For Gun Lovers, 1,900 Acres May Fall Their Way

BY BEN BOTKIN
bbotkin@magicvalley.com

JEROME • Jerome County may have a new shooting range in its future. Paul resident Kenny Riedlinger has approached the county with the idea to turn a 1,900-acre stretch of eastern Jerome County into a shooting range with firing distances of up to 1,200 yards. County commissioners met with Riedlinger on Monday to talk about the idea, which is still in the early stages. County leaders didn't give the project the green light, but unanimously agreed that a shooting range would have a better chance of working out in a different location, preferably public land in the Cinder Butte area northeast of Hazelton. If the project becomes a reality, it would provide a shooting spot for Riedlinger's Kimmama Butte Shooting Club — as well as the public — that would be easily accessible to people living in Mini-Cassia, Riedlinger said. "There's a big need for anybody to come out and shoot because all the gravel pits where people target practice are getting shut down," he said. The idea is for the range to be available for hunting rifles and pistols, he said. Much work is ahead, though. The next step is for the county to file an application outlining the project with the

Filing Opens for Elections

City council seats will be up for election across the Magic Valley in November, two months after the filing deadline of Sept. 9.

BY NICK COLTRAIN
ncoltrain@magicvalley.com

Tired of the way your city is being run? Then, in the words of one freshly declared Twin Falls City Council candidate, "get off the sidelines" — the filing deadline for city council elections across the Magic Valley is less than two weeks away. From there, its about two months until you and your neighbors have a say in who will represent you in setting ordinances, property tax rates and the overall management of your city.

Two people have already filed for Twin Falls city elections: Councilwoman Rebecca Mills Sojka, who was appointed to Republican State Sen. Lee Heider's seat last winter, and Suzanne Hawkins, a local business owner seeking Councilman Will Kezele's seat. Kezele said Monday night that he won't seek another term because a new business opportunity would demand too much of his time for him to serve at the best of his ability. Kezele joins Councilman David E. Johnson as not seeking re-election this November. Johnson said earlier this month he felt he had served long enough and it was time for new blood on the council. That brings the guaranteed tally of contestants in Twin Falls to four: former Twin Falls Police Chief Jim Munn said he'll run for a seat being vacated by a departing councilman, and Councilman Trip Craig said he is going to run for a fourth term. "I know at least in my circle, my little world in Twin Falls, a lot of people like to complain but no one really wants to do anything about it," said Hawkins, a political newcomer and longtime Magic Valley resident. "So I decided to get off the sidelines." In recent years, Twin Falls city elections have been low-turnout affairs: the 2009 election had only one seat with a substantial challenge — a four-way race that ended with Greg Lanting's re-election — and only 12.7 percent turnout among voters registered in the city. The 2007 election saw three of the four seats contested, but still fewer than 20 percent of total voters turned out. Rich Stivers, campaign manager for Munn, said the "dismal" turnout might be evidence that "maybe people flat out don't care" about local elections. He's part of an informal, nonpartisan group seeking qualified candidates to run for council — though stopping short of recruiting them outright — and aside from Munn, hasn't had much luck.

Filer Teen Leads Police on 3-County I-84 Chase

BY BRADLEY GUIRE

Miller

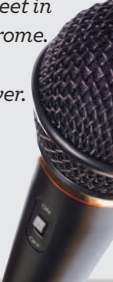

An admittedly suicidal Filer teen led police on a high-speed chase from Jerome to Mountain Home along Interstate 84 on Sunday — causing a small brush fire, but no injuries. Jerome Police say David Miller, 18, called to report the theft of his mother's blue 2007 Toyota Yaris and told police he was at exit 168 of Interstate 84. When officers arrived, Miller brandished what appeared to be a black semiautomatic pistol and took off westbound on the interstate. Law enforcement officers from Jerome Police, the Jerome County Sheriff's Office, the Gooding County Sheriff's Office, Gooding Police and Idaho State Police went after Miller, who peeled down the road at up to 110 mph. Spike strips were deployed in four unsuccessful attempts to stop Miller, but the teen cut across the median each time, driving into oncoming traffic as he hurdled westbound in east-bound lanes. Near milepost 150, Miller threw out his weapon, which officers later recovered. They discovered it was not a firearm but an Airsoft pistol.

Private Clinics Look Forward to Hospital Merger

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

Private medical clinics are responding positively to a possible Magic Valley hospital merger. Last Thursday, St. Benedicts Family Medical Center in Jerome announced it was discussing merging with St. Luke's Health System. Many of the details of the deal have not yet been released, but the merger is expected to be finalized by Oct. 1. The deal may affect employment at St. Benedicts, but it may also benefit the local community by providing faster and better service to patients. "Jerome patients go to Twin Falls for specialists and we see a lot of Twin Falls patients who come over here to Jerome for care," said Joshua Kern, a partner with Family Care Physicians, a private medical clinic in Jerome. The clinic is located within the St. Benedicts facility. "A deal like this would continue to build stronger bridges between the two communities to provide a more seamless health care model," he said. Kern was involved in some of the early merger discussions with St. Benedicts and St. Luke's, representing the private medical community in

Police Finger Burglary Suspects for More Attempted Thefts

BY BRADLEY GUIRE
bguire@magicvalley.com

Bellus

Garcia

Two men already awaiting trial for conspiracy to commit burglary are again accused of the crime, this time for allegedly trying to break into a Twin Falls home. Twin Falls police say they've arrested the men seen in surveillance videos released to the public last week, videos that show two men and one woman attempting to burglarize a home on Galena Street. Both Jon Bellus, 20, and Ramon Garcia, 22, were identified as suspects within a few days of the Aug. 26 incident.

According to the police report, 94-year-old Mildred Soran was stirred from sleep around 3 a.m. by the sounds of someone trying to gain entry to her house. She saw flashlights outside her window and called 911. Police arrived to find the door to an attached garage kicked in.

Upon reviewing surveillance footage, police published the images on Friday for public awareness, as 30 residential burglaries have been reported since early June. A tip received last weekend pointed toward Garcia, whom was identified from the video by a distinguishing tattoo on his arm and his build — 6 feet, 7 inches and 320 pounds. Garcia's probation officer reviewed the video, police said, and identified Garcia as one of the suspects. A woman described as Garcia's girlfriend, Sheila Carlson, is also a suspect but is not charged with a crime.

When interviewed by detectives, Garcia and Carlson denied any knowledge of the incident.

Police identified Bellus as the other male suspect. Bellus told police he, Garcia and Carlson were the people in the video and how they picked the Galena Street house because it appeared to be unoccupied. Bellus also noted that Garcia said the video cameras looked fake.

Both men are charged with felony conspiracy to commit burglary. Garcia is held at Twin Falls County Jail on $25,000 bond, and Bellus was detained on $10,000 bond. Bellus has bonded out. Both are scheduled for a Sept. 9 preliminary hearing in Twin Falls County 5th District Court.

They were slapped with the same charges earlier this year, as Twin Falls County prosecutors say they planned to steal painkillers from a pharmacy for the purpose of selling them. Garcia and Bellus were arrested in May. They pleaded not guilty and face trial in late September.

U.S. Bureau of Land Management, which would review it and determine whether to deed its land to the county. BLM is allowed to do that for public uses following a lengthy application review with public input.

"We haven't begun working on this because we don't have an application yet," Mike Courtney, a BLM field manager, told commissioners.

Commissioners raised some concerns about Riedlinger's original site, located in eastern Jerome County off of Crestview Road. Commissioner Roger Morley said he's driven out there and has seen that the area already has heavy agriculture-related traffic.

"I would personally rather see something a little more remote," he said, stressing he's not against shooting ranges but wants the public to support the location.

Riedlinger said he will need to look at the option that county commissioners are more comfortable with.

He said he chose the initial 1,900-acre spot that county commissioners balked at because it has natural barriers that mesh well with the safety needs of a shooting range.

He said he's willing to compromise and has worked three years on trying to find a good site.

"Now I've got to go back to the drawing board," he said.

Jerome County already has a shooting range. It's run by the Jerome County Rod and Gun Club off of U.S. Highway 93, north of Twin Falls.

Its shooting range, though, is far different than what's in mind for the latest proposal. It's just 200 yards instead of 1,000-plus.

Mike Scott, the club's vice president, said he hasn't heard much about the new shooting range that may come to the county. The club's range is open to the public, and also has events for shooting clay targets.

FAA Grounds New Blaine Co. Airport

BY KAREN BOSSICK
For the Times-News

HAILEY • The future of air service in the Wood River Valley is now up in the air.

The Federal Aviation Administration has notified the Friedman Memorial Airport Authority Board that it has suspended indefinitely any further work on a draft environmental impact statement for the replacement airport project.

The FAA is concerned the project might not be affordable locally or for the federal agency itself, given the drying-up of federal funding, according to a letter from FAA Airports Division Manager Donna P. Taylor to Friedman Airport Manager Rick Baird.

Inflation and better data about costs pushed the estimated price tag from $107 million for an unnamed site to between $285 million and $314 million, depending on the specific site considered.

The FAA, which spent about $6 million on field studies, is also concerned about the project's potential impact on wildlife — namely, the sage grouse and pygmy rabbit, both considered sensitive species.

Len Harlig, who served on the airport authority board for years, said he wasn't surprised by the decision but thought it premature to speak on it until hearing firsthand from the FAA. That chance will come at a airport board meeting Sept. 13. Taylor also will meet with Blaine County commissioners and Baird the next day.

"Once they started to delay the EIS, it was clear that something was awry. And then we started to see the costs going up dramatically," Harlig said. "I think everybody realizes we need air service for the resort. But we have to figure out how to do that. I don't think anybody knows where we're going at this point."

County Commissioner Tom Bowman said the community will have to revisit what it needs in an airport and see which of the original sites considered, including Friedman, warrant further investigation.

"The thing we want to impress upon the FAA is the need to do anything we can to maintain commercial air service to the valley," Bowman said.

Many fear the valley's tourism will die without air service. More than half of Sun Valley's winter guests fly. And air service is important to local businesses like Power Engineers and Marketrone, as well as to locals and second-homeowners.

The FAA will offer technical guidance to the airport board and community as they identify their next options.

A 2006 study cited a handful of design deficiencies at the existing airport, including the runway's proximity to Idaho Highway 75 and the fact that a quarter of winter flights must be cancelled or diverted due to weather.

Officials have spent countless hours planning a replacement airport, starting with 1994 and 2004

If You Go FAA Presentation

master plans and the 2006 study.

The city of Hailey has been dogged in pursuing a new airport away from the city — recently hearing from consultants on what to do with the current site after a move. But Hailey resident Vanessa Fry, who served on the airport's advisory council, said she doesn't personally have a problem with where the airport is today.

