It's a Deal: Obama, Congress Will Avert Default

BY DAVID ESPO
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Ending a perilous stalemate, President Barack Obama and congressional leaders announced a historic agreement Sunday night on emergency legislation to avert the nation's first-ever financial default.

The dramatic resolution lifted a cloud that had threatened the still-fragile economic recovery at home — and it instantly powered a rise in financial markets overseas.

The agreement would slice at least $2.4 trillion from federal spending over a decade, a steep price for many Democrats, too little for many Republicans. The Treasury's authority to borrow would be extended beyond the 2012 elections, a key objective for Obama, though the president had to give up his insistence on raising taxes on wealthy Americans to reduce deficits.

The deal, with scant time remaining before Tuesday's debt-limit deadline for paying government bills, "will allow us to avoid default and end the crisis that Washington imposed on the rest of America," the president said in an announcement at the White House.

Default "would have had a devastating effect on our economy," he said.

House Speaker John Boehner telephoned Obama at mid-evening to say the agreement had been struck, then immediately began pitching the deal to his fractious rank and file.

"It isn't the greatest deal in the world, but it shows how much we've changed the terms of the debate in this town," he said on a conference call, according to GOP officials. He added the agreement was "all spending cuts. The White House bid to raise taxes has been shut down."

The House Democratic leader, Rep. Nancy Pelosi, was non-committal. "I look forward to reviewing the legislation with my caucus to see what level of support we can provide," she said in a written statement.

No votes were scheduled in either house of Congress before Monday, to give rank and file lawmakers time to review the package. Senate approval seems virtually certain; the House could prove more difficult.

Idaho Schools Decide How to Spend Extra $60 Million

BY JESSIE L. BONNER
Associated Press

COUNCIL • In a school district where buckets are strategically placed under a leaky gymnasium roof, there's no shortage of places to spend the extra $60 million Idaho set aside for public education this month after the state ended the fiscal year with a budget surplus.

At Council public schools in central Idaho, most of the additional education funding will likely go toward facilities, said Superintendent Murray Dalglish. The district has patched seven holes in a gym roof that is spotted with water-damaged tiles and no longer has a warranty.

"We've just been putting things off and putting things off," Dalglish said. "We're in survival mode. We've been in survival mode for a long time."

Idaho school districts plan to spend the additional funding on everything from new textbooks and classroom supplies, to building upkeep that was put off after the state postponed money for repairs and, at the request of administrators, freed up maintenance dollars so schools could

Washington Roadwork Could Last Into October

A slew of unanticipated delays have set back the $6.5 million project nearly two months.

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

As you may have noticed, roadwork on Washington Street North in Twin Falls is far from over.

The Idaho Transportation Department initially estimated the street overhaul project would be completed by the end of July. Now, construction is scheduled to be completed by mid-October at the latest, said Nathan Jerke, ITD spokesman.

Multiple project redesigns and bad weather have been blamed as the cause of the delays. Heavy spring rains pushed the start date of this year's work back. Once digging began, unexpected utility lines caused halts and changes to the original project design.

The most recent challenge has been trying to place a pipe between a sewer line and a layer of rock.

"We have to place a 36-inch stormwater pipe underneath a 36-inch sewer line," Jerke said. "But the sewer line is on solid rock, something that was not expected. They are going to have to saw the rock and it's going to be a delicate process."

Hispanic Heritage Scholarship Pageant Crowns Decade of Queens

The success of past Hispanic Heritage queens — and their inspiration to hopeful queens — is a 'dream come true' for pageant creators.

BY BLAIR KOCH
For the Times-News

Long before the lights fell on the Hispanic Heritage Scholarship Pageant on Saturday night, Jasmine Cruz was preparing for the night ahead.

With a small stack of garment and dress bags thrown over the shoulder of a friend and Cruz carrying a small arsenal of beauty products, accessories, notebooks and bags, she made her way into the Twin Falls High School Roper Auditorium, hopeful for the coming competition.

"This is the second year I've been in the pageant," said Cruz, 19, a TFHS grad now living in Boise with plans to attend beauty school and then Boise State University. "What's hard is getting the budget to go. I'm hoping this pageant helps me pay for school because I really want to go."

Fourteen girls from across southern Idaho vied for thousands in scholarship dollars, including the $1,500 prize awarded to the queen - down to a $100 prize given to Miss Congeniality.

"Seriously, every little bit helps," Cruz said.

Friend Mireya Valdez, of Boise, said she was inspired by Cruz regardless of whether or not she took home a crown.

"It's great there is help for Hispanic girls and Jasmine is a good role model Helping girls like Cruz succeed has been the dream for pageant co-creators Noel and Dana Morfin, of Twin Falls.

Noel Morfin said the pageant was created to focus more on "scholarship" than beauty, with girls competing in essay, interview, fitness, talent and poise and beauty.

"There aren't too many places for Hispanic girls to show their talents or find scholarship money and we wanted to create that opportunity," he said. "The talent competition is an expression of culture."

For its tenth year, the pageant drew past queen and princess winners to sit on its five-member panel of judges. Another trait they all shared?

"Each of the judges have gone to college and gotten their degrees," Morfin said.

"So many of our queens are pursuing advanced degrees, they are active members of the Hispanic community and to see that, it's a dream come true because that is exactly what we wanted from this pageant," said Dana Morfin.

Camas County Fair Begins Wednesday

BY EVA STUTZMAN
estutzman@magicvalley.com

It's officially fair season in southern Idaho, and up next is the Camas County Fair in Fairfield. The annual event will host a variety of events, from a free night for the kids to a street dance for all ages.

Most of the events the fair committee has planned are the same as they have been in the past. However, there are a few changes that the committee hopes will make this year's fair better than it has ever been.

The Camas County Chamber of Commerce is responsible this year's rodeo.

"It's a different rodeo group," said Gayle Bachtell, one of the fair organizers.

Also, before the Saturday street dance there will be live music from the Boise band Working on Fire.

Other members of the community have arranged the annual volleyball tournament and bed races.

To top off the festivities, the fair board has arranged for a "pie auction," during which participants can purchase shaving cream pies to throw at their favorite people.

ITD is currently negotiating to determine if the main contractor hired should be fined for not completing the work on time. ITD gave DEBCO Construction of Orofino a set number of days to complete the project. However, the agreement allowed the addition of extra work days if unforeseen events occurred while the project was in progress.

"We're still determining what days that had to be set aside for redesign and what days we might have to fine the company," Jerke said.

The delay cannot be blamed on one party, he said.

"The fault is shared by every party," Jerke said. "The design team didn't take into account for the rock, the power companies and contractors had to move utility lines and the state had to move paperwork around. None of us anticipated these delays."

Twin Falls City Council to Set Upper Limit on Budget

In a council meeting otherwise jam-packed with zoning and construction questions, the Twin Falls City Council on Monday will also set the upper limit of its budget for next year.

It won't be the final step in setting the $45.8 million budget — the council still needs to hold a public hearing — but will determine if the council leaves open the option of taking more cash. Last week, Councilman Lance Clow suggested the council repeat itself from last year and set the spend-

President Barack Obama speaks from White House briefing room Sunday in Washington, about a deal being reached to raise the debt limit.

Deal

Without legislation in place by Tuesday, the Treasury would not be able to pay all its bills, raising the threat of a default that administration officials say could inflict catastrophic damage on the economy.

If approved, though, a compromise would presumably preserve America's sterling credit rating, reassure investors in financial markets across the globe and possibly reverse the losses that spread across Wall Street in recent days as the threat of a default grew.

Even word of an impending deal earlier in the day by Senate Republican Leader Mitch McConnell of Kentucky sent U.S. stock futures upward. And before Obama had finished speaking, Japan's benchmark Nikkei index, opening Monday morning — at 8 p.m. Sunday on America's East Coast — was up 1.7 percent in early trading.

Pending final passage, the agreement marked a dramatic reach across party lines that played out over six months and several rounds of negotiating, interspersed by periods of intense partisanship.

"Sometimes it seems our two sides disagree on almost everything," Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid said in floor remarks.

"But in the end, reasonable people were able to agree on this: The United States could not take the chance of defaulting on our debt, risking a United States financial collapse and a world-wide depression."

Vice President Joe Biden, who played an important part in this weekend's negotiations, agreed. He tweeted: "Compromise makes a comeback."

Not everyone felt that way.

"Someone has to say no. I will," said Rep. Michele Bachmann, R-Minn., a contender for the 2012 Republican presidential nomination.

Across the weeks, Boehner emerged as Obama's principal Republican antagonist in a new contentious era of divided government, yet struggled to corral his own rank and file at times.

At the end, though, McConnell and Biden, who looked on as Obama announced the deal, provided a negotiating channel to get the deal completed, including a last-minute standoff over the impact of spending cuts on the Pentagon budget.

The plan calls for spending cuts and increased borrowing authority for the Treasury in two stages.

In the first, passage of the legislation would trigger $1.2 trillion in spending cuts over a decade as well as a $900 billion increase in the government's borrowing authority.

The spending cuts would come from hundreds of federal programs across the face of government — accounts that Obama said would be left with the lowest levels of spending as a percentage of the overall economy in more than a half century.

The increased borrowing authority includes $400 billion that would take effect immediately, and $500 billion that would be permitted after Congress had a chance to block it.

In the second stage, a newly created joint committee of Congress would be charged with recommending $1.5 trillion in deficit reductions by the end of November and put to a vote in Congress by year's end. The cuts could come from benefit programs such as Medicare, Social Security of Medicaid as well as from an overhaul of the tax code.

