Industrial Waste or Plain Old Manure?

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

Sponsors of a new bill hope to forbid the designation of manure as toxic waste under a federal program.

But it's unclear just how serious the threat is that lawmakers hope to avoid.

Fourteen members of Congress are co-sponsoring the bill, including U.S. Rep. Mike Simpson, R-Idaho. In a news release, Simpson said he supported the bill's clarification of the Superfund law.

Over the years, environmentalists, conservationists and lawmakers have pushed for confined-animal feeding operations to be regulated under the program because of the high amounts of manure they contain. This would then hold CAFO owners responsible for contamination and cleanup costs.

"It would be inappropriate, to say the least, to regulate manure under laws Congress intended for large-scale industrial waste," Simpson said in the news release. "Idaho's agriculture industry needs certainty in order to succeed, and this clarification ensures that producers can plan for the future without the risk of crushing and unreasonable liability hanging over their heads."

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency does not list manure as a hazardous substance, said Marianne Holsman, What is the Superfund Law?

Superfund is a federal program created by the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act to clean up hazardous waste sites. The law empowers the Environmental Protection Agency to identify the parties responsible for pollution and compel them to clean up their sites..

Idaho Row Over Per Diem Could Prompt Reforms

BY JOHN MILLER
Associated Press

BOISE • Some Idaho officials said Tuesday that reforms, additional oversight and education may be in order after a pair of legislators billed taxpayers an extra $6,400 apiece for a second residence this year — while one sleeps on his law office couch and the other says he stays at his parents' home.

Idaho legislators received nearly $1 million in per diem payments in 2011, money with no public scrutiny over how it's spent. What's more, lawmakers concede they don't exactly know the rules governing how much per diem they should get.

PURSUIT CROSSES CO. LINES, SNAKE RIVER

TIMES-NEWS

Authorities from four different law enforcement agencies apprehended a Rupert man they say led them on a daylong chase Tuesday.

Jason Hutcherson, 30, was booked into the Mini-Cassia Criminal Justice Center on Tuesday evening on several charges, with more expected following the day's events.

According to Minidoka County Sheriff Kevin Halverson, the incident began in the morning when a woman reportedly saw Hutcherson jump in her sport utility vehicle and drive off. Deputies chased the SUV around the city of Paul before losing it.

Later, around 3 p.m., a citizen called in the vehicle in the area of Milner Dam, said Jerome County Chief Deputy Jack Johnson. An attempt to pull the vehicle over led to a pursuit lasting less than one mile.

When the chase reached a dead end on a dirt canyon road, Hutcherson allegedly got out of the car, ran away from deputies on foot and swam across the Snake River below Milner — not an easy feat given how swift the river's running right now, Halverson noted.

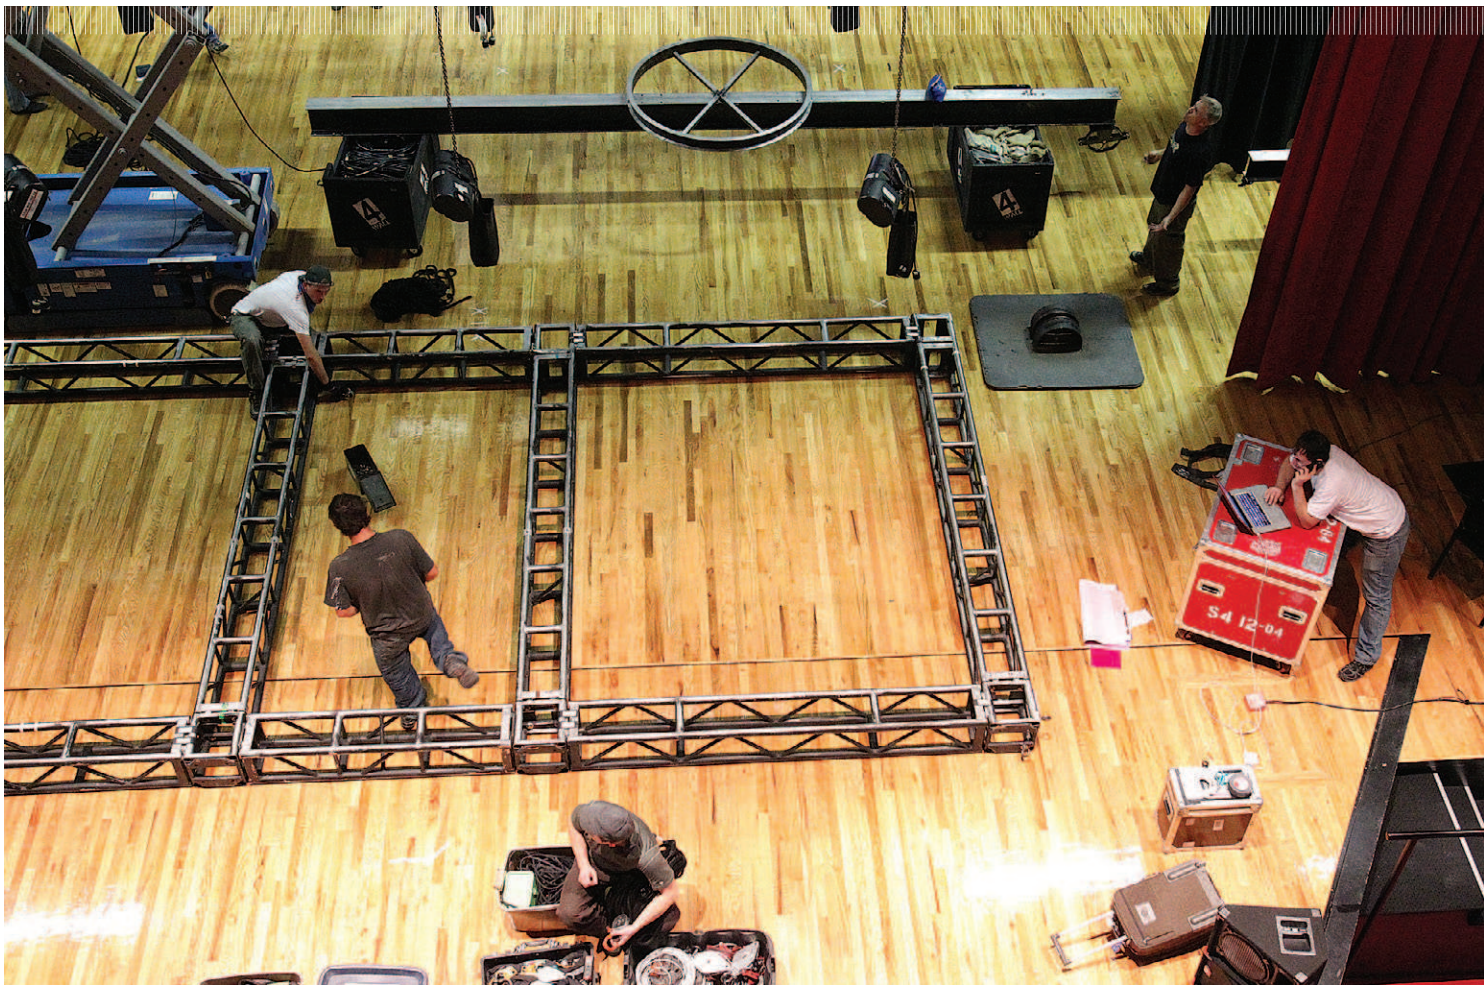

Deputies searched the area and allegedly found Hutcherson hiding in the rocks in the dam's overflow area. The chase was over by about 5:30 p.m.

The Minidoka, Jerome and Twin Falls county sheriff's offices and the Idaho State Police all participated in the search. Halverson commended the cooperation and communication among the four agencies.

"And it all worked out to where no citizens were hurt. That's the main thing," Halverson said.

Hutcherson is currently charged with two counts of grand theft and is also linked to stolen vehicles,

Transforming the Stage

TOP: About 20 people worked Tuesday to assemble the set for Cirque Mechanics Boom Town. The show, equal parts circus, machine-assisted acrobatics and fantastical storytelling, is at 7:30 p.m. today in the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Auditorium. The production will use a variety of equipment so performers can climb up swaying telegraph poles, dance on a swinging chandelier, fly high and fast on a revolving crane, flip and jump on moving ore carts or balance on whiskey jugs. RIGHT: Mike Winterholler, left, with the College of Southern Idaho, and Luis Vargas, owner of Midnight Productions, use a laser level to get the exact height of lights on Tuesday while setting up the stage.

Morningside Teacher Surprised with Class Supplies

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

Morningside Elementary School teacher Lori Hinton spends money out of her own pocket each year to make sure students have the supplies they need — and she's not the only one.

Each year, teachers around the country spend an average of $1,000 on supplies for their classroom, according to estimates cited by the OfficeMax chain of office supply stores.

That made it all the more special when local OfficeMax employees caught Hinton, a second-grade teacher at the Twin Falls school, off-guard during a surprise presentation Tuesday. They gave her $1,000 worth of classroom supplies as part of the company's "A Day Made Better" program.

Hinton, who has been teaching for 10 years, said after the presentation that her legs were still shaking after the shock of the surprise.

"I'm not the kind of person who usually wins things," she said.

Hinton was nominated for the award by her principal. For this

Reclaiming Downtown Buildings from the Pigeons

Oh, downtown Twin Falls. So much potential. I work downtown, and there's plenty to love about the area: Rudy's — A Cook's Paradise and Ooh La La especially stand out.

But parts of Main Avenue aren't well maintained, with pigeon crap building up on the sidewalk and empty flower pots filled with cigarette butts. Twin Falls' Urban Renewal Agency has $2.6 million in expected revenue in the coming fiscal year and another $3.8 million left over from last year, and it would be great to see the URA spend some of that on helping downtown property owners clean up and find tenants.

I catch myself daydreaming about what could fill downtown Twin Falls' empty spaces, and I'm not alone.

So what could go in? An utterly unscientific survey of my friends yielded this:

- A quiet, smoke-free place that serves good mixed drinks — one that's open on weeknights and doesn't close at 11 p.m. on weekends.
- More dining options. Bonus points if an Indian restaurant moves in.
- Starbucks. Hopefully in time for me to score a pumpkin latte before the seasonal drink goes away again. (I would also take Shot in the Dark and their awesome sandwiches.)
- Better parking and more bike racks. I always chain my bike to street signs, and I'm not sure that's legal.

- A bookstore. We can combine it with the coffee shop.

- A homebrew supply shop. (Only one person suggested this, and I'm married to him.)

I know there are challenges to getting downtown up and running — finding customers in this economy is a massive obstacle that even established businesses struggle with.

But I think of how Twin Falls photographer Jeni Boisvert turned an abandoned downtown loft into a studio. She cleared out dead pigeons from a unit that had been vacant for years and made it her own. Other entrepreneurs have lured young adults downtown with a hookah business and dance clubs, and Friday Night Markets bring music and vendors to the streets.

There's some life in these streets yet. I hope more business owners — and potential customers — realize that.

Chase Ends with Two Arrests

TIMES-NEWS

Idaho State Police arrested two people following a short vehicle pursuit mid-day Tuesday.

Shawn Cochran, 21, of Twin Falls was charged with five outstanding warrants: for felony eluding, possession of methamphetamine, possession of drug paraphernalia, resisting and obstructing, and driving with a suspended license. Robert Ferreira, 23, of Buhl, was charged with providing false identification, according to an ISP release.

The arrests came after an ISP trooper attempted around 12:15 p.m. to stop a 1997 Dodge Ram pickup driven by Cochran on U.S. Highway 30 east of Filer for a traffic violation. After a short pursuit, the chase reached a dead-end residential road off of 2600 East and Cochran fled the truck on foot, according to ISP. Ferreira and another passenger, Ashley Vieira, 19, of Buhl, stayed in the truck.

ISP and a K-9 unit from the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office found Cochran near the junction of U.S. 30 and U.S. Highway 93 and took him into custody without further incident, ISP reported.

Buhl Man Dies in Rollover Crash

TIMES-NEWS

A Buhl man died Tuesday after the pickup truck he was driving rolled on the Lily Grade south of Castleford.

According to the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office, the one-vehicle crash happened just before 2 p.m. The driver, Stephen Wright, 59, failed to negotiate the curve at 2900

North and 700 East.

According to a release from the sheriff's office, his Ford F250 pickup rolled several times. The man had to be extricated from the truck and was pronounced dead at the scene.

The crash is still under investigation. But, the release noted that speed and alcohol may have both been factors.

Jerome Fire Dept. Could Take Helm of Beleaguered Emergency Response Team

BY BEN BOTKIN

bbotkin@magicvalley.com

JEROME • The Jerome Fire Department and the Magic Valley Emergency Response Team have had their differences in the last few months.

In May, Jerome Fire Chief Mike Hatfield pulled the department out of participation with the regional team that responds to hazardous-material incidents throughout south-central Idaho. He cited safety, training and equipment concerns and a need to make changes that reflect national standards.

The beleaguered MVERT currently couldn't respond to an emergency if one arose in the Magic Valley. Instead, a major spill of a toxic substance would require assistance from teams in Pocatello or the Boise area — and a response time that's at least a couple of hours longer.

"Because of the dispute, we haven't been able to respond since the end of May," said Bill Allred, chairman of MVERT's executive committee.

Allred spoke Tuesday at the Jerome City Council about the possibility of the city's fire department taking the lead role in the team. While the council didn't vote on anything, officials were supportive of keeping the team going.

"We are going to do everything we can to make sure this works out," Mayor John Shine said. "This isn't going to happen overnight."

The two sides have kept lines of communication open since May. Those continued discussions gradually led to the idea of Jerome's department resuming its role, officials said. The organization's need to store equipment in Jerome has also helped move the conversation forward between both sides, Hatfield said.

There's no question that Hatfield would have his work cut out — logistics like the budget, training and getting equipment up to snuff. Not everyone on MVERT has come to agree with Hatfield either.

"A lot of bridges have been burned," Allred said. "I think Chief Hatfield has a monumental task to bring these people around to his way of thinking."

Hatfield said he recognizes that there's plenty of work ahead, but also says he did the right thing by pulling out of the team when he did. His actions came after meeting resistance to higher standards on the MVERT board and after a firefighter was slightly injured when a loose fitting broke off an air compressor owned by MVERT.

"I had to make safety a number one priority," he said.

Hatfield said that any progress in the future will need teamwork.

"I can't do it on my own," he said.

school year, it will reduce a financial pressure for her that state education officials and lawmakers have long sought to soothe.

Recognizing the costs teachers have incurred to ensure their students have the proper supplies, Idaho in recent years has provided a stipend to pay for some classroom supplies.

On Tuesday morning, Hinton filed into the school cafeteria with other second-grade teachers and students, thinking they were going to a presentation designed to teach students about washing their hands.

Instead, Morningside Vice Principal Michelle Brewer announced the assembly would recognize a teacher who is "very caring and wants students to succeed."

Hinton's daughter, Sarah, 23, said she knew about the surprise presentation for about one month. It was hard to keep the secret, she said.

"I'm glad she got it," Sarah Hinton said of her mother. "She definitely deserves it."

David Nussbacher, Twin Falls OfficeMax store manager, brought a few store employees along for the presentation. It's the fifth year the store has participated in the nationwide program, which provides supplies to 1,000 teachers each year.

Hinton received a desk chair, printer/scanner and digital camera, as well as basic supplies such as pens and paper. Other teachers at Morningside also received some supplies that community members donated as part of a supply drive at OfficeMax during the back-to-school shopping season.

Manure

the regional agency's spokeswoman.

"Manure is not a hazardous substance. Therefore, Superfund authority cannot be used to designate or require any actions to address manure on farms," she said in an email.

However, CAFOs tend to store high amounts of manure, which can release significant amounts of ammonia, in turn affecting air quality, she said.

As currently written, the text of the bill would exempt not only manure, but all "emissions relating to" animal excrement as well.

Steve Ballard, owner of Ballard Farms in Gooding County, argues that manure is a natural byproduct of farming and therefore should not be considered hazardous waste.

"It's all organic matter," Ballard said. "It dissipates over time, unlike a cancer-causing metal."

Ballard runs a smaller CAFO with 60 milk cows, but says no matter what the size of the facility, farmers uphold a high standard of health on their farms.

"You can't contaminate your cows and make money," he said. "You have to use common sense and the best management practices. The number one goal is not to produce harm. Why add on more legislation?"

Not everyone agrees with Ballard. The Idaho Conservation League has been adamantly opposed to exempting manure under the Superfund program over the past five years, said

Courtney Washburn, the group's community conservation director. "We think the exemption is unwarranted."

Alma Hasse, executive director for Idaho Concerned Area Residents for the Environment, says CAFOs should be regulated more to protect the public from the harmful ammonia emissions and water pollutants.

"We need to hold these operators accountable now," she said. "We're poisoning our air and water by doing nothing."

Love a Bottle of Beer? Bring a Driver

A Twin Falls businessman campaigning against drunken driving chose his latest target: a downtown store's beer-tasting patrons.

mdavlin@magicvalley.com

Beer aficionados who attend the Oct. 15 tasting at Rudy's — A Cook's Paradise might have some company. Scott Andrus, a Twin Falls anti-drunken driving activist, plans to monitor patrons leaving the downtown store's event. If they look drunk and climb into a car, Andrus and his helpers will call the police and report them. It's an in-your-face tactic, which Andrus warned Rudy's about in an email also sent to police and city officials and the Times-News. And it's the latest move in a personal campaign that has included letters to the editor, signs at Andrus' downtown hair salon and lobbying to end street-facing advertisements at state liquor stores. But Andrus' latest target, Rudy's, already has measures in place to discourage intoxicated customers from getting behind the wheel. Tasting participants pay $25 for a lineup of 2-ounce samples of craft beer. With 30 types of beer to try, Andrus worries that some customers will end up driving home drunk. "My guess is if you took a Breathalyzer on all those people who left, they would all be at .08 or above," he said. Andrus, who has a DUI on his record, said many don't realize how little alcohol it takes to impair driving.

Rudy's owner Tom Ashenbrenner hadn't read Andrus' email but said he and his employees encourage patrons to take cabs or arrange a ride. They don't serve customers who already appear intoxicated, and they give designated drivers complimentary soft drinks. Rudy's, which has hosted beer tastings twice a year for the past nine years, used to offer free designated drivers but stopped because most participants bring their own, Ashenbrenner said. "It's really a fun event and people behave themselves and we've not had any issues that we know of," he said. The safe-ride message that Rudy's gives is much like the one you'll hear at Buhl's Snyder Winery. Co-owner Claudia Snyder said most groups who come in for tastings have designated drivers, arrange for buses or leave their cars overnight. But Andrus is concerned about the customers who don't take advantage of other transportation. "Until we start stressing that just one is too many, then people are going to keep guessing," he said.

Will Police Respond? All calls about potential DUIs are investigated, according to Twin Falls Police Department Staff Sgt. Dennis Pullin. But a phone call on a suspected DUI isn't enough to get someone pulled over. Officers follow the driver, and if he or she break any laws — weaving or turning without a signal, for example — the officer can act.

