Most of the city elections in Jerome and Gooding counties this fall are contested.

None of the city council seats in either county are zoned individually. As a result, the top vote-getters of all council candidates running in an election will win based on how many seats are open.

Write-in candidates can still file until 5 p.m. Oct. 11.

Here are the details of candidate filings:

Jerome County

• In Jerome, four candidates - two of them incumbents - are running for two city council seats. The candidates are Kurtis Hopper, Dale Ross, and incumbents Marjorie Schmidt and Dawn Soto.

• In Eden, four candidates seek two openings on the city council. The candidates are Tonya Lucero, Diann Mc-Neil, Risa Moffitt, and incumbent M. Sierra Tattersall-Gardner. The mayor, Larry Craig, is running unopposed.

• In Hazelton, three newcomers are running for two city council seats. The candidates are Sarah Brown, Jacob Shobe and Jason L. Wethern Sr.

Gooding County

For the city of Twin Falls Planning and Zoning Commission, 302 people worried about traffic and safety weren't enough to reject a College of Southern Idaho request.

The commission voted 5-1 Tuesday in favor of a residential zoning change the College of Southern Idaho needs for a proposed student apartment building. The commission's vote is a recommendation to the City Council, which has final approval.

The site sparked plenty of concerns from the public due to its location on 8.5 acres between Falls Avenue West and Robbins Avenue West. It's directly west and south of the Southern Idaho Medical Park, which is at the intersection of Falls Avenue and Washington Street North.

"It's a very congested area already," said Janet Renaldi, who lives nearby and submitted a petition to commissioners with 302 signatures from opponents in the neighborhood and parents with children attending nearby schools.

Renaldi said commissioners should keep traffic safety at the forefront, noting that the project is near three schools.

Only Commissioner Erick Mikesell voted "no." Commissioners Terry Ihler and Lee DeVore were absent, while Jason Derricott was at the meeting but not present for the vote.

"Three hundred and two people can't be wrong," Mikesell said, noting that the college has plenty of land on campus to build housing if it wished.

Mike Mason, CSI's vice president of administration, told the commission that the project will conform with city code with an emphasis on safety. The project also puts students within walking distance of campus, cutting down on traffic, he said.

It's the second effort the college has made to increase its student housing capacity. The Twin Falls City Please see APARTMENTS, M2

9-YEAR-OLD KILLED IN CAR CRASH

TIMES-NEWS

A 9-year-old boy was killed in a car accident Monday evening in rural Gooding County that left his mother in critical condition.

Gooding County Sheriff Shaun Gough said the accident occurred around 5:30 p.m.

Mitchell Barnes of Jerome was eastbound on 3100 South Road and allegedly failed to stop at a stop sign.

His vehicle collided with Jerome resident Amy Hansen's vehicle as she was heading south on 1700 East Road.

Hansen's son, Brady, 9, was killed. Gough said Hansen remains in critical condition at a Boise hospital.

The accident remains under investigation.

PUC to Host Workshop on Electric Rate Increase

TIMES-NEWS

The Idaho Public Utilities Commission will host a local informational workshop on Idaho Power Co's request to raise rates by 10 percent by next year. The company applied for the increase in June and if approved, the rate would be enforced by Jan. 1.

The PUC workshop is scheduled to take place in Twin Falls on Sept. 21. PUC staffers will give a presentation on the company's application and evaluate the request. Afterward, staff and Idaho Power representatives will answer any further questions.

The company is requesting the raise due to growing energy demands, aging infrastructure and higher compliance requirements. As a result, the company claims it is roughly $82.6 million short of the revenue needed to serve its customers.

Idaho Power's rate increase would vary by cus-

DEQ Approves Field Burns

TIMES-NEWS

Large amounts of smoke near Twin Falls Tuesday were the result of multiple field burns.

Field burns are approved by the Idaho Department of Environmental Quality and scheduled throughout the summer depending on the weather and air conditions. On Tuesday, DEQ approved 21 field burns in southern Idaho, with the majority of them located west of Twin Falls. More than 250 acres were burned.

Field burners have from noon to 4 p.m. to conduct their burns. They are notified the day of their permit if burning will be allowed that day by DEQ officials.

DEQ offers a schedule and maps of approved field burns online at www.deq.idaho.gov. The information can be found by clicking on "Air Quality," then "Burning."

ITD to Start Bridge Work Today

TIMES-NEWS

Starting today, traffic will be reduced to one lane in each direction of U.S. Highway 93 along the Rock Creek Bridge as road crews start applying concrete sealant to the new bridge. The bridge work will take two weeks to finish, according to the Idaho Transportation Department. The sealant is a silica sand and crack-filling resin gel intended to protect the concrete surface from winter plowing, ice treatment and heavy traffic.

Speed will be reduced to 45 mph because of the work. Drivers should be cautious and look for equipment entering and leaving the site, according to ITD.

Patriot Guard Rider James Wardle will ride with more than a dozen other patriot riders from around the Magic Valley, flanking and protecting the families as they are guided to the Square.

POW veterans Bob Lynch and Dave Schaeffer, both deceased, will be honored along with their families during the Rupert POW/MIA Memorial Committee's event.

"We make sure the family receives the honor and respect they deserve," Wardle said.

Both families will be presented with POW/MIA flags that were flown over the Idaho Capitol and which bear the mens' names.

"This is about bringing closure to the families and the veterans and acknowledging what they've done, and bringing recognition to the hardships of their families," said George Maas, event organizer.

The Square will be lined with 300 POW/MIA flags during the event, which will include a Rupert POW/MIA Memorial Committee program at 1 p.m. and the school before the end of the year.

Walt Thueson, the school's librarian and the one who applied for the federal funding, said schools help educate the public on green technology. Once the costs of those projects go down, the public has then been used to the idea for awhile and may buy solar panels or other tech for their own homes.

"If these panels hadn't been subsidized, we couldn't have afforded to do it," Thueson said.

That OER effort would combine with one of Idaho Power's energy-efficiency programs if state regulators bless the union. OER has received $9.6 million of federal funds for the next year to spend on K-12 school projects.

The Idaho Public Utilities Commission is currently accepting comments on the request and plans on making a decision in the next few weeks, said Gene Fadness, a PUC spokesman.

Under the agreement, OER would approve school projects and Idaho Power would distribute the incentive funding. However, the extra money from the utility would have to be used for an additional effi-

The combination may encourage more schools to apply for project funding.

Last year, Castleford School District applied for an OER grant to install solar panels but was denied. The district already has six solar panels installed on its school roof that generates enough power for one classroom.

Superintendent Andy Wiseman said he'll apply again for a solar project if another opportunity comes along.

Enrollment is up in the Twin Falls School District and, with the school year in full swing, staffing adjustments are being made.

As of Sept. 8, a total of 7,801 students were enrolled in Twin Falls schools. That's a 102-student increase compared with the count on the third day of school last year.

As a result, district administrators will hire a part-time kindergarten teacher and transfer one teacher between elementary schools.

School trustees voted 4-0 during their Monday night meeting to approve the staffing adjustments. Trustee Bryan Matsuoka was absent.

Although enrollment is up this year, it's close to what district administrators predicted.

This year's budget was built around projected student enrollment. Current numbers are about 40 students shy of what was factored into the budget.

In other business, Twin Falls School District trustees: • Heard a presentation by Mike Donnelly about a proposal for an indoor baseball and softball facility at Twin Falls High School.

Donnelly has worked on the proposal for about one year. If the project is approved by school trustees, he would raise the approximately $60,000 needed to build a 45-foot by 80-foot structure.

He said he applied for three grants to help fund the project.

The topic will come back for a vote during the Oct. 10 school board meeting.

• Assigned trustee zones. The board revised the zones earlier this year to account for Twin Falls' population shift away from downtown.

However, Superintendent Wiley Dobbs said he expects enrollment to continue to increase at the district's alternative schools, so the projections were accurate.

"It's about where we showed we'd be," he said.

School trustees gave their approval to hire a part-time kindergarten teacher at Morningside Elementary School, which has 111 kindergartners. The estimated $25,000 to cover the hire will come from the district's general fund. The transfer will send one third-grade teacher from Lincoln Elementary School to teach fifth grade at Oregon Trail Elementary School.

It's common to make minor staffing adjustments at the beginning of each school year, Dobbs said.

Out of Twin Falls' elementary schools, Oregon Trail has seen the largest student increase - 30 more pupils than last year. Total enrollment at the school is 630 students.

TH DISTRICT OURT NEWS Buhl Tables Building TWIN FALLS COUNTY Lease with School District

BY BLAIR KOCH For the Times-News

BUHL • Renewing a 10year lease for the city of Buhl's armory property west of town with the Buhl School District seemed to be on the fast track for approval during Monday's council meeting.

That was before Public Works Director Regie Finney suggested the city add more language to the lease's maintenance agreement for the property, which the district uses for the popular ARTEC Regional Professional Technical Charter School profor replacing the armory's septic tank.

Reading the original lease, Councilwoman Pam McClain found it already contained language holding the school district responsible for certain upkeep and repairs on the property. But that mostly covered the parking lot, roof and some of the building's walls.

"There may be other items we want to specify," Mayor Tom McCauley said.

The council agreed. A motion by Councilmen Kyle Hauser and seconded by McClain to extend the lease under the same terms failed with a unanimous vote.

The lease with the school district had expired in 2009, a lapse that went unnoticed until just recently. The school district contacted the city to renew the lease, requesting the same terms: $10 for the entire decade.

Texas Man Causes Crash on Highway On-ramp

TIMES-NEWS

Two vehicles collided at the juncture of U.S. highways 93 and 30 on Tuesday morning in Twin Falls County, as a Texas man tried to make a Uturn on the highway onramp.

According to Idaho State Police, Carl Polk, 69, of Lufkin, Texas, was merging onto eastbound U.S. 30 from U.S. 93, but he realized he was about to take the wrong highway. Polk turned his GMC Yukon around by cutting through the gore and crossing eastbound traffic. The Yukon was hit in the front driver's side by Amber Kemp, 36, of Buhl, who was driving a Ford Explorer.

Both vehicles came to a stop, blocking three lanes of traffic for about 20 minutes.

Kemp was taken to St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center with minor injuries. Polk was treated at the scene. He was also cited for reckless driving. ISP reported both occupants were wearing seat belts and alcohol was not a factor in the crash.

Jobs Plan Won't Start Rush to Hire, Idaho Businesses Say

"For a company to be competitive, you can't just save them a few dollars here and there."

BY BILL ROBERTS AND AUDREY DUTTON Idaho Statesman

Idaho small businesses might get a little breathing room from the tax cuts that are part of President Barack Obama's jobs plan.

But several businesses say weak product demand, born of sagging consumer confidence and recession, will likely keep them from using the cuts to pack their payrolls.

Stephanie Camarillo, coowner of Molly Maid in Meridian, says government promises of payroll tax cuts and tax breaks for new hires won't push her to hire more people than she needs. Yet demand is up for her business, and she's thinking of adding another five to seven employees to the 20 she has.

But she finds a lot to feel good about in Obama's economic plan.

"It gives me a boost of confidence to know that our needs are being paid attention to," she said.

Several Idaho businesses

- Steve Hatten, executive director of TechHelp and consultants say there are some positive parts to Obama's plan. But they worry how effectively it will put people back to work - and

it. "I think it will make a difference, but it feels like a small difference," said Steve Hatten, executive director of TechHelp, a publicly funded agency that provides technical assistance to small and medium-size manufacturers. "For a company to be competitive, you can't just save them a few dollars here

how the country can afford and there." Norco Inc. owner Jim Kissler said his company of about 900 employees added 30 in the past four months.

The growth wasn't helped by tax breaks, and his future hiring won't be either, he said. He said he hires to accommodate demand for the gas, medical and welding company's products. But he'll take whatever tax breaks are on the table.

"Skeptical. Call me skeptical," said Kissler, who is a fan of the late President Ronald Reagan. "I don't need that bill. I don't think the country needs that bill.

"The intervention we've seen so far from the federal government, trillions of dollars, doesn't help this anemic recovery one bit."

Emmet Herndon and his daughter, Kit Herndon, run a Peasley Transfer and Storage with 32 employees in Boise. He said Obama's proposed break on unemployment tax contributions made their ears perk up - but that was about it.

"I always think President Obama is very encouraging," said Kit Herndon. "I don't know if it would have any influence on whether I would hire anyone."

A payroll tax holiday would keep the company from having "to cut back, (but) I don't see any big expansion," said Emmet Herndon, the owner.

Idaho's ravaged road and commercial construction companies could find a sweet spot in Obama's plan to pour $140 million into roads, bridges and schools.

"It would definitely be a boost to our industry," said Mark Dunham, the executive director of Idaho Associated General Contractors, who has seen his sector lose half its jobs since the recession hit.

And conditions aren't improving. A state bonding program that paid for building a number of road projects is winding down, and local highway districts are scaling back, he said.

But he's also concerned about how the plan will be paid for, and he is waiting for that part of the program before arriving at a final conclusion about Obama's plan.

Idaho Tax Revenue in August Misses Targets

BOISE (AP) • Idaho missed tax revenue forecasts in August by 4.4 percent or $8.7 million, as individual income tax and sales tax receipts lagged expectations.

After two months of the fiscal year, total collections are $403 million, or $9.2 million less than forecast.

Individual income tax collections in August were $91.4 million, about 3.9 million less than forecast. Sales tax receipts were expected to be $93.6 million, but came in at only $86.8 million. Remaining revenue categories hit their targets or were only slightly below.

TIMES-NEWS

State lawmakers and Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter are watching tax receipts in hopes of Idaho producing a second year of surpluses following the Great Recession.

If Idaho hits its fiscal year 2012 target, it should have about $180 million more than is in the current spending plan.

