JEROME — One person died Tuesday of injuries suffered in a four-vehicle crash that blocked U.S. Highway 93 for hours.

The collision occurred just after 12:10 p.m. about three miles north of the intersection of U.S. 93 and Idaho Highway 25, east of Jerome. All four vehicles involved were heading north.

Dayle Fowler, 62, of Hailey, was stopped in a construction zone when for unknown reasons she got out of her 2003 Lexus sport utility vehicle, according to Idaho State Police. That's when a Volvo semitrailer driven by Byrus Gatewood, 47, of West Valley, Utah, struck first her and then her Lexus. At the scene, ISP Sgt. Kent Oliver said that the semi's driver wasn't paying attention to the stopped traffic ahead.

Gatewood's vehicle continued on to hit a 1999 Toyota 4Runner driven by Jeffrey Bacon, 46, of Hailey, and a 2011 Kia Optima driven by William Smallwood, 80, of Sun Valley. Everyone in all three vehicles wore their seat belts, and no one besides Fowler was injured in the collision. Fowler was pronounced dead at the scene.

ISP reported that weather was not a factor in the crash.

Emergency personnel from ISP and Jerome and Lincoln counties responded to the crash scene, and immediately blocked both lanes on U.S. 93 after the incident. The Idaho Transportation Department was also on scene.

The crash remained under investigation Tuesday evening.

Study: Recreation trumps ranchers on BLM land

BOISE(AP) — A new federal study shows recreationists and the industry that supports their outdoor activities on lands managed by the U.S. Bureau of Land Management are outpacing traditional users like ranchers, loggers and miners.

The results are a look into the Department of Interior's economic effects in Idaho, a state where the BLM manages more than 11.9 million acres, mostly desert and canyon lands at lower elevations.

The report finds that recreation accounts for more than six times more jobs than grazing and timber industries, and three times more than energy and minerals. Jobs and economic benefits from recreationists using BLM land include rafting and hunting outfitters and their support staff as well as the stores and merchants who sell food, gas and other supplies for the trips, the Idaho Statesman reported in a story published Tuesday.

"We spend thousands of dollars a year in Costco and Albertsons, and bus mechanics," said David Konigsberg, operations director for ROW Adventures, which runs rafting trips on rivers like the Salmon, Owyhee, Bruneau and Jarbidge.

Still, BLM officials say ranching and resource industries remain primary economic drivers in many of the small, rural communities near federal land.

"Certainly in some of these rural communities they are important," BLM Deputy State Director Jeff Foss said. "But if you put it in the statewide context, recreation is more important."

The report's findings could

State director defends bonuses

Rewarding and motivating state employees cited as reason for the bonuses

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

The state Legislative Services Office director has strongly defended the one-time bonuses paid to all his agency's staffers, telling legislators in a Monday email that rewarding and motivating employees, especially in tough times, is part of his duty.

LSO Director Jeff Youtz's note to lawmakers came following media reports about $167,000 in one-time bonuses going out to 102 state employees at six agencies. The bulk of that — almost $95,000 — went to LSO staffers, who each got a bonus ranging from $1,281 to $1,984, records show.

"While balancing the budget can be tough, you take what you are given without complaint and make your agency function in the best way possible for our

Fish and Game halts distribution of 'cracker shells'

Longtime tool used to scare off creatures now requires a license

By Kimberlee Kruesi
Times-News writer

The Idaho Department of Fish and Game will no longer issue non-lethal "cracker shells" as a way of scaring off intrusive wild animals.

The U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives issued a letter last November announcing that all explosive pest-control devices are only to be issued to individuals with a federal explosive license.

However, Fish and Game officials are still determining how that affects cracker shells, which are fired from a single-barrel shotgun directly above an animal. The loud shot is used to scare off animals such

Bug crew seeks biocontrol sites

Times-News

The Lincoln County Bug Crew needs your help in its battle against noxious weeds.

The team of Lincoln County students raises and releases various bugs on areas infested with noxious weeds, allowing the bugs to kill the offending plants rather than chemicals or other methods. This year's crew members are Kelcie Hutchins, Matthew Decker, Brett Riley, Elizabeth Mabbutt and Thayne Hagen.

The crew is seeking sites infested with hoary cress and Russian knapweed, and is monitoring the growth of a variety of other noxious weeds. To report noxious weeds in your area, call Tri-County Weed Superintendent Terry Ruby at 934-5569. To learn more about the bug crew or suggest a site, contact supervisor Sue Haffner at 886-2719 or suehaffner@gmail.com.

renew the debate and criticism that the BLM has catered more to ranchers and the timber and mining industries, groups that traditionally have wielded more political clout.

Wyatt Prescott, executive director of the Idaho Cattle Association, doesn't dispute the findings of the report. But he takes a different approach to the results. Prescott says ranchers ultimately save the agency money because they fix fences, practice conservation and are on the lookout for fires and weed invasions.

"It saves the agency money because the ranchers are out on the ground doing stewardship," Prescott said.

Budget figures show the BLM manages its land more cheaply than comparable federal agencies. It averages $1.70 an acre for management costs, compared to $8 for the National Forest Service and about $9.50 for the National Park Service.

National forests, which are managed under the Department of Agriculture and total 20 million acres in Idaho, also now account for more recreation jobs than timber, grazing and mining.

Yet the BLM spends about $81 million annually to manage grazing and timber land, compared to $68 million on recreation management programs.

John Robison, public lands associate for the Idaho Conservation League, said this disparity should be changed to meet today's economic needs and realities.

"A more appropriate name for today's BLM might be the Bureau of Land and Memories of the Good Old Days," Robison said.

The report also shows BLM employees and workers hired to fulfill jobs paid by grants to clean up abandoned mines, royalties from phosphate mining and timber payments account for Idaho's total of 11,310 jobs tied to the Department of Interior.

as geese, elk or wolves from farms or roads.

The state agency in the past has distributed the shells to landowners. Both parties may need the explosive license to use them now.

"This decision is still relatively new to us, so while we are no longer issuing them, we are still looking into if the cracker shell falls under the 'explosive' category," said Mike Keckler, Fish and Game spokesman.

Former President George W. Bush signed the Safe Explosives Act in 2002. Since then, various agencies across the nation have struggled to define what could or could not be classified as an explosive.

ATF lists all of its firearms licensees on its website. However, it does not list those who have been issued an explosive license.

The Magic Valley Region Fish and Game office received the news about the decision to stop using cracker shells in an email earlier this week, said Brad Lowe, the region's landowner coordinator.

"They were our first line of defense when a farmer called asking for help," Lowe said.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Wildlife Services has also stopped issuing the explosive devices, said Todd Grimm, the agency's western district supervisor.

"I don't really know what else people would use. I think we'll just see more people getting their own explosive license," he said. "They were a relatively successful device when used in the right situation, that is until animals figured out they were useless after people shot at them so much."

Grimm estimated that Wildlife Services, which does not have an explosive license, distributes roughly 1,000 cracker shells a year.

Lowe said the Magic Valley Fish and Game office was still deciding whether to apply for the license or stop issuing the cracker shells. However, finding an alternative might be difficult.

"There's just nothing quite like it," he said. "There isn't anything out there that can shoot an explosive about 100 yards away. We're going to be creative to find something else."

Power Co. joins Cassia Co. in Gateway West records request

By Laurie Welch

Times-News writer

What's next

The proposed Gateway West high-voltage transmission line has seen plenty of twists and turns since its 2007 introduction. Here's what's on the horizon:

Sept. 30: BLM environmental study on proposed routes is due for release

Dec. 30 (or before, if study is released earlier): 90-day public comment period ends

June 2013: Target date for BLM announcement of a preferred route near the Idaho-Nevada border.

Power County Commissioner Vicki Meadows said her county approved the records request Monday, after Cassia County did the same on Friday at the urging of its Gateway West Task Force, which is mainly comprised of private landowners who'd be affected by the transmission line. On the same day, task force Chairman Brent Stoker urged his members to refrain from speaking to the media and asked county commissioners to comment on the issue only by written release.

Stoker previously said that the task force is prepared to take the issue of the line's siting to court.

BLM Gateway West Project

BLM wants to approve a route that won't bump the area's troubled sage grouse population closer to becoming an endangered species.

Ultimately, George said, the final route will be approved by a multitude of public agencies across Idaho and Wyoming, which will be "complicated."

If a consensus on a route isn't reached after the comment period, George said the BLM will issue its final environmental study and announce its preferred route based on the information gathered. The target date for that decision is June 2013.

The final decision on a route could be left to the Idaho Public Utilities Commission, which George said would have to approve passing any additional route costs on to the power companies' customers.

With so many parties involved, George said related lawsuits are possible.

"That could happen if someone folds their arms and says 'We're not talking to you,' and there is only one thing a stakeholder will approve," he said.

CSI camps give students close look at scientific research

By Laurie Welch

Times-News writer

BURLEY — Nearly 50 youngsters are having fun this week exploring different types of cells during the College of Southern Idaho's science camp.

Mini-Cassia science camp coordinator Amy Christopherson said the camp, themed "An ExCELLent Adventure," gives elementary school children a chance to have fun with science.

"We hear over and over that science is stepping out of the school curriculums,"

Christopherson said. "I wanted to bring science back into this community."

Christopherson said Mini-Cassia children have many summer opportunities, though most are sports-oriented rather than academic. The camp offers first- through sixth-grade students a chance to learn about biology, physics and chemistry.

Four Mini-Cassia teachers are receiving continuing education credits this year through camp participation. Paul Elementary School teacher Shauna Davis said this is the second year she has helped out with the camp.

"Kids don't get exposed to science much," Davis said. "This is a way they can have fun and get hands-on with it. When you expose them to science they see that it's not ominous and beyond their reach. Science is about everyday living and the things they do every day, whether they know it or not."

CSI biology instructor Bill Ebener helped the young scientists extract DNA from various plants like wheat and strawberries on Tuesday, demonstrating how the strawberries had been genetically altered by humans to contain more DNA than is actually needed to plump up the fruit.

"Science takes a whole community to piece things together and (the students) get to see they are a vital part of that community," Ebener said. "It doesn't take a degree to be a scientist, it just takes being curious."

citizens," Youtz wrote. "The legislature and the governor have demanded a smaller, leaner and more efficient government, but that does not mean you throw out your commitment to the exceptional staff who are doing more with less."

The bonuses have raised eyebrows in some circles, coming as agencies throughout state government have dealt with the sluggish economy and slashed budgets through staff furloughs, layoffs and keeping vacant positions unfilled.

At LSO, six full-time and five seasonal positions were trimmed, along with staff furloughs and cuts to operational expenses in the last three years, Youtz wrote, adding that the savings from downsizing allowed him to give the one-time payments while still returning thousands back to the state's general fund.

"I'm not complaining, and in fact this type of experience is good, forcing an evaluation of proper and essential government services," he said. "The taxpayer deserves no less of an effort. But if agency directors or public officials do not find ways to recognize, reward and motivate employees, particularly in tough times, they are not fulfilling their responsibilities to the public."

The office's staff assists legislators with a variety of clerical and administrative tasks. The one-time bonuses weren't paid to legislators.

Lawmakers have mixed views on the bonuses.

Rep. Stephen Hartgen, R-Twin Falls, said the action will strike others as unfair, noting that many other state employees who are equally professional and valued aren't getting any bonuses.

"That sort of sends the message to the state workers that you've got to have an inside connection or something," he said. "Perception is critical. ... I just think it was ill-advised. It wasn't transparent enough."

Sen. Dean Cameron, R-Rupert and co-chairman of the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee, said he's comfortable with how LSO handled its budget because the employee payments were one-time instead of ongoing, permanent raises. The bigger concern, he said, is agencies spending one-time savings for ongoing raises that will need to be paid out in the future.

Rep. Wendy Jaquet, D-Ketchum and a member of JFAC, said agency heads are responsible for managing their budgets — as Youtz has done.

"I don't have a problem with it," she said.

Rep. Leon Smith, R-Twin Falls, said while the perception is problematic, he agrees with the explanation.

"I can't argue with the perception, but when you know the details of it, I can see why he did it," Smith said. "If I were in his place and I had the funds to do it, I probably would have done the same."

Other agencies that gave one-time bonuses were the Department of Finance, Appellate Public Defenders office, Industrial Commission, Board of Pharmacy and the Idaho Commission for Libraries.

TaB rises from the soft drink undead

At my age, you never expect to be confronted with the nightmares of your long-ago youth.

But in the supermarket the other day — right over there, in the soft drink aisle between the Diet Mello Yello and the Fanta Aloe Vera Muscat — I encountered a six-pack of TaB.

TaB, manufactured by the Coca-Cola Co., is a diet cola whose taste has been described as “carbonated sheep dip with a touch of citrus.” Coke rushed TaB into production in an effort to compete with Diet Rite cola, the first diet pop.

It wasn’t much of a contest. Yet TaB stayed on the market. You can actually buy it in Idaho. For $2.59, cash-money.

Why?

