Xavier Principal Placed on Paid Leave

Bomgardner

Xavier Charter School's board has placed Principal Everett Bomgardner on paid administrative leave. Bomgardner's leave will be effective until Sept. 23, according to a statement from Board Chairwoman Debbi Burr. She notified parents Friday of the board's decision to send the Twin Falls charter school's new principal home.

"Out of respect for his privacy and per our school policy, we are unable to share any more information concerning this decision," she wrote in the notice.

Burr told the Times-News that more information can't be released because it's a personnel issue. Bomgardner was hired this summer after Xavier's board fired former Principal Cindy Fulcher in April 2011 after a long legal battle.

A special meeting is scheduled for 6 p.m. Sept. 22 at the school regarding Bomgardner's leave.

Homes for Wild Horses

Their beauty is undeniable, their power is inspiring and the price is a steal.

The U.S. Bureau of Land Management is hosting an adoption this weekend for wild horses gathered from the Saylor Creek herd, which calls the desert southwest of Hagerman home. The horses are 1 to 4 years old and will be auctioned off starting at $25.

The BLM moved the 200-horse herd to the Boise Wild Horse Corral after their range was lost in the 2010 Long Butte Fire. A year later, the BLM has selected 30 horses for the public to adopt.

"This is a place for horse lovers," said Heather Tiel-Nelson, a BLM spokeswoman. "The gatherings tend to be controversial, but this is tamer."

Tiel-Nelson hopes every horse will be adopted, but said she has seen a downward trend in the number of people wanting to adopt a wild horse. At the same time, horse herds have continued to grow.

Any horses not adopted will be moved to Salt Lake City. There, they'll live at a corral at the state prison where inmates take care of the herd.

The BLM offered training and gentling demonstrations on Friday for those interested in adopting a horse.

"The training is quite different from what you might think it should look like," said Twin Falls

A federal judge has approved an agreement that will finalize decisions on more than 250 candidates for endangered species protection.

The arrangement between environmental watchdog WildEarth Guardians and the U.S. Interior Department seeks to end a cycle of lawsuits and ever-increasing workload that has stalled federal biologists' assessments of troubled creatures.

T.F. City Races Heating Up

By Friday's filing deadline, 12 people had put their names in the hat for four seats.

BY BEN BOTKIN

A dozen candidates are running for four seats on the Twin Falls City Council.

By the 5 p.m. Friday deadline for filing, three of the four seats were contested, with only one uncontested. With the election coming Nov. 8, campaigns will begin to heat up quickly.

The candidates are:

- Allen Starley, owner of Starley Leavitt Insurance Agency, and Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce President and CEO Shawn Barigar are running for the seat of Councilman Trip Craig, who also seeks re-election. Barigar has served one previous term on the council, losing in 2007 to Lee Heider.

- Four candidates are seeking the seat of departing Councilman Will Kezele: businesswoman Suzanne Hawkins, city Planning and Zoning Commission Chairman Wayne Bohrn, former Mayor Chris Talkington, and P&Z member Jim Schouten.

- Councilwoman Rebecca Mills Sojka, who was appointed in December, faces three challengers for her seat. Sojka, who has done social work with children with disabilities, replaced Heider when he left for the Idaho Senate.

The other candidates are: Neil Christensen, owner of an Allstate Insurance agency in Twin Falls; Kevin Cope, vice chairman of the city P&Z; and Christopher Reid, a banker.

- Former Twin Falls Police Chief Jim Munn Jr. is unopposed, seeking the seat being vacated by Councilman David E. Johnson.

Taking a Look at Plantar Fasciitis

About four months ago my heel started hurting so bad when I first stood up in the morning that it would cause a limp for a minute or two. Now, sometimes the pain lasts all day. It is always near the heel... but not always in exactly the same part of the heel. Occasionally the same pain is also at the ball of the same foot where the center toes are attached. Are these symptoms of arthritis?

— Jennifer Leavitt

The most common reason for heel pain in adults is plantar fasciitis, which is an inflammation of the plantar fascia on the bottom of the foot. Plantar fasciitis usually occurs from a minor strain or overuse of the plantar fascia, which usually starts as a fairly mild condition and progressively worsens as the inflammation increases. The condition is commonly very painful in the morning or when rising after sitting for any extended periods of time, but can become chronically painful and hurt all day. The pain is localized in the heel, but can extend to the arch as well. The pain in the ball of your foot may be related to the plantar fasciitis if you're compensating for heel pain by walking differently, or it could be a separate condition.

Treatments for plantar fasciitis are the same as other inflammatory conditions. Ways to reduce the inflammation to your heel are to apply ice to the area, take anti-inflammatory over-the-counter medication, like Motrin or ibuprofen, or steroid injections. Stretching, splints or physical therapy is often necessary to reduce the tightness of the fascia or Achilles' tendon. Arch supports or supportive shoes are also helpful in supporting the fascia. Most fasciitis conditions can be resolved with non-surgical treatments, but resistant cases sometimes require surgical treatment.

Most cases of plantar fasciitis are unrelated to arthritis, which is an inflammatory or degenerative condition of joints.

Please contact your foot specialist if you have additional questions or need medical treatment.

resident and horse owner Charlie Lenkner. "It's not brute force or people getting bucked off. Instead, it's learning to talk to the horse."

While Lenkner admired the selection of horses the BLM was offering, the costs of maintaining and feeding another horse is costly.

Hay prices have increased sharply over the past year and building a bigger facility will take time, he said.

"Hay is close to $200 a ton, that's just crazy," Lenkner said. "But the price of the horse is low, never seen it that low."

Concerns with price and being able to stay on top of the upkeep were some of the concerns voiced by other onlookers. The BLM estimates that it costs $1,000 per year to care for a horse.

"I'm just looking right now," said Filer resident Wayne Webster, eyeing a buckskin mare in one of the corrals. "I like that one over there, but I'm not sure."

Webster is a former horse owner. But now that he lives by himself, he doesn't know if he wants to go through the trouble of training a wild horse.

"I sold my horses five years ago. We'll see if I make that commitment again," he two new political maps within the 90-day window. The deadline expired Tuesday.

On Wednesday, Secretary of State Ben Ysursa filed a lawsuit asking the high court to declare the 2002 maps unconstitutional in advance for the 2012 election season. Ysursa also asked the court to order the commission back to work and provide some guidance on how best to proceed.

A second lawsuit was filed by the three Republican members of the redistricting commission.

The court's decision not to get involved at this point leaves the state and commission in limbo, especially since some were expecting the court to simply send the commission back to work.

Deputy Secretary of State Tim Hurst said Ysursa and staff in his office intend to meet with the Idaho Attorney General Monday to figure out how best to respond.

"It's all new to us and we're going to wait until Monday to figure out where to go from here," Hurst said.

Christ Troupis, the Eagle attorney representing the three GOP commission members, did not immediately respond to telephone messages left at his office Friday.

In both Ysursa's and the Republicans' complaints, justices were asked to clarify a handful of thorny issues and hurdles that got in the way of consensus on a new set of political maps. One sticking point is whether the commissioners should avoid splitting up counties at all costs, as Democrats contend is required by the Idaho Constitution. Another is whether a 2009 law meant to avoid unwieldy districts should also be taken into account, as Republicans favor.

Species

The terms allow Interior until 2016 to work through a backlog of endangered species candidates. It will also have six years to examine petitions from WildEarth Guardians to determine if another more than 600 species are candidates for listing. The environmental group, in turn, will not sue Interior over missed deadlines during that time.

"This is a great day for endangered species," said John Horning, executive director for WildEarth Guardians.

Included on the timeline is a 2015 deadline for the greater sage grouse. Federal officials announced in 2010 that the bird was a candidate for federal protection but was not high enough of a priority to be placed on the list yet. A grouse listing would affect land use across southern Idaho.

"The window between now and when we will make a decision gives agencies time to adapt," Horning said. "(The Endangered Species Act) is not going away. The challenges of conserving the bird's habitat will only grow. My hope is that difficult decisions get made every week and every year for the next four years."

Members of the Hailey-based Western Watersheds Project — not a party to the deal, but involved in separate litigation with Interior over the grouse — had not read the judge's decision but said the grouse should be listed sooner rather than later.

"A delay in sage grouse listing will be tragic in the species," said Katie Fite, the group's biodiversity director. "Without a sage grouse listing, agencies will be blowing off concerns for the species. They will not be dealing with the ongoing activities like livestock grazing and grazing on top of sage grouse habitat."

Judge to Issue Decision on Calvillo's Request for New Trial

BY BRADLEY GUIRE
bguire@magicvalley.com

Closing arguments were made in a man's attempt to earn a new trial, but a decision won't come until next week.

Twin Falls County 5th District Judge G. Richard Bevan said he didn't want to make a decision "off the top of his head" on Friday afternoon in the matter of Valenin Calvillo, a 50-year-old man who fled his trial last year. Calvillo was convicted on eight counts of lewd conduct with a minor under 16 by a jury last November, even though he failed to appear a few days into the trial.

Calvillo supposedly went to Mexico, violating the terms of his bond, and resurfaced last May when he turned himself in to California authorities.

His defense attorney, Virginia Bond, said Calvillo misunderstood instructions from his former counsel, Doug Nelson. On the day he was supposed to testify on his own behalf, Calvillo claimed to Nelson he was ill and wanted a continuance. Nelson testified at a July hearing that he told Calvillo to seek medical attention and return to court. Bond claims Calvillo, who requires a court interpreter, believed Nelson was telling him to leave the area.

"He had every reason to stay, as his testimony was the crux of his case," Bond said.

Twin Falls County Deputy Prosecutor Suzanne Craig countered that Calvillo wanted a new attorney and believed skipping the rest of the trial would reset his case. However, the trial was allowed to continue.

"He shouldn't get a new trial after high-tailing it out of the country," Craig countered. "Any misunderstanding is made up."

Bevan said he will issue a written decision sometime in the coming week.

Osterhoudt Hears Sentence After Months of Delay

TIMES-NEWS

A Buhl man who has been tried three times since 2009 was sentenced on Friday.

Franklin Ward Osterhoudt, whose third trial resulted in felony convictions of rape, incest and two counts of lewd conduct with a minor, will serve at least 25 years in state prison. Twin Falls County 5th District Judge G. Richard Bevan ordered confinement but no fines.

Osterhoudt, 45, received a maximum sentence of life in prison on three of the felonies. All prison terms will run concurrently.

A jury levied a verdict in February, finding Osterhoudt not guilty of two additional charges of lewd conduct. This was his third trial on the charges and the second time a jury has convicted him. His first trial resulted in a hung jury. The second trial, which ended in conviction, was overturned after Judge Barry Wood ruled the state violated Osterhoudt's Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination during closing arguments.

Kimberly School Board Passes Emergency Levy

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

The Kimberly School Board unanimously approved a $140,000 emergency levy Wednesday, responding to an increase in students this fall.

School boards are allowed under Idaho Code to pass an emergency levy before the second Monday in September if average daily attendance rates are higher than the previous year. A school emergency levy doesn't have to be approved by voters.

District Superintendent Kathleen Noh said the district has tallied an extra 85 students so far this year.

"We continue to grow," she said.

Average daily attendance in the Kimberly School District is at about 1,500 students. That attendance figure is used to determine how much state funding school districts receive.

The emergency levy still needs to be certified by the Twin Falls County Commission.

Commissioner Terry Kramer said commissioners just make sure the legal levy limit isn't exceeded and that numbers are accurate.

It's not up to commissioners to approve or disapprove issuing the levy, he said. Once the levy is certified, property owners in the Kimberly School District will be notified about the new rate, which is based on home valuations.

Noh said funding from the levy will be used to purchase extra desks, textbooks, supplies and computers, as well as hire teaching assistants for kindergarten classes.

There are usually about 100 kindergarten students in the district, but that number climbed to 120 this fall, she said. The district has already added another kindergarten class to accommodate the growth.

It's not the first time the Kimberly board has approved an emergency levy. Last fall, the board approved one for $93,000.

ITD Night Work Through Buhl Starts Tonight

TIMES-NEWS

Nighttime work on U.S. Highway 30 through Buhl will close one lane of the city's main drag from 7 tonight to 6 a.m. Sunday.

The Idaho Transportation Department says crews will install long-lasting pavement markings to replace existing paint striping on Broadway Avenue and avoid the need for continued re-striping of the high-traffic roadway. The work, originally scheduled in August, was delayed due to a contractor scheduling conflict.

Work on Broadway will run from its intersection with Fruitland Avenue in northwest Buhl to its intersection with Clear Lake Road to the southwest. Crews will mill into the existing surface to place recessed markings on the road. High noise levels will result, but night work will allow workers to avoid high-traffic times.

Drivers should watch for flaggers and be prepared for delays of up to 10 minutes during construction.

Specialized Pavement Markings of Tualatin, Ore., is the contractor for the $155,000 project.

MAROVICH PLEADS GUILTY

TIMES-NEWS

Jason Marovich pleaded guilty to felony assault or battery on an officer this week in Twin Falls County 5th District Court.

The 32-year-old Twin Falls man was arrested for striking officers who intervened in a fracas between himself and another man near the band shell in City Park during the Western Days celebration in June. Marovich continued fighting while the other man complied with officers' orders to stop, and wound up with two felony complaints and a trip to jail.

