After Idaho Dental Cuts, the Pain Runs Deep

Idaho cut Medicaid-based dental service spending by $1.7 million this year in a cost-saving reform package. In just the first month of the fiscal year, area dentists say they're already noticing the change.

Idaho's recent Medicaid coverage cuts are not going unnoticed.

As a pediatric dentist at Smiles 4 Kids in Twin Falls, Dr. Garth Stoddard has seen the effects of the Legislature's decision to trim state Medicaid spending first-hand.

"It's frustrating to have cuts and not have anyone seem interested in what these cuts will mean," he said.

The state's cost-saving Medicaid reform passed earlier this year left more than 42,000 Idahoans under Medicaid without non-emergency dental coverage. The dental program cuts — part of larger, $34 million reform-based savings — are estimated to save the state $1.7 million from the general fund and $3.9 million in federal funds.

The cuts will only affect adults over the age of 21. Children and pregnant women will continue to receive Medicaid-provided dental services.

Stoddard estimated the office sees 600-700 Medicaid patients a month. However, he said he expects that number to grow as a result of the Medicaid coverage cuts.

Terry Jacobs spends a lot of her time washing test tubes.

She'll now have more hours for other pursuits after learning a cost-saving trick Wednesday — build the tubes for her students out of straws anchored upright in clay on a paper plate.

It was one extra lesson Jacobs took away from a training course about using the body to teach aspects of science, technology, engineering and math (STEM) disciplines. About 150 teachers from across southern Idaho have flocked to the College of Southern Idaho campus this week for a few creative lessons in the subjects.

The teaching seminar has been filled with lectures, hands-on experiments and classes that connect the subjects in imaginative ways.

ONE KILLED IN CRASH NEAR PAUL

TIMES-NEWS

A Paul resident died Wednesday in a two-vehicle crash that injured three other people, according to Idaho State Police.

Shortly after 1 p.m., Marina Gomez, 20, was westbound on 200 South Road in Minidoka County in a 2008 Hyundai Elantra. At the road's intersection with 500 West Road, Gomez failed to stop at the stop sign, ISP reported. Taylor Carson, 19, of Burley, was headed south on 500 West in a 2010 Ford Fusion and collided with Gomez's vehicle in the intersection.

Gomez died on impact. She had two passengers, both also of Paul: Jeremiah Torres, 2, was taken by air ambulance to St. Luke's Boise Medical Center with unknown injuries. Gabriel Hadden, 7, went by ground ambulance to Cassia Regional Medical Center in Burley and was released with minor injuries.

Carson was taken by ground ambulance to Cassia Regional Medical Center in Burley with non-life-threatening injuries.

All four wore seat belts and the air bags deployed in the Hyundai Elantra, according to ISP. The crash blocked the road for about two hours.

A Bridge to Cross Salmon Creek?

Activists say bridge bypass to Salmon Falls Dam will help preserve 100-year-old structure and make southwest Twin Falls County more accessible.

BY NICK COLTRAIN
ncoltrain@magicvalley.com

ROGERSON • Byrd Golay and Jack Oyler want a bridge over Salmon Falls Creek and they want everyone to know it.

They've bent the governor's ears, pleaded their case to the Twin Falls County commissioners, brought out Twin Falls Republican Rep. Stephen Hartgen to mediate and more — all in an effort to preserve a bridge that just saw its 100th birthday and to open southwest Twin Falls County to more vehicles.

The Salmon Falls Dam, which acts as the creek's vehicle crossing from Rogerson, is visibly crumbling on the top. Its narrow right of way means only one vehicle can cross at a time and its strong curve means trailers are almost a no-go. Oyler and Golay worry that the China Mountain Wind Project proposed in the area — a project waiting for permitting from the U.S. Bureau of Land Management that won't start until summer 2013 at the earliest — will force an extra 750 vehicles onto the bridge, dramatically increasing the chance for an accident. Oyler, a former insurance adjuster, said he's had his fill of filing claims from those who misnavigate that pass.

Golay said he is serious enough about the project and wanting to protect the dam that he bought the

Idaho Company Gets $750,000 to Build Solar Parking Lot

SAGLE (AP) • A northern Idaho company that aims to transform U.S. highways into a vast energy-producing network is getting $750,000 from the federal government for the next phase of its project: A solar parking lot capable of sending electricity back to the power grid.

Solar Roadways, of Sagle, announced Wednesday it won a Small Business Innovation Research grant for its project from the Federal Highway Administration.

Company founders Scott and Julie Brusaw plan to use the cash to create a prototype parking lot for testing. But their real dream is for a road system built of 12-foot-by-12-foot solar panels rather than traditional asphalt.

Brusaw estimates the panels might cost three times more than asphalt but would produce electricity that could be sent back to the power grid, helping governments and private industry pay for them. He's hoping his work helps convince otherwise conservative, risk-averse road construction agencies that his panels are suitable for a rollout on an estimated 28,000 square miles of asphalt and

Man Arrested for Public Intoxication

TIMES-NEWS

Twin Falls police arrested a 21-year-old man in the parking lot of Baskin-Robbins on Tuesday night for being drunk in a public roadway and depositing putrid matter.

Erik Garcia-Murillo is held on $500 bond. The police report says Garcia-Murillo approached another man in the parking lot and yelled profanities at him. He then allegedly walked back to his own car, a black BMW, and urinated on it. It was also alleged that Garcia-Murillo walked into traffic on Caswell Avenue. The witness called police and Garcia-Murillo was arrested shortly after 9 p.m.

He faces an Aug. 9 pretrial. Online court records show Garcia-Murillo with drug convictions in Cassia County from this year, with most jail time suspended.

Police Say Inattentive Driving May Have Led to Fatal Crash Near Oakley

BY LAURIE WELCH
lwelch@magicvalley.com

OAKLEY • Police say inattentive driving may be the cause of the single-vehicle crash near Oakley that claimed a Rupert man on Tuesday.

According to a Cassia County Sheriff's Office report, 51-year-old Michael Dennis James Wolff died at the scene of the crash at 1250 S. Idaho Highway 27 after the 2008 International truck he was driving left the roadway for unknown reasons and overturned. The truck, registered to Suburban Propane of Twin Falls, left the west side of the roadway and struck a power pole's support wires at 8:29 a.m., blocking part of the two-lane highway until about 12:30 p.m.

A small amount of propane reportedly leaked from the truck after the crash.

Wolff was extricated from the vehicle but was not wearing a seat belt at the time of the crash, according to the sheriff's report. It remains unknown if drugs or alcohol were a factor in the crash.

Savage Pleads Not Guilty to Fighting Twin Falls Police

TIMES-NEWS

Michael Savage, 49, of Twin Falls, will face trial in Twin Falls County 5th District Court this fall on two counts of felony battery of police officers.

He pleaded not guilty during a July 5 arraignment and is scheduled for an Oct. 19 trial, expected to last three days. Savage is accused of fighting with Twin Falls officers after they made a traffic stop on Aspenwood Drive in May.

A San Jose man pleaded not guilty to felony grand theft this month in Twin Falls County 5th District Court.

Gregory Doushgounian, 27, is slated to stand trial

Doushgounian was arraigned on July 5. The trial is scheduled to last three days.

T.F. Man Busted for DUI Two Days Straight

TIMES-NEWS

A Twin Falls man was arrested for excessive driving under the influence twice in less than 17 hours this week.

William Maupin, 60, was arraigned on two separate misdemeanor charges on Tuesday in Twin Falls County 5th District Magistrate Court after he was picked up once on Monday night and again on Tuesday afternoon, just hours after bonding out on the first charge.

According to court files, Maupin was arrested shortly before 11 p.m. on Monday on the 1000 block of Blue Lakes Boulevard North. His blood-alcohol concentration was recorded at .314 — nearly three times the legal driving limit of .08. Maupin posted bail on Tuesday and was arrested at 3:45 p.m. that day, this time near the intersection of Frontier Road and Falls Avenue. His BAC was even higher this time, testing at .349.

Twin Falls police noted the short time lapse between arrests in the second report.

Online court records show a William Paul Maupin was convicted of DUI twice in Jerome County in 1993 and 2000 and once in Lincoln County in 2000.

Maupin is now held on $50,000 bond. He faces pretrial hearings on Aug. 9.

land the bridge would go on. Because the bridge would be built on private land, its construction would bypass a lot of red tape required of government entities. He said he wouldn't get any more money than the cost of an easement if the bridge went in.

Golay and Oyler originally wanted RES Americas, the company behind the 200-turbine China Mountain Wind Project, to pay for the bridge. That plan was nixed when the company determined its current plan would be more cost-effective without sacrifice to health, safety or traffic. Now, the duo wants to use the additional tax proceeds if the wind farm goes through to pay for the bridge project.

“No one’s having to reach into their own pocket to pay for it,” Golay said after he and Oyler made their pitch to the Twin Falls Highway District on Wednesday.

The bridge would nonetheless cost a pretty penny to build, and just how pretty is also a point of contention: Golay and Oyler say they have talked with local contractors and engineers and concluded a cost of $6 million; RES America says it would be closer to $16 million to bridge the creek.

Getting a public-private bond to pay for a bridge might be tricky: The Twin Falls Highway District originally intended to use taxes brought in by the proposed wind farm to maintain the roads it is already responsible for, administrator Karen Dalton said.

“One of the reasons we concrete across the nation that get enough sun to produce electricity.

“It’s a perfect time to do this, because our highway infrastructure is falling apart and our power infrastructure is falling apart,” Scott Brusaw told The AP on Wednesday. “Both of them need to be rebuilt. This is a project that combines those two.”

The technology could be made more financially viable through creative financing that includes federal and state subsidies for alternative power, tax breaks and investor-owned utilities’ need for green energy to satisfy requirements being passed individually by states like Washington, Oregon and California, he said.

Even so, transportation experts say convincing highway agencies and others responsible for big asphalt and concrete projects to shift gears will be among Solar Roadways’ biggest challenges.

Steve Albert, the director of the Western Transportation Institute at Montana State University in Bozeman, said he’s familiar with Brusaw’s work and is excited by its potential, but cautioned that highway and construction engineers are naturally risk-averse when adopting new materials that differ radically from tried-and-true asphalt.

“The big issue is, local, state and federal organizations involved in transportation are very slow to change,” Albert said. “They’re going to be real hesitant to try something that is a paradigm shift.”

Albert said he would welcome the opportunity to test Solar Roadways’ panels at his school’s transportation proving ground at a former eastern Montana Army Air Corps base — once home to pilots training for battle in World War II.

Previously, the Idaho company received $100,000 from the federal government for its startup project.

The company’s structurally engineered panels, encased in sturdy, break-proof glass and connected by underground wires, include LED lights for road markers as well as heating elements. That’s they wouldn’t be subject to damaging freeze and thaw cycles and water penetration that leave traditional asphalt roads and concrete sidewalks cracked, potholed and broken, Brusaw said.

He estimates that one mile of solar roadway could eventually power as many as 500 homes.

The panels, which would include an embedded microprocessor for real-time control and communication with those controlling the power grid, would be designed to last at least 20 years.

“And at the end of that 20 years, you don’t throw it away, you refurbish it,” Brusaw said.

He hopes that after completing this next phase — his company’s contract with the federal highway agency is due to last two years — he’ll be ready for commercial production of panels for parking lots, driveways, walkways and other surfaces in locations such as playgrounds, amusement parks, patios, bike paths and even airports.

It’s in these places where the panels will have to pass muster before Solar Roadway — and its federal financiers in Washington — will be ready to move on to highways that will require extremely robust durability standards.

“They told us, ‘We’re not going to let you start slapping them down on highways,’” Brusaw said. “They said, ‘Start with parking lots, learn your lessons and go from there.’” different groups across campus to focus on subjects like wind energy and the human body.

Jacobs, a science teacher at the Idaho Science and Technology Charter School in Blackfoot, appreciated the handmade way to measure the acidity of liquids.

“Our funding has been cut too, so this would be way cheaper to buy 100 straws than more test tubes,” she said.

I-STEM is in its second year of bringing teachers to North Idaho College in Coeur d’Alene and CSI to help them learn more about the STEM subjects and collaborate with other teachers.

The seminar started on Sunday and will end today.

Between the two campuses and another seminar that will take place next week in the Treasure Valley, around 400 teachers, administrators and presenters will take part in i-STEM.

Louis Nadelson, a researcher for i-STEM, said results from last year’s testing of teachers before and after the seminar showed that educators gained significantly more confidence in teaching the STEM concepts. This year, he is interested in measuring how the seminar affects students in the classroom.

“How will we do that? It’s a really good question because everyone has been battling how to measure students’ knowledge,” Nadelson said.

According to Change the Equation, a nonprofit that focuses on STEM concepts, only 38 percent of Idaho eighth-grade students scored at or above proficiency standards on national math scores in a 2011 report.

Nadelson said the STEM subjects are key to a student’s future and making quality decisions in careers, lifestyles and beyond.

For Mary Towler, a junior high math teacher in Idaho Falls, the week has been a way to learn how to incorporate more science activities into her classroom so the two subjects resound.

“There have been a lot of hands-on opportunities to teach us how to combine science and math,” she said. “The collaboration has been great.”

Jerome Opts Against Sponsoring Mural Project

BY BEN BOTKIN
bbotkin@magicvalley.com

JEROME • The Jerome City Council decided Tuesday that it wasn't worth the investment of taxpayer money to be a sponsor of a mural project planned for the Oop's

City Market building. It would have cost the city $500 to sponsor the project, a community effort that spun off of Operation Facelift, a revitalization program encouraging businesses throughout the Magic Valley to spruce up.

Had the city become a sponsor, its $500 would have gone toward part of the costs of project materials. The vote was 3-1, with Councilmember Dawn Soto casting the only vote of support. Council members who voted against the expenditure said they aren't against murals or improvements, but didn't think it's a fair use of taxpayer money. In other business, the council approved:

- A pay request for $287,753.48 to Schmidt Construction for ongoing work on a sewer pipe project associated with the Brockman lift station leading to Victory Lane.

- $22,000 for safety gear for nine new on-call recruits for the Jerome Fire Department. The recruits are currently in training and will be on the job in August. The gear includes helmets, gloves, boots and uniforms.