The committee proposals could trigger a debt limit increase of as much as $1.5 trillion, if approved by Congress. But if they do not materialize, automatic spending cuts would be applied across government to trim spending by $1.2 trillion.

Social Security, Medicaid and food stamps would be exempt from the automatic cuts, but payments to doctors, nursing homes and other Medicare providers could be trimmed, as could subsidies to insurance companies that offer an alternative to government-run Medicare.

The deal marked a classic compromise, a triumph of divided government that would let both Obama and Republicans claim they had achieved their objectives.

As the president demanded, the deal would allow the debt limit to rise by enough to tide the Treasury over until after the 2012 elections.

But Obama's request to extend the current payroll tax holiday beyond the end of 2011 would not be included, nor his call for extended unemployment benefits for victims of the recession.

Republicans would win spending cuts of slightly more than the increase in the debt limit, as they have demanded. Additionally, tax increases would be off-limits unless recommended by the bipartisan committee that is expected to include six Republicans and six Democrats. The conservative campaign to force Congress to approve a balanced-budget amendment to the Constitution would be jettisoned.

Congressional Democrats have long insisted that Medicare and Social Security benefits not be cut, a victory for them in the proposal under discussion. Yet they would have to absorb even deeper cuts in hundreds of federal programs than were included in legislation they had advanced in the final days before an agreement was reached.

Schools

spend the money elsewhere amid the recession.

Some are also setting aside money to restore unpaid furlough days for employees and bolster rainy day accounts that were depleted to help offset budget cuts.

For teachers and parents who bemoaned the cuts to public education during a hearing at the Idaho Capitol in January, the extra cash headed to their schools may seem like an answer to prayer. But the extra $60 million arrives at school doorsteps a year after they lost $128 million in funding, and two years after a $69 million cut.

Schools were expected to lose another $47 million this year, though the extra money headed into school coffers will more than cancel out that deficit. The payout amounts range from more than $7 million for Idaho's largest school district in Meridian, to about $4,200 for a one-room schoolhouse in rural Twin Falls County.

"We understand schools have taken cuts over the past two years, and they've made tough decisions as a result of that," said state Department of Education spokeswoman Melissa McGrath. "But we always said there was going to be a brighter day and we're hoping that day is not too far off."

From the state's capital city to the struggling timber towns in the north and the tiny dairy communities in the south, public schools now face a peculiar dilemma after years of budget cuts: How do they spend an extra $60 million? Which programs and services should be restored, and what can wait a little longer?

Make no mistake, Dalglish said, he wants the additional $66,000 set aside for Council public schools.

"But I'm not going to be able to restore my teacher pay, I'm not going to be able to restore classes," he said. "It's helpful, but it certainly doesn't solve the problem. The problem is a lack of state resources for schools, especially for those districts that can't pass levies."

During the past four years, property taxpayers in Council have rejected three separate measures to boost local funding for education in a region that has boasted Idaho's highest unemployment rate throughout the recession and now, during the sluggish economic recovery.

Like in many Idaho school districts, there's been no teacher pay raises amid the budget cuts. Money for classroom supplies is also down. Council students now drink milk from glasses, not cartons, as part of a new recycling program aimed at eliminating the need for dumpsters — and the cost of having the dumpsters emptied.

Less garbage could mean $2,200 in savings, Dalglish said.

"Those are the types of things we're having to do to save a little money here and there," he said.

In south-central Idaho, where public schools in Hansen are getting an additional $102,866, some of the money will go toward preventing further layoffs in the upcoming school year, Superintendent Dennis Coulter said.

"I'm tired of handing out pink slips," Coulter said.

A mother traveled from the rural dairy community to Boise in January as state lawmakers collected public testimony on education funding. Lauren Peters sobbed while telling lawmakers the cuts had devastated her community and her son was going to graduate this year without a school band to play "Pomp and Circumstance."

The district, which has 390 students, has six fewer teaching positions than it did a year ago.

While some of the additional funding will go to prevent more job losses in the upcoming school year,

Coulter said the rest will be saved for the following year when 4 percent of funding for salaries is shifted toward classroom technology as part of new education laws backed by Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Luna.

From one of the state's smallest school districts to the largest in Meridian, where voters dumped a property tax increase to help offset budget cuts in local classrooms earlier this year. The $18.5 million, two-year supplemental levy failed in May amid opposition from tea party activists.

The district's budget plan for the upcoming year cuts about 80 positions and mixes seven days from the school calendar, while also eliminating mid-day busing for kindergarten and draining the last of the district's reserves, which stood at more than $18 million just three years ago, said spokesman Eric Exline.

The district has not yet decided how its extra $7 million from the state will be spent, he said.

"In September, when we find out how many kids show up, then we'll decide what we might be able to restore with the $7 million," Exline said. "There's a strong possibility that at least a significant portion of it will go back into reserves."

Summer Skin Care

For people six months and older, apply sunscreen with an SPF of 30 or higher. Reapply every two hours, even on cloudy days, and especially after swimming.

Do not apply sunscreen on babies under six months of age. Keep babies out of the sun and in shady areas.

Wear protective clothing, such as a long-sleeve shirt, wide-brimmed hat, and sunglasses.

Limit time outside between 10 a.m. - 4 p.m. when the sun's rays are the strongest.

Father and Son from Nampa Plan Record Plane Flight

NAMPA (AP) • A south-west Idaho father and son want to try to break the Guinness world record for flight endurance while also raising awareness of childhood sexual abuse.

Matt Pipkin is a 2003 graduate of Nampa Christian High School. He and his father, Chet Pipkin, plan to fly a Cessna 172 for 65 days.

“I provide the age and experience,” Chet Pipkin told the Idaho Press-Tribune. “Matt provides the youth and enthusiasm.”

Chet Pipkin is a retired F-4 pilot with the Air National Guard who now flies 737s for American Airlines. Matt is an amateur pilot.

They plan to take off from Boise in August 2012 and share pilot duties, refueling in the air from other planes. They plan to get food using ropes and bungee cords.

Matt Pipkin said he was abused by a family friend when he was 5 years old. He didn’t tell his parents until he was 14, and then withheld the extent of the abuse.

“I thought I was an accomplice and not a victim,” said Matt, now 27. “It had a huge negative impact on my self-conception and it affected every facet of my life.”

He said by his early 20s he was sad and despairing from memories of the abuse. In the last several years he went through counseling and talked about the abuse, giving him hope.

But he said many victims of abuse suffer silently.

“They’re afraid of telling,” he said. “I want to help them speak. I just know that this is my duty. I know it in my heart.”

The plane the Pipkins will fly will have several modifications. The fuel tank will be enlarged to allow 12 hours between refueling. They also plan to create a passage from the cockpit to the engine to change the plane’s oil while flying.

The passenger seats will be removed to create a sleeping area.

“We’ll fly out of Boise, but we’ll have hubs in several zones around the country,” Matt said. “That will provide better PR. We’ll talk to newspapers and TV stations along the way, so it will feel personal for everyone.”

Police Looking for Truck Driver Involved in Deadly Boise Crash

BOISE (AP) • The location of an Oklahoma-based truck driver who police say was involved in a crash that killed two Boise residents remains unknown, more than two years after he failed to show up in a southwest Idaho courtroom to plead guilty to two counts of misdemeanor vehicular manslaughter.

Gregory Vincent Roberts, 64, has since been placed on the FBI’s National Crime Information Center database to alert law enforcement officials that he has an outstanding $1 million arrest warrant in Ada County.

“I can’t speak for police, but I can speak for my clients, and we are very interested in finding him,” said Boise attorney Jason Monteleone, who is representing the family in the civil case.

Roberts failed to appear in 4th District Court in June 2009. The Idaho Statesman reports that he faced 90 days in jail and four years’ probation as part of a plea deal.

Jeanette Neill, 37, and Roy Valpey, 44, died in the 2008 crash on Interstate 84. They were parked in a construction zone when police say Roberts’ semitrailer rammed their car from behind.

Idaho State Police have declined to comment, citing a confidentiality order as part of the civil suit. Ada County prosecutors, handling the criminal case, also declined to comment.

Prosecutors said Roberts’ 1997 Peterbilt tractor-trailer had a defective brake on the fifth axle and there were holes and kinking on some brake lines.

Roberts was charged with misdemeanors because prosecutors said he hadn’t shown criminal intent in the crash.

Roberts was injured in the crash and had to have vertebrae in his neck fused, and he was allowed to go home to Weleetka, Okla., while the criminal case was resolved. But he never showed up in Boise for the June 2009 hearing.

Meanwhile, family members have settled a lawsuit against the Oklahoma company Roberts was working for, Youngs Refrigerated Express LLC. Family members have also filed a lawsuit against Roberts.

AROUND THE STATE

FIRE DESTROYS DAIRY BARN, 200 TONS OF HAY

MERIDIAN • Authorities in southwest Idaho say a fire has destroyed an old dairy barn in Meridian and about 200 tons of hay.

KTVB-TV reports that the fire started about 4:15 p.m. Saturday and that fire crews were able to get it under control at about 5:30 p.m.

There were no injuries, and officials are trying to determine the cause of the fire. A damage estimate was not available.

MONSANTO POISED TO MOVE FORWARD ON MINE EXPANSION

POCATELLO • Officials from Monsanto Co. say they intend to begin preliminary construction later this summer to expand their phosphate mining operations in southeastern Idaho.