Like Tang, Sanka and banana-flavored Jell-O, TaB was bad technology chasing misperceived demand. Not even the astronauts really liked Tang, a fruit-flavored powered breakfast drink specially developed by General Foods Corp. for use on the first American manned spaceflights.

And yet it’s still on the market. So is Sanka, the powdered decaffeinated coffee that was actually developed by mad German scientists.

Some have speculated that any brand-name, once established, never dies in our culture. On its website, Coke says TaB “still has fiercely loyal fans who have been known to travel hundreds of miles to find their favorite drink.”

These are disturbed people.

After TaB was introduced in 1963, I remember the soda jerk behind the lunch counter at Woolworth’s in Pocatello pushing “TaB floats.”

“Try it!” he’d said. “The ice cream kills the taste!”

But by the turn of the 1970s it was considered way cool to affect fondness for TaB.

My first serious girlfriend, Pam, was in the habit of ordering TaB with double cheeseburgers, and she did so without a touch of irony. It was expected, naturally, that I would do the same.

So we’d sit there, in a corner booth at Elmer’s, for hours on end. She’d slurp down TaB after TaB, and I would watch the color of the TaB in my glass slowly dissolve as the ice melted — until it was the tint of lighter fluid.

Eventually, the inevitable happened: We went to a kegger in the summer between our junior and senior years and Pam mixed TaB with sloe gin. I had to break up with her after that.

My mom explained to me the appeal of TaB. She came of age during World War II, when everything was rationed.

Postum was an awful-tasting powdered roasted grain beverage sold by Kraft Foods as a coffee substitute. It was made from wheat bran, wheat, molasses and maltodextrin from corn, and the only characteristics it had in common with coffee were that it was served hot and in a cup.

“TaB is your generation’s Postum,” my mother said. “We had to drink Postum to beat Hitler. Who knows? Maybe TaB can win the Cold War.”

We did win the Cold War, but as far as I know TaB was never deployed against the Russians.

There are international rules against chemical warfare, you know.

Hazelton woman gets probation for injury accident

Times-News

Lisa Hensdell received a five-year probationary term in lieu of prison time Monday at her sentencing for leaving the scene of an injury accident.

Hensdell, 44, of Hazelton, was convicted of the felony in Jerome County 5th District Court early in May. Last July, she was accused of hitting a 14-year-old boy with her car and leaving him in a ditch alongside Idaho Highway 25.

Judge John Butler ordered a suspended prison term of three to five years for the felony, and other suspended county jail time for two misdemeanor convictions: 90 days for inattentive driving and 180 days for driving without privileges. All prison and jail time will run concurrent if imposed.

As a condition of her probation, Hensdell must serve 100 hours of community service. Her driver’s license will be suspended for one year. Restitution will be decided at a September hearing.

Could recreation push grazing off federal lands?

It's a trend that's been developing for a while, but this month's news that folks who provide recreation services for a living far outnumber cattlemen, sheepherders and miners on federal lands in Idaho could mean some profound changes ahead.

Public land grazing has been important to south-central Idaho's economy for more than a century, and ranchers enjoy some clout with the BLM over management decisions. The BLM continues to spend more for grazing and timber lands — about $81 million — compared to $68 million for recreation management, according to the Idaho Statesman.

But the ranchers' position may be weakening. Recreation accounts for nearly 10 times more jobs than grazing and timber on Idaho federal lands and three times more than energy and minerals, according to a new study of the Department of Interior's economic impact on the state.

The total economic output of recreation on DOI-administered lands is 5½ times more than grazing and timber and 2½ times more than energy and minerals.

That's also the trend in Idaho's national forests, which are managed under the Department of Agriculture.

All told, there were 8.1 million recreational visits to federal public lands in Idaho in 2009, supporting 6,659 jobs and a total impact of $553 million.

And that's just the tip of iceberg. Off-roaders, rafters, campers and hikers spend millions of dollars with Idaho retailers for supplies, and increasingly buy at stores in the state's major cities — not the bait shops and C-stores closer to the backcountry.

All of which amounts to a growing, largely urban and suburban coalition of recreationists with money to spend. And its interests sometimes don't coincide with the ranchers'.

There's a lot of public land out there — 11.9 million BLM acres in Idaho — but recreationists are using a bigger portion of it and spending more to do so, which will inevitably alter the agency's priorities in managing it.

And there will be more frequent clashes along the way between those who work the land and those who go there for fun.

Why social media is anything but

Mexican food and beer. That's what retired Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Connor suggests might pull this fractured nation back together again. Those were the tools she used to reach consensus in the 1970s when she was a leader in the Arizona Legislature.

Gregory Rodriguez

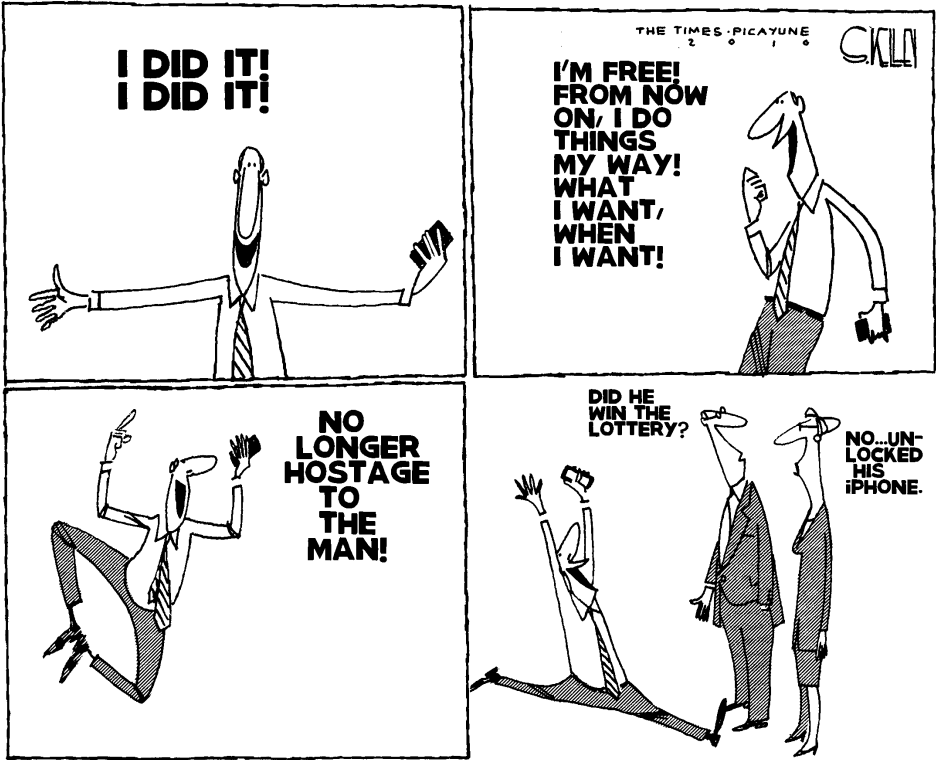

"I'll tell you what I did," she said last week at a conference in Washington, D.C., sponsored by Arizona State University's Center for Social Cohesion. "It was pretty simple: I'd get everybody together and cook Mexican food, and we'd sit around outside and eat Mexican food, and drink beer, and make friends with each other. That worked."

I've been pondering how that old-fashioned advice about the value of breaking bread can have relevance today, in an era when a Facebook message posted in Downey, Calif., can be read instantly in Beirut.

The problem with that kind of hyper-connectivity, of course, is that despite all the newfangled ways we've developed to communicate across all sorts of boundaries, we're increasingly deciding to talk, tweet and Facebook with folks who are more or less like ourselves.

We live in an age in which overarching collective identities and institutions are collapsing in favor of narrower groupings by affinity. Think of the decline of network television, the rise of political independents, and the nichification of politics and the marketplace.

While social media enthusiasts love to crow about the flowering of a million voices, I worry about the erosion of the social contract and national consensus.

It's not that I'm nostalgic for the days of Walter Cronkite or Eric Sevareid. The sense of national unity the country projected during the postwar years tended to exclude minorities and suppress dissent.

But I do worry about our newfound fondness for burrowing into tiny social cubbyholes where it's all too easy to forget the very notion of the common good.

Paradoxically, it's the multiplicity of channels and social niches that have led many to seek refuge in narrow niches.

Journalist Bill Bishop, author of The Big Sort: Why the Clustering of Like-Minded America Is Tearing Us Apart, has noted that with the growing diversity of choices we have now, "more burden is put upon the person to create her or his own world." As the bigger institutions in the country dissolve, he said, "more people are having to create their own identities — they have to choose their own Gods. They have to choose their sex. They have to choose their own family style. It's easier to do that if you're in a community where your choices are being reinforced."

All that is a big part of why, even as the U.S. becomes more diverse from place to place, Americans are becoming less and less likely to communicate with people who have different perspectives and come from different walks of life.

Not surprisingly, this clustering by lifestyle is reflected in our politics. While political beliefs were once bound up with class and status, today they increasingly define our cultural identities and vice versa. Now, as University of Maryland political scientist James Gimpel has argued, you can easily guess a person's political persuasion if you know the music he listens to or the snacks he enjoys. In other words, partisanship has extended deeper into our lives.

The biggest threat to social cohesion, then, is not so much political, racial and ethnic tensions as it is social isolation and narrow-mindedness.

No, breaking bread isn't a panacea for the country's growing social divisions, particularly those created by inequality. But we can't even begin to find solutions if we don't acknowledge that the many new ways we have of connecting to one another have given us new and better ways to avoid dealing with people who are different.

"So how as a nation can we sit around and eat Mexican food, and drink beer and make friends?" Justice O'Connor asked. "That's the question. If we can do that on a broader scale, I think we'll come out of it all right."

No safety from food poisoning in these numbers

If we needed further evidence that the party of "family values" only values wealthy families, we have it now; when Republicans in Congress say "women and children first," they mean "first to throw overboard."

The House's reactionary majority wants to dismantle two aspects of the federal system that serve the majority of us not perfectly but decently: the Women, Infants and Children Program, one of the most effective of all social welfare programs, and the Food and Drug Administration, among whose jobs is the increasingly difficult one of protecting us from the kind of outbreak of E. coli that just killed at least 39 people in Germany, gravely — perhaps mortally — sickened another 800 and gave another couple thousand a few of those days none of us ever wants.

We've had our share of foodborne illnesses in the past, but have not kept up with the increasing threat of E. coli. One in six Americans gets sick from the food we eat every year — that's about 48 million people, or enough to fill your average baseball stadium a thousand times with people having extremely unpleasant symptoms — and there are 3,000 food-related deaths annually. This is a food system that Georgia Congressman Jack Kingston calls "99.99 percent safe." I guess he wasn't one of the 16 percent last year who fell ill, but maybe he should talk to a million or two of them; they should be easy enough to find.

As we near the 10th anniversary of 9/11, we're going to be reminded more and more of how much 3,000 deaths from hostile attackers can hurt. Yet put aside the questionable decisions we made in anger and sorrow that have cost us $1.2 trillion — and another 6,000 or so American lives — in wars whose benefits are far from clear. Think, instead, that the annual costs of foodborne illness are estimated to be around $152 billion a year, and consider that the entire proposed FDA budget is around $4 billion, and that a measly $280 million or so of that was destined for the Food Safety Modernization Act, which would expand activity geared toward protecting us from E. coli and other foodborne threats.

In fact, the House majority proposes funding the FDA at nearly $87 million less than it's currently getting, and $205 million less than President Obama's modest request. Which means that the already-passed Food Safety Modernization Act probably will not even be implemented. Or, if funds are transferred from within FDA to allow its partial implementation, other FDA programs that are no less important will become less effective.

Cutting FDA funds is a direct attack on the health and welfare of every person in this country; cutting WIC by 10 percent may at first seem to affect fewer people, but a closer look shows good reason for us all to be concerned. It's estimated that half of all American infants and about a quarter of all kids under four have participated in WIC. Not only caring people but impartial people consider the WIC program money well spent: every dollar spent saves three in health care costs during the first two months of a child's life. Not a bad return on investment.

Take that away, and who pays those added health care costs? You. Me. Us. Yet the House version of the Agriculture Appropriations Bill would end food assistance for as many as 350,000 low-income women and children, and would put those women and children at risk for less-safe pregnancies, premature births, more infant deaths, worse nutrition and more. This from people who mostly claim to be "pro-life" yet for whom the great pleasure of claiming to "save" less than a billion dollars now outweighs the risk of spending many times that in the form of healthcare costs and mortality in the near future. Not to mention the suffering, which they don't.