Prisoner Breaks Out of N. Idaho Jail – Again

ST. MARIES (AP) • An Idaho Department of Correction inmate escaped from a county jail early Tuesday morning, the second time he's fled authorities this year.

Jesse John Wilkenson, who also uses the last name of Brebner, escaped from Benewah County Jail just after midnight.

The 20-year-old Wilkenson was serving a sentence for a burglary conviction, but was in the jail awaiting charges from a July escape from the jail.

He fled captivity July 15 after a judge sentenced him to a 365-day prison substance abuse treatment program.

After that escape, he was captured 5 days later in Kootenai County.

Wilkenson now faces an additional five-year prison sentence if convicted in this latest escape.

Benewah County Undersheriff Larry Sotin won't release details of Wilkenson's latest flight from justice until an initial inquiry is completed.

GOP Bills Would Block New Monuments on Public Land

BY MATTHEW DALY Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Presidents from Theodore Roosevelt to George W. Bush have designated public land as national monuments, using a federal law to protect from development sites judged to have natural, historical or scientific significance.

Now some House Republicans, saying the 105-yearold law has been misused, have introduced bills to limit or block the president's ability to make such designations without approval from Congress.

GOP Rep. Denny Rehberg of Montana compared the 1906 Antiquities Act to the mythical sword of Damocles, calling it a weapon that can be used against rural communities at any time without warning.

Residents of Montana and other Western states "must cope with the constant knowledge that, one day, we could wake up to find that with the stroke of a pen, the president declared their back yard a national monument," Rehberg said Tuesday. For many living in the West, "it's no myth," Rehberg said, citing a 2001 designation by then-President Bill Clinton creating the Upper Missouri River Breaks National Monument in Montana and Clinton's 1996 designation of the Grand Staircase-Escalante National Monument in Utah.

Rehberg, who is running for U.S. Senate against Sen. Jon Tester, D-Mont., sponsored one of six GOP bills to overturn or limit the Antiquities Act.

The bills respond to outrage expressed throughout the West last year after an internal Interior Department memo was made public. The memo listed 14 sites in nine states that could be designated as national monuments. The plan was never formally proposed, but opponents said its existence showed the need to reform the law.

"This isn't about preventing future monument designations. It's about making sure those designations aren't forced on people who frankly don't want or need them," Rehberg said.

Jerry Taylor, mayor of Escalante City, Utah, testified in favor of the bills. He said the 15-year-old Grand Staircase-Escalante National Monument has been "devastating" to his small town and cost many people their jobs.

The 1.9-million acre monument "has hurt the local economy, driven our residents to find work elsewhere and burdened local government to provide uncompensated services," Taylor told the House Natural Resources Committee Tuesday.

Ray Rasker, executive director of Headwaters Economics, a Montana-based research group, said economic data does not support Taylor's claim. Rasker's group studied the economic performance of communities adjacent to 17 national monuments in the West.

"In all cases there was growth of employment, real personal income and real per capita income. In no case did we find that the creation of a national monument studied led to an economic downturn," he said.

No one from the Obama administration appeared at the hearing, but the Interior Department submitted testimony opposing all six bills.

The Antiquities Act helped establish some of the nation's most familiar monuments, from the Grand Canyon to the Statue of Liberty and Muir Woods, the statement said.

"Without the president's authority under the Antiquities Act, it is unlikely that many of these special places would have been protected and preserved as quickly and as fully as they were," the statement said. "Who among us today would dam the Grand Canyon or turn Muir Woods over to development? These sites ... speak eloquently to the wisdom of retaining the Antiquities Act in its current form."

Idaho's New Redistricting Panel to Meet in 2 Weeks

BOISE (AP) • A new panel tasked with redrawing Idaho's political maps will convene later this month and not on Monday, as Secretary of State Ben Ysursa had hoped.

Ysursa had asked Idaho Senate and House leaders, along with the chairmen of the Democratic and Republican parties, on Monday to name new members to the six-person redistricting committee by Wednesday, with meetings set to begin next week. The Spokesman-Review reports the deadline was pushed back after some officials said they couldn't act that quickly – and pointed out the Idaho Constitution allows them 15 days to make appointments.

Now, the panel is not expected to convene until Sept. 28.

Officials are naming an entirely new panel after a previous redistricting effort failed last week amid bitter rancor between Democratic and Republican members.

"This is a unique opportunity, maybe an opportunity of a lifetime in a sense, to really have an impact on this disease."

– Dr. Ronald Petersen of the Mayo Clinic as the Obama administration develops the first National Alzheimer's Plan, to combine research aimed at fighting the mind-destroying disease with help that caregivers need to stay afloat.

Pay Raises for State Employees?

t first glance it would be easy to question, or be downright perturbed by the news that 249 state employees have received pay increases in the past eight months. After all, pay freezes are still more the norm than the exception, furloughs are prevalent in both the private and public sectors, and doing more with less has gone beyond the cliché to becoming an unwelcome yet seemingly permanent part of our work lives. So what's this about paying more for more?

As it turns out, we think it's absolutely the right thing to do.

It's important to realize that the 249 pay increase recipients represent only slightly more than 1 percent of all state employees. And they seemed to be selectively spread out across a fairly large number of departments and agencies. That's good — it does not appear as though any group was favored over another. And although more than half of those receiving pay increases already made more than the average state salary, that is exactly the point; traditionally higher-paying positions are more difficult to fill and replace than lower paying ones.

Wayne Hammon, who heads up the state's Division of Financial Management, referred to "equity" when explaining raises in his and other state offices. Although equity adjustments have been used as justification for all manner of shenanigans, the concept in its purest form is sound. The argument goes like this: Betty was hired into a difficult-to-fill position in 2007 and four years of pay freezes and a furlough or two later, she's actually taking home less today than she was then. Since she's doing a very good job, and likely couldn't be replaced for what Betty is making today, why not give her an increase and try to keep her on board?

It's exactly what managers in the private sector have been doing for the past four years, so why should employees working in the public sector be excluded? Although it sounds a little like subtraction by addition, it's quite possible that the 249 pay increases cost the state less than the cost of turnover that may have been an unintended but predictable consequence.

One percent of state employees getting pay increases? Not only can we live with that; we can live better because of it.

'This Election is the Most Important of Our Generation' ou hear it every four years: This is the most important election in a generation. So if I say it to you about 2012, you'll probably tune me out as just another hyperbolic pundit. Which is why I'll make it more specific: For the future of America's two political parties, this is the most important election in a generation.

The 2008 election was consequential, of course. It decided which president would respond to the worst financial crisis since the Great Depression, which led to a lot of comparisons between the 2008 election and 1932. Most famously, Time magazine photoshopped President Obama's face onto an iconic shot of a grinning Franklin Delano Roosevelt, with the headline: "The New New Deal." Today, a similar cover might put Obama in a tent city and ask, year before he took office, the country's economy contracted by more than 13 percent and unemployment reached 23.6 percent. The suffering was pinned on his predecessor, and it had gone on long enough that a boom was in the offing – a boom that came, right on schedule, in 1934, when the economy grew by more than 10 percent. No wonder FDR was grinning.

Obama, by contrast, entered office as the crisis was peaking. The worst period of the crisis would prove to be the fourth quarter of 2008 and the first quarter of 2009, which mostly passed before Obama assumed the presidency, but which only showed up in the unemunemployment to 10 percent, nevertheless manifested on his watch.

So the administration is betwixt and between: According to an Associated Press poll in August, a majority of Americans still blame George W. Bush for the economic crisis. So Obama isn't Hoover. But according to every poll in recent months, a majority of Americans don't think Obama has turned this thing around, so he's not FDR, either. The next president, however, might be.

The pat story behind FDR's victory and the ensuing decades of mostly Democratic dominance is that the president got the policy right and the politics followed. Whatever you believe about FDR's policies, a more international perspective will disabuse you of the notion that the golden age for the Democratic Party was an ideological triumph rather pression hit was booted out of office, and whichever party was in power when the global recovery took hold reaped huge political benefits.

"In the U.S.," wrote Bartels, "voters replaced Republicans with Democrats and the economy improved. In Britain and Australia, voters replaced Labor governments with conservatives and the economy improved. In Sweden, voters replaced Conservatives with Liberals, then with Social Democrats, and the economy improved.

"In the Canadian agricultural province of Saskatchewan, voters replaced Conservatives with Socialists and the economy improved. In the adjacent agricultural province of Alberta, voters replaced a socialist party with a rightleaning funny-money party created from scratch by a charismatic radio preacher . . . and the economy improved.

"In Weimar Germany, where economic distress was deeper and longerlasting, voters rejected all of the mainstream parties, the Nazis seized power, and the economy improved. In every case, the party that happened to be in power when the Depression eased dominated politics for a decade or more thereafter."

OTHER VIEWS

The following editorial appeared in Tuesday's Washington Post:

Israelis worry that the Arab Spring is turning from a popular movement against dictatorship into another assault on the Jewish state, and their worry is not unfounded. Last week in Cairo a mob attacked the Israeli Embassy, forcing the evacuation of the ambassador and most of his staff; the previous week the Israeli ambassador to Turkey was expelled. Later this month Palestinians are expected to introduce a resolution on statehood at the United Nations, and Israel could be further isolated if, as expected, a large majority of the General Assembly votes in favor of it.

Turkish Prime Minister Recep Tayyip Erdogan, who aspires to regional leadership, has directed a campaign against the government of Benjamin Netanyahu and stoked it with incendiary statements. Mr. Erdogan is furious that a U.N. investigation concluded that Israel's blockade of the Gaza Strip, and thus its intervention to stop a Turkish-led flotilla last year, was legal. He also finds it convenient to lambaste Israel rather than talk about neighboring Syria, where daily massacres are being carried out by a regime Mr. Erdogan cultivated.

A Burden on Taxpayers

Why should taxpayers give $3 billion to Taliban-harboring Pakistan and why did we give $780 million to the Mexican government last year?

We are about to sign checks for a half billion dollars to Colombia, $27 million to China, $1.5 billion to radical Islamic forces.

U.S. foreign aid is one of the best-kept and most expensive secrets in Washington. It adds up:

$1,438,800,000: (United States Agency for International Development) operating costs — offices, SUVs, salaries, private school fees for employer's children;

$110,283,000: International Military Education and training teaching Pakistan, Egypt, Iran, Afghanistan, Colombia, Mexico and many more how to fight better;

$2,733,803,000: Development assistance, money to African dictators, programs on climate change, pays for new schools, computers, books for children overseas;

$2,336,000,000: Global

Health and Child Survival program and family planning and reproductive programs;

$1,425,000,000: The Millennium Challenge Corp, a United Nationsbased wealth redistribution program to reallocate money from America to "poorer countries" in the shortest time possible;

$6,504,096,000: That is more than $6.5 billion for the Economic Support Fund, helps countries to meet short - and long-term political, economic and security needs (but not ours);

$2,697,855,000: Multilateral economic assistance where the United Nations and other bureaucratic, unelected people take money off Americans to support dysfunctional governments and allow the world banks and IMF to redistribute dollars into funds "to prop up failing economies." Amazingly, this isn't all the foreign aid we lavished abroad in 2010. But it is enough to show if we slashed these amounts from the budget right now, we could start the long journey to get our economy back on track.

Panel Weighs Options for Maintaining Vacant Idaho Governor's Mansion

BOISE (AP) • The family of the late french fry billionaire J.R. Simplot is willing to help the state sustain the Idaho governor's mansion through a major fundraising campaign, according to the head of the committee that holds the purse strings to the hilltop house.

The move could help Idaho avoid draining a fund to maintain the house and leaving taxpayers on the hook for upkeep of the water-guzzling, electricity-sucking mansion that the Simplot family donated to the state in 2004.

"They're committed to helping us keep this house sustainable through a major fundraising effort," Republican state Sen. Chuck Winder said Tuesday during a meet ing of the Governor's Housing Committee.

Winder chairs the panel, which reports that a fund to maintain Idaho's long-empty governor's mansion held $936,000 as of Aug. 31. That's enough to pay for about five to six years of annual maintenance.

The committee is expected to consider a slew of options which still could include selling the home - at a meeting later this year.

If Idaho decides to sell the mansion, it must first give Simplot's surviving family the right of first refusal, at market prices. And if the offer is $2.1 million or less, Simplot's family could take back the place, even though Idaho has paid for six years of upkeep and used $310,000 from private donations for renovations.

Supporters of the plan to sell the mansion contend money tied up in the house does nothing for the state.

So far, no governor has ever lived there.

"I think this is a waste of money. I think in this day and age we don't need a governor's home," said Rep. Phylis King, a Boise Democrat on the committee.

The panel is expected to meet in November at the earliest to weigh several options for the mansion.

Idaho Department of Administration Director Teresa Luna told the committee it would cost roughly $1 million to upgrade the heating and cooling system inside the house and pay for other interior work. A complete makeover was estimated at about $2.7 million.

Montana Cattle Herd Quarantined Over Disease

BY MATTHEW BROWN Associated Press

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP) . Montana livestock officials said Tuesday that a Park County cattle herd has been quarantined after six of the animals tested positive for the disease brucellosis.

Additional testing on the animals was under way to confirm the disease, said state veterinarian Marty Zaluski. If confirmed, it would be the region's 15th infection in livestock since 2004.

Introduced by early European settlers and once widespread, brucellosis since been largely eradicated from cattle nationwide after a decades-long government effort. It persists in in parts of Texas and in wildlife in and

Tests on elk over the last year revealed a new area of wildlife infections in parts of Montana west of Yellowstone.

Montana, Idaho and Wyoming in recent years started requiring more stringent testing and vaccinations against the disease in recent years. That prompted the federal government to stop automatically imposing trade restrictions on states that have multiple infections.

The government also no longer requires that infected herds be slaughtered.

State officials did not disclose the name of the ranch where the disease was found.

