Idaho Inmates Settle Prison Violence Lawsuit

BY REBECCA BOONE Associated Press

BOISE • A potential class-action lawsuit against the nation's largest private prison company over allegations of violence at the Idaho Correctional Center has been settled in federal court.

The agreement between the inmates and Nashville, Tenn.-based Corrections Corporation of America was filed Tuesday in U.S. District Court in Boise.

In it, CCA doesn't acknowledge the allegations but agrees to increase staffing, investigate all assaults and make other sweeping changes at the lockup south of Boise. If the company fails to make the changes, the inmates can ask the courts to force CCA to comply.

The inmates, represented by the American Civil Liberties Union, sued last year on behalf of everyone incarcerated at the CCA-run state prison. They said the prison was so violent it was dubbed "Gladiator School," and that guards used inmate-on-inmate violence as a management tool and then denied prisoners medical care as a way to cover up the assaults.

CCA has denied all the allegations as part of the settlement, but the agreement is governed under a section of the Prison Litigation Reform Act which only applies in cases in which prisoners' constitutional rights have been violated.

As part of a prepared statement written by the ACLU and approved by CCA, both sides said that rather spending time and resources trying to litigate allegations of past problems, the groups would work toward improving future conditions at the prison. Those steps include hiring three additional correctional officers, ensuring prison staffing meets state requirements and following standard operating procedures already set up by the Idaho Department of Correction.

The agreement came after both sides spent three days in federal mediation sessions last week. Federal oversight of the settlement will last for two years.

In the lawsuit, the inmates cited an Associated Press investigation that found the private prison had more cases of inmate-on-inmate violence than all other Idaho prisons combined.

"The unnecessary carnage and suffering that has resulted is shameful and inexcusable," the ACLU wrote in the lawsuit. "ICC

As Jerome County commissioners continue to consider sites for a proposed new jail, the Idaho Sheriff's Association is finalizing its annual inspection of the Jerome County Jail. The verdict: "They're not going to pass," said Cindy Malm, the association's jail inspector.

Malm recently inspected seven county jails, and she is about to give another failing grade to the nearly 40-year-old Jerome facility. The Jerome County Jail hasn't passed an ISA inspection in, well, Malm doesn't know how long. She does know that in the three years she's acted as inspector, Jerome County's facility hasn't cut it.

Jerome Resident Remembers Pilot Killed During Air Races

For more than 30 years, he was friends with veteran pilot Jimmy Leeward, 74, of Ocala, Fla., who died Friday during the air races after his 1940s-era P-51 Mustang plane, the "Galloping Ghost," crashed into a box seat area full of spectators.

As of Tuesday afternoon, 10 other people had died as a result of injuries sustained during the crash, while dozens more were injured at the scene.

For Lane and other members of the small air racing community, the incident struck close to home.

It's not the first time such a traumatic accident has claimed a friend of Lane's the most recent was two or three years ago. But that doesn't make it easy.

"It's a tragic thing when you lose a friend," he said.

Lane participated in the Reno air races as the crew chief for three planes from the Warhawk Air Museum in Nampa. Crew members at the Reno air races are like a close-knit family, Lane said, and most everyone knows each other.

"There's nothing you wouldn't do to help a fellow racer," he said.

When the crash occurred Friday, Lane was in his pit area, which was next to Leeward's, and he could see Leeward's family, friends and

While the prison is owned by the state, it is run for a profit by CCA under a contract with the Idaho Department of Correction. The inmates claimed the company made decisions based on profit rather than on "responsible administration of the prison."

The prisoners' lawsuit didn't ask for money, just changes in the way CCA runs the lockup.

Under the settlement, the company has agreed to leave more prison beds open so it can easily move threatened inmates to new cellblocks when necessary. It also agreed to report all assaults that appear to amount to aggravated battery to the Ada County sheriff's office, to increase the level of training given to guards and to discipline staffers who don't take appropriate measures to stop or prevent assaults.

"This settlement is in the best interest of our clients, CCA and the state of Idaho? ACLU senior attorney Stephen Pevar said in the prepared statement.

Idaho Department of Correction Director Brent Reinke said he was pleased with the settlement, because he thinks it will improve the sometimes adversarial relationship the state has had with CCA. Idaho has increased the number of employees it has monitoring operations at the private prison and in the past has fined CCA thousands of dollars for failing to meet contract requirements. Still, Idaho officials decided to renew CCA's contract to run the prison and the state has even added more than 600 beds to the lockup, making it the state's largest prison.

"We are working with the contractor, rather than against the contractor, which is huge — it's huge when you can try to get things resolved," he said.

Reinke said he was also pleased that ICC warden Timothy Wengler was one of the CCA officials who signed the settlement agreement.

"I respect those in Tennessee (CCA's headquarters). But I really want to have a good manager here," Reinke said. "The fact that he's stepping up and has signed the agreement, well, Idaho officials will closely review the 18 key items listed in the settlement to make sure they comply with the contract between CCA and the state, Reinke said. If not, the contract may be adjusted to add the requirements.

CCA spokesman Steve Owen said his company is "turning a page and looking forward" and the settlement reflects "how pleased we are with the progress that's been made at the facility."

Any costs associated with the increased staffing, investigations and training aren't a concern, he said.

"I think we view all those things that are being done as positives," he said.

CCA has faced several lawsuits in Idaho over violence and assaults at the prison. Security cameras from the facility showed one attack, in which guards watched while an inmate named Hanni Elabed was beaten unconscious and then stomped in the head multiple times. The company reached an undisclosed settlement with Elabed, who was left with brain damage and likely permanent disabilities from the attack.

Many of the attacks listed in the ACLU lawsuit happened while former warden Phillip Valdez was leading the prison. CCA eventually reassigned Valdez to the assistant warden post at the Leavenworth Detention Center, a prison the company runs for the U.S. Marshals Service in Kansas. Just last week, CCA reached a settlement with an inmate named Marlin Riggs, who was the lead plaintiff in the potential class-action lawsuit in Idaho until the court split the case into two lawsuits. He contended he warned guards that he was about to be attacked by other inmates but they refused to move to him to another unit or give him any other protection. Shortly after returning to his cellblock, Riggs was beaten so badly that bones in his face were broken and his blood was splattered across the walls and ceiling of his cell.

CCA's settlement with Riggs was sealed by the

Two Injured in Monday Night Crash Near Filer

TIMES-NEWS

Two Twin Falls County residents were hospitalized Monday after a two-vehicle collision east of Filer.

A Dodge Durango driven by 40-year-old Filer resident Candida Reinke was struck at the intersection of U.S. Highway 30 and 2600 East Road by a Chevrolet Celebrity driven by Cletus Abbott, 51, of Hollister.

Both drivers were transported by ambulance to St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center in Twin Falls after the crash, which occurred shortly before 9:20 p.m. Monday.

On Tuesday afternoon, Abbott was listed in critical condition. The hospital had no record of Reinke as a current patient. According to an Idaho

Associated Press reports describe the scene as one with dozens of injured spectators, with blood, pieces of flesh and parts of the airplane scattered around the area.

The pending report on Malm's inspection comes on the heels of Friday's announcement that county officials will delay a planned Nov. 8 vote asking county residents to fund construction of a new 120-bed jail at a cost of up to $11 million. County officials continue to cite safety and space concerns at the aging jail as the driving factors behind their so-far-rebuked efforts to build a new lockup.

Once again, the Jerome County Jail won't receive the association's certificate of compliance, but ISA doesn't have the statutory authority to shutter the jail. If conditions ever merited that, the jail would only be shut down by a decision of the sheriff and commissioners or by a court order.

Jerome County Sheriff Doug McFall and Commission Chairman Charlie Howell spoke Tuesday to the possibility of shutting down the jail, even prior to another vote. McFall said there are contingencies for how and where to house inmates both in Jerome County and elsewhere, while Howell only said, "It's very likely."

Reasons for why the jail could be shuttered include unsafe conditions for inmates or jail personnel, or if the Idaho Counties Risk Management Program pulled its insurance of the jail from the county.

The possibility of litigation closing the facility is not out of the question either, as the American Civil Liberties Union has begun making inquiries into conditions at the jail, McFall said.

current jail open, commissioners are continuing their push for new digs. A fourth attempt will now go to voters on May 15, 2012, as commissioners are still shopping for jail real estate. Last year, commissioners decided on a plot south of the Jerome County Airport, but now they're looking at other property, as related infrastructure costs ruled that site out.

Possible sites have been narrowed to four, said Howell, but there's no time frame for making a decision on a potential jail site. In past votes, some county residents have pointed to a lack of a site and other uncertain aspects of the county's pitch for funding as reasons they opposed the proposal.

Sun Valley to Vote on $14.2M Bond Issue

BY KAREN BOSSICK For the Times-News

SUN VALLEY • The city of Sun Valley will ask its 900 registered voters to foot a bond that would pay for street and bike and pedestrian path improvements.

The $14.15 million general obligation bond issue on Nov. 8 would also help pay for a new aerial tower fire truck that the city shares with the city of Ketchum.

About 84 percent of the bond would cover major repairs to roads some of which were built 40 years ago, said City Councilman Nils

"This is not just filling potholes. It's major reconstruction - vitally important for our citizens since a significant number of our roads are rapidly deteriorating," added Councilman Dewayne Briscoe.

The owner of a million-dollar house would pay about $450 a year for 15 years if the bond passes, Briscoe said.

Mayor Wayne Willich said the multi-use paths around Elkhorn Village are almost unusable by bicyclists. And some of the streets in the Juniper and Twin Creeks areas of Elkhorn are deteriorating so fast that "if we don't patch them fast enough we're in big trouble."

"If we do take care of them now we won't have to repave them for another 25 years," he added. "We'd also like to extend the multi-use path to the Boundary campground if we can. The current path ends at the Sun Valley Gun

The bond would also provide $600,000 for the fire truck - replacing the 22-year-old current one. And, it would allow the fire department to upgrade electronic and radio communication equipment, as well as provide new protective gear for firefighters.

Bond interest rates are extremely low right now, as are bids for construction, Willich said. "So if we start going in 2012 we can save taxpayers a ton of money. We have a community with a lot of expensive property and chuckholed roads don't send a good message."

The bond issue will need two-thirds supermajority voter approval to pass.

Otter: Idaho to Take Federal Money for Exchange

BY JESSIE L. BONNER
Associated Press

BOISE • Idaho will apply for millions of dollars in federal funding to set up health insurance exchanges because dismissing the money could allow the federal government to impose a plan that possibly wouldn't work for the state, Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter said Tuesday.

"It's a difficult choice, but one I find far preferable to submitting to a federally established insurance exchange, with all the loss of control over our own destiny that entails," Otter said in a statement Tuesday.

Under the health care overhaul passed by Congress last year, states must set up health insurance exchanges by January 2014. If a state doesn't create an exchange by then, the federal government is required to do so.

There is a Sept. 30 deadline for Idaho to apply for about $30 million in grant funding to starting building an insurance exchange, which would offer one-stop shopping for people and small businesses buying coverage directly from an insurer.

"My goal is to establish a state-based exchange emphasizing free-market principles and create a competitive marketplace for individuals and businesses to obtain the coverage they need rather than imposing a one-size-fits-all solution that may not be suitable or even workable for Idaho," Otter said in a statement Tuesday.

Idaho is among a number of states suing over the health care law, and state lawmakers in the 2011 session grappled with how Idaho should handle money linked to the federal Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act.

