Saylor Creek's Wild Horses Return Home

30 members of the Saylor Creek wild horse herd were returned to their range Thursday, a year after the herd was removed following range destruction from the Long Butte Fire.

GLENNS FERRY • For the past year, Sheila Fraser has helped feed, clean and monitor wild horses in Boise corrals.

But all that stopped the minute she watched the herd step out from the confines of a trailer and gallop off into the wild.

"It's an emotional day for me," Fraser said. "I adopted my first horse out of this herd. This is probably a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity for me to see them out here like this."

Close to 30 wild horses from the Saylor Creek Herd returned to their home range Thursday. The herd lost its habitat to the massive Long Butte Fire a little more than a year ago. As a result, U.S. Bureau of Land Management officials were forced to gather the 200-horse herd and house it in the Boise corrals.

Only a fraction of the herd was returned to the area because the BLM's resource management plan dictates that the agency must leave room for herd growth, said spokeswoman Heather Tiel-Nelson. The BLM estimates that horse herds increase by 20 percent each year.

As for the remaining horses, some have been adopted, while the rest were moved to corrals near Salt Lake City and Carson City, Nev., Tiel-Nelson said.

Corporal Punishment in Castleford? Not for Much Longer...

In the 290-student Castleford School District, an old-fashioned spanking remains one way of controlling student misbehavior.

"We don't use it very often," Superintendent Andy Wiseman said. "But having it there, we know it's possible."

The small-town school district about 25 miles southwest of Twin Falls may have to change its policy on doling out corporal punishment if a bill introduced last week in Congress becomes law.

Rep. Carolyn McCarthy, D-New York, introduced the "Ending Corporal Punishment in Schools Act," which would prohibit the practice in schools nationwide and restrict federal funding for districts that don't comply.

Wiseman said his district would change its policies to comply with the law, if passed.

McCarthy's bill defines corporal punishment as "paddling, spanking and other forms of physical punishment, however light, imposed upon a student."

Idaho is one of 19 U.S. states where it's legal to discipline students using corporal punishment. However, out of a sampling of eight Magic Valley school districts contacted by the Times-News, only the Castleford district allows it.

Deputies Investigate Fatal Rollover Near Kimberly

TIMES-NEWS

Law enforcement and first-responders in Twin Falls County were investigating a fatal single-vehicle rollover late Thursday.

The details of the crash, at 3350 N. 3500 E. south of Kimberly, weren't yet available Thursday evening. But the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office confirmed the death.

these global networks," Schaffer said. Disgruntled employees, hackers and perhaps foreign governments "are knocking on the doors of these systems and there have been intrusions."

According to the department, the number of private organizations asking for the department's help in protecting their automated control systems rose from 57 last year to 81 so far this year.

The number of times that the department's Computer Emergency Response Team for industrial systems has deployed rose from one in 2009 to six in 2010. So far this year, the team has responded to seven reported instances of attacks or vulnerabilities in control systems Department officials declined to give details about emergency response team deployments, citing confidentiality agreements with the companies involved. Under current law, the reporting of cyber attacks by private organizations is strictly voluntary.

The Obama administration has proposed making reporting mandatory, but the White House is likely to find the idea difficult to sell at a time when Republicans complain about increased regulation of business.

Officials said they knew of only one recent criminal conviction for corrupting industrial control systems, that of a former security guard at a Dallas hospital whose hacking of hospital computers wound up shutting down the air conditioning system. The former guard was sentenced to 110 months in prison in March.

The Homeland Security Department's control sysnot describe the group's findings in detail, except to say that they confirmed that it was "very sophisticated."

Edwards and other officials denied reports that the cyber research at Idaho National Laboratory, which included studying the vulnerabilities of the kind of industrial control systems Iran used at Natanz, had aided in the development of Stuxnet.

Many independent experts and former government officials suspect that Stuxnet was created by the United States, perhaps with the help of Israel, Britain and Germany.

The U.S. and other nations believe Iran is building a nuclear weapons program, but Tehran insists it is interested only in the peaceful uses of nuclear technology.

While U.S. officials talk frequently about America's vulnerability to cyber attack, they seldom discuss the country's offensive cyber weapons capability. The U.S. is thought to be the world's leader in cyber warfare, both defensive and offensive.

U.S. officials and others long have feared that future wars will include cyber attacks on the industries and economies of adversaries, and the potential targets inplants, clude power pipelines and air traffic control systems.

Cyber warfare also would likely target military control systems, including for communications, radar and advanced weaponry.

Because of its advanced industrial base, the U.S. is thought to be among the countries most vulnerable to a cyber attack on its infrastructure.

In a 2007 test at the Idaho National Laboratory, government hackers were able to break into the control system running a large diesel generator, causing it to selfdestruct.

"The horses depend on us to provide water," said Krystle Pehrson, a BLM wild horse and burro specialist. "We'll be out here two to three times a week, monitoring to see how they adjust."

The horses should be able to make the transition fairly easily since the herd contains a blend of old and young horses, Pehrson said.

The older 13-year-old horses have been raised in the area all their lives, except for the tiny stay in Boise, she said.

"These horses are creatures of habit," she said. "They will stick together and the older ones will lead the others to food."

Jody Pickel, a Mountain Home rancher, also adopted several horses from the herd. She said she was excited to see the horses returned to the wild.

"This herd has some beautiful horses in it," she said. "They deserve to be out in the wild."

James Lewis, a former State Department official now with the Center for Strategic and International Studies in Washington, said in an interview that the Auroratest ushered in a new era of electronic warfare.

Before the test, he said, the notion of cyber warfare "was mainly smoke and mirrors. But the Aurora tests showed that, you know what? We have a new kind of weapon?"

A bailiff hands Judge Randy Stoker a photo of murder victim Jill Gelever, provided by Gelever's father, just before the sentencing of Thomas Trevino Jr. Thursday afternoon in Twin Falls.

Had his case gone to trial, Trevino faced potential life imprisonment if a jury found him guilty of shooting Gelever, 24, in the back of the head at the Comfort Inn and Suites in north Twin Falls on July 5, 2010.

After the shooting, Trevino fled the area, only to be arrested two days later in Mesa County, Colo., nearly 400 miles from Twin Falls. Gelever died at a Boise hospital 10 days after the shooting.

"Everyone has lost," Stoker said at the sentencing, during which Trevino showed little emotion but shook slightly.

The prosecution and defense both said in the courtroom that the case against Trevino was complicated, and the plea agreement wasn't an ideal outcome for either side.

At the same time, Twin Falls County Prosecutor Grant Loebs called the agreement a "just sentence," given the nature of the case.

It's also one that provides a degree of finality – at least in the criminal justice system. Trevino cannot file any appeals. Nor can he get out of prison before his 15year sentence is served.

Still, the sentence doesn't remove the grief or sense of loss for Gelever's family who spoke at the hearing. For them, the crime cut short a life that was just beginning.

"Her life ended too early," said her sister, Janie Ramos. "She was only 24 years old. Her life was just beginning."

Gelever's parents also spoke at the sentencing.

"She was special," said Charles Karafa, Jill's father. "She was unique."

"She got the death sentence and (Trevino) doesn't," Carol Bloxham, Gelever's mother, said as Trevino quietly sat next to his defense attorney, Keith Roark.

Roark drew sneers from Gelever's family when he argued that the crime was "not a case where Little Red Riding Hood was attacked by the big, bad wolf."

Roark also claimed that Trevino didn't bring a firearm into the hotel on the day he shot Gelever.

"They were in a toxic relationship," he said.

In an interview, Loebs said one remaining unknown was where Trevino got the gun on the day of the shooting, adding that no one saw him carry it into the hotel. That was one example of what made the case complex, he said.

If the case went to trial, it's possible that a jury would have bought into an argument from the defense that Trevino acted in selfdefense, Loebs said.

Kimberly Council Briefed on Smart Growth, Safe School Travel

BY KIMBERLY WILLIAMS-BRACKETT For the Times-News

KIMBERLY • The Kimberly City Council listened Tuesday to recommendations on how city policies can support safe routes to school.

Elaine Clegg with Idaho Smart Growth, a nonprofit dedicated to helping communities manage their growth in healthy ways, is working with Kimberly city and school district officials to assess their existing sidewalks, road crossings and bicycling conditions and develop baseline data to examine.

At the meeting, she briefed council members on national statistics that show fewer children are walking or biking to school, based on data gathered over the last few decades.

"Pedestrian and bicycle infrastructure is inadequate and incomplete," Clegg said. Land use patterns have also become spread out and disconnected, she said.

Clegg also warned that congestion at schools has become more of a problem. And removing the daily activity of walking or biking also has an effect on health, she said.

"Obesity in Idaho is reaching epidemic proportions," Clegg said. "Diabetes has doubled in 13 years from 4 percent in 1997 to 8 percent in 2009.

"Children lose independence and mobility by relying on adults to drive them."

Changing such trends requires adjustments to city planning, including what features streets include and how schools are sited.

Smart growth, Clegg said, factors in things like distances traveled, a diversity of land uses and types, and street design.

She recommended that as the city of Kimberly grows. schools strive for sites within walking and biking distance. Though land can be cheap on a city's outskirts, she said, that can also add busing costs

On the city side, Clegg said officials should factor walking and biking routes into comprehensive plans, and develop a master plan of sidewalks and non-motorized paths on those routes. Bicycle parking standards and a push toward mixeduse zones were also among her numerous recommendations could lead to improvements like installing sidewalks, curb, and gutter along south Main Street if an infrastructure grant is funded by the Idaho Transportation Department.

The council took no action following her Tuesday presentation, though Councilman Burke Richman suggested one idea: connecting Kimberly to the city of Twin Falls's bike path, and to the mountain bike paths in the South Hills.

U.S. 93, Interstate Work Begins Today

TIMES-NEWS

Drivers on both U.S. Highway 93 and Interstate 84 in Jerome County should prepare for shifting traffic control as paving near the highways' junction begins today, according to the Idaho Transportation Department.

Crews recently finished concrete paving on the southbound lanes of U.S. 93 and are ready to begin laying asphalt on the roadway, shoulders and median, including an approximately 1mile stretch of eastbound I-84 and the on- and off-ramps at Exit 173.

Paving will start today at the project's northern end, and traffic will be reduced to one lane. Interstate and ramp work is expected to run Tuesday through Oct. 7, and eastbound traffic exiting I-84 will be required to stop at the traffic signal during paving. Other lane changes will occur as work progresses.

Drivers are asked to prepare for delays, find an alternate route and use caution if traveling through the construction zone.

school districts allowed the practice anymore.

"It's probably not even a discussion that's been had (in the Twin Falls School District) in the last 15 years," he said.

Wiseman estimated the form of punishment is used fewer than five times per year. Other methods to change a student's behavior are used first.

"I don't think it would work for some kids," he said of spanking or other forms of physical punishment. "We don't go there unless parents say they think it's what works."

Corporal punishment is listed in Castleford's policies as one option for discipline, but it carries a list of conditions: there can't be any malice behind the action; there must be due process; a witness has to be present; and the student's parents must be notified both verbally and in writing.

Administrators are also the only ones allowed to use punishment in the bill she introduced in Congress as "paddling, spanking and other forms of physical punishment, however light, imposed upon a student."

corporal punishment for a student, Wiseman said.

Greg Lowe, superintendent of the Wendell School District, said students can be taught most effectively without using any kind of physical force.

"There are other strategies that are so much more effective and help our students," he said.

The Wendell, Twin Falls, Kimberly, Gooding and Minidoka County school districts are a few examples of districts that don't allow corporal punishment.

Many districts do allow school personnel to restrain a student if his or her behavior puts themselves or others at risk, which would still be allowed under McCarthy's bill.

Ketchum Man Tried to Flee Cops by Jumping Off Balcony

TIMES-NEWS

A man arrested by the Blaine County Sheriff's Office allegedly tried to flee by jumping off a second-story balcony Wednesday, officials say.

Cody Cooper Caccia, 20, of Ketchum, was arrested by the Blaine County Narcotics Enforcement Team and charged with felony drug trafficking and misdemeanor obstructing or resisting a police officer, according to a news release.

