as the trial continues this week.

It does water testing and if the samples aren't tested within 30 hours of collection, they become useless, she said. Her testimony was one of several to draw applause.

McArthur, speaking for the USPS, said his agency would work with Magic Valley Labs and other local business owners who expressed concern at potential service declines.

But cost-cutting measures need to happen, he said, and changes like canceling Saturday service or cutting the cash banked for employee health benefits need approval from a sluggish Congress. He also emphasized that closing the

Rehab could help disgraced Burley teacher avoid prison

By Laurie Welch
Times-News writer

BURLEY — A judge granted Michael Scott Brinkerhoff a chance at rehabilitation after the former Burley Junior High School teacher faced his teen victim with words of remorse during his Tuesday sentencing hearing.

Cassia County 5th District Judge Michael Crabtree sentenced Brinkerhoff, 43, to 12 years in prison for felony sex abuse of a minor child under 16. Under the terms of his sentence, Brinkerhoff will be eligible for parole after he serves two years.

However, he could avoid that prison time, as Crabtree requested Brinkerhoff be placed in the state's retained jurisdiction for 365 days. If the Idaho Department of Correction grants Crabtree's request, Brinkerhoff will participate in rehabilitation programs and be evaluated on his progress. If Crabtree finds Brinkerhoff's rehabilitation satisfactory, he could suspend the prison sentence and order a probationary period.

Brinkerhoff, a former drama teacher, concocted an elaborate scheme in which he posed as a fictitious 15-year-old boy in order to engage female students in online sexual behavior.

He pleaded guilty to the sex abuse charge in April as part of a deal that dropped another felony charge.

"Do you know how stupid I felt afterwards knowing it was all a joke?" his victim asked on the stand Tuesday. She added that Brinkerhoff was "a sick, disgusting, twisted man."

Teacher Leah Dow's new home in Twin Falls, as seen on Tuesday afternoon, the second day of a 'blitz build' by Habitat for Humanity of the Magic Valley and Thrivent Financial for Lutherans.

ASHLEY SMITH/Times-News

The Dow home, Day 2

With three days to go, Habitat for Humanity of the Magic Valley is pulling together a new home for Twin Falls teacher Leah Dow and her two sons in a five-day "blitz build." Here's what got done Tuesday.

What's done: All the sheet rock was hanged Monday night and the trim went up Tuesday. The home has windows and interior doors, as well as an ahead-of-schedule roof. The finishing touches were done on the siding and stucco.

What's next: Landscapers surveyed the property on Tuesday and posts for the fence will be put in today. Painting will begin on the interior walls. Dow already painted the trim for the kitchen red yesterday. Soon, volunteers will install flooring and appliances.

What's surprising: Jalen Dow, Leah's oldest son, was seen checking himself out in his new mirrored closet doors on Tuesday.

What they said: "I'm a very colorful person," said Dow about the colors she has picked for the interior of her new home. They'll be revealed today.

Idaho's redistricting panel begins work

BOISE (AP) — The six-member panel charged with redrawing Idaho's 35 legislative districts was sworn in Tuesday and started the clock on its 90-day deadline for reshaping the state's legislative landscape.

The Idaho Citizen Commission on Reapportionment then got down to business, electing two former Pocatello lawmakers as co-chairmen and getting advice from academics and those who redrew Idaho's legislative boundaries a decade ago.

"What's going to happen is you're going to eventually come out with a plan and a lot of people aren't going to like it," Gary Moncrief, Boise State University political science professor, told the commissioners during a presentation Tuesday. "And it doesn't matter what the plan is, a lot of people aren't going to like it."

Over the next three months, the panel will hold a series of public hearings and work sessions to carve out new legislative districts and redraw the line separating Idaho's 1st and 2nd congressional districts to better reflect changes in the population in the past 10 years.

The commission's first public meeting is Tuesday in the state Capitol, with another scheduled for Wednesday in Caldwell.

On Tuesday, the panel of three Republicans and three Democrats elected former GOP Sen. Evan Frasure and former Democratic Rep. Allen Anderson, both of Pocatello, to serve as co-chairmen.

Democratic commissioner George Moses of Boise said picking two leaders seemed like a good idea after reviewing the minutes from the last commission.

The panel faces a difficult challenge in retooling the state's political map, especially with the shifts in population in the past 10 years that led to growth in some of the current districts and shrinkage in others. Over the past decade, the state has grown to nearly 1.6 million people from 1.3 million, with the most dramatic increases in the suburbs of Boise, Nampa and Coeur d'Alene.

More road work slated for U.S. 93 near Jerome

An eight-mile stretch of U.S. Highway 93 between Shoshone and Jerome is scheduled to have its surface smoothed starting today.

The Idaho Transportation Department announced that a full-width asphalt overlay of U.S. 93 from the Idaho Highway 25 junction north through its intersection with 700 North Road is expected to last a little more than two weeks. The project will fix rutting and pot-holes.

During road work, a pilot car will be used while crews are present from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. weekdays, and a 45 mph speed limit will be in effect during non-working hours. Drivers are asked to be careful when approaching the work zone and watch for flaggers.

T.F. hospital christens new rehab center

St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center will dedicate its new Gwen Neilsen Anderson Rehabilitation Center at a naming ceremony, planned for 2-3 p.m. today on the third floor of the new Medical Office Plaza at 775 Pole Line Road in Twin Falls.

The hospital recently announced it received a $1 million grant for the center from the Craig H. Neilsen Foundation, a pri-

The center is named after Craig Neilsen's mother, Gwen, a longtime Twin Falls resident.

After several speakers, tours of the center will be offered for groups of 10, and refreshments will be served.

Key Idaho Democrat: Email to teachers ‘over the line’

BOISE (AP) — Idaho's House Minority Leader John Rusche has admonished a Democratic colleague from Boise for using her legislative account to send a mass email suggesting that high school government teachers focus on the three referendums targeting the state's new education reform measures.

Rusche, D-Lewiston, says the nearly 800 emails sent from the account of Rep. Sue Chew, D-Boise, last month, mostly to teachers' private accounts, were inappropriate. The email also found its way to about 30 school email accounts, according to an Idaho Statesman story published Tuesday.

The message states: "Allowing students to register to vote and keeping them informed of upcoming events, such as the referendum, is a way for the teachers to instill the rhetoric from class within their students' lives."

Rusche said he has talked to Chew and made it clear the note crossed a line.

"It's inappropriate to talk about encouraging activity in the classroom around a specific position on the referendum," said Rusche. "I thought this was over the line and deserved to be corrected. She acknowledged that and said it wouldn't happen again."

For her part, Chew acknowledged she made an error, but said her intent was to keep Idaho students engaged and active after a heated public debate over the reforms.

"We'll do things better next time," Chew said.

In March, lawmakers approved and Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter signed into law three measures designed to overhaul Idaho's public education system. The reforms, a controversial subject during the entire 2011 Legislature, limit teachers union bargaining rights, introduce merit pay and shift money from salaries to classroom technology.

On Monday, opponents of the new policies and Superintendent of Public Schools Tom Luna say they turned in enough signatures to put the measures on the ballot in November 2012. The signatures and referendum still need to be certified by the Secretary of State.

The day after Chew's email was sent, Luna sent a warning to school trustees and administrators that teachers who take part in political activity at school were subject to termination for violating the ethics code.

At the time, Luna had not yet learned of Chew's note. But he was forwarded a copy days later from a Star City Councilman Gary Smith who complained about teachers engaging in political activity and using class time to influence students.

Chew, a member of the House Education Committee, says her interns compiled the email list from those who had expressed concern about Luna's package of reforms.

"We had a lot of students come from Idaho Falls and north Idaho and everywhere," she said. "I wanted to make sure that people had the opportunity to continue to have their voice heard."

The email was actually sent by an intern who no longer works for Chew's office and asked recipients to contact Chew at her campaign email address with ideas to advance the referendum effort, including efforts to engage students. The email included links to download referendum petitions and voter registration forms.

Senate Education Committee Chairman John Goedde, R-Coeur d'Alene, a sponsor of the Luna plan, said the referendums likely to be on the 2012 ballot are an appropriate topic in government classes — as long as teachers give fair treatment to all sides.

"But it appears to me that this person is trying to find young people with liberal positions to assist not only in this campaign but in other Democrat issues," Goedde said.

The Legislature's agreement with lawmakers using state laptops requires they be used "primarily for official legislative business," but permits "secondary use" for personal, business and political activities.

Crews on Moab fire close to containment

MOAB, Utah (AP) — Fire officials in Utah on Tuesday afternoon said they were close to containing a 60-acre wildfire that threatened homes and wetlands west of the scenic city of Moab.

"The (fire) line is pretty secure around it," Moab Valley Fire District Chief Corky Brewer told The Salt Lake Tribune.

Brewer said he could see only a few puffs of smoke coming from hot spots, which 35 firefighters were still battling.

KSL-TV in Salt Lake City reported that authorities questioned three people described as transients, although they denied involvement in setting the fire. Brewer told KSL the investigation is continuing.

No injuries and no property damage were immediately reported, and a voluntary evacuation of about 200 homes was lifted overnight.

Brewer said winds gusting to 50 mph fueled the fire Monday afternoon and hampered the firefighting effort. Winds died down Tuesday, Brewer said.

He said the area where the fire started is frequented by transients and there were signs campfires had been built there in the past.

The fire threatened homes and other structures, but Brewer said firefighters managed to push the fire back into the wetlands west of the city.

Sue Bellagamba, Canyonlands regional director for The Nature Conservancy, said some interpretive signs in the Scott M. Matheson Wetlands Preserve were damaged. But she reported no damage to boardwalks and other visitor facilities. The 900-acre preserve is the largest intact wetlands on the Colorado River in Utah.

Blagojevich ends 7-day testimony at retrial

CHICAGO (AP) — Twice-elected Illinois Gov. Rod Blagojevich ended the most important campaign of his life Tuesday, stepping down from the witness stand at his corruption retrial after speaking to jurors for seven days.

In often long-winded answers, Blagojevich insisted that he never sought to sell or trade President Barack Obama's vacated U.S. Senate seat for a top job or campaign cash, or ever tried to shake down executives for contributions.

He argued that his talk captured on FBI wiretaps was merely brainstorming, and that he never took the schemes seriously or decided to carry them out. And though the judge barred such arguments, Blagojevich claimed he'd believed his conversations were legal and part of common political discourse.

Jurors at times seemed captivated by the former governor, who owed at least part of his success as a never-defeated politician to his gift of gab. They snapped to attention during a cross-examination that began with an explosive first question — "Mr. Blagojevich, you are a convicted liar, correct?" — then sagged in their seats as the questioning dragged on and the tone turned from tense to merely testy.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Reid Schar worked to use Blagojevich's own words on FBI wiretap recordings against him, a move Blagojevich angrily objected to Tuesday.

"With all respect Mr. Schar, you're twisting my words," he snapped.

As he stepped off the stand, a jaunty Blagojevich tried to shake hands with Schar, but the government attorney turned away. Judge James Zagel told jurors not to read anything into the rebuff, saying lawyers are instructed not to interact with witnesses.

Zagel said the defense plans to call two more witnesses Wednesday, when the government could be ready to deliver its closing arguments. The defense would then present its closing. Zagel said he expected jurors to begin deliberating as soon as Thursday.

Blagojevich left the courthouse Tuesday without speaking to reporters, though he did stop to shake hands with well-wishers outside. He hasn't spoken publicly since taking the stand.

The former governor's first trial last year ended with jurors deadlocked on all but one count. He was found guilty of lying to the FBI. He did not testify at that trial.

Terry Sullivan, a former state's attorney who helped prosecute serial killer John Wayne Gacy and sat through much of Blagojevich's testimony, said the former governor did much better than expected.

"I don't think he was

manhandled by the prosecution, although that might have been a strategy so that they didn't look like tyrants in front of the jury," he said.

Blagojevich's lawyer brought up several issues in their redirect to clear them up, and can now argue them to the jury at closing arguments, Sullivan said.

He said he was surprised the prosecution didn't question Blagojevich again after the redirect, but said that also may have been a strategy to avoid giving the former governor a chance to reiterate points and perhaps persuade a juror.

The name of Chicago's new mayor Rahm Emanuel also arose again Tuesday.

Zagel refused a request Tuesday by defense attorneys to let them play a Nov. 8, 2008, call between Blagojevich and to jurors, ruling it wasn't relevant to the case.

But later in the day, the defense filed a motion with the court that included a transcript of that call and publicly revealed its full contents for the first time.

Emanuel, a U.S. Representative at the time of the call, asks Blagojevich to appoint Emanuel's choice, then-state official Forest Claypool, as his successor in Congress as he leaves to become Obama's chief of staff.

Emanuel prefaces the conversation by saying he's seeking confirmation that such an appointment would be legal. Blagojevich says he would be "happy to appoint your guy" if he can do it. Emanuel says, "I will not forget this."

Had the judge granted the request, it would have been the first time Blagojevich jurors heard a recording of Emanuel, who left his job as Obama's chief of staff last year to run for mayor.

It’s time Idaho had a whistle-blower hotline

A couple of years ago, Idaho state Controller Donna Jones and Legislative Auditor Don Berg were ready to ask the Legislature for funds to set up a fraud hotline — a toll-free phone number where anyone who has information about the theft or waste of the taxpayers’ money could report it anonymously.

But the economy tanked, and the project went on the back burner.

Now, with the effects of the recession slowly waning, it’s time the Legislature resurrected the plan.

“The audit process is rarely the catalyst that identifies the fraud or the issue, although we’re trying to be more proactive and alert to that,” Berg told the Legislative Council last week.

Ten states have whistle-blower hotlines; four others allow reporting fraud online. Collectively, they’ve saved the taxpayers millions of dollars.

And there’s particular urgency in Idaho now. Molina Healthcare, the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare’s new Medicaid billing contractor, wasn’t up to the job when it took over last year and the state had to delay reimbursement of health care providers. As a stopgap measure, Health and Welfare sent out interim payments without processing the invoices.

So the agency is trying to work through those claims retroactively.

“There’s $120 million paid to Medicaid providers that they can’t identify the client or the service,” Berg said, according to the Spokesman-Review of Spokane, Wash.

That’s fertile ground for abuse.

Idaho ranks 18th in the nation in laws protecting whistle-blowers who are on the state payroll, according to Public Employees for Environmental Responsibility, a Washington, D.C.-based public interest group. A 2008 whistle-blower complaint by Idaho Tax Commission Auditor Stan Howland that commissioners were cutting sweetheart tax settlements with out-of-state companies led indirectly to the resignation of Commission Chairman Royce Chigbrow earlier this year.

What Idaho lacks, according to PEER, is a requirement that the state controller or other investigative entity look into specific whistle-blower complaints. The Legislature should consider changing that.

Idaho has a long tradition of public integrity. Lawmakers should do what they can to keep it that way.

IDAHO’S WHISTLE-BLOWER LAWS

According to Public Employees for Environmental Responsibility, Idaho’s whistle-blower statutes:

- Cover disclosure by state employees of violations of state and federal law, rules or regulations.
- Protect disclosure of waste of public funds or resources.
- Allow state employees to refuse to carry out illegal or improper orders.
- Prohibit “gag orders” to prevent employee disclosures.
- Protect disclosure by state employees of wrongdoing to any person or organization, including the media.
- Ban retaliation for filing a whistle-blower complaint.
- Permit a whistle-blower to sue for back pay and job reinstatement if he or she is fired in retaliation.
- Allow a whistle-blower to go to court and seek a injunction against personnel actions.

