The paint job on the hood of the 1982 Mazda RX7 is an example of what Matt Eden calls "cop humor."

The visage of Porky Pig in mid-flight, complete with an ACME rocket strapped to his back, adorns the modified dragster, proving in a way that pigs can fly. Today in Gooding, the modified car will be on display and in action at the Beat the Heat event at High Desert Speedway near Gooding.

According to the event's website, Beat the Heat began in Florida in 1984, and police nationwide use it as a tool to educate drivers about the dangers of racing on public roads. Eden, a staff sergeant with the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office, got area law enforcement agencies and businesses involved starting in 2002. He is a racing enthusiast who became enthralled with dragsters as a high-schooler.

"I'm a car builder," he said. Area automotive businesses contributed their time and resources to modify two county cars for the event.

A 1982 Mazda RX-7 will be at the drag strip for demonstration and racing in Gooding, while a 1991 Camaro B4C will be on display at Power Plant Car Audio and Accessories in Twin Falls for a stereo competition. The Camaro is a rebuilt Idaho State Police pursuit vehicle that was totaled years ago, bought by the county and used as a D.A.R.E. car. It is still used for traffic patrols, as it is street legal.

In addition to demonstrations and racing, Eden and his teenage BLM to Draft Travel Plan for Land in Blaine Co.

TIMES-NEWS

The U.S. Bureau of Land Management will begin drafting a plan to guide how people can traverse a vast swath of public land north of Idaho Highway 20 in Blaine County.

The area's Travel Management Plan will cover 240,000 acres, with the western boundary marked by Chimney Creek, and Craters of the Moon National Monument and Preserve and Fish Creek lining the eastern boundary.

The plan will designate what limits on recreational and commercial travel will be placed on the public land. This will determine all other forms of motorized and non-motorized access to these areas, as well.

The BLM has designated 30 route systems on 11.6 million acres in Idaho. Similar plans are currently underway for three other areas in Idaho.

Public meetings will begin this month for those who wish to submit comments on the planning process for Blaine County.

Take Part

The BLM will take public comment on the travel plan at these meetings:

Aug. 22: 4:30-7:30 p.m., Hailey, Community Campus Room 301-302, 1050 Fox Acres Road.
Aug. 24: 4:30-7:30 p.m., Twin Falls, LaQuinta Hotel, 539 Pole Line Road.
Aug. 29: 4:30-7:30 p.m., Fairfield, Camas County

Senior and Community Center, 129 W. Willow Ave.

Aug. 30: 5:30-8:30 p.m., Carey, BLM Carey Fire Guard Station.

If you can't make the meetings, you can email comments to North_Highway20_Travel_Plan@blm.gov, fax 732-7317 or mail BLM Shoshone Field Office, 400 W. F St., Shoshone, ID 83352.

CSI Tries Second Site for Housing

After a previous effort to build new apartments failed, the T.F. college is setting its sights on a 40-unit complex southwest of campus.

BY BEN BOTKIN

The College of Southern Idaho has tentatively selected a patch of land southwest of its Twin Falls campus for a new student apartment project.

The college plans to purchase 8.5 acres adjacent to the Sawtooth Surgery Center, which is at the intersection of Falls Avenue and Washington Street North. The currently undeveloped land is west and south of the surgery center. The college is waiting to see if the city signs off on its plan to build at that location before buying the property.

It's the second effort CSI has made to build more student housing in recent months. The Twin Falls City Council in April rejected a proposal from the college that would have allowed student apartments to be built at a separate site east of campus.

This potential project would put

UPDATE

Windmill Fire Continues to Burn

TIMES-NEWS

After a fierce night of lightning storms, U.S. Bureau of Land Management fire crews spent all day Friday working to contain and control wildfires throughout the area.

The BLM crews, along with those from other agencies and fire districts, responded to eight wildfires on Friday, among 16 fires that were reported to have ignited the night before. The largest fire, the Windmill Fire, was located four miles southwest of Bliss and started up around 8 p.m. on Thursday.

According to the BLM, it burned 17,400 acres of public and private land by Friday evening. Aside from about 30 power poles lost to the fire, no structural damage was reported. No containment time had been set for the fire yet, though 75 percent of it was contained. By the evening, about 120 people were engaged in battling the blaze.

The Windmill Fire is burning close to the location a fire that was given the same name last year when it burned southwest of Bliss in mid-July.

Other fires included:

Double A: Covering 8,500 acres southwest of Shoshone, it was still unchecked Friday evening. The BLM characterized it as fairly active, with nine engines, three dozers, one helicopter, three single-engine air tankers and one heavy air tanker among the resources committed. Some power lines and livestock are in the area threatened.

Deadhorse: At 4,000 acres north of Gooding, with no containment estimate set. The response included two engines, one hand crew and more aerial resources.

Sailor Creek: Fully contained and controlled, crews were departing this fire west of Roseworth, which was revised in size to 1,721 acres.

Lava Rock: Three engines and a helicopter are working to halt this 200-acre fire north of Shoshone. No containment time is estimated yet.

Highway 93: This fire is fully contained and controlled. It measured 200 acres in total.

Brown's Bench: This fire started at about 2:20 p.m. on Friday. It was estimated at 175 acres and response included engines and air support, with no containment time set.

River Road: This fire reached 16 acres before it was contained, with full control expected on Friday evening.

students within walking distance of campus. Graydon Stanley, dean of students at CSI, said student feedback has been strongly in favor of housing options that are close to the college.

Building plans at this point still need to be worked out, though the preliminary concept includes 40 two-bedroom units. There's much work ahead, including completing engineering and architect design and hiring a builder.

The project would supplement the college's Northview Apartments, a 42-unit mix of one- to three-bedroom apartments. That complex has a waiting list of nearly 20 prospective renters, college officials said.

The college also has an on-campus dormitory, but Stanley said there's been increased demand for student housing that offers apartment-style living with kitchens.

Mike Mason, vice president of administration, said at a Friday meeting of the college's Dormitory Housing Commission that the necessary approvals of the zoning and plan could be in place by October.

Police: Robber Took Money for Gas, Family

BY LAURIE WELCH

Ramirez

BURLEY • The Burley teen accused of robbing the Unit 54 convenience store on July 27 allegedly told police he robbed the store so he could put gas in his car and help his mother pay her electric bill.

Police say Neftali Ramirez, 18, also told them he wired $50 taken in the gunpoint robbery to an uncle, to be sent to his brother in Mexico. Ramirez is charged with two robbery counts, burglary and destruction or concealment of evidence, all felonies.

He's scheduled for a 9 a.m. Aug. 12 preliminary hearing in front of Cassia County 5th District Magistrate Judge Rick Bollar.

According to the criminal complaint for the case, two store clerks were on duty, with one securing an outside icebox for the night when a male quickly approached her.

He asked, "Where's all your money?" and pulled a gun, according to the complaint. The suspect then told the clerk to go inside, followed her in and pointed the black handgun at the other clerk. He left with $180, according to the complaint.

An anonymous tip led detectives investigating the robbery to Ramirez, who allegedly told them the gun was a plastic BB gun he bought in February. Police say Ramirez told them he hanged an extra shirt on a fence across the street from the store and changed into it after the robbery, before traveling through residents' backyards to get to his East 15th Street home.

He allegedly told police he discarded a hat, bandanna and white shirt he wore during the robbery in a yard while fleeing, and tossed the BB gun in a field by Mountain View Elementary School the next day.

Burley Library Gets a Boost

TIMES-NEWS

The effort to build a larger Burley Public Library just got a $10,000 boost.

That's the dollar amount of a grant the Laura Moore Cunningham Foundation recently gave the Friends of the Burley Public Library.

The Cunningham Foundation is one of the oldest and largest charitable foundations in Idaho. Its donation will finance initial planning for the building, and the Friends hope it will also encourage other potential donors to help out.

The grant joins about $50,000 previously raised from other donors and a $100,000 pledge from the Burley Lions Club.

SHOSHONE SIDEWALK PROJECT FINDS NEW LIFE

BY EMILY KATSEANES

For the Times-News

SHOSHONE • The Shoshone City Council took another swing at starting a project to put a sidewalk, curb and gutter into a stretch of Beverly Street that skirts behind the Lincoln County Courthouse.

A first round of bids was rejected earlier, when the estimated costs came in too high for the city and the ground for the road would need more work before paving could begin. But the project has another opportunity to get off the ground, this time with help from the Lincoln County commissioners in footing the bill.

Mayor J.R. Churchman said the commissioners are interested in getting the work done and are willing to split the cost with the city.

"They want to go ahead with that project," Churchman said.

The project would end up costing Shoshone and Lincoln County about $24,000 each to build up and pave the street and add curb, gutters and sidewalks.

"The community center is a great thing," Councilman Dale Sluder said. "It's brought a lot to our community."

Council members said they would need firmer quotes before moving ahead. City maintenance employee Perry Silva said he could gather detailed bids for the curb, gutter and sidewalk work for the next council meeting.

"The community center is a great thing," Councilman Dale Sluder said. "It's brought a lot to our community."

The council also decided to move ahead on another stalled plan. The council and city maintenance employees had been waiting to spend money budgeted for a new pickup truck until the prices for 2012 pickups were released. Tuesday. The council decided to purchase a 2011 model instead.

"I don't know why we're still talking about it," Councilman Dan Pierson said. "Dale (Sluder) made a motion weeks ago to buy one. Let's get 'er done."

In other news, the city decided to take action on a Florence Street tree encroaching on residential property. Silva said one large limb has prevented the city crew from trimming it back safely.

The council also held the first reading to adopt the preliminary budget for next year after a public meeting to address the proposed budget drew no resident input.

T.F. RESTAURANT OWNER CHARGED WITH DRUG TRAFFICKING

TIMES-NEWS

A Twin Falls man was charged with trafficking in marijuana after police claim they found 2.4 pounds of pot in his home.

Jarried Graff, 29, was arrested on Thursday after Twin Falls police searched a residence on Grant Avenue, where another man,

Graff

Seth Maughan, 34, told police he purchased marijuana. Maughan was allegedly found in possession of drugs during a traffic stop earlier that day. He was charged with delivery of a controlled substance and frequenting a place where drugs are found.

Graff is the owner of Lefty's Smokehouse, a recently opened downtown Twin Falls barbecue restaurant.

Upon execution of a search warrant, police say they found multiple stash- es of marijuana in different parts of Graff's house. Also seized by police were $1,200 in cash and 11 guns, including an assault rifle.

Graff was released on his own recognizance and ordered to a court compliance drug-testing program. A preliminary hearing is scheduled for Aug. 12.

Nevada Bones Are Those of Animal, not Human

TIMES-NEWS

Bones recently found in an area of northern Nevada where a Canadian man went missing this spring are those of an animal and not a human, Elko County officials reported Friday evening.

Investigators were alerted to bones discovered in the Gold Creek area of the U.S. Forest Service's Mountain City District. But Elko County Sheriff's Sgt. Kevin McKinney concluded they are old animal bones, sun-bleached and exposed to the elements for some time, according to an email from Cpl. James Carpenter.

Albert Chretien, 59, went missing in March as he and his wife, Rita, were on their way to Las Vegas. While taking a detour to visit Jackpot, Nev., the couple's van became stuck on a muddy road in Bruneau Canyon in Elko County. Rita was found alive nearly 50 days after they went missing, but Albert had earlier left the van seeking help.

Citizens Question Wendell Library Board After Resignations

The library is open again and its board plans to hire a new director, but public concerns remain.

BY EMILY KATSEANES
For the Times-News

WENDELL • Days after the resignation of Wendell's library staff and a two-day closure of the building, about 17 Wendell citizens showed up to a library board workshop Thursday to hear its future.

The board focused on planning next year's budget, but also addressed re-opening the library and hiring a new director. The building has since been re-opened.

"We have every intention of the library to continue," board president Jan Gooding said, fielding an audience question about it reopening.

The board voted to run an advertisement for a new director modeled after the ad used to hire former director Elaine Dalton. Dalton's resignation last Friday came after months of tension between the board, and Dalton and library patrons. Two other staff members resigned in support of Dalton.

Newly appointed board member Gene Estes volunteered to reopen the library until Dalton's replacement is hired.

"I'm available if that's an option," Estes said. "I'd try it, but I'll be upfront: I don't have a clue what's going on in there. The most I can do is move the rubber stamp, but I'm willing to step up and try."

Board member Wilma Butigan offered to help Estes when it was possible to do so.

Former chairman Mike Hollomon, who is no longer on the board, asked for time for public comment at the close of the meeting. Gooding said she wouldn't open the meeting for public comment on the advice of the Idaho Counties Risk Management Program and the Idaho Commission for Libraries.

"It's all personnel issues and we're dealing with it on the advice of ICRMP and the Idaho Commission for Libraries," Gooding said. "That's pretty much all I can say."

Nevertheless, two citizens spoke out of order before the meeting adjourned, including Cindy Carter, who had previously spoken at a City Council meeting regarding the library.

"You just don't want to hear criticisms that you've screwed up," Carter said.

At a regular Wendell council meeting later that night, Mayor Brad Christopher son, who was also at the library board meeting, read Dalton's resignation letter.

"I hate to see her go," Christopherhson said of Dalton. "That's sad"

WYO. HORSE ROUNDUP PLAN CHANGES TO BIRTH CONTROL

BY BEN NEARY
Associated Press

CHEYENNE, Wyo. • Backing away from a plan to castrate wild stallions that has incensed environmental groups, the U.S. Bureau of Land Management on Friday announced it will instead use a birth-control drug on mares to reduce the growth of wild horse herds in southwestern Wyoming.

The agency earlier this week informed a federal judge in Washington, D.C., that it was dropping its plan to capture and castrate hundreds of wild stallions in the area between Rock Springs and La Barge in response to a legal challenge from environmentalists.

The agency said the total population of roughly 1,000 wild horses in the White Mountain/Little Colorado herd management areas is roughly three times more than it should be. Private livestock operators, as well as Gov. Matt Mead, are concerned about the horses' effect on the range.

The BLM had planned to round up nearly 900 wild horses, castrate the stallions and release 177 geldings back to the range. It called for putting the rest of the captured horses up for adoption or sale or sending them to long-term holding sites.

In its modified decision, the BLM said it still plans to round up nearly 900 horses, although it's planning to move the start of the roundup from mid-August to Sept. 1.

The agency plans to send nearly 700 of the horses to holding facilities. It would release the rest after the mares receive a birth-control drug. Only the relative handful of wild mares that escaped capture would continue to breed for up to about four years, the life of the drug.

The American Wild Horse Preservation Campaign, the Western Watersheds Project and environmentalists in Wyoming and Colorado had challenged the original castration plan, suing to block its implementation. The groups argued that the BLM adopted the plan without adequate review and that it would violate federal law by not leaving viable horse herds.

Suzanne Roy, with the preservation campaign in North Carolina, said her group hopes the BLM's legal defeat teaches the agency that it shouldn't propose to castrate wild horses. She said the agency was considering the method in other roundups planned for Wyoming, Oregon and Nevada.