The narcotics team executed a search warrant at Caccia's home and were entering the residence when Caccia allegedly jumped from the balcony while holding about one pound of marijuana. He later reportedly dropped the drugs while fleeing on foot.

According to the release, deputies later found Caccia hiding in a van about three blocks away and took him into custody. He was taken to the Blaine County Jail.

OUR VIEW

More Fees for City Services? Tough, but We Understand imes are lean all around. The city of Twin Falls feels the pinch in their council chambers as much as we do at the dinner table when balancing our finances.

Earlier this week after a long meeting, the city voted to increase fees for water, sewer and sanitation — a move that will cost most of us around $4.42 per month. One of the reasons this had to be done is because industries have had to cut back on their use of these services, but the infrastructure costs remain.

For retirees on a fixed income, that's not an insignificant amount. For families who have gone years without a pay raise, the increase will erode a bit more into their limited discretionary spending.

But we believe the city is managing its expenses realistically.

Take one look around the city's offices, and you'll see evidence they're living tightly. You won't find a sea of ergonomic chairs purchased just to use up budget money, and they've repeatedly refused the allure of moving to bigger, less cramped office space.

As with the private sector, the city of Twin Falls has had to undergo budget cutbacks and layoffs. And, just like any family's budget, the city has put together a logical priority list, ranging from immediate needs to wants and luxuries. They're tackling that list with clarity.

A family trying to make ends meet might try and barter for lower rates on things we're paying for — the city has done the same thing: the YMCA partnership with the city is going to cost taxpayers significantly less going forward, thanks to the city's aggressive negotiations.

Call the current city council and manager what you will, but they're certainly not spendy.

In fact, late into the meeting, the council acted on a motion from Councilman Lance Clow to reduce the amount they're asking for by $1.63 per month, hoping to find the money elsewhere.

As an online commenter pointed out on Magicvalley.com, "the city has us over a barrel."

That's one way to look at it. We prefer to think that the city is doing the best they can in these economic times to avoid tax and fee increases, but he city of Jerome has put out a very well put together pamphlet dealing with its desire to buy the old Fish and Game building for its police department. Do the police need a better headquarters? Absolutely, but I have some reservations. First, the bond is for $500,000 and, when that building first came on the market years ago before the recent recession and downturn in the real estate market, its asking price was about $350,000. I applaud the city for detailing to the public exactly how much their taxes will increase for this, an effort the county commissioners failed to do in their threetime effort to fund a new jail while wasting far more than $100,000. I am in favor of this bond if the city can address my concerns in a letter to the editor. Some time ago, the city bought the property across from the courthouse where the old middle school was and drew up plans for building a new police headquarters and park (we don't need any more parks). What are their plans for this property now if they move into the old Fish and Game building? Months ago, I suggested to the city and the county that they join together with that property and build a combination city police/sheriff office/jail and when I asked county prosecutor John Horgan about my suggestion, he told me that had been discussed and rejected. Government decisions are, by law, required to be discussed in an agendized open meeting with written minutes as a record. I found no record of obedience to the law as to this decision.

As of now, the county is still pursuing a multimillion dollar tax-raising bond for our much needed jail but where and what it may be is still in the wind.

If the city wants my vote in favor of this bond to safely house our city police, I would like to re-recommend that the city sell the old middle school property to the county at cost, since this property is the perfect spot for a new jail/sheriff office.

Jerome City and County taxes are already too high and, with the recent problems with the sewer system, rate hikes for water and sewer service, the downturn in the economy, government spending, even for necessities like these buildings, has to be done with the highest degree of fiscal responsibility. In a Sept. 3 letter to the editor, commissioner Cathy Roemer espoused that she had voted against spending that she thought unnecessary and noted the decreases in income to the county from property values, decrease in sales tax revenue from the state and high unemployment rate among her reasons for doing so. I appreciated the facts, but unsaid was the fact that the spending she voted against still happened. She also did not tell us that during the third at tempt at a jail bond while she was chairman, she authorized spending about $2,500 in taxpayer money to print "conceptual" pictures of a jail so the public would think the county actually had a plan. Spending about $3,500 to frame a historical map during this time also was unnecessary.

sometimes, there are no options left.

An Idea for Storing Nuclear Waste

Let's bury nuclear waste deeper.

Recently, I came across an ancient earth science textbook, which, while reading, reminded me how the depths of our earth buzz with high levels of radioactivity. The same week, I happened upon an account of Mel Waters and his fantastic 25-mile deep hole, in close proximity to the Hanford Nuclear Reservation – the most radioactive region in our country.

This got me to thinking how, that a viable solution to our horrific nuclear waste problems would be to thrust the insidious waste back into the hellish environment, from whence it came.

Why waste trillions of dollars ferrying nuclear waste to Yucca Mountain or the INL, where we'll need to secure it under expensive guard for millennia, when a much simpler solution is near at hand?

Therefore, I propose that our Department of Energy, in conjunction with our Department of Environmental Quality, conduct extensive feasibility studies to determine how drilling deep-hole repositories near every nuclear plant should be best done. Besides supra-natural pits such as Mel Waters', those who are quick to embrace the nuclear renaissance should consider extracting deeper, old fracking pits, as well as dried up oil wells, such as Deepwater Horizon, where we're practically halfway there with the shaft. 2 Idaho Men Die in Recent Woodcutting Accidents

POCATELLO (AP) . Woodcutting experts are warning amateur loggers eager to fill their pickup trucks with fuel for the long winter to exercise caution after a pair of tragic outings cost two Idaho men their lives in recent weeks.

The most recent incident happened Sunday, when a 26-year-old Arbon Valley man died from his injuries. Details of Kyle Curry's death were not immediately available.

Lon Teeter, of American Falls, was killed two weeks ago while cutting firewood at his family's cabin near Stanley, The Idaho State Journal reported. Teeter, 64, was killed after he became tangled in the tree he was cutting down, what experienced foresters call a 'widowmaker.''

"It's way more dangerous than people realize," said Dirk Anderson, owner of Top Notch Tree Service in Pocatello, adding even those with extensive experience hauling their own firewood can grow careless and repeat mistakes. Eventually, Anderson said, the odds run out.

"People are never going to stop cutting wood," Anderson said. "They just need to avail themselves of all the information possible on safe tree falling and follow safety precautions."

The Consumer Product Safety Commission found that the number of chain-saw accidents requiring medical attention increased from 70,000 to 135,000 annually over a five-year period.

Idaho Applies for U.S. Money for Insurance Exchange

House Health and Welfare Committee meets to discuss Idaho's exchange plans and address lingering concerns among Idaho lawmakers over how the state should handle money linked to the federal health care law.

BY JESSIE L. BONNER Associated Press

BOISE • The state has applied for millions of dollars in federal funding to establish a health insurance exchange, but any plans to spend the money will still need approval from the Republican-dominated Idaho Legislature and could face an uphill battle in 2012.

Idaho House Republicans' disdain of the health care overhaul passed by Congress doomed a previous effort to set aside federal money to help Idaho set up a statewide exchange. Lawmakers voted 50-15 in March to kill an appropriations bill that included the $2.5 million in federal cash.

The state is now seeking more than $30 million in federal grant money to build an insurance exchange, which would offer one-stop shopping for people and small businesses buying coverage directly from an insurer. Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter announced Sept. 20 the state would apply for the federal funding.

"We've made an application, but it's still up to this legislative body to appropriate any funds to establish an exchange," said state Rep. Janice McGeachin, an Idaho Falls Republican who chairs the House Health and Welfare Committee.

The panel met Thursday in Boise to discuss Idaho's exchange plans and address lingering concerns among Idaho lawmakers over how the state should handle money linked to the federal health care law. Idaho is among a number of states suing over the 2010 Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act.

Meridian Republican Rep. Marv Hagedorn is among state lawmakers who say they cannot support plans to build Idaho's insurance exchange with money flowing from the federal government as part of the health care law. "I won't support it, and I know there's a number of folks in the Legislature who won't," Hagedorn said, "and it's because we collectively the executive branch and the legislative branch - decided we were going to stand tall and stop the federal government from forcing this on us."

The governor, a fierce critic of the health care overhaul Congress passed last year, has reasoned that dismissing the money could allow the federal government to impose a plan on Idaho that favors national insurance carriers and puts many private insurance agents in the state out of business.

Cantaloupe Linked to Listeria Found in S. Idaho

BOISE (AP) • The Idaho Department of Health and Welfare says 43,000 pounds of cantaloupe donated to the public in southern Idaho might have been contaminated with listeria, but most of it has probably already been eaten or thrown away.

Health and Welfare spokeswoman Emily Simnitt wrote in the press release that department officials learned Thursday that the recalled cantaloupe had been distributed in the state in late August. Public health officials are currently investigating one Idaho illness that might be linked to the outbreak: A Jerome County woman in her 60s became ill with listeria in early September. She was hospitalized for a time but has recovered.

No other illnesses have been reported in Idaho.

The department says the melons were shipped from Jensen Farms of Colorado to Select Express in Aberdeen. They were too ripe to be commercially sold, so Select

Drug Settlement Recoveries Grow to $15 Million

BOISE • Attorney General Lawrence Wasden pushed Idaho's settlements with drug companies over improper pricing allegations to $15 million since 2005 with the latest deal his office struck with Merck Sharp & Dohme Corp.

Wasden said Thursday the drug maker formerly known as Merck & Co., Inc., will pay $1.6 million to resolve his contention the company reported an inflated average wholesale price for a drug.

He says that rips off taxpayers whose money buys medication for poor and disabled people who are covered under Medicaid.

Wasden, whose office has resolved 11 average wholesale price cases with drug manufacturers, still has three court cases pending against 17 other drug manufacturers.

The settlement with Merck has been approved by the Fourth District Court in Ada County.

Redistricting Panel 2.0 Sets Hearing Dates

BOISE • The redistricting panel that's try, try, trying again to redraw Idaho's electoral boundaries will hold three public hearings next month in its bid to complete work that the previous batch of commissioners failed to get done.

There will be public hearings in Idaho Falls on Oct. 5, Coeur d'Alene on Oct. 6 and Boise on Oct. 7, followed by commission meetings now scheduled until as late as Halloween, at least for now.

The first six redistricters failed to adopt a plan for 35 legislative and two congressional districts after meeting over 92 days.

This new Republican and Democrat confab will try to come up with a plan that will preserve the one-person, one-vote principle following rapid population growth since 2000.

Nampa Officers File Whistleblower Lawsuit Against Department, City

IDAHO STATESMAN

BOISE • Three longtime Nampa police officers and one officer's wife filed a federal lawsuit against the police department and the city Thursday

"In good faith, they have been raising concerns about the department's waste of taxpayer funds and public safety," the lawsuit alleges. "The department and the city have ignored those concerns and have instead chosen to engage in a campaign of retaliatory harassment."

Police Chief Bill Augsburger said he is aware of the allegations but cannot comment because of the pending litigation. He said he had not seen the lawsuit and was not aware it had been filed until he was contacted by the Statesman Thursday. Mayor Tom Dale, also named in the lawsuit, could not be reached for comment.

The lawsuit was filed by NPD investigator Leonard Claunts, Lt. Joe Huff and Sgt. Curtis Shankel, who worked in the department's Internal Affairs division and say they reported wrongdoing and policy violations by officers and supervisors to top police administrators to no avail. Frustrated by the lack of response, they then conveyed their concerns to the mayor, City Council and human resources director, according to the lawsuit.

The fourth plaintiff is Leonard Claunts' wife, Ginger, who reportedly emailed Human Resources Director Ed Simmerman last November, alleging various issues of public safety and misuse of public funds. About the same time, Shankel sent an anonymous letter to Mayor Dale and the City Council about the same general issues, according to the complaint.

The lawsuit claims Augsburger threatened to sue two of the officers for slander, reassigned Lt. Huff and took retaliatory action against all three, ranging from a negative performance review to downgrading their police vehicles and office space. One month ago, according to the lawsuit, all three were served with "personnel notices" from Augsburger and told that the Canyon County Sheriff's Office would conduct an internal affairs investigation against them.

What to Do About Killer Cantaloupe, Scary Sprouts?