Uncertainty suffocates the economy

The economic recovery is 2 years old this month. Isn’t that reassuring? I didn’t think so. As recoveries go, this one is as blah as it gets. Judging by the most recent indicators, we may be headed for a double dip, or perhaps a period of flatlining that feels just as bad.

Job growth is sluggish, and unemployment is again on the rise. In the first three months of this year, the economy slowed substantially, from a 3.1 percent pace at the end of 2010 to a growth rate of only 1.8 percent.

Consumer spending is lackluster, thanks to stagnant wages and high fuel prices. Confidence remains low — and it took another hit last week: Americans learned that the value of their homes — for many, their largest investment — once again sagged.

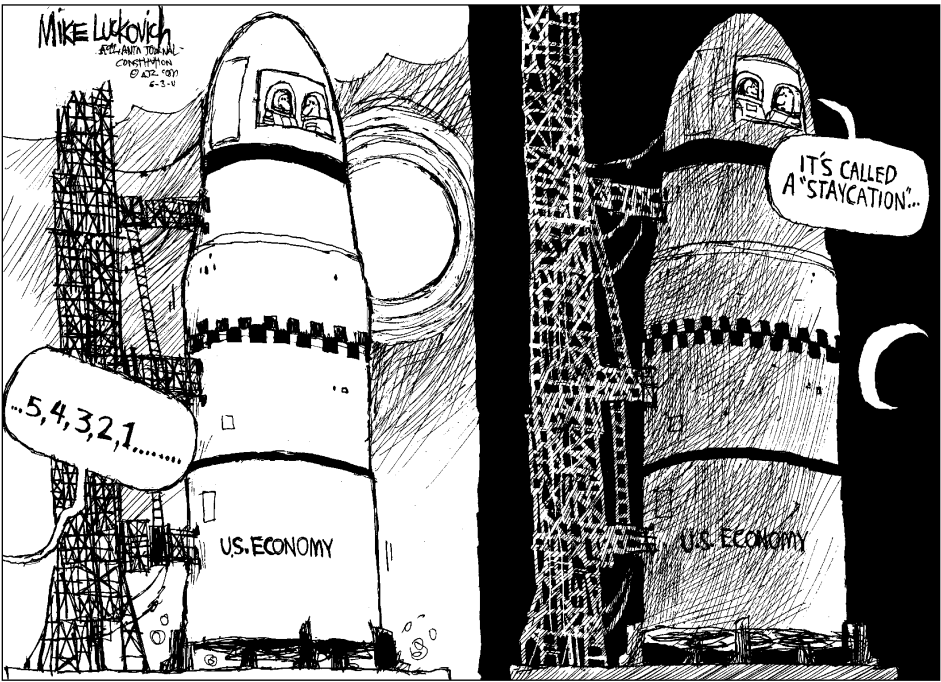

Why is this economy taking so long to get moving? I can point to two reasons. One, this recovery is getting no help from housing, which is typically the sector that perks up first as interest rates fall when the economy slows.

But the bigger factor is an extraordinarily high level of economic uncertainty, for which the Obama administration deserves the major share of blame.

The mood was captured in a recent column by Yale law professor Stephen Carter.

Carter recounted a conversation he had with a businessman who had mentioned that even though his firm was profitable, he wasn’t hiring. Carter asked why. The man’s reply: “Because I don’t know how much it will cost. How can I hire new workers today when I don’t know how much they will cost me tomorrow?”

Bull’s-eye. Much of American business is sitting on a cash

Thomas McClanahan

hoard. The biggest companies, those listed on the Standard & Poor’s 500 index, have amassed a pile close to $1 trillion. To some, this idle pile is cause for outrage — further evidence that corporate America is evil incarnate. In this view, companies are passing up opportunities to grow, profit and hire out of sheer spite.

Yet the level of economic uncertainty is higher than at any time I can remember. I don’t know any way to quantify this, but consider what businesses are facing right now.

There’s an ongoing battle over the deficit, a struggle that implies higher taxes if the Democrats win and something else — something still inchoate — if the Republicans prevail.

We won’t see a beginning of the end to the struggle over health care until we learn the results of next year’s election. If President Obama is defeated, the law, or major sections of it, will be repealed. But it’s impossible to know how any of this will come out.

More immediately, there’s the worry over pending regulation, which the businessman voiced to Stephen Carter. The health care law authorized a mountain of new rules, which have already begun to stream out of Washington. Ditto for rules mandated by the Dodd-Frank financial reform law, which has many banks wondering how much they will be able to loan.

A lot of this bank uneasiness is flowing down to business in the form of tight credit — a big reason so many companies are sitting on cash.

“They don’t know where their capital will come from,” said economist Chris Kuehl of Kansas City, Kan.-based Armada Corporate Intelligence. “In the past, they would assume that if they needed money they’d get in a line of credit. Now they’re very uncertain that will ever be the case again. Now they think they need to keep cash on hand. ... A lot of businesses have brought that cash to levels up with where they had a line of credit.”

That’s not the end of it. The cap-and-trade climate bill died in Congress, but the administration plans to accomplish many of the goals of that legislation through regulation — unless they’re somehow stopped by Congress.

When Obama came into office, he had a choice: Clear the decks and work on jobs and the economy, or stick with his original program of legislative bloat. He chose No. 2, and on present evidence, it was too much for American business to absorb so soon after a major credit crisis.

Business is caught like deer in the headlights, unsure how to respond.

The fall of the wild: closing historic parks

LEN ELLEN, Calif. — Dead at the age of 40, Jack London left behind more than 50 books produced by his fevered pen, a string of opinionated lovers and a Sonoma Valley ranch he described as heaven on earth.

For a few months, still, you can see the sunlit room where the author of Call of the Wild wrote his daily thousand words before noon, and walk under redwoods and wild oaks on his 1,400-acre Beauty Ranch, where he pioneered “sustainability” before anyone was pushing $20 plates of arugula with a such a claim.

It belongs to you and me — the ranch, the cottage, the pond, the stone scraps of an old winery — an inheritance that is now being dismantled. California created the state park idea with Yosemite in 1864, before it was a federal reserve; it is destroying it in 2011 with a plan to permanently close one-fourth of its parks.

Along with 69 other sites, Jack London State Historic Park will be shuttered, gates locked, and left to meth labs, garbage outlaws and assorted feral predators. Nearly 50 percent of all of California’s historic parks are on the closure list. This is not a scare tactic from the state. Parks go dark starting in September.

Even during the Great Depression, when this state had 30 million fewer people, California somehow found a way to keep its parks and heritage sites open.

The nuclear option is being executed to reach a budget cut of $22 million mandated by a failed state that is forcing lethal whacks for all, even with an improved budget forecast. That’s right, $22 million — one-fifth the price of a recent sale of a single private mansion in Los Altos. It’s a broken California, sadder by the day.

In the great scheme of things, a park and a place that shows off the guiding passion of the most popular novelist of his day are small potatoes, yes. Who needs history and open space when a child may go hungry or a bridge may collapse? But what is happening now, the death of American life by a thousand cuts, is the collateral damage of our frozen politics. We don’t have to commit suicide, as California is doing.

These parks already charge user fees to enter. They are popular: The places put on the executioner’s list draw nearly 6 million visitors a year. On the recent Sunday I strolled through Jack London’s ranch, the park was packed with picnickers, hikers, birders, history buffs, people “trying to get out of nature that something which we all need,” as London said.

And, you can argue, people had their chance to save the parks. Last year, Californians voted down a measure that would have slightly raised their auto license fees to add $500 million for the parks. A majority felt — not without good reason — that lawmakers who created an unsustainable pension system could not be trusted to keep their hands out of a park fund.

The still-life of this political insanity includes not just reckless big-spenders at the table, but mindless shortsighters who refuse to raise taxes under any circumstances. So, in Sacramento, minority Republicans will not allow the people to vote on basic tax extensions that could prevent more parks from closing.

The above is reason to hate contemporary politicians, who show all the creativity of Soviet-era dress designers. In the meantime, our heritage — in the natural world and in preservation of the stories and people who came before us — is being erased.

Jack London’s credo, as he told a reporter two weeks before his death of a kidney-related failure in 1916, is worth repeating here, as a courage nudge.

“I would rather my spark should burn out in a brilliant blaze than it should be stifled by dry-rot,” said London, who looked like a young Warren Beatty. “The function of man is to live, not to exist. I shall not waste my days trying to prolong them. I shall use my time!”

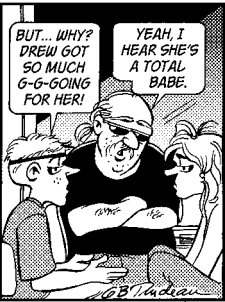

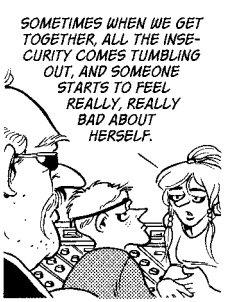

Dry-rot is what awaits London’s home, with its glassed sleeping porch where he took his last breath, with its views of the terraced hillside where he learned to till the ground in a place of limited water. A few miles below is a big old wooden water wheel, at a tourist spot called Jack London Village. It churns away, without explanation.

A few years from now, people will stumble upon the overgrown remains of London’s home and wonder, as I did looking at the water wheel: What was that all about?

Obama discounts fears of second recession

By Desmond Butler and Nancy Benac
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Barack Obama insisted Tuesday that the country is not at risk of slipping into a double-dip recession, but he conceded he does not know whether a sudden slowdown in job growth is a blip or an indication of a longer, more worrisome trend. The president said the nation is on a solid but uneven path to recovery and the key is to “not panic.”

“I am concerned about the fact that the recovery that we’re on is not producing jobs as quickly as I want it to happen,” Obama said at a joint news conference with visiting German Chancellor Angela Merkel. “Obviously we’re experiencing some headwinds.”

Obama spoke amid a wave of short-term negative economic news, including a sharp drop in the number of jobs added in America in May after employment growth had shown strong signs for three straight months.

Obama said the economy is rebounding well from a disastrous blow dating to 2008 even though millions still endure hard times. He promoted continuing steps already taken, like tax breaks for business investment, and his familiar longer term agenda of debt reduction and spending on education, infrastructure and energy research.

The economy is the overarching issue as Obama heads into a 2012 re-election campaign. A Washington Post-ABC News poll released Tuesday found that disapproval with how Obama is handling the economy has reached a new high.

Amalgamated hopes new venture sweetens sales

By Cindy Snyder
Times News correspondent

Amalgamated Sugar Co. hopes to position itself to take advantage of new marketing opportunities through a new joint venture with a France-based sugar trading company.

“We’re in the final stages of forming a joint venture marketing firm with Sucden Americas,” said Vic Jaro, president and CEO of Amalgamated.

The new firm called, National Sugar Marketing, will have exclusive rights to sell all the refined sugar marketed by Amalgamated and Sucden Americas Corp., a Miami-based wholly owned subsidiary of the Sucden group.

The Sucden group is a major player in Mexico and the six countries that make up the Central America Free Trade Agreement: Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua and the Dominican Republic.

Even though the U.S. restricts the volume of sugar imported annually, changes in trade agreements are allowing more foreign sugar to enter the U.S. market. Amalgamated hopes that joining forces with Sucden will allow the grower-owned cooperative to compete better in the changing marketplace.

Amalgamated’s bulk customers will benefit from the new marketing firm.

“Our customers will have better access to sugar from various sources,” Jaro said. “We will have a more far-reaching market, geographically.”

But Amalgamated should also see savings in terms of freight and unit marketing costs. Freight savings will be realized if Amalgamated is no longer shipping sugar across the country to a customer

Nintendo debuts Wii’s touchy new big brother, Wii U

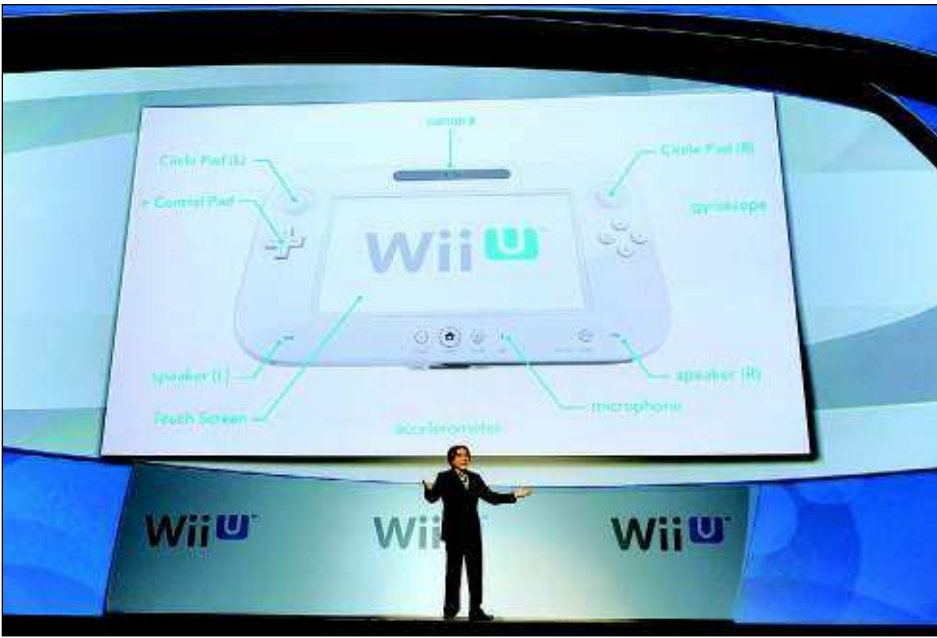

By Derrick J. Lang
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES— Nintendo has introduced the world to the Wii’s touchy new big brother: the Wii U.

The Japanese gaming giant on Tuesday unveiled the Wii video game console’s successor, which will broadcast high-definition video and feature a touchscreen controller that can detect motion and interact with what appears on a television display.

“Up until now, home console games had to occupy the TV screen in order to be played,” said Nintendo president Satoru Iwata. “The new controller for Wii U, with its 6.2-inch screen built in, means you won’t need to give up

BUSINESS IN BRIEF

Idaho’s gross state product rebounds in 2010

The value of all goods and services produced in Idaho rebounded in 2010 after posting its first decline in 2009. The statistic was first compiled in 1963.

The Gem State’s 3.3 percent gain in gross state product to a record $55.4 billion was the fourth best among the 11 Western states. Only Wyoming, Oregon and New Mexico posted higher percentage gains.

The Bureau of Economic Analysis significantly reduced Idaho’s gross state product estimates for 2009 by $344 million to less than $53.7 billion. Wages and salaries, which account for over half the gross state product, fell 3.4 percent during the recession, marking their first decline since 1963. Business profits were down 1.9 percent from 2008.

Manufacturing, the state’s second largest private sector GSP contributor, behind real estate, recovered from two years of decline to post a 7.1 percent gain in value in 2010. That offset a 5.3 percent decline in real estate, which like construction, continued to be plagued by the recession’s aftermath.

Sheppard Produce closes

Twin Falls-based produce distribution company, Sheppard Produce, closed its doors Monday.