Federal land managers gave final approval last month to the company’s Blackfoot Bridge Mine in the mountains near Soda Springs.

The Idaho State Journal reported the deadline for opponents to file an administrative appeal expired last week, essentially removing any immediate legal hurdles to the project.

Monsanto Spokesman Trent Clark says installation of silt fences and other environmental safeguards should begin in the next several weeks.

The U.S. Bureau of Land Management signed off on the project after the company agreed to spend an estimated $30 million on a state-of-the-art liner designed to prevent selenium and other toxic metals from leaching into streams and groundwater.

Idaho Officials Consider ‘Involuntary Hold’ Facility

COEUR D’ALENE (AP) • A facility needs to be created to hold individuals who have been taken into custody due to intoxication, substance abuse or psychological problems, a Kootenai County commissioner says.

Jai Nelson said the county spent $1.6 million from 2007 to 2010 on what are called protective or involuntary holds by placing people at Kootenai Medical Center.

“The cost is exorbitant,” she told the Coeur d’Alene Press. “That term has been raised by every entity I talk to.”

Law enforcement officials with the Coeur d’Alene Police Department and Kootenai County Sheriff’s office say officers can wait hours for hospital staff to become available for such holds. It can also strain the resources at the center.

Nelson said a facility could be built where people could be placed to sober up or receive exams to determine if they could be released or should receive additional treatment.

“In general in our community, we do have a problem with substance abuse issues,” said Mike Baker of Dirne Community Health Center. “And we don’t have a lot of services for people who have substance abuse and don’t have money.”

He said such a holding facility could possibly lead to a

“We are dealing with this problem on the back end. I want to deal with it on the front end, with an appropriate facility and at vastly reduced cost.”

— Jai Nelson, a Kootenai County commissioner detox center.

Nelson said the first thing is to improve the involuntary holds.

“We are dealing with this problem on the back end,” she said. “I want to deal with it on the front end, with an appropriate facility and at vastly reduced cost.”

Coeur d’Alene Police Chief Wayne Long said officers can take individuals into protective custody if they are a danger to themselves or others. Because they are not under arrest, he said, they can’t be taken to jail, but must be taken to a mental health facility.

Sometimes, however, beds aren’t always available at the medical center, and officers must stay with an individual. That can be hours.

“It ties up police personnel, and justifiably so,” Longo said. “We don’t want to leave, especially if a person is hell-bent on hurting themselves or will lash out and hurt someone else.”

He said officers will transport people to Lewiston or sometimes Boise if Kootenai Medical Center doesn’t have room.

“You can see the time factor. It’s at least a two-hour drive down to Lewiston,” Longo said. “By the time we get into St. Joseph’s and we turn around and drive back, it’s chewed up half a shift.”

Officials at Kootenai Medical Center say that happens about twice a month.

The Kootenai County Sheriff’s office faces the same problem.

“We all have this issue,” said Undersheriff Travis Chaney. “This facility and this issue needs to be resolved, and sooner rather than later, because it’s not going to go away.”

Carmen Brochu, chief nursing officer at the medical center, said individuals brought in under police custody must undergo a medical evaluation. She said hospital security sometimes has to help police keep watch on those individuals because they can be volatile.

“They (involuntary holds) are not typically emergencies, so other patients will come first,” Brochu said.

Lehi Police Chief Credited for Saving Boy’s Life

LEHI, Utah (AP) • Lehi Police Chief Chad Smith is being credited with saving the life of a 3-year-old boy at a public swimming pool in Monticello.

The Daily Herald of Provo reports Smith was playing with his grandchildren in the pool when Caden Young of Vernal was pulled from it on July 22.

The boy had not been breathing and had no heart beat for 10 to 15 minutes while in the water.

Smith, a former EMT, revived Caden with mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. The boy was taken to the hospital and released the next day in good health.

His mother, Lonni Young, says no one else at the pool knew what to do, and Caden calls Smith “Grandpa Chad My Hero.”

The accident happened after Caden left the “kiddie” pool and entered deep water.

Tree Removal Proposed in Flathead National Forest

KALISPELL, Mont. (AP) • The U.S. Forest Service has released an environmental assessment of its plan to remove and sell dead timber as well as restore whitebark pine on the Spotted Bear Ranger District in the Flathead National Forest.

“In this particular area we have a significant infestation of the pine beetle and that’s a problem,” District Ranger Deb Mucklow told the Flathead Beacon.

Work on the Soldier Addition II project would be done on about 1,200 acres. The plan is open for public comment until Aug. 15.

Forest officials said the Spotted Bear Ranger District has suffered more damage from the mountain pine beetle than any other district in the forest, noting that about 268,000 lodgepole pine trees covering some 53,000 acres have either been damaged or killed.

Mucklow said the plan calls for removing and sale of trees, but the trees have to be removed soon.

“That’s why there is some urgency to this project, to be able to get this wood while there’s still some value,” she said.

She added it could only be used for firewood if the Forest Service waits any longer.

Mountain pine beetle damage is more severe on the east side of the divide because fire prevention has allowed lodgepole pine to thrive, said Heidi Trechsel, a tree scientist with the Forest Service.

She said that in northwest Montana, the forest is more diverse and pine beetle don’t have as many trees to lay eggs.

“It’s here, but you don’t see big areas of beetle kill because of the diversity,” Trechsel said. “A lot of what we have here is more localized.”

Another part of the plan includes clearing flammable material from the Stony Hill Electronic Site to protect it from wildfires.

Republican presidential candidate, former Utah Gov. Jon Huntsman, Jr., gestures while speaking during a lecture series Leading Voices in Politics and Policy at Dartmouth College on July 26 in Hanover, N.H.

Niceness Aside, Huntsman Finds Fault with His Rivals

BY JOSH LOFTIN
Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY • A diplomat to the core, Jon Huntsman is well known here as a likable guy who prefers compromise to combativeness. Niceness is such a strong part of his persona that the Republican pledged to run a civil campaign for president.

“He genuinely wants to please people, and he gets along with everyone,” says Olene Walker, a Republican who preceded Huntsman as Utah governor.

But now, as Huntsman struggles against better-known opponents, he is both subtly and directly criticizing GOP front-runner Mitt Romney as well as the Democrat who named him U.S. ambassador to China just a few years ago, President Barack Obama.

The shift in tone comes as polls show Huntsman in single digits nationally and in key states, and it follows his decision to change campaign managers. Advisers over the past few weeks have been telling Huntsman that he must engage Romney and Obama to boost his prospects of winning the GOP nomination.

He’s obliged.

While in South Carolina recently, Huntsman jabbed at Romney’s record, saying Utah led the way on job creation and urging his audience to compare it to Massachusetts’ standing: “Not first, but 47th.” And last week in New Hampshire, he called Obama

“The attacks so far were civil. They bordered on classic political attacks, but didn’t get there. But I can’t believe they won’t continue to sharpen. I don’t think they can maintain the civility pledge.”

— Alex Slater, a Washington-based Democratic consultant

“a good man” and “earnest.” But, he added, “He’s fundamentally failed us.”

It’s an uncomfortable political role for Huntsman, who has prided himself on his diplomatic skills and is rarely disliked by anyone, even those who disagree with him politically. In part, that’s because he has never faced a strong challenge for political office, but it also speaks to his personality.

Republicans and Democrats alike in Utah roundly describe Huntsman as a leader who always sought the middle ground and never resorted to personal attacks to gain the upper hand.

“He wasn’t an ideologue, and he empathized with a lot of different points of views,” said Salt Lake City Mayor Ralph Becker, who was the Utah House minority leader during most of Huntsman time as governor. “He’s the kind of leader we want. He’s inclusive, he’s charming and he’s got strong diplomatic skills.”

As governor, Huntsman was almost as popular with Democrats as he was with those in his own party, which made him practically invincible when he ran for re-election in 2008 in a strongly conservative state.

His Democratic opponent, Bob Springmeyer, said Huntsman never did anything publicly or privately that suggested he was anything but genuine. “The nice-guy image, the diplomatic personality is legitimate,” he said.

Thus, as he increases his criticism of his White House rivals, Huntsman risks undermining his authenticity and turning off GOP primary voters. That may explain why he’s trying to contrast himself with his rivals without appearing negative. It’s as if he’d rather let voters read between the lines of his criticism than castigate his opponents by name.

“A lot of people run from their record. We’re running on our record,” Huntsman told college Republicans late Friday in Washington.

He didn’t mention Romney, but the target of his comment was clear, and his aides acknowledged that he was referring to the former Massachusetts governor who has downplayed certain parts of his record that don’t sit well with conservatives.

His campaign aides dispute the notion that Huntsman has shifted to a more negative tone even as they mercilessly assail his opponents — Romney in particular — on social networking sites and in media interviews.

Among those aides is Tim Miller. The Huntsman spokesman argued that Huntsman wasn’t criticizing his opponents in “ways that are petty or engaging in name calling.” Rather, he said, Huntsman was simply contrasting his record with those of others.

“Voters want a candidate with a vision for the county. They don’t want an angry president,” said Miller.

Huntsman, for his part, explained his approach this way in a recent interview with CBS: “Civility can coexist with the facts.”

“In a race, you’ve got to point out your differences, you’ve got to put your record on the table,” he said. “It’s the personal attacks that I think Americans hate so much about politics these days. Stick to the issues. You can talk about the issues and draw your differences.”

But can Huntsman do that without breaking his civility promise? Has he already broken it?

