

Panel Agrees on Political Map ... 17 Days Late

Secretary of State Ben Ysursa says the disbanded redistricting commission’s plan carries no extra weight as its replacement prepares to tackle the work the first panel left unfinished.

BY BEN BOTKIN
bbotkin@magicvalley.com

When the new commission tasked with redrawing Idaho’s legislative and congressional boundaries goes to work Wednesday, its members will have 83 plans to consider.

Among those plans will be the one that took the state’s original redistricting commission 107 days to agree upon. The only problem: That commission had only 90 days to complete its work.

Members of that now-defunct redistricting commission announced Friday that they’d agreed to a plan, but its fate is uncertain, since its approval came 17 days after the commission adjourned and disbanded Sept. 6. This week, the new commission will try to succeed where its predecessor failed by drawing up a new district plan that reflects changes in Idaho’s population

T.F. Council Increases Fees for Water, Sewer and Trash

bbotkin@magicvalley.com

The Twin Falls City Council approved a package of increases to water, sewer and sanitation rates Monday that will cost each household an average of $4.42 more per month.

That’s a 6.67 percent increase to the average monthly bill of $65.62 for those city services combined. The council spent more than two hours talking with city staff, hearing from residents who raised objections and debating the issues.

“Do I eat or do I pay my water bill?” said Pete Johnston, one of several seniors who raised concerns about footing the increases on a fixed income. “It makes it a little rough.”

In the end, the council went with the recommendations of staff, with the exception of the garbage collection increase. The council voted 5-2 to increase water and sewer rates, with Councilmen Trip Craig and Will Kezele opposed.

Acting on a motion from Councilman Lance Clow, the council pared down a proposed $3 monthly increase for garbage collection to $1.37. Clow said that city reserves could offset the other costs from recycling for the upcoming year. That motion passed 6-1, with Councilman David Johnson opposed.

WATER

Water costs will increase by 5 percent, or 47 cents more for the base rate and an additional $1.18 for each 1,000 gallons used above 2,000 gallons per month. City officials say declining water revenues created a $400,000 shortfall.

SEWER

Sewer costs will increase by 8 percent, or $1.40 more per month for average users. The city estimated a nearly $585,000 sewer shortfall, mainly due to a decline in revenue from industrial users.

TRASH

Costs will increase by $1.37 per month, to $16.34 per household. The increase will help offset city costs for its new recycling program, which it’s currently subsidizing. City staff recommended a $3 increase.

Xavier Board Says New Principal Should Be Fired

T.F. School will form an independent panel to determine Bomgardner’s fate, much like it did with fired Principal Fulcher earlier this year.

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

Xavier Charter School’s board is suggesting the Twin Falls school’s principal be fired only months after he started.

After holding a closed session during its Thursday meeting, the board voted to recommend the termination of Principal Everett Bomgardner because of “multiple violations of policies and procedures.”

The board also voted to extend his leave through Oct. 21. In an e-mail sent to parents, the board indicated hope that the “matter would be resolved by this date.”

Bomgardner was placed on paid administrative leave — originally scheduled to end Friday — earlier this month.

Judge Sets Bond, Next Date in Hostage Case

Edward Hanes, accused of holding an ex-girlfriend at gunpoint Sunday morning, faces five felony charges.

BY BRADLEY GUIRE
bguire@magicvalley.com

The man accused of taking an ex-girlfriend hostage Sunday morning in Twin Falls made his first court appearance Monday, when a judge set bond and a future court date on five felony charges.

Edward Hanes, 35, is charged with aggravated assault, second-degree kidnapping, burglary and two counts of grand theft. Twin Falls County 5th District Magistrate Judge Roger Harris set an Oct. 7 preliminary hearing for Hanes, who is held at Twin Falls County Jail on $150,000 bond.

Hanes

Hanes was arrested at approximately 6 a.m. Sunday at 456 Second Ave. N., where he allegedly used a gun to hold Alicia Coco, a former girlfriend, against her will for hours.

According to the police report filed Monday, Hanes said he took revealed in the 2010 Census.

Secretary of State Ben Yursa, who received all submitted redistricting plans Monday from the former commission, told the Times-News that, because the former commission no longer has any legal authority, its agreed-upon plan carries no more weight than any other submitted by the public.

“It’s up to the new commission,” he said. “They’re the ones that will decide if they like the plans or if they don’t.”

If the new redistricting panel supports the latest plan, it could mean substantial changes for the Magic Valley’s legislative clout.

Western Twin Falls County and Elmore County would be combined into one district, while a more urban district would include much of the city of Twin Falls, except its northeastern portion. That part of the city would be combined with Jerome County and a sliver of western Minidoka County.

Another district would include all of Cassia County, part of Power County, and 81.8 percent of Minidoka County’s population.

Currently, Twin Falls and Jerome counties are in separate legislative districts. So are Minidoka and Cassia counties.

the district containing Blaine, Camas, Gooding and Lincoln counties.

Asked why the former commission took as long as it did to reach an agreement, former Commissioner Lou Esposito said it “was not an easy process.”

“There was a lot of back and forth,” he said.

With three members from each political party on the six-member commission, at least one needed to cross party lines for a plan to pass. That didn’t happen with this year’s original commission.

Commissioners were at odds over whether the constitutional requirement to keep counties whole when possible carried more weight than state laws for redistricting, such as those encouraging that districts include counties already connected by paved roads.

“All of the procedural blocks that stopped us from doing anything when we were formed as a commission seemed to go away when we were no longer technically a commission,” said George Moses, a former Democratic commissioner.

Now, the former commissioners will pass on what they learned to the new commission and quietly leave the process.

“We are now a footnote in redistricting history,” Moses said.

The Associated Press contributed to this report. Ben Botkin may be reached at 735-3238.

Meet the New Commissioners

Idaho’s GOP and Democratic parties will seat three members each on the new redistricting commission. Here are their picks so far:

Republicans

- Sheila Olsen, widow of a former state GOP chairman
- The two remaining GOP commissioners haven’t been named yet.

Democrats

- Ron Betelspacher, former state senator, 1994 Democratic gubernatorial candidate
- Elmer Martinez, former legislator and retired firefighter
- Shauneen Grange, former chief of staff for the House minority leader, chief administrative officer for Boise, staffer for 2001 redistricting panel.

Coco’s vehicle without her permission from her Second Avenue apartment at 11 p.m. Saturday, and drove to retrieve a gun from the residence of a former employer, William Peters. He knew the gun was left inside a taxi cab that Peters owns and had no trouble getting it from the unlocked cab.

Shortly after, police took a report of a possibly suicidal male, identified as Hanes, who was said to have a gun. Police met with Coco, as her residence was listed as a previously known address of Hanes, but did not find Hanes there.

Hanes later returned to Coco’s apartment, he told police, and entered through the window of the guest room. He found Coco and barricaded himself inside a bedroom with her.

Police were called back to the apartment shortly before 1 a.m., and commanders deployed crisis response teams from both the city and Twin Falls County. Five hours later, Hanes surrendered without incident. Police recovered a semiautomatic pistol, which Peters confirmed was stolen from his vehicle.

When questioned by officers, Hanes told them he wished to commit suicide in front of Coco, and while locked in the bedroom, he pointed the gun at her. Coco gave police similar information about what happened in the room.

Cassia Probation to Start Own Testing Lab

Cassia County gears up for testing probationers with own urinalysis lab.

BY LAURIE WELCH
lwelch@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • Cassia County adult probation may be the first in the district to open its own urinalysis testing lab.

The lab is expected to cut testing costs in the office by $36,000.

Cassia County Adult Probation Office Director Amber Prewitt told county commissioners Monday that the lab will allow the department to get test results more rapidly and increase department revenues.

“Our goal is to do more testing for the district,” Prewitt said.

Prewitt said the department budgeted $89,000 in FY2012 for testing, up $25,000 from this year. The department expects to save $36,000 by performing its own testing.

Prewitt said the department is also struggling to keep up with costs related to the demand for GPS units used to track probationers and SCRAM bracelets, which monitor the wearer’s alcohol use. Prewitt said many judges are sentencing offenders to wear the devices.

In Other Business

Health consolidation considered • South Central Public Health District Board Member Don Clark said the district is considering consolidating its Burley and Rupert offices into one central location.

“We’re keeping our eyes open for property next to a medical facility,” Clark said.

Clark said the move would reduce administrative costs and will likely be accomplished without any additional costs to the county.

Judicial building designs approaching deadline • Cassia County Administrator Kerry McMurray said the closing date for those interested in designing the county’s new judicial building is Friday. Submissions will be opened Monday by county officials.

Gateway West route gains ground • Cassia County 911 Coordinator Kent Searle said an alternative cut-off for Segment 7 in the proposed Gateway West high-voltage transmission project through the county looks promising.

Searle said the alternative route would run through Goose Creek and affect less sage grouse habitat and roadless area than the original route proposed by Idaho Power and Rocky Mountain Power.

Searle said the public comment period on the Bureau of Land Management’s environmental study of the project must close before county officials and Cassia County Gateway West Task Force members can meet with other stakeholders to discuss the option.

Cassia going own way on joint child abuse task force

• Cassia County Attorney Al Barrus said the county will break from the joint Mini-Cassia Child Abuse Protocol Team so officials can spend more time reviewing county cases.

Barrus said the change would allow Cassia County members of the protocol team, which will include Barrus, the county sheriff and a representative from the Department of Health and Welfare to devote more of the monthly meeting schedule to local cases.

“The case load has grown exponentially in the last few years,” said Barrus.

208 Project moves forward

• Mini-Cassia Commerce Authority Director Winston Inouye said the agency has been helping with the “08 Project by facilitating land exchanges for the business park.

MCCA is also working with Southern Idaho Solid Waste and a potential provider of gasification technology, as well as a livestock facility interested in locating in Mini-Cassia.

Inspection station moving • Matthew Kreizenbeck, program specialist with the Idaho Department of Agriculture, said the agency is moving its watercraft inspection station on Interstate 84 from Juniper to the Cottrell Port.

Kreizenbeck said they expect better compliance from the new location, adding it will be safer for employees because law enforcement will be close enough to respond if needed.

Part of the $10 inspection fee for boats pays for the stations. Watercraft entering the state, unless they are commercially hauled, undergo the mandatory inspection for invasive species like zebra and quagga mussels.

TWIN FALLS RAPE TRIAL DELAYED

TIMES-NEWS

The suspect in a Twin Falls rape case won’t stand trial for a while longer.

Jason Ward, 35, was slated to appear before a Twin Falls County jury this week, as he stands accused of raping a 19-year-old woman in May. His trial was vacated as the attorney of a witness, Colby Redgrave, said he will not allow his client to testify until Redgrave’s own legal matter is resolved.

Redgrave, 21, of Twin Falls, is facing his own felony trial this fall, as he is charged with witness intimidation. Prosecutors say he threatened the alleged rape victim by sending text messages to the woman and her family.

Ward’s attorney, Doug Nelson, filed an affidavit with the court, explaining that Redgrave will not testify in Ward’s trial before his own trial, slated for November, happens.

Nelson asked that Ward’s trial be continued. Twin Falls County 5th District Judge G. Richard Bevan approved the request.

Ward remains in custody at Twin Falls County Jail, and a new trial date has yet to be scheduled.

Xavier

Assuming Xavier seeks a replacement for Bomgardner, the replacement would be the third principal for the school in less than a year.

A termination hearing has been scheduled for Oct. 13 and an independent three-person panel will be appointed to conduct the hearing. A time and place hasn’t been set.

It will be Bomgardner’s choice if he wants the hearing to be open to the public or not, Xavier School Board Chairwoman Debbi Burr said.

Bomgardner has been unavailable for comment.

The school’s board is legally allowed to conduct the hearing, but they decided on an independent panel instead.

“We felt very strongly that this should be a fair and independent hearing,” Burr said.

Although the board has recommended termination of Bomgardner, Burr said the panel ultimately has the final say.

“We are bound to what the panel determines,” Burr said.

Still, the panel has no authority to fire Bomgardner past what the Xavier board gives it. School trustees ultimately have to vote on any staff termination.

Burr also said the state doesn’t provide any guidelines on selecting panel members.

The school’s board will select one panelist, who will be a current or retired Idaho school administrator who doesn’t have any relationship to the school. Bomgardner will also choose one of the panelists. Those two members will select a third panel member.

Boise attorney Joe Borton will represent Xavier during the hearing. Burr said she doesn’t know who will represent Bomgardner.

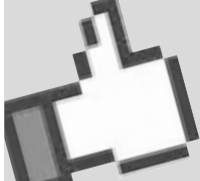

The school recently hired Borton on retainer as their attorney for the year, not specifically for next month’s hearing.

Bomgardner started as the school’s principal this summer, replacing former Principal Cindy Fulcher, who was fired by Xavier’s board in April after a long legal battle.

The public charter school opened in 2007, and currently has about 660 students in kindergarten through 12th grade.

USGS Scientists Defend Free Image Access, Fight for More Funding

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

In an unstable economy, distributing expensive products for free can appear reckless. For the past three years, the U.S. Geological Survey has allowed the public to access thousands of satellite images without charge. In Idaho, agencies use the images to determine water consumption activity. Now that access is being questioned as the USGS requests more money from Congress for future satellite projects. “Countless colleges and government entities are exploring new ways to use these images,” said Rick Allen, University of Idaho water resources engineer at the school’s Kimberly Research and Extension Center. “They wouldn’t have done it if it wasn’t for free.” USGS partners with NASA in operating two Landsat “Companies use these images for applications like Google Earth. Schools use the image information in their classroom all the time. If we start charging for the images, the use will drop. And if we don’t replace the older satellites, they will eventually become unreliable.”

Rick Allen, University of Idaho water resources engineer at the school’s Kimberly Research and Extension Center satellites that measure climate changes and water evaporation from irrigated agriculture. Both satellites are more than a decade old and have exceeded their design expiration date. Landsat 8 is scheduled to launch in late 2012, but Allen says, ideally, the USGS would want three to four satellites in orbit. Idaho was one of the first states to use Landsat satellite imagery in 1972. Since then, Idaho Water Resources has used the satellite data to develop irrigated land maps and to monitor water in the Eastern Snake Plain Aquifer. According to IDWR, 90 percent of consumptive water in Idaho is irrigated agriculture. The USGS needs $48 million now to begin developing Landsat 9, but, earlier this summer, a House bill proposed eliminating funding for the future satellite. The bill was never debated on the House floor but the doubt towards the program’s significance remains in Congress,

Allen said. “In the current budgetary climate in Washington, every item needs to be fully justified,” Allen said. “We have to justify the expenditure for that satellite. The satellite user community is having to make the case that we can’t get the same images with Landsat 9 from any other satellite.” Allen is working with Landsat satellite teams in gathering information on different applications of the satellites’ images. He warns that not funding Landsat projects could have serious consequences. “Companies use these images for applications like Google Earth,” Allen said. “Schools use the image information in their classroom all the time. If we start charging for the images, the use will drop. And if we don’t replace the older satellites, they will eventually become unreliable.”

MISSING RUPERT TEEN FOUND IN CALIFORNIA

TIMES-NEWS

A Rupert teen who disappeared approximately a year ago has turned up in north-central California. The Chico Enterprise-Record reported that Kyle Payne, 17, was located in the town of 86,000 last week and taken into custody by the Tehama County Sheriff’s Office on a juvenile warrant. Chico police found Payne in a residence after speaking with family members and friends in town. According to the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children, Payne was considered an endangered runaway and was listed as missing on Sept. 15, 2010. Payne may have decided to flee legal troubles in Minidoka County, but a court official would not confirm information on Payne as he is a minor and subject to the juvenile justice system.

PERRINE TEACHERS RECEIVE WALMART GIFT CARDS FOR SUPPLIES

Ten teachers from I.B. Perrine Elementary School in Twin Falls received $100 gift cards from the Twin Falls

Walmart store Friday as part of the company’s teacher rewards program. It’s estimated that teachers spend about $500 out of their own pockets each year on classroom supplies, including an additional $300 on snacks for students who may not have regular access to food. The teacher rewards program helps offset those costs. It’s the third year of the nationwide program, which will award more than 45,000 educators with gift cards this year.

