Classes Start at CSI

It's time for students to start hitting the books again at the College of Southern Idaho. The first day of class officially kicked off at CSI on Monday. Here's a look at how the college's school year is starting off:

• ENROLLMENT: The college's enrollment on Monday was about 7,400 students, said Doug Maughan, a spokesman for CSI. But more will come. When high school classes start across the Magic Valley, an estimated 1,500 to 2,000 more students will sign up for dual-credit courses.

• EXTENDED REGISTRATION: You may have missed the first day of classes, but you didn't miss the deadline to register for courses. CSI will continue accepting registration from students through the rest of this week. That deadline's shortened compared to the past, when it used to end about two weeks after the semester started. It's also one more reason why the enrollment could rise in the days ahead.

• EXPANSION: There are visible signs of future work at the college. A nearly $3 million addition at the Fine Arts Center is taking shape and will provide a band lab, instrument storage, music library and percussion lab. That project's expected to be done by the end of December, with some interior renovations continuing into 2012.

T.F. Council Continues Search for Road Funding Without Higher Taxes

City grants to the M.V. Arts Council, Crisis Center and Southern Idaho Tourism were spared in latest budget talks, despite falling under Councilman Clow's knife.

BY NICK COLTRAIN

The Twin Falls City Council moved closer Monday night to closing the gap between what is set aside for road maintenance next fiscal year and what the city engineer says is ideal.

But council members also opted to push the budgeting process closer to the last minute so they can get more information.

The council moved a total of $180,101 into the road maintenance budget through a combination of cuts to the Parks and Recreation Department's capital improvement budget made last week, savings from a new pool contract, pushing out the schedule for saving for the pool's winter bubble replacement, and trims to the city contingency fund.

The final budget ordinance appears set to be voted on Monday in a special meeting. The council does not typically meet on the fifth Monday of a month. It will also push the process closer to the city's

Theories Abound for Regatta Attendance Drop

Though cardboard races still entertained, participants and attendees were half what they were the year before, with the reason for the drop unclear.

BY NICK COLTRAIN
ncoltrain@magicvalley.com

Dennis Cockrell was a bit disappointed in the Second Annual Great Cardboard Boat Regatta on Saturday.

Not in attendees, or the organization or anything fundamental about the event — that was so much fun, Cockrell said he's already looking forward to participating again next year.

No, it was the number of boats that disappointed Cockrell, who helped organize Farmers National Bank of Jerome's team in its second year in the race.

"It was nice last year to see different levels of creativity," he said.

The event drew about half the number of entrants this year — 16 boats,

Otter: Fed's Money Needed for Health Exchanges

A Sept. 30 deadline looms for Idaho to apply for a $40 million federal grant to build an exchange.

BOISE (AP) • Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter and many state lawmakers agree: Idaho would be shortsighted to pass up millions of federal dollars to help set up health insurance exchanges, because spurning the cash could mean Washington would impose a plan on Idaho that puts many private insurance agents out of business.

Under the disputed health care overhaul passed by Congress in 2010, Idaho and other states must set up health insurance exchanges by January 2014 — or the federal government could intervene.

There's a Sept. 30 deadline for Idaho to apply for a $40 million federal grant to build an exchange tailored to the state.

On Monday, however, the Spokesman-Review reported that Otter's insurance chief, Bill Deal, told an interim health care committee in Boise that as many as 2,500 insurance agents could be forced to close up shop if Idaho doesn't have an exchange set up in time and Washington imposes its own, one-size-fits-all solution for Idaho.

"It's going to be very disruptive to the Idaho marketplace and, Please see HEALTH, M2

What is a Health Insurance Exchange?

Health exchanges are an attempt to create competition in the insurance marketplace. Theoretically, individuals and small business could band together to get better pricing on options, giving them leverage akin to larger corporations.

Why the Idaho Controversy?

• Idaho has joined a multi-state lawsuit seeking to overturn 2010's Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act because it including the requirement that residents buy insurance — or face fines.

• Since the passage of the law, state lawmakers have been reluctant to accept any associated money, not wanting to be perceived as supporting the overhaul.

• During the 2011 Legislature, for instance, House lawmakers rejected the agency's $10 million budget starting July 1 over objections that it included $2.5 million from the federal government to help develop the exchanges.

UPDATE

Weekend Lightning Sparks Series of Wildfires

TIMES-NEWS

Lightning caused a series of wildfires throughout southern Idaho last weekend.

• NO STRUCTURES DAMAGED • While none of the wildfires threatened structures, more than 4,000 acres of public land was burned. The majority of the fires have been contained and controlled, said Heather Tiel-Nelson, spokeswoman for the U.S. Bureau of Land Management.

• WORST IN THE REGION • The largest fire from the weekend was located north of Minidoka. The fire, which BLM fire crews are calling the Bingham Point Fire, burned close to 3,000 acres. Crews had contained the fire by Sunday afternoon and they had it controlled by Monday evening.

Deep Throat Honored, but Not Here

There's no monument in Twin Falls to the city's most famous son. For that, you must visit a parking lot in Rosslyn, Va.

Earlier this month, the Arlington, Va., Historical Preservation Council installed a sign in front of a gray brick parking garage at 1401 Wilson Blvd. There, W. Mark Felt, Twin Falls High School Class of '31, brought down a president.

For 11 months between October 1972 and November 1973, Felt — associate director of the FBI — gave Washington Post reporter Bob Woodward the essential details of the attempt by the administration of President Richard Nixon to cover up a White House-orchestrated burglary at the offices of the Democratic National Committee at the Watergate complex in Washington, D.C., in June 1972. Felt's information, published by the Post, led to a high-profile congressional investigation and Nixon's resignation in August 1974.

"Deep Throat" was Felt's code name.

"We thought we should probably do a marker and let people know this, indeed, is where all these things took place," said Michael Leventhal, historic preservation coordinator. "As with all these changes ... you don't want to lose that something happened and this is where things occurred."

Felt always met Woodward in parking space 32-D at 2 in the morning. If the G-man had information for the reporter, he'd leave a message on Page 20 of a copy of The New York Times in Woodward's apartment building lobby.

"Felt said I would have to observe strict counter-surveillance techniques ... "Woodward wrote in his 2006 book Secret Man. "Take the alley, don't use your own car. Take a taxicab from a point several blocks from your hotel where they are cabs after midnight. Get dropped off and then walk to a second cab in Rosslyn. Don't get dropped off directly at the parking garage. Walk the last several blocks to the garage ..."

Nixon's men didn't discover Deep Throat's identity until long after the president left office. Felt outed himself in a 2005 article in Vanity Fair; Nixon himself died in 1994.

"The FBI was at war, but not with the usual suspects," Woodward wrote. "The war was with Nixon and his men. So Felt took to the underground parking garage. He never voiced pure, raw outrage to me about Watergate or what it represented ... Nixon was trying to subvert not only the law but the (FBI). So Watergate became Felt's instrument's to reassert the (FBI's) and thus its supremacy."

In May 1973, Nixon passed over Felt — then the agency's No. 2 man — and hired William Ruckelshaus as director. Felt retired a month later, and died in 2008.

The sign now marking the spot was first drafted by the Arlington County government in 2008, but sat in the Historic Preservation office waiting for a special occasion for it to be erected on city streets, according to Washington, D.C., radio station WTOP. After three years of waiting for an organization to create some pomp, Leventhal's department finally installed it earlier this month "as we do things in Arlington: nicely, quietly, professionally, and (then) go about our business."

Proposed Minidoka Co. Cycling Law Moves Forward

BY LAURIE WELCH
lwelch@magicvalley.com

RUPERT • Minidoka County commissioners gave unanimous approval Monday to move forward with a new county ordinance to improve bicycle and pedestrian safety.

Among other changes, the ordinance as drafted would require motorists to put at least three feet of space between themselves and cyclists and pedestrians while passing.

"I really like that, I think it's a good idea," Commissioner Sheryl Koyle said.

The draft ordinance will now be published and a public hearing held before commissioners make any final decision on it. That timeline had not yet been set.

Sheriff Kevin Halverson said if the ordinance passes, he believes it will be the first one of its kind in the state.

Halverson said the effort was prompted by a bicyclist-motorist crash Aug. 9 where Sally Stephens was struck by Jack Corey, 75, of Rupert. According to the sheriff's report Corey allegedly did not see Stephens as she rode to work in Burley along 100 East Road near Idaho Highway 24.

Stephens was taken by air ambulance to a Utah trauma center and was released Aug. 14. She had multiple pelvic fractures and a head injury.

Corey was cited with a driving infraction, failure to exercise due care while driving, and pleaded guilty to the charge. He was fined $85.

Stephens' husband, Ken Stephens, said he and Sally have been riding bikes for 20 years.

"I've had cars come so close to me," he said.

Halverson said it will come down to educating the public about bicycle safety and incorporating those messages into new driver training courses.

"I think this is a wonderful way to start," Ken Stephens said.

County Prosecutor Lance Stevenson said state lawmakers in 2009 and 2010 failed to pass a similar law because of its wording.

The Minidoka County draft ordinance would also cover people who are on roadways performing work.

deadline to get its budget information to the county, which levies property taxes and disperses them. The city budget as it stands now is about $46 million.

The budget changes put the total road maintenance budget at $930,101 — a dramatic increase over last year's $550,000 but still a third of a million dollars short of what City Engineer Jackie Fields originally requested. However, she wasn't disappointed Monday night, noting that the funding would get the city close to an eight-year cycle for seal-coating its roads.

Councilman Lance Clow suggested the savings from the pool budget and the contingency fund, putting the latter in line with what City Manager Travis Rothweiler called historical standards. Both were unanimously approved.

The city's municipal powers outsource grant budget also came under Clow's scissors only to be pulled out by the other council members. The grants — totaling $100,000, with Clow proposing lopping a quarter off — help fund several community organizations, with Clow eyeing cuts to the Magic Valley Arts Council, the Crisis Center of the Magic Valley and Southern Idaho Tourism.

The measure was voted down 4-2, with Councilwoman Rebecca Mills Sojka abstaining because her husband is in the municipal band, another recipient. Only Clow and Councilman Trip Craig voted for the cuts. Craig said he would reluctantly support the measure if it was the will of the council.

"There is a thing called quality of life," Councilman Greg Lanting said before voting "no."

The additional $366,000 the council opted to include in its published tentative budget remained there Monday, despite a vote to remove it. The vote failed 2-5, with Mills Sojka and Councilman Will Kezele supporting it.

That additional money was included so the council wouldn't "paint itself into a corner," as Craig said. Some council members said they don't intend to leave it in but wanted to see how changes to the state's sale tax distribution affect the city budget before voting it out. Clow said he didn't want to vote on it yet because he could still be persuaded to raise taxes if an important need arose.

Buhl Intersection Will Remain 4-way Stop

TIMES-NEWS

One of the main intersections leading into Buhl will remain a four-way stop for now, as the Idaho Transportation Department works to replace a traffic signal destroyed Friday night.

Stop signs were put in place at the intersection of Broadway Avenue and Clear Lake Road — also U.S. Highway 30 and Idaho Highway 46 — after a semitrailer attempting to turn off of Clear Lake Road hit the traffic signal on the northwest corner. The signal pole cracked near the base and had to be removed, according to ITD.

ITD is also considering other temporary traffic control at the intersection until repairs are made.

Typically, signal poles can take as much as four months to be manufactured and delivered. The pole foundation will also have to be inspected to ensure it wasn't damaged.

"We don't keep a large stockpile of signal poles because it's costly and not very common for them to be hit or taken out of service," District Four Traffic Engineer Bruce Christensen said. "Because of the traffic volumes of this intersection, we'll try to expedite the order but it will still take time for it to be replaced."

down from 35 last year — and saw almost a halving of spectators, from about 1,500 people to 800.

A shocking decrease, but not one that Shawn Barigar, president of the event-organizing Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce, fretted over.

"Having 800 people to come by and enjoy the event is nothing to shake a stick at," Barigar said.

He estimated that higher entry fees for the regatta teams, requiring spectators to either pay for a shuttle ride to Dierkes Lake or for a parking spot down there, and a busy event weekend might have all played a role. Even the novelty of racing cardboard boats might have just waned year-over-year, he said.

"Who knows?" Barigar asked. "If you can answer that question, you will be a gazillionaire for any fundraising organization in town."

CLEVELAND NOW CHARGED WITH ASSAULTING JAIL DEPUTY

TIMES-NEWS

Cleveland

The Nevada man accused of fatally shooting a hotel guest in Twin Falls faces more felony charges.

Clark Cleveland was arraigned on two complaints of assault and propelling bodily fluids on Monday in Twin Falls 5th District Magistrate Court. According to his case file, Cleveland is alleged to have repeatedly hit Deputy Matthew White, who works in the Twin Falls County Jail for the sheriff's office, while White served Cleveland his evening meal on Aug. 3. Cleveland also supposedly spat on the deputy.

