ITD: So Far, Perrine Bridge Looking Good

BY NICK COLTRAIN
ncoltrain@magicvalley.com

Underneath the Perrine Bridge, as drivers put up with the bottleneck he created, Jim Holland looked up.

He maneuvered the bucket on the Reach All Truck to move closer to the bottom of the bridge, for a better look at the details of its welds and to check the integrity of thousands of bolts.

The drivers above probably assume those details are in tip-top shape.

It's Holland's job, as a bridge inspector for the Idaho Transportation Department, to ensure they are.

"It's just a slow process," Holland said after finishing his Tuesday inspection. "A lot of detail to look for."

With about half of his every-two-years inspection finished, Bollard gave the bridge passing marks. He still has the west side of the bridge to go over today.

ITD spokesman Nathan Jerke said bridges are typically designed to last about 50 years — the Perrine is about 35 years old. But with proper upkeep pointed out by folks like Bollard, they can last much longer.

"This one, with proper routine maintenance, should have a lot more birthdays than that," Jerke said.

He added later that the ITD will finish up its every-two-years inspection of the Perrine Bridge, noting where it may need maintenance. As a result, the outside southbound lane will be restricted for most of the day.

Accused T.F. Gunman Has Friday Hearing

Twelve days following the July 15 shooting and hostage incident in Twin Falls, few additional details have surfaced regarding the case against Clark Cleveland and the related death of a Utah man.

BY BRADLEY GUIRE
bguire@magicvalley.com

Questions linger about the details of Clark Cleveland's alleged July 15 rampage through northeast Twin Falls, and they likely won't be answered until at least a Friday court hearing.

Cleveland is scheduled to appear later this week in Twin Falls County 5th District Magistrate Court, where his case could be sent to district court. He so far is accused of shooting an Idaho State Police trooper at the Hampton Inn in Twin Falls after fleeing from a traffic stop on U.S. Highway 30 near Filer. Cleveland also allegedly took a female hostage and barricaded himself inside a stairwell at the hotel. He surrendered to police nearly 3 1/2 hours after the traffic stop.

At some point during the crisis, Tracy Ivie, 43, of Lindon, Utah, was fatally shot.

As of Tuesday, no additional charges were filed against Cleveland regarding the death of Ivie or the taking of a female hostage, whose name has not been released. Twin Falls County Prosecutor Grant Loebs has not disclosed the circumstances leading to Ivie's death. Idaho State Police Region 3 Capt. Clark Rollins told the Associated Press on the

At Friday's hearing, the state will need to prove to the judge that enough probable cause exists to charge Clark Cleveland (above) with two felonies — aggravated battery on an officer with a deadly weapon and eluding an officer — in district court. Cleveland has the option of waiving this hearing and proceeding to a district court arraignment.

Katie Ellifrits, 11, smiles as her wish of having a spa in her backyard comes true Tuesday in Twin Falls.

A Wish Come True for Katie

A Twin Falls girl with cerebral palsy gets her wish for a hot tub, three years after her family started looking at the Make-A-Wish option.

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI

Like most 11-year-old girls, Katie Ellifrits couldn't hide her excitement as she watched her new hot tub move into her backyard. Her smile outshined even her pink sequined flip-flops.

Yet unlike most tweens, Katie's hot tub carried special significance — a gift courtesy of the Make-A-Wish Foundation.

"This is so exciting for her," said Tiona Ellifrits, Katie's mother. "She's been waiting for this for so long and it's finally happening."

Katie's family began showing interest in applying for the Make-A-Wish program three years ago. Yet issues with Katie's health, ranging from cerebral palsy to cyclic vomiting, delayed the process. Normally, the foundation's

Area's F&G Commission Chief Steps Aside

As the Idaho Fish and Game Commission prepares to approve Idaho's second wolf hunt, Twin Falls resident Wayne Wright will pass the commission chairmanship to another.

kkruesi@magicvalley.com

By the end of this week, Idaho will receive its official rules on this fall's wolf hunting season.

The Idaho Fish and Game Commission will make the final decision when it meets in Salmon today and Thursday.

This year's hunt proposal largely wouldn't include quotas and would allow the use of trapping in certain areas of the state.

The commission chairmanship will also pass from Wayne Wright, the Magic Valley's commission representative, to Tony McDermott from the Panhandle Region. Commissioners are appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Idaho Senate in seven different regions.

Wright has served on the commission for seven years, three of those as chairman. He has been heavily involved in the wolf issue throughout the years and led the commission as it developed the state's policies on the predator.

Times-News: What can we expect at the end of the commission meeting?

Pitching Your Pennies? Maybe You Ought to Reconsider

On a rock outcrop at Shoshone Falls, there's a ledge covered with pennies.

The copper has long since corroded into a rainbow of green hues, and they'll be there forever because nobody is going to risk life and limb to salvage $1.14 that you can't spend in the pop machine.

I don't think God is OK with that.

I suspect that everyone who vacuums up a penny, or pitches it into a trash can, or walks over it without troubling to bend over is guilty of arrogance that may come home to roost.

That's because the penny is the currency of small mercies, the coin of petty indulgences from Providence. Think of it as the fiduciary equivalent of a sunbeam breaking through the clouds, a smile from a stranger, or your brother-in-law returning your cordless electric drill after 14 years.

We as a society seem to be above the penny ante. I fear we're tempting economic collapse, pestilence and the return of disco as a consequence.

Sodom started out that way, you know. Ditto Gomorrah. If we don't cherish our common cents, God must be reasoning, then maybe it's time for comeuppance.

You could ask Pharaoh. He and Moses were charioting down to Luxor one day when Moses had to stop at a Maverik and make a call at the pay phone. Lacking a shekel, he offered to trade the king a pocketful of cents for the correct change.

Pharaoh turned up his nose, and Moses had to make his call collect. Cheesed him off so much he gave his notice the very next day.

When Pharaoh refused to grant him free agency, Moses called down the boils, the frogs and the rivers of blood. Cairo hasn't been the same since.

It could happen here too, you know.

The righteous save pennies in cigar boxes, coin purses, mayonnaise jars. It could be just enough to survive in case the nation's monetary system implodes, which could happen any day now.

Congress could fail to raise the debt ceiling, the country could default on its debts and the economy crater, but the pennysaver would still be able to meet his house payment, keep the wood stove burning and read "The Grapes of Wrath" by flickering candlelight.

Such skills elude most of us. Too bad, because a penny spurned is the moral equivalent of one more cent invested in the Bank of Folly.

The Romans learned that the hard way.

The Visigoths, a surly bunch of German tourists, were passing through Rome one day during the Third Century and stopped at the local Johnny Carino's for lunch. The chief picked up the check, but he didn't have anything smaller than a 100-ducatur bill on him.

Try as they might, his Roman hosts couldn't scrape together enough change: They'd pitched all their pennies.

Offended, the barbarians plundered the Eternal City, and then they got mad. They put in vending machines for wine and erected an exact change-only tollbooth on the Apian Way.

Rome, which had lasted for a thousand years, ran out of time. And nobody had change for the meter.

recipients don't have to wait as long.

"We were in-between surgeries for most of that time," Tiona said. "We wanted to wait to make sure Katie could decide what she really wanted and was healthy enough to enjoy it."

Twin Falls' Snake River Pool and Spa donated the hot tub and gazebo to the Ellifrits family.

"We have worked with Make-A-Wish for almost 25 years," said Jim Paxton, the store's owner. "It is always amazing to watch people's wishes come true."

Paxton met Katie earlier this year and gave her family several spa options to choose from.

"I told her I was going to deliver the hot tub," he said. "And here I am today — feels good to own up on my promise."

Katie is scheduled to go through two back surgeries in the near future. She is taking a short break now to rest and to enjoy her new gift.

She and her three siblings plan to enjoy the hot tub as much as possible.

"She loves swimming," Tiona said. "At first she said she wanted a pool but we realized that it wouldn't stay warm enough for her. But she is just as happy to get a hot tub, too!"

After this inspection, the next thing on the docket for the Perrine is a complete resurfacing of its road next summer.

be changes to the wolf hunt proposal. It will be interesting to have each commissioner voice their own suggestions for the wolf hunt because it will be based on their experience from their own region. We will also be looking into changing ATV hunting rules and completing some mundane tasks like finalizing details on the Chinook salmon season.

Times-News: How do you make decisions on such a hot topic like wolf management?

Wright: It's been a very interesting and somewhat tumultuous experience. I've always tried to take a middle-of-the-road approach. We're going to have wolves in the state for forever so we have to learn how to live with them. What's the best way to do that? I'm not sure there's a way to make everyone happy but we're trying.

Times-News: Yesterday, U.S. District Judge Don Molloy in Montana heard arguments on whether Congress acted within the Constitution when it voted to remove wolves from the endangered species list. Will this affect what the commission decides this week?

Wright: The commission is very aware of this court case going on right now. However, we can only speculate the outcome at this point. We are going to be receiving updates throughout the week. If there is a decision made this week we will be aware of it and have to adjust to whatever the outcome may be.

Times-News: Any last words as chairman?

Wright: I've really enjoyed working with the other commissioners. My advice to Tony would be to have fun. It will be a lot of work, but worth it.

Crews Fight Blaze Near Dierkes Lake

TIMES-NEWS

Firefighters quashed a brush fire Tuesday evening near Dierkes Lake that climbed up near residences in the Hidden Lakes subdivision.

According to emergency dispatchers, the fire started shortly after 7 p.m. It got as close as 100 feet to a couple of homes before crews battled it back.

By 8:30 p.m., firefighters were mainly concerned with just one trouble spot. By 10:20 p.m., they were wrapping up at the scene. Details about what started the fire weren't immediately available.

Twin Falls city and Rock Creek Rural Fire Protection District crews responded, as did U.S. Bureau of Land Management resources.

Filer Teen Pleads Guilty to Credit Card Theft

TIMES-NEWS

An 18-year-old Filer man accused of stealing credit cards from a vehicle has pleaded guilty to felony burglary.

Reynaldo Martinez-Silva was arraigned in Twin Falls County 5th District Court on Monday. His guilty plea led to the state dismissing another charge of criminal possession of a financial transaction card, according to a plea deal he signed.

Prosecutors will recommend a suspended sentence of two to five years in state prison with up to 30 days in county jail.

Sentencing is slated for Oct. 3.

Sprint Store Theft Suspect Pleads Guilty

TIMES-NEWS

The man accused of breaking into a Twin Falls mobile phone store has pleaded guilty to felony grand theft.

Omar Padilla, 20, of Twin Falls, agreed to plead guilty to the felony charge in exchange for the state dropping other felony charges of burglary and malicious injury to property.

He was arraigned in Twin Falls County 5th District Court on Monday, and sentencing is set for Sept. 6.

Police responded to a break-in at the Sprint Store at 181 Blue Lakes Blvd. N. on the morning of May 20, and were able to locate Padilla by using a tracking application on a phone Padilla was allegedly using to make calls. Investigators later found a bag full of mobile phones at his girlfriend's residence.

The state will recommend Padilla serve a retained-jurisdiction program with a possible prison sentence of eight years.

Judge Overturns Jarbidge Grazing Ban

TIMES-NEWS

A federal judge has overturned a ban on grazing permits on public land southwest of Twin Falls.

On July 22, U.S. District Judge B. Lynn Winmill decided that permit holders could continue to graze in 17 allotments in the U.S. Bureau of Land Management Jarbidge Resource Area.

Grazing permits within the Jarbidge area have been contested for several years. Winmill's latest decision in March suspended grazing on the 17 allotments.

However, immediately after the ban, permit holders filed a motion to lift the decision.

They argued that they and the BLM help protect both the land and sage grouse habitat. A decline in the grouse population, they argued, comes from wildfires. The most damage came from the 2007 Murphy Complex Fire, which burned 650,000 acres.

Ranching groups involved in the case include the Simplot Land and Livestock Group, Brackett Ranches Limited Partnership and Camas Creek Cattle Association.

Jerome Man Also Faces Drug Charges

TIMES-NEWS

A Jerome man suspected of stabbing a co-worker has pleaded not guilty to another felony case from this year. Todd Hall, 36, is scheduled for an Oct. 4 jury trial, accused of felony possession of methamphetamine. He was arraigned in Twin Falls County 5th District Court on Monday.

Hall was arrested for the alleged possession in May, and is also accused of stabbing co-worker Donald Cordell in February. Hall is slated for a related trial later in August for felony battery.

Hall faces a maximum penalty of seven years in prison and a $15,000 fine if convicted of the drug charge.

Man Pleads Not Guilty to Firearm Charge

TIMES-NEWS

The man who reportedly led police on a high-speed chase and caused a standoff at the Twin Falls ShopKo has pleaded not guilty to unlawful possession of a firearm.

Dylan Byrne, 28, of Twin Falls, is set for a Sept. 27 trial in Twin Falls County 5th District Court after entering his plea on Monday. Police say Byrne was fleeing a Jerome County sheriff's deputy shortly after midnight on June 11, doing 90 mph south on U.S. Highway 93. He allegedly stopped in the parking lot of Magic Valley Mall upon entering Twin Falls, exited the car and waved a gun around. He surrendered about two hours later.

Upon a search, police said they found drugs in Byrne's vehicle.

Byrne faces up to five years in prison and a $5,000 fine if convicted.

JEROME SCHOOL BOARD TENTATIVELY APPROVES SALE

BY BEN BOTKIN

bbotkin@magicvalley.com

JEROME • The Jerome School Board bestowed its tentative blessing on Tuesday onto a proposed land sale agreement that will create space for a new Head Start facility.

Under the agreement, the College of Southern Idaho will pay the school district $105,000 for a 1.5-acre tract located in the 200 block of Fourth Avenue West, behind the school district's administration building. The school board agreed to approve the deal, provided the district's attorney doesn't find any legal problems with it. The vote was 3-0, with trustees John Crozier and Byron Burnham absent.

The pending sale will give the North Side Head Start Center in Jerome a centralized location for all its programs, which are geared toward young children and their parents. Currently, the Jerome Head Start programs and offices are scattered throughout three separate buildings. No building sits on the land, which used to be school grounds before the district built a middle school in a different location.

Under the agreement, the college, which is the fiscal agent for Head Start, also would cover the closing fees and surveying costs.

CSI's board has yet to approve the agreement. Mike Mason, vice president of administration at CSI, didn't return multiple messages left at his office last week and on Tuesday, concerning the sale negotiations.

Ben Botkin may be reached at 735-3238.

Rep. David Wu, D-Ore., speaks March 7 in Hillsboro, Ore.

Rep. Wu to Resign After Report of Sexual 'Encounter'

BY AARON BLAKE
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON • Rep. David Wu, D-Ore., announced Tuesday that he will resign from Congress, four days after a report that a young woman called his office complaining of an "unwanted sexual encounter" with the congressman.

"I cannot care for my family the way I wish while serving in Congress and fighting these very serious allegations," Wu said in a statement. "The well-being of my children must come before anything else. "This is the right decision for my family, the institution of the House, and my colleagues."

The congressman, who said he will formally resign at the conclusion of the debt-limit debate, had said Monday that he would not seek re-election next year. But congressional leaders had called for an ethics investigation, and both of his home state's Democratic senators on Tuesday morning called for his resignation.

Wu becomes the latest member of Congress to resign amid a burgeoning sex scandal — this year, Sen. John Ensign, R-Nev., Rep. Chris Lee, R-N.Y., and Rep. Anthony Weiner, D-N.Y., have stepped down.

Wu is separated from his wife and is seeking a divorce, but the nature of the reported sexual encounter with the teenage daughter of one of Wu's friends made things particularly difficult for the congressman. Congressional leaders gave him a few days to sort things out, but in the end, facing an ethics investigation and a potentially drawn-out public drama, he opted to leave Congress.

Wu had previously been accused of erratic behavior toward the end of the 2010 campaign, and he later admitted to taking unprescribed medication and sending unprofessional pictures of himself to his staff, including one of himself in a tiger costume.

The incident in question, which Wu told his staff was consensual, involved a recent high school graduate and occurred three weeks after Election Day, according to the Portland Oregonian.

N. Idaho Man Charged With Felony After Baby Injured

COEUR D'ALENE (AP)

• A northern Idaho man has been charged with a felony after his nearly three-week-old infant son was hospitalized with a head injury.