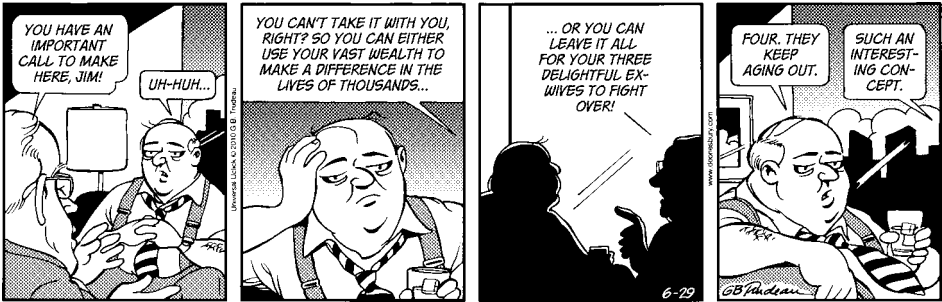

The numbers boggle the mind, but here it is, simply: With both FDA and WIC, we are talking millions in spending to save billions in health care costs. Shall we count the ways in which our representatives might save enough money to pay full freight for both of these programs, besides the future savings, besides coughing up 0.632 percent on what we've spent in Iraq, Afghanistan and Libya?

Let's see: reducing direct subsidies for commodity crops, which costs us at least $5 billion? Negative. Cutting subsidies for ethanol, another $6 billion? Nope. Reduction or elimination of the Bush tax cuts, which have cost us somewhere around $39 billion in just the seven months since their extension by our good-guy president? Fuggedaboutit. An enforcement of the corporate tax rates, which would yield tens of billions? Hah!

U.S. action in Libya wins Senate panel's OK

By Kathleen Hennessey
Tribune Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved a resolution Tuesday authorizing U.S. involvement in the NATO-led mission in Libya, a small step forward in a stubborn legal stalemate between Congress and the White House over the war.

If adopted by both chambers of Congress, the resolution would give approval to U.S. involvement for up to one year, but would restrict any expansion of the U.S. role. Four Republican members of the committee joined the Democratic majority to pass the measure on a 14-5 vote.

The White House said President Barack Obama “welcomes” the resolution but also insists he does not need it under the federal War Powers Act, a point on which many in Congress, including Democrats, disagree.

That disagreement has left the 3-month-old conflict in a legal limbo, as the White House maintains U.S. involvement is too limited to require congressional authorization and congressional leaders insist that the president is violation of the War Powers Act.

Two Idaho landowners to get day in high court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court has agreed to consider the rights of two Idaho landowners when confronted with an order from the Environmental Protection Agency that they are violating the federal Clean Water Act.

On Tuesday the justices added the case of Chantell and Michael Sackett to their lineup for the term that begins in October.

The Sacketts contend that EPA left them with no practical way to object to the agency's determination that work on their half-acre parcel in a subdivision near Priest Lake violated federal law governing wetlands and tried to coerce their compliance through the threat of costly fines.

They say they would have to apply for a federal permit that could cost as much as the property itself, or wait for the EPA to go to court to force them to comply.

The Sacketts took their case to the Supreme Court after their appeal was rejected by the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals last fall.

“The decision to take the case and review an anti-property rights ruling by the Ninth Circuit should be encouraging for all property owners,” said the couple's attorney, Damien Schiff, a senior lawyer with the Pacific Legal Foundation.

Coburn, Lieberman seek to raise Medicare age

By David Espo
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Two Senate rebels jumped into Congress' cut-the-deficit competition on Tuesday, proposing to raise the age of Medicare eligibility to 67 and increase monthly premiums for millions of current beneficiaries.

“We can't save Medicare as we know it,” said Sen. Joseph Lieberman, I-Conn., who authored the plan with Republican Sen. Tom Coburn of Oklahoma. “We can only save Medicare if we change it,” he added in an apparent jab at President Barack Obama and congressional Democrats.

Democrats reacted with criticism of the proposal, which Coburn said was designed to rescue the financially imperiled program and help the nation confront a “wall of debt.” Republicans betrayed no sign of support either.

If nothing else, the response underscored the difficulty of legislative free-lancing at a time the Obama administration and congressional leaders are struggling to negotiate a compromise that cuts future deficits and clears the way for an increase in the nation's $14.3 trillion debt.

Without a debt limit increase by Aug. 2, Treasury Secretary Timothy Geithner has warned, the government could default, risking calamity for the U.S. economy and serious effects worldwide.

Republicans walked out of bipartisan talks last week but nevertheless said negotiations had been fruitful. In the days since, Obama has stepped up his personal involvement in the effort.

After meeting separately with the Senate's Republican and Democratic leaders on Monday, he invited the Democratic leadership to a White House meeting on Wednesday.

In the earlier talks, led by Vice President Joe Biden, key lawmakers had outlined a series of proposals to cut several hundred billion dollars over the next decade.

Other proposed cuts were on the table, including nearly $1 trillion from the assumed end of the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan. Officials familiar with the negotiations say Republicans are reluctant to count that money toward any agreement, saying they want more tangible cuts in domestic programs before agreeing to vote for an increased debt limit.

Los Alamos nuclear weapons lab under siege from wildfire

The Associated Press

LOS ALAMOS, N.M. — A wildfire burning near the desert birthplace of the atomic bomb advanced on the Los Alamos laboratory and thousands of outdoor drums of plutonium-contaminated waste Tuesday as authorities stepped up efforts to protect the site and monitor the air for radiation.

Officials at the nation's premier nuclear weapons lab gave assurances that dangerous materials were safely stored and capable of withstanding flames from the 93-square-mile fire, which as of midday was as close as 50 feet from the grounds.

A small patch of land at the laboratory caught fire Monday before firefighters quickly put it out. Teams were on high alert to pounce on any new blazes and spent the day removing limbs from the lab's perimeter.

“We are throwing absolutely everything at this that we got,” Democratic Sen. Tom Udall of New Mexico said in Los Alamos.

The fire has forced the evacuation of the entire city of Los Alamos, population 11,000, cast giant plumes of smoke over the region and raised fears among nuclear watchdogs that it will reach as many as 30,000 55-gallon drums of plutonium-contaminated waste.

“The concern is that these drums will get so hot that they'll burst. That would put this toxic material into the plume. It's a concern for everybody,” said Joni Arends, executive director of the Concerned Citizens for Nuclear Safety, an anti-nuclear group.

Arends' organization also worried that the fire could stir up nuclear-contaminated soil on lab property where experiments were conducted years ago. Burrowing animals have brought that contamination to the surface, she said.

Lab officials said there was very little risk of the fire reaching the drums of low-level nuclear waste, since the flames would have to jump through canyons first. Officials also stood ready to coat the drums with fire-resistant foam if the blaze got too close.

Spring-buying wave boosts home prices in 13 U.S. cities

By Derek Kravitz
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Home prices in most major U.S. cities are rising for the first time in eight months, boosted by an annual wave of spring buying. Analysts cautioned that the increases may be temporary and don't signal a rebound for the depressed home market.

Prices rose in 13 of the 20 cities tracked by the Standard & Poor's/Case-Shiller home-price index, according to the April report released Tuesday. The sharpest increases were in Washington, D.C. The next-largest were in San Francisco, Atlanta and Seattle.

The index covers metro areas that together make up about 50 percent of U.S. households. It measures sale prices of select homes in those cities compared with prices in January 2000. It then provides a three-month average. The April data is the latest available.

Last year, a tax credit for

IN A NUTSHELL

PRICES RISE: Home prices in most major U.S. cities rose in April for the first time in eight months, boosted by an annual wave of spring buying. But the increases may be temporary.
INCREASES AND DECREASES: The sharpest increases were in Washington, D.C., followed by San Francisco, Atlanta and Seattle. But six areas hit their lowest levels in nearly four years: Charlotte, Chicago, Detroit, Las Vegas, Miami and Tampa.
TOO EARLY: David M. Blitzer, chairman of the Standard & Poor's/Case-Shiller home-price index committee, noted that it is "much too early to tell if this is a turning point."

first-time buyers helped boost prices. They rose nearly 4 percent from April through July before falling more than 7 percent this winter to record lows. Prices in big metro areas sank in March to their lowest level since 2002.

The 0.7 percent increase in April was the first rise since July. The positive data came with a caveat: The figures weren't adjusted for seasonal factors, such as the buying that normally picks up in spring. Once the numbers are adjusted, prices actually fell in April.

David M. Blitzer, chairman of S&P's index committee, said the rise in the index was a "welcome shift from recent months." But he noted that much of the improvement was likely due to the start of the buying season.

"It is much too early to tell if this is a turning point or simply due to some warmer weather," he said.

One bright spot: Even when adjusted for seasonal factors, prices rose in some markets that had been pummeled by slumping sales: Atlanta, Minneapolis, Phoenix and Portland, Ore.

On the other hand, prices in six areas have reached their lowest levels in nearly four years: Charlotte, Chicago, Detroit, Las Vegas, Miami and Tampa.

In Atlanta, more than a quarter of homes sold in the past year were discounted: They sold for an average 9 percent less than they'd been listed for, according to data analyzed by the housing website Trulia.com.

Analysts noted that both buyers and sellers are reluctant to reach deals in the face of widespread price declines. And nearly 2 million foreclosures could hit the market over the next two years. Many foreclosures have been delayed while federal regulators, state attorneys general and banks review how those foreclosures were carried out over the past two years.

"All that does is kick the can down the road," said Daniel Alpert, managing partner at Westwood Capital, a New York investment bank.

Obama, Biden plan debt limit session with Senate Dems

By Jim Kuhn
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — At least they're still talking. While President Barack Obama and congressional Republican leaders have publicly dug in their heels on critical debt-limit negotiations, Obama's spokesman said Tuesday the president and Senate GOP leader Mitch McConnell will continue discussions.

Obama and Vice President Joe Biden spent more time in the Oval Office on Monday with McConnell than they did with a fellow Democrat, Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid. The president and vice president have scheduled another meeting for Wednesday to consult with Reid — and also invited Sens. Dick Durbin and Charles Schumer, both members of the Democratic leadership team.

The White House did not announce a new meeting with Republicans. But Obama spokesman Jay Carney called the meeting with McConnell "useful" and said that "importantly" they agreed to continue meeting. "They will continue to talk," McConnell spokesman Don Stewart had said after the meeting.

But about what? To be sure, neither McConnell nor Obama is fond of small talk.

Obama and Democrats insist that for there to be a deal on reducing long-term deficits, any agreement must include some tax increases on the wealthy or on corporations, mostly through closed loopholes. But before McConnell even walked into the white House, he had flatly rejected tax increases.

"It's time Washington take the hit," he said, "not the taxpayers."

That would seem to put a damper on the conversation. But the deal is crucial to winning congressional support for raising the government's borrowing limit, a step it must take by Aug. 2 to avoid a potential default. The current debt ceiling of $14.3 trillion would likely have to be increased by $2.4 trillion to last through the end of next year.

Alex Avery, director of research and education with the Hudson Institute's Center for Global Food Issues, addresses the Idaho Cattle Association's midyear meeting last week in Jackpot, Nev.

Researcher lauds grain, hormone use for cattle

By Cindy Snyder

Times-News correspondent

JACKPOT, Nev. — While grass-fed beef has gained a reputation as a sustainable, environmentally friendly way to raise cattle, a representative of one nonpartisan research organization told Idaho producers he wish they'd be more vocal in their support of grain feeding.

Alex Avery, the director of research and education at the Hudson Institute's Center for Global Food Issues, offered his support for the sustainability of grain feeding during the Idaho Cattle Association's midyear meeting, last week in Jackpot, Nev.

"I love the sustainability question," he said, "if it's an honest discussion."

In response to claims that using fossil fuels to grow corn and other portions of cattle feed contributes to global warming, Avery countered that corn production reduces greenhouse gas emissions by reducing the land required to produce each pound of beef. He claimed that U.S. producers used 13.3 million acres to produce cattle feed in 2007, a third of the land that would have to be maintained if only grass feeding was used.

He extolled feeders to put "environmentally friendly" or "sustainable" on their packaging.

"You are the change you want to see," he told them.

Avery also tackled criticism of the use of growth hormones for beef production, claiming that the hormones replace in castrated cattle what they'd naturally produce if left untouched. He said muscle growth from the hormones replaces fat growth, increasing feed yield.

"Using growth hormones improves feed efficiency by 20 percent. That saves a lot of land and greenhouse gases," Avery said. "The difference between hormone-supplemented beef and non-supplement beef is virtually indistinguishable."

Utilities Commission suspends Idaho Power rate-hike request

Times-News

Idaho Power Co.'s request to hike its rates by an average of 10 percent has been put on hold for up to six months.

The Idaho Public Utilities Commission suspended the request to allow its staff to thoroughly review the application, according to a Monday press release. In its request, Idaho Power claims it needs to earn $917.6 million in annual revenue to serve Idaho — about $82.6 million more than it currently collects.

Idaho Power provides electricity to nearly 500,000 southern Idaho and eastern Oregon customers. The company claims that greater electricity demand, aging infrastructure, increased building costs and increased requirements placed on it are driving the rate increase request.

The company is also asking for the pilot program Fixed Cost Adjustment — which allows it to recover

ABOUT THE REQUEST

Idaho Power's proposed rate increases vary among its types of customers:
14.8 percent for small commercial, industrial and irrigation customers
8.8 percent for residential customers (including $1 monthly service charge increase) the price of providing power when efficiency programs decrease its income — to be made permanent. It also seeks to shift incentives it pays to participants in demand-reduction programs to its base rates.