The affidavit notes White had bruising and swelling around his forehead and left eye.

A preliminary hearing is scheduled for Sept. 2. A $100,000 bond was set for Cleveland, although he will remain in jail as he awaits a January 2012 trial date for murder and multiple counts of aggravated battery. Bond was denied for those felony complaints.

Cleveland allegedly killed Tracy Ivie, of Lindon, Utah, on July 15 after fleeing police from an attempted traffic stop on U.S. Highway 30 near Filer.

He recently crashed his vehicle near the Hampton Inn in northwest Twin Falls and fired multiple shots at police while entering the hotel, then barricaded himself in a stairwell with a female hostage and eventually surrendered.

Kimberly Man Charged with Threatening Woman, Son with Knife

TIMES-NEWS

A Kimberly man faces two felony complaints of aggravated assault, accused of threatening a woman and her son with a knife.

Michael Dolan, 46, allegedly went into a drunken rage and began fighting with a woman, Kandi Erskine, 39, choking her and taunting her to call the police at their Taylor Street home early Friday morning. At some point, her 17-year-old son confronted Dolan, who pulled a knife on Erskine and threatened to "gut her son up." The mother and son got away and locked themselves in a room. Dolan was reported to have pulled an air conditioning unit out of a window and left the house via the window.

Erskine told police Dolan had been drinking and became upset that he couldn't find his phone.

Dolan was arraigned on Monday in Twin Falls County 5th District Magistrate Court. His bond was set at $10,000, and a preliminary hearing is slated for Sept. 2. He is in custody at Twin Falls County Jail.

Police Arrest Man for Felony Battery for Fighting with Officers at T.F. Bar

TIMES-NEWS

Twin Falls police reportedly used a Taser multiple times on a man who had allegedly threatened people with a knife.

Roberto Fernandez Jr., 24, of Twin Falls, was arrested and charged with felony battery on a police officer after struggling with police outside of Woody's Bar in southwest Twin Falls on Friday night. Police were dispatched to the bar, where security had removed Fernandez from the building.

When police arrived, Fernandez was on a bicy-

Terry Thueson in the face while holding him in a headlock. Officer Steven Gassert, who wrote the report, stated he fired the Taser into Fernandez' upper back but Fernandez continued to fight.

Fernandez is held at Twin Falls County Jail with a $20,000 bond. A preliminary hearing is scheduled for Sept. 2.

Twin Falls Man Accused of Assault at Brothel

ELKO DAILY FREE PRESS

McClimans

WELLS, Nev. • A disagreement over music on a jukebox was reason enough for a Twin Falls man to throw a drink at a brothel employee and soon after brandish a firearm outside the business, according to sheriff's deputies.

Deputies were called to Donna's Ranch brothel north of Wells, Nev. at 5:49 p.m. Friday on a report of a man brandishing a handgun. The man, later identified as Michael James McLimans, 62, was found at Bella's brothel and arrested. He told deputies he had the pistol to defend himself, the report states.

Several employees of Donna's Ranch told deputies that McLimans was not happy with the choice of music playing on the jukebox and became angry. Witnesses said McLimans threw a large glass of Bloody Mary at one of the employees.

Two women removed him from the building.

Moments later, according to the report, McLimans tried to get back in through the front door, but employees had locked it. He then went to the plate glass window and started banging it with his fist and a handgun. Witnesses said he was pointing the gun at the window toward the people inside.

McLimans was arrested on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon. His bail is $5,000.

Heroin Charges Dropped

TIMES-NEWS

Twin Falls County prosecutors have dropped multiple charges of trafficking in heroin and criminal conspiracy against three people from Ada County.

The charges will now be re-filed in Ada County, Twin Falls County Prosecutor Grant Loebs said.

At a preliminary hearing in Twin Falls County 5th District Magistrate Court on Friday, the state dismissed the criminal complaints against Dennis Williams, 22, of Boise; Aubree Clayton, 19, of Garden City; and Ashley Hidalgo, 22, of Boise. They were arrested in late July after Twin Falls detectives set up a buy at the Buffalo Wild Wings in Twin Falls. The group was allegedly in possession of heroin and told police where to find more. ISP detectives reported seizing 107 grams at the Boise residence of Hidalgo's father.

As of Monday, the trio were still listed as in custody of the Twin Falls County Jail.

Local Views Vary on Online Education

BY BEN BOTKIN
bbotkin@magicvalley.com

To some, online classes are a valuable tool. To others, they've been an exercise in frustration.

Personnel from the Idaho State Board of Education heard both perspectives Monday at a public hearing in Twin Falls on a new state requirement for such classes.

High school students entering class as freshmen in the fall of 2012 would have to take two online courses to graduate under a proposed rule. Monday's feedback will be given to a board subcommittee drafting that rule.

Trent Siler, a teacher at Filer High School, said the school unsuccessfully tried to put some of its well-performing students in a pre-calculus online course a couple of years ago.

Students were unable to understand the material and had difficulties contacting the teacher, who took weeks to respond, Siler said, adding that most of the students failed.

Bonnie Mahannah, a mother from Castleford, said her son took online courses at Castleford School District last year and had technical problems, such as getting materials uploaded.

That's time-consuming and frustrating, particularly if a teacher takes a couple of days to get back, she said.

"When it gets down to the wire and things don't work, we're stuck," she said.

Wiley Dobbs, superintendent of Twin Falls School District, said student interest in online courses has been high, with successful pass rates of 93 percent and 94 percent for the last two semesters. Last year, 555 students in the dis-

About the Proposal

This spring's state education reforms direct the State Board of Education to form online course requirements.

The current proposal calls for requiring two online courses of high school students who start their freshman year in 2012.

Students must take one each of two types of courses: one entirely online, and one a blended model that combines online learning with other classroom instruction. What's next: A board subcommittee will meet again and could revise the rule before making its recommendation. The full board could also change the rule, but must pass one by Sept. 1.

That rule will then go to the Legislature in 2012. If lawmakers reject it, the state board will have to come up with a different proposal.

trict took online courses.

But he cautioned that online education shouldn't be viewed as a tool for saving money, noting that there are still extra costs from classroom facilitators and technology.

Byron Stutzman, superintendent of Buhl School District, said it's important to teach students the way they learn best, whether it's online or otherwise.

"I'm a digital Neanderthal," Stutzman jokingly said. "My daughter is a digital native."

Groundwater Pumpers Move Ahead in Fish Farm Purchase

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

Southern Idaho groundwater pumpers are moving forward in their purchase of three fish farms, including the majority of Blue Lakes Trout Farm's production facilities.

Four groundwater districts await a judge's approval to take on long-term debt for the unusual purchase, meant to resolve a cycle of water calls and lawsuits that stand to affect water use across the region.

A hearing is scheduled to take place before a Power County judge on Oct. 13.

The total price for the farms is $30 million, but the districts are asking for a tad bit more to cover any unforeseen costs.

Getting judicial confirmation is one of the final steps for the deal, said Bruce Smith, the trout farms' attorney. The confirmation process is similar that used by a city wanting to spend a large sum of money, but that doesn't hold a vote.

"Judicial confirmation gives people a sense of security that what you're doing is prudent," Smith said.

The deal would allow the pumpers to purchase Blue Lakes Trout, Clear Lakes Trout and Rim View Trout fish farms in the Thousand Springs area, along with the associated water rights. That's more than 400 cubic feet per second as currently flowing.

"The appraisal value actually came in a little higher than the price we're paying for it. We think this is a fair price based on the appraisal," said Randy Budge, groundwater attorney.

If the judge signs off, the purchase will be financed through the Idaho Water Resource Board, which will distribute revenue bonds to front the costs of the farm purchase.

The Aberdeen-American Falls, Bingham, Magic Valley and North Snake groundwater districts will have 20 years to repay the water board's bonds. Though not listed as part of the court filing, the Southwest Irrigation District previously stated it would participate in the purchase.

Purchasing the water rights would allow the pumpers to mend injuries inflicted on senior water users' rights. They could supply the water to other users to resolve current and future water calls in the Thousand Springs area.

Water delivery calls tend to lead to costly legal battles that affect the price and availability of water. This $30 million deal would alleviate pending and future water calls in the Thousand Springs area.

Blue Lakes Trout Farm would also be removed from a two-party pending water call. Both Blue Lakes and Clear Springs Foods have accused groundwater pumpers of infringing upon their water rights.

Seeking judicial confirmation is the last step in the process, Budge said. If all goes smoothly, pumpers could be finished with the purchase by December.

"We fully expect the judge to approve the deal," he said.

CLEANING

Question:

I'm a busy mom trying to get my elementary school children back to class. A new item on their supply list is a good quality hand sanitizer. I've seen a lot of cheaper, generic brands in the discount stores. Do you have a better product, that will provide the best protection possible from germs and diseases for my children?

"Volunteer Germ Patrol Mom"

Answer:

CLEAN "N" FRESH is the best hand sanitizer on the market! It kills 99.9% of the most common bacteria in less than 15 seconds. Not only does it eliminate these nasty germs but it also moisturizes your hands due to its unique Aloe Vera ingredient, (cheap brands dry out your hands!) It comes in a small, compact size just right for back packs, school desks, and on the playground. Thanks for protecting our little Einsteins!

P.S. Pick up some extras for around the house and at the work place.

OBITUARIES

Andrew Michael Crowley

March 8, 1992-Aug. 12, 2011

An amazing young man was tragically taken from us Friday, Aug. 12, 2011.

Andrew Michael Crowley was born March 8, 1992, to Amy Crowley and Larry Langdon in Burien, Wash. He grew up in West Seattle and attended Pathfinder and Nova High School. From an early age, Andrew loved to spend time camping and fishing, especially in Idaho with his Grandpa and Grandma. He loved the wide-open spaces and sunsets there. He loved working on cars with his stepfather, Andre' and bike riding all over Seattle. Andrew had an exceptional gift of spreading happiness to everyone he met. He was a devoted, caring son, brother and grandson and a loyal friend that would have helped anyone, anytime and anywhere. He went out of his way to defend what was right and to make sure no one was wrongly harmed. He was a kind and sensitive soul who just wanted peace among everyone. He loved teaching his brother, Aiden, how to fish and how to make s'mores.

Andrew lived on Mercer Island with his mom, stepfather and baby brother, where he was well known and loved by the community.

Andrew worked with his Dad, Larry, at Monster Metal in Auburn, Wash. He was becoming an accomplished metal worker and spent long hours perfecting his craft. He was very proud of his work, as were we all. He was talented, detail oriented and had a bright future in whatever area he chose.

He is survived by his mother and stepfather, Amy and Andre' Floyd of Mercer Island, Wash.; father and stepmother, Larry and Bonnie Langdon of SeaTac, Wash.; brothers, Aiden Floyd, Loren and Landon Langdon; grandparents, Judy and Dan Childs, Lauren and Holly Langdon, and Cathy and Dale Edmonds; great-grandmothers, Lois Langdon and Peggy Gillett; aunts, Shannon Crowley and Joanna Vanburen; uncles, Michael Crowley, Lonny Langdon and Casey White; many cousins; and his beloved dog, Sadie. Andrew was preceded in death by his great-grandfathers, Dean Gillett and Lynn Langdon; and great-grandparents, Albert and Claudia Crowley.

He will always be remembered and will be with us forever in our hearts.

A celebration of Andrew's life will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 23, at the Auburn Adventist Academy, 5000 Auburn Way S., Auburn, WA 98092. Anyone wanting to share their memories of Andrew, whether oral or written, is encouraged to do so at that time.

A family service will be held in Buhl, Idaho, at a later date, where Andrew will be laid to rest and he can always enjoy the sunsets he so loved.

Frank Elmer Hinrichs

Jan. 6, 1918-Aug. 18, 2011

RUPERT • Frank Elmer Hinrichs, a 93-year-old Rupert resident, passed away Thursday, Aug. 18, 2011, at the Cassia Regional Medical Center in Burley.

Frank was born Jan. 6, 1918, in Harbine, Neb., the son of William and Pearle Hinrichs. He married Evelyn Dorothy Veatch on Aug. 3, 1940, in Auburn, Neb. He lived in Fairbury, Neb., and then moved to California in 1953, living in Newell and Tulelake and settling in Rupert on June 4, 1954. Frank was an electrical contractor and owned and operated Hinrichs Electric from 1954 to 1999 and finally retired at the age of 81. He was a past member of the Kiwanis Club, Rupert Country Club, Shriner's, Elks and Masons. Frank enjoyed horseback riding, hunting and spending time with family and friends, especially his coffee buddies at Cathy's Kitchen.