BY MARILYNN MARCHIONE Associated Press

MILWAUKEE • Avoid foreign produce. Wash and peel your fruit. Keep it refrigerated. None of these common tips would have guaranteed your safety from the deadliest food outbreak in a decade, the one involving cantaloupes from Colorado.

Whether it's sprouts or spinach, turkey or hamburger; whether the government doubled, tripled or quadrupled inspections, the truth is that no food will ever be completely free of risk.

And a few foods have become so risky that certain people such as children, pregnant women and the elderly may do best to avoid them altogether until growers and the government figure out how to make them safer, some food experts say.

An unappetizing fact: Although the current cantaloupe outbreak has been tied to just one farm in Colorado, it's at least the 19th outbreak involving that melon since 1984. It's also the first one caused by listeria, a germ that actually likes to be in the refrigerator and thrives in this fruit, which cannot be cooked unless you want to eat melon mush.

Listeria also prompted a California farm to recall bags of chopped royoung people to opt out of Social Security.

Gingrich is putting the new Contract with America at the core of his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination, betting it will set the tone for the campaign discussion going forward.

"This is the essence of, hopefully, the next 10 years," Gingrich said. "It shows you the direction, I think, the country has to go, it shows you how I think we can get there."

Gingrich's floundering presidential bid has fractured what was once a rock star Republican image. Not long ago he was the sought-after intellectual guru of the GOP. Now, all but broke, he's himself finding fighting for air time if not respect — at Republican presidential primary debates. Polls have generally put him toward the back of the pack, although he ran third in a recent

CNN poll behind Texas Gov. Rick Perry and Massachusetts Gov. Mitt Romney.

In addition to giving taxpayers the option of picking a flat tax, Gingrich said he would give young people the option of dropping out of the Social Security system. He also called for boosting domestic energy production, easing government regulation of businesses, bolstering medical research to combat diseases like Alzheimer's and curtailing the power of the courts.

So what should you do if you see cantaloupe on a salad bar or at the grocery store? Can you be sure all of the tainted stuff has been pulled from the market, since the last bad melons were shipped on Sept. 10? What if no one knows where the cantaloupe was grown?

"If the store can't tell them or the restaurant can't tell them, I would not buy it at all," said Chris Waldrop, director of the Food Policy Institute at the Consumer Federation of America.

Please see FOOD SAFETY, N2

What You Can Do

Some new tips food experts offered Thursday:

• Shop more often and consume fresh fruits and vegetables within a few days. This gives germs less chance to multiply and gives you more nutrients from your food, too. • Don't just wash a melon. Scrub it under running water to rinse off any dislodged germs, and let it dry. If you cut it while it's still wet, you may be sliding the pathogens from the outside to the inside on the knife.

• Keep the fridge cold, 40 degrees or lower. Higher than that can let germs grow.

 Don't get a false sense of security if you buy organic produce. That just means less pesticide, not necessarily fewer germs.

 Consider dropping especially risky foods from your diet. Bean sprouts are not safe for children, pregnant women or people with weak immune systems and certain diseases, but that doesn't mean they're OK for everyone else, said Michael Doyle, a microbiologist who heads the University of Georgia's Center for Food Safety.

LISBON, Portugal • A convicted American killer who disappeared after a 1972 hijacking lived openly in West Africa in the 1980s under his real name for years and even socialized with U.S. embassy officials there, a former U.S. ambassador said Thursday.

The comments by John Blacken, a retired U.S. ambassador to Guinea-Bissau, raised new questions about a decades-long FBI manhunt for George Wright, who managed to elude authorities for 41 years until being arrested Mon-the Atlantic Ocean, with a population of about 1.6 million people.

Wright's years on the lam took him across the globe – from New Jersey to Detroit to Algeria to France to Guinea-Bissau and then Portugal, at the very least.

When Blacken served as ambassador from 1986 to 1989 in Guinea-Bissau, Wright was there as a fugitive who had escaped from jail in New Jersey while serving time for murder and was wanted in the 1972 hijacking by the Black Liberation Army of a U.S. plane to Algeria. Blacken said he was floored by this week's news about Wright's detention and his past.

"All this was a big surprise, my goodness, murder and everything else," Blacken said in an telephone interview from Bissau, Guinea-Bissau's capital. "No one imagined him being a murderer. Of course we didn't know him that well. He seemed like an ordinary person and not radical at all?"

A fingerprint on Wright's Portuguese ID card was the break that led a U.S. fugitive task force to him, according to U.S. authorities. But for decades his file was in the unsolved "cold cases" section for U.S. law enforcement.

Census: Hispanics Fuel U.S. White Population Growth

BY HOPE YEN Associated Press

WASHINGTON • In a twist to notions of race identity, new 2010 census figures show an unexpected reason behind a renewed growth in the U.S. white population: more Hispanics listing themselves as white in the once-adecade government count.

The shift is due to recent census changes that emphasize "Hispanic" as an ethnicity, not a race. While the U.S. government first made this distinction in 1980, many Latinos continued to use the "some other race" box to establish a Hispanic identity. In a switch, the 2010 census forms specifically instructed Latinos that Hispanic origins are not races and to select a recognized category such as white or black.

The result: a 6 percent increase in white Americans as tallied by the cen-

Laura Anderko, a Georgetown University public health expert, went a step further.

"Honestly, as a nurse, I would tell people don't eat the cantaloupe until this thing resolves itself," she said. "This stuff happens because our system is not as tight as it needs to be."

The federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, which has confirmed 13 deaths and 72 illnesses in the outbreak so far, has not told people to stop buying cantaloupe. However, the CDC and the Food and Drug Administration cannot even say where all of the tainted melon went, because it was sold and resold to many distributors across the nation. "When in doubt, throw it out," is the CDC's advice to consumers who have any cantaloupe whose origins they can't determine.

"Even if the cantaloupe is gone, you need to wash the drawer or shelf it may have been on" to make sure other foods don't become contaminated, said Caroline Smith DeWaal, director of food safety at the Center for Science in the Public Interest.

Beyond that, each outbreak brings fresh lessons on how to make produce safer. And while some of these things aren't guarantees, they can cut the odds you'll lose at the food safety lotterv.

Model Plane

"Flying a remote-controlled plane isn't as easy as it actually looks, and then to put an explosive on it and have that explosive detonate at the time and place that you want it add to the difficulty of actually doing it," he said.

Ferdaus, a Muslim American from Ashland, was arrested after federal agents posing as al-Qaida members delivered what he believed was 24 pounds of C-4 explosive, authorities said. He was charged with attempting to damage or destroy a federal building with explosives. A federal affidavit claims he began planning "jihad" against the U.S. in early 2010 after becoming convinced through jihadi websites and videos that America was evil. Ferdaus had a physics degree from Northeastern University and enjoyed "taking stuff apart' and "learning on my own," according to court papers. The model planes Ferdaus eyed were the F-4 Phantom and the F-86 Sabre, small-scale versions of military jets, investigators said. The F-4 is the more expensive of the two, at up to $20,000, Hahn said. The F-86, one of which Ferdaus actually obtained, costs $6,000 to $10,000 new. Ferdaus' plan, as alleged in court papers, was to launch three such planes from a park near the Pentagon and Capitol and use GPS to direct them toward the buildings, where they would detonate on impact and blow the Capitol dome "smithereens." He to planned to pack five pounds of plastic explosives on each plane, according to prosecutors. James Crippin, an explosives and anti-terrorism expert, said that much C-4 could do serious damage a half-pound will obliterate a car. But he said getting a stable explosive like C-4 to blow up at the right time would have been hugely difficult. And there were slim prospects of causing any serious damage to buildings like the Pentagon and Capitol, which are undoubtedly hardened to withstand explosions, according to Crippin, director of the Western Forensic Law Enforcement Training Center.

grandeur," he said. Hahn said the heavier of the two models Ferdaus was allegedly planning to use could carry a maximum of two pounds of plastic explosive before malfunctioning. That's not including the weight of any GPS system, he added.

"It's almost impossible for him to get this done," he said.

OBITUARIES

Darrell Russell Schnitker

Sept. 7, 1932-Sept. 27, 2011

GOODING • Darrell Russell Schnitker, 79, a resident of Gooding, died Tuesday, Sept. 27, 2011, at the North Canyon Medical Center in Gooding

Darrell served in the Army for two years, and he and Billee lived in Seattle, Wash., during this time. After being released from the Army, Darrell started his teaching career in Idaho Falls. He taught eight years in Idaho Falls, and then he and Billee moved to Gooding, Idaho. Shortly after, he received a master's degree in education and continued to teach Vo-Ag for another 16 years in the Gooding High School. He retired from teaching in 1980. Darrell then began a welding business with a dear friend, Wayne Ills. D&W Welding became his livelihood until a second retirement in 1995. Darrell treasured his family and many friends. He loved RV'ing and fishing and was very involved in the Gooding BPOE. He thoroughly enjoyed the camaraderie of Elks friends. He was preceded in death by his daughter, Julie Marie Coates; and his parents, Lester and Wilma Schnitker. Darrell is survived by his loving wife, Billee Schnitker; his son and daughter-in-law, Mike and Donna Schnitker; his daughter and son-in-law, Holly and Mark Sabala; and his brother, Norm Schnitker. His grandkids include Katy and Kyle Turpen, Justin and Kierra Schnitker, Kristen and Joey Zubizaretta, Zach Sabala, Kelly Coates, Trish Lehmann and Taylor Coates; his great-grandchildren include Ayden Schnitker, Gracie Turpen, Madison Lehmann and Finnley Turpen.

A memorial service will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 1, at the Gooding United Methodist Church, with Pastor Mike Schnitker officiating. Services will conclude at the church. Cremation and funeral arrangements are under the direction of Demaray Funeral Service, Gooding Chapel.

The family suggests in lieu of flowers that memorial contributions be made in Darrell's name to a favorite charity.

Mass. Cat With 2 Faces Lives 12 Years, Sets Record

BY RODRIQUE NGOWI Associated Press

WORCESTER, Mass. • Frank and Louie the cat was born with two faces, two mouths, two noses, three eyes – and lots of doubts about his future.

Now, 12 years after Marty Stevens rescued him from being euthanized because of his condition, the exotic blueeyed rag doll cat is not only thriving, but has also made it into the 2012 edition of Guinness World Records as the longest-surviving member of a group known as Janus cats, named for a Roman god with two faces.

"Every day is kind of a blessing; being 12 and normal life expectancy when they have this condition is one to four days," Stevens said, stroking Frank and Louie's soft fur as he sat on her lap purring. "So, he's ahead of the game; every day I just thank God I still have him?

Frank and Louie's breeder had taken him to the Cummings School of Veterinary Medicine at Tufts University, where Stevens was working at the time, to be euthanized when he was just a day old. Stevens offered to take him home, but experts told her not to get her hopes up. Janus cats almost never survive, and most have congenital defects, including a cleft palate that makes it difficult for them to nurse and often causes them to slowly starve or get milk in their lungs and die of pneumonia. The condition is the result of a genetic defect that triggers excessive production of a certain kind of protein. But Frank and Louie did not suffer from most of the common Janus problems. Stevens used feeding tubes to nourish him for three months, hoping that would also save him from the danger of choking on food going down two mouths. It turned out she didn't have to worry about him choking, because Frank and Louie used just one of his mouths to eat.

Defense Challenges Key Witness in Trial of Michael Jackson's MD

BY HARRIET RYAN and VICTORIA KIM Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES • A lawyer for Michael Jackson's physician attacked the testimony of an important prosecution witness Thursday, suggesting that his damning account of the doctor's actions was physically impossible and influenced by offers of money from tabloids.

The witness, security guard Alberto Alvarez, is key to the prosecution's theory that Dr. Conrad Murray delayed calling for an ambulance for Jackson in order to hide evidence that he had given the singer the dangerous surgical anesthetic propofol and other drugs.

Cross-examining Alvarez on the third day of Murray's involuntary manslaughter trial, a defense lawyer said phone records cast doubt on the witness's chronology.

KABUL, Afghanistan •

International forces in Afghanistan released new data Thursday showing violence trending downward in their favor, only a day after the U.N. reported considerably more clashes and other attacks per month than last year.

