(More) Road Work Ahead

With the summer rush to complete this year's projects in full swing, the state's transportation department is seeking Idahoans' input on the projects coming our way over the next five years.

Are you worried about the safety of an intersection along a state highway?

Do you think there's a section of road that should be widened? Or perhaps you have lofty goals for your city's airport expansion.

Regardless of the transportation system improvement you envision, now is the time to weigh in. Starting today, the Idaho Transportation Department is accepting public comment on a slew of tentative projects slated for the next five years. It gives Idahoans a chance to weigh in on millions of dollars of project proposals, plus identify any needs that are easier for the locals to spot than the transportation officials in Boise.

"They're aware of things and driving conditions that I would never be aware of because it's just not possible for me to cover all of the routes statewide," said Adam Rush, a spokesman for ITD. "We encourage people to get in touch with us if there are things that are not in there they would like added."

The plan — called the Idaho Transportation Investment Program - already has plenty of specifics. It lists anticipated projects that use federally backed bonds for work along major highway corridors, along with smaller projects that will get anticipated federal dol-

BOISE • At least three states are vowing to ignore the latest requirements under the No Child Left Behind law in an act of defiance against the federal government that demonstrates their growing frustration over an education program they say sets unrealistic benchmarks for schools.

The law sets a goal of having 100 percent of students proficient in math and reading by 2014, but states were allowed to establish how much schools must improve each year. Many states saved the biggest leaps for the final years, anticipating the law would be changed.

But it hasn't, and states like Idaho, Montana and South Dakota are fed up. They are preparing to reject the latest requirements for determining school progress under the 9-year-old law even if the move toward noncompliance may put them at risk of losing some federal funding.

Idaho will no longer raise the benchmarks that public schools have to meet under No Child Left Behind, nor will it punish the schools that do not meet these higher testing goals, said Tom Luna, the state's superintendent of public schools.

The federal requirements are unrealistic for schools to meet while they wait for the government to enact new education standards, he said.

"We've waited as long as we can,"

Montana and South Dakota are also rejecting the latest No Child Left Behind targets, while Kentucky is seeking a waiver that would allow the state to use a different method to measure whether students are making adequate progress under the program. And more states could follow in seeking relief from the federal require-

Federal officials recently warned Montana to get in line with the No Child Left Behind requirements by Aug. 15 or the federal government could withhold funds under an education program. The state receives more than $44 million in federal funding for that program, though it is unclear just how Democratic commissioners on the state's legislative redistricting panel would carve the city of Twin Falls into its own district, shaking up the Magic Valley's representation in the Capitol.

The plan would make a separate legislative district out of most of rural Twin Falls County and all of Jerome County. The proposal would dramatically change District 24, which currently consists of part of Twin Falls, rural western Twin Falls County and Owyhee County — all the way to the Oregon border.

For the idea to become reality, the three Democratic commissioners on the state's six-member Commission for Reapportionment would need to convince at least one of the three Republican commissioners to support

BLM Releases National Sage Grouse Strategy

The U.S. Bureau of Land Management has released its first national conservation planning strategy to improve the habitat and population of the troubled greater sage grouse. The BLM intends to strategize with agencies and stakeholders to improve sage grouse conservation measures.

The planning strategy divides the sage grouse populated states into two regions. Idaho is in the western region along with California, Nevada, Oregon and Utah. The conservation measures in this region will focus on the bird's greatest threats, which are invasive plants and wildfires, Crandall said.

The BLM will use the latest sage grouse research and information for each region to amend existing regulations and planning processes.

Worried About Federal Default? Rupert's Loud Dobb's Isn't

hutting down the federal government would be no big deal, says the Magic Valley's most famous pun-

Rupert-bred Lou Dobbs, the 65-year-old Fox Business News anchor, last week called the Aug. 2 deadline for raising the debt limit a "false date" and "pure fiction," minimizing the consequences of the U.S. Department of the Treasury not paying its legal obliga-

Dobbs made his on-air comments in response to Dennis Hastert, former Republican speaker of the House, who said that "the federal government can decide what it's going to pay, when, and where."

Most economists and Federal Reserve Board Chairman Ben Bernanke disagree. For starters, the bond rating companies would downgrade the nation's credit rating, they say. If investors avoid the Treasury market, the federal government would be unable to pay its bills which in turn would result in an immediate default.

Dobbs, who left his longtime broadcast home, CNN, in 2009 and launched "Lou Dobbs Tonight" on Fox Business in March, hasn't shied away from controversy in his four months on the air, accusing Democrats and President Obama of waging "class warfare" by proposing tax increases for wealthy Americans, comparing the Environmental Protection Agency to the Soviet Union, and accusing Obama of selling ambassadorships for "a half-million-plus." And he continues to speak out harshly against U.S. immigration policy, a topic that got him in trouble with Latino viewers during his tenure at CNN.

But Dobbs doesn't have the audience that he once did: During his last year on on Thursday.

CNN, about 700,000 viewers tuned into "Lou Dobbs Tonight" on any given weekday evening. On Wednesday night, Fox Business' primetime lineup pulled in about 54,000 viewers, according to zap2it.com. (Dobbs also hosts a three-hour, fiveday-a-week syndicated talk show that can be heard locally on Twin Falls' KTFI-AM.)

The Texas-born Dobbs moved to Rupert at age 12, bucked hay on Minidoka County farms in the summer, played tackle on the Minico High School football team, served as student body president and won the state American Legion oratorical contest. As a senior, he was bound for either Idaho State University or the University of Idaho, but a Minico teacher paid his $25 application fee to Harvard University.

Dobbs was accepted, graduated with a bachelor's degree in economics in 1967 and went to work for Union Bank in Los Angeles as a cash-management specialist. Bored with the job, he took a flier on an opening for a TV reporter in Yuma, Ariz. After stints with stations in Phoenix and Seattle, he was hired by Ted Turner for the fledgling CNN in 1980. Dobbs stayed for 17 years, quit after a dispute with then-CNN President Rick Kaplan, and then returned for a second, eight-year stint in 2001.

He now lives on a 300acre horse farm in New Jersey with his wife, former CNN sports anchor Debi Segura.

GEORGE, Utah • A former St. George, Utah, resident now living in Terome was sentenced Wednes-

Larrabee day to a minimum of 20 years in prison for sexually abusing a now-teenaged victim at a St. George motel in 2008. Michael David Larrabee, 54, was found guilty during a December jury trial of two counts of sexual abuse of a child and one count of dealing in materials harmful to a minor. The counts carry an aggravating factor because Larrabee was in a position of responsibility or special influence over the victim at the time.

Larrabee has maintained his innocence since the trial and defense attorney Kenneth Brown informed the court Wednesday that his client plans to appeal the verdict.

"I have great admiration and respect for our judicial system. I do believe, however, that the jury got it wrong," Larrabee told Judge James Shumate before being sentenced.

Washington County Deputy Attorney Ryan Shaum said Larrabee began grooming the victim before moving to St. George, as evidenced by nude photos of the girl he was convicted of taking, although no such photos could be located to present as evidence during the tri-

Because Larrabee continues to claim he's innocent, Shaum said Larrabee poses a risk to the community "because treatment is not effective and we don't know who might be a victim in the future."

Brown had filed a motion with the court asking Shumate to stay the sentence until Larrabee's appeal could be resolved, and to allow Larrabee to remain at liberty until the appeal is decided.

Shumate denied the motions, and Larrabee was led away in handcuffs.

"I don't believe he is a flight risk," Shumate said. "But I've been doing this long enough to believe he is not going to find any relief on appeal."

much of that money is at risk. In Idaho, that program is worth more than $54 million, and in South Dakota, about $43.7 million.

As high-profile cheating investigations in Georgia, Pennsylvania and Washington, D.C., call attention to statewide standardized testing, experts say many districts are feeling pressured to meet the standards to avoid penalties under the law.

The No Child Left Behind law was passed in 2001 and signed by then-President George W. Bush. It has been widely panned by critics who say it brands schools as failures even as they make progress, discourages high academic standards and encourages educators to teach to the test as opposed to providing practical classroom learning to students.

There's bipartisan support for an overhaul, but Republicans and Democrats have different ideas about what sort of reforms should go into the law and how long writing a new bill should take. Education Secretary Arne Duncan has urged the U.S. House to finish before the next school year starts this fall, but the Republican chairman of the House education committee has said his panel plans to work through the fall.

Montana Schools Superintendent Denise

Juneau said the state decided to freeze the federal requirements so schools will not be inaccurately labeled as failing - and suffer the scorn that comes along with the classifi-

"Everyone knows it's broken. And the biggest broken piece of No Child Left Behind are these arbitrary bars," Juneau said. "It's one thing we could do to assist schools and not getting labeled as failing or be denigrated in the press when they are absolutely doing a better (job)?"

Schools are required to meet 41 benchmarks for student achievement under the law and a school's annual yearly progress is calculated based on test participation, academic achievement, graduation rates and other statistics.

But every few years, the percentage of students who must pass state tests increases.

Of the 821 public school schools in Montana, 255 are not making adequate yearly progress under the current benchmarks. If the state makes the next jump under No Child Left Behind, a whopping 383 schools nearly half — wouldn't be up to snuff under the federal law.

Juneau said she is optimistic her state will reach a compromise with the federal government on conforming to the law while also helping schools.

For the Magic Valley, they aren't really big, extensive projects - not, at least, compared to the slew of high-profile jobs in recent years like the expansion of Blue Lakes Boulevard, the Twin Falls Alternate Route and the ongoing work along U.S. Highway 93

But the list shouldn't be underestimated, either.

"It's definitely necessary work," said Nathan Jerke, a spokesman for ITD's Region 4, which serves the Magic and Wood River valleys.

Those driving regularly into Gooding would certainly notice one proposal: a traffic signal planned for 2014 at the intersection of U.S. Highway 26 and Idaho Highway 46. The intersection currently only has a blinking light.

Much of the work is routine maintenance, like repaving.

Even routine work won't go unnoticed, of course. For example, a replacement is slated of a bridge crossing the Snake River for westbound lanes along Interstate 84 in Minidoka County.

Transportation includes more than the state's highway system. Airport improvements are also on the list — including the effort to bring Blaine County a new airport.

ITD plans between $21 million and $27 million annually for pavement work each of the next five years at the replacement for Friedman Memorial Airport in Hailey. But that funding going into the plan doesn't guarantee that the new airport will go up under that schedule, because the Federal Aviation Administration still needs to complete its environmental impact study for the project.

"It's put together with the best information we have," said Bill Statham, planning and development manager for ITD's aeronautics division. "... They're a little more on the anticipated side than being a commitment to the projects."

tractor he was trying to start dragged him and ran him over, police say. The tractor crushed Roscoe Bradbury Ward after he was attempting to climb into its moving cab shortly after 10:25 a.m. on the E.Y. Ranch near Almo in southern Cassia County. According to a Cassia County sheriff's report, Ward's wife, Joyce, said her husband was working with their grandson-in-law and farmhand Bryan Wallace to bring hay out of a field at the time of the accident.

Redistricting Continued from the front page that the redistricting panel held in the region, some of the most emotional testimony was whether Jerome County belonged in a district shared with Twin Falls County. Currently, Jerome County's District 26 also includes Minidoka County.

For Twin Falls County's 77,230 residents, the dilemma is this: it's too many people to come anywhere near the 42,548 to 47,024 range that each of the state's 35 districts must hit.

"Twin Falls County is going to have to be divided because there isn't a population small enough to give an even number of districts," said George Moses, a Democratic redistricting commissioner.

Moses said the "community of interest" parameter of the law was followed by keeping the city whole, adding that commissioners also considered testimony heard in Twin Falls. While the testimony varied, he said there was plenty of support to put Twin Falls and Jerome counties together.

Under the plan, the northwest sliver of Twin Falls County would move to District 26, which includes Blaine, Lincoln and Gooding counties, while a section east of Hansen would join District 27. That district would primarily consist of Cassia and Minidoka counties.

That would be another major change for the Magic Valley, which currently has a district encompassing Jerome and Minidoka counties. District 27 currently exists separately for Cassia County, extending east to the Bannock County border.

Rep. Stephen Hartgen, R-Twin Falls, isn't too keen on what the Democrats' proposal would mean for the Magic Valley, noting that there was also testimony against cobbling Jerome and Twin Falls counties together.

"This plan would basically dismember the Magic Valley delegation that is currently representing the Magic Valley in the Legislature and it's clearly partisan," he said, adding that it doesn't have a "ghost of a chance" of passing.

ronmental groups are casting doubt on the BLM's new plan. "The sage grouse is not on the downward slope due to a lack of paperwork," said Brian Ertz, media director for the Hailey-based Western Watersheds Project.

The BLM must commit to curtailing harmful environmental impacts to sage grouse habitat for this strategy to succeed, Ertz said. However, he does not believe enough measures will be taken.

"The ESA works for a reason," he said. "Trying to avoid listing by creating more paperwork is not the best solution."

After Idaho Dental Cuts, the Pain Runs Deep

Editor's note: An incomplete version of this story ran in the main edition of Thursday's newspaper. The Times-News regrets the error.

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI

kkruesi@magicvalley.com

Idaho's recent Medicaid coverage cuts are not going unnoticed.

As a pediatric dentist at Smiles 4 Kids in Twin Falls, Dr. Garth Stoddard has seen the effects of the Legislature's decision to trim state Medicaid spending first-hand.

"It's frustrating to have cuts and not have anyone seem interested in what these cuts will mean," he said.

