BLAZE NEAR WENDELL SCORCHES 5,000 ACRES

Human-caused: BLM officials suspect the fire was started by people.

WENDELL • A human-caused wild-fire scorched nearly 5,000 acres north of Wendell on Thursday afternoon.

The fire — called the Highway 46, Mile Marker 103 Fire — ignited at 1:33 p.m., the U.S. Bureau of Land Management said. Deemed human-caused, the blaze remains under investigation.

At nearly 5 p.m., nearly 5,000 state, private and public acres were charred. No structures were burned or threatened by 6 p.m. Thursday, the BLM said. Officials expect the fire to be contained by 6 p.m. today. However, there was no estimate yet for when the fire will be fully extinguished.

While no buildings were damaged, multiple junked vehicles were charred at L&L Classic Auto in Wendell, a salvage yard located along Idaho Highway 46. Firefighters devoted their efforts to extinguish blazes in old autos at the yard that also caught fire last September.

It was unclear late Thursday if the blaze began in the salvage yard or elsewhere.

The fire's smoke was enormous, visible even to people attending the Twin Falls County Fair in Filer.

Two air attack aircraft, three single-engine air tankers, three heavy air tankers, a lead plane, and three choppers aided ground crews that battled the fire line with 11 engines and two dozers, the BLM said. The aircraft flew toward clouds of smoke so thick that it seemed to swallow the airplanes and helicopters up at times.

Kevin Andrews, who farms in rural Gooding County, saw the smoke and drove from the fair to see where the blaze was located.

Hospital Mergers: A Result of Health Reform?

The proposal to merge St. Benedicts in Jerome with St. Luke's Health System is not the only recent hospital deal driven by federal reforms.

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

Hospital mergers are the latest trend in health care.

But far from a passing fad, the number of mergers and acquisitions are expected to rise as health systems adjust to the federal health care reform.

Locally, St. Benedicts Family Medical Center in Jerome announced last week it was discussing joining with St. Luke's Health System. Many of the details of the deal have not been released, but one of the reasons spurring the merger is health care reform.

"For St. Luke's, acquiring St. Ben's has everything to do with reform," said David Pate, chief executive officer of St. Luke's Health System.

Under the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act, health care systems will be required to reduce costs and improve their quality of patient care. However, this becomes difficult when hospitals face expensive technological upgrades paired with shrinking private and public reimbursements.

To find new ways to bear the costs, independent hospitals have increasingly signed on with larger health systems in the past year.

There were 27 merger deals across the nation in the second quarter of 2011, up from nine for those months of 2010, according to Irving Levin Associates, a health care industry merger and acquisition data publisher.

Partnering with a larger hospital affords providers more resources and distributes costs across both entities.

Downtown Nightlife? You Bet.

Sit beside Twin Falls' Main Avenue on a Friday or Saturday night, and you'll hear plenty of pounding bass and laughter from teenagers. That hasn't always been the case. But with a new dance floor at Charlie's Food Store, a fledgling hookah lounge and a new dance club over Radio Rondevoo, downtown Twin Falls is looking a little younger lately. Read the full story on E1.

Beneath the fair's all-too-familiar sounds of carnival rides in motion, sizzling elephant ears and prize heifers mooing, those who listen closely can hear something else.

It's the sound of informal political discourse at the Twin Falls County Fair. This friendly banter and conversation unfolds in places where opinions are welcomed from people of all political stripes.

At the political party booths, Magic Valley residents chat to share common interests, or, alternatively, explain why they're Democrats instead of Republicans or vice versa. In today's age of increasingly shrill and partisan national politics, the discourse at the fair offers

He said his uncle, Larry Harms, is owner of L&L, which has been located in Wendell for decades. Harms, who was busy tending to the fire's damage, wasn't immediately available.

The Idaho Department of Environmental Quality on Thursday sent out an advisory telling area residents that there's no significant health threat from the "tire pile fire," but advising residents to avoid breathing in smoke just the same.

Besides the BLM, agencies that assisted in battling the blaze included Wendell, Gooding and Hagerman rural fire departments.

Separately, BLM responded to a smaller fire on Thursday just a little ways east.

The fire, north of Interstate 84 off of Devil's Corral in Jerome County, was estimated at 50 acres at 6 p.m., said Heather Tiel-Nelson, spokeswoman for the BLM.

Three engines and aircraft were sent to that blaze.

a friendlier alternative.

It's the Idaho way of personal face time, and that culture is equally strong with those on both sides of the aisle.

With 2011 not being an election year, the fair didn't see the slew of newcomer candidates who often head out to shake hands and disperse campaign literature.

One difference was obvious between both parties' booths. In the Republican booth, passersby could participate in a poll in which they put a pinto bean into jars representing the eight top contenders for the GOP nomination for president.

No such poll is at the Democratic booth — for obvious reasons.

Bobbie Pilliard of Buhl paused to put a bean into Mitt Romney's jar.

"He's a businessman, and we need a businessman," she said.

Mya Goodman, president of the Twin Falls County Republican Women, said she enjoys talking with people who stop at the booth, regardless of whether they agree or disagree with her message.

"I've converted a couple Democrats into Republicans," she said with a smile.

That goes both ways, of course.

Deborah Silver, chairwoman of the Twin Falls County Democratic Party, said she gets plenty of questions and concerns about the state's new closed primary system, the controversial education laws the Legislature passed this year, and legislative redistricting.

Above all, her party's presence reminds people that the Democratic voice will not go away, she said.

"You are not alone here," she said. "You are not alone as a Democratic voter."

There's also voting information at the fair that doesn't seek to sway your political views. The Twin Falls County Clerk's office has a booth that explains the state's switch to a closed primary system. It will require voters to declare a party affiliation before voting in the 2012 primaries, unless party leaders opt to allow unaffiliated voters to cast ballots.

"Health care reform law is accelerating a trend that was already developing," Pate said.

The reform puts financial incentive on preventive care actions. Unlike in the past, doctors will get paid for value, not volume.

St. Luke's will benefit integrating with St. Benedicts because it will be able to coordinate care between the Twin Falls and Jerome areas, Pate said.

"Now it's not just patients in our hospitals, but looking at the whole population and seeing how do we promote health," he said.

Though some fear the changes resulting from health care reform will lead to employee layoffs as providers seek to meet costs, St. Luke's will only consider cutting jobs as a last resort, Pate said.

"We feel especially sensitive to this issue. We are the largest employer in the state and we help drive the economy," he said. "It's important we recognize our role in the economy. We have the opportunity to look at care processes and find how we can prevent avoidable complications and preventable hospital admissions."

Heading Out for Labor Day? It May Cost You if You're Not Careful

TIMES-NEWS

Twenty area high school football teams hit the gridiron Friday, and the Broncos open the college football season against Georgia on Saturday — it's going to be a good weekend to stick around town or a TV.

But for the more than 27 million Americans AAA estimates will hit the road for Labor Day weekend, summer's last hurrah means a good amount of wheel time on some potentially unfamiliar roads, the stress of dealing with traffic, and potential heartburn at the gas pump.

Here are a couple of tips for safe holiday travel over the long weekend.

Get There Cheaply

Dave Carlson, Idaho's AAA spokesman, said Gem State residents are paying an average of $3.68 per gallon of regular gasoline — about 69 cents more per gallon than we paid a year ago.

That's above the $3.62 national per-gallon average, so knowing where to find a deal on gas is important for motorists planning excursions across the nation's roadways.

If you're really into pinching pennies, buying gas discount cards at places you shop may be the way to go, but you can still check area gas prices at AAA's website.

It could be worth the effort. On Thursday, prices for a gallon of gas within Twin Falls ranged from $3.619 to $3.759. Of all the county hubs in south-central Idaho, Burley boasted Thursday's lowest gas price — $3.539 at Smith's.

Get There Safely

As is customary with every holiday weekend, Idaho law enforcement will be out in force on the state's roadways through Monday.

Officers will be especially vigilant of impaired drivers through a nationwide mobilization targeting drunken driving through Sept. 6. The Idaho Transportation Department will administer federal grant money to cover overtime costs associated with the additional patrols.

"Designate a sober driver and give up those car keys, arrange for alternative transportation, don't let someone drive that you know is impaired, and always wear your seat belt," the ITD Office of Highway Safety said in a written release.

Feds Kill 3 Wolves After Sheep Killed Near Carey

TIMES-NEWS

Federal officials killed three wolves on Wednesday after confirming they were the same wolves responsible for killing multiple livestock.

The wolves had killed four sheep on Flat Top Ranch near Carey this week and most likely three sheep in August, said Todd Grimm, the western district supervisor for the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Wildlife Services.

"As soon as we confirm a depredation, we talk to the (Idaho Department of) Fish and Game supervisor to plan a lethal order," Grimm said.

However, Grimm said very few wolves are actually killed.

"We were in the right place at the right time," he said. "Less than half of the lethal control orders actually end up killing a wolf. This time a little bit of luck was involved."

The agency has killed close to 40 wolves this year. The number is down from years prior, Grimm said.

Agency Invites Public to Dispose of Unwanted Pesticides

TIMES-NEWS

Magic Valley residents and businesses currently storing unusable pesticides can safely dispose of the chemicals for free at two locations set up by the Idaho State Department of Agriculture.

Collections will be held from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Sept. 14 at the Bureau of Land Management yard in Burley, and the same time Sept. 15 at the Twin Falls Canal Co. office in Twin Falls.

Participation is free for the first 1,000 pounds per participant. Pesticides include herbicides, insecticides and other chemicals that end in "-cide." Fertilizer, micronutrients, paint, solvents and motor oil will not be accepted.

Participants will need to register the weight of the pesticides they will dispose of by calling ISDA's Twin Falls office at 736-5277, 736-4759, or 736-4790.

Buhl Man Arrested For Selling Drugs in Boise

IDAHO STATESMAN

BOISE • Andrew E. Chapa is being held in the Ada County Jail on a felony charge of possession of marijuana with intent to deliver after a police say he was caught making a deal out of his car in a West Boise neighborhood Wednesday night and then led officers on a short pursuit when they tried to pull him over.

Chapa, 18, of Buhl, is also charged with a misdemeanor count of eluding police.

A Boise patrol officer says he was driving behind a tan Chevy Cavalier on North Mitchell Street, near the Sunflower Lane intersection, around 10 p.m. Wednesday when he saw the Cavalier go across the road and park on the wrong side of the street. The officer then watched another man walk up to the car and appear to give something to the driver, who was later identified as Chapa.

The officer then drove closer and shined a spotlight at the car, at which point the man on the street ran away and Chapa took off, driving the car northbound on Mitchell and reaching a speed of 50 mph in a matter of seconds, according to reports.

The officer followed Chapa, who pulled his car over a short distance away in the 2600 block of Mitchell Street.

Boise police arrested Chapa for the eluding charge at that point. A Meridian Police K-9 dog detected the presence of drugs in the car a short time later and officers found two bags containing a total of 25 grams of marijuana and some scales in a backpack inside the car.

Boise police developed additional undisclosed evidence that Chapa was selling marijuana and then arrested him on the delivery charge. The man police saw walk up to the car on Mitchell Street was not found, according to reports.

Chapa made his initial court appearance Thursday. His next hearing is Sept. 15.

The crime of possession of marijuana with intent to deliver is punishable by up to five years in prison.

Lunch to Raise Money for Scholarship in Honor of Late Idaho Senator

SUN VALLEY • Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter and Lt. Gov. Brad Little will preside over a luncheon designed to raise $100,000 to honor the legacy of former Sen. Clint Stennett.

The luncheon will be held from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Wednesday at the Ketchum home of Trish and Dave Wilson — 110 Lindsay Circle, on the third floor above Scott USA. It will be hosted by the Wilsons, Sen. Michelle Stennett and Rep. Wendy Jaquet.

Donations offered at the lunch will go toward the new Clint Stennett Scholarship Endowment Fund at Idaho State University, Stennett's alma mater. The scholarships will be given to college-bound students from the Wood River Valley.

Stennett, a minority leader in the Idaho Senate, passed away from brain cancer about a year ago. The Magic Valley native, who attended the College of Southern Idaho, was always talking about what a difference education made for him, Jaquet said. He also made education a priority when it came to state funding.

Sandpoint Studies Impact Fees

Planning Commission is set to tackle the tricky issue of impact fees after an expert financial consultant presented his firm's study findings.