Frank is survived by three sons, James (Carol) of Lake Stevens, Wash., Robert (Peggy) of Rio Vista, Calif., and John (Nancy Wadley) of Burley; a daughter-in-law, Jackie of Paul, Idaho; grandchildren, Anna Lisa, Christine, Kimberly, Kevin, David, Kathy, Teryal, Sheila and Korey; great-grandchildren, Gregory, Jayson, Meleah, Michael, Stacie Rae, Kelsey, Kallie, Andraya, Johnathan, Quinton, Joy, Elaina, Noah and Tegan; and great-grandchildren, Harlie and Alex. He was preceded in death by his wife, Evelyn; a son, William Ray; seven brothers; one sister; and his parents.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Thursday, Aug. 25, at the Hansen Mortuary Rupert Chapel, 710 Sixth St., with Pastor Pam Meese officiating. A viewing for family and friends will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 24, at the funeral home.

The family would like to thank the staff of Country-side Care and Rehabilitation, Highland Estates, Mini-Cassia Care Center and Comfort Keepers.

The family suggests that memorials be made to the Shriner's Children's Hospital.

Helen Trowbridge

Nov. 6, 1939-Aug 20, 2011

HAGERMAN • Helen Trowbridge, 71, of Hagerman, Idaho, passed away Saturday, Aug 20, 2011, at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center surrounded by her loved ones.

Helen was born Nov. 6, 1939, in Baldwin Park, Calif., to James Horald Lee and Jennie May Woodbury. She met her first husband in American Fork, Utah, with whom she had five children, Robbi Gibson, Lori Wallace, Susi Rice (Stan), Lee Wagstaff (Cheryl) and John Wagstaff (Sandra). They lived on a farm in Nampa, Idaho. After separating from her husband, Helen moved her family to Jerome, Idaho, where she worked her way through college to become a Realtor in order to support her children. She moved to Twin Falls, Idaho, where she met the love of her life, William Trowbridge; they married and, in her heart, she adopted Steve Trowbridge (Joy) and Scott Trowbridge (Ligh). A few years later, Curt Trowbridge joined the family.

Helen was active in her community for many years, serving those less fortunate. Anyone privileged enough to have known her was continually inspired by her understanding and selflessness. Her family was her passion, and she was at her happiest when surrounded by them.

Helen was preceded in death by her husband, William; two sons; a daughter; and a granddaughter. She will be greatly missed by all who have been touched by her life.

A viewing for Helen will be held from 6 until 8 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 24, at White Mortuary "Chapel by the Park," 136 Fourth Ave. E. in Twin Falls, and from 1 until 1:45 p.m. prior to the service in the Relief Society Room at the church. The funeral will be held at 2 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 25, at The Twin Falls LDS South Stake Center, 841 Harrison St. S. in Twin Falls. Burial will follow at Sunset Memorial Park, 2296 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls, Idaho. To share a memory of Helen or to offer condolences to Helen's family please visit www.whitemortuary.com.

Hagadone Estate to Be Offered at Auction

COEUR D'ALENE (Marketwire) • Renowned Idaho businessman Duane Hagadone will offer his Coeur d'Alene home at a real estate auction on Sept. 8. The home, which had an original asking price of $27.5 million, will sell at a price at or above $7.5 million through J. P. King Auction Company.

The home features three bedroom suites and nine bathrooms, along with amenities that appeal to any entertainer. The layout of the home leads back to a large great room, which boasts disappearing glass panels that open the great room up to the outside patio area.

"It's located in a spectacular place," said Hagadone, who rebuilt the home nine years ago. "It was important to us to have privacy and security, and it was a great retreat for us."

Hagadone owns Hagadone Corporation, which publishes several newspapers throughout the Northwest. He also owns Hagadone Hospitality Company and other hotels in the region, including a 18-hole waterfront golf course with the world's first and only floating green.

With views of Lake Coeur d'Alene, which National Geographic ranked as one of the most beautiful lakes in the world, the Hagadone Estate provides an outdoor retreat with its pool, hot tubs, tennis court, golf hole, outdoor kitchen, bar, fireplace and perfectly manicured lawns to match the views.

The home also includes a fully-gated and partially-heated drive, nine-car garage and helipad along with a two-story, two bedroom guest home. For indoor entertaining, the home includes an indoor pool, indoor tennis court, game room and bowling alley.

The auction will take place on Sept. 8 at 2 p.m. on site at 3155 East Harrison, Coeur d'Alene.

Cascade Man Accused of Police Hit-and-Run Arrested

ASSOCIATED PRESS

GARDEN CITY • Authorities in Garden City say they have arrested a Cascade man accused of trying to run over two police officers on bicycles following a robbery Saturday night.

Garden City police say 35-year-old Chad Ritchie was apprehended Monday morning. He could face felony charges of aggravated assault with a deadly weapon.

Investigators say Ritchie drove at and struck one of the police bicycles while trying to flee an alley behind an Idaho Youth Ranch building. Police say the suspect abandoned the car about four blocks away and took off on foot.

The Idaho Statesman reports the officers involved in the encounter were not hurt.

OPINION

Words, and Fear

Last Friday in a meeting with the Times-News editorial board, Senator Jim Risch used the word "Gestapo" to describe what he thought to be overbearing tactics employed by the Environmental Protection Agency. Lest we forget, the real Gestapo was the German secret police that operated under the oppressing leadership of Heinrich Himmler.

The real Gestapo killed people. Literally. Use of the term to mean something less is uncalled for, but far too frequent. Earlier this month, Vice-President Joe Biden referred to Tea Party Republicans as "terrorists" for tactics he thought inappropriate in working through the debt limit issue. And Glenn Beck just can't seem to stop using the word "Holocaust" to emphasize his agenda demonize his opponents.

Using these emotion-laded words as a means of making a partisan-politics point is just plain wrong, regardless of your party affiliation. So Senator Risch, knock it off!

But alas, Risch didn't stop there. He continued on to paint a dismal picture of the U.S. economy that, according to him, "is much worse than you think." Well perhaps it is, but why is it that all "bad" spending occurred only during Democratic administrations? Risch, a self-proclaimed "good Republican," answered his own question during last Thursday's gathering. "Being a good Republican," Risch said, "I'll argue that the Democrats started after World War II and they took us every year, more spending, more programs..." In other words, the election of a new President and a new Congress is looming and it's time to scare the hell out of people by telling them things are much worse than you think and-by the way-it's the other guy's fault.

The problem is, employing words that evoke fear in people is a tried-and-true tactic that historically translates into votes. Republicans blame Democrats. Democrats blame Republicans. Risch blames Obama. Obama blames Boehner. Boehner blames Reid. And on and on it goes.

This election cycle, let's not get sucked into being manipulated into feeling afraid. Conversely, let's not be content with an empty promise of hope that is void of practical application.

Let's demand more-let's demand a sort of pragmatic hope-one that looks at problems as opportunities for solutions and realizes that those solutions are not the sole domain of a single political party.

We think it's called honesty. And we're not holding our breaths.

Alabama Goes Down Wrong Path

The following editorial appeared in the Los Angeles Times on Wednesday, Aug. 17.

Under Alabama's new law, police would be required to arrest and jail anyone they suspect of being in the country illegally or face criminal liability and lawsuits. Landlords would be required to verify the immigration status of tenants or risk criminal charges. And public school officials would be forced to check students' immigration status and report it to district officials.

Five Myths About Rick Perry

Evan Smith

Texas Tribune

You're probably thinking, "I've seen this movie before: West Texas boy makes middling grades in college, gets elected governor and — to the consternation of gobsmacked Democrats, who misunderestime his folksy appeal — runs for the Republican nomination for president." But if that's all you know about Rick Perry, you're probably one of those pundit-savants who's asking whether the country is ready for another White House occupant from the Lone Star State. The fact is, the most recent entrant in to the GOP race is nothing like the caricatures being promoted on the left and the right. Here are some myths that need debunking, and quick.

1. He's a Bush clone.

Biographical similarities aside, Perry is not the second coming of George W. Bush, either stylistically or substantively. Bush governed Texas with a light touch and had a good relationship with the Democrats in the Legislature. Perry is more hard-knuckled in his dealings not only with Democrats but with insufficiently conservative Republicans — what we in Texas pejoratively call "moderates." Beyond that, Bushworld is no fan of Perry. Speculation as to why ranges from professional rivalry to personal dislike, but regardless, during the 2010 GOP primary for governor, the top-tier Bushies — including Karl Rove, Karen Hughes and Jim Baker — all backed Perry's opponent, Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison, and they've shown no enthusiasm for Perry's presidential bid.

2. He's a hillbilly dimwit.

Just because he wears cowboy boots and drops his G's doesn't mean he's a dummy. Perry may be a small-town boy who went to an ag school (Texas A&M University), but he's an extremely cagey and strategic politician who has been among the state's most successful governors at getting what he wants.

3. He's an ideological purist.

It's true that Perry was 10th Amendment before 10th Amendment was cool, a believer in the notion that states are the laboratories of democracy — and that nothing good comes top-down from government. But at least three times in his career, Perry has thrown over those core principles. In 2007, he pushed for the mandatory inoculation of young girls with the human papillomavirus vaccine as a way to prevent cervical cancer. In the run-up to the campaign, Perry called for constitutional amendments banning same-sex marriage and abortion, in direct opposition to his long-held insistence that the feds should stay out of states' business.

4. He opposes federal stimulus money.

Perry made headlines during the 2009 legislative session when he turned down $555 million in federal stimulus funding to extend unemployment insurance, citing the strings attached, and he has made a talking point out of the "failed stimulus." But Texas took more than $17 billion in stimulus money in 2009 to balance the budgets from that biennium and the previous one. Perry defends the decision by saying Texas is a donor state — and, true enough, it sends more money to Washington than it gets back in benefits and services.

5. He has presided over an unqualified economic miracle.

When Perry says Texas has less than 10 percent of the nation's population but has created more than 40 percent of its jobs in the past two years, he's not exaggerating. But there's more to the story than those top-line statistics.

The unemployment rate in Texas is 8.4 percent as of Friday — worse than that of 25 other states. Texas has more minimum-wage jobs than every state other than Mississippi. And growth in public sector jobs in Texas has been 19 percent over the past 10 years, vs. just 9 percent growth in private-sector jobs.

Evan Smith is the editor in chief the Texas Tribune. He wrote this commentary for The Washington Post.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Brief Recap

Interesting contrast on Thursday's editorial page. Campbell and Putnam calmly discussed poll data showing how the Tea Party and the Religious Right have both lost respect among the electorate. Thomas demonstrated how firmly he has both feet planted in these groups. According to him, any writer who points out the extreme tone of Bachmann's speeches or finds Perry's public prayer for rain amusing is a "bigot." Campbell and Putnam live in a world of diverse political views and religious beliefs, as do many of us. In such a world, differences are appreciated and compromise is a respected decision-making tool. Thomas and the Tea Party live in a heavily blinkered world of one correct political-religious outlook. They cannot comprehend that many people find diversity to be a stimulating source of social creativity.

What I find dismaying in the current political situation is how much power the Tea Party conservatives have managed to grab with their one-issue know-nothing talk. To paraphrase Yeats, "The reasonable lack all conviction, while the narrow-minded are full of passionate intensity."

The reasonable among us need to develop some conviction and act on it. STEPHEN POPPINO

Twin Falls

Praise Burley

Burley has got it right.

I just read a Times-News article that the city of Burley has turned its law enforcement over to the sheriff. This saved the taxpayers of the city of Burley $180,000. This makes sense to me instead of taxing property owners more in this recession-ridden economy.

Property owners are tired of footing the bill. Why should we pay for double of everything? Two police stations, two of everything when one is all we can afford? We can't support two of our largest police departments in this valley any longer.

According to the crime rates, the Twin Falls Police Department needs an overhaul, which there is no money for. Hats off to the TFPD officers trying to hold back the crime rate, but I think they need some help. The city of Twin Falls needs to give some serious thought to following Burley's lead and saving some serious bucks.

The old officers of TFPD told me years ago that this is what needed to happen; looks like the time has arrived to me.

Mayor Hall asked for suggestions; here is mine, Don.

When Secrecy Gets Out of Hand

Every 6-year-old knows what a secret is. But apparently our nation's national security establishment does not.

Consider this strange case from earlier this year. On June 8, the National Security Agency, a top-secret government spy agency, heralded the “declassification” of a 200-year-old publication, translated from the original German, on cryptography. It turns out, however, as reported by Steven Aftergood of the Federation of American Scientists on his blog Secrecy News, that the 1809 study had long been publicly available and had even been digitized and published online through Google Books several years earlier. In fact, the 19th century study had not met the government's own standards for classification in the first place.

The day after this odd “declassification,” the government's four-year prosecution of NSA whistleblower Thomas Drake under the Espionage Act collapsed when the government withdrew charges. The official explanation was that the government had to drop its prosecution to protect sensitive information about the NSA's targeting of a particular telecommunications technology that the judge would have compelled it to disclose.

But in my opinion, the classified information Drake was charged with having possessed illegally — like the 1809 study — never should have been classified in the first place.