Education Dept. Announces Card Contest

TIMES-NEWS

The Idaho State Department of Education is sponsoring a holiday card contest for elementary school students statewide. The contest is open to all public school students in kindergarten through sixth grades. One drawing will be selected for publication on the State Department of Education's website and used as the department's holiday greeting card. The child who submits the selected artwork will also receive cards for his or her own use. Drawings should reflect winter scenes in Idaho and shouldn't include copyrighted images. They can be made using watercolors, colored paper, felt markers or crayons. They should be on 8.5-inch by 11-inch paper in landscape format, and be labeled with the name of the student, student's grade, district school and teacher's name on the back of the artwork. Drawings won't be returned. Winning entries from each grade level will also be published on the State Department of Education's website. Submissions must be postmarked by Nov. 4. Winners will be announced in December. Drawings can be mailed to: State Department of Education, Attn: Melissa McGrath, P.O. Box 83720, Boise, ID 83720-0027.

Washington Street Work Getting Close to Completion

TIMES-NEWS

Paving on the final portion of Washington Street between Filer Avenue and Cheney Drive is beginning this week. Drivers should prepare for changes to traffic patterns over the next two weeks, including closures of the east and west entries to Falls Avenue, the Idaho Transportation Department said. Crews will begin paving the northbound lanes beginning Wednesday. If paving progresses as planned, the contractor will close the eastern half of the Falls Avenue intersection as soon as Friday to begin final reconstruction of the intersection. The closure is expected to last four days. After completing the eastern half of Falls Avenue, traffic will be shifted onto northbound lanes as the contractor completes the western half of the Falls Avenue intersection, which is also expected to last four days. Following completion of paving, minor items are expected to remain and drivers can expect short-term lane closures throughout the construction zone.

Dietrich Home Invasion Suspect Sentenced to 10 Years

TIMES-NEWS

The second suspect in the March home invasion of a Dietrich couple was sentenced to 10 years in prison on Tuesday.

Jamie Taylor, 30, was one of four defendants accused of robbery after David and Colleen Conner were held at gunpoint in their home. The defendants were charged with several felonies, including robbery, burglary and grand theft. Taylor pleaded guilty to conspiracy to commit burglary while the two remaining two felony charges were dropped. The next defendant to be sentenced is Gabriel Baker, 30, on Nov. 1. Trials are still pending for Jeremiah Bennett, 27, and Aaron Donabedian, 22. Donabedian also had a new set of charges filed against him last month.

Per Diem

that advises Idaho's Legislature on compensation, said the current system is intended to make sure out-of-town lawmakers from distant cities don't face financial hardship due to housing expenses. But Sen. John McGee, of Caldwell, whose home is 26 miles away from the Capitol, claims a second residence per diem while staying with his parents. And Sen. Curt McKenzie, of Nampa, who lives 20 miles away, takes the extra cash but sleeps on his law office couch. McKenzie also improperly received mileage reimbursements, The Associated Press found; he said Monday he'll return $2,402 to the state. The two Republicans' living arrangements — as well as confusion over just who is entitled to get $122 a day — are signs that the compensation commission should address the issue when it meets again in September 2012, Yost said. "It was not a perk," he said. "It's always been there to offset a legitimate expense. It would be reasonable for the committee to review it." Idaho's part-time legislators without a second residence are entitled to payments of $49 per day, on top of a $16,116 salary and a

$1,875 expense account. These lawmakers can also get mileage reimbursements for travel between their homes and the Capitol. Those lawmakers who claim a second residence in Ada County can get $122 per diem, an additional payment that must be approved by House and Senate leaders. They don't get mileage. Combined, these payments amounted to some $941,000 for all 105 lawmakers for the 88-day 2011 legislative session. The per diem is an "unvouchered expense allowance," meaning lawmakers don't have to account for how they spend the money. A survey shows they spend it in a variety of ways. Republican Sen. Denton Darrington, of Declo, said he pays rent to his daughter, Boise lobbyist Lyn Darrington, to live at her home. He declined to say how much she charges him. "It's not too dissimilar to what I used to pay many years ago at a hotel which is no longer there," Darrington said. Rep. Brent Crane, R-Nampa, said he rented a home from a friend in Boise for $400 a month last session, to cut down on his Interstate 84 commute. "It made it a lot easier," Crane told the AP, adding that he wouldn't take the additional per diem if he weren't incurring an additional expense. Sen. Diane Bilyeu, D-Pocatello, bought a small apartment in Boise; Democratic Rep. Elaine Smith of Pocatello rents a place. Rep. Janice McGeachin, R-Idaho Falls, said she could live with family in Boise but prefers to rent an apartment. "If I were to choose to live with a family member, I would seriously have to consider the merits of applying for that money," she said. "I probably wouldn't take it." Sen. Tim Corder, a Mountain Home Republican who pays $600 monthly to share Democratic House Minority Leader John Rusche's Boise townhome during the session, said he was under the mistaken impression that only lawmakers whose primary residence is at least 50 miles from the Capitol were entitled to the $122 per diem. In fact, virtually any lawmaker who claims a second residence can get the higher figure, provided he or she gets approval from House Speaker Lawrence Denney or Senate President Pro Tem Brent Hill. "It's ambiguous, and it's interpreted in different ways," Corder conceded. Another lawmaker, Democratic Sen. Dan Schmidt, stayed rent-free with friends during the 2011 session but said he used his $122 per diem to help them pay for a remodeling project. "They specifically said they would not accept rent," Schmidt said.

'It's An Epidemic Out There'

Coeur d'Alene residents try to slow city's growing population of feral cats.

BY BILL BULEY
Coeur d'Alene Press

COEUR D'ALENE • Just as soon as Lynne Doria tosses a few pieces of tuna fish, they come running.

They emerge from the brush and bushes that looked so barren just a few minutes earlier. Three, four, five, then more until there are eight snatching up what is likely their first meal of the day.

Doria continues throwing the food until it is gone.

The cats, still hungry, sniff and search the ground, sometimes swiping at each other for the last morsel.

"If we didn't take care of them, myself and others, they would die," Doria said.

"They suffer," added Irene Donak, who joined Doria Monday to check on a handful of wild cats in an unkempt lot down an alley off Government Way.

The two women are on a twofold mission: To rescue as many cats as possible, and keep the population from increasing.

So they also trap cats and kittens, pay to have them neutered or spayed at a local veterinarian or the Kootenai Humane Society, then re-lease them again. Since June of last year, they estimate they've followed their plan with around 60 cats, and try to find homes for kittens.

Both said they've spent at least $1,000 each, and both say it's something that must be done.

"It's an epidemic out there," said Donak, a long-time rescuer of cats and dogs. "It was just a matter of seeing these animals in distress. You have to do something about it. You just can't let the problem go."

But the problem, they said, is not that there are too many cats. It's that there are too many people who are not responsible pet owners.

Doria said she has made a few enemies with her kindness to cats. Some have told her to stop feeding the felines so they'll go somewhere else instead of hanging around their apartment building.

"Tell me where somewhere else is," she responds.

Donak, who owns three cats and a dog, said the wild cat population is a problem in Coeur d'Alene.

"This is just one area," she said. "There's many, many areas."

Rondi Renaldo, executive director of the Kootenai Humane Society, agreed feral cats are a concern. She couldn't guess how many are roaming about, but did say people like Doria and Donak are making a difference.

"Irene and Lynne have been fantastic," she said. "They just love the animals, and this is their way of giving back."

She said there are several "feral colony managers" who feed, fix and release wild cats.

"It's a way to control the cat population," Renaldo said.

It's not cheap.

The spay or neuter procedure runs about $40, and vaccines are another $20.

"I wish we could do it for free," Renaldo said.

KHS rolled out a "Feral Friday" program last spring offering low-cost spay and neuter for trapped feral cats. It will lend out traps, too.

It also launched the FBI program, "Feline Barn Investigators," that tries to find country homes with barns for wild cats.

But trapping feral cats can also be a bit risky, too.

They're not afraid to use teeth and claws, so don't get too close should you feel inclined to befriend one.

"We don't encourage a lot of people to go near these cats because they can be dangerous," Renaldo said.

Doria said the cats she has been feeding daily are not that ferocious.

"They'll come up and eat and look and not run," she said. "They're stray cats. They're not what I would call feral wild cats."

Either way, they deserve some type of care, she said.

Doria said cats are routinely abandoned. They're dumped in the woods where coyotes can get them, left in fields somewhere or tossed out of cars in neighborhoods by people who assume others will take them in.

The Coeur d'Alene woman said that this winter, many cats — especially the young ones — will not survive.

"They are going to starve to death," Doria said.

She has set up two small shelters where cats can take refuge from rain and find water. She plans to trap two today.

"I've saved several cats that have been poisoned from antifreeze," Doria said. "A terrible way to die."

Florida Man Wants to Fire Attorney, Take Back Plea in Kidnap-rape Case

BY PATRICK ORR
Idaho Statesman

BOISE • Douglas James Steinemer was supposed to find out Tuesday afternoon how long he was going to go to prison in connection with the brutal abduction and rape of a Mountain Home woman from the parking lot of a Walmart in 2003.

Now Steinemer wants to fire his attorney, take back his guilty pleas, and take the case to trial.

Steinemer's father — and co-defendant — Hans Holsopple is already serving a life prison sentence after pleading guilty to felony charges of first degree kidnapping and rape in connection with the case last year.

Steinemer pleaded guilty to the same charges in July and was set for sentencing in front of 4th District Judge Timothy Hansen Tuesday.

In August, Steinemer asked to withdraw his guilty plea, and in late September, he filed a motion to fire his attorney, who was appointed by the Ada County public defender's office.

So instead of a sentencing hearing, both of those issues will be argued today in front of Hansen.

The crimes of kidnapping and rape are both punishable by up to life in prison.

Idaho State Police and Ada County prosecutors say the 47-year-old Holsopple, a long distance trucker, and Steinemer were driving across the western United States when they selected the woman at random in the parking of the Mountain Home WalMart on June 28, 2003.

According to ISP officials, Steinemer, who is now 27, approached the woman in the parking lot, saying he was having car trouble and needed help. He pulled out a knife and forced her into her car, which the men drove to the semi-trailer truck in another part of the parking lot.

Detectives say the pair bound the woman and raped her several times as they drove between Mountain Home and Payette County and left her on the side of I-84 — still partially bound and injured — near a truck stop about 13 miles from the Oregon border.

The two had disguised their appearances and the woman had no idea who her attackers were.

And for years, Idaho State Police detectives sought suspects without luck — until a surprise hit on the FBI's national DNA database in January 2010 showed a match — Douglas James Steinemer of Deltona, Fla.

Steinemer, who was in a Florida jail on a drug charge, wasn't an Idaho resident, and his name had never come up during the investigation.

Children's Author Urges Kids to Become Writers

BY LINDSEY BUSH
Idaho Falls Post Register

IDAHO FALLS • Obert Skye doesn't consider himself grown up, but he does take his future seriously.

The popular children's author visited 12 local elementary schools last week to spread the word about his latest book, "Wonkenstein," and ensure America's literary future.

"I want to grow up and have some good books to read and these are the kids that are going to do it," he said.

While interacting with young students at Holy Rosary Bi-Parish School in Idaho Falls, Skye hoped to inspire future authors. Judging by the reaction of students, it looks like he succeeded.

Carter Hague, 11, said meeting the author encouraged him to consider writing as a career.

"I think the best part of being an author would be thinking of all the ideas and writing them down and seeing how your ideas inspire others," he said.

The first project on Carter's list is a science-fiction novel that's "full of action" and has "lots of detail."

Though some students shared Carter's desire to pursue professional writing, others hoped to make it a fun hobby. But no matter the reason for writing, the youngsters agreed every story needs certain, exciting elements.

"There should be some romance in it, some risks," 9-year-old Bryne Miller said. "There should always be a happy ending. If you don't have a happy ending, you start feeling like, 'Oh man, they (the characters) didn't survive!'"

Natalie Marlow, 9, agreed with Bryne's happy ending requirements. But the girl said she would allow one sad scene as long as the final result was encouraging.

Classmate Daniel Antonson, 8, said he would rather write stories about "true life," letting actual events shape the storyline.

Whether it's fictional or historical, Skye encouraged the students to read in order to improve their writing skills. "My biggest piece of advice is to read a book," Skye said.

"If someone was serious about being a writer at this age, all the reading and writing they do will benefit them," he added.

Along with reading, the students learned to brainstorm, write or draw, revise and edit and always finish what they've started.

Skye said these elements helped him become a successful writer and encouraged the students to test them out on their own.

Nampa Chooses its New Police Chief

BY KRISTIN RODINE
Idaho Statesman

NAMPA • LeRoy Forsman, a burly veteran police officer with a “command voice” that could make a suspect quake, was visibly moved and near tears after the Nampa City Council unanimously approved him as the Nampa police chief Monday night.

Perhaps it was the standing ovation that got to him, as Nampa officers and others who packed the council chambers signaled their approval.

“The day I tested for patrol officer they asked me where I’d be in 20 years. I said I’d be the chief,” he said, laughing. “I was off by a year.

“It’s not my department. It’s our department,” Forsman told the many officers in the audience. “Let’s move ahead.

“I promise you’ll have the same support you’ve given me tonight.”

The deputy chief was the only internal candidate among 19 applicants in a nationwide search to replace Bill Augsburg, who will retire at the end of October.

Mayor Tom Dale said while Forsman was the obvious choice from the beginning, “we went through this process to eliminate any doubts. LeRoy stood head and shoulders above everybody.”

Council members praised Forsman, although one expressed concern about the “current climate” surrounding the Police Department.

Councilman Stephen Kren said he “certainly won’t stand in the way” of the appointment, but it comes “at a difficult time for me.”

Kren’s son-in-law, Lt. Joe

Huff, is one of three Nampa police officers who filed a lawsuit against the city and the Police Department on Thursday, alleging that they were retaliated against after the three — members of the Internal Affairs team — raised concerns about the actions of other officers.

Forsman was not among the administrators named as defendants in the lawsuit, which noted that Augsburg was planning to retire “prior to the complaints.”

The search for a new chief started in April after Augsburg announced his retirement plans. The applicants included hopefuls from New York, Texas, Wisconsin and Idaho. Nine finalists were interviewed by phone; the top three finalists had interviews last week with a committee that included Caldwell’s police chief, Meridian’s deputy police chief and an Idaho State Police major. Council members Pam White and Curtis Homer, a former Nampa police chief, also participated.

Each finalist was put through a mock press conference to see how they would handle tough media questions, and Homer said Forsman did particularly well in that test.

“I saw a professionalism that was very impressive,” White said. “The way he handled himself was just outstanding. But most important, I saw a passion for my town and the Police Department in my town.”

Councilman Martin Thorne said he was happy to see someone promoted from within the department. Nampa’s past four police chiefs rose through the ranks: Marshall Brisbin, Alan Creech, Homer and Augsburg.

Caldwell Police Seek Help Finding Driver Who Ran Into Off-duty Officer

IDAHO STATESMAN

CALDWELL • It’s been over a month since a woman driving a red or maroon-colored Pontiac Grand Am ran into Boise police Officer Chris Cowling as he was training for a bike race in southwest Caldwell and left him lying in the street with serious head injuries.

Caldwell police officials say they have investigated dozens of leads since Sept. 1 and are still trying to find out who the driver is, so they are asking the public again to call if anyone has any information on the crash.

“We’ve followed up so many different leads so far but just want to know if there is more information out there,” Sgt. Joey Hoadley said Tuesday.

Cowling is still hospitalized but appears to be doing better, Hoadley said. Witnesses told police a red or maroon Pontiac Grand Am hit Cowling’s bike at about 1 p.m. Sept. 1 near the intersection of West Beech Street and Manchester Drive. Witnesses say the car was being driven by a light-skinned woman with long dark hair, who didn’t stop at all after the collision and kept driving.

Police say the car may have damage on the left front fender and hood and was likely made between 1999 and 2005. It had a spoiler and two fog lights in the rear bumper, officials say.

The 46-year-old Cowling lived in Caldwell and is a 10-year veteran of the Boise Police Airport Unit.

Cowling is also a former Caldwell police officer. “This has been a tough case and we just wanted to ask the public again, if they have any information, to call us,” Hoadley said.

Anyone with information about the hit-and-run is asked to call Canyon County dispatchers at 454-7531, Caldwell police at 455-3115, or Crime Stoppers at 343-2677.

STATE BRIEFS

Group Mulling Signature Drive for Local Option Tax Initiative

BOISE • An Idaho group mulling putting a local option tax initiative before voters in 2012 still hasn’t decided whether to begin collecting signatures to get the measure on the ballot.

Jason Lehosit, a political consultant who is helping advise a consortium of business people, told The Associated Press on Monday that a decision about moving ahead is still pending.

Legislation died in 2008 after Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter and House GOP lawmakers insisted on constitutional restrictions that proponents refused to stomach.

But some, including former Albertsons Inc. Chief Executive Officer Gary Michael, are keeping the idea alive, insisting residents should be able to vote to tax themselves for things like public transit or building roads.

Judge Lowers Bond for Man Awaiting Trial

COEUR D’ALENE • A judge has reduced bond for a northern Idaho man awaiting a new trial after his second-degree murder conviction was overturned.

An attorney for 50-year-old Jonathan Wade Ellington requested his bond be lowered from $125,000 to $75,000 so his family could afford the amount. A district court judge Monday granted the motion, the Coeur d’Alene Press reports.

Ellington’s family told the court he will live in Utah with his brother upon his release.

His new trial is expected to start in November.

Ellington was previous serving time for second-degree murder and aggravated battery after being convicted of running over a 41-year-old woman during what was described as a road-rage encounter on New Year’s Day in 2006.

Two Plead Guilty to Pictograph Vandalism

LEWISTON • Two of three men charged with spray painting marijuana-themed words and marijuana leaves on Native American pictographs near a western Idaho state park have pleaded guilty.

The Lewiston Tribune reports Jerad Bovencamp and Tyler J. Carlson pleaded guilty Monday to willful injury or depredation of property on the rock face at the Red Elk Rock Shelter near Hells Gate State Park.

U.S. District Judge Edward J. Lodge scheduled sentencing for Jan. 3.

A third man, Freddie M. Bernal, pleaded not guilty to the depredation charge and to providing a false statement to investigators.

The pictographs include red-pigmented rock art of animal figures and geometric shapes believed to be between 200 and 2,500 years old.

Prosecutors Review Death of Washington Man

COEUR D’ALENE • Prosecutors in northern Idaho are reviewing whether any criminal charges should be filed in the death of a Washington state man who stopped breathing while being taken into police custody.

The Coeur d’Alene Press reports 30-year-old Nicholas Andrew Clason, of Spokane, was arrested July 10 and died four days later after being taken off life-support at Kootenai Medical Center.

The Kootenai County Sheriff’s Office headed an investigation because the Coeur d’Alene Police Department and Idaho State Police had contact with Clason before his death. The Kootenai County prosecutor’s office is now reviewing the results of the investigation.

Police say they responded to a report of a suicidal man, later identified as Clason, who was trying to stab himself with a sharp object on U.S. Interstate 90.

Four Mexicans Plead Guilty in Marijuana Case

BOISE • The U.S. attorney’s office in Idaho says four Mexican nationals have pleaded guilty to their roles in marijuana grow operations on public lands in Idaho, Oregon and California.

Francisco Cardona-Rodriguez pleaded guilty Tuesday to conspiracy to manufacture/distribute 1,000 or more marijuana plants during a hearing before U.S. Magistrate Judge Candy Dale in Boise.

Co-defendants Heber Franco-Lombera of Bieber, Calif., along with Jose Cardona-Ramirez and Victoria Villa-Gonzalez, both of Caldwell, Idaho, pleaded guilty to the same charge last month.

Prosecutors allege the four were involved in marijuana grow sites that produced over 12,000 plants.

Sentencing is set for late November for three of the defendants and mid-December for Francisco Cardona-Rodriguez, who previously lived in Rio Grande City, Texas.