FALL LAWN AND GARDEN TIPS

Once you’re done “http://landscaping.about.com/od/healthconcerns/qt/carving_pumpkin.htm” carving pumpkins, there are a number of serious fall lawn care chores and related tasks for the landscaper to complete before winter in order to ready the landscape for the next growing season. Let’s take a brief look at some of these required chores. During autumn, don’t stop trying to improve the health of your grass for next year -- or at least trying to maintain the status quo. For one thing, you’ll want to try to remove “http://landscaping.about.com/library/glossary/bldef-broadleaf.htm” broadleaf weeds and thereby remove some competition for available nutrients and water. Along the same lines, have a soil test done to check, for example, on the “http://landscaping.about.com/library/glossary/bldef-pH.htm” soil pH of your lawn. If the test should show excessive “http://landscaping.about.com/library/glossary/bldef-acidity.htm” acidity, apply lime immediately (its effects don’t kick in right away). If, on the contrary, your soil is too “http://landscaping.about.com/library/glossary/bldef-alkalinity.htm” alkaline, apply sulphur. Everybody knows that we should rake leaves in fall, but many don’t know “http://landscaping.about.com/od/landscapecolor/f/why_rake_leaves.htm” why we rake leaves. But anyone who has ever raked them knows that it’s tedious work. Some people choose to use “http://landscaping.about.com/od/toppicks/tp/leaf_removal.htm” leaf blowers, instead. Here’s another option: before putting your “http://landscaping.about.com/od/helpforconsumers1/tp/mower_reviews.htm” lawn mower to bed for another winter, fire it up (making sure the grass catcher is attached) and run over the leaves with it. Sort of like “vacuuming” the leaves off your lawn. When you’re done, be sure to provide the proper “http://landscaping.about.com/cs/toppicks/a/mower_care_faq.htm” lawn mower care to winterize it. Many people who have lawn problems do not realize how detrimental thatch build-up is to their grass. An advantage to raking leaves (as opposed to resorting to gadgetry) is that you can “http://landscaping.about.com/library/glossary/bldefdethatching.htm” dethatch your lawn at the same time: by raking deeply and vigorously, you can remove thatch as well as leaves. But for cases of severe soil “http://landscaping.about.com/library/glossary/bldef-compaction.htm” compaction, you’ll probably have to use the technique known as “http://landscaping.about.com/library/glossary/bldef-coreaeration.htm” core aeration. “http://www.about.com”

Man Gets Deferred Sentence in Billings Shooting

BILLINGS, Mont. • The husband of a woman who was shot in the eye during a gunfight outside a Billings storage facility has been sentenced for returning fire.

District Judge G. Todd Baugh gave 28-year-old Steven Jay Schmaing a three-year deferred sentence Monday. Schmaing, who pleaded guilty in June to felony criminal endangerment, has said he was acting in self-defense when he fired several times at a pickup truck after his wife was hit with gunfire Dec. 20.

No one in the truck was hurt, but Schmaing acknowledged his actions could have injured bystanders.

Prosecutors say Crystal Lundberg fired a pistol into Schmaing's car from a nearby pickup truck, hitting 25-year-old Lindsey Marie Schmaing in the eye. The Billings Gazette reports Lundberg is awaiting trial on a charge of attempted murder.

Hundreds of 911 Calls Lead Police House-to-house

SALT LAKE CITY • Emergency dispatchers say police officers had to go door-to-door to track down a mentally disabled woman who made 200 calls to 911 over a 10-day stretch.

Officials from the Valley Emergency Communications Center say the calls came from a disconnected cell phone in West Valley City that dispatchers could not call back.

Authorities created a grid in a neighborhood last week and walked from house to house to find the person who was making the calls. Police say the calls were made by a mentally disabled woman who had a cell phone that was disconnected but still had a battery charge.

11-year-old Kills 5-year-old Boy in Nevada Home

HENDERSON, Nev. • Police say an 11-year-old boy killed his 5-year-old nephew with a gun he found in a box full of toys.

The children were playing Sunday afternoon at a Henderson home when the older boy found the gun. The 11-year-old boy told police he thought the gun was a toy, so he pointed it at his nephew and fired.

The 5-year-old was shot in the chest and taken to an area hospital, where he was pronounced dead. The dead boy's mother is the 11-year-old boy's older sister. The family was visiting someone's home when the 11-year-old found the gun.

Police found five other handguns and rifles in the home. No arrests have been made in the death.

2 Treated for Injuries After Truck-moose Collision

POCATELLO • State police say two people were treated for minor injuries after their truck collided with a moose in southeastern Idaho.

Police Cpl. Chris Baker told the Idaho State Journal on Sunday that the Dodge pickup had Montana license plates and was traveling eastbound on Interstate 86 at about 8 p.m. near Pocatello when it was struck by the moose. The truck slid off the interstate and rolled over once.

Baker says there were two people in the truck and both were transported to the hospital with minor injuries.

The moose was killed in the collision.

Kill Order May Doom Ore. Wolf Pack

BY JEFF BARNARD
Associated Press

The decision to kill two more wolves for preying on livestock could mean the end of the first Oregon wolf pack to successfully breed since efforts began to restore the predators.

State wolf coordinator Russ Morgan said Monday that despite this setback, restoration of wolves is moving forward, with individuals striking out for new territories, and the newly formed Walla Walla pack in Umatilla County breeding its first two pups.

"Recovery has a number of barometers," Morgan said from his office in LaGrande, Ore. "If we look at dispersal in the overall area in Oregon, it's clearly expanding.

"The lethal control actions we are involved with now may have the effect of slowing recovery. But it is also tied to recovery. One of the premises of the Oregon wolf plan is that by directly dealing with depredation issues, that helps create a bit of tolerance. I suppose that remains to be seen."

The Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife announced last week that it will kill two of the four remaining members of the Imnaha pack, which has been responsible for 14 confirmed livestock kills over the last two years.

A department hunter is looking first for a member of the pack not collared with a radio transmitter, Morgan said. Then he will go after the alpha male, which goes by the number OR4 and sired the first pups in Oregon since wolves began moving back into the state from Idaho in the 1990s.

Two other members of the pack, the only one of three packs in Oregon that has

"We spend so much money trapping, collaring, and helicopter guarding one thing and another. Then they end up killing the darn things. Because we can't coexist with them. That's the plain and simple fact. This pack should have been removed a long time ago."

Todd Nash, the Enterprise ranch who owned the calf whose death earlier this month led to the kill order been tied to livestock attacks, were shot earlier this year. A third kill order was not carried out, and two members of the pack have left Oregon, one going to Idaho and the other to Washington.

Morgan said the loss of the alpha male and leaving just two survivors of the pack could mean its demise, but he said that prospect had nothing to do with the decision to kill two members.

Enterprise rancher Todd Nash owned the calf whose death earlier this month led to the kill order. It was part of a herd of 150 grazing on private land east of Joseph in an area known as The Divide. He was not using nonlethal controls such as flagging and electric fencing but did have a range rider checking the cattle.

Nash was visiting a new grandchild in California when he got the call from the department that they had GPS tracking information on the Imnaha pack that led them to believe they might have gone after his cattle. A friend found the remains of the 550-pound calf.

Nash said losses to wolves are not threatening to put him out of business, but they are having an impact. And the compensation program approved by the Legislature this year does not fully cover the problem.

"We spend so much money trapping, collaring, and helicopter guarding one thing and another. Then they end up killing the darn things. Because we can't coexist with them. That's the plain and simple fact," he said. "This pack should have been removed a long time ago."

Steve Pedery of Oregon Wild blamed the kill order on the fact that Nash has been an outspoken opponent of restoring wolves — an assertion that Morgan denied.

Pedery added that the state needs to do more to prevent livestock attacks without resorting to killing wolves.

"ODFW has been under really intense pressure from the cattlemen," Pedery said from Portland, Ore. "This is really a kill order on the pack. It is very unlikely the mother and her pup will survive the winter unless they feed on gut piles (left by deer and elk hunters), which puts them at risk of poachers, or feed on livestock. They really have little hope of bringing down a deer or elk by themselves."

CLEANING Question: CORNER

I've spent alot of money over the years on cheap vacuums. Now I'm convinced that if I would have made my investment earlier on a professional vacuum, I'd save a lot in the long run. My cheap discount store "special" just broke, so I'm in the market again! Lori, what would you recommend?

"Confessions of a Broken Sucker!"

Answer: Investing your money in a professional grade vacuum not only results in cleaner carpet, but it also saves you money in the long run because it will last so long. The MIELE vacuum (one of the best in the market) just came out with a new "TWIST" upright version. The innovative, patented Swivel Neck allows steering in all directions. It is so maneuverable, the Twist can even lay flat to the floor which makes cleaning under beds and other low furnishings easier than ever before. (You can even lay flat on the floor too and take a rest while vacuuming!)

P.S. Purchase any vacuum through October and get free vacuum bags!

Idaho Meth Dealers Sent to Federal Prison

BOISE • Idaho's persistent methamphetamine scene will be four dealers scarcer for years to come after four men were sent to federal prison for long sentences.

In separate sentencing hearings Monday, the men received punishment for helping keep afloat sales of the illicit stimulant that breaks up families, hurts countless children and ruins lives, often in rural communities.

Israel Jacob Salinas of Nampa will spend 75 months behind bars.

Don Ellingford of Shelley was sentenced today to 124 months, winning the long sentence as a result of at least six previous felony convictions.

Martin Noriega of Mexico will spend 151 months behind federal bars. And Rick Elliot of Rexburg got 57 months.

Judge Issues Temp Order in Idaho Abortion Lawsuit

BOISE • A federal judge has issued a temporary restraining order to keep a prosecutor from refile charges against a woman accused of having an illegal abortion.

Jennie Linn McCormack sued over Idaho's so-called "fetal pain" law banning abortions after 20 weeks and over a law that effectively prohibits women in her region from getting a medication-induced abortion.

She filed the lawsuit in federal court after Bannock County Prosecutor Mark Heideman charged her with a felony, saying she obtained an abortion drug over the internet and administered it to herself. Those charges were later dropped without prejudice, allowing the prosecutor to refile the charge if he chose.

On Friday, U.S. District Judge B. Lynn Winnmill issued a 14-day restraining order barring the prosecutor from refile charges as McCormack's federal lawsuit moves forward.

Rathdrum Officer Killed in Motorcycle Crash

CUSICK, Wash. • A police officer from Rathdrum was killed in a motorcycle crash near Cusick on Highway 20.

The Washington State Patrol says 27-year-old Jonathan Franco was riding his motorcycle Saturday when it rear-ended a car that has slowed for an injured deer in the roadway.

KREM reports Franco has been a Rathdrum officer for nearly five years. He is survived by his parents and two sisters.

ed by county clerk Chris Yamamoto, Joe Bell of the Nampa Historic Preservation Commission and former chief deputy and county controller Chris Harris.

Yamamoto says the group is trying to figure out how to fund their project. They want to organize and then digitize the collection to make it more accessible to the public. They plan to use a closed floor of the jail for document storage, possibly by early 2012.

High-speed Police Chase in Nampa Ends With Crash

NAMPA • Authorities say a driver led Nampa police on an Interstate 84 chase that reached speeds up to 110 mph before it ended with the suspect's vehicle crashing.

The Idaho Press Tribune reports that Nampa police officers had stopped a driver in a 2008 Nissan pickup truck for suspected DUI about 4 a.m. Monday at I-84 and the Garrity Boulevard Interchange.

The Nampa police report says the driver then fled eastbound on the interstate, leading the officers on a high-speed chase until the pickup crashed at the Ten Mile interchange in Meridian.

Police identified the driver as 35-year-old Toby Vernor of Boise. Police say Vernor was wearing a seat belt and was taken to a Boise hospital with non-life-threatening injuries.

Canyon County Preservationists Try to Save Records

NAMPA • A preservation group is trying to consolidate and save Canyon County records that date back to the mid-19th century.

The Idaho Press-Tribune reports that records are in six different locations and in varying condition. To prevent their degradation, the Historic Records Retention Committee is storing the documents at the county courthouse.

Activists Say They Set Fire at Idaho Fur Seller

BY JOHN MILLER
Associated Press

BOISE • Animal rights activists said they pumped fuel into an Idaho fur and fireworks retailer before setting the place ablaze early Monday, and federal agents said they were taking the claim seriously.

Jerry Vlasak, a spokesman for the North American Animal Liberation Press Office in Los Angeles, said he received a message from activists shortly after the fire began at the Rocky Mountain Fireworks & Fur Co., on Monday morning.

"A hole was drilled into their storage space, and several gallons of fuel were pumped through, as well as multiple other charges being set beneath an adjoining structure," Vlasak said, citing the message. "Ignition devices were set to finish up our work, once we were safely on our way."

In addition to fireworks, the business in Caldwell, outside Boise, buys coyote and bobcat pelts and sells trapping supplies, including equipment that helps drown beavers. It also sells knives, predator calls and scents to help lure bobcats.

The fire was reported at about 5 a.m. Idaho Highway 30 and a U.S. Interstate 84 exit were closed down. There were no injuries.

The activists said they belonged to a group called "The Arson Unit" and could have ties to the Animal Liberation Front, Vlasak said. They warned that the store must close its doors permanently.

"Stay in business, and we'll be back," their message said.

Radical activist groups including the Earth Liberation Front and the Animal Liberation Front have been blamed for a string of 17 arsons across the West dating back more than a decade, including at ski resorts in Colorado and university laboratories in Washington state. Fourteen people have been convicted of crimes related to those fires. Such groups have been classified as domestic terror threats by the FBI.

A Utah animal rights activist in July pleaded guilty to two federal charges stemming from a pair of 2010 arson fires in the Salt Lake City area, one at the Tandy Leather Factory and another at a restaurant that served a disputed goose liver dish.

Federal agents on Monday weren't dismissing the activist group's claims of responsibility, Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives spokeswoman Donna Sellers said. Evidence has been collected from the blaze to be analyzed at one of the agency's laboratories, she said.

"ATF does take the communique seriously," she said. "The claim of responsibility by Animal Liberationists is a lead in this investigation."

The FBI also said it's helping track down leads.

"We are assisting the ATF to see if there's a connection to domestic terrorism," said Deborah Bertram, an FBI spokeswoman in Salt Lake City.

Vlasak, whose office helps to publicize the illegal activities of activists, said he had no direct knowledge that the activists actually set the Idaho fire. But he said similar statements in past attacks on fur farms or businesses have had merit. He declined to say exactly how he received Monday's message.

"Somebody with a shop full of fireworks and fur at the same time is just kind of asking for it," Vlasak told the AP on Monday, adding that while he supports such actions, "there's a firewall between those who are actually willing to break the law to help animals, and those of us who are just serving as a press office."

The fire was contained quickly and without significant damage to fireworks or fur articles. Investigators believe the fire was "suspicious and incendiary," Caldwell fire marshal Andrew Cater said.

OPINION

“From the moment I took office what we’ve seen is a constant ideological pushback against any kind of sensible reforms that would make our economy work better and give people more opportunity.”

President Barack Obama saying that the GOP vision of government would “fundamentally cripple America” at a intimate brunch fundraiser at the Medina, Wash., home of former Microsoft executive Jon Shirley

OUR VIEW

$82M Is Real Money

Perhaps it should come as a relief to Idahoans that our state had the Pacific Northwest’s lowest percentage of errors in the payment of unemployment benefits over the past three years.

More than 9% of payments in Idaho were paid erroneously, while Washington had a 14.1% error rate, Oregon had a 12.2% error rate and Alaska — under the crack leadership of former governor Sarah Palin — had an 11.8% error rate.

But when that 9% translates into $82 million paid to residents who had either already returned to work or had not met the state’s job search requirements, that relief should be somewhat tempered. A disappointing (but not very surprising) statement from Idaho Department of Labor spokesman Bob Fick said “people in our compliance bureau question whether those numbers accurately reflect the error rate that actually occurs.” In other words, ‘we don’t like the numbers, so they must be wrong.’

Fick did point out that nearly $22.6 million in improperly paid unemployment benefits have been recovered by the state over the past five years. This may sound noble from a state budget management perspective, but let’s take a minute to view it from the perspective of the thousands of unemployed workers who had originally received the money. Those that received the $22.6 million were unemployed at some point — many if not most for a period extending beyond the initial maximum payout of 26 weeks. At some point these workers find employment and begin to see the light at the end of the tunnel. During their transition to work — a seemingly euphoric experience in which they begin to feel better about themselves and their ability to provide for their family — they mistakenly get paid a few extra weeks of unemployment benefits. Some may know it’s happened; we suspect the majority do not.

And then they receive the “recovery” notice in the mail, telling them how much they need to repay and how soon they need to find the money. So much for euphoria.

Does this mean the state should not try to recover unemployment benefits erroneously paid? Certainly not.

What it does mean is that the state Department of Labor can and must do a better job in monitoring eligibility and paying only those still unemployed that provide accurate documentation of their job search. Since Idaho’s Department of Labor is among many departments and agencies that have had their budget decreased over the past several years, such painstaking attention to detail is more difficult. It is nonetheless necessary.