Roy said her group and the other plaintiffs were considering whether they could expand their lawsuit, which is pending before U.S. District Judge Amy Berman Jackson in Washington, to try to get a blanket ban against wild horse castration or take some other approach.

"Our concern is that they withdrew this plan here, because clearly they can see the problems with it legally from the perspective of the lack of any analysis whatsoever," Roy said. "But our concern is that they can just try to implement it elsewhere?"

Roy said her group finds the birth-control approach acceptable because, unlike the castration plan, it wouldn't change the animals' behavior. Overall, she said she believes the BLM should reduce sheep and livestock grazing on public lands rather than target wild horses.

The Rock Springs Grazing

Association recently filed a separate federal lawsuit seeking to force the federal government to remove all wild horses on roughly 2 million acres of private land, including some of the area where the roundups are planned. The association said wild horses are damaging private lands.

Cindy Wertz, public affairs specialist for the BLM in Cheyenne, said no decision has been made on whether to try to castrate stallions in two other roundups scheduled later this year in Wyoming.

Wertz said the BLM has used the birth-control drug on mares before and said it was planning to gather some next week to see how well it worked.

"Our goal is always to remove the excess wild horses in a safe and humane way, and we want to get down to the appropriate management level for that area, this is how we're going forward with that,'" Wertz said.

WENDELL ADOPTS NEW WATER FEES

BY EMILY KATSEANES
For the Times-News

WENDELL • The Wendell City Council, minus an absent Ilene Rounsefell, adopted a resolution Thursday to help staunch the stream of money flowing out of its water services.

The change includes a late fee equal to 10 percent of a delinquent water bill's balance, that will kick in the day after bills are due.

Mayor Brad Christopherson said he understood the strain this may put on some Wendell citizens, but that the measures were needed to help the city maintain a working water system.

"Our new policy caused quite a stir," he said. "I'm sorry for that but there is a reason why we're changing this."

In the past, the city of Wendell has had to send bills as high as $46,699 to Statewide Collections to be recovered. In 2010, a little less than $9,000 was written off as uncollectable.

Other fees in the new resolution include a meter-tampering fee of $50, an after-hours reconnect fee of $50 and a returned check fee of $37.50. The cost of installing new meters will also go up slightly to help the city recoup costs. Security deposits for new accounts will remain the same at $100.

Christopherson said that loose enforcement by the city in the past contributed to the high amount of uncollected bills.

"I'll admit that probably the city created part of this. We've been way too lax in the past," he said.

The city has also adopted a stricter shut-off policy to help manage its water costs.

In other business, the council passed on a possible property purchase. Hidden costs shied Wendell away from sealing a deal to buy a $1 home through a U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development program.

Such sales through the program come on the condition that the property, or the money generated from the sale of the property, be used for community development.

The house on Fifth Avenue comes with $2,500 owed in back taxes and a $45,000 judgment against it in bankruptcy court.

"That kind of took the wind out of our sails," Christopherson said.

The mayor said the city had had a verbal offer from a developer for the property, so a transaction is not completely out of the picture.

Defendant Yasushi Mikuni, center, reacts in court during a sentencing hearing Friday in Cedar City, Utah.

JUDGE: JAIL FOR DRIVER IN FATAL UTAH BUS CRASH

BY JENNIFER DOBNER
Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY • A tour bus driver who caused a crash that killed three Japanese tourists last year was spared a lengthy prison term Friday when a judge sentenced him to less than a year in jail for his role in the wreck.

Yasushi Mikuni was facing the prospect of 15 years behind bars, but instead got just under a year in jail and three years of probation. Judge Michael Westfall also ordered the 26-year-old Japanese student to pay restitution to each of the crash victims and court fines.

“I think this was a great outcome,” Mikuni’s Las Vegas-based defense attorney Garrett Ogata said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press. “I think the judge saw how Yasushi presented himself at each and every court hearing and even said that he handles himself with remorse.”

Ogata said Mikuni, who sobbed through Friday’s hearing, was so deeply affected by the accident that he went to the crash site with his father and brother to pray for the victims and their families.

The 26-year-old driver originally was charged with 10 felonies but pleaded guilty in May to three felony counts of operating a vehicle negligently, causing serious injury or death.

Utah Highway Patrol investigators said that on the day of the crash, Mikuni, a Japanese citizen living in Las Vegas on a U.S. work and education visa, was driving on little sleep after a long work day the day before.

Tests showed he also had marijuana in his system. Investigators said they didn’t believe Mikuni was impaired while driving, but that he was sleep-deprived.

The bus carrying 14 Japanese tourists was headed from Nevada to national parks in Utah and Arizona on Aug. 9, 2010, when it rolled on Interstate 15, about 250 miles south of Salt Lake City. Three died and 11 others were injured, including Mikuni.

Judge Michael Westfall sentenced Mikuni to 15 years in prison Friday but then suspended most of the sentence. Court records show Mikuni will spend 363 days in the Iron County Jail.

He was taken immediately into custody.

Killed in the crash were Hiroki Hayase, 20, of Osaka, Japan; and Junji Hoshino, 38, and his wife, Junko Hoshino, 40, from Shinjuku, Japan.

Some of the Japanese tourists’ families wrote scathing letters about Mikuni to the court, asking for imposition of the death penalty or a life sentence, Ogata said.

Judge Delays Move to Replace Providers of Idaho Disabled Care

BY REBECCA BOONE
Associated Press

BOISE • A judge says Idaho can’t switch to just one provider for some types of Medicaid services for the developmentally disabled until the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services decides whether the practice complies with federal law.

The decision from U.S. District Judge B. Lynn Winmill was handed down Thursday — just one day before the state’s contract with Community Partnerships of Idaho was to go into effect. The ruling keeps dozens of other residential habilitation companies across Idaho in business, at least for now.

Some adults with developmental disabilities live in certified family homes under a Medicaid program that aims to provide a family-style living environment for people who need assistance with daily activities. Under the program, each certified family home must work with a residential habilitation agency, which provides training, oversight and quality assurance to the homes.

Earlier this year, under pressure from lawmakers to cut its budget, the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare decided to have just one residential habilitation company oversee all the Medicaid-covered certified family homes in the state. But legal guardians Russell and Sandra Knapp sued on behalf of their ward, Jason Knapp, and Jana Shultz sued on behalf of her ward, Toby Shultz, in Boise’s U.S. District Court. The Shultz and Knapp families contended that the switch would violate their wards’ right to freely choose their own health care providers.

Meanwhile, a group of residential habilitation agencies who were already suing the state over reimbursement rate cuts also asked the federal court to stall the proposed change until the federal regulatory agency, Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services, reviewed the plan and decided if it complied with federal law. The companies contended the change was illegal because it amounted to a 100 percent rate cut for some providers, and because it would illegally reduce the services given to Medicaid clients.

In Thursday’s ruling, Winmill wrote that the change should be put off at least until the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services can review the plan.

Under the new contract with Community Partnerships of Idaho, the state would pay $1,075 a year for new clients and $628 per year for existing clients already in certified family homes, Winmill noted. That’s a dramatic cut compared to current rates, which pay $2,905 per year per client.

But the new contract also amounted to a cut in services, the judge found — only requiring Community Partnerships to make a face-to-face visit to certified family homes once a year. Most residential habilitation companies now working in Idaho say they visit homes monthly or at least once a quarter.

Besides, Winmill said, if the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services rejected the state’s plan, Idaho will either have to find a way to undo its contract with Community Partnerships of Idaho — at a likely high cost to that company, the state and the companies that formerly provided the service — or the state would have to pay for the whole program without any federal matching funds. That would cost the state more than the $800,000 estimated savings it expects from switching to one provider.

Winmill rejected an argument from state attorneys that suggested the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services preferred to have contracts in effect before they are approved.

“It is ironic, if not plainly illogical, that the provision allowing for waiver ... is intended for ‘cost-effectiveness’ while the process for seeking and receiving the waiver results in such waste of resources,” Winmill said.

The preliminary injunction lasts until the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services completes its review, it is unclear when that action might occur. If approval is granted, Winmill said his court would likely defer to Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services’ findings.

Natural Gas Fuel Station Opens in Boise

BOISE (AP) • Supporters and business leaders this week celebrated the opening of the state’s first compressed natural gas fueling station in Boise, and they’re poised to mark the opening of a second station next week in Nampa.

The decision to make the stations available to the public emerged from a partnership between the Treasure Valley Clean Cities Coalition and Allied Waste Services.

In 2008, Allied Waste Services converted its Treasure Valley fleet of 50 heavy-duty vehicles to natural gas to avoid new regulations being proposed for vehicles using diesel fuel.

“It’s clean, it’s domestic, and it’s quiet,” Allied general manager Dave Fisher told the Idaho Statesman Thursday.

Compressed natural gas is also the fuel of choice for Val-leyRide, the region’s public bus system. The Statesman reports that the Boise Fire Department and a handful of other entities are considering conversion.

Still, it will likely be several years before more Idaho cars and trucks are running on natural gas and refilling at stations around the state.

Automakers are planning to offer more vehicles that burn natural gas, on average about $2 a gallon cheaper than gasoline. The trade-off is that natural gas vehicles can cost consumers $3,000 to $6,000 more.

General Motors and Ford both manufacture compressed natural gas vehicles for fleet use. But only Honda has brought a consumer option to market in the United States. In Europe, car buyers can choose from more than a dozen models.

Wash. Berry Farms Fined for Hiring Kids 6 and Up

BY MANUEL VALDES
Associated Press

SEATTLE (AP) • Three strawberry farms were fined a total of $73,000 for employing children as young as 6 as pickers, the U.S. Labor Department said Friday.

A child-labor investigation in June discovered nine underage workers at farms in the Washington towns of Woodland and Ridgefield. Investigators found several violations of labor law, including failing to maintain proof-of-age records and pay minimum wage among others.

The farmers were Marty Peterson from Columbia Fruit in Woodland; George Hoffman of George Hoffman Farms and Lee Nguyen of Berry Good Farms of Ridgefield. A call to Columbia Fruit was not immediately returned; phone numbers for the two others were not available.

No defense lawyers were listed in the court documents.

A farmworker advocate said child labor is a recurring problem in farms in southwest Washington. Many underpay their workers, leading families to bring their children to help harvest.

“We pay attention to kids and talk to them,” said Andrea Schmitt, an attorney for Columbia Legal Services who makes frequent trips to farms to inform workers of minimum wage law during harvest season. “We very often know a child has been working when that child’s hands are stained with berry juice.”

WATER MANAGERS ADOPT PLAN FOR N. IDAHO AQUIFER

BOISE • The state has a tentative plan to help protect northern Idaho’s Rathdrum Prairie aquifer, while still relying on this critical water supply that stretches from Lake Pend Oreille across the border to Washington state to benefit the region’s economy.

The Idaho Water Resource Board recently adopted the Rathdrum Prairie Comprehensive Aquifer Management Plan.

After it goes to the Idaho Legislature next year, the aim is for the 42-page document to be used to guide management of the aquifer over the next half-century.

NAVY RESERVIST FROM IDAHO TO RECEIVE PURPLE HEART

BOISE • A Boise member of the U.S. Navy Reserve will be awarded the Purple Heart this week for working to save six injured people despite his own wounds after a mortar attack in Afghanistan.

Hospital Corpsman 2nd Class Rodney White will receive the medal Saturday at Gowen Field. The medal honors service members who were injured by enemies or in actions against the enemy.

Col. Tim Marsano said in a prepared statement that White was deployed to Combat Outpost Terra Nova in Afghanistan on Aug. 24 last year when he was injured by shrapnel from a mortar round. But despite his own injuries, White started giving medical assistance to others — even though mortar rounds were still being fired.

He treated six patients for five hours until medical evacuation units arrived.

MAN KILLED WHEN HIT BY SEMI AT FOOD PLANT

PAYETTE • Idaho State Police and the Occupational Safety and Health Administration are investigating the death of a fork lift driver at a food processing plant in Payette.

The Payette County coroner tells KTVB-TV that 59-year-old Thomas Walker of Payette died Wednesday afternoon when he was hit by a semi tractor-trailer that was backing up in a loading dock area at the Seneca Foods plant.

Walker had worked at the plant for 40 years and planned to retire in November. He also worked part-time at a local pub, and served in the National Guard for 22 years.

Walker’s son, Aaron Walker, tells KTVB that the driver of the semi was a longtime friend of his father’s who is “devastated.”

IDAHO FALLS MAN SENTENCED TO PRISON FOR ASSAULT

IDAHO FALLS • A judge has sentenced Idaho Falls resident Pedro Lopez to between two and five years in prison.

But the Post Register reports that Judge Jon Shindering retained jurisdiction over the case for one year, leaving open the possibility that the 19-year-old Lopez could be released in 12 months if he does well in a special prison program called a rider.

Prosecutors said Lopez and 20-year-old Anthony Charboneau broke into another man’s apartment in May and threatened to stab him unless the victim gave them something of value. The victim reportedly told police his assailants took a diamond bracelet, wallet and other items.

Jury Convicts 5 Officers in Post-Katrina Shootings

Supporters of victims and their families hug outside Federal Court in New Orleans after five current or former police officers were convicted Friday in the deadly shootings on a New Orleans bridge after Hurricane Katrina in 2005. Former officer Robert Faulcon, Sgts. Robert Gisevius and Kenneth Bowen, Officer Anthony Villavaso and retired Sgt. Arthur Kaufman were convicted of charges stemming from the cover-up of the shootings. All but Kaufman were convicted of civil rights violations stemming from the shootings. Kaufman, who investigated the shootings, was charged only in the cover-up.

Senate Dems Give Way to End FAA Shutdown

But partisan differences remain, and a repeat of the legislative standoff could come next month.

BY JOAN LOWY

Associated Press

WASHINGTON • With tens of thousands of jobs, more than $1 billion and their reputations on the line, Senate Democrats gave way Friday to a power play by House Republicans in order to end a partial two-week shutdown of the Federal Aviation Administration.

With lawmakers scattered for Congress' August recess, the consent of only two senators was required to pass a bill restoring the FAA's operating authority through Sept. 16. President Barack Obama signed it into law hours later. But partisan differences remain, and a repeat performance of the legislative standoff could come next month.

The impasse had left hundreds of airport construction projects in limbo and idled tens of thousands of construction industry workers as well as nearly 4,000 FAA employees.

One of the biggest costs was to the hard-pressed U.S. treasury, which lost about $400 million in uncollected taxes during the two-week standoff and stood to continue losing $30 million a day — more than $1 billion in total — if there had been no solution before Congress returns from its recess.

For most of the stalemate, the nation's attention — and that of Congress — was riveted on the debt crisis finally tackled this week.

But that quickly shifted. Lawmakers were getting calls about unfinished airport towers and construction companies in dire straits at home. Some unemployed workers found their way to Capitol Hill to complain.