The closure was confirmed by employee Jay Sheppard, although the owner couldn’t be reached for comment.

According the company’s website, www.sheppardproduce.com, the business was started 1987 with two pickup trucks and a delivery vehicle. Over the years, it grew to more than 50 employees and more than 20 refrigerated delivery trucks.

In 2004, the company moved to its current location at 520 Locust St. S., Twin Falls.

Sheppard Produce’s market area extended from American Falls to Boise. It supplied restaurants, grocery stores and other businesses.

PUC seeks input on energy conservation programs

Idaho Power Company has asked the Idaho Public Utilities Commission to determine that the nearly $43 million it spent on energy conservation were prudent expenses that benefit customers.

Such a determination by the IPUC does not affect customer rates at this time. The commission is accepting public comment on the application through June 26.

Idaho Power has 16 energy efficiency programs and three demand-response programs.

Most of the money that Idaho Power spends on such programs is raised from a 4.7 percent Energy Efficiency Rider on customer bills.

Each of the conservation programs must pass at least three tests, which must show that without the program’s energy savings, the utility would have had to generate or buy even more costly energy, resulting in even higher costs for customers. Programs that do not pass the cost-effectiveness tests are not included in rates.

A copy of Idaho Power’s 2010 Demand Side Management report is available on the commission’s website, www.puc.idaho.gov. The report details each of the programs used by Idaho Power. The report can be accessed by clicking on the electric icon and scrolling to Case No. IPC-E-11-05.

Comments are being accepted through June 26 via e-mail on the commission’s website. Click on “Comments & Questions About a Case” and fill in the above case number. Comments can also be mailed to P.O. Box 83720, Boise, ID 83720-0074 or faxed to (208) 334-3762.

Sugar

that is located more closely to a Sudden facility.

Even though Amalgamat-ed will keep its accounting and sales staff, those costs will be spread out across more bags of sugar, reducing the per unit marketing cost.

“Logistically this makes sense,” Jaro said.

Sugar trade policy dictates that the U.S. imports sugar from 41 countries, 38 of which are considered devel-oping nations. Sugar im-ports are set at the beginning of each marketing year, on October 1, and the quantity cannot be raised until April 1.

That gives domestic sugar beet and sugar cane produc-ers and processors time to market the previous crop before sugar is imported.

Each beet and cane proces-sor is allocated a certain amount of production. If production falls below that amount, the “surplus” can be reallocated to foreign suppliers after April 1.

Mexico gained unlimited access to the U.S. sugar mar-ket when the North America Free Trade Agreement was fully implemented in 2008. The U.S. Department of Agriculture’s latest sugar balance sheet projected im-ports from Mexico will total 1.5 million short tons, raw value, for the marketing year that ends September 30. That’s nearly double the im-ports from 2009-10. Strong sugar prices have provided an incentive for Mexico to ship sugar to the U.S. and import high fructose corn syrup from the U.S. to meet domestic demand. Projec-tions for the 2011-12 market-ing put Mexican imports at 980 million short tons CAFTA, which was implemen-tered in 2009, allows for an additional 119,000 metric tons of sugar imports above the 311,000 metric tons al-lowed under World Trade Organization rules.

Local growers won’t see much impact from the new marketing firm as the com-pany plans to grow beets and process sugar as it has been doing. White Satin, Amalga-mated’s branded retail sugar products, will remain on store shelves. “Consumers won’t see a difference at all,” he said.

Bill Smith, vice president of marketing at Amalgamat-ed, will become president and CEO of the new market-ing firm. Smith has over 35 years of experience in the U.S. sugar industry.

Amalgamated is the sec-ond largest beet sugar processor in the U.S. with 900,000 tons annually. The Sudden group is a Paris, France-based sugar trading company with a worldwide presence of 8 to 10 million tons annually.

The deal will make Na-tional Sugar one of the top five sugar marketers in the country.

YESTERDAY ON WALL STREET

Stock indexes closed lower Tuesday, giving up earlier gains, after Federal Reserve Chairman Ben Bernanke said the eco-nomic recovery remains uneven. Bernanke offered no new steps to stimu-late growth.

The Dow Jones industrial average lost 19.15 points, or 0.2 percent, to close at 12,070.81. The Standard and Poor’s 500 dipped 1.23, or 0.1 percent, to 1,284.94. The Nasdaq composite shed 1, or less than 0.1 percent, to 2,701.56.

Rising shares narrowly outnumbered falling ones on the New York Stock Exchange. Volume was 3.6 billion shares.

Pawlenty's plan rooted in bullish growth

CHICAGO (AP) — Republican presidential candidate Tim Pawlenty pitched an economic plan Tuesday that includes deep cuts in personal and business taxes to spur the struggling U.S. economy but would add to deficits in the short term in the hope that badly needed jobs would follow.

The former Minnesota governor's plan aims for a bullish 5 percent annual growth that would balance the federal budget while forgoing trillions of dollars in tax revenue. Pawlenty's pitch assumes the benefits of his plan would kick in and eventually make up for its initial costs.

His own team acknowledged the assumptions were aggressive. One critic called it "patently ridiculous."

Pawlenty

"Growing at 5 percent a year rather than the current level of 1.8 percent would net us millions of new jobs, trillions of dollars in new wealth, put us on a path to saving our entitlement programs," Pawlenty said in his first detailed speech on economic policy since he formally declared his White House ambitions a little over two weeks ago.

The economy averaged 4.9 percent growth between 1983 and 1987, and grew at a 4.7 percent rate between 1996 and 1999. A sustained annual growth of 5 percent for a decade would be unprecedented in modern times.

"It's patently ridiculous," said Michael Ettlinger of the liberal Center for American Progress. "It's not worth serious discussion. ... No one serious thinks that's possible."

The Washington-based think tank projected Pawlenty's tax plan would cost $7.8 billion over a decade.

Pawlenty said his plan would translate to $3.8 trillion in new tax revenue that would reduce the deficit by 40 percent.

Pawlenty's plan also would simplify individual tax rates to just three options and cut taxes on business by more than half. His cuts go further than House Republicans' recent proposal, which the Tax

3-TIER PLAN

Tim Pawlenty proposes a three-tier income tax system:

- The estimated 45 percent of U.S. households that did not pay income taxes in 2010 would see no change in their tax rates.
- Individuals would pay 10 percent tax on the first $50,000 of income. Couples earning $100,000 would also pay that rate.
- "Everything above that would be taxed at 25 percent," Pawlenty said.

Policy Center said would cost about $2.9 trillion over the next decade.

Obama adviser David Axelrod said he had not reviewed the details but said Pawlenty seems to be proposing new tax cuts for rich people and collectively would produce huge new deficits.

"He wants to replay the same formula that got us into the jam in the first place, and I don't think the American people want to go back to that," Axelrod said.

Pawlenty didn't back down even though Democrats say the previous two rounds of tax cuts added trillions of dollars to the deficit.

"You've got to look at it in isolation," Pawlenty told reporters after his speech at the University of Chicago.

"Did the tax cuts have a positive effect under Kennedy, Reagan, Bush the second? The answer is yes."

WASHINGTON, D.C.
Weiner draws no defense from Dems

WASHINGTON — Fellow Democrats pointedly refused to defend Rep. Anthony Weiner on Tuesday, telegraphing an unmistakable eagerness for him to resign after he admitted sending a lewd photo of himself to a woman via Twitter and lying about it.

Republicans swiftly sought political profit from the New York Democrat's predicament, which threatened to deepen when conservative blogger Andrew Breitbart said he had a sexually explicit photo of the 46-year-old congressman.

His political career in jeopardy, Weiner had no public appearances. His spokesman did not respond to repeated requests for comment.

Accident displays dangers of 'bounce houses'

OCEANSIDE, N.Y. (AP) — They look like harmless fun — fluffy castles, ships and slides filled with children carelessly bouncing around, their parents letting their guard down a bit during playtime.

But an accident that sent three of the huge toys aloft on a breezy afternoon on New York's Long Island, seriously injured a woman and hurt 12 other people is drawing attention to the little-known hazards of the inflatable playthings sometimes called "bounce houses" and the inconsistent regulations covering them.

"I never thought there would be any serious issues, any concerns with safety," said Mike Perniches, a father who ran to the rescue of the injured after Saturday's accident. "But now, I'm like, forget it."

Participants in an Oceanside, N.Y., soccer tournament run from an airborne inflatable 'bounce house' after high winds sent it flying injuring 13 people, one critically Saturday.

At least 10 inflatables around the country have been toppled by winds or collapsed under too much weight in the past two months, injuring more than 40 people, according to RideAccidents.com, a website that tracks amusement ride accidents.

It's not the toys themselves that are the problem, it's the way they are set up and supervised, said Jim Barber, a spokesman for the National Association of Amusement Ride Safety Officials, based in Brandon, Fla.

"I wish this was a rarity, but it's not. It happens all the time," Barber said. "These are probably the most dangerous amusement devices they have."

A few states, such as New Jersey, make sure operators are trained on all inflatables, while others require operators only to have insurance. Most have no guidelines.

"It's actually crazy," said Matthew Mark, who owns a party rental company near Detroit and seven years ago founded the Safe Inflatable Operators Training Organization. "They're not quite carnival rides, but they should be regulated almost like them."

Saturday's accident during a youth soccer tournament in Oceanside came when a rogue gust on a clear but breezy day blew three inflatables off the ground, including a two-story slide, in-

RECENT INFLATABLE INCIDENTS

The injured, killed or merely frightened in recent years include:

- An 11-year-old boy who suffered bruises after a gust of wind tossed a slide about 70 yards at a church festival near Cincinnati.
- A Pennsylvania man who was killed in June 2010 after an inflatable slide collapsed and pinned him at a Cleveland Indians game.
- A 5-year-old boy who was killed in March 2010 when he fell off an inflatable and landed on a concrete floor in Wichita, Kan.
- A 5-year-old girl who had to be rescued after winds blew a bounce house into a pond during a birthday party in January 2010.
- Four children in Arizona this year in the Tucson area, including two sisters when a bounce house blew onto a roof. A boy and girl were blown in a bounce house across three lanes of traffic in April.
- Several children injured in late April when two slides collapsed at separate events in California.

and parents on the other side trying to find their children. There were a few tense moments."

Thirteen people ended up at the hospital, including children, most with bumps and bruises. But Cathleen Hughes, 36, of Oceanside, suffered head and spinal injuries when the slide landed on her, according to Newsday.

"She was walking on the track and it hit her," Perniches told The Associated Press. "She was lying still on the ground; there was blood coming out of her mouth."

Nassau County District Attorney Kathleen Rice said her office would investigate. It wasn't immediately clear how strictly inflatables are regulated in New York.

The devices were secured properly, and each had an operator, Gina Michielini, the owner of Affordable Inflatables and Party Rentals, which supplied the inflatables.

The company has been in business for 10 years, and operators have shut them down in bad weather before, Michielini said.

Barber, of the National Association of Amusement Ride Safety Officials, noted that the rides don't just float away "if they're properly installed" with stakes securely fixed in the ground.

A Consumer Product Safety Commission report released in 2005 linked the growing popularity of inflatables with an increasing number of injuries at emergency rooms from 1997 to 2004. The agency identified an estimated 1,300 injuries in 1997 and 4,900 in 2004, the most recent data available.

EPA to ban some rodent poisons

WASHINGTON — The government is moving to ban the sale of some popular rat and mouse poisons such as D-Con and Hot Shot in an effort to protect children and pets.

The Environmental Protection Agency said Tuesday it is taking the step to reduce the thousands of accidental exposures of children that occur every year from rodent-control products.

"Today's action will help keep our children and pets safe from these poisons," Steve Owens, assistant administrator for EPA's Office of Chemical Safety and Pollution Prevention, said in a statement.

LOUISIANA
Agent, 2 fraud investigators killed

VILLE PLATTE, La. — Two unarmed Louisiana insurance fraud investigators were fatally shot Tuesday while trying to collect information from an agent who later killed himself, authorities said.

John Melvin Lavergne, who had been cited more than once on fraud allegations, barricaded himself inside the agency where the shooting happened. More than 100 officers, including a SWAT team and negotiators, surrounded the building for hours.

Early Hitler letter on Jews unveiled in New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The signature under the typewritten words on yellowing sheets of nearly century-old paper is unmistakable: Adolf Hitler, with the last few scribbled letters drooping downward.

The date is 1919 and, decades before the Holocaust, the 30-year-old German soldier — born in Austria — penned what are believed to be Hitler's first written comments calling for the annihilation of Jews.

Written on a German army typewriter, Hitler's letter has long been known to scholars. It is considered significant because it demonstrates how early he was forming his anti-Semitic views.

The document was displayed Tuesday by the founder of a Jewish human rights organization that purchased what he says is the original letter last month.

Hitler "set the gold standard about man's inhumanity to man," said Rabbi Marvin Hier of the Simon Wiesenthal Center, named after the late Nazi hunter.

Three weeks ago, the Los Angeles-based organization purchased the original for $150,000 from Profiles in History, a dealer in Calabasas Hills, Calif., which acquired the document from a dealer in Kansas, who in turn purchased it from a U.S.

Army soldier named William F. Ziegler, according to the rabbi.

Ziegler is said to have found the four typed pages in a Nazi archive near Nuremberg, Germany, in the final months of World War II.

GREGG MIDDLEKAUFF'S QUOTE OF THE DAY
There are two ways to live your life. One is as though nothing is a miracle. The other is as though everything is a miracle.

NATO unleashes blistering airstrikes

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — Moammar Gadhafi on Tuesday stood defiantly in the face of the heaviest and most punishing NATO airstrikes yet — at least 40 thunderous daylight attacks that sent plumes of smoke billowing above the Libyan leader's central Tripoli compound.

In late afternoon and as the strikes continued, Libyan state television broadcast an audio address from Gadhafi, who denounced NATO and the rebels challenging his rule. He vowed never to surrender.

"We will not kneel!" he shouted.

Alliance officials warned for days that they were increasing the scope and intensity of their air campaign to oust Gadhafi after more than 40 years in power. NATO is backing the rebel insurgency, which has seized swaths of eastern Libya and pockets in the regime's stronghold in the west since it began in February, inspired by uprisings elsewhere in the Arab world.

Some 6,850 people, nearly all of them Libyans, have streamed across the border from Libya to Tunisia since Monday to flee the NATO raids as well as fighting between the rebels and government forces, according to the Tunisian Defense Ministry.

It couldn't be confirmed whether Gadhafi's 10-minute speech was a live phone call or a recording, but it appeared to take state television by surprise. The sound was hastily adjusted to make it louder.

"We will not surrender:

A Libyan boy salutes as he and others rally next to Moammar Gadhafi's Bab al-Aziziya compound, a regular target of NATO airstrikes, in Tripoli, Libya, on Tuesday.

GADHAFI DAUGHTER SUES

PARIS (AP) — Lawyers for Moammar Gadhafi's daughter filed suits Tuesday in Paris and Brussels, claiming war crimes by NATO and the alleged assassination in late April of four of the Libyan leader's relatives.

Attorneys for Aisha al-Gadhafi say the complaints do not name a specific defendant, but center on the recent bombing raids in Libya by the Brussels-based military alliance and France's role in them.

State prosecutors said officials are assessing whether the case can be admitted, a process that could take weeks.

We only have one choice — to the end! Death, victory, it does not matter, we are not surrendering!" Gadhafi said.