And if budget “cuts” to the Department of Labor help cause an overpayment of $82 million, it’s clear that not all intended budget savings really pan out. Some budget “cuts” actually cost us more.

Paying the Dead

There isn’t much about dysfunctional government that shocks me anymore, but this story did.

According to a report by the Office of Personnel Management and reported in Ed O’Keefe’s “The Federal Eye” column in the Washington Post, our government has been sending checks to dead people. “In the last five years,” O’Keefe writes, “the Office of Personnel Management has made more than $601 million in payments to dead federal retirees, according to the agency’s inspector general. Total annual payouts range between $100 million and $150 million.”

This isn’t something new. Inspector General (IG) Patrick McFarland had urged OPM in 2005 and again in 2008 to more closely monitor such payments. It appears his advice has gone unheeded.

“Improper payments to dead retirees are up 70 percent in the last five years,” cites the OPM report. In one outrageous case, the son of a deceased annuitant kept receiving federal benefits for 37 years after his father’s death. OPM didn’t learn about the improper payments until after the son died. Of course, the agency never recovered any of the money. Could this be why the government has no qualms about spending other people’s money?

Senator Tom Coburn, Oklahoma Republican, conducted an investigation and reported last October on his findings. Coburn discovered that “the federal government had paid nearly $1 billion to at least 250,000 dead people since 2000,” writes O’Keefe.

I wonder how many of the dead and incarcerated got to vote and for whom?

As congressional Democrats and Republicans play another round of “chicken” over what, if anything, can be cut from the bloated budget and engage in phony theatrics over another possible government shutdown, those members who wish to be more responsible with other people’s money ought to make the issue of wasteful spending central to the upcoming campaign.

After removing the dead and incarcerated from the federal payroll, they can go after an agency that touches all Americans: the United States Postal Service (USPS). According to Citizens Against Government Waste (www.cagw.org), “The USPS has 600,000 employees and is the second largest employer in America behind Wal-Mart. The USPS Office of Inspector General reported that employees were paid $21.9 million for 875,540 hours of ‘stand-by’ time in FY 2010, and $4.3 million for 170,666 hours in the first half of FY 2011. The USPS also has a 24 percent vacancy rate in its 284 million square feet of interior office space.”

The problem is that once a federal agency or program is started, it is easier to find an honest politician than it is to cut something from the budget. Ronald Reagan noted the only proof of eternal life on Earth is a government program. Being dead does not have to remove one from the ‘spread the wealth’ mentality of the current administration, or any administration. Misspending is clearly bipartisan.

Then there’s Solyndra, the California solar panel company that received half a billion dollars in loan guarantees and then declared bankruptcy. Solyndra officials invoked the 5th Amendment protection against self-incrimination last week before a congressional committee.

It is beyond disgraceful that so many elected officials and unelected bureaucrats continue to waste so much of our money, all the while demanding we be taxed more because they can’t “afford” to cut a dime and some of us allegedly aren’t contributing our “fair share.”

“The problem is that once a federal agency or program is started, it is easier to find an honest politician than it is to cut something from the budget. Ronald Reagan noted the only proof of eternal life on Earth is a government program. Being dead does not have to remove one from the ‘spread the wealth’ mentality of the current administration, or any administration. Misspending is clearly bipartisan.”

We are past not being able to afford our government and it’s long past time to start cutting them off, much as a parent might stop sending money to a spendthrift college student who wastes it on partying and high-living.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Barigar Asks for Your Vote, Participation

As a fifth-generation Magic Valley native raising a family here in Twin Falls, I have a vested interest in and genuine love of our community. I want to preserve our positive quality of life and ensure Twin Falls is always going to be a great place in which to live and do business. That’s why I’m running for the Twin Falls City Council.

Since settling in Twin Falls in 1993, I have been actively involved in our community, both professionally and personally. Being engaged in this variety of community organizations and activities allows me to understand the diverse resources we have in Twin Falls and to help bring those resources together. Of the candidates running for Seat 2 on the council, I’m uniquely suited to cultivate communication and cooperation among the residents, the business community and local government. Together, we will achieve common goals for the common good.

Twin Falls continues its transition from a large town into a small city. Along with the positive aspects of diversifying and growing our economy, adding living-wage jobs, increasing our tax base and developing new amenities and opportunities for our residents come the challenges to provide the appropriate infrastructure and level of public service to meet the needs of our citizens in this growing community. In my previous service on the City Council, I was actively involved in fostering this positive growth while recognizing the challenges and implementing solutions.

I look forward to serving you on the City Council and ask for your vote on Tuesday, Nov. 8. I also ask for your active participation in my campaign and encourage you share your questions, comments and support on my “Shawn Barigar for Twin Falls City Council” Facebook page or to contact me directly by phone at 208-316-2956.

LDS Program Helps Down-and-out Get Back on Their Feet

POST REGISTER

IDAHO FALLS • It's a long way down to rock bottom. Rich Tatham knows it's even further to climb back up.

Tatham, 50, works a modest job at Deseret Industries in Idaho Falls. That job, however, has been a cornerstone for Tatham since he lost his marriage, his dad and a good-paying career during a two-month span five years ago.

He hit bottom when he landed in the Bonneville County Jail after a fourth DUI arrest.

"When things get bad, you start losing options," he said. "It gets to a point where you wake up and your options are either keep drinking, or let myself die. I kept drinking because I wasn't ready to die, but it came to a point where I questioned, 'What am I going to do with my life?'"

In January 2009, after serving four months in jail, Tatham was released. His first stop was The Salvation Army to get a pair of boots. There, he also received a voucher for the DI, where he outfitted himself for the winter and put his name on the DI job waiting list.

After a few months of odd jobs, the DI offered Tatham a job. He accepted and started working for minimum wage.

Slowly, Tatham found stability through routine. He set personal and professional goals with his DI job manager. The DI pays for off-site job training for its employees.

Tatham took advantage, earning two technology certifications through online courses.

Today, he is sober, social and preparing to leave the DI for better opportunities. He credits Alcoholics Anonymous, as well as his experience at the DI, for his turnaround.

"Things have just gotten good ever since," he said.

Tatham is one of thousands of success stories for

The Church of Jesus Christ Church of Latter-day Saints Welfare Services.

Since its founding during the Great Depression 75 years ago, the program has fed the hungry, helped the unemployed find work and generally supported those down on their luck.

Since 1985, LDS Welfare Services has provided a total of $1.3 billion in assistance in the U.S. and 178 countries and territories around the world. That includes more than 63,000 tons of food, 14,000 tons of medical supplies and 93,000 tons of clothing.

Thought global in scope, the program has not only helped Tatham but also thousands of people in similar situations throughout eastern Idaho.

The System at Work in Idaho Falls

In the DI receiving area, teams of workers in maroon aprons sort clothes and household items. On the DI floor, cash-poor patrons turn in slips - some issued by Mormon bishops, some issued by nonprofit organizations such as the City of Refuge - for clothes and other goods.

The welfare program assists all people, not just members of the LDS church.

At the LDS Employment Resource Services office next door to the DI, people either unemployed or looking for better jobs learn how to write resumes free of charge.

Before the recession, about eight people walked into the office every day looking for help to find a job.

That figure rose to 25 a day in recent years as the slumping job market meant more people needed coaching on job interviews and job searching, office manager Scott Brizzee said.

More than 1,100 people found jobs last year through the Idaho Falls office. About 70 percent of those were in low-wage jobs, Brizzee said. But some clients with more education or experience found better-paying jobs, including one who found a supervisor's job at Idaho National Laboratory.

At the nearby LDS cannery, pallets of ripening pears were stacked beside pallets of boxes filled with canned pears - ready for shipment around the region, and, if need be, the globe.

About 70 volunteers and welfare program recipients staff the equipment each day.

Before the pears, they canned vegetable soup. Later, they'll can chicken noodle soup, as well as jam, fruits and vegetables, spaghetti sauce and other foods - more than a million cans each year.

Canned food that isn't shipped out will go to the shelves of the adjoining Bishop's Storehouse, taking its place beside the Mormon-made granola, peanut butter and host of other foods and given to the hungry.

The welfare program's massive scope is supported by a rigid infrastructure, but it functions on a less structured basis.

When people fall on hard times - whether they are Mormon or not - they can turn to the LDS bishop in their area ward for help.

After talking through options - maybe there's a boat or RV to sell or a better way to manage money - the bishop authorizes whatever assistance he deems necessary. That can mean food from the storehouse, help paying bills or a job opportunity at the DI.

LDS bishops grant whatever is needed based on two conditions. First, recipients must work for it. Second, the aid is temporary.

Those two conditions, Ammon Stake President Dwight Whittaker said, set the LDS welfare program apart from federal welfare, which in Idaho can extend to a total of two years per recipient.

Whittaker said prolonged support creates dependency. He said the LDS system works to avoid dependency by mandating that its recipients work and limiting the time of support.

"It's the opposite of a dole," Whittaker said. "It's the opportunity to work and to provide service to someone else. It might be cleaning the flower bed at a meeting place or working here at the cannery. People give back for the assistance they receive."

While the recession has brought hard times to more people in Idaho, the economic downturn also has strapped the state budget.

In his 2010 State of the State and budget address, Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter called upon churches and other community-based groups to step up and provide for their own.

State Rep. Janice McGeachin, R-Bonneville County, said the LDS welfare program is a model for what Otter was talking about.

"I believe that the LDS welfare system is a relief to the state and probably can't be measured," McGeachin said. "It is easy to look around and find ways to help another person. I believe we will become a better society if we help to take care of our neighbor instead of just letting the government do it."

WANTED...
We still pay top dollar for junk batteries!

Tatham is Proof the LDS Welfare System Works

When he first set foot in the DI, he lacked direction. In January, he will move to Moscow to attend the University of Idaho. His bachelor's degree in electrical engineering was obsolete after five years out of the field. He'll attend graduate school to catch up.

While in school, Tatham will use his tech certifications, earned through his training at the DI, to make a decent wage.

Tatham hasn't had a drink in 28 months. He is a Mormon, but his faith was shaken when his life collapsed. Alcoholics Anonymous is nondenominational but stresses spirituality. That kept the door open for Tatham's slow return to the church as he put the pieces of his life back together.

He heads to graduate school as an active member, crediting both AA and the DI with his recovery and helping him find a greater purpose.

"Going to jail was probably a blessing," Tatham said. "I was on one side of the iron bars and the alcohol was on the other side. My head started clearing. I started seeing there was a way I could put my life back together."

NRC BEGINS INSPECTION AT WASH. NUCLEAR PLANT

RICHLAND, Wash. (AP) • The Nuclear Regulatory Commission began a special inspection Monday at the Northwest's only commercial nuclear power plant following a series of incidents that occurred while the plant was shut down for refueling.

The inspection centers on three events in which plant operators inadvertently drained reactor coolant from the Columbia Generating Station's reactor vessel during a recent refueling outage, the commission said in a statement Monday. Two other incidents at the plant operated by Energy Northwest also will be reviewed: the temporary loss of shutdown cooling due to an electrical malfunction, and the unexpected insertion of a control rod into the reactor core during a scheduled test.

All of the incidents occurred during the plant's refueling outage, which began in early April.

"All of these events had very low risk significance because the reactor was in a safe shutdown condition," said NRC Region IV Administrator Elmo E. Collins. "But they all appear to have involved poor operator controls and warrant close examination."

A team of three inspectors will evaluate each event, review Energy Northwest's analysis of the events and determine if corrective actions taken are adequate to prevent recurrence, the NRC's statement said.

Energy Northwest is a public power consortium comprising 28 member utilities. Its 1,150-megawatt nuclear plant in south-central Washington provides about 3 percent of the region's power, roughly enough electricity for 1 million homes.

Energy Northwest

spokesman Michael Paoli said Monday that the incidents did not represent any public health or safety risk. Because the nuclear safety culture is much more sensitive than any other industry, it is important to Energy Northwest that a review be conducted, he said.

The inspectors will write a report on their findings within 45 days.

Energy Northwest shuts down the plant every two years to refuel it and perform other routine maintenance. During this outage, which was scheduled to end June 15, workers also replaced the plant's 25-year-old condenser. The condenser turns steam generated by boiling water in the reactor back into water for reuse in the plant.

However, the work took longer than expected, and Energy Northwest only powered up the plant last week.

Power from the plant is sold to the Portland, Ore.-based Bonneville Power Administration, and then to retail customers across the Northwest. That power is valued at more than $1 million a day.

Sex Offender Sentenced for Failure to Register

BOISE (AP) • A woman convicted of sexually abusing an Idaho minor two years ago has been sentenced to 10 months in prison for failing to register as a sex offender.

The U.S. Attorney's Office says 33-year-old Lisa Marie Rasho was sentenced Monday for violating the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act.

Federal prosecutors say Rasho is a transient who left Idaho last November and traveled to Michigan, where she failed to register as a sex offender. Rasho was also accused of failing to update her registration in Idaho, which was required after her 2009 conviction in Ada County for sexual abuse of a child under 16.

Rasho was indicted by a federal grand jury on April 13 and arrested in Michigan. She pleaded guilty in July.

U.S. swimmer Diana Nyad begins her swim from Cuba to Florida at the Hemingway Marina in Havana, Cuba, Friday. Endurance athlete Nyad will attempt for a second time to swim from Cuba to Florida in hopes of setting a world record at the age of 62. The Los Angeles woman fell short in a previous attempt at the swim last month, calling it off after 29 hours in the water and about halfway through the 103-mile journey.

Diana Nyad Pushes Through Stings on ‘Critical’ 2nd Night

BY PETER ORSI
Associated Press

HAVANA • Endurance athlete Diana Nyad was about halfway through her swim from Cuba to Florida during what her helpers described as a crucial overnight stretch, overcoming jellyfish stings and ignoring sharks and barracudas on a quest to break her own world record.

Updates have been coming from her handlers via Internet posts, and already Nyad has been in the water longer than her aborted attempt at a Florida Straits crossing last month, when she lasted 29 hours before a crippling asthma attack forced her to call it quits.

As of the last update, she had completed 49 miles (79 kilometers) of the 103-mile (166-kilometer) passage. If all goes well, she hopes to complete the trip Monday morning.

Late Saturday she suffered a second painful sting that affected her face and eyes, and was treated on board a support vessel.

“At this moment it appears that Diana wishes to continue,” read a message sent on her Twitter account.

“Tonight, her second night in the open water, may be the most critical,” Nyad’s website said. “Steve Munatones, the independent observer for the International Swim Federation who is accompanying the expedition, says that swimmers have a much better chance of success if they can make it through the second night.”

Earlier Saturday, handlers spotted barracudas in the area, and she also got a visit from a curious shark — though her assistants downplayed the incident.

“Around 1pm — and don’t everybody get excited here — an Oceanic white tipped shark was spotted near Diana in the midst of the three boat flotilla. ... Rob MacDonald, one of (her safety) divers, swam towards the shark, where they faced off within 10 feet of one another,” read a post on Nyad’s website.

“I guess he thought I was more aggressive than him, and he turned in the other direction,” MacDonald was quoted as saying.

Without a cage to protect her, Nyad is relying on equipment surrounding her with an electrical field that is harmless but deters most sharks. Her divers are there to gently discourage any who make it through.

Nyad’s run-in the previous night with a Portuguese Man o’ War, described as “scary,” left her with stings on her face, arms and side.

Complaining of difficulty breathing, she received oxygen and a steroid shot from her doctors and tread water while she recovered.

When she resumed swimming her handlers noted that her stroke count had dropped to 48 per minute, down from 52-55, but as the day went on she picked up the pace.

“This afternoon — it is stunning to actually witness — Diana is swimming stronger and stronger,” her website read. “Her strokes are up to 50 per minute, she is eating pasta, gobbling bananas, bits of peanut butter sandwiches, along with high-carb & high calorie liquid concoctions.”

Her website reported that she seemed to revive significantly after consuming blended chicken soup.

The Los Angeles woman pauses every 45 and 90 minutes to rest and refuel on food that her assistants pass to her in the water, but without getting on the boat.

Not all encounters with marine life were unpleasant.

“At 7:10pm, on the crimson horizon of the Straits of Florida, ten pilot whales emerged in the distance just ahead of Diana,” said a tweet.

Nyad is making her second attempt in as many months at the Cuba-Florida crossing, a lifelong dream that she first tried as a 28-year-old back in 1978, when she swam inside a steel shark cage for about 42 hours before ending the attempt.

A cageless attempt this August fell short 29 hours in when, gasping for breath, Nyad threw in the towel after an 11-hour asthma attack she blamed on a bad reaction to a new medicine.

