Q&A

Making Sense of Eastland Roadwork

The pending construction on Eastland Drive has caused a bigger-than-normal stir with the city's handling of rights of way. Here's what the results hope to accomplish:

What is the scope of work?
The city of Twin Falls is doing work all over Eastland Drive. The road-rebuild projects include: road from Elizabeth Boulevard to Fourth Avenue East; road from south of Hillcrest Drive to about Sherry Lane, including the Addison Avenue intersection; and a complete rebuild and widening from Falls Avenue to Filer Avenue. The rebuild means all the asphalt will be torn up, down to the gravel base, and restored.

How much will it cost?
The multi-year project is expected to cost about $5.5 million for all the work, City Engineer Jackie Fields said. The work will be paid for with reserves in city coffers.

What is the purpose of the work?
"It's just an old road," Fields said. "Some of those sections on Eastland are ancient — In addition to that, we're going to have a capacity problem."

The capacity problem will likely take longer to peak than when the city expects the road to fully crumble — some time around 2015 — but it is still something that needs to be addressed, she said. Further, Eastland Drive is identified as an arterial road and is one of the major funnels of north-south traffic in the city, making capacity a concern for all commuters on the eastside of town.

BLM Seeks Bids for Wild Horses

As one wild horse herd prepares to return to the Magic Valley, the BLM seeks homes for the surplus of horses nationwide.

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
lkruesi@magicvalley.com

With growing herd numbers and limited space, the U.S. Bureau of Land Management is seeking bids on new pasture facilities to care for wild horses and burros.

Every few years, the BLM expands its holding areas to meet herd growth. According to the BLM website, there are an estimated 38,500 wild horses and burros roaming throughout BLM-managed rangelands, 12,500 more than the BLM has determined is the appropriate management level.

"In the past few years, we've seen not as many people are adopting wild horses," said Tom Gorey, BLM spokesman. "This has caused a spike in our herd amounts."

Gorey said the recession and a shift in horse training preferences caused the adoption decline.

"In the past we saw more people adopting a wild horse and the owner would either train it or hire a trainer," he said. "Now people want the BLM to train the horses."

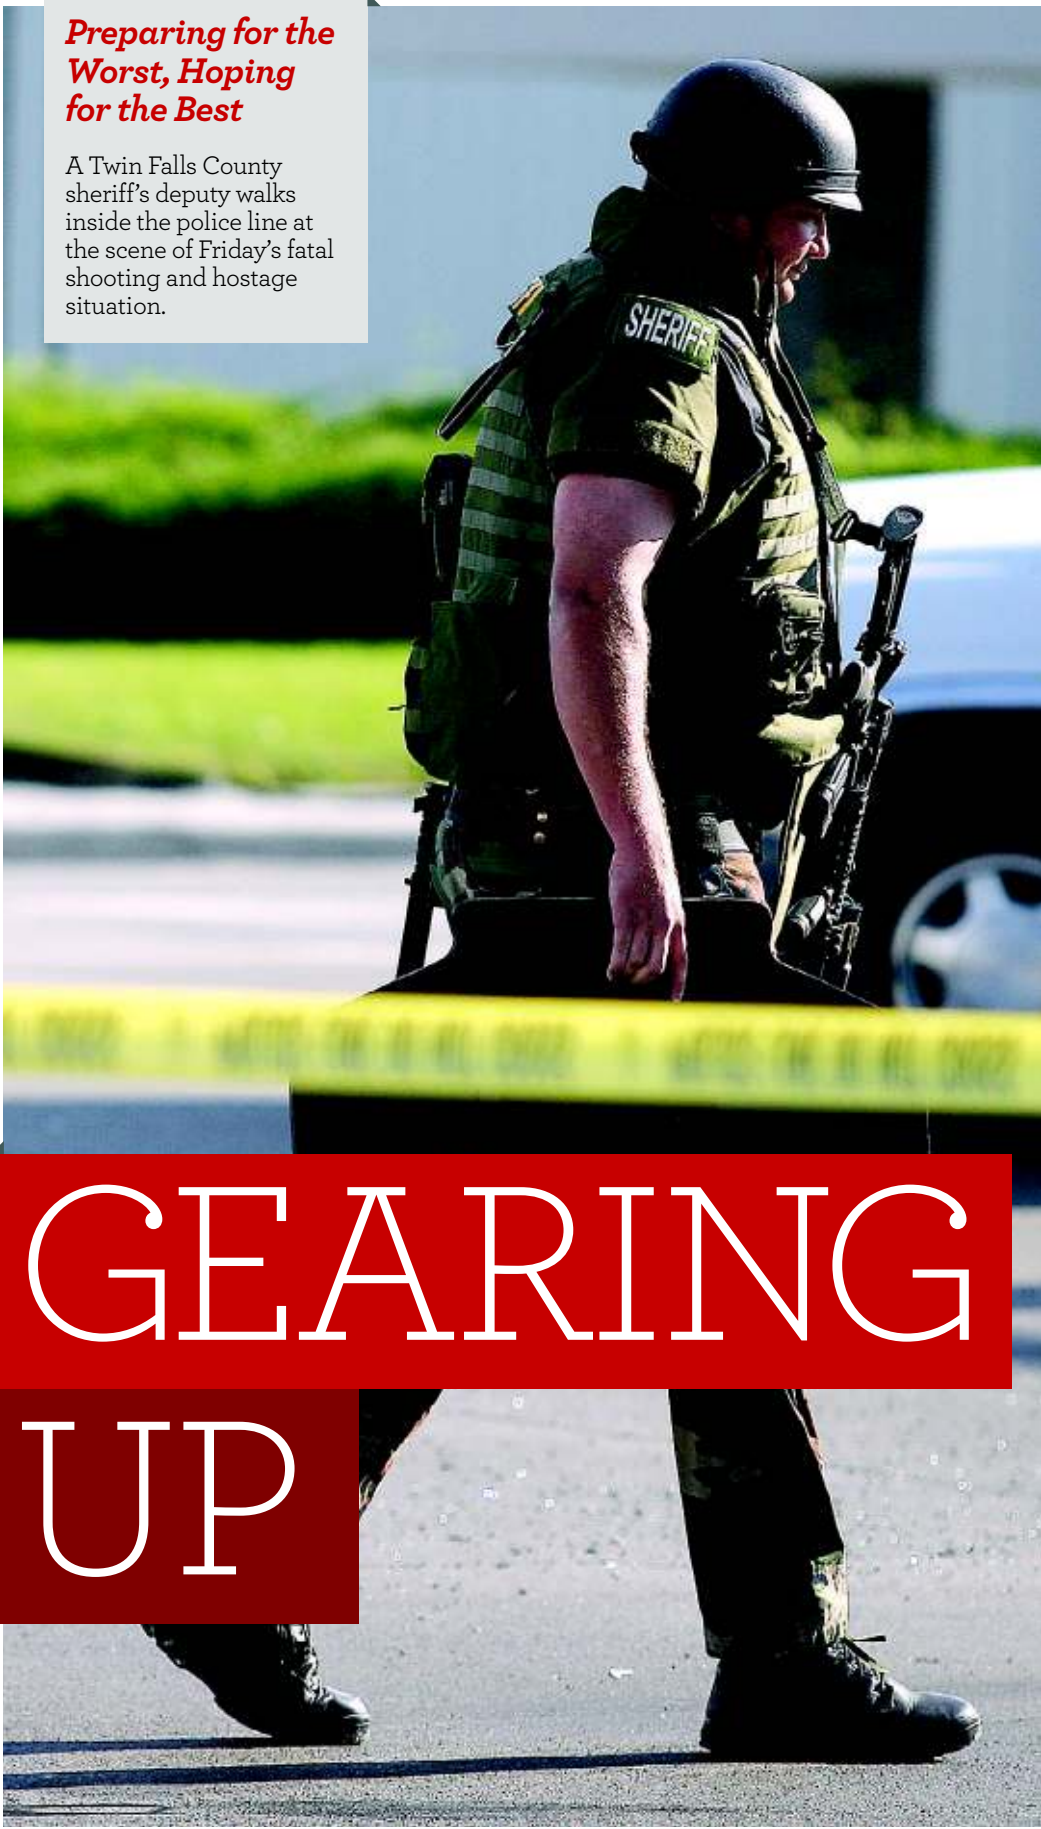

Gorey did not know if any Idaho residents are submitting pasture bids. However, the Idaho BLM is managing 500 wild horses — among them, a herd that calls the Magic Valley home, but was moved after the August 2010 Long Butte Fire southwest of Hagerman.

The fire destroyed most of the rangeland used by the Saylor Creek horse herd. Nearly one year later, part of the herd will return to the area later this month, said BLM spokeswoman Heather Tiel-Nelson. An initial 30-horse herd is expected to grow to as large as 50 horses over time.

A Twin Falls County sheriff's deputy walks inside the police line at the scene of Friday's fatal shooting and hostage situation.

When faced with extreme situations like Friday's shooting and hostage crisis, area police turn to training and partnerships to manage the danger.

BY BRADLEY GUIRE

Calling the job "stressful" is an understatement.

For members of any Special Weapons and Tactics or crisis response unit and its commanders, engaging a potentially armed and dangerous suspect could have devastating consequences. Area law enforcement agencies experienced this on Friday at the Hampton Inn in Twin Falls, participating in what they've called the largest assembly of police for a specific incident in the Magic Valley.

"We've had pursuits. We've had officers shot. We've had homicides. We've had, very rarely, kidnap situations ... but not usually all at the same time," Twin Falls Police Capt. Matt Hicks said. "We literally can't have enough people there."

Chief Deputy Don Newman of the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office concurred with Hicks.

"The dynamics of this particular call is something I've not experienced in 20 years of law enforcement," he said. "It's not the norm in Twin Falls."

Both Hicks and Newman

have spent the better part of their careers with their respective agencies' crisis response teams, experiencing what it's like to be in the thick of a situation with weapons at the ready and as decision-makers in a command center.

Newman said the pressure can't be comprehended by someone who has never been in a situation like Friday's, when an armed man attempting to elude police shot an officer before taking a hostage and refuge in the Twin Falls hotel.

"The hardest part is to maintain the ability to think and act," Newman said. "You're making split-second decisions that people can take days and weeks to analyze."

Hopped Up on Mello Yello and Lookin' for Trouble

Did you know that Twin Falls has a higher crime rate than any other major Idaho city except Coeur d'Alene? (But then Coeur d'Alene has Phil Hart, Patty Duke, a floating golf green and one of the largest NRA chapters in the West, so they don't notice the actual mayhem as much).

I have some theories as to why our streets are so mean here in Rockchuck Acres:

- Lawn ornaments. Irresistible to tchotchke thieves, who make up a small but sinister part of our criminal element locally. Look for an upsurge in snow globe-snatchings at garage sales.

- Homebody criminals. Even our county jail escapees can't find their way out of town, so it's only natural that they'd find work locally.

- Skateboarders. As the only Twin Falls drivers who can successfully parallel park, they're at a natural advantage for quick escapes.

- Stage and ballpark mothers (and fathers too). The source of most box-cutter fights in Twin Falls.

- Tough gangs like the Gray Panthers and the Blue Rinses, hanging outside the Senior Citizens' after dances, pitchin' pennies and ready to rumble.

- Beet trucks. The get-away vehicle of choice for fillin' station drive-offs.

- Cable TV. Pay services like the Nude Bass Fishing Network and The Love Boat Channel are just undermining the dickens out of our moral fiber.

- TV remote controls. The No. 1 cause of domestic violence in Twin Falls County.

- Bad drivers. We don't exactly have Road Rage here, but we sure do have Road Peeve.

- Line dancing. It's a nasty combination: arrhythmic cowboys, steeltoed boots, country music and Keystone Light.

- Cow-tipping. And in an ominous development, an upsurge of horse-tipping as well.

- Perrine Bridge. It's bad business to have Evian-swilling itinerants jumping into a 400-foot-deep canyon on a regular basis. Besides, with bungee cords, they always come back.

- Softball. You just know nobody's goin' home until both kegs are dry.

- Karaoke. Did you know that under Idaho law, it's possible to commit battery with your voice?

- Lawyers who work on a contingency-fee basis. One way or another, somebody's gonna lose a trailer.

- Irrigation boots. Mix-and-match 'em with a tank top, and it's a fashion crime. Top 'em off with a gimme seed cap, and it's a felony.

- Tailgating. A curious phenomenon, since very few pickups in Twin Falls County actually have tailgates.

- High gas prices. Folks is a 'siphon' other people's rigs usin' Pixy Stix straws.

- Duplicate bridge. "Smile, stranger, when you say, 'Four no-trump.'"

- Express check-out lines. Tempting otherwise law-abiding citizens into tryin' to sneak through with 11 items.

- State liquor stores. Other Idaho communities have drive-up liquor stores. We here in Twin Falls have drive-into liquor stores.

T.F. Shooting Suspect Has Prior Violence and Weapon Arrests

BY JARED DUBACH
Elko Daily Free Press

ELKO, Nev. • The Spring Creek, Nev., man charged with shooting an Idaho State Police trooper while trying to avoid officers during Friday's hostage incident had prior arrests for violence and weapon charges in Idaho and Nevada.

Clark Jackson Cleveland, 26, was arrested Friday after leading police on a nearly four-hour chase and standoff that left a Utah man dead and an ISP trooper injured.

Cleveland

He is charged with felony eluding and aggravated battery on an officer, while additional charges remain pending.

While Cleveland is also accused of violating his probation on a June driving under the influence conviction in Twin Falls County, court records from outside the Magic Valley show he's been arrested before for lesser violence and weapons allegations.

In 2006, Cleveland was convicted in Shoshone County of carrying a concealed weapon without a license. And since 2009, Cleveland has twice been arrested in Nevada for incidences of alleged domestic violence.

Charges related to an Elko County, Nev., woman's allegation that Cleveland tried to strangle her during a March 2009 domestic dispute were dismissed last year after prosecutors said they couldn't prove that Cleveland committed alleged offenses.

Cleveland was again arrested in Nevada on April 1, after the same woman alleged Cleveland hit her during an argument. According to court records, sheriff's deputies attempting to arrest Cleveland found him driving away from the residence while allegedly under the influence of alcohol. Deputies say Cleveland refused to exit his vehicle and reached toward the center of his truck's seat before they drew their weapons on him and removed him from the truck.

They say a 9 mm handgun was resting on the truck's bench. Cleveland was arrested on suspicion of possessing a firearm while under the influence of alcohol and domestic violence, though charges in that case have not been filed.

Burley Restarts Talks on New Airport

After two stymied attempts to find a new site for the aging J.R. Jack Simplot Airport, the city is moving forward with a third attempt to find a new home for the landlocked and out-of-compliance airport.

Mike Pepper, owner of KMP Planning, said the city's airport is out of compliance with Federal Aviation Administration standards for both the types of aircraft currently using it, along with those that may in the future.

The current airport can't expand as it is surrounded by state highways, the Snake River and commercial buildings.

Those interested in submitting a bid must first meet several criteria. Pasture land must be able to provide human care for the horses for at least one year, with a renewal option for

ISC Selects Burdick as Chief Justice

TIMES-NEWS

A former Magic Valley judge has been selected as chief justice of Idaho's high court.

Justice Roger Burdick will begin a four-year term as head of the state Supreme Court on Aug. 1, succeeding current Chief Justice Daniel Eismann. Burdick was unanimously chosen by fellow justices, with his election announced on Monday.

Burdick began his 30-year career in the judiciary as a magistrate judge in Jerome County, a district judge in Twin Falls County and administrative judge for the Fifth Judicial District. In 2000, he was appointed to head the Snake River Basin Adjudication, ruling on water rights. Former Gov. Dirk Kempthorne appointed him to the Supreme Court in 2003. Burdick was selected as vice chief justice in 2007. He is a 1974 graduate of the University of Idaho School of Law.

As the newest chief justice, Burdick wants to continue Eismann's initiatives of expanding problem-solving courts and modernizing technology for court operations. In addition, he plans to visit all 44 Idaho counties during his tenure to gather opinions on judiciary issues from public officials and court personnel.

commanders say practice can never replicate a real hostage or shooting incident. It's especially difficult in rural areas, considering that team members are not full-time tactical responders. Because extreme incidents occur so infrequently here, officers' primary duties may lie in another aspect of law enforcement, such as investigations or patrol.

An incident's intense pressure is also shared by regular officers, who are now expected to have some level of crisis response training. Patrolmen carry rifles instead of shotguns, and they're equipped with "battle bags," which contain extra ammunition and other supplies to aid in an extended crisis.

Twin Falls Police Chief Brian Pike said other shooting incidents around the country made law enforcement commanders rethink response strategies.

"I think Columbine is an excellent example of how we had to change our mindset of responding officers when you have an active shooter," he said of the 1999 school shooting in Colorado. "Before that, you would hold the perimeter and wait for a tactical team to show up."

Hicks said nine agencies were represented at the scene of Friday morning's fatal shooting and hostage situation, with others providing assistance to relieve officers had the incident lasted longer. While the response was large, it is not uncommon for agencies to assist one another. A commander is constantly bombarded with changing intelligence from multiple sources as he tries to organize officers normally not under his command. The application and rationing of manpower is paramount to the response, as there's no way to know how long a suspect will hole up in a building.

"In the back of your mind, you're thinking 'What does this look like 24 hours from now? What does this look like 48 hours from now?'" Pike said. In addition, Pike said he must still manage resources to adequately cover regular patrol elsewhere in the city.

"It's a constant stream of logistical thinking."

Locally, partnerships with other agencies allow incident commanders to relieve an officer who has been on the scene for hours with one who is fresh, alert and less likely to make a poor decision because of fatigue. Hicks said the city's SWAT team trains with the sheriff's crisis response team three or four times per year to create a seamless group of responders.

Investigators declined to go into further specifics about how Friday's incident was managed because the case against 26-year-old suspect Clark Cleveland remains active. While the Spring Creek, Nev., man faces charges of felony eluding and aggravated battery on an officer with a weapon, additional charges may be pending, particularly for the shooting death of 43-year-old Tracy Ivie, of Bountiful, Utah.

Cleveland surrendered to authorities approximately 3 1/2 hours after allegedly fleeing a traffic stop by an Idaho State Police trooper on U.S. Highway 93 near Filer, then shooting Trooper Nicholas Walker, taking a female hostage and barricading himself in a stairwell. It remains unclear how or when Ivie was shot during the incident.

Labrador Campaigns in Puerto Rican Homeland

BY JOHN MILLER
The Associated Press

BOISE • Marking his close ties to Puerto Rico, U.S. Rep. Raul Labrador held campaign events in April on the tropical island where he was born. According to his July Federal Election Commission report, the Idaho Republican spent about $14,450 on three fund-raising events over four days at the Ponce Hilton and Casino on Puerto Rico's southern tip and the 672-room Wyndham Rio Mar Beach Resort & Spa, which has a one-mile uninterrupted white sand beach.

Labrador reported the expenses from events, catering, meals, lodging, airfare and in-flight Internet use and service, as well as a $340 jungle excursion by bus into Puerto Rico's El Yunque rainforest.

His chief of staff, John Goodwin, told The Associated Press the campaign raised $29,750 related to the events, with $10,500 from Puerto Rico-based contributors, according to the FEC report.

At least $4,000 was from executives at Distilleria Serralles and their family members; the company markets itself as the second-largest premium rum producer for the U.S. market.

About $9,000 came from political action committees, including California dairies and the Property Casualty Insurers of America, with $4,500 contributed by small donors. Not all of the incoming money was included on the July report, because some arrived during the previous reporting period, Goodwin said.

"That margin may not be enough to convince us to do it again," said Goodwin, who accompanied the first-term congressman on his island excursion, on the success of the event. "We're still going to evaluate" whether the returns are enough to merit additional campaign events in Puerto Rico, he said.

Puerto Rico is an unincorporated U.S. territory. Labrador, who was born in Puerto Rico in 1967 but moved to Las Vegas with his mother as a young boy, attracted attention this week when he called President Obama's credentials for reducing the U.S. deficit a joke on national TV.

In total, Labrador raised $98,469 from all contributors in the April through June period, while spending $62,475, leaving him with just over $102,000 in his campaign coffers as of June 30.

Boise Proposes New Fees Targeted at Careless Acts

BOISE (AP) • The state's capital city has proposed more than a dozen new fees targeted at people who commit "negligent acts" that require an emergency response, such as floating the Boise River when the water is too high or driving drunk and crashing a car.

