Every second, 300 gallons of water vanish into a sinkhole beneath the lower Blue Lakes. Levels are lower than they should be, prompting the city of Twin Falls to search for clues that will track and stabilize the area without cutting off those who lay claim to the water.

About 30 feet below the pristine lower Blue Lakes water, where he should still be somewhat visible from the surface, Patrick Trabert couldn't see a foot in front of him.

about the size of a Mini Cooper. That hole is sucking down 40 cubic feet of water — almost 300 gallons — per second, enough to fill an Olympic-sized swimming pool every 36 minutes.

The city of Twin Falls would like to cut that flow, but others may rely on that water for their own use.

Trabert, diving with his father, city staff engineer Mike Trabert, is working with Brockway Engineering to see how that hole and other cracks in the lake affect water levels — and to see if they can be restricted to keep Twin Falls in compliance with legal agreements without hurting downriver water rights holders.

It all goes back to the thirst of thousands of Twin Falls residents and lawns above the canyon. When the city started pumping water at the Blue Lakes site in the mid-1990s, it pledged to not dramatically

City of Bellevue Turns to Hailey Police for Law Enforcement

BY BRADLEY GUIRE
bguire@magicvalley.com

This fall, the Bellevue Marshals' chain of command will be entirely different.

The Blaine County town has paid its sheriff's office to enforce the laws for the past four years. But Bellevue leaders are trading that for a new agreement with the neighboring Hailey Police Department.

City councils from both cities have approved a service proposal from the Hailey police, and a contract should be signed soon, said Bellevue Mayor Chris Koch.

Some of the details to be worked out involve making the change as smooth as possible, said Hailey Police Chief Jeff Gunter.

"They'll have the same coverage they had prior," he said.

The contract calls for service to change over on Oct. 1.

Koch said city leaders were pleased with the service Blaine County provided. But with that contract up this fiscal year, they wanted to shop around for a more cost-efficient package.

State, Other Groups Split over Poultry Water Laws

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI

After hosting their final public meeting, state regulators and outside groups are still a long way from agreeing on regulating how large-scale poultry operations interact with the groundwater supply.

The Idaho State Department of Agriculture has until the end of the month to hand over a draft of rules to legislative committees.

In the spring, the Legislature transferred inspection and regulation authority over poultry operations to ISDA from the Idaho Department of Environmental Quality. On Monday, ISDA hosted its final public meeting for those interested in submitting proposals.

Agency representatives devoted the majority of the time to discussing regulations to protect Idaho's groundwater. Some groups want requirements more stringent than what large beef and dairy facilities are held to, citing a chance to firm up such protections while the poultry industry is young.

"At this point, there is no consensus on groundwater regulation," said John Bilderback, section manager for the ISDA dairy and confined-animal feeding operations bureau. "The only agreement we have is that we may regulate production wells, which the dairy and beef farms do already."

Representatives from the Idaho Conservation League and Humane Society are pushing for more rules.

"We have serious groundwater issues now," said Courtney Washburn, community conservation director for

AMERICAN ECONOMY: JUST HOW BAD IS IT?

WASHINGTON • Shoppers won't shop. Companies won't hire. The government won't spend on economic stimulus — it's cutting instead. And the Federal Reserve is reluctant to do anything more.

Without much to invigorate growth, the economy may be in danger of slipping into a stupor like the one Japan has failed to shake off for more than a decade. And Wall Street is spooked.

The Dow Jones industrial average Wednesday barely broke an eight-day losing streak, finishing up about 30 points. A nine-day losing streak would have been the Dow's first since February 1978.

Even with the gain, the Dow has fallen 828 points, or 6.5 percent, over the past nine trading days. Investors didn't even pause to celebrate the resolution over the weekend of a dangerous debt standoff in Washington.

Stunned by news last week that the economy barely grew in the first half of 2011, economists are lowering their forecasts for the full year and

Declo Men Charged With Burglary Found Not Guilty

BY EMILY KATSEANES
For the Times-News

BURLEY • Two Declo men charged with felony burglary were found not guilty Wednesday after a day and a half of testimony and just 40 minutes of jury deliberation.

The charges against brothers Bret Charles Kelsey, 51, and Ronald John Kelsey, 49, stem from a Dec. 14 incident when the Kelseys were accused of taking things out of a house foreclosed on by First Federal Savings Bank.

Both Deputy Prosecutor Blaine Cannon and defense attorney Allen Browning centered their arguments around whether the Kelseys knowingly committed the felonies or whether they believed that they had permission to be in the house.

The brothers testified that Leesa Woodbury, Ronald Kelsey's girlfriend, had asked them to retrieve some children's toys and clothes from a house at 450 East 152 South in Cassia County. Though Woodbury had lived in the house, which belonged to her ex-husband Darin Woodbury, it had been vacant for about a year following a fire and had been foreclosed on by First Federal Savings Bank. Both brothers testified that they believed the house still belonged to Leesa Woodbury when they entered it by unscrewing plywood that had been placed over the entryways.

When Cassia County sheriff's deputies responded to the call, they found rolls of copper wiring in the basement that Ronald Kelsey had allegedly pulled from the ceiling. Ronald Kelsey testified that he was also preparing to take the house's water heater, pressure tank and furnace, as he believed the house was going to be demolished.

"It wasn't a salvageable value," he said. "It was just stuff we were going to store to see if we could use it someday."

The brothers also testified that there was no signage indicating that neither Woodbury still owned the house and that it instead belonged to the bank.

"I would have been surprised knowing about that one, I didn't know it was going under foreclosure," Bret Kelsey said.

In closing arguments, Browning highlighted the brothers' cooperation with police and Summit Restoration employees, who were re-covering the roof with a tarp and received help from the Kelseys.

"The entire case here does rest on criminal intent," he said. "They're not trying to hide what they're doing. They're wide open."

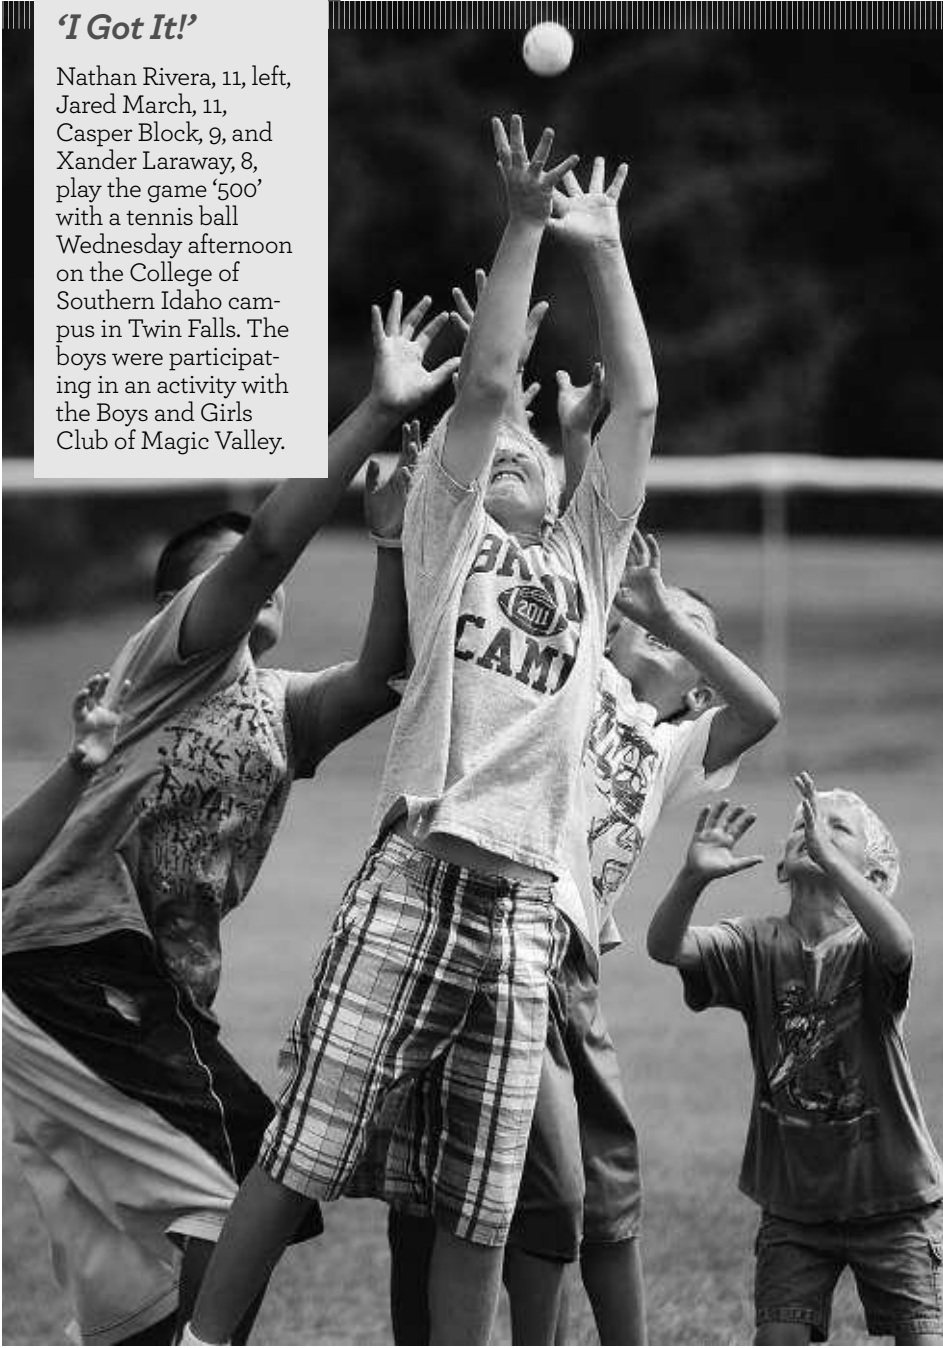

As the "not guilty" verdict was read, Bret Kelsey clapped his hands together happily.

"I want to run up and down Main Street," he said after court recessed. His brother, though not lacing up his running shoes, was also pleased.

"I'm glad they came to the right decision," Ronald Kelsey said. "We were innocent. I don't know what else to say."

ISP Responds to 4-Vehicle Crash Near Kimberly

TIMES-NEWS

A four-vehicle crash temporarily closed Red Cap Corner, the intersection of three roads near Kimberly, on Tuesday afternoon.

According to Idaho State Police, Jonathan Dill, 32, of Boise, was traveling north at the intersection of U.S. Highway 30, State Highway 50 and 3500 East in a 2000 Freightliner, as was Susan Fowler, 49, of Rupert, who was driving a 2005 Dodge Caravan. Both failed to yield to oncoming traffic as they turned west onto U.S. Highway 30, causing the crash.

Involved in the crash were Larry Bowman, 54, of Twin Falls, driving a 2002 Mazda pickup truck; John Perkins, 79, and Gloria Perkins, 54, both of Kaysville, Utah, driving a 2006 Chevrolet Uplander; and Michael Schilz, 33, of Eden, driving a 1985 Peterbuilt hauling three flatbed trailers loaded with hay.

The Freightliner was not actually hit, but just slowed traffic, according to ISP.

Emergency responders were dispatched around 4 p.m.

The Perkinses were transported by ground ambulance to St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center in Twin Falls. All involved were wearing seat belts, and alcohol was not a factor in the crash. The intersection was closed for two hours.

Wendell Library Dispute Culminates in Resignations

BY EMILY KATSEANES
For the Times-News

Frustrations with the Wendell Library Board have devolved from citizen complaints at City Council meetings to the resignation of the library staff.

Elaine Dalton, library director, and Ashley Bokma, a library employee, resigned Friday. The third employee, Karlee Brown, turned in her keys on Tuesday morning, prompting the library to close for two days.

Both Brown and Bokma said their resignations were in support of Dalton, who had been having conflicts with the board since February.

"I told her, if she simply couldn't work with the board president, 'When you leave, I leave,'" Brown said. "Elaine (Dalton) did many, many things and she didn't get very much credit."

Dalton has been on vacation since Friday and did not return calls.

Mayor Brad Christopherson said the closure of the library over the past two days has been felt throughout Wendell.

"It's just bad for the community," he said. "I've sat there working for the past couple of days and seen a variety of people come in to ask why it's closed."

Board president Jan Gooding and board member Wilma Butigan could not be reached this week for comment.

Both Bokma and Brown hope the library reopens soon with a new director at the helm.

"I just hope that a new librarian will show up that will hope to do as good a job as Elaine (Dalton)," Bokma said. "I don't know who will take over, but no one will do as good a job as Elaine."

A special meeting of the Wendell Library Board will take place at City Hall today at 1 p.m.

A Twin Falls dairy operator has been sentenced to 60 days in jail and a $12,000 fine for violating the Clean Water Act.

On March 23, a jury found Mike Vierstra, 53, guilty of negligent discharge of a pollutant in federally owned water without a permit. Sentenced Wednesday, he also received three years of probation.

Vierstra is the operator of a 1,200-cow dairy southwest of Twin Falls.

In 2009, the Idaho State Department of Agriculture received reports about wastewater discharges from Vierstra's dairy. ISDA inspectors tracked the waste to an open pipe on Vierstra's property, according to a press release from the U.S. Attorney for the District of Idaho and the Environmental Protection Agency.

The case was investigated by the EPA's Environmental Criminal Division.

"Defendant Vierstra failed time and time again to comply with the law," said Tyler Amon, the division's special agent in charge in Seattle, in the release. "His jury conviction and today's sentence demonstrates that there are profound consequences for polluting our nation's waters."

SOUTH WENDELL EXIT TO CLOSE FOR PAVING

TIMES-NEWS

Eastbound on- and off-ramps of the Interstate 84 Wendell interchange at Exit 157 will close for about a week starting Friday for work related to the full-width rehabilitation of I-84.

The Idaho Transportation Department announced that

Boise-based Western Construction Inc. crews will pulverize and rehabilitate the exit ramps as part of the $11.3 million project to rehabilitate 8 miles of interstate between Wendell and Tuttle. Work is expected to be fully completed by September.

Eastbound traffic should use the Wendell interchange at Exit 155 to enter and exit the nearby areas of Gooding County during work. Exit 157 will remain open to westbound traffic, but will be closed for similar work in the coming weeks.

recalculating the odds that the economy will slide back into recession.

Kurt Karl, chief U.S. economist at Swiss Re, has cut his 2011 forecast for growth this year to 1.8 percent from 2.6 percent. And he has bumped up the likelihood of another recession to 20 percent from 15 percent.

“The last week has made it much more likely that corporate profit estimates will be revised lower,” said Nick Kalivas, a vice president of financial research at MF Global.

The stocks that have fallen the furthest have been those of companies that fare best in economic expansions. Industrial companies like Caterpillar and Boeing, energy companies like Exxon Mobil and Chevron, and retailers like Amazon and Coach have all fallen by more than the broader stock market.

Investors have pushed government bond yields to their lowest level of the year. The 10-year Treasury note now yields 2.6 percent. Bond yields typically fall when the economy is weak because nervous investors view bonds as a safe place to park their money, and there’s less chance that inflation will erode their value.

The economy started sputtering early in the year. Economists at first thought the slowdown would be temporary, the result of a short-term rise in gasoline prices and an earthquake in Japan that disrupted shipments of auto parts and electronics.

But the weakness persisted. And it worsened as a political fight over debt and deficits raised the risk that the U.S. government would not be able to pay all its bills.

“It now seems fairly clear that those shocks have done a lot more damage than we expected,” says Leo Abruzzese, global forecasting director for the Economist Intelligence Unit. “They seem to have had a devastating effect on confidence.”

After the government reported that the economy grew at an annual pace of 0.4 percent in the first quarter and 1.3 percent in the second, Abruzzese is cutting his estimate for 2011 growth from 2.4 percent to less than 2 percent.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

A trader works on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange on Wednesday, in New York. With no clear sign of what will invigorate growth, there is mounting fear on Wall Street that the U.S. risks sliding into a long-term economic coma.

It’s hard to see anything lifting growth to the 2.5 percent needed to keep unemployment from rising, let alone the 5 percent needed to bring the rate down significantly from June’s 9.2 percent.