The quick scheduling of the news conference to unveil the statistics underscored NATO's sensitivity about how the war is perceived back home as the U.S. and other nations start to withdraw some forces with an eye toward pulling all combat troops out by the end of 2014.

The new statistics show that insurgent attacks in the first eight months of the year were down 2 percent compared with the same period last year.

The U.N. report, by contrast, found that the monthly average number of clashes and other attacks was running nearly 40 percent higher than last year. The U.N. study measured not only Taliban attacks but also assaults by NATO and Afghan forces on insurgents; it did not provide a breakdown between the two.

The coalition cited methodological differences between the two surveys: The U.N. report counted a wide range of security incidents that the NATO report did not, including arrests and seizures of weapons caches.

Nike Names New CEO for Hurley Brand

BEAVERTON, Ore. (AP) • Nike Inc. has named a former True Religion Apparel Inc. executive to head its surf and skate brand Hurley International LLC.

Nike said Thursday that Michael Egeck, 52, will take over as CEO of Hurley on Oct. 3. He replaces Roger Wyett, president of Nike's affiliate businesses, who was serving as interim CEO at Hurley since May when the previous Hurley leader, Jim Calhoun, moved to its Converse brand.

Egeck worked most recently as president at True Religion brand jeans and has nearly 30 years in the clothing industry, having worked for at companies such as VF Corp. and Columbia Sportswear Co.

More Bad News for Bank Customers: Debit Card Fees

Bank of America plans to start charging a $5 monthly fee in early 2012 when customers make debit card purchases.

BY CANDICE CHOI Associated Press

NEW YORK • Is a monthly debit card fee becoming the norm?

Bank of America said Thursday that it will start charging a $5 monthly fee when customers make debit card purchases. The fee will be rolled out starting early next year.

Paying to use a debit card was unheard of before this year and is still a novel concept for many consumers. But several banks have recently introduced, or said they are testing, debit card fees. That's in addition to the spate of other unwelcome changes checking account customers have seen in the past year.

Bank of America's announcement carries added weight because it is the largest U.S. bank by deposits.

Customers will only be charged the fee if they use their debit cards for purchases in any given month, said Anne Pace, a Bank of America spokeswoman. Customers who only use their cards at an ATM won't ed toward those with modest balances, and will be in addition to any existing monthly service fees. For example, one such accounts charges a $12 monthly fee unless customers meet certain conditions, such as maintaining a minimum average balance of $1,500.

The debit card fee is just the latest twist in the rapidly evolving market for checking accounts.

A study by Bankrate.com this week found that just 45 percent of checking accounts are now free with no strings attached, down from 65 percent last year and 76 meet certain conditions, such as setting up direct deposit.

The study also found that the total average cost for using an ATM rose to $3.81, from $3.74, the year before. The average overdraft fee rose slightly to $30.83, from $30.47

The changes come ahead of a regulation that goes into effect next month.

Starting Oct. 1, the regulation will cap the fees that banks can collect from merchants whenever customers swipe their debit cards. Those fees generated $19 billion in revenue for banks

There is no similar cap on the merchant fees that banks can collect when customers use their credit cards, however. That means banks are increasingly encouraging customers to reach for their credit cards, reversing a trend toward debit card usage in the past several years.

An increasing reliance on credit cards would be particularly beneficial for big institutions like Bank of America, which have large credit card portfolios, notes Bart Narter, a banking analyst with Celent, a consulting firm.

"It's become a more prof-have to pay that month.

The fee will apply to basic accounts, which are market-

ECONOMY GAINING TRACTION BUT NOT ENOUGH TO CUT UNEMPLOYMENT BY CHRISTOPHER S.

RUGABER and MARTIN CRUTSINGER

Associated Press

WASHINGTON • The economy is showing signs of modest improvement – not enough to reduce high unemployment but enough to ease fears that another recession might be near.

Fewer people applied for unemployment benefits last week, though some of that was due to technical factors. And the economy grew slightly more in the April-June quarter than previously estimated. Growth is also expected to tick up in coming months.

Investors drew some hope from the latest data, as well as from news that Germany's government approved a plan to bolster Europe's response to its debt crisis. The Dow Jones industrial average finished up 143 points, or 1.3 percent, after a day of volatile trading.

Some of the news Thursday wasn't encouraging. Chief executives of the nation's largest companies are more pessimistic than they were just three months ago, according to a survey by a trade group, the Business Roundtable.

Only about one-third of the CEOs said they plan to hire or boost spending in the next six months. That's down from about half who said so in June.

And fewer Americans signed contracts to buy homes in August, the second straight month of declines. The economy expanded at an annual rate of 1.3 percent in the April-June quarter, up from an estimate of 1 percent a month ago, the Commerce Department said. The improvement reflected modestly higher consumer spending and a bigger boost from trade.

Even so, the economy grew at an annual rate of just 0.9 percent in the first six months of the year. That's the weakest sixmonth performance since the recession ended more than two years ago.

Many Americans are spending less because they're paying off debt. That trend is likely to hold back the economy in the months ahead.

Michelle Fregoso, 32, and her husband recently put off buying a new car, and they canceled a gym membership. They're focused on paying off their credit cards.

All the talk of slow growth and a possible recession has made Fregoso, who lives and works outside Chicago, more cautious.

"Obviously the economy stinks," she said. "We just want to be careful about how we're spending our money."

Weak consumer spending, high unemployment and financial market turmoil could slow growth for the rest of this year.

Most economists don't expect another recession. But they also don't see growth accelerating much. Many foresee a rebound to between 2 percent and 2.5 percent growth in the current quarter.

Burley Workshop Covers Doing Business With Government

TIMES-NEWS

A collection of federal and state agencies will teach private employers how to do business with the government during a Wednesday workshop in Burley.

The free workshop at the Best Western Burley Inn & Convention Center will cover rules of doing government business, and is hosted by the Idaho Transportation Department, U.S. Small Business Administration and the Idaho Department of Commerce's Procurement Technical Assistance Center.

Bateman-Hall General Contractors of Idaho Falls will discuss the process of constructing the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation office in Burley and subcontracting opportunities.

Participants will also learn about ITD bidding requirements, federal contractor bid requirements and other topics.

Readers' Retreat

A lot of books by local authors cross my desk, and sometimes I'm downright impressed. At Saturday's all-day Canyon Rim Bookfest in Twin Falls, you can hear authors read from their published works – and get some pointers about joining their ranks. Maybe it'll be your novel or memoir that lands beside my coffee cup soon.

Think Again Here's another string quartet that wants to overhaul your ideas of a string quartet: Carpe Diem will open the Mini-Cassia Community Concerts season Saturday in Burley. Yes, you'll hear some classical – but also gypsy, tango, folk and jazz-inspired music. "We are all antistuffy," the viola player told our reporter.

The Author in You, Too

At Saturday's book festival, you can hear local literature in the authors' voices and explore vour own publishing dreams.

BY MELISSA DAVLIN mdavlin@magicvalley.com

Thinking of writing a book? Want to meet local authors? Clear your Saturday schedule.

Magic Valley Arts Council is hosting the first Canyon Rim Bookfest. The event's free workshops will cover marketing and researching, and some of the two dozen participating authors will read excerpts from their books.

Organizer Jennifer DeNaughel got the idea for the festival last fall. She contacted writers in Boise, Twin Falls, Idaho Falls and other cities to sell their books, hold workshops and do readings.

Though many of the authors are selfpublished, "probably any writer could benefit from it," DeNaughel said, even if he or she goes through a traditional publisher.

Filer author Cliff Johnson is kicking off the day's events with his class, "Ten Easy Ways to Market (And $ell!) Your Book!" Johnson, who self-published his "Wrong Side of the River" childhood memoir, said he has sold thousands of copies since releasing his book seven years ago.

"The self-publisher is going to have to work a lot harder than an author who goes through a well-established publishing company," Johnson said. One of the things he does: frequent book signings. "In my case, I do it continuously," he said

Johnson's success caught DeNaughel's eye, and he helped her publish her novel, "Face the Rain."

"It took me 25 years to get it finished and get it published," she said. "I never really thought it would be published until I met Cliff."

Dream," opening Wednesday at the college's Fine Arts Building. For the production, the students put together an elaborate set that transports the audience to a magical forest.

Shakespeare's comedy, written in the 1590s, weaves together three stories – fighting fairy royalty, four mixed-up lovers and an acting troupe rehearsing a play. Throw in a little magic and mischief, and you have a play with plenty of plot twists to keep you hooked.

One of the challenges that the CSI students face is navigating the stage. The dynamic, ethereal set is tinged with blue and has layers and levels. The blue-painted pond drops below the stage, allowing the student who plays the mischievous elf Puck to pop out from the fake water. The set has trees that fairies can peer through, soft blue lighting and airy leaves. A bed sits on the top level on the right side of the stage for fairy queen Titania to lounge in.

It's pretty, and it took a lot of work to put together.

"The set was a challenge," said Shelby Deboard, who plays Hermia. Students started Shelby DeBoard, center, plays Hermia while Angel Harris' character Hippolyta comforts her. Daniel Gardner plays King Theseus in the background.

working on it at the beginning of the semester in late August, said director Laine Steel. As of Tuesday, they still had more to do.

For actors who are constantly moving throughout the scenes, the set's steps and drops are constantly on the mind. Deboard has already fallen once.

"It was a non-harmful trip," she said. Still, she hopes it doesn't happen during during the play.

The Season

The College of Southern Idaho theater department plans four plays this year: "A Midsummer Night's Dream," Oct. 5-8 and 12-15; "Look Homeward, Angel," Nov. 30-Dec. 3 and Dec. 7-10; "Oliver! The Musical," Feb. 29-March 3 and March 7-10; and "Collective Dating," April 25-28 and May 2-5.

Season tickets - good for all four shows — are $24 for adults and $18 for students and seniors. Purchase at the CSI Fine Arts Box Office, at 732-6781 or at tickets.csi.edu.

Crazy for Sheep

Taste lamb dishes, learn wool dyeing and enjoy the spectacle of a sheep-smothered Main Street at next weekend's Trailing of the Sheep Festival in Ketchum and Hailey.

BY KAREN BOSSICK For the Times-News

Michael Edminster says he'll never forget the day a blizzard buried his sheep outside his Bliss ranch house. "I thought I'd lost 2,000 sheep," said Edminster, who worked as a sheepherder for Gooding rancher John Faulkner for five years in the early 1980s. "All of a sudden I saw little mounds of snow move. The sheep had bedded down, nice and warm in their wool coats. When the sun came up, they got up. But the snow was so deep, we couldn't get supplies in for days."

It's stories like these that Trailing of the Sheep cofounder Diane Josephy Peavey wants to preserve through the Trailing of the Sheep Festival, which celebrates its 15th anniversary Oct. 6-9 in the Wood River Valley.

"After the music stops and the food is gone, what's left is all the stories that we've been collecting for the last 15 years," said Peavey, who lives on the Flat Top Sheep Ranch near Carey. "As children of ranchers move to the cities, the time-honored practice of living on the land is disappearing. So I'm thrilled to be able to collect and save these stories."

The festival will do that in a number of ways over its fourday stint - from an Oct. 9 workshop Edminster is conhe phone call came out of the blue, as they usually do: Judi, I've written a book, and I'd like to hire you to discuss it with me.

Always an exciting proposition but one, I will admit, that is met with a certain amount of trepidation on my part – because, you see, the good news about the Internet is that nowadays anyone can publish a book. The bad news is, anyone can publish a book. It is my strict policy to be forthright and totally honest with the author. So with equal parts excitement and nervousness, I met with longtime Buhl resident David Erickson. He proudly handed me his book, "The Muddy River Boys," a collection of stories set in the area around Williston, N.D., where he and his brother, Jim, were raised.

My first question is always: Why write the book? "My brother and I get together twice a year, and invariably, we start telling the old stories ... sometimes to the dismay of our wives, who have heard them on several occasions," Erickson said. After one such reunion, Erickson decided to write down the stories while he could still remember them. The tales reflect the nature of the times, and he realized he wanted his kids and grandkids to understand what life was like then.

As Erickson began writing, he reconnected with friends he hadn't talked to in 40 years. "This was really the delicious part - reconnecting with these people," he said. They talked, they shared, they laughed and they didn't want the stories to go away either. The book took on a life of its own.