As he spoke, reporters in Tripoli heard the whooshing sound of low-flying military craft again, followed by several explosions. Pro-Gadhafi loyalists also fired celebratory gunshots in the air.

The Libyan leader also later appeared on state television sitting with tribal elders, said government spokesman Moussa Ibrahim. "He is still resilient," Ibrahim said, adding that Gadhafi believes NATO strikes are "not about civilians, democracy or peace in Libya. The attacks are about domination, revenge and wealth."

Gadhafi was last seen in a brief appearance on state television in late May. He has mostly been in hiding since NATO strikes in April targeted one of his homes.

Libyan officials said one of his sons, Saif al-Arab, and three of his grandchildren were killed in that strike.

The sharp escalation in NATO strikes comes as the U.S. and its allies step up efforts to break the virtual stalemate that has prevented both sides from achieving an outright victory.

"So what you're seeing across the country is an inexorable trend of the regime forces being pushed back, being incapacitated. You're seeing defections, oftentimes of some very high-profile members of the Qaddafi government, as well as the military. And I think it is just a matter of time before Qaddafi goes," President Barack Obama said during a joint news conference in Washington with visiting German Chancellor Angela Merkel.

Cattle exports to Indonesia halted
SYDNEY — Australia late Tuesday suspended its $350 million a year live cattle trade with Indonesia after gruesome televised images exposed slaughterhouse practices there.

The ban will last until proper treatment of the animals has been assured, said Agriculture Minister Joe Ludwig, who signed the trade ban on Wednesday. The government had temporarily suspended exports to 11 slaughterhouses after the footage aired nationally last week.

"I want to work with both the industry and the Indonesian government through my department to ensure that we can do this as quickly as possible," he told Australian Broadcasting Corp. radio. "The suspension is there for up to six months to allow time for this to occur."

YEMEN
U.S. officials: Saleh has severe injuries
SAN'A — President Ali Abdullah Saleh was burned over 40 percent of his body and suffered bleeding in the brain from last weekend's attack on his palace, U.S. officials said Tuesday, indicating his wounds were worse than initially reported. The revelation casts doubts on a quick return to Yemen and spells a deepening power vacuum.

In the wake of Saleh's evacuation to Saudi Arabia for treatment, Yemen's violence escalated, with government troops battling Islamic militants and opposition tribesmen in two southern cities on Tuesday. The military said it killed 30 militants who were among a group that took over the city of Zinjibar last week

BAIKONUR — A Russian Soyuz craft lit up the starry skies of the southern Kazakh steppe early Wednesday as it blasted off to carry a three-man crew for a mission to the International Space Station that will take in the U.S. shuttle's farewell voyage.

Russian cosmonaut Sergei Volkov, NASA's Michael Fossum, and Satoshi Furukawa of Japan's JAXA space agency will spend almost two days squeezed into the cramped Soyuz capsule before docking with the space station, where they will remain until mid-November.

MEXICO
429 bodies found in 2 northern states
MEXICO CITY — Mexico's government said police have unearthed 429 bodies since April from a series of clandestine graves in the northern states of Durango and Tamaulipas. Both states are wracked by drug violence.

Federal Attorney General Marisela Morales said police have found 236 bodies in Durango's state capital. She said many could be victims of a battle for power within the Sinaloa drug cartel.

Morales said 193 more corpses have been found in the town of San Fernando in Tamaulipas state. Officials say most of those were Mexican migrants heading to the United States who were kidnapped off buses and killed by the Zetas drug cartel.

Syrian mutiny, loss of town show cracks in regime

BEIRUT (AP) — A deadly mutiny of Syrian soldiers and loss of control over a tense northern town appeared to show extraordinary cracks in an autocratic regime that has long prided itself on its iron control.

Details about the events in Jisr al-Shughour remained murky on Tuesday. The government said 120 troops were dead, without explaining the enormous loss of life, and acknowledged losing "intermittent" control of the area.

But the reports Tuesday from residents and activists — and the television appearance of a soldier who says he switched sides after his hometown was bombarded — were the clearest sign yet that the weekly protests of thousands of Syrians are eroding President Bashar Assad's grip.

The foreign minister of France, Syria's former colonial ruler with whom Assad maintained good relations, said the president had lost his legitimacy to rule. British foreign secretary William Hague said Assad must "reform or step aside."

Unlike the early days of the rebellion in Libya, Assad has managed to keep his government together. On Tuesday, the network France 24 aired audio it said was of the Syrian ambassador to France issuing a stinging resignation; less than an hour later Syrian state television broadcast different audio of a woman's voice denying she had quit and threatening to sue the French network.

It was not possible to reconcile the two accounts or contact Ambassador Lamia Shakkour.

Activists and residents of Jisr al-Shughour told The Associated Press that a number of soldiers joined forces with protesters after days of crackdowns in the region, leading to fighting with officers and security guards in which dozens were killed.

The Jisr al-Shughour resident said people were fleeing the area for the Turkish border about 12 miles away, fearing retaliation from a regime known for ruthlessly crushing dissent. The government vowed Monday to respond "decisively" to the violence there.

There's no need to settle for boring white bread anymore. Whether you're craving cheesy, savory bread, sharp sourdough or sweet quick bread, Idaho farmers market vendors offer up a huge variety of freshly baked loaves. More than ever, farmers markets offer food beyond the freshest produce from the garden. Among the grass-fed beef, goat cheese and jellies, you can now find banana bread, rye baking and even gluten-free rolls. Want a taste? Selections vary week to week and market by market, but here is a sampling of what you might find in the vendors' stalls:

D & L Produce owners Don and Linda Friel offer whole-wheat bread and pepper cheese bread. The small loaves of pepper cheese, which sell for $2.50, are especially popular, the Friels said. Keep an eye out for French bread, which the couple is considering offering. As the season progresses, they will sell produce, too. Find them at the Twin Falls Farmers Market on Saturday mornings, at the Gooding Farmers Market on Tuesday afternoons and at Buhl's West End Senior Center Wednesday Farmers Market.

said. She plans to offer gluten-free bread by order only — the flours are expensive, she said, and she wants to avoid waste. Norwood sells her bread, cookies, macaroons and produce at the Twin Falls Farmers Market.

Mirila Norwood offers $2 loaves of French bread and scones for $1.25. She rotates through a variety of fruits to flavor her scones. "I try to make something different every week," she pay $4.25 for a large loaf of white and $3.50 for a large loaf of lemon-poppy-zucchini. And expect the lineup to change: "I'll do other things through the year," Lawrence said. Among her other wares: doughnut holes on sticks. Find her at the Twin Falls Farmers Market.

Blue Moon Garden sells "diabetic banana bread." The baker, Karma Koch, said she isn't sure what makes this bread specifically good for people with diabetes — "I just got the recipe from the Diabetes Life Center," Koch said, citing a diabetes-friendly baked goods available. The bread is $3 for a small loaf and $4 for a large at the Twin Falls Farmers Market.

Candy Cravings offers small loaves of Aloha bread, with banana, pineapple, coconut and pecans. Baker Nora Paoli got the recipe from her sister, and said slices are delicious toasted. Paoli and her friends specialize in candy and chocolate-covered strawberries, but the bread is also popular, Paoli said. Buy it for $4 at the Friday Night Market in Twin Falls.

Cooking class: Italy's Piedmont

Times-News

Cucina Gemelli chef-owner Lynn Sheehan will take students on a culinary tour of Italy, starting with her "Italian Cooking — Piedmont" class next week. It's set for 7-9 p.m. June 16 at Rudy's — A Cook's Paradise, 147 Main Ave. W. in Twin Falls. Cost is $40.

The class menu: Bagna Cauda (garlic dip for fresh vegetables), Torta di Polenta

Sample creativity in a cone at Rotary's ice cream fundraiser

By Emily Katseanes
Times-News correspondent

If you could create your own ice cream flavor, what would it be: peaches and marshmallows? Strawberry and peanut butter? Chocolate and bubblegum?

Fourteen Magic Valley businesses are answering that question in a very delicious way. From banks to private schools, the businesses each have dreamed up an ice cream flavor that Buhl's Cloverleaf Creamery will churn into a reality for a Twin Falls Rotary Club fundraiser June 18.

Each creation competes for the catchiest name and the most mouth-watering flavor, with the yummiest entry winning a spot as Cloverleaf's July flavor of the month. And every person who's spent a lifetime envying the Baskin-Robbins taste testers will be glad to know: The judges in the ice cream eat-a-thon will be the public at June's Art in the Park.

The ice cream fundraiser will benefit various local charities, as well as Rotary International's efforts to end polio.

Jill Skeem, Rotary's committee chairwoman, said she put on a similar fundraiser in Massachusetts before bringing the sugarfest to Twin Falls. Skeem, along with Cloverleaf's Bill Stoltzfus, is keeping the flavors under wraps, so the June 18 event will be the big unveiling for hungry voters and curious competitors. But so far, Skeem said, she's seeing something for every sweet tooth.

Healthy ice cream, ingredients you can pronounce

By Jim Romanoff
For The Associated Press

The term low-fat ice cream is somewhat of an oxymoron. After all, it's in large part the butterfat in cream and whole milk that gives the frozen treat its luxurious texture and taste.

Apart from the real deal — made using a custard of cream, egg yolks and lots of sugar — there are plenty of scoopable frozen treats available that have a more virtuous nutritional profile along with a pleasing texture, but it's often because they are made with thickeners and stabilizers whose names defy pronunciation.

But the arrival of small ice cream makers that fit in your freezer means making a healthier frozen dessert with wholesome ingredients has gotten a lot easier.

This brown sugar and toasted almond ice cream contains no cream, but is plenty creamy.

For the custard we've used low-fat milk, a bit of unflavored gelatin for stability and nonfat evaporated milk, which has the intense dairy taste that you might otherwise only get from cream or whole milk. You wouldn't want to drink this stuff on its own, but in the blend of an ice cream it adds just the right flavor.

We've kept egg yolks in our recipe (though not as many as in a full-fat ice cream) because of their unsurpassed ability to produce a smooth texture.

This simple custard can be used as the base for almost any flavor you like. Here, we've sweetened it with melon-tasting brown sugar plus a dash of amaretto. But if you like, you can use regular table sugar along with a puree of your favorite fruit, or even a chocolate malt powder.

For a blend-in, we've added toasted almonds at the end so they don't get too pulverized while the ice cream is mixing. If you like, you can add a handful of bittersweet chocolate chips, as well.

BROWN SUGAR & TOASTED ALMOND ICE CREAM

Start to finish: 2 hours 45 minutes (15 minutes active). Servings: 8.

1 1/2 teaspoons unflavored gelatin
2 1/2 cups low-fat milk, divided
3/4 cup packed dark brown sugar
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
3 large egg yolks
12-ounce can nonfat

evaporated milk
1 tablespoon amaretto liqueur or rum
1/2 cup chopped almonds

In a small bowl, sprinkle gelatin over 1 tablespoon of water. Let stand while you make the base for the ice cream.

In a large saucepan, stir together 1 1/2 cups of the milk, the brown sugar and cinnamon. Heat the milk mixture over medium heat, stirring often, until steaming.

In a medium bowl, whisk together the egg yolks and evaporated milk. Gradually pour in the hot milk mixture, whisking until blended. Return the mixture to the pan and cook over medium heat, stirring with a wooden spoon, until the back of the spoon is lightly coated, 3 to 5 minutes. It should reach 165 degrees. Do not bring to a boil or the custard will curdle.

Strain the custard through a fine-mesh sieve into a large bowl (preferably stainless steel). Add the softened gelatin and whisk until melted. Whisk in the remaining 1 cup milk and the amaretto (or rum). Cover and refrigerate until chilled, at least 2 hours, or overnight.

In a small dry skillet over medium-low heat, toast the almonds, stirring constantly, until fragrant and lightly browned, 2 to 4 minutes. Set aside to cool completely.

Once cool, whisk the ice cream mixture and pour into the canister of an ice cream maker. Freeze according to manufacturer's directions. Transfer the ice cream to a container, stir in the toasted almonds, cover with plastic wrap gently pressed into the surface and freeze until firm.

Great ice cream demands great — and edible — bowls

By Alison Ladman
For The Associated Press

Edible ice cream bowls are a terrific way to show off homemade ice cream. They also are a great way to take your ice cream sundae bar to the next level.

Because these bowls are made from a sweet, crisp shell, you could use them for other desserts, as well. They'd be terrific filled with a fruit salad or pudding and berries. They will soften as they sit with a liquid in them, so they should be filled just before serving. They'll keep for a week in an airtight container at room temperature.

This recipe calls for two specialty kitchen items — a silicone baking mat and an offset spatula. Both are inexpensive and widely available at kitchen shops. The former is a nonstick liner for baking sheets. You could use parchment paper as an alternative. The latter is a long, thin spatula set at an angle from the handle. Used mostly when baking and decorating cakes, this tool makes it easy to get under and move baked goods. With care, a thin metal spatula can be used instead.

EDIBLE LACE ICE CREAM BOWLS

Start to finish: 1 hour. Makes 15 bowls.

1 1/4 cups sugar
3/4 cup all-purpose flour
1/2 cup (1 stick) unsalted butter, melted
1/3 cup water
1 tablespoon vanilla extract

Heat the oven to 350 degrees. Line a baking sheet with a silicone baking mat. Have ready a small offset spatula and several small overturned glasses.

In a large bowl, use an electric mixer with the whisk attachment to mix the sugar and flour. Drizzle in the butter and mix to fully incorporate. Slowly add the water and the vanilla while continuing to mix.

Scoop a tablespoon of batter onto the prepared baking sheet and spread into a 4- to 5-inch circle. Leaving plenty of space between them, repeat with 2 more spoons of batter. Bake for 10 minutes, or until golden all over. Let the baking sheet sit on the counter for 1 minute, then carefully peel each round off the baking mat by sliding the offset spatula underneath. If the cookie sticks to the spatula wait another 30 seconds. Drape each round over an overturned glass, gently pressing the sides down to form a bowl shape. Let cool until firm.

Repeat in batches with the remaining batter. Once cooled, the bowls can be stored in airtight container for up to a week.

Per bowl: 119 calories; 55 calories from fat (46 percent of total calories); 6 g fat (4 g saturated; 0 g trans fats); 16 mg cholesterol; 17 g carbohydrate; 1 g protein; 0 g fiber; 1 mg sodium.

"You'd think they'd be all alike, but they're not," she said. "I don't think any flavor sounds bad right now."

Businesses received a list of about 15 base flavors, from the classic vanilla to the creative lemon custard, and a list of ingredients ranging from fruit to candy and caramel swirls. Stoltzfus said taking advantage of that list is the best edge a team can have.

"The base ingredients will all be the same, so it comes down to the combination," he said.

Having a handle on ingredient juggling isn't a surefire shot to winning tasters' votes at the fundraiser, however. Stoltzfus said that even as part of a team behind about 30 flavors at Cloverleaf, he finds predicting a winner is next to impossible because everybody has such different tastes.

"You may think it tastes terrible, but most everybody else loves it," he said. "We do bubblegum ice cream that's extremely popular. My own personal opinion is if I'm going to have some ice cream, it's not going to have bubblegum."

Zach Kelsey and other employees at competitor D.L. Evans Bank have a candy bar strategy. After starting with bank-themed ice cream names, the employees then voted on flavors that revolved around one ingredient.