Charges Filed in Idaho Falls Bar Fight

IDAHO FALLS POST REGISTER

IDAHO FALLS • A dispute between two men that started over a woman escalated Saturday, leaving one man facing felony aggravated battery charges.

Andrew Peter Wilson of Idaho Falls was charged with stabbing or cutting three people outside The Frosty Gator and was arraigned Monday. He remains in custody at the Bonneville County Jail with bail set at $50,000.

Idaho Falls police arrested Wilson, 30, early Saturday morning and cited five other men for disturbing the peace in relation to the brawl.

Police reported that the individuals involved started pushing and shoving each other in the bar before the altercation moved to the street.

Officers reported Saturday that they didn’t know what started the fight. Several individuals were fighting in the street when police arrived at the scene.

But one of the men involved in the fight, Aaron Green, is a friend of Wilson and said the fight broke out after a man punched Wilson for reportedly dating the man’s girlfriend.

Green said he was stabbed in his right hip and right ear but said Monday that it was not Wilson who stabbed him. He said Wilson is wrongly accused.

Michael P. Perez, Brock Hayward, Michael G. Perez, Eric Shannon and Green were cited for disturbing the peace. Michael G. Perez, Hayward and Green were treated at Eastern Idaho Regional Medical Center for nonlife-threatening stab and cut wounds.

Wilson was taken to jail and the other five men were cited and released. Wilson’s next court appearance is set for Oct. 12 at 9 a.m.

OPINION

Why are CSI's Grad Rates so Low?

We respect Jerry Beck, president of the College of Southern Idaho, for owning up to CSI's low graduation rate. "We need to do a better job," he said of CSI's rock-bottom number in a study released last week.

Beck went on to say that the system of tracking graduation isn't an accurate measure of what goes on at community colleges. Cesar Perez, CSI's Advising Center Director, said that we shouldn't compare CSI's graduation rate because it has so many part-time students.

We're not as quick to blame the methodology behind the study as CSI's administration seems to be.

The study created a playing field as level as possible. Only "full-time, first-time" students were counted, and CSI was compared with other community colleges in the state.

And they still came in last.

Even if you take four-year schools out of the mix, CSI doesn't stand up favorably to its counterparts. Eastern Idaho Technical College's graduation rate is nearly double that of CSI. North Idaho College's is a quarter higher.

CSI is a feather in the cap of the Magic Valley. It's an institution that enriches us all, whether that enrichment comes in learning a new trade or bringing the arts to our doorstep. We're lucky to have it's academic and cultural leadership in our back yard.

We're grateful that Beck acknowledges that, when fewer than 1 in 5 full-time students graduate with a degree, it's a problem.

But we'd also like to know that there is a plan in place to turn that around. CSI is taking steps in the right direction — they've added staff to help students transition into more college coursework and are exploring expanded schedules.

They're on the right track. The college is proud of the number of non-traditional students they have — they just need to do a better job of keeping them around.

Messiah Complex: The Sequel?

Cal Thomas

Tribune Media Services

Listening to some establishment Republicans grouching about the field of GOP presidential candidates should serve as a warning. Republicans, if they are not careful, are in danger of catching the same virus that infected Democrats in 2008.

That would be a messiah complex, the belief that one man (or woman) can deliver us from our collective economic, social and foreign policy "sins" and bring redemption to a nation from the consequences of too many wrong-headed choices.

Perhaps a Republican president with a 60-vote, veto-proof Senate majority and an expanded House majority might be able to revolutionize government, but only if squishy Republicans in both bodies went along, which seems problematic, especially on big issues.

Even if they did go along, does anyone believe Congress — even with a large Republican majority — would dismantle the Department of Education, as Ronald Reagan called for in 1982? Would Social Security, Medicare and Medicaid finally be restructured in a way that allowed current and soon-to-be retired people to stay on these programs, while offering a market-based, choice alternative to younger workers? Maybe.

Would the hard left and their acolytes in the media stand for this? Unlikely. Would Republicans, who too often have cowered at their own shadow, retreat from doing the big things because of demonstrations in the streets? Quite possibly. Would the amoeba wing of the party retreat in the face of charges they are "heartless" and "cruel"? Predictably.

There is a way to accomplish all of these things and more. The strength and heart of America is not in Washington. It is in "we the people." Where is the Republican presidential candidate who will say, "I am not your savior; I can't do more for you than you can do for yourself"?

We must re-learn the virtues that prospered previous generations. Forgetting them has contributed to a growing underclass and bloated government. No politician, no government, can shape a life better than the individual living it. Class envy doesn't start a business, or grow one.

We know what works. History has taught us, or would, if we paid attention to its lessons.

Republican presidential candidates should tell Americans they can't save us. Only we can save ourselves, at least in the secular sense. The Founders gave us a great document — the Constitution. Now the question is, to paraphrase Ben Franklin, can we keep it? You people aren't messiahs, anymore than President Obama, but you might be apostles of the Constitution.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Wild Horse Release Nothing to Celebrate

The recent Bureau of Land Management release of 30 wild horses back to the Saylor Creek Herd Management Area is nothing to celebrate when you consider that 165 of their herd mates have lost their freedom forever. Some have even lost their lives.

As your article notes, in the summer of 2010, the BLM rounded up all but three of the wild horses from this herd management area after a wildfire. However, despite receiving more than 3,500 public comments urging the return of all horses to the range, the BLM decided to release just 30 mustangs. The rest of the Saylor Creek horses have been put up for adoption, but due to the low demand, the majority of horses will spend the rest of their lives in long-term holding facilities, never to see their families or experience freedom again.

The lucky few returned to this 57,000-acre range will leave a population below the already low and genetically non-viable allowable management level of 50 that BLM has established for this area. As in other areas, the BLM allocates the majority of forage in this federally designated wild horse habitat area to private livestock, with 19 times more animal unit months designated for private livestock than for federally protected wild horses.

In the future, we hope that you will cover the real story behind this release: the BLM's mismanagement of our public lands and the giveaway of America's resources to commercial interests at the expense of the taxpayers and our cherished wild horses. For more information, please see www.wildhorsepreservation.org.

Sojka a Good Representative on City Council

Friends, it is an honor to support Rebecca for election to the Twin Falls City Council.

She has proven to be an effective leader on the Twin Falls City Council. It is not difficult to see why Rebecca was selected to fill the empty seat on the council among a stellar field of 23 excellent people.

Rebecca hit the ground running and has a decision-making process that involves her own research as she makes decisions on the difficult issues that face our city.

I appreciate how open she is to everyone. Rebecca stands firm in her confessions and decisions. She is a team player on the citizen team. Rebecca works well with the other council members and the staff of the city. Many of the issues that face our community will not be solved with the same level of thinking as the past. New eyes and a fresh look at old issues are very important as our city goes forward.

We have some very fine men on the council, and Rebecca adds an important component to the mix. Rebecca's demographic is all the citizens of Twin Falls and, as a senior citizen, I could not have a better person than Rebecca to represent me and my family.

I would ask that that you vote in this city election and give Rebecca Mills Sojka your vote. Thank you.

Elect a Council Member Who Can Vote on Issues

I applaud all of those who are running for the Twin Falls City Council. It takes an unselfish and caring person to put in all the time and effort required to govern our city and make it the great place it is to live. Because of all the work and time involved being on the city council, I question how effective one of the candidates might be due to an apparent conflict of interest.

If you are the president and chief executive officer of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce, should you not have to recuse yourself on every vote that has anything to do with the business community or business growth and development? Everything from planning and zoning to rate increases can and does affect businesses. How effective can you be?

Why not elect someone to the city council that can vote on all matters in a fair and impartial manner. I am not opposed to growth and development. That is good for everyone. I am opposed to ineffective representation and an apparent or even perceived conflict of interest. We need a full council to manage effectively. Why take a chance and waste a city council position?

Simplot Project in Boise May Take Big Leap This Spring

BY CYNTHIA SEWELL
Idaho Statesman

BOISE • In order to get the Jack’s Urban Meeting Place — better known as JUMP — project moving, the Simplot family will build the underground parking garage first.

JUMP project manager Mark Bowen told the Boise Planning Commission he plans to start demolishing an old warehouse on the property by the end of the year and start garage construction in the spring.

Why 2 Phases?

The basic idea is to get the garage permitted and construction started while the Simplots go through the design and permitting phase for the building, which will be more involved and time-consuming.

There is no timetable yet for that second phase.

What is JUMP?

Located between 9th, 11th, Myrtle and Front streets, it’s intended to be an arts center, meeting space and memorial to Idaho’s billionaire entrepreneur, J.R. Simplot. The family announced its plans in May 2009, a year after Simplot’s death at age 99.

JUMP is designed as a celebration of Idaho’s agriculture heritage with modern-day twists. The project would include an eight-story building with meeting space, offices and artist studios, and a six-acre park.

A Backup plan, With a Backup Plan

The city and the Simplots agreed that the area above the parking lot would be developed as an interim park — grass, trees and lighting — if construction on the building is delayed or halted.

That way the city would not be left with a vacant construction site as it was with the failed Boise Tower.

The commission gave the Simplots one year after the garage is finished to get the permit for Phase 2 before it has to build the interim park.

The commission also required the Simplots to post a bond that will guarantee that the temporary park will be built should there be obstacles or delays.

How Much Will it Cost?

There’s no estimate on the project; earlier estimates of $90 million or $70 million were preliminary, and the Simplots are waiting to make any more estimates until they have solid building design and construction costs.

Why a Parking Garage?

The underground parking garage will include 477 parking spaces and 50 bicycle parking spaces.

The garage would be used by the Simplot Co., which has its headquarters nearby in downtown.

Snafu Forces N. Idaho Mayor to Run as Write-in Candidate

BY CAMERON RASMUSSEN
Bonner County Daily Bee

DOVER • Incumbent Dover Mayor Randy Curless’ road to reelection will be rockier than expected after an error in his candidacy paperwork barred him from the ballot.

Curless will be running as a write-in candidate in the November city elections after a problematic signature of support, which listed a post office box instead of a street address, invalidated his paperwork.

“I don’t have any problems (with the decision),” Curless said. “Everyone is just doing their jobs like we expect them to.”

According to Curless, the signature and address was simply an oversight that caught him by surprise. He had been unaware that the signatures of support required a home address for validity. The county’s rejection of his paperwork coincided with a trip to Great Britain, complicating matters even further.

“We just thought, ‘Well, here’s something to deal with when we get back,’” Curless said.

Due to the Sept. 9 deadline to appear on the ballot, Curless has decided to continue his campaign as a write-in candidate.

Although he said that the development is a setback, it would be much worse news in a different kind of community. The small size and tight-knit nature of Dover should lessen the impact, Curless said.

“I’ve been around long enough that most people know me here,” he added.

If he were running unopposed, his rejected candidacy papers would be less of an issue. However, resident Jason Funk is also running for the Dover mayorship and will be appearing on the ballot.

Aside from Funk, the only other name on the Dover ballot will be Marguerite Burge, a candidate for a four-year seat on the City Council.

Curless said that he aims to overcome the hitch in his campaign by simply keeping the public aware of his candidacy.

Although he hasn’t yet defined his specific strategies to remind people that he’s seeking reelection, Curless said that he intends to remind Dover residents that he is an option whether he appears on the ballot or not.

“I think it will work out to the point where it won’t be that big of a problem,” Curless said. “It might take a little more elbow grease, but we’ll handle it.”

No Cause Found in House Fire That Injured Woman

IDAHO STATESMAN

BOISE • Investigators still have not determined the cause of a house fire Monday on the 4700 block of Bloom Street, near Collister Drive.

There is no evidence the fire is suspicious, according to a release from the Boise Fire Department. The fire started in a front bedroom, but the rest of the house was heavily damaged by heat, smoke and water.

The fire sent one woman to the hospital with what appeared to be life-threatening injuries caused by smoke inhalation. She was unconscious when firefighters found her.

Firefighter paramedics performed lifesaving techniques on the woman, who regained a pulse. She was transported to a Boise hospital. Officials did not know the woman’s condition Tuesday.

Firefighters were called by neighbors who saw smoke coming from the house at 4:56 p.m. Monday. Neighbors were trying to extinguish the flames.

Mtn. Home Woman Charged with Arson in Apartment Fire

IDAHO STATESMAN

MOUNTAIN HOME • A 52-year-old woman has been charged with first-degree arson in connection with an apartment complex fire Thursday in Mountain Home, according to the Elmore County Sheriff’s Office.

Sherry Scott was arrested Friday and arraigned Monday. She is being held at the Elmore County Jail.

The apartment fire was reported at 8:47 p.m. at 411 Bradford St., Mountain Home.

No one was injured in the fire. But it caused extensive damage in Scott’s apartment and some damage to another apartment in the one-story, five-unit complex, Elmore County Sheriff’s Detective Clint Andrus said.

Hailey Group Sues to Protect Pygmy Rabbit

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) • An environmental group is suing the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service over its decision that the tiny pygmy rabbit does not warrant protection under the Endangered Species Act.

The Western Watersheds Project, based in Hailey, said the rabbits were first identified as possibly in need of protection in 2003, and their numbers have fallen since.

They contend the rabbits are suffering from loss of habitat caused in large part by livestock grazing.

Environmental groups have tried for years to win protection for the rabbits, which can fit in the palm of a human hand. The latest effort ended a year ago when the Fish and Wildlife Service denied endangered species protection.

Idaho Falls Man Sentenced for Eluding

IDAHO FALLS POST REGISTER

IDAHO FALLS • An Idaho Falls man was sentenced to four years in prison for a January high-speed chase that started in Clark County.

Judge Joel Tingey sentenced Bruce L. Diehl, 42, for two felonies resulting from a multicounty, high-speed chase, said Mackay Hanks, appointed deputy prosecutor in Clark County.

Diehl received four years for felony eluding a peace officer. Eighteen months of the sentenced was fixed and 30 months were indeterminate.

Diehl also received four years for felony malicious injury to property. Two years of the sentence were fixed and two years were indeterminate.

The sentences were set to run concurrently.

Tingey retained jurisdiction of the case, which means Diehl could earn probation if he completes a rider program, Hanks said.

On Jan. 9, officers responded to the Dry Creek area after Diehl made a suicide threat. Officers found Diehl shooting at his vehicle, which was full of bullet holes.

He reportedly had walked out into the field, in waist-high snow, to let God decide his fate. When daylight came, he returned to his truck, which started despite more than 250 bullet holes.

Officers then pursued Diehl at speeds of up to 110 mph on Old Highway 91 and Interstate 15, where other officers with the Bonnevill and Jefferson county sheriff’s offices and Idaho State Police deployed spike strips.

Police: Boise Man Charged With Lewd Conduct

IDAHO STATESMAN

BOISE • Matthew J. Owen is being held in Ada County Jail on a felony charge of lewd conduct after Boise police say he had illegal sexual contact with a young child last month.

Police were called by a third party Sept. 10 who told them Owen had sexual contact with a young child that day at a Boise area home, according to reports.

Police say the child is known to Owen. Police say detectives found evidence that a crime occurred and sent it to Ada County prosecutors, who issued an arrest warrant for the lewd conduct charge last week.

DEQ Seeks Comment on Proposed Temperature Plans for South-central Idaho Water Bodies

The Idaho Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ) is seeking public comment on proposed water quality improvement plans to address temperature in Cassia Creek in the Raft River Subbasin and in upper Goose Creek and Trout Creek in the Goose Creek Subbasin.

The subbasins are located in south-central Idaho, south of Burley.

Temperature is a key factor in the health of fish and other coldwater organisms. Analyses of water quality data demonstrated that temperatures are above recommended levels in Cassia, upper Goose, and Trout creeks due to lack of shade.

The plans propose to establish Total Maximum Daily Loads (TMDLs) designed to lower water temperatures by increasing vegetation, bring the creeks into compliance with state water quality standards, and restore them to conditions supporting their beneficial uses, which include cold water aquatic life and salmonid spawning.

The documents, entitled Cassia Creek Temperature Total Maximum Daily Load Addendum and Goose Creek Subbasin Temperature Total Maximum Daily Loads Addendum, are available for review at DEQ’s Twin Falls Regional Office and on DEQ’s website at www.deq.idaho.gov/public-comment-opportunities.

CDC Says 18 Deaths Tied to Listeria in Cantaloupe

BY MARY CLARE JALONICK
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Federal health officials have raised the death toll to 18 in an outbreak of listeria in cantaloupe.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention said Tuesday it has confirmed 100 illnesses in 20 states, including the 18 deaths. The agency said it has confirmed two additional deaths in Colorado and one in Kansas since last week.

The CDC had previously reported five deaths in New Mexico, three deaths in Colorado, two deaths in Texas and one death each in Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Maryland.

The death toll may continue to rise. Wyoming's state health department said it has confirmed a death in that state linked to the outbreak, though the CDC did not include that case in its count. CDC officials have said the symptoms of listeria can take up to two months to show up and that they expect more illnesses.

Jensen Farms in Holly, Colo. recalled its cantaloupes Sept. 14 after the farm's melons were traced to the listeria illnesses. The farm says it shipped cantaloupes to 28 states, though the FDA has said it may be more. Illnesses have been discovered in states that were not on the shipping list and company officials have said the product is often sold and resold, so they do not know everywhere it went.

The outbreak is the deadliest in the United States in more than a decade. Listeria is a rare disease that usually only affects about 800 people a year, according to the CDC. But it is one of the deadliest foodborne pathogens, killing up to one in five people it sickens.

The FDA said state health officials found listeria in cantaloupes taken from Colorado grocery stores and from a victim's home that were grown at Jensen Farms. Matching strains of the disease were found on equipment and cantaloupe samples at Jensen Farms' packing facility in Granada, Colo.

FDA Commissioner Margaret Hamburg said Tuesday that the agency is still investigating the cause of the outbreak. Officials have said they are looking at the farm's water supply and possible animal intrusions among other things in trying to figure out how the cantaloupes became contaminated. Listeria bacteria grow in moist, muddy conditions and are often carried by animals.

Most of the contaminated melons should be out of the food supply by now. The farm last shipped its cantaloupes on Sept. 10, and their shelf life is about two weeks. Officials from the CDC and the Food and Drug Administration say that any cantaloupes not from Jensen Farms are safe to eat.

The recalled cantaloupes may be labeled "Colorado Grown," "Distributed by Frontera Produce," "Jensenfarms.com" or "Sweet Rocky Fords." Not all of the recalled cantaloupes are labeled with a sticker, the FDA said.

Government health officials said this is the first known outbreak of listeria in cantaloupe. Listeria is generally found in processed meats and unpasteurized milk and cheese, though there have been a growing number of outbreaks in produce.

Feds Release Wyo. Wolf Delisting Plan

BY MEAD GRUVER
Associated Press

CHEYENNE, Wyo. • The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service on Tuesday released a plan for removing wolves from endangered species status in Wyoming that would codify a compromise between protections in the Yellowstone region and allowing wolves to be shot on sight elsewhere in the state.

The draft plan posted online and set for publication in the Federal Register on Wednesday opens the way for Wyoming's wolves to be removed from the endangered list as soon as next summer, said Michael Thabault, assistant regional director for ecological services for the Fish and Wildlife Service Mountain Prairie Region.

The proposal follows a delisting framework that Fish and Wildlife and Wyoming officials agreed to last summer after months of negotiations.

"We've obviously put a little bit more meat on the bone from the principle of the agreement," Thabault said. "But substantively it's the same."