For example, lawmakers objected to the Idaho Department of Insurance's $10 million budget for the fiscal year 2012 until the agency removed plans to accept $2.5 million from the federal government to help develop insurance exchanges.

While many of the state's Republican lawmakers still object to the federal overhaul, they agreed with the governor last month when he first indicated that Idaho would be shortsighted to pass up the federal dollars to help set up the exchanges.

Lawmakers reasoned that the state is unlikely to have the money to develop exchanges on its own, given budget constraints, and that Idaho should take the money as long as it doesn't lock the state into accepting portions of the federal reforms they don't agree with.

But that logic doesn't sit well with all critics of the federal health care reform.

"A state exchange will keep Idahoans in charge, they claim. They're dangerously wrong," said Wayne Hoffman, who heads a free-market advocacy group called the Idaho Freedom Foundation, in an editorial Saturday.

"The state can't create an exchange that is autonomous and independent from Obamacare's regulations. Were Idaho to do so, the federal government would rule the state out of compliance, demand changes, and if those changes don't occur, the federal government will still step in and operate the exchange itself," Hoffman said.

Under the federal law, most people buying insurance through the exchanges would be eligible for taxpayer-financed subsidies, and participating plans would have to take all applicants, regardless of prior health problems. Sick people or seniors could not be charged higher premiums.

The pro-business Idaho

Association of Commerce & Industry lauded Otter for his decision to apply for the federal funding.

"By requesting the grant dollars, Idaho will have the ability to carefully evaluate the actual cost of the development of an exchange and will only use those dollars as necessary," association president Alex LaBeau said in a letter to Otter sent Tuesday.

"My goal is to establish a statebased exchange emphasizing freemarket principles and create a competitive marketplace for individuals and businesses to obtain the coverage they need rather than imposing a one-size-fits-all solution that may not be suitable ... for Idaho."

THEIR VIEW

Let's Learn From BP Mistakes

 $The {\it following editorial appeared in the Dallas Morning News on Mon-}$ day, Sept. 19:

fter more than a year of top-level investigations into the Deepwater Horizon explosion, one theme emerges over and over: BP and its partners on the Gulf of Mexico rig caused the worst offshore oil spill in U.S. history.

That's hardly a surprise to anyone who has watched as presidential, congressional and other types of commissions came to basically the same bottom line.

Now that we know who is to blame, the next step should be to enact key recommendations to make offshore drilling in deep waters safer. And that seems to be as vexing as was capping the spill itself.

Last week, the Coast Guard and the Bureau of Ocean Energy Management, Regulation and Enforcement added their voices to the forensic exercise, finding that BP deserved the bulk of the blame, and rig partners Transocean and Halliburton took unacceptable risks and made crucial mistakes. The report also details numerous clerical and communication errors as well as petulant disputes between the rig partners over procedures, responsibilities and training that simply shouldn't happen.

According to investigators, the central cause of the disaster was "a failure of a cement barrier" intended to seal the well. Halliburton was responsible for mixing and testing the cement, but BP made ill-advised decisions in the interest of saving time and money that heightened the risk of a catastrophic blowout. Transocean workers also made matters worse by improperly trapping escaping gas on the rig and failing to quickly notify engine operators of the looming

Since the incident, the Obama administration has reorganized some aspects of offshore drilling oversight and tightened safety standards. Yet Congress, despite holding its own hearings into the catastrophe, hasn't passed legislation to address key problems brought to

That's inexcusable. Deep-water drilling is an important part of the U.S. energy portfolio and is crucial to reducing dependency on foreign

Eleven men died in the April 2010 accident and, over the next 87 days, nearly 5 million barrels spewed relentlessly into the gulf, saturating coastlines and killing marine and wildlife. The scope of the disaster led to a costly, but necessary, drilling moratorium that idled workers in communities all along the coast. The full effect on the environment probably will not be known for decades.

Government statistics show drilling in the gulf is returning to near pre-spill levels. Unfortunately, most new offshore discoveries are in rock at depths that will challenge drillers to operate safely. That makes it all the more critical to put fixes in place.

Otherwise, we'll just be holding our breath for the next catastrophic incident.

A New Economy Can't Be Built on Low-end Jobs

 ${\it The following editorial appeared}$ in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch on Sunday, Sept. 18:

t should come as no surprise to anyone living in the real world that household incomes fell again last year in the United States, leaving millions more individuals and families struggling that much harder to pay their bills and meet day-to-day expenses.

Median annual household income slipped another 2.3 percent from 2009 to 2010, according to the latest updates from the U.S. Census Bureau, affirming the particularly tenacious after-effects of the recession that began in 2007. Overall, household incomes have fallen from $53,000 before the recession to $49,400 last year, even though the recession officially ended in the summer

Decreasing income has meant increasing poverty. In 2010, 46.2 million of the 306 million people in the richest nation in the history of civilization lived in poverty. That was 2.6 million more than the previous year.

Even more troubling are the undeniable indications of a disappearing American middle class. Economic analysts have noted that socalled middle-skilled jobs, both blue collar and white collar, took a disproportionately large hit between 2007 and 2009.

"Almost one of every 12 white-collar jobs in sales, administrative support and non-managerial office work vanished in the first two years of the recession," journalist Don Peck wrote in a lengthy article in this month's issue of The Atlantic. "One of every six blue-collar jobs in production, craft, repair and machine operation did the

The data suggest that workers who have high school diplomas but not college degrees are particularly vulnerable – especially men.

The jarring disturbances of the recent recession have accelerated these developments, but they didn't create the underlying forces.

Allowing for erosion during periodic recessions, median household income in the United States is essentially the same as it was 45 years ago.

Overall, there is little evidence today of the American ideal that each generation improves its financial standing over that of the previous generation while laying the groundwork for continuing improvement by the generation that comes next.

There is abundant evidence, on the other hand, that income and wealth in America have become more and more concentrated in the hands of the country's upper economic strata. Among the 34 nations of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, the United States ranks fourth from the bottom in income inequality, surpassed only by Turkey, Mexico and Chile. And U.S. inequality has been growing steadily since 1984, according to the OECD's tracking data.

The U.S. economy has suffered over the last several decades from the loss of manufacturing facilities, the globalization of goods and labor and technological advances that affect more and more kinds of work. There's no reason to believe these trends will reverse. Indeed, the trends are expected to broaden, undermining the economic well being of better-educated, more highly skilled middleclass professionals. The only people likely to be insulated from the adverse effects of these dislocating changes are those who profit from them: those at the uppermost reaches of the income and wealth scales.

Mr. Abbas' Heedless Push

ahmoud Abbas acknowledged Monday what many Palestinians and Arab leaders concluded long ago: The result of his plan to pursue U.N. ratification of Palestinian statehood will be more hardship for the people of the West Bank and Gaza Strip. Congress may terminate U.S. aid, causing an instant economic crisis; Israel is hinting at retaliation, ranging from the withholding of tax funds to the annexation of its West Bank settlements. At worst, demonstrations being orchestrated by Mr. Abbas to support the statehood initiative will get out of hand, producing a violent confrontation with Israel.

As for the statehood proposal itself, it will be voted down or vetoed by the United States in the U.N. Security Council, if it is ever taken up. Abbas could then appeal to the General Assembly, which could upgrade Palestine to a non-member status comparable to that of the Vatican, allowing it to join some international agencies and maybe the International Criminal Court. Yet taking advantage of those forums to challenge Israel will not win Palestinians a state - only more Israeli enmity.

The Obama administration and its European allies have engaged in a frantic wave of diplomacy whose product would be to save Palestinians from their leaders' latest self-defeating scheme. Of course, Israel also stands to lose from the U.N. votes, which together with deteriorating relationships with Egypt and Turkey could leave it more isolated than at any time in decades. The United States, too, could pay a price in the Arab world if it is forced to veto a statehood resolution - though Palestine has not been a central concern of the mass movements of the Arab Spring.

So far, the rescue mission appears to be making little headway. Mr. Abbas, who at 76 has announced his intention to retire next year, has little incentive to abandon an initiative that, in the form of a General Assembly resolution, could provide him with a superficial political legacy – and save him from embracing the painful concessions that would be needed for an agreement with Israel. Attempts by former British Prime Minister Tony Blair to formulate a statement by the European Union, United States and Russia that could serve as the basis for new Israeli-Palestinian negotiations have foundered in part because of the Palestinian refusal to accept language describing Israel as a homeland for the Jewish people. European proposals for a compromise General Assembly initiative have met similar resistance.

Israel shares responsibility for the developing crisis: Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu has been too slow to embrace reasonable terms for Palestinian statehood. However, the issue that caused a rift last spring between President Obama and Mr. Netanyahu defining a Palestinian state according to Israel's 1967 borders, with land swaps has receded. Mr. Netanyahu now appears ready to accept the principle.

Meeting Discusses Timing of Purchases for Sandpoint Trail

BY CAROLINE LOBSINGER

Bonner County Daily Bee

SANDPOINT • No one disputes whether the proposed Pend d'Oreille Bay Trail would be an asset or not.

Whether or not it is the right time for such a purchase was the purpose of Tuesday's special Sandpoint City Council meeting.

"Everyone thinks the Pend d'Oreille Bay Trail is the best thing in the world," Sandpoint Mayor Gretchen Hellar said ahead of the meeting. "The real question is whether this proposal is the best op-

The proposal calls for the city of Sandpoint to purchase two of the four lots that make up the proposed trail. The city would purchase the first parcel in the first year and the second parcel in the second year for $400,000 apiece. In the third year, the proposal calls for the city of Ponderay to purchase the third parcel for $400,000 as well.

Finally, the Friends of the Pend d'Oreille trail have raising committed to $370,000 to purchase the final parcel in the fourth year.

Hellar said she called the special meeting to allow the public and the council to rationally discuss the proposal.

She hoped the meeting, with its singular focus, would allow all sides to discuss the merits of the proposal and not on the emotions of the issue. Hellar said she is concerned that those who question whether it is the right time and the right plan are automatically assumed to be

"That's not the case," she

The council's decision is a matter of if the trail is the best use of an estimated $1 million - $800,000 for the land and $200,000 to make it usable as a trail, Hellar said.

The city has road issues which much be addressed, Memorial Field needs work and there are other items which the money could go toward, said the mayor.

"The question before the council is simple," she added. "Is this the best use of $1 million of the taxpayers' mon-

Nampa Circus Promises Nonstop Fun This Year

BY MICHAEL DEEDS

Idaho Statesman

NAMPA • Jason Gibson, who describes himself as a 41-year-old kid, has fond memories of his grandmother taking him and his brother to the circus.

They would arrive excitedly, find their seats, then patiently wait for the action to begin.

Times have changed. Instead of just finding your seat next week at the Idaho Center, you'd better hold onto it.

The Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey's "Zing Zang Zoom" – a one-ring, as opposed to traditional three-ring, circus — intensifies the live entertainment, Gibson says.

If it's anything like his energy level during this phone interview - Gibson is the production manager of the tour, known as the Gold Edition - it probably will blow some hair back.

"I just totally love the onering concept," he declares enthusiastically. "Make sure you get your cotton candy and snow cones before the show begins, because if you step away, you're definitely going to miss something. The pacing of our show is so quick, it's amazing."

Amazing is a modest word for an event that dubs itself "the greatest show on Earth" and features acts such as: 1) Viktoriya and Widny, who will terrify beauticians by hanging from their hair while 35 feet in the air ("Ouch! Ouch!" Gibson says); and 2) the Urias Family, who race motorcycles at breakneck speeds inside a 16-foot-wide steel globe. (That's been Gibson's favorite act since he was a kid.)