A judge set bail for 19-year-old James Dean Blanchard at $100,000 during a hearing Monday in Idaho's 1st District Court.

Blanchard was arrested and charged with felony injury to a child after police responded to a Coeur d'Alene home late Sunday to find medical workers performing CPR on the infant. The baby was bleeding in the brain and listed in critical condition at a hospital in nearby Spokane, Wash.

During his arraignment, Blanchard pleaded to see his son but the judge issued a no-contact order, saying the baby would be placed in state custody.

Prosecutors say witnesses can testify that Blanchard had shaken and screamed at the infant.

Judge Says He'll Rule Soon in Idaho Medicaid Lawsuit

BY REBECCA BOONE
Associated Press

BOISE • A federal judge soon will decide whether the state can move forward with its plan to consolidate some services for the developmentally disabled, and the ruling could determine the future of dozens of residential habilitation businesses across Idaho.

The state Department of Health and Welfare decided earlier this year to have just one residential habilitation company oversee all the Medicaid-covered certified family homes in Idaho — a switch expected to save about $800,000. The department chose Community Partnerships of Idaho for the contract, and said the change would take effect Aug. 5.

But Russell and Sandra Knapp sued on behalf of their ward, Jason Knapp, and Jana Shultz sued on behalf of ward Toby Shultz, in Boise's U.S. District Court.

The Knapps and Shultz provide certified family homes for their wards under a Medicaid program that aims to provide a family-style living environment for people who need assistance with daily living activities. They contend the switch to a single residential habilitation provider violates their wards' right to freely choose their own health care providers.

Residential habilitation agencies provide training, oversight and quality assurance for certified family homes.

Meanwhile, a group of residential habilitation providers also sued, saying they would be forced to lay off workers or close down under the state's plan and that the state was first required to get federal approval before it could change the Medicaid program.

U.S. District Judge B. Lynn Winmill, who is handling both cases, held a joint hearing Tuesday to see if the state should be temporarily barred from switching to the single provider while all the issues are worked out in court.

A lot is riding on the case, Winmill said, so he planned to try to get his ruling out within the next several days. "Some may be out of business. Others who are recipients of the services will be receiving services that are less than what was provided for under Medicaid," Winmill said.

Community Partnerships of Idaho is also "in a bit of a pickle," Winmill said, because it is under contract to start providing a statewide service next week, and at this point it's not clear if the business will be allowed to do so.

The judge also questioned attorneys for the state about the health department's timing. He noted that if the agency had just sought approval from the federal Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services when department leaders first started planning the switch, the whole thing could have been handled administratively instead of ending up in the courts.

But Idaho's deputy attorney general Peg Dougherty said past experience has taught department leaders that they need to have contracts lined up and ready to go before asking the federal government to approve changes to Medicaid.

Calif. Man Attempts Self-Surgery With Butter Knife

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP) •

A Southern California man stuck a butter knife into his belly in a failed bid at self-surgery to remove a painful hernia, police said Tuesday.

The wife of the 63-year-old Glendale man called 911 on Sunday night and told the emergency operator her husband was using a knife to remove a protruding hernia, Sgt. Tom Lorenz said.

"She said he had impaled himself with a knife," Lorenz said.

A hernia occurs when all or part of an organ or fatty tissue squeezes through a hole or a weak spot in a surrounding muscle or connective tissue.

While the man said he was trying to remove a hernia, hernias are normally repaired by doctors in a hospital or medical setting involving some type of procedure to push the organ back in.

Officers found the man naked on a patio lounge chair outside his apartment with a 6-inch butter knife sticking out of his stomach. The man's wife told officers that her husband was upset about the hernia and wanted to take it out.

While waiting for paramedics, the sergeant said, the man pulled out the knife and stuffed a cigarette he was smoking into the bleeding, open wound.

"What he was thinking, I don't know. I don't know if he was cauterizing it (the wound)," Lorenz said.

The man wasn't screaming or showing any signs of pain, the sergeant said.

National Parks Activist Gets 2 Years in Prison for Thwarting Auction

BY JENNIFER DOBNER
Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY • An environmental activist who derailed a government auction of oil and gas leases near two national parks in Utah was sentenced Tuesday to two years in prison and fined $10,000.

Tim DeChristopher, 29, also was given three years of probation. He was convicted in March of two felony counts of interfering with and making false representations at a government auction in 2008.

The maximum sentence was 10 years in prison.

He is the first person to be prosecuted for failing to make good on bids at a lease auction of Utah public lands. He ran up bids on 13 parcels totaling more than 22,000 acres near Arches and Canyonlands national parks.

DeChristopher was immediately whisked away by federal marshals to the Davis County Jail in Farmington. Defense attorney Pat Shea said they've requested DeChristopher be sent to a federal prison in Littleton, Colo., because it is near his family.

The defense plans an appeal, Shea said. "There's been a serious abuse of justice."

In a roughly 35-minute address to the court, DeChristopher restated his belief that his actions were an act of civil disobedience necessary to highlight the impending threat of climate change to the planet.

"My intent both at the time of the auction and now was to expose, embarrass and hold accountable the oil and gas industry, to point that it cut into their $100 billion profits," DeChristopher told U.S. District Judge Dee Benson.

DeChristopher said he would accept whatever punishment Benson imposed, but added that time in prison would not silence him or change his viewpoint.

"You have authority over my life, but not my principles. Those are mine," DeChristopher said.

SW Idaho Woman Freed in MySpace Enticement Case

BOISE (AP) • An Idaho woman sentenced to more than seven years in prison for using MySpace to entice a 13-year-old boy has been released after seven months in a rider program, where she received counseling and treatment.

The Idaho Statesman reports a judge ordered 34-year-old Ruth Alvarez, of Caldwell, released Monday on supervised probation.

Investigators say the case started when the boy's mother contacted them because she had found a letter Alvarez wrote to her son expressing sexual interest in him and asking him to add her as a friend on MySpace.

Alvarez pleaded guilty to felony enticement in September and ordered to serve up to 7 1/2 years.

Prosecutors argued Alvarez should serve the minimum sentence of 2 1/2 years in prison or a full year while the judge retained jurisdiction.

Wolf Law Challenged as Hunts Loom in Idaho and Montana

BY MATTHEW BROWN
Associated Press

BILLINGS, Mont. • Wildlife advocates went to federal court Tuesday to challenge a move by Congress that stripped endangered species status from more than 1,300 gray wolves across five states in the Northern Rockies.

The two-hour hearing before U.S. District Judge Donald Molloy in Missoula came as Idaho and Montana prepare for fall hunts in which hundreds of wolves could be killed.

A ruling is now pending. Courtroom observers said Molloy pledged Tuesday to quickly issue his order deciding the case.

Molloy has twice blocked prior attempts to lift protections for the predators. This time around, he is considering whether Congress violated the separation of powers under the U.S. Constitution with legislation crafted to circumvent his earlier rulings.

Congress approved a budget bill in April that contained a provision targeting wolves. The provision was inserted by two Western lawmakers, Republican Rep. Mike Simpson of Idaho and Democratic Sen. Jon Tester of Montana.

Signed into law by President Barack Obama, the measure marked the first time since the passage of the Endangered Species Act in 1973 that Congress forcibly removed protections from a plant or animal.

Several conservation and environmental groups filed suit in May.

They said Congress crossed the divide that separates the branches of the federal government by getting involved in a pending legal case instead of sticking to its role of making law. The groups cited Tester's comments in media interviews during the budget bill debate that he was not amending the endangered act itself.

But Department of Justice attorneys argued that is exactly what Congress did with the budget bill rider — change the law so wolves were left out of it.

"Congress acted well within its constitutional authority," the attorneys wrote in court filings. "Congress' power to modify the law, which in turn affects judicial decisions based on the old law, is well established."

Government biologists say wolves reached sustainable population levels a decade ago and would likely continue to thrive in the Northern Rockies under state management.

Tuesday's hearing did not address any of the science or management issues related to wolf recovery and focused almost exclusively on legal questions and court precedents, said Robert Lane, lead attorney for Montana Fish Wildlife and Parks.

"It's a purely legal question about the separation of powers and whether Congress has gone too far in this case," Lane said.

Wolves also were taken off the endangered species list in Washington, Oregon and Utah, but no hunts are planned in those states, which combined have only a few dozen wolves.

About 350 wolves in Wyoming remain on the list due to concerns among federal officials over a law allowing the predators to be shot on sight across most of the state.

OPINION

"The American people may have voted for divided government, but they didn't vote for a dysfunctional government."

President Obama, in his speech Monday about the nation's debt crisis as Congress remained gridlocked on legislation to avert a threatened default after Aug. 2

OUR VIEW

Want better streets? Then we'll have to pay for them

It's time that we started to sort through our priorities. That's what elected officials are paid to do.

Twin Falls Mayor Don Hall is a politician, but never let it be said he isn't a gutsy politician.

On Monday, he uttered the "T" word in a discussion on the condition of the city's streets.

"T", of course, means "tax increase" — anathema in a year when Congress seems prepared to let the federal government default on its obligations rather than raise revenue in any form.

Hall's right: Too many Twin Falls streets are a mess, and more of them are going to end up like Eastland Drive unless the city does something — anything — to find the money to fix them.

"One of the grave concerns that I have is if we are truly dedicating enough money toward our road maintenance," Hall told the Twin Falls City Council Monday night. "I think in this budget we make great strides toward that, but I wonder if we have the courage to move forward and possibly look for further monetary revenue to address the needs that we have in our road maintenance."

City staff's budget proposal for the coming fiscal year calls for $750,000 for road maintenance — $200,000 more than last year — but still more than half a million dollars short of what City Engineer Jackie Fields says she'd want to keep up with annual needs.

Hall pitched a 1 percent revenue increase that would be only one-third of the amount the city can legally raise spending by. City officials cannot directly raise taxes, only the city's tax-supported spending level.

The increase would equal about $5 more in annual property taxes for a $150,000 property and bring in about $157,000 extra, city Finance Director Lorie Race said. Hall said he would want that money earmarked for roads.

The mayor is sure to get an earful on this issue, but we wonder how many of those complaints will come from folks who have to drive Eastland to work.

Next week, the council is obligated to set the city's maximum spending cap for the year, though it could always spend less. Councilman Lance Clow recommended setting that cap higher than needed and reining it in during subsequent public hearings so the council won't paint itself into a corner.

That's good advice.

It comes down to this: Nobody else is going to pay to fix Twin Falls streets — not the federal government, and certainly not the Legislature.

If it gets done, we have to do it ourselves.

A disturbing snapshot of a restless climate

Enjoying your summer?

The answer is probably no if you live in Abilene, Tex., where temperatures have been at or above 100 degrees for 40 days this summer. It's been a little cooler in Savannah, Ga., where the mercury hit 90 or more for 56 days in a row. Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma are coping with their driest nine-month stretch since 1895.

Yes, it has been a very hot summer after one of the most extreme-weather springs on record. It's time to face the fact that the weather isn't what it used to be.

Every 10 years, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration recalculates what it calls climate "normals," 30-year averages of temperature and precipitation for about 7,500 locations across the United States. The latest numbers, released earlier this month, show that the climate of the last 10 years was about 1.5 degrees warmer than the climate of the 1970s, and the warmest since the first decade of the last century. Temperatures were, on average, 0.5 degrees warmer from 1981 to 2010 than they were from 1971 to 2000, and the average annual temperatures for all of the lower 48 states have gone up.

Heidi Cullen

For climate geeks like me, the new normals offer a fascinating and disturbing snapshot of a restless climate. The numbers don't take sides or point fingers. They acknowledge both powerful natural climate fluctuations as well as the steady drumbeat of warming caused by roughly seven billion people trying to live and prosper on a small planet, emitting heat-trapping greenhouse gases in the process.

Even this seemingly modest shift in climate can mean a big change in weather. Shifting weather patterns influence energy demand, affect crop productivity and lead to weather-related disasters. In the United States, in any given year, routine weather events like a hot day or a heavy downpour can cost the economy as much as $485 billion in crop losses, construction delays and travel disruptions, a recent study by the National Center for Atmospheric Research found. In other words, that extra 1.5 degrees might be more than we can afford.

And while the new normals don't point to a cause, climate science does. Drawing from methods used in epidemiology, a field of climate research called "detection and attribution" tests how human actions like burning fossil fuels affect climate and increase the odds of extreme weather events.

Heat-trapping pollution at least doubled the likelihood of the infamous European heat wave that killed more than 30,000 people during the summer of 2003, according to a study in the journal Nature in 2004. And if we don't ease our grip on the climate, summers like that one will likely happen every other year by 2040, the study warned. Human actions have warmed the climate on all seven continents, and as a result all weather is now occurring in an environment that bears humanity's signature, with warmer air and seas and more moisture than there was just a few decades ago, resulting in more extreme weather.

The snapshots of climate history from NOAA can also provide a glimpse of what's in store locally in the future. Using climate models, we can project what future Julys might look like. For example, by 2050, assuming we continue to pump heat-trapping pollution into our atmosphere at a rate similar to today's, New Yorkers can expect the number of July days exceeding 90 degrees to double, and those exceeding 95 degrees to roughly triple. Sweltering days in excess of 100 degrees, rare now, will become a regular feature of the Big Apple's climate in the 2050s.

The next time NOAA calculates its new temperature normals will be in 2021 — when there will be about another billion people on the planet. Lady Gaga may no longer be hot. But the climate almost surely will be.

Heidi Cullen, the author of "The Weather of the Future: Heat Waves, Extreme Storms and Other Scenes From a Climate-Changed Planet," wrote this article for The New York Times.

Tax pop, subsidize vegetables to change diets

What will it take to get Americans to change our eating habits? The need is indisputable, since heart disease, diabetes and cancer are all in large part caused by the Standard American Diet. (Yes, it's SAD.)

Though experts increasingly recommend a diet high in plants and low in animal products and processed foods, ours is quite the opposite, and there's little disagreement that changing it could improve our health and save tens of millions of lives.

And — not inconsequential during the current struggle over deficits and spending — a sane diet could save tens if not hundreds of billions of dollars in health care costs.

Mark Bittman

Yet the food industry appears incapable of marketing healthier foods. And whether its leaders are confused or just stalling doesn't matter, because the fixes are not really their problem. Their mission is not public health but profit, so they'll continue to sell the health-damaging food that's most profitable, until the market or another force skews things otherwise. That "other force" should be the federal government, fulfilling its role as an agent of the public good and establishing a bold national fix.

Rather than subsidizing the production of unhealthful foods, we should turn the tables and tax things like soda, French fries, doughnuts and hyperprocessed snacks. The resulting income should be earmarked for a program that encourages a sound diet for Americans by making healthy food more affordable and widely available.

The average American consumes 44.7 gallons of soft drinks annually. (Although that includes diet sodas, it does not include noncarbonated sweetened beverages, which add up to at least 17 gallons a person per year.) Sweetened drinks could be taxed at 2 cents per ounce, so a six-pack of Pepsi would cost $1.44 more than it does now. An equivalent tax on fries might be 50 cents per serving; a quarter extra for a doughnut. (We have experts who can figure out how "bad" a food should be to qualify, and what the rate should be. Diet sodas would not be taxed.)

Simply put: taxes would reduce consumption of unhealthful foods and generate billions of dollars annually. That money could be used to subsidize the purchase of staple foods like seasonal greens, vegetables, whole grains, dried legumes and fruit.

Groups Challenge Wyo. Horse Round Up

BY BEN NEARY
Associated Press

CHEYENNE, Wyo. • Environmental groups want a federal judge in Washington to block the U.S. Bureau of Land Management from proceeding with a plan to round up and castrate hundreds of wild stallions in southwestern Wyoming.

The BLM plans to use helicopters to gather nearly 900 wild horses from the White Mountain/Little Colorado herd management areas between Rock Springs and La Barge starting next month. It expects to capture 90 percent of the horses on the 60-mile wide area. It estimates roughly 1,000 horses there and says there should be no more than 400.

The agency plans to castrate all the stallions it captures and release 177 of them to the range as geldings. The rest of the captured horses will be put up for adoption or sale, or sent to long-term holding sites.