It took Erickson four years and "copious rewrites" to complete the manuscript. "The chapters got shorter, but the book got longer," he said. His wife, Carolyn, a retired high school English teacher, was his eagle-eyed reader, editor, sounding board and cheerleader.

There are some intriguing chapter titles, such as "Kowabunga! What Happened?" "Good Fights, Bad Fights," "Rats, Cats and Sex Education," "Frozen Nuts" and "Work and Girls - Inevitably So."

I often found myself laughing out loud, as with this excerpt describing his grandfather's morning routine: "...he launched the day with his special entertainment: a tease for our Gramma and his raucous celebration of a new day that Gramp had no inclination to hide from us. He stood in front of the bathroom mirror wearing his customary shaving outfit: his gray felt hat, round gold-rimmed glasses, and nothing else. With lathered face, he stropped his razor and danced from foot to foot, intermittently whistling 'Camptown Races' and singing its doodas. Dependably, Gram gruffed at him, 'Rollie, get some clothes on. The little boys are here.' 'Hell May, they don't mind. They were born with the same equipment.""

David Erickson will sign copies of "The Muddy River Boys" (Swede Hill Publish ing, $15) from 4 to 8 p.m. today at Mimi's Flowers and Saddlehorn Event Center in Buhl, and from 6 to 9 p.m. Nov. 4 during First Friday at Rudy's in downtown Twin Falls.

Erickson's voice, one of the most challenging parts of writing, is clear, strong and eloquent. Here is an example: "The west wind had blown gusty all day until this very moment. A new breeze drifted over me, a softer one. It flowed steadily, floating down over the river from the north, warm and fragrant, like the air coming out of Mom's oven. Except it smelled nothing like her baked bread. It smelled of a mix of river things: the one bullhead Jim had caught and held close for me to sniff and see; Razzie's carp; frogs; swamp grass; and Gramp's mallards laid out for feather picking."

Erickson

Erickson is a master storyteller and fine writer. In my opinion, the book's few shortcomings deal more with mechanics - an overabundance of commas, sentences that go on a little too long, a less than eye-catching cover.

Readers who grew up with the parental gift of freedom to explore and have adventures away from micromanaging adults will strongly identify with the stories and take pleasure in laughing their way through the chapters.

Judi Baxter owned and operated Judi's Bookstore in downtown Twin Falls from 1978 to 1992. From 2000 to 2004 she wrote a twiceweekly column for Publisher's Weekly's online edition called "Reviews in the News."

Jazz Quartet Plays CSI

TIMES-NEWS

Led by a Seattle drummer, the Greg Williamson Quartet will perform at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 27 in the College of Southern Idaho's Fine Arts Recital Hall.

The concert, presented by CSI Jazz Club, will feature Williamson, Boise State University jazz studies director Marcus Wolfe on saxophone, ArtsWest Institute instructor Justin Nielsen on piano and Brigham Young University-Idaho jazz faculty member Aaron Miller on bass.

Organizers suggest a $5 donation to the CSI Jazz Club at the door. Information: Brent Jensen, 420-7066 or bjensen@csi.edu.

Williamson, a percussionist and composer, has toured as a member of the swinging big bands of Woody Herman, Glenn Miller and Harry James. He travelled several years with Steve Allen and Tonight Show Live with pianist Paul Smith. Williamson has led his own groups ranging from the Greg Williamson Quartet to the Pony Boy All-Star Big Band and recently formed an organ quartet, "The Young Lizards," bringing jazz sounds to the alt-club scene

With Cheaper Admission, CSI Opens New Corn Maze

TIMES-NEWS

Here's a not-too-scary way to get in the October mood: Students in the College of Southern Idaho's Horticulture Club are ready to begin a new corn maze season at their cornfield just north of the school's Health Science building on North College Road.

Starting Sunday, the student-run maze will be open from 5 to 10 p.m. every night through Oct. 31.

Maze admission this year was reduced to $1 for all ages; children 6 and younger get in free. Tuesday evenings this year will be reserved for groups who want to go through the maze together; groups must reserve their day and time by calling 732-6431.

Refreshments will be sold at the warming fire by the maze entrance each evening and will vary depending on which CSI club is in charge of them. They will include hamburgers, hot dogs, chips and hot and cold drinks. On Fridays and Saturdays, horticulture students will also sell kits for people to make their own s'mores over the fire with marshmallows, chocolate and graham crackers.

Other students helping with the maze this year are from Latinos Unidos, Judo, Equine, Law Enforcement and Renewable Energy clubs. As Halloween draws nearer, students plan fright nights that will include some enhancements to the maze experience.

To visit the maze after dark, bring your own flashlight and dress for the weather.

RIVALS SET TO CLASH TONIGHT AS JEROME TRAVELS TO TWIN FALLS

BY STEPHEN MEYERS

smeyers@magicvalley.com

One of Thomas Corr's first memories of moving to Twin Falls as a young child is watching the Jerome Tigers beat the Bruins on the football field.

Ever since then, the junior quarterback said, "that rivalry has always been there?

Corr will have to bring new teammate Isaiah Armstead up to speed on the cross-bridge rivalry game.

A senior safety, Armstead is in his only season with Twin Falls after moving from Sherwood, Ore. where he won a Class 5A state title a year ago.

"I don't really know much about the teams around here. I just know what my teammates tell me, and I've heard teammates talking smack about them," Armstead said.

Here's your first introduction to the Battle of the Bridge, kid.

"Everyone wants to own the bridge," said Jerome running back Jesse Smalley. "It's intense. You got to go out and play. It's time to go bear hunting."

The Bruins have won the last two contests heading into tonight's game at Bruin Stadium, last year beating Jerome 44-34 on the strength of four touchdown passes from T.J. Ellis and two seasons ago, holding on to a 26-22 win at Bruin Stadium.

Last year's game pitted a Twin Falls team undefeated in Great Basin Conference play and a Jerome team with two GBC wins under its belt. Both made the playoffs, a stark contrast to tonight's matchup featuring the winless Tigers (0-4, 0-2 GBC) and an inconsistent Bruins squad (2-2, 0-1 GBC), which lost Please see GOTW, S2

Bruin Spikers Cruise Past 'Hawks

BY PATRICK SHELTRA psheltra@magicvalley.com

Having played Twin Falls tight in the opening game of its match Thursday, the Canyon Ridge volleyball team appeared primed to challenge the Bruins in their Great Basin Conference contest.

Too bad the Riverhawks' guests had other ideas.

The Bruins weren't fazed in the slightest by their openinggame close call and thoroughly dismantled the 'Hawks in the next two games, en route to a 25-22, 25-13, 25-8 sweep.

"When we do what we're supposed to do, then it turns into a lot of good things," Bruins coach

B.J. Price said. And a lot of bad things for Canyon Ridge and its coach Stacy Boer, who fretted over the numerous unforced hitting erand rors mistakes by her players, miscues that ultimately led

"We all work together to come in the middle and make sure everyone is cheerful and happy and keep everyone in the game."

WITH EYE ON CLOCK, NBA OWNERS, PLAYERS SEEK DEAL

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • They don't have a deal yet, and they are just about out of time.

After some two years of on-and-off negotiations, that's about all NBA players and owners agree on. The gaps in their financial proposals have been so great that they sometimes decide it's best to just talk about something else.

Now they have to figure it out quickly. Without at least getting very close to the framework of a new collective bargaining agreement this weekend, hopes of the 2011-12 season starting on time would be all but lost.

"We realize that the calendar, the clock, the watch, whatever you want to say, is running out in terms of starting our regular season on time. So we're going to try to get some things done this weekend and see what we can do," said the Lakers' Derek Fisher, president of the players' association.

The owners' labor relations committee and the union's executive committee - perhaps joined by some All-Stars will meet Friday and have committed to keep talking throughout the weekend. Both sides have cautioned that bringing back the large groups after as series of discussions among smaller parties doesn't mean they are close, but rather that more voices are required to consider the crucial decisions. There are 11 owners and nine players on the committees, including All-Star Chris Paul, who may try to bring along friends such as Carmelo Anthony and LeBron James that are scheduled to join him Saturday in a charity game in his hometown of Winston-Salem, N.C. It's doubtful the presence of the superstars makes much impact - Anthony acknowledged this week that "we really don't know how powerful we are at this moment" - but opening up the room beyond the top negotiators has backfired before. Talks broke down last time the large groups were together on Sept. 13, but Commissioner David Stern said he and union executive director Billy Hunter believe it's necessary to summon them again with the Nov. 1 opener at stake. "If we're at a period of enormous opportunity and great risk, the larger the group that is assembled to focus on that, the better from my perspective," Stern said. "And I think Billy and I are on the same page on this." They aren't, though, on major salary and system issues. Owners are seeking a more restrictive salary cap system, while the players favor the current one that allows teams to exceed it through use of certain exceptions. Players fear a harder cap system would eliminate fully guaranteed contracts for all but the top players.

to hanging heads and listless play.

"That was two different teams out there," Boer said. "The energy level of the first game has to be continuing through the whole game."

Energy and emotion wasn't an issue for Twin Falls senior Allie Johnson, who was point ing her fingers in the air after points and being equally demonstrative toward her teammates' good plays, of which there were many.

Johnson finished with 31 assists, and Taryn Skahill (10 kills) and Jade Byce (nine kills) were the usual recipients of sets that were placed perfectly, mere inches above the top of the net. From there, they usually ended up smacking the floor on Canyon Ridge's side of the court for easy points.

"Our middles and opposites were hitting well tonight, and Allie did a great job setting them up," Price said.

"We all work together to come in the middle and make sure everyone is cheerful and happy and keep everyone in the game," Johnson said.

When it was suggested that her attitude was more intense than jovial, Johnson laughed and simply said, "I don't like to lose."

That's yet to happen in conference play, as Twin Falls improved its record to 6-0.

Canyon Ridge (4-2 Great Basin) jumped out quickly, leading 8-2 in the first game. The Bruins rebounded to tie the game, and took its biggest lead at 19-16 on the strength of a pair of aces by Sierra Starley. The Riverhawks fought back, and were mere inches from tying the match at 23 apiece, but Twin Falls extended that rally and won the point when Johnson stuffed a 'Hawk spike to make it 24-22. The Bruins won the game on its next serve.

Leading 9-7 in the second game, Twin Falls ran off seven straight points to take control of the game and the match.

Reyes Snatches Batting Title ... With a Bunt?

BY EDDIE PELLS

Associated Press

At least we didn't have to hear Jose Reves trot out those lame sports cliches about how the credit should go to his teammates.

This one was all about him. On a night that every Little League coach should immediately burn from memory, the New York Mets shortstop turtled his way to the NL batting title with a bunt single, a request to be pulled from the game, and a chorus of boos from the 28,000 fans who came to see one of the game's best hitters take what could be a final victory lap around Citi Field.

Reyes wrapped up the batting title by going 1 for 1 -the bunt single in the first inning – and beating Milwaukee's Ryan Braun, who actually tried but got no hits later in the evening when he needed three.

"A lot of people told me I shouldn't play today," Reyes said. "I said, 'Oh, no. I want to play.' I want to be there for the fans."

Given their reaction, Reyes shouldn't have done them any favors. He becomes a free agent this offseason and if it turns out this was his last game in a home uniform in New York, it was awkward, ugly and a little sad. Trying to understand the psychology Please see REYES, S4

OTTE SHOOTS EVEN PAR IN LAS VEGAS

LAS VEGAS • Burley High School graduate Preston Otte shot an even-par 71 on Thursday in the Justin Timberlake Shriners Hospitals for Children Open, but has some work to do after he finished tied for 93rd after the first round of play.

The top 70 after today's second round make the weekend cut, and get a prorated share of the purse based on the final-round finish.

Jhonattan Vegas and William McGirt shot career-best 8-under 63s to share the first-round lead.

Vegas, the Venezuelan rookie who won the Bob Hope Classic in January for his first PGA Tour title, had 10 birdies and two bogeys at TPC Summerlin in the first of four Fall Series events.

McGirt, also a PGA Tour rookie, had eight birdies in a bogey-free round.