- Renewing a $17,869 agreement with Microsoft that covers the city's system of computers, servers and software.

Shoshone Sorts Out Accommodating ITD Building

BY EMILY KATSEANES
For the Times-News

SHOSHONE • With the Idaho Transportation Department looking to construct a building in Shoshone, the City Council on Tuesday debated the blueprint's proposed water solution. ITD's plans call for a six-inch pipe hookup to the city's sewer system, which is currently comprised of four-inch pipes. An upgrade to the sewer system could include larger pipes, but is not slated to begin yet.

"So the question is should we upgrade our line to meet their requirements?" City Clerk Mary Kay Bennett said. City Maintenance Supervisor Aaron Aggeler said that aside from starting the upgrade early, there are other options to meet ITD's requests.

"I talked to a few guys from the state and we had a few ideas on the table for them," Aggeler said. The council supported a proposal to hook a four-inch pipe up to the city's water system and then connect that to a six-inch pipe that would lead to the building. Aggeler said the solution would not affect water flow. In other business, the city is considering purchasing a pickup for its maintenance crew, though some controversy remains over whether the new vehicle should have four- or two-wheel drive. Though the two-wheel-drive models staff looked at are about $2,000 less than a four-wheel version, Aggeler said his crew prefers four-wheel drive for at least part of the year.

"I know if I have my choice, I'd have a four-wheel drive for the winter, but I won't complain one way or the other with a new truck," he said. Councilman Dan Pierson said he didn't mind whether the city bought a four-wheel or two-wheel as long as officials are able to act fast enough.

"I don't have any issue with getting a four-wheel drive," Pierson said. "We just need to be able to jump on it when the prices come out."

The council also learned about a change affecting its next year's budget, in the midst of planning for it. Jerome County is raising the fees for Shoshone to contract with its building inspector, from $20 per hour to $25.01.

Kimberly Break-In Suspect Changes Plea to Guilty

TIMES-NEWS

One of four men charged in connection with the break-ins of multiple Kimberly businesses this winter has changed his plea to guilty. Jesus Contreras, 18, is slated for sentencing on Aug. 22 for felony malicious injury to property after changing his plea prior to a trial that was set to begin on July 13. He, along with three others, was accused of breaking the storefront windows of Quickdraw Embroidery and Screen-printing and Tiana's Coffee House during a Dec. 5, 2010, burglary attempt. Two co-defendants, Christian Winmill, 19, of Burley, and Enrique Gonzales, 19, of Twin Falls, received withheld judgments. Zane Harman, 19, of Burley, was scheduled for hearings in April but his case has been listed as inactive. Contreras faces a maximum of five years in state prison.

T.F. Man Changes Plea in Felony Eluding Case

TIMES-NEWS

Joshua Hagins will be sentenced Sept. 6 for felony eluding police officers after entering a guilty plea on July 11. Hagins, 33, of Twin Falls, was stopped by police in mid-March for allegedly driving 90 mph on Washington Street. Police claim he only stopped when his car engine died during a pursuit. He tested at .294 for blood-alcohol concentration — more than three times the legal limit of .08 — after he was stopped and was also charged with misdemeanor driving under the influence. He faces up to five years in state prison for felony eluding. He is also slated for sentencing on the DUI on Tuesday in Twin Falls County 5th District Magistrate Court.

Calif. Man Pleads Not Guilty of Trafficking Pot

TIMES-NEWS

One of three men accused of transporting marijuana through Idaho has pleaded not guilty to trafficking. Michael McCormick, 25, of Ukiah, Calif., is expected to stand trial starting Oct. 12 for felony trafficking in marijuana and felony conspiracy. Idaho State Police arrested McCormick, Alfonso Guillen-Fierros, 34, of Wilkes, Calif., and Rafael Ayala Jr., 33, also of Ukiah, on U.S.

Highway 93 in southern Twin Falls County in late May. Troopers claim they found four pounds of pot stuffed inside a flat-screen TV box in the trunk of a car. According to the police report, McCormick told troopers he was taking the drugs to Pocatello. McCormick entered his plea on July 11. Guillen-Fierros' arraignment is set for Monday, while Ayala's arraignment is scheduled for Sept. 12.

Trial Set for Man Accused of Plotting Pharmacy Burglary

TIMES-NEWS

One of two men accused of planning to burglarize a Twin Falls pharmacy has pleaded not guilty to felony conspiracy. Jon Bellus, 19, of Twin Falls, is scheduled for a Sept. 27 trial after entering his plea on July 12. He and Ramon Leon Garcia were arrested in May after Twin Falls police stopped them and one other man. Police claim they found the trio dressed all in black and with stocking caps, handcuffs, three pairs of latex gloves, tools and a stun gun in their vehicle. Garcia pleaded not guilty in late June and is also slated to stand trial on Sept. 27.

Crapo & Co. May Have Solved Debt Limit Impasse

Tuesday was a very good day for Idaho Republican Sen. Mike Crapo. President Obama, a Democrat, gave his endorsement to a deficit reduction plan offered by a bipartisan group of six senators that includes Crapo, urging congressional leaders to use that blueprint as the basis for a bill he can sign into law before the Aug. 2 debt limit deadline.

Obama acknowledged that his backing of the “Gang of Six” proposal “doesn’t get us out of the House of Representatives” and “doesn’t get us out of the Senate” and cautioned “there are still going to be a lot of difficult negotiations” before the plan could be approved.

But the president’s backing seemed to be a potential breakthrough.

He called the plan “a very significant step” because “Democratic senators acknowledge that we’ve got to deal with our long-term debt problems that arise out of our various entitlement programs” and Republican senators “acknowledge that revenues will have to be part of a balanced package that makes sure that nobody is disproportionately hurt” from reducing future budget deficits.

The Gang of Six — Crapo; Sen. Tom Coburn, R-Okla.; Sen. Saxby Chambliss, R-Ga.; Sen. Mark Warner, D-Va.; Sen. Dick Durbin, D-Ill., and Sen. Kent Conrad, D-N.D. — is proposing draconian changes in the way the federal government does business. Their plan includes:

- Cutting more than $4 trillion over the coming decade — including up to $500 billion in cuts from federal health care programs.
- Reducing $1 trillion tax breaks on mortgage interest, higher-cost health plans, charitable deductions, retirement savings like individual retirement accounts and tax-free savings accounts known as 401(k)s, and tax credits for families with children.
- Capping Cabinet agency budgets for four years.
- Curbing Social Security benefits by moving to a lower inflation adjustment for annual cost-of-living updates.
- Lowering income tax rates to a bottom rate of 8-12 percent; a middle rate of 14-22 percent; and a top rate of 23-29 percent — to replace the current system that has a bottom rate of 10 percent, with five additional rates topping out at 35 percent. The corporate tax rate is cut from 35 percent to as low as 23 percent.
- Overhauling programs like Medicare, Social Security and farm subsidies.

Conventional wisdom says a measure so dramatic could never pass Congress. But these are extraordinary times.

If the federal government defaults on its obligations on Aug. 2 because Congress fails to raise the debt ceiling, it will harm every American.

Crapo, a member of Obama’s deficit reduction commission, has stayed the course on debt reduction, not only by sticking to his principles but by listening to what the Democrats have to say.

“I think we have the most powerful proposal on the table right now in terms of having the votes to get passed,” he said Tuesday.

House Republicans have said they would not support any plan that increases taxes. But Crapo said the Gang of Six plan would reduce taxes by $1.5 trillion. Reducing the rates while cutting out the tax breaks would increase federal revenues and balance the plan between spending and revenues enough to get Democrats on board.

“It will produce far more taxes by growing the economy,” Crapo said.

It’s an innovative and courageous plan. Let’s hope there’s enough courage in Congress to give it a fair hearing.

“Our bloated and obese federal budget needs a healthy and balanced diet, one that trims the fat of overspending and grows the muscle of our nation’s economy.”

Republicans Have Kicked Reagan to the Curb

After he switched to the Republican Party in 1962, Ronald Reagan famously quipped: “I didn’t leave the Democratic Party. The party left me.”

Now, the Republican Party is doing the same thing to him — and Democrats are happy to take Reagan back.

At Tuesday morning’s meeting of the House Democrats, caucus chairman John Larson rallied his colleagues for the day’s debt-limit debate by playing an audio recording of the 40th president.

“Congress consistently brings the government to the edge of default before facing its responsibility,” Reagan says in the clip. “This brinkmanship threatens the holders of government bonds and those who rely on Social Security and veterans benefits. Interest rates would skyrocket, instability would occur in financial markets, ceiling during his presidency.

Tea Party Republicans say they would sooner default on the national debt than raise taxes; Reagan agreed to raise taxes 11 times.

Tea Party Republicans, in “cut, cap and balance” legislation on the House floor Tuesday, voted to cut government spending permanently to 18 percent of gross domestic product; under Reagan, spending was as high as 23.5 percent and never below 21.3 percent of GDP.

That same legislation would take federal spending down to a level last seen in 1966, before Medicare was fully up and running; Reagan in 1988 signed a major expansion of Medicare.

But while Reagan nostalgia endures, a number of Republicans have begun to admit the obvious: The Gipper would no longer be welcome on the GOP team. Most recently, Rep. Duncan Hunter

Jr. of California called Reagan a “moderate former liberal . . . who would never be elected today in my opinion.” This spring, Mike Huckabee judged that “Ronald Reagan would have a very difficult, if not impossible time being nominated in this atmosphere,” pointing out that Reagan “raises taxes as governor, he made deals with Democrats, he compromised on things in order to move the ball down the field.”

During the debt-limit debate, a procession of Democrats — Vermont’s Peter Welch, Maryland’s Chris Van Hollen, New York’s Paul Tonko, Texas’ Sheila Jackson Lee and Gene Green — claimed Reagan’s support for their position. Reagan is “revered by many Democrats,” said Welch, who praised Reagan for fighting “the absurd notion that America had an option when it came to paying our bills.

Half a century after he left the party, the Gipper is winning one for the Democrats.

Default Would Harm Homeowners, Businesses

It’s easy to understand why the government will have more trouble borrowing if it fails to pay its debts, or even has a difficult time paying its debts. It’s a bit harder to see why ordinary Americans, the city of Pittsburgh, hospitals in Iowa, and medium-sized corporations will have more trouble borrowing. But they will. And their trouble borrowing is the main channels through which a default, or even something too close to it for the market’s comfort, could deal a body blow to the economy.

On Wednesday, Moody’s warned it was putting the U.S. government credit rating on review for a downgrade. But they didn’t stop there. Another 7,000 debt products that are “directly linked to the U.S. government or are otherwise vulnerable to sovereign risk” were also put on review for a possible downgrade. That’s about $130 billion worth of directly reliant on Treasury paying or some other direct payment,” she says. “If those bonds don’t receive their payment, they have no other source of revenue!” So down they go.

Then there’s the “indirectly linked” debt. That’s debt from state government, local governments, hospitals, universities and other institutions that rely, in some way or another, on payments from the federal government. If Medicaid stops paying its bills, all the hospitals that rely on Medicaid’s payments become less creditworthy. If we stop funding Pell grants, then all the universities that enroll students who pay using financial aid become less creditworthy. And since the federal government passes one-fifth of its revenues through to the states, and the states pass those revenues through to cities, if the federal government stops paying its bills, all states and all cities are suddenly in worse financial shape, which will make it harder for them to get loans.

And then there’s everything else. Mortgages. Credit cards. Loans that businesses take out to expand. Much of the debt in the American economy, and in fact globally, is “benchmark” to Treasury debt.

This is how a default gets into the rest of the economy: It takes everything the financial markets thought they could know and rely on and upends it. It then shuts off credit, or makes it prohibitively expensive, for nearly every participant in the economy, from states and cities to hospitals and universities to homebuyers and credit-card applicants. That, in turn, freezes all of their activity, which destabilizes everyone who relies on them, which then destabilizes financial markets further, and so on.

Ex-Bellevue Mayor Pleads Guilty to Felony DUI

KETCHUM (AP) • A southern Idaho man convicted twice of misdemeanor drunken driving has now pleaded guilty to a felony DUI in Blaine County, where he served as Bellevue’s mayor for five years before resigning in June 2010.

The Idaho Mountain Express reports Jon Anderson faces up to 10 years in prison at his August sentencing.

Police say Anderson was pulled over last September by a deputy who knew his driver’s license was suspended because of a pending DUI charge in nearby Lincoln County. Anderson pleaded guilty to the Lincoln County misdemeanor on Nov. 24, according to court records.

He had a previous 2005 misdemeanor DUI conviction in Blaine County.

A driver with two prior DUI convictions within a 10-year span can be charged with a felony, under state law.

Idaho Lottery reports record payout to state

BOISE (AP) • The Idaho Lottery says it’s turning $37 million over to the state this year for its annual profit payout.

That’s the biggest payout since the Idaho Lottery started in 1989.

The proceeds of the Idaho Lottery are designated to be split evenly between the state Department of Education’s public school building account and the state building fund, but three years ago state lawmakers enacted a five-year shift that also sends a portion of the proceeds to a fund that helps match school bond payments.

Last year, the profit payout, or dividend, was $36.5 million.

The Spokesman-Review reports that Gov. C. L. “Butch” Otter welcomed the payout on Tuesday, saying every dollar that the lottery contributes is a dollar that doesn’t have to come from taxpayers.

Pocatello, Student Spar over Prayer in Public

POCATELLO (AP) • Pocatello officials and the leader of an Idaho State University student organization for atheists and agnostics say they expect to reach an agreement soon on the city council’s practice of starting meetings with prayer.

ISU student James Harless, the president and founder of the group Free Thinkers, Atheists and Agnostics for Religious Tolerance, filed a complaint with the city over the council’s practice of starting every meeting with an invocation that often comes in the form of a prayer.

Mayor Brian Blad told the Idaho State Journal that he and other city leaders believe the invocation is legal, and anyone in the community can offer to lead it. But Harless claimed legal opinions back his position, and both sides believe the issue can be resolved within a month.

“The council still agrees it’s something the community wants to do. Anybody who would like to can step up and volunteer to do it,” Blad said. “We represent everybody and all. I don’t care what religious belief you are, and if you aren’t at all. As long as you want to do an uplifting thought, that’s an invocation.”