“Sales are what keeps the market moving higher, and there’s not much demand when there’s only 0.4 percent growth,” said Andrew Goldberg, U.S. market strategist at JP Morgan Funds.

When the economy grows less than 2 percent over a 12-month period, it risks slipping into recession, says Mark Vitner, senior economist at Wells Fargo Securities. Over the most recent such period, the economy grew just 1.6 percent.

Few economists are predicting another recession, despite a series of weak economic reports. Gasoline prices have come down from their high of almost $4 a gallon in May. And Japanese factories are starting to crank up again after the March earthquake.

At the heart of the economy’s problems are the debts that consumers built up during the early and mid-2000s. Many borrowed against the equity in their homes, convinced that house prices would rise forever.

When housing prices collapsed, people were left owing more than their homes were worth. Others charged up their credit cards. Now it’s payback time, and Americans are spending less or spending cautiously as they slash their debts.

Companies are reluctant to hire until they’re convinced enough customers are ready to buy their products or services. Corporate profits are booming, though, because companies laid off millions of workers, learned to operate more efficiently with smaller staffs and expanded in growing markets overseas.

“If companies were inclined to hire, they could,” Abruzzese says.

So companies are waiting for consumers to spend, and consumers are waiting for companies to hire them or offer generous pay raises and job security. It’s a tough cycle to break.

Mike Trabert and his son, Patrick Trabert, dive into the lower Blue Lakes on Monday in Twin Falls. In an effort to track where water is draining from Blue Lakes, the two placed dye into a crack in the bottom of the lake that serves as the city of Twin Falls’ water storage.

impact the water level in the lake owned by the Blue Lakes Country Club.

“When we started pumping, unknown to everyone, we dropped the lake level way down and caused a bit of excitement at the country club,” Mike Trabert said. He added later: “We’re just trying to hold to what we said we’re going to do.”

Hence the six pounds of red dye dumped by the Traberts on Tuesday. They wanted to confirm the results of a study done in the ’90s to track where the water goes when it is sucked out of the lake. Today, they plan to conduct a similar experiment on a recently discovered crack that is also draining the lake.

Though the crack is a mystery, the hole is believed to drain into Alpheus Creek, which feeds a trout farm further on. That leads to the city’s second concern — plugging the hole would help make up for Twin Falls’ pumping, but if that act infringes on the trout farm’s water right it could lead to even greater issues.

The Traberts say the pull of the hole starts at a certain threshold: they once watched a crawdad disappear when it moved just a little too close. When some of the dye floated to the surface and obscured the younger Trabert’s vision, it floated over the hole and disappeared in mere moments.

“It was pretty ominous,” a mostly submerged Patrick Trabert yelled to project supervisor Charles E. Brockway, of Brockway Engineering, who watched the work from shore.

Brockway posted dye monitors at every place the lake might drain: the two springs that feed into Alpheus Creek and the creek-fed canal that flows to the trout farm. They also posted dye-absorbing packets in the Snake River. Every bit of information will help in the search for a long-term fix.

“Water supply is important to the city and the lake is important to the country club and we just want to preserve the aesthetics of it,” Brockway said.

Time for a ‘Grand Bargain’ on Restoring Salmon Runs?

In his federal deficit-reduction initiative, U.S. Sen Mike Crapo, R-Idaho, proposed that all options be considered. That everything-is-on-the-table approach is the only way to solve a political impasse that, like salmon restoration, seems intractable.

It's 555 miles from U.S. District James Redden's Portland, Ore., courtroom to Twin Falls, but Magic Valley waters users hang on his every word.

On Tuesday, Redden ruled in favor of environmentalists who say the Obama administration's plan to manage Columbia Basin dams doesn't go far enough to revive and protect Northwest salmon runs.

But the judge didn't hand down the “train wreck” of painful measures they had hoped would force the Pacific Northwest to accept the removal of four dams on the lower Snake River in Washington.

Still, the 82-year-old jurist once again refused to take dam breaching off the table.

Redden retained jurisdiction over the case until the federal government writes a new plan with a 2014 deadline. He told federal fisheries officials he doubted they could write a plan that meets the federal Endangered Species Act without either dam removal or increasing flows from federal reservoirs that produce power and irrigate crops in Idaho.

But Redden said any water used for salmon would have to be obtained under the law, and that's good news for Idaho water users. An agreement between the state of Idaho and the Nez Perce Tribe in 2005 was approved by Congress and limits how much water can be taken from southern Idaho for fish.

Until there's some resolution to the three decade-long, $8 billion quest to restore the fish that are a symbol of the Northwest's wild character, the river-connected economy — including Idaho farmers — remains under a cloud of uncertainty.

The best suggestion we've heard comes for U.S. Sen. Mike Crapo, R-Idaho. Crapo has proposed a new forum for talks that would leave all options on the table, including dam removal.

Editorially, this newspaper has long opposed the breaching of Lower Granite, Little Goose, Lower Monumental and Ice Harbor dams, but if that's what it takes to achieve a comprehensive solution it's worth considering.

much, taking in too little, and borrowing more.

The big spending increases go for health care and payments to the elderly and others in need of support. So, bringing revenue and expenditures into balance isn't just a matter of closing down a few bridges to nowhere or cutting a new fighter the Pentagon wants; it requires fundamentally restructuring our basic support for the retired and the ill.

The extremist Republicans in the House want no tax increases. But they are not willing to make, and find no support for, the drastic spending cuts required by a revenue freeze. It's no accident that the budget proposals they put forward never add up.

What's at issue is whether we can govern ourselves. If we run up our national debt, like Greece, until it overwhelms us, people who lend to us will charge much higher interest rates, and then some day they will not lend to us. Imagine a meeting of the Chinese politburo where they debate what kind of austerity measures to demand in return for a U.S. bailout.

The Republican extremists in the House are bringing us to the brink of disaster with their rigid ideology and have diddled with the numbers to obscure the cost and consequences of their untested ideas. But they have been right on one important point: The deficit must be addressed. One other consistent point of view has been present in this debate. New York Times columnist Paul Krugman and others have argued that the biggest economic problem we face is unemployment, and that just slashing spending will create more unemployment, reduce government revenue, and set us back rather than move us forward.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Thank you TFPD

A couple of years ago, I wrote a letter to the editor regarding my frustrations with the Twin Falls Police Department. Right after the letter was published, a police department representative came to talk with my family and me, and I also received a phone call from the sheriff. My issues were discussed and addressed one by one.

As of this writing, the police dispatchers pretty much know me on a first-name basis. It never ceases to amaze me how professional our police department responds. No matter how many times I call to report incidents, whether big or small (mostly small), their response is prompt. One of the officers even had the unpleasant job this past year of having to inform us of our daughter's accident and death.

I jumped the gun a couple of years ago in my frustration and admit that our police force is one of the best I've seen. Thank you for doing a thankless job.

Rupert Kiwanis Club

The Rupert Kiwanis Club would like to thank those members that made our Fourth of July food booth such a success. We would like to especially thank McCain Foods USA for the generous donation of French fries and The Blue Room for the use of its cooler.

You might wonder what chain of events starts when you order that hamburger. Well, the proceeds of our food booth and our annual golf scramble are distributed throughout our community. In 2010/11, the Rupert Kiwanis Club provided four college scholarships to Minico graduates, supported the 4H/FFA livestock sales in Minidoka and Cassia counties (then processed and donated the meat to local charitable organizations), supported Key, Builders and K-Kids clubs in every school in the Minidoka School District, helped fund the Christmas Council, Christmas Lighting Committee, Caring and Sharing Christmas Tree Festival, the Mini-Cassia Women's Shelter, the Idaho Youth Ranch, Crafton Music Camp and many, many others. In all, more than $12,000 was distributed back into the Mini-Cassia Community by you supporting the Rupert Kiwanis Club.

But that's not all; The Rupert Kiwanis members also helped with Minico's graduation, clean-up of the seniors' party, regularly cleaned a section of highway between Rupert and Acequia, Painted the Women's Shelter, helped with Minico track meets, delivered trees for the Caring and Sharing Christmas Tree Festival, planted flowers on the Rupert Square and the list goes on and on. The Rupert Kiwanis Club is definitely a "service" organization.

Again, thank you to all that help us help our community.

Where Credit is Due

I was happy to see the small follow-up in your Sunday, July 24, Sports section about the National High School Finals Rodeo in Gillette, Wyo. I was, however, disappointed with the final comment: "more than a second behind the leader."

I think your staff writer could just as easily stated that Jordan LaRoque was one of only three Idahoans to even make the second go-round. Or that Jordan LaRoque finished the second go-round only four places from making the third go-round. Or that Jordan LaRoque was less than one-third of one second from advancing to the third go-round. Any of the above comments would have complimented Jordan's family on their sacrifice, their hard work, their persistence and their investment. Any of the above would have complimented Jordan herself on her work ethic, her sacrifices, her persistence and her strong showing as a proud, rodeoing Idahoan.

Jordan is a fine student and an exceptional young lady. Let's give our young athletes some credit next time, shall we?

Extreme Mark-ups

Recently, I had an echocardiogram and my insurance was billed almost $1,300. Then the next week, I saw an ad in your paper for several heart/vascular tests being offered at a health fair for $179. Not just one test, but all of them!

Now, either the tests offered at the health fair aren't real, or the mark-up because of Medicare is completely bogus, or some sort of shell game is going on in regard to health costs.

It seems that this would be a good subject for your journalists to look into.

IDAHO MAN WAIVES HEARING IN WIFE'S DEATH

POCATELLO (AP) • Defense attorneys for a Pocatello man charged with murder in connection with his estranged wife's death say they've reached a plea agreement with prosecutors.

Michael Lane Sparks was arrested in May on a charge of first-degree murder in the death of 41-year-old Judith Rachel Johnson. Police said Johnson was beaten with a rifle and a baseball bat.

Sparks was scheduled for a preliminary hearing on Tuesday, but the Idaho State Journal reports that at the proceeding Sparks' public defenders said a plea agreement was reached.

Sparks will now be arraigned in district court, and that judge will decide whether to accept the terms of the plea agreement.

Missing Meridian Couple Spotted at Cascade Flea Market

MERIDIAN (AP) • Police in Meridian say they have credible information that a missing couple was spotted at a flea market in Cascade over the weekend.

Family members last saw Charles and Barbara Rigg of Meridian on Friday, but someone reports seeing them and their white schnauzer Sassy at a flea market in Cascade at 3 p.m. Saturday. Police are urging the public to be on the lookout for the couple or their dark green 2001 Dodge Dakota bearing Idaho handicapped license VNAM. Anyone with information should contact police.

Family members reported them missing when they did not show up for a picnic as planned on Saturday. Investigators have found no signs of foul play at their house. He is 81 and left his heart medication behind. She is 77.

NEW SITE FOR NORTH IDAHO ASPHALT PLANT SPURS CONCERNS

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) • A plan to build an asphalt plant in north Idaho is raising some familiar concerns about health and public safety from residents living near the proposed site.

Coeur d'Alene Paving is seeking permission to rezone 116 acres west of Post Falls as a potential site to relocate its asphalt batch plant.

The Coeur d'Alene Press reports the Kootenai County Commission is scheduled to hold a hearing

Thursday on the company's request to change zoning from agriculture to mining.

But commissioners could get plenty of testimony from residents.

Post Falls resident Hayley Lake tells the Press concerns about the plan are not being heard.

Lake says residents are worried about added exposure to fumes, increased traffic and noise and more changes to the once wide-open nature of the area.

Coeur d'Alene Leaders Approve Levee Plan

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) • City leaders in Coeur d'Alene are moving forward with a plan to thin vegetation and take other steps to deal with threats to the earthen levee built to contain high water.

The City Council voted Tuesday to approve an action plan that also lets city staff pursue options for saving some of the bigger trees along the levee.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has asked city officials to cut down as many as 500 pine trees blamed for weakening the dike.

The Coeur d'Alene Press reports city officials could start by sealing cracks in the concrete wall and fixing erosion.

Date Set for Road Rage Trial

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) • A northern Idaho man whose conviction of second-degree murder was overturned will stand trial again on the charge this month.

The Coeur d'Alene Press reports that 50-year-old Jonathan W. Ellington's three-week jury trial is expected to start Aug. 29 in front of 1st District Judge John Luster. Ellington, of Hayden, was convicted in August 2006 after prosecutors said he was involved in a road-rage incident that turned deadly when 41-year-old Vonette Lee Larsen was run over.

Earlier this year, an Idaho Supreme Court granted him a new trial. The high court cited prosecutorial misconduct and the likelihood that an Idaho State Police officer committed perjury in its ruling.

Idaho Appellate Court Overturns Meth Conviction

BY REBECCA BOONE
Associated Press

BOISE • The state's appellate court has thrown out the drug conviction of a Canyon County man after finding the prosecutor in the case made impermissible comments during his closing arguments.

In a unanimous ruling Wednesday, the Idaho Court of Appeals said Aniceto Betancourt IV should be given a new trial on the possession of a controlled substance charge because the prosecutor in the case made comments about his refusal to consent to a search of his vehicle.

According to the ruling, Betancourt was stopped by an officer because the vehicle he was in didn't have a front license plate. When the officer asked Betancourt where he had been and where he was headed, Betancourt told him that he'd been sleeping in the passenger's seat of the vehicle when he heard gun shots, jumped into the driver's seat and drove away, according to the ruling.

Betancourt also said he was carrying a concealed weapon for which he had a permit, and when the officer asked if he could get the weapon from the vehicle, Betancourt refused, saying he wanted to protect his civil rights and did not consent to a vehicle search.

The officer said he smelled alcohol on Betancourt's breath and arrested him on suspicion of drunken driving, and after his arrest, Betancourt's vehicle was searched. The officer said they found methamphetamine under the passenger's seat and Betancourt later tested positive for methamphetamine.

During the trial, the officer testified that after cooperating initially, Betancourt refused to answer further questions without a lawyer present. Jurors were also shown portions of a video of the traffic stop, including a segment that included Betancourt telling the officer he couldn't look in the vehicle. During closing arguments, the prosecutor reminded the jurors of the video and asked them to take note of the fact that Betancourt didn't want officers to search his vehicle.

That was improper, the appellate court found — Betancourt was simply invoking his Fourth Amendment right to be free from unreasonable searches and seizures, and his decision to do so shouldn't be used to imply guilt.

"While our system of criminal justice is adversarial in nature, and the prosecutor is expected to be diligent and leave no stone unturned, he or she is nevertheless expected and required to be fair," Judge John Melanson wrote for the court. "However, in reviewing allegations of prosecutorial misconduct we must keep in mind the realities of trial."

In fact, the appellate court found, the state's strongest evidence that Betancourt knew there was methamphetamine in the vehicle may have been his refusal to allow a search.

"As a result, we cannot conclude beyond a reasonable doubt that the prosecutor's impermissible comments regarding Betancourt's invocation of his Fourth Amendment rights did not contribute to the jury's verdict," Melanson wrote.

A Texas-Sized Drought

The remains of a carp is seen on the lake dried out lake bed of O.C. Fisher Lake Wednesday, in San Angelo, Texas. A bacteria called Chromatiaceae has turned the 1-to-2 acres of lake water remaining the color red. A combination of the long periods of 100-plus-degree days and the lack of rain in the drought-stricken region has dried up the lake that once spanned over 5,400 acres. See N3 for full story.

REPORT: COLLISION OF TWO MOONS MAY HAVE CREATED LUNAR BULGES ON ONE SIDE

BY AMINA KHAN
Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES • Once upon a time, the sky above Earth may have held two moons — until they smashed into each other to create the lunar body we know today. Such a collision early in the solar system’s history could explain why the moon is lopsided, and why its far side looks so different from the face we can see, according to a report in Thursday’s edition of the journal Nature. Round as it may seem from our vantage point, the moon in fact bulges on one side — the far side, which is packed with high, jagged mountains. That’s a more severe surface than the smooth side we see, filled with basins of volcanic rock. The moon was formed about 4.5 billion years ago, after a Mars-sized body slammed into the molten Earth and flung a ring of debris into space. Much of that debris coalesced into a rocky satellite, which was roughed up about half a billion years later by a barrage of asteroids and other interplanetary material, leaving scars in the form of craters. But at what point the moon became lopsided, and how, is still unclear. Some scientists speculated that the moon’s internal dynamics pushed material around. Others wondered whether the mountains were created by debris ejected from a freshly smashed crater.

