Study: Idaho's Rural Roads in Poor Shape

Only Vermont's rural byways were rated in worse condition in a recent report.

BY BEN BOTKIN
bbotkin@magicvalley.com

Idaho's rural road conditions lag behind most of the nation.

A full 31 percent of Idaho's rural roads were rated in poor condition by a study recently released by TRIP, a nonpartisan national transportation research group.

That's the second-worst rate in the nation. The only state with worse rural road conditions is Vermont, at 36 percent.

The report recommends modernizing and increasing the safety features on roads, and says that improving funding is necessary to preserve and improve the nation's rural roadways. The study found that in 2009, 146 traffic fatalities in Idaho — more than half of the 226 deaths tied to vehicle accidents — were on rural roads.

Transportation officials and policymakers in the Magic Valley say that if more funding were available, it would aid road upkeep efforts. Under the state's existing system, rural highway districts, cities and counties all share 38 percent of Idaho's gas and diesel tax of 25 cents per gallon.

That funding has dropped somewhat, due at least in part to people traveling less in the recession. Fuel taxes — as well as registration fees — pulled in $43.1 million for highway districts in fiscal 2011. That's down 6.5 percent from $46.1 million in 2007, the highest amount since 2005.

State Rep. Leon Smith, R-Twin Falls and a member of the House Transportation and Defense Committee, said the slim funding stream contributes to Idaho's low ranking in the study.

At the same time, he said, highway

State to Set Online Class Requirements Today

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

The state may soon give its stamp of approval to a proposed rule that would require high school students to take online classes in order to graduate.

The Idaho State Board of Education will hold a special meeting today in Boise to vote on the rule. The measure would still have to go before the Idaho Legislature during the 2012 session, which starts in January.

Under the proposal, students starting in the class of 2016 would have to take at least two online credits.

Scott Rogers, superintendent of the Minidoka County School District, said there are a lot of unanswered questions about the state's proposal.

The largest question on some superintendents' minds, he said, is how state funding for school districts could be affected if more students take classes online. School districts receive funding based on average daily student attendance rates.

"Schools have been ramping up for these changes," Rogers said. "We have yet to see all the details."

Melissa McGrath, spokeswoman for the Idaho State Department of Education, said online class initiatives should be cost-neutral or generate savings for most school districts.

Dump Truck Takes Out Power Lines in South T.F.

ASHLEY SMITH • TIMES-NEWS

Idaho Power crews work to restore power in downtown Twin Falls Thursday afternoon. A dump truck collided with a power line, causing a local power outage for about 50 minutes.

Thursday's mishap caused a 50-minute power outage for 730 Idaho Power customers in downtown Twin Falls.

BY BRADLEY GUIRE
bguire@magicvalley.com

A construction work mishap led to the loss of power for more than 700 Idaho Power Co. customers in south Twin Falls Thursday afternoon.

According to Twin Falls Police Officer Luke Allen, a dump truck carrying gravel snagged some power lines at 1:40 p.m., when a crew was resurfacing the Twin Falls Canal Co.'s equipment yard, at 406 Sixth St. W. Power poles were not pulled down, only the wires were damaged.

Because of the incident, 730 customers in the downtown area were without power for about an hour, according to Idaho Power spokesman Kevin Winslow. Service had been restored for all but 25 customers shortly after 2:30 p.m.

No one was injured in the accident, so emergency response was limited to a few patrol officers and one fire engine. Other officers and city workers were dispatched for traffic control, as some downtown traffic signals went dark.

OBAMA'S SPEECH

'Pass This Jobs Bill'

Attacking a deepening crisis on jobs, President Barack Obama challenged a reluctant Congress Thursday night to urgently pass a larger-than-expected $450 billion plan to "jolt an economy that has stalled."

What he proposed • In announcing a plan heavy on tax cuts that he hoped would win over opponents, Obama sought to offer a package that could get through a deeply divided Congress, speed hiring in a nation where 14 million are out of work and shore up public confidence in his leadership.

What it would cost • The White House put the price tag of Obama's plan at $447 billion, with about $253 billion in tax cuts and $194 billion in federal spending. As to paying for it, Obama will ask a special debt panel in Congress to find enough savings to cover the costs of his ideas.

Left unsaid • Obama didn't estimate how many jobs would be created by his plan, which also includes new spending for construction, hiring and an extension of jobless benefits for the long-term unemployed. He says he'll release specifics a week from Monday with a proposal to stabilize long-term debt.

GROUSE GROUP SEEKS COMMENT ON CONSERVATION PLAN

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

A local group of biologists, landowners and others has moved one step closer to preserving sage grouse habitat.

The North Magic Valley Local Working Group has released the draft of its sage grouse conservation plan. The group has worked on the plan for four years.

The group will now seek public comments on its draft. Once the comments have been processed and the draft modified, the group can apply for funding for the future conservation projects it details.

“The plan itself mostly talks about what we know about the birds and their habitats and discusses threats to sage grouse in the north Magic Valley,” said Regan Berkley, a regional biologist with the Idaho Department of Fish and Game. “It uses that discussion to prioritize implementing ground projects to boost numbers.”

Fish and Game oversees local working groups throughout the state as the latter develop voluntary plans to benefit sage grouse. Last year, federal officials announced that the bird was a candidate for endangered species protection but was not a high enough priority to be listed.

The North Magic Valley group covers nine counties and more than 1.1 million acres of key sage grouse habitat. The draft states the group hopes to recover roughly 310,000 acres of potential grouse habitat.

“By saying we want to improve the habitat and raise the population numbers, it’s implicit that it’s part of the goal to keep sage grouse off the endangered species list,” Berkley said. “However, when officials are considering listing a species, they are looking at areas on a much bigger scale than ours.”

The project funding would be applied for from the Idaho Governor’s Office of Species Conservation and the U.S. Natural Resources Conservation Service. In 2010, NRCS began distributing funds for sage grouse conservation projects that also focused on improving western rangeland.

“Ranchers are scared that the bird will be listed. There is a major shared vision among environmentalists, conservationists, and ranchers,” said Tim Griffiths, NRCS Sage Grouse Initiative

Take Part NMV Grouse Plan

The draft plan is available online at <http://1.usa.gov/NMV-grouse>. Comments may be emailed to regan.berkley@idfg.idaho.gov or mailed to the IDFG’s Magic Valley regional office, 324 S. 417 East, Suite 1, Jerome, ID 83338. Comments need to be received by Sept. 16.

The North Magic Valley group hopes to work with ranchers in its area to improve the habitat without curtailing grazing. Ways to do that would include things like fence-marking projects. However, some fear that the working groups may be too limited to make enough of a difference.

“Putting some glitter on a fence will not save sage grouse,” said Katie Fite, biodiversity director at the Hailley-based Western Watersheds Project. “The groups are formed to create an illusion that something is being done. Money is spent on building more fences instead of making sure the ranchers are held to a higher expectation.”

districts “do pretty well with the money that they have.”

One advantage, if there is one for south-central Idaho, Smith said, is that there’s no major rainy season to accelerate road deterioration. In northern Idaho, there’s a bigger rainy season but no more money, he said.

Stuart Davis, executive director of the Idaho Association of Highway Districts, said it’s been difficult over the years for transportation policymakers to sell the idea of a fuel tax increase, particularly as federal transportation money has drastically increased in recent years.

He says the state’s existing model for a fuel tax is outdated, particularly as it’s consumption-based and vehicles are increasingly efficient.

“In my opinion, we need to look at a combination of registration and fuel tax increases,” he said, adding that it has to be incremental, but also would be hard to sell to the public in a recession.

The Twin Falls Highway District recently switched to repaving roads by grinding up old asphalt and turning it into a gravel base.

That saves money because fewer construction materials are needed and the asphalt doesn’t need to be hauled away, said district Director Dave Jones.

It also increases the road base for more protection against wear and tear from heavy trucks, he said.

Karen Dalton, administrator of the district, said the district has been able to avoid layoffs with good money management. Unlike other districts in Idaho, it hasn’t had to grind up paved roads into gravel roads because it can’t afford repaving, she said.

At the same time, the district isn’t turning its gravel roads into paved roads, either.

“We’re just keeping up with preventive maintenance and keeping the roads that are paved going,” she said.

Leroy Lewis, supervisor of Jerome Highway District, said: “We have quite a few projects lined up if we just had the money to do it.”

Some roads are starting to show more wear because of increased truck traffic, he said. While grants are available, competition for the available dollars makes it a challenge, Lewis said.

Hansen FFA Chapter Takes Second Award

Local fertilizer education efforts have helped the chapter bring a variety of improvements to the small Twin Falls County town.

BY CINDY SNYDER
For the Times-News

HANSEN • Hansen FFA students are helping their community grow and winning national honors in the process.

For the second straight year, the Hansen FFA chapter has won the national Nutrients for Life Foundation Helping Communities Grow competition.

“We have invited chapters from all over the U.S. to participate and, for some reason, Hansen keeps winning,” Rick Phillips, J.R. Simplot Co. spokesman and a member of the Nutrients for Life Foundation, said during a presentation on Hansen’s first day of school.

Local community involvement and gathering a coalition of industry partners earned Hansen top marks, Phillips added.

After national research showed that most Americans were afraid of fertilizers but thought it was OK to use plant nutrients, the Nutrients for Life Foundation formed the Helping Communities Grow program. Participating chapters educate their communities that plants need three key nutrients: nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium. In most agricultural fields, those nutrients come from commercial fertilizer.

Students researched fertilizer topics and made presentations to elementary students last spring. The chapter also held a fertilizer education day in conjunction with Hansen’s Arbor Day celebration in April.

Fertilizer dealers helped with chapter efforts, including four that helped sponsor an educational billboard along U.S. Highway 30.

Jeff Gerard, Hansen FFA chapter adviser, said his students are already coming up with new ideas for the 2012 competition.

Chapter members invested last year’s winnings into new signs welcoming visitors to Hansen and an expansion of the chapter’s garden of 10,000 strawberry plants.

This year’s $7,000 winnings are partially earmarked for building benches for Hansen High School hallways. Another goal is to build an outdoor classroom with a cement pad and a roof.

For its most recent win, the chapter has also been invited to give a breakfast presentation during a September worldwide fertilizer industry convention in Chicago. Mickenlie Baxter and Rylee Brown will make the presentation, Gerard said.

PADILLA RECEIVES RETAINED JURISDICTION FOR CELL PHONE HEIST

TIMES-NEWS

A Twin Falls man who was caught with a bundle of stolen mobile phones after police activated a tracking app on one phone was sentenced to a one-year retained jurisdiction program.

Omar Padilla, 20, received the sentence on Tuesday in Twin Falls County 5th District Court in lieu of a possible 12-year prison sentence, if he successfully completes the treatment program. Padilla pleaded guilty to felony grand theft in July.

He was accused of a break-in at the Sprint Store at 181 Blue Lakes Blvd. N. on the morning of May 20. Investigators used a phone tracking application to locate a stolen phone Padilla was supposedly using to make calls and found a bag full of phones in his girlfriend’s residence.

It will be up to each school district to set up a format to offer online classes.

If districts contract with a private vendor, districts will receive all the state funding and then pay the vendor. Districts could also choose to allow students to take classes through the state-sponsored Idaho Digital Learning Academy.

Under the proposed rule, students must receive at least one of the two required credits must remotely, without a teacher present in the classroom.

Many school districts are already moving in the direction of expanding online class opportunities.

“We recognize that students in today’s world need to be able to navigate the online realm for education,” Rogers said.

In the Minidoka County School District, students take online classes through IDLA. At Minico High School in Rupert, about 150 students out of more than 1,000 took online classes last year.

“That number will continue to increase,” Rogers said.

The district also launched its own online program, the Minidoka Virtual Academy, this year.

The academy, geared toward kindergarten through eighth graders, has 22 home-schooled students enrolled and there’s one

Non-traditional Students Return to College

Census study shows more education means better lifetime earnings.

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

More non-traditional students around the Magic Valley are choosing to go back to school in order to gain skills and find better job opportunities.

The trend is in line with a recent U.S. Census Bureau study, which found that higher levels of education had more of an effect on job earnings over a 40-year period than any other factor, including gender or race.

The nationwide "Education and Synthetic Work-Life Earnings" study shows the difference in earnings between someone with a professional degree and an eighth-grade education is about $72,000 per year.

Shari Stroud, Boise State University's Twin Falls program coordinator, said enrollment has gone up for Twin Falls-based classes due to the economic downturn.

"Enrollments have gone up due to the fact that people have been laid off from a job or are coming back into the work force and are finding that they can't make a decent wage without a bachelor's degree," she said.

Out of 209 local students taking classes through Boise State this semester, the majority are non-traditional students between 25 and 44 years old. About 72 percent are female.

Boise State has afternoon, evening and online programs to accommodate local students.

The University of Idaho, Idaho State University and Lewis-Clark State College also offer degree programs either at the CSI campus or online.

Brian Dobbs, director of the honors program and a sociology instructor at CSI, came back to college as a non-traditional student.

After working in the business and finance industry for nearly 20 years, he earned a master's degree in counseling from Northwest Nazarene University.

Dobbs said he hasn't noticed a major difference in the number of non-traditional students at CSI.

"CSI has always been a bit of a non-traditional campus anyway," he said. "That's part of the charm of the school — the mix that occurs with people of various generations."

Many students he's interacted with are coming back to school for a complete career change, he said.

The key for many students going back to school is finances, Dobbs said, such as what kind of jobs are available and the wages students could make after graduation.

Filer Considers Long-term Recycling, but Concerned About Cost

BY JOHN E. SWAYZE
For the Times-News

FILER • A permanent trash recycling program may help the city of Filer support a greener environment, but it would come at a cost.

Last month, City Council members gave Western Waste Systems the green light to set up a three-month recycling pilot program focused on 100 homes. Company representatives came before the council again Tuesday to discuss early project results and request a five-year extension to their sanitation contract expiring in October.

City officials accepted the basic contract extension, but questioned adding a citywide recycling charge of $3.50 per month. Meetings are being scheduled to hear public comment on the charge.

"We're already looking at increasing our sewer rate, beginning here in March, to $70.50," Mayor Bob Templeman said. "None of us want to see people already on fixed income having to absorb more cost, so we'd have to talk to them first."

The program does offer participants an incentive: coupons from participating companies such as Coca-Cola or Home Depot. Western Waste is also willing to share a percentages of the profit it makes from the recycling with the city.

Councilman Bob Parent suggested using the city's portion of those funds to help pay the recycling charge for those who might find the increase difficult.