The state's cost-saving Medicaid reform passed earlier this year left more than 42,000 Idahoans under Medicaid without nonemergency dental coverage. The dental program cuts—part of larger, $34 million reform-based savings—are estimated to save the state $1.7 million from the general fund and $3.9 million in federal funds.

The cuts will only affect adults over the age of 21. Children and pregnant women will continue to receive Medicaid-provided dental services.

Stoddard estimated the office sees 600-700 Medicaid patients a month. However, he said he expects that number to grow as a result of the Medicaid coverage cuts.

"I'm getting calls from other dentists wanting to know if I can take a certain case or a special-needs patient now that other offices can no longer accept adult Medicaid patients," he said. "As a dentist, I want to say yes but I can't take them all."

While Medicaid-covered children will still receive dental services, current adults will still need care, said Dr. Don Wyatt, who runs a dental practice in Twin Falls. Wyatt was also the recent president for the South Central Idaho Dental Association.

"Obviously it's a great thing that young children will still receive dental care," he said. "But by the time something gets to an emergency level the treatment is costly, so how much money is being saved here?"

The cuts will particularly affect those whose sole income comes from Social Security, said Robyn Ho Chee, co-owner for Omega Services Coordination. The organization provides health service coordinators for mentally disabled individuals.

"Our concern is finding dentists for our clients," Ho Chee said. "People are still going to routine cleanups and some people will need sedation during a procedure, but very few are going to be able to afford it."

Family Health Services offers the only clinic with a sliding fee scale in the area, Ho Chee said. She fears that clients will face a difficult time scheduling appointments there as more and more people flood the clinic.

"In this area, people do not have fallback options if Medicaid services keep getting cut," she said. "I'm worried about the future of these decisions."

However, Wyatt believes that the budget changes could also be a time to begin changing the structure of Medicaid.

Removing non-emergency coverage will only maintain a certain level of sub-standard hygiene, he said.

"Medicaid offers a lot of good options for people but is a broken system," he said. "Instead of giving people emergency coverage, Medicaid needs to offer incentives to maintain healthy dental hygiene so they never get to an emergency level."

British Realist Painter Lucian Freud Dies at 88

BY GREGORY KATZ The Associated Press

LONDON • In a time when other artists spilled their paints on the canvas, Lucian Freud carefully wiped his brush after every stroke. He painted intense, disturbing realist portraits even when representational art was deemed passe. He took months or longer to finish a work, but it took critics and collectors years to catch up to

A towering and uncompromising figure in the art world for more than 50 years, Freud died late Wednesday night in his London home, his New York-based art dealer said Thursday. He was 88.

Spokeswoman Bettina Prentice said that Freud died after an illness, but didn't give any further details.

He painted "until the day he died, far removed from the noise of the art world," his dealer, William R. Acquavella, said in a statement.

Freud's unique style eventually earned him recognition as one of the world's greatest painters. His paintings command staggering prices at auction, including one of an overweight nude woman sleeping on a couch that sold in 2008 for $33.6 million -arecord for a living artist.

"He certainly is considered one of the most important painters of the 20th and 21st centuries," said Brett Gorvy, deputy chairman of the postwar art department at Christie's auction house in New York. "He stayed with his figurative approach even when it was extremely unpopular, when abstraction was the leading concept, and as time moved on his classic approach has proven to be very important.

"He fought the system and basically won."

A grandson of Sigmund Freud, a leading pioneer of modern psychoanalysis, Freud was especially known for his nudes. He meticulously revealed every flaw, creating an intimate, unflinching level of detail that sometimes leaves viewers uncomfort-

"He has certainly divided critics," said Starr Figura, a curator at the Museum of Modern Art in New York.

"The ones who don't appreciate him find his work hard to look at and a bit out of step with what is going on in the rest of the world. They have a hard time categorizing it," she said.

"I think his work is very charged, and it is quite disturbing to look at," Figura said. "That's what gives people a problem and that's what gives his work power and fascination. His work is incredibly personal, and that comes through. On the other hand it is also very detached and critical and that is what makes it so intense."

Gorvy said Freud painted long hours every day, even in his late 80s, in a sustained bid to complete his life's work.

"He lived and breathed his art," he said. "For someone who was so successful, he was extraordinarily regulated in his day, with three main sittings a day and some at night. He worked each and every day to this very tough regime. He was very aware of his own mortality and he knew his time was very, very precious."

Born in Berlin in 1922, Freud moved to London with his parents Ernst and Lucie Freud in 1933 after Hitler and the Nazis rose to power in Germany.

He was naturalized as a British subject six years later and spent almost his entire working life based in London, where he was often seen at fashionable restaurants, sometimes with beautiful younger women, including the fashion model Kate Moss, whom he painted nude, and other luminaries.

He was at the height of his fame in the last decades of his life, when he still continued to paint for long hours at his studio in London's exclusive Holland Park. He was even named one of Britain's best dressed men by the fashion magazine GQ when he was well into his ninth decade.

Among his most famous subjects was Queen Elizabeth II, who posed for Freud fully clothed after extensive negotiations between the palace and the painter. The colorful portrait, which the artist donated to the queen's collection, remains one of the most unusual and controversial depictions of the British monarch.

"It makes her look like one of the royal corgis who has suffered a stroke," said Robin Simon, editor of the British Art Journal.

Other critics said more enthusiastically that the work had broken the staid mold of royal portraiture.

In his studio, Freud worked extremely slowly and deliberately. People who posed for Freud said it sometimes took him months or years to complete a portrait because of his attention to every tiny detail and the complex nature of his brushwork, which gave his paintings a lifelike intensity. He sometimes spent entire days mixing paints without putting a brush to canvas. When he did finally paint, he would wipe his brush on a cloth rag after every stroke. Great piles of rags lay on the floor of his studio and eventually he began to incorporate the rags into some of his paintings. Freud often painted his

Hearing Reopens for U.S. Soldier in Afghan Deaths

BY GENE JOHNSON The Associated Press

JOINT BASE LEWIS-Me-CHORD, Wash. • A soldier who has already admitted his role in last year's thrill killings of three Afghan civilians took the witness stand Thursday against the sergeant he fingered as the mastermind of the grisly plot.

Pvt. Jeremy Morlock, of Wasilla, Alaska, testified that Staff Sgt. Calvin Gibbs started talking about the idea of slaughtering civilians soon after joining the unit in late 2009 and told unit members the he had previously fired on a civilian vehicle in Iraq with a machine gun.

"He'd been looking to implement something like that," Morlock testified before reiterating his claims that Gibbs was directly involved in the three deaths.

The testimony came as the Army reopened a preliminary hearing in Gibbs' case to give him the chance to cross-examine Morlock and other witnesses. Morlock earlier this year reached a deal with prosecutors to plead guilty and testify against others in exchange for a 24-year sen-

Gibbs is accused of a wide range of misconduct, from providing a grenade used in January 2010 to kill the first victim, an unarmed farmer in a field in Kandahar Province, to directly shooting or tossing grenades at the next two in February and May of that year. In each case, Morlock said, he and Gibbs enlisted the assistance of one other soldier to carry out the murders.

Five soldiers in all have been charged with conspiracy and murder in the three killings, and another has been charged with discussing hypothetical murder scenarios with subordinates and with soliciting a murder that never occurred.

Prosecutors say Gibbs also led a group of others in assaulting a soldier who reported drug use in the unit, and that he threatened that same soldier with fingers severed from the bodies of dead Afghans. That soldier, Pfc. Justin Stoner, also took the stand Thursday and recounted the beating for an investigating officer who will ultimately make a recommendation on what charges against Gibbs should proceed to a court martial.

Stoner said that after the beating, Gibbs and Morlock paid him another visit to make sure he wasn't going to tell anyone about what happened. Gibbs then unrolled a and displayed two severed fingers, warning Stoner that things could get worse if he blabbed.

"It was kind of yellow, shriveled, decrepit," Stoner said. "I just kind of sat there. I acknowledged everything he wanted me to acknowledge."

"The state has more experience now with the animal industry and these new rules can reflect the lessons learned instead of repeating the same mistakes," Washburn said.

The most serious environmental issue related to large-scale poultry operations is nitrates, which have been measured in significant amounts in Magic Valley groundwater. The state has identified Twin Falls as the worst county in the state for high nitrate levels in groundwater, and northern Twin Falls and Cassia counties and southern Minidoka County are designated as nitrate priority areas because nitrates were measured too close to the safe limit in at least onequarter of drinking water samples.

These areas simply have no margin for error. High nitrate levels in water can cause methemoglobinemia or blue baby syndrome, a condition found especially in infants under six en. Kent Conrad, D-N.D., is claiming that if the Congressional Budget Office scored the "Gang of Six" deficit reduction plan, "it would find net tax relief of approximately $1.5 trillion." This is deeply misleading. Far from a net tax cut, the Gang of Six plan would result in a massive tax hike of as much as $3 trillion. Democrats understand this which is why President Obama was so quick to embrace the plan.

When normal people judge what constitutes a tax increase, they compare what they will pay tomorrow to what they are paying today. If that number goes up, it's a tax increase. That is not how the Gang of Six did its tax calculations. The Gang of Six's assumptions are based on current law, not current policy. Big difference. Current policy assumes Americans will continue to pay what they are paying right now. Current law assumes that, over the next decade, taxes will go up by some $4.5 trillion dollars because of tax cut expirations. The Gang of Six reduces this $4.5 trillion tax increase by $1.5 trillion and calls it a tax cut. But the practical result is really a $3 trillion tax increase over what Americans pay today.

The Gang of Six plan eliminates the alternative minimum tax, or AMT. In scoring this, they assume, based on current law, that tens of millions of middle-class families would have paid the AMT, at a in practice, middle-class families never pay the AMT - because every year Congress passes what is called an AMT "patch" exempting them from the tax. In other words, about $660 billion of the taxes the Gang of Six claims to be cutting over the next 10 years exist only on paper.

The Gang of Six - Conrad; Sen. Mike Crapo, R-Idaho; Sen. Saxby Chambliss, R-Ga.; Sen. Tom Coburn, R-Okla.; Sen. Dick Durbin, D-Ill., and Sen. Mark Warner, D-Va. also assumes that a number of other tax provisions called "tax extenders" such as the research and development tax credit will expire at the end of the year. But most of these provisions are routinely extended by Congress. That is another $750 billion over 10 years that that Gang of Six inaccurately counts toward its tax cut total.

The Gang of Six also assumes that all the Bush tax cuts will expire at the end of 2012. But no serious person in Washington believes that all the Bush tax cuts will be ident Obama and congressional Democrats support extending some of these tax cuts, and Republicans oppose eliminating any of them. Unless Congress is ready to support the repeal all of the Bush tax cuts - and thus the imposition of a massive middle-class tax increase - that is another roughly $3 trillion over 10 years the Gang of Six inaccurately counts.

So if you judge the Gang of Six plan against current law - which assumes millions of middle-class families would have paid the AMT for the first time next year, the R&D tax credit and other tax "extenders" will disappear, and all of the Bush tax cuts, including those for the middle class, will expire on Jan. 1, 2013 – then yes, the Gang of Six cuts taxes by $1.5 trillion. But judged against current policy - what Americans pay today in taxes - the Gang of Six plan constitutes a massive tax increase.

And what about spending? Aside from freezing congresperiod of time, repealing the CLASS act (a new long-term health-care benefit created under Obamacare), changes in the Consumer Price Index, and few other small provisions, there are no specific cuts in the Gang of Six plan at all.

To see just how absurd Conrad's tax cut claim is, consider this: If the Gang of Six really cut taxes by a net $1.5 trillion, how on Earth does its plan reduce the deficit by $3.7 trillion? That would require $5.2 trillion in spending cuts. But the plan outlines nowhere near those kinds of cuts. And even if it did, does anyone believe President Obama would sign into law a plan that cut spending $5.2 trillion while also cutting taxes by $1.5 trillion? Not a chance.

The Gang of Six plan constitutes a massive tax hike disguised as a tax cut. No wonder Obama likes it. The question is: Why would any Republican go along?

A Big, Happy Polygamist Family Wants to Be Left Alone

ince the Supreme Court's 2003 decision in Lawrence v. Texas, Americans have enjoyed unprecedented freedom in their lifestyles and private relationships. The decision held that states could no longer use the criminal code for social engineering, dictating the most intimate decisions of citizens in their choice of partners and relations. But even as states have abandoned laws criminalizing homosexual and adulterous relations, they have continued to prosecute one group of consenting adults: polygamists.

Last week in Utah, one such family filed a challenge to the state's criminal law. That family – Kody Brown, his four wives and 16 children - is the focus of a reality program on TLC called Sister Wives. One of the marriages is legal and the others are what the family calls "spiritual." They are not asking for the state to recognize their marriages. They are simply asking for the state to leave them alone.

Utah and eight other states make polygamy a crime, while 49 states have bigamy statutes that can be used to prosecute plural families. And they're not a small population: the number of fundamentalist Mormon or Christian polygamists alone has been estimated to be as high as 50,000. When Muslim as well as nonreligious plural families are considered, the real number is likely many times greater.

The case of the Browns, for whom I am lead counsel, is a clear example of unacceptable government intrusion. The family has not been accused of child abuse or other crime, in almost a year of being under criminal investigation. With such allegations stripped away, the only thing remaining is a family that does not look like those of other Utah citizens. The question is whether that is enough to declare them criminals.