"Snickers was kind of our base ingredient," Kelsey said. "It was a lot of candy bars, a lot of Snickers."

Competition in this cold-treat contest is heating up. Though Kelsey hinted at one ingredient, Dan Olmstead kept the lid on tight. The Idaho Power representative revealed a name but said that nothing else about the entry would get out before the competition date. Kilowatt Krunch will remain a mystery until samplers eat it June 18.

"No, the quote from Dan Olmstead is no," said the self-described ice cream connoisseur.

Olmstead isn't the only one looking forward to eating the entries. Kelsey plans to bring connoisseurs ages 7 and 4 to the table.

"It should be fun. My girls are really, really excited," he said. "They love it. I'll take them down there and let them go crazy."

Pomegranate provides a pretty glaze for beets

By Stephanie Witt Sedgwick
Special to The Washington Post

The tart, slightly sweet flavor of pomegranate is hot right now. Once available only at ethnic markets, pomegranate juice, pomegranate soda and even pomegranate yogurt have become easy to find.

Here, I'm using pomegranate to create a glaze for beets. This is particularly pretty prepared with golden beets, because their color offers a contrast with the ruby red glaze. If you can't find them, purple (red) beets are a fine choice.

I like to use baby beets because of their nice shapes when cut into halves or quarters, but larger beets can be substituted. The size of the baby beets will vary even in the same bunch, so you'll have to be flexible with the cooking time.

The beets can be cooked, peeled and refrigerated a day in advance.

MARK GALL/The Washington Post

fold in the sides to create a packet with a tight seal. Place on the baking sheet; bake for 45 to 90 minutes, until the beets are tender when poked with a small knife or skewer. The cooking time will vary according to the size of the beets. Open the packets carefully (avoiding the rush of steam) to allow the beets to cool.

When they are cool enough to handle, don the gloves. Cut off the stem and root ends; peel off and discard the skins. Cut smaller beets in half and larger ones into quarters.

Melt the butter in a large, shallow pan over medium heat. Add the beets, pomegranate juice and sugar; season with salt to taste. Increase the heat to medium-high so the juice maintains a steady boil. Cook for 8 to 11 minutes, stirring occasionally, until the juice reduces to a syrupy glaze that can coat the back of a spoon.

Taste, and add sugar and/or salt as desired. Serve warm.

Grilling the flavor right into your salad

By Jim Romanoff
For The Associated Press

If you want to add great flavor to foods without using the usual tricks — fat and salt — just head to the grill.

The high and dry heat created by the grill does an excellent job at searing food surfaces and locking in natural flavors, while also adding that unmistakable charred, smoky flavor. And this all comes at no cost in terms of fat and calories.

Typically, we think of the grill as the way to cook the main course — the burgers, some chicken, or a steak. But you also can take advantage of this healthy cooking technique to make other parts of the meal, including the sides, breads, even fruits for dessert.

This composed salad of steak and spring vegetables uses the grill to cook and flavor the meat, as well as many of the other components of the dish.

GRILLED STEAK AND SPRING VEGETABLE SALAD

Start to finish: 25 minutes. Servings: 5.

For the dressing:
5 tablespoons lemon juice
1/4 cup extra-virgin olive oil
3 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
1/4 teaspoon salt
Ground black pepper, to taste

For the salad:
1 pound sirloin steak, 1- to 1 1/4-inches thick, trimmed of fat
1/2 teaspoon salt
Ground black pepper, to taste
1 pound asparagus, bottoms trimmed
14-ounce can artichoke hearts, drained
1 cup cherry or grape tomatoes, halved
4 cups arugula
Shaved Parmesan cheese,

to garnish (optional)

Heat a gas grill to high or light a charcoal fire.

To make the dressing, in a blender combine the lemon juice, olive oil, Parmesan cheese, salt and pepper. Blend until emulsified. Set aside.

Season the steak on both sides with the salt and pepper. Grill the steak, about 5 minutes per side for medium rare, 6 minutes per side for medium. Remove and let rest on a cutting board for 5 minutes.

Meanwhile, grill the asparagus and artichoke hearts, turning occasionally, until slightly charred and the asparagus spears are tender-crisp, about 5 minutes. Remove from the grill and cut the asparagus into 2-inch pieces and the artichoke hearts in half. Place the vegetables in a large bowl with the cherry tomatoes.

Thinly slice the steak across the grain and add to the bowl with the asparagus and artichoke hearts. Toss with half of the dressing.

In a large salad bowl, toss the arugula with the remaining dressing. To compose the salad, place some of the arugula on each serving plate and arrange the grilled steak and vegetables on top. Garnish with shaved Parmesan cheese, if desired.

Bones add moisture to chicken parts

By Susan M. Selasky
Detroit Free Press

What's a good way to cook bone-in chicken breasts? How long should they cook?

Cooking bone-in chicken breasts is easy, and they generally turn out to be more flavorful, tender and moist than the boneless variety. They do take a little more time.

Cooking time depends on the size of the breast. Most half-breasts are around 12 ounces, including the ribs.

Cook bone-in breasts the way you cook boneless ones, by baking, roasting or grilling.

Beforehand, you can brine, marinate or season

the chicken with a rub. I like to brine the breasts in a mixture of 1/2 cup kosher salt and 1/2 cup sugar dissolved in about a gallon of water. Refrigerate in the brine about 4 hours, then remove the chicken from the brine and rinse well under cold water. Pat dry, place on a platter and return to the refrigerator for about an hour to allow the skin to dry.

Pan frying and then roasting chicken breasts is a great way to get the skin irresistibly crispy.

Heat 2 teaspoons butter and 2 teaspoons olive oil in a large ovenproof skillet over medium-high heat. Season the chicken with a little salt and pepper. Place the breasts skin side down in the skillet and cook until nicely browned. Then turn them skin-side up and transfer the skillet to a preheated 400-degree oven. Roast an additional 35 to 40 minutes or until the chicken is cooked through and the skin is crispy. (Transfer the chicken to a baking dish if you don't have an oven-proof skillet.)

Cooking the chicken with the skin on helps keep it moist, but you can remove the skin before eating to reduce fat and calories.

Remember to cook chicken until the internal temperature at the thickest part is 165 degrees. For a 12-ounce, bone-in half-breast, this will take about 40 minutes.

Nona Jacobs

Dec. 21, 1921-June 6, 2011

DECLO — Nona Ione Etta Marchant Jacobs, age 89, of Declo, passed away Monday, June 6, 2011, at Parke View Rehabilitation and Care Center in Burley, with her husband at her side holding her hand.

She was born Dec. 21, 1921, in Springdale, Idaho, the daughter of Stanley and Hattie Josephine (Hanks) Marchant. She attended Burley schools and graduated from Burley High School in 1939. She then continued her education at the LDS Business College in Salt Lake City, Utah, and graduated from the secretarial program. She married Don Ralph Jacobs on Dec. 16, 1941, in the Salt Lake LDS Temple. Nona loved farming and, in her younger years, worked the ground with a team of horses. She later drove tractor and truck helping her husband on the family farm. She worked many years at the Idaho Bank and Trust in Burley and Paul. However, the most important work was that of a wife, mother and grandmother. She was a super seamstress and enjoyed crafts, crocheting and knitting.

She was an active member of the LDS Church and served faithfully throughout her life. Music was her passion, and she gleaned much experience during her school years that prepared her for a lifelong love of music. She was a former member of the Mormon Tabernacle Choir and first sang during her college years, and then while her husband, Don, was in the service, she returned to Utah and continued singing under the baton of J. Spencer Cornwall. She was well known for her outstanding voice and had the opportunity to sing at the Idaho Falls Temple dedication and at the rededication of the Logan Utah Temple. She was a great director of music and served in this capacity until just two months ago. She also served in the various auxiliaries of the church and she and Don enjoyed many years as the ward dance directors. She loved the Mini-Cassia community and rode with the Wranglers, was a member of the Daughters of Utah Pioneers, the Sweet Adelines (a women's barbershop chorus) and, with her husband, enjoyed their association in square dancing.

She is survived by her husband of just short of 70 years, Don Jacobs of Declo; her daughters, Lella Jo (Dr. Eugene) Holm of Heyburn, Nona Lee (Roger) Biale of Sparks, Nev., Gwen (Clifford) Crossley of Cambridge, Wendy (Maury) Staker of Rupert and Rexanne Parke of Anchorage, Alaska; 12 grandchildren; and 24 great-grandchildren. She was preceded in death by her parents; three brothers; four sisters; and other beloved family members.

The funeral will be held at 2 p.m. Friday, June 10, at the Declo LDS Stake Center, 213 W. Main St. in Declo, with Bishop Steve Durfee officiating. Burial will be in the Declo Cemetery. Friends may call from 6 until 8 p.m. Thursday, June 9, at the Rasmussen Funeral Home, 1350 E. 16th St. in Burley, and from 1 until 1:45 p.m. Friday at the church.

Sern C. Sorensen

April 21, 1930-May 27, 2011

ALBION — Sern Cook Sorensen, age 81, of Albion, passed away Friday, May 27, 2011, after an extended illness.

He was born April 21, 1930, in Albion, Idaho, the son of Wilford Oliver and Cherub Genevieve Cook Sorensen. He attended Albion schools and graduated from Albion High School in May 1949. He married his longtime sweetheart, Helen Barker, on Aug. 20, 1950. They resided in Albion, later moving to Pocatello and then returned home to Albion.

Sern was gifted in many areas and could design and build anything needed from metal, wood or mechanical. He worked as a mechanic for Cameron's in Rupert for six years and, in 1962, he went to work for the Caribou National Forest Service in Pocatello. He retired in 1986 as C and M foreman and returned to his ranch in Albion. Sern loved fishing, fishing, fishing and hunting until 2001, when his health started to fail.

Sern is survived by his wife of 60 years, Helen Sorensen of Albion; one son, Ronald Sern (Bonnie) Sorensen of Albion; his daughter, ViAnn (Dan) Hayes of Murray, Utah; seven grandchildren, Ashlin, Lexy (Alex), Derek (Sarah), Tim (Bobbi), Bethany, Ryan and Brittany; three great-grandchildren, Darwin, Katie and Evan; and many nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by his parents; and two sisters, Roma Brannan and Evelyn DeNaughel.

The family expresses their sincere appreciation to the staff at Countryside Care and Rehabilitation in Rupert.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, June 11, at the Albion LDS Church, with Bishop Randy Brackenbury officiating. Burial will be in the Pleasant Hill Cemetery. Friends may call from 6 until 8 p.m. Friday, June 10, at the Rasmussen Funeral Home, 1350 E. 16th St. in Burley, and from 10 until 10:45 a.m. Saturday at the church.

Debra "Debbie" Ann Matthews Miller

May 18, 1956-June 5, 2011

Debra "Debbie" Ann Matthews Miller, 55, of Twin Falls and Jerome, passed away Sunday morning, June 5, 2011, at River Ridge Care and Rehabilitation Center in Twin Falls.

Debbie was born May 18, 1956, in Twin Falls, Idaho the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Matthews. She was the first of six children. Debbie was always a strong-willed person who often rushed headstrong into whatever she was doing. She loved her family and music and was never very far from either.

In 1972, Debbie married

Steven Strolberg and together, they had four children, Michelle, Anna, Steven and Lorna. Debbie had her last child in the summer of 1983, Brenna. Shortly after Brenna was born, Debbie met and later married the love of her life, Lloyd Miller. Lloyd had three children that Debbie loved as her own, Gari, Lloyd Jr. and Jesse. Together, they jointly raised all eight children.

Debbie leaves behind her parents, Gene and Cecilia Matthews; four siblings,

Richard (Jeannie) Matthews, Patty (John) Kumm, Michael (Beckie) Matthews and Theresa (Chris) Kalas; as well as her eight children, Michelle (James) Praegitzer-

Cook, Anna (Kathy) Carpenter, Steven (Lori) Strolberg, Lorna (Matt) West, Brenna Todd Miller, Gari (Landy) Fiedler, Jesse Miller and Lloyd Miller Jr. Debbie was the proud grandmother of 15 grandchildren, countless nieces and nephews and great-nieces and nephews, cousins and friends. She was preceded in death by both her paternal and maternal grandparents; her infant sister, Lori; and our very special cousin, Clayton Knaup.

A celebration of Debbie's life will be at 4 p.m. Wednesday, June 8, at Reynolds Funeral Chapel, 2466 Addison Ave. E. in Twin Falls. At Debbie's request, there will be no public viewing. Services are under the direction of Reynolds Funeral Chapel in Twin Falls.

Condolences may be left for the family by visiting www.reynoldschapel.com.

Larry Goodwin

May 3, 1943-June 3, 2011

HAGERMAN — Larry Goodwin went home to be with our Heavenly Father on Friday, June 3, 2011, at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center in Twin Falls.

Larry was born May 3, 1943, in Tacoma, Wash. Larry moved to California in 1944, where he met his wife, Mary of 46 years. Larry was a huge NASCAR fan and loved to watch NASCAR races. He also loved collecting classic cars. He was especially fond of his Sunday night Texas Hold'em games. Larry also loved cooking as seen in the 17 years of being owner and operator of Larry and Mary's Restaurant in Hagerman. Larry was a very loving and kind person and would have helped anyone that needed a hand.

Larry was preceded in death by his father and mother, Frank and Lilly Goodwin; and his son, Scott Goodwin. He is survived by his wife, Mary Goodwin of Hagerman; his daughter, Stacy Greene; son, Danny Goodwin; five grandchildren; and one great-grandchild, all of Furlong, Calif.

He will be greatly missed by all of those who knew and loved him.

A memorial graveside service will be held at 3 p.m. Friday, June 10, at the Hagerman Cemetery. Cremation arrangements took place under the care of Demaray Funeral Service, Gooding Chapel. Condolences may be shared with the family by visiting the obituary link at www.demarayfuneralservice.com.

John Richard Schab

May 7, 1924-June 5, 2011

John Richard Schab, 87, of Twin Falls, passed away Sunday, June 5, 2011, at Twin Falls Care Center.

He was born May 7, 1924, in Colorado Springs, Colo., the son of George and Daisy Schab of Rupert, Idaho. After leaving Idaho, John went to Ruby Valley, Nev., and became a ranch hand, where he met Lola Hays and was married on Oct. 3, 1945, in Elko, Nev. To this union, a daughter, Terri, was born. They moved to Amort, Mo., in 1948 to farm with Lola's parents until 1952, when they moved to Hansen, Idaho, where John was employed by Lester and Kenny Naylor for more than 30 years.

John and Lola were married for 50 years when she passed away on June 20, 1996. John later on married Lucille Carter on Sept. 17, 2002. Lucille passed away Jan. 27, 2006. John lived at Twin Falls Care Center the past three years.

John is survived by his daughter, Terri (Jack) Miller; granddaughter, Donna (Brian) Allen; great-grandson, Trevor Allen; and his brother, Ed (Maryann) Schab, all of Twin Falls; and a sister Jean Becker of Rupert, Idaho.

At John's request, no funeral is planned. Cremation arrangements are under the direction of Reynolds Funeral Chapel of Twin Falls.

John's family would like to give a special thank you to Twin Falls Care Center for the loving care they gave to John. Friends and family may offer their condolences and support by going to www.reynoldschapel.com.