"I've got one of the containers and in a two-week period it's just about full," Parent. "The difference is amazing in what we throw away and what can be recycled. If we could manage something like this, I'd be all for it"

In other action, the city formally approved a $8.6 million budget for fiscal year 2012.

The general budget of $1.2 million saw an increase of $80,322, the sewer budget was set at $4.7 million and the fire department budget remained unchanged at $100,538.

T.F. Man Critically Injured in Crash

TIMES-NEWS

A Twin Falls man was injured Thursday when the motorcycle he was riding was struck head-on by a pickup truck near Sagle, in north Idaho.

According to the Idaho State Police, Lawrence E. Barber, 60, was northbound on U.S. Highway 95 on a 1986 Suzuki motorcycle at 2:25 p.m. Mountain time. At the same time, Tajh P. Lecompte, 33, of Elton, La., was in the southbound left turn lane in a

Both drivers were injured. Barber was taken to Kootenai Medical Center in Coeur d'Alene, where he was in critical condition Thursday evening. Lecompte was taken to Bonner General Hospital in Sandpoint.

Barber had worn a helmet, while Lecompte was wearing a seat belt, according to ISP.

Second Dietrich Home Invasion Suspect Pleads Guilty

TIMES-NEWS

A second suspect in the March home invasion of a Dietrich couple pleaded guilty on Tuesday.

Jamie Taylor, 30, is one of four defendants accused of a robbery in which David and Colleen Conner were held at gunpoint in their Dietrich home on March 9. Taylor pleaded guilty to conspiracy to commit burglary, while two other felony charges against her were dropped.

Last week, Gabriel Baker, 30, pleaded guilty just before his trial was set to begin. Trials are still pending for Jeremiah Bennett, 27, and Aaron Donabedian, 22.

The defendants were charged with multiple felonies, including robbery, burglary and grand theft. Many of those charges were amended to criminal conspiracy. Sentencing for Taylor is slated for Oct. 4, while Baker is set for Nov. 1.

THEIR VIEW

Our Unfinished Business: Time to Reauthorize the FAA

BY RAY LAHOOD AND RANDY BABBITT

McClatchy-Tribune News Service

If Congress does not reauthorize the Federal Aviation Administration by midnight next Friday, the U.S. government will have no choice but to stop crucial airport construction projects and halt important research and development benefiting aviation's future, sending tens of thousands of workers home without pay.

And if you think this sounds like the preview for a movie you have already seen, you are exactly right.

Just a few weeks ago, congressional inaction and stalemate forced a 14-day partial shutdown of the FAA.

Everywhere we look, we are still seeing the consequences and footing the bill. Some construction projects experienced difficulty getting back online after the interruption. Others are costing taxpayers significantly more than they otherwise would have.

In Oakland, Calif., rental expenses for scaffolding, trailers and other worksite equipment mounted by tens of thousands of dollars as lost work days added up. In Traverse City, Mich., the price of building a new control tower increased by at least $75,000 because the contractor had to remove a crane and then return it to the airport.

Shuttered construction projects in New York, Pennsylvania, Alaska and other states lost precious time during the construction season's best weather days. The FAA also was forced to delay its selection of the firm that will oversee construction of Cleveland's new tower, again limiting time for construction before winter sets in.

All told, the last FAA shutdown resulted in 250 projects suspended, tens of thousands of construction jobs jeopardized, almost 4,000 dedicated FAA employees furloughed, and $400 million in ticket-tax revenue uncollected.

Even worse, when Congress finally got its act together, it only extended the FAA's authorization for little more than a month. It found a way to kick the can down the road by 42 days 33 of which it spent on vacation.

Now that Congress is back, it must take care of business and pass a clean extension of FAA programs. Then, together, we must get on with solving the American people's most critical problem: unemployment. This requires passage of a transportation jobs bill that will create new jobs for American workers on transportation construction sites across the nation.

Today, our unemployment rate sits at 9.1 percent. In addition to these 14 million unemployed Americans, many more are struggling to make ends meet as they work fewer hours for less pay. In light of this harsh reality, congressional paralysis would be another devastating blow to our economy.

The fact is: Too many folks in Washington talk about creating jobs, then turn around and put thousands of jobs at risk. Using the FAA as a bargaining chip in larger political disagreements is bad public policy.

In a democracy, we each have a responsibility to engage in robust debate over sometimes contentious issues. But we also have an obligation to compromise before political brinksmanship hurts the very people whom we have taken an oath to serve.

There is no good argument for postponing long-needed airport modernization projects — nor for laying off even more American workers at a moment when so many families are feeling the sting of hardship.

There also is no such thing as a Democratic or Republican runway, tower, or air traffic control system. America's transportation infrastructure belongs to all of us. Creating jobs and projects that benefit our economy should be a priority for people of every political persuasion.

Now is the time for action. Now is the time to put country ahead of party. Thousands of jobs, the United States' economic recovery, and the best aviation system in the world still hang in the balance.

Ray LaHood is secretary of the U.S. Department of Transportation and Randy Babbitt is administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration.

A 'Twist' for Our Economy

administration were capable only of extending the Bush-era tax cuts and dropping payroll taxes — both principally support for consumption. Over the following months, they dragged down business and household confidence by bringing us to the brink of default and recession.

Now we begin again. The Fed's extraordinary statement last month that it would hold down short-term interest rates for two years powerfully pulled down long-term rates, again supporting stock and bond prices.

Our propensity to borrow is giving way to a propensity to save. Aging baby boomers are more likely to be encouraged by low rates to save more, not borrow more. Businesses are constrained from investing not because of high interest rates but because of a lack of confidence in the strength of the economy, high corporate taxes relative to the rest of the world, and uncertainty about future policies.

With household and corporate savings rising, we need to stimulate both the private and public sectors to turn these savings into investment. There is little the Fed can do to help this transition but much that Congress should do.

Congress should act now to reduce significantly the path of spending on entitlements over the next 30 years but, because of the weak economy, it should not cut spending over the next two years.

The more important twist in fiscal policy that we need from Congress is not in the level of expenditures but in their composition. We need less spending on those things that merely support consumption and more support for those things that stimulate investment — now and in the future.

This should take the form of more genuine, direct investment in roads, bridges, railways, ports and other lasting infrastructure that will speed our products to global markets. We need more, not less, federal support for research and development. We should eliminate capital gains taxes on long-held assets and allow rapid depreciation for investment in new factories. Even better would be to significantly lower the corporate tax rate and eliminate all corporate tax credits and preferences, which would encourage the relocation from abroad of profitable activities and jobs.

Let's make clear that the best ideas — in spending and in tax policy — will be those that stimulate the most investment. This is not a matter of ideology but of pragmatic self-interest: Jobs come from investment. Lower income taxes do not, by themselves, create investment; lower taxes on investment create more investment. Federal spending for consumption does not create as much investment as does targeted federal spending and incentives for investment. The differences are real.

Remembering Reagan and Tax Reform

William McKenzie

The Dallas Morning News

reminded me of that story last week over the phone from his Wyoming ranch.

The story is instructive for two reasons: Tax reform won't happen without strong presidential leadership. And we won't see America's daunting tax code simplified unless party leaders are willing to take on their own.

Let's deal first with the presidential leadership. As with most things deficit-related, President Barack Obama has been late to the game. He has talked about overhauling the tax code, just as he has talked about controlling the deficit. But his actions, at least until July, were minimal.

Yet as the debt-ceiling debate got underway, he seemed to find religion about reining in the deficit and debt. That's where talk about overhauling the tax code came in. He showed further interest when he and GOP House Speaker John Boehner discussed a “grand bargain” that involved spending cuts and greater tax revenues.

Still, the tax reform part fell apart. Will the president make this an issue this fall?

He certainly has an opportunity. A legislative super-committee will begin this month looking into more ways to get us out of debt. One option is to overhaul the tax code.

Naturally, there will be fights over which loopholes go and which one stay.

Reagan faced stiff internal pressure, too. Baker recalls Trent Lott and Dick Cheney coming to his office after real estate exemptions were likely to go away. Both House Republicans at the time, they told Baker they would kill the bill.

Instead of caving, Baker went to Capitol Hill to round up the votes he needed to keep the bill alive.

This time, let's hope he remembers Ronald Reagan. That might seem odd with Reagan an icon to most conservative Republicans. But when given a choice, he bucked his members.

Boehner gets the chance to do that if tax reform gains steam this fall. The economy could benefit from a streamlined code, but we won't get one unless he fights for it within his own caucus.

Reagan-like leadership is what we need, from the top figures in both parties.

U of I Student Injured in 2009 Fall From Window Sues School

MOSCOW (AP) • A University of Idaho student who suffered serious injuries in a 27-foot fall from a fraternity house window two years ago is suing the school.

Amanda Andaverde, who is from Caldwell, and her family filed a lawsuit in 2nd District Court on Wednesday in northern Idaho claiming the third-floor window at the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity did not have proper hardware to prevent it from fully opening.

The window had no stop, locks or "other devices to prevent it from fully opening nor to prevent a person from falling through it," according to the lawsuit.

The fraternity, Andaverde's sorority and the state Board of Education are also named in her complaint, the Lewiston Tribune reported on Thursday. The university was not immediately available for questions but does not typically comment on pending litigation, the newspaper reported.

Andaverde was the second student to fall from a fraternity house window at the university shortly after fall classes started in August 2009, prompting the school to review safety measures at Greek housing on campus.

On Aug. 29, 2009, then 20-year-old Shane Meyer fell from a third-story window at the Delta Tau Delta fraternity and was hospitalized at Harborview Medical Center in Seattle with serious injuries. About two weeks later, then 19-year-old Andaverde suffered several fractures in a fall at the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity. Andaverde has debilitating injuries from the fall that include a traumatic brain injury and she is still in the process of relearning how to "walk, speak and function as normally as she can," according to her lawsuit.

She and her family claim the fraternity is at fault because of the lack of window hardware and that as a pledge at the Delta Delta Delta sorority, Andaverde should have been protected by older members and prevented from drinking at a fraternity party the night she was injured.

The lawsuit also claims the university and the state Board of Education are responsible because they regulate the Greek system and should have known "one or more dangerous conditions existed" at the third-floor sleeping porch where Andaverde fell through the window from a bunk bed.

At the time, the university reported at least three other students had fallen from Greek houses in the previous four or five years.

A 21-year-old student from Boise broke both of his legs and ankles after a 50-foot drop from his fraternity window at the Beta Theta Pi house in March 2006.

In 2008, a student was standing on the roof of a fraternity house taking down holiday decorations when he slipped on ice and fell. Also that year, a freshman fell from a second-floor fire escape at the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity, but she was not injured.

As part of the university's safety review in 2009, the respective house corporations, which privately own and manage the fraternity and sorority properties on the Moscow campus, were asked to perform detailed safety audits on their houses, with particular attention to upper stories.

INL Nuclear Budget Cuts Pitched

IDAHO FALLS POST REGISTER

IDAHO FALLS • A Senate subcommittee proposed cutting nearly 20 percent from a budget item that makes up a huge portion of Idaho National Laboratory's funding.

In announcing its proposal for the U.S. Department of Energy on Tuesday, the Senate's Energy and Water Subcommittee suggested allocating $584 million to the DOE's Office of Nuclear Energy for the upcoming fiscal year. That's $142 million less than this year's funding level.

Nearly $320 million of INL's budget this year has come from the Office of Nuclear Energy.

U.S. Sen. Mike Crapo, R-Idaho, is aware of the issue and its implications for the lab, spokesman Lindsay Nothern said Wednesday. Crapo will work with Sen. Lamar Alexander, the subcommittee's ranking Republican, to ensure INL has enough money to continue its missions, Nothern said.

Still, it's not time to panic, Nothern said, since a budget proposal has not reached the Senate floor for a vote.

"We're not exactly happy about (the budget proposal), but we have got a ways to go to get through the process," Nothern said.

Boise Woman Gets Two DUIs in Just Over Four Hours

BOISE (AP) • Boise police say a 47-year-old woman was arrested for drunken driving twice in a period of just over four hours, the first time with a blood-alcohol level more than four times the legal limit.

Michelle Loraine Caves is charged with two misdemeanor counts of excessive DUI following her arrests Tuesday.

Caves was arrested at 5:46 p.m. after store employees reported she smelled of alcohol and was stumbling, but they couldn't prevent her from driving. Her blood-alcohol content was 0.371 percent. She posted bond and left in a cab at 8 p.m.

Another citizen reported Caves planned to go get her car. The same officer arrested her again. Her car was impounded. Her BAC was 0.24 percent at 10 p.m.

Idaho National Lab's Pit 9 Cleanup Done

IDAHO FALLS POST REGISTER

IDAHO FALLS • Cleanup finally is done at one of the most notorious projects on the Idaho National Laboratory site.

As of last week, crews working for cleanup contractor CH2M-WG Idaho finished removing thousands of cubic feet of targeted radioactive and hazardous waste from Pit 9 at the site's Radioactive Waste Management Complex. The accomplishment marks the end of a long and tortuous process that began in the 1990s.

"There were a lot of people who thought it couldn't be done," said Brad Bugger, a spokesman for the U.S. Department of Energy's Idaho Falls office. "The first attempt, of course, was a failure, but we actually learned from that."

In the late 1960s, the federal government dumped thousands of barrels and boxes of radioactive and hazardous waste, as well as assorted debris, at Pit 9. Workers then covered the acre-sized pit with soil.

Decades later, Pit 9's original cleanup contractor, Lockheed Martin Advanced Energy Systems, offered to remove the waste for a fee of $179 million. Lockheed's concept, which featured a chemical extraction method and remote exhumation of the buried waste, was technologically complex and, ultimately, ineffective.

The DOE later terminated Lockheed's contract. The agency passed Pit 9 cleanup responsibilities to former INL contractor Bechtel BWXT Idaho and, later, CH2M.

When CH2M workers began exhuming Pit 9 waste in January, their approach was radically different from the Lockheed process.

Instead of chemical extraction and remote exhumation, they dug up waste with modified backhoes. Workers using a protective glove box sorted out certain types of waste, including graphite molds, plutonium filters, radioactive and hazardous sludges and uranium.

They originally were to complete Pit 9 cleanup in June 2012. By finishing the work more than nine months ahead of schedule, the company also saved about $27 million — much of which was passed on to taxpayers as a reduction on the total cost of cleanup, spokesman Erik Simpson said.

Ben & Jerry's Reveals New Flavor

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) • Ben & Jerry's has Schweddy Balls. Would you like a taste? Chill out, it's only the name of their new flavor. Schweddy Balls ice cream is an homage to a 13-year-old "Saturday Night Live" skit featuring Alec Baldwin as bakery owner Pete Schweddy, whose unique holiday offerings included a delicacy called Schweddy balls. The new flavor is being offered in a "limited batch," consists of vanilla ice cream, a hint of rum, fudge-covered rum balls and milk chocolate malt balls.

