2 Acres Going to Man's Best Friend?

Dog group, Twin Falls city and county officials hashing out early details of potential off-leash dog park in southeastern Twin Falls.

BY BEN BOTKIN

Man's best friend loves to run. In Twin Falls, that can pose a challenge to dog lovers and their wet-nosed pals. While welcome in city parks, dogs must remain leashed, unable to run to their heart's content.

That could change if an effort to start a dog park in Twin Falls proves successful. The Magic Valley Canine Social Club, an informal group that gathers to walk and exercise dogs, is talking with the Twin Falls Parks and Recreation Department about building a dog park in Twin Falls.

Dog parks have been gaining popularity in recent years and provide large, fenced areas for canines to run. In Boise, there are four designed off-leash dog areas, including parks and trails. They are the result of a task force that started looking into the potential parks in 2001.

In Twin Falls, such a park is far from a certainty, as discussions are still preliminary. Steve Vawser, a member of the canine club, talked with Twin Falls County commissioners this week about a possible site on county-owned land near the Snake River Juvenile

The Deep, Universal Impact of Jobless Statistics

Unemployment has been stuck near 9 percent since the recession ended more than two years ago. The jobs report for September sent a clear signal that the crisis will last through next year's elections. Among those hurt are people forced to work part-time and those who've given up looking for work. Count many people with jobs, too. Their pay, home values and employment prospects have been diminished by the lack of good-paying, full-time work.

Here's a look at the wide-ranging consequences of chronically weak job growth.

WAGES: A crippled labor market shifts bargaining power to employers. Workers have little leverage to seek raises. When adjusted for inflation, pay was nearly 2 percent less in August than it was a year earlier, according to the Labor Department.

GOVERNMENT BUDGETS: The federal government's tax collections this year are expected to fall to the lowest level since 1950 as a percentage of the economy. A record 1 in 8 Americans are receiving food stamps. Enrollment in Social Security's disability program has shot up by more than 1 million people, or nearly 16 percent, since the recession struck in 2007.

YOUNG PEOPLE: To find work, new college graduates have to settle for lower pay and jobs that don't require a bachelor's degree. That's painful for those who took on big debts to pay for their education. College grads hired in 2009 and 2010 earned 10 percent less than those who found jobs in 2006 and 2007, Rutgers researchers found.

THE UNDEREMPLOYED AND THE HOPELESS: In September, 9.3 million Americans had to settle for part-time work even though they wanted full-time jobs. That was up 440,000 from August. An additional 2.5 million want to work but have given up looking. Add those part-timers to the workforce dropouts and the unemployed and nearly 16.5 percent, of working-age Americans want full-time work and can't find it.

BABY BOOMERS: When aging boomers lose their jobs, they have a tough time finding new ones. In a survey of the unemployed, the Rutgers researchers found that 80 percent of those older than 50 have been out of work for more than a year. Many have drained their retirement savings and lack health insurance. Nearly half plan to apply for Social Security benefits earlier than they had intended to.

Lost Hunters Spend Cold Night Outdoors

TIMES-NEWS

Two hunters who lost track of their party Thursday were found about 24 hours later after spending a cold night in southeast Twin Falls County.

Elmer Freeman, 50, of Twin Falls, and Matthew Freeman, 28, of Kimberly, appeared to be in good shape when search and rescue personnel found them at about 2:20 p.m. Friday, said Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office spokeswoman Lori Stewart.

The Freemans were hunting Thursday with another family member when they became separated. Before they were rescued, they were last seen at 2:30 p.m. Thursday in the area of Indian Springs Road and Rogerson Road, Stewart said.

Search and rescue teams went to look for the men at about 8:30 a.m. Friday. The area got about six inches of snow and rain overnight, along with fog and cold temperatures.

"So I'm sure they had a miserable night," Stewart said.

But, she said shortly after 3 p.m., the hunters were found conscious, walking and apparently in good shape.

Big Payday for Idaho's Short-term Lenders

The sight has become more common than ever for Idaho's storefronts — including those in the Magic Valley. Brightly colored signs offer passersby the promise of quick cash to make ends meet before payday. Thirteen payday lending stores operate in Twin Falls alone, with 10 of them lining the city's well-traveled Blue Lakes Boulevard. Licensed payday lending operations in Idaho have multiplied by 37.6 percent since 2002, according to the Idaho Department of Finance.

T.F. Cemetery Seeks Simple Reminders

New foundation seeks to provide headstones for what could be as many as 800 unmarked children's graves in the Twin Falls Cemetery.

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

Most Twin Falls Cemetery graves are marked by a headstone to memorialize the life of the person buried there. But that's not the case for everyone.

Over the past century, many local children were buried without grave markers, leaving their identities unacknowledged. It's a sad reality that spurred cemetery owner Rick Muse and Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home owner Mike Parke to action.

Parke and Muse recently formed a nonprofit group, the Angels in Heaven Foundation, with the goal of providing simple markers for the cemetery's unmarked graves of children ages 12 or younger.

They're starting the project in the Twin Falls Cemetery and hope to ex-

"We want every child's grave in Idaho to be marked," Parke said.

The idea for the foundation came about a few years ago when Parke was listening to a local radio station and heard about a young girl who wanted to use her savings to buy a gravestone for a child who died.

"Children shouldn't have to use their piggy bank money for grave-stones," he said, so the funeral home

Vaccination, Sanitation Important in Staying Flu-free

How can I avoid catching the flu?
— Mike, Jerome

Answered by Dr. Trevor Satterfield, St. Luke's Clinic, Family Medicine:

Anyone can get the flu, but those especially vulnerable are young children, older adults, and people with weakened immune systems or chronic illnesses. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, as many as 36,000 Americans die each year and more than 200,000 are hospitalized due to the flu.

The flu is a viral infection that attacks the respiratory system, including your nose, throat, bronchial tubes and lungs. Flu viruses are constantly changing, with new strains appearing each year, so last year's antibodies won't protect you from this year's strain.

However, you can protect yourself with a flu vaccination, which can reduce your chance of infection and help prevent serious complications if you do get sick. Most vaccinations are delivered by an injection, although a nasal spray — called FluMist — is also available. Ask your health care provider which is right for you, and which is right for your child. In general, healthy children over six months can receive the shot and over two years can receive the nasal spray. Flu vaccines are available from your doctor, and at public health centers, pharmacies, senior and community centers, and supermarkets.

You can also prevent flu through frequent and vigorous hand washing. Use soap and water or a hand sanitizer, and avoid touching your mouth, nose, or eyes. Always wash your hands after using the bathroom; after changing diapers; and after coughing, sneezing, blowing your nose, or wiping your child's nose. Help and teach your child to wash his or her hands.

It's also important to follow "respiratory etiquette." Cough or sneeze into your sleeve to keep germs off your hands and avoid spreading them to others. Use a tissue if you cough or sneeze into your hands or when blowing or wiping your nose, and quickly dispose of used tissues.

Keep your immune system strong by eating a balanced diet of fresh fruits and vegetables, whole grains, and lean protein; exercising regularly; and getting plenty of sleep. If possible, limit air travel and avoid crowds during flu season. Regularly clean your phone, computer keyboard and mouse, countertops, and child's toys with disinfectant sprays or wipes.

And if you do get sick — stay home. Don't expose others to your germs.

Muse estimates there are as many as 800 unmarked children's graves in the Twin Falls Cemetery, some of which date as far back as 1907.

"It's sad to have that many unmarked graves," he said.

Parke and Muse have records of all the children's identities, as well as their dates of birth and death, but most of their families couldn't afford to buy a grave marker. Such markers aren't cheap and can range in price from a few hundred dollars on up.

Parke and Muse are working with Memorial Monuments, a company that's selling a small brick marker with the name of each child, their dates and a small emblem for a wholesale price.

Parke estimates it would cost about $20,000 to provide a marker for every unmarked child's grave in the Twin Falls Cemetery.

As a starting point for the project, they're looking at one children's section that has 398 graves. About 270 of those are unmarked.

"We are planning to start with the blocks with the most children," Parke said.

The foundation has been working to get an accurate number of unmarked children's graves at the cemetery, but it hasn't been easy. The task requires walking through the cemetery and making a note of each child's grave.

The foundation also hopes to raise about $20,000, the estimated cost to provide a simple marker for each unmarked child's grave. By Memorial Day, the goal is to have volunteers set markers on 100-200 graves.

"I don't think it will be too hard to attain," Parke said.

Two Burley Men Face Felony Charges for Separate Allegations of Violence

BY LAURIE WELCH
lwelch@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • Two Burley men face felony charges after separate alleged incidents of September violence.

Keith David Hall and Steven R. Thomas are both scheduled to be arraigned at 9 a.m. Oct. 18 after they were arrested last month on allegations that they attacked others.

Hall allegedly used sword in attack • Hall, 19, was arrested after an alleged Sept. 4 rampage at a Burley home where witnesses say he swung a 2 1/2-foot sword at another man. He's charged with aggravated battery, use of a deadly weapon in the commission of a felony, and misdemeanor battery.

The battery charge stems from allegations that Hall also hit a female with the seat of a broken chair, causing her to fall down. He has pleaded not guilty to that charge, but has yet to plead to the felony allegations.

Police say Thomas resisted traffic stop • Thomas, 21, is charged with two counts of aggravated assault for allegedly trying to hit two county sheriff's deputies who attempted to pull his vehicle over on Sept. 16.

He's also charged with attempting to elude police officers in a motor vehicle, resisting or obstructing officers and misdemeanor driving under the influence. Thomas has not entered a plea on the charges.

According to the criminal complaint, two deputies attempted to stop Thomas on East 22nd Street in Burley. When the deputies approached his vehicle on foot, they say Thomas initially slowed before accelerating toward them.

JEROME PAUSES ON WASTEWATER DEBT

TIMES-NEWS

The city of Jerome is no longer pursuing a judge's permission to take on long-term debt for upgrades to its wastewater system.

Earlier this year, the city said it needed to improve its sewer system or it would face fines from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. The upgrades were estimated to cost more than $3 million.

The EPA pressure came after several years of on-and-off issues the city had with capacity and keeping within its wastewater permit, punctuated by an incident that overloaded its system early this year.

City officials began the process to secure a judge's permission to go into debt for the work. But those plans are now on hold — the city is now arranging a third-party study on what officially went wrong early this year, said John Shine, Jerome's mayor.

"We haven't clearly defined the problem," he said. "We're still not sure what caused the issue this spring."

The story so far has been that a dairy processor — there are three such large facilities within Jerome — had "an unfortunate incident" on Dec. 30, 2010, releasing a large amount of calcium, proteins and fat that gummed up filters in the city wastewater plant.

The city has not identified a business responsible for the incident. Former City Administrator Ben Marchant said in February that only one of the dairy processors was connected to the problem sewer line, but noted there could have been other sources of the material.

Detention Center in southeast Twin Falls.

"Dogs need exercise," said Vawser, who has two dogs. "We need to get them to be able to run and play"

If the county and city reach an agreement, the 2 acre patch could be leased by Twin Falls and turned into a dog park operated by the city's parks department. Terry Kramer, a county commissioner, said leasing the land to the city for a nominal fee is a possibility, though more discussions are needed.

Dennis Bowyer, director of the city's parks and recreation department, said the site could work, adding that it's too soon to say if it will become a reality.

"There's a potential because you don't have hardly any houses out there," he said.

The city and users of the dog park would need to plan details like where money would come from for fencing and turning the weedy, undeveloped area into a park. An upkeep plan would also be needed.

Vawser said the work would be worthwhile to provide a place in Twin Falls for dogs to run. Currently, he said, it's necessary for dog owners to travel out of town to public U.S. Bureau of Land Management areas to get their pets some heavy-duty exercise.

"They get some exercise out and they're a million times better," he said.