Even Harless has accepted an invitation to lead the invocation, Blad said.

But Harless stressed that while he accepted the city’s gesture of good faith, he didn’t invoke anything but the Constitution.

“I quoted some Founding Fathers. I quoted some laws. I did bring to light that anybody who gets up and gives an invocation, the courts consider them to be speaking for the body which they are addressing,” Harless said.

Monica Hopkins, executive director of the ACLU of Idaho, said her organization is investigating a complaint filed by Harless about the invocations. But she said that right now, the ACLU of Idaho is not seeking any action against Pocatello’s city council.

Judge Rules Boise Must Release Records over Cleaning Dustup

BOISE (AP) • A judge has ordered the city of Boise to turn over documents related to the termination of a $368,000 contract with a cleaning company.

Clearview Cleaning Services owner Sylvia Hampel filed a complaint in April against the city in Idaho’s 4th District Court, claiming a contract for her company’s services was canceled without explanation.

Boise city officials canceled the contract Feb. 28, a day before Hampel’s company was scheduled to start cleaning city hall, public libraries, the police department and other facilities, the Idaho Statesman reported. Hampel sued city officials after they refused a public records request seeking more information about the contract termination.

The city claimed the documents were exempt from public disclosure and pertained to a “law enforcement investigation.”

In a ruling issued Friday, 4th District Judge Thomas Neville said the emails in question were not exempt.

“The city has held out all 10 of these documents as investigatory records of an active criminal investigation, and a review of the plain language of seven of the documents reveals that this is simply not the case,” Neville wrote in his ruling.

The judge ordered the city to turn over the 10 emails to Hampel.

In one of the emails, the Boise Police Department wrote city officials about the newly contracted cleaning crew and said the agency had opened an investigation. But the subject of the police inquiry was redacted from the email turned over to Hampel.

Skull Discovered at Pearl Harbor

HONOLULU (AP) • An excavation crew recently made a startling discovery at the bottom of Pearl Harbor when it unearthed a skull that archeologists suspect is from a Japanese pilot who died in the historic attack on Dec. 7, 1941.

Archaeologist Jeff Fong of the Naval Facilities Engineering Command Pacific described the discovery to The Associated Press and the efforts under way to identify the skull. He said the early analysis has made him “75 percent sure” that the skull belongs to a Japanese pilot.

He did not provide specifics about what archaeologists have learned about the skull, but said it was not from one of Hawaii’s ancient burial sites. They also contacted local police and ruled out the possibility that it’s from an active missing person case, said Denise Emsley, public affairs officer for the Naval Facilities Engineering Command Hawaii, which was being inundated with media calls Wednesday about the skull from international news organizations.

The items found with the skull, which was determined not to be from a Native Hawaiian, provided some clues: forks, scraps of metal and a Coca-Cola bottle Fong said researchers have determined was from the 1940s.

Fifty-five Japanese air- men were killed and 29 of their aircraft were shot down in the attack, compared with the 2,400 U.S. service members who died.

Authorities: 3 Swept Over Yosemite Falls Presumed Dead

A man and a woman crossed a metal barricade above the 317-foot Vernal Fall on Tuesday, making their way over slick granite to a rock in the middle of the swift Merced River.

The woman slipped. The man reached for her and fell in. Another man in their group of about 10 tried to help but fell into the water as well. Other hikers, including several children in their group, could only watch as the rushing water swept all three students over the edge.

The couple who were on the rock hugged each other tightly as they disappeared.

“Everyone was screaming,” witness Jake Bibee said. “People were praying. What I will take away with me forever is the look on that grown man’s face as he was floating down that river knowing he was going to die and nobody could help them.”

Signs in several languages warn people not to cross the barricade, and Bibee said other hikers had shouted that it wasn’t safe to go into the rushing river.

The three students are presumed dead; rescuers continued searching for their bodies Wednesday. The Yosemite Search and Rescue unit identified them as Hormiz David, 22, of Modesto; Ninos Yacoub, 27, of Turlock; and Ramina Badal, 21, of Manteca.

The victims were part of a close-knit community of Christians from the Middle East who have been settling in California’s Central Valley during the past century.

They were members of the Mar Gewargis Parish in Ceres, where a prayer service was planned Wednesday evening.

“It’s very shocking to our community,” said the Rev. Auchana Kanoun, who leads the parish.

The top of Vernal Fall is always treacherous, and is especially so this year because of the record snowmelt now under way.

A metal barricade separates hikers from the river where it pools before crashing over the precipice.

“For 40-Years, I was tortured with unbearable indigestion”

Confessions of an acid reflux victim

“And How I BEAT the indigestion Nightmare that Almost Killed Me!”

By Ralph Burns;
“Former” acid reflux sufferer

Here’s My Story: I’ve Suffered With Acid Reflux for Almost 40 Years Now. Unless you experience it; you can’t imagine how horrible it is. Every time I ate spicy foods I would get what I called "ROT GUT". Like something was rotting in my stomach. But now I can eat anything... No matter how spicy. Even if I never could before.

Let me explain...

For the better part of my life; I purposely avoided a lot of foods. Especially ones with even a tiny bit of seasoning. Because if I didn't, I'd experience a burning sensation through my esophagus— like somebody poured hot lead or battery acid down my throat. Add to that, those disgusting "mini-throw ups" and I was in "indigestion hell".

"I was beside myself. What was I gonna do? Keep taking the pills, or suffer with problems that could ultimately be my demise".

Doctors put me on all sorts of antacid remedies. But nothing worked. Or if they did, it would only be for a brief period. And then boom! My nightmare would return.

Sometimes, I felt like I was dying. The pain was unbearable and nothing could make it stop.

But then my wife, who occasionally suffered with the same problem; gave me one of her prescription acid blockers. It was a miracle. I felt like I could live again. Because before that, I was just miserable. I wanted to kill myself. But thankfully, it worked, and worked well.

I felt great, until about one year ago; when I read an FDA warning that scared the heck out of me. It went something like this...

FDA WARNING! Using proton pump inhibitors (PPIs) on a long term basis, increases your risk of hip, bone and spinal fractures.

That's a particular concern to me, since many acid blockers are PPI's. I've gone through two back surgeries and bilateral hip replacements. I had to ask myself, could PPI's have been responsible for my medical woes? After all...

“The Recommended Treatment for Prilosec®, Prevacid® and Other PPI's is Only 14-DAYS, I Took Them for 14 YEARS!”

I was “between a rock and a hard place”. Stop using the PPIs and I'm a “dead man in the water”. It would be unbearable. I wouldn't be able to eat anything. I'd have to go on a water diet.

But that FDA warning was scary. I knew I had to stop or else risk developing spinal stenosis. My mother had that. And I watched her die a horrible death. Her spine just fractured. It was the worst death. She didn't deserve that. And neither do I.

I had to quit. So I stopped taking PPI's for a day or so. But my indigestion was worse than ever. I would rather take the chance of a spinal fracture than to live like that again. I tried everything. Even started using home remedies like Apple cider vinegar. But it just felt like I was pouring even more acid down my throat.

63-year old Ralph Burns enjoying a spicy-hot portion of Lobster Fra Diavolo. Just 15-Minutes after taking AloeCure®

“Every time I ate something that didn't agree with me... I'd get what I called ‘Rot Gut’ — like my stomach was rotting out!”

Then one day at dinner, a friend of mine said "why don't you try an aloe drink?" I said "aloe drink"? Jeez. That doesn't sound good at all!" The next day he brought me a case of something called AloeCure®. I was skeptical, but I was desperate! So instead of being an ingrate I decided to try it.

I was shocked! AloeCure®. Tasted pretty good too. It has a pleasant grape flavor that I actually enjoy drinking. I decided to experiment. I stopped taking the PPI's altogether and replaced it with a daily diet of AloeCure®. Then something remarkable happened... NOTHING! Not even the slightest hint of indigestion.

And here’s the best part. The next day we had Italian food — my worst enemy. But for the first time in 40 years I didn't get indigestion without relying on prescription or OTC pills and tablets. Finally, I just didn’t need them anymore!

I was so thrilled; I wrote the AloeCure® company to tell them how amazing their product is. They thanked me, and asked me to tell my story... The story that changed my life. I said “Sure, but only if you send me a hefty supply of AloeCure®. I just can't live without it.”

But don't believe me. You have to try this stuff for yourself. I recommend AloeCure® to anyone who suffers with the same problem I did. It gives you immediate relief. You'll be grateful you did. I sure am. It's the best thing that's happened to me in a long, long time.

GOP Presidential Candidates Join Twitter Debate

BY KEN TOMAS
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON • You think presidential debates are challenging? Try limiting your answers to 140 characters. Six Republican presidential hopefuls traded tweets in the first presidential debate conducted through Twitter on Wednesday, outlining their agendas across the popular social media service.

In brief responses that buzzed across cyberspace, the GOP field challenged President Barack Obama's approaches to the ongoing debate over the debt ceiling, job creation and the U.S. involvement in Libya. Republican candidates criticized Obama's handling of the economy and efforts to reform health care, while using the medium to share links to introductory videos and websites.

"Obama failed. With ur help we can return the people's voice to the WH, restore fiscal sanity & make Obama a 1 term president," said Minnesota Rep. Michele Bachmann, reflecting the clipped jargon commonly found on Twitter.

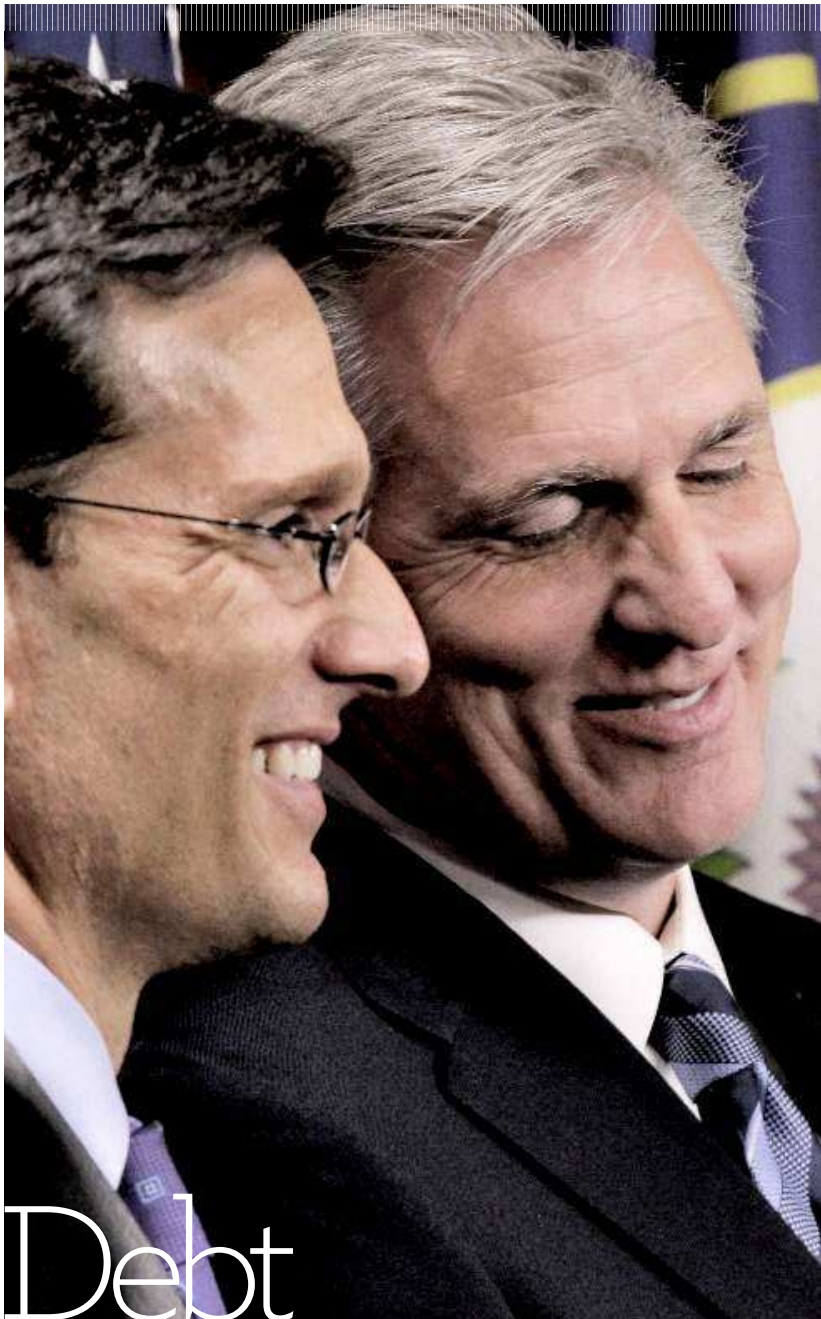

Obama held a town hall forum through Twitter earlier this month, answering questions from followers and promoting his agenda. Politicians and campaigns have taken to the social media service because it has become increasingly popular with voters and gives lawmakers the chance to connect directly with their constituents.

While televised debates can lead to longwinded answers, the Twitter forum places a premium on being terse. Asked whether a president can create jobs without expanding the role of the federal government, former Pennsylvania Sen. Rick Santorum tweeted: "The federal govt kills jobs!" Former New Mexico Gov. Gary Johnson, responding to a question on whether the U.S. should have gone into Libya, tweeted: "Absolutely not" and then followed up: "Iraq, Afghanistan, Libya — Get out now!"

Addressing the economy, Georgia businessman Herman Cain told followers: "Government doesn't create jobs. Businesses create jobs. Government needs to get out the way."

Former House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., offered a punchy economic plan: "Control spending. Put Americans back to work. Get back to a balanced budget as we did when I was Speaker." Gingrich was one of several candidates to post a link to his introductory video and later invited followers with more questions to go to his Google+ Hangout.

Michigan Rep. Thaddeus McCotter, who recently entered the Republican field, answered several questions through multiple tweets. Asked about the role of the tea party in next year's election, McCotter said its role "remains 2 be determined — not by its members — but by the GOP's actions."