Cut Taxes, Obama Urges Congress in $450B Jobs Plan

BY BEN FELLER
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Attacking a deepening crisis on jobs, President Barack Obama challenged a reluctant Congress Thursday night to urgently pass a larger-than-expected $450 billion plan to "jolt an economy that has stalled." He urged lawmakers to slash Social Security taxes for tens of millions of Americans and for almost every business to encourage hiring. "Stop the political circus," an animated Obama told a joint session of Congress in a nationally televised speech. Over and over he implored lawmakers to "pass this jobs bill."

Open to discussion but making no promises, Republican House Speaker John Boehner said Obama's ideas would be considered but the president should give heed to Republicans' as well. "It's my hope that we can work together," he said.

In announcing a plan heavy on the tax cuts that Republicans traditionally love, Obama sought to achieve multiple goals: offer a plan that could actually get through a deeply divided Congress, speed hiring in a nation where 14 million are out of work, shore up public confidence in his leadership and put Republicans on the spot to take action.

Obama never estimated how many jobs would be created by his plan, which also includes new federal spending for construction, hiring and an extension of jobless benefits for the long-term unemployed. Despite his promise that it would all be paid for, he has not yet released the details on how.

His message was unmistakable to the point of repetition, as he told Congress more than 15 times in one way or another to act quickly. That was meant as direct challenge by a Democratic president to the Republicans running the House to get behind his plan, especially on tax cuts, or be tarred as standing in the way.

The urgency of the jobs crisis is as pronounced as it's been since the early days of Obama's term. Employers added zero jobs last month. A whopping number of

ASSOCIATED PRESS

President Barack Obama delivers a speech to a joint session of Congress at the Capitol in Washington, Thursday. Watching are Vice President Joe Biden and House Speaker John Boehner.

Americans — about eight in 10 — think the country is headed in the wrong direction.

In the House chamber, Obama received a warm response but then the usual political pattern took hold, Republicans often sitting in silence on the applause lines that had Democrats roaring. Boehner had chummy moments with Vice President Joe Biden at his side during the speech but was somber over Obama's shoulder as the president spoke.

"The people of this country work hard to meet their responsibilities. The question tonight is whether we'll meet ours," Obama said. "The question is whether, in the face of an ongoing national crisis, we can stop the political circus and actually do something to help the economy."

The newest and boldest element of Obama's plan would cut the Social Security payroll tax both for tens of millions of workers and for employers, too.

For individuals, that tax has been shaved from 6.2 percent to 4.2 percent for this year but is to go back up again without action by Congress. Obama wants to deepen the cut to 3.1 percent for workers.

Obama would also apply the payroll tax cut to employers, halving their taxes to 3.1 percent on their first $5 million in payroll. Businesses that hire new workers or give raises to those they already employ would get an even bigger benefit: On payroll increases up to $50 million they would pay no Social Security tax.

Obama proposed spending to fix schools and roads, hire local teachers and police and extend unemployment benefits. He proposed a tax credit for businesses that hire people out of work for six months or longer, plus other tax relief aimed as snaring bipartisan support in a time of divided government.

The White House put the price tag of Obama's plan at $447 billion, with about $253 billion in tax cuts and $194 billion in federal spending.

The president said he would make his case to the public and will waste no time taking his sales pitch on the road. His first stop will be on Friday at the University of Richmond in the Virginia congressional district of House majority Leader Eric Cantor, a frequent critic of the president's policies.

Politics shadowed every element of Obama's speech. He appealed to people watching on TV to lobby lawmakers to act. He did the same thing before his speech in an email to campaign supporters, bringing howls of hypocrisy from Republicans who wondered why Obama was telling them to put party above country.

The American public is weary of talk and wary of promises that help is on the way.

And the window for action is shrinking before the 2012 presidential election swallows up everything.

Under soaring expectations for results, Obama sought to put himself on the side of voters who he said could not care less about the political consequences of his speech. "The next election if 14 months away," Obama said, adding that the people who hired every elected leader in the room need help "and they need it now."

Abbas to Bring Palestinian Statehood Plan to U.N.

Abbas dismisses warnings about possible 'confrontation' with U.S.

BY EDMUND SANDERS
Los Angeles Times

RAMALLAH, West Bank • Palestinian Authority President Mahmoud Abbas said Thursday that no amount of international pressure or last-minute concessions, including a settlement freeze in the West Bank and East Jerusalem, would stop him from bringing the Palestinian statehood plan to the U.N. Security Council later this month.

In a briefing with foreign journalists at his office in Ramallah, Abbas brushed aside warnings he said he received this week from American officials about a possible "confrontation" with the United States and the flurry of diplomatic efforts launched by the Mideast Quartet — comprised of the U.S., Russia, the European Union and the United Nations — to craft a compromise.

"To be frank with you, they came too late," he said. "If they come now, in this short time, and say, 'OK, we have a package and don't go to the U.N.; I think it would be a game.'"

But Abbas added that Palestinians remain open to returning to negotiations after their U.N. bid is heard, as long as Israelis agree to halt settlement construction and resume discussions based on the 1967 borders, with a mutually agreed-upon swap of land.

Palestinians believe U.N. membership would improve their bargaining position, he said.

It is highly doubtful that the Palestinians will receive membership because U.S. officials have vowed to veto their bid in the Security Council. U.S. and Israeli officials say the U.N. initiative would deal a blow to peace talks.

If the U.S. vetoes the Palestinian application, Palestinians may turn to the General Assembly, where a majority of members is expected to approve a resolution to upgrade the Palestinians' status from observer "entity" to non-member "state."

Palestinian analysts say Abbas has come too far in pushing the U.N. plan to turn back.

"Backing down now would be political suicide," said Sam Bahour, a Ramallah-based political consultant.

Libyan Rebel PM Calls for Unity, Rebuilding

BY BEN HUBBARD AND
HADEEL AL-SHALCHI
Associated Press

TRIPOLI, Libya • A hunted Moammar Gadhafi called on his remaining loyalists Thursday to keep fighting, as the country's acting premier appealed from the capital for national unity to rebuild the North African nation after six months of civil war.

Rebel forces effectively ended Gadhafi's rule last month when they seized the capital Tripoli, sending the 42-year autocrat into hiding. Libya's new rulers have been searching for him while trying to negotiate the surrender of towns still held by Gadhafi supporters.

On Thursday, Gadhafi loyalists fired at least 10 rockets from inside one of the towns at former rebel forces amassed outside.

Former rebels have been waiting outside Bani Walid for days while their leaders try to negotiate the town's surrender before a deadline this weekend.

Speaking to reporters in Tripoli Thursday, Mahmoud Jibril, the acting prime minister, called the negotiations an opportunity to avoid further bloodshed, but said his forces would respond if attacked.

"The right to self-defense will remain a right even before this issue concludes," he said. He also criticized the town's leaders, saying they had shown "no real initiatives or intentions to give peace a chance and bring unity back to the Libya people."

Bani Walid, a dusty town of 100,000 some 90 miles southeast of Tripoli, has emerged as a focus in the fight against pro-Gadhafi holdouts. Some say prominent regime loyalists, including Gadhafi's son and one-time heir apparent, Seif al-Islam, could be inside.

Regime loyalists also still control Gadhafi's hometown of Sirte and the southern city of Sabha.

In Tripoli, Jibril said that a new government can be formed only after the whole country is "liberated."

"I hope that we as Libyans, just as we fought to free the land and its people, will be able to join hands to fight the battle to rebuild," he said.

Thursday's appearance was Jibril's first since rebel forces stormed the capital on Aug. 21. Since then, Libya's new leaders have been scrambling to establish an interim administration to run the country's affairs until a new constitution can be written and elections can be held.

Many high-level leaders in the National Transitional Council, including its head, have yet to move to the capital. Jibril said the delay was for security reasons.

"Don't forget that many elements of the regime and pockets of the regime are still present," he said. "And it is our right as Libyans to protect the leaders of this revolution."

Senate Passes Bill to Overhaul Patent System

WASHINGTON (AP) • Congress gave President Barack Obama's drive to promote jobs growth a boost Thursday by presenting him with a major overhaul of the patent system that the president has sought as a means to spur innovation and put more people back to work.

The Senate voted 89-9 to pass the patent bill and send it to Obama for his signature.

The first major change in patent law in six decades is aimed at streamlining the patent process, reducing costly legal battles and giving the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office the money it needs to process patent applications in a timely fashion.

With passage, said Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., "we could unleash the genius of our country and put our entrepreneur class to work and create jobs. It can let us compete with the rest of the world."

The bill, he added, "is an opportunity to show the American people that Democrats and Republicans can come together to enact meaningful legislation for the American people."

Leahy's partner on the bill, House Judiciary Committee Chairman Lamar Smith, R-Texas, said it was the most significant change to patent law since the Patent Act of 1836 and hailed it as "one of the most significant jobs creation bills enacted by Congress this year."

Obama has urged Congress to send him what he has called "the most significant patent reform in over half a century." The legislation, which transforms a patent system now operating on legislation passed in 1952, passed the Senate in March and the House in June in a slightly different form. Thursday's Senate vote accepted the House version.

Lee Drenches Northeast; 100K Told to Leave Homes

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP) • Nearly 100,000 people from New York to Maryland were ordered to flee the rising Susquehanna River on Thursday as the remnants of Tropical Storm Lee dumped more rain across the Northeast, closing major highways and socking areas still recovering from Hurricane Irene.

At Binghamton, N.Y., the wide river broke a flood record and flowed over retaining walls downtown as more than 8 inches of rain fell in some areas.

Road closures effectively sealed the city off to outside traffic as emergency responders scrambled to evacuate holdouts who didn't heed warnings to leave neighborhoods.

"It's going to get worse," said Gov. Andrew Cuomo, who urged residents to heed evacuate orders rather than wait until the flood danger is obvious.

"By the time it looks that bad, you won't be able to leave, so leave and leave now," he said.

Most of the people ordered to evacuate their homes were about 80 miles downstream in Wilkes-Barre, where the river was projected to crest later Thursday at 41 feet — the same height as the levee system, officials said. Residents were ordered to leave by 4 p.m.

OBITUARIES

Barbara Jean Christensen Skinner

May 29, 1926-Sept. 3, 2011

PROVO, Utah • Barbara Jean Christensen Skinner of Provo passed away Saturday, Sept. 3, 2011.

She leaves behind a wonderful legacy of service to her fellowmen and a shining example to her posterity as a true follower of the Savior. She will now be reunited with her beloved husband, Bernell Moore Skinner, and enter into her eternal rest.

She was born in Stirling, Alberta, Canada, to Carl Harald Christensen and Elodia Libby Peterson Christensen on May 29, 1926. She was always very proud of her Canadian heritage. She maintained her Canadian citizenship her whole life and made sure that her children knew how much she loved Canada, as well as her adopted country.

After graduating from Stirling High School, she began her education in pharmacy at Idaho State University, where she met Bernell, who had recently returned after serving in the Navy during World War II. They were married for time and eternity on July 18, 1946, in the Cardston Alberta Temple. Following their marriage, they made their first home in Tremonton, Utah, where Dad worked for his brother-in-law for a time. After returning to Idaho State and completing his degree in pharmacy, he and Mom made their home in Twin Falls, Idaho, where they raised their family. Their marriage was blessed with three children, Dr. Fredrick Douglas Skinner (Kathy) of Austin, Texas, Dr. Gregory C Skinner (Heidi) of Murrieta, Calif., and Mrs. Debra Anne Skinner Rollins (Kevin) of Dover, Mass. Her posterity includes 13 grandchildren and 24 great-grandchildren. Barbara was a wonderful mother and grandmother, and she and Dad sacrificed everything they had to ensure that their children had every opportunity to develop their talents and testimonies of the gospel.

Barbara served in numerous callings in The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, including many years directing music and the ward choir in the Twin Falls 5th Ward, with Bernell as accompanist. They made a wonderfully harmonious musical team, just as they did in every aspect of their life together. Barbara was also an avid reader and was a member of several literary clubs over the years. After moving to Provo, she took full advantage of her proximity to BYU, auditing numerous religion, humanities and literature courses, and attending plays, concerts and BYU basketball games.

She was preceded in death by her parents; her beloved husband, Bernell; her brother, Dr. Douglas Christensen of Medicine Hat, Alberta, Canada; and a grandson, Richard Douglas Skinner.

The family expresses thanks to the staff of the Courtyard at Jamestown and Orem Rehabilitation and Nursing for their professional and compassionate care during Mom's last years.

Friends and family are invited to attend a viewing from 6 to 8 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 8, at Sundberg-Olpin Mortuary, 495 S. State St. in Orem, Utah. The funeral service will be held at 10 a.m. Friday, Sept. 9, at the Riverwoods Chapel, 303 W. 3700 N. in Provo, Utah. There will be a viewing at 9 a.m. Friday prior to the service. Interment will be in the Orem City Cemetery. Condolences may be sent to the family at www.sundbergolpinmortuary.com.

Janet Marie Jacobson

Aug. 8, 1954-Sept. 5, 2011

Janet Marie Jacobson, 57, went to be with our heavenly father Monday, Sept. 5, 2011, at her home in Twin Falls.

She was born Aug. 8, 1954, to Duane and Darleen Jacobson in Rigby, Idaho. She was the second oldest child of seven children. She was the kind of woman that if you walked through her door you where automatically one of her kids; she was a loving mom to all. She loved working in her garden of flowers, spending time with her kids and grandkids. She loved to fish as much as possible and go camping. She loved having all the family around and barbecuing for them and baking Christmas goodies for everyone.

She is survived by her mother, Darleen Jacobson of Gooding; husband, Leo Spence of Twin Falls; son, Tony and Betty Spence; daughter, Tasha and Joel Smith; five grandchildren, all of Twin Falls; Nick Jacobson of Washington; Jim Jacobson, Deana Perkins, Jerry Jacobson, Tom Jacobson and Joyce Sage, all of Idaho. She is preceded in death by her father, Duane Jacobson; Phillis Jacobson and Sophia Shipp; and grandson, Skyler Smith.

A memorial service will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 13, at Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home, 2551 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls. Those who wish may share memorials at www.magicvalleyfuneral-home.com.

Floyd Hymas

June 24, 1915-Sept. 6, 2011

BURLEY • Floyd Hymas, age 96, of Burley, passed away peacefully Tuesday, Sept. 6, 2011, at Highland Estates.