“The attacks so far were civil. They bordered on classic political attacks, but didn’t get there,” said Alex Slater, a Washington-based Democratic consultant. “But I can’t believe they won’t continue to sharpen. I don’t think they can maintain the civility pledge.”

TAHOE GROUP VIEWS DONOR’S VIOLATIONS AS SERIOUS

BY MARTIN GRIFFITH
Associated Press

RENO, Nev. • Lake Tahoe’s leading conservation organization says it regards environmental violations that took place at the site of its annual fundraiser as “a very serious matter.”

League to Save Lake Tahoe Chair Robert Damaschino said the group was unaware of the violations at the Tahoe City property of Tamara Fritz until a few weeks ago, when the settlement process between her and regulators was well under way.

Fritz has agreed to pay a $35,000 fine to settle a dispute over the illegal extension of a pier and the unauthorized installation of a boatlift. But the Tahoe Regional Planning Agency’s legal committee now is considering a higher fine.

Fritz’s lakefront property is the site of the annual Oscar de la Renta Fashion Show, which has raised hundreds of thousands of dollars for the league. The event is scheduled to take place there as scheduled Aug. 6.

“The League to Save Lake Tahoe views the environmental violations that took place at the site of our fundraiser as a very serious matter,” Damaschino said in a statement. “We support the efforts of TRPA and the landowner to correct them and assure they are not repeated.”

Fritz did not return phone calls seeking comment.

The story about the environmental violations was first reported by the Tahoe Daily Tribune of South Lake Tahoe, Calif.

TRPA’s legal committee decided last week to postpone action on a settlement agreement regarding code violations on Fritz’s property. The committee plans to meet sometime in August with Fritz or her representative to consider whether the $35,000 fine is enough. TRPA’s governing board would then take final action on the fine.

The issue surfaced in 2008 during a routine TRPA staff inspection of Fritz’s property that revealed the unauthorized storage of a large cargo container, heavy construction equipment and other materials. Subsequent investigations turned up violations concerning the pier and boatlift, TRPA officials said.

Last September, a federal judge ruled in favor of the league by striking down TRPA’s regulations allowing new buoys, piers and boat ramps around Tahoe. The league’s lawsuit said the new facilities would have contributed to more pollution from boats and reduced the lake’s clarity.

Last month, the league sued the city of South Lake Tahoe over its new planning regulations, saying they allow for too much development at the expense of the lake’s clarity and scenic beauty.

“What we need in Tahoe right now is smart solutions to protect the lake, not fundraisers to create litigation roadblocks,” City Manager Tony O’Rourke said after learning about the environmental violations at Fritz’s property.

Rochelle Nason, executive director of the league, told the Tribune last week that Fritz has “done a great deal” for the arts and environment at Tahoe. Nason said she also understood that Fritz had no personal role in the environmental violations at her property.

Internet Archivist Seeks 1 of Every Book Written

Brewster Kahle, digital librarian for the Internet Archive, demonstrates the zoom function on July 21 while scanning a book on a touch screen at the Internet Archive’s Physical Archive warehouse in Richmond, Calif. Kahle is trying to preserve a physical version of every book ever written.

BY MARCUS WOHLSEN
Associated Press

RICHMOND, Calif. • Tucked away in a small warehouse on a dead-end street, an Internet pioneer is building a bunker to protect an endangered species: the printed word.

Brewster Kahle, 50, founded the nonprofit Internet Archive in 1996 to save a copy of every Web page ever posted. Now the MIT-trained computer scientist and entrepreneur is expanding his effort to safeguard and share knowledge by trying to preserve a physical copy of every book ever published.

“There is always going to be a role for books,” said Kahle as he perched on the edge of a shipping container soon to be tricked out as a climate-controlled storage unit. Each container can hold about 40,000 volumes, the size of a branch library. “We want to see books live forever.”

So far, Kahle has gathered about 500,000 books. He thinks the warehouse itself is large enough to hold about 1 million titles, each one given a barcode that identifies the cardboard box, pallet and shipping container in which it resides.

That’s far fewer than the roughly 130 million different books Google engineers involved in that company’s book scanning project estimate to exist worldwide. But Kahle says the ease with which they’ve acquired the first half-million donated texts makes him optimistic about reaching what he sees as a realistic goal of 10 million, the equivalent of a major university library.

“The idea is to be able to collect one copy of every book ever published. We’re not going to get there, but that’s our goal,” he said.

Recently, workers in offices above the warehouse floor unpacked boxes of books and entered information on each title into a database. The books ranged from “Moby Dick” and “The Hunchback of Notre Dame” to “The Complete Basic Book of Home Decorating” and “Costa Rica for Dummies.”

At this early stage in the book collection process, specific titles aren’t being sought out so much as large collections. Duplicate copies of books already in the archive are re-donated elsewhere. If someone does need to see an actual physical copy of a book, Kahle said it should take no more than an hour to fetch it from its dark, dry home.

“The dedicated idea is to have the physical safety for these physical materials for the long haul and then have the digital versions accessible to the world,” Kahle said.

Along with keeping books cool and dry, which Kahle plans to accomplish using the modified shipping containers, book preservation experts say he’ll have to contend with vermin and about a century’s worth of books printed on wood pulp paper that decays over time because of its own acidity.

Peter Hanff, acting director of the Bancroft Library, the special collections and rare books library at the University of California, Berkeley, says that just keeping the books on the West Coast will save them from the climate fluctuations that are the norm in other parts of the country.

He praises digitization as a way to make books, manuscripts and other materials more accessible. But he too believes that the digital does not render the physical object obsolete.

People feel an “intimate connection” with artifacts, such as a letter written by Albert Einstein or a papyrus dating back millennia.

No Golden Parachute For a ‘Little Girl’

LEWISTON TRIBUNE

Idaho has fired two of its seven transportation directors.

There, the similarities end.

When it canned former Director David Ekern in 2006, the state transportation board acted one way. When it dismissed former Director Pam Lowe three years later, it acted another.

That’s one of the reasons Lowe appears to be inching toward winning a wrongful termination lawsuit against the state. On her side is a state law designed to shield the transportation chief from petty political arm-twisting. That statute obligates the board to first demonstrate the director is guilty of “inefficiency, neglect of duty, malfeasance and nonfeasance in office” before firing her.

Hence the board’s treatment of Ekern, whose dismissal was hushed up until Lowe’s lawyers revealed the details in a series of court filings last month.

Hired in 2003, Ekern was in hot water with state lawmakers who felt he misled them about then-Gov. Dirk Kempthorne’s plan to put the state in debt in order to pursue the $1 billion “Connecting Idaho” program.

Nor were things going well at ITD. As detailed in Lowe’s filings:

- The board had “concerns and conversations with Mr. Ekern about his poor job performance.”

- In March 2006, the board got a complaint from ITD’s Human Resources Director Mary Harker “detailing well over a dozen documented concerns” about Ekern’s performance.

- The board hired former Transportation Director (and future board Chairman) Darrell Manning to investigate. After interviewing 60 people, Manning validated Harker’s allegations.

- By August 2006, the board voted to fire Ekern but gave him the opportunity to leave on good terms. It also paid him for his accrued leave and cut him a check for another $20,000 to $25,000.

Contrast that with Lowe’s circumstances.

Like Ekern, she had political baggage. By 2009, Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter had failed back-to-back attempts to pass a highway funding package in a Legislature controlled by his own party. Schmoozing with politicians was not in Lowe’s skill set.

But unlike Ekern, Lowe had satisfied the transportation board, which gave her favorable performance evaluations right up to the moment it summarily sacked her. The board brought in no investigator to build a paper trail to justify termination. It didn’t smooth the transition by giving her time to retire or issue a monetary buyout.

In other words, the board observed Ekern’s rights under the statute protecting him from arbitrary termination but ignored the standard in Lowe’s case.

Now what could account for the difference?

Could it be Lowe’s gender? At the time she was appointed, Transportation Board Vice Chairman Gary Blick of Castleford allegedly said: “No little girl would be able to run this department,” and “What are we going to do when she decides to start a family?”

Or was it cronyism? Lowe says she questioned spending some of the $50 million Idaho had allocated to Washington Group International and Denver-based CH2M Hill for managing “Connecting Idaho.” Both outfits contributed to Otter’s campaign, and Lowe contends former Otter Chief of Staff Jeff Malman and Manning, who had by then been elevated to transportation board chairman, waved her off.

Lowe will have to prove it. But at this point, you’d have to say she’s well on her way to doing just that.

How the NFL Took All the Fun Out of Football

I have to confess. There will be a season of National Football League games this year. And I don’t care.

This admission does not come easily. In our family it was a tossup regarding who was the greater deity to be worshipped in Ohio on Sundays — God almighty, or the Cleveland Browns.

There will be hell to pay for this, but I preferred the disciples of Jimmy Brown, Lou Groza and company. I adored football. I played football, though not very well. In fact, the first person I ever interviewed was the legendary Browns wide receiver Paul Warfield for my high school newspaper. I was in such awe I didn’t know what to do first — ask questions or genuflect.

The gridiron runs deep in the gene pool. My 89-year-old mother could easily hold her own on ESPN on any subject related to football.

My estrangement from the game has evolved over the years. Perhaps it was the growing sense of elitism and privilege on the part of the players. Perhaps it was the ridiculous costs of attending a game, not to mention having to subject oneself to being groped by security personnel simply to watch multimillionaires beat the living daylight out of each other.