Study: Makeup Beneficial in Social, Workplace Interactions

While beauty may only be skin deep, a recent study says women who wear makeup are seen in a more favorable light.

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

It can be a challenge getting people to like you, but it turns out that makeup may help.

According to a recent study, women who wear makeup are more likely to be considered likeable, attractive and competent.

Researchers at Proctor & Gamble, Massachusetts General Hospital, Harvard Medical School, Boston University and Dana-Farber Cancer Institute found that professionally applied makeup can have an instant and lasting affect on other people's judgment of a person.

The study's results show that makeup could improve a person's social interactions and chances of gaining employment.

Jessica Richmond, an employment recruiter for Intelligent Employment Solutions in Twin Falls, says she has seen poorly applied makeup damage the outcome of a job interview.

Of course, no matter how good a job applicant looks, an interview can still be upended by the sounds that come out of a well cared-for face. Makeup may help give off a first impression, but the majority of the success of an interview rests on the applicants, Richmond said.

"Appearance is important but you have to have experience," she said. "If you're not qualified for the position then you're probably not going to get the job."

According to the study, the longer people stared at a woman wearing professional makeup, the more likely they were to trust her. Researchers concluded that cosmetics have a significant impact on automatic and deliberative judgments.

"Beauty has a significant positive effect on judgment of competence, a universal dimension of social cognition," the report concluded.

While makeup may help in some situations, the results of the study should be taken with a grain of salt, said Kate Woods, Career and Counseling Service coordinator for the College of Southern Idaho.

Woods doesn't recommend to women that they must wear makeup during an interview, but she does say that all job applicants should pay attention to their appearance.

"Wear makeup applicable for the job," she said. "Probably the position that has the most sensitivity is a receptionist. They become the face of the company, but it'll depend on the employer what they prefer."

Wendell Mayor Defends Board Appointment Delay

Ethnicity not a factor for not moving on library board appointment, says mayor.

BY BLAIR KOCH
For the Times-News

WENDELL • Race hasn't factored into a delay appointing a new member to the Wendell city library board, Mayor Brad Christopherson said at a City Council meeting Thursday.

The five-seat board currently has two vacancies. The city does have a candidate for one of those empty seats: Octavio Saldona, a counselor for the Wendell middle and elementary schools who is Hispanic.

Christopherson said Thursday that he's holding off on appointing Saldona until he has someone to fill the second empty seat. Otherwise, a resulting four-member board would have no recourse to break tie votes.

"That's no way for a board to operate," City Attorney Calvin Campbell said after the meeting, agreeing with the mayor.

Regarding the accusations that race plays a role, Christopherson told those in attendance Thursday he felt compelled to "squash that rumor right here and right now."

"When you hear it from multiple people downtown you know you have to take a stand and do something about it," Christopherson said after the meeting.

This latest announcement will likely do little to calm the ongoing drama surrounding the Sherman Smith Memorial Library board, which has been in turmoil since early this year.

Multiple members of the board have resigned and a new library director was just recently hired, replacing a former director who had had conflicts with the board. During a September council meeting, Councilman and library board liaison Kent Bates lamented the challenge of finding new board members, as people didn't want to volunteer until the existing board is replaced.

However, a move by the City Council to do just that in July fell flat, with the council split on removing three board members from their posts.

"I want to move forward but have no comment about this latest issue," said Bates. "However, before all of this occurred with the library board it did operate as a five-member board and that is how I believe it should operate again."

New Redistricting Panel Hears From Eastern Side of State

BY JOSEPH LAW

Rexburg Standard Journal

IDAHO FALLS • An entirely new legislative redistricting panel heard from a number eastern Idaho residents Wednesday as the group hit the ground running.

A meeting Wednesday evening in the Idaho Falls City Council Chambers was eastern Idaho's chance to comment on the process, and almost every seat was filled.

Because the previous panel recently failed to reach a consensus on redrawing the state's political boundaries within the 90 day designated period, the process was stalled.

After the Idaho Supreme Court rejected an appeal by Secretary of State Ben Ysursa and GOP commissioners Lou Esposito, Lorna Finman and Evan Frasure to reconvene the commission, a new panel was picked in mid-September, again following the guidelines of Idaho law.

The new commission members say they are committed to reaching solutions in fairly balancing populations of Idaho's 35 legislative districts.

"We have some pretty good guidelines to start with, and we're committed to work together," said Dolores Crow, co-chairwoman. "We want what's best for Idaho."

As the new six-member panel heard from the community, each resident choosing to speak was given a chance, followed by an opportunity for questioning by the commission after the person's comments.

Citizen discussion covered many issues including choosing boundary lines that are not likely to change frequently, linking communities that have the common concerns and interests and ensuring that the boundaries are fair.

"Winning isn't fun when it's not fair," said Rebecca Casper of Idaho Falls.

She said the cynicism that creeps in if people suspect bias will breed mistrust.

Many expressed a desire for the status quo, and much of that stemmed from identification of common interests with counties and regional groupings that are currently linked.

However, some sought change because of current linkage of some areas now linked that are widely separated by geography that can make communication difficult.

Many seemed heartened to be able to be part of the political process that helps determine voters' representatives.

"I'm not a Republican, I'm not a Democrat — I'm that entity called an independent voter," said Mary Ellen McFarland. "And I've also felt like for 40 years I haven't really had a voice until recently. But now I think we're kind of getting one. I'm starting to be really interested in the process. I'm interested in listening to this tonight. ...Now I am confident that you are not going to be playing partisan politics."

Crow thanked those who participated in the meeting.

"This is what America is all about, and this is the best part of America," she said.

For more information about the way the commission is selected, upcoming public meetings and other redistricting information go to www.legislature.idaho.gov/redistricting/about.htm and click on redistricting guidelines.

Idaho Man Accused of Tying Up Boy With Asperger's

ASSOCIATED PRESS

SANDPOINT • A northern Idaho man accused of tying up a 12-year-old boy with Asperger's syndrome will be arraigned on a felony next month.

Shane Lee Crawford, 37, has waived his right to a preliminary hearing earlier this week and the case was bound over to Idaho's 1st District Court. He is expected to be arraigned Nov. 7 on a felony charge of injury to a child, the Bonner County Daily Bee reports (<http://bit.ly/nlskKK>).

According to court documents Crawford's son videotaped him while he forced the boy to the ground and bound the child's hands and feet together. The Sept. 22 video footage later landed in the hands of the boy's counselor, who turned it over to authorities, according to a probable cause affidavit.

Crawford is related to the boy but it was unclear how in court documents.

He remains held at the Bonner County Jail after a judge refused to reduce his $100,000 bond during a hearing Wednesday.

Bonner County Deputy Prosecutor Shane Greenbank opposed the motion seeking a reduced bond for Crawford as he awaits sentencing in a separate, child endangerment case that involves his own children.

During the hearing on the child injury charge involving the boy with Asperger's syndrome, Crawford's attorney argued that the video footage was taken to document the man's interaction with the boy because the child was prone to exaggerating.

Crawford was seeking assistance on how to discipline and contain the child during his outbursts, said his attorney, Jeremy Featherston.

Autism disorders are marked by problems with communication, behavior and social skills. The range of conditions includes a severe form called autistic disorder and the much milder Asperger's syndrome.

Crawford's conduct during the taped encounter with the boy was "very disturbing," Judge Debra Heise said. The footage shows Crawford forcing the child to the ground before tying his hands and feet together.

While Heise declined to lower Crawford's bond, he will be able to again submit the request once his case is transferred to district court.

Mended Raptor Flies Free in Tribal Ceremony

BY ALISON BOGGS
The Spokesman-Review

WORLEY • A golden eagle found grounded as a baby flew free for the first time Thursday morning after more than a year of rehabilitation with a Coeur d'Alene raptor biologist.

Jane Fink, executive director of Birds of Prey Northwest, released the eagle during the Coeur d'Alene Tribe's annual Elders Dinner gathering, attended by hundreds of people from tribes throughout the Northwest.

Fink stepped onto the lawn in front of the Coeur d'Alene Casino in Worley, holding the hooded young male raptor in her arms, his feet in her heavily gloved hands.

"It's always an awkward moment for me because I can't guarantee what will happen," she said. "Whether he lands on the ground and sits there for a while to get his bearings, he'll not likely fly toward you; he's afraid of you."

Then she walked across the long green lawn and removed the hood. The eagle began struggling and squawking in her arms. Released, he flew low across the lawn, then gained elevation and alighted on a nearby rooftop.

The crowd erupted in cheers.

"Go, go, go, fly, fly," people yelled, clapping and whistling.

Coeur d'Alene tribal elders offered prayers and songs prior to the release.

SPOKESMAN-REVIEW • ASSOCIATED PRESS

Raptor biologist Jane Fink releases a golden eagle on Thursday as part of the annual Coeur d'Alene Tribe elders dinner at the Coeur d'Alene Casino in Worley.

"Grandfather in heaven, thank you for our brother here who is about to be released into the freedom of the air," said Cliff Sijohn, the tribe's cultural awareness director. "He will see things with his eyes that we will never see."

Fink's nonprofit organization rehabilitates injured raptors, educates the public about them, and tracks those that are released into the wild. She has special permits from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service for her work.

She said the golden eagle was orphaned 14 months ago and has been cared for in her rehabilitation center. The raptor has been offered live prey to condition him to hunt.

"We don't just release these birds after their injuries have mended," she said. "We exercise them and provide them opportunities to hunt so they'll be successful upon release."

Prior to the release, inside the casino ballroom, Fink did a presentation for the crowd with a young female peregrine falcon and a 20-year-old female bald eagle named Liberty. The eagle has been with Fink for 15 years as she travels the country with her educational program.

Liberty fell and broke her leg as a baby and was taken in by people who hand-fed her. While well-intentioned, Fink said, that action imprinted Liberty to humans and forever removed her opportunity to return to the wild.

The bald eagle's shrill call filled the room, eliciting gasps from the crowd. But, while endowed with a 6-foot wingspan, a powerful hooked beak and massive talons, Liberty is incapable of hunting, Fink said.

"She thinks food comes from humans," Fink said. "If she were out in the wild and were hungry, she would sit on somebody's head and beg for food."

BSU Scientist Earns National Space Research Fellowship

IDAHO STATESMAN

BOISE • Liliana Mellor, a Boise State postdoctoral research fellow, has been selected by the National Space Biomedical Research Institute to be a part of its 2011-2013 class of postdoctoral fellows. This marks the first time a Boise State student has received a research fellowship from the institute.

Mellor will conduct research that could help astronauts spend a longer time in space with fewer adverse health effects.

"This is a very exciting experience for me because this study would bring a unique component to the growing field of space biomedical research and would hopefully open a new field for future research," Mellor said.

NASA is planning prolonged space missions such as trips to Mars, which take nine months rather than the three-day flight to the moon, she said. "It is important to understand if the human body can withstand such a long exposure to zero-gravity environment."

The two-year fellowship offers participants the opportunity to manage their own space-related biomedical research project while continuing to learn from a faculty mentor. Mellor's research could help protect astronaut health by determining if living in microgravity can increase the chances of astronauts developing early osteoarthritis. Research suggests astronauts suffer from bone density loss after long exposure to microgravity. But there is no published data on osteoarthritis and microgravity.

In addition to Mellor, students from Johns Hopkins School of Medicine and Vanderbilt University Medical Center also received awards to research in areas related to astronaut health.

Participants in the fellowship receive a $50,000 annual stipend and additional funds to cover health insurance and travel to fellowship-related meetings.

Sheriff: Boise Woman Attacked After Telling Motorist To Slow Down

IDAHO STATESMAN

BOISE • Nicole E. Raymond and Robert James Elam are being held in the Ada County Jail on aggravated battery charges after Ada County Sheriff's deputies say Raymond and Elam attacked a Boise woman after she yelled at Raymond to slow down while driving through an apartment complex Wednesday night.