Polygamy is just one form among the many types of plural relationships in our society. It is widely accepted that a person can have multiple partners and have children with such partners. But the minute that person expresses a spiritual commitment and "cohabits" with those partners, it is considered a crime.

One might expect the civil liberties community to defend those cases as a natural extension of its campaign for greater privacy and personal choice. But too many have either been silent or outright hostile to demands from polygamists for the same protections provided to other groups under Lawrence.

The reason might be strategic: some view the effort to decriminalize polygamy as a threat to the recognition of same-sex marriages or gay rights generally. After all, many who opposed the decriminalization of homosexual relations used polygamy as the culmination of a parade of horribles. In his dissent in Lawrence, Justice Antonin Scalia said the case would mean the legalization of "bigamy, same-sex marriage, adult incest, prostitution, masturbation, adultery, fornication, bestiality and obscenity."

Scalia is right in one respect, though not intentionally. Homosexuals and polygamists do have a common interest: the right to be left alone as consenting adults. Otherwise he's dead wrong. There is no spectrum of private consensual relations — there is just a right of privacy that protects all people so long as they do not harm others.

Civil libertarians should not be scared away by the arguments of people like Scalia. We should fight for privacy as an inclusive concept. Regardless of whether it is a gay or plural relationship, the struggle and the issue remains the same: the right to live your life according to your own values and faith.

Montana Transportation Officials to Fight Ruling Blocking Megaloads

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP) • Montana Department of Transportation officials said they will continue to fight a lawsuit filed by Missoula County and three conservation groups that seeks to block huge loads of oilfield equipment from being transported on twolane roads through the northwestern part of the state and into Canada.

On Tuesday, District Judge Ray Dayton granted a preliminary injunction blocking the agency from issuing permits to transport the Imperial Oil loads over Montana roadways into Canada.

The judge said the department didn't assess wetlands or floodplain information and didn't seem to adequately consider the impacts of new turnouts along the route. He also said the environmental assessment wasn't clear on how the agency concluded an interstate route wasn't fea-

"The case is probably ripe for summary judgment, because we've already got in the evidence that is probably going to be ultimately considered," said deputy county attorney James Mc-Cubbin. "So that's likely the next step."

Imperial Oil, a Canadian subsidiary of Exxon Mobil, applied for permits to haul 207 huge loads of equipment from the port of Lewiston in Idaho over U.S. Highway 12 and state Highway 200 in western Montana to an oil sands project in northeastern Alberta. Space Shuttle Calls It a Day

With the words 'wheels stop' crackling over the cockpit radio for the very last time, the U.S. space shuttle program passes into history.

BY MARCIA DUNN

The Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL • In an almost anticlimactic end to the 30year-old program, Atlantis and its four astronauts glided to a ghostly landing in near-darkness after one last visit to the International Space Station, completing the 135th and final shuttle flight.

It was a moment of both triumph and melancholy.

"I saw grown men and grown women crying today — tears of joy to be sure," said launch director Mike Leinbach. "Human emotions came out on the runway today, and you couldn't suppress them?'

Now the spaceship and the two other surviving shuttles will become museum pieces, like the Mercury, Gemini and Apollo capsules and the Wright brothers' flying machine before them. NASA astronauts, a dwindling breed, will have to hitch rides to the space station aboard Russian Soyuz capsules for at least three to five years. And thousands more shuttle workers will lose their jobs, beginning with a round of layoffs on Friday.

The spaceship's return was witnessed at the Kennedy Space Center and Houston's Johnson Space Center by a relatively small crowd, mostly of NASA family and friends, compared with the 1 million who watched Atlantis lift

GUNFIRE, EXPLOSIONS ERUPT AS SYRIAN CITY BESIEGED

BY BASSEM MROUE

The Associated Press

BEIRUT • Gunfire and explosions erupted Thursday in the city at the heart of Syria's anti-government uprising as soldiers launched a massive crackdown, witnesses said. Terrified residents cowered inside their homes and used mosque loudspeakers to call for blood donations to help the wounded.

Details about the siege in Homs were sketchy, as most witnesses told The AP they were too scared even to look out their windows. The city has seen some of the most intense violence as the regime tries to stamp out a revolt that has lasted more than four months.

"I can see smoke billowing from the neighborhood," a witness told The Associated Press by telephone from the Bab Sbaa area of Homs, about 100 miles from Damascus. Heavy gunfire crackled in the background. "We cannot leave our homes."

Calls for blood donations blared from mosque loudspeakers, raising fears of mass casualties. But the gunfire was too intense for people to collect any victims.

As darkness fell, another resident said the violence had tapered off, with only intermittent cracks of gunfire. He said Syrian soldiers in personnel carriers were leaving the area.

Both spoke on condition of anonymity for fear of reprisals by the government.

The regime has banned nearly all foreign media and restricted coverage, making it nearly impossible to independently verify events on the ground or casualty figures.

Government Seeks Clearer Labeling of Poultry Additives

BY MARY CLARE

JALONICK Associated Press

WASHINGTON • The Agriculture Department wants consumers to know when there's less chicken in their chicken.

A proposed rule aimed at food companies would require that poultry and other raw meats be labeled appropriately when they're plumped up by added solutions such as chicken broth, teriyaki sauce, salt or water. The practice of adding those ingredients is common, but many consumers don't know about it.

According to USDA, about one-third of poultry, 15 percent of beef and 90 percent of pork may have added ingredients - about 40 percent of all raw, whole cuts of meat. The rule does not apply to ground beef, which may have other added substances.

"Consumers should be able to make an informed choice in the store, which is why we need to provide

Georgia Inmate Dies in Videotaped Lethal Injection

JACKSON, Ga. • A Georgia man convicted of killing his parents and sister was executed Thursday after the courts allowed what experts say is the nation's first video-recorded execution in almost two decades.

Andrew DeYoung, 37, received a lethal injection Thursday night at the state prison in Jackson after courts turned down his appeals.

A videographer with a camera on a tripod stood about 5 feet away from the gurney inside the execution chamber.

When asked to make a final statement, DeYoung said he was "sorry to everyone I hurt."

"I love you Dawn. Remember to smile," DeYoung said. His lawyer said Dawn was an old friend.

Greece Gets New Bailout with Private Sector Help

BY GABRIELE STEINHAUSER Associated Press

BRUSSELS (AP) • Eurozone leaders on Thursday agreed to a sweeping deal that will grant Greece a massive new bailout - but likely make it the first euro country to default - and radically reshape the currency union's rescue fund, allowing it to act pre-emptively

The deal resolves a political deadlock between Europe's top economic authorities over how to save Greece that had investors worried the debt crisis would spin out of control. Faced with the danger of big economies like Italy becoming unstable, the officials sought to outdo expectations at an emergency meeting in Brussels.

The eurozone countries and the International Monetary Fund will give Greece a second bailout worth 109 billion euros ($155 billion), on top of the 110 billion euros granted a year ago.

Banks and other private investors will contribute some 50 billion euros to the rescue package until 2014 by either rolling over Greek bonds that they hold, swapping them for new ones with lower interest rates or selling the bonds back to Greece at a low price.

"For the first time since the beginning of this crisis, we can say that the politics and the markets are coming together," said European Commission President Jose Manuel Barroso.

Initial reaction from markets and analysts to Thursday's deal was cautiously positive. The euro, which had rallied sharply on expectation of the deal, rose further to gain 1.2% against the dollar.

VIRGINIA MARKS MANASSAS' 150TH

MANASSAS, Va. • On Thursday, Virginia Gov. Bob McDonnell and others commemorated the 150th anniversary of the Civil War's first major land battle, gathering on the hill on Manassas National Battlefield Park where much of the battle was fought. "The nation got its first real look at civil war," said Jonathan Jarvis, director of the National Park Service, which maintains the battlefield. "It dispelled the notion that this war would be a quiet affair." Up until then, both sides expected the war to be settled quickly.

EX-MANAGER CONTRADICTS MURDOCH'S TESTIMONY

LONDON • James Murdoch's former legal adviser and a former editor contested the testimony he gave to British lawmakers, saying Thursday he was told years ago about an email that suggested the rot at his Sunday tabloid was far more widespread than previously claimed. Their statement could deal a blow to the credibility of Rupert Murdoch's son as the family struggles to limit the damage from a scandal that has already cost the media empire one of its British tabloids and two top executives.

iFraud: Apple Stores Faked in China

BY LOUISE WATT

Associated Press

BEIJING (AP) • It looks almost exactly like a sleek Apple store. Sales assistants in blue T-shirts with the company's logo chat with customers. Signs advertising the iPad 2 hang on the white walls. Outside, the famous logo sits next to the words "Apple Store" – one of the few clues that the whole thing is a fake.

China, long known for producing counterfeit consumer gadgets, software and brand name clothing, has reached a new piracy milestone – fake Apple stores.

An American who lives in Kunming in southern Yunnan province said Thursday that she and her husband stumbled on three shops masquerading as bona fide Apple stores in the city a few days ago. She took photos and posted them on her BirdAbroad blog.

The 27-year-old blogger, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the setup of the stores was so convincing that the employees themselves seemed to believe they worked for Apple.

"It had the classic Apple store winding staircase and weird upstairs sitting area. The employees were even wearing those blue T-shirts with the chunky Apple name tags around their necks," she wrote on her blog.

"But some things were just not right: the stairs were poorly made. The walls hadn't been painted properly. Apple never writes 'Apple Store' on its signs — it just puts up the glowing, iconic

A worker at the fake Apple store on Zhengyi Road in Kunming, which most of the photos of the BirdAbroad blog show, told The Associated Press that they are an "Apple store" before hanging up.

But the three stores are not among the authorized resellers listed on Apple Inc.'s website. The maker of the iPhone and other hit gadgets has four company stores in China – two in Beijing and two in Shanghai — and various official resellers.

Amy Bessette, a spokeswoman for the Cupertino, California-based company, said it had no comment on the Chinese stores, but pointed to a Web page on Ap-

Exxon Spill Highlights Gaps in Pipeline Oversight

BY MATTHEW BROWN and GARANCE BURKE Associated Press

BILLINGS, Mont. • Three weeks after a broken Exxon Mobil pipeline spilled 1,000 barrels of oil into the Yellowstone River, federal officials remain unsure how many pipelines carrying hazardous fuels cross the nation's rivers and streams, nor can they say how deeply those pipelines are buried.

The spill into the Montana river amid historic flooding this month drew attention to what had long been an overlooked part of the nation's energy infrastructure: the presence of pipelines underneath rivers coursing throughout the country. The spill raised concern that other underwater pipelines may have been exposed to debris by high and fast-moving waters that swept much of the U.S. in recent months.

As regulators scramble to gauge what other lines might be at risk, lawmakers from both parties are raising alarms that another spill could be imminent unless the government steps up oversight of the largely self-regulated pipeline industry.

"If we don't know where the (pipelines) are in the ground and how many crossings are under rivers and streams so we can check on them, we're asking for another catastrophe," said U.S. Sen. Jon Tester.

Tester, a Montana Democrat, said he was dismayed that the U.S. Pipeline and Hazardous Material Safety Administration could not immediately provide an inventory of pipeline crossings when he requested the information. "We had massive water this year, make no mistake about that. We need to re-evaluate the impact of those floods on the river crossings," he said.

clear, informative labels that will help consumers make the best decisions about feeding their families," said Elisabeth Hagen, head of food safety at the department. "It has become evident that some raw meat and poultry labels, even those that follow our current guidelines, may not be clear."

Labels now say that the meat contains added solutions or is "enhanced," but they may not be visible to consumers or understandable. If the rules are finalized, the label would now have to be part of the product title. An example of the new labels would be "chicken breast - 40% added solution of water and teriyaki sauce," according to USDA.

Richard Lobb of the National Chicken Council says the poultry industry is split on the issue, as some companies add ingredients to their poultry and some don't. He said that for those who do add ingredients to poultry, the level of additives is generally 15 to 18 percent of the piece of meat.

Red meat processors immediately objected to the rule. The American Meat Institute called it "wasteful" and "unnecessary" and said it would cause prices to go up for consumers.

Consumer groups have been pressuring the department to crack down on the practice for several years, saying the added ingredients are unhealthy.

"Who wants to pay $4.99 a pound for the added water and salt?" said Michael Jacobson, executive director of the advocacy group Center for Science in the Public Interest

In Houston, flight director Tony Ceccacci, who presided over Atlantis' safe return, choked up while signing off from Mission Control for the final time.

"The work done in this room, in this building, will never again be duplicated," he told his team before the doors opened and the center filled with dozens of past and present flight controllers.

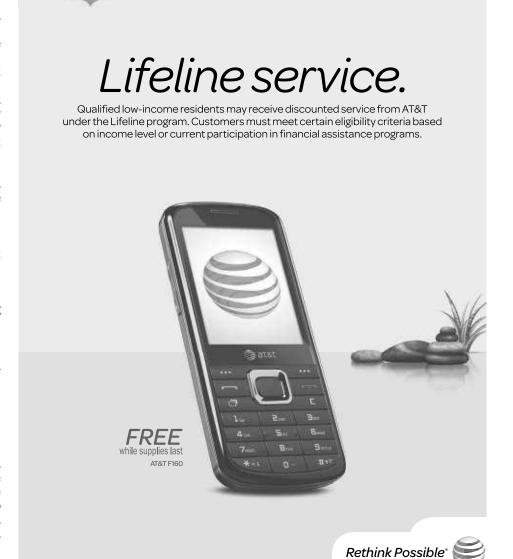

Shuttle commander Christopher Ferguson and his crew seized every opportunity to thank the thousands of workers who got them safely to and from orbit and guided them through the 13-day flight.