"We don't live in the flight path. But they've never had negative impact on me and my family. And they have a good safety record," she said.

RUNAWAY JEROME TEEN FOUND IN ALBION

TIMES-NEWS

A runaway teenager hiked from his home in northeast Jerome County all the way to Albion before calling his brother to pick him up.

Det. Rick Cowen of the Jerome County Sheriff's Office reported that 16-year-old Joshua Schaeffer was found safe in Albion on Friday night. Schaeffer reportedly left his home last Wednesday.

Cowen said the boy walked from his house to the Snake River, where he borrowed a kayak to cross into Cassia County and then walked some more. He was heading toward Lake Cleveland. Cowen said Schaeffer stopped at a house near Albion to make a phone call at about 9 p.m.

The boy was found sunburned, but otherwise in good health. Cowen said he dug potatoes out of fields to cook and eat during his journey.

Search and rescue teams from three counties looked for Schaeffer, who was reported missing last week.

Chase

A Gooding County sheriff's deputy was able to end the pursuit by spinning the Yaris out around milepost 89. The car went across the median and eastbound lanes and down the embankment. The car stopped when it became stuck in sagebrush.

Officers removed Miller from the car, which sparked a fire in the brush. A Bureau of Land Management fire unit doused the small blaze.

The report notes that when interviewed by investigators, Miller said he stole his mother's car with the intention of being chased, possibly as a means of suicide.

Miller was booked into the Jerome County Jail and arraigned in magistrate court on Monday afternoon. He is charged with felony eluding a police officer and misdemeanor driving without privileges. He is held on $30,000 bond, and a preliminary hearing is scheduled for Sept. 6.

Elections

After recruiting Munn in May, four months before filing even opened, Stivers said the group was excited about the possibilities. But with the well dry, Stivers is at a loss for why. On top of other challenges, he said, times are tough, meaning council members wouldn't get to cut ribbons as much as cut programs.

The mayor is paid $16,920 annually and the other council members make $13,920. Those figures can make it tough for those without stable income to devote the time, he said, and the time commitment can pose a problem for those on the flip side of that.

"Either (the public) is satisfied (with the current council) or they are, for whatever reason, hesitant to get involved," Stivers said. "I mean, it is time-consuming. It is a thankless job. And, if you're running for the money, then you are, frankly, running for the wrong reasons."

Local Elections

The following cities have council seats and mayor positions up for election Nov. 8. Each municipality requires those seeking election to pay a nonrefundable $40 filing fee and collect five signatures of registered voters in the city they hope to represent. The signatures must be verified by the county clerk.

The filing deadline is the end of business hours on Sept. 9 at the city hall, unless otherwise noted. Call your city hall for more details. Each position is for a four-year term, unless otherwise noted.

Merger

Jerome. He said the clinic would continue to work with the hospital under the merger, but was unsure at this time if the clinic would remain private.

If there is a hospital merger, St. Benedicts will most likely switch to the electronic medical record system that has been adopted by St. Luke's.

Having St. Benedicts use the electronic system would help inform private physicians treating patients who come directly from the hospital, said Stacy Milliron, a nurse practitioner at Family Health Services in Jerome. The private clinic refers and receives patients from both hospitals.

"If we are following up with a patient that is coming from the St. Luke's ER, then we can easily print out the patient's medical records and see the doctor's notes for that patient," she said.

Milliron says trying to retrieve non-electronic records from St. Benedicts takes quite a bit of time. Sometimes patients have come and gone before the clinic can receive a copy of the records.

Overall, Kern says having a larger hospital will help increase quality of care. But he acknowledged the concern the public may have about the possible merger.

"The community of Jerome has been very vocal in getting their care in this area, not somewhere else," he said. "They like the family physician approach and St. Luke's recognizes that we provide that kind of service."

Police Arrest Woman for Alleged Spice-induced Romp Through City Park

TIMES-NEWS

Albertson

A Twin Falls woman is accused of causing a possibly spice-induced, bizarre scene in downtown Twin Falls on Sunday afternoon.

Police were dispatched to the city park and public library at about 2 p.m. for reports of a woman vomiting blood, mumbling and swearing at a water bottle. Another dispatch reported that the woman, identified as 26-year-old Stephanie Albertson, was dancing near the library and attempting to disrobe.

Officer Charles Van Vooren, who wrote the report, noted that Albertson appeared intoxicated and a mess, as she had smeared lipstick all over her face. Albertson allegedly told Van Vooren that she was high on spice, which is a plant substance sprayed with a chemical similar to the THC found in marijuana. Legal varieties are sold in smoke shops as incense.

Albertson was arrested and charged for misdemeanor inhalation of intoxicants.

Byrne Accused of Leading Police on Low-speed Chase

TIMES-NEWS

Dylan

The man who reportedly led police on a June high-speed chase that ended in a standoff at the Twin Falls ShopKo is accused of leading police on another, lower-speed pursuit on Friday.

Dylan Byrne, 28, of Twin Falls, was charged with felony possession of a controlled substance after police attempted to stop him for pulling out in front of traffic while leaving a gas station on Washington Street North at about 12:45 p.m. The report states that Officer Ruben Murillo activated his overhead lights and pursued Byrne at 15 mph, as Byrne refused to yield.

Byrne allegedly drove nearly six blocks at that speed, running a stop sign at the intersection of Jefferson Street and Heyburn Avenue before complying with the officer's lights and siren.

Upon searching the vehicle, Murillo said he found marijuana and a glass pipe with methamphetamine residue in it. Byrne was arrested and detained at the Twin Falls County Jail. He was arraigned on his new charges on Monday, and a $50,000 bond was set. A preliminary hearing is scheduled for Sept. 9.

In the matter of the high-speed chase from June, in which he allegedly drove at up to 90 mph along U.S. Highway 93 while eluding a Jerome County sheriff's deputy, Byrne awaits a Sept. 27 trial for unlawful possession of a firearm.

Garibaldi Changes Plea in Auger Falls Fire Case

TIMES-NEWS

The Buhl man accused of starting the 2010 Auger Falls Fire has pleaded guilty to one of three misdemeanor charges levied against him.

Don Garibaldi, 55, appeared in Twin Falls County 5th District Magistrate Court on Aug. 23 for a pretrial conference and changed his plea to a misdemeanor charge of damage to forage on public lands from throwing away or leaving lighted substances.

His trial was set to start later this week. The state, which claims he started a fire that burned nearly 600 acres in the Snake River Canyon near Twin Falls including Auger Falls Park, has dropped two other charges in the case.

According to the police report, Garibaldi is believed to have thrown out a still-lit cigarette butt while working on private land west of Twin Falls. Auger Falls Park is jointly managed by the city of Twin Falls and the U.S. Bureau of Land Management.

The charge of damage to forage on public lands from throwing away or leaving lighted substances carries a maximum penalty of six months in jail and a $1,000 fine for each conviction. Sentencing is set for Oct. 12.

ISU Scholarship Program Comes to Valley

TIMES-NEWS

Help support local students attending Idaho State University at a kickoff Wednesday for a long-running scholarship program.

The "I Love ISU" campaign has run for nearly three decades in eastern Idaho, raising $6 million in that time. This year is the first the university has expanded it out to the Magic Valley, according to Anthony Dickey, ISU's director of annual giving.

Money raised isn't doled out as a traditional scholarship, Dickey said. Rather, it helps boost other scholarships for ISU students in need of financial aid. Funds raised in the Magic Valley will be marked specifically for students from the area.

The fundraising campaign will run for most of September. Locally, its launch will be from 5-7 p.m. Wednesday at Election 486 in Twin Falls.

OBITUARIES

Karen J. Griggs

April 13, 1939-Aug. 26, 2011

UNIVERSITY PLACE, Wash. • Karen J. Griggs of University Place, Wash., died of cancer Saturday, Aug. 26, 2011.

She was born in Twin Falls on April 13, 1939, and was educated in Twin Falls schools and at the University of Idaho. She worked for Amalgamated Sugar Co. in the payroll department for many years, where she was also active in the labor union and in the employee credit union. She was a longtime volunteer to the American Red Cross and Camp Fire Girls in Twin Falls. After retiring from Amalgamated Sugar, she sold real estate in Twin Falls for several years. She moved to Washington in 2003, where she remained until her death.

She was preceded in death by her parents, Myrtle and Berkley Griggs; and her sister, Ruth Griggs. She is survived by a brother, Tom Griggs of Twin Falls; her first cousins, Janice Lewis and Jim Sturgill of Boise and June Kriegh of Rupert; as well as other friends and relatives.

Higher Salaries Draw Idaho Teachers to Wyo.

IDAHO FALLS (AP) • Gary Dustin liked being a teacher in Jefferson Joint School District 251 and being a part of the community of Rigby in eastern Idaho.

But he says he wanted to provide for his family, so the Rigby Junior High School teacher made the move to Star Valley High School in Afton, Wyo., where his pay jumped by $25,000 to $57,000 a year.

The Post Register reported Sunday that Dustin has several colleagues in eastern Idaho who have done the same, lured by bigger paychecks.

Marjean McConnell, human resources director for Bonneville Joint School District 93 in eastern Idaho, says she tries to focus on the recreation and lifestyle opportunities of the region when recruiting new teachers. But competing with Wyoming is a challenge, she says.

Natural gas, coal and oil have made Wyoming wealthy over the past few decades — and a sizable portion of that money goes to the education system. That enables places like Star Valley to offer salaries, benefits and resources that are tough to top.

Jon Abrams, superintendent of Lincoln County School District 2, which includes Star Valley High School, spent five years working in eastern Idaho schools before moving to Wyoming. He said the state's willingness to invest in education was a big part of what drew him away from Shelly and Idaho Falls.

"The state makes a lot of money, and education is their top priority," he said. "The Legislature has chosen to spend its money on a strong schools system, and that puts a lot of resources at our disposal."

For example, the state recently paid $14 million to build an elementary school in Abrams' district, with no bond elections or tax increases needed.

At Star Valley High School alone, there are at least eight former Idaho teachers. Most of them also coached teams or advised clubs when they lived in Idaho.

Jeff Johnson left his job as a science teacher and football coach at Ririe High School last May. This is his first week as a teacher in Star Valley.

"Moving here allowed me the ability to free up some time with my family and took some of the financial pressure off of us feeling that I needed to pick up more coaching, or having my wife leave our youngest daughter while she worked more," he said.

For Idaho school administrators, it's a harsh reality that they can't do much to change.

"When it comes to salary, we aren't competitive with that, and we can't be," said Karla LaOrange, who does much of the recruiting for Idaho Falls School District 91. "I can't really say we can compete financially."

LaOrange said she sells teachers on the activities and lifestyles they can pursue in Idaho Falls, as well as the resources available through Idaho National Laboratory, the Idaho Falls Arts Council and the Museum of Idaho.