It's been three years since

Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey last visited Treasure Valley. Among the hierarchy of touring circuses that stop here, this definitely is the top

But that's not just because of the performance level of the 30 performers and 70 traveling staff, a multinational "family" who travel between 25,000 and 30,000 miles per year.

This circus simply has found ways to stay compelling, even in a short-attention-span world.

VIP seats put you 12 feet from the ring. But even if your seat is further away, there is plenty of opportunity to see - even meet - the performers up close.

An hour before showtime, you can go to the arena floor and join an all-star party pre-show.

Kids can learn to juggle, walk a low wire, even get a free clown nose and temporary tattoos. Duchess, one of three elephants in the show, is brought into the ring and makes a giant paintfootprint on canvas. Some lucky person gets to take that home.

"All these things for free. With our economy, when people want more bang for their buck, it's right here!" Gibson says with a laugh. "It's my favorite part, because I'm watching the children, and they get to have that personal connection with our performers.

"So when the show is actually going, they can be, 'Wait, I know that person!' You can hear the kids cheering for some of the performers they met at the pre-

Gibson is happy to shake your hand, too. He'll be the guy in the black suit. In fact, he may be the most fun to meet out of everyone.

"It is just fantastic to be able to tour around this country and meet new people each and every day," says Gibson, who started as a sound man with Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey 15 years ago. "It's so cool to be a part of this amazing show for so many years."

New Fremont Co. Parks Head Focuses on Changes

BY JOYCE EDLEFSEN

Rexburg Standard Journal

ST. ANTHONY • More changes are afoot in Fremont County's Park and Recreation Department.

Since he was named to oversee the department, Steven Loosli has made a number of changes aimed, he says, at making the county more responsive to the recreational needs of visitors and residents.

Two of the department's part-time employees are now working full time: Tamra Cikaitoga and Mark Cikaitoga remains the department director reporting to Loosli. That change was made, county officials said at the time, because the director's job has grown larger than one person can handle at a time when the county is looking to ramp up its focus on recreation.

As director, Cikaitoga manages the department, but with daily consultation with Loosli.

He says they have been working specifically on strategic plans for all of the recreational assets owned or operated by the county, such as the golf course, Frome Park at Henry's Lake, the snowmobile program, waterway access and trails and the Johnny Sack Cabin.

By next spring master plans for those assets should be completed and available to the public, Loosli says. The plan will include an inventory and short and long term priorities for managing the as-

Loosli says grants for recreational programs are getting smaller and scarcer, forcing the county to try to make some improvements in house that in the past might have been done by contractors.

That's one reason Loosli got approval from the county commissioners to move Seeley from a part-time seasonal employee in the department to a full-time permanent employee.

Seeley has expertise in construction, so he will be working primarily on rebuilding the old bridge over the Henry's Fork in the Osbourn Springs Cikaitoga had earlier successfully secured a grant for that project.

Seeley also has been making repairs at the county golf course to the deck and to a cart storage shed to maintain the facility, which Loosli describes as a valuable county asset.

U.S. Military Passes Milestone: End to Ban on Gay Service

BY ROBERT BURNS Associated Press

WASHINGTON • The U.S. military passed a historic milestone Tuesday with the repeal of the ban on gays serving openly in uniform, ending a prohibition that President Barack Obama said had forced gay and lesbian service members to "lie about who they are." Defense Secretary Leon Panetta pledged not to allow other issues of equal opportunity, such as allowing women to serve in combat roles, to be ignored or set

"I am committed to removing all of the barriers that would prevent Americans from serving their country and from rising to the highest level of responsibility that their talents and warrant," capabilities Panetta told a Pentagon news conference. "These are men and women who put their lives on the line in the defense of this country, and that's what should matter the most?'

Repeal of the 18-year-old $legal\,provision-commonly$ known as "don't ask, don't tell," under which gays can serve as long as they don't openly acknowledge their sexual orientation - took effect Monday at 10:01 p.m.

Appearing with Panetta for what was probably his final news Pentagon conference as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, retiring Navy Adm. Mike Mullen said that with the new law allowing gays to serve openly, the military is a stronger, more tolerant force with greater character and honor. "I still believe that it was first and foremost a matter of integrity, that it was fundamentally against everything we stand for as an institution to force people to lie about who they are just to wear a uniform," Mullen said. "We are better than that." Some in Congress still oppose the change, arguing that it may undermine order and discipline, but top Pentagon leaders have certified that it will not hurt the military's ability to recruit or to fight wars.

Obama issued a statement saying he is confident that lifting the ban will enhance U.S. national security.

"As of today, patriotic Americans in uniform will no longer have to lie about who they are in order to serve the country they love;" he said. "As of today, our armed forces will no longer lose the extraordinary skills and combat experience of so many gay and lesbian service members."

Georgia Denies Clemency to Convicted Cop Killer

BY RICHARD FAUSSET Los Angeles Times

ATLANTA • Georgia's pardon and parole board Tuesday denied clemency to Troy Davis, a Savannah man convicted of the 1989 murder of an off-duty police officer, paving the way for his execution despite critics' concerns that the state may be putting an innocent man to death.

The decision was a relief for the family of Mark MacPhail, the Savannah police officer who, while working as a security guard, was gunned down as he sought to aid a beating victim in a downtown Savannah parking lot. MacPhail's widow, Joan MacPhail-Harris, and other family members contend that the jury was correct in convicting Davis in 1991, and that the death penalty was warrant-

U.S., Pakistan Officials Agree to Limit Troops

WASHINGTON • The United States and Pakistan have agreed to limit the number of American troops in that country, amid frayed relations between the two nations and a struggle to repair them, U.S. officials said Tuesday. The presence of U.S. forces inside Pakistan is highly unpopular there, and became more so following the U.S. military raid in Pakistan that killed Osama bin Laden. According to U.S. and Pakistani officials, the new compromise pact slashes the number of U.S. forces allowed in Pakistan to between 100 and 150, nearly half of what it has been in the past. The number of special operations trainers would fall from 140 to fewer than 10. Allowing any elite trainers to stay suggests a bit of a thaw in the icy relationship. Only a few months ago Pakistan demanded that all the trainers as well as other U.S. forces leave the country. Officials described the agreement on condition of anonymity because of the sensitivity of the issue.

Embracing Israel, GOP Candidates Assail Obama

Republican frontrunners ramp up efforts to prove their conservative, pro-Israel bona fides with evangelical voters who will play a significant role in GOP presidential primaries.

BY BETH FOUHY and KASIE HUNT Associated Press

NEW YORK • Rick Perry, Mitt Romney and their GOP presidential rivals slammed President Barack Obama's Middle East policies Tuesday while emphatically declaring their own support for Israel as the United Nations considered a bid for Palestinian state-

Republican front-runner Perry, the Texas governor, denounced the president's Israel policy as "misguided and dangerous," speaking to supporters in New York as the Obama administration worked a few miles away to thwart a U.N. vote to grant formal recognition to the Palestinian Authority.

Perry also accused Obama of appeasement, as did Minnesota Rep. Michele Bachmann, who assailed the president from the Midwest.

Perry's chief rival for the nomination, former Massachusetts Gov. Romney, issued a statement accusing Obama of "throwing Israel under the bus."

The Republican campaigns have similar goals: establish contrasts with Obama on an issue where he's struggled; chip away at American Jews' support for Democrats and prove their conservative, pro-Israel bona fides with the evangelical voters who will play a significant role in the GOP presidential primaries.

IMF Warns of 'Dangerous New Phase' in Global Economy

Fund says if European banks acknowledge possible losses on their holdings of Greek and other bonds, it could tip world into new recession.

BY HOWARD SCHNEIDER The Washington Post

The world economy is entering a "dangerous new phase" of slowing growth and eroding confidence that threatens to undermine economic activity even further, the International Monetary Fund warned Tuesday in its primary annual forecast. "Global activity has weakened and become more uneven; confidence has fallen sharply recently; and downside risks are growing," the fund said in its World Economic Outlook, published ahead of this week's annual meetings.

The semiannual report took aim at high public debt in the United States and Europe, particularly the 17-nation euro area's inability to reach political agreement over how to deal with Greece's plunge toward default and the continent's weakened banking system.

At a press conference, IMF economic counselor Olivier Blanchard issued what he referred to as a "call to arms" for European governments in particular to shore up their banks and use stronger measures to secure the finances of highly indebted countries. The IMF's report said that if European banks begin acknowledging possible losses on their holdings of Greek and other government bonds, it could tip the world into a new recession. "We can't assume we have another three months or six months or a year,"

On Tuesday, Greek and European officials are to continue discussing the latest round of short-term fixes to the Mediterranean country's shrinking economy and eroding public accounts, but the IMF, the United States and world markets are urging a long-term solution that will give the country time to turn its economy around. Such an agreement has been approved in principle but remains stalled in practice as the region's 17 national parliaments argue over the details.

Meanwhile, as if to emphasize the region's difficulties, Standard & Poor's downgraded Italy's credit standing on Tuesday, saying that slow growth and weak political leadership had shaken confidence in the country. Italy's annual deficit is not as bad as that of other euro area countries, but it has a massive amount of outstanding debt and its economy is among the worstperforming in the world.

The downgrade is one in a series the rating agency has issued to governments, including the United States, that have large amounts of outstanding debt, and may push up Italian borrowing costs that have already been rising. Italy is considered critical in the debate over the euro's future because Tuesday's attack, carried out in former President Burhanuddin Rabbani's Kabul home, dealt a harsh blow to attempts at ending a decade of war. The killing of Rabbani, an ethnic Tajik and one of the wise old men of Afghan politics, will blunt efforts to keep in check the regional and ethnic rivalries that help feed the insurgency.

President Hamid Karzai cut short a visit to the United Nations and called on Afghans to remain unified in the face of Rabbani's "martyrdom." An emergency Cabinet meeting was called for Wednesday.

TYCOON SEEKS REVIEW OF GIRLFRIEND'S DEATH

An Arizona pharmaceutical tycoon asked California's attorney general to review findings that his girlfriend killed herself by tying her wrists and ankles and hanging herself naked from a balcony of his historic mansion, according to a letter released Tuesday. Perry criticized Obama's stated goal that any negotiations should be based on Israel's borders prior to the 1967 Mideast war, with mutually agreed adjustments and land swaps to accommodate population shifts and some homebuilding since 1967. Perry called that "insulting and stance

Obama angered Israel earlier this year by endorsing a Palestinian demand that negotiations over future borders begin with the lines Israel held before capturing the West Bank, Gaza and East Jerusalem in 1967.

In regard to potential official recognition, the administration has been working intensively behind the scenes to restart direct negotiations between Israelis and Palestinians and to persuade Palestinian leader Mahmoud Abbas to drop his push and avoid an explosive confrontation at the U.N. later in the week.

But Perry had strong criticism nonetheless, speaking to a group of ultraconservative Jewish and Israeli leaders at a New York hotel.

"Simply put, we would not be here today at the precipice of such a dangerous move if the Obama policy in the Middle East wasn't naive, arrogant, misguided and dangerous," Perry said, flanked by U.S. and Israeli flags. "The Obama administration has appeased the Arab Street at the expense of our own national security interests. They have sowed instability that threatens the prospect of peace."