"After serving the world for over 30 years, the space shuttle's earned its place in history. And it's come to a final stop," he radioed after Atlantis touched down just before dawn.

"We copy your wheels stop," Mission Control replied. "Job well done, America:"

NASA is getting out of the business of sending cargo and astronauts to the space station, outsourcing the job to private companies.

The first privately operated supply run is expect ed later this year. But it will be an unmanned flight. It could be several years before private companies fly astronauts to the space station, which is expected to carry on for at least another decade. In the meantime, NASA will rely on the Russians for rides.

States Cut Funds that Help Poor Cool Their Homes

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) • Many states hit hardest by this week's searing heat wave have drastically cut or entirely eliminated programs that help poor people pay their electric bills, forcing thousands to go without air conditioning when they need it most.

Oklahoma ran out of money in just three days. Illinois cut its program to focus on offering heating money for the winter ahead. And Indiana isn't taking any new applicants. When weighed against education and other budget needs, cooling assistance has been among the first items cut, and advocates for the poor say that could make this heat wave even more dangerous.

"I've never seen it this bad," said Timothy Bruer, executive of Energy Services Inc., which administers the federal Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program in 14 Wisconsin counties. The group has turned away about 80 percent of applicants seeking cooling assistance.

The sizzling summer heat comes after a bitterly cold, snowy winter in many places and at a time when unemployment remains stubbornly high.

The cuts began after Congress eliminated millions of dollars in potential aid, forcing state lawmakers to scale back energy assistance programs. The agencies that distribute the money are worried that the situation could get even worse next year because the White House is considering cutting the program in half.

Joyce Agee, a retired secretary from South Beloit, Ill., said she typically receives about $300 in utility assistance each summer and up to $600 for the winter to supplement her Social Security income. After running her air conditioner constantly, she's worried about her next electric bill.

"I've cut back on what I eat so that I can pay my light bills and everything else;" she said.

The government provided $4.7 billion for lowincome energy assistance for the fiscal year that ends Sept. 30, down $400 million from the year before. The money is primarily used by states to help with heating bills in winter, which lasts longer and causes higher utility bills.

CINCINNATI • Hot weather that has plagued the Plains for days spread eastward Thursday, blanketing several more states under a sizzling sun that made people sick, shut down summer schools and spurred cities to offer cooling centers and free

The temperature could soar to 101 $\,$ in Toledo, Ohio - 2 degrees above a record set in 1930. Combined with the humidity, it could feel as hot as 115 across Ohio.

"It feels very sultry, very uncomfortable, and it's just very dangerous," said Jim Lott, lead forecaster for the National Weather Service office in Wilmington, Ohio.

Government forecasters issued excessive heat warnings for a huge section of the country, from Kansas to Massachusetts, while some southern states were under heat advi-

Thursday shaped up as the hottest day of a steamy week in Ohio, with temperatures climbing to 97 in the southwestern part of the state. Farther east, the worst of the heat waited for Friday and the weekend.

Scattered deaths have been blamed on the heat nationwide. The Ohio Health Department said emergency room visits have been three or four times higher than usual this week, mainly due to heat exhaustion and heat stroke cases.

Thousands of homes and businesses in southern Michigan lost power Thursday morning as people cranked up air conditioner use. Ferndale Recreation Director Julie Hall said a cooling center in suburban Detroit took in numerous senior citizens after their nearby apartment lost electricity.

Lisa Blumentritt headed to the cooling center after spending Wednesday night without air conditioning in an apartment where it was "difficult to breathe."

Jackson, Mich.-based Consumers Energy asked its 1.8 million customers to try to reduce their electricity use by raising thermostats a few degrees, limiting opening of refrigerator doors and turning off unnecessary lights and appliances.

Baltimore, Annapolis and several other Maryland cities opened public cooling centers for folks to find relief. Allentown, Pa., waived fees at all public pools.

The temperature approached triple digits in Philadelphia and much of central and western New York. Philadelphia school officials sent students home early Thursday and canceled summer school for Fri-

Pentagon to Announce Ban on Gays Can be Lifted

BY DAVID S. CLOUD Tribune Washington Bureau

officials will announce today that the ban on gays and lesbians serving openly in the armed services can be lifted without harming military readiness, a step that is likely to end the controversial "don't ask, don't tell" policy in September, Defense Department officials said.

Defense Secretary Leon E. Panetta and Adm. Mike Mullen, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, are recommending to President Barack Obama that he proceed with final repeal of the policy in place for nearly two decades, the officials Congress voted to repeal the 1993 "don't ask, don't tell" law last December, but delayed ending the ban until top Pentagon officials and the president could certify that the change would not adversely affect the military. Congress ordered that the ban cease to be enforced 60 days after the certification.

Repeal of the ban on gays and lesbians serving openly will be one of Panetta's first major acts since taking command of the Pentagon earlier this month. He replaced Robert M. Gates, who had called for eliminating the ban but pushed for a gradual process.

Panetta met recently with the chiefs of the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines about lifting the ban, officials said.

Pentagon officials who confirmed the decision Thursday evening asked not to be quoted by name because it had not been made public. Spokesmen for Panetta and Mullen declined to comment.

J. Alexander Nicholson III, executive director of Servicemembers United, a nonpartisan organization that represents gay and lesbian military personnel and veterans, praised Panetta for moving ahead with the decision so quickly.

"We are glad to see that just three weeks into his tenure as secretary of Defense, he is already confident that this policy change can take place with little or no disruption to military readiness," Nicholson said.

Prison Resumes Forcible Medication of Jared Loughner

PHOENIX • Prison officials have resumed forcibly medicating the man accused of wounding U.S. Rep. Gabrielle Giffords in a deadly shooting rampage in Tucson, lawyers for the suspect said Thursday.

Jared Lee Loughner's attorneys questioned in court filings whether the involuntary psychotropic drug treatments are in violation of an order by the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. The court, in a ruling earlier this month, forbid prison officials from forcibly treating Loughner, 22, while an appeal on his behalf is being considered.

Robbie Sherwood, spokesman for the U.S. attorney's office in Arizona, which is prosecuting Loughner, declined to comment Thursday.

Mental health experts have determined Loughner, who is being held at a federal facility in Missouri, suffers from schizophrenia, and they will try to make him fit to stand trial.

BLM Will Require Hay Used on Public Land to be Weed-Free

TIMES-NEWS

Starting Aug. 20, all hay, straw and mulch used on all public land in Idaho will need to be certified as weed-free.

U.S. Bureau of Land Management officials announced the new rules today, saying enforcement will be delayed until Sept. 19 to allow time for public outreach and education. The changes are meant to help stem the spread of noxious and invasive weeds on BLM-managed land, and are consistent with state and U.S. Forest Service policies, according to BLM Idaho State Director Steve Ellis.

According to a BLM release, noxious weeds spread to an estimated 4,600 acres of public land in the West daily. Those bringing hav, straw or mulch to public lands must use products certified by the state as free of prohibited weed seed.

Express Scripts Buys Medco

BY LINDA A. JOHNSON

AP Business Writer

The top two U.S. companies managing prescription drug benefits are uniting in a $29.1 billion deal they say will help achieve key goals of the health care overhaul: reining in costs and improving patients' health.

Express Scripts Inc. announced an agreement Thursday to buy larger rival Medco Health Solutions Inc. Together, they would handle the prescriptions of about 135 million people, more than one in three Americans.

That will give them even more clout in demanding discounts from drugmakers, who are dealing with falling or stagnant revenue as an unprecedented number of blockbuster drugs taken daily by millions is getting cheaper generic competition.

Pharmacy benefit managers process mail-order prescriptions and handle bills for prescriptions filled at retail pharmacies, acting as middlemen between employers offering prescription drug benefits and drugmakers. They also hold down costs by extracting discounts and rebates from drugmakers, using tiered copayments that nudge patients to buy generics or the lowestcost brand names, and reminding patients to take medicines as scheduled to limit costly complications.

Together, Express Scripts and Medco handled more than 1.7 billion prescriptions in 2010 and reported almost $110 billion in revenue, although Medco recently lost several contracts covering millions of people. They have razorthin profit margins.

"The deal strategically makes sense because in this business, scale matters," said Les Funtleyder, health care portfolio manager for Miller Tabak.

The combined company may be able to wring even lower prices from drugmakers. Their trade group, Pharmaceutical Research and Manufacturers of America, said it had no position on the deal.

It's unclear whether patients, or just employers and health plans, will see the future savings. But patients likely will face stricter rules requiring more use of generics and of mail order services for drugs for chronic conditions, and more programs aimed at ensuring they're on the best medicine for them.

Medco has six medical teams in areas including heart disease, diabetes and cancer that review patients' medications, to prevent drug interactions and ensure patients are on the most effective therapy, sometimes even based on genetic factors. It also has expertise in one of the fastest-growing areas, specialty medicines - costly, usually injected drugs for cancer.

Express Scripts has complementary programs that encourage patients to take cheaper drugs, such as requiring generics unless they opt out. Both companies earn bigger profits for processing generics than brand-name drugs, because that saves their customers millions.

Changes won't happen soon, though, as drug benefit plans are covered under multiyear contracts.

The deal would double Express Script's market share to 30 percent, leapfrogging ahead of rival CVS Caremark Corp., which has a 15 percent share, said Atlantic Information Service, a health care information publisher.

That will reduce pharmacy choices for customers, said pharmacist Hamid Abbaspour, founder of the independent Dr. Aziz Pharmacy in Indianapolis.

Abbaspour, who does business with both Medco and Express Scripts, said their combination means independent drug stores might have tougher negotiations because the benefit managers have more leverage.

"We actually have to push to be part of their provider group," he said, because they funnel business to their own mail-order pharmacies. "Sometimes they come to us and say, 'Take it or leave it,' and at some point it could put a huge financial burden on us if we say, 'We don't accept this unfair contract?"

Economy's Spring Slump Could Last Through Summer

BY CHRISTOPHER S RUGABER

 $The \, Associated \, Press$

WASHINGTON • The economy's spring slump appears to be extending into the summer, according to a slew of mixed data released Thursday.

Layoffs are rising. Manufacturing activity in the Northeast expanded only slightly in July after contracting in June. Economic growth is projected to pick up this fall, but not enough to give businesses confidence to hire and speed the recovery.

The economy could lapse even further if Congress and the Obama administration fail to reach an agreement on raising the nation's borrowing limit in the coming week. But for the moment, traders on Wall Street don't seem worried. Stocks soared Thursday on news that European governments were moving toward agreement on an aid package for Greece. The Dow Jones industrial average closed 152 points up for the day.

Economists are forecasting a third straight month of feeble hiring in July, based on the latest round of data. Expectations are the economy added somewhere in the range of 50,000 to 100,000 net new jobs this month.

That's not enough to keep up with population growth and far below what is needed to lower the unemployment rate, which was 9.2 percent last month.

"We're going to see improvement, but right now nothing's improved yet," said Joshua Dennerlein, an economist at Bank of America Merrill Lynch.

A recruiter for Farmers Insurance, right, greets people attending the Pittsburgh Career Fair on Thursday in Pittsburgh. More people applied for unemployment benefits last week, evidence that layoffs are rising and the job market is weak.

Applications for unemployment benefits rose last week to a seasonally adjusted 418,000, the Labor Department said. They have now topped 400,000 for 15 straight weeks. Applications had fallen in February to 375,000, a level that signals healthy job growth.

'The Source of All Things'

(Free Press, $26)

In her memoir, Tracy Ross describes growing up in Twin Falls, near Idaho's pristine mountains. From there, however, the Boulder, Colo., writer's story mixes dark realities with the bright childhood

When Ross' mother remarried, Ross was excited to have such an involved father who was willing to take her out into the Idaho wilderness hunting, fishing, hiking and camp-

"Donnie was everything Tracy dreamed a dad would be, protective, brave and kind. But when his dependence on his 8-year-old daughter's companionship went too far, everything changed," reads the book's cover description. After numerous nighttime visits from her stepfather, Ross left her home in Idaho at 16 and tried to reconcile her feelings about her father by trekking through wilderness areas from Utah to Alaska. For 20 years Ross found solace in the outdoors, but she eventually realized that to reconnect with her family she had to talk to her father about the past.

This harrowing memoir of a family's secrets and search for forgiveness shows how Ross' troubled past led to personal strength, courage and a love of nature. From that love Ross became a journalist and contributing editor at Backpacker magazine.

Ross' story has become popular and was featured in Backpacker, Outside and People magazines. She and her family have appeared on ABC's "Nightline," where they talked about molestation and forgiveness. And "The Source of All Things" recently received the No. 6 spot on Amazon.com's "Best of 2011 So Far."

Members range from southern Idaho professional shooters such as Kim Critchfield and Mikeal Dixon to serious amateurs like Hart. Many of the professionals make their livings with portrait or wedding photography, while amateurs tend to enjoy shooting scenery and landscapes.

Monthly meetings typically consist of a presentation — like Photoshop tips or high dynamic range photography - and a show-off session, where members get critiqued on photos they've taken.

The photographers sometimes get together for field trips, like last weekend's jaunt to Nevada or a late-spring walk through Craters of the Moon. Hart has a bus that can haul the members around, but if only a few people RSVP they just take cars.