BONNER COUNTY
DAILY BEE

SANDPOINT • The Sandpoint Planning Commission is set to tackle the tricky issue of impact fees after an expert financial consultant presented his firm's study findings.

Carson Bise of the fiscal consultant firm TischlerBise recommended that the commission consider increasing several impact fees to cover the town's projected development.

City officials requested the study as a part of their regular reexamination of impact fees every five years. According to planning director Jeremy Grimm, Bise is the national authority on the subject.

"We were lucky enough to have the preeminent impact fee advising council in the country do this study for us," he said.

Impact fees are one-time payments to the city for new commercial or residential developments. According to Bise, the total fees are determined based on need, benefit and proportionality.

The study identified four areas in Sandpoint that warranted improvement through impact fees: parks and recreation, police, fire and transportation. Impact fees help ensure that those key institutions keep pace with the town's development. The collected fees can only be used for capital improvements.

According to Fire Chief Robert Tyler, the TischlerBise associates assigned to the study did an incredibly thorough job of analyzing the city's unique circumstances.

"What occurred in this study is far greater than what occurred in 2005," he said.

TischlerBise's findings recommended substantial increases in fees depending on the location of the development. Outside urban renewal areas, the study proposed an increase in maximum allowable fees for a single family home to an average $7,048. Fees in the downtown urban renewal area would increase to an average $6,533. Finally, fees in the northern urban renewal area would increase to an average $6,595. The current average for all areas is $3,882.

Similarly, fees for an average commercial development would increase to a proposed $8.43 per square foot outside a renewal area, $7.34 per square foot in the downtown urban renewal area and $7.47 per square foot in the northern urban renewal area. The current total fee for all areas is $2.34 per square foot.

OUR VIEW

Getting From Point A to Point B

It’s unusual to go through an entire budgeting process with unswerving commitment to the same top priority. In fact it’s almost unheard of. Almost.

Those who had a hand in creating — and passing — the city of Twin Falls’ 2011-12 city budget began the process committed to adding to this past year’s $550,000 budgeted expenditure for street maintenance. Although dozens of other items were discussed and dealt with, the council remained focused on keeping, or adding to the $200,000 increase in road maintenance funds proposed by City Manager Travis Rothweiler. And when the budget was ultimately approved this past Monday the amount earmarked for road maintenance had risen to $930,101 — a 69 percent increase over this past year — without an increase in the overall city tax rate. That is, we believe, work well done.

Kudos to Rothweiler, the entire City Council and to City Engineer Jackie Fields for keeping street maintenance discussion front-and-center. But this would not have gotten done without the assistance — willing or otherwise — of the city’s department heads that endured decreases. It’s easy to be parochial and focused on “my” department in budget discussions. Although this was almost certainly present behind the scenes, when road maintenance won, everybody won.

What we deserve as a consequence is a better timeline with more well thought out sequencing of maintenance projects this next year. Getting around town does not need to be impossible in the short term in order to be better in the long run. Rothweiler and Fields have both admitted that city can and will do better with this in the future. We hope so.

All of this is not to say that the budget is perfect. It may be impossible for budget “perfection” to exist in years of reduced revenue. “Quality of life” items such as Parks and Recreation funding were decreased. The addition of three new police patrol vehicles was floated, explained and discarded. Perfectly “good” things were either eliminated or not added. That happens; resources are finite.

In the end the city acted in a manner that allows both residents and commercial carriers an easier way of getting from Point A to Point B. We agree with that decision.

WARNING: The U.S. Surgeon General has determined that hair relaxers can be hazardous to your health.

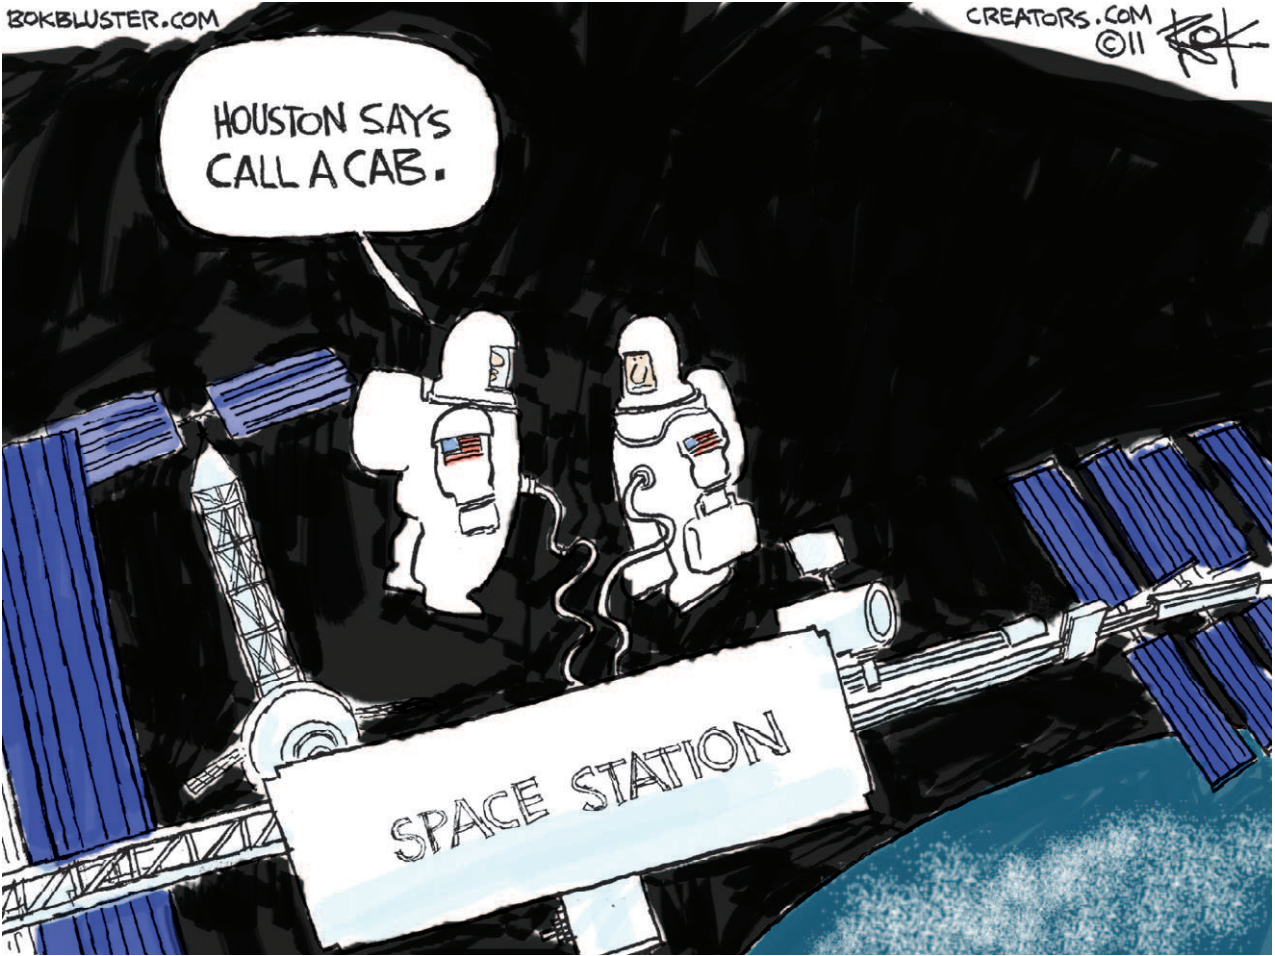

It’s not because they’re habit-forming or carcinogenic or a gateway to more dangerous substances. It’s because a woman who spent $60 and four (or eight) hours in the stylist’s chair is not going to be eager to hit the gym and wreck her hair, and if you don’t get that, well, you’re Surgeon General Regina Benjamin gets it. She is a doctor whose mother was a hairstylist. She knows high-maintenance hair can be an obstacle to exercise, especially for African-American women like herself. She’s performing a huge public service by calling women out on it.

“Oftentimes you get women saying, ‘I can’t exercise today because I don’t want to sweat my hair back or get my hair wet,’” Benjamin told The New York Times. “I hate to use the word ‘excuse,’ but that’s one of them.”

Wanted: Patriotic CEOs to Stop Corporate Moochers

Chuck Collins

Institute for Policy Studies

Some of the biggest corporations in the U.S. are moochers.

They’re like the guy who shows up at your Labor Day picnic empty-handed. He drinks all your beer, eats four helpings of barbecue and leaves a huge mess for everyone else to clean up. Then he asks you for 20 bucks in gas money to get home.

A troubling number of U.S. corporations behave as moocher guests at our national cafeteria. They help themselves to all the taxpayer-funded goods and services we create and pay for together and leave patriotic small businesses and individual taxpayers with the bill.

According to a new report by the Institute for Policy Studies that I co-authored, 25 corporations among the top 100 firms paid their CEOs more in compensation than they paid in taxes. Twenty of them spent more on lobbying Congress than they paid in taxes.

Twenty of the 25 paid not one dime in federal taxes last year. Many use offshore tax havens to shift their profits overseas to avoid U.S. taxes. In fact, their hands are out, collecting millions in government subsidies.

This elite group of super-moochers includes Ford, eBay, Verizon, Boeing, Motorola, Honeywell, Dow Chemical, General Electric, Coca-Cola Enterprises, Prudential Financial, Capital One Financial and International Paper.

These companies utilize roads, ports, Internet broadband, weather services — our entire public infrastructure. They spin off products created from a foundation of Uncle Sam’s investments, such as the Internet, drug research and innovation in aviation and science. They hire educated workers from our school systems — and complain when they don’t have adequate skills.

When someone tries to steal their product or idea, they rush to the U.S. court system and law enforcement agencies for help and justice. They rest assured knowing their global assets are protected by the U.S. military and government agencies.

They claim to love America. They just don’t want to pay for its upkeep. At the end of the cafeteria line, with their tray piled with food, they point to you and me and say, “They’re picking up the tab.”

Think about it: Where would Honeywell be without government research and contracts? Where would Boeing be without the U.S. taxpayer, including a recent contract for $35 billion in new planes?

These companies imply they should be relieved from taxes since they are creating U.S. jobs. But as new studies show, many of these same global firms are shifting jobs overseas as fast as they can.

General Electric CEO Jeffrey Immelt advises President Barack Obama on how to create jobs in America. He was paid $15.3 million last year as his company paid no U.S. taxes and collected $3.3 billion in refunds. In the past three years, GE has closed more than a dozen U.S. factories and eliminated 19,000 American jobs. In the past decade, the percentage of GE’s global workforce based in the U.S. has declined from 54 percent to 46 percent.

Many companies avoid disclosing the breakdown of their workforce between the United States and other countries. They don’t want the public to know how aggressively they are outsourcing jobs. Once-patriotic U.S. firms now view the United States as a platform for shifting capital, jobs, and profits around the world to their narrow advantage.

Our country is part of a dynamic global economy — and there are many benefits to our communities as a result. We benefit from global trade in goods, food and services.

Unfortunately, some of our biggest U.S. corporations use the global economy as a shield to avoid basic responsibilities. For example, some use subsidiaries in tax-haven countries like the Cayman Islands and pretend their profits are earned offshore and their losses in the United States. These 25 companies together have more than 556 subsidiaries in tax haven countries.

We need a few respected CEOs to step up and say, “There’s something wrong when a CEO is paid more than the entire amount of taxes a billion-dollar company pays.”

We could really use some patriotic CEOs who understand that to have first class infrastructure and education systems the businesses that benefit must pay their fair share. They can’t complain about government waste and inefficiency — and shift their money offshore — leaving everyone else to pay.

An earlier generation of CEOs of these same companies would have been ashamed to personally be paid more than their company’s entire U.S. tax bill. Today’s CEOs get rewarded for dodging taxes and their national responsibility.

Only Three Tanks Hold Radioactive Waste at INL

Your recent editorial, “A Disaster Waiting to Happen,” requires some clarification.

The article focused on dam safety but inaccurately stated that the Idaho National Laboratory has “more than a dozen 300,000-gallon underground storage tanks filled with high-level nuclear waste,” and implied that a Mackay Dam failure could result in radiation releases from those tanks.

While it is true the tanks are located in a flood zone and a dam failure poses some risk, it should be noted that there are only three tanks still containing liquid radioactive waste, and they are scheduled to be emptied, cleaned and grouted over the next 18 months. Seven of the other eight tanks have already been emptied, their waste processed, cleaned and grouted, in accordance with an agreement with the state of Idaho.