During review, Idaho Power will have to justify the requested increase as necessary to serve customers and prove it will be prudently incurred. The PUC will have the option to accept, reject or modify the request, and its decisions can be appealed to the Idaho Supreme Court by Idaho Power, its customers or intervenors.

Parties seeking to intervene on customers' behalf in the rate case have until Friday to file for intervenor status. Already, Micron Technology Inc., the Idaho Irrigation Pumpers Association and the Community Action Partnership Association of Idaho are among the parties that will participate as case intervenors.

Those without intervenor status will have the opportunity to submit written comments for the case, participate in public workshops and testify in upcoming hearings.

Hormones

Avery extolled the virtues of research on muscle growth and efficient growth hormone use done by scientists such as University of Idaho professor Gordon Murdoch, adding that producers need to change public perception of the practices now.

“I’m amazed by how long it takes to penetrate consciousness,” he said. “Now is the time start if you want some understanding 10 years from now about the technology that is coming”

He said the recession has given American agriculture, including

Google unveils latest social networking feat

By Barbara Ortutay
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Online search leader Google Inc. is taking yet another stab at social networking, as it tries to go up against Facebook in this wildly popular and lucrative segment of the Internet. This time the project is called Google+ and it aims to make online sharing more like real life.

“We think people communicate in very rich ways,” said Vic Gundotra, senior vice president of engineering at Google. “The online tools we have to choose from give us very rigid services.”

Other social networking tools make selective sharing within small groups difficult. They don’t allow for the nuances that people are used to in offline communication and because they call so many acquaintances “friends,” said Gundotra in a blog post announcing the service.

Raw milk’s popularity grows in valley

By Melissa Davlin
Times-News writer

At the Friday Night Market in downtown Twin Falls, among the jewelry and baked goods vendors, were two goat milk producers — both offering cheese and raw milk.

Raw milk has come a long way since two years ago, when small producers couldn’t legally sell the product. Since Idaho passed new regulations on raw milk in the 2010 legislative session, the unpasteurized, nonhomogenized milk is easier to find at farmers markets, food co-ops and directly from the producers.

Jennifer Grasso, co-owner of From Seed to Store in Buhl, said raw milk is popular with her customers. From Seed to Store carries raw goat milk from two Buhl producers and cheese made from raw goat milk from another Buhl farm. You’ll pay more for this milk: $2 per quart plus a $1.50 bottle deposit, or $4.25 for a half-gallon from a different farm.

“If we could find raw cow milk, we would buy that,” Grasso said. “It’s hard to come by.”

Idaho’s Bounty — an online food co-op based in Wood River Valley and adding a weekly Twin Falls pick-up point today — carries raw cow milk from a Fruitland farm.

Raw goat milk is easier to find, though, and its popularity is increasing. Gena Herzinger of Green Grass and Sunshine Farm in Buhl said she got more customers after talking to the Times-News about raw milk in May 2010.

“The demand for it is growing every week,” Herzinger said. Last year, she became the first producer in south-central Idaho to receive a permit to sell raw milk, and is the only producer she knows of who continued milking throughout the winter. Since

WANT A TASTE?

- Raw milk is getting easier to find in Magic Valley. Here are a few places where you can score a jug:
- Sta Well Health Food, 1563 Fillmore No. 1B, Twin Falls; 733-8311; raw goat milk.
 - From Seed to Store, 106 S. Broadway, Buhl; 543-9879; raw goat milk and cheese.
 - Idaho’s Bounty cooperative, with weekly drop-off points in Twin Falls, Buhl, Ketchum and Hailey; idahosbounty.org; raw goat milk, raw cow milk, cheese.
 - Wood River Sustainability Center, 308 S. River St., Hailey; 309-3360; raw goat milk.
 - Twin Falls Farmers Market, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturdays, North College Road across from the College of Southern Idaho’s Expo building; raw goat milk and cheese.
 - Friday Night Market, 5-8 p.m. Fridays, Main Avenue between Shoshone Street and Gooding Street, Twin Falls; raw goat milk and cheese.

— Melissa Davlin

then, more have popped up in Buhl and Hagerman. (The Idaho State Department of Agriculture doesn’t list licensed producers on its website, and a public records request for raw milk providers in south-central Idaho wasn’t returned by Monday evening.)

Nancy Boling of Sweetwater Farm in Buhl recently got her license to sell raw goat milk. She doesn’t have many milk customers yet, she said, and uses most of her milk to make cheese.

“I go to the farmers market, and I have had a couple of return customers,” she said. Sweetwater’s milk is also $2 per quart, plus a $1.50 bottle deposit.

HOW IDAHO’S LAW CHANGED ON RAW MILK

Changes approved by the 2010 Idaho Legislature allow for two ways consumers can get raw milk from smaller producers. (Larger, Grade A dairies have always been able to sell it, but that requires specialized barns, equipment and sanitation standards.)

First, a farm can have up to seven cows or 15 goats or sheep that are partially owned by non-farmers; the non-farmers may consume but not sell the raw milk. These are known as herd-share or cow-share operations.

Second, a farm can have up to three cows or seven goats or sheep producing milk to be sold for human consumption. This is the “small-herd exemption” to the regulations about raw milk that apply to larger operations.

Under the new code, the herd-share or small-herd exemption operations do not have to meet Grade A dairy requirements for facilities and equipment. But both Grade A dairies and the smaller operations must meet Grade A requirements for the quality of the raw milk, which includes bacteria limits; the milk is tested frequently.

Livestock owners must apply for a permit from the Idaho State Department of Agriculture to sell raw milk to the public, and the operation must meet inspection standards to receive a permit.

A Saucy way to eat local

New restaurant serves as local-food co-op’s new site

By Melissa Davlin
Times-News writer

Still reeling from last month’s sudden closure of the Local Dish restaurant? This week, it’ll get easier again to be a local-foods fan in Twin Falls.

California transplants Tay and Mike Dougherty are opening Saucy, a local-minded restaurant that focuses on seasonal produce, within the next week. Starting today, the restaurant will also serve as a weekly pick-up point for Idaho’s Bounty, a Wood River Valley-based food cooperative.

Saucy’s menu will revolve around seasonal produce, depending on what vegetables the pair can get from local organic farmers.

“It’s going to be a real kind of loose menu that way,” Tay said.

She plans to have barbecue-friendly sandwiches like chicken leg sandwiches — inspired by a dish her husband had in the Caribbean — and veggie kabob sandwiches. Dessert fans won’t be disappointed: Tay makes fresh fruit gelatin with pineapple, berries and pomegranates, topped with creme fraiche. The restaurant will have barbecue

Even the water gets special attention at Saucy. It will use Purity Sweet water from Murphy Hot Springs for ice, coffee and the gelatin.

Saucy, in the former Party Center building on Addison Avenue, offers an outdoor patio, yurt and three indoor rooms for diners. Customers can rent out rooms or the yurt for wedding receptions, conferences and other events. Mike also plans to host cooking classes.

This trio of tabbouleh salads can light up your July Fourth cookout

By Alison Ladman
For The Associated Press

When in doubt, add whole grains. Or even better, start with them.

When you're assembling your salads for this year's July Fourth celebration, consider this trio of naturally healthy tabbouleh. Tabbouleh is a Middle Eastern salad of bulgur wheat, parsley and tomatoes flavored with mint, scallions, lemon juice and olive oil. Composed primarily of whole grains and vegetables, this dish is low in calories and high in fiber and protein.

Using different combinations of whole grains, herbs and vegetables, you also can create similarly nutritious and delicious tabbouleh-like salads.

Being a cold salad, with no mayonnaise, this dish is perfect for a barbecue or picnic. Consider serving them in lettuce cups, with pita chips to scoop with or spooned into a pita pocket. You also could make it a meal by incorporating some diced or shredded chicken breast and serving it over a bed of greens.

TROPICAL TABBOULEH

Start to finish: 15 minutes. Servings: 4.
2 cups cooked and cooled pearl barley
1 cup firmly packed chopped fresh cilantro
1/2 cup chopped fresh mint
3 scallions, sliced
3 tablespoons lime juice
2 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
1 cup diced mango
1/4 teaspoon allspice
Salt and ground black pepper, to taste

In a medium bowl, combine all ingredients. Toss well, then season with salt and pepper.

MEDITERRANEAN TABBOULEH

Start to finish: 15 minutes. Servings: 4.

2 cups cooked and cooled farro
1 cup chopped fresh basil
1/2 cup chopped fresh mint
1/4 cup finely chopped red onion
3 tablespoons balsamic vinegar
2 tablespoons chopped oil-packed sundried tomato
1 tablespoon oil from sundried tomatoes
2 tablespoons chopped Kalamata olives
1 yellow bell pepper, cored and diced
1/4 cup crumbled feta cheese
Salt and ground black pepper, to taste

In a medium bowl, combine all ingredients. Toss well, then season with salt and pepper.

CALIFORNIA TABBOULEH

Start to finish: 15 minutes. Servings: 4.

1 Granny Smith apple, diced
3 tablespoons cider vinegar
2 cups cooked and cooled brown rice
1 small fennel bulb, cubed
1/2 cup chopped fresh parsley
2 tablespoons chopped fresh thyme
1/4 cup chopped fresh chives
2 tablespoons honey
1 tablespoon olive oil
1/4 cup crumbled blue cheese
1/4 cup toasted sliced almonds
Salt and ground black pepper, to taste

In a medium bowl, toss the apple with the vinegar. Add the remaining ingredients, then toss well. Season with salt and black pepper.

Lunch isn't the only way for local foodies to get their fix.

On Wednesday afternoons, Idaho's Bounty customers can pick up their orders at the restaurant's yurt. Idaho's Bounty is a web-based food cooperative with more than 50 southern Idaho food producers from Magic Valley, Treasure Valley and Wood River Valley who provide veggies, meat, grains, cheese and other food items. Members pay an annual fee and place weekly orders, then pick them up during a designated time. Previously, the pick-up location closest to Twin Falls was in Buhl — other pick-up points are in Boise, Caldwell, Stanley, Hailey and Ketchum.

So when can you try Saucy's goods? Tay wasn't sure — the couple had hoped to open their restaurant earlier this week, but that didn't pan out. They want to have the barbecue going and ready for customers in the next week.

"We're hoping for that for sure," she said.

Reporter Melissa Davlin may be reached at 735-3234 or melissa.davlin@lee.net.

Raw milk doesn't come without controversy. According to the Food and Drug Administration, unpasteurized milk can carry dangerous bacteria, including salmonella, E. coli and listeria.

The bacteria are especially dangerous for pregnant women, children, the elderly and people with weakened immune systems, and can cause vomiting, diarrhea, abdominal pain, miscarriage and flu-like symptoms. In Michigan earlier this month, three women were diagnosed with Q fever, a rare bacterial infection, after reportedly drinking raw cow milk.

But raw milk proponents like Grasso say that the product is easier to digest, and pasteurization kills valuable enzymes and nutrients. Raw milk from healthy animals and sanitary conditions isn't as dangerous, fans say, and any improperly handled food can be contaminated.

"We think that we have to kill all the bacteria in the milk and we really don't have to," Grasso said, adding that the bigger problem is with overprocessed food that lacks nutrients.

There are ways producers can minimize the risk. On the Sweetwater Farm website, Boling points out that the herd has been tested for brucellosis and tuberculosis.

Boling doesn't have many customers yet — "I'm just starting out," she said — but she hopes that soon, her six milking goats will have plenty of devotees.

An apple pie fit for bringing on the road

By Alison Ladman
For The Associated Press

Hand pies with apple filling provide the all-American comfort of apple pie, minus the need for fork and plate.

While not a new concept, hand pies turn apple pie into a convenient, easy and mess-free treat for Fourth of July celebrations. The term hand pie has been around for a long time; farming cultures used to make them for workers to eat in the field. And they're different from tarts, which lack top crusts and are cooked in a shallow pan.

If apple pie isn't your favorite, you can make a filling from fresh berries instead. You will need to increase the amount of cornstarch, depending on how juicy your berries are. You want the filling to be thick so it doesn't ooze out.

To add visual appeal, small cookie cutters can be used to create the steam vents in the top rounds of dough. Be sure to do so before placing the dough over the filling.

- 2 teaspoons cornstarch
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon water
- Two 14.1-ounce packages refrigerated pie dough (each package contains 2 rounds of dough)
- 1 egg
- 1 tablespoon milk

In a small bowl, combine the sugar, cinnamon and nutmeg. Set aside.

In a deep skillet over medium-high heat, melt the butter. Add the apples and 1/3 cup of the sugar mixture. Sauté for 3 to 4 minutes, or until just tender.

In a small bowl, stir together the cornstarch, lemon juice and water, then add to the apples and stir. Cook until the juices thicken and bubble, about 1 minute. Set the filling aside to cool.

Heat the oven to 350 degrees. Line 2 baking sheets with parchment paper.