Democrats had been holding firm against the House legislation on FAA operations because it proposed cutting air service subsidies to 13 rural communities. In short, they feared getting steamrolled on similar legislation in the future if they gave Republicans their way. For example, spending authority for federal highway programs expires Sept. 30, another possible point of contention.

But once the focus fell away from the deal to avert a federal debt default, Democrats began to waver and finally gave up the fight.

Republicans achieved the subsidy cuts in the final law but with a major caveat. Transportation Secretary Ray LaHood has the authority to continue subsidized service to the 13 communities if he decides it's necessary.

Obama's signature means the nearly 4,000 furloughed FAA employees can return to work as soon as Monday. Work can also resume on more than 200 airport construction projects.

Army Trims War Tours to 9 Months

Pentagon is also planning to cut more than 8,700 civilian jobs in the Army over the next year, with about half coming from support staff at bases around the world.

BY LOLITA C. BALDOR

Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Aided by the shrinking troop requirements for the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan, the Army is cutting the current yearlong deployment tours to nine months for most of its units beginning next January.

The change will not affect any of the Army troops deploying this year, and some high-demand units — such as aviation and military police — will continue to serve 12-month tours.

The move comes as the Iraq war continues to wind down and as the U.S. begins what is to be a slow, deliberate withdrawal from Afghanistan.

And it reflects a reduced demand on the military as the Pentagon looks to shrink the size of the Army and Marine Corps and slash budgets in line with the administration's attempt to rein in spending.

As part of that effort, the Army is also planning to cut more than 8,700 civilian jobs over the next year, with about half coming from support staff at bases and installations around the world. Those could include maintenance, administrative and security staff.

Troop deployments to the war front were lengthened from one year to 15 months in early 2007 as the Bush administration surged forces into Iraq to quell the escalating violence. Army leaders, however, acknowledged that the longer tours, many with just 12 months rest at home between them, seriously stretched the service.

By late 2008, most units were back to serving one-year deployments, but many were still were not getting much more than a year's break at home before returning to war.

The goal has been to give soldiers two years at home between deployments, and officials said that while home breaks are increasing, they are not quite at 24 months on average for the combat brigades.

Aviation units are in particularly high demand and are not likely to see the shorter schedules for a while. And Army headquarters units will also continue to have 12-month deployments so that top leaders can better oversee the combat operations.

Under the shorter deployment schedule, soldiers will no longer get automatic leave to go home, but emergency leaves will still be considered. Most National Guard and Reserve troops will also see their deployments shortened to nine months, but they may be mobilized for the full year.

Myrtle Rose, 75, stands by her 1941 Piper J-3 Cub nicknamed 'Winston' on her property in South Barrington, Ill., Friday.

75-Year-Old Pilot Explains Encounter With F-16s

CHICAGO (AP) • Myrtle Rose was taking a short flight over suburban Chicago when the 75-year-old aviation enthusiast looked out her cockpit window to see two F-16 fighter jets. She assumed the military pilots were just slowing down to get a closer look at her antique plane.

It wasn't until she landed her 1941 Piper J-3 Cub that friends and the police told her the attention was much more serious — for straying into restricted airspace during a visit by President Barack Obama.

Rose, who tries to fly every day when weather permits, said she had been itching to get back in the air Wednesday after a number of days on the ground. She normally uses her computer to check for airspace restrictions, but it wasn't working properly.

"I hadn't flown in over a week," she said. "It was a beautiful afternoon." After some guests departed her home, she "just climbed in the airplane and left." To make matters worse, she said, "I didn't have my radio on. I was just flying around."

On any other day, the brief flight would never have attracted notice. But Obama was in Chicago for a fundraiser marking his 50th birthday.

"There's really no excuse for not knowing," said Lt. Col. Mike Humphreys, a spokesman for the North American Aerospace Defense Command, which scrambled the two warplanes, a proposition that costs $9,000 an hour for each jet. "Anyone who flies an aircraft should know the restrictions."

Rose said she was about 30 miles from O'Hare Airport when her plane was intercepted. As the fighters appeared, she wasn't alarmed.

"I thought, 'Oh, well, they're just looking at how cute the Cub is,'" she said Friday in an interview with The Associated Press.

Plane Gets All Clear After Evacuation in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP) • Passengers aboard a US Airways flight that arrived Friday from Scotland were removed from the plane because of a threatening note, and the plane was taken to another part of Philadelphia International Airport to be inspected, but nothing dangerous was found.

Airport spokeswoman Victoria Lupica told The Associated Press that the meticulous examination of Flight 968 by law enforcement and explosives experts found nothing amiss and the plane would continue its journey to Alaska.

The Boeing 757 had landed in Philadelphia in the afternoon, from Glasgow, Scotland.

The 157 passengers and six crew members had boarded the Anchorage, Alaska-bound flight when they were asked by Transportation Security Administration officials to deplane so it could be swept by law enforcement officials, US Airways Inc. spokesman Andrew Christie told the AP.

The TSA said in a statement that the investigation was launched because of a threatening note, but it didn't provide details about it. Lupica said she didn't know what the threat was, but she said the incident was referred to the FBI.

Hama in Ruins; Syria Says Revolt Quelled

BEIRUT (AP) • Syria's government showed off TV and still images of burned buildings and rubble-strewn streets empty of people in Hama, the epicenter of anti-regime protests, and claimed Friday it was putting an end to the rebellion in the besieged city.

Under the clampdown, residents of the city warned that medical supplies were running out and food was rotting after six days without electricity.

Across the country, tens of thousands of protesters marched, chanting their solidarity with Hama and demanding the ouster of President Bashar Assad. They were met by security forces who opened fire, killing at least 13 people, activists said.

Government forces began their ferocious assault on Hama Sunday, cutting off electricity, phone services and Internet and blocking supplies into the city of 800,000 as they shelled neighborhoods and sent in tanks and ground raids.

It appeared to be an all-out attempt to take back the city — which has a history of dissent — after residents all but took it over since June, barricading it against the regime. Rights group say at least 100 people have been killed, while some estimates put the number as high as 250.

The tolls could not be verified because of the difficulty reaching residents and hospital officials in the city, where journalists are barred as they are throughout Syria.

OBITUARIES

Leroy N. Otero

Aug. 23, 1928-Aug. 4, 2011

Leroy N. Otero, 82, of Twin Falls, Idaho, passed away Thursday morning, Aug. 4, 2011, at his home in Twin Falls.

Leroy was born Aug. 23, 1928, in Fruita, Colo., the son of Ambrose and Della Marez Otero. He grew up and attended schools in Colorado.

In 1944, Leroy married Vivian Enriquez in Fruita, Colo.; together they had two children, Marie and Betty. Vivian passed away Oct. 8, 1981. Later on, he met Maria Balles and together they raised their son, John.

In 1969, Leroy and his family moved to Rupert for a time and then to the Kimberly-Hansen area, where he worked for many years in the bean warehouse. He eventually moved to Twin Falls and worked as a laborer for many farms in the valley. On the side, he picked fruit for Richard Kelley at Kelley Orchard. He found much enjoyment being in the outdoors, whether it being picking fruit or working in his yard.

Leroy enjoyed gardening, fishing and going to Jackpot and visiting with friends, neighbors and family.

Leroy is survived by his loving companion, Maria Balles of Twin Falls; his three children, Marie (Ole) Greenup of Rupert, Betty (Dan) Lown of Burns, Ore., and John Otero of Twin Falls; and his three brothers, Robert Otero, Pete Otero and Howard Otero, all of Twin Falls. He is also survived by five grandchildren, six great-grandchildren and three great-great-grandchildren. He was preceded in death by his parents; his wife, Vivian Otero in 1981; and one brother, Fred Otero.

A celebration of Leroy's life will be held at 2 p.m. Monday, Aug. 8, at Reynolds Funeral Chapel, 2466 Addison Ave. E. in Twin Falls, with Pastor Paul Springer officiating. Burial will follow at Twin Falls Cemetery. A viewing for family and friends will take place from 5 until 8 p.m. Sunday at Reynolds Funeral Chapel. Services are under the direction of Reynolds Funeral Chapel in Twin Falls.

Bachmann Says Turning Around Economy 'Won't Take That Long'

BY RYAN J. FOLEY

Associated Press

NEWTON, Iowa • Michele Bachmann declared Friday "it won't take that long" for her to start turning the ailing economy around as president as she competed against other GOP presidential rivals to build support ahead of a key GOP straw poll in Iowa next week.

Four of Bachmann's opponents in the Aug. 13 straw poll in Ames — Tim Pawlenty, Newt Gingrich, Rick Santorum and Thad McCotter — later took turns bashing President Barack Obama's record at a Republican Party dinner at a high school in Tiffin and pitching themselves as best suited to defeat him.

Earlier in the day in Newton, Bachmann told reporters the economy would start to improve almost immediately after she becomes president because she would implement conservative economic policies to slash the nation's debt, stop tax increases and cut regulations.

"It won't take that long if we send signals to the marketplace," she said, standing by an earlier comment that the improvement would begin within the first quarter.

Reflecting the stakes of the straw poll, Santorum told the Friday night dinner crowd of about 400 activists the event would narrow the field and he urged them to give his struggling campaign a boost. He accused the media of ignoring him because he would be the strongest GOP candidate.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pawlenty said Republicans were poised to take back the White House because of Obama's increasing unpopularity and "Iowa has to get it right" in nominating the best GOP candidate. He said voters should consider his conservative economic and social record as governor of Minnesota and be wary of candidates who can give great speeches but aren't strong leaders — which he said described Obama in 2008.

"Barack Obama is ripe for the picking. In fact, I would say politically you could stick a fork in him," Pawlenty said. "The main way we're going to goof this up as Republicans is to nominate the wrong candidate."

Of the straw poll, Pawlenty said: "It's going to have a big impact on this race, so I hope that you will help us."

The dinner at Clear Creek Amana High School capped a day of hectic campaigning across Iowa that was expected to continue until the straw poll, the first test of candidate support in the state with the first-in-the-nation caucuses.

Speaking to supporters earlier in the day, Bachmann said the event would be historic.

"That is the day we will make a down payment on taking our country back and making Barack Obama a one-term president," she said.

Speaking in the parking lot of a Pizza Ranch in Newton, Bachmann said Friday's report that 117,000 jobs were created in July showed Obama had created far more campaign donors than jobs. She also said this week's plunge of the stock market was proof that an agreement to raise the nation's debt ceiling and cut spending that she voted against was "a stinky deal."

Woman Dies in N.C. Flood While Running from Police

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) • Amid heavy downpours, two women suspected of shoplifting at a Charlotte coat store ran into a swollen, fast-moving stream. One woman drowned and the other was missing, authorities said.

The torrential rains caused flash flooding, swamped drivers and forced residents to evacuate neighborhoods. Crews rescued motorists and residents by boat, and were searching the stream for the other shoplifting suspect.

"Tragically, today we had some people who were caught in very dangerous water conditions," Fire Department Capt. Rob Brisley said.

Police identified the dead woman as Gracie Nell Johnson, 43, but did not provide the name of the missing woman. Johnson and two others were at a Burlington Coat Factory in the city when a store employee called police to report shoplifting, according to a statement from police.

One of the trio was taken into custody, while Johnson and another woman ran. A store employee chased them, and all three plunged into a creek near the shopping center. The worker made it out, but Johnson and the other woman were swept away.

Texas Polygamist Leader Walks Out of Sentencing Hearing

BY WILL WEISSERT AND PAUL J. WEBER

Associated Press

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) • A polygamist sect leader convicted of child sexual assault walked out of his sentencing hearing in protest Friday, after reading a statement he claimed was from God. The statement promised a "whirlwind of judgment" on the world if God's "humble servant" wasn't set free.

Warren Jeffs, 55, represented himself during an eight-day trial that ended with his conviction on two counts of sexual assault. The same jury must now decide his punishment — which could be up to 119 years to life in prison.

But before the punishment phase began and jurors had even been brought back into court Friday, Jeffs said, "I request the full removal of myself as an objection to all that has been presented."

He asked to keep serving as his own attorney, but state District Judge Barbara Walther said he couldn't leave and continue to represent himself at the same time. Instead, she ordered two lawyers who had been Jeffs' standby counsel, Deric Walpole and Emily Munoz Detoto, to represent him.

"Mr. Jeffs, I know this is difficult for you to understand, but you do not have control over these proceedings," Walther said. Jeffs often stands in court and waits up to a full minute before speaking. He slowly and deliberately began responding, saying "I am..." but Walther ordered a recess.

Jeffs never returned to court, and the proceedings continued without him. Walther ordered jurors back to court Saturday to continue hearing testimony but indicated it still may be several days before the case will be handed back to them to decide the punishment.

Walpole said he didn't know if Jeffs would be present in the courtroom Saturday. Walpole wouldn't say whether he planned on calling any witnesses, but told jurors to keep in mind that Jeffs was raised in a strict, fundamentalist community that hasn't changed in centuries.

"He's a product of his environment," Walpole said.

Jeffs is the ecclesiastical head of the Fundamentalist Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, which believes polygamy brings exaltation in heaven. The more than 10,000 FLDS members nationwide see Jeffs as a prophet who is God's spokesman on Earth.

Jeffs had asked to be taken back to jail, but Walther said that would make it too difficult for his lawyers to communicate with him. Instead, he was placed in a room near the court and will be allowed to return to the hearing whenever he chooses. The judge said Jeffs won't be able to dismiss his attorneys again and go back to defending himself, however.

Johnson's body was found after a search.

"It's tragic when you go to many, many calls and save many, many lives that you have a call where you can't save a person's life," Brisley said.

Police and firefighters planned to continue the search as long as conditions remained safe.

Firefighters and other emergency responders began heading out on flood-related calls around noon.

PEACE CORPS CONDEMNS ALLEGED ABUSE BY VOLUNTEER

BY JOHN CHRISTOFFERSEN

Associated Press

NEW HAVEN, Conn. • The Peace Corps said Friday that a former volunteer's alleged sexual abuse of young girls in South Africa is "reprehensible" and the agency supports the vigorous prosecution of the case.

Thirty-one-year-old Jesse Osmun of Milford was arrested Thursday in Connecticut on federal charges of sexually abusing children at a center in Greytown, which helps AIDS victims. Authorities say Osmun molested five children under the age of 6, some multiple times, and gave them candy during a period between 2010 and this year.

"Mr. Osmun is charged with a shocking breach of the power entrusted to him as a Peace Corps volunteer," Assistant Attorney General Lanny Breuer said upon Osmun's arrest.

Breuer's attorney, federal public defender Sarah Merriam, declined to comment.

The Peace Corps said it was made aware of the allegations after Osmun resigned in May. The humanitarian agency, which is celebrating its 50th anniversary, said it immediately notified authorities and will continue to cooperate with them.

Every applicant undergoes a background check, the organization stressed.

"The Peace Corps has no tolerance for abuse of any kind, and our deepest sympathies are with the victims," the agency said in a statement.

In 2007, former Peace Corps volunteer Timothy Ronald Obert of Santa Cruz, Calif., was sentenced to more than four years in prison after admitting he had sex with a 14-year-old Costa Rican boy. Obert was fired from the Peace Corps.