The Western Watersheds Project and American Wild

Horse Preservation Campaign, along with a few private citizens, filed the federal lawsuit Monday. It claims that the roundup plan runs contrary to the federal Wild Free-Roaming Horses and Burros Act, which requires the federal agency to maintain the horses as "living symbols of the historic and pioneer spirit of the West."

Grand Teton Grizzlies Make Rare Cub Exchange

BY MEAD GRUVER
Associated Press

CHEYENNE, Wyo. • A grizzly bear in Grand Teton National Park has wowed scientists and tourists alike by adopting a cub from another sow grizzly.

Park officials say such behavior is rare but not unprecedented. The switch is especially fascinating for having occurred between two grizzlies that are well-known — famous, practically — in the region for having spent so much time this summer near roads and developed areas where they've been easy to observe with their cubs.

What's more, the bears are keeping it in the family: The adopting mother grizzly is the daughter of the grizzly that lost its cub.

"For the general public to find out that something like this could happen I think is a fascinating glimpse into bear behavior and what can happen among bears that are related," Grand Teton spokeswoman Jackie Skaggs said Monday.

The switch occurred between a 15-year-old grizzly that biologists identified years ago with the number 399 and her daughter, a 5-year-old grizzly identified by the number 610.

Grizzly No. 610 gave birth to two cubs last winter. She has been seen with a third cub since late last week. Grizzly No. 399 gave birth to three cubs last winter but in the past few days has been seen with just two cubs in tow.

Babbitt Blasts GOP Bill on Public Lands

WASHINGTON (AP) • Former Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt is blasting as "radical" a Republican proposal to open up more than 50 million acres of public lands to logging and other development.

Babbitt, who was Interior secretary for eight years under President Bill Clinton, said the GOP bill would virtually repeal the 1964 Wilderness Act and open an area the size of Wyoming to development.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Kevin McCarthy, R-Calif., "is the most radical, overreaching attempt to dismantle the architecture of our public land laws that has been proposed in my lifetime," Babbitt said Tuesday at a House hearing on the bill.

"Simply put, it trades protection of wildlife habitat, clean water and clean air for corporate profits. It is noting more than a giveaway of our great outdoors," Babbitt said.

McCarthy, the third-ranking House GOP leader, said the bill would increase Americans' access to national forests and other public lands, while creating jobs and reducing the risk of catastrophic wildfires.

"Millions of acres of land across the United States are being held under lock and key unnecessarily," he said.

McCarthy and other Republicans called the bill a commonsense proposal that acts on recommendations by government agencies to open up public lands for increased public use.

Allowing public lands to be managed for multiple use — rather than "locked up" as wilderness — opens them to responsible resource development, healthy forest management, grazing and other activities, they said.

Former Teacher's Aide Charged with Sexual Battery

AMERICAN FALLS (AP) • A former American Falls High School teacher's aide is charged with felony sexual battery after an investigation found evidence she had a relationship with a 17-year-old male student.

KIFI-TV says 23-year-old Zenna Galeria hasn't been arrested because of her cooperation, but will be served a summons to appear at her arraignment on Aug. 15.

Galeria was fired from her job as teacher's aide and head volleyball coach last week after an investigation by the Power

County Sheriff's Office. Sheriff Jim Jeffries said the school district asked him to look into Galeria's relationship with the student. The charge was filed last Friday.

Famine Brings New Urgency to Africa Aid Effort

As aid workers rush to help dangerous and previously unreachable areas of drought-ravaged Somalia, officials warn 800,000 children could die across the region.

BY KATHARINE HOURELD and KHALED KAZZIHA
 Associated Press

DADAAB, Kenya • Seven-month-old Mihag Gedi Farah is the frail face of famine in the Horn of Africa. He stares out wide-eyed almost in alarm, his skin pulled taut over his ribs and twig-like arms.

At only 7 pounds, he weighs as much as a newborn but has the weathered look of an elderly man.

Mihag is just one of 800,000 children who officials warn could die across the region. Aid workers are rushing to bring help to dangerous and previously unreachable regions of drought-ravaged Somalia.

Famine victims like Mihag bring new urgency to their efforts, raising concerns about how many hungry children still remain in Somalia, far away from the feeding tubes and doctors in the field hospital at this Kenyan refugee camp.

Mihag's fragile skin crumples like thin leather under the pressure of his mother's hands, as she touches the hollows where a baby's chubby cheeks should be.

Sirat Amine, a nurse-nutritionist with the International Rescue Committee, puts Mihag's odds for survival at only 50-50. A baby Mihag's age should weigh about three times what he does.

His mother, Asiah Dagane, fans Mihag with the edge of her headscarf to keep flies away. He cries weakly, and when he does, she bounces him gently to try to soothe him and murmurs softly.

"In my mind, I'm not well," she says softly. "My baby is sick. In my head, I am also sick."

Mihag is the youngest of seven children in his family. Dagane told

Norway Police Slammed for Slow Response to Rampage

BY SHAWN POGATCHNIK
 Associated Press

OSLO, Norway • When Anders Behring Breivik launched his assault on the youth campers of Utøya Island, he expected Norway's special forces to swoop down and stop him at any minute.

Instead, Delta Force police officers made the 25-mile journey by car — they have no helicopter — then had to be rescued by a civilian craft when their boat broke down as it tried to navigate a one-minute hop to the island.

It took police more than 90 minutes to reach the gunman, who by then had mortally wounded 68 people. Breivik immediately dropped his guns and surrendered, having exceeded his wildest murderous expectations.

As Oslo's police force sounds an increasingly defensive note, international experts said Tuesday that Norway's government and security forces must learn stark lessons from a massacre made worse by a lackadaisical approach to planning for terror.

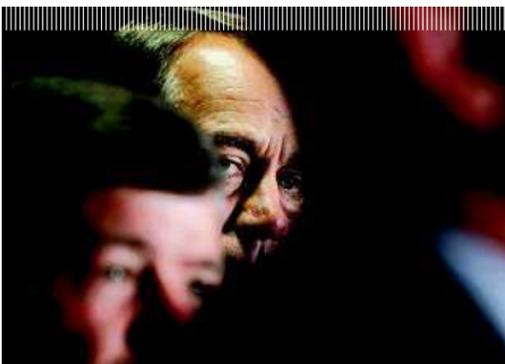

"Children were being slaughtered for an hour and a half and the police should have stopped it much sooner," said Mads Andenas, a law professor at the University of Oslo whose niece was on the island and survived by hiding in the bushes. One of his students was killed.

"Even taking all the extenuating circumstances into account, it is unforgivable," he said.

These include the fact that Breivik preceded his one-man assault on the island with a car bomb in the heart of Oslo's government center. Authorities were focused on helping survivors from that blast as the first frantic calls came in from campers hiding from the gunman on Utøya, northwest of Oslo.

Survivors said they struggled to get their panicked pleas heard because operators on emergency lines were

Conservative Ire Threatens GOP Debt Plan in House

BY CHARLES BABINGTON
 Associated Press

WASHINGTON • House Speaker John Boehner, thwarted by conservatives in his own Republican Party, scrambled Tuesday to secure enough GOP votes to beat a fast-closing Aug. 2 deadline and stave off the potential financial chaos of the nation's first-ever default.

Even with time running out, the speaker promised to quickly rewrite his debt-ceiling legislation after budget officials said it would cut spending less than advertised. Meanwhile, public head-butting between Democratic President Barack Obama and the Republicans showed no sign of easing. The White House declared Obama would veto the Boehner bill, even if it somehow got through the House and the Democratic-controlled Senate.

For all that, it was the tea party-backed members of Boehner's own party who continued to vex him, and heavily influence the debt and deficit negotiating

Gulf Oil Industry's Ties With Regulators Persist

Forms submitted under a new ethics policy show extent of industry's bonds with Minerals Management Service.

BY DINA CAPPIELLO
 Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Ties between offshore oil and gas companies and the agency that regulates them are so pervasive that a year after new ethics rules took effect, as many as a third of inspectors in some Gulf of Mexico offices have been disqualified to avoid potential conflicts of interest.

That makes it difficult to hire knowledgeable and independent regulators in a region where oil and gas interests are deeply intertwined in the economy and culture, and where expertise and training needed to do the job often is found in the private sector.

Documents obtained by The AP show that about 1 of every 5 employees of 109 involved in inspections in the Gulf has been recused from some duties because of the risk of coming into contact with a family member or friend working for a company the inspector regulates. Ten people hired since mid-August 2008 were barred for two years from performing work where they could be in a position of policing their previous employer — a company or contractor operating offshore.

In the Lafayette, La., office of the Bureau of Ocean Energy Management, Enforcement and Regulation nearly 35 percent of inspectors have been disqualified because a friend or relative works for a company they could interact with on the job. In Lake Charles, La., nearly 30 percent of inspectors held their last job with an oil and gas company, meaning they can't perform any duties involving their former employer for two years.

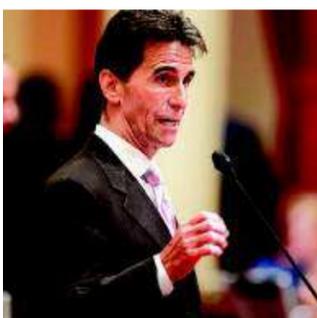

The numbers come from recusal forms under a new ethics policy instituted last year by the Obama administration to identify and prevent possible conflicts of interest before they arise.

Copies of the forms submitted by more than 100 inspectors, engineers and permit reviewers in five Gulf coast offices were obtained by the AP under the Freedom of Information Act. Personal information, such as the names of the employees, their friends and their family members, was blacked out to protect privacy. But the companies with ties to government workers were disclosed, and they represent a who's who of the offshore oil and gas industry, from majors like Chevron, Shell and BP to smaller companies such as W&T Offshore Inc., Ankor Energy LLC and Hilcorp Energy Co.

FOES OF GAY HISTORY LAW SEEK BALLOT SPOT

SACRAMENTO, Calif. • California's secretary of state on Tuesday cleared a group to begin collecting signatures for a ballot referendum to overturn a first-in-the-nation law requiring public schools to teach the contributions of gays and lesbians in social studies classes. Gov. Jerry Brown signed SB48 earlier this month, making California the first state to mandate such lessons in public school curriculum. The requirement is set to take effect in the 2013-14 school year. It took opponents less than two weeks to draft the referendum challenging the move. At a time of budget cuts, California schools should be focused on improving student performance and lowering the high school dropout rate, said Paulo Sibaja, a spokesman for the group Stop SB48.

Health Care Question Cleared for Ballot in Ohio

BY ANDY BROWNFIELD
Associated Press

COLUMBUS, Ohio • Voters will get the chance to decide whether Ohio can opt out of the national health care overhaul after the state's top election official said Tuesday that opponents of the federal law have enough signatures to put a constitutional amendment on the Nov. 8 ballot.

Secretary of State Jon Husted determined that supporters of the amendment, which would prohibit Ohio from participating in the federal Affordable Care Act, had gathered 427,000 valid signatures. They had submitted more than 546,000 and needed roughly 358,000 of them validated to make it on to the ballot.

The amendment will find itself on the ballot alongside a measure to repeal a contentious new collective bargaining law. Advocates expect that the two measures will drive people to the polls, which are typically under-visited in off-year elections.

A liberal policy group, however, said it could file a challenge to the health care measure, because it was still finding invalid signatures in its review.

A coalition of tea party organizations, small government advocates and religious groups gathered the signatures to get the health care measure on the ballot and now plan to mount a statewide campaign in support of it.

The coalition has more than 35,000 volunteers, an "army of grass roots support," ready to mobilize to raise money to turn out voters in November's election, said Jeff Longstreth, campaign manager for Ohioans for Healthcare Freedom, a group that played a large role in the petitions.

"This issue would not be on the ballot without the blood, sweat and tears of thousands and thousands and thousands of volunteers," Longstreth said. "The message is clear: keep health care between doctors and patients, and keep bureaucrats out of it."

The measure would change the Ohio Constitution to prohibit any federal, state or local law from forcing Ohio residents, employers or health care providers to participate in a health care system. It also would prevent the state from enacting a Massachusetts-style health care program, where the state requires a minimum level of insurance coverage.

If passed, the amendment would not apply to any law or rule in effect before March 19, 2010, so as not to prohibit Ohioans for participating in programs such as Medicare.

Famine

Like the tens of thousands of other Somalis fleeing starvation, the family traveled sometimes by foot, other times catching rides with passing trucks, cars or buses.

Dagane keeps vigil for her son in the ward, which is painted with cheerful pictures of balloons and fruit, lit with fluorescent bulbs. Other mothers huddle on beds next to babies with IV tubes snaking from their heads or hands.

Some infants cry, others are listless. In the middle of the room hangs a woven basket from a scale — but it's not needed to tell that many of the babies are dangerously malnourished.

Abdi Ibrahim Yara arrived 20 days ago with his four children, including 1-year-old twins. They are unable to drink the fortified milk and must be fed by an IV.

He and his wife were on the road for 25 days, but she became sick from malnutrition and died. She was four months pregnant.

"We had a comfortable life there, but now there is no one left," Yara says.

Nurse Abukar Abdulle says all of those arriving at the field hospital complain of "severe malnutrition." Most have walked from central Somalia.

"We have to treat them for at least a week," Abdulle says. "They have no food, shelter or water. Some have diseases. Some died on the road and some were lost. Many mothers who come here have lost children."

The United Nations estimates that more 11 million people in East Africa are affected by the drought, with 3.7 million in Somalia among the worst-hit because of the ongoing civil war in the country.

Somalia's prolonged drought became a famine in part because neither the Somali government nor many aid agencies can fully operate in areas controlled by al-Qaida-linked militants, and the U.N. is set to declare all of southern Somalia a famine zone as of Aug. 1.

Aid organizations including the U.N. World Food Program have not been able to access areas under the control of the al-Shabab militants, who have killed humanitarian workers and banned the WFP.

The U.N. has said it will airlift emergency rations later this week to try to reach at least 175,000 of the 2.2 million Somalis who have not been helped yet.

The new feeding efforts in the four districts of southern Somalia near the border with Kenya and Ethiopia could begin by Thursday, slowing the flow of tens of thousands of people who have fled their homes in hope of reaching aid.

terms — not to mention his chances of holding on to the speakership.

Their adamant opposition to any tax increases forced Boehner to back away from a "grand bargain" with Obama that might have made dramatic cuts in government spending. Yet when Boehner turned this week to a more modest cost-cutting plan, with no tax hikes, many conservatives balked again. They said the proposal lacked the more potent tools they seek, such as a constitutional mandate for balanced budgets.

Rep. Jim Jordan of Ohio, chairman of a large group of conservative Republicans, sent a tremor through the Capitol Tuesday when he said he doubted Boehner had enough support to pass his plan Wednesday, when it is scheduled for a vote. The Boehner bill would require congressional action to raise the debt ceiling this summer, and again before the 2012 elections.

Obama strongly opposes that last requirement, arguing that it would reopen the delicate and crucial debt discussions to unending political pressure during next year's campaigns.

The president supports a separate bill, pushed by Majority Leader Harry Reid in the Democratic-controlled Senate, that would raise the debt ceiling enough to tide the government over through next year — and the elections.

Boehner wasn't helped by an official congressional analysis late Tuesday that said his plan would produce smaller savings than originally promised — less than $1 trillion in spending cuts over the coming decade rather than the $1.2 trillion he estimated on Monday.

Boehner's office said it would rewrite the legislation to make sure the spending cuts exceed the amount the debt limit would be raised.

rejecting calls not connected to the Oslo bomb. When police finally realized a gunman was shooting teens and 20-somethings attending a youth retreat on the island, Breivik had already been hunting them down for half an hour.

In a final act of bungling, police on Monday revised the island death toll down to 68, after initially miscounting the corpses at 86.

Breivik's lawyer, Geir Lippestad, said Tuesday his client was surprised he even made it onto the island without being stopped by police, never mind that he was left to fire his assault rifle and handgun for so long.

The island's lone part-time security guard was among the first people he killed.

Police spokesman Johan Fredriksen rebuffed criticism Tuesday of the planning and equipment failures, calling such comments "unworthy."

"We can take a lot, we're professional, but we are also human beings," he said.

International experts said Norway must take a hard look at a response system apparently premised on the assumption that the country didn't face a credible risk of terrorist attack, much less a back-to-back bombing and gun rampage.