One at a time, on a lightly floured surface unroll each of the 4 rounds of pie dough. Using a 3-inch circular cookie cutter, cut out 9 rounds from each piece of dough for a total of 36 rounds.

In a small bowl, beat together the egg and the milk. To assemble the hand pies, place 1 dough round in front of you. Lightly brush around the edges of the round with the egg mixture. Place 2 teaspoons of apple filling in the center of the dough. Top with a second round of dough. Gently press down so that the filling is enclosed and the edges of the top round meet the edges of the bottom round. Use a fork to crimp and seal all around the edges. Brush the top with more of the egg mixture and sprinkle with the reserved cinnamon sugar. Use a paring knife to poke a hole in the top to vent steam. Repeat with the remaining dough rounds and filling.

Place the hand pies on the baking sheets, leaving 1 inch between them. Bake for 18 to 20 minutes, or until the crust is golden brown. Let cool for 5 minutes, then transfer to a wire rack to finish cooling.

APPLE HAND PIES

Start to finish: 1 hour.

Makes 18 hand pies.

Easy, versatile, totally summery – pasta salad

By Alison Ladman
For The Associated Press

With all the backyard parties, barbecues and picnics in summer, pasta salads tend to go into heavy rotation. And with good reason.

Pasta salads are quick and easy to make and can be prepped way in advance. They also are easily adapted to cater to whatever flavors you favor. This version adds some bright colorful veggies to wagon wheel pasta, but feel free to substitute whichever vegetables and pasta you prefer.

We've also added the meat (shredded) from a rotisserie chicken; this saves time and keeps you from having to heat up the kitchen to roast your own. You also could leave out the chicken for a vegetarian version, or use cut-up ham or small shrimp in its place.

the chicken, both bell peppers, snow peas, apple, grapes and scallions.

In a small bowl, whisk together the mayonnaise, honey, vinegar, mustard, orange zest, poppy seeds, salt and pepper. When the pasta has cooled, add it to the bowl with the veggies and chicken, then toss to combine. Add the dressing and stir to coat. Sprinkle with the almonds, if using.

HONEY POPPY SEED PASTA SALAD

Start to finish: 30 minutes. Servings: 12.

- 1 pound wagon wheel pasta
- 30-ounce rotisserie chicken
- 1 yellow bell pepper, cored and diced
- 1 orange bell pepper, cored and diced
- 1 cup snow pea pods, halved lengthwise
- 1 apple, cored and diced
- 1 cup grapes, halved
- 3 scallions, thinly sliced
- 1/2 cup mayonnaise
- 1/4 cup honey
- 3 tablespoons cider vinegar
- 2 tablespoons Dijon mustard
- Zest of 1/2 orange
- 1 tablespoon poppy seeds
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1/2 cup toasted slivered almonds (optional)

Bring a large saucepan of salted water to a boil. Add the pasta and cook according to package directions. Drain the pasta, then transfer to a paper- or kitchen towel-lined rimmed baking sheet. Set aside to cool and dry for 15 minutes.

Meanwhile, remove the meat from the chicken, then use your fingers or 2 forks to shred and pull it apart.

Grilled pizza's flavors make bold statement

By Alison Ladman
For The Associated Press

Summer grilling season is a great excuse to give the pizza delivery guy a break. Grilling infuses pizza with a wonderful smoky flavor and a crisp, chewy crust.

But you need to know a few basics. First, your toppings need to be precooked because the pizza won't be on the grill long enough to cook them there. Second, it's important to start with clean, well-oiled grates. The dough will stick to any charred bits of food left on the grates.

Finally, start by grilling the dough plain until the bottom is lightly browned. Then oil the top, flip and add your sauce and other toppings, then finish cooking.

GRILLED SWEET POTATO AND SAUSAGE PIZZA

Start to finish: 30 minutes. Makes 8 large slices.

1 medium sweet potato
2 sweet or spicy Italian chicken sausage, each cut diagonally into 8 slices
20-ounce ball of pizza dough
2 tablespoons olive oil
16-ounce ball fresh mozzarella, sliced
Salt and ground black pepper, to taste
1 tablespoon chopped fresh thyme

Bring a medium saucepan of water to a boil. Peel the sweet potato and slice it into 1/8-inch slices. Drop the slices into the boiling water and boil until just tender, but not falling apart, about 5 to 7 minutes. Drain the sweet potatoes, then set aside.

Heat the grill to medium-high.

Grill the sausage slices until charred and cooked through, about 3 minutes per side. Remove from the grill and set aside.

Clean the grill grates and brush with oil. Stretch the pizza dough into a rough circle, about 14 inches in diameter. Lower the grill to medium heat, then set the dough on the grate. Close the lid and grill for 5 to 7 minutes, or until the bottom is toasted and golden.

Brush the top of the pizza crust with half of the olive oil and flip over. Brush again with the remaining oil. Top with the sweet potato slices, the cooked sausage pieces and the mozzarella slices. Close the grill and cook for 7 to 8 minutes, or until the cheese is melted and the bottom of the crust is golden and crispy. Remove from the grill and sprinkle with salt, pepper and thyme.

Per slice: 310 calories; 60 calories from fat (20 percent of total calories); 7 g fat (1 g saturated; 0 g trans fats); 25 mg cholesterol; 36 g carbohydrate; 28 g protein; 4 g fiber; 800 mg sodium.

Everything's coming up rosés for food-friendly summer wines

By Michelle Locke
For The Associated Press

Looking for a summer wine? Rosés are a blooming good choice.

We're talking the dry, fresh wines that pair beautifully with warm-weather foods, such as grilled fish and sausage, and also aren't so bad sipped solo on a sunnypatio.

In the past, drinking pink has often meant sipping something cheap and sweet, the kind of bottles you find way down on the bottom shelf.

But that has changed as more dry rosé wines have become available — and more people have tuned in to how food-friendly those wines are.

"Over the last five years we've seen a real change," says Jon Priest, winemaker and general manager of the Etude winery in Napa, Calif., which makes a rosé wine from pinot noir grapes. "It's become a very popular category."

Rosé wines come in a spectrum of colors, from salmon to cerise (the term comes from the French word for cherry), and generally are made in one of two ways.

The first method, "saignee," or bleeding, derives from a procedure used to concentrate red wine. Some of the pink juice from a tank of macerating red wine grapes is drained off. That juice then is turned into rosé.

Another method is to crush red wine grapes and leave the juice in contact with the skin for just a short time. (Red wine grape juice starts out white; the color comes from contact with the skins during fermentation.)

At Etude, the second method is used. "Our approach is to essentially pick the grapes earlier. We're really trying to retain a nice freshness, nice acidity, lower alcohols, lower sugar levels and then essentially make it like a white wine," says Priest.

Rosés come from all over, but the mother lode is the South of France. Here you'll find rosés that are often a combination of syrah, grenache and cinsault grapes, though they can be made from other grapes. Rosés from Provence can have a watermelon character, though this depends on drinking the wine when it's fresh.

"The important thing that needs to be said about these wines is they must be drunk young; they do not age well," says David Rosengarten, wine editor of Saveur magazine.

Probably the best-known source of rosé wine is the Tavel appellation in the southern Rhone region of France. This appellation makes only rosé wines, no red or white. Wines are made in the saignee method to provide a rich, structured wine.

The wines are very dry, sometimes even austere, but "when you find the right dish for it, it's brilliant," says Rosengarten, who likes the combination of artichokes with rosé wine.

Spain produces plenty of rosé wine, known as rosado.

Look for wines from the Rioja region made with the tempranillo grape. And someplace you might not expect to find rosé is Greece. "Every year some of my favorite rosés come from Greece," says Rosengarten.

In particular, he's a fan of the Kir-Yianni winery rosé made from the red wine grape xinomavro.

Perhaps you're wondering, will a summer wine that's pretty in pink fly with the grilling set?

"Yes," says Jill Ditmire, who sells a number of rosé wines at her Mass Ave. Wine Shoppe & Cafe in Indianapolis. "Real men drink pink wine and some even ask for a second glass."

Earl H. Hurst

March 23, 1934–June 26, 2011

DECLO — Earl Hensen Hurst, age 77, of Declo, passed away Sunday, June 26, 2011, at his home.

Earl was born March 23, 1934, in Declo, Idaho, the 10th child of 12 children born to Winfield and Arvella (Thorne) Hurst. He had eight brothers and three sisters, Leona Anderson, Leo, Harold, Floyd, Arvel, Arlene Cheever, Norman, Vernal, Archie, Lamar, and Belva Henschheid.

Earl married the love of his life, Charlotte Beverly “Lot-tie” Bailey, on July 31, 1953, in the Idaho Falls LDS Temple. Dad commented, “They said we were too young,” – Earl being 19-years-old and Lot-tie 16. However, from this union came five beautiful girls and two wonderful sons, Debra (Leonard) Beck, Darla (Glen) Whipple, Becky (Mark) Stoker, Beverly (Alan) Harper, Brent (deceased), Shawn (Cindy) Hurst, and Lisa (Ray) Hollist.

Our dad worked hard. You could always see him out in the fields with his crew of girls and his son, Shawn, setting the water, loading up pigs for the sale, milking and bedding down the cows, or working late into the night on the tractor.

He cared very deeply for everyone he came in contact with. They would always come away feeling better about themselves.

Along with working hard, he loved all sports! In his younger years, he played football, basketball and baseball. In his later years, he took up the sport of golf. If he wasn’t participating, he was watching it on TV. He also enjoyed attending other sporting events and especially looked forward to watching his children and grandchildren play.

He worked at Kraft Foods in Rupert, for 20 years and made many friends from his association there.

Dad had a way of loving his children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren. He cared deeply for each of his 26 grandchildren and 23 great-grandchildren and they felt of his abiding love. He was a very special person and we will miss him so much! We know he is in a far better place and is happy.

We express our sincere appreciation to the Minidoka Memorial Hospice – especially Whitney. In lieu of flowers, please consider donations to the Minidoka Memorial Hospice.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Friday, July 1, at the Declo LDS Stake Center, 213 W. Main St., with Bishop Garth Searle officiating. Burial will be in the Declo Cemetery. Friends may call from 6 until 8 p.m. Thursday, June 30, at the Rasmussen Funeral Home, 1350 E. 16th St. in Burley, and from 10 until 10:45 a.m. Friday at the church.

Cowboys gear up for home tournament

By Stephen Meyers
Times-News writer

The Cowboy Classic is back.

Baseball fans can only hope it's as exciting as last year's tournament.

The 2011 edition of the annual American Legion Class AA wood bat tournament kicks off Thursday at Skip Walker Field, and Twin Falls will try to defend its title from last summer.

The Cowboys went to extra innings in four of their five games last year, including two walk-off wins on the first day before capping the tournament with a 5-1 win over Centennial in the championship game.

"We're really excited for this tournament and we have some great teams coming to town," said Twin Falls coach Tim Stadelmeir. "Winning it last year was a good deal for us and we were able to play really good defense and get good pitching, which is something we'll have to do again."

This year's field consists of eight teams from around the region.

The Cowboys open the four-day tournament Thursday against Nevada powerhouse Bishop Gorman and play two on Friday against Meridian's Rocky Mountain and Lethbridge (Alberta), which is coached by former College of Southern Idaho player Jim Kotkas. He was on the Golden Eagles' 1984 championship team.

The other teams in the field are Lewis Clark of Lewiston, which is led by former Filer coach Kent Knigge, Boise, Pacific Tech (Wash.) and Reno (Nev.).

"We have eight quality, solid teams coming in," Stadelmeir said. "They're well respected in their region and throughout the country. We open up with Bishop Gorman and we know we're going to have our hands full right away." Will they ever.

Spartans split with Pocatello

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

RUPERT — Minico shed the jetlag from its trip to Omaha, Neb., to split an American Legion Class AA doubleheader with Pocatello on Tuesday.

Suede Denker and Casey Christiansen each went 3-for-4 with an RBI in Minico's 5-4 victory in the opener.

"We swung it pretty well," said Minico coach Erin Runyon.

Starting pitcher Sager Nevarez went 4 1-3 innings and Christiansen got the save.