Debt Showdown If debt deal near, Obama would OK stopgap measure

BY BEN FELLER
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Running out of time, President Barack Obama softened his stand and signaled Wednesday he would back a short-term deal to prevent a disastrous financial default on Aug. 2, but only if a larger and still elusive deficit-cutting agreement was essentially in place. He called lawmakers to the White House in a scramble to find enough votes from both Republicans and his own party.

The president, pushing for a big compromise that would cut the nation's budget deficit and extend the government's tapped-out borrowing power, had threatened to veto any stopgap expansion of the nation's debt limit. He even challenged House Majority Leader Eric Cantor not to call his bluff about it in one confrontational moment last week.

Obama's now-calibrated position, offered by spokesman Jay Carney, reflected the reality: that leaders are nearly out of time to head off unprecedented trouble. Carney said if a divided Congress and the White House can agree on a significant deal, Obama would accept a "very short-term extension" of the debt limit to let bigger legislation work its way through Congress.

Even a few days matters, given the stakes. The government will exhaust its ability to borrow money and pay its bills come Aug. 2, an outcome that could sink the country back into recession, halt Social Security checks and other payments, send interest rates higher and erode the creditworthiness of the richest nation on earth.

Leopard injures 11.

SERBIA ARRESTS FUGITIVE ON WAR CRIMES CHARGES

BELGRADE, Serbia • Serbia on Wednesday arrested former Serbian Croat leader Goran Hadzic, the last fugitive wanted by the United Nations war crimes tribunal in The Hague, ending a manhunt that had lasted more than a decade.

"With this, Serbia has completed all of the most difficult chapters in cooperation with The Hague tribunal," Serbian President Boris Tadic told a press conference. "That cooperation was a problem in our state policies."

Hadzic, 52, now faces swift transfer to the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia in a procedure expected to last three to seven days, including a three-day appeal deadline against an extradition decision.

Heat 'Dome' Makes Much of U.S. Feel Like Steam Bath

BY TAMMY WEBBER
Associated Press

CHICAGO • If the extreme heat and humidity lingering over much of the nation feels like a steam bath, it's because the same principles are at work in the atmosphere.

Vast amounts of warmth and moisture have become trapped under a huge "heat dome," bringing record-breaking temperatures and thick, topical air to scores of cities from the Plains to the Ohio Valley. Now the system is moving east to spread the misery to some of the country's most densely populated areas through the weekend.

With temperatures hovering around 100, Jeff Grembocki and other construction workers prepared Wednesday to pour concrete for a walkway improvement project near downtown Kansas City. Empty Gatorade bottles lay strewn across their job site.

Grembocki said the heat saps his energy so much that he falls asleep soon after getting home. He only rouses for a couple of hours to watch TV before going back to bed.

"The air conditioning, when it hits you, it's all you can do to stay awake," he said.

The heat dome forms when a high pressure system develops in the upper atmosphere, causing the air below it to sink and compress because there's more weight on top. That raises temperatures in the lower atmosphere, said Eli Jacks, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service in Silver Spring, Md.

The dome of high pressure also pushes the jet stream and its drier, cooler air, farther north — it's now well into Canada — while hot, humid air from the Gulf of Mexico circulates clockwise around the dome, traveling farther inland than normal.

Combined with generally clear skies and the sun's higher summertime angle, "it gets really hot," Jacks said.

The cruel result: eye-popping heat index readings measuring temperature combined with humidity. In Newton, Iowa, it was 98 degrees Wednesday with a heat index that made it feel like 115. A day earlier, Newton's heat index hit 129 degrees.

In Indianapolis, the thermometer read 98 degrees but it felt like almost 114. Chicago's Midway Airport recorded a high of 99 degrees, which felt like 108. Humidity levels in some of the hottest cities ranged from 40 to 60 percent.

The formation of the dome also explains why conditions in, say, North Dakota aren't much different this week than in Houston. The big difference is that people in Houston are accustomed to hot weather. Those in the north are not.

"In places where the highest temperature you ever expect is in the 80s and you're at 102, there are big health concerns," because fewer people have air conditioning or fans, Jacks said. "Heat is the No. 1 killer out of all weather hazards."

What's more, because of the humidity, even nighttime brings little relief.

Humidity makes the weather feel far hotter because the body, which cools itself by perspiring, has to work harder when the air is already moist.

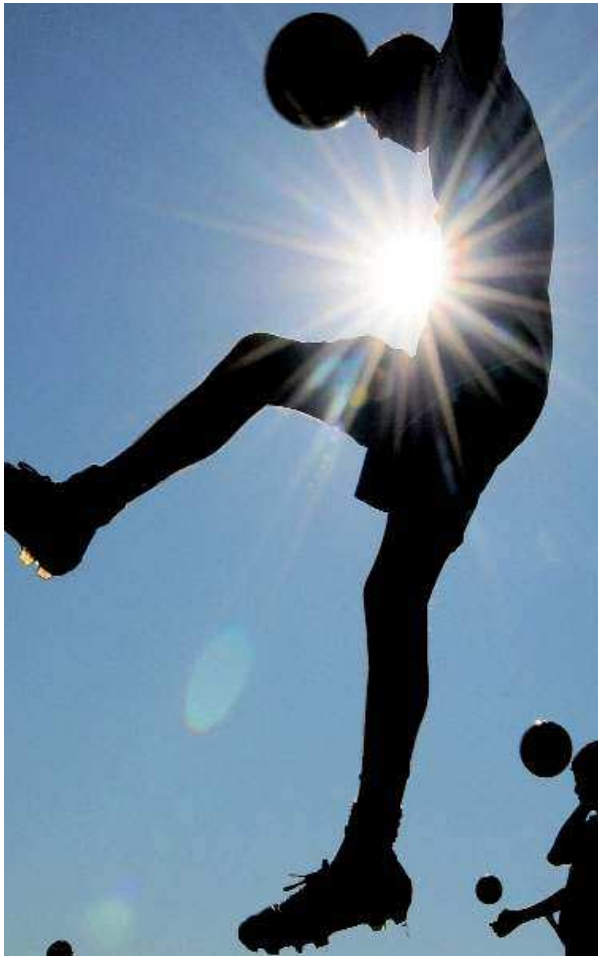

"It's harder to cool down," said Jan-nie Ferrell, a National Weather Service meteorologist.

The sweltering weather served to make life even more uncomfortable for people displaced by the flooding of the Souris River in Minot, N.D., where about 150 people are living in a tent city outside the an ice rink.

"The RVs all have air conditioners, but the tent folks have been moving their tents around trying to find shade," said Chuck Emery, manager of the Maysa Arena. The rink's air-conditioned basement has been converted into a kennel for campers' pets.

Although heat domes are not rare, this one is unusually large and long-lasting. It began three days ago and may persist for seven to 10 days in some locations, meteorologists said.

Serbia

Serbia has been under huge pressure to bring war crime suspects to justice ever since the regime of Slobodan Milosevic fell in 2000.

While most defendants turned themselves in and some were arrested, the issue remained open until the capture of Hadzic and, only in May, Ratko Mladic, the Serb general accused of genocide in Bosnia.

As arresting ICTY fugitives was a key demand of the European Union to let the Balkan country progress on its membership application, the bloc's leaders quickly welcomed Hadzic's capture.

"This is a further important step for Serbia in realizing its European perspective and equally crucial for international justice," European Commission President Jose Manuel Barroso, EU President Herman Van Rompuy and EU foreign policy chief Catherine Ashton said in a joint statement.

Dutch Foreign Minister Uri Rosenthal — whose country pushed for a tough EU line on ICTY arrests — recognized that "Serbia has acted according to its responsibility," but made no promises on agreeing to Serbia obtaining EU candidate status and starting accession talks.

"The Netherlands will treat Serbia as any other country aspiring to become a member of the EU. That means it will have to fulfill the conditions with regard to good governance, economy and democracy," Rosenthal said in a statement.

ICTY Chief Prosecutor Serge Brammertz said Hadzic's arrest "is an important milestone in the tribunal's history," which will allow it to "complete its work."

The U.N. court was initially meant to complete all its trials by 2008, but due to late arrests and procedural delays it acknowledged in May that its ongoing court cases will run until mid-2014.

Mladic and Hadzic's trials are expected to further delay the ICTY's closure.

Hadzic was one of the leaders of a Serb insurgency in Croatia from 1991 to 1995, in the wake of the disintegration of the Yugoslav federation.

Riding a surge of nationalism in the late 1980s and early 1990s, he rose from working as a clerk in a factory warehouse to become prime minister and president of a self-proclaimed Serb republic in Croatia from 1991 to 1993.

During his tenure in office, ethnic Serbs, backed by Slobodan Milosevic's regime in Belgrade, gained control over one-third of Croatian territory.

The ICTY wants him on charges of crimes against humanity and violations of the laws or customs of war targeting non-Serbs in areas under Serb control in Croatia.

His indictment contains 14 counts, including persecution; extermination and murder; imprisonment, torture, inhumane acts and cruel treatment; deportation and forcible transfer; and wanton destruction, plunder of private and public property.

END OF MINN SHUTDOWN BRINGS RELIEF, FRUSTRATION

Minnesota's state government shutdown ended Wednesday after 20 days, millions in lost revenue and frustration on the part of residents and politicians. The stoppage made the state a national example of political dysfunction, a small-scale mirror of the dispute in Washington over whether to raise the debt ceiling. But while federal lawmakers appeared close to a deal to slash spending, no such progress was made in Minnesota, where the budget was widely panned for just putting the problems off until later.

Heat

On Wednesday, it had begun moving out of Texas and the Dakotas, headed east and northeast. By Thursday, temperatures in Washington were forecast to hit 100, and the heat could linger for days along the Atlantic seaboard.

Thunderstorms can develop around the perimeter of the dome — called the "ring of fire" — bringing temporary relief to some areas. But this dome is so large that the heat rebuilds quickly, said Kevin Birk, a National Weather Service meteorologist in Illinois.

No widespread deaths have been reported, but the heat sent dozens of people to hospitals and disrupted many routine activities.

As hot air blew over the cooler waters of Lake Michigan on Tuesday, a thick fog shrouded many of Chicago's beaches. Lifeguards had to turn away swimmers because they could not see beyond the water's edge.

A Veterans Affairs hospital in Fargo, N.D., had to reschedule more than 50 surgeries after cooling systems struggled to keep up with the weather. Some floors and other surfaces became wet, potentially compromising the sterile environment needed to operate.

In Detroit, more than 70 schools without air conditioning were to close Wednesday afternoon. Power outages and mechanical problems closed several others.

Relief is on the way. Cooler air should begin moving into the Plains states this weekend, as a strong pool of air from the jet stream begins to push hot air out of the way in the Dakotas and into Minnesota before making its way east.

By Monday, temperatures in many places will drop into the mid-80s, although cities in the East could still be sweltering.

"This is really an exceptional event, I think it's fair to say ... in terms of scope and duration," Jacks said.

Back in Kansas City, the construction crew has been starting around 5:30 a.m. to get as much work done before the hottest hours of the day.

Crew member Dan Danuser said he guzzles plenty of water while on the job. When he gets home, he retreats to a dark room.

"It's hard with all the asphalt and concrete around," Danuser said. "It's different when you are out on grass and open areas. But when you get in town, there is no breeze, and the asphalt just makes everything hotter."

Debt

of the Republican-run House.

His challenge with fellow Democrats is to persuade them to accept changes to the popular entitlement programs of Medicare and Social Security. With Republicans, Obama is slamming into opposition from conservatives who refuse to consider tax increases. Obama wants a mixed approach of higher taxes on the wealthy and spending cuts that share the pain.

"There is still time to do something significant," Carney said, urging compromise.

Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid of Nevada said Tuesday that the head of the Congressional Budget Office has told him it could take the scorekeeping agency two weeks to come up with an official cost estimate for even a relatively modest package of spending cuts.

Parliamentary experts say that if the Senate takes up the debt limit measure this Saturday, it could take more than a week, until Monday, Aug. 1, to pass the measure through the Senate, give the House time to consider it and make changes and then gain Senate approval one more time.

The Obama administration and Congress are also working on a backup plan to increase the debt limit if no big plan can be reached. It would allow Obama to raise the ceiling on his own unless overridden by Congress. Yet many House Republicans loathe that idea and have pledged to vote against it, raising doubts about how tenable even the fallback choice is.

That plan is the result of work by the Democratic and Republican leaders of the Senate, Reid of Nevada and Mitch McConnell of Kentucky.

Obama is trying to seize on momentum from a proposal from a bipartisan "Gang of Six" senators that would cut the deficit by almost $4 trillion but lacks many specifics.

A House Democratic aide familiar with the meeting said House Democrats stand with Obama for a big bargain but without hurting seniors through cuts to Social Security, Medicare and Medicaid.

Keeping details tight as time grows sensitive, the White House provided no press coverage of either meeting.

LEOPARD INJURES 11 PEOPLE IN INDIA BEFORE DYING

KOLKATA, India • A leopard that mauled 11 people in a fierce showdown with Indian villagers has died of knife wounds after being captured.

The snarling adult, male leopard leapt at locals and forest officials as they tried to drive it into a wildlife sanctuary in West Bengal state.

Forest official Dharma Dev Rai says villagers used knives, stones and batons to beat back the cat. It injured six villagers, a policeman and four forest guards before being hit with a tranquilizer gun Tuesday.

The cat died within hours, and a post mortem is being conducted. It happened near Siliguri, about 373 miles (600 kilometers) from Kolkata.

The people are recovering from their injuries, mostly swipes from the cat's claws.

Leopards are protected in India though more are straying into villages for food.

Debt Concerns Overcome Boost from Apple, Others

NEW YORK (AP) • Stocks edged lower Wednesday, one day after the Dow Jones industrial average had its best day this year. Analysts say concerns about lifting the U.S. debt limit overshadowed strong earnings from Apple and a slew of new deals. Apple Inc. rose 2.7 percent Wednesday after the company's income doubled last quarter. Sales of Apple's iPhones quadrupled in Asia. The stock of Zillow, a real estate website, jumped 79 percent in its first day of trading. Zillow's initial public offering priced at $20 late Tuesday. The Dow Jones industrial average fell 15.51 points, or 0.1 percent, to close at 12,571.91. The S&P 500 index dropped 0.89 point to 1,325.84.