One tank has never been used for waste storage and has always been kept empty as a spare. CWI, our cleanup contractor, is in the process of start-up testing of the Integrated Waste Treatment Unit, which will use a steam reforming technology to process the remaining 900,000 gallons of liquid waste currently stored in three underground tanks. They are scheduled to begin processing waste at the end of this year or early next year. The remaining three tanks will then be cleaned and grouted by the end of next year.

STATE BRIEFS

Police Charge Boys, 8, for Starting Wildfire

POCATELLO • Two 8-year-old Pocatello boys are charged with third-degree arson for a fire that destroyed a house and burned more than 1,200 acres of public and private land.

Bannock County Deputy Prosecutor Ian Service says the boys are accused of starting the so-called Drive-In fire on Aug. 15 in Pocatello.

He says they were playing with matches and a lighter, and had ignited and extinguished several smaller fires before one burned out of their control.

8 Cattle Shot on E. Idaho Grazing Allotment

BOISE • Police say eight cattle were shot in the head and neck while they were grazing on a Targhee National Forest allotment.

Kent Shippen from Menan said the animals were at a watering hole near a frequently-traveled dirt road when they were shot. A Fremont County sheriff's deputy discovered the animals Wednesday evening, within about 24 hours of the shooting.

Shippen said two of his calves and two of his cows were killed, and another two of his animals were injured and will likely need to be put down. His business partners owned the other two slain cows.

Hailey Man Admits to Fake Marriage Scam

BOISE • A central Idaho man who entered into a fake marriage more than a decade ago to remain in the country has pleaded guilty to immigration fraud.

The U.S. Attorney's Office says 38-year-old Americo De La Cruz, of Hailey, will be sentenced in late November. He pleaded guilty Wednesday to unlawful procurement of citizenship as part of an agreement with federal prosecutors.

De La Cruz was granted permanent residency in March 2004 as a result of his marriage four years earlier to a U.S. citizen.

Authorities say De La

Cruz lied about the validity of his marriage when applying for naturalization with the federal government and as a result, he was granted status as a naturalized U.S. citizen in Boise more than two years ago.

Body Found in Snake River Near Lewiston

LEWISTON • Nez Perce county officials have released the name of the man whose body was found floating in the Snake River near a Lewiston boat ramp.

Sgt. John Hilderbrant tells The Lewiston Tribune it's not clear how 23-year-old Brandon J. Hix ended up in the water. Preliminary autopsy results indicate he drowned.

Hix's body was spotted about 100 feet away from the ramp at 6:15 a.m. Wednesday. He was identified through fingerprint analysis.

An autopsy by the Spokane County Medical Examiner's Office says the man probably died Saturday and there was no indication of foul play.

After Irene: When Will the Power Come Back On?

BY DAVID KLEPPER AND MICHAEL HILL

Associated Press

WARWICK, R.I. • Cold showers. Meals in the dark. Refrigerators full of spoiled food. No TV. No Internet. Up and down the East Coast, patience is wearing thin among the millions of people still waiting for the electricity to come back on after Hurricane Irene knocked out the power last weekend.

“It’s like ‘Little House on the Prairie’ times,” said Debbie McWeeney, who went to a Red Cross shelter in Warwick to pick up food and water after everything in her refrigerator went bad. “Except I’m not enjoying it at all.”

With the waters receding across much of the flood-stricken region, homeowners are mucking out their basements and dragging soggy furniture to the curb. But the wait for power drags on, with an estimated 1.38 million homes and businesses still without electricity, down from a peak of 9.6 million.

And criticism of the utility companies is mounting. In Rhode Island, a state senator is calling for an investigation, and Massachusetts’ attorney general is demanding information from utilities on how they are dealing with the crisis, including how many crews are in the field and their response time.

The industry has defended its efforts, noting it warned the public that a storm like Irene was bound to cause prolonged outages and pointing out that flooding and toppled trees caused severe damage to utility poles, substations and other equipment.

U.S. Marks First Month With No Troop Deaths in Iraq

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BAGHDAD • August marked the first month since the 2003 U.S.-led invasion of Iraq that no American forces have died, according to an Associated Press tally.

Figures compiled by the AP show that no American forces died in Iraq in August either in combat or non-combat related situations, a significant achievement in a conflict that has claimed the lives of 4,474 American service members since it began.

All American forces are supposed to leave Iraq by December of this year, but U.S. and Iraqi officials have been discussing whether to have a long-term American military presence in the country.

There have been previous months during which there were no combat related deaths, but during which some people died in non-combat related situations.

The numbers come on top of what had been a jump in U.S. troop deaths for the first part of this year. In June, 15 U.S. troops died in one of the biggest losses of life for American forces in Iraq in years.

All but one of those deaths were combat related, and most came in southern Iraq, indicating the increased activity of Shiite militias in launching attacks against American forces.

Bases across southern Iraq have seen a deadly jump in rocket and mortar attacks, including the use of IRAMs, or improvised rocket assisted mortars, which are dead-

Shiite militias operating throughout southern Iraq and the Baghdad area are trying to portray themselves as driving out the Americans from the country and keeping them from trying to negotiate a long-term American troop presence here.

Gadhafi, in Hiding, Vows No Surrender in Libya

World leaders meeting in Paris on Libya’s future after Gadhafi say NATO military operations will continue as long as needed.

BY BEN HUBBARD AND MAGGIE MICHAEL

Associated Press

TRIPOLI, Libya • In a fiery broadcast from hiding, Moammar Gadhafi warned Thursday that loyalist tribes in his main strongholds were armed and preparing for battle, a show of defiance hours after rebels extended a deadline for the surrender of the fugitive leader’s hometown.

The rebels, who have been moving troops toward remaining Gadhafi bastions across Libya, had shifted the deadline for the town of Sirte in hopes of avoiding the bloodshed that met their attack on Tripoli.

“We want to save our fighters and not lose a single one in battles with Gadhafi’s forces,” said Mohammed al-Rajali, a spokesman for the rebel leadership in the eastern city of Benghazi. “In the end, we will get Sirte, even if we have to cut water and electricity” and let NATO pound it with airstrikes.

World leaders meeting in Paris on Libya’s future after Gadhafi said the NATO military operations would continue as long as needed.

The rebels say the advance on Sirte is going well, and that their forces have already captured one nearby city. They also say they are closing in on Gadhafi, who came to power 42 years ago Thursday in a military coup that toppled King Idris.

The rebels have been hunting for Gadhafi since he was forced into hiding after they swept into Tripoli on Aug. 20 and gained control of most of the capital after days of fierce fighting.

“We won’t surrender again; we are not women. We will keep fighting,” Gadhafi said in a blustery tone in the audio statement, broadcast by Syrian-based Al-Rai TV. His voice was recognizable, and Al-Rai has previously broadcast statements by Gadhafi and his sons.

Gadhafi said the tribes in Sirte and Bani Walid are armed and “there is no way they will submit.” He called for continued resistance, warning “the battle will be long and let Libya burn.”

In a second late-night audio also broadcast on the Syrian channel, Gadhafi spoke in more measured tones and called for a long insurgency.

“We will fight them everywhere,” he said. “We will burn the ground under their feet.”

$1.3T Deficit Projected as Economy Cools

BY ANDREW TAYLOR

Associated Press

WASHINGTON • The White House on Thursday predicted that unemployment will remain at 9 percent next year, a gloomy scenario for President Barack Obama’s re-election campaign.

The bleak figures from the Office of Management and Budget, which also projected overall growth this year at just 1.7 percent, serve as further confirmation of a sputtering economy while dramatizing the challenge Obama will face in making his case for re-election. The 1.7 percent growth rate is a full percentage point less than the administration predicted at the beginning of the year.

The economy promises to be the leading-edge issue of the 2012 White House sweepstakes, and Obama already is facing a host of Republican rivals challenging his financial policies. No president in modern times has won re-election with unemployment as high as 9 percent, and Obama’s poll numbers have suffered in recent weeks amid a steady drumbeat of bad economic news.

On the deficit, the White House report also projects red ink totaling $1.3 trillion for the budget year coming to a close on Sept. 30. That’s slightly higher than last year’s deficit but more than $300 billion less than the record sum that the White House predicted in February.

Tax receipts are up unexpectedly and spending is down from the administration’s earlier predictions, in part because of GOP-mandated cuts to the day-to-day operating budgets of Cabinet-level departments and agencies.

Of Thursday’s report, White House budget director Jacob Lew said: “We need to get back on a sustainable fiscal path” and we must “invest in long-term economic growth and job creation.”

Space Junk Littering Orbit; Might Need Cleaning Up

BY SETH BORENSTEIN
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON • Space junk has made such a mess of Earth's orbit that experts say we may need to finally think about cleaning it up.

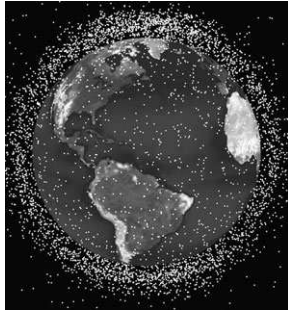

That may mean vacuuming up debris with weird space technology — cosmic versions of nets, magnets and giant umbrellas, according to the chairman of an expert panel that issued a new report on the problem Thursday.

There are 22,000 objects in orbit that are big enough for officials on the ground to track and countless more smaller ones that could do damage to human-carrying spaceships and valuable satellites. The International Space Station has to move out of the way of debris from time to time.

“We've lost control of the environment,” said retired NASA senior scientist Donald Kessler, who headed the National Academy of Sciences report.

Since the space age began 54 years ago, civilization has littered the area just above Earth's atmosphere with leftover boosters and other parts that come off during launches, as well as old satellites. When scientists noticed that this could be a problem, they came up with agreements to limit new space junk and those plans had been working.

Those agreements are intended to make sure what is sent into orbit eventually falls back to Earth and burns up.

Economy

Obama plans to outline his ideas for jump-starting the economy and creating jobs in a primetime address to a joint session of Congress and the nation on Sept. 8. That date was negotiated only after the White House and House Speaker John Boehner, R-Ohio, disagreed over Obama's request to give the speech a day earlier — Sept. 7 — at a time when the Republicans had scheduled a presidential debate.

The White House report said that higher oil prices, an economic slowdown in Europe, continuing weakness in the housing sector and the disruption in global supply chains after the devastating earthquake in Japan have dragged down the economy.

“In sum, economic growth and job creation, while positive, have not been strong enough to bring the unemployment rate down to an acceptable level,” the budget office reported.

breach, saying that an investigative journalist had revealed the password needed to unlock the files in a book published earlier this year. Guardian journalists countered that it was sloppy security at Julian Assange's anti-secrecy website which helped expose the cables to the world.

In a 1,600-word-long editorial posted to the Internet, WikiLeaks accused the Guardian's investigative reporter David Leigh of betrayal, saying that his disclosure had jeopardized months of “careful work” that WikiLeaks had undertaken to redact and publish the cables.

“Revolutions and reforms are in danger of being lost as the unpublished cables spread to intelligence contractors and governments before the public,” WikiLeaks said in its statement.

Leigh and the Guardian both denied wrongdoing, and the exact sequence of events WikiLeaks was referring to remained clouded in confusion and re-creminations.

It has long been known that WikiLeaks lost control of the raw cables even before they were published. One copy of the secret documents leaked to The New York Times in the fall of 2010, and other media organizations, including The Associated Press, have since received copies independently of WikiLeaks.

But never before has the entire catalog of unredacted cables made its way to the Web.

Until recently, WikiLeaks released relatively small batches of files to its partner organizations — dozens of international media and human rights groups — so they could remove information which could put innocent people in jeopardy. Only then were the files posted online.

But with the unredacted cables now sloshing around in the public domain, all that work has effectively been thrown out the window.

said crews from as far as Kansas and Idaho are working 16-hour shifts, and “we're committed to getting this resolved as soon as possible.”

In the meantime, people are taking cold showers or washing up at shelters, using camp stoves and grills to cook, competing for ice at the grocery store and relying on generators and hand-cranked radios. The late-summer weather, at least, has been mercifully cool across much of the East Coast.

Many homes that depend on wells have no water because they have no electricity to pump it. Relief agencies have been handing out drinking water. And a high school in Exeter, R.I., opened its gym to let people shower.