Romney said, "What we are watching unfold at the United Nations is an unmitigated diplomatic disaster. It is the culmination of President Obama's repeated efforts over three years to undermine its negotiating position." He called for an end to U.S. foreign aid to the Palestinian Authority if the U.N. vote went the Palestinians' way.

The candidates' remarks represented their efforts to win over the conservative and evangelical voters who care deeply about GOP support for Israel. They back Israel as a U.S. ally in the fight against terror and as a rare democracy in the volatile Mideast. Some also support Israel for theological rea-

Perry told reporters his support for Israel was in part driven by his religious faith.

"I also as a Christian have a clear directive to support Israel, so from my perspective it's pretty easy," Perry said when a reporter asked if Perry's faith was driving his views. "Both as an American and as a Christian, I am going to stand with Israel."

Republicans who describe themselves as evangelical prefer Perry over Romney -33 percent really like Perry while just 17 percent really like Romney, according to an August AP-GfK poll. Republicans who aren't evangelical like both men about the same.

A third Republican candidate, Minnesota Rep. Bachmann, also weighed in Tuesday – but Bachmann, also an evangelical, left religion out of it and instead issued a statement calling on Obama to prevent Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad from coming to the U.N.

a victim — we are the victims," MacPhail-Harris said Monday night after addressing the parole board.

But Amnesty International and other groups have argued that Davis, 42, should be spared death by lethal injection based on new evidence that emerged after his 1991 jury trial, including numerous key witnesses who changed their stories that had originally implicated him.

Former President Jimmy Carter and Archbishop Desmond Tutu have expressed similar concerns, as have conservatives including former Rep. Bob Barr, R-Ga., and William S. Sessions, the former FBI director under Presidents Ronald Reagan and George H.W. Bush.

The board did not cite a reason for its denial, but noted in a brief statement that its five members "have not taken their responsibility lightly and certainly understand the emotions attached to a death penalty case."

As the two-decade drama lurched toward climax in recent days, media coverage intensified, thrusting capital punishment to the center of the national conversation at a time when voters are examining the record of GOP presidential front-runner Rick Perry, who, as governor of Texas, has presided over 235 executions.

Twice within the last week, the U.S. Supreme Court blocked what would have been the 236th execution so it could decide whether to hear the appeals. Last Thursday, the high court halted the execution of Duane Edward Buck, whose 1997 death sentence came after a psychologist told jurors that he was more likely to be a future threat to public safety because he was black.

And on Tuesday, the justices stayed the execution of Cleve Foster, a former Army recruiter who contends that another man committed the 2002 rape and murder for which he was convicted.

of its size: The country is considered too big for the type of bailout being used to prop up Greece, and a default on its bonds would be ruinous to major German and French banks that have tens of billions of dollars invested there.

A sharp drop in German investor confidence also indicated that "the recovery is long gone" in the country that has served as a prop for Europe's economy, according to a research note published today by the Capital Economics consulting firm.

World markets were up Tuesday, despite the IMF report and the Italian downgrade. By closing bell, the Euro STOXX and FTSE index were up around 2 percent, and the German DAX had risen nearly 3 percent. In the United States where investors had been showing optimism that the Federal Reserve would agree on stimulus measures during its policy meeting this week - stocks were in the black for much of the day. The Dow Jones closed up 0.07 percent. But the S&P 500 and Nasdaq indexes took a tumble, closing down at 0.17 percent and 0.86 percent respectively.

The IMF's projections show the world economy growing by 4 percent this year and next, down from earlier forecasts of 4.3 percent in 2011 and 4.5 percent in 2012. Growth in the developed world is expected to be 1.6 percent this year and 1.9 percent in 2012, with the U.S. and Europe growing at an even slower pace.

Stocks End Mixed as Promised of Greek Debt Fix Dims

NEW YORK (AP) • Investor optimism faded in a hurry Tuesday after two days of conferences ended with no resolution to Greece's debt crisis.

Stocks erased nearly all of their gains in the last hour of trading after rallying for much of the day on hopes the Fed would stimulate the economy.

At the closing bell, the Dow Jones industrial average was left with a gain of 7.65 points, or 0.1 percent, at 11,408.66. It had been up as much as 149.21 points earlier in the day.

The Standard & Poor's 500 index fell 2, or 0.2 percent, to 1,202.09. The Nasdaq composite fell 22.59, or 0.9 percent, to 2,590.24.

Money invested into an ipad ordering system •

Rajat Suri's company, which developed the system now in use at Umami Burger and about 100 other restaurants, has raised $5 million from investors, including the founders of Groupon. More uWink restaurants opened in California, Florida and Canada. But the company never took off, and as of last year all the restaurants had closed.

'It's really fast, easy and novel," said L.J.Diener, a Palos Verdes Estates, Calif. resident, who used the tablet computer to order a Greek pizza and a customized salad. "You can do it all yourself without having to explain your order."

A Few Taps Can Order Dinner, but Don't Expect That Human Touch

BY TIFFANY HSU

Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES • Pushy waiters and know-it-all sommeliers, step aside. Your days may be numbered.

Tablet computers are starting to take over.

In the past few months, restaurants scattered around the country have installed iPads and other technologies on which customers can place orders and perform additional tasks usually handled by staff.

At Stacked in Torrance, Calif., which opened in May, iPads mounted on 60 tables enable patrons to flip through a touch screen to view pizza, burger and salad offerings. Diners can chose entrees and sides, pick out toppings, send their orders to the kitchen and divvy up the bill, all without talking to a staff person.

To pay, customers swipe credit cards through slots built into the iPad holders.

The co-founder of the restaurant, Paul Motenko, said he spent more than a year and $1 million developing the digital ordering regi-

It allowed him to open with a smaller-than-average staff, but he maintained that the hands-on system made customers feel more involved in the process.

"In traditional settings, the communication between guests and the kitchen is so insufficient," said Motenko, who has opened a second outlet in San Diego and has another planned for Cerritos, Calif. "People's time is valuable. This kind of concept creates a different dynamic."

Umami Burger is testing another tablet-based selfservice ordering system at its casual sit-down restaurant in Los Angeles' Miracle Mile area. The chain plans eventually to roll out the devices to its other four locations.

Fast-food eateries, where ordering is normally done at a counter, would seem a natural for the technology. Mc-Donald's has installed electronic ordering kiosks in 800 of its restaurants in Europe. It has placed one outside its home base in Chicago, though the chain said it had no immediate plans to install the machines across the U.S. "It'll have a larger presence in fast food, where a quicker turnaround matters," analyst Nima Samadi at IBISWorld said about the technology. "In traditional, full-service restaurants, it's still kind of a gimmick."

Maybe so, but if it'll attract customers, it's going to be tried.

At Catch restaurant in Santa Monica, Calif., patrons can browse through more than 230 wines using tabletop iPads.

The wines are searchable by type and varietal, with detailed descriptions of a wine's grape and, in some cases, a photo of the bottle.

"The iPads give the information that guests really want, as much as they want," said Simon Sorpresi, director of food and beverage at the Casa del Mar hotel, which houses the restaurant.

Montana Counties to Review Planned Power Line

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BUTTE, Mont. • Two Montana counties and several organizations will spend six months studying the environmental and economic effects of a power line North-Western Energy wants to build between southwestern Montana and Idaho.

NorthWestern proposes building the 345-mile, 500kilovolt Mountain States Transmission Intertie from the Townsend area to the Jerome, Idaho, area to export electricity to the Southwest.

The goal of the MSTI Review Project is to protect rural lifestyles, private property and the natural environment. The groups say they will look at possible corridors for the line as well as its impact on property values and county revenue, while also examining the underlying need for the proposed transmission line, the Montana Standard reported Tuesday.

Dave Snelson, AIF®, CLTC

"Montanans have always respected our rich natural resources as a source of prosperity and their benefit to our quality of life," said Dave Schulz, Madison County commissioner. "We look forward to working with other counties to pursue the thoughtful development of responsibly sited transmission lines in a way that protects the values that Montanans share with our neighbors in Idaho."

NorthWestern Energy said it supports the third-party, independent review.

Mike Cashell, transmission vice president for NorthWestern, said the company sees the review group as "an excellent opportunity for county commissioners to continue to participate. ... We hope that all counties potentially affected by MSTI will participate in this effort to better understand how this important project affects their

Eating Cheap

Spaghetti Carbonara, Cucina Gemelli, 653 Blue Lakes

Blvd N., Twin Falls

BY VIRGINIA HUTCHINS

vhutchins@magicvalley.com

Inside a Blue Lakes Boulevard strip mall is a surprisingly sophisticated lunch spot where you can munch Cucina Gemelli's frittata or poached salmon while considering an exhibit of landscape paintings.

A long wall of windows provided all of the room's light the day I visited; they look out at a line of whiskey-barrel planters that soften the parking lot outside. Soft jazz left room for conversation. And as usual, chef-proprietor Lynn Sheehan was in the dining room, chatting with customers, describing the day's specials and pitching in here and there to serve.

The room in which Cucina Gemelli serves lunch is more casual than its dinner side, and the lunch menu is correspondingly approachable. I chose one of the richer dishes from an otherwise light-and-green lunch lineup: spaghetti carbonara with house-cured bacon.

The kitchen couldn't meet my request for whole-wheat pasta, but as it turned out, I didn't care much.

One of the restaurant's most popular lunch items, this dish is a beautifully balanced creation topped with Parmesan and ground pepper. The bacon provides a salty zing in a creamy sauce made of Buhl dairy products, with local spinach as an astringent counterpoint. What amazed me, however, was the amazingly robust flavor of the carbonara's roasted mushrooms.

I learned the secret from Sheehan later.

For its house-cured bacon, Cucina Gemelli buys a Melba ranch's Berkshire pork bellies — that's a smaller pig breed with better marbling and more flavor than commodity pork — then gives them the restaurant's salt-sugar-spices rub, cures them and smokes them over local applewood.

And those mushrooms? Sheehan and her staff quarter them, toss them with salt and pepper and a bit of the bacon fat (aha!) and roast them at high temperature.

Mazatlan-style Sopitos

Like many Mexican standbys, sopitos vary from region to region. Mazatlan sopitos, also called gorditas, are made with thick tortilla-like shells and tomato sauce. Recipe from Kathy Zarco of Jerome.

For the shells: 2 cups corn masa harina Water

Vegetable oil, for frying

For the toppings: 1 can refried beans 1 12-ounce package chorizo

1 red onion, sliced thinly

- 1 carrot, shredded
- 1 head diced iceberg lettuce 1 cup cojita cheese, crumbled

Sour cream, to garnish

For the sauce: 18-ounce can tomato sauce 24 ounces water (fill the empty can 3 times) 1/2 tablespoon garlic powder

1 tablespoon oregano 1 teaspoon vinegar Salt and pepper, to taste

For shells: Put masa harina in a large mixing bowl and add water 1/2 cup at a time, mixing thoroughly, until a stiff dough forms. Form into about five 6-inch discs about 1/2 thick. (If you don't have a tortilla press, use a rolling pin, or press between two plates.) Over medium heat, lightly brown the shells on a griddle. While each shell is still hot, lay it flat, and pinch and raise the edges to form a shallow crust. Heat oil in a deep skillet over medium heat, then fry the sopito shells until golden brown. Drain off oil and allow to cool.

Heat refried beans in a saucepan over medium heat. Take casing off chorizo and crumble, then brown over medium heat.