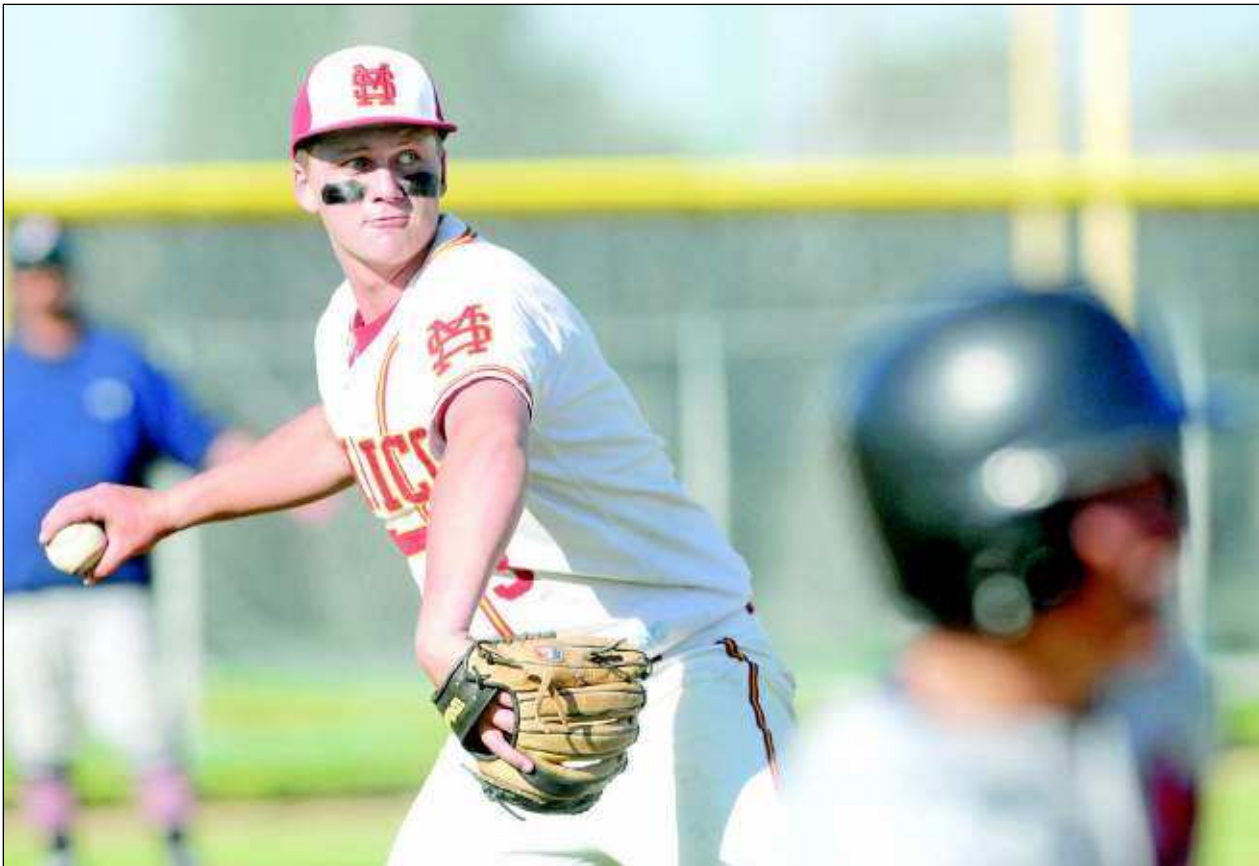

"Sager was throwing pretty well. The guys who got hits off of him, he was working behind in the count. Any guys he stayed ahead of, he got outs," Runyon said.

The Spartans did all their damage in the third inning, which included RBIs from Shay Chandler, Nick Salvi and Jordan Nessen.

Minico struggled from the mound in Game 2 and lost 9-2.

In the first two innings, Pocatello scored its first six runs off just two hits as Minico pitchers Brayden Winnill and Stetzen Wrigley combined to issue six walks and two run-scoring balks.

"Pitching is what it ultimately comes down to," Runyon said. "We've got to work at it and get better, especially our younger guys because they have to step up next year and be those guys."

Nick Salvi entered in the third inning and pitched well, giving up just four hits and two walks the rest of the way. But the Minico second-stringers couldn't get the bats going.

"We mixed in a lot of young guys in those later innings. Some of them stepped up and scrapped, but they're still outmatched," Runyon said.

Denker went 2-for-2 in Game 2, while Salvi and Wrigley each had an RBI.

Minico is off until July 7 when it hosts Twin Falls.

Gamecocks repeat as national champs with 5-2 win

By Eric Olson
Associated Press writer

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Michael Roth pitched 7 2-3 innings on three days' rest, and South Carolina won its second straight national championship with a 5-2 victory Tuesday night that completed a two-game sweep over Florida in the College World Series finals.

South Carolina (55-14) became the first team to ever go 10-0 in an NCAA tournament and the first since Oregon State in 2007 to go unbeaten in a CWS.

The Gamecocks' streaks of 16 NCAA tournament wins and 11 straight in the CWS are both the longest all-time.

South Carolina has the distinction of winning the last CWS played at Rosenblatt Stadium and the first at TD Ameritrade Park.

Peter Mooney doubled to start a three-run third inning in the matchup of Southeastern Conference rivals and hit the Gamecocks' first home run of the CWS in the sixth.

After giving up four runs in the first inning of their opener against Texas A&M, the Gamecocks allowed just six in their other 50 innings here.

South Carolina players, including Peter Mooney (6), celebrate after beating Florida 5-2 in Game 2 of the NCAA baseball College World Series best-of-three finals, to win the title in Omaha, Neb., Tuesday.

They became the sixth team to win consecutive national titles and first since Oregon State in 2006 and 2007.

Roth (14-3), who pitched seven innings against Virginia on Friday, gave up five hits and two runs before leaving in the eighth. He started last year's national championship game but didn't get a decision.

Among pitchers who have worked 30 innings at the CWS, Roth's 1.17 ERA over 38 1-3 innings the past two years ranks second all-time behind Ohio State's Steve Arlin, who had a 0.96 ERA over 47 innings in 1965-66.

Roth came in with a 0.98 ERA for the season and held Florida without a run after it got leadoff men on base in the fifth, sixth and seventh innings. Roth left with two outs in the eighth after giving up a double to Mike Zunino, who later scored on Josh Adams' single off John Taylor.

Matt Price worked 1 1-3 innings for his 20th save.

Florida starter Karsten Whitson (8-1) came out strong, mixing in his mid-90s fastball to strike out three of the first six batters.

But South Carolina scored three runs in the third after Mooney's leadoff double into the left-field corner. Mooney scored on a sacrifice fly by Scott Wingo — the CWS' Most Outstanding Player — Evan Marzilli came home when shortstop Nolan Fontana swiped at and missed Christian Walker's grounder. Brady Thomas brought in another run with his infield single.

Whitson, a freshman who was the No. 9 overall draft pick by the San Diego Padres in 2010, left with the bases loaded and two outs in the fifth. Tommy Toledo came on to strike out Jake Williams.

The Gators made it a two-run game when Zunino hit Roth's 84 mph slider into the seats in left for his 19th homer of the season — and first off Roth since April 22.

22-year-old Gelz signs, Schaak expected to leave

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

College of Southern Idaho coach Boomer Walker confirmed Tuesday the signing of 22-year-old Joey Gelz of Surrey, British Columbia, to a NJCAA National Letter of Intent.

Gelz is a 6-foot-2 left-handed pitcher who briefly attended a trade school in Canada but spent the last three-plus years playing club baseball.

"He's got a great arm, and you hope he's more mature than most 18-year-olds," Walker said. "It's been a while since he's been in a structure, schedule, team, however you want to put it. It's not traditional, for sure, but we'll see."

Gelz could help replace the void left by a larger-than-expected pitching exodus. In addition to the eight outgoing sophomores, Paul Schaak is also expected to leave after his freshman season and join teammate and close friend Tyler Vavra at Eastern Michigan University.

"It looks like it's going to happen," Walker said. "Vav panicked about where he was going to school, some kids can play it out and let it happen, but Paul didn't want that to happen to him, so if he got a (NCAA Division I) offer, he was going to take it. I can't hold that against him."

The Winkler, Manitoba, southpaw was a first-team all-Scenic West Athletic Conference selection as a freshman, going 6-1 with a 3.45 ERA. His departure would leave just two pitchers, Cody White and Edgard Burgos, returning. Both worked in relief roles as freshmen.

"The unfortunate thing is it's a small group coming back. But two years ago was one of the best years we had, and we had a bunch of freshmen," Walker said. "You've got to bank on your freshmen being pretty good for you."

Walker added that sophomore pitcher Brandon Petite is expected to latch on at Prairie Baseball Academy in Canada this season before revisiting his NCAA Division I options.

Kimberly outlasted by Idaho Falls in barnburner

Times-News

Playing most of the game with their younger players, the Kimberly Astros fell 16-13 to the Idaho Falls Rangers in a nine-inning American Legion Class A baseball game Tuesday.

Sam Bourgeois started for Kimberly, pitching four innings and leaving with a 9-1 lead, prompting head coach Tom Myers to empty his bench.

“We got the younger kids in and gave them a chance to play,” Myers said. “They got a little roughed up but it’s OK. We were pleased to get them in there and play. This was the best game the older guys have played for us.”

Bourgeois, Seth Champlin, Ridge Lee and James Higginbotham all homered for the Astros. Higginbotham went 2-for-3 with three RBIs and Champlin also drove in two runs.

Kimberly (15-11) hosts the Pocatello Rebels on Thursday.

NBA players, owners to meet again Thursday

DALLAS (AP) — Representatives for NBA players and owners will meet Thursday, hours before the collective bargaining agreement expires, and Commissioner David Stern says that’s still enough time for a deal.

Owners did not vote to authorize a lockout during their meeting Tuesday, but have given the labor relations committee the go-ahead to do whatever is necessary.

If a deal is not reached, owners could lock out the players when the CBA expires at the end of the day, though both sides have said negotiating could extend past the deadline if progress is being made.

“Nothing in this world is absolute,” Stern said.

Yet Stern wouldn’t discuss the possibility of an extension.

“We’re not talking about likelihoods, we’re looking forward to Thursday’s meeting. That will be great,” he said.

Though a large group of players attended the last meeting, Thursday’s session is expected to be only a small group from both sides. Deputy Commissioner Adam Silver said the league didn’t know if the players would make another proposal after they declined to present one Friday.

Stern said it was the players’ association’s choice to wait until the last day before meeting again.

“We were prepared to go over the weekend, they said they knew we were meeting on Tuesday, can we meet Wednesday or Thursday?”

GIHRING SINKS HOLE-IN-ONE

Travis Gihring sank a hole-in-one Tuesday at 93 Golf Ranch in Jerome. He made the ace with a sand wedge on the 132-yard fourth hole. His feat was witnessed by Ed Harmon, Ray Turpin and Gary Tracy.

BEAVER SINKS HOLE-IN-ONE

Harry Beaver made his second hole-in-one of the year June 11, holing out on No. 12 at Pleasant Valley Golf Course in Kimberly. The ace, made with a fairway wood, was witnessed by Gary Lusk and Don Perkins.

Beaver also made a hole-in-one April 30 on No. 9 at Pleasant Valley.

We said fine, we can meet either or both, and they said Thursday. We said great,” Stern said.

Owners were updated on the status of the CBA negotiations, as well as plans for expanded revenue sharing among teams, during their meeting. Stern said there are few firm details about the latter — which has frustrated the union — because it can’t be completed until a new deal with the players is done.

“It’s hard,” Stern said. “We discussed principles, ideas and the like, but it’s hard to complete one without the other.”

Failure to reach a deal by the deadline could trigger the league’s first work stoppage since the 1998-99 season was reduced to 50 games. The sides remain far apart on financial issues and the players are opposed to owners’ attempts to institute a new salary cap system.

“Well, I sure would like to see us make a deal, and not making a deal should give everybody apprehension,” Stern said, “because the way to continue our growth is to come up with a deal that makes our union, that keeps our union as the highest-priced union in the world, the highest-paid union in the world, gives all of our teams the opportunity to make a profit and makes us a more competitive league.

“It sounds like the tripod for a win-win-win, and we’ll have to see whether that’s a possibility when we meet again with the players on Thursday.”

“It’s always a really competitive tournament and is really coming at a great time for us,” Stadlemeir said. “The wood bat tournaments are really different and even the playing field out a bit. This is really going to force us to play solid defense and be aggressive on the basepaths with our offense.”

Sharapova wins easily to return to Wimbledon semis

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Maria Sharapova’s coach called it “a statement.”

For exactly one hour of excellence, Sharapova played — and sounded — exactly the way she did when she was a teenager, when it seemed nothing could stop her.

Those powerful-as-ever groundstrokes cut through the grass, landing right where she wanted. Those solid-as-ever service returns flummoxed her overmatched opponent. And those loud-as-ever shrieks bounced around Centre Court, its retractable roof shut to keep out the rain.

Simply put, Sharapova dominated 24th-seeded Dominika Cibulkova of Slovakia 6-1, 6-1 Tuesday to reach the Wimbledon semifinals for the first time since 2006 — back in the days before she needed surgery to repair her right shoulder and dealt with doubts about the future of her career.

“I would have loved for it not to have taken that long, but I’m not complaining. It’s the road that you sometimes have to take. It’s not always straight; there are a lot of zig-zags. A lot of time, you feel like it’s a dead end,” said Sharapova, who won her first Grand Slam title at age 17 at Wimbledon in 2004.

“I’ve worked really hard to get in this stage, but I’m not saying this is where I want to end,” she added. “I want to keep going.”

A day after the Williams sisters and No. 1-ranked Caroline Wozniacki were sent home, the three women responsible for those upsets all lost.