Erik Asphaug, a planetary scientist at the University of California, Santa Cruz, had a different idea. Researchers knew that space debris could theoretically get stuck around one of the moon’s Lagrangian points — places in space where the gravity of the moon and Earth cancel each other out. In those areas, the debris could coalesce to form another moon, but it would only remain stable for a short time before the sun’s gravity threw it off course. So Asphaug and colleague Martin Jutzi of the University of Bern in Switzerland designed a model in which a moonlet about one-third as wide as the moon maintained a stable orbit around the Earth for tens of millions of years, until it floated from its Lagrangian point into the moon’s path. The moonlet would have crashed head-on with the larger lunar body, but the collision would have happened at relatively slow speeds of between roughly 4,500 and 6,700 miles per hour, the scientists calculated. At that rate, the material in the moonlet would splat onto the moon rather like a ball of mud hitting a surface. The rocky peaks on the far side of the moon are remnants of that impact, Asphaug said. The force of the collision would have pushed the moon’s internal magma sea over to the near side, which could explain why the visible half is rich in potassium, uranium and other elements, Asphaug and Jutzi wrote in Nature. “It’s a really new idea that puts a completely different take on the origin of the lunar dichotomy,” said Robin Canup, a planetary scientist with the Southwest Research Institute in Boulder, Colo., who was not involved in the study.

Obama Urges Congress to Resolve FAA Shutdown

BY JOAN LOWY
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • President Barack Obama urged Congress on Wednesday to end the partial shutdown of the Federal Aviation Administration, which began nearly two weeks ago because of a partisan standoff over air service to rural communities and union organizing. Obama noted that nearly 4,000 FAA workers have been furloughed, another 70,000 workers involved in airport construction projects are affected and the country stands to lose more than $1 billion in revenue from uncollected airline ticket taxes during the shutdown if Congress leaves the problem hanging until lawmakers return in September. “So this is a lose-lose-lose situation,” he said. Even in trying to pressure Congress to act, the White House is considering what options Obama has to intervene in the dispute, spokesman Jay Carney said. When asked directly what he could do to step in, Obama told reporters: “I have made calls to key leaders, and I am urging them to get this done.”

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Senate Commerce Committee Chairman Sen. Jay Rockefeller, D-W.Va., talks about the need to overcome the partisan standoff over a bill to end the partial shutdown of the Federal Aviation Administration, Wednesday on Capitol Hill in Washington.

A White House official later confirmed that Obama called House Speaker John Boehner, R-Ohio, about the FAA flap on Wednesday. The Republican leader’s public response was the whole problem can be resolved almost immediately if Senate Democrats will only accept a mere $16.5 million in air service subsidy cuts that the House last month attached to a bill to extend FAA’s operating authority. “The only reason so many jobs are at stake is Senate Democratic leaders chose to play politics rather than pass the House bill,” Boehner said in a statement. But Democratic leaders, speaking at a Capitol Hill news conference, said the cuts are a sham. The real issue, they said, is that Republicans are provoking crisis after crisis to get Democrats to accept policy changes that the GOP wouldn’t be able to achieve through normal legislative negotiations. Oklahoma Woman Claims Famed Hijacker is Her Uncle

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) • When an FBI agent pleaded several years ago for help finding notorious skyjacker D.B. Cooper, he wondered, offhandedly, if someone’s “odd uncle” might be their guy. Marla Cooper believes that her late uncle Lynn Doyle Cooper was the man who hijacked a plane in 1971 and parachuted away with $200,000 ransom into a rainy night over the Pacific Northwest. The FBI has for years tried to find out if D.B. Cooper survived the jump, chasing more than 1,000 leads as the man who pulled off the nation’s only unsolved hijacking became part of American folklore. The agency said it is following up on a “credible” new lead Please see COOPER, N2

A 1971 artist’s sketch released by the FBI shows the skyjacker known as ‘Dan Cooper’ and ‘D.B. Cooper’, was made from the recollections of passengers and crew of a Northwest Orient Airlines jet he hijacked between Portland and Seattle, Nov. 24, 1971.

BEDRIDDEN AND CAGED, EGYPT’S HOSNI MUBARAK GOES ON TRIAL

BY HAMZA HENDAWI
Associated Press

CAIRO • From a bed inside the defendants’ cage, an ashen-faced Hosni Mubarak showed a glimmer of his old defiance. Egypt’s former president wagged his finger in the air and denied all charges against him Wednesday as he went on trial for alleged corruption and complicity in the deaths of protesters who helped drive him from power. The spectacle, watched live on state television by millions of Egyptians, calmed the fury of those who suffered under his rule — some of them parents of children gunned down during the uprising that toppled the longtime president. The father of a slain protester, among those sweltering in the heat outside the courtroom on the third day of the Muslim holy month of Ramadan, was ecstatic. “The biggest achievement of this revolution is that all these crooks and scum are in a cage,” said Mohammed Mustafa El-Aqqad. “We’re here to tell Hosni, ‘Happy Ramadan. Congratulations on your new cage.’” The ailing 83-year-old Mubarak lay on a hospital bed as his sons, one-time heir apparent Gamal and wealthy businessman Alaa, stood protectively beside him, at times trying to shield their father from the Please see MUBARAK, N2

Sao Paulo Council Calls for Heterosexual Pride Day

SAO PAULO (AP) • The city council of South America’s biggest city has adopted legislation calling for a Heterosexual Pride Day to be celebrated on the third Sunday of each December. Sao Paulo Mayor Gilberto Kassab must sign the legislation for it to become law and has said only that he is studying it. His office declined Wednesday to say whether he supports the proposal. The legislation’s author, Carlos Apolinario, said the idea for a Heterosexual Pride Day is “not anti-gay but a protest against the privileges the gay community enjoys.” As an example, he mentioned how Sao Paulo’s huge gay pride day parade is held every year on Paulista Avenue, one of the main thoroughfares in this city of 20 million people, while the March for Jesus organized by evangelical groups is not allowed on the same avenue. “I respect gays and I am against any kind of aggression made against them,” Apolinario said. “I have no trouble coexisting with gays as long as their behavior is normal.”

FAA

That strategy was successful during the debt limit negotiations, but Democrats said they are drawing a line on the FAA shutdown.

“When you look back at their (Republican) threats to shut down the entire government — remember that? — unless they got tax breaks for the rich, followed by holding the full faith and credit of this government hostage to their desires to cut government spending. And now here we are a third time ... I hope the American people wake up. This is their modus operandi: government by crisis that they make up,” Sen. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif., said.

Democrats offered bills in the House and Senate to extend FAA’s operating authority with no strings attached, but action on the measures was blocked by Republicans. The House left town for its August recess on Monday night, and the Senate on Tuesday. But it’s still possible for Congress to pass those bills by unanimous consent without lawmakers returning to work if the leaders of both parties agree, Democrats said.

Obama also noted Congress has a procedural way of ending the shutdown without coming back.

“And they can have the fights that they want to have when they get back (in September),” he said. “Don’t put the livelihoods of thousands of people at risk, don’t put projects at risk, and don’t let $1 billion at a time when we’re scrambling for every dollar we can, get off the table because Congress did not act.”

The president said his “expectation, and I think the American people’s expectation is that this gets resolved before the end of this week.”

Rep. John Mica, R-Fla., chairman of the House Transportation and Infrastructure Committee, told The Associated Press that House GOP leaders will only agree to their own bill with $16.5 million spending cuts to subsidies for air service to rural communities.

But Sen. Jay Rockefeller, D-W.Va., Mica’s counterpart in the Senate, said Boehner told Democrats several days ago that House Republicans would agree to an FAA with no subsidy cuts in exchange for Democratic concessions on changing a labor rule to make it more difficult for airline workers to unionize. He said Democrats refused to accept that condition.

Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid added: “The issue is the labor issue: an anti-worker agenda of one airline, Delta Airlines. That’s what this is all about.”

Republicans want to overturn a National Mediation Board rule approved last year that allows airline and railroad employees to form a union by a simple majority of those voting. Under the old rule, workers who didn’t vote were treated as “no” votes.

lawyer Fathy Abul-Hassan, who represents several victims’ families.

“The defense strategy is to milk whatever sympathy Egyptians may still have for an 83-year-old, bedridden leader. It is an obvious ruse,” he said, standing next to the father of a 22-year-old protester killed in Cairo on Jan. 28.

Wednesday’s hearing was held in a large lecture room at the national police academy in a suburb east of Cairo. Big enough for at least 1,000 people, it was only about a third full with lawyers, witnesses, the media and policemen, including a hundred or so young police conscripts who succumbed to the fatigue of the dawn-to-dusk Ramadan fast and fell asleep halfway through the four-hour proceedings.

The police trainees filled a section of the room next to the defendants’ cage, leaving the three judges and five prosecutors with the only direct view of the Mubaraks and seven other defendants. Authorities had promised earlier that up to 600 people would be able to attend, including relatives of slain protesters, but after multiple administrative mix-ups, only a handful of relatives were in the courtroom.

The hearing was chaotic at times, with lawyers shouting over each other and pushing forward toward the bench.

Presiding judge Ahmed Rifaat struggled to maintain order. Mubarak’s arrival in the courtroom was greeted by a lone shout of “Long live the revolution!” by a female lawyer attending on behalf of one of the victims. It was one of the few outbursts of anti-Mubarak rhetoric, with another lawyer telling the judge: “Your honor, those murderers standing before you have sold their conscience to the devil.”

The hearing was the first time Egyptians had seen Mubarak since Feb. 10, when he gave a defiant TV address refusing to resign.

In the courtroom, a prosecutor read the charges against Mubarak — that he was an accomplice along with then-Interior Minister Habib el-Adly in the “intentional and premeditated murder of peaceful protesters” and that he and his sons received gifts from a prominent businessman in return for guaranteeing a low price in a land deal with the state.

The businessman, Hussein Salem, is being tried in absentia. He is under arrest in Spain, and Egypt is seeking his extradition.

Mubarak, el-Adly and six senior police officers could be sentenced to death if convicted of ordering the protesters killed.

Alaska Officials Watch Volcano as Lava Dome Grows

ANCHORAGE, Alaska • A growing lava dome has been spotted in the summit crater of an Alaska volcano, leading officials to raise the alert level. The Alaska Volcano Observatory says the observation increases the possibility but doesn’t guarantee an eruption at Cleveland Volcano.

Officials say the dome has grown from about 131 feet to 164 feet in diameter since Friday. Weak thermal anomalies also have been detected.

If the dome continues to grow, lava may flow onto the volcano’s flanks. Officials say this would not be hazardous to airplanes. Short-lived eruptions could send an ash cloud up to 20,000 feet.

There is no real-time seismic network at the volcano, located 939 miles southwest of Anchorage on an uninhabited island. Officials are not able to track local earthquake activity related to volcanic unrest.

in the Cooper case. FBI agent Fred Gutt declined Wednesday, however, to say whether Marla Cooper was connected to that lead.

“It is an unsolved crime and we are obligated to address that if new, credible information comes to us,” he said, adding that the case is a low priority. The FBI is focused on criminal activity that threatens communities today, he said.

Marla Cooper told ABC News, which first reported her comments in an interview broadcast Wednesday, that she made the connection by piecing together her memories and her parents’ comments over the years. Cooper, however, did not say why she chose to speak out now.

Cooper claimed on “Good Morning America” that she heard her uncle, L.D. Cooper, and another uncle planning something “very mischievous” over the holidays in 1971. “I was watching them using some very expensive walkie-talkies that they had purchased,” she said.

Marla Cooper said her uncles said they were going turkey hunting around Thanksgiving.

On Nov. 24, 1971, a man who gave his name as Dan

Cooper claimed shortly after takeoff in Portland, Ore., that he had a bomb, leading the flight crew of the Northwest Orient plane to land in Seattle. Passengers were exchanged for parachutes and ransom money.

The flight then took off for Mexico with the suspect and flight crew on board. The hijacker parachuted from the plane after dark as it flew south, apparently over a rugged, wooded region not far from Marla Cooper’s grandmother’s home in Sisters, Ore.

Marla Cooper said her uncle, L.D. Cooper, came home claiming he had been in a car accident.

“My Uncle L.D. was wearing a white T-shirt, and he was bloody and bruised and a mess, and I was horrified. I began to cry. My other uncle, who was with L.D., said, ‘Marla, just shut up and go get your dad,’” she said.

Marla Cooper said she heard her uncle say at the time, “We did it. Our money problems are over. We hijacked an airplane.”

She said that, just before he died in 1995, her father mentioned his brother and said, “‘Don’t you remember he hijacked that airplane?’” In 2009, she said, her mother made a similar comment that raised her suspicions again.

Cooper said she contacted the FBI “as soon as I was sure that what I was remembering were real memories.”

Seattle-based FBI case agent Larry Carr was tasked with reigniting the case five years ago and the agency posted a “D.B. Cooper Redux” on its site in 2007, urging the public to help solve the enduring mystery.

The FBI released photos of a black J.C. Penney tie the hijacker wore and some of the stolen $20 bills found by a young boy in 1980 along the banks of the Columbia River.

In the FBI’s recounting of the case, it quoted Carr as saying he thought it was likely that Cooper didn’t survive the jump, but he still sought the public’s help.

“Maybe a hydrologist can use the latest technology to trace the $5,800 in ransom money found in 1980 to where Cooper landed upstream,” Carr said. “Or maybe someone just remembers that odd uncle.”

The FBI said Monday that a new lead came to the bureau after the tipster initially discussed the case with a retired law enforcement officer, who

LONDON (AP) • A British lawmaker has updated his guide on how his colleagues can stay true to their constituents while staying true to their partners.

Labour lawmaker Paul Flynn said his new version of “How to Be a Backbencher” will include tips on drafting pithy Twitter messages and tongue-in-cheek ways to dampen what the 76-year-old described as parliamentarians’ “sexual magnetism.”

Flynn said Wednesday in interviews with British media that it was a mystery to him why elected officials were so attractive. His tips on how to stay faithful include taking cold baths.

camera and hundreds of spectators. Dressed in white prison uniforms, the two younger Mubaraks denied charges of corruption.

The sight of Mubarak lying helplessly in bed inside the grim metal and wire cage was a stunning moment for Egyptians — and for a region known more for its presidents-for-life and absolute monarchs than democracy or accountability.

With Arab Spring revolts sweeping the Middle East, the sight of Mubarak during Wednesday’s hearing could serve as a powerful cautionary tale for other autocratic leaders who have long acted as if they alone were fit to rule. From Libya’s Moammar Gadhafi to Syria’s Bashar Assad and Yemen’s Ali Abdullah Saleh, the lesson of Mubarak’s predicament may be very simple: Don’t lose.

People watching the spectacle across the region proclaimed it a watershed.

“This is the beginning of democracy in the Arab world,” declared Rabha Idris, an engineer from Libya, where the uprising against Gadhafi’s rule is into its seventh month.

“This is a new era,” enthused Zainab Hassan, a 22-year-old university student from Bahrain, a tiny Gulf Arab nation whose Muslim Shiite majority is demanding equality with the Sunni minority. “The people now believe they can be free from dictatorship.”

Many in Egypt savored the humiliation of the man who ruled with unquestionable power for 29 years, during which opponents were tortured, corruption was rife, poverty was widespread and political life was stifled.

With skepticism that Egypt’s military rulers would allow one of their own — a former air force commander and a war hero — to be prosecuted in front of the world, the scene went a long way toward satisfying a key demand that has united protesters since Feb. 11, when Mubarak fell following an 18-day uprising.

“This is the dream of Egyptians, to see him like this, humiliated like he humiliated them for the last 30 years,” said Ghada Ali, the mother of a 17-year-old girl in the city of Alexandria who was shot to death during the crackdown.