Victoria C. Seeley

Oct. 4, 1915–June 4, 2011

JEROME — Victoria C. Seeley, age 95, of Jerome, Idaho, passed away Saturday, June 4, 2011, at the Laurels of Carson City in Carson City, MI.

Victoria was born in Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, on Oct. 4, 1915, the daughter of William W. and Helen H. (Reid) Scott. Victoria, a graduate of the University of Idaho, resided most of her married life in Jerome, Idaho. Upon Richard's retirement, they lived in Sun City West, Ariz., and Boise, Idaho. Victoria married Richard H. Seeley on May 25, 1940, in Nampa, Idaho. He passed away March 10, 2007.

Victoria was a member of PEO Sisterhood, holding every office. She enjoyed singing, reading and playing bridge. Victoria was the president of the Women's Golf Club and an avid golfer. She was the first woman to hit a hole in one at the Jerome Country Club where her late husband was a founding member. Victoria was a devout Presbyterian and a member of the Jerome Presbyterian Church. She and her husband enjoyed traveling and visited every state except Alaska.

She is survived by her two daughters, Vickie (Ron Jacobs) Barlow of Perrinton, Mich., and Peggy Montgomery of Perrinton, Mich.; two sons, Jim (Rae) Seeley of Lincolnshire, Ill., and Don (Terri) Seeley of Perrinton, Mich.; four grandchildren; Jeff Barlow, Anna (Brian) Wildish, Megan (Bret) Levins and Sara Montgomery; and two great-grandchildren, Jacob Barlow and Jackson Wildish. Victoria was preceded in death by her parents; husband; grandson, Jason Barlow; two brothers and two sisters.

A private memorial service will be held in Idaho at a later date. Online condolences can be sent to www.smithfamilyfuneralhomes.com. The family is being served by Smith Family Funeral Homes Ithaca Chapel in Ithaca, Mich.

Myrna J. Craig Simpson

May 1, 1936–June 5, 2011

Myrna J. Craig Simpson, 73, passed away Sunday, June 5, 2011, at Chardonay Assisted Living in Twin Falls.

Myrna was born May 1, 1936, in Twin Falls, Idaho, to Elmer Craig and Oriel Bohannon Craig. Her father, Elmer Craig was a civilian employee of the United States Navy during World War II, working in Ammunition Depots in Hawthorne, Nev., and Hastings, Neb. After the war, they lived on Bainbridge Island, Wash., on the Westinghouse Estate where Elmer was a caretaker. The family came back to Idaho in 1950 to Oriel's hometown, where Myrna graduated from Jerome High School in 1957. Myrna's first career was with Mountain States Telephone Company. She married Fritz Rork while living in Twin Falls, and they were later divorced.

She began a successful career with Transamerica Financial Corporation for 24 years. She became the first woman in 1972 to be named into the senior branch management. When she became manager, the branch grew to 10 times its size. She did credit counseling; she also wrote and directed radio programs on credit. She lectured at Northwest Nazarene College on management and consumer credit. Myrna was a member of the Morrison Center Auxiliary, Nampa High School Advisory Board and various Mercy Hospital committees. She was a member of the Nampa Chapter of Business Women's Association, where she was president. In 1983, she was selected as "Woman of the Year." She chaired the Metropolitan Planning Committee for two years while obtaining the land from the Idaho State School and Hospital for the Centennial Golf Course. Myrna married Marvin Simpson who was a contractor in Boise. She retired from Transamerica Financial Services and started a new career in Interior Design. She and Marvin later divorced. She acquired a stepson, Stevie Simpson, whom she was extremely fond of and the only child she ever had.

She was preceded in death by her father, Elmer Craig; and her mother, Oriel Bohannon Craig; a nephew, Brad Craig; a niece, Valerie Craig; a niece, Morgan Trujillo; and a nephew, Chance Craig. Myrna is survived by her sister, Maxine Rowbottom; niece, Pam Jones (Ron); and niece, Joan Rowbottom; brother, LeRoy Craig (Joyce); niece, Jody Tremblay (Mike); niece, Julie Mecham (Jay); nephew, Bryan Craig; nephew, Barrett Craig (Rachel); and many great-nieces and nephews; and also many wonderful friends in Boise and Twin Falls who have seen her through this difficult journey (pancreatic cancer).

Special thanks also to the people at Prestwick Apartments in Jerome. Also to Maggie Rivas, Chardonay Assisted Living in Twin Falls and Hospice Visions of Twin Falls for their loving care and concern.

A memorial service will be held at 2 p.m. Friday, June 10, at Rosenau Funeral Home in Twin Falls. In celebration of Myrna's life, memorials may be made to the Brad Craig Scholarship fund or Chance Craig Scholarship Fund, in care of the College of Southern Idaho, P.O. Box 1238, Twin Falls, ID 83303 or to the charity of your choice. Family and friends are encouraged to share their thoughts and memories of Myrna at www.rosenaufuneralhome.com.

Jeffrey Chad Jacobs

May 5, 1970–May 31, 2011

SALEM, Ore. — Jeffrey Chad Jacobs, 41, of Salem, Ore., died Tuesday, May 31, 2011, in Lincoln City, Ore.

He was born May 5, 1970, in Twin Falls, Idaho. He attended Twin Falls High School in Twin Falls and received a National Merit Scholar Award. He continued his education at Lane County Community College in Eugene, Ore., and Central Community College in Bend, Ore.

Jeff began his career in the body modification industry in 1993. He had an extensive background in body piercing, jewelry design, graphic design and tattooing. He assisted the Oregon Department of Education and Oregon Health Licensing Agency in developing instructional curriculum for tattoo artists and safety guidelines for governing the body modification industry in Oregon. He worked in and was a presence in downtown Salem, Ore., for the last 12 years, opening his own studio, Blackthorn Gallery and Tattoo on March 1, 2010.

Jeff married Dawn Jarrell on Oct. 8, 2005, and they resided in Salem, Ore., with their two dogs, "Norma and Piggy." He was a unique man with an intelligent, wicked sense of humor with the most charming chuckle. If you needed a good laugh, you would go visit Jeff. He liked art of all mediums: music, sculpting, painting and writing. He enjoyed a good cup of coffee and people watching. He loved creatures of all kinds, especially kitties and referred to himself as the "patron saint of cats."

Jeff is survived by his wife, Dawn (Jarrell) Jacobs of Salem, Ore.; sister, Stacy Roberts (Scott) of Boise, Idaho; parents, Richard and Cristy Jacobs of Twin Falls; niece, Allison Kurtin of Boise; nephews, Tyler Kurtin, Carson Roberts and Ryan Roberts, all of Boise; and Joseph Petty of Portland, Ore. He was preceded in death by his great-grandmother, Ella Glantz; grandparents, Mark and Arlene Brown; grandparents, Keith and Alice Jacobs; and his beloved kitty, "Zooty."

A celebration of life will be announced at a later date. Memorial Donations may be made to the Jeff Jacobs Memorial Fund at the First Federal Bank, P.O. Box 1885, Twin Falls, ID, 83303-1885. Services are entrusted into the care of Affordable Burial and Cremation Co.

Harold R. "Hal" Arnold

Aug. 15, 1925–June 3, 2011

BOISE — Harold R. "Hal" Arnold, 85, passed away Friday, June 3, 2011, in Boise.

Harold was born in Nampa, Idaho, to Olen T. and Lulu Arnold on Aug. 15, 1925. He attended schools in Nampa, Idaho, and Stockton, Calif. Harold enlisted in the U.S. Army and served in the Pacific Theater during World War II. Following his discharge from the Army, he returned to finish his courtship of Ellen Evans in Boise.

Harold and Ellen were married Aug. 2, 1947. Harold worked for many years at Salt Lake Hardware, then with Harris Brother's Lumber Company, Rostock Furniture and Appliance, Simplot, Amalgamated Sugar, eventually moving in 1967 to Albion, Idaho, where the family purchased and ran the AA Mart. While living in Albion, Harold served on the board of trustees for Magic Valley Christian College. He had also served as a deacon while attending the Boise Church of Christ for many years. Harold's faith was very important to him. His gentleness, compassion and love for his savior Jesus Christ allowed him to serve, assist and care for many people.

Harold was preceded in death by his parents; a sister, Dorothy; a brother, Glenn; and a sister, Doris. He is survived by his wife of 63 years, Ellen of Boise; a brother, Arnie (Willie) of Prescott, Ariz.; his children, Nancy (Jim) Fennell of Caldwell, Idaho, and family, Larry (Deborah) Arnold of Kansas City, Mo., and family, Roger (Connie) Arnold of Salem, Ore., and family, Ann (Paul) Reasch of Jerome and family; foster daughter, Sheila Rae Bragg of Portland, Ore.; 11 grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren; and 21 foster kids.

Harold and Ellen retired and moved to Caldwell, where he served the Caldwell Church of Christ as its janitor. Harold and Ellen then moved to Logan Park Congregate, where they made many new friends. While at Logan Park, Harold suffered a series of health issues that necessitated his moving full time to the Idaho State Veterans Home in Boise, where the staff so graciously cared for "Hal." In January of 2011, Ellen moved to stay with Harold. The family is appreciative of the special care Harold and Ellen received. As a family, we are blessed by the respect and dedication shown to our father and mother. You are truly angels, and all we can say is "Thank you."

A viewing will take place from 5 to 8 p.m. Thursday, June 9, at Dakan Funeral Home in Caldwell. A celebration of life will take place at 11 a.m. Friday, June 10, at the Caldwell Church of Christ, 4012 S. 10th in Caldwell. A dinner will take place following the service for all attending.

In lieu of flowers, memorials can be made to a favorite Christian College or to Camp Ivydale.

EXPERTS IN THE ART OF EXPRESSIONS

Mariana Garatea Basterrechea

Oct. 4, 1917–June 5, 2011

IDAHO FALLS — Mariana Garatea Basterrechea, 93, passed away Sunday, June 5, 2011, in Idaho Falls from natural causes.

Mariana was born Oct. 4, 1917, in Hailley, Idaho, to Basque immigrants Pio and Francesca Garatea. She married John Basterrechea on Aug. 29, 1942, in Rupert, Idaho. Together they had three children, Larry, Delores and Michael.

For the past 70 years, Mariana devoted her life to both her family and the Basterrechea Sheep Company. Modest and understated, she was a tireless worker. As her friends and family can attest (including the hundreds of men and women brought over from the Basque country throughout the years to work for the company), she was a world-class cook.

More importantly, however, Mariana was an unbelievably kind, loving and bright woman.

Mariana was preceded in death by her husband, John; son, Michael; and brothers, Manual and Carmelo Garatea. She is survived by her sister, Alice Garatea Majchrzak of Lakewood, Calif.; her son, Larry Basterrechea of Rupert; her daughter, Delores Basterrechea Martin of Idaho Falls; her grandsons, Brian Basterrechea of Henderson, Nev., and Spencer (Emily) Martin of Boise; and her great-grandchildren, Ezra and Isabella Basterrechea.

A private service will be held for the immediate family. In lieu of flowers, the family asks donations be made to the St. Nicholas Catholic School, 806 F St., Rupert, ID 83350, or the charity of your choice.

2011 TIMES-NEWS BOYS GOLFER OF THE YEAR

ASHLEY SMITH/Times-News

Buhl freshman Kade Crossland is the 2011 Times-News Boys Golfer of the Year.

Few words, fewer strokes

WHAT OTHERS ARE SAYING

Thoughts on Buhl freshman Kade Crossland

"He can play the game the way it's supposed to be played. I like him as a person and as a player." — Kimberly senior Gage Huft

"He's such a great kid. ... He's a solid kid and he's a great kid and he competed really well." — Kimberly golf coach Jan Hall

"He's just solid all around. He putts, he chips, he doesn't get rattled." — Buhl golf coach Mitch Oparnico

Buhl's Crossland lets his game do the talking

By Mike Christensen
Times-News writer

Kade Crossland isn't one to talk trash on the golf course. But he will kick your trash.

That's exactly what the Buhl High School freshman did in winning the Class 3A state golf tournament.

"He's quiet but you can tell he's confident," said Buhl golf coach Mitch Oparnico.

Evidence of that confidence peeks through when Crossland talks about winning state in his first season of high school golf.

"I wasn't really surprised. I was playing pretty good all year," he said.

But mostly, Crossland is a man of few words with a penchant for navigating a golf course in the fewest strokes.

His mother, Chris Cross-

land, describes him as "extremely quiet and shy. Most of his teachers say that they've never heard him speak."

On the course, his game speaks for itself. Kade Crossland has never had an official golf lesson, learning the game largely from his father, Brad. His talents, including a stellar short game, have been honed on the family's backyard putting green. He also frequents Clear Lake Country Club in Buhl and Pebble Ponds Golf Course in Filer.

"His swing is so natural," said Oparnico, who described Crossland as "even keel."

That mellow nature was on full display when his two-stroke victory at state was finalized.

"When I won state, I wasn't really pumped or anything," said Crossland.

At least not on the outside.

"He's pretty humble," said Chris Crossland. "Inside his heart's pounding because he's so excited, but nobody can see that."

What everyone could see was his two-day 148 at the 3A state meet at Scotch Pines Golf Course in Payette. His second-round 73 included a long birdie putt on the No. 5 hole, followed by birdies on Nos. 6-7.

"I got kind of on a streak there and that boosted my confidence a little bit," said Crossland, who hopes to win four consecutive state titles and earn a college golf scholarship. He could have some in-house competition for the first of those goals: His younger brother Kasey is entering eighth grade this fall and recently beat Kade in a round at Clear Lake.

"He's catching me,"

said Kade.

Younger sister Kylie, 11, is also an up-and-comer.

While golf is big in the Crossland home, it isn't the only thing on Kade's plate. He also raises pigs for 4-H and played for Buhl's varsity baseball team this spring. He was a standout 3-point shooter on Buhl's junior varsity basketball team and played JV football as well.

But golf is his favorite. "I kind of like the individual sports," he said. "Everything depends on you. If you mess up you can't blame your teammates or anything."

But you can earn everyone's respect, something Kade Crossland certainly did in his freshman season.

"He's a great kid," said Kimberly coach Jan Hall. "He's not cocky or arrogant, he just plays solid golf."

Best of the rest: The Magic Valley's other top boys golfers

Gage Huft, Kimberly: Huft said his senior season "really wasn't a satisfying year" thanks to poor weather conditions and some disappointing rounds. Still, the Kimberly senior placed second at districts and third at state after shooting a 72 in his final round. He also helped the Bulldogs come within one stroke of a Class 3A state title. Kimberly coach Jan Hall said Huft made it clear the team title was more important to him than any individual honors. "That goes to show you a lot about Gage Huft's character," said

Hall. "He wasn't out for himself."

Alec Perkins, Twin Falls: Just a freshman, Perkins led the Bruins to the Class 4A state title with a two-day 147 at the state meet. He tied for fourth individually, impressing Twin Falls coach Matt Harr with his composure. Harr said Perkins always saved his best golf for tournament play.

"He's the type of kid that when things got tighter and there was more pressure, he played better," said Harr.

Derek Cook, Canyon Ridge: Cook helped make Canyon Ridge's first state tournament appearance in any sport one to remember. He fired a 69 on the final day at the Class 4A state tournament, helping the Riverhawks surge into second place behind Twin Falls. Cook's two-day 147 tied him for fourth individually. He also placed second individually at the District IV state qualifier, as CRHS tied eventual 4A champion Twin Falls before losing in a playoff.