The Park County infections, if confirmed, would mark Montana's fourth case in recent years, including one in November on a bison ranch owned by media mogul and philanthropist Ted Turner.

Turner's bison remain under quarantine, although testing is under way to lift restrictions on the animals, state officials said.

Wyoming had two outbreaks last year and one in February. Idaho's last out break was in 2009.

Park County and the Park County Stockgrowers Association each have lawsuits pending over the management of Yellowstone's bison by the state and federal governments. A hearing in those cases was scheduled next month in Lewistown.

The Custer County Sheriff's Office says the Cessna 182 was found at 4:40 p.m. Tuesday near a trailhead outside of Stanley in central Idaho. The pilot and passenger, whose names have not been released, were killed on impact.

Cabin owners in the region reportedly called law enforcement officials Monday night to report that they heard what sounded like a stalled aircraft engine. The Federal Aviation Administration and the National Transportation Safety Board are investigating.

Predator Drones do Domestic Duty

BY BRIAN BENNETT Tribune Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON • Most days, U.S. Customs and Border Protection Officer David Gasho sends three unmanned spy planes into the skies over the rugged Sonora Desert to hunt for drug smugglers crossing into southern Arizona from Mexico.

But in mid-June, as the largest wildfire in Arizona history raged, Gasho sent one of the Predator B drones soaring over residential neighborhoods in search of another threat rogue brush fires. Working from an air-conditioned trailer, his crew aimed an airborne infrared camera through thick smoke and spotted a smoldering blaze.

Using coordinates fed from the drone, airborne firefighters then doused the hot spot from helicopters and watched over a secure Internet feed as the heat signature of the flames cooled.

It was the latest example of oncesecret military hardware finding routine civilian uses. Seven surveillance drones are chiefly used to help patrol America's northern and southern borders. But in recent months, they also have helped state and local authorities fight deadly fires, survey damage from floods and tornadoes, and inspect dams and levees.

"People are constantly coming up and wanting a piece of that Predator pie," said Gasho, a former commercial pilot who heads the Customs and Border Protection air operations in Sierra Vista, Ariz., standing beside one of the drones at Libby Army Airfield.

Between March and July, for example, dozens of drone missions were flown between Grand Forks, N.D., and Columbia, Mo. The Predators provid-

Teams of insurgents firing rocketpropelled grenades and automatic weapons struck at the U.S. Embassy, NATO headauarters and other buildings in the heart of the Afghan capital Tuesday, raising fresh doubts about the Afghans' ability to secure their nation as U.S. and other foreign troops begin to withdraw.

Same Goal, Opposing Plans for Debt 'Supercommittee'

BY DAVID ESPO Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Digging in for a bruising struggle, Republicans on Congress' powerful deficit-fighting "supercommittee" targeted Social Security and government health care spending Tuesday while Democrats pressed for higher tax revenue as part of any deal to reduce red ink by at least $1.2 trillion over the next decade.

There were no ultimatums from either side, and there was even a fleeting suggestion that tax reform might eventually clear the way for the bipartisan agreement that both sides say they want.

Yet with the Census Bureau reporting national poverty at a 28-year high and partisan struggles flaring elsewhere in Congress, the events underscored the challenge the 12-member panel faces as it gropes for a deal that can clear Congress and win President Barack Obama's signature by year's end.

With the nation's debt high and surging and the population aging, 'Citizens will either have to pay more for their government, accept less in government services and benefits, or both," Doug Elmendorf, the head of the nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office, told the supercommittee.

ed first responders and engineers with live video and radar images of widespread flooding along the Soris, Red and Missouri rivers.

During the summer, drones flew along the Louisiana Gulf Coast and up the Mississippi River to inspect flood damage and the integrity of levees.

Operators studying the drone feeds look for signs that a levee is bulging from pressure of floodwaters, and advise where a swollen river may first overflow its banks. Local officials can then order evacuations and direct help to vulnerable neighborhoods.

Obama Capitalizes on Lagging Approval of Congress

BY MICHAEL MUSKAL Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES • In pushing for his jobs program, President Barack Obama has put Congress on the defensive, urging voters to pressure their lawmakers into acting quickly to pass the administration's package.

According to a recent Gallup poll, the president may have found an easy target since Congress continues to enjoy exceptionally low approval ratings, far worse than Obama's own.

Congressional job approval is now 15 percent, up slightly from the record-tying low of 13 percent recorded in August, Gallup reported this week. Disapproval was at 82 percent, compared with 84 percent last month.

By comparison, Obama's approval rating has been running at about 40 percent.

In general, Americans usually are unhappy with Congress with the average approval rating since 1974 running at about 34 percent, according to Gallup. Still, that makes the current unhappy standing about twice the historical one. Last month's 13 percent approval rating tied the record low from December 2010.

The latest Gallup results are based on telephone interviews with 1,017 adults conducted Sept. 8 to 11. It has a margin of error of plus or minus four percentage points.

Number in Poverty Sets Record as Income, Health Coverage Fall

BY TONY PUGH McClatchy Newspapers

WASHINGTON • Continued high unemployment drove the number of Americans living in poverty to a record high in 2010 and dragged down median household income for the third straight year since the Great Recession first darkened the nation's economy in 2007.

More than a year after the economic recovery officially began in June 2009, 46.2 million people had annual earnings below the poverty line last year, up from 43.6 million the previous year, according to new U.S. Census Bureau figures released Tuesday. That's the largest number in the 52 years for which poverty estimates have been published.

The 2010 U.S. poverty rate of 15.1 percent was the highest since 1993, and it was up nearly a full percentage point from 2009. Poverty rates increased for all racial groups except Asians.

Government analysts say the problem is rooted in the 86.7 million working-age adults who were unemployed for at least a week last year, compared with 83.3 million in 2009.

That spike of 3.4 million people "might be the single most important factor contributing to the increase in the poverty rate," said Trudi Renwick, the head of poverty statistics at the Census Bureau.

The numbers reflect the sputtering labor market from 2009 to 2010, when payroll jobs fell by 600,000, unemployment rose to 9.6 percent and the share of people unemployed for six months or more grew from 31.2 percent to 43.3 percent.

That labor market decline also helps explain why median household income - the amount at which half of U.S. households earn more or less - continued to fall in 2010, while the number of Americans without health insurance continued to rise.

Census estimates show that median annual income dropped 2.3 percent, or $1,154, last year to $49,445. Average real hourly earnings fell from $10.34 in June 2009, when the recovery officially began, to $10.26 in July 2011, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Meanwhile, another 900,000 people lost health insurance last year, pushing the number of uninsured Americans to nearly 50 million, an all-time high. A continued decline in job-based health care helped drive those numbers.

"All of this deterioration in the labor market caused income to drop, poverty to rise and people to lose their health insurance," said Heidi Shierholz, an economist at the left-leaning Economic Policy Institute, who said the worst may be yet to come.

"There is no relief in sight," Shierholz said. "We can't expect any substantial improvement in the income and poverty numbers for a while?"

Ron Haskins, an aide in the George W. Bush White House who's now a senior fellow at the center-left Brookings Institution, said likewise: "The main message of today's release from the Census Bureau is that if we don't like the way things are now, we better get used to it?

Poverty rate increases again

There were 46 million people living in poverty in the U.S. last year, according to the Census Bureau. The rate rose faster from 2007-10 than any three years since the early 1980s.

Motorcyclist: Life Saved by Heroes who Lifted Car

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP) • A Utah motorcyclist who was pinned under a burning car after a collision expressed his gratitude Tuesday for the help of strangers who lifted the 4,000-pound vehicle to rescue him.

"I'm just very thankful for everyone that helped out," Brandon me Wright told The Associated Press by telephone from his hospital bed. "They saved my life."

Authorities said Wright, 21, was riding his motorcycle Monday near the Utah State University campus in Logan when he collided with a black BMW that was pulling out of a parking lot.

Tire and skid marks on the highway indicate that Wright laid the bike down and slid along the road before colliding with the car, Assistant Police Chief Jeff Curtis said.

The bike hit the car's hood and bounced to the ground, while Wright, who was not wearing helmet, slid under the car and then both vehicles burst into flames, Curtis said.

American hikers Shane Bauer, left, and Josh Fattal are shown May 21, 2010, in Tehran, Iran. An Iranian court on Tuesday set bail of $500,000 each for the two men arrested more than two years ago and convicted on spy-related charges, clearing the way for their release a year after a similar bail-for-freedom arrangement for the third member of the group, their defense attorney said.

Iran's President: 2 American Hikers Could be Freed Soon

Iran's president predicted Tuesday that two Americans arrested while hiking along the Iraq-Iran border and sentenced to eight years in jail on espionage-related charges could be freed "in a couple of days" after a court set bail of $500,000 each. The events appeared timed to boost the image of President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad coinciding with his visit to New York next week for the U.N. General Assembly session. Last year, a third American was released on bail around the same time. In Washington, Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton said the United States was "encouraged" by Ahmadinejad's comments about freeing Shane Bauer and Josh Fattal.

"We obviously hope that we will see a positive outcome from what appears to be a decision by the government," Clinton said at the State Department.

The families of Bauer and Fattal said in a statement that they are "overjoyed" by the reports from Iran.

in a foul mood right now, and almost anything associated with government scores poorly in polls. For example, the federal government placed last in a survey of 25 business and industry sectors, with just 17 percent saying they had a positive image of the federal government. Almost two-thirds -63 percent – said they had a negative image, according to Gallup.

But the ongoing battle over jobs and the economy pits the presidency against Congress in a different way. Obama has become more feisty even as faith in Congress has fallen.

"This is the bill that Congress needs to pass," Obama said this week about his jobs package. "No games. No politics. No delays. I'm sending this bill to Congress ... and they ought to pass it immediately."

"When things are going well, you play politics," the president said later. "It's not OK at a time of great urgency and need all across the country. These aren't games we're playing out here. Folks are out of work. Businesses are having trouble staying open. You've got a world economy that is full of uncertainty right now - in Europe, in the Middle East. Some events may be beyond our control, but this is something we can control. Whether we not whether or not we pass this bill, whether or not we get this done, that's something that we can control. That's in our hands?

Debt

Though the choices are difficult, he said, the problem "need not be viewed as unsolvable?"

Yet the challenge is complicated, he said, if the lawmakers' are hoping to revive the economy in the short term and to cut federal deficits in later years. In that case, "a combination of policies would be required: changes in taxes and spending that would widen the deficit now but reduce it later in the decade."

The committee has until Nov. 23 to recommend legislation, but Elmendorf said the essential decisions must be made as much as three weeks earlier than that to make sure they are drafted two parties sought to protect their own priorities in an era of soaring budget deficits.

Democrats on the Senate Appropriations Committee launched defense spending legislation for the budget year beginning Oct. 1 that is $17 billion smaller than the amount approved by the House, a difference that must be reconciled by the end of the month to keep the money flowing.

Also in the Senate, Democrats maneuvered to put Republicans on the spot on disaster aid by seeking legislation that would add $6.9 billion to FEMA's accounts without offsetting cuts elsewhere. The effect would be to let deficits rise.

Past efforts to reach compromise on major debt-reducing proposals have run aground over mutually exclusive demands - Republicans opposed to raising taxes and Democrats against cutting benefit programs.

into a bill and their impact on the federal budget calculated carefully.

The panel was created last month as part of a compromise that avoided a threatened government default and cut nearly $1 trillion from some federal programs.

In addition to the original goal of cutting long-term deficits, Democrats want much or all of Obama's week-old $447 billion jobs proposal put on the agenda, significantly increasing the amount of savings that must be found.

"My question to Congress is: What on earth are we waiting for?" the president asked rhetorically as he visited Columbus, Ohio, to campaign for the enactment of his program of Social Security payroll tax cuts and spending increases for highway projects and other domestic programs.

Speaking in the home state of Republican House Speaker John Boehner, the Democratic president said his call for $25 million for school construction would put thousands of construction workers in Ohio back to work.

Boehner responded from the Capitol, where he said the president was seeking "permanent tax increases put into effect in order to pay for temporary spending. I just don't think that's going to help our economy the way it could?'

Republicans are likely to accept some or all of the tax cuts Obama wants, but the spending increases shape up as a tougher sell. GOP leaders point out that the administration's call for higher taxes on the wealthy has faced opposition from some Democrats as well as Republicans in the past.

WHY PLANES ARE SO FULL: Since 2008, airlines have eliminated unprofitable routes, increased partnerships and shifted to smaller planes because of high fuel costs and fewer travelers. BEER SALES DOWN, BUT BARLEY OUTLOOK STRONG BY CINDY SNYDER For the Times-News

Strong local demand coupled with the opportunity to plant winter barley is helping the once-popular grain earn a place in crop rotations again.

"This is a great year for grain producers in the Magic Valley to consider a fall plant ed barley - either feed or malt - for 2012," said Kelly Olson, administrator for the Idaho Barley Commission.

Although winter barley accounts for 10,000 acres in Idaho, the winter varieties can yield 140 to 180 bushels per acre, 20 to 30 percent more than traditional spring varieties. But growers need to plant winter barley by Sept. 20 to ensure plants are large enough going into winter.

Barley acreage has been on a steep decline over the last 20 years. Idaho growers seeded 510,000 acres this year, up 4 percent from 2010. But nationwide growers seeded just 2.82 million acres - the lowest acreage on record.

"It's very challenging to get barley back into crop rotations," Olson said. "Growers have increased risks with growing barley and can often get better returns from other crops?