“I want to see their heart explode like my daughter’s heart exploded from their single bullet,” she said, breaking down in sobs.

Still, the sight of Mubarak being wheeled into the courtroom in a hospital bed may win him some sympathy, said

Judge Upholds Congress' Change to Wolf Status

BY MATT VOLZ
Associated Press

HELENA, Mont. • The way Congress went about removing endangered species protections from the Northern Rockies gray wolf undermines the rule of law, but it did not violate the Constitution, a federal judge ruled Wednesday.

U.S. District Judge Donald Molloy reluctantly upheld a budget rider passed by Congress in April that stripped wolves of federal protections in Montana, Idaho and parts of Washington, Oregon and Utah.

The provision was inserted by Republican Rep. Mike Simpson of Idaho and Democratic Sen. Jon Tester of Montana. The measure marked the first time since the passage of the Endangered Species Act in 1973 that Congress forcibly removed protections from a plant or animal.

Molloy, who twice blocked attempts to lift federal protections for the predators before Congress' action, did not hide his distaste for the provision.

"The way in which Congress acted in trying to achieve a debatable policy change by attaching a rider to the Department of Defense and Full-Year Continuing Appropriations Act of 2011 is a tearing away, an undermining and a disrespect for the fundamental idea of the rule of law," Molloy wrote in his order.

But, he added, past rulings by the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals requires him to interpret the rider as not violating the separation of powers, the constitutional principle ensuring none of the three branches of government tramples on the independence of the other branches.

Conservation groups had challenged the rider's constitutionality, arguing that it violated the separation of powers because its only aim was to countermand Molloy's past rulings without making any changes to the Endangered Species Act.

But the judge ruled against them, upholding the congressional rider because of what Molloy called "magic words" included in it.

The budget rider directed the Interior secretary to remove wolf protections "without regard to any other provision of statute or regulation that applies to issuance of such rule."

The use of that exact phrase amends the Endangered Species Act by implication, Department of Justice attorneys argued, even if the rider didn't reference the specific law.

Molloy said the 9th Circuit has upheld that interpretation in the past so he must abide by it, even though he clearly disagrees with the appellate court.

"In my view, the Ninth Circuit's deference to Congress threatens the Separation of Powers; nonspecific magic words should not sweep aside constitutional concerns," Molloy wrote.

It was not immediately clear whether the conservation groups planned to appeal Molloy's ruling. Kieran Suckling, the executive director for the lead plaintiff in the case, the Center for Biological Diversity, did not immediately return a message for comment after business hours Wednesday evening.

Congress' actions turned over wolf management to the Northern Rocky Mountain states except for Wyoming. There are an estimated 1,651 in Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Oregon and Washington.

Idaho and Montana are planning to hold wolf hunts this fall to reduce the populations of the predator in those states.

Tester said in a statement that now that the court has made its ruling, it's time to move ahead.

"Returning Montana's wolves to Montana management was the right thing to do, and we did it in a responsible way with utmost respect to existing law and to our Constitution," he said.

Wolves in Wyoming were not included in the budget rider due to concerns among federal officials over a law allowing the predators to be shot on sight across most of the state.

But earlier Wednesday, the state and the U.S. Department of Interior reached an agreement over how to end federal protections for wolves there.

Wyoming would commit to maintaining at least 10 breeding pairs and 100 wolves outside Yellowstone National Park. There are now about 340 wolves in the state, of which 230 are outside the park.

WYOMING, FEDS ANNOUNCE PLAN FOR DELISTING WOLVES

BY BEN NEARY
Associated Press

CHEYENNE, Wyo. • Wyoming and the U.S. Department of Interior have reached an agreement over how to end federal protections for wolves in the state, officials announced Wednesday.

Environmentalists blasted the deal. They say Wyoming's plan — unique among Western states — to classify wolves as predators that could be shot on sight in most areas fails to give the animals enough protection.

Gov. Matt Mead hailed the agreement, saying wolves have taken a heavy toll on livestock and wildlife in the state since they were reintroduced in the 1990s. Wyoming is the last state in the Northern Rockies that still has federal oversight of its wolf population.

"This is far from the end of this process, but I think we have come up with something that fits with Wyoming's values and economy," Mead said.

"For years ranchers and sheep producers have been asked to sacrifice, and they have. We have lost significant numbers of elk and moose, and we have not had a say in the management of an animal inside Wyoming," Mead said. "It's time for that to change..."

Interior Secretary Ken Salazar has traveled to Wyoming repeatedly in recent months to work on the agreement.

The gray wolf's recovery serves as a "great example" of how the Endangered Species Act can work to keep imperiled animals from becoming extinct, Salazar said Wednesday.

"The agreement we've reached with Wyoming recognizes the success of this iconic species and will ensure the long-term conservation of gray wolves," he said.

Environmental groups, however, decried the deal. They say it doesn't afford Wyoming wolves adequate protection and couldn't stand on its own merits if Congress fails to pass pending language to exempt it from legal challenges.

Drought Forces Texas Ranchers to Cut Herds

McALLEN, Texas (AP) • The drought that has baked pastures and dried ponds has ranchers in Texas and Oklahoma — the nation's top two beef producers — culling their herds. Some have sold off all their cattle, but Texas cattle rancher Charles Kothman is hanging on and hoping for rain.

Some ranchers say they may sell out and get back into the business down the road. Others may never get back in, Kothman said.

Cattle ranchers either have to sell cattle during droughts or buy feed because their barren pastures can't sustain the animals.

If they opt to buy hay while watching for rain clouds, they risk running into bankruptcy. If they sell off cows of calf-bearing age instead, they do it knowing rebuilding the herd later will be a long, costly process.

Texas is coming off its driest nine-month period ever and its hottest June on record. Most of the state is in one of the two worst drought stages. The U.S. Department of Agriculture rated 94 percent of its pasture and range land as either poor or very poor last week. The rating means there's no food for grazing livestock.

Transportation Limits May Stunt Ag Expansion

As the U.S. hopes to increase exports in the coming years, the nation's aging infrastructure could require billions in improvements to meet needs.

BY CINDY SNYDER

For the Times-News

NEW ORLEANS • President Barack Obama wants to double U.S. exports, including agricultural commodities and products, by 2015. Researchers hope to double crop yields by 2030 to feed a world population that's expected to double by 2050.

But any large-scale expansion of U.S. ag exports will only be possible if the nation can get more commodities and farm products to market, something some experts say the country already struggles to accomplish.

“When it comes to agriculture and transportation, we are trying to attach a garden hose to a fire hydrant,” said Mike Steenhoek, executive director of the Soy Transportation Coalition. “We see increased production and increased demand for our products, but our transportation infrastructure is way behind.”

While flooding-fueled backlogs at Mississippi River ports garnered headlines this spring, transportation woes begin at many farms. Many rural roads aren't capable of handling the weight of modern tractors or semitrailers, and transportation funding shortages across much of the nation have left many roads left to shoulder heavy loads well past their life expectancies.

United Pacific Railroad has invested more than $33 billion into lines and equipment over the last 20 years and has committed to spend 18 percent of its annual revenue on upgrades, but even U.P. can't keep up shifting ag transportation needs.

Union Pacific Vice President and General Manager Paul Hammes said last fall's soybean harvest provided a bevy of logistical challenges. While crop forecasts indicated a relative balance between soy exports in the Pacific Northwest and the Gulf of Mexico, more soy ended up being sent through the Gulf. Costs jumped as Union Pacific threw more assets to the south to get the beans moved.

Improved shipping forecasts will help move ag products more efficiently, he said.

“Within UP, agricultural products

U.S. agricultural experts are worried that hoped for increases in ag exports will be hindered by the nation's transportation limitations.

has the highest variability,” he said during the annual Agricultural Media Summit, held July 23-27 in New Orleans. “It's not in quantity or commodity. We miss on which month ag products are going to move, which state products are moving from and which port it'll go to.”

Differences in crop usage also often dictates how goods are shipped, which is why Rick Calhoun, vice president at international food products producer Cargill, has advocated for years for simultaneous rail, truck and barge infrastructure improvement.

“You can't do it sequentially,” he said.

But with a national budget crunch, that's easier said than done.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has estimated an annual trust fund of $500 million is needed to conduct backlogged repairs of the nation's waterways, with half coming from the government and half from private sources. A private effort to fund a terminal for super container ships to re-distribute freight in the Gulf of Mexico is expected to exceed $1 billion in costs.

With the high costs involved for infrastructure improvement, Hammes said the form that commodities will be shipped in will ultimately determine where upgrades will be made and who will pay for them.

“Private funds will be spent by the sector that demands it,” he said.

CARGILL RECALLING 36M POUNDS OF GROUND TURKEY

WASHINGTON (AP) • Meat giant Cargill is recalling 36 million pounds of ground turkey linked to a nationwide salmonella outbreak that has killed one person in California and sickened at least 76 others.

Illnesses in the outbreak date back to March and have been reported in 26 states coast to coast.

Cargill said Wednesday that it is recalling fresh and frozen ground turkey products produced at the company's Springdale, Ark., plant from Feb. 20 through Aug. 2 due to possible contamination from the strain of salmonella linked to the illnesses.

Company officials said that all ground turkey production has been suspended at the plant until the company is able to determine the source of the outbreak.

“Given our concern for what has happened, and our desire to do what is right for our consumers and customers, we are voluntarily removing our ground turkey products from the marketplace,” said Steve Willardsen, president of Cargill's turkey processing business.

The Minnesota-based company said it was initiating the recall after its own internal investigation, an Agriculture Department investigation and information about the illnesses released by the CDC this week.

All of the packages recalled include the code “Est. P-963” on the label, according to Cargill. The packages were labeled with many different brands, including Cargill's Honeysuckle White.

The CDC said this week that cultures of ground turkey from four retail locations between March 7 and June 27 showed contamination with the same strain of salmonella, though those samples had not been specifically linked to the illnesses. The CDC said preliminary information showed that three of those samples were linked to the same production establishment, but it did not name that plant.

A chart on the CDC's website shows cases have occurred every month since early March, with spikes in May and early June. The latest reported cases were in mid-July, although the CDC said some recent cases may not have been reported yet.

The states with the highest number sickened were Michigan and Ohio, 10 illnesses each, while nine illnesses were reported in Texas. Illinois had seven, California six and Pennsylvania five.

The remaining states have between one and three reported illnesses linked to the outbreak, according to the CDC: Alabama, Arizona, Georgia, Iowa, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Missouri, Mississippi, North Carolina, Nebraska, Nevada, New York, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Dakota, Tennessee and Wisconsin.

Fish and Game to Propose Waterfowl Seasons

Waterfowl will be the talk of the town come Aug. 24, when the Idaho Fish and Game Commission will consider proposed seasons and limits.

The meeting will be held at commission headquarters in Boise.

Proposed seasons include 107-day goose seasons with a 10-bird daily bag limit on snow, blue and Ross's geese and a four-bird limit on Canada and white-fronted geese.

Proposed duck seasons, including mergansers, common snipe and American coot, would be 107 days, with a seven-bird limit on ducks, but no more than two female mallards, two redheads, two pin-tails or one canvasback. The scap season would be 86 days, with a daily bag limit of three, and possession limit of two times the daily bag limit. The daily bag limits on common snipe would be eight, and the limit on coots is 25.

Proposed season dates would fall between Sept. 24 and Jan. 29. The youth waterfowl hunt is proposed for Sept. 24-25.

Fish and Game is considering several options including a split season structure for the 2011-12 waterfowl seasons. The specific season structure proposals and an opportunity to provide comments will be available on the Fish and Game website, fishandgame.idaho.gov.

A Reason to Get Wet

People in south-central Idaho are finding a number of ways to enjoy the Snake River, whether it's kayaking or taking more adventurous guided river trips.

BY BLAIR KOCH
For the Times-News

On a recent Saturday morning, Steve Harrison arrived at Centennial Waterfront Park with his family in tow. They had adventure on their minds. The Jerome family hadn't ever kayaked before, but with the newer services of Pryor Paddle Rentals they would be in the water within minutes.

"It's great," Harrison said. "They have everything right here and the water is gentle enough that us beginners can give it a go."

Monica Pryor said the company, which rents kayaks, canoes and paddleboards at the park, was created about two years ago by her husband Tim Pryor. Rent starts at $25 for four hours.

"After he fell in love with the sport he wanted to help bring the sport to others," she said.

Although sections of the Snake River lure high-adrenaline junkies seeking thrill rides along raging Class IV and V rapids, paddlers taking off from Centennial Park experience relative calm waters, Pryor said. Since the park is public, feel free to bring your own gear or shop around for rentals.

"Paddlers can portage Pillar Falls and continue upstream to the base of Shoshone Falls; you can't get too close to the falls but the views are amazing," she said. "Watching the BASE jumpers adds to the excursion."

If you have your own kayak, you might consider paddling near Thousand Springs in Hagerman. Banbury Hot Springs, about 10 miles west of Buhl on Highway 30, marks the beginning of the trip.

In addition to luxurious views of the springs gushing from the canyon wall, this trip includes spectacular views of Box Canyon, Blueheart Springs and Riley Creek Falls, to name a few.

Beverly and Norman Binay sit outside their RV July 29 in the South Hills. 'We're not your typical campers,' Norman says. 'We're full-time RVers.' Others, such as Twin Falls residents Bob and Cassie Davis, not shown, use their RVs for camping or travel.

THE RV WAY OF LIFE

An RV might be home to some people. To others, it's their "tent" — a way for them to experience Idaho's outdoors but with all the amenities of home.

BY ANDREW WEEKS
aweeks@magicvalley.com

When Norman Binay was forced into an early retirement, the former welding instructor, fed up with life in New Jersey, talked his wife into selling their home and buying an RV.

That was six years ago. Since then, he and Beverly have seen a lot of country.

"We're not your typical campers," Binay said as he sat outside his RV last week in the South Hills. "We're full-time RVers."

They don't miss having a house, because their RV offers all the comforts of home — only on a smaller scale, Binay said. The 38-foot-long Monaco, even with its side extension, is not quite 400 square feet. It includes a queen-sized bed, double-sided refrigerator, stove, heating and air conditioning, foldout sofas for extra beds and a 42-inch color television. Though they don't have a permanent residence, the whole country is the Binays' backyard.

The Binays have lived on the beaches in California, under the shade of mountains in Colorado and, most recently, near a babbling brook in south-central Idaho.

It's a lifestyle the couple have grown to enjoy, but they readily note it's not for everyone. In fact, if you don't plan to live out of an RV, they recommend you don't buy one. The Binays paid $140,000 for their "home on wheels." Depending on the style, they can cost more than $300,000.

Norman said there seems to be a common misconception about people who own RVs: that the owners have pockets overflowing with money. That's not always the case, he said. For some, owning an RV is a mortgage.

"We're different," he said. "We live out of ours. But if you're just planning on using it for vacation every year, it's not worth it. ... It'd cost you less to rent a five-star hotel."

Bob and Cassie Davis see it differently.

Several years ago, the Davises visited Yellowstone National Park and camped beneath the rugged Wyoming mountains. Though the scenery was spectacular, Cassie didn't enjoy sleeping in a tent.

"It was so cold," she said.

The Twin Falls couple decided that would be their last time roughing it in the wild. They bought an RV, but they went the more economical route by purchasing theirs on eBay for around $10,000.

Now when they head to the mountains, they do so in style. Last week, the couple camped in the shade of trees in the South Hills. Within easy reach were the amenities of home — bed, refrigerator, air-conditioning and shower.

Their 1990 model, which they've owned for about five years, isn't as fancy as newer models, which have side extensions and improved features, but it suits their needs just fine and has room to accommodate three friends.

The downside, Bob said, is that at today's gas prices it costs around $175 to fill the RV, which gets only about seven miles a gallon.

But that hasn't stopped them from traveling long distances. Their favorite trip is to the beaches of Southern California.

Besides the beaches and mountains, some people who own RVs "camp" at RV parks, where for a fee they can hook up their machines to water and propane. Otherwise, they bring their own.