Sheriff's officials say the victim sustained fractures on her face and bruising to the back of her head in the attack.

The 25-year-old victim told deputies she was in the parking lot of an apartment complex on Brogan Drive, which is near Lake Hazel and Maple Grove Roads southwest of Boise, around 10:15 p.m. Wednesday when she yelled at a woman driving a car through the parking lot to slow down, according to reports.

Witnesses told deputies that's when Raymond stopped the car and got out, with passenger Elam, ran over to the woman and a 25-year-old man she was with, and began yelling at them.

Witnesses say the pair first pushed the man to the ground before Elam grabbed and pushed the woman down, holding her in place, while Raymond punched her several times in the face, according to reports.

Witnesses called 911 to report what was going on.

Witnesses told deputies Elam and Raymond stopped the beating a short time later and ran away before officers arrived.

When deputies arrived, they found the woman had head and facial injuries. Paramedics took her to a local hospital, where she was treated and released a short time later. The man the victim was with sustained minor injuries but did not have to go to a hospital for treatment, officials say.

Deputies found the 24-year-old Raymond and 30-year-old Elam hiding in the second-floor apartment of a family member a short time later. The pair were arrested and booked into jail early Thursday morning.

“We cannot achieve democracy and lasting peace in the world unless women obtain the same opportunities as men to influence developments at all levels of society.”

— Thorbjorn Jagland, head of the Norway-based Nobel committee, on its decision to award the 2011 Peace Prize to three influential women from Africa and the Middle East.

CHEERS AND JEERS

CHEERS: To South Central Community Action Partnership for bringing assistance to low-income residents of the north side.

After running out of federal stimulus funds, the nonprofit had to close its Jerome office earlier this year. The organization downsized to a smaller office and staff — a tough adjustment, but one that was necessary to bring help to people in need.

With SCCAP’s help, there will be fewer hungry bellies and cold homes in Gooding this winter. That’s something we can all be grateful for.

JEERS: To the Idaho legislators who accepted unnecessary per diem payments.

According to the Associated Press, Idaho legislators received nearly $1 million in per diem payments in 2011. That money makes it possible for lawmakers from across the state to reside in Boise during the legislative session.

We understand payments for maintaining a second residence, as long as lawmakers are actually using the money appropriately. But Sen. John McGee of Caldwell claimed a second-residence payment of $122 per day while staying with his parents — even though he lives just 26 miles away. And Sen. Curt McKenzie of Nampa, who lives only 20 miles from the Capitol, pocketed the money while sleeping on his law office cash. McKenzie also improperly received mileage reimbursements.

According to the Idaho Department of Labor, more than 35,000 people commute to Ada County for work, including plenty from Canyon County, where McGee and McKenzie live. We’re guessing the majority of those commuters don’t depend on taxpayers to fill their gas tanks.

McKenzie is returning $2,402 to the state, but that’s not enough. We’d like to see more scrutiny — and more personal responsibility — when it comes to handing out per diem payments to lawmakers.

JEERS: To Mike Simpson for supporting a bill that exempts agriculture from Superfund regulation without providing alternative solutions to waste management.

The basic argument: Animal waste from confined-animal feeding operations — think manure from a 2,000-head dairy operation — shouldn’t be regulated under the Superfund Law, a federal program that gives the Environmental Protection Agency power to identify parties responsible for industrial waste and compel them to clean it up. Manure is organic, not industrial, and should be regulated as such.

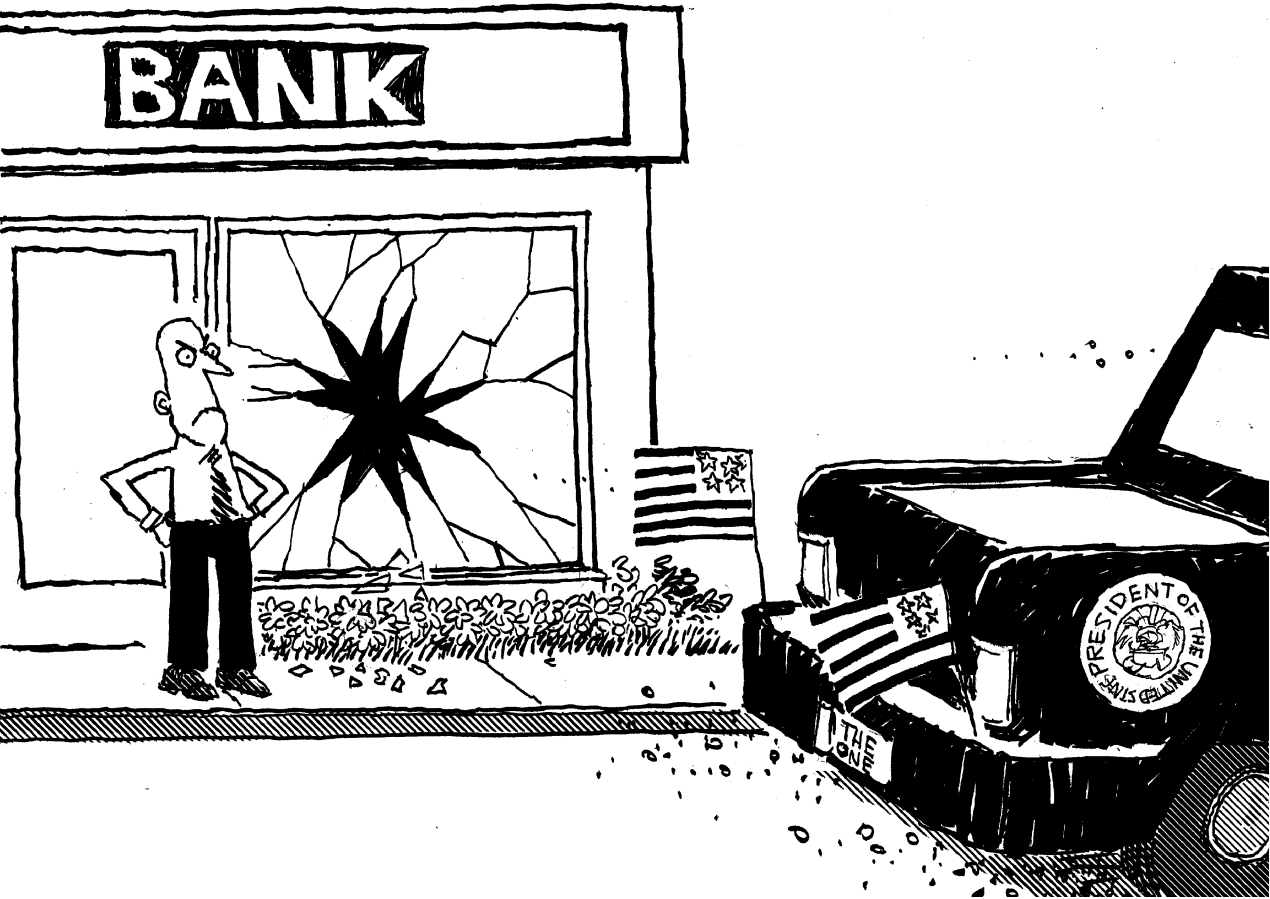

The problem, of course, is that keeping 2,000 cows in a confined on a plot is pretty unnatural. The mountains of manure that CAFOs produce contain high amounts of ammonia, which affect air and water quality.

Simpson doesn’t hide his contempt for the EPA. That’s fine — there are valid criticisms on its regulation and how it affects business owners.

But blindly calling their agenda “job-killing and unnecessary” without offering alternative solutions to waste management doesn’t help anyone, especially CAFO neighbors whose property values are hurt by mountains of manure.

We’ve seen what can happen when giant CAFOs go unregulated — think of the debacle over Desert Rose Dairy in Filer. Even if most dairy owners are responsible, as Gooding dairy owner Steve Ballard claims, not everyone is. We need solutions, not just condemnations of the EPA.

Occupy Wall Street: The New Populists?

Christopher Ketcham

Los Angeles Times

They call themselves the 99 Percenters. “We are occupying Wall Street,” they say, encamped by the hundreds in a park dubbed Liberty Square in Lower Manhattan’s financial district, and now seconded by satellite groups at L.A.’s City Hall, in San Francisco and in Chicago, Boston, St. Louis and dozens of other cities. “We will use the revolutionary Arab Spring tactic of mass occupation,” they avow, “to restore democracy in America.”

For the last two weeks, their numbers have ebbed and flowed. They are young, many of them college educated, most of them jobless — most of them feeling they’ve been robbed of a workable future. They’re sleeping in tents, sharing food, communicating by social media and participating in what their website calls a nonviolent, “leaderless resistance movement” to denounce “the greed and corruption of the 1 percent.”

They hold signs that say, “People not profit” and “Populism not corporate fascism.”

It doesn’t get a lot more specific than that. One of them, a 25-year-old ex-Marine named Brian Phillips, told me he quit his job in Washington state and hitchhiked to join the protest in New York. “We want to start a new way of living,” Phillips said. “We want to start a new society. We want to destroy a system that benefits only the 1 Percenters. It’s not working for us. It’s putting us in poverty. No more making laws that benefit corporations and banks.”

A Thousand Thanks

The 19th annual Thousand Springs Festival was a very successful event. It was all wonderful: talented craftsmen and artisans, music to die for, unsurpassed scenery and some of the best food and spirits Magic Valley has to offer. But without the assistance of the many fine sponsors and the 100-plus volunteers who turned out to make the festival run smoothly, it simply could not have happened.

It’s that way every year. People throw themselves into making this fine event function. In particular, the Southern Idaho Land Trust, for which the festival is its main fundraiser, would like to thank KMVT weatherman Brian Neudorff and also Danny Marona for their services as the masters of ceremonies; to Carter Wilson, who for almost two decades has consistently rounded up outstanding performers, to Sagebrush Canoes and Idaho Outfitter’s and the Southern Idaho Draft Horse and Mule Association for donating their time and all proceeds to SILT, and to Jennifer Kulm, who knows every last detail that has to be attended to and makes sure it all gets done.

And to think, this all started 19 years ago when the Nature Conservancy threw a community chili supper to raise money to maintain Ritter Island, which had recently been purchased, a conservation easement establishment and is now a state park for all the public to enjoy.

A Caring Compassionate Thank You

Lupe Luevano and the entire Luevano family would like to take this opportunity to thank Heidi Heil of Serenity Funeral Chapel for the warm and caring compassion she gave to our family in our time of sorrow with the passing of our husband and father.

Heidi took the extra effort to make sure the services were taken care of without us having to worry about them. Also, Heidi went out of her way to make state-to-state arrangements from Utah, Idaho and California where the services were held. Heidi’s compassionate manner and caring attitude, as well as her professionalism, was so very comforting to us in our time of need. We will never forget her kindness.

Thanks you so very much, Heidi Heil and Serenity Funeral Chapel.

New Nampa Classes Focus on Students With Autism

BY NATE GREEN
The Idaho Press-Tribune

NAMPA • A routine fire drill at Reagan Elementary School is hardly routine for Nancy Amoguis' class.

Amoguis specializes in teaching students with autism, and for her students, the squeal of the alarm and the rush to the fire exits has the potential to be overwhelming. She knows some students, unable to fully understand the situation, might panic.

But on a recent school day last month, Amoguis was prepared.

When the alarm rang, she handed out protective ear muffs to certain students, while calming others with a pat on the back as she moved them toward the exit. With the help of her assistants, she directed the students outside with oral and visual cues to remind them of activities they had practiced earlier in the week to prepare for a drill. As they stepped outside, painted footprints on the sidewalk led the students toward a safe place away from the school.

The drill went smoothly, and after about 10 minutes, the students returned to their class, where they were treated to cheese puffs and other snacks.