That could be difficult in a country renowned for a culture of openness that has led to jaw-dropping security lapses in the past.

Norway's most infamous crimes before Friday involved the 1994 and 2004 thefts of artworks by its best-known painter, Edvard Munch. In the first theft, the robbers left their ladder propped up against an unlocked National Gallery window — and replaced Munch's "The Scream" with a mocking note: "Thanks for the poor security."

Fernando Reinares, former senior anti-terrorism adviser to the Spanish government, said Friday's attacks point to "an astonishing failure in police intelligence." He said a competent anti-terrorist agency would have identified Breivik before he struck because of his purchases of bomb-making ingredients and specialist weaponry.

"Norway is behind other Western European countries in adapting internal security structures and procedures to face terrorist challenges," Reinares said. "But there was also an amazing failure in police preparedness and reaction, both in terms of human resources and technical capabilities."

Andrew Silke, director of terrorism studies at the University of East London, called the police response "a bit Keystone Kops" because Norway's police were "just not used to dealing with something like this. The system was swamped."

While inappropriate behavior has been limited to a few individuals so far, as both Interior Secretary Ken Salazar and Bureau of Ocean Energy Management, Enforcement and Regulation Director Michael Bromwich have stressed, the forms quantify for the first time the extent of the bonds between the industry and the agency formerly known as the Minerals Management Service.

"The conflicts of interest addressed by this policy are not crimes or badges of shame," Bromwich said in a statement provided to the AP. "The fact is that they exist because of the close-knit communities in which much offshore activity takes place; they cannot be wished away. The issue is not the conflicts themselves, which have existed for decades, but whether they are identified, addressed and managed."

However, the number of disqualifications renewed calls by lawmakers for a stronger ethics policy to be put into law, one that also holds companies accountable and cannot be changed when new leaders come in.

"Our sense is the revolving door is still swinging too widely," Sen. Ron Wyden, D-Ore., said in an interview with The Associated Press after he had reviewed the recusal.

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

A White House threat to veto legislation that would avert a debt default pushed stocks lower Tuesday. Major indexes were already down for the day when the White House said it would object to a Republican plan in the House of Representatives that calls for raising the debt limit by $1 trillion. The plan would require the debt issue to be voted on again next year, something President Barack Obama does not want. The stalemate over raising the country's borrowing limit has rattled investors. If an agreement is not reached by Aug. 2, the U.S. won't have enough cash to pay all its bills and could default on its debt. The Dow Jones industrial average fell 91.50 points, or 0.7 percent, to 12,501.30. The Standard & Poor's 500 index fell 5.49 points, or 0.4 percent, to 1,331.94. The Nasdaq composite index fell 2.84, or 0.1 percent, to 2,839.96.

Swiss Look to Revive Luxury Watch Sales

BY SANDRA M. JONES
Chicago Tribune (MCT)

CHICAGO • Walking into a jewelry store or high-end watch department can be an intimidating experience: The timepieces are under glass. The room is hushed. The security guard is staring at you. No wonder so many Americans these days are shopping for luxury watches at wholesale clubs or on the Internet, where they can avoid stuffy attitudes, compare brands and maybe even find a lower price. Watchmakers have come to terms with the fact that the wristwatch is no longer about telling time. Almost every American — 96 percent, to be exact — carries a mobile phone that always shows the time. But watchmakers aren't ready to let generations of young consumers live without a watch.

Instead, the Swiss, the world's largest producers of watches, are leading a campaign to revive the watch as a status symbol in the U.S., particularly among men, who make up the bulk of the market. Watch companies are rolling out their own branded stores, reinventing the way watches are sold and stemming the rise of discounting. "We decided the best way to get into the U.S. market would be to make a strong statement," said Stephen Urquhart, president of Omega, a division of Bienne, Switzerland-based Swatch Group AG, the world's largest watchmaker. "To really tap the American market, the only way to do it is to open our own stores." Like most Swiss watchmakers, Omega has been selling its watches in the U.S. through jewelers and department stores for more than 100 years. But Omega didn't operate its own stores, until recently. During the past year, the watchmaker has opened 16 Omega boutiques in the U.S. It opened its first store in New York in 2009 and has an additional nine stores set to open during the next nine months in the U.S. Rolex and Tag Heuer, both Swiss companies, unveiled their first freestanding stores in the U.S. this year. Privately held Rolex debuted this spring in Chicago, New York and San Francisco, and three more stores are in the pipeline in the U.S. Tag Heuer set up shop in June in Las Vegas. The Rolex stores are operated by New York-based watch chain Tourneau, and Tag Heuer is run by luxury goods giant LVMH Moët Hennessy Louis Vuitton SA. At the same time, Tourneau, which operates 34 namesake stores in the U.S. in addition to the Rolex shops, debuted a new-format Tourneau flagship this summer in New York, aimed at attracting a new generation of watch wearers. The concept store touts counterless selling, akin to Apple stores, where sales associates stand alongside customers, instead of behind a counter. "The Swiss are really trying to push the idea that in order to be well-dressed, you have to have a nice watch," said Joseph Partington, owner of Forgotten Times, a watch store in Arlington Heights, Ill. "They realize that watches really aren't important anymore. There's no reason to have a watch to tell time. It basically has to tell status." The Swiss would like to convince Americans that watches are as cool as an iPhone or iPad.

US Downgrade Looks Likely

Could the U.S. lose its top credit rating even if a deal is reached to raise the debt limit?

BY MATTHEW CRAFT
Associated Press

NEW YORK • Market analysts and investors increasingly say yes. The outcome won't be quite as scary as a default, but financial markets would still take a blow. Mortgage rates could rise. States and cities, already strapped, could find it more difficult to borrow. Stocks could lose their gains for the year. "At this point, we're more concerned about the risk of a downgrade than a default," said Terry Belton, global head of fixed income strategy at JPMorgan Chase. In a conference call with reporters Tuesday, Belton said the loss of the country's AAA rating may rattle markets, but it's "better than missing an interest payment." Even with a deadline to raise the U.S. debt limit less than a week away, many investors still believe Washington will pull off a last-minute deal to avoid a catastrophic default. Washington has until Aug. 2 to raise the country's $14.3 trillion borrowing limit or risk missing a payment on its debt. President Barack Obama and congressional Republicans have failed to reach an agreement to raise the debt ceiling and pass a larger budget-cutting package. Politicians have tied raising the debt limit and spending cuts together. But at least one credit rating agency has already made it clear that unless that agreement includes at least $4 trillion in budget cuts over the next decade, the country's AAA rating could be lost. Right now, the proposals under discussion cut around $2 trillion or less. Standard & Poor's warned earlier this month that there was a 50-50 chance of a downgrade, if Congress and President Obama failed to find a "credible solution to the rising U.S. government debt burden." S&P said it may cut the U.S. rating to AA within 90 days. Passing a $4 trillion agreement could prevent a downgrade, S&P said. The other chief rating agency, Moody's Investors Service, said the U.S. government would likely keep its top rating if it avoids a default.

MERIDIAN APPEALS RULING IN COURT CASE

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOISE • The city of Meridian has appealed a district court ruling that rejected its claims against a contractor hired to build a new $21 million city hall. In a statement Monday, the city said an appeal had been filed with the Idaho Supreme Court last week. Fourth District Court Judge Ronald J. Wilper last month rejected the city's claims that Petra Inc. breached its contractual obligations and should be liable for 104,000-square-foot building. Wilper also determined the city should bear the costs of Petra's legal fees, estimated $1.8 million.

The Lefty's Smokehouse mascot dances around outside the new Shoshone Street restaurant, enticing customers to come eat, Monday afternoon in Twin Falls.

Smoke Rises in Downtown

A new Twin Falls restaurant is lighting up the grill and serving barbeque favorites. Look for the dancing pig on a Shoshone Street sidewalk.

BY EVA STUTZMAN
estutzman@magicvalley.com

Frequenters of downtown Twin Falls may have noticed something new — a dancing pig holding a giant knife and fork.

The pig is the mascot for a new restaurant, Lefty's Smokehouse. Starting last week, Lefty's had smoke billowing out of a smoker named Bertha as the cooks prepared their favorite brisket and other smoked meats.

Owner Jarried Graff had been fantasizing about starting his own barbeque shack forever, but the months of preparation that went into opening Lefty's just made his barbequing dreams and No Bull

BBQ Sauce sweeter.

"Their barbeque sauce has something sweet — it's spicy but also sweet," said Heather Nelson, a customer at Lefty's on Monday.

While doing renovations on the restaurant's Shoshone Street building, Graff fine-tuned his recipes, including some that he borrowed from his family's cookbook.

"All of the sides are personal recipes from my family that I have changed slightly to make better," Graff said. Those include corn bread with peppers; a fruit salad with berries, marshmallows and smoked almonds; macaroni and cheese topped with smoked Gouda; and sundried tomato macaroni salad.

"Their macaroni salad is really hearty," Nelson said. "I didn't expect it to have chicken in it. It's almost a meal in itself."

Although this is Graff's first go at a restaurant, it is not his first time in the kitchen or behind the grill. He worked for a short time as a cook at Outback Steak House and at Pressbox Sports Bar and Grill Lamingtons, a New Zealand cake, are one of the featured desserts at the new Kiwis Fish 'n' Chips & Meat Pies in Twin Falls. Owner Kathryn Aitchison developed the recipes after visiting the country with her husband, who comes from New Zealand.

Eating Like a Kiwi

BY MELISSA DAVLIN

Kathryn Aitchison knows New Zealand food.

Her husband, Rodney, hails from the island nation, and the couple visits once every two years. The first thing Aitchison's husband does when the plane lands: head for the meat pies.

So the Buhl woman wanted to bring a taste of New Zealand to Magic Valley. Earlier this month, Aitchison opened Kiwis Fish 'n' Chips & Meat Pies, which serves food from her husband's home country.

Aitchison has never owned an eatery or been to culinary school, but she's spent the past two years honing her restaurant's namesake recipes to make them as authentic as possible. She regularly visits a baker in Utah who taught her how to make meat pies and fish and chips, and her husband thoroughly tasted each recipe.

"He's my biggest fan and biggest critic," she said. "He grew up with them, so if they don't taste right, he's the first to tell me."

The new restaurant, in the former Local Dish location on Falls Avenue, features meat pies, fish and chips, hamburgers, sausage rolls and a salad bar. In her first couple of weeks, Aitchison offered pancakes, omelets and other breakfast fare during morning hours, but she axed that after no one showed up.

Business has also been slow for lunch and dinner, but customers who have found her enjoy the fare. On Monday, Chris Cook ate fish and chips at the restaurant with her husband, Al.

ONLINE: Time to Talk Porter

Times-News Night Editor Nate Poppino blogs on all things beer at "Idaho On Tap." Here's what's on his mind this week:

"Yes, it's the heat of summer. No, I know you're still relishing all those light, quenching brews. But for homebrewers, it's time to start thinking about what you want to have prepared for the brisk fall months. It's time to talk porter. ... Guest blogger Justin Baldwin provides this primer on porter: "The porter style has a lot to offer. Not only is it a good base beer drinkable in a variety of situations, but it is also very versatile. ... By the time the weather starts to cool down, your beer will be in prime condition for drinking."

McDonald's: Apple Slices in Every Happy Meal

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • McDonald's Corp. is adding apples to all its Happy Meals and launching a nutrition-focused mobile phone app as part of a broader health push.

The changes underscore how the restaurant industry is reacting to the demands of customers and regulators who blame it for health ills ranging from childhood obesity to diabetes.

Among other changes in McDonald's new program:

- McDonald's pledged to reduce sugars, saturated fats and calories through "varied portion sizes, reformulations and innovations" by 2020. It didn't give details. By 2015, it will reduce sodium by 15 percent.

- McDonald's will introduce a new mobile app focused just on nutrition information.

- McDonald's USA president Jan Fields and other executives will go on a "listening tour" in August to hear suggestions from parents and nutrition experts. The chain will also launch a new online forum for parents.

McDonald's says the new directives are "absolutely not" related to impending regulations that will force the industry to curb the marketing of junk food to children and post nutrition information on menus.

Rather, the changes are a response to what customers were asking for, said Cindy Goody, McDonald's senior director of nutrition.

"We've been in the nutrition game for over 30 years in providing nutrition information to our customers," Goody said. "Now what we're doing is we're adding more food groups and ... creating nutritional awareness!"

Get Your Goat, in a Good Way

MARCUS NILSSON

Braised Meatballs with Artichokes and Fennel is made with ground goat meat and makes four to six servings.

BY KATHERINE BOYLE
The Washington Post

It's the world's most popular meat, but you'd be hard-pressed to find goat at the supermarket. Bruce Weinstein and Mark Scarbrough, authors of "Goat: Milk, Meat, Cheese" ($30, Stewart, Tabori and Chang), think this scrawny farm animal could become America's healthy and sustainable alternative to beef. The new cookbook serves up more than 100 recipes plus tips for braising, roasting and grinding. Weinstein shares his thoughts on the Other Red Meat.

Why do you think goat is such a mystery in America?

Despite being the most widely eaten red meat in the rest of the world, North America never really took to it. Goat doesn't lend itself easily to factory farming, so it's not something that can be mass-produced, even though

Braised Meatballs with Artichokes and Fennel

Makes four to six servings. Recipe from "Goat: Milk, Meat, Cheese" (Stewart, Tabori and Chang).

- 1 pound ground goat
- 1 large egg white
- 3 tablespoons fresh bread crumbs
- 2 medium shallots, minced
- 1 teaspoon dried oregano
- 1 teaspoon dried dill
- 1 teaspoon salt, halved and used in two places in the recipe
- 1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper, halved, same as with the salt
- 1/2 cup whole wheat flour
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 large yellow onion, chopped
- 1 large fennel bulb, any stems and fronds removed, the tough root end sliced off and discarded, then the bulb itself chopped
- 1 large tomato, chopped
- 1 pound fresh baby artichokes, trimmed; or one 12-ounce package whole or quartered frozen baby artichokes (no need to thaw)
- 1 1/3 cups reduced-sodium vegetable broth
- 1 1/2 tablespoons reduced-sodium tomato paste
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon

it's popular elsewhere.

Is that why it's considered healthy? No factory farming?

Goat is often locally raised, which is a health benefit. But it also doesn't have the muscle mass that some other animals have, which in turn, makes it have less fat. It's a skinny animal. It's lower in fat than chicken and beef. Most goats are fed grass, which is what they're meant to be eating, not corn, so there's innate nutrition in the meat.

Why do you think some people have an aversion to eating it?

Mark and I like to call it the "cruise effect." If you've been in a cruise to the Caribbean, you've tried goat. In the Caribbean, the goat they serve can be really gamey to stand up to the spicy flavors. But the goat meat you get here is so mild. It's not even as strongly flavored as lamb, and I think people don't expect that. They're shocked.

What about the people who haven't tried it?

Well, sometimes they just think it's going to be strong or they don't know what to expect. But whenever we serve goat, people are surprised at how mild

Mix the ground meat, egg white, bread crumbs, shallots, oregano, dill, 1/2 teaspoon of the salt, and 1/2 teaspoon of the pepper in a medium bowl until uniform — that is, until the spices are spread evenly throughout; the bread crumbs, too; and the egg white is no longer visible as a scummy film. Form this mixture into 12 golf balls.

Heat a large pot over medium heat. Meanwhile, spread the flour on a plate. Swirl the oil into the pot, then roll half the balls in the flour. Put them in the pot and brown on all sides. (OK, geometry teachers, balls don't have sides. But you know what we mean.) About 7 minutes will do it. Transfer them to a plate and repeat with the remaining balls.

Dump the onion, fennel, tomato and artichokes into the pot. Stir over the heat until the onion begins to soften, about 3 minutes.

Pour in the broth; stir in the tomato paste, lemon juice, cinnamon, the remaining teaspoon salt and the remaining teaspoon pepper. As the mixture begins to simmer, make sure you scrape up any browned bits in the pot. Then tuck the meatballs into the simmering sauce and pour into the simmering sauce and pour into the simmering sauce over everything. Cover, reduce the heat to low, and simmer slowly for 1 hour.

So, is that the dominant characteristic? It's sweet?

I always say it's a cross between dark meat, turkey and pork. It has a distinct flavor. It's not tasteless, and certainly not a boneless, skinless chicken breast. But it doesn't have that overpowering barnyard flavor that goat milk can have, either.