New details spell out plans for genetic testing of wolves and how the state would permit the killing of wolves that have killed livestock, he said.

Wolves have been controversial in Wyoming since their reintroduction in Yellowstone National Park in the mid-1990s. They have proliferated: About 300 wolves live in Wyoming and some 1,600 across the region now.

Wyoming's proposal to classify wolves as trophy game subject to regulated hunting in northwest Wyoming — and as predators that could be killed on sight elsewhere — hung up delisting in the state while Montana and Idaho inched toward taking over management of their populations.

Wolves were delisted in Idaho and Montana earlier this year.

Gov. Matt Mead said the document is an "important step" and shows that Fish and Wildlife is following through on its commitment to turn wolf management over to Wyoming.

"I look forward to working with the Wyoming Legislature to keep us moving towards having control of a species that has such a significant impact on the state," Mead said in a release.

The Wyoming Legislature would need to approve the plan first. The full Legislature is scheduled to meet in February.

The plan also will go through a 100-day public comment period starting this week and ongoing scientific peer review. Delisting is unlikely before this summer but will occur no later than a year from now, Thabault said.

"From our perspective it's once again an example of the Fish and Wildlife Service stepping away from larger recovery of wolves in the West," said Noah Greenwald with the Center for Biological Diversity. "This is going to make it incredibly difficult for wolves to get to extensive habitat in Colorado and make a comeback there as well."

The key point is that the plan offers enough protection to maintain a viable wolf population in Wyoming, said Chris Tollefson, a Fish and Wildlife spokesman in Washington, D.C.

"We've got the core habitat protected and this is really, in our minds, going to ensure that wolves remain off the endangered species list," Tollefson said. "And I think that is everybody's goal."

Wolves would be fully protected in Yellowstone National Park and other national park lands in northwest Wyoming. Elsewhere in that corner of the state, they would be classified as a trophy game animal open to regulated hunting part of the year by people with hunting licenses.

The federal delisting plan includes a "flex zone" in southern Teton County where wolves would be classified as predators part of the year and as trophy game during the rest of the year.

Group Fights Plan to Sell N. Idaho Boy Scout Camp

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) • A group opposed to the proposed sale of an 80-year-old Boy Scout camp on Lake Coeur d'Alene is seeking a court order to prevent a potential transfer of the property to an Arizona-based development company.

The recently formed nonprofit Camp Easton Forever Inc. filed a lawsuit late last week against the Inland Northwest Council of Boy Scouts of America and holder of the property deed for the site, the Coeur d'Alene Press reports.

An Arizona developer wants to buy Camp Easton in northern Idaho and convert the 420 acres of land into lakefront properties. In exchange, the developer would then provide 270 acres elsewhere on the lake and build a new camp.

But some Boy Scout families and volunteers oppose the move and registered Camp Easton Forever with Idaho's secretary of state. Their goal is to assume oversight of the property from the Inland Northwest Council of Boy Scouts of America.

In a lawsuit filed Thursday, the nonprofit wants a judge to rule that selling the camp to the Discovery Land Co. violates the terms of the deed for the Camp Easton property. The group is seeking a permanent injunction to prevent the property from being used for anything besides a camp for boys.

"We need to get this stopped, so we can move forward and maintain our camp. That is our primary position," said Tom Little, a former ranger at Camp Easton who now sits on the board that governs the nonprofit fighting the proposed sale of the property.

The camp site was donated in 1929 by the Fred Fitze and his family pursuant to a deed that specified the property "be used in perpetuity as a camp for boys," according to the lawsuit. Donors also gave money, boats, docks, equipment, services and other materials to Camp Easton with the understanding that it would remain at Gotham Bay, the suit says. The proposed sale would be a breach of confidence for the original donors, as well as those who came later, according to the lawsuit.

"We want to preserve the Boy Scout camp, as per Mr. Fred Fitze's request," Little said.

The Inland Northwest Council of Boy Scouts of America declined to comment on the lawsuit, citing pending litigation. Council CEO Tim McCandless did contend that the group's top priority is to provide the best programs possible to Boy Scouts in north Idaho and eastern Washington state.

"Our executive board and our staff take that responsibility very seriously. We're disappointed that some would question our commitment to that mission," he said.

The council is still researching the proposed plan to sell the camp site at Gotham Bay to the Discovery Land Co. in exchange for land at Windy Bay on Lake Coeur d'Alene. The company would also provide a $2.5 million endowment foundation to maintain all scout facilities, under the deal.

"Basically it boils down to the council has been given a very rare opportunity," McCandless said. "It could enhance scouting in our area for generations to come. It would be irresponsible for us not to explore those possibilities."

After 4-year Ordeal, Knox Has Seattle Homecoming

On Monday, an Italian court threw out her conviction in the sexual assault and fatal stabbing of her roommate.

SEATTLE • Amanda Knox returned to her hometown of Seattle on Tuesday and was as overcome with emotion as she was a day earlier in Italy, when she was acquitted on murder charges after four years in prison. “Thank you for being there for me,” she tearfully told her supporters in front of a crowd of reporters from two continents.

“I’m really overwhelmed right now,” she said at a news conference minutes after she was escorted off a British Airways flight out of London. “I was looking down from the airplane, and it seemed like everything wasn’t real.”

Knox’s life turned around dramatically Monday when an Italian appeals court threw out her conviction in the sexual assault and fatal stabbing of her British roommate. On Tuesday a courtroom picture of Knox crying after the verdict was read appeared on the front pages of newspapers in Italy, the U.S., Britain and around the world.

After arriving at the Seattle-Tacoma International Airport, Knox sobbed at the news conference and held her mother’s hand as her lawyer Theodore Simon said her acquittal “unmistakably announced to the world” that she was not responsible for the killing of Meredith Kercher.

Christie Says It’s Final: No GOP Presidential Run

Decision means campaign now basically belongs to Romney and Perry, battling to take on President Obama three months before first GOP voting.

BY KASIE HUNT and BETH DEFALCO

Associated Press

TRENTON, N.J. • After a surge of new speculation, New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie declared with finality Tuesday that “now is not my time” to run for president, dashing the hopes of Republicans still searching for someone other than front-runners Mitt Romney and Rick Perry.

Christie had insisted for months that he wouldn’t run. But then came an intense weekend of reconsideration before he made a firm announcement at a news conference at the New Jersey Statehouse. His decision means the campaign now basically belongs to Romney and Perry, battling to take on President Barack Obama three months before the first GOP voting.

Though both men have extensive party support, Romney, the former Massachusetts governor, has failed to win over some skeptical conservatives, and Perry, the Texas governor, has been falling quickly in opinion polls.

Christie was the latest, perhaps last, hope of some establishment Republicans who had already been rejected by Indiana Gov. Mitch Daniels, Mississippi Gov. Haley Barbour, former Florida Gov. Jeb Bush, Wisconsin Rep. Paul Ryan and others who declined to run for president in 2012. He’s been governor of

New Jersey for less than two years, but he’s cut the budget, curtailed public sector unions, and dealt with a Democratic legislature with disarming and combative confidence.

Christie disputed the idea that his name was just one more on that list.

“They weren’t searching. They came right to one target, and it was me,” he said Tuesday. “And it has always been me.” But he said he was sure, “Now is not my time.”

There are still other potential challengers. Former Utah Gov. Jon Huntsman is showing some promise in New Hampshire; former Pennsylvania Sen. Rick Santorum has support from social conservatives in Iowa and former Godfather’s Pizza CEO Herman Cain is rising in national polls. Former Alaska Gov. Sarah Palin hasn’t said whether she’ll run. But Christie’s announcement leaves Perry and Romney as the two Republicans who have the profile, campaign organization, fundraising prowess and early-state promise for a serious run at the nomination.

Within hours, Christie donors started picking sides. The Romney campaign said Ken Langone, the Home Depot financier who helped lead the push to get Christie to run, had jumped on board. Iowa businessman Gary Kirke, who met with Christie earlier this year to urge him to run, announced he would support Perry.

3 Win Nobel for Showing Universe is Speeding Up

NEW YORK • Three U.S.-born scientists won the Nobel Prize in physics Tuesday for discovering that the universe is expanding at an accelerating pace, a stunning revelation that suggests the cosmos could be headed for a colder, bleaker future, nearly devoid of light.

In 1998, Saul Perlmutter, Brian Schmidt and Adam

Riess presented findings that overturned the conventional idea that the expansion was slowing 13.7 billion years after the big bang.

Their discovery raised a question: What is pushing the universe apart? Scientists have labeled it “dark energy,” but nobody knows what it is.

It’s “an enigma, perhaps the greatest in physics today,” the Nobel committee said.

Emergency crews arrive within seconds of crash to find helicopter upside-down in murky water with just its skids showing on the surface.

BY DEEPTI HAJELA and COLLEEN LONG

Associated Press

NEW YORK • A helicopter on a private tour with five people aboard sputtered and crashed inside the East River on Tuesday afternoon shortly after take-off from a riverbank heliport, killing one passenger and injuring three others.

The 40-year-old victim apparently was trapped inside as the chopper sank about 50 feet below the surface of the swift-moving water, police said. New York Police Department divers pulled her from the water about 90 minutes after the Bell 206 Jet Ranger went down at around 3 p.m. She was pronounced dead at the scene.

Emergency crews arrived within seconds of the crash to find the helicopter upside-down in the murky water with just its skids showing on the surface. The pilot, Paul Dudley, and three passengers were bobbing, and witnesses reported a man diving down, possibly in an attempt to rescue the remaining passenger.

The passengers were friends of the pilot’s family: a husband and wife who were British and living in Portugal; the wife’s daughter, also British, who died at the scene; and the daughter’s Australian friend. The daughter and friend were living in Australia.

The pilot’s wife, Sunhe Dudley, told The Associated Press that she had spoken to her husband briefly after the crash.

“I think that he’s OK,” she said. “These were actually very dear friends of ours that were in the helicopter.”

The passengers were pulled from the water shortly after emergency crews arrived on the scene, police spokesman Paul Browne said. Fire department rescue paramedics revived both women, who were in critical condition; the man was stable. All were hospitalized. The pilot swam to shore and was uninjured.

The private chopper apparently had run into trouble and was trying to return to the heliport when it went into the river off 34th Street in midtown Manhattan, a few blocks south of the United Nations headquarters. It’s unclear what happened, but witnesses reported it was sputtering and appeared to be in some type of mechanical distress.

Joy Garnett and her husband were on the dock waiting to take the East River ferry to Brooklyn when they heard the blades of a helicopter and saw it start to take off from the nearby heliport. She said she saw it do “a funny curlicue.”

After her parents offered their thanks to Knox's lawyers and supporters, Knox spoke briefly, saying, "They're reminding me to speak in English, because I'm having problems with that."

"Thank you to everyone who's believed in me, who has defended me, who has supported my family," she said. "My family's the most important thing to me so I just want to be with them."

Knox's acquittal, fueled by doubts over DNA evidence, stunned the victim's family and angered the prosecution, which insists that she was among three people who killed Kercher, 21. But for Knox's grandmother Elisabeth Huff, "it was like the weight of the world had gone."

"We all are as happy as can be. I can't tell you how long we've been looking forward to this day," Huff told The Associated Press outside her home in West

Seattle, a tight-knit community a few miles across Elliott Bay from downtown. Friends and family who held spaghetti dinners, bowling events and concerts to raise money for Knox's defense were thrilled to have her home, though her supporters were a small presence at airport compared to the media: dozens of U.S. and international reporters, along with cameras and satellite trucks.

"WELCOME HOME AMANDA," read the marquee at a record store in the neighborhood where Knox grew up. Another welcome sign was hung at her father's house. A bar offered half-price drinks to celebrate her acquittal. At least one TV station in Washington state tracked the progress of her flight on the air using a plane-tracking website.

Knox, 24, left Perugia's Capanne prison Monday night amid cheers that a companion compared to those at a soccer stadium. Hundreds of inmates — most of them in the men's wing — shouted "Amanda, ciao!" and "Freedom!" as she walked into the central courtyard, said Corrado Maria Daclon, head of the Italy-US Foundation, which championed Knox's cause. Daclon said Knox jumped a little for joy and waved to the prisoners.

She was soon on her way home, protected by the darkened windows of a Mercedes that led her out of the prison in the middle of the night, and then Tuesday morning to Rome's Leonardo da Vinci airport. She flew from Rome to London, where she took a direct British Airways flight to Seattle, flying business class with full-length seat and menu options including champagne, smoked salmon and prawn salad.

She and her family were on the plane's secluded upper deck. At least nine members of media organizations were on board below, but a flight attendant blocked them from climbing the stairs "to preserve the privacy" of passengers.

Airline Attack Suspect Starts Trial With Anti-U.S. Outburst

BY ED WHITE
Associated Press

DETROIT • A Nigerian man accused of trying to bring down a jetliner with a bomb in his underwear made a defiant political outburst Tuesday, demonstrating again why his courtroom behavior will be closely watched throughout the trial where he's representing himself.

"The mujahadeen will wipe out the U.S. — the cancer U.S.," said Umar Farouk Abdulmutallab, scowling as he referred to Muslim guerrilla fighters.

When marshals removed his handcuffs, he also claimed that a radical Muslim cleric killed last week by the U.S. military is still alive.

In nearly two years of legal proceedings, Abdulmutallab has normally been polite and studious in front of the judge and prospective jurors. But in the moments before court, he's shown a tendency to make comments reflecting loyalty to al-Qaida and contempt for the United States.

The 24-year-old is charged in federal court with trying to destroy the Amsterdam-to-Detroit flight on Christmas 2009. He has pleaded not guilty, and his trial is expected to last three or four weeks.

Prospective jurors were questioned one by one, and most were told to return Thursday for inclusion in the final pool of 37 to 45 people.

Abdulmutallab, who is acting as his own lawyer, briefly questioned a potential juror, who expressed concern about people possibly "waiting in the wings outside the courthouse," no matter the verdict.

"There could be people who would be angry and want to retaliate?" he asked.

"Yes," she replied.

There was no good indication how active Abdulmutallab will be when witnesses begin testifying next week. On Tuesday, he rarely looked up from the defense table and deferred most questions to Anthony Chambers, his court-appointed standby attorney. He wrote or read and quietly talked to Chambers about whether to request that a jury candidate be excused.

U.S. District Judge Nancy Edmunds reminded him that appearances are important. She firmly recommended that he not wear jail clothes and instead put on something that would make a "better impression on jurors," at least a shirt with buttons to replace an oversized white T-shirt.

Abdulmutallab asked whether he could wear a traditional Yemeni belt with a dagger — a request the judge swiftly denied.

Chopper

"I thought, 'Is that some daredevil move?'" she said. "But it was obviously out of control. The body spun around at least two or three times, and then it went down."

She said the chopper had lifted about 25 feet off the ground before it dropped into the water without much of a splash. It flipped over, and the blades were sticking up out of the river.

Joseph Belez was watching helicopters from a boardwalk and saw the crash. "It was going up, and then all of a sudden it just spun itself and went down to the water," he said. "I was just watching it take off, and it was just all of a sudden spinning. It just went down. It was a shock. It really was."

A massive rescue effort was under way within minutes of the crash, with a dozen boats and divers down into the cold, grey water. Police officers doing a counterterrorism drill nearby jumped into the water wearing their uniforms, and without any rescue equipment they pulled the three passengers to shore.

"The pilot did indicate that there was somebody still in the helicopter," Lt. Larry Serras said. "By the time we swam to the helicopter it was completely submerged."

Officer Jason Gregory, one of the divers who brought the woman's body to the surface, said the helicopter was upside down in the sediment. He said the woman was in the back seat and wasn't buckled in by a seat belt.

The helicopter was from Linden, N.J., near the Statue of Liberty and the Newark, N.J., international airport and a popular base and refueling stop for helicopters operating in New York. The pilot apparently reported problems in the helicopter and said he was turning around, Mayor Michael Bloomberg said.

the Australian National University in Weston Creek, Australia, and Riess, 41, an astronomy professor at Johns Hopkins University and Space Telescope Science Institute in Baltimore.

Working in two teams, with Perlmutter heading one, they had raced to measure the universe's expansion by analyzing light from dozens of exploding stars called supernovas. They found the light was weaker than expected, signaling that the expansion of the universe was accelerating.

It was "one of the truly great discoveries in the history of science, and one whose implications are not fully understood," said Paul Steinhardt, a physics professor at Princeton University.

One consequence of the finding is that in a trillion years, galaxies will be spread apart from each other by more than the current size of the universe, he said. And the ever-greater expansion rate means the light from one galaxy will no longer be visible from another as it is today, he said.

"It's like changing from New York City to suddenly where everyone is spread out across some huge desert and there's nothing around to view," Steinhardt said.

The rapid expansion also implies that the universe will get increasingly colder as matter spreads across ever-vaster distances in space, said Lars Bergstrom, secretary of the Nobel physics committee.

The committee, citing the Robert Frost poem that pondered the world ending in fire or ice, suggested that "if the expansion will continue to speed up, the universe will end in ice."

But Robert Kirshner, a Harvard astronomer who was part of the team that included his former students Schmidt and Riess, said scientists don't know enough about dark energy to predict what will happen to the universe hundreds of billions of years from now.

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

Late Surge Erases Earlier Losses on Wall Street

NEW YORK (AP) • A late afternoon surge capped another wild day on Wall Street Tuesday and prevented the S&P 500 stock index from entering a bear market. Stocks jumped on reports that European officials were working to prop up the region's struggling banks. The Dow Jones industrial average was down nearly 200 points with 40 minutes of trading left. It closed up 153.

The Dow closed with a gain of 153.41, or 1.4 percent, to 10,808.71.

The Standard and Poor's 500 rose 24.72, or 2.2 percent, to 1,123.95. It had been as low as 1,074, which was 21 percent below its April 29 peak of 1,363. Had the index closed with a decline that size it would have met the typical definition of a bear market.

Yum Brands Reports Q3 Profit

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) • Yum Brands Inc., owner of the Pizza Hut, Taco Bell and KFC chains, said Tuesday third-quarter profit that beat Wall Street estimates as strong sales and restaurant growth in international markets offset another sluggish showing in its U.S. business. The company said it's on track to open a record 600 restaurants in its key China business this year. It said franchise fees are on pace for a record year of more than $850 million in its international division, which excludes China. Meanwhile, Yum reported declining sales at its three main brands in the U.S., including a 2 percent drop at Taco Bell restaurants open at least a year. "We're obviously disappointed in our U.S. performance," Yum Chairman and CEO David C. Novak said in a statement.

APPLE UNVEILS MORE POWERFUL IPHONE

CUPERTINO, Calif. (AP) • Apple Inc. unveiled a new iPhone on Tuesday that is faster and more powerful but stops short of a more radical upgrade. It said Sprint customers will now be able to use one. The new iPhone 4S has an improved camera with a higher-resolution sensor. The processor is faster, which helps run smoother, more realistic action games. It's also a "world phone," which means that Verizon iPhones will be able to useable overseas, just as AT&T iPhones already are. There had been speculation that Apple would reveal a more radical revision of the phone, an "iPhone 5." The no-show leaves room for speculation that Apple will reveal a new model in less than a year, perhaps one equipped to take advantage of Verizon's and AT&T's new high-speed data networks. There had also been speculation that Apple would include a chip that could talk to payment terminals at retail stores, turning the iPhone into a "mobile wallet." Competitors are starting to include this capability in their phones, though the payment systems are still immature. Apple made no mention of such a feature in the iPhone 4S. Apple is including a "personal assistant" application called Siri in the iPhone 4S. It responds to spoken questions and commands such as "Do I need an umbrella today?" It's an advanced version of speech-recognition apps found on other phones. The new iPhone also comes with new mobile software that includes such features as the ability to sync content wirelessly, without having to plug the device to a Mac or Windows machine. The iPhone announcement came during Apple's first major product event in years without Steve Jobs presiding. New CEO Tim Cook led the show after Jobs, who has been battling health problems, resigned in August.