He is slated for a Nov. 14 sentencing.

CALIF. MAN GETS 1 YEAR FOR DRUG CONVICTION

TIMES-NEWS

A California man will serve about two-thirds of a one-year prison sentence for possession of marijuana.

Alfonso Guillen-Fierros, 35, of Willits, Calif., was sentenced this week in Twin Falls County 5th District Court, after pleading guilty to the felony conspiracy charge in August.

He was initially charged with conspiracy to commit trafficking in marijuana when Idaho State Police arrested him for allegedly hauling four pounds of pot, stuffed inside a flat-screen TV box in the trunk of a car.

Guillen-Fierros received one year and was credited for 109 days served in jail while his case was pending. He was one of three men arrested during a drug patrol along U.S. Highway 93 in south Twin Falls County.

Michael McCormick, 25, of Ukiah, Calif., has pleaded not guilty to felony trafficking in marijuana and felony conspiracy. His trial date is set for Oct. 12. Rafael Ayala, Jr., 33, also of Ukiah, has a district court arraignment scheduled for Monday.

Local Option Tax May Be Revived After '08 Failure

The legislation died after the governor and lawmakers insisted on constitutional restrictions.

ABY JOHN MILLER
Associated Press

BOISE • A consortium of Idaho business people has resurrected a failed idea from the 2008 Legislature that for many still holds the allure of helping communities address local needs while boosting their economies: Letting residents vote to tax themselves so they can expand public transit or build roads.

Former Albertsons Inc. Chief Executive Officer Gary Michael, property manager Skip Oppenheimer and Republican consultant Jason Lehosit are among those mulling a 2012 ballot initiative on local option sales tax authority.

Three years ago, legislation died after Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter and House GOP lawmakers insisted on constitutional restrictions that proponents couldn’t live with.

This week, Michael told The Associated Press the idea re-emerged during informal talks among business people who meet over lunch about how to give local governments new financing tools. Discussions began after a failed effort by Boise Mayor Dave Bieter to secure federal funding for a downtown trolley line that some panned as ill-conceived.

“The thing we heard loud and clear from people was, ‘I’m not for this, I’m for a total solution,’” Michael said. “We said, ‘Let’s not let this thing die. Let’s see if there’s a way to come up with something broader.’”

Those initiated in the discussions include mayors like Bieter and Mark Dunham, who leads the Idaho Associated General Contractors building group — whose members could benefit from a new revenue stream for construction projects.

The group is now drafting a ballot measure but said it’s still several weeks away from a final decision on moving ahead. To get this before voters in 14 months, proponents

“They use the word ‘local option’ to skew what it really is. What are they going to be able to use it for? Is it for roads? Is it for the Boise trolley? Is it for mass transit? That’s the discussion I want to know.”

— Idaho House Majority Leader Mike Moyle must gather 47,432 registered voters’ signatures.

A campaign would cost hundreds of thousands or even more than $1 million. That’s where people like Lehosit and Lauren McLean, a Boise city councilwoman, come in.

Lehosit, a former fundraiser for Otter, ran the 2007 campaign to persuade Ada and Canyon county voters to approve the College of Western Idaho, the state’s newest community college in Nampa. McLean, appointed to the council this year, is tapped in to more-liberal circles, having organized the $10 million Boise Foothills Open Space campaign in 2001.

“The people of Idaho have the right to make local decisions on funding needs,” McLean said. “The right to vote yes or no on local decisions is really important.”

Even so, such a measure faces tough questions three years after the 2008 State-house showdown.

That year, a coalition of 70 businesses and local governments sought to pass local option sales tax authority, to benefit mass transit in Boise, bus stop and bridge repairs in Lewiston, and road resurfacing in Post Falls and Idaho Falls.

But foes like Idaho House Majority Leader Mike Moyle, R-Star, raised concerns that it was really just another way for expansive local governments to hike taxes.

He and others, including Otter, insisted any bill be married to a requirement — anchored in Idaho’s Constitution — that at least 66 percent of voters support a sales tax hike, to prevent future lawmakers from one day lowering the threshold without asking residents first.

The Idaho House passed

the plan: state senators balked. Senate President Pro Tem Brent Hill said his chamber likely would have passed it even with the two-thirds requirement, but not one tied to a constitutional amendment.

“If it came up in my community, would I support it? Probably not,” said Hill, R-Rexburg. “But right now, the only option people have to vote themselves a tax increase to finance whatever it is they are trying to finance is property taxes. That is the most hated tax of all, according to every survey everybody does. Perhaps they should have more options. I believe in local control.”

After the 2008 session, however, the local-option battle lines were clear: Oppenheimer gave cash to Moyle’s 2008 GOP primary election opponent, Nancy Merrill. With the property developer among proponents of this renewed push, that’s hardly something Moyle has forgotten.

Oppenheimer didn’t return a phone call.

Moyle said Thursday that proponents are entitled to bring an initiative, but he remains skeptical.

“It’s not local option. This is a sales tax increase,” Moyle said. “They use the word ‘local option’ to skew what it really is. What are they going to be able to use it for? Is it for roads? Is it for the Boise trolley? Is it for mass transit? That’s the discussion I want to know.”

That’s one of the unanswered questions, as proponents try to create an initiative palatable to conservative voters but that still allows cities and counties the freedom to meet diverse needs. There’s internal debate over restricting it to transportation projects — or making it flexible enough to accommodate a broader range of economic development.

“We’re exploring all possibilities,” Lehosit told the AP. “We’re trying to see if this is a tool the voters of Idaho want.

UI PRESIDENT NAMES PANEL TO REVIEW SAFETY

(AP) • A former Idaho Supreme Court justice is among three people who will review the University of Idaho’s security policies following the death of Boise graduate student Katy Benoit.

Benoit was killed Aug. 22 by a former assistant psychology professor, who had made repeated threats against her after she broke off a romantic relationship. Professor Ernesto Bustamante killed himself the following day.

President Duane Nellis said former Justice Linda Copple Trout, University of Montana Vice President Bob Durringer and Oregon State University Vice Provost Larry Roper had agreed to conduct the independent review. The three start next week.

Gary Margolis, president of Solutions for Safe Campuses, will act as a consultant to the panel.

Meanwhile, a judge set oral arguments for Oct. 3 on the university’s request for permission to release the personnel records of Bustamante. The university is asking the court to resolve the question of whether confidentiality for personnel records applies after the death of a former employee. In announcing the review panel, Nellis said members are “nationally recognized leaders” who bring “an objective perspective.”

“They will have full access to our people and our policy documents to ensure that the panel develops a complete understanding of how safety and security issues are handled here,” he said. “The panel’s commitment is to produce a final report that will help not only our University, but also the broader domain of higher education as it faces a wide range of safety and security issues unheard of in past generations.”

In a note to the university, Nellis also said: “I am committed to ensuring full disclosure and to promoting the safest possible university environment. That’s why an independent review is essential. We must be certain that we are doing everything we can to ensure the safety of our University community. We believe we are, but we want to make sure. Copple Trout was the first woman justice on Idaho’s Supreme court; Durringer is vice president of administration and finance at the U of M; and Larry Roper is vice provost for student affairs at OSU.”

Road Work Underway on U.S. 20, Highway 33

BY JOYCE EDLEFSEN
Rexburg Standard-Journal

RIGBY • The last two major road construction projects of the season are under way in the upper valley and Teton Valley.

Work started this week on a resurfacing project on U.S. Highway 20 between Rexburg and St. Anthony.

And work continues on the Idaho Highway 33 project between Hatch’s Corner east of Teton and the Wyoming border.

On the $5.3 million U.S. 20 project, Western Construction crews will resurface three miles of northbound U.S. 20 between the north Rexburg interchange (Exit 337) and the Madison-Fremont county line (milepost 340).

Six miles of southbound U.S. 20 between the north Rexburg interchange (Exit 337) and the south St. Anthony exit (Exit 344) also will be resurfaced.

The transportation department says construction will be similar to the U.S. 20 resurfacing between the south St. Anthony exit and Twin Groves from May 2 to Aug. 12.

Motorists can expect delays through mid-October, when the project — except for seal coating — is expected to be finished.

Travel will be reduced to one lane in each direction, with flaggers directing traffic through the work zone. The speed limit in work areas will be reduced to 55 mph.

Crews started on southbound lanes at the south St. Anthony and are working south. Work on northbound U.S. 20 stared at the north Rexburg interchange and will proceed north. Seal coating of the road surface is planned for next summer.

The project will strengthen and smooth the roadway for improved durability and riding comfort, the highway department says.

The Highway 33 project involves a two-lane, rather than four-lane highway, so delays are more prevalent along the 21-mile project.

Travel is reduced to one lane, with flaggers directing traffic through the work zones. The speed limit is reduced to 45 mph, and commercial vehicles are restricted to 14 feet in width through the work zones.

HK Contractors was awarded the $3.9 million contract. The company is coordinating work with other highway construction projects on Idaho 33 in Teton Valley this year, including major infrastructure improvements in downtown Driggs. The HK project is scheduled for completion Sept. 30.

Curve Couplet Draws Concern

BY CAMERON RASMUSSEN
Bonner County Daily Bee

SANDPOINT • A proposed two-lane roundabout brought traffic to a halt at the U.S. 2 Curve project’s “mini-couplet” concept presentation at Thursday’s Public Works Committee meeting.

The controversial traffic control mechanism prompted concerns among committee members about its navigability and ease of pedestrian and bicyclist crossing. Although members liked the proposed connector that will divert U.S. 2 traffic between Lake and Cedar streets, some were reluctant to advance the concept with those issues in place.

“This has to be a street pedestrians are able to cross, because we have kids on one side and a school on the other,” Councilman John Reuter said.

Idaho Transportation Department project development engineer Jason Minzghor agreed that the intersection wasn’t perfect, but given the early stage of development, problems could be weeded out during the design process itself.

“This is just a concept,” he said. “(David Evans and Associates designers) are giving you the best shot of what they have now.”

According to David Evans and Associates chief engineer Carole Richardson, the two-lane roundabout is in place to meet projected traffic needs for the next 20 years. According to estimations, the intersection will need to flow between 1,000 and 1,200 cars per hour. However, after accounting for possible traffic delays and other factors, a single-lane roundabout can only realistically manage 650 cars an hour.

Minzghor said future-proofing the Curve is essential to securing construction funds. According to Federal Highway Administration standards, a new project must surpass projected traffic needs for the next 20 years. Given that the FHA will likely supply 90 cents of every dollar in expected project funding, Minzghor said that failure to meet those standards will have serious consequences.

“This needs to meet the 20-year guidelines, or there’s no design,” he said. “It’s that simple.”

State Police: Crash Expert Didn't Lie in Fatal '06 Case

BY REBECCA BOONE
Associated Press

BOISE • The Idaho State Police has determined that its top accident reconstruction expert did not lie on the witness stand in a 2006 second-degree murder trial.

The agency on Friday released the results of its internal investigation into testimony provided by Cpl. Fred Rice, a 25-year agency veteran.

Rice was put on paid administrative leave in June after the Idaho Supreme Court suggested he perjured himself in a fatal road rage case. In making that finding, the high court ordered a new trial for Jonathan Ellington, who was convicted for running over a woman during a New Year's Day encounter on a Kootenai County highway.

ISP Director Col. Jerry Russell says he has determined that Rice did not lie during any portion of the testimony called into question by the high court.

At issue was Rice's testimony about debris fields and something called perception-reaction time, the time it takes a driver to perceive a threat and react to it. Ellington's attorneys contended his testimony conflicted with testimony he'd given in other cases, as well as with training materials prepared by Rice and used to teach courses on the subject.

Rice told The Associated Press that he didn't fault the Idaho Supreme Court for its ruling, since, he said, the justices must decide cases based only on the record presented to them. Rice wasn't even told about the appeal until after the high court hearing, he said.

The problem, Rice said, is that the Kootenai County prosecutor's office didn't contact him a few years ago, when the appeal was first filed. He didn't know anyone was even questioning the accuracy of his testimony until after the Idaho Supreme Court hearing.

Colonel G. Jerry Russell, Director of the Idaho State Police, speaks at a press conference outside the Idaho State police Headquarters Friday in Meridian.

"We could have put an end to this back at the beginning with an affidavit," Rice said.

Rice contends that Erik Lehtinen, the appellate public defender who represented Ellington on the appeal, used just one PowerPoint slide out of roughly 700 Rice uses in his classes to try to show his testimony was wrong.

Rice says Lehtinen also characterized the slide as teaching the average reaction time — when in fact, the word "average" isn't found on the slide at all. He said Ellington's appeal also confused the crash investigation techniques with crash reconstruction standards.

Those are two totally separate things, Rice said.

Expert witnesses are generally only allowed to give direct answers to the questions they're asked in court, Rice said. In the Ellington case, he was a rebuttal witness — only asked a few questions to counter the testimony of another expert, and not allowed to expand on his responses. That makes it easy for opposing attorneys to try to take things out of context, he said.

Lehtinen said since he hasn't heard Rice's side of the story, he doesn't know how the Idaho State Police reached the conclusion it did.