So those who don't like goat milk could actually like the meat?

Yes, surprisingly, it's a completely different animal. Dairy goats are not meat goats. If you've had goat meat and didn't like it, it's possible you were fed a dairy goat. You wouldn't want to eat an old dairy cow. It wouldn't be a good steak. It would be stringy and tough, and it's the same for goat.

Do you have tips for cooking goat?

You have to think low and slow. It's best when braised or roasted at very low temperatures. Yesterday, I put a whole goat on the grill at 275 degrees and it was on there for six hours. There are so many ways to prepare it. I love to take the leg and roast it slowly for seven hours so it's falling off the bone.

McDonald's

The nutrition talk also has helped McDonald's grab business from other fast-food restaurants, even as the recession forced people to cut back on eating out.

McDonald's has worked to paint itself as a healthy, hip place to eat, offering wireless access in restaurants and introducing smoothies and oatmeal, moves that other fast-food companies are now trying to replicate.

customers can already choose between apples or fries. But only about 11 percent of customers were ordering apples, the restaurant said.

So by the beginning of next year, McDonald's will instead include a half-order of apples and a half-order of fries. Customers can get all fries or all apples if they ask.

Goody said the change is indicative of "incremental lifestyle modifications." Asked why McDonald's didn't eliminate fries, she said that "all foods fit when consumed in moderation."

A Mint and Lamb Dish Made for Warm Weather Cooking

BY J.M. HIRSCH
The Associated Press

Americans don't tend to think of mint as a savory seasoning. After all, it does go so nicely with chocolate.

In the rest of the world, however, it frequently appears on the dinner table. One reason is that its sweet-peppery freshness and deliciously pungent aroma does such a nice job of cutting through heavy and fatty foods, such as roasted meats. That's why you'll often see mint paired with roasted lamb.

But in summer, nobody wants to crank up the oven to roast anything. So I came up with this simple, weeknight-friendly recipe for lamb chops that get topped with a tzatziki-like yogurt sauce flavored with fresh mint, lemon juice, garlic and shallot.

Best yet, though the recipe calls for stovetop cooking, these chops could just as easily be tossed on the grill. If so, aim for about 3 minutes per side.

Lamb Chops with Mint-Yogurt Sauce

Start to finish: 25 minutes. Servings: 4.

- 1 cup plain Greek-style yogurt
- 2 tablespoons chopped

- fresh mint
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 shallot, minced
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- Salt and ground black pepper
- 1 tablespoon ground cumin
- 12 lamb rib chops
- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil, divided

Heat the oven to 200 degrees.

In a medium bowl, combine the yogurt, mint, garlic, shallot and lemon juice. Mix well, then taste and season with salt and pepper. Set aside.

In a small bowl, combine 2 teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon ground black pepper and the cumin. Rub the mixture over both sides of each lamb chop.

In a large skillet over medium-high, heat 1 tablespoon of the oil. Add half of the chops and cook for 3 to 4 minutes per side. Transfer the chops to an oven-safe plate and place in the oven to keep warm. Repeat with the remaining tablespoon of oil and chops.

Serve the chops topped with the mint-yogurt sauce. Per serving: 310 calories; 130 calories from fat (41 percent of total calories); 14 g fat (4 g saturated; 0 g trans fats); 130 mg cholesterol; 9 g carbohydrate; 37 g protein; 1 g fiber; 590 mg sodium.

Avoid Summer Diet Pitfalls

BY ALISON JOHNSON
Daily Press (Newport News, Va.)

Fresh fruits and vegetables abound in the summer, but so do some diet wreckers. "Barbecues, cookouts and picnics are built for grazing," says Marisa Moore, a registered dietitian and spokeswoman for the American Dietetic Association. Some common trouble spots:

Summer "salads." Potato salad, pasta salad and coleslaw might sound healthy, but they can be high in calories and fat. Half a cup of potato salad, for example, can pack 200 calories. Keep portions small or lighten salads by cutting mayonnaise content in half — you can sub in nonfat Greek yogurt — and adding mustard and diced vegetables for flavor.

Mixed drinks. Margaritas, daiquiris and other mixed drinks are high in sugar and can easily top 400 calories. Stick to wine spritzers, light beer or sparkling water with a twist of lime, and alternate alcoholic beverages with water (but remember: doctors recommend no more than one drink a day for women and two for men).

Frozen drinks. A 20-ounce fruit smoothie can run 500 calories, while a 16-ounce iced coffee concoction can add 400. Order small sizes, ask for coffee drinks with nonfat milk and no whipped cream and make homemade smoothies with fresh fruit, ice and nonfat yogurt.

Cookout spreads. Research shows the more food you have in front of you, the more you'll eat. Look over everything before you start loading your plate. Then fill up with fruits, vegetables and lean meats such as grilled chicken or fish, along with small portions of your favorite treats. And spend more time mingling and playing games than eating!

Festival foods. You'll run into plenty of burgers, ice cream and funnel cakes. Tame cravings — and beat crowds — by heading to a festival just after breakfast, or have a small, healthy snack beforehand. Scope out healthier options such as real fruit pops or grilled corn on the cob, and split less healthy fare.

Lefty

and was an avid griller before opening shop at Lefty's.

You'll probably find Graff behind the counter in his yellow and blue baseball shirt, serving up meals on orange plastic trays. Lefty's feels a little like a cafeteria with its plastic-covered tables, but the food is certainly not what you'd find in the lunch room.

"I want to keep it laid-back," Graff said.

So what's so good about Lefty's when your own grill is sitting in the backyard?

Graff doesn't just barbecue. Many of his dishes include smoked meat, which Graff cooks for more than 12 hours. To top it off, Graff has made inventive use of his grill. Lefty's salads are topped with smoked cheese that Graff prepares in a cold smoker; he barbecues fruit on skewers for a grilled dessert; and his cooks have added grilled spicy peppers like habaneros and jalapenos to the chili.

"The meat is really good," said Lefty's customer Montgomery Nelson, a self-proclaimed barbecue enthusiast.

The smokehouse has even endeavored to put together barbecued dishes quickly enough for drive-through costumers.

"We are aiming for about three minutes in the drive-through," Graff said.

To be ready for those costumers, Graff and his staff begin cooking as early as 4 a.m.

Smell something smoky in downtown Twin Falls? It's probably Lefty's cooking up some chicken on the pecan wood smoker or grilling some ribs over Northwest maplewood.

Tips on Using Steaks for Kebabs

BY KATHLEEN PURVIS
McClatchy Newspapers

Question: I'm considering marinating sirloin tip steak and using it for shish kebabs. Is it tough like round steak? Sirloin steak has worked well before.

Answer: So many steaks and roasts come from the sirloin area that the name does get confusing. Tip sirloin isn't the same as top sirloin, which is much more tender — and more expensive.

On the cow, the back section is called the round. Meat from there is lean and can be tough, because that area gets a lot of exercise.

The area right in front of the round is the sirloin, which yields a variety of cuts from the prized beef tenderloin at the top down to the cheaper, tougher sirloin steak at the bottom.

The sirloin tip is actually from the round, but it's from the area closer to the sirloin. Since it's very lean, it should be marinated. Cooking it quickly also will keep it from being tough.

That makes it a good choice for cutting into smaller pieces and grilling quickly, as you do with kebabs. It's also more economical than the other steak cuts.

Bean Salad Is Easy Summer Entree

BY STEPHANIE WITT
SEDGWICK
Special to The Washington Post

Bean salads are perfect for summer. They can be served cold or at room temperature, and most can be prepared in advance. With the right combination of summer fruits, herbs and other vegetables, it's easy to create a substantial main course.

The inspiration for this recipe comes from a summer-menu offering at the Seasons 52 restaurant in Virginia. The mix of poblano peppers, grilled pineapple and shrimp was so good, I found a way to turn it into a salad.

If you'd like to serve bread with the salad, grill some prepared nan.

The salad is best served within 8 hours of assembling, but it can be refrigerated in an airtight container for up to 2 days. The hot sauce will mellow, so if you serve it the next day, taste it and adjust the seasoning as needed.

Black Bean, Pineapple and Shrimp Salad

4 main-course servings or 6 to 8 side-dish servings

Three 1/3-inch slices of fresh pineapple (about 5 ounces total of peeled

- whole pineapple)
- 7 ounces medium or large raw shrimp, peeled and deveined
- 3 tablespoons olive oil
- Salt
- Freshly ground black pepper
- 3 tablespoons apple cider vinegar
- 3 tablespoons chopped cilantro
- 1/2 teaspoon sugar, or more to taste
- A few drops hot pepper sauce, such as Tabasco, or more to taste
- 3 cups cooked black beans (two 15 1/2-ounce cans, drained)
- 1 medium poblano pepper (about 5 ounces), roasted, skinned, seeded and cut into 1/3-inch dice (see note)

Prepare the grill for direct heat. If using a gas grill, preheat to medium-high (450 degrees). If using a charcoal grill, light the charcoal or wood briquettes; when the briquettes are ready, distribute them evenly under the cooking area. For a medium-hot fire, you should be able to hold your hand about 6 inches above the coals for about 4 to 5 seconds. Oil the grill rack before placing it on the grill. Lay out the pineapple slices and the shrimp separately on a large plate or tray. Drizzle the fruit and shrimp with 1 tablespoon of the oil, then season with salt and pepper to taste. Place the shrimp on the grill rack. Cover with the grill lid and cook for 2 minutes, then uncover and turn over the shrimp. Cook uncovered for 1 to 3 minutes or until the shrimp are opaque and just cooked through; transfer to a clean plate.

Place the pineapple slices on the grill; cover and cook for 3 to 4 minutes, until the pineapple has nice grill marks. Use a spatula to turn the slices over. Cook uncovered for 2 to 3 minutes, until the second side has nice grill marks; transfer to a clean plate. Let the shrimp and pineapple cool for 10 minutes. Cut the shrimp into 1/2-inch chunks. Cut the pineapple into slightly smaller pieces, discarding the tough center core of each slice if that hasn't been done already. Whisk together the vinegar, cilantro and sugar, along with the hot pepper sauce, salt and pepper to taste, in a large bowl; then slowly whisk in the remaining 2 tablespoons of oil. Add the pineapple, shrimp, black beans and poblano pieces, stirring to incorporate. Taste, and adjust the seasoning as needed.

Serve right away, or cover and refrigerate for up to 2 days. Note: Roast the poblano pepper on an aluminum-foil-lined baking sheet at 400 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes or until the skin has blistered. Let cool, then peel and seed it before cutting as needed. Per serving (based on 4): 340 calories, 22 g protein, 37 g carbohydrates, 12 g fat, 2 g saturated fat, 75 mg cholesterol, 150 mg sodium, 12 g dietary fiber, 4 g sugar.

KEEPING FRUIT FROM BROWNING

BY KATHLEEN PURVIS
McClatchy Newspapers

Question: What's the best way to prevent fruit from browning? I cut up some peaches and used Fruit Fresh. But they were brown the next day. Should I have used lemon juice, too? Or did I not use enough Fruit Fresh?

Answer: Produce protectors such as Fruit Fresh do a good job, but they don't last forever. According to Ball's website, www.freshpreserving.com, Fruit Fresh is only good for eight hours. It lasts long enough to eat the fruit, or to preserve it by freezing or canning.

The color change that makes fruit darken when it's cut is called enzymatic browning. When enzymes in the fruit's flesh are exposed to oxygen, pigments in the flesh cause it to brown.

There are two ways to stop it: Either stop the exposure to air, by covering the fruit tightly with plastic or covering it with water, or deactivate the enzyme. There are simple ways to inhibit the enzymes. You can dip fruit in salted water, toss it with an acid such as lemon juice or pineapple juice, or dissolve vitamin C tablets in water and dip fruit in that. Even a little sugar will protect fruit for a little while.

Products such as ascorbic acid or Fruit Fresh work by giving the oxygen something to react with. But once it's used up, the oxygen will go back to reacting with the enzyme. So you can slow down the browning, but you can't stop it unless you freeze or can the fruit.

A Healthy, Carrot-Packed Treat with Cookie Appeal

BY ALISON LADMAN

For The Associated Press

Cookies as an afterschool snack? No trouble selling the kids on that one. Now to convince the adults ...

Often laden in fat and empty calories, cookies don't often impress parents. At least not as a go-to snack to fuel growing bodies and minds. But if you're willing to bake your own, you can turn out some delicious and appealing cookies that will satisfy kids and adults alike.

For our take on healthy cookies, we used one of the healthiest and most flavor-packed cakes for inspiration — carrot cake.

We start with a low fat, cake-like cookie. It's plenty moist thanks to a small amount of oil (instead of butter) for healthier fats, and we supplement it with crushed pineapple. Using dark brown sugar as the sweetener adds more flavor and even moisture, while white whole-wheat flour adds whole grains. Then we add oats and a few nuts for texture, a handful of spices for flavor.

And, of course, the carrots and raisins.

Carrot Cake Cookies

Start to finish: 25 minutes. Makes 30 cookies.

1 cup white whole-wheat flour
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1 1/2 cups rolled oats
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon dry ginger
1/4 teaspoon ground cloves
1/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg
2 egg whites
3/4 cup dark brown sugar
1/4 cup vegetable or canola oil
1/4 cup drained crushed pineapple
1/2 cup fat-free milk
2 teaspoons vanilla extract
1 cup raisins
1 cup grated carrots
1/2 cup chopped walnuts

Heat the oven to 375 degrees. Lightly coat 2 large baking sheets with cooking spray.

In a medium bowl, combine the flour, baking soda, rolled oats, cinnamon, ginger, cloves and nutmeg.

In a second medium bowl,

Hats off to Bal Arneson, one of our new favorite Indian cookbook authors, for creating such a creamy, savory sauce from a handful of ingredients. You could toss in fresh spring peas to make this a one-pot meal.

Chicken With Almond Butter

4 to 6 servings

4 to 5 medium cloves garlic
1 or 2 ripe tomatoes
2 jarred roasted red bell peppers
1 3/4 pounds boneless, skinless chicken breast halves
2 tablespoons grapeseed oil
1 tablespoon fennel seed
1 tablespoon cumin seed
1 tablespoon ground coriander
Kosher salt
Freshly ground black pepper
1/4 cup creamy almond butter (see note)

Finely chop the garlic to yield 2 tablespoons. Core, then coarsely chop the tomato(es) to yield 1 cup. Drain the roasted red bell peppers, then coarsely chop to yield 1 cup. Trim any excess fat from the chicken, then cut the chicken into bite-size pieces.

Heat the oil in a large skillet over medium-high heat until the oil shimmers. Stir in the garlic, fennel seed, cumin seed (crush the seeds first, if desired) and the coriander; cook for 5 seconds, then add the chicken and cook for 5 minutes, stirring often. Season with salt and pepper to taste.

Add the tomato(es), roasted red bell peppers and almond butter; reduce the heat to low and stir to incorporate. Cover and cook for 3 to 5 minutes or until the chicken has cooked through. Serve warm.

Note: To make your own almond butter, spread whole raw almonds on a baking sheet. Lightly toast in 350-degree oven until thoroughly warmed through, then immediately transfer to the bowl of a food processor. Season with salt to taste, if desired; puree for about 5 minutes, stopping to scrape down the sides of the bowl as needed. Gradually add slightly warmed (in the microwave) grapeseed or olive oil; puree for 3 to 5 minutes to form a smooth butter.

Pudding for a Last-Minute Brunch

BY STEPHANIE WITT SEDGWICK
Special to The Washington Post

This is my way of combining two things I love, tapioca and peach pie filling, in a dessert whose elements can be prepared in advance and assembled at the last minute. It's layered like a parfait, without the usual whipped cream.

Add layers of granola to turn this into a lovely brunch dish.

The tapioca needs to soak overnight. Both the pudding and the peach filling can be prepared and refrigerated up to two days in advance.

Peach Tapioca Pudding

6 to 8 servings.