Scott Rozman shows his Bank of America card July 12 in Guttenberg, N.J. Rozman says he plans on switching banks because of Bank of America's fees.

REVILED BANK OF AMERICA TRIES TO CHANGE IMAGE

HACKENSACK, N.J. • Luis Morales, owner of Andre's Wine and Spirits in Leonia, N.J., opened a business checking account at the Bank of America branch across the street from the shop when he acquired the business three years ago. Last year he closed the account in a huff and switched to another bank. "Too many fees," he said, explaining the move. An unexpected 15-cents per-transaction charge and an unexplained "point of service fee" were the deal breakers, Morales said.

Scott Rozman can sympathize. The Guttenberg, N.J., resident, a career consultant and life coach, said he is pulling his money out of the bank over what he calls a "sneaky" $3 check-imaging fee that showed up on a statement earlier this year. A teller told him he had to "opt out" of the service to avoid the fee that went into effect in January. "I said, 'I never opted in. Opt me out. Now?'" The teller removed the fee, but the next month it was on his statement again, he said. "They really want to nickel-and-dime you to death," Rozman said. Fees and mortgage servicing dysfunction amid the nation's worst-ever foreclosure crisis have helped make the Charlotte, N.C.-based bank, the nation's largest, among the most reviled. The J.D. Power and Associates Customer Satisfaction Index ranked Bank of America 32nd among 33 banks this year in the mid-Atlantic region. A report earlier this month by the Atlantic magazine said Bank of America ranks among the "19 most-hated companies" based on a survey by the American Customer Satisfaction Index. "When you have approximately 58

"...it's our priority to resolve any issue to our customers' satisfaction while trying to prevent those issues from arising in the first place."

million consumer and small-business relationships, it's impossible to prevent all problems from happening," said spokesman T.J. Crawford. "That being said, it's our priority to resolve any issue to our customers' satisfaction while trying to prevent those issues from arising in the first place." Crawford said customers receive fee disclosures when they open accounts and are notified in advance when fees change. Notices alerting customers of the $3 check-imaging fee were sent in September, he said. The company broke with the industry last year and voluntarily eliminated lucrative overdraft protection fees on debit card point-of-sale transactions, said consumer advocate Ed Mierzwinski, director of U.S. Public Interest Research Group. Such fees could add up to hundreds of dollars before customers knew they were overdrawn.

"They are among the leaders in eliminating what most consumer advocates believe to be the worst deposit account fee ever, the standard overdraft protection fee," he said. "They were horrible for many years, but we were glad they came along."

In an effort at greater customer outreach, the bank last week issued its first "Social Responsibility Report" that outlined 2010 accomplishments in community development lending, charitable giving and increased "fairness and transparency" in products and services. Bank of America agreed in February to pay $410 million to about 1 million consumers to settle complaints it manipulated the order of checks to maximize those penalty charges. But Mierzwinski also said the company remains among the leaders in making it more difficult to avoid paying checking account fees. Meanwhile, thousands of homeowners are suing Bank of America for improperly "robo-signing" foreclosure filings and for failing to modify loans under the rules set down by the federal government's Home Affordable Modification Program (HAMP).

Jerome Affordable Housing Project Gets Facelift

Windwood Apartments, at 921 S. Davis St. in Jerome, will hold a ribbon cutting at 2:30 p.m. today.

An affordable housing project in Jerome has received a complete overhaul and facelift that will keep the 30-unit apartment complex in the city for another 50 years.

The improvements to Windwood Apartments come through a new owner, Northwest Real Estate Capital Corp. of Boise, a non-profit that specializes in affordable housing.

It's the culmination of four years of planning for the company, which purchased the complex in 2010. The apartment complex will continue to offer rent-subsidized housing for low-income families. The building's rehabilitation is extensive. It includes new roofs, siding, windows and sliding doors, said Robert Feldmann, president of CSDI Construction, Inc., the Boise contractor who oversaw the project. On the interior, the work includes new paint, flooring, cabinets and fixtures, Feldmann said. NWRECC got its loan package from Utah Community Reinvestment Corp. Raquel Guglielmetti, executive vice president of NWRECC, said UCRC has helped plan the project over the last several years. "UCRC joined the effort in 2008 and rode the development rollercoaster with us through the Great Recession, providing innovative solutions and flexibility at every turn," Guglielmetti said in a statement. The varied financing package includes a $1.35 million acquisition loan, an $820,000 construction loan for the improvements, and a $970,000 low-income housing tax credit bridge loan. "Direct rental assistance to tenants is a very valuable and scarce resource that we cannot afford to lose," said Steve Graham, president of UCRC. "Once lost, this assistance never returns." The Idaho Housing and Finance Association also awarded $211,178 in annual low-income housing tax credits for the project. Ben Botkin may be reached at 735-3238.

Dick Capps shoots a 20-gauge shotgun as he helps his team compete in sport shooting Saturday at the Jerome County Rod and Gun club's sporting clay range east of Jerome.

Whether you're new to south-central Idaho or have lived here for years, there are plenty of ways for you to get acquainted — or reacquainted — with the area's outdoor attractions. One great way: Join a club.

BY ANDREW WEEKS
aweeks@magicvalley.com

If you're new to south-central Idaho, there are some things you should know: what to do on a weekend, where to meet new friends, how to get involved with a hobby.

Joining an outdoors club is one way to get acquainted with your new home, or, if you've been in Magic Valley for a while, to delve into a hobby that gives you a better appreciation of the landscape you live in.

No matter what your preference, there's likely a club for it. Here are a few you might consider.

Jerome County Rod and Gun

What is it? An informal club for gun enthusiasts and hunters who come out on weekends or at other times to enhance their shooting skills.

Who's in it? There are around 225 members this year, though there have been as many as 300 or more.

What they do: Perhaps no other club in the area is as well known for its sporting clays shoots, held on the first Saturday and third Sunday of every month.

The next event: A sporting clays shoot, Aug. 6.

What it costs: There are some options for you here. If you'd like to sign up your whole family, you can do that for $35. Individual memberships are $25, or you can pay $5 for the day whenever you use the club's range east of Jerome.

What you need to have: Bring your own gun, ammo and targets. And don't forget ear protection.

Get in touch: Travis Shepherd, 731-5495, or Michael Scott, 539-4814.

Twin Falls Rod & Gun Club

What is it? Things are loud here, where shooters of all levels and ages come to have a good time.

Who's in it? The club has more than 100 annual members, but non-members can pay a fee to shoot on the range.

What they do: The club specializes in trap, wobble, doubles, skeet and turkey shoots.

The next outing: The club will hold its annual Canyon Classic, a two-day fun shoot, on July 30-31. Come fall, a turkey shoot will be held every weekend from the end of October to Dec. 11. The club is open Thursdays and Sundays from 9 a.m. to dusk.

What it costs: An annual fee of $35, but you can still come to shoot if you don't want to join.

Ivan Allred competes in team sport shooting as other shooters watch Saturday at the Jerome County Rod and Gun club's range. Teams of four go around to different stations and shoot at clay discs.

It's best to call for pricing.

What you need to have: Bring your own gun and ammo.

Get in touch: The club, 734-0639.

Wood River Gun Club

What is it? The club appeals to shooters of all ages in the scenic Wood River area.

Who's in it? Around 150 gun enthusiasts in the valley and surrounding communities enjoy the facility and its leagues.

What they do: The club, which is open Sundays, has trap leagues, doubles leagues, spring leagues and fall/winter meat shoots.

What it costs: Nothing to join; you pay to use club facilities. Call for pricing.

What you need to have: Your own gun and ammo.

Get in touch: 788-2778.

Sun Valley Gun Club

What is it? The informal shotgun club is open to the public.

Who's in it? So many people use the club's range that it's difficult to tell how many, said manager Dick Haskell.

What they do: The club is strictly a shotgun club, he said — trap, skeet, sporting clays, five-stand, doubles and wobbles. The club is open seven days a week, beginning at 10 a.m. The last participants shoot at 3 p.m.

The next outing: Nothing is planned, but Haskell said it's advisable to call ahead as July and August are busy months.

What it costs: No membership fee, but it costs to shoot. Prices depend on the type of shooting. Like other gun clubs, it's best to call for pricing.

What you need to have: "We have everything that anybody would need — guns, ammo. And instruction is included in the price," Haskell said.

BOOK REVIEW

Hike the Sawtooths with Idaho Author's Know-how

Idaho author Margaret Fuller recently expanded her popular Sawtooth trails book, offering more options for hikers, bikers and horseback riders.

BY ANDREW WEEKS
aweeks@magicvalley.com

If you're looking for a place to hike without a lot of foot traffic, Margaret Fuller has a suggestion.

"The Sawtooth, White Cloud and Boulder Mountains are as beautiful as any other mountains in the U.S. and more beautiful than many, but they have far fewer people," she said. "The solitude lets visitors feel they are living long ago and might see pioneers around the next bend in the trail."

The Weiser author offers more than just a handy newspaper quotation. She recently revised and updated her book "Trails of the Sawtooth and White Cloud Mountains," which offers a wealth of knowledge about the area's trailheads. You'll find directions, access points, elevation, length and difficulty of trails and what you might see on the trails. Besides offering a few of her own, Fuller tells where you might be able to get trail maps.

"Several changes in trails have been described," Fuller said about her newly expanded book, "such as the rerouting of the first mile of the Sawtooth Lake Trail due to a 2010 flood and the relocation of the Big Casino Lake trailhead that was done to eliminate two creek crossings."

The book also features GPS coordinates for all the 128 trailheads profiled in the 315-page book. An informative and lengthy introduction includes the history of

Shooting Center Hosts Skeet Shoot

It's that time again.

If you're a hunter looking to hone your shooting skills or just like to test your technique on the range, you might consider attending the Birthday Skeet Shoot at the Hurtig Shooting Center.

The event starts at 9 a.m. Sunday, and includes a 50-bird .410 gauge contest (though all gauges are welcome). There also will be a 50-bird all-gauge Combo Fun Shoot — 25-bird wobble trap and 25-bird five-stand.

Cost is $30 for adults, $15 for those 18 years and younger. Includes targets, barbecue lunch and cash prizes. Surplus money will be donated to the McStay Youth Shooting program.

The Hurtig Shooting Center is located one mile East on Ohio Gulch Road, about four miles north of Hailey. Information: 788 2681.

Members also work closely with other groups, such as the Idaho Department of Fish and Game, to complete restoration and conservation projects.

Idaho Walleye Unlimited

What is it? If you like those glass-eyed looking fish with the big blue eyes, you'll like this club.

Who's in it? About 60 year-round members from across the valley.

What they do: The club was formed primarily to provide a method of income to enhance the habitat and fishing of walleye in southern Idaho, said member Kurt Campbell. The club's main fundraising event, a fishing derby, happens on Father's Day weekend every year at Salmon Falls Creek Reservoir. A smattering of other club events is planned throughout the year, Campbell said.

The next outing: On Aug. 6, the club will hold a fishing tourney at Salmon Falls Creek Reservoir.

What it costs: $25 for a family membership, plus state and federal dues for a total of around $83.

What you need to have: Your own fishing gear. If you're thinking about joining, Campbell suggested, why not visit a club meeting, held at 7:30 p.m. the first Tuesday of every month at Brady Inc. in Twin Falls.

Get in touch: Campbell, 280-0445, or John Harrison, 308-1845.

Who's in it? Folks from all over the Magic Valley have joined the club, sometimes referred to as the lunch cooler crowd.

What they do: Besides planning trail rides — which they do frequently during the warm season — club members work closely with the Bureau of Land Management and Forest Service in trying to maintain trail access. They do this by participating in trail maintenance and other conservation projects.

The next outing: Call or check out www.mvatvr.org for ride updates.

What it costs: Joining costs $20 per year or, for your family, $25.

What you need to have: Because this is an off-road club, it would help if you had your own ATV.

Who's in it? There are around 35 committee members, but anyone who wants to help out can join.

What they do: The group plants trees and shrubs for the sustainable habitat of turkeys in the South Hills. In recent months, the group created fake trees out of old telephone poles. "Turkeys need a place to roost at night, and some of the trees (in the hills) aren't quite mature enough to sustain the weight of the birds," Klundt said.

F&G Gives Update on Chinook Season

Even as stream flows are dropping on the South Fork Salmon River, angler anticipation for the river's chinook salmon season is rising.

The hatchery chinook sport harvest could approach the South Fork quota of 1,100 fish, according to the Idaho Department of Fish and Game.

Like most of Idaho's chinook seasons, the South Fork season has been delayed by high stream flows. Historically, South Fork Salmon River salmon runs delayed by early season high flows enter the river very quickly once flows begin to drop.

Catch rates in the lower Salmon and Little Salmon rivers are high, and harvest could approach the 9,000 adult salmon quota.

Question: I was told I must participate in credit counseling before I can file a bankruptcy.

Answer: The Bankruptcy Abuse Prevention and Consumer Protection Act of 2005 requires that in order to be a debtor in bankruptcy, an individual must first obtain a "pre-bankruptcy credit briefing" from a non-profit credit counseling agency approved for that purpose. Because there are no approved local agencies, the counseling may be obtained by telephone or online. Debtors are also required to complete a course in "personal financial management" in order to obtain a bankruptcy discharge. Debtors who do not complete the personal financial management course by the deadline risk having their case dismissed without a discharge. Whether the counseling and financial management requirements actually benefit debtors is an open question. By the time debtors reach my office, they are usually well past the point where credit counseling can help much. For my readers who recognize that they are in trouble financially, but wish to avoid a bankruptcy if possible, I suggest they call Consumer Credit Management Services at (208) 733-2227. Consumer Credit has provided credit counseling and debt management services on a non-profit basis in Twin Falls for around 40 years and has helped many people with their debts.

Safety of Dissolvable Tobacco Disputed

Health officials fear products may initiate a new generation of smokers.

BY SHARI ROAN
Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES • Tobacco company rep David Howard waxes enthusiastic when he talks about a brand new product his employer, R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., has developed: a pellet of finely cured tobacco, binders and flavoring that dissolves in the mouth in 10 minutes.