The fire drill offers a peek into how the Nampa School District's special education program has adapted to meet the needs of students on the autism spectrum.

In past years, students with autism attended special education classes with other students with developmental disabilities. But special education teachers found that they were spending too much time and effort juggling the special needs of the various students; they realized that students with autism could be better served with a designated room and teacher.

This year for the first time, the district created "extended resource room" programs especially for students with autism — Reagan Elementary on the east side of Nampa and Iowa Elementary on the west side. Each school has two resource rooms with teachers and assistants trained to work with autistic students, and each room serves about 16 students.

"Before we had a mixture of students, but this year I can focus on students with similar needs," Amoguis explained.

In Amoguis' class, she has minimized the kinds of distractions that might keep the students from learning in a more traditional classroom. She generally keeps the computers turned off and often dims the lights to calm her students. The room's furnishings are simple and uncluttered.

What's most noticeable, though, are the dozens of small pictures affixed to the back wall of the classroom. Because students with autism learn better with a lot of visual cues, their daily routines are mapped out with pictures.

Next to a photograph of each student is an array of pictures — a boy eating lunch, for example, or a girl playing soccer — backed by velcro. The students refer to their picture routines throughout the day, which helps them keep track of the task on hand.

Another set of pictures allows students to display how they're feeling. Most show a happy face.

School psychologist Mary Campbell explained that the new autism program helps students focus on behavior that comes easier to most kids — like interacting with others, expressing emotions and dealing with the day-to-day routines of school.

"A lot of children on the autism spectrum don't learn through the usual process of discovery," she said. "We have to teach them and direct them, sometimes physically show them, the correct behavior. There's a lot of repetition, a lot of reinforcement and rewarding."

Sandpoint OKs Funds for Pend d'Oreille Bay Trail

BY CAMERON RASMUSSEN
Bonner County Daily Bee

SANDPOINT • The Pend d'Oreille Bay Trail has taken its first steps toward fiscal reality.

Council members met in special session Tuesday to authorize a transfer of money from the general fund and recreation fund to the parks capital improvement fund. Altogether, the purchase will be financed by $100,000 from the general fund, $165,000 from the recreation fund, $85,000 from the parks fund and $60,000 from parks and recreation impact fees.

According to city Treasurer Shannon Syth, the transfers are in line with council deliberations during the budgeting process.

"This is exactly what we talked about," she said. "This just actually authorizes me to do it."

With the deadline for the deal between the city and the Hall family on the doorstep, the first parcel of property should now be under city ownership.

Not everyone was thrilled by the prospect. Resident Debby Trinen attended the meeting to express her disapproval during the public comment period.

"This is a gross violation of public trust," she said, later adding, "At a time of economic uncertainty, you have agreed to pay almost eight times the county-assessed value of the property."

The disparity between the Halls' parcel appraisal of $532,000 and the county-assessed value of $57,375 was a key point of debate preceding the decision to purchase the parcel. While the county assessment is based on five-year-old data and only used for taxation purposes, some residents criticized city officials for not seeking their own appraisal. Council members said time didn't allow for the measure.

"I am confident that an appraisal would return a value of $400,000 or more," Councilman Stephen Snedden said at the Sept. 20 meeting where the council approved the purchase. "There's just an issue of timing."

At the Thursday meeting, some council members also speculated the future Pend d'Oreille Bay Trail property purchase could endanger other city interests. According to the proposed purchase plan, Sandpoint will be responsible for the purchase of the second parcel.

Police Arrest Boise Bench Man on Meth Charges

IDAHO STATESMAN

BOISE • Fawzi R. Al-Sarajy is being held in the Ada County Jail on felony charges of possession of methamphetamine with intent to deliver after police say they found 110 grams of the drug inside his Boise Bench home Thursday morning.

Boise police also seized a small amount of marijuana, digital scales, packaging material, and nine Hydrocodone pills which Al-Sarajy did not have a prescription for, according to reports.

Police went to Al-Sarajy's home in the 3900 block of Alpine Street, located just south of Morris Hill Cemetery, at 10 a.m. Thursday, to investigate citizen reports of drug activity at the home.

Police say Al-Sarajy initially gave them consent to search inside the home, where officers found a digital scale with what appeared to be meth residue on it, according to reports.

That's when police stopped what they were doing, got a search warrant, and then looked through the rest of the home, where they found the meth and 3.5 grams of marijuana, with the assistance of a K-9 dog, police said. The 110 grams of meth were found in a kitchen drawer, according to reports.

Police also gathered undisclosed evidence of drug sales at the home and arrested Al-Sarajy, who is also charged with misdemeanor counts of possession of marijuana, prescription medication without a prescription, and drug paraphernalia.

Lewiston Man Found Guilty of Defacing Pictographs

ASSOCIATED PRESS

LEWISTON • A 20-year-old Lewiston man has been found guilty of defacing American Indian pictographs by spray painting marijuana leaves and marijuana-themed words on rock walls near Hells Gate State Park south of Lewiston.

The Lewiston Tribune reports Freddie Bernal was found guilty late Wednesday of willful injury or depredation of property and providing false statements to investigators. Two other men who pleaded guilty testified against Bernal. Sentencing is set for Jan. 3.

Officials say the February 2010 vandalism caused more than $200,000 in damage. Laser and archaeology specialists will have to remove the spray paint to maximize the preservation of the pictographs.

Bernal's attorney argued his client did not know the site was sacred to the Nez Perce or other tribes and thought they were just spray-painting rocks.

Suspect Pleads Guilty to Felony Theft at Priest River Gas Station

BONNER COUNTY
DAILY BEE

SANDPOINT • A Bonner County man pleaded guilty Monday to ripping off a Priest River gas station using a prepaid credit cards.

In exchange for Tony Allen Lambert's admission of guilt on a charge of felony theft, the state has agreed not to prosecute Lambert as a persistent violator, which could have added considerable length to his prison sentence.

The prosecution is recommended a two- to four-year prison sentence with retained jurisdiction. If jurisdiction is retained, Lambert could become eligible for parole after serving up to a year in prison.

Lambert, 38, is accused of using the financial transaction cards charge thousands of dollars worth of gasoline at Priest River Family Oil last summer. Lambert allegedly cheated the gas station by capitalizing on its former charge authorization process.

The state filed a persistent violator enhancement in case because Lambert has several convictions in Virginia for possession of stolen property and forgery.

A sentencing hearing in the case is pending. He is held at the Bonner County Jail on a further-reduced bond of $5,000.

U.S. Asks Court to Halt Alabama's Immigration Law

Department of Justice filing says law could cause considerable fallout as immigrants flee to other states or their native countries.

BY GREG BLUESTEIN
Associated Press

ATLANTA • The federal government asked an appeals court Friday to stop Alabama officials from enforcing a strict immigration law that has already driven Hispanic students from public schools and migrant workers from towns, warning that it opens the door to discrimination against even legal residents.

The Department of Justice's filing to the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals also said the law, considered by many to be the most stringent immigration measure in the country, could cause considerable fallout as immigrants flee to other states or their native countries.

A coalition of advocacy groups also filed a separate appeal Friday that claims the law has thrown Alabama into "chaos" and left some Hispanics too afraid to go to their jobs and reluctant to send their kids to school.

The court signaled in an order Friday that it wouldn't decide whether to halt the law until it reviews more arguments from both sides next week. The state must file a brief by Tuesday, and the government must respond by Wednesday. After that, the court could decide whether to intervene by issuing a preliminary injunction.

In the meantime, Alabama Gov. Robert Bentley said he intends to continue enforcing the hotly disputed law, which allows authorities to detain people suspected of being in the country illegally and lets officials check the immigration status of students in public schools.

Those measures took effect last week after a federal judge upheld them, and they help make the Alabama law stricter than similar laws enacted in Arizona, Utah, Indiana and Georgia. Federal judges in those states have blocked all or parts of those measures.

Justice Department attorneys outlined several problems they have with the Alabama overhaul.

They worry the law is likely to expose legal residents "to new difficulties in routine dealings" and could force federal authorities to deal with

Three Women Activists Win Nobel Peace Prize

This year's award arrives as women in Africa and the Middle East find themselves trying to break away from a history of restrictions.

BY SUDARSAN RAGHAVAN and MICHAEL BIRNBAUM
The Washington Post

The Nobel Peace Prize for 2011 was awarded Friday to three influential women from Africa and the Middle East, a decision intended to draw attention to the suppression of women's rights around the world and spur their fight for greater equality in male-dominated societies.

The winners were Liberian President Ellen Johnson Sirleaf, the first elected female president in post-colonial Africa; peace activist Leymah Gbowee, also from Liberia, and Tawakkol Karman, a leading figure in Yemen's populist revolt this year who inspired thousands of women to rise up in a region where women are considered second-class citizens.

dle East find themselves at a crossroads of sorts, trying to break away from a history of restrictions fueled by culture and traditions. While women have become more visible in government and social activism, deep challenges remain in many areas, including education, employment and access to health care.

"We still have a long way to go," said Nana Asantewa Afadzinnu, executive director of the West Africa Civil Society Institute in Accra, Ghana, who has worked with Gbowee. "Women have a challenge in being part of the decision-making process in our countries."

And although women have played crucial roles in the protests still rocking the Arab world, a conservative backlash in places such as Egypt has prompted efforts in some instances to push them out of the spotlight.

The Oslo, Norway-based committee described the award as an important siren call for women the world over. In its citation, read by its head, Thorbjorn Jagland, a former Norwegian prime minister, the committee said that "we cannot achieve democracy and lasting peace in the world unless women obtain the same opportunities as men to influence developments at all levels of society."

A Libyan revolutionary fighter fires a machine gun at pro-Gadhafi forces inside the Ouagadougou conference center in Sirte, Libya, Friday.

Libyan Fighters Push Deep into Gadhafi's Hometown

BY CHRISTOPHER GILLETTE and HADEEL AL-SHALCHI
Associated Press

SIRTE, Libya • Revolutionary fighters assaulted Moammar Gadhafi's hometown from all sides Friday in what they hope will be a final all-out offensive to crush resistance in the most important bastion of regime loyalists.

Libya's new leaders say Sirte's fall is critical to formally declaring liberation and setting a timeline for elections — even if fighting persists elsewhere and the ousted leader is nowhere to be found — more than six weeks after the then-rebels seized control of the capital and most other parts of the country.

Smoke drifted over the skyline and explosions thundered throughout the besieged city, as long lines of civilians fleeing by car formed at checkpoints manned by revolutionary forces.

Anti-Gadhafi fighters pushed into the Mediterranean coastal city from the west, east and south in heavy fighting, trying to squeeze his supporters into a smaller and smaller perimeter. The two sides battered each other with rockets, mortar shells and tank fire, as Gadhafi snipers fired down on fighters advancing through housing complexes. Friday's push marked the largest new assault on the city in weeks. The former rebels had said they were delaying a final push to allow civilians to escape.

A U.S. administration official, speaking on condition of anonymity to discuss intelligence matters, said that 80 percent of the city was now pacified or under the control of the transitional government. The official said the remaining area might take a little more time as forces move methodically to eliminate the resistance.

NATO airstrikes have been critical to the rebels' successes.

Fighters entering through the western gate on Friday quickly advanced to within just a mile of the city center but faced heavy resistance from a loyalist force of roughly 800 men, according to one commander's estimate.

Immigration

low-risk immigrants rather than the most dangerous criminals. They say, the attempt to drive illegal immigrants “off the grid” could disrupt both diplomatic relationships and national policy.

“Other states and their citizens are poorly served by the Alabama policy, which seeks to drive aliens from Alabama rather than achieve cooperation with the federal government to resolve a national problem,” the filing said.