"I'd certainly be interested to hear how he justified his testimony in the Ellington case," Lehtinen said. "That's something the state could have presented. They had every opportunity to present an affidavit or bring Trooper Rice in to present his side of the story, and they didn't do that."

Kootenai County Prosecutor Barry McHugh wasn't the prosecutor who handled Ellington's case back in 2006, though that prosecutor still works for the office. McHugh said that because Ellington's retrial on the same charges is still pending, he couldn't comment on why Rice wasn't contacted or asked for an explanation at the start of the appeal process.

Rice said the five months since the ruling have been tough. In addition to working for ISP, he has a business working as a crash reconstruction consultant and expert witness. His clientele has virtually dried up, he said, but he's been encouraged by the support of colleagues.

"I do this because I love doing service for people, and it hurts when it gets so personal," he said. "My job is to make sure the facts get to the court. I like to think I've helped a lot of families understand how they've lost their loved ones, and I'm proud to be an Idaho State Police officer."

B-52s to Perform in Their 'Private Idaho'

BY MICHAEL DEEDS
mdeeds@idahostatesman.com

Idaho has been way too private for the B-52s over the years or maybe it's the other way around.

The new-wave party band, which formed in Athens, Ga., in 1976, soon sailed up the charts with several hits, including a quirky, paranoid song four years later called "Private Idaho." It inspired the title to a Gus Van Sant movie and, among other things, fired up hockey fans at Steelheads games not so long ago.

Yet, somehow, the B-52s have never performed in the Gem State, says singer Fred Schneider.

"We don't book our tours," he explains. "We need promoters to bring us."

So it's finally happening. The B-52s will headline an outdoor concert Tuesday, Sept. 13, at Eagle River Pavilion.

It could be a strangely cathartic evening. All those years of pent-up state pride will erupt from B-52s' fans. And all those questions we ever had about "Private Idaho" How was the song inspired? What are those ominous lyrics about? will be answered.

Or ... not.

Schneider, the yelping, borderline-frantic half of the B-52s' "boy vs. girls" signature sound, coined the song title. But you get the feeling that even he isn't sure about the significance of lyrics about wild potatoes and bottomless pools. Not to mention: Why exactly are we living in our own private as opposed to public Idaho?

"It's sort of a combination of 'private eye' and it's just basically a song about, ... " Schneider says before starting over.

"Idaho is pretty mysterious to, you know, all of us," he continues. "I know it's a beautiful state, but then I know there's also a lot of crazy right-wingers and all that stuff."

"Well, actually a lot of my friends have summer homes there," he adds.

We can see where this is going. Idaho's reputation used to be a tad eccentric, right? Especially the northern part of the state. So combine this general sense of wackiness with a private eye/Idaho play on words, and you have a hit song.

"Just basically that," Schneider says. "We just take a title or an idea, and we run with it, and we all collaborate and piece it together."

Idaho Ed Board Votes to Require Online Classes

BY JESSIE L. BONNER
Associated Press

BOISE • Idaho is a step closer to joining the handful of states that require students to take online courses.

The state Board of Education gave initial approval Friday to a rule requiring high school students to take at least two credits online to graduate, despite heavy opposition to the plan at public hearings across Idaho this summer.

Schools nationwide offer online classes but just three states — Alabama, Florida and Michigan — have adopted rules since 2006 to require online learning, according to the International Association of K-12 Online Learning in Washington, D.C. Proponents say online classes will help save money and help prepare students for college, where many courses are online. Opponents say they replace teachers with computers.

The online rules vary from state to state. Idaho would be the first to require two credits online.

Idaho's education board drafted the online course requirements as part of new education changes that were signed into law earlier this year with backing from public schools chief Tom Luna and Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter.

Luna

Luna wanted students to take up to eight online course credits, but that provision was ditched during the 2011 session of the Idaho Legislature amid opposition from parents, teachers and some lawmakers.

An effort to require students to take four online credits was also ditched.

The legislation that was approved and signed into law instead directed the state Board of Education to draft standards governing the online course requirements. The board directed a subcommittee to decide how trustees would proceed in April and that panel mostly discussed making one or two online credits a requirement to graduate high school.

Most of the opposition was directed at the education changes as a whole, not just the online requirements, board spokesman Mark

Browning said.

Luna, who sits on the board, lauded trustees for their work on the rule that was approved Friday.

"I think that this proposal before us goes a long ways toward our responsibility as a board and as a state to assure that our students have the ability and the necessary skills that they will need when they graduate from high school," Luna said Friday before the board voted 8-0 to approve the plan.

The board will now hold a 21-day comment period on the rule, though Browning says trustees are unlikely to reverse their decision. The rule will go before state lawmakers during the 2012 session, which starts in January.

Idaho is also introducing teacher merit pay and shifting money from salaries toward classroom technology, phasing in laptops for teachers and students, as part of Luna's education changes, which also limit union bargaining rights.

The changes were targeted in a referendum campaign earlier this year and will go before Idaho voters in November 2012.

Kirkpatrick's son found her body on Sept. 1.

Kestner is being held in the Canyon County jail and is scheduled to return to court on Sept. 16.

He also faces kidnapping and burglary charges in Oregon for allegedly taking a couple hostage.

Libya Fighters: Pro-Gadhafi Town Under Attack

WISHTATA, Libya (AP) • Libyan fighters launched a two-pronged assault Friday on one of the last towns to resist the country's new rulers, clashing with Moammar Gadhafi's supporters inside Bani Walid as a weeklong standoff dissolved into street-to-street battles, the revolutionary forces said.

Kenshil

Libya's new rulers had set a Saturday deadline for Gadhafi loyalists in Bani Walid to surrender or face an offensive but decided to attack Friday evening after Gadhafi forces fired volleys of rockets at the fighters' positions around the town.

Abdullah Kenshil, the former rebels' chief negotiator, said the former rebels were fighting gunmen positioned in houses in the town and the hills that overlooked it.

Anti-Gadhafi forces were moving in from the east and south, and the fighters deepest inside Bani Walid were clashing with Gadhafi's men about a mile (2 kilometers) from the center of the town, Kenshil said.

Revolutionary forces also battled loyalists to the east of the Gadhafi stronghold of Sirte on the Mediterranean coast, but were forced to pull back after taking heavy casualties in close-quarters fighting, a spokesman said.

Before the reported Friday evening assault on Bani Walid, Gadhafi holdouts in the city fired mortars and rockets toward the fighters' position in a desert dotted with green shrubs and white rocks, killing at least one and wounding several. Loud explosions were heard about six miles (10 kilometers) from the front line, followed by plumes of black smoke in the already hazy air. NATO planes circled above.

NATO says it is acting under a U.N. mandate to guarantee the safety of Libya's civilian population. Its bombing campaign has been crucial to the advance of Gadhafi's military opponents.

Daw Salaheen, the chief commander for the anti-Gadhafi forces' operation at Bani Walid, said his fighters responded with their own rocket fire, and advanced on the town.

"They are inside the city. They are fighting with snipers," Kenshil said. "They forced this on us and it was in self-defense."

He said three Gadhafi loyalists had been wounded and three killed, while the former rebels had one dead and four wounded. He said the former rebels had taken seven prisoners.

Kenshil said the former rebels believed that there were about 600 Gadhafi supporters in and around Bani Walid.

A New York City Police officer stands outside Citi Field as fans enter the stadium before a baseball game between the New York Mets and the Chicago Cubs Friday. Security has been enhanced around the country in the weeks leading up to the 10th anniversary of the Sept. 11 attacks.

NY, Washington, Aware of Terror Threat, Not Afraid

WASHINGTON (AP) • Undaunted by talk of a new terror threat, New Yorkers and Washingtonians wove among police armed with assault rifles and waited with varying degrees of patience at security checkpoints Friday while intelligence officials scrambled to nail down information on a possible al-Qaida strike timed to coincide with the 10th anniversary of 9/11.

How valid was the threat? Counterterror experts worked to answer that question before Sunday for residents and visitors in the two cities that took the brunt of the jetliner attacks that killed about 3,000 people at the World Trade Center and the Pentagon. It was the worst terror assault in the nation's history, and al-Qaida has long dreamed of striking again to mark the anniversary. But it could be weeks before the answer is clear.

Security worker Eric Martinez wore a pin depicting the twin towers on his lapel as he headed to work in lower Manhattan on Friday. He worked downtown 10 years ago and lived through it all. He still works there and said Friday, "If you're going to be afraid, you're just going to stay home."

Mayor Michael Bloomberg, too, made a point of taking the subway to City Hall.

People should take "all necessary precautions" this weekend, said President Barack Obama, who was briefed on the threat Friday morning in Washington. He still plans to travel to New York on Sunday to mark the 10th anniversary with stops that day at the Pentagon and Shanksville, Pa., too.

Washington commuters were well aware of the terror talk.

Cheryl Francis, of Chantilly, Va., said she travels over the Roosevelt bridge into Washington every day and doesn't plan to change her habits. Francis, who was in Washington on Sept. 11, 2001, said a decade later the country is more aware and alert.

"It's almost like sleeping with one eye open," she said, but she added that people need to continue living their lives.

Late Wednesday, U.S. officials received information about a threat that included details they considered specific: It involved up to three people, either in the U.S. or who were traveling to the country; a plan concocted with the help of al-Qaida leader Ayman al-Zawahri; a car bomb as a possible weapon and New York or Washington as potential targets.

Officials described the information to The Associated Press only on condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to publicly discuss the sensitive matters. Counterterrorism officials were looking for certain names associated with the threat, but it was unclear whether the names were real or fake.

The intelligence community regularly receives tips and information of this nature. But the timing of this particular threat had officials especially concerned, because it was the first "active plot" that came to light as the country marked the significant anniversary, a moment that was also significant to al-Qaida, according to information gleaned in May from Osama bin Laden's compound.

Congress Members Seeking the Shaky Common Ground

BY DAVID A. FAHRENTHOLD AND FELICIA SONMEZ
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON • On Capitol Hill, the leaders of a deeply unpopular Congress have begun to talk about doing something radical.

Agreeing with one another.

In anticipation of President Obama's address to Congress on jobs Thursday night, leaders in both parties had already identified a few jobs-related bills that could pass both the GOP-led House and the Democrat-held Senate in the coming months.

To agree on any of them would mark a significant change in tone for this divided Congress. So far, Republicans and Democrats have cut deals only when they absolutely had to stave off a disaster, such as a government shutdown or national default.

"We have to focus on areas of commonality and try to transcend differences here," House Majority Leader Eric Cantor (R-Va.) told reporters Wednesday. "We need to build consensus, and that is going to require us all not to impugn motives or to question patriotism. We have a job to do."

The prospect of more cooperation is a hopeful sign, but an examination of the bills favored by both parties shows that they are too small-bore to solve the country's vast problem with unemployment. Several only reauthorize existing programs and are unlikely to give the economy a new boost.

The most positive impact, economists said, might not be what these bills do for the economy, but what they do for Congress itself if they allow a skeptical country to see Washington working together rather than just fighting.

"For them to show their constituents that they can actually work together and pass some measures . . . is positive," said Jared Bernstein, a former member of President Obama's economic team who is a senior fellow at the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities. "Does it go far enough? Not by a long shot. But at least they're not shooting themselves in the feet."

Still, change is hard. In the few days since Congress returned from its August recess, Democratic and Republican leaders in the Senate have gone right back to sniping at one another.

Blackout a Reminder of Power Grid Vulnerabilities

SAN DIEGO (AP) • A blackout that swept across parts of the Southwest and Mexico apparently began with a single utility worker and a minor repair job.

How it then rippled from that worker in the Arizona desert, to southern California and across the border, plunging millions of people into darkness, has authorities and experts puzzled, especially since the power grid is built to withstand such mishaps.

However it spread, Thursday's outage was a reminder that the nation's transmission lines remain all too vulnerable to cascading power failures.

"There are a lot of critical pieces of equipment on the system and we have less defense than we think," said Rich Sedano at the Regulatory Assistance Project, a utility industry think tank based in Montpelier, Vt.

There have been several similar failures in recent years. In 2003, a blackout knocked out power to 50 million people in the Midwest and the Northeast. And in 2005, a major outage struck the Los Angeles metropolitan area.

That same year, Congress required utilities to comply with federal reliability standards for the electricity grid, instead of self-regulation. Layers of safeguards and backups were intended to isolate problems and make sure the power keeps flowing.

But that didn't happen on Thursday.

The Arizona Public Service Co. worker was switching out a capacitor, which controls voltage levels, outside Yuma, Ariz., near the California border. Shortly after, a section of a major regional power line failed, eventually spreading trouble further down in California and later Mexico, officials said.

And the lights began to go out in a border region of roughly 6 million people.

The outage knocked out traffic lights, causing gridlock on the roads. Two reactors at a nuclear power plant along the coast went offline after losing electricity. More than 2 million gallons of sewage spilled into the water, closing beaches in the nation's eighth-largest city.

Many had to spend the night, on both sides of the U.S.-Mexico border, struggling to fall asleep in the high temperatures.

Federal and state investigators are trying to determine what caused the blackout and how future problems can be prevented.