However, developing market trends may give barley acres a boost. One of those is strong feed grain prices that will likely last through 2012, thanks to the disappointing crops in the U.S. and continued strong global demand. In the Magic Valley, open market feed barley prices have more than doubled in the last year, rising from an average of $2.87 per bushel in July 2010 to $5.75 per bushel in July 2011. But malt barley, which has traditionally been more profitable, has some potential problems. Supplies of malt barley in the U.S. are tight. Fewer acres were planted this spring and weather problems across the Northern Plains have hurt malt quality. Malt companies began contracting acres for the 2012 season at the end of August, reflecting both the need to secure acres early and the recognition that winter barley is an option for some growers. But beer demand remains sluggish. Research firm 24/7 Wall St. looked at the 23 largest-selling beer products in the U.S. and found eight have lost 30 percent or more of their sales in the last five years. The list included Budweiser, the best-selling beer in America for years, along with several other Anheuser-Busch InBev and MillerCoors products. But sales of light beers such as Bud Light held steady over the same time. Although Budweiser is waning as a brand in the U.S., it is on the rise worldwide, Olson said. Given the large malt plant located in Idaho Falls, she expects Anheuser-Busch to continue to have a presence in Idaho despite the gloomy sales news. In fact, Olson sees strong support for malt barley prices in Idaho. Craft beer consumption was up 9 percent in 2010 and up 14 percent for the first half of 2011. Craft beer only accounts for 5 to 6 percent of the overall beer market, but craft brewers prefer to use two-row malt barley grown in Idaho and the western U.S.

But customer comfort is an afterthought. Not to mention space in the overhead bin.

"There are some days on some flights when there are simply no physical seats left," says Jim Reichart, vice president of marketing and sales for Frontier, which sold 91 percent of its seats in July and August. Frontier and US Airways both had their best August for percentage of seats filled.

The figures shouldn't come as a surprise to anyone who fought over an armrest this summer. With cramped and airlines will have a greater ability to raise fares.

BIG PICTURE: By keeping planes full, airlines should be able to keep fares high to cover increased fuel costs and turn a profit.

130 million people flying, little perks like empty middle seats or flying standby were hard to come by.

Airline executives used to add flights and routes to protect market share. This often meant there were more seats than travelers. "In the past we had the problem of people operating airlines based on ego," says airline consultant Michael Boyd. "Now they're operating on the basis on how much money they can make?"

be more space this fall, but not much, if the economy slows further. Either way, flights around Thanksgiving and Christmas will be packed. And fuller flights anytime mean you're less likely to get a seat if your flight is canceled.

Airlines generally lose money on empty seats because they are already paying for fuel, pilots and flight attendants. But how many seats are filled is only one factor in airline profitability. Airlines have to make enough money from fares and fees to cover fuel and labor costs.

H&R Block Won't Offer Refund-backed Loans in 2012

NEW YORK (AP) • H&R Block Inc. said Tuesday that it won't offer refund anticipation loans next tax season because it's getting more new clients and the appeal of the high-cost loans is shrinking.

Kansas City, Mo.-based Block prepared 6.5 percent more tax returns this year, even though it lost its bank funding for making loans based on anticipated federal tax returns just before tax season. Regulators ordered the bank that provided the money, HSBC, to stop funding the loans.

The federal Office of Comptroller of the Currency would not explain why it issued that directive, but the action followed a move by the Internal Revenue Service to stop providing a code that let tax preparers know if customers would get their entire refund, or if some will be held to cover things like unpaid back taxes. Tax prep companies used the code as a form of credit check for the loans.

For the 2011 tax season, only one bank was able to continue backing the loans, Republic Bank and Trust of Kentucky, which funded loans offered through Block competitor Jackson Hewitt Tax Services.

The nation's largest tax preparer shifted strategies to make up for the loss. By offering free simple tax form preparation and reviews of prior tax returns and beefing up its online tax prep offerings, Block lured 18.6 percent more first-time customers in 2011.

Take Your Bucket to the Raspberry Rows

You-pick raspberries and vegetables are still for sale at the College of Southern Idaho's Breckenridge Endowment Farm, and a trip to the Twin Falls farm can be a foodie adventure.

The college's ag department is selling red and golden raspberries for $3 per pound — if you do the picking. Other produce, at 50 cents a pound, now includes watermelons; beans; butternut, acorn and spaghetti squashes; tomatoes; and peppers.

CSI expects raspberries to be available until October. Hours are 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 5-7 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays, and 5-7 p.m. on Fridays. Bring your own containers. The farm is on North College Road, directly across from the CSI Expo Center; it borders the CSI community garden and Twin Falls Farmers Market locations. Information: 732-6401.

Learn Some Decadent Desserts

Here's how to get a jump on holiday entertaining: Utah pastry chef Penny Moline will teach a cooking class dubbed "Decadent Sweet Food — Desserts" next week in Twin Falls.

It's set for 7-9 p.m. Sept. 22 at Rudy's – A Cook's Paradise, 147 Main Ave. W. Cost is $45. The menu: creme brulee, fruit galette, caramel bread pudding and chocolate mousse.

Moline teaches culinary arts at Davis Applied Technology College and is an adjunct instructor at Salt Lake Community College. She has trained in Paris, worked in fine dining restaurants and was executive pastry chef at a restaurant inside the media center during the 2002 Winter Olympics.

Uncork a Wine Class This Week

Here's a class to relax with: Sommelier Jon Melone will teach a sixweek "Wine Appreciation" course for the College of Southern Idaho's Community Education Center, starting Thursday.

Melone promises to take the intimidation out of buying and enjoying good-quality wine — which, he points out, does not have to be expensive wine.

Class will be 7-9 p.m. Thursdays, Sept. 15 to Oct. 20, in the Perrine Room above the Elevation 486 restaurant in Twin Falls. Cost is $35, plus a $40 supply fee. Students must be 21 or older. Register: 732-6442 or SUN VALLEY • Chef Dave Martin's penchant for adventurous foods has led him to create prickly pear mustard, lychee and sweet chili aioli and even pink guava ketchup for his Frying Dutchman gourmet french fry truck in Manhattan.

Now this finalist in Bravo's "Top Chef" show plans to pair Bucksnort Root Beer — a concoction of wintergreen and other flavors created by a Bellevue brewer — with Snake River Farms' pork and serve it atop wild cherrywood bacon and goat cheese grits drizzled with Dave's Roasted Poblano BBQ Sauce.

The beneficiaries? People who attend the second annual Sun Valley Harvest Festival, set for Sept. 22-25 in Ketchum and Sun Valley.

"I'm all about flavor – layers of flavor. And I like to make people smile through my food," said Martin, who left the technology industry to pursue his passion for cooking when tech took a nosedive several years ago.

"The two most common mistakes in my opinion is overcooking meat or not seasoning it. I don't want just a plain piece of pork. Everything I cook I season with pepper and salt — sea salt or kosher salt rather than iodized salt, since it's not good for you. And I love dry rubs, marinades and sauces. I also advocate buying local and fresh when possible to get maximum flavor."

Martin will be one of eight chefs offering hour-long cooking demonstrations capped by samples, beginning at 9 a.m. Sept. 24 at Carol's Dollar Mountain Lodge in Sun Valley. The others:

• Sam Talbot of The Surf Lodge in Montauk, N.Y., and Imperial No. 9 in New York City will create huckleberry trout using Buhl-based Clear Springs' fish.

Nature's Energy Drink

Homemade juices are a good way to add nutrition to your diet, say Magic Valley cooks who are crazy for juicing.

BY ANDREW WEEKS

aweeks@magicvalley.com

The aroma of fresh produce wafted through the kitchen as Jolene Tuma dropped vegetables into her electric juicer.

Tuma was making a drink of the juices from homegrown carrots, celery, cucumber, kale leaves and squash. For extra flavor, she added a dash of ginger.

On the opposite end of the counter, Susan Gallon cut three large apples for her own juicer.

"I like to use the peelings on some things," Tuma said, holding up a small cucumber. She relishes the frothy pulp from her unstrained juice.

"I like to strain my drinks," Gallon countered.

A couple of minutes later, after Tuma's vegetables had been cut, pressed and squeezed in the tabletop appliance, Tuma poured her mixed-vegetable drink into four small glasses. It tasted mostly of celery and ginger.

"Maybe I put too much ginger in it," she said. That's one of the things she enjoys about juicing: She can experiment with recipes or come up with her own.

There are benefits to making your own juice, the two friends said: You get all the nutrients from fresh produce in its concentrated form, and the juice is easy on the digestive system.

It's nature's own energy drink.

Helen Bettencourt, 88, of Twin Falls has been juicing for several years and said homemade juices add energy back into her life. Her favorite drink incorporates apples, beets, celery, oranges, carrots, pineapple, tomato and ginger.

"It's very nutritious," she said. "It's an energy drink. ... If you saw me do all the things I do every day, you'd see how it helps. I drink it every day."

Suit Yourself

Tuma, 66, of Twin Falls has been juicing for more than 20 years. One of her favorite homemade creations is a grapefruit-lemon-apple drink she calls "Morning Delight."

When she made the drink on Friday, she added coconut milk and a banana to tone down the tartness of the grapefruit. The result was more like a smoothie than a juice.

"You get a lot of nutrition in a very concentrated form," she said. Leave pulp in the homemade juices if you like them thick, or use a strainer if you like them smooth.

Some juicers on the market come with their own strainers. Models range in price from around $79 to more than $1,500, Tuma said. She likes her Please see JUICE, F3

DREW NASH • TIMES-NEWS Susan Gallon strains homemade apple juice Friday.

Some Things to Stay Away From

Many fruits and vegetables are good for juicing, Jolene Tuma said, but there are a few you should avoid: Avocados don't work because they don't have any juice to them, she said. Rhubarb leaves are poisonous, and bananas don't juice. You can, however, blend bananas into a drink to add flavor.

ONLINE: Slow Down and Enjoy the Barleywine

Times-News Night Editor Nate Poppino blogs about all things beer at "Idaho On Tap." Here's what's on his mind this week:

"If I had to make a list of the really niche beer styles, the stuff that always divides folks, barleywine would be a strong contender for the top. A strong, sweet ale, it's usually fruity and full of alcohol. It's very much a sipper, and never something to burn through pints of. But its bold characteristics also make it a style that turns off a fair number of beer aficionados.

'So doubly kudos to Sierra Nevada for its take on barleywine released as part of last year's 30th Anniversary special editions."

Question: Storms have knocked out my power several times lately. Every time, I'm nervous about the food in the refrigerator and freezer. I used to check the cubes in the ice bin. If they had started to melt, I would toss everything. Is there a better rule of thumb for when items are no longer safe?

Answer: As long as you keep the refrigerator and freezer closed, they are insulated enough to keep food cold for a while.

A full chest freezer, kept closed, will stay cold for three to four days, an upright deep freezer for two to three days, and a refrigerator's freezer for one to two days. A closed refrigerator should keep food cold

1 cup Dave's Sweet & Sassy Smokehouse Rub 1 sweet onion, large dice 1-2 carrots, large dice 1/4 bunch celery, large sliced veggies in your roasting pan and cover with the root beer. Wrap the pan in foil and place into a pre-heated oven at 350 degrees for about 2 1/2 to 3 hours. Check for doneness at 2 1/2 hours by seeing if the meat is ultra tender (falling apart). If so, then it's ready to be removed from the oven. Be careful of the hot steam trapped under the foil when checking for doneness. If it's not ready, cover and try another 30 minutes, then remove the roasting pan from the oven. Leave the foil on for the meat to continue to braise with the liquids and the steam (this will tenderize the short ribs even more). The Best Pasta Sauces Often Are the Least Cooked

BY ROCCO DISPIRITO For The Associated Press

You say tomato, they say pomodoro.

And when they say it, they mean it. That's because the Italians are champions of simple, classically delicious ways of using fresh tomatoes. And they should be; they've been cultivating them for hundreds of years.

One of the many basic ways they prepare gardenfresh tomatoes is in a pomodoro sauce made with basil and garlic tossed with pasta. This pasta is just that, noodles and tomatoes, a dish that embodies the core philosophy of Italian food – letting a few perfectly ripe ingredients shine.

I recently returned from a cooking expedition to Italy where I learned how to prepare pomodoro sauce from those who know best - Italian mothers and grandmothers.

One particular day sticks in my mind. I was getting ready to do what I always do - smash garlic cloves by laying the flat side of a knife on top of them and lightly whacking it with the palm of my hand. As I got ready to give the garlic a good slam, the Italian mama cooking with me, named Lucia, screamed "No!" so loud you could hear her in France.

Then she explained that the garlic for the pomodoro sauce had to be sliced. I didn't know why until I tasted her pomodoro sauce. It blew me away. The sliced garlic, sauteed in extra-virgin olive oil to almost dark brown but not burned, imparted a taste explosion in my mouth that you just can't get from the usual ways of preparing and tossing garlic into a dish.

So when you make this recipe, do not chop the garlic. Do not press the garlic. Do not smash or whack the garlic. And by all means, do not use that pre-diced stuff in the jar. If you do any of the above, you have performed an illegal operation. Go to jail. Do not pass go. Do not collect $200.

Do take the time to find fresh tomatoes, ripe ones, like from the vine. I know they may be only the stuff of lore in and around your community, but they do exist. And now is the perfect time to go out and search for them.

I've cut way back on the calories and fat from the traditional 840-calorie-perserving Italian version, but I guarantee you'll get a real, full tomato flavor in this 281calorie version. I also cut the fat by nearly two-thirds, from 17 grams per serving to just 6 grams.

works in this recipe so long as they are very ripe. I prefer small tomatoes, such as cherry, pear or grape, because they can be tossed right in, skins and all. For larger tomatoes, peel them first, then chop them. This recipe takes no more than 30 minutes to get on the table. The best sauce, I discovered after years of sauce-making, is the least cooked.

In a large pot, bring 6 quarts of water to a boil. Add 2 tablespoons of salt. In a large non-stick skillet over medium-low, heat 1/2 tablespoon of the oil. Add the garlic slices and toast, stirring constantly, for 3 to 4 minutes, or until lightly browned. Watch closely so garlic doesn't burn. Increase the heat to medium, add the red pepper flakes and half of the basil leaves. Cook for 30 seconds, then add the grape tomatoes.