"Derek was one of our most consistent golfers all season. ... He never misses practice and leads by example. His senior leadership will be missed," said Canyon Ridge golf coach Greg Lanting.

Kyle Miley, Twin Falls: Just a sophomore, Miley was solid from start to finish for Twin Falls. He shot a two-day 148 at the state meet, tying for sixth individually. He consistently qualified as the Bruins' No. 1 or 2 golfer and shot a 68 in winning the Dale Mowrer Invitational in Jerome.

"Kyle was probably our most consistent player the whole year," said Twin Falls coach Matt Harr.

Dylan Kinyon, Castleford: Kinyon saved some of his best golf for last, shooting a two-day 157 at the Class 2A state meet to claim medalist honors and help the Wolves to the boys team title. Even with a solid season individually, it was the team title that meant the most to him. "He's a great kid, loves to compete," said Castleford coach Laurie Howard. "He's a good leader."

Tiger Woods to skip U.S. Open

By Doug Ferguson
Associated Press writer

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Tiger Woods pulled out of the U.S. Open on Tuesday because of lingering issues with his left leg, leaving him uncertain how soon he can resume his pursuit of Jack Nicklaus' record for major titles.

It will be the first time Woods has missed the U.S. Open since 1994, when he had just graduated high school.

"I am extremely disappointed that I won't be playing in the U.S. Open, but it's time for me to listen to my doctors and focus on the future," Woods said on his website. "I was hopeful that I could play, but if I did, I risk further damage to my left leg. My knee and Achilles tendon are not fully healed."

Woods said he hoped to be ready for the AT&T National, which starts June 30 at Aronovink, and the next two majors. Then again, he said two weeks ago he would do everything possible to be ready for the U.S. Open, which is far more significant.

Ailing Nowitzki lifts Mavs to tie Finals

By Jaime Aron
Associated Press writer

DALLAS — Dirk Nowitzki and the Dallas Mavericks have pulled off another stunning comeback, tying the NBA Finals at two games each.

And this time, Nowitzki did it while battling the flu.

Nowitzki shook off three poor quarters to score 10 of his 21 points in the final period as the Mavericks outscored the Miami Heat 21-9 over the final 10:12 for an 86-83 victory in a memorable Game 4 Tuesday night.

The Mavs avoided going down 3-1, a deficit no team has ever overcome in the finals, and guaranteed the series will return to Miami for a Game 6 on Sunday night.

"We just played with incredible heart and passion," Dallas center Tyson Chandler said.

Dwyane Wade scored 32 points, but fumbled an inbounds pass with 6.7 seconds left. He knocked the ball back to Mike Miller for a potential tying 3-pointer, but it wasn't even close to hitting the rim.

Chris Bosh scored 24 points for Miami, but the Heat got a stunningly unproductive game from their biggest star, LeBron James. He scored only eight points, making just 3 of 11 shots. He contributed nine rebounds and seven assists, but his lack of scoring sticks out because of the loss.

Nowitzki opened the game looking just fine, making his first three shots. But then he missed 10 of 11, and missed a free throw for the first time since Game 4 of the conference finals. By then, word spread of his illness.

With the game — and likely the series — on the line, Nowitzki found a way to come through. He made only 2 of 6 shots, but that included a terrific layup with 14.4 seconds left; he made all six of his free throws.

Hey, if he could win Game 2 with a left-handed layup two days after tearing a tendon in the tip of his middle finger, what's a little temperature?

CRHS tabs Kim Wray as its new athletic director

By Mike Christensen
Times-News writer

In 17 seasons as a girls basketball coach, Kim Wray said she has worked under some good athletic directors.

As Canyon Ridge's new athletic director, Wray is ready to implement the best of what she's learned from her former bosses.

"One of the main things is just making sure that every head coach feels supported and knows they have someone to come to, and that our athletes get some recognition for the good things they're doing," she said.

Wray was named Tuesday as the successor to Dale Thornsberry, who stepped in midway through the 2010-11 school year when Bill Hicks resigned from his role as football coach and athletic director to focus on his job as Canyon Ridge's vice principal.

"Ms. Wray brings experience and a strong work ethic to the position," CRHS Principal Brady Dickinson said in a school release. "She has been instrumental in helping us build a solid academic and athletic foundation at CRHS."

Wray said stability is one thing she hopes to bring to the table.

"It's a new challenge for me, but I thought it was one I was ready to take," she said. "I'm a Riverhawk so I'm not going anywhere."

Wray coached the CRHS varsity girls basketball teams for two seasons. After a winless season in the school's inaugural campaign, the Riverhawks went 8-15 this past season. Wray also spent six seasons as the head coach at Filer and four at Burley.

She will continue to teach part-time at CRHS, but has resigned from her coaching duties.

"I am going to miss it," Wray said of coaching, "but it's time for me to move on and help more than girls basketball."

Wray said she hopes to hire a new varsity girls basketball coach by the end of June.

White Sox blast Mariners, King Felix

CHICAGO — Paul Konerko and Carlos Quentin homered, and Phil Humber held Seattle's offense in check as the Chicago White Sox beat the Mariners and Felix Hernandez 5-1 on Tuesday night.

The White Sox have won a club-record 10 straight home games against Seattle, and 14 of their last 15.

Konerko blasted the first pitch he saw from Hernandez 383 feet over the left-field bullpen to give Chicago a 1-0 lead in the second inning. It was his 14th of the year and second in as many days since missing a pair of games due to minor wrist surgery.

RED SOX 6, YANKEES 4

NEW YORK — David Ortiz hit a two-run homer and Jonathan Papelbon labored through the ninth inning to earn his 200th save, leading the Boston Red Sox over the New York Yankees 6-4 Tuesday night.

Jacoby Ellsbury led off the game with a home run and Adrian Gonzalez hit an RBI triple as the Red Sox roughed up Freddy Garcia (4-5) early to move within two percentage points of the first-place Yankees in the AL East. Working on seven days' rest, Jon Lester (8-2) gave up three runs and eight hits — seven singles — in six innings.

INDIANS 1, TWINS 0

CLEVELAND — Carlos Carrasco took a shutout into the ninth inning and the Indians pushed across an unearned run to defeat the Twins, ending a season-high five-game skid.

Austin Jackson had three of Detroit's season-high 20 hits and Rick Porcello won for the sixth time in his last seven outings to help the Tigers beat the Rangers.

MIAMI — Tommy Hanson pitched six innings and the Atlanta Braves won with only two hits Tuesday night when they sent the Florida Marlins to their sixth consecutive loss, 1-0.

Florida's Brad Hand (0-1) went six innings in his major league debut and allowed just one hit — a homer by Alex Gonzalez leading off the fourth.

DODGERS 6, PHILLIES 2

PHILADELPHIA — Rubby De La Rosa pitched five effective innings in his first career start and Dee Gordon had three hits in his first start, helping the Dodgers beat the Phillies.

PIRATES 8, DIAMONDBACKS 5

PITTSBURGH — Lyle Overbay hit a three-run double to cap a five-run eighth inning and the Pirates rallied for a win over the Diamondbacks.

REDS 8, CUBS 2

CINCINNATI — Miguel Cairo hit a grand slam to help make Edinson Volquez's return to the majors a success and the Reds continued their dominance of the Cubs.

CARDINALS 7, ASTROS 4

HOUSTON — Jake Westbrook shook off early trouble on the mound and helped his cause with a three-run, tie-breaking double to help St. Louis to a win over Houston.

T.F. Cowboys split with Boise Capitals

Times-News

The Class AA Twin Falls Cowboys failed to put the Boise Capitals away in Game 1. They didn't make the same mistake in Game 2.

After letting a 6-1 lead evaporate in a 9-7 loss in the opener, the Cowboys shellacked the Capitals 15-3 in the nightcap.

The five-inning run-rule victory in Game 2 included a seven-run fifth inning, highlighted by Cody McBride's three-run triple and Cy Sneed's three-run home run. McBride finished 3-for-4 in the win, while Casey Merritt got the win on the mound.

Jayson Welker went 3-for-4 for the Cowboys in Game 1, but a Twin Falls error contributed to Boise's two sixth-inning runs that broke a 7-7 tie. The Cowboys had runners at second and third in the top of the seventh, but had consecutive strikeouts to end the game.

Twin Falls (4-2) hosts the Boise Seminoles for a 5 p.m. doubleheader today at Skip Walker Field on the College of Southern Idaho campus.

Sneed was not drafted in the first 30 rounds of the MLB first-year player draft on Tuesday. He will likely be selected today.

BURLEY'S MOON INJURED; GREEN SOX SPLIT WITH SKYLINE

The Burley Green Sox had a long day Tuesday — in more ways than one.

In the morning, Burley picked up a rain-delayed game with Madison from the night before. Madison led 6-2 in the third inning when Burley star catcher Kody Moon suffered a broken wrist. With several players absent due to foot-ball camp, that left the Green Sox with only eight players and they were forced to forfeit. Burley coach Devin Kunz said Moon will be out three months with the injury.

Later, Burley hosted a doubleheader with Skyline. The Green Sox lost the opener 11-7, but rebounded to win the nightcap 12-2.

Joe Ferrin went 2-for-4 with a double and a home run in the first game, followed by a two-double, four-RBI performance in the second game.

The Green Sox (5-3) host Sugar City on Monday.

Pryor giving up senior season at Ohio State

QB likely to enter NFL supplemental draft

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Terrelle Pryor's career at Ohio State, which started with so much promise and potential, came to an abrupt and scandal-ridden end.

The Ohio State quarterback announced through his attorney Tuesday that he would not play for the Buckeyes this season. He had already been suspended for the first five games for breaking NCAA rules by accepting improper benefits from the owner of a tattoo parlor.

"In the best interests of my teammates, I've made the decision to forgo my senior year of football at The Ohio State University," Pryor said in a statement issued by Columbus lawyer Larry James.

Pryor will most likely make himself available for an NFL supplemental draft.

"I would hope so. Also, he would hope so," said James, who added that Pryor was not available for comment. "But he's going to take the next couple of days to get his head together."

The Cleveland Plain Dealer first reported Pryor's announcement.

The NCAA is looking into all aspects of Ohio State's once-glittering program, from cash and tattoos to players, cars deals for athletes and other potential violations.

Pryor's announcement comes just eight days after Buckeyes coach Jim Tressel was forced to resign for knowing about the players' improper benefits but not telling any of his superiors.

"He did not want to be a distraction to his teammates," James said of Pryor. "This is something he came to consider after much thought."

Ohio State's athletic director, Gene Smith, quickly issued a statement wishing

Ohio State quarterback Terrelle Pryor, right, announced Tuesday he would give up his senior season. Ohio State coach Jim Tressel, left, recently resigned over the same NCAA violations that influenced to Pryor's decision.

Pryor the best.

"We understand Terrelle's decision and wish him well in this next phase of his life," Smith said. "We hope he returns to The Ohio State University one day to finish his degree."

Luke Fickell, who will serve as Ohio State's interim head coach in place of Tressel this fall, found out about Pryor's decision on Tuesday night.

"I was notified this evening that Terrelle has decided to pursue a professional career," Fickell said. "I wish him the best in his pursuits."

Pryor came to Ohio State on March 19, 2008, from Jeannette, Pa., as the most acclaimed high school quarterback prospect in the country. His career will be remembered in his adoptive home state for his three victories in as many tries against archrival Michigan, and victories in the Rose and Sugar Bowl.

But it will also be remembered for a series of missteps and controversies that seemed to follow the 6-foot-6, 233-pound physical specimen wherever he went and no matter what he said.

In the midst of an NCAA inspection into his cars, he drove a sports car to practice on the day that Tressel resigned. Even when it was shown that his mother had legally bought the car, which is four years old, many fans were angry. The fact that he was driving it made it headline news across the state and around the Big Ten.

On the field, Pryor was very good. He had a 31-4 record as a starter (starting one bowl game as a wide receiver), rushed for an Ohio State-record for a quarterback 2,164 yards and passed for 6,177 yards. He was often at his best in big games, holding the school record with seven games with at least 300 yards of total offense and 22 games with at least 200.

with six straight points — made consecutive baskets, and the surge was on. Terry ended up capping it with two free throws with 6.7 seconds left that forced Miami to need a 3-pointer.

Woods

"We're very disappointed that he won't be playing in the National Open," USGA executive director Mike Davis said, whom Woods called Tuesday morning. "He certainly brings excitement to the event. He'll be missed, but the U.S. Open will go on. The event is bigger than one player, but he certainly will be missed."

The U.S. Open starts June 16 at Congressional, where Woods won the AT&T National two years ago and tied for 19th when the U.S. Open was last played there in 1997.

Woods was replaced by Michael Whitehead, a senior at Rice who was first alternate from the Dallas qualifier. Whitehead had to win a playoff just to get out of the first stage of 18-hole qualifying, and was stunned to get the news.

"They said on the phone that Tiger has withdrawn from the Open," Whitehead said. "So, 'Thanks, Tiger: I guess I'm glad he was listening to his doctors.'"

The future of Woods, meanwhile, is as muddled as ever.

"The hardest thing in the world as a golfer, or any athlete, is to stay out," two-time U.S. Open champion Curtis Strange said. "It's smart what he's doing. Unfortunately, the U.S. Open falls in that time frame. But every time something happens, and the longer he's away from the game, it's going to make it tougher for him to come back.

"It's going to be harder and harder the long this goes."

Woods hasn't won since the 2009 Australian Masters, a stretch of 22 tournaments. He not only lost his No. 1 ranking late last year, he has plunged to No. 15 in the world, his lowest spot in the ranking since the spring of 1997.

Woods announced his decision on Twitter: "Not playing in US Open. Very disappointed. Short-term frustration for long-term gain."

He had said in his most recent press conference that his injury was "not the doomsday that some of the press members are writing about." Some in his camp believe if he had skipped The Players Championship, his left leg would have been fully healed perhaps in time for the Memorial, which he missed last week.

Only Woods knows what kind of shape his leg is in, although he said another surgery has never been brought up by his doctors.

The Masters is now the only major Woods has played every year since turning pro. He was recovering from knee surgery in 2008 and did not play the British Open and PGA Championship.

"It's been a frustrating and difficult year, but I'm committed to my longterm health," Woods said. "I want to thank the fans for their encouragement and support. I am truly grateful and will be back playing when I can."

NBC locks up U.S. Olympic TV rights through 2020

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — Bob Costas made the pitch and NBC met the price. The peacock network out-bid Fox and ESPN by almost a billion dollars Tuesday to win U.S. television rights to four more Olympics and keep the games through 2020.

The result: a $4.38 billion knockout for NBC.

Despite a recent change in ownership, the sudden departure of longtime Olympic chief Dick Ebersol and an uncertain economy, NBC and its parent company, Comcast, defied speculation that its grip on the Olympics was coming to an end.

“I can say the Olympics are really in their DNA,” International Olympic Committee President Jacques Rogge said. “We’ve been together with them for so many games with great success.”

Executives with direct knowledge of the proposals told The Associated Press that Fox bid $3.4 billion for four games and $1.5 billion for two, while ESPN offered $1.4 billion for two. They spoke on condition of anonymity because the IOC declined to say how much the other networks offered.