In some places, people on oxygen or other medical devices that require electricity have been taken to shelters that have power.

Irene has been blamed for at least 46 deaths in 13 states. With the streets drying out in hard-hit New Jersey, some towns faced new problems, namely trash bins overflowing with waterlogged debris. In Vermont, with roads slowly reopening, the National Guard's airlift of food, water and other supplies to once cut-off towns was winding down.

Doctors Prescribing Fewer Antibiotics to Kids

BY MIKE STOBBE
AP Medical Writer

ATLANTA • The push to get pediatricians to stop prescribing antibiotics for the wrong illnesses is paying off a bit, a new government report found.

Since the early 1990s, there's been a 10 percent drop in prescription rates for antibiotics for kids 14 and younger, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reported Thursday.

Antibiotics are often used — but don't work — against viral illnesses like colds and flu. Antibiotics fight infections caused by bacteria. Misuse can lead to antibiotic resistance.

Experts say doctors inappropriately prescribe antibiotics more than 50 percent of the time, and more often with respiratory infections.

The CDC found larger declines — about 25 percent — in how often doctors used antibiotics against sore throats, colds and some other upper respiratory infections. But there was no significant change in how often they prescribed the drugs for ear infection, bronchitis and sinusitis.

The new findings represent progress, but also suggest that doctors are still prescribing antibiotics too often, said Dr. Lauri Hicks, a CDC epidemiologist who worked on the study.

“The bad news is we still have a long way to go,” she said.

The CDC study was the government's first look at the issue in about a decade. It was based on an annual survey of doctors' offices, and compared rates from 1993-1994 to 2007-2008.

The improvement could be partly driven by rapid diagnostic tests that help doctors pinpoint whether a sore throat is caused by a virus or strep bacteria, CDC researchers said. The study also found fewer parents took their kids to doctors for upper respiratory infections, which could be thanks to a vaccine against pneumococcal bacteria that became available in 2000.

A public health campaign about antibiotics may have also had some impact, CDC officials said.

Doctors have not always followed recommendations to cut back on antibiotics, partly because of pressure from parents, said Dr. Kenneth Bromberg, chairman of pediatrics at the Brooklyn Hospital Center in New York.

He said NATO was trying to occupy Libya and steal its oil.

“Get ready to fight the occupation. ... Get ready for a long war, imposed on us,” Gadhafi added. “Get ready for the guerrilla war!”

He called Sirte “the capital of the resistance.”

The rebels, who have effectively ended Gadhafi's rule, dismiss his threats as empty rhetoric.

The rebels believe he may be in one of their three key targets. The fighters, backed by NATO airstrikes, have been pushing recently toward Sirte as well as Bani Walid, 90 miles (140 kilometers) southeast of Tripoli, and the southern city of Sabha.

All three were given a Saturday deadline to surrender. While the deadline extension was officially only for Sirte, rebels said it would also apply to Bani Walid and Sabha.

Mars Rover Opportunity Examining Rocks at New Site

NASA • ASSOCIATED PRESS

BY ALICIA CHANG

AP Science Writer

LOS ANGELES • The Mars rover Opportunity is snapping pictures like a tourist since arriving at its latest crater destination, much to the delight of scientists many millions of miles away. The solar-powered workhorse beamed back images of the horizon, soil and nearby rocks that are unlike any it has seen during its seven years roaming the Martian plains.

Opportunity is doing more than just sightseeing. It recently spent a chunk of time using its robotic arm to investigate a flat-topped boulder to find out what it's made of.

After a three-year drive, the six-wheel rover finally rolled up to the western rim of Endeavour Crater earlier this month to begin a new chapter of exploration.

Project managers chose the locale because it's older and different than previous spots Opportunity has visited. The view from orbit reveals tantalizing evidence of clay deposits believed to have formed in a warm and wet environment early in Mars' history.

The next task will be to search for more ancient rocks and hunt for the elusive clay minerals, said the mission's deputy principal investigator Ray Arvidson of Washington University in St. Louis.

Opportunity's latest feat comes months after NASA bid farewell to its identical twin Spirit. Both rovers parachuted to opposite ends of the red planet in 2004 and lasted beyond their original three-month task.

Spirit fell silent last year not long after it got mired in a sand trap. NASA diligently listened for a signal from the rover and gave up in late May.

To commemorate Spirit, the rover team named a spot on Endeavour Crater "Spirit Point."

Opportunity will soon have company on the surface. NASA is set to launch a mobile laboratory named Curiosity in November after a two-year delay. Once it arrives in summer 2012, Curiosity will study a mountain inside a 96-mile-wide crater to determine whether conditions were favorable to support microbial life.

BLM Task Force Urges Safety in Roundups

BY SCOTT SONNER

Associated Press

RENO, Nev. • The American Association of Equine Practitioners BLM Task Force concluded in the 35-page report presented to BLM on Tuesday that the agency's care, handling and management practices "generally support the safety, health status and welfare of the animals" but found several areas needing improvement.

The 10-member team of veterinarians who visited the sites leveled their strongest criticism at the "unacceptable" conditions at an overcrowded holding facility in Herri-man, Utah, where horses were forced to stand in a 4- to 8-inch deep mixture of mud and manure.

They also recommended establishment of a uniform surgical anesthesia protocol at all horse management sites after an observation team witnessed horses appearing to suffer pain during castration at a holding facility in Palomino Valley north of Reno.

Quake Shifted 115-Ton Storage Containers at Va. Nuclear Plant

BY BRIAN VASTAG

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON • Last week's central Virginia earthquake jolted huge concrete containers holding spent nuclear fuel at the North Anna power plant about 115 miles southwest of here, shifting some one to four inches, said the plant's operator, Dominion Virginia Power.

The containers, called casks, weigh 115 tons each and are filled with bundles of uranium dioxide fuel rods that no longer generate enough heat to produce electricity.

The plant houses a total of 53 casks on two concrete pads. Of 27 casks on one pad, 25 shifted during the magnitude 5.8 earthquake that struck Aug. 23 some 12 miles south of the plant in Louisa County, Dominion spokesman Richard Zuercher said.

"They are safe and remain intact," Zuercher said. "They are designed not to fall over, and they didn't fall over."

Sensors designed to detect leaks of helium gas, which fill the casks, indicated no leaks, Zuercher added.

The casks, which look like concrete silos, sit on two secure pads outside the two-reactor power plant, which remains closed pending inspections by a special team sent by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission this week.

Each of the 27 casks on one pad is at capacity, holding 32 fuel rods.

On a second storage pad, 26 newer storage casks did not shift, Zuercher said. Some concrete flaked off the outside of these newer casks, which sit horizontally instead of vertically like the older casks. Thirteen of those casks hold fuel; the rest are empty.

The containers that moved were licensed and began taking fuel in 1998.

"This indicates that reactors that have these dry casks in these earthquake-prone areas, they're going to have to do more to protect them from ground motion," said Robert Alvarez from the Institute for Policy Studies, who has extensively studied nuclear waste storage. "One thing is to bolt them to the pads. And that's not a Home Depot-type job. The pads themselves also need to be examined to see if they're durable enough."

Zuercher said Dominion continues its own inspections of the facility alongside the NRC team. "We have not found anything significant, nothing that affects nuclear safety," he said. "Both units are offline and in cold shutdown."

On Aug. 26, Dominion notified the NRC that the earthquake may have shaken the facility more than it was designed to handle. An analysis of "shake plates" that record ground motion will be completed Friday, Zuercher said, and the company will then make a final determination if the ground motion exceeded the plant's design.

As at many U.S. nuclear plants, when fuel rods at North Anna lose power, they are moved to an indoor spent fuel pool. After cooling there for several years, workers move the rods to the so-called dry storage casks, which are outdoor and cooled by natural air circulation.

Fuel rods remain radioactive for thousands of years as they slowly decay.

Dry casks were designed as temporary storage, Alvarez said, but have become de facto long-term waste warehouses as the country has failed to build a permanent waste repository.

According to the NRC, 55 sites in the nation have nuclear waste in dry cask storage.

Starting in 1986, the federal government began planning to move the nation's nuclear waste to a permanent repository at Yucca Mountain in Nevada. But after President Obama took office in 2009, he defunded the partially built hole in the mountain and declared the project closed.

Lawsuits arguing for and against completing Yucca Mountain are now wending their way through federal courts.

Grandpa Charged With Forcing Grand Canyon Hikes

BY FELICIA FONSECA

Associated Press

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. • An Indiana man forced his three young grandsons to hike 18 miles in triple-digit heat at the Grand Canyon and denied them food and water, authorities said.

Christopher Carlson, of Indianapolis, remained jailed Thursday on six counts of child abuse. The boys, ages 12, 9 and 8, told investigators that they had been hit, pushed, choked, pinched and squeezed during trips on a popular trail at the canyon's South Rim last month.

On the latest hike over the weekend down the Bright Angel Trail, temperatures reached 108 degrees at Phantom Ranch along the Colorado River. A ranger spotted the group with binoculars on the trail and saw Carlson shoving the oldest boy and whipping him with a rolled-up T-shirt, authorities said.

National Park Service Special Agent Chris Smith testified that Carlson told authorities that the boys had been overweight and that he thought the hike would get them into shape.

"He told me that he loved his grandchildren very much, but at the same time there were tough people in the world and his grandchildren needed to be tough as well," Smith said.

Authorities said Carlson tortured and beat the boys, and instructed them to lie to park rangers about any injuries. Rangers and passers-by noted the alleged abuse by Carlson, according to court documents.

The boys said Carlson also forced their fingers down their throats, making them vomit.

Rangers fed and hydrated

the boys inside an ambulance and they were placed in the care of child protective services. One boy had symptoms of heat stroke, while the other two exhibited signs of heat exhaustion and dehydration.

The Bright Angel Trail can be deceiving. It starts at the top of the canyon at around 7,000 feet in elevation and drops to 2,400 feet by the river, and the temperature varies widely. The Park Service advises hikers not to make the trip to the river and back in one day. Warning signs are posted at the trailhead and along the trail.

Carlson took the children on the latest hike on Aug. 28. A man died the same day on another trail at the Grand Canyon due to heat exposure.

Defense attorney Luke Mulligan questioned the children's statements, saying it seemed improbable that they could have completed the hike without food and water. He also said the rangers could have removed the children from the canyon had they believed the children were at risk of serious injury or death.

"If the rangers didn't perceive it, are we going to put an extra burden on my client to perceive it?" Mulligan said.

But prosecutors said a ranger was successful in preventing Carlson from reaching the river on an earlier hike on Aug. 15, cooling down the children and giving a heads-up to other authorities in the park. Camille Bibbles said Carlson was intent on avoiding rangers during the second trip.

"We're looking at the defendant's actions here, not putting the rangers on trial," she said.

$1.3 billion jury verdict • A federal judge has thrown out a $1.3 billion jury verdict against German business software maker SAP AG, slamming the penalty as “grossly excessive” and dealing an unexpected setback to SAP’s Silicon Valley rival Oracle Corp. The ruling Thursday is a surprising twist in a landmark intellectual property case. Larry Ellison, Oracle’s outspoken CEO, has provided ample theatrics, pillorying SAP for its amateurish theft of software and customer-support documents from password-protected Oracle websites. SAP has admitted that a now-shuttered subsidiary, TomorrowNow, committed the offense.

WASHINGTON • August began with rising fears that another recession was about to hit. That was then.

A month later, the economy and the stock market appear more resilient, suggesting that consumers, businesses and investors remain confident enough to keep spending.

A more authoritative test will come Friday, when the government issues the August jobs report. Employers are expected to have added 93,000 jobs, which would not be enough to significantly lower the jobless rate of 9.1 percent.

But it would solidify evidence that the economy, though still weak, is growing steadily. Many analysts now expect it to strengthen in the months ahead.

A stream of data released Thursday bolstered the case for an economy that’s healthier than it seemed just weeks ago:

- Americans kept shopping in August despite higher prices and a hurricane that battered the East Coast during the important back-to-school shopping season.
- Car buyers lifted U.S. sales last month for most automakers. Analysts had expected a weaker August because of anxiety about the economy and Hurricane Irene, which forced many dealers to close during the month’s final weekend.

• Fewer people applied for unemployment benefits last week, a sign that the job market may be improving slightly.