Record Trout Identified as Hybrid

Mark Adams made the news recently when on July 25 he caught a record trout at American Falls Reservoir. The Pocatello man now has learned what species of trout his remarkable catch was. Through genetic and age analysis it was determined that the fish is a rainbow-cutthroat trout hybrid, according to the Idaho Department of Fish and Game. The 6-year-old fish weighed 34.75 pounds, and measured 41 1/8 inches long with a girth of 27 1/8 inches. It was caught on a 10-pound test line with a jig.

In this photo provided by Barbara Pharr, Jennifer Pharr Davis walks on Springer Mountain, Ga., on July 31. Davis set the unofficial record for the fastest hike of the entire Appalachian Trail.

BY JEFFREY COLLINS

Jennifer Pharr Davis set the unofficial record for the fastest hike of the entire Appalachian Trail, yet she said she never ignored the beauty of the 2,180-mile trek from Maine to Georgia.

She saw 36 bears, moose, porcupines and just about every sunrise and sunset during her journey, which lasted exactly 46 days, 11 hours, and 20 minutes since she left Mount Katahdin in Maine on June 16.

"Fastest is so relative," Davis said Tuesday after estimating she had slept about 30 of the past 48 hours. "My average was 3 mph. So what are you not going to see at 3 mph?"

She emerged from the woods Sunday with her husband by her side and walked to the granite slab on Springer Mountain in Georgia at the trail's southern end. There cheering for her were her parents and dozens of other family members and friends.

"There were a lot of tears. Everyone was like, 'Are those happy tears?' I just said they're everything tears. I'm so happy. In a way, I'm sad it's over. I'm tired. It was just like every emotion was coming out at once."

over. I'm tired. It was just like every emotion was coming out at once," Davis said.

She had gone through five pairs of hybrid hiking and running shoes while averaging about 47 miles a day, or nearly two marathons.

No one keeps official speed records for the trail, but Davis said she broke Andrew Thompson's 2005 mark for the fastest supported "thru hike" by just over 24 hours.

Davis has logged more than 10,000 miles on long-distance trails worldwide. She first hiked the Appalachian trail in 2005 as a recent Samford University graduate with a degree in Classics after spending years studying ancient Greek and Roman literature and history. Her homage to her education was her trail nickname, Odyssa. It was a traditional Appalachian Trail hike, with a heavy backpack, a tent and provisions doubling as a journey of self-discovery.

The second trip came in

"There were a lot of tears. Everyone was like, 'Are those happy tears?' I just said they're everything tears. I'm so happy. In a way, I'm sad it's over. I'm tired. It was just like every emotion was coming out at once."

— Jennifer Pharr Davis set the unofficial record for the fastest hike of the Appalachian Trail

2008 when with the support of her newlywed husband, Brew Davis. She set the unofficial women's record of 57 days and eight hours. Just like this trip, he followed her along nearby roads, meeting her at crossings with food, water or a tent so she could hike with just a few water bottles, energy bars and her cell phone.

Since she carried less gear, her hike was quieter, allowing her to see more animals and to get more in sync with nature.

Davis also provided the boost she needed when she was ready to quit during the first days of the trip in Vermont after being chilled by a sleet storm in the White Mountains. He pointed out she was ahead of the record and would feel even worse if she quit.

"There's no way I could have done it without him," Davis said. "Not just the physical, logistical support, but his emotional support."

The Appalachian Trail winds its way through 14 states and gets close to 3 million visitors a year. About 1,500 of those people try to hike the entire trail in one trip, and about a quarter of them make it all the way, according to the Appalachian Trail Conservancy.

For many of the "thru hikers," the trail turns into a communal experience. But Davis' pace kept her chances at making new friends to a minimum. An average day had her up by 5 a.m. and asleep around 10 p.m. "I said good morning and good night to the sun every single day on the trail," she said.

But the solitude always made her appreciate nature's boundless beauty.

"You have the trail to yourself. There's usually not any other hikers. More animals are on the trail at that time. You get to appreciate the sunset and the sunrise."

in Hagerman; get your exercise while backpacking near the Iron Man RV Park in Fairfield; enjoy the rugged scenery while at the Wood River park in Sun Valley; or hike trails near the Bostetter campground in Oakley.

The Davises said they see how the RV park experience can attract some folks, but it's not for them. They like to camp away from the crowds, and they enjoy the South Hills because it's an easy and relaxing getaway.

"It's close to home," Cassie said. "It's a pretty and friendly place."

Too Much Gun? Try a Moderate Rifle Cartridge

It recently occurred to me that I am a living fulfillment of the biblical prophecy that human beings stubbornly resist learning wisdom in their youth. Even though this realization came to me in my late 50s, it's not too late for those of you of more tender years to benefit from this pearl of truth: We all shoot better with guns that we are not afraid of.

Rifles, handguns, and shotguns that kick us back into yesterday and split the stratosphere with their muzzle blast, assault our nerve-laden flesh and without disciplined practice make accurate shooting difficult. It's not unlike trying to thread a needle with a lumbering brute standing nearby ready to pound your shoulder; you're not going to do your best work.

I spent my youth lusting after and pursuing just about every magnum cartridge that had surfaced since the late '50s. If it had "magnum" etched on the barrel, I had to have it. I bought and shot .300 magnums, 7mm magnums, 338 magnums, 357, .41 and .44 magnums, 12- and 20-gauge magnums at both targets and game. I just loved to brag about and show off my latest magnums to my friends. And, I collected a couple pickup truck loads of game with them over the years.

Nowadays I send thousands of .17 and .22 rimfire rounds downrange during the off seasons. This practice develops and instills the muscle memory necessary for proper shooting form and trigger release in the field. My magnum rifles don't come down off the rack much anymore. For antelope on the open sage flats, whitetail in the riverine tangles, and mule deer and elk in the alpine country I pack either a 7mm-08 Remington, .270 Winchester or a tried and true .30-06 Springfield. Because I no longer have to anticipate ear-ringing muzzle blast or pounding recoil, the animals that get centered in the crosshairs usually end up in the freezer.

Other excellent cartridges in this class are the .243 Winchester, .25-06 Remington, .308 Winchester, 7mm (7X57) Mauser, and the .280 Remington.

For beginning or smaller stature hunters, Federal (Fusion Lite) and Remington (Managed-Recoil) each market a line of "lite" hunting ammunition. This ammo features readily expanding bullets at reduced velocity (and recoil). With good accuracy, adequate punch and only half the recoil, these loads are just the ticket for big game out to 200 yards, which is as far as most of us should shoot. One of my daughters has harvested several deer with the Fusion Lite .308 ammo; it's deadly stuff.

So if you're training a beginning hunter or just want to put some of the joy back into shooting and hunting with high-power rifles this fall, consider the virtues of the moderate cartridge clan.

Good shooting!

want to paddle."

On the other end of the spectrum is the Murtaugh section of the Snake, known for its, "raging Class V rapids, when the flows are right."

This section is about 20 miles upstream from Twin Falls and is renowned as one of the best day trips in the country. It boasts 16 major rapids in 14 miles and the river drops some 25 feet per mile.

Another whitewater guide, Idaho Guide Service, provides trips along the Milner section, offering parties a chance to mingle with history along the way. The Class III water provides a great backdrop for stories from the Hunt Party and Oregon Trail.

For people seeking a bit more excitement, a guided whitewater tour down the Hagerman section may fill the bill. This section of the Snake is located about 25 miles downstream from Twin Falls and offers Class III rapids.

Randy McBride, owner of High Adventure River Tours, one area company that provides guided trips, said the section is perfect for the entire family.

"From 2 year olds to 92 year olds," McBride said. "The rapids aren't wild enough that you have to be a pro and the trips can be tailored to the level of involvement you want to have in the ride. We can accommodate riders who just want to sit and enjoy the ride and those that

OBITUARIES

Wayne Stiles Walker

Sept. 27, 1927-Aug. 1, 2011

KIMBERLY • Wayne S. Walker, 83, of Kimberly, died Monday, Aug. 1, 2011, after a short illness.

He was born Sept. 27, 1927, at Hansen, Idaho, to Clyde C. and Ruth H. Walker. He lived his childhood years and went to school in Hansen. He married Jacklyn J. Young on April 5, 1947, at Elko, Nev., and they made their home on the family farm at Hansen for the next few years, raising cattle and farming.

Wayne went into the construction business around 1956 with his brother-in-law, Artell Aslett, and later started and ran his own construction company building roads. He loved working on the road and took his family with him all over Idaho and parts of Washington, Wyoming, Oregon and Nevada for the next several years. He eventually settled his family in Kimberly, Idaho, but continued to travel and build roads throughout Idaho and the surrounding states. For the last several years of his life, he worked for his son, Kelly Walker's, construction business, Snake River Construction, where his grandson, Trevor Wake, was his superintendent. He was an expert loader operator and hard worker. Road construction was his enjoyment and his life and he looked forward every year to the beginning of the road construction season.

Wayne is survived by his daughter, Diane Kerbs (Bob) of Parker, Ariz.; his son, Kelly Walker of Kimberly, Idaho; one brother, Bruce Walker of Seattle, Wash.; his three grandchildren, Levin Walker of Twin Falls, Krista Williams (Wes) of Woods Cross, Utah, and Trevor Wake (Jennifer) of Filer, Idaho; six great-grandchildren, Alexie, Gennivyve and Zavver Williams of Woods Cross, Utah; and Austin, Skyler and Chantel Wake of Filer. He was preceded in death by his loving wife, Jacklyn J. Walker; his oldest son, Larry Walker; his parents, Clyde and Ruth Walker; one brother, John W. "Bill" Walker; and three sisters, Virginia Walker, Dorothy Nielsen and Sally Pett.

His memorial service will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, Aug. 6, at Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home, 2551 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls. The family requests no flowers. Donations in Wayne's honor may be made to Visions Home Health and Hospice of Twin Falls.

We will miss you so much, Dad and Gramps; have fun making roads in heaven.

Arnold Alfred Mein

Jan. 4, 1925-Aug. 3, 2011

Arnold Alfred Mein, 86, of Twin Falls, died Wednesday, Aug. 3, 2011, at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center.

Arnold was born Jan. 4, 1925, at Farmington, Kan., the son of Alfred D. and Hildegard Troke Mein. He was raised and educated in Farmington until 1939, when he moved with his family to Jerome, Idaho, where he farmed for many years. He married Shirley Andersen in 1950 at Twin Falls. After leaving the farm, Arnold worked as a carpenter for 30 years in several areas of the Northwest. In 1971, Arnold and Shirley moved to Twin Falls, where he has since resided. He retired in 1993. Arnold was a member of Immanuel Lutheran Church. He enjoyed hunting, fishing and gardening.

Arnold was preceded in death by his parents; his wife, Shirley on Sept. 22, 1995; one sister, LaVerne Fisher; and one brother, Estel Mein. He is survived by his son, Dwight Mein of Twin Falls; two sisters, Evangeline Watson of Boise, Idaho, and Stelle Radtke of Nebraska; and numerous nieces and nephews.

Memorial contributions in Arnold's name may be made to Immanuel Lutheran Church, 2055 Filer Ave. E., Twin Falls, ID 83301.

A graveside service will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday, Aug. 6, at Sunset Memorial Park. To share a memory of Arnold or to offer condolences to Arnold's family please visit www.whitemortuary.com.

Ron Thomas, left, father of Kelly Thomas, waits his turn to speak before the Fullerton city council Tuesday night.

Dad: 'Shock' Over Son Who Died After Arrest

BY GILLIAN FLACCUS
Associated Press

FULLERTON, Calif. • In the nearly two decades since his son descended into madness, Ron Thomas has worried every day that the schizophrenic 37-year-old would die of exposure or illness on the streets. He never imagined the end would come in a violent confrontation with police.

The death last month was the end of a trajectory that began when Kelly Thomas was in his early 20s and started showing the first signs of what would later be diagnosed as schizophrenia: he shuttled between addresses, preferred to sleep on the floor and stopped showering.

In treatment, Thomas did well and was able to hold down a job — but when he stopped taking his pills, he disappeared onto the streets. He racked up an array of charges, from public urination to assault with a deadly weapon, and alarmed his parents with his bizarre behavior.

"My daughter and I have talked for years that we'd get the call that something had happened to him, whether it was from organ failure because he's not drinking enough fluids or the elements or maybe gang activity," said his father, Ron Thomas.

Last month, he was sitting on a bench at the Fullerton Transportation Center, a hub for buses and commuter trains where homeless people congregate, when six police officers arrived to investigate reports of a man burglarizing cars nearby. Police said he ran when they tried to search his backpack and that he resisted arrest.

The incident was captured by a bystander with a cell phone, and bus surveillance tape released Monday showed agitated witnesses describing how officers beat Thomas and used a stun gun on him repeatedly as he cried out for his father.

On the cell phone video, a man can be heard screaming over a fast, clicking sound that those on the tape identify as a stun gun being deployed.

Thomas was taken off life support five days after the July 5 altercation. His father said Wednesday he was stunned when he learned police officers caused his son's severe head and neck injuries.

"When I arrived at the hospital to see him, I honestly thought that gang bangers had got a hold of him like the cowards sometimes do and just beat him with a baseball bat in the face," he said. "Immediately my thoughts were to get with Fullerton police ... and I didn't learn until a certain amount of hours later the truth. That put me in absolute shock."

A police spokesman, Sgt. Andrew Goodrich, said the case was an isolated incident.

"We have a good department full of good individuals," he said. "We've made more than half-a-million law enforcement contacts over the past 4.5 years ... This is the only instance of this kind that's happened."

Goodrich said officers receive training on how to deal with the mentally ill and the homeless. But an attorney representing the department, Michael D. Schwartz, said that "public perception of officers' trying to control a combative, resistive suspect rarely conform to those officers' training, experiences, and what those officers were experiencing at the time or reality."

The revelations have caused growing outrage in this quiet college town. More than 70 people spoke at the City Council meeting Wednesday, and a city councilwoman called for the resignation of the police chief. Thomas' father and others were planning a protest outside the police station this weekend, the second in as many weeks.

"My son needs a voice," he said. "Now, the people have become Kelly's voice and, yeah, I'm leading the charge." Kelly Thomas was an outgoing child who loved to play the guitar, participated in Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts and aspired to be a wildland firefighter, said his father, who raised him alone after he and Thomas' mother divorced.

After his diagnosis, he went to a live-in facility that provided meals and monitored his medication, his father said. Thomas was able to hold down a job at a gas station and then a printing facility and even started to train with the California Department of Forestry and Protection.

But each time he began to improve, he stopped his medications and wound up back on the streets, moving between Yorba Linda, Placentia, Fullerton and Cypress — all places where he had once lived or had family and friends. One of the hardest parts of his death has been hearing their son described as homeless, the father said.

"That's the heartbreaking part for all of us. We all have ideas of what we'd like our kids to be like and to do in life. With Kelly, we didn't get to realize that and it constantly broke our heart," his father said. "Kelly wasn't homeless at all, he had so many homes, but he wanted to be a drifter and he did."

Life on the streets led to criminal charges.

He pleaded guilty to assault with a deadly weapon other than a firearm in 1995 and since 2004 has had a string of arrests for a host of lesser crimes including public urination, trespassing, battery, unlawful camping, petty theft and vandalism. He racked up traffic violations for jaywalking and failing to obey traffic signals.

OBITUARIES

Leslie Odell Chatfield

May 14, 1922-July 31, 2011

JEROME • Leslie Odell Chatfield died Sunday, July 31, 2011, in Shoshone, Idaho.

Odell was born in Richfield, Idaho, on May 14, 1922, the last of six children born to C.O. Chatfield and Mary Patrick Chatfield. Odell attended Richfield schools and graduated high school in 1940. He then attended the University of Idaho, with an interruption to serve in the U.S. Army Air Corps during World War II. After leaving the service, he returned to the university for a year.

Odell married Faye Johnson in July 1947. He often said that "The Lord made me complete when he put Honey Faye's hand in mine." The couple returned to Richfield to farm for 18 years and raised their three children, Carolyn Owens, Dena Gubler and Calvin Chatfield. They moved to Buhl in 1966 when Odell became a field man for IdaGem Cooperative. In 1970, they moved to Jerome. After the closure of IdaGem, Odell worked for the Jerome School District, where he continued until retirement.