Maybe the first of the final straws came about a year or so ago, when the Wall Street Journal analyzed the average NFL game and found that the real time between the snap of the ball and end of the play over the course of four, 15-minute quarters totaled about 11 actual minutes of “action” on the field, not counting the end-zone celebrations after a touchdown.

So the owners and the players have been arguing over how to divvy up $9.3 billion in revenue in order to play an 11-minute game once a week. If you divide the game time in half, Indianapolis Colts quarterback Peyton Manning makes about $16 million a year to play 5½ minutes of football each week.

Why, I asked myself, am I watching this silliness? Why are any of us?

It may be silly, but it’s dangerous silly. It could be that the early seeds of my creeping conflicts over football began in 1984 when I briefly interviewed the late Darryl Stingley, the New England Patriots receiver who was made a quadriplegic by a brutal (and perfectly legal at the time) hit by the Oakland Raiders’ Jack Tatum.

Was football worth this?

And now I am watching so many of the players I admired and at times rooted for and against struggling with and succumbing to brain injuries they sustained all for the dining and dancing pleasure of — us.

The late Mike Webster of the Pittsburgh Steelers, Dave Duerson of the Chicago Bears and most recently the late John Mackey of the Baltimore Colts, men I remember in the full flower of their invincible athletic youth, reduced in middle age to shadows of themselves.

So whenever I watch a game, I feel almost like a voyeur being entertained by gladiatorial men willing to sacrifice their bodies and their consciousness to sell a ticket and a beer.

“Are we Rome?” the writer Cullen Murphy asked. Yes, but with better instant replay.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Remember the Trojan Horse

We blindly open the doors for our destruction. Though not a perfect analogy, remember the Trojan horse. The Koran is the book of faith and practice for the Muslims. Do not burn the Koran. Read the Koran and be educated. In the Koran, Muslims are commanded to make no friends of Christians or Jews. Non-Muslims are considered infidels. Muslims are commanded to kill infidels. Why do we allow the Muslims to establish mosques where terrorists are trained? President Bush and many others were mistaken when they said Islam is a peaceful religion.

Read the Koran. Study the Muslim/Islam history. Historically, Islam/Muslims are a violent, savage people to Christians, Jews and other non-Muslims. Remember 911. Perhaps 20 years ago, the Readers Digest reported how we were training Egyptians to fly airliners. Again, remember 911. Remember Timothy McVey used fertilizer and ammonium nitrate to kill hundreds in Oklahoma.

Now we are allowing the Chinese to build a fertilizer plant in Pocatello and a manufacturing plant outside of Boise with the carrot of employment for Idaho. What is to keep the Chinese from manufacturing weapons of mass destruction both chemical and explosives at their factory in Pocatello?

It is traitorous to allow foreign powers to establish a beachhead here with the resources to manufacture weapons of mass destruction that could be used to annihilate hundreds of thousands of our military, our government and our civilian population? The Chinese have no problem imprisoning and slaughtering their own people. Bible history written in advance normally called prophecy found in Ezekiel tells that hordes from the north will march against Israel. China and Russia are to the north of Israel. China and Russia are not a peaceful people.

Remember the Trojan horse. We should not permit terrorist training camps in our nation or anywhere in the world that is bent on the destruction of our government. We should not allow a foreign nation to build factories that could be used to build weapons of mass destruction.

Thank Tea Party for Debt Debate

I had the privilege of hearing our eloquent president speak Tuesday night about this new debt crisis that has apparently reared its ugly head unexpectedly. The speech was a bit rehearsed blaming Bush, Republicans, jet owners and oil companies and so forth for creating and perpetuating this crisis; you know, the usual. He even went as far as to blame his own party (just a little) without taking any responsibility for a third of the debt that holds his signature.

I especially loved the repeated “fair and balanced approach” slogan; it’s reminiscent to the hope and change bit that had no definition, no description, no promises and no responsibility. Fair seems to be a term that polled well among the masses and I’m pretty sure balanced has nothing to do with the budget.

Obama has made it clear that revenue must increase and the credit limit extended in order to resume his spending our economy back to health; for that concession he will assemble a bipartisan panel that will cut trillions in unspecified spending some 16 months down the road after the next election. And I guarantee just because he’s asking for a couple trillion in credit doesn’t mean he’s going to spend it. (Guarantee includes Brooklyn Bridge and valuable swampland titles)

How could this go wrong? We’ve gone 800 days without a budget and now we’re hoping these guys can solve the debt crisis in eight? You may want to blame the Tea Party for being inflexible on tax hikes but without them, the debt debate would have been muted and the limit increase passing without any consideration to paying down the debt or attempting a budget amendment.

Shared sacrifice should come with roofies and KY Jelly because I don’t think I can handle any more of his American dream, and since I can’t press charges for the assault, I’d rather sleep through it.

SYRIAN FORCES LAUNCH FIERCE ASSAULT ON EVE OF RAMADAN; SCORES ARE KILLED

BEIRUT • Syrian security forces backed by tanks and snipers launched a ferocious assault Sunday on defiant cities and towns, killing at least 70 people and possibly many more as the regime raced to crush dissent ahead of Ramadan. Corpses littered the streets after a surge in violence that drew widespread international condemnation.

Estimates of the death toll, which were impossible to verify, ranged from around 75 people to nearly 140 on a day when the attacks began before dawn and witnesses said they were too frightened to collect corpses from the streets.

The worst carnage was in Hama, the scene of a 1982 massacre by President Bashar Assad's late father and predecessor and a city with a history of defiance against 40 years of Assad family rule. Hospitals there were overwhelmed with bloodied casualties, suggesting the death toll could rise sharply, witnesses said.

President Barack Obama called the reports "horrifying" and said Assad is "completely incapable and unwilling" to respond to the legitimate grievances of the Syrian people.

Ramadan, which begins Monday, will present a critical test for the government, which has unleashed deadly firepower since March but still has not been able to put down the revolt. Daily demonstrations are expected to surge during the holy month, when crowds gather in mosques each evening after the dawn-to-dusk fast.

SUICIDE BOMBER STRIKES POLICE HEADQUARTERS IN SOUTHERN AFGHAN CITY, KILLING 11 PEOPLE

KANDAHAR, Afghanistan • A suicide bomber blew himself up Sunday at the main gate of a provincial police headquarters in southern Afghanistan, killing at least 11 people in a city where Afghans have recently taken control of security.

Separately, five international service members were killed Sunday.

The suicide bombing in Lashkar Gah was the latest in a string of attacks in the south in recent weeks that have included assassinations of high-level government officials in neighboring Kandahar and a coordinated attack against government buildings in Uruzgan province that killed 19 people last week.

The high-profile attacks have provoked a growing sense of insecurity in the very region where international military commanders say security has improved since the surge of U.S. troops last year. Lashkar Gah, the capital of Helmand province, in particular has been touted as a success story from the offensive by international forces — one reason it was one of seven areas handed over to Afghan forces earlier this month.

The attack early Sunday, which ripped a gaping hole in the station compound's wall, killed 10 police officers and a child, and wounded at least 12 people, said Helmand provincial spokesman Daoud Ahmadi.

PANEL HEAD SAYS ADMITTED NORWAY MASSACRE GUNMAN UNLIKELY TO BE FOUND INSANE

OSLO, Norway • It's unlikely that the right-wing extremist who admitted killing dozens in Norway last week will be declared legally insane because he appears to have been in control of his actions, the head of the panel that will review his psychiatric evaluation told The Associated Press.

The decision on Anders Behring Breivik's mental state will determine whether he can be held criminally liable and punished with a prison sentence or sent to a psychiatric ward for treatment.

The July 22 attacks were so carefully planned and executed that it would be difficult to argue they were the work of a delusional madman, said Dr. Tarjei Rygnestad, who heads the Norwegian Board of Forensic Medicine.

In Norway, an insanity defense requires that a defendant be in a state of psychosis while committing the crime with which he or she is charged. That means the defendant has lost contact with reality to the point that he's no longer in control of his own actions.

"It's not very likely he was psychotic," Rygnestad told the AP.

DIVERS SEARCH N.H. POND FOR ANY SIGN OF 11-YEAR-OLD GIRL WHO'S BEEN MISSING FOR SEVERAL DAYS

STEWARTSTOWN, N.H. • Divers were deployed to a pond in northern New Hampshire on Sunday in the search for an 11-year-old girl who's been missing for several days.

State Fish and Game Department divers searched Back Pond for any sign of fifth-grader Celina Cass, Senior Assistant Attorney General Jane Young said. The small pond is less than a mile from Celina's home in Stewartstown, a community of 800 residents with one blinking streetlight and a handful of stores.

Vermont and New Hampshire state police, the FBI and other agencies also were continuing their ground search in those states and in Canada, Young said.

"We're searching for Celina Cass as a missing person," she said. "We have no evidence to categorize this any other way."

Celina, who lives with her mother and stepfather, was last seen Monday night at her home computer in her small town in far northern New Hampshire.

Heat Wave Threatens Elderly in Remote Towns

BY SEAN MURPHY

MULHALL, Okla. • The continuing heat wave is making life difficult for elderly residents in rural towns in Oklahoma and other states in the Great Plains. Many elderly live in towns where there are no longer grocery stores or doctor's offices. But they are increasingly afraid to go outside during the day, and are cancelling doctor's appointments and trips to shop for food. Marlene Snow, who delivers meals to homebound residents across Logan County, said she worries about older people who live alone and are hunkered down in their houses.