Osmun was charged with engaging in illicit sexual conduct in foreign places.

Hiring Again, C3 a Godsend to Local Economy

CHEERS: To Florida-based C3, for increasing employment at its Twin Falls call center by one-third.

C3 announced this week it would add 300 workers to its 600-employee operation.

The company expects 50 of the new workers to be seasonal. Positions to be added include full-time customer service representatives and management.

C3 expects to begin hiring immediately. The seasonal employees will work until late December or early January 2012, though they'll be given first consideration to stay on for permanent jobs that open up,

The company opened its Twin Falls call center last year, pledging to bring as many as 1,200 jobs to the Magic Valley. It laid off 100 employees in February, citing a reduction in call volume.

Three projects — C3, the construction of the new St. Luke's Magic Valley and the federal stimulus-funded U.S. Highway 93-30 bypass completed last year — directly and indirectly generated several thousand jobs.

They're significantly responsible for the western Magic Valley avoiding the double-digit unemployment that the Treasure Valley experienced during the Great Recession.

In fact, since the first of those three projects — the hospital construction — got underway in early 2008, Twin Falls County unemployment has averaged 15 percent less than the statewide rate, according to the Idaho Department of Labor.

CHEERS: To the Murtaugh, Castleford and Bliss school districts and Xavier Charter School for making Adequate Yearly Progress under the No Child Left Behind Act ...

and JEERS: To some of the 21 south-central Idaho districts and charter schools that failed to make AYP, for dismissing its significance.

Just 62 percent of Idaho schools made adequate yearly progress on student tests. It's the same level of overall school success as 2010.

But the 62 percent level of 2010 was actually a dip from 2009, when 66 percent of Idaho schools made AYP, the highest level in the state's history. The latest results come amid a recent push by public schools chief Tom Luna to not increase the benchmarks used for measuring a school's progress.

Idaho froze its targets for measuring a school's proficiency this year at last year's levels: 85.6 percent for reading and 83 percent for math. That's coming as Luna works toward a growth-based model for accountability.

That's a step in the right direction, but administrators at several south-central Idaho that fell short of AYP downplayed its significance in remarks to the Times-News this week.

As a measurement, AYP flawed — but still important. Schools should be held to ever-escalating standards for student achievement, and parents should insist upon it.

LETTERS OF THANKS

Thanks to All Who Helped 'Evening of Jazz'

The Jazz in the Canyon Committee would like to thank the more than 100 people that supported music education July 14 at the Magic Valley Center for the Arts. We had a fabulous dinner prepared and served by Elevation 486. The beverages supplied by Cold Springs Winery and Watkins Distributing helped our guests relax and enjoy the evening.

Special thanks to our sponsors: Falls Brand/Independent Meat Co., Clear Springs Foods, Lytle Signs, Magic Valley Printing, First Federal Savings, Jeff/Evin Fox, Chris/Anna Scholes, Jan/Mike McBride, Kent/Nancy Taylor, High Spirits LLC, Magic Valley Arts Council, Watkins Distributing, Bob/Francis Barton and Barton's 93 Club, Rotary Noon Club, Ralph Lehrman, Rudy's — A Cook's Paradise, and Purity Spa and Salon.

Thanks to all who purchased tickets and participated to help us raise more than $20,000 for our "Evening of Jazz." We look forward to next year and a full schedule of events in July 2012 under the banner of "Jazz in the Canyon." We all build an endowment for music through our efforts.

Thanks again to all who helped make "Evening of Jazz" such a success.

Volunteers Help Library to Bloom

On behalf of the Twin Falls Public Library Board of Trustees and staff, we would like to thank those who helped plant the flower garden in front of the Library.

First, a special thanks goes to Moss Greenhouses for supplying the beautiful flowers. We also want to thank Susan Kelley-Harble, Mary Lou Webb, Heidi Calhoun and Phyllis Lotz, who volunteered their time to plant the flowers on a blustery spring afternoon.

Please come visit us at the library and see the brilliant display of flowers. We appreciate everyone in the community who is so supportive of the library and makes it the exceptional place that it is.

Don't Blame Tea Party 'Terrorists' for Debt Dispute

According to the website Politico, Vice President Joe Biden agreed "with a line of argument made by Rep. Mike Doyle (D-Pa.) at a two-hour, closed-door Democratic Caucus meeting" that congressional Tea Party members "acted like terrorists" in the way they stood against attempts to raise taxes and force spending reductions as part of the debt-ceiling deal.

Biden denied making the comparison. Given the heated rhetoric behind and in front of the scenes, the use of such a phrase, particularly in light of Biden's known salty language, has credibility.

Apparently Tea Party critics are constitutional illiterates. The Preamble to the U.S. Constitution begins, "We the people." Rights come from God, not politicians who think they are God. We grant power to our leaders to serve us. We are not their slaves.

Cal Thomas

The arrogance in the reported slander by Biden and Doyle is what voters hate most about many politicians. They see them as out of touch and unwilling to face challenges average citizens must confront when it comes to their personal budgets and behavior.

It is not Tea Party people who are the "terrorists." A terrorist seeks to destroy. Who is the real destroyer in the debt-ceiling debate? Who wants to continue spending money we don't have, borrowing it from nations like China that would be happy to destroy us if our politicians don't do it first? Tea party people simply want to make their government accountable again and for this they are called "terrorists"?

Senate Minority Leader Mitch McConnell acknowledged there would not have been a deal in which taxes are not raised and spending curtailed had it not been for Tea Party members. He is right. Asking career politicians not to spend other people's money is like asking Lady Gaga to sing from the Great American Songbook, dressed in conservative clothing. For her, that would be an unnatural act.

What we are witnessing in America is a re-awakening to the idea that the people own the power and do not have to sit idly by while the country they love and often sacrifice for is torn apart by irresponsible political leaders who wouldn't have their jobs if the rest of us weren't paying their salaries and benefits. The debt-ceiling debate showed that more people are demanding their government live within our means. We are tired of spending money we don't have on things we don't need.

Instead of hacking away at defense, should this "bipartisan commission" not reach the bill's spending targets, how about closing the Department of Education, which does not educate, the Department of Energy, which produces no energy, and the Department of Housing and Urban Development, which builds no homes?

Far from being a spent force, as many predicted, individual citizens are re-discovering a power many may have thought they no longer possessed. Heading into the 2012 election, this renewed sense that the power to make or break a nation does not reside in Washington, but rather in the hearts and minds of its citizens, will add to a sense of hope that real change is about to happen.

Yosemite: The Nature of Danger

MCT NEWS SERVICE

The following editorial appeared in the Los Angeles Times on Thursday:

There were times when the trail up Half Dome was so crowded it looked like a human freeway at rush hour. So much so that last year, Yosemite National Park started issuing permits for the climb because of basic safety concerns. Vernal Falls is another hugely popular spot for tourists.

This summer, those landmarks also were the sites of four deaths within two weeks. Three people died July 19 when they reportedly climbed over the guardrail at the top of Vernal Falls and waded into the river, where they were swept over the falls. A woman died Sunday when she lost her footing near the top of Half Dome, despite the cables that were installed as handrails.

There are a dozen or so deaths each year in Yosemite, but so far this year there have been 14 — more than twice the usual number at this point. The increase in deaths may be a coincidence, or it may be that the park is more dangerous this year. The swollen rivers are faster; rain fell in the park Sunday morning, and signs warn hikers away from the cable hike in wet weather, when the rock is slick.

Predictably, questions have been raised about whether the park has adequate protections in place. Families of the three Vernal Falls victims hired a consultant who, after viewing the site, announced to the Sacramento Bee, “I’m not content with that skimpy little rail.” Rangers said their preventive measures are adequate and they have no plans to change them.

As saddening as the deaths were, the rangers are right. The guardrail is clearly there to keep people out of the river, along with dramatically worded signs in multiple languages. A sign also warns Half Dome hikers not to attempt the cable climb during wet weather. Could more be done? More could always be done. The park could keep people out of the rivers with extensive fencing, perhaps with peepholes for viewing the scenic wonders of the park. It could litter the trails with signs and barriers. But then visitors might as well be on a freeway.

Some tourists are injured or killed because they purposely seek out risk; others innocently or ignorantly think a river or an animal or a hillside can’t be more dangerous than it looks. Some people enter wilderness areas woefully unprepared, without water, wearing flip flops, and go off-trail. And some visitors don’t do anything wrong, but bad things still happen. We can’t guard against it all and shouldn’t destroy scenic beauty in an effort to fend off liability. Nature has a power and thus an unpredictable danger all its own; that is its very attraction.

I’m Walkin’ Here! Don’t Prosecute Pedestrians

People across the country were shocked last week to learn that a Georgia pedestrian who did not even own a car could be convicted of vehicular homicide in the death of her 4-year-old son, who was killed by a hit-and-run driver.

Her crime? After a long bus trip with her three young children in April 2010, Raquel Nelson did what other bus passengers did that day, and had done so many days before: She attempted to cross the road from the bus stop, which is directly opposite her apartment complex, rather than walk a third of a mile to a traffic light, cross five lanes and walk a third of a mile back, lugging tired children and groceries.

The family walked without incident to the three-foot median in the road. As they waited on the median for a break in traffic, Nelson’s son A.J. followed other adults who crossed ahead of them. He was hit by a motorist who fled and later admitted to having been drinking and taking painkillers. The driver spent six months in jail and is serving the remainder of his five-year sentence on probation. Nelson was sentenced last week to 12 months’ probation, fines and community service. She was given the option of a new trial, which she announced Thursday that she would seek.

The prosecution of this grieving mother was shocking. In truth, though, no one should be surprised that tragedies like this are happening every day across America: Transportation officials and local planners routinely create the very conditions that underlie these “accidents” and allow them to persist.

Nelson was found guilty of killing her son by crossing the road in the “wrong” place. But what about the highway designers, traffic engineers, transit planners and land-use regulators who placed a bus stop across from apartments but made no provision whatsoever for a safe crossing? Those who ignored the fact that pedestrians always take the shortest possible route but somehow expected them to walk six-tenths of a mile out of their way to cross the street? Those who designed this road — which they allowed to be flanked by apartments and houses — for speeds of 50 mph and more? And those who designed the entire landscape to be hostile to people trying to get to work or carrying groceries despite having no access to a car? Are they not culpable?

This phenomenon is not unique to metro Atlanta. Transportation for America researched 10 years’ worth of pedestrian fatalities nationwide and found this pattern again and again. The bodies line up like soldiers along certain corridors — the first clue that the roadway is not designed for the safety of the pedestrians who are obviously using the road.

This is a major issue in inner-ring suburbs across the country, places originally built as auto-only suburbia that now are home to many lower-income families who don’t have access to cars. Neither the public transportation system nor the highway designs work for those who live, work and walk in these areas. People are being punished and killed simply for being pedestrians. Our research shows that thousands of lives could be saved — and millions more lives improved — by retrofitting these dangerous roads, as many communities are trying to do.

Some in Congress, such as Rep. John Mica, R-Fla., are attempting to kill the small slice of funding dedicated to projects that make it safer to walk or bicycle. As the vast majority of these dangerous roads were built under federal programs, fixing them to be safer should be a national project. A fund for safety retrofits should be part of the transportation bill under consideration.

Prosecuting people like Raquel Nelson, who truly are the victims of poor planning and bad design, is like closing the barn door and then burning the barn down. One crosswalk with traffic signals would save more lives, and in all likelihood cost less money, than this hurtful prosecution cost the taxpayers of Georgia. Fixing thousands of these deadly mistakes across the country would, in the long run, save both lives and dollars.

David Goldberg is communications director for Transportation for America, a coalition of national, state and local organizations advocating safer roads and travel options. He wrote this commentary for The Washington Post.

NASA SPACECRAFT BEGINS 5-YEAR TRIP TO JUPITER

BY MARCIA DUNN
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. • A sun-powered robotic explorer named Juno is rocketing toward Jupiter on a fresh quest to discover the secret recipe for making planets.

Hundreds of scientists and their families and friends — among thousands of invited guests — cheered and yelled “Go Juno!” as the unmanned Atlas rocket blasted into a clear midday sky Friday. It will take five years to reach Jupiter, the solar system’s most massive and ancient planet.

“Next stop is Jupiter,” exulted Scott Bolton, Juno’s principal investigator and an astrophysicist at Southwest Research Institute in San Antonio.

“It’s fantastic!” said Fran Bagenal, a planetary scientist at the University of Colorado at Boulder, who is also part of the NASA project. “Huge relief all around.”

Within an hour of liftoff, Juno hurtled out of Earth’s orbit at 24,000 mph on a roundabout course for Jupiter. It was expected to whip past the orbit of the moon in half a day, or early Saturday morning.

It is the first step in Juno’s 1.7 billion-mile voyage to the gas giant Jupiter, just two planets away but altogether different from Earth and next-door neighbor Mars.

Juno is solar powered, a first for a spacecraft meant to roam so far from the sun. The three huge solar panels popped open an hour into the flight, each one stretching as long and wide as a tractor-trailer. Previous spacecraft to the outer planets have relied on nuclear energy.

With Juno, scientists hope to answer some of the most fundamental questions of our solar system.

“How Jupiter formed. How it evolved. What really happened early in the solar system that eventually led to all of us,” Bolton said earlier in the week.

Bolton said Jupiter is like a time capsule. It got most of the leftovers from the sun’s creation nearly 5 billion years ago — hence the planet’s immense size — and its enormous gravity field has enabled it to hold onto that original material.

Jupiter is so big it could contain everything in the solar system, minus the sun, and still be twice as massive. Astronomers say it probably was the first planet in the solar system to form.

Fight for Food in Mogadishu Leaves 7 Dead

BY ABDI GULED AND KATHARINE HOURELD
Associated Press

MOGADISHU, Somalia • A World Food Program hand-out of corn rations to Somalis trying to survive a famine turned deadly Friday after government troops opened fire, killing at least seven, witnesses said.

Residents of Mogadishu’s largest famine refugee camp accused government soldiers of starting the chaos by trying to steal some of the 290 tons of dry rations that aid workers were trying to distribute there. Then refugees joined in the scramble, prompting soldiers to open fire, the witnesses said.

“They fired on us as if we were their enemy,” said refugee Abidyo Geddi. “When people started to take the food then the gunfire started and everyone was being shot. We cannot stay here much longer. We don’t get much food and the rare food they bring causes death and torture.”

The chaos underscores the dangers and challenges of getting help to a nation that has been essentially ungoverned for two decades and now has a severe famine sweeping through it. There are 9,000 African Union soldiers in the capital, but their main mission is to fight al-Qaida linked Islamists, not safeguard humanitarian aid.

Aid workers are puzzling

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dahabo Osman, 60, from Somalia, queues for soap and cooking oil after registering Friday at UNHCR’s Ifo Extension camp outside Dadaab, Kenya, 60 miles from the Somali border.

over how to help the starving without helping gunmen who either prey on the refugees, compete for security contracts to guard the food, or steal it and take a share of the profits when it’s sold at market.