Idaho's budget woes have meant big cuts for schools. Over the past two years, Idaho Falls' two school districts each had about $6 million in cuts. Eastern Idaho superintendents don't think they've seen the last of the cuts, either.

Robert R. “Robbie/Bob” Young, 71, passed away Friday afternoon, Aug. 26, 2011, at his home in Twin Falls, Idaho, surrounded by his family.

Robbie (Bob) was born in San Diego, Calif., on July 28, 1940. He spent most of his life there except the years he lived in Santa Cruz, Calif. His grandsons never got tired of hearing his experiences. He was a 25-year member of the International Union of Operating Engineers, Local 12. As his friends said, “Robbie’s stories will live on for generations.”

At Robbie’s request, there will be no service. Cremation will be under the direction of Rosenau Funeral Home.

SENIOR

Q. Last week you wrote about taking an older parent on vacation. Well, we have planned a vacation of a life-time but it isn't possible to take Dad with us.

A. Family members who care for older loved ones need and deserve vacations! Don't feel guilty about leaving your parent at home. However, let your dad's abilities and care need drive some important pre-trip planning. If he lives alone, consider obtaining a medical alert system for him to use while you are gone. Identify responsible adults to check in on him regularly. If he needs more care, consider hiring a home health aide to assist while you are gone. For greater security and assistance, investigate respite care options at local long term care facilities. You will enjoy your trip more if you are confident that your father's needs are being met while you are away.

OPINION

“No. 1 is don't spend all the money, you can figure out what that means...You won't have stimulus programs under a Perry presidency. You won't spend all the money.”

Perry said at the Tulsa Press Club event also attended by U.S. Sen. James Inhofe, R-Okla.

OUR VIEW

Otter: Damn the Consequences, Let's Low-Ball the Budget

Idaho Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter believes in cutting first, governing later.

Double-talk and rhetoric aside, Idaho politicians fall into two categories: One believes that the state has a solemn responsibility to protect Idaho's public school students and its weakest citizens. The other is convinced that Idaho must cut taxes at all costs — especially taxes for the richest Idahoans.

Give him credit: Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter made it crystal clear last week in which camp he resides.

The governor proclaimed that he'll underestimate state tax revenue for the remainder of his term, forcing budget cuts that may later prove unnecessary.

“You can expect the same thing the remainder of my time in office,” Otter said last week in a talk at a luncheon sponsored by the Boise Metro Chamber of Commerce.

“The future budgets that we'll have in the state are going to not look an awful lot unlike budgets that we've had the last 3 ½ years,” the governor said. “... We're still going to work at institutionalizing a lot of the changes that we made during this economic downturn.”

Including, of course, record-breaking reductions in state spending for public schools and colleges and slashing the benefits to Medicaid recipients, the poorest and most desperate Idahoans.

First, a note about this newspaper's editorial history with Butch Otter.

We've endorsed him for election to statewide office nine times — including for reelection to a second term as governor last November — believing he's the kind of progressive conservative who reflects the views of most residents of this state.

Apparently, we were mistaken. Unlike his predecessors, Jim Risch, Dirk Kempthorne, Phil Batt and Cecil Andrus, this governor has changed his world view to match that of the flat-earthers who hijacked Idaho's Republican Party in 2008.

His new philosophy: Cut first, worry about the consequences later.

Idaho had cause to expect better of Butch Otter. He was always a fiscal conservative, but it seemed to us he had the best interests of all Idahoans at heart.

Guess not.

Why Rick Perry's the Real Deal

A few weeks ago it was possible to believe that Mitt Romney would win the New Hampshire primary and cruise easily to the Republican nomination. It's harder to see that now.

There have been a slew of polls showing Gov. Rick Perry of Texas surging to double-digit national leads. He leads across demographic groups — among educated Republicans and less-educated ones, among upscale and downscale. Most impressive, he's winning over the Republican activists who pay the closest attention and wield disproportionate influence with primary voters.

A poll by the conservative political Web sites, The Daily Caller/Conservative-Home, surveys these activists. When asked this week which candidate was most electable, 46 percent named Perry, while only 20 percent named Romney. When asked who would do the best job on the economy, 27 percent said Perry and 14 percent said Romney. When asked who would do the best job controlling Washington spending, 20 percent chose Perry, 17 percent said Rep. Paul Ryan and only 8 percent chose Romney. The evidence suggests that Perry's appeal will not be just a summer fad. He's benefiting from several of the trends that have fundamentally altered the Republican electorate. If the 2008 electorate were going to vote in the 2012 primaries, then Romney could handle Perry. But that electorate no longer exists.

The events of 2009 and 2010 substantially shifted voter attitudes and nothing that has happened in 2011 has altered that shift.

Nationally, the events of 2009 and 2010 moved voters to the right. In 2008, Democrats had a 12-point party identification advantage among families earning between $30,000 and $75,000. That advantage is gone, according to a July Pew Research poll. In 2008, Democrats had a 7 percent advantage among white voters under 30. The Republicans now have an 11-point advantage with those young voters, according to the poll.

Within the Republican Party, the rightward shift has been even more vehement. In 2008, roughly 63 percent of primary voters called themselves conservative, according to Public Policy Polling. Now it's roughly 73 percent. The number of moderate Republicans has withered.

The events of 2009 and 2010 also concentrated the Republican mind. It used to be that there were many themes in the Republican hymnal. Now there is only one: Government is too big, and it needs to be brought under control. It used to be there were many threats on the horizon. Now there is only one: the interlocking oligarchy of politicians, academics, journalists, consultants and financiers who live along the Acela corridor want to rip America from its traditional moorings.

Perry is benefiting from these shifts. He does best among the most conservative voters. He has a simple and fashionable message: He does very well with the alternative-reality right — those who don't believe in global warming, evolution or that Obama was born in the U.S.

So, yes, it is time to take Perry seriously as a Republican nominee and even as a potential president.

OTHER VIEWS

The following editorial appeared in Monday's Washington Post:

Should minors who get into trouble and are questioned by law enforcement officers at school be informed of their Miranda rights?

The Supreme Court changed the rules this summer in a case involving a 13-year-old North Carolina student who had been seen in the backyard of a home that had been burglarized. Days after the incident, a police officer questioned the minor in a closed-door interrogation at school that included a school official.

The minor's guardian was not told of the session, and the child was not informed of his Miranda rights. The boy confessed and was later hit with juvenile delinquency charges.

The court concluded that although there was no arrest and the interrogation took place in a school and not a police station, the boy was essentially in custody since it was likely he did not believe he could leave or refuse to answer the officer's questions. The justices ruled that the police officer should have taken the boy's age into account when determining whether Miranda rights were in order.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Save Downtown Twin Falls

I am writing this letter in hopes of gathering support and to perhaps sway the Twin Falls County commissioners to retain the county offices in the downtown area.

I am a native of Twin Falls County and have seen many changes in my 82 years of life. One of them, sadly, is the demise of the downtown. Urban Renewal has spent a lot of time, effort and money to revive the area as have many other organizations and various persons. This proposal to move the county offices to the old hospital building only thwarts these many efforts.

The county commissioners, by their own admission, state that 90 to 100 employees will be transferring to the West Addison location (reference Times-News article, Aug. 25). Not only will those employees be moving out of downtown, but all of the patrons of those offices will no longer be coming downtown.

Anyone buying a license plate, getting a driver's license, paying property taxes, visiting the recorder's office, to name a few, is a potential customer for the florists, restaurants, banks, specialty shops, furniture stores and others. I have no way of estimating how many people this would be, but the number is substantial. And this is only the beginning. I expect that in the near future, there would be more county offices moving to that location. I feel that all of the county offices should be in one central location as they currently are.

I am hopeful that the people of influence in this area will see this likely move as a serious threat to the vitality and the very livability of downtown Twin Falls and use their influence to convince the county commissioners to retain their offices in their central downtown location.

Thank You

I would like to take a moment and thank all of those from the Glenns Ferry, Bliss and Gooding areas who have helped to make this a safer place to live and play.

I work for the Elmore County sheriff in the Glenns Ferry area and frequently am in a position where I need help from another agency to safely complete my job. In the last several months I have had numerous times where the Gooding County Sheriff's Department, Bliss Fire Department, the Bliss QRU, Idaho State Police, King Hill Fire Department, Elmore County Ambulance, Boise BLM Fire, Twin Falls BLM Fire and Idaho Transportation Department, have come to my aid at traffic crashes, fires and search and rescue operations.

Most recently during the Blair Fire above King Hill I was lucky to get help from all of those I have listed as well as the Elmore County Sheriff's volunteer COP program and Glenns Ferry Highway District. Without the King Hill Fire Department, Vale BLM hotshot crew, multiple BLM and Forest Service helicopters and the friends and neighbors of two ranchers in King Hill, we would not have been able to save the homes and ranch buildings. It was only by fast and hard work of those involved that these houses were saved.

Although the majority of those I have named are government entities that you would expect to help, it is the level of professionalism and dedication that stands out. In addition, many of them are volunteers who choose to put their lives on the line for their communities. What an amazing thing to see this type of spirit alive and well in our community. Again, hat's off to all of those who helped and thanks for all you do in your communities every day.

Dietrich Home Invasion Suspect to Change Plea

BY BRADLEY GUIRE

Baker

Donabedian

One of the four individuals suspected of committing a home invasion robbery in Dietrich is slated to plead guilty this morning.

Gabriel Baker, 30, was scheduled to begin a jury trial in Lincoln County today, along with co-defendants Jeremiah Bennett, 27, Aaron Donabedian, 22, and Jamie Taylor, 30. However, Baker is changing his plea, while the other defendants' trials were pushed back to this fall.

The Lincoln County Sheriff's Office reported in March that David and Colleen Conner were held at gunpoint by multiple individuals while being robbed on the night of March 9.

David Conner told police that the suspect took away his shotgun, bound him with rope and placed him on the kitchen floor. Meanwhile, the suspects forced Colleen Conner to find money and other valuables.

Weeks later, authorities gained a valuable tip to the identity of the alleged invaders through a family member. The tipster, who is related to Donabedian, claimed that Donabedian helped in the robbery so he could afford a $500 circumcision for his baby.

A few days later, Twin Falls police found and arrested Donabedian at a Twin Falls fast-food restaurant. Donabedian reportedly spilled details of the invasion, including the names of the other suspects: Bennett, Taylor and Baker.

According to the report of Donabedian's interview, the group was drinking in Jerome when he told them about needing money for the operation. He said the group then headed north to Dietrich. Baker, who already had a sawed-off shotgun with no stock, and Bennett went to the Conners' house and returned a short time later with more guns, Donabedian said, before the group left for a Twin Falls residence.

Each defendant appeared with a separate attorney at a preliminary hearing in May, each arguing that the Conners could not positively identify any defendant as the two masked individuals who held them at gunpoint.