Floyd was born in Albion, Idaho, on June 24, 1915. He was the fifth of seven children born to Thomas Nephi and Mary Jane Boyl Hymas. When he was 3 years old, the family moved to Heyburn, where he spent his growing up years and early adulthood. He loved to sing and entered singing competitions during his high school years. At his high school graduation in 1937, he sang the solo.

He was an active member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. He married Esther Fay Koyle in the Logan Utah LDS Temple on June 29, 1945. They were blessed with six children. He farmed in the View area for a while, where Kathaleen, Regena, Gwendolyn and Merle joined their family. They later purchased an 80-acre farm in Rupert, where their family was blessed with their fourth daughter, Camellia. After trading farms a few times, they purchased a motel on the highway in Heyburn, where their sixth and last child, Carvel, joined them. They then built a new home on a small acreage in Unity. He and Esther divorced and he moved to Jerome, where he worked for Tupperware until his retirement. In 1979, he married Wilhelmine French Moss in the Ogden Utah LDS Temple. Wilhelmine passed away in 2004. He then moved back to Burley in the Star area to live by his daughters.

Floyd was preceded in death by his parents; his sister; all of his brothers; and also one granddaughter, Pennie Jo Braegger. He is survived by his children, Kathaleen (Blair) Braegger, Gwendolyn (Cloyd) Searle, Carvel (Dawn) Hymas, all of Burley, Regena (Ross) Northover of Kirkland, Wash., Merle (Tracy) Hymas of Gladstone, Ore., Camellia (Tim) Morley of West Jordan, Utah, Gloria (John) Elliott of Boise, Carol Lane of Tillamook, Ore., and Alan Moss of Wendell; 29 grandchildren; and 46 great-grandchildren (all of whom, he so often stated, he is so very proud).

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Monday, Sept. 12, at the Star LDS Church, 100 S. 200 W. of Burley, with Bishop Chris Seibold officiating. Burial will be in the Riverside Cemetery in Heyburn. Friends may call from 6 until 8 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 11, at the Rasmussen Funeral Home, 1350 E. 16th St. in Burley, and from 10 until 10:45 a.m. Monday at the church.

JoEllen Goedhart

March 26, 1936-Sept. 3, 2011

On Sept. 3, 2011, we lost our loving mother, grandmother and friend after a long illness.

JoEllen Mae Van-DeSteeg Goedhart was born March 26, 1936, in Sioux Falls, S.D., and adopted by John William and Helen Kooiman Van-DeSteeg. They lived in Chandler, Minn., until moving to Bellflower, Calif., when she was still a young child. She enjoyed working at a polio hospital and various jobs until she married Sam Goedhart on March 16, 1956. Becoming a mother was her greatest joy, and JoEllen and Sam were very happy with the addition of four children to their family. After all of the kids were in school, JoEllen went back to work and worked at Bellwood General Hospital ER until they moved to Wendell to start a dairy in 1970.

In Wendell, Jo focused most of her energy on keeping up with her kids' active lives in high school and enjoyed being around the social activities her kids were involved in, becoming a good friend and 'second mom' to many. Although Sam and Jo were divorced after 37 years of marriage, they remained good friends until his death in 2000. With the addition of grandchildren to her family, she found new joy in helping with their care.

Jo is survived by her children, John (Cindy) Goedhart, Nancy (George) Rietkerk and Sam Goedhart Jr., all of Wendell, and Janet (John) Kootstra of Jerome; 13 grandchildren; 14 great-grandchildren; and her sister, Donna Hamm of Spokane, Wash. Jo was preceded in death by her parents; her husband and friend, Sam; and one grandson, Buck Henry Rietkerk.

We take great comfort knowing you can now rest pain free, Mom; we will miss you.

A celebration of life potluck service will be held at 5:30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 9, at the New Life Community Church in Wendell.

Pedro Bernal

April 29, 1951- Sept. 5, 2011

GOODING • Pedro Bernal, 60, a resident of Gooding, passed away Monday, Sept. 5, 2011, at the North Canyon Medical Center in Gooding.

Pedro was born April 29, 1951, in Ahuacatlan, Nay, Mexico, to Felipe Bernal and Aurelia Bernal-Rodriguez. Pedro married Eugenia Cardenas in 1971, and they later moved to the United States.

Pedro is survived by three sons, Felipe, Pedro and Adrian, all of Gooding; three daughters, Araceli of Twin Falls, and Mariela and Genie, both of Gooding; and 15 grandchildren. Pedro is also survived by one brother, Simon of Newhall, Calif.; three sisters, Maria de Jesus and Gloria, both of Mexico, and Ignacia of Newhall, Calif.

A visitation for family and friends will be held from 4 to 7 p.m., with recitation of the rosary beginning at 7 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 11, at Demaray Funeral Service, Gooding Chapel. A funeral Mass will be held at 11 a.m. Monday, Sept. 12, at St. Jerome's Catholic Church in Jerome.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the Pedro Bernal Memorial Fund at any Wells Fargo Bank branch.

Arrangements are under the direction of Demaray Funeral Service, Gooding Chapel. Condolences may be sent to the family by visiting the obituary link at www.demaryfuneralservice.com.

Phyllis Ann Rutherford Van Nest

Oct. 13, 1929-Sept. 5, 2011

MERIDIAN • Phyllis Ann Van Nest passed away Monday morning, Sept. 5, 2011, at 4 a.m.

She was the youngest daughter of Edwin and Irene Rutherford. She was born Oct. 13, 1929, in Plainfield, N.J., and raised in Dunellen, N.J. She attended local schools in Dunellen and graduated from Hood College in Frederick, Md., in 1947, majoring in music, piano and organ. She married Robert Van Nest on June 23, 1947. He graduated from Princeton Seminary (as a Presbyterian minister) in 1951, and they soon thereafter moved to Alaska (Craig then Anchorage) for five years. After Alaska, they moved to a new church development in Washington (Edmonds then Olympia) for 10 years. After Washington, they moved to Idaho. They spent 15 years at the Twin Falls Presbyterian Church and 18 at the Hollister Presbyterian Church. In all of those areas, Phyllis served as the pianist or organist (except in Twin Falls, where Helen Allen was the pianist and organist). She accompanied Bob in all of his ministries.

For much of her life, she taught piano lessons from home to hundreds of pupils. She was a music teacher at the College of Southern Idaho in Twin Falls for 10 years. She played the organ at their graduation services, performances and rehearsals. She also accompanied students at their performances.

She is survived by her husband, Bob; sons, James (Julie) and Jeff; grandsons, Jonathan, Jordan, Jeffrey, Mitchell, Johnny, Edward Allen and Mattheau Allen; and sister, Lucy Morris. She has three great-grandchildren, Liam, Cooper and Cora. She was preceded in death by her parents; brother, Edwin Rutherford; sister, Mary Lupo; and son, Christopher.

Great thanks to Drs. Fender, Lopez and Chu as they administered to her through her bronchiectasis and atrial fibrillation that took her life. Special thanks to Harrison's Hope and Everyday Angels for their compassion and care and the nurses and attendants who helped so much (Brenda Stein, Brenda Laing, Lupe Hart, Sharon Taylor and Mary Padilla).

The services include a viewing at 4 p.m. and service at 7 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 8, at the Boise First Presbyterian Church, 950 W. State St.; and a service at 1 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 10, the Twin Falls Presbyterian Church, 209 Fifth Ave. N.

Aura 'Matilde' Marsh

March 5, 1935-Sept. 5, 2011

BOISE • Aura "Matilde" Marsh passed peacefully Monday, Sept. 5, 2011, in her home in Boise, Idaho.

Born in Colombia, South America, in 1935, she moved to the United States, where she resided for 43 years. She lived in Colorado, California, Vermont, Arizona and Idaho. She retired in Sun Valley in 2001 and moved to Twin Falls. In 2009, she moved to Boise.

She was "mommy" to Carlos Marsh, Claudia Allen,

Monica Mann, Pedro Marsh and Deanna Tripp. She was "granny" to Carlos Allen, Gabriel Allen, Casey Allen, Skyler Marsh, Taylor Marsh, Courtney Tripp, Savanna Tripp, Isaac Mann and Mia Tripp. She was a friend to all and a wonderful person who always had a kind word, warm smile and "unparalleled" exuberance for life.

We will miss her dearly, and she will always live in the many hearts she touched.

Weston Keith Webb

Sept. 12, 1932-Sept. 7, 2011

Weston K. Webb, 78, passed away Wednesday, Sept. 7, 2011, in Twin Falls.

Born Sept. 12, 1932, to George and Carrie Strong Webb in Twin Falls, Weston was the youngest of six children. He spent much of his youth on the family dry farm in Roy, Idaho, and winters in Twin Falls. He graduated Twin Falls High School in 1950 and, shortly thereafter, joined the United States Air Force, where he served four years during the Korean Conflict as a crew chief for an F-86-D squadron based in Chicago. Weston's love for aviation began during his high school years and continued right up to his death. He restored and flew two classic Ercoupe airplanes similar to the first one he had in his youth.

He married Shirley Walker on Aug. 12, 1958, and spent the early years of the marriage working the family dry farm in Roy and again wintering in Twin Falls. Upon the birth of their son, Kevin, they moved permanently to Twin Falls, where Weston worked as a mechanic at the Workman Ford dealership and later operated his own Chevron service station.

In 1970, Weston moved his family to American Falls, where they had just purchased the Allis Chalmers farm machinery dealership from J.P. Melhaff, renaming it Webb Tractor. Weston operated the business until 1982, when he sold it and expanded the custom van conversion business he and his son, Kevin, had started, opening locations in Idaho Falls and Twin Falls. He retired in 1988 but continued working part time in the summers at the Willow Bay Recreation area until his permanent relocation to Twin Falls in the early '90s. Here he continued flying his airplanes, driving an employee bus for Cactus Petes and charter buses for North Side Bus and Sun Valley Stages.

He is survived by his wife of 53 years, Shirley Webb of Twin Falls; a son, Kevin Webb and spouse, Dr. Barbara Webb of Tucson, Ariz.; stepson, Brock Wells and spouse, Tyra Wells of Mesa, Wash.; and stepdaughter, Kathy Wells of Fairbanks, Alaska; along with 12 grandchildren and 21 great-grandchildren.

A service will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 17, at Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home, 2551 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls, with interment in the Twin Falls Cemetery. Friends may call from 5 to 7 p.m. Friday, Sept. 16, at the funeral home. Those who wish may share memorials at www.magicvalleyfuneral-home.com.

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

Stocks Slide After Bernanke Offers No New Stimulus

NEW YORK (AP) • Stocks closed sharply lower Thursday after Federal Reserve Chairman Ben Bernanke offered no specific plans to prop up the economy.

In a speech closely watched by investors, Bernanke said the Fed will consider a range of steps at its Sept. 20-21 meeting. The Dow Jones industrial average fell 100 points shortly after Bernanke's remarks began at 1:30 p.m. Eastern. It ended down 119.

"The implications are that the Fed is going to act, but the market is disappointed because he was a little short on details," said Scott Brown, chief economist at Raymond James.

The Dow Jones industrial average lost 119.05 points, or 1 percent, to 11,295.81. The Standard & Poor's 500 index fell 12.72, or 1.1 percent, to 1,185.90. The Nasdaq composite shed 19.80, or 0.8 percent, to 2,529.14. Each index had posted gains earlier in the day.

Good August Boosts Corn Silage Crops

Though this year's harvest will be delayed by a slow spring, near-ideal conditions in late summer have helped potential crop yield.

"If the cows were writing the checks, they'd say, 'We don't want this.'"

— Chuck Grimes, a silage consultant from Kansas

BY CINDY SNYDER

For the Times-News

Farmers are optimistic by nature — a trait that corn silage growers needed more than usual this year.

After a dismal first three months of the 2011 growing season, nearly ideal growing conditions in August afforded the crop significant progress. The longer warm temperatures last in September, the better this year's yield potential is.

"I'm very pleased with how the crop looks," said Rick Speicher, a crop consultant with Winfield Solutions.

Heat units, an indication of growing conditions, lagged in May and June. A deficit persisted into July, when heat unit accumulation usually peaks. But August outpaced July by 150 heat units in the Twin Falls area to exceed the annual 10-year average. That's something that didn't even happen during the hot, dry years of the early 2000s.

That accumulation was largely a result of warm nights, not the hot days that can stop plant growth after the thermostat hits 95 degrees. If conditions hold, Speicher expects to see at least average yields.

Growers still have two more worries to face before harvest begins later this month — how long to continue irrigating and whether an early killing frost will strike. Speicher has seen growers stop irrigating corn silage too early, hurting crop yields. His recommendation is to stop watering in time to prevent equipment from getting stuck at harvest.

Although a killing frost can strike any time, two moon phases bring the greatest threat: full moon and the new moon. The next full moon arrives Monday, when long-range forecasts predict lows in the upper 40s and highs in the 70s. Speicher says that's nearly perfect for a crop that still needs 25 to 30 days to reach maturity.

Speicher expects silage harvest to begin around Sept. 25 — about a week later than growers had hoped for — and to last for about six weeks. That may seem late to people who associate the start of silage cutting with Labor Day, but growers have been pushing the start date back to meet dairies' requirements for higher fiber levels in the corn silage.

Chuck Grimes, a silage consultant from Kansas, said dairies need to focus more on forage quality, including corn silage production. He says forages are the cheapest feed a dairy can buy, especially for dairies that control production.

"If the cows were writing the checks, they'd say, 'We don't want this,'" Grimes said during a forage field day held at the University of Idaho Kimberly Research and Extension Center in late August.

He recommends that dairies take samples from all the fields they will buy silage from before harvest and use the results to schedule what order fields will be harvested.

The Wal-Mart logo is displayed on May 16 in Springfield, Ill. Wal-Mart is bringing back something it avoided during the Great Recession: layaway. Wal-Mart's layaway will kick off Oct. 17 and run through Dec. 16, but the company said it may extend the option throughout the year if the program is successful.

Wal-Mart Will Bring Back Layaway for Holiday Shoppers

BY ANNE D'INNOCENZIO

Associated Press

NEW YORK • Wal-Mart is bringing back something its customers have been asking for since the Great Recession: layaway.

The world's largest retailer, which ditched the pay-as-you-go plans in 2006, is rolling out a holiday layaway plan from Oct. 17 through Dec. 16. Wal-Mart is following rivals that brought back the service during the thick of the recession.

Wal-Mart's layaway option comes at a time when its mostly low-income shoppers are being squeezed by high unemployment and rising costs. Wal-Mart is trying to reverse nine straight quarters of revenue declines at its namesake U.S. stores open at least a year — a key measure of a retailer's health.

"We're always looking for ways to ease budget strain for our customers, and we know this holiday season brings with it additional financial pressure," said Duncan MacNaughton, chief merchandising officer at Wal-Mart's U.S. division. "This was a key component that our customers asked us for.'