Odell was preceded in death by his parents; brothers, Walter Chatfield and C.F. "Fay" Chatfield; sisters, Arlie Edwards and Beth Proctor; and son-in-law, Dennis Gubler. He is survived by his wife, Faye; daughters, Carolyn Owens of Jerome and Dena Gubler of Tampa, Fla.; son, Calvin (Edna) Chatfield of Richfield; and sister, Imogene Jauregui of Meridian. He is also survived by grandchildren, Stan (Jodie) Owens, Amie (Darren) Taber, Derek Gubler, Daryl Gubler and Riley (Crystal Loewen) Chatfield; and great-grandchildren, Chelsie, Tim, Eric, Martin, Moira, Megan, Wyatt, Connor and Jayden; and numerous nieces and nephews.

Those who loved him will miss his stories and silly songs. Always a farmer at heart, he enjoyed his garden, especially raising tomatoes and looking at agriculture in the valley. Odell was an active member of the American Legion Post 1 and the Richfield Grange.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Tuesday, Aug. 9, at Farnsworth Mortuary Chapel, 1343 S. Lincoln Ave. in Jerome, with a graveside service at 1 p.m. at the Richfield Cemetery. There will be a dinner following the graveside service at the Richfield Senior Center.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to the Jerome United Methodist Church, P.O. Box 90, Jerome, ID 83338; the Richfield United Methodist Church, Pat House, P.O. Box 9, Richfield, ID 83349, or to the charity of your choice.

Juanita Renee Corbit Govia

April 3, 1947-April 13, 2011

SOUTHERLIN, Ore. • Juanita Renee Corbit Govia died Wednesday, April 13, 2011, in Oregon.

She was born April 3, 1947, in Idaho Falls, Idaho, to Vincent C. (Bob) Corbit and Elva Maldonado Corbit. The family moved to California, where she graduated from high school. After marrying Lonnie (Mike) Hobson on March 25, 1967, they moved to Twin Falls, Idaho, where they had two daughters, Kellie Sue and Nickie Lea. Mike died in an automobile accident on Nov. 3, 1970, in Jerome, Idaho.

Juanita was a dental hygienist for Dr. Jack Adams for several years. She also taught a dental assistant class at the College of Southern Idaho in Twin Falls for several semesters. She married Richard Govia, who died Aug. 2, 2002. She had devoted her remaining life to her loving partner, Thomas (Kevin) Boger of Gooding, Idaho, and her daughters' families in Oregon.

She is preceded in death by her father, Vincent Corbit. She is survived by her mother, Elva Quigley of Jerome; brother, Dale C. Corbit of Idaho Falls; sisters, Julie Fiscus of Twin Falls and Trona Quigley of Oregon; nephew, Steven Hall of Jerome; daughters, Kellie Wood and Nickie Bartram; grandchildren Austin Helm, and Josie, Bodee and Brooklyn Bartram, all of Oregon.

Kathryn 'Kathy' Jean Fitzgerald

May 14, 1943-Aug. 1, 2011

BUHL • Kathryn "Kathy" Jean Fitzgerald, 68, of Buhl, passed away Monday, Aug. 1, 2011, at her home of pancreatic cancer.

Kathy was born May 14, 1943, in Rochester, N.Y., to George and Annabelle Berry. She graduated from Greece Olympic High School in 1958. Kathy worked for the Greece Central School District, retiring from there in 1986. She served as the church secretary at the Port Orange, Fla., Nazarene Church. Kathy took piano lessons as a small child and began playing piano for church services when she was 16. She was a gifted piano player who played by ear. She directed numerous church cantatas and loved to scrapbook. She worked briefly for Black Rock Clothier in Buhl. Kathy's greatest blessings were her children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. She was a member of the Buhl church of the Nazarene. She said, "The greatest thing that ever happened in her life was when she asked the Lord to forgive her of her sins and take over her life."

Kathy is survived by her son, Todd (Bridgitta) Hamilton; daughter, Sherri Laubert; seven grandchildren; nine great-grandchildren; sisters, Shirley Knapp, Florence (Ormand) Gilbert Smith and Arline (Larry) Gerdes; and many nieces, nephews and cousins. She was preceded in death by her parents.

A memorial service will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, Aug. 6, at the Buhl Church of the Nazarene. A private family burial will take place at the West End Cemetery in Buhl prior to the service. A viewing will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. Friday, Aug. 5, at Rosenau Funeral Home in Twin Falls. Family and friends may share their memories of Kathy at www.rosenaufuneral-home.com.

Elden C Ryals

Aug. 23, 1921-July 25, 2011

PAYETTE • Elden C Ryals passed away at Ashley Manor in Payette, Idaho, on Monday, July 25, 2011.

A memorial service will be held at a later time.

Elden was born in a one-room log cabin at Lockerby, Utah, on Aug. 23, 1921. He was the first child of Chester and Ione (Hanson) Ryals. Times were hard and life was rugged during Elden's early years. The family moved to Boise, Idaho, in 1923. He attended school in Barber and at Garfield School in South Boise and graduated from Boise High School in 1940. He was drafted during World War II and spent 2½ years stationed in Iran and one year in Germany and France. He was discharged in November 1945, from the Army Corps of Engineers.

Elden was always an honest, hard-working fellow from his earliest childhood. Being the eldest in a family of three boys, he was frequently called upon to help out at home. He worked in the hay fields at Mayfield for several summers during his high school days. He worked for Morrison-Knudson Co. for many years before purchasing a machine and blacksmith shop in Fairfield, Idaho. He sold the shop three years later and moved the family to Filer, Idaho. He was employed by the Twin Falls County Highway Department, the INEL in Arco and, in 1968, became an inspector for the Idaho Department of Labor, from which he retired in 1985. He served as mayor of Filer from 1978 through 1981.

Elden married his high school sweetheart, Vera McAnulty, in 1942, and they spent more than 69 happy years together.

He and Vera had three sons and a daughter. His passions in his younger years were skiing and fishing. In later years, his interest lay in the family, church, hunting and, most of all, his grandchildren. He became a Christian at the age of 20 and was a very active member of the South Boise Presbyterian Church, Fairfield Community Church, Filer Missionary Church and the Weiser Christian Church.

Elden is predeceased by his parents; brother, Carl; and sister-in-law, Betty Mae. Elden is survived by his wife, Vera; his daughter, Wanda of Twin Falls; sons, Lanny (Kathy) of Ontario, Steven (Jody) of Council and Stanton (Lennie) of Boise; his grandchildren, Tami Ryals, Troy Dewey, Mike Talamantes, Travis Ryals, Yolanda Martinez, Shannon Ryals, Sara Kehayias, Cheston Ryals, Christy Ryals, Laura Ryals, Brock Anderson and Seely Anderson. He has 32 great-grandchildren and four great-great-grandchildren. He is also survived by his brother, Buck (Helen); and many nieces and nephews.

He will be missed by many from the communities that he has lived in and the lives he has touched. Arrangements were under the direction of Cremation Society of Idaho (www.cremationsociety-idaho.com).

Kevin S. Konz

Feb. 21, 1987-June 24, 2011

CEDARVILLE, Calif. • Kevin Scott Konz was born Feb. 21, 1987, in Alturas, Calif., and passed away Friday, June 24, 2011, in Cedarville, Calif.

Kevin attended Surprise Valley Elementary School and graduated from Surprise Valley High School in 2005. He was active in 4-H, FFA and various school sports and activities. He had a passion for the outdoors, which began early in his life and was nurtured through his involvement in Boy Scouts. He loved to hunt, fish and camp and, most recently, became a steelhead fishing enthusiast in Idaho with his brother-in-law, Lucas. Kevin's love of the outdoors led him to his career. He was employed by the Surprise Valley BLM as a lead wild land firefighter, where his co-workers respected him.

Kevin also enjoyed playing sports, especially baseball. He played Little League, high school baseball and played for the Styx and then Hooters fast-pitch softball teams. Kevin was an incredible natural athlete and was good at just about every sport he attempted. Kevin met his wife, Whitney, while they were both working as firefighters for the BLM. Their friendship grew to love and her family welcomed him into their fold. They were married Aug. 8, 2009. Kevin was very loved and respected by his wife, Whitney, and her family.

Kevin will always be remembered for his wonderful smile and the twinkle in his eyes. People could always count on him to lend a helping hand when needed. He never met a stranger and treated everyone as a friend. Kevin's friendliness and compassion for others was evident in the 575 people who came to say goodbye. He was also a man who loved and enjoyed his friend's family. He had a close relationship with parents, his sister and brothers, his wife's family and his nieces and nephew.

Kevin is survived by his wife, Whitney; mother and father, John and Shana Konz; grandmother, Mary Baxter; sister and brother-in-law, Megan and Ramon Neilson; brothers, Ian and Alex Konz; nieces, Kendall and Leigha Neilson and Olivia Bloxham; nephews, Abram Neilson and Dominique; mother and father-in-law, Connie and Randee Martin; brother and sister-in-law, Lucas and Theresa Bloxham; and brother-in-law, Jacob Martin. Kevin also leaves behind many friends throughout the community and BLM, including the Soletti family, which was a second family throughout his life. He was preceded in death by his grandfather, Grady Baxter.

Kevin will be greatly missed by his family and friends. May you rest in peace, Kevin.

In lieu of flowers, a memorial fund has been set up at Plumas Bank.

A service was held June 29 in Cedarville, Calif.

Ron Ostermeier

Dec. 28, 1939-Aug. 2, 2011

On the birthday of his twin sons, Tuesday, Aug. 2, 2011, Ron went to celebrate with Reed in the presence of God and other family members.

Ron was born Dec. 28, 1939, in Ontario, Ore., to Edwin and Elsa (Hodson) Ostermeier. He lived until 4 years of age with his parents on a farm outside Parma, Idaho. When his dad was diagnosed with health problems, the family moved to Lynwood, Calif., where Ron graduated from high school in 1958. That fall, he attended Boise Junior College (now Boise State University) and became a member of the undefeated National Junior College Championship Football Team. This was always a source of pride to him. He later attended Idaho State University, where he met Sharon Brinegar. They were married Saturday, June 4, 1966. Ron went through graduation at ISU on Sunday, June 5, and immediately following the ceremony, he and Sharon flew to Los Angeles, Calif., where he went to work for the J.C. Penney Co. on Monday, June 6. This would be the story of Ron — always responsible to his work, family, church and friends. When he took on a task, he did it wholeheartedly!

Ron and Sharon's first son was born in San Gabriel, Calif. Sean was a special child that was diagnosed with a rare genetic disorder, but Ron took him up on his big arm and proudly led him through his four years of life.

Shane and Reed (the Osties) came as a double blessing, and Ron was their biggest supporter through many experiences in Jerome and elsewhere. One of the toughest times in Ron's life was when Reed was killed in a car accident in 2001, but his strong faith and love of family was always his guide. He always said, "You just have to have faith."

Ron and Sharon's life in Jerome started in 1975 when he came to work for Duge Pharris. He later became known as "Mr. O," the manager of King's. He served as president of the Lions Club and has shared his smile and quiet walk with God at the Jerome First Presbyterian Church. "Nothing is so strong as gentleness, and nothing is as gentle as real strength" (St. Frances de Sales).

After retirement from King's in Buhl, Ron devoted his time to the Jerome Interfaith Association Food Pantry. He loved to merchandise the shelves and share the goods. One of his greatest loves was time spent at the Jerome Recreation Center, where he could be seen with his big stick and heard with an early morning greeting to all. For several years, he faithfully put out the equipment for the "Over 60 and Getting Fit" classes. Ron was honored to be given the Extra Mile Award from the Jerome Chamber Ambassadors Program last October. He also was nominated for the Jefferson Award in May 2010.

He has been a giant teddy bear to his family and is survived by his wife of 45 years, Sharon; his son, Shane; his brother, Garry of Front Royal, Va.; his parents-in-law, Bud and Virginia Brinegar; brother-in-law, Clyde and family; and several cousins from the Ostermeier and Hodson families. He was met in God's presence by his sons, Sean and Reed; his parents, and numerous loving aunts and uncles.

A viewing will take place from 4 to 6 p.m. Friday, Aug. 5, at the Hove-Robertson Funeral Chapel in Jerome. A family service for interment will be at the Dry Creek Cemetery in Boise on Saturday, and a memorial service will be held at 10:30 a.m. Monday, Aug. 8, at the Jerome First Presbyterian Church, with Pastor Nate Dreesmann officiating.

Memorials can be made to Student Affairs, via Idaho State University Foundation, in memory of Ron Ostermeier (921 S. Eighth Ave., STOP 8050, Pocatello, ID 83209), or to the Jerome First Presbyterian Church.

Our thanks go out to Dr. James Irwin and Lori, Dr. Kent Smith and to Visions Hospice.

Non-profit Community Spotlight Joe Mama's Car Show

Started by Joe Skaug and a group of community minded people in the Jerome Walmart parking lot some 13 years ago. As time went by and the show outgrew the Walmart Lot, Joe looked to the City of Jerome to help make the show even bigger and better. Expanding to the North and South Parks in Jerome, and closing Main Street for the Biggest One Day Car Show in the State of Idaho, has helped make this Car Show a huge Success.

In 2008 Magic Valley Early Iron Car Club took over the show from Joe, and has continued the Tradition of this Community Event. With 16,000 Spectators, hundreds of cars, from several states, this event puts the spotlight on Jerome. This year the City of Jerome is sponsoring a Friday night Cruise and BBQ which will bring hundreds of Cars down South Lincoln from Con Paulos Chevrolet to City Parks at 7:00PM. Smokin' Cowboy will be cookin up a $5 Barbecue, so bring your lawn chair and enjoy live music by "The Resilients." Also included in the festivities is a Rib Eating Contest. For more information on the Cruise Night or Rib Eating Contest call Nicole at 208-324-9200.

On Saturday at noon, the Main Street attractions include Dale Harsin's Worlds Fastest '57 Chevy, Top Fuel Dragster, and Drag Racers, Mark Kidd, Diana Anderson, Kenny Anderson, and more local favorites.

Don't forget Marvel Comic Book Character IRONMAN will be there to sign Autographs, so kids bring your Mom and Dads and your cameras to have your picture with IRONMAN. Boomin Audio will be hosting a Stereo Event on Saturday as well. There will be food vendors, along with Schwans Ice Cream, sponsored by United Dairymen of Idaho and lots of things to see and do, so plan on spending the day.

The show is FREE to spectators, and each person showing a car is asked for a $10 donation to benefit a local Charity. Last year the recipients included, Jerome Optimist Club, Twin Falls Optimist Clubs Coats for Kids, Jubilee House, and La Pasoda. For more information visit the website at www.joemamascarshow.com.

Humanitarian Bowl Renamed Famous Idaho Potato Bowl

The name change is part of a new six-year sponsorship agreement with the Idaho Potato Commission.

BOISE (AP) • With a new corporate sponsor and name, Idaho's only college football bowl game bid goodbye Wednesday to humanitarians and said hello to spuds.

The Humanitarian Bowl will become The Famous Idaho Potato Bowl after the Idaho Potato Commission signed a six-year naming rights deal to underwrite the game running through 2016.

Commission president and chief executive officer Frank Muir said he knew the tuber jokes were coming even before he inked the deal to name the game played on the blue turf of Boise State University stadium after his state's signature crop.

For example, there might be comm-taters instead of announcers.

Or maybe there could be a partnership with the Idaho Cattle Association for the Meat and Potatoes Bowl.

On Tuesday, somebody even sent out a Twitter message suggesting the game's organizers bring former University of Iowa coach Hayden Fry out of retirement to play against Oregon coach Chip Kelly.

"You know what I say: Bring it on," Muir said. "We love it. The more potato jokes, the better. You have to have a tough skin to be in the potato business."

Idaho, whose license plates already brag about the state's "Famous Potatoes," remains the largest U.S. producer of potatoes, a position it has held since 1957. Potato farmers generated about $690 million in revenue in 2010.