During other testimony with investigators, the state showed that a search of a Twin Falls residence turned up, among many things, a video camera which had a matching serial number to the one reported by the Conners. It also revealed personal digital images of the Conners.

UI Asks Court for Permission to Release Records

BY TODD DVORAK
Associated Press

BOISE • University of Idaho administrators are asking a state judge to determine if it can legally release the personnel records of a former psychology professor accused of shooting a graduate student before turning the gun on himself last week.

University lawyers filed the request Monday in 2nd District Court for a ruling on the file of Ernesto Bustamante, who resigned his faculty position days before gunning down 22-year-old Kathryn Benoit at her off-campus home in Moscow late Monday.

Bustamante, 31, and Benoit, 22, were dating earlier this year, but she broke off the relationship in May after he threatened her with a gun and vowed to kill her, according to police.

Investigators also said last week that Bustamante, who referred to himself among students as "the beast" and a "psychopathic killer," had six guns and medication for bipolar disorder and severe anxiety among his possessions found in the Moscow hotel where he killed himself.

University officials have been under pressure from Benoit's family and the media to release the contents of Bustamante's personnel file. So far, the university has resisted, citing employee privacy laws.

But the request for declaratory relief filed Monday asks the court to determine if the employee privacy privilege in Idaho Public Records Law applies after the employee dies.

UI lawyer Kent Nelson said the request is unusual because motions for declaratory relief are typically sought after a lawsuit has been filed. Even though no lawsuit has been filed in the case, Nelson said the request shows the university wants to cooperate.

"It's fitting in that we want to provide a timely accounting for the public within the bounds of the law," Nelson said in a statement.

Last week, the police and university released a pair of statements shedding light on the murder-suicide, the relationship and efforts taken by Benoit, the university and police in the months after their breakup.

After the couple split, Benoit alerted school officials that she was becoming increasingly concerned for her safety and filed a sexual harassment complaint with the university on June 12. Bustamante denied the allegations and filed his own complaint against her on July 8, claiming defamation of character.

School officials had contact with Benoit more than a dozen times to discuss the situation and urged her to take safety precautions.

Man Found Dead in Creek Near Fort Hall

FORT HALL • Officials with the Shoshone-Bannock tribes say the body of a 45-year-old Fort Hall man was found in a creek near Fort Hall.

Reservation spokeswoman Laverne Beech identified the man as Clint Ballard. His body was found floating in Spring Creek Sunday night by a family swimming in the creek in the Fort Hall Bottoms area.

Fort Hall Police Chief Pat Tetton says the cause of death is under investigation. An autopsy was planned Monday.

Ballard's car was found about ¼ mile from where his body was found.

T.F. Approves $45.8M Budget

After weeks of cuts and tweaks, the new budget almost doubles city street maintenance funding while keeping property taxes static.

BY NICK COLTRAIN
ncoltrain@magicvalley.com

The Twin Falls City Council passed the city's new budget Monday night without any of the rapid and occasionally contentious cutting that marked the last several weeks of the process.

Several council members expressed their satisfaction with a budget that doesn't raise property taxes but found enough places to cut — including about 10 positions eliminated through hiring freezes and two layoffs — to almost double funding for road maintenance during the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1.

The final budget is about $45.83 million and includes $930,101 for road maintenance. Last year, the city set aside $550,000 for the same budget item, while the budget proposed by City Manager Travis Rothweiler set that line item at $750,000. City Engineer Jackie Fields said the city would need to spend about $1.3 million to put repairs and resurfacing on the optimal eight-year rotation.

"It took us a long time to get here and, in the long term, our roads will be better for it," Fields said.

The council removed a 2.4 percent boost to its general fund that would have brought about $366,000 into the city's coffers, but at the cost of $12 in additional annual property taxes per $150,000 of value.

"I would have liked to take some of that to put into streets, but I am unwell to add additional tax burden to our citizens at this point," Councilman Greg Lanting said.

The money was added to the budget to increase the council's maximum spending cap in case it was needed; there was never widespread support on the council to keep it. Mayor Don Hall did propose adding $5 in property taxes per $150,000 of value, to a community-wide total of $157,000, to help the roads budget hit the $1.3 million mark, but after several community members disparaged the idea at a public hearing, it failed to gain traction, with even Hall abandoning the idea.

Idaho Marriage Rates Near Highest in the Nation

ASSOCIATED PRESS

IDAHO FALLS • New numbers released by the U.S. Census Bureau shows Idaho residents are more likely to get married and more likely to stay that way than their counterparts across the country.

The research published Thursday used data from 2009 to show that Idaho has one of the highest marriage rates in the nation. The marriage rate for men was more than 25 per 1,000, compared to the national average of about 19 per 1,000. The rate for women in Idaho was just over 25 per 1,000, compared to the national average of more than 17.

The Post Register reports that data from the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare's 2009 Vital Statistics report shows that at least one couple exchanged vows on every day of that year.

N. Idaho Teens Screened for Heart Problems

POST FALLS (AP) • More than 220 teens and young adults showed up for a free heart screening courtesy of a program called Straight from the Heart by the Jordan Johnson Foundation.

Turnout at the Post Falls event on Saturday surprised organizer Cyndie (Johnson) Lempesis, whose son Jordan died of sudden cardiac arrest in 2006. The Post Falls student was just 15 years old.

Lempesis told the Coeur d'Alene Press she was thrilled by the numbers and hopes to offer the screening every spring and fall. Besides advising students of any potential heart problems, the data will be used in a University of Washington study on heart problems. Ten of those who attended were advised of abnormalities and told to talk to their doctors for follow-up.

Child Dies, Another Hurt When SUV Slides Into Lake

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) • A 5-year-old Coeur d'Alene boy is dead and his year-old brother is in critical condition after their car slid off a road and plunged into an Idaho lake.

The Kootenai County Sheriff's office says the boys' mother, 25-year-old Sarah Deshazer, was trying to turn their SUV around Sunday afternoon when a wheel went off the road and sent the vehicle went down an embankment into Lake Fernan, just east of Coeur d'Alene.

Spokesman Maj. Ben Wolfinger says in a release that she and her husband, 28-year-old Michael Deshazer, escaped before the SUV sank but could not reach the children before it plunged into 12 feet of murky water.

Firefighters reached the brothers shortly after the 1:45 p.m. accident and began CPR.

Wolfinger says they were rushed to a hospital where the 5-year-old was pronounced dead. The younger child is in critical condition.

Autopsy Confirms Hiker Killed by Bear

BY MATTHEW BROWN
Associated Press

BILLINGS, Mont. • Wildlife agents were trying to capture a grizzly bear in Yellowstone National Park on Monday after it killed a Michigan hiker in the second fatal bear attack this summer at the famed park.

The body of John Wallace, 59, was discovered Friday in a backcountry area known for its high population of bears. An autopsy concluded he died from injuries sustained in a bear attack.

After a fatal mauling last month — the first inside the increasingly crowded park in 25 years — authorities let the responsible grizzly go because it was protecting its cubs.

This time, rangers have set traps with the intent to capture and kill the bruin that attacked Wallace. Its guilt would be established through DNA analysis connecting it to evidence found at the mauling scene, park officials said.

"We know of no witnesses to the attack," park superintendent Dan Wenk said Monday. "We're going to err on the safe side of caution since we'll never really know the circumstances in this case."

The bear that killed Wallace is believed to be a different animal than the one in the July killing.

The earlier mauling occurred about eight miles away from where Wallace's body was found. In that instance, a female bear with cubs attacked a couple from California, killing the man before fleeing.

There were no signs of cubs in the area where Wallace was killed.

Park spokesman Al Nash said the chances of trapping the killer bear are uncertain. A favorite food for some grizzlies, the nuts of white-bark pine trees, became available in the past several days. That typically draws bears to elevations higher than where Wallace was killed, Nash said.

Wallace entered the park alone last Wednesday and pitched a tent in a developed campground, Wenk said.

Authorities said he likely was killed Wednesday or Thursday during a solo hike along the Mary Mountain Trail. The trail is closed from March to June because it passes through an area frequented by grizzlies feeding on the carcasses of bison that died over the winter, park officials said.

LAWN CARE TIPS FOR THE FALL

When the weather starts to get chilly, it is time to look for lawn care tips for the fall. Taking care of your lawn in the fall is essential to your lawns year round health. With proper fall lawn watering, grass seed planting, fertilizing and mowing, your lawn will shine year round.

How high to mow grass in fall

The first step to a health fall lawn is to know how high to mow grass in fall. During the summer months, the grass should be left longer. Once the cool weather has set back in, you can reduce the cutting height to around 2-2 1/2 inches. Any shorter than this, and you will risk killing the grass.

Fall lawn watering

Fall lawn watering is the next component in our lawn care tips for the fall. Normally in the fall, rain fall returns to a decent level. This means that your fall lawn watering needs should be less. Measure the rainfall during the fall months. Make sure that your lawn is getting at least 1 inch of rain a week. If the lawn is not getting at least this much rain a week, supplement with the hose.

Fertilize the lawn in fall

When you fertilize the lawn in fall, you should fertilize once from September to mid-October. After this, the lawn stops taking up nutrients from the soil and prepares for winter. You should fertilize the lawn in fall with a high nitrogen fertilizer. When you fertilize the lawn in fall, your lawn will be better able to survive winter damage and will become greener faster in the spring.

Fall grass seed planting

Fall grass seed planting is an excellent way to fill in the bare spots in your lawn. Typically, fall weather has an ideal about of rain fall and temperatures for grass seed germination. You have two options for fall grass seed planting. You can plant the seeds in September and the grass will germinate and establish this year, or you can plant the seeds after this, and they will stay dormant for the winter and germinate in early spring, when the conditions are ideal as well. The bonus of a late fall grass seed planting is that many of the local birds will have left by then, making the seed less vulnerable to them. Then the winter rain or snow will quickly cover it up until spring.

Follow these lawn care tips for the fall and your lawn will be looking fantastic come next spring!

Bill Peterson, former curator for the Montana Heritage Commission, poses near an antique Gypsy fortune teller machine on July 28 in Virginia City, Mont. The 100-year-old machine that speaks your fortune and may be the last of its kind sat for decades in a Virginia City restaurant and has received multimillion-dollar offers.