• Manufacturing managed to expand in August for the 25th straight month. Last month’s growth, though modest, defied fears that manufacturing, one of the economy’s few sources of strength, had contracted last month.

All that delivered a sense of relief that the economy is still expanding — even if it’s not enough to reduce unemployment, raise wages and drive the housing market out of its depression.

“Today’s releases add to the evidence that underlying economic conditions aren’t half as bad as feared a few weeks ago,” said Paul Ashworth, an economist at Capital Economics.

Early last month, some economists had warned that the economy might be sliding into a recession — that is, if it were not already in one. The economy had managed to plod ahead at an annual growth rate of just 0.7 percent for the first six months of the year. Growth that scant leaves an economy vulnerable to shocks.

And the shocks arrived. The worsening European debt crisis threatened U.S. banks. Politicians fought to the final hours over whether to raise the debt ceiling. Standard & Poor’s downgraded long-term U.S. debt. A regional manufacturing index plunged.

Idaho Repays Federal Loan for Unemployment Insurance

Repayment through bond issue saves Idaho employers from federal insurance tax increase.

TIMES-NEWS

Thousands of Idaho businesses were spared from a federal tax increase Thursday when state officials approved repayment of a massive federal loan.

Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter agreed to repay $202.4 million to the federal government on loans it borrowed in 2009 and 2010 in order to continue paying unemployment insurance benefits after the state’s Unemployment Insurance Trust Fund went broke during the recession.

The loans were repaid with proceeds from bonds issued in mid-August that were authorized by Otter and the Legislature as part of a Department of Labor initiative to return the trust fund to solvency, said Labor officials.

The money had to be repaid to the federal government by Nov. 8, or Idaho’s

50,000 employers covered by the unemployment insurance system would have been hit with an additional federal tax of $21 per worker in 2012. That amount would increase annually until the entire loan plus interest — a total of about $228 million — was repaid.

By repaying the loan early, the state saved Idaho employers more than $650,000 in interest. The Department of Labor owed the federal government about $5.5 million in 2011 interest on the money through August. The loan had been interest free until the beginning of this year.

More than 30 states had to borrow money from the federal government after seeing their trust funds dry up during the recession. Traditionally, these loans are repaid through an extra tax on a state’s employers, imposed either by the state or by the U.S. Department of Labor. There is no legal authority in Idaho for the state to impose a surcharge to repay loans.

To avoid the additional federal tax, the Idaho Department of Labor obtained authority to issue bonds at an overall savings to business. Under terms of the bonds, which were underwritten by Goldman Sachs and issued through the Idaho Housing and Finance Association, the Department of Labor will repay bondholders over four years from revenues generated through the normal state unemployment insurance tax. The bondholder’s interest rate is 1.017 percent, compared to the 3 percent to 4 percent rate the federal government is charging.

Overall, the state will pay about $207 million to redeem the bonds by August 2015, plus the $5.5 million in interest to the federal government this year. That compares to the $228 million that would have been paid through higher employer taxes.

NEW GRANT TO HELP DISPLACED DELL WORKERS

TIMES-NEWS

The U.S. Department of Labor on Thursday announced a $277,617 National Emergency Grant supplemental award to continue providing training and re-employment to the hundreds of workers laid off when Dell Inc. closed its Twin Falls call center in January 2010.

“As the economy of Twin Falls begins to grow, properly trained workers will be a key to business success and expansion,” Jane Oates, assistant secretary of the department’s Employment and Training Administration, said in a written release. “This grant will give former employees of Dell the training they need to upgrade their job skills for the region’s in-demand industries.”

Funding is being awarded to the Idaho Department of Labor. In February 2010, a grant was approved for up to $1,324,672, with $614,808 released initially. The remaining $709,864 was approved for release in December 2010. The supplement announced today brings the total amount awarded to $1,602,289.

NEW ON THE BOOKSHELF

‘Strange: Unexplained Tales from Idaho and Beyond’

(Uintah Springs Press, $12.95)

Ever seen a ghost with crew cut and khakis at Buhl’s senior center? Buhl writer Cathy Wilson figures that isn’t the only specter in the downtown district, where underground delivery tunnels are walled up.

And now Wilson’s paranormal observations — and those of her family, friends and neighbors over the years in Idaho, Utah and Missouri — are the stuff of her newly published book.

In “Strange: Unexplained Tales from Idaho and Beyond,” you’ll find voices and moving objects at Twin Falls’ historical museum, cold spots in a Gooding theater, a turning doorknob in Twin Falls’ Old Towne. Spirits, Wilson says.

The author, writing under the name Catmarie Wilson, says Old Towne workers found candy canes left by a child ghost in one building, and smelled pickles and cigarettes in another. And she describes the unexplained on U.S. Highway 30: a teen girl’s spotting of a shadowy jaywalker, a woman’s claim that time is compressed on a stretch west of Buhl.

If you don’t buy it as paranormal, you might enjoy it as folklore.

Wilson will sign copies from 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday at the Buhl Public Library.

The Play and a Reading

In Twin Falls: Random Acts of Theatre Players will perform “The Guys” at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 8-10 and at 2 p.m. Sept. 10-11 at the College of Southern Idaho’s Fine Arts Theater.

Tickets are $10; purchase at 420-3979, ratplayers@gmail.com or CSI Fine Arts box office (9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.). Proceeds will be donated to area firefighters; RAT Players will present a check during a ceremony at 7 p.m. Sept. 11 at Twin Falls City Park.

In Hailey: Separately, Company of Fools will do a free reading of “The Guys” at 2 p.m. Sept. 11 at the Liberty Theatre, 110 N. Main St. in Hailey. Doors open at 1:30 p.m. Donations will go to Blaine County Search and Rescue. Information: 578-9122.

Tragedy and Hope

BY ANDREW WEEKS
aweeks@magicvalley.com

When the World Trade Center towers came tumbling down on Sept. 11, 2001, the tragedy was forever imprinted on America’s conscience. Those old enough to recall the horrific day likely remember the moment they heard the news.

“Where were you when the second plane hit the tower? I dare say that 90 percent of the population over the age of 18 know exactly where they were,” said Tony Mannen. “They know what they were doing and who they were with.”

The same question will be asked during a two-person play called “The Guys,” on stage Sept. 8-11 at the College of Southern Idaho’s Fine Arts Theater. Mannen, founder of the Random Acts of Theatre Players, is directing the play.

The two RAT performers — Derrick Hanson of Twin Falls and Liberty Yates of Kimberly — make a great team, he said.

“When I saw these two read together I saw something,” Mannen said. “I don’t know what it was, but they’re a perfect match for this.”

“The Guys” was written by New York resident Anne Nelson soon after the terrorist attacks and was first performed as a reading that December by Bill Murray and Sigourney Weaver

A Place to Party

Downtown Twin Falls has younger visitors on weekend nights in recent months. The reason? New businesses that cater to teens and young adults.

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

Sit beside Twin Falls’ Main Avenue on a Friday or Saturday night, and you’ll hear plenty of pounding bass and laughter from teenagers.

That hasn’t always been the case. But with a new dance floor at Charlie’s Food Store, a fledgling hookah lounge and a new dance club over Radio Rondevoo, downtown Twin Falls is looking a little younger lately.

In recent years, downtown has had its share of bars, stores and restaurants, but there haven’t been many places to party for teens and young adults.

Not anymore. Club Radio, which opened over Radio Rondevoo in June, gives 21-and-older patrons a smoke-free place to dance on Friday nights.

Lupe Castaneda, part owner of Radio Rondevoo, said Club Radio has drawn people in their 40s, but the crowd skews younger. And the business isn’t forgetting those who aren’t old enough to drink.

“We want to open (Club Radio) up for 18 and up because we’ve had a lot of requests for it,” Castaneda said. She and the other owners haven’t made concrete plans for an under-21 night yet, but watch for it.

Radio Rondevoo is getting in on the action, too.

“We’ve had a lot of ... Latin artists come to the Radio Rondevoo,” Castaneda said. “It’s drawn a lot of the younger crowd as well.”

Hookah Paradise, an 18-and-older business on Main Avenue, provides a hangout for those too young to go to bars. Ashtyn Jones and Chelcee Brann, both 18, did-

Artistic Inspiration: Southern Idaho's Iconic Trout Stream

BY KAREN BOSSICK
For the Times-News

KETCHUM • Artist James Cook has painted in every state, his sweeping brushstrokes taking in the Kansas plains, the Mississippi Delta and the jagged Sawtooth Mountain peaks.

But he has a special fondness for Silver Creek Preserve, a spring-fed world-class trout stream that sits under the Picabo hills. The Arizona artist was introduced to them 30-some years ago and has returned to Idaho every year to paint them anew.

"I first became engaged with Silver Creek from a hill looking down," Cook recalled. "The water is extraordinarily clear and the reflection from the sky just extraordinary. And the longer I spent looking at the reflections of cottonwood on the water the more the creek became alive to me."

Cook collaborated with Ketchum gallery owner Gail Severn on an exhibition titled "Light on Silver Creek" in honor of the preserve's 30th anniversary. He will be on hand to discuss his work during tonight's free Gallery Walk from 5 to 8 p.m. around Ketchum. And he'll discuss his work during a free Artist Chat at 10 a.m. Saturday at the gallery, 400 First Ave. N., in Ketchum.

He will donate a percentage of sales to the preserve.

"There's not anyone who paints Silver Creek the way James does," Severn said. "He captures the essence of Silver Creek. You can take a beautiful photo of the place and capture a second in time. But there's something about his brushstrokes that capture the light, the movement of the water. They really, truly capture the vibrancy of the place."

Another exhibit in tonight's Gallery Walk lineup that should appeal to dog-loving residents of southern Idaho is Martin Osborne's series of photographs that he calls "Mute — The Silence of Dogs" at Gallery DeNovo, 320 First Ave. N.

Osborne, a London photographer, was left alone in a car as a youngster, and he never forgot his sense of abandonment even though he had no reason to fear his parents wouldn't return for him. He began noticing what he thought was the same kind of terror on the faces of many dogs he saw left in parked cars.

One photograph features a border collie sitting with his ear cocked as if listening for his human companion to return. In another, a black Lab sits expectantly, an almost bewildered look in his eyes.

"He's really captured the humanistic side to these dogs," said Gallery DeNovo assistant Gail Dwyer. "When you look into their eyes, there's a lot of angst — they seem to say, 'Is someone out there coming to get me?'"

Art lovers are invited to bring their dogs with them to view the exhibit. The gallery will serve up dog water and doggy biscuits, along with its usual wine. Ten percent of sales will go to The Animal Shelter of the Wood River Valley. Gallery DeNovo will also sell copies of Osborne's photography book, titled "My Name is Moose," which captures Osborne's own Scottish terrier as he tries to measure up to a prize show dog only to realize his real worth may lie elsewhere.

Once viewers have finished looking into the eyes of dogs, they can step across the hall into the Friesen Gallery, which is showing Mary Josephson's exhibit "Look into My Eyes." The Portland, Ore., artist uses paintings, embroidery and mosaic tiles to encourage people to communicate person to person rather than through the answering machines, email, texting and tweeting that she says people hide behind nowadays.

"As a military brat I learned to look for clues to try to communicate with other children, to do what I call 'speed-friending,'" she said. "I hope my work offers clues to communication."

"It doesn't just attract the younger scene," Fleck said.

Not all the hot spots are new. The bar attached to Charlie's Food Store is also drawing in a younger crowd these days. Joey Bravo, who DJs at Charlie's, said the owner put in a new sound system, lights and dance floor.

"He totally revamped the place," Bravo said. Fridays and Saturdays are now dedicated to dancing for people 21 and older.

Downtown's new face is a welcome change for Garrett Amos, 19, who comes to Hookah Paradise from Jerome.

"There's nothing to do in Jerome," Amos said. "Except go to Walmart."

"And that's not even downtown," added his friend, Brian Perez.

Unless that changes in their eyes — or until they turn 21 — they'll make the trek to Twin Falls in search of their weekend entertainment.

in New York City. It had a popular first year, with the parts being read by other notable performers such as Anthony LaPaglia, Amy Irving, Helen Hunt, Stephen Lang, Susan Sarandon and Tim Robbins, among others.

The 90-minute play — produced in full stage form in Twin Falls — tells the story of a fire captain, played by Hanson, who lost his crew while they tried to save the lives of others caught in the terrorist attacks. Faced with the daunting task to give their eulogies, he is left without words. He soon meets a writer, played by Yates, who is herself struggling to come to terms with the tragedy, and together they set out to write the eulogies of the firefighters.