Confronting a Protest on the Way to Wall Street

NEW YORK (AP) • Almost 90 minutes into his commute from the New Jersey suburbs, Michael Devaney has nearly reached his job on Wall Street. But first he threads through a sea of occupied but stone-still sleeping bags, around bleary-eyed protesters crawling from under blue plastic tarps in search of cigarettes and coffee, and past a sign on a pole protruding from a suitcase. "Billionaires," it warns, "Your Time is Up!" It is 7:45 a.m., and another day in the capital of capitalism has begun. The scene has been repeated now for most of three weeks, as the regular denizens of Wall Street arrive to meet protesters demanding an end to the financial system as we know it. The bankers, lawyers and others climbing from the subways, briefcases in hand, seem largely unperturbed – sympathetic, even – to those who call them the enemy.

Mostly, though, watching and listening as the tomtom beat of the protests spreads from a lower Manhattan park to cities around the country, Wall Streeters sound confused. What exactly, they ask, do the protesters want? "They definitely have a right to be here, but they don't seem to have a goal. What is it, to put Wall Street people in jail?" Devaney, who works in information technology at one of the financial district's many banks, asked Tuesday, after crossing narrow Zuccotti Park on his way to the office. "There are people who make a whole lot of money, but them making less money? I'm not sure what that's going to do in itself." In fact, Devaney's uncertainty about the protesters' message is echoed by some of the protesters, themselves. But while the protesters and the protested eyed one another somewhat warily Tuesday, the density that is life in Manhattan occasionally resulted in conversation, and left them wondering aloud what to make of another. "I'm still trying to figure it out," said Pete McCarthy, a pinstripe-suited lawyer who represents a financial services firm, studying the protesters on his way to work. "What are they saying, 'People Instead of Profits': What does it mean?" The Occupy Wall Street protests, which began Sept. 17 in this privately-owned park across the streets from towers housing investment bank Brown Brothers Harriman and the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority, have spread this week from Los Angeles to Chicago, Portland, Maine and other cities. Protesters have spoken out about the nation's lack of jobs, blaming President Obama and members of Congress. They have criticized corporate lobbyists and employers.

Chicken Teriyaki Bento Box, $7.95

Sushi Tokyo, 1111 Blue Lakes Blvd. N., Twin Falls

BY VIRGINIA HUTCHINS
vhutchins@magicvalley.com

The Japanese couple who opened Sushi Toyko six years ago have retired, but their recipes and their particularly polite brand of hospitality remain. What’s new are the pretty, segmented bento boxes in which the Twin Falls restaurant presents some of its combination meals. Why care about the plate? It’s part of an experience. Step through the door of this strip mall eatery and — for the time it takes to enjoy sashimi or tempura — you’re far away from Blue Lakes Boulevard. The tidy presentation of the restaurant’s chicken teriyaki bento lunch belies its heartiness. The meal starts with a small bowl of house-made miso soup. Sushi Tokyo brews its stock from dried bonito fish flakes and seaweed, then adds fermented soybean paste and serves

In one corner of the box, small, tender pieces of grilled chicken are served atop noodles that are sauteed in butter and soy sauce, with a few slender strips of carrots, onions and cabbage. and Michi Sawada — is a nice counterpoint to the sweet teriyaki. Neither the two pork-and-cabbage gyoza nor their citrus-based ponzu dipping sauce are house-made. But the fried rice is, of course. Don’t expect the same taste you’d find in a typical Chinese restaurant, said Tony Tse, Sushi Toyko’s owner since October 2010. This fried rice is cooked with a little butter, and the dish uses a sweeter, rounder Japanese rice grain. The day I visited, Tse was at a nearby table, eating lunch with his wife and child and keeping an eye on customers’ needs. I’ll never forget Yoshiko Sawada’s consistently gracious greetings or her husband’s salutes from the kitchen. But it’s good to see Sushi Toyko’s new family settled in.

New Name, Menu Items at Downtown Smokehouse

TIMES-NEWS

Business dropped at Lefty’s Smokehouse after Twin Falls restaurateur Jarried Graff was arrested in early August and charged with trafficking in marijuana. So Joe Mansour — who said he owns the 260 Shoshone St. E. building that Graff leased for Lefty’s — bought Graff’s equipment and took over the restaurant himself late last week. Now renamed House of Barbecue, the downtown eatery has dropped hot dogs and a couple of other items from the menu. But Mansour said he added lamb kebabs, chicken kebabs, gyros, shawarma and curry chicken with basmati rice, and he intends to offer beer and wine soon. You can reach House of Barbecue at 733-6700. Lefty’s opened for business in July and caught diners’ attention with its dancing pig mascot on the Shoshone Street sidewalk. And its former owner? According to online court records, Graff waived his preliminary hearing on the charge and awaits arraignment before 5th District Judge G. Richard Bevan on Oct. 11.

Learn a Favorite Dish of Your Bosnian Neighbors

Sladjana Mandura, a recent graduate of College of Southern Idaho’s pastry arts program, will teach a “Cooking Bosnian Pitas” class for CSI’s Community Education Center. You’ll learn the history, preparation and diversity of the traditional Bosnian pita — including variations that use spinach, cottage cheese, meat and potatoes — and how to use the basic pita recipe to create a dessert. These aren’t the pitas you’ll find in Greek restaurants. Rather, Bosnian pitas are made of filling rolled in a thin dough, then shaped into spirals that look like cinnamon rolls. They’re a staple in many Magic Valley homes of Bosnian immigrants. Class will be 10 a.m. to noon Oct. 15. Cost is $15, plus a $5 supply fee. Register: 732-6442 or communityed.csi.edu.

JUST SAY SALAD

Magic Valley diners are warming up to healthier menus at chain restaurants, local managers say.

mdavlin@magicvalley.com

It’s not all burgers and steaks at Magic Valley’s corporate restaurants. As restaurants are under pressure to reduce serving sizes and offer healthier meals, southern Idaho customers are finding new options at chain restaurants. While burgers and steaks remain the most popular menu items nationwide, local restaurant managers say Magic Valley consumers are warming up to healthier meals. In the past five years, diners have noticed low-calorie Sammies at Quiznos, Lifestyles healthier preparation options at Shari’s, and the low-calorie Fresco Menu at Taco Bell. In 2010, IHOP introduced the Simple and Fit menu, starring more than 30 menu items that clock in at less than 600 calories. And earlier this year, Burger King promised to promote healthier foods for kids. Nice, but who’s ordering? While 47 percent of Americans say they want more healthy options at restaurants, only 23 percent order those foods, according to a 2010 survey by food research firm Technomic. Some restaurants have been making subtler switches in their menus. Over the past six months, Outback Steakhouse has rolled out new dishes and retooled other offerings to have less fat, Twin Falls manager Nate Raff said. While the basic dishes have stayed the same, “we’ve 86’ed a lot of butter from them,” Raff said. So far, customer feedback has been good. Applebee’s paired with Weight Watchers about four years ago to offer low-calorie menu options, many of which have fewer than 550 calories. Twin Falls Applebee’s manager Rick Royalty said the entrees are popular with customers. In the next two weeks, the chain is introducing new dishes for the Weight Watchers menu, while keeping some of the favorites, like sirloin with garlic herb shrimp and asiago peppercorn steak. In July, McDonald’s said it’s adding apple slices to all of its Happy Meals, rolling out the change across the country. Currently, parents have the option of substituting the fruit for French fries. But according to an Associated Press story, only 11 percent of parents ordered apple slices instead of fries in their happy meal. By the end of October, all Happy Meals in south-central Idaho will have a small bag of apple slices and a small bag of French fries, said Bill Kyle, co-owner of the region’s McDonald’s franchise. (Parents can still nix the fries and get only apple slices if they want, Kyle said.) “Those are some real positive changes that are coming literally as we speak,” Kyle said. McDonald’s hasn’t altered its portion sizes, Kyle said, but has added salads, smoothies and other options over the years.

German Feast: Polka, Friends and Food

You won’t be surprised by the Twin Falls Kiwanis Club’s annual OctoberFeast, but depend on an authentically German meal.

BY BLAIR KOCH
For the Times-News

The lederhosen-clad band plays a mean polka, and Bud Sheridan says he’ll always run into some old friends. But his real reason for making a date with the Twin Falls Kiwanis Club’s OctoberFeast is the love affair the Filer man has with “the best German dinner you can get all year in the Magic Valley.” The annual fundraiser, set for Oct. 12 at Twin Falls’ Turf Club, features the same quintessentially German meal that the Kiwanis Club has served for years: smoked, German-style sausages beside caraway-spiced sauerkraut, Rotkohl and boiled potatoes with pearl onions. Sheridan’s favorite is the sauerkraut. “It has a nice, sweet flavor,” he said, adding the dish contrasts well against the robust flavor of the sausages, which are grilled over hickory-smoked briquettes before being steamed in a hot-water bath. “Steaming the sausages gives them a nice, plump look right before being served without losing any of the flavor. Plus, the steam gets them really juicy and moist,” said Kiwanis Club member and event coordinator Ray Parrish. In the past, the club has offered both mild and spicy Falls Brand sausages.

Technology Is Changing the Once Simple Cookbook

BY MICHELE KAYAL
For The Associated Press

With a box full of carrots and a hankering for something vaguely exotic, Mary-Claire van Leunen turned to her computer for a recipe.

"I looked for 'Turkish carrots' and I found it easily, in fact I found half a dozen," said the retired Seattle software researcher.

Everyone's done it, fired up a search engine to deal with that mound of parsley or a bumper crop of cucumbers. But van Leunen wasn't randomly appealing to the online universe. She was searching the recipes in her own cookbooks, the roughly 2,000 volumes that line her shelves. Without ever cracking a single spine.

"In the past, I would have gone to the Central Asian section of my books and gone through the indexes," says van Leunen. "I would have looked in two or three cookbooks, and wound up adapting something for fennel or something to the carrots."

Today, the online cookbook indexing service called Eat Your Books lets her instantly search the index of nearly every cookbook she owns. When she finds the recipe she wants, the website tells her the book it's in.

It's part of a new wave of digital tools that are changing the way home cooks explore new recipes, revisit old ones and create satisfying meals.

Eat Your Books, launched nine months ago, boasts a library of 88,000 books with more than 2,000 indexed volumes. Users just tell the site which cookbooks they own, then they can quickly peruse the recipes of the chefs and authors they already trust.

Likewise, the website Cookstr catalogues recipes from more than 500 chefs and cookbook authors and offers them to users — free of charge. And mobile applications and e-books, once little more than digitized versions of cookbook content, have begun adding features that make the experience interactive and highly personal.

"It is completely feasible today that a mobile device will be the center of the connected kitchen and Cookstr wants to be at the center of that connected kitchen," says Cookstr chief executive officer Art Chang.

Cookstr offers roughly 8,000 recipes from 16 major cookbook publishers, each of them sifted by a team of food-savvy "curators" who categorize them by variables such as ingredient, nutritional information, even taste and texture. Want a chicken dish that's spicy, requires only one pot and has fewer than 500 calories per serving? Cookstr offers up 16 recipes, including West African chicken stew and a Thai green curry.

The company has extended the reach of this highly personal, on-demand approach to actual cookbooks, packaging the well-known "1-2-3" series of three-ingredient cookbooks from award-winning author Rozanne Gold into 32 different digital books for iPhones and iPads. Sold through Apple's iBookstore, recipes can be purchased in bundles of 10, 50 or 250, allowing buyers to build their own a la carte recipe collections.

And cooks seem to be responding to these new digital options. Cookstr has grown from 12,000 users when it launched nearly three years ago to roughly 250,000 unique visitors a month, Chang says.

Book lovers need not mourn the death of print just yet. Eat Your Books fan van Leunen says the site actually has inspired her to buy more books.

serve just mild sausages.

Parrish brought back Germany-inspired recipes after living in the country in the early 1970s. His Rotkohl recipe has been an October-Feast staple and favorite since the event began. The dish features shredded, simmered red cabbage in a rich sauce of cloves and apple.

Bert and Eileen Banholzer of Filer have attended OctoberFeast for at least 15 years.

"We love the red cabbage, the sauerkraut, the sausages; it's a connection and a taste of home," Eileen said. "Milwaukee, Bert's hometown, is known for bratwurst. That we can have such an authentic German meal in my hometown, even just once a year ... I'm tickled about it."

Although the Rotkohl is prepared from scratch, the Kiwanis Club upgrades store-bought sauerkraut for the event. OctoberFeast fans don't seem to notice. The sauerkraut, with crushed pineapple added, is a favored dish.

"The sauerkraut is definitely our favorite part of the meal," said Barbara Brockman of Twin Falls, who has attended with her husband, Bill Brockman, for more than 15 years. "It's definitely special because it's just once a year. With the band, which is all dressed up and playing so well, it's like a celebration."

1 head red cabbage, shredded
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vinegar

For the sauce:

1/2 cup water
1/3 cup vinegar
1/3 cup packed brown sugar

1/8 cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
1/3 teaspoon pepper
1/2 medium onion, sliced
1/4 cup applesauce
1 pinch ground cloves

Bring 2 inches of water, with 1/4 teaspoon salt and 1 teaspoon vinegar, to boil. Add cabbage and cook for 10 minutes until tender. Drain.

For sauce, combine water, vinegar, sugar, flour, salt, pepper, onion, apple-sauce and cloves in pan over medium-high heat and cook, stirring frequently until mixture thickens (about five minutes).

Pour sauce mixture over hot cabbage, stir together gently and heat thoroughly. Simmer one hour to allow flavors to blend before serving.

Simple Fall Salad That Is Rich, but Not Fattening

Salmon is naturally tender, easy to digest, low in bad fats and cholesterol, and loaded with beneficial nutrients and oils.

BY ROCCO DISPIRITO
For The Associated Press

I love anything that tastes like celery, including celery root.

Which sounds like it's the root of the green stalks most people are familiar with. Except it isn't. Celery root is from the celeriac plant, a relative of celery that is grown exclusively for its root. They taste similar, though celery root is a little nuttier. Both plants evolved from a wild celery native to Mediterranean marshlands.

But while they may taste alike, you'll never confuse celery for celery root in the store. Celery root is gnarly, knobby and quite frankly unattractive. But peel away the tough outer skin and that ugliness gives way to a fresh taste that can add flavor to everything from salads to stews. Celery root also is packed with vitamins and minerals, including vitamin C, potassium and phosphorus.

In this recipe for smoked salmon salad, I've matched celery root with apples for a delicious low-calorie main dish salad that will make

Tips:

- If smoked flavors don't do it for you, use gravlax instead of smoked salmon. Gravlax is salmon that has been cured (usually in salt, sugar and sometimes dill), then thinly sliced. The texture and flavor are similar to smoked salmon, minus the smoky flavor.
- Be sure to trim off most of the stem portion of the watercress; it tends to be tough.

your bathroom scale give thanks.

Salmon is good and good for you. It's naturally tender, easy to digest, low in bad fats and cholesterol, and loaded with beneficial nutrients and oils. The salmon here also is quick to fix — all you have to do is open a package — and dress it with a delicious yogurt sauce.

Apples are a star here, too. I especially like to feature them in creatively constructed salads, where they offer a tart sweetness and a pleasant crunch.

I love serving salad as a main course, or even as a full meal by itself. It can be faster to make than a regular cooked meal, requires no accompaniment other than maybe some bread, and can prepped a day or more in advance. This main meal salad couldn't be easier to prepare.

Serve it up and watch it — and your waistline — disappear. Traditional versions of this salad can pack 712 calories and 37 grams of fat. But my version has just 5 grams of fat and 187 calories.

Smoked Salmon Salad with Green Apple and Celery Root Remoulade

Start to finish: 25 minutes. Servings: 4.

4 ounces (1/2 cup) fat-free plain Greek-style yogurt
2 teaspoons tahini
1 1/2 tablespoons pickled ginger, roughly chopped, plus 1 tablespoon of its liquid
Salt, to taste
2 Granny Smith apples, grated on a box grater
1 medium celery root, peeled and grated on a box grater

8 ounces cold-smoked salmon (lox), thinly sliced
2 teaspoons sesame seeds, lightly toasted
Ground black pepper, to taste
4 cups watercress

In a large bowl, mix together the yogurt, tahini and the reserved ginger liquid. Season with salt. Add the apples, celery root and chopped pickled ginger. Toss gently to coat the apples and celery evenly. Set aside for 5 minutes.

Meanwhile, divided the smoked salmon between 4 serving plates. Sprinkle the salmon with the sesame seeds, then season with black pepper.

Add the watercress to the apple and celery mixture and lightly toss to coat with the yogurt sauce. Divide the salad between the serving plates, mounding it next to the smoked salmon.

CANTONESE BEEF MAKES GOOD LEFTOVERS

THE WASHINGTON POST

This is a California family recipe with Cantonese roots. Reston, Va., resident Tracie Griffith grew up eating the stir-fry, which she describes as "Chinese American spaghetti," made by her Chinese mom. It comes together quickly and makes good leftovers the next day. She prefers serving it over crisped noodles for a nice interplay of texture.

The meat called for here is available, already cut into thin strips, at Asian grocery stores. But you can buy 1/2- to 3/4-inch-thick boneless rib-eye and freeze it for 20 to 30 minutes, then cut it into strips.

The meat needs to marinate for at least 30 minutes and up to overnight.

Serve over steamed jasmine rice, pan-fried noodles or angel-hair pasta.

Spicy Cantonese Tomato Beef

4 servings.

- 2 tablespoons dark soy sauce
- 5 teaspoons black bean garlic sauce
- 3 tablespoons rice wine or cooking wine
- 2 medium cloves garlic, minced
- 1 1/2-inch piece peeled fresh ginger root, cut into fine matchsticks
- 1 to 1 1/2 pounds boneless rib-eye steak, sliced thin, defrosted if necessary (may substitute tri-tip roast)
- 2 large onions, cut into 1/4-inch slices from stem to root end

- 4 large tomatoes, cored, then cut into wedges (about 8 cups)
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch, dissolved in 1/3 cup cold water
- Sriracha, chili sauce or hot pepper sauce, such as Tabasco

Combine the soy sauce, 1 teaspoon of the black bean sauce, the rice wine, half of the garlic, half of the ginger and the meat in a resealable plastic food storage bag. Seal and massage the bag to coat the meat evenly. Marinate for at least 30 minutes and up to overnight.

Heat a well-seasoned wok, or a large skillet greased with nonstick cooking oil spray, over high heat. Test the surface with a sprinkle of water; it is ready for cooking when the water sizzles and evaporates right away.

Add the remaining garlic; stir-fry for 5 seconds, then add the meat. Stir-fry until just browned, and transfer to a plate. Quickly add the onions and stir-fry for 1 minute, then add the tomatoes and the remaining black bean garlic sauce. Stir-fry until the tomatoes release enough liquid to come to a boil, then reduce the heat to medium or medium-low and cook for 10 minutes, stirring occasionally to keep things from sticking.

Return the meat to the wok or skillet and add the remaining ginger; stir to combine and heat through.