Rare find discovered amid Montana gold rush town’s Old West kitsch

BY MATT VOLZ
Associated Press

VIRGINIA CITY, Mont. • The Gypsy sat for decades in a restaurant amid the Old West kitsch that fills this former gold rush town, her unblinking gaze greeting the tourists who shuffled in from the creaking wooden sidewalk outside. Some mistook her for Zoltar, the fortune-telling machine featured in the Tom Hanks movie “Big.” Others took one look at those piercing eyes and got the heebie-jeebies so bad they couldn’t get away fast enough. But until a few years ago, nobody, not even her owner, knew the non-functioning machine gathering dust in Bob’s Place was an undiscovered treasure sitting in plain sight in this ghost town-turned-themed tourist attraction. The 100-year-old fortune teller was an extremely rare find. Instead of dispensing a card like Zoltar, the Gypsy would actually speak your fortune from a hidden record player. When you dropped a nickel in the slot, her eyes would flash, her teeth would chatter and her voice would come floating from a tube extending out of the eight-foot-tall box. Word got out when the Montana Heritage Commission began restoring the Gypsy more than five years ago, and collectors realized the machine was one of two or three “verbal” fortune tellers left in the world. One of those collectors, magician David Copperfield, said he thinks she is even rarer than that. “I think it’s only one of one,” Copperfield said in a recent telephone interview with The Associated Press. Copperfield wanted the Gypsy to be the crown jewel in his collection

Irene’s Toll Jumps to 38; Vt. Towns Battle Flooding

In many cases, the most damage occurred well after storm had passed, as rainwater turned rivers and streams into torrents.

BY WILSON RING

MONTPELIER, Vt. • The full measure of Hurricane Irene’s fury came into focus Monday as the death toll jumped to 38, New England towns battled epic floods and millions faced the dispiriting prospect of several days without electricity. From North Carolina to Maine, communities cleaned up and took stock of the uneven and hard-to-predict costs of a storm that spared the nation’s biggest city a nightmare scenario, only to deliver a historic wallop to towns well inland. In New York City, where people had braced for a disaster-movie scene of water swirling around skyscrapers, the subways and buses were up and running again in time for the Monday morning commute. To the surprise of many New Yorkers, things went pretty smoothly. But in New England, landlocked Vermont contended with what its governor called the worst flooding in a century. Streams also raged out of control in up-state New York. In many cases, the moment of maximum danger arrived well after the storm had passed, as rainwater made its way into rivers and streams and turned them into torrents. Irene dumped up to 11 inches of rain on Vermont and more than 13 in parts of New York. “We were expecting heavy rains,” said Bobbi-Jean Jeun of Clarksville, a hamlet near Albany, N.Y. “We were expecting flooding. We weren’t expecting devastation. It looks like somebody set a bomb off.” Meanwhile, the 11-state death toll, which had stood at 21 as of Sunday night, rose sharply as bodies were

U.S.-Taliban Talks Were Making Headway on Bergdahl Before Afghans Pulled Plug

Clandestine meetings offered tantalizing prospect of brokered agreement between U.S. and the Taliban before published reports ended the talks abruptly, sent negotiator into hiding.

BY KATHY GANNON
and ANNE GEARAN
Associated Press

KABUL, Afghanistan • Direct U.S. talks with the Taliban had evolved to a substantive negotiation before Afghan officials, nervous that the secret and independent talks would undercut President Hamid Karzai, scuttled them, Afghan and U.S. officials told The Associated Press. Featured prominently in the talks was the whereabouts and eventual release of U.S. Army Sgt. Bowe Bergdahl of Hailey, who was captured more than two years ago in eastern Afghanistan, according to a senior Western diplomat in the region and a childhood friend of the Taliban negotiator, Tayyab Aga. The U.S. negotiators asked Aga what could be done to gain Bergdahl’s release. The discussion did not get into specifics but Aga discussed the release of Afghan prisoners at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba and in Afghanistan at Bagram Air Field. Published reports about the clandestine meetings ended the talks abruptly, and sent Aga into hiding. Collapse of the direct talks between Aga and U.S. officials probably spoiled the best chance yet at reaching Mullah Mohammed Omar, considered the linchpin to ending the Taliban fight against the U.S.-backed government in Afghanistan. The contacts were preliminary but had begun to bear fruit, Afghan and U.S. officials said. Perhaps most importantly they offered the tantalizing prospect of a brokered agreement between the U.S. and the Taliban — one that would allow the larger reconciliation of the Taliban in-to Afghanistan political life to move forward. The United States has not committed to any such deal, but the

Gadhafi’s Family Flees to Algeria

BY PATRICK J. MCDONNELL
Los Angeles Times

TRIPOLI, Libya • Members of deposed Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi’s family have fled to neighboring Algeria, the Algerian government said Monday. Algerian state television reported that Gadhafi kin who arrived Monday through a border crossing between the two countries include his wife, Safiyah, his daughter, Aysha, and two of his sons, Hannibal and Mohammed. The group also included an undisclosed number of Gadhafi’s grandchildren, Algeria said. The Algerian government said it had informed both the United Nations and the rebel Transitional National Council that Gadhafi’s relatives had arrived. But there was no answer to a much bigger question: Where was Moammar Gadhafi himself? Rebels have ended Gadhafi’s 42 years in power, occupying his Bab al-Aziziya compound in Tripoli and consolidating control over the capital. But they are keen to capture Gadhafi and put him on trial for crimes committed during his reign. Since rebels moved into the capital a week ago, Gadhafi has been heard several times in broadcasts on loyal media, urging followers and loyal tribes to fight the rebels. A spokesman who has contacted international media insists that Gadhafi still is in Libya. Rumors have swirled about his exact whereabouts. Some had suggested that Gadhafi, too, was in Algeria — a country rebels have accused of assisting him by sending mercenaries. Other unconfirmed reports suggest he has fled to the vicinity of his hometown, Sirte, about 250 miles east of Tripoli. Gadhafi retains substantial support in Sirte, where he liberally bestowed the state’s largesse. Rebels are converging from both east and west on the coastal city of more than 100,000, readying for what could be the bloodiest battle of Libya’s six-month civil war. Rebels say they are hoping to negotiate a surrender of Sirte to avoid more bloodshed, but say they will take it by force if necessary.

pulled from floodwaters and people were electrocuted by downed power lines.

The tally of Irene's destruction mounted, too. An apparently vacant home exploded in an evacuated, flooded area in Pompton Lakes, N.J., early Monday, and firefighters had to battle the flames from a boat. In the Albany, N.Y., suburb of Guilderland, police rescued two people Monday after their car was swept away. Rescuers found them three hours later, clinging to trees along the swollen creek.

"It's going to take time to recover from a storm of this magnitude," President Barack Obama warned as he promised the government would do everything in its power to help people get back on their feet.

For many people, the aftermath could prove more painful than the storm itself.

In North Carolina, where Irene blew ashore along the Outer Banks on Saturday before heading for New York and New England, 1,000 people were still in emergency shelters, awaiting word on their homes.

Gypsy

of turn-of-the-century penny arcade games. It would occupy a place of pride among the magician's mechanized Yacht Race, Temple of Mystery and various machines that tested a person's strength.

Copperfield acknowledged approaching the curators about buying the Gypsy a few years ago but declined to say what he offered. Janna Norby, the Montana Heritage Commission curator who received the call from Copperfield's assistant, said it was in the ballpark of $2 million, along with a proposal to replace it with another fortune-telling machine. On top of that, he pledged to promote Virginia City in advertisements.

But Heritage commission curators, representing the Gypsy's owner — the state of Montana — rejected the idea, saying cashing in on this piece of history would be akin to selling their soul.

"If we start selling our collection for money, what do we have?" said Norby, the commission's former curator of collections.

The commission's acting director, Marilyn Ross echoed

Norby's sentiments: "That is not something we would ever consider, selling off these antiques."

That dismissal has set collectors grumbling. Theo Holstein, a California collector and renovator of such machines, said he thinks the Gypsy is wasted in Virginia City and should be placed in a private collection for proper care. He said he is trying to gather investors to make a $3 million bid that would top Copperfield's offer.

"They don't have any idea what they have. It's like they have the world's best diamond and they just pulled it out of their mineshaft," Holstein said. "It's good that it's there and it survived, but now it really needs to be part of the world."

Holstein said he wouldn't be surprised in the machine ultimately sold for $10 million or more. Copperfield also said he is still interested in purchasing it.

That could put pressure on the state, which, like the rest of the nation, is facing hard fiscal times. Montana's budget is in the black, but keeping the effects of the recession at arm's length has meant deep budget cuts.

Those cuts have hit the Montana Heritage Commission hard. Just weeks after Norby spoke to the AP, her position and three others were eliminated as part of a larger reorganization to cut $400,000 from the commission's budget, Ross said.

The state agency that oversees the commission, meanwhile, is not so quick to reject the idea of selling the Gypsy. Department of Commerce deputy director Andrew Poole said he has not seen any offers in writing, and if one were made, it would go through a bid process that includes the scrutiny of the commission and input from the public.

The state inherited the Gypsy in 1998 when it paid $6.5 million to buy nearly 250 buildings and their contents in Virginia City and nearby Nevada City from the son of Charles Bovey. The Montana collector spent years buying up the buildings to preserve the two crumbling ghost towns and he stocked them with his ever-growing collection of antique games, music machines and oddities.

Bill Peterson, the heritage commission's former curator of interpretation, said the collection includes hundreds of thousands of items, so many that curators are still discovering them.

Afghanistan

Taliban wants security assurances from Washington.

In a series of interviews with diplomats, current and former Taliban, Afghan government officials and a close childhood friend of Aga, the AP learned Aga is hiding in Europe, and is afraid to return to Pakistan fearing reprisals.

The United States has had no direct contact with him for months.

A senior U.S. official acknowledged that the talks imploded because of the leak and that Aga, while alive, had disappeared. The U.S. will continue to pursue talks, the official said. Current and former U.S. officials spoke on condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to discuss the talks.

The U.S. acknowledged the meetings after Karzai, who apparently fears being sidelined by U.S.-Taliban talks, confirmed published accounts about them in June, but has never publicly detailed the content, format or participants.

The first was held in late 2010 followed by at least two other meetings in early spring of this year, the former U.S. official said. The sessions were held in Germany and Qatar, the official said.

Aga's childhood friend, who spoke to the AP on condition he not be identified because he feared retaliation, said Aga was in Germany. A diplomat in the region said Aga fled to a European country after his contacts with the United States were revealed.

The talks were deliberately revealed by someone in the presidential palace, where Karzai's office is located, said a Western and an Afghan official. The reason was Karzai's animosity toward the U.S. and fear that any agreement Washington brokered would undermine his authority, they said.

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

Insurers Drive Stocks Higher

NEW YORK (AP) • So much for Irene. Stocks rose broadly Monday, led by insurance companies, after it became clear that the tropical storm caused far less damage than many had feared. An increase in U.S. consumer spending also helped, as did as did a rare piece of good news from Greece: a merger of two major banks.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 254.71 points, or 2.3 percent, to close at 11,539.25. It is now down just 0.3 percent for the year. It had been down as much as 7.4 percent for the year on Aug. 10.