For sauce: Stir together tomato sauce, 24 ounces water, garlic powder, oregano, vinegar, salt and pepper. Cook over medium heat about five minutes.

To serve: Top each sopito shell with refried beans, chorizo, red onion, carrot, lettuce, cheese, sour cream and

Creativity and Tailgate Cuisine

There's no reason to limit your gamenight fare to tired buffalo wings and predictable potato salad. Try Buhl trout fillets, or roasted beets with Shoshone goat cheese.

BY KAREN BOSSICK

For the Times-News

The picnic season doesn't stop with summer's end. It just evolves into tailgate parties as Bronco lovers flock to Boise's Smurf turf and the Vandal faithful follow the black and gold to games around the region.

Without a local college team to cheer on the gridiron, Twin Falls residents have gotten creative with their tailgating. Just ask Twin Falls banker Jack Hetherington and his wife, Debbie, a partner in an insurance company. For years the two have thrown tailgate parties for three dozen or more under their RV awning at events like the Wagon Days Parade in Ketchum.

Traditionally, tailgate parties have meant predictable picnic foods like hot dogs - make that Falls Brand, in the Hetheringtons' case. And, of course, buffalo wings, chips, potato salad and brownies bathed in chocolate frosting.

But with the growing emphasis on locally grown fresh foods, there's no reason you can't dazzle your football friends with some fresh fla-

Calvin's tips: Calvin Kennison, who works at Twin Falls' Sushi Tokyo, likes to upgrade the traditional tailgating kebab by threading fruit from River's Edge Orchard in Buhl between the cubes of beef, chicken or pork.

Serve it up with a pasta salad, he suggests. Just saute scallions, sundried tomatoes and a little cayenne pepper in olive oil. Add a little chicken and bacon. Mix in alfredo sauce and top with fresh Parmesan cheese gratings and cream.

Rod Rushton of Twin Falls, who makes a living out of tailgating, says he prepares everything on the grill, including corn on the cob and Idaho Russet potatoes.

Rod's tips: Twin Falls' "Bar B Que Guy" Rod Rushton makes a living out of tailgating, taking his grill to all kinds of events around the valley since he tired of the corporate world eight years ago. "I even catered the barbecue for Allison Kraus and Union Station when they played in Sun Valley," he said.

One of his favorite things to barbecue: 10 - to 12-ounce boneless fillets raised by Idaho Trout Co. near Buhl.

CURRY, CHICKPEAS RAISE THE BAR FOR ZUCCHINI SOUP

BY STEPHANIE WITT SEDGWICK

Special to The Washington Post

When zucchini is piled high in the markets, I think soup. Almost every summer, my mom used to make a simple cold soup from zucchini and onions simmered in chicken broth, blended until chunky and finished with sour cream and dill.

For me, warm soup is more satisfying. So I've altered her recipe a little by adding chickpeas and potatoes, a combination that sends me right to the curry powder. To lighten and balance the soup, I add lemon juice and dill; a final spoonful of plain yogurt gives it

Before starting, make sure your curry powder is fresh. Curry is one of those spices that lose flavor quickly. It's best to buy it in small quantities.

Jalapeno, Cumin Give Corn Some Kick

BY STEPHANIE WITT SEDGWICK

Special to The Washington Post

Toward the end of summer, I get tired of corn on the cob. When that happens, I like to cut the cooked kernels from the cobs and make flavorful mixtures of corn, aromatic vegetables, herbs and spices.

In this case, I use jalapeno peppers and cumin to give the corn a little kick. It's enough to flavor the dish but not so much that it detracts from the sweetness of the corn. Tomatoes and cilantro round things out.

I prefer to use the corn cut from the cob, but when fresh corn isn't available, frozen corn that has been defrosted may be substituted. If you'd like to keep the dish vegetarian, water or white wine can be substituted for the chicken

Reduce the heat to medium; cook for 4 to 6 minutes, until the onions are soft. Add the cumin; mix to combine, and cook for 1 minute. Add the tomatoes; cook for 3 to 5 minutes, until the tomatoes just start to soften.

Add the broth and corn; season with pepper to taste. Cook for 5 minutes, stirring occasionally, until the corn is heated through and most of the broth has evaporated. Remove from the heat.

Add 2 tablespoons of the cilantro and mix to combine. Taste, and adjust the seasoning as desired. Serve warm, garnished with the remaining tablespoon of cilantro. Note: To peel the tomatoes, use a sharp knife to cut an "X" at the bottom of each one. Submerge in just-boiled water for less than 1 minute; the skin will start to loosen. When the tomatoes are cool enough to handle, slip off and discard the skins. FALL MARKS RETURN OF 'WINTER' SQUASH

BY ALISON LADMAN For The Associated Press

The natural sweetness of butternut squash makes it a wonderfully versatile ingredient. This spiced and baked dish, for example, can be served as a sweet side alongside a roast and the traditional fixings or topped with ice cream for a delicious (and ever so slightly virtuous) dessert.

Feel free to substitute any nuts you prefer, or leave them out entirely.

David Webster was an active YMCA member for more than 30 years and helped many others become involved in his love for running, biking, and swimming. A YMCA memorial scholarship fund was set up by his wife, Charlene, and family, to provide scholarships for young people to be able to participate in fun, healthy programs.

In April, 2011, as a result of David Webster's scholarship program, 205 local boys and girls received one week of swim lessons through the YMCA.

'I wish I had known him," said Robin Seastrom, owner of Cycle Therapy. "I keep getting emails from people about this - one said 'Anything to keep the spirit of David alive, and I think the bike ride will do that."

David Webster's respect for health wasn't limited to physical activity. He dedicated a large part of his life to improving nutrition by developing international breeding programs for new varieties of dry beans and peas. Charlene Webster said the research and advances he made during his life will resonate in the global community for years to come. "David was living an incredible life, and I want to honor my husband and his legacy in a way that is meaningful and continues to make a difference for others, by sharing who he was and what he loved."

Robin Seastrom said the ride is also to promote rider and driver responsibilty. Riders are encouraged to remember David along the way, stay safe, and enjoy the ride.

YOU CAN'T REINVENT THE BURGER; YOU CAN REMAKE IT

BY CHRISTINA REXRODE
Associated Press

NEW YORK • When Wendy's decided to remake its 42-year-old hamburger, the chain agonized over every detail. A pickle chemist was consulted. Customers were quizzed on their lettuce knowledge. And executives went on a cross-country burger-eating tour.

The result? Dave's Hot 'N Juicy, named after late Wendy's founder Dave Thomas. The burger — with extra cheese, a thicker beef patty, a buttered bun, and hold the mustard, among other changes — will be served in restaurants starting this week.

"Our food was already good," said Denny Lynch, a Wendy's spokesman. "We wanted it to be better. Isn't that what long-term brands do? They reinvent themselves."

For Wendy's Co., based in Dublin, Ohio, reinvention is critical. That's why executives at the 6,600-restaurant chain spent the past two and a half years going over burger minutiae during an undertaking they call Project Gold Hamburger. That included deciding whether to switch from white onions on its burgers to red (they did), to change the fat/lean ratio of the meat (they didn't), or to go with plain or crinkled pickles (they picked crinkled.)

Each time researchers made a tweak, they asked for feedback, visiting research firms around the country to watch through two-way mirrors as people the variations.

Wendy's chefs also tested new products at the head-quarters in Dublin. From test kitchens, they slipped new burger incarnations through little windows into a "Sensory Test Area," a white-walled room with 16 cubicles where tasting volunteers — and sometimes employees — ranked each burger.

Many suggestions sounded good but didn't pan out. They tried green-leaf lettuce, but people preferred keeping iceberg because of its crunchiness. They thought about making the tomato slices thicker but didn't want to ask franchisees to buy new slicing equipment. They even tested a round burger, a trial that was practically anathema to a company that's made its name on square burgers. (While Wendy's did not go with the round shape, it changed the patty to a "natural square" with wavy edges because tasters said the straight edges looked processed.)

Among the proposed changes were some golden nuggets. Tasters said they wanted a thicker burger, so Wendy's started packing the meat more loosely, trained cooks to press down on the patties two times instead of eight and printed "Handle Like Eggs" on the boxes that the patties were shipped in so they wouldn't get smashed. And Wendy's researchers knew that customers wanted warmer and crunchier buns, so they decided that buttering them and then toasting them was the way to go.

In the end, Wendy's changed everything but the ketchup. It switched to whole-fat mayonnaise, nixed the mustard, and cut down on the pickles and onions — all to emphasize the flavor of the beef. The chain also started storing the cheese at higher temperatures so it would melt better, a change that required federal approval.

"It's not about getting real exotic," said Lori Estrada, Wendy's senior vice president of menu innovation and packaging. "It's about making everything work."

This recipe is perfect for the end of summer when backyard gardens are bursting with cucumbers and tomatoes.

Chicken 'Steaks' Brighten Up Simple Summer Salad

BY ELIZABETH KARMEL

For The Associated Press

If I had to choose one recipe that defined summer on a plate, it would be lemon chicken steaks with summer salad.

I love making this mealin-one at the end of the summer when the farmers markets and backyard gardens are bursting with cucumbers and tomatoes. It's a great way to use all that extra produce.

The chicken "steaks" start with boneless, skinless chicken breasts that are lightly pounded until they are about 1/2-inch think. This makes the chicken cook quickly and evenly. And for all those cooks who are a little nervous about pounding the chicken, I've got a foolproof approach.

To start, remove the tenderloin from the backsides of the chicken breasts (they can be saved and used for something else). Coat the breasts with oil, then one at a time place them in a zipclose plastic bag. The oil is essential, as it will prevent the chicken from shredding as you pound it.

Close the bag, then using a rolling pin or meat pounder, pound away until the chicken breast is large and evenly flat. You can do this step up to a day ahead and keep the chicken in the refrigerator in the closed bag until you are ready to cook.

The beauty of this salad is that there is no lettuce, so the salad can be made in advance and left undressed. The base of the salad is comprised of chunks of cucumber, tomato, onions, feta cheese and black olives. You could add mushrooms or sugar snap peas or radishes, anything you like or you need to use up.

It's best to do the chopping and mixing before you grill the chicken, as it won't take long on the grill and you'll want to serve the chicken soon after it cooks.

I prefer using an outdoor grill because there is virtually nothing to clean, but you also can use a grill pan. The chicken is grilled with a light coat of olive oil and seasoned simply with kosher salt and pepper.

And the real magic happens when the grilling is done. As soon as the chicken comes off the grill, you squeeze fresh lemon juice over both sides. The hot chicken absorbs the lemon juice as it rests and you cannot believe the difference it makes! The chicken sparkles like a star and takes this summer salad from simple to spectacular!

Wait five minutes and place a chicken "steak" on top of the salad and serve with a dollop of tzatziki (garlic-cucumber yogurt dressing).

Lemon Chicken 'Steaks' with Summer Salad and Tzatziki

The tzatziki can be made up to three days in advance. The flavors intensify and taste better once they've had a chance to meld. The recipe will make about 2 cups and you will have leftovers. It also makes a delicious dip and sandwich spread. The chicken also is good served on top of a Greek salad with a spicy oregano vinaigrette. Start to finish: 45 minutes. Servings: 4.