Drake, once a high official at the NSA, was prosecuted because, as the government put it, he was found in “unauthorized possession of a document relating to the national defense, namely, a classified email.”

The charges stem from Drake's leaking of information to a journalist. Drake acknowledges that he approached a Baltimore Sun reporter with information, but he insists that he never offered any classified information. “I went to a reporter with a few key things: fraud, waste and abuse,” he said in an interview with the New Yorker. Having served as an expert witness for Drake's defense, I have read the email in question, and it clearly does not meet even the minimal criteria for classification, namely that it “reasonably could be expected to result in damage to the national security.”

Various government officials involved in the Drake case have made the point that individual employees do not get to decide on their own that information they have access to should be declassified; that is the government's role.

Still, government officials are obligated to follow the standards set forth by the president through a 2009 executive order. They are not allowed to exceed its prohibitions and limitations in deciding what to classify. Classifying information that should not be kept secret can be just as harmful to the national interest as unauthorized disclosures of appropriately classified information.

Fixing the Economy: We Got it Wrong

In early January 2009 two White House-bound economists — Christina Romer and Jared Bernstein — predicted that if the stimulus bill were passed, unemployment would peak at 8 percent by midyear and then start coming down. If there were no stimulus, they said, joblessness might hit 9 percent and not peak until 2010.

Romer and Bernstein had the risky job of hyping policy, but they weren't alone in their optimistic views. Forecasters at the Congressional Budget Office, the Federal Reserve and most private banks all thought that the economy had a natural tendency to right itself, sooner or later. What it needed, the activists urged, was a push.

Well it's now obvious that the push didn't do the job. Even with it, unemployment is higher than the Romer-Bernstein worst case. The optimistic forecasts now look embarrassing, ranking right up there alongside Irving Fisher's 1929 comment that stocks had reached “a permanently high plateau.”

About the time Romer and Bernstein issued their assessments, I wrote a cover essay for Washington Monthly attacking predictions of early recovery. The “return to normal” would not happen, I wrote, because the effects of a financial collapse could not be reversed. But though this fact was obvious and in plain sight, somehow many economists missed it. Let's examine that epic failure.

First, the economic models in use were obviously faulty. Why? Because they had assumed a “natural rate of unemployment” to which the economy will return whatever happens. This idea originated with Milton Friedman as part of his attack on John Maynard Keynes — who had argued, based on the stark evidence of the Great Depression, that mass unemployment can persist indefinitely. An economist who builds the natural rate into a model is like a doctor who assumes that her patient will always get better eventually, even without treatment. No such doctors exist, of course; that so many economists think this way is just strange.

Second, the glide path to recovery was obviously wrong. Why? Because it was based on postwar business cycles, and recessions from 1950 to 1990 were caused mainly by tight policies or outside shocks to a fairly sound system. Those recessions did have a corrective: as time passed “pent-up demand” would build and a new credit boom would start. In 2009, because American households were now massively upside-down on their mortgages, this could not happen.

Third, the forecasts were reinforced by checking with all the top forecasters, and this was the wrong thing to do. Why? Because in a deep crisis the consensus view, which is necessarily an average, is always wrong! Extreme situations require extreme assessments, meaning that someone must stand up and overrule the crowd. But led by its technicians, Team Obama simply assumed away the crisis, calling it instead a “Great Recession” which again implied that it would end just because recessions always had.

The next mistake was to base policy on the forecasts. The sensible thing would have been to paint the bleakest possible picture, emphasizing the extraordinary crisis, and so justify the largest possible policy action. Then if things turned out all right

President Obama would have gotten credit, and any excess actions could easily have been cut back. Instead, the president set himself and his policies up for blame.

The solution is not another “stimulus” — a term that stinks of needles and quick fixes. The solution has to be a long-term strategy: both a new direction for economic activity and new institutions to provide the money. The proposed national infrastructure bank — a permanent institution — is the right sort of thing and would be a good place to start.

To go further, let's admit that our problem is not budget deficits or public debt — not now and not later. Let's agree that cutting Social Security and Medicare — inflicting pointless pain on the elderly — will not help. Let's build a new financial system to serve public purpose and private business.

Time is short, but at least in recent days it's becoming clear: We're getting it wrong and we must change.

Maintenance, Repair Price Tag Grows for Idaho Universities

MOSCOW (AP) • Several years of cuts in state funding have forced administrators at Idaho's four public universities to delay millions of dollars in maintenance and repair projects to buildings, heating systems and other infrastructure upkeep on campus.

The estimated costs tied to the backlogs vary depending on the size and age of each campus. It explains why the University of Idaho, the state's oldest campus, has a list of delayed projects now pegged at $200 million, up from $70 million six years ago.

"We're just attacking maintenance as we go," University of Idaho Vice President for Facilities and Administration Ron Smith told the Lewiston Tribune. "It's really hard, because you can't get any other partners that want to help you do repair and maintenance. And you can't get donors on board, because it's not sexy to do that."

The biggest chunks of the deferred maintenance projects at the Moscow campus include major building system repair and replacement, estimated at $48 million, The Tribune reported. Officials estimate the utility system needs repairs or replacement pegged at $37 million and construction to comply with federal disabilities laws totaling $18 million.

Over the last few years, state lawmakers have appropriated about $3 million annually for each of the four campuses to address maintenance and repair issues, making it difficult to make significant headway in clearing the growing inventory of maintenance needs, Smith said.

A survey compiled by Boise State University has calculated the school needs $75 million over the next five years to ensure the facilities can be maintained at current levels. The former junior college, which has grown to 5 million square-feet divided among 200 buildings, is newer than its counterparts but is reaching a point where several buildings need structural repairs or replacement of air or heating systems nearing the end of their 30-year lifespan.

"Roofs are at the top of the list, as are mechanical systems," James Maguire, vice president for campus planning, told the AP.

Man Pleads Not Guilty in '02 Triple Homicide

BOISE (AP) • A man accused of killing his girlfriend and two children and burning their bodies in the desert south of Mountain Home in 2002 has pleaded not guilty to three counts of first-degree murder.

The Idaho Statesman reports that Alberto Lopez-Orozco entered the pleas Monday in an Elmore County courtroom.

Once considered one of the FBI's most wanted fugitives, Lopez is charged in the slaying of 29-year-old Rebecca Ramirez and her sons, ages 2 and 4.

Authorities say Orozco left Idaho and the U.S. shortly after the slayings and hid in Mexico for years. He was finally apprehended in Mexico in October 2009 and extradited to Idaho last year.

A judge scheduled a jury trial in the case to begin Feb. 6. Orozco is being held in the Elmore County Jail.

Law To Help Troubled Homeowners Goes Into Effect in Idaho on Sept. 1

IDAHO STATESMAN

BOISE • Behind in your mortgage? A new law requires mortgage lenders to give homeowners in default a notice about requesting a loan modification review or a meeting with the lender to discuss options for preventing a foreclosure.

While the law requires the meeting, it does not require servicers or lenders to modify homeowners' loans.

"Homeowners in foreclosure or in danger of foreclosure should familiarize themselves with the rights this new law affords them," Attorney General Wasden said.

The law, which goes into effect Sept. 1, also requires lenders to notify homeowners whether they qualify for a loan modification within 45 days of a modification request. Lenders cannot proceed with a trustee's sale during the 45-day period. Homeowners will receive written notice of the date and time of a future trustee's sale if a scheduled sale date is postponed.

Under the law, people who are not licensed with the Idaho Department of Finance or exempt, such as attorneys, are prohibited from charging a fee for loan modification services.

Questions and answers about the law, as well as forms, can be found on the attorney general's website at www.ag.idaho.gov.

The website also has several consumer education manuals related to housing issues, including Foreclosure Prevention and Foreclosure Scams: How to Tell the Difference.

TIPS FOR PRUNING HIBISCUS PLANTS & WHEN TO PRUNE HIBISCUS

by Nikki Phipps

Hibiscus plants thrive on attention. Pruning hibiscus is a great way to give these plants just what they need. Pruning helps stimulate budding on new shoots. It also rejuvenates the plants after their long winter nap while encouraging them to maintain an attractive appearance and healthy, vigorous growth. Let's look at when to prune hibiscus and the best techniques when pruning hibiscus plants.

When to Prune Hibiscus

When to prune hibiscus usually depends on where you live. However, most hibiscus pruning occurs during spring. For the most part, hibiscus plants can be lightly pruned in late summer or early fall. No hibiscus pruning should be done during late fall or winter.

One of the downsides to waiting later in the season to prune is that plants may not develop as many branches, and they will put out fewer blooms. Therefore, it is oftentimes better to prune dead or weak growth entirely after the plants beginning sprouting in spring.

In fact, spring should be the only time for complete cutting back. Pruning hibiscus plants entirely helps rejuvenate them for summer blooming. Branch tips can be pinched, or tip pruned, throughout the season, however, to encourage bushier growth.

Hibiscus Pruning How To

Before pruning hibiscus, make sure your pruning shears are sharp and clean, preferably sterilized with alcohol gel, to prevent the spreading of any disease from affected branches, if any. When pruning hibiscus plants, they should be cut about a third of the way back, leaving at least two to three nodes on the branches for new growth to emerge. These cuts should be made just above the nodes, leaving about a quarter inch. Remove any weak, diseased, or dead growth, as well as crossing or leggy branches. Branches that are growing toward the center of the plant should also be removed.

Once temperatures have sufficiently warmed towards the end of spring, you can help give blooms an extra boost by increasing the amount of fertilizer.

Balanced Budget Amendment to Get Votes in Congress

BY ANDREW TAYLOR
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • As a “supercommittee” tries to find $1.5 trillion in new deficit cuts this fall, Republicans will be pressing a far more ambitious goal: passing an amendment to the Constitution to require a balanced federal budget.

The idea is being pushed most forcefully by conservative activists eager to shrink the government and its spending but disappointed with the results they’ve achieved so far in Washington, where Democrats control both the White House and the Senate.

“Spending cuts and caps are steps in the right direction,” said Rep. Pete Sessions, R-Texas. But a balanced budget amendment is “the only permanent solution to control government spending and end our nation’s spending-driven debt crisis,” Sessions said.

House GOP leaders — short of the two-thirds margin required to pass the amendment — have held off scheduling a vote. But both House and Senate are required to hold votes this fall as one of the conditions of recently enacted legislation to raise the government’s borrowing cap.

It’s a decidedly uphill battle, even though Republicans control the House with larger numbers than they had in 1995, when a balanced budget amendment sailed through the chamber with 300 votes. It fell just one supporter short of the required two-thirds margin in the Senate.

There appear to be fewer Democratic backers now than there were in 1995, when 72 House Democrats voted for the amendment. For starters, there are far fewer southern white conservative and moderate Democrats in the House than there were back then.

Powerful Hurricane Irene Heads to Bahamas, U.S.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NAGUA, Dominican Republic • A rapidly strengthening Hurricane Irene cut a destructive path through the Caribbean on Monday, pounding Puerto Rico and the Dominican Republic with strong winds and rain as it followed a track that could carry it to the U.S. Southeast by the end of the week.

Irene grew into a Category 2 hurricane late Monday and the U.S. National Hurricane Center in Miami said it could become a monstrous Category 3 storm as early as Tuesday. Forecasters said it could still be that strong when it passes over the Bahamas and slams into the United States, possibly landing in Florida, South Carolina or Georgia.

Earlier, the storm slashed directly across Puerto Rico, tearing up trees and knocking out power to more than a million people, then headed out to sea north of the Dominican Republic, where the powerful storm’s outer bands were buffeting the north coast with dangerous sea surge and downpours.

The first hurricane of the Atlantic season was a large system that could cause dangerous mudslides and floods in Dominican Republic, the hurricane center said. It was not expected to make a direct hit on neighboring Haiti, though that country could still see heavy rain from the storm.

Dominican officials said the government had emergency food available for 1.5 million people if needed and the country’s military and public safety brigades were on alert.

Rebels Hold Tripoli; Obama Urges Peaceful Transition

Fierce fighting continues in some areas of Libya, and Obama warns that situation ‘is still very fluid.’

BY ERIKA BOLSTAD and MOHANNAD SABRY
McClatchy Newspapers

Gadhafi Son Reported Under Arrest is Free

Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi’s son, who was reported arrested by rebels, is free. Seif al-Islam, Gadhafi’s one-time heir apparent, turned up early Tuesday morning at the hotel where foreign journalists stay in Tripoli, then took reporters in his convoy on a drive through the city.

— Associated Press

CAIRO • President Barack Obama called Monday for a “peaceful, inclusive and just” transition in Libya, telling rebels that “the Libya that you deserve is within your reach” as they battled to clear Moammar Gadhafi’s supporters from Tripoli.

“For over four decades, the Libyan people had lived under the rule of a tyrant who denied them their most basic human rights,” Obama said. “Now the celebrations that we’ve seen in the streets of Libya show that the pursuit of human dignity is far stronger than any dictator.”