Romney Wins in Michigan Straw Poll

Texas Gov. Rick Perry Finishes in a distant second place.

BY PHILIP RUCKER
The Washington Post

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich. • Republican presidential candidate Mitt Romney says he isn’t competing in any straw polls — not even the one this weekend on the island where he spent summers as a boy and where pictures of his father adorn the Grand Hotel and George Romney’s legacy as a popular governor hung over the proceedings.

To say Romney was the heavy favorite at the biennial Mackinac Republican Leadership Conference would be an understatement. And he did not disappoint, winning the straw poll with 51 percent of the 681 votes cast. His top rival for the nomination, Texas Gov. Rick Perry, finished second with 17 percent.

For Romney, the victory was especially sweet considering that Perry flew here — a remote island on Lake Huron, accessible only by ferry and where visitors ride bicycles or horse-drawn carriages because automobiles are banned — to deliver a luncheon speech Saturday to conference attendees. Romney was here, too, and gave his speech during Saturday night’s dinner program.

Former Godfather’s Pizza chief executive Herman Cain, who won the Florida straw poll Saturday, finished third in Michigan with 9 percent, according to the results announced Sunday morning. He was followed by Rep. Ron Paul, R-Texas, with 8 percent; Rep. Michele Bachmann, R-Minn., 4 percent; former House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., 4 percent; former Sen. Rick Santorum, R-Pa., 3 percent; and former Utah Gov. Jon Huntsman, 2 percent.

N.Y. SEN. SCHUMER ACCUSES ONSTAR OF INVADING PRIVACY

BY MICHAEL GORMLEY
Associated Press

ALBANY, N.Y. • The OnStar automobile communication service used by 6 million Americans maintains its two-way connection with a customer even after the service is discontinued, while reserving the right to sell data from that connection.

U.S. Sen. Charles Schumer of New York says that’s a blatant invasion of privacy and is calling on the Federal Trade Commission to investigate. But OnStar says former customers can stop the two-way transmission, and no driving data of customers has been shared or sold.

“OnStar is attempting one of the most brazen invasions of privacy in recent memory,” said Schumer, a Democrat. “I urge OnStar to abandon this policy.”

But the General Motors Corp. OnStar service says customers are thoroughly informed of the new practice. If a customer says he or she doesn’t want to have data collected after service is ended, OnStar disconnects the tracking.

And although OnStar reserves the right to share or sell data on customers’ speed, location, use of seat belts and other practices, a spokesman says it hasn’t done so and doesn’t plan to.

“We apologize for creating any confusion about our terms and conditions,” said Joanne Finnor, vice president of subscriber services. “We want to make sure we are as clear with our customers as possible, but it’s apparent that we have failed to do this. ... We will continue to be open to their suggestions and concerns.”

A week ago, OnStar changed its policy and began continuing the connection for ex-customers unless they asked for it to be discontinued.

Finnor noted keeping the two-communication active for former customers could someday allow for emergency messages to be sent even to ex-customers about severe weather or evacuations. The open line could also allow OnStar to alert drivers about warranty information or recalls, she said.

Schumer said he isn’t persuaded. He said customers shouldn’t have to “opt out” of the tracking after they end service. He accuses OnStar of actively deceiving customers.

Schumer is announcing the effort Sunday by releasing a letter to the Federal Trade Commission seeking an investigation.

OnStar charges about $199 a year for basic service and $299 a year for service that includes navigation aid.

Drum of Cement Held N.J. Mom’s Remains; Husband Charged

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) •

A woman whose remains were found inside a 55-gallon cement-filled drum in her apartment building might have been strangled by her husband, authorities said Sunday.

Randy “Amanda” Lehrer was last seen Aug. 17 leaving the diner where she worked, and investigators believe she was killed shortly afterward, Hudson County prosecutor Edward DeFazio told The Jersey Journal.

Her husband, Steven Acuna, was charged with her murder and remained jailed Sunday on $1 million bail. Lehrer’s remains were found Friday in the basement of the apartment building where the couple and their infant daughter lived.

Investigators believe the killing was the result of domestic violence, DeFazio said. He told the newspaper that when investigators found the barrel, it was hidden by construction-type debris. He said Lehrer’s remains were found “encased” in concrete, adding that there was no evidence that she was dismembered.

NYPD CHIEF: POLICE COULD TAKE DOWN PLANE IF NEEDED

NEW YORK (AP) • The chief of the New York Police Department says city police could take down a plane if needed.

Commissioner Ray Kelly told CBS’ “60 Minutes” that after the Sept. 11 attacks, he decided the city couldn’t rely on the federal government alone. He set about creating the NYPD’s own counter-terrorism unit. He said the department is prepared for multiple scenarios and could even take down a plane.

Kelly didn’t divulge details but said “obviously this would be in a very extreme situation.”

Other measures include sending NYPD officers abroad, using radiation detectors and creating a network of surveillance cameras in Manhattan.

The interview aired Sunday evening. It comes just a few weeks after the tenth anniversary of 9/11, when hijackers flew planes into the World Trade Center and Pentagon.

Defiant Yemeni Leader Makes No Pledge to Step Down

BY AHMED AL-HAJ
Associated Press

SANAA, Yemen • Yemen’s defiant president addressed his troubled nation Sunday for the first time since returning to the country after an assassination attempt, making no promise to immediately step down but saying he is committed to a deal to end months of spiraling violence.

Ali Abdullah Saleh appeared in improved health after nearly four months of treatment in neighboring Saudi Arabia for severe burns and other injuries he suffered in a June 3 attack on his compound in Yemen’s capital, Sanaa. Saleh abruptly returned on Friday, and a week of renewed clashes with his opponents intensified, littering the streets of the capital with bodies.

“The crisis is big. You who are chasing power, let’s all go to the ballot boxes,” Saleh said, speaking to his opponents and suggesting elections rather than agreeing to step down.

Yemen’s autocratic ruler of 33 years is under tremendous pressure from street protesters and neighboring Arab nations to transfer power to end the country’s deepening crisis, which has killed hundreds since anti-government demonstrations began in February, ignited by the unrest sweeping the Arab world.

He has signaled an intention several times to sign a U.S.-backed deal to step aside in exchange for immunity from prosecution only to back out at the last minute.

In Sunday’s televised address, he said he was committed to the deal, which was drafted by an alliance of Gulf nations that includes powerful Saudi Arabia.

His opponents, however, do not trust him and believe he is stalling for time while consolidating his hold on power. Saleh has tasked his vice president with overseeing negotiations on the deal, but at no point in his address did he provide any indication he might agree to demands to step down immediately.

Opposition spokesman Mohammed al-Sabri said “Saleh gave a speech full of contradictions.”

“There are very clear demands for Saleh: cease violence, quickly transfer power and sign the deal,” he said.

Over the past week, Saleh’s forces have unleashed heavy shelling on renegade army troops and protesters who have held a sit-in since February at a plaza in the capital they dubbed Change Square. Around 150 people have been killed in the renewed fighting. Armed anti-government tribesmen are also involved in the battles.

A committee of tribal leaders and military officials set up to mediate a pullback of forces by both sides has not received a green light from Saleh to start its work, a military official said Sunday, speaking on condition of anonymity because he was barred from releasing information.

Military transport trucks were still pouring soldiers into the streets.

Yemen’s turmoil is of enormous concern to the United States and Europe because the country has become a haven for Islamic militants, including al-Qaida in the Arabian Peninsula, which Washington says is the most dangerous remnant of the global terror network.

Al-Qaida-linked fighters have already taken advantage of the unrest to overrun several towns in southern Yemen, expanding their range of influence beyond Yemen’s remote hinterlands.

BAGHDAD • Back-to-back bomb blasts ripped through one of the holiest cities in Shiite Islam Sunday, killing at least 10 people in a community still reeling from a deadly bus hijacking earlier this month that left Iraq’s Shiites again feeling hunted.

Four explosions struck the city of Karbala over a five-minute period, government officials said, sending thick black smoke over the city. Two of the bombs targeted an Interior Ministry office that issues ID cards. Another struck near a house, shredding its walls and ceiling. And one of the explosions went off half a mile from an important gold-domed shrine.

“Once again, the terrorist enemies of both Iraq and humanity have committed a new crime against the innocent people of Karbala,” said Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki, a Shiite.

He called the bombings a “heinous crime,” and promised those behind them and the earlier attack on the bus would be punished. He also warned people not to be drawn back into sectarian revenge killings.

“We should stay united and cease statements or acts that would help the criminals in their efforts to ignite sedition,” al-Maliki said.

Ferocious bombing attacks by Sunni insurgent groups like al-Qaida in Iraq targeted the Shiite community whose leaders came to power after the fall of Saddam Hussein. The bloodshed pushed the nation to the edge of civil war.

Violence in Iraq has fallen dramatically since the bloodletting of 2006 and 2007, but militant attacks still appear aimed at re-igniting the nation’s volatile ethnic and religious divide.

The Sept. 12 bus attack targeted Shiite pilgrims from Karbala who were headed to a shrine in neighboring Syria.

The gunmen stopped the bus at a fake checkpoint in the western desert of Anbar province, heavily populated by Sunnis and once one of the heartlands of the insurgency.

The assailants pulled 22 men from the bus and shot them execution-style, leaving the women and children weeping beside a remote highway.

Al-Maliki has been trying to tamp down tensions between officials in Karbala and Anbar since the hijacking. Four suspects are being held in the case, and al-Maliki’s military advisers say at least some foreigners were among the plotters.

Sunday’s bombings in Karbala were meant to raise tensions further, officials said.

“The aim of these explosions is to ignite the sectarian sedition after the killing of 22 Karbala residents in the Anbar desert two weeks ago,” said provincial councilman Hussein Shadhan al-Aboudi. “They also aim to destabilize the security situation in Karbala.”

Besides the 10 people killed, dozens were injured. Estimates ranged from 40 to as high as 110. The casualty figures were provided by three government officials: al-Aboudi, fellow councilman Mohammed al-Mousawi and parliamentarian Jawad Kadim al-Hassnawi.

Raed al-Assali, a government employee in the Karbala Investment Council, said he was sitting in his office doing paperwork when he heard the booms.

“I rushed to the rooftop of our building and I saw thick smoke rising from the blast area,” al-Assali said. “Some people in panic were running in the nearby alleys in order to escape fire and danger.”

Al-Assali noted growing tensions and fear by Karbala residents that they are being targeted by Sunni insurgents.

“There’s a feeling here that some groups are trying to ignite sectarian sedition by targeting Karbala after the crisis with Anbar,” he said, referring to the slaying of the pilgrims.

Karbala, located 55 miles south of Baghdad, is one of the holiest cities in Shiite Islam because two early Muslim leaders, imams Abbas and Hussein, are buried there.

The bus attack alarmed Iraqi and U.S. security officials who are uneasily watching to see if stability will plummet while the American military continues withdrawing from the country. Under a 2008 security agreement, all U.S. troops are required to be out of Iraq by the end of the year.

But concerns about leaving behind partially trained Iraqi forces have spurred Washington and Baghdad to reconsider the deadline, although no agreement has yet been reached to keep U.S. troops in Iraq beyond 2011.

Dispute Over Disaster Aid Ends, Avoiding Shutdown

Breakthrough comes after Federal Emergency Management Agency says it has enough money for disaster relief efforts through Friday, allowing lawmakers to jettison a $1 billion replenishment.

BY DAVID ESPO
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Ending weeks of political brinkmanship, Congress finessed a dispute over disaster aid Monday night and advanced legislation to avoid a partial government shutdown only days away.

The agreement ensured there would be no interruption in assistance to areas battered by disasters such as Hurricane Irene and last summer’s tornados in Joplin, Mo., and also that the government would be able to run normally when the new budget year begins on Saturday.

The Senate approved the resolution after a day of behind-the-scenes talks and occasionally biting debate, spelling an end to the latest in a string of standoffs between Democrats and Republicans over deficits, spending and taxes. Those fights have rattled financial markets and coincided with polls showing congressional approval ratings at historically low levels.

The breakthrough came hours after the Federal Emergency Management Agency indicated it had enough money for disaster relief efforts through Friday. That disclosure allowed lawmakers to jettison a $1 billion replenishment that had been included in the measure — and to crack the gridlock it had caused.

The Democratic-controlled Senate approved the measure on a

Study: Dads Less Likely to Die of Heart Problems

BY MARILYNN MARCHIONE
Associated Press

Fatherhood may be a kick in the old testosterone, but it may also help keep a man alive. New research suggests that dads are a little less likely to die of heart-related problems than childless men are.

The study — by the AARP, the government and several universities — is the largest ever on male fertility and mortality, involving nearly 138,000 men. Although a study like this can’t prove that fatherhood and mortality are related, there are plenty of reasons to think they might be, several heart disease experts said.

Marriage, having lots of friends and even having a dog can lower the chance of heart problems and cardiac-related deaths, previous research suggests. Similarly, kids might help take care of you or give you a reason to take better care of yourself.

Also, it takes reasonably good genes to father a child. An inability to do so might mean a genetic weakness that can spell heart trouble down the road.

“There is emerging evidence that male infertility is a window into a man’s later health,” said Dr. Michael Eisenberg, a Stanford University urologist and fertility specialist who led the study. “Maybe it’s telling us that something else is involved in their inability to have kids.”

The study was published online Monday by the journal Human Reproduction.

Last week, a study of 600 men in the Philippines found that testosterone, the main male hormone, drops after a man becomes a dad. Men who started out with higher levels of it were more likely to become fathers, suggesting that low levels might reflect an underlying health issue that prevents reproduction, Eisenberg said.

In general, higher levels of testosterone are better, but too much or too little can cause HDL, or “good cholesterol,” to fall — a key heart disease risk factor, said Dr. Robert Eckel, past president of the American Heart Association and professor of medicine at the University of Colorado, Denver.

But, he added, many factors such as job stress affect heart risks and the decision to have children.

‘Raise My Taxes,’ Town Hall Attendee Tells President

BY PETER NICHOLAS
Tribune Washington Bureau

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif.

• It’s not often that people plead with a president to raise their taxes. But in a town hall event in Silicon Valley, President Barack Obama found an audience in sync with his argument that the rich need to pay higher taxes so that there is enough money for college scholarships, research and public works projects.

Looking out at the crowd Monday, Obama called on a retired Google employee, Doug Edwards, who said: “My question is, would you please raise my taxes?”

The audience applauded.

The question was the ultimate softball for Obama, a chance to lay out his argument for raising taxes on affluent Americans to cut the deficit without slashing the budget for programs to boost the economy.

Last week, Obama released a deficit reduction plan that relies on $1.5 trillion in additional tax revenue. He is making the case that the wealthiest Americans have made enormous gains at the expense of the middle class in the last few decades and can easily cover a higher tax bill.

Congressional Republicans are balking. They’ve resisted attempts to saddle

You Ought to Be on a Stamp

U.S. Postal Service decides to let living sports stars, writers, artists and other prominent — or not-so-prominent — people take their places in postal history.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON • Who would you put on a stamp? Charlie Sheen? Lady Gaga? Yourself?

Hoping to boost sagging revenue, the U.S. Postal Service on Monday abandoned its longstanding rule that stamps cannot feature people who are still alive and is asking the public for suggestions.

It’s a first that means living sports stars, writers, artists and other prominent — or not-so-prominent — people could take their places in postal history next to the likes of George Washington, Martin Luther King Jr., and Marilyn Monroe.

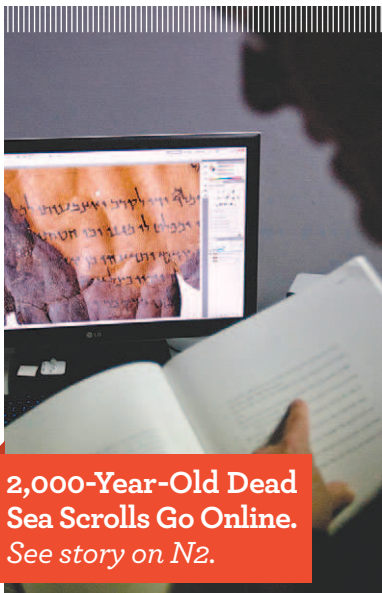

“This change will enable us to pay tribute to individuals for their achievements while they are still alive to enjoy the honor,” said Postmaster General Patrick Donahoe.

But it seems to be at least as much about money as admiration.

For years, the post office has been facing severe financial problems due to the growing use of email. A burst of interest in stamp design and collecting — which the Postal Service is seeking to promote partly through social media — could bring in new dollars, since stamps that are collected rather than used for postage provide added revenue.