The situation echoes the 1992 famine that prompted deployment of a U.S.-led multinational force to safeguard the delivery of food to Somalia’s starving. That international intervention collapsed in 1993 after two U.S. Black Hawk helicopters were shot down and 18 servicemen were killed in one single battle in Mogadishu.

U.S. and U.N. officials acknowledge that some aid in Somalia is bound to be stolen during delivery.

“Will there be losses? Sure. Will there be some looting? Of course there will be. What we have to do is try to minimize it,” said WFP spokesman David Orr. “This is the highest risk environment in the world ... the safety of our staff and getting food into the right hands are our highest priorities.”

Friday’s food distribution was organized by Mogadishu’s mayor, and had been delayed two days as officials tried to shore up security arrangements. Orr told The Associated Press that the food distribution started smoothly at around 6 a.m. but degenerated a couple hours later.

“We got reports of trouble, looting. The trucks were overwhelmed by a mob of people. There were reports of some shots fired,” said Orr, who said he could not confirm any death tolls.

One of the camp’s refugees, Muse Sheik Ali, said soldiers first tried to steal some of the food aid, and that other refugees began to take the food.

“Then soldiers opened fire at them, and seven people, including elderly people, were killed on the spot. Then soldiers took the food and people fled from the camp,” he said.

Judge Dismisses Charges in Mexico Hotel Explosion

BY MARK STEVENSON
Associated Press

MEXICO CITY • A judge in southern Mexico has dismissed criminal charges against five contractors and employees at a resort hotel where an explosion last year killed five Canadian tourists and two Mexicans.

Judge Nicolas Pinzon said Friday that he denied prosecutors’ requests for arrest warrants against the five for negligent homicide and professional misconduct in relation to a hidden gas line that exploded Nov. 14, 2010, at the 676-room Grand Riviera Princess resort in Playa del Carmen, south of Cancun.

Prosecutors said the heating-gas line, apparently meant to fuel a pool heating unit, was not properly installed or maintained. They claimed a leak from the line may have been set off by a spark from an electric switch or plug.

Pinzon said he denied the arrest request earlier this week because prosecutors filed charges against company directors or representatives rather than the specific workers who installed the lines, so the case should be handled as a civil lawsuit.

“You can file civil proceedings against a company ... but in criminal cases, you have to go after the person who directly performed the act,” Pinzon said. “The catch was that the prosecutors filed charges against the companies.”

The office of Quintana Roo state Attorney General Gaspar Garcia noted that the charges were filed under his predecessor, Francisco Alor, who left office in April and had been criticized for failing to win convictions in previous cases.

Alain Cacchione, spokesman for Canada’s foreign ministry, said, “We are disappointed that the Mexican judicial system has not proceeded with charges against the individuals responsible for this incident.”

The five Canadians killed were Malcolm Johnson of Prince George, British Columbia; Chris Charmont and his 9-year-old son, John, of Drumheller, Alberta; Darlene Ferguson, 51, of Edmonton, Alberta; and Elgin Barron of Guelph, Ontario.

Eighteen others, many of them from Ontario, were injured.

Ferguson’s brother, Barry Hoffman, declined to comment at length on the development. He would say only that his family was “not surprised by the outcome.”

EVA'S FINDS

3 Creative Carryalls for Outdoor Fun

Are you trying to get out of the house this summer but finding it hard to spot a tote that fits your outdoor needs? Well, you're in luck now. A few local stores offer bags that will do more than look nice on your arm.

The Clever Cooler

Going out for a picnic and don't want to carry that old, ugly cooler? This Mudpie Bag Lady tote looks like a purse but is actually cleverly insulated. Use it to chill drinks while heading out to a baseball game at the park, or pack your lunch for a hike in the hills. Either way, its spacious interior will hold everything you need to stay hydrated and cool out in the sun. You can find this bag — also in a couple of similar styles — for $28 at Serendipity Spa and Boutique on Twin Falls' Addison Avenue.

The Spill Fighter

Tired of ruining bags because your sunscreen or tanning lotion spilled inside your purse? This bag by Via Nova has a slick liner that allows you to simply wipe out any spill that comes your way. Not only is it equipped to deal with sunscreen dilemmas, but it's so much more chic than a canvas outdoors bag. Rock Star Rea on Twin Falls' Main Avenue carries various designs by Via Nova with the spill-proof lining. This one goes for $50.

The Clean Companion

Southern Idaho tends to be a bit dusty, and that can ruin even the best bag. However, this one — like all bags made by Vera Bradley — is machine washable. With its bright, flowery patterns you might not think of it as a rough-and-tumble bag, but the sturdy construction and extra pockets make it perfect for packing outdoor essentials in style. Vera Bradley designs can be found at Cobble Creek in the Lynwood Shopping Center. This one is $50. — Eva Stutzman. Photos by Ashley Smith • Times News

Run, Walk and Feast on Pancakes

The Distance4Diabetes fun run and cycling events will be from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Aug. 20 at Centennial Waterfront Park in Twin Falls. Registration opens at 6:45 a.m. The 40K-cycle event begins at 7:30 a.m., followed by 10K run, 5K run and 5K walk at 8 a.m. A pancake breakfast will be served at 9 a.m. for $5, and it's open to the public. Breakfast is free for registered participants and for children younger than 3.

Children's races for age 3 and older start at 10 a.m. Other activities include bounce house, mini-workshops, face painting, diabetes education center and vendor booths. Cost to participate in the events: $25 for adults and $5 to $15 for children. Proceeds go for diabetes awareness and community education. Ebooks Open a New Chapter

As more readers turn to ebooks for entertainment, should we fear the demise of printed books? Not any time soon, according to researchers and local readers.

BY ANDREW WEEKS
aweeks@magicvalley.com

Beth Swenson has owned a Kindle since Christmas but so far has read only one book on it. It's not that she doesn't like the electronic reading device. But her husband doesn't give her a chance to use it. That's OK with Swenson. "I still like paper," the Twin Falls woman said. "I like having a book on my nightstand. It looks better."

Swenson isn't alone in preferring printed books to ebooks. But the ebook trend is growing, as more people turn to digital media for entertainment. Sales of ebooks have, in fact, outpaced those of hardcopy books on Amazon.com, according to company founder and CEO Jeff Bezos. "Customers are now choosing Kindle books more often than print books," Bezos said in a May 20 BizReport article. "We had high hopes that this would happen eventually, but we never imagined it would happen this quickly — we've been selling print books for 15 years and Kindle books for less than four years." Besides the company's Kindle, today's readers have their choice of other reading platforms such as the iPad or Barnes & Noble's Nook. "We now sell three times as many digital books as all formats of physical books combined on BN.com," said Barnes & Noble CEO

William Lynch. And a lot of people seem to be interested in ebooks locally, said the chain's Twin Falls store manager, Mel Cammans, though she didn't give numbers for Nook sales. She said the ebook craze has done at least a couple of positive things: It's

DIY Aircraft

After a few years of inactivity, the Twin Falls chapter of the Experimental Aircraft Association is back in business. Here's one of the men whose plane-building passion is the club's reason for being.

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

If you're looking for Don Chapton on a sunny summer afternoon, he's likely either in the skies or working on planes to help himself get there. The Twin Falls man spends his time flying experimental aircraft, or hand-built planes. Anyone with mechanical experience can put a kit plane together, he said. But it takes a special kind of dedication to devote tens of thousands of dollars and more than 1,000 hours to build it. Experimental aviation gives pilots a way to acquire airplanes less expensively than buying them. Most experimental aviators build planes from kits, which include all the needed parts except the engine. Chapton isn't the only plane builder in Magic Valley. He's a member of the Experimental Aircraft Association's Twin Falls chapter, which is made up of other plane-building enthusiasts. Councilman Will Kezele, who also flies, estimates there are 20 to 30 active members in the group. After a few years' hiatus, club members are getting back to the hangars at Twin Falls' airport for meetings and fly-ins. "It's been fairly inactive, really not much going on with it," EAA chapter president Josh Kenyon of Twin Falls said Friday. "We've been trying to push it back into the active category." Even when the club was dormant, the builders weren't. Chapton has worked on several planes and has built two from kits in the past decade. One, an RV-7, took 16 months. The newest plane, a Piper Super Cub replica, took 2 1/2 years, partly because Chapton got distracted flying his first plane.

Chapton's parents both flew. He took his first flying lessons at 15, but the California native would have rather surfed. He picked up flying a little later in life and hasn't stopped for the past 35 years. Chapton has two hangars at the Twin Falls airport — one for his workshop and another to house the RV-7 and back-burner projects. Chapton visits his workshop almost daily in the summer and outfitted it with a refrigerator, a heater and an air conditioner. "It stays pretty nice in there," he said. His other hangar is toastier in the summer. Along with the RV-7, it has radio flyers ("That's my other sickness," he said) and partially constructed wings for an airplane he and another friend are building from scratch. The and his wife, Heather, have two children, Hallie, 4, and Seth, 15 months. Chet said he and his "are looking forward to getting to know the Magic Valley community and would love to get together with you soon. I am passionate about encouraging others to know and serve Jesus Christ and I hope you can join us at TFRC in our journey as we do life together, and share the good news of the love of God."

Carlson can be reached at the church, 1631 Grandview Dr. N., Twin Falls, 733-6128, ext. 105, or chet@tfrc.org.

Group Aims to Dispel Mormon Myths

BY JENNIFER DOBNER
Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY • A non-profit group that defends Mormon beliefs to critics on Thursday launched a new organization and website designed to help journalists, political operatives and others better understand the faith.

The Mormon Defense League aims to dispel myths and explain the history, theology and other aspects of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, co-founder Scott Gordon said.

The all-volunteer organization is an extension of the group FAIR, the Foundation for Apologetic Information & Research. Gordon, FAIR's president since 2001, announced plans for the league during the opening session of FAIR's 13th annual conference in Sandy, Utah, Thursday morning.

The idea for the Mormon Defense League grew out of what Gordon said were volumes of misinformation about the church that circulated in 2008 when Mormon Mitt Romney sought the GOP presidential nomination.

"What we've seen is that as the church becomes more and more in the limelight, people say and report things that are often bigoted or false," Gordon said. "We wanted to provide an organization that could assist journalists and others get the story right and offer some gentle correction when they didn't."

A nonprofit group that defends Mormon beliefs to critics has launched a new organization and website designed to help people better understand the faith.

In recent years, the Utah-based church, which has more than 14 million members worldwide, has been increasingly in the spotlight. Romney is again seeking the GOP presidential nomination, as is former Utah Gov. Jon Huntsman. Broadway is home to the Tony Award-winning "Book of Mormon" musical, and the church played a central role in a 2008 political battle over gay marriage in California.

Misinformation or misperceptions about Mormonism — including that faithful Latter-day Saints wear "magic underwear" or still practice polygamy — stem from a lack of understanding of the church's history, doctrine and culture, Gordon said.

He said a team of Mormon Defense League volunteers will post articles and explainers to the organization's website, MLD.org; will answer questions through email exchanges or interviews; and will monitor news about the church to watch for missteps.

"If you come out with an article that says Mormons believe Jesus and Satan are brothers, we're going to say, 'OK, this is why you'll find Mormons objecting to that characterization," said Gordon, who explains that such statements are considered code for suggesting Mormons are not Christians.

"The problem is that you can take any religion or beliefs and look at the doctrine and find ways to make them look silly," he said. "We're going to try and fill in the context and the gaps."

Neither FAIR nor the Mormon Defense League are affiliated with or sanctioned by the Mormon church, although church spokesman Eric Hawkins told The Associated Press the faith favors "sincere efforts to correct misconceptions and inaccuracies."

Nothing about the Mormon Defense League is intended to replace the work of the church's paid public relations staff, Gordon said.

VOICES OF FAITH

I don't believe there is an old man with long white hair and beard sitting on a throne pointing his finger down at the Earth. God doesn't cause disasters.

Natural disasters are not evil or a failure of God. Earthquakes are a part of the processes that keep the Earth living and suitable for life. There are natural disasters; there are natural disasters caused by man; there are no natural disasters caused by God.

People pray because it is the most effective way to express their care, concern, hope, love and desired outcome for others. It is something a person can do when feeling helpless in every other way. Prayer does have an effect. Prayer is the sacred touch that turns worry, fear and anxiety into strength, confidence and courage.

Don Chaption has been flying single-engine aircraft for 35 years.

wooden frames are propped against a back wall, where they’ve stayed for years. After the friend moved, the project has been relegated to the back burner.

All experimental aircraft must be labeled as such, and the RV-7 sports a warning in the cockpit: “This aircraft is amateur built and does not comply with federal safety regulations for standard aircraft.”

Chaption agreed: “It’s not built to certified standards. It’s built better than certified standards.”

It takes a huge time investment to build planes. In those 16 months he spent on the RV-7, it consumed between 20 and 25 hours a week.

Take to the Air

Interested in joining the Experimental Aircraft Association’s Twin Falls chapter? Anyone can join, but it’s easier to participate in the club’s fly-ins if you have your own plane. Meetings are 10 a.m. on the third Saturday of every month at the Twin Falls airport’s restaurant. There are no official dues, but club leaders sometimes collect money for events.

Contact: Josh Kenyon, 539-2856.

He received the Piper Super Cub replica kit on Memorial Day of 2008 and finished it earlier this year. He received its Air Worthiness Certificate on March 1. The plane, which he co-owns with another pilot, is meant to resemble an Australian observer plane from the Korean War era.

“It weighs a little over 1,200 pounds empty,” he said, but with a pole attached to the plane’s back wheel, he can maneuver it and wheel it out of his shop. His hobby isn’t cheap. The kit for the Piper Super Cub replica cost $45,000. That doesn’t include engines, custom interiors, buying or renting hangar space, gas and other expenses, which add tens of thousands more. “If it weren’t for planes, I’d be a rich man,” Chaption said. But the freedom granted by clear skies and windless days is reward enough.

HOW TO TALK WITH YOUR TRAINER

BY ALISON JOHNSON

Daily Press (Newport News, Va.)

If you decide to hire a personal trainer, good communication will be critical to meeting your fitness goals, says Bridgit Kin-Charlton, owner of B-defined Innovative Personal Training & Wellness in Williamsburg, Va.

Some tips: Talk about specific goals. What do you want most: to lose a certain amount of weight, tone your arms, have a flatter stomach or maybe run a 5K in a certain amount of time? Let your trainer know.

Relay your history. If you’ve tried to shape up before, share what worked for you and what didn’t. Be honest about your pitfalls, such as a tendency to load up on junk food and skip workouts after a stressful day at work.

Be upfront about health problems. Your trainer should know about medications that affect heart rate or blood pressure; chronic conditions such as heart disease, diabetes or stroke; recent surgeries; sleep patterns; and general stress level.

Share what motivates you. Some people thrive on gentle encouragement, while others prefer a bit of in-your-face barking. Weigh-ins also are negotiable, Kin-Charlton says: “Some clients are motivated by getting on the scale each week; others go into a state of depression.”