Add the pasta to the boiling water and cook until al dente according to package directions, usually about 8 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Meanwhile, toss the Drain the pasta, reserving 1/4 cup of the cooking water. Add the drained pasta and reserved pasta water to the tomato mixture. Increase the heat to medium-high. Add half of the cheese. Cook for about 2 minutes, or until the sauce begins to cling to the noodles, using a heat resistant rubber spatula to toss the pasta to coat evenly.

Add the remaining basil and olive oil and toss to coat. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Divide the pasta among 4 plates and sprinkle with the remaining cheese. Don't Let Boring Chicken Be the Death of Your Diet

BY ROCCO DISPIRITO For The Associated Press

Skinless chicken breasts have become the new cottage cheese - the ubiquitous base upon which so many weight-loss diets are built.

But it still doesn't register well on the old excitement meter. I mean, how many times have you found yourself craving a naked, unseasoned hunk of chicken breast? I'd raise the white flag and order pizza if the road to lasting health looked like an endless parade of plain chicken breasts.

Take the advice of a guy who has gobbled his fair share of chicken - you don't abandon it altogether, but you do need to break up the monotony. Especially when dieting, it is important not to perk to your poultry.

Because a diet that's dull is a diet you won't stick to.

This chicken dish is anything but dull. For starters, I've used chicken thighs. Sure, they aren't as low in fat as breasts, but being skinless and by trimming all visible fat they become fairly low in fat. The other bonus - chicken thighs deliver a deeper, richer flavor than breast meat. Leaving the meat on the bone also adds flavor.

Plus, when bone-in, they're are perfect for the grill and are hard to overcook since the dark meat remains moist.

Sometimes unlikely ingredients seem like strange bedfellows, but often they come together seamlessly to create something delicious. That's the case with these chicken thighs paired with fresh figs and rosemary. The combo might seem a little iffy, but trust me, it works and adds delicious fiber and flavor to the dish.

Figs are among the highest fiber fruits you can eat. I grew up loving my grandmother's home-grown figs; she had both a black fig tree and a white one.

When I'd arrive for a visit she would start to pick them off the tree, gather the recently fallen ones off the ground and make a small basket with the leaves of the fig tree. She would be waiting for me at the end of her driveway. I'll never forget the image of her proudly holding her basket of figs for me.

Nothing kills a commitment to healthy eating faster than boredom. If you're battling meal monotony, you've come to the right place. And check out these numbers. My version of this dish has just 228 calories and 8 grams of fat. Traditional versions clock in at 521 calories and 28 grams of fat.

- fresh rosemary, divided Salt and ground black
- pepper 8 bone-in, skinless chicken thighs, each cut into 2 pieces each (2 to 2 1/2 pounds total) quarters 8 cups loosely packed

- fresh arugula
- 1 ounce Parmigiano-Reggiano cheese, shaved

In a large bowl, combine half each of the vinegar and rosemary. Season with salt and pepper. Add the chicken and toss to coat. Cover and marinate at room temperature for 15 minutes or in the refrigerator for up to 4 hours, turning the chicken occasionally.

Place the onions in a large bowl and add the remaining red wine vinegar and a pinch of salt. Mix and set aside for 15 minutes to 1 hour, tossing occasionally. Heat a grill or grill pan to medium-low. Place the chicken thighs on the grill and cook for 15 to 20 minutes, or until nicely browned and cooked through, turning the chick-en halfway through grilling. Transfer the chick-en to a plate and sprinkle with basil. Set aside. Add the arugula, figs and remaining rosemary to the onions and vinegar. Gently toss the salad, then season with salt and pepper. Divide the salad between 4 serving plates. Place the chicken thigh halves around the salad, then sprinkle the salads with shaved Parmigiano-Reggiano.

Per serving: 228 calories; 8 g fat (3 g saturated); 120 mg cholesterol; 8 g carbohydrate; 31 g protein; 2 g fiber; 732 mg sodium.

Tips

 When grilling the chicken, keep the grill at medium-low heat so the thighs cook through before get too charred. Also, don't be afraid to go a little heavy on the fresh pepper. When it grills, it forms a delicious crust that pairs well with the sweet figs in the salad. • Select a free-range chicken, or try to find a chicken that is air chilled. When chicken is not chilled in ice it retains more flavor. When selecting fresh figs, choose any type, such as black mission, brown turkey or green. Just be sure they are ripe. Also try to find figs that never have been refrigerated. The flavor and texture of figs are compromised during heavy refrigeration.

 This recipe makes a great passed appetizer as well. Grill the chicken thighs as directed, cut the chicken off the bone and cut it into bite-size pieces. Skewer the chicken pieces with the fig quarters on long sprigs of fresh rosemary. To serve, heat the skewers on the grill just to heat through. Top them with a slice of the marinated onions and a piece of arugula.

SOFTEN BUTTER BUT DONT MELT IT

BY KATHLEEN PURVIS

McClatchy Newspapers

Ouestion: A batch of oatmeal raisin cookies fell flat. I used the same ingredients I had used before, but I left the butter on the counter for a long time and it got soft in the heat. Was that the problem?

Answer: Oversoftening the butter was very likely the problem. In addition to its other attributes, such as flavor and texture, butter contributes body to doughs.

So while it is important to soften it if the recipe calls for that, it's just as important not to oversoften it.

When a recipe calls for softened or room-temperature butter, soften it only until vou can press it lightly with a finger and leave a dent, not until you can stick your finger all the way through it.

The microwave isn't a good shortcut for softening butter. Because it heats food from the center outward, the middle of the stick might get liquid before the outside even looks soft.

Instead, try cutting the butter into small cubes and letting it sit about 10 minutes. The smaller cubes will soften more quickly.

Or use the old trick of whacking the butter several times with a rolling pin or meat mallet, just until it's pliable. That softens it without oversoftening and it's a great way to take out your aggressions.

MCCLATCHY NEWSPAPERS

Question: My spaghetti sauce seems thick in the pot but it turns watery when I put it on cooked pasta. I always drain the pasta well after I cook it. Any advice?

Answer: Here are a couple of tricks you can try. First, when you drain the pasta, save some of the cooking water. It has starch in it from the pasta, which can help thicken the final dish.

After you drain the pasta, add it to the sauce in the pan. Add a splash or two of the starchy cooking water, then cook for a few minutes. That helps to mix the sauce and the pasta together. See if those two steps help.

Thick. Juicy. Filling. Those are terms I wasn't expecting would fit the profile of the ingredient list below, which reads about the same as that of zucchini latkes. Yet this recipe does make a burger the whole family can enjoy.

The original vegan version calls for soy or other nondairy yogurt and milk, but we liked the full-on effect of whole-milk, Greekstyle yogurt and low-fat milk instead. The burgers are best served just after they are made, so the bit of crispness on the outside remains intact.

Light Smoking Gives Halibut Woodsy Flavor

THE WASHINGTON POST

We call this "lightly smoked" to differentiate it from what is commonly considered smoked fish, such as the more heavily cold-smoked trout, salmon and whitefish. The indirect method of cooking creates a lot of "hot smoke'' (in this case, about 325 degrees), but because the fish is not on the grill for very long, it takes on a lovely woodsy flavor without being overwhelmed by the smoke. This method can be used for any thick fillet of fish.

The chimichurri sauce also goes well with shrimp, steak and other grilled fish.

You'll need 6 fist-size chunks or 1 cup of chips of hard wood, such as applewood, hickory or oak.

the fillets Kosher salt Freshly ground black pepper

Four 8-ounce halibut fillets, about 3/4 inch thick

Prepare the grill for indirect grilling: Light the charcoal in a chimney starter and let the briquettes burn until the flames subside and a light layer of ash covers the briquettes (about 20 to 25 minutes). Open the grill's bottom vents. Dump the lighted coals into 2 mounds (or, preferably, into 2 half-moonshaped briquette baskets) on opposite sides of the grill.

Lightly oil the fillets, then season them with salt and pepper. Place at the far end of the grill, away from the fire, which may have a little live fire but should not have leaping flames. For mediumhot, you should be able to hold your hand about six inches above the fire for 5 to 6 seconds. Close the lid. Do not turn the fish. the oil. Fry for about 1 minute, using tongs to move the shallots around to keep them from burning. When they are just crisped and lightly golden, transfer to the lined plate.

Add the cooled pine nuts, the remaining 2 cups of flour, the yogurt, milk and paprika or piment d'espelette to the shredded vegetable mixture. Season with salt and pepper to taste, then use your clean hands to blend the mixture and form 4 good-size balls that you flatten slightly into thick patties.

Add a small pinch of the zucchini mixture (from one of the patties) to the skillet; if it burns on the edges right away, reduce the heat to medium. Then follow up by adding the patties, making sure they have at least 1/2 inch of room around them. Cook for 3 to 4 minutes or until crisped on the bottom, then use 2 spatulas to turn each one over and cook on the second side for about 3 minutes or until you can see browned edges on the bottom. Transfer to the lined plate, moving the crisped shallots aside.

Transfer to individual plates, placing them on top of the toasted buns, with your favorite condiment on the side. Serve immediately. Note: Chinese pine nuts have been implicated in some cases of "pine nut mouth," in which the nuts leave a bitter, metallic taste in the mouth that lasts for several days.

native – a seafood salad with a rich mayonnaise sauce spiked with tangy capers and crunchy celery and red pepper.

Some people may roll their eves at the inclusion of imitation lobster. But while it won't fool anyone into thinking it's the real thing when served on its own, it is totally respectable in a salad (not to mention cheaper and easier). Using real shrimp balances the salad out texturally, while smoked salmon lends a deliciously salty-savory flavor.

Tangy Seafood Salad Rolls

Not in the mood for a bun? This seafood salad also is great over greens. Start to finish: 15 minutes. Servings:

- 9 ounces cooked shrimp, shells and tails removed 8 ounces imitation lobster
- meat 8 ounces smoked salmon,
- finely chopped 1 red bell pepper, cored
- and diced 1 shallot, minced

1 teaspoon hot sauce Juice of 1/2 lemon 2 tablespoons drained capers

- Salt and ground black pepper
- 6 hot dog buns, toasted

Roughly chop the shrimp and lobster meat into bitesize chunks. In a large bowl, combine both with the smoked salmon. Mix in the red bell pepper, shallot and celery, then set aside.

In a small bowl, whisk together mayonnaise, Dijon, hot sauce, lemon juice and capers. Add to the seafood and mix well to coat. Season with salt and pepper. Spoon into the hot dog buns.

ACEQUIA • Garth Geddes Eames, our beloved husband, father, grandfather, great-grandfather, brother and friend, passed away the morning of Tuesday, Sept. 13, 2011, at home. He was born May 10, 1927, to David Greaves and Pearl Lorena Geddes Eames in Preston, Idaho, the last of nine children. He graduated from Preston High School in 1945 and joined the Merchant Marines. Later, he enlisted in the U.S. Army Air force and was stationed on Okinawa. He was called on a mission to England, where he came to love the country and its people. Returning to Preston, he met Shirley Rae Robinson, and they were married in the Logan Temple on April 4, 1951. In 1954, on a Veteran's Homestead Draw, they moved to Rupert, Idaho, to farm. With sheer determination and pioneer fortitude, they cleared sagebrush, dug ditches and succeeded in making their dream a reality. He found great joy serving in The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints as bishop, stake president, patriarch and many other callings. He loved Scouting, was active in the Snake River Council and was honored to receive the Silver Beaver Award. He blessed many lives through missionary work. He and Shirley served a mission in Charleston, W.Va. She became ill and passed away in 1984. In

Janice Kay Severn

May 3, 1949-Sept. 11, 2011

SPOKANE, Wash. • Janice Kay Severn went home to be with her Lord and Savior Jesus Christ on Sunday, Sept. 11,2011.

She was born May 3, 1949, in Twin Falls, Idaho. Jan, the second of four children born to Maurice Dean and Gladys Marie Hartruft, grew up in rural southern Idaho. She loved horses, the great outdoors, all manner of school and other activities, and any and all social events in which she could get involved. She graduated from Twin Falls High School in the spring of 1968 and continued that fall to the University of Idaho. It was there she met the love of her life, David Ross Severn of Boise, Idaho. They soon married on July 19, 1969.

The newly commissioned U.S. Army officer and his new bride were assigned their first duty station in Stuttgart, Germany. They spent the first $3^{1/2}$ years of their marriage serving their country in southern Germany, Dave as a captain and Jan as a department of the Army civilian secretary. In 1972, upon completion of their military tour of duty, the young couple returned to Boise with a few hundred dollars, their 2-week old son, Dodd, a brand new Porsche and lots of German cuckoo clocks. It was there in Boise that Dave began his career as a CPA and Jan as an administrative secretary to an independent insurance agent. In an attempt to improve their financial position, they started their Amway business in February 1977.

On July 7, 1978, while attending a non-denominational Christian worship church service in Spokane, Wash., they both became born-again Christian believers. That event changed everything for the better in their lives. They continued to build their Amway business to an even greater and larger scale. In November 1978, they had established a significant "other income" much greater than their CPA salary. Consequently, they retired from the world of public accounting and began growing, expanding and creating larger business enterprises throughout and around the world. Dave and Jan moved to Spokane, Wash., in 1982 with their 2and 10-year-old sons to help establish their worldwide Amway business headquarters. In 1986, Jan became an active member of the Christian Bible Study Fellowship Organization for which she served as a Bible study discussion leader for the next 25 years. She was totally committed to this organization and became an extremely successful leader in it. Her beauty and warm soft words and conduct captured the hearts and minds of many other people. She would always "light up the room" with her sweet spirit, love, joy, laughter and happiness. Jan was a very successful business leader. She was the executive vice president of an international business organization. She was a blessed Christian woman and leader. She was an active member of Crossover Church in north Spokane. Her positive outward and upward demeanor, together with her infectious bright smile and kind and gentle manner, won many hearts to her way of thinking and believing throughout and around the world. A magnetic, caring personality and real love for other people constantly drew them to her.