Farmers Fear Congress Might Crack Down on Illegal Labor

BY ROB HOTAKAINEN

McClatchy Newspapers

BURLINGTON, Wash. • If you buy strawberry Haagen-Dazs ice cream, Steve Sakuma says, there's an 80 percent chance that you're going to get his berries, grown on some of the richest black soil in America, in northern Washington state, about 50 miles from the Canadian border.

And he says there's a very good chance that you'd get berries handpicked by illegal immigrants, too.

Wearing designer blue jeans and sunglasses, Sakuma, who's 65, surveyed his 250-acre strawberry plot outside Burlington earlier in July, pointing to 231 employees, most of them from Mexico, who were crouched down handpicking the fruit under a hot morning sun. He estimated that 80 percent of them were in the country illegally, even though they'd provided him with the necessary documents.

Like throngs of other farmers nationwide who rely on illegal labor to harvest their crops, Sakuma fears that Congress doesn't understand the complexities of his operations. He said he'd promptly go out of business if lawmakers forced employers to electronically verify the immigration status of their employees. And he urged members of Congress to consider the ramifications carefully first.

"These illegal immigrants, or whatever you want to call them, have been around for a long time," Sakuma said. "And guess what? They're not bad. They're just making a living. They're here doing what other people won't do. If you think that white America is going to come out here and pick these strawberries, you have been living in the dark for a long time."

SHOOTING KILLS ONE DURING GEORGE CLINTON SHOW

CLEVELAND (AP) • A man fired several shots from a handgun during a large fight near an outdoor concert venue featuring funk music artist George Clinton, killing one person and wounding three others, police said Sunday.

The fight erupted before 10 p.m. Saturday at an intersection near Luke Easter Park, the venue for the eighth annual Unity in the Park festival. Police didn't have a description of the shooter, and no arrests had been made.

It was unclear how long after Clinton or the other musicians performed that the shooting erupted or what prompted it. Police said they didn't know if those involved in the fight were among concertgoers leaving the area.

"These were younger people, so we're not sure," police Sgt. Sammy Morris said. "George Clinton is an older (artist). We're not going to speculate."

A 16-year-old boy with a gunshot wound to the head died of his injuries early Sunday, Morris said. He didn't know the conditions of the other three who were wounded: a 20-year-old woman shot in the neck, and a 14-year-old boy and a 23-year-old man each hospitalized with leg wounds.

NATIONWIDE COMPANY IN BURLEY THIS WEEK PAYING CASH FOR GOLD, SILVER AND COINS.

By David Morgan
STAFF WRITER

Been following the gold and silver market lately? Well if you have a jewelry box, a lock box full of gold or a coffee can full of old coins, you should be, according to Ohio Valley Refinery spokesperson John Miller. “The gold and silver markets have not been this strong for over 30 years” said Miller. Typically when the U.S. dollar is weak and the economy is flat, gold and silver markets soar. “That’s good news if you are sitting on a few gold necklaces or an old class ring” says Miller.

Starting Tuesday at 9am and every day this week through Saturday, the Ohio Valley Refinery is setting up a satellite refinery right here in Burley at the Best Western. During their 5 day stay, anyone can bring gold, silver or platinum items and turn them in for immediate payment, explains John Miller. “Just about everybody has some amount of gold or silver just lying around collecting dust and this week anybody can sell theirs direct to our refinery. Typically selling direct to a refinery is reserved for larger wholesale customers like jewelry stores, pawn shops and laboratories” says Miller. “We are changing how business is done,” he explains “we want to do business with everybody so we took our business to the streets”. “Our teams visit various cities around the country hosting 5 day events and allowing the general public to take advantage of our services. “The turnout has been overwhelming” says Miller. “Usually each day is busier than the previous day. It seems once people come to us and sell something, they are so amazed what an old ring or gold coin is worth, they go home and start digging around for more and telling relatives, friends and neighbors. It’s like a feeding frenzy by the third day. People line up with everything from gold jewelry to sterling silver flatware sets to old coins. I think during this bad economy everybody can use extra money, but most people say they are taking advantage of selling direct to our refinery because of the higher prices we pay”.

During this special event, anyone is welcome to bring all types of gold, silver and platinum to the refinery and turn it in for instant payment. The types of items they will accept include all gold jewelry, gold coins, gold ounces, dental gold, old coins made before 1965 including silver dollars, halves, quarters and dimes, anything marked “sterling” including flatware sets, tea pots, silver bars, silver ounces and all industrial precious metals.

What should you expect if you go to the event to sell your gold and/or silver? Just gather up all gold, silver and platinum in any form. If you are not sure if it’s gold or silver, bring it in and they will test it for free. When you arrive at the event you will be asked to fill out a simple registration card and will be issued a number. Seating will be available. When your number is called you will be escorted to a table where your items will be examined, tested and sorted. This only takes a few minutes, using their expertise and specialized equipment. Items will be counted and/or weighed. The value of the items will be determined based on up to the minute market prices. Live feeds will be available at the event displaying current market prices of all precious metals. If you choose to sell your items, they will be bagged and tagged and you will be escorted to the cashier to collect your payment. Waiting time to sell your items may range from just a few minutes to 1 hour, so bring something to read. If you are the owner of a jewelry store, pawn shop, dentist office or a dealer you are encouraged to call ahead to make an appointment with the smelt master to discuss their special dealer programs. They can be reached during Refinery hours at (217) 787-7767.

Ohio Valley Refinery will open for business Tuesday from 9am–6pm. The event continues every day through Saturday. No appointment is needed for the general public.

SILVER AND GOLD COIN PRICES UP DURING POOR ECONOMY.

Collectors and Enthusiasts in Burley with $200,000 to Purchase Yours!

By Ken McIntosh
STAFF WRITER

Got Coin? It might be just the time to cash in. This week, starting Tuesday and continuing through Saturday, the International Collectors Association in conjunction with the Ohio Valley Gold & Silver Refinery will be purchasing all types of silver and gold coins direct from the public. All types are welcome and the event is free.

Collectors will be on hand to identify and sort your coins. Then the quality or grade will be determined. The better the grade the more they are worth, according to collectors I talked to. With the silver and gold markets high, prices of older coins are too. Any coins minted before 1965 in the U.S. are 90% silver, except nickels and pennies.

The coin’s worth is determined by the rarity and the grade. Old silver dollars are worth a great premium right now, even well worn heavily circulated ones are bringing good premiums. Franklin and Kennedy half dollars, Washington quarters, Mercury and Roosevelt dimes are all worth many times the face value. While older types like Seated Liberty, Standing Liberties, and Barber coins are worth even more.

Gold coins are really worth a lot right now, according to Brian Eades of the International Collectors Association. “This country didn’t start minting coins until 1792” says Eades. He explained, “Before that, people would trade goods using gold dust and nuggets. Some shop keepers would take more gold than needed to pay for items purchased. There was no uniform system of making change.”

The government opened the first mints and began distributing the coins in 1792. By the beginning of the 19th century, coins and paper currency were wide spread and our monetary system was here to stay. In 1933 Roosevelt required all banking institutions to turn in all gold coins. Once all banks turned in this gold, the president raised the gold standard from $20.00 per ounce to $33.00 per ounce. This was his way of stimulating the economy during the great depression. However, gold coins were never redistributed after the recall. But not all gold coins were turned in. “Many folks during that time didn’t completely trust the government and chose to keep their gold” said Eades.

These gold coins are sought after by collectors today and bring many times the face value. Any gold coins with the mint marks of CC, D or O will bring nice premiums. Collectors at the event will be glad to show you where to look. Other types of coins will also be purchased including foreign coins, Indian cents, two cent pieces, half dimes, three cent pieces and buffalo nickels to name a few.

Collectors warn people against trying to clean their coins, as significant damage can be done and the coin’s value lessened.

ITEMS OF INTEREST

LOCAL RESIDENTS ARE READY TO CASH IN! International buyers in town this week and ready to stimulate economy!

By David Morgan

Hundreds of phone calls from local residents poured in to the corporate office of the Ohio Valley Gold and Silver Refinery this week—inquiring about items to be purchased by the team of buyers that is on site with OVGSR.

The team of buyers this week are purchasing a vast array of vintage items, along with the coins, gold jewelry and sterling silver items the refinery deals in. It is a local shot in the arm for our economy—the spokesperson for the event expects to spend in excess of $200,000.00 this week at the Best Western, paying local residents on the spot. The spokesperson for the company has explained that these collectors are paying collector prices for the vintage items and it is great way for people to get a great value for their items.

No. 24 Lucky at MVS

In four of Saturday's six races at the speedway, a car bearing No. 24 won.

BY LINDA BRITTSAN
Times-News correspondent

Evidently 24 was the lucky number Saturday at Magic Valley Speedway: The number ended up in victory lane four times.

The good fortune began with Jeff Pohlman's No. 24 car taking victory in the first Mr. Gas Late Models main event race of the evening. Starting sixth on the grid in a field of 10 cars, Pohlman waited out the confrontations ahead of him to take the lead at Lap 12. Pohlman eventually took the checkered flag half a second ahead of runner-up Shelby Stroebel.

In the second main, Pohlman had to start at the rear of the field. Mired behind Rick Fowble and Dan Pehrson for several laps, Pohlman struggled to get out in front, but it was a hard-charging Kris McKean who got the position at Lap 25.

After getting around Fowble two laps later, Pohlman finally had his chance to take on McKean for another win. The pair battled side-by-side as the laps wound down, but Pohlman took command at Lap 34 and brought the No. 24 car to the winner's circle for the second time of the night.