Poking fun at the Postal Service’s money woes, Comedian Stephen Colbert has been pushing to become the first living person depicted on a government-issued stamp. His Comedy Central website proposes a “Farewell to Postage” stamp with a photo of him holding up a smartphone that shows an email telling the Postal Service “See Ya!”

SUPREME COURT MAY RULE ON HEALTH CARE EARLY NEXT YEAR

WASHINGTON • The Obama administration set the stage Monday for the Supreme Court to rule early next year on the constitutionality of the president’s health care law by declining to press for a full appeal in a lower court.

The Justice Department announced it will forego an appeal to the full 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta. Such an appeal to the 10-member court could have taken months and delayed a final decision from the high court until at least 2013.

In August, a 2-1 panel of the 11th Circuit became the first appellate court to declare unconstitutional the new requirement that all Americans have health insurance.

Now, the administration can appeal directly to the Supreme Court and ask the justices to schedule the case to be heard and decided during the term that begins next week and ends in June. If the court follows that schedule, the justices will hand down a ruling on Obama’s signature legislation just as the election campaign moves into high gear.

Judging by initial public reaction in interviews Monday, Colbert faces competition.

Cyndi Scarlett, 54, of Alexandria, Va., who works in humanitarian development, touted her choice of Apple Inc. founder Steve Jobs to be the first living person on a stamp. Walking by a post office in downtown Washington, D.C., she cited his company’s role in reshaping everyday life, from the ubiquitous Macintosh and iPod to the iPad.

“He has changed the face of technology in America,” Scarlett said.

Elizabeth Saunders, 38, a former educator who lives in Washington, said she believe first lady Michelle Obama deserves the honor, pointing to her efforts in combating childhood obesity. Saunders said she was impressed when she recently saw the first lady on the TV show, “Extreme Makeover: Home Edition,” building a house for a military family.

“She’s just not afraid to get her hands dirty,” Saunders said.

But Justin Pierce, a 29-year-old consultant from Arlington, Va., had a TV personality in mind for the first stamp: actor Charlie Sheen, who was fired from the show “Two and a Half Men” last season. “He’s an American icon,” Pierce said.

Other suggestions included evangelist Billy Graham, President Obama, Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf, actress Tyra Banks and Paralympic athlete Bonnie St. John.

Dead Sea Scrolls Go Online for First Time

Surfers can search high-resolution images of the scrolls for specific passages, zoom in and out, and translate verses into English.

BY MATTI FRIEDMAN
Associated Press

JERUSALEM • Two thousand years after they were written and decades after they were found in desert caves, some of the world-famous Dead Sea Scrolls went online for the first time on Monday in a project launched by Israel’s national museum and the web giant Google.

The appearance of five of the most important Dead Sea scrolls on the Internet is part of a broader attempt by the custodians of the celebrated manuscripts — who were once criticized for allowing them to be monopolized by small circles of scholars — to make them available to anyone with a computer.

The scrolls include the biblical Book of Isaiah, the manuscript known as the Temple Scroll, and three others. Surfers can search high-resolution images of the scrolls for specific passages, zoom in and out, and translate verses into English.

The originals are kept in a secured vault in a Jerusalem building constructed specifically to house the scrolls. Access requires at least three different keys, a magnetic card and a secret code.

The five scrolls are among those purchased by Israeli researchers between 1947 and 1967 from antiquities dealers, having first been found by Bedouin shepherds in the Judean Desert.

The scrolls, considered by many to be the most significant archaeological find of the 20th century, are thought to have been written or collected by an ascetic Jewish sect that fled Jerusalem for the desert 2,000 years ago and settled at Qumran, on the banks of the Dead Sea. The hundreds of manuscripts that survived, partially or in full, in caves near the site, have shed light on the development of the Hebrew Bible and the origins of Christianity.

The most complete scrolls are held by the Israel Museum, with more pieces and smaller fragments found in other institutions and private collections. Tens of thousands of fragments from 900 Dead Sea manuscripts are held by the Israel Antiquities Authority, which has separately begun its own project to put them online in conjunction with Google.

The Digital Dead Sea Scrolls

See them online at:
<http://dss.collections.imj.org.il/>

Photography work on the project began earlier this month in conjunction with a former NASA scientist. An advanced $250,000 camera developed in Santa Barbara, California allows researchers to discern words and other details not visible to the naked eye.

The latest photography effort by two technicians is centered on a fragment of a manuscript known as the Thanksgiving Scroll. On a computer screen was a piece of the Apocryphon of Daniel, an Aramaic text that includes a verse referring to a figure who “will be called the son of God.” The first fragments of that will be online by the end of the year.

Showdown

“This compromise should satisfy Republicans...and it should satisfy Democrats,” said Senate Majority leader Harry Reid, who added that Budget Director Jacob Lew had informed him that FEMA did not need any additional funding to meet its needs for the final few days of the budget year.

“It’s a win for everyone,” declared Reid, who had spent much of the past few weeks accusing Republicans of choosing to heed the wishes of tea party adherents rather than the needs of their own constituents battered by acts of nature.

Senate Republican leader Mitch McConnell of Kentucky said it was a “reasonable way to keep the government operational.”

But he got in a final jab at Democrats, noting that the disaster funds sought by the Obama administration and its allies in Congress were now known to be unneeded.

“In my view, this entire fire drill was completely unnecessary,” he said.

But not even the dispute-resolving agreement prevented Democrats from proceeding to a politically charged vote earlier in the evening that was designed to force Republicans to decide whether immediate aid to disaster victims or deficit concerns held a higher priority.

And the rhetoric was far harsher during the day on the Senate floor, when Mary Landrieu, D-La., unleashed an unusually personal attack on House Majority Leader Eric Cantor, R-Va., saying the weeks-long controversy started when he said, “Before we can provide help we need to find offsets in the budget.”

She called that “the Cantor doctrine” and said the controversy “could have been avoided if Cantor had just said, ‘I’m sorry, but I made a mistake.’ But instead of saying that, he doubled down,” she said.

Huge Floods in Manila as Typhoon Hits Philippines

ASSOCIATED PRESS

MANILA, Philippines • Massive flooding hit the Philippine capital on Tuesday as typhoon winds and rains isolated the historic old city where residents waded in waist-deep waters, dodging tree branches and debris. At least seven people were killed.

Authorities ordered more than 100,000 people across the country to shelter from Typhoon Nesat’s rains and wind gusts of up to 106 miles per hour. Schools and offices were shuttered, and thousands were stranded by grounded flights and ferries kept in ports.

The typhoon made landfall before dawn over eastern mountainous provinces of Isabela and Aurora, which face the Pacific Ocean, then headed inland through farmlands north of Manila, the government weather bureau said. It was packing sustained winds of 87 mph.

The first reported death was a 1 year old who drowned in the central island province of Cataduanes after falling into a river, the government disaster agency reported. As the typhoon moved into Manila, a mother and child were killed after their house was hit by a falling tree in the suburb of Caloocan, and four were reported killed by a collapsing wall in the suburb of Valenzuela.

Four fishermen were missing while more than 50 others were rescued along eastern shores after their boats overturned in choppy seas. Forecasters warned of 12-foot-high waves.

Along downtown Manila’s baywalk, cars and buses were stuck and residents waded through floodwaters as waves as high as palm trees washed over the seawall, turning a six-lane highway into a huge brown river.

Sidewalks and entrances to buildings were swamped and vehicles struggled to navigate the narrow streets.

Manila Hospital moved patients from its ground floor, where waters were neck-deep, spokeswoman Evangeline Morales said. Hospital generators were flooded and the building had no power since early Tuesday.

Taxes

“job creators” with a heftier tax burden, creating a stand-off that is likely to persist through the 2012 election.

At the town hall event, sponsored by the professional networking site LinkedIn, Obama said the issue is one of basic fairness.

“The income of those at the top has gone up exponentially over the last couple of decades whereas the incomes and wages of the middle class have flat-lined over the last 15 years,” he said.

“We’re not talking about going to punitive rates that would somehow inhibit you from wanting to be part of a startup or work hard or be successful. We’re talking about going back to the rates that existed as recently as the ‘90s, when as I recall Silicon Valley was doing pretty good.”

After the event, Edwards said in an interview that he is part of group of “patriotic millionaires” calling for “higher taxes.”

“I really wanted to encourage him and let him know there are people like me who support raising taxes on people who can afford it the most,” said Edwards, 53.

Asked if he was satisfied by Obama’s answer, Edwards said: “I would love to have him say, ‘Yeah, absolutely, we’re going to raise taxes.’ But you can’t do that without working with Congress, and it’s not entirely up to him.”

Obama is in the middle of a three-day Western trip that includes seven campaign fundraising events.

OBITUARIES

Juanita Faye Wilson

June 19, 1941-Sept. 24, 2011

BUHL • Juanita Faye Wilson, 70, of Buhl, passed away Saturday, Sept. 24, 2011, after a courageous battle with cancer.

She was born June 19, 1941, to Edith Todd and Conrad King in Castleford, Idaho. In 1958, Juanita married Jim Wilson in Midway, Calif. After 30 years in California, they moved back to Buhl, Idaho.

Juanita is survived by her husband of 53 years, Jim Wilson; sons, Jimmie Wilson and Randy (Marty) Wilson; five grandchildren; four great-grandchildren; mother, Edith Jones; sister, Janet King; and mother-in-law, Agnes Wilson, all of Buhl.

At Juanita's request, no funeral is planned. In lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to the Buhl Quick Response Unit. Cremation is under the direction of Farmer Funeral Chapel in Buhl.

Murray Charles Harper

Nov. 16, 1909-Sept. 24, 2011

Murray Charles Harper, 101, of Twin Falls, Idaho, died Saturday, Sept. 24, 2011, at his home after a long and productive life.

He was born Nov. 16, 1909, in Rigby, Idaho, the son of Rigby pioneers George and Zenobia Jane Sutherland Harper. He attended schools in Rigby from first grade through graduation from Rigby High School in 1927. Murray was an active member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints all of his life and, from 1930 to 1932, he served an LDS mission in New Mexico. Things were different then. There was no MTC preparedness for missionaries and he had to hitchhike down to the New Mexico area by himself and learn the Spanish language while serving his mission. In this, he succeeded very well.

After he returned, he married Cordelia Bright, daughter of John Monroe and Amy Johnson Bright, in the Logan Utah LDS Temple on Feb. 1, 1933.

He worked several occupations in his lifetime, living in Idaho, Arizona and California the first few years of their marriage. In 1946, he went back to farming in Rigby. In 1953, he obtained a position in Seattle, Wash., with Boeing Aircraft, eventually transferring to Moses Lake, Wash., with Boeing from 1954 to 1963. After retiring from Boeing, he purchased a laundromat in Lewiston, Idaho, that they managed until 1983.

They eventually sold the Laundromat, finally settling down to retirement in Twin Falls, Idaho, where they could be closer to their children.

He was preceded in death by his wife, Cordelia in 1990; one daughter, Sunda Holman in 2001; and two great-grandchildren, Gillian Lee Elkins in 2000 and Miley Jean McCauley in 2009. Survivors are children, Duane (Jean) Harper of Rigby, Idaho; Roeann Harper of Mesa, Ariz., and Mike (Brenda) Harper of Meridian, Idaho. Also surviving are 10 grandchildren and 17 great-grandchildren.

A celebration of Murray's life will be held as a graveside service at noon Thursday, Sept. 29, at the Rigby Pioneer Cemetery in Rigby, Idaho, next to his wife. A viewing for family and friends will take place from 7 until 8:30 p.m. Wednesday at White Mortuary, 136 Fourth Ave. E. in Twin Falls.

Services are under the direction of White Mortuary, "Chapel by the Park" in Twin Falls. Condolences may be left online at www.whitemortuary.com.

Julie Wolfe Keyes

Aug. 20, 1959-Sept. 24, 2011

GREAT FALLS, Mont. • Julie Wolfe Keyes of Great Falls, Mont., passed away Saturday, Sept. 24, 2011.

Julie Trader was born Aug. 20, 1959, to LeRoy Trader and Nancy Green. She was raised in Fairfield, Idaho, along with her little brother, Jeffery. She graduated from Camas County and moved to Grand View, where she married Jim Wolfe and started her family. She had two children, Kyria and Brandon Wolfe; she spent her days raising them. Her family was always her pride and joy. She returned to school and graduated from Idaho State University with a bachelor's degree. She started work at the Walker Center in Gooding, Idaho, where she worked as a drug and alcohol counselor.

After her kids graduated and started their own lives, she decided to start a new chapter of her own. She moved to Great Falls, Mont., where she married Anthony Keyes on July 2, 2011. She had a beautiful wedding and was marrying a man that she loved with all her heart. She was always very good at helping people; if you were ever in need of a hug, food, some extra love or a good butt-kicking, she was always the first in line to give it.

She took many people into her family and never looked back. She always said she had a huge family and lots of kids. She had a heart of gold and a smile that lit up a dark room. Julie's laughter was contagious. You could be having the worst day ever, but after spending a few minutes with Julie, things always looked brighter!

Julie was one of those rare people who never met a stranger and engaged everyone she met, and people never forgot Julie. She was definitely a unique, one-of-a-kind person — the best kind.

Julie was surpassed in death by her brother, Jeffery Muffley; nephew, Juston Wolfe; and grandparents, Pete and Adela Trader and Ronald and Dorothy Muffley. She is survived by daughter, Kyria Wolfe; and son, Brandon Wolfe; grandson, Bradley Wolfe; parents, Nancy Green and LeRoy Trader; husband, Anthony Keyes; and stepchildren Michelle, Alyssa and Todd Keyes.

She lived a very blessed life full of love, adventure and happiness. She will be missed greatly and forever loved.

A service will be held at noon Friday, Sept. 30, at the Living Waters Presbyterian Church, 821 E. Main in Wendell, Idaho. Following the service will be a celebration of Julie's life at the Elks Lodge, 438 Main St. in Gooding, Idaho. Please bring food, drinks and good stories to share.

Condolences may be left online at www.croxfordfuneralhome.com and www.gftribune.com/obituaries.

Louise Fern Lipe-Elliott

May 22, 1923-Sept. 24, 2011

HAGERMAN • Louise Fern Lipe-Elliott, 88, a resident of Hagerman, passed away Saturday, Sept. 24, 2011, at Bennett Hills Care Center in Gooding, Idaho.

Louise was born May 22, 1923, in Hailey, Idaho, the third of six children born to Horace Lipe and Bessie Steele. She attended school in both Bliss and Hagerman, Idaho, and graduated from Hagerman High School in 1939. Louise married Wilbur D. Elliott on Oct. 21, 1940, and they shared 53 wonderful years together until his passing in 1993.

She is survived by her five children, Jess D. Dick (Karen) Elliott of Bliss, Idaho; Mike Elliott (fiancee, Robin Briggs) of Bliss, Idaho, Sheri (Dave) Wakagawa of Boise, Idaho; John (Carol) Elliott of Wendell, Idaho, and Kristy (Jeff) Tupper of St. Anthony, Idaho. She is also survived by her sisters, Daisy Durfee (Carl Jensen) of Mullen, Idaho, and Beth Ann (Wayne) Inman of Bellevue, Idaho. Louise has 19 grandchildren and 38 great-grandchildren, all of whom were very precious to her. She is preceded in death by her parents; Bessie and H.O. Lipe; husband, Wilbur D. Elliott; her brothers, Dick Lipe, Oren Lipe and Gene Lipe; and her daughter-in-law, Lynn Abernathy-Elliott.

The family would like to thank Dr. Gies and the staff of Associates in Family Practice, as well as the loving staff at Bennett Hills Care Center for their compassionate care for our Mother, Grandma and Great-Grandma.

A funeral service will be held at 10 a.m. Thursday, Sept. 29, at the Hagerman Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. A visitation for family and friends will be held from 9 to 9:45 a.m. at the church. Burial will follow at the Hagerman Cemetery.

Arrangements are under the direction of Demaray Funeral Service, Gooding Chapel. Condolences may be sent to the family by visiting the obituary link at www.demarayfuneralservice.com.

Antonia G. Rodriguez

May 10, 1937-Sept. 24, 2011

HEYBURN • Antonia Garcia Rodriguez went home to her loving savior Saturday, Sept. 24, 2011, surrounded by her loving family.

Antonia was born May 10, 1937, to Pedro B. Garcia and Florencia M. Garcia in Lubbock, Texas. She married Jesse T. Rodriguez on Aug. 1, 1955. Together they had eight children, 23 grandchildren and 26 great-grandchildren. Some of the joys of her life were spending time with her family. She enjoyed crocheting, embroidering and doing word searches. Antonia was instrumental in helping start a mission in Glenns Ferry, Idaho. She served her church in many areas. She was an excellent cook and was always put in charge of cooking for church functions, family weddings and get-togethers. Antonia served her community as a Spanish interpreter. She never knew a stranger because she made friends with people instantly. She will be greatly missed by all who knew her.