Nathan Green and Charlie Wi were a stroke back.

Vegas, playing in hot afternoon conditions, birdied the par-4 15th and par-5 16th to reach 8 under, dropped a stroke on the par-317th and closed with a birdie on the par-4 18th to get back to 8 under.

And that may be the easier one.

Owners want a significant reduction in the players' guarantee of basketballrelated income, which was 57 percent in the previous deal. Players proposed lowering it to 54.3 percent before the lockout began July 1, though Hunter indicated this summer they were prepared to go lower if owners would agree to leave the cap system untouched. Union officials have said the league's proposals would have them in the mid-40s.

Each percentage point equates to at least $30 million. Players totaled $2.1 billion in salaries and benefits players earned this season.

THREE AND A look at this week's biggest prep football games

Wood River at Minico

The Skinny: Wood River (4-1 overall, 1-0 Great Basin Conference) has never beaten Minico, which leads the alltime series 7-0. For Wood River, which has played two 3A teams, two 2A teams and winless Jerome, tonight will, by far, be the biggest test it's faced this season. Minico (5-0, 2-0) has outscored opponents 45.8 to 17.6 on average, seems to get stronger every week and is celebrating homecoming.

Key matchup No. 1: Brady May vs. Greg Lindbloom. Both teams rush for more than 350 yards per game. Minico is led by May (930 yards, 17 touchdowns), while Lindbloom (754 yards, 12 TDs) leads Wood River. Last week vs. Jerome, Lindbloom exploded for 212 yards and three scores, averaging 13.3 vards per carry. Meanwhile, May ran for 198 yards and four TDs last week vs. Canyon Ridge with a 9.4 vards-per-carry average.

Key matchup No. 2: GBC's premier coaches. Wood River coach Kevin Stilling and Minico coach Tim Perrigot shared co-coach of the year honors in the Great Basin Conference last season.

Prediction: Minico 48, Wood River 12.

Shoshone at Oakley

The Skinny: It's a clash of Class 1A Division I heavyweights when the No. 4 Indians travel to the No. 6 Hornets. Both teams can score points in bunches and both teams already have multiple notable victories under their collective belts -Shoshone handed Rimrock its only loss this year, and rallied to beat an up-and-coming Dietrich team in its opener; Oakley has stomped a pair of state semifinalists from last year in Grace and Castleford by a 90-36 aggregate.

Key Matchup No. 1: Shoshone quarterback Garrett Sant vs. Oakley's defense. The son of head coach Mark Sant, Garrett Sant is one of the most productive signal callers in the region, and he's even returned a punt for a score this year. Meanwhile, Oakley's defense throttled Grace last week, holding the Grizzlies to 40 points under their season average.

Key Matchup No. 2: Too many talking points for this game, so here are some things to consider: Shoshone is coming off a bye. Oakley is playing at home. Oakley destroyed a team that had mercy-ruled its last four opponents. Shoshone's only road game came against winless Richfield.

Prediction: Shoshone 38, Oakley 36

-Patrick Sheltra

Buhl at Filer

The skinny: The West End's regional 11-man rivalry takes center stage in Filer. Both teams struggled to start the season, but Buhl started to turn the corner against Payette before stumbling in defeat to South Fremont last week. With a three team conference advancing two to the playoffs, the winner of this one has one foot in the postseason.

Key matchup No. 1: Buhl's run game vs. Filer's run defense. The Wildcats have shown vulnerability against physical football teams. Buhl's run offense is designed to be more physical than finesse, and the Indians will run it about 60 percent of the time. Whichever side can beat the other physically will go a long way toward dictating the outcome.

Key matchup No. 2: Filer TE Ryan Karel vs. Buhl's back seven. It's no secret that Filer will keep the ball on the ground more often than not and try to chew up clock. But Karel is one of the more athletic tight ends around, and if the Filer offensive line gives its quarterback some time, he's the prime target in the Wildcat passing game. Prediction: Buhl 34, Filer 14

LOPEZ STOOD TALLEST FOR MINICO SPARTANS

BY RYAN HOWE rhowe@magicvalley.com

RUPERT • It's difficult to single out just one Athlete of the Week from the Minico boys soccer team.

After all, the Spartans don't have one star player. Instead, they are solid at every position, like an efficient machine. It's that team-oriented play that has catapulted the former league doormats into first place in the Great Basin Conference.

But when Minico had the opportunity this week to clinch the No. 1 seed for the District IV tournament, Eddie Lopez stepped up and made it happen by scoring three goals in the Spartans' 3-1 win over Jerome on Monday.

"It means a lot because ever since I've been playing, Minco's always been on the bottom," said Lopez. "This year we've got the No. 1 seed and we're showing all these teams that we can compete and we really want that conference championship."

As a four-year varsity player, Lopez is among

With neither team scoring in the first half, the Wildcats were able to finally put their game together and scored four goals in the second half for the High Desert Soccer Conference road win. Filer was led by Zach Clark with two goals and an assist. Riley Atkins and Santiago Alvarado each scored added a goal.

'We started out slow," said Filer coach Greg Clark. "And our defense was having problems. Our passing and attacking was much better in the second half."

Filer hosts the Community School on Tuesday.

Bliss hosts Buhl on Wednesday.

WENDELL 7, DECLO 0

The Trojans had goals by Luis Bartolo, Martin Diaz, Jorge Lopez, Eder Macias, Alexis Mercado, Luis Valadez and Jaime Cordero in the High Desert Soccer Conference home win.

"Declo gave it the best they could with only nine players," said Wendell coach Jon Goss.

DREW NASH • TIMES-NEWS Canyon Ridge's Emma Stephens hits the ball at the same time as Twin Falls' Josie Jordan Thursday evening at Canyon Ridge High School in Twin Falls. fensively strong. She blocked very well, making them adjust their hitting."

Murtaugh (4-9, 2-9 Northside) hosts Hansen on Oct. 10.

JEROME 3, BURLEY O

After a tight first set, Jerome quickly dismissed visiting Burley 25-23, 25-18, 25-16 in a Great Basin Conference matchup.

Haylee Burnham led the Tigers with six kills, and Savannah Lott recorded six blocks.

Jerome (7-4, 5-2 Great Basin) travels to Twin Falls Tuesday for a tri-match with the Bruins and Filer.

KIMBERLY 3, VALLEY 1

Katy Robinson had 18 kills, leading Kimberly to a 25-14, 20-25, 25-20, 25-15 win.

Kylie Haskell added 20 digs for the Bulldogs (5-8), who host Wendell on Monday.

DECLO 3, GOODING 2

Keva Robinson had 18 kills and Bailey Wilson added 16 kills and four aces as the Hornets won a back-and-forth affair against the Senators, 12-25, 25-18, 25-13, 12 seniors who are hoping to deliver Minico's first district soccer title in school history.

"Being Minico's first team to go to state would be awesome. Winning that conference championship would be awesome," Lopez said. "We've come together as a team now. I'm not going to lie, at the beginning of the season some of us just didn't get along. But now the second round of the season when we beat Twin and Canyon Ridge, we bonded as a team."

Chosen by his teammates, Lopez is co-captain along with Ethan Belnap. He demonstrates his versatility and leadership by playing any position he's asked.

"If I put him in the goal box he would be a good goalkeeper," said Minico coach Armando Tapia. "He dominates the defense, that's his main position. He's played midfielder and we've pushed him to forward. He's just an amazing kid."

Although he's moved all over the field, Lopez is one of the team's leading goal scorers. In fact, three players are tied for that honor - Lopez, Eric Tapia and Joseph Valencia - with five goals apiece.

"I think what's worked for us is a lot of these teams don't know who to guard," Armando Tapia said. "If they double team one, there's another kid who will step in there and play just as good."

In fact, seven different players have found the back of the net this season, further proving Minico's team approach.

"It shows that we're not greedy," Lopez said. "When we have the chance to score, we score. But when we have someone else open, we get it to the open man."

If this team is to win Minico's first conference title, Lopez said it will take all 11 players on the field working as one.

"We play to have fun," Lopez said. "We know we want to get that championship, but we play to have fun and we will stick together as a team all throughout that district tournament."

Girls Soccer BLISS 2, FILER 1

Bliss only had two attempts on goal, but that was all the Bears needed.

Kylee Carpenter scored the first goal for the Bears and Alyssa Lekkerkerk tied the game for the Wildcats ending the first half, 1-1. Demsi Butler of Bliss broke the tie in the 60th minute with a penalty kick, giving the Bears the High Desert Soccer Conference home win.

"The girls played really hard and dominated the play of game," said Filer coach Shane Hild, whose team had eight shots on goal. "We did a good job of controlling the ball but just didn't take advantage of some opportunities."

Filer (5-8-0, 5-5-0 High Desert) hosts the Community School on Tuesday.

WENDELL 3, DECLO 1

Jana Brown gave the Hornets the early lead, but a hat trick by Marlen Coronado of Wendell made the difference in the High Desert Soccer Conference home victory.

Declo hosts Buhl on Tuesday.

Wendell (3-7-2, 3-6-2) is done until the first round of the district tournament on Oct. 8.

Volleyball MINICO 3, PRESTON o

The Spartans picked up a nonconference win as the Spartans swept the Indians, 25 9, 25-14, 25-15.

Chelsea Hepworth matched her teamhigh nine kills with nine blocks followed by Hannah Bailey with six kills, three blocks and five digs. Kaylee Kostka directed the offense dishing out 13 assists and Minico libero, Micaela Merril recorded 11 digs.

"The girls played with a lot of intensity," said Minico coach Micah Walters. "We are headed in the right path heading into districts."

Minico hosts Canyon Ridge on Tuesday.

GLENNS FERRY 3, WENDELL 0

The Pilots picked up a road Canvon Conference win with the 26-24, 25-19, 25-23 victory over the Trojans.

Kiersten Hilt recorded a double-double for the host team with 15 kills and 16 digs. Kristin Roeloffs had a team-high nine blocks followed by Hilt and Megan Sousa with four each. Sousa also finished with 25 assists for Wendell (0-13, 0-6).

For Glenns Ferry, Jacqueline Brennan had eight kills and 17 digs. Dei'Ja Martin led the defense with four blocks and Michaela Turner registered eight assists.

Wendell (0-13, 0-6) travels to Kimberly on Monday.

DIETRICH 3, CASTLEFORD o

The host Blue Devils took care of the Wolves, 25-15, 25-16, 25-15.

"Castleford is scrappy and is a good defensive team," said Dietrich coach Traci Perron.

Castleford hosts Community School and Dietrich is on the road at Camas County on Tuesday.

RICHFIELD 3, MURTAUGH 1

Richfield beat the visitors from Murtaugh, 25-12, 25-18, 18-25, 25-22. Hannah Bates led the Red Devils offense with four kills and Alejandra Gonzalez paced the defense with five blocks.

"The girls worked really hard and never gave up," said Murtaugh coach Drue Ngauamo. "Angelica (Gonzalez) was de-20-25, 15-12.

Sydney Webb added nine kills and six blocks for Declo (10-2, 4-1 Canyon Conference), which had 12 aces as team.

LIGHTHOUSE CHRISTIAN 3, CAREY 0

Brooklyn Vander Stelt pounded 16 kills to lead Lighthouse Christian to the sweep over Carey 25-13, 25-17, 25-14.

She also added 13 digs and four aces, while Andre'a Helman dished out 30 assists. Rebecca Storm had nine kills and Jamie Morton recorded 10 digs for the Lions.

Lighthouse Christian (12-3, 9-2 Northside) travels to Raft River Tuesday for a trimatch with the Trojans and Grace.

HAGERMAN 3, HANSEN o TWIN FALLS CHRISTIAN 2, HANSEN 0

Sheala Owsley and Larissa Knight each had seven kills to pace Hagerman to a comfortable 25-15, 25-22, 25-20 win over Hansen.

Katee Hines added six aces for the Pirates, who improved to 9-2 on the season.

Reese Peters had eight kills for the Huskies against Hagerman.

In earlier action, Twin Falls Christian beat Hansen 25-14, 25-22. Hanna Glaze had three blocks and five aces for TFCA.

Rebecca Vallez had five kills for Hansen (1-16), which hosts Valley on Monday.