Layaway — which allows shoppers to pay over time, interest-free, and pick up their merchandise when it's paid in full — became popular during the Great Depression. The practice had become largely a thing of the past as the economy flourished and credit cards became common.

But when credit dried up and the job market soured during the recession that began in late 2007, Sears and other merchants added back or expanded the service.

Citing increased costs and lower customer demand, Wal-Mart phased out its layaway in September 2006 — roughly a year before the recession began — with the exception of fine jewelry. But the discounter faced criticism because it built its reputation on helping its low-income shoppers.

Wal-Mart Stores Inc., based in Bentonville, Ark., said it will be able to limit costs now by limiting the layaway program to toys and electronics with a price tag of $15 or more. Also, the total layaway purchase has to add up to at least $50.

Wal-Mart will also charge a $5 non-refundable service fee and $10 cancellation charge for orders not picked up by Dec. 16 or cancelled by the customer.

The program is only available at stores. It also requires a 10 percent down payment. The company said if the program is successful, it may extend it throughout the year.

The layaway plan is part of Wal-Mart's efforts to turn around its struggling U.S. business. In addition to the layaway program, Wal-Mart said that starting Monday, it will cut prices on dozens of holiday toys to $15. The company also said it will start offering small samples of holiday merchandise, including outdoor decor, later this month — two weeks earlier than a year ago.

Wal-Mart has been going back to "everyday low prices" instead of pricing gimmicks like temporarily slashing prices on select items. It's also finishing up restocking thousands of items it cut during an overzealous bid to clean up its stores.

Lee Enterprises Announces Support for Debt Plan

TIMES-NEWS

Lee Enterprises, the parent company of the Twin Falls Times-News and Elko Daily Free Press, announced Thursday that it has reached agreements necessary to refinance more than $850 million in debt.

The company has secured the support of more than 90 percent of its creditors for the change, which will adjust debt currently set to mature in April of next year. That action would be pushed back to dates in 2015 and 2017.

In a press release, Carl Schmidt — Lee vice president, chief financial officer and treasurer — said the changes will be performed out of court if at least 95 percent of Lee creditors signal their approval. Otherwise, the company would pursue a prepackaged Chapter 11 filing that Schmidt stressed would have no harmful effect to company operations, employees, vendors, advertisers or subscribers.

"While I'm very happy with yesterday's announcement, it would be easy to overemphasize its local effect," said John Pfeifer, publisher of the Times-News and Elko Daily Free Press. "Newspapers in small and mid-size markets such as Twin Falls and Elko continue to be profitable endeavors. We have a solid and growing base of print and online readers and advertisers, and they remain the key to our local success."

The Standards
Return to Idaho
for Benefit Concert

After traveling the globe, Twin Falls is still home for brothers musical group.

BY ANDREW WEEKS
aweeks@magicvalley.com

There's no place like home.

That is what five brothers who now live in Nashville, Tenn., said about Twin Falls.

Jordon, Morgan, Nathan, Nicholas and Quinn Williams — more popularly known as the vocal group The Standards — will return home for a concert Sept. 15-17 at the College of Southern Idaho's Fine Arts Auditorium.

"It's a benefit concert for the Fifth District Court's SOS program," Nathan said. "It's really a neat program about helping families get their footing after going through legal issues."

Also during the concert, which will feature new music from the group's upcoming project "Spencer's Own," The Standards will help provide supplies to area schools and needy families.

The brothers enjoy helping their hometown, they said.

The Standards, who started out as an a cappella group in 1994 and are known for their family-oriented music, have become more musically diverse by including instruments such

While Erik Wenninger sang on the patio at Shot in the Dark on Aug. 31, the audience joined in. One man rested a lit cigarette on his guitar as he strummed it, and a woman tapped the body of her guitar and sang along.

They weren't crashing Wenninger's performance. Everyone was there for the coffee shop's open mic night, one of a handful in Magic Valley. The weekly events give musicians a casual setting where they can show off their work and network with other singers.

At open mic nights, like those at The Cove and Applebee's in Twin Falls and Diamondz Bar & Grill in Jerome, performers are invited to take the stage and do their thing. You don't have to reserve a spot in the line-up — just show up with your banjo or poetry book and have at it.

Brian Kohl, who goes by BK, has been performing at The Cove's open mic night for about six years. In that time, the crowd has waxed and waned — sometimes drawing 15 musicians, other times pulling in just three.

Paul Neubauer, who has played at The Cove's open mic nights for four years, said the economy has affected open mic night.

"A couple years ago, though, it was really raging," he said. Lately, though, fewer audience members and musicians come to the Tuesday night event.

BASE Jumping for Kids

The Perrine Bridge Festival, which starts today, is in its fifth year and is still going strong.

BY BLAIR KOCH
For the Times-News

Five hundred bucks doesn't sound like a lot of money, but for families raising children with special needs it can make all the difference.

Enter the Perrine Bridge Festival, now in its fifth year. The two-day festival, which happens today and Saturday, was created specifically as a way to raise money for children with special needs. Money goes to families for walkers, wheelchairs, specialized equipment, therapy, counseling, respite care and travel expenses for when a patient needs to go out of the area for appointments with specialists.

Nikki Daisher, who created the event, said it typically generates about $35,000 annually. She isn't shy about how it got so big so quickly. When her husband Miles Daisher, a Red-Bull sponsored skydiver, broke the world record for the most consecutive human-powered BASE jumps — 57 — five years ago, Nikki knew a media storm would follow and she decided to share his spotlight.

"As an occupational therapist working with children in the community, I knew and saw the needs firsthand," she said. "I also knew I would need a place for the funding, so I asked the (St. Luke's as guitar and mandolin into some of their songs. Fans need not worry, though, the Williamses said. They are not departing from what made them famous — they still perform many numbers that are strictly vocal, but now they're expanding upon their talents. "It's so exciting for us to come up with new stuff," Quinn said, noting that one of the things that makes the brothers different from other vocal groups is their genetic harmony.

"That blends really well together," he said. "And we get along really well because we're family." The Williams spend most of their time together, even when not making music. "This is our full-time deal," Morgan said. "We have an office in Nashville, where we do everything from working up the songs, to writing, watching and studying the greats on how to become better performers, attending management meetings and recordings.... We love being creative." Even when they take time to play, such as when they go cliff jumping in Tennessee, thoughts of their fans aren't too far away: The brothers will record their activity, work the recording up with music, and then post it online to share with their followers. As far as the act of actually jumping off a cliff is concerned, it reminds them of the outdoor activities they used to do in Idaho. The brothers have traveled all over the country and in many parts of the globe, but when asked where their favorite place to perform is they didn't hesitate to answer in unison: "Twin Falls, Idaho." "It's true," Nick said. "We grew up there. We love Idaho. We totally miss it."

Health) Foundation if there was a way it could house the money. After that first year when we raised $16,000, we needed a way to keep adding funds so we could continue helping kids." Calling on the BASE jumping community was a natural step — and its support continues to blow Daisher away. A number of jumpers raise money in their own communities and donate it upon arrival, she said. Last year a jumper brought a check for more than $7,000. "They aren't known for making reservations, but every year we get more jumpers than the year before," she said. "Last year we had 60 jumpers, so I'm expecting at least that many this year."

Boise resident Chuck Cook said he plans to return to the festival after attending last year. "It's fairly unique to get that many jumpers together for a planned event," Cook said. "With everyone really enjoying themselves, showing each other their newest tricks, it's a lot of fun. Plus, helping kids is a great cause."

Foundation Director Larry Baxter said the event helps hundreds of children every year. "The foundation decided on the $500 limit so that we could support and touch as many children per year as possible," he said. Depending on the weather, Baxter said the festival attracts up to 7,500 people. "What's neat about this fundraiser is that it isn't led by foundation initiative but completely by volunteers," Baxter said. Blair Koch may be reached at 316-2607 or blairkoch@gmail.com.

TROMBONIST JOINS JAZZ CAMP

TIMES-NEWS

Los Angeles and New York trombonist Scott Whitfield has joined the faculty of next year's 6th annual Great Basin Jazz Camp, organizers said in late August. The camp will be held July 9-13 at the College of Southern Idaho. Whitfield — who is also an arranger, conductor, educator and vocalist — is recognized for his work with contemporary big bands, including the Toshiko Akiyoshi Jazz Orchestra and the new edition of Johnny Griffin's Big Soul Band, as well as his own Scott Whitfield Jazz Orchestras (East and West). His discography includes seven recordings as leader and more than 50 with other artists, the nonprofit Great Basin camp said in a release. Whitfield served on the jazz faculty at Rutgers University from 1998 to 2002, teaching trombone, composition and arranging, and improvisation. A Late-summer Festival

Annual Buhl event becomes Septemberfest.

BY BLAIR KOCH
For the Times-News

BUHL • The weather in October can be beautiful, offering sunny skies and 60 degree temperatures. On the other hand, 10th-month weather can be quite cold.

Over the past several years bad weather has often marked Mimi Ford’s Octoberfest, hosted at Mimi’s Saddlehorn and Events Center. Instead of splitting her time between worry and hope, Ford did something proactive about making sure the weather is nicer for her annual festival: She moved it up a month.

“Instead of Octoberfest it’s going to be Septemberfest,” Ford said. “Between the weather and competing with all of the other activities, the festival just hasn’t gotten as big as planned.”

She’s keeping the itinerary

If You Go

Mimi’s Saddlehorn and Events Center, 289 Clear Lakes Road, Buhl, will hold its Septemberfest on Sept. 17. Events include:

11 a.m.-10 p.m., Vendors, music, horse-and-buggy rides. Free.

1-4 p.m., Homebrew Smackdown. Registration: $5 per entry.

4 p.m., Bean cookoff; bring prepared dish. Free.

Information: 543-2721.

much the same. Live music, including blues band Miles to No Where and the Saddlehorn Boys, are scheduled to play; artisans and vendors will set up wares; and horse-and-buggy rides will be available.

Jim Crawford, of Buhl, plays acoustic guitar with the Saddlehorn Boys and said the band’s sound will jive well with the festival’s harvesttime ambiance.

“The quality of musicianship featured at the festival is great; it isn’t rock ’n roll and really loud but laid back,” Crawford said. “We play bluegrass and it’ll be a good fit.”

The festival’s signature events are the bean cookoff and homebrewed beer competition.

“The community has really begun to look forward and count on the festival for those two events,” Ford said. “I think they are what set this festival apart.”

Justin Baldwin, a member of the Southern Idaho Homebrewers and Wine-makers, is looking forward to defending his title during the Homebrew Smackdown.

Last year, Baldwin swept the competition with his Robust Porter, Vienna Lager and Irish Red and Extra Special Bitter, earning first-, second- and third-place awards, respectively.

“I guess I do have a title to protect,” he said.

Baldwin’s been experimenting with chocolate stouts and a pre-prohibition style pilsner, twisted with “vibrant and exciting new hops.”

In the specialty beer, Baldwin plans to impress with a brew featuring citra hops.

“Its focus is on the underlying citrus,” he said. “There is grapefruit and a bit of mango in this new variety and I was excited to try it. There isn’t a lot of super complex malt flavor, but it’s a very balanced beer; the malt is there but doesn’t take away from the hops.”

Interested in trying the beer? You’re in luck. Organizers need help judging beers, as well as volunteers to log entries, set up and take down the event.

Information: Gary Beeson at grbamb@q.com or through the Southern Idaho Homebrewers and Wine-makers Facebook page.

Open Mic

Still, those who come are talented, Neubauer said. The open mic nights draw the same core group of performers to the bar every week, with others coming in occasionally. Almost all play music, though a few poets have recited their work over the years, he said.

Kohl works at Applebee’s, which debuted its open mic night a couple months ago. Between the musicians and the half priced appetizers, the event draws in a big crowd, said Kohl, who sometimes performs after his shifts. Because it’s at a family restaurant, “it tends to be a little more tame than the one at The Cove,” Kohl said.

The events also provide an opportunity for musicians to meet each other. Wenninger, a member of 54 40 or Fight, met his bandmates at an open mic night.

The band has played traditional shows in downtown Twin Falls, but Wenninger likes the casual feel of open mic nights. The audience feels more comfortable requesting songs — like a Star Wars-themed tune he played on Aug. 31. He’s written other songs that he thinks are better, “but that’s the one everyone requests,” Wenninger said.

Tennyson Gallen, who plays with Wenninger, comes from Hagerman to perform at the open mic nights.

Wenninger agreed.

“It’s definitely more fun when more people come,” he said.

‘A Night in Old Vienna’

BY KAREN BOSSICK
For the Times-News

HAILEY • The graceful gliding and twirling of the waltz will pervade the Valley Club on Sunday when the Caritas Chorale presents “A Night in Old Vienna.”

The evening will kick off at 5:30 p.m. with wine and hors d’oeuvres, followed by a choir performance of such songs as “The Blue Danube Waltz” and excerpts from “Die Fledermaus.” Dinner will be capped with dancing, said Linda Menser, a member of the elite choir.

There also will be a raffle good for seven prizes, including a handmade quilt, watercolor painting, a visit to a mountain bike training camp and sojourns in Buenos Aires, Hawaii, San Francisco and Stanley. Partygoers are invited to “dress to the nines” in tuxedos and ball gowns. Or they can come dressed in more casual clothing.

Funds raised from the event will help the choir provide a menu of free concerts throughout the year. The upcoming season will be the Chorale’s most ambitious ever as it premieres a commissioned work on the Nez Perce for the tribe in northern Idaho before presenting it again in Sun Valley, said Director Dick Brown.

Tickets to “A Night in old Vienna” are $150 per person — $100 of which is tax deductible. Raffle tickets are $25 each. For reservations or information, call Ann Taylor at 726-5402 or email annstaylor@cox.net.

MUSIC CLUB TO HOLD SEPTEMBER TEA; SEEKS NEW MEMBERS

TIMES-NEWS

The Burley Music Club will hold its annual September Tea at 1:30 p.m. Sept. 19 at the Heyburn LDS Church, 530 Villa Drive.

Its programs include a variety of local talent, with the September program featuring Marty Bedke of Oakley, an accomplished pianist with a background in music for many years.

The club is a service organization, which is federated nationally, that promotes music in the communities by providing scholarships for students, and offers local, state and national scholarship opportunities.

The club is seeking new members (open to men and women), as well as existing membership. Dues are $25, but any donations are accepted.

Information: Charmaine Ralphs at 678-5181 or Karen Taylor at 312-1344.

CRONKITE REVEALED

Walter Cronkite was known as the most-trusted man in America. More will be revealed about the former CBS anchor at a special event on Tuesday.