Fierce fighting continued in some areas of the country, however, and Obama warned that the situation “is still very fluid.” The six-month fight, aided by a NATO-led coalition, turned in favor of the rebels only in the past two weeks, and took far longer than the Arab Spring revolutions in neighboring Egypt and Tunisia.

Indiana Scout Leader Dies in Random Slaying

BY KEN KUSMER
Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS • As a 76-year-old scoutmaster led two young charges on a nature hike, they stopped to identify a tree — a pause authorities say put them in the path of a man who emerged from a nearby home with a 12-inch knife and stabbed the group’s leader, leaving him to bleed to death on the trail.

The attack Sunday afternoon on the Nickel Plate Trail in Bunker Hill, 60 miles north of Indianapolis, killed Arthur Anderson, a scouting volunteer for 50 years who also mentored young computer whizzes at Kokomo High School and held a patent for an electrical device.

Authorities say that after approaching Anderson from behind and stabbing him without provocation, 22-year-old Shane Golitko returned to the home where he had earlier assaulted his mother, breaking her arm, and stabbed his two dogs, killing one of them. He fled in his mother’s Jeep, leading police on an eight-mile chase before he was arrested.

Authorities said it wasn’t clear what set Golitko off, and neither drugs nor alcohol were involved.

“It was a senseless act,” said Indiana State Police Detective Tony Frawley, who had stated in a court affidavit that Golitko told him “that the reason he got the knife from his bedroom was to ‘stab the guy with the gray hair.’”

Golitko, who is charged with murder and two felony counts of battery, is being held without bond in the Miami County Jail in Peru pending a Thursday court appearance in Miami Circuit Court. The prosecutor’s office did not yet know of an attorney representing Golitko, and no one responded to a call to his home.

His mother, Valerie Henson, 48, had called police Sunday afternoon to say she had fled to a neighbor’s home after an argument between her and her son escalated and he “kicked and punched her multiple times,” Frawley’s affidavit said. She was treated for a broken arm.

Golitko went to his room for the knife, then walked outside 150 yards to the trail “to the area where he had previously seen a male subject with ‘gray hair,’” Frawley said.

Hospitals Giving Faster Heart Care, Study Says

The time it takes to treat major heart attack patients plunged from a median of 96 minutes in 2005 to 64 minutes last year, researchers find.

BY MARILYNN MARCHIONE
Associated Press

In a spectacular turnabout, hospitals are treating almost all major heart attack patients within the recommended 90 minutes of arrival, a new study finds. Just five years ago, less than half of them got their clogged arteries opened that fast.

The time it took to treat such patients plunged from a median of 96 minutes in 2005 to only 64 minutes last year, researchers found.

Some hospitals are moving at warp speed: Linda Tisch was treated in a mere 16 minutes after she was stricken while visiting relatives near Yale-New Haven Hospital in Connecticut this month. Emergency responders called ahead to mobilize a team of heart specialists.

Once she arrived, “they had a brief conversation and I went straight into the OR. My family was absolutely flabbergasted,” said Tisch, 58, who went home to West-erly, R.I., two days later.

Tisch wasn’t a fluke. The hospital took 26 minutes on another case on Thursday.

“Americans who have heart attacks can now be confident that they’re going to be treated rapidly in virtually every hospital of the country,” said Yale cardiologist Dr. Harlan Krumholz. He led the study, published online Monday by an American Heart Association journal, Circulation.

SPACE STATION HUMANOID ROBOT AWAKES

NASA's humanoid robot has finally awakened in space. Ground controllers turned Robonaut on Monday for the first time since it was delivered to the International Space Station in February. The test involved sending power to all of Robonaut's systems. The robot was not commanded to move; that will happen next week. The four visible light cameras that serve as Robonaut's eyes turned on in the gold-colored head, as did the infrared camera.

SOMBER MOOD AT KING MEMORIAL'S OPENING

The memorial to the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. has opened to the public in Washington. The site opened without fanfare Monday morning, kicking off a week of celebrations ahead of Sunday's official dedication. Dozens of people came for their first up-close look on a warm, sunny day in the nation's capital. The memorial includes a 30-foot-tall sculpture of King and a 450-foot-long granite wall inscribed with 14 quotations from the civil rights leader.

WING WALKER FALLS TO DEATH DURING AIR SHOW

Federal investigators are at a Michigan air base to determine what happened to a wing walker who plunged to his death during a weekend air show. Todd Green fell Sunday after trying to grab a helicopter's skid while standing on the fuselage of a small plane. Technical Sgt. Dan Heaton said Monday that Green had performed the stunt the day before at Selfridge Air National Guard base.

Budget

And Republicans have made the task more difficult by pushing a significantly more stringent tea party-backed version of the amendment now than they did in 1995. The new version would virtually make it impossible for future Congresses to raise taxes by requiring a two-thirds vote in both House and Senate. It also would force a huge shrinking of government programs by capping spending at 18 percent of the nation's total economic output each year.

This year, government spending is running about 25 percent of the gross domestic product (GDP), the widest measure of the U.S. economy.

Democrats won't back the stricter version. But if House leaders also press a vote on the 1995 version — which permits tax increases by a simple majority vote — they'll run into opposition from conservative activists like Grover Norquist of Americans for Tax Reform, who say the old version is a recipe for higher taxes.

"There are lots of reasons not to like the original balanced budget amendment," Norquist said, warning that it could lead to tax increases imposed by lawmakers squeamish about cutting spending, or even by federal courts.

Given the enormity of the nation's fiscal gap, future Congresses facing a balanced-budget mandate would surely consider tax increases as a way to ease cuts to defense, Social Security, Medicare and other domestic programs.

Even tea party-driven House Republicans shunned such cuts earlier this year when adopting a nonbinding GOP budget blueprint that forecast deficits in the $400 billion range for most of the decade. Republican decided against offering a balanced budget because it would have forced cuts on current recipients of Medicare and Social Security benefits.

Prosecutors Seek to Dismiss Charges Against Strauss-Kahn

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • New York City prosecutors asked a judge Monday to dismiss all criminal charges against Dominique Strauss-Kahn because the hotel maid who created a cross-continental sensation by accusing him of sexual assault repeatedly lied to them.

The Manhattan district attorney's office said in court papers that the accuser, Nafissatou Diallo, repeatedly gave false information to investigators and grand jurors about her life, her past and her actions following her encounter with the French diplomat.

"In virtually every substantive interview with prosecutors, despite entreaties to simply be truthful, she has not been truthful on matters great and small," the lawyers wrote.

Diallo and her attorney, Kenneth Thompson, met briefly with representatives of the Manhattan district attorney's office to discuss the decision not to proceed with the prosecution. Thompson didn't say what had happened inside or reveal what his client was told, but he recited a short statement condemning prosecutors for their handling of the case.

"Manhattan District Attorney Cyrus Vance has denied the right of a woman to get justice in a rape case," he said. "He has not only turned his back on this innocent victim. But he has also turned his back on the forensic, medical and other physical evidence in this case."

Thompson is asking a judge for an order disqualifying the prosecutor's office from handling the case. Diallo is also suing Strauss-Kahn, seeking to make him pay financially if not with his freedom, a move that the diplomat's lawyers said helped erode her credibility.

Strauss-Kahn is scheduled to go before a judge Tuesday. His lawyers, William Taylor and Benjamin Brafman, issued a statement saying that he and his family were grateful for the decision.

Residents of Tripoli said there were clashes between rebels and pro-Gadhafi holdouts at the longtime ruler's Bab al-Azizya compound. But the rest of the capital appeared to be firmly in opposition hands as rebels and volunteers set up checkpoints, deployed civilian patrols and secured buildings.

"The revolutionaries are very organized and are taking full control of the capital," said a resident of central Tripoli named Reda, who was too afraid of reprisals by Gadhafi to give his full name.

In a sign that some Gadhafi supporters could continue fighting, residents of Zuwara, a town west of Tripoli and about 30 miles from the Tunisian border, reported heavy shelling from three nearby towns believed to be loyal to the longtime ruler.

Anees al Fonas, a member of the rebel media council from Zuwara who spoke by phone from Tunisia, said rockets and mortars had been fired "for the last 24 hours, nonstop," from the nearby towns of Zolton, Riqdalin and Al Jamil. A civilian was killed Monday when a rocket landed on the roof of his house, and four others were injured, Fonas said.

A small group of rebels was on the outskirts of Zuwara, but reinforcements from rebel-held Sabrata, about 25 miles to the east, could not arrive because Gadhafi forces reportedly were stationed near a road connecting the two.

"We want to send this message to NATO and to all people to help us now," Fonas said.

Heart Care

What is remarkable about this improvement, Krumholz said, is that it occurred without money incentives or threat of punishment. Instead, the government and a host of private groups led research on how to shorten treatment times and started campaigns to persuade hospitals that this was the right thing to do.

"It's amazing and it's very gratifying. I'm surprised that we were able to achieve that type of dramatic improvement," so quickly, said Dr. John Brush, a cardiologist at Eastern Virginia Medical School in Norfolk, Va., who helped the American College of Cardiology design its campaign, which involved more than 1,000 hospitals.

Heart attacks are caused by clogged arteries that prevent enough oxygen and blood from reaching the heart. Each year, about 250,000 people in the United States and more than 3 million worldwide suffer a major one, where a main artery is completely blocked.

The best remedy is angioplasty, in which doctors push a tube through an artery to the clog, inflate a tiny balloon to flatten it, and place a mesh prop called a stent to keep the artery open.

The period from hospital arrival to angioplasty is called "door-to-balloon" time, and guidelines say this should be 90 minutes or less. Any delay means more heart damage, and the risk of dying goes up 42 percent if care is delayed even half an hour.

Anderson, assistant scoutmaster of a troop based at Redeemer Lutheran Church in Kokomo, was leading two scouts, ages 11 and 12, on a required 5-mile nature hike, accompanied by another man, authorities said. The group had stopped on the trail to discuss the tree. Anderson was attacked from behind, Indiana State Police Sgt. Tony Slocum said.

"He was doing probably the most innocent thing he could do, leading a group of Boy Scouts, and he was in the wrong place at the wrong time," Slocum said.

The other man in the group, Chee Lee, shielded the boys from the attack, then called police a minute after Henson's call, the affidavit said.

Another witness, a neighbor living near the trail, brought out a shirt and applied pressure to Anderson's neck wound, Slocum said, but the scoutmaster died at the scene.

Golitto, the affidavit said, returned home, "stabbed his two dogs with the same knife, wiped the knife clean, and returned the knife to his bedroom," the affidavit said. He began breaking windows and destroying things in the home, authorities said in the affidavit, then left in the Jeep.

After his arrest, he spat on a jail officer, which led to the second battery charge.

Miami County Prosecutor Bruce Embrey said Golitto was arrested once before as an adult in Miami County, for possession of marijuana. He went through a diversion program in which the crime was reduced to a misdemeanor.

Paco Solis, who succeeded Anderson as scoutmaster of their troop, described his friend Monday as "a great man" who was a mentor in the community and volunteered with a robotics team at Kokomo High School in addition to his work with the scouts.

"His life revolved around youth and being a servant," Solis said, adding that Anderson worked closely with new scouts and with younger scouts in particular.

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

Stocks Inch Higher

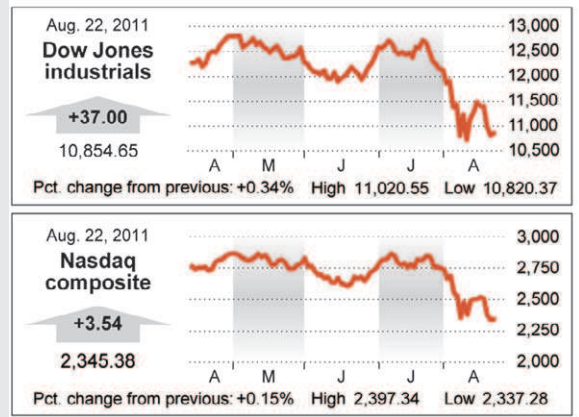

NEW YORK (AP) • Stock indexes are closing with modest gains after a four-week losing streak.

The Dow Jones industrial average gave up an early gain of 200 points to close up 37. Compared with the wild swings of earlier this month, Monday's trading was relatively calm.

Bank of America lost 8 percent, the most among the 30 Dow stocks. Wells Fargo analysts cut their price target on the stock, citing fears that the U.S. could slip into a recession.

The Dow rose 37 points, or 0.3 percent, to close at 10,855.

The S&P 500 rose less than a point to 1,124. The Nasdaq rose 4 points, or 0.2 percent, to 2,345.