“We’re trying to pay respect to the heroes that fell on 9/11,” Mannen said. “It’s life-affirming. It tells people’s stories — normal human beings thrust into a situation way beyond their control, but who still try to control it in a heroic fashion.”

Business manager Tamara Harmon said RAT tries to do something dramatic every year and in the past has produced such plays as “Death of a Salesman” and “A Streetcar Named Desire.”

When Mannen, Harmon and her husband, Jud, who is the technical director, were introduced to “The Guys” through a friend, they knew it was something they wanted for Twin Falls.

“The three of us are pretty patriotic,” Harmon said. “We felt like it was a perfect fit for the community.”

The play’s firefighter and writer are fictional, but based on real experiences. The actors have been touched by their roles, they said, but it hasn’t always been easy psyching themselves up to play their parts.

“It’s pretty tough to breathe any kind of life into the character,” Hanson said.

Yates was pregnant with her first baby when the terrorist attacks happened. At the time, she thought: What kind of a world am I bringing my child into?

But, she said, the play is not so much a reflection of the tragedy as it is about hope. It’s serious, sad and at times humorous.

As the two sit in the firefighter’s living room, he shares with the writer memories of his friends who were lost:

“Everybody loves Barney,” Hanson’s character says. “You know, Barney was not even supposed to work that day. He just came down to see Dave. Oh, Dave. Let me tell you about Dave ...”

Expect Old Tractors, Small-town Charm at Bellevue Parade

BY KAREN BOSSICK

For the Times-News

The speed on Idaho Highway 75 will turn down a notch on Sunday when antique steam tractors sputter through Bellevue for the town’s annual Labor Day Parade.

While Saturday’s Big Hitch parade up in Ketchum brings out the antique wagons and stagecoaches, Bellevue’s parade usually brings out assorted farm implements and the other ingredients of a small-town parade.

The Bellevue parade starts at 1 p.m. Sunday, closing down Highway 75 for its duration.

Two days of live music, children’s activities, food booths and antique vendors will follow in Bellevue City Park at Third and Elm streets.

“It’s always had an old-fashioned, hometown feel,” said resident Judith Peak. “I remember my daughter and her friends creating a covered wagon out of their little red wagon and dressing up in pioneer dress and bonnets. The parade provides a sense of community, a good way to enjoy the Labor Day weekend.”

Peak and her husband, Gary Peak, who own Splash ‘n’ Dash car wash and gas station in Bellevue, will be this year’s grand marshals. That means Gary Peak won’t be at his usual post herding parade participants.

“For many years, Gary has orchestrated the Bellevue Labor Day Parade, as well as being active in many community events and organizations. So it only seemed fitting that this year he and Judith would be recognized as the grand marshals,” organizer Stefany Mahoney said.

Gary Peak shrugs off the praise, saying it’s all about community: “I love the small-town atmosphere and how we take care of each other.”

Following the parade, spread out your quilt at Bellevue City Park. There’ll be live music from Up a Creek; Dallas Alice, a Louisville, Ky., rock band; and X-Latino, an Idaho group that plays originals and Latino hits. Children’s activities will include an obstacle course, bungee run, fun slide, jumpy castle and train ride. And more than 30 antique and art vendors from throughout Idaho will set up around the park.

Monday will kick off with the second annual Bellevue Labor Day 5K Fun Run Walk to benefit the Bellevue Fire Department. The fun run starts at 9 a.m. at the park.

“Some towns raise money for their firefighters by throwing a ball. We use our feet,” Mahoney said.

The live music will strike up again at noon Monday with Good Ju-Ju, The Kim Stocking Band, New Transit and Kole Moulton. Children’s activities will resume, as well.

Bruins, Spartans Ready to Rumble

BY RYAN HOWE
rhowe@magicvalley.com

It's Idaho vs. North America.

Created in 2008, the Rocky Mountain Rumble is an annual four-game showcase pitting Idaho high school teams against out-of-state opponents at Holt Arena in Pocatello.

Twin Falls and Minico are among the participants this Saturday. The Bruins kick off against Raymond (Alberta, Canada) at 10:30 a.m. and the Spartans fol- low at 1:30 p.m. with a matchup against Galena (Nev.).

Other games on the RMR schedule are Pocatello vs. Douglas (Nev.) and High- land vs. Carson City (Nev.).

"There are only four Ida- ho teams that get to play in it, so it's a privilege," said Minico senior Dallin Grif- fin. "We want to play for Idaho. We want to go in there, be aggressive and play a good game."

Highland and Minico are the only two Idaho teams to have played in all four years of the Rumble. The Spar- tans are 1-2, defeating Col- fax (Calif.) in 2008 and los- ing to Bear River (Utah) in 2009 and Elizabeth (Colo.) in 2010.

"The opportunity to play a high-caliber team from outside our state has really helped our program. I think we're stronger as the year goes on because of it," said Minico coach Tim Perrigot. "You're not just represent- ing Minico football, you're representing the state of Idaho. You want to make people proud of Idaho foot- ball."

Minico, which won its opener 41-6 over Kuna last week, looks to break its RMR losing streak against a Galena team that went 2-7 last season, but only gradu- ated four seniors. The Griz- zlies lost 28-20 to Bishop Manogue last week despite amassing 343 yards of of- fense.

"They're a pretty well put together team. They look athletic and run-heavy," Minico senior John Walker

Hot Start Lifts Bowling Green

TIMES-NEWS

Idaho started hot. Bowling Green started hotter.

Matt Schilz hooked up with Eugene Cooper for two first- quarter touchdowns as Bowling Green routed the Vandals 32-15 in Moscow on Thursday in the season opener for both teams.

Idaho quarterback Brian Reader hit Michael LeGrone for a 5-yard touchdown pass to open the scoring, but it was all Bowling Green after that as the Falcons scored 30 straight points.

Reader connected with Armauni Johnson in the fourth quarter to make it 30-15 and the Vandals got the ball back, but running back Ryan Bass was tackled in the end zone for a safety to kill any dreams of a comeback.

Hornets Survive in Kimberly

BY STEPHEN MEYERS
smeyers@magicvalley.com

KIMBERLY • The Bulldogs showed their inexperience. Declo showed off its powerful combo of outside and oppo- site hitters Keva Robinson and Sydney Webb.

The pair combined for 24 kills Thursday, including six in the decisive fifth set to beat Kimberly on the road 18-25, 25-16, 25-18, 17-25, 15-12.

Robinson, who finished the match with 13 kills, scored the 14th point in the fifth set with a lob over the out- stretched hands of the Kimberly front line, and Ryley Payne finished off the Bulldogs with her third ace of the night.

"This is a really big win for us. Kim- berly is always a pretty good team," said Webb, who had 11 kills and six aces. "We were a little scared heading into that last game, but we were able to come together and pull it off."

The Hornets (3-1) nearly squandered away a 2-1 lead as Kimberly (1-2) easily won the fourth set 25-17 and went up 3-0 in the final set.

"Our inexperience then caught up with us," said Kimberly coach Lawrence Pfefferle. "We played alright in the first and fourth games, and had the fifth game, but let them back into it."

The Bulldogs played a lineup with only three players who had varsity ex- perience coming into the season: sen- iors Kaitlyn Goetz and Kylie Haskell, and junior outside hitter Katy Robin- son.

"We're still a little wet behind the ears," Pfefferle said. "At this point of the season, it's fundamentals and getting that game-speed experience. It's going to take a while to come together."

Robinson led Kimberly with 17 kills,

"Tonight was a good win for us, and that tournament is going to be a good challenge for this team."

while Goetz added eight. Freshman setter Tannah Bair dished out 24 assists for the Bulldogs, who host Wendell on Tuesday before playing in the Twin Falls tournament Sept. 10.

Bailey Wilson had 12 kills for Declo, which served 19 aces. The Hornets will join Kimberly at the Twin Falls tourna- ment.

"We're looking forward to playing those big schools," said Declo coach Keri Wilson. "Tonight was a good win for us, and that tournament is going to be a good challenge for this team."

Georgia Giddy Over Freshman Crowell

ASSOCIATED PRESS

ATHENS, Ga. • One teammate remembers a scrimmage. There was Isaiah Crowell, leaping over a defender near the sideline, somehow man- aging to stay inbounds, then bursting ahead for a few extra yards.

Another talks of a goal- line drill. That's when Crowell seemed to be stopped short of the end zone, only to break not one but two tackles before div- ing in.

"He's every bit as good as advertised," Georgia quarterback Aaron Murray said. "Every day in prac- tice, this kid turns peo- ple's heads. Everyone is like, 'Wow!' at some of the things he does."

Now, it's time to see what the heralded fresh- man can do against an ac- tual opponent.

Crowell might start his first college game for the 19th-ranked Bulldogs. He'll surely get plenty of carries Saturday night in a crucial opener against No. 5 Boise State. And, say this, he's certainly not lacking for confi- dence.

"I don't think it's going to be that tough a transition for me," Crowell said. "I be- lieve I can play with some of the best."

He endeared himself to Georgia fans from the very first day, breaking out an actual bulldog to proclaim he was signing with his home-state team. They'll really be grate- ful if he can lead a resurgence of the red and black, which is coming off its first losing season since 1996.

Murray has no doubt that Crowell's debut against one of the country's most successful programs will be the start of something big.

Really big.

PREP RALLY

THREE AND OUT

A look at this week’s biggest prep football games

Buhl vs. Wood River

The skinny: Tough to say which team has the advantage – is it Wood River because the Wolverines have a game under their belt (a 25-22 loss to Sugar-Salem)? Or is it Buhl because it might be a pinch fresher and have had a chance to see scout its opponent live? “They’re at game two, we’re at game one,” Buhl coach Stacy Wilson noted. Whatever the case, this is a game that has gotten progressively more competitive since Kevin Stilling took over Wood River’s program – a 16-0 loss to the Indians was much more competitive than 2009’s 46-0 score.

Key matchup No. 1: Wood River’s wing backs against Buhl’s linebackers – David Murdoch, Stephen Mejia and Micah Schneidermann. “We need to block their linebackers,” Stilling said. “To me, that was the poorest phase of our game last year.”

Key matchup No. 2: Buhl’s offensive line against Wood River’s defensive line. “They did a good job last week with Sugar-Salem,” Buhl coach Stacy Wilson said, “and we’re going to have to put a few more wrinkles in offensively and put up more points than last year.”

Prediction: Buhl 23, Wood River 21

—Patrick Sheltra

Hagerman at Castleford 7 p.m.

The skinny: It’s the 2011 edition of the West End’s 8-man rivalry. Castleford, which has finished with a third-place state trophy in each of the past two seasons, has won the last two in the series, 56-34 last year and 50-40 in 2009. Hagerman finished third in Class 1A Division I in 2010. It’s the season opener for Hagerman, while the hosts are coming off a big win at Raft River last Friday.

Key matchup No. 1: Hagerman quarterback Kade Kress vs. Castleford’s defense. A first-team all-conference defensive back and honorable mention receiver as a freshman, Kress moves under center for the Pirates in 2011. There he’ll be able to touch the ball every play and, the coaching staff hopes, have a bigger impact on the game.

Key matchup No. 2: Hagerman’s speed vs. Castleford’s power. Last season the Pirates were a predominantly edge-oriented team on both sides of the ball, trying to utilize team speed. Against the power football of Castleford it didn’t end well, though Hagerman did win the Snake River Conference and got to the state semifinals. This season the Pirates are trying to balance it out with a little power. Success in that department will give them a dual threat that will be tough to neutralize even for teams of Castleford’s standing.

Prediction: Castleford 42, Hagerman 40.

—David Bashore

Kimberly at American Falls

The skinny: In last season’s Week One matchup, American Falls scored on 1-yard touchdown with 1:28 left in the game to steal a wild 46-41 win in Kimberly, spoiling a Superman-like effort from Bulldogs’ running back Cody Casperson, who scored six touchdowns. Kimberly went on to go 8-3 and win the Sawtooth Central Idaho Conference before bowing out of the state playoffs to Snake River in the semifinals. American Falls went 5-4, losing to South Fremont in the first round. American Falls is coming off a 17-13 win over Aberdeen.