Cibulkova, who beat Wozniacki, held serve to open her match against Sharapova, then dropped the next eight games in a row. No. 9 Marion Bartoli, who beat Serena, faded down the stretch and was defeated 6-4, 6-7 (4), 6-1 by wild-card entry Sabine Lisicki, the first German woman to reach Wimbledon’s semifinals since Steffi Graf in 1999; No. 32 Tsvetana Pironkova,

Rafael Nadal’s foot injury not serious

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Give Uncle Toni credit for honesty.

Toni Nadal, Rafael’s uncle and coach, watched Wimbledon’s defending champion put in about an hour of practice on a left foot that’s not as seriously injured as first feared, then offered this assessment to a handful of reporters Tuesday:

“Even if he was 50 percent, I would tell you he’s 100 percent. But he will be 100 percent. Everything’s fine.”

The top-seeded Nadal plays 10th-seeded Mardy Fish of the United States in today’s quarterfinals at the All England Club.

The other quarterfinals are No. 2 Novak Djokovic against 18-year-old Bernard Tomic of Australia, No. 3 Roger Federer against No. 12 Jo-Wilfried Tsonga of France, and No. 4 Andy Murray against unseeded Feliciano Lopez of Spain.

who beat Venus, was eliminated 6-3, 6-7 (5), 6-2 by No. 8 Petra Kvitova of the Czech Republic, a semifinalist for the second consecutive year.

On Thursday, Sharapova will meet Lisicki, and Kvitova will face No. 4 Victoria Azarenka of Belarus, who got to her first Grand Slam semifinal with a 6-3, 6-1 victory over unseeded Tamira Paszek of Austria in the day’s last match.

“Looking at the rankings, everybody says, ‘You should have been already in the semifinals,’” said Azarenka, who moved to the United States when she was 12 and now lives part of the year in Arizona. “It was a great win for me.”

Her quarterfinal was suspended because of rain after one game outdoors on Court 1; they eventually were moved indoors at Centre Court.

“I’m glad we managed to play today,” said Azarenka, whose highlight was a full-sprint forehand that curled around the net post and landed in for a winner. “Thank God for the roof again. It’s just amazing.”

Sharapova was Tuesday’s only participant with a Grand Slam title already on her resume. She has three, part of a quick rise to the top of tennis: ranked No. 1 at 18; 2006 U.S. Open champion at 19; 2008 Australian Open champion at 20.

Cliff Lee throws third consecutive shutout to beat Red Sox

PHILADELPHIA — Cliff Lee tossed a two-hitter for his third consecutive shutout and the Philadelphia Phillies beat Josh Beckett and the Boston Red Sox 5-0 Tuesday night.

In a series hailed as a potential World Series preview, Lee (9-5) and the Phillies dominated the opener.

Domonic Brown and Shane Victorino each hit a two-run homer for Philadelphia, which improved its major league-leading record to 50-30.

Lee didn’t allow a hit until Marco Scutaro led off the sixth with a line-drive single to left-center. The left-hander ran his career-best scoreless streak to 32 innings with his ninth career shutout and fourth this year.

Beckett (6-3) gave up five runs and five hits in six innings, his worst outing of the season. Beckett entered with a major league-best 1.86 ERA and left at 2.20.

METS 14, TIGERS 3

DETROIT — Jason Bay and Carlos Beltran hit grand slams in consecutive innings — after the Mets had gone nearly two years without one — and New York moved back above .500.

The Mets (40-39) have a winning record for the first time since they were 3-2 in early April.

YANKEES 12, BREWERS 2

NEW YORK — Mark Teixeira homered and had four RBIs for the Yankees, and Nick Swisher hit a three-run homer to cap a five-run second inning.

From New York’s first batted ball, when Nyjer Morgan got twisted up in center field and fell trying to catch Curtis Granderson’s fly, the Brewers never appeared to get comfortable in their first trip to Yankee Stadium since 1997.

RAYS 4, REDS 3

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Evan Longoria hit a game-ending solo homer in the ninth inning to lift Tampa Bay to the win.

Longoria, who has struggled at home this season, sent an 0-1 pitch from Logan Ondrusek (3-3) into the left-field seats for his fifth homer in the last eight games. The All-Star third baseman has just three homers and four RBIs in 24 games at Tropicana Field in 2011.

RANGERS 7, ASTROS 3

HOUSTON — Pitcher C.J. Wilson got his first major league hit, and Josh Hamilton homered in Texas’ three-run third inning as the Rangers beat the Houston Astros 7-3 on Tuesday night.

The Rangers stretched their road winning streak over the Astros to seven games. Houston has lost four in a row overall and seven of eight.

TWINS 6, DODGERS 4

MINNEAPOLIS — Luke Hughes hit a tiebreaking homer and the Minnesota Twins snapped a six-game losing streak, rebounding from an embarrassing blowout to beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-4 on Tuesday night.

Ben Revere scored twice, stole two bases and drove in a run for Minnesota. Brian Duensing (5-7) allowed four runs, four hits and four walks in five innings.

CARDINALS 6, ORIOLES 2

BALTIMORE — Kyle Lohse pitched five shutout innings in a performance shortened by rain, and the Cardinals got solo home runs from Colby Rasmus and Matt Holliday.

It was only the second win in seven games for St. Louis since three-time NL MVP Albert Pujols was placed on the disabled list with a broken left wrist. The Cardinals were off Monday after being swept at home in a three-game series against Toronto.

PIRATES 7, BLUE JAYS 6

TORONTO — Alex Presley hit his first career home run, Andrew McCutchen also went deep, and Pittsburgh held on for its first interleague road win in more than two years.

Kevin Correia (10-6) allowed four runs and five hits in six innings for the Pirates, who have won five of six. Correia is 8-2 with an 2.69 ERA in 10 road starts this season.

NATIONAL LEAGUE GAME 1, GIANTS 13, CUBS 7 GAME 2, GIANTS 6, CUBS 3

CHICAGO — Barry Zito threw seven strong innings and the San Francisco Giants beat the Chicago Cubs 6-3 on Tuesday night for a sweep of a day-night doubleheader.

Zito (1-1) pitched for the first time since leaving his start on April 16 with a right foot sprain. He allowed four hits and two runs, leading the Giants to their seventh straight win.

Brian Wilson got his 24th save.

Nate Schierholtz had three hits and two RBIs to pace the San Francisco offense, and Brandon Crawford added two hits and two RBIs.

Rodrigo Lopez (0-2) — pressed into starting duty after throwing out of the bullpen for most of the season — allowed eight hits and four runs in 4-2-3 innings for the Cubs.

Goodell, Smith fly to Florida to talk with rookies

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The day began with the NFL commissioner and the union’s head starting another round of talks, this one set to run through Friday, aimed at ending a lockout that is now in its fourth month.

By sundown Tuesday, Roger Goodell and DeMaurice Smith were on a plane to Florida where they planned to speak to rookies today before heading back to Minneapolis to continue negotiations.

A signal that an end to the labor strife was in sight?

That was still to be determined, but with the traditional start of training camps just three weeks away, every move has taken on a heightened sense of importance.

Spokesmen for the league and the players’ association confirmed that the two power brokers were on the same plane from Minnesota to address the NFLPA’s rookie symposium this morning.

SI.com first reported that both Goodell and Smith were on their way to the joint appearance. Smith, the union’s executive director, asked Goodell to speak to the group at the Ritz-Carlton hotel in Sarasota, Fla., and the commissioner agreed.

The discussions between Goodell and Smith on Tuesday included no players or owners, according to several people familiar with the situation. They said the two sides planned to meet through Friday. The people spoke on condition of anonymity because details of the negotiations were being kept private.

As for training camps, two teams have already opted to hold them at headquarters instead of offsite spots because of the labor uncertainty. Chicago and St. Louis are scheduled to play the annual Hall of Fame game on Aug. 7. Detroit Lions defensive end

Lawrence Jackson said earlier Tuesday he believes there still isn’t enough urgency to reach a deal on a new collective bargaining agreement — not yet.

“From a business perspective, nobody is losing anything right now,” Jackson said at a youth sports camp in Walled Lake, Mich. “The owners haven’t had to pay offseason bonuses — so they’re making interest on the money they’re not spending — and most of the players aren’t used to getting paid until we start training camp in late July. Until then, I don’t think we’re missing much.”

Cheney, Buehler score as U.S. women beat North Korea

DRESDEN, Germany (AP) — Once, twice, three times and then a fourth, Lauren Cheney launched a shot with her foot only to watch it go right into the hands of the North Korean goalkeeper. Finally, she used her head. And just like that, the Americans looked more like a team that could contend for a third Women's World Cup title than the one that took a self-described "bumpy" road to Germany. "I wasn't frustrated," said Cheney, whose goal in the 54th minute sparked a 2-0 win over North Korea on Tuesday. "I knew if I kept going, I'd get one. I'm pretty happy I did."

So did her teammates. After hearing about their inconsistency and shortcomings for months, the win in their tournament opener gave the Americans a needed dose of confidence. When the final whistle sounded, the U.S. reserves ran onto the field to celebrate while the North Koreans stood just beyond midfield, watching.

It was the fourth straight time the teams had met in group play at the World Cup, and the Americans have won all the games but one. The Americans now face Colombia, which lost 1-0 to Sweden, on Saturday in Sinshheim.

North Korean coach Kim Kwang Min blamed his team's failings in the second half on a June 8 lightning strike during training in Pyongyang that sent "more than five" players to the hospital. Goalkeeper Hong Myong Hui, four defenders and some of the midfielders were the players most affected, Kim said.

"The physicians actually said the players were not capable of playing in the tournament," Kim said through an interpreter. "They're not physically ready for this match, but they had a strong will."

The North Koreans didn't seem as if anything was amiss, nearly matching the United States forward Lauren Cheney (12) celebrates scoring the opening goal during the Group C match against North Korea at the Women's World Cup in Dresden, Germany, Tuesday.

Americans in possession (53 percent to 47 percent) and getting seven shots on goal. And the lightning strike seemed to catch everyone off-guard, with the FIFA media officer at the venue saying she had no knowledge of it until Kim's postgame news conference.

The young North Koreans — only two had played in a World Cup before — looked pretty good in the first half. The Americans started the game strong, controlling play with crisp passing and good speed. But the North Koreans gained confidence as time went on, shutting down the U.S. attack in the midfield and repeatedly pushing forward in the closing minutes before halftime.

Kim Su Gyong took a shot from close range in the 34th minute, but U.S. goalkeeper Hope Solo punched it away. Four minutes later, Song Jung Sun slid a shot right in front of the goal that Solo couldn't reach. No other Americans were there to clear it away — neither were the North Koreans — and Ali Krieger finally booted the ball to safety.

"The opening to any game, emotions are going to be flying, players are going to be flying, it's going to be ugly sometimes," Solo said. "It was a little sloppy at the beginning, but we weathered the storm."

U.S. coach Pia Sundhage told her players at halftime to take the ball outside and make more use of the flanks. The improvement was clear immediately.

Cheney, making her first start since March, had two shots caught by Hong in the first five minutes of the half. In the 51st minute, Abby Wambach took a sliding shot from the edge of the 6-yard box, only to watch the ball sail over the net.

Finally, in the 54th, Wambach dribbled quickly up the left flank and took a step as if to move inside, spinning a North Korean defender around. Wambach dribbled a few more steps before chipping in a perfect cross that Cheney nodded past Hong.

"I'm actually not a very good header," Cheney said. "I just knew I wanted to redirect it back to the same place it came from."

It was Cheney's 14th goal in her 40th appearance for the United States.

"When Lauren scored that goal, it's obviously kind of like the monkey off your back," Wambach said.

The Americans practically camped themselves on North Korea's side of the field, with Wambach hitting the crossbar in the 65th and Amy Rodriguez putting a shot wide in the 73rd before Rachel Buehler scored the insurance goal in the 76th minute. A shot off the crossbar ricocheted back into the scrum and Carli Lloyd collected the ball and headed it to Buehler, who unleashed a monster strike with her right foot. Hong dove and stretched out her hand, but she never got close and the ball rolled into the net.

It was the second goal of the defender's career.

"Hopefully, we'll be able to build confidence off this win," Buehler said.

The Americans have heard plenty of criticism about their uncharacteristic inconsistency these last few months. After going more than two years without a loss, the U.S. dropped three games in five months. The Americans were stunned in the semifinals of regional World Cup qualifying by Mexico, a team that had been 0-24-1 against its northern neighbor. The U.S. had to win a home-and-home playoff with Italy just to get to Germany.

The United States lost to Sweden in the Four Nations opener, though it did go on to win the tournament, and was beaten by England for the first time since 1988.

But the Americans insisted they would be fine once the tournament started, and their victory over North Korea only reinforced that.

"It doesn't matter what happened in the past," Wambach said. "It's all about what's happening in this tournament, and that's what we're focused on."

Today is Wednesday, June 29, the 180th day of 2011. There are 185 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On June 29, 1767, Britain approved the Townshend Revenue Act, which imposed import duties on glass, paint, oil, lead, paper and tea shipped to the American colonies. (Colonists bitterly protested, prompting Parliament in 1770 to repeal the duties — except for tea.)