She is survived by her husband of 56 years, Jesse Rodriguez; her children, Christine Rodriguez from Heyburn, Joe Rodriguez (Merlena) from Mountain Home, Ruban Rodriguez from Boise, Rachel Rodriguez (Doug) from Rupert, Norma Zimmerman (Tim) from Sandy, Utah, Jesse Rodriguez (Heidi) from Mountain Home, Cynthia Frederick (Wyatt) from Grandview and Jessica Ramirez (Robert) from Rupert; and her four brothers and three sisters. She was preceded in death by her parents, Pedro and Florencia Garcia; her brother, Dorotheo Garcia; sister, Ernestina Otero; and grandchildren, Alexis N. Rodriguez, Maricella C. Ramirez and Eric G. Rodriguez.

The family extends a special thank you to the staff of Cassia Regional Hospital ICU, Dr. Walter Graham and Melinda, Melissa and Nicole with Idaho Home Health and Hospice.

The funeral will be at 11 a.m. Thursday, Sept. 29, at the Mountain View Christian Center, 317 W. 27th in Burley, with Pastor Efreden Valle officiating. Burial will follow at Riverside Cemetery in Heyburn. Friends may call from 6 to 8 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 28, at Morrison Funeral Home, 188 S. Highway 24 in Rupert, and one hour prior to the service Thursday at the church. Arrangements are under the care of Morrison Funeral Home in Rupert.

I sincerely recommend Hearing Aid Counselors!

My experience has been first class from the service to the office staff from day one. I no longer have to say, "please repeat that" or "no, I did not hear you". Now I say, "yes I heard you dear". Unless you try their products, you will never know how much better you will hear and feel. I sincerely recommend Hearing Aid Counselors!

THE STATE OF IDAHO SENDS GREETINGS TO:
CHRIS JOHN DOE

YOU ARE NOTIFIED THAT:
A Petition, a copy of which is attached, has been filed in the above-entitled matter in the Magistrate's Division of the District Court of Twin Falls County, Idaho, by the Prosecuting Attorney, alleging the above-named child comes within the Court's jurisdiction under the Child Protective Act.
You are hereby directed to appear personally for a Review Hearing at the Twin Falls County Courthouse, 425 Shoshone Street, Twin Falls, Idaho, on December 1, 2011 at 9:30 AM.
You are notified that service of the attached Petition upon you, as the parent(s), guardian, or custodian of this child, confers personal jurisdiction of the Court upon you and subjects you to the provisions of the Child Protective Act.
You are notified that if you fail to appear without reasonable cause, the Court may proceed in your absence or you may be proceeded against for contempt of Court.
You are notified that the parent(s), guardian, or a custodian may be financially liable for the support and/or treatment of the child.
You are further notified that the child and parent(s), guardian, or custodian have the right to be represented by an attorney of your choosing, or if financially unable to pay, have the right to have an attorney appointed by the Court to represent the child or the parent(s), guardian, or custodian at county expense. If you request to have an attorney appointed at county expense, you must appear before the date of the hearing given above, at which time the Court shall consider appointment of an attorney for the child and inquire whether the parent(s), guardian, or custodian require the separate appointment of an attorney.
You are further notified that there shall be a rebuttable presumption that if a child is placed in the custody of the IDHW and was also placed in care out of the home for a period not less than fifteen (15) out of the last twenty-two (22) months from the date of Adjudication, the IDHW shall initiate a Petition for Termination of Parental Rights. This presumption may be rebutted by a finding by the Court that the filing of a Petition for Termination of Parental Rights would not be in the best interest of the child and their family, or that the child is placed permanently with a relative.

Today is Monday, Sept. 26, the 269th day of 2011. There are 96 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On Sept. 26, 1789, Thomas Jefferson was confirmed by the Senate to be the first U.S. secretary of state; John Jay, the first chief justice; Edmund Randolph, the first attorney general.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1777, British troops occupied Philadelphia during the American Revolution.
In 1892, John Philip Sousa and his newly formed band performed publicly for the first time, at the Stillman Music Hall in Plainfield, N.J.
In 1914, the Federal Trade Commission was established.
In 1918, the Meuse-Argonne offensive, resulting in an Allied victory against the Germans, began during World War I.
In 1955, following word that President Dwight D. Eisenhower had suffered a heart attack, the New York Stock Exchange saw its worst price decline since 1929.
In 1960, the first-ever debate between presidential nominees took place in Chicago as Democrat John F. Kennedy and Republican Richard M. Nixon faced off before a national TV audience.
In 1981, the twin-engine Boeing 767 made its official debut in Everett, Wash.
In 1986, William H. Rehnquist was sworn in as the 16th chief justice of the United States, while Antonin Scalia joined the Supreme Court as its 103rd member.
In 1990, the Motion Picture Association of America announced it had created a new rating, NC-17, to replace the X rating.
In 1991, four men and four women began a two-year stay inside a sealed-off structure in Oracle, Ariz., called Biosphere 2. (They emerged from Biosphere on this date in 1993.)
Ten years ago: In truce talks held at the urging of the United States, Israel and the Palestinians agreed on a series of confidence-building measures aimed at ending a year of fighting. During a visit to Armenia, Pope John Paul II paid his respects to the vast number of Armenians who had perished under Ottoman rule. In Cincinnati, Stephen Roach, a white police officer, was acquitted of negligent homicide in the shooting death of Timothy Thomas, an unarmed black man; the killing had sparked the city's worst racial unrest in three decades.
Five years ago: A declassified version of a government intelligence report ordered released by President George W. Bush said the war in Iraq had become a "cause celebre" for Islamic extremists, breeding deep resentment of the U.S. that was likely to get worse before it got better. Former Enron chief financial officer Andrew Fastow was sentenced by a federal judge in Houston to six years in prison for his role in the fallen energy company's bankruptcy (Fastow is projected to be released in Dec. 2011). Iva Toguri D'Aquino, who was convicted and later pardoned for being World War II propagandist "Tokyo Rose," died in Chicago at age 90. World Golf Hall of Famer Byron Nelson died in Roanoke, Texas, at age 94.
One year ago: Gloria Stuart, the 1930s Hollywood beauty who later became the oldest Academy Award acting nominee as the spunky survivor in "Titanic" died in Los Angeles at age 100.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

“That life is worth living is the most necessary of assumptions, and were it not assumed, the most impossible of conclusions.”
— George Santayana

Knowing which cards to keep as a defender may sometimes depend on what declarer doesn’t do.

Today’s hand comes from “Planning in Defence” — part of the excellent Bridge Technique Series (Master Point Press), written by David Bird and Marc Smith. Put yourself in the East seat and walk through the play until you come to the critical moment.

West leads three rounds of spades against five clubs. Declarer ruffs the third round, then continues with four rounds of clubs. You are in the East seat and have discarded one heart on the third spade and another on the third club. This means that you are down to heart Q-J-9, and diamond 10-9-7-3 and must make yet another discard. So what do you choose?

(Incidentally, in the real world, you might be able to rely on some suit-preference clues from your partner. But let’s assume you are playing with a player whom you do not trust.)

In these situations it is usually right to retain the same suit length as dummy, or as declarer, if his length in the side-suits is known. Therefore it looks best to retain four diamonds. However, there is a more accurate pointer.

Declarer made no attempt to ruff a heart in dummy. Therefore you can conclude that he had no need to do so. Accordingly, he holds no more than a doubleton in the suit. Hence, he has four diamonds, so you must retain that suit.

ANSWER: At teams you would probably look to a fourth-highest club or an attacking lead like a small spade as your best shot to beat the hand. At pairs I prefer the diamond jack as least likely to cost a trick. At matchpoints your main objective is to do one trick better than others with your cards. Occasionally, an attacking lead from a bad suit in a bad hand will set the game; more often, it will cost a trick to no good purpose.

DEAR ABBY: I'm going through a divorce and have decided not to begin dating until it's final. I'm doing this because I wouldn't be comfortable dating someone who is still married. I told myself I would politely explain this to any gentleman who asks me out, but no one has — and I'm a little bothered by it. No one approaches me at all. I don't wear my ring and I consider myself to be a very attractive person.

I have had several boyfriends throughout my life, and looking back at them and my marriage, I realize that I was the first to show an interest and ask them out. I'd like it if a guy approached me and made the first move. I'm worried that when I'm ready to date it won't happen. I understand that approaching a stranger is a little unnerving, but I'm beginning to take it personally.

Please don't suggest going to activities outside the home to meet people. I work and go to school full-time, so that's not an option any-time soon.

— LOOKING FOR A DATE IN THE FUTURE

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR LOOKING (BUT NOT LOOKING): If you're asking me how to get a man to ask you out so you can tell him, "No, I'm not ready," I'm sorry but I can't help you. I don't know the circumstances of your divorce, but if they were hurtful, it is not uncommon for the injured party to "become invisible" until he or she heals enough to once again send out "available and interested" vibes. You say you're not quite there yet, which may be why you're not attracting any interest.

While your schedule is so full — unless you meet someone at school or through your job — your love life may have to stay on hold until you can squeeze it in.

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who routinely makes offhand, sarcastic remarks to me. He recently told me my story wasn't worth listening to, which makes me wonder if he's insecure or just doesn't care for my company. I feel devalued and I'm beginning to be weary of his "zingers." Sometimes I'd rather not be in his company, but my wife and I have no problem with his wife. Any suggestions?

— SICK OF THE ZINGERS IN MILWAUKEE

DEAR SICK OF THE ZINGERS: This "friend" may think he's being clever, or he may be utterly tactless. If you'd rather not be around him, follow your instincts and avoid him. His wife and yours can continue their friendship, and if the woman asks why there are no more foursomes, she should be told the truth. Once they see their social circle is shrinking, he may change his ways. And if he doesn't, you will no longer have to tolerate his rudeness.

DEAR ABBY: I was dating this guy for 5 1/2 years. It was a struggle because of all the problems I suffered through in my previous relationships. He assured me that he wasn't like the rest. I believed that we were getting back on track, slowly.

A few days ago, I received a letter in the mail from a woman telling me they had gotten married. Enclosed was a wedding picture of the two of them. The date of the wedding was on the back of the picture. I was shocked to see that the wedding had taken place while we were together. What should I do?

— HURTING HEART IN OHIO

DEAR HURTING HEART: Send her a thank-you letter, tell her you won't be seeing her husband again in this life and write him off. And one more thing: Be grateful she clued you in, because if she hadn't, you could still be wasting time with this two-timing liar.

IF SEPTEMBER 26 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You are in peak form to appeal to the public and make your mark in the year ahead. Don't resist change, especially this month and in February, as the only things that will alter are things that have outworn their welcome. During January, your popularity hits a peak and everyone only sees your good side so that is an excellent time for networking or romance, but in business matters your lack of common sense can prove costly. In June, you may have a chance to land a lucrative position or otherwise improve your circumstances. Make key moves such as buying a house or signing a business contact in late June when a guardian angel seems to watch over you and when your fervent prayers could be answered.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): If it isn't broken, don't fix it. Your charming manners can attract others to your side, so this is a good time to seek support or impress others if you stifle a desire to implement drastic changes to procedures.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Concentrate on friendships instead of love. Those closest to you may seem to lack interest if you push sensual buttons today. Put your energy into getting more organized and focus on business needs.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Casual conversation is not necessarily concise communication. Your message may be misunderstood whether you are trying to untangle a billing problem or finalizing a contract. Check things twice.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Use wooden nickels for firewood. Remain alert as money could slip through your fingers. Don't be disappointed if your efforts to please others fall short or if you sense insincerity. Wait to make key moves.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Keep those extra irons out of the fire. Forceful sales tactics might rub others the wrong way. Although it is Monday and time to start a new workweek, you may quickly find you are spread too thin.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Crosscurrents in the background can drag you down. It is easy to think you are right when you are wrong, so it is best to reserve making a decision on important issues. Keep your money in your wallet today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Fated meetings of the romantic kind might be in the stars. Someone special might show up on your doorstep, but you must let the proper conventions slow things down. Avoid rushing into someone's arms.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A mystery may cloud a key relationship. Wait out temporary disruptions and opposition to your plans. It might be important to steer clear of deals with associates who may have ulterior motives.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Money talks, they say, but all yours seems to say is goodbye. You should be tough on yourself. Rein in a tendency to indulge in luxury items or to take unnecessary investment risks.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Don't let tiny misunderstandings undermine your confidence. Others sense that you are intensely preoccupied or feel that you are enveloped in an air of mystery that is both intriguing and unsettling.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): It pays to be discriminating. In your frame of mind, you may accept the first offer that comes your way. A love of the luxurious might tempt you to spend your paycheck on things you can't afford.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Pull up. A passing period of planetary turmoil may send relationships off into a tailspin. Be patient as this will pass, but it might be tempting to slam the door on your way out or to renege on a promise.

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

Stocks Jump on Hopes for a Europe Fix; Dow Up 272

NEW YORK (AP) • Stocks had their biggest gains in more than two weeks Monday after European officials pledged to take action to resolve the region's debt problems. The Dow Jones industrial average jumped 272 points, making up about a third of last week's losses. European ministers told a meeting of global finance leaders in Washington over the weekend that they would take bolder steps to fight the debt crisis, which threatens to slow the global economy. President Barack Obama called on Europe's leadership Monday to move more quickly to address the problems. The Dow Jones industrial average shot up 272.38 points, or 2.5 percent, to close at 11,043.86. It was the biggest gain since Sept. 7. JPMorgan Chase & Co. jumped 7 percent to $31.65, the most of the 30 stocks in the Dow. The Standard & Poor's 500 rose 26.52, or 2.3 percent, to 1,162.95. The Nasdaq composite rose 33.46, or 1.4 percent, to 2,516.69. About three stocks rose for every one that fell on the New York Stock Exchange. All 10 industry groups in the S&P 500 rose.

Dollar Turns Lower Against the Euro

NEW YORK (AP) • The dollar turned lower against the euro Monday as investors evaluated published reports that European officials are working on a plan to help resolve the region's debt crisis.

The plan, reported by British newspapers, is said to include a possible Greek default, a recapitalization of banks and an increase to the bailout fund. The reports said the plan would try to stop the crisis from spreading to other countries.

Global stock markets rose Monday on the hope that officials may do more to contain the debt crisis, though some eurozone officials tried to reduce expectations, saying a quick fix is not likely.

Children Say ‘Potato,’ USDA Says ‘Poh-tay-NO’

BY DAVID SHARP

Associated Press

PORTLAND, Maine • Sen. Susan Collins, who hails from Maine's potato country and picked potatoes as a girl, is working to restore some respect for the humble spud, which is on the verge of being virtually banished from the nation's school lunch programs.

New guidelines from the U.S. Department of Agriculture would eliminate potatoes altogether from school breakfasts and drastically reduce the amount of potatoes served in lunches.

Collins, R-Maine, said the unassuming white potato has its place alongside more highfalutin vegetables in school cafeterias. She believes potatoes are healthy, as long as they're not fried.

"I certainly agree that french fries is not the healthiest choice, but a baked potato can be a good source of potassium for our children," said Collins, who has enlisted Democratic Sen. Mark Udall of Colorado, another potato-growing state, to help her fight the anti-spud movement.

Collins and Udall will attempt to strip funding to implement the new guidelines when the USDA appropriations bill goes to the Senate floor, sometime in the coming weeks or months. The House-approved USDA appropriations bill already prohibits funds from being used to further the proposed USDA guidelines.

The proposal announced by the USDA in January puts focus on fruits, vegetables and whole grains while limiting sodium, banning trans fats and reducing starches.

The guidelines would limit starchy vegetables — corn, peas and lima beans, in addition to potatoes — to two servings a week. That's about one cup.

Potato growers across the nation claimed the first major nutritional overhaul of students' meals in more than a decade unfairly singled out and stigmatized spuds, which already took their lumps along with pasta and bread and other carbo-loaded foods during the low-carb diet craze a few years ago.

Many scientists insist there are better alternatives.

Regardless of whether it's baked, boiled or fried, a medium-sized potato packs up to 220 calories and is a food that has been associated with weight gain in the U.S., said Dr. David Heber, director of the UCLA Center For Human Nutrition and author of "What Color is Your Diet?"

And folks needn't feel sorry for potato-loving kids, he said.