The Boise City Council planned to hold a public hearing late Tuesday on the proposal, which is estimated to generate about $40,000 a year.

The city collects now property taxes to pay for emergency services. The proposed fees are consistent with the mayor's desire to shift the cost of derelict behavior from taxpayers to those who are at fault, said Fire Chief Dennis Doan.

"These are fees for people that are negligent," Doan told the Idaho Statesman. "Accidents happen and that's what we are here for. We are looking for things that are abnormal and aren't fair for the property taxpayer to pay for."

"For example, if you choose to go on the river when we've declared that it is dangerous and then we have to rescue you, it is not fair for the property taxpayers to pay for that," Doan said.

That person would have to pay $1,000 for the first three hours of response time, and $250 for each additional hour, under the new proposal. A person would not be charged for a rescue when authorities have deemed the river safe.

Another proposed fee would apply when fire crews are called out for a vehicle fire. The $600 fee would be levied in cases where, for instance, a driver gets being the wheel while intoxicated, crashes their vehicle, and the car then catches fire, Doan said. The fee would not apply if a driver has a mechanical failure and his vehicle ignites.

There would also be a fee for false security and fire alarms.

Boise is not alone in taking action to recoup costs for careless behavior that requires emergency workers to respond.

In California, San Diego officials approved a new fee for false fire alarms last month. In Michigan, Richmond officials charge fees for driving under the influence arrests that require the fire department to respond and provide services, such as removing the person from the vehicle.

"Cost recovery is a reasonable option in a time when communities are facing the possibility of raising taxes to cover the actual costs, or lowering the services provided by the fire department for example, by increasing response times," the International Association of Fire Chiefs said in a statement.

In Boise, the city would contract a private company to collect the new fees from parties found responsible or insurance companies if the new fees are approved.

Idaho Accepting Health Care Law Money, After All

BY JOHN MILLER
The Associated Press

BOISE (AP) • Idaho was set to accept as much as $19 million in federal cash linked to the health care overhaul as state agencies take advantage of waiver provisions that help them skirt Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter's executive order aimed at blocking them from taking some of the money.

Idaho is among states suing over the federal law. Otter's order came after the end of the 2011 Legislature to underscore his official objections to some of the provisions passed by Congress, including to eventually force residents to buy health insurance come 2014 — or be fined.

But the Republican governor has now signed at least 10 waivers to his order, saying programs that sought a reprieve made sense, were part of existing state programs or didn't further the law's objectionable aspects that he's

"The governor has always been clear, if someone wants to change his mind, he is open to letting them try," Jon Hanian, Otter's spokesman, said Tuesday. "But he has also indicated that before they launch into a sales pitch, they better do their homework and be able to back up their reasons. Obviously in the case of these approved waivers, they did."

Under the waivers, for instance, the College of Southern Idaho could get $12.5 million for a project to help create education programs at Idaho's six regional technical colleges. Those would train people who have lost jobs due to foreign competition for new careers in the energy, manufacturing and health care.

Idaho State University is due to get $1.2 million for one of its two physician residency programs to help train family doctors, and another $642,404 for a physicians' assistants program.

Court OKs Nevada roundup

BY SCOTT SONNER
Associated Press

RENO, Nev. • The U.S. Bureau of Land Management was given the green light on Tuesday to move ahead with a controversial horse roundup in Nevada when a federal appeals court lifted a temporary injunction blocking the gathering of more than 1,700 mustangs.

An animal rights group, the Colorado-based Cloud Foundation, had sued to stop the roundup. A three-judge panel of the 9th Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals in San Francisco said the group had failed to show it could prove during future hearings that the roundup is illegal and that removal of horses from federally protected rangeland would cause irreparable harm.

Critics said another disappointing loss in federal court suggested Congress may have to pass a new law to protect the mustangs because the Wild Free-Roaming Horse and Burros Act of 1971 doesn't seem to be enforceable.

"We need a new law," said Rachel Fazio, a lawyer for the Cloud Foundation who had won the temporary restraining order from a judge on the appellate court based on claims the proposed roundup was illegal.

"I think we really need to establish the fact that these animals need to be protected, need to be maintained unmolested by man. And that we mean it this time," she told The Associated Press.

BLM spokeswoman Heather Emmons said the roundup that had been scheduled to begin last week would start on Wednesday in northeast Nevada near the Utah line — weather permitting — and continue for about six weeks.

"We'll continue with the gather as we were going to, through the end of August," she told AP.

BLM argued the agency has a mandate under the federal law to remove "excess" horses to sustain the health of herds, rangelands and wildlife. It said the mustang population in the Triple B complex is five times greater than what the range can support.

The Cloud Foundation argued late Monday that the emergency order should remain in place until the government proves the mustangs are causing ecological damage to the range. They said an unusually wet spring has left most public rangeland in northern Nevada with plenty of water and forage.

NORTHERN IDAHO INMATE ESCAPES FROM PRISON

BOISE • The Idaho Department of Correction says a man who had just been sentenced to prison for burglary has escaped from the Benewah County jail.

A press release from the department says Jesse John Wilkenson was sentenced to the department's retained jurisdiction program on Friday. Under his sentence, he could have been eligible for probation if he successfully completed a year-long prison treatment program.

But authorities say just a few hours later the 20-year-old Wilkenson escaped from the jail in St. Maries. He is described as being 5 feet and 8 inches tall and 146 pounds, with a medium complexion and brown hair and eyes.

WASDEN SAYS PAYDAY LENDER TO REIMBURSE BORROWERS

BOISE • The state attorney general's office says Idaho residents are eligible for restitution from a Utah-based payday loan lender that was not licensed to practice in the state and attempted to garnish the wages of borrowers without a court order.

Attorney General Lawrence Wasden says Flobridge Group LLC has agreed to refund borrowers who sent the company payments after receiving collection notices, wage garnishment requests or court documents. The company agreed to the refunds as part of a settlement.

Idaho OKs $54,000 Payment After Losing Election Case

BOISE (AP) • The state on Tuesday approved a payment of more than $54,000 in attorney fees and court costs to an Arizona man who challenged Idaho's election laws and won.

A federal judge decided Idaho's election laws are unconstitutional and unfairly biased against would-be independent presidential candidates in a ruling last April.

U.S. Magistrate Judge Ronald Bush sided with a Phoenix man who sued the state, claiming he was unfairly barred from collecting signatures in Idaho to get an independent presidential candidate like Ralph Nader on the state ballot.

The payment to Donald Daien was approved by a panel including Idaho's governor, attorney general, secretary of state, controller and legislative leaders, according to The Spokesman-Review.

Daien had argued that Idaho's rules violated his right to free speech because nonresidents are barred from circulating petitions in Idaho. He also contended it's unfair to require more than 6,500 signatures for independent presidential candidates to get on the ballot, when candidates seeking statewide office need only 1,000 signatures.

The judge agreed, ruling: "A ballot process that generally presumes by its nature that new ideas and new candidates are always imported and that additionally discourages nonresidents from working within Idaho to press debate upon and foster support for new ideas and new candidates, is inherently nefarious and certainly inimical to First Amendment principles."

State lawmakers approved a bill with a series of administrative changes to Idaho's election laws during the 2011 session.

The legislation also lowered the amount of signatures a third-party candidate for president had to gather to make the state's ballot.

"There was corrective legislation passed this session," Secretary of State Ben Yursa said at the meeting of the Idaho Constitutional Defense Council.

Feds to Take Over Idaho's Role Reviewing Health Insurance Rates

BOISE (AP) • The federal government will assume the responsibility of reviewing increases of 10 percent or more in health insurance premiums proposed by private Idaho insurance companies starting later this fall.

The decision by federal officials may be the first effect of Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter's executive order signed this year that prohibits the state from carrying out any part of the 2010 federal health care overhaul, the Idaho Statesman reported Tuesday.

Shad Priest, deputy director of the Idaho Department of Insurance, said the state's reluctance to comply leaves it unable to meet the demands for the federal law's requirements for states to provide watchdog oversight on health insurance rate hikes. Priest said Idaho also has a policy of not disclosing health insurance rates to the public, citing a state law making certain rate information proprietary.

As a result, starting Sept. 1 a branch of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services will become the lead reviewer of some proposed rate hikes for health insurance premiums. Proposed rate increases subject to review include those for calling for an increase of 10 percent or more for small groups or individuals. Under the new rules, private insurers must also disclose the increases and justify the need to raise premiums.

In future years, the threshold for flagging a rate for review will be set on a state-by-state basis, considering the insurance and health cost trends in each state.

In Idaho, insurance premiums are not subject to state approval, but are disclosed to the state. The Department of Insurance monitors those premiums and can send increases to a consultant to determine whether they are excessive or discriminatory.

The cost of health insurance coverage nationally for a family of four rose 131 percent over the past 12 years, according to the federal Center for Consumer Information and Insurance Oversight.

"Many times, insurance companies have been able to raise rates without explaining their actions," the center said in a fact sheet. "In most cases, consumers receive little or no information about proposed premium increases and aren't told why health insurance companies want to raise rates."

OUR VIEW

This May Be the Golden Age Of Idaho's Judiciary

Lots of folks are understandably dispirited about the state of the legislative and executive branches of Idaho government these days. On some levels, frankly, they're a mess. But Idaho has a third branch of government, the judiciary. And it may be the best it's been in the state's 121-year-history.

Things got even better this week with the announcement that Justice Roger Burdick, a former Twin Falls district judge and Jerome lawyer who presided for a time over the Snake River Basin Adjudication, has been elected by his fellow Supreme Court justices as chief justice of Idaho. He'll take office next month.

Burdick, now 64, was appointed to the high court by then-Gov. Dirk Kempthorne in 2003 and reelected to a second full term 14 months ago. He has had a significant role in transforming Idaho's criminal justice system from simply putting people behind bars to ensuring they stay out of jail in the first place.

Idaho's major crime rate has fallen 35 percent since 1997 and 24 percent in the past decade. While law enforcement shares the credit, the reforms implemented by district judges like Burdick played a big part in making that happen.

Drug courts, mental health courts, domestic violence courts, DUI courts not only decreased the number people locked up for those offenses, but made it statistically less likely that offenders would later commit more serious crimes.

It's been perhaps the major success story of Idaho government over the past 10 years, and helped saved the state's bacon during the budget cutting that followed the Great Recession. By reducing the prison population, scarce tax dollars could go to the schools or the Idaho Department and Health and Welfare - and not to the Department of Correction.

For south-central Idaho, Burdick's election as chief justice means that man who helped write the book on Idaho water law will have a profound influence on interpreting it.

It was Burdick who actually put the concept of conjunctive management at the center of the way the state allocates water.

Conjunctive management holds junior ground water users partly responsible for spring and river depletion that results in injury to senior surface water rights-holders. Idaho's rules require the holders of junior rights to mitigate or replace the effects of their depletions to the Eastern Snake River Plain Aquifer — or stop diverting water.

That's the basis of not only the state's water management — but the core of the economy in southern Idaho.

Burdick is fair, open-minded and doesn't let his politics or his personal opinions into his rulings.

With two justices with Magic Valley ties also on the court — Jim Jones, like Burdick, is a former Jerome County prosecutor and Joel Horton used to be an assistant prosecutor in Twin Falls County — south-central Idaho has never had a more informed Supreme Court on issues that matter to us.

Across the Idaho judiciary, there's still work to be done. The state has the lowest percentage of female district and magistrate judges in the nation, and that must change. And as effective as they are, problem-solving courts haven't percolated down to Idaho's most rural areas as extensively as they should have by now.

And yet the quality of district and magistrate judges in Idaho is improving — better lawyers are now donning black robes — and Burdick and his judicial colleagues had a hand in making that happen.

He's a reform-minded jurist who's in exactly the right place at the right time.

Think Education is Expensive? Try Ignorance

Nicholas Kristof

The New York Times

YAMILL, Ore. • The United States supports schools in Afghanistan because we know that education is one of the cheapest and most effective ways to build a country.

Alas, we've forgotten that lesson at home. All across America, school budgets are being cut, teachers laid off and education programs dismantled.

My beloved old high school in Yamhill, Ore. — a plain brick building that was my rocket ship — is emblematic of that trend. There were only 167 school days in the last school year here (180 was typical until the recession hit), and the staff has been reduced by 9 percent over five years.

This school was where I embraced sports, became a journalist, encountered intellectual worlds, and got in trouble. These days, the 430 students still have opportunities to get into trouble, but the rest is harder.

For the next school year, freshman and junior varsity sports teams are at risk, and all students will have to pay $125 to participate on a team. The school newspaper, which once doubled as a bi-weekly newspaper for the entire town, has been terminated.

Business classes are gone. A music teacher has been eliminated. Class size is growing, with more than 40 students in freshman Spanish. "It's like a long, slow bleed, watching things disappear," says the school district's business manager, Michelle Morrison.

The school still has good teachers, but is that sustainable with a starting salary of $33,676?

Yamhill is far from alone. The Center on Education Policy reports that 70 percent of school districts nationwide endured budget cuts in the school year that just ended, and 84 percent anticipate cuts this year.

In higher education, the same drama is unfolding. California's superb public university system is being undermined by the biggest budget cuts in the state's history. Tuition is set to rise about 20 percent this year, on top of a 26 percent increase last year, which means that college will become unaffordable for some.

The immediate losers are the students. In the long run, the loser is our country.

Claudia Goldin and Lawrence Katz, two Harvard economists, argue in their book The Race Between Education and Technology that a prime factor in America's rise over the last two centuries was its leadership in educating the masses.

When I report on poverty in Africa and poverty in America, the differences are vast. But there is a common thread: chipping away at poverty is difficult and uncertain work, but perhaps the anti-poverty program with the very best record is education — and that's as true in New York as it is in

Granted, budget shortfalls are real, and schools need reforms as well as dollars. Pouring money into a broken system isn't a solution, and we need more accountability. But it's also true that blindly slashing budgets is making the problems worse. As Derek Bok, the former Harvard president, once observed, "If you think education is expensive, try ignorance."

Sometimes I hear people endorse education cuts by arguing that "school isn't for everybody," which usually means something like "education isn't for other people's children" — or that farm kids in places like Yamhill really don't need schools that double as rocket ships. I can't think of any view that is more un-American.

Still, we nation-build in Afghanistan and scrimp at home. How is it that we can afford to double our military budget since 9/11, can afford the carried-interest tax loophole for billionaires, can afford billions of dollars in giveaways to oil and gas companies, yet can't afford to invest in our kids' futures?

How to Cut $4 Trillion in Spending

Mark Zandi

The Washington Post

The Obama administration and Congress must raise the federal debt ceiling by Aug. 2. That is all there is to it. In a post-default world, financial markets would unravel and the U.S. and global economy would enter another severe recession. The nation's already daunting fiscal problems would spiral out of control as tax revenue plunged and demand surged for unemployment insurance, food stamps, Medicaid and other programs supporting vulnerable Americans.

Yes, it would be wonderful if politicians could agree to rein in future budget deficits as part of a debt-limit deal. But that isn't necessary right now. Simply raising the debt ceiling enough to last through next year's elections would appease global investors and sustain the economic recovery. The 2012 vote will be a referendum on how to address our fiscal problems: The winner sets the agenda, and tough decisions can be made after the swearing-in of the president and Congress.

It is laudable that lawmakers have attempted to do more now, hoping that the pressure surrounding the debt ceiling would force big changes in fiscal policy. And it is encouraging that they are coalescing around the same budget math: President Obama has called for about $4 trillion in deficit reduction over the next decade; so did Republican Rep. Paul Ryan of Wisconsin, chairman of the House Budget Committee, in his budget proposal; and so did the Simpson-Bowles fiscal commission. About $4 trillion over 10 years is the amount of deficit reduction needed to make the government's fiscal situation sustainable, keep interest rates low and strengthen our economy in the long run.

There are significant disagreements over the composition of the deficit reduction, but these can be overcome if we agree to achieve the entire $4 trillion reduction through cuts in government spending — and that includes tax expenditures.

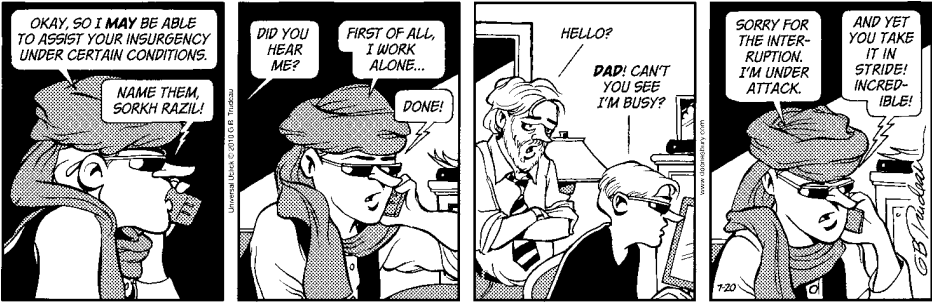

Even if a comprehensive agreement to achieve fiscal sustainability is out of reach right now, lawmakers must not go over the debt-ceiling cliff. Without an increase in the ability to borrow, the federal cash flow might be sufficient to make timely debt payments, but what of the government's countless other obligations? And credit-rating agencies are nervous that Treasury wouldn't even be able to make debt payments a priority; Moody's, my employer, just put U.S. debt on review for a possible downgrade.

Defaulting on the nation's debt would be cataclysmic. The U.S. Treasury's Aaa rating is the one constant in the world's financial system. When times are bad, global investors flock to Treasury bonds because they know they will get their money back. This "flight to quality" has pushed U.S. interest rates to near-record lows and has been vital to keeping our economy afloat. Yet this benefit was earned over more than two centuries by adhering to the bedrock principle that the United States always pays its bills on time. One misstep, and the government would have to pay higher interest rates for years, perhaps for generations.

Mom, 3 Daughters From Colo. Killed in Wyo. Washout

BY BOB MOEN
The Associated Press

CHEYENNE, Wyo. • Four members of a Colorado Springs family died after their vehicle drove into a washed-out section of a mountain highway in Wyoming and was swept downstream by a raging creek as they fled torrential rains at a national forest campground.

A mother and her three young daughters were killed; only the husband and father managed to escape as the van was carried away.

Officials said debris in the creek blocked large culverts that run under the highway and the water then tore through the roadway, opening a 25-foot-wide, 9-foot-deep breach about 20 miles from Saratoga in the southern part of the state.

The van went into the creek sometime between 1:15 a.m. and 1:40 a.m. and was swept about 75 yards downstream and submerged up to its rooftop, patrol spokesman Stephen Townsend.

Minutes later, a local emergency management official who was responding to the accident hit the same washout and plunged into the creek.

"I consider myself very fortunate. I was wondering if I was going to see my family again, to be quite honest with you," John Zeiger, Carbon County emergency management coordinator, said in a telephone interview from his hospital bed.

At one point the water washed over his vehicle, but the water inside got no higher than his waist, Zeiger said, noting the car windows were up and didn't break. He was rescued after about two hours.

Other responders retrieved the bodies of the Laurel Constantinides, 29, and the couple's three daughter — Hanna, 8, Zoey, 5, and Lucia, 2. The cause of death was not immediately available, but officials said it appeared they drowned. All were wearing seat belts or in child seats.

The father and husband, 39-year-old Alex Constantinides, was taken to a hospital, the patrol said. He was released later Tuesday, according to a hospital nurse.

The family is from Colorado Springs, and the father is a physician who works ringside at many mixed martial arts events in Colorado, said an acquaintance.

"I know that he has the support and love from the martial arts community in Colorado and beyond," said J.R. Gordon, of Lyons, Colo.

Their 1991 Volkswagen camper van and Zeiger's Dodge Durango remained in the creek late Tuesday afternoon because the water was too high to recover them, Townsend said. The Carbon County Sheriff's Office conducted an aerial search of the area and did not spot any more vehicles or people in the creek, according to county Undersheriff Mike Morris.

Many rivers and creeks in Wyoming already are swollen by heavy mountain runoff from a record snowpack. Flooding this spring and summer has been blamed for at least two other deaths and has cost the state an estimated $4.2 million, including damages to public infrastructure including several major washouts, landslides and partial collapses of roadway around the state.

On Monday, heavy rain began around 7 p.m. and continued until near midnight, prompting authorities to begin clearing out three area campgrounds after midnight, Townsend said.