Immigration has become a hot-button issue in Alabama over the past decade as the state's Hispanic population has grown by 145 percent to about 185,600. U.S. Census figures show the group represents about 4 percent of the state population, but some counties in north Alabama have large Spanish-speaking communities and schools where most of the students are Hispanic.

State Republicans have long sought to clamp down on illegal immigration and passed the law earlier this year after gaining control of the Legislature for the first time since Reconstruction. Bentley soon signed the measure, saying it was crucial to protect the jobs of legal residents amid the tough economy.

Alabama House Speaker Mike Hubbard said the state was forced to act because the federal government ignored its responsibility to enforce immigration law. “In Alabama we believe in obedience to law because it promotes fairness and protects the rights of everybody,” said Hubbard, a Republican. “That’s why instead of just talking about it, we took action to ensure nobody is allowed to cheat the system and ignore our laws.”

Education officials say scores of immigrant families have withdrawn their children from classes or kept them home from school. Some towns and urban areas have also reported a sudden exodus of Hispanics, some of whom told officials they planned to leave the state to avoid trouble with the law.

TENN. PRISON FREES EX-DEATH ROW INMATE

After 25 years on death row, Gaile Owens walked out of prison Friday with a few belongings and a simple wish: to walk in the park with her family. The 58-year-old Memphis woman came within two months of being executed last year before her sentence was commuted. Owens admitted to hiring a hit-man in 1985 to kill her husband and the father of her two children. Supporters say she was an abused wife who rehabilitated herself in prison.

Officials: ‘Zeta Killers’ Kill 32 More in Mexico

MEXICO CITY (AP) • A relatively new drug gang is responsible for killing at least 67 people whose bodies were found over the course of a couple of weeks in the Gulf coast state of Veracruz, Mexican authorities said Friday.

Marines arrested eight members of the Jalisco New Generation drug gang Thursday, navy spokesman Jose Luis Vergara said at a news conference. The suspects later led authorities to 32 bodies left in three houses in Veracruz, a port city that carries the state’s name.

Vergara said the gang is also responsible for dumping 35 bound, tortured bodies on a busy boulevard in a suburb of Veracruz on Sept. 20.

The navy appeared eager to dampen speculation that the New Generation gang, believed to be allied with Mexico’s Sinaloa drug cartel, is some sort of paramilitary group aimed at eliminating the hyper-violent Zetas cartel.

New Generation members have dubbed themselves “Mata Zetas,” or “Zetas Killers,” and many of their victims appear to be from that cartel.

Authorities would have ample reason to want to eliminate the Zetas, who have been blamed for the kidnap-murders of three marines so far this year in Veracruz.

Vergara insisted no paramilitaries were involved.

“We stress that this is just another organized crime gang that opposes the Zetas, with whom they are fighting for control of illicit income and criminal activities in Veracruz,” he said.

Marines also arrested 12 alleged Zetas on Thursday, including Aquiles Amaran to Cruz Hurtano, allegedly the group’s new operations leader in Veracruz, Vergara said.

Peace Prize

Men have overwhelmingly won the award in its 110-year history; only 12 other women have been honored, including Mother Teresa, American philanthropist Jane Addams and Kenyan environmental activist Wangari Maathai, the 2004 winner.

Before Friday’s Nobel committee announcement, online speculation had centered on whether the peace prize would go to leaders of the protests that have toppled long-entrenched rulers in Tunisia, Egypt and Libya. The deadline for nominations was Feb. 1, when protests in Egypt and Libya were still in their early stages.

“I very much appreciate the bloggers,” Jagland said when asked why Karman and not others involved in the protests had received the prize. But Karman’s “courage was long before the world media was there and reporting,” he said.

Karman called the award “a victory for our revolution, for our methods, for our struggle, for all Yemeni youth, and all the youth in the Arab world in Tunisia, in Egypt, everywhere.”

“This will give the people more strength, and to recognize that peace is the only way, that making a new Yemen must come without violence,” she said, speaking by telephone in broken English from inside her tent in Change Square, the focal point of the uprising in the Yemeni capital, Sanaa.

Wearing her trademark pink floral head scarf and using text messages, Facebook and other social media, Karman was among the first activists to galvanize Yemeni youth when protests against President Ali Abdullah Saleh’s 33-year rule began in January.

A vocal critic of Saleh’s government since 2007, when she ran a human rights group called Women Journalists Without Chains, Karman was detained briefly in January, but protests forced authorities to free her. She has also been attacked by a mob carrying knives and sticks; in recent weeks, she has been unable to move about freely because of concerns that she might be kidnapped.

Her activism is all the more unusual because it is happening in patriarchal, deeply conservative Yemen, where women face restrictions and are often treated violently.

Johnson Sirleaf has been involved in Liberian politics for more than 30 years. A Harvard-trained economist, she was briefly the country’s finance minister in 1979. As president, she worked fervently to promote development in Liberia and the rights of women and girls.

“We are now going into our ninth year of peace, and every Liberian has contributed to it,” Johnson Sirleaf told reporters at her home in the Liberian capital, Monrovia, on Friday. “We particularly give this credit to Liberian women, who have consistently led the struggle for peace, even under conditions of neglect.”

New Prostate Cancer Test Advice Overturns Dogma

WASHINGTON (AP) • Men finally may be getting a clearer message about undergoing PSA screening for prostate cancer: Don’t do it. They may not listen. After all, the vast majority of men over 50 already get tested.

The idea that finding cancer early can harm instead of help is a hard one to understand. But it’s at the heart of a government panel’s draft recommendation that PSA blood tests should no longer be part of routine screening for healthy men.

The U.S. Preventive Services Task Force examined all the evidence and found little if any reduction in deaths from routine PSA screening. But it did conclude that too many men are diagnosed with tumors that never would have killed them and suffer serious side effects from treatment.

That recommendation isn’t final — it’s a draft open for public comment. But it goes a step further than several major cancer groups including the American Cancer Society, which urges that men be told the pros and cons and decide for themselves.

Already some doctors are rejecting the new advice.

“We all agree that we’ve got to do a better job of figuring out who would benefit from PSA screening. But a blanket statement of just doing away with it altogether ... seems over-aggressive and irresponsible,” said Dr. Scott Eggener, a prostate cancer specialist at the University of Chicago.

In the exam room, explaining the flaws in PSA testing has been difficult.

“Men have been confused about this for a very long time, not just men patients but men doctors,” said Dr. Yul Ejnes, a Cranston, R.I., internal medicine specialist who chairs the American College of Physicians’ board of regents.

He turned down his own physician’s offer of a PSA test after personally reviewing the research. “There’s this dogma ... that early detection saves lives. It’s not necessarily true for all cancers,” Ejnes said.

That’s an emotional shift, as the American Cancer Society’s Dr. Len Lichtenfeld voiced on his blog on Friday.

“We have invested over 20 years of belief that PSA testing works. ... And here we are all of these years later, and we don’t know for sure,” Lichtenfeld wrote. “We have been poked and probed, we have been operated on by doctors and robots, we have been radiated with fancy machines, we have spent literally billions of dollars. And what do we have? A mess of false hope.”

Marijuana

of marijuana plants eradicated nationwide were grown in California. “Huge amounts of marijuana grown here in this state is flowing east to other states, and huge amounts of money are flowing back in the opposite direction.”

The actions were geared toward stopping the growth of thousands of pot shops across the state. The spread was fueled partly by the Obama administration’s assurance two years ago that it did not plan to devote federal resources to countering marijuana outlets operating in compliance with state laws.

One example cited by the prosecutors Friday: In one Orange County strip mall, eight of the 11 second-floor suites are occupied by dispensaries and doctors’ offices for doctors where healthy individuals obtain “sham” recommendations to use medical marijuana.

It is “a Costco, Walmart-type model that we see across California,” said Andre Birotte Jr., U.S. attorney in the Los Angeles-area. Some people making money from medical marijuana openly revel in what some have called “the new California gold rush,” he said.

Landlords leasing property to dozens of warehouses and agricultural parcels where marijuana is being grown and retail spaces where pot is sold over the counter are receiving written warnings to evict their tenants or face criminal charges or seizure of their assets, the state’s four U.S. attorneys said.

“The intention regarding medical marijuana under California state law was to allow marijuana to be supplied to seriously ill people on a nonprofit basis,” said U.S. Attorney Melinda Haag, the top federal law enforcement officer for the San Francisco Bay area. “What we are finding, however, is that California’s laws have been hijacked by people who are in this to get rich and don’t care at all about sick people.”

Economy Adds 103,000 Jobs, But It's Not Enough

BY CHRISTOPHER S. RUGABER

Associated Press

WASHINGTON • The jobs crisis isn't getting worse. But it isn't getting much better, either.

The economy added just enough jobs last month to ease fears of a new recession. But hiring is still too weak to bring down unemployment, which has been stuck at about 9 percent for more than two years.

The nation added 103,000 jobs in September, an improvement from the month before, the Labor Department said Friday. But the total includes 45,000 Verizon workers who were hired after going on strike and were counted as job gains.

Even counting those workers, the job gains weren't enough to get the economy going. It takes about 125,000 jobs a month just to keep up with population growth. For September, the unemployment rate stayed stuck at 9.1 percent.

“Well, the sky is not falling just yet,” Joel Naroff, chief economist at Naroff Economic Advisors, said in a note to clients. But there was nothing great about the report, he added. “It's incredible how low our sights have been set.”

On one hand, the unemployment report was encouraging for economists.

Some of them had feared the nation would lose jobs in September, raising the risk of a painful second recession.

But everyday Americans can't take much solace from it, either. The Great Recession has been over for almost two and a half years, and while corporate profits and the stock market have bounced back in that time, unemployment is still high.

There are 14 million people counted as unemployed in the United States. An additional 9.3 million are working part time and would rather work full time. And 2.5 million more have simply given up looking for a job.

The Labor Department said the economy added more jobs than first estimated in July and August. The government's first reading had said the economy added zero jobs in August.

While the report was clearly better than feared, it also showed the economy is not gaining much momentum, said Tom Porcelli, chief U.S. economist at RBC Capital Markets.

“It moves you away from the ledge,” he said.

It was also discouraging news for President Barack Obama, who will almost certainly have to wage his 2012 campaign under the highest unemployment of any president running for re-election since World War II.

Retailers Pray Halloween Season Won't be Frightful

BY SANDRA M. JONES

Chicago Tribune

CHICAGO • With a less-than-thrilling holiday shopping season on the horizon, retailers are pinning their hopes on a booming Halloween.

The spooky holiday is expected to generate record sales this year as consumers look for an escape from the gloomy financial news. More Americans are dressing up, throwing parties and decorating their homes and front lawns as the urge to splurge overshadows broader economic troubles.

A record 69 percent of Americans intend to participate in Halloween this year, according to an annual survey from the Washington, D.C.-based National Retail Federation. Roughly 44 percent of survey respondents plan to don a costume, up from 40 percent in 2010, and 34 percent plan to throw or attend a party, up from 33 percent last year.

Total spending for the holiday is expected to reach $6.86 billion, the highest in the 10 years the retail trade group has been conducting the survey. The average person plans to spend $72.31 on decorations, costumes and candy, up from $66.28 last year, the survey said.

“It's a light-hearted holiday and with all the stress and bad stuff going on in the world, it's a way to forget,” said Ken Alterman, CEO of Savers Inc., a Bellevue, Wash.-based thrift store chain that operates an in-store Halloween costume boutique. “Halloween has grown tremendously in the past five years, so we have made it a bigger part of our selection.”

Adults have been taking over Halloween for the past decade, and the momentum keeps building. To feed the demand, Halloween pop-up stores continue to spread across the country, taking up dead space vacated by defunct retailers such as Borders and Circuit City.

The number of temporary, or pop-up stores, dedicated to Halloween merchandise rose an estimated 8 percent this year from 2010, according to IBIS World Inc.