She always made other people feel more important than herself. She truly had a servant's heart. Jan loved her family, her friends and her God. She was a precious wife, a wonderful mother, a gracious and loving grandmother and a kind and helping friend to anyone in need. She never failed to perform "random acts of kindness" whenever and wherever an opportunity to do so presented itself. She will be sorely missed on this earth. We can all be comforted by knowing that for followers of Jesus Christ, death means Heaven, Happiness and Him. Jan ended a four-year battle against cancer at home in the arms of her loving husband, surrounded by family and friends.

She is survived by her husband, David of 42 years; her son, Dodd and his wife, Renae and their four children, Jordan, Matthew, Hailey and James; her son, Tyler; and her daughter, Kacie Foos and her husband, Michael Foos; her mother, Gladys; and father, Maury

Iona D. Bailey

Aug. 2, 1925-Sept. 12, 2011

ALBION • Iona Dustin Bailey peacefully passed away Monday, Sept. 12, 2011, at the age of 86 at Valley Vista Care Center.

On a hot summer day, Aug. 2, 1925, Iona was born at the family home in Victor, Teton County, Idaho, the first daughter of Monroe Dustin Sr. and Eva Emmaline Kunz Dustin. She received her education in Victor and Driggs, graduating from Teton High School in 1943. She then at tended Albion State Normal College and received her teaching certificate in 1945.

While attending school in Albion, she met the love of her life, Robert "Bob" N. Bailey. Bob served in the United States Army during World War II and, following his release, they were wed on Dec. 15, 1945, in Burley. Eventually, they bought the Bailey family ranch from Bob's parents and made Albion their home. After nearly 52 years of marriage, Bob passed away Nov. 7, 1997.

Iona taught school in Shelley from 1945 to 1946. Following her marriage, she completed the school year in Shelley and then moved to Albion to start her family with Bob. When her children began school, she returned to teaching. She taught in Albion, Burley and Declo during her career. Iona received a bachelor of arts degree from Idaho State University in 1962. She retired after teaching for 21 years.

Iona was an active member of the LDS Church and served in the Primary, was a Young Women's president, ward historian, ward music director, ward choir director, ward organist/pianist and a faithful visiting teacher. Civically, she served many years as secretary of the Albion Senior Citizen Center. She enjoyed genealogy, sewing, cooking and yard work. Iona was an avid canner and had a knack for using everything to its fullest potential. She loved and enjoyed spending time with her family the most. The memories she held dearest were those of time spent with her family, whether it be gather ing firewood for the winter, cooking holiday feasts or simply visiting on the breezeway of her home.

Survivors include two daughters, Lynda (Ben) Anderson and Arlene (Randy) Meyer, all of Albion; five grandchildren, Troy (Kelli) Anderson, Cory (Gina) Anderson, Clay (Susie) Anderson, Tate (Tifanee) Anderson and Kim (Joe) Barrow; 17 great-grandchildren; а brother, Dent Dustin of Whittier, Calif.; and a sister, Bonnie Putnam of Layton, Utah. In addition to her husband, Bob, she was preceded in death by her parents; a son, Duane Robert Bailey (who died Sept. 5, 1971); a grandson, Justin Fries; two great-granddaughters, Tegan Barrow and Macee Jo Anderson; two brothers, Merritt Drake and Monroe Dustin Jr.; and a sister, Eunice Winkfield.

A special thank you goes to the dedicated staff of Valley Vista Care Center for the extraordinary thoughtfulness, care and love they shared with Iona during her last years of life.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Monday, Sept. 19, at the Albion LDS Church with Bishop Randy Brackenbury officiating. Burial will follow in the Albion City Cemetery. Friends may call from 6 until 8 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 18, at the Rasmussen Funeral Home, 1350 E. 16th St. in Burley, and from 10 until 10:45 a.m. Monday at the Albion church.

He was born Aug. 19, 1933, in San Bernardino, Calif., to Dominic and Lucille Campagna. Dave was in the U.S. Coast Guard and specialized in radio operations.

Dave is best known in Twin Falls for his work as pitchman for Latham Motors and his lines "Pick up the Phone – Give us a Call" "We'll See You and Heeeere." He was passionate about his work and loved making the commercials. He made those same commercials for several dealerships and made a big enough stir to be invited to appear on the David Letterman show in the '80s.

Dave was a sincere, loving and kind man. He loved to golf, to cruise, his family, his precious cats, who were most definitely considered family – and his friends. He was also very involved in Special Olympics and played baseball in his younger days.

Dave was preceded in death by his parents, Dominic and Lucille Campagna; and his brother, Jerry Eubank. He is survived by his daughters, Claudette Madlem of Half Moon Bay, Calif., and Danielle Heinerman-Campagna of Temecula, Calif.; his grandchildren, Ashley, Skylar, Jessie Jr., Max and Christian; and his ex-wife and best friend, Heidi Smothers of Ahwahnee, Calif.

Dave had many close friends in Twin Falls, including Marjorie and Heidi Deters and Julie and Waylon Klundt, as well as the Latham Motors family. He will be missed by all who knew him.

A celebration of Dave's life will be held from 4 to 7 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 17, in the Community Room at Rosenau Funeral Home, 2826 Addison Ave. E. in Twin Falls. Please come and share your memories of Dave. Condolences and wishes for the family may be sent to www.rosenaufuneralhome.com.

Lockout Issues Still Festering For NBA

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • The long looks on players' faces and the anger in Deputy Commissioner Adam Silver's voice made it obvious: There was no progress Tuesday in talks to end the NBA lockout.

And with less than three weeks until training camps, the latest setback may be a tough one.

"I think coming out of today, obviously because of the calendar, we can't come out of here feeling as though training camps and the season is going to start on time at this point," players' association president Derek Fisher of the Lakers said.

Still divided over the salary cap structure, owners and players decided to pass on talking again Wednesday, and no further meetings are scheduled at this point.

"Well, we did not have a great day, I think it's fair to say that," Commissioner David Stern said. "On the other hand, we did say that it is our collective task to decide what we want on the one hand on each side, and two, what each side needs if we choose to work ourselves in such a way as to have the season start on time. That's still our goal."

Training camps have been expected to open Oct. 3 and the regular season's is scheduled to begin Nov. 1.

"We're a bit pessimistic and discouraged at one, the ability to start on time, and we're not so sure that there may not be further damages or delay trying to get the season started," union executive director Billy Hunter Best Ball The entry deadline for the Snake River Best Ball tournament, Sept. 17-18 at Canyon Springs and Jerome Country Club, is Thursday at 11 a.m. Cost is $140 per team, with divisions for men, women and couples.

NCAA PUTS BSU ON PROBATION

BY ALEX CALINSKY

For the Times-News

BOISE – Boise State's football program emerged from an NCAA investigation with relatively minor penalties, but infractions within the tennis and track and field programs uncovered violations that warranted stiffer punishment, the NCAA ruled Tuesday in putting Boise State on three years' probation, effective immediately.

Women's tennis was hit hardest, facing a one-year postseason ban effective following the 2011-2012 season and must vacate wins from the entire 2008-2009 season. Scholarship reductions were also enforced in women's tennis, men's and women's track and field, and men's and women's cross country.

For the next three years, the football team will lose three scholarships (from 85 to 82), lose three spring practices (from 12 to nine) and three fall practices before the first game of the season. The team already lost three practices this season before its season-opening game against Georgia as part of the school's self-imposed penalties.

The NCAA's Committee on Infractions, chaired by Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference commissioner Dr. Dennis Thomas, also found Boise State guilty of a lack of institutional control.

Perhaps the biggest indicator of the stance the NCAA would take with Boise State came on August 11, when athletic director Gene Bleymaier was fired. Curt Apsey is the interim athletic director.

"I think any time there's a major case, it's clearly a serious matter, which is exactly what the committee viewed Please see PROBATION, S2

said. "The owners are not inclined at this stage to move off the position where they've anchored themselves."

Stern and Silver countered that the union insisted the current soft cap system remain exactly as it is before they would agree to discuss anything else.

"Frankly, we're having trouble understanding why the label of a hard cap is what's breaking apart these negotiations right now, and that's what we discussed for a long time as a committee and then discussed together with the players," said Silver, his voice rising as he spoke.

Quite A Start For NFL's Rookie Class

ASSOCIATED PRESS

DENVER • So, maybe that long lockout didn't hurt the NFL rookies after all — aside from the big hits they took to their wallets.

With the league's new salary structure redistributing the mega-millions to vested veterans instead of first-year players, and encouraging the 2011 draft class to prove its worth, a slew of rookies distinguished themselves on the NFL's opening weekend.

The stellar debuts included those by Green Bay receiver/returner Randall Cobb, Seattle wide receiver Doug Baldwin, Washington linebacker Ryan Kerrigan and cornerback/punt returner Patrick Peterson of the Arizona Cardinals.

None was more impressive – or seemed more improbable – than the performance of Carolina's Cam Newton, who broke the NFL record for most yards passing by a rookie in his pro debut.

The Heisman Trophy winner from Auburn was the first overall draft pick, but questions about his accuracy carried through the preseason, when he completed barely 40 percent of his passes and looked as lost as any rookie who missed more than four months of workouts due to the league's labor dispute.

Carolina quarterback Cam Newton throws over Arizona defensive tackle Darnell Dockett during the second half of his rookie record-breaking performance. ASSOCIATED PRESS

Now, the questions have turned from whether he'll be a good NFL quarterback to just how good he'll be after breaking the mark of 346 yards set by Hall of Famer Otto Graham in 1950.

Newton ignited a Carolina offense that finished last in the NFL in total offense, yards passing, and scoring last season by throwing for 422 yards, the fifth-highest opening day total in NFL history (it was the fourth-highest for 24 hours before being surpassed Monday night by Tom Brady).

Keeping Score On BSU-NCAA Ruling

BY PATRICK SHELTRA psheltra@magicvalley.com

Winners and losers in the Boise State-NCAA affair, from a boxing scorecard perspective ...

WINNER BY MAJORITY DECISION: Boise State president Bob Kustra. Today wasn't Kustra's happiest day or finest hour as president, and he definitely lost a few rounds (read: tacked-on penalties by the NCAA on top of BSU's self-imposed penalties) in this fight. Kustra's firing this summer of athletic director Gene Bleymeier - an eyebrowraiser when it happened demonstrates Boise State's (newfound?) sense of commitment to NCAA rules.

The medicine is bitter, but it should cure BSU's compliance ailments. And remember this: When dealing with the NCAA, it could always be worse LOSER BY FIRST-ROUND KNOCKOUT: Ex-BSU women's tennis coach Mark Tichenor. Think of his four-year show-cause penalty as the individual equivalent of the NCAA's "death penalty." Tichenor cannot be hired by any NCAA school without his future employer first appearing before the NCAA's Committee on Infractions to justify his hire.

And merely hiring a coach under a show-cause order is grounds alone to be put on probation. Obviously, it's a move no school has ever been brazen enough to pull off.

And even after the showcause penalty expires, NCAA member schools have rarely re-hired coaches with such a mark on their record. It's not a stretch to say Tichenor's NCAA coaching career is over. The same could be said of ex-BSU assistant track coach Tom Shanahan, recipient of a two-year showcause penalty and currently the head track and field coach at Bishop Kelly.

WINNER BY EIGHTH-ROUND KNOCKOUT: Ex-BSU women's assistant tennis coach Tiffany Coll. Initially lumped in as a guilty party with regard to Tichenor's rules violations, she was fired by Bleymeier before, Coll claims, she was given a chance to tell her side of the story. Coll's insistence upon her innocence ultimately led the NCAA to clear her of any wrongdoing, including lying to investigators, which almost certainly spared her the same punishment as her former boss. LOSER BY SPLIT DECI-SION: Boise State football. Unfairly, it now has to deal with the stigma of being labeled as "cheaters." Compared to the Boosters Gone Wild affairs at Ohio State and Miami, Boise State should look good by comparison. And if Boise State wasn't winning as big as it has over the last decade, it probably would. But haters gotta hate, right?

NO CONTEST: International players at, or hoping to compete for, Boise State. Quashing recruiting efforts overseas was part of the punishment handed down by the NCAA, and there's still the matter of three Dutch football players and their eligibility hanging in the air.

It's almost impossible not to go after international players and remain competitive in some Olympic sports, but it's a safe bet that Boise State will make sure all 'T's are crossed and 'I's dotted in the future when recruiting such players.

in this circumstance," SEC associate commissioner of compliance and COI member Greg Sankey said.

The case began in April 2008 when an assistant

Netherlands (wide receiver Geraldo Boldewijn, defensive lineman Ricky Tjong-A-Tjoe, and safety Cedric Febis) prior to the Georgia game is not among the violations being ruled upon in the NCAA's decision. Unless there are violations committed in that case after Sept. 12, FILER • For a few minutes, the game was close. But Filer broke to a 5-1 lead at halftime before settling for an 8-1 victory Tuesday against Gooding.

Filer held a 5-1 lead at the half on goals by a pair of goals by Shelby Moyle, McKayla Luper, Jenna Jarolimek, Lidya Guevara in the High Desert Soccer Conference matchup. After the first Wildcat score by Shelby Moyle in the 3rd minute, Gooding came back a minute later and tied the score. But in the second half, it was the Wildcats doing all the scoring. Noelia Garza, Brooke Wissenbach and Jennifer Lantz all had goals for Filer.