The Standard & Poor's 500 index rose 33.28 points, or 2.8 percent, to 1,210.08. The widely used market benchmark is now up 8.1 percent since on Aug. 8, when it hit low for the year because of a downgrade of the U.S. government's credit rating.

Damage From Irene Appears to be Less Than Feared

WASHINGTON • Insured damage from Irene will range between $2 billion and $3 billion, and the total losses will likely be about $7 billion, according to preliminary estimates by Kinetic Analysis Corp., a consulting firm. Both figures are less than had been feared. Still, the long-term costs of Irene will likely grow as storm-ravaged areas deal with lost business, insurance claims, dislocated workers and transportation disruptions — costs that will take months to fully calculate.

The preliminary estimate from Kinetic Analysis, based in Silver Spring, Md., suggests that Irene will have caused far less insured damage than the $6 billion the industry paid out after Hurricane Isabel struck the East Coast in 2003.

Grass Fuels Organic Dairy

A Hollister dairyman uses a vast network of interlocking pastures to monitor what goes into the cows that make his organic dairy run.

BY CINDY SNYDER
For the Times-News

HOLLISTER • It's past 10 a.m. as cows ready to move to their new pasture mill impatiently through a delay in their routine.

But Sean Mallett, one of the owners of Nature's Harmony Organic Dairy, wants to demonstrate how easy it is to move dairy cows from one paddock to another in an intensive grazing management system. First, he explains to a group of more than 50 visitors how he began organizing pastures and the barn at his dairy near Hollister five years ago.

It's all part of a tour held last Thursday to show how strict grazing requirements for organic dairies are met, and how they benefit both producers and cattle. But the cows are only interested in their new pasture, and as Mallett finally lets loose a wire gate, about 500 of them move to a fresh paddock in less than three minutes.

"Even if we were a conventional dairy, I would still graze," Mallett said. "I love what it does for the cows."

The layout of Mallett's dairy conforms to rules that at the time were pending for organic dairies but didn't go into effect until this year.

Mallett — along with his stepfather and mother, John and Susan Reitsma — bought the former hog farm in 2005, intent to use it as a heifer feeding facility. But Mallett's research showed the site had potential for organic dairy use.

In 2006, they began planting a pasture mix of alfalfa, perennial rye, fescue and orchard grass. Lately, white clover has been added to the mix. According to pasture rules for organic production, animals must graze pasture at least 120 days per year. Animals must also take in a minimum of 30 percent dry matter from grazing pasture.

"We knew in 2006 that the pasture rules that went into effect this year were coming," Mallett said. "We Ford's profits for the first half of the year • Workers at a Ford Motor Co. plant near Kansas City, Mo., have voted to let their union leaders call a strike against the company. The vote doesn't necessarily mean that there is a strike. Because Ford is now making money, UAW President Bob King says workers should share in the newfound profits. But at the same time, he says companies must have labor costs that are competitive with Asian rivals, mainly Honda Motor Co. and Toyota Motor Corp. King said one priority for the union is raising the pay of entry-level workers. Those workers make $14 an hour, or half the pay of legacy.

wanted to exceed them."

Because they had the luxury of starting the dairy from essentially bare ground, the owners located the milking barn as close to the plot's middle as possible. Pastures were seeded near the barn, and gravel lanes allow cows easy pasture access.

Cows graze paddocks of 3 or 6 acres for between 12-24 hours before they're moved to the next section. Each paddock is rested for about 30 days before it is grazed again.

A 35-acre feed yard is about a half mile from the milking barn, different from most conventional dairies that locate the feed yard closer. Mallett said he's willing to spend a bit more to move feed than to force cows to walk longer distances.

"The farther the cows walk, the more energy they burn and the less milk they produce," he said.

Some Idaho Banks Fall Behind on TARP Payments

Operator of Magic Valley Bank locations has missed six payments for money borrowed from the U.S. Treasury during the financial crisis.

BOISE • Three Idaho bank companies have fallen behind on their payments to the U.S. Treasury for money borrowed under the Troubled Asset Relief Program set up by the federal government to help banks at the height of the nation's financial crisis.

The Idaho Statesman reports that holding companies for Syringa Bank, Intermountain Community Bank and Idaho Banking Co. still owe a combined $3.5 million for past-due TARP payments. U.S. Treasury observers are also attending board meetings of the holding companies for Syringa Bank and Idaho Banking Co.

Delayed payments to the program offer evidence that four years after the onset of the recession and three years after the nation's financial sector fell into disarray, some Idaho banks are still struggling.

"It's a challenge for right now," Scott Gibson, Syringa's president and CEO, told the Statesman.

The three banks with delayed TARP payments are not the only Idaho banks struggling in the wake of loan defaults and the collapse of the home and commercial real estate market that began to hit the state in late 2007. Syringa and Idaho Banking Co. are among six banks operating in the state under orders by government regulators to build up their cash reserves and shed troubled loans.

The recession also claimed as a victim one bank, the Ketchum-based First Bank of Idaho, which was shut down by the U.S. Office of Thrift Supervision in 2009.

Despite the ongoing challenges, many Idaho banking officials say they see a brighter future than a year ago. Investors have put $1.4 billion into banks operating in the state in the past 18 months, and more banks have managed to erase some of the red ink in their financial statements by resolving troubled loans.

Because Idaho Banking Co. and Syringa are under regulatory orders to increase their capital, they're actually prohibited from paying dividends to shareholders without permission of regulators, according to state banking regulators.

"We don't want them divvending their shareholders money that would strengthen capital," said Gavin Gee, director of Idaho's Department of Finance, which regulates state-chartered banks like Intermountain, Idaho Banking Co. and Syringa. "Once they are able to raise capital ... obviously they can pay dividends."

Intermountain Bancorp — which operates three Magic Valley Bank locations in south-central Idaho — has missed six payments, but Treasury has not asked to send an observer, bank officials say. The holding company says it is permitted to defer payments, and the company has accounted for the money it owes in its financial statements, although it hasn't yet made the payments.

TIMES-NEWS magicvalley.com

Reporter

South-central Idaho's best and largest news provide seeks a reporter to dig deep into the intersection of people and policy to consistently bring our readers the stories they'll keep talking about.

The beat is an eight-county area from which the right candidate will sniff out the best stories from both rural and urban settings. Tasks will range from rooting out the reasons behind utility increases that hit thousands of pocketbooks to profiling a thinning group of Pearl Harbor attack survivors who call the area home.

The ideal candidate will be equal parts humanist, self-promoter and policy wonk, able to hold court with county prosecutors and rodeo queens alike. Desk jockeys should look elsewhere, as success here will be won with many handshakes and the ideas gleaned afterno through a slew of phone calls.

The reporter's primary responsibility will be to find and develop six snappy enterprise stories per week and pitch in on other beats when needed, such as when our government reporter is covering the annual state legislative session in Boise.

Twin Falls is home to 44,000 residents and serves as the cultural and economic hub of south-central Idaho. Year-round outdoor recreation abounds, both in the Snake River Canyon and in the surrounding mountains. You'll work with a vibrant, growing group of journalists committed to producing Idaho's best news product.

Competitive candidates should have a bachelor's degree in journalism or a related field. Prior journalism experience is preferred. Twin Falls, TFMR. . . . . 735-3241

Gooding, Jerome, Filer, Buhl, Wendell. 735-3346

DEAR ABBY: “Insulted in Ohio” (July 9) was offended because she’s being asked at bridal and baby showers to address a blank envelope so the honoree can send her a thank-you note. Good heavens, lady, calm down.

At a shower, you are celebrating a milestone event in a young woman’s life. Your gift will help her during the next phase of her life. These joyous events can be stressful and require a lot of preparation. I’m sure the hostess’s intent in asking guests to perform this minor task is to ease the honoree’s responsibilities. It also ensures the addresses appear correctly on the envelopes and everyone is accounted for on the gift list. Is that really so “insulting”? “Ohio,” if you feel so imposed-upon being asked to do such a simple thing, may I offer a suggestion? Gift the honoree with your “regrets” and leave your judgmental attitude at home. (I’ll bet you count the days until you’re thanked, too.)

NACOGDOCHES, TEX

DEAR GAIL: Thank-you notes are a hot-button issue with my readers, and frankly, I am surprised more of you didn’t stick up for “Insulted.” However, I stand firm in my conviction that the more personal the thank-you note (including the envelope), the better. My newspaper readers comment:

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: With the advent of email, social networking and online invitation sites, mailing addresses are used less often. I’d be hard-pressed to find the street addresses of some of my closest friends and relatives. As part of the younger generation, I’m more comfortable with email. If I were hosting one of these events, I’d have to kindly ask guests to write down their addresses for me to use later for thank-yous. And because it’s being done on paper, it might as well be on the envelopes — a practical, time-saving solution.

— JENNY IN

QUEBEC, CANADA

DEAR ABBY: I’m also from Ohio, and I was insulted, too. It appalled me being asked to address my own future thank-you envelope. And would you like to know the kicker? I never received the envelope or a thank-you after the shower.

— CARLA T.

DEAR ABBY: While the practice does seem a little over the top, there are creative alternatives. At a baby shower, my sisters gave everyone index cards and asked them to write down their name and address and guess the baby’s birth weight and length. The guest who came closest would be mailed a prize. It was a way to ensure I had everyone’s address for thank-you cards. At bridal showers, a blank address book can be passed around for guests to write their contact information. The book is then presented to the bride for her new home.

— MELANIE IN THE MIDWEST

DEAR ABBY: To save a busy bride or mother-to-be time and effort, addressing my envelope is another “gift” I can give her. All the envelopes could then be placed in a basket, with one being drawn for the “door prize.”

— LYNN IN DULUTH, MINN.

DEAR ABBY: “Insulted” could take one of her return address stickers with her to the shower and place it on the envelope provided. It’s less work. This new party ritual is not the result of poor manners, but a logical change for changing times.

— NOT A WHINER
DOWN SOUTH

DEAR ABBY: The personal message the gift recipient writes on the card is more important than who might have addressed the envelope it came in.

— ARLENE IN NEW YORK

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

*“The chest contrived a double debt to pay;
A bed at night, a chest of drawers by day.”*

— Oliver Goldsmith

Today is two-fer Tuesday: you get two problems from the same deal. Looking only at the North and South cards, you have to decide how you would play six no-trump, and also how you would declare seven no-trump.

On the lead of the heart jack, the only suit in which you appear to have flexibility is clubs. In seven no-trump you need precisely four tricks from the suit. What are the options?

A somewhat simplistic approach is to stick with the adage “Eight ever, nine never” and take the club finesse by cashing the club king and leading to the jack. So far so good — but that does not cover all the bases, in that it copes adequately only with the 3-2 breaks where the finesse works. But are there any 4-1 breaks you can cope with? Only the specific one shown here, where the bare club queen is onside. To negotiate that lie of the cards, you must start by taking the immediate finesse of the jack, but changing plans when the queen appears. You play dummy’s ace, then cash the jack, and next finesse your nine.