Financial terms of the sponsorship haven't been released, but Muir said

Deion Sanders will be enshrined in the Pro Football Hall of Fame this weekend in Canton, Ohio.

DEION DANCES HIS WAY TO CANTON

The legendary cornerback played for five NFL teams and four Major League Baseball teams. He's the only man to play in both a Super Bowl and a World Series, and he'll be enshrined in the Pro Football Hall of Fame this weekend.

IRVING, Texas (AP) • Imagine this: Deion Sanders high-steps across the stage at the Pro Football Hall of Fame induction ceremony, circling his newly unveiled bust. He looks at it quizzically, as if something's missing. He then reaches for his back pocket, pulls out a do-rag, places it on the head of the statue and smiles.

Why not? Even today, long after the "Prime Time" of his career, Sanders is all about being flashy.

For 14 seasons, Sanders strutted his stuff across the NFL, a threat to score — or at least shake things up — on defense, special teams and occasionally offense. His talent was undeniable, although often overshadowed by his flamboyance.

His induction Saturday night will seal his greatness. Getting in the first time he was on the ballot is further confirmation he was among the most dominant players of the 1990s, arguably one of the most dynamic players of any era. He's also one of the most unique, a trend-setter whose legacy is still evident every Sunday.

"Deion had the ability to not only focus on his craft and play football at the highest level, he could also entertain," said Eugene Parker, Sanders' agent and close friend who will present him for induction.

"He always used to say, 'I do what I love and I love what I do.' He wanted to express that exuberance for what he was doing."

The first time he returned a punt in the NFL, he took it 68 yards for a

Reinstated Brooks Re-signs with CSI Men

The second-leading scorer for the national champions had been suspended following a March arrest.

BY STEPHEN MEYERS

Jerrold Brooks is back.

The College of Southern Idaho's second leading scorer on last season's championship men's basketball team re-signed with the Golden Eagles Wednesday, signaling an end to his suspension in the wake of a March arrest.

"He has fulfilled all the requirements that we've placed on him," said CSI athletic director Joel Bate. "He's at the end of the rope now. According to our drug and alcohol policies and academic requirements, he has been reinstated."

The 5-11 sophomore guard averaged 15.4 points for the 33-4 national championship squad and his reinstatement gives the Golden Eagles 10 players signed for the 2011-12 season.

Brooks and teammate Luke Cothron were suspended indefinitely on March 23, a day after they were arrested and charged with marijuana possession. Brooks and Cothron pleaded guilty on April 14 to reduced misdemeanor

Beck Soaks in Solo Run as Starter

The former BYU quarterback was earmarked late last season as the face of the future for the Washington Redskins.

ASHBURN, Va. (AP) • For the first five practice days of training camp, John Beck has enjoyed having the Washington Redskins starting quarterback job all to himself, getting the first-team work while the team waited for Rex Grossman to re-sign and become eligible to take part.

On Wednesday, the fifth day of the solo run, Beck sported a new look, switching jerseys from No. 3 to No. 12.

A number change during camp usually isn't a big deal, especially for a player who hasn't been in a regular season game since 2007, but Beck is the type who doesn't mind telling a story from start to finish. Plus, his unexpected rise to contender for the No. 1 spot — and the extraordinary confidence that Mike Shanahan has expressed in him — has made Beck the most compelling story of camp.

So here's the condensed version of the tale behind the jersey. It started when Beck wore No. 14 in his first year of flag football because he worshipped Ty Detmer.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Washington Redskins quarterback John Beck throws a pass during the NFL football team's training camp practice on Wednesday in Ashburn, Va.

"First year of tackle football, my coach, I think he was a big Terry Bradshaw fan or something," Beck said. "He gave me 12 and I was, like, furious. I went home, just so mad. But I rode 12 the entire time through Pop Warner, junior high, high school and college."

Beck couldn't wear No. 12 after he was drafted by Miami because it belonged to Bob Griese and had been retired. He got it back when he went to Baltimore for a season and wanted it again when he joined the Redskins during training camp last year, but it already belonged to receiver Malcolm Kelly and there wasn't time to make the switch. Everything's now been worked out. Kelly has switched to No. 14 — and he didn't even make Beck buy him lunch for it.

"I really don't think Malcolm liked his number. ... He told me it brought him injuries," said Beck, who, realizing what he had just said, then knocked the wood on the podium a couple of times.

Fans will relish such biographical tidbits if Beck wins the job

CSI Volleyball Ranked Fifth to Start Season

BY DAVID BASHORE
dbashore@magicvalley.com

Practice hasn't even started and the College of Southern Idaho volleyball team already finds itself in lofty territory.

The Golden Eagles' campaign for a record-extending 10th national championship was given a jump-start Wednesday when they were given the No. 5 ranking in the NJCAA Division I preseason poll.

"I honestly didn't think we'd be ranked that high. I was hoping for the top 10," said sixth-year CSI coach Heidi Cartisser. "I'm excited and thankful that we have that much respect."

Western Nebraska, the 2010 national champion, took the top spot, followed by Miami Dade (Fla.), Western Wyoming and Iowa Western.

CSI is the highest-ranked of four Scenic West Athletic Conference teams in the preseason Top 25. Salt Lake and North Idaho, the conference's two representatives at the 2010 national tournament, were ranked seventh and 17th, respectively. Snow College sits at No. 24.

According to poll archives on the NJCAA website, no previous team

Muir says the decision follows the tradition of other bowl games that were once named after commodities such as the Orange Bowl in Florida or the Cotton Bowl in Texas.

Kelly's Ducks from the Pac-12 conference won't play in the Idaho game, at least not until 2013, because the game has a contract to feature teams from the Western Athletic Conference and the Mid-American Conference until then.

This year, the game is scheduled for a wintry Dec. 17.

Since 2007, the Boise bowl game had corporate sponsors from the transportation world — Roady's Truck Stops and Udrove, which makes software for truckers to manage their in-cab paperwork.

But for most of its 15-year existence, the game has been known as the Humanitarian Bowl, a nod to the World Sports Humanitarian Hall of Fame that's located on the campus of Boise State — even though there's no official affiliation.

Kevin McDonald, the executive director of the game, said it became clear early on that to butter up the Idaho Potato Commission, a name change was needed.

"They wanted some form of the potato bowl," McDonald said. "If we were going to strike a deal, the length of the term had to be right, and (it was necessary) for us to change our name."

had been ranked higher than seventh to start a season after missing the national tournament the year prior.

But when CSI reports this week ahead of practice starting next Wednesday, that shortfall will be old news.

"I think with the recruits we have, the talent warrants being in the top five," Cartisser said. "I hope our team rises to that level and the respect level they have for us. Hopefully the players stick to it and take care of it."

charges of frequenting a place where illegal substances are present.

In the agreement, the two received suspended jail sentences and were ordered to serve a year of probation in Twin Falls County Fifth District Magistrate Court.

Cothron, a mid-term transfer from Auburn, had already re-signed with the Golden Eagle program in April.

Now, Brooks returns to the court and can focus his full attention on helping the Golden Eagles defend their national championship.

"We evaluated everything that he did and set requirements for him this summer and he's been a model citizen and student athlete for us this summer," Bate said.

"I expect nothing else but good things from Jerome."

A message left with CSI men's basketball coach Steve Gosar was not returned Wednesday evening.

A Legendary Contingency Plan

Video game makers are bracing for an extended NBA lockout, wanting to take the attention away from labor strife by focusing on former players who made the league popular. In the upcoming “NBA 2K12,” which goes on sale Oct. 4 despite the lockout, 2K Sports plans to introduce a new mode called, NBA’s Greatest, that will feature the league’s top 15 players of all-time and some of the most famous rivalries.

Hartmann, as Grantor to Pioneer Lender Trustee Services, with Dan Staples as to 37.03%, Dean and Kristin Cook as to 38.53%, William Hull as to 13.33% and George Davis as to 11.11% as the Beneficiaries, under the Deed of Trust executed on April 24, 2008 and recorded April 28, 2008, as Instrument No. 2082247, Jerome County records.

THE ABOVE GRANTORS ARE NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506(4)(a), IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THEY ARE, OR ARE NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION.

The default for which this sale is to be made is the failure to pay the amount due under the certain Promissory Note and Deed of Trust, in the amounts called for thereunder as follows: Monthly payments in the amount of $3,250.15 for each month commencing September 30, 2008 to the date hereof and including each month to the date of sale; together with late charges and monthly payments accruing and failure to pay the taxes due for 2008, 2009 and the first half of 2010 which are delinquent and failure to maintain the property. The sum owing on the obligation secured by said Deed of Trust is accelerated and the sum of $270,000.00 as principal, plus interest from September 30, 2008 to the date hereof at the rate of 14% per annum, plus monthly late fees in the amount of $162.50 service charges, attorney's fees, costs of this foreclosure, any and all funds expended by Beneficiary to protect their security interest, plus interest accruing at the rate of 14% per annum together with delinquent taxes plus penalties to the date of sale.

The Beneficiary elects to sell or cause the trust property to be sold to satisfy said obligation.

BEFORE THE DEPARTMENT OF WATER RESOURCES

OF THE STATE OF IDAHO

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

IN THE MATTER OF THE PROPOSED )

CREATION OF A WATER MEASUREMENT )

DISTRICT FOR THE MEASUREMENT AND )

REPORTING OF GROUND WATER RIGHTS )

IN THE UPPER BIG AND LITTLE WOOD ) RIVER BASINS )

The Director of the Idaho Department of Water Resources ("Director") is authorized to create water measurement districts and have direction and control of the measurement of water diverted from all public water sources, including ground water. Section 42-706, Idaho Code provides authority for the Director to create a water measurement district provided that any appropriation or use included in a water district created pursuant to chapter 6, title 42, Idaho code, shall not be included in a water measurement district.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, pursuant to Section 42-706(2), Idaho Code, that the Idaho Department of Water Resources (IDWR or Department) will conduct a public hearing, as follows:

PUBLIC HEARING FOR PROPOSED CREATION OF A WATER MEASUREMENT DISTRICT FOR GROUND WATER RIGHTS IN THE UPPER BIG AND LITTLE WOOD RIVER BASINS:

6:30 PM, August 16, 2011 at the Wood River Middle School, Room 860, 900 2nd Ave North, Hailey, ID

IDWR proposes creation of a water measurement district for the purpose of measuring and reporting ground water right diversions located within the Upper Big and Little Wood River Basins as shown on the map in Attachment A of this notice. The proposed district is located within IDWR Administrative Basin No. 37, including the Upper Big Wood River valley and Camas Prairie above Magic Reservoir, the Upper Little Wood River north of Carey, and excluding the Eastern Snake Plain Aquifer (ESPA).

Information and testimony presented at the hearing on August 16, 2011 will create a record upon which the Director will rely to determine whether the proposed action for creation of a water measurement district is appropriate. It is important that holders of ground water rights understand the proposed action and participate in the hearing. Persons attending the hearing will be provided an opportunity to make an oral presentation regarding the proposed action. Written comments may be submitted to the hearing officer at the hearing or at any time prior to the close of the written comment period on August 26, 2011. Written comments not presented at the hearing should be sent to the Interim Director, Department of Water Resources, PO Box 83720, Boise, Idaho, 83720-0098.

The hearing will be conducted in accordance with IDWR's Rules of Procedures (IDAPA 37.01.01). These rules may be viewed from the State of Idaho Department of Administration's website as follows:

The hearing will be conducted in a facility that meets the accessibility requirements of the Americans with Disabilities Act. Should you require special accommodations in order to attend, participate in, or understand the hearing, please contact the Department of Water Resources at least five days prior to the hearing.

Notice of this hearing has been sent to holders of ground water rights whose diversions are located within the boundaries of the proposed district, excluding de minimis ground water domestic and stock water rights, and non-irrigation use ground water rights with rates of diversion less than or equal to 0.24 cubic feet per second (approximately 108 gallons per minute). This notice has been sent to all holders of ground water rights that include an irrigation use component regardless of the number of acres under each right. IDWR proposes that all ground water irrigation rights be included in the measurement district. Copies of the individual notice with a map of the proposed measurement district boundaries may be viewed online at: <http://www.idwr.idaho.gov/> (go to the What's New tab).

Questions concerning this notice may be addressed to the IDWR state office at (208) 287-4800 or the IDWR regional office in Twin Falls at (208) 736-3033.

This Trustee's Sale is subject to a bankruptcy filing, a payoff, a reinstatement or any other conditions of which the Trustee is not aware that would cause the cancellation of this sale. Further, if any of these conditions exist, this sale may be null and void, the successful bidder's funds shall be returned, and the Trustee and the Beneficiary shall not be liable to the successful bidder for any damages.

Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, possessions or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the Deed of Trust executed by Robbie Probasco, aka Robbie Kendall Probasco and Kelly Probasco aka Kelly Lou Probasco, husband and wife, as Grantor(s) with Mortgage Electronic Registration Systems, Inc. as the Beneficiary, under the Deed of Trust recorded March 26, 2008, as Instrument No. 2008-006664, in the records of Twin Falls County, Idaho. The Beneficial interest of said Deed of Trust was subsequently assigned to Nationstar Mortgage, LLC, recorded June 29, 2011, as Instrument No. 2011012227, in the records of said County.

THE ABOVE GRANTORS ARE NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506(4)(a), IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THEY ARE, OR ARE NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION.

The default for which this sale is to be made is the failure to pay the amount due under the certain Promissory Note and Deed of Trust, in the amounts called for thereunder as follows:

Monthly payments in the amount of $2,115.89 for the months of February 2009 through and including to the date of sale, together with late charges and monthly payments accruing. The sum owing on the obligation secured by said Deed of Trust is $245,008.83 as principal, plus service charges, attorney's fees, costs of this foreclosure, any and all funds expended by Beneficiary to protect their security interest, and interest accruing at the rate of 8.125% from January 1, 2009, together with delinquent taxes plus penalties and interest to the date of sale.

The Beneficiary elects to sell or cause the trust property to be sold to satisfy said obligation.

LEGAL NOTICE
Notice of Public Hearing
Heyburn Urban Renewal Project
Heyburn Urban Renewal Agency
Proposed Budget for Fiscal Year 2012
A public hearing for consideration of the proposed Urban Renewal Project budget for the fiscal year that begins October 1, 2011, and ends September 30, 2012, will be held at the Heyburn City Hall, 941 18th Street, Heyburn, Idaho on Monday, August 22, 2011 at 11:00 am, pursuant to Idaho Code 50-1002. Written or oral comments about the proposed budget are welcome. Written comment may be submitted prior to the meeting to: Heyburn Urban Renewal Agency, c/o Heyburn City Hall, P.O. Box 147, Heyburn, ID 83336.
The Agency budget funds the programs, services, and capital projects that the Agency Board and the City Council have determined to be important to meet the Agency's strategic goals. City Council Resolution No. 2010-6 adopted on July 14, 2010, authorized the establishment of the Urban Renewal Agency. The Agency conducted its first meeting on January 31, 2011. Since January 2011, the Agency has worked on the preparation of the urban renewal plan. The Agency expenses have been limited to legal expenses and other planning expenses. Those activities have been funded by the city of Heyburn in an amount of $20,000. Expenses through June 30, 2011, total $21,741. The Agency expects to incur additional expenses of $5,000, through September 30, 2011. The budget below shows the breakdown of anticipated expenses for FY 2012. Again, for FY 2012, the Agency's revenues will be limited to the remaining amount of the City's initial advance. The Agency may receive a second advance of $25,000 to consider a second project area and to provide for operating costs for FY 2012. This second advance is secured by a commitment from the project developer to reimburse the City and Agency under certain conditions.
This public hearing on the proposed budget is required for formal adoption of the FY 2012 budget. The proposed expenditures and revenues for FY 2012 have been tentatively approved by the Heyburn Urban Renewal Agency Board of Directors on August 1, 2011.
The City Hall is accessible to persons with disabilities.