"They're not going to stop eating potatoes. They'll be eating them at home, and they'll be eating them in restaurants. But I think the school cafeteria should be a place where children learn about healthy nutrition, not a copy of a fast-food restaurant."

Dr. David Heber, director of the UCLA Center For Human Nutrition

"They're not going to stop eating potatoes. They'll be eating them at home, and they'll be eating them in restaurants. But I think the school cafeteria should be a place where children learn about healthy nutrition, not a copy of a fast-food restaurant," Heber said.

The National Potato Council says the proposal would carry a large but unknown cost to farmers in lost sales, as well as a $6.8 billion cost for school districts that will have to line up more costly foods mandated under the guidelines.

And some questioned whether reducing potato consumption at school would yield big improvements in children's health.

Putting an increased emphasis on physical education — getting couch potatoes into the gymnasium or onto a sports field — would have a far greater impact on reducing childhood obesity, said Tim Hobbs, director of development for the Maine Potato Board.

"There's other ways to address childhood obesity. I don't know that limiting potatoes in the school lunch program is going to have the desired impact," Hobbs said.

Virtually all agree that the problem is the french fry, a ubiquitous item on school menus in many parts of the country, sometimes getting served every day.

Reducing the servings of potatoes and french fries is necessary to make room for more servings of healthier vegetables, which are being muscled off school menus, said Margo G. Wootan, director of nutrition policy at the Center for Science in the Public Interest.

But some argued getting rid of the french fry doesn't require getting rid of the potato.

Heidi Kessler, school nutrition manager for Let's Go, a program aimed at fighting childhood obesity at the Barbara Bush Children's Hospital at Maine Medical Center, supports the goals of the proposed school lunch nutrition guidelines. But she agreed with Collins that the USDA should have focused on the way potatoes are prepared, targeting french fries instead of all white potatoes.

"They're inexpensive, kids like them and they're easy to store," she said, "and they absolutely have nutrient value that can contribute to a healthy diet."

Many schools already are reducing potatoes.

In Portland, where 5,000 meals a day are served at 16 schools, potatoes are limited to once or twice a week, said Ron Adams, food service director for Portland schools.

"The potatoes and some of those other starchy vegetables are part of a balanced diet," Adams said. "It's about how often that those items are on the menu."

The new school lunch guidelines were required by the Healthy Hunger-Free Kids Act, which required the USDA to issue science-based guidelines based on recommendations of the Institute of Medicine.

If all goes according to plan, the new rules would take effect next summer. But first, the USDA must review more than 130,000 comments from supporters and opponents. All of those comments will be considered before the final rule is issued, said Kevin Concannon, USDA undersecretary for food, nutrition and consumer services.

Some see the writing on the wall.

The government already put the kibosh on potatoes in the USDA's program for low-income pregnant women and their children, known as WIC, barring federal dollars from being spent on potatoes.

Now the USDA is going after potatoes again.

Wootan said parents are on board.

"When parents tell their kids to eat their vegetables, they don't mean french fries. They don't mean hash browns, either. Potatoes have a role in the school lunch program, but they shouldn't be on the menu every day. The USDA proposal is completely reasonable," she said.

FOUND:

An adult Chocolate Labrador was found in Buhl 9-20-11.

He is middle aged and is neutered. Call to identify.

AVAILABLE FOR ADOPTION:

Donations are greatly appreciated. We are in desperate need of adult and puppy food. Thank you Loretta-linn is a beautiful Heeler/Border Collie mix. She is white with black spots and is absolutely adorable. She is about 7 weeks-old.

Conway Twitty is a handsome Heeler/Border Collie mix. He is black with some white markings. He is about six-weeks-old and came into the shelter with his sister Loretta. They were found in an ally starving and scared. They are doing really well now and are eager to find there forever homes.

Darby is a sweet little black Labrador puppy. She probably is mixed with another breed because she has a little bit of white. However, she has the classic Labrador head and ears. Darby loves to swim and fetch and is very affectionate. She will make a great family pet and might even be that new hunting companion for some lucky guy.

Gypsy was left abandoned in a back yard with 2 feet of chain. If it hadn't been for a good Samaritan neighbor she wouldn't have made it to us. She is a beautiful Australian Shepherd mix with a red brindle coat. Gypsy is probably about 3 years old.

Miracle Max is a 6 month old chocolate Lab. Max came to the shelter about four months ago and has been under medical care. He was tied in the back of a pickup, jumped out and got tangled up with the back tire. The tire acted as a belt sander removing all of the muscle tissue and much of the bone on Max's rear leg. Rather than euthanizing Max or amputating the leg, Dr. Jones and his staff spent the past several months caring for Max with herbal therapies. Max's leg is now fully functional.

Marly is a sweetheart, she is a 10 week old Border Collie mix puppy. She came into our shelter with her siblings Marley and Harley. She is black and white. Carly would be that perfect addition to your home.

Hannah is a 3 month old chocolate Labrador mix puppy. She has a some white markings. She is a sweetheart!

Missy-Mae is a Beagle/Basset Hound mix. She is a young adult, probably about 2 or 3-years-old. Missy is tri-colored and very affectionate.

Kelsey is a female Pointer Border Collie mix puppy. White with large black spots..really cute!

Murphey is about ten mos old. He is a Shih Tzu/Terrier mix. He is tan and black and has a unique wire coat. Murphey is very sweet and affectionate.

The adoption fee is $75 and includes spaying/neutering and the first set of vaccinations.

PORTER, an individual; SUN MEADOWS EAST SUBDIVISION, INC., an Idaho corporation,
Defendants.NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN under and by virtue of a Writ of Execution issued out of the above-entitled court in the above-captioned action, I have this day levied upon all the right, title, claim and interest of defendant ("Judgment Debtor"), in and to all that certain real property, described on the attached Exhibit A, located in Jerome County, State of Idaho.BY VIRTUE of a Writ of Execution in my hands, issued out of the District Court of the Fifth Judicial District, of the State of Idaho, in and for the County of Jerome in the above-entitled action to the Sheriff of Jerome County, duly attested on this 13th day of September, 2011, I have levied upon all the right, title, and interest of defendant Paul Lloyd Builders & Developers, Inc. (hereafter collectively the "Judgment Debtor"), in and to the following described real property, a description of the subject real property is attached hereto as Exhibit A, situated in Jerome County, Idaho.

The Sheriff, by Certificate of Sale, will transfer the right, title, and interest of the Judgment Debtor in and to the real property at the time the execution or attachment was levied. The Sheriff will give possession but does not guarantee clear title nor continued possessory right to the purchaser.

Pursuant to Idaho Code Section 11-402, the judgment debtor or redemptioner may redeem the property from the purchaser within one (1) year after the sale, if the real property sold consisted of a tract of land of more than twenty (20) acres, and within six (6) months after the sale if the real property sold consisted of a tract of land of twenty (20) acres or less, on paying the purchaser the amount of his purchase with interest thereon at the rate allowed in Section 28-22-104(1), Idaho Code, from the date of sale to the date of redemption, together with the amount of any assessment or taxes which the purchaser may have paid thereon after the commencement of the action and which are not included in the judgment, and interest at the rate allowed in section 28-22-104(1), Idaho Code, on such amount; and, if the purchaser be also a creditor having a prior lien to that of the redemptioner, other than the judgment under which such purchase was made, the amount of such lien with interest at the rate allowed in Section 28-22-104(1), Idaho Code; provided, in mortgage foreclosure proceedings, the amount necessary to redeem the property sold under execution shall not include any sum for attorney's fees greater than the fee actually paid by the judgment creditor or which the judgment creditor has by written instrument become unconditionally obligated to pay to his attorney for prosecuting his claim to judgment; and provided, further, the amount of such fee shall be proven by affidavits of the attorney who has received and the person who has paid the fee or by other competent evidence to be presented to the sheriff for his guidance in carrying out the provisions of law relating to redemption; and, provided further, that such redemptioner shall not be required to pay any attorney's fees unless such fees shall have been paid within six (6) months after the sheriff's certificate of sale shall have issued, or within such time the judgment creditor has become unconditionally obligated by written instrument to pay such fees.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on Thursday, the 13th day of October, 2011, at 10:00 AM at Jerome County Courthouse, 300 North Lincoln, Jerome, Idaho, I will sell all the right, title and interest of the said Judgment Debtor in and to the said above described real property, at public auction, to the highest bidder, for cash in lawful money of the United States, to satisfy said execution and all costs.

Given under my hand, this 13 day of September, 2011.

Due to expansion, promotion and a couple of cross-country relocations, the Times-News has immediate openings in the advertising, circulation and news departments.

ADVERTISING SALES SUPERVISOR

We are seeking a high-energy and enthusiastic advertising supervisor with strong interpersonal skills who possesses an entrepreneurial spirit. The successful candidate will have both business-to-business sales and management experience. Must demonstrate ability to effectively manage, lead, and generate revenue growth from local businesses.

Candidates must also possess a solid understanding of media sales, including newspaper, TV, online, print sales and event marketing. Solid critical thinking skills required. Qualified candidates must be detail oriented with excellent communication skills, and possess the ability to multi-task and work under tight deadlines. Bachelor's degree in advertising or marketing preferred. Reliable transportation is required.

The advertising supervisor will recruit, train, coach and manage a first class, diverse and talented team of sales representatives to exceed print and online advertising revenue goals and will collaborate with the Advertising Director to develop and implement sales strategies to exceed goals.

We want to talk to people who have confidence in media companies, understand the power of effective advertising and approach challenges with a high level of enthusiasm that rubs off on those around them. This is a solid marketplace with opportunity for revenue growth.

SALES EXECUTIVE

We need a full-time advertising sales consultant who is ready to achieve success, is highly motivated and goal orientated. This position will manage an existing well-established account list and be responsible for the development of new business from new and existing clients. They will provide excellent service to our clients, selling newspaper and online advertising, specialty publications, and ad inserts.

The successful candidate must have a proven track record in outside sales, developing strong business relationships, possess good oral and written communication skills, be well organized, have excellent follow-through and enjoy working with a variety of people. Previous marketing experience or advertising sales experience a plus.

WRITER

South-central Idaho's best and largest news provider seeks a talented writer to dig deep into the intersection of people and policy to consistently bring our readers the stories they'll keep talking about.

The assignment covers an eight-county area from which the right candidate will seek the most compelling stories from both rural and urban settings. Tasks will range from rooting out the reasons behind utility increases that hit thousands of pocketbooks to profiling a thinning group of Pearl Harbor attack survivors who call the area home.

The reporter's primary responsibility will be to find and develop six snappy enterprise stories per week and pitch in on other beats when needed, such as when our government reporter is covering the annual state legislative session in Boise.

CUSTOMER SERVICE FIELD REPRESENTATIVE

We need someone with experience in providing quantifiably excellent customer service to join our Circulation Team. This position supports all interactions with customers and contractors of the daily newspaper.

Responsibilities include distributing newspapers to contractors and customers, delivery of paper routes as necessary, redelivering shortages or missed papers, collection of coins from rack accounts, making daily deposits, replacing racks as necessary and providing exceptional customer service to assure timely and efficient delivery. This 40-hour per week position will include work in the circulation office and in the field. This position requires regular lifting of newspaper bundles and must frequently lift and/or move up to 50 pounds.

Expectations include helping maintain delivery goals and deadlines, being available to work a flexible schedule that will include early mornings and weekends in all kinds of weather, and the ability to thrive in a fast-paced environment.

The successful candidate will be self motivated and able to work independently, demonstrate personable communication skills, have good organizational abilities, and be experienced working with computer programs such as Word and Excel. A valid Driver's License, vehicle with current insurance, and good driving record are required. A typical workday will start at 4:30 am and starting pay is $9.00 an hour.

PACKAGING MANAGER

The Times News is seeking an ambitious, team-orientated leader to join our Packaging department.

Qualified individual will be responsible for directing the packaging department in producing a quality product, which meets strategic department, enterprise and corporate goals. Candidate will apply expertise and knowledge to the packaging function to ensure sustained success and growth of the organization. Responsibilities will include developing/managing all departmental processes, maintaining departmental reports and records, and developing and tracking departmental budget. Manager will oversee the recruiting, training, evaluating and supervision of all packaging employees.

Qualifications include broad experience in a production or mechanical background; preferably in the newspaper industry, with 5-7 years of prior supervisory experience. Must be able to demonstrate experience working in a deadline oriented environment, scheduling, safety and cost reductions. Equipment and machinery expertise required as is knowledge of Microsoft Office. The successful candidate will be hands-on, possess excellent communication skills and be customer-driven.

Application deadline is September 30th 2011.

Today is Tuesday, Sept. 27, the 270th day of 2011. There are 95 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
Sept. 27, 1941 was "Liberty Fleet Day" as the United States launched 14 rapidly built military cargo vessels, including the first Liberty ship, the SS Patrick Henry, which was personally launched by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in Baltimore.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1540, Pope Paul III issued a papal bull establishing the Society of Jesus, or Jesuits, as a religious order.

In 1779, John Adams was named by Congress to negotiate the Revolutionary War's peace terms with Britain.

In 1854, the first great disaster involving an Atlantic Ocean passenger vessel occurred when the steamship SS Arctic sank off Newfoundland; of the more than 400 people on board, only 86 survived.

In 1928, the United States said it was recognizing the Nationalist Chinese government.

In 1939, Warsaw, Poland, surrendered after weeks of resistance to invading forces from Nazi Germany and the Soviet Union during World War II.

In 1942, Glenn Miller and his Orchestra performed together for the last time, at the Central Theater in Passaic, N.J., prior to Miller's entry into the Army.

In 1961, the animated TV series "Top Cat," about a gang of mischievous Broadway alley cats, premiered on ABC.

In 1964, the government publicly released the report of the Warren Commission, which found that Lee Harvey Oswald had acted alone in assassinating President John F. Kennedy.

In 1991, President George H.W. Bush announced in a nationally broadcast address that he was eliminating all U.S. battlefield nuclear weapons, and called on the Soviet Union to match the gesture. The Senate Judiciary Committee deadlocked, 7-7, on the nomination of Clarence Thomas to the U.S. Supreme Court.

In 1994, more than 350 Republican congressional candidates gathered on the steps of the U.S. Capitol to sign the "Contract with America," a 10-point platform they pledged to enact if voters sent a GOP majority to the House.

Ten years ago: An armed man went on a shooting rampage in the local parliament of Zug, Switzerland, killing 14 people before taking his own life. President George W. Bush asked the nation's governors to post National Guard troops at airports as a first step toward federal control of airline security.

Five years ago: President George W. Bush hosted a peacemaking dinner at the White House for the bickering leaders of Pakistan and Afghanistan, General Pervez Musharraf and Hamid Karzai. Republicans announced they would hold their 2008 presidential convention in the Twin Cities of Minneapolis-St. Paul. A gunman took six girls hostage at a high school in Bailey, Colo.; he molested some of them and killed one girl before committing suicide.

One year ago: Southwest Airlines announced the $1.4 billion purchase of AirTran. Temperatures reached 113 degrees in downtown Los Angeles, the highest in records kept since 1877.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"Immortal patriots! Rise once more: Defend your rights, defend your shore."

— Joseph Hopkinson

In today's deal you (West) had to decide whether to take the push to four spades or sit back and try to beat your opponents' game. Since you have no extra spade length, the key may be whether partner has short hearts (and the opponents are bidding on shape) or whether he has two or three hearts, when you may be able to set their game and the sacrifice would prove expensive. On balance it seems right to pass.

Against South's four hearts you lead the spade king, partner plays the six (suggesting an odd number) and declarer the seven. How do you hope to take four defensive tricks?

You need to place partner with the diamond ace and a top club, or both top clubs. Accordingly, it looks important to switch to a club now.

If partner has both minor-suit aces or both top clubs, any small club will probably suffice. However, if partner has the club king without any intermediates and declarer has the club A-9, a switch to the club eight will not be good enough. Declarer will play low from dummy and hold his club losers to one.

To cover every possible situation, you must switch to the club 10. If declarer plays low from dummy, your partner will also play low, and your 10 will force declarer's ace. However, if he covers your 10 with the jack, your Q-8 will be poised over his 9-2 when partner gets in with the diamond ace and leads clubs again.

ANSWER: Obviously you have a great hand for spades. The best way to agree spades and get your assets across is to start with a jump to four diamonds. This is a splinter-jump, setting spades and showing values with a singleton diamond. Even if partner signs off in four spades, you are probably worth one further effort — a five-

DEAR ABBY: I think your response to "Outgoing Aunt in Texas" (July 16) about the shy 12-year-old girl was misguided. The aunt felt "Tammy's" parents should "make" her come to the phone and speak to her. You felt the child's behavior was rude and said perhaps her mother was covering for her.