Stir in the cornstarch mixture and cook just long enough to thicken

Beat the Fall Chill with a Bowl of Chili

BY J.M. HIRSCH
Associated Press

Chilly fall evenings are a fine time for a spicy bowl of chili. And if it can be thrown together with minimal fuss and time, all the better.

Because while I love a slowly simmered soup or chili, my life rarely has room for such luxuries. Usually it's more a matter of what I can get on and off the stove as quickly as possible.

In the case of chili, speed usually comes at the expense of flavor. But I've learned to compensate for that with a few simple techniques that boost flavor without slowing down the dinnertime rush hour.

I start by briefly heating my spices in oil. This helps bring out their most intense flavors, mimicking the depth of flavor you'd expect from a more slowly cooked dish. Then I brown my meat. Sounds basic, right? But as we all know, browning meat adds gobs of flavor to anything, so it's an important step.

Next, I up the acid. Tomato paste and cider vinegar add gobs of it, which is key to balancing the fat of the meat. Finally, I use a seasonal approach to moderate the heat of the dish — finely diced apple. It's a bit unorthodox, but the flavor is wonderful (and doesn't smack of apple at all).

The apples in this chili recipe give it a hint of sweetness.

Feel free to substitute the ground meat of your choice. Turkey and bison are fine alternatives.

Spicy Beef Chili with Apples

Start to finish: 30 minutes.
Servings: 6.

2 tablespoons olive oil

1 tablespoon smoked paprika
2 teaspoons chili powder
2 teaspoons cumin
2 teaspoons dried oregano
2 teaspoons garlic powder
1 teaspoon cinnamon
2 pounds ground beef
2 large cooking apples, peeled, cored and diced
1 large yellow onion, diced
6-ounce can tomato paste
3 cups chicken broth
2 tablespoons cider vinegar
Salt and ground black pepper, to taste

In a large saucepan over medium-high, heat the oil. Add the paprika, chili powder, cumin, oregano, garlic powder and cinnamon. Cook, stirring constantly, for 30 seconds. Add the beef and cook until browned, about 6 minutes.

Add the apples and onion, then saute for 5 minutes. Stir in the tomato paste, broth and vinegar, then bring to a simmer. Cook, uncovered, for 10 minutes. Season with salt and pepper.

Hot-sweet Dinner in 40 Minutes

BY BONNIE S. BENWICK
The Washington Post

We didn't expect to find a good way to incorporate Hatch chili peppers in an Italian cookbook, but this recipe from master chef-restaurateur Jonathan Waxman is a winner. He likes to use these particular peppers because "their nice, round flavor and medium heat marry well with the sweet onion, balsamic vinegar and garlic" that form the sauce for this dish.

Hanger steak, a beef cut from between the rib and short loin, is being labeled more often these days as "hanging tender steak."

Serve with slices of ripe tomato or grilled watermelon. Adapted from Waxman's "Italian, My Way: More Than 150 Simple and Inspired Recipes That Breathe New Life Into Italian Classics" (Simon & Schuster, 2011).

Hanger Steak With Salsa Piccante

4 to 6 servings.

24 ounces hanger steak
Coarse sea salt
Freshly ground black pepper
3 medium cloves garlic
1 large (10 to 12 ounces) sweet onion
2 Hatch chili peppers (may substitute Anaheim chili peppers)
1 tablespoon extra-virgin olive oil
2 tablespoons good-quality balsamic vinegar
Water

Prepare the grill for direct heat. If using a gas grill, preheat to high (600 to 650 degrees). If using a charcoal grill, light the charcoal or wood briquettes; when the briquettes are ready, distribute them evenly under the cooking area. For a very hot fire, you should be able to hold your hand about 6 inches above the coals for about 1 or 2 seconds. Have ready a spray water bottle for taming any flames. Lightly coat the grill rack with oil and place it on the grill. Preheat the oven to 375 degrees. Have a large cast-iron or ovenproof skillet at hand. If necessary, trim excess fat from the steak. Season with salt and pepper all over and let sit at room temperature while you make the salsa piccante. Peel the garlic. Cut the onion into chunks; place both ingredients the skillet, along with the (whole) chili peppers. Drizzle the oil over them and toss to coat. Roast for 8 to 10 minutes, using tongs to turn them to promote an even char; the ingredients should be sizzling and a little softened. Transfer to the stove top (off the heat) and carefully add the vinegar to the skillet, stirring to coat.

Stem the peppers (but do not seed them), then cut into chunks. Transfer the mixture and all of the liquid in the skillet to the bowl of a food processor. Pulse to form a chunky sauce, or puree for a smooth sauce (your choice); add a few tablespoons of water for the latter. For a relatively smooth sauce, the yield will be about 1 1/4 cups. Place the steak on the grill. Cook uncovered and undisturbed for about 4 minutes on each side; the meat should be medium-rare, with a dark mahogany color, and crisped on the edges. Transfer to a cutting board and let it rest for 5 minutes before cutting against the grain into wide slices.

Serve with the salsa piccante on top or on the side. Per serving (based on 6): 230 calories, 25 g protein, 8 g carbohydrates, 10 g fat, 4 g saturated fat, 40 mg cholesterol, 120 mg sodium, 1 g dietary fiber, 3 g sugar.

TOMATO RELISH WITH HEAT

THE WASHINGTON POST

Australian resident Paul Freeman says his mother used to make this condiment in the 1950s; he admits that he has "heated it up a little" with spices.

He says it's great with snacks, and on cold meat and sandwiches.

If you don't wish to store this relish using the water-bath canning process, it can be refrigerated for up to 5 days or frozen (preferably in half-pint containers or resealable plastic food storage bags) for up to 3 months. Properly processed, the canned jars can be stored at a cool room temperature for up to 1 year.

Pablo's One-Pot Screamer Tomato Relish

Makes about 5 pints.

14 to 15 small ripe tomatoes (about 3 1/3 pounds), peeled, cored and chopped (see note)
4 medium Spanish onions, coarsely chopped (about 3 pounds)
1 teaspoon finely minced garlic
1 1/2 cups brown rice vinegar
1 1/2 cups packed light brown sugar
1 1/2 tablespoons powdered mustard
1 tablespoon curry powder
1/2 teaspoon ground cayenne pepper
2 teaspoons kosher salt
1 teaspoon soy sauce

Place the chopped tomatoes in a large, heavy-bottomed, nonreactive pot. Add the onions, garlic, vinegar, brown sugar, powdered mustard, curry powder, cayenne powder, salt and soy sauce; stir to incorporate, then let the mixture sit at room temperature for 15 to 30 minutes.

Place over high heat; bring to a boil, then reduce the heat to medium or medium-low and cook uncovered for about 1 1/2 hours, stirring every 10 minutes or so, or until a fair amount of the mixture's liquid has been reduced and the mixture looks like a loose relish.

Meanwhile, to sterilize the jars, fill a large pot with water and bring to a boil over high heat, then reduce the heat so that the water is barely bubbling. Have ready 5 pint (16-ounce) canning jars with 2-piece lids. Immerse the jars in the pot. Place the rings and lids in a separate small saucepan and cover them with hot water. Leave the jars and lids immersed while you cook the relish.

Use a wide-mouthed funnel to fill the jars with the relish, leaving 1/2 inch of head space at the top of each jar. Use the hot rings and lids to seal the jars (snugly, but not too tightly). Let cool to room temperature, then tighten the lids and store for up to 1 year. The lid of a properly sealed jar should be slightly concave; if the lid springs up when you press your finger in the center, the lid is unsealed. If the lids have not sealed, process for 15 minutes in a hot-water bath (jars submerged with least 1 or 2 inches of water overhead), let cool and test again.

Note: To peel the tomatoes, bring a large pot of water to a boil over high heat. Use a sharp knife to score an "X" on the bottom of each tomato. Working in batches, carefully add to the pot and cook for about 1 minute or until the skins have loosened. Transfer to a work surface; when cool enough to handle, discard the skins.

Beat the Fall Chill with a Bowl of Chili

Dinner in 25 (or 35) Minutes: Pork Chops

BY BONNIE S. BENWICK
The Washington Post

Pork chops, elevated by dill pickles.

Try a chef's take on a weeknight entree. It's from Steve Mannino, who runs the kitchen at Rustico in Arlington, Va. He's big on non-fussy food and bold flavors, which is why his recipe is just right for weeknights.

It begins with bone-in, 1-inch-thick chops; as long as the chops you buy are fresh and sweet-smelling and have some fat around the edges, you're good. Seared on the stove top and finished in the oven, they stay moist on the inside and can be monitored to a 145-to-150-degree doneness. "Don't be afraid of a little pink," he says.

Pan juices mixed with mustard, capers, chicken broth and those dill pickle chunks form a piquant sauce you'll want to slurp every last bit of. Two skilletts will get dinner on the table faster and can be used to make a simultaneous side dish.

The chef recommends serving the pork chops on pan-fried potato cakes, and if you're comfortable multitasking at the stove, you can put together the cakes while the pork chops are in the oven. But store-bought hash browns or a quick turn at mashed potatoes will do, along with dollops of sour cream and applesauce. If you make the potato cakes as well, the entire recipe will take 35 minutes.

Pork Chops With Mustard-Pickle Pan Sauce

- 4 servings, plus leftovers
- 4 bone-in, 1-inch-thick pork chops (9 to 11 ounces each)
 - 2 large pinches kosher salt, plus more as needed
 - 2 tablespoons canola oil
 - 2 large dill pickle spears
 - About 6 sprigs flat-leaf parsley
 - 1/2 cup fresh apple cider
 - 2 tablespoons unsalted butter
 - 1 tablespoon Dijon-style mustard
 - 1 tablespoon capers
 - 6 tablespoons no-salt-added chicken broth

Preheat the oven to 350 degrees.

Heat two medium (9-inch) ovenproof skilletts over medium-high heat. Use paper towels to pat the pork chops dry. Season the chops on both sides with a generous pinch or two of salt.

Add a tablespoon of oil to each skillet and swirl to coat the bottoms, then carefully add 2 chops to each skillet, laying them so they land away from you (to redirect the splatter). Cook for 3 minutes, until nicely seared and golden brown on the bottom, then transfer to the oven and cook for about 10 minutes or until an instant-read thermometer inserted into the side of each chop registers 145 to 150 degrees. Transfer the chops to a plate and cover loosely to keep warm. Drain and discard the oil from both skilletts, but do not disturb the fond, or browned bits. (At this point, you've got time to make the optional potato cakes; see VARIATION, below.)

While the chops are in the oven, cut the dill pickle spears on the diagonal into 1-inch chunks. Finely chop the parsley to yield 2 table-spoons.

Place one now-empty skillet over medium heat. Carefully add the apple cider to deglaze (it will steam up) and use a wooden spatula to dislodge any browned bits from the skillet, then add the butter and stir until it has melted. Whisk in the mustard and cook for 1 minute, then add the capers and broth. Cook for 3 minutes, stirring once or twice, then add the pickles and cook undisturbed for 1 minute; the sauce should thicken slightly. Remove from the heat and stir in the parsley.

Divide the chops among individual plates. (If you've made the two potato cakes, put a half on the plate first, then add a dollop of sour cream and applesauce before placing the chop on top. Spoon equal amounts of sauce over and/or around each chop. Serve hot.

VARIATION: To make the potato cakes, shred 3 or 4 medium washed, unpeeled russet potatoes (about 9 ounces each) to yield 4 cups; place in a mixing bowl. Add 3 egg yolks, 3 tablespoons of chopped parsley, 3 or 4 tablespoons of thinly sliced (crosswise) scallions and 1 tablespoon of kosher salt; use your hands to combine.

Wipe out the skillet used to cook the pan sauce; place both now-empty skilletts over medium-high heat. When they are hot, add 2 tablespoons of canola oil to each one and swirl to coat the bottoms. Once the oil is hot, carefully divide the potato mixture between them, using a spatula to flatten and spread the mixture into a fairly flat cake in each pan. Cook undisturbed for 6 minutes or until browned and crisped on the bottom, then use 2 spatulas to turn over each potato cake. Cook on the second side

SPICING UP APPLE SEASON IN A SAVORY SORT OF WAY

BY J.M. HIRSCH
Associated Press

This time of year, my son would gladly eat nothing but applesauce. Especially if he got to pick the apples that went into it.

But healthy as they may be, apples alone do not make a proper diet. So rather than indulge his constant desire for applesauce, I decided to integrate an apple sauce into a dinner he was sure to love.

It worked in part because apples are such a versatile fruit. They take to savory flavors as easily as sweet. To help blur the line even further, I used seasonings that we traditionally think of as sweet, but can do double duty as savory, such as cinnamon.

The result was a delicious skillet chicken dish bathed in a sweet-and-savory sauce of apples and onions. Even better, it was on the table in 30 minutes. Because who wants to spend time cooking when there are more apples to pick?

Curried Apple Chicken Saute

Start to finish: 30 minutes.
Servings: 4.

- 2 tablespoons butter, divided
- 4 boneless, skinless chicken breasts, pounded to an even 1/2-inch

- thickness
- Salt and ground black pepper
- 1 medium yellow onion, diced
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon curry powder
- 1/4 teaspoon smoked paprika
- 2 baking apples (such as Granny Smith or Cortland), peeled, cored and finely chopped
- 2 tablespoons cider vinegar
- 1/2 cup water
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch

In a large skillet over medium-high heat, melt 1 tablespoon of the butter. Season the chicken on both sides with salt and pepper, then add half of it to the pan. Cook for 3 minutes per side, then transfer to a plate. Add the remaining tablespoon of butter and repeat with the remaining chicken. Transfer the second batch of chicken to the plate, cover with foil and set aside.

Return the skillet to the heat and add the onion. Saute for 4 minutes, then add the cinnamon, curry powder and smoked paprika. Saute for 30 seconds, then add the apples. Toss well to coat the apples with the seasonings, then cover the pan, reduce the heat to low, and cook for 5 minutes, or until the apples are tender, but not mushy.

Uncover the pan and stir in the vinegar. In a small glass, mix together the water and cornstarch, then add to the skillet. Stir, then bring to a simmer. Return the chicken to the skillet, cover with the sauce, then cover the skillet and cook for 6 to 8 minutes, or until the sauce has thickened and the chicken is fully cooked. Season with salt and pepper.

Serve the chicken with the apple sauce spooned over it.

Some Cheeses Can Be Frozen

BY KATHLEEN PURVIS
McClatchy Newspapers

Question: I cut a lot of cheeses (Jarlsberg, havarti, pepper jack) into cubes for a club meeting and now I have leftovers. Can I freeze it and serve it at another meeting even though it is cut into cubes? How would I thaw it?

Answer: Soft cheese, such as brie or cream cheese, don't freeze well because it gets gummy. But harder cheeses, such as jacks, ched-dars and Parmesans, can be frozen.

However, freezing will change the consistency and make the cheese more crumbly. So frozen cheese is fine for cooking, particularly if you need to grate it first. But I'm not sure if you'll love the texture for cheese-nibbling.

It's worth doing to avoid waste, but you might prefer to use it for cooking or stuffing omelets. Or you could use the cheese to make cheese-based hors d'oeuvres for your next meeting, such as mini-quiches.

Roasted Pasta Dinner Fit for Busy, Chilly Evenings

BY J.M. HIRSCH
Associated Press

Fall inspires me to get back into the kitchen. Now if only it somehow also created lots of extra time for me to do that.

The best I can manage are compromise dishes — meals that are home cooked from scratch but require little hands on time. Because on beautiful fall afternoons the kitchen may call to me, but so does my son. And he wants me jumping in piles of leaves, not standing at the stove.

This ridiculously easy pasta topped with roasted tomatoes, green peppers, garlic and sausage is a great example. Dump everything on a rimmed baking sheet, toss it in the oven, then go outside and play in the leaves. A little while later, boil up some pasta, spoon the “sauce” over it, top with grated Parmesan and you’re done.

To make this dish even more weeknight friendly, it’s extremely versatile. Use whatever tomatoes you have handy. Ditto for the peppers and pasta variety. And don’t hesitate to add any other vegetables you have. To save even more time, buy the pre-chopped veggies in the grocer’s produce section.

Autumn Roasted Tomato and Sausage Pasta

Start to finish: 50 minutes (10 minutes active). Servings: 6.

- 1 pint cherry tomatoes, halved
- 4 cloves garlic, coored and cut into thick strips
- 1 large red onion, roughly chopped
- 8-ounce package white

ASSOCIATED PRESS

This easy pasta is topped with roasted tomatoes, green peppers, garlic and sausage.

- button mushrooms
- 12-ounce package cooked Italian chicken sausage, cut into 1-inch chunks
- 4 large carrots, peeled and cut into 1/2-inch chunks
- 3 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 teaspoon dried oregano
- 1 teaspoon dried basil
- Kosher salt and ground black pepper
- 1 pound spaghetti
- Grated Parmesan cheese
- 1/4 cup toasted pine nuts

Heat the oven to 300 degrees. On a rimmed baking sheet, combine the tomatoes, garlic, peppers, red onions, mushrooms, sausage and carrots. Drizzle the oil over the vegetables, then sprinkle with the oregano and basil. Use your hands to toss the vegetables and sausage until coated, then spread in an even layer. Place in the oven and roast for 40 minutes. Walk away and do something fun for the first 20 minutes. Bring a large pot of salted water to a boil. Add the spaghetti and cook according to package directions. Drain, then divide between serving plates. Spoon the roasted vegetable and sausage mixture, including any juices that have collected in the pan, over the pasta. Top with Parmesan and pine nuts.

A Fresh Take on the French Onion Soup

BY ALISON LADMAN
For The Associated Press

French onion soup is a classic well suited for fall. The dark, rich broth and cheese-encrusted top are perfect for ending off a chilly evening.

For our version, we added a few more members of the onion family (leeks and shallots), a handful of herbs, as well as the earthiness of mushrooms. If you’d like to keep it vegetarian, you can swap out the beef and chicken broths for vegetable broth.

Onion and Mushroom Soup

Start to finish: 1 hour. Servings: 4.

- 2-ounce package dried porcini or similar mushrooms
- 1 cup boiling water
- 5 tablespoons butter, divided
- 3 large sweet onions, thinly sliced
- 1/4 cup white wine
- 2 leeks, white parts only, cleaned and sliced
- 2 shallots, chopped
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 2 tablespoons chopped fresh thyme
- 2 tablespoons chopped fresh rosemary
- 3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
- 2 cups chicken broth
- 2 cups beef broth
- Salt and ground black pepper, to taste
- 4 slices stale crusty bread
- 4 slices fontina cheese
- Chopped fresh chives, for garnish

Cut or break the dried mushrooms into small pieces and place in heat-safe bowl. Pour the boiling water over the mushroom pieces and set aside. In a large saucepan over medium heat, melt 3 tablespoons of the butter. Add the onions and cook slowly until well-browned, stirring regularly, about 15 to 20 minutes. If the onions begin to get too browned, add a couple teaspoons of water. When the onions are browned and caramelized, add the wine and stir to deglaze the pan. Add the leeks, shallots, garlic, thyme, rosemary and remaining 2 tablespoons of butter. Increase the heat to medium-high and cook until the leeks are tender, about 6 to 8 minutes. Add the flour and stir to coat everything.

Pour in the chicken and beef broths, then stir well and bring to a boil. Add the steeped mushrooms (including the liquid), then reduce heat to simmer for 10 minutes. Season with salt and pepper. Heat the broiler. Ladle the soup into 4 oven-safe crocks. Top each with a slice of the stale bread, then a slice of the cheese. Arrange the crocks on a rimmed baking sheet, then place under the broiler and cook until the cheese is melted and begins to brown, 1 to 2 minutes. Serve topped with fresh chives.