The meetings "were fun and informative and had really good turnout," club member Joy Pruitt said. The Twin Falls woman hasn't been to meetings recently but is impressed with other members' work. She especially liked Hart.

"She's one of my most favorite folks there," Pruitt said.

Critchfield, a Twin Falls portrait photographer, also enjoys the club's camaraderie.

"It's a really great group of people," he said.

Digital cameras aren't required. One member, Tom Gilbertson of Twin Falls, has an extensive collection of film cameras. Some have professional-quality single-lens reflex, or SLR, cameras, while Murtaugh member Kevin Oliverson uses a prosumer Panasonic FZ100 with a fixed lens and different filters.

Idaho's Best Braun Plays Buhl Bash

e sings other genres, but Muzzie Braun won Idaho's heart with his backwoods mountain music and with his four yodeling sons in Stetson hats and matching Western shirts.

These days, the boys have their own bands in Texas, and Muzzie is a solo act on acoustic guitar and a pareddown schedule. So the Clear Lake Country Club Summer Bash on Saturday in Buhl will be a rare chance for longtime Magic Valley fans to reconnect with a favorite.

For solo piano that weaves through folk, jazz and classical, catch one of touring Oregon pianist John Nilsen's four concerts this weekend, in Buhl, Paul, Hagerman and Kimberly.

But for the week's most polished performances, pack a picnic and drive to Sun Valley. Notable musicians from around the country will play classical chamber music for the Sun Valley Summer Symphony's fourday chamber series; believe it or not, this one's free.

Sun Valley's famous wine auction, however, is not. To get a less spendy taste of the upon people is the experience presented in his songs. Muzzie and his wife, Joann, are solidly rooted in this area, they raised their family, built their home and represent the best life experience you can have up here, and that is reflected in the music."t is reflected in the music."

Braun, 61, has made a living making music for more than 40 years. But in recent years he's traded a schedule of months on the road - and hundreds of shows a year for about 60 shows a year close to home. He plays music festivals, a few concerts, corporate events and private parties. Today, he and Joann live in the mountains of central Idaho where they raised their four sons, Cody, Willy, Micky and Gary, now adults. Like Muzzie, they were born into a family where playing instruments and singing - even at the top of your lungs — was encouraged and not relegated to the garage.

"My father, Musty, was a terrific musician, and he encouraged us to play. He even built us a practice room in the house," Muzzie told the Times-News. "I had that same attitude of encouragement with my children."

It wasn't long before the boys were interested in the family business and Muzzie and the Boys was formed. The band got national attention and landed two appearances on "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson" and another with Jay Leno.

Muzzie's and Musty's influences are present in the music of Reckless Kelly and Micky and the Motorcars, two Austin, Texas-area bands formed by Muzzie's sons Willy and Cody Braun, and Micky and Gary Braun, respectively.

Musical Family

Confused by all those Brauns? Here's how they sort out: Brothers Muzzie, Gary and Billie Braun launched rock 'n' roll band The Syndicate in 1967.

After high school, Muzzie and Gary played regionally around Stanley in Spud Russett, recording three albums. The three brothers reunited as The Braun Brothers, in the late '70s and the '80s.

Muzzie and the Boys formed in the '80s with Muzzie and his four sons, Cody, Willy, Micky and Gary. The band had two appearances on "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson" and another with Jay Leno.

Brothers Willy and Cody Braun formed Reckless Kelly in the late '90s and have released six albums. Brothers Micky and Gary Braun formed Micky and the Motorcars in 2002; five albums recorded to date. The older Gary Braun is now the Twin Falls-based Braun-Band's front man, playing guitar, harmonica and vocals. The band features four other musicians including his wife, Cindy Braun.

Multiple-Grammy Winners Try Something New on Sun Valley Stage

BY KAREN BOSSICK For the Times-News

SUN VALLEY • Bela Fleck and the Original Flecktones will take their stand at 5 p.m. Thursday with Bruce Hornsby and his Noisemakers in what's being billed as the Sun Valley Shakedown. If concert organizer Jason Fry has his way, it will be only the start of something

"This is the first of what we hope will be an annual music festival. We'd like to build to a two-night festival where people can come and enjoy the biking and hiking and all the other outdoor things Sun Valley has to offer and then enjoy top-name entertainment at night," he

"I know we have the Northern Rockies Folk Festival. But people have talked for years about needing higher-profile musicians in Sun Valley, and that's what this would be."

Five-time Grammy Award-winning banjo player and composer Bela Fleck reconvened his original quartet in 2009. The group introduced "Rocket Science" – its first recording in nearly two decades in May. The recording features a bit of classical, jazz, bluegrass, African music, electric blues and even Eastern European folk mu-didn't want to just get together to play the old music," Fleck said. "That's not what the Flecktones are about. Everybody's full of life and ideas and creativity. I was intrigued by what we could do that we had never done before."

The Flecktones will play their full show on Thursday night, while three-time

Bruce Hornsby and the Noisemakers, led by a three-time Grammy-winning singer-pianist, will play a slate of classical, jazz, bluegrass, folk, Motown, rock and blues on Thursday.

Bela and Bruce

• What: Sun Valley Shakedown featuring Bruce Hornsby and the Noisemakers, Bela Fleck and the Original Flecktones and an opening act — the Fox Street All Stars from

- When: 5 p.m. Thursday
- Where: Sun Valley Festival Meadows on Sun Valley
- Tickets: $48, at sunvalleyshakedown.com, Atkinsons' Markets and Java. Children 10 and younger get in free.
- What's more: Food and beverage vendors will be on the grounds, along with souvenir sellers. Whiskey Jacques in Ketchum will hold a Shakedown Apres Party with the Fox Street All Stars immediately following the concert. Shakedown ticket holders will receive two-for-one admission into Whiskey's.

Grammy-winning singerpianist Hornsby plays his own full slate of classical, jazz, bluegrass, folk, Motown, rock and blues.

Then the two will collaborate at the end for a few numbers.

"Bruce is a highly talented dude with a great brand, and we have been friends for a long while. We're looking forward to this run of dates!" said Fleck, who is touring with Hornsby for three weeks.

Fry, interim director for the Wood River Community YMCA, said ticket sales are strong with a third of them from Boise, Twin Falls and Idaho Falls.

"I saw Bruce four years ago in Salt Lake City, and he's among my top three favorite shows. His ability to play to live audiences and make it feel spontaneous, to feel the crowd out as he goes, is phenomenal. This guy rocked my world," Fry said. "People have been coming up to me on the streets and thanking me for bringing him to Sun Valley. One said he saw Bruce 20 years ago at Telluride when Bruce was a no-name opening for a Grateful Dead concert and he immediately sucked the audience in."

Ketchum resident John Sofro, who has organized a few Sun Valley concerts himself, said he hopes the concert will show people everywhere that Sun Valley is the place to be.

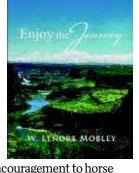

"It's not often that we get to experience talent on this level in such a magical setting," he said.

Enjoy the Journey of Women and Their Horses Along the Snake River Plain'

(Authorhouse, $17.50)

Twin Falls author W. Lenore Mobley, 76, writes primarily historical fiction and Western romance, but her latest book, "Enjoy the Journey of Women and Their Horses Along the Snake River Plain," is a collection of memoirs gathered from 65 women riding horses in southern Idaho.

"I'd like this book to be an encouragement to horse enthusiasts who have stopped riding due to illness or extreme accidents," Mobley said. "At least one-third of the stories in the book are about women getting back on their horses after cancer or injuries."

On horseback with the Thirsty Sage Riders, a women's group that has been meeting once a week to ride since the late '60s, Mobley was encouraged to ride and write. She wanted to give credit to the women who helped her along the way.

The book also includes the pasts of the places where some of the women's stories take place. "I love history, so each chapter includes history of the town or the area," Mobley said.

The women whose stories are in her book range from age 7 to 97, Mobley said. Although some of the stories came from new acquaintances, many were from women with whom Mobley had been riding for years.

Mobley will sign books from noon to 6 p.m. Saturday at Hastings in Twin Falls.

Rickie Lee Jones in Concert

Multiple Grammy Award winner and musical powerhouse Rickie Lee Jones will bring her music to Sun Valley's River Run at 7 p.m. Aug. 2.

Jones, who shot to stardom in 1979 with an appearance on "Saturday Night Live," a Rolling Stone cover story and the hit "Chuck E.'s in Love," won her first Grammy for Best New Artist in 1980. The singer-songwriter's concert tour features music from her first two classic albums, so die-hard fans can be sure to hear old favorites.

Jones' albums range from songs she has written to R&B, Motown, folk and full-on rock 'n' roll to covers of old jazz classics like "My Funny Valentine" and "Makin' Whoopee" (winner of a Grammy for Best Jazz Performance in 1989).

Blankets, low-backed chairs, picnics and dancing are welcome. Doors will open to early-entry ticket holders at 6 p.m., and to others at 6:15 p.m.; no seating is reserved.

Tickets are $35 for Sun Valley Center for the Arts members and $40 for others, at sunvalleycenter.org or 726-9491, ext. 10. Early-entry tickets are $75 and $80.

Road Rally Is Speed Lover's Paradise

BY KAREN BOSSICK

For the Times-News

SUN VALLEY • Fasten your seat belts. The Sun Valley Road Rally is about to take

Owners of Aston Martins, Ferraris, Porsches, Lamborghinis and other sports cars will get the chance to see just how fast they can go on July 30. That's when the third annual road rally takes place at the base of the Boulder Mountains, about 10 miles north of Ketchum on Idaho Highway 75.

Drivers will get to zoom along a three-mile stretch of highway that will be turned into a no-speed-limit zone.

Police will be there, radar guns in hand, ready to give speeding tickets. But the tickets they'll be handing out will be validations of just how fast the drivers were able to gun their cars.

Last year's top speed was 189.6 mph.

"The noise, the color, the sound when you see the cars and try to guess how fast they're going to go ... The whole thing's so exciting," said Bob Stone, whose son's Sun Valley Auto Club organized the rally with the help of then-Blaine County Sheriff Walt Femling three years

This year's event, which benefits the Blaine County Community Drug Coalition, has expanded.

It'll kick off with the inaugural Road Rally Gala at 6 p.m. July 29 at Trail Creek Cabin. There will be dinner, dancing to the music of the Paul Tillotson Trio and auction items — including a Sun Valley season ski pass, a Scott Addict R1 road bike and Sun Valley golfing and lodging packages.

Several auction packages have been created for car and speed lovers, said Kacie Femling, who works with the drug coalition. They include an Indy-style open wheel racing experience at the Las Vegas Motor Speedway; Porsche weekend driving school with lodging at a fivestar resort; and a guy's getaway for two to drive and experience five supercars with a weekend stay and airfare.

"It's a really cool opportunity for driving enthusiasts," Kacie Femling said. "We wanted to step it up because a lot of the spectators come from surrounding towns like Twin Falls and Boise. And we wanted to offer them something more."

Also, the winner of a 2011 Porsche Cayenne S Hybrid will be drawn at the gala. Up to a thousand tickets will be sold. Tickets are $150 each, tax-deductible and available at sunvalleyroadrally.com or 727-8766.

"It's an awesome car -Porsche's first hybrid," said Josh Murphy, a 17-year-old who's been charged with driving the car around the Wood River Valley to drum up raffle ticket sales. "The suspension is tightened so it can go faster around curves."

Tickets to the July 29 gala are $175, at 727-8766.

On July 30, spectators can meet road rally drivers and see the cars at River Run Lodge at the base of Bald Mountain beginning at 8 a.m. Spectators will then be bused to a grandstand at Phantom Hill where they can watch the cars race beginning at 10 a.m.

Road rally tickets are $30 for adults, $15 for children and free for children 6 and younger, at 727-8766. A family package for two adults and two children costs $75; additional children can be added for $10 each. Tickets include a box lunch.

The drivers pay $1,500 for the opportunity to push their car to the max one time. They can make two runs for $2,500 and three for

In the past, cars have included a Bentley Continental, a Dodge Viper and a Ford GT. One driver even pushed a Prius over 100 mph during the first rally, which raised $25,000 for the Blaine drug coalition, a nonprofit that works to reduce drug and alcohol use among youth.

Rhinestone Roper Takes Long Ride back to Idaho

BY EVA STUTZMAN

Jerome man Dan Mink and his act The Rhinestone Roper were dismissed from NBC's "America's Got Talent" Wednesday, after viewers voted on the previous night's performances. Mink, who entered the contest as a favorite with gun spinning and knife throwing, fell short Tuesday night when he brought out his horse, Lucky Joe. The judges were unimpressed with his horse's showing after Mink's high-energy audition earlier in the season.

Of the three celebrity judges, Piers Morgan was the most unhappy with the performance.

"It was a complete train wreck," Morgan said on the Tuesday show. "The horse did nothing."

However, Mink tried to explain that the act had to be changed three times to accommodate Lucky Joe's stage fright.

"There's an obstacle to performing with a horse on a stage like this, and it's the stage," Mink said Tuesday evening. "His instincts take over."

On Wednesday, The Rhinestone Roper was shut out by a dance group called The Silhouettes.

After the show in an interview with NBC, Mink and his assistant, Melody Joy, both said that performing on the show had been fun but also a chal-

"Doing a 90-second show means no set-up and no warm-up," Mink said in the NBC interview. "You go on and hit your best stuff immediately."