For the tapioca:
1/2 cup small-pearl tapioca
3 cups low-fat milk
Pinch salt
1/2 cup sugar
1 large egg, lightly beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1/4 teaspoon almond extract

For the filling:
1 1/2 pounds peaches, peeled, pitted and cut into 1/2-inch chunks
1/4 cup sugar, or more to taste
1/4 cup plus 2 tablespoons water
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract
1/2 teaspoon almond extract
Sliced almonds, for garnish (optional)

For the tapioca: Place the tapioca pearls in a container large enough to accommodate the soaking water as well; add enough to cover by about 3 inches. Refrigerate and soak overnight.

Drain the tapioca, discarding the water.

Whisk the tapioca together with the milk, salt, sugar and egg in a large saucepan. Place the pot over medium heat and cook for about 15 minutes, whisking constantly, to form a thickened pudding. Remove the pan from the heat and let it sit for 15 minutes. Stir in the vanilla and almond extracts.

Transfer to a large bowl; cover and refrigerate for about 2 hours, until fully set and chilled.

For the filling: Combine the peaches, sugar and 1/4 cup of the water in a large saucepan over medium heat. Cook for 8 to 10 minutes, stirring, until the fruit has softened to your liking. Mix together the remaining 2 tablespoons of water and the cornstarch, stirring until the cornstarch has dissolved. Add to the fruit and cook for 2 to 3 minutes or until the mixture thickens. Remove from the heat and stir in the vanilla and almond extracts. Taste, and add sugar as needed. Refrigerate until well chilled.

To serve, line up small dessert coupes, bowls or sundae dishes. Distribute half of the tapioca pudding evenly among the bowls or dishes, then use about half of the peach filling to cre-

SALAD SOLVES THE PROSCIUTTO-MELON AWKWARDNESS

BY STEPHANIE WITT SEDGWICK
Special to The Washington Post

Every summer, I used to wrap prosciutto around melon slices. I loved the flavor combination, but I always found the slices a little unwieldy: too big for hors d'oeuvres, awkward to cut with a knife and fork.

This simple salad solves the problem. Cutting the melon into cubes makes it easy to eat. The prosciutto and basil form a wonderfully flavorful dressing, especially when seasoned with a healthy grind of pepper. I end up using less prosciutto, so the sodium is under control, and I get a delicious salad that I can serve alongside grilled chicken, fish and shellfish.

This salad is best served within 2 hours of when it is made.

Melon Salad With Prosciutto-Basil Dressing

Makes about 5 cups (6 servings)

2 ounces thinly sliced prosciutto, coarsely chopped
About 20 large basil leaves, chopped (3 table spoons), plus more for optional garnish

2 tablespoons olive oil
One (2 1/4-pound) ripe orange-fleshed melon, such as cantaloupe, peeled, seeded and cut into 1/2-inch cubes; 5 cups cubed)
Freshly ground black pepper

Combine the prosciutto, basil and oil in a small bowl. Use a fork or your fingers to mix the ingredients and separate any prosciutto pieces that are clumping together. Place the melon cubes in a serving bowl; add the prosciutto-basil dressing. Toss to incorporate, then season lightly with pepper.

Taste, and add pepper as needed. For best flavor and appearance, serve within 2 hours.

Clover Christian School Turns 97 Years Old

This little Christian School located south of Buhl and Filer is still teaching children how to live a long peaceful life in a Christian atmosphere. They are not only taught the Word of God from the Bible but are taught to respect each other and their elders. They are also taught a responsibility and an understanding of the results of their actions. They also learn how to take care of the world they live in and the responsibility they will have as adults. The parents that send their Children to Clover Christian School have dedicated some of their means to raising their children to be outstanding citizens, as one parent said, "We love our children and we want the best education possible that will teach them the truth about life." The children also salute the flag and sing God Bless America for the school is proud of our American heritage. There are not many schools that teach Christian values so if you have children from kindergarten to the fifth grade you are welcome to apply to Clover Christian School. Yes, it takes dedication of the parents to raise children in this society today. We must make choices and some of these choices will stay with our children for eternity. Clover Christian School is dedicated to helping parents raise their children in a loving way.

One-pot Dinner in 40 Minutes

BY BONNIE S. BENWICK
The Washington Post

There's something bright-tasting about this meatless one-pot meal. If time's not a big issue, use fresh tomatoes. Serve with baked tortilla chips. Adapted from "The Woman's Day Everyday Cookbook," by the editors of Woman's Day magazine (Filipacchi, 2011).

Summer Chili

Makes about 12 cups (6 servings)

- 1 tablespoon plus 2 teaspoons olive oil
- 2 poblano peppers, on the smaller side (may substitute 4 1/2 ounces canned chopped green

- chili peppers, drained)
- 1 medium yellow or sweet onion
- 2 to 3 medium cloves garlic
- 1 medium zucchini
- 3 ears fresh corn
- 14 ounces extra-firm tofu
- 15 ounces canned no-salt-added black beans
- 15 ounces canned no-salt-added pinto beans
- 28 ounces canned low-sodium crushed tomatoes, with juices
- 14 1/2 ounces canned no-salt-added diced tomatoes, with juices
- 3 tablespoons chili powder
- 1/2 to 1 tablespoon ground cumin
- 1/2 to 1 teaspoon fine sea salt

Heat the oil in a large pot over medium-high heat.

As you prep the following 3 ingredients, toss them into the pot: Stem and seed the poblanos, then coarsely chop (to yield about 2 cups). Cut the onion into small dice (about 1 cup). Mince the garlic cloves to yield 1 tablespoon. Cook for about 5 minutes, stirring, until the vegetables have softened. Adjust the heat as needed to keep the garlic from browning. Trim off the zucchini ends and cut the remaining vegetable into 1/2-inch dice (to yield about 1 3/4 cups). Shuck the corn and discard any silk, then cut the kernels from the ears to yield at least 3 cups. Drain the tofu or pat it dry with paper towels, then cut it into 1/2-inch cubes.

Drain and rinse the black beans and pinto beans. Add the zucchini, tofu, corn, black beans, pinto beans, the crushed and diced tomatoes (with their juices), chili powder and cumin (to taste); stir gently to mix well. Once the mixture starts to bubble at the edges (increase the heat as needed if you had reduced it because of the garlic), then reduce the heat to medium-low and cook for 20 minutes. Taste, then stir in the salt to taste. Divide among individual bowls; serve hot. Per serving: 360 calories, 20 g protein, 47 g carbohydrates, 11 g fat, 2 g saturated fat, 0 mg cholesterol, 690 mg sodium, 13 g dietary fiber, 9 g sugar.

The Washington Post

You can't celebrate Belgian Restaurant Week without mussels. So at Washington's second annual Mussel Throwdown recently, seven chefs — representing Belga Cafe, Brasserie Beck, Et Voila!, Marvin, Locolat, Granville Moore's and the Embassy of Belgium — delivered very different bowls to an enthusiastic crowd.

The judges' panel, which included me, tasted mussels with kumquats and grapefruit, with a creme verde sauce, with fennel and orange juice, and more. But we agreed that chef Claudio Pirolo's mussels were the best of the day.

The dish was inspired by extra cream of endive that Pirolo had made for a recent event. He re-created it, adding extra caramelized endive. He initially experimented with lemon thyme, which made the broth a bit bitter, he says. So he used chives and sweet potato instead, even though "I never saw sweet potatoes in Belgium," says the Belgian native.

"Americans like sweet potatoes, and I do sweet potato fries sometimes at the restaurant," the chef says. "I think they do the trick here. And when you're done with the mussels, you've got a little soup to eat."

Pirolo reworked the recipe to shorten the preparation time. We've cut it in half here, but feel free to double. From Claudio Pirolo, chef and co-owner of Et Voila! in the Palisades.

Mussels With Cream of Endive and Sweet Potato

2 to 3 servings.

- 8 tablespoons unsalted butter

- 2 or 3 Belgian endives
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1 cup no-salt-added chicken broth
- 1 large sweet potato
- 1/2 cup dry vermouth
- 1 pint heavy cream or half-and-half
- Salt
- Freshly ground black pepper
- 2 pounds mussels, preferably Canadian
- Blue Bay or Prince Edward Island mussels
- 1/2 ounce chives

Melt 4 tablespoons of the butter over medium-high heat in a pot large enough to hold all of the mussels.

Trim off and discard the root ends of the endives (to taste), discarding any discolored outer leaves. Cut each endive in half and discard the narrow heart (which can be bitter), then cut the endive crosswise into 1-inch chunks. Place them in the butter and stir to coat. Cook for 3 minutes, then sprinkle the sugar over the endive and stir to dissolve. Cook for 10 minutes, stirring often, so the endive is lightly caramelized. Reduce the heat to medium.

Meanwhile, melt the remaining butter in a medium saucepan over medium-high heat. Add the broth. Peel the potato and cut it into small dice, then add to the saucepan. Cook for 8 minutes, stirring once or twice, so the potatoes become tender yet still hold their shape. Remove from the heat.

Carefully stir the vermouth into the endive, dislodging any browned bits from the bottom of the pot. Slowly add the cream or half-and-half. Cook for 8 minutes, stirring a few times, then season with salt and pepper to taste. While the endive mixture cooks, clean the mussels under running water. If any of them are open, tap gently on them. If they do not close, discard them.

Use a slotted spoon to transfer just the sweet potato to the large pot; discard its cooking liquid.

Add the mussels. Cover and cook (still over medium heat) for 6 to 8 minutes.

While the mussels are steaming, finely chop the chives to yield a scant 3/4 cup.

Uncover the pot; divide the mussels and their creamy broth among individual wide, shallow bowls. Sprinkle each portion with the chives. Serve immediately.

Louis E. Reitz

Dec. 25, 1926-Feb. 1, 2011

Louis E. Reitz, 84, of Twin Falls, passed away Tuesday, Feb. 1, 2011, at his home.

A memorial service will be held at 1 p.m. Friday, July 29, at Rosenau Funeral Home, with Pastor Dale Metzger officiating.

Kirk Brower

Nov. 10, 1939-July 22, 2011

CLAYTON • Kirk Brower 71 years of age, passed away Friday, July 22, 2011, at his home on the East Fork of the Salmon River near Clayton, Idaho.

He was born Nov. 10, 1939, in Heyburn, Idaho, to Ray and Bea Brower, where he was raised with his four sisters and two brothers. He married Ilene Uhl, and they moved to the Wood River Valley, where Kirk worked for the Intermountain Gas Co. While in Hailey, they raised three boys, Scott, Kip and Eric. Kirk later remarried in 1973 to Marilyn Walters, and they built a home in Bellevue, Idaho. Wanting to move back to the Salmon River, Kirk and Marilyn bought a business called Clayton Merc in Clayton, Idaho, in 1980. In 1982, they were blessed with the arrival of their daughter, Jenny. The three of them ran the business for 20 years, making hundreds of friends throughout that time.

Kirk was an avid fisherman, spending numerous hours in his Mackenzie boat on the Salmon River. As a young man, he worked on the Middle Fork of the Salmon for the Middle Fork Lodge, guiding hunting and fishing trips in the backcountry. The years he spent on the Middle Fork were undoubtedly the happiest times of his life. He continued his passion for the outdoors while living in Bellevue and Clayton, hunting and fishing whenever he had a spare minute. He taught all of his children to love the outdoors and the skills of hunting and fishing.

Kirk was a man of many talents. His abilities ranged from being top serviceman for Intermountain Gas, building numerous homes for his parents and family, and running a successful business. He always had time to help his friends, lend a hand, drink a beer and tell a good story (some of which are not repeatable in this forum). His hearty laugh and great sense of humor will be missed by many.

He was preceded in death by his parents, Ray and Bea; his sister, Lavonne; and his oldest son, Scott. He is survived by his wife, Marilyn; daughter, Jenny, both of Clayton; sons, Kip Brower of Fairbanks, Alaska, and Eric (Laura) Brower of Norfolk, Va.; brothers, Doyle (Alice) Brower and Greg (Gwen) Brower, both of Burley; daughter-in-law, Della Brower; sisters, Terry (Johnny) Seal of Twin Falls, Bonnie Babcock of Nampa and Bobbie Pullen of Adrian, Ore.; four grandsons, Logan, Dillon, Levi and Cody; three granddaughters, Amanda, Jamie and Shelby; and numerous cousins, nieces and nephews.

A memorial service will be held at 1 p.m. Friday, July 29, at the Clayton American Legion Hall in Clayton. Arrangements are by Jones and Casey Funeral Home of Challis, Idaho.

Mystery Utah Inmate Identified as Missing NM Man

BY BRIAN SKOLOFF
Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY • A mystery man believed to be in his 70s who has been locked up in a Utah jail for more than three weeks, refusing to provide his name, was identified Tuesday as a missing New Mexico man, authorities said.

The graying, disheveled man with blue eyes and a scruffy face was booked in to the Utah County Jail as "John Doe" on July 1 after being arrested for trespassing in the Provo Police Department parking garage, about 45 miles south of Salt Lake City.

Since then, investigators have been publicizing his mug shot and reaching out to the media and public to figure out who he is. About 100 tips had led nowhere. Authorities even considered the man might have been a missing district attorney from Pennsylvania, but later ruled that out.

Another Pennsylvania prosecutor on Tuesday confirmed that authorities have determined the man is Phillip T. Beavers of New Mexico.

Centre County District Attorney Stacy Parks Miller said in an email to The Associated Press that the man's brother identified him. No other details were immediately available.

Miller's office had been involved in looking into whether the mystery man was in fact former District Attorney Ray Gricar.

Gricar disappeared in 2005 about nine months before he planned to retire as the top prosecutor in the central Pennsylvania county that is home to Penn State University's main campus in State College. He was declared legally dead Monday.

Utah County Sheriff's Lt. Dennis Harris declined to immediately comment on the man's identification.

"I think we know who this guy is now," Harris said. "I'm feeling pretty comfortable."

Beavers is being held on $1,200 cash bond for three misdemeanor charges of interfering with an investigation, failure to provide information to a police officer and criminal trespass.

He has been practically silent in jail, save for a few brief conversations with Harris and a deputy who have been trying to get him to talk. Authorities ran the man's fingerprints through a state database but came up with nothing.

Harris said more details would be released later in the day.

Authorities initially said they didn't believe the man was from Utah or had been homeless long, if he was homeless at all. The man has just about a week's worth of facial hair but did appear disheveled and dirty when he was arrested.

George Belt Schwindeman

Oct. 11, 1917-July 24, 2011

RUPERT • George Belt Schwindeman, 93, of Rupert, passed away Sunday, July 24, 2011, at Countryside Care and Rehabilitation in Rupert.

George was born Oct. 11, 1917, in the Panama Canal Zone to August J. and Ana Marie McGowan Schwindeman.

He lived in Panama Canal Zone, New York, New Jersey and Oroville, Calif., and then retired in Rupert, Idaho. As a teenager, he sailed the Panama Canal. He served as a master sergeant in World War II in the U.S. Army, receiving the Purple Heart. He obtained several college degrees and business degrees. He worked as an iron worker for Seth Parker Expedition and an accountant in Oroville, Calif.

George was a member of the Catholic Church and a member of the Rupert Senior Center, where he served as a volunteer for the SHIBA Program and helped people with their income tax papers and Medicare. He was a proud member of the Mini-Cassia Veterans and served as chaplain for many years.

He enjoyed fishing, organizing groups and getting it done, and especially dancing. He liked helping other people, cracking jokes and being in charge.

He married Mary E. Neilson on Aug. 30, 1962. Together they danced all over the world and were honored to teach dancing to many. They operated a ballroom dance club in Paradise,

Calif., with their own live orchestra for more than 20 years. They started with 15 people that grew to a membership of 550. George never liked to be told STOP for a picture while they were dancing. He told the reporter to take it while they were dancing if he wanted a picture. "I tell all, that I met my wife in Paradise and I have been in Paradise ever since."

George is survived by his daughter-in-law, Barbara Neilson; stepson, Stan Neilson; step-granddaughters, Pam Neilson Rockwell, Cindie Neilson Hill and Jennifer Neilson Riley; step-grandsons, Mike Neilson, Darrin Neilson, Mark Neilson, Scott Neilson, Gregg Norrup and Wes Norrup. He was preceded in death by his parents; wife, Mary; stepson, Dennis; and brother, Augusta Schwindeman.

The funeral will be at 10 a.m. Friday, July 29, at St. Nicholas Catholic Church, with Father Justin Brady as celebrant. Burial will follow at the Rupert Cemetery with honorary military rites by the Mini-Cassia Veterans.