OBITUARIES

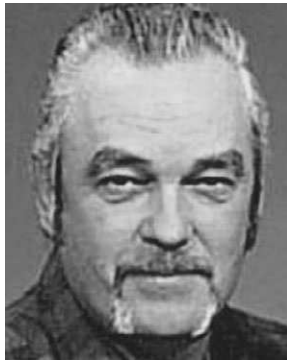

John O. Tolman Sr. 'Duck'

Oct. 27, 1942-Oct. 1, 2011

HEYBURN • John O. Tolman Sr. "Duck," our beloved husband, father, grandfather and great-grandfather, returned to his Heavenly Father on Saturday, Oct. 1, 2011, from injuries sustained in a trucking accident at the age of 68.

He was born Oct. 27, 1942, in Nampa, Idaho, and raised in Meridian. He was the son of Ernest Milton and Edith Helen Dunn Tolman. He met the love of his life, Elenora "Ellye" M. Sales, in Vancouver, Wash., and they were married March 14, 1968. John was a man of many talents. There was nothing, if ever asked of him, that he would not do. He was a loving and giving person and loved everyone he met. He started driving truck in 1952 for his uncle, E.A. Tolman. He was a hard-working man and he had many titles: long-haul driver; certified welder out of Portland, Ore.; carpenter, detailing manager and many others. However, his biggest passion was driving truck. He drove miles and miles across the country until he settled down in Heyburn, where he drove his last miles for Transystems Trucking of Paul. He enjoyed spending time with his best friend, John II, where they spent countless hours fishing, hunting and driving truck. He liked going to the Oregon Coast, and his most loved passion was spending time with the love of his life, Elenora, his family and grandchildren. He will be deeply loved and missed by family and friends.

He is survived by his beloved wife, Elenora of Heyburn; his children, Edith Castro (Richard) of Rupert, John Tolman II (Sherry) of Rupert and Justeen Ferguson living in Washington State; a stepson, William Davis (Sandra) of Tracy, Calif.; his grandchildren, Savannah Guzmann (Manuel) of Burley, Fernando Castro (Regina), Samantha and Miles Tolman, and Brittany Smith, all of Rupert, Zach Walters, Robin Dawn Ferguson and Rocky Ryan Ferguson, all of Washington, and Alexis and Natalie of Tracy, Calif.; his great-grandchildren, Rylan Castro, Talyn Guzmann, Mariah Guzmann, Junior Guzmann, Aliah Castro and Isaih Castro, all of Rupert; his mother, Edith Helen Tolman; his siblings, Burl Tolman (Lola) of Boise, Roger Tolman (Kris) of Bonnie Lake, Wash., Mildred Lee of Washington State, Laura Moe of Omak, Wash., and Patricia Tolman of Washington State; and several nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by his father, Ernest Milton Tolman; and Geraldine Dean Tolman and David Allen Tolman.

A memorial service will be held at 1 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 27, at the Rasmussen Funeral Home, 1350 E. 16th St. in Burley.

In lieu of flowers or plants, please make memorial contributions to the John O. Tolman Sr. Memorial Fund at any U.S. Bank. Funeral arrangements and cremation have been entrusted to the care of the Rasmussen Funeral Home of Burley.

Billie Keller Dayley

Nov. 30, 1927-Sept. 30, 2011

BOISE • Billie Keller Dayley, beloved father and grandfather, 83, passed away Friday, Sept. 30, 2011, in Boise, Idaho, from natural causes.

He was born in Lethbridge, Alberta, Canada, on Nov. 30, 1927, to James and Edna Dayley. He married Orla Tolman in the Salt Lake Temple on June 2, 1948. Billie was an officer on Burley Police Department for about 20 years, where he served in many capacities, including city detective. He moved to Boise in 1973 to work for the Criminal Identification Bureau for the state of Idaho. He was a member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. Bill loved his family, his God and his country. He served in the Navy during World War II, stationed in San Diego, Calif.

Bill is survived by his children, Ralene (Duane) Searle of Burley, Craig (Marjorie) of Meridian, LaNae of Logan, Utah, Garth of Burley, JoDell of Boise and Julie (Aaron) Edwards of Fallon, Nev.; 10 grandchildren; six great-grandchildren; and also his good friend, Ben Shinn of Boise. He was preceded in death by his wife, Orla in March 2010; his parents; two brothers and two sisters.

Viewing will be from 7 to 9 p.m. Friday, Oct. 7, at Relyea Funeral Chapel, 318 N. Latah in Boise. A graveside service will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 8, at Gem Memorial Gardens in Burley, Idaho.

Alberta LaJune (Lish) Bosh

June 5, 1930-Oct. 2, 2011

Alberta LaJune (Lish) Bosh, 81, of Twin Falls, was called to the arms and rewards of our Heavenly Father from her home Sunday, Oct. 2, 2011, while she was lovingly surrounded by her husband and three children. She fought the battle of cancer with graciousness and dignity and never let it take away her ability to express and show her deep love for her family.

On June 5, 1930, Alberta was the first of four daughters born to Golden H. and Rachel E. Lish. Her parents and two sisters, Fern Lish and Nadean Boatman, preceded her in death. One sister, Faye Thurman of Hagerman, Idaho, survives Alberta.

Her husband, Gerald U. Bosh of Twin Falls, survives Alberta. Together they shared the joy of 66 years of married life and the beloved raising of their three children.

Alberta is survived by her daughter, LaJune Gier; a son, Howard Wayne Bosh; a daughter, Susan Gail Bosh; a son-in-law, Glen Gier; a daughter-in-law, Pamela Del Bosh; and a sister-in-law, Joyce Ross. She is also survived by seven grandchildren; 14 great-grandchildren; four grandsons-in-law; a cousin, Ilene Coulter; several nieces and nephews; and numerous friends.

A service will be at 1:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 7, at Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home, 2551 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls. A private inurnment will follow at a later date.

Lee Davenport, WWII Radar Developer, Dies at 95

BY STEPHEN SINGER

Associated Press

HARTFORD, Conn. • Lee Davenport, a physicist who developed a radar device that helped U.S. and allied troops win key battles in World War II, has died. He was 95.

He died Friday of cancer in Greenwich, his daughter, Carol Davenport, said Tuesday.

Davenport was among hundreds of scientists who worked at the secret Massachusetts Institute of Technology Radiation Laboratory, even before America joined the war in 1941, to develop radar systems that would give the U.S. military an edge. He was credited with developing the SCR-584 — the letters standing for Signal Corps Radio — a microwave radar built into a semitrailer with a parabola on top that tracked enemy planes and helped to direct anti-aircraft batteries.

The radar helped to counter the German air force and aided troops who shot down planes during German air attacks on Italy's Anzio beachhead in 1944.

Davenport went to England to waterproof radar semitrailers that were to be floated ashore at Normandy in the D-Day invasion on June 6, 1944. After the landing, he was sent to France to continue developing applications for the radar.

"They issued papers for me to be known as a captain in the Signal Corps," Davenport said in a 2010 interview with the Greenwich Citizen, a weekly newspaper. "I had all the dog tags and identification.

When you are a civilian and are overseas in a war zone, that civilian would need protection, for if he was caught by the enemy for any reason he would be shot as a spy."

A targeting system developed for the SCR-584 would later help Allied pilots target enemy vehicles in snowy conditions at the Battle of the Bulge in Europe.

Carol Davenport recalled simpler technological lessons from her father, an avid collector of antique cars.

"He was insistent that my sister and I learn to change a tire," she said.

Davenport was born on Dec. 31, 1915, in Schenectady, N.Y., where his father worked as a schoolteacher. He graduated from Union College in Schenectady in 1937 and earned a Ph.D. in physics from the University of Pittsburgh based on the work he did at the MIT Radiation Lab.

Union College president Stephen Ainlay said Davenport was an active alumnus who generously counseled young people.

"There are not many alums to begin with who have that connection with history and time with the school," he said. "Until the time of his death, he was very free with his ideas on how to encourage students."

Cook the couscous according to the package directions. When the couscous is tender, use a fork to fluff and separate. Meanwhile, heat the oil in a large (10- to 12-inch) skillet or saute pan over medium heat. Add the garlic; cook for 1 minute, stirring, until just softened but not browned. Add the tomatoes, then season with salt and pepper to taste; cook for 3 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add the chard and white wine; cover and cook for 3 to 4 minutes, until the chard starts to wilt. Uncover, stir and cook for about 3 minutes, until the chard has completely wilted. Reduce the heat to low, cover and cook for 5 minutes, then add the cooked couscous and toss to incorporate. Remove from the heat.

Gently stir in the basil, then taste; adjust the seasoning as needed. Transfer to a serving bowl. Serve warm or at room temperature.

Note: To peel tomatoes, use a small, sharp knife to cut an X in the bottom of each one. Drop them into a large bowl of just-boiled water; let sit for a few minutes. You should see the peel start to curl where the X is. Transfer to a bowl of cold water or let cool, then discard the peel. Cut the peeled tomatoes in half; gently squeeze to release and discard the seed gel in each half.

Drama Levels
Even Out Some in District IV
Soccer

BY DAVID BASHORE
dbashore@magicvalley.com

As has been the case the previous two years in the Class 4A District IV soccer tournaments, all the drama is on the boys side.

Well, almost all the drama.

Twin Falls and Wood River again occupy the top two seeds in the girls tournament, which begins on Thursday, and again the chasm between the top two and everyone else is brutally wide. But unlike last year, both teams can't qualify automatically for the state tournament later this month.

Second place in both the boys and girls tournaments earns a team the unenviable task of playing District III's third team for a berth in the tournament.

"Any of those teams coming through in that district, it's going to be a tough game for us," said Wood River coach Jenni Conrad, whose second-seeded Wolverines are aiming for their eighth district title in a row. "It's a huge incentive to win (the district tournament)."

For the second straight season Wood River tied Twin Falls for the Great Basin Conference title and entered the tournament seeded second by virtue of a coin toss. Last season, the Wolverines won a thrilling 4-3 encounter for the district title.

Conrad noted that both frontrunners have their share of youth on the team, but that it hasn't diminished the sense of expectation that comes with playing soccer for Wood River.

"I think if they really put their minds to it they can do great things, it's just a matter of getting the younger ones up to speed and understanding what this means to the up- perclassmen and the school," she said. "We've been district champions for so long, and there's definitely an expecta- tion to win it"

Twin Falls has zero seniors on the team this season, and with that comes a dangerous sense of wonder at how good the Bruins might be in 2012. It resulted in some bad per- formances earlier in the season, but eventually the team found its form and looks to be hitting its stride at the right time.

"They're finally starting to see that we can be pretty good this year too if we show up to play," said Twin Falls coach Katie Kauffman. "The girls are getting better every game,

GRANDERSON, BURNETT HELP
YANKEES BEAT TIGERS 10-1

ASSOCIATED PRESS

DETROIT • Curtis Granderson made two spectacular catches against his for- mer team and A.J. Burnett came through when the Yankees needed him most, leading New York past the De- troit Tigers 10-1 Tuesday night to send their AL playoff series back to the Bronx for a decisive Game 5.

Derek Jeter rebounded from a game- ending strikeout Monday, putting the Yankees ahead to stay with a two-run double in the third inning. Granderson also had an RBI double and New York broke it open with six runs in the eighth.

"We don't win that game tonight without defense," Burnett said.

Shaky all season, Burnett started on- ly because Game 1 was suspended by rain Friday. He was in trouble in the first after loading the bases on walks but Granderson made a leaping grab of Don Kelly's line drive in center field, pre- venting at least three runs.

Game 5 is Thursday night in New York and rookie right- hander Ivan No- va, who shut down the Tigers in the opener, will start against Doug Fister.

CEU Hoops Coach Barton
Found Dead in Home

BY STEPHEN MEYERS
smeyers@magicvalley.com

Utah State Universi- ty-College of Eastern Utah men's basket- ball coach Brad Barton was found dead in his Price, Utah, apartment Tuesday.

Price police said there was no sign of foul play at the apartment near the college. Barton's body was discovered by an assistant coach who had come to check when he became concerned about not hearing from Barton since Monday, according to the Sun-Advocate in Price, which first reported Barton's death.

The Utah state medical examiner's office is involved in trying to determine the cause of death.

"I'm just shocked right now," said College of Southern Idaho head coach Steve Gosar. "Just shocked. My heart goes out to his family, friends and CEU. It's a very difficult time for them right now. When you have a team, there's such a great relationship between players and coaches, a deep relationship. Something like this is very, very hard to overcome."

Barton, 31, was named permanent head coach in June, after serving as in- terim coach during the 2010-11 season when Chris Craig stepped down before the season. He guided the team to a record of 23-7 with three losses against CSI, including a double- overtime game in Twin Falls last February.

Barton previously served as head as- sistant coach under Craig. Before coming to USU Eastern, Barton was an assistant at Snow College (2008-09), an assistant at Viewmont High School in Utah (06-08) and a student- assistant coach at We- ber State University (04-05).

"I watched him as an assistant at Snow and also as an assistant at CEU and was aware of his background as a pro player," said CSI athletic director Joel Bate. "He was a very bright, tal- ented young man that rose up so quickly because he was a talented young man. CEU and the league lost a good young coach."

Barton played at Weber State from 2000-03, serving as the team's captain his senior year. After college, Barton played in Switzerland's Pro A League for one season.

NBA Talks Break Down Over
Money, Games in Jeopardy

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • Commissioner David Stern floated it as an idea more than a firm proposal: a 50-50 revenue split.

Even so, the union's reply was un- equivocal.

"They said, 'We can't do it.' " ac- cording to Stern.

And with that, the remainder of the preseason was lost and the first two weeks of the regular season moved to the brink of cancellation.

The NBA shelved the rest of its exhi- bition schedule Tuesday and will wipe out the first two weeks of the regular season if there is no labor agreement by Monday.

"We were not able to make the progress that we hoped we could make and we were not able to continue the negotiations," Stern said after nearly four days of talks between owners and players ended without gaining ground on a new deal.

No further meetings are scheduled, making it even more likely the league will lose games to a work stoppage for the first time since 1998-99, when the season was reduced to 50 games.

Stern and Deputy Commissioner

Adam Silver said owners offered play- ers a 50-50 split of basketball-related income. That's below the 57 percent that players were guaranteed under the previous collective bargaining agree- ment, but more than the 47 percent union officials said was formally pro- posed to them.

The only numbers that matter now, however, are the millions that stand to be lost when arenas go dark.

"The damage will be enormous," Silver said.

Players had offered to reduce their BRI guarantee to 53 percent, which they said would have given owners back more than $1 billion over six years. They say they won't cut it fur- ther, at least for now.

And they insist the 50-50 concept wasn't an even split, because it would have come after the league had already deducted $350 million off the top.

With superstars like Kobe Bryant, Paul Pierce and Kevin Garnett stand- ing behind him, union executive direc- tor Billy Hunter said the players' pro- posal would have made up at least $200 million per season — a sizable chunk of the $300 million owners said they lost last season.

innings before turning it over to the bullpen.

“I told you, his stuff is so good that he can shut you down. I thought we hit some balls pretty decent. He wasn’t real sharp early. We had our shot,” Tigers manager Jim Leyland said. “That was a big play in the first inning.”

Granderson was on the Detroit team that went to the World Series in 2006, but the Tigers traded the popular outfielder to the Yankees as part of a three-team deal after the 2009 season. Max Scherzer, a pitcher Detroit received in the deal, left his mark on this series with an impressive Game 2 start. Then it was Granderson’s turn.

After hitting 41 home runs during the regular season to become an MVP contender, Granderson made his biggest impact Tuesday with his glove.

The Yankees didn’t plan to start Burnett in this series, but they didn’t have much of a choice after Game 1 took two days to finish. So they sent the erratic right-hander to the mound, hoping for the best.

“I was thrilled for him, but I was thrilled for us. What he did, 5-2-3 and only giving up that one run, a great performance. Struggled a little bit in the first inning and then really settled down nicely,” manager Joe Girardi said. “I was proud of what he did. In a must-win situation for us, he pitched one of his best games of the year.”

Rangers 4, Rays 3

ST. PETERSBURG, FLA. • This is what Adrian Beltre envisioned when he signed with Texas in the offseason. Balls jumping off his bat in October, the Rangers making another run for the pennant.

Beltre hit three straight home runs and the defending AL champions advanced again, beating the Tampa Bay Rays 4-3 in Game 4 Tuesday to win their playoff matchup.

Beltre put on a power show that few players in major league history have matched, helping Texas take the best-of-five series and ending the Rays’ remarkable run to the wild-card spot. The Rangers next play the Detroit Tigers-New York Yankees winner.

“From my point of view, Texas gave me the best chance to put a ring on my finger,” Beltre added, “and I am just two steps away from it. Hopefully that happens.”

Ian Kinsler led off the game for Texas by homering on the second pitch from rookie Jeremy Hellickson.

Then it was Beltre’s turn. He came into the game in an 1-for-11 slump in this series before breaking loose.

Maybe Beltre’s best day as a pro.

“I think besides my first big league hit, this is right up there,” said the slugger, who spent last season with the Boston Red Sox. He’s back in the postseason for the first time since 2004, when he was with the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Beltre became just the seventh player to homer three times in a postseason game, and the first since Adam Kennedy of the Angels in 2002. Babe Ruth, Reggie Jackson and George Brett also are on the list.

and everyone’s getting healthy again. We’re ready to play and see how it goes.”

While Wood River has been the class of the league for years, Minico is trying to do what it’s never done in the boys tournament: win it.

The Spartans clinched the conference title with two games to spare, and at that point they were unbeaten in conference play.

Minico coach Armando Tapia said the Spartans realize that all eyes are on them, but they aren’t relishing the No. 1 spot. Rather, Minico is focused on the one-game-at-a-time approach in hopes of bringing home the school’s first district soccer title.

Defending district champ Wood River is seeded second, and the Wolverines are the only team to beat Minico in conference play. Burley finished third and Jerome was fourth in a packed middle of the conference table.

Eight of the 30 conference games finished in a tie, an indication of exactly how tightly bunched the teams actually are. But at districts, ties aren’t an option. If the teams can’t be separated after 80 minutes, it’s on to two 10-minute golden-goal periods, followed by penalty kicks if necessary.

With a razor-thin margin, it’s going to be the slightest of lapses that decides who goes to state, who goes to the play-in and who goes home.

“It’s going to come down to penalties and set plays in this tournament,” said Burley coach Wes Nyblade.

Times-News writer Ryan Howe contributed to this report.

FRANCISCO’S HOMER LIFTS PHILLIES PAST CARDINALS

ASSOCIATED PRESS

ST. LOUIS • Pinch-hitter Ben Francisco and closer Ryan Madson made manager Charlie Manuel’s moves look smart, and the Philadelphia Phillies held off the St. Louis Cardinals 3-2 Tuesday for a 2-1 lead in their NL playoff series.

Francisco batted for pitcher Cole Hamels and broke open a scoreless game with a two-out, three-run homer in the seventh inning.

Madson earned his first multi-inning save of the year. He came in and got Allen Craig to sharply ground into a double play with the bases loaded to escape in the eighth, then worked around Yadier Molina’s RBI single in the ninth.

The Phillies, favored to win it all after a franchise-record 102-win season, can finish off the wild-card Cardinals in Game 4 today, with Roy Oswalt opposing Edwin Jackson.

Francisco’s shot off Cardinals starter Jaime Garcia was only his second hit in 19 at-bats in the postseason.