$3.57 gallon

Gas has fallen • Gas has fallen 41 cents, to $3.57 a gallon, from its peak this year of $3.98 on May 5. It could fall as low as $3.25 by the middle of September, experts say. The price of U.S. benchmark oil, known as West Texas Intermediate, rose $2.01 to $84.42. Traders who play the international oil markets, anticipating that the price of Brent crude would keep falling, wanted more U.S. oil.

Getting Libyan Oil Back to Market Could Take Years

NEW YORK • It could be a year or more before Libya produces enough oil to start exporting it in large amounts again. But once the oil starts flowing, it should bring the price of gasoline down even further.

International oil prices fell Monday because of the prospect that those shipments will hit the market again.

The shipments stopped six months ago as the rebellion in Libya raged. The conflict damaged pipelines and fields and forced out foreign oil engineers who once helped the nation export 1.5 million barrels of oil every day.

Before the country can begin producing oil in large amounts again, security must be re-established, a new government must be formed, the United Nations must lift international sanctions, and damage to oil fields and pipelines must be repaired.

The prices of crude oil and gasoline were already falling sharply because of concerns that the slowing global economy will slow demand from drivers and businesses.

The ouster of Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi would clear the way for a new government and a return to oil production. But bringing Libyan oil production back to levels that will make a difference will take months if not years, experts say.

“This isn’t going to lead to an overnight restart of Libyan oil exports,” says Jim Burkhard, managing director for global oil at IHS CERA, an industry research group.

Western Dairy Production Up

BY CINDY SNYDER
For the Times-News

The West led the U.S. in milk production last month, but analysts don’t expect that to last.

“With corn prices firm and dairy producer equity tight, don’t expect milk production out West to keep flowing strong if losses become a reality, which seems likely at least for a short stint,” said Dave Kurzwaski, a dairy analyst with FCSStone.

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture’s latest dairy report, milk production in the 23 major dairy states during July totaled 15.4 billion pounds, up 0.8 percent from July 2010. The Pacific Northwest — primarily Idaho — was up 5.3 percent. All western states averaged 4.7 percent growth, while all other regions declined in production.

Wilson Gray, University of Idaho extension dairy economist at Twin Falls, was somewhat surprised to see that production was up that much in the West. Hot weather in the Midwest was blamed for much of its decrease, while cool weather may have allowed Idaho cows to keep producing at high levels into the summer. Some producers say production peaked in June, when it usually peaks earlier.

Going into the fall, dairies face a much different price structure — one that could return some operations to red ink, especially if milk prices have already peaked.

The concern is while milk prices have risen from a year ago, so have hay and corn. Strong milk prices are now expected to soften in 2012. If corn remains at its current price, that would result in the lowest milk-feed ratio in at least 40 years, says Alan Levitt, an analyst who writes the CME’s Daily Dairy Report.

The milk-feed ratio is an indicator of profitability. It measured below 2 in July, while a ratio of 3 or more is considered positive for milk production.

Gray expects dairies to begin feeling the impacts of lower milk prices and higher corn prices this fall. Many dairies are already feeling the pinch of a tight hay crop. Not only are alfalfa acres down this year, but the late spring has delayed harvest. Hay growers in the Magic Valley are only 11 percent done with their third cuttings compared to 61 percent in a more-normal year. That’s pushing hay prices higher locally.

Dairies may soon find themselves competing with livestock producers in Asia as well. U.S. hay, the country’s third-largest crop by value, is now cheaper to ship to China than to farmers in central California, according to the PNW Dairy Monitor.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

On Thursday, December 1, 2011 at the hour of 11:00AM, of said day, on the steps of the Jerome County Courthouse located at 300 N. Lincoln, Jerome, ID 83338,

Alliance Title & Escrow Corp., as successor trustee, will sell at public auction, to the highest bidder, for cash, cashiers check, certified check or tellers check, (from a bank which has a branch in the community at the site of the sale), money order, State of Idaho check or local government check, or cash equivalent in lawful money of the United States, all payable at the same time of sale, the following described real property, situated in the County of Jerome, State of Idaho, and described as follows, to wit:

Lot 7 in Block 3 of The Amended Re-Plat of Thompson Subdivision, Jerome County, Idaho, recorded March 18, 1997 as Instrument No. 970968.

THE TRUSTEE HAS NO KNOWLEDGE OF A MORE PARTICULAR DESCRIPTION OF THE ABOVE-DESCRIBED REAL PROPERTY, BUT FOR PURPOSES OF COMPLIANCE WITH IDAHO CODE, SECTION 60-113, THE TRUSTEE HAS BEEN INFORMED THAT THE STREET ADDRESS OF: 318 J Avenue West, Jerome, ID 83338, MAY SOMETIMES BE ASSOCIATED WITH SAID REAL PROPERTY.

If the successful bidder cannot provide the bid price by means of one of the above means of payment, the sale will be postponed for 10 minutes only to allow the high bidder to obtain payment in a form prescribed herein above. If the high bidder is unsuccessful in obtaining payment as directed within 10 minutes, the sale will be re-held immediately and any bid by the high bidder from the previous sale, will be rejected, all in accordance with Idaho Code 45-1502 et. Sec.

Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, possession or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the deed of trust executed by Stacey Gosnell-Taylor, a married woman dealing with her sole and separate property, as Grantor to Alliance Title & Escrow Corp., as Successor Trustee, for the benefit and security of Central Mortgage Company as Successor Beneficiary, recorded March 27, 2008 as Instrument No. 2081583, Mortgage records of Jerome County, Idaho. THE ABOVE GRANTORS ARE NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506(4)(a), IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THEY ARE, OR ARE NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION.

The default for which this sale is to be made is failure to:

Make principal and interest payments as set forth on said Deed of Trust and Promissory Note. The original loan amount was $127,893.00 together with interest thereon at the rate of 6.1250% per annum, as evidenced in Promissory Note dated March 27, 2008. Payments are in default for the months of January 2011 through and including May 2011 in the amount of $977.23 per month and continuing each and every month thereafter until date of sale or reinstatement. The principal balance as of May 5, 2011 is $123,583.93 together with accrued and accruing interest thereon at the rate of 6.1250% per annum. In addition to the above, there is also due any late charges, advances, attorney fees, fees or costs associated with this foreclosure.

The balance owing as of this date on the obligation secured by said deed of trust is $123,583.93, excluding interest, costs and expenses actually incurred in enforcing the obligations thereunder or in this sale, as trustee's fees and/or reasonable attorney's fees as authorized in the promissory note secured by the aforementioned Deed of Trust.

AVAILABLE FOR ADOPTION:
Our shelter is over-filled right now. We need to get some of these dogs to their forever homes. If you have been thinking about adopting one, please don't wait!

Miracle Max is a 7 month old chocolate Lab. Max came to the shelter about four months ago and has been under medical care. He was tied in the back of a pickup, jumped out and got tangled up with the back tire. The tire acted as a belt sander removing all of the muscle tissue and much of the bone on one side of Max's rear leg. Rather than euthanizing Max or amputating the leg, Dr. Jones and his staff spent the past several months caring for Max with herbal therapies. Max's leg is now restored and functional. He has a great personality and is a sweet fun-loving kid looking for his forever family.

Tucker is a Labrador/Hound mix young adult. He is tan with some white markings. He is very eager to please, knows commands and is a very good boy. Plays well with other dogs.

Rocky is a male adult Chihuahua. He is tan & black and is housebroken. He has a great personality..loves everybody!

Andy is an adult male Labrador. He is a beautiful ivory color. Very easy going and friendly. Knows commands.

Missy-Mae is a Beagle/Basset Hound mix. She is a young adult, probably about 2 or 3-years-old. Missy is tri-colored and very affectionate.

Casey is an adorable little Labrador mix puppy. He may even have some Akita or Husky mixed with him. He is black with a little white and also has a brown undercoat. He is very young probably only about 16 weeks old. He is very sweet and mellow and loves to play. He has been in our shelter for a long time waiting for his forever home.

Mandy is a beautiful black Labrador young adult. She loves to fetch and knows commands. Plays well with other dogs and loves kids. She is housebroken. Come meet her today

Ryder is a mixed breed young adult..he looks like he might have some Catahoula or even boxer. He is a brindle with white markings and has gorgeous blue eyes. He is a very gentle dog. He is also leash trained and housebroken.

Marley is a cute 10 week old Border Collie mix. She came into the shelter with her siblings Carly and Harley. She is black with pretty white markings. She would make a great family pet and companion.

Carly is a sweetheart, she is a 10 week old Border Collie mix puppy. She came into our shelter with her siblings Marley and Harley. She is also black with a little white markings. Carly would be that perfect addition to your home.

Harley is a handsome 10 week old Border Collie mix puppy. He came into the shelter with his siblings Marley and Carly. He is black with a little white. He would make a great family pet. Come by and see him today Goose is an adult male chocolate Labrador. He is a very handsome guy! He knows commands and would make a great family dog or even a hunting dog. Come meet him today.

Trigger is about a 6 month old Labrador and possibly Chesapeake or Weimaraner mix? He has an unusual brown coat with some black that is mixed with it. He loves to fetch and knows commands.

Hannah is a 3 month old chocolate Labrador mix puppy. She has a some white markings. She is a sweetheart!

Come meet all our great dogs today!

The adoption fee is $75 and includes spaying/neutering and the first set of vaccinations.

Today is Tuesday, Aug. 23, the 235th day of 2011. There are 130 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On Aug. 23, 1775, Britain's King George III proclaimed the American colonies to be in a state of "open and avowed rebellion."

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1305, Scottish rebel leader Sir William Wallace was executed by the English for treason.

In 1754, France's King Louis XVI was born at Versailles.

In 1914, Japan declared war against Germany in World War I.

In 1926, silent film star Rudolph Valentino died in New York at age 31.

In 1927, amid protests, Italian-born anarchists Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti were executed in Boston for the murders of two men during a 1920 robbery.

In 1939, Nazi Germany and the Soviet Union agreed to a non-aggression treaty, the Molotov-Ribbentrop Pact, in Moscow.

In 1944, Romanian prime minister Ion Antonescu was dismissed by King Michael, paving the way for Romania to abandon the Axis in favor of the Allies.

In 1960, Broadway librettist Oscar Hammerstein II, 65, died in Doylestown, Pa.

In 1973, a bank robbery-turned-hostage-taking began in Stockholm, Sweden; the four hostages ended up empathizing with their captors, a psychological condition now referred to as "Stockholm Syndrome."

In 1989, in a case that inflamed racial tensions in New York, Yusuf Hawkins, a 16-year-old black youth, was shot dead after he and his friends were confronted by a group of white youths in the Bensonhurst section of Brooklyn.

Ten years ago: Rep. Gary Condit, D-Calif., interviewed by Connie Chung on ABC, denied any involvement in the disappearance of Washington intern Chandra Levy. (Ingmar Guandique, an illegal immigrant from El Salvador, was convicted in Nov. 2010 of murdering Levy, and was sentenced to 60 years in prison.) Thierry Devaux, a Frenchman using a motor-driven parachute, was rescued and arrested after becoming snagged on the Statue of Liberty in New York Harbor. NATO soldiers streamed into Macedonia as part of a mission to help end six months of ethnic hostilities by collecting and destroying rebel weapons.

Five years ago: A previously unknown militant group released the first video of two Fox News journalists who'd been kidnapped in Gaza. (Reporter Steve Centanni and cameraman Olaf Wiig were later freed.) The Citadel released the results of a survey in which almost 20 percent of female cadets reported being sexually assaulted since enrolling at the South Carolina military college. Jazz trumpeter Maynard Ferguson died in Ventura, Calif., at age 78.

One year ago: A dismissed policeman armed with an automatic rifle seized a bus in the Philippine capital with 25 people on board, mostly Hong Kong tourists; the gunman released nine of the hostages and demanded his job back to free the rest. (The hijacking lasted 11 hours before the gunman opened fire on his hostages; a Manila SWAT team then killed the hostage-taker, but not before eight tourists also died.) A jury in Goldsboro, N.C., convicted former Marine Cesar Laurean of first-degree murder in the death of a pregnant colleague, Lance Cpl. Maria Lauterbach. (Laurean was sentenced to life in prison without the possibility of parole.) Tiger Woods and his wife, Elin Nordegren, officially divorced.

DEAR ABBY: “Tracy” and I have been best friends since junior high. (We’re both 31.) A couple of months ago she and her two sons (my “nephews,” ages 9 and 5) moved out of her parents’ home and into their own apartment.

Tracy has never lived on her own before. As a result, she’s constantly asking me to come over, spend the night, keep her company, etc. I’m happy to visit for a couple of hours once a week or so, but feel uncomfortable and pressured doing it to the extent she’s asking. She didn’t act this way when she lived with her parents.

I am single, childless, have my own place and a full-time job. My home is my sanctuary and I value my peace and quiet. The last thing I want at the end of a hectic workday is to go to her apartment and hang out for hours on end with her and her sweet (but loud and rambunctious) boys.