Under test market in two U.S. cities — Denver and Charlotte, N.C. — Camel Orbs will join two dissolvable tobacco lozenges already on the market if it graduates to broader distribution. And Howard is optimistic it will.

“These products provide smokers with an option to enjoy the pleasure of nicotine without bothering others,” Howard said. “No secondhand smoke. No spitting. No cigarette butt.”

Dissolvable tobacco consists of small pieces of compressed, finely ground tobacco powder, binders and flavorings that are shaped into pellets, sticks or strips. When placed in the mouth, they dissolve within minutes, providing a nicotine hit.

The tobacco industry says that the products contain far fewer cancer-causing chemicals such as tobacco-specific nitrosamines and are a “harm reduction” strategy that, like electronic cigarettes, might help people turn to less risky tobacco habits or eventually quit smoking.

But public health officials and anti-smoking advocates fear that the products will help initiate a new generation of smokers. The flavoring and packaging appeal to children, they argue, and teenagers will gravitate toward a product they can easily hide.

On Thursday, the Food and Drug Administration will take up the issue with an advisory committee hearing on the effect of dissolvable tobacco products on public health.

“Tobacco companies are always one step ahead of the sheriff,” said Sen. Sherrod Brown, D-Ohio, one of several senators who asked the FDA to review the products. “They have found ways to evade the rules and regulations and public health warnings.”

The first dissolvable tobacco product, a lozenge called Ariva, debuted in 2001. But in the last year the number of products on sale or in test marketing has jumped and major tobacco companies have entered the arena. Reynolds is market-testing two other products, Camel Strips and Camel Sticks, in addition to Camel Orbs. Philip Morris is test marketing a dissolvable tobacco stick.

At the same time, use of smokeless tobacco — snuff, chew, electronic cigarettes and, increasingly, dissolvable tobacco — is growing at a rate of about 7 percent per year, according to a 2010 report by Research and Markets, an international market research and data company.

In some states, use of smokeless tobacco products among men is almost as high as the national prevalence of cigarette smoking among adults, which stands at 20.8 percent, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. Across the U.S., 7 percent of U.S. adult males use smokeless tobacco, according to the CDC.

Use among kids is growing too. According to a 2010 survey by Monitoring the Future, an annual nationwide study funded by the National Institute on Drug Abuse, 8.5 percent of 12th-graders said they’d used a smokeless tobacco product in the last 30 days compared with 6.7 percent in 2003.

“Because it has a mild taste, we’re concerned dissolvable tobacco will be a starter product for kids,” said Matthew Myers, president of the Washington-based anti-smoking group Campaign for Tobacco-Free Kids. “Traditionally, girls have not used smokeless tobacco products. But this product does not have a substantial smell or require spitting. There is a real concern that this product will appeal to adolescent girls, particularly those concerned about weight.”

Public health officials also have expressed concern about the effect on teeth and gums of holding the product in the mouth for 10 to 20 minutes and the effect on the stomach of swallowing the tobacco chemicals.

Few studies have been done specifically on the potential health risks of dissolvable tobacco.

One study, published in March in the Journal of Agricultural and Food Chemistry, tested four dissolvable tobacco products, three of which were being test-marketed, and found they contained mostly nicotine and a variety of flavorings, sweeteners and binders. Some products contained coumarin, which has been banned as a flavoring agent in foods because of its link to liver damage, said study author John V. Goodpaster, an assistant professor in the forensic and investigative sciences program at Indiana University-Purdue University Indianapolis.

Studies on other smokeless tobacco products show they are considerably less risky than smoking cigarettes and cigars, which raises the risk of lung and a variety of other cancers, respiratory illness and heart disease.

OBITUARIES

Edwin Carl DeVall

April 22, 1948-July 17, 2011

Edwin Carl DeVall peacefully left for a journey Sunday morning, July 17, 2011, where he could continue to watch over all of us in a world without any pain or sadness.

He was born April 22, 1948, to Carl and Leah DeVall in Wendell, Idaho. The family moved to Filer, where he grew up and attended school. Ed was a hard worker and, at the age of 6, began working for Allison Feed Mills sweeping floors. He graduated from Filer High School in 1967 and later enlisted in the U.S. Air Force, in which he served both in Thailand and Germany, and was honorably discharged in 1971. Ed married Bonnie Haycock and accepted twin boys, Patrick and Mark Roddy, as his own. Ed and Bonnie later divorced but Ed kept in contact with the boys and was always so proud of their accomplishments in life and loved them both dearly.

In May of 1979 he graduated from CSI with an associate’s degree in law enforcement. He worked for the Filer Police Department and then spent 18 years as one of Twin Falls’ finest, reaching rank of sergeant. While he was a full-time officer, he also worked a second job delivering molasses to feedlots for Molasses Supply. During his time on the force, he married Bonnie Williams and accepted a daughter, Michelle Williams, as his own. Although Ed never had biological children, he loved, taught and unselfishly fathered his stepchildren willingly with undying love and care.

Ed knew everyone and rarely disliked anyone. He even managed to have respect for people he had arrested in the past, and they in turn respected him. He had friends from all walks of life and was a good friend to them all. His incredible sense of humor and gift of gab made him one of the best salesmen around. He literally had the ability to sell the shirt he was wearing. He had a little side gig buying and selling lawn mowers, so when he left the city of Twin Falls, he decided to try his hand at selling cars. He quickly became “Salesman of the Year” at Randy Hansen Chevrolet and continued to receive awards for several years. When Lithia took over Chevrolet, Ed left Randy Hansen and found a home at Wills Toyota, where he continued to sell cars even when his health made it difficult to do so.

He could spend hours telling jokes and always had a new one to tell. He had a fabulous voice and loved to sing karaoke. He would get slightly agitated when others got their turn and didn’t like to share the microphone much. Ed loved to perform and amazingly sang with his brother, John, just one hour after a recent surgery. His strength and positive attitude serves greatly as a lesson to us all. He had accepted the Lord Jesus Christ as his savior and his undying faith carried him home.

His parents, Carl and Leah DeVall; stepmother, Peggy May DeVall; and brother, Richard DeVall, preceded him in death. Surviving Ed are his wife, Bonnie DeVall and daughter, Michelle Chavez of Twin Falls; sons, Patrick (Jennifer) Roddy of Tucson, Ariz., and Mark (Caren) Roddy of Phoenix, Ariz.; his grandchildren, who were the light of his life, Bryce Wisdom, Cayden Chavez and Adrian Chavez of Twin Falls, Sophia Roddy of Tucson, Ariz., Garrett and Eryn Roddy of Phoenix, Ariz.; brothers, James (Juanita) of Rupert, Idaho, John (Charlotte) of Caldwell, Idaho; and sister, Denise Stewart (Jack) of Bend, Ore. Also surviving are aunts, uncles, nieces, nephews and close friends, far too many to name, whom he loved dearly and will miss him just the same.

The family wishes to thank all the doctors and nurses who did everything medically possible and friends and family who visited, shared memories, spent the night, brought food and laughed and cried right along with us. You all made this transition a little less painful and we love you for that. A special thanks to Pam Gregory, our friend and hospice nurse whom he loved having care for him, and Heidi, his CNA who he took to quickly and looked forward to seeing. A very special thank you to our angel on earth and Ed’s good friend, Randy Semba, who spent hours on end taking him to treatments, keeping him company during the day, praying with him and caring for him as he would his own family. Randy stayed with us all and held us up when we could no longer stand. He is an incredible blessing to have in our lives, and there are no words for the amount of appreciation we have for him.

The funeral will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday, July 23, at Rosenau Funeral Home, followed by interment at the Filer Cemetery. A viewing will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. Friday, July 22, at the funeral home.

Memorial donations may be made to the American Cancer Society, P.O. Box 22718, Oklahoma City, OK 73123-1718.

Family and friends may share their thoughts and memories at www.rosenaufuneralhome.com.

RoseMary Hill

Sept. 15, 1926-July 19, 2011

RUPERT • RoseMary Hill, 84, of Rupert, surrounded by her family, passed away Tuesday, July 19, 2011, at Countryside Care and Rehabilitation in Rupert.

RoseMary was born Sept. 15, 1926, in La Grande, Ore., to Lloyd and Vina Chandler. She attended a small school in Union, Ore., graduating in 1944. A short time before graduation, she met a man from Idaho who was visiting friends in La Grande. RoseMary married Milton J. Hill on Jan. 15, 1944. She remained in La Grande while Milt finished his tour in the Navy. After World War II ended, they moved to Gooding, Idaho, to start their life together.

Farming was a complete new experience for RoseMary. She adapted well, working side by side with Milt. They were active in the First Christian Church of Gooding. RoseMary played the piano and was active doing whatever was needed to serve the Lord. After farming for 17 years, they moved to Rupert, Idaho, in 1963. Milt purchased a petroleum business, Hill Oil Co. RoseMary was the bookkeeper for the business for many years.

Milt and RoseMary helped develop the Bundy Christian Youth Ranch in Fairfield, Idaho. She spent many summers at camp helping the children in creating crafts. RoseMary enjoyed going South in the winter in their motorhome. She also enjoyed sewing, crafts, fishing and serving the Lord. After 50 years together, she lost Milt, the love of her life, in 1994. After Milt’s death, she stayed active in the First Christian Church and helped at the Youth Ranch and the Minidoka Senior Citizen Center. RoseMary had the opportunity to fulfill her dream of visiting the Holy Land. Boise Bible College conducted the trip. They toured Israel and the surrounding area.

RoseMary is survived by her son, David (Jane) Hill of Rupert; two daughters, Karen (Jack) Welzler and Gail Stanfield, both of Middleton, Idaho; three sisters, Lucille (Pete) Spencer of Jerome, Idaho, Dorothy Smith of Union, Ore., and Cheryl (Tom) Indicott of Klamath Falls, Ore.; six grandchildren; and 11 great-grandchildren.

Dr. Saurey, Irene and Minidoka Countryside and Care Rehab, your care and quality work did not go unnoticed. You were all very caring and loving. The family thanks you. Peggy, mother loved you very much, and so do we. Mother, we will miss you, but we know you are in heaven. You will be in our hearts and minds until we meet again.

A graveside service will be held 2 p.m. Saturday, July 23, at the Minidoka County Rupert Cemetery.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the Cancer Society or your favorite charity.

Leah M. Martsch

July 14, 1921-July 18, 2011

HEYBURN • Leah Mary Martsch, a 90-year-old resident of Heyburn, went home to be with her Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ, on Monday, July 18, 2011, at the Portneuf Medical Center in Pocatello.

She was born July 14, 1921, in Minifare, Neb., the daughter of David Neiwert Jr. and Anna Mary Brown Neiwert. She received and completed her education in Burley. She married Joseph Martsch on Aug. 11, 1940, in Paul, Idaho. Together, they had three children, James, Karen and Cheryl.

Leah was a dedicated 71-year member of the Ebenezer Congregational Church in Paul and was a member of the church choir, being partial to the Bible hymns. She loved music and learned to play the piano as an adult. She especially enjoyed singing and was a part of the annual Mini-Cassia Ministerial Association’s Christmas Cantata for many years.

Leah loved being a homemaker and used her talents in providing a warm and clean atmosphere for her children and grandchildren. She kept an immaculate home (dirt was truly her enemy), a beautiful yard with gorgeous flowers and was an outstanding cook — especially in German dishes.

She is survived by her children, James (Amy) Martsch of Blackfoot, Karen (Max) Fowler of Heyburn and Cheryl (Steve) Schiers of Pocatello; four grandchildren, Jeremy Fowler, Justin Fowler, Andrea Schiers and Joseph Schiers; one great-granddaughter, Leeanna Douglas-Fowler; two broth-

Beloved ‘Rosie the Crossing Guard’ Dies at 83

BY MATTHEW DEFOUR
Wisconsin State Journal

MADISON, Wis. • A first-grader at Crestwood Elementary School once offered Rosie the Crossing Guard a chicken drumstick from her lunch because she thought Rosie stayed outside the entire day.

For multiple generations of Crestwood students it was a universal idea — morning and afternoon, rain or shine, snow or heat, for 47 years, Rosie was always there to shepherd students safely across Old Sauk Road.

But after retiring at the end of the school year for health reasons, Rose Hiestand passed away Saturday after a short bout with cancer. She was 83.

Elementary school crossing guard Rosie Hiestand died in Madison, Wis., Saturday at the age of 83.

meanor, Hiestand crossed nearly 10,000 children during her career, according to Madison police crossing guard supervisor Patti Knoche. In 8,500 days of work over five decades, she likely missed fewer than 12 for illness. She never had a driver’s license and walked twice each day up the hill on Old Sauk Road.

Driving gave Hiestand motion sickness, as did taxis, subways and other public transit where she grew up in Yonkers, N.Y., her daughter Rose Mary Belk said.

One of nine children, Hiestand dropped out of school in ninth grade to work at a laundromat and help her family pay the bills. She met her husband of 65 years, Gene Hiestand, in New York while he was serving in the Navy. They moved back to his hometown and raised a daughter down the road from Highlands Mendota Beach Elementary.

When there was an opening for a crossing guard, Hiestand took the job because it was close enough to walk. It wasn’t long before neighbors started bringing her coffee.

“I don’t think she planned on being a crossing guard for that many years,” Belk said. “But she just liked the people and the kids so much she just kept going and going and going.”

NYC Fire Truck Added to 9/11 Display

NEW YORK (AP) • A fire truck that rushed to the aid of victims on 9/11 returned to the World Trade Center site Wednesday as it was lowered like a huge flag-draped coffin into the National September 11 Memorial & Museum.

The truck from the city fire department’s Ladder Company 3 helped civilians escape from the trade center’s north tower on Sept. 11, 2001. The vehicle had sped to the twin towers from its firehouse in Manhattan’s East Village with 11 firefighters aboard — all of whom died when the towers collapsed and their rig was mangled.

Michael Wolff

June 20, 1960-July 19, 2011

RUPERT • Michael Wolff, 51, of Rupert, passed away Tuesday, July 19, 2011, in Burley, Idaho.

Mike was born June 20, 1960, in Rupert, Idaho, to Elmer and Lucille Wolff. He graduated from Minico High School in 1979 and received his education in law enforcement at the College of Southern Idaho. Mike was a jack of all trades. He worked as a mechanic at Landview Fertilizer and Schow's in Rupert and was currently employed with Suburban Propane.