Battle Rages to Save Montana Forests From Beetles

BY BRANDON LOOMIS

Salt Lake Tribune

SALT LAKE CITY • It's war on the Bitterroot.

Chemical war. Biological war. Scorched earth.

Having watched mountain pine beetles blitz the Continental Divide forests east of here for the past decade, leaving practically no mature pines living near the state's capital, western Montanans are primed for a fight.

"In Helena and Butte, they'll have a whole generation that won't know what (Montana) looked like," said Nancy Sturdevant, a U.S. Forest Service entomologist who is nursing the Big Sky state's wilds through the epidemic.

It's an extreme example of a phenomenon that has consumed more than 40 million acres of the West's forests since 1997. Researchers say warming winters have aided the beetles' survival beyond historic outbreak numbers. Average winter lows in Montana's forested ranges have climbed 4 to 6 degrees Fahrenheit in the past half-century. But there's also widespread fear that the government worsened the mess by letting the woods grow overcrowded.

Now, with Montana's battle shifted to the Bitterroot National Forest, federal authorities aren't holding fire. The people of Missoula — a nearby college town usually inclined to let nature do its thing — aren't giving them much choice after watching the eastern carnage.

A 2000 fire that scorched hillsides near Darby was a further call to action, Sturdevant believes, because it showed Montanans that flames would take what beetles didn't. Loaded with fuels, the forest burned intensely along Highway 93; nothing has grown back in the seared soil.

Former Mayor Daniel Kemmis, an author and public-lands consultant known for illuminating his city's environmental ethos, said Missoulians are ready to support tree thinning. Foresters have rebuilt trust since the clear-cutting 1980s timber wars, he said, and the need is obvious.

"You really can't drive or fly around and see the extent of beetle kill and not be worried," Kemmis said.

When Bitterroot foresters hold public meetings proposing the next steps, residents urge them to do more. So crews are hosing Carbaryl, a chemical insecticide, up and down tree trunks in accessible recreation zones. They're tacking anti-beetle pheromone pouches on prized shade trees in campgrounds. Most of all, they're hacking trees before the beetles can.

Stripping 40 percent of the ponderosa pines on the overcrowded slopes of these purple mountains gives the rest a fighting chance, Sturdevant said. The trees that are left have more resources to stay healthy.

"We greatly reduce (beetle kill) but can't eliminate it," Sturdevant said. "We're not God."

Leave the trees growing thick, though, and the beetles show no mercy.

"You wouldn't have a stand left to start with," Sturdevant said, showing off a recently thinned hillside of hearty ponderosas in a drainage called Swift Creek. "Here, you're leaving genetically superior trees."

Farther up the mountain, where the government is thinning more trees, a treaded tractor, called a "masticator," climbed a steep slope, swinging a spinning grinder and chewing trees to the ground.

The operator guided the long grinder arm first down the side, stripping away parts beetles might find appealing even in a toppled tree. Then he raised it for the final pass and mowed the remaining wood into chips in seconds.

"It's neat to be back," said logging contractor Dyrk Krueger, a third-generation Montana woodsman whose dad once logged this area, "but it's scary to look at what's happened on the Bitterroot."

Now there's not much commercial logging to go around, and most of his time is spent restoring forest health on private lands. The Darby lumber mill is closed, as is the Smurfit-Stone paperboard factory that handled 100 truckloads a day at Frenchtown until last year. Trucking to Northwest mills is too costly. If the mills were still around, Krueger said, it might be easier to fight the insects. Any market for small sawlogs would offset the costs.

Still, in a region where few loggers remain, it's the beetles that now cover his paycheck. Or, more directly, it's the Rocky Mountain Elk Foundation. The Missoula-based conservation group wanted to battle beetles and to open space for deer, elk and other game to thrive. It's administering the work under a cost-sharing deal with the Forest Service.

The Elk Foundation's goal is to restore a natural, "park-like" savanna forest, which has clearings of grass and shrubs to benefit wildlife, said Dale Kerkvliet, the group's habitat-stewardship director.

The Forest Service estimates that every tree invaded by beetles this year will spell 14 more dead on the Bitterroot next year. That's actually a forgiving explosion compared with the Continental Divide forests during their onslaught, when Butte saw the ratios between 2007 and 2009 grow from 1:12 to 1:20.

"We can still do things here," Sturdevant said. "We can still protect trees. In a lot of places, it's too late."

Forest Service entomologist Danielle Reboletti searches for spruce beetles beneath the bark of a downed spruce, July 12 in Fishlake National Forest in Delta, Utah.

Seventeen Virginians were killed when a dive boat capsized during a hurricane in Belize. American Leland H. Hartwell and Britons R. Timothy Hunt and Paul M. Nurse won the Nobel Prize in medicine. ## THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"I pledge you — I pledge myself — to a new deal for the American people."

— Franklin Delano Roosevelt

Today's deal is a new venture for me — and possibly for you too! After a top-club lead, South rates to take 11 tricks in four spades by cashing the spade ace early, and would feel that his side has bid quite high enough. However, you are asked to look just at North's and South's 26 cards, then arrange the opponents' cards to allow your side to bid and make seven no-trump!

West leads the club king against the grand slam. Since South's only hope of not losing a spade is to find the singleton jack with East, (the bare king with West will not suffice), he takes his club ace and leads the spade queen from hand. West covers, and South next takes three tricks in the diamond suit via the finesse.

When West shows out on the third diamond, South can now guarantee the contract. The fourth diamond will serve as a threat against East, and the club 10 acts as a menace against West, so that when the heart king and all the spades are run off, neither defender can guard hearts without throwing a master in one of the minor suits.

In the three-card ending, North holds a spade, a heart and the club 10; South holds a small diamond and the doubleton heart ace. When the spade is led, East has to discard a heart to keep the master diamond, South throws the diamond from hand, and West is squeezed in hearts and clubs.

BID WITH THE ACES

10-08-B

South holds:

♠ A 10 7 6 5 4
♥ K 5
♦ K 6
♣ 10 8 2

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ♥	Pass	Pass

ANSWER: The auction has somewhat reduced the likelihood that your side can make game, since your partner's pass at his second turn suggests he is minimum balanced without spade support. That being so, I suggest a call of two spades should suffice now. With slightly better spade intermediates, you would risk a jump to three spades.

DEAR ABBY: I have been dating "Mindy" for a little more than a year, and mostly we get along. The one thing that is not working is Mindy likes to have long talks on the phone, usually very late into the night.

When I get sleepy and tell her I'm going to bed, she either gets upset, ignores me and continues talking, or tries to guilt me into staying up later to talk. I resent it. I have tried discussing it with her, but she doesn't seem to get it. How can I get across to Mindy that I'd like to go to bed without a fight?

— NODDING OFF
IN BELMONT, CALIF.

DEAR NODDING OFF: Do it by telling your chat-box girlfriend in the bright light of day what time your bedtime is. Tell her that if she wants to have long conversations in the evening, that's fine with you — but she needs to respect what your bedtime is. As that time approaches, remind Mindy by saying, "I'm giving you five more minutes, then I'm hanging up the phone." Then do it.

DEAR ABBY: My fiance's ex-girlfriend "Amanda" has been living with his parents for more than three years. I feel cheated out of the opportunity to have a daughter-like relationship with my fiance's parents. I want her to move out.

I have discussed this with my fiance, and he talked to his mother and told her that we're getting married and it's time for Amanda to leave. Amanda also agrees it's time for her to move, but my future mother-in-law doesn't. I don't think she wants to let go of Amanda and her grandson. It's like Amanda is her daughter.

I don't like the situation. It's not normal, and I don't know what to do. Should I confront his mother or just stay quiet? I want to feel like I'm the daughter-in-law, not Amanda! Please help.

— CHEATED IN HOLLAND, MICH.

DEAR CHEATED: I see nothing positive to be gained from a confrontation. Once you and your fiance are married, you WILL be the only daughter-in-law.

However, you will have to accept that Amanda's child will always be your in-laws' first grandchild. Regardless of how far or how fast Amanda moves out, her child will have a place in their hearts and their lives. Having had their grandchild living in their home for this period of time has intensified the bond. Please consider carefully how this will affect you before you marry this man, because feeling as you do, it may be a difficult adjustment.

DEAR ABBY: In our house we have a simple dress code. We ban the "three B's". If your clothing shows your butt, your boobs or your belly, you may not wear it. I just don't think it's healthy for my teenage sons (or my older son and husband) to have that in their faces as we eat dinner.

Is there a tactful way to approach the kids' friends — who are welcome at all times, but sometimes show up with their boobs hanging out?

— COVERING UP
IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

DEAR COVERING UP: Yes. If someone comes to the table suffering from overexposure, take the girl aside and tell her that in your house you "dress" for dinner. Then offer her a garment to cover up with.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing you with an etiquette question. If a neighbor is displaying a card, such as a get-well or thank-you card, is it OK to pick it up and read it?

— JUST WONDERING
IN SPRINGBORO, OHIO
DEAR JUST WONDERING: No, not without first asking permission. To do otherwise could be considered rude or even nosy.

IF OCTOBER 8 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Remain organized and obey the rules and you will get through this month easily even if on a few days you feel overwhelmed. New acquaintances can affect your life favorably between now and the end of the year, but don't mistake friendship for love. You benefit from a small flurry of career activity in January when your business expertise is right on target. This might bring you some recognition within your work environment or even a little extra money, but it fades quickly. Don't be overconfident in February when your street smarts seem to dumb down. If a relationship needs to be repaired, or if you must make a crucial commitment, wait until early April when the wisest decisions can be made.

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Dreams are great, but reality pays the bills. You can reach any goal you set for yourself, just as long as those goals are realistic. You're better off listening to your head rather than your heart today.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Make them prove it. Don't accept pretty words at face value. Unless there is action to back them up, they are just words. You need not concern yourself with someone's idle boasts or casual assurances.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Don't give in too easily. Take everything with a grain of salt until you're absolutely sure it's true. Don't be afraid to embrace the cynic inside you and use it to keep you from making foolish mistakes.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Shine as an example of success. When others see your ethics at work, it makes you a hot commodity. You shouldn't be shy about showing others the way. Put extra energy to good use and get organized.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Don't count your chickens before they hatch. Plans don't always go smoothly, so you would do well to wait and see before claiming victory. You don't have to spend a lot of money to have a good time.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You can't have everything. Don't worry so much about keeping up appearances, as the only person really concerned about the façade is you. What has worked for you in the past may not work so well now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Gambles aren't worth the risk. The rewards could be great, but if you lose it could be devastating. Play it safe and leave things just as they are for now. Focus your attention on fun with friends and family.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): No shortcut compares to common sense. You may be too dazzled by a lucrative offer to see the potential pitfalls. Don't start anything before weighing your options carefully and doing your homework.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Walk the walk. You may know that you are the best one for the job, but unless you actually put your talents on display, it's just so much talk. Don't start anything that you aren't prepared to finish.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Nothing exceeds like excess. You shouldn't waste time or resources trying to improve something that it already operating at maximum efficiency. Trying to be too productive can make the machine break down.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You can't spend what you don't have. Make sure that outgoing cash isn't more than what is coming in. Certain necessary items may require you to stretch the budget. Don't let it get out of hand.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Find a common denominator. Don't try to compete with a new acquaintance, but instead find common interests to build a lasting friendship. Get away from the old routine and pile into the car for an adventure.

Lynx Capture WNBA Crown

ATLANTA • Seimone Augustus and the Minnesota Lynx completed a near-perfect postseason by beating the Atlanta Dream 73-67 on Friday night to complete a three-game sweep of the WNBA championship series. Augustus (below) had 16 points and Maya Moore, returning to her Atlanta home, had 15 to lead a balanced scoring attack as the Lynx won their first WNBA title. Minnesota closed the postseason with six straight wins, including sweeps of Phoenix in the Western Conference finals and Atlanta in the championship series. Most Minnesota players celebrated in a pile of hugs on the court. Taj McWilliams-Franklin, the 41-year-old starting center, headed to the bench to engulf coach Cheryl Reeve in a hug.