NBC has broadcast every Summer Olympics since 1988 and every Winter Games since 2002, and it was the network’s experience and familiarity with the IOC — as well as its money — that won over the Olympic body again.

“My message was, ‘we’ve done it well and we’d like to do it again,’” Costas, who has hosted NBC’s coverage of eight Olympics, said shortly after all three networks dropped their envelopes with sealed bids into a clear plastic box.

NBC now has exclusive rights to the 2014 Winter Games in Sochi, Russia, and the 2016 Summer Olympics in Rio de Janeiro, as well as the 2018 Winter Games and 2020 Olympics, whose sites have not yet been chosen. The deal includes all broadcast platforms, including Internet, mobile and handheld devices.

“You think definitely of the finances, but you think also of the past experiences, you think of the enthusiasm of the team, the technical qualities,” Rogge said. “We thought that was the best combination.”

IOC TV rights negotiator Richard Carrion said NBC would pay $775 million for Sochi, $1.226 billion for Rio, $963 million for the 2018 Winter Games and $1.418 billion for the 2020 Summer Olympics.

“This secures the financial future for the next decade of the Olympic movement,” Rogge said.

“I’m bitterly disappointed,” Fox sports chairman David Hill said.

ESPN had played up the potential impact of parent company Disney, including its appeal to a young audience.

“To go any further would not have made good business sense for us,” ESPN said in a statement. “We put our best foot forward with a compelling offer that included the enthusiastic participation of all of The Walt Disney Co.’s considerable assets.”

Cup finals show NHL still struggling with violence

Rome suspended for hit on Horton

BOSTON (AP) — Two players made two bad decisions in an instant, something that happens fairly often in the NHL. Boston’s Nathan Horton watched his pass an instant too long, and Vancouver’s Aaron Rome checked him an instant too late.

Both players’ seasons ended in that instant during Game 3 of the Stanley Cup finals. Horton dropped to the ice, apparently unconscious on his back with his eyes open and his gloved right hand reaching up frighteningly into empty space, while Rome was sent to the Canucks’ dressing room under a vicious cascade of boos from Bruins fans.

The NHL is a volatile cocktail of big men with sticks skating swiftly over a confined ice surface, and those elements collided with devastating impact in the sport’s biggest showcase Monday night.

Horton is out for the rest of the NHL’s championship round with a severe concussion, and Rome received a four-game suspension — the longest in Stanley Cup finals history — beginning with the pivotal Game 4 on tonight.

“There’s no fun to this,” said Mike Murphy, the NHL executive in charge of discipline for the series. “There’s no enjoyment to this. Nobody wins in this. Everybody loses. The fans lose. We lost two good hockey players.”

Hockey cultivates and even condones violence — fighting is still allowed, after all — yet still struggles to agree on standards to control it. The line between legally aggressive play and dirty tactics is minuscule, and it’s almost impossible to see in an instant.

“Only people who have been on the ice can understand how fast it is, and how quick the decision-making process has to be,” said Vancouver defenseman Keith Ballard, who’s likely to step into Rome’s lineup spot. “You feel like there’s no way you can do the right thing sometimes.”

Most coaches and players agree the NHL is trying. Concussion awareness has grown tremendously in recent years, with new rules and a safety protocol instituted to protect players from blindside hits and headshots.

Yet several prominent players, including Pittsburgh star Sidney Crosby, Nashville’s Matthew Lombardi and Boston’s own high-scoring forward, Marc Savard, still have been seriously hurt by hits of wildly varying legality. Reports of concussions are rising even while dangerous hits diminish.

“It’s such a fast game now, not to say there weren’t injuries dating back,” said Boston forward Gregory Campbell, whose father, Colin, is giving up his job as the NHL’s top disciplinarian.

“I think now the awareness of the injuries is what has brought the attention on these hits,” Campbell said. “It’s such a fast game now. Things happen quickly. Players are so strong. It’s unfortunate that the game has to deal with this. It’s kind of taken on a life of its own. It’s tough to try to make everybody happy. It’s almost impossible.”

Nehro ready to shed runner-up reputation at Belmont Stakes

NEW YORK (AP) — There is nobody more eager to show up in the winner’s circle after the Belmont Stakes than Ahmed Zayat.

Sure, Saturday’s final leg of the Triple Crown is being trumpeted as the rubber match between Kentucky Derby winner Animal Kingdom and Preakness winner Shackleford. But Zayat is confident his colt Nehro is poised to shed a runner-up reputation and win the 1 1/2-mile Belmont, the longest and most grueling of the Triple Crown races.

Nehro has finished second in his last three starts, including the Kentucky Derby. Zayat contends Nehro is the most consistent 3-year-old of the bunch and is certain his horse does not have “seconditis.”

“We’ve been second, second, second every dance,” Zayat said the other morning at Belmont Park. “He’s versatile: you can see him at the rail, near the pace, closing like a freight train. The mile-and-a-half is a non-issue. We’re very confident he’s ready. ... I don’t want to be a bridesmaid again.”

Zayat is all too familiar with close calls. Two years ago, his Pioneerof the Nile finished second in the 2009 Kentucky Derby behind 50-1 shot Mine That Bird. A year ago his Derby favorite Eskendereya was sidelined with an injury less than a week before the race and was retired.

In addition, the 48-year-old Egyptian businessman who lives in New Jersey nearly lost his sprawling racing operation last year during a very public court battle with Fifth Third Bank. Today, his Zayat Stables has about 200 horses, and he says he’s invested “close to $100 million” into the game since becoming an owner only six years ago.

His top 3-year-old this year was supposed to be Jaycito, and Nehro was just getting started. After winning the San Felipe in March, Jaycito was sidelined with an injury. Meanwhile, Nehro, a son of Mineshaft bought for a relative bargain $170,000, had won his first — and so far only — race in February at Oaklawn Park. He then finished second by a neck in the Louisiana Derby, second by a neck in the Arkansas Derby and second by 2 3/4 lengths in the Kentucky Derby.

Zayat, along with trainer Steve Asmussen, decided to skip the Preakness and wait on the Belmont, which could have a field of as many as 13 when entries are drawn Wednesday. The first seven Derby finishers are expected to line up in the Belmont.

Zayat can’t wait.

“We have beaten all of them, except one (Animal Kingdom) and we will have no excuses if we lose,” he said.

NOTICE OF FEE INCREASE

The Twin Falls School District No. 411, Twin Falls County, has proposed to increase its lunch fees by an amount that exceeds five percent (5%) of the fee charged last year. The proposed increase of nine and one half percent (9.5%) is four and one half (4.5) percent above five percent (5%) of the fees charged the previous year. The following is an estimate of what these changes may mean to students.

Fee	Last Year Fee	This Year Fee	Percent Increase	Last Year Cost Per Student	This Year Cost Per Student	Exceptions
Elementary Lunch	$1.95	$2.05	9.5%	$351	$369	Qualifies for free or reduced lunch
Middle School	$2.20	$2.30	9.5%	$396	$414
High School	$2.45	$2.55	9.5%	$441	$459

This fee increase is due to an increase of food and non-food costs, salary/benefits increase and Federal Government regulations for the 2011-2012 school year.

Section 205 states: Effective School Year beginning July 1, 2011, schools are required to charge students for paid meals at a price that is on average equal to the difference between free meal reimbursement ($2.72 in FY11) and paid meal reimbursement($0.26 in FY11)

All citizens are invited to attend a public hearing on the increased fee request. The Hearing will be held on June 13, 2011 at 7:00 p.m. at the Twin Falls School District No. 411 Board Room Extension Office 242 Main Avenue North, Twin Falls, Idaho.

Do-It-Yourself Ideas

Patio Glider

Warm summer afternoons and evenings offer many opportunities to relax on the patio or porch. And nothing helps relieve the stress of a long, hot day like a cold drink and the gentle motion of a glider. Suspended in its own frame, the seat "glides" back-and-forth instead of rocking or swinging. A good project for do-it-yourselfers of all skill levels, this glider measures about 53 inches long by 36 inches high by 24 inches deep. The plan includes step-by-step instructions with 15 photos, full-size traceable patterns, exploded diagrams and a shopping list and cutting schedule.

Today is Wednesday, June 8, the 159th day of 2011. There are 206 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On June 8, 1861, voters in Tennessee approved an Ordinance of Secession passed the previous month by the state legislature.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In A.D. 632, the prophet Muhammad died in Medina.

In 1845, Andrew Jackson, seventh president of the United States, died in Nashville, Tenn.

In 1864, Abraham Lincoln was nominated for another term as president during the National Union (Republican) Party's convention in Baltimore.

In 1905, President Theodore Roosevelt offered to act as a mediator in the Russo-Japanese War.

In 1915, Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan resigned in a disagreement with President Woodrow Wilson over U.S. handling of the sinking of the Lusitania.

In 1953, the Supreme Court ruled that restaurants in the District of Columbia could not refuse to serve blacks.

In 1966, a merger was announced between the National and American Football Leagues, to take effect in 1970.

In 1967, 34 U.S. servicemen were killed when Israel attacked the USS Liberty, a Navy intelligence-gathering ship in the Mediterranean. (Israel later said the Liberty had been mistaken for an Egyptian vessel.)

In 1978, a jury in Clark County, Nev., ruled the so-called "Mormon will," purportedly written by the late billionaire Howard Hughes, was a forgery.

In 1995, U.S. Marines rescued Capt. Scott O'Grady, whose F-16C fighter jet had been shot down by Bosnian Serbs on June 2.

Ten years ago: A knife-wielding man killed eight children at a Japanese elementary school on the outskirts of Osaka. (The killer, Mamoru Takuma, was executed in Sept. 2004.)

Five years ago: The Food and Drug Administration approved a vaccine against HPV, the virus that causes cervical cancer. Sheikha Haya Al Khalifa, a lawyer from Bahrain, was elected U.N. General Assembly president, the first woman from the Middle East to take the post.

One year ago: In several high-profile Republican primaries, Meg Whitman won the nomination for California governor while Carly Fiorina got the nod to oppose three-term Democratic Sen. Barbara Boxer; in Nevada, Sharron Angle won the right to oppose Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid. (All three ended up losing their respective contests.) In South Carolina, political unknown Alvin Greene won the Democratic primary to challenge U.S. Sen. Jim DeMint (Greene lost in November).

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"But evil is wrought by want of thought, As well as want of heart."
— Thomas Hood

If your bridge is confined to the rubber bridge table or events where dealing is done manually, you are perhaps used to being treated kindly as far as bad breaks are concerned. Human dealers tend to be lazy, and insufficient shuffling leads to more-balanced hands. All tournaments (and most clubs, too) these days use computer dealing, when the actual distribution should equate to the theoretical distribution, so you need to be more prepared for bad breaks.

Sometimes unfriendly distribution can easily be overcome: all you need do is keep your head and not panic.

At one table, South opened two no-trump and North-South's methods were such that he ended up as declarer in the good six diamonds, West choosing a spade lead.

Superficially it looks as if South rates to lose a diamond and a trick in one of the black suits, but watch what happened. Declarer tried the spade queen from dummy and won East's king with his ace. Not being psychic, he then played the diamond ace and king. When he discovered the bad news, he realized he needed to reduce dummy's trumps twice.

He played three rounds of hearts, discarding a spade from the table, and ruffed a spade. He then played a club to his queen, cashed the club ace and ruffed another spade. This left dummy with the diamond queen and 10, and a losing club. Declarer now exited with a club, and had to make two diamond tricks at the end.

ANSWER: You are obviously worth a raise of spades. Here, your singleton diamond rates to be useful, but your soft high-cards are not guaranteed to be pulling their full weight. This hand seems worth no more than a raise to three spades, rather than a cue-bid raise of three diamonds, which ought to show a somewhat better hand.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 48-year-old single male. I teach an adult Sunday school class. Two women who have joined our group have made it plain they would like to have a romantic relationship with me.

I'm not sure how to handle this. I'd like to meet someone special, too, but I'm not certain this is the right way. Please advise.

— TROUBLED TEACHER

DEAR TROUBLED TEACHER: Tell the women you have a policy that you do not date your students. To do otherwise would be distracting and disruptive to the class. Once they have "graduated," there is nothing to stop you from dating both of them. One may turn out to be that someone special you have been looking for, but if she's not, you'll have saved everyone from unnecessary drama.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: We are a gay couple who have been together for 37 years. We were recently invited to the wedding of a close nephew in San Antonio. The invitation was addressed to us both, and we flew 5,000 miles to attend.

At the ceremony, my partner, "Alan," was seated in front with the groom's family. While we were being shown to our seats, I was told by the groom's father, "Sorry. You can sit somewhere else." Alan and I were deeply offended.

How should we express our displeasure and prevent this from happening again when the niece marries? Do we have a right to say anything?

— SNUBBED IN HONOLULU

DEAR SNUBBED: Of course you do. The groom's father was extremely rude to separate you. The person who issued the wedding invitation should be informed of how offensive it was. And if it happens again, the two of you should respond, "We are a couple, and we sit together!"

DEAR ABBY: My wife is a cancer survivor who is doing well. When a friend or relative learns she had cancer, a common response is, "Yeah, I knew someone who had the same kind of cancer. It was awful. It came back six months later and he/she died an agonizing, terrible death."

Abby, it's hard to remain polite around such thoughtless, moronic individuals when they blurt out something like this in my wife's presence. I can't imagine the fear she must experience hearing such remarks. Can you offer an effective retort?

— BAFFLED BY THE IGNORANCE

DEAR BAFFLED: Remarks such as you have described usually are made when people don't know what to say, so they blurt out the first thing that comes to mind. A polite response would be, "Thanks for your concern. My wife is doing great."

Of course the appropriate thing for friends and relatives to say would be, "I'm so glad you're better — I care about you and I was worried." To raise the subject of someone who died from the disease is inappropriate and extremely insensitive. There's an old Portuguese proverb: Never mention a rope in the house of a man who has been hanged. It definitely applies here.

SUDOKU

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

IF JUNE 8 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: At the moment you are easily distracted by ideas that aren't quite what you think they are, and your head is in the clouds. Wait until July to get feedback from friends before spending too much money or time with a new hookup. In August avoid making investments or important financial decisions. You are more ambitious in September but must remember to pay your dues and gather more experience before you can climb higher on the business ladder of success. January is the best month for career and financial endeavors, but March is the best time to make decisions about a relationship.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): The juicy carrot dangling before your eyes might not taste as sweet as it seems. You are sharp as a tack and ready to take dynamic action but celestial conditions are not conducive to successful initiatives.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Never complain, never explain is usually a good motto. However, during the next few days this attitude could cause misunderstandings. A temporary dip in the desire to compete may put you at a disadvantage.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): What you want and what you get are two different things. Others are swept off their feet by simple animal magnetism. True harmony may elude you if you begin a new relationship or sign a contract.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Today's passing fancies could drain your piggy bank.
The latest amorous conquest could be too hot to handle and major purchases or investments could prove to be less than satisfying over time.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22):
Using the inexplicable as guidelines can waste valuable time. Avoid signing contracts and making commitments. Do not base your decisions on intuitions.
Stick with the sound plan
you have already formulated.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Commitments need to be handled with kid gloves for the next several days.
Wait to make important decisions. Things may fall in place next week when your ability to take charge is given a boost.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22):
Molasses is sweet, but slow.
Someone in close connection may be riveted on demonstrating ardent affection. A new hookup, however, might go too fast for comfort and will quickly turn you off.