Mike loved his family and spending time with them. Mike gave his all on anything he did. He loved being outdoors, going fishing, hunting and riding his ATV. He volunteered many hours for Search and Rescue and was a volunteer firefighter for the city of Rupert. He also loved serving as a reserve officer for both Minidoka County and the city of Rupert. He gave those volunteer hours up to be able to spend more time with his grandkids. Mike most recently began re-

Mike, we all love you and you will be greatly missed.

LaVerle M. Bingham

March 21, 1921-July 19, 2011

RUPERT • LaVerle M. Bingham, age 90, of Rupert, passed away Tuesday, July 19, 2011, at his home surrounded by his family.

LaVerle was born March 21, 1921, in Thomas, Idaho, to Lorin and Edna Pearl Murdock Bingham. He was the second son in a family of four boys and two girls. The family moved to Moreland when he was about 12 years old, where they farmed a small acreage. He graduated from Moreland High School in 1940. After graduation, he went to college in Pocatello, where he took a carpenter course, which was eight hours a day for eight months. After he graduated, he was hired by a construction company that built several buildings on the ISU campus.

In 1942, he was drafted into the U.S. Army at the age of 20 and was sent to Fort Douglas in Salt Lake City, Utah, and then to the Air Force base in Kearns, Utah, for basic training. During this time, he met Mary Butler. They started dating and had a lot of fun going to shows, roller skating and to dances at the Coconut Grove in Salt Lake City. They married in September 1943. On Dec. 5, 1943, he was shipped overseas, where he spent time in England, France and Holland during the height of the World War II conflict. Two years to the day he was shipped overseas, he came back to Salt Lake City to his wife and their first son (who was born while he was in France).

After the war they moved back to Moreland, and started farming some rented ground. They stayed in Moreland for nine years and during this time, three more sons and a daughter were born to them.

In March 1954, his name was drawn for a farm in Rupert on the Northside Pumping Project as part of a Homestead Act. As a veteran of the war, he was eligible to enter the drawing and was lucky to be able to obtain his first choice of farms they had selected. At 34 years of age, he moved his family to a place he'd never heard of to make a home. Much hard work, trials and joys went into creating a farm out of the desert, but he loved to farm and thought it was a great place to live. Many lifelong friends were formed during this time, as everyone worked together to make a success out of this new venture. Another son and daughter were born after the family moved to Rupert.

LaVerle has been a lifelong member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and loved serving in the church in many capacities — Young Men, stake missionary, bishopric and high council. He served many years in the Scouting organization and received the Silver Beaver Award. He and Mary also spent six years as the directors of the Family History Library in Burley. While working at the library, he was able to go back 30 generations on his own family history.

LaVerle is survived by his wife, Mary; five children, Raymond Bingham (Karen) of Sandy, Utah, Kerry Bingham (Joy) of Rupert, Marylee Bingham of Holladay, Utah, Boyd Bingham (Sherry) and Kathleen Whitlock, all of Rupert; 32 grandchildren; and 49 great-grandchildren (with two more to be born this year). He was preceded in death by his parents, two brothers, two sons, one grandson and two great-grandchildren.

The funeral will be held at noon Saturday, July 23, at the Rupert LDS Stake Center, 324 E. 18th St., with Bishop Rick Larsen officiating. Burial will be in the Rupert Cemetery, with military rites accorded by the Mini-Cassia Veterans Organization.

A viewing for family and friends will be held from 6 until 8 p.m. Friday, July 22, at the Rupert LDS Stake Center and again from 10:30 until 11:45 a.m. Saturday at the Rupert Stake Center.

Arrangements have been entrusted to Rasmussen Funeral Home of Burley.

Q&A

THE INS AND OUTS OF TITLE IX

Ten days after 100 Idaho high schools were named in a federal Title IX complaint, here's a broader look at the legislation each is accused of violating.

BY DAVID BASHORE
dbashore@magicvalley.com

It's been 10 days since 100 Idaho high schools were named in federal complaints about violating Title IX legislation regarding gender discrimination. But being accused of Title IX violations and being found out of Title IX compliance are different matters. From academics to athletics, anywhere federal education funding goes, the complexities of Title IX follow. Here are the nuts and bolts of Title IX.

What exactly is Title IX?
Title IX is short for Title

IX of the Education Amendments of 1972. Title IX addresses gender discrimination in schools that receive any kind of federal funding. Gender-specific programs like Boys State and Girls State are exempt.

How does a school become Title IX compliant?
There is a three-prong test for Title IX compliance. Schools must prove they are complying in at least one of the following areas:
• Providing athletic participation opportunities that are substantially proportionate to the student enrollment;
• Demonstrating a continual expansion of athletic opportunities for the underrepresented gender;

• Full and effective accommodation of the interest and ability of underrepresented gender.

What do sports have to do with Title IX?
A: Sports are one of the most common points of emphasis in Title IX disputes. The law is designed to ensure equal opportunity for male and female athletes. Criteria used by the U.S. Department of Education in evaluating athletic departments include:
• Accommodation of the interests and abilities of members of both genders;
• Provision of equipment, supplies and travel allowance;
• Game and practice time;
• Publicity about available programs.

In the Idaho complaints made last week, all of the schools accused have a proportional imbalance of female students to female athletes. The complaint also accused schools of using cheer and dance to inflate their female athlete numbers, which goes against a 2010 federal ruling barring the practice.

Is it always discrimination against females that invokes Title IX?
Not necessarily. All 100 complaints involving Idaho schools suggest female students are placed at an unfair disadvantage in regards to athletic opportunity, but Title IX has been used recently in defense of male rights as well. Western Kentucky University cited a lack of male scholarship opportunities

CSI Softball Names New Assistant

Cortney Clark played for the University of Arizona and BYU, and she's the sister of a former CSI player.

TIMES-NEWS

The College of Southern Idaho softball team has hired Cortney Clark as its new assistant coach, the school announced in a statement. Clark comes with a hefty reputation. She caught for two years at national power Arizona, helping the Wildcats to two Pac 10 titles and a trip to the Women's College World Series in 2005, before transferring to BYU. While in Provo, she helped the Cougars to the Mountain West championship in 2007. As a high-schooler, Clark was a two-time Arizona all-state selection and small schools player of the year. She also played for USA Athletes International in 2006, as well as playing in the 2007 Canada Cup. "Her experience catching at the Division I level will be invaluable," CSI coach Nick Baumert said in the statement. "She comes from a great softball family and has been highly recommended." Clark replaces Debbie Dodds, who left the program after three seasons. Clark's sister, Chelsea Nix, played for the Golden Eagles in 2009-10.

Starley Headed to High Performance Nationals

The Twin Falls sophomore-to-be expects to be a featured volleyball player for the Bruins this fall.

BY STEPHEN MEYERS
smeyers@magicvalley.com

Twin Falls High School sophomore-to-be Sierra Starley is opening some eyes on the volleyball court. The outside hitter has been named to the Intermountain Volleyball Association team traveling next week to the 2011 High Performance Nationals tournament in Tucson, Ariz. Starley is among 12 players selected from a pool of nearly 400 who tried out this spring in Pocatello. She survived the first round of cuts and played in the IVA High Performance Camp in Salt Lake City in July, earning camp all-around best player honors. "There were girls from all over (at Salt Lake City)," said Starley. "I ended up as the No. 1 outside hitter, which is awesome. It's really cool to be able to play with all these great players and coaches." She'll practice with her team in Salt Lake City the rest of the week, before leaving for Tucson on Sunday for the tournament from July 24-28. The IVA is a non-profit organization affiliated with USA Volleyball and the High Performance Program was built as a national pipeline of junior volleyball athletes and coaches. Starley, who has aspirations of playing college volleyball, will play in front of dozens of college and Olympic scouts in Tucson. After her whirlwind of a summer at national camps, Starley will be a featured player on her Bruins team. "She is just a great all-around player," said Twin Falls coach B.J. Price. "She was the setter this spring for her club team and was an outside hitter for us. She'll do a little bit of everything for us this season. "... To represent girls from Idaho and beat out girls from Utah, which has a larger pool of players to pull from, is pretty cool."

NFL Retirees Sue League Over Concussions

LOS ANGELES (AP) • Mark Duper, Ottis Anderson and 73 other former players sued the National Football League, claiming it concealed information about the danger of concussions for decades.

The negligence, fraud and liability suit was filed Tuesday in Los Angeles Superior Court. Many players' wives also are plaintiffs.

The suit alleges the NFL knew as early as the 1920s of the harmful effects of concussions but concealed them from coaches, trainers, players and the public until June 2010. It also names helmet-maker Riddell, the NFL's official helmet supplier.

It seeks unspecified damages.

"We have not seen the complaint but would vigorously contest any claims of this kind," NFL spokesman Greg Aiello said in a statement.

Riddell spokeswoman Laura Moore said the company had not yet reviewed the complaint and its policy was to not comment on pending litigation.

Concussions are movements of the brain inside the skull from an impact. The former players contend that they suffered repeated concussions from hits and tackles during their years in the NFL that caused brain damage. They contend the injuries left them with problems such as dementia, headaches, memory loss, blurred vision, sleeplessness and ringing in the ears. Some claim the injuries caused depression, anxiety, "explosive mood changes," poor judgment and substance abuse.

According to the suit, the NFL knew for decades that multiple blows to the head can cause long-term brain injury but fraudulently denied it, even as independent evidence showed that players were at risk.

The Mild Traumatic Brain

Injury Committee was established by the NFL in 1994 to study the risk of long-term brain injury to players. The suit contends that the committee published "false, distorted and deceiving" findings that the risk was minimal in order to deceive Congress, players and the public.

The NFL only warned active players in June 2010 of the risks associated with multiple concussions and Riddell failed to warn active players until around the same time, the suit claims. The NFL has never warned past players, according to the suit.

Source: No Player Vote on NFL Deal

Player representatives for all 32 teams were expected to vote on a proposed deal Wednesday in order for the owners to potentially ratify it today and end the four-month work stoppage.

WASHINGTON (AP) • NFL players didn't vote Wednesday on a full proposal to settle the league's labor dispute, citing several outstanding issues, a person familiar with the negotiations told The Associated Press.

The person said there was agreement among representatives of all 32 clubs on what items needed to be resolved before any offer would be accepted. A second person, also speaking on condition of anonymity because the talks are supposed to be secret, said those players gave what was termed "conditional approval" of the proposal — as it stood Wednesday.

"We still have a lot of work to do," said Pro Bowl offensive lineman Tyson Clabo, who played for the Atlanta Falcons last season.

The meeting at the NFL Players Association headquarters lasted nearly 10 hours and included the group's executive committee and the team reps.

In Atlanta, where the owners' labor committee met, general counsel Jeff Pash said the sides would talk through the night in hopes of having a final agreement ready to go today.

"It's obviously a complicated agreement, but I think both sides are at the point where they can close, they should close, and we should be in a position to take votes," Pash, the owners' lead negotiator, said following a five-hour session at a hotel near Atlanta's airport.

NFL Commissioner Roger Goodell joined the meeting of nine of the 10 members of the labor committee, which hoped to recommend a finalized proposal to all club owners, who are due there today.

Remaining issues are believed to include how to set aside three pending court cases: The players' antitrust lawsuit against the NFL in federal court in Minnesota; the TV networks case, in which players accused owners of setting up $4 billion in "lockout insurance," money that the league would receive even if there were no games played in 2011; and a collusion case, in which players said owners conspired to restrict salaries last offseason.

"I think that's the healthy outcome: to have a complete, comprehensive, global agreement that settles all the disputes and puts us on a path where we are going forward together as business partners, the way it should be, rather than going forward with one hand and fighting over something that should be in the past," Pash said.

Asked whether owners would consider approving an agreement today, Carolina Panthers owner Jerry Richardson smiled and said: "I'm always ready for a vote."

New England Patriots owner Robert Kraft, who is on the labor committee, wasn't expected to participate because his wife, Myra, died Wednesday, at age 68, after a battle with cancer.

Earlier Wednesday, NFLPA president Kevin Mawae cautioned not to assume the lockout will be over by the weekend, saying that his group was "not tied" to a deadline for getting a deal done in the next 24 hours.

"We want to go back to work, but we will not agree to a deal unless it's the best deal for the players," Mawae said in the morning.

"Our goal today is to see what is on the table and discuss outlying issues," he said. "The players are not tied to a July 21 timeline. Our timeline is that which gives us the best deal for the players — today, tomorrow or whatever it might be."

If the four-month lockout — the NFL's first work stoppage since 1987 — is going to end in time to keep the preseason completely intact, the players and owners almost certainly must ratify the deal today. The St. Louis Rams and Chicago Bears are scheduled to open the preseason Aug. 7 in the Hall of Fame game.

Asked whether that exhibition game will be played, Pash replied: "We'll see. It's getting tight. It would be pretty challenging. That's one of the things we'll have to focus on."

If owners do vote today, at least 24 would need to OK the deal. If it's passed by both sides, team executives would be schooled later today and Friday in Atlanta in the guidelines and how to apply them; topics would include the 2011 NFL calendar, rookie salary system and new free agency rules.

Ten players — including quarterbacks Tom Brady, Peyton Manning and Drew Brees, Chargers receiver Vincent Jackson and Patriots guard Logan Mankins — filed their antitrust suit March 11. That was the day the country's most popular sports league was thrown into limbo: Negotiations broke off, the old collective bargaining agreement expired, and the union said it was dissolving itself and becoming a trade association. That meant players no longer were protected under labor law but could pursue their cause in court under antitrust law.

The owners locked out players hours later.

"Obviously, there's the litigation with the named plaintiffs, and I am not familiar with the whole legal part of it. But at the end of the day," Mawae said, "the deal we are working on is the deal that's best for all the players in the NFL, and not just four guys."

College sports: Changes coming for 2011-12 season

Two changes are coming for the 2011-12 athletic year,

College of Southern Idaho athletic director Joel Bate told the Times-News Wednesday.

A national change involves moving the women's basketball 3-point line back to match the men.