Officials Say 64 Buildings Burned in Wash. Wildfire

GOLDENDALE, Wash. (AP) • Residents in tinder-dry forests near Washington state's Satus Pass got word Friday that 64 structures had burned in a major ongoing blaze, a harsh reminder Friday that the area's wildfire season is far from over.

Hundreds of residents in the south-central part of the state have been evacuated because of the fire, which has burned more than 6 square miles in an area about 20 miles north of the Columbia River and 10 miles north of the city of Goldendale.

Firefighters gained some ground Friday and the fire was 20 percent contained. More accurate mapping reduced the fire's overall size to 4,215 acres, or more than 6 square miles.

Though winds were light, conditions were far from ideal for firefighters on the lines, with high temperatures in the 90s, low humidity and terrain that ranged from flat lands of dry grasses to steep canyons with thick stands of Ponderosa pines. Exactly how many of the 64 structures were homes remained unclear, but fire officials had earlier confirmed that nine homes had burned and that number was certain to grow, spokesman Guy Giffords said.

Many evacuated residents had been shown maps of areas that have burned, he said, and were aware whether their homes had been lost or saved.

George Dempsey, 68, was among those evacuated. He knew his home was still safe but waited out word on the fire from a Red Cross shelter at the Klickitat County Fairgrounds. Now staying in a camper van there, Dempsey has lived in the area for 10 years, and the fire marked his first in the region.

"I'm feeling confident. I'm not worried at all about my place," he said, then smiled and held up two fingers about an inch apart. "Maybe a little bit."

Nationally, wildfires in other parts of the country have gained more attention in recent weeks. Fires have devoured hundreds of homes in drought-plagued

Texas and several large fires continue to burn just to the south in Oregon.

Washington is experiencing an especially late start to its fire season following a winter with heavy snows and a cool spring, but warm, dry weather is forecast to continue at least through the weekend. The National Weather Service said a high-pressure system over the Northwest should last a few days, with cooler temperatures returning later Monday.

The fire started Wednesday along U.S. Highway 97 across the street from a Greek Orthodox monastery.

The 19 nuns and employees who operate a well-known bakery there saw flames and immediately ran outside with water, rakes and rags to try to beat back the fire. The buildings at the monastery were saved, fire officials said, but the fire grew quickly from there.

About 300 firefighters were fighting the blaze by Friday, but a caravan of trucks continued to pull into the fairgrounds as crews from across the region arrived, and that number was expected to grow to double or triple by late Friday afternoon, fire spokesman Chuck Turley said.

Teen Who Lost Legs in Train Accident Awake

DENVER (AP) • A 17-year-old girl whose legs were severed when she tried to hop aboard a moving freight train in Colorado is in good spirits and has been joking with her siblings at a Denver hospital, police said.

Anna Beninati's family plans to take her home soon to Sandy, Utah, so that she can begin her rehabilitation, Longmont police Cmdr. Jeff Satur told the Times-Call.

Beninati and three male friends were going to Fort Collins, where she was attending Colorado State University, when she tried to hop the train Monday in Longmont, about 30 miles north of Denver. Her legs were detached near her knees when she fell under the train.

Her family said in a statement Friday that she is awake at Denver Health, where family and friends have surrounded her at her bedside.

"Anna's close friends know her by Rush, a nickname she earned from a school teacher not by rushing through assignments, but for her eagerness to see what is next," the family said. "Anna is an adventurer by heart, and we believe this experience will make her stronger on her next adventure."

The family added that Beninati has a passion for music and had chosen a music therapy major at Colorado State to eventually work with children with autism spectrum disorders.

Police cited two of Beninati's companions, age 17 and 25, for trespassing on the Burlington Northern Santa Fe's right-of-way. Police said they planned to issue a trespassing ticket to a 21-year-old who was in the group, but they haven't been able to locate him.

Satur said this week that Beninati would not be cited.

"We're a compassionate police department," he said, noting that Beninati has more important things to worry about.

NRC Allows Closure of Yucca Mountain Nuclear Dump

BY MATTHEW DALY

Associated Press

WASHINGTON • A divided Nuclear Regulatory Commission on Friday allowed the Obama administration to continue plans to close the controversial Yucca Mountain nuclear waste dump in Nevada.

The commission split, 2-2, on whether to uphold or reject a decision by an independent nuclear licensing board. The board voted last year to block the Energy Department from withdrawing its application for Yucca Mountain, a remote site 90 miles from Las Vegas. The licensing board said the government failed to make a scientific case for why the application should be withdrawn.

Despite the split vote, the NRC said in an order Friday that the licensing board should continue steps to close out work on Yucca Mountain by the end of the month, citing "budgetary limitations."

The Energy Department has not requested additional funding for Yucca Mountain, and NRC spending on Yucca expires at the end of the month. The NRC decision appeared to be a victory for NRC Chairman Gregory Jaczko, who last year ordered NRC staff to halt work on the Yucca project.

Jaczko, a former aide to Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid of Nevada, Yucca

Mountain's leading congressional opponent, has made a series of decisions to delay or halt work on the Nevada dump since becoming chairman in 2009. His actions have infuriated congressional Republicans, who accuse Jaczko of carrying out the wishes of Reid and President Barack Obama, who appointed Jaczko as NRC chairman and promised in the 2008 campaign to kill the Yucca Mountain project.

The NRC vote may not be the last word on the issue.

Two top leaders of the House Energy and Commerce Committee said in a statement Friday that the NRC's action "means the Yucca Mountain license application remains alive."

GOP Reps. Fred Upton of Michigan and John Shimkus of Illinois said the tie vote means the June 2010 decision by the independent Atomic Safety Licensing Board is not overturned and the DOE's motion to withdraw the Yucca Mountain application is not granted. Upton chairs the Energy and Commerce panel, while Shimkus heads an environment subcommittee.

NRC Commissioner William Ostendorff agreed with Upton and Shimkus. Ostendorff, a Republican, supports using Yucca Mountain for storage of nuclear waste and has clashed with Jaczko over the NRC's handling of the issue.

Too Wacky? Moving Water From Flood to Drought Areas

BY SETH BORENSTEIN
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • As the soggy East tries to dry out from flooding and Texas prays for rain that doesn't come, you might ask: Isn't there some way to ship all that water from here to there? It's an idea that has tempted some, but reality gets in the way.

A Texas oilman once envisioned long pipelines carrying water to drought-stricken Texas cities, just one of several untested fantasies of moving water vast distances. Parched Las Vegas still wants to indirectly siphon off excess water from the overflowing Mississippi River. French engineers have simulated hauling an iceberg to barren Africa. There are even mega-trash bags to move heavy loads of water.

There's certainly plenty of rainwater available. Tropical Storm Lee dumped enough on the already saturated Mid-Atlantic, Northeast and Gulf Coast to bring 9.6 inches of rain across the entire state of Texas, according to calculations by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and The Associated Press.

"One man's flood control is another man's water supply," said Patricia Mulroy, general manager of the Southern Nevada Water Authority. "Doesn't it make you want to think about a larger distribution that helps both? That's the crazy part of this. It's a win-win. There's no loser."

But moving vast quantities of water is not simple or cheap, and thus not realistic, experts say. Mostly, it's too costly and political.

However, these dreamed-up concepts show that a quiet water crisis is getting more desperate.

"We will go to any lengths to avoid confronting the reality of water shortages," said University of Arizona law professor Robert Glennon, author of the book "Unquenchable."

"What all those zany ideas suggest are the traditional beliefs that we can control nature and there must be some oasis out there where we can go to, to import water."

But those are mirages, he said — tempting, but not realistic.

Mike Halpert, deputy director of the NOAA's Climate Prediction Center, knows the temptation. He's about to fly from Washington, which has had 7 inches since Monday, to Houston, which got about that amount of rain for the entire spring and summer. All that D.C. rain would be enough water for every person in Houston for 10 days.

He jested that he would love to carry water in his suitcases. He said colleagues have been "joking that we'll send Texas our water. Will they send us their oil? But I don't think that's going to fly."

The trouble with water is "there's enough quantity but it is not always in the right places," said G. Tracy Mehan, who was chief water regulator for the U.S. Environmental Protection Administration during the George W. Bush Administration.

So how about moving it? "The short answer ... is that it costs too much. It's not a technical problem," said Peter Gleick, president of the Pacific Studies Institute and a MacArthur genius grant recipient for his work on water.

Las Vegas' grand proposal is to take water from the mighty Mississippi in a series of smaller pipeline-like exchanges among states just west of the Mississippi to refill the overused Colorado River. There are no official cost estimates, but it likely would be in the hundreds of billions of dollars. Texas oilman T. Boone Pickens abandoned his plans for a massive water pipeline stretching across Texas to just moving water around the Texas Panhandle.

Water weighs a lot — about 8.3 pounds per gallon — so moving massive amounts, often up mountains, costs a lot, Glennon said. Gleick notes conservation and efficiency are cheaper.

Building a pipeline to pump water from flooded areas is foolish because each year it is somewhere different that gets drenched, so you can't build something permanent based on a couple of years' unusual rainy weather, NOAA's Halpert said.

For purely moving water, Gleick likes a smaller-scale concept: the trash bag. A California firm has designed Spragg Bags "with the world's strongest zippers" that haul millions of gallons of drinking water from one place to another over the ocean, said inventor Terry Spragg. It's been used in Greece.

When asked the cost to haul excess water by bag from the flooded Northeast to Texas, Spragg declined to say. "It just wouldn't be practical. It's just too distant... Forget about taking it from New Jersey or Pennsylvania, there are sources that are closer."

Homes, Businesses Swamped in Pa., NY

BLOOMSBURG, Pa. (AP) •The swollen Susquehanna River began returning to its banks Friday in Pennsylvania and New York after swamping thousands of homes and businesses in some of the highest floodwaters ever seen. But most of the 100,000 people forced from their homes could do little more than worry as they waited for the all-clear.

"I haven't even been able to get close to it to see what's left. I don't know what we're going to do," said 68-year-old Carolyn White of West Pittston, Pa., who is disabled and uses a scooter to get around. Her son managed to get close enough to see that the first floor of her house was flooded, but that was about all she knew.

The Susquehanna and its tributaries raged out of control after the remnants of Tropical Storm Lee dumped heavy rain on the already-soggy Northeast on Thursday. In many places, the river broke the high-water records set nearly 40 years ago in the catastrophic aftermath of Hurricane Agnes.

Swirling brown waters carried off at least 10 houses in Pennsylvania alone, spilled into basements, lapped at doorsteps and filled some homes to the rooftops, forcing rescues by boat and helicopter and putting severe strain on the floodwalls that protect some towns. Downstream, communities in Maryland awaited the worst from the still-rising river.

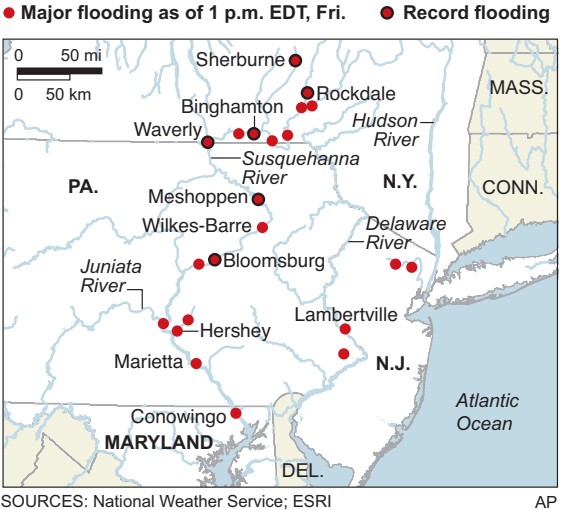

Pennsylvania Gov. Tom Corbett issued a stern warning to evacuated residents to stay away: "This is still a dangerous time, even though it's nice and sunny out."

At least 14 deaths have been blamed on Lee and its aftermath: six in Pennsylvania, three in Virginia, one in Maryland, and four others killed when it came ashore on the Gulf Coast last week. President Barack Obama declared states of emergency in Pennsylvania and New York, opening the way for federal aid.

The central Pennsylvania town of Bloomsburg endured its worst flood in more than a century as the Susquehanna inundated hundreds of homes.

Flooding subsides in some states

The swollen Susquehanna River began receding after days of rainfall, leaving behind record flood levels. More than 70,000 people along the river were told to evacuate.

Fair Board Hit the Mark With Concert Performers

CHEERS: To the Twin Falls County Fair Board for figuring out what brings folks to a concert. While attendance at this year's fair was slightly lower, concert attendance more than tripled.

Their secret? The main act was a marked contrast from last year's 38 Special. The Band Perry is a young trio of up-and-comers, and — most importantly — they came bearing grand country style.

The country flavor was a great fit with a fair that attracts folks from all over the Magic Valley. The Band Perry's concerts are selling out in other venues around the country, and we'll be able to say we saw them as they were just getting started — instead of a few decades past their prime.

JEERS: To Jess Hawley, CEO of St. Benedicts, for his blanket statement that "competition does not work to drive costs down."

While there are certainly many instances in which mergers and acquisitions create efficiencies that lower prices, most studies find that competition in any sector creates lower prices for consumers.

Besides — one of the frequent complaints of Affordable Care Act opponents is that the forced lack of competition will cause care prices to skyrocket.