Give feedback. If you hated or loved a certain workout, don’t be afraid to say so. Your trainer may be able to work in more of what you like — or at least explain why you’re doing a routine.

Be honest. If you’ve skipped any diet or exercise “homework” your trainer gave you, admit it. Don’t pretend you’ve been walking 30 minutes daily if you haven’t.

Get contact information. Many trainers will share an email address or cell phone number for communication on days you’re not together.

Book Advocates Eco-smart Gardening

AKRON BEACON JOURNAL

Gardens aren’t always green — as in environmentally sensitive, that is.

Gardens and the tools and products used to maintain them can waste water, gobble resources, contribute to pollution and harm wildlife. But garden designer and sustainability advocate Alice Bowe helps readers create landscapes that are easy on the Earth with her new book, “High-Impact Low-Carbon Gardening” Bowe’s book teaches the principles of sustainable landscaping and helps her readers put them to work in their own yards. The photos in the book show plenty of examples of those principles in action, so readers can see just how beautiful green gardening can be. “High-Impact Low-Carbon Gardening” is published by Timber Press and sells for $24.95 in soft-cover.

Ebooks

gotten more kids and adults to read, and it has allowed more first-time authors to publish their books.

But for Swenson, a reference librarian at the Twin Falls Public Library, reading is about comfort. Holding a real book, and turning real pages, is more comfortable for her than handling an e-reader. That said, there are some things she likes about e-readers:

Instant access: “If I finish reading a book in the middle of the night and can’t find something else to read, I can download a new book in a matter of seconds,” she said.

Great for travel: E-readers can hold hundreds of books and, some of them, thousands. “They definitely hold more books than I have in my house,” Swenson said. That’s nice for travel and storage.

Multimedia use: Swenson’s husband, Jared, uses their Kindle mostly to read video gaming material, such as PDF-formatted manuals that are easier to read on the Kindle than on a computer screen. With some e-readers, users can access their email accounts, surf the Web and listen to music.

What does all this mean for bibliophiles who prefer hard-copy books? Should they fear the demise of printed books?

“Not according to research from Verso Digital that found the appetites of ebook readers barely impact on their purchases of printed material,” according to the same BizReport article. “In fact, their survey of nearly 4,000 U.S. adults found e-reader owners buy nearly as many print books as ebooks.”

In Twin Falls, Cammans said that even those customers who like their e-readers come into her store to purchase printed editions of their favorite authors.

“No worries here,” she said. “We’re not going out of business.”

That’s good news for Melissa Brackman of Twin Falls, who has lost count of the books she has collected over the years. Ebooks don’t appeal to her because she doesn’t like reading on a screen. As for purchasing a Kindle or Nook?

“It’d have to be something that’d make it really worthwhile for me,” Brackman said, “something that would take me away from home a lot where I wouldn’t have access to printed books.”

Brackman was at the library on a recent Wednesday morning, browsing through a variety of titles and authors. She reads about as many nonfiction books as she does novels. One of her favorite authors is David McCullough, who’s written such books as “John Adams,” “1776” and, his newest, “The Greater Journey” — all available in print and as ebooks.

A number of other people were at the library that day, too, browsing the shelves or sitting to read. Swenson said the library hasn’t experienced any decline due to ebook popularity.

“I think our circulation actually is up,” she said.

The library is, however, looking to expand its offerings by initiating an ebook “check out” program, where library cardholders will be able to

Walking Counts as Exercise

BY ELLEN WARREN

Chicago Tribune

“People try all these insane diets,” then give up when they don’t lose weight and don’t feel any better, says Vik Khanna, executive director of Health and Wellness for Mercy Health Ministry in Chesterfield, Mo.

Instead, Khanna recommends baby steps to fitness — as in walking.

“It’s one of the things that is very underrated,” Khanna says. “Walking is the universal best exercise. It’s accessible. Most of us can do it into our 80s and 90s.”

Not only will you feel better, you can also improve your memory and maybe even live longer. How’s that for multitasking?

A study published earlier this year in the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences found that regular walking improved older people’s ability to remember things. Also, says Khanna, “studies show that older adults who walk faster live longer.”

So, once you get up and start putting one foot in front of the other, then pick up your speed.

“The problem is, most of us stroll,” Khanna says. Going faster will make you feel even better, and you might lose weight.

Walking at 2 mph, a 150-pound person burns about 171 calories, taking more than 20 hours to lose a pound.

At 3 mph, it would take 15 hours to lose a pound.

Just one hour of walking at 3 mph, and you’ll burn off the effects of a 99-cent bag of M&M’s.

Get off the Couch

Start with a slow walk, just a few minutes a day. Increase time gradually. Make a game out of it by spotting an object and speeding toward it. Let breathing return to normal then speed up.

Rompers Are Big Again

Wearing rompers is easy -- no matching worries! -- but that's exactly why critics find them fashionably questionable.

BY ADRIENNE JOHNSON MARTIN

McClatchy Newspapers

As a restaurant hostess, Rebecca Elcan works a kind of runway as she leads diners to their seats, and so looking cute matters. As a 20-year-old student, being on trend does too.

So on a recent day, Elcan chose a romper, her first — a strapless number printed with fanciful palm leaves, bought from Forever 21.

“My roommate has always pulled them off really well, but some on me have been baggy,” she said. “I really like them because they’re very in style.”

Indeed, rompers are big this season, and they’re not the only one-piece looks luring the stylish. Model/entrepreneur Iman and singer Gwen Stefani have stepped out recently in sparkly vintage-style jumpsuits, proving the ‘70s revival has made that look chic again.

At the recent BET Awards, singer Mary J. Blige took a distinctly modern approach, opening the show in a skin-tight, plunging V-neck jumpsuit paired with an asymmetrical metallic belt.

And then there’s the trio of hungover Scandinavians who invented the OnePiece, a zippered front jumper, now all the rage in London and Los Angeles, and coveted by the likes of Sienna Miller, Justin Bieber and Lady Gaga.

Divining at least part of the allure of rompers is as easy as putting one on.

As readily as your mama snapped you into those sweet little cotton onesies, you can slip into a romper and be fully dressed. No need to worry if your top matches your bottoms.

And that’s among the reasons some find them fashionably questionable. Or worse.

“I despise them — if you talk to people in fashion, they will tell you it’s a fashion victim getup,” said Sarah Haver, a New York stylist and founder of focusonstyle.com.

“If you’re really curvy, you can’t wear them,” Bear said. “The whole point is the long line.”

“Can anyone over 25 wear them with confidence at all?” asked Susu Bear, of scoopcharlotte.com. “I think of them as a summer fling. They’re cute, but not fashion-forward.”

Rompers do, however, have a long past.

The look started out as men’s underwear in the early part of the 1900s; by the 1920s, women athletes wore them, and by the ‘30s, they became an outerwear look for women, said Diane Ellis, a fashion professor at Meredith College in Raleigh. “They’re nearly always coupled with a blouson top, and elastic at the waist to give room to fit, to bend over,” Ellis said. “Ultimately for women, the look brought evening attire to day wear, a casual evening wear.”

Sounds comfy, no? But some fashion observers don’t think rompers have such an accommodating fit.

“If you’re really curvy, you can’t wear them,” Bear said.

Soothing Sounds

The Ebook Options

Two of the more popular e-readers on the market today include Amazon’s Kindle and the Barnes & Noble Nook. Here’s a comparison of the newest versions of each:

Kindle Features: At 8.5 ounces, this device with Wi-Fi technology weighs less than a paperback book. It can hold up to 3,500 books, newspapers and magazines and includes a dictionary, notepad and highlighting capabilities. The Kindle now has an E Ink Pearl screen to fight off glare and includes crisper, darker fonts than previous editions.

Price: $139. • Nook Simple Touch Reader

Features: If you don’t want to do anything but read, this reader is your best bet. Its built-in Wi-Fi technology allows you to download books, newspapers and magazines in seconds, but you won’t be able to surf the Web or check email. It holds around 1,000 books and has an e-ink screen that looks like the pages of a real book. And, unlike the Nook Color, it has a battery life of up to two months.

Price: $139. • Nook Color Features: Reading ezines, newspapers and children’s books are great on this device, which has a full-color touch screen. What’s more, it can hold up to 6,000 items. The downside: Its battery life is only about 10 hours.

Price: $249.

download ebooks to their reading devices for a period of time. The library hopes to initiate the program in November, Swenson said, though it might be later.

“But don’t worry,” she said. “I don’t think printed books are going to die anytime soon.”

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

Stocks End a Day of Wild Swings

NEW YORK (AP) • If you looked away Friday, you missed a market rally. Or a plunge.

A soothing government report on employment in July eased concerns that the U.S. might slide back into a recession, and the Dow Jones industrial average rose as much as 171 points soon after trading began. But fears that Europe's growing debt crisis might threaten U.S. banks and the fragile economy.

The Dow fell 5.8 percent this week. It plunged 513 points on Thursday alone, the worst day for the Dow since 2008.

The S&P 500 fell 0.1 percent Friday. It fell 7.2 percent for the week and is down 10.8 percent since July.

The Nasdaq composite index fell 24 points, or 0.9 percent. It is down 11.4 percent since July 22.

S&P Downgrades U.S. Credit Rating from AAA

WASHINGTON (AP) • Credit rating agency Standard & Poor's on Friday downgraded the United States' credit rating first time in the history of the ratings.

The credit rating agency said that it is cutting the country's top AAA rating by one notch to AA-plus. The credit agency said that it is making the move because the deficit reduction plan passed by Congress on Tuesday did not go far enough to stabilize the country's debt situation.

A source familiar with the discussions said that the Obama administration feels the S&P's analysis contained "deep and fundamental flaws."

ASSOCIATED PRESS

An electronic board shows the curve of the German index DAX at the stock exchange in Frankfurt, central Germany, Friday. Europe's debt crisis and fears over the U.S. economy battered markets once again Friday, challenging vacationing European leaders to find a way to keep the turmoil from pushing Spain and Italy to financial collapse before a strengthened bailout fund can be put in place to help them.

Europe Crisis Revives '08 Fears

BY PAUL WISEMAN AND JONATHAN FAHEY

Associated Press

Wild gyrations in the stock market. Big banks holding risky bonds. Fear that toxic assets will contaminate banks and freeze up credit on both sides of the Atlantic.

Wall Street is having a flashback to the panicky days of September and October 2008, when Lehman Brothers collapsed and American International Group needed a bailout that became the biggest on Wall Street.

This time investors are worried that Europe's debt crisis could slam an already weak U.S. economy. But few analysts think it will do as much damage as the collapse in home prices and mortgage-backed securities did in 2008, when they caused a credit squeeze and banks feared lending to each other.

Compared with the fall of 2008, "our larger banks are in pretty good shape," says Philip Swagel, a former Treasury official who is now an economist at the University of Maryland. "They've rebuilt their capital positions. The institutions that are exposed (to European debt) are in much better shape."

After months of worrying about the risk of default by Greece and Portugal, investors fear that two much bigger countries — Italy and Spain — might be unable to meet their debt payments. They also worry that Italian and Spanish banks have loaded up on their countries' government bonds.

Analysts say a default by an economy as big as Italy's or Spain's would likely throw Europe into recession. That would further strain a fragile U.S. economy and weigh on the global financial system.

If Italy or Spain defaulted, their banks would absorb big losses that could spread to other institutions. French banks have lent heavily to Italian banks, and U.S. banks have lent heavily to French banks.

"You have the potential for a domino effect," says Thomas Abruzzo, head of the North American financial institutions team at Fitch Ratings.

But Abruzzo says he's confident that U.S. banks have hedged much of the risk they've taken in Europe to protect against steep losses. They've also built up their capital — the financial buffer that protects them against losses.

What's more, the Italian and Spanish government debts are better understood than the exotic mortgage securities at the heart of the 2008 crisis that began in the United States. Then, no one knew which banks were holding how much in mortgage securities or what those securities were worth.

Banks stopped lending to each other. Credit froze up. Panic set in. Corporations that relied on short-term loans faced a debilitating cash crunch.

These days, U.S. corporations are hoarding cash and don't require immediate access to financial markets. Banks also have changed the way they fund themselves. In 2007, they relied heavily on very short-term loans. They needed to be repaid, and replaced, quickly.

'Better Burgers' Take Bite of Market

More and more consumers are turning to the American classic, a hamburger, than in years past.

BY KAVITA KUMAR

St. Louis Post-Dispatch

ST. LOUIS, Mo. • With all of the buzz about food trucks and local foods, it might be easy to overlook one of the fastest-growing restaurant trends these days.

Burgers. That's right: Burgers, the quintessential American classic.

But these are not the drive-thru variety. Rather, these are "better burgers" made to order with fresher, premium ingredients.

It's one way Americans are indulging without feeling guilty when they check their bank account.

Better burger joints are sprouting up all over the place.

The forerunner in terms of size and growth nationwide is Five Guys Burgers and Fries. When a store opened in Creve Coeur, Mo., a couple of years ago, opening week sales broke records for the franchisee, which has stores in several states. "We made $1,800 in an hour," said Joe Durand, the director of operations for the St. Louis region. "It was crazy busy!"

The upstart Smashburger, a concept out of Denver, is also on a tear. It opened a restaurant in St. Charles, Mo., this month and has designs on opening 11 more in the region in the next couple of years.

Add to the mix a number of independents that are carving out a niche in this category with different spins on beef, toppings, buns, sides and atmosphere.

So why the sudden spike of interest in burgers?

"Traditional burger chains have done a very poor job of focusing on burgers — as surprising as that may sound," said Darren Tristano, executive vice president of food consulting group Technomic. "McDonald's, Burger King and Wendy's have expanded breakfast, gone into salads, focused on kids' meals and now beverage."

Better burger chains, rants, including Five Guys, grew 17 percent in the past three years while the rest of the restaurant industry had its steepest traffic declines in decades.

"Burgers are a comfort food," Tristano said. "Consumers have a strong famil-

"Burgers are a comfort food. Consumers have a strong familiarity with them. And the price is right."

— Darren Tristano, executive vice president of food consulting group Technomic which rang up $1.6 billion in sales last year, represent the fastest-growing segment within the fast-growing $20 billion to $25 billion fast-casual category, which includes the likes of Panera Bread Co. and Chipotle, Tristano said.

He thinks the segment still has plenty of room to grow, possibly reaching $4 billion in sales.

According to consulting firm NPD Group, traffic to the top fast-casual restaurailarity with them. And the price is right."

Tom Ryan, the founder of Smashburger, said he wants to be the last guy to say the recession was good for the four-year-old chain.

As burger options have multiplied, so too has consumption. A recent study by Technomic found that nearly a half of today's consumers say they eat a burger at least once a week — compared to 38 percent two years ago.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

“From low to high doth dissolution climb,
And sink from high to low, along a scale
Of awful notes, whose concord shall not fail.”
— William Wordsworth

• • • • •

This deal is from the England-France Open Teams encounter at the 2002 European Bridge Teams Championships held in Salsomaggiore, Italy.