U.S. Forest Service acting spokesman Larry Sandoval said the family had been camping in the South Brush Creek Campground. Two or three other camp sites were occupied that night, Sandoval said.

Over 65 and Not Worried About Heat? You Should Be

BY LINDSEY TANNER
The Associated Press

CHICAGO • This week's heat wave may be uncomfortable, but you're healthy, active and feel just fine. So what if you're over 65? Think again. Feeling good doesn't mean you're safe.

There are changes in an older person that raise the risk for heat stroke and other problems. An older body contains far less water than a younger one. Older brains can't sense temperature changes as well, and they don't recognize thirst as easily.

Blistering summer heat is an underappreciated killer, claiming by some estimates as many as 1,000 U.S. lives each year — more than any other type of weather.

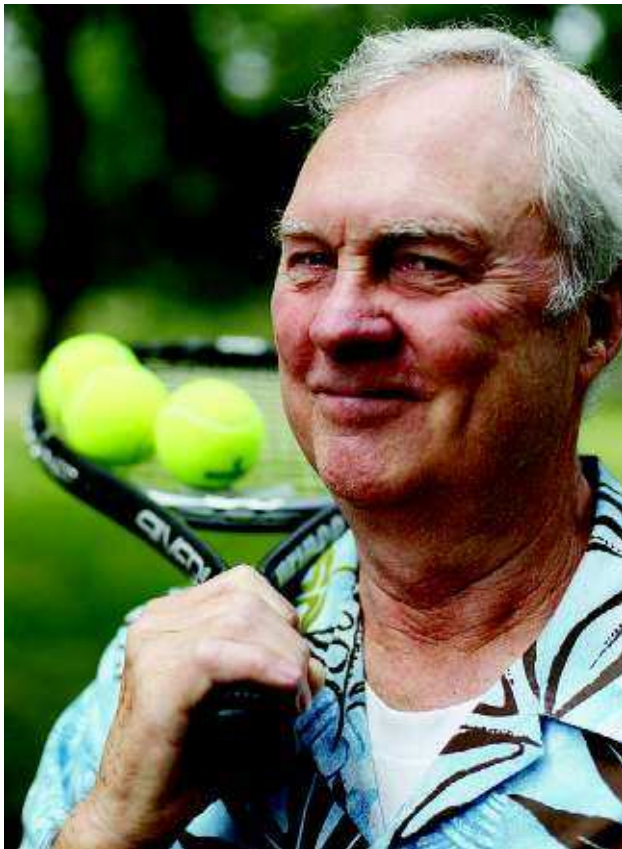

One federal study found 40 percent of heat-related deaths were in people 65 and older. Research has shown many people over 65 don't think the warnings apply to them — because they don't think they're "old."

Don Worden is 79 and an avid tennis buff who prefers playing doubles on outdoor courts along Chicago's lakefront — even in oppressive 90-degree temperatures like those hitting the Midwest this week.

"I don't pay too much attention to those" warnings, Worden said. "I stay in pretty good shape, and I don't feel they apply to me."

Worden said he drinks a lot of water and would stop a match if he started feeling effects from the heat, "but that hasn't happened."

Scott Sheridan, who studies the effects of heat and climate on health at Kent State University, researched how people over 65 view heat warnings. In his 2006 study of more than 900 people, he found about 70 percent knew about advice to drink plenty of water on very hot days, avoid outdoor activities and stay inside with air conditioning. But only about half said they followed the advice.

"People well into their 70s would say old people should watch out but not them," he said. "People just didn't want to be thought of in that same category."

Dr. David Zich, an emergency medicine specialist at Northwestern Memorial Hospital, said he has colleagues in medicine that age who shun being thought of as "elderly." But those heat warnings apply to them, too.

As Dr. William Dale, geriatrics chief at the University of Chicago Medical Center explains it, "Any older adult has less reserve and is more likely to become dehydrated than others, just because their overall body water goes down with age no matter how healthy you are."

The amount of water in the body declines with aging, from about 80 percent in young adulthood to about 55 to 60 percent for people in their 80s, Dale said.

Temperature sensors in the brain become less sensitive as people age, so the body doesn't get the same signals to drink water in hot weather, and older people often don't feel thirsty even when they need to replenish, Dale said.

They also may not feel the typical symptoms of dehydration, such as headache or dizziness. Some complain of just feeling "bad" and think they're getting sick, he said.

Conditions were ripe for those types of complaints Tuesday as a dense dome of hot air remained parked over much of the nation's midsection.

GOP Lawmaker Unleashes Email Tirade at Colleague

WASHINGTON (AP) • A Republican congressman from Florida turned to email on Tuesday to call a Democratic colleague from the state "vile, despicable and cowardly" after she called into question his stance on Medicare during the debate over a spending cap and balanced budget bill before the House.

Rep. Allen West, a first-term Republican from south Florida, wasn't shy about his online outburst. He sent his peppery email to numerous lawmakers as well as his target, Rep. Debbie Wasserman Schultz, D-Fla., the chairwoman of the Democratic National Committee.

The subject line of the email: "Unprofessional and Inappropriate Sophomoric Behavior from Wasserman Schultz."

The email said: "Look, Debbie, I understand that after I departed the House floor you directed your floor speech comments directly towards me. Let me make myself perfectly clear, you want a personal fight, I am happy to oblige. You are the most vile, unprofessional and despicable member of the US House of Representatives. If you have something to say to me, stop being a coward and say it to my face, otherwise, shut the heck up!"

In her remarks on the House floor, Wasserman Schultz said: "The gentleman from Florida, who represents thousands of Medicare beneficiaries, as do I, is supportive of this plan that would increase costs for Medicare beneficiaries. Unbelievable from a member from south Florida!"

She was alluding to a GOP-backed bill to reduce the debt and amend the Constitution to require a balanced federal budget.

In his email, West said Wasserman Schultz has proven "that you are not a Lady" and "shall not be afforded due respect from me!" He said he was alerting House leaders to her "heinous characterless behavior."

A spokesman for Wasserman Schultz, Jonathan Beeton, said in an email of his own: "I don't think that Congressman West is upset at the congresswoman, but rather with the fact that she highlighted that he and other Republicans are once again trying to balance the budget on the backs of seniors, children and the middle class. ... The truth hurts."

Bachman: Migraines Won't Affect Performance

She insists that her symptoms are under control and have not gotten in the way of a hectic presidential campaign.

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) • Republican Michele Bachmann moved swiftly Tuesday to address questions about her history of severe headaches, saying they wouldn't affect her ability to serve as president. The Minnesota congresswoman and White House contender rejected suggestions that migraines would prevent her from waging a rigorous campaign or from running the country if she wins. "Let me be abundantly clear — my ability to function effectively has never been impeded by migraines and will not affect my ability to serve as commander in chief," Bachmann said in a statement issued through her campaign.

She insisted that her symptoms are controlled with prescription medication and have not gotten in the way of a packed presidential campaign schedule or impaired her service in Congress. Bachmann's statement followed a report published late Monday by The Daily Caller saying Bachmann's past migraines have led to hospitalizations and left her "incapacitated." The online publication granted anonymity to former aides who described specific instances where Bachmann was reportedly sidelined by severe headaches. Campaign aides told reporters they have no plans to release a detailed medical history. Neither they nor Bachmann disputed accounts that she sought out urgent medical treatment during past migraine episodes. Bachmann, a third-term congresswoman, has vaulted into the top ranks of GOP presidential candidates since declaring her candidacy last month. At the same time, the tea party pow-

Murdoch Rejects Blame for Hacking Scandal at UK Hearing

He says he knows nothing about allegations that News of the World staff hacked cell phones, bribed police to get information on public figures.

BY PAISLEY DODDS
The Associated Press

LONDON • Summoned by lawmakers to answer for a phone hacking and bribery scandal at one of his tabloids, Rupert Murdoch said he was humbled and ashamed Tuesday but accepted no responsibility for wrongdoing as a widening investigation threatened to ensnare Britain's prime minister.

Murdoch

In a three-hour grilling, the 80-year-old media tycoon insisted he was at fault only for trusting the wrong people at the now-defunct News of the World, and noted that the paper made up a tiny portion of his vast media empire. The scandal has rocked Murdoch's News Corp. and embroiled Britain's top police, many journalists and politicians. Prime Minister David Cameron cut short his Africa trip to appear before a special parliamentary question session on Wednesday. Murdoch appeared confused and flustered in the beginning of Tuesday's parliamentary hearing, turning frequently to his son James for answers. But he soon regained his trademark cool.

He said he had known nothing of allegations that staff at the News of the World tabloid hacked into cell phones and bribed police to get information on celebrities, politicians and crime victims, and that he never would have approved such "horrible invasions" of privacy. In the face of lawmakers' suggestions that his organization encouraged such behavior, he was unflappable — even after a protester rushed at him in the middle of the hearing. He stayed seated when the man tried to throw a foam pie at him. A News Corp. attorney partially blocked the attack and Murdoch's 42-year-old wife slapped the prankster. After the protester was arrested, the billionaire simply shed his splattered suit jacket and continued answering questions.

House Passes 'Cut Cap and Balance'

BY ANDREW TAYLOR and DAVID ESPO
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON • The House has passed legislation conditioning a $2.4 trillion increase in the nation's borrowing cap on a tea party-backed plan to require immediate spending cuts and a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced budget. The 234-190 vote sends the "cut, cap and balance" plan to the Democratic-controlled Senate, where it has virtually no chance of passing. With the House tally cast, attention is returning to efforts in the Senate to provide President Barack Obama authority to impose an increase in the debt limit without approval by Congress and on a new Senate "Gang of Six" proposal to cut the deficit by almost $4 trillion over the coming decade. President Obama and a startling number of GOP senators lauded the bipartisan deficit-reduction plan Tuesday that includes $1 trillion in higher taxes, raising hopes of a last-minute compromise to repair the nation's finances while averting a government default. Wall Street saluted as well. Obama said he hoped congressional leaders would "start talking turkey" as soon as Wednesday along the lines of the Senate "Gang of Six" proposal, which quickly overshadowed a no-tax-increase alternative that conservatives spent Tuesday pushing toward an evening vote in the House. At the White House, the president warned that financial markets could soon begin to post worrisome losses unless gridlock is broken and the nation's $14.3 trillion debt limit raised. But stocks soared for the day, propelled by the deficit plan's emergence and Obama's decision to seize on it as well as by strong earnings reports. The Dow Jones industrials rose 202 points, the biggest one-day leap this year. In the House, the focus was on spending cuts. "Our bloated and obese federal budget needs a healthy and balanced diet, one that trims the fat of overspending and grows the muscle of our nation's economy," said Rep. Reid Ribble of Wisconsin, one of the 87 first-term House Republicans determined to reduce the size of government. Democrats said the measure, with its combination of cuts and spending limits, would inflict damage on millions who rely on Social Security, Medicare and other er programs. "The Republicans are trying to repeal the second half of the 20th century," said Rep. Sander Levin, D-Michigan. Obama has threatened to veto the bill, which would raise the debt limit in exchange for what supporters said was an estimated $6 trillion in spending cuts and congressional approval of a constitutional balanced budget amendment for ratification by the states.

NATO HANDS OVER SECURITY TO AFGHANS IN EASTERN CAPITAL

MEHTERLAM, Afghanistan (AP) • NATO handed over responsibility for the security of the capital of an eastern province to Afghan forces Tuesday, the latest step in a transition process that will lead to the withdrawal of all foreign combat troops by the end of 2014. The U.S.-led coalition has started a process of transferring security in parts of the country where they feel Afghan forces are strong enough to take control, although so far that has largely been restricted to provincial capitals as much of the country remains lawless and unstable after a decade of war. U.S. forces turned over control of Mehterlam, the capital of Laghman province, but they'll retain responsibility for the other areas in the predominantly Pashtun province that remain under the influence of the Taliban and other insurgent groups. NATO officials said the handover sent a powerful signal that progress is being made.

FBI Says Pakistani Spies Spent Millions Lobbying U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) • For years, the Pakistani spy agency funneled millions of dollars to a Washington nonprofit group in a secret effort to influence Congress and the White House, the Justice Department said Tuesday in court documents that are certain to complicate already strained ties between the U.S. and Pakistan. FBI agents arrested Syed Ghulam Nabi Fai, the executive director of the Kashmiri American Council, on Tuesday and charged him with being an unregistered agent of a foreign government. Under the supervision of a senior member of Pakistan's spy agency, Inter-Services Intelligence, Fai donated money to political campaigns, wrote newspaper op-eds, organized congressional trips and met with White House and State Department officials. "I believe that Fai has received approximately $500,000 to $700,000 per year from the government of Pakistan," FBI agent Sarah Webb Linden said in documents filed in federal court in Alexandria, Va. Officially, the Kashmiri American Council had a much smaller budget and told the U.S. government that it received no foreign grants, according to Internal Revenue Service documents. Pakistan was financing similar operations in London and Brussels, the Justice Department said. The Pakistani Embassy quickly issued a statement saying the government had no knowledge of such an arrangement. A second man, Zaheer Ahmad, was also charged. Prosecutors said he recruited people to act as straw donors who would give money to the Kashmiri American Council that really was coming from the Pakistani government.

S. CAROLINA GOV. BLASTS MEDIA ON JOBS REPORT

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) • South Carolina Gov. Nikki Haley called the media too negative after The Associated Press raised questions about her claim that 10,000 jobs had been announced in the state since she took office in January. Haley complained during a Cabinet meeting Tuesday the media doesn't want to report anything positive about her administration. She says regardless of the exact number of jobs, other governors are jealous. An AP analysis of the 10,000 jobs cited by Haley revealed some of them were announced before she took office and others won't be filled for years. She also included hundreds of jobs created in a business deal that she opposed. After repeated questioning by the AP, the state changed its jobs total several times before finally lowering it to about 9,000 positions, including 4,000 positions at Walmart stores over five years. Her response was to criticize the media. A post Monday on her Facebook page read, "To my friends in the press: try to be positive. Just once. You might like it."

Advisers: No Copays for Birth Control

WASHINGTON (AP) • Millions of women stand to gain free access to a broad menu of birth control methods, thanks to a recommendation issued Tuesday by health experts advising the government.

An Institute of Medicine panel recommended that the government require health insurance companies to cover birth control for women as preventive care, without co-payments. Contraception — along with such care as diabetes tests during pregnancy and screening for the virus that causes cervical cancer — was one of eight recommended services for women.

“Unintended pregnancies carry health consequences for the mother — psychological, emotional and physical — and also consequences for the newborn,” said Dr. Linda Rosenstock, panel chairwoman and dean of public health at the University of California, Los Angeles. “The overwhelming evidence was strongly supportive of the health benefit” of contraception.

Medical experts say easier access could start a shift to more reliable forms of birth control, such as implants or IUDs, which are gaining acceptance in other economically developed countries.

No Tea Party for Texas Gov. Perry as He Weighs Nomination Bid

BY STEVE PEOPLES and APRIL CASTRO
Associated Press

CONCORD, N.H. • In spite of his thundering speeches against big government, Texas Gov. Rick Perry has a troubled relationship with the tea party, a rift increasingly obvious as he gets closer to a presidential bid.

Tea party groups from New Hampshire to Texas are collaborating to criticize Perry’s record on immigration, public health and spending and his former affiliation with the Democratic Party.

“It’s real easy to walk into church on Sunday morning and sing from the hymnal. I saw a guy that talked like a tea party candidate but didn’t govern like one,” said Debra Medina, a Texas tea party activist who challenged Perry in the 2010 Republican gubernatorial primary. “I still don’t think he governs like the conservative he professes to be.”

Texas conservatives recently shared material on Perry’s record with the New Hampshire Tea Party Coalition, which dedicated a section of its website to the Texas governor. The coalition offers links to negative media coverage and videos about the man who it says “was Al Gore’s Democrat chairman” in 1988. Perry switched to the Republican Party in 1989, around the same time as other conservative Democrats.

The organization also distributed a series of emails to supporters, including one obtained by The Associated Press warning, “We should be aware there is more to him than meets the eye.”

The attacks are quietly promoted by other Republican presidential contenders, who view Perry as a growing threat as he inches closer to a late entrance into the Republican presidential primary. Many of the candidates are competing for the hearts of tea party activists who have generated passion, campaign cash and armies of volunteers from GOP voters nationwide.

A key Perry strategist dismissed the tea party criticism as isolated to a handful of conservative groups in a fragmented movement.

“There’s no candidate running on either side of the aisle that has his record and relationship with tea party members,” said David Carney. “But the tea party is not one monolithic group.”

The scandal has captivated audiences from America to Murdoch’s native Australia, and there’s more to come — only a fraction of the nearly 4,000 people whose information was hacked are known and the police investigation appears to be widening. Murdoch has already shut the News of the World, given up on buying a major British satellite television company and accepted the resignations of two top executives because of the scandal.

He said he had no plans to resign but expressed contrition on behalf of News Corp.’s British newspaper division, News International.

“This is the most humble day of my career,” said Murdoch, a man once so politically powerful in Britain that former Prime Minister Tony Blair flew halfway around the world to secure his support as he launched the Labour Party’s bid for power in 1995.

The scandal began as a blip in 2005, when the News of the World published a story about Prince William suffering a knee injury. Royal officials became suspicious about the closely held data and alerted police. An inquiry led to one of the paper’s reporters and a private investigator being jailed for intercepting communications.

News Corp. Rises After Testimony

STAYING PUT: Rupert Murdoch said he was the best person to clean up News Corp. Investors agreed.
BIG DAY: News Corp.’s stock had its best day since the phone-hacking scandal broke, rising more than 5 percent Tuesday while Murdoch and his son and deputy, James, testified before a committee of the British Parliament in London. Asked whether he was considering resigning as head of the company, Murdoch said: “No.”
RESTORING SOME LOSSES: The gains restored about $2.2 billion of the $8.3 billion in market value the company had lost during the furor.

The Guardian newspaper then found out that Murdoch’s papers had paid out more than $1.6 million (1 million pounds) to settle lawsuits involving allegations of eavesdropping on phone messages. The scandal became a crisis for News International this month with the revelation that the News of the World had hacked into the phone of a 13-year-old murder victim, Milly Dowler, in hopes of getting material for news stories.

Occasionally punctuating remarks by slapping his hands down on the desk, Murdoch said he was “shocked, appalled and ashamed” at the hacking of Dowler’s phone but he rejected that criminality had been endemic at the tabloid. He also said he had seen no evidence that victims of the Sept. 11, 2001, terror attack were hacked — an allegation the FBI is looking into.

Murdoch said he had not been informed that his company had paid out big sums — 700,000 pounds ($1.1 million) in one case — to settle lawsuits by phone hacking victims.

Murdoch noted that News of the World represented less than 1 percent of his global media empire, which also includes the Fox TV network, 20th Century Fox film studio, The Wall Street Journal, the New York Post and three major British newspapers. He said he spoke to the News of the World’s editor only around once a month.

Blame, he said, rested with “the people I trusted ... and then, maybe, the people they trusted.”

News International CEO Rebekah Brooks and Wall Street Journal publisher Les Hinton, former executive chairman of News International, have resigned, though Murdoch said he did not blame either of them for the scandal. Brooks and Cameron’s former communications chief, Andy Coulson — a former editor at News of the World — are among several people who have been arrested in the scandal, though no one has been charged with a crime.

James Murdoch, 38, apologized for the scandal, telling British lawmakers that “these actions do not live up to the standards our company aspires to.”

The younger Murdoch said the company acted as swiftly and transparently as possible. Rupert Murdoch acknowledged, however, that he did not investigate after Brooks, former editor of the News of the World, told parliament years ago that the paper had paid police officers for information.

Six Senators Push Bipartisan Plan to Cut Deficit

Plan calls for $500B ‘down payment’ as starting point toward $4 trillion in cuts over next decade.

BY ANDREW TAYLOR
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON • The bipartisan “Gang of Six” senators on Tuesday offered a major plan to cut the deficit by almost $4 trillion over the coming decade, but whether it can break through the budget debate will depend on whether Republican lawmakers can find a way to endorse well over $1 trillion in new tax revenues reaped as Congress overhauls the loophole-choked U.S. tax code.

The plan would also repeal a new long-term care program established under last year’s health overhaul and force an additional $500 billion in cuts from federal health care programs over the upcoming decade, according to documents provided to senators but not publicly released.