We're not saying that Hawley's claim isn't true in isolated cases, but his broad generalization is, economically speaking, just plain silly.

CHEERS: To local dairies that are embracing the power of the sun. Higher energy bills combined with USDA grant money have encouraged two dairies to use solar energy to heat water.

The savings aren't huge, but as Tony Vander Hulst, one of the owners of West Point Farms, says: "A penny there, a penny here, every penny counts."

Coupled with dairies looking at technology to convert manure to energy-rich methane, and signs point to future operations that can put out great products while leaving a much smaller impact on the environment.

JEERS: To the Wwwildlife Conservation Organization, a group of back-east types who want to boycott Idaho because of the wolf hunts.

The group has released hyperbole-filled statements about the local bullies like "ranchers, sportsmen and outfitters," who have pressured Ken Salazar into "committing this slaughter."

They go on to inflate statistics, saying that "as many as 850 wolves will soon suffer excruciating deaths."

But they crossed the line from merely absurd to dangerously inflammatory when they referred to it as the "Wolf Holocaust."

Considering that one wolf has been recorded as a kill so far in the Magic Valley this year, we find the comparison in the worst of taste.

In their efforts to boycott Idaho, we don't mind the Wwwildlife Conservation Organization staying away from the Gem State for a long, long time.

LETTERS OF THANKS

Many Helped Make MagicFest Possible

The Kiwanis Club of Twin Falls and the Twin Falls Community Foundation wish to share thanks to all who participated in the success of MagicFest 2011. Following on the heels of a 2010 sellout we added a matinee for 2011, which was made possible by the help of the new Kiwanis Club of Kimberly. The MagicFest events provided magical entertainment to more than 2,000 people, including the grand finale Extravaganza on Saturday night. The comments we received following the Magical Mystery Show were very enthusiastic and complementary of Garry, Mihaela and Shany Carson's magical illusions and family comedy.

Special thanks go to our underwriter, CH2MHill, and our media sponsors: the Times-News; KMVT and Lee Family Broadcasting stations 99.9 BUZZ and 106.1 KAT. Without their generous support, MagicFest 2011 would not have been possible.

Thanks to Olen Foreman and Jack Lythgoe for organizing the Magic Camp sponsored by Toy Town, who provided all the materials and facilities for Magic Camp. The Magic Valley Mall provided a venue for our Magic Camp graduates to perform and arranged for dinner magic donations through Buffalo Wild Wings, Jamba Juice and Five Guys Burgers and Fries.

We need to acknowledge that our community support made possible this event. We had a few last minute needs met by the generous support of Falls Brand/Independent Meat and AmeriPride Linen Supply. They joined our more formal sponsors: Ed Ditlefsen, Lytle Signs, Glanbia Foods, Magic Valley Business Systems, Wills Toyota, Watkins Distributing, Sav-Mor Drug, D.L. ## Pearl Harbor and 9/11: A Fleeting Day of Infamy

If you Google "Pearl Harbor and 9/11," you get more than 4 million hits. In George W. Bush's 9/11 interview on the National Geographic Channel last week, he said Sept. 11, 2001, eventually will be marked on calendars like Pearl Harbor Day: a day never to be forgotten by the people who lived through it. But on the 10th anniversary of the 9/11 attacks, it's instructive to consider the way Pearl Harbor Day was remembered on its 10th anniversary.

In fact, on Dec. 7, 1951, Pearl Harbor wasn't remembered, at least not prominently in major newspapers and magazines. There was a reason the Japanese attack in 1941 received so little commemoration on its 10th anniversary: In 1951, the U.S. was fighting a new war on the Korean peninsula, and had just signed a security treaty with Japan, which made it a crucial ally and staging base for the Korean War. Remembering Pearl Harbor could interfere with the nation's new mission.

The spirit of the 10th anniversary of Pearl Harbor

Jon Wiener
Los Angeles Times

was best expressed by the Washington Post in its lead editorial that day, which discussed the importance of Japan as an ally in the struggle against communism in Asia. Because of that struggle, "the Japanese American alliance ought to be maintained in harmony," the editorial concluded. "It is to this future rather than to the past that thoughts should be directed on this anniversary of Pearl Harbor Day."

In other words, don't remember Pearl Harbor. Think about the communists in Korea instead.

The L.A. Times front page on Dec. 7, 1951, made no reference to the anniversary. The lead stories reported on new "atomic artillery" that could be used in the Korean War, and heavy snow on the ridge route. The second section did have a column on the Pearl Harbor anniversary, which opened, "This is the day on which innumable Americans ... will be tempted to go about boring other Americans to death with their reminiscences of where they were and exactly how they heard the news" a decade earlier. Of course this form of boredom could be avoided — by not reminiscing about Pearl Harbor.

The New York Times had nothing about the anniversary on its front page on Dec. 7, 1951. The news there was of a possible truce in Korea, and street fighting in Tehran between thousands of communists and "anti-Red civilians." It did run an editorial. The meaning of Pearl Harbor, the editors wrote, was that, since Dec. 7, 1941, "it has not been possible for us to deny our historic mission in modern history" — resisting "aggression." In 1951, that meant fighting the communists: "Over vast areas where hundreds of millions of people live, the human spirit is still enslaved ... and the aggressors are as furious as ever Hitler was."

But of course Hitler didn't attack Pearl Harbor. The country that did attack is barely mentioned in the editorial.

As for 10th anniversary commemorations in Hawaii at Pearl Harbor itself, an Associated Press story was headlined "War Noises Again Mar Peace of Pearl Harbor" and reported that "the sprawling naval base supplies men, ships and ammunition to today's area of combat in Korea."

Life magazine's cover story that week was "Harry Truman's wardrobe!" a nine-page photo essay. Time magazine's cover story was about the rise of the Reader's Digest.

Thus on the 10th anniversary of Pearl Harbor, Americans were told it was time to forget about what happened on Dec. 7, 1941, because we needed Japan's help to fight communism in Asia.

As UC Irvine historian Emily Rosenberg explained in her book "A Date Which Will Live," historical memory is not fixed. Lessons that seem crucial at one point can be ignored at another. Memory, even of the most unforgettable events, is unstable and can be transformed by new circumstances.

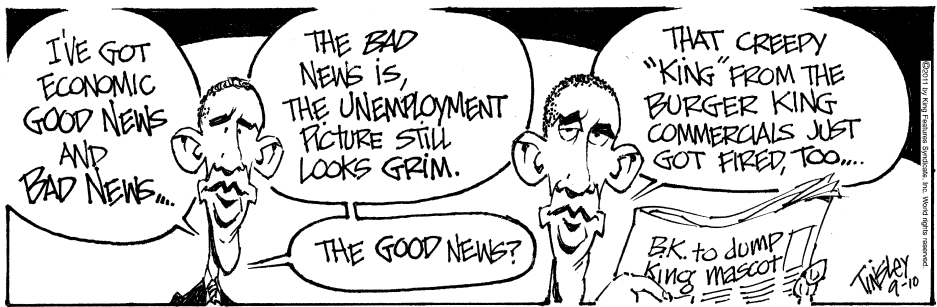

No doubt this is as true for Sept. 11, 2001 as it was for Dec. 7, 1941.

Patients, are Your Doctors Getting Paid by Drug Firms?

Your doctor gives you an expensive new drug to control your cholesterol, or recommends a certain brand of artificial hip, or says you need a stent to open a clogged artery.

He's the expert. But how do you know his expertise is untainted? The makers of the drug, the replacement hip or the stent may have paid your doctor to deliver promotional talks extolling the virtues of the product. Or they could be paying him, or her, to consult on marketing plans. It doesn't necessarily follow, of course, that this kind of moonlighting influences the treatment you receive. And many doctors don't accept these kinds of payments. But if yours does, wouldn't you like to know that?

As it stands, doctors don't have to tell you if they're working with the makers of the products they're prescribing you. They don't have to tell you whether they own stock in those companies or do research on their behalf.

There's no place for you — the patient — to find out whether your doctor is prescribing more drugs or medical devices made by companies with whom he has a relationship.

Understanding such ties can be important. Many brand-name drugs are wildly expensive, and some carry an array of dangerous side effects. Sometimes similar drugs, either those made by competitors or generics, are cheaper or have fewer risks.

Charles Ornstein Tracy Weber

Patients largely trust their doctors to do what's right for them. But a recent string of scandals has raised questions about whether patients need to know more. Pharmaceutical and medical device makers have paid billions of dollars to settle accusations of kickbacks to doctors and improper marketing of their products.

Many physicians say the close ties between drug and device firms and doctors lead to new and more effective medications, life-saving innovations and a better-educated profession. Although this is certainly true, the relationships also can cause physicians to — consciously or not — downplay side effects and poor research outcomes, studies show.

Earlier this summer, for example, the Spine Journal devoted an entire issue to repudiating the research of several spine experts that supported the widespread use of a Medtronic bone growth product used in spinal fusions. The articles charged that the researchers, who had substantial financial ties to Medtronic, overstated the benefits of the product, Infuse, and ignored its risks.

Only recently have some tools become available to help patients learn about their doctors' financial ties before they are in the exam room.

Several companies, pressured by Congress or required by legal settlements, have started to reveal the names of the doctors they've paid to deliver promotional talks or serve as consultants.

By 2013, every drug and device company operating in the United States will have to do the same, under the healthcare reform law passed last year. They'll also have to say if they've paid doctors for consulting, research, even a dinner.

We've looked at the data from 12 companies, which make up 40 percent of U.S. drug sales, and found some surprises among pharma's favored speakers and consultants.

Many of the doctors who received the most money hadn't published much in the way of research, and many didn't have associations with academic medical centers. Some had no credentials beyond a medical license. And some had been sanctioned for misconduct by their home state medical boards.

Among the top-paid speakers from that sampling was Santa Monica, Calif., pain physician Gerald Sacks. Since 2009, he has earned at least $522,113 giving promotional talks and consulting for four companies, according to the data.

Sacks, an anesthesiologist, isn't a leader in prominent pain medicine societies, and several top pain physicians told us they hadn't heard of him. He doesn't work in an academic medical center such as UCLA or USC. He hasn't published much research. We tried to talk to him about what he was paid for, but he didn't return numerous messages.

Sacks' slides from a 2008 educational talk and 2009 presentation before the U.S. Food and Drug Administration describe him as the director of pain management at St. John's Health Center in Santa Monica. A hospital spokesman said Sacks has never held that title and that his pain clinic is not part of the hospital. He does have the ability to admit and treat patients at St. John's.

Drug firms have a pretty fair idea of whether their investment in doctors like Sacks pays off. They pay millions to researchers who buy data from pharmacies and track the prescribing habits of doctors. Pfizer, which gave Sacks at least $318,250 for speaking in 2009 and 2010, according to its data, could find out if and how often he gave patients Lyrica and Celebrex, two of the company's pain medications. Firms can also track whether and how often the people who attended such talks prescribed the drugs that were discussed.

But not everyone who would like to examine the data is allowed to. The middlemen who collect this information refused to sell the data to us.

That leaves it up to patients. ProPublica has created a database, Dollars for Docs, which allows you to check whether your doctor is being paid by any of the 12 companies currently disclosing this information.

Because all companies won't reveal their payments until 2013, you might also want to ask your doctor directly about them. It's worth inquiring whether cheaper versions are available, perhaps older or generic drugs. Does the drug have more side effects than competitors' drugs? In some situations, it might be worth asking whether non-drug solutions should be tried first.

Of course, checking the rolls of paid promotional speakers is just one consideration when picking or assessing your doctor. You can also look at your state's medical board website to see if a doctor has been disciplined or criminally convicted. You can talk to other patients about the thoroughness of the doctor's exams and openness to questions.

If you have a smartphone, you can access our database from anywhere, even while sitting in your doctor's waiting room.

Center Thanks Glanbia for Donation

The Southern Idaho Learning Center would like to thank Glanbia for its generous donation of $15,000 from the proceeds of its 2011 Golf Charity Challenge.

These funds will be used to support two of our most critical services. Part of the funding will be used to provide consultations with a trained professional to help parents determine the possible source of their child's learning problem and the options for addressing it. The remaining amount will be spent to support students in SMART (Students of Math and Reading Techniques) classes, which are designed specifically to meet the academic needs of struggling learners. These funds will allow the Center to continue to serve struggling learners without means to afford services until the end of our 20th year.

We are so grateful for Glanbia for believing in the future of our children.

Are You the Region's DIY Champion?

As summer winds down, perhaps you're brushing the final coat of paint onto your home's new entryway, or tightening the last screws in the massive shelving that finally organized your garage.

If so, you have a chance to be south-central Idaho's champion do-it-yourselfer.

It's a title we plan to bestow on one of our readers this fall.

To compete for the title, tell us about a home-improvement project you've completed in 2011. Could be anything from adding a bedroom to installing tiles in the kitchen. And bigger isn't necessarily better.

In this entirely subjective contest, we'll judge on these criteria: Was it a downright cool idea? Did you get a big bang for the money you spent? Did the project make a functional or aesthetic difference to your home? Did you do it yourself, without calling in the pros? Did you learn new skills in the process? And did you get it done without stretching it out unreasonably long (that is, long enough to put your spouse in tears more than twice)?