Danny Davies and John Armstrong, East and West, judged sensibly enough to defend. True, five hearts would have made when the diamonds behaved, but when bidding space has been pre-empted, going plus is always sensible at teams.

Duplicated boards were in use, so it was possible to work out, after the fact, that five clubs doubled was a popular contract, going two light in all the other matches where it was attempted — losing two diamond tricks, plus one club and one heart trick.

However, Danny Davies found a devilish defense to take the contract three off. Armstrong led the heart king and, on receiving a count signal from his partner, switched to a diamond to the king and ace. East now found the killing return — the club four. See the effect of this: declarer wins in hand, but try as he might, he cannot avoid the loss of two further diamonds and the club ace.

If South plays another diamond, the defense wins, cashes the club ace, then takes a further diamond trick. Equally, if South tries to discard a diamond on a spade, West ruffs the third spade, and South still has a diamond and a club trick to lose. The effect of leading the low trump is to prevent the diamond ruff, while retaining control of the hand.

ANSWER: In auctions of this sort, where the opponents have bid a suit in which your side may not have a control, a bid of five of the trump suit by your partner asks for a control there. So his five-diamond bid should focus on your trumps (imagine him with a strong 4-4-1-4 but four small trumps). Bid the small slam — and don't be surprised if the grand slam hinges upon a finesse at worst.

Advertising Salesperson & Recruitment Salesperson

The Times-News is seeking two professional advertising salespeople; one outside sales for retail advertising and one inside sales for recruitment advertising. The principal duty of these salespeople will be to sell. The secondary duty will be to sell. You'll sell 'win-win' print, online and mobile advertising packages offered by the Times-News, www.magicvalley.com and a variety of specialty and niche publications. But what you'll really be selling is solutions to local business owners who may also need your assistance in discovering just what solutions they need.

The Successful Candidate will demonstrate:

• success in relentlessly prospecting to get new business;

• a natural inquisitiveness about what constitutes customer success and an ability to ask open-ended, thought-provoking questions;

• a pattern of success in marketplaces that are extremely competitive;

• the ability to consistently listen;

• an ongoing history of success in a fast-paced business;

• an assertive approach to achieving revenue and customer satisfaction goals;

• the ability to communicate personal, quantifiable components of customer service excellence.

Past sales experience may be helpful but possessing innate curiosity and a competitive approach is far more important. The Times-News offers an excellent benefit package including medical, dental, vision, life, paid vacation and sick days, flexible spending account(s) and a 401(k) program.

Please apply online at www.magicvalley.com/workhere before Saturday, July 30, 2011.

DEAR ABBY: My fiancée, “Vanessa,” and I have been engaged almost a year. We’re to be married in three months. When I popped the question, I took her to one of her favorite spots in the Smoky Mountains. When I proposed, she was overcome with emotion — but not the kind I would have thought. She said yes, but she wasn’t at all happy about being surprised. She doesn’t like surprises.

At the time, I was sure she had an inkling about my intentions. We had discussed becoming engaged several times. Now, as the wedding draws near, she wants me to “re-propose.” It makes me feel like my first wasn’t good enough, and it is really upsetting me. I only intended to do it once in my life. What would you recommend?

— QUESTIONED-OUT IN OHIO

DEAR QUESTIONED-OUT: I recommend you clear the air with Vanessa ASAP. Tell her you intended to propose only once in your life, and that her request has hurt your feelings. If she still insists on a second proposal, ask for a script so you won’t disappoint her again. Then be prepared to have her provide you with them regularly, because unless you’re a mind reader, it’s the only way you’ll live up to her fantasies.

DEAR ABBY

Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: We stand in line for movie tickets, sporting events, Black Friday shopping, etc. Am I being overly sensitive when I have stood in line and the person in front of me allows family or friends to cut in? It irks me no end when I have spent anywhere from 30 minutes to several hours waiting and someone butts in front of me.

How can I tactfully address this without being confrontational? Or should I just bite my tongue and move on?

— STANDING IN LINE

DEAR STANDING: It's one thing when a person lets a spouse or one other person in — and quite another when it's half a dozen people. However, folks this rude can be hypersensitive when challenged and cause an altercation, so I don't recommend taking them on.

An exception to this would be Black Friday, or a store event in which only a certain number of shoppers will be allowed in. In a case like that, security should be notified if a large number of people are cutting in line.

DEAR ABBY: How can I get my stepsons to show some compassion and love for their father? They seem to forget that they have him, and that he labored to help them become successful citizens. He's a kind and sensitive man who should be cherished. He has Alzheimer's disease and needs their love now more than ever.

They live in other states, but could call more than once a year. My husband doesn't say much about them anymore. He did when we first married six years ago. We keep busy, but I cry for him. He has no family. His first wife lived for her sons only and probably forgot about her relationship with my husband. Perhaps this attitude was passed on to his sons. How do others in my situation cope?

— CRYING IN WISCONSIN

DEAR CRYING: Dry your tears, pick up the phone and encourage the “boys” to call their father once a week to say they are thinking of him and love him — and to share some memory their father will relate to. And should your husband's sons have a memory lapse and forget to call, remind them — but do it without laying a guilt trip.

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

IF AUGUST 6 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: During the next four to six weeks, you might be influenced and motivated by others you meet in a club or other organization. In late October and early November, you might allow your wishful thinking to take control, so could waste time and resources on people or purchases that will prove to be a disappointment. February is the best month to pursue a higher professional position or formulate an investment strategy. April is the best time to accept opportunities, launch personal plans or make decisions about romantic commitments.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Unplug and become entirely engaged in the world around you. Social events don't need to be a spectator sport. If you are looking for romance,
Cupid's arrows might hit the target; be ready for action.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You may be called upon to dig deeper into your pockets for money to share with others. Make sure you are getting a fair exchange in business deals – but where personal generosity is required, act bighearted.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You may need to rethink decisions made in the past. Pay attention to indications that other people have misunderstood your intentions. It may be difficult to clarify a situation that has become confused.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): If you wish to be given the royal treatment, then act like you deserve it. Build up instead of tearing down.
Rather than being critical and finding fault, set a good example for others to follow.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A lighthearted approach will lighten your load. Conflicts disappear as attention shifts to vibrant new contacts.
Welcome new, unconventional ideas and find ways to incorporate them into traditional situations.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Indecision could be a good thing at this point.
Your attractive powers are at a high point, but you may act like a magnet for the wrong people. Don't ignore an invitation; remain sensitive to someone's feelings.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22):
An intense desire for togetherness can backfire.
Someone who is willing to bend over backward to please you in every way possible wants to be more than “just friends,” so be clear about your intentions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A significant other is compelling and dynamic, gaining attention and admiration. Be proud of a partner's success – even if it is diff

Yesterday's Jumbles: BLURT SIXTH GOBBLE MAYHEM
Answer: What the Amazon explorer and the Amazon River had in common — A BIG MOUTH

Today is Saturday, Aug. 6, the 218th day of 2011. There are 147 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On Aug. 6, 1961, Soviet cosmonaut Gherman Titov became the second man to orbit Earth as he flew aboard Vostok 2, call sign "Eagle" (hence Titov's repeated exclamation over the radio, "I am Eagle!").

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1806, the Holy Roman Empire went out of existence as Emperor Francis II abdicated.

In 1825, Upper Peru became the autonomous republic of Bolivia.

In 1890, convicted murderer William Kemmler became the first person to be executed in the electric chair as he was put to death at Auburn State Prison in New York.

In 1911, actress-comedian Lucille Ball was born in Jamestown, N.Y.

In 1926, Gertrude Ederle became the first woman to swim the English Channel, arriving in Kingsdown, England, from France in 14½ hours.

In 1945, during World War II, the United States dropped an atomic bomb on Hiroshima, Japan, resulting in an estimated 140,000 deaths.

In 1965, President Lyndon B. Johnson signed the Voting Rights Act.

In 1978, Pope Paul VI died at Castel Gandolfo at age 80.

In 1986, William J. Schroeder (SHRAY'-dur) died after living 620 days with the Jarvik 7 artificial heart.

In 1991, the World Wide Web made its public debut as a means of accessing webpages over the Internet. TV newsman Harry Reasoner died in Norwalk, Conn., at age 68.

Ten years ago: Ending months of speculation, former President Bill Clinton said he would write his much sought-after memoirs for publisher Alfred A. Knopf. General Duong Van "Big" Minh, who was the president of South Vietnam for just a few days before the country fell to Communist invaders in 1975, died in Pasadena, Calif., at age 85. Brazilian author Jorge Amado died at age 88.

Five years ago: Oil giant BP announced an indefinite shutdown of the biggest oil-field in the U.S., at Prudhoe Bay in Alaska, after finding a pipeline leak. Sherri Stinehauer shot an even-par 72 to win the Women's British Open for the third time, and the first since it became a major. Tiger Woods won his 50th PGA Tour title with a three-stroke victory over Jim Furyk in the Buick Open.

One year ago: In a stunning announcement, Hewlett-Packard Co. said it had ousted CEO Mark Hurd after an investigation of a sexual harassment complaint found that he had falsified expense reports and other documents to conceal a relationship with a contractor.

FINAL SHOWING OF THE PRO 4s TONIGHT AT MVS

LINDA BRITTSAN
Times-News correspondent

Included in this evening's events are the Budweiser Super Stocks, TV-GoldandSilver Thunderdogs, Brennan's Carpet Pony Stocks, Quale's Electronics Jr. Stingers and Pepsi Winged Sprints. Heating up the night even more will be Quale's Electronics Hornets double mains and the final appearance of the Pro 4s at MVS this season.

The Mr. Gas Late Models will be making up two main event races this evening, adding to an already sizzling night of NASCAR Whelen All-American Series action at the one-third mile track.

After two feature division wins last Saturday night, Jeff Pohlman has stockpiled a 61 point lead in the standings over Bobby Latham III. A

Expanded Pac-12 Has Big Ambitions

BY GREG BEACHAM
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES • Even before Utah visits Southern California for the first Pac-12 game on Sept. 10, Utes coach Kyle Whittingham is confident his school is getting in on something big.

"You couldn't be in a better place at a better time, as a school or a program," said Whittingham, whose Utes no longer need to bust the BCS. "This is a tremendous opportunity for everybody involved in this conference."

Utah and Colorado have joined the Pac-10 teams to form a league from Seattle to Tucson, from Boulder to Berkeley — and its footprint is just as big as its ambition.

The Pac-12 hasn't lost its West Coast flair with the addition of two mountain-based schools. The league still has several inventive offenses and an impressive collection of star quarterbacks, including Stanford's Andrew Luck and USC's Matt Barkley, while its lucrative new television deal eventually will expose its stars to an even broader audience.

Shoemaker Ready to Step in as No. 1 Receiver

BY STEPHEN MEYERS
smeyers@magicvalley.com

Tyler Shoemaker has waited patiently outside the limelight for this opportunity.

For the last three seasons the receiver from Meridian played behind two of the best Boise State wideouts in school history.

But gone are the 433 catches and 64 touchdowns Austin Pettis and Titus Young produced in their illustrious Boise State careers, both taking their talents to the NFL, leaving Shoemaker as the most decorated receiver on the BSU roster.

It's a role he's prepared for. This summer he's put in the extra running, weight lifting and conditioning in preparation for his senior year as "the guy" of the receivers unit.

"It definitely takes a little bit of work. Any time you've been behind other guys, stepping into that new role at first is going to be a little bit different," Shoemaker said. "I'm excited about it, I want to be that guy and want to embrace that leadership role."

Prime Time for Pro Football Hall of Famers

BY BARRY WILNER
Associated Press

CANTON, Ohio • Deion, Marshall and Shannon. Three players who could get by with only their first names, and soon to be known as Hall of Famers.

Deion Sanders, Marshall Faulk and Shannon Sharpe (of course) will be inducted into the Pro Football shrine Saturday night. Sanders and Faulk were slam dunks in their first year of eligibility.

Joining that trio will be Richard Dent, Chris Hanburger, Les Richter and Ed Sabol.

Sanders was one of football's most versatile and entertaining players, earning the nickname "Prime Time." According to Cowboys owner Jerry Jones, he also was a phony.

"Deion was a fraud — a fraud, OK?" Jones said. "He wanted it to look easy, but he was a hard worker. He would give just enough at practice to be a team player in strength and conditioning, but when he went home he worked like a dog on his strength. He wanted everyone to think he was a natural. He was, but it wasn't only because he was born like that. He worked."

The teams Sanders played for generally worked their way into the playoffs. In 1994, he joined the 49ers and helped them win the Super Bowl. The next year, he was headed to Dallas, helping the Cowboys win their third title in four seasons.

"Deion was 'Prime Time,' 'Neon Deion,' always that flashy player that everybody wanted to be," said Mike Jenkins, the Cowboys cornerback who now wears 21. "He always stood out and he let it be known that he was one of the best. He definitely made it exotic to play cornerback."

Faulk wasn't quite so exotic. He was just as formidable, though, retiring with 12,279 yards and 100 touchdowns rushing, another 6,875 yards and 36 TDs as a receiver.

His dominance in a 12-season career, the first five with Indianapolis, the last seven in St. Louis, earned him election to the hall over two other running backs

Yankees Beat Rival Red Sox, Take over First Place in AL East

BOSTON • Reliever Boone Logan struck out Adrian Gonzalez with the bases loaded to end the fifth inning, and the New York Yankees came back to beat the Boston Red Sox 3-2 on Friday night to win their eighth straight game and take over first place in the AL East.

Logan (3-2) was the first of five Yankees relievers who combined to throw 4 1-3 shutout innings after starter Bartolo Colon couldn't make it out of the fifth. Mariano Rivera was the last, pitching the ninth for his 29th save.

The win gave New York the division lead for the first time since July 6. Boston had beaten the Yankees in eight of their previous nine meetings this year.

White Sox 5, Twins 3

MINNEAPOLIS • Carlos Quentin had two home runs and four RBIs, Mark Buehrle was sharp after a rough first inning, and Chicago snapped a six-game losing streak.

Buehrle (9-5) allowed three unearned runs and four hits over eight innings, extending his streak of allowing three runs or fewer to 17 straight games.

Rangers 8, Indians 7, 11 innings

ARLINGTON, Texas — Josh Hamilton drove in the winning run with a two-out infield single in the 11th inning and the Texas Rangers rallied to beat Cleveland 8-7 on Friday night, denying Ubaldo Jimenez a victory in his first start for the Indians.

Elvis Andrus sparked the game-ending rally with a two-out bunt single against Rafael Perez (4-2). Andrus advanced to second on Perez's wild pitch, and Hamilton hit a soft grounder to shortstop Asdrubal Cabrera.

Blue Jays 5, Orioles 4

BALTIMORE • Brett Lawrie got two hits and an RBI in his major league debut, Aaron Hill drove in two runs, and Toronto beat Baltimore.