Morgan's Hit In 10th Lifts Brewers Past Diamondbacks

ASSOCIATED PRESS

MILWAUKEE • Nyjer Morgan denounced his "haters." He suggested he might celebrate by taking a nice, relaxing bath. Then he erupted with a cackle. After delivering an RBI single in the 10th inning to beat the Arizona Diamondbacks 3-2 Friday in Game 5 and send the Milwaukee Brewers to the NL championship series, Morgan was taking it all in and letting his oversized, odd-ball personality out. "It's a lot, man," Morgan said. "Basically just everything that I've had to overcome, just the stuff that people go out there and perceive about me, everything. Just all my haters. I just wanted to show them that I can play this game, even though I have a fun, bubbly personality. I still come to win, and I'm a winner." The Brewers would expect nothing less from their rabble-rousing, run-producing force who often refers to himself by the name of his self-created alter ego, "Tony Plush." Morgan might have worn out his welcome with other teams, but he's winning over the Brewers and their fans. "He's a joy to have, I'll tell you," Brewers manager Ron Roenicke said. "I don't care about all the little issues we have. This guy, I love him on this team. I like him as a really nice young man. He came through big, again, when we needed him." With the game tied at 2 in the 10th and Carlos Gomez on second base with one out, Morgan hit a grounder up the middle and Diamondbacks closer J.J. Putz tried in vain to stop it with his leg. It went into the outfield, and Gomez sailed across home plate as a wild throw home went awry. Morgan was mobbed by teammates near the mound after the latest dramatic finish for baseball's best home team at raucous Miller Park gave Milwaukee its first victory in a postseason series since it won the AL pennant in 1982. "We've heard all about 1982, so it's nice to start our own legacy," slugger Ryan Braun said. Arizona did all it could to extend its surprising season. Center fielder Chris Young made a jaw-dropping catch in the sixth and the Diamondbacks had one last comeback left in the ninth. Willie Bloomquist drove in the tying run with a safety squeeze, but Arizona was unable to forge ahead against closer John Axford.

BSU ROLLS PAST FRESNO – AGAIN

ASSOCIATED PRESS

FRESNO, Calif. • Geraldo Boldewijn caught two touchdown passes in his first game back from suspension and No. 5 Boise State extended its dominance over former WAC rival Fresno State in a 57-7 victory Friday night. Kellen Moore went 23 of 31 for 254 yards and three scores in his 43rd career win for the Broncos (5-0), who have turned this once intense rivalry into a lopsided affair. Boise State led 30-0 before Fresno State (2-4) even crossed midfield, and it took a 43-0 lead early in the third quarter on Doug Martin's 1-yard run to extend a run of 104 straight points against the Bulldogs. D.J. Harper added a 3-yard TD run later in the quarter after an interception by Derek Carr and the streak finally ended at 111 straight points when Devon Wylie returned a punt 79 yards for a score on the first play of the fourth quarter for the Bulldogs. The Broncos scored the final 10 points in a 51-34 victory here in 2009 and beat the Bulldogs 51-0 at home last year. They then scored the first 50 points of this game.

Castleford's passes fill air too, as new-look offense proves too much for Lighthouse Christian.

BY STEPHEN MEYERS smeyers@magicvalley.com

CASTLEFORD • With four touchdowns scored in the first six minutes of the opening quarter, this game had the makings of a good old-fashioned shootout. Castleford had other ideas, however, shutting down the explosive Lighthouse Christian offense for two quarters to take a 45-24 win and move one step closer to earning a No. 1 seed in the Class 1A Division II playoffs. "We knew tonight was by far the most important game of the season. We didn't want to get thrown into a three-way tie with North Gem and Lighthouse," said Castleford receiver Cody Hansen. The senior receiver and quarterback Mitch Howard connected nine times for 170 yards and two touchdowns in a new-look spread offense for the Wolves (4-2, 2-0 Sawtooth South). Howard completed 13 of 23 passes for 219 yards, four touchdowns and one interception for Castleford, which showed it can sling the ball with the best of them when it wants to stray away from the power run offense. "We started with the spread offense for our two-minute drill and just decided to stick with it," said Howard, who had missed parts of two games earlier in the season due to an ankle injury. "It feels good to be back with my teammates." Howard found Hansen for a

Plenty At Stake In District IV 3A Playoffs

BY STEPHEN MEYERS smeyers@magicvalley.com

Fourteen teams, five and a half state berths at stake, one location. It's going to be soccer madness at Sunway Soccer Complex this weekend as the Class 3A District IV soccer tournament kicks off. After Wendell's state title last season and Gooding's the year before that, District IV will be well represented with three teams at the boys state tournament Oct. 20-22 at Vallivue High School in Caldwell. "I love that we're getting three teams going to state, but I'm sure the rest of the state isn't happy about it," said Filer coach Bill Fields. "Looking at what other conferences are doing, I feel that our conference is again going to represent well, no matter who gets there." Filer draws defending champ Wendell in the opening round where a loss sends you home and a win sends you to Sun Valley to play top-seeded Community School on Monday. Sixth-seeded Bliss plays three seed Buhl and seventh seeded Declo plays second seed Gooding. "Three teams will be knocked out the first day and our league is so tight, any one of them can beat the other on any given day," said Community School coach Richard Whitelaw. "That's a big advantage we have with that first-round bye. A team could have a bad day, your team could have some players injured, something fluky could happen. You just never know. That's the beauty of the district tournament." The Cutthroats are eyeing a return to the state tournament after a three-year absence and rolled through conference play this season to a 9-1-1 record, their only loss coming to Buhl. On the girls side, Community School comes in as the No. 2 seed behind Buhl, which went 10-1-1 in conference play. The Cutthroats open the tournament against winless Gooding, while Buhl awaits the winner between No. 4 Filer and No. 5 Wendell and will play Monday in Buhl. Third-seeded Bliss plays No. 6 Declo. "We're definitely excited; it's something we've been working toward the last couple of years. The long-term was district champs and to do well in state, not just to say we went," said Buhl coach Araceli Perez Huicochea. Staff writer David Bashore contributed to this report.

Vandal Attack Is Outright Offensive

BY JOSH WRIGHT
For the Times-News

MOSCOW • The quarter-back play has been nowhere as efficient. The running game is far less productive. And the daring coaching decisions have yet to pan out like they did two years ago.

In almost every respect, this year's Idaho football team doesn't stack up to the 2009 Vandals, the gold standard that UI fans use to gauge the health and direction of the program.

But there's at least one similarity: The Vandals finished '09 with the 107th-ranked defense in the Football Bowl Subdivision – the same spot in the national rankings the team occupies entering today's homecoming date with Louisiana Tech at 3 p.m. (1310 AM, no TV)

Idaho could rarely hold back opposing offenses two years ago, and until last week, the defense has shown the same hard-to-shake habits this season during a 1-4 start.

More troubling, though, has been the Vandals' offensive shortcomings. They didn't score an offensive touchdown until overtime in a 21-20 loss at Virginia last week. And in four trips inside the Cavaliers' 20, they came away with six points.

"... That wasn't so good," coach Robb Akey said. "Getting down to the red zone, that needs to produce touchdowns."

The Vandals have fallen from ninth nationally in total offense in 2009 to 55th last year to 114th (out of 120 FBS teams) this season. Injuries at wide receiver and along the offensive line have factored into the steep drop, as has the transition from Nate Enderle to Brian Reader at quarterback.

Reader, a senior and first-year starter, has thrown only three interceptions in 190 attempts. But he's also completed just 53 percent of his passes and has gone through prolonged stretches where he struggled to hit open receivers.

Still, just after the painful defeat to Virginia, Reader told reporters the Vandals were well-positioned to make a midseason push.

"There is no reason why we can't go out and win the rest of our games this season," he said. "We've got the rest of the WAC and one out of conference (BYU), so there is no reason why we can't end the season 8-4."

In slightly less bold terms, Akey made a similar comment while prepping for Louisiana Tech (1-4, 0-1 in the WAC).

"Our football team has found out that if we'll go out and play the way we're capable, play our tails off, leave it all out there, we have the ability to beat anybody we're going to line up against," he said.

NOTES: Idaho starting defensive end Benson Mayowa (knee) will miss his second straight game. ... Defensive tackle Michael Cosgrove (groin) is questionable after not returning in the second half last week.

KRAMER EAGER TO GET IT RIGHT

BY MARK LIPTAK
For the Times-News

POCATELLO • It's not often a coach admits they made a mistake.

Then again, Idaho State's Mike Kramer isn't your average coach. Kramer got everyone's attention this week when, before talking about the Bengals upcoming game Saturday with Montana, he talked about his decision to punt on 4th-and-1 late in the game with Portland State.

"We lost our nerve there a little bit," he said. "Should have gone for it. We're a football program that needs a win, a marquee win, a homecoming win. On fourth down and a foot to go and we hadn't stopped them much in the second half, I elected to punt and that played right into Portland State's hands. ... Until we can get to a championship-caliber team, we might need to go for it in those situations. I hope we get another chance this week against Montana where there are two or three minutes left and I have to make the decision."

Montana (3-2, 2-1 Big Sky) has been the colossus in football since Boise State and Idaho left the Big Sky in 1994, and they have dominated the series with ISU having won 40 of the 53 meetings. It's been seven years since the Bengals (2-3, 1-2 Big Sky) have gotten a win.

Montana comes in with a similar offense to the past two opponents, Northern Arizona and Portland State. That could be bad news because ISU has been gashed repeatedly for big plays off the run.

"We cannot miss tackles," Kramer said. "Montana is pretty dynamic at running back ... maybe a little bigger than what we've played in the past two weeks. To me it's almost like a mimeo-graph machine, cookie-cutter offense the last few weeks. It will be the same thing we've faced defensively this week."

ISU will be keying on quarterback back Jordan Johnson, a sophomore who is averaging 7.7 yards every time he runs with the football and is throwing for 162 yards a game.

Another key facet is ISU's passing game against Montana's secondary. The Bengals are averaging a league-best 388 passing yards a game. Montana only allows 219 a game. That mix and who comes out on top could go a long way in determining who wins.

One other factor: Running back / return specialist Tavoy Moore returned to the field last week after missing 3 1/2 games with a high ankle sprain. He was rusty against Portland State but because ISU likes to spread the field and force an opponent to have to defend the entire surface, if he's healthy, he might be able to find gaps in the defense and pick up big yardage. Rodrick Rumble will also try to extend his streak of games with at least 100 yards in receptions to six. He still leads the nation in receptions per game (11) and yards receiving per game (151).

This one kicks off at 4 p.m. and will be the last time any team from Montana will be playing at Holt Arena until 2015 because of conference expansion next year.

Biffle, Edwards Sharing Front Row

ASSOCIATED PRESS

KANSAS CITY, Kan. • Carl Edwards doesn't like sneaking up on people. He'd rather have a big lead and let everyone else try to track him down.

Maybe that's why he was so giddy over his qualifying run Friday.

The Chase co-leader turned a lap of 174.571 mph, putting him on the front row with Roush Fenway teammate Greg Biffle for Sunday's race at Kansas Speedway. Biffle had the fast lap at 174.887, giving Edwards an ally up front with Chase contenders Kyle Busch and Matt Kenseth making up Row 2.

"This is the best I've ever qualified here, so I'm not going to be frustrated about it," Edwards said. "I'm proud of our qualifying effort and pretty excited to have an all-Ford front row. That's pretty neat. There's a lot of pride for that in our shop."

Busch will roll off third after a lap of 174.447 mph, while Kenseth will start fourth.