To compete: Tell us about your project in an email, and send it to vhutchins@magicvalley.com, with "DIY" in the subject line. Be sure to include: your name, address and phone number; a description of the project; the estimated total cost; how long you took and when you finished the project.

Entry deadline: Sept. 25.

We'll choose our favorites and feature them in stories this fall.

Roger Sedlmayr, pastor of Immanuel Lutheran Church in Twin Falls, is preparing a Sunday service that will incorporate the memory of 9/11, including a bell tolling and a moment of silence. His church is one of several in the valley that has commemorative services planned this weekend.

'Victory Is Ours'

Area churches honor the victims and heroes of 9/11 during Sunday services.

BY ANDREW WEEKS
aweeks@magicvalley.com

Ten years ago, Kathy Abend was angry with God.

How could he let our world get so messed up, she wondered. How could he allow so many people to die in a senseless act of terrorism?

And then, after much prayer and community service, her perspective changed.

"I realized it was up to each of us to be a channel of peace," she said. "I'm in the ministry now because of 9/11."

Abend is pastor of the Burley United Methodist Church, and on Sunday she and her congregation will honor the victims and heroes of Sept. 11, 2001 with a special service. The church is one of several in south-central Idaho that will remember 9/11 during Sunday services.

"We have a big service planned," Abend said, noting that the 10th anniversary of the terrorist attacks falls on the day the church celebrates New Sunday, or the beginning of a new year for the faith. She will incorporate the two themes into her sermon, with special attention given to honoring those who lost their lives a decade ago.

Pastor Roger Sedlmayr of Immanuel Lutheran poses for a portrait in his office on Thursday.

More Services

VIEW the church news items on P2 and P4 for information about other area churches planning to commemorate 9/11.

"I realized we can't do a service on 9/11 without making it a service all about 9/11," she said. Besides her sermon, which will discuss where God was during the tragedy, the church will honor area firefighters, release balloons, and have a barbecue. The service begins at 11 a.m.

Immanuel Lutheran in Twin Falls will have a tolling of the bell and a moment of silence at the church's 8:30 and 10:30 a.m. services, said Pastor Roger Sedlmayr.

Remembering 9/11 is the topic of his September message to congregants in the church's monthly newsletter.

Please see VICTORY, P4

"I think it's important because it was such a monumental day in the history of our nation, a Pearl Harbor for the next generation. I think we need to recognize that even though this evil fell upon us, God has not forsaken us and he continues to remain faithful to his promises. It also teaches us the shortness and uncertainty of life."

Universalists to Remember 9/11

The Rev. Suzanne Marsh of Magic Valley Unitarian Universalist Fellowship will lead worship 10 a.m. Sunday at the Twin Falls Senior Center, where the group will honor the victims of 9/11 in a service themed "In Gathering and Remembering." Like water flowing to the sea, many have returned from the mountains and rivers and quiet places where they've spent time in recent months. As the church comes together for its first service of the "new" church year it will celebrate both new beginnings and remember together. Members and guests are invited to bring water from their summer adventures (or their homes), be they from travels far or near. The group will share stories with each other in the uniquely Unitarian Universalist ritual of water communion, so please be prepared to offer a sentence or two on where the water is from but, perhaps more importantly, what meaning it holds for you. During the service the group also will take time to remember and reflect on the events of Sept. 11, 2001. Information: 734-6552.

Immanuel Lutheran Hosts Extravaganza

Immanuel Lutheran Church, 2055 Filer Ave. E. in Twin Falls, will hold its annual Parking Lot Extravaganza from 4 to 7 p.m. Sunday. Bring lawn chairs, blankets and your own food, drink or snacks. Participants will sit picnic style on the grass as the Praise Team leads the group in hymns and songs and pray together for our nation and all who lost their lives and sacrificed and still sacrifice so much since 9/11. Pastor Kevin Anderson of the Valley Presbyterian Church, Pastor Sergio Aristizabal of the Valley Christian Center and Pastor Alex Lissow of the Trinity Lutheran Church will lead the time in prayer and devotions.

Men's Ministry Holds Annual Car Show

The Men's Ministry, "Men of Adventure," at Twin Falls Reformed Church will hold its fall kick-off by featuring the fourth annual Car and Cycle Show on Monday in the church parking lot on the corner of Pole Line Road and Grandview Drive North. Parking for entries begins at 4:30 p.m., and judging begins shortly after 6 p.m. Plaques will be awarded in three categories. # Honda to Recall 300,000 Pilot SUVs

LOS ANGELES TIMES

LOS ANGELES • Honda Motor Co. will recall more than 300,000 Pilot sport utility vehicles from the 2009 through 2011 model years to inspect the front seat belts, which could become disconnected in a crash, increasing the risk of injury.
The automaker said that because of a manufacturing error in the assembly of some of the vehicles, the stitching connecting the lap section of the belt to the outboard anchor webbing could be either incomplete or missing.
No injuries or deaths have been reported related to this condition.

President Barack Obama shakes hands after speaking about his jobs plan at the University of Richmond's Robins Center on Friday in Richmond, Va.

Small Businesses Are Mildly Hopeful on Obama Jobs Plan

BY CHRISTOPHER S. RUGABER
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Small businesses, the focus of President Barack Obama's job-creation plan, say they wouldn't suddenly boost hiring if his proposed tax cuts took effect. But they say his sweeteners could spur companies that were considering hiring to take the plunge — if their sales picked up.

The White House wants to cut Social Security taxes in half next year for the first $5 million of a company's payroll. Obama's plan would also eliminate the 6.2 percent Social Security tax on any increase in a company's payroll, whether from hires or pay raises, up to $50 million.

All companies would benefit. But the caps ensure that small businesses would benefit the most.

"That kind of thing ... would definitely be an incentive for us to pull the trigger," said Tom Schumann, general manager at E.C. Kitzel & Sons Inc., a small manufacturer in Cleveland.

The company is hiring now. But that's because its machine tools business is picking up.

"You're not going to hire someone unless you have a need for that person," Schumann said.

Other business owners say they would expect to benefit more from other White House policies, like Obama's efforts to win passage of several free-trade deals.

Small businesses are normally the leading drivers of job growth. They created 65 percent of net private-sector jobs in the past decade, according to the Small Business Administration.

Newer businesses are even more crucial. Companies less than 5 years old accounted for all the net job gains from 1980 to 2005, according to the Kauffman Foundation, which studies entrepreneurship.

But small businesses have been slower than larger companies to recover since the recession officially ended in June 2009. Surveys show they're still struggling with poor sales. By contrast, larger corporations have been exporting more, earning more revenue overseas and stockpiling cash.

All that helps explain why job creation has been so sluggish for the past two years. The unemployment rate has been stuck near or above 9 percent for 29 months, the longest stretch since World War II.

Consumers are saving more and paring debt. That's meant fewer customers for corner retail stores, small manufacturers and local contractors.

In many cases, a tax cut wouldn't be enough to make up for all that.

"We're going to hire based on consumer demand, and until demand picks up, I'm not going to be hiring based on a tax credit," said David Hauck, co-owner of Tadpole, a toy store in Boston.

Robert Litan, a vice president at the Kauffman Foundation, said the tax cuts would likely lead some small businesses that were hesitant about hiring to add jobs. But most will want to see sales improve first.

"If consumers are still in a funk and aren't buying anything, I don't think the tax cuts are going to make a difference," Litan said.

On the other hand, if spending improves, "this additional tax cut could tip them over the fence to hire a worker."

Some small business owners said the tax cuts would at least give them an extra margin of safety in tough economic times.

"This kind of thing gives us a little cushion," said Drew Greenblatt, president of Marlin Steel Wire Products in Baltimore. "And we need cushion."

But Greenblatt says he's impatient for the president to follow through on other administration priorities. These include congressional approval for free-trade agreements with South Korea, Colombia and Panama. Greenblatt's company employs 34 people who manufacture steel products and exports them to 35 countries.

His products face a tariff in South Korea, while his German competitors don't. That's because his European rivals benefit from a free-trade agreement between the EU and South Korea.

The Obama plan is "a step in the right direction," Greenblatt said. "For people teetering between whether or not they'll hire someone or lay off someone, this may make the difference."

Wes Smith, president of E&E Manufacturing, said his company would benefit more from the part of Obama's plan that would renew tax breaks for companies that buy long-lasting equipment. Like many small businesses, E&E sells to larger companies — automakers and other users of its stamped metal products.

The investment tax break "gives my customers a reason to invest their precious capital here in the United States," Smith said.

One group who may not receive much benefit from Obama's plan is the long-term unemployed — defined as those out of work for at least six months. The government says 43 percent of unemployed Americans are in this category. Obama's plan offers a $4,000 tax credit for companies that hire these workers.

But many small business owners said they didn't think this credit would affect their hiring plans.

Ken Wisnefski, CEO of WebiMax, a fast-growing online advertising firm, said many of the long-term unemployed tend to apply for senior-level, high-paying positions for which they're no longer qualified.

"The skill set they have is a little outdated for the world today," he said.

Obama has also proposed increasing the cut in Social Security taxes paid by workers, which would put more money in the pockets of many families.

The Social Security tax is imposed on the first $106,800 of taxable income. Under Obama's bigger tax cut, an extra $1,550 would go to taxpayers earning $50,000 a year. The maximum savings would be about $3,300 for an individual and $6,600 for a couple.

More take-home pay for workers could, in theory, boost consumer spending enough to spur some hiring.

"We need to get consumers and businesses spending money," Schumann said. "The jobs will follow."

How to Do Skin Self-exams

BY KAREN MORGAN
Daily Press (Newport News, Va.)

Early detection of skin cancers — particularly melanomas — is crucial to treatment. You can help protect yourself with regular at-home body inspections, says Dr. Melissa Schwarzschild of Richmond Dermatology & Laser Specialists in Richmond, Va. “You can be proactive and alleviate anxiety,” she says. Do regular inspections. Check all of your moles about every six months, especially if you have lots of them or have a personal or family history of skin cancer. See a dermatologist once a year for a routine full-body check. Get to know your moles. Know their location, size and color. Look for new or changing moles. It’s normal to develop new moles into your early 20s, but not beyond. Pay attention to any new growths or moles that have changed in size, color or shape. Take pictures. If you have lots of moles, keeping up with potential changes is difficult. One good idea: Take photographs every six to 12 months; save and date the images on a computer and review as needed. You may find a “scary” mole has always been there — or that it is in fact new. Beware of pink or black. Normal moles and other benign skin growths typically are varying shades of tan to brown. Melanomas may be black or less commonly pink, while other skin cancers tend to be pink and are often scaly. See your dermatologist if you notice a pink or black lesion. Check “hidden” spots. Don’t overlook the soles of your feet or your genital area; ask a partner or friend to check your back and have your hairdresser inspect your scalp. Skin cancers can appear even in areas where the sun doesn’t shine.

will be available both days from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. in the McKay Library. The exhibit consists of 29 complete Bibles, 18 leaves depicting the history of the Bible in English and an original first-edition (1611) King James Bible. Visitors will be able to print a copy of the title page from the King James Bible on the replica Grandin Press.

Nazarene Church Hosts ‘Klothing for Kids’
The Twin Falls Church of the Nazarene, 1231 Washington St. N., will be giving away clothes to the area’s needy school children aged kindergarten through fifth grade on Sept. 17 at the church. Doors open at 9:30 a.m., and will stay open until the clothes are gone. Information: 733-6610.

Hagerman Church Holds Yard, Bake Sale
The Hagerman United Methodist Church at Fourth and Salmon streets will hold its annual fundraiser Indoor Yard and Bake Sale from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Friday and Sept. 17. Information: Helen, 837-4780 or 539-4780.

Presbyterians Plan CROP Hunger Walk
The Twin Falls CROP Hunger Walk will be held Sept. 17. Registration begins at 9:30 a.m. at the First Presbyterian Church, 209 Fifth Ave. N. in Twin Falls. The walk starts at 10 a.m. The CROP Walk has been an annual event for the past 21 years. The Twin Falls CROP Hunger Walk has set a goal of 50 walkers and hopes to raise $5,000 to help stop hunger and poverty in our community and around the world through self-help initiatives. A portion of the funds raised in Twin Falls will go to the Mustard Seed Ministries of Twin Falls. This year’s theme is “Ending hunger one step at a time.” Many walkers will be wearing T-shirts proclaiming their solidarity with neighbors around the world as well as those served by local food pantries and meal sites. These local ministries share in the funds raised by CROP Hunger Walks. Information: Rene Homer, 731-5075.