Lawrie hit a run-scoring single in his first at-bat and singled in the eighth inning, missing a chance for a second RBI when Colby Rasmus was thrown out at the plate.

Tigers 4, Royals 3, 10 innings

KANSAS CITY, Mo. • Brennan Boesch hit a go-ahead RBI single in the 10th inning to give the Detroit Tigers a 4-3 win over the Kansas City Royals on Friday night.

Wilson Betemit led off the inning with a walk and pinch-runner Andy Dirks took second on a wild pitch by Aaron Crow (3-3) with one out.

Rays 8, Athletics 4

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. • Jeff Niemann took a four-hitter into the ninth inning en route to winning his fifth consecutive decision for Tampa Bay.

Niemann (6-4) allowed four runs and seven hits over 8 2-3 innings. The right-hander was replaced by Kyle Farnsworth after giving up a pair of runs and three hits in the ninth. Niemann improved to 5-0 in eight starts since returning from a strained lower back on June 20.

National League Nationals 5, Rockies 3

DENVER • Michael Morse homered and Ian Desmond had four hits, including a liner that hit Rockies starter Juan Nicasio in the head, and the Washington Nationals beat the Colorado Rockies 5-3 Friday night.

Nicasio was struck in the second innings. The ball slammed into the right side of Nicasio's head with a smack and caromed away, rolling over the first-base line.

Braves 4, Mets 1

NEW YORK • Dan Uggla extended his career-best hitting streak to 26 games with a two-run single in the eighth inning, Tim Hudson pitched seven stellar innings and the Atlanta Braves beat the New York Mets 4-1 on Friday night.

Cubs 4, Reds 3

CHICAGO • Tony Campana drove in two runs with an inside-the-park homer and Chicago won its sixth straight.

Cardinals 3, Marlins 2

MIAMI • Lance Berkman's second double of the game brought home Albert Pujols with the go-ahead run in the eighth inning to lead St. Louis.

Pujols doubled off Florida starter Anibal Sanchez (6-5) to lead off the inning, and Berkman drove Sanchez's final pitch of the game into center field to put St. Louis on top.

Padres 15, Pirates 5

PITTSBURGH • Chase Headley's grand slam highlighted San Diego's first four-homer game of the season, and the Padres handed the Pirates their eighth straight loss.

Brewers 8, Astros 1

HOUSTON • Yovani Gallardo allowed four hits over eight innings as Milwaukee beat the Houston Astros 8-1 Friday night for the Brewers' ninth victory in 10 games.

Shoemaker

The 6-1, 213-pound wideout had his best season in 2010 as the team's No. 3 receiver, setting career highs in catches (32), yards (582) and touchdowns (5). He has amassed three 100-yard games in his career and scored a touchdown in the team's MAACO Bowl Las Vegas victory over Utah in December.

This spring, Shoemaker took part in Boise State's pro day workout. He clocked a time of 4.40 seconds in the 40-yard dash and showed off a 38-inch vertical.

"I'm deceptively quick. I don't know if it's the big-body thing or whatever, but I've always had pretty good speed," Shoemaker said. "I've put in a lot of work in the off-season, a lot of strength and conditioning stuff that I haven't done in the past. It definitely helped in the spring and hopefully will carry over to the summer and can show up in the season."

Last season, the BSU offense averaged 521 yards per game, second in the country behind Oregon. But more than half of that production came from Pettis and Young.

Big Shoes to Fill

Boise state must find new pass catchers to fill the vacant spots of departed receivers Titus Young and Austin Pettis, who were drafted by the Detroit Lions and St. Louis Rams in this April's NFL Draft. They accounted for 433 catches and 64 touchdowns in their careers.

A look at the candidates

For the Broncos to be that successful in 2011, the team will need offensive weapons to emerge to help ease the burden of Shoemaker, running back Doug Martin and tight end Kyle Efav.

"I think we all have a little bit of a chip on our shoulder. We've definitely heard from the media around the country that the receivers are gone and who's Kellen going to throw it to now?" Shoemaker said. "We've got guys to throw it to."

Mitch Burroughs, Chris Potter and Gerald Boldewijn (formerly Hiwat), are three of those guys who could be catching passes from Moore this season.

Chris Potter Jr. 5-9, 158

Has electrifying speed and quickness, Potter averaged 13.3 yards per return as the Broncos' primary punt returner last season. Has 16 receptions with one touchdown in his career. Tyler Shoemaker Sr. 6-1, 213 The most experienced BSU receiver, has caught 60 passes for 1,037 yards and nine touchdowns in his career.

At 5-9 and 158 pounds, Potter was the electrifying punt returner for the Broncos last season, averaging 13.3 yards per return, including a 76-yard touchdown.

Like Potter, Burroughs is undersized (5-9, 187) and has a small sample size of production. The Meridian High School graduate has 17 career receptions with one touchdown.

"We've seen them out there and haven't really seen what they can do. I think they're a lot like I was, kind of behind guys, waiting for their role," Shoemaker said. "I think they're going to bring a lot to the receivers."

Boldewijn is a receiver much

Geraldo Boldewijn (Formerly Hiwat)

Soph. 6-4, 200 Great size and has the most upside of any receiver on the team. Caught 11 passes for 160 yards in 2010.

Mitch Burroughs Jr. 5-9, 187

Missed four games due to injury in 2010 and has 17 receptions for 151 yards in his career.

more the mold of Pettis. The Netherlands product stands 6-4 with a wiry, but strong frame and as a redshirt freshman last season, caught 11 passes for 160 yards.

"I'm just going to try and help the young guys and go out and try to make plays every day," said Shoemaker, who along with Moore, Martin, Nate Potter and Efav are just a few of the seniors on the offensive side of the ball eager to finish their BSU careers on a high note.

"I think we all talk about it every day and it's just finishing. We've got to go out strong, continue the traditions, especially here on the blue and get ready for Bronco football."

Day 2 for Broncos

Boise State running back D.J. Harper takes a break between drills during the Broncos' second practice of fall camp Friday at Dona Larsen Park in Boise, Idaho. Harper is battling back from two knee injuries sustained the last two years which ended his seasons in 2009 and '10. He figures to be a solid contributor to the Boise State offense this season behind starter Doug Martin.

Fowler Part of 4-Way Tie as Woods Falters

AKRON, Ohio (AP) • Rickie Fowler had eight birdies and an eagle to give himself another shot at winning. Adam Scott did well enough to stay in the lead. PGA Tour rookie Keegan Bradley got in on the action late.

It seemed as if everyone was in contention Friday at the Bridgestone Invitational.

Except for the guy most everyone came to see.

On another soft day that was ripe for low scores, Tiger Woods missed a 2-foot putt and didn't make enough birdies to atone for his short-game mistakes during a 1-over 71 that left him in the middle of the pack.

He was only seven shots behind, but had 35 players in front of him at Firestone.

"Today was not very good," Woods said.

It was good enough for Scott, except for making the putts he holed in the opening round of this World Golf Championship. He had a 70, which is never bad at Firestone in any condition.

After opening with a 62, Scott was at 8-under 132 along with Ryan Moore (66), Fowler (64) and Bradley (65). Jason Day bogeyed his last hole for a 70 and was one shot behind with Martin Laird (67) and Robert Karlsson (65).

"The last time I shot 62 was probably a long time ago, so am I going to expect to do it two days in a row?" Scott said. "I don't think so. But it's a hard golf course, and if you're just a little off, you get quite severely penalized. There's no real secret that it's not easy to shoot a couple of 62s."

Fowler was all over the place. He made only five pars, and kept his gallery guessing the rest of the time. There were three straight birdies, and a wedge he holed from 110 yards for eagle on No. 3. He followed that with three bogeys and three pars.

"A lot of good things came out of today," said Fowler, who is still searching for his first win. "Building some confidence going into the weekend."

No one appeared to have more fun than Bradley, the nephew of LPGA Hall of Fame player Pat Bradley and a winner this year at the Byron Nelson Championship. With big crowds lingering even after Woods left the course, he could hear plenty of cheers for birdies all around him, and even some for himself as he worked his way to the top of the leaderboard.

GOODELL, NFLPA HEAD SMITH SIGN NEW, 10-YEAR DEAL

CANTON, Ohio (AP) • NFL Commissioner Roger Goodell and NFLPA head DeMaurice Smith each grabbed a side of the massive 300-page collective bargaining agreement between the players and league owners and exchanged a relieved hand-shake while posing for the cameras.

And just like that, 4 1/2 months of acrimony, anger and posturing from both sides during the protracted NFL lockout was over.

Smith and Goodell signed the new CBA on a makeshift stage on the steps of the Pro Football Hall of Fame Friday morning, a largely ceremonial gesture after the players agreed to ratify the 10-year agreement Thursday night.

Still, there was a sense of relief from both Smith and Goodell, who shook hands three times during the brief signing and even hugged after spending nearly half a year in tense negotiations haggling over a new way to distribute the NFL's massive revenue stream.

"We're all relieved because football is back," Goodell said. "That's what our fans want, and that's what we all want and we're thrilled that we got it done."

One fan shouted "thank you" to Smith as he took his seat, with Smith answering "more than welcome."

Following the signing both men glad-handed their way to the NFL Network's set inside the Hall of Fame Gallery. With the busts of Hall inductees serving as a backdrop, Smith and Goodell detailed the sometimes difficult journey to the new deal.

Neither pointed to a breakthrough moment in the lengthy talks, instead crediting leadership on both sides for being able to find common ground so the 2011 season could be saved.

Goodell said a small group of player representatives and owners did the leg work of putting aside the considerable differences between the two groups and focusing on the future.

"There was a tremendous amount of respect and an attempt to find solutions," Goodell said. "Once we understood each other and we understood that that was what we were there for, we got it done."

Both Goodell and Smith were vague on the possibility of HGH-testing. Smith called it "something to be strived for," with Goodell adding "'we're going to get it done but we want to get it done right."

Many of those stars are still at Oregon, which is favored to win its third straight league title after last season's run to the national championship game. Yet the high-octane Ducks begin the season under a cloud of NCAA investigation into coach Chip Kelly's questionable use of a recruiting service.

"It's nice to be picked to win," Kelly said. "It's nice to be picked top-five in the country, but it doesn't mean anything until you go out and play the game, so that mindset won't change. Hopefully, our motivation comes from within."

OREGON — Key players: RB LaMichael James, QB Darron Thomas, DB Cliff Harris, DB John Boyett, LB Josh Kaddu. Returning starters: 7 offense, 6 defense. Notes: Coach Chip Kelly doesn't believe Oregon's recruiting investigation will become a distraction. ... Tough season opener vs. LSU in Arlington, Tex.

STANFORD — Key players: QB Andrew Luck, RB Stepfan Taylor, LB Shayne Skov, S Michael Thomas, OT Jonathan Martin. Returning starters: 5 offense, 6 defense. Notes: Coach Jim Harbaugh jumped to the 49ers after last season's stunning run to an Orange Bowl victory, leaving David Shaw in charge..

WASHINGTON — Key players: RB Chris Polk, QB Keith Price, WR Jermaine Kearse, S Nate Fellner. Returning starters: 7 offense, 8 defense. Notes: Huskies coming off first winning season since 2002. ... Won 4 straight to end season, including first bowl win since 2001.

CALIFORNIA — Key players: WR Keenan Allen, LB

Mychal Kendricks, OL Mitchell Schwartz, DB Sean Cattouse. Returning starters: 7 offense, 6 defense. Notes: Golden Bears hope to bounce back from disappointing 2010, which ended streaks of 8 straight winning seasons and 7 straight bowl games.

OREGON STATE — Key players: WR James Rodgers, S Lance Mitchell, DT Kevin Frahm, OT Mike Remmers, LB Cameron Collins. Returning starters: 7 offense, 4 defense. Notes: Coming off 5-7 season and first bowl miss since 2005.

WASHINGTON STATE — Key players: QB Jeff Tuel, WR Marquess Wilson, WR Jared Karstetter, S Deone Bucannon, DE Travis Long. Returning starters: 9 offense, 8 defense. Notes: The Cougars have won just 5 games in their first three seasons under coach Paul Wulff, who could be down to his last chance.

SOUTH

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA — Key players: QB Matt Barkley, WR Robert Woods, OT Matt Kalil, DL Nick Perry, S T.J. McDonald. Returning starters: 6 offense, 7 defense. Notes: Ineligible for post-season play in final season of bowl ban. Junior QB Barkley's enviable targets include Woods and touted newcomers Kyle Prater and George Farmer.

ARIZONA STATE — Key players: QB Brock Osweiler, RB Cameron Marshall, RB Deantre Lewis, LB Vontaze Burfict, DE Junior Onyeali. Returning starters: 11 offense, 9 defense. Notes: All 5 starters return on coach Dennis Erickson's offensive line in front of Osweiler, the junior who led an OT win over Arizona in his only start last season. ... Sun Devils will debut their slick new uniforms and helmets Sept. 1 vs. UC Davis.

UTAH — Key players: QB Jordan Wynn, OL Tony Bergstrom, LB Brian Blechen, DT Star Lotulelei, KR Shaky Smithson. Returning starters: 7 offense, 5 defense. Notes: Utes are coming off 8 straight winning seasons in Mountain West. ... They got the luck of the draw in Pac-12 scheduling, avoiding Oregon and Stanford this season. ... Wynn should fit comfortably into the conference's class of outstanding QBs, but Utah must rebuild defense on the move.

ARIZONA — Key players: QB Nick Foles, WR Juron Criner, RB Keola Arionne, LB Paul Vassallo, CB Trevin Wade. Returning starters: 5 offense, 7 defense. Notes: Perpetually on-the-bubble coach Mike Stoops has led Wildcats to three straight bowl games, but is 40-45 overall.

UCLA — Key players: RB Johnathan Franklin, QB Kevin Prince, S Tony Dye, LB Sean Westgate, DE Dantone Jones. Returning starters: 7 offense, 8 defense. Notes: Coach Rick Neuheisel knows he's on hot seat at his alma mater after just one winning season in 3 years, so he hired hungry young coordinators Mike Johnson and Joe Tresey.

COLORADO — Key players: QB Tyler Hansen, RB Rodney Stewart, S Ray Polk. Returning starters: 9 offense, 8 defense. Notes: New coach Jon Embree thinks Pac-12 is much better fit for his alma mater than Big 12. He faces a high degree of debut difficulty: After taking over a program with 5 straight losing seasons, the Buffaloes play 13 games without a bye week.

and missed out on making the hall in his first two years of eligibility. He compiled 10,060 yards receiving and 62 touchdowns, monstrous numbers for a tight end, and won three Super Bowls — two with Denver, one with Baltimore.

But tight end always has been a difficult position from which to gain hall entry; there are only eight tight ends in Canton.

Sharpe did it the hardest way, working his way from a seventh-round draft pick out of Savannah State to making eight Pro Bowls.

"Shannon was the best at what he did, no question," said Mike Shanahan, who coached him with the Broncos. "He dominated. His work ethic was at the top. He played his best in big games, and he did it all over a long period of time."