"We were able to keep the ball at their end most of the time," said Filer coach Shane Hild. "We had many corner kicks and did some good passing. We dominated most of the possessions."

Filer recorded 14 shots on goal.

Filer (3-6, 3-3) is at Wendell next Tuesday.

Girls Soccer

Buhl 4, Bliss 3

After trailing 2-1 at the half, the visiting Buhl Indians came back and won the High Desert Soccer Conference win on two goals by Skylar Barger and single goals by Shelby Holladay and Kelsey Leonard.

"It was a tough game," said Buhl coach Araceli Perez Huicochea. "We started out a little slow and then the girls picked it up."

Buhl (7-0-1, 6-0-1) is at Community School on Thursday.

Community School 6, Wendell 0

Community School moved to 7-2 overall and 5-1 with the High Desert Soccer Conference road win.

Hannah Dies led the Cutthroats with two goals and Ellie Swanson, Maddie Caraluzzi, Gabi Perenchio and Whitney Englemann each had a goal.

Boys Soccer

Community School 2, Wendell 1

After two Hunter Weaver goals for Community School, Wendell closed the gap to 2-1 in the last minute on a direct kick goal by Eder Macias, but came up short and ran out of time.

"The boys put together a great attack in the last minute but we were unable to score," said Wendell coach John Goss.

Community School coach Richard Whitelaw said the men of the match for the Cutthroats were Cassidy Carson and Colin Waycott.

Wendell (1-3-1, 1-2-1 High Desert Soccer Conference) is at Gooding on Thursday.

Community School (4-1-2, 4-0-1) hosts Buhl on Thursday.

track coach emailed the NCAA with information on potential rules violations. Those transgressions began in January 2005 and for this case went through October 2010.

According to the report, the football program's violations started in the summer of 2005 and continued into the summer of 2009. The violations involved assistant coaches and football staff who were arranging improper housing and transportation for 63 prospective athletes with current athletes. The NCAA found that since those prospective athletes could participate in voluntary team activities, the Broncos gained a competitive advantage. Dan Hawkins was the Boise State head coach in 2005 and Chris Petersen took over in 2006 after Hawkins left for Colorado.

The most recent incident involving the suspension of three players from the 2011 - the official start date of Boise State's probationary period - any wrongdoing tied to Boise State in regard to the Dutch-born players would not result in a violation of probation.

That is important because the NCAA's repeat violator statute calls for even harsher penalties for schools which violate their terms of probation.

Britton Banowsky, another member of the infractions committee and Conference USA commissioner, noted Boise State's cooperation and effective presentation at the NCAA hearing on June 10.

"We do appreciate the approach that the university took when it was made aware of these violations," Banowsky said. "There was a lot of issues here but the university stepped up and made a great presentation also at the hearing."

The 73-page report can be viewed in full at ncaa.org.

Jose Mallagon had two goals and Zack Clark scored on a penalty kick for the Wildcats in the High Desert Soccer Conference home contest.

"Except for a couple of mistakes on defense, the team played extremely well," said Filer coach Greg Clark.

Filer (4-3-1, 2-2-1) travels to Wendell next Tuesday.

Buhl 3, Bliss 2

Buhl had 30 shots on goals but only managed three goals in the home High Desert Soccer Conference win. Alex Arizmendi scored the first Indian goal off an assist by Gustavo Magana. The second goal came via a header by Daniel Soria and Magana scored the final goal on a penalty kick.

Buhl (4-0-3, 3-0-2) is on the road at Community School on Thursday.

Volleyball

Jerome 3, Burley 0

Jasmine Branch, Melissa Leavitt and Haylee Vurnham all had eight kills and the Tigers made quick work of the Bobcats, 25-8, 25-14, 26-24.

Frankie Carey added 26 assists for Jerome, which improved to 3-2 overall, 2-1 Great Basin Conference. Alli30-28, 25-10, 25-14 road win at Grace.

Echo Hansen led the Trojan offense with 12 kills followed by Wynter Holtman with 11 and Sydney Hitt added seven.

Taylor Whitaker dished out 25 assists and had four serving aces. Hansen recorded 28 digs and had two blocks and Holtman was close behind in digs with 25.

Raft River (4-1) hosts Hagerman on Thursday.

Lighthouse Christian 3, Castleford 0

Lighthouse Christian moved to 7-1 overall with a 25-23, 25-15, 25-22 sweep of Castleford.

"Castleford is a scrappy team," said Lighthouse Christian coach Tobie Helman. "Our girls had to put up a good fight for the win."

Lighthouse Christian sophomore Brooklyn Vander Stelt registered a double-double with 10 kills and 10 assists and Brynli Wooten had three serving aces and 10 digs.

Lighthouse Christian is at Community School on Thursday.

Dietrich 3, Murtaugh 0

Dietrich picked up a road win as the Red Devils fell 25-13, 25-20, 25-12. "Dietrich is a well-oiled machine,"

Twin Falls 2, Buhl 0 Twin Falls 2, Kimberly 0 Buhl 3, Kimberly 2

The Bruins (15-4, 1-0 Great Basin) picked up two nonconference wins beating Buhl, 25-17-25-14 and Kimberly 25-20, 25-12 in Kimberly. Buhl defeated Kimberly in a Sawtooth Central Idaho Conference match, 25-20, 19-25, 20-25, 25-14, 15-13.

Allie Johnson racked up 20 assists against the Indians and Starley Sierra led the Bruins with seven kills and Dolores Kroese followed with six kills and five digs.

Against the Bulldogs, Johnson added an additional 16 assists and Kroese had six kills and Brylee Bartlett had seven digs.

Katy Robinson led Kimberly with six kills.

"We just continue to work on some stuff and are trying to be unpredictable," said Twin Falls coach B.J. Price.

Robinson was in double figures against Buhl with a team-high 21 kills. Kylie Haskell had 24 digs and Kyra Palmer finished with 18 assists.

Kimberly (2-4, 0-1) is on the road at Filer on Thursday.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL NOTES

Minnesota's Kill, Suspended OSU Players, Back For Games

ASSOCIATED PRESS

MINNEAPOLIS • Jerry Kill and the rest of Minnesota's new coaching staff did their best in the offseason, trying to prepare the Gophers players for the possibility of what happened last weekend at TCF Bank Stadium.

Still, no amount of talk could brace them for actually seeing their leader down on the sidelines, shaking violently in the throes of a seizure in the closing seconds of a loss to New Mexico State. The assistants who have been with Kill for more than a decade had been through this before and knew that it wasn't as bad as it looked.

For those who were playing just their second game under Kill, it was an experience that shook them to the core, and one they have to try to put out of their minds as they get set for Saturday's game against Miami of Ohio. "Even though this isn't new to us, it's new to them," said offensive coordinator Matt Limegrover, who has coached with Kill for 12 years. "We need to be understanding of that. It's a shock to the system to see something like that come about."

Kill remained in a hospital for precautionary reasons on Tuesday, but two of his closest confidantes said they expect him to be on the sideline this weekend.

Ohio State

Just in time for its first road game of the season, No.

17 Ohio State got some good news for a change.

The NCAA reinstated three Buckeyes players on Tuesday who were suspended for taking envelopes with $200 cash from a university booster at a charity event earlier this year.

Tailback Jordan Hall and cornerback Travis Howard, tabbed as starters for the Buckeyes in the preseason, along with backup safety Corey "Pittsburgh" Brown, were suspended two games for violating NCAA rules by taking the improper benefits at an event in suburban Cleveland in February.

Ohio State (2-0) is girding up to play at Miami on Saturday.

Notre Dame

Tight end Mike Ragone will undergo surgery to repair a torn anterior cruciate ligament and miss the rest of the season.

Ragone, known mostly for his blocking ability, was hurt in Saturday night's 35-31 loss to Michigan. The 6-foot-4, 250-pound senior has one catch for 10 yards this season and 11 for his career for 109 yards.

Ragone also missed the 2008 season after undergoing similar surgery.

"I'm pretty disappointed for him. He's been a warrior for us in a sense," Irish coach Brian Kelly said Tuesday. "He's battled through a lot of injuries. He loves to play the game. He loves competition, and we're really going to miss him."

body didn't expect him to do," said receiver Steve Smith, who caught TD throws of 77 and 26 yards from Newton. "He was on point. He made some great runs, some great reads and some fantastic throws."

Newton may have made a believer out of some of his critics, but his teammates have always been in his corner.

"He's had the world on his shoulders for a year now and I think he's sort of getting used to it," Pro Bowl left tackle Jordan Gross said. "It was a tough game. He got hit a lot and there was a lot of crowd noise. He had incredible composure against all odds. He was as advertised."

Of course, the rookie in that game who came out a winner wasn't Newton but Peterson, who returned a punt 89 yards for the go-ahead touchdown and added five tackles in Arizona's 28-21 win.

Newton, whose bid for a game-tying drive in the final minute fell a yard short, makes his home debut Sunday against the defending champion Packers, who were sparked by their own remarkable rookie in Week 1.

Randall Cobb, a secondround draft pick out of Kentucky, caught a touchdown pass and tied an NFL record for longest kickoff return with a 108-yarder in the Packers' 42-34 win over the New Orleans Saints on who was selected one spot behind Newton in the draft, forced a fumble on his first snap as a pro. Scooping it up was safety and fellow rookie Rahim Moore, a secondround selection from UCLA.

They were two of the Broncos' record four rookies to start on opening day, a 23-20 loss to Oakland.

Other rookies made immediate impacts that didn't show up in fantasy football stats, at least not directly.

New England's firstround draft pick, left tackle Nate Solder, started for an injured Sebastian Vollmer, and Brady didn't miss a beat, shaking off a rare turnover to throw for a team record 517 yards and four touchdowns, including a 99-yarder to Wes Welker in the Patriots' 38-24 win at Miami.

Marcel Dareus, the third overall pick out of Alabama, was a beast for the Buffalo Bills in their 41-7 whooping of the Chiefs in Kansas City.

The Bills had the worst run defense in the league last year but with Dareus anchoring the middle with his 6-foot-3, 340-pound frame, they held Jamaal Charles to 56 yards rushing. Although he was only credited with two tackles, Dareus was so good at jamming up the line of scrimmage with his brute force and agility that Buffalo's linebackers had a field day.

Gateway West Transmission Project

The Bureau of Land Management will host public open houses on the Gateway West Transmission Line Project. The draft Environmental Impact Statement (DEIS) was released July 29. Comments on the DEIS will be accepted until Oct. 28, 2011. To view, download or comment on the DEIS, please visit the BLM's project website http:// www.wy.blm.gov/nepa/cfodocs/gateway_west/index. html. Information about the project and interactive maps are available at the companies' project website, www.gatewaywestproject.com.

Idaho Power and partner Rocky Mountain Power propose to build a 1,100 mile 500-kilovolt power line across Wyoming and southern Idaho.

This project is required to meet customer load growth needs as well as increase transmission capacity and reliability for the companies' respective service areas. The project is scheduled to be completed in phases between 2015 and 2018.

Come to the BLM open houses to review the DEIS, ask questions and submit comments or suggestions.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

"I accept refreshment at any hands, however lowly." - W.S. Gilbert

As a test, plan the play in four spades by South, since at the table some experts found it harder than they should have.

Any West who led the heart ace at trick one gave declarer an easy task. West then switched to a club, but declarer ducked the first club, won the continuation, drew trumps, then took the diamond finesse, losing just one club, one diamond and one heart.

An opening club leads makes it much harder. Superficially, four spades seems to depend (after getting trumps right) on the diamond finesse. Because it was offside, declarer had to go down.

South was in too much of a hurry to take that diamond finesse. Once declarer has avoided a trump loser, he will have no problems if the diamond finesse is right. The correct line is to duck the first club, win the club continuation, and cash the two top spades. If the spade queen is still outstanding, then declarer must take the diamond finesse; if it is right, he rates to be able to discard all his losers on the diamonds.

However, if trumps are 2-2, South does not need the diamond finesse. He simply plays another club. He knows that clubs are either 3-3 or that they lie as they do. (West would have led the jack from an original jack-doubleton.) West can go in with the king and switch to a diamond, but declarer rises with dummy's ace and discards his losing diamond on dummy's club 10.

ANSWER: There are three promising candidates. You might jump to two no-trump, force to game with a jump to three clubs, or go low with a bid of two clubs. If your partner had responded in your three-card suit, you might force to game, but here your hand has gotten worse, not better. A simple two clubs is surely enough for the time being. Give me the spade jack instead of the 10 and I'd bid two no-trump.

Due to expansion, promotion and a couple of cross-country relocations, the Times-News has immediate openings in the advertising, circulation and news departments.

ADVERTISING SALES SUPERVISOR

We are seeking a high-energy and enthusiastic advertising supervi-sor with strong interpersonal skills who possesses an entrepreneurial spirit. The successful candidate will have both business-to-business sales and management experience. Must demonstrate ability to effectively manage, lead, and generate revenue growth from local businesses.

Candidates must also possess a solid understanding of media sales, including newspaper, TV, online, print sales and event marketing. Solid critical thinking skills required. Qualified candidates must be detail oriented with excellent communication skills, and possess the ability to multi-task and work under tight deadlines. Bachelor's degree in advertising or marketing preferred. Reliable transportation is required.

The advertising supervisor will recruit, train, coach and manage a first class, diverse and talented team of sales representatives to exceed print and online advertising revenue goals and will collaborate with the Advertising Director to develop and implement sales strategies to exceed goals.

We want to talk to people who have confidence in media companies, understand the power of effective advertising and approach challenges with a high level of enthusiasm that rubs off on those around them. This is a solid marketplace with opportunity for revenue growth.

ADVERTISING SALES CONSULTANT

We need a full-time advertising sales consultant who is ready to achieve success, is highly motivated and goal orientated. This posi tion will manage an existing well-established account list and be responsible for the development of new business from new and existing clients. They will provide excellent service to our clients, selling newspaper and online advertising, specialty publications, and ad inserts.