It also appears that the revenue increases are significantly higher than advertised by plan proponents because the measure assumes that the more than $1 trillion cost of repealing the alternative minimum tax over the coming decade will be offset by curbing tax breaks as tax reform is debated. The minimum tax was enacted in 1969 to make sure taxpayers pay at least some income tax, but it was never indexed for inflation and now threatens more than 20 million tax filers with big tax increases unless extended next year.

The six senators are Tom Coburn, R-Okla., Mike Crapo, R-Idaho, Saxby Chambliss, R-Ga., Kent Conrad, D-N.D., Mark Warner, D-Va., and Dick Durbin, D-Ill.

Their plan calls for an immediate $500 billion “down payment” on cutting the deficit as the starting point toward cuts of more than $4 trillion over the coming decade that would be finalized in a second piece of legislation. Most of those savings would come from four years of caps imposed on the day-to-day budgets of Cabinet agencies set by the annual appropriations bills.

It would also curb the growth of Social Security benefits by moving to a lower inflation adjustment for annual cost-of-living updates.

Depending on how one keeps score, the measure would save $3.7 trillion to $4.7 trillion over the coming decade. The lower figure is measured against a lower spending “baseline” based on a fiscal 2011 budget law enacted earlier this year. But if measured against Obama’s request for the current 2011 budget year — the standard used by Obama’s deficit commission last year — the plan would save the higher figure.

The tax reform outline would set up three income tax rates — a bottom rate of 8-12 percent; a middle rate of 14-22 percent; and a top rate of 23-29 percent — to replace the current system that has a bottom rate of 10 percent with five additional rates, topping out at 35 percent.

It would reduce but not eliminate tax breaks on mortgage interest, higher-cost health plans, charitable deductions, retirement savings like individual retirement accounts and tax-free savings accounts known as 401(k)s and tax credits for families with children.

Like the president’s deficit commission, the Senate group’s plan calls for a fundamental overhaul of the tax code that would slash special tax preferences and deductions as a way to lower tax rates — along the lines of the 1986 tax reform measure signed into law by President Ronald Reagan.

NY Sheriff: Five Killed, 9 Hurt in Tractor Collision

BENTON, N.Y. • A car passing a slow-moving farm tractor on a curve sideswiped an oncoming van carrying 13 Amish farmers through New York’s rural Finger Lakes region Tuesday, sending the van under the tractor, killing five passengers and injuring eight others plus the driver of the tractor, police said. Yates County Sheriff Ronald Spike said five people in the van were pronounced dead at the scene of the 12:40 p.m. crash and eight were taken to hospitals, some with “very serious” injuries. The tractor driver was also taken to a hospital. The car’s driver had minor injuries but was not hospitalized.

Powerful joint pill flying off drug store shelves

Clinical trial; participants began to feel noticeable results in just days

(UMS) – Imagine a pill that can start helping you get around more easily in just a matter of days.⁵

Then think of how great it would be for your joints to begin feeling better too.

Well there's no reason to imagine, a team of scientists has delivered an amazing joint health supplement that's been clinically shown to improve mobility and joint comfort.²

Now, after years of development and testing it's hitting the shelves at all major U.S. pharmacies.

This remarkable joint health pill is called Fast Acting Trigosamine®. It has been clinically shown to produce amazing results; 81% of the participants started feeling better just days after taking the recommended dosage and an incredible 100% reported their joints felt better just midway through the 8 week clinical trial.^{2,3,5}

"I've never seen relief like this before," said Dr. Joseph Dietz.¹

"Our goal was to formulate Trigosamine so that people would start to feel results quickly, and based on the feedback from consumers along with the clinical data I'd say we hit the bulls-eye with this powerful pill," added Dietz.

National drug store shipments are being delivered, but as of today there's no way to know which stores actually have product on their shelves.

"Until we know all the shelves are stocked we'll ship Trigosamine directly to people's homes. As an added bonus, all local residents who call the Regional Health Hotline at 1-866-941-7632 before the 48-hour deadline expires can also qualify for a significant discount," said Darla Miller, Distribution Director for the company.

"We're shipping pills on a first-come, first-served basis; callers just have to be sure they give the bonus approval code of TG16552 when they call and we'll take care of everything for them," she said.

"We know that people suffering with joint discomfort want Trigosamine, the phones have been ringing like crazy. We strongly recommend that local readers call right away to make sure they get their fair share," said Miller.

Trigosamine's formula has a special combination of ingredients that until now have never been blended into a pill. It's this special mixture that was clinically tested and is responsible for delivering the incredible results.

One of the key ingredients is hyaluronate, which is a building block of "human joint oil" and known by medical professionals as synovial fluid.

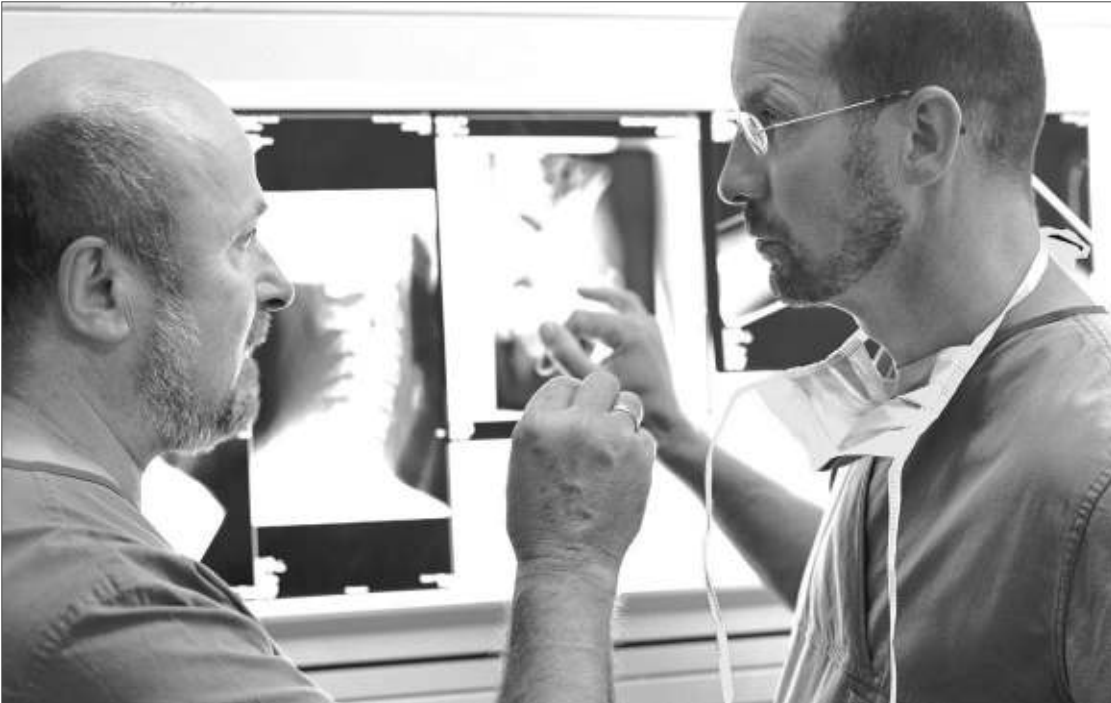

This remarkable molecule can absorb up to 1000 times its own weight in water helping to lubricate the joints which reduces friction while acting as a "shock absorber" allowing for effortless comfortable motion.⁵

"Synovial fluid is part of what allows young people to be highly active without getting sore joints. But as we age we produce less of this fluid which can force bones and joints to grind together causing nagging discomfort," said Dr. Dietz.

"This remarkable combination of ingredients is what makes Trigosamine work so well. It really helps people to move more freely and with greater flexibility," said Dietz.⁵

Trigosamine's powerful results are all supported by a recently completed randomized, double-blind placebo controlled clinical study which is considered to be the "gold standard" for joint health supplements.

While no pill works for every-

■ PROOF THAT IT WORKS: Dr. Philip Howren was so astounded by Fast Acting Trigosamine's® clinical results that he said; "Yes, I am thoroughly impressed with the clinical data, in fact I now take the pill myself to get the joint relief I need. It's my number one recommendation to anyone who suffers with joint discomfort," added Dr. Howren.⁴

one, during this clinical trial, every one of the participants that took this amazing supplement reported an improvement in their joint comfort. The data also shows that their joint comfort just kept getting better the entire time they were taking Trigosamine during clinical study.^{2,5}

On the other hand, the clinical participants that were taking the placebo experienced much different results. Those taking the placebo developed increased joint discomfort and soreness during the clinical study, which is the exact opposite of what happened to participants taking the Fast Acting Trigosamine pills.²

"For participants to get this type of relief is simply amazing," said Dr. Joe Dietz.

"In all my years of clinical research, I've never seen that type of a response before. This powerful supplement is simply remarkable for those suffering with sore joints," he added.

The tough part now will be how to get it.

"National pharmacy shipments are happening daily, but as of right now there's no way to know which drug stores have it and which ones don't," said Darla Miller.

But for those who want to be among the first to get it the company has opened a Regional Health Hotline so people can have it shipped directly to their homes.

Local readers can also qualify for a huge discount if they're lucky enough to get through before the 48-hour deadline expires. The number to call right now is 1-866-941-7632.

"Until shipments get to all the drug stores we're shipping it directly to people who call our hotline," said Miller. "All they have to do is give the bonus approval code of TG16552 when they call and we'll take care of the rest," she added.

That makes the next 48 hours critical for those living in the local area who want this remarkable joint supplement. Those getting through to the hotline within the next 48 hours are not only guaranteed to get the pills delivered directly to their homes, but they can save money too.

Otherwise, those who don't get through may be hard pressed to get their hands on this medical breakthrough. ■

How Fast Acting Trigosamine® Works

(Actual Size)

Fast Acting Trigosamine combines three powerful compounds to quickly improve joint comfort.⁵

1. HYALURONATE-13:
One tiny molecule of this remarkable compound can hold an amazing 1,000 times its weight in water. This allows naturally occurring hyaluronate to bind water, making the joints extremely slippery allowing them to slide smoothly over one another.^{2,5}

2. GLUCOSAMINE SULFATE-15:
Review studies show glucosamine maintains healthy cartilage in the joints by inhibiting joint destroying enzymes. The compound also builds up naturally present amounts in the blood stream used to build healthy cartilage.⁵

3. RAPIDFLEX FORMULA-61:
The patented ingredients in RapidFLEX improve overall joint performance and one ingredient increases the speed in which nutrients are absorbed.⁵

■ HEALTHY JOINT: A Diagnostic x-ray reveals a human knee joint that has the proper amount of synovial fluid to lubricate the joint and act as a comfortable shock absorber.

Clinical strength diet pill delivers 5 times more weight loss

Drug store sales soar; clinical study data confirms results

(UMS) – Over 10 million doses have already been shipped to dieters so far; and sales are expected to climb even higher for the diet pill called Apatrim®.

"We knew we had a great product, but it's even exceeded our expectations," said Victoria Shilling, Manager of Call Center Operations.

"People just keep placing orders, it's been pretty amazing," she said.

There are some very good reasons for this diet supplement's remarkable success.

The results from the clinical trial were very impressive. Participants taking Apatrim's active ingredient as directed lost an average of 5 times more weight than those taking a placebo during the 4-week U.S. study.^{1,3}

These results were achieved without changing the participant's daily diet or exercise routine.^{1,4}

While no diet pill works for everyone, an amazing 100% of the participants taking Apatrim as directed either lost weight or inches off of their waistline during the 4 week clinical study. Some participants experienced great results, losing as much as 8 lbs and up to 2 inches off their waist.^{1,3,4}

The U.S. clinical study was conducted in Los Angeles; the study included healthy, overweight individuals between the ages of 31 and 73. The caloric intake and level of exercise was not disclosed.

The participants were instructed not to change the food they were eating and not to add any exercise. They were specifically told not to change their daily routine; just take two pills 30 minutes before lunch and dinner.

Apatrim's active ingredient has a known ability to help control hunger pangs, this allows people to eat the foods they want and always seem to be craving; because they'll just want to eat less.⁴

Industry researchers believe that Apatrim works by suppressing a person's appetite.⁴

"By suppressing their appetite, dieters consume fewer calories which can lead to weight loss," said Dr. Joseph Dietz, Director of Health Science, Research & Development for PatentHEALTH. "But consumers should always keep in mind that there is no substitute for proper diet and exercise when it comes to losing weight."

Professionals in the weight loss and fitness industries also agree that Apatrim is the real thing.

Mark Loy, a personal trainer, has had some of his clients use Apatrim with amazing success.²

"I heard about Apatrim so I checked out the facts then decided to try it as a part of my training program," Loy said.

"It's really helped some of my clients to control their eating. I've seen people get unbelievable results while taking Apatrim," said Loy. "Sign me up, I'm a believer."

Dr. Joseph Dietz was impressed with the quality of the clinical trials as well as the U.S. patent.

"When I read over the clinical results, the U.S. patent and all of the other scientific support I immediately knew we needed to use this weight loss compound," said Dietz.

"The results are real; Apatrim is a great product that's been shown to help people lose weight."

All of the big retail pharmacies including CVS/pharmacy, Rite Aid and Walgreens have placed orders for Apatrim.

But to make it easier for people to get it now, the company has set up a Direct Order Hotline for the next 48 hours.

Starting at 8:00 am today, all consumers have to do is call 1-866-964-2349 and ask for Dept. AP11782; orders will be filled on a first-come, first-served basis.

"For those people who call the order line to have Apatrim shipped directly to them right now, we'll guarantee they'll get product and they can also qualify for a 33% discount," said Victoria Shilling.

"But this discount will only be available through the order hotline for the next 48 hours," she said.

So for those who choose not to call or miss the deadline you may have to pay more for Apatrim or possibly run the risk of not finding it at the drug store. ■

Debt Worries Drag Down Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) • Not even a string of better earnings reports could stave off worries about debt on Monday. Europe's banking troubles and an impasse over lifting the U.S. government's borrowing limit helped drag down stock markets in the U.S. and Europe. Gold rose above $1,600 an ounce as investors sought safe places to park money. The S&P 500 index dropped 10.70 points, or 0.8 percent, to close at 1,305.44. The Dow Jones industrial average and Nasdaq composite index gave up their gains for the month. The Dow fell 94.57 points, 0.8 percent, to 12,385.16.

Lawmakers Call for Hearings on Robo-Signing

Lawmakers and enforcement agencies called for further investigation Tuesday after learning that the illegal practice known as robo-signing has continued in the mortgage industry.

The Associated Press reported on Monday that county officials in at least three states — Massachusetts, North Carolina and Michigan — say they have received thousands of mortgage documents with questionable signatures since last fall. That's when forged signatures and false affidavits — also called robo-signing — led to a temporary halt to foreclosures. Banks and mortgage processors promised to stop the practice. But the findings of the county officials indicate that robo-signing is still a widespread problem.

Truck Dealership Expands at Crossroads Point

Warner Truck Center to add 40 local jobs after new heavy truck and trailer dealership in southern Jerome County opens in 2012.

BY BEN BOTKIN

bbotkin@magicvalley.com

JEROME • A heavy truck and trailer dealership recently broke ground on a new facility at the Crossroads Point Business Center at the intersection of U.S. Highway 93 and Interstate 84 in southern Jerome County.

Warner Truck Center is building a 62,000-square-foot structure to house a full-service heavy truck and trailer dealership on 11 acres it purchased. The dealership is scheduled to be completed and ready for business by Jan. 1, 2012.

For the Magic Valley, it will mean 40 new jobs added within the first two years of the dealership opening. Warner Truck Center, based in West Valley City, Utah, purchased Freightliner dealerships in Twin Falls and Jerome in July 2010 from Orlan Stearns.

Those two operations, which currently have 40 employees combined, will be relocated to the new dealership, with an expanded staff double that size.

“We have been very pleased with the addition of the southern Idaho territory to our existing operations,” Bart Warner, owner of the truck center, said in a statement. “The quality and dedication of our employees in Southern Idaho have been a great asset to our total operation.”

With 32 computers now needed for programming, diagnosing, running and repairing heavy trucks, Warner said the need is greater than ever for facilities and equipment that meet those needs. He said Crossroads Point's proximity to Interstate 84 makes it an ideal location for the business.

When complete, the dealership will have 36 bays, a fast-lube pit, a 70-foot paint booth, a training room with room for more than 100 people and an indoor showroom.

Construction crews this week have been working on the foundation and forms for the new building.

Arlen Crouch, owner of Crossroads Point, said that with the struggling economy, the focus has changed for the 500-acre development project's goals. Initially, it was planned as a retail-centered area, and that's now changed to include light manufacturing and office buildings, he said.

He said the expansion of more lanes along U.S. Highway 93 also help make it a good site for the new truck dealership.

Crouch said he's also in negotiations to possibly bring a gas station and restaurant to Crossroads Point.

Warner Truck Center employs more than 350 people.

Greek FM says European Debt Deal is ‘Attainable’

Greek finance minister Evangelos Venizelos speaks during an interview with The Associated Press at his office in Athens, Monday. Venizelos says a European debt deal is “attainable” at the European Union summit on Thursday.

BY DEREK GATOPOULOS AND NICHOLAS PAPHITIS

The Associated Press

ATHENS, Greece • A European debt deal is attainable at Tuesday's EU summit, Greece's finance minister said, insisting that his country remains on course to reach a primary budget surplus next year, despite missing fiscal targets so far in 2011.

Evangelos Venizelos also told The Associated Press in an interview on Monday that Greece is hoping to avoid being placed under selective default by ratings agencies — an assessment that could plunge Europe's worsening debt crisis into greater turbulence.

Greece is enacting major economic reforms alongside an austerity program as it grapples with a national debt topping (euro) 340 billion ($477.5 billion) that nearly saw it go bankrupt earlier this month.

Leaders of countries that use the euro are to attend the emergency talks in Brussels on Thursday, amid fears the fallout from Greece's woes could spread to larger European countries. Borrowing costs in eurozone members Italy and Spain have risen alarmingly in recent days.

“Reaching a solution is attainable because this solution does not only include Greece,” Venizelos said in his office. “At issue is the euro and the resilience of the eurozone. That is why protection of Greece is a self defense mechanism for the eurozone. That will help us avoid a domino effect.”

Greece is being kept afloat by 110 billion euro in emergency loans from other eurozone members and the International Monetary Fund, but remains locked out of bond markets by high interest rates and will require a second bailout expected to involve a similar amount.

“We want a solution that makes our national debt sustainable ... guarantees Greece's borrowing needs until in mid-2014 when we foresee our return to the markets, and guarantees the liquidity of Greek banks,” Venizelos said.

A new bailout deal is likely to involve banks and other Greek bondholders making voluntary contributions to deferring Athens' debt payments. Details of that potential arrangement are being negotiated at talks between European Union officials and private investors in Rome.

Proposals being considered already “combine all the different approaches” in a way acceptable to Greece, Venizelos said.

“I believe we will be able ... to achieve something which will be secure, positive for the viability of the public debt, and will safeguard Greece as a country and the Greek banking system,” he said.

Venizelos said Greece had already taken the toughest measures needed to steer the economy back to fiscal health.

The Socialist government has faced months of anti-austerity protests, and has seen a recent slump in popularity and struggling with unemployment that topped 16 percent in March.

In the latest sign of public discontent, striking taxi drivers blocked roads to the country's main airport and harbor Monday as part of a two-day strike, which is occurring at the heart of the vital tourist season. They were protesting proposed changes in licensing laws that would make it cheaper to operate a taxi.

Big Flavor in Bite-sized Treats

National food watchers may call the trend stale, but the owner of a new shop says cupcakes are fresh for the Magic Valley market — and she's founding a business on that belief.

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

Get ready, sugar fans. You have a new place to get your fix. Last week, Jeannie Fields opened The Cup Cake, a Twin Falls cupcake boutique that offers gourmet treats. The shop rotates nearly 40 flavors through its lineup on different days of the week.

Customers who want specialty cupcakes can special order them from various businesses, but behind Fields' storefront is a freshly baked array that you can walk in and buy straight from the case.

Fields, who moved to Buhl two years ago, has been in the food service business for 25 years and gathered hundreds of recipes over time. She studied the market, found a Twin Falls location to open her cupcakery and tweaked flavors until she came up with offerings she was happy with. With a few additions, classic cakes like chocolate and vanilla morphed easily into gourmet creations like Chocolate Chili, Mango Margherita and Caramel Latte.