Being shy or overly sensitive is an inborn personality trait that can be very disturbing. Forcing a shy person to do something uncomfortable may make the problem worse. Talking on the phone is one of the hardest things for a shy person because he or she can't read the other person's face or body language.

Many 12-year-olds feel awkward in social situations, particularly if they are shy. A loving family member should try to be sensitive to this and not force the child to do something he or she is not comfortable doing. It's possible that Tammy may have a hard time talking to this aunt if she asks Tammy embarrassing questions or makes comments that are hurtful. If that's the case, then Tammy's mom is doing the right thing by trying to protect her.

— SHY M.D. IN TENNESSEE

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR SHY M.D.: Thank you for offering another perspective. Readers who shared their experiences helped me to view this with a fresh perspective. My newspaper readers comment:

DEAR ABBY: Twelve-year-old daughters have a terrible fear of criticism, a fear of failure and a fear of being made fun of by adults and peers. "Outgoing Aunt" sounds heavy-handed to me. I have to wonder what she might have said in the past (or how she said it) that has made Tammy so reluctant to even be in the same room with her. Tammy's mom is right to "cover for her."

— I WAS THE SAME 12-YEAR-OLD

DEAR ABBY: It bothered me that "Outgoing Aunt" was so determined and aggressive about speaking to Tammy. Has this aunt been unkind to her in the past? I think the aunt should back off and stop demanding to speak to the child through doors and on the phone. Perhaps the girl isn't shy or rude — just a great judge of character.

— USED TO BE A SHY NIECE

DEAR ABBY: You're correct in saying Tammy's behavior may be anxiety-based. There is a childhood anxiety disorder called Selective Mutism in which an expectation to speak can cause a child extreme panic. It results in temporary physical paralysis of the vocal cords, and can render a child unable to cry or communicate distress when severely injured.

These children can speak just fine in some situations but not in all others, which can be misunderstood as willful behavior. One of the most common situations in which a child cannot speak is with a close friend or relative.

I had SM as a child and I helped my son find successful treatment for it. Without treatment, Tammy is at a heightened risk for depression, panic attacks, agoraphobia, substance abuse and more. I now speak about this disorder to spread awareness and help others locate resources to seek treatment.

IF SEPTEMBER 27 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: In late October and early November, you may obtain some beneficial advice or find an excellent opportunity to improve your situation with very little effort. Look for help within the family or the community, as someone's high opinion of you may make the crucial difference. You are at the peak of your attractiveness in February. Singles may find Mr. or Ms. Right during that time, or decide to make an important commitment with an existing relationship or in career. Make the most of your wisdom and good sense in late June and early July by making key decisions, taking crucial steps to launch business plans, or by starting personal endeavors that will offer permanent long-term benefits.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): To be popular, you could say anything. Rather than cause offense, someone might flatter you. You might become the victim of reassurances or promises that nobody, least of all you, intends to keep.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Flattery is sometimes just a case of falsehoods. To stay on your good side, someone might tell a little white lie. You would like to be seen as trusting, but it is smarter to be skeptical at this point.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): If at first you don't succeed, try, try, again. Your social and business relationships could be fraught with confusion but tomorrow clarity returns. Hold off on making financial or emotional decisions.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Today's new moon might shift your attention to hearth and home. You may have been ignoring problems that have been building up, but during the next several weeks you will find time to sort them out.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): At least inanimate objects usually do what they are told to do. It's a good day to whip up a gourmet dinner or to clean out the garden, but implementing executive decisions with humans might backfire.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You can't force the facts to match fantasies. You could feel coerced into making a promise that will impact your financial well being. If you are not completely comfortable, do not make a commitment.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The new moon in your sign means a new start in some part of your life. What you think could be a major turning point, however, might merely be a matter of several weeks spent off the beaten path.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Using your energies and knowledge to perform a community service can enhance your reputation. Important business matters may work out for the best if you wait a few days before taking action.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Under these stars, true friends may appear. You can follow others who can guide you to the most beneficial path. Amorous yearnings are in the air, so it is a good idea to make peace with a loved one.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Keep an eagle eye open for empty promises. You want what you want so passionately that you might hear only what you want to hear and you might be blind to problems where joint finances are concerned.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You can see the light. A key relationship or friendship may provide you with a unique opportunity. It is your spirit of helpfulness and fairness that will make you outshine the competition today.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Stand on your own two feet. If you don't complain, you won't need to explain. You really aren't in a position to ask for help. By this time next week, all doubts will be dispelled and the future will be clear.

SUDOKU

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

Stalling Out At Five?

It's too early to shovel dirt on Jimmie Johnson's hopes of winning a sixth consecutive Sprint Cup title. But he will have to do it in a manner he is unfamiliar with – coming from way back in the field. Johnson is only 29 points back – a number that can easily made up in one week when only one driver is involved. But at 10th place in the 12-man Chase, the number of drivers Johnson must leapfrog might prove too great for him to experience the Joy of Six. For more on Johnson's struggles, turn to Page S2.

Feels Like Old Times; BoSox Choking In Fall

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BALTIMORE • The Boston Red Sox found another way to lose, this time on a broken-bat single and an inside-the-park homer, and their 6-3 defeat against the Baltimore Orioles on Monday night dropped them into a tie in the AL wild-card race. Boston's 17th loss in 22 games enabled Tampa Bay to finally pull even in the duel for the league's final playoff spot. The Rays, who beat the New York Yankees 5-2, trailed by nine games after play on Sept. 3.

With the score 2-all in the sixth inning, Boston starter Josh Beckett (13-7) allowed four runs in an uprising that began with Vladimir Guerrero becoming the career hits leader among Dominican-born players.

Guerrero broke a tie with Julio Franco by bouncing a single up the middle, his 2,587th career hit. The 36-year-old Guerrero then stole second base, and after a two-out walk to Mark Reynolds, Chris Davis hit a soft liner to right that brought home the go-ahead run.

Robert Andino followed with a deep fly to center that Jacoby Ellsbury had in his glove before crashing into the wall. Andino sprinted around the bases and made it home as the relay throw bounced past catcher Jarrod

The cheers came for Vladimir Guerrero for being the all-time hit leader among Dominican players; they came from Tampa Bay and Anaheim for helping beat Boston and aid those teams in the wild-card chase.

Saltalamacchia.

Boston loaded the bases with one out in the eighth, but Pedro Strop struck out Saltalamacchia and retired Marco Scutaro on a grounder.

Although Dustin Pedroia hit an RBI single in a run in the ninth, the Red Sox stranded two runners and fell short in their bid to win a second straight game for the first time since Aug. 27. Boston is 6-19 in September, the second-worst record in the majors behind the Minnesota Twins.

INJURIES TAKE TOLL ON BRONCOS

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Kellen Moore brushed it off as just a doctor thing. Chris Petersen was even more evasive about the black knee brace Boise State's star quarterback sported on Saturday night.

"Kellen watches a lot of TV and when Andrew Luck and Landry Jones wear the knee braces now he wants to be in the club," Petersen quipped. "That's all I think that was about."

The truth is while the fourth-ranked Broncos (3-0) rolled through their first month of the season, they head toward October with a number of potentially concerning injuries.

Moore is seemingly the most noticeable thanks to the bulky brace that was hard to miss during the Broncos' 41-21 win over Tulsa on Saturday night. Moore seemed unfazed, throwing for four touchdowns in less than 2 1/2 quarters. Yet anytime Moore had to scramble from the pocket – which was rare – his gait was off, jogging back to the huddle with a slight limp.

Moore acknowledged he was a bit "banged up" after the Broncos beat

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Those close to Boise State's Kellen Moore say the knee brace he's wearing is of no great concern. But his limp against Tulsa told another story.

Toledo a week earlier and that part of the reason he might have departed after throwing a 10-yard TD pass to Mitch Burroughs on Boise State's first drive of the second half was due to his sore knee. Backups Joe Southwick and Grant Hedrick finished off the Broncos' 33rd straight regular season home victory.

Hornet boys back on field after replenishing their roster

DECLO • Two weeks ago after suffering a 5-1 loss at Bliss, the crestfallen Declo boys soccer team boarded the bus.

Twenty minutes down the road, as the defeat began to disappear in the rearview mirror, smiles and chatter picked up as the boys put it all in perspective.

They were just happy to be there. "The kids are resilient," said Declo coach Tim Henrickson.

At the beginning of the season, it appeared Declo might not have a boys soccer season due to its inability to fill a roster. The Hornets started with eight players and forfeited the first seven games of their season.

"We were going through some dark times and we had to prevail through that," said senior captain Jesus Zavala.

As a school with an enrollment of 295 students, Declo faces the typical small-school plight. With only so many students to go around, Declo offers boys cross country, soccer and football in the fall, along with a handful of other non-sports extracurricular activities.

Once school started in August, the original eight soccer players went through the halls recruiting their classmates.

Puentes' Goal Gives Burley Key Victory

BY RYAN HOWE

rhowe@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • After playing its last three conference games to a draw, the Burley boys soccer team felt it was due for win.

With a late goal by Juan Puentes, the Bobcats defeated Canyon Ridge 1-0 on Monday and earned the three points they desperately needed to keep pace with the upper half of the Great Basin Conference with two games remaining in their regular season.

"We needed a win in the worst way," said Burley coach Wes Nyblade. "We haven't been playing with any heart, we haven't been playing with any passion. Tonight was one of the first games that I can actually say that we had everybody playing."

Burley (4-5-3 overall, 3-2-3 GBC, 12 pts.) remains in fourth place in the GBC standings, but is just one point behind third-place Jerome and two points behind second-place Wood River. Burley hopes to win out to earn home-field advantage on its fast artificial turf, plus the top two seeds earn a first-round bye in the District IV tournament, which gets under way next week.

Canyon Ridge (8-6-0, 2-6-0, 6 pts.), which sits in fifth place, was just a couple unlucky breaks away from winning the game. The Riverhawks' Suren Thapa missed on a break-away opportunity early, and had another shot hit the post in the 35th minute.

Burley countered Thapa's speed by bracketing him with two defenders throughout the second half.

"Give him an inch and he has such a wicked right foot," Nyblade said of Thapa.

By applying continuous pressure on the Canyon Ridge defense in the second half, Burley created several shots and finally connected with Puentes' goal in the 70th minute.

"We always kept the pressure on them," Puentes said. "It was good to get three points and now we'll try to win the next

"This year everybody has a good team. We have a good team, too. We're going to try to go to state again," Puentes said. Canyon Ridge travels to Jerome on Wednesday.

They're fit to be tied.

Now the only question remaining for the Twin Falls and Wood River girls soccer teams is which one will have the No. 1 seed for the Great Basin Conference tournament?

Either side could have claimed the top spot Monday, but just like the standings, the Bruins and Wolverines couldn't create any separation in battling to a 1-1 tie in Twin Falls.

Claire Goss scored in the first half to give the Bruins (7-3-2 overall, 7-0-1 Great Basin Conference the lead, but Haley Montgomery scored the equalizer in the second half for the Wolverines (9-0-2, 7-0-2).

JEROME 3, MINICO 1

All the scoring came in the second half as Jerome edged Minico. Ashley Cox, Sarah Locker and Christina Gil scored for Jerome. Monica Farfan scored the Spartans' goal on an assist from Crystal Tovar.

BURLEY 4, CANYON RIDGE 2

Megan Graham scored three goals and Alex Sanchez added another as the Bobcats defeated the Riverhawks.

"Our girls withstood their pressure and played very well," said Burley coach Ray Sansom. "I'm very elated, very happy. They were deserving of it."

Canyon Ridge received goals from Kelsie King and Ellie Packham, with Emily

Grindstaff assisting on the latter.

Boys soccerMINICO 3, JEROME 1

Eddie Lopez had a hat trick, scoring twice in the first half and goalie Cameron Lloyd had seven saves as the Spartans defeated the Tigers.

Jose Hernandez's goal in the second half got Jerome within a goal, but the Tigers could get no further.

WOOD RIVER 5, TWIN FALLS 2

Cole Caminiti found the net three times, and Zack Freeman and Christian Zuniga added goals as the Wolverines cruised past the Bruins.

Twin Falls received goals from Ryan Giest and Isaac Laris.

Cowboys Beat Redskins Behind Romo's Grit, Bailey's Leg

ASSOCIATED PRESS

ARLINGTON, Texas • Tony Romo's ribs held up just fine. So did Dan Bailey's leg.

Romo persevered through pain to lead enough deep drives to set up Bailey for six field goals, including a 40-yarder with 1:57 left to give the Cowboys an 18-16 victory over the Washington Redskins on Monday night.

Dallas' Anthony Spencer chopped the ball from Washington's Rex Grossman with 28 seconds left, and linebacker Sean Lee recovered it, setting off a celebration inside Cowboys Stadium.

Dallas coach Jason Garrett dropped to a knee and pumped his fist wildly at being 2-1 — guaranteeing no repeat of last year's miserable 1-

Redskins linebacker London Fletcher gets pressure on Cowboys quarterback Tony Romo in their game Monday in Dallas.

7 start. The Cowboys are even tied for first place in the NFC East, along with Washington (2-1), which was seeking its first 3-0 start since 2005. "This was a great win for us," said Romo, who was 22 of 36 for 255 yards. "It was a hard, hard game. ... We had a million mistakes tonight. We have a lot of young guys, but they were out there for a reason. We'll get it right."

Romo lacked zip and accuracy much of the game, and he had trouble with four snaps from his new center. But he was at his best with the game on the line.

He hit Laurent Robinson for a 25-yard gain to set up Bailey's fifth field goal. He then set up the winner on third- and -21 with a scrambling 30-yarder to Dez Bryant that happened to come against cornerback DeAngelo Hall, who last week said he was hoping "to put my helmet on whatever's hurt."

The Romo-Bailey combination has worked like a charm for two straight games. Against San Francisco a week ago Sunday, Bailey made a tying field goal at the end of regulation, then the winner in overtime.

Bailey is an undrafted rookie who was named the nation's top kicker in college last season, at Oklahoma State. His other kicks Monday night covered 41 (twice), 32, 27 and 23 yards.

The big story, though, was Romo and the other Dallas players who played through pain, such as Bryant, who missed the previous game with a thigh injury, and Felix Jones, who separated a shoulder against the 49ers but ran for 115 yards and caught three passes for 40 more.

Too Early To Give Up On Johnson's Chase?

ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE, N.C. • There was something different about Jimmie Johnson this year as he readied for yet another challenge to his reign of NASCAR.

The five-time defending champion had a clear understanding that his record-setting run couldn't last forever. Eventually, somebody would figure out how to beat him, and if Johnson were a gambler, well, he probably wouldn't like the odds of him holding off 11 other drivers for a sixth consecutive year.

That's not to say he had any intention of rolling over for the competition. If Johnson is to be dethroned this year, he's going to go down swinging.

Now, just two races into the Chase for the Sprint Cup championship, many believe 5-time is already on the ropes.

His 18th-place finish at New Hampshire on Sunday dropped Johnson to 10th in the 12-driver Chase field. It's the lowest Johnson has ever been ranked in the 12-driver format, and he trails leader Tony Stewart by 29 points.

He knows he needs to be pretty close to perfect from here on out to hold onto his title.

"We need eight great ones from here," Johnson said. "We can't run 10th anymore. We need a bunch of Ws."

Only Johnson doesn't seem to have a bunch of victories in him. He's got only one this season, at Talladega in April, and that's actually his only victory over the last year. Then there's the tense radio chatter between Johnson and crew chief Chad Knaus midway through Sunday's race.

With the No. 48 Chevrolet not handling to Johnson's liking, Knaus tried to keep the driver motivated and focused. Johnson didn't want to hear it, told Knaus his cheerleading was "annoying" and essentially demanded the crew chief shut up and let him drive.

So, yeah, there's some compelling evidence to the argument that Johnson is in deep trouble after only two weeks.

Do so, though, at your own risk because counting out Johnson is about the dumbest thing his rivals could possibly do right now.

Maybe it seems too long ago, but Johnson prepared for this Chase with seven top-10 finishes in nine races. During a five-race span over the last month, he finished second twice and fourth twice.

And maybe everybody forgets Round 1 of the Chase, when Johnson led 39 laps and had to back off racing for the win to conserve fuel. He was running third when he ran out of gas as he took the flag on the final lap, and he faded to a 10th-place finish.

As the celebration on Stewart's first win of the season faded, the talk shifted to Johnson and the strong statement his Hendrick Motorsports team made at Chicago. "He ran out of gas and still finished 10th! If that's his bad day, everybody else is in trouble."

Now here we are, one poor run later, and suddenly the guy is finished?