"I was getting a little impatient when I was behind Fowble and Pehrson and thought I could go to the bottom and pass both of them but that didn't work," Pohlman said. "Then once Kris (McKean) got around me I was a little upset but my spotter Robbie (Hyde) told me that I could catch him and we did. We really didn't have any expectations of winning that second race, but it worked out."

The race wasn't without incident, though. The car driven by Enrique Contreras left a trail of fire down the backstretch early on, and he would have to spend the remainder of the night in the pits.

Although starting at the rear of a 12-car pack in the Modifieds 150-lap main event, Shelby Stroebel was able to get his No. 24 car to the front by Lap 28. Stroebel stretched out his advantage to nearly a quarter of the track, but a mandatory fuel stop at Lap 80 bunched up the field for a restart. Undaunted, Stroebel again kept the field comfortably behind him by hitting his marks at every turn. Two cautions in the final 10 laps tested Stroebel's holding power, but the former MVS track champion had the right stuff to make it to the winner's circle, finishing 0.496 seconds in front of Mike Reid.

"It was going to be either wreckers or checkers," Stroebel said, reflecting on the final two restarts. "But it was a lot fun out here tonight."

Former MVS track champions local drivers Rick Fowble and Rob Vest finished fourth and seventh in the Modified race, respectively.

In other Whelen All-American Series action, another main event winner with the No. 24 on the side of his car was Quale's Electronics Pro Hornets driver Scott Gilligan. Gilligan's win gives him an 11-point lead in the standings over Jeff Peck.

Paul Browne led from the pole to capture the main event win in the Project Filter Street Stocks and Sara Henry led all but two laps for the main event win on the Idaho Legends cars.

Paul Menard celebrates winning Sunday's Brickyard 400 at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway in Indianapolis.

Menard Secures First Sprint Cup Win at Brickyard 400

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) • Daddy's Boy. Silver spoon with secure sponsorship. Talented hack.

Paul Menard has heard all the jealous jeering throughout his unremarkable racing career.

On Sunday, he added a new name to that list: Brickyard 400 winner.

Menard became NASCAR's newest first-time winner Sunday with an upset victory at Indianapolis Motor Speedway, a track steeped in tradition for his family.

Yes, it came in a car sponsored by the hardware chain owned by his billionaire father. But nobody dared to deny that Menard earned the win and had worked hard to finally make it to Victory Lane in his 167th start at NASCAR's highest level.

True to his low-key and reserved personality even as he crossed the finish line, Menard had no desire to shove the win in the face of his critics.

"We're winners in Sprint Cup. That's the big deal. To do it at Indy, even bigger deal," he said. "Can't change people's opinions. They're going to say what they want to say. That's fine with me. We'll celebrate this. We'll enjoy it. Whatever they say, they say. Can't control it."

"I know what I'm capable of." Menard has bounced around NASCAR the past few years as teams were eager to land John Menard's sponsorship money but failed to spend it on winning race cars. Going into this year, Please see MENARD, S2

Same Home, New Team for Burress

The former Giants receiver will play in the same stadium, but he'll do it for the Jets. It was one of many moves on a busy Sunday in the NFL.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Stuck in prison and his NFL career derailed, Plaxico Burress insisted he'd be back one day.

Rex Ryan and the New York Jets are giving him that second chance.

"I'm just grateful," a confident yet humble Burress said Sunday night. "I'm excited about the opportunity and I'm going to give them everything I've got because they put their trust in me to be able to come in and contribute and have an impact."

Seahawks Say Goodbye to Tatupu

In less than a week, Seattle has parted ways with both its offensive and defensive captains from last season.

RENTON, Wash. (AP) • First Matt Hasselbeck was told his decade as quarterback of the Seattle Seahawks was over.

Now it's middle linebacker Lofa Tatupu being shown the door, leaving the Seahawks with just two remaining members of their Super Bowl team from six seasons ago.

Tatupu was cut by Seattle on Sunday morning after the Seahawks defensive captain reportedly declined to restructure his contract. It was announced as a "mutual decision," a line that was regularly repeated by head coach Pete Carroll following practice on Sunday afternoon. Please see SEAHAWKS, S2

Verlander Sparkles, Tempers Flare Between Tigers, Angels

Angels pitcher Jered Weaver was ejected for throwing at Alex Avila after he took offense to a delayed home-run trot from the previous batter.

DETROIT • Justin Verlander came within four outs of another no-hitter, outpitching an angry Jered Weaver as the Detroit Tigers beat the Los Angeles Angels 3-2 on Sunday in a testy game that grew particularly heated in the late innings.

Maicer Izturis lined an RBI single to left field with two outs in the eighth for the Angels' only hit.

Weaver (14-5) was ejected for throwing a pitch over Alex Avila's head in the seventh, right after Carlos Guillen showboated on a solo home run.

Guillen flipped his bat, posed at the plate and skipped a few steps sideways, prompting Weaver to yell at him before Guillen rounded the bases.

Red Sox 5, White Sox 3

CHICAGO • Dustin Pedroia hit a go-ahead two-run single in the seventh, Jason Varitek homered and the Red Sox beat the White Sox.

Blue Jays 7, Rangers 3

Tseng Wins Another Major

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland • Judging by the record books, Yani Tseng is 10 years ahead of Annika Sorenstam.

The 22-year-old Taiwanese won the Women's British Open for the second straight year Sunday, beating Brittany Lang by four strokes and becoming the youngest player — male or female — to capture a fifth major title.

Sorenstam was 32 when she won the 2003 LPGA Championship for her fifth major. Tiger Woods was 24 when he won his fifth at the 2000 PGA Championship.

Tseng, who is ranked No. 1 and won the LPGA Championship last month, became only the third player to win consecutive British titles.

Browne Wins U.S. Senior Open

TOLEDO, Ohio • After a

stoic week, Olin Browne finally let loose.

Browne showed little emotion until rolling in a 30-foot birdie putt on the final hole to clinch a three-shot victory over Mark O'Meara in the U.S. Senior Open.

After Browne's last putt dropped and a large gallery around the final green at Inverness Club roared its approval as he raised his arms in triumph. It was the biggest victory of the journeyman's 27 years as a professional.

Browne's closing even-par 71 left him at 15-under 269.

Small Markets, Big Players

Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Arizona stole the show at the MLB trade deadline.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Michael Bourn went from the bottom of the NL Central in Houston to the top of the wild-card standings with Atlanta — and he wasn't the only player who suddenly found himself in a pennant race.

Ubaldo Jimenez, Erik Bedard, Rafael Furcal and Mike Adams were also on the move at the end of a topsy-turvy weekend, when the surprising Indians, Pirates and Diamondbacks made some of the boldest moves at baseball's trade deadline, shedding those longtime seller tags and shopping for help.

All in all, it was a relatively quiet deadline day as the non-waiver cutoff came and went Sunday.

Standing pat — unusually — were the New York Yankees, content to try and catch Boston in the AL East with a rotation that has reclamation projects Bartolo Colon and Freddy Garcia at the back end. Boston acquired Erik Bedard from Seattle.

The Indians completed their Saturday night deal with Colorado for Jimenez about a half-hour before the 2 p.m. MDT deadline, after waiting for results of the pitcher's physical.

After a record 18 straight losing seasons, the Pirates are in the thick of it in the NL Central race, and they showed they're serious in dealing for San Diego outfielder Ryan Ludwick — a day after acquiring Baltimore first baseman Derrek Lee.

The Diamondbacks added Oakland submariner Brad Ziegler, a reliever.

Burress

in the Giants' upset of the unbeaten New England Patriots in the 2008 Super Bowl, before his career derailed after he accidentally shot himself in a New York nightclub later that year.

"When something's taken away from you that you love, you know you love it more," he said. "You learn that playing in this business is definitely a privilege. I definitely miss being away from the game and the guys and being able to compete every Sunday with the best athletes in the world."

Now, the Jets are hoping Burress can revive his career the way Michael Vick did with the Eagles.

Vick served 18 months in prison for his involvement in a dogfighting ring before returning to football in 2009. He was eased back into things by the Eagles before taking over as the starting quarterback last year and capping a terrific season by being selected as the AP's Comeback Player of the Year.

In other NFL news Sunday:

• Olin Kreutz's 13-year run with the Chicago Bears ended Saturday on a bitter note, with his agent claiming the team did not negotiate in good faith while indicating general manager Jerry Angelo and coach Lovie Smith were not on the same page.

• Arizona signed two-time All-Pro tight end Todd Heap and traded running back Tim Hightower to the Washington Redskins for 14-year NFL defensive lineman Vonnie Holaday and an undisclosed draft pick. The team also re-signed free agent guard Deuce Lutui after he failed a physical with the Cincinnati Bengals.

• Linebacker Nick Barnett agreed to a three-year, $12 million contract with the Buffalo Bills. The deal came two days after Barnett was released by the Green Bay Packers.

• Veteran running back Willis McGahee signed with Denver, presumably to complement incumbent starter Knowshon Moreno with his powerful style. New coach John Fox wants to lean heavily on the running game after the Broncos were pass-heavy in 2010 under Josh McDaniels.

• Former University of Idaho player JoJo Dickson was released by Jacksonville days after signing as a rookie free agent. The Jaguars needed to clear a roster space for veteran punter Matt Turk.

Menard

Menard's only victory was in 2006 in the second-tier Nationwide Series.

Richard Childress was another car owner willing to cash the checks from the Menard's chain, and he signed both driver and sponsor for this season. But Richard Childress Racing was on an upswing, and the owner believed his new driver just needed a competitive car to prove his worth.