Key matchup No. 1: Who’s going to run the ball for the Bulldogs? Casperson was the workhorse for Kimberly last season and had a strong running mate in quarterback Seth Champlin, who is back for his senior season. Jade Wadsworth and Jeremy Howell have to help carry Champlin carry the load in head coach Kirby Bright’s Wing-T offense.

Key matchup No. 2: Kimberly’s 3-5-3 defense against the Beavers’ spread offense. Quarterback Nick Herseim returns for American Falls after tossing 20 touchdowns as a sophomore last season. He’ll throw to receivers Kolton Qualls and Justin Kress, who each had more than 300 yards receiving last season. Champlin helps anchor the defensive backfield for the Bulldogs.

Prediction: American Falls 30, Kimberly 28

Bruin Girls Win Burley XC Invite

BY RYAN HOWE
rhowe@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • Alyssa Brann and Chelsea Stevens paced the Twin Falls girls to a narrow victory Thursday at the Burley Invitational.

Brann far outdistanced the pack in 22 minutes, 39 seconds, over a minute faster than runner-up Stevens.

“I think if I would have pushed it the last mile I would have had a better time, but overall I was satisfied with it,” Brann said.

The Bruins placed first as a team with 44 points, edging Canyon Ridge (45) and Pocatello (46).

With only two seniors on the team, Brann is Twin Falls’ best returning state qualifier for Twin Falls and she’s hoping to solidify her leadership role – despite being only a sophomore.

“I feel a lot of pressure from my coaches and parents and the rest of the school. It’s a lot of pressure, but I think it makes me better because it gives me something to work for,” Brann said.

Megan Mabey was Burley’s top finisher in fifth place. Kayla Lee led Canyon Ridge with a seventh-place finish.

In the boys’ race, Pocatello placed five runners in the Top 10 to finish first as a team, led by freshman phenom Elijah Armstrong in 17:28. Burley was second, followed by Twin Falls and Canyon Ridge.

Burley’s Parley Pickett ran second place through most of the course, which was held at Freedom Park and featured a flat terrain that alternates between grass, pavement and gravel. However, Twin Falls’ Matt Schenk ran down Pickett with about a quarter mile to go.

“It looked like he was getting tired, he started slowing down so I decided to go catch him,” said Schenk, who finished in 18:06, three seconds ahead of Pickett.

The Twin Falls boys also only have two seniors, led by defending state champ Erik Harris, who did not race Thursday.

“We’re hoping to just bring the team with us as the season progresses and go to state,” said Schenk, who shaved almost a full minute off his time from last week’s season opener.

ATHLETE OF THE WEEK

Goals, Not Flips, Put The Focus on Burley’s Castaneda

BY RYAN HOWE
rhowe@magicvalley.com

Castaneda

Brandon Castaneda ran in front of the Bobcat bench and did a celebratory back flip.

Instead of holding up a “10” to award Castaneda for sticking the landing, the official instead held up a soft red card and ejected Castaneda from the game.

According to Burley coach Wes Nyblade, the ref said Castaneda was “bringing attention to himself.”

Funny thing is, Castaneda doesn’t need gymnastics to bring attention to himself. With seven goals in Burley’s first three games, people are already taking notice.

“This kid, if you give him an inch, he will put the ball in the back of the net if you fall asleep on him,” said Nyblade. “He is a pure goal scorer. He’s one of those kids that comes along, and I haven’t had one in a long time.”

Nyblade has known all along what kind of weapon Castaneda is, but the junior has been able to fly under the radar early this season because opponents haven’t been aware of him. Castaneda wasn’t on the team last year due to academic ineligibility.

“I really regret it because they went to state and I think I would have helped them a little bit,” Castaneda said. “Grades are very important. I learned to pay really close attention in school, get my grades up, turn everything in on time

If he had been on the field last year, Castaneda would have formed a powerful one-two punch with his cousin Gustavo Castaneda, who led Burley in scoring as a senior last year.

“If I would have had him last year, oh my ... I mean, serious damage with his cousin on the other side,” Nyblade said. “What I’ve got (in Brandon) is a goal scorer, and that makes all the difference in the world.”

Now Brandon is focused on leading Burley back to state, just like Gustavo did.

“I feel really happy and excited because my cousin Gustavo was the best player last year and I want to be like him,” Brandon Castaneda said. “I look up to him because he’s like my big brother. It motivates me to score more goals and to put a lot of effort into games.”

Serena, Djokovic Win Easily

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • Neither her words nor her play indicated that Serena Williams was distracted one bit Thursday at the U.S. Open.

She would have been forgiven if they had, of course, given that her older sister Venus withdrew from the tournament 24 hours earlier and revealed a recently diagnosed immune system disease.

Focused as ever, Serena absolutely overwhelmed Michaella Krajicek of the Netherlands 6-0, 6-1 to reach the third round, showing precisely why many consider her the favorite to win a fourth championship at Flushing Meadows and 14th Grand Slam title overall.

How was it to set aside Venus' situation?

"It really wasn't that difficult, to be honest. I mean, she wants me to do the best; she wouldn't want me to suffer," Serena said. "So now, if anything, it should motivate me more."

If that's so, look out. She's lost three games in two matches this week. She's won 14 matches in a row and 29 of her last 30 on hard courts. On Thursday, she hit 10 aces, erased the only break point she faced, compiled a 25-5 edge in winners and made only 10 unforced errors in a powerful display that lasted all of 49 minutes.

"Did you guys see the match? Or was it too quick?" Krajicek asked reporters.

That was part of a pattern in Arthur Ashe Stadium on Day 4 of the year's last Grand Slam tournament: Winners Serena, Novak Djokovic (two), Roger Federer (seven), Caroline Wozniacki (two), and Francesca Schiavone (two) combined to lose a total of 14 games in five matches.

As Djokovic left the court, he said a fan told him: "Hey, listen, I paid 100 bucks. You're staying an hour and a half on the court. That's a lot to pay for a ticket. Give me something so I get back home with a happy face. Give me a racket or something."

Djokovic won the first 14 games, sending reporters scrambling to find the last "triple bagel" at the U.S. Open (for the record, Ivan Lendl won by a shutout in 1987). Carlos Berlocq finally did win a game — earning a standing ovation in the process — but Djokovic won the match 6-0, 6-0, 6-2.

Tennis fans who wanted some drama needed to watch Juan Carlos Ferrero, the 2003 French Open champion and U.S. Open runner-up, outlast No. 7-seeded Gael Monfils 7-6 (5), 5-7, 6-7 (5), 6-4, 6-4 at a packed Louis Armstrong Stadium.

said. "We've been working hard. Everybody here is hungry and ready to play."

Saturday's game will be Twin Falls' season opener, and the Bruins have a tough test right out of the gate.

"It will be a good test for us — a really good test, a challenge. That's what we want," said Twin Falls coach Allyn Reynolds. "We're glad to get up there and play in that environment. When playoffs come around, we'll be ready if we have to go back and play there."

At last season's Rumble, Raymond beat Class 4A state runner-up Blackfoot 34-19. The Bruins have very little film to study, plus Raymond's longtime head coach resigned and one of his assistants took over.

"It's kind of a shot in the dark. We're really not sure exactly what we're going to see," Reynolds said. "We think we've got some things, if they do what they did last year, but you never know."

The Bruins will be the first Idaho team to play a game on Idaho State's newly installed field turf, which replaced the hideously outdated and unforgiving brillo pad-like carpet.

"It's always fun to play in the dome," said Twin Falls tight end Dylan Dobbs. "It's going to be fun playing a team from a different country, you've kinda got that USA-Canadian rivalry, so we'll see how it goes. It's going to take a total team effort. That's all 11 guys giving their best effort every play. We can't take plays off. They're big guys, so we'll have to beat them with our speed. We've got some talented kids out here."

Times-News writer Stephen Meyers contributed to this report.

REPORTER

South-central Idaho's best and largest news provide seeks a reporter to dig deep into the intersection of people and policy to consistently bring our readers the stories they'll keep talking about.

The beat is an eight-county area from which the right candidate will sniff out the best stories from both rural and urban settings. Tasks will range from rooting out the reasons behind utility increases that hit thousands of pocketbooks to profiling a thinning group of Pearl Harbor attack survivors who call the area home.

The ideal candidate will be equal parts humanist, self-promoter and policy wonk, able to hold court with county prosecutors and rodeo queens alike. Desk jockeys should look elsewhere, as success here will be won with many handshakes and the ideas gleaned after—not through a slew of phone calls.

The reporter's primary responsibility will be to find and develop six snappy enterprise stories per week and pitch in on other beats when needed, such as when our government reporter is covering the annual state legislative session in Boise.

Twin Falls is home to 44,000 residents and serves as the cultural and economic hub of south-central Idaho. Year-round outdoor recreation abounds, both in the Snake River Canyon and in the surrounding mountains. You'll work with a vibrant, growing group of journalists committed to producing Idaho's best news product.

Competitive candidates should have a bachelor's degree in journalism or a related field. Prior journalism experience is preferred. Please include a cover letter, resume and three work samples that show your versatility as a reporter and writer. The successful candidate must have a valid driver's license and a good driving record.

CREATIVE DESIGNER

-Designer will help develop and produce advertising solutions for a wide array of clients.

-We need a team player with excellent communication skills and the ability to pitch in to help on projects wherever needed.

-The successful candidate will design advertisements on tight deadlines, and generate ad ideas and campaigns with their sales team. The candidate will take ideas from the Classifieds Manager and create smart, and eye-catching classified sections, while adhering to tight deadline schedules.

-Qualified applicants will have an Associate Degree in Computer Applications, Computer Graphics, Graphic Arts or the equivalent in experience. Experience with Macintosh computers using Adobe InDesign®, Illustrator®, Photoshop®, and strong typing skills are essential. The candidate will use graphic application software on both the Mac and PC platforms. These include, but are not limited to the Adobe Creative Suite, QuarkXpress, ArcGis, and Prinergy Evo plate imposition software. Experience with web graphic application software such as Flash®, and DreamWeaver®, is preferred.

-The Creative Designer is responsible for prioritizing, tracking, and maintaining tight deadline schedules on multiple projects, including ad production, graphic production, photo manipulation, and plate processing.

-The ability to work scheduled hours including some evenings and occasional weekends.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

*"So, the powder's low, and the larder's clean,
And surrender drapes, with its blacks impending,
All the stage for a sorry and sullen scene:
Yet indulge me my whim of a mad cap ending!"*
— Helen Gray Cone

After a simple auction to four hearts, West has no reason to avoid leading one of the unbid suits. With his potential defensive tricks, a passive defense seems right, so the club nine looks like the most helpful card. East wins his ace and cannot sensibly switch to any other suit, so continues with a second club.

South takes the second trick and cannot draw trumps at once. If he plays a trump to dummy's ace and a second trump, the defense might win and play a third round. Even if trumps split, this could leave him with a problem, as there would be only one trump in dummy to cope with two or more possible spade losers.

An alternative approach might be to draw no trumps at all and play on a crossruff. The danger with following that route (or even drawing exactly one round of trumps with the ace) is that the defense may make their three high trumps separately. Try it, and you will see that the defenders are likely to win out.

The simplest winning line is to give up a trump at trick three. You can win the return, then play the heart ace, and only now will you tackle the spades. After the spade king and a spade to the ace, you ruff a spade. You can later ruff another spade to establish your fifth spade in hand. The defense wins the first trick, the heart you give up, and one more trump at the end, but that is all.

ANSWER: Your three-spade call was a limit raise and was not forcing. Hence, your partner's pass of four diamonds is also not forcing. Since one of your assets is an apparently badly placed diamond honor and you have a minimum hand with no aces, you should have no problem in passing now.

“How come I never get a top to my bathing suit like Dolly always gets?”

Today is Friday, Sept. 2, the 245th day of 2011. There are 120 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On Sept. 2, 1945, Japan formally surrendered in ceremonies aboard the USS Missouri in Tokyo Bay, ending World War II.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1666, the Great Fire of London broke out.

In 1789, the United States Treasury Department was established.

In 1864, during the Civil War, Union Gen. William T. Sherman's forces occupied Atlanta.

In 1901, Vice President Theodore Roosevelt offered the advice, “Speak softly and carry a big stick” in a speech at the Minnesota State Fair.

In 1935, a Labor Day hurricane slammed into the Florida Keys, claiming more than 400 lives.

In 1945, Ho Chi Minh declared Vietnam an independent republic. (Ho died on this date in 1969.)