Victory

“Where was God?” he wrote. “He was there. The Bible tells us that God works through people. He heals us through the doctor. He protects us through the firefighter or police officer. He provides food through the farmer. God was at work on September 11th through the rescuers who saved people; through the office workers who huddled together and comforted one another; through those who gave their lives to save someone else. We saw an image of God’s love in the self sacrifice of people that day. God did not abandon us on September 11th.” It’s important that America’s churches in some way commemorate 9/11, Sedlmayr told the Times-News. “I think it’s important because it was such a monumental day in the history of our nation, a Pearl Harbor for the next generation,” he said. “I think we need to recognize that even though this evil fell upon us, God has not forsaken us and he continues to remain faithful to his promises. It also teaches us the shortness and uncertainty of life.” Other area churches share a similar perspective. Scott Berner, pastor of Our Savior Lutheran in Twin Falls, said the church will take 15 minutes at the beginning of its 9:30 a.m. service to honor local firefighters, police officers and military personnel. Berner will offer a special reading and the congregation will sing “America, the Beautiful.” He said another song, “Goodness is Stronger Than Evil,” sums up how all people of faith should view 9/11: “Goodness is stronger than evil. Love is stronger than hate. Victory is ours through God who loves us.”

DEAR ABBY: My dad and I have been arguing over whether I should play soccer. I don't want to because I don't like the coach, the sport or having Dad yell at me for every little mistake I make. He says I'm good at the game and that I love it — but I DON'T. How do I explain it's just not for me without disappointing him? I feel terrible because I have let him down.

— RATHER BE A CHEERLEADER

DEAR RATHER: Please don't feel that by not participating in soccer you're letting your father down. Frankly, he has let YOU down. When a parent becomes so emotionally involved with a child's sport activity that he yells, confuses his role as an enthusiastic and supportive parent with that of the coach, and takes the joy out of the sport for the kid, this is more often than not the result. If you enjoy cheerleading, go for it and don't feel guilty. If you have the vitality and athletic ability, you'll be a star.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I dated "Albert" — a wonderful, caring man — for nine months until last week when I ended it because of a false promise. When we first started dating, he offered to fly me wherever he was due to be working. His job requires a lot of travel. It never happened.

Every year around this time he's back home in California to work the harvest at his ranch. We made plans for me to fly there to see him and meet the rest of his family.

A month ago I asked what was going on with the purchase of my plane ticket. I never got an answer, so I asked again two weeks later. Albert made some excuses and said it wasn't a good idea for him to pay for my flight there. After our break-up, he admitted his brother had convinced him it wasn't right for me to fly there at Albert's expense and, if I loved him I'd find a way to pay for it myself.

I'm a single mom. Albert knows my financial status. By no means could I afford a trip at my expense. I feel Albert's family will always influence his decisions and this would affect our relationship. Was this a good reason to break up?

— STAYING PUT IN TEXAS

DEAR STAYING PUT: Please don't be so quick to blame Albert's family. He may have been "wonderful and caring," but he wasn't much of a man for not telling you that he had had a change of heart about introducing you to his family, because that's what really happened. As you said, he knows your financial status. And yes, this was a good reason to break it off because, from my point of view, you had no other choice.

DEAR ABBY: Just a quick question regarding airline flying etiquette. What would be the proper way to handle a situation where the flight attendant comes around to serve refreshments and the person next to you is napping? Would it be appropriate to give him a little nudge when the attendant gets to your row, or just order your own and let the person be skipped over?

— UP IN THE AIR IN MASSACHUSETTS

DEAR UP IN THE AIR: Sometimes it's better to let sleeping dogs lie, and this is one of them.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"Good families are generally worse than any others."

— Anthony Hope

Michael Seamon of Florida belongs to one of the most distinguished bridge families, four members of which having participated successfully in world championships. Seamon found a fine play in this deal from a recent U.S. trial — based on a second-degree assumption of how he needed the cards to lie.

Seamon's call of two diamonds was forcing to game, so his quiet two-no-trump bid on the second round did not end the auction. North's failure to raise diamonds directly had suggested that he had only three diamonds — hence the decision to play the inferior no-trump game.

West led the spade nine to the jack and king, and East returned a low spade to Seamon's queen. Declarer had a spade trick now, but was still a long way from home. He needed to find the diamond queen and also to negotiate the heart suit for three tricks — a fairly unlikely combination of events.

However, his first move was to cash the heart king, noting the fall of West's eight. Needing this to be from shortness (specifically the queen-doubleton), Seamon inferred from all the evidence that West's diamonds were longer than East's. He backed his judgment by cashing the diamond king and finessing West for the queen on the next round. When the heart ace brought down the queen, he had nine tricks without touching clubs — a game swing. It was a hand for us all to admire.

ANSWER: What an unpleasant choice! You can pass pessimistically, raise to four spades, or bid four hearts. All of these calls are seriously flawed, but the spade raise at least offers partner a trump honor and two aces, so it would be my choice.

IF SEPTEMBER 10 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Right now, you might feel like everybody's darling. However, you can't be just another pretty face as the essential lesson of the stars is that hard work pays off. In late September, work extra hard and be as responsible and organized as possible, as others may find fault and your inner strength may be at low ebb. A fantasy may be fulfilled next February when romance enters your life, so plan a vacation. If you prove your worthiness during the next six months a reward or opportunity may appear next spring that can improve many areas of your life. Take the plunge by gambling on a relationship or new career next April when a long-term ambition can bear fruit.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Clip coupons before you head out shopping. Tighten the proverbial belt when buying the small things and the big things will take care of themselves. Be poised to handle unexpected bills or burdens.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Don't pretend to be aloof and remote when you really are entirely involved. Your loved ones are more possessive and affectionate than usual. You may not want to share a special someone with anyone else.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Mild flirtations can arouse potent feelings. You may have more appeal for others than usual, but a new romance might fail to satisfy your needs. Plan your day with an eye toward amorous activities.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Come-hither glances may conceal smoldering intentions. Deep passions lurk in the least expected places, so it's hard to be "just friends." Delight a lover with sensuous massages and soft pillows.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Feed your ambitions without starving your ego. You won't see how far you have reached the top. You might feel there is not enough money or status to satisfy your high expectations.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Pass up invitations tonight. Romantic ardor may be dampened by cranky conditions or situations that foster criticism. Relax in your jammies in front of the TV with a cold drink and popcorn.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Step down from a carousel of fun. You might get more than you bargained for if you look for excitement. Ignore people who seem determined to stir up trouble or prod you to take unnecessary risks.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Birds and bees do it. Whether you are falling in love or working on a business deal, you won't be capable of doing anything halfway under these stars. Passions might prove costly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Watch the meter. You can quickly run up a substantial tab if you let a passion for the good life outweigh your common sense. Steer clear of the poker table and the roulette wheel tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Focus on reaching your ambitions and obtaining your desires. Others seem enthralled by your mysterious ways and wish to explore your secret places. Don't get caught up in a passing fling.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You love the best of anything or delving into an absorbing mystery. Although you usually spend money on quality items right now, you are fascinated with things that come in plain brown wrappers.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Neatness counts. Concentrate on fulfilling your obligations and making sure that everything is ship-shape. Balance the checkbook and vacuum the rug. Don't ask for favors or forgiveness this evening.

ISU HOPES TO SNAP 11-GAME LOSING STREAK

BY MARK LIPTAK
For the Times-News

POCATELLO • When you've only won two out of your last 24 games and are riding an 11-game losing streak, you take nothing for granted.

That's the approach Idaho State head coach Mike Kramer is taking as his Bengals (0-1) take on Western State University (0-1) in the home opener Saturday at Holt Arena. It's also ISU's first game played on the new Field Turf.

The two schools played every year from 1946 to 1962, but haven't met since. The Mountaineers, out of Gunnison, Colo., are a Division II program that lost 35-12 to Angelo State in their season opener while the Bengals were defeated 64-21 at Washington State.

But with another D-II school, Lindenwood, upsetting Northern Colorado last week on the Bears' home field, Kramer knows you can't assume anything — not with some of the talent Western can put on the field.

"Western State is very similar to us in terms of their won-loss record and they have a new staff that's trying to establish themselves," he said. "They use a couple of two tight end sets to try to run the ball with a very good tailback (Germaine Daniels)."

"Defensively they are almost an absolute mirror of us. They have a quarterback (Miles Gorham) who is a big strong kid. He's 6-foot-4, 215 pounds."

The Mountaineers dug themselves a hole by allowing a kickoff return for a touchdown against Angelo

Sharp on Cutting-edge of Rocky Mountain Challenge Series history

BY LINDA BRITTSAN
Times-News correspondent

After tonight, they might start calling him 'Ol' Three Time'.

On top in the standings by 64 points, Zan Sharp of Wellsville, Utah is one racing event away from collecting an unprecedented third Rocky Mountain Challenge Series championship tonight at Magic Valley Speedway.

Sharp's previous titles came in 2004 and 2005 and although well poised to make RMCS history, Sharp has not cleared away a spot for the 2011 championship trophy quite yet.

"We don't have it close to sewed up by far," Sharp said. "Depending how many cars we have out there someone can easily make up that many points up in a night. I just need to go in with just one focus and that's the same thing we have been doing all summer long; run good and clean and finish up front. We're not planning on going out there and lying down by any means."

Snake River Battle Ends with Spartans Trouncing Bobcats, 47-8.

BY RYAN HOWE
rhowe@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • The power balance in Minicassia football still belongs on the north side of the Snake River.

Minico ran its rivalry winning streak to seven years with a 47-8 victory over Burley on Friday night.

"As we were driving over here we saw a couple guys out working on the farm," said Minico coach Tim Perrigot, who is 12-4 against Burley during his tenure. "It helped us remember that M on our helmet doesn't just stand for Minico, it stands for Minidoka County. This one goes out to all the hard working people who live over there. These are your kids. We all bleed red."

Minico (3-0) won the battle in the trenches, rushing for 371 yards and limiting Burley to 128 yards on the ground.

"I felt like they were pretty easy to push back, but they are heavy-set guys and they could lean on us pretty good," said Minico lineman John Walker. "But in the end we had the better momentum and movement and we just beat them up front. (Beating Burley) is

BY DAVID BASHORE

HAGERMAN • One play changed everything.

Lighthouse Christian stiffened its defense to stuff Hagerman on its first possession of Friday night's 8-man football clash, but on their first play from scrimmage the Lions fumbled the ball back, and with it, momentum. Once Hagerman got it back, it never let it go again as the Pirates rampaged their way to a 74-24 win.

Kade Kress hit Xavier Strick for a 33-yard touchdown pass, then Lighthouse Christian (2-1) fumbled on three straight snaps, leading to a safety. After the kickoff, Austin Funkhouser ran it in from 16 yards and what looked to be a budding defensive struggle shifted into a commanding 18-0 lead for Hagerman (2-0).

"That was all on our line. I owe them all milkshakes after this," said Kress, who threw for two touchdowns and ran for two more. "Can't score 74 without having a great game from the line."

Hagerman built a 62-24 lead by the end of the first half, almost exclusively on the strength of its run game. Johnathon Owsley carried for 223 yards and a touchdown, part of a 435-yard ground assault.

CANYON RIDGE BEATS BUHL IN OT THRILLER

BY STEPHEN MEYERS
smeyers@magicvalley.com

After being mobbed on the field by the Canyon Ridge faithful along with kicker Cade Summer, who booted home a 17-yard field goal to lift the Riverhawks to a riveting 33-30 win over Buhl, Nick Kytle needed a moment to himself.

The running back who scored two touchdowns and two conversions in overtime led the team down the sideline, high-fiving the fans in crimson and silver. Finally, with a moment to breathe, he knelt to his knee and said a quick prayer.

"OK I'm ready," said Kytle, who had 51 yards rushing. "The emotions I'm feeling are just unbelievable. Our team never gave up. Buhl came out swinging, but we hung in there and hit back. We were not going to give up."

Kytle, defensive linemen Cameran

Bartlett and Igor Jozellic and linebacker Siyavish Askari led a stiff goal line defensive stand to stuff Buhl on fourth-and-goal in the third overtime. Running back Micah Schneidermann was stopped just inches from a touchdown, giving the ball to Canyon Ridge.

After gaining positive yardage on two plays, the Riverhawks elected to send Summer to the field to kick a 22-yard field goal on third down. Summer, in his first year playing football after being recruited from the soccer team calmly hit the ball through the uprights.

"They just said it's all on me," said a composed Summer. "I just took a couple deep breaths and kicked the ball as solidly as I could."

Tied at 14 after regulation after Canyon Ridge's Trae Bishop caught a touchdown pass with 2:18 remaining, the teams flipped for possession with Canyon Ridge winning the coin toss in the first overtime, electing to defend first. Buhl scored on a Schneidermann 1-yard run, but Canyon Ridge answered with a Kytle touchdown and Nathan Sterner scored on a 1-yard plunge in the second overtime.

Buhl answered on a breath-taking 18-yard pass from quarterback Camden Gillins to receiver Devon Privott, who battled with two Canyon Ridge defenders to pull down the pass.

The Indians (0-2), however had to watch Canyon Ridge celebrate on their own field after Summer's kick.

"We've just got to finish," said Schneidermann, who had 61 yards rushing. "They played a good game and our team played well in overtime, but we just fell short tonight. ...I've never played in a game like this before."

U.S. OPEN

Nadal Beats Roddick, Sets Up U.S. Open Semifinal vs. Murray

NEW YORK (AP) • Defending champion Rafael Nadal overwhelmed Andy Roddick right from the start in their U.S. Open quarter-final.

Whipping passing shots from all angles and returning superbly, the No. 2-seeded Nadal beat No. 21 Roddick 6-2, 6-1, 6-3 on Friday to reach the semifinals at Flushing Meadows for the fourth consecutive year.