For the salad:

4 medium fully ripe tomatoes, cut into wedges 1 cucumber, peeled and cut into 1/2-inch chunks 1 small red onion, halved and sliced into semicircle rings

20 oil-cured black olives, more or less to taste Kosher salt and ground black pepper

Joseph Reed Crystal June 21, 1921-Sept. 19, 2011

HEYBURN • Joseph Reed Crystal, age 90, of Heyburn, left this beautiful world to join his beautiful wife and loving daughter in heaven Monday, Sept. 19,

Reed was born June 21, 1921, in Garfield, Idaho, to David Ray and Ivy Jensen Crystal. He was the sixth son out of nine boys and one daughter. Reed went to school in Ucon and graduated from Ucon High School in 1939. He served as a missionary in the Northwest States Mission for the LDS Church. Following his release as a missionary, World War II was in full force; however, Reed did not have to serve.

He met the love of his life, Roba Jardine, in March of 1944. They dated and were married Nov. 20, 1944, in the Salt Lake LDS Temple. They lived in Grant, Idaho, for the first couple of years, where Reed worked for Wayne DeBell. In 1952, he and Roba moved to Acequia and farmed on the Northside, where they removed sagebrush and cleaned the land. They later moved to Hansen, where they farmed and milked cows and made lifelong friends. In 1955, they moved back to Rupert and Reed drove back and forth to the farm. In 1956, they relocated to the farm at 500 W. 1100 N. of Paul, where they farmed for 26 years. Together, they raised six wonderful but somewhat crazy children. In 1980, they moved to Buhl and continued farming for the next 10 years. They always made friends wherever they lived.

Reed and Roba served in the Washington Seattle LDS Mission from 1990 until 1991. They then returned to Paul, residing in the Mini-Cassia area. During his retirement years, Reed opened a carpet cleaning business and worked many, many long and hard hours. He loved people and always talked to everyone. There was never a stranger that did not end up his friend.

He served in the LDS Church throughout his life. He was a counselor in several bishoprics, bishop, high councilor, worked in the Young Men's organization and gave countless hours of compassionate and oftentimes anonymous service for whatever reason. He also served in the Boy Scouts of America and had received the Silver Beaver Award. He loved life and found beauty everywhere he went.

Glenn E. Hall

Oct. 24, 1961-Sept. 18, 2011

WENDELL • Glenn E. Hall, 49, of Wendell, Idaho, passed away peacefully at home surrounded by his wife, children and grandchildren Sunday, Sept. 18, 2011. He valiantly fought a rare, aggressive cancer called alveolar rhabdomyosarco.

Glenn was born

Oct. 24, 1961, in Jerome, Idaho, to Glenn C. and Janet Louise Hall. Glenn attended Harrison Elementary and Robert Stuart Junior High and graduated from Twin Falls High School in 1980. Glenn married the love of his life, Susan Galley, on Aug. 21, 1981, in Twin Falls, Idaho. For 33 years, they were devoted partners, lovers and best friends. Glenn and Susan made their home in Kimberly, Idaho, where they raised their three children and lived for 23 years. Glenn believed in hard work and, for the last 20 years, he worked for G2B Concrete Pumping. He worked in the Wood River Valley and surrounding areas. He was well known and respected by his peers. He pumped concrete at schools, hospitals and the homes of several "movie stars." He was especially proud of pumping the concrete for the baptismal font of the Twin Falls Temple. Glenn loved the outdoors. His family spent many summers camping and boating at Pine, Idaho. He enjoyed hunting and fishing with his sons. Many mem-will cherish forever. Glenn was baptized a member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in 1998. He loved teaching Primary and working with the Scouts. The gospel changed his life for the better. His marriage was solemnized in the Boise Temple and made his family a "forever family."

ories were made that we

The family moved to Wendell in 2007, where he started his love of gardening and canning. At the time of his death, he was serving as the first counselor in the bishopric. Glenn was a devoted husband, father and grandfather. He was always willing to help others and could fix anything!

He is survived by his wife, Susan of Wendell; mother-in-law, Linda Galley of Wendell; sons, Weston (Andrea) Hall and their children, Alexis and Blake of Twin Falls, and Tylor Hall of Wendell; daughter, Tangela (Jon) Jensen and their children, Jayden and Jazlynn of Gooding; and his beloved dachshunds, Jingle Bell,

He is also survived by his mother and stepfather, Janet and Al Herman of Twin Falls; sisters, Tonette (Gary) Bohrn of Hansen, Yvonne (Fernando) Aguilar of Kennewick, Wash., Tawna (Mike) Hampton of Glenns Ferry and Alberta (Tim) Hinton of Twin Falls; brother, Rod (Laurie) Hall of Kimberly; and extended family. He was preceded in death by his father, Glenn C. Hall; stepmother, LeAnn Hall; stepfather, Ray Otterstetter; and father-in-law, Robert W. Galley.

Glenn's family wishes to thank his special friends, Jim Smallwood of Ocean Springs, Miss., and Todd and Kathy Coumerilh of Boise, who were a loving support during his illness and treatment; his G2B family, ward family and community members for their kindness and generosity; and Dr. John Gamboa, Dr. Dan Zuckerman, Dr. Paul Montalbano, Dr. Matthew Schwarz, Dr. John Gies and Dr. Mark Spencer for the care they gave to Glenn.

He will always be loved and missed until we meet again.

In lieu of flowers, the family suggests donations to the Glenn E. Hall Memorial Donation Account No. 4923 at Wells Fargo.

A visitation will be held Friday evening, Sept. 23, at the Wendell LDS Church, 605 N. Pac-12 Puts Brakes On Further Expansion

ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN FRANCISCO • The Pac-12 Conference is just dandy at a dozen.

The league's presidents and chancellors voted late Tuesday night to reaffirm their decision to stay at 12 members. While Commissioner Larry Scott called some proposals "financially attractive," there was overwhelming support from member schools to hold off on further expan-

At least for the foreseeable future. "After careful review we have determined that it is in the best interests of our member institutions, student-athletes and fans to remain a 12-team conference," Scott said. "While we have great respect for all of the institutions that have contacted us, and certain expansion proposals were financially attractive, we have a strong conference structure and culture of equality that we are committed to preserve."

The primarily West Coast league will remain just that.

Unless Texas dropped its exclusive rights to the Longhorn Network and agreed to an equal-revenue sharing plan that the league adopted this year, there simply wasn't enough money to generate support from Pac-12 officials. Not to mention the long distances, travel costs and regional rivalries that such a megaconference would create.

Scott entertained the idea of a 16team conference a year ago but backed off when Texas turned him

The Pac-10, as it was known then, decided to add Utah from the Mountain West and Colorado from the Big 12. The move allowed the conference to hold a league championship game which it will do for the first time this year — and generate more leverage in upcoming television negotia-

Scott negotiated a landmark 12year television contract this summer with Fox and ESPN worth about $3 billion. While that deal could have been amended with new members, it clearly wasn't good enough to convince the league to expand again.

Scott had publicly maintained for weeks that, unlike last year, the league wasn't seeking new members but would listen to proposals.

We haven't spent one minute thinking about going further, that's not our desire," Scott said in Tempe, Ariz., before the Arizona State-Missouri game Sept. 9.

Kramer: I Thought We Could Start Fast

But Idaho State coach is quick to point out that Bengals' two wins haven't come against quality opposition, either.

"Did you expect to be 2-1 after your first three games?"

The wheels where turning in his mind. Should he be diplomatic? Should he evade the question?

Instead, he chose the path that he's known for. "I'll be honest with you ... yes I did think we'd be in this position."

Some might find that borderline arrogant. Not Kramer, because he's been in this position before. "I've rebuilt two high schools that never won, I helped bring Montana State back, and I knew that I and my staff could do it here at

The Bengals are 2-1 for the first time in years, having already matched their combined win total for the past two

The Indians (5-2-3, 4-1-2 HDC) led 3-2 at the break on the strength of two goals from Juan Perez and a third from Gustavo Magana, but the wheels came off in the second half when Magana was shown two yellow cards for dissent in a short span. While the two bookings didn't force Buhl to play a player short, it did relegate one of its most influential players to the bench for the remainder of the game. From there, Gooding (2-2-3, 2-2-3) as-serted itself while Buhl lost its collective composure.

Mendes converted his second penalty kick of the match, sandwiched around a deft header past the onrushing keeper. Then a deflected shot fell kindly to Sarabia, who ripped it into the net 16 minutes from time to hand Buhl its first conference setback and open the door for

RIVERHAWKS CLOG NET IN WIN VS. BURLEY

BY RYAN HOWE

rhowe@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • It seemed like Burley's hitters would have had better luck against a brick wall on Tuesday night.

Led by Keri Schwarz and Emma Stephens, Canyon Ridge tallied 21 blocks in a four-game victory over Burley.

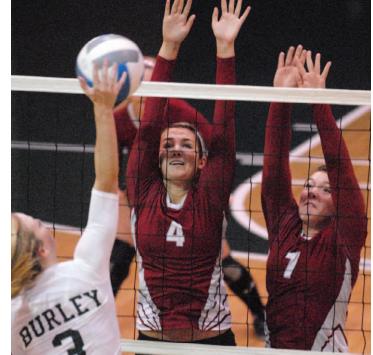

"Blocks are easy points," said Riverhawks coach Stacy Boer, whose team improved to 3-0 in the Great Basin Conference (12-14 overall).

Besides tracking the ball well at the net, Canyon Ridge was efficient offensively, led by setter Kylee Denney's 29 assists and Schwarz's 13 kills. Lauren Shotwell tallied 15 digs.

"We've seen a lot from our team, from when we started two years ago to now, it's amazing what we've come through," said Crawford. "We're learning to fight and actually win ballgames?

The Riverhawks, who won 25-18, 26-28, 25-18, 25-23, remain unbeaten in conference play, which doesn't surprise the team's seven seniors.

"With how hard we've been working, it's not a surprise. It's different, but it's not a surprise," said Alexis Crawford, who had seven kills. "We deserve to win with how hard we've been working."

out with a bang."

Burley (3-7 overall, 0-3 GBC) got 25 assists from Delta Jones and 13 digs from Chelsee Baker. Allison Hepworth had six kills and five blocks, and Stephanie McGill added seven kills. An injury to middle blocker Brooke Bowers forced the Bobcats to switch up their rotation, but Emily Wright stepped up admirably with 10 kills and four blocks.

"More than anything it's hurting us mentally because Brooke is a big energy on the court," said Burley coach Tiffany Green, who also praised Wright's play. "Canyon Ridge had some great blocks up front and some great defense behind them. Our kids were swinging hard, playing aggressive and the balls just weren't falling where they needed to be?

Lexi Thompson's victory at the Navistar LPGA Classic hasn't given her any grand ideas about playing against men. Instead, she's content to earn full-time privledges playing against her peers.

Earning LPGA Card is Lexi's Next Goal

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Golf's latest female phenom has no interest in teeing it up with the guys.

Being able to play fulltime on the LPGA Tour is challenge enough for Lexi Thompson.

Two days after becoming the youngest winner on the LPGA Tour, the 16-year-old said she plans to petition for an exemption to the tour's 18-year-old age requirement. That comes as no surprise to LPGA commissioner Mike Whan, who said he will consider any petition from Thompson when he returns from the Solheim Cup, which begins Friday in Ireland.

"I'm not going to be playing on the men's tour," Thompson said Tuesday when asked if she'd consider playing any PGA Tour events, as Michelle Wie did before she joined the LPGA Tour full-time. "I really just want to focus on women's golf. They're so good out here. You have to shoot 20 under every week to win."

Or close to it. Thompson shot 17 under to win the Navistar LPGA Classic last weekend, making her the tour's youngest champion by more than two years.