“I knew the way the game was going I was probably going to be in there to pinch-hit off a lefty,” Francisco said. “Got up there with a runner in scoring position, I was just trying to get a hit up the middle and he left one up and luckily it got out of here.”

Hamels struck out eight in six scoreless innings. He’s a franchise-best 7-4 in the postseason with a 3.09 ERA.

The Cardinals frustrated a season-high crowd of 46,914, stranding 14 runners. They set a National League record with 169 double play balls.

Albert Pujols and Ryan Theriot had four hits apiece for St. Louis, the heavy underdog wild-card winners who had runners in scoring position in six innings. They came up empty despite three hits in the eighth, including a pinch-hit single by Matt Holliday in only his second ap-

Cutthroats Don’t Let Up, Beat Filer 1-0

TIMES-NEWS

Will Brokaw scored the game’s lone goal in the 55th minute and the Cutthroats (9-2-2, 9-1-1) came back from a league title-clinching victory the day before to squeak out a victory against Filer, 1-0.

“They still wanted to win, which was encouraging,” Community School coach Richard Whitelaw said. “And Filer had 11 seniors and they wanted to win, too. Our boys were a bit tired from last night but we hung on and prevailed.”

Tom Crosby earned the shutout with four saves.

BUHL 6, DECLO 0

Buhl held a 5-0 lead at the half and got goals from six different players, Edgar Arizmendi, Patrick Arroyo, Eddie Verdusco, Julian Staubli, Juan Parra and Pablo Serrano in the High Desert Soccer Conference road win.

Hanna Dies and Hailey Rheinschild had assists for Community School, which improved to 10-4-1 overall, 9-2-1 High Desert Conference. Filer’s goal came as Lidya Guevara scored on a header of a corner kick by Alyssa Lekkerkerk.

BUHL 3, DECLO 1

The Indians moved to 10-1-3 overall and 9-1-1 with the High Desert Soccer Conference road win. Skylar Barger scored the first Buhl goal in the opening half. Jessica Cuevas scored the equalizer for the Hornets in the second half but goals by Shelby Holladay and Ruth Loza gave the Indians the victory.

Missouri Curators Vote to Explore Leaving Big 12

ASSOCIATED PRESS

ST. LOUIS • It wasn't too long ago that Missouri chancellor Brady Deaton spoke of "working every day to hold the Big 12 together." Now he's been tasked with helping decide whether the Tigers are the latest program to leave a troubled conference fighting for its future.

University curators voted unanimously Tuesday night to consider leaving the Big 12 in stead of committing to the league for the long term. The governing board's members agreed unanimously after a 4-hour closed meeting at the system's St. Louis campus to give Deaton authority to look elsewhere, specifically "any and all actions necessary to fully explore options on conference affiliation ... which best serve the (school's) interest."

And Deaton, the conference's public face through its recent turmoil, is resigning as chairman of the Big 12's board of directors to avoid the obvious conflict of interest.

Just one day earlier, the conference announced that presidents and chancellors of the remaining nine members — including Deaton — had agreed to equal revenue sharing and to seek approval from each university to hand over the most lucrative television rights to the conference for six years.

Now it looks as if the Big 12 might be losing two members for the second straight year.

"The University of Missouri is a member in good standing in the Big 12 Conference, and I anticipate the University will continue to be a member of the Big 12," interim Big 12 Commissioner Chuck Neinas said in a statement released soon after Missouri announced its intentions.

One year ago, Nebraska defected from the Big 12 to the Big Ten, with Colorado also leaving for what is now the Pac-12.

"What brings us here tonight is that the Big 12 Conference is now requesting that its members make binding, long-term irrevocable commitments to the conference," said Steve Owens, interim president of the four-campus University of Missouri system. "We don't fault the Big 12 Conference. It is something it should be doing in order to promote stability."

Speculation has centered on a possible Missouri move to the Southeastern Conference, which recently agreed to accept Texas A&M from the Big 12 starting next year.

Deaton declined to specifically answer a reporter's question about interest in the SEC on either the school's part or the other conference. He said there is no timetable for the decision, whether a self-imposed deadline or a Big 12 loyalty demand.

Addresses the effective date, closed years or issues, and transactions before an effective date of the rules in this chapter; conforms to changes to the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act; amends rule so exemption for income earned on an Indian reservation matches the federal law; adjusts the tax brackets for 2011; removes information related to the standard deduction for tax year 1999; clarifies that real property must be held 12 months to qualify as required by law; addresses when interest and dividend income is received by a part-year resident; addresses the sourcing of guaranteed payments and distributions in excess of basis that a nonresident individual partner would report to Idaho; changes when a nonresident is ineligible to elect to have a pass-through entity pay his tax on such income; addresses the amount of a suspended passive activity loss a part-year resident is allowed to deduct on their Idaho return; provides more information on what constitutes an Idaho work day; clarifies what qualifies as investment income for nonresidents; addresses how the receipts from stock sales in another corporation will be sourced for purposes of the sales factor numerator when it represents the sale of operational assets of a business; corrects the types of contributions that qualify for the credit; addresses how the investment tax credit may be shared in the year a corporation with ITC is acquired; revises the income tax credit allowed for qualifying new employees; modifies the base on which backup withholding is computed from actual distributions to distributive or pro rata income; provides individuals with additional time to receive a refund of withholding if they receive a filing extension.

35-0102-1101, Sales Tax Administrative Rules. Exempts all gratuities, whether voluntary or mandatory, if the gratuity is given for services provided as a supplement to the income of the service provider; exempts the use of motor vehicles by nonresident college students in the state of Idaho; clarifies where in rule the Red Cross's sales and use tax responsibility should be addressed; establishes that the state of Idaho cannot require the federal government or its instrumentalities to collect sales tax on any sales and that the Red Cross is an instrumentality of the federal government for purposes of sales and use tax; addresses the altered appearance of the diplomatic exemption card system; exempts the use of motor vehicles by nonresident college students in Idaho; exempts all purchases made by temporarily assigned military personnel more than 90 days prior to moving to Idaho; amends definition of a nonresident company to say that it is not required to be registered with the Idaho Secretary of State; changes the definition of "currency operated amusement devices" to included credit and debit card machines, changes requirement from a specific location on the device to any easily visible place on the device, and requires another permit to be affixed to a device in the event of a lost, stolen, or destroyed permit.

35-0105-1101, Idaho Motor Fuels Tax Administrative Rules. Amends a provision to provide the Tax Commission greater flexibility when determining whether a fuel distributor's bond exemption should be terminated because the fuel distributor is no longer financially responsible.

35-0107-1101, Kilowatt Hour Tax Administrative Rules. Makes the change from monthly to quarterly filing of the kilowatt hour tax return discretionary, subject to Tax Commission approval.

35-0108-1101, Mine License Tax Administrative Rules. Includes additional examples of what constitutes a valuable mineral typically found in Idaho that is subject to the mine license tax.

35-0201-1101, Tax Commission Administration and Enforcement Rules. Adds the interest rate and applicable Revenue Ruling for calendar year 2012 to the table that identifies this information by year; provides an exchange of information agreement between the Tax Commission and the State Treasurer; adds the applicable code section to the title of the rule and the information that may be exchanged with the State Treasurer's office in the applicable subsection.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

*"We ne'er can be Made happy by compulsion."
— Samuel Taylor Coleridge*

In today's deal your partner's jump to five spades is specifically looking for a control in the danger suit, hearts. Had one of you cue-bid hearts to show a control there, a jump to five spades would have asked about trump. Here, with the heart ace, you can simply bid slam if minimum, or cue-bid hearts to suggest first-round control with extras and interest in a grand slam.

On West's lead of a singleton heart, the only real danger is a bad trump break or a very bad diamond break. After winning the heart ace, which trump honors should you play? The answer is that you must cash dummy's spade ace and queen. Then, after unblocking the diamond honors, you can cross to hand with a club if trumps have not broken, and lead a low diamond from hand.

If West, the hand long in spades, has three or four diamonds, you simply ruff, come back to hand while drawing the last trump, then run the diamonds and concede trick 13. If West has only two diamonds, what can he do? If he discards, you ruff in dummy and make the same 12 tricks as in the previous line. If he ruffs high, you pitch a heart from dummy, then arrange to regain the lead, draw the last trump, and pitch both of dummy's remaining hearts on your two winning diamonds. You can now ruff your last heart in dummy for your 12th trick.

ANSWER: The bid of two clubs is the fourth suit, setting up a game-forcing auction and asking you to describe your hand further. With a weak diamond suit and only two hearts, you do not want to emphasize either of those features in your hand. Better is to bid two no-trump; partner will have room to repeat his hearts or show support for one of your suits now — if he wants to.

DEAR ABBY: I met my husband, "Jerome," two years ago. During our courtship, he helped me to find faith. Because of that, I wanted a completely honest relationship with him and confessed to a "less than moral" experience that occurred several years before I met him. Apparently he was able to accept it, because he proposed and we have been married for several months.

Recently, however, Jerome has been saying it's bothering him and he doesn't know how to let it go. I'm angry and hurt that something that happened long ago is now causing problems in my marriage. It has made me question why I was honest with him.

I'm afraid Jerome will never forgive me. He says he feels as though he has to compete with my past and doesn't feel he can live up to it. How do I tackle this problem? I can't change my past, I can't take back what I told him, and I can't do anything to change my husband. Please help.

— HAUNTED BY THE PAST

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR HAUNTED: First, stop apologizing. You are the sum total of all your experiences, and that's the woman he married. Tell your husband you will not accept anything less than marriage counseling NOW. He knows about your "experience" because you leveled with him. Make it clear that this isn't a contest, and he's all you want in a man. If he can't accept it, there is no basis for a marriage, and frankly, little hope for a future together.

DEAR ABBY: I have been invited to a wedding. The invitation included explicit instructions on what is appropriate attire. Ladies are "not to wear anything tight or revealing, or that doesn't cover chest, back, knees and shoulders." One of my friends said she wouldn't go to such a wedding. Another said, "I don't own anything that meets their dress code."

We are all three mature women who have always dressed conservatively. What's your take on this? Am I right to feel insulted?

— CLOTHING-CHALLENGED IN OREGON

DEAR CLOTHING-CHALLENGED: Not necessarily. It's possible that the house of worship where the wedding will be held — as well as the families involved — may be conservative or orthodox, which is why the women are being asked to cover themselves. If you feel the dress code is too much of an imposition, you should politely decline the invitation.

DEAR ABBY: My granddaughter, who is 18, had a child last year. She kept the baby and dropped out of school. She is now working and has returned to school to get her GED. My husband has always loved her and helps her financially.

My problem is she has twice stolen from a fund I keep for our church. Although she is the only one who could have done it, my husband refuses to believe it. I now insist on locking everything up.

Abby, if she had asked for the money either time, her grandfather would have given it to her. I think she gets an adrenaline rush from stealing. What can I do about this?

— AT A LOSS IN SOUTH CAROLINA

DEAR AT A LOSS: Where are your granddaughter's parents? Are they aware of what has been going on? If not, please inform them because if she's stealing from you for the adrenaline rush, she is probably also doing it elsewhere. Someone needs to see that the girl receives counseling before her behavior lands her in serious trouble. And in the meantime, she should not be left alone in your home.

IF OCTOBER 5 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Hone in on what's most helpful. Your ambitions can be tweaked between now and Christmas, but you won't make your mark unless you use logic to analyze the numbers. Luck won't be a factor in any progress you make. After the first of the year, concentrate on romance and relationships, but don't mix business with pleasure. Your business smarts will fly right out the window when love or emotions are in play. Next July and August are the most favorable months for you to make crucial decisions, promises, commitments and changes.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Get motivated. No project is going to take care of itself, so it's time to jump in and get the ball rolling. If you find that you have painted yourself into a corner, use your instincts to get out of it gracefully.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Don't pass up a chance to enhance your reputation. Being around the right people at the right time could make all the difference to your future. It is an excellent time for forming new alliances and agreements.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Step out for a breath of fresh air. Twisting your brain in knots over a problem is a waste of time. When things seem impossible, step away, clear your head and you may see things from a new perspective.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Knowledge is golden. There is no such thing as bad knowledge; it is how you use knowledge that makes the difference. Education will broaden your outlook and reach goals that were previously unattainable.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): It's not bragging if you can back it up. Your star power is growing and you should not be shy about showing off. It took a lot of hard work to get to this point, now you should enjoy the spoils of your success.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Out with the old, in with the new. It's time to break down and replace what's outdated. The change should be effortless provided that you can keep an open mind. Make key purchases.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Go with the flow. Your liberal nature can come to light. You may benefit from keeping an open mind and experimenting with new methods and routines. There's nothing wrong with being different.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Have it your way. You've spent enough time trying to appease other people's interests, now it is time for you to indulge yourself a little. Treat yourself to an exciting new experience or extravagant gift.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Keep up appearances. If all your friends are showing off their fancy new duds, it may be time for you to acquire some yourself. Finding a new hobby or interest could be just what the doctor ordered.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Preach to a receptive congregation. Certain people will be willing to hear what you have to say. It is a good time for formulating new strategies, creating new alliances, and making new contacts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Don't hold a short leash. Give your partner plenty of space to do his or her own thing. Calling, emailing or texting every few minutes, demanding to know their whereabouts will not be received well.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Think outside the box. Conventional wisdom does not suit you today. You are at your best when making innovative, creative and perhaps even off the wall ideas. Let a special someone give you a special treat.

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

Simplot Project in Boise May Take Big Leap This Spring

BY CYNTHIA SEWELL
Idaho Statesman

BOISE • In order to get the Jack's Urban Meeting Place — better known as JUMP — project moving, the Simplot family will build the underground parking garage first.

JUMP project manager Mark Bowen told the Boise Planning Commission he plans to start demolishing an old warehouse on the property by the end of the year and start garage construction in the spring.

Why 2 Phases?

The basic idea is to get the garage permitted and construction started while the Simplots go through the design and permitting phase for the building, which will be more involved and time-consuming.

There is no timetable yet for that second phase.

What is JUMP?

Located between 9th, 11th, Myrtle and Front streets, it's intended to be an arts center, meeting space and memorial to Idaho's billionaire entrepreneur, J.R. Simplot. The family announced its plans in May 2009, a year after Simplot's death at age 99.

JUMP is designed as a celebration of Idaho's agriculture heritage with modern-day twists. The project would include an eight-story building with meeting space, offices and artist studios, and a six-acre park.

A Backup Plan, With a Backup Plan

The city and the Simplots agreed that the area above the parking lot would be developed as an interim park — grass, trees and lighting — if construction on the building is delayed or halted.

That way the city would not be left with a vacant construction site as it was with the failed Boise Tower.

The commission gave the Simplots one year after the garage is finished to get the permit for Phase 2 before it has to build the interim park.

The commission also required the Simplots to post a bond that will guarantee that the temporary park will be built should there be obstacles or delays.

How Much Will it Cost?

There's no estimate on the project; earlier estimates of $90 million or $70 million were preliminary, and the Simplots are waiting to make any more estimates until they have solid building design and construction costs.

Why a Parking Garage?

The underground parking garage will include 477 parking spaces and 50 bicycle parking spaces.

The garage would be used by the Simplot Co., which has its headquarters nearby in downtown.

Snafu Forces N. Idaho Mayor to Run as Write-in Candidate

BY CAMERON RASMUSSEN
Bonner County Daily Bee

DOVER • Incumbent Dover Mayor Randy Curless' road to reelection will be rockier than expected after an error in his candidacy paperwork barred him from the ballot.

Curless will be running as a write-in candidate in the November city elections after a problematic signature of support, which listed a post office box instead of a street address, invalidated his paperwork.

"I don't have any problems (with the decision)," Curless said. "Everyone is just doing their jobs like we expect them to."

According to Curless, the signature and address was simply an oversight that caught him by surprise. He had been unaware that the signatures of support required a home address for validity. The county's rejection of his paperwork coincided with a trip to Great Britain, complicating matters even further.

"We just thought, 'Well, here's something to deal with when we get back,'" Curless said.

Due to the Sept. 9 deadline to appear on the ballot, Curless has decided to continue his campaign as a write-in candidate.

Although he said that the development is a setback, it would be much worse news in a different kind of community. The small size and tight-knit nature of Dover should lessen the impact, Curless said.

"I've been around long enough that most people know me here," he added.

If he were running unopposed, his rejected candidacy papers would be less of an issue. However, resident Jason Funk is also running for the Dover mayorship and will be appearing on the ballot.

Aside from Funk, the only other name on the Dover ballot will be Marguerite Burge, a candidate for a four-year seat on the City Council.

Curless said that he aims to overcome the hitch in his campaign by simply keeping the public aware of his candidacy.

Although he hasn't yet defined his specific strategies to remind people that he's seeking reelection, Curless said that he intends to remind Dover residents that he is an option whether he appears on the ballot or not.

DEQ Seeks Comment on Proposed Temperature Plans for South-central Idaho Water Bodies

The Idaho Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ) is seeking public comment on proposed water quality improvement plans to address temperature in Cassia Creek in the Raft River Subbasin and in upper Goose Creek and Trout Creek in the Goose Creek Subbasin.

The subbasins are located in south-central Idaho, south of Burley.

Temperature is a key factor in the health of fish and other coldwater organisms. Analyses of water quality data demonstrated that temperatures are above recommended levels in Cassia, upper Goose, and Trout creeks due to lack of shade.

The plans propose to establish Total Maximum Daily Loads (TMDLs) designed to lower water temperatures by increasing vegetation, bring the creeks into compliance with state water quality standards, and restore them to conditions supporting their beneficial uses, which include cold water aquatic life and salmonid spawning.

The documents, entitled Cassia Creek Temperature Total Maximum Daily Load Addendum and Goose Creek Subbasin Temperature Total Maximum Daily Loads Addendum, are available for review at DEQ's Twin Falls Regional Office and on DEQ's website at www.deq.idaho.gov/public-comment-opportunities.

Submit written comments by 5 p.m. MDT, Friday, November 4, 2011, on DEQ's website or by mail or email to:

No Cause Found in House Fire That Injured Woman

IDAHO STATESMAN

BOISE • Investigators still have not determined the cause of a house fire Monday on the 4700 block of Bloom Street, near Collister Drive.

There is no evidence the fire is suspicious, according to a release from the Boise Fire Department. The fire started in a front bedroom, but the rest of the house was heavily damaged by heat, smoke and water.

The fire sent one woman to the hospital with what appeared to be life-threatening injuries caused by smoke inhalation. She was unconscious when firefighters found her.

Firefighter paramedics performed lifesaving techniques on the woman, who regained a pulse. She was transported to a Boise hospital. Officials did not know the woman's condition Tuesday.

Firefighters were called by neighbors who saw smoke coming from the house at 4:56 p.m. Monday. Neighbors were trying to extinguish the flames.

Woman Charged With Arson in Apartment Fire

IDAHO STATESMAN

MOUNTAIN HOME • A 52-year-old woman has been charged with first-degree arson in connection with an apartment complex fire Thursday in Mountain Home, according to the Elmore County Sheriff's Office.

Sherry Scott was arrested Friday and arraigned Monday. She is being held at the Elmore County Jail.

The apartment fire was reported at 8:47 p.m. at 411

Bradford St., Mountain Home.

No one was injured in the fire. But it caused extensive damage in Scott's apartment and some damage to another apartment in the one-story, five-unit complex, Elmore County Sheriff's Detective Clint Andrus said.

Andrus said the fire started outside Scott's apartment. The detective said he couldn't talk about a motive for the crime because the investigation is ongoing.