But on Tuesday, Mink was unable to get Lucky Joe to do just that, and Mink ended up doing his warm-up tricks. Lucky Joe refused to perform his best tricks in the auditorium where the show is filmed, Mink told the Times-News on Thursday. In other venues, Lucky Joe has done tricks standing on a pedestal and lying upside down.

Free Chamber Series Takes French Theme

BY KAREN BOSSICK

For the Times-News

SUN VALLEY • The Sun Valley Summer Symphony will devote an expanded chamber music series to the rich musical history of France next week.

The free chamber series – renamed the Edgar M. Bronfman In Focus Series has been expanded from three performances to four, starting Sunday night. Music director Alasdair Neale will lead discussions and demonstrations about the music at 5:30 p.m., with the concerts beginning at 6:30 p.m., except for the July 29

The series will feature a chamber orchestra on July 29 – a first for the chamber

Pianist Jean Yves Thibaudet, a native of France, will be involved in the final two performances as the symphony's first artist-in-residence. And soprano Heidi Grant Murphy will make her Sun Valley debut in the Monday concert, singing French songs while her husband, Kevin Murphy, accompanies her at piano.

Heidi Grant Murphy

"Alasdair felt that giving an overview of French music wasn't complete without song," said Jennifer Teisinger, the symphony's executive director.

The free chamber series exploring Impressionism through sonatas, duets, quartets and chamber orchestra opens on Sunday and continues on Monday, Wednesday and July 29 at the outdoor Sun Valley Pavilion.

The July 29 finale will be titled "Let Me Arrange That for You" and will feature a performance of a piece by Thibaudet as it was originally composed for piano. That will be followed by an orchestrated version featuring a chamber orchestra of symphony musicians. On that night the musical performance begins at 5:30 p.m.

Ketchum resident Marilyn Schwartz said she always looks forward to the chamber series because the more intimate performances offer a different take on compositions than the full orchestral pieces

"It's like reading a short story compared to a novel. The characters have to be defined right away. Everything is more compact," she said. "I'm really excited to see what they have in store for us this season."

The chamber series precedes the Sun Valley Summer Symphony's season of free concerts, opening Aug. 1. Teisinger said there are still some $250 and $500 tickets to a July 31 symphony benefit concert featuring child star Jackie Evancho.

"Jackie's going to be incredible," predicted Hailey resident Maggie Sturdevant. "People are going to have their mouths hanging open when that little 11-year-old opens hers."

NEW ON THE BOOKSHELF

'An Embalmer's Tales'

(Lulu, $14.95)

Twin Falls resident Wes Scantlin knows a thing or two about death. His long history as a funeral director in Caldwell and Oregon taught him things that most people prefer not to talk about.

"The common thought among morticians and embalmers is that they Scantlin don't talk about what they do," said Scantlin, 67. "They don't want to hurt people's sensibilities, but I think there are some things people need to know."

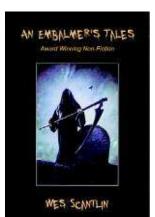

Scantlin's book chronicles 55 scenes of death through the eyes of the mortician or embalmer. Seem insensitive? Scantlin wrote to inform the reader rather than share gruesome details. Although the book is nonfiction, Scantlin changed the names in the cases he discusses.

> Who is reading Scantlin's book? It might surprise you. A few weeks ago, Scantlin got a call from a woman whose husband was in the hospital with a life-threatening illness. She told Scantlin that his book was the best thing to read at that point, Scantlin said.

Scantlin has also published two books of historical fiction, but he said the move to nonfiction suits "An Embalmer's Tales." "I have been told that it is like I'm sitting over coffee telling you about it."

The book won first place in the nonfiction book category from the Idaho Writers' League. Scantlin plans a book signing in September at Barnes and Nobles and hopes to organize another in December.

TIMES-NEWS

Advertising Salesperson & Recruitment Salesperson

The Times-News is seeking two professional advertising salespeople; one outside sales for retail advertising and one inside sales for recruitment advertising. The principal duty of these salespeople will be to sell. The secondary duty will be to sell. You'll sell 'win-win' print, online and mobile advertising packages offered by the Times-News, www.magicvalley.com and a variety of specialty and niche publications. But what you'll really be selling is solutions to local business owners who may also need your assistance in discovering just what solutions they need.

The Successful Candidate will demonstrate:

- success in relentlessly prospecting to get new business;
- a natural inquisitiveness about what constitutes customer success and an ability to ask open-ended, thought-provoking questions;
- a pattern of success in marketplaces that are extremely competitive; • the ability to consistently listen;
- an ongoing history of success in a fast-paced business;
- · an assertive approach to achieving revenue and customer satisfaction goals:
- the ability to communicate personal, quantifiable components of customer service excellence.

Past sales experience may be helpful but possessing innate curiosity and a competitive approach is far more important. The Times-News offers an excellent benefit package including medical, dental, vision, life, paid vacation and sick days, flexible spending account(s) and a 401(k) program.

Please apply online at www.magicvalley.com/workhere before Saturday, July 30, 2011.

Hello, Turkey?

Turkish club Besiktas is in talks with Kobe Bryant's representatives about the possibility of the Los Angeles Lakers' star playing in Turkey during the NBA

"It is a fact that Kobe Bryant's managers have contacted us," coach Ergin Ataman said Thursday, a week after Besiktas signed New Jersey Nets point guard Deron Williams.

Ataman said Bryant, pictured during his current tour of China, was waiting for an offer from Besiktas. The club, however, said it would need a sponsor to be able to pay for Bryant's contract.

"Our board will evaluate that," Ataman said. Bryant has said he would consider playing overseas during the lockout and mentioned China and Turkey as possibilities.

Group Sues Over Title IX Application Toward High School Sports

Currently, a three-pronged test exists to determine whether a school's athletic department satisfies Title IX, and only one of the prongs needs to be met. But the American Sports Council argues that the test is tantamount to a quota system and violates the Fourteenth Amendment's equal protection clause.

WASHINGTON (AP) • A group of coaches, parents and others is suing the U.S. Education Department over how it determines whether high schools are complying with the federal law that bans sex discrimination in schools that receive federal money.

At issue is a three-part test to judge a school's compliance with the 1972 law, known as Title IX: having male and female athletes in proportion to their enrollment; showing a pattern of expanding opportunities for females; or proving the sports interests of females have been met.

The American Sports Council argues in the lawsuit, filed Thursday by the Pacific Legal Foundation, that the test as applied to high schools violates the equal protection clause. The group claims it will lead to quotas and the elimination of boys' sports teams, and is seeking a court order to stop the department from using it.

"I shouldn't say I'm surprised about that. Everything is pretty cyclical. Someone took a look at that and said, enough is enough,'" said Jerome High School Athletic Director Ty Jones. "Not that anything is going to come out of it. But, I took it as a positive. It says that our parents and our school are doing a good job. With our extremely tight budget, never has anybody come to us with any problems surrounding the issue."

One hundred high schools in Idaho were named last week in a federal complaint accusing them of violating Title IX, largely on the basis of proportionality issues involving a percentage of females in the athletic pool relative to females in the overall student body. Scores of schools in Washington and Oregon were also recently named in com-

Education Department spokesman Jim Bradshaw called the test a "valuable tool" for ensuring a level playing field for all students. "It plays a critical role in ensuring a fundamental level of fairness in America's schools and universities," he said.

Title IX has helped open more academic and sports opportunities for women and girls. The council, formerly the College Sports Council, was one of several groups that also challenged the three-part test for college sports. A federal judge dismissed the case in 2003, saying the plaintiffs didn't have the right to sue.

Burley Bursts Out

Burley pitcher almost achieves no-hitter in 10-0 win over Twin Falls Cowboys.

BY STEPHEN MEYERS smeyers@magicvalley.com

One bloop single that didn't even leave the infield grass was all that stood between a no-hitter and just another stellar pitching performance for Burley ace Jake Mills.

The Burley graduate struck out eight, while walking three to lead the Green Sox 10-0 over the Twin Falls Cowboys in their opening game of the American Legion Baseball Class A Area C Tournament.

Mills carried a no-no through 52/3 innings, before Hunter Elam hacked a ball off the inside of his bat just over Mills' head. The pitcher backpedaled off the mound and the ball fell in the grass just off the second-base line.

"If I was an athlete I would have been able to catch it," Mills joked. "I was running backwards and thought maybe it was high enough for the second baseman to catch

No-hitter or not, Mills and the Green Sox are exactly where they want to be -awin today over Hillcrest and they're in the championship game on Saturday.

"We got the stat that mattered tonight, and that was the win," Mills said. "We're where we want to be right now. It's nice to continue the success we had this spring and now we have a chance to win the tournament and go to regionals."

Mills kept the Cowboys hitters off-balance with an 80-mph fastball that looked about 90 mph when paired with a solid changeup. The Cowboys worked consecutive walks in the second inning, but were not able to move a runner to third base.

Burley, meanwhile, attacked Twin Falls starting pitcher Damon Jones, knocking him out of the game in the second inning staring at a 5-0

Jason Boehmer hit a tworun single and Jack Darrington smacked an RBI double in the second inning. Spencer Rice had two RBIs on the day, with a double in the sixth in-

Jerome Edges Minico to Start Class AA Tourney

TIMES-NEWS

Jerome advanced on the first day of the American Legion Baseball Class AA Area C Tournament in Pocatello, edging Minico in a wild 9-6 game.

Nolan Stouder went 3-for-5 and Trey Berrett was 2-for-5, and Jordy Garrard pitched 6 1-3 sparkling innings.

The Spartans jumped out to a 4-2 lead, chasing Jerome starter Gary Koopman in the third inning, but Garrard came in with the bases loaded and got the out to end the inning. Then things took a strange turn.

Amid the pitching change, Jerome kept the designated hitter without removing a player, which

CRHS Names New Basketball Coaches

BY DAVID BASHORE

dbashore@magicvalley.com

It's only Year 3, but Canyon Ridge High School is entering a new age in its basketball program.

The Riverhawks announced Thursday the hirings of Trudy Weaver and Jacoby Fox to lead their girls and boys basketball programs, respectively.

Weaver, who replaces Kim Wray, comes over after assisting Nancy Jones at Twin Falls for the last four seasons. Fox was the top assistant to former head boys coach Mike Ridgeway for the last two

"We're excited to have both of them on board. Jacoby was in the program already so I think that was a natural move, and Trudy has been coaching a long time and she was ready for own program," said Wray, who resigned her post as basketball coach to become the school's athletic director. "Trudy's got great ideas to take that program forward and build on what we had done. That was near and dear to my heart, so I really wanted to make sure we got the right one."

Weaver is charged with continuing the turnaround the Riverhawks started in the 2010-11 season, where they went 8-15 after a winless inaugural season (0-22). With a team that was light on seniors last season, the stage could be set for the team to make a run at its first state tournament appearance. "I think if the girls are willing to buy in to what I have to offer, I think we can be really competitive in this league. It's a fine time to be able to take over and we've got some talent there. If we can capitalize on that I think we can compete this year with the majority of our teams," Weaver said. "I'm very excited to see what I can do with my own program, and I'm grateful for the opportunity to challenge my coaching skills."

The cupboard is a little barer for Fox, with just two varsity returners in Chase Petty and Neil Kauppila. But he has his eye on a few things a young team can learn early in its quest to improve on a 9-15 record in 2010-11.

"I have a big feeling of responsibility to lead us in the right direction and build upon what Mike has started and go from there. I'm excited, ready to jump in," said Fox. "We'll bring a sense of enthusiasm and a defensive intensity, and that's what we'll hang our hat on. Those are two things we can find some success in early.

"You might see that lack of experience at first, but most of those guys will find that these two older guys can lead for us. It'll be a bit of a learning curve for a lot of those youngsters real quick."

NFL Labor: Owners OK Deal, Players Don't Vote Yet

NFL owners overwhelmingly approved a tentative agreement Thursday that would end the lockout, provided that players re-establish their union and sign off on the proposal. But the players didn't vote, leaving the country's most popular sport in limbo for at least another day.

Owners and players failed to see eye-to-eye on much of anything for months, so perhaps the way Thursday's events unfolded shouldn't have come as a surprise.

At about 7 p.m., owners vot-abstained — to OK the deal, pending players' approval. Soon after, the league issued a press release announcing: "NFL clubs approved today the terms of a comprehensive settlement of litigation and a new 10-year collective bargaining agreement with the NFL Players Association."

Less than an hour later, NFLPA head DeMaurice Smith sent an email to team reps saying: "Issues that need to be collectively bargained remain open; other issues, such as workers' compensation, economic issues and end of deal terms, remain unresolved. There is no agreement between the NFL and the players at this time?

And then the players held a conference call and decided not to take a vote, saying they had not seen the full proposal approved by owners.

Commissioner Roger Goodell spoke on the phone several times Thursday with Smith, including filling him in on the results of the vote before it was announced.

"Hopefully, we can all work quickly, expeditiously, to get this agreement done," Goodell said at a news conference at an Atlanta-area hotel. "It is time to get back to football. That's what everybody here wants to

But several players took to Twitter, expressing opposition to the proposal. Pittsburgh Steelers safety Ryan Clark wrote: "The owners want u to believe that they have been extremely fair everywhere and this is their 'olive branch' to finalize it."

The four-month lockout is the NFL's first work stoppage since 1987.

Heat Causing Headaches for HS Football Coaches

GARDNER, Kan. (AP) • High school football coaches are always eager for fall practice to start, and that rings especially true in small towns all across the Midwest, where every store closes up and every light is turned off except for those at the stadium on a Friday

Some coaches are even more anxious to get started this season.