Although Sunday was Menard's first win, he and crew chief Slugger Labbe had been steadily improving all season and his four top-five finishes this season double the amount he had in his first four seasons in Cup.

"I caught a lot of flak back early last year when we decided to (hire Menard)," Childress said. "I've been watching Paul ever since he won the Nationwide race. He doesn't tear equipment up. He's consistent. He's really good. Got a cool head on him in all situations. I knew if the right situation come along, we'd win."

It came Sunday in a race that was at first dominated by drivers with the strongest cars. But when debris cautions jumbled up the pit cycles, the Brickyard 400 turned into a race of pure strategy.

Menard and his RCR team played it brilliantly, as crew chief Slugger Labbe had Menard give the lead up to defending race winner Jamie McMurray in an effort to save fuel. Certain McMurray didn't have enough gas to make it to the finish, Labbe then turned his attention to Jeff Gordon, who fell 12 seconds behind after a late fuel stop but was slicing his way through the field.

Labbe gave Menard the green light with just over three laps to go.

He passed McMurray for the lead, and was silent as he circled the track with Labbe giving constant updates on Gordon's lap times. Gordon ran out of time, and Menard cruised to his first career victory in his 167th career start.

Seahawks

But throughout his explanation, Carroll never gave a clear reason as to why the decision was made to part with Tatupu.

"It was a few days of talking and really good conversations and putting things in perspective and recognizing that it's going to take time to figure it out and see what is best. I love Lofa as a football player and like him on our football team. I told him that, I was clear about that. He's done a tremendous job and he's still a terrific football player," Carroll said. "But under the circumstances right now it was just the right thing to do to let him go ahead and hit it and see where he goes from there."

He leaves after anchoring the middle of Seattle's defense for most of six seasons, including three Pro Bowl appearances and a major hand in taking the Seahawks to their only Super Bowl appearance following his rookie season in 2005.

It certainly wasn't a simple decision for Carroll or easy for linebackers coach Ken Norton Jr.

Tatupu played for Carroll and Norton at USC and Carroll raved about the importance of having Tatupu on his defense from the second he arrived back in the NFL with the Seahawks.

But ultimately the decision was made to move on without the Seahawks defensive captain from every season since the 2005 playoff run that ended with Seattle's loss to Pittsburgh in the Super Bowl. Carroll said the decision was made so early in training camp in part to give Tatupu options in free agency.

"It's always business," Carroll said. "There is always business involved in every decision you make and there is no decision in personnel one way or another that isn't affected in that regard."

But the 28-year-old Tatupu has struggled with injuries the past few seasons and seen a decline in production. He missed most of 2009 after tearing a pectoral muscle. Last season he played in all 16 games, but his 88 tackles were the lowest of his career in a full season and he needed surgery on both knees in the offseason. Tatupu's prime was his first few seasons when he recorded more than 100 tackles and went to the Pro Bowl each year between 2005-07.

Sewing Cabinet

Sewing is a lot like woodworking. Both require time, patience and a certain amount of skill, and both result in the satisfaction that comes from transforming raw material into something beautiful and useful. This easy-to-build sewing cabinet is the perfect way for woodworkers to do something nice for the sewing enthusiast in the family.

Made from birch (other woods may be substituted), the project measures 36 inches long by 20 inches wide by 31 inches tall when closed. The open tabletop is 72 inches long by 20 inches wide and casters make it easy to move sewing projects out of sight without putting everything away.

Sewing Cabinet plan (No. 887) . . $9.95

DEAR ABBY: My husband, "Vinny," and I were growing apart after 10 years of marriage. It was both our faults. Vinny reconnected with a woman at his class reunion and started an inappropriate, secret relationship with her.

I discovered some of their emails and saw they had been texting numerous times a day. When I "busted" Vinny, he denied everything until I showed him the proof of what I knew. We have had issues in the past with him not being honest, but this was the straw that broke the camel's back.

We have told our children that we have decided to divorce. It was the most difficult decision I have ever made. We are still living in the same house and haven't told many people what happened.

I don't want anyone thinking I strayed or that I was responsible for this. Would it be inappropriate for me to say why I'm divorcing him? I don't want to take his feelings into consideration after what he did. My neighbors are gossiping — it's like ...

WISTERIA LANE

DEAR WISTERIA LANE:

Although you don't want to take Vinny's feelings into consideration, please consider the feelings of your children. The most dignified way to deal with this would be to take the high road and say that the decision to divorce was mutual and keep the details to yourself. Please consider it.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I am writing regarding the letter you printed June 14, about saluting the U.S. flag. You should be aware that the Flag Code that you referenced in your reply was amended by Congress a couple of years ago and includes changes of which all Americans should be made aware.

One of them is that military veterans, as civilians who are no longer in uniform, may choose to salute the flag with the military "hand to the forehead" salute as they did while in the service.

All other persons should face the flag and stand at attention with their right hand over the heart, or if applicable, should remove their headdress with their right hand and hold it at the left shoulder, the hand being over the heart. Citizens of other countries should stand at attention. All conduct toward the flag in a moving column should be rendered at the moment the flag passes. This includes the playing of the national anthem.

— ANDY ANDERSON KNOXVILLE, TENN.

DEAR ANDY: Thank you and thanks to the many readers who wrote to inform me that my copy of the Flag Code was outdated. I was unaware that it had been amended and used the one that was in my files for reference. Mea culpa!

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have dinner with friends a couple of times a month. The wife likes to kiss and hug me. She even patted me on the behind once. This makes me very uncomfortable.

I enjoy being affectionate with my children, grandchildren and my husband, but I do not like being touched by women. What should I do about this?

— HANDS OFF IN HOLLISTER, CALIF.

DEAR HANDS OFF: For heaven's sake, speak up and tell the woman that you are uncomfortable about being touched by other women. That way she'll know it isn't personal. I'm sure she will respect your boundaries once you explain them to her.

IF AUGUST 1 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: The month ahead gives you breathing space to settle into a contented routine while you enjoy some of the benefits of life that you have earned. By October, you are ready to compete on the career or financial stage and are a bit sharper than usual in any commercial enterprise. Avoid making important decisions in November when business judgment is temporarily out of kilter. After the first of the year, the most important ambitions can be realized, so interview for a new position or put in for a promotion. If you are single, March and April could be good months for romance.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A trip to Fantasy Island might be on your calendar. It is a good time to dream about romance and riches, but not a good time to gamble with money. If you absolutely must spend, get a second opinion.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Promises, promises. You feel so optimistic and confident that you are ready to tackle anything, even if you don't have the time or expertise to follow through. Casual assurances cannot be relied upon.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Stop to smell the roses. You can take a long lunch break today without fear of criticism. You may be challenged to deal with someone who suffers from an exaggerated sense of importance.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You will work hard today to make your vision of the future become a reality. You might have great faith in your ability to overcome all obstacles and are willing to gamble your money to prove it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): It is better to conquer yourself than to win a thousand battles. You can relax and enjoy feeling good about yourself in the days ahead, but it might be wise to not let all self discipline slip away from your grasp.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Impressive ideas can benefit from a strong dose of enthusiasm. Much can be accomplished if you join with an avid admirer who can act as a sounding board and offers stalwart encouragement.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Make your dreams a reality by putting some muscle into it. You may be forced to delegate a job or ask for a favor in order to get something started. What counts is the ability to light the flame of enthusiasm.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Remind them that Rome wasn't built in a day. You can handle everything on your work list if you multitask. You could become impatient with sweeping statements and conclusion-jumping comrades.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): The proof is in the pudding. You can make promises and accept assurances, but results are what really count. Give others a sample of your track record to earn confidence and money.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Gang up on problems. Putting your know-how to work for a good cause may be an admirable use of your talents. Getting involved in community activities or socializing in group settings is possible.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Others might overestimate abilities and promise more than can be delivered. There is a tendency to go overboard, so tighten purse strings and honor agreements. Social interchanges could add some zing.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Make the most of it. There is extra time on your hands. You have the vibrant energy to make your dreams a reality and the helpful hands of others are there to catch you if you begin to slip.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"In war, whichever side may call itself the victor, there are no winners, but all are losers."

— Neville Chamberlain

Until now, it has not been easy to find Web sites that discuss bridge at a high level. You can follow my column and other bridge blogs at bridgeblogging.com. But two new sites, bridgetopics.com for news and bridgewinners.com for problems and discussions, now give everyone more opportunities to learn about the game. Here is a problem deal posed by Steve Weinstein on bridgewinners; focus solely on the East and North hands.

Against four hearts, partner leads the diamond seven. You play the 10, and declarer wins with the queen. He then leads a heart to dummy's eight. What now?

If you won the heart with your jack and played a spade or a diamond back, you missed the point of the deal! There are two basic hand-types your partner could hold where your play is critical. He could have the spade ace and a doubleton diamond (as in today's deal, when declarer's spade loser could go away on dummy's clubs unless partner cashes the ace), or he could have a singleton diamond and no spade ace — when the diamond ruff might get away unless you play a diamond.

Both of these hands might be consistent with the bidding. But you can cover both bases, as long as you win the heart with the king at trick two and play back a diamond. Although your partner cannot ruff this trick, declarer will surely just play a second heart rather than fool around with the club finesse, so you get your second bite at the apple.

ANSWER: This auction strongly suggests that your partner has the clubs under control, but he is not demanding a club lead. Do you have a sensible alternative? Here, your chunky diamonds are a good practical choice. I would lead a low one, not the 10.