In the 15 months since she turned professional, Thompson has played 14 events, had three top-10 finishes and earned more than $500,000. She also is the youngest player to qualify for the U.S. Open, as a 12-year-old in 2007.

"I think they should give her full (membership)," seven-time major champion Juli Inkster said after Thompson's victory. "It's kind of silly, isn't it? I think it makes us (the LP-GA) look bad, too. Now, you have to go to qualifying school? To me, that's silly."

The LPGA Tour's age limit is designed to protect players both emotionally and developmentally. Golf isn't gymnastics or figure skating, where turning 21 gets you an AARP card. With most female players playing their best golf in their 20s and 30s, there's no sense in a teenager rushing to get onto the tour — especially if it might come at the expense of other parts of her life.

But Whan recognizes there are exceptions.

"I look forward to reading (Thompson's) petition and we'll figure it out from there," Whan said. "But it's obviously an incredible win. ... Lexi shows us that 16 years of age isn't just the time to get your driver's license."

MWC Not Standing Still

DENVER • The Mountain West Conference has started informal conversations with universities that might be left out in the shake-up of the college football landscape.

In addition to the league's talks with schools from the Big 12 and Big East that might be excluded in conference realignment, Mountain West commissioner Craig Thompson has had conversations with Conference USA commissioner Britton Banowsky about a football merger.

Such a union would create a super-conference with at least 22 teams in two divisions stretching from Hawaii to the East Coast.

"You don't want to be left standing in a position that doesn't best drive you," Thompson told The Associated Press on Tuesday. "You just want to put your membership in the best light possible. If that includes adding people, if that includes the creative consolidation conversation with Conference USA – you just want to be building the best stage for your members."

The Mountain West added Boise State this year and next year will bring in Hawaii (in football only), Nevada and Fresno State.

Gooding Continued from S1

the Community School to take over the conference

"I just saw it bounce to me and hit it as hard as I could. Didn't aim or anything, just shot it," said Sarabia, playing in defense for the first time. "We knew that (Magana) is a great player, so when he had to sit on the bench we used it to our advantage?

Gooding improved to 12 points in the conference, with four matches left to play, starting with a trip to Declo on Thursday. Buhl sits on 14, heading to Filer on the back of back-to-back defeats.

The Indians will play their rivals on Thursday without another of their captains, Pablo Serrano, who was ejected in the dying minutes, also for dis-

"I haven't seen something like this from these guys before, so I don't think it'll be a problem going forward," said Buhl coach Bill Fields. "We've just got to remember that it's not the end of the world, it's just a loss. And with the district tournament coming, a loss now doesn't mean anything."

Flagstaff to play Northern Arizona, a team they haven't beaten on the road since 1984, but for now the arrow is pointing upwards.

"I've gotten congratulations from teachers and students here around the university," he said. "I knew the culture would change here if we could just have some success. I watched every play from every game ISU played last season and the fact is that this team had lost their identity on offense. They didn't know what they wanted to do. But with our great offensive coordinator Don Bailey, who was with me at Montana State, now we're starting to get an identity And they are getting fans back too.

The club is averaging 7,000 fans for the two home games.

But it's not a finished product, not by a long shot. "You can see that guys are starting to climb over each other on defense to get to the ballcarrier; our receivers are coming together as a unit. This team isn't as good as it's going to be in November," said Kramer.

If that's the case then a lot of defensive staffs around the Big Sky are going to be spending a lot of time trying to figure out a way to stop the Bengals if they can.

Yost attempted 68 passes Saturday, and as a team ISU had 77 attempts. Yost was kiddingly asked how he'd feel about throwing 100 times in a single game. "That'd be great." he said. "I'd have no trouble doing that as long as we win the game."

That Idaho State is now actually winning some games shows how far the program has come in such a short time. The future could be brighter than even the biggest optimists dreamed when Kramer was hired. However it plays out, these aren't the same old Idaho State Bengals any-

More than 41,000 women and children filled Sukru Saracoglu Stadium to watch Fenerbahce play against Manisapor on Tuesday. Turkey came up with a radical solution for tackling crowd violence at football matches - ban the men and let only women and children in.

Man Ban: Turkish League Permits Only Kids, Women at Game

ANKARA, Turkey • Turkey tried a new approach to curbing crowd violence at soccer games - kick out all the men but let women and children attend for free.

Under new rules approved by Turkey's soccer association, only women and children under 12 will be admitted to games involving teams sanctioned for unruly fan behavior.

On Tuesday, Fenerbahce handed out free tickets and more than 41,000 women and children attended the game against Manisaspor in Istanbul. Women formed long lines around Sukru Saracoglu stadium, some carrying babies in the team's colors, for an opportunity to watch the club.

Before the game, Fenerbahce and Manisaspor players tossed flowers at the fans. The visiting team was greeted with applause, instead of the usual jeering, the Anatolia news agency reported. "This memory will stay with me forever," Fenerbahce captain Alex de Sousa said. "It's not always that you see so many women and children in one game." Manisaspor midfielder Omer Aysan added: "It was such a fun and pleasant atmosphere." The fans were searched by female police officers. "This really is a historic day," Yasemin Mercil, a female member of Fenerbahce's executive board, said before the game. "For the first time in the world, only women and children will watch a game. The women know all the chants. The same anthems, the same chants will be sung." In July, Fenerbahce was ordered to play two home games without spectators after its fans stormed the field during an exhibition game against Ukrainian champion Shakhtar Donetsk. Fans also attacked journalists for what they regarded as critical coverage of a match-fixing investigation involving the league champion.

This week, the federation changed its rules to allow women and children at the Fenerbahce President Aziz Yildirim is among 30 suspects detained in the matchfixing case, and the club faces the threat of being stripped of its title and possible relegation. It also lost its chance to play in the Champions League this season. Some women showed support for Yildirim, wearing T-shirts emblazoned with his photograph.

"We have to thank the ladies for coming to support us," Fenerbahce defender Joseph Yobo told Lig TV. "It's difficult playing without the fans."

McKinley Remembered Fondly

ASSOCIATED PRESS

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. • The empty locker that served as a shrine is now filled with another player's belongings. Gone are the No. 11 helmet decals that his Denver Broncos teammates wore in Kenny McKinley's honor after he committed suicide last year.

The reminders that remain are a few photos in the locker room and the memories of an infectious smile that hid so much pain.

Tuesday marked the oneyear anniversary of McKinley's death.

Broncos linebacker Wesley Woodyard said McKinley's former teammates were remembering his gregarious personality and not the circumstances of his

"That's the only thing that everybody remembers: his big smile. He showed all 32 of his teeth," Woodyard said. "So, it was just a wonderful thing to be around every day, seeing that smile, listening to that laugh, hearing those jokes. It was pretty good to have him around."

The second-year wide receiver from South Carolina was recovering from a second knee operation in eight months and was deep in debt, according to a probe of his death, when he put a gun to his head at his home not far from the Broncos' training complex and ended his life at age 23.

It was the third time in four years the Broncos had to deal with the stunning death of a teammate.

Cornerback Darrent Williams, 24, died in a hail of gunfire in the early morning hours of New Year's Day 2007 after a confrontation between Broncos players and gang members at a nightclub. Three months later, running back Damien Nash, 24, collapsed and died of a heart attack after he played in a charity basketball game to raise funds for his heart foundation.

McKinley's death cast a pall over the Broncos, who left his locker empty all of last season.

Nobody wears his No. 11 jersey right now and his locker has been assigned to another young receiver.

Reminders of him are everywhere, however.

"Every day I walk by Matt Prater's locker and I see Kenny's picture up there," Woodyard said. "We always miss him and his laughter and the joy that he brought, and it's just a sad thing that he's not here with us anymore. But I know he's here in spirit." As he is in Columbia, S.C., where McKinley remains the Gamecocks' all-time leading receiver.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Kenny McKinley's smile, as shown during training camp in 2009, is the everlasting memory his former Broncos teammates have of the wide receiver.

"We still talk about him every now and then, when we're running slants. I tell them, 'Here's how Kenny McKinley did it? Gamecocks coach Steve Spurrier said. "And I don't remember him ever being covered. He got open every time because he had that little quick step that got him open and we're trying to teach our guys how to run that also. We remember Kenny and he was an outstanding player here, no question?

This was a somber but not sad anniversary at the Broncos' headquarters.

Woodyard said the players who remain on the roster from McKinley's one season in 2009 or who played in Denver last season - he reinjured his knee during the first week of training camp are always recalling something funny that McKinley said or did.

"We always think about him," Woodyard said Monday. "Kenny was the type of guy that always wanted to make sure that everybody had a good day. So, every day you come to work, that's the kind of attitude you have to have. You've got to take Kenny McKinley's attitude: have fun and enjoy your work.

"That's something that we have to make sure we do every day to uplift his spirit."

Broncos Sign Cosby To Bolster Returns

ASSOCIATED PRESS

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. -The Denver Broncos bolstered their beleaguered wide receiving corps Tuesday by signing free agent Quan Cosby.

The third-year pro from the University of Texas spent the last two seasons with the Cincinnati Bengals.

He'll also reinforce Denver's return game, which was depleted when receiver/returner Eddie Royal (groin) was injured Sunday in a game against the Bengals. The Broncos went into their game with just three receivers because All-Pro Brandon Lloyd (groin) and Demarvius Thomas (Achilles) were sidelined. They had been expecting Lloyd to be available after practicing Friday but he wasn't quite ready.

That meant rookie tight end Julius Thomas was the emergency receiver, but he went down with a high ankle sprain on Denver's first drive, and when Royal pulled up lame on a sideline route in the second quarter, the Broncos were forced to use third-string quarterback Tim Tebow as a slot receiver in some sets.

With so many receivers down, second-year wide receiver Eric Decker, who had a 90-yard punt return for a touchdown in the opener against Oakland, caught nine passes for 113 yards and two touchdowns in his first career start. He had a fair catch in his only punt return after Royal's injury. Cosby's addition might allow Decker to focus solely on his offensive role starting Sunday at Tennessee, especially if Lloyd is limited.

Although he has just six catches for 71 yards in 32 NFL games, Cosby's 70 punt returns from 2009-10 were the second-most in the league. He led the NFL with 474 punt return yards in '09.

"Oh mighty love! Man is one world, and hath Another to attend him." — George Herbert

Every two years the World Junior Pairs are held in Europe. Today's deal from this event 15 years ago features Boye Brogeland, now generally regarded as one of the world's top players.

After a typically aggressive junior-style pre-empt by West, North and South were goaded into three no-trump, when they would probably have stopped in two hearts if left to their own devices.

Brogeland would have been very poorly placed on a diamond lead, but who leads his own suit nowadays? The spade eight traveled around to declarer's jack, and Boye led a heart to dummy's 10 and East's jack. Back came the club queen, and when it held the trick, this was the defense's last chance to play a diamond through. Alas for the defenders, East cleared the clubs by leading ace and another club, and now an avalanche of hearts finished the defense off. In the four-card ending, East had to keep one club and two spades, and thus only one diamond, so was squeezed out of his second diamond, which was the only suit in which the defense had any communications.

Brogeland now cashed the diamond ace and exited with a club, throwing East on lead for a spade play away from the king for declarer's ninth trick. (Notice that Brogeland cannot make the contract if he takes the first club. The same squeeze does not work if East has retained two club guards, since he can pitch a club and keep both his diamonds in the ending.)