The result: a business plan built on happy. "It makes people smile," Fields said.

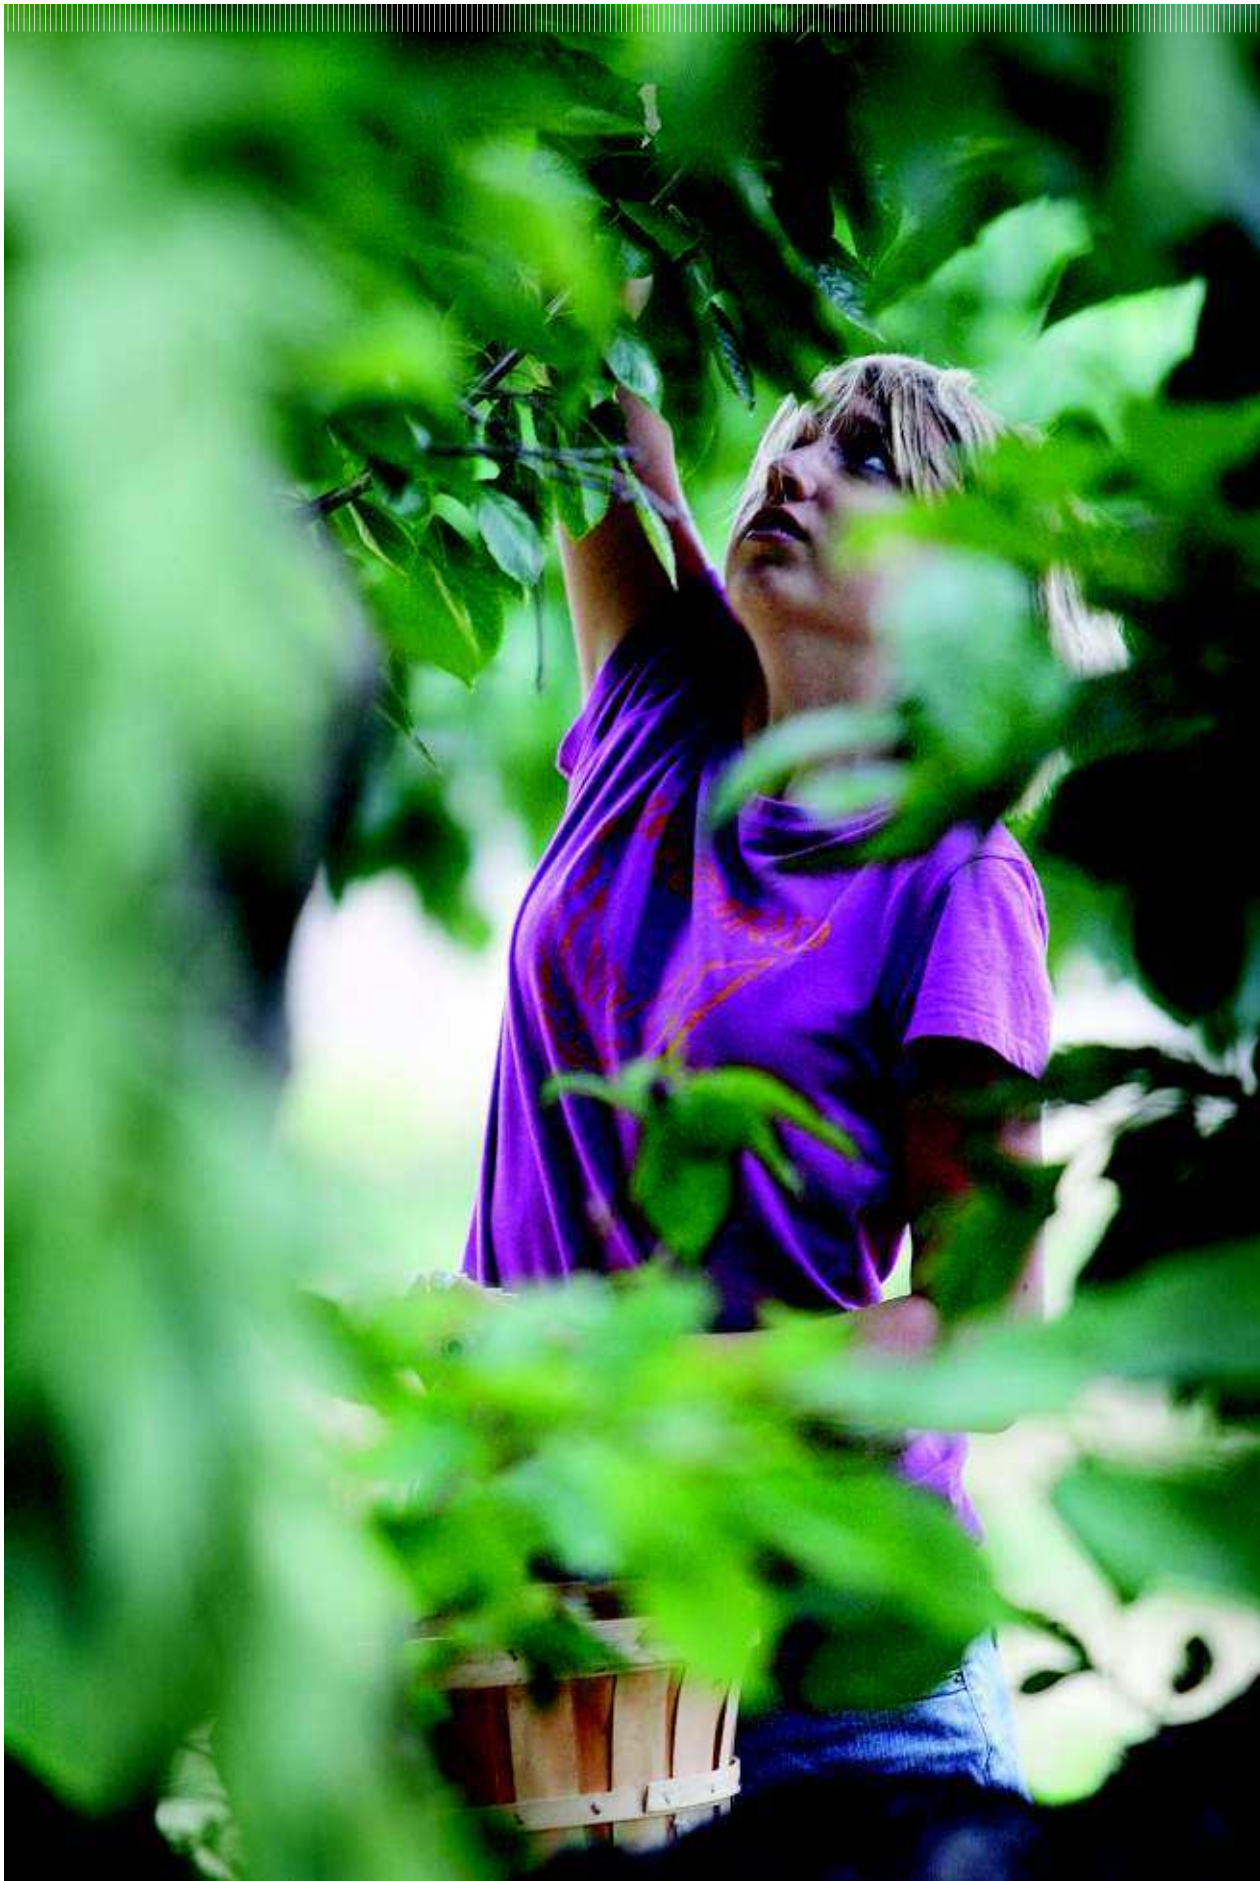

The store's name comes from its signature treat, a cake baked in an 8-ounce paper coffee cup, in flavors rotated daily. When school starts, she plans to offer cupcakes baked in coffee mugs that sport local team colors.

The Cup Cake offers other desserts, including bread pudding, cheesecake and frosting shots, or small condiment cups filled with frosting. Fields also makes dark chocolate cake pops — a mix of crumbled cake and frosting formed into a ball and put on a stick. Need a drink to wash down dessert? The shop offers coffee, tea and milk. (The coffee wasn't originally part of the plan, Fields said, but she ended up with a larger storefront than she had

Pick Your Own Fruit

Local orchards and fruit buyers are embracing the you-pick concept in a season of high fruit yields — a welcome harvest after last year's crop loss.

BY EVA STUTZMAN
estutzman@magicvalley.com

BUHL • Driving along Buhl's River Road, you might notice rows of fruit trees with branches pulled to the ground by the hefty crop that's ripening. Among the trees are people moving ladders or plucking the low-hanging fruit.

Some Magic Valley fruit orchards offer you-pick programs, allowing customers to pick their own produce for a discounted price. With cherries already in season and apricots, peaches, plums, pears and apples ripening in the summer heat, these orchards are now open for business. And customers are pouring the cherries into buckets and baskets by the pound.

"We started doing you-pick in the 1920s," said Richard Kelley of Kelley's Canyon Orchard in Buhl, which has been open since 1908.

The draws to these locally owned orchards are numerous. The fruit is fresher. The experience is a tradition. And the prices can't be beat: Cherries go for about 95 cents per pound.

"We're going for two buckets," said Jacci Dannenhauer, who was picking cherries with her daughter July 14 at Kelley's Canyon Orchard. Jacci used to pick cherries here when she was a child, but this was her daughter Emily's first time. "At first she kind of grumbled coming down here, but I think we are having a good time now," Jacci said. The Dannenhauers had a bucket nearly filled after only 15 minutes.

Last year was a different story. "We didn't have a crop at all last year," said Lea Stone of Rivers Edge Orchard in Buhl.

Due to a late freeze and high winds in 2010, most Magic Valley orchards didn't have fruit to sell. But this year is a complete turnaround. The wet spring helped trees produce an above-average crop, and orchard owners are boosting their you-pick sales to keep up.

"Growers like you-pick because it keeps the harvesting going even when

Make Your Picnic Basket the Envy of the Symphony Crowd

BY KAREN BOSSICK
For the Times-News

Takeout chicken and cold bologna sandwiches won't cut it if you plan on picnicking with Audrey Bashaw.

This home economist who divides her time between a home near Sun Valley and a ranch on Silver Creek believes in pushing the envelope when it comes to the picnic basket.

"We used to live an hour away from the Hollywood Bowl in Los Angeles, and we were always taking picnics to concerts there," she said. "When I taught cooking classes, one of my most popular was the 'Hollywood Bowl Picnic' class."

Those skills transferred easily to the Sun Valley scene, where many south-central Idahoans take great pains to prepare foodstuffs for picnicking on the lawn during the free Sun Valley Summer Symphony concerts.

In fact, Bashaw recently taught a "How to Create the Perfect Picnic" class at the Sawtooth Botanical Garden for symphony fans who lamented that their picnic fare had grown stale.

"You definitely don't want to take sandwiches to the symphony," Bashaw said. The season of free concerts starts Aug. 1, but Bashaw's picnic fare is also perfect for other summer outings where you feel a need to impress.

She prepared tortilla rolls with salsa, pickled sausage with homemade mustard, margarita wine punch, California

Companies Take Veggie Cue from Sneaky Trend

BY JESSICA MINTZ
For The Associated Press

It looks like Kraft Macaroni & Cheese, and Kraft says it tastes just like the original. But a new ingredient is lurking inside this version of the American family dinner staple — cauliflower.

Don't tell the kids!
Kraft Foods Inc. is the latest large food manufacturer to try hiding additional veggies in packaged foods, an effort to ride a renewed interest in healthy eating to fatter profits. It's a slowly growing trend, and it's one that is dividing food industry experts.

In June, Wal-Mart and Target stores started stocking Kraft Macaroni & Cheese Dinner Veggie Pasta across the country, alongside boxes of the traditional recipe and other alternative versions, including organic and whole grain. Every neon-orange cup serving of the new recipe packs a half-serving of cauliflower.

Kraft joins brands such as ConAgra Foods Inc.'s Chef Boyardee, which includes enough tomato in some of its canned pasta to claim half a cup of vegetables per serving, and Unilever's Ragu pasta sauces, which says it has two servings of veggies for every half cup of sauce.

In the Kraft product, the company freeze-dries cauliflower and pulverizes it into a powder, then uses that powder to replace some of the flour in the pasta.

"We know moms are always looking to please their kids and wanting to not make meals a big ordeal, insofar as being able to get them to eat their food," said Alberto Huerta, who oversees the Kraft Macaroni & Cheese brand at Kraft. "Mom is looking for ways to sneak veggies into her kids' diet."

In Canada, the cauliflower-based pasta has been available since last March. It immediately became one of the faster-selling versions of the dish, Huerta said. It also drew new Kraft Dinner consumers, boosting overall revenue growth for the entire product line.

Kraft's move is a variation on a theme espoused by several recent — and highly successful — cookbooks. Missy Chase Lapine is author of the "Sneaky Chef" series of cookbooks, in which she promotes a system of color-coded, pureed fresh and frozen fruits and vegetables that can be mixed into foods such as macaroni and cheese (yams or cauliflower), spaghetti (carrots and sweet potato) and brownies (baby spinach and blueberries).

"The ideal, of course, is you steam up some local, organic, freshly picked cauliflower, and your child eats it outright with a little mist of olive oil, happily," Lapine said.

But like Kraft, Lapine takes a practical approach. "Food is only healthy if you can get someone to eat it," she said.

Harry Balzer, who tracks Americans' eating patterns for The NPD Group, a market research firm, says parents are making genuine attempts to get healthier foods into their kids. Fruits now make up 6 percent of kids' diets, the largest share since he started tracking kids' consumption 30 years ago. Meantime, cookies, cake, pre-sweetened cereal, candy and carbonated soft drinks are at their lowest level, in terms of their share of kids' diets.

But vegetables, which peaked as a percentage of kids' diets in 1984, remain a sticking point. They're a hassle for parents to buy and keep fresh, they're not generally seen as snack foods the way fruits are, and they're rarely served alone as a main dish. That means if someone is cooking at home, vegetables are added work. And when they are available, many kids simply aren't biting, the analyst said.

And while parents may have good intentions to buy healthier options, a higher vegetable content doesn't top the list of criteria.

"I don't think there's a food company in American that doesn't have on its radar the health and wellness of Americans, as a market," Balzer said. "They think it's a driving force in our behavior. I know it's not. I know the driving force of our behavior is taste buds."

For Phil Lempert, another food industry analyst, half a serving of cauliflower in the new Kraft Macaroni & Cheese is better than nothing if Americans are willing to serve it.

"I don't care about the top 1 percent that can buy whatever they want, eat strictly organic, buy artisan cheese where they know the cheese maker," Lempert said. "I want to make sure people who go in every week in the supermarket, are spending 22 minutes and 100 bucks a week for a family of four get the best health, taste and value that they can."

That approach draws skepticism from Marion Nestle, a professor at New York University's department of nutrition, food studies and public health. Nutrients are lost when vegetables are freeze-dried, Nestle says, and people are also losing the benefit of greater volume of less calorie-dense food in a meal.

"Oh, what will they think of next," Nestle said. "What a silly idea."

Grilled fruit punches up a traditional fool

BY ALISON LADMAN
For The Associated Press

Don't let the name confuse you. This is an easy, delicious and summery dessert, not a reference to the person standing at the grill.

A fool is a classic British dessert made from a fruit compote and whipped cream. Traditionally, the two components are folded together, but they also can be layered in a parfait glass. In our revision, we've opted to grill the fruit rather than cook it on the stovetop.

Grilling the fruit keeps your kitchen cool and adds a wonderful smoky-caramel flavor to the fruit. We've opted for a mixture of strawberries and peaches, but pineapple and banana with a little toasted coconut on top would be a great tropical fool. Or use apples and pears with a little cinnamon added to the whipped cream.

In this fool version, the fruit is grilled rather than cooked on the stovetop.

and starting to brown. Remove the strawberries after 5 minutes. Flip the peaches and grill for another 5 minutes. Allow the fruit to cool until it is easily handled. Pull the skins off the peaches. Cut the fruit up into 1/2-inch cubes, then combine in a large bowl. Stir in the honey and lemon juice. Allow to cool completely.

With an electric mixer, in a large bowl beat the cream, powdered sugar and vanilla until soft peaks form.

To assemble the fools, arrange the fruit and whipped cream in layers in tall glasses. Start with the mixed fruit, then spoon whipped cream over it and repeat until the glass is filled. Alternatively, fold the cooled fruit into the whipped cream and spoon the mixture into glasses.

puff pastry picnic torte, black-eyed pea salad, lemon artichoke romaine salad, toffee splinters and cheesecake cookies for the class.

Picnic fare need not be difficult, she said:

Hollow out a loaf of French bread and stuff it with Muenster cheese and artichokes. Wrap it in foil and heat it just before the picnic, and it will still be warm when you unwrap the foil.

Prepare a white fish ceviche, covering bite-sized pieces of raw fish with lime juice and pepper flakes. The acid of the juice "cooks" the fish.

Fix a taco salad by pairing cooked hamburger or diced chicken with tomatoes, lettuce and olives. Add the dressing and chips just before you serve it.

Serve baked garlic, popping unpeeled garlic cloves into a small dish with olive oil and baking in the oven for 20 minutes. Squeeze the garlic onto French bread after it's cooled a little.

Ditch the common BLT sandwich for a BAAT, suggests Bellevue caterer Shannon Shields, who does a little catering in addition to her work at Scott USA. Layer chunky whole-wheat bread with bacon, avocado, arugula and tomato. Spread cream cheese and hot pepper jelly on it.

Make sure your picnicking friends get their five-a-day of fruits and vegetables by hollowing out a watermelon and stuffing it with mixed berries, melon balls and pineapple chunks, said Melissa Sleight, a registered dietician for St. Luke's Magic Valley.

Serve up raw broccoli, cauliflower and carrots with hummus, which doesn't perish as quickly as sour cream or mayonnaise-based dips in warm weather. And, because hummus is made from chickpeas, it counts as another veggie.

Picnickers can also cut down on calories by substituting a light, refreshing juice mixed with soda water in the place of sodas and other beverages, Sleight added.

"Try equal parts. Then adjust it to fit your taste," she said. "And, if you like, add a little fruit."

Audrey Bashaw of Sun Valley takes her California Picnic Torte out of the oven.

RECIPES:

Audrey Bashaw's California Picnic Torte

- 1 package frozen Pepperidge Farm puff pastry
- 2 tablespoons Dijon mustard
- Sliced cheese (Muenster works well)
- Sliced deli ham
- Sliced deli turkey
- Sliced deli roast beef
- Fresh spinach
- 1 tablespoon horseradish (optional)
- Marinated artichokes, chopped
- Roasted or sweet marinated red pepper
- Thinly sliced tomato
- Onion, chopped

Blot the moisture from one package of puff pastry that's been thawed. Roll out on lightly floured board until it is two to three inches longer than the bottom of your spring form pan.

Using the bottom of the pan as a pattern, cut out a round a half-inch larger. Fold the dough into fourths so it doesn't stretch as you lay it into the pan. Unfold and fit carefully into ungreased pan. Set aside excess pastry. Brush edges of pastry in pan with mustard. Layer cheese and meats, as well as dry spinach. Brush beef with horseradish and add other ingredients. Brush edges of pastry with an egg wash and apply the top pastry. The egg wash serves as a glue for sealing the edges. Fit remainder of pastry to the top. Brush the top with egg wash; sprinkle with sesame seeds and make five holes to let steam escape. Bake 40 minutes at 400 degrees. If the torte gets too brown before it's cooked, reduce the temperature. Put the pan low in the oven so that the bottom cooks. The torte may be assembled two days in advance.

Audrey Bashaw's Black-Eyed Pea Salad

- Two cans black-eyed peas, drained
- Jalapeno pepper to taste
- 1 small red onion, chopped
- 1/4 cup minced parsley
- 2 garlic cloves, minced
- 1 cup chopped carrots
- 1/2 cup chopped pimiento or red bell pepper
- 1/2 cup Worcestershire sauce
- 1 can whole-kernel corn, drained
- 1 cup Italian dressing

Mix ingredients together. Refrigerate overnight. Add seasoning to taste.

envisioned and added coffee to fill out the space.) Fields is also set up to cater weddings, showers and other events.

Reaction to the cupcakes?