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1861, William James Mayo, one of the founders of the Mayo Clinic, was born in Le Sueur, Minn. English poet Elizabeth Barrett Browning, 55, died in Florence, Italy.

In 1911, the Maryknoll Fathers and Brothers had its beginnings as Pope Pius X gave his blessing for the formation of The Catholic Foreign Mission Society of America.

In 1941, Polish statesman, pianist and composer Ignacy Jan Paderewski died in New York at age 80.

In 1954, the Atomic Energy Commission voted against reinstating Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer's access to classified information.

In 1966, the United States bombed fuel storage facilities near the North Vietnamese cities of Hanoi and Haiphong.

In 1967, Jerusalem was re-united as Israel removed barricades separating the Old City from the Israeli sector.

In 1970, the United States ended a two-month military offensive into Cambodia.

In 1972, the Supreme Court, in Furman v. Georgia, struck down a trio of death sentences, saying they constituted cruel and unusual punishment. (The ruling prompted states to effectively impose a moratorium on capital punishment until the laws could be revised.)

In 1988, the Supreme Court upheld the independent counsel law.

In 2003, actress Katharine Hepburn died in Old Saybrook, Conn., at age 96.

Ten years ago: U.N. Secretary-General Kofi Annan was elected to a second term.

Five years ago: The Supreme Court ruled, 5-3, that President George W. Bush's plan to try Guantanamo Bay detainees in military tribunals violated U.S. and international law. The government announced it had recovered a stolen laptop computer and hard drive with sensitive data on up to 26.5 million veterans and military personnel, and that the data was not accessed or copied.

One year ago: China and Taiwan signed a tariff-slashing trade pact that boosted economic ties and further eased political tensions six decades after the rivals split amid civil war. Talk show host Larry King announced he would step down from his CNN show in the autumn after 25 years on the air.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 16-year-old gangbanger looking at spending the rest of my life isolated in a little bird cage. Every day I ask myself the same question. Was it really worth throwing my life away? All I did was help a "homeboy" from getting hurt. I got caught and was convicted on eight charges that led to more than four consecutive life sentences. That ain't no joke! The sad part of it is that the so-called homeboy turned his back on me when I needed him most. I should've pulled away when I could've.

DEAR ABBY
Jeane Phillips

The main reason for this letter is to help parents and teens like myself who are choosing the wrong path to realize what you're getting into while there is still time. Tell parents out there, if you see your kid is messing up in school, using drugs, hanging with the wrong crowd, anything that would lead to gang affiliation, reach out and help them while you still can before they're in too deep. They (teens) turn toward gang life in search of the love they need from their family. Or they want to fit in and be cool.

To all the gangbangers who think you're cool and being a gangster, get away from it while you still can. It may be fun at the moment, but it's not when you get caught and you have to spend the rest of your life behind bars. There's better things to do in life than hang around all day frying your brain from all the drugs and alcohol. Trust me, when you're behind bars thinking about what you did, you'll be missing your family the most. You think your homeboys are going to be there for you? Well, let me tell you this ... they're not! I guarantee you that the only people who are actually willing to change places with you are your parents. Your REAL family. Do you think your homeboys want to do time for you? Hell, no! I hope this letter helps some people out there. I just want to make a contribution to society before I get locked up in the dungeon forever. This is to show you not all gangbangers are evil and cruel. Life is short. Live it smart, not stupid. Now I can finally answer the question I ask myself, "Was it all worth it?" The money, the girls and all the material things go faster than you think and could all be taken away with the snap of a finger from the split second of a decision you make. It's not worth your life.

— HOMESICK HOMEBOY

DEAR HOMESICK: You write well and your letter contains a powerful message. I'm printing it without editing. Let your experience be a warning to others. I hope from the sad circumstances of your life some other young person will realize that a gang is a poor substitute for a family and the path to success does not stop at the street corner.

If a troubled young person is in school, he or she should talk to a counselor. If there is a church nearby, talk to a priest or minister. There are alternatives to joining a gang, but you need to reach out.

IF JUNE 29 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: By employing key business techniques and strategies, and applying them to your daily routines, you can better prepare for the future. A fancy or fantasy might grab your attention in August, but you should give yourself plenty of time to be sure your ideas or passions are viable. Since your ambitions will be on the rise by the end of the year, be sure to launch your most valuable projects in November while Lady Luck smiles on almost everything you do. Don't let jealousy or thoughts of retaliation get in the way of straight thinking in February, when you could be tempted to burn bridges.

HOROSCOPE
Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Get as much accomplished as possible. This might be a good time to make changes to your bank account or a decision about a major purchase. Assistance from a significant other could make work go faster.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You can't enjoy the benefits of respect until you have earned them. Don't rest on your laurels or hide away in a dream world. Be seen as a model of industry and act as an inspiration for friends and family.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): When the cat's away, the mice will play. This is a good time to tidy up all your loose ends or take a few hours for yourself. You may be blessed by opportunities to make headway with financial matters.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Controlling the outcome of all things is impossible. You need to remain flexible enough to reverse your opinion when necessary. This is a better time to listen to others than to express your own ideas.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Work it out now, without fear of censure. If you leave a problem on your desk it could cause you problems later, like a splinter under your skin that festers. Get your affairs in order before the weekend.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Use problems as a springboard that propels you into prominence. Your dissatisfaction with certain situations can be a driving force that helps you make improvements and changes for the better.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Strike all the nails firmly on the head. Don't waste your energy pussyfooting around an issue or wallowing in worry. Take care of all of the little details and the big issues will take care of themselves.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Negotiate from a position of strength. You may only have one or two clear objectives that pique your passions, but these can be achieved. A lack of clear planning may be the only stumbling block.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): New friends or old enemies may figure in your future. Because you have been generous with your time and expertise in the past, others will be glad to lend a helping hand when you need it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You are at your best when you tackle your work or ideas passionately. Put the most seductive moves on the person of your dreams and you might be surprised to find that the feeling is mutual.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be a joiner, not a wallflower. Group activities can offer insights. Your contact with people from different backgrounds or ideologies can be valuable to you by opening your eyes to a different perspective.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Wise advice that arrives in the course of the day protects you from your own impulsiveness. In the midst of striving for material things think about the spiritual. Adopt an inspiring idea as your own.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®
Bobby Wolff

“Where the good and the bad and the worst and the best Have gone to their eternal rest.”
— Edgar Allan Poe

What would you consider to be the most unsuccessful opening lead of all time? I'm sure there are many possible candidates for that title, but it would be hard to argue that today's deal doesn't deserve a place on the short list.

It took place at the North American Fall Congress held in Honolulu and would command a prominent place in anyone's collection of bridge curios because the opening lead determined a swing of a huge number of tricks. My thanks for the hand go to Brent Manley, editor of the Daily Bulletins in Hawaii, where it first appeared.

Two top-class pairs were in action: World Champions Fulvio Fantoni and Claudio Nunes of Italy were pitted against Larry Cohen and David Berkowitz of the United States. North guessed to drive to slam facing the three-no-trump response, and his call of five no-trump offered a choice of slams. Trying to protect his diamond king, Cohen eventually opted for no-trump.

It is reported that West took a full five minutes before choosing his opening lead: a heart. Cohen then took considerably less time to wrap up all 13 tricks: seven hearts and six clubs.

Had West hit upon a spade lead and East returned the diamond 10, then so long as West immediately unblocked the spade queen, the defenders could have come to all 13 tricks: seven diamonds and six spades. A grand total of 26 tricks hung on that opening lead!

ANSWER: Your partner has suggested a balanced 17-19, and you have a hand that makes it extremely unlikely you will take nine tricks in no-trump. (You probably won't be able to set up clubs and reach them before the defenders clear spades or diamonds.) Therefore, the best action here is to retreat to three clubs, which is natural and nonforcing.

U.S. action in Libya wins Senate panel's OK

By Kathleen Hennessey
Tribune Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved a resolution Tuesday authorizing U.S. involvement in the NATO-led mission in Libya, a small step forward in a stubborn legal stalemate between Congress and the White House over the war.

If adopted by both chambers of Congress, the resolution would give approval to U.S. involvement for up to one year, but would restrict any expansion of the U.S. role. Four Republican members of the committee joined the Democratic majority to pass the measure on a 14-5 vote.

The White House said President Barack Obama “welcomes” the resolution but also insists he does not need it under the federal War Powers Act, a point on which many in Congress, including Democrats, disagree.

That disagreement has left the 3-month-old conflict in a legal limbo, as the White House maintains U.S. involvement is too limited to require congressional authorization and congressional leaders insist that the president is violation of the War Powers Act.

Two Idaho landowners to get day in high court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court has agreed to consider the rights of two Idaho landowners when confronted with an order from the Environmental Protection Agency that they are violating the federal Clean Water Act.

On Tuesday the justices added the case of Chantell and Michael Sackett to their lineup for the term that begins in October.

The Sacketts contend that EPA left them with no practical way to object to the agency's determination that work on their half-acre parcel in a subdivision near Priest Lake violated federal law governing wetlands and tried to coerce their compliance through the threat of costly fines.

They say they would have to apply for a federal permit that could cost as much as the property itself, or wait for the EPA to go to court to force them to comply.

The Sacketts took their case to the Supreme Court after their appeal was rejected by the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals last fall.

“The decision to take the case and review an anti-property rights ruling by the Ninth Circuit should be encouraging for all property owners,” said the couple's attorney, Damien Schiff, a senior lawyer with the Pacific Legal Foundation.

Coburn, Lieberman seek to raise Medicare age

By David Espo
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Two Senate rebels jumped into Congress' cut-the-deficit competition on Tuesday, proposing to raise the age of Medicare eligibility to 67 and increase monthly premiums for millions of current beneficiaries.

“We can't save Medicare as we know it,” said Sen. Joseph Lieberman, I-Conn., who authored the plan with Republican Sen. Tom Coburn of Oklahoma. “We can only save Medicare if we change it,” he added in an apparent jab at President Barack Obama and congressional Democrats.

Democrats reacted with criticism of the proposal, which Coburn said was designed to rescue the financially imperiled program and help the nation confront a “wall of debt.” Republicans betrayed no sign of support either.

If nothing else, the response underscored the difficulty of legislative free-lancing at a time the Obama administration and congressional leaders are struggling to negotiate a compromise that cuts future deficits and clears the way for an increase in the nation's $14.3 trillion debt.

Without a debt limit increase by Aug. 2, Treasury Secretary Timothy Geithner has warned, the government could default, risking calamity for the U.S. economy and serious effects worldwide.

Republicans walked out of bipartisan talks last week but nevertheless said negotiations had been fruitful. In the days since, Obama has stepped up his personal involvement in the effort.

After meeting separately with the Senate's Republican and Democratic leaders on Monday, he invited the Democratic leadership to a White House meeting on Wednesday.

In the earlier talks, led by Vice President Joe Biden, key lawmakers had outlined a series of proposals to cut several hundred billion dollars over the next decade.

Other proposed cuts were on the table, including nearly $1 trillion from the assumed end of the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan. Officials familiar with the negotiations say Republicans are reluctant to count that money toward any agreement, saying they want more tangible cuts in domestic programs before agreeing to vote for an increased debt limit.

Los Alamos nuclear weapons lab under siege from wildfire

By P. Solomon Banda
and Susan Montoya Bryan
Associated Press

LOS ALAMOS, N.M. — A wildfire burning near the desert birthplace of the atomic bomb advanced on the Los Alamos laboratory and thousands of outdoor drums of plutonium-contaminated waste Tuesday as authorities stepped up efforts to protect the site and monitor the air for radiation.

Officials at the nation's premier nuclear weapons lab gave assurances that dangerous materials were safely stored and capable of withstanding flames from the 93-square-mile fire, which as of midday was as close as 50 feet from the grounds.

A small patch of land at the laboratory caught fire Monday before firefighters quickly put it out. Teams were on high alert to pounce on any new blazes and spent the day removing brush and low-hanging tree limbs from the lab's perimeter.

“We are throwing absolutely everything at this that we got,” Democratic Sen. Tom Udall of New Mexico said in Los Alamos.

The fire has forced the evacuation of the entire city of Los Alamos, population 11,000, cast giant plumes of smoke over the region and raised fears among nuclear watchdogs that it will reach as many as 30,000 55-gallon drums of plutonium-contaminated waste.

“The concern is that these drums will get so hot that they'll burst. That would put this toxic material into the plume. It's a concern for everybody,” said Joni Arends, executive director of the Concerned Citizens for Nuclear Safety, an anti-nuclear group.

Arends' organization also worried that the fire could stir up nuclear-contaminated soil on lab property where experiments were conducted years ago. Burrowing animals have brought that contamination to the surface, she said.

Lab officials said there was very little risk of the fire reaching the drums of low-level nuclear waste, since the flames would have to jump through canyons first. Officials also stood ready to coat the drums with fire-resistant foam if the blaze got too close.