BY KAREN BOSSICK
For the Times-News

KETCHUM • We thought we knew Walter Cronkite — after all, he was known as “the most trusted man in America.” But Don Carleton will reveal more of the man behind the CBS anchor desk Tuesday when he talks about helping Cronkite write his best-selling autobiography, “A Reporter’s Life,” and “Conversations with Cronkite.” The latter, which Carleton published late last year, features stories in a question-answer format that didn’t make it into Cronkite’s autobiography. The free presentation starts at 6 p.m. at The Community Library, 415 Spruce Ave. N., Ketchum. “It should be a popular presentation since so many people knew Cronkite,” said Lauren Zondag, the library’s presentation director. Colleen Daly, The Community Library’s executive director, said she came across Carleton while attending a library convention in Texas where she perused an exhibition of Ketchum photographer Diana Walker’s White House photographs that she ended up bringing back to The Community Library. In addition to handling Walker’s exhibition, Carleton is director of the University of Texas-Austin’s Dolph Briscoe Center for American History, which holds nearly 300 linear feet of Cronkite’s personal and professional papers. The papers cover how Cronkite studied journalism at the University of Texas in the 1930s but dropped out to make money doing small jobs for radio stations and newspapers. He broadcast Oklahoma college football games. Then he became a war correspondent during World War II where he covered the Battle of the Bulge and laid down his pen and paper to man machine guns while flying aboard B-17 bombers over Germany.

After covering the Nuremberg trials, he was assigned to the then-new medium of TV. “The surprise was that he was such an authentic person. The image on screen was the same as what you found off screen,” said Carleton, who also has written “Red Scare” and other books. “He was exactly the way I wanted him to be.”

Cronkite was very aware that he had been uniquely positioned, Carleton said. There were only two sources of news — CBS and NBC — when he became news anchor. “He had a captive audience and for that he was grateful. He was a very competitive person who always liked to win. And he realized he in no way would have been such a dominant news presence to day,” Carleton said. “He was honored people considered him the most trusted man in America, although it was a little bit of a burden because he had to be so much more aware of what he said in public.” Cronkite was horrified about the state of TV news in America just prior to his death in 2009, Carleton said. “Fox and MSNBC drove him crazy. He said Fox News clearly is just an arm of the Republican Party,” Carleton said. “He said news should be delivered in an objective way. And he liked the PBS News Hour because he thought it provided that objectivity.”

Green Bay's Sam Shields (37) breaks up a pass intended for New Orleans' Devery Henderson during the first half of Thursday's game.

Rodgers Throws 3 TDs, Packers Outlast Saints

ASSOCIATED PRESS

GREEN BAY, Wis. • A Super Bowl hangover and the NFL lockout weren't about to slow down Aaron Rodgers and the Green Bay Packers. The New Orleans Saints just couldn't keep up.

Rodgers came out on top in a memorable opening-night duel with Drew Brees, and the Packers made a goal-line stand on the final play of the game to beat the Saints 42-34 on Thursday night.

Packers rookie Randall Cobb caught a touchdown from Rodgers and ran a kickoff back 108 yards for a score in the third quarter — tying an NFL record for the longest kickoff return in history.

Rodgers threw for 312 yards and three touchdowns. Brees threw for 419 yards and three touchdowns, including a late touchdown to Jimmy Graham that cut the lead to 8 with 2:15 left.

After a Green Bay punt, Brees marched the Saints to the Packers 9-yard line and spiked the ball with 3 seconds left. Green Bay's A.J. Hawk was called for pass interference and the ball was placed at the 1.

Led by Clay Matthews and safety Morgan Burnett, the Packers defense swarmed Saints first-round rookie running back Mark Ingram short of the goal line and the game was over.

It was a big night for Donald Driver, who tied James Lofton's franchise mark for career yards receiving with 9,656.

Cobb's big return gave the Packers a 35-20 lead, but the game wasn't over. Darren Sproles answered with a long kickoff return of his own, and Brees drove the Saints for a 29-yard touchdown to Devery Henderson.

The Saints forced a punt and marched to the Packers' 7-yard line, but failed on a fourth-down conversion attempt and gave the ball back to the Packers.

Green Bay drove again, and Rodgers handed the ball to John Kuhn on third-and-goal for a 1-yard touchdown and a 42-27 lead early in the fourth quarter. The Packers' defensive struggles made for some nervous late moments, but they came through when they had to.

Burley, Minico Grind it Out for Bragging Rights

rhowe@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • Fans of smash-mouth, three-yards-and-a-cloud-of-dust football will be in heaven at Skaggs Events Center Friday night.

It's Burley's double wing vs. Minico's wing-T in the annual Snake River Rivalry.

This marks the 95th year of the rivalry, counting the old Rupert High days. Expect the teams to combine for fewer than a dozen passes as both will count on a pounding ground game to claim Mini-Cassia bragging rights.

"I think (the rivalry) adds a lot," said Burley junior linebacker Jason Rebollozo. "These are our rivals; of course we want to win. We push ourselves harder and this is a week we want to win for sure."

Minico leads the all-time series 32-24 and has won the last six meetings.

"Everybody loves watching Burley and Minico, it's all everybody ever talks about," said Minico senior offensive guard Nathan Eagle. "I can't wait to play against them."

Burley (0-1) was impressive in its season opener two weeks ago, despite a narrow

From Hype to Hush, BSU Has Week Off

BY ALEX CALINSKY

For the Times-News

BOISE • For months, Boise State's football team prepared for a game hyped by college football fans and media outlets across America. After a long, desolate, football-less summer, they emerged and survived a hostile trip to Atlanta, controlling the Georgia Bulldogs 35-21, adding another victory over a storied program to their resume.

Following the hoopla and preparation during the offseason that culminated on Saturday night, the Broncos will be off this weekend before traveling to Toledo and playing the Rockets at 6 p.m. Sept. 16 on ESPN.

The bye creates a strange feeling after all the anticipation of waiting for the season to begin, then having to go back on hiatus for another week.

Some members of the team don't mind a week off, though.

"I think it's probably beneficial. It gives us a chance to heal up and recover," said running back Doug Martin, who led the Broncos with 57 rushing yards and scored a touchdown against Georgia. "Never complain about a bye week," he added with a chuckle.

While some may contend that having a later bye is more of an advantage since the soreness, nicks, and bumps can accumulate as the season advances and the break is more favorable, the

Andy Roddick Advances as Soggy U.S. Open Resumes

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • At one point, Andy Roddick looked up and saw a fan scaling a chain-link fence behind tiny Court 13, hoping to catch a peek of the 2003 U.S. Open champion's victory Thursday.

At another point, a baby's loud cries provided a distraction at the 584-seat venue.

"At least," Roddick deadpanned later, "there wasn't a baby crying on the fence."

It was that sort of day at this most unusual U.S. Open.

Rain finally gave way to sun in the morning, but chaos still managed to reign. A crack near a baseline in the tournament's second-biggest stadium let water seep through,

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Andy Roddick of the United States reacts to the crowd after defeating David Ferrer of Spain during the fourth round at the U.S. Open tennis tournament in New York.

halting Roddick's already twice-delayed match against David Ferrer until they were moved to a court often used by juniors.

And because of showers earlier this week, the U.S. Tennis Association extended the tournament, delaying the men's final by 24 hours to Monday at 2 p.m. MDT. The women's final was shifted from Saturday night to Sunday at 2 p.m.

Amid all of Thursday's goings-on — which also included complaints about the schedule both before and after it was changed; talk by Roddick and others about forming a union; and treatment by a trainer for both No. 1 Novak Djokovic and his opponent, who eventually quit, then apologized to Djokovic — at least there was plenty of tennis played, quite a change from Tuesday's total washout and Wednesday's 15 minutes of action.

Roddick, defending champion Rafael Nadal, Andy Murray and John Isner all won to reach the quarterfinals. On the other side of the men's draw, Djokovic and Roger Federer set up a semifinal showdown; it's the fifth consecutive year they'll meet at the U.S. Open and a rematch from this year's French Open, where Federer handed Djokovic one of his two losses in 2011. Serena Williams, Caroline Wozniacki, Sam Stosur and Angelique Kerber filled the four spots in the women's semifinals.

Given the delays, the 21st-seeded Roddick was eager to get going against the fifth-seeded Ferrer somewhere — anywhere, really.

They got in less than 10 minutes Thursday before Roddick pointed out a damp spot in Louis Armstrong Stadium that made it too dangerous to play. He and Ferrer headed back to the locker room while workers spent an hour trying to dry the area. At 12:30 p.m., the players returned with tournament referee Brian Earley to inspect the area.

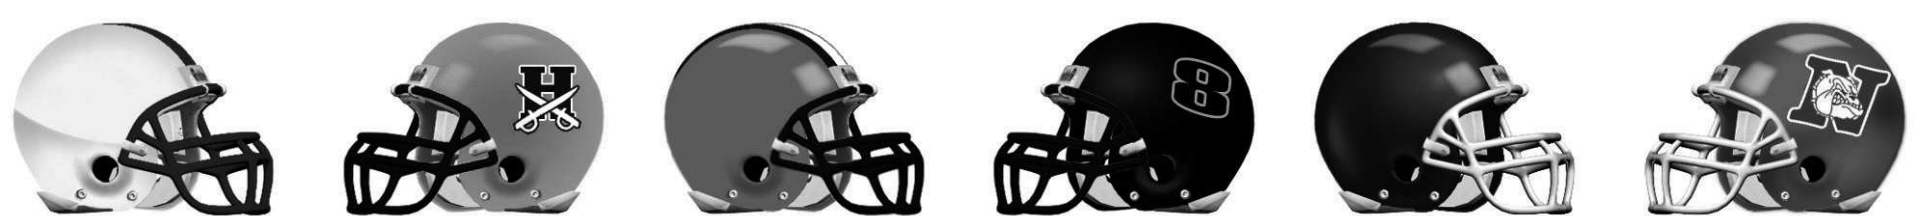

Roddick pointed out that the spot still was wet and said to Earley, "Can you tell us why you brought us out here? ... How hard is it to not see water? ... What are we doing here?"

As he walked to the sideline, Roddick shook his head and said: "I'm baffled right now. Absolutely baffled."

PREP RALLY

THREE AND OUT

A look at this week's biggest prep football games

Lighthouse Christian at Hagerman

The skinny: Both teams look to continue flying starts in the latest installment in a series of high-caliber 8-man football games to dot the local schedule. Lighthouse Christian improved to 2-0 with a 46-0 blanking of Idaho City, while Hagerman went to Castleford and used a late goal-line stand to take a 34-30 win over the Wolves.

Key matchup No. 1: Hagerman's run defense vs. Lighthouse Christian's run offense. It's practically a given the Pirates will be able to score points with Kade Kress at the controls, but how well they rise up against another quality running attack will determine their fate. Castleford had power football in its arsenal, but the Lions have used their mix of size and speed to score 96 points through two games.

Key matchup No. 2: Lighthouse Christian vs. time. In two games, the Lions have invoked the mercy rule and haven't had to play four quarters. With a program that's not accustomed to this kind of success consistently, how the team holds together in the fourth quarter could go a long way to determining this game.

Prediction: Two evenly matched teams, with home field and experience providing the edge: Hagerman 34, Lighthouse Christian 32.

— David Bashore

Kimberly at Declo

The skinny: Always an exciting matchup between these two former conference rivals, Kimberly-Declo figures to be a close affair. The Bulldogs and Hornets were both state semifinalists last season and in the matchup last fall, Kimberly came away with a 30-22 as Seth Champlin scampered for a 41-yard touchdown with 2 minutes left. The Bulldogs, however, are coming off a 56-16 crushing by American Falls last week. Declo struggled in the red zone last week, but the Hornets used a strong defensive effort to beat Aberdeen 8-6.

Key matchup No. 1: Declo's small front against Kimberly's Wing-T. Champlin quarterbacks the Bulldogs' Wing-T attack which features offensive playmakers Jade Wadsworth and Tevan Brady. Declo gave up just one big play against Aberdeen, but otherwise dominated the line of scrimmage.

Key matchup No. 2: The Hornets' passing game. Declo's plans to move to a more balanced attack featuring the pass got off to a slow start against Aberdeen as quarterback Kai Garner and his receivers tried to get on the same page. We'll see where they are in their second game.

Prediction: Kimberly 33, Declo 30

Twin Falls at Nampa

The skinny: This is the fifth straight year these two teams have played and last season, Twin Falls broke a three-game losing streak to the Bulldogs, winning 14-0 after losing decisively in previous years. The Bruins beat Raymond, Alberta 7-0 last week in the Rocky Mountain Rumble, an impressive showing from their defense, but it's evident the offense is a work in progress. Nampa is coming off a 23-21 loss at Emmett, squandering 530 yards of total offense with five empty trips to the end zone.

Key matchup No. 1: Twin Falls' front seven keeping contain on defense. Nampa running back Devan Lesley is a home-run threat every time he touches the ball. He doesn't, however, like running between the tackles, so the Bruins can keep him under wraps as long as he doesn't see the sideline. "We're not very big, but we make up for it with our aggressiveness and speed," said Twin Falls defensive back Michael McClure.

Key matchup No. 2: Waking up the Bruins' offense. Twin Falls didn't exactly put on an offensive show in its 7-0 win over Raymond, so quarterback Thomas Corr, receiver Robert Sanchez and running back Anthony Archuleta will have to make plays for the Bruins. Archuleta had a good debut for the Bruins last week, rushing for 110 yards.

Prediction: Twin Falls 20, Nampa 7

ATHLETE OF THE WEEK

McMullin Is Indians' Big Threat On Offense

BY PATRICK SHELTRA

psheltra@magicvalley.com

To hear Shoshone's Joseph McMullin tell it, he hasn't exactly heeded the advice given to him at the end of last season by coach Mark Sant.

Sant's marching orders? Play with more consistency at linebacker.

"I wish I had been more consistent the last two games, playing harder and better," McMullin said. "It's a new defense and it's taking some time getting used to it."

McMullin

Unfortunately for the Shoshone opposition, McMullin's improvement has come at a rapid clip on the offensive side of the ball. Although a tad undersized at full-back, the 5-9, 165-pound senior has been a quick-scoring, yardage-gobbling dynamo as the Indians have come out of the gate at 2-0.

"He's a hard hitter, even at that size," Sant said. That trait got McMullin on the field plenty last year, leading the way for the since-graduated Shane Walsh. With an increased workload this year, plus a desire to throw more out of Sant's I-formation, McMullin has taken advantage. He has rushed for 226 yards and four touchdowns on just 19 carries, averaging 11.9 yards per carry. McMullin hasn't been as big of a part in the passing game, with only four receptions, but he's averaging 34.5 yards per catch and has hit paydirt twice.