A viewing for family and friends will be from 6 to 8 p.m. Thursday, July 28, at Hansen Mortuary, 710 Sixth St. in Rupert, and one hour prior to the service Friday at the church.

The family would like to thank Minidoka Memorial Hospital aids and nurses and activity people for their kindness and care for George.

Vinegar and Water Can Be a Good Cleaner

BY KATHLEEN PURVIS
McClatchy Newspapers

Question: To clean fruits and vegetables, I fill my sink with water, add distilled white vinegar and soak the produce. How much vinegar should I add?

Answer: With Europe's recent outbreak of food-borne illness, many people are concerned with making sure fruits and vegetables are clean, especially those we consume without cooking.

The best advice used to be that simply washing fruits and vegetables was sufficient, with a scrub brush used on things with firm skins, such as cantaloupes and potatoes. However, there is some evidence that a combination of water and vinegar might be more effective.

Information from the University of Minnesota indicates that rinsing with water reduces the population of bacteria that might be present to 15 percent, while rinsing with some agitation or scrubbing motion can reduce it to 10 percent. But using a diluted vinegar solution can reduce bacteria to 1 to 2 percent.

Making a vinegar solution in the sink not only uses a lot of vinegar, it also could raise the problem of spreading contamination in the wash water if you don't thoroughly clean the sink. The most practical idea is to make a solution of 1/2 cup vinegar to 1 1/2 cups water in a spray bottle. Spray fruits and vegetables with it, let stand a minute or two and then rinse with running water.

However, Benjamin Chapman, the food safety specialist with North Carolina Cooperative Extension, points out that many pathogens associated with outbreaks, such as E. coli, salmonella and shigella, can attach tightly in crevices where wash solutions, including diluted vinegar, may not reach.

So while you can reduce risk, you can't eliminate it. Chapman and other food safety experts emphasize that really reducing contamination has to happen at the production level, with clean conditions on farms and in factories.

Teach Kitchen Safety by Teaching Cooking Skills

BY NARA SCHOENBERG
Chicago Tribune

The kitchen seemed like a fairly harmless place — until I had children.

The knives, the open flames, the jammed toaster just waiting for some pint-size mechanic to enthusiastically probe it with a fork? They all filled me with dread.

For guidance, I recently turned to Katherine Cason, director of the Center for Healthy Living at Clemson University in South Carolina, who points out that kids learn kitchen safety by, well, spending time in the kitchen. Even 2- and 3-year-olds can perform meaningful kitchen tasks under adult supervision, such as wiping table tops, rinsing apples and tearing lettuce for salads.

Age-appropriate tasks (all require adult supervision)

Age 2: Kids can wipe table tops, pour measured ingredients and snap green beans.

Age 3: Pour liquids into batter, mix ingredients, knead or roll out dough and wrap potatoes in foil for baking.

Ages 4-5: Mash a soft fruit with a fork, beat eggs with an eggbeater or whisk, cut parsley or green onions with dull scissors, and cut fresh fruit with a blunt knife.

Ages 6-8: Gather utensils and ingredients, do light chopping and open cans.

Ages 9-12: Operate small appliances like blenders and microwave ovens, do moderate chopping, and saute, pan fry, broil and bake.

This time, they earned it. Despite losing out of the 2010 district tournament, the Burley Green Sox enjoyed an automatic bid to the American Legion Baseball Class A State Tournament by hosting it. It was a consolation prize, a fall-back plan. Like taking your cousin to the prom. This year, however, Burley earned a date with the pretty girl. The Green Sox's 2011 berth is much more meaningful, as they had to fight and claw their way to Ontario, Ore., for this week's state tourney. "Last year was fun, but the whole year we knew we were going," said Burley third baseman Taylor Carson. "Last year was nice, but this year it's more rewarding knowing that we earned our way in. It feels more like a reward. Putting in all that work throughout the whole summer and then finally getting that feeling of knowing you're one of the better teams and you're going to state, it's a great feeling." Emily Sansom will attend Western Texas College, and Hali Cranney is headed to Jamestown College. Cranney was a three-year letter winner and the Bobcats' 2010 most valuable player. The central defender said she will embark on Saturday to Jamestown, N.D., to begin playing for the NAIA-affiliated school competing in the Dakota Athletic Conference. "I am extremely nervous, but I'm also excited," Cranney said. "The part I'm most excited about is the opportunity to continue my education and to also play soccer. I'm nervous because it's 13 hours away from my family?" In a press release,

Jamestown coach Phillip Bohn said that Cranney will help beef up the Jimmies' back line. "Hali is a great addition to our recruiting class," Bohn said in the release. "She has the ability to play anywhere along the back line and has experience playing in a similar defensive system which should allow for a successful transition to our program. ... The free agency free-for-all has begun, mostly with obscure names from the college ranks. It will get wilder. Contract negotiations for free agents and draft picks started Tuesday, with draftees able to sign right away. The big names among veterans — Nnamdi Asomugha, Santonio Holmes, Matt Hasselbeck — can't sign until Thursday, but their agents are negotiating deals right now. Throw in dozens of players who will be cut, such as Dallas receiver Roy Williams and Baltimore tight end Todd Heap, which officially can't happen until Thursday, and it's "organized chaos," according to Colts general manager Chris Polian. "It's a lot of stress, work, preparation. But it's what we all look forward to. It's our playoffs and our Super Bowl," agent Peter Schaffer said. Indeed, several agents said they didn't expect to sleep Tuesday as the NFL reopened for business after 4½ months. In addition to their clients already in the league who are unrestricted or restricted free agents, they will have veterans released. And they are trying to set up youngsters, such as college starters safety Winston Venable of Boise State (Chicago) and quarterback Jerrod Johnson of Texas A&M (Philadelphia), with teams after they were passed over in April's draft. In addition to Venable, former Broncos Jeron Johnson (Seahawks), Ryan Winterswyk (Falcons), Mike Coughlin (Buccaneers) and Tommy Gallarda (Jaguars) also reached agreements with teams on Monday. Former University of Idaho players Jojo Dickson (Jaguars), Deonte Jackson (Buccaneers) and Eric Greenwood (Steelers) also agreed to terms. "I always have a lot of guys in that category, and it's been absolutely nuts," said agent Joe Linta, who placed Michigan State tight end Charlie Gantt with the Chiefs and Cal receiver Jeremy Ross with the Patriots on Tuesday. He also fielded calls from a dozen teams for Utah defensive tackle Sealver Siliga before he signed with San Francisco. "There are times when you are fielding four or five calls at once," added Linta. "Multiply, say, 10 guys you are trying to get signed by maybe three to 10 teams interested ... you do the math." The math adds up to hundreds of transactions in a few days, as opposed to a few weeks had there not been a 4½-month labor stoppage. "I think the best way to say it is whatever you can imagine, it's probably worse than that," Cardinals coach Ken Whisenhunt said. "There is multitasking at its most furious."

Olympic Skier Peterson Found Dead in Utah

The troubled Olympian was arrested in Hailey on Friday on suspicion of DUI. He had battled alcoholism and depression in the past, and was found Monday after what police are calling a suicide.

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) • Olympic silver medalist Jeret "Speedy" Peterson was found dead in a remote canyon in Utah in what police are calling a suicide. Peterson, a freestyle skier who patented the so-called "Hurricane" and took second place at the Vancouver Games with it, called 911 before shooting himself, police said. The 29-year-old had been cited for drunken driving Friday in Hailey and had pleaded not guilty. Officers found Peterson late Monday night between Salt Lake City and Park City in Lambs Canyon. Peterson had problems with alcohol and depression and admitted he had his own thoughts of suicide, all stemming from a childhood in which he was sexually abused and lost his 5-year-old sister to a drunken driver.

Broncos Picked to Win MWC in First Season

LAS VEGAS (AP) • Boise State was picked by members of the media to win the Mountain West Conference title in its first year in the league. The Broncos, who finished last season ranked No. 10 in the nation while playing in the Western Athletic Conference, received 28 of 31 first-place votes in a poll released by the conference on Tuesday. Boise State returns six starters on offense and seven on defense from last season's 12-1 team, including seven players picked to the preseason all-conference team. TCU, the defending MWC champion, was picked to finish second in the conference. It garnered three first-place votes. Six other teams placed well behind TCU and Boise State in voting, with Air Force picked to finish third and San Diego State to finish fourth. This season, the conference is without BYU or Utah, and is preparing to lose TCU next year. It will gain Hawaii in football only in 2012, and Nevada and Fresno State in all sports. Boise State quarterback Kellen Moore was selected the conference's preseason player of the year on offense. TCU linebacker Tank Carder is preseason player of the year on defense. Moore, a senior, is the country's active career leader in wins and passing effi-

PRACTICE RUNDOWN

Source: Seahawks to Part Ways with Matt Hasselbeck

RENTON, Wash. (AP) • Tarvaris Jackson is in as the Seattle Seahawks next quarterback and Matt Hasselbeck is reportedly looking elsewhere.

A person with knowledge of the situation told The Associated Press Tuesday that Jackson has agreed to terms with the Seahawks and is expected to sign a contract Friday. The person spoke on the condition of anonymity because free agents aren't allowed to sign contracts until Friday.

The Seattle Times first reported Jackson's agreement.

Reports surfaced Tuesday afternoon that the Seahawks told Hasselbeck he was no longer in their future plans. Yahoo! Sports first reported the Hasselbeck decision on Twitter. Hasselbeck and his agent did not return messages left by the AP.

The decision to move on from Hasselbeck contradicted Seattle coach Pete Carroll's pronouncement in January that re-signing Hasselbeck was Seattle's No. 1 priority. The two sides could not reach an agreement before the NFL lockout.

Hasselbeck spent the past 10 seasons in Seattle and for much of that time was the face of the franchise. He took the Seahawks to their only Super Bowl appearance and captained Seattle to five division titles. He leaves as the team's all-time leader in numerous passing categories.

But the signs that Hasselbeck's time in Seattle could be coming to a close started a year ago when the team acquired Charlie Whitehurst from San Diego. Whitehurst was supposed to challenge Hasselbeck for the job before the 2010 season, but his only two starts last season came in games Hasselbeck was injured. One of those starts was the season finale when Seattle beat St. Louis 16-6 to wrap up the NFC West title with a 7-9 record.

Hasselbeck then seemed to affirm his importance to the franchise by leading Seattle to a stunning NFC first-round playoff upset of New Orleans before the Seahawks lost to Chicago in the NFC divisional playoff. After that loss, Carroll said the Seahawks' No. 1 priority was re-signing Hasselbeck.

But it won't be Hasselbeck back under center when the season begins on Sept. 11 at San Francisco.

Whitehurst was one of the first Seahawks to arrive at their training facility on Tuesday morning after catching a late flight back to the Northwest and not getting to his apartment until about 1 a.m. Still, he was driving through the gates of Seahawks headquarters shortly after 8 a.m. ready to pick up his playbook.

"You're more experienced; it goes for all of us. There were a bunch of new guys this past season," Whitehurst said. "I think everybody is probably feeling pretty confident about this season."

Instead of Whitehurst battling Hasselbeck for the starting job, it'll be Jackson, and possibly Matt Leinart as well. Reports Tuesday evening suggested the former USC stand-out could reunite with Carroll and wide receiver Mike Williams.

Later in the day, after learning the reports of Hasselbeck's departure, Whitehurst seemed to realize his chance.

"It's as good an opportunity as I'm going to get and I'm looking forward to it," he said.

In Minneapolis, Jackson was ushered aside most of the last two seasons in favor of Brett Favre. Now he'll get a fresh start in Seattle and be reunited with offensive coordinator Darrell Bevell, who is in charge of revamping Seattle's passing game. Bevell spent the previous five seasons as Minnesota's offensive coordinator.

Rust might be a problem for Jackson. He's played in just 11 games and started only once the past two seasons after making 17 starts during the 2007 and '08 seasons.

Hasselbeck had been instrumental in organizing offseason workouts for players in the Seattle area and working with the University of Washington on using their facilities. Some players had been extremely outspoken on Twitter in urging the Seahawks to re-sign the veteran QB.

"Gotta say thanks for giving me a chance to get my career rolling," Williams wrote to Hasselbeck on Twitter Tuesday afternoon. "U'll always Rep the 12th, see u in the Ring of Honor sir!"

Rich Moran, the agent for Seahawks offensive lineman Stacy Andrews, confirmed Tuesday his client has been informed he will be released. Andrews was scheduled to make $5.25 million this season, but was likely to be a backup after Seattle drafted linemen James Carpenter and John Moffitt.

The Seahawks also agreed to terms with 19 undrafted free agents on Tuesday. Highlighting the list was Boise State safety Jeron Johnson, Nebraska safety Rickey Thenarse and Nebraska defensive end Pierre Allen.

Sabathia Sparkles, M's Lose 17th Straight

NEW YORK • The Seattle Mariners flailed away helplessly against CC Sabathia in their 17th straight loss, managing only one hit and striking out 18 times overall in a 4-1 loss to the New York Yankees on a rain-soaked Tuesday night.

Sabathia (15-5) did not allow a baserunner until Brendan Ryan singled with one out in the seventh inning — a batter after a 30 minute rain delay — in beating Seattle for the seventh consecutive start.

Twins 9, Rangers 8

ARLINGTON, Texas • Joe Mauer drove in the go-ahead run with a pinch hit double off closer Neftali Feliz in a two-run ninth.

Orioles 12, Blue Jays 4

TORONTO • J.J. Hardy homered twice, Derrek Lee and Nolan Reimold also connected and the Orioles beat the Blue Jays.

Angels 2, Indians 1

CLEVELAND • Jered Weaver earned his eighth straight win as Mark Trumbo doubled home two runs.

Red Sox 13, Royals 9

BOSTON • David Ortiz had four hits and five RBIs, and Dustin Pedroia had four of Boston's 16 hits to lead the Red Sox to their 18th win in 22 games.

Sansom was a three-year starter at goalkeeper for the Bobcats. She will move to Snyder, Texas, to join Western Texas of the NJCAA.

"I am way excited to go down there and start playing college soccer," Sansom said. "I've been training all summer for it. I'm actually really nervous about it, too, since I'll be 1,200 miles away from anybody I know and I have to start over."

"But the coach is excited to have me and I'm excited to leave on Friday and get down there."

Sansom also considered several East Coast schools and another in Oregon before settling on WTC.

"I want to go into athletic training and sports medicine and they have a course down there where you jump right into that," Sansom said. "And they were also offering me the most (scholarship) money."

Sansom, who led the Great Basin Conference in saves for three consecutive seasons, has had her sights set on college.

"It was my sophomore year when I really got into it. And with my dad being British and raised around soccer, it was kind of in my genes to do it," she said.

"I started pushing myself harder to get noticed and I had a recruiter come to one of my soccer practices and talk to me about it and he helped me from there."

Both 2011 graduates said they used a recruiting service to get noticed.

"We went through the process and before I knew it we had quite a few schools contacting me and offering me scholarships," Cranney said.

Coeur d'Alene in the first round at 1 p.m.

The double-elimination tournament features eight teams: Emmett (last year's runner-up), Hillcrest, Coeur d'Alene, Burley, Pocatello, Nampa, Lewis-Clark and host Treasure Valley. The championship will be played at 7 p.m. Sunday. The top two teams will advance to the Northwest Regionals, Aug. 5-9 in Roseburg, Ore.

"We need to focus on our first game first and not look ahead," said Burley pitcher and infielder Joe Ferrin. "This year, since we earned it, it's boosted our confidence. We're going in more confident knowing that we belong there."

Last week in the district tournament, Burley got shellacked 20-10 by Hillcrest on Friday but bounced back with a pair of gritty wins on Saturday — including a 6-1 victory over 2009 and 2010 state champion Bonneville — to earn its spot at state.

Burley coach Devin Kunz said he was proud of his team's resiliency after the Hillcrest loss and how the Green Sox handled the pressure of Saturday's must-win games.

"It was everything that we have taught," said Burley coach Devin Kunz. "Even though it didn't go well Friday night, they stuck with the plan. There's a plan and a process here with our program and they stuck with it."

Besides the 2010 freebie, this is Burley's first trip to state since 2003. A Matt Harr-coached Burley squad won the state championship in 1999 and went on to win the Northwest Regionals.