Tracy is also single. She works full-time and is a devoted mom, but there’s an obvious deficiency in her life. I try to encourage her that she’ll grow accustomed to her new life, but it doesn’t stick. How can I make her understand that while I love her dearly, I can’t be her lifelong security blanket?

— SMOTHERED IN THE EAST

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR SMOTHERED: Do it by explaining to your friend what you CAN give her, rather than what you can’t. If it’s one afternoon or evening a week, arrange your get-together for when you’re available.

Let her know you need time to yourself to unwind after a hectic day at work, that you also need to run errands and do housework. You can be her good friend without coming running every time she snaps her fingers. And remember, she can’t “smother” you any more than you allow.

DEAR ABBY: My niece is getting married in two months, and our invitations just arrived. My daughter, who was divorced last month, was invited with no “and guest” after her name. Who knows? In the next two months she might meet someone she’d like to take to the wedding.

Would it be tacky to respond “two” and see what happens? Or should she take her wounded heart and not go at all? The family knows about her divorce but still addressed her that way.

— KEEPING

DEAR KEEPING: While it would have been thoughtful to have invited your daughter and an escort, your relatives may have been more preoccupied with financial considerations than the fact that your daughter wouldn’t have a date sitting with her. And yes, it WOULD be tacky to write “two” on the RSVP and “see what happens.”

Consider this: For your daughter to bring a date might invite suspicions that she was involved with the person before her divorce. And to ask a man you don’t know well and have been seeing only a very short time could be construed as rushing things, and might be a turn-off for the man she had her eye on.

DEAR ABBY: The young lady I have fallen for (and am probably in love with) is half my age. Is it wrong to like someone who is almost young enough to be my daughter?

— YOUNGER THAN SPRINGTIME

DEAR YOUNGER THAN SPRINGTIME: No, it’s not wrong — it happens frequently. A more pertinent question is could SHE be seriously interested in someone who is almost old enough to be her father? Only she can answer that.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

“I saw their starved lips in the gloam

*With horrid warning gaped wide,
And I awoke and found me here
On the cold hill side.”*

— John Keats

In today’s deal from the 2004 Cavendish tournament, many East-West pairs were going down for large numbers after East had opened the bidding. Quite often South could double three no-trump, and Al Roth, the apostle of sound bidding, would have been able to say, “I told you so.” However, Billy Cohen as South was in a position to collect a different sort of large number. Having missed his winning play at the table, he should be applauded for his subsequent analysis and his public-spirited masochism in then passing it on to the Daily Bulletin.

He declared two hearts doubled on the auction shown and won the spade-nine lead cheaply in hand. The defense was threatening a spade ruff, so if declarer delays drawing trumps, East-West will obtain an easy sixth trick. Suppose you lead a low heart up toward dummy, where the queen will hold the trick. Now what? If you play a spade, the defense will surely arrange to get a ruff; if you lead a heart to the 10, that holds the trick too. The defense now doesn’t get a ruff, but you can never collect your third spade trick. The winning move is to lead the heart 10 at trick two! Whether a defender wins this trick or ducks it, this play gives you your entry to dummy when you need it. The defense gets only one heart trick now, and you get to repeat the spade finesse in peace and quiet.

ANSWER: Your high cards might tempt you into competing further. But as a matter of principle you should only bid on with extra shape, not high cards, whether it is in the form of extra trumps or a side suit. Here, your hand is balanced. Let partner bid on with a fourth trump -- you cannot act again.

IF AUGUST 23 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: In the year to come, you may prefer to spend more time alone and that is fine as long as you make sure your surroundings are harmonious and pleasant. You might develop more sensitivity to loud noises and clutter, so keep your spirits up by seeking serenity. Late October and early November is a good time to launch important enterprises, or seek expert guidance about health, legal matters or relationships. Because your judgment will be much better than usual, you will be able to make wise decisions and could make permanent improvements in your life. In January and February, you should sidestep signing key contracts or significant commitments because they might not turn out as expected.

HOROSCOPE Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Keep whims in check. You may feel the need to make an impulsive decision or purchase. Realize that what may look enticing now could seem a bit foolish later on. Your best bet is to stick with routines.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Don't count your chickens before they hatch. Be patient and let events play out before taking any action. There is no such thing as a sure thing, so a wait-and-see approach is best. Make key decisions later.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Don't let a sourpuss rain on your parade. A good friend should be there to lend support when needed, but sometimes a friend just needs to move on and quit drowning you in their own past misfortunes.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Looks can be deceiving. You may find something or someone that seems ideal for your situation. Don't get swept up in a fantasy or forget to check up and make sure that you've found the real deal.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Some short cuts can cost you valuable time. Opting for the easy way out may seem appealing, but you may find that the finished product is below par. Go through the necessary motions, no matter how tedious.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Even the best hitters know that when they are down in the count, it's safer to try and just keep the ball in play than to swing for the fences. Don't compound a current problem by trying to enact a solution that you aren't equipped to make.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You can't always tell who is more foolish, the fools or the fools who follow them. Choose role models carefully. You may think that a friend knows what he or she is doing, but truth may not be as rosy as it seems.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Keep your feet on the ground. You are riding high and rightfully so, but don't let a few compliments go to your head. You've done quite well lately, but remember there's always room for improvement.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Choose your battles carefully. Sometimes, even when you think you can't possibly be wrong, a last minute revelation comes along to burst your bubble. The best way to win an argument is not to start one.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): March to your own drummer. The local gang wants to paint the town red while you prefer a quiet evening at home. Don't force yourself to appease your friends; do the things that you want to do.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Snake oil always seems like the answer to all problems until someone drinks it. Beware of those who speak well and offer promises that they have no intention of keeping. Trust only those you know well.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Get-rich-quick schemes only work for the ones who try to sell them to you. Don't let a silver tongue make you lose touch with your logic. Keep your money in your pocket and don't make promises you can't keep.

WHEN YOU'RE READY TO SELL YOUR CAR, GET YOUR MONEY'S WORTH.

SUDOKU

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

Reform Is Needed, But Who Will Set it in Motion?

To paraphrase what a famously crooked alderman once said about politics in Chicago, “College foot-ball ain’t ready for reform.”

But it could be in short order. Like a fugitive on the run, the game and its handlers can’t catch their breath and don’t dare quit peeking over their shoulders. If the nearly dozen scandals uncovered in just the past season or so failed to re-mind us how widespread corruption is, well, soon come the games them-selves.

Those begin in earnest with Ore-gon vs. LSU in Cowboys Stadium, a Sept. 3 contest in which local prose-cutors reviewing arrest reports could have a bigger say about who lines up for either side than the coaches. Two weeks later, Ohio State is at Miami, a matchup so tar-nished that NCAA investigators probably will enjoy it more than fans.

Considering the history of college football reform, all could be forgiven by season’s end and fans’ anger trained once more on the sideshow that is the Bowl Championship Se-ries.

But for the moment, it’s the cops and not the robbers who have mo-mentum on their side.

Granted, NFL Commissioner Roger Goodell is not going to be mistaken for Eliot Ness. But his de-cision to make disgraced former OSU star Terrelle Pryor sit out five games — the same penalty the NCAA imposed, but was powerless to enforce once he jumped to the pros — was a promising first step.

The college game has been the NFL’s de facto minor league since the days of Red Grange, so if nothing else, Goodell’s willingness to disci-pline NFL job entrants for violations committed at State U. acknowl-edges there is a relationship. The commish can’t go after Cam New-ton, or Reggie Bush for that matter, but at least now there’s a precedent. As they used to say about voting in Chicago, he should take advantage of the privilege early and often.

Simply punishing players, though, is picking on the weakest link and barely begins to address a systemic problem. It’s comical every time the NCAA threatens or levies a “lack of institutional control” charge against any school, since it’s an institution that can’t control its own members. College presidents took over running the NCAA a dozen years ago, but their idea of policing themselves amounted to

Richfield, Wendell Hopeful in ’11

Tigers hope good fortune extends from healthy, stable roster into increase in victories.

BY PATRICK SHELTRA
psheltra@magicvalley.com

RICHFIELD • For most people, the number 13 is associated with bad luck. For Richfield football coach Garr Ward, whose squad is fielding just that many players, it would be terribly un-lucky for his roster count to get any lower.

In 8-man football, it’s enough to make many coaches fret and worry. Not necessarily so with the Tigers’ field boss, who does all he can to make foot-ball a positive, enjoyable experience — from working one-on-one with his players, to jumping right in with them during conditioning and stretching drills.

Trojans begin season with hope and a one-time famous face on the sideline in ex-BSU running back Helmandollar.

BY STEPHEN MEYERS
smeyers@magicvalley.com

WENDELL • After a week of two-a-days and the team’s first scrim-mage, Wendell head coach Jon Helmandollar de-cided to give his team a break with a little fun at the community pool Saturday after-noon.

“You’ve got to put some fun in after these double days, so that’s what we’re looking to do over there,” said the first-year head coach. “They’ve been working hard.”

Helmandollar, a former running back at Boise State from 2004-07, replaces Brad Neuendorff at head coach. Neuendorff led the Trojans to a 2-6 record last season, including a 1-3 mark in Canyon Conference play.

The coach is installing not only a new, run-oriented offense, but also a new, tough disciplined approach in an effort to change the losing culture Wendell has sustained in recent sea-sons.

“We’re really excited for a new sea-son and a new coaching staff,” said offensive lineman Cody Bunn. “They’ve brought some discipline and new ex-pectations for us. I’m re-ally excited to see what we can do and we feel like this is going to be a great season.”

The Trojans played in a closed team scrimmage Saturday, working on various game scenarios and contin-uing to fine-tune the new offense.

“We’re going to run the ball down the field a lot. We have great rece-ivers, a big line and plenty of good backs,” said running back Mario Bor-rayo. “It’s great to have someone who knows what they’re doing.”

The Trojans begin the season Sept. 2 on the road at South Fremont.

KAREN BOSSICK • FOR THE TIMES-NEWS

Thanks to Bruins assistant equipment manager Jim Johnson calling Idaho his offseason home, he was able to bring the Stanley Cup to Ketchum where hockey fans like Charles Friedman, left, and Bryan Furlong could pose with it.

CUP CRAZY IN IDAHO

BY KAREN BOSSICK
Twin Falls correspondent

KETCHUM • It stands just three feet tall, weighing in at 35 pounds.

But the Stanley Cup was everybody’s idea of a hot date on a hot afternoon in Ketchum.

More than 300 hockey fans crowded into the Ketchum Town Plaza Monday afternoon to get a chance to touch, squeeze and even kiss what is profes-sional sports’ oldest trophy.

They included a team of Buzzards from Twin Falls who came dressed in their blue hockey uniforms despite the blazing August sun.

“This is what the hockey world lives for,” said Sun Valley Suns play-er Charles Friedman, watching peo-ple offer donations to local youth hockey programs in exchange for getting their pictures taken with the Cup.

The Cup was brought to Ketchum courtesy of Jim “Beets” Johnson, assis-tant equipment manager with the Boston Bruins. The Bruins won the Stanley Cup for the first time in 39 years in mid-June, giving Johnson the opportunity to bring it to his adopted hometown of Ketchum.

NOW YOU KNOW

Idaho’s connections to the NHL are scant, with only two native-born players ever produced by the Potato State. And if you’ve never heard of Guyle Fielder and Pat Shea, you’re probably not alone. The two players combined to play in just 19 games, scoring one goal (by Shea) over parts of three NHL seasons — Fielder in 1951 and ’58, Shea in 1932. Inter-estingly enough, both players were born in Potlatch.

“This is a dream come true,” he said as he watched the line of people snake around the town plaza.

The Cup landed in Hailey Sunday af-ternoon, immediately prompting a flurry of cell phone activity as people scrambled to for a peek. Even former Wood River Valley hockey player Austin Grill made an overnight trip to Ketchum to see the cup at the Corner-stone Bar, even though his first college class at Boise State University started at 7:40 a.m. Monday morning.

“I’m always amazed at how many people come out of the woodwork to see this thing. It’s probably the most recognized trophy in sports,” said Howie Borrow.

Borrow has accompanied the cup on its travels around the world for two years, trying to protect it from an igno-minious fate. In the past, he said, it’s ended up in swimming pools and on mountain tops. Bruins player Zdeno Chara even ate rice cakes from the cup when he took the cup to his native Slo-vakia earlier this summer.

If that’s the most risqué activity this year for the Cup, that’s fairly tame. But despite some questionable activities in its past, it cannot be taken sky diving or be involved in any other activities that might harm it.

“It’s considered ‘the people’s tro-phy’ — you can hug it, kiss it,” Bor-row said. “But only players have the right to pick it up — they earn that right.”

SOUTH WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. • Flashing a wide grin that revealed braces, Georgia’s Jake Fromm clutched a baseball tightly in his left hand.