McMullin opened the scoring in last week's game against Rimrock with an 89-yard touchdown run, and in the Indians' opening game against Dietrich, his 50-yard run put the finishing touches on a dominant third quarter that proved decisive in Shoshone's 36-28 victory.

McMullin may be only two games into his high school career as a feature back, but he already speaks like a 10-year NFL veteran. He's quick to credit his offensive line — Tryal Ferguson, Bryan Bollar and Jose Hurtado — for his success, saying he's "played with these guys since I was in kindergarten. It's easy to read (blocks) off these guys."

"I'm running a lot harder than I did last year," McMullin said. "Our line is executing a lot better and making it a lot easier when we run."

McMullin has plenty of help on offense with quarterback Garrett Sant — the coach's son — and pass catchers Gage Roberts and Caleb Aoi. It's enough to overpower most teams, but the schedule gets progressively tougher for Shoshone, capped with the season finale at Grace. Hagerman also travels to Shoshone on Oct. 6. Victories in both games will go a long way toward the Indians' ultimate goal of making the state tournament.

"If we beat those guys, that will tell us we have a pretty good team," McMullin said. "We don't want to look past the next game we have, but our goal is state."

As for "ignoring" his coach's advice from last year, it's hardly a concern for the head coach.

"He doesn't get off the field too much," Sant said, "but we're real pleased with him (at linebacker). We didn't see him stepping up and gaining so many yards, but he's really come around on the offense side of the ball."

PREP ROUNDUP

Minico Spikers Sweep Burley For First Win

TIMES-NEWS

RUPERT • Tylo Colflesh had six kills and Chelsea Hepworth added seven blocks as the Minico volleyball team earned its first win of the season by sweeping Burley on Thursday, 25-20, 25-22, 25-12.

"I love my girls. They're cohesive on and off the court and that helps a lot. This will be huge for our confidence," said Minico coach Kris Christensen. "Some of the other schools have had more matches than we have and we're still pretty early getting into the season. I think we're going to be great."

Minico (1-2 overall, 1-0 Great Basin Conference) got 12 assists from Kaylee Kostka and 10 digs from Hannah Bailey. Burley (3-5, 0-2) was led by Delta Jones with 19 assists.

Hagerman 3, Raft River 0 Hagerman earned a hard-fought victory by beating the Trojans, 26-24, 25-18, 25-19. Echo Hansen had six kills for Raft River, while Taylor Whitaker added 17 assists. Aly Sauer had 14 kills and Hayley White added 24 assists for the Pirates.

Challis sweeps Shoshone tri Challis picked up a pair of wins over Snake River Conference rivals in Shoshone Thursday, beating Shoshone 25-20, 25-15, 25-14 and Hansen 25-9, 25-11. Shoshone beat Hansen 25-8, 25-13 in the third match of the day.

Madison Garlie led Challis with 14 kills on the day, while Brielle Sheppard added 13. Kelcie Hutchins had 15 kills to pace the Indians (3-2).

Glenns Ferry 3, Valley 2 Jacqueline Brennan had 26 kills as Glenns Ferry battled to a 17-25, 25-14, 25-22, 16-25, 17-15 win over Valley.

DeiJa Martin added 25 blocks for the Pilots (3-3, 1-0 Canyon), who host Wendell on Tuesday.

Cheyanna Nelson led the Vikings with 11 kills.

Canyon Ridge 3, Wood River 1 Staci Baird had 10 kills to lead Canyon Ridge to a 25-20, 15-25, 25-18, 25-22 road win over Wood River. Lauren Shotwell added 21 digs for the Riverhawks, while Cierra Ehlers added 12 service points.

Twin Falls 3, Jerome 0 The Bruins (7-3, 1-0 GBC) started their Great Basin Conference title defense with a 25-14, 27-25, 25-15 sweep over Jerome Thursday. Allie Johnson dished out 28 assists, Sierra Starley had 16 kills and libero Brylee Bartlett had 16 digs.

Gooding 3, Wendell 0 Kayleigh Erickson dished out 26 assists as Gooding swept Wendell 25-8, 25-12, 25-16. Tia Conrad smashed home 10 kills and Emelia Millican had two blocks. Gooding (4-0) travels to the Twin Falls tournament on Saturday.

Richfield 3, Castleford 1 Richfield handed Castleford (2-3) a four-set loss, beating the Wolves 25-22, 26-24, 17-25, 25-19. Castleford's Jessica Welch had eight kills, while Kendra Flores recorded 13 assists and Amanda Stagg had 16 digs.

Camas County 3, Lighthouse Christian 0 Katelyn Peterson crushed 20 kills as the Mushers powered over Lighthouse Christian, 25-15, 25-16, 25-12.

Larissa Stewart dished out 25 assists and Stephanie Moore added six kills as Camas County moved to 5-0 overall.

For the Lions (4-1), Becca Storm had 10 kills and Brooklyn Vander Stelt had 12 assists.

Camas County will play in the Twin Falls Invitational this weekend, while Lighthouse Christian plays in the Garden Valley Tournament this weekend.

Buhl 3, Filer 0 Morgan Pearson had a team-high seven kills followed by Kendyl Hamilton with six kills and five digs as the Indians beat Filer in three games, 25-15, 25-16, 25-15 in a Sawtooth Central Idaho Conference matchup.

Audrey Croy, Sierra Koyle and Cassidy Ferrell each had four kills and the Wildcats were guilty of 22 hitting errors. One bright spot for the offense was three aces by Kandi Woody.

Filer (3-8, 0-1 SCIC) and Buhl will play in the Twin Falls Invitational this weekend.

Dietrich sweeps home tri Dietrich (6-2) recorded two wins as the host Blue Devils swept Community School, 25-11, 25-12, 25-18 in a Sawtooth Conference North matchup and Twin Falls Christian, 25-15, 25-22. Twin Falls Christian also beat Community School, 25-10, 25-12.

Girls soccer

Bliss 7, Wendell 0 Densie Butler scored four goals and assisted on a fifth as Bliss rocked Wendell.

Kendall Martell, Estephanie Altamirano and Melissa Garza each added a goal for the Bears.

Bliss (4-2, 4-1 High Desert Conference) travels to Buhl Tuesday.

Community School 8, Filer 0 Ellie Swanson recorded a hat trick to lead the Cutthroats over the Wildcats.

Gabi Perenchio, Hannah Dies, Hayley Murach, Chloe Francois and Hailey Rheinschild all had goals for the Cutthroats (5-2, 4-1 High Desert Soccer Conference).

Buhl 5, Declo 0 Shelby Holladay had a hat trick and Tyana Weaver and Skylar Barger each had a goal as the Indians moved to 5-0 overall.

Boys Soccer

Community School 2, Filer 0 Hunter Weaver and Eric Runkel each scored for the Cutthroats and goal keeper Tom Crosby recorded nine saves.

Filer (2-3, 2-2 High Desert Conference) will play American Falls and Marsh Valley at American Falls on Saturday.

Wendell 5, Bliss 1 Wendell held a 2-0 lead after the first half on goals by Jaime Cordero and Jorge Diaz. Jesus Duenas scored the lone goal for Bliss off an assist from Tyson Ruffing in the second half but a goal by Eder Macias and two by Martin Diaz sealed the Trojans' win. Wendell (1-3-1, 1-2-1 High Desert Conference) hosts Community School on Tuesday.

Braves Prep For Cards, Sweep Mets

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • Julio Teheran gave flashes of his vast potential in earning his first big league win and the Atlanta Braves, using a line-up with Chipper Jones starting as the No. 2 hitter for the first time in 15 years, beat the New York Mets 5-1 Thursday night to complete a sweep of a doubleheader.

Jones had a sacrifice fly and RBI double in the night-cap and a solo homer and a double in the opener, a 6-5 victory for Atlanta. The Braves were making a quick stop in New York to play two games postponed Aug. 27-28 after being handed their first three-game sweep of the season, by the Phillies.

The Braves next head to St. Louis for a crucial series with the team they lead in the wild-card race by 7½ games.

Dodgers 7, Nationals 4
WASHINGTON • Tony

Gwynn hit a tiebreaking double in the ninth inning and the Dodgers beat the Nationals in the first game of a doubleheader. The nightcap was rained out.

Gwynn drove in Jerry Sands and Rod Barajas with a long double to center off Drew Storen (6-3).

Phillies 7, Brewers 2
MILWAUKEE • Cole Hamels pitched a four-hitter and Hunter Pence's triple keyed a six-run sixth inning.

Hamels (14-7) gave up solo home runs to Yuniesky Betancourt and Corey Hart, but kept Milwaukee from mounting any big innings in a game between two best teams in the National League.

Orioles 5, Yankees 4
BALTIMORE • Robert Andino singled home the winning run in the 10th inning after tying it in the eighth, and Baltimore rallied to beat New York.

Vladimir Guerrero homered, doubled twice and scored two runs for the Orioles, who celebrated their second straight extra-inning win over the Yankees by mobbing Andino at second base.

Blue Jays 7, Red Sox 4

TORONTO • Ricky Romero won for the seventh time in nine starts, J.P. Arencibia hit a three-run homer and Toronto beat Boston.

Edwin Encarnacion and Eric Thames added solo shots as the Blue Jays won back-to-back games for the first time since Aug. 31 and Sept. 1 at Baltimore.

Rookie David Cooper went 3 for 4 and had two RBIs as Toronto evened its record at 72-72.

players make the best of the situation, especially because it's not something they can control.

"I think it's good for us," said wide receiver Tyler Shoemaker. "We get to come home, get back to work a little bit, correct our mistakes we had in the first game, and really prepare for Toledo."

Shoemaker caught a touchdown pass and was one of nine different recipients of a Kellen Moore completion. Moore earned the Mountain West Conference offensive player of the week award for his 28-for-34, 261-yard performance Saturday with three touchdowns and one interception.

Defensively, lineman Shea McClellin stood out by leading BSU with 2.5 sacks and six tackles against Georgia, and he agrees with Shoemaker about sharpening the proverbial axe this week.

"I think the bye week is good. We get to prepare a little more and work on the things we have to get better at," McClellin said.

Perhaps it will serve as an additional week to shake off whatever rust remains and advance towards midseason form. According to line-backer J.C. Percy, the coaching staff is preaching the basics during practice.

"Whenever we get extra practices, Coach Pete goes right back to the fundamentals—a lot of special teams stuff, working on one-on-ones," Percy said.

Only time will tell if the early bye helps or hurts Boise State, and the players can't change the hand they've been dealt. One thing is for sure—time is one thing they will have plenty of this week.

Cowboys Blast Criner-Less 'Zona

STILLWATER, Okla. • Brandon Weeden connected with Justin Blackmon on two short touchdown tosses, Joseph Randle ran for two scores and No. 9 Oklahoma State used an early burst of offense to beat Arizona 37-14 on Thursday night in a rematch of last year's Alamo Bowl.

The Cowboys (2-0) scored on their first three drives to open a 21-0 lead in the first 16½ minutes, then put it away with two scores midway through the second half.

Randle had 121 yards rushing and nine catches for 99 yards, and Blackmon had 128 yards on 12 receptions to extend his NCAA record streak to 14 straight games with at least 100 yards receiving.

Weeden finished with 397 yards passing, one less than Arizona's Nick Foles, in a duel between the nation's top two passers from the first week of the season.

The Wildcats (1-1) played without Juron Criner, who was the Pac-10's top receiver last season and tied the school record with 11 touchdown catches. He had an appendectomy on Monday, and it's unclear whether he'll be able to return in time for Arizona's home games the next two weeks against No. 6 Stanford and No. 12 Oregon.

But even with Criner out, Foles flung it around without many issues. Texas transfer Dan Buckner had 10 catches for 142 yards, including a 54-yarder for a touchdown, and Austin Hill had 128 yards on eight receptions.

The Wildcats' running game was virtually nonexistent for the second straight week, though. Keola Antoinin had just 22 yards on 13 carries, including a 1-yard touchdown run during a stretch when Arizona made five straight defensive stops to give itself a chance.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

“Speech was given to the ordinary sort of men whereby to communicate their mind, but to wise men, whereby to conceal it.”

— Robert South

As a defender, whenever you hold the trump queen, you look for ways to protect it. Similarly, when you can infer that declarer is trying to find the trump queen and you know your partner has it, go out of your way to suggest that you have that card. Surely one of the most imaginative ways to put declarer on the wrong track came on the following deal from the European Championships between Iceland and Romania. It arose over 20 years ago — a highly relevant fact, in a curious way.

North-South reached the small slam in spades after South had shown a strong 3-5-1-4 shape. Gudmundur Arnarson led the diamond ace, which dropped declarer's king. He could have continued with another diamond, in which case declarer would surely have guessed trumps correctly (since even 4-1 trumps aside might be negotiable via a trump coup).

But instead, Arnarson found the deeply devious shift to the spade nine at trick two. Declarer hopped up with dummy's 10 and then decided to play a spade to his jack — can you blame him? This protected against the 4-1 splits — although it severely underestimated Arnarson, who would surely have pressed on with a diamond at trick two had that been the case.

Had the Romanian declarer encountered the deal after Arnarson won the Bermuda Bowl in 1991, I doubt if he would have followed such a deeply unflattering line.

ANSWER: You limited your hand at your second turn to a minimum overcall, yet your partner has invited game, suggesting about 14-15 in high cards. In context, your hand is reasonably well put together, so you have just enough to accept the invitation: bid three no-trump.

BREAKING NEWS!!

magicvalley.com

Due to expansion, promotion and a couple of cross-country relocations, the Times-News has immediate openings in the advertising, circulation and news departments.

ADVERTISING SALES SUPERVISOR

We are seeking a high-energy and enthusiastic advertising supervisor with strong interpersonal skills who possesses an entrepreneurial spirit. The successful candidate will have both business-to-business sales and management experience. Must demonstrate ability to effectively manage, lead, and generate revenue growth from local businesses.

Candidates must also possess a solid understanding of media sales, including newspaper, TV, online, print sales and event marketing. Solid critical thinking skills required. Qualified candidates must be detail oriented with excellent communication skills, and possess the ability to multi-task and work under tight deadlines. Bachelor's degree in advertising or marketing preferred. Reliable transportation is required.

The advertising supervisor will recruit, train, coach and manage a first class, diverse and talented team of sales representatives to exceed print and online advertising revenue goals and will collaborate with the Advertising Director to develop and implement sales strategies to exceed goals.

We want to talk to people who have confidence in media companies, understand the power of effective advertising and approach challenges with a high level of enthusiasm that rubs off on those around them. This is a solid marketplace with opportunity for revenue growth.