RAFT RIVER 3, NORTH GEM 1

Wynter Holtman had 13 kills and 52 digs as Raft River cruised in a 25-10, 25-12, 23-25, 25-22 victory.

Echo Hansen had 12 kills and Taylor Whitaker dished out 38 assists for the Trojans (10-2), who host a tri-match with Grace and Lighthouse Christian on Tuesday.

GOTW Continued from S1

to Burley two weeks ago to snap a 14-game losing streak for the Bobcats.

"We're not even looking at the records," said Jerome coach Gary Krumm. "That doesn't matter. This is the last chance for our 10 seniors to play Twin Falls and that should mean something to them."

Both offenses have underwhelmed this season, with Jerome scoring just 13.3 points per game and Twin Falls 12.8. Both are also breaking in young quarterbacks in sophomore Zach Thibault at Jerome and Corr for the Bruins.

Thibault has ignited some new energy in the Tigers, who have scored 29 and 22 points in the last two games against Canyon Ridge and Wood River, respectively.

"He's only a sophomore, but he's a leader and he's really aggressive," Krumm said. "He's going to make mistakes for sure, but overall he's done a really nice job for us and brought a positive spark to our team."

Corr is following in the footsteps of Ellis and has had a tough go so far, beginning the first week of the season with a battle against laryngitis, which took away his voice while trying to master an offense built around a lot motion and quick passes.

"In the beginning, everything was really fast and it was a lot to take in, but now I feel much more comfortable," said Corr, who has recovered from his bout with laryngitis. "We have a lot of good playmakers on our team, so I've just got to let our players make plays instead of me trying to do it myself."

He also added: "Coach (Allyn Reynolds) always tells us Jerome is a tough team to play. It doesn't matter how good they are, or how good we are. They're going to be ready to play and we should be too."

CSI's Focus Is On The Present, Not Future

BY DAVID BASHORE

dbashore@magicvalley.com

Saturday marks the biggest match in the College of Southern Idaho volleyball team's season. And not just because it's the next one on the schedule.

Third-ranked CSI trips north to Coeur d'Alene for a Saturday afternoon match with No. 11 North Idaho College, knowing a win will put the Golden Eagles firmly in the driver's seat in the Scenic West Athletic Conference standings.

CSI beat Snow College and Salt Lake Community College, perennially the other two in the SWAC's top four, last weekend. A win over North Idaho would, in all likelihood, force two of the three to beat CSI on its home floor to take away the conference championship.

"I'm not even thinking about (the big picture)," said CSI coach Heidi Cartisser. "I just want to get this weekend out of the way before any of that."

Even so, the Golden Eagles know that a win this weekend just might ensure the Region 18 Tournament is staged in Twin Falls for the first time since becoming a single six-team tournament.

In order to achieve that, they know two things need to happen: they need to contain North Idaho middle blocker Yang Yang, and they need to ride their perceived edge on the left and right.

That means CSI's block, anchored by middles Beth Carey, Taylor Wilkinson and Brooke Jensen, will have to continue its imposing ways (averaging 12 blocks last three matches), while outside hitter Keani Passi (team-best 2.92 kills per set) and rightside stand-in Taila Gnass (12 kills last Saturday) need to continue their strong play.

"Yang is a beast, but I think our middles are good enough to keep her in check," said freshman setter Ashia Joseph. "We've been working a lot on serve receive and running our offense this week, and we're really confident with how we've been playing."

ALDS PREVIEWS

Tampa Bay's Evan Longoria, left, celebrates with fans early Thursday after his 11th inning home run helped the Rays clinched the AL wild card with an 8-7 win over the New York Yankees.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Yankees-Tigers

Schedule: (All times MDT) Game 1, Friday, at New York (6:37 p.m.); Game 2, Saturday, at New York (6:37 p.m.); Game 3, Monday, at Detroit (6:37 p.m.); x-Game 4, Tuesday, at Detroit (TBA); x-Game 5, Thursday, at New York (TBA). (All games on TBS). x-if necessary. Season Series: Tigers won 4-3. Watch For:

 Valverde's Streak. Detroit closer Jose valverde converted all 49 of his save opportunities during the regular season, although his strikeout rate has actually declined the last few years. The last reliever on a run like this was Brad Lidge in 2008 with Philadelphia, and he kept it up through the playoffs to help the Phillies win the World Series • A-Rod Again? Alex Rodriguez was a perennial bust in October until coming through with one clutch hit after another in 2009 to carry the Yankees to a title. Sidelined by knee surgery during the summer, he's been hampered by nagging injuries to his thumb and hip as well. Can the Yankees count on the 36-year-old slugger to provide production from the cleanup spot? • Action Jackson. The Detroit leadoff hitter hasn't had a great year offensively, but Austin Jackson is of tremendous importance in center field, especially at spacious Comerica Park. Jackson's range enables Leyland to play less mobile fielders in left and right, and if his bat shows up for a playoff series or two, it will make the Tigers that much tougher to beat. • Super Nova. The rookie right-hander has been a revelation for the Vankees, winning his last 12 big league decisions. That stretch was interrupted by a month in the minors even though he was 8-4 when he got demoted. Plucked by the Padres in the 2008 Rule 5 draft only to be returned the following March, Ivan Nova could end up starting twice in the series, including a deciding Game 5. It will be interesting to see how he handles his first postseason. wins were one more than he had last season in his transition from reliever to starter. Holland worked out of the bullpen last postseason, and in his World Series debut threw 11 consecutive balls. Harrison was left off the postseason roster last year after being primarily a reliever.

• Zorilla. Ben Zobrist, a versatile and underrated player for Tampa Bay, homered in five of his last 11 games. Five of his last 10 hits have been home behind the decisions that led to this debacle is a window into what the Mets have become.

They, of course, would love to keep Reyes and don't want to do anything to upset him. But the reality is, they're plagued with financial problems. Those problems have played into three straight losing seasons, trades involving stars Carlos Beltran and Francisco Rodriguez and as many headlines for their ties with Bernie Madoff as anything on the baseball diamond.

Mets manager Terry Collins went along with Reyes' request to be pulled if he got a hit to open the game.

If he didn't honor Reyes' request, Collins said, "I could possibly lose the one thing I helped create all summer long in one instance, and I wasn't going to let that happen today? There is an argument to be made - that a batting title over a long, grueling season isn't won in a single night, though it certainly can be lost. And with so little going for them, the Mets certainly couldn't be blamed for wanting to preserve a little bit of history - in this case, Reves' league-leading .337 batting average. Clearly, Reyes and the Mets aren't the first ones to choose this route. Back in his day, Wade Boggs sat out some end-of-season games to ostensibly nurse some injuries while also protecting his league-leading batting average.

But those arguments came off a little hollow, especially on this night.

Down the East Coast, Boston closer Jonathan Papelbon was putting it all on the line, trying to help the Red Sox avoid one of the biggest collapses in baseball history. He gave up two runs in the bottom of the ninth to Baltimore and now has a spot alongside Bill Buckner in the Red Sox hall of shame.

But at least he didn't finish the season sitting in the dugout.

Meanwhile, Tampa Bay overcame a seven-run deficit to beat the Yankees, knocked out Boston for the wildcard spot and capped off what will go down as one of the wildest nights baseball. It was an uplifting reminder of how great the national pastime really can be when the stakes are high and the players put it all on the line. C.J. Wilson in a tweet.

Baseball has always been the most unique of team sports because individual performances are so integral to it. As the hit movie "Moneyball" is reminding us, those batting averages and ERAs are worth a lot. Winning the batting title speaks to a player's longevity and consistency over the longest season in professional sports.

But there are ways to do things and ways not to do things.

Seventy years ago, on the very night that Reyes bunted to his title, Ted Williams brought a .400 average into a final-day doubleheader against the Philadelphia Athletics. He could have sat that day. Instead, he played both games and went 6 for 8 to finish the season at .406. His explanation for playing was simple: He didn't deserve the .400 average if he sat out.

Watch For:

• Big Game James. A first-time All-Star and the team MVP, the Rays' James Shields lived up to his nickname all season. He came within one out of his 12th complete game in his final regular-season start and is lined up to pitch Game 2 and Game 5 in this series on full rest. • Leaning Left. With C.J. Wilson, Derek Holland and Matt Harrison, the Rangers have gotten a franchise-record 46 wins from left-handed starters. That's the most in the majors since the 1997 Seattle Mariners had 52. Wilson's 16 runs.

• Multiple Michael. Michael Young adapted to his new role and had a team-high 159 starts for the Rangers, the ninth time in 10 seasons he played at least 155 games. This time, he started 69 games as the DH, 39 at third base, 36 at first, 14 at second and one at shortstop. He became the only player to have at least 200 hits (213) while playing 35 games or more at three different positions during the season. Before last year, Young had a bar at shortstop. played 1,508 regular-season games without getting into the playoffs. This year, Game 1 of the World Series is scheduled for Oct. 19, his 35th birth-

• Colby On The Road. Colby Lewis was 3-0 with a 1.71 ERA in four postseason starts last fall, all at Rangers Ballpark. He threw five scoreless innings in his no-decision and won the AL pennantclinching game. This year, Lewis has been more effective on the road, going 9-5 with a 3.43 ERA, 107 Ks and 27 walks in 107 2-3 innings. The Reyes affair will wind up as a footnote, though one the free agent probably will hear about every time he comes back to New York, more than likely as a visitor.

Mets fans weren't the only ones who took umbrage.

"Seriously people – taking out a star player to preserve his batting average lead – weak," said Rangers pitcher Fans ran onto the field and mobbed Williams, who needed an escort from his teammates to make it to the locker room.

When the game ended in New York, a few fans chanted, "Please stay, Jose" — asking a man who had just ripped them off to stick around, maybe come back and entertain them again next year.

REQUESTS FOR QUALIFICATIONS

The City of Kimberly is seeking Statements of Qualifications from qualified parties interested in providing professional engineering services to the City for a period of one year with an option for the City to renew it annually for an additional two years. It is the intent to select a qualified engineering firm to provide a variety of services for the City. For services needed or for each potential project, a separate scope of work and contract will be developed and negotiated. Funding to pay for these services may come from a variety of local, state, federal, and private sources and payment may be contingent upon obtaining such funding.

The proposal evaluation process implemented by the City shall be a "Qualification Based Selection". The City reserves the right to make a selection directly from the proposals. However, if it is in the best interest of the City, an interview with the top scoring firms may be conducted as part of the selection process. The City's selection committee will make recommendations to the City Council based on the criteria outlined below. The City reserves the right to negotiate final contracts, scopes of work schedules, and fees with the selected firm. Further, the City has the right to reject any and all proposals.

Proposals will be evaluated and scored on the following criteria.

Capability to Ferrorin Duties	(23)
Qualification of Engineering Team	(25)
Design and Project Implementation Experience	(25)
References	(25)
Selection Committee Interview (Optional)	(30)

Additional information can be obtained from the City of Kimberly's website at www.cityofkimberly.org. One (1) electronic copy (in

PDF format) and five (5) hard copies of each proposal are due to City Hall on or before October 17, 2011 by 2:00 p.m. Proposals should not exceed 20 pages in length (including references). Proposals should be submitted to: Engineering Services Proposal

ORDINANCE 2011-3 Amending, Repealing or Replacing Provisions of Chapters 2, 4, 5, 6, 12 and 20 of the Jerome County Zoning Ordinance Publication of Ordinance 2011-3 is hereby made, which amends, repeals and/or replaces Chapters Two, Four, Five, Six, Twelve and Twenty of the Jerome County Zoning Ordinance by: Repealing Chapter 12 in its entirety and replacing it with new or restructured provisions defining airport and airport overlay zones around the two public airports in Jerome County, and setting forth the regulations surrounding certain uses of property within such zones. The new provisions of Chapter 12 center around: the purpose and authority behind the stated regulations; applicable definitions; airspace zones and maps thereof; zoning regulations within the airspace zones; permitting procedure; non-conforming uses; fair disclosure statements within airport influence areas; variance procedures; notification of right to appeal; and violations and penalties. Certain provisions of Chapters Two, Four, Five, Six and Twenty are repealed, amended or added so as to correlate with the changes made to Chapter 12.