By Bil Keane

Today's Highlight: On Sept. 21, 1897, the New York Sun ran its famous editorial, written anonymously by Francis P. Church, that responded to a letter from 8-year-old Virginia O'Hanlon asking whether Santa Claus really existed. Church wrote, "Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus. He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to your life its highest beauty and joy."

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1893, one of America's first horseless carriages was taken for a short test drive in Springfield, Mass., by Frank Duryea, who had designed the vehicle with his brother, Charles.

In 1937, "The Hobbit," by J.R.R. Tolkien, was first published.

In 1938, a hurricane struck parts of New York and New England, causing widespread damage and claiming some 700 lives.

In 1948, Milton Berle made his debut as permanent host of "The Texaco Star Theater" on NBC-TV.

In 1961, the first Boeing CH-47 Chinook military helicopter made its first hovering flight.

In 1970, "NFL Monday Night Football" made its debut on ABC-TV as the Cleveland Browns defeated the visiting New York Jets, 31-21.

In 1981, the Senate unanimously confirmed the nomination of Sandra Day O'Connor to become the first female justice on the Supreme Court. Belize attained full independence from Britain.

In 1989, Hurricane Hugo crashed into Charleston, S.C. Twenty-one students in Alton, Texas, died when their school bus, involved in a collision with a soft-drink delivery truck, careened into a water-filled pit.

In 1991, an 18-hour hostage drama ended in Sandy, Utah, as Richard L. Worthington, who'd killed a nurse and seized control of a hospital maternity ward, finally freed nine captives, including a baby who was born during the siege. (wortnington committed suicide in prison in 1993.) Armenians voted overwhelmingly to declare their independence from the Soviet Union.

Ten years ago: Congress again opened the federal coffers to those harmed by terrorism, providing $15 billion to the airline industry, which was suffering mounting economic losses since the Sept. 11 attacks. Hollywood's finest paid tribute to real-life heroes during a telethon for victims of the terrorist attacks that was carried on more than 30 networks.

Five years ago: The White House and rebellious Senate Republicans announced agreement on rules for the interrogation and trial of suspects in the war on terror. Space shuttle Atlantis and its six astronauts safely returned from a 12-day mission to install a big new piece of the orbiting outpost. The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention announced it would recommend all Americans ages 13 to 64 be routinely tested for HIV. One year ago: The mayor and ex-city manager of the Los Angeles suburb of Bell were among eight current and former city officials arrested in a corruption scandal that authorities said cost the blue-collar city more than $5.5 million in excessive salaries and illegal personal loans. Two men filed a lawsuit accusing Atlanta megachurch pastor Bishop Eddie Long of coercing them into sexual relationships when they were teenage members of his congregation. (Long, who denied the allegations, later reached out-of-court settlements with them and two other men.)

DEAR ABBY: When I was in middle school. I was pretty much an outcast. In the summer between eighth grade and high school, I read a Dear Abby column where you offered advice to someone who was shy like me. You recommended that the writer smile and greet people every day. You also published a booklet to help us to be more outgoing.

When I got to high school, I took your advice. Your column changed my life. During my senior year I became involved in drama, choir and sports, and I was elected student body president.

I am now a mom with two children. I hold a master's degree and have a wide array of friends all over the world. I am a public speaker, poet and actor — all bacause you wrote to someone like me and told that person how to make friends.

Recently a friend and I were discussing that column, and he said, "I wish I had seen it!" Abby, please repeat those words and let people know if the booklet is still available. Folks of all ages need that message of friendship and guidance. Thank you for the impact it has had on my life.

- RENEE IN WASHINGTON

DEAR ${f A}$ BBY Jeanne Phillips

DEAR RENEE: pleased that my column was so helpful for you at a time when you needed it. I think I know the column you mentioned. The reply echoed advice that's in my booklet "How to Be Popular." It said: "No matter what you wear, the expression on your face is your greatest asset - or liability. Would you want to strike up a conversation with someone who looks like he (or she) is mad at the world? Well, neither would anyone else. So, if you're wearing a perpetual frown, get rid of it. Trade it for a smile.

"You can walk down the street in any foreign country in the world, and even though you may not be able to understand a word they're saying, when you see a smile, you get a message. It's the universal way of saying, 'I'm friendly.'

"I'm not suggesting you go around with a perpetual phony grin pasted on your face, but try to develop the habit of looking cheerful, pleasant and happy. It attracts."

"How to Be Popular" was written in response to many thousands of letters from readers over the years who are not naturally socially assertive, and others who have asked for guidance on where and how to meet nice people like themselves, what to say or not to say, and how to be the kind of person others will find interesting, attractive and worth knowing better, and can be ordered by sending your name and address, plus check or money order for $6 (U.S. funds) to Dear Abby Popularity Booklet. P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, IL 61054-0447. Shipping and handling are included in the price. Another important observation from the booklet that wasn't in the column you saw is, "There are two kinds of people - those who come into a room and their attitude says, 'Here I am!' and those who come into a room and their attitude is, 'There you are!'

"The 'there-you-are' type is the winner. If you want to receive a warm welcome, remember the happier you are to see others, the happier they'll be to see you."

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each

IF SEPTEMBER 21 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You possess the right skill set at the right time — and if you are alert, you can parlay this into career success or recognition in the next several weeks. If you have been carrying around a chip on your shoulder, you will find it falls off as you relax into a state of contentment this winter. Better health and a more youthful outlook help you enjoy life to the fullest. Next June might find you at a crossroads when you can take the high road or the low road, so get sound advice from trusted advisors. Opportunities for success can be blocked by past transgressions that come to the forefront.

HOROSCOPE Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): The seasons turn and you might sense that a change is taking place. If you don't have the heart or the energy to pursue a dream, it probably wasn't worth it in the first place.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A stitch in time saves nine. Although you may consider someone or something to be a thorn in your side now, you may be thankful that the aggravation made you pay attention before it was too late.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Make a dazzling difference. Discussions are upbeat, but perhaps futile, as romantic partners might misunderstand you. By setting a good example in silence, you might persuade someone to follow your lead.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Pay attention to survival instincts. You may be searching for a silver bullet that will solve everything. The truth is that you have been a bit confused about priorities. Act like the fittest to survive.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): When change is in the air, it is a good idea to take a deep breath. Altruistic ideals might not be helpful in the real world. Focus on making financial dreams come true through hard work, not investments.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The middle of the week presages the joy of the upcoming weekend. Make it to the end of Wednesday and you can start to taste the fun ahead. Don't sign business contracts or financial agreements now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A think tank sinks in the waves of political expediency. Frustrations or clashes with others may make you very aware of what needs to be done to correct a problem, but you need more time to do it properly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Passion's peak has a slippery slope. You may feel that sacrifice is necessary or that you need assistance. but it is likely that someone is trying to sensationalize a situation. The less said the better.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Daydreamers dance to a different drumbeat. Write down ideas that pop into your head or dreams that disturb your sleep. Focus on creative endeavors, but don't sign agreements or contracts.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You cannot please all of the people all of the time. You could shift the family between demands and job or career requirements. Don't make changes now — even if you see a solution.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): It is time to put a saddle on your inspirations and take them for a ride. Explore romantic feelings or creative ideas. You may have mixed emotions about a new set of goals, so wait to make a commitment.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You know that it takes more than facts and figures to get a point across. Right now, you have a good chance to let your voice be heard and to influence others, as long as the subject isn't related to business.

Nampa Circus Promises Nonstop Fun This Year

BY MICHAEL DEEDS

Idaho Statesman

NAMPA • Jason Gibson, who describes himself as a 41year-old kid, has fond memories of his grandmother taking him and his brother to the

They would arrive excitedly, find their seats, then patiently wait for the action to

Times have changed.

Instead of just finding your seat next week at the Idaho Center, you'd better hold on-

The Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey's "Zing Zang Zoom" – a one-ring, as opposed to traditional threering, circus — intensifies the live entertainment, Gibson

If it's anything like his energy level during this phone interview — Gibson is the production manager of the tour, known as the Gold Edition — it probably will blow some hair back.

"I just totally love the onering concept," he declares enthusiastically. "Make sure you get your cotton candy and snow cones before the show begins, because if you step away, you're definitely going to miss something. The pacing of our show is so quick, it's amazing."

Amazing is a modest word for an event that dubs itself "the greatest show on Earth" and features acts such as: 1) Viktoriya and Widny, who will terrify beauticians by hanging from their hair while 35 feet in the air ("Ouch! Ouch!" Gibson says); and 2) the Urias Family, who race motorcycles at breakneck speeds inside a 16-foot-wide steel globe. (That's been Gibson's favorite act since he was a kid.)

It's been three years since Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey last visited Treasure Valley. Among the hierarchy of touring circuses that stop here, this definitely is the top

But that's not just because of the performance level of the 30 performers and 70 traveling staff, a multinational "family" who travel between 25,000 and 30,000 miles per year.

This circus simply has found ways to stay compelling, even in a short-attention-span world.

VIP seats put you 12 feet from the ring. But even if your seat is further away, there is plenty of opportunity to see – even meet – the performers up close.

An hour before showtime, you can go to the arena floor and join an all-star party pre-

Kids can learn to juggle, walk a low wire, even get a free clown nose and temporary tattoos. Duchess, one of three elephants in the show, is brought into the ring and makes a giant paintfootprint on canvas. Some lucky person gets to take that home.

"All these things for free. With our economy, when people want more bang for their buck, it's right here!" Gibson says with a laugh. "It's my favorite part, because I'm watching the children, and they get to have that personal connection with our performers.

"So when the show is actually going, they can be, 'Wait, I know that person!' You can hear the kids cheering for some of the performers they met at the pre-

Meeting Discusses Sandpoint Trail

BONNER COUNTY DAILY BEE

SANDPOINT • No one disputes whether the proposed Pend d'Oreille Bay Trail would be an asset. Whether it is the right time for such a purchase was the purpose of Tuesday's special Sandpoint City Council meeting.

"Everyone thinks the Pend d'Oreille Bay Trail is the best thing in the world," Sandpoint Mayor Gretchen Hellar said ahead of the meeting. "The real question is whether this proposal is the best option."

The proposal calls for Sandpoint to purchase two of the four lots that make up the proposed trail. The city would buy the first parcel in the first year and the second parcel in the second year for $400,000 each. In the third year, the proposal calls for the city of Ponderay to buy the third parcel for $400,000.

Finally, the Friends of the Pend d'Oreille trail have committed to raising $370,000 to purchase the final parcel in the fourth

Hellar said she called the special meeting to allow the public and the council to discuss the proposal.

She hoped the meeting would allow all sides to discuss the merits of the proposal. Hellar said she is concerned that those who question whether it is the right time and the right plan are automatically assumed to be anti-trail.

Fire Crews To Burn Two Homes in Boise

IDAHO STATESMAN

BOISE • The Ada County Highway District will burn two structures this week and allow local firefighters to

A structure at 866 N. Rose St. in north Boise will burn Wednesday. On Friday, crews will burn a structure at 4811 W. Alamosa St.

The Boise Fire Department will perform the controlled burns of both residential structures owned by ACHD. Crews will stay on-site until they are fully burned and all fire is extinguished.

ACHD buys properties only when needed for a road improvement project and does so under specific conditions. The ACHD-owned structure on Rose Street is being removed in preparation for the 30th Street Extension project between Fairview Avenue and State Street, planned for construction in fall 2012, a release said. Surplus structures such as the Alamosa property are often removed when they are not cost-effective to repair