“I thought they were really good,” said customer April Visser, who works at Springleaf Financial Services in the same shopping center. The cupcakes were moist and tasted like they were homemade, she said. “The coffee was good, too.”

Cupcakes were wildly popular in the mid-naughts, with dozens of cupcake books hitting shelves and cupcake boutiques opening in major cities. But in recent years, food bloggers and websites have declared the cupcake trend to be stale. Still, Fields isn’t worried about finding Magic Valley customers.

“I think it’s just now hitting this area,” Fields said. Besides, “people said that about the coffee boom, and it’s still going.”

And trends aside, who can resist adorable serving-size cakes?

“We want to have fun,” she said. “That’s how we want people to feel. We make happy food.”

Owner Jeannie Fields named The Cup Cake shop for its signature treat, a cake baked in an 8-ounce paper coffee cup.

Flavors to Remember

Here is a sampling of some unique flavors at The Cup Cake:

Hound Dog: An homage to Elvis Presley, this creation has banana-bacon cake with peanut butter frosting, finished with a piece of candied bacon on top. Bacon, banana and peanut butter were Presley’s favorite flavors, Fields said, and while some of her customers were wary at first, they liked it once they tried it.

Salted Caramel: The most popular cupcake so far, the Salted Caramel is chocolate cake with caramel filling, topped with caramel icing. Fields finishes the cupcake with a drizzle of dark chocolate and a sprinkle of sea salt.

Muddy Worms: The kids will love this one. Gummy worms peek out of the chocolate and cookie crumb frosting on a chocolate cake. Chocolate cookie crumbs on top give it a dirt appearance — but taste better than soil.

Mega Crunch: Another kid-friendly creation, Mega Crunch is a chocolate or vanilla cupcake, topped with buttercream and rolled in crushed Cap’n Crunch cereal.

Banana Split: Chocolate-cherry-nut cake filled with banana cream and topped with cherry and vanilla swirl frosting. Dark chocolate drizzle and chopped peanuts finish this yummy treat.

Pretty Little Cakes

Want your cupcakes to look as good as those at The Cup Cake? Owner Jeannie Fields shared these tips:

For a classic cupcake look, use a large star tip. Fill the piping bag with buttercream, then press the cream down toward the tip. Make sure there are no air bubbles. When you’re ready, slowly pipe a circle on the edge of the cupcake, and continue piping smaller circles until it’s as high as you want it. Swiftly press the tip down and pull it back up while letting go. Apply even pressure throughout piping, and don’t let up until you’re done with the cupcake.

Make sure the frosting is the right temperature. Buttercream should be room temperature — any colder, and it’s hard to work with, while warm buttercream won’t hold its shape. Cream cheese frosting and whipped cream should be about 40 degrees, said employee Kelsey Schutz. Remember finishing touches. Candied fruit, sprinkles, drizzled dark chocolate, cinnamon or candies on top of the frosting add a polished look to the cupcakes.

we can’t get out and do it all ourselves,” Stone said.

Rivers Edge Orchard allows customers to pick the low-hanging fruit that can be reached without ladders, then orchard workers get to the produce at the treetops. However, Rivers Edge has already sold all of its cherries for the season. It will offer you-pick starting this week for apricots and shortly after for peaches and pears.

Akland Orchard is just opening for the start of its cherry season, with both Bing and Lambert varieties.

The staggered growing seasons at different Magic Valley orchards are great for you-pick customers who want to enjoy local tastes all summer.

“We’ve been coming for three years,” said Robert Orloski of Jerome. On July 14, Robert was at Kelley’s Canyon Orchard picking cherries with his wife, Angela, and 6-year-old son, Robert Jr.

Abelardo Arteaga brought his 3-year-old daughter, Fatima, and his two sons, Caesar and Anthony, all the way from Paul to Buhl to pick cherries for the first time.

One cherry picker told Eva Stutzman that you can easily remove the pits from cherries with a bobby pin so that they are ready to freeze or preserve.

Cherries fill baskets at Kelley’s Canyon Orchard, which lets customers pick their own cherries.

Summer Skin Care

For people six months and older, apply sunscreen with an SPF of 30 or higher. Reapply every two hours, even on cloudy days, and especially after swimming.

Do not apply sunscreen on babies under six months of age. Keep babies out of the sun and in shady areas.

Wear protective clothing, such as a long-sleeve shirt, wide-brimmed hat, and sunglasses.

Limit time outside between 10 a.m. - 4 p.m. when the sun’s rays are the strongest.

Jam Your Freezer in Fruit Season

BY KATHLEEN PURVIS

McClatchy Newspapers

Question: Sometimes I have too much fruit and too little time to make jam, so I freeze the fruit. Would freezing berries beforehand puncture the cell walls, making it easier to make jam? And would freezing concentrate the sugar in the fruit?

Answer: Freezing fruit until you have time to make jam is a great trick in the summer, when all the fruit seems to arrive at once. I have friends who always do that when they’re buried in figs.

I don’t think that freezing the fruit first would actually make better jam. While the cell walls are punctured, making the fruit softer after it’s thawed, that shouldn’t make a big difference in cooking time. And freezing won’t reduce the fruit’s juice the way cooking does, so it shouldn’t concentrate the natural sugar.

The softening action of the freezer actually makes it important to measure the fruit before you freeze it. Since most fruit, particularly berries, does collapse when thawed, it can be difficult to get an accurate measurement for adding sugar and pectin.

You also can save even more time and simply use all that fruit to make freezer jam. Most packages of pectin include recipes for it, or you can find powdered pectin that’s formulated specifically for making freezer jam with less sugar.

REAL VALUE

Americans Continue to Tune in to Real Italian Food

BY MICHELE KAYAL
For The Associated Press

If you're lucky, you've never known a world without olive oil or a time when Parmesan cheese only came in green cans.

But there was such a world. Once stigmatized as the cuisine of "garlic eaters," Italian food and its ingredients were almost impossible to find in America 40 years ago.

"Certain foods were so associated with lower class people that it was a way of keeping those people and their food in their place," says John Mariani, author of "How Italian Food Conquered the World."

But as increased travel and waves of new immigrants coaxed Americans to be more adventurous, Italian food found its way onto American tables — and into their hearts. During the 1960s and 70s, retailers began marketing "healthy" Italian ingredients, such as olive oil. And during the 1980s, big name chefs like Wolfgang Puck adapted and enhanced foods like pizza, giving them culinary credibility and pushing them into the mainstream.

Today, dozens of oils, vinegars and other essentials vie for shelf space in supermarkets, and everything from pizza to pasta proliferates are on mainstream menus from Denny's to the Cheesecake Factory.

"Italian food appeals to such a broad spectrum," says Jonathan Waxman of the New York restaurant Barbuto. "It appeals to kids, snobby people, rustic diners. It appeals to big groups, or an elegant dinner. It goes the full gamut."

Like other chefs who came up in the 1980s, Waxman made his name applying his classical French training to American ingredients. But he never forgot the "old school" Italian dishes he knew as a child in San Francisco, the cioppino and veal scaloppini. At Barbuto, and in his new book "Italian, My Way," Waxman adapts the simplicity, seasonality and most of all, the spontaneity of Italian dishes to American sensibilities. Overripe tomatoes are studded with garlic and roasted for a simple sauce, and fresh asparagus is shaved and dressed with lemon and hazelnuts.

Angel Hair Pasta with Crabmeat, Jalapeno and Mint.

The next frontier, say Waxman and Mariani, is to have Americans distinguish between the foods of Italy's different regions. "The most important thing about Italy is that it's not one cuisine, and now we're discovering all the different regions," Waxman says. "It's like America. It's the difference between what you get in Maine versus Louisiana."

Already, Mariani says, restaurants are beginning to open in places like New York and San Francisco and even Boulder, Colo., that specialize in the cuisines of Rome or Venice or places that few people have heard of, such as Friuli, in the country's northeastern corner. Like Puck and food activist Alice Waters before them, they are educating as well as feeding.

And many Americans already love Italy's quintessential regional dish: pasta.

"There's something about this long, squiggly, chewy comfort food that we all love," says Domenica Marchetti, whose new book "The Glorious Pasta of Italy" offers recipes from Rome to Abruzzo to Sicily. "Wherever you go in Italy, the pasta is an expression of that place and the local ingredients."

In the northern region of Emilia-Romagna, for instance, Marchetti says you'll find lots of freshly made egg noodles, lasagna and tortellini. In Apulia and Calabria, on the Adriatic Sea, you'll get heartier pastas of buckwheat and whole grains. Up north, a Bolognese will have lots of ground meat, but almost no tomato. But in Abruzzo, you'll find a silky sauce bursting with tomatoes that were merely flavored by meat.

Just like Americans' appreciation of Italian food in general, the country's love of pasta has also become more adventurous, delving into dishes like pumpkin ravioli and squid-ink pasta. But while Marchetti and others applaud the development, the simple, comforting food of Italy will always be with us.

"There's also something to be said for a nice dish of spaghetti and meatballs," she says.

Angel Hair Pasta With Crabmeat, Jalapeno and Mint

Recipe from Jonathan Waxman's "Italian, My Way," Simon & Schuster, 2011. Waxman says freshly cooked crab is essential for this recipe. Avoid anything marked "previously frozen." Start to finish: 20 minutes. Servings: 4.

- 1/2 pound cooked crabmeat, cleaned and picked through
- 1 jalapeno pepper, stemmed, seeded and minced
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 12 fresh mint leaves, torn
- 6 tablespoons (3/4 stick) unsalted butter, cut into small pieces
- 1 pound angel hair pasta
- Juice of 1 lemon
- Salt, to taste

In a large bowl, combine the crabmeat, jalapeno, garlic, mint and butter. Set aside.

Bring a large saucepan of salted water to a boil. Cook the pasta according to package directions, about 3 minutes. When the pasta is al dente (still slightly firm at the center), do not strain. Use tongs or a slotted spoon to scoop out the pasta and add it to the crab mixture. Toss, then add the lemon juice. Season with salt.

Light, Refreshing and Vegetarian Take on Antipasti

BY ALISON LADMAN
For The Associated Press

An antipasti platter doesn't have to be a selection of cheese and fatty cured meats. You can make a delicious and beautiful one from the many colors of the vegetable garden.

Marinating the vegetables brings out a whole host of bright flavors. Serve the vegetables with some rustic bread for sopping up the flavorful marinade. If you like, you also can include a hunk of Parmesan cheese on your platter; a small piece goes a long way.

Other nice, and healthy, additions to an antipasti platter are anchovies and olives. Like the Parmesan, they add a pungent and salty element that contrasts nicely with the vegetables.

Marinated Antipasti Vegetables

The vegetables can be marinated either at room temperature or in the refrigerator. If in the refrigerator, allow the vegetables to come to room temperature before serving. Start to finish: 3 hours (1 hour active). Servings: 6.

- For the mushrooms:
- 1 tablespoon extra-virgin olive oil
 - 8 ounces white button mushrooms
 - 2 cloves garlic, minced
 - 2 tablespoons white balsamic vinegar
 - 2 tablespoons white wine
 - 2 tablespoons chopped fresh thyme
 - 1 tablespoon chopped fresh oregano
 - Salt and ground black pepper, to taste
- For the asparagus:
- 1 bunch asparagus, ends trimmed
 - 2 cloves garlic, minced
 - 1/4 cup balsamic vinegar
 - 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
 - 1 tablespoon chopped fresh rosemary
 - 1 tablespoon chopped fresh thyme
 - 1 tablespoon chopped fresh oregano
 - Zest of 1 lemon
 - Salt and ground black pepper, to taste
- For the peppers:

- 1 yellow bell pepper
 - 1 red bell pepper
 - 2 tablespoon minced fresh rosemary
 - 3 tablespoons red wine vinegar
 - 1 clove garlic, minced
 - Zest of 1/2 orange
 - Salt and ground black pepper, to taste
- For the tomatoes:
- 16 ounces cocktail tomatoes, halved
 - 1 tablespoon extra-virgin olive oil

- 3 tablespoons balsamic vinegar
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 tablespoon minced fresh rosemary
- 1 tablespoon chopped fresh thyme

To prepare the mushrooms, in a large skillet over medium-high, heat the olive oil. Add the mushrooms and saute for 3 minutes. Add the garlic and saute for another 3 minutes. Add the vinegar and wine. Remove from the heat and stir in the thyme and oregano. Season with salt and pepper, then set aside for 2 hours.

To make the asparagus, bring a large pot of salted water to a boil. Set a bowl of ice water next to the stove.

Add the asparagus to the boiling water and blanch for 3 to 4 minutes, or until just tender. Remove from the pot and set in the ice water just until cool. Drain well. In a shallow dish, combine the garlic, vinegar, Worcestershire, rosemary, thyme, oregano and zest. Season with salt and pepper, then add the asparagus. Toss to coat and allow to marinate for 2 hours.

To prepare the peppers, using a gas flame, a grill or a broiler, roast the peppers near the heat source until the skin blisters and turns black. Place the peppers in a bowl and cover with plastic wrap to allow the steam to loosen the skin. When the peppers are cool enough to handle, rub the skin off. Seed the peppers and cut into strips.

In a medium bowl, combine the rosemary, vinegar, garlic and orange zest. Add the peppers, then season with salt and black pepper. Allow to marinate for 2 hours.

To make the tomatoes, in a medium bowl toss together all ingredients and allow to marinate for 2 hours.

The Flavor of Lasagna, the Substance of Chicken

BY J.M. HIRSCH
Associated Press writer

The goal was a simple chicken casserole that had the rich, satisfying flavor of a lasagna.

Actually, that's a lie. The goal was a chicken roulade — a dish in which chicken breasts are pounded flat, then slathered or layered with some sort of filling, then rolled into a log and roasted or braised.

Except my roulade didn't cooperate. During roasting, the cheesy innards oozed out all over the baking sheet, then promptly burned. The result was an inedible, ugly mess.

Attempt No. 2 wasn't much better. I ditched the pounding and rolling in favor of cutting slits into chicken breasts, then stuffing them with a cheese and roasted red pepper filling, pinching them shut and roasting. Nice try. Simply put, they looked like road kill.

Then it occurred to me. If the cheese wanted so badly to ooze out of the chicken, why not reverse the dish and start it that way. And thus was born this simple chicken casserole that tastes like a lasagna. The chicken can be served over a bed of noodles or rice. It also could be spooned into a sub roll.

Chicken Lasagna Casserole

Start to finish: 45 minutes (20 minutes active). Servings: 8.

1 cup ricotta cheese
1 cup shredded mozzarella

This dish can be served over a bed of noodles or rice. It also could be spooned into a sub roll.

16-ounce jar roasted red peppers, drained, patted dry and diced (about 2 cups)
1 egg
1/2 tablespoon lemon juice
1 clove garlic, minced
1/2 teaspoon dried oregano
1/2 teaspoon dried basil
3/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
1 tablespoon olive oil
1 1/4 pounds boneless, skinless chicken breasts, cut into 1-inch chunks
1 1/4 pounds boneless, skinless chicken thighs, cut into 1-inch chunks
3/4 cup panko bread-crumbs

2 tablespoons butter, melted

Heat the oven to 400 degrees. Coat an 8-by-11-inch baking pan with cooking spray.

In a medium bowl, mix together the ricotta cheese, mozzarella, red peppers, egg, lemon juice, garlic, oregano, basil, salt and pepper. Set aside.

In a large skillet over medium-high, heat the oil. Add all of the chicken and cook, stirring occasionally, until lightly browned, about 6 to 8 minutes. It does not need to cook through. Transfer the chicken to the prepared baking pan. Pour the cheese mixture over the chicken, then stir gently to combine.

In a small bowl, mix together the panko and butter. Sprinkle the panko over the chicken, then bake for 20 to 25 minutes, or until the breadcrumbs are browned and the chicken is cooked through.

Sherbet Refreshes on Hot Days

THE WASHINGTON POST

Rich, tangy creme fraiche takes the place of milk in this refreshing, not-too-sweet dessert.

The strawberry mixture needs to be refrigerated overnight. The sherbet can be stored in the freezer for up to 1 week.

Adapted from "The One-Block Feast: An Adventure in Food from Yard to Table," by Margo True and the staff of Sunset magazine (Ten Speed Press, 2011).

Strawberry Creme Fraiche Sherbet

Makes 4 cups (8 servings)

1 1/2 pounds ripe strawberries, hulled and cut into quarters (4 cups)
1/2 cup honey
1 teaspoon freshly squeezed lemon juice
1/8 teaspoon fine sea salt
1/4 cup water
1/2 cup creme fraiche

Combine the strawberries, honey, lemon juice, salt and water in a large saucepan over medium heat. Cook for 10 to 20 minutes (depending on the ripeness of the berries), stirring often, until the berries have softened and the mixture is bubbling. Remove from the heat.

Use an immersion (stick) blender to puree until smooth, or transfer the mixture to a blender, remove the center knob in the lid so steam can escape and puree until smooth. Strain the mixture through a fine-mesh strainer into a mixing bowl, using a flexible spatula to push it through and extract as much liquid as possible; discard any solids left in the strainer. Cover and refrigerate overnight so the strawberry liquid is thoroughly chilled.

Whisk the creme fraiche into the cold strawberry liquid until smooth. Transfer to an ice cream maker and process for about 20 minutes or until the consistency looks like soft-serve ice cream; consult the manufacturer's directions.

The sherbet can be eaten right away, or, for a firmer consistency, transfer to an airtight container and freeze until completely firm, about 6 hours, before serving.

Pair Wild Rice with Flavors That Add Depth

BY STEPHANIE WITT SEDGWICK
Special to The Washington Post

Wild rice can come on pretty strong. Often categorized as a grain, it's a full-flavored grass seed that people tend to treat as a fancy rice. It's best paired with ingredients that add depth and interest; here, that includes peaches, lime, mint and avocado. The combination is fresh, flavorful and summery.

Be sure to use ripe peaches. Here's how I peel them: Cut the fruit in half and discard the pits. Place the halves skin side down on a hot grill grate. Cover and cook for 2 to 4 minutes, until the skins start to contract. Transfer to a plate; the skins should slip off easily.

Wild Rice, Peach and Avocado Salad

Makes 3 cups (6 servings)

1 1/2 cups water
1/2 cup uncooked wild rice
Salt
2 tablespoons chopped fresh mint
2 tablespoons white wine vinegar
Freshly squeezed juice of 2 limes
1 tablespoon olive oil
2 teaspoons sugar, or to taste
Freshly ground black pepper
2 ripe peaches (about 5 ounces), cut into 1/2-inch dice
Flesh of 1 ripe avocado (about 5 ounces), cut into 1/2-inch dice
2 tablespoons finely chopped scallions, white and light-green parts only (from 1 or 2 scallions)

Bring the water to a boil in a small pot over medium-high heat. Add the wild rice and 1/8 teaspoon salt. Cover, and reduce the heat to medium or medium-low, so the water maintains a low boil. Cook for 50 to 60 minutes, stirring once or twice, until the rice is tender. Drain, if needed, and cool.

Whisk together the mint, vinegar, lime juice, oil, sugar and salt and pepper to taste in a large bowl. Add the cooled rice, peaches, avocado and scallions; toss gently to combine. Taste and adjust the sugar and seasoning as needed.

Serve immediately, or cover and refrigerate for no more than 8 hours (for optimum appearance).

Chilled Shrimp Dinner in 35 Minutes

BY BONNIE S. BENWICK
The Washington Post

Here's a Vietnamese-inspired salad that's tart and crunchy. The original recipe called for Maine shrimp, which may be difficult to find. They're meaty and sweet, and usually are sold peeled and deveined because their shells are so tough. We used rock shrimp, which come peeled, deveined and frozen. Serve with corn bread. Adapted from "The Summer Shack Cookbook," by Jasper White (paperback, W.W. Norton, 2011).