In 1969, in what some regard as the birth of the Internet, two connected computers at the University of California, Los Angeles, passed test data through a 15-foot cable.

In 1986, a judge in Los Angeles sentenced Cathy Evelyn Smith to three years in prison for involuntary manslaughter for her role in the 1982 drug overdose death of comedian John Belushi. (Smith served 18 months.)

In 1991, President George H.W. Bush formally recognized the independence of the Baltic states of Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia, which had broken away from the Soviet Union.

In 1998, a Swissair MD-11 jetliner crashed off Nova Scotia, killing all 229 people aboard.

Ten years ago: South African surgeon Christiaan Barnard, who'd performed the first successful human heart transplant in 1967, died in Paphos, Cyprus, at age 78. Actor Troy Donahue, a one-time teen movie idol, died in Santa Monica, Calif., at age 65. Mike Mussina of the New York Yankees came within one strike of a perfect game against the Boston Red Sox, only to have his bid broken up in the bottom of the ninth by Carl Everett. (The Yankees won, 1-0).

Five years ago: Afghan and NATO forces launched Operation Medusa, aimed at flushing out Taliban fighters in southern Afghanistan; 14 British servicemen were killed when their patrol plane crashed. Two-time Olympic decathlon champion and four-term California congressman Bob Mathias died in Fresno, Calif., at age 75.

One year ago: Israeli and Palestinian leaders pledged in a first round of renewed peace talks in Washington to keep meeting at regular intervals. Seattle Storm forward Lauren Jackson was selected the WNBA's most valuable player for the third time in her career.

DEAR ABBY: I have a sister I love dearly. “Thea” is married to a wonderful man, and they have a 3-year-old son I love as if he were my own. My problem is Thea has a nasty, violent temper, and she doesn’t hesitate to use it toward the boy.

Recently when he was overtired and needed to go to bed, Thea said he “knows better than to push me by throwing a tantrum.” She then threatened to “beat him bloody” if he didn’t “shut up” and go to sleep. Abby, she had already swatted his behind to the point that he could no longer stand up.

This feels like abuse to me. When I suggested that perhaps Thea should try to calm down before she hits him (more than she already had), she threw me out of her house! I am terrified that this may be happening more often than I realize. But what if what I witnessed was just an isolated incident? If I act on it, I may never have a relationship with my sister again.

What (if anything) can I do? I’m worried for the safety of my nephew, but I don’t want to cause a rift I can’t mend.

— MIDWEST AUNTIE

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR AUNTIE: It appears your sister has serious anger issues and lacks parenting skills. A mother who “swats” her child to the point that he can no longer stand is an abuser, and she needs an intervention before her child is seriously hurt. Because Thea’s reaction when you tried to intervene and calm her down was to throw you out of the house, the next step is to call Childhelp USA. The toll-free number is 800-422-4453. Your call will be kept confidential and a counselor can guide you further. Please don’t procrastinate.

DEAR ABBY: My fiancé, “Roger,” died recently. I am working through the devastating grief of his passing, but the core of my pain was listening to the eulogies at his funeral.

I expected Roger’s friends and family to share happy memories and celebrate the best of his life. However, many of those who spoke — including his granddaughter — chose to remember him as a notorious womanizer both while his wife was alive and after her death. Stories were shared about how he constantly hit on much younger women, including his daughter’s childhood friends. One “gentleman” even shared an “amusing” anecdote about how he and Roger found out they were sleeping with the same woman.

I knew about Roger’s past before he met me and I managed to come to terms with it, but I did not expect it to be brought up as entertainment at his memorial. I also thought it to be inappropriate with his late wife’s family in attendance. Now my memories are tainted, and I feel dirty and used. I live 500 miles from Roger’s home and will probably never see those people again. What can I do to get over this anger that continues to haunt me?

— STILL IN MOURNING

DEAR STILL MOURNING: A eulogy is usually a respectful recapitulation of the deceased’s life story, which includes loving memories, lessons taught, examples set by the person. What happened at the funeral was an indication that Roger left behind bitter memories that were voiced by those who spoke. How sad for all concerned.

However, this has nothing to do with you and your relationship with Roger. And the quickest way to work through your feelings would be to practice forgiveness and go on with your life — in which Roger was just a chapter.

IF SEPTEMBER 2 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Obtain professional advice during the next few weeks, as you can benefit by consulting advisers in any field including doctors and lawyers. Start something new, or put key plans into motion, as the future looks rosy for anything you begin. In late November, you could be exceedingly busy and require more rest, so don't add more responsibilities to your plate. Rock along with a new romance that enters your life at the beginning of the year, but wait until March to make a firm decision. March presents a crucial turning point; to make the most beneficial decisions, ask for advice. You will intuitively make the right choice with a little help from your friends.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Although you may be elected to settle disputes because you are seen as a neutral party, don't be distracted from business as usual. This is no time to be a cutthroat pirate to achieve financial gain.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You have a gift for growth. You know that you must water a plant to make it grow. In the same way, you must feed your friendships by sharing your knowledge, your time and support.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Live and let live. It isn't necessary to sell your wares when others merely want to have a simple social discussion. Relax and ignore that itch to tinker with things to score monetarily with every contact.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Bend your views to match the majority. Remain in harmony with the group wisdom. Stick with the decision made by the team, even if you are tempted to create a little flurry of controversy.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Go after your goals fearlessly, but without stepping on anyone's toes. Consider what makes other people happy and put their needs ahead of your own. Set important matters into motion under these stars.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You have to give to get. Keep your wallet open, as being generous attracts prosperity. This is a very good time to make irrevocable decisions or set your key plans into motion.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You must be sincere to succeed. Only true love is worth the effort. Don't begin a casual fling with a business contact unless you are ready to have your feelings flung about like sale items at a garage sale.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You can keep the peace without strong-arm tactics. Be extra considerate, as a romantic partner may be repelled if treated like a business contact or expected to bow to your every whim.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Boldly go where no one has gone before. Your ability to explore possibilities is your best quality. Friends will admire your courage and a significant other may take pride in your vision.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Choose to tell the truth, as those little white lies will be transparent. You don't need to be on the defensive or try to outfox others. Believe it or not, your friends will accept you as you are.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Leave well enough alone. You must put your acting ability to work and try to fit into each scene. With liberals, keep an open mind. When hobnobbing with conservatives, honor the traditional.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your close friends could stir up creative juices by offering wise insights and forcing you to examine facts more closely. Be cautious of giving a false impression or getting corralled into a controversy.

Feds Kill 3 Wolves After Sheep Killed Near Carey

TIMES-NEWS

Federal officials killed three wolves on Wednesday after confirming they were the same wolves responsible for killing multiple livestock.

The wolves had killed four sheep on Flat Top Ranch near Carey this week and most likely three sheep in August, said Todd Grimm, the western district supervisor for the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Wildlife Services.

"As soon as we confirm a depredation, we talk to the (Idaho Department of) Fish and Game supervisor to plan a lethal order," Grimm said.

However, Grimm said very few wolves are actually killed.

"We were in the right place at the right time," he said. "Less than half of the lethal control orders actually end up killing a wolf. This time a little bit of luck was involved."

The agency has killed close to 40 wolves this year. The number is down from years prior, Grimm said.

Agency Invites Public to Dispose of Unwanted Pesticides

TIMES-NEWS

Magic Valley residents and businesses currently storing unusable pesticides can safely dispose of the chemicals for free at two locations set up by the Idaho State Department of Agriculture.

Collections will be held from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Sept. 14 at the Bureau of Land Management yard in Burley, and the same time Sept. 15 at the Twin Falls Canal Co. office in Twin Falls.

Participation is free for the first 1,000 pounds per participant. Pesticides include herbicides, insecticides and other chemicals that end in "-cide." Fertilizer, micronutrients, paint, solvents and motor oil will not be accepted.

Participants will need to register the weight of the pesticides they will dispose of by calling ISDA's Twin Falls office at 736-5277, 736-4759, or 736-4790.

Buhl Man Arrested For Selling Drugs in Boise

IDAHO STATESMAN

BOISE • Andrew E. Chapa is being held in the Ada County Jail on a felony charge of possession of marijuana with intent to deliver after a police say he was caught making a deal out of his car in a West Boise neighborhood Wednesday night and then led officers on a short pursuit when they tried to pull him over.

Chapa, 18, of Buhl, is also charged with a misdemeanor count of eluding police.

A Boise patrol officer says he was driving behind a tan Chevy Cavalier on North Mitchell Street, near the Sunflower Lane intersection, around 10 p.m. Wednesday when he saw the Cavalier go across the road and park on the wrong side of the street. The officer then watched another man walk up to the car and appear to give something to the driver, who was later identified as Chapa.

The officer then drove closer and shined a spotlight at the car, at which point the man on the street ran away and Chapa took off, driving the car northbound on Mitchell and reaching a speed of 50 mph in a matter of seconds, according to reports.

The officer followed Chapa, who pulled his car over a short distance away in the 2600 block of Mitchell Street.

Boise police arrested Chapa for the eluding charge at that point. A Meridian Police K-9 dog detected the presence of drugs in the car a short time later and officers found two bags containing a total of 25 grams of marijuana and some scales in a backpack inside the car.

Boise police developed additional undisclosed evidence that Chapa was selling marijuana and then arrested him on the delivery charge. The man police saw walk up to the car on Mitchell Street was not found, according to reports.

Chapa made his initial court appearance Thursday. His next hearing is Sept. 15.

The crime of possession of marijuana with intent to deliver is punishable by up to five years in prison.

Lunch to Raise Money for Scholarship in Honor of Late Idaho Senator

BY KAREN BOSSICK
For the Times-News

SUN VALLEY • Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter and Lt. Gov. Brad Little will preside over a luncheon designed to raise $100,000 to honor the legacy of former Sen. Clint Stennett.

The luncheon will be held from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Wednesday at the Ketchum home of Trish and Dave Wilson — 110 Lindsay Circle, on the third floor above Scott USA. It will be hosted by the Wilsons, Sen. Michelle Stennett and Rep. Wendy Jaquet.

Donations offered at the lunch will go toward the new Clint Stennett Scholarship Endowment Fund at Idaho State University, Stennett's alma mater. The scholarships will be given to college-bound students from the Wood River Valley.

Stennett, a minority leader in the Idaho Senate, passed away from brain cancer about a year ago. The Magic Valley native, who attended the College of Southern Idaho, was always talking about what a difference education made for him, Jaquet said. He also made education a priority when it came to state funding.

To RSVP, call 334-4781 or email Shari Fernandez at fernshar@isu.edu. Or, call Jaquet at 720-0968.

Sandpoint Studies Impact Fees

Planning Commission is set to tackle the tricky issue of impact fees after an expert financial consultant presented his firm's study findings.

BONNER COUNTY
DAILY BEE

SANDPOINT • The Sandpoint Planning Commission is set to tackle the tricky issue of impact fees after an expert financial consultant presented his firm's study findings.

Carson Bise of the fiscal consultant firm TischlerBise recommended that the commission consider increasing several impact fees to cover the town's projected development.

City officials requested the study as a part of their regular reexamination of impact fees every five years. According to planning director Jeremy Grimm, Bise is the national authority on the subject.

"We were lucky enough to have the preeminent impact fee advising council in the country do this study for us," he said.

Impact fees are one-time payments to the city for new commercial or residential developments. According to Bise, the total fees are determined based on need, benefit and proportionality.

The study identified four areas in Sandpoint that warranted improvement through impact fees: parks and recreation, police, fire and transportation. Impact fees help ensure that those key institutions keep pace with the town's development. The collected fees can only be used for capital improvements.

According to Fire Chief Robert Tyler, the Tischler-Bise associates assigned to the study did an incredibly thorough job of analyzing the city's unique circumstances.

"What occurred in this study is far greater than what occurred in 2005," he said.

TischlerBise's findings recommended substantial increases in fees depending on the location of the development. Outside urban renewal areas, the study proposed an increase in maximum allowable fees for a single family home to an average $7,048. Fees in the downtown urban renewal area would increase to an average $6,533. Finally, fees in the northern urban renewal area would increase to an average $6,595. The current average for all areas is $3,882.

Similarly, fees for an average commercial development would increase to a proposed $8.43 per square foot outside a renewal area, $7.34 per square foot in the downtown urban renewal area and $7.47 per square foot in the northern urban renewal area. The current total fee for all areas is $2.34 per square foot.