The successful candidate must have a proven track record in outside sales, developing strong business relationships, possess good oral and written communication skills, be well organized, have excellent follow-through and enjoy working with a variety of people. Previous marketing experience or advertising sales experience a plus.

WRITER

South-central Idaho's best and largest news provider seeks a talented writer to dig deep into the intersection of people and policy to consistently bring our readers the stories they'll keep talking about.

The assignment covers an eight-county area from which the right candidate will seek the most compelling stories from both rural and urban settings. Tasks will range from rooting out the reasons behind utility increases that hit thousands of pocketbooks to profiling a thinning group of Pearl Harbor attack survivors who call the area home.

The reporter's primary responsibility will be to find and develop six snappy enterprise stories per week and pitch in on other beats when needed, such as when our government reporter is covering the annual state legislative session in Boise.

CREATIVE DESIGNER

If you are interested in creating and designing print and online ads for clients that helps them grow their business, we want to talk to you. We are looking for an individual with computer graphic designing experience & multi-media web design skills The successful candidate will:

develop and produce advertising solutions for a wide array of clients; be a team player with excellent communication skills and the ability to pitch in to help on projects wherever needed; design advertisements on tight deadlines, and generate ad ideas and campaigns with their sales team.

The candidate will take ideas from the Classifieds Manager and create smart, and eye-catching classified sections, while adhering to tight deadline schedules.

Qualified applicants will have an Associate or Bachelor's Degree in Computer Applications, Computer Graphics, Graphic Arts or the equivalent in experience. Experience with Macintosh computers using Adobe Indesign®, Illustrator®, Photoshop®, and strong typing skills are essential. The candidate will use graphic application software on both the Mac and PC platforms. These include, but are not limited to the Adobe Creative Suite, Quark Express, ArcGis and Prinergy Evo plate imposition software. Experience with web graphic application software such as Flash®, and DreamWeaver®, is preferred.

The Creative Designer is responsible for prioritizing, tracking, and maintaining tight deadline schedules on multiple projects, including ad production, graphic production, photo manipulation, and plate processing. You must have the ability to work scheduled hours that include some evenings and occasional weekend.

Times News

DEAR ABBY: A couple of years ago, my husband of 30 years became distant. He didn't want to touch me, talk to me or spend time with me. I was devastated.

An old boyfriend emailed me to offer condolences on the death of my brother. There were just chatty emails at the beginning, about our lives and how we had gone such separate ways in 40 years. The emails started becoming more intimate, as I was fed by his seeming "love" for me. He told me I was his "soul mate" and I fell for it. I took risks to see him, eventually slept with him and lied to everyone I know in the process.

Recently my husband came across an email from the past boyfriend. My secret was out and the truth was ugly. I had betrayed God, my husband, my mother and my four beautiful children. My husband no longer trusts me and wants a divorce.

Abby, please tell your readers to think long and hard before acting out of loneliness. It doesn't just affect the husband and wife; it also has an impact on the entire family, circle of friends and standing within the community.

- ADULTEROUS WIFE IN FLORIDA

DEAR WIFE: How sad that you didn't get to the bottom of your husband's distancing before it led to you having an affair. But before you allow your husband to place all the blame on your shoulders, you should make it your business to learn the reason for HIS behavior - since "everything" is now out in the open.

DEAR ABBY: I love my husband and, for the most part, we get along great. My only complaint is he stays neutral when someone hurts my feelings.

The latest incident involved good friends of ours until the wife hurt me for the last time. She has a history of inviting me out, even talking me into changing my plans, then ditching me if something better comes along. This last time, I was invited to her house, only to learn (as I'm walking out the door) that she had left for the evening. I've had enough! I gave her as many chances as I did only because my husband said I "overreact" and shouldn't let it be a big deal. This isn't the first time he has chosen not to validate my feelings. The fact that my husband is never on my side hurts me more than what my "friend" has ever done. Am I right? - GETS NO SUPPORT IN AZUSA, CALIF. DEAR GETS NO SUP-PORT: Your husband may not want to be caught in the middle of a disagreement between two women, but that's no reason for him not to tell you your feelings are appropriate when they are justified. He may be good friends with the husband, but the wife has shown she's not much of a friend to you. Real friends don't stand each other up if something "better" comes along. Her behavior is rude and insensitive, and I don't blame you for being offended.

Today is Wednesday, Sept. 14, the 257th day of 2011. There are 108 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On Sept. 14, 1814, Francis Scott Key was inspired to write a poem after witnessing how the American flag continued to fly over Maryland's Fort McHenry after a night of British bombardment during the War of 1812; that poem, "Defence of McHenry," later Fort became the lyrics to "The Star-Spangled Banner"

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1321, Italian poet Dante Alighieri died in Ravenna; he was believed to have been 56.

In 1861, the first naval engagement of the Civil War took place as the USS Colorado attacked and sank the Confederate private Judah schooner off Pensacola, Fla.

President In 1901, William McKinley died in Buffalo, N.Y., of gunshot wounds inflicted by an assassin. Vice President Theodore Roosevelt succeeded him.

In 1927, modern dance pioneer Isadora Duncan died in Nice, France, when her scarf became entangled in a wheel of the sports car she was riding in.

In 1941, Vermont passed a resolution enabling its servicemen to receive wartime bonuses by declaring the U.S. to be in a state of armed conflict, giving rise to headlines that Vermont had "declared war on Germany?"

In 1964, Pope Paul VI opened the third session of the Second Ecumenical Council of the Vatican, also known as "Vatican II." (The session closed two months later.)

In 1981, the syndicated TV program "Entertainment Tonight" made its debut.

In 1982, Princess Grace of Monaco, formerly actress Grace Kelly, died at age 52 of injuries from a car crash the day before; Lebanon's president-elect, Bashir Gemayel, was killed by a bomb.

In 1986, President Ronald Reagan and his wife, Nancy, appeared together on radio and television to appeal for a "national crusade" against drug abuse.

In 1991, the government of South Africa, the African National Congress and the Inkatha Freedom Party signed a national peace pact.

Ten years ago: Patriotism mixed with prayer as Americans packed churches and clogged public squares on a day of remembrance for the victims of the Sept. 11 attacks. President George W. Bush praved with his Cabinet and attended services at Washington National Cathedral, then flew to New York, where he waded into the ruins of the World Trade Center and addressed rescue workers in a flag-waving, bullhorn-wielding show of resolve. Officials announced the Pentagon would call up as many as 50,000 members of the National Guard and Reserve.

Five years ago: Authorities advised people to avoid eating bagged fresh spinach, the suspected (later confirmed) source of an outbreak of E. coli illnesses that killed three people. Three men became the first rabbis ordained in Germany since World War II. Actorbodybuilder Mickey Hargitay, husband of Jayne Mansfield and father of Mariska Hargitay, died in Los Angeles at age 80.

One year ago: Sarah Shourd, one of three American hikers detained by Iran, was freed on $500,000 bail after 410 days in prison. Reggie Bush announced he was forfeiting his 2005 Heisman title, citing a scandal over improper benefits while he was a star running back at Southern California; it was the first time college football's top award had been relinquished by a recipient. Dodge Morgan, who became the first American to sail around the world without stopping in 1986, died in Boston at age 78.

Times News SUDOKU

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

SNOWBIRD ALERT RV CLEARANCE SALE!

All Locally Owned

Between now and the end of November, you may see the error of your ways because those in charge are anxious to point them out. Rather than bemoaning your fate, remain conscientious about fulfilling your commitments and do your utmost to fix problems before they become blown out of proportion. Romantic relationships might have their fair share of ups and downs but in April you can restore trust and loyalty or find someone who fits you to a "t." In April, May and early June, you should accept opportunities with open arms, set crucial plans into motion and make key decisions for the best success.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Make an effort to see the similarities. You might visualize the ways that you and your friends are all squares in the same quilt. Today you may need to fight off a tendency to be hyper critical or isolated.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Opt for a sweeter, saner life. You have choices that must be made and today you may make wise ones. If you are indecisive, ask for advice from a professional, a friend, or the local bartender.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your two cents could turn out to be priceless. No one says that you must sit the sidelines. on Participate, volunteer, or put your hand up. You will find that it will pay off to let your ideas be known.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Become a realist and keep it real. Rather than feeling obligated to maintain a relationship when the connection has soured or outlived its usefulness, the time may be ripe to gracefully make a break.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Do the best with what you have until something better comes along. You can safely the molehills ignore because they won't turn into mountains. Remain sensitive to the needs of vour one true love.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Gossip needs a willing audience like fires need oxygen. If you want to hear the truth, fire away. If you detect a note of falsehood or smell the smoke of political maneuvering, however, you can shut the door. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Go ahead and pretend to be true blue and sincere, but realize that pretense makes for tensions. A new friend who is willing to follow wherever you lead may drop you like a bag of snakes if you can't live up to the hype. SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Exchange pangs of pain for a go at guilty pleasures. You are not required to suffer in silence. Find someone who will lend a shoulder for you to cry on or an ear to vour problems. Get some advice. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Sometimes the smartest move is to play the fool. Pretend to be ignorant of a problem and fly beneath the radar long enough to convince others it is true. Your pretense of innocence will protect you. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Let your head rule your heart. Take words, as well as feelings, with a grain of salt. Someone or something might seem compellingly attractive and pique your interest, but might not be a good fit. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Don't feel slighted if you sense a sleight of hand. Your significant other might confuse or bemuse you. Like a stage magician's audience, you aren't aware of things that are going on behind the scenes. PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): When you feel as though the world is your oyster, it is easy to bump into a pearl. Someone might share a sympathetic and tender side with you when you are busy or preoccupied with other matters.

Panel Weighs Options for Maintaining Vacant Idaho Governor's Mansion

BOISE (AP) • The family of the late french fry billionaire J.R. Simplot is willing to help the state sustain the Idaho governor's mansion through a major fundraising campaign, according to the head of the committee that holds the purse strings to the hilltop house.

The move could help Idaho avoid draining a fund to maintain the house and leaving taxpayers on the hook for upkeep of the water-guzzling, electricity-sucking mansion that the Simplot family donated to the state in 2004.

"They're committed to helping us keep this house sustainable through a major fundraising effort," Republican state Sen. Chuck Winder said Tuesday during a meet ing of the Governor's Housing Committee.

Winder chairs the panel, which reports that a fund to maintain Idaho's long-empty governor's mansion held $936,000 as of Aug. 31. That's enough to pay for about five to six years of annual maintenance.

The committee is expected to consider a slew of options which still could include selling the home - at a meeting later this year.

If Idaho decides to sell the mansion, it must first give Simplot's surviving family the right of first refusal, at market prices. And if the offer is $2.1 million or less, Simplot's family could take back the place, even though Idaho has paid for six years of upkeep and used $310,000 from private donations for renovations.

Supporters of the plan to sell the mansion contend money tied up in the house does nothing for the state.

lived there.

"I think this is a waste of money. I think in this day and age we don't need a governor's home," said Rep. Phylis King, a Boise Democrat on the committee.

The panel is expected to meet in November at the earliest to weigh several options for the mansion.

Idaho Department of Administration Director Teresa Luna told the committee it would cost roughly $1 million to upgrade the heating and cooling system inside the house and pay for other interior work. A complete makeover was estimated at about $2.7 million.

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP) . Montana livestock officials said Tuesday that a Park County cattle herd has been quarantined after six of the animals tested positive for the disease brucellosis.

Additional testing on the animals was under way to confirm the disease, said state veterinarian Marty Zaluski. If confirmed, it would be the region's 15th infection in livestock since 2004.

Introduced by early European settlers and once widespread, brucellosis since been largely eradicated from cattle nationwide after a decades-long government effort. It persists in in parts of Texas and in wildlife in and Brucellosis can cause pregnant animals to miscarry and has been blamed for weight loss and other problems in cattle. It is not considered a significant threat to human health.

Errol Rice with the Montana Stockgrowers Association said the suspected infection in the 150-head herd demonstrated that more needs to be done to eliminate the disease.

"The more cases we continue to identify, it makes you wonder have we really made that much progress on mitigating the problem," Rice said. "The fact remains we still have a large reservoir of the disease in a particular area of Montana that continues to affect our industry." Thousands of Yellowstone bison have been captured and sent to slaughter over the last decade to prevent transmissions to cattle when the bison migrate to lower elevations in Montana. That has not stopped transmissions from the tens of thousands of elk that roam freely across the Yellowstone region.

Tests on elk over the last year revealed a new area of wildlife infections in parts of Montana west of Yellowstone.

Montana, Idaho and Wyoming in recent years started requiring more stringent testing and vaccinations against the disease in recent years. That prompted the federal government to stop automatically imposing trade restrictions on states that have multiple infections.

The government also no longer requires that infected herds be slaughtered.

State officials did not disclose the name of the ranch where the disease was found. The Park County infections, if confirmed, would mark Montana's fourth case in recent years, including one in November on a bison ranch owned by media mogul and philanthropist Ted Turner.

The former New England Patriots star reported the bike stolen while he was in Coeur d'Alene over Labor Day weekend.

On Tuesday, Coeur d'Alene police said 18-year-old Brandon Edgemon faces charges of grand theft.

Police received a call from a teen describing how Edgemon came his house and asked his sister to watch the bike. The youngster locked the bike in his garage, then called police.

Ask The Plant Lady

Question: How often should I water my houseplants?

Answer: Try to water the same day each week with warm water. Push your finger into the soil about 1 to 2 inches. If the soil is dry, add water. If the soil is still moist do not water until the next visit.

Come in today to see our wide variety of plants. We would be happy to show you around and answer any plant questions you have.

And dont forget that our succulent plants are 20% off during the month of September.