Chilled Shrimp with Cabbage and Peanuts

4 servings

For the salad:
1 pound peeled and deveined rock shrimp (may substitute defrosted cooked large Gulf shrimp, cut horizontally in half)
2 medium heads or 1 large head Napa or Chinese cabbage

1 bunch cilantro (about 4 ounces)
2 heads Boston or butter lettuce
2 medium carrots
1/2 cup roasted, unsalted peanuts
For the dressing:
1-inch piece ginger root
1/3 cup unseasoned rice vinegar
2 tablespoons fish sauce
1/4 cup peanut oil
2 tablespoons Asian chili paste, such as sambal oelek
1 tablespoon sugar

For the salad: Place the shrimp in a medium skillet and cover with water by a half-inch. Heat over medium-low heat for about 5 minutes or until the shrimp are just opaque. Drain and transfer to a bowl; refrigerate while you prep the remaining salad ingredients. Discard any torn or discolored outer leaves of the cabbage, then cut it crosswise into very thin strips and place in a large wooden salad bowl. Trim off and discard the tough ends of the cilantro stems, then coarsely chop all but 4 of the remaining stems, reserving those for garnish. Add the chopped cilantro to the bowl. Wash and spin-dry the leaves of lettuce; divide them among individual plates to form a kind of bowl for the salad. Peel and grate the carrots; add to the bowl. Toss the ingredients and refrigerate while you make the dressing. For the dressing: Peel and finely grate or mince the ginger; place in a liquid measuring cup, along with the rice vinegar, fish sauce, peanut oil, chili paste and sugar. Whisk to incorporate. To assemble: Coarsely chop the peanuts. Drain the chilled shrimp if needed, then add to the salad bowl, along with two-thirds of the peanuts. Toss to combine, then divide among individual plates, piling the mixture on top of the lettuce leaves. Divide the remaining peanuts among the portions, sprinkling them over the individual salads. Garnish with the leaves from the remaining cilantro stems.

Pilaf Takes All the Bland out of Quinoa

BY STEPHANIE WITT SEDGWICK
Special to The Washington Post

Quinoa is not really a grain, but the seed is treated like one. It comes packed with protein, which makes it a good non-animal source of amino acids. Although the name sounds exotic (KEN-wah or KEE-wah), it tastes fairly bland.

One solution: Cook it like a rice pilaf. Chicken broth, onions and pancetta all bring flavor. When the pilaf's done, I combine the hot, creamy quinoa with baby spinach.

And a caveat: Rinse the quinoa well before cooking. It is naturally coated with bitter-tasting saponins.

Quinoa Pilaf With Spinach and Pancetta

8 side-dish servings.

ASTRID RIECKEN • FOR THE WASHINGTON POST
TABLEWARE FROM CRATE AND BARREL

1 teaspoon olive oil
2 ounces diced pancetta
1 small onion, finely chopped (1/2 cup)
1 cup dried quinoa, well rinsed
1 3/4 cups homemade or no-salt-added chicken broth
Freshly ground black pepper

6 ounces baby spinach, rinsed and air-dried
Heat the oil in a 2-quart saucepan, preferably non-stick, over medium-high heat, until the oil shimmers. Add the pancetta; cook for 5 to 6 minutes, stirring occasionally, until the pancetta starts to brown. Add the onion, then reduce the heat to medium and cook for 3 to 4 minutes, until onion softens. Add the quinoa, broth and pepper to taste. Once the broth starts to bubble, cover the pot; reduce the heat so the broth maintains a low boil. Cook for 15 to 20 minutes, until the quinoa turns translucent, is tender and the outer coating of each grain splits off a bit. The mixture will be creamy. Remove from the heat. Place the baby spinach in a large heatproof bowl; add the hot quinoa mixture and use tongs to incorporate the spinach, which should wilt. Serve warm.

Whiskey on the Go-Go

BY LAUREN VIERA
Chicago Tribune

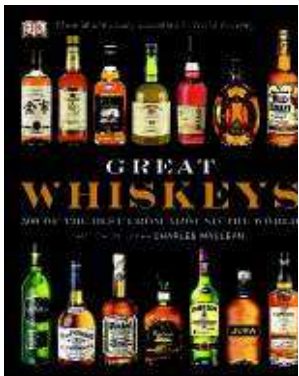

If you've spent any time thumbing through travel books, no doubt you've cooed over Dorling Kindersley's "Eyewitness Travel Guides" — the Cadillacs of guidebooks, with beautiful illustrations and maps, helpful diagrams and elegantly edited information.

We were pleased to learn that DK is (very) gradually expanding its colorful, comprehensive guides to food and drink, most recently with the pocket guide "Great Whiskeys: 500 of the Best From Around the World" (DK Publishing, $15), edited by Charles Maclean, who's been writing about said spir-its for 30 years.

Unlike the cumbersome, encyclopedic coffee table books on the subject, of which there are many, "Great Whiskeys" is as user-friendly as DK's guidebooks, with large photographs of bottles both familiar and foreign, organized alphabetically with thoughtful kernels of history, notable releases and tasting notes.

There are five geographical guides to the spirit's top stomping grounds (Islay, Speyside, Ireland, Japan and good ol' Kentucky), with itineraries broken down by distilleries per day.

The book's downfall is the fact that many new and notables were too new to make the cut. Then again, given Dorling Kindersley's timely updates of popular releases, there's no reason we shouldn't expect an appendix in due time.

William Wheeler, Part of Famed Tuskegee Airmen Program, Dies

NEWSDAY

MELVILLE, N.Y. • When William Wheeler was a student at Howard University in 1943, he swallowed his bitterness, boarded a segregated train in Washington, D.C., and headed south.

Ahead of him awaited a groundbreaking aviation program that would eventually train the 994 black pilots who became known as the Tuskegee Airmen.

Wheeler, 87, who died Tuesday at Mercy Medical Center in Rockville Centre, N.Y., became one of them.

“I hated the country at the time, and wasn’t sure I wanted to fight for it,” Wheeler, a 47-year Hempstead, N.Y., resident, said in 2010. “But I realized that despite our nation’s injustices, even slaves had fought for this country and that black people had fought in every U.S. war since. I felt I couldn’t let that tradition down.”

As word of his death spread, Wheeler was praised for his efforts to preserve the legacy of the Tuskegee Airmen. In the last years of his life, Wheeler frequently participated in oral history projects at schools, air shows and aviation museums across the country.

“He understood the role of living history, and as a result, his inexhaustible energy saw him in classrooms, assemblies and constantly at Airpower,” said Gary Lewi, a spokesman for the American Airpower Museum in East Farmingdale, N.Y., where Wheeler frequently participated in programs.

Songwriter of Hits By Rolling Stones, Janis Joplin Dies

NEW YORK (AP) • Jerry Ragovoy, a songwriter credited with songs made famous by the Rolling Stones, Janis Joplin and others, has died at the age of 80.

Ragovoy died last week at Lenox Hill Hospital in New York City. Jim Steinblatt, a representative for the performance rights group ASCAP, says he died of complications from a stroke.

Among some of Ragovoy’s most famous tunes were “Time Is On My Side” by the Rolling Stones, “Piece of My Heart” by Janis Joplin and “Pata, Pata” by Miriam Makeba.

Sounders, United to Square Off Tonight

Manchester United's Rio Ferdinand and Nemanja Vidic, referee Jeff Hosking and Seattle Sounders goalie Kasey Keller, from left, participate in the coin toss for today's soccer match, standing on top of the Space Needle in Seattle on Tuesday. It's the only exhibition game this season for Seattle, but United adds another notch to the notoriety the young Sounders have created in Major League Soccer. In its inaugural season, the Sounders hosted Chelsea and FC Barcelona in exhibitions. Last year, it was Argentina's Boca Juniors highlighting the docket.

A Dozen Teams Head to Town for Area C Tourney

Twelve teams, five of them local, will descend on Twin Falls and Canyon Ridge high schools starting Thursday to fight for three berths to the Class A American Legion Baseball state tournament in Ontario, Ore.

BY STEPHEN MEYERS
smeyers@magicvalley.com

Solid pitching and defense. That's what coaches say it's going to take to win this week's American Legion Baseball Class A Area C Tournament in Twin Falls. Burley, the Twin Falls Hawks, Twin Falls Cowboys, Kimberly and Buhl are among the dozen teams that will battle it out for the three spots in next week's state tournament at Treasure Valley Community College in Ontario, Ore. From there, the top two play at a regional tournament in Oregon. The top-seeded Green Sox rolled through Area C play this season with a 14-2 record, ripping off 14 straight before dropping two against Pocatello this weekend. They'll benefit from a first-round bye, as their first opponent Thursday evening, either the Twin Falls Cowboys or Idaho Falls, will have to face ace right-hander Jake Mills.

"All that hard work paid off to get us a first-round bye. Now if we go out and do the things we're supposed to do and are capable of, I like our chances," said Burley coach Devin Kunz. "When you get into these tournaments, it never goes like it's supposed to. It's just who's going to be playing the hottest, and making the least mistakes. "These tournaments come down to pitching and defense, and if you get a runner to third base with less than two outs, you better damn well score him." The Twin Falls Hawks open against Madison at noon Thursday and are coming into the tournament hot, winners of five of their last six.

Class AA Area C Tournament Set to Start in Pocatello

Already guaranteed a spot at state as its host, the Twin Falls Cowboys look to get hot. Jerome and Minico hope to earn state seeds.

BY DAVID BASHORE
dbashore@magicvalley.com

The entire American Legion Baseball season comes down to three days. Beginning Thursday, five Class AA Area C teams will battle in Pocatello for two berths to next week's state tournament in Twin Falls. Though it will participate in the area tournament, Twin Falls is already assured of a state berth as the tournament host. The Cowboys, seeded second this week, will open play against third-seeded Idaho Falls at 7 p.m. Thursday. Pocatello is the top seed. Despite the guarantee of playing next week, there are a few more things the Cowboys feel they need to work on if they're to make the state championship round for the third year running. "We're starting to come around at the plate. Monday night was a good sign and we had good pitching. I was pretty pleased with that and we want to get that rolling around into districts," Twin Falls coach Tim Stadelmeir said of Monday's sweep of Minico. The opening game of the tournament pits fourth-seeded Jerome against fifth-seeded Minico. The Cyclones lost their first 16 games but turned the season around with an improved run down the stretch. "Our kids are excited and confident. They've got a touch of the swagger back," said Jerome coach Kenneth James. "Its not like we've been on a long streak or anything, but we've played a better brand of baseball for over two weeks now. Confidence is such a huge part of the battle, and we've got some."

UFL Delays Season

The struggling third-year football league had hoped to capitalize on the NFL lockout.

BY ERIC OLSON
The Associated Press

OMAHA, Neb. • With the NFL working to end its lockout and save the preseason, the struggling United Football League announced Tuesday it would push back the start of its games from August to September. The schedule switch is another blow — at a critical time — to the second-tier pro league that has lost more than $100 million in its two years of existence. The UFL had hoped to gain exposure in the vacuum left by a locked-out NFL. It scheduled several early-season games on Sundays and aimed to fill television time slots normally reserved for NFL exhibition games. But Commissioner Michael Huyghue told reporters he was resigned to losing a "windfall" from the NFL. "It seems nonsensical for us to play on Sundays when the NFL is there," Huyghue said. "The only reason we did it was we hedged our bet and felt confident the labor situation was going to invade the traditional preseason."

BYU, Southern Miss to Play Football Series

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

HATTIESBURG, Miss. • Southern Miss and BYU have agreed to play a home-and-home football series beginning in 2014. BYU, which recently became an independent football program after leaving the Mountain West Conference, will host the Golden Eagles in 2014 in Provo, Utah. The Cougars will make the return trip to Hattiesburg the following year. The teams have played twice before, splitting two games in 1975 and 1976.

Jays Top Mariners in 14

TORONTO • Rajai Davis stole two bases before scoring on John McDonald's sacrifice fly in the 14th inning and the Toronto Blue Jays beat Seattle 6-5 Tuesday night, extending the Mariners' losing streak to 10 games.

It is Seattle's longest slide since a 12-game skid in 2008.

Davis hit a one-out single off Jamey Wright (2-3) in the 14th and stole second and third before scoring on McDonald's fly to center.

Orioles 6, Red Sox 2

BALTIMORE • Jeremy Guthrie allowed two runs over seven innings in an effort that belied his title as the losingest pitcher in the majors, and the Baltimore Orioles beat Boston 6-2 Tuesday night to end a seven-game losing streak against the Red Sox.

Rays 3, Yankees 2

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. • Jeremy Hellickson pitched seven strong innings and Tampa Bay took advantage of sloppy New York defense to rally past the Yankees.

Twins 2, Indians 1

MINNEAPOLIS • Danny Valencia hit a two-run single off All-Star closer Chris Perez in the ninth inning, sending Minnesota to a victory over Cleveland.

Tigers 8, Athletics 3

DETROIT • Miguel Cabrera and Carlos Guillen each hit a two-run homer in Detroit's six-run fifth inning against Oakland.

Royals 4, White Sox 2

KANSAS CITY, Mo. • Danny Duffy returned from the minors to toss seven sharp innings, Matt Treanor delivered a go-ahead, two-run single and the light-hitting Colorado Rockies starting pitcher Ubaldo Jimenez throws to the plate against the Atlanta Braves during the first inning of Tuesday's game at Coors Field in Denver.

Royals hung on to beat Chicago.

National League Rockies 12, Braves 3

DENVER • Ubaldo Jimenez brushed aside Atlanta's powerful bats along with all that trade talk, and Troy Tulowitzki and Carlos Gonzalez homered as the Rockies routed the Atlanta Braves.

It was the first win for Colorado in six tries against the Braves this month, and for once Atlanta rookie Freddie Freeman didn't do any damage at the plate.

Freeman entered the game 10 for 19 against the Rockies after clubbing five homers and knocking in 10 runs against them.

He was hitless in three at-bats against Jimenez, striking out twice.

Pirates 1, Reds 0

PITTSBURGH • James McDonald and three relievers combined on a six-hitter to help the Pittsburgh Pirates shut out the Cincinnati Reds for the second straight night, 1-0 on Tuesday.

McDonald (6-4) won for the first time in five starts, pitching effectively into the seventh inning before getting bailed out of a bases-loaded jam by Joe Beimel and Chris Resop.

Phillies 4, Cubs 2

CHICAGO • Michael Martinez hit a tiebreaking two-run double with two out in the ninth inning, and the Philadelphia Phillies rallied to beat the Chicago Cubs 4-2 on Tuesday night.

Starlin Castro's two-run homer off Cliff Lee in the first inning held up until Philadelphia chased Matt Garza in the eighth, and Chase Utley tied with a two-run double against Sean Marshall.

Astros 7, Nationals 6

HOUSTON • Clint Barmes homered and drove in three runs and Michael Bourn added three RBIs to help starter J.A. Happ break a seven-game losing streak in the Houston Astros' 7-6 win over the Washington Nationals on Tuesday night.

Happ (4-11) yielded seven hits and five runs with four walks in 5 2-3 innings to break the career-long skid and win for the first time since May 14.

Mets 4, Cardinals 2

NEW YORK • Mets short-stop Jose Reyes made a huge impact in the field in his return from a hamstring injury, turning a difficult double play with the bases loaded in the eighth inning after making a diving stop that saved a run.

Fellow All-Star Carlos Beltran also was back in the Mets' lineup after missing three games with a high fever. He hit two doubles, singled, walked twice and scored a run for New York, all while still very congested.

Padres 4, Marlins 0

MIAMI • Tim Stauffer pitched six innings and four relievers completed a six-hitter for San Diego.

Ryan Ludwick and Orlando Hudson hit consecutive two-out RBI doubles in the first inning for the Padres, and that was all they needed. Cameron Maybin had two hits, an RBI and a run scored against his former team.

Rangers Plan to Raise Railings After Fan Death

After a tragic death in their ballpark, the Texas Rangers will raise spectator safety rails to 42 inches.

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) • The Texas Rangers plan to make all the protective railings at their stadium the same height, raising some as much as a foot to make their stadium safer following the death of a fan during a recent game.

Rangers executive vice president Rob Matwick said Tuesday that the team's intention is for all rails in the front of seating sections to be 42 inches throughout Rangers Ballpark.

Architectural and engineering studies are already under way at 17-year-old Rangers Ballpark to determine how to do the work.

Railings around the ballpark now are 30 or 34 inches in most areas, with 42-inch rails already at the base of aisles that lead to the front row. City building requirements are that guardrails must be at least 26 inches high.

"Part of the goal is to not only raise it, but to raise it to the highest standard that exists in the United States at this time, and to do that uniformly on all the front rows around the ballpark," Matwick said.

Shannon Stone, a Brownwood firefighter, died less than an hour after he tumbled headfirst over a rail out of the seats in left field during a game July 7. Stone fell about 20 feet to concrete behind the outfield wall after reaching out to catch a ball tossed his way by All-Star outfielder Josh Hamilton.

Matwick said the railing in the area where Stone fell is 34 inches.

The day after Stone's fatal fall, the Rangers were already in contact with city officials, as well as ballpark contractors and architects, about how to ensure safety for fans attending games played in the American League champion's stadium.

Because it will take time for the rails to be changed, the club is taking some immediate steps to remind fans to be careful.

The most prominent is adding yellow signs on the rails that read, in all capital letters, "DO NOT LEAN, SIT ON, OR STAND AGAINST RAIL." The same warning will be made before each game over the public-address system and on the scoreboards. Plus, stadium workers will more closely monitor the rails.

Security personnel were placed at the base of each aisle in left field the next game after Stone fell. Matwick said the plan is to keep those personnel in place in the immediate future, meaning there will be an extra six or seven workers in that area each game.

The Rangers' next home game is Friday night.

"The Rangers have continually updated us regarding their new safety initiatives and we are fully supportive of their efforts," MLB spokesman Pat Courtney said. "We have encouraged our clubs to review stadium operations over the second half of the season to continue to ensure a safe environment for our fans."

Rangers Ballpark workers on Tuesday were placing the yellow stickers on rails along the front rows. There had already been such warning signs in place, but mostly at the base of aisles. Now there are numerous signs along the rail in each section.

Matwick said the team is hopeful that the architectural and engineering studies will be completed in "probably a few weeks." He said the process has already begun to measure each rail section to verify exactly what is in place.

No work on the railings can be done until the studies are completed. Those will help determine if new railing will be needed or if current railing can be updated at the stadium that opened in 1994.

"We need to check and make sure that the way that the rails are currently anchored can support additional structure on top," Matwick said. "It's just a question of whether it can be done in existing structure or whether it has to be retrofitted. It's not a question of whether or not it can be done, just a question of whether or not we have to retrofit. That could potentially take some more time, we just don't know that yet."

Matwick said the team's goal would be to start the work on the railings "during the season if we absolutely can." He said it was difficult now to determine when that would be or when the work could be completed.

"The safety of our fans is our top priority," Rangers president Nolan Ryan said in a news release. "The initiatives we are announcing today for Rangers Ballpark in Arlington will help to ensure that we meet that priority."

Ryan was released Tuesday from a Houston hospital after being tested for a heart ailment.

A woman posing for a photo fell over a rail following the first regular-season game at the stadium in 1994, and last year a man trying to catch a foul ball fell over a rail on the second deck. Stone's fall came one year and one day after the previous accident.

Iowa Baseball Team Wins 84th Straight

INDIANOLA, Iowa (AP) • The moment Martensdale-St. Marys High School scored the run that secured its record-breaking 84th straight win, the Blue Devils acted as if it was no big deal.

The Gatorade shower they gave their coach a few minutes later said otherwise.

Martensdale-St. Marys, a small school in rural Iowa, beat Twin Cedars-Bussey High 10-0 in six innings Tuesday night, setting the national high school record for consecutive wins.

Portsmouth High School in New Hampshire set the mark earlier this season and its streak of 83 straight wins is still alive after winning a state title in the spring.

The win also clinched a trip to next week's state tournament for the Blue Devils.

Martensdale-St. Marys finished 43-0 and won the state crown a year ago. Given the streak the Blue Devils are on, they'll be heavy favorites to reach the goal they insist is more important than history.

"It means that we've done something that nobody else has ever done," said Martensdale-St. Marys coach Justin Dehmer. "It's pretty special. Our guys are well aware of what we just did. I know there will be a celebration tonight and we're going to be all excited. But we know we've got business to take care of."

Pitchers Scott Speer, Garrett Basham and Kaleb Price have experience and the team won both local wood-bat tournaments earlier this summer.

"Sweeping Kimberly (last week) was a big boost for us because they're a really good team. That was the boost we needed for morale going into this," said Hawks coach Brady Madsen. "We're feeling pretty good coming in, with a tournament setup. We've won both tournaments we've played in so we feel we're a pretty decent tournament team."

They'll also feel comfortable playing in their own house, with games being played at both Canyon Ridge and Twin Falls High schools.