ADVERTISING SALES CONSULTANT

We need a full-time advertising sales consultant who is ready to achieve success, is highly motivated and goal orientated. This position will manage an existing well-established account list and be responsible for the development of new business from new and existing clients. They will provide excellent service to our clients, selling newspaper and online advertising, specialty publications, and ad inserts.

The successful candidate must have a proven track record in outside sales, developing strong business relationships, possess good oral and written communication skills, be well organized, have excellent follow-through and enjoy working with a variety of people. Previous marketing experience or advertising sales experience a plus.

WRITER

South-central Idaho's best and largest news provider seeks a talented writer to dig deep into the intersection of people and policy to consistently bring our readers the stories they'll keep talking about.

The assignment covers an eight-county area from which the right candidate will seek the most compelling stories from both rural and urban settings. Tasks will range from rooting out the reasons behind utility increases that hit thousands of pocketbooks to profiling a thinning group of Pearl Harbor attack survivors who call the area home.

The reporter's primary responsibility will be to find and develop six snappy enterprise stories per week and pitch in on other beats when needed, such as when our government reporter is covering the annual state legislative session in Boise.

CREATIVE DESIGNER

If you are interested in creating and designing print and online ads for clients that helps them grow their business, we want to talk to you. We are looking for an individual with computer graphic designing experience & multi-media web design skills The successful candidate will:

develop and produce advertising solutions for a wide array of clients; be a team player with excellent communication skills and the ability to pitch in to help on projects wherever needed; design advertisements on tight deadlines, and generate ad ideas and campaigns with their sales team.

The candidate will take ideas from the Classifieds Manager and create smart, and eye-catching classified sections, while adhering to tight deadline schedules.

Qualified applicants will have an Associate or Bachelor's Degree in Computer Applications, Computer Graphics, Graphic Arts or the equivalent in experience. Experience with Macintosh computers using Adobe Indesign®, Illustrator®, Photoshop®, and strong typing skills are essential. The candidate will use graphic application software on both the Mac and PC platforms. These include, but are not limited to the Adobe Creative Suite, Quark Express, ArcGis, and Prinergy Evo plate imposition software. Experience with web graphic application software such as Flash®, and DreamWeaver®, is preferred.

The Creative Designer is responsible for prioritizing, tracking, and maintaining tight deadline schedules on multiple projects, including ad production, graphic production, photo manipulation, and plate processing. You must have the ability to work scheduled hours that include some evenings and occasional weekend.

CUSTOMER SERVICE FIELD REPRESENTATIVE

We need someone with experience in providing quantifiably excellent customer service to join our Circulation Team. This position supports all interactions with customers and contractors of the daily newspaper.

Responsibilities include distributing newspapers to contractors and customers, delivery of paper routes as necessary, redelivering shortages or missed papers, collection of coins from rack accounts, making daily deposits, replacing racks as necessary and providing exceptional customer service to assure timely and efficient delivery. This 40-hour per week position will include work in the circulation office and in the field. This position requires regular lifting of newspaper bundles and must frequently lift and/or move up to 50 pounds.

Expectations include helping maintain delivery goals and deadlines, being available to work a flexible schedule that will include early mornings and weekends in all kinds of weather, and the ability to thrive in a fast-paced environment.

The successful candidate will be self motivated and able to work independently, demonstrate personable communication skills, have good organizational abilities, and be experienced working with computer programs such as Word and Excel. A valid Driver's License, vehicle with current insurance, and good driving record are required. A typical workday will start at 4:30 am and starting pay is $9.00 an hour.

CIRCULATION DISTRICT MANAGER

We also need an ambitious, team-oriented leader to join our fast paced circulation department. This position will involve growing circulation and readership by maintaining superior customer service and supervising contracted delivery positions. Applicants should possess the ability to maintain a strong budget.

Responsibilities include managing independent contractors with your district, budgeting district funds, scheduling of deliveries, maintaining accurate records of all daily business and working in a team environment. Possess the ability to read maps and deliver papers within a deadline.

The successful candidate will be self motivated and able to work independently, demonstrate personable communication skill, have good organizational abilities, and be experienced working with computer programs such as Word and Excel. A valid driver's license, vehicle with current insurance, and good driving record are required. Typical workdays will be 2 until 10 am.

Today is Friday, Sept. 9, the 252nd day of 2011. There are 113 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On Sept. 9, 1971, prisoners seized control of the maximum-security Attica Correctional Facility near Buffalo, N.Y., beginning a siege that ended up claiming 43 lives.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1776, the second Continental Congress made the term "United States" official, replacing "United Colonies."

In 1830, Charles Durant flew a balloon from New York City across the Hudson River to Perth Amboy, N.J.

In 1850, California became the 31st state of the union.

In 1919, some 1,100 members of Boston's 1,500-man police force went on strike. (The strike was broken by Massachusetts Gov. Calvin Coolidge, who brought in replacement officers.)

In 1926, the National Broadcasting Co. (NBC) was incorporated by the Radio Corp. of America.

In 1948, the Democratic People's Republic of Korea (North Korea) was declared.

In 1957, President Dwight D. Eisenhower signed the first civil rights bill to pass Congress since Reconstruction.

In 1976, Communist Chinese leader Mao Zedong died in Beijing at age 82.

In 1986, Frank Reed, director of a private school in Lebanon, was taken hostage; he was released 44 months later.

In 1991, boxer Mike Tyson was indicted in Indianapolis on a charge of raping Desiree Washington, a beauty pageant contestant. (Tyson was convicted and ended up serving three years of a six-year prison sentence.) Tajikistan became the eighth Soviet republic to declare its independence.

Ten years ago: Afghanistan's military opposition leader Ahmed Shah Massood was killed in a suicide attack by assassins posing as journalists. Barry Bonds of the San Francisco Giants hit three home runs against the Colorado Rockies to give him 63 for the season, passing Roger Maris' once-magical mark and moving him closer to Mark McGwire's record. Lleyton Hewitt ran down Pete Sampras to earn his first Grand Slam title, 7-6 (4), 6-1, 6-1 at the U.S. Open.

Five years ago: After two frustrating weeks of delays, space shuttle Atlantis and its six astronauts blasted off on a 12-day mission to install a big new piece of the international space station. The Chinese movie "Still Life" won the top award at the Venice Film Festival. Third-seeded Maria Sharapova beat Justine Henin-Hardenne 6-4, 6-4 to win the U.S. Open. The Detroit Shock won their second WNBA championship in four years, beating the defending champion Sacramento Monarchs 80-75 in Game 5.

One year ago: A natural gas pipeline explosion killed eight people and destroyed dozens of homes in the San Francisco suburb of San Bruno, Calif. Iran said it would free Sarah Shourd, one of three American hikers held for more than 13 months on spying accusations, as an act of clemency to mark the end of the Islamic holy month of Ramadan. (Shane Bauer and Josh Fattal were sentenced in August 2011 to eight years in prison.)

IF SEPTEMBER 9 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Summon your courage, as your deepest ambitions can only be attained through hard work and determination. People see your good side now, plus you are at your most attractive during the next four to six weeks, making this a good time to meet new hookups or interview for new jobs. However, any commitment made now could also tie you down. The opportunity to make a successful life-altering transformation in career is possible next April when doors previously closed open. Because you are romantic and attuned to the world around you, it is possible to find a soul mate or feel younger than your years between April and August.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Say no more. Like an offbeat comedy skit, your love life could become a source of surprise and inspiration. Relationships that give you a definite sense of security may also serve to tie you down.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You may feel spunky as a monkey. Your romantic allure is at a high point to attract others for business or pleasure. Line your wallet with gold by striving to be the right person for the best job.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Education is one thing that once given cannot be taken away. You might make your mark by working as an apprentice or by donating your time as a volunteer, while gaining valuable experience.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Work or obligations can keep you from spending quality time with a loved one. Be sure to touch base and keep lines of communication open. Shifting conditions may keep you on your toes all weekend.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Relationship problems might be revealed. This is one day when you shouldn't push your luck or act on impulse with a loved one. A romantic rendezvous could turn sour if you push for commitment.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Don't pout if you are the target of criticisms, as they might be well deserved. Do your best to overcome adversity. A stop at the local watering hole for happy hour socializing might be just the ticket.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Survival is not always for the fittest. The person who survives is not always the healthiest or most intelligent, but the one who can adapt and change to circumstances. Adjust when mistakes are pointed out.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): If you remain as still as a statue, your loved ones will place you on a pedestal. Passing aggravations will calm down quickly unless you keep on stirring the pot or add fuel to the fire with harsh words.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You have a flair for drama. Your actions are subject to misinterpretation, so be sure to consider appearances carefully. A tendency to jump from the frying pan into the fire is a definite possibility.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): When you are in harmony with the universe, the universe is likely to send you help and assistance just when you need it. Seal crucial short-term business agreements now, but postpone long-term contracts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): The gift horse may open its mouth. There may be a temporary boost in your income or an opportunity to increase your net worth. This might add responsibilities that could prove onerous over time.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Charming is as charming does. You seem to have everyone's attention, but they might point out your errors as well as your assets. Don't risk your reputation by doing anything even slightly dishonorable.

Non-traditional Students Return to College

Census study shows more education means better lifetime earnings.

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

More non-traditional students around the Magic Valley are choosing to go back to school in order to gain skills and find better job opportunities.

The trend is in line with a recent U.S. Census Bureau study, which found that higher levels of education had more of an effect on job earnings over a 40-year period than any other factor, including gender or race.

The nationwide “Education and Synthetic Work-Life Earnings” study shows the difference in earnings between someone with a professional degree and an eighth-grade education is about $72,000 per year.

Shari Stroud, Boise State University’s Twin Falls program coordinator, said enrollment has gone up for Twin Falls-based classes due to the economic downturn.

“Enrollments have gone up due to the fact that people have been laid off from a job or are coming back into the work force and are finding that they can’t make a decent wage without a bachelor’s degree,” she said.

Out of 209 local students taking classes through Boise State this semester, the majority are non-traditional students between 25 and 44 years old. About 72 percent are female.

Boise State has afternoon, evening and online programs to accommodate local students.

The University of Idaho, Idaho State University and Lewis-Clark State College also offer degree programs either at the CSI campus or online.

Brian Dobbs, director of the honors program and a sociology instructor at CSI, came back to college as a non-traditional student.

After working in the business and finance industry for nearly 20 years, he earned a master’s degree in counseling from Northwest Nazarene University.

Dobbs said he hasn’t noticed a major difference in the number of non-traditional students at CSI.

“CSI has always been a bit of a non-traditional campus anyway,” he said. “That’s part of the charm of the school — the mix

“That’s part of the charm of the school — the mix that occurs with people of various generations.”

that occurs with people of various generations.”

Many students he’s interacted with are coming back to school for a complete career change, he said.

The key for many students going back to school is finances, Dobbs said, such as what kind of jobs are available and the wages students could make after graduation.

DUMP TRUCK TAKES OUT POWER LINES IN SOUTH T.F.

BY BRADLEY GUIRE
bguire@magicvalley.com

A construction work mishap led to the loss of power for more than 700 Idaho Power Co. customers in south Twin Falls Thursday afternoon.

According to Twin Falls Police Officer Luke Allen, a dump truck carrying gravel snagged some power lines at 1:40 p.m., when a crew was resurfacing the Twin Falls Canal Co.’s equipment yard, at 406 Sixth St. W. Power poles were not pulled down, only the wires were damaged.

Because of the incident, 730 customers in the downtown area were without power for about an hour, according to Idaho Power spokesman Kevin Winslow. Service had been restored for all but 25 customers shortly after 2:30 p.m.

Second Dietrich Home Invasion Suspect Pleads Guilty

TIMES-NEWS

A second suspect in the March home invasion of a Dietrich couple pleaded guilty on Tuesday.

Jamie Taylor, 30, is one of four defendants accused of a robbery in which David and Colleen Conner were held at gunpoint in their Dietrich home on March 9. Taylor pleaded guilty to conspiracy to commit burglary, while two other felony charges against her were dropped.

Last week, Gabriel Baker, 30, pleaded guilty just before his trial was set to begin. Trials are still pending for Jeremiah Bennett, 27, and Aaron Donabedian, 22.

The defendants were charged with multiple felonies, including robbery, burglary and grand theft. Many of those charges were amended to criminal conspiracy. Sentencing for Taylor is slated for Oct. 4, while Baker is set for Nov. 1.

Filer Considers Long-term Recycling, but Concerned About Cost

BY JOHN E. SWAYZE
For the Times-News

FILER • A permanent trash recycling program may help the city of Filer support a greener environment, but it would come at a cost.

Last month, City Council members gave Western Waste Systems the green light to set up a three-month recycling pilot program focused on 100 homes. Company representatives came before the council again Tuesday to discuss early project results and request a five-year extension to their sanitation contract expiring in October.

City officials accepted the basic contract extension, but questioned adding a citywide recycling charge of $3.50 per month. Meetings are being scheduled to hear public comment on the change.

“We’re already looking at increasing our sewer rate, beginning here in March, to $70.50,” Mayor Bob Templeman said. “None of us want to see people already on fixed income having to absorb more cost, so we’d have to talk to them first.”

The program does offer participants an incentive: coupons from participating companies such as Coca-Cola or Home Depot. Western Waste is also willing to share a percentage of the profit it makes from the recycling with the city.

Councilman Bob Parent suggested using the city’s portion of those funds to help pay the recycling charge for those who might find the increase difficult.

“I’ve got one of the containers and in a two-week period it’s just about full,” Parent. “The difference is amazing in what we throw away and what can be recycled. If we could manage something like this, I’d be all for it.”

In other action, the city formally approved a $8.6 million budget for fiscal year 2012. The general budget of $1.2 million saw an increase of $80,322, the sewer budget was set at $4.7 million and the fire department budget remained unchanged at $100,538.

Padilla Receives Retained Jurisdiction for Cell Phone Heist

TIMES-NEWS

A Twin Falls man who was caught with a bundle of stolen mobile phones after police activated a tracking app on one phone was sentenced to a one-year retained jurisdiction program.

Omar Padilla, 20, received the sentence on Tuesday in Twin Falls County 5th District Court in lieu of a possible 12-year prison sentence, if he successfully completes the treatment program. Padilla pleaded guilty to felony grand theft in July.

He was accused of a break-in at the Sprint Store at 181 Blue Lakes Blvd. N. on the morning of May 20. Investigators used a phone tracking application to locate a stolen phone Padilla was supposedly using to make calls and found a bag full of phones in his girlfriend’s residence.

Restitution will be set at a future hearing.