Utah, Colorado Officially Arrive in New Pac-12

LOS ANGELES (AP) • Utah coach Kyle Whittingham sat down in front of the Hollywood cameras with a comfortable smile. His polo shirt had the familiar feathered "U" on the chest and the brand-new Pac-12 logo on the shoulder.

After all those years of BCS-busting, the Utes are finally on the inside looking out — and Whittingham loves the view from his big league.

"We're ecstatic," Whittingham said Tuesday at the Pac-12's media day. "It's something that's been talked about in Salt Lake City for a lot of years, even back when it was the Pac-8, going that far back. So it's something that's very exciting for the university, for the community, and big challenges lie ahead."

clarating the Pac-12 title game to be the ultimate goal. The media also thinks they have a good shot, picking Utah third in the South behind Southern California — which is banned from post-season play, including that league title game — and unpredictable Arizona State.

Whittingham already has noticed a large recruiting boost for the Utes, who immediately got several verbal commitments last June when Utah announced its move.

The tradition-rich football programs at Utah and Colorado unofficially arrived in the Pac-12 at media day on the Fox studio lot in Century City. The coaches and star players for both mountain region-based schools appeared right at home in the cool Pacific vibe, chatting with the league's returning coaches and stars about the season ahead.

While Colorado is rebuilding, the Utes believe they can immediately contend for the South Division title, with Whittingham de-Whittingham also said 98 percent of Utah fans renewed their season tickets for this fall at Rice-Eccles Stadium.

"Throughout the country, you can go to any university and you'll be hard-pressed to find that type of support," Whittingham said.

Ohio State Makes it Official: Pryor Not Coming Back

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) • Terrelle Pryor's lawyer wanted Ohio State to make it clear to the NFL that his client could not return to the Buckeyes. So Ohio State not only declared its former star quarterback would not have played at any time during the 2011 season but also banned him from any contact with the school's athletic program for the next five years.

In a letter from Ohio State athletic director Gene Smith dated Tuesday, Smith said that Pryor was ineligible because he failed to cooperate with NCAA and Ohio State investigators. He then added, "The university must also dissociate you from its athletic program for a period of five years."

That means that Pryor can have no contact with recruits or enrolled Buckeyes, cannot accept complimentary tickets to home games and cannot use the team's athletic facilities.

Smith didn't rule out the use of all campus facilities, however.

"Please note that this dissociation does NOT prohibit you from enrolling in classes at the university to complete your degree," Smith wrote. "As you know, I would encourage you to complete your degree."

There had been whispers that the NFL might not offer Pryor a spot in a potential supplemental draft in the waning days of this lockout-shortened summer because he had only been suspended for the first five games of the 2011 season for accepting improper benefits from a Columbus tattoo-parlor owner. Pryor was at the center of an ongoing series of controversies that led to coach Jim Tressel's forced resignation on May 30.

The NFL's rules state a supplemental draft is open to "any player who is ineligible." Since Pryor still could have played the second half of the 2011 season, there was still a question whether he could have regained his eligibility and played.

NFL spokesman Greg Aiello said the league has not decided anything about a prospective supplemental draft, nor has it considered the status of Pryor.

"We have not set a date for the supplemental draft nor made any determinations on the eligibility of individual players," Aiello said in an email to The Associated Press. Pryor's Columbus lawyer, Larry James, said he sought the letter from Smith to rule out any chance of Pryor playing again in college, although that seemed extremely unlikely since he has hired agent Drew Rosenhaus and has been working out in Florida for the past several weeks.

Today is Wednesday, July 27, the 208th day of 2011. There are 157 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On July 27, 1861, Union Maj. Gen. George B. McClellan took command of the Army of the Potomac during the Civil War. (McClellan later became general-in-chief of the Union Army as well, but ended up being relieved of his commands by President Abraham Lincoln, who was dissatisfied with his performance.)

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1789, President George Washington signed a measure establishing the Department of Foreign Affairs, forerunner of the Department of State.

In 1866, Cyrus W. Field finished laying out the first successful underwater telegraph cable between North America and Europe (a previous cable in 1858 burned out after only a few weeks' use).

In 1909, during the first official test of the U.S. Army's first airplane, Orville Wright flew himself and a passenger, Lt. Frank Lahm, above Fort Myer, Va., for one hour and 12 minutes.

In 1921, Canadian researcher Frederick Banting and his assistant, Charles Best, succeeded in isolating the hormone insulin at the University of Toronto.

In 1940, Bugs Bunny made his "official" debut in the Warner Bros. animated cartoon "A Wild Hare."

In 1953, the Korean War armistice was signed at Panmunjom, ending three years of fighting.

In 1960, Vice President Richard M. Nixon was nominated for president on the first ballot at the Republican national convention in Chicago.

In 1967, President Lyndon B. Johnson appointed the Kerner Commission to assess the causes of urban rioting, the same day black militant H. Rap Brown said in Washington that violence was "as American as cherry pie."

In 1974, the House Judiciary Committee voted 27-11 to adopt the first of three articles of impeachment against President Richard Nixon, charging he had personally engaged in a course of conduct designed to obstruct justice in the Watergate case.

In 1981, 6-year-old Adam Walsh was abducted from a department store in Hollywood, Fla., and was later murdered. (His father, John Walsh, became a well-known crime victims' advocate.) Movie director William Wyler ("Ben-Hur") died in Los Angeles at age 79.

Ten years ago: A judge in West Palm Beach, Fla., sentenced 14-year-old Nathaniel Brazill to 28 years in prison for second-degree murder in the fatal shooting of teacher Barry Grunow at Lake Worth Middle School.

Five years ago: Floyd Landis' stunning Tour de France victory just four days earlier was thrown into doubt when he tested positive for high levels of testosterone during the race. (Landis was stripped of his title for doping.)

One year ago: BP announced that its much-criticized chief executive, Tony Hayward, would be replaced by Robert Dudley as the company reported a record quarterly loss and set aside $32.2 billion to cover the costs of the massive Gulf of Mexico oil spill. Canadian character actor Maury Chaykin died in Toronto on his 61st birthday.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"Vicissitudes of fortune, which spares neither man nor the proudest of his works, which buries empires and cities in a common grave."
— Edward Gibbon

During the first day of the Swiss Teams last summer in New Orleans, JoAnna Stansby found herself in a delicate heart game, but read the position nicely to bring home a big swing for her side.

JoAnna won the diamond ace and led a low trump to the queen and East's nine, a revealing spot card, since it alerted declarer to the possibility of a bad trump break. She next led a spade to the 10, king and ace, ruffed the diamond return, then cashed the club ace and crossed to the spade queen to ruff another diamond, extracting West's exit card.

She had now reached a position where she needed four of the last six tricks, but was down to two trumps in each hand while West had king-third of trumps left. However, when she next led the spade jack from her hand, West was in a quandary. He chose to ruff (nothing else was any better, since if he discards a diamond, declarer ruffs his spade loser in dummy and plays clubs from the top). West was now on lead and endplayed in three suits. A trump or club would give up his natural trick in those suits, so he elected to play a fourth diamond, but the ruff and discard let declarer ruff in dummy and pitch her club loser.

She could cash the club king, ruff her fourth spade in dummy, and concede just one more trump trick, losing one trump and two spades in all.

ANSWER: If you play, as I prefer to do, that two-level overcalls promise decent hands and good suits (typically a six-carder unless the overcaller has a good five-carder with compensating extra high-cards), then this hand is a no-brainer. You must raise to three clubs to take away a round of the auction from your opponents. The raise is a quasi-preemptive action, not a game-try.

DEAR ABBY: There's a venomous old woman who roams through our neighborhood looking for victims to embarrass, humiliate or annoy. She told a neighbor's 11-year-old granddaughter she looked like a slut because she was wearing shorts currently in fashion for the young. She habitually cuts in front of people in line at the supermarket, puts 25 items on the 15-item service line, etc.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

A new neighbor thought she should be treated with a little kindness. She had her opportunity recently when we were out to breakfast at a restaurant. The harriidan sat alone (her husband refuses to be seen in public with her), and my friend commented to her on the beautiful day. Her response? "Don't waste my time with meaningless inanities!" She then proceeded to abuse the server by repeatedly sending her plate back, each time becoming more unpleasant. The girl ended up in tears.

At that point, my friend walked over and said quietly, "I hope you don't think your advanced age justifies your meanness." The witch accused my friend of "slandering" her and left vowing never to return. This elicited a round of applause from the customers and staff.

Why do some people go through life behaving so outrageously? How can she derive satisfaction from being so hateful?

— PUZZLED IN SANDIEGO

DEAR PUZZLED: Ruling out the idea that the person you have described may be mentally disturbed, it's possible she may be so unhappy in her personal life that she's trying to make herself feel better by abusing others. She's a sad case. I'd like to think that when the other diners applauded, it was directed in support of your friend rather than at the disagreeable woman as she left the restaurant.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 34-year-old man, I have been divorced for a couple of years and have no children. I have been dating an incredible woman, "Nikki," who is a bit older than I am. She has three children.

The elephant in the room has always been whether or not Nikki would want more children. We finally discussed it, and she confirmed that she does not. She said she's looking forward to the next phase of her life as her kids get older, which I understand. That conversation has led to a break in our relationship. We haven't spoken for the past two weeks, and it seems like two years.

I am struggling with what to do. I have always wanted to be a dad. Would being a stepdad be as fulfilling for me? Is being in a good relationship more important? Having kids doesn't automatically make things great, right? Could I find someone as wonderful as Nikki, but who wants to have a kid?

Abby, I'm conflicted, and you're the only one I could think of for advice.

— JUMBLED IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

DEAR JUMBLED: Only you can decide whether being a stepfather to Nikki's children would be enough for you. For some men, it would be. For others, it wouldn't be enough. Of course, the primary relationship must be between the husband and wife. Children grow up, leave and establish lives of their own. And you're right, having kids doesn't "automatically" make things great if there is trouble in the relationship.

While there are no guarantees you will find someone as wonderful as Nikki, the odds are very good that you will meet a woman — or more than one — whose goals are similar to yours and who would love to have a family with you. But it won't happen until you firmly decide exactly what you want.

IF JULY 27 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: A new perspective or a change for the better may alter your life in the year to come. Put significant plans into action, start a new career, or meet people who may be lifelong companions during August or the last part of January. As the new year dawns, you may become more of an eager beaver about "getting ahead" and restless to discard outworn ideas and lifestyles. What is most important to you may change your mind about what is truly important as the year unfolds. This may be a pivotal year when you become more ambitious and make a key lifestyle change.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Count on using your charm to instill trust. Those who were suspicious or leery earlier this week might be willing to listen to your ideas today. This is a good time for creative focus and networking.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Remain objective and detached. Admiration or hero-worship can't compete with true love or a heart pounding romance. Friendly interest and genuine concern will lure new contacts into your circle.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Try it on for size. People in general might be in the mood for a break from routines or your closest companions could be delightfully unpredictable. Join forces with others for business or pleasure.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Poise and passion make a powerful team. You might easily be in the right place at the right time today when it is time to make an important decision. Your sound business strategies lead to success.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Make your mark. Change and your reaction to change are what counts. If you are continually reacting to what others say or think you won't have the time to exercise your own free will. Be original.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): People have learned they can bank on your support in the face of crisis. You might not be able to make headway with one situation for a few more days, but your supporters will applaud your dependability.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Break away from whatever holds you back. If you have been going full throttle, it will be difficult to unwind and relax. Develop viable habits that rejuvenate your spirits; make them part of your routine.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Everyone wants to deal with a winner. If you look the part, you will win someone's confidence. Others are assured you will deliver what you promise. Loved ones are hanging on your every word.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Trust your instincts. If a commitment must be made on the spot, you can follow your intuitions. Some wheeling and dealing that is going on behind the scenes is probably to your advantage.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): In the game of life you may be "it." Make important phone calls and touch base with old friends as well as new ones. Play and work hard and you will be able to make all of your dreams come true.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): "Share and share alike" is a fine motto. Share your heart with a devoted partner or mate and be generous with new contacts. At the same time be careful to protect sensitive or privileged information.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): When knocking on doors of opportunity, don't fret that they might be locked. Look within yourself to find the key. It may be difficult to muster the energy necessary to compete.

SUDOKU

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

N. Idaho Man Charged With Felony After Baby Injured

COEUR D'ALENE (AP)

• A northern Idaho man has been charged with a felony after his nearly three-week-old infant son was hospitalized with a head injury.

A judge set bail for 19-year-old James Dean Blanchard at $100,000 during a hearing Monday in Idaho's 1st District Court.

Blanchard was arrested and charged with felony injury to a child after police responded to a Coeur d'Alene home late Sunday to find medical workers performing CPR on the infant. The baby was bleeding in the brain and listed in critical condition at a hospital in nearby Spokane, Wash.

During his arraignment, Blanchard pleaded to see his son but the judge issued a no-contact order, saying the baby would be placed in state custody.

Prosecutors say witnesses can testify that Blanchard had shaken and screamed at the infant.

Judge Says He'll Rule Soon in Idaho Medicaid Lawsuit

BY REBECCA BOONE

The Associated Press

BOISE • A federal judge soon will decide whether the state can move forward with its plan to consolidate some services for the developmentally disabled, and the ruling could determine the future of dozens of residential habilitation businesses across Idaho.

The state Department of Health and Welfare decided earlier this year to have just one residential habilitation company oversee all the Medicaid-covered certified family homes in Idaho — a switch expected to save about $800,000. The department chose Community Partnerships of Idaho for the contract, and said the change would take effect Aug. 5.

But Russell and Sandra Knapp sued on behalf of their ward, Jason Knapp, and Jana Shultz sued on behalf of ward Toby Shultz, in Boise's U.S. District Court.

The Knapps and Shultz provide certified family homes for their wards under a Medicaid program that aims to provide a family-style living environment for people who need assistance with daily living activities. They contend the switch to a single residential habilitation provider violates their wards' right to freely choose their own health care providers.

Residential habilitation agencies provide training, oversight and quality assurance for certified family homes.

Meanwhile, a group of residential habilitation providers also sued, saying they would be forced to lay off workers or close down under the state's plan and that the state was first required to get federal approval before it could change the Medicaid program.

U.S. District Judge B. Lynn Winmill, who is handling both cases, held a joint hearing Tuesday to see if the state should be temporarily barred from switching to the single provider while all the issues are worked out in court.

A lot is riding on the case, Winmill said, so he planned to try to get his ruling out within the next several days. "Some may be out of business. Others who are recipients of the services will be receiving services that are less than what was provided for under Medicaid," Winmill said.

Community Partnerships of Idaho is also "in a bit of a pickle," Winmill said, because it is under contract to start providing a statewide service next week, and at this point it's not clear if the business will be allowed to do so.

The judge also questioned attorneys for the state about the health department's timing. He noted that if the agency had just sought approval from the federal Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services when department leaders first started planning the switch, the whole thing could have been handled administratively instead of ending up in the courts.

But Idaho's deputy attorney general Peg Dougherty said past experience has taught department leaders that they need to have contracts lined up and ready to go before asking the federal government to approve changes to Medicaid.

Calif. Man Attempts Self-Surgery With Butter Knife

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP)

• A Southern California man stuck a butter knife into his belly in a failed bid at self-surgery to remove a painful hernia, police said Tuesday.

The wife of the 63-year-old Glendale man called 911 on Sunday night and told the emergency operator her husband was using a knife to remove a protruding hernia, Sgt. Tom Lorenz said.

"She said he had impaled himself with a knife," Lorenz said.

A hernia occurs when all or part of an organ or fatty tissue squeezes through a hole or a weak spot in a surrounding muscle or connective tissue.

While the man said he was trying to remove a hernia, hernias are normally repaired by doctors in a hospital or medical setting involving some type of procedure to push the organ back in.

Officers found the man naked on a patio lounge chair outside his apartment with a 6-inch butter knife sticking out of his stomach. The man's wife told officers that her husband was upset about the hernia and wanted to take it out.

While waiting for paramedics, the sergeant said, the man pulled out the knife and stuffed a cigarette he was smoking into the bleeding, open wound.

"What he was thinking, I don't know. I don't know if he was cauterizing it (the wound)," Lorenz said.

The man wasn't screaming or showing any signs of pain, the sergeant said.