"It'll be easier for the parents to be there and that's always a plus, and it's easier to play out of your home dugout. It's better to come from a point of familiarity," Madsen said.

The cross-town foe Cowboys have a number of quality arms in Damon Jones, Wyatt Doyle and Wyatt Berg and head coach Mark Schaal said the team has gained confidence as the season has rolled on.

"We've been swept by some teams and we've won against others, but we've played right there with every team," said Twin Falls Cowboys coach Mark Schaal.

Kimberly and Buhl are led by aces, Seth Champlin and Markus Lively, respectively, and can certainly make a run.

Both teams open at 9 a.m. Thursday, with the Astros playing Blackfoot at Canyon Ridge and the Tribe playing Skyline at Twin Falls High School.

"Anything can happen. There are no dominant teams, but there's no weak teams in this tournament, either," Kunz said. "It's going to be really competitive because everyone is really even. You just better be ready to play your game instead of worrying about the opponent."

Champs Open With Bulls, if Season Starts on Time

The NBA released its 2011-12 schedule amid the lockout that could wipe out all or part of the season.

NEW YORK (AP) • The NBA champion Dallas Mavericks will open the season — if it begins on time — at home on Nov. 1 against MVP Derrick Rose and Chicago, then host Miami in a finals rematch Christmas Day.

The NBA released its complete 2011-12 schedule Tuesday despite being in a lockout that could last months and cause it to be scrapped.

Owners and players are still well apart in negotiations on a collective bargaining agreement to replace the one that expired June 30, and there is a fear that regular-season games could be lost to a work stoppage for the second time in league history.

If not, Utah will host Houston in the Rockets' first game under Kevin McHale and without Yao

Ming, and Oklahoma City will visit new coach Mike Brown and the Lakers to conclude the opening-night schedule.

Most teams begin Nov. 2, with LeBron James, Dwyane Wade and Chris Bosh starting their second season together on the Heat and facing a Knicks team led by Carmelo Anthony and Amare Stoudemire.

Also, Golden State hosts the Lakers in its first game under rookie coach Mark Jackson.

No. 1 pick Kyrie Irving would make his pro debut that night when Cleveland visits Boston.

The first meeting between the Mavs and Heat since Dallas' six-game victory in the finals highlights the Dec. 25 schedule.

aThe Celtics visit the Knicks to open the tripleheader and the Lakers welcome the Bulls in the nightcap.

The Mavs play in Miami for the first time since clinching their first title on March 29.

The schedule was released much later in the summer in recent seasons while the NBA was waiting for the completion of free agency and trades to see what other marquee matchups could be created.

This time, with all transactions and most other league business on hold, there was no reason to wait.

It's unclear what would happen to the schedule if the season is delayed, though it would likely depend on when a deal gets done.

The 1998-99 season didn't begin until February, forcing an overhaul that limited teams to 50 games.

If a deal is completed in time to save the entire season, other interesting games include:

- The first meeting between Dallas and Los Angeles since the Mavs ended the Lakers' two-year title reign on Dec. 15 in Dallas.
- Anthony's return to Denver with the Knicks on Nov. 16.
- Deron Williams' first game back in Utah with the Nets on Jan. 14.
- Brown's first game in Cleveland since the Cavs fired him after consecutive 60-win seasons on Dec. 21.
- The Magic and Nets playing a pair of games at the O2 Arena on March 7-8, the second straight year the NBA is staging regular-season games in London ahead of the 2012 Olympics.

The All-Star break is scheduled for Feb. 24-26 in Orlando.

The regular season ends April 18, with the Nets hosting the Bulls in their final game in New Jersey before moving to Brooklyn for the 2012-13 season.

‘Blade Runner’ Pistorius Qualifies for World Championships

Double amputee Oscar Pistorius qualified Tuesday for the athletics world championships next month and could be on his way to the 2012 Olympics in London. The South African clocked a personal best of 45.07 seconds in the 400 meters in the northern Italian town of Lignano on the Adriatic Sea. He needed a time of 45.25 to qualify for the worlds for the first time. The championships begin Aug. 27 in Daegu, South Korea. The time also puts him on track to fulfill his dream of competing at the Olympics. Having achieved the “A” qualifying time, he now only needs to be selected for the South African team. Pistorius, known as the “Blade Runner,” gained international fame when he tried to qualify for the 2008 Olympics. He had to battle an IAAF ban from competing in able-bodied races after his carbon-fiber blades were deemed an unfair advantage. He went to the Court of Arbitration for Sport and was cleared in 2008.

TODAY'S NATIONAL MAP

Alberto Contador speeds down the Col de Manse pass near Gap during Tuesday's 16th stage of the Tour de France, raced over 101 miles starting in Saint Paul Trois Chateaux and finishing in Gap, southern France.

Contador's Surprise Attack Shakes up Tour Leaderboard

The defending champion attacked unexpectedly during Tuesday's stage, leaving all but one of his fellow Tour de France championship contenders lagging behind.

GAP, France (AP) • Alberto Contador has finally put the hammer down at the Tour de France — and now, the race is really on.

Minutes behind the race leader, the defending champion surprised key rivals with a brazen attack on a relatively easy climb in the Alpine foothills in Tuesday's Stage 16, won by Thor Hushovd of Norway in a breakaway.

Contador, baring his teeth as his tires sizzled on the rain-slick roads, surged out of the pack on the mid-grade Col de Magne climb, and held on through a treacherous downhill to the finish of the 101-mile ride from Saint-Paul-Trois-Chateaux to Gap.

"I knew I needed to attack," Contador said. "I couldn't care less if someone kept on my wheel — I knew one of them would fail. I'm so happy. It has been a major gap, much bigger than I expected."

The unexpected surge by the Spaniard shook up the leaderboard at cycling's greatest race, which ends Sunday in Paris after a jaunt Wednesday into Italy, then two days in the Alps, and a time-trial Saturday in Grenoble.

Among the contenders, only Cadel Evans kept up. The Australian actually out-paced the Spanish three-time champion by 3 seconds at the end. But Contador, who lost time with crash trouble earlier in the race — had trimmed 18 seconds off his deficit to overall race leader Thomas Voeckler of France, down to 3 minutes, 42 seconds.

More importantly, the Spaniard recovered more than a minute on his runner-up at the last two Tours, Andy Schleck of Luxembourg, a top climber who almost inexplicably didn't keep up on the relatively easy final ascent.

Schleck conceded he was "disappointed," but that "there are other chances to take back time." His biggest ally — his older brother and Leopard Trek teammate Frank Schleck — said they hadn't foreseen the attack.

"We were a bit surprised that Contador went on the climb," Frank Schleck said. "We know that he is a rider that attacks when he has good legs, but we had anticipated he would wait for the Alps."

"Contador knows all too well that the Schlecks don't perform at their best in the cold and rainy conditions," he added. "It's all part of the game — knowing your opponents and knowing their weaknesses."

Contador's Saxo Bank team could hardly contain their joy.

"He put the hammer down and showed he's still there in the game," manager Bjarne Riis said. "I'm happy for that."

Aside from the aggressive Contador, the other standout of Tuesday's stage was Evans, a two-time runner-up who has so far had a nearly flawless race — and showed he's not giving up to the Spaniard without a fight.

"Today was an opportunity for us to see what could happen," said Jim Ochowicz, manager of Evans' BMC squad. "We assumed that at some point Contador was going to try to take some time back. His move, when he made it, was the perfect opportunity for Cadel to counter."

Voeckler, a dogged Frenchman who has been one of the revelations of this year's Tour, knows that Contador is often better than he is in mountain climbs and the time-trial — and expects to lose the yellow jersey soon.

"I kept it by a handful of seconds, but that shows that I've hit my ceiling," he said.

Hushovd, a Garmin-Cervelo rider who wore yellow for six days in the first week, and also won Stage 13, led a three-man breakaway to win the stage — edging out a compatriot, Edvald Boassen Hagen, in second, and his own teammate: Ryder Hesjedal of Canada. They were among 10 break-away riders who had pressed the pace through most of the stage.

SEC Commish: NCAA Changes Are Coming

The NCAA has been rocked recently by scandals involving several high-profile college athletic programs.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)

• Southeastern Conference Commissioner Mike Slive is well aware of the recent criticism of the NCAA — complaints about prolonged investigations and rulings that leave coaches and administrators scratching their heads.

He thinks change is coming.

"I have a sense that there are several of us that feel like change is important and addressing these issues from a national perspective is important," Slive told The Associated Press. "And I fully expect that we will do that, and I fully expect that the SEC will make every effort to contribute to that discussion and hopefully the appropriate action following those discussions."

The influential commissioner of a league that has won the past five national titles in football is more diplomat than maverick, but he also acknowledges there's a "growing perception that things aren't exactly as they ought to be in some ways."

Slive wants to see quicker turnarounds for NCAA investigations, something that has been an issue in his own league, and supports beefing up the annual value of scholarships. He stops short of supporting paying players.

Slive addressed those issues and everything from a television contract that is the second-largest among college conferences to lingering questions about expansion in an interview ahead of SEC media days Wednesday through Friday.

The issue of lengthy investigations bubbled up at SEC meetings in June, when Tennessee coach Derek Dooley and Auburn's Gene Chizik reportedly peppered NCAA vice president of enforcement Julie Roe Lach with questions about the conclusion of investigations at their respective schools. (Slive declined to address specific cases, including the Cam Newton pay-for-play saga involving Mississippi State and Auburn).

Tennessee is awaiting a ruling following a 22-month investigation into the football and men's basketball programs. The NCAA's investigation into Auburn's recruitment of the Heisman Trophy-winning quarterback Newton apparently continues, though the university hasn't received an official letter of inquiry.

Investigations also are ongoing at Ohio State, North Carolina and Oregon — Auburn's opponent in the BCS championship game in January.

Slive said he's optimistic that "positive changes" will be made in enforcement and other areas under NCAA President Mark Emmert. The NCAA already made changes in late June aimed at allowing enforcement staff to more easily put more people on an investigation when appropriate.

"I think what everyone wants — and this wouldn't necessarily be restricted to coaches — is that when issues arise, that they be handled in a timely way," Slive said. "And that's not always easy when you're dealing with a process that doesn't have subpoena power and power to compel answers to interrogatories. My sense is that what Julie and Dr. Emmert are trying to do is find a way without those resources to reconfigure their staff and how they do things to try to address the question of timeliness."

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"Rationalism is an adventure in the clarification of thought."

— Alfred North Whitehead

Heather Dhondy of the English ladies' team has the most extraordinary record in the Grandmasters Pairs over the past five years, having finished second, third, first, second and second. For the last four years Heather has played with Rob Cliffe, who read this deal from last year's event very well.

One note about the auction: North's two-heart cue-bid showed a limit raise to three diamonds, a fairly standard treatment these days in the tournament world. A raise to three diamonds would have been pre-emptive, not limit.

West, Brian Senior, led the heart king, on which East, Sandra Penfold, played the two, showing an even number (reverse count). West continued with another top heart, ruffed by declarer, who crossed to dummy with a trump, ruffed the last heart, and drew the rest of West's trumps.

East, who had to find three discards, threw a spade followed by two clubs. It seemed to declarer that she had probably started with a 5-4-0-4 distribution without the club queen. Consequently, declarer cashed the ace and king of clubs followed by the two top spades and exited with a spade to endplay East.

At this point West complained, saying, "I'm not too familiar with these positions, but I think it's etiquette to endplay the gentleman."

Indeed, declarer could equally well have endplayed West by exiting with a club, and that endplay would have been obligatory had East kept three clubs.

ANSWER: There are two schools of thought here among those who (correctly) consider this hand to good for a simple two-diamond rebid. The super-scientists prefer to invent a two-club call, generating complexity where none is required. The naturalists simply jump to three diamonds to get their values across. Put me in their camp!

DEAR ABBY: My best friend, “Brianna,” often invites me to big parties at her older friends’ homes. At first I was thrilled because I’m only 15. At the parties I saw some people doing bad things — but I didn’t, at first.

Soon, Brianna pressured me into doing some things that I didn’t feel comfortable doing. My parents are very strict about these things, and I knew it was wrong. I have tried to get out of going to the parties, but Brianna says bad things to me. I have even had to lie to my parents about where I’m going.

Every girl my age wants to go to these parties, but I don’t. Am I weird for not wanting to get involved in inappropriate things? I’m afraid if I stand up to Brianna, she’ll make everyone hate me. Please help. What should I do?

— FEELING PRESSURED IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR FEELING PRESSURED: You’re not weird, and “every” girl your age does NOT want to attend the parties you have mentioned. You appear to be a lot more intelligent than your “friend” Brianna, who sounds more like a bully than a friend.

Because Brianna does things that could land her in serious trouble doesn’t mean that you should do them.

As I say in my booklet, “What Every Teen Should Know”: “... when it comes to being enticed into acts that are senseless, dangerous, illegal or immoral, it’s the ‘squares,’ the kids who care about their reputations (and their school and/or police records), who really show courage by saying, ‘No thanks, I’ll pass.’”

Today, it’s not unusual to hear about teens engaging in adult activities at much younger ages than the teenagers of previous generations. That is why it is so important for parents (and guardians) to take the time to discuss alcohol, drugs, sex and family values with their children well before they start experimenting.

My teen booklet provides the answers to frequently asked questions such as: How old must a girl be before she can get pregnant? Can she get pregnant the first time she has sex? What time of the month is a girl 100 percent safe? How old must a boy be before he can father a child? Another important topic that’s included is how to avoid date rape and what to do if it happens. To order “What Every Teen Should Know,” send your name and address, plus check or money order for $6 (U.S. funds), to Dear Abby Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, IL 61054-0447. Shipping and handling are included in the price. My booklet also contains information on contraception and sexually transmitted diseases and how to recognize them. It has been distributed in doctors’ offices and used to promote discussion by educators and religious leaders, and is often used by parents who find it difficult to discuss sex with their children.

DEAR ABBY: There’s a question I have been pondering for years and I have never seen it addressed in your column. Which came first, the chicken sandwich or the egg salad? I need to make a decision soon.

— CHICKEN LOVER IN PORTLAND, ORE.

DEAR CHICKEN LOVER: Your question is out of my area of expertise because I’m a peanut butter-and-jelly girl. But I know baloney when I’m handed a portion, so chew on that until you figure out the answer.

IF JULY 20 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: In August, you may have the urge to simply sit back and enjoy the fruits of your labors. Your relaxed and buoyant nature may attract opportunity like a magnet, however, so don't rest on your comfy laurels. You can use lucky breaks to good advantage in your career or investments in the second half of the month. In October, wishful thinking hits a high note so any new romance or investment could distract you from what is really important. Steer clear of loans, borrowing, job changes or major purchases in December when your judgment is off center. That is a time to work hard and maintain a low profile.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Act on your creative inspirations. You can achieve your objectives by being pragmatic about the facts while refusing to be deterred from achieving your dream. Where there is a will there's a way.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Follow the lead of those in close connection, but don't be dismayed if a change of direction is indicated. There could be an intense desire to break down barriers or revolt against established customs.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): To know you, is to love you. Gravitate toward familiar surroundings and things. You may seem like a genius when in the midst of groups of people or when given the opportunity to advise a friend.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A penny saved is a penny earned. Find ways to play that give you a chance to unwind and refresh your spirits, but cost very little. Your refusal to countenance waste is one of your assets today.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You need some cheese to bait a mousetrap. Listen to your instincts about what will please others or what will attract the best results. If you want to achieve a compromise, you must offer benefits to others.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Speak now or forever hold your peace. The cosmic lights are green for affectionate verbal exchanges and intimate moments. You have the financial savvy to make a big score and a touchdown.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be a hometown hero. Because people may view you as a bit better than you really are it is a good time to appear in public. On the other hand, keep up appearances and do not take anything for granted.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Start things that require unyielding dedication. When faced by important matters you are inspired to work like a dog to reach your goal. Those in authority are looking for lasting allegiance and loyalty.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Learn how to turn pessimism into optimism. Even when involved in heavy-duty thinking, you can find ways to cheer up family members. Don't waste valuable financial resources on frivolous purchases.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Don't wave a red flag in front of the bull. A desire for change at all costs might tempt you to take foolhardy risks. Get out the calculator and double check the numbers before spending your money.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Look for the facts, not the fancies. Others will think you are a lightweight contender unless you stick to absolutely essential subjects. This isn't a good time to dabble with new investments.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Sweet dreams are made of this. Stick with true blue reliable partners and a steady financial plan. Don't get carried away by impulsive ideas. Romantic notions simmering on the back burner may be ready for consumption.

Court OKs Nevada roundup

BY SCOTT SONNER
Associated Press

RENO, Nev. • The U.S. Bureau of Land Management was given the green light on Tuesday to move ahead with a controversial horse roundup in Nevada when a federal appeals court lifted a temporary injunction blocking the gather of more than 1,700 mustangs.

An animal rights group, the Colorado-based Cloud Foundation, had sued to stop the roundup. A three-judge panel of the 9th Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals in San Francisco said the group had failed to show it likely could prove during future hearings that the roundup is illegal and that removal of horses from federally protected public rangeland would cause irreparable harm.

Critics said another disappointing loss in federal court suggested Congress may have to pass a new law to protect the mustangs because the Wild Free-Roaming Horse and Burros Act of 1971 doesn't seem to be enforceable.

"We need a new law," said Rachel Fazio, a lawyer for the Cloud Foundation who had won the temporary restraining order from a judge on the appellate court based on claims the proposed roundup was illegal.

"I think we really need to establish the fact that these animals need to be protected, need to be maintained unmolested by man. And that we mean it this time," she told The Associated Press.

BLM spokeswoman Heather Emmons said the roundup that had been scheduled to begin last week would start on Wednesday in northeast Nevada near the Utah line — weather permitting — and continue for about six weeks.

"We'll continue with the gather as we were going to, through the end of August," she told AP.

BLM argued the agency has a mandate under the federal law to remove "excess" horses to sustain the health of herds, rangelands and wildlife. It said the mustang population in the Triple B complex is five times greater than what the range can support.

The Cloud Foundation argued late Monday that the emergency order should remain in place until the government proves the mustangs are causing ecological damage to the range.

Idaho OKs $54K Payment After Losing Election Case

BOISE (AP) • The state on Tuesday approved a payment of more than $54,000 in attorney fees and court costs to an Arizona man who challenged Idaho's election laws and won.

A federal judge decided Idaho's election laws are unconstitutional and unfairly biased against would-be independent presidential candidates in a ruling last April.

U.S. Magistrate Judge Ronald Bush sided with a Phoenix man who sued the state, claiming he was unfairly barred from collecting signatures in Idaho to get an independent presidential candidate like Ralph Nader on the state ballot.

The payment to Donald Daien was approved by a panel including Idaho's governor, attorney general, secretary of state, controller and legislative leaders, according to The Spokesman-Review.

Daien had argued that Idaho's rules violated his right to free speech because nonresidents are barred from circulating petitions in Idaho.

Feds Take Over Idaho Insurance Rates Review

BOISE (AP) • The federal government will assume the responsibility of reviewing increases of 10 percent or more in health insurance premiums proposed by private Idaho insurance companies starting later this fall.

The decision by federal officials may be the first effect of Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter's executive order signed earlier this year that prohibits the state from carrying out any component of the 2010 federal health care overhaul, the Idaho Statesman reported Tuesday.

Shad Priest, deputy director of the Idaho Department of Insurance, said the state's reluctance to comply leaves it unable to meet the demands for the federal law's requirements for states to provide watchdog oversight on health insurance rate hikes. Priest said Idaho also has a policy of not disclosing health insurance rates to the public, citing a state law making certain rate information proprietary.

"It was not a surprise," Priest said.

As a result, starting Sept. 1 a branch of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services will become the lead reviewer of some proposed rate hikes for health insurance premiums. Proposed rate increases subject to review include those for calling for an increase of 10 percent or more for small groups or individuals. Under the new rules, private insurers must also disclose the increases and justify the need to raise premiums.

In future years, the threshold for flagging a rate for review will be set on a state-by-state basis, considering the insurance and health cost trends in each state.

In Idaho, insurance premiums are not subject to state approval, but are disclosed to the state. The Department of Insurance monitors those premiums and can send increases to a consultant to determine whether they are excessive or discriminatory.

The cost of health insurance coverage nationally for a family of four rose 131 percent over the past 12 years, according to the federal Center for Consumer Information and Insurance Oversight.