In six no-trump you need take only three club tricks. Here you also start by cashing the ace, but if no honors appear, you lead next to the nine. If East shows out on the second round, you can change plans, putting up the king and playing back to the jack. This line insures three tricks against any lie of the cards.

ANSWER: You decided not to overcall two no-trump because you were a little too strong. You should see your plan through by now bidding two no-trump, which here suggests 18-20 or so. Do not be put off by having only one heart stopper. One guard rates to be sufficient here when the player with the long suit has a weak hand.

IF AUGUST 30 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: True romance may knock on your door in October, but if a job or career move is needed, an opportunity to make progress on the material level may appear as well. Others may be dazzled by your talents in the 12 months ahead. Your sparkle and pizzazz are turned to “high” for much of the year — but especially in December, when your tenacity will win you the domination over circumstances you seek. Take advantage of helpful stars to promote your own interests in February by asking for a raise or applying for that better job you deserve. Go ahead and wish upon a star, as you will certainly have your important wishes granted.

HOROSCOPE Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): The established norms are irksome. Routines and responsibilities stifle your ingenuity and creativity. Bypass and ignore people who doubt you, criticize you, or are just plain unpleasant and arrogant.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Someone might lure you with loads of love and attention. You might be a wee bit suspicious of flattery and attention from a potential heartthrob, but you will discover the truth of the matter.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Ride high on a bubble of enthusiasm as long as you don't neglect mundane tasks. Get your name on a list of donors to a good cause as it makes good business sense and also makes you feel good.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): This year, you won't find a bird in last year's nest. Just because something worked well in the past does not mean that it will bring anything but frustration. Don't beat your head against wall.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): It could be a case of too many cooks spoiling the broth. Put your “I'm in charge” attitude aside and delegate as well as relegate authority. Success is achieved when everyone is willing to cooperate.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Get what you need and need what you get. If you need a helping hand, advice or support, this is the time to find it. Enthusiastic friends may urge you to dive right into a new project or accept a proposal.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Kindness counts. There may be several worthy causes that clamor for your support or people who are aggravating that need reassurance rather than a reprimand. Don't put all your eggs in one basket.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Follow the safe path and you won't slide off in a ditch. Sometimes unusual or untried ideas are untried for a reason, and not every time is the right time to blaze a new trail. Stick to solid ground in your efforts this week.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Use

Colts Activate Peyton, Opener Status Unclear

Move allows star QB to play in opener, but Manning’s availability far from resolved.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS • The Colts activated Peyton Manning from the physically unable to perform list Monday, clearing the way for the four-time MVP to play early in the season.

The team said Manning will participate in practice on a limited basis on a “scripted” and controlled basis as he continues to recover from neck surgery in May.

It’s not clear whether Manning will be ready for the Sept. 11 opener at Houston. Manning has already ruled himself out of Thursday night’s preseason finale at Cincinnati.

Manning has started 227 consecutive games, including the playoffs, the second-longest streak in NFL history for quarterbacks behind Brett Favre.

Indy’s franchise quarterback had been on PUP since practice began Aug. 1. League rules require players on the physically unable to perform list to be activated by the team’s final cuts, on Sept. 3, or sit out an additional six weeks. That wasn’t something the Colts were going to do.

The surgery was expected to keep Manning off the field for six to eight weeks. But the recovery has gone slower than expected, and Manning in part blamed the 4 1/2-month lockout that kept him away from the team’s trainers.

With Manning ailing, the Colts have been refining backup plans. They signed veteran backup Kerry Collins to go along with Curtis Painter, Dan Orlovsky and rookie Mike Hartline. Five-time Pro Bowl receiver Reggie Wayne said he believes Painter gives Indy the best chance at winning if Manning is not ready to start the season. Painter made his statement Friday by going 11 of 21 for 171 yards with two TD passes, and nearly led the Colts to their first preseason win in more than two years.

Petersen, Payback Don’t Mix For BSU

Blowout 2005 loss to Georgia isn’t a motivational factor for then-offensive coordinator.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOISE • Boise State coach Chris Petersen says redemption is far from his mind as the No. 5 Broncos prepare for Georgia.

But who could blame him if payback didn’t play even a small role in his motivation for the rematch with the 19th ranked Bulldogs.

Georgia thumped the Broncos 48-13 the last time the two teams met in 2005. At the time, Petersen was the offensive coordinator and Boise State was a small conference upstart, ranked for the first time in the preseason polls and looking for respect against a Southeastern Conference powerhouse.

Broncos fans may be yearning for some kind of revenge, but Petersen says the ugly and humiliating loss that unfolded at Athens six years ago has nothing to do with the team playing on the national stage in the Georgia Dome on Saturday.

“I’ve talked about it to our team, but it’s not something ... they don’t have anything to do with that,” Petersen said Monday. “I had something to do with

Magic Valley participated, but no other Great Basin Conference teams were involved.

“Every week the coaches would let me know it they were going to attend and I would set up the pool play,” said Jerome coach Hannah Clark. “Then I would e-mail out the schedule according to their RSVPs.”

To cut down costs, the teams helped officiate.

“We didn’t want to charge (a fee),” Clark said. “No matter what class the teams were, they were all invited. The girls needed more playing experience. The coaches liked it because the teams got more experience against other teams as opposed to open gym. And the girls had fun.”

The competition was great and at the same time, the teams were able to work on developing their competitive volleyball skills and abilities as well as build team unity. Teams were able to practice offensive and defensive systems and spend time on team-related skill improvements.

Another preseason activity in which the Jerome team took part was a four-day team camp in July sponsored by the Northwest Nazarene University volleyball program in Nampa. The camp’s sessions were led by NNU coaches, and

Sharapova’s Rally Is A Scream

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • Trailing big in the first round of the U.S. Open, Maria Sharapova thought — well, no, she was certain — that she’d pull through if she could push her inexperienced opponent to a third set.

And Sharapova was right.

Shrieking as loudly as ever, Sharapova came back from a set and a break down against 19-year-old Heather Watson of Britain to win 3-6, 7-5, 6-3 on Monday, improving to 12-0 this year in matches that went the distance.

“It’s just a matter of belief within myself, that no matter how well or bad or good I’m playing, or my opponent is playing, I know I can tough it out,” the No. 3-seeded Sharapova said after her 2½-hour victory. “No matter what the situation is, I have the belief.”

That self-confidence comes not merely from her success in three-setters this season, but also from three Grand Slam titles, including the 2006 U.S. Open. It’s the sort of track record the

RUPERT • Minico's 4-0 win over Canyon Ridge on Monday was to send a message. "We proved that we can play with the big boys," said Minico senior captain Eduardo Lopez. It's still early in the season, but the Spartan players were aware that Canyon Ridge had beaten District V power Century – a team Minico lost to. With that extra motivation, the Spartans (3-1) handed Canyon Ridge (4-1) its first loss in convincing fashion. "We started (the season) slow," Lopez said. "Before, our passing was sloppy. After we lost to Century we started practicing passing and it has improved a lot." Lopez's free kick in the 22nd minute sailed to the far post where Edgar Tapia was in position to punch it in for Minico's first goal. "I know my players. I was telling my players to go to second post and I knew he was going there and I waited for it," Tapia said. Tapia and Enock Coats each scored on penalty kicks, and Lopez added a goal of his own. The win moved Minico to 2-0 in Great Basin Conference play as the Spartans host Twin Falls on Wednesday. "This season we have a chance to go to state. We believe that. We have the team to go there," Tapia said.

the teams were grouped by ability level for practice and tournament play. It also was an opportunity for teams to get a jump on the 2011 season with training and team bonding. "The summer league was fun and there wasn't a lot of pressure," said Jerome senior team captain Melissa Leavitt. "Since this is a different team this year, we got to know each other on the court and how we each play. The team camp was definitely a week well spent. We learned a lot as a team and it will give us a head start on practices. We developed better team bonding just knowing you can trust your teammate. We just got better." Senior Frankie Carey agreed with Leavitt's assessment. "The summer league allowed the team more playing time together," said Carey, also one of Jerome's team captains. "It was fun because the team could play more relaxed. The camp gave us all an outside perspective of where we want and need to go. It put us (as a team) more on the same page and set our eyes on the same goals. It showed us how to focus on working hard and carrying an intensity into practice."

Glenns Ferry Opens In Style

STAFF REPORTS

Ask anyone who plays a team sport. It's not often that any coach is heavy with the superlatives after the opening game. You would get a different response up at Glenns Ferry about the girls volleyball team, which cruised past Hansen 25-17, 26-24, 25-20 in its season opener. "It didn't matter who was on the court," Pilots coach Jolinda Solosabal said. "Even my second-string players, when they were out there played just as hard as my first team. It was wonderful." Jessica Cook had 19 assists and Jacqueline Brennan had 11 kills and eight blocks for the Pilots. Michaela Turner added 15 service points and Jarika Hedelius had a nice all-around game with five kills and three aces. For Hansen, Connilyn Hursh had five kills.

Report: Aggies Tell Big 12 Of Plans To Leave

ASSOCIATED PRESS

COLLEGE STATION, Texas • Texas A&M has notified the Big 12 it will withdraw from the conference, according to a newspaper report. The New York Times said in a story posted on its website Monday night that Texas A&M President R. Bowen Loftin sent a letter to Missouri Chancellor and Big 12 board chairman Brady Deaton to inform the league it was leaving. The report cited two unidentified college officials with direct knowledge of the decision. University spokesman Jason Cook did not immediately respond to an email seeking comment late Monday night. Texas A&M's departure would cast doubt on the future of the Big 12 and could lead to more major changes to college athletics. The university said earlier Monday it had received a letter from Big 12 Commissioner Dan Beebe outlining the withdrawal procedure should the Aggies decide to leave the league. Cook said the letter "outlines the withdrawal procedures according to the financial provisions of the Big 12 bylaws and mutual waivers of legal claims." He wouldn't provide any other details of the letter or comment on what A&M's next step might be.

The Aggies are interested in joining the Southeastern Conference and the dueling letters come less than a week after they formally told Beebe they are exploring their options and asked for the conference to outline the process if they decide to leave. The league's board of directors addressed the possible departure of the Aggies this weekend. "I certainly appreciate the discussion among the Big 12 presidents/chancellors and the expression of their desire for Texas A&M to remain in the conference," Loftin said in a statement issued before The New York Times report. "We all agree that Texas

A&M is an extremely valuable institution; thus, it is incumbent upon me, as the president of the university, to ensure that we are in a position to enhance our national visibility and future financial opportunity." Loftin added this is a "complex and long-term decision," but "it is not our intent to prolong our conference exploration for an extended period of time." The SEC said earlier this month it was happy with its current 12-school membership but left the door open to expansion. Loftin then received authority from the board of regents to take any action he deems necessary in terms of realignment.