In Region 18 circles, Bate said the region baseball tournament will be hosted in the future on a rotating basis.

Southern Nevada will host the 2012 tournament, with Utah State University-College of Eastern Utah doing the honors the following year.

CSI gets it in 2014.

College baseball: CSI re-signs one, adds another

The College of Southern Idaho baseball team re-signed right-handed pitcher Edgard Burgos on Wednesday to a NJCAA National Letter of Intent.

Burgos made 10 appearances out of the bullpen as a freshman, posting a 3.86 ERA with no decisions.

The Golden Eagles also picked up a catcher, signing transfer Colby Croft.

Croft played last season for Southern Nevada, batting .217 with four homers.

Title IX

in its 2006 decision to move up a division in college football, and the University of Delaware fell under investigation in May following a complaint by the men's track field and cross country teams, after the school announced the programs would be cut.

What happens if a school doesn't comply with Title IX?

Anyone who believes that a school is not complying with Title IX may file an anonymous complaint with the U.S. Department of Education.

From there, the Office for Civil Rights assigned to the region evaluates the merits of the complaint and determines whether further investigation is necessary. This is the stage at which the Idaho complaints currently sit.

If further investigation is necessary, the OCR sends a letter to the school district and the state superintendent of education and works with the school.

A school may still be found compliant after investigation, or the OCR and the school may work together to foster an atmosphere of compliance.

In extreme cases, usually involving intentional disregard for Title IX, punitive damages may be awarded to the plaintiff(s).

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Edvald Boasson Hagen of Norway crosses the finish line to win the 17th stage of the Tour de France cycling race, held over 111.2 miles starting in Gap, France, and finishing in Pinerolo, Italy, Wednesday.

Norwegian Wins Stage 17, Voeckler Retains Tour Lead

The race leader lost 27 seconds to all his rivals after driving off the course during a fast descent. He leads by 1 minute, 18 seconds.

PINEROLO, Italy (AP) • Edvald Boasson Hagen of Norway won the 17th stage of the Tour de France on Wednesday, the first of three days in the Alps, while Thomas Voeckler retained the yellow jersey but lost time after riding off course on the final descent. Defending champion Alberto Contador made repeated attempts to get away from his rivals, but was caught on each occasion. He finished in the same time as Cadel Evans, the Schleck brothers and Samuel Sanchez. Voeckler lost 27 seconds and is 1 minute, 18 seconds ahead of Evans. The 2010 Giro d'Italia champion Ivan Basso also lost time. Boasson Hagen completed the 111 miles across the Alps from Gap to the Italian town of Pinerolo in 4 hours, 18 minutes. Bauke Mollema of the Netherlands was second, 40 seconds back. Voeckler went too fast on a hairpin turn, skidded onto the shoulder of the forested Alpine road, then raced back to try to catch Contador and Sanchez after they sped by. "It's a pity, because I saw that Contador, Evans and the Schleck brothers finished together. If I'd taken fewer risks, I would have finished with them," he said. The high-speed pursuit led to another mishap in which he jumped a curb, rolled into a car park and almost crashed. "It was a fraction of a second, but it seemed like an eternity. I closed my eyes and lifted the front wheel and when I opened my eyes, I was still on the bike," Voeckler said. "So I said, 'OK, here we go: U-turn and back to the race.'" Contador was not downhearted by failing to get away. "I felt good, and you've got to try," he said. He didn't want to talk about the stages left. Boasson Hagen recorded his second stage win and the fourth overall for Norway in this year's race. "It was very difficult yesterday, and today I was able to do better," Boasson Hagen said. "I felt I was capable of attacking on the last climb." Mollema was second after Frenchman Jonathan Hivert crashed on the perilous final descent of the Pramartino. Hivert got back on his bike and came in ninth. Boasson Hagen praised the large contingent of Norwegian fans that has been supporting him and Hushovd throughout the race. "It's really great to see all the Norwegian flags and Norwegian people around the course. It gives some extra power." Evans becomes more of a favorite for the title with every day he keeps his nearly two-minute edge over Contador. "With shadows and stuff it was real hard to see. Voeckler ran off the road in front of me — twice I think. It makes you take things more cautiously. You don't ever want to lose time to anyone," the Australian said. "I've got a good advantage over Alberto now, but Alberto has shown in years gone by what he can do when he's really at his top."

Tiger Woods Fires Longtime Caddie

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) • Tiger Woods and Steve Williams were together for 12 years and some 250 tournaments, a relationship that produced 72 wins and a friendship so strong that each was in the other's wedding. It ended Wednesday with a stock line that players use when firing a caddie — "It's time for a change." The announcement on his website only deepened the mystery around Woods, who has fallen to No. 20 in the world and hasn't played since May because of injuries to his left leg that first were described as "minor." In the 20 months since Woods was caught having multiple extramarital affairs, he has lost four major sponsors, changed swing coaches, was divorced from his wife and now has axed his caddie. "I want to express my deepest gratitude to Stevie for all his help, but I think it's time for a change," Woods said. "Stevie is an outstanding caddie and a friend and has been instrumental in many of my accomplishments. I wish him great success in the future." Woods did not say who would replace Williams — one of only two caddies he has employed full-time. "Needless to say, this came as a shock," Williams said in a statement on his website. Williams worked the last three tournaments for Adam Scott. That included the U.S. Open and British Open, which Woods skipped. "A player has the right to fire a caddie at any given time," Williams told The Associated Press from his summer home in Oregon. "And for a player when he's not playing at his best for extended period of time, it's not uncommon to change caddies, coaches, psychologists or bring on a psychologist. We all know the business. I have no problem being fired. But I'm disappointed in the timing of it."

LEGAL NOTICE

The Idaho Department of Fish and Game was informed by the Bureau of Fisheries and Regional fishery managers that, through July 17, daily angler surveys indicate that about 64 percent of the State's harvest share of adipose fin-clipped hatchery Chinook salmon greater than or equal to 24 inches total length (adults) returning to the mainstem of the South Fork Salmon River has been harvested. Only about 15% of the State's harvest share of about 1,200 adipose fin-clipped hatchery Chinook salmon less than 24 inches total length (jacks) has been harvested. By the end of fishing July 20, anglers will likely have harvested 100 percent of the non-tribal harvest share of adult adipose fin-clipped Chinook salmon returning to the South Fork Salmon River drainage but less than 30% of the non-tribal harvest share of adipose fin-clipped jacks.

To prevent the fishery from exceeding the non-tribal harvest share of adult adipose fin-clipped hatchery Chinook salmon, the Bureau of Fisheries recommends the entire South Fork Salmon Fishery-Lower section must be closed to fishing for Chinook salmon. To provide anglers continued opportunity to harvest hatchery jack salmon the Bureau of Fisheries recommends that the South Fork Salmon River Upper section remain open to the retention of adipose fin-clipped jack Chinook salmon. Natural origin Chinook salmon that are listed under the Federal Endangered Species Act and spawn in the mainstem South Fork Salmon River must transit the lower section of the fishery to reach spawning areas but fewer than half transit the upper section of the fishery. The Bureau of Fisheries recommends that jacks-only fishery be constrained to the upper section to reduce incidental fishery related mortalities among the mainstem South Fork Salmon natural origin spawning population.

Pursuant to his authority under Idaho Code Section 36-106(e)(6) (A), the Idaho Department of Fish and Game Director hereby closes the waters of mainstem South Fork Salmon River downstream of a posted boundary about one mile upstream of Fourmile Campground to salmon fishing effective at the close of legal fishing hours on July 20, 2011. The waters of the South Fork Salmon upstream of the aforementioned posted boundary are closed to the retention of adult Chinook salmon greater than or equal to 24 inches total length.

Copies of Order 11-24 are available at the Idaho Department of Fish and Game headquarters, 600 South Walnut, PO Box 25, Boise, ID 83707.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

“And none can read the text, not even I;

And none can read the comment but myself.”

— Alfred, Lord Tennyson

Try to familiarize yourself with your opponents' carding methods. Nevena Senior did so to her advantage on this deal.

The popular contract was three no-trump declared by South, most commonly on the lead of a top heart and continuation. Most declarers correctly won the third heart, then took the spade finesse. Next, they played the club ace and a club to the king, but when it turned out that West had the guarded club jack, they could make no more than eight tricks.

Senior, too, ducked the first two hearts and won the third, reading the suit to be 4-4 when East encouraged at the first trick but had not produced the jack. She continued with the spade finesse, and next cashed the ace, in case East had started with the doubleton king. When West discarded a diamond on the second spade, declarer paused to regroup.

Had West held five diamonds, she felt that it was at least possible that he would have preferred that attack initially, so she placed him with four of these as well. That left four spaces in West's hand, which had to be filled by clubs.

So, Senior cashed a top club in hand to cater for a singleton jack with East, then successfully finessed dummy's club eight. After cashing the king, she returned to her hand with the diamond ace and ran the clubs for nine tricks and her contract, as well as most of the matchpoints.

ANSWER: Partner's rebid does not guarantee six spades, but the more space he has to introduce a second suit at the two-level or bid two no-trump, the more likely it is that a rebid shows six, not a good five-carder. However, you do not really care either way. A simple forcing raise to three spades describes your hand well enough. If you play that sequence as non-forcing, bid three diamonds to create a force.

DEAR ABBY: When I go out to eat with my girlfriends, I usually enjoy myself until it comes time for dessert. Then I get grief if I don't order any and they do. They'll say, "Oh, you're so tiny. You can eat it." Conversely, if I do order something, they tell me, "Well, I'd love some but my metabolism isn't as high as yours."

I have never made comments to them about calorie counting, needing to work out or concern about my weight. I feel fitness is a private matter, and I'm not comfortable with mine being the topic of discussion. Is there any way to respectfully and tactfully respond to their comments or redirect the conversation?

— TAKES THE CAKE IN FLAGSTAFF, ARIZ.
DEAR TAKES THE CAKE: The way you said it in your letter is perfect: "I feel fitness is a private matter and I'm not comfortable with mine being the topic of discussion." Either state it when they comment on what you have ordered, or say it privately to each of your friends when you're away from a restaurant. If they are friends, they'll respect your feelings.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: Is it weird to not want to sleep in the same bed with my husband? We have an amazing, caring, fun relationship — but when it comes to sleep, I need my space while he prefers to cuddle all night. I always end up trying to push him over to his side, or telling him to please move. I know he gets offended because he's just trying to be close.

Abby, when I'm in bed with him I hardly get any sleep! He's always on my side and I can't move. It bothers me so much I end up sleeping on the couch.

Is this a bad sign for our marriage? Should I just stick it out for his sake? Our marriage is pretty close to perfect except for this one thing.

— NEEDS MY SPACE IN WEST VALLEY, UTAH
DEAR NEEDS YOUR SPACE: If you haven't already done it, you and your husband should have a calm discussion about this when you're both wide awake and rested. Sleep deprivation can cause any number of problems — slow reaction time behind the wheel of a car, inefficiency at work, and serious health problems. If your marriage is amazing, caring, fun and sexually satisfying for both of you, then sleeping separately isn't a "bad sign." It's the solution.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 54-year-old woman who, after a long marriage and unavoidable divorce, is ready to date. I work out daily, am active in my church, take classes, and socialize with women and married couples. I'm in excellent shape and am told I'm attractive and fun. There are few available men my age (or a little younger or older) and almost all of them seem to be looking for women in their 40s, 30s or even 20s.

Why are men my age so unwilling to date women their age? We're past the drama years, are secure in who we are, and have a lot to offer. Am I destined to spend my life without romance? I'm an upbeat person but have lately started feeling angry at how I'm being marginalized.

— MISSING OUT IN WYOMING
DEAR MISSING OUT: I can't speak for "all" older men, but many of them in our youth-obsessed culture look for women considerably younger because it helps them fool themselves into thinking they are younger than their years. You are physically, socially and intellectually active, so stop allowing yourself to be marginalized and consider dating men who are younger. It worked for Demi Moore.

IF JULY 21 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Friends can light up your life for the next several weeks, but in August it business takes precedence. You can put your skills and expertise to good use by grabbing any opportunity that comes knocking at your door. Daydreaming can block your progress in October, so be sure to ignore fantasies that urge you to part with your money or heart. You will feel less competitive this year as you get more in touch with your spiritual side, but in late December and early January your ambitions might pull you in a different direction. Wait until April to make key changes.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Wait to see what happens. Someone close may seem to be pushing all your buttons, but that is perfectly OK. Maybe it is time to go after a treasured ambition. Do not become embroiled in a gossip campaign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Go for the gold. Your efforts and initiative can win recognition and your business acumen will earn you dollars. You may think you are only spinning your wheels, but those wheels can help you travel far.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): The big picture is developing slowly, but financial instincts are sharply honed. You can still take advantage of a fast-moving opportunity. The most crucial plans must simmer for a while before taking shape.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): They say people make their own luck. Your enthusiasm, industry and pluck can turn you into a respected leader in the business world. You are willing to work with others so that the job gets done properly.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Sensitivity and discretion endear you to others. It takes more than mere chemical attraction to make a relationship last forever. Someone might entrust you with confidential or sensitive information.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Make money while the mood is magnificent. This is a good day to concentrate on business or moneymaking activities. Just be sure to investigate the facts and do not rely on assurances without concrete proof.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Think it through as though it were a business plan. You can easily grasp the ins and outs of a complicated situation. It is likely that plotting and planning are not part of the solution. Hold off on making an irrevocable decision.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You need a hand to grab hold of when in over your head. Your best bet is to investigate the use of new technology when faced by an onerous chore. You can speed up your production and be more efficient.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Six of one, a half dozen of the other. No matter how you look at it, the results are the same. Wrap your mind around the facts and don't get carried away by a desire to conquer the world.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Physical attractions may fade quickly, but true commitment strengthens over time. Affairs of the heart take a turn for the better if you are willing to treat a romantic interest as fairly as a business partner.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Win the race. Let other people do the bunny hop while you plod along like Aesop's turtle. It might be best to go slowly and avoid controversy. Don't let doubts or worries cloud a key relationship.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Speak up. You may be somewhat confused by someone's reactions or feel that something significant is hidden. Get advice from a trusted counselor or friend and talk through your fears and concerns.

SUDOKU

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.