ORDINANCE NO. 538
AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF HEYBURN, IDAHO, VACATING THE ALLEY IN BLOCK 77 OF THE HEYBURN TOWNSITE; PROVIDING FOR SUSPENSION OF THE RULE FOR THREE READINGS AND DECLARING THIS ORDINANCE ADOPTED AFTER ONLY ONE READING; AND, PROVIDING FOR EFFECTIVE DATE.
WHEREAS, the City of Heyburn has determined that it has no need of the alley in Block 77 of the Original Townsite of Heyburn, Idaho; and,
WHEREAS, the Council finds that the vacation of such alley is in the best interests of the City to promote orderly and effective growth and the use of the land in Block 77 of the Original Townsite and surrounding same; and also finds, however, that it needs to retain the said alley as an easement for utility access purposes as set forth herein.
BE IT ORDAINED by the Mayor and City Council of the City of Heyburn as follows:
Section 1. The City hereby vacates as a public alley, the alley running east and west, in the center of Block 77 of the Heyburn Townsite, which alley was created in Section 3. D. of Heyburn Ordinance No. 369.
Section 2. The City, however, retains the property where the said alley was located as an utility easement. The City retains an unobstructed and non-exclusive right of ingress and egress thereon for the purpose of access to utility facilities of the City and to bury and/or erect utility infrastructure and appurtenances upon, over and underneath same and to maintain and service all of the same. Such infrastructure includes, but is not limited to, burying underground pipe, lines, placing manhole openings, pumping facilities, transformers, poles, guy wires, anchors and supports, power lines, and other utility structures. This easement is both for entry upon the land described and to travel over such land to gain access to the utilities and utility structures of the City. The term of this easement shall be perpetual.
Section 3. The City declares that title to the land of such vacated alley shall pass, one-half each, to the adjoining owners as provided in Idaho Code Section 50-311.
Section 4. The City Council having by authorizing motion and vote waived the rule of requiring three separate readings of this Ordinance by title and in full, therefore this ordinance shall be in full force and effect from and after its first and only reading, passage, approval and publication.
Passed this 13th day of July, 2011, by the City Council of the City of Heyburn.
Approved this 13th day of July, 2011, by the Mayor of the City of Heyburn.

Today's Highlight:

On Aug. 4, 1735, a jury found John Peter Zenger of the New York Weekly Journal not guilty of committing seditious libel against the colonial governor of New York, William Cosby.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1790, the Coast Guard had its beginnings as the Revenue Cutter Service.

In 1830, plans for the city of Chicago were laid out.

In 1892, Andrew and Abby Borden were axed to death in their home in Fall River, Mass. Lizzie Borden, Andrew's daughter from a previous marriage, was accused of the killings, but acquitted at trial.

In 1916, the United States reached agreement with Denmark to purchase the Danish Virgin Islands for $25 million.

In 1936, Jesse Owens of the U.S. won the second of his four gold medals at the Berlin Olympics as he prevailed in the long jump over German Luz Long, who was the first to congratulate him.

In 1944, 15-year-old diarist Anne Frank was arrested with her sister, parents and four others by the Gestapo after hiding for two years inside a building in Amsterdam. (Anne died the following year at Bergen-Belsen.)

In 1964, the bodies of missing civil rights workers Michael Schwerner, Andrew Goodman and James Chaney were found buried in an earthen dam in Mississippi.

In 1977, President Jimmy Carter signed a measure establishing the Department of Energy.

In 1987, the Federal Communications Commission voted to abolish the Fairness Doctrine, which required radio and television stations to present balanced coverage of controversial issues.

In 1991, the Greek luxury liner Oceanos sank in heavy seas off South Africa's southeast coast; all 402 passengers and 179 crew members survived.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

"His thinking does not result in smoke after the flashing fire, but in light emerging from the smoke."
— Horace

North-South did well to avoid three no-trump today, but East, the venerable comedian George Burns, playing with me as his partner, could have spoiled his opponents' good work. Can you see how?

East won his club ace at the first trick, and when the king appeared, he played a forcing game by continuing the attack on clubs. Not surprisingly, this line of defense was doomed to failure. Declarer drove out the trump ace, ruffed the next club, drew the rest of the trumps, ran the hearts, and did not even need to take the spade finesse for his contract.

At the end of the first trick, East can tell from the auction that declarer rates to have a singleton club and either five cards or six in the majors, together with almost every missing high card. A spade return can hardly help; instead, East should try to disrupt declarer's communications in case South has this actual hand-pattern.

At trick two, East shifts to a heart, hoping that declarer only has a doubleton heart. Declarer wins the king and plays the diamond queen. East wins the ace and plays a second heart, leaving declarer unable to run the hearts because there are still trumps out.

The best chance he has for his contract is to try to cash a third heart, then take the spade finesse. But East can ruff in at once, and there is an inevitable spade loser now.

ANSWER: Redouble shows good clubs and suggests a place to play. You should be delighted to pass and play the contract here. Not only should it be relatively easy to come to eight tricks, but who says you can make any other game?

“Who trained the swans to push those boats?”

DEAR ABBY: This is embarrassing to say, but yesterday my sister wanted to go tanning, so our neighbor's father took us. After she got out of the car, he started to touch me inappropriately and say nasty things.

I told him to stop and that I didn't like it, but he kept on. Should I tell the police? Or my old social worker? I don't know what to do. My sister and I stay home a lot because our parents work, and I'm afraid he'll do something worse.

Please don't print my name or location. I don't want my parents to know just yet. I'm 20 and don't know how the law works for this type of assault. This is considered an assault, right? Please answer soon.

— SCARED ON THE EAST COAST
DEAR SCARED: NO ONE has the right to put his hands on you without your permission! While what your neighbor's father did may not have been an assault, it could be considered sexual battery. You should definitely inform your social worker right away. A man who would do this to you is completely capable of doing it to a minor. Your social worker will know how to handle the details.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend was laid off 11 months ago and hasn't been able to find another job since. My problem is, he isn't seriously looking for one. Every time I suggest he get one he becomes angry, or if I suggest a specific job he gives me some reason why he won't take it — such as the pay is too low. He has no college education and no other formal schooling. What does he expect?

I love him, and other than this our relationship is pretty great. But lately this is causing a major strain because I want more for him. I hold two jobs and will be continuing my B.S. in psychology next year. I have tried being nice, being rude, and discussing it with him. He just doesn't “get” that I'm losing respect for the man I once admired. How can I make him see he needs to do more with his life than collect unemployment?

— STRIVING HIGHER IN CALIFORNIA
DEAR STRIVING HIGHER: With today's job market what it is, it's possible that without further training your boyfriend may not be able to find another job that offers the same wages and/or benefits as the one he lost. Remind him that his unemployment benefits are finite — they're not going to last forever.

He needs to understand that when that happens, you are not going to support him. He may be depressed, but the longer he sits around, the longer it'll take him to become motivated. Even if he can't find work right now, he can seek further job training. He can also do volunteer work, which would get him out and circulating and help him to make more contacts that could lead to permanent employment.

IF AUGUST 4 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Be ready to try on the star's costume, as your popularity soars this month. Friendships and group activities might take center stage with you in the lead. Feel free to reach for the stars with financial maneuverings and business dealings throughout September and October. You're intrigued by your own fantasies and can get lost in them during November, so steer clear of commitments that could impact your wallet or your heart. A major improvement in your life is likely in January when an unexpected opportunity may come your way. Have faith in the universe to send you just what you need.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A little goes a long way. Show off with a creative and innovative flair, as it may be just the thing to get attention and win applause. At the same time, do not spend excess money just to impress others.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): The hypocritical bird seldom catches the worm. People can see right through your casual assurances and insincere apologies. A self-indulgent and lazy attitude won't earn any gold stars at the workplace.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): There is no time to rest on laurels when there is a job to be done. It is a good idea to be adaptable, as well as amenable, if you want to remain on good terms with friends and succeed in the business world.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Acting on your fantasies might put a dent in your wallet. Be sure you share a similar outlook with your peers before putting your foot in your mouth by expressing unpopular or controversial opinions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): The birds of a feather that flock together sometimes leave a mess behind. Rather than socializing and competing to see who has the biggest boat, car or bank account, apply yourself to the tasks at hand.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You are likely to lack limits due to a love of luxuries. A latent tendency to spend more than you make might come out of the closet for a few hours. Take action cautiously to ensure dreams come true.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Some people meet you with a smile on their face, but judge you unfairly in private. Other people may choose to see only your worst side, even if it is not based on reality and only their own projections.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A little dab'll do ya. You must fight off the urge to go whole hog over a minor matter. Keep your purse strings closed, because items that reflect your good taste will be difficult to find under these stars.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Take pride in your earning power and the lovely things you can buy. Although you won't want to waste your resources on extravagances, a thoughtful purchase might bring a smile to the face of a lover.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Dealing with those who offer faint praise could make you uncomfortable for a few moments today. By staying calm, rational and even-tempered, you can win brownie points on the career front.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): If you give an inch, they will take a mile. People might pay lip service to the niceties to win favor in your eyes. You must guard against being flattered into submission by these sorts of folks today.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Walk the walk while you talk the talk. An affectionate partner expects to see action to go along with your words of love. Creative ideas are blossoming—especially if you discuss your dreams with another.

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

Economy

cut his 2011 forecast for growth this year to 1.8 percent from 2.6 percent. And he has bumped up the likelihood of another recession to 20 percent from 15 percent.

“The last week has made it much more likely that corporate profit estimates will be revised lower,” said Nick Kalivas, a vice president of financial research at MF Global.

The stocks that have fallen the furthest have been those of companies that fare best in economic expansions. Industrial companies like Caterpillar and Boeing, energy companies like Exxon Mobil and Chevron, and retailers like Amazon and Coach have all fallen by more than the broader stock market.

Investors have pushed government bond yields to their lowest level of the year. The 10-year Treasury note now yields 2.6 percent. Bond yields typically fall when the economy is weak because nervous investors view bonds as a safe place to park their money, and there’s less chance that inflation will erode their value.

The economy started sputtering early in the year. Economists at first thought the slowdown would be temporary, the result of a short-term rise in gasoline prices and an earthquake in Japan that disrupted shipments of auto parts and electronics.

But the weakness persisted. And it worsened as a political fight over debt and deficits raised the risk that the U.S. government would not be able to pay all its bills.

“It now seems fairly clear that those shocks have done a lot more damage than we expected,” says Leo Abruzzese, global forecasting director for the Economist Intelligence Unit. “They seem to have had a devastating effect on confidence.”

After the government reported that the economy grew

A trader work on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange on Wednesday, in New York. With no clear sign of what will invigorate growth, there is mounting fear on Wall Street that the U.S. risks sliding into a long-term economic coma.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

at an annual pace of 0.4 percent in the first quarter and 1.3 percent in the second, Abruzzese is cutting his estimate for 2011 growth from 2.4 percent to less than 2 percent.

It’s hard to see anything lifting growth to the 2.5 percent needed to keep unemployment from rising, let alone the 5 percent needed to bring the rate down significantly from June’s 9.2 percent.

“Sales are what keeps the market moving higher, and there’s not much demand when there’s only 0.4 percent growth,” said Andrew Goldberg, U.S. market strategist at JP Morgan Funds.

When the economy grows less than 2 percent over a 12-month period, it risks slipping into recession, says Mark Vinner, senior economist at Wells Fargo Securities. Over the most recent such period, the economy grew just 1.6 percent.

Few economists are predicting another recession, despite a series of weak economic reports. Gasoline prices have come down from their high of almost $4 a gallon in May. And Japanese factories are starting to crank up again after the March earthquake.

At the heart of the economy’s problems are the debts that consumers built up during the early and mid-2000s. Many borrowed against the equity in their homes, convinced that house prices would rise forever.

When housing prices collapsed, people were left owing more than their homes were worth. Others charged up their credit cards. Now it’s payback time, and Americans are spending less or spending cautiously as they slash their debts.

Companies are reluctant to hire until they’re convinced enough customers are ready to buy their products or services. Corporate profits are booming, though, because companies laid off millions of workers, learned to operate more efficiently with smaller staffs and expanded in growing markets overseas.

“If companies were inclined to hire, they could,” Abruzzese says.

So companies are waiting for consumers to spend, and consumers are waiting for companies to hire them or offer generous pay raises and job security. It’s a tough cycle to break.

In the past, the government has helped by spending on infrastructure projects or jobs programs. This time, it’s cutting at all levels. In the second quarter, government cutbacks reduced economic growth by 0.2 percentage points.

Fatal Crashes Down in 2010

Idaho’s roadways were statistically safer in 2010 than the year prior. But more crashes were caused by people who chose to drive under the influence of alcohol or narcotics.

TIMES-NEWS

Idaho’s number of fatal vehicle crashes and the lives they claim continue a downward trend.

The Idaho Transportation Department recently released its 2010 crash report, which notes that fatalities dropped for a fifth straight year. The 2010 tally was 209 fatalities from 185 crashes, 7.5 percent fewer deaths statewide than in 2009.

In District 4, which includes the eight counties of south-central Idaho, 39 people were killed on Idaho roadways last year. That figure has continued its downward trend since 2007.

Although the number of deaths is decreasing, the cause of those crashes increasingly points to impaired driving. The report cites 96 fatal crashes as the result of driving under the influence, nearly a 30 percent increase from the year prior.

By the Numbers

According to ITD, these were the most common traffic violations Idahoans were convicted of in 2010.

1. Speeding 45.4%
2. Safety restraint 17.7%
3. Insurance 8%
4. Failure to stop 6.4%
5. Driving under the influence 5.7%

all but Cassia County reported increases in safety restraint usage.

Cassia County’s figures dropped by 7.6 percent.

The report claims that in 2010, 72 people across the state died in crashes during which they were not wearing a safety restraint.

The total number of all crashes statewide in 2010 also decreased by 1.9 percent.

Poultry

Agency representatives devoted the majority of the time to discussing regulations to protect Idaho’s groundwater. Some groups want requirements more stringent than what large beef and dairy facilities are held to, citing a chance to firm up such protections while the poultry industry is young.

“At this point, there is no consensus on groundwater regulation,” said John Bilderback, section manager for the ISDA dairy and confined-animal feeding operations bureau. “The only agreement we have is that we may regulate production wells, which the dairy and beef farms do already.”

Representatives from the Idaho Conservation League and Humane Society are pushing for more rules.

“We have serious groundwater issues now,” said Courtney Washburn, community conservation director for the Idaho Conservation League. “We need regulation not only for the poultry industry but for beef and dairy as well.”

While a handful of poultry farms are currently working in the state, the industry is expected to boom as other states have enforced stricter operating rules.

“At this point, the discussion is agency-focused since not that many poultry facilities are operating in the state right now,” Bilderback said. “More operators are expected to come to the state, which is why we need to prepare now.”

Fair

80 dozen ears of corn.

The annual barbecue is a symphony of organization and is pulled off with a bevy of helpers ranging from Minico High School’s football team to children from the Idaho Youth Ranch.

“Things have to happen real quickly,” said Brad Cottom, whose note-taking from year to year provides the groundwork for the event.

“And just when we think we’ve got it all figured out, something changes,” said Darrell Hatfield, head Lions cook.

Squeals, snorts and grunts emanated from a nearby barn as young 4-Hers ushered animals around the sale ring.

Donna Gillespie, extension educator for Minidoka County, leaned briefly against a fence and took a breath.

“Have you ever tried to take pictures of pigs on the run?” Gillespie asked. “We have our tricks, though – we give them watermelon and marshmallows and they come right over.”

It’s always lively at the Minidoka County Fair, she said.

Sweet SWEET Olathe Corn!

Hurry in for your chance to enjoy some of the sweetest corn you’ll ever taste – Olathe Corn is here!

Hand picked at the foot of the Colorado Rockies, Olathe Corn might just be the crispest, tenderest and sweetest corn you’ve tasted.

In fact, the grower picks only the first ear of corn on every plant because it’s the sweetest corn on the stalk. The gentle handling of hand picking means it can be harvested sooner, while it’s at its sweetest.

The cool Colorado nights in the small, unique growing region add even more to the natural sweetness of this variety.

Fresh, hand-picked ears are arriving every day at your nearest Fred Meyer. Be sure to get your fill now, because it won’t be here very long!