Record-setting temperatures and stifling humidity have made life miserable from Detroit to Denver, Minneapolis to the Mexican border. And that includes causing headaches for coaches and trainers who worry about the health of their kids during informal workouts the last few weeks before school starts.

"We make a big emphasis that our kids realize they need to come to practice hydrated, whether it's something we're doing after school or workouts in the summer months," said Marvin Diener, the veteran head coach of Gardner-Edgerton High School in Gardner, Kan.

The high temperature in the small town a short drive south of Kansas City on Thursday was 101 degrees under a cloudless sky, and humidity pushed the "feels like" temperature to something approaching that of a blast furnace. It's supposed

Mariners' Losing Streak Hits MLB-worst 12

TORONTO • Rajai Davis hit a tiebreaking double in the eighth inning and the Blue Jays handed Seattle its 12th straight loss with a 7-5 win on Thursday.

Miguel Olivo erased a 5-1 deficit by hitting Seattle's first grand slam of the season in the top of the eighth.

Reliever David Pauley (5-4) got two quick outs in the bottom half before Mike McCoy doubled to left and Yunel Escobar walked. Davis followed with a double over the head of Ichiro Suzuki in right, scoring both runners.

The Mariners have not won since beating the Athletics in Oakland on July 5, the majors' longest losing streak of the season.

Jon Rauch (4-3) worked 1 2-3 innings for the victory.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. • Tampa Bay's James Shields won for the first time since June 24, outpitching CC Sabathia.

Shields (9-8) allowed six hits, walked three and struck out six over 72-3 innings.

Sabathia (14-5) lost for the first time since June 9, ending a streak of victories in seven consecutive starts.

Evan Longoria homered and had two of Tampa Bay's five hits. Sam Fuld drove the second run with a fifth-inning triple.

The loss dropped New York two games behind first-place Boston in the AL East. The third-place Rays salvaged a split in the four-game series and moved within 51/2 games of the Yankees.

WALTON ON THE HILL, England - Mark Calcavecchia defied the afternoon rain to shoot a bogey-free 68 and take a three-way share of the first-round lead at the Senior British Open on Thursday. Bidding to become the fourth player to win both the British Open and the senior version, the 51-year-old American had two birdies on either side of the turn before parring the final five holes.

Calcavecchia, winner of the British Open at Troon in 1989, was joined on 4 under by Ireland's Mark McNulty and Australia's Mike Harwood, who earlier benefited from still and dry conditions on the parkland course at Walton Heath that hosted the 1981 Ryder Cup.

South Africa's David Frost Scotland's Albert MacKenzie were a shot behind, with defending champion Bernhard Langer of Germany one of seven players who shot 70. Americans Bob Tway, Mike Goodes and Lee Rinker were among those tied with Langer.

Blanks Shoots 67 at Canadian Open

VANCOUVER, British Columbia - American Kris Blanks shot a 3-under 67 to take a one-stroke lead after the first-round at the Canadian Open on Thursday.

Matt McQuillan was the best of 17 Canadians with a 2-under 68, putting the 30year-old PGA Tour rookie in a tie with 11 players, including Ernie Els.

Calcavecchia Shares Lead at Senior British Open

Rickie Fowler, Anthony Kim and Lucas Glover playing together in softer morning conditions - all shot 69 to finish among another group of nine players on a day when only 21 players were under par on the tight tree-lined, 7,010-vard Shaughnessy Golf and Country Club.

Stupples Shares Evian Masters Lead

EVIAN-LES-BAINS, France - Former British Open champion Karen Stupples of England shot a 5-under 67 for a share of the first-round lead with Sweden's Maria Hjorth and South Korea's Ahn Shin-ae the Evian Masters

Stupples, who won her only major in 2004, recovered well from a double bogey on the ninth hole to make six birdies on the back nine as heavy rain soaked the course at regular intervals during the day.

Defending champion Jiyai Shin of South Korea made a solid start with a 3-under 69, including three birdies in the first four holes, before bogeys on No. 6 and 8 slowed her down.

The 23-year-old Shin is still looking for her first title of the year. She's one shot behind 2009 champion Ai Miyazato of Japan, who was among six players finishing with a 4-under 68.

Cyclones coach Kenneth James said was wrongly permitted by umpires after he sought a rules clarification. Minico coach Ben Frank noticed something amiss when Koopman went to bat for Garrard and asked for clarification, but he didn't attempt a formal protest until an inning lat-

By then, it was too late to change anything and, after a 40-minute delay to confer with state officials, the game continued as if nothing had happened and Jerome wasn't penalized due to the umpire's error.

The Cyclones scored seven unanswered runs, four in the sixth and three in the seventh, to pad the lead to 9-4 before Minico scored twice in the ninth to make it close. Jerome advances to play top seed and tournament host Pocatello today at 1 anybody," James said.

Zayne Slotten doubled twice and drove in three runs, while Cy Sneed was simply dominant as the Cowboys advanced to the tournament's championship game by shutting out Idaho Falls 4-0.

Sneed went the distance, fanning 16 batters and walking just one.

Slotten's two-run fifthinning double broke the game open.

Twin Falls plays Saturday against the winner of today's game between Pocatello and Jerome.

MONETIER-LES-BAINS, France • Andy Schleck led a daring attack in the Alps to win the 18th stage of the Tour de France on Thursday, putting him within seconds of the yellow jersey and quashing Alberto Contador's hopes of a fourth France's Thomas Voeckler, in a show of grit of his own, narrowly kept the lead by muscling up a punishing final climb to limit the damage at the end of the 125-mile trek from Pinerolo, Italy, to the Galibier Serre-Chevalier ski station in France.

Contador started the stage trailing Voeckler by several minutes after a rough start to the three-week race and finished it with a dismal final "Victory is impossible now," he said. "I had a bad day. My legs didn't respond and I just hit a wall. It was a very difficult day right from Schleck began the day in fourth place and is now 15 seconds behind Voeckler. He attacked on the second of three grueling climbs and held on all the way on the fabled Galibier pass to the highest-altitude finish in the race's 108-year history.

"I told the team yesterday that I had this in mind. I wasn't going to be fourth in Paris," Schleck said. "I said I'd risk it all. ... It's my character: I'm not afraid to lose."

Stage winner Andy Schleck of Luxembourg climbs Galibier pass during the 18th stage of the Tour de France cycling race over 124.6 miles starting in Pinerolo, Italy, and finishing on Galibier pass, Alps region, France, Thursday.

Standing next to Schleck, Voeckler – who has repeatedly insisted that he can't win when the race finishes Sunday in Paris - said: "You'll get it."

Missoula, MT

Frank Schleck was second Thursday, trailing his brother by 2 minutes, 7 seconds. Cadel Evans of Australia was third. Voeckler was fifth on Thursday, 2:21 behind. Frank Schleck is third overall, 1:08 back. Evans is fourth, 1:12 off the pace.

Contador was the day's biggest loser, trailing in 15th 4:44 in seventh place.

exhausted Voeckler said at the finish, mustering the strength to raise a fist in joy once he saw he'd kept the yellow jersey. "At 2,650 meters, the oxygen is thin."

"I limited the damage," he added. "I went all out." Schleck, the Leopard Trek team leader, came in knowing that he would need to gain time on rivals ahead of Saturday's time trial — a discipline that's not his specialty.

Today, the pack faces the last of three days in the Alps. It again features an uphill finish at the renowned and

"What leg pain!" awaits on three climbs so tough they defy cycling's rating climbs: Col d'Agnel, Col d'Izoard and Col du Galibier.

The pack scaled more than 37 miles of total climbs, about one-third of which had a gradient of more than 9 percent. Tour director Christian Prudhomme called the 15mile Col d'Agnel (9,000 feet)

Agnel, the day's first big climb, wasn't the site of the showdown. At one point there, Contador drifted back to the race doctor.

TODAY'S NATIONAL MAP

Valid to 6 p.m. today

Yesterday's National Extremes:

Andy Schleck took his chance on Cold'Izoard. After riding behind Leopard Trek teammate Stuart O'Grady, the Luxembourg rider sped from the main pack about midway up, with 13 breakaway riders ahead.

Contador moved up to the front of the pack but didn't chase. Neither did Voeckler or Evans, possibly a tactical error that could cost them victory in Paris on Sunday.

The stage showed how teamwork and strategy can be essential. Leopard Trek sent out two riders in the breakaway so they'd be available to escort Schleck in case he could shake his rivals.

He did. With 34 miles left in the stage, Schleck jumped out to a lead of more than a minute against the contenders and caught his teammate Joost Posthuma, one of the breakaway riders who welcomed Schleck into his wake to go up Izoard.

With less than 20 miles left, nearing the foot of the final climb, Schleck and four other breakaway riders caught Maxim Iglinsky of Kazakhstan, who had ridden solo at the front for much of the stage.

At the foot of 14-mile Galibier ascent, Schleck and the five others in the breakaway had extended its lead to 31/2 minutes ahead of the pack.

With more than six miles to go, Schleck was continuing to gain time and was ahead by nearly 41/2 minutes. Evans then attacked the pack, but his speed wasn't enough to erase the gap of more than a minute.

With about five miles left, Schleck was alone with Iglinsky close on his rear wheel. But he moved away from the Kazakh to ride alone, gritting his teeth and spitting water slurped from his bottle.

Today's Stage 19 features two more "beyond category" climbs. They are up the other side of the Galibier, which wasn't covered Thursday, and the finish at the Alpe d'Huez after a 68-mile trek from Modane.

Martinez, husband and wife, as Grantor(s) with Republic Mortgage, Division of Old Kent Mortgage Co., Michigan Corp. as the Beneficiary, under the Deed of Trust recorded November 19, 1999, as Instrument No. 444917; subsequently assigned to Old Kent Mortgage Company, a Michigan Corporation,, recorded June 6, 2011, as Instrument No. 512680; subsequently assigned to Mortgage Electronic Registration Systems, Inc., as nominee for Homeside Lending, Inc., its successors and assigns; recorded June 6, 2011, as Instrument No. 512681, in the records of Minidoka County, Idaho. The Beneficial interest of said Deed of Trust was subsequently assigned to Midfirst Bank, a Federally Chartered Savings Association, recorded June 6, 2011, as Instrument No. 512682, in the records of said County. THE ABOVE GRANTORS ARE NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506(4)(a), IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THEY ARE, OR ARE NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION.

The default for which this sale is to be made is the failure to pay the amount due under the certain Promissory Note and Deed of Trust, in the amounts called for thereunder as follows:

Monthly payments in the amount of $708.58 for the months of November 2010 through and including to the date of sale, together with late charges and monthly payments accruing. The sum owing on the obligation secured by said Deed of Trust is $69,706.78 as principal, plus service charges, attorney's fees, costs of this foreclosure, any and all funds expended by Beneficiary to protect their security interest, and interest accruing at the rate of 8% from October 1, 2010, together with delinquent taxes plus penalties and interest to the date of sale. The Beneficiary elects to sell or cause the trust property to be sold to satisfy said obligation.

LEGAL NOTICE

The Idaho Department of Fish and Game was informed by the Bureau of Fisheries and Regional fishery managers that, through July 17, daily angler surveys indicate that about 64 percent of the State's harvest share of adipose fin-clipped hatchery Chinook salmon greater than or equal to 24 inches total length (adults) returning to the mainstem of the South Fork Salmon River has been harvested. Only about 15% of the State's harvest share of about 1,200 adipose fin-clipped hatchery Chinook salmon less than 24 inches total length (jacks) has been harvested. By the end of fishing July 20, anglers will likely have harvested 100 percent of the non-tribal harvest share of adult adipose fin-clipped Chinook salmon returning to the South Fork Salmon River drainage but less than 30% of the non-tribal harvest share of adipose fin-clipped jacks.

To prevent the fishery from exceeding the non-tribal harvest share of adult adipose fin-clipped hatchery Chinook salmon, the Bureau of Fisheries recommends the entire South Fork Salmon Fishery-Lower section must be closed to fishing for Chinook salmon. To provide anglers continued opportunity to harvest hatchery jack salmon the Bureau of Fisheries recommends that the South Fork Salmon River Upper section remain open to the retention of adipose fin-clipped jack Chinook salmon. Natural origin Chinook salmon that are listed under the Federal Endangered Species Act and spawn in the mainstem South Fork Salmon River must transit the lower section of the fishery to reach spawning areas but fewer than half transit the upper section of the fishery. The Bureau of Fisheries recommends that jacks-only fishery be constrained to the upper section to reduce incidental fishery related mortalities among the mainstem South Fork Salmon natural origin spawning population.

Pursuant to his authority under Idaho Code Section 36-106(e)(6) (A), the Idaho Department of Fish and Game Director hereby closes the waters of mainstem South Fork Salmon River downstream of a posted boundary about one mile upstream of Fourmile Campground to salmon fishing effective at the close of legal fishing hours on July 20, 2011. The waters of the South Fork Salmon upstream of the aforementioned posted boundary are closed to the retention of adult Chinook salmon greater than or equal to 24 inches total length.

Copies of Order 11-24 are available at the Idaho Department of Fish and Game headquarters, 600 South Walnut, PO Box 25, Boise, ID 83707.