The above amendments can be reviewed in their entirety at the Jerome County Planning and Zoning Office, 300 North Lincoln, Room 307, Jerome, Idaho, between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. weekdays or at the Jerome City Library, or on the Jerome County Website (www.jeromecounty.id.us). U.S. Citizenship Required. TSA is an Equal Opportunity Employer. Must be 18 years of age to apply.

Times News

Due to expansion, promotion and a couple of cross-country relocations, the Times-News has immediate openings in the advertising, circulation and news departments.

ADVERTISING SALES SUPERVISOR

We are seeking a high-energy and enthusiastic advertising supervisor with strong interpersonal skills who possesses an entrepreneurial spirit. The successful candidate will have both business-to-business sales and management experience. Must demonstrate ability to effectively manage, lead, and generate revenue growth from local businesses.

Candidates must also possess a solid understanding of media sales, including newspaper, TV, online, print sales and event marketing. Solid critical thinking skills required. Qualified candidates must be detail oriented with excellent communication skills, and possess the ability to multi-task and work under tight deadlines. Bachelor's degree in advertising or marketing preferred. Reliable transportation is required.

The advertising supervisor will recruit, train, coach and manage a first class, diverse and talented team of sales representatives to exceed print and online advertising revenue goals and will collaborate with the Advertising Director to develop and implement sales strategies to exceed goals.

We want to talk to people who have confidence in media companies, understand the power of effective advertising and approach challenges with a high level of enthusiasm that rubs off on those around them. This is a solid marketplace with opportunity for revenue growth.

SALES EXECUTIVE

We need a full-time advertising sales consultant who is ready to achieve success, is highly motivated and goal orientated. This position will manage an existing well-established account list and be responsible for the development of new business from new and existing clients. They will provide excellent service to our clients, selling newspaper and online advertising, specialty publications, and ad inserts.

The successful candidate must have a proven track record in outside sales, developing strong business relationships, possess good oral and written communication skills, be well organized, have excellent follow-through and enjoy working with a variety of people. Previous marketing experience or advertising sales experience a plus.

WRITER

South-central Idaho's best and largest news provider seeks a talented writer to dig deep into the intersection of people and policy to consistently bring our readers the stories they'll keep talking about.

The assignment covers an eight-county area from which the right candidate will seek the most compelling stories from both rural and urban settings. Tasks will range from rooting out the reasons behind utility increases that hit thousands of pocketbooks to profiling a thinning group of Pearl Harbor attack survivors who call the area home.

The reporter's primary responsibility will be to find and develop six snappy enterprise stories per week and pitch in on other beats when needed, such as when our government reporter is covering the annual state legislative session in Boise.

CUSTOMER SERVICE FIELD REPRESENTATIVE

We need someone with experience in providing quantifiably excellent customer service to join our Circulation Team. This position supports all interactions with customers and contractors of the daily newspaper.

Responsibilities include distributing newspapers to contractors and customers, delivery of paper routes as necessary, redelivering shortages or missed papers, collection of coins from rack accounts, making daily deposits, replacing racks as necessary and providing exceptional customer service to assure timely and efficient delivery. This 40-hour per week position will include work in the circulation office and in the field. This position requires regular lifting of newspaper bundles and must frequently lift and/or move CLERICAL

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

"Although I enter not, Yet round about the spot Ofttimes I hover. - William Makepeace Thackera

In six spades it seems yo have to find a 2-2 trump brea or the bare spade jack, in which case 13 tricks rate to be avail able. If they do not break, yo might think you need a miracl in clubs, or a defensive error. In fact, though, once trumps bread 3-1, the contract is safe agains any lie of the cards.

On the lead of the heart jack to South's ace, declarer cashes the spade ace as both defenders follow. It would be easy (but very foolish) to play a second top trump and cross your fingers. Essentially you would be playing for an overtrick and risking the contract in the process. The key point of the deal lies in the quality of dummy's spade intermediates.

Instead of taking a second top spade, cash the diamond ace, king and queen. As soon as either defender ruffs in, declarer can regain the lead, draw the last trump, then cross to the spade 10 to pitch the two club losers on the remaining diamond winners.

Suppose instead that East discards on the third top diamond. Then declarer leads the spade nine to dummy's 10. The best East can do is to take the trick and play back a club, but declarer wins the ace, goes to dummy with the trump seven, and takes his discards on the diamonds again.

The play works in exactly the same way if it is West who has the spade length.

ANSWER: Your partner's double shows extras and is for takeout. It might look tempting to pass and play for penalties, but such an action puts a lot of pressure on your partner — and if it doesn't work, he may never reopen with shortness again. Instead of going for the jugular, just remove the double to three clubs and hope that the opponents bid on, unaware of the breakers ahead.

In 1962, black student James Meredith was escorted by federal marshals to the campus of the University of Mississippi, where he enrolled for classes the next day.

In 1986, the U.S. released accused Soviet spy Gennadiy Zakharov, one day after the Soviets released American journalist Nicholas Daniloff.

In 1988, Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev retired President Andrei A. Gromvko from the Politburo and fired other old-guard leaders in a Kremlin shake-up.

Ten years ago: Under threat of U.S. military strikes, Afghanistan's hardline Taliban rulers said explicitly for the first time that Osama bin Laden was still in the country and that they knew where his hideout was located. George Gately, the creator of the "Heathcliff" newspaper comic strip, died in Ridgewood, N.J., at age 72.

Five years ago: Five people were killed when an overpass near Montreal collapsed. Tony Award-winning actress Isabel Bigley died in Los Angeles at age 80.

One year ago: Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton called Guatemalan leaders to apologize for 1940s U.S.-led experiments that infected occupants of a Guatemala mental hospital with syphilis, apparently to test the effectiveness of penicillin against some sexually transmitted diseases.

FOUND:

An adult Chocolate Labrador was found in Buhl 9-20-11. He is middle aged and is neutered. Call to identify.

AVAILABLE FOR ADOPTION:

Donations are greatly appreciated. We are in desperate need of adult and puppy food. Thank you

.oretta-linn is a beautiful Heeler/Border Collie mix. She is white with black spots and is absolutely adorable. She is about 7 weeks-old

Conway Twitty is a handsome Heeler/Border Collie mix. He is black with some white markings. He is about six-weeks-old and came into the shelter with his sister Loretta. They were found in an ally starving and scared. They are doing really well now and are eager to find there forever homes.

Darby is a sweet little black Labrador puppy. She probably is mixed with another breed because she has a little bit of white. However, she has the classic Labrador head and ears. Darby loves to swim and fetch and is very affectionate. She will make a great family pet and might even be that new hunting companion for some lucky guy.

Gypsy was left abandoned in a back yard with 2 feet of chain. If it hadn't been for a good Samaritan neighbor she wouldn't have made it to us. She is a beautiful Australian Shepherd mix with a red brindle coat. Gypsy is probably about 3 years old.

Miracle Max is a 6 month old chocolate Lab. Max came to the shelter about four months ago and has been under medical care. He was tied in the back of a pickup, jumped out and got tangled up with the back tire. The tire acted as a belt sander removing all of the muscle tissue and much of the bone on Max's rear leg. Rather than euthanizing Max or amputating the leg, Dr. Jones and his staff spent the past several months caring for Max with herbal therapies. Max's leg is now fully functional.

Marly is a sweetheart, she is a 10 week old Border Collie mix puppy. She came into our shelter with her siblings Marley and Harley. She is black and white. Carly would be that perfect addition to your home.

Hannah is a 3 month old chocolate Labrador mix puppy. She has a some white markings. She is a sweetheart!

Missy-Mae is a Beagle/Basset Hound mix. She is a young adult, probably about 2 or 3-years-old. Missy is tri-colored and very affectionate.

Kelsev is a female Pointer Border Collie mix puppy. White with large black spots..really cute!

Murphey is about ten mos old. He is a Shih Tzu/Terrier mix. He is tan and black and has a unique wire coat. Murphey is verv sweet and affectionate.

The adoption fee is $75 and includes spaying/neutering and the first set of vaccinations

Kimberly Council Briefed on Smart Growth, Safe School Travel

BY KIMBERLY WILLIAMS-BRACKETT For the Times-News

KIMBERLY • The Kimberly City Council listened Tuesday to recommendations on how city policies can support safe routes to school.

Elaine Clegg with Idaho Smart Growth, a nonprofit dedicated to helping communities manage their growth in healthy ways, is working with Kimberly city and school district officials to assess their existing sidewalks, road crossings and bicycling conditions and develop baseline data to examine.

At the meeting, she briefed council members on national statistics that show fewer children are walking or biking to school, based on data gathered over the last few decades.

"Pedestrian and bicycle infrastructure is inadequate and incomplete," Clegg said. Land use patterns have also become spread out and disconnected, she said.

Clegg also warned that congestion at schools has become more of a problem. And removing the daily activity of walking or biking also has an effect on health, she said.

"Obesity in Idaho is reaching epidemic proportions," Clegg said. "Diabetes has doubled in 13 years from 4 percent in 1997 to 8 percent in 2009.

"Children lose independence and mobility by relying on adults to drive them."

Changing such trends requires adjustments to city planning, including what features streets include and how schools are sited.

Smart growth, Clegg said, factors in things like distances traveled, a diversity of land uses and types, and street design.

She recommended that as the city of Kimberly grows. schools strive for sites within walking and biking distance. Though land can be cheap on a city's outskirts, she said, that can also add busing costs

On the city side, Clegg said officials should factor walking and biking routes into comprehensive plans, and develop a master plan of sidewalks and non-motorized paths on those routes. Bicycle parking standards and a push toward mixeduse zones were also among her numerous recommendations could lead to improvements like installing sidewalks, curb, and gutter along south Main Street if an infrastructure grant is funded by the Idaho Transportation Department.

The council took no action following her Tuesday presentation, though Councilman Burke Richman suggested one idea: connecting Kimberly to the city of Twin Falls's bike path, and to the mountain bike paths in the South Hills.

Egan said in a previous interview that he originally ran for a council seat after approaching the city as a citizen on several issues, which were never resolved.

During his term, Egan spearheaded city efforts to increase more weed control, prodded the city to switch from a mowing contract with an independent firm to performing the work internally, and prompted the enforcement of animal control licensing and sidewalk repairs.

Those still in the running for three council seats are incumbent Councilman Jay Lenkersdorfer, Randall Hawkins, Samuel Kuoha, Russell Mallory, Dennis Dexter, John Craner, Joyce Merrill and Tom Tolness. Incumbent Councilman Denny Curtis has opted not to run again.

The candidates run in an at-large pool with the three candidates gathering the most votes winning the open seats.

Candidates to speak during October forums • The Friends of the Burley Public Library will host two October candidate forums so the public can meet the remaining contenders.

Librarian Julie Woodford said the same group sponsored council and mayor candidate forums at the library two years ago.

"Our public was enthused and really appreciated the forums," she said.

Woodford said residents will be able to submit written questions, which will be evaluated and consolidated into common themes. The moderator will choose the best questions, which will be posed to each candidate.

Candidates will have a set amount of time to respond. Fifth District Magistrate Judge Rick Bollar will moderate the Oct. 13 forum, while College of Southern Idaho professor Russ Tremayne will moderate the forum on Oct. 25.

"People will also have the opportunity to visit with the candidates afterwards if their question wasn't answered," Woodford said.

The events will be paid for by the Friends of the Burley Public Library and refreshments will be served.

Ketchum Man Tried to Flee Cops by Jumping Off Balcony

A man arrested by the Blaine County Sheriff's Office allegedly tried to flee by jumping off a second-story balcony Wednesday, officials say.

Cody Cooper Caccia, 20, of Ketchum, was arrested by the Blaine County Narcotics Enforcement Team and charged with felony drug trafficking and misdemeanor obstructing or resisting a police officer, according to a news release.

The narcotics team executed a search warrant at Caccia's home and were entering the residence when Caccia allegedly jumped from the balcony while holding about one pound of marijuana. He later reportedly dropped the drugs while fleeing on foot.

According to the release, deputies later found Caccia hiding in a van about three blocks away and took him into custody. He was taken to the Blaine County Jail.