Nadal compiled a stunning 22-0 edge in forehand winners and broke Roddick's powerful serve six times.

Nadal took the first four games against the 2003 U.S. Open champion thanks to two breaks in the opening 18 minutes, then took 16 of the last 17 points to close the second set. In the third set, Roddick had both of his legs massaged by a trainer during a medical timeout.

"The beginning of the match was really important," Nadal said. "Andy had a really tough match yesterday. Probably, he was tired. Sorry for him."

Seeking his 11th Grand Slam title, Nadal has yet to drop a set heading into Saturday's semifinal against No. 4 Andy Murray, who beat No. 28 John Isner 7-5, 6-4, 3-6, 7-6 (2) earlier Friday.

The other semifinal was set up by Thursday's quarterfinals, and it'll be a big one, too: No. 1 Novak Djokovic against No. 3 Roger Federer, who has won five of his record 16 Grand Slam championships at the U.S. Open. For the second time in the last three major tournaments, the final foursome is filled by the top four men in the game — but it hasn't happened at the U.S. Open since 1992.

Liene Mellupe had 10 kills and 13 digs in the team's 25-12, 23-25, 25-15, 25-13 win over Midland College. Emily Ottinger had nine kills, Keani Passi added eight and Brooke Jensen and Beth Carey each had seven for CSI, while Ashia Joseph dished out 46 assists and Heather Meeuwse had 18 digs.

Dragana Cvoric had 10 kills and 12 digs for the Chaparrals.

Against Temple, CSI took the first game, but dropped the next three in losing 25-27, 25-22, 25-22, 25-22. Joseph had 38 assists and Passi had a team-high 13 kills. Taylor Wilkinson had a strong game with seven kills and eight blocks.

The Golden Eagles wrap up their stay in Houston today with matches against Panola College and No. 8 San Jacinto College-Central, both of Texas.

Goss Nets Three in Win

TIMES-NEWS

Claire Goss had a hat trick and an assist and Morgan McInnes had two goals to lead the Bruins to a 7-0 Great Basin Conference win.

Twin Falls (2-3-1, 2-1) held a 2-0 lead at the half on goals by Goss and McInnes. Jordyn Clark and Becca Behrens each had a goal and Behrens also had an assist.

"The girls played a good attacking game and they are starting to put their shots on frame," said Twin Falls coach Kay Kauffman.

Boys Soccer

Twin Falls 1, Jerome 1

The host Tigers held a 1-0 lead at the half on a goal by Simon Reyes in the 16th minute.

"We controlled the tempo in the first half and one mistake cost us," said Jerome coach Robert Garcia.

Twin Falls was able to even the score on a throw in from Ricky Sanchez to Taylor Hammond in the second half.

"We played a really strong second half," said Twin Falls coach Ben Harman. "Jerome is very fast which would be their advantage. But once we got our passing down, we were able to score. Our strength is our defensive line."

Jerome (3-1-2, 1-1-2 Great Basin Conference) travels to Canyon Ridge and Twin Falls (0-2-1, 0-4-2) is at Burley on Monday.

ISU

State, but Kramer said the key for his team will be to stopping Daniels and stopping Western when it uses two tight ends.

ISU might be without its top linebacker as A.J. Storms, who took a helmet to the ribs in Pullman and missed the entire second half. He's a game-time decision.

Offensively top running back-kick return man Tavoy Moore is also probably out with a high ankle sprain and long snapper Clint Brock's career is probably over as he suffered another concussion against the Cougars.

Moore's absence puts the burden of leading the offense on quarterback Kevin Yost, who completed 32 passes for 386 yards, and receivers Rodrick Rumble and Josh Hill. Rumble gained the third-highest receiving yards in a single game in school history when he caught 10 passes for 218 yards, and Hill snagged nine passes.

Jahmel Rover and Jarrod Daniels will get the carries that would go to Moore. The two combined for 30 yards and two touchdowns against WSU.

Kramer was pleased in a lot of areas with the way his team performed against a Pac-12 team last week despite the blowout score.

"I thought we got better as the game progressed, we had over 430 yards of total offense and our offensive line, which wasn't able to practice together much in August because of injuries, was the most improved part of the team."

Kickoff is 4 p.m. today.

MVS

After competing in eight races at four different tracks throughout the Northwest region 2010 RMCS champion Steve Jones is Sharp's closest rival going into tonight's Rich Thompson Trucking event.

"It's going to take some bad luck on his (Sharp's) part for us to have a shot at the championship," Jones admitted. "But it's never over until it's done - that's why we race them all."

One of the most proficient drivers in MVS history, Jones has numerous wins at the Twin Falls facility but none of them has come from behind the wheel of a RMCS car.

"All the races in Twin this year have been rough for us," Jones said. "The first one we blew an engine and we had the brakes lock up after leading the second one. Hopefully this one we can go out and finish the race."

Local driver Bruce Quale is also an accomplished MVS veteran. Currently fifth in the standings, Quale is looking to capture his first RMCS main event win this season. Watch for local drivers John Newhouse, Jonathon Gomez and Bobby Latham III to play spoiler in tonight's main event race.

After crowning champions in their inaugural season both the TVGoldand-Silver Thunderdogs and Quale's Pro Hornets will also close the books on the 2011 season. Only two events remain for the Mr. Gas Late Models, Budweiser Super Stocks and Project Filter Street Stocks drivers who will wrap up the NASCAR Whelen All-American Racing Series season September 17.

Gates open at 4 p.m., green flag racing begins at 6.

NOTE: Allen Stroebel, father of 2008 MVS track champion Shelby Stroebel passed away earlier this week after losing his battle with cancer. Inspired and motivated by his dad at every turn, Shelby Stroebel has determinedly made the 2011 season his most successful yet. In his most recent appearance at MVS Stroebel decisively won the Modified 150 race held on July 30.

MVS management will be collecting donations for the family and is encouraging everyone in attendance tonight wear orange in remembrance of this great supporter of the sport of racing.

UI WARY OF ANOTHER LETDOWN

BY JOSH WRIGHT

For the Times-News

MOSCOW • It wasn't just a dreadful performance against Bowling Green that Idaho coaches used the past few days to get the Vandals in the proper frame of mind for lower-division North Dakota.

They also pointed to the shocker that unfolded a week ago in Corvallis, Ore.

"You ask Oregon State what they thought of Sacramento State going in to that ballgame?" UI coach Robb Akey said of Sac State's 29-28 upset of the Beavers. "Sacramento State is a 1-AA team going against a Pac-12 team, and they went in and beat their butts in Corvallis last weekend."

"North Dakota would love nothing more to come in and do the same thing to us."

The Vandals pummeled UND 45-0 last year in the Kibbie Dome - it was the program's only shutout in the last 14 seasons - and they'll host the Fighting Sioux again this afternoon (3 p.m., 1310 AM/Ch. 13 in Twin Falls).

North Dakota, an FCS program based in Grand Forks, returns the bulk of its roster from a year ago. So Akey and his staff are familiar with UND's personnel - and that includes first-year quarterback Joey Bradley, a native of Issaquah, Wash.

In 2008, Bradley helped Issaquah High reach the 4A state championship against Skyline. Akey watched the game and took note of Bradley's feisty play at QB.

"His competitiveness shone through," Akey said. "It was very impressive."

But rather than focus on Bradley and the Fighting Sioux (1-0), Idaho has spent most of the last nine days trying to fix issues that cropped up in Week 1 - an ineffective offensive line and leaky secondary, among other things.

UI will again be without senior wide receiver Preston Davis (leg), while junior Justin Veltung - the team's marquee wideout - said earlier in the week that he was "iffy" with a lingering turf toe injury. The absence of the team's top receiving targets clearly had an impact in the 32-15 loss to Bowling Green.

"We're both pretty big playmakers,"

Veltung said, "but we have everything we need to win."

Veltung noticed the offense's confidence sank in the season opener after a string of short-lived possessions in the first quarter. Idaho gave up 30 consecutive points to the Falcons in the first half, and afterward Akey chided the team for not handling adversity well.

But this week, the fifth-year coach has picked up on a different vibe.

"What I do like in our guys' response is the fact that they're hungry to do things right and they want to have that success," Akey said.

Akey hinted that he might shake up one or more starting spots in the interior of the offensive line, particularly with right guard Jordan Johnson nursing an injury. Backup guards A.J. Jones and Bilal Liggins could both see playing time today.

NOTES • The Vandals will wear helmets with a red, white and blue American flag background on the I-Vandals' logo to commemorate Military Appreciation Day. Members of the military and their families can purchase general admission tickets for $10.

Messmer Leads Jaguars Past North Valley Academy

BY PATRICK SHELTRA
psheltra@magicvalley.com

JACKPOT, Nev. • What do you get when you pit one team playing its first game against one that already has two games under its belt?

You get the beatdown Jackpot inflicted upon North Valley Academy.

The latter was shaking off rust early, with quarterback Karl Danielson falling down as he stepped out of the pocket for a 6-yard loss, and the second snap resulting in running back Aaron Smith fumbling the pitch. Jackpot recovered, scored quickly and never looked back in posting a 49-30 victory to move to 2-1.

“These guys were prepared,” Jackpot coach Rick Pike said. “I wanted to be consistent immediately and I didn’t want (my players) to underestimate their opponent and it was great to see that.”

The Jaguars needed just three plays to score after Luis Miramontes pounced on Smith’s fumble on the NVA 20, with quarterback Ben Messmer finding Darren Hester over the middle for a 10-yard touchdown just 2 minutes, 3 seconds into the game.

It was the first of five passing touchdowns for Messmer, who completed 15 of 26 passes for 305 yards and one interception.

“We got speed with Darren Hester and Rafa Gonzales,” Pike said. “Ben was very accurate. Tyler Burt and Pablo Perez, they blocked and kept those guys back and created a big pocket.”

Gonzales had a team-high eight catches for 136 yards and two touchdowns. His 39-yard score late in the first quarter gave Jackpot a 14-0 lead, and he set up his second score by recovering a Patriot fumble early in the second half at the NVA 27. On the very next play, Gonzales found the end zone for a 35-8 lead. He also added a 75-yard kickoff return midway through the third quarter.

North Valley Academy’s offense was fueled exclusively by Dustin Turner, who had touchdown runs of 57 and 60 yards in the second half to keep the score respectable, part of a 15-carry, 197-yard, three-touchdown performance. Smith rebounded from his early fumble to return a wind-shortened kickoff 64 yards for NVA’s first score. But the Patriots didn’t complete a pass and outside of Turner, had just 48 yards total offense.

“We need to pull the trigger from the get-go,” NVA coach Dan Turner said. “Climbing out of a hole is always difficult, but I do believe we have some potential.”

something I look forward to every year, personally, and I think all these guys would agree. It’s a pretty fun event.”

Spartan running back Brady May had 125 yards on 11 carries and two TDs. Skye Dansie, Jake Beamer, Jordan Browning and Taylor Seaton also helped carry the load.

“It’s always a goal on our board to beat Burley, and it’s always fun when we do,” said Minico safety and wide receiver Dallin Griffin, who had three interceptions and a 30-yard rushing touchdown.

Burley (0-2) got on the board in the fourth quarter on Brayden McCracken’s 43-yard touchdown run.

“They really weren’t that much better than us. It was just turnovers,” said Burley senior Antonio Ramirez. “We know how to run this offense, we’ve just got to do it good with no mental mistakes. We’re just hurting ourselves... We’re just going to stay positive and put it behind us. We’ll learn from the mistakes and build off the positive we did, because we did a lot of good things, too.”

Next week Burley travels to Twin Falls while Minico has its home opener against Preston.

Both teams are in action next Friday, when Hagerman visits Mackay and Lighthouse Christian opens Sawtooth Conference South Division play by hosting North Gem.

PREP FOOTBALL ROUNDUP

Bruins Can’t Keep Up with Nampa

TIMES-NEWS

Twin Falls was smashed by Nampa 41-10.

The Bruins led 7-0 after the first quarter, but gave up touchdown runs of 30, 70 and 60 yards to fall behind 28-10 at halftime.

Robert Sanchez scored the only touchdown for the Bruins on a pass from Thomas Corr.

Twin Falls (1-1) hosts Burley next week.

Declo 12, Kimberly 7

For the second week in a row, Declo’s defense made enough plays to earn the Hornets a victory. Calum Webb intercepted a Kimberly pass in the end zone with 20 seconds remaining to preserve Declo’s 12-7 win.

The Bulldogs (0-2) scored a touchdown with 1:40 remaining to make it a five-point game. After covering the ensuing onside kickoff, all Declo had to do was run out the clock. However, the Hornets fumbled and Kimberly drove down for the would-be winning score, only to be denied by Webb’s pick.

Quarterback Kai Garner scored a pair of rushing touchdowns for Declo (2-0)

Adrian Martinez connected with Michael Willis on a pair of long touchdown passes in the fourth quarter, but three third-quarter turnovers put the Pilots in too big of a hole. Glens Ferry falls to 0-3. “You take away 10 minutes of that game and we played right with them,” Pilots coach Rob Spriggs said.

John Guadarrama scored the final Raft River points on a 14-yard run in the third.