The top nine drivers in the Chase are separated by just 19 points.

"I felt like the car had decent speed," Busch said. "Starting up front is beneficial, getting a good pit selection is beneficial, so carry those things into Sunday. My next closest competitor for the Chase starts right in front of me, so other than that, we're not worried who's behind us."

There's a bunch of them back there.

Tony Stewart and Kurt Busch are tied for third in the standings, though both will have ground to make up. Stewart, who won the first two Chase races, will roll off 23rd after struggling all day Friday; Busch will start 17th after his victory last week at Dover.

"The front end just wouldn't settle like it needed to," Kurt Busch said. "But tomorrow is a new day. We've got two more cracks at practice to try and dial the car in."

Denny Hamlin will start seventh, Jeff Gordon qualified 10th, Ryan Newman will start 11th and Brad Keselowski 12th among Chase contenders. Dale Earnhardt Jr. was 18th and Jimmie Johnson 19th.

"If it ain't us winning," Edwards said glibly, "hopefully it's not another Chase guy."

The native of Columbia, Mo., has fared well at Kansas Speedway, which he still considers his home track. Edwards has three top-5 finishes in nine starts on the 1 1/2-mile trioval.

He's coming off a frustrating race at Dover in which a pit road speeding penalty cost him a chance at victory. After the race, Edwards brashly told his team over the radio, "We're going to Kansas and we're going to win, and let's just go do it."

Broncos

Boise State nearly scored as many touchdowns (eight) as Fresno State had first downs (nine) with the final score coming on Grant Hedrick's 23-yard run with 17 seconds left.

Martin ran for 94 yards, Harper had two short TD runs, Mitch Burroughs scored on a 25-yard run and Matt Miller caught a TD pass for Boise State's first score of the game. The only problems for the Broncos came on special teams where they had two missed extra points by Dan Goodale and allowed the long punt return.

Carr struggled in his first game against Boise State, completing 17 of 30 for 126 yards with one interception and a lost fumble. Robbie Rouse was held to 72 yards rushing to end a streak of four straight 100-yard performances as Fresno State lost its 15th straight game to a ranked opponent and suffered the worst home loss in coach Pat Hill's 15-year tenure.

The teams spent the past decade together in the WAC with Boise State winning nine of the 10 meetings starting with a 35-30 win over the then-

No. 8 Bulldogs in 2001. Boise State left for the Mountain West Conference after last season and will be joined in its new conference by Fresno State next year.

But the Bulldogs haven't been in the Broncos' league. Boise State has outscored Fresno State 220-51 in the last four meetings, topping 50 points each time.

They took control early this game, getting a boost on offense from the return of Boldewijn, who was suspended for the first four games for taking impermissible benefits.

Boldewijn, the biggest and fastest member of the Broncos' receiving corps, had 11 catches for 160 yards last year and was being counted on to replace Titus Young as the team's deep threat.

Boldewijn caught an 11-yard pass on Boise State's second play from scrimmage. He dropped a potential touchdown pass later in the first quarter, forcing the Bulldogs to settle for a field goal by Goodale that made it 10-0.

Boise State added another touchdown about a minute later when Mitch Burroughs scored on a 25-yard end-around on the first play after Wylie lost a fumble to make it 16-0 before Fresno State even had its initial first down of the game.

Boldewijn got his first touchdown early in the second quarter when he made a one-handed, 18-yard grab with cornerback Isaiah Green draped over him to make it 23-0.

Hunter White's blocked punt set up Harper's 6-yard TD run that made it 30-0 and Boldewijn added his second TD on a 4-yard catch with 20 seconds left in the half to make it 37-0. Moore has thrown at least two touchdown passes in 18 straight games and has 25 career games with at least three.

OAKLEY HANGS ON, EDGES RAFT RIVER

BY RYAN HOWE

OAKLEY • The stage is set. With a 16-6 win over cross-county rival Raft River, the Oakley Hornets improved to 4-0 in Snake River Conference play, setting up a much-anticipated matchup next week with undefeated Hagerman that could end up deciding the conference championship.

Stephan Ortiz rushed for 210 yards, scored all of Oakley's points on two touchdowns and two PAT conversions to carry the Hornets (5-1 overall) to their fifth straight win.

"We didn't start off good, we weren't fired up enough," said Oakley senior lineman Jose Contreras of the tight game that was scoreless at halftime. "Raft River brought everything at us and we weren't ready. We weren't pumped up enough"

Oakley saved its homecoming with late-game courage, led by Ortiz, who was knocked a bit woozy and had to be checked out by medical personnel after the game.

"They busted us in the mouth," said Oakley coach Tim Behunin. "We were a little flat. We felt like we prepared well this week, but it was just one of those games. If you want to be a great team, I believe there are going to be times when you've got to grind sometimes, and you might win ugly."

The game was scoreless until 4:49 remaining in the third quarter when Ortiz found a crease on the left side and sprinted 69 yards for a touchdown. Up until that point, Raft River had held Oakley to just 57 yards of total offense.

"Defensively we prepared hard all week trying to contain Oakley, and I think we did more than just contain them," said Raft River coach Randy Spaeth. "I think we forced them out of what they really want to do and made them have to adjust. Ortiz, once he sees us overplaying sweep, he makes a quick cut and it's just a foot race."

Raft River responded on its next possession, lining up in the I-formation and pounding out 81 yards in 14 plays. Tanner Anderson capped the drive with a 31-yard touchdown pass to Deven Moss. The point-after attempt failed, however, leaving Oakley ahead 8-6.

On Oakley's next possession, Anderson stripped the ball away from Hornet running back Gerrit Wybenga, setting Raft River up at its own 34-yard line for a potential game-winning drive with 7:39 remaining. But the Trojans stalled at the Oakley 44 as Anderson's fourth-down pass fell incomplete.

On the very next play, Ortiz made a nifty cutback and broke the Trojans' back with a 56-yard touchdown run.

"I'm glad we came together at the end," said Oakley senior Eleazar Tellez. "At the beginning we were slacking. This game was really hard for us. They came out ready. They're a good team."

Raft River finished with 110 yards rushing and 90 yards passing, but shot itself in the foot too many times.

In the second quarter, the Trojans had a touchdown pass called back for holding, and then later had a holding penalty stall another red zone drive. They drove inside Oakley's 20-yard line on their first drive of the third quarter, but a pair of dropped passes snuffed out that scoring chance.

Still, Spaeth was pleased with his team's effort in limiting Oakley to its lowest point total of the season, plus take away Ortiz's two long touchdown runs and the Trojans defense held the bigger, faster Hornets to just 105 yards rushing.

"I'm really proud of the kids, their effort and enthusiasm," said Spaeth, whose team fell to 2-4 overall and 1-2 in conference. "I'd love to have the win, but I couldn't be more proud of these kids. All in all, for the first time this year I think we really showed up and this was the best we've represented all year."

Oakley has now won six in a row against its rival.

Bruins Rally Past W.R., Keep Playoff Hopes Alive

BY DAVID BASHORE

HAILEY • Eventually, youth comes of age.

The Twin Falls football team grew up a little Friday night, exerting its will and taking what could be a season-defining 17-14 win at Wood River, giving the Bruins' postseason chances a major shot in the arm.

Twin Falls (4-2, 2-1 Great Basin) were held quiet for most of the first half, but the Bruins became the more physical team and beat Wood River (4-3, 1-2) at its own game when it mattered most.

Hunter Waters weaved his way into the end zone with 5:34 left in the game for the decisive touchdown, the Isaiah Armstead jumped a pass route to basically end the game.

"Our coaches did a great job getting us prepared for this game, and we knew that was one of their major pass plays," said Armstead. "When I saw it was coming,

I guess I was just ready for it."

The Bruins stifled the Wolverine run attack in the fourth quarter and forced their ground-and-pound hosts to become a pass-oriented team down the stretch.

The telling drive started at the end of the third quarter, when Twin Falls went 75 yards and bled almost 7 minutes off the clock, taking the lead for good on Waters' touchdown run.

"I trust my offensive line to do its job, and when we all do our job, good things happen," said Waters, who rushed for 128 yards on 19 carries.

Greg Lindbloom kept up Wood River's power running game, rushing for 190 yards and a touchdown on 30 carries. But when the Wolverines got the ball for the final time, they had 98 yards to go and 1:04 to get there without benefit of a timeout - hardly ideal for a heavy-run offense.

Kicking was also a key factor. Ben Worst hit a 30-yard field goal in the third quarter, while Wood River missed a short one in the second.

"They're the same team every year. They hit hard and play harder," said Lindbloom. "We matched them ... they just made a couple more big plays than we did, where we missed blocks or tackles."

Twin Falls heads home to host Canyon Ridge next week, knowing if it remains unbeaten against its crosstown rival it will all but be in the playoffs.

PREP ROUNDUP

Jerome Earns First Victory

TIMES-NEWS

Preston Miller rushed for 123 yards and a late first-half touchdown on 23 carries and Jake Hollifield ran for two scores and 47 yards on just three carries as Jerome broke into the win column with a 38-27 victory against Mountain Home.

It was an action-filled game throughout, with the Tigers showing enough balance to gain the lead and withstand Mountain Home's second-half rally. Jerome ran for 273 yards and passed for 137. Mountain Home passed for 395 yards on 21 of 34 passing, but turned the ball over four times - three on fumbles - and rushed for just 13 yards.

Jerome (1-6) wasn't entirely clean itself, with quarterback Zach Thibault throwing three interceptions. But plenty of teammates picked him up and delivered the victory, especially Hollifield and Miller.

"He's the hardest worker on the team and he's a senior," Jerome coach Gary Krumm said. "It was cool for him to have a homecoming (game) like that. Miller, he was our workhorse tonight."

District IV Boys Soccer

JEROME 3, CANYON RIDGE 2
JEROME WINS ON PENALTY KICKS, 5-4

Jose Hernandez netted a pair of first half goals, but the Tigers needed penalty kicks to advance.

Canyon Ridge got goals from Suren Thapa and Hadir Saad in the first half, which ended 2-2. The two teams played a scoreless second half and overtime periods before going to penalty kicks.

BURLEY 3, TWIN FALLS 1 (THURSDAY)

Brandon Castaneda, Juan Puentes and Jackson Greener had goals as Burley won its first-round game. Burley advances to play Wood River today, while Twin Falls moves into the losers' bracket and will take on Canyon Ridge.

Wolves

16-yard score three minutes into the game, but Lighthouse Christian answered right back on its first possession of the game with a 71-yard pass from Logan Bosma to Brad Wall.

Castleford's Destry Weekes scored on a 30-yard run less than two minutes later, but once again, the Lions (4-3, 2-2 Sawtooth South) struck quickly as Dylan Van Esch scored on a 34-yard scamper to tie the game. The play was set up by a 56-yard kickoff return by Gabe Heath.

The Lions, however, went stagnant on offense until late in the fourth quarter, with several drives stalling on the Castleford side of the field and a Bosma interception in the fourth.

"It sure felt a lot closer than what the score said and what the stats show," said Lighthouse Christian coach John van Vliet. "You don't get to play in these big of games all the time and we came up short tonight. If we get the chance to squeak in (the playoffs), these kids, hopefully they can look back and remember tonight."

In the second half, Castleford pounded the ball on the ground to 6-0, 180 pound runningback Ty Zimmers. He wore down the Lighthouse Christian defense, carrying the ball 31 times for 241 yards and a touchdown. His 64-yard score with 9:46 remaining put the Wolves up 32-12.

"This was the most important game of the season right here," Zimmers said. "Now we've got to prepare for Murtaugh. If we all work together, we'll see how good this team can be."

Castleford plays Murtaugh next week before a battle against potential state playoff team North Gem the following week. Lighthouse Christian returns to the field against Jackpot, followed with a bye before the season finale against Murtaugh.