Jets Beat N.Y. Housemates in Ugly Affair, 17-3

ASSOCIATED PRESS

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. • The preseason braggin' rights for the New York metropolitan area belong to the Jets, although neither Rex Ryan's team nor the Giants have much to be happy about. Mark Sanchez threw a 17-yard touchdown pass to Santonio Holmes and the Jets capitalized on two big special teams plays in 17-3 victory Monday night in a preseason game delayed two days by Hurricane Irene's devastating march up the East Coast. Bilal Powell had a 1-yard TD run in the fourth quarter and the Jets defense intercepted Eli Manning twice in what probably will be the last major warmup for both teams' starters before the regular season. The Jets (2-1) will face the Eagles here Thursday. The Giants (1-2) finish their preseason at New England, also on Thursday.

Broncos

head coach Dan Hawkins benched quarterback Jared Zabransky in the second half. The Bulldogs led 38-0 before Boise State got on the board. For Petersen, who has compiled a 61-5 record since taking the helm in 2006, the defeat was one of the most painful since his arrival on campus 10 years ago. "We didn't even have a chance, didn't even get out of the gate. It was over before it even started," Petersen said. "So it'd be nice not to recreate that scene for sure." Recent history suggests the Broncos stand a better chance this time around. The Broncos are no strangers to high profile games, having won two Fiesta Bowls and last season's nationally televised opener over Virginia Tech. The defensive line, which helped the Broncos boast one of the stingiest units a year ago, has four seniors returning. The offensive line is anchored by two-time all-Western Athletic Conference tackle Nate Potter and senior center Thomas Byrd. The offensive backfield features seniors Doug Martin, who rushed for 1,260 yards last year, and D.J. Harper, who returns from a season-ending knee injury. The Broncos also have Kellen Moore back under center for the fourth straight year. Moore is one of the nation's most efficient passers and has engineered Boise State's transformation from a program looking for respect to one that has now earned it. Boise State's No. 5 ranking in the preseason poll is the highest in school history and this year marks its first as a member of the Mountain West Conference. "I think we're better in certain places," Petersen said, drawing a contrast between his current squad and the 2005 version. "We had some good players then. But at certain places now maybe we're maybe just as inexperienced as we were back then. But hopefully the guys handle it, go out and compete and play good football."

Injury Sidelines BSU's Johnson

BOISE • Boise State coach Chris Petersen says running back Malcolm Johnson will miss the entire season after tearing an ACL during no-contact drills. Johnson was having a strong fall camp and was poised to be the No. 3 running back for the Broncos, behind Doug Martin and D.J. Harper. Johnson, who returned to the team after being declared academically ineligible last year, also was expected to play a big role on special teams. Petersen says the injury is the only significant injury setback as the No. 5 Broncos prepare for Saturday's season opener against No. 19 Georgia. Petersen says it's disappointing because Johnson returned to campus in great shape and with a great attitude.

Harrison's Open Ends Quickly

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • Ryan Harrison's second U.S. Open ended before the tournament really got going.

"It's obviously pretty disappointing to be out of here when half the people haven't even arrived yet with the hurricane," the 19-year-old American said.

Harrison lost 6-2, 7-5, 7-6 (6) to 27th-seeded Marin Cilic in Monday's opening match in Louis Armstrong Stadium, with many fans delayed by the aftereffects of Hurricane Irene.

Harrison had chances to serve out both the second and third sets but was broken each time. He squandered a 4-1 lead in the third-set tiebreaker.

"I felt terrible from the first point till the last point the way I was hitting the ball," he said. "So to think that I served for two sets against a guy who is such an established player as him, there are a lot of positives I can take from it."

SISTER, SISTER • Agnieszka Radwanska succinctly summed up playing her younger sister in the first round of the U.S. Open: "It sucks."

She and Urszula were stunned and saddened to learn that the draw had them facing each other in their opening matches at the year's last Grand Slam tournament. Agnieszka, the No. 12 seed, won 6-2, 6-3 on Monday. At 22, she's 21 months older.

"It's so hard to play a serious match," she said.

The Polish sisters had faced off twice previously, both in 2009, splitting the matches. One of Urszula's two wins over top-15 players came against Agnieszka.

Ranked 114th, Urszula reached the Open main draw through qualifying.

"We're best friends off the court," she said.

Sister acts have become common over the past decade at Grand Slam tournaments with Serena and Venus Williams, though much later in the bracket. The last non-Williams sisterly matchup was between Katerina and Magdalena Maleeva in the fourth round of the 1993 U.S. Open.

FISH FUN • Mardy Fish feels as though he's playing with house money.

That's how he describes the unprecedented success that led to him being the highest-seeded American at the U.S. Open for the first time.

"I'm having a ton of fun with it," Fish said Monday after certainly looking the part in his first-round match.

Seeded eighth, he beat Germany's Tobias Kamke 6-2, 6-2, 6-1 in an hour, 43 minutes.

"I just would never have imagined two years ago, in 2009, not even having to come back here to be in this position," he said.

Open

102nd-ranked Watson hopes to have one day; Monday's match was only her fifth at a major tournament.

Sharapova won six Grand Slam matches at Wimbledon alone this summer, reaching the final there before losing to Petra Kvitova. Fresh off that triumph, Kvitova — a 21-year-old from the Czech Republic seeded No. 5 in Flushing Meadows — failed to follow it up, flopping at the U.S. Open with a 7-6 (3), 6-3 loss to 48th-ranked Alexandra Dulgheru of Romania.

Kvitova is the first reigning Wimbledon women's champion to lose her first match at the U.S. Open in the same season. Only three times had the Wimbledon winner bowed out as early as the third round in New York: Sharapova in 2004, Conchita Martinez in 1994, and Billie Jean King in 1973.

"This is something new for me," Kvitova said about her new status as Grand Slam champion. "I've felt a little pressure."

She was the only seeded woman to exit on Day 1 of the year's last major tournament, joined on the way out by No. 15 Viktor Troicki of Serbia, a 3-6, 6-3, 4-6, 7-5, 7-5 loser against Alejandro Falla of Colombia.

At night, 2000-01 U.S. Open champion Venus Williams played her first match in two months and beat 91st-ranked Vesna Dolonts of Russia 6-4, 6-3. Williams hit six aces and 28 total winners against the weary Dolonts, who left Moscow at 4 a.m. EDT and arrived at the Billie Jean King National Tennis Center at 4 p.m., after having flights canceled Saturday and Sunday because of Tropical Storm Irene.

"My game is built on my serve, and of course, I like to follow it up with a lot of aggressive play," said Williams, who pulled out of recent tuneup tournaments because of a virus. "And it's great to see a lot of those balls land in."

In the day's last match in Arthur Ashe Stadium, 16-time major winner Roger Federer was to face 54th-ranked Santiago Giraldo of Colombia.

Early winners included No. 8 Mardy Fish, who played his first U.S. Open match as the top-seeded American and beat Tobias Kamke 6-2, 6-2, 6-1; No. 9 Tomas Berdych, the 2010 Wimbledon runner-up; No. 13 Richard Gasquet; No. 22 Alexandr Dolgoplov; and No. 27 Marin Cilic, who eliminated 19-year-old American Ryan Harrison 6-2, 7-5, 7-6 (6).

"This is extremely different for me," Fish said, "this feeling coming out here and trying to show everything you can, to show you're the No. 1 guy, at least for this tournament. It's been a lot of fun."

Advancing along with Sharapova to the second round were No. 2 Vera Zvonareva, a finalist last year at Wimbledon and the U.S. Open; 16-year-old Madison Keys of Boca Raton, Fla. — the youngest and, at 45th, lowest-ranked woman in the draw — who beat 37-year-old Jill Craybas 6-2, 6-4; and No. 12 Agnieszka Radwanska of Poland, who beat her younger sister Urszula Radwanska 6-2, 6-3.

But surprise 2009 U.S. Open quarterfinalist Melanie Oudin of Marietta, Ga., lost 6-0, 7-6 (7) to Romina Oprandi of Italy, falling to 9-29 in 2011.

Sharapova was one of the seeded players Oudin stunned during her run two years ago, and for a little more than a set Monday, Watson seemed quite capable of registering another significant surprise.

Scrambling along the baseline to get to nearly every ball, Watson forced Sharapova to hit extra shots in order to win a point. And Sharapova, who said she wasn't able to practice enough over the weekend because of Tropical Storm Irene, kept missing.

"There's no doubt that I wasn't playing my best tennis," said Sharapova, who finished with a whopping 58 unforced errors, nearly twice as many as Watson. "She was smart in making me hit another ball. I was making so many errors out there. She stuck to her game plan; she kept grinding."

Garcia's Return Lifts Yankees

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BALTIMORE • Freddy Garcia returned from the disabled list to pitch six innings of two-hit ball, Nick Swisher homered and the New York Yankees beat the Baltimore Orioles 3-2 Monday night.

It was New York's second straight win without third baseman Alex Rodriguez and shortstop Derek Jeter. Rodriguez will join the team in Boston on Tuesday after getting an MRI on his sore left thumb in New York, and Jeter rested a bruised right knee but was available "in case of an emergency," manager Joe Girardi said.

Athletics 2, Indians 1

CLEVELAND • Carlos Santana homered and David Huff and four relievers combined to limit the Athletics to five hits.

Royals 9, Tigers 5

DETROIT — Salvador Perez and Alcides Escobar hit back-to-back homers in Kansas City's victory.

Alex Gordon also homered and Johnny Giavotella added a bases-loaded double for the Royals, who came in 18½ games behind Central Division leaders.

Blue Jays beat the Rays to avoid a four-game sweep.

White Sox 3, Twins 0

CHICAGO • Mark Buehrle pitched four-hit ball into the eighth inning and Tyler Flowers drove in two runs.

The White Sox improved to two games above .500 for the first time since April 13. They also moved within five games of the AL Central-leading Detroit Tigers.

Mets 5-2, Marlins 1-1

NEW YORK • Dillon Gee rebounded from a wretched start and the New York Mets, back on the field following a two-day break because of Hurricane Irene, finished off a sweep.

R.A. Dickey shut down the sluggish Marlins in the opener, pitching seven spotless innings

Phillies 3, Reds 2

CINCINNATI • Shane Victorino hit a tiebreaking, two-run homer in the eighth inning, and Cole Hamels was solid in his return from the disabled list.

Astros 7, Pirates 4

HOUSTON • Carlos Lee hit a tiebreaking three-run homer in the seventh inning, Wandy Rodriguez struck out a career-high 13 and the Astros rallied.