LEGAL NOTICE

The Idaho Department of Fish and Game was informed by the Bureau of Fisheries that by close of fishing on July 20 anglers will have harvested the full sport fishery share of adipose fin clipped salmon destined for the South Fork Salmon River. The fraction of Rapid River hatchery returns in the harvest in the Lower Salmon River is highest in the Park Hole section from the U.S. Highway 95 Time Zone Bridge upstream to the Mouth of Short's Creek. The fraction of hatchery and natural returns from the South Fork Salmon, Middle Fork Salmon, and Upper Salmon rivers at this point in the season is highest in the river sections of the Lower Salmon River upstream and downstream of the Park Hole section.

To reduce interceptions of hatchery and natural origin fish destined for terminal areas other than the Little Salmon and Rapid rivers while still providing access to harvestable hatchery fish destined to the Little Salmon and Rapid Rivers the Fisheries Bureau recommends closing the section of the Lower Salmon River from the mouth of Short's Creek upstream to the uppermost boat ramp at Vinegar Creek and the sections from the Rice Creek Bridge upstream to the U.S. Highway 95 Time Zone Bridge to fishing for Chinook salmon.

Pursuant to his authority under Idaho Code Section 36-106(e)(6) (A), the Idaho Department of Fish and Game Director hereby closes the section of the Lower Salmon River from the mouth of Short's Creek upstream to the uppermost boat ramp at Vinegar Creek and in the sections from the Rice Creek Bridge upstream to the U.S. Highway 95 Time Zone Bridge to fishing for Chinook salmon effective the end of fishing on July 24, 2011.

Copies of Order 11-25 are available at the Idaho Department of Fish and Game headquarters, 600 South Walnut, P.O. Box 25, Boise, ID 83707.

real creative The Times-News is seeking two professional advertising energy here.

salespeople; one outside sales for retail advertising and one inside sales for recruitment advertising. The principal duty of these salespeople will be to sell. The secondary duty will be to sell. You'll sell 'win-win' print, online and mobile advertising packages offered by the Times-News, www.magicvalley.com and a variety of specialty and niche publications. But what you'll really be selling is solutions to local business owners who may also need your assistance in discovering just what solutions they need.

ADVERTISING SALESPERSON &

RECRUITMENT SALESPERSON

The Successful Candidate will demonstrate:

- success in relentlessly prospecting to get new
- a natural inquisitiveness about what constitutes customer success and an ability to ask open-ended, thought-provoking questions;
- a pattern of success in marketplaces that are extremely competitive;
- the ability to consistently listen;
- an ongoing history of success in a fast-paced
- business; an assertive approach to achieving revenue and
- customer satisfaction goals;
- the ability to communicate personal, quantifiable components of customer service excellence.

Past sales experience may be helpful but possessing innate curiosity and a competitive approach is far more important.

PRODUCTION WORKER

The Times-News is looking for a 30+ hour/wk production worker to run mechanical packaging equipment. He/she will operate machinery to prepare newspapers for delivery to homes and local businesses. The production worker will be required to perform assigned tasks and functions in accordance with established safety procedures.

This is an ideal position for someone who is flexible and likes to be active - requires regular lifting/lowering and pushing/pulling of 50 lb. newspaper bundles. Typical schedule will include swing shift, night shift, and occasional split shift.

Applicants must be able to work quickly & accurately & participate in a team environment. Must have previous related experience and mechanical background. There may be opportunity for growth.

The Times-News offers exciting career opportunities and competitive pay. Our industry-leading benefits package includes a 401(k) plan, paid vacation and sick leave, and medical, dental, vision, disability and life insurance plans.

Apply online at http://www.magicvalley.com/workhere by July 30, 2011.

We are a drug-free workplace and all applicants considered for employment must pass a post-offer drug screen and criminal background check prior to commencing employment.

Zoe and her husband have decided to adopt. However, it is very expensive and all of their savings went toward the IVF treatments. Zoe's mom wants to have a benefit to raise money for them. I am against the idea because, in my opinion, benefits are given for something you don't choose (like cancer or a house fire). Adopting a child is a choice. I live paycheck-to-paycheck as it is, and I don't feel comfortable donating to this cause. What if they change their minds after the benefit or the adoption doesn't work out? What will they do with the money then?

Is what they're planning acceptable? Am I wrong to feel this way? I know I'll be talked about by Zoe and her mother if I don't contribute. - FRIEND

IN CONFLICT

Jeanne

Phillips DEAR FRIEND IN CON-FLICT: Whether Zoe and her mother retaliate by gossiping about you is beside the point. I see nothing wrong with a benefit. If Zoe and her husband can't afford to adopt a baby, another option they might consider is becoming foster parents. There are thousands of children who need good homes and loving parents and that, to me, would be the perfect solution. Please suggest it to them. If you are living paycheck-to-paycheck, then you do not have money to donate to this cause or any other right now.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 19year-old student who works. Recently, I was talking with a co-worker about life, the economy and tough times. As we conversed I mentioned that I use hand soap as shampoo and body wash to save money. A few days later, during my lunch hour, I found grocery bags containing toiletries in the back of my vehicle. I didn't say anything about it to him, but he mentioned "seeing someone" put something in my car.

I feel uneasy about this. I didn't mean to throw a pity party. I'm unsure whether to accept this "anonymous" gift. It was a nice gesture, but I don't want it to become a regular occurrence. Should I say something?

- HAVE MY PRIDE IN ARIZONA DEAR HAS YOUR PRIDE:

Yes. Write your co-worker a short note, thanking him for his generous gift. Then say you think he is caring and thoughtful, but you are accepting his gift only as a onetime gesture.

DEAR ABBY: A dear friend, "Harold," passed away suddenly from a heart attack. Since we knew his wishes, he was cremated. Harold always hated having his picture taken, so the only photo available for display at his memorial was his driver's license photo, and he looked like a deer in the headlights.

I wish we'd had a few candid shots of Harold to remember him by. I would have loved to have kept one for myself. Please urge your camera-phobic readers to permit family and friends to snap a shot or two of them every once in a while, before it's too late. Thanks.

MISSING HIM INILLINOIS DEAR MISSING HIM:

Please accept my condolences. The fear that the only picture available for their memorial would be a driver's license photo (or a mug shot) may convince my camerashy readers to relent. But don't count on it.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"Hopes, what are they? — Beads of morning

Strung on slender blades of grass; Or a spider's web adorning In a strait and treacherous pass." — William Wordsworth

Appreciating that he could not afford a wrong guess in hearts, the successful declarer in today's deal remembered the bidding and came to the right conclusion.

Defending against three notrump, West obediently led his singleton club in response to his partner's bid. Declarer won with dummy's ace to preserve the club king as an entry to the blocked spades, then cashed the spade king and considered his next move carefully. Declarer expected that the missing heart honors would be split and, in light of the vulnerable overcall, East was more likely to hold the king than the jack.

If this was indeed the case, declarer could not afford to use his last club stopper to run the spades before broaching hearts. Although East might come under pressure on the run of the spades, the position would be hard to read.

So South made the key play of exiting from dummy with the heart queen at trick three. East took his king and returned a top club. South won, ran the spades, then successfully finessed against West's heart jack for his contact. In the end declarer emerged with seven blacksuit winners and three heart tricks for a somewhat improbable over-

(Incidentally, had the spades broken poorly, with West being 5-4 in the majors, declarer would have been able to run the heart nine and remain in hand to repeat the heart finesse to generate three tricks from the suit.)

ANSWER: If you, as opener, are allowed to rebid one no-trump with a singleton in your partner's suit (and if you are not, why aren't you?), you have no problem here. Yes, this call technically shows 12-14 points, not 15 — but this hand equates to a minimum, with the singleton king not pulling its weight. Consolation award goes next six weeks, you can make dynamic career and financial decisions as you are ready and able to take the bull by the horn. This might be the best time to receive the answer to a prayer or the chance to prove what you can really accomplish. Act now: In October, achieving the dream you hold most dear might prove elusive. January arrives with mixed blessings because you will be feeling more creative and ambitious but could be held back from reaching goals by ARIES (March 21-April 19): Brush that chip off your shoulder and explain yourself. Undisclosed resentments could stir up disputes. A little conflict might be a good thing as you may win an ally through heartto-heart discussions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Careful reflection may clear up a mystery or solve a riddle. Rather than sneaking around and gathering ammunition to defeat your competition, boldly step up and make your views known GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Don't leave caution behind as you speed through the day. With Mars in your sign, you may be anxious to lead and unwilling to follow. Remember to be as nice as possible to everyone and to compete fairly.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Hit the nail on the head with a business matter. Your street smarts can be put to good use in an everyday activity. Friends might knock on your door and benefit from your wise and experienced advice.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Dreams can come true. The seeds of a great idea might be ready to sprout, or can be prepared for favorable transplants. You might work at optimum efficiency far away from the hustle and the bustle.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You know what they say about sleeping dogs. If you stir up trouble, you must behave like the Master of the Hounds. An offer or contractual duties might be fraught with misunderstandings or complications.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): change of heart might be merely temporary. The qualms you experience about a relationship might evaporate if you change tactics or accept the fact that you have to hold up your end of the bargain.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Apply tried-and-true techniques. Surprising news might briefly tempt you to go on the warpath. It is in your best interests to digest new information at your leisure and wait before acting.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Those in charge are only in charge until you punch out. While you are at work you are expected to give your all, but once you are off the clock, your time is your own to do whatever you wish.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Every relationship has its ups and downs. Don't force issues or use a brief downturn as an excuse to stir up controversy. Making a change in a partnership or at home might be counterproductive.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Runaways can cause a riot. Once you get the bit between your teeth you are unlikely to let go or slow down. The problem is that by being headstrong you can confuse or alienate key peo-

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): To succeed in business without really trying is only a fantasy fit for the stage. You may put forth effort and professional offer a demeanor. A new romantic interest might avoid intimacy while you crave caresses.

SUDOKU

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

Anne Timpany leads a Laughing Yoga session along the greenbelt Tuesday in Idaho

Laughing Their Way to Health

'Laughing yoga' students in Idaho Falls chuckle to relieve stress — and experts back them up.

BY ERYN SHAY JOHNSON Post Register

IDAHO FALLS • Each Tuesday at noon, laughter can be heard coming from a group of people gathered on the greenbelt.

They're not there as an audience to an improv comedy act; instead, they're gathering to enjoy the health benefits of a good shared

It turns out there's science behind the old saying "laughter is the best medicine."

A 2000 study by cardiologists at the University of Maryland found that laughter may help prevent heart

"(Researchers) found that people with heart disease were 40 percent less likely to laugh in a variety of situations compared to people of the same age without heart disease," according to the re-

Laughter as a path to better health is the idea behind Anne Timpany's Laughing on the Falls Lunchtime Laughter Club.

"I've been laughing all my life," Timpany said. "Twoand-a-half years ago when I was going through labor, I just got the giggles. So, for the last three hours I just laughed and laughed. And it got me to thinking, 'Is this something we can cultivate as a skill?' The funny part is this was before I even knew about Laughing Yoga."

After researching laughter, Timpany found the Laughing Yoga website and thought, "I need to do this."

Laughing Yoga was started in India in 1995 by Dr. Madan Kataria, the "giggling

It started as sharing jokes, making poses and laughing tend a Laughing Yoga training course in New Mexico last summer taught by Kataria. The intense sessions, Timpany said, trained individuals to become certified laughing leaders and certified Laughing Yoga teachers, laughing leaders who train others to be laughing leaders. "Laughing is the body's 'joy cocktail' — it helps re-lease endorphins, dopamine, serotonin and helps lower stress," Timpany said. "Laughter changes your physiology. You can choose to be happy."

Timpany said scientists and doctors have found that the body can't tell the difference between a fake laugh and a real laugh and that laughing helps people in several ways. It reduces blood pressure and helps boost self-esteem. That's what the Laughter Club is all

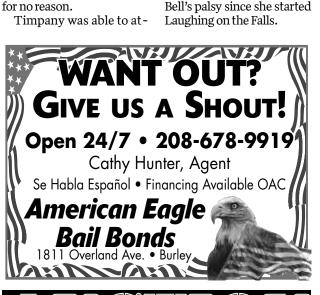

Kate Robertson has attended Timpany's sessions since they started in Octo-

"It helps me relieve stress," she said. "It is fun and makes you feel good. I would recommend it to everyone, because really, there are some health benefits to it."

Robertson has Bell's palsy, a paralysis or weakness of the muscles on one side of the face. Robertson believes the condition is triggered by stress. That led her to seek out Timpany's Laughing Yoga class.

"I needed to do something to get rid of the stress," she said.

Robertson tries to attend the session available every week. She has seen the positive effect it has made on her condition. Robertson said she hasn't had a flare-up of Bell's palsy since she started

Official Pleads Not Guilty to Sex Charge

CASCADE (AP) • The head of the Nez Perce commission not guilty pleaded Thursday to sexually assaulting a female acquaintance at Tamarack Resort in central Idaho.

Michael Grow entered his plea during a hearing in Idaho's 4th District Court, The Lewiston Tribune reported. He is accused of repeatedly groping and sexually assaulting the wife of an acquaintance at a Tamarack Resort residence on April 2.

Grow was staying with the woman and her husband at the ski resort near Donnelly.

An indictment last week said there was probable cause to charge Grow with felony penetration by a foreign object.

His attorney, James E. Siebe, said his client maintains his innocence in the case. Valley County prosecuting attorney Matthew C. Williams would not disclose why he asked a grand jury to indict Grow instead of bringing the charges during a preliminary hearing that had been scheduled for August. Grand jury proceedings are held in secret, while the hearing would have been held in public.

Williams said the grand jury was believed to be the first convened in Valley County