It wasn’t just a souvenir from the Little League World Series, but the ball the 13-year-old slugger hit for a two-run homer in a three-run ninth that helped propel Warner Robins to a dramatic 8-5 win Monday over La-Grange, Ky.

“I was just trying to put the ball in play,” said the 5-foot-11 Fromm, Georgia’s leader and tallest player.

“Honestly, I didn’t think it was go-ing to go over the wall.”

Did it ever. The high line-drive shot off a 2-1 pitch rocketed over the green cen-ter-field fence 225 feet away. Pinch-runner Evan Lasseter scooted home with the go-ahead run on a passed ball earlier in Fromm’s at-bat.

Fromm, a pitcher, wasn’t done. He returned to the mound in the bottom of the ninth to finish off Kentucky with two strikeouts and a groundout to help Georgia move on in the tour-nament. Fromm fanned 10 in 41-3 innings of one-hit relief.

Canyon Ridge’s Late Rally Results in Victory

Suren Thapa scored twice and freshman Ayoob Ala-hood scored his first varsity goal as part of a late Canyon Ridge outburst and the Riverhawks improved to 2-0 by defeating Wendell, 4-1.

“They had us tied up in knots the whole game and we found our way out at the end,” Canyon Ridge coach Brian Gillenwater said. “Wendell played a very de-fensive game and they really shut us down most of the game.”

Eder Macias scored in the sixth minute to open the scoring for the Trojans, who were playing their season opener, before Thapa scored the first of his two goals to tie the game. Thapa’s second goal came in the 70th minute, and Lane Barker added some insurance in the 74th for Canyon Ridge, which hosts Pocatello on Wednesday.

Boys soccer Highland 3, Burley 2

Brandon Castaneda scored a pair of goals for the Bobcats, but Burley couldn’t get an equalizer after falling behind in the first half.

“It was a tale of two halves,” Burley coach Wes Nyblade said. “We were sluggish in the first half, but in the second half we settled down and started playing. It was a good non-conference game to start the year and see what we need to work on.”

Castaneda’s goals came in the 35th and 70th minutes for Burley.

Century 2, Minico 0

Cameron Lloyd had eight saves in net for Minico, but the Spartans couldn’t find the net in defeat.

“We had plenty of chances to score, we just couldn’t put the ball in the net,” Minico coach Arman-do Tapia said.

Girls soccer Canyon Ridge 3, Wendell 0

Raven Oesterbin, Rosalba Ramirez and Courtney Stenger all scored for the Riverhawks, and Tamra Satterwhite had 10 saves as Canyon Ridge equaled its record at 1-1 against the Tro-jans.

Verlander Inches Closer to 20th Win as Tigers Triumph

ASSOCIATED PRESS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Justin Verlander became the first 19-game winner in the majors, Alex Avila hit his 15th homer and the AL Central-leading Detroit Tigers beat the Tampa Bay Rays 5-2 on Monday night.

Verlander (19-5) won his seventh consecutive start, giving up one run and three hits in seven innings. The 19 wins match his career high, set in 2009.

Mariners 3, Indians 2

CLEVELAND • Franklin Gutierrez lifted a bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the ninth inning and the Mariners scored the go-ahead run without getting a hit to beat the Indians.

The Indians, swept by AL Central-leading Detroit over the weekend, lost their fourth in a row.

Orioles 4, Twins 1

MINNEAPOLIS • J.J. Hardy homered against the team that traded him in the off-season, Zach Britton won for the first time in 10 weeks and the Orioles snapped a five-game losing streak by beat-ing the Twins.

Rangers 4, Red Sox 0

ARLINGTON, Texas • C.J.

Wilson threw 6 2-3 scoreless innings for his 13th victory and Mike Napoli hit a three-run homer as the AL West-leading Rangers returned home with a victory over the Red Sox.

Wilson (13-5) struck out four while limiting the Red Sox to four singles.

Napoli’s 21st homer, in the sixth off Erik Bedard (4-9), extended the Rangers’ 1-0 lead and his hitting streak to a season-best 11.

Phillies 10, Mets 0

PHILADELPHIA • Cliff Lee threw seven sharp innings, John Mayberry Jr. and Hunter Pence each hit a two-run homer and Philadelphia beat New York.

The Phillies rocked Dillon Gee (11-5) to earn their major league-best 82nd win. They have a comfortable lead over Atlanta in pursuit of their fifth straight NL East title.

Nationals 4, Diamondbacks 1

WASHINGTON • Jayson Werth hit a three-run homer, Ross Detwiler took a four-hitter into the seventh inning and the Nationals beat Arizona to extend the Diamondbacks’ losing streak to a season-high six games.

Brewers 8-2, Pirates 1-9

PITTSBURGH • Ryan

Doumit homered and drove in two runs as the Pirates ended more than a year of futility against the Brewers with a win in the second game of a double-header.

The Brewers took the opener for their 13th straight victory over Pittsburgh, but the Pirates pounded Mil-waukee ace Zack Greinke in the second game.

Braves 3, Cubs 0

CHICAGO • Jair Jurrjens pitched in and out of trouble for 6 1-3 innings, Dan Uggla and Freddie Freeman home-red and the Braves beat the Cubs for their fifth straight win.

Jurrjens (13-5) allowed eight hits and walked five. The Cubs stranded 11 runners in the first six innings.

Dodgers 2, Cardinals 1

ST. LOUIS • Aaron Miles’ RBI triple keyed a two-run, ninth inning rally and the Dodgers came from behind to beat the Cardinals.

Rockies 9, Astros 5

DENVER • Jhoulys Chacin threw seven solid innings and had a two-run double while Carlos Gonzalez homered and drove in three runs to help the Rockies beat the Astros.

Giants Lose Key Defender in Tuneup Victory vs. Chicago

ASSOCIATED PRESS

EAST RUTHERFORD,N.J. • The offense woke up, the defense was solid and spe-cial teams were outstand-ing. The New York Giants had a near perfect night against the Chicago Bears, except for the season-end-ing knee injury to starting cornerback Terrell Thomas.

Thomas tore the anterior cruciate ligament in his right knee with 22 seconds left in the first half Monday, and the injury to New York’s leading tackler last season overshadowed an impressive 41-13 preseason win.

“It’s devastating,” defen-sive captain Justin Tuck said in a halftime interview with ESPN. “He was primed to have another great year for us. That’s a big void.”

The rest of the game was outstanding as the Giants (1-1) bounced back from a so-so performance against Carolina with a very good effort against the Bears (1-1).

Brandon Jacobs scored on an 18-yard run and Domenik Hixon caught a 5-yard touchdown pass as the New York cashed in on big special teams plays.

Robbie Gould had field goals of 23 and 42 yards for the Bears, who struggled again on offense despite having Jay Cutler (12 of 21 for 171 yards) play the entire first half.

Colts

Jim Caldwell and Peyton Manning’s teammates aren’t even considering the possibility of Brett Favre coming to town.

Not yet, at least.

One day after team owner Jim Irsay wrote on Twitter that he was in Hattiesburg,

The Giants’ Devin Thomas (15) runs back a kick on a 73-yard return as Chicago’s Eddie Williams (43) gives chase in the first quarter.

Miss., where the three-time league MVP lives, most players thought Irsay was simply having fun.

Speculation over the Colts’ backup situation has been swirling since Satur-day, when Irsay tweeted that Indianapolis must be prepared to start the season without Manning behind center. Later that day, Man-ning told reporters he would not play in the team’s final two preseason games. Caldwell did not deny the Colts might sign a veteran free agent. Instead, he says the Colts will try to make improvements with the three other quarterbacks on the roster.

Browns

Cleveland has reached agreement with Pro Bowl offensive tackle Joe Thomas on a seven-year contract extension.

Agent Peter Schaffer said that the sides had been working on the deal for some time and that he was pleased that Thomas will have long-term security with the Browns. Schaffer would not provide financial terms of the deal, but ac-cording to ESPN.com, cit-ing anonymous league sources, the package is worth $84 million and in-cludes $44 million in guar-anteed money.

Tigers

There isn’t anything radical or different to Ward’s approach, save for the un-usually early hours in which he conducts practice. Morning practices aren’t new to the Richfield pro-gram – Ward started hold-ing them last season, and he’ll carry them into the season.

“You have to have the team buy into it, and I guess they’re buying into it now,” Ward said with a laugh, not-ing that his roster is holding steady.

And start times have a different meaning for Ward. Practice might start at 7:15, but he expects his players to be warmed up and ready at that point – not just hitting the field for stretching.

“To me, that’s a good life skill,” Ward said. “Be ready to go.”

If Richfield hits the early portion of its season like it hits the practice field, Ward is optimistic the Tigers could quickly see improvement from last year’s 3-6 mark, a season which begins with a road trip to Jackpot.

“They’re extremely excit-ed to compete,” Ward said. “They’re enthusiastic about getting out there.”

Little League

Earlier Monday, Langley, British Columbia beat Kaoshiung, Taiwan, 5-3 to become the first Canadian team to beat a squad from Taiwan at the series following 16 straight losses; Hamamatsu City, Japan, beat Dhahran, Saudi Arabia, 13-4; and Oranjestad, Aruba, shut out Rapid City, S.D., 5-0 in a consolation game.

The nightcap turned into a central Pennsylvania party after the boys from Clinton County took control with a three-run first in a 10-0 blowout of Lafayette, La. The blue-clad Pennsylvania players from the Keystone Little League live just about 30 miles away from South Williamsport.

Another raucous, partisan crowd cheered their every move under the Lamade Stadium lights. Brandon Miller led off the bottom of the first with a homer to right to start the rout, and the squad nicknamed the "Big Blue Machine" tacked on seven more runs in the second, more than enough support for starter Landon Breon.

Miller came on in relief to get the last two outs, and he and Breon combined on a no-hitter. The game ended after Louisiana hit in the top of the fourth due to Little League's 10-run rule.

"Keystone! Keystone," roared the Pennsylvania fans after center fielder Tyler McCloskey caught the last out. Pennsylvania will play Georgia on Tuesday night.

Manager Phillip Johnson was hoping to save Fromm for that game, but called on him in relief with his team facing another tight game. They had developed a penchant for rebounding from behind or late-game drama in the tournament run to South Williamsport.

Fromm and his teammates came through in the clutch again.

Josh Goodman finished 2 for 3, including the rallying-starting, one-out single in the ninth before being lifted for pinch-runner Lasseter, while Fromm finished 2 for 4.

Fromm said the bad back that had been bothering him earlier in the tournament felt much better Monday.

Canada 5, Taiwan 3

Yi An Pan scattered nine hits over five innings and added a solo homer in the sixth for underdog Canada. It's already the most successful showing for Canada at the series since 2005.

Aruba 5, South Dakota 0

Gillian Wernet struck out 12 in a four-hit shutout as both teams ended their Little League run after being eliminated earlier in the weekend from title contention.

Japan 13, Saudi Arabia 4

Japan broke open a tight game with an eight-run sixth inning, setting up a matchup with Canada today. With Japan clinging to a one-run lead, Sotaro Yoshida hit a solo homer with one out to start the scoring in the sixth. Mitsuhito Uchida, Ken Igeta and Iwamoto each added RBI hits in the inning.

little more than a plea to hold down the room-service tabs at the organization's retreat in Indianapolis a few weeks ago.

The attendees insisted on a higher grade-point average for their teams and a few other cosmetic changes and tried to pass them off as real reforms. The ink was still drying on those when Miami got embarrassed, which should have embarrassed all those presidents even more, since the scold they put in charge of NCAA enforcement, Paul Dee, just happened to be the athletic director there while all those fabulous yacht parties and strip-club soirees were taking place.

Who was it that said "high-profile athletes demand high-profile compliance" when the Southern California dynasty that Bush helped build turned up in the dock? Right, the same Paul Dee.

Desperate to prove the presidents are serious this time, or perhaps to hold on to what little credibility hasn't been shredded, NCAA boss Mark Emmert let it be known this weekend that the "death penalty" was still on the table for flagrant cheaters. But he quickly made clear he didn't have the Miami case in mind. No need, since there's little chance of anybody calling his bluff.

SMU football was a casualty the last time the NCAA handed out the death penalty — barring a program from competing in a sport — and more than two decades later, the Mustangs are barely competitive. Having seen what it cost once, the presidents hardly have the stomach to punish one of their own. Besides, in the current big-dollar environment, just unwinding the TV contracts already in place amounts to setting the table for the networks' lawyers.

So how about an intermediate step. Under a provision the NCAA has already green-lighted, coaches — as well as schools — will effectively have report cards that reflect the academic progress of the players during their tenure, so that future employers will have a better measure of what kind of programs they run.

The measure makes coaches more accountable for their charges, but let's not stop there. Former Florida coach and current TV commentator Urban Meyer proposed that coaches who get caught knowingly breaking rules get suspended, the same way their players do. It's only one more deterrent. But let Goodell sign on just as he did in the Pryor case, and we might have a reform movement with legs.
